LUMAN RELEASED UNDER BOND IN SHOOTING OF POST YOUTH

VICTIM IS NEAR DEATH IN LOCAL HOSPITAL NOW

ERWIN BREEDING GETS BULLET IN SIDE AT THEATER

BODY PARALYZED

AT FIRST SHOOTING IN WHICH LUMAN WAS CONNECTED

Will 'Dutch' Luman, Garza county ranchman, is out under a $5,000 bond at Post City and Marvin Breeding, who lies in the Lubbock Sanitarium dangerously near death, as the result of a shooting affray in a Post City theatre about 10 o'clock Monday night, W. F. Cato, sheriff of Garza county, told the Avalanche-Journal late yesterday afternoon.

Breeding was shot from the side by Luman, Sheriff Cato said, while a motion picture program was in progress. No trouble was experienced as the crowds, stunned by the shooting, made for the shows exits following the affray.

The injured youth was brought to Lubbock late yesterday afternoon and placed in the Lubbock sanitarium, where physicians report his condition precarious. His spinal cord was severed and he was paralyzed from the chest down by the heavy calibred bullet which went into his body, doctors reported.

Luman had not made a statement as late last night and the wounded man was unable to talk. Garza county officials have not filed charges as yet, awaiting a report on Breeding's condition. Hospital attaches, however, said last night that a charge was held for his recovery. Luman was lodged in the Garza county jail immediately following the shooting, but made bond last night.

The Breeding shooting was not the first with which Luman has been connected, officials in Lubbock and Post City reported yesterday. He was arrested in connection with the fatal shooting of Jim Dalton, another Garza county man, two years ago, but the charges were later dismissed. Dalton was a brother-in-law of Sheriff T. L. 'Bud' Johnston of Lubbock county.

AMERICAN IS WOUNDED

Raiding Indians Raid Truck, Slay Mexican And Wound American Near Mine Town

NOGALES, Ariz., Aug. 6. (AP)—A wire to the Herald today reported that a Mexican mine worker was killed, and an American citizen wounded seriously Thursday by a band of about thirty Yaqui Indians held up a truck carrying them on a lonely road between the Quadalupana mine and the small town of Tecoripa, Sonora, Mexico.

The American, Joseph Killuck, was in charge of the crew of miners. He was rushed to the hospital at Hermossillo. He had been shot three times.

The Guadalupana is the property of General Ancheta and is being operated by an El Paso, Texas syndicate.

Operation Proves Fatal To Major General Wood

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Major General Leonard Wood, governor general of the Philippines died at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital here at one twenty a. m. today following an opeation at the insituation yesterday.

General Wood was admitted to the hospital two days ago for observation and yesterday underwent a "serious operation" according to a bulletin issued late last night by Dr. Alexander Lambert of New York.

Dr. Lambert's bulletin, although failing to state the exact nature of the operation, indicated it was for a recurrence of a tumor which was removed by Dr. Harvey Cushing, 17 years ago. The growth at the time of the first operation was found to have involved the bone of the skull, the statements said, and "recurrence of the trouble was anticipated."

Operated On Last January

General Wood was operated on for a hernia Manila last January and came east for treatment as soon as he felt conditions in the islands justified his absence. Dr. Lambert added. Mrs. Wood accompanied her husband to this city, but went into seclusion as soon as General Wood went to the hospital.

Beyond the bare announcement of the general's death and the time, hospital authorities declined further information, pending a statement from the attendin gphysicians, including Dr. Cushing, or from the governor general's aide, Major Reed.

Was Not Surprised

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 6 (AP)—President Coolidge had retired when the news reached the summer White House tonight that Leonard Wood was dead. He will be informed in the morning.

While the summer capital was grieved the news did not come as a surprise. It was seen plainly when Mr. Wood visited here a few weeks ago that he was a very sick man.

That his death will cause any radical change of the Washington policy in the Philippines was regarded as unlikely since Mr. Coolidge generally had been in accord with the governor general's administration.

GINNERS PLAN FOR YEAR'S ACTIVITY

PLEDGE OF AID GIVEN TO FARMERS FOR COMING SEASON'S WORK

Pledging to co-operate in every way possible with the farmers of this section and to provide the latest methods in the ginning of the coming cotton crop, more than 350 members of the South Plains Ginners association met in their fourth annual convention at the Tech stock judging pavilion yesterday and made schedules for the coming ginning season. Guided by a spirit of optimism which seemed to completely permeate the meeting the men predicted a good crop for this section, despite the late planting.

Placing confidence in the officers who served them through the past year the ginners re-elected the following men: Charles Felmet, Abernathy, president; W. T. Raybon, Lubbock, vice-president and Ray Grisham, Lubbock, secretary.

Parrish Speaks

Mayor Fink L. Parrish made the welcome address to the ginners, assuring them that the citizens of Lubbock are always ready to welcome the men who make the first step in the refinery of the fleecy staple that is raised in such abundance and so economically on the South Plains. Lon M. Davis, of Floydada, made the response.

In the afternoon the discussion was continued and officers elected. Following adjournment of the convention, the ginners were escorted through the textile building of the Tech. There, they were shown by members of the textile department, the importance of supplying good ginned cotton for the mills. The ginners expressed surprise at the completeness of the machinery and the work which is being done by the students in the agricultural center of the South Plains.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 6.—Ten thousand Texans stood under a willing Texas sun today at Love Field to watch the unveiling of "Dallas Spirit," the Wright-motored monoplane in which Captain William P. (Lone Star Bill) Erwin and his wife expect to span the Pacific ocean.

The ceremonies were attended by many Texas notables. Governor Dan Moody pulled the cord that exposed for the first time to the Dallas public the giant gray and silver plane that is expected to reach Hong Kong, China, via Honolulu as an entrant in the race for both the Dole and Easterwood awards.

Leaves Monday

Captain Erwin expects to make final tests of his plane Sunday and might hop off Sunday night. Oth

TECH GETS NEW BOOKS

New Donations Swell List Owned By College Library: Many Agencies Contribute

Coming at an opportune time when preparations are being made for the opening of the fall term, a number of volumes of books were received as gifts by the Tech library during the past several days. The General Education Board of New York presented the college with 13 volumes and four pamphlets of the history of the work of the association. Twenty volumes of important documents were also received as a gift of the Carnegie Institute of Washington. Several gifts from individuals are being received by the library also.

In addition to the gifts being received by the unit are the daily arrival of books ordered by the college. One hundred and seventy-five books on various subjects were received in an order Friday by the library. A complete file of the Texas Law Review has been received also with the exception of volume 3, number 1 of which could not be obtained. Miss Elizabeth West, librarian, stated yesterday that she would be glad to get a copy of this volume should it be in the possession of any local parties.

DEGRAFTENREID FREED

Texas Ranger On Trial For Attempt To Murder Found Not Guilty By Gray County Jury

PAMPA, Tex., Aug. 6. (AP)—Texas Ranger Jack Degraftenreid, tried today in Gray county district court on a charge of assault with intent to kill, was found not guilty by the jury. The jury deliberated 45 minutes before returning the verdict.

Degraftenreid was charged with having shot at W. H. Bates, Hutchinson county deputy sheriff. The case was brought here for trial on a change of venue.

Degraftenreid pleaded self defense.

The altercation resulting in indictment of the ranger took place July 29 at Borger, Texas. It was precipitated when the county officers released a prisoner arrested by some Texas rangers.

Mystery Surrounds Bomb Explosions In New York Underground Rail Lines

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The explosion of two bombs that last night wrecked two subway stations, tied up for several hours the two main underground arteries of Manhattan and injured a score of persons, provided police today with a mystery as perplexing as any they ever tried to solve.

Hours after the explosions no trace of the bombers had been found and although one man was under arrest police vacillated between belief that sympathizers with Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, radicals awaiting execution for murder in Boston, had set the bombs, or that the bombings were the work of persons with a grievance against the transit company, finally switching to the latter.

Morris Selgel, the man under arrest, was taken into custody a few hours after the explosion. A patrolman found him peering into a window of St. Patrick's cathedral about a mile north of the bombed stations. He was described as a Russian, 14 years in America. A search of his rooms disclosed a newspaper photograph of a bombing scene, and a book, "The Life History of a Traitor." This was the story of a Russian spy.

Police said Selgel told of working in western harvest fields, that he declared he was not convinced that Sacco and Vanzetti had a fair trial and that he expressed himself as opposed to capital punishment. After a rigorous examination, Selgel was held without bail on a charge of being implicated with the bomb explosions, but William Ryan, assistant district attorney, said he had no proof that Selgel was guilty and had asked that he be held as a precaution.

The New York Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee ridiculed the

JUDGE THAYER WILL HEAR NEW SACCO DEFENSE

NATURE OF MOTION FOR NEW CONSIDERATION UNANNOUNCED

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN IN ALL PARTS OF WORLD BY OFFICIALS

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Judge Webster Thayer, who presided at the Sacco-Vanzetti trial in 1921, will sit in the Norfolk superior court at Dedham on Monday afternoon to hear any motions that may be presented in connection with the case, Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall of the Massachussetts superior court let this fact be known tonight at his home in Fitchburg.

The chief justice communicated by telephone with Judge Thayer, who is spending a vacation at Ogunquit, Maine, after he had received a visit this afternoon from the Sacco-Vanzetti counsel.

Arthur D. Hill, Boston attorney who was retained last Thursday to act for the defense in the famous case, went to Fitchburg today with Elias Field, who has figured in efforts to bring about a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti. Their conference with Chief Justice Hall lasted an hour and a half.

Chief Justice Declines

Mr. Hill requested the chief justice to hear the defense motion for a new trial but he was told that this was a matter for Judge Thayer who had presided at the trial. Chief Justice Hall then communicated with Judge Thayer and learned that the latter would come to Dedham.

It was not made clear what the nature of the defense motion would be, the chief justice remarking that Judge Thayer would hear any motion that might be presented in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. The judge will

LICE BOTHER FARMERS

Delay In Growth Of Cotton Will Be Caused Is Fear Expressed By County Men

Considerable excitement now prevails among South Plains farmers, especially those in Lubbock county, over the prevalence in cotton fields generally throughout the county of the cotton lice, depredations from which are reported in some sections to be sweeping, and in other parts of practically no consequence.

The lice, which clings to the under part of the foliage, is sometimes called the green bug, and according to farmers and agricultural leaders, is exceptionally hard to combat.

Some farmers on the street here Saturday reported material damage to their cotton, while others discounted this with the statement that the lice has never presented a material threat. In the opinion of David F. Eaton, county agent, time alone will tell the extent of the depredations, if any, but he said that the infestation is practically county-wide, and that there is no doubt slight damage has been incurred.

AMERCAN-BRITISH FRIENDSHIP FETED

INTERNATIONAL BRIDGE IS TO BE DEDICATED IN PEACE CEREMONY

(By Associated Press)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 6.—The friendly relations that have existed between the United States and Great Britain for more than a century were exemplified here today in a series of functions preliminary to the formal dedication of the International peace bridge over the Niagara river tomorrow.

International questions, such as the failure of the Geneva tripartite naval limitation conference, will have no part whatever in the meeting of high officials of both countries at the bridge dedication, Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg made clear when he reached Buffalo today. He viewed the ceremony as concrete evidence of Anglo-American good will and declared that he did not intend to discuss other international matters while here.

Each alluded briefly to the significance of the peace bridge in the promotion of Canadian-American friendship. The span, asserted the British ambassador, "is a still further step in the marvelous progress of Canada and the United States." Ceremonies incident to the formal dedication of the structure will reach their climax at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon with the arrival at the Canadian end of the bridge of the Prince of Wales, his younger brother, Prince George, Premier Stanley G. Baldwin of Great Britain and high officials of the Dominion of Canada and the Province of Ontario.

REGENTS MEET MONDAY

Contracts On New Buildings For Institution Allowed By The Legislature To Be Let

Three officials of the Tech college will leave here during the week-end for Dallas to attend a meeting of the board of regents of the institution Monday, when it is anticipated that contracts on several new units of the college plant, approved by the last session of the legislature, will be awarded.

PIRATES LOSE AS CUBS DEFEAT ROBINS, 6 TO 2

HUBBERS READY TO DO BATTLE WITH AMARILLO METS TODAY

HOMELINGS ARE OUT FOR BLOOD OF RIVAL CLUB

"SATCH" HILL TO HURL FOR LUBBOCK HERE THIS AFTERNOON

The Hubbers will meet with the Amarillo Mets this afternoon at Merrill Park at four o'clock in what is expected to be the best baseball exhibition of the season. The Mets recently defeated the Hubbers on the local lot in an eleven inning contest with a count of 5 to 5 and Manager Sylvan Sanders hopes to successfully clear the homelings of that defeat by taking this afternoon's card. In the four games played with the Mets for this season the Hubbers have experienced three defeats and will battle hard to overcome the visitors with vengeance and plenty of base hits.

For the first time in three weeks the original roster of the local nine will be in action. The Hubbers have been off first place and another for the past three weeks but today Skipper Sanders will have them all back in action.

Hill Will Pitch

Batteries for the local combination today will probably be "Satch" Hill and J. B. Hamilton. Hill, who has been with the Hubbers for this summer at the initial bag and who lately let the Plainview club down with three bunched singles, will take the mound this afternoon against a row of bombarding hitters. Hill is a fast ball pitcher and uses the spit ball very successfully.

On the homeling infield the original crew will be seen in action with "Tuba" Nichlaus, third; Lassiter, short; Sheppard, second; and Sanders, first. In the outfield the local aggregation will have "Evo" Marshall in the left garden; Brown in the center field, and "Topper" Rigney in right.

Several veteran players of Panhandle baseball will be enlisted with the visitors today. Gib Jackson, a former Hubber and now a resident of Amarillo, will be with the Mets and will play the game just as hard against the locals as he has played with them in the past. Guy Hayden, first sacker for the northerners, formerly with Coach E. V. Freeland's crew of Matadors in Texas Tech baseball will be with the visitors also.

Today's contest will likely be the last time the Amarillo entry will play in Lubbock this summer and one of the best attendances of the year is expected to throng to Merrill Park this afternoon.

His Homer Enough Beats Mack Alone

KEN WILLIAMS

By poling a home run Kenneth Williams, veteran Brown swatsmith, assured the Browns of an even split in a twin bill with Philadelphia yesterday. His homer was one of the two hits made by his team.

Sam Langford Is Slugging Harder To Pace Western

(By Associated Press)

If Pete Casey is counted as a regular, the Tulsa Oilers have half of the first ten hitters of the Western League on their payroll. Casey came back for one attempt at pinch hitting this week, but failed. It was his first appearance since he was benched two months ago. Omitting Casey, the Oilers have five in the first ten, anyway, as Kress, the Tulsa shortstop, has moved up from twentieth to 10th place.

Langford, Des Moines outfielder strengthened his hold on the top seat with a two point gain but Comorosky of Wichita pocked up seven points in his percentage and is now only three behind, in averages compiled today including Wednesday's games.

Oilers Throw Well

The top half of the batting list of leaders remained in exactly the same order as a week ago but the last five were shuffled around until three of the Oilers got together in fifth, sixth and seventh place Bennett is the club's best bet though, in third position.

Joe Rabbit, after he had gathered his customary two stolen bases for the week, slammed out a home run and is close to the runners' position in the art of four bagsloting. Munson of Tulsa got none this week, but his mark of 2 is still far in the lead. McNally of Wichita is second with 17 and Rabbit one less.

George Blaeholder, the league's star flinger, broke even in his starts this week, making his standing 21 victories and six defeats. Black, another Oiler, is credited with nine victories and no defeat at the top of the column.

Leading batters of the Western League: Langford, Des Moines, .393; Comorosky, Wichita, .390; Bennett, Tulsa, .383; Cunningham, Des Moines, .3666; Sturdy, Tulsa, .365; Munson, Tulsa, .360; Wingfield, Tulsa, .359; Rabbit, Omaha, .356; Reagan, Denver, .356; Kress, Tulsa, .348.

Orwell Climbs To Association Lead

(By Associated Press)

The Brewers' all around star, Oscar Orwell, is back into first place among the American Association batters today, through his pinch hitting success. Reb Russell, last week's leader, increased his batting pace, but not enough to hold the honor post.

All the other leaders shed few percentage points and Ollie Tucker, the Millers' new outfielder, finally slumped clear out of the first ten. Hauser, the Blues' first baseman, displaced him today. Another famous hitter is following in Tucker's footsteps, Dewitt Lebourveau of the Hens.

Bevo Slumps Badly

Right after Bevo was reported sold to the Philadelphia Athletics, for delivery after the Association season, his stick work grew uncertain and today he is barely holding on to tenth place after a brilliant start this season.

The Millers' slugging shortstop, Frank Emmer, has been performing true to form, though, and his home run string now records 19. Earl Smith, another Millers fly chaser, failed to connect this week as he was on the bench and others are creeping close to his mark of sixteen.

Among his other chores Orwell won one game on the hill for the Brewers but got charged with two defeats so Zinn passed him in ranking among the regulars. Palmero, the Cuban flinger of the Mudhens, has a mark of eight victories and but one defeat to top the list, but Zinn has 15 victories to his credit with only six losses. Sheehan, another Blue flinger, is the only one to top Zinn total of victories, but Sheehan's sixteen wins are offset by eight setbacks.

Leading batters of the American Association: Orwell, Milwaukee, .395; Russell, Indianapolis, .392; Grimes, Toledo, .385; Kirkham, Columbus, .370; Veach, Toledo, .368; Duncan, Minneapolis, .364; Riconda, Milwaukee, .362; Funk, St. Paul, .360; Hansen, Kansas City, .359; Lebourveau, Toledo, .354.

Revenge Offered To Abilene Team

ABILENE, Aug. 6.—When the Abilene and Anson high school football teams meet Monday, September 26 on the gridiron at the West Texas Fair park this city, Dewey Mayhew, coach of the Abilene aggregation will have an opportunity to revenge the 3-0 defeat hung on his Marlin Bulldogs by the Anson team on January 1 when the two met in Abilene to decide the unofficial class B. High School championship of the state.

Mayhew has resigned his Marlin connection and come to Abilene to direct the local High School athletic teams for this year taking the place of Lee Jones, resigned.

This will be the first game of the season for both teams and will possibly be watched with more interest than any other opening game in the state. Anson will have practically the same team as last season and Esker Curtis, coach of the school will have his boys keyed up to show they can overcome Mayhew's system more than once.

SIMMONS' LEAD THREATENED BY YANK SWATTERS

NEW YORKERS SEEKING TO EMULATE TRIO OF PIRATES

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The American League now has a hard hitting trio like the three Pittsburghers of the National League but the three Yankees lack one step of being at the top of the batting column. Al Simmons of the Athletics sits serenely on the throne there, though he has been on the bench the past week.

Right behind his chair, though, are Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel, a first baseman and two outfielders, the same as the Pirate trio of old Joe Harris, Pan Waner and Clyde Barnhart.

Meusel joined his two mates in averages compiled today, including Wednesday's games, with a great hitting rally which ran his percentage from .363 to .371, eleven hits in six games. Earl Combs doubled Meusel's gain to make the fourth Yankee in the first ten batsmen, displacing Johnny Neun the Detroit first sacker.

Cobb Still Slipping

Still sliding, Ty Cobb who a month ago was in the first ten, today is down in 22nd place, but Tris Speaker still hangs around in fifth place. The Detroit pair, Harry Heilmann and Bob Fothergill, who used to be battling for leadership also are still in the first ten but well down the list.

George Sisler is still waiting for an opportune vacancy among the leaders, but meanwhile continues to add to his stolen base string which now totals 26. Neun has displaced his teammate, Taveners as runnerup, with 18, a gain of two.

Lou Gehrig is only two home runs behind Babe Ruth's pace in the 1921 record year and led Baby by two last night. Lou had 37 and Babe 35.

With all the New York batting power behind him, Waite Hoyt still holds the leadership of the regular roundsmen of the league with a mark of 14 victories to four defeats. Ted Lyons of the White Sox has the most wins, 17, but is charged with 8 defeats.

Leading American League batters: Simmons, Philadelphia, .394; Gehrig, New York, .387; Ruth, New York, .373; Meusel, New York, .371; Speaker, Washington, .369; E. Miller, St. Louis, .369; Heilmann, Detroit, .367; Schang, St. Louis, .364; Fothergill, Detroit, .351.

Frisch Still Threatens

Frankie Frisch, who broke up the Pirate trio at the head of the National League's batting list three weeks ago, threatens to do it again. He was the only one of the leaders, with the exception of Harvey Hendricks of Brooklyn, to make an outstanding gain in percentage, in today's figures. He is but one point behind Clyde Barnhart, the rallying member of the Pirate trio.

Hendricks, who held a middle seat in the first ten for several weeks, a month ago and then dropped out, returned to his accustomed spot today, displacing Eddie Farrell of the Braves.

The Fordham flash, as they used to call Frisch in New York before he was traded to St. Louis, didn't steal any bases this week but his mark of 31 is a dozen higher than the former base stealing leader Kiki Cuyler of Pittsburgh.

Rube Benton, on the Giants' successful western tour, slipped in between Lee Meadows and Carmen Hill, the two Pittsburgh pitchers who have been sharing the league honors, and Hill dropped to third leadows leads the regulars with 4 victories and five losses. Charley Root of the Cubs has 18 victories but nine defeats.

Leading batters of the National League: P. Youngster Beaten By Mrs. Mallory

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 6. (AP)—Tireless tennis which wore away the strength and stamina of an opponent half her age today, carried Mrs. Molla Mallory to a hard won victory over the 18 year old Helen Jacobs of California in the final for Seabright women's singles bowl. Scores were 6-2, 1-6, 6-1.

In a thrilling battle for the men's doubles trophy, William T. Tilden and Frank T. Hunter, Wimbledon champions, downed Richard N. Williams and Lewis N. White, their rivals, for the Davis cup doubles assignment by 6-4, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

BANKERS CLING TO FIRST RUNG WITH TWO WINS

WHOLESALERS ARE NOT LOAFING, HOWEVER CRISIS COMING

The Bankers still maintained their lead in the Lubbock city loop circuit throughout last week's play by successfully defeating the Auto-Barbers in a close game by a score of 4 to 3; and also winning over the Rix embalmers with a count of 7 to 4. The Wholesalers, winners of the initial half, and who are close on the heels of Judge Raley's crew of Shylockers, won both of their contests during the past week.

Both the Rix and Laundry nines broke even in their games. The Rix entry lost to the Bankers and won over the Auto-Barbers. The Rix-Auto-Barber game was one of the most interesting of the past week. It went extra sessions before the fudniture juggling combination was able to put over a victory on the mechanic-shaver outfit. The final score of the game was 5 to 4. Lonnie Sanders' crew of washermen put over a shut-out victory on the city tailors, with a count of 6 to 0, and lost the first scheduled game of the week to the Wholesalers.

Barbers In Hard Luck

Joe Chisum's crew of barbers might be termed the hard luck club of the league. With one of the fastest infields in the league Chisum is having difficulty in holding up throughout the entire game. In both of the Auto-Barber contests of the past week they went into the game with early leads only to lose in the last frames. The Bankers defeated Chisum's crew with a four run rally in the last of the fifth and Bab Sanders' bunch of undertakers went an extra innins to come out with a win.

With only two more weeks of play for the second half championship the Bankers have an excellent chance of maintaining their lead for the right to meet with the Wholesalers for the league championship. The Bankers clash with the Laundry on next Tuesday and Wholesalers on Thursday. The game with the Wholesalers will likely be the deciding issue for the Bankers in their race for the pennant for this half.

Standing of the league clubs for this week:

	G	W	L	PCT
Bankers	12	9	3	.750
Wholesalers	12	8	4	.667
Rix	12	6	6	.500
Laundry	12	6	6	.500
Pe-Tailors	12	4	8	.333
Auto-Barbers	12	3	9	.250

Champion Hitter To Join Steers

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Aug. 6. (AP)—William (Big Bill) Diester, who led the list of hitters in organized baseball last year with an average of .444 in 116 games played and who has been playing with Corpus Christi and Edinburg in the Texas Valley league this year, leaves tonight for Dallas where he will join the Steers.

Diester was signed up by "Snipe" Conley, who has been here watching the pennant series between Corpus Christi and Laredo.

Kauffman Winner Of Public Links Title For U. S. A.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 6. (AP)—Carl Kauffmann, Pittsburgh, today, won the national public links championship at Ridgewood club by defeating William Serrick, of New York in 37 holes. Kaufman was down during the morning round, losing the first three holes, and squaring the match only to lose the lead after he himself had been three up in the second round, he finally evened affairs at the 32nd hole with a birdie four and after halving the last four holes of the second round Kauffmann won the first extra hole and the match with a par four, when Serrick over approached and took a five.

BOBBY REEEVS

Bobby Reeves, former Georgia Tech shortstopper, got three hits in three trips yesterday but that's nothing unusual for that youngman. He joined the Washington Senators right off the Tech campus, pushing the veteran Topper Rigney out of the lineup and proceeding to field and hit like a flash. Reeves, in addition to having a rifle-shot arm, has been mauling the offerings of right-handers and southpaws alike—something to tickle Onwer Clark Griffith.

Seahawks Blank Laredo To Take Valley Pennant

(By Associated Press)

CORPUS CHRISTI, Aug. 6.—The Corpus Christi Seahawks today shut out the Laredo Oilers 4 to 0 to win their third straight game of the title series and annex the championship of the Texas Valley league. Three out of five games were needed. The locals won their first two games in Laredo Wednesday and Thursday by scores of 7 to 1 and 8 to 5.

Robinson, hurling for the Hawks, allowed the visitors but five well scattered hits. He was given good support by his mates, Hill, pitching for the Oilers, was touched for six safeties, four of which were two baggers.

The pennant was won under the direction of G. H. (Jimmie) Payton, who brought two championships to Salina, Kansas, before coming here. Incidentally it is the first pennant in organized baseball Corpus Christi has ever won.

TUNNEY'S HANDLERS LAUGH AT JACK DEMPSEY'S COME-BACK

CAL FARLEY, WHO WILL HELP CONDITION CHAMPION, RECEIVES A LETTER FROM SPARRING MATE

EDITOR'S NOTE...(This is a second article concerning the coming Tunney-Dempsey heavyweight championship fight, written by Cal Farley, of Amarillo, war buddy of Tunney's, himself the welterweight champion wrestler of the Inter-Allied games. Mr. Farley will go to Chicago to work out with Tunney the last eight days of the champ's training period. Read what he has to say today and look forward to his special articles which he will wire the Avalanche-Journal from the scene of the big bout.)

By Cal Farley

AMARILLO, Aug. 6.—(Special)—Received a letter from my old friend Eddie Eagan, who is the main squeeze in getting Gene Tunney into condition for his coming bout with Jack Dempsey. If we all feel like Eddie does there isn't any use of our going to the fight. The old war buddie says Gene is going to make it real disagreeable for Dempsey when they meet in September. The champion is training at Speculator, New York, out in the country forty miles from a railroad. Boxing, swimming, climbing mountains, and playing golf has put Gene in wonderful condition that is as near fighting condition as he wishes to be until the final three weeks of intensive training which will take place near the scene of battle.

Says Eagan, "The champion, as you will remember, had plenty of confidence before the last fight and I can assure you that he hasn't lost any of it. He really feels more confident of again defeating Dempsey than he did at Stroudsburg last fall while training for the Sesqui battle."

Rickard Has A Cinch

There is one fellow that has a cinch on the fight and that's Tex Rickard. Seems like every time Old Tex puts out the cards he knocks them for a couple of million. When he pulls one of his big shows Tex thinks he has about reached the peak, but after letting the cash customers come up for a little more air and re-finance the old homestead, they not only come back for more but bring a couple of neighbors along. Judging from press information on the advance sale of tickets, the whole neighborhood is going to attend the coming bout.

We'll have to hand it to Rickard for the clever way he puts over the hostess end of the party. Tex certainly knows how to serve the dishes to keep the natives coming back for more. He has had them on cauliflower diet for some twenty years and still they line up way down the boulevard whenever he hangs out the old menu.

Just to prove to Illinois and its Governor, Len Small, that he never forgets a friend, Tex promised his old friend Mr. Small that he would bring the next big fight to Chicago. Appreciating the tremendous strain Len has been under for the past few years with a civil war on

Dempsey Weak Threat

According to Edgar's letter the champion's camp doesn't tak Dempsey's come-back very seriously. Eddie said he sat at the ring side during the Dempsey-Sharkey fight and, while the former title holder appeared to be in good condition he is nowhere near as good as he was five years ago. His letter follows:

"You saw the fight at Philly and know how completely outclassed Dempsey was in that fight and if am any judge of a fighter at all Gene should carry this one of much more decisively than the first one. Gene is unquestionably the greatest defensive fighter in the game so I can't see how Dempsey is going to get through to do any damage. I still believe the old sock is in Jack's mitts, so naturally it will be up to Gene to keep that old left hand of the former champion out of his ribs.

"If I were asked what I thought of Sharkey's execution there is but one answer: I'd be in favor of it Sharkey fought a good fight for about four rounds while he thought he was winning but when the tide began to go against him what we had all looked for came out, so naturally we can't see Dempsey really any better if as good as he was a Philly last year.

"We are looking forward to you fulfilling your promise which you made us at Colorado Springs, that of working out with the champion a few times, and I have your seats all ready for you. The champion asks me to caution you about being in good condition as he wants to repay you for a few neck twisting, you gave him in Paris a few years ago. If he is as hard for you to manage as for me I would suggest that you show up the morning of the fight, then you won't have to work out with him. He is getting stronger every day and when they tell you he can't hit you just have them wire me. Gene asks to be remembered to Mrs. Farley and says he'll be waiting to see you. Looking forward to your arrival after we establish our camp near Chicago, with best wishes, I remain,

"Eddie Eagan."

JUST at present, Lou Gehrig is hogging the headlines of the sports pages because of the chase he is giving Babe Ruth for the home-run honors in the majors.

Gehrig's remarkable power at the bat has made him the most talked about youngster in the game. Incidentally, his leap to fame makes Manager Miller Huggings of the Yankees look smarter than ever.

Huggins, who makes mighty few mistakes of managerial judgment, drew down plenty of criticism when he sold so good a first sacker as Wally Pipp to Cincinnati, with the announcement that Gehrig would supplant him at first for the Yankees.

It seemed to be tempting fate, since Gehrig had played only a few games in the majors prior to this decision on the part of Huggins, he immediately proceeded to make good the judgment of the Yankee pilot.

In his first year, the season of 1925, Gehrig batted .295, last year he topped it with .313, and this season, his third as a regular, he should hit .350 or better, aside from the home-run ability that he has already shown.

While he has received little or no publicity as compared to Gehrig, there is in the National League a youngster playing his second year in the majors who has as great, if not a greater team value than the Yankee star.

The player I have in mind is none other than Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Waner packs no home-run dynamite in his bat as does Gehrig or Ruth, but it is chock full of timey singles, doubles and triples, with an occasional circuit drive thrown in to vary the monotony.

Coming to the Pirates after three years in professional service, spent with San Francisco in the Coast League, he was touted as a rookie ready to step into fast company and deliver.

A batting average of .401 in his final season in the Coast League caused Pittsburgh supporters to expect much of him and he didn't disappoint. Playing in 144 games in his first year he finished with a mark of .336. Catcher Earl Smith of the Pirates was the only member of the club who did better at the bat.

This year he is stepping along at an even faster pace, being the batting ace of Manager Donie Bush's club. He was the first player in the National League to make 100 hits. He now wants to beat all others to the 200 mark.

Waner is a well built athlete, yet couldn't be classed as husky. He is about 5 feet 9 inches in height and weighs in the neighborhood of 160 pounds. He bats and throws left handed. In the field he is as clever as at the bat.

In two years Waner has reached the star class in the National League. However, since he does all things well but has no particular specialty, such as Gehrig's ability to hit home runs almost as often as Babe Ruth, Waner isn't basking in the spotlight as much as his real ability deserves.

Barney Dreyfus paid a lot of money for Paul Waner, but he is worth every cent of it as he is the best all-round outfielder to break into the majors in years.

Pioneer Scout Visits Boys In Camp
Chief Templeton A National Figure

Two young men were discussing a visit to the C. W. Post Memorial Camp.

The younger of the two was twenty-five, and the older had lived 48 years longer.

"How far to Post?" asked the gray-haired young man.

"About 50 miles," replied a listener.

The veteran of life fingered his hair, looked at his watch. Within three hours the train would arrive. His eyes were thrown furtively on the younger man who was mopping a damp forehead which registered almost 90 in the shade.

"Let's walk it," suggested the young man of 73, who was growing restless.

Railroad Decided Upon

A series of exigencies were pressing upon the younger, and the trip was delayed purposely to travel by rail.

The older was Chief J. L. Templeton, special national field commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America, who reported at the office of the South Plains area Saturday for a few days visit with the annual encampment now being held at Post.

One could scarcely distinguish Chief Templeton from Dan Beard. Dressed in khaki, decorated with many recognition badges, the rugged pioneer of the West is a colorful figure.

The out-doors has shown a fondness for him. The two are pals. Out-door life has left its marks of favoritism with this craftsman hunter, fisherman, hiker—and boy scout. It has branded him as one of its own with its bronze coating of brotherhood.

Hair And Face Contrast

His gray hair favorably contrasts a tanned face which expresses all the noble characteristics of a man whose faith in God is developed through contact with His handiworks. Chief Templeton lives where birds and nature's rhapsodies are music, where the glory of pine-clad mountain peaks is art, where the myriad expressions of God are education, and where the throb of his appreciative soul is life.

Few years of Chief Templeton's life were spent in public schools although he is keenly aware of the value of education. In the early days of his pioneering efforts in the West, he had no time to attend the school sessions in the improvised tructures.

But one would not conclude that Chief Templeton is uneducated. He has a sportsman's philosophy which is delightfully interesting and thought provoking. He tells one how God is manifest, and how He teaches his simple lessons by nature. A nationally prominent scout worker, he has had personal contact with the late Theodore Roosevelt, Dan Beard, and many other brilliant characters, many of whom are still living.

He Is Powell's Friend

Sir Baden-Powell of England, the man who organized scoutcraft, is a personal friend of Chief Templeton. The two maintain an intimate correspondence. Laden Baden-Powell, while visiting in this country several years ago, pinned her recognition of admiration on the veteran in Kansas City before thousands of people.

A great lover of children, the Chief has a great family of youthful friends throughout the nation. Walking through the streets of Lubbock, he would often stop and talk to boys and girls who were attracted by his kind, sparkling face.

The years have been kind to the lover of children. Seemingly, he has imbibed the spirit of youth. He moves flambuoyantly, talks clearly, sees without aid of glasses, laughs much, smiles all the time, and enjoys life generally.

Asked for a few simple rules for health, he replied promptly, "Go to bed early, get up early, and smile all day."

"But what do you eat?" queried one.

"Eat!" he seemed astonished. "Why, I eat anything that agrees with me. I'm a great fellow for meat. In the out-doors there is nothing better than a big beef steak to add with a number of other eats. Yes, I drink five or six cups of coffee a day.

Gets Along With Chefs

"One of the first things I do when I get in a boys' camp is get acquainted with the chef. I always call him 'Sunshine.' And you can bet your life I get along with him."

Chief Templeton says he refrains from smoking, chewing, drinking, staying out late at nights, and he never uses an oath.

He teaches the boys and girls the art of woodcraft, teaching them the best wood for different uses. He is an interesting story teller. When the embers of the camp fire are faintly aglow the boys gather around the great scout for a few stories.

"I tell a bear story that's a killer," winked the "old timer."

The aged who speak of "the good old days" will find nothing in common with this man who knows the yester years as well as the present. "In 1863 I was passing through St. Joeph, Missouri, in an ox-drawn cart. It was seven days from there to my destination, Omaha, Nebr. In contrast, a few days ago I was in a railway station in St. Joseph musing over the "old days." As the train pulled out of the Missouri city I realized that within two and a half hours I would be in Omaha. Yes sir! I'm happy. I not wanting to go through "the good old days."

Letters Wish Him Well

Several years ago the scout executive was injured in an accident in Los Angeles. While recuperating, hundreds of letters, wishing a speedy recovery poured in from "his boys and girls" scattered all over America. "That's why I enjoy living," he impressed.

Chief Templeton will be with the scouts at Post during the closing of the first period and the opening of the second. Following his visit with the Post camp, the veteran will spend a day with the Camp-fire girls in Crosbyton.

The court of honor meeting, to which parents are specially invited, will be held at the C. W. Post camp Tuesday night. Parents attending the services may return home with their boys, as the following day marks the closing of the first period. Rev. D. B. Doak, L. S. Harkey, K. N. Klapp, R. B. Yates, A. H. Watts, and other scout officials will be present.

While the scouts are training at Post, their sisters in a similar organization are outing in camp near Crosbyton. About 125 Campfire girls, 55 of whom are from Lubbock, are guests of the Crosbyton chapter.

MINERS TO STRIKE AS SACCO-VANZETTI PROTEST

WALSENBURG, Colo., Aug. 6. (AP)—At a mass meeting held by 400 of the 6,000 coal miners of Las Animas and Huerfano counties tonight it was voted to call a strike in all the mines at this district as a proest against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti. The walkout is to start Monday and it is expected to last four days.

So Art has become foolishly confounded with education—that all should be equally qualified.

Whereas, while polish, refinement, culture and breeding are in no way arguments for artistic results, it is also no reproach to the most finished scholar or greatest gentleman in the land that he be absolutely without eye for painting or ear for music—that in his heart he prefer the popular print to the scratch of Rembrandt's needle, or the songs of the hall to Beethoven's C minor symphony. Let him have but the wit to say so, and not feel the admission a proof of inferiority.

Art happens—no hovel is safe from it, no Prince may depend upon it, the vastest intelligence can not bring it about and puny efforts to make it universal end in quaint comedy, and coarse farce.

This is as it should be—and all attempts to make it otherwise are due to the eloquence of the ignorant, the zeal of the conceited.—Whistler.

FIGURES DISCLOSE OIL OVER-SUPPLY

GOVERNMENT REPORT SHOWS JUST WHAT IS WHAT IN OIL INDUSTRY

BY EARL A. THOMPSON

We have been confronted the past six months with the cry of overproduction whereever we met any of the members of the oil fraternity. Just what there is to this awful howl, few, if any, outside of the officials of the major companies know, however the report issued by the United States Bureau of Mines, department of commerce will give some light on the subject.

The report states that while the supply of oil during the month of June was increased slightly over the month of May, consumption amd ea much larger increase, being more than 100,000 barrels a day greater.

May Show Drop

The result was a lessening of the margin of overproduction from 218,745 barrels per day in the month of May, to 126,000 barrels during the month of June, Should the consumption make apportionate gain during the month of July over the month of June, there would not be an over production when the July report comes out in four weeks from now. Consumption of refined products shhowed an even greater increase.

Domestic demand for gasoline during the month of June broke all previous records for a single month, thereby causing a decrease of 5,000,000 barrels in the stocks of gasoline held at the end of the month. Figured in terms of days supply at the end of the month of June, 1927 there were 41 days supply, compared with 49 days at the end of the month of May, and 44 days supply at the end of June, 1926.

Strain Not Well Divided

While this report shows only a small overproduction for the industry as a whole, the strain is not evenly divided, there being 8,700,000 barrels of crude in stocks east of California, largely due to the Seminole. Therefore, if the production at Seminole can be reduced the strain would be removed where it hurts the worst.

The following tabulation of data by the Government, which is the only correct check of the oil industry has, will no doubt help to explain what is really taking place.

PETROLEUM SUPPLY AND DEMAND FROM GOVERNMENT REPORTS

MILLER BROTHERS LEASE LARGE TRACT ON PLAIN

The past week Miller Brothers o 101 Ranch fame took a lease or 50,000 acres in Borden, Howard Garza, Lynn and Dawson counties on which they will probably drill ten wells when the industry revives. The leases were straight 1 year commercial leases. It is understood that the purchase price was one dollar per acre.

George Miller, Fred Olmstead land man for the Miller Brothers and Joe McGraw of the Oklavania Oil company have been in West Texas some time looking over the stiuation. They are very optimistic over the possibilities of West Texas and the South Plains. Mr. Miller is of the opinion that as soon as the Seminole goes down West Texas will have the largest drilling campaign it ever had.

NEW CRANE BOOM TOWN

Crane county has another boom town as a result of the oil. The new town is El Centro and it claims to be the exact geographical center of the county. The town is 60 miles south of Midland on the Midland-Crane City and McCamey roads. The town is surrounded by oil fields at close range. The town is being developed by the Phillips Development company. Mr. Phillips war formerly of Borger.

LIME FORMATION PUZZLES OIL MEN

DIFFERENCES OF OPINION IN NEW WELL FEATURE OF WEEK

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

ABILENE, Aug. 6.—Much interest is being taken by members of the oil fraternity in this section in determining the exact nature of the lime formation from which production is coming in Empire Gas and Fuel company's No. 1 Johnson in southwest Callahan county which is producing oil from 4,140 feet at the rate of approximately 500 barrels daily and at the same time 23,500,000 cubic feet of gas.

Many geologists claim that the Johnson production is from the Ellenberger lime. Others think that his well has tapped the Ranger black lime and some others declare that the formation is the Marble Falls lime.

Drilling Is Expected

The difference of opinion among the scientific attachees of the oil business will probably lead to a campaign of core drilling in this section in the immediate future. In fact announcements have been made this week that one and possibly two of the major operating companies are planning to begin such operations shortly and will probably test out the whole of Central West Texas including Eastland, Stephens, Callahan, Shackelford, Taylor and a number of surrounding counties to determine how far the pay of the Johnson well extends and what other formations are to be found.

Heretofore the Ellenberger lime has not been a profitable sand. In Eastland county this structure yielded sulphur water, oil men state. One well, the old Vestal, north of Cross Plains, and about twenty miles from the Johnson well. Oil was produced from that well only a few days and then stopped. It is claimed that the production in this well came from the top of the Ellenberger lime, while some operators, those who think the Empire's new well is in the same formation, say that this well is down in the pay.

For a long time many operators have had the idea that the Ellenberger would be found highly profitable in some sections. That locations have not yet been found, but if the Johnson production is really coming from that lime it may be that some important activity will follow.

Will Produce Much Oil

Some of the geologists who are inclined to think that the Ellenberger has been tapped by the Callahan county strike say that if they are not badly mistaken, this formation will in the course of a few years produce more oil in West Texas than all other pay stratas yet encountered.

Very few wells in this part of the state have ever been drilled below 3000 feet and the full possibilities of the regions around that depth have not yet been determined. With the interesting possibilities of profitable production around that level many of the large companies will likely do considerable exp'oring during the future, even should the oil market remain in the present unprofitable condition.

As an indication of the interest being taken in the deep stuff the announcement comes that the World Oil company, will drill their No. 1 Griffith, three miles east of this city, which has already passed 3400 feet, down below 4,000 feet in order to find out the possibilities of the formations in this area. Originally the contract on this well called for 3,000 feet, but with the increased interests aroused by the Johnson well owners of the Griffith test have concluded to continue with their explorations.

To Put Well On Pump

Instead of swabbing, as had been the first intention of the owners of the Callahan County Leasehold's No. 1 Dudley, the 1,930 foot strike in southwest Callahan county, near the old pool of the same name, which has been out of the picture for some time due to small production, decision has been reached to put this well on the pump. This has come about due to the fact that a liner has been lost in the well and it was thought that this would complicate the swabbing operation and possibly harm the well. The pump will be put in soon and the showing of oil will be given a test. This strike looks like it is good for about 100 barrels a day, the owners say.

Another Jones county wildcat had a show of oil this week. Jess Tomberlin's No. 1 Hendricks, section 27, block 16, T. and P. survey in southeastern Jones county, eight miles north of this city had a show in soft grey lime at 1,955 to 1,965 feet. This show was not sufficient to be of commercial value and the well is now drilling past 2,110 feet.

The formation showing oil in this well was different from anything found in Jones and Taylor county. All the other shows and production in these counties has come from lime formations, while the Hendricks found the oil signs in a sand.

Much Acreage

A number of the major companies have acreage about this well. White Eagle Oil and Refining companies No. 1 Herndon, central Jones county, which found two stratas with oil, one around 2,100 feet and the other about 2,600 feet, will be abandoned, according to announcements given out here.

This test looked like a real well for awhile, but after swabbing about 200 barrels of oil from the 2,100 foot pay, which had been drilled into only a few inches, the drill went deeper and found the pay to be only two feet thick. This was not considered worthwhile and the well has been drilled below 3,000 feet with no better shows.

San Oil and Refining company's No. 1 Brown east of this city in Taylor county has struck salt water around 3,500 feet and will probably be abandoned.

Very little progress has been reported from any of the wildcats in Taylor, Jones or Fisher county during the past thirty days. There are a number of rigs that have been shutdown during the past month and none of the operators seem inclined to push operations.

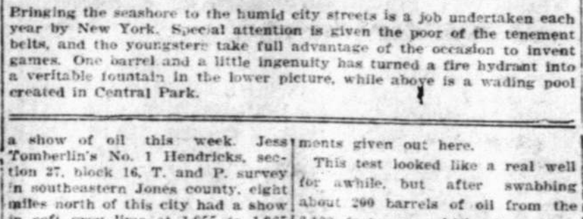

Thank Goodness Someone's Cool!

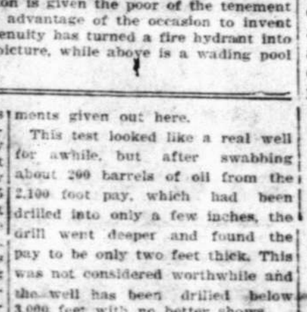

Bringing the seashore to the humid city streets is a job undertaken each year by New York. Special attention is given the poor of the tenement belts, and the youngsters take full advantage of the occasion to invent games. One barrel and a little ingenuity has turned a fire hydrant into a veritable fountain in the lower picture, while above is a wading pool created in Central Park.

Rolf Lium's Regular Sermonette

COOLIDGE'S BLACK HILLS PASTOR PREACHES AGAINST 'TEARBOTTLE HABIT' OF TODAY

By ROLF LIUM

(President Coolidge's Summer Pastor)

Text—Be of good cheer.—St. John 1:33.

One of the unique contributions of ancient Egyptian civilization to the modern museum is the tear-bottle.

It is a small receptacle with openings that will just fit the eyes and attached to the neck of the bottle is a beautiful hand made cord which slips over the head, so that the bottle can hang loosely and be easily accessible whenever needed.

The tear was a sacred fluid by the Egyptians, and whenever tears were shed, the bottle would be held closely to the eyes so that all of the valuable liquid would be saved.

It was a particular mark of distinction to fill a tear bottle, and whenever an officer of high rank would escort a visitor through an army camp, he would in all probability show the guest his many filled tear bottles, and pointing to them say, "See how I have suffered."

The tear bottle has passed from use into history, but the tear bottle habit still persists. We still have with us the short sighted pessimists, who are great critics in small things, who are geniuses for seeing shadows, whose ears are keen for discords.

It is this self pity, this fault finding—this tear bottle habit—that Christ wishes to blot out of the lives of his disciples when he says, "Be of good cheer."

The tear bottle habit varies in intensity from the criticism of mere incidents in life to the total despair of the suicide. In the person who bemoans the unfairness of heritage, it asks, "Why wasn't I born into this? Why should luck have wished on me these circumstances?"

In some people it takes the form of petty jealousies which are often of the cheaper variety that deal with everyday comforts and luxuries. Its deadliest form is that of the shallow pessimist who is satisfied that all is well with himself but that the world about him is a sighing and sobbing sphere of woe. He points to the robbers and their work, to the outrage and cruelty in all parts of the world; he piles up the record of a month of crime in our large cities, and asks you if the world it not going to the dogs.

But that is all these people are complish, for this tear bottle habit is from its very nature destructive; also the time used in applying it could be used to build up, to foster the better things in life, and to use what we have to achieve with. It is constantly striving to use what we already possess that makes our lives count with the Lord.

The New Testament does not depress our spirits—it does not leave a shadow on our heart even though it gives the history of a man of sorrow who was acquainted with grief. The New Testament is invigorating, inspirational, uplifting in its entirety, for Christ was the Prince of optimists. When He launched forth from Nazareth on his life mission, carrying with him the slogan, "Be of good cheer," He dealt a death blow to the tear bottle habit, for he showed us that true happiness in life comes from doing the best we can with the best that we possess.

Inscribed 30,000 Licenses

LONDON—Thirty thousand marriage licenses, including nineteen on parchment for royalty, were inscribed by Benjamin Bates Bull who has just died at the age of eighty-one. Bull worked 65 years as chief Clerk and Sealer at the Faculty Office of the Archbishop of Canterbury in Doctors' Commons, E. C. Among the royal licenses were those of the King and Queen, the Duke and Duchess of York, Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles.

DAILY MARKETS

COTTON GOODS STEADY

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Cotton goods closed steady in the gray goods division. Finished goods are in moderate demand. Yarns are steady. Raw silk was steadier and firmer. Burlaps eased somewhat but are still substantially higher than a week ago.

COTTON OIL DULL

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (AP)—Cottonseed oil was dull but setady, closing 1 to 3 points higher on commission house buying on covering with the steadiness of lard and cotton. Sales were 3,300 barrels. Prime crude 7.87 1-2; prime summer yellow spot 9.49; September closed 9.54; October 9.70; December 9.69; January 9.71; March 9.54.

COTTON TRADES NARROW

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 6. (AP)—The cotton market today was entirely a pre-bureau affair, with trading and price fluctuations dominated completely by evening up in advance of the government's report Monday morning. Although prices declined in the early trading the loss was later recovered on shorts covering. December, which had dropped to 17.03, rallied to 17.31 11 points above the previous close, but eased off in the late trading and closed at 17.20, unchanged for the day. The general market closed unchanged to four points up.

Cables were better than due at the start but the weather was favorable for most sections of the belt and first trades showed declines of 5 to 11 points. This loss was soon increased when the liquidation began. October dropped to 16.78, 15 points below the previous close.

The market ruled erratic and nervous for a time but soon strengthened under the moderate covering and all months made new highs near the end with October rising to 17.04, 11 points above yesterday's close. Belated liquidation, however, caused a recession of 9 to 11 points right at the close.

Exports for the day totalled 12,337 bales.

CORN SETS HIGHS

CHICAGO, Aug. 6. (AP)—Corn soared today to the highest price the December delivery has yet reached this season. Pessimistic reports about the backward condition of the corn crop were at hand from nearly all parts of the belt except the southwest.

Closing quotations on corn were strong, 1 1-8 cent to 2 3-4 cent net higher, with wheat showing 5-8 cent to 7-8 cent decline, oats 1-4 cent to 3-4 cent up and provisions unchanged to 7 cents down.

In the wheat market black rust reports were apparently losing influence as a price factor. Serious damage to domestic spring wheat was noted by national and state authorities as well as by private crop observers but Canadian advices were bearish and indications pointed to a decided falling off in probable imports by France this season as compared with a year ago.

Oats firmed up with corn. Threshing returns on oats remained poor.

Provisions were minus any aggressive support.

COTTON SLOW

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. (AP)—Uncertainty as to the showing of the government crop report scheduled for publication on Monday, was reflected by the rather nervous and irregular ruling of the cotton market here today. Selling was comparatively light after the liquidation reported earlier in the week. After easing off to 17.20 during the early trading, December rallied to 17.48 and closed at 17.39, compared with 17.35 at the close of Friday. The general market closed steady, net three points lower to four points higher.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 8 to 18 points and the active months showed net losses of 13 to 20 points during the first few minutes under liquidation and local selling promoted by declines in the futures markets at Liverpool and Alexandria. These offerings were absorbed by week-end covering, however, and the market stiffening during the morning, which carried advancing from 16.95 to 17.20 and January from 17.29 to 17.51. Near months were relatively firm with October and December showing net gains of 12 to 13 points, while later deliveries were 4 to 7 points net higher at the best. Closing quotations were a few points off under realizing as the demand from shorts subsided in the late trading.

Traders appeared to find nothing in the day's news to cause any change of opinion as to the probable showing of Monday's government report, and the bulk of the business here was attributed to further evening up of accounts. Private cables said that early buying by the continent and Liverpool had been supplied by local and Manchester liquidation together with hedging but that the decline had been checked by trade calling. Manchester reported some cloth sales to India but a slow market for yarns.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 46,624 bales against 42,535 last year and 39,679 two years ago. The average of 12 private end July condition figures as published during the past few days was 73.6 and the average of the private crop indications 14,532,000 bales.

HOGS STEADY

FORT WORTH, Aug. 6. (AP)—The hog trade was the only division of the livestock trade here today to have enough receipts to be quoted and they were moved along a steady basis. The cattle and sheep divisions were nominal.

WOOL ACTIVE

BOSTON, Aug. 6. (AP)—The wool market is fairly active, but a slackening in demand is reported by several domestic wool houses. The best call is for fine French combing wool. Half blood, quarter blood and lower quality are steady in price but 3-8 blood wools are a little slower. Combing French wools are active, and their scarcity has brought about a further advance.

BREWER PLANNING EVOLUTION TALK

EXTRA SEATS ARRANGED TO CARE FOR CROWDS AT REVIVAL TONIGHT

Expecting the largest audience of any night during the revival leaders of the Church of Christ are making arrangements for seating accommodations for 2,500 people in the airdome west of the church building, Broadway and Avenue N, in preparation for the overflowing attendance which will hear Elder G. C. Brewer in his lecture on "Evolution" this evening at 8:30.

Every available space will be utilized for the convenient hearing of the audience. Steps of the church building, the corridor, alleyways and every foot of space within the church property will be used. Windows of the building will be thrown open to give seating space to those who are unable to find a place on the lawn.

Invitations have been extended to churches of nearby towns, and the present interest in the discourse this evening indicates that a crowd of almost 3,000 persons will flood around the building to hear this vitally interesting present-day subject. A committee is shaping plans to handle the increased attendance, and ushers will be on hand to expedite an efficient arrangement for the convenience of all.

Elder Brewer has had an extensive study of evolution, as it relates to religion, and he will show the arguments of the modern theory of evolution, defending the creation of man with the Bible. He has debated the issue with exponents of evolution in Chicago, New York, Memphis, Nashville and many other cities. For a period of time he lectured on this subject on the platform throughout the nation.

This evening's program is essentially a lecture and no part of a series of the revival leaders of the Church of Christ assure. It has been occasioned by a popular urge of Bible enthusiasts of the city who, knowing of the national reputation of the speaker on this subject, desire to hear the issue discussed.

MAYOR'S HOME BOMBED

BALTIMORE, Aug. 6. (AP)—Explosion of what the police believe was a dynamite bomb today partly wrecked the rear of the home of Mayor William F. Broening. The explosion splintered the porch, cracked the wall and set the house afire.

EVANGELIST TALKS ON PREPAREDNESS

WE KNOW NOT THE HOUR OF DEATH HE POINTS OUT IN MESSAGE

It was a solem quiet crowd that left the big tabernacle last night, after listening to Dr. Hogg bring a heart searching message on being prepared. "For ye know not the day nor the hour when the son of man cometh." He read a telegram during his discourse from Comanche, where he closed a meeting before coming to Lubbock, bearing the information that one of the men—a barber of that city was a big healthy fellow, and who professed religion during the meeting just two weeks ago, was dead. This is just a practical example of the importance of being prepared, for the very worst thing that can happen to any man is to lose his soul. He may lose his family, his property, his money, and everything that he possess here upon earth, but there is nothing that is so awful, as for a person to live a life of pleasure and happiness, possess great riches and have a fine family, own large herds and bank stocks, large mercantile establishments and ranches, gold mines and oil wells, and then pass away and his soul be lost in hell. "For what shall it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul, or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

Concludes First Week

It was the last service of the first week of the four weeks campaign, but it was the best to many who have not missed a service, they agreed.

It was announced that all arrangements have been made for the beginning of cottage prayer meetings next week. They will be held every afternoon in different sections of the city, and down town prayer services for the men.

Service Today At Churches

Sevice will be held this morning at the usual hours at the churches. The pastors of each church conduction the service in his respective pulpit, and the Sunday schools meeting in the usual way. Sunday afternoon at 3:30 the evangelist will bring a great message to men, women and children at the tabernacle, on the subject, "The Christian Home." This is expected to bd a great service, and you will have to go early if you get seat under the tabernacle. Sunday evening Dr. Hogg will preach on "Sowing and Reaping." This is one of his greatest sermons, and you will want to hear it. More seats have been added outside of the tabernacle, and the ushers will do their best to provide seats for all, but it will be necessary for everyone who expects to get a front seat to be at the tabernacle early.

Churches Attend

Monday night, each church will attend in groups. They will meet at some place designated and attend the services in a body. Reserved space will be roped off for each church, and the choir shall be the judge, of the church group that makes the best impression on them as they enter the tabernacle, and the Superintendent of the Sunday school of the church that is given the favorable decision will be given a nice bible by the evangelist.

Fifty more covenants were made for family alters, and this brings the total up to 250, established since the beginning of the meeting, and the number of daily bible readers has grown to such extent that it seems that most half of the great congregation is reading the scriptures daily. A bible was given last night to the one whose family alter had been unceasing for the greatest number of years, and it went to an old lady who stood up in the great congregation and said her family alter dated back fifty eight years. Another was given to the one who had taught a Sunday school class for the longest period of years, and a lady arose and said that for fifty years she had been teaching a Sunday school class.

Good Singing

The song service is one of the uplifting features of the meeting. Old religious songs to heart searching tunes are being used and the singer stated that in this country the people ask for the old songs, and possibly this is the reason that so many people are touched in the revival meeting in the South—there is religion in the song service as well as in the preaching period. Anyway the song service which last for fifteen minutes preceeding each sermon, is enjoyed by all, and thousands lift their voices in song at each service.

AUSTIN, Aug. 6. (AP)—Shipping orders now have been placed for approximately 90 percent of the $1,325,000 worth of state road machinery finally contracted for by the state board of control after lengthy negotiations with the highway commission, Leo Ehlringer commissioner said today.

The contracts first made were altered in some respects so that two bodies could reach an agreement on what is needed most and get some of it moving where it is needed.

FIVE HELD FOR MURDER

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 6. (AP)—Five men are being held in the Cameron county jail here in connection with the fatal shooting today of Jacinto Ramos, 75 year old bread peddler, who was killed by a bullet which pierced his chest.

The aged man was shot at his home near Harlingen, and Chief of Police Horace Johnson of Harlingen, who investigated the slaying, said that Ramos had a pistol in his hand when found, although it had not been fired.

SUBWAY BOMBING

idea that the bombs had been placed by friends of the radicals.

"We have waged a peaceful struggle for seven years," Ross Baron, secretary of the Sacco-Vanzetti emergency committee said, "and it is ridiculous to think that we would now resort to outrages."

The police belief of a Sacco-Vanzetti connection was fostered by reports of bombings in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Buenos Aires and Montevideo. But they said that at no time did they have any proof. Shortly after a threatened strike was settled several days ago, a bomb was found in a subway. But police declined to give information regarding their switch to the theory that persons with a grievance against the transit companies had placed the bombs.

The bombs were placed in 28th Street stations of the Manhattan and the Interborough rapid transit companies, one on Fourth avenue and the other on Broadway. Neither is an express stop, and just before midnight, the hour of the explosions, the stations are not usually crowded.

Assistant District Attorney Ryan said that not a fragment of either bomb has been found, and he attributed this to the fact that laborers had been rushed to the station to clear the lines.

Despite police theories, a strict guard was established on all transit lines. Commissioner Warren cancelled all police vacations and said that he would hold his force of 14,000 men ready for emergencies. Special guards were posted at city hall, the mayor's home, the federal buildings and the homes of prominent men.

DALLAS SPIRIT

erwise, Monday will be the date of departure, provided there is no interference.

Fred F. Florence, spokesman for the group of Dallas men who are sponsoring Captain Erwin's flight, introduced the Rev. William M. Anderson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who offered the invocation. Mayor R. E. Burt of Dallas welcomed the visitors, and paid tribute to the sponsors of the flight and to Col. William E. Easterwood, Jr., donor of the $25,000 prize.

Captain Erwin was presented with his wife and parents. The speech was brief. The world war ace, who shot down eighty enemy planes, and who in turn was shot down five times, said that his father was a Presbyterian minister; he believed as the Presbyterians and that he also believed he was predestined to cross the Pacific to Hong Kong.

Governor Moody, who had flown to Dallas from Fort Worth, especially to participate in the services, said he regarded "this as not only a great day for Dallas but a great day for Texas. This flight will be an advertisement of Texas and the Texas spirit, that goes to make up a great deal of what Texas is."

Col. Easterwood said he would give Captain Erwin an additional $5,000 if he succeeded in completing his air voyage.

Mrs. S. L. Underwood, on behalf of the International airplane service, Inc., presented Captain Erwin with a wrist watch and his wife with a bouquet.

AUBREY CONDRON AND J. Kelly, of Throckmorton, are visiting friends here for a few days enroute to California where they will spend several weeks.

Nearly 12,000 sets of lights were tested for defective focus, defective reflectors, broken lenses, or lights too dim or too bright.

Half of the cars it was shown had light improperly focused.

Lockney To Vote August 16th On Sewer Extension

LOCKNEY, Aug. 6.—If a bond issue of $40,000 is voted upon favorably on August 16th, the city of Lockney will begin immediately to build a sewer system that will be a credit to any town of the same population.

The city has practically finished a $30,000 extension to the water system, making the system as a whole valued at approximately $100,000.

The city council has lowered the water rate to the resident consumers from a minimum rate of $1.50 for the first 3,000 gallons to $1 and from 15c per thousand thereafter to 10c and lowering the industrial rate from 15c to 8c per thousand gallons. This reduced rate gives Lockney consumers a lower rate than is found in many of the West Texas cities.

When the gas lines of the West Texas Gas Company are finished the city of Lockney will be able to offer all conveniences that are offered by the larger cities.

KENT COUNTY BEGINS ACTUAL WORK ON HARDSURFACE HIGHWAY AS THREE YEARS OF PLANNING BRING SUCCESS

Culminating more than three years effort on the part of leaders in Kent county, the first dirt was moved Friday on the construction of a little more than 19 miles of grade and drainage structure on the highway from the Garza county line to Clairemont, county seat of Kent county, under terms of a contract awarded about two weeks ago to a Moran contracting firm.

Bonds for the proposed improvements were voted by the citizenship of the county in 1924, and various obstacles have been met and overcome on the project.

Continuation of No. 84

The strip of highway is new, being a continuation of state highway No. 84 east and west across the county, and will furnish a connecting link between the centers of population of central Texas and New Mexico, through the tier of counties south of here, including Fisher, Scurry, Borden, Dawson and Gaines. It will allow a more direct route from central Texas into the southern part of New Mexico.

While Kent has it program definitely under way, other counties on the same route to the west are working out a concerted program pursuant to eventual paving of the entire route, and tier of nine counties to the north affected by the Lee highway Vernon and Farwell are going ahead passing bond issues or making strenuous efforts to pass them.

Floyd county, the sixth of the nine counties to attempt the bonded improvement, failed the past week to put over a proposed $475,000 issue, the vote being only a few short of the necessary two-thirds, but leaders in the county are now planning immediate resumption of efforts to succeed in any election that is expected to be called in the near future.

The last issue was offered in connection with, or at the same time as the four proposed constitutional amendment, and as sentiment was so overwhelmingly opposed to the proposed amendments, this is believed to have had its effect on the road bonds.

Proponents of the issue were slightly in the lead in fifteen boxes out of seventeen in the county, but opposition was so strong in these two boxes that upon final tabulation the count was slightly short of the needed two-thirds.

It is understood here that plans have been launched for a concerted program on highway No. 84 north and south through Lubbock between Lamesa and Amarillo, and that meetings are to be held at various points along the route in the immediate future in an effort to pave this road. Lubbock no doubt will join heartily in these plans, leaders agree, although definite steps on a proposed county-wide bond issue of $1,000,000 are not to be taken until some time in September under an agreement reached a short time ago.

The proposal in this county would affect all six of the state maintained highways through Lubbock in addition to providing funds for an excellent connecting system of lateral roads.

Sanitary Expert To Watch Big Spring

BIG SPRING, Aug. 6.—The city of Big Spring is to have a sanitary expert. In order that the city be kept clean during its rapid development, due to the scores of oil operators moving in, a special sanitary officer is being employed and his duties will be to supervise all eating places, grocery stores, dairies, city water supply and any other public or private place where unsanitary conditions might endanger the health of the city.

This service will be secured as soon as an efficient officer is located, says Mayor R. D. Mathews.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Summer

Are women in business selfish and greedy and eternally working for self-glory and self-advancement?

A certain boss whom I know says they are.

"Women are eternally figuring out how to become celebrities and not just employes," he tirraded.

"A man can come into any firm, get into routine, become a cog, do the daily grind, and never think about making a fuss because he is 'working below capacity,' as some fool woman is always complaining to me.

"But a woman looks upon everything she does as just a stepping stone to 'something bigger and better.' She'll buckle down to one job, and just as I think she is going fine and I'm through botherin with her, she'll proceed to ask for the next job higher up, or come to my office with suggestions and plans or to show a new piece of work she's thought up on her own hook.

"I'm fed up on women."

There seemed to be a flaw somewhere in the ballyhoo anent woman—her faults and blunders. I sought it.

"But," said I, "you say that she really does 'buckle down' to each job and master it, and is really ready for the next thing?"

"Oh yes, she does that okay," said he grudgingly.

"Well, then, aside from the folly it would be from her point of view, isn't it rather silly and wasteful for you to want to cramp any worker's capacities?

"Aren't you a rather poor business man for being content with unskilled labor when you are offered skilled labor?"

Made brave through my disgust, I continued—

"You know what I think? You're plain lazy, and you resent being made to work because of other people's ambitions. You yourself went to be a cog and you can't be if you must think about your staff once you get it hired. You resent being forced to work a little bit yourself when an employe brings a new idea to you, and so on."

This employer tirade against too ambitious, too self-assertive women employes is by no means new or unique. I have heard it until I could—and often do—swear.

It is not at all hard to find reasons for women making more than the most of their jobs.

In the first place, jobs are comparatively new to us. They are not just jobs—the wherewithal to make a living.

The majority of men regard jobs in that way. Rather necessarily do they do so, for men have "hungry wife and bairn to feed" and cannot be too critical about the kind of job they will and do take.

To woman, however, a job is "self expression" and "creative work." Women think of their jobs in terms of their "own work" much more than do men. It makes a world of difference to them whether they plug in on a switchboard or plead a case in open court.

To many women today, their job is the substitute for wifehood and motherhood and home-making which yesterday's woman took as her job as a matter of course.

If it be in any sense a satisfying substitute, woman must naturally make the most of it—work to fullest capacity and feel justified in making her choice twixt "marriage or career."

The employer who tries to transform her energy and ambition and desire to work to the full, into a man's plodding acceptance of "just anything that comes up in the day's work," is a fool and the loser!

Here she is in such a Worth creation of white chiffon, with its looped up trouser skirt and tightly swathed hip-line. A corsage of chiffon roses with hand-painted centers is its only trimming.

Miss Beulah Dixon Is Honored By Club Party

The Business and Professional Women's club met Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Emmett Burford, 5th and L. The party was given in honor of Miss Beulah Dixon, bride-elect.

After a wish had been written for the honoree a contest was engaged in entitled "Shepherd." Miss Margaret Mallard was winner and received a useful prize which she presented to Miss Dixon.

Punch was served throughout the eveging. Mrs. Fred Heim sang "I Love You Truly" and other numbers.

There was a color motif of pink and white carried out in the decorations and in the refreshments of white angel food cake and pink brick ice cream molded in heart shapes, and pink and white candy. Miniature brides and groom dolls were given as favors. Miss Lula Belle Rushing gave a toast to the bride, Mrs. J. J.Smelser oasted the groom, and Mrs. Mollie B. Abernathy gave a toast to the bride's mother.

Miss O'Neall Is Honoree As Her Friends Surprise

In honor of her daughter, Nancy, who is leaving soon for college, Mrs. Charles F. O'Neall, 1625 Broadway, entertained at her home with a "college" party Saturday afternoon.

Different contests were indulged in, the first one being a vote taken as to whether Miss O'Neall should go to the college which her mother had selected or the one of her choice. Harvard college in New York received the largest number of votes and proved to be Miss O'Neall's choice while the University of Michigan, Mrs. O'Neall's selection was defeated.

Another contest which was won by Mrs. Mary W. Doak was to compose an acrostic poem. The prize was a bottle of perfume.

The next prize was won by Miss Chan Rix, a tie, for naming the largest number of universities and colleges, and Mrs. F. R. Friend won the booby prize, a box of crackerjacks.

Mrs. Mills Wins One

In the contest to make the most words out of the word, California, which is Miss O'Neall's native state, Mrs. R. A. Mills was declared winner, while Mrs. James H. Goodman was awarded the booby prize, a bottle of satsup.

SIMPLE REMEDY GIVEN FOR HEAD CREASES

BY MME. ANNE GERARDE

Disfiguring creases across the forehead indicate worry, weak eyes or the bad habit of talking too much with your eyebrows.

Try to eliminate the causes.

Two exercises will do much to eliminate these creases.

First, dip the first two fingers of both hands in skin food and by a rotating motion loosen the skin thoroughly over the whole forehead. Keep your thumbs against temples for support.

Second, now iron out the wrinkles in the following manner: Beginning at the center of your forehead, press your fingers tight and draw them slowly but very firmly out towards your temples. Lift fingers and repeat until you are tired.

She Might Be Next "Lady Governor" Mrs. McCormick Thinks Of Running

Mrs. Medill McCormick

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The daughter of the most skillful political manipulator this country ever saw—Mark Hanna—will probably be a candidate for governor of the state of Illinois at the next Republican primary.

This woman is Mrs. Medill McCormick, widow of the former senator from Illinois and known to Republican party leaders as the best woman politician in the nation.

Seated on the veranda of her home in Georgetown, Mrs. McCormick told me of her plans regarding Illinois' next gubernatorial campaign. While she has not definitely promised to run, she made it plain that if she does all other candidates had best prepare for the scrap of their lives.

"It is far too early to prophesy," she said. "Great pressure is being brought on me to run. I'm not prepared to say that I will.

"But I can conceive of an emergency in which I would."

And then Mrs. McCormick disclosed that if she does run it will not be primarily to get the office for herself, but rather to take it away from that talented vote-getter, Governor Len Small. The daughter of Mark Hanna, the president-maker, is determined that Small will never win another term in the governor's mansion at Spring field.

Her Conditions

"Suppose Small is a candidate to succeed himself, as we assume," she went on. "Suppose Attorney General Carlstrom, who ran for attorney general as Small's fair-haired boy four years ago with a campaign promise to cancel the suits against Small, but who now claims to be anti-Small candidate.

"I doubt whether Calstrom's candidacy would entirely satisfy the anti-Small people.

"Small will have his organization behing him. Carlstrom may get an organization in Cook country—but I may get a majority of

In making this tentative predicthe votes."

tion Mrs. McCormick is speaking from the viewpoint of the experienced, practical politician. She knows that very strange things do happen in Illinois politics.

Should Get Many Votes

To begin with, she has a brilliant record of her own and is widely known. The mantles of her father and her late husband would fall on her shoulders. Many Democratic women probably would vote for her in the Republican primary. Labor should be sympathetic, for Mark Hanna was friendly to labor and Mrs. McCormick, as an active member of the Women's Trade Union League, has vigorously supported child labor and other labor legislation.

The farmers might help, too; for not even Lowden is more of a dirt farmer than Mrs. McCormick, who runs her own 2000-acre farm, sells hogs and steers, markets 1400 quarts of milk daily and is an active director of the Holstein-Friesian Association.

In addition to these elements, there is a large floating anti-Small vote that probably would go her way. On top of this, Mrs. McCormick would get strong newspaper support.

"If I do run it have the shortest platform on record," she added. She refused however, to say just what it would be.

"Women will increase in public office very slowly," she says. "They are not generally interested in that. They are more interested in educating themselves politically."

Woman President? No

Mrs. McCormick laughs at the suggestion of certain advanced feminists that either she or Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth might be a presidential candidate next year.

"I don't expect to live to see the time when a woman can be a candidate for the presidency," she says. "Women have a long way to go in politics. It is one of the most difficult and intricate occupations.

"No, I'll not tell you what I'd do if I were president, because I'm not going to be president.

"Let's be serious!"

Our Congressmen's Best Recipes

MRS. EDITH NOURSE ROGERS, MASSACHUSETTS, TELLS HOW TO MAKE HER SPICED CURRANTS

The favorite recipes of our four congresswomen have been supplied to the Avalanche-Journal through NEA Service. They are of particular interest just now because most of them deal with preserving fruits. The recipes that follow are the favorites of Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts. After these will be printed the recipes which are most pleasing to Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California, Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, and Mrs. Florence Langley of Kentucky. Clip out all of them for your cook book.

As a child Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Congresswoman from the 5th Massachusetts district, helped her grandmother with her preserving. Her own mother preferred that her little daughter not learn to cook, but her grandmother in Maine believed that every girl's education should include a course in household arts.

The grandmother's favorite recipies included one for spiced currants. "It's an old favorite," says Mrs. Rogers, "of all New England housewives." Here it is:

5 pounds of currants.
5 pounds of sugar.
2 tablespoons of cinnamon.
2 tablespoons of cloves.
1 pint of vinegar.

"Pick over the currants," said Mrs. Rogers, "wash, drain and remove the stems. Put in a preserving kettle, add the sugar, vinegar and spices tied in a piece of muslin. Heat to the boiling point and cook slowly one and one-half hours."

Strawberry Preserves

Despite her prejudice against her child learning to cook Mrs. Nourse herself was a famous cook. Her best beloved recipe was one for strawberry preserves, gathered from Mrs. Lincoln's Boston Cook Book, an old standby of all New England housewives.

"Measure a bowl of berries," said Mrs. Rogers, "and the same quantity of sugar. Put in a preserving kettle, over night, a layer of berries and then a layer of sugar. In the morning cook slowly without stirring until the liquid is clear and the fruit soft. Skim thoroughly before putting in jars.

"These were the best strawberry preserves I ever tasted. My mother, knowing my own sweet tooth, added more sugar. But that depends, of course, upon the taste of those for whom the sweets are intended."

The Sorosis club plans to continue its work as sponsor of the Girls Reserve in the local high school, and are going to devote some time to the Campfire girls. The subject that was used last year "Texas," proved to be so popular that it was voted to continue with the same subject this year. Different phases of this subject to be discussed in meetings according to Mrs. O. B. Hewitt, president, are legends of Texas, folklore and folksongs, pioneer' hardships life, citizenship of Texas, carhering exercises, trails in Texas, development of churches, landmarks of the Plains, Indians, playgrounds of Texas, Texas art, this last taking into consideration the bluebonnet festivalli of the state, Education in Texas, showing the growth of the public schools and institutions of higher learning, Texas shrines.

Delphian To Be Busy

The year-book for the Lubbock chapter of the Delphian club has not been released, but the general subject for this year is to be "Discovering of modern archaeology in various fields." Mrs. R. A. Mills is president of this club for the ensuing year.

The Business and Professional Women's club has a definite plan this year which is to see the establishment of a club house for the business and professional women of the city. Plans have already been made and action is expected in the near future. Mrs. J. J. Mrs. B. C. Dickinson, president of the Junior Twentieth Century club stated that the club is to take courses at the Tech next year. The first part of the year will be spent in studying "Travels," with Prof. John C. Granbery, head of the history department of the college, as instructor, and the latter part of the year devoted to the studying of "Modern Magazines," the teacher as yet not having been decided upon.

Child Study To Continue

Twentieth Century Undecided

The Twentieth Century club has made plans to study at Tech, taking a course in English this year. The death of Prof. R. C. Harrison interrupted their plans as they are awaiting the coming of Dr. Allan L. Carter, new head of the English department at Tech before making further decisions.

The Delphian club have not made any plans yet that are definite while members of the Lubbock Music club are to study a book "Epochs in Musical Progress." There are eight topics which include Primitive music, Mediaeval music, Polythonic period of music, Classics period, Romantic period, Music in the nineteenth century, Music today and modernism. Three hundred years of music in America.

Mrs. Charles F. O'Neall, Miss Nancy O'Neall, Charles and Rodney O'Neall, are leaving tomorrow for an extended visit in the East. They will be joined in Chicago by Miss Norine O'Neall and later by Mr. O'Neall.

Delightful Party Is Given Saturday Afternoon

Miss Mary Virginia Ballinger entertained yesterday afternoon with a theater party. Guests went to the Palace and from there to a local confectionery for refreshments. Those enjoying the delightful afternoon were Misses Mary Katherine Norman, Jean Eaton, Katherine Barr, Helen Wagner, Ruth Wagner, Mary Jane Wilson, Alicia Porter of Dallas, and Mary Virginia Ballinger.

Madge Bellamy To Star In Movie At Palace Tomorrow

Madge Bellamy, popular Fox Films star, opens a one day engagement at the Palace Theatre next Monday in "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," a modern version of the stage success of Theodore Kremer. This picture, adapted by Ernest Maas and Irving Cummings, was directed by the latter. Continunity is by Gertrude Orr.

Gripping action which centers about the love of a vivacious little New York girl, is heightened by the dramatic portrayals of Allan Simpson and other well-known screen favorites.

In addition to Miss Bellamy, the cast includes Simpson, as the hero, Paul Nicholson, as the "heavy," and several others whose names are bywords among theater-goers at home and abroad.

The cast, specially chosen by Mr. Cummings, is remarkable for a number of life-like characterizations.

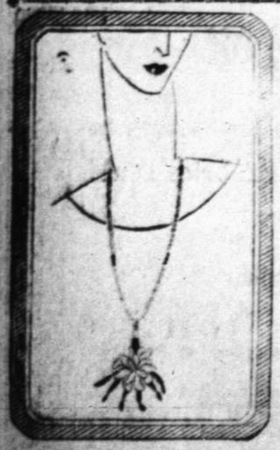

Arthur Housman, New York, comedy favorite, is seen in the role of Dave Strauss, a down-to-the-minute head salesman who assists Jules Morton (Paul Nicholson) in the operation of the Diana Lingerie Company. Harry Bailey, cast as Mr. Ginsberg of Cincinnati, contributes very materially to the comedy relief.

The story, adroitly developed by Mr. Cummings, runs the gamut of the emotions and projects Miss Bellamy into the center of the action from the opening shot to the thrilling climax in a yacht pounding along in New York Harbor. She starts as a sewing machine girl in a sweatshop on the East Side, has numerous clashes with those who seek her undoing, and finishes by placing her affections safely in the keeping of the one man who has proved his worth. Much of the action was photographed in the heart of New York and along the Hudson.

The cast includes Sally Phipps, Anita Garvin, J. Farrell MacDonald, Ethel Wales and others.

Mrs. Clifford McReynolds, of Sweetwater is ill in a local hospital.

Parent-Teachers Association For Adequate Summer Schools; To Ask Governor Moody To Help Campaign

AUSTIN, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Noyes D. Smith, first vice-president of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, has this week sent a letter to the 1500 associations in membership with the Texas Congress of Mothers, stating that the executive committee of the state organization which met in Austin the latter part of July had unanimously instructed her as legislative chairman to request Governor Moody to include in his call for the incoming special session of the legislature, a measure which will provide sufficient appropriation to assure adequate summer sessions for state supported colleges. Mrs. Smith explained that this action was taken in accordance with the Congress' past efforts to promote adequate appropriations for the maintenance of higher institutions of learning and to encourage better trained teachers.

Mrs. Smith furthor states in her letter:

"The legislative committee is immediately forwarding this request to the Governor, but any hope to secure this measure is futile without the whole-hearted cooperation of the members of our organization. The registration fees have been reduced—the appropriations for the summer work have been cut almost in half—all the state colleges are crowded this summer beyondd their capacity. It is impossible for these institutions, in their crippled financial condition, to properly care for the large number of teachers especially our rural teachers, who are securing their training in these summer sessions. We feel that our organization should do all in its province to help these teachers become the best trained in our state. Write your Senator and Representatives to support a measure to provide adequate funds for our state colleges for the summer sessions.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
16th Street and Ave. J
REV. W. P. JENNINGS, Pastor.

Belief in God is as old as man and the worship instinct is a part of our human constitution. Man has always worshiped something. He has always been possessed with the conviction that there is a God above him, a soul within him and an eternity before him. Therefore you are to develop these religious tendencies of your nature, you should turn your footsteps every Lord's Day to the church and worship God in the beauty of holiness. Of course you will be found this morning at the church of your choice.

Our Bible school begins at 9:45 a. m. with Harold H. Griffith, superintendent.

The pastor at 11:00 a. m. will have for his sermon theme: "Giving God A Chance." Mrs. Rider will sing and the choir will render special music. The Intermediate Endeavor Society meets at 6:00 p. m. The Senior Endeavors at 7:00 p. m.

Coast Gets After Reckless Drivers

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 6—California has decided to take drastic action to make motoring safe and pleasurable, by its passage of perhaps the most revolutionary set of auto laws in the country.

These are called the Breed laws, after the legislator who initiated them, and cover practically everything in motoring from speeding up the slow driver to preparing the way for compulsory auto liability insurance.

Under these laws, the speedy driver gets more sanction of the authorities than does the "slow-poke." It is the reckless, drunken and inefficient driver that is under ban of the new laws.

According to the Breed auto code, the legal speed limit is increased from 35 to 40 miles an hour on the highways, while penalties for drunken and reckless drivers are made swifter and harsher.

By adding another cent tax on gasoline, making the rate three cents a gallon, the state expects to apply the additional revenue of $10,000,000 yearly to the construction and maintenance of perhaps the finest highway system in America.

The new law requires drivers to pass state examinations and denies licenses to the phyically and mentally unfit.

By using 5 per cent of the gas tax the money from a $10,000,000 bond issue, the state will start eliminating grade crossings.

Besides this positive action, the authorities are paving the way to compulsory insurance by naming a commission to study this problem. Discussions alo concern the slow driver, especially in connection with the problem of creating two-speed highways to take care of such motorists.

So Now Germaine Is Ready For An Assault On Society At Biarritz

Above is the velvet hat with "deliciously casual folds" that caught Germaine's eye. At the left is the shell pink chiffon dress, "quite disarmingly lovely."

PARIS, Aug. 5.—Dear Cousin: I want to tell you about by latest temptations. I hope you will agree with me that my yielding to them was justified. First, my new hat.

It is exactly like a felt in shape and treatment, just as soft and just as careless, with a brim that is down in front and up at the sides and back, but it is made of the most soft and pliable velvet. In front is a rhinestone ornament that I like very much and the crown takes deliciously casual folds. It exactly matches the beige in a blue and beige checked taffeta coat I have.

Innocent Chiffon

Then it occurred to me that for Biarritz I had not enough chiffon dancefrocks.No one else seemed to have noticed it, but I did.

It was just at the most acute moment of realization that I stumbled upon a shell pink chiffon dress, as simple as human hands could make it—but quite disarmingly lovely. The blouse is sleeveless, with an easy round neck line. The skirt is very full and scalloped, and trimmed in each scallop with a ring of shirred chiffon.

Nothing could sound less calculated to excite the emotion, but the combination of innocent pink and artless simplicity produce a most devastating loveliness. I figured that with a few pearls about my neck I would be quite an interesting person—to myself, at least.

Aunt Louise recently has gone in for a little heavy purchasing, and I must say she has bought well. You should see her in a very simple Paton frock of white satin, with a coat of cerise colored velvet—this transparent velvet that is no heavier than chiffon. I have said so much about the coat that she is about to get one for me in green, which would be a welcome addition to my wardrobe.

She also has a perfectly ravishing black gown from Louiseboulanger with panels of white ostrich feathers that trail off into space. To accompany this is a wrap of black velvet, also of the very soft transparent variety, which is quite ample with a bow on the shoulder that is positively inspired.

Agnes is making some very interesting sport hats of two shades of gros grain ribbon that are very much liked here. In black and white they are particularly stunning, though the model that I wanted was in copper and beige. It would have been divine on an auburn-haired woman.

Have you seen the marvelous new sport shoes of natural-colored linen or white pique? And have you seen the slippers of printed silk? Each has lured me away from my conservative taste in footwear.

Yellow-black Idea

You know how easily I fall for a really lovely tailleur? Well, imagine how bowled over I was by a delightful model of black marocain with a belted jacket cut with a surplice opening, and a chic little blouse of yellow crepe. Tals winter I shall play with that dead black and brilliant yellow idea. Its a good one, I know.

We leave next week for Biarritz, and I shall tell you all. Lovingly, GERMAINE.

Lovely Parties Feature Efforts Of Lubbock Society To Entertain Visitors Within The City's Gates

There have been many lovely parties given this week for visitors in the city. One of the prettiest was given last Thursday when Miss Lucille Jordan entertained at bridge complimenting Mrs. Lipscomb LeGory, of Houston. A color scheme of pink and green was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. Mrs. Marcus Helber, revent bride was the receipient of a surprise shower one day this past week, when several friends called on her at her home, 1201 17th street, bringing many lovely gifts.

Miss Marjorie Mitchell was named honoree at two parties given this week by Miss Mildred Harris and Miss Inez Jenkins. Miss Mitchell left Friday to make her home in Arlington. She is a graduate this past spring of the local high school and prominent in church and social circles.

Reception Is Surprise

One of the surprises of the week came at a reception given at the home of Mrs. W. A. Bowen, 1911 Broadway, when Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. R. W. Heim, and Mrs J. F. Hankins entertained in honor of Miss Beulah Dixon, whose approaching marriage to M. L. Shepherd was announced. On Thursday Mrs. R. J. Murray, 2215 Mainn, entertained for Miss Dixon. A color scheme of pink and green was carried out. The bride-elect was given many pretty gifts at this party. On Friday night the Business Women's club gave Miss Dixon a shower at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Emmett Burford.

Hardly a day has passed this week without bringing joy to children's hearts in the form of swimming parties, chiefly in celebration of birthdays among the youngsters. Bearing their gifts, the little folks have gathered for merry times, after which they have been passed sweets.

Miss Virginia Smallwood has hostess to friends this week when she gave a swimming party at Tumble N honoring Miss Evelyn Rutherford, of Cisco.

The revival services in progress in Lubbock have brought about a decided lull in social functions. Needle work clubs and other organizations have decided to disband for the month of August.

He Knows Better Now

BALTIMORE—The mystery of the missing "X's" at last has been solved by the traffic policeman who lost them. For months the officer has tried to find out what happened to the little chalk marks he placed on tires of parked automobiles to show which overstayed the time limit. He regularly found cars of the same model at the curb minus the marks. The officer recently stopped to watch a freelance motor duster. The duster was very zealous. He rubbed off the little "X's." He was fined $10.

Over Gaps

The word of Governor John W. Martin of Florida is given that the highways over the Florida keys to Key West will be completed with the construction of two bridges over the deep water gaps between Lower Matecumbe Island and No Name Key. This "Overseas Highway" is 80 per cent completed, and ferries now take the place of the future bridges. The bridges will cost between eight and ten million dollars.

NEW OIL PLANT IS NEARLY FINISHED

CONTINENTAL TO SERVE ALL WEST TEXAS FROM NEW STATION HERE

With the object in view of serving the greater part of West Texas proper from a wholesale standpoint, the Continental Oil company is nowputting the finishing touches on one of the most modern wholesale oil and gas plants in the state just east of the railroad tracks here, A. E. Herring, district representative of the firm said Saturday.

The plant, biult of brick and concrete, is practically fireproof, the main building being 40 by 80 feet, and containing a basement larger than the floor space for storage purposes. Two smaller buildings, of the same nature of construction as the main building, serve as garage and engine pump house, and in the basement under the loading wharf is pumping equipment for oil, each grade of which has a separate outlet and tank.

The red brick, skirted with a green trimming, presents a pretty combination. Sufficient space has been set aside in the yards for nearly a dozen giant storage tanks, mounted on concrete pilasters.

The plant is being constructed at a total cost of approximately $50,000, and will serve Continental retail andd wholesale trade all over this part of the state, including Amarillo and Sweetwater, Mr. Herring said. The plant was located here by the company in preference to Amarillo due to better location for the territory to be served.

SOUTH AMERICA'S "BIBLE BELT", IS OPINION OF EVANGELIST BREWER; HE GIVES IDEAS ON EVOLUTION THEORY

Interest in religion is more evident in the South than in any other part of the United States, is the belief of Elder G. C. Brewer, nationally known evangelist who is conducting a revival at the Church of Christ.

Southerners are more expressive of feeling, sympathy, understanding, and love. Not yet generally affected by bolshevism, propaganda, and atheism, the South is more susceptible to the Gospel. H. L. Mencken calls the South "the Bible belt of America," Mr. Brewer reminded.

A graduate of David Lipscomb Bible College, Nashville, Tenn., and the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, Mr. Brewer is considered one of the nation's greatest bible scholars. Completing his studies in the Bible schools, he attended Vanderbilt University and the Peabody Institute.

In Many Pulpits

He has done ministerial work for the Churches of Christ in Chattanooga, Tenn., Columbia, Tenn., Cleburne, Austin and Sherman. Although he has spent most of his 21 years of preaching in evangelistic service, Elder Brewer has held revivals in New York City, Chicago, Detroit, Washington, D. C., Memphis, Nashville, Birmingham, Montgomery, Jacksonville, Fla., and many other American cities, as well as some cities in Canada.

In September Mr. Brewer will conduct a cooperative meeting of all Church of Christ in Fort Worth in the Baptist church building where J. Frank Norris is pastor.

He Is Simple, Direct

Mr. Brewer is unostentatious. He presents his sermons in a simple, direct and forceful manner, void of personal ambitions. He figuratively speaks behind a curtain on which he pictures his Gospel messages.

His sermons never require more than 35 or 40 minutes time. A rapid talker, with a splendid articulation, Mr. Brewer holds the interest of his listeners and proves that the Bible is a book which concerns every individual.

Mr. Brewer is not the proverbial "fighting parson," although opponents of the theory of evolution have at numerous times chosen him for discussions with evolutionists. For many months he lectured on the platform, and debated with nationally known figures on "Evolution." Charles Frances Potter, of New York City, and Charles Smith, president of the 4-A Society of New York City, have been opponents of Mr. Brewer on the question which has aroused the thought of a nation.

Is Loath To Discuss It

In his revival meetings, he never discusses the subject of "Evolution" unless urged by the people.

Asked if he recognized the scientific value of the discussion of evolution, he replied: "Our trouble does not come from scientists, but from propagandists who are using evolution as a means to overthrow our national traditions, as well as our faith in the Bible and our established institutions.

"They try to get people to place so much faith in the natural that they will leave no room whatever for belief in the supernatural.

"Will Continue To Grow"

"Evolution will continue to grow in the minds of people because the evolutionists have the advantage of their opponents in that they work on the mind while it is in its formative period. Laws and restrictions will not prevent the teaching of the theory of evolution; there are too many ways to evade the laws.

"The evolutionist is averse to discuss methods or causes of evolution. He wishes to teach the theory without being put to the test. He starts on the assumption that his theory is true and then presents plausible arguments about some things that exist.

"The evolutionist cannot account for five things.

"He cannot account for the origin of the earth.

"He cannot account for the origin of life.

"He cannot account for the origin of species.

"He cannot account for the origin of mind.

"He cannot account for the origin and development of organs of locomotion, or any other members of the body.

"The evolutionist has repudiated the theory that acquired characteristics are transmitted."

Elder Brewer will close the revival meeting at the Church of Christ with his sermon Sunday evening, August 14.

Frigidaire Gets Big Gotham Order

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Frigidaire Corporation of Dayton, Ohio, a division of General Motors, has been awarded the largest apartment house order for electric refrigerators ever placed in New York City. This order has been awarded to Frididaire by J. A. Olson, president of the Fred F. French company for 461 installations to be made in the first unit of Tudor City, the apartment house development between 40th and 44th Street, three blocks east of Grand Central Terminal, now nearing completion.

Architects for the construction division of the Fred F. French company and Frigidaire engineers cooperated in working out a special installation for these apartments. This special installation will be added to the Frigidaire line in order that apartment dwellers in other cities may profit by the advanced ideas it represents, according to Winston Paul, president of the Domestic Electric Co., Inc., the Frigidaire distributors for New York.

HUPP ADDS NEW ENGINE FEATURE

HYPER-EXPANSION SAID MOST REVOLUTIONARY STRIDE EVER TAKEN IN AUTOS

Hupmobile's amazing success with hyper-expansion in its eight cylinder engine has resulted in that principle being made one of the outstanding improvements in its new series Six among betterments extending over several months. Cars incorporating this latest improvement both the Hupmobile Six and Eight, are now on display throughout the country.

The principle of hyper-expansion has been one of the basic features of the Hupmobile Eight ever since this car was introduced more than two years ago. Its inclusion as a standard engineering feature in that car has given it a 16.7 per cent greater fuel expansion than that of previous highest efficiency motor car engines, says Frank E. Watts, Hupmobile chief engineer. The experimental tests revealed that a like super-efficiency has been built into the new series six.

Is New Step

"For the first time in the history of the automobile, an engine has been perfected to utilize the greater possibilities of modern fuel by means of greater expansion as the fuel is exploded in the cylinders," Mr. Watts says. "It is the application of a principle comparable to that which gives the locomotive its gigantic rush of power through super-heated steam. It has liberated hitherto unavailable power and smoothness—long sought after by every automotive engineer. It is part and parcel of the performance of every Hupmobile engine.

"Imagine the difference between the earlier trains and the pride of the transcontinental roads today and you have a vivid suggestion of the contribution which these Hupmobile engineers have made to finer performance, greater power, faster acceleration and greater smoothness.

"Striving for this greater efficiency, these engineers have made an amazing advance—probably the most revolutionary single stride in motor car engine design in the last several years.

"Hyper-expansion goes to the very foot of engineering problems and achieves results far beyond those feasible with the average engine, even of today. It means more power, more speed, faster pick-up and greater smoothness from every drop of gasoline, from low grade to high. It means greater economy of operation—and economy never before enjoyed by any smooth performing six or eight cylinder car."

NEW DODGE SETS NEW STANDARDS

PERFORMANCE AND BEAUTY MARK NEW SEDAN AND PUBLIC APPROVES

New standards of performance and beauty are to be found in Dodge Brothers latest sedan, introduced July 17 as the first body type in an entirely new line of four cylinder cars. In presenting this sedan Dodge Brothers have come to the fore with a car so new and so advanced in engineering features that it has been accorded a most enthusiastic reception by the public. Orders for approximately $3,250,000 of the sedan were received within two days after it was introduced and since that time business has been so great that production has been increased.

The new car is advertised as the fastest four in America, giving mile-a-minute performance with surprising ease and smoothness and acceleration from 0 to 25 miles per hour in less than 7 seconds through gears. So great is the power of its engine in relation to the weight of the car that it is never forced to labor and is, therefore, free from the roughness and pounding that results from strain.

Ball Bearing Added

Steering and parking ease have been accomplished by placing ball bearings in the steering spindles as well as in the steering gear itself. The car will make a full turn in a 38-foot street.

Springs on the new car are exceptionally long, constituting over 85 per cent of the total wheel base. This gives it the longest spring base of any car selling for $1,000 or less.

The body construction is not only remarkable for its rounded beauty but for its high quality and strength. It is the one car selling for less than $1,000 which has a full metal roof rail and belt moulding integral with the body.

In the de luxe sedan long lines, blended curves, perfect proportions and smart coloring combine to create an impression of beauty such as few light cars ever achieve.

Interior Is Beautiful

The interior is done in expensive mohair, with roller curtains, head linings and carpet to match. The windows are of the latest French style, glazed with genuine plate glass, and such fixtures as dome light, door handles, window regulators and robe rail are heavily nickel-plated. The unique instrument board features a 75-mile speedometer and is finished in the new "crinkle" effect.

In line and proportion the standard sedan duplicates the de luxe sedan, differing only in coloring and equipment. It is designed for an all-purpose car of great utility—fleet, staunch, durable, beautiful.

It is finished in durable lacquer, the rich colors being permanent in all climates. The interior is upholstered in leather and is proof against wear for several seasons of hard use.

Crawford Gets Chevrolet Post

J. M. CRAWFORD
Assistant Chief Engineer Chevrolet Motor Company

O. E. Hunt, vice president in charge of engineering of the Chevrolet Motor company, has announced the appointment of J. M. Crawford, for 21 years an automotive engineer, to the newly created position of assistant chief engineer of the Chevrolet Motor company. Mr. Crawford assumed his new duties the latter part of July.

Prior to joining the Chevrolet organization, Mr. Crawford was for six years chief engineer for a well-known builder of medium-priced cars. His new position with Chevrolet, the largest manufacturer of gear shift cars in the world, is regarded in automotive circles as a distinct and well-merited promotion growing out of his extensive, practical knowledge of motor car building.

Grown Up With Industry

He entered this field in 1906 and has literally grown up with the industry, serving with various automobile manufacturers, chief of which was the old Chalmers Motor company, from that date to the present time.

Mr. Crawford was born and reared at Indianapolis, Ind. Upon his appointment as Mr. Hunt's assistant he moved to Detroit, Mich., where his headquarters are located in the main office of the Chevrolet Motor company in the General Motors building.

During the recent visit of the Duke of York to New Zealand, the Maoris presented him with 18 carved canes.

It's Harold Bell Wright and His Desert Boat

Before Harold Bell Wright entered the ministry and began writing novels he was a carpenter. Being also a fisherman and having his estate near Tucson, Ariz., a long way from the water, Wright designed and built the water flivver shown above. He uses an outboard motor when chasing the finnies, and he chases them all over. He hauls the boat behind his car wherever he goes, and thus is ready to go fishing on short notice. He first launched the boat in the Gulf of California.

Hardy Lad Issues Thanks For Jaunt

In appreciation of his recent trip to College Station, where he went as a member of the 4-H club of the Hardy community, Ovalo Barnard has written a letter to the Avalanche-Journal asking that his thanks be broadcast. The following is the letter:

"Dear Sirs:

"I wish to thank the Chamber of Commerce and my home community for making it possible for me to make the very pleasant and beneficial trip to the Farmers Short Course held at the Texas A. & M. College this year.

"It was a very pleasant and agreeable trip and I believe that a similar trip to A. & M. will answer the question of a vocation for many 4-H Club members of our state.

"I can truthfully say that I enjoyed my stay at College Station, and I am sure that I have derived from my course there some very interesting and beneficial points in the planting and growing of pure seed, as well as in the feeding and producing of pure breed livestock.

"I hope to see and accompany a large number of representatives from our county at the Short Course in 1928.

"I wish again to thank the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and also my home community, Hardy, for the wonderful aid they have given to me in making this trip.

Yours truly,
Ovalo Barnard,

USING OUR FACILITIES

Texas is a big state. It is a whopper—nothing in the world to equal it in size. No other state in the union has the diversity of climate, soil and people that this great state has. There is no other state that will grow crops that are grown in the frigid an dthe torrid zones. Still Texas is not independent. Texas has to depend on Florida and on the states east and west for the stuff they use. Hogs, and sheep wool, and grain, cotton and garden produce, eggs and poultry when the state of Texas could grow enough of all of these to feed all of the people in three or four states in the union, and have plenty left for home consumption.

These are facts folks, and Texas should wake up, and turn the trains around, and ship stuff out of the state rather than shipping it in. Texas does lead in some things. We quote from the San Antonio Express the following:

Government figures lately published showed Texas again leading all the States in wool-output—a distinction which applies to mohair, as well. The latter industry has grown swiftly during the past few seasons, achieving notable progress in both quantity and quality of yield. Last year, Texas breeders clipped nine million dollars. That represented about one-third of the world's total production. The Edwards Plateau has developed into one of the foremost mohair regions—a strong competitor to Anatolia and Rhodesia. A few years ago American manufacturers imported from those lands raw material for their finest fabrics; now they find that the Texas mohair measures up to their requirements in quality. The foresight of a few enterprising breeedrs who introduced into their flocks the best blood of both Asia Minor and South Africa brought about that happy situation. West Texas' climate and rugged, but ideally adapted range conditions helped toward the result. These facts invest with unusual significance the annual convention of the Texas Angora Goat Raisers Association, in Uvalde. That organization, through its encouragement of pure-bred flocks, has contributed vastly to the industry's present status. Business and entertainment are well intermixed in the three-day convention program. The rodeo perpetuates the spirit of the old West, which the resolution o fthe industry by the importation of aristocratic breeds has not banished. The auction sales are not the least important feature, for in this manner the finer strains of animals are distributed. At the sheep and goat raisers' convention in Kerrville lately, one Angora sire sold for more than a thousand dollars—a record which probably will be matched in Uvalde. The purchaser instantly acquired a higher standing in his community and in the industry. Many a person thinks of mohair as merely the familiar material of men's summer clothing, but it is utilized by upholsterers, drapers, shoe and stocking-manufacturers, weavers of finer woolens, and so on. As its gloss is not attained in other fabrics, its appeal to the discriminating trade is strong and continually it is being put to new uses.

Thus there is room for healthy expansion in this industry, and no better field for such growth is available than West Texas.

Texas as a whole is failing in the production of many things that she should be a leader in. It has not been many years ago that the Angoria goat business was unknown in Texas. The old straight haired fellow that had nothing but a strong scent, and produced nothing but a few pounds of rank flesh, that few people liked. But now the goat business is one of the leading industries of the southern part of the state, and not only is the flesh improved, but the hair is worth more than the animal himself, so there is a rich example of what Texas can do if the people will only get down to brass tacks and do it. The South Plains is a little more progressive than the states as a whole, but even here we are not functioing to the extent of getting out of this soil what it will produce. Lubbock buys eggs shipped into this city, and poultry, and beef, and pork, and beans and tomatoes and corn, and a thousand other things that could be produced right here in Lubbock county, and sold on the local market. We said it could, and we will take that back, only a very limited amount could be sold, and then the producer would get disgusted and go back home, turn the cows all out in the beet herd, quit gathering up the eggs, and quit feeding the hogs. Why? Because there is no system of marketing. There is no organization that will take care of the selling of the produce, and therefore the market is glutted in two or three days, and the produce is a drug on the market, and rots on the farm. With the proper organiaztion, and the proper effort, there could be built up an organiaztion that would take care of it all. There would be buyers come here and take the produce—all of it or certain grades of it at least and this could be made the richest part of the Southwest. We see no use in monkeying around about this, but why not get on the job, and create or connect up with some of the best organiazations of marketing and get together on a proposition that will mean something more than a name. Farmers can be getting fifty cents a dozen for eggs the year round and forty or forty-five cents a pound for cream every buying day in the year, if the producers will work together. Co-operation is what we need. It is a hard word that has been worn thread bare through misuse, but this is one place that it will work, and it will amount to something. Why not wake up now, and be in the harness for the fall production.

SINCERE AND HUMANE

What the liberal censors of our President (that noxious brood) are missing when they can find it in their hearts to term him insincere or even note a tendency for smug self-assuredness which seems fictional," is just this: He is the prophet o. an age and country that is, on the whole, distrustful of change and glad to be static. It has not arrived at equipaise without the unhindered perpetuation of monstrous economic injustices, without an exploitation of natural resources for private ends that dismays the thinker who thinks on the catastrophic scale. But Mr. Coolidg does not think this way, and who shall say he is wrong? Nearer than the swol len fortunes, the big combines that make good and bad financial weather at thei will, his eye perceives certain homely accessible landmarks, the snug country or suburban home, the comfort, the general seemliness of the American life that ha attained to even relative security. And this mental vision refuses to be distracted from them. They are the text of all his "preachments." George Gissing, at about his age, confessed that he stood "aghast" at the significance of money in the world. Mr. Coolidge is not aghast, but he is very much convinced. "Here," he tells us today, and often as it refutes them, "industry can find employment, thrift can amass a competency, and square dealing is assured of justice." "I wish to favor the policy of economy,' he told us in days before his voice carried the weight it has secured today, "not because I wish to save money, but because I wish to save people . . . Every dollar that we carelessly waste means that their life will be so much the more meagre. Every dollar that we prudently save means that their life will be so much the more abundant." This may not be as William Allen White enthusiastically believes, "the language of a sincere and humane man. It has at least the childlike gravity and reverence which are possessed by all religions held in the heart.

The legislature cannot dish out just any old thing and make the voters of this state swallow it. There has to be an analysis on the bottle of what the prescrip tion contains and it must be legibly written too if it is to go over. The recent Amendments were defeated principally because the average citizen did not know what it was all about. We will add that the average did not know. In fact some of the real smart fellows did not know. The propositions were scrambled, and too much hash for the most of us. The Texas legislature is going to have to put up better menus if they get it over with the Texas crowd anymore.

The trouble with most of the farmers, or many of them at least is that they will stand right up by the side of a man who lives in th ecity at the grocery store and order almost the same bill of goods, potatoes, tomatoes, canned corn, beans, syrup, etc. Every article mentioned could be and should be produced on every farm in Lubbock county. That's facts, fellows, and that is the reason that so many of the farmers are in bad straits right now.

The people of Lubbock planted a great many trees last fall. They are looking good this year. Some of them have gotten a wonderful start, and they will be great big shade trees in a few years. Nothing makes a place look more comfortable tha nnice shady lawns and it is possible at every home in Lubbock.

The cow, the sow and the hen, are three things that will add to the bank account, and will cut down the grocery bill. That is what makes the community prosper.

SO THINK WE

We think that most homes are now cleaner and more attractive with meals better planned and the household better ordered than at any earlier period.

—o—

We think that at no time in the world's history have the resources of nature been so nearly at our disposal.

—o—

We think that commercialized entertainment secures profits through paid admissions or some other form of income.

—o—

We think that children should receive their first lessons in respect for authority from their parents.

—o—

We think that too many people have not sense enough to use what sense they have.

—o—

We think that to tell John McGraw how to win ball games is about as useless as telling grandmother how to darn socks.

—o—

We think that many a man sits around all day wondering why he does not get his pay raised when that is the reason.

—o—

We think that undying love is that which has to be renoved every few days.

—o—

We think that a lot of ideas, like fire, are alleged to be on incendiary origin.

—o—

We think that the real estate transfers and building permits litsts published daily in the Avalanche is rather dull reading for the pessimists.

—o—

We think that it is rather apparent that we are not willing to increase the pay of our legislatures. In the recent voting of proposed amendments the vote was about five to one against the issues proposed.

—o—

We think that you will never have any trouble in recognizing a typical American for he is asking somebody for a match.

—o—

We think that Abilene and the West Texas fair will have one of the best drawing cards of any fair in the state this year in having Col. Lindbergh as their honored guest on the opening day.

—o—

We think that the fellow who makes the loudest jingle in the collection plate is not always the most religious.

—o—

We think that Gov. Fuller showed real Americanism in making his decision in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Even though he was faced with a thousand threats the Massachusetts governor ruled on the matter as he thought best.

—o—

We think that the I. W. W. and their fellow organizations will likely experience some great difficulty in tieing up the New York ports.

—o—

We think that self-interest has shattered many a man's lofty ideals.

—o—

We think that every city man looks forward to the time when he will have his own garden and raise his own chickens.

—o—

We think that the possibilities of the republican re-election is somewhat shattered with Cal's desire not to become a candidate for re-election.

—o—

We think that the quality of corn whiskey can never be judged from the quality of corn farmers raise.

—o—

We think that probably the most difficult intelligence test is to be a popular hero.

—o—

We think that it is a terrible thing to be a neighbor's child for they never will amount to anything.

—o—

We think that plenty of republican candidates will pop up before the national convention since Cal expresses his desire to retire from re-nomination.

—o—

We think that if it keeps on the parting of American planes will become another one of Europe's troubles.

—o—

We think that Lubbock people are being entertained with two great evangelists and the local church workers are working in harmony with the campaigners.

YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

It has been realized from the very start that the leafy vegetables contain large amounts of vitamin. Unfortunately the methods of study have not been such as to permit very accurate determination of the amounts of vitamin in any single specimen or as to the relative values of various portions of plants for this purpase.

Investigators in the division of home economics of Michigan State College have recently been studying the relative vitamin A content of head lettuce, as compared with leaf lettuce, and of the leaves of lettuce from the inside as compared with the outside of the head, and of leaf lettuce as grown in hothouses with that grown out of doors. As is usual with experiments of this type, animals were fed on diets containing large amounts of the various types of lettuce that were being investigated and their growth was studied in this relationship.

It was found that the leaf lettuce is better for the promotion of growth in rats that had been fed on a diet deficient in vitamin A than was the head lettuce. Furthermore, the outside green leaves of the head lettuce were far superior to the inside yellow leaves in furnishing vitamin A. In-door leaf lettuce proved to be as beneficial as out-door leaf lettuce in producing growth.

The evidence seemed to indicate that the chlorophyl, or green coloring matter of the plant, had some definite relationship to the vitamin A that was present. However, this was not especially proved.

Of course, the relationship of the sunlight to the growing plant is also involved in this consideration. It is not possible to know how much sunlight penetrates from outside of the head of lettuce to the inner regions, nor it is possible to know the amount of vitamin in the leaves at various times in the course of the growth. Certainty, however, it is important to know that these factors do play a part and that all kinds of lettuce are not equally efficient in their content of the growth-producing factor known as vitamin A.

A SHORT SERMON

Doing the Best We Know

Someone defined man as a "thinking animal." It is often a question as to how well we think, and how far our thinking affects our actions. A farm paper agent was trying to sell a year's subscription to a farmer. He made his chief talk upon the idea that the added knowledge contained in the paper would make the prospect a better farmer. The farmer looked him straight in the eye, and said, "Gosh, stranger, I don't farm as good as I know how to, now." That honest answer ought to be written above every home in the world. Not one of us does as well as he knows. Most of us dim our light by not living up to it. We do better by knowing better, and we know better by doing better. There is just one way to know anything, which is—by doing it. We have the value of the thoughts that we do not act upon. We triumph by trying. Progress is largely a matter of prowese, and prowess comes by practice. In our work, how poorly we use the knowledge that is at our hand. I know communities where there has been no change of community life for twenty-five years, simply because the people there will not try anything new. Unused muscles soften, untried problems remain unsolved, unsaid prayers never whiten the soul. We know, for instance, that kindness is the only law in dealing with others. Yet, we allow ourselves to grow harsh, and unkind to those nearest to our hearts. Not many homes would be broken up if people did as well as they know. I have talked with men in prisons, and many have told me this, "If I had only done what I knew to be right!" There's the rub. The body wants one thing, and the soul desires another. Blessed is the man who compels his body to obey his soul. Last week I saw an entertainer doing stunts with three derby hats. It was fascinating to see how he could perform with the three hats at once. His dexterity, I was told, was the result of being willing to practice three hours a day for twelve years. If one is willing to take that much trouble with a hat, how much should people give attention to what grows under a hat. Religion has been confused with belief, and creeds have often been substituted for deeds. Jesus' religion was a religion dealing with the practical realities of life. He said in substance, "Whoever will do my will shall know of the doctrines." I do not undervalue creeds as standards of accepted truth. They have their place. The thing I am saying is that all the Christianity there is in the world at present, is the amount that is being practiced. A boy was asked about his father's religion. He replied "Pa always gets warmed up in the winter and cools off in the summer." In other words, that which we do not practice we cease to possess. Doing better will make a man a go-getter. Praying ought to make a man better at praying. Well did the Master say "Not everyone that saith, Lord, Lord, shall enter intb the Kingdom, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."

Former Rebel Boomed In Washington For Nicaraguan Presidency

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two dispatches dealing with the existing Nicaraguan situation, to which attention has reverted with fighting between U. S. marine and the rebel band under General Sandino.

* * *

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The presidency of Nicaragua, which has caused the American government so much concern and expense in the last year, may next be voted to none other than General Jose M. Moncada, who threw up the sponge as commander of the Liberal army when he was threatened with the power of the United States marines.

The Moncadistas say that Moncada is the most popular man in Nicaragua today, and what is more important, that his election would have the consent if not the blessing of the American Department of State.

Moncada a Hero

Word of Moncada's popularity is emphasized by Evarista Caraso-Morales, the 25-year-old grandson of a Nicaraguan president who served as secretary to President Sacasa while Sacasa was in Washington and to T. S. Vaca, who fought Sacasa's battles here for him during the winter and spring. On his recent return to Nicaragua upon the death of his mother, Caraso Morales, was asked to represent Moncada in this country.

"Moncada became a national hero when he crossed the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, bringing his army through the jungle," explained Morales, who has just returned to a Washington university to complete graduate studies. "His soldiers stood in water up to their waists and formed a human bridge for rifles and munitions kept dry by passing them from one set of raised arms to another. He had to make several speeches a day to keep up the spirit of these men. His troops were not conscripts, as has been said in the United States. Most of them had come from conservative territory to find him and sometimes he had to send men home for lack of arms.

Had Diaz Trapped

"Finally Moncada managed to surround the Diaz commander at Bosca, and was starving him out when the end of the war was forced. The conservatives were entirely cut off from Managua except for a single telegraph wire. Moncada left that open because he had it tapped! When the conservative general reported to Diaz that he was in sore need of ammunition and food Moncada knew his straits. When Diaz sent the ammunition and supplies, Moncada's men were on hand to capture them en-route—that was the way Moncada kept armed.

"Moncada preferred to starve the enemy into submission rather than inflict great loss of life. But the marines took up a strategic position between Bosca and the capital, so that Moncada could not seize the capital as he planned to do."

When Moncada, having given up the fight, came into the conservative stronghold of Granada—Cazazo's home city—the conservative newspapers admitted and applauded the fact that he received the greatest reception Granada ever gave a human being.

"If we were to have a free election today, Moncada could not help but win," says Caraso-Morales. "Conditions may change in the next year, but the marines are more likely to keep the country in a status quo."

It is the prime secret of the Open Road that you are to pass nothing, reject nothing, despise nothing upon this earth. As you travel, many things both great and small will come to your attention: you are to regard all with open eyes and a heart of simplicity. Believe that everything belongs somewhere; each thing has its fitting and luminous place within this mozaic of human life. The Road is not open to those who withdraw the skirts of intolerance or lift the chin of pride. Rejecting the least of those who are called common or unclean, it is (curiously) you yourself that you reject.

If you despise that which is ugly you do not know that which is beautiful.—David Grayson.

Today's Poems

NATURE POEMS

This morn I wrote a poem: a verse
Vibrant with force of word:
Of cities, sprawled on fertile plain,
Man-made with belted wheels of trade;
And called it good.

This evening, walking toward the West,
I read a poem not writ with hands:
But traced with splash of purple fire
Whipped by the sinking sun's gold hands,
Released for night.

Enthralled, I looked for more of God's own verse,
And found it everywhere:
In trees, and birds, in flowers fair:
In mountains, stars, and earths—
Poignant with power.

No need has God of type or pen:
His brush, dipped deep in living ink,
The poem of nature writes for men
With eyes, and soul, and sense of kind,
And power to understand.
—Richard Cavett.

HE HOLDS MY HAND
By Lieut. James Parton

He holds my hand, in every trial and care;
He holds my hand, when no one else is near.
When all have fled, and I am left alone,
Oh, strengthening thought, He sits upon the throne!

He holds my hand, He will not let me go;
He holds my hand, because he loves me so.
Through every storm when waves are tossing high,
Oh, sweetest thought, that Jesus then is nigh!

He holds my hand, what therefore shall I fear?
He holds my hand, when all about is drear,
When clouds of darkness veil His face from me,
Oh, wond'rous thought, put my trust in thee.

O, wondrous thought, that Thou art ever nigh,
When tempest sweeps, and waves are dashing high,
One thought of Thee, doth calm my troubled breast,
One glimpse of Thee, speaks calm, and peace and rest.

LAUGHS

"DEAR OLD SCHOOL DAYS"

In the second grade the teacher saw a little boy pass a note to a little girl across the aisle. On opening it she read, "dear kathi will you be my bow, I had one a onct but she wanted everything I saw. Georgie."

THE WAY IT HAPPENED

A little girl was teaching her dolls a Sunday school lesson. "Children," she said, "you know God made Adam and he was lonely so God put him to sleep and took out his brains and made a fine lady."

THE KITTEN DIDN'T THINK SO

Dorothy persisted in carrying her kitten by its tail, in spite of very vigorous protests on the part of her pet. Her father remonstrated with her and finally exacted a promise that she would be more considerate of her kitten's feelings. Dorothy seemed very deeply impressed with her father's words, and after a short deliberation queried timidly, "But, papa, isn't that kitty's handle?"

A PARTICULAR JOB

It was the first time the two negroes had met since the war, and they were comparing their recent experiences.

"Mose," announced Rastus, "Ah got a good job now."

"Yo' got a good job?"

"P'fessor of pathology."

"But yo' kain't read or write."

"Seems yo' don' know what a p'fessor of pathology is. P'feaser of pathology is de p'fessor what shows people how to go in an' out of de college grounds."

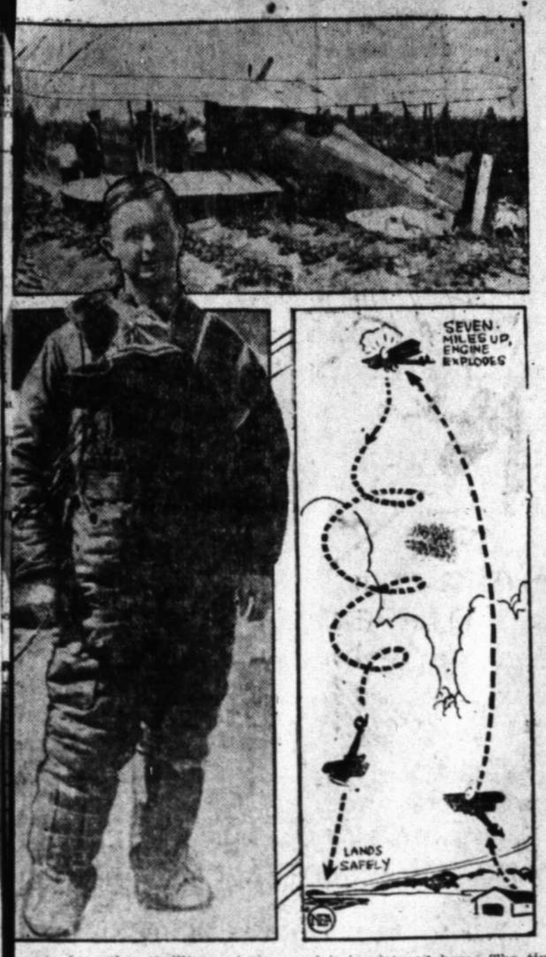

Teacher: "Why was Solomon the wisest man in the world?"

Boy: "Because he had so many wives to advise him."

Teacher (a strong-minded female): "That's not the answer in the book but you may go to the head of the class."

Navy Airman Wins Death Gamble

end of another thrilling aviation exploit is pictured here. The tiny 54 Apache biplane shown above, resting in a cabbage patch near shington, was landed safely there by Lieut. C. C. Champion, U. S. y flyer, after ffames and an exploding motor had imperiled his life n altitude of seven miles. At the left is Champion, still encased in stuffy garb he wore as a protection against extreme cold. The sketch cts just what happened. Champion had a parachute, but refrained n jumping because he wanted to save the instruments which recorded height he had reached. Fire swept about the wrecked motor at s during Champion's descent, but he blew it out by side-slipping.

Lindy's Cousin

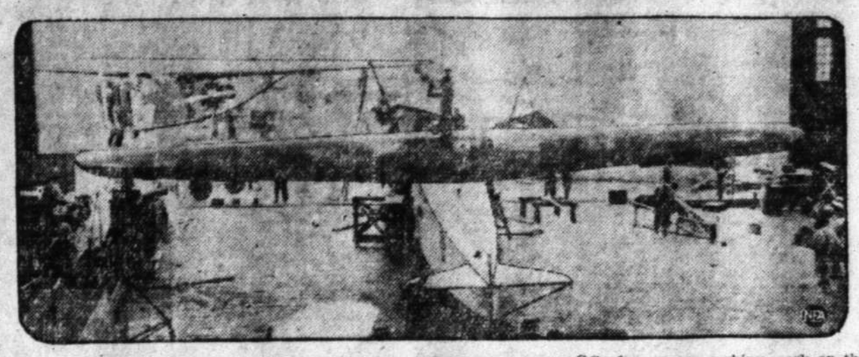

Miss Adelaide Lodge, daughter of Edwin Lodge, who is an uncle of Lindbergh's mother, has been selected to unveil a tablet on the Detroit, Mich., house in which the famous flyer was born. The ceremony will take place when Lindbergh comes to Detroit on his flying tour of the country.

This Flyer Will Be Busy Fellow

A round trip from Oakland, Calif., to Hawaii and another flight either from Los Angeles or Seattle to Tokio, Japan, are the items on Richard Grace's itinerary for August and September. Grace, who returned to Los Angeles after crashing on the island of Kauai in an attempt to fly to the United States, is shown here with his mascot dog, "Kauai Lelani" who will go along with him.

All Aboard For Rome Soon!

Craftsmen are rushing work on the Fokker plane, Old Glory, for the flight to Rome, which Lloyd Bertaud and J. D. Hill will attempt. The plane, pictured above, is being built at the plant of the Atlantic Aircraft Company, Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. It has a wing spread of 62 feet and will carry a 450 h p. Bristol-Jupiter motor.

Bud and Lena Sail

Off on an ocean honeymoon sail Mr. and Mrs. Eud Stillman from New York on the S. S. Olympic following their marriage at Grand Anse, Canada. How the former Lena Wilson's style of dress has been influenced by that of her mother-in-law, Mrs. James A. Stillman, is apparent in this picture.

Coolidges Saw Their Wedding

President and Mrs. Coolidge motored 66 miles to Newcastle, Wyo., the other day to attend the wedding of Miss Dorothy Mondell (above) and Alexander W. Gregg, chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau. The bride is the daughter if the Wyoming representative who formerly was floor leader of the House. Young Gregg recently won national note when he opposed 16 attorneys in the Ford tax suit.

U. S. Does Well In Mexican Trade

Two schools—Pomona College in southern California and the National University of Mexico at Mexico City—recently agreed to trade two students each to improve contact with the peoples of the two countries. Shown here are the two students sent by the Mexican school, Miss Guadalupe Jiminez Posados (above) and Miss Guadalupe Zuniga. In exchange Pomona sent Ralph Kuhlman of Pasadena, Calif., and Loren Hendrickson of Huntington Beach, Calif.

Eva Elopes, But Press Finds Out

It's just awfully hard to keep newspaper men off your trail these days. Take Eva Tanguay, for instance. The famous "I don't care" lady eloped from Los Angeles to La Habra, Calif., with Alexander A. Booke, known on the concert stage as Allan Parado. Newspaper men pursued them until they admitted it and posed for this picture. Booke gave his age as 30. Eva as 48. So you see persistence pays.

Three Aquatic Stars Meet

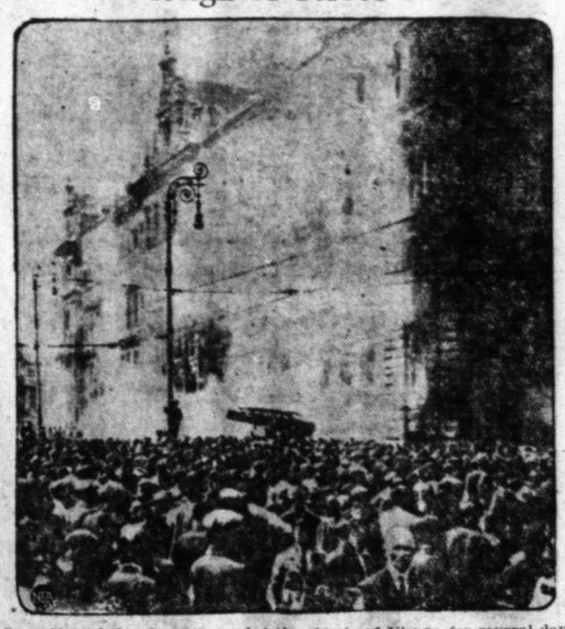

ward Keating (left), surprise winner of the recent Lake George mara-n swim, pays his respects to George Kojac (right), 150-yard national oor champion, who is going to Honolulu to represent the Boy's Club New York in the International Championship meet. William Zucker, ter, trained them both and is just a bit proud of that fact.

Marathoner

Mercedes Gleitz, who hopes to do the English Channel this season, swam a little matter of a hundred miles by way of training. She paddled from Westminster Bridge, London, to Folkestone, Kent. Here she is about to start the trial jaunt. Oh yes, she made several stops on the way.

When Mobs Gave Vienna A Grim Reign Of Terror

Some idea of the chaos that ruled the streets of Vienna for several days can be gathered from this photograph showing the burning of the Palace of Justice after it had been raided by rioters who freed suspects held in connection with a Socialist murder. Before the rioting ceased 100 persons had been killed and hundreds more injured.

Here is another front-line picture of Vienna's brief terror reign. It shows Mayor Seitz of Vienna imploring a crowd of trouble makers to disband.

Billy Evans Hurt

The life of an umpire is just one thing after another. Here's Billy Evans being carried off the field after a painful ankle injury during a Washington-Detroit game at the capital.

Artist Draws a Son-in-Law

y beautiful girls have been drawn by Howard Chandler Christy, but never drawn a son-in-law before the recent marriage of his daughNatalie, in New York. Christy is at the right, then his daughter and usband, Ira Chandler, in this picture, taken ust after the ceremony the Little Church Around the Corner.

For the Coolidge Menagerie

The Coolidges' menagerie is soon to have another member—this time a western coyote. The animal is shown here in the arms of Mrs. Ray Sanders of Rapid City, S. D., who presented it to Mrs. Coolidge.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

VERA CAMERON suddenly realizes the need to be beautiful when she sees and falls in love with a man she hears called Schuyler. Vera is secretary to JERRY MACKLYN, young advertising manager for the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co. He proposes to change her into a beauty with the aid of the company cosmetics and to use her photographs in advertising copy.

At first Vera refuses, but her need to attract Schuyler causes her to reconsider. She determines to go to Minnetonka where she knows he is going, and meet this man with whom she has so hopelessly fallen in love.

Jerry has the beauty specialist use as a model in refashioning Vera an uncaptioned Sunday supplement picture which he finds in his desk. The picture shows an astonishing lovely woman with a distinctive bob and green eyes —eyes like Vera's. After the change, Vera is so lovely her aunt FLORA CARTWRIGHT, does not recognize her at first.

Vera begs Jerry not to use her pictures in the advertising and he says he will do as she wishes if she will giv eup the trip. She refuses. He begs her again to give up the adventure, confessing that he loves her. She does not see him again until the train is about ready to leave. He gives her an envelope which she is not to open unless she "gets in thejam" When Vera gets to Minnetonka Station, she transfers to a bus. There is a couple in the bus who stare at her as if they recognize her and whisper significantly.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII

Because of the unreasoning fear which had gripped her since she had discovered her fellow-passengers in the hotel bus whispering about her and acting as if they were sure they recognized her, Vee-Vee Cameron betrayed none of the delighted surprise with which she caught her first glimpse of Lake Minnetonka and the Minnetonka Hotel. Her chin was uplifted haughtily and her green eyes were serene, even bored, as the bus swung into the circular drive which led up to the magnificent entrance.

The hotel crouched almost on the edge of the big lake. A glass-enclosed pavilion led from one wing of the building to the bathing pier, so that the guests might dress for swimming in the privacy of their own rooms. The hotel itself was like an English castle of Tudor architecture, fashioned of great, rough gray stones, its innumerable turrets and towers decorated with narrow beams of dark stained wood. Ivy almost covered the walls.

Girls and men in canoes and rowboats called to one another across the reboling water; on the tennis court two men and two girls were playing a swift game, their laughter floating invitingly toward the new arrivals.

"My home for two weeks!" Vera told herself, tingling with the thrill of adventure.

"I have a room with bath reserved for today," Vera said in the aloof voice which covered timidity, when she faced the hotel clerk across the register.

The young man smiled as he cocked his head to watch her write her name. "Miss V. V. Cameron? Yes, we have your wire, Miss Cameron. I hope you will enjoy your visit, Miss Cameron. Pretty warm in the city, isn't it? New York is all right in the spring and the fall, but give me the country in the summer time."

"Thank you. I'm sure I shall enjoy Minnetonka," Vee-Vee answered briefly.

"Show Miss Cameron to room 648, Dick," the affable clerk directed the bellboy.

Vera had turned away to follow the boy, when it occurred to her to ask the clerk the closing hours for New York-bound mail. She stepped toward the desk again, but hesitated when she saw that the young couple who had so closely observed her in the bus were at the desk, the woman leaning forward to whisper confidentially to the clerk, who was listening with amazement. When he raised his eyes, undoubtedly to stare after Vera, and saw her coming toward him again, he flushed as if he had been caught in an indiscretion.

Vee-Vee resisted a strong impulse to run away—anywhere. Instead, she raised her chin haughtily, waited until the embarrassed young couple had turned away, then put her question coolly.

"Mail leaves for New York at nine in the morning, at one in the afternoon, and at eight in the evening," the clerk informed her hastily. "And—er — Miss — er — Cameron, if you don't like your room, would prefer a suite, perhaps, I'm sure it could be arranged."

Vera wondered why he spoke so eagerly, with almost servile deference.

"Thank you. I shall let you know if I desire to change," she said coolly.

As she followed the boy down the long, richly furnished lobby toward the elevators she felt horribly conspicuous and alone. When she had tipped him and closed the door of her room, she was seized with a violent fit of trembling. She stood clutching the edge of the dressing table, staring at herself with fear-widened green eyes.

"Why are they watching me like that?" she whispered with cold lips. "Do I look like a thief or—or an imposter? And why did that clerk's manner change so toward me? Maybe it's because I look as if I were a millionaire's daughter, as Jerry said. Oh, I'm foolish to worry! Maybe this is just a gossipy sort of summer hotel where everybody speculates on everybody else and tries to find out everyone's business. Well—they wont' learn much about Miss V. V. Cameron!" she nodded to her reflection with a wicked little smile.

She lifted off her hat, hung it in the deep electrically lighted closet, and started off on a tour of inspection of her small domain—her own apartment for the next two weeks. It was not a large room, but it was so exquisitely decorated and furnished that Vera drew a deep breath of thrilled wonder. In all her repressed, unhappy, penny-pinching life she had never seen a room to compare with it. The walls were covered with a French gray tapestry wallpaper. It was a corner room, overlooking the lake. The wide, deep windows were hung with jade green taffeta, looped up to show gauze-thin gold silk inner curtains.

"Even if I don't find Schuyler it will be worth it all to live for two weeks in a hotel like this and a room like this," she told herself happily.

She was lifting her heavy suitcase to the little slatted stand to unpack it when a knock came at the door. She opened it to find a porter and a white-uniformed maid outside.

"Your trunks have come, Miss, and the housekeeper said she had orders from the office for me to help you unpack," the maid told her, bobbing her head in a quaint bow.

Vera was surprised, but the maid would never have guessed it. Was such service included in the room rates, she wondered. Or would she have to pay extra—?

The porter wheeled the trunks into the room, deposited them, upright, in the big closet, grunted his thanks for the fifty-cent tip she gave him, and left the maid to her work.

"The dining room's open for lunch now, Miss." The maid came out of the closet with her arms full of Vee-Vee new dresses. "I don't suppose you will want to change for lunch, will you, Miss? They usually don't, not when they come on the noon train. And you look lovely, Miss, if you don't mind me saying so."

Vera was wearing the suit which had been her first purchase after her transformation from a plain girl into a beauty. She had saved it for the trip, knowing that she could not find a more appropriate costume for summer traveling. She stopped only to run a comb through the sculptured, flat waves of her hair, and to flirt a powder puff over her cheeks, and to touch up her beautiful mouth with the geranium lip salve which Peach Bloom's chemist had concocted especially for her.

"Yes, Miss, you sure do look beautiful," the maid went on, in an admiring but deferential voice. "Much prettier than your pictures, if you don't mind me saying so—"

"My pictures!" Vee-Vee exclaimed, her voice sounding angry and arrogant in her surprise. "What do you mean?"

"There now! I wasn't to mention a word, Miss, seeing as how you don't want folks to know or you wouldn't be using another name—excuse me, Miss, will you? And don't breathea word of what I said to the office or the housekeeper, Miss, or I'll be fired sure!"

Vera checkled the started stream of questions that tried to force their way out of her suddenly cold lips. Whatever this mystery was, she certainly could not discuss it with a maid, who would only be getting into trouble if she did talk.

One thing was evident, she told herself, as she descended in an elevator that carried no other passenger; the young couple in the bus had mistaken her for some person of importance, had thought they recognized her from printed pictures; had confided their discovery to the hotel clerk, who had immediately accepted heir identification of her as authentic.

But—who was she supposed to be? Some movie star resting between pictures and using her real name for a change? A Broadway actress seeking peace incognito?

Then, as she was just stepping into the dining room, a flash of understanding illuminated the darkness of her bewilderment. That picture that Jerry had found in Stafford's desk! He had never shown it to her, said he did not have an idea whose picture it was —She remembered Kitty Proctor's question about the picture—"Wonder who she is?"—and Jerry's careless answer. "Oh, some imported movie star, I suppose." He and Kitty had used the pictured face as a model in refashioning Vera Cameron from a severely plain business girl into an aristocratic beauty. The pictured girl had had the same hair cut exactly; had had green eyes, the same enchanting unmatched eyebrows. She had gathered that much from Jerry's and Kitty's exelted, laughing comments.

"Who in the world am I?" Vee-Vee asked herself, helplessly, as she was being conducted to a table Was that what Jerry had warned her about in his mysterious letter —that she would be mistaken for another girl?

And then in an instant all conjecture was for the moment wiped out of her mind. For she was looking into the dark, brilliant eyes of the man of the elevator—the man with whom she had fallen in love at sight, the man who had looked through her as if she were nonexistent. She had found "Schuyler" And his eyes were looking into hers with startled, glad surprise.

It is quite bewildering, Vee-Vee finds, to be mistaken for someone else. Even Schuyler is fooled.

What has Electricity done for you?

WHEN you stop to think of what Electricity has done for you—what it has accomplished in making life more enjoyable—in increasing production industrially, its result is nothing short of miraculous.

Great scientists have harnessed this power until every home and every industry has it at its beck and call at a cost that places it within the reach of all.

The housewife in particular recognizes it as her greatest servant and the most efficient, for it has transformed household drudgery into tasks that may be accomplished easier and more efficiently, in cooking, washing, and cleaning. It has given her more time for the pleasures of life—given her more liberty from the arduous tasks of housework and aided her immensely in conserving energy.

Industry would be paralyzed if it were suddenly deprived of Electricity, for the most intricate machinery is operated by this great force, turning out more production and again doing it for less and with greater satisfaction in the results obtained.

If you are not taking advantage of every possible assistance electricity can give you, you are not getting what is rightfully yours, for it gives you far more than you put into it.

PLANS LAID FOR RURAL INSTITUTE

CANYON EDUCATIONAL SESSION IN FULL SWAY WITH BIG MAN LEADING

CANYON, Aug. 6.—Administrators from 23 counties of the Panhandle met with Conductor F. E. Savage at the West Texas State Teachers college Tuesday of this week to discuss plans for the Panhandle-Plains consolidated institute which is being held in Canyon now.

There will be a special section conducted for the benefit of teachers of rural schools. Two very strong lecturers have been obtained for this section.

Grant to Be There

Dr. G. R. Grant, president of Arkansas Polytechnic college, Russellville, Arkansas, a national character in the field of rural education, will appear before this section. Dr. Grant delivered a series of lectures at the National Teachers association at El Paso last year. The institute is very fortunate in securing his services.

The second lecturer is Dr. Albert Barnett, who is a members of the education department at the teachers college at Canyon. Dr. Barnett has recently received his Ph. D degree from George Peabody college for teachers, Nashville, Tennessee, in the field of rural education. Before coming to the teachers college he had served several years in the rural schools of Arizona. He is though by many to be one of the best rural education specialists in the south.

High School Sections

Separate sections are being maintained for all the different subjects taught in the rural high school Negotiations are being made for capable conductors for each of the sections.

President H. W. Morelock of the teachers college at Alpine, is working in the English section. Mr Morelock was formerly head of the English department at the college in Canyon, but has not worked with the Canyon institute for several years. His lecture subject will be Children's Literature.

Round table talks is conducted by the teachers themselves at times in the different sections.

An athletic directors' meeting has been arranged for the purpose of working out a schedule of all football games to be played for interscholastic league, district number one.

School administrators are finding that a special section has been provided for the consideration of their problems.

Last year 1,300 attended the institute from these 23 counties, and with the rapidly growing population of this section which necessitates the constant employment of additional teachers it is expected that a larger number will be enrolled this year.

Well Paved Roads Drawing Many Tourists To Virginia

Beautiful Historic Spots Prove Mecca For The Sightseer

(By NEA Service)

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 6.—Virginia, the land of wonderful landscapes and glorious memories, has spread out a series of ribbon roads for the motorist to enjoy.

The latest is the continuous concrete stretch of 103 miles making almost a straight line between Washington and Richmond, and taking tourists along perhaps the most historic country in the United States. Hardly is the visitor out of Washington when he strikes historic spots that have emblazoned their names in American progress.

Alexandria, and a little way off Mt. Vernon, both memorable cities that retain the earmarks of the American revolution, immediately put us into that charming atmosphere that is unique to the south. Memories of Washington, of Jefferson and many of the other early leaders of this country come up as we pass along this route through Fredericksburg, on past the "wilderness" to Ashland and on to Richmond, the capital of th confederacy.

Into Oldest America

A little run off this road to the west, and we enter the famous battle fields of Chancellorsville, the Wilderness and Spotsylvania. Over the east, on the James river is Jamestown, the first permanent English settlement in America, and a little farther over is Yorktown with its memories of the revolution.

A good road from Richmond leads to Newport News, Norfolk and Portsmouth in the far southwestern corner of the state. Another going first down to Petersburg, the center of Confederate fortifications that are still preserved, goes westward on through more interesting civil war country past Appomattox to Lynchburg and into the beautiful hills and valleys, naturn caves and streams of western Virginia.

Here me meet the famous Blue Ridge mountain of Virginia, and paralleling this range along the western border of the state is the new Shenandoah national forest—a long stretch of marvelous mountain and valley landscape.

A well surfaced highway runs almost parallel to both ranges, from Winchester in the north to Staunton, Lexington, Roanoke and Abingdon, turning the tourists into little offshoots that take them for a series of wonder trips never to be forgotten.

The hiker, the horseman, the fisherman and hunter have as much a glorious vacation in this land as has the motorist. There's wild game in the mountain forests. There's fish in the streams and there's exhilarating exercise along the many mountain trails.

For the motorist a fine scenic highway is planned to follow the range of the Appalachians in the Shenandoah national forest, overlooking the picturesque valley from heights of 3,000 to 4,000 feet. At present however, the lower road takes the motorist along the valley itself into the foothills of the mountains, where numerous caverns may thrill him.

New Market, on this western highway, is the center of this cavern region. There are the Shenandoah caverns, the Endless cavern and Luray caverns, each of which shows something different from the others. Farther south and connected to the highway by a modern road, are perhaps the most interesting caverns in America—the Grand Caverns Grottoes.

More Historic Points

Not far from here is the famous Natural Bridge, where Washington is said to have carved his name at a height unequaled by his playmates. The state highway today runs over this point.

Federal aid highways run through practically every interesting and historic section of the state, and all are well paved. There are innumerable spots along these roads where the stranger may linger to recall the romantic days of the past, and there are as many more that can be reached easily by side roads off these highways.

It would take one months to cover this state of historic shrines. The motorist would stop at all and recall the important men or events that they signify today. So thoroughly is Virginia dotted with these recollections that the fleetest traveler can not fail to be impressed by them.

Before a background of beautiful foliage, the memorial to Captain John Smith gazes out over the James river, at Jamestown, Va.

Vacations Slow Up Business, Is Claim

Local Men Approve Them, Anyway

The keynote of business efficiency is the stuff that dreams are made of. Thus speak Lubbock employers of vacations.

Wielding a powerful lever against that indefinite something known as mental balanche and the will to work are the surface inhibitions which we pick up during the year, the odds and ends of conditional plans and half formed desires to go places—things we mull over at odd moments until we get them stuck in our heads and have to go try them out before we are capable of returning to the even tenor of our ways and directing our undivided attention to our jobs.

Not exactly expressed in these kinds of words, but it is that a person once getting the vacation fever has to get it out of his system before he is capable of doing his everyday doutine in a correct manner again.

Ten Men Questioned

Ten Lubbock business men were questioned on the subject and asked, "Do you believe in vacations? Do they increase efficiency or do they merely disrupt your organization?"

To the first question all agreed. To the last question the answers were varied, roughly into three divisions.

Said John Denman of the First National bank:

"I believe in vacations for several reasons. A change is essential to all of us occasionally, especially to the office worker. It is not that a person is always benefitted by the change, frequently they return more run down and tired out than they were before they left—but they are always ready to hit the job again. Where a person takes a vacation in a proper manner it does him a world of good.

"However, aside from getting the man off his job a while so that he can if he chooses, come back with fresh energy and initiative, it gives the employer an opportunity to check the employes worth ,to guage his value by how much he is missed in the organization, by the way another person fills his place and so compare results in general. Many corporations take advantage of vacation time to do such checking."

City Manager Agrees

Said Bill Perkinson, city manager:

"Recreation is the greatest stimulus to business in the world. A man will do more work on the prospect of getting to do something which he regards as possible enjoyable play time for any other reason. Every employe is entitled to two weeks out of the year, time off. But more thought should be spent upon behavior during the vacation period than at any other time.

"The Texas Pipe Line company grants two weeks with pay vacation to all employes working for them a year's time. But they specify in that time that the employe cannot either work for another company, or work for themselves, and the employe has to make a pledge to this effect before the company lets him off.

"Many persons waste their vacations by trying to catch up with their own odds and ends of work or going on a "spree." The most careful and healthful and above all the most enjoyable recreation shou'd be indulged in at this time. The opportunities are manifold.

Logan Believes In Vacations

Commented H. E. Logan of the Texas Utilities Company:

"It fus s up your office force and disrupts things. But I believe in it still. It is not that the vacation often does them much good. They always have to come back to work until they get started. But if they don't go on a vacation once in a while they get utterly stale so you might as well send them. They get old fashioned spring fever and are not worth a thing until they get over it. They have to get it out of their systems.

"However there are always some odds and ends to every person's job that only the man on it knows how to do and the result is a lot of work stacked up for him and he does it when he gets back. But I enjoyed my vacation fine, and I'm glad I went. And over a year's time I think it is a good thing for everyone to go and a matter of business efficiency.

The merchant is probably the hardest hit person from a monetary standpoint by vacation time as each clerk has a list of personal friends and customers who come to him to be waited upon, and who cause a loss of business during the period they are away.

However, even in this case, was recognized that personal efficiency on the part of the clerk is one of the dominating influences in the store, and he is entitled to it.

...The law should be lived a little because it is felt to be just; feared a little because it is severe; hated a little because it is to a certain degree out of sympathy with the prevalent temper of the day; and respected because it is felt to be a necessity.—Emile Pourest

Sinners Are Disillusioned, He Says

By MAJOR HOOPLE McCORKLE
Avalanche-Journal Philosopher

Religion is a whole library, but it seems as though most people are satisfied with a vest-pocket edition. In fact some of them are not interested at all, and those who are want just as little as they think will get them to Heaven.

Sometimes we feel that people aren't interested in heart-felt religion as they were a few years ago, for they enter only to form and convenience. Maybe form will get 'em to Heaven and, maybe it won't. Not being a theologian we can't say, yet philosophy teaches facts as Christ taught facts, and Christ insisted that true followers would have a burning desire to do the right thing—to fear God and keep His commandments.

During the past few days Rev. W. A. (Bill) Hogg and G. C. Brewer have been shooting some real unvarnished truths to the people of Lubbock. They are not facts simply because Bill Hogg and Elder Brewer said so, but because Christ said so during his stay on earth.

It's An Old Story

Every since Moses moved the Children out of Egypt, men have been trying to run things according to the dictates of their own hearts, without any regard to God's commands. Moses struck the rock instead of speaking to it, but he paid for his folly. Jonah took the boat to the port of worldly pleasure instead of the one that would have taken him to his point of duty, but Jonah paid dearly. Peter denied Christ, but he suffered for it, and Judas betrayed Him when he knew that to do so would mean disaster. So far as we know, Judas was probably the only one of the four who had to spend an eternity in Hell for his sin, but the others suffered plenty right here on earth for theirs. This makes us feel that maybe the betrayal of Christ has something to do with the "unpardonable sin." If this be true a lot of people are treading on dangerous ground.

Now, Mr. Reader, don't try and connect us up as a preacher—we are not. Yet any sensible person should know there is a Higher Power than that of man; that there must of necessity have been a Creator, and in this Christian nation credit is given the Triune God. We don't know where God came from—probably it's none of our business. The very fact that GOD IS should be enough for us. If we buy a suit of clothes we don't go to the trouble of finding ut where the wool came from, do we? The fact that we have the suit and it is "all-wool" is enough.

Many Have Wrong Idea

Sometimes we think people try to think of God as One too far distant—religion as something too difficult, and salvation as a thing we can't feel, see or understand. Only a few days ago (since this meeting began) we heard a woman say that there was so much in the Bible she could not understand that she had just about decided to give it all up. Well, all that is wrong with that woman is this: she is a 22 calibre gun (theologically speaking) trying to fire a 45 shell. She is not supposed to know it all, but she might take the statements of some very wise men and be satisfied. King Solomon, we believe, has the distinction of being the world's wisest man. He was a man of God, but he was human enough to sin. Yet after he had spent his life having a good time, trampling God's laws under his feet, and being a real 18 karet sport of the woman loving variety, he ended his writings with the following words: "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man."

Not so difficult to understand is it? Just fear God and keep His commandments. O! you say, this is Old Testament teachings. Well what of it? The Old Testament is "Scripture" too, but if you want the command to come direct from the lips of Christ, we suggest that you read John 3:15,16. Christ says that "whosoever believes shall not perish, but have everlasting life." Simple isn't it?

Many Have Suffered

Men and women have been suffering for their sins and their unbelief since Eve fed Adam on green apples. One very famous king who strove to disobey God had to put up with a plague of frogs. He would grin when some old Saint tried to reason with him, but when his land was infested with cold, slimy frogs there was a different kind of a grin. The frogs, in a way, cured him, but if we are correct there are people living today who would require a more drastic plague. They are so hard-headed nothing short of a visit by the death angel would teach them.

Every now and then you will hear a fellow say he doesn't know whether he is saved or not. Well when you hear chirping of this kind you can mark it down in your daybook he isn't saved. If he is a Christian he would know it, for when Salvation hits you the shock is something like a bucket of cold water dashed in the small of your naked warm back. You feel it all over—there is no guessing about it—something has hit you. When the water hits a man the chances are h ewill jump about six feet high and try to go out through the roof; when Salavation hits him the world is going to know about it. He may sing, shout, sob or sniffle, but there will be action, direct action of some kind.

Plenty of Room for All

If the Bible is true Heaven is not going to be overly crowded. There will be good seats for all those who are successful in reaching that port. Those who get there will appreciate the efforts it took to make the trip possible and they will feel at home. People who fail to reach the goal are not to be pitied, for they wouldn't feel at home anyway. The first thing some of them would ask for would be a deck of cards and a game of "pitch." Others would call for home brew, and when they failed to get action they would probably be sneaking around the back alleys of Heaven looking for a bootlegger. No, Heaven, if we are correctly informed, is for Christians—people who love the Lord and people who are willing to put Him first in their lives during their stay on earth. "Sunday Christians" could not enjoy Heaven, for there would be no entertainment for them during the week days—it is going to be Sunday up there all the time.

We sinners sometimes feel that Christians are the most unhappy people in the world, but they are dead wrong. Just because a man or woman goes to church and prays instead of going to the creek and fishing is no sign they are unhappy. We have heard this remark made by supposedly intelligent people: "I wouldn't be like Mrs. So-andSo at all. All she does is attend church and cry—just sobs her life away." Whew! Marvel at the ignorance. Mrs. So-and-So is not sobbing for herelf, but because he feel so sorry for you and your ilk. It makes her sad when she sees your soul is heading straight into Hell and you don't even know that the brake bands on your pet sins are gone. Don't feel sorry for her, but feel sorry for yourself. If all her friends were saved—if there were no sin on earth, she would be shouting instead of sobbing—sd the sobs are for you.

Christians Are Happy

The happiest Christians in the world are the most consecrated ones. When a fellow decides to follow God, cuts his suspenders and rises up above sin and worldliness he is surely on the road to happiness. But as long as you let Christ have one hand and the devil the other you are going to find life just one embarrassing predicament after another. People do not know where to place you and there are moments when you are not so sure of your own status. Christ votes for you the devil votes for you, and it is up to you to vote off the tie.

There are a lot of things we might say, but the pulpit is probably a better place than a daily newspaper for the dissemination of "gospel," so we are going to say "Selah" and turn the matter over to Bill Hogg and other authorities. Fact is we don't know very much anyway, but somehow or other we want to learn.

Interesting Car Care

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

The little matter of cleanliness has a great deal to do with the proper running of the automobile.

There's the matter of a clean engine. To the lay driver, a matter of oil covering the engine doesn't seem to retard its activity in any way. For that matter, it doesn't.

But oil under the hood, except where it is supposed to be, means a dangerous dust gatherer to the auto mechanic—dangerous in that it might find its way through the slits and other openings to the inside of the engine.

And there the trouble begins.

Furthermore, oil is harmful to such parts as the hose connections in the cooling system. It rots the hose and produces a leak in the cooling apparatus.

In hot weather, we can't afford that.

To prevent this, of course, keep the entire engine clean. But rotting of the hose with oil can further be prevented by applying a coat of shellac and then a layer of tape and shellac on the hose connections.

Gasoline, applied with a brush or cloth, will clean accumulations of oil from the engine. Kerosene, also, may be used.

An air and gasoline spray can be obtained to force the accumulated oil and dust from the inaccessible places.

At the same time, various joints about the car may be cleaned with gasoline, but care here must be taken not to remove the grease from the effective parts.

For instance, the hood hinges get filled with the oil sprayed from the engine and that seeps out to the top of the hood. Here the oil may be cleaned from the top, but left within the hinges to prevent squeaking of this part whenever the hood is lifted.

The same is true of the door hinges. After a long drive, a layer of dusty oil may be noted covering the hinges that jut out from the body. This can't just be wiped off. Gasoline must be used, but this must be done with care that the hinges may remain greased.

After a long run, especially on dusty roads, the engine and other parts of the car may be coated with oil-soaked dust. This can't be washed off with water. Gasoline is the washing fluid to use.

By keeping the engine, hinges and other parts of the car clean, the motorist not only has a presentable automobile but is preventing deterioration, especially in the moving engine parts.

The fine dust accumulated from the road somehow finds its way into the crankcase and up into the cylinders, scoring the walls, causing oil to get past the pistons more easily and hastening the death of the car.
