'Big Push' Starts In Center Drive

The showdown came today in the Pampa Youth and Community Center Campaign.

The 10 a.m. meeting in the Palm Room was billed as "Operation Big Push," and the push came from speakers Johnny Campbell, general director of the Campaign; Dr. Joe Donaldson and Fred Neslage, president and vice president of the Center Board of Directors; E. L. Henderson, president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce; Rev. Woodrow Adcock, minister in the Business-Employees Division; Mrs. Jack Foster, a co-chairman of the Business-Employees Division; Olivia Anne Swain, Miss Pampa Youth and Community Center; Gene Hollar, chairman of the Center Planning Committee; and Pat Falkenstein, High School representative on the Planning Committee.

E. E. Shelhamer, chairman of the Advance Gifts Division; Ed Myatt, Special Gifts chairman; and Ray Duncan, Business-Employees Division chairman, added push with their reports, pushing the campaign further toward the halfway mark. Exact figures will be available tomorrow when audited in Campaign Headquarters.

"People in this community still want a Youth and Community Center," asserted Campbell. "They want it but they want us to show them how to get it. We are going to proceed on that assumption."

"We all like to be on a winning team," said Dr. Donaldson. "If we can just get a few more pledges...

...Just 300 people have given so far. And I know there are more than that who believe in it. They just have to be given the opportunity."

Said Neslage, "The kids will be let down if this thing doesn't go over. I can't imagine a progressive community like Pampa not wanting a Center." Neslage declared that the "excuses" of the recession and other campaigns "don't amount to a hill of beans."

Introducing Henderson, Campbell said, in reference to the letters of support sent out by the Chamber of Commerce, "A seed has been planted that will show them this is a community project."

Henderson, who has been working in the Campaign all along, said, "Your Chamber of Commerce is represented by the very same men who have been actively engaged in the past."

Powerful Earthquake Hits Alaska

By UNITED PRESS

One of history's most powerful earthquakes echoed across wide sections of the United States when it rocked a desolate tundra region of Alaska.

The quake Monday broke five seismographic instruments in a Pliemont, N.Y., laboratory, 3,900 miles from the quake area, militant At Fairbanks, about 150 miles from the quake area, light fixtures swayed and articles were toppled from shelves.

Its intensity on various seismographs across the country ranged from 7.5 to 8.5 on the Richter magnitude scale. The greatest earthquake previously recorded was a 1950 tremor in Tibet which hit 8.6.

University of Alaska and U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey scientists placed the center of the quake at the Indian village of Hughes, northwest of Fairbanks on the Koyukuk River. No deaths or injuries were reported.

Geologists said the quake was too far inland to cause tidal waves along the Pacific Coast.

CBS Hit By Strike But Still On Air

NEW YORK (UP)—Columbia Broadcasting System radio and television stations across the nation were on the air today with supervisory workers behind the cameras and control panels in place of 1,300 striking technicians.

Film was substituted for some scheduled live television shows in which the camera work was considered too intricate for the inexperienced hands. This will include tonight's scheduled Red Skelton show from Hollywood if the strike is still on, the network said. An old Skelton program will be shown from film.

The 1,300 members of eight local of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers walked off their jobs at 1 p.m. Monday in a surprise strike. Their contract had expired Jan. 31, but negotiations had continued in Washington with officers of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service sitting in on the talks.

The strikers man CBS-owned radio and television stations in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and St. Louis, TV stations only in Hartford, Conn., and Milwaukee, and radio stations only in Boston and San Francisco.

The network serves a total of 200 TV stations and 201 radio stations, but only the 6 radio and 6 TV stations it owns were affected. There was no agreement between company and union spokesmen as to the issues involved.

William C. Fitts Jr., CBS vice president in charge of labor relations, said the action was "an economic strike for exorbitant wage demands." Fitts said the company had offered a 7 per cent wage increase over two years that would bring base pay after three years service to $18.5 a week.

Fitts said also that the strike had been called "despite the union's commitment to the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service that there would be no work stoppage pending a ballot" on the company's last offer.

Officials of the IBEW New York local, whose 800 members are the largest single body of strikers, denied that any such commitment had been made.

Dispute Several Issues

Union officials said the company offer was 6 per cent rather than 7 and would not cover the cost of living increase since their last contract. But they said there were other equally important matters in dispute as well.

One of them is "job security because of the threat of automation," the local's business manager, Charles A. Calame, said. Another, he said is "a clarification of work jurisdiction over video tape." Tape, which can record a TV show and play it back immediately without the processing required for film, is an issue

Jet To Land Short Of Goal

TORREJON AIR BASE, Madrid, Spain (UP)—A U.S. Air Force jet Stratolifter streaking across the Atlantic on an attempted non-stop Tokyo-to-Madrid flight will have to land in the Azores—short of its mark—the Air Force announced today.

An Air Force spokesman said the plane had radioed that its fuel supply was not sufficient to allow it to complete the 11,487-mile flight from Tokyo.

Instead, the giant KC135 will come down at Lajes Air Base in the Azores, which is about 100 minutes flying time from Madrid.

The spokesman said the plane, piloted by Brig. Gen. William E. Eubanks, was due at Lajes about 10 a.m. e.s.t.

The KC135 was reported over Washington, D.C., at 5:24 a.m. about seven hours flying time from Madrid.

The network serves a total of 200 TV stations and 201 radio stations, but only the 6 radio and 6 TV stations it owns were affected.

Legislator Says Austin Wide Open

AUSTIN (UP)—An accusation by an East Texas legislator that Austin is a wide-open town has aroused varying reactions from city and state authorities.

Rep. E. E. Shackelford of Kirbyville said in Houston he and a private detective friend, T. L. Parker, bought mixed drinks at private clubs—where they were not members—and visited two bawdy houses where they took affidavits from six men last Saturday.

Asst. Police Chief R. A. Miles said, "I don't care to comment on any statement Mr. Shackelford might make." But, Miles said, "the Austin police department welcomes information from any public-minded citizen interested in law enforcement."

As a House member, Shackelford tangled during the last session with Austin police when they impounded a Model-T Ford he was using.

Police said they didn't know the car was Shackelford's, and when some 20 parking tickets were ignored, they assumed the car had been abandoned. It was hauled off to the car pound.

A high police official said Shackelford objected, and Mayor

Tom Miller paid the parking ticket fines "out of his own pocket for the sake of harmony between the legislature and the city of Austin."

Liquor Control Board Administrator Coke Stevenson Jr. said he didn't know of any clubs such as described by Shackelford. But he said "if there are any, we will sure try to make a case of them."

Shackelford, a first term member of the House, has been mentioned as a possible contender for the state Senate post now held by Sen. Otis Lock of Lufkin. Lock has announced he will not seek re-election.

Pampa High School Baseball Coach Dock Woldt said early this afternoon that the game between the Harvesters and Amarillo Sandies, scheduled for 4 p.m. today, had been called off.

The cold weather today caused postponement of the game, which is scheduled now to be played tomorrow at 4 p.m. at Harvester Field.

Case Against Costello May Be Renewed

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Justice Department said today it is studying its denaturalization case against gambler Frank Costello with a possible view of renewing it in New York Federal District Court.

The Supreme Court Monday abruptly ordered dismissal of proceedings to take away the citizenship of the Sicilian-born Costello, 64. The brief order said the government had made a procedural misstep in Judge Edmund L. Palmer's Federal Court.

Denaturalization is usually a prelude to deportation.

The High Court issued parallel orders in two other appeals from New York filed by Gaetano Lucchese, of Italian birth, and James J. Matles, a native of Romania. Matles is director of organization for the leftwing United Electrical Workers (Ind.).

The government said Costello concealed his failure to pay state and federal income taxes, his 1915 conviction for carrying a concealed weapon, his activities as a bootlegger and other matters.

In all three cases the Court found the government had failed to file "an affidavit of good cause" along with its original complaint. The requirement to file such an affidavit—a kind of bill of particulars—was nailed down by the Supreme Court in a 1956 decision interpreting the 1952 McCarran-Walter Immigration Act.

Soviet Guard's Death Is Kept A Mystery

BRUSSELS (UP)—Belgian police and the Soviet embassy joined today to enshroud in mystery the death of a Russian guard at the Soviet pavilion of the Brussels World Fair.

Persistent reports said two Russian guards duelled with guns and that one was killed and the other wounded. The Soviet embassy ascribed the death to a "heart attack" and Belgian police were silent.

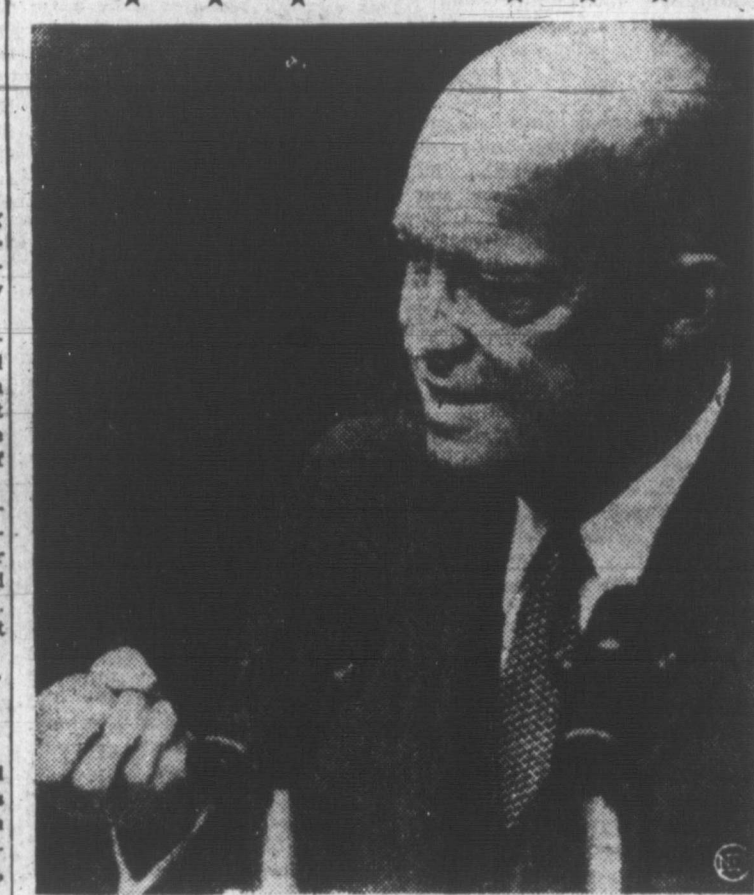

The "admitted" book at the Brugmann Hospital here shows a Russian named Nicolai Solotowski was treated for a gunshot wound in the head on Tuesday, April 1. He died a few hours after being admitted to the hospital.

A Russian embassy spokesman said, "There is no mystery. One of our engineers died from a heart attack...the hospital records are pure invention."

But a hospital doctor who refused to give his name "because the police told me not to talk about it" said he treated two patients for gunshot wounds between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m. on April 1.

The first patient had a bullet in his head. The second, who arrived an hour later in the escort of Russian consular officials had a bullet in his hand.

The doctor who said he removed this bullet added, "the bullets were from different guns. I thought there had been a duel."

ATOMS FOR PEACE

President Eisenhower, in a note today to Nikita Khrushchev, re-stated his proposal of 1953 that nuclear weapons be banned and a supervisory program be set up to assure compliance with the ban by all concerned. He reaffirmed his proposal that nuclear power be used for peaceful purposes.

Commission Talks Over Water Situation

The Pampa City Commissioners met this morning in the Commission Room at City Hall, discussed two items and paid monthly bills.

Wayland Merriman, consulting engineer for the City of Pampa, spoke to the commissioners on the future water system of Pampa.

Merriman told the commissioners that nine wells can be drilled at the old airport south of town recently purchased by the city and that eventually a pump station will have to be built at the airport and that new 14 and 16 inch pipe will have to be laid at the site. This would cost approximately $300,000.

Merriman said that in the near future, more wells will be needed in the vicinity of the Lefors highway to supply the pump station tested yesterday. He said that one new well a year should be built.

Out of Pampa's last bond issue, $110,000 was set out for water facilities and approximately $60,000 has been spent. The city has approximately $50,000 left in the fund.

Merriman told the commissioners that in the next 25 years, 36 wells will be needed to supply the city of Pampa with water.

Several pieces of scrap iron, tops of metal tobacco cans, a 40-inch pencil, 15 paper clips, a fingernail clipper and 30 nails in assorted sizes.

Commissioner Ed Myatt spoke to the group about going out to the old airport south of town yesterday and finding about a mile of 30 inch pipe. Myatt then suggested using city employees to take this old sewer line up and, before paying 23rd street, move it, if the commissioners can get permission, to 32nd or 23rd street to provide drainage for that area.

If the commissioners can get permission to move this pipe it will save the city a great deal of money, Myatt said.

Clates Bermudez Declaration

The United States, Eisenhower said, is trying to develop the "defensive rather than the offensive" weapons and to learn how to "minimize" nuclear fallout.

"It goes without saying," the President said, "that these experiments, so far as the United States is concerned, are so conducted that they cannot appreciably affect human health."

He recalled the joint declaration made by the United Kingdom and the United States in Bermuda on March 24, 1957. He said the two countries declared that they would conduct nuclear tests only in such a manner as would keep world radiation from rising to more than a "small fraction of the levels that might be hazardous."

He said the joint declaration also pledged the two countries to continue publicly announcing test results.

President Proposes Supervisory Program

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today called on Russia to join the United States in banning production of atomic weapons. He proposed that nuclear materials be manufactured "only for peaceful purposes."

The President renewed the U. S. disarmament proposal in a note to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

He brushed aside Khrushchev's statements and note of last Friday proposing an immediate halt to nuclear test explosions.

The President said the "timing, wording and manner" of the Soviet declaration "cannot but raise questions as to its real significance."

For Peace Purposes

In asking Russia to accept his "atoms for peace" proposal of 1953, the President said the "heart of the nuclear problem is not the mere testing of weapons, but the weapons themselves."

He said if weapons are dependably dealt with, "then it is natural to suspend their testing."

But he said Russia "continues to reject the concept of an internationally supervised program to end weapons production and to reduce weapons stocks."

The President said if Russia is as "peace-loving as it professes," it should surely want to bring about an international supervision of diversion of nuclear material from "weapons purposes to peace purposes."

Referring to Khrushchev's April 4 letter asking for a suspension of nuclear testing, the President said, "It seems peculiar that the Soviet Union, having just concluded a series of tests of unprecedented intensity, should now, in bold headlines, say that it will not test again, but add, in small type, that it may test again if the United States carries out its already long-announced and now imminent series of tests."

He also urged Khrushchev to accept the "open skies" disarmament inspection plan, first proposed by Eisenhower in 1955, and the recent U.S. proposal to ban space warfare.

The White House said the note was cleared with the North Atlantic Treaty Allies. It was delivered to the Kremlin this morning.

US Newsmen Held By Cuba Are Released

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press Staff Correspondent

HAVANA, Cuba (UP)—A group of American newsmen held for entering restricted territory without proper authorization have been released from custody in Santiago de Cuba, it was disclosed today.

They were Harold Liden of the United Press, Homer Bigart of the New York Times, and Robert Taber of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Three others were released at 9:30 a.m. today. They were Ward Cannel of NEA, Ray Brennan of the Chicago Sun-Times, and Alan Jarison of KRAM-KSHO-TV, Las Vegas, Nev.

Cannel, Brennan and Jarison were held overnight in the Furto Moncada, the Cuban army headquarters in Santiago de Cuba.

Brennan said they were not mistreated.

Negotiations for release of the newsmen were conducted in Havana, between U.S. Ambassador Earl T. Smith and Cuban Prime Minister and Minister of State Gonzalo Gueil.

The Cuban government maintained that the newsmen were in a military zone during a state of emergency without proper authorization. Santiago de Cuba is the capital of Oriente province where the rebels are carrying on the heaviest part of their campaign against the government of President Fulgencio Batista.

The American ambassador said afterwards that the Cuban government has "suggested and requested" that the newsmen leave Santiago and return to Havana.

Batista's government announced earlier loyal troops in eastern Cuba have turned back rebel thrusts at both Santiago and Baire, inflicting "sizeable" casualties on the insurgents.

Widespread fighting continued in Oriente Province, and a rail strike in Camaguey had virtually isolated the eastern third of Cuba. The rest of the country was quiet.

In Havana, moderate opposition leader Carlos Marques Sterling urged rebel leader Fidel Castro to call off his "total war" and let the people make their choice of national leaders in the election scheduled Nov. 2.

Unemployment Up, But Rise Is Small

Increase Shown In Texas

AUSTIN (UP)—Unemployment continued to rise in Texas last week, the Texas Employment Commission said Monday, but added that a "short term layoff" of workers in transportation equipment was partly responsible for the record high.

Claims for unemployment benefits totaled 89,786 for the first week in April, compared to 89,326 for the last week in March and 41,317 for the same period in 1957, the TEC said.

Persons seeking unemployment compensation for the first time rose to 12,592 from 10,407 for the previous week and 5,051 a year ago.

The TEC said the reported "short term layoff" in transportation equipment was "for the purpose of inventory."

"One district office identified 1,280 claimants, all of whom will be restored to their jobs this month" in this category, the TEC report explained.

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Unemployment slowed appreciably in March while total employment showed the first overall gain since the downward trend in jobs began last year, the government reported today.

The March unemployment figure rose 25,000 to 5,125,000. The February figure was 5,175,000.

Employment increased by 232,000—from 61,958,000 in February to 62,311,000 in mid-March.

The March unemployment total was the highest in 16 years, but the increase in the number of jobs was down considerably from the 700,000 jump in February and the one-million-plus rise in January. The 62,311,000 jobs figure for March compared with the total of 64 million for October and the all-time high of 67,200,000 in July, just before the recession began.

More Part-Time Jobs

Administration officials took the new figures as a heartening sign in their battle against the recession, even though March normally is a month in which unemployment decreases from 100,000 to 200,000, rather than increasing as it did this March.

One significant aspect of the latest unemployment and employment figures announced jointly by the Commerce and Labor departments was that the number of workers on the job part-time because of slack work reached a record high for the period since World War II.

"The number of regular full-time workers on part-time because of slack work (and other economic factors) continued upward, reaching a new post-war high of 2,300,000 in March," the report said.

The rise in both employment and unemployment—as was the case in March—is accounted for in the fact that the size of the labor force changes. For example, the labor force usually increases greatly in June when students take summer jobs and drops in September when they return to school.

An Optimistic Sign

The report was based on a mid-March survey of 35,000 households in 330 areas across the nation.

The report by Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks and Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell said "unemployment was unchanged instead of its usual seasonal improvement."

The seasonally adjusted rate of unemployment increased to an even 7 per cent of the civilian labor force as compared with 6.7 per cent in February.

The comparable figure for March, 1957, was 3.9 per cent when the number of jobless totaled 2,900,000.

Administration leaders were expected quickly to regard the March figures as an optimistic sign of leveling off of the rate of decline in the national economy.

Because of heavy job cut-backs in the automobile, machinery and primary and fabricated metals industries, manufacturing employment declined by about 200,000 to a total of about 15,400,000 in March.

This was a greater-than-seasonal decline. The durable goods industries were the hardest hit in the manufacturing employment picture.

More Agricultural Jobs

Manufacturing jobs were down by 1,500,000 from a year ago, but agricultural employment went up in March, as was expected, by 250,000 to a total of 5,100,000.

The increase in employment was mainly in agriculture and, as the weather permitted, the seasonal increases in outdoor work more than offset, statistically, the increasing cut-backs in manufacturing employment.

Government economists have long regarded manufacturing as the central core spot of the current business decline, calling present conditions "a manufacturer's

Lower Food Prices Expected Starting In The Late Spring

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Housewives can look forward to lower food prices starting in late spring, a Labor Department expert said today.

Ewan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics, made the forecast in a speech prepared for a local chapter of the Controllers Institute of America.

Clague said spring crops will reduce prices of fruits and vegetables which have been at all-time highs because of crop freezes in the South.

Increased marketing of hogs and cattle, he added, may bring lower meat prices later in the year—probably in September or October.

He said prices of new cars, refrigerators, television sets and appliances will slide down to autumn lows before 1959 models go on sale.

There is no hope, however, that haircuts, streetcar fares, movie admissions, doctor bills, electricity rates and other "service" items will go down. Clague said they will climb "slowly but steadily" in price.

Clague said most of the recent price changes were not caused by the recession. Food prices, he said, respond to seasonal trends. The cost of services lag behind business conditions, he added.

Only prices of "soft" goods like clothes and house furnishings and "hard" goods such as cars and appliances have weakened during the economic decline, he said.

Clague said the recent record-breaking levels of the government's consumer price index were due to high food prices.

The index could go down in April or May if farmers sent enough hogs and cattle to market to halt the rise in meat prices, he said. But so far there have been no signs this will happen, he added.

Fruits and vegetables will be cheaper in the second half of the year and big crops this spring—barring bad weather—should reduce prices in the next few months, he said.

Film On Graham's Revival Is Slated Here Wednesday

The Billy Graham team, shown in the film, includes Cliff Barrows, George Beverly Shea, Tedd Smith and Paul Mickelson.

"This unparalleled coverage of the greatest single effort in the history of evangelism will be shown in the auditorium of the Church and is open to the entire community," according to Rev. E. Douglas Carver, First Baptist pastor.

Although the number of jobs increased only a small amount, there was a greater increase in the number of idle workers getting unemployment compensation. This was because unemployment was reduced among workers not getting unemployment compensation, particularly on farms.

In a summary statement, Mitchell and Weeks said "total unemployment remained at 5,200,000 and state-insured unemployment advanced by 135,000 to 3,300,000, whereas there is usually a moderate drop at this time of year."

Their statements were based on "rounded off" figures and not the actual totals contained in accompanying statistical tables.

Did Government Apply Old Sayings About Club Prexies?

Flags Over The Capital

I have had several inquiries lately concerning flags that have flown over the Nation's Capital. It is possible to obtain these flags at a very reasonable cost. Two sizes can be had. The 3'x5' is made available for the price of $3.50. The 5'x8' is available for $6.50. Each flag is accompanied by a letter from the Architect of the Capitol certifying that it has flown over the Nation's Capital.

Boards, Bureaus, Committees and Commissions

There used to be a saying that whenever the president of a club or organization ran into some controversial issue, the best thing to do was to appoint a committee to investigate the matter until it cooled off. From the number of boards, bureaus, commissions and committees in existence and being recommended on the government level, it looks like this same rule is being applied by Uncle Sam.

You will recall that last year the Congress, on the recommendation of the President, created the highly controversial Civil Rights Commission.

This Commission was handed 200 thousand dollars out of the President's Emergency Fund on which to operate. As of March 25, 1958, the Commission had spent only $26,004.92 of this amount. Nevertheless, when the Presidential Ap-

I voted against these measures, because it is my opinion that the use of a man's land should be regulated only in accordance with the police powers of the state and by the state—not by the federal government.

I took several of the children to the zoo last Sunday, and Washington does have an outstanding zoo. It has recently added a pair of soliverines, and we were looking for the cage that housed them. I asked one of the attendants where we could find it.

He motioned in the direction where the cage was located. One of the children said to me, "You could sure tell that fellow had worked here a long time." I was puzzled at what he meant and said, "How could you tell that?" He replied, "He didn't have any fingers."

proportion Bill came up on the Floor of Congress, an amendment was offered to add an additional 750 thousand dollars for the Civil Rights Commission.

Needless to say, this caused quite a battle, but the money was appropriated anyway. It goes without saying that my vote, along with many others, was cast against it. It probably goes to prove further that the most permanent thing in Washington is a temporary commission or building.

This was further proved by a request that is now before the Interior Committee of the House of Representatives. The Alaskan Railway Commission was created in 1956 to last for two years and was given an appropriation of 75 thousand dollars. The Commission was to investigate the economic feasibility of railway and highway transportation matters between this country and Alaska, as well as in Alaska proper.

This is the year that the report on these studies should be filed; however, instead of a report we get a proposed amendment to the original bill which would extend the life of this Commission for another two years and increase the appropriation from 75 thousand dollars to 387 thousand and 500 dollars. In other words—double the life of the Commission and more than quadruple the money to be spent.

I thought this was going pretty far afield, but when Congress convened that day we had a message from the President requesting the Congress to create a "National Aeronautics and Space Agency."

The President was prompted to make this request, according to his message, by the fact that his "Science Advisory Committee" had recommended that he do so.

In other words, the government is carrying the practice one step further than the clubs and organizations were supposed to carry it.

The committee that is appointed to look into the matter is now advising the formation of another committee or commission. If this is carried out to its logical conclusion, every man, woman and child in the United States will eventually end up on a committee. I would recommend that any committee recommending the creation of another committee, commission or board would immediately lose its own status. This would certainly put a stop to the matter in short order. We could also adopt the policy that for every new committee, commission, board or bureau that was established, at least two had to be abolished.

Federal Aid Highway Bill

The conference report on the Federal Aid Highway Bill of 1958 was adopted last week and included provisions against certain types of outdoor advertising along interstate highways. The bill would provide for regulation of outdoor advertising along interstate highways visible from the main portion of the highway and within a distance of 660 feet. Such regulations would be consistent with standards to be prepared by the Secretary of Commerce, and only four types of signs would be permitted: (1) Directional or other official signs and notices required or authorized by law; (2) Signs permitted by State law advertising activities within 12 miles of the

Dr. Donaldson read a card that Mrs. Inez Carter received from Pampa High School senior, LaVada Naylor, thanking Mrs. Carter for pledging a $125,000 operating fund for the Pampa Youth and Community Center. Although Miss Naylor will graduate and not be around to enjoy the Center, she thanks Mrs. Carter for all she has done.

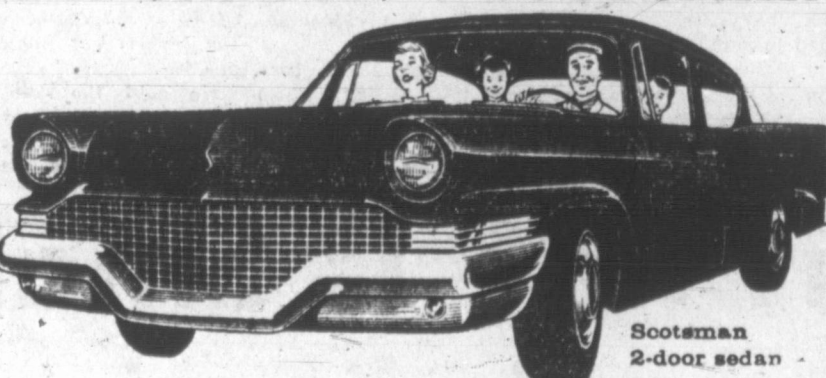

Hollar predicted a showdown meeting of the Planning Committee Wednesday to answer some questions in the community that have come up. Such questions are, "Who will choose the Center director? How will funds be obtained and dispersed 20 years from now?"

Hollar states that they now have enough money for a pool but not enough to put a roof over it. However, the pool, as planned, will take up approximately 65 per cent of the Youth and Community Center.

Mrs. Foster mentioned that in a small southern town an Altrusa Club singlehandedly built a similar Center. But Altrusa churches, schools don't answer all the problems," said Mrs. Foster.

"The students will do everything in their power," said Miss Swain. And then another High School girl took up the comment. "The students should challenge the adults," said Miss Pat Falkenstein.

I voted against these measures, because it is my opinion that the use of a man's land should be regulated only in accordance with the police powers of the state and by the state—not by the federal government.

Occupational Disease

I took several of the children to the zoo last Sunday, and Washington does have an outstanding zoo. It has recently added a pair of soliverines, and we were looking for the cage that housed them. I asked one of the attendants where we could find it.

He motioned in the direction where the cage was located. One of the children said to me, "You could sure tell that fellow had worked here a long time." I was puzzled at what he meant and said, "How could you tell that?" He replied, "He didn't have any fingers."

tion over its handling and the jobs it will open.

The IBEW radio and TV technicians are a small part of a large electrical workers union and only CBS of the major networks employs them in the engineering and camera jobs from which they are on strike. Similar workers at the National Broadcasting Co. and the American Broadcasting Co. are covered by contracts with the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians.

Were Some Hitches

Fitts said CBS had put into effect an emergency plan to permit the network to continue broadcasting and "every effort will be made to carry as much of the regular program schedule as is possible under the circumstances."

There were some hitches in programs during the early hours of the strike, with some programs and commercials appearing without sound or without picture for a few moments. One station, KCBS, San Francisco, was off the air for five minutes at the beginning of the strike. Some affiliated stations relied on local programming instead of the network.

The union said it hopes to hit the network "where it hurts, in the pocketbook" through cancellation of commercial programs.

This time is designated by the city government as a clean-up period during which city trucks will pick up all trash and debris in all wards of the city.

City officials will meet with the Chamber of Commerce to coordinate the overall plan.

Medical Science Has Added Two Decades To Average Life Span

WASHINGTON (UP). — Since United Press Staff Correspondent By LOUIS CASSELLS

turn of the century, medical science has added two full decades to the average span of life. In 1900, it was quite a feat to live to the age of 40.

While nearly everyone agrees that this is a blessing, it has confronted this youth-worshipping nation with a new set of problems (Aging—First of Three)

Today there are 15 million Americans over 65, and 5 million of them are over 75. Furthermore, the number of "senior citizens" is still growing, much more rapidly than the general population. By 1975, one person out of every 10 will belong to the over-65 age group, compared to one out of 25 in 1900.

The significance of these statistics is not widely appreciated, according to G. Warfield Hobbs, chairman of the National Committee on Aging. He says the chief reason is that "we have created a myth about the 'golden years.'"

This myth depicts old age as a time when white-haired couples enjoy a life of well-earned leisure. You see them playing shuffleboard with the neighbors in a Florida retirement village, or mailing postcards to the grandchildren from a long-planned tour of the West.

For a fortunate few, this may be an accurate picture of life after 65. But where do you find room in this picture for the 400,000 lonely oldsters who spend their lives staring at the ceiling in nursing homes? Or for the 3 million who live with their married children or other relatives because they are unable financially or physically to maintain a home of their own? And what of the 7 million who try to get along on incomes of less than $20 a month?

These are some of the people that Hobbs and other authorities have in mind when they say that it is time for Americans to quit kidding themselves about the problems of aging.

One of the most severe problems is maintaining an adequate income. Retirement is compulsory. Most 65-year-olds feel quite properly, that they are still a long way from old age. They have an average life expectancy of 13 more years. But a custom which dates back to the era when 65 was an advanced age holds that this is the time when men and women should retire from productive work. In an increasing number of business and professional jobs, retirement at 65 is not merely customary but compulsory.

Social security and private pension programs have helped to cushion the financial shock of retirement. But nearly everyone still undergoes a drastic reduction of income when he stops drawing a salary check.

Government surveys show that the income of men over 65 averages about 40 per cent of those of men in the 55-64 age group. The median income of the over-65 age group at the time of the last census was about $960 a year. This means that half of the people were living on less than $90 a month.

Depend on Relatives. Officials estimate that about one-quarter of the people over 65 have no income of their own and are entirely dependent on relatives or public assistance.

Wasn't social security supposed to take care of this problem? To some extent, yes. But millions of today's old folks are not covered. And inflation has reduced the purchasing power of pension dollars for those who are covered.

About 9 million people are currently drawing monthly old age insurance checks from the social security administration. The payments average $74 a month for retired workers with no eligible dependents, $68 for aged widows, and $126 for a retired couple.

The Social Security Act also authorized federal grants to states for "public assistance" payments to needy aged who are not eligible for retirement benefits. Payments range from a low of $28 to a high of $91 a month, with a national average of $54.47.

Social security checks are supplemented, for some retired people, by annuities and private pension programs. But the growth of these programs is a postwar phenomenon, and relatively few of those who retired before 1950 are getting such pensions.

These volunteers do not, she emphasized, replace any paid workers at the hospital but rather supplement the work of the staff.

They write letters, wheel crutches around, provide companionship for the lonely, run shopping errands, work in the recreation halls and operate 16 millimeter movie projectors in the wards.

So successful has the volunteer program been that many civilian hospitals have started similar programs.

Major R. A. Crowder, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said today that all owners of vehicles required to be inspected should have them inspected prior to that date, if they are to avoid being issued citations for violation of the Motor Vehicle Inspection Law. All traffic law officers will be concentrating their efforts toward this violation beginning April 16, he further stated.

"It is still possible to avoid the long lines encountered in the last few days, if motorists will take their vehicles to State approved inspection stations now," said Crowder.

The Regional Commander advised that time is of a premium between now and midnight April 15, and that waiting lines will be in chasing power of pension dollars for those who are covered.

At the same time, Crowder pointed out that sixteen per cent of all rural fatal accidents in Texas during 1956 involved an unlicensed driver.

Officers of the Department will begin conducting driver's license checks in the immediate future on all traveled thoroughfares in Region 5 and throughout the State. All motorists that are stopped will be required to exhibit their licenses to the officers.

Crowder said that thousands of Texas motorists are operating motor vehicles on expired driver's licenses or have never been licensed at all.

"It is not our desire to surprise motorists without a fore-warning," Crowder said. "So we would like to take this opportunity to advise them that they may expect these checks at any time in the future," Crowder stated.

The Commander stated that the driver's license law in Texas is nearing 22 years on our statutes and we feel that no driver has a legitimate excuse for not having a valid driver's license. This law requires any operator of a motor vehicle who resides in Texas or has gained employment in the State to be licensed as an operator, commercial operator or chauffeur.

The driver's license checks will be made on a full enforcement basis and vehicle safety inspection stickers will also be checked and motorists not having a valid driver's license or current inspection sticker as required by law will be cited into the proper court.

Major Crowder is requesting all City Police Departments and County Sheriff Departments to assist in this effort.

Any questions concerning driver's licenses, including date of examinations should be directed to the nearest Sheriff's office, Police Department, or Department of Public Safety facilities, Crowder concluded.

Patrol To Check Drivers' Licenses

An effort to rid Texas highways of unlicensed and unsafe drivers was revealed today by Major R. A. Crowder, Region 5 Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law should be told off but I am not the one to do it. She never gives one cent to the Polio Fund, United Crusade, T. B. Seals, Cancer of Heart because she says if these causes fall short, the government makes up the deficit. She never even had the deed to her farm registered because she doesn't want to pay taxes on it. The only reason she paid her poll tax this year was because she's been asked to help in the elections and they will pay her for it. She burns me up but I have been taught to respect my elders. What's the matter with her anyway?

BURNED UP

Dear Burned: Your mother-in-law is a medical miracle. She has a cash register where her heart belongs. P. S. The government does NOT make up deficits for the above-mentioned causes.

Worthwhile Club Plans Benefit Fete

Mrs. O. G. Smith was hostess to the recent meeting of the Worthwhile Home Demonstration Club. During the business session, conducted by Mrs. J. L. Carlton, plans were made for a party which was held on April 7 at 7:30 p.m. with husbands and friends as special guests. The purpose of the party was to raise funds for a donation to the Pampa Youth and Community Center.

Mrs. Una Lee Moores, the afternoon's guest speaker, discussed Beauty Culture. "The hair is the crowning glory of women," said Mrs. Moores, "and it cannot be hurt by brushing, even a new permanent or oily hair."

Mrs. Moores also stated that in dying or tinting the hair, a lighter shade should be used than the shades wished to make the hair. "Tints do not injure the hair," she added.

"The French use tints that can be used and washed off the next day. Pastel shades are for the young and are just a fad," she said.

Mrs. Moores suggested that in using face creams that none should be wasted by washing it off the hands, but rub the excess amount on the elbows.

It was reported that the HDC council will welcome suggestions from club members as to how to make a better food sale during the next Fat Stock Show and Sale.

Refreshments were served during the social hour to the nine members and six visitors present.

'Shooting The Works' In Beauty Salon Has Therapeutic Value For Women

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor
If you'll observe carefully, you'll be surprised to discover that many women are careless about the way their hands look. It isn't just a matter of no manicure, it is a matter of broken, dirty nails and skin which looks as if they had not been scrubbed clean.

Now, admittedly, many of us lead hurried lives. But none of us is too hurried or harried to be clean and to possess nails that are filed neatly and smoothly. A nail brush and emery boards, a cuticle pusher and scissors are all essential to any women's good grooming.

If you have time for nail polish, fine. It does not make a woman's hands look prettier and it adds sparkle to the rings that she wears. But if you haven't time for it, do take time for the essentials of nail care and the nightly coating of hand lotion. It will pay off in the long run and the need never hide in pockets.

Electric shavers are a boon to any gal. They take care of that nasty problem of nicks on one's legs creating scars that last for days.

But, if for some reason, you must use a regular razor to shave your legs, handle it with care. Be sure you're working in a well-lighted area. You'll have to turn and twist in order to see the surface you're shaving and you'll have to be patient. If you hurry, the razor is quite likely to slip.

It's best not to shave your legs while they're dry. Use a lather cream to soften the surface and make the razor slide along easily. After the task is finished, apply an after-bath freshener of body cologne to your legs with a lavish hand.

Every woman should be efficient at good grooming. She should be able to shampoo and set her own hair and give herself a manicure. She should not be completely dependent on her hairdresser and thus, helpless if she can't make it to the beauty salon for a setting. But, once in a while, the best thing any woman can do for herself is to march into a beauty salon and shoot the works. She'll come out feeling like a new woman, with a new and optimistic point of view. No man could ever possibly understand why this should be so, but it is. It's a sure cure for a frumpy feeling and a pick-up for any lewdness.

The next week, she may rip up the fancy face hairdo and put it back the old way but that doesn't matter. It was the fun and novelty of letting someone else handle the beauty chores for once that really counted.

Giant sequoias, earth's largest, living things, sprout from seeds so small that one ounce (in theory) could produce 5,700 trees.

Lefors Art And Civic Club Hears Talks Regarding Texas Women

(Special To The News)

LEFORS — The Lefors Art and Civic club met Monday night in the civic center with Mrs. L. R. Spence as hostess.

The program, "Noted Texans," was given by Mrs. Earl Atkinson speaking of a very famous Texan, "Babe" Dikerson Zaharias, one of the greatest sportswomen who ever lived.

"The Babe" was never seriously interested in men until meeting George Zaharias, a professional wrestler, whom she married," Mrs. Atkinson said.

Mrs. Atkinson stated that "Babe" was never awed by celebrities. Once, when meeting President Eisenhower, he said he was glad to know her and whispered in her ear, "How about some golf tips?"

The book, "Rawhide Tree," about Grandma Reynolds was reviewed by Mrs. Ray Boyd in connection with the famous Texas women topic.

"Grandma Reynolds" grew up with animals in abundance as her pets and still raises and trains horses near her home in Skellytown. "She was always very active in rodeos. Always taking part in the most rugged affairs of the rodeo such as bronco riding, etc.," Mrs. Boyd reviewed.

The next meeting will be held in the civic center, April 22 with Mrs. Bud Cumberledge as hostess.

The table was centered with a stork holding a doll-baby. Favors were of marshmallow baby favors. Blue candles flanked the stork arrangement.

Games were played and refreshments were served. Those presenting gifts for the new arrival were Mmes. Joe Schanzbrack, Dave Parker, Agnes Armstrong and children, Dee Russell, Della Fields, Francis Webb, Bessie Konors, Joann Nail, Autry and Dick.

Allen Is Honored At Perryton

(Special To The News)
PERRYTON — At the annual banquet of the Perryton Junior Chamber of Commerce held last Tuesday evening, Jack M. Allen, local attorney, was given the award as "The Man of the Year" for 1957. The plaque was presented to him by Robert D. Lemon, last year's recipient. The award was given to the outstanding young man in the community between the ages of 18 and 35.
In making the presentation, Lemon told of the civic work of Allen in the Jaycees, Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, as an attorney and in the First Methodist Church.
The guest speaker was E. D. Spear, vice president of the Great American Reserve Insurance Co., and his title was "Man of Decision." He pointed out that the average man fears to make a decision, and that this fear comes from two things — fear of failure and fear of ridicule.
Other awards made at the banquet were "Ke Yman" to J. J. Keim; "Jaycee of the Quarter" awarded to Bob Close and the "Boss of the Quarter," awarded to Rev. Duane Bruce, pastor of the First Methodist Church.
Harold Clover of the Amarillo Jaycees installed the following new officers: Dr. Aubrey Kelso, president; Harold Littau, first vice president; Bruce Baumann, second vice president; Dick Harr, secretary; Oras Busch Jr., treasurer; Bob Close, Bob Fleming, Harvey Kile, Jim Dunlavy, Bill Allen and Johnny Earnsworth, directors and Bob Barnett, state director.

New Jersey To Get Another Shot At GOP

By LYLE C. WILSON
Jersey passed shattering judgment on the Eisenhower administration last November by electing Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner to a second term. Meyner won by a fat margin over Republican Malcolm S. Forbes. Forbes had the active support of President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The state's Republicans also will have the opportunity to take the measure of communism as a 1958 political issue.

Traditionally Republican New Jersey passed shattering judgment on the Eisenhower administration last November by electing Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner to a second term. Meyner won by a fat margin over Republican Malcolm S. Forbes. Forbes had the active support of President Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Judgment will be passed next week on the Eisenhower administration in New Jersey's Republican primary election to choose a nominee for the U.S. Senate. Campaigning for the nomination are Rep. Robert W. Kean, Bernard M. Shanley, a former presidential secretary, and Judge Robert Morris, former counsel to the U.S. Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

Communism Big Pitch
Morris is a 43-year-old fireball who does not run as an Eisenhower modern Republican. Morris condemns the administration for overspending. He objects to foreign aid for such doubtful allies as Indonesia and Yugoslavia. He is making his biggest campaign pitch, however, on the menace of communism here and abroad to the United States.

Heretofore, those Republicans who made communism a campaign issue directed their fire against the preceding Democratic administrations of Franklin D. Roosevelt and, more emphatically, of Harry S. Truman. Morris puts a new Republican twist on the issue. He considers the Eisenhower administration to be complacent and derelict in its internal and international security policies.

This charge is firmly stated in Morris' newly published book on the Communist threat. It is called "No Wonder We Are Losing," published by the Bookmiller, P.O. Box 101, Murray Hill Station, New York.

The theme is evident in Morris' campaign literature, in his speeches and in his criticism of U.S. Supreme Court decisions which are judged by many persons to have hampered severely the enforcement of internal security laws. Of the situation as he found it in February, 1956, Morris observed: "Our country was deteriorating so steadily, and the national resistance to the Soviet advances was so unresponsive and insentive, that I was seriously concerned that we would even survive as a nation by . . . 1964."

"The nerve endings of those officials in Washington whose duty it was to alert the nation and to galvanize 'us' to action seemed completely dead."

"Perhaps the strongest reflection of the underlying national mood being shaped in Washington was the series of decisions (relating to communism) by a majority of the Supreme Court."

"But these decisions are but a reflection of our official mood. The views on security held by recently appointed judges (four by Eisenhower) were known to the executive when they were appointed."

Greensboro Open To Get Underway

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UP)—The nation's top touring professional golfers thronged the Starmount Forest Country Club course today for practice rounds for the 21st annual Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

The $15,000, 72-hole tournament will get under way Thursday over the 6,500-yard, par 72 course. A field of 145 players is expected.

The absence of Masters champion Arnold Palmer of LaBore, Pa., will take some of the glow from the tournament but the field is expected to be one of the toughest in the history of the event. Palmer has a television commitment in Florida.

The group of contenders includes defending champion Stan Leonard of Vancouver, B.C.; Ken Venturi of San Francisco and 1957 Masters champ Doug Ford of Mahopac, N.Y.

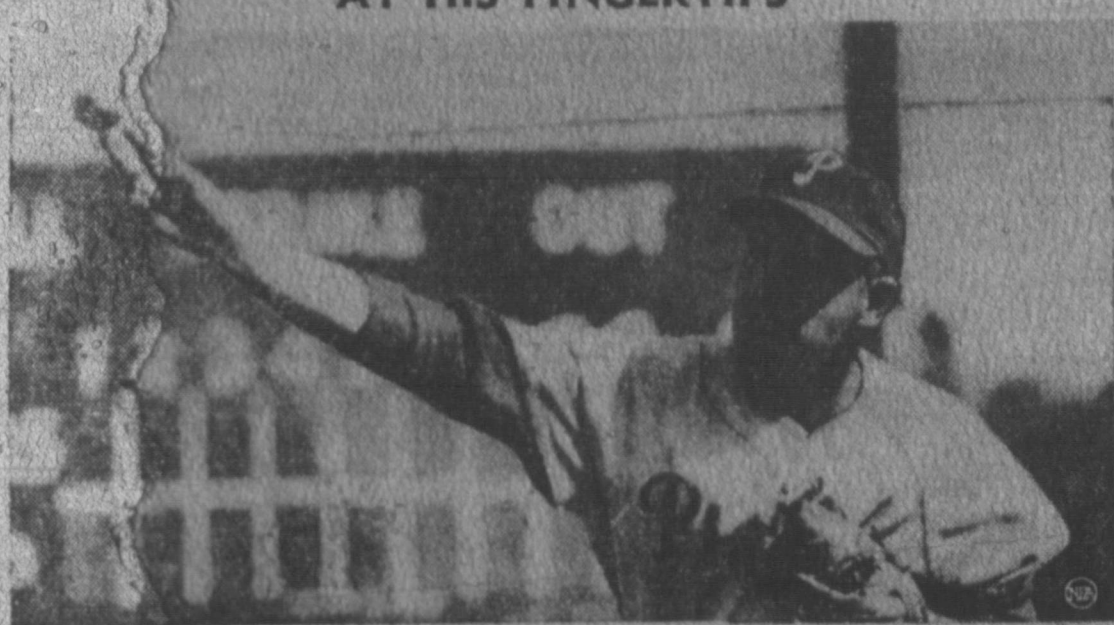

Slammin' Sammy Snead will also be on hand for the tournament—frequently referred to in the past as the "Sam Snead Open." Snead has won it six times.

Fire losses in the United States during 1955 totaled $1,140,768,000, an increase of $124,000,000 over the year before.

New York City's Metropolitan Museum of Art has the most extensive collection of art in the Western Hemisphere.

Free Throw Reduction Put College Scoring At Lowest

NEW YORK (UP)—A large reduction in the number of free throws in major college basketball during the 1957-58 season produced the sharpest scoring decline in the 66-year history of the game.

NCAA statisticians released today announced the point production was five per cent less than that recorded during 1956-57. In 4,149 major college games, the 1957-58 season produced an average total of 126.9 points per contest compared to the 1956-57 average of 133.0.

The number of foul shots per game dwindled for the fifth straight year. There was almost no change in the average number of personal fouls. Thus the decline in free throws was the result of the new rule which limited the number of free throw opportunities during the past season.

The scoring drop was emphasized by the few two-point-a-minute teams in major college ranks in 1957-58. Only eight, headed by Marshall's 88-point average, were able to average at least 80 points a game. This is the lowest total since 1952 and is in sharp contrast to 1956-57 when 24 teams scored at that rate.

For the second time in NCAA history, two teams from the same state finished 1-2 in scoring as West Virginia followed Marshall with an 86.9 average.

The final team defense standings also emphasized the trend in scoring. The 20.5 average compiled by San Francisco and Oklahoma State's 21.7 are the best defensive marks in six seasons.

Kentucky was the only school which averaged in the top 40 in both offense and defense and ranked among the leaders in five of the six major statistical departments.

Cincinnati led in margin over the organization, averaging 20.8 points a game more than its opponents.

Oklahoma State led in free throw percentage, sinking 48.8 of 137 for 39.1 per cent. Fordham sank 603 of 1,440 field goal tries for a .417 mark and edged Cincinnati, which finished with a .480 percentage. Manhattan led the

High Jump Record Holder May Try To Clear 7'5"

By WILLIAM F. TYBEE
United Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Charlie Dumas, the University of Southern California sophomore who holds the official world high jump record, last week had hopes some day to clear even feet, five inches.

Dumas set the world standard of 7 feet, 3 inches in the summer of 1956 and went on to set an Olympic record of 6 feet, 11 1/4 inches during the 1956 games. Yuri Stepanov of Russia cleared 7 feet 1 1/2 inches last year but that leap hasn't been recognized yet because he used a special type of shoe on his take-off foot to provide more spring.

Mental Hazards

Will Dumas try to surpass Stepanov's unrecognized mark? Are there mental hazards when the cross-bar is placed at seven feet or higher?

"Well, I always try to do my best," the good-natured 20-year-old said as he dipped in a muscle stretching exercise that he thinks is better than jumping every day.

"This kind of training helps me get my body up where I want it," he said, twisting almost in two. "I haven't any particular aim. I just jump. But I've worked two inches higher every year since I started jumping in the ninth grade.

"I hope I can get up around 7 feet 5 inches. I don't think there's any barrier."

Then, without any warmup, Dumas cleared a bar set well above his own six-foot height. He was almost as casual about his preparations when he surprised the track world by clearing seven feet. "I'm ready," was all he said.

No Special Shoe

Neither Dumas nor his coach, Jess Morgenstern, are considering using the kind of special shoe which has enabled Stepanov and several other Russians to make several outstanding high jumps.

"Until the shoe is recognized, we won't use it," Morgenstern said. But he and Dumas are certain Charlie could go higher with such an aid.

"No telling where Charlie might

Celtics Lose Odds Without Bill Russell

BOSTON (UP)—Loss of rebounding star Bill Russell offset a home-court edge held by the Boston Celtics going into a fifth and crucial game against the St. Louis Hawks for the National Basketball championship here Wednesday night.

Celtics coach Red Auerbach admitted Monday that Russell was "through for the season." He said the 6-10 star had a small chip fracture in his leg and also torn ankle tendons.

Russell suffered the injuries Wednesday night in St. Louis. He sat out Saturday night's game when the Celtics evened the best-of-seven series with a 109-98 victory at St. Louis.

Dodgers Find Opposition In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UP)—The controversy over use of Chavez Ravine as a baseball stadium for the Dodgers is being used as a smoke screen by persons who don't want the Dodgers in Los Angeles under any conditions, according to Councilman James C. Corman.

Corman made the charge in a Town Hall debate Monday with Councilman John C. Holland, leading opponent of granting 300 acres of land to the Dodgers. Part of the land grant lies in Elysian Park.

"There is abundant evidence that many of our opponents don't want the Dodgers in Chavez Ravine or in Los Angeles," Corman said.

Holland denied he and his group were against the Dodgers coming to Los Angeles, but he said, "We want the Dodgers here on the same terms as the Los Angeles Rams or any other big business corporation."

Simpson Injured In Yankees' 20-1 Victory Over Phillies

By JOHN GHOTIS
United Press Sports Writer

All spring long, Casey Stengel has been complaining that his New York Yankees "ain't doin' enough hitting," but now that they have staged springtime's biggest slugfest, is Casey happy?

No, he isn't. Because the fractured wrist suffered by (Suissease) Simpson took a lot of joy out of the 20-1 swalloping the Yankees handed the Philadelphia Phillies Monday at Green's Field, S.C. It was the highest score run up by any team this year and included six homers.

Simpson's right wrist was fractured in the fourth inning when he was struck by a pitch thrown by Philadelphia's Curt Simmons. The wrist was placed in a cast and he will be out of action about four weeks. He was due in New York today for further examination.

Bill Skowron platted two of the homers with Mickey Mantle, Elston Howard, Don Larsen, and Bobby Del Greco accounting for the others. Mantle added three doubles and a single in a five-for-five day.

Silky Is Lazy During Off-Days

By HAL WOOD
United Press Sports Writer

ALBANY, Calif. (UP)—The big chestnut gladiator horse, Silky Sullivan, was leaning against the wall in his stall, mooching carrots and sugar lumps from the passers-by.

He looked about as ready to run as any plough horse.

"Don't let that fool you," said trainer Reggie Cornell. "He's relaxed only until he gets onto the race track. This is a running horse."

"But around the stable he's as friendly as an old shoe."

Silky was standing there with his eyes half closed. A groom was putting wrappings around his legs. Soon a blacksmith came by to look at the shoes. Silky looked him over, then went back to dozing. The blacksmith pulled the far away back leg across. Silky's stomach to look at it from the wrong side. Silky went on munching.

It's hard to believe that this is the big boy called "Mr. Cardiac." He has given his followers more exciting moments than any horse in recent years. His worshippers are like a cult. He can do no wrong. Even if he is 50 lengths behind the leaders (as he sometimes is), they still have faith that he'll win and most of the time he does. If the distance is a mile or more.

He loves cameramen and the flash of lights doesn't even cause him to flicker an eyelid. He loves to nuzzle the cameras. And if you ever give him a carrot or a lump of sugar, he'll pester you to death every time he sees you.

Standing a full hand higher than the average horse, he weighs 2,200 pounds—about 200 more than most thoroughbreds. He is deep through the chest.

Lopez Says Tigers May Topple Yanks

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Al Lopez, who is high on the chances of his Chicago White Sox, picks the Detroit Tigers as the team which could dethrone the New York Yankees if his own club doesn't.

"If Harvey Kuenn can play center field and if Billy Martin can play shortstop, the Tigers promise to give us as much trouble as the Yankees," the White Sox manager declared. "I like their pitching and their hitting."

Lopez added that from what he has seen and heard thus far both through for them.

Kuenn and Martin "will come." "Of course," he said, "you have to set your sights on the Yankees first, for your old Casey Stengel has more good ball players than he can use. But you've got to beat the other clubs, as well as the Yankees, and I figure that the Tigers are going to give the whole league plenty of trouble."

Lopez plans to save his ace pitchers for both the Yankees and the Tigers.

He admitted that he felt some managers hurt themselves by saving their best pitchers for the Yankees.

Superstitious Awe

(Tenth of a Series)

We have now explored the first avenue. This is one of the paths taken by some men when they discover that their government has become predatory against themselves. They seek to alleviate the predation by changing the personnel within their agency of collective power.

The other avenue to be taken, deals with the changing of the FORM of the government in an effort to prevent the predation in advance. From time immemorial, men have concerned themselves with this process, also.

Let us explore this avenue. We have shown that fear is the basic emotional drive which leads men toward the establishment of government. Primitive governments have maintained their power largely by wielding fear.

Look where you will in the archives of our forebears and you will find men, clad with power, using error and compulsion in order to maintain a hold over their followers. Thus, fear not only drives men to form governments, it is used within the government formed, for the purpose of perpetuating that government.

Probably the most ancient form of government ever to come into existence amassed power and dealt with fear by claiming that the person in the government had been selected and appointed by divinity. For centuries it was more confidence in government so long as they believed that they had a hand in its formation.

Men do not mind being ruled by gods. They recognize their own weaknesses, but assured that divinity is actually conducting governmental affairs for them, they subside and become docile when they confront the politician clad in such glorious disguise. The record is full of stories of men who have gladly gone to their deaths under the impression that their deaths served a divine purpose. And this, for centuries was the ne plus ultra of every politician. Cunning rulers went in league with priests—the one, the embodiment of force; the other, the embodiment of propaganda and superstition. It was a telling combination.

In point of fact, so well did this combination work that there are traces of it still apparent in our modern world. The Russian government, as an example, today combines the function of despot and priest, by organizing army, civil offices, school and even churches with the same kind of dual leadership. The general is flanked by the political commissar. Military decisions are buttressed with the party line. The government, in Russia, takes the place of God. To obey the Leader is to gain total approval. No contrary voice is permitted. Thought and action are blended in a consistent whole. Every action is made to follow the statist philosophy. And the statist philosophy is turned and twisted to match whatever actions are taken. History is written after the fact, so that whatever occurs, can be shown as being that which was predicted and planned.

There are evidences within our own government that the same process has much appeal in this country. This is especially true in the military, where the debate of multiple defections during the Korean war, has caused the ruling hierarchy to adopt a program of indoctrination which is calculated to make everything that the military attempts, correct, and everything that is correct, an action of the military.

And there is a general superstition among the voting groups that our political leadership cannot err. Whatever the leader decides is sanctified with general approval. The most banal or trivial decisions are exaggerated into being utterances of profundity. Even questionable policies are glossed over with the statement: "Our leadership is the best in the world. That leadership could not have come into being unless God had so willed it. Therefore, it is up to us, the citizens, to give immediate, unquestioned and undeviating loyalty and obedience to every action of our political leadership."

This is the "God will it" of the ancients, scarcely altered with the passage of time and the enlightenment of the people. The superstitions which plagued mankind for generations, still ride upon its shoulders in the guise of a majority decision only God could sanction.

It is frightening and a discouraging spectacle.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES
"NEA: 100 Years Of Progressive Failure"

Most every magazine that has anything to say nowadays about human problems is beginning to give consideration to the kind of education we are getting. They seem to know something is wrong but they do not know the cause of the kind of education we are getting. They usually blame it on progressive education or John Dewey, as "Time" magazine of March 31 does under the heading of "The Long Shadow of John Dewey."

"Human Events" for March 24 has an article by an English journalist, Colin Brogan, on the subject at the head of this column. It is a reproduction from "The London Daily Telegraph" on that subject.

Mr. Brogan seems to see pretty clearly what is taking place in American schools but doesn't seem to root out why it is so. This is what he sees:

"America's National Education Association has now passed its one-hundredth birthday. As this is by far the most important body of its kind in the United States, the centenary was celebrated with a good deal of entirely natural self-congratulation."

"With a full-time staff of more than 400 and a membership of almost 700,000, the NEA can certainly claim to have arrived. Nevertheless, there is a growing body of American opinion which fervently wishes that it would now depart."

"If the quality of our own primary education makes the British taxpayer loudly wonder if he is getting his money's worth, the doubt is more deeply felt and more forcibly expressed in the United States, and a large part of the blame for painfully apparent deficiencies is being laid on the shoulders of the NEA, where it most properly belongs."

"The purpose of the founding fathers of the NEA was to 'elevate the character and advance the interests of the profession of teaching' and to 'promote the cause of popular education in the United States.' Both of these causes must have seemed unquestionable in 1857, but they are coming under increasingly heavy fire today."

"The NEA is egalitarian. That is to say, it is and must be anti-intellectual. It assumes that, by the external order of nature or else by the special arrangements of the American Constitution, all children are created equal, with an equal right to life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness and such credit certificates as they may deem it convenient to acquire, without, in the process, learning anything particular about anything at all."

"The NEA has been particularly hostile to classical and academic learning. This does not mean, however, that the NEA is devoted to the highly relevant disciplines of the materialistic present. Algebra is not favored, and one of the NEA's leaders, Mr. Wesley, considers that arithmetic and geography throw no light on the great moral, social and political issues of the day."

"The NEA's philosophers believe that if there is any subject which some children can do and some cannot do, then the subject should be thrown out of the curriculum; that subject is necessarily a relic of feudalism. One aggressive school of thought fights strongly against the superstition that all children should be taught to read and write and there is no doubt that many American primary schools are singularly unsuperstitious."

"It is possible that the Supreme Court may have come effectively to the assistance of this suspect and minor section of the independent school system. The Court's command that state schools be integrated racially with all deliberate speed has resulted which were easily foreseen by everybody except the members of the Court."

"In every place where there that country with say, Hungary? hammer and sickle with Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, and all the other nations that gasp for freedom under the Red heel?"

Or when that Russia has sworn off nuclear weapons tests, will they forget that the Soviets have a back yard piled high with the stuff? What kind of a mentality operates in any such fashion as that?"

There is no cure for that sort of mental blindness. Trying to win over people like that would be like trying to convince a vacuum cleaner of the right and wrong side of a question. In fact, a good talker would have more chance with a vacuum cleaner. At least that empty bag has a mechanical device that gives off a buzz or whirr.

I trust our company won't fall for the Russian act. Speaking for myself, I'd rather have the 'people of the world' think I was a war monger than sit unprepared in jolly coexistence with a Russia that was armed to the teeth.

Not until Russia, along with everyone else dumps all those nuclear muskets in the Philippine Deep, will happy coexistence come about. And even then I would like a team of neutral divers to go down and check on whether or not Russia had tied any life preservers around the muzzles of their ordinance.

Unemployed Old Timer

Fair Enough

McClellan Group Paid No Attention To Proposal

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — The Senators of the McClellan Committee paid no attention to the unconstitutional proposition, inherent in unionism, that jobs have value as property and that they belong to the unions. The workers are permitted to work the jobs and collect the wages, always subject to union income taxes disguised as dues and fees. The unions' claim to ownership of all this property is not challenged. The committee has not even mentioned the infamous proposition, likewise inherent in unionism, that these private, arrogant bungs have a Constitutional power to conduct courts and administer their own brutal, confiscatory laws, without scrutiny, to say nothing of regulation, by the public government, national or lesser.

It is so well accepted among us now that few members of the younger generation of voters comprehend this abrogation of the rights of workers — by default of Congress, the press and both major parties. "Default" is really too kind a word for this failure. "Neglect" or "culpable failure" would be more appropriate.

The press has been the guiltiest of all because the press has a duty to holler up alarm at such stealthy nullifications of popular rights by shrinkage of the Constitution. The press never tires of proclaiming its own special Constitutional right, but seems to forget that the people have a theoretical power to revoke that right. Actually, the whole people had little to do with the preparation of the Constitution and nowadays they have almost no power to maintain it. Thus, the Supreme Court rewrites it and the journalism which exists by that special permission, for ulterior and dishonorable reasons, forbears to cry out.

I have been writing about the true meaning of unionism for some was a considerable colored population, and most spectacularly in the city of Washington, where parents who could afford to do so acted with speed and no deliberation by moving into all-white districts and thus resegregating their children by a simple change of address.

"Not all parents could afford to move house in this way, and not all could find a convenient district which was entirely white. There are some Americans, profoundly concerned with the present and future condition of state education, who are now hoping that such parents will begin to place their children in private schools, even at some considerable cost in fees. This hope has been strengthened by the ideological attacks of the New York school board, which has been trying to send children from all-white districts to distant schools, so that they may be integrated."

As a pressure group, the NEA is no less formidable than the Methodists or the Roman Catholics, but it looks as if the NEA might soon begin to learn the old rule of physics that action and reaction are equal and opposite. In short, this body has gone considerably too far and may well have less cause for self-congratulation on its second centenary — if it survives as long as that, which is more than doubtful."

years and I have been in a position to observe whether there has ever been a serious outcry against the fundamental violations of people's rights by unions. There has been practically none. Few journalists have even understood that when a worker is forced into a union — and most members are members perforce — he automatically gives up much of his Constitutional rights of citizenship. He surrenders his right to appeal to the public courts. He gives up his right of petition to Congress, the courts and public opinion. He even gives up the officers of his union without their generous permission. For seeking redress or belief outside his union he may be ostracized from all work for life. He submits himself to codes of laws and ruinous punishments, all spelled out at great length in such constitutions as that of the Musicians' Union.

These punishments take much more room in print than the recitals of the members' rights. This evil system, frankly and arrogantly sets up a royal cast, by special provision for special severity on ordinary members who attack "national officers" of unions. It is truly less majestic of a member to strike a national president or secretary of even a "representative" of such national officers. Outside unionism, it is no worse offense under our public laws to punch the president of the United States than to take a poke at any other citizen.

The interim report of the McClellan Committee is actually a spectacular book of cowardice and duplicity. Those fellows, with the exception of Bobby Goldwater, did not keep faith. A treacherous obsequiousness to union racketeers who would have been attacked, not propitiated, for their campaign money, is apparent all the way through the text. Senators either defended Walter Reuther or cravenly connived with one another to sweep into the forgotten past information about Reuther, which might have put the country into a state of alarm lest this dangerous revolutionary be truly empowered by the Democratic and Republican parties to "fight for a Soviet America" as he exhorted his Russia in the "thirties."

I wish some smart guy would tell us how we can have a tax cut and an UNCUT national budget without going into deficit spending that will mean national bankruptcy. That's the question all the politicians are ducking.

JACK MOFFITT

It was a political ruse to drag into this watery complaint against friends to do in his letter from unions a vague element of "employers" who tried to buy advantage by bribing union racketeers. What else does a business man do when cut - throats set upon him, and when the cop, personified by all varieties of government, either turns his back or helps the cut-throat? There was an example which in more honest times would have been tragic to most of us, Michigan who refused to permit extradition to Wisconsin of a Reuther goon who beat up innocent workers in the Kohler strike and insurance. That, by the way, was a rare case in which a citizen-employer fought for his own rights and those of his workers against a union with a terrible record of bloody violence. Yet, the committee treated Kohler, the employer, as a defendant in a criminal case. Of course, employers will do business with accredited fixers, too treated Kohler, the employer, did not make these bad "labor" laws, but the employer who does not do business or surrender to threats of criminal violence and sabotage will have to fight for his life.

The Doctor Says:

EDWIN F. JORDAN, M.D.

Mrs. J. has asked a number of questions concerning myasthenia gravis. She asks what causes it, whether there is a cure and if an excess of X-rays could produce the condition or aggravate it.

The first question can only be answered unfortunately, by the statement, that the cause is not known. Treatment I shall discuss later.

On the last question I do not know of any evidence that an excess of X-rays is related in any way to the cause, nor has it been incriminated as an aggravating factor. Of course excessive X-rays are inadvisable on their own account.

Myasthenia gravis, although first described in the 17th century, has been considered a rather rare disease, though it now appears to be more frequent than was previously believed.

THE SYMPTOMS vary considerably. Some persons with myasthenia gravis have difficulty in lifting the lids of their eyes. Sometimes talking or swallowing is affected. Considerable fatigue of some of the voluntary muscles is the rule. The disease is not associated with pain.

The diagnosis of myasthenia gravis is not always easy, but a rapid diagnostic test has been described. In one report of this test 300 persons were referred to the examining physicians as possibly having the disease and the diagnosis was established in 119 of these.

The development of a good diagnostic test is important since, as indicated, the symptoms vary considerably and therefore a person can have myasthenia gravis for quite a long time before diagnosis is made.

EVER SINCE 1934 a drug called neostigmine (or prostigmin) and its relatives have been used in the treatment of patients with myasthenia gravis. Drugs of this class are still used widely, but their effects generally do not last for a long time and, therefore, the drug may have to be taken rather frequently, not only during the day, but at night.

In addition to drugs of this group a number of other preparations are receiving a great deal of attention and it is quite possible that something will be developed which will be a considerable improvement over the earlier ones.

It is noteworthy that research on myasthenia gravis has been greatly encouraged by the formation of the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation (2 East 103rd St., New York 29, N.Y.). Like similar organizations, it has been raising funds to support needed investigation and has numerous chapters around the country for victims of the disease and their friends and relatives.

BID FOR A SMILE

A gentleman visited the house of an old friend where the butler, an Irishman, paid him every attention, and finally saw him into his carriage. The gentleman, who was miserly, did not tip him.

As a delicate reminder, the butler said: "Faith, sorry if you lose your purse on the way home, remember you didn't pull it out here."

Doctor — Did you try the simple plan of counting sheep for your insomnia? Patient — Yes, doctor, but I made a mess of it. I counted ten thousand sheep, put 'em on the train, and shipped 'em to market. And when I'd got through counting the money I got for them it was time to get up.

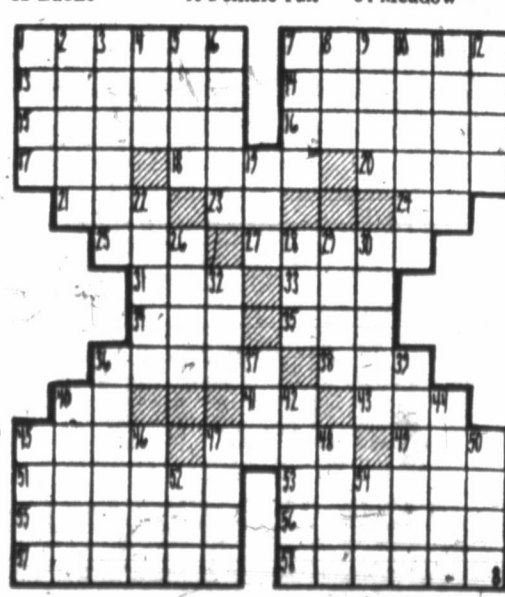

Hal — How old is she? Callie — Oh, I couldn't say — but she was the Big Dipper when it was only a drinking cup.

Mighty Peace-Compelling Force Poised Around Russian Perimeter Constantly

EDITORS NOTE: The following dispatch by Frank H. Bartholomew reveals details not generally known about the striking force of the United States Strategic Air Command in event of an attack on North America. It results from conferences at the Pentagon and two personal visits to SAC headquarters in Nebraska. Bartholomew, prior to becoming president of the United Press, was a war correspondent in the Pacific, China, Korea and Indo-China.

By FRANK H. BARTHOLOMEW
President, United Press

OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE,
Neb. (UP)—The mightiest peace-compelling force in the world is contained in a little electronic fort of a room forty-five feet below the surface of winter-bleak Sargy County, Nebraska.

It is the absolute control center of the great fleet of American fighting aircraft carrying atomic bombs and thermo-nuclear weapons in all skies over the Western world, ready for deadly reprisal against any aggressor.

Absolute control, except for the fact that only the President of the United States can order the release of the first atomic bomb over enemy territory.

General Thomas S. Power, commander in chief of the Strategic Air Command, the long range nuclear striking arm of the United States Air Force, can get his bombers into position over enemy territory with unbelievable rapidity. But only the President can authorize the first airplane commander to touch the first bomb release button.

Continually In Flight

Today's giant B52, B47 and B36 bombers no longer carry conventional high-explosives, nothing but atomic and thermo-nuclear bombs.

They are in continuous flight over the Western world and around the perimeter of the U.S.S.R., usually at altitudes almost invisible from the ground.

Efficiency of the air cover is such that a jet aircraft is being refueled in mid-air every three and one-half minutes around the clock; an American bomber, fully armed, may be presumed to have accepted additional fuel from a KC97 or KC135 jet tanker since you started to read this dispatch.

Two hundred and fifty million gallons of fuel—the jets use a grade gasoline just a cut above kerosene—were transferred in the skies over your head in the last year alone.

"Our mission is to remain on the alert 24 hours a day and to maintain the deterrent posture," General Power, SAC's vigorous, youthful, appearing commander in chief, said.

Unprofitable For Enemy

"We are dedicated to making it instantly unprofitable for any enemy of the United States to resort to that oldest military tactic known to man—the surprise attack."

"We are today in position to prevent any sane enemy from testing us out. We cannot, of course, prevent an enemy miscalculatation or prevent a madman from pushing a button.

"In such case, we fall back upon our second responsibility—quickly to destroy the war-making potential and the enemy's will for further fighting."

A guided missile, launched within the limits of the U.S.S.R., would take 30 minutes to strike the United States. The North American radar and defense network is such that SAC could be upon having 15 minutes' warning, so that the first flight of jet bombers would be nine minutes on its way toward the enemy's cities before the guided missile struck this country.

"But the Soviets won't launch a single guided missile in our direction," one officer in this quiet underground room observed. "They won't trade a nation for a city."

Agree on Attack Route.
The Air Force commander agreed that if an attack against the United States is made, it will probably be by the polar route, in force whether by missile or bomber, and will depend upon surprise. The military rates a surprise attack as possessing a 3-to-1 advantage over an equivalent force on the defensive.

"It will come from the madman impulse or from miscalculation," General Power said.

"Goering told Hitler that the Allies could never bomb Berlin. Khrushchev says his scientists tell him he is ahead of us in aerial warfare. It is always possible he will miscalculate his own strength and his estimate of our weakness.

"We should never bluff, with the peace of the world at stake. But we certainly should not invite attack by appearing weaker than we are."

"I think if Khrushchev thinks he can attack us with impunity he will do it in the next minute."

Describes Operation Setup.

The United States Air Force has revealed that it now files approximately twenty thousand first line military aircraft of all types, under a complement of 800,000 officers and men.

Some 3,000 of these aircraft are the long-range bombers and tankers of the Strategic Air Command, operated and supported by more than 200,000 officers and men. SAC's force is grouped into three numbered air forces in the United States and one in Spain, an air division in the Marianas and another in England. Its planes operate from nearly a hundred forward bases, with the central control here at Offutt Air Force Base in Nebraska.

What is this central control room like and is it prepared at any instant to send to war every American jet bomber anywhere in the world?

The room itself, 45 feet below a bluff along the Missouri River, might easily be mistaken for the control room of a broadcasting studio although considerably larger and filled, except for the passageways, with electronic gear.

Sees Map Layout

Similarity lies in the fact that senior controllers sit there abreast, each wearing headphones and facing a microphone, looking through a wide-view window down on a lighted stage-like area still deeper in the earth. In this area are great panel maps of the entire world with the changing status of the force continuously indicated.

Like every Air Force map this correspondent has seen in the war-room at the Pentagon or here at the solar plexus of the Strategic Air Command, these maps are based on polar projection; looking down on the earth from a point above the North Pole.

The Air Force obviously believes the great invasion route of World War II will cross the pole, coming or going.

High on one wall is a small closed-circuit television set, showing every person approaching or leaving the area through the concrete corridors overhead.

On the opposite side of the room is a device for firing shut with a powder charge each of the approach doors to the whole underground complex, in event of an enemy attack, and for showing the amount of radiation or poisoned air outside.

Drawers of War Plans

Elsewhere there are drawers of war plans—each slide when unlocked has a large placard in front marked "open" and most of them remain so, for instant reference—teletypes and telephones.

The communications system is complex and impressive. In a cubbyhole of a room outside this central control point, this correspondent stood behind a Negro sergeant at a small switchboard and heard him check every advanced Air Force base in the world, from Thule through Africa to Hawaii, and heard their voice responses "loud and clear." This, within a span of less than five minutes.

The metallic communications circuits radiating from SAC run underground for fifty miles before entering to connect with the conventional overhead circuits.

The United States if attacked will go to war by telephone. A North Pole invasion would have the following one-two-three results; in fact, not infrequent false alarms caused by meteors registering on the radar screens have actually started the air war mechanism in action.

Any transpolar invasion by missile or bomber will be picked up by the "Dewline" (distant early warning) in Canada and flashed to the Air Defense Command Headquarters in Colorado Springs. Colorado Springs would instantly call SAC's control room where the senior controller would instantly pick from the several telephones ahead of him one painted red. He would dial five digits in as many seconds, automatically seizing lines to each of the command's numbered Air Force headquarters. He would dial another five digits just as quickly and would be automatically connected with the control room at each SAC base in the United States.

With one terse order he would send the bomber force on its way.

At the same time, another con-

Airport At Perryton To Be Expanded

(Special to The News)

PERRYTON—The Perryton voters balloted two-to-one in favor of expansion of the city-county airport last Tuesday. The trolley would simultaneously lift a second telephone from a small container and dial not a series of digits but one of three colors—red, yellow or blue. This would start an alarm throughout the vast SAC headquarters establishment and summon General Power and key officers to the control room. The color dialed would indicate the urgency of the initial alert.

At the same moment Washington would be notified that SAC's bombers were on their way. A three-way evaluation of the alarm by Washington, SAC and ADC would begin. Key question to be determined:

"Is the enemy attacking?"

Thus far there have been numerous alarms and alerts, numerous dispatch of bombing sorties, but always and in time the final negative answer; "no enemy attack."

vote was 277 for and 141 against and in addition the voters choose two city councilmen and re-elected Mayor Drew Ellis who was unopposed.

Elected to the city council was Irvin Buchana with 289 votes and Frank Shaffer with 206 votes. Leo Johnson and Clyde Cofer both received 185 votes each.

The airport expansion program calls for the city to pay one-fourth of the cost and the county to assume one-fourth of the cost, and the Civil Aeronautics Administration is to pay half of the cost.

The city and county will each pay $17,500 for the cost of acquiring the 288 acres necessary for the expansion and the CAA will pay $35,000 of the land cost. In addition the city and county will each pay $22,500 for construction of a north-south runway and the CAA will assume $44,000 of the cost.
