Explosive jeep defused in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — PLO rebels in north Lebanon bombarded Yasser Arafat's last stronghold with up to 50 shells a minute today, and Lebanese army experts in Beirut defused a "huge amount of explosives" in a stolen French jeep parked near the Iranian Embassy.

The French contingent of the multinational peacekeeping force reported one of its jeeps was stolen a few days ago. Police spotted the jeep near the Iranian Embassy in west Beirut at dawn and explosives experts dismantled the deadly cargo, a police statement said.

The statement indicated the embassy was the intended target of the explosives, but it said police had no clue as to who might have been behind the attempt.

A pro-Iranian extremist group claimed responsibility for the suicide truck-bombing last Friday which killed 60 people at an Israeli military post in southern Lebanon and similar attacks at the U.S. Marine and French bases in Beirut on Oct. 23 which killed 230 U.S. servicemen and 58 French soldiers.

Beirut radio stations said Syrian-backed mutineers of breakaway Palestine Liberation Organization Col. Saeed Mousa rained heavy artillery fire today on the Palestinian refugee camp of Baddawi, outside the northern port city of Tripoli, apparently preparing for a final assault.

Outgunned loyalists of Arafat, the PLO chairman, abandoned the Nahr el-Bared camp Sunday to make a last stand around his headquarters in Baddawi. Today, state-run Beirut radio said Arafat abandoned his Baddawi command post at midmorning and retreated to a PLO political office in the old quarter of Tripoli. The report could not be independently confirmed.

Lebanese police said more than 1,000 people have been killed and 3,000 wounded since the rebels began their attack Thursday.

Burning oil tanks at a refinery near Baddawi spewed thick black smoke for a fifth straight day over Lebanon's second largest city. Police said thousands of Tripoli's 500,000 inhabitants have fled to safer areas.

The rebels say they want to oust Arafat because he has abandoned the struggle with Israel. Arafat's men say Syria is backing the assault because it wants to control the PLO.

Christian and Moslem religious leaders in Tripoli have appealed for a cease-fire and the International Red Cross is seeking medical supplies for hospitals overwhelmed by the wounded.

Arafat's control over the PLO began to collapse 13 months ago, when Israeli invaders forced him and his fighters to evacuate Beirut. Syrian-backed guerrillas openly split from Arafat's leadership in May, Syria declared him unwelcome in June and then helped mutineers oust Arafat loyalists from eastern Lebanon. The loyalists retreated to northern Lebanon.

Arafat has claimed for weeks that the rebels, with Syrian help, were preparing a "final offensive" against him.

The rebels, whose numbers are not known, get support from about 25,000 Syrian regulars, according to Arafat loyalists and Lebanese police.

Rescued students meet with Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 500 American students evacuated from Grenada got the chance to thank President Reagan personally today for ordering the U.S. assault on the Caribbean island.

Reagan, who insisted last week that the military action "was a rescue mission" designed to free the students, was bringing them together with servicemen involved in the Oct. 25 assault in a Rose Garden ceremony.

"They are going to express their appreciation for the rescue," White House spokesman Anson Franklin said of the delegation of about 550 students from St. George's University Medical School.

Franklin said today's meeting was also a chance for Reagan "to talk to them about their experiences. They have said some very kind things about the president and about the American forces who came to their rescue."

The White House invited some 40 U.S. servicemen, from all four branches, because, "This is a good time to bring them together with some of the members of the armed forces who assisted in the rescue," Franklin said.

After spending the weekend at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., Reagan met at the White House on Sunday night with Prime Minister Edward Seaga of Jamaica, who said later that U.S. troops should be able to leave Grenada "reasonably soon."

Seaga also said he and Reagan agreed that either U.S. students on the island or the island's governor general, Sir Paul Scoon, could have been killed or taken hostage had the invasion not occurred.

"One of the things we did discuss was our own common feeling concerning the welfare of the students," Seaga said.

"It was one of the most important factors involved in the entire exercise that either the governor general would have been taken hostage andor killed, or the U.S. students would have been taken hostage andor killed and this of course would have created an entirely different situation."

None of the students was harmed. Although some questions were raised about whether the assault might have put them in more danger than they had been in, many students later praised the action as a successful and needed rescue operation.

As for U.S. troops, Seaga said: "From the very beginning we were of the view that as soon as hostilities ceased that the U.S. troops would, if they wished to, withdraw and then we would be able to carry on."

Seaga, whose nation has about 150 troops in the military occupation force in Grenada, said the troops of his country and the other Caribbean nations — about 300 total — could maintain stability in Grenada without the United States if they could obtain the necessary equipment.

Seaga spoke to reporters on the White House driveway after a 45-minute meeting with Reagan in the White House living quarters.

"As for whether our troops can carry out the necessary program of work until elections are held — will depend on the materiel support that they get because we are there with arms, yes, but not with equipment. And providing the equipment is made available, the Caribbean forces will be able to do whatever is necessary to keep the peace and maintain the stability," he said.

Asked how much longer U.S. troops should remain, Seaga replied: "I think with hostilities having ceased, the presence of U.S. troops is now reaching a stage where withdrawal can begin to take place without in any way endangering the security of the country."

He said he and the president discussed the need to stabilize the country. "There will be a need to provide employment to help the country to revive," he said. "You are dealing with a country of 115,000 people. Therefore, the magnitudes of aid are not large, but they are very meaningful."

Seaga said he was invited to meet with Reagan as part of "an ongoing series of discussions to hear what the views are from (the Caribbean) and to see whether we all concur."

Grave may hold body of Grenada's prime minister

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — American officials say a gravesite has been discovered on Grenada that may contain the body of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop and others killed in the coup that prompted the U.S.-led invasion.

State Department official John Steinmetz said in Washington that tests will be conducted to determine the identity of the bodies, which were found Sunday. He said department personnel in Grenada did not specify how many bodies were in the gravesite, but other reports indicated more than 100 bodies had been found.

Bishop and a number of key supporters were killed Oct. 19 after a confrontation with soldiers loyal to the hardline Marxist leaders of the coup. Several witnesses have said Bishop and the others were executed.

Governor General Sir Paul Scoon, recognized by U.S. officials as Grenada's acting head of government, is expected to announce today or Tuesday the fate of Gen. Hudson Austin and former Deputy Prime Minister Bernard Coard, architects of the coup.

The two men were moved Sunday from a U.S. helicopter carrier lying off the coast of Grenada and were taken, handcuffed and stripped to the waist, to a prison in St. George's. The two had been held on the vessel for their own safety, military authorities said.

Today, residents of the small Caribbean island were working to end the disruption resulting from the coup and the invasion. Telephone and cables lines were restored over the weekend.

Government workers were to receive their first paychecks since U.S. Marines and Army paratroopers invaded Oct. 25. And the first load of bananas in two weeks — the chief export crop here — was shipped off to Great Britain.

U.S. Army helicopters dropped hundreds of leaflets Sunday over northern and central Grenada, urging residents to cooperate in locating Grenadian army or Cuban resisters still holding out against the occupying forces.

Grenadan-born Marine wins corps' eighth marathon

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two weeks of solemnity and mourning, U.S. Marines have something to cheer about. For the first time in the eight-year history of the Marine Corps Marathon, a Marine captured the title.

And, adding irony to an already emotional ending, Sgt. Farley Simon was born in Grenada, the island nation where more than a dozen Marines died during an invasion two weeks ago.

Simon finished the 26-mile course Sunday ahead of 11,000 other runners in 2 hours, 17 minutes, 45 seconds, as throngs of Marines cheered him on to the finish line, in the shadow of the Iwo Jima Memorial.

"I had a whole island of Marines in Hawaii who told me to bring home the bacon, and I brought home the whole pig," said Simon, who is stationed in Hawaii.

He had run once before, in 1981, but cramps forced him to quit after 12 miles.

A naturalized American, Simon came to this country in 1971. His mother, brother and sister live in Brooklyn, N.Y. Simon's father, a retired policeman, still lives in Grenada.

Simon had no comment when asked by reporters about the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

But former Navy Secretary J. William Middendorf said at the awards ceremony that Simon "is proud of what the Marines are doing in Grenada, and we're proud of him."

Defects found in other cars on Enterprise ride

DALLAS (AP) — Engineers have found defects in another gondola on a Texas State Fair amusement ride that they say made it more dangerous than the car that tore loose from the ride last month.

The slow dismantling of the Enterprise ride, which began Saturday, had turned up fractures and welds in two of four cars inspected, officials said Sunday.

One person was killed and 16 people were injured Oct. 17 when car No. 1 ripped from the spinning ride and sailed 40 feet onto the midway.

But Russell Smith, an attorney for the fair, said Sunday that car No. 19 appeared to be more defective than No. 1.

"No. 19 had a fracture of its main member," Smith said. "That's a significant finding. It's a significant fracture. The other (No. 1) did not have it."

The frame on car No. 19 was broken at a main joint under the flooring of the car, and a piece of metal that joined the gondola frame at the top had broken and was missing from the car, engineers said.

That car "could have broken loose as well," one engineer, who spoke on the condition that his name not be used, told the Dallas Morning News.

Discoveries of the defects Sunday led one attorney involved in the investigation to call for a nationwide shutdown of similar rides until experts can determine if they are safe.

"There apparently have been problems with this ride in the past and someone had attempted to weld them back together at the pressure points," said Frank L. Branson, a lawyer representing the family of William Wade Phillips, 19, who was killed in the accident.

Branson told the Dallas Times Herald that the breaks and welded repairs indicate the ride was designed or built in such a way that the cars could not handle the stress.

"Some of the things we've found out here today have been pretty frightening from a consumer point of view," Branson said. "There's an urgent need for the Consumer Product Safety Commission people to enjoin the ride nationwide."

Branson said federal officials should shut down rides like the Enterprise manufactured by Heinrich Wilhelm Huss & Co.

Goose flies into cockpit

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — A Republic Airlines plane, its tail emblazoned with the stylized goose that is the carrier's symbol, met the real thing head on as it approached Sioux Falls — injuring the pilot when the bird crashed through the cockpit windshield.

The Convair 580 turboprop was approaching Joe Foss Field for a landing Sunday when the goose smashed through the windshield, scattering fragments of glass and injuring .

The co-pilot took over the controls, circled twice and then landed the plane safely, said airport manager John Orr. There were about 30 people aboard the aircraft, which seats 48, when the collision occurred about 7:40 p.m.

The pilot was taken to a Sioux Falls hospital for treatment. His name and extent of injuries were being withheld until relatives were notified. The co-pilot's name also was not released.

Flight 972 had originated in Memphis and made stops in Kansas City, Omaha, Neb., and Sioux City, Iowa, said airline public relations spokesman Walter Hellman.

Some still chase JFK conspiracy

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — Chances are you've never heard of the Black Dog Man, the Umbrella Man, the Mafia Con Man, the Tall Tramp or the man called Frenchy.

You've also probably never read "The Continuing Inquiry" or "Coverups!" or "Echoes of Conspiracy."

These are names and newsletters known chiefly to those who think there is a sinister, and still secret, story behind the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

To these people, Kennedy's death 20 years ago was part of a conspiracy and an ill-defined but chilling cover-up that continues today.

Their common target is the Warren Commission and its conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting on his own, fired three shots into the presidential motorcade.

Their common complaint is that crucial evidence was destroyed and distorted or overlooked and ignored. Important witnesses, they insist, were discredited or dismissed while others vanished or died mysteriously.

But they disagree about whose plot it was, and why, and why the government would embrace or perpetuate a cover-up.

They all believe, however, that the 24-year-old Oswald was nothing more than a patsy.

The critics — an international collection of authors, historical researchers and "assassinologists" — raise provocative questions but provide precious few answers.

"After 20 years, I can't say who did it," said Mary Ferrell, a Dallas legal secretary, "but I can definitely say that Lee Harvey Oswald did not act alone."

If there is one thing upon which all the critics agree it is that Mary Ferrell is among the foremost Kennedy researchers.

They say Paul Hoch, a professor at the University of California-Berkeley, is among the most respected, Penn Jones of Texas the "guttiest" and Bud Fensterwald of Washington, D.C., the most valuable for his efforts in getting documents declassified.

There are conspiracy theorists who write a lot: Mark Lane ("Rush to Judgement"), Sylvia Meagher ("Accessories After the Fact"), Harold Weisberg ("Whitewash"), Anthony Summers ("Conspiracy"), David Lifton ("Best Evidence") and Seth Kantor ("Who Was Jack Ruby?").

But Mary Ferrell remains in a class of her own, an ultimate authority, a researcher to whom other researchers turn.

Now in her 60s, she is a forthright woman who likes good brandy and bad jokes and reads everything, good or bad, that might shed light on the case.

She has compiled what all the researchers say is the most extensive Kennedy library in existence and has cross-indexed everything imaginable, including thousands of pages of FBI and CIA documents.

"Before I die, I hope someone comes along to take this up," she said, apologizing for the boxes of documents scattered about her living room.

Mrs. Ferrell is currently poring over 200,000 pages of material recently declassified by various agencies. The government routinely declassifies documents, and most of the assassination theory critics are on mailing lists to get the latest material from FBI, CIA and Secret Service files.

The critics don't consider the trail too cold to follow. It is only in the last 10 years, Mrs. Ferrell noted, "that we learned our government took part in the assassination attempts on Castro...that our government, the CIA, was playing footsie with the Mafia and that the Mafia had a vested interest in getting Castro out of Cuba."

The Cuban connection is a prominent theory.

Although Cuban President Fidel Castro accused the CIA, under Kennedy, of multiple attempts on his life, he has denied complicity in the assassination.

Most critics point to a purported alliance of dissident intelligence personnel, mobsters and CIA-trained Cuban exiles.

"There is a strange alliance between the CIA and the mob and the Cuban exiles who watched their friends and relatives slaughtered at the Bay of Pigs," said Gary Shaw, 45, an architect in Cleburne and author of a book called "Coverup."

"They had the motive, the means and the opportunity ... and you can trace them right straight to Dallas, Texas."

Shaw, a history buff, said that until he read the Warren Commission Report in 1964, he believed Oswald to be the lone assassin and Jack Ruby the lone avenger.

"But the more I got into it, the more it stunk," Shaw said. "The evidence is overwhelming that Oswald did not act alone. I think the evidence indicates that Oswald did not fire a shot. I think in a court of law he would have been exonerated completely. He was exactly what he said he was, a patsy."

Shaw contends that the government's handling of the case proves there was a conspiracy.

"They manipulated evidence, falsified evidence and destroyed evidence," he asserted, citing the disappearance of Oswald's military records, a note written by Oswald warning the FBI to stop harassing his wife, Marina, and the laboratory slides of Kennedy's brain tissue. "You've got to ask yourself, 'why?'"

Some people think organized crime was behind the assassination, partly because of Attorney General Robert Kennedy's crime-busting crusade, partly due to impatience with Castro, who had run mob-backed gambling interests out of Havana.

Robert Blakey, formerly chief counsel to the House Select Committee on Assassinations, now at the Notre Dame law school, emerged from the two-year congressional investigation convinced Oswald had acted on orders from organized crime.

"We were worried about whether Cuba did it. We were worried about whether the CIA did it. We were worried about whether the FBI did it," he said in an interview in 1979. "And the mob must have been thinking to themselves, 'Good.' ... There's only one theory that makes sense out of it, and that's that the mob did it."

There has also been speculation that the body buried in Fort Worth's Rose Hill Memorial Park was not Oswald's. In 1981, the grave was dug up at the insistence and expense of British author Michael Eddowes, who for years had claimed that body was that of a Russian imposter. Pathologists confirmed the body was Oswald's.

One of Shaw's specialties is tracking down and reinterviewing witnesses, but the person he most wants to question is in prison for the sniper slaying of federal Judge John Wood in San Antonio.

"Charles V. Harrelson — an associate of Jack Ruby and Santos Trafficante, the Mafia chieftain in Florida involved in the Castro assassination attempts — has admitted publicly that he participated in the Kennedy murder," Shaw said.

Law officers who captured Harrelson in Van Horn, Texas, in September 1980 quoted him as saying that he had not only killed the judge but had also killed Kennedy. The authorities also said Harrelson seemed affected by drugs at the time and made his claims after a six-hour standoff.

In a subsequent interview on Dallas television, Harrelson backed off his confession. "At the same time I said I had killed the judge, I said I had killed Kennedy, which might give you an idea as to the state of my mind at the time," he said. "It was an effort to elongate my life."

Nevertheless, Shaw and Jack White, a 56-year-old Fort Worth graphics expert and Kennedy researcher, believe Harrelson was one of three "tramps" photographed in police custody Nov. 22, 1963.

The critics refer to the three — never officially identified — as Frenchy, the Old Man and the Tall Tramp, the one they believe to be Harrelson.

"If I was going to pursue one story, one aspect that has not been explored, that would be the one," Shaw said.

Until 1975, when ABC televised the movie footage taken by bystander Abraham Zapruder, recording the moment the president was shot, Gary Mack, 32, had only a passing interest in the slaying.

"The Zapruder film renewed my interest, and when I moved to Fort Worth that year, I met the local researchers," he said.

He's been hooked ever since and today distributes a newsletter called "Coverups!"

Most critics believe the Zapruder film supports their theory that the fatal shot was fired not from a sixth-floor window of the Texas School Book Depository but from the grassy knoll to the right and in front of the presidential limousine.

Mack pursued the possibility that a Dallas motorcycle police officer had inadvertently recorded the sounds of the assassination over an open radio microphone and that the tape would prove that four or more shots were fired.

"I realized that beneath the noise of engines roaring and people talking we might be able to distinguish the sound of the gunshots," he said.

Mack spent months trying to electronically filter out the noise.

In the late 1970s, acoustical scientists working with the House Select Committee on Assassinations concluded there was a "95 percent probability" that at least four shots were fired, including one from the grassy knoll.

Last year, however, after additional analysis, the National Science Foundation challenged the four-shot verdict. The second acoustical team argued that the sounds perceived to be shots occurred well after the assassination.

Mack, however, said the original team had pinpointed the third shot coming from atop the grassy knoll "precisely where 50 or 60 witnesses said they heard one or more shots that day."

A room's lights dim and in an instant it is Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963. There, on film, the Kennedy motorcade starts into the gentle decline that would have taken it through the triple underpass and on to a luncheon at the Trade Mart.

Jackie Kennedy is smiling and waving. Up front are Gov. John Connally and his wife, Nellie.

Suddenly, the president clutches his throat. Then his head jerks backward and explodes.

"The head movement indicates the shot came from the front," said Jack White, 56, the Fort Worth graphics expert.

"No reasonable person can believe the single bullet theory," White added, referring to the so-called "magic bullet" that the Warren Commission said caused seven wounds in Kennedy and Connally and emerged virtually intact.

"If the single bullet theory is untrue, then you got to have a conspiracy because you've got to have more people shooting."

White is narrating a four-hour presentation designed to convince the viewer that Kennedy's death was indeed a conspiracy and that several co-conspirators were in Dealey Plaza that day.

The show includes the Zapruder film and blow-ups of several "suspicious" people in the plaza.

The visitor is introduced to the Black Dog Man, the Three Tramps, the Umbrella Man, the Babushka Lady and a host of others.

The man with the black dog is there one moment, gone the next. Said White:

"That person would have a perfect shot at Kennedy, from about 50 feet. ... A lot of us believe the Black Dog Man, if not a shooter, was part of the assassination team. He popped up suddenly and disappeared suddenly."

The Umbrella Man hoists an umbrella the critics believe was a signal to the assassins.

The Babushka Lady, so named for a handkerchief around her pead, is seen filming the motorcade. She later testified she once worked for Jack Ruby, Shaw said.

And there is the Mafia Con Man, said to resemble a mobster whose name surfaced in the investigation.

There is much more. Intricate photographic displays purport to show how both visual and documentary evidence was distorted and falsified, and one appears to capture a puff of smoke atop the grassy knoll.

There is a photograph of a letter postmarked Mexico City, dated Nov. 8, 1963, said to have been sent anonymously to researcher Penn Jones.

It begins "Dear Mr. Hunt" and ends "Lee Harvey Oswald." It says:

"I would like information concerning my position. I am asking only for information. I am suggesting that we discuss the matter fully before any steps are taken by me or anyone else."

El Salvadoran children escape bullets, but not fears

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Children from war-torn El Salvador escape the bullets when they come to the United States, but psychiatrists say the horror lingers — causing nightmares, crying spells at the sight of TV violence and even drug addiction and death wishes.

"Some have witnessed torture, some have seen parents killed in front of their very eyes, and some have had family members disappear," said Dr. William Arroyo, a child psychiatrist in suburban Sherman Oaks. "Some of what they saw over there is not unlike what they see in horror films now."

Arroyo is studying the refugee children's emotional scars along with Dr. Spencer Eth at the County-USC Medical Center's Child Psychiatric Outpatient Clinic.

"Like the kids, sometimes I feel very hopeless and helpless," Arroyo said in a recent interview. "I am very much angered by the deaths these children have witnessed."

In interviews with 20 refugee children and their parents — the first half of the study — the children complained of nightmares, cold sweats, severe headaches, what the doctors defined as alienation from their families and homesickness for El Salvador, despite the ugliness they saw there.

Gladys Cienfuegos, 16, was admitted to County-USC's psychiatric ward after trying to kill herself with an overdose of sleeping pills.

Arroyo said the girl slept under her bed in El Salvador on some nights, trying to avoid gunfire. She saw two young girls hanging mutilated from a tree and a man killed by shots from a passing car in broad daylight.

"When she saw this, she did all she could to stop herself from crying in public for fear someone might assume she was related to the person who had fallen to the ground" and make her the next target, Arroyo said.

The psychiatrist said Gladys feels abandoned by her mother, who went to Mexico and then the United States to earn money so her son and daughter could escape their native country.

Gladys says her mother wrote her aunt and uncle while she lived with them in El Salvador, but not her. One day the uncle and aunt disappeared and were never found. The children were smuggled to the United States three years later.

Today, Gladys fears being abandoned in her barrio home and wants to return to El Salvador.

Children like Gladys are "a danger to all of us," said Eth, "because there are so many of them who were exposed to months and years of institutionalized violence."

The United Nations Commission on Refugees estimates that more than 250,000 Salvadorans live in Southern California. Eth said the children face an "extremely high risk for mental and physical illness."

Arroyo speculates that many don't know about the free counseling available at County-USC or are afraid to seek help because they're in the United States illegally.

"Nearly all of the kids I've seen have fared poorly in school, sometimes to the point of failing," said Eth.

Austin man leads crusade for disabled

AUSTIN (AP) — A national policy paper being called "a bill of rights for the disabled" originated with a thin, graying wheelchair-bound Austin man, and a band of fellow Texas activists.

Justin Dart, a former business executive, and several handicapped friends were behind the writing of a 19-page document called A National Policy for Persons with Disabilities.

"We call it a bill of rights for the disabled," said Joe Dusenbury, chairman of the U.S. Department of Education National Council on the Handicapped. "And the idea certainly germinated in Texas."

The paper, which is touted as a blueprint for putting more clout in future legislation affecting the handicapped, was presented Aug. 30 to Congress and the White House.

The paper outlines trends in upgrading the status of Americans with physical, sensory, and mental or emotional disabilities.

Dart says the "bill of rights" will give the government a national policy he says that it has never had.

"And we need one," he said. "Disabled people are the most poorly represented of all the minority groups, because of the very nature of disability itself.

"This is the first national policy that has ever been proposed," he added. "Now, we can have an effective voice."

The paper is traced back to a meeting Dart, Pat Pound of Austin and San Antonio activists Dennis Dildy and Larry Johnson had in February 1981 with Virginia Roberts, executive director of the Texas Governor's Committee for Disabled Persons.

The meeting in Pound's living room led to the drafting of a policy on the handicapped for then Gov. Bill Clements. Clements was so impressed with the outline that he appointed the group to a long-range committee that put goals for handicapped Texans into a final report.

That report was presented to members of the National Council for the Handicapped, who were so impressed with its thoroughness and range that it became the basis for the national policy.

"It gave us encouragement to assign Justin and the people who work with him the responsibility of designing a policy statement with the input of disabled leaders all over the U.S.," recalls Dusenbury.

"Justin traveled to all 50 states — at his own expense — and got ideas from disabled persons on what should be done," said Kemp. "I don't think anyone had ever done that before."

Dart, whose legs were paralyzed by polio in 1948, is the former president of Tupperware of Japan and the oldest son of Justin Dart Sr. of Los Angeles, head of Dart Industries and one of President Reagan's closest advisers.

Dart lives in a modest home in southern Austin, where he has stored the names of 3,000 contacts in a home computer to help him in his crusade.

"The first thing you have to realize about the disability rights movement," says Evan Kemp, director of the Disability Rights Center in Washington, "is that it is a grass-roots movement made up of Justin Dart and people like him all over the country."

"What he's doing is important to everybody. If you live a normal life expectancy, there is a 75 percent chance that you, too, will become disabled — permanently or temporarily," said Kemp, himself a wheelchair user. "In a split second, you can become one of us."

Study finds SW Bell executives' pay higher than counterparts

DALLAS (AP) — A study finding that Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. executives earn as much as 21 percent more than their counterparts make at other corporations is evidence that the utility pays its management too much, says a state-appointed consumer advocate.

The confidential study commissioned by Southwestern Bell shows the greatest disparity in pay among lower- and middle-level supervisors.

The study is part of the information Bell supplied with its request with the Public Utility Commission for a $1.36 billion rate increase but was not intended to be revealed to the public, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

Public Counsel Jim Boyle, who is opposing Bell's attempt to double the cost of local telephone service in Texas, said the study bolsters arguments that Bell's management salaries are "excessive."

"If, in effect, Southwestern Bell is a regulated quasi-governmental entity, which in my opinion it is, then the salaries that are paid the executives are far out of line in terms of what the ratepayer ought to have to bear," Boyle said.

BELL OFFICIALS, however, said the telephone company must pay its employees enough to attract and keep competent workers.

"The telephone company is a business," Bell spokesman Dale Johnson said. "It is operated in a businesslike and efficient manner.

"The people who are operating it, at the upper levels esecially, are doing so at levels of pay, which in many instances are much less than comparable levels of pay elsewhere."

The study is included in a series of Southwestern Bell documents that reveal how much consumers pay for executives' salaries and fringe benefits. Bell is asking the Public Utility Commission for $67 million in raises — $23 million for management increases and $44 million for contract wage increases for non-management workers.

DETAILS OF THE STUDY, which was conducted by the Hay and Associates consulting firm of New York, were released recently by the Kansas Corporation Commission which is considering Bell's $213.7 million rate increase request for that state.

Bell says the information includes "trade secrets," but the Kansas panel ruled that consumers who wanted to testify on the rate increase request were entitled to the salary information.

The survey separated management salaries into five levels.

In the lowest-paying executive level, about 17,849 employees in the five-state Southwestern Bell system, including about 8,290 in Texas, earn an average slary of $33,200, which is 21 percent higher than the $27,400 average salary earned by supervisors of similar rank in other companies.

In the second-level, about 5,893 employees, including about 2,283 in Texas, earn average slaries of $42,600, which are 15.4 percent higher than the $36,900 average salary earned in other firms.

Lawyer: Lucas to plead innocent

DENTON (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas will plead innocent to a murder charge today in the slaying of a 15-year-old girl, his attorney says.

Lucas, a drifter who claims to have killed 165 people in several states, is accused of slaying Frieda Powell of Jacksonville, Fla. Her body was found along a Denton County highway after Lucas led officers to her shallow grave.

Lucas introduced the teen-ager as his common-law wife "Becky" after she accompanied him to Texas in early 1982. The couple settled at a religious encampment in the North Texas town of Stoneburg.

In August 1982, Lucas told friends he and the teen-ager were driving to Florida, but he returned alone a few days later.

Prosecutors in the trial are expected to introduce a videotaped statement in which Lucas describes the slaying.

Lucas, 47, has detailed several dozen slayings to investigators and even drawn pictures of some of his victims.

But his court-appointed attorney, Tom Whitlock of Denton, said over the weekend that Lucas is "worn to a frazzle" from talking to investigators from across the country and now plans to remain silent.

Lucas was arrested last June in nearby Montague for possessing a pistol, a violation of his parole. Since then, he has been charged with 12 slayings in Texas, Florida and Louisiana.

He is charged with capital murder in three Texas cases, in which the maximum penalty is death by injection.

The first case in which he was charged was the slaying of 80-year-old Kate Rich of Ringgold, whose bones were found in Lucas' wood-burning stove.

Lucas pleaded guilty and was sentenced Sept. 30 to 75 years in prison for that murder. Last week, however, he requested a new trial in the Rich slaying, saying the case the should be reopened because all the facts were not heard.

In 1960, Lucas was convicted of killing his mother in Michigan. In 1971, after his parole on the murder charge, Lucas was returned to prison for attempting to kidnap two young girls.

In 1975, he was paroled again and began what authorities say was a nationwide murder spree. Most of the crimes described by Lucas were sexually oriented, investigators say.

College cuts back employees, salaries

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas Wesleyan College may have to postpone its plans to move to a new campus because of a fiscal crisis that officials say led to the layoffs of 22 workers and a 10 percent pay cut for top administrators.

The college faces an $11 million debt that has continued to grow annually, said TWC board president Jud Cramer. About 25 percent of the figure stems from budget overruns, he said.

TWC has borrowed $2.5 million to cover deficits over the past five years, and the college's 35-member board will be asked Tuesday to slash nearly $1 million from a $11 million budget approved last spring, Cramer said.

Cramer said he "didn't think there is any danger involved as far as the school goes. Just the fact that we are taking the measures to ensure the integrity of the school (shows the school's strength). We think everything is in extremely good control.

"Some of the gifts we have been receiving had some restrictions on them and some of the projected income did not materialize as fast as we anticipated. In some areas we may have overspent. I don't know that it's been a bad investment or will continue to be a bad investment."

But Cramer said the belt-tightening and possible future cuts may slow plans for moving the campus to land it is buying south of Fort Worth.

College president Jon Fleming said his $75,000 annual salary and the salaries of his four vice presidents are being cut in a voluntary action.

The layoffs mostly will affect maintenance workers and clerks, Fleming added. He said no faculty or administrative jobs will be cut and no salaries other than top administrators' will be reduced.

He said he has cut print shop operations and was "evaluating intercollegiate athletics. ... We are not going to cease intercollegiate competition, but there are possibilities for cutting in certain areas."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, Nov. 8, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: English astronomer and mathematician Edmund Halley and "Gone With The Wind" author Margaret Mitchell were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Katharine Hepburn, "60 Minutes" correspondent Morley Safer and actress Esther Rolle. A loved one provides inspiration, but it is your own performance that brings a new career triumph. Do not let romance distract you from work or school. A financial offer is put on the table. Consult experts before deciding to accept or reject it. This is no time to softpedal your concern for a young person.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You benefit just from expressing your point of view today. Use available data to obtain financial assistance. Luck arrives with a stranger. Expect your colleagues to live up to their promises.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Postpone passing judgment on someone's actions until you know the whole story. You need to put some distance between yourself and someone who is often irritating. Keep any agreements you make with relatives.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Intensify your efforts to solve a cash flow problem. You gain valuable insights from observing another's plight. Romance moves you in new directions. Your loved ones give their wholehearted approval.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It takes time to adjust to changes at place of employment. Be patient. You will find more pluses than minuses. Consider a loved one's feelings before opening your mouth.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Futuristic ideas hold great appeal now. Propose them to the boss only if they can improve the bottom line. Joining a club will broaden your social and romantic horizons.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A new home could be part of the picture. You find a love that you did not think possible. Your business prospects improve once you encourage a colleague to cooperate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A thirst for knowledge has you thinking about a return to school. Friends help you solve a financial problem. A past relationship has a positive effect on a current romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your sense of humor helps you escape unscathed from a business confrontation. Be discreet about a former relationship. Your tendency to make statements without thinking could hurt someone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Young people turn to you for advice. What they need most is someone who will listen without judging. Use your energies wisely and you will meet a deadline.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Face-to-face meetings are helpful in resolving differences with business colleagues. Seek a quiet work environment. Concentration is the key to greater success. A computer reduces research time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Listen to romantic partner's ideas. A secret you share now will prevent embarrassment later on. Profits will rise if you concentrate on improving the quality of your work.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You gain the edge over a competitor by being the first in line. Seek a compromise solution to an office problem. Careless talk could hurt a good friend. Nip gossip in the bud.

Products adapt to TV

NEW YORK (AP) — One sunshiny and savory Kellogg's Cornflakes television commercial in the United States and Britain was reduced to an empty cereal bowl after other European countries attached assorted restrictions.

It was one example of how American advertising agencies selling abroad often must tailor their pitches to accommodate local customs and regulations.

A demonstration tape, compiled by the J. Walter Thompson ad agency, showed how, one by one, ingredients in its nutritionally effervescent cornflakes commercial would have to be dropped.

—France doesn't allow children to endorse products, so the kid wearing Kellogg's on his T-shirt would be out.

—In Austria, his brothers and sisters would have to leave because that nation forbids the use of children for commercials. Advertisers in the Alps get around this by using midgets, provided they're over 16 years of age.

—West Germany is sensitive about competitive claims, no matter how valid. There, the reference to "only" Kellogg's makes "the best" flakes would have to be pulled.

—In Belgium, the company can mention added vitamins, only if they had once been removed. So "extra vitamins" would have to be deleted. Holland's regulations on nutrients are more onerous, and the advertiser would have to knock out the reference to all vitamins and minerals there.

"The fact that you have the technical capacity to transmit a message to everybody at once," said J. Walter's Denis Lanigan, "does not mean that everybody will find that message equally persuasive, or interesting, or relevant, or, as a matter of fact, legal."

Lanigan is vice chairman and chief operating officer for the world's largest ad agency. With satellite delivery and the U.S. commercial culture gaining greater international exposure, the message to "Buy American" has become garbled a bit when selling European.

Many broadcasting systems are state-controlled, and these countries place more regulations on advertising than exist in the United States. In Holland, for example, candy commercials require the inclusion of a symbolic toothbrush on-screen, while Britain outlaws TV commercials for undertakers and bedding shops.

However, in the area of alcohol, cigarettes and nudity in commercials, "the United States is more puritanical," Lanigan said. Bare breasts are allowed in West Germany and Japan.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ83 ♡Q109542 ◇AQ6
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—A guiding principle of our bidding philosophy is that, with four-card support for partner's suit, you should agree the trump suit immediately. Therefore, we are inclined to rule out "clever" bids like two diamonds or a jump shift to three diamonds (a distinct overbid). In support of spades your hand revalues to 18 points, and three spades describes it nicely.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ8 ♡K7 ◇KJ83 ♣A1087
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 NT	Pass
4 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—First of all, if you think that North is asking for aces, may we suggest you invest in one of the many excellent bidding texts on the market today. North has made a quantitative raise in no trump, asking you to bid a slam if you have a maximum two no trump response. Since that is exactly what you have, you should be happy to advance to six no trump.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A843 ♡9 ◇KQ10872 ♣93
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—The trouble with a jump to three diamonds is that, if partner rebids three no trump, you won't know what to do. To avoid the possibility of missing your 4-4 spade fit, start with a Stayman two clubs. No matter what partner does, you can follow up with three diamonds. That is forcing, and should allow you to get to your best spot.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q87 ♡95 ◇AQ8 ♣AJ1063
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—We would not fault you greatly if you jumped to three spades to show your good three-card support for partner's first-bid major suit. However, you can't be sure that you should play in spades rather than no trump, and you cannot yet rule out the possibility of slam. The way to investigate while leaving open all possibilities is to make a temporizing bid of three diamonds.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ1097652 ◇6 ♣QJ107
What is your opening bid?

A.—You have a hand rich in offense, but with no defensive value whatsoever. You can expect to make eight tricks in your own hand, and by the Rule of Two and Three that qualifies for an opening bid of four spades. Why not make the bid that describes your hand so accurately?

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠84 ♡Q954 ◇AQ108 ♣952
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—You have to decide whether you should go on to game with your holding. Since you have a maximum raise, the answer is yes, but not at no trump. You have at least a combined eight-card holding in hearts, and you have a ruffing value in spades. Jump to four hearts.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Vote 'no' on five

Five of the 11 amendments proposed for the Texas Constitution in Tuesday's election aren't worth having, in the Reporter-Telegram's opinion and the newspaper recommends voters say no to the following:

— Amendment No. 1 which reads "The constitutional amendment authorizing fewer justice of the peace and constable precincts in counties with a population of less than 30,000 and providing for continuous service by justices of the peace, constables, and county commissioners when precinct boundaries are changed."

Local officials say this amendment really wouldn't have much impact on Midland County anyway. Most counties not needing all their required justices of the peace already operate with fewer. It's unnecessary.

— Amendment No. 2 which reads "The constitutional amendment replacing the limitation on the value of an urban homestead with a limitation based on size."

This amendment also appears unnecessary, despite the argument of supporters that an exemption based on size is more equitable. It could restrict the uses a homestead owner could make of his homestead property.

— Amendment No. 4 which reads, "The constitutional amendment authorizing statutory provisions for succession of public office during disasters caused by enemy attack and authorizing the suspension of certain constitutional rules relating to legislative procedure during those disasters or during immediate threat of enemy attack."

Despite the argument of supporters for the need of an orderly manner of succession for public officials following a nuclear attack or so forth, we believe this proposal is a bit whimsical. Chances are following any disaster of the magnitude envisioned, the federal government understandably would assume total control of governmental functions, relieving the state of any immediate need.

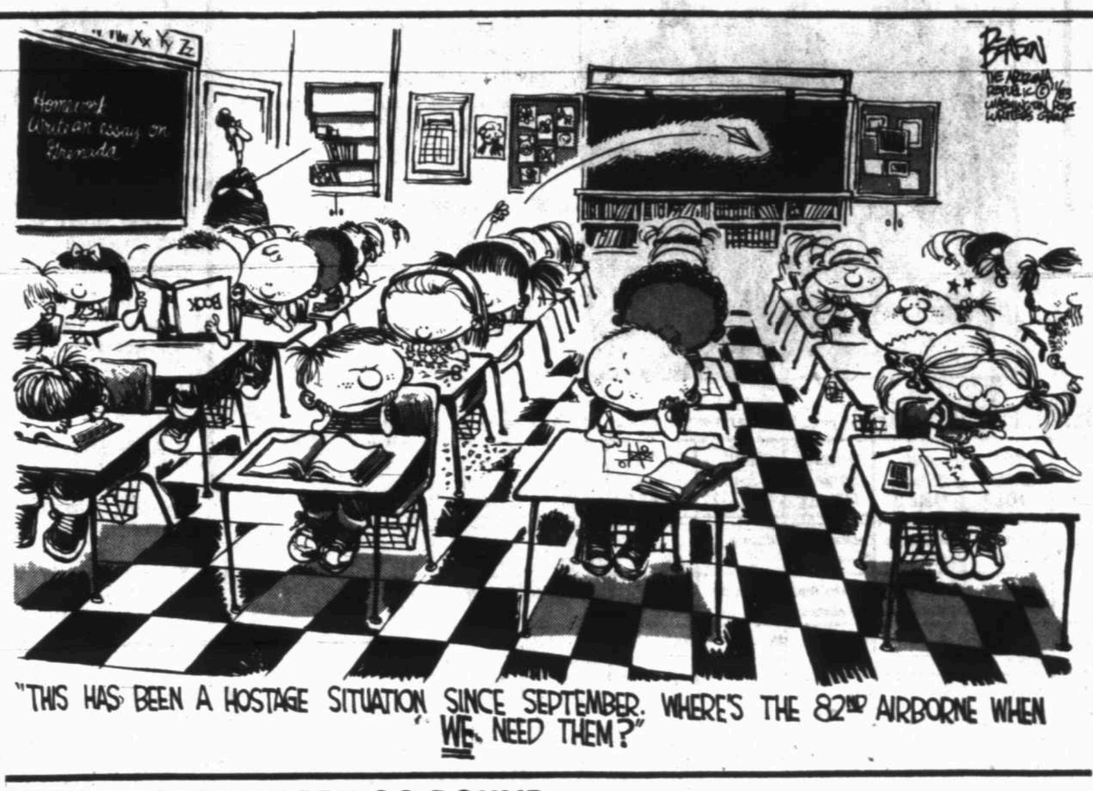
— Amendment No. 8 which reads "The constitutional amendment to authorize taxing units to exempt from taxation property of certain veterans' and fraternal organizations."

While we agree that from time-to-time such organizations as lodges and veterans' posts may be deserving of tax relief for their charitable deeds, it probably can be handled adequately on a case-by-case basis with no need for voters to approve this amendment.

— Amendment No. 10 which reads "The constitutional amendment to permit a city or town to expend public funds and levy assessments for the relocation or replacement of sanitation sewer laterals on private property."

The best argument in favor of this proposal also is the best argument in opposition to it. Certainly there are individuals deserving of financial assistance from their communities in what is anticipated to be a vast rebuilding of the state's aging system of public works. But those certain individuals should be the only ones who receive such assistance, not the many Texans who can afford the rebuilding on their own. Cities should not become financial liaison agencies to coordinate this effort. The amendment needs to redrawn to provide the financial aid only for low-income property owners.

Again, we believe these five amendments are totally unnecessary and should be defeated Tuesday by voters.



CHARLEY REESE

U.S. must back its fighters

In sharing the pain of the loss of our Marines, I recall watching an interview with Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens during the Israeli action in southern Lebanon.

Charley Reese

He was asked if Israel would be influenced by all the harsh public criticism. Arens replied with a trace of cold anger: "Do you think if we are willing to risk the most precious treasure Israel has, the lives of our soldiers, that we are going to be deterred by criticism?"

"The most precius treasure" any nation has is the lives of its military forces. Not one is to be squandered. Nothing — not world opinion nor politics — should get a higher priority than supporting those who put their lives on the line in the service of the country.

Duty is a word most often associated with the military but there is no need to write about that. The military understands its duty. We have before us even now gallant examples in Lebanon and Grenada.

But civilians have a duty, too. And that's where the improvement must be made. It is the civilian's role to assign the military a mission, but having assigned it, the civilian then has a duty to support the men at all costs.

If Vietnam taught one lesson, it is that we must never again allow civilian politicans, diplomats and bureaucrats to put American military men into harm's way and then interfere with their ability to protect themselves and accomplish the mission. Nor must we permit them to assign them impossible missions.

The security at the Marine Corps headquarters at Beirut airport was not adequate. I do not think the Marines, the most professional of our armed forces, are to blame. I think they were constrained by the State Department and by politicians who were playing the old Vietnam game again: take precautions but keep the airport open for business as usual and don't make it look like a fortress. That wouldn't "look good."

After the explosives went off and Marines lay under tons of rubble, Israel placed the most advanced military hospital teams in the world on alert, ready to receive our wounded. These hospitals were a 30-minute helicopter ride away. Instead, someone made the decision to fly the wounded to West Germany — five hours away. Not all of them made it.

Immediately after hearing of the explosion, Israelis just down the road cranked up their special rubble-clearing machines and readied their crews to help dig out the wounded. That offer, too, was rejected.

In both instances civilians placed a higher priority on Arab opinion than on the lives of Marines. They didn't want us to be closely associated with the Israelis. That's gross dereliction of duty. Their duty is not to Arab opinion but to the Marines.

When a Marine is hurt, forget Arabs or anybody else's opinions. Forget appearances. Forget diplomatic hand-wringing. President Reagan decided to put those Marines in Beirut and he has a solemn duty to support them. Under no circumstances should diplomacy or politics be allowed to undercut their security, their ability to defend themselves, or their access to help form the best and closest source available.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher demonstrated the proper role of civilians in regard to the military with the Falkland Islands War. She communicated in essence three times with the British military. She said take the islands, she said tell me what you need to do the job, and then after they had done it, she said well done. She did not — and she did not allow anyone else to — place constraints or restrictions on the military forces or, worse, play armchair general and interfere in operational matters.

Our military men are not diplomats or public relations men. They are fighters. It is up to civilians to tell them when to fight, but having done that, civilians are duty-bound to support them, to give their professional judgement free rein, to make sure no striped-pants wimp overrides that professional judgment for any reason whatsoever.

The lives of our military men are indeed ur most precious treasure. If we can't back them, then don't send them. It's that simple.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Tampering may mean new trial

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department may have used a doctored videotape to obtain the indictment and conviction of former Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., on ABSCAM charges. The crucial tape was shown to the grand jury and later at Williams' trial.

Jack Anderson

The evidence of tape tampering, provided by two acknowledged videotape experts, could win a new trial for Williams. He was sentenced to three years in prison for conspiring to use his political influence improperly on behalf of a supposed Arab sheik, who was actually an FBI agent.

The doctored videotape was made on Jan. 15, 1980. It recorded the first meeting between the senator and the phony sheik. The undercover agent discussed putting up money for a titanium mine in Virginia in exchange for Williams' help on an immigration matter. The Jan. 15 tape was repeatedly cited by the prosecution as evidence that Williams was corrupt.

But my associate Indy Badhwar has obtained sworn affidavits from two experts who conducted a painstaking, frame-by-frame electronic analysis of the videotape. Williams' attorneys say that a key segment that could have exculpated the senator was edited out.

Stephen K. Spyker, chief engineer of Video 44, a New York-based division of Compu-Edit Inc., said in his sworn statement that the tape was altered "by using sophisticated video editing equipment designed specifically for the purpose of editing videotape."

Spyker, who has 10 years' experience in video engineering, added: "I examined this tape in the presence of other engineers employed by Video 44, all of whom came to the same conclusions as I have."

Perry Quarante, president of PQ Productions Inc. of New Jersey, also stated in an affidavit that his examination of a noticeable break in the videotape showed it was "caused by editing, and therefore had to have been tampered with to make a 'clean edit.'" In a telephone interview he explained: "Something was erased from the tape and then it was re-recorded to cover that up."

The experts' affidavits directly contradict sworn testimony by ABSCAM prosecutor Thomas Puccio.

There are two noticeable breaks in the Jan. 15 tape's continuity. Puccio, who was monitoring the meeting from an adjoining room, testified that the breaks were caused when the camera was "shut off a couple of times during the meeting." He added: "I saw the technician turn the recording equipment off."

In an interview, Puccio explained that constitutional safeguards forbid secret recording unless one participant in the action or conversation consents. So on two brief occasions when the FBI agent left Williams alone in the room, the videotape machine was turned off.

But Spyker and Quarante agree that, while the first break was caused by stopping and restarting the machine, the second was not.

The second break was "totally unlike the first one," Spyker said. He explained: "It was what we would call a 'clean' edit, meaning that there was no breakup or loss of any video associated with it. This edit could not have been performed by stopping the recorder and then restarting it .... There is no question or doubt in my mind whatsoever that there had been intentional editing of this videotape by use of a re-recording type of editing equipment."

RENEWING RELATIONS: The U.S. invasion of Grenada ended four years of virtual boycott of the island by Washington. Until the Marines and Rangers landed, the only official representation the United States had in Grenada was an occasional visit by low-level political advisers from the U.S. Embassy in Barbados, 150 miles away.

British envoy John Kelly (he and the Venezuelan ambassador were the only Western diplomats on the island) was highly critical of the U.S. attitude.

"The United States would be better informed if it had some kind of diplomatic representation here," he told my associate Jon Lee Anderson in Grenada a few weeks ago. "I don't see how it can base its policy toward Grenada on satellite photos and third-hand information."

Although President Reagan refused to renew diplomatic relations through the Barbados embassy, the deliberate shunning of Grenada began under President Carter, when the Marxists came to power. Washington passed up a golden opportunity to have some control over events — and insulted the late Prime Minister Maurice Bishop in the process.

Bishop asked U.S. Ambassador Frank Ortiz for financial aid to build a new jet airport. "He insultingly offered me $5,000 out of embassy contingency funds," Bishop recalled shortly before his death.

So the prime minister took Fidel Castro up on his "generous offer" to build the airport. That put Grenada ever more solidly in the Cuban-Soviet orbit.

INSIDE REPORT:

Caribbean not Finlandized

WASHINGTON — The 40 minutes Grenada's Prime Minister Maurice Bishop spent with national security adviser William P. Clark here last June probably cost him his life four months later, framing an overdue moment of truth for the U.S. in the Western Hemisphere.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Bishop's murder was dictated by the fear of fellow Grenadian Marxists, shared by Moscow and Havana, that he was deserting to the West. If the Reagan administration permitted his assassins to consolidate their new power, the message to the hemisphere would have run out loud and clear: Switching from the Kremlin to Uncle Sam was a fool's bargain.

That would have continued the Finlandization of the Caribbean, begun under Jimmy Carter. The small, defenseless island states would have been forced to accommodate Soviet-backed Cuba and Fidel Castro's well-armed Grenada client. President Reagan's decision to launch the invasion operation, therefore, came as reassurance for the hemisphere.

Actually, administration officials had hoped the reassurance would be less dramatic — by weaning Bishop from his communist moorings. The abandonment of the Carter administration's policy of seeking to isolate Bishop was climaxed by that 40-minute session with Judge Clark and Under Secretary of State Kenneth Dam.

It was surprisingly cordial. Clark asked from Bishop both words (he did soften his rhetoric) and deeds (ultimately, free elections). Bishop agreed to send the Reagan administration a status report on what amounted to the de-communization of Grenada. Clark left the meeting with the feeling that Bishop was no true Marxist-Leninist but a combination of opportunist and idealist.

In the months that followed, the U.S. discreetly pushed a badly needed World Bank loan for Grenada that would lessen dependence on Moscow and Havana. Although the human rights report never arrived, word was passed in September that Bishop was working on it. With good reason, the Reagan administration saw at least a possibility of quietly weeding out the latest communist threat in the Eastern Caribbean. So, apparently, did Bishop's communist patrons and subordinates.

Some Caribbean specialists believe the train of events that led from a political power play to murder were spontaneous, but U.S. officials doubt it. For one thing, there is resemblance to the bloody 1979 Afghanistan coup, stage-managed by the Soviets. For another, there was the arrival in St. George's harbor of a Cuban ship called the "Vietnam Heroica" coincidental with the anti-Bishop coup. It carried substantial Cuban troop reinforcements (one reason the U.S. military operation encountered more trouble than expected) whose obvious purpose was to overawe the pro-Bishop population.

Also on board were high-ranking Cuban officials similar to those who arrived in Angola just prior to Castro's massive troop buildup there. "I honestly believe that we got there just in time," said one senior administration official.

The window for effective action was small, permitting no opportunity for elaborate negotiations. Once the new government was installed with a patina of legitimacy, the military option would be foreclosed, just as it was during the Bishop regime.

That the vast majority of Caribbean nations wanted the Americans to move is undeniable. Less apparent is the fact that it was welcomed by the Spanish-speaking nations of Central and South America (with the predictable exception of Mexico). Some are playing to the gallery in denouncing Yankee intervention, but diplomats at the United Nations and Organization of American States privately express their gratitude.

Not long before the crisis, a senior Venezuelan official in conversation with a U.S. counterpart pointed on a map to the narrow distance between his homeland and the giant airstrip on Grenada that Cuban construction workers had almost finished. Although Reagan's speech last March about the military threat of a Marxist Grenada generated horse laughs in Washington, it is deadly serious business in Caracas and even more so in the Caribbean.

For the Caribbean island states, the landing at dawn on Oct. 25, 1983, marked a 180-degree change from May 10, 1980, when Cuban MiG-19 jets sunk the "Flamingo," a Royal Bahamas patrol boat towing two impounded Cuban fishing vessels 35 miles north of Cuba. President Carter lifted not a finger, and the prospect of Fidel Castro ruling the Caribbean seemed very real.

For all the Reagan administration's attempts to block communism in Central America, Finlandization of the Caribbean would have continued apace had the U.S. shrugged off the murder of Maurice Bishop for deviationism. Now it is Castro who is checkmated and frustrated in his own backyard.

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak write for Field Enterprises.

Another View:

Autos Everywhere

The United States has now squeezed out of the Japanese another "voluntary" — that is, involuntary — agreement to hold down their auto sales to Americans. But the new quota is too low. It will raise Japanese shipments to this country by only 10 percent from the present level. American production and sales are very likely to rise much faster than that. It means that a smaller proportion of American buyers will have the option of buying Japanese cars.

There's one thing you can say for this quota: it's a lot better than the domestic content bill coming to a vote later this week in the House. That's the bill designed to knock imported Toyotas and Datsuns out of the American market. It would require cars sold in this country to have American-made components in a proportion that rises according to the volume of its sales here. That wouldn't greatly affect Rolls Royce's customers. But for people not quite so far up the income scale, it would make quite a difference in the range of choices available in the showrooms.

The automobile industry's intense and unremitting lobbying for protection raises a troubling question. The American companies are proving to be unexpectedly slow in producing small cars competitive with the Japanese in engineering and quality of manufacturing. This lag can only dismay anyone who wants to see a strong and efficient American economy. What's gone wrong?

The American auto companies currently point, with some justice, to the price advantage that the dollar's high exchange rate gives to the Japanese. But Japanese sales here were rising rapidly in the 1970s when the dollar was low. It's also true that the American automobile worker is paid more than the Japanese. But Japanese cars are not being sold here solely because they are cheap. The Japanese manufacturers have responded to the quotas by sending more expensive models, and they are being bought by Americans who are prepared to pay substantial prices. The reason is that these customers apparently think that they are better cars.

The quotas, first imposed in 1981 for two or possibly three years, were to provide American manufacturers what they called a breathing spell to adjust to a changed market. Now the quotas are going into their fourth year, with not much evidence that the American position has improved.

But the quotas at least remain temporary, running from year to year. The domestic content bill would be an acknowledgment of final defeat-a declaration that the American manufacturers had no hope now or in the future of competing with foreign producers. Is that a concession that the House wants to make when it votes on the domestic content bill?

Contenders struggle for publicity, votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alan Cranston calls them the "alleged front-runners." Gary Hart refers to them as "better known" candidates and says a dark horse is "anybody who's never been a vice president or an astronaut."

Ernest Hollings berates the news media for doing an "abominable job" by leaving the impression that there are only two men in the 1984 Democratic presidential race.

But however Walter F. Mondale and John Glenn are portrayed — and they consistently pace the field in public opinion polls, fund raising and endorsements — the other contenders face a daily, frustrating struggle to break out of the second tier of candidates.

At first, Hart disdained a name-calling debate between Mondale and Glenn as "irrelevant." But a few days later he plunged in, condemning Mondale's "same old interest group politics," and Glenn's "wrong stuff."

It was a speech that departed from Hart's normal low-decibel style, but it also generated more publicity than anything he's done in months, and the lesson was not lost on Hart, his managers or others.

Other contenders followed rapidly:

—A few days after Hart suggested that neither Mondale nor Glenn could defeat President Reagan, Hollings followed suit with an even stronger attack.

—Earlier, the South Carolinian lectured a group of reporters at a breakfast for doing an "abominable job" of covering the campaign. "When are you going to quit categorizing this as a two-man race?" he asked. Others complain that the little coverage they get often seems to be negative.

—Cranston delivered his version of the speech Hart and Hollings had given. "As I've listened to the debate between you two," the Californian said to Mondale and Glenn, "...It all seems picayune."

These are isolated incidents in a long campaign, and one consultant, Victor Kamber, says the way for the long shot candidates to solve their problems is to "do something dramatic."

Cranston succeeded earlier this year when he shocked Mondale and won first place in a nonbinding straw poll in Wisconsin.

As for Hart, despite the success of his recent speech, he promises "nothing dramatic"

Instead, Hart's campaign manager Oliver Henkel lays out several non-dramatic, but ambitious goals:

—Raising $500,000 before the end of the year, compared with the slightly more than $1 million raised in the first nine months of 1983. The effort will rely on a series of "birthday parties" built around Hart's 46th birthday next month.

—Keeping Hart active in the early caucus and primary states. Henkel says the results of recent canvassing in New Hampshire are encouraging: Up to 80 percent of the Democrats surveyed have no preference for the primary election in February.

—Pressing his case as a candidate for women voters and counting on students to energize his campaign.

Study: U.S. behind Soviets in 'psychotronic warfare'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should undertake more research into potential mind-control weapons to counter Soviet advances in "psychotronic warfare," according to a U.S. Army study disclosed in a new book.

The Pentagon study, author Martin Ebon writes, reported that the Soviet Union appears to have made "significant progress" toward developing psychic weaponry that could play a role on future battlefields.

Ebon contended that mind-altering effects or "remote monitoring of brain wave activity" were among possible reasons behind the Soviet microwave bombardment of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

"Soviet scientists view the brain as an apparatus available for probing and manipulation," he said. "They are well aware that perfected techniques in ESP and other phenomena would make effective wartime strategies."

Publication of Ebon's book, "Psychic Warfare: Threat or Illusion?" comes amid increased interest in parapsychology research on Capitol Hill as well as within the Pentagon and U.S. intelligence agencies.

A report prepared recently by the Congressional Research Service, an arm of the Library of Congress, concluded that "psi phenomena" could be applied in fields such as education, medicine, geological exploration and business management.

Mind-control techniques also may prove useful for "military intelligence and police work" along with "crime, persuasion, mischief and disinformation," it said.

Critics of parapsychology, however, charge that much of the research on those effects is either scientifically unsound or fraudulent. Other skeptics argue that even if the phenomena exist, they are too weak and unpredictable to have military value.

The 1981 Army study, quoted at length in Ebon's book, analyzed the potential impact of psychic warfare tactics, as well as other battlefield factors, on the stamina and performance of U.S. artillery forces.

It used the word "psychotronics" to describe the "projection or transmission of mental energy by individual or collective mental discipline and control, or by an energy-emitting device — a kind of mind jammer."

Military action against Nicaragua not ruled out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. say questions about U.S. military action against Nicaragua are hypothetical, but they won't rule it out.

If the United States plans military action against the leftist government of Nicaragua, Weinberger said Sunday, "We certainly aren't going to talk about it in advance."

Baker, R-Tenn., said he would not advocate or rule out military action. He said the decision is up to President Reagan.

The two officials, appearing on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley," responded to questions about whether the U.S. invasion of Marxist Grenada could signal similar action against Nicaragua because of its military ties with Cuba and the Soviet Union.

A week earlier, Deputy Secretary of State Kenneth Dam said there was no plan to invade Nicaragua. Nicaraguan leaders have been quoted in news reports as saying they feared a U.S. attack.

President Reagan, questioned about those reports, said he did not believe everything he read. Asked whether Reagan and Dam weren't ruling out an invasion of Nicaragua, Weinberger replied:

"I'm not going to say anything in connection with a hypothetical question...If you analyze President Reagan's response, it isn't inconsistent with leaving the matter open. All he said was that he didn't believe everything he read.

"The question is not open, not closed, not answered," Weinberger said.

The defense secretary said, "if there are factors that require United States action, that will be a situation which we confront when that arose."

Baker said the nation's future military and foreign policy can't be judged on a television program. "I think it is clear by now, however, that America is not going to roll over and play dead in Central America, and they should not," he said.

Baker also said the United States might retaliate for the deaths of more than 230 U.S. troops in Beirut once it determines who was responsible for the Oct. 23 terrorist bombing. Weinberger refused to discuss the possibility.

Turning to Grenada, Weinberger said he hoped U.S. forces are withdrawn from the Caribbean island within the 60-day limit set by Congress last week.

He added, however, that he hoped Congress would agree to the forces remaining there "long enough to make sure there is a democratic government that respects the will of the people."

Surgeon general defends federal intervention in Baby Jane Doe case

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. surgeon general has defended the federal government's involvement in the legal battle over treatment of a severely deformed infant, calling it a fight "for a principle...that every life is individually and uniquely sacred."

"If we do not intrude into the life of a child such as this, whose civil rights may be abrogated, the next person may be you," Dr. C. Everett Koop said in an interview Sunday on CBS-TV's program, "Face The Nation."

The 27-day-old baby, referred to only as Baby Jane Doe, was born Oct. 11 with spina bifida, an opening of the spinal cord, and hydrocephalus, excessive water on the brain.

After consulting with doctors and clergy, the parents decided against two life-prolonging operations. One would have closed the baby's spine, the other would have drained the liquid from her brain. Instead, they elected to follow a conservative method of treatment that involves nutrition and antibiotics.

The federal government stepped in last week, seeking the baby's hospital records in an attempt to determine if the child's civil rights were being violated.

Koop said the government has asked for records from 48 other institutions since April "and not one institution has failed to give us those records."

Feminist's trial for murder of Argentine man begins

GRETNA, La. (AP) — Once the rising star of the women's movement, California activist Ginny Foat goes on trial for murder today, charged with beating an Argentine businessman to death in 1965 for the cash in his wallet.

Ms. Foat was a 24-year-old dancer at a tough New Orleans bar at the time prosecutors allege she drove Argentine toy manufacturer Moises Chayo to an isolated spot in suburban Jefferson Parish and killed him with a tire iron.

Pre-trial publicity in the case has been nationwide, and seating an unbiased jury for the District Court trial could take longer than the trial itself.

'Reagan,' 'Nixon' rob 'Kennedy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two gunmen sporting masks of Ronald Reagan and Richard Nixon robbed a concession stand at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium of more than $10,000 following Sunday's Washington-St. Louis football game, police say.

The men, armed with a sawed-off shotgun and a handgun, passed locked doors and confronted employees of the concession. Police said one shot was fired at the concession manager, but the shot missed and no one was injured.

The gunmen locked about 13 employees in a freezer after the robbery, police said.

Elderly victim unreliable witness

LAKE WORTH, Fla. (AP) — Police and prosecutors agree that an elderly sufferer of Alzheimer's disease was raped, but say they can't press charges because the ailment makes her an unreliable witness. And her husband says laws should be changed to protect people like his wife.

Rape charges against an ex-convict were dropped Sept. 28 on grounds that the 72-year-old victim would not be able to give coherent testimony because of the nerve disorder, which destroys brain cells.

"She's a victim of Alzheimer's disease, and there's nothing in the law to protect these people," said her husband,

Panels will disguise urban blight

NEW YORK (AP) — Painted panels that will disguise the burned-out buildings of the South Bronx slum aren't meant to trick anyone, officials say. They just want to make the area more attractive.

City planners will spend $300,000 in federal money to install hundreds of the panels — showing shades, window panes and even house plants — in the gaping windows of tenements.

Etchings to be authenticated

NEW YORK (AP) — Five stolen etchings, believed to have been sketched by the 17th-century Dutch Master Rembrandt, will be analyzed to determine whether they are authentic and the same prints that were removed from collections in Syracuse and Canada earlier this year.

The etchings, said to be worth a total of $500,000, were recovered by the FBI from a coin locker at Grand Central Terminal on Saturday.

Engine failure forces jet's landing

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An engine failed on an Eastern Airlines 727 jet just after takeoff Sunday afternoon, and the plane circled over Las Vegas' southwest side for 20 minutes before landing without further incident.

Flight 710 to Atlanta, carrying 149 passengers and seven crew members, dumped fuel and returned to McCarran International Airport, where passengers transfered to other flights, said Eastern's manager in Las Vegas, Richard Myler.

The pilot, Capt. Earl Higley, said a compressor in the No. 3 engine failed. He said officials wouldn't know why "until we tear the engine down."

"The other two engines functioned perfectly normal," he said.

The plane weighed 181,000 pounds at takeoff but landed at 154,000 pounds after the fuel dumping. Higley said at an impromptu news conference afterward.

Passengers standing nearby applauded as he spoke, noting that he had explained the situation to them when the problem developed.

Centrists prevail in Turkish election

AP Laserphoto

Survivors of Turkey's recent earthqauke line up outside a tent in Horasan to cast their votes in the nation's first general election since 1977.

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The centrist Motherland Party trounced a law-and-order party favored by the ruling generals in Turkey's first elections since a coup three years ago, returns showed today.

With 85.5 percent of Sunday's ballots counted, parliamentary candidates of the Motherland Party had 7.2 million votes, or 45 percent of the total, putting party founder Turgut Ozal in line to become premier.

The moderate leftist Populist Party of Necdet Calp had 4.85 million votes or 30.5 percent, while the military-backed Nationalist Democracy Party, led by retired Gen. Turgut Sunalp, trailed with 3.78 million votes or 23.6 percent.

The remaining votes went to independent candidates who had survived a rigorous government screening process. The regime had disqualified more than 500 potential candidates and banned radical leftist parties from participating.

Conceding defeat, Sunalp said, "My guess is that my party's role will be constructive opposition.... In democracies, no one should be above the decision of the nation."

A Motherland official, who asked not to be identified, predicted his party would win at least 220 seats in the 400-seat Parliament. Under Turkish election law, the leading party can capture more than half of Parliament's seats even if it polls less than 50 percent of the popular vote.

A total of 1,217 candidates participated in the first general elections in Turkey since 1977. The military overthrew an elected government in September 1980, when civil violence was taking 20 lives a day.

President Kenan Evren, who as armed forces chief led the coup, endorsed Sunalp and his party's law-and-order platform in the final days of the campaign. As Ozal's victory became evident late Sunday night, there were reports that the ruling generals' national security council had convened an emergency session.

Under a new constitution, the council retains total legislative and executive power until Parliament opens, probably within a month. During this period the military retains the power to disqualify even elected candidates.

Evren had campaigned widely for the constitution, which was approved in a referendum a year ago. The same vote gave him a seven-year term as president with the power to dissolve Parliament and call for new elections if there is any delay in forming a government.

Evren had warned voters not to be taken in by what he called "sweet promises" that Ozal could single-handedly cure Turkey's ailing economy.

Ozal, 57, a staunch advocate of free enterprise, served as the military-appointed deputy premier after the coup. He was credited with developing an economic recovery program that doubled exports and cut the annual inflation rate from 120 percent to 27 percent.

He resigned from the post last July and formed his own party, one of only three the military allowed to enter the elections.

Many Western government have been critical of human rights violations by the military regime, as well as its method of returning Turkey to democracy.

The regime not only screened all potential candidates but banned former premiers Bulent Ecevit and Suleyman Demirel from politics for 10 years.

Ozal studied engineering in the United States and worked as a specialist for the World Bank in Washington for 2½ years. He supports Turkey's membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and also believes the nation should improve its relations with the Third World, especially Arab countries, as a means of increasing exports.

Martial law remains in force throughout the country, but the new Parliament can choose to lift it.

While Turks widely supported the military takeover to stem terrorist violence, a villager in the small farming community of Karahasanli, 30 miles south of Ankara, appeared to sum up the mood of the electorate.

"We respect the military leaders absolutely, but it is time to return to free voting. We are all happy to be voting again," he said Sunday.

Marine helicopter crashes near Seoul, South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A U.S. Marine Corps helicopter crashed today about 80 miles south of Seoul, a military spokesman said. Details on casualties were not immediately available.

A U.S. Command spokesman said the aircraft was a CH46, the Marine version of the Army's CH47 Chinook. It is a twin-rotor helicopter capable of carrying sizable loads of personnel or cargo.

"An investigation is under way and we are unable to provide information at this time about the personnel aboard," the spokesman said.

South Korea's Yonhap News Agency said the aircraft struck a high-tension wire.

Andropov still in seclusion

MOSCOW (AP) — President Yuri V. Andropov was too ill today to attend a major military parade marking the 66th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution that brought the Communist Party to power.

It was believed to be the first time a Soviet leader has failed to be attend the annual celebration in Red Square.

It also was the second major event of the holiday weekend marked by the 69-year-old Andropov's conspicuous absence, further fueling speculation that he is seriously ill.

A government spokesman said he missed a speech Saturday night at the Kremlin Palace of Congresses because of a cold. He has not been seen in public in 111 days.

Prime ministers stage talks

LONDON (AP) — Prime ministers Margaret Thatcher of Britain and Garret FitzGerald of the Irish Republic met under tight security today to discuss major new initiatives to end Northern Ireland's sectarian conflict.

Irish officials said FitzGerald will seek to secure Mrs. Thatcher's support for proposals he hopes to unveil next spring.

The meeting is the first Anglo-Irish summit in two years. It is intended to improve relations which were strained last year by the refusal of the Irish Republic's premier at the time, Charles Haughey, to back Britain in the Falklands War against Argentina.

Tokyo police plan security

TOKYO (AP) — Police officials are completing plans for mobilizing a 90,000-member force to provide security during this week's visit by President Reagan.

At central Tokyo's Hotel Okura, where many U.S. officials will stay, Japanese security guards are making room-by-room checks, checking crevices with pole-mounted mirrors and sealing air conditioning vents.

All roads to Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's country home outside Tokyo, where the two leaders will have a private chat, have been blocked off for weeks. The wooded areas around the villa are constantly patrolled by police and dogs.

Reagan, who arrives Wednesday for a four-day visit, will use helicopters to travel to and from the airport and to visit Nakasone's villa. His only public appearance will be at the Meiji Shrine in Tokyo.

Guide criticizes airline meals

LONDON (AP) - European airlines were criticized for tasteless meals in a report published today by one of Britain's leading good food guides.

The Egon Ronay guide surveyed 18 European airlines in a new special appendix to its latest annual report on hotels, restaurants and inns of Britain and Ireland.

Food expert Ronay wrote that with few exceptions food on European airlines was "insipid, dull, unimaginative and often rubbishy."

"Our inspectors' rare praise of a meal mostly amounted to the adjective 'inoffensive'."

Agca re-enacts his meetings with Bulgarians

ROME (AP) — Mehmet Ali Agca, handcuffed and chatting with a chief investigator, re-enacted for Italian prosecutors his alleged conspiracy meetings with Bulgarians before he shot Pope John Paul II.

Agca, serving a life sentence for the May 1981 assassination attempt in St. Peter's Square, Sunday walked up and down the street where a former Bulgarian Embassy cashier lived. The Turkish gunman occasionally talked with Judge Ilario Martella, who is heading the investigation of the case.

The re-enactment was the second in three weeks. On Oct. 18, Agca walked near the scene of his crime, reconstructing his movements just before he shot and wounded the pontiff.

Italian newspapers say Agca has told Italian authorities that shortly before the attack he received from the Bulgarian, Teodor Ayvazov, two hand grenades and the Browning pistol he used to shoot the pope.

The reports also quoted Agca as telling Italian investigators he visited Ayvazov's apartment at least twice to discuss the papal attack with Ayvazov and Sergei Ivanov Antonov, another Bulgarian. Antonov has been arrested and charged with complicity in the shooting.

Martella refused to speak with reporters during the two-hour reconstruction Sunday.

The judge had sought Ayvazov's arrest, but the Bulgarian government refused to revoke Ayvazov's diplomatic immunity. He returned to his country a year ago, shortly before Antonov was arrested last Nov. 25. He has denied any involvement in the shooting.

Agca, wearing blue jeans and a blue turtleneck sweater, appeared relaxed. He stopped halfway up Via Ferdinando Galiani, a 900-yard street near the beginning of Via Cassia in northern Rome. At one point he waved to reporters watching from a distance.

Police had blocked out the entire area with tape and covered the addresses on the street with squares of brown adhesive before Agca arrived.

Agca claimed for a year that he acted alone, but then told Italian investigators last year that Antonov and two other Bulgarians helped plan the shooting and were to link up with him after it took place. Antonov was the station manager of the Bulgarian airline in Rome.

Accused assassin to be buried near Aquino's grave

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Rolando Galman will be buried this week in the same cemetery with opposition leader Benigno Aquino, the man police say he assassinated, the Galman family lawyer said today.

Aquino supporters and Galman's mother, Saturnia, chose the cemetery to demonstrate their belief that the government is lying about who really killed Aquino, lawyer Lupino Lazaro said.

The Aquino followers plan to carry the coffin through Manila's financial district, a center of recent protests against President Ferdinand E. Marcos, Lazaro told The Associated Press.

He said the funeral is tentatively set for Friday, 82 days after both Aquino and Galman were killed at Manila's international airport on Aug. 21.

Galman was gunned down by security police moments after Aquino, Marcos' chief rival, was shot as he arrived to end three years of voluntary exile in the United States.

Marcos' opponents accused the government of complicity in the Aquino killing and claimed Galman was not the real assassin. The government maintained initially that Galman was a common hoodlum hired by communist subversives, but now contends he was a guerrilla commander.

The funeral march through the Makati district will coincide with a confetti-throwing demonstration held weekly Friday by businessmen and office workers protesting Aquino's killing and demanding Marcos' resignation.

"Mrs. (Saturnia) Galman believes her son didn't kill Aquino and her wish is for him to be buried in the same memorial park where Aquino is buried to show her son isn't guilty," Lazaro said.

"But she wants him to be buried as far from Aquino's grave as possible, in the humbiest corner of the park," the lawyer said.

Cowboy rally downs Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Tom Landry said he felt his Dallas Cowboys' ability to come back within the final four minutes of the second quarter after falling behind 10-0 was the turning point in a 27-20 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Philadelphia came out fired up and held Dallas to minus-3 yards in the first period, while amassing 126.

But the Cowboys never panicked. They came back in the second quarter and almost reversed the figures, gaining 115 to just 11 for the Eagles.

More importantly, with 3:45 left in the half the Cowboys overcame that 10-0 deficit to gain a tie by intermission.

First, Dallas got a 39-yard field goal from Rafael Septien. And before the half ended, quarterback Danny White threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to Timmy Newsome to tie the score.

The Cowboys went ahead 13-10 in the third quarter on Septien's 23-yard field goal, which was set up when safety Bill Bates recovered a fumble at the Eagles' 10-yard line.

They made it 20-10 on a 29-yard third period run by Tony Dorsett, who had been held to a minus-5 yards up to that point.

"I was frustrated and a little upset," said Dorsett. "But I'm a realist. I know that things aren't always going to go your way. I definitely had a strong feeling I was going to pop one sooner or later."

AFTER FRANKLIN cut the margin to 20-13 with a 37-yard field goal, Dallas then came up with an 18-yard TD pass from White to Tony Hill that made it 27-13.

White said the pass resulted from a busted play.

"It was supposed to be a screen pass to Dorsett. But they (the Eagles) were waiting for it. I should have thrown the ball away.

"But I was able to pick up Hill out of the corner of my eye running in the left corner of the end zone. And I got it to him."

White said it was a good thing the pass to Hill worked.

"It was the kind of play that Coach Landry would have been cussing at me if it didn't work," he said.

White, who has been under fire in some places despite keeping the Cowboys on top in the National Conference East, had a brilliant day.

He completed 21 of 24 passes for 268 yards and two touchdowns. More importantly, in Landry's eyes, was the fact he held the Cowboys together when the Eagles were hot.

White was surprised with his performance because he said he didn't feel well.

"I had bumps and bruises coming into the game. And during the game I didn't think I was throwing the ball better than I'd ever done."

The Cowboys, now 9-1, clinched their 18th consecutive winning season, an NFL record.

THE EAGLES jumped to a 7-0 first-period lead on a 20-yard TD pass play from quarterback Ron Jaworski to Mike Quick, who caught seven for 120 yards. It was the fifth time this season he's gained 100 yards or more.

Bucs' woes end with 17-12 win

NFL

By The Associated Press

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers finally could celebrate a victory, but there were no celebrations for Houston, Denver, Minnesota and the Los Angeles Raiders — the latter despite posting another National Football League victory.

"I think our rallying cry of late has been, 'Whatever it takes,'" said quarterback Jack Thompson after Tampa Bay captured its first game of the season after nine losses by downing Minnesota 17-12. "James Wilder had the right stuff. It wasn't artistic, but the bottom line is we won."

Wilder banged out 219 yards in 31 carries, including a 75-yard touchdown sprint that put the Bucs ahead to stay in the third quarter. The TD run was the longest ever by a Buccaneer and the 219 yards broke the team's single-game rushing record.

"It's something to celebrate about," said Wilder. "It feels great when you want to win and you never get tired."

Wilder's performance came a week after he carried the ball a league-record 42 times against Pittsburgh.

"He's a genetic mutant," Thompson affectionately said of the 6-foot-3, 225-pound Tampa Bay running back. "When you have a body like James Wilder, you never get tired."

Wilder's broke the Ricky Bell's single-game team rushing mark of 167 yards. The 219 yards also was the second-most rushed against the Vikings. Chicago's Walter Payton had 275 yards in 1977.

Three teams lost their quarterback: Steve DeBerg suffered a separated left shoulder and will be lost to Denver for virtually the remainder of the season. The Raiders' Marc Wilson will be sidelined for at least six weeks because of a broken left shoulder, while Minnesota's Steve Dils was hospitalized overnight for observation after becoming disoriented after taking some heavy hits.

Rams 21, Bears 14

Rookie Eric Dickerson ran for 127 yards and scored twice to power the Los Angeles Rams over Chicago.

Dickerson ran his 1983 rushing total to 1,223 yards and scored his 16th and 17th touchdowns of the season, both tops in the NFL.

The Rams' victory overshadowed the achievements of Chicago running back Walter Payton. He carried 14 times for 62 yards to become the fourth man in league history to top 11,000 yards in career rushing. With 11,020 yards, he trails only Jim Brown, Franco Harris and O.J. Simpson.

Bengals add to Oilers' nightmare, 55-14

AP Laserphoto

Cincinnati Bengal Stanley Wilson (32) stretches for extra yards as he breaks through the Houston Oiler defense for a four-yard gain Sunday in the Astrodome.

HOUSTON (AP) — The personnel changes in Cincinnati's 55-14 victory over Houston Sunday evoked strong emotions from the players involved.

Quarterback Ken Anderson regained his starting job and led a 34-point first half. He was happy.

Oiler quarterback Gifford Nielsen lost his position to Oliver Luck. Luck was glad, Nielsen was puzzled.

Earl Campbell left the game midway in the second quarter and did not return. He was mad.

But as the players' emotions rose and fell, the Oilers remained steady and extended their losing habit to 17 straight games and became the only winless team in the National Football League with an 0-10 record.

Cincinnati, headed in the opposite direction, won for the third straight game, now is 4-6 and feels confidence returning by the minute.

HOUSTON COACH Chuck Studley benched Campbell after the Oilers fell behind 24-0 in the first quarter. Campbell gained 42 yards on 16 carries before retiring for the day and was upset afterwards

"I think now the only thing they (Oilers) can do is put me off this team," Campbell said. "The Houston Oilers treated me bad today. They treated me like a dog today.

"I have individual goals. Nobody said nothing to me about coming out of the game. I feel like I've done nothing wrong. I come to practice on time every day and practice hard every day and then play only the first quarter."

ANDERSON SAID he reached an agreement with his offensive line prior to the game and he played the game unmolested.

"I didn't have to worry about getting hurt today because no one came close to hitting me," said Anderson, returning after spending three weeks on the injury list. "I told the offensive line if they took care of me I'd take care of them.

"We didn't get specific about what it was but I'll have to think of something."

Anderson completed 7 of 12 passes for 107 yards and did not throw an interception after missing three weeks of action.

The Bengals put the game way quickly, jumping to a 34-0 halftime lead on Anderson's 14-yard touchdown pass to Chris Collinsworth, Pete Johnson's touchdown runs of five, one and one yard and field goals of 44 and 29 by Jim Breech.

Second-half scores came on runs of one yard by Stanley Wilson, three yards by Larry Kinnebrew and a 59-yard fumble return by linebacker Reggie Williams.

THE OILERS didn't get on the scoreboard until the fourth quarter when Luck completed a 21-yard touchdown pass to Tim Smith and Curtis Brown dove one yard with 34 seconds left to play.

"They wanted to see Ollie (Luck) and see what he could do," Nielsen said.

"I don't know exactly what's wrong with my performance right now but I feel I can still contribute. I'm still walking around. I'm still breathing. Im okay."

Rookies big part of Detroit's plan

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Coach Monte Clark is counting on six rookies to help the Lions in tonight's National Football League game with the New York Giants.

The Lions, 4-5, have won three of their last four games and Clark gives much of the credit for that turnaround to fullback James Jones, the team's No. 1 draft choice from Florida, and center Steve Mott out of Alabama.

"Jones has stepped right in," Clark said. "His vision is really unbelievable. He's even better than we thought, and we thought he was pretty good when we drafted him."

Jones, who has started every game, has rushed for 382 yards and six touchdowns on 107 carries. He also has caught 29 passes for an additional 314 yards.

Mott took over at center three weeks ago after beating out veteran Amos Fowler.

"It shows the value of a quality program like Alabama's," Clark said. "Steve really is aggressive."

Other rookies who see a great deal of playing time on offense are tackle Rick Strenger, the No. 2 draft pick out of Michigan, and wide receiver Jeff Chadwick, a free agent walkon from tiny Grand Valley State who has become the Lions favorite target in clutch third-down situations.

On defense, Clark has turned increasingly to end Mike Cofer and middle linebacker August Curley.

"Those two guys were relatively low draft choices, but they can really play," Clark said. "It's a real tribute to our scouts."

The Giants, 2-6-1, making their third appearance this season on Monday night, will be trying hard to protect quarterback Scott Brunner — the only experienced signal-caller they have left after injuries knocked out Phil Simms and Jeff Rutledge.

The Giants last Wednesday signed 31-year-old free agent Tom Owen to act as backup to Brunner.

Chaps start play tonight

Midland College launches its 1983-84 basketball season against Cisco College at 7:30 p.m. today in the Langford Chaparral Center.

Coach Jerry Stone's Chaparrals face a busy week at home, but after the Chaparral Tournament Thursday-Friday-Saturday, MC won't be home again until the Western Junior College Conference opener against Western Texas College Nov. 28.

Cisco already has one game under its belt, a loss to improved Odessa College.

Stone returns only four lettermen from last year's team and only one of those, Ervin Williams, was a starter.

The other returnees are 6-6 Brian Essary, 6-5 Jackie Phinnessee, and 6-4½ Preston Robertson.

Freshmen include two District 4-5A products in Jerald Wrightsel, 6-3 star at Big Spring last year, and 6-8 Mike Woolley, Odessa Permian standout. Woolley, however, will miss tonight's game with a shoulder injury.

The 14-player squad includes 6-9 Teviin Bins from the Bronx, the tallest of the newcomers.

Who needs sleep? Lee's bound for playoffs

Midland Lee football coach Spike Dykes didn't sleep Friday night. Scores like 35-0 were dancing in his head. "Sandman bring me a dream," kept spinning in the head. Playoff visions prevailed.

It wasn't as if he didn't try. He hit the sack, couldn't sleep, got up and went to visit an old coaching buddy from the University of Texas at El Paso, who happened to see the Permian-Odessa High game Friday night.

He rolled into his house at 7:57 a.m. just in time to jump in the car for a trip to Lubbock to work out the details of Saturday's Jones Stadium 1:30 p.m. bi-district playoff with Amarillo High.

The playoffs form a gravy train for all concerned. "We're just proud to be here," is the most common quote on record from coaches who experience the train ride in the state's road to glory. Dykes even said it once.

DYKES GOT all the playoff gravy he wanted in his meeting with Amarillo High. It was such an agreeable meeting that one felt like something was missing — like opponents.

After deciding on all the boring, but essential, details, Dykes headed with company to a Lubbock eating establishment, saying, "I know a great place to eat where the cutest waitress in the world will serve you."

The waitress turned out to be Dykes' daughter, who is attending Texas Tech. She twisted daddy's arm one turn, forcing him to shake down a special desert — one there was no room for.

Then it was on the road again with film of Amarillo High tucked in the trunk. By 4 p.m. Dykes was back at the Lee Fieldhouse with his staff and work had begun for Amarillo High. By late Saturday, Dykes and staff had blood-red eyes from seeing about 7,000 feet of film. And probably had a few more grey hairs Sunday morning. Opponents always look tougher on Saturday than they do on game day.

This is the way the Rebels began "Playoff Campaign 1983." For Dykes and his Rebels, this week is going to be one dessert after another. And what better way to get it than from a family member. Midland should help make this dessert as sweet as possible. The community should be one now. This isn't an MHS-Lee game. This is a match for Midland and all Midlanders.

FRIDAY IS the night the Rebels used for celebration of their 35-0 win over Midland High. Now the thoughts are on the playoffs.

Lee linebacker Michael Johnson said Friday after the Rebel win, "You always want to beat Midland High, but to win and earn the playoffs on the same night is really fun. But the playoffs are the thing now."

The state's media eyes will now begin to focus on the 64 Class 5A playoff teams as well as those in the lower classifications. That means Midland will be in a spotlight of sorts.

It's enough to send cold chills down the spine of hearty West Texas football fans. It's also a time to lose a little sleep. Right Spike?

Today the Rebels began preparation for the Golden Sandies, a 1:30 p.m. date with destiny. But it seems like many miles have been travelled before the Rebs ever got back to practice. That Lubbock dessert was the best part of it all. And maybe, just maybe, the return trip to Lubbock for another Saturday will be a dessert in its own right for all of Midland.

Marino to Moore paces Miami

Payton also caught four passes for 32 yards to move ahead of Simpson and behind only Brown on the all-time combined yardage list with 14,440.

Dolphins 20, 49ers 17

Rookie quarterback Dan Marino and Nat Moore combined for two touchdowns and defensive end Doug Betters recovered two San Francisco fumbles in the closing minutes to give Miami its fourth straight victory.

Uwe von Schamann broke a 17-17 tie early in the final period by kicking a 23-yard field goal. A pass interference call set up the winning kick.

Colts 17, Jets 14

Two touchdown by Curtis Dickey led Baltimore to its victory over the New York Jets.

The second of Johnny Hector's two fumbles deep in Jet territory set up Baltimore's go-ahead touchdown in the third period, a 1-yard sweep by Dickey that gave the Colts a 10-7 lead. The Colts then scored their clinching points on a 25-yard pass from Mike Pagel that deflected off defensive back Bobby Jackson's hands to Dickey in the end zone.

Steelers 26, Chargers 3

Defensive back Mel Blount raced six yards for a touchdown with a fumble and Pittsburgh's defense set up two of Gary Anderson's four field goals as the Steelers won their sixth consecutive game.

The Steelers, 8-2, have the NFL's longest active winning streak, while San Diego, 3-7, has lost four in a row.

Raiders 28, Chiefs 20

Jim Plunkett replaced injured Marc Wilson and rallied the Los Angeles Raiders past Kansas City.

Linebacker Rod Martin returned an interception 40 yards for a touchdown with three seconds left in the game for the Raiders' clinching touchdown after Plunkett led the Raiders on three scoring drives.

Packers 35, Browns 21

Lynn Dickey tossed four touchdown passes and Green Bay held off a fourth-quarter rally to top Cleveland.

The victory lifted the Packers' record to 5-5 and snapped a two-game losing streak.

Redskins 45, Cardinals 7

John Riggins scored two touchdowns and linebacker Mel Kaufman returned an interception 70 yards for another score to lead Washington over St. Louis.

Riggins' touchdowns, both coming on 2-yard runs, raised his season total to 14, a team record, and extended his consecutive scoring streak to nine games.

Seahawks 27, Broncos 19

Dave Krieg, starting his second straight game after being replacing Jim Zorn at quarterback, passed for two third-quarter touchdowns and ran for another in the fourth period to lead Seattle over Denver.

The Broncos lost quarterback Steve DeBerg for virtually the remainder of the season when he suffered a separated left shoulder.

Krieg passed 14 yards to Steve Largent and 30 yards to Paul Johns for touchdowns and rookie Curt Warner rushed 25 times for an NFL career-high 134 yards to become the Seahawks' single-season rushing record holder. The American Football Conference's rushing leader improved his season total to 889 yards.

Saints 27, Falcons 10

Dave Wilson, playing in place of injured quarterback Kenny Stabler, threw for 146 yards and a touchdown, while reserve fullback Hokie Gajan ran for two touchdowns as New Orleans defeated Atlanta.

Atlanta, which took a 10-0 lead before the Saints began their comeback turned the ball over three times — twice on fumbles and once on Steve Bartkowski's fourth interception of the season.

Patriots 21, Bills 7

Two long scoring passes by Steve Grogan to Clarence Weathers and another 35-yard Grogan pass to Stanley Morgan to set up another touchdown keyed New England's victory.

Grogan capped a five-play, 80-yard drive with a 40-yard scoring pass play to Weathers, giving the Patriots a 14-0 halftime lead.

Buffalo had its chances. Joe Danelo missed a 24-yard field goal attempt and the Bills had a first-and-goal situation at the Patriots' 1 after a pass interference call, but couldn't score.

Lloyd-Connors win WMD

HOUSTON (AP) — The jokes early in the week turned to cheers in the end for Chris Evert Lloyd and Jimmy Connors, who were together again on the tennis court for the first time in nine years.

"At the beginning of the week, the players were joking about the fact that Jimmy and I were playing together because we are not established doubles players," Lloyd said.

But Lloyd and Connors confounded the odds and, after struggling in some early round matches rolled to a smooth straight sets, 6-4 6-2, 6-4 victory Sunday over Andrea Jaeger and Roscoe Tanner in the finals of the $400,000 World Mixed Doubles Championships at Astroarena.

Connors and Lloyd will share the $100,000 first prize with $50,000 going to Tanner and Jaeger.

Connors mixed clowning with masterful tennis and served for the match in the 10th game of the third set. Lloyd-Connors won it at the third match point when Tanner's forehand sailed long.

Philadelphia offense stalls after Franklin's field goal

They made it 10-0 early in the second period on a 19-yard field goal by Tony Franklin. But their offense sputtered as Dallas caught up and moved ahead.

Franklin kicked a 37-yarder in the third period to cut the margin to 20-13. The Eagles didn't score another touchdown until late in the fourth quarter, a 71-yard pass play from Jaworski to Glen Young.

The Eagles had a last chance when they recovered a fumble at their 6 with 1:05 remaining. But time ran out on a drive that reached the Dallas 37.

Eagles Coach Marion Campbell was pleased with his team's performance.

"Our guys put out a top effort," said Campbell, whose team now is 4-6 and fast fading out of the playoff picture. It was the Eagles' fourth straight defeat, and 10th time in the last 11 games they've lost at home.

Gretzky gives classic showing

By The Associated Press

Edmonton Oilers Coach Glen Sather knew he had seen something special, even considering it was Wayne Gretzky he was watching.

Gretzky, a record-setting scorer the last three seasons, was scoreless in the first period, then exploded for four goals and three assists the rest of the way to lead the Oilers to an 8-5 National Hockey League victory over the Winnipeg Jets Sunday night.

"I think of all the games I've seen him play that has to be one of the classics," said Sather, who has seen nearly every NHL game Gretzky has played. "I don't think you'll ever see anybody play that well again. He just seemed to rise above everything."

It was the seventh time in Gretzky's career he has scored four goals in a game. It was also the 19th time in five seasons with the Oilers that Gretzky has scored at least three goals.

"If I were Tom Watt (coach of the Jets), I'd certainly feel a little bit upset," Sather said. "On the other hand, I guess he's saying to himself that he was beat by one of the best athletes in the world."

Gretzky, who has scored 288 goals in 334 regular-season NHL games, was modest about his performance, and added some praise for his teammates.

"When the hockey team is playing well, we look better as individuals," he said. "I'm fortunate to play on a great team with great linemates, and that makes my job easier."

NHL

Devils 6, Black Hawks 3

At East Rutherford, N.J., New Jersey broke a 10-game losing streak by beating Chicago as Aaron Broten scored two goals and broke an 0-for-31 streak on power plays for the Devils.

Broten opened the scoring at 3:24 of the first period and Mel Bridgman and Paul Gagne followed with goals to make it 3-0. Then Broten added the eventual game-winner and snapped the goal-less power-play string at 7:14 of the second period.

The Black Hawks rallied with three goals in 51 seconds, including two by Denis Savard, to make it 4-3, but Joe Cirella scored an unassisted goal early in the third period and Don Lever followed with an empty-netter 10 seconds before the end.

Bruins 7, Kings 3

Boston won its fifth straight game with a home victory over Los Angeles as Craig MacTavish scored a goal and set up two others.

After the Bruins took a 3-0 lead on a goal by Barry Pederson nine seconds into the second period, the Kings struck back to tie it on goals by Bernie Nicholls, Wes Jarvis and Anders Hakansson in a span of 2:33.

Ray Bourque, assisted by MacTavish, then put the Bruins ahead for good with his seventh goal, at 9:57. MacTavish made it 5-3 with another goal before the end of the second period.

Nordiques 7, Sabres 1

Andre Savard had two goals and two assists as Quebec won easily at Buffalo.

Savard, acquired in the off-season from the Sabres, gave the Nordiques a 2-0 lead in the first period with an unassisted score and a short-handed goal. Then he assisted on the only goal of the second period, by Wilf Paiement.

Then the Nordiques got four more goals in the third period, while Buffalo scored for the first time in 121 minutes and 36 seconds on a goal by Mark Renaud.

Flyers 4, Whalers 2

Brian Propp tied the game with a goal late in the second period and passed to Dave Poulin for the go-ahead tally early in the third to give Philadelphia a home victory over Hartford.

Ron Francis gave the Whalers a 2-1 edge at 6:40 of the second period, but Propp made it 2-2 with a 20-foot wrist shot at 15:29. Then Poulin took a pinpoint pass from Propp in front of the net to put the Flyers ahead 3-2 2:20 into the third period.

Capitals 3, Red Wings 2

At Landover, Md., Washington's Rod Langway scored the game-winning goal 14 seconds into the third period against Detroit.

The Capitals, who lost their first seven games, now have won seven of their last eight.

Langway's goal came with Red Wings goaltender Ed Mio lying injured behind the net.

Substitutes do job for Spurs

By The Associated Press

The San Antonio Spurs, with one of the most celebrated starting lineups in pro basketball, may be finding some bench strength to go with the stars.

Spurs substitutes scored 34 points, grabbed 23 rebounds and handed out 13 assists Sunday night as San Antonio took a 132-115 National Basketball Association victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

Leading the way was Spurs backup center Mark McNamara, who relieved Artis Gilmore and had eight points and five rebounds in 23 minutes. McNamara was acquired from the Philadelphia 76ers on Friday.

"McNamara is real aggressive and he can rebound, which has been one of our weaknesses," Spurs Coach Mo McHone said. "He is really going to help this team."

"I think it's great to be here," McNamara said. "They really have such great players, it doesn't put a lot of pressure on me. It felt great to get a nice welcome from the fans. It really helped my confidence."

Despite the strong contribution from the bench, the Spurs still need the bulk of their offensive punch from the starters. On Sunday, they got 32 points from George Gervin, 24 from Mike Mitchell and 22 from Gilmore, while Johnny Moore had 18 assists.

In addition to McNamara, Keith Edmonson came off the bench for the Spurs and scored 12 points. Another San Antonio substitute, Edgar Jones, totaled eight points and nine rebounds, including eight in the fourth quarter.

Seattle guard Gus Williams led the Sonics with 26 points and 10 assists. Center Jack Sikma finished with 11 points and four rebounds.

The Spurs were in control of the game from the opening moments, taking a 25-15 lead with five minutes left in the first quarter.

San Antonio led 36-32 at the end of the period, stretched the lead to 73-61 at halftime and was up 105-92 at the end of the third period.

"We didn't get the job done tonight," Sikma said. "There was a great deal of pushing and shoving going on out there. They (the referees) called some fouls on me early, and the Spurs were putting good pressure on us defensively."

Spurs forward Gene Banks and Sonics forward Danny Vranes were ejected from the game with six minutes left in the third quarter following a fight that cleared both benches.

"Gene grabbed my jersey and I pushed him away," Vranes said. "Then we got face-to-face, and said some things we shouldn't have said."

"We just bumped heads," Banks said. "The game got heated up and we just got upset at each other. He's an intense player, especially with his size."

Blazers 122, Suns 96

Jim Paxson scored 20 points and rookie Clyde Drexler added 18 as the Portland Trail Blazers romped over the Phoenix Suns 122-96.

The Blazers, leading the Pacific Division with a 4-2 record, broke open a close game in the last three minutes of the second quarter by outscoring the Suns 12-2. Portland led 57-46 at halftime and the Suns never got closer.

Paxson, Mychal Thompson, who added 14 points and six rebounds, and Wayne Cooper fired a 32-22 Blazer third period. Cooper had 14 points and a game-high 11 rebounds as the Blazers outrebounded Phoenix 18-9 in the third period.

Portland played its bench through much of the second half, with Kenny Carr adding 11 points, Lafayette Lever 13 points and Drexler getting 14 of his career-high 18 in the final quarter.

Another rookie, Rod Foster, led the Suns with 16 points, getting all of those in the final period.

Larry Nance with 13 points and eight rebounds, Maurice Lucas with 13 points, and Walter Davis with 12 sparked the Suns, now 1-3 in the Pacific Division.

The Blazers controlled the boards, 47-40, by outrebounding Phoenix 31-16 in the second half.

The pressing Blazer defense forced 22 Phoenix turnovers, which were converted into 30 Blazer points. Portland, led by Darnell Valentine, who had seven assists to go with his nine points, made only 14 turnovers in the game.

Bucks 97, Hawks 84

Sidney Moncrief scored 27 points and Marques Johnson added 14, all in the first half, to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to a 97-84 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

The Bucks took control in the first four minutes of the final period with five points by Randy Breuer and two by Moncrief, stretching a 73-65 lead to 80-70.

The Hawks came no closer than 80-72 on Glenn Rivers' 20-foot shot at 8:04 to go.

Johnson keyed the Bucks to a 25-19 first-quarter lead with 12 points. They opened a nine-point lead 22-13 with eight unanswered points.

Atlanta rallied in the second quarter on the shooting of Mike Glenn, who had 10 successive points for a 33-33 tie. The Hawks took the lead 37-36 on Randy Wittman's shot from the right corner, and again 39-38 when John Pinone hit a layup.

The Bucks went on a scoring spree to lead 45-41 at intermission. The Hawks cut the lead to 49-45 on Glenn's 20-footer with 9:59 to go in the third, but Milwaukee went up 57-47 on Moncrief's running hook shot at 7:59.

Texas-El Paso top choice for first in WAC basketball

DENVER (AP) — Texas-El Paso, which tied for first place in the Western Athletic Conference a year ago and has four starters returning, is the overwhelming choice to be the league's 1983-84 basketball champion.

The Miners were picked first on pre-season ballots cast Sunday by WAC coaches and the media at the annual WAC Basketball Clinic and Media Day.

Brigham Young was tabbed for second place on both polls, and San Diego State was picked third.

On the media ballot, UTEP received 23 of 27 first-place votes and totaled 33 points, based on one point for a first-place vote, two points for a second-place vote, etc. BYU got the other four first-place nods and had 54 points.

SDSU had 99 points, and Hawaii was fourth at 123.

Wyoming was picked fifth with 128 points, followed by New Mexico at 161, Utah 177, Colorado State 192 and Air Force 240.

In the coaches' poll, UTEP got eight of the nine first-place votes for 13 points. BYU, with the other first-place vote, had 19 points, and SDSU finished with 23.

Wyoming and New Mexico tied for fourth at 44 points. Hawaii was sixth at 47, with Utah at 65, CSU at 68 and AFA at 78 winding up the poll.

Gunmen in presidential masks rob RFK Stadium

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two gunmen wearing masks of Presidents Ronald Reagan and Richard Nixon robbed a concessions stand at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium of more than $10,000 following Sunday's National Football League game between the Washington Redskins and the St. Louis Cardinals, police said.

The men, armed with a sawed-off shotgun and a handgun, somehow got past locked doors, and confronted employees of B and B Catering Services Inc. on the stadium's top floor.

Police said one shot was fired, at the concessions manager, but the shot missed and no one was injured.

The gunmen locked some 13 employees in a freezer after the robbery, police said.

'Hit man' protects Rolls-Royce Motors

By The Los Angeles Times - Washington Post News Service

Lewis Gaze appears to be no more of a misrepresentation than the pretenders he pursues.

His British accent is half-buried Liverpudlian. His father is a probation officer and the family's only titles are Mr. and Mrs.

Gaze does not like pinstriped waistcoats and bowler hats; his own clothes bulge where they do not bag. He also attacks, damns, defends, jests and emphasizes in what he acknowledges (wincing slightly) as "gutsy Ford language."

Still, Gaze, at 33, really is the company solicitor (translation from English legalese: general counsel) for dignified, imperial, almighty Rolls-Royce Motors Ltd.

He is also a corporate hit man who wanders from Corfu to Beverly Hills' Rodeo Drive prosecuting unauthorized use of the Rolls-Royce name (that is its legal form, two proper nouns with hyphen) and 38 other company trademarks.

GAZE HANDLES UP to 700 violation reports a year. A letter will squash most trespassers. A telephone follow-up is the second hammer. But each year about 25 culprits will not go away and are taken to court, no matter the country or continent.

And solicitor Gaze's win-loss record is perfect; with an adult-film maker, a Greek minimarket, several car converters and manufacturers of everything from dentist chairs to garden tools among the fallen. On a recent trip to Los Angeles, Gaze logged several other businesses apparently mucking about with the Rolls-Royce name and image, ergo reputation, and they will be hearing from him.

None, however, could match the tackiness of the European T-shirt and designer-jeans manufacturers who once thought the RR logo would be a desirable endorsement of big bosoms and broad backsides.

And then there was the Italian gigolo who for a while was doing business as Signor Roly-Royce.

"It may be seen as a compliment, but it is a compliment we'll have to do without," Gaze explained. "We just can't sit around waiting for a car to come out of Taiwan dressed up like our car. You have to police your trademark or you lose it. We've spent 80 years building up our trademarks and you can't expect us to let some entrepreneur climb on our back and start making money in 80 minutes."

MANY COMPANIES, he likes to point out, failed to secure their trademarks. So aspirin, linoleum, gramophone, escalator, nylon and cellophane have reverted to public domain and now are generic.

"As long as you can show that you have honestly policed your trademark, then the courts will give you their protection," he added. "But we also do it (prosecute) more in sorrow than anger."

For the record, the list of Rolls-Royce trademarks includes the car's Greek-pillared radiator shell and two versions of its hood ornament, ancient and modern, kneeling and standing — the Flying Lady, also known as the Spirit of Ecstasy. Both of those names are registered and protected. So is the Rolls-Royce nameplate, with a separate restriction on the interlinked RRs, to prevent aristocracy by association.

Famous marques of Rolls-Royces....Wrong, warns a company booklet. The trademark cannot be used in the plural.

Rolls-Royce's quality...Try again. The trademark cannot be used in the possessive form.

MARQUES OF ROLLS—ROYCE motor cars (that's better), such as the Camargue, Phantom, and all those silvery Clouds, Spurs, Shadows, Wraiths, Dawns and Ghosts (pardon the plurals), are trademarks. Even Buzzard is on the no-no list as the name of ak72hyq0v)engine produced by Rolls-Royce. That might produce some anxieties in Buzzards Bay, Mass., if the township name were not plural.

The company began guarding its own as early as 1922 with action against Sizaire-Berwick, a French company, for producing radiator shells similar to the Rolls-Royce. The deterrent was powerful, held for years, and Gaze cannot recall any significant prosecutions for another half century.

But then, in those fat, contended years bracketing World War II, who would dare emulate, copy, covet or plagiarize anything by Rolls-Royce? It just was not done. The company was the height of haughtiness, with management a full extension of the old-school blue bloodline of Sir Henry Royce and Charles Stewart Rolls.

Horsepower of the cars was described as "sufficient." Showroom inquiries concerning top speeds were considered gaucheries. If you had to ask about gas consumption, you could not afford the car. The section of an owner's manual dealing with the repair of flat tires began: "Instruct your man...."

And the company secretary was a full-blown barrister.

THEN, IN 1971, Rolls-Royce rolled over into bankruptcy and reorganization virtually reversed its past. David Plastow was tugged from the ranks to become chief executive officer at the age of 42. "He was the architert of the new company," Gaze said, "which has become younger, less stuffy and is even looking into the possibility of manufacturing stretch limousines. I don't believe we (Rolls-Royce) are in a world marketplace where we can tell people to take it or leave it."

That new-breed breakaway also regenerated the company's concern with trademark protection. And when the company secretary retired, his assistant, Gaze, took over the legal department and hunting trademark buccaneers became 60 percent of his business.

"We try to be as reasonable as possible," he emphasized. "Take the man who prints RR on his business cards because his name really is Ronnie Ross. He then tells us he has 500 left, and we feel it is an honest mistake. We'll let him use up his cards, as long as he doesn't print any more.

"Then there was the (Rolls-Royce) hotel in Spain. By the time we found out, they already had the name on the pillowslips and were in a terrible mess. We gave them plenty of time to change their act. But when they (promoters) are attracting eyes to their business and using the fascination of our name to do it, then we're not quite so reasonable."

In England, there was a behemoth car fitted with a Rolls-Royce aero engine behind the famed grille and Flying Lady. "It was supposed to be able to do 200 miles an hour but only did 20 in a great cloud of black smoke," Gaze said. "He (the manufacturer) decided to bring it to court with him but it broke down on the way. Next time he showed up on a horse. We obtained a permanent injunction against him and he was ordered to pay our costs, court costs and a $7,500 fine for contempt."

LONDON PRODUCED another master of masquerade in Genteel Transpositions Ltd., a company offering to convert old and relatively ordinary Austin limousines of the '50s into elderly but stately Rolls-Royce cars for weddings, funerals, receptions and other chauffeur-driven ceremonies. Deception came with a cosmetic kit (costing $400 plus installation) that included Rolls-Royce badges, headlights, emblems and hubcaps to replace Austin's originals.

"There was even a Rolls-Royce plate to go over another plate noting that the engine was a Goldseal engine from BMC (British Motor Corp.)," reported Gaze. "Brides thought they were getting married in a Rolls-Royce, but it was actually a scruffy old Austin. You see, the limousine companies get $60 an hour for a Rolls-Royce but only $30 for an Austin."

Gaze, of course, is a stickler for company integrity. On city tours he drives a Rolls-Royce loaner from the local dealer or distributor. He even wears a tie that is the official neckwear of the Rolls-Royce Owners Club of America.

But wait a minute. Is Gaze a member of the Rolls-Royce Owners Club of America? "Well...um...no." Then isn't he guilty of misrepresentation by wearing the club tie?

"No, because the club gave it to me, and wearing it certainly isn't criminally deceptive.

"As a matter of fact we have a line of giftware called the Rolls-Royce collection. There are Wedgwood dishes, wallets, checkbook covers, ties, ladies' scarfs and, I think, even busts of Rolls and Royce. Why, we even give them to visiting journalists."

Touche. And a Rolls-Royce of a put-down.

Don't worry if you don't have fun

By DON CARTER
Hearst Feature Service

Did you have fun today at the office? If not, you're stuck in a boring, uncreative rut.

But don't worry. Your funless, all-work-and-no-play office probably will go bankrupt soon and you'll have an opportunity to leave the rut for employment in more playful pastures.

That's the gospel according to Roger von Oech, Silicon Valley's high priest of creativity. The oracle of originality is on tour promoting his book, "A Whack on the Side of the Head," a big seller in hardcover that recently was published in paperback.

The "whack" in the book is an event — perhaps the loss of a job for an individual or the verge of bankruptcy for a company — that jars them into fresh ideas and innovation. The book is a collection of von Oech's 36 tips for creative thinking, sandwiched in with bright graphics, anecdotes about various individuals' and companies' approaches to innovation, games, puzzles and a lot of jokes.

Von Oech is much like his book. A slim, dark blond with a boyish cowlick, the 35-year-old author whips off his tie, says he's going to a radio station after this interview, and explains, "You know you can go on radio in your underwear."

The jokes are part of his trade, which is a "creative-thinking consultant" to the likes of Apple, DuPont and IBM. Frequently, he'll start one of his creative idea seminars by playing part of a comedy record "just to get people to loosen up. Otherwise, the first thing people want to do is to hoot down other people's ideas."

At a Hughes Aircraft brainstorming session about satellite design, he recalls, "They started making jokes about the satellite, and there were some bad puns. There's something about humor — you're not afraid of mistakes." The session ended with two innovations in satellite design.

For another company, the frivolous joke that they ought to put gunpowder in paint so it could be blasted off at repainting time turned into a new product. The author says the company now is testing a paint that will self-destruct when coated with a second compound, thus ending the drudgery of sanding and scraping.

In addition to frivolity, von Oech says that coming up with fresh ideas also involves breaking old rules ("People have been taught to do what the boss says and nothing more") and overcoming fear of failure ("If you don't fail occasionally, you're not taking the risks that can bring success").

For a company, von Oech preaches that creativity involves a new appreciation of the workers. "Managers are realizing that their most important resource is their people. Not just the engineers, but the secretaries and the people who drive the trucks.

"The electronics industry already has had its 'whack' from Japan," the author says, and the rest of the business world is learning "that the person who operates the drill press, assembles the automobile or delivers the bedpans in the hospital is in a position to get a lot of new ideas."

Among his other ideas:

— Socialize. One company regularly has a "Friday afternoon beer bust, a time for people to unwind together and keep up with what's going on."

— Reward innovation. Rewards can be fun, he notes, telling of how one division of General Telephone and Electronics rewarded its "Superman of the Month" by assembling a full-size telephone booth in his office over a weekend.

— Kill ideas gently. A lot of offices, he says, "have this idea-killer whose job it is to say, 'It costs too much' or 'Our competitors aren't doing it.' A lot of ideas aren't that good, but the idea is to kill the idea without killing the idea-giver."

— Keep small. Even gigantic Hewlett-Packard Corp., which does $4 billion a year in business, is divided into 60 smaller divisions so workers have closer connections with the products they create.

— Hunt in other fields. A businessperson who stays within the bounds of the MBA has "too narrow a focus to be innovative," von Oech says. He recommends sabbaticals in non-related fields, and recalls the manager who came back inspired after three months as an actor with a London Shakespearean troupe.

— Reverse thinking. "How can we make our products uglier? Wear out faster? What can we do to get people not to buy them?"

The author was a marketer for IBM, and then got the idea that a lot of companies could ue help in deeloping frh ies.H 61/2nsw oss 500,00 a year.

Survey finds optimism

HOUSTON — A quarterly survey of Texas business people showed continued optimism for both the October-December quarter and the next 12 months. The survey is regularly conducted by the Texas Association of Business.

Results from the poll indicated that business people in Texas were marginally more optimistic going into the final calendar quarter of 1983 than they were about the third quarter when it began.

Respondents were asked to complete a checklist predicting sales, profit and the number of employees at the executives' own businesses during the next three months and the next 12 months.

The survey disclosed that 73 percent of the business people polled expected sales to increase by the end of the year. Two thirds indicated they could foresee boosts in their companies' profitability within the next three months.

These figures represent a 2 percent gain in expectations of sales increases and 6 percent rise in the anticipation of greater profits compared to predictions of third quarter activity.

Also, 39 percent of the respondents expected to add more employees before the end of the year, a 6 percent increase over predictions for the last quarter.

The count of executives predicting that employment would remain static (currently 49 percent) or to drop (11 percent) were correspondingly lower than for the July-September time span.

Forecasts for the longer term were upbeat and for the most part closely tracked results from the last poll.

During the next 12 months, 88 percent of those polled expect sales to trend upward and 82 percent anticipate that profits will rise. Neither of these figures varies more than three percentage points from the next most recent survey.

Though still substantially more optimistic for the next 12 months than for the October-December quarter, the measured employment outlook was not quite as hopeful as the last poll indicated. Respondents now indicate that 51 percent of them will increase the number of employees at their places of business in the next year. Ten percent will suffer employment losses and 39 percent expect no changes in the number of employees during the next 12 months.

Compared to the third quarter poll, this represents a 7 percent increase in those who expect no change, a 6 percent decrease in the number of companies which anticipate more hiring and the gain of an additional point among those who expect employment to go down.

Business executives responding to the survey represented a broad base of types of businesses within the state as well as a wide range of company sizes.

Quarter opens with bang

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. economy opened the year's final quarter with a bang, extending its recovery with higher production and steady prices, a study said Sunday.

In its monthly business survey, the National Association of Purchasing Management said the economy improved in October at a faster pace than in September.

Besides gains in industrial output, the employment picture continued to brighten, capital spending rose and businesses showed greater confidence in the economic recovery.

"Based on these indicators, a solid fourth quarter seems assured," the association said.

The association bases its monthly reports on a survey of corporate executives in charge of buying goods and services for 250 industrial corporations.

The group's Purchasing Managers' Composite Index, measuring changes in production, new orders, employment, vendor performance and inventories, rose in October to 61.2 percent from 60.2 percent in September. A reading above 50 percent indicates that the economy is growing; below 50 percent indicates a declining economy.

The employment reading was on the upswing for the fifth straight month, the association said, although the rate of improvement was slower than in September.

The Labor Department reported Friday that the civilian unemployment rate fell in October to 8.8 percent of the work force from 9.3 percent in September. The October rate was the lowest in 20 months, and the number of jobless fell below 10 million for the first time since March 1982.

The purchasing managers' survey said industrial production continued to grow moderately in October, while incoming new orders were reported increasing at a brisk pace. Although the increase in new orders was smaller than in September, the assocation said the October gains were "still looking very positive."

The survey said inventories remained low, which the association called surprising.

Iran's threat has little effect

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Iran's threats to block oil shipments through the Persian Gulf apparently have had little impact at U.S. gas pumps, where a survey indicates prices have continued a 12-week decline.

The average price for a gallon of any grade of gasoline at 17,500 stations nationwide was $1.22 on Friday, down eight-tenths of a cent in two weeks, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg said Sunday.

The steady decline contrasts with the 68-cent-a-gallon increase to $1.04 a gallon that followed the Iranian revolution in 1979.

"In very recent time, you've again had those rising threats (from Iran)," Lundberg said. "It's remarkable that the American community has remained on an as-is psychological basis.... We're maintaining our cool."

Lundberg, publisher of a weekly trade periodical, described oil consumers' attitude toward Iranian threats as "between confidence and complacency," and said it was justifiable because he believes developed nations could easily cope with a short-term closure of the Persian Gulf.

He also noted that the United States and the Soviet Union supported a recent United Nations Security Council resolution to protect oil shipments and installations in the gulf despite the Iran-Iraq war, now three years old.

"The complacency seems to reside in the belief that Iran doesn't have the naval and the air power to make good on its threat," Lundberg said.

Lundberg said most observers also believe Iran and Iraq are "not going to go the limit and totally destroy their future economies."

His survey found that at self-service pumps, where 72 percent of gas is now purchased, average prices fell to $1.17.18, down 0.98 cents. At full-service pumps, the average was $1.34.63, down 0.58 cents.

Dollar reaches new high

LONDON (AP) — Buoyed by expectations of higher U.S. interest rates, the dollar surged on world money markets early today, reaching a new all-time high against the Italian lira. Gold prices continued a month-long sag.

The dollar's strength appeared to derive from predictions by various analysts published over the weekend that American interest rates were likely to remain high or go even higher, dealers said.

Such a move would boost the value of dollar-denominated investments.

On Friday, after markets closed in Europe, the U.S. Federal Reserve disclosed a $900 million increase in its M1 index of the amount of money in circulation. A jump in the figure is generally seen as a harbinger of firmer rates.

In Frankfurt today, dealers reported a 116 percent boost in Eurodollar deposit rates — interest paid on dollars held here.

The net effect was to drive the dollar to a new high against the Italian lira in Milan of 1,625.25 in interbank trading, compared with Friday's 1,614.75. The highest closing rate ever for the dollar was 1,620.50 on Sept. 22.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day gets under way, the dollar rose nearly two yen, closing at 236.45 yen, compared with Friday's 234.63. Later in London, the dollar was quoted at 237.05 yen.

In Europe, these other rates were reported at mid-morning, compared with late Friday:

– 2.6817 West German marks, up from 2.6660.

– 2.1719 Swiss francs, up from 2.1707.

-- 8.1530 French francs, up from 8.1055.

-- 3.0070 Dutch guilders, up from 2.9908.

– 1.23525 Canadian dollars, up from 1.23425.

Capital gains tax debated

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street leaders and members of Congress have revived a familiar debate lately, haggling over the holding period for capital gains.

A law on the books since 1976 states that investments like stocks and bonds must be held for at least one year to allow their owners preferential tax treatment on any profits when they sell.

Even casual investors are familiar with the rule: Sell at a profit after a year or less, and pay up to 50 percent of the gain to Uncle Sam. Hold on past a year before selling and you've reached "long-term" territory, where the top tax rate is only 20 percent.

For the last couple of years, Wall Street has been lobbying intently to get the holding period shortened to six months, restoring it to its pre-1976 length. The Reagan administration supports the idea.

When the Senate Finance Committee approved a plan last Monday to do just that, though, the vote set off no celebrations in the financial world.

On several previous occasions, similar proposals have cleared the Senate, only to be killed later in conference sessions with members of the House of Representatives. Illinois Democrat Dan Rostenkowski, who is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has been an important opponent.

But late last week, as the House panel held new hearings on the subject, Rostenkowski was described as "open" and "flexible" on the matter. So even with all the beatings it has taken in the past, the six-month holding period appeared ready to climb back into the ring for another round.

What is it about such a mundane-sounding subject that gets so many people excited? Advocates like the Securities Industry Association, a trade group, say a shorter holding period would be an important stimulus to investment in this country.

Jim Bones places a print positive into the magenta dye used in dye transfer print making. Three colors of dye — yellow, magenta and cyan — are used in combination to complete the transfer.

Color creations

Bones places a dyed print positive onto a silverless print paper to transfer the dye color to the emulsion of the paper.

Text by Georgia Temple

"From the primary dye pigments yellow, magenta and cyan, all of the colors of the artist's palette can be reproduced from pure white to pure black with all of the subtle hues in between," Jim Bones tells those arriving early for his photography program.

Russell Lee's first assistant when Lee began to teach at The University of Texas at Austin, Bones also worked with Eliot Porter from whom he learned the color process he uses. He has three books in print — "Texas Earth Surfaces," "Texas Heartland, A Hill Country Year" and "Texas West of the Pecos" — and is in the process of creating another, "Mountains to the Sea: The Life of the Rio Grande."

It is this project which brings him to Midland's Museum of the Southwest for the opening of a two-month exhibit of the works which will be included in "Mountains" and a demonstration of the dye transfer process of print making.

By the time he begins the session, the classroom next to the museum's Stables Gallery is packed with at least 75 people (many more than the 30 or so expected). Those who come late are standing, sitting, kneeling in whatever small spot they can find.

The turnout causes him to say, "I had no idea so many people were interested in such an archaic process." (Dye transfer is a refined form of the wash-off relief process which grew out of an even earlier method.)

THROUGHOUT THE evening he never lectures. He chats. Talking with those there as if they were old friends, he explains the process and his feelings about his work in an easy-going, personable manner.

The moment of truth comes midway through the session.

"Those of you who are close enough will see that basically the complete image is going to be there the instant I roll this out," Bones says as he begins to squeegee the third positive printer (which has been soaking in dye) onto the aquiline paper (the dye will physically transfer from the printer to the paper).

Everyone moves forward. Silence fills the room for the first time followed by exclamations of surprise. Skeptics, if there were any, vanish.

Laughter answers his comment, "Isn't that wonderful?

"THAT'S WHAT I live for when I'm working. That moment when the final color goes on. It takes about nine hours from the time I start with the transparency till I get to this point right here where I've seen what the image is like.

"It's completely deferred gratification, but at that moment all of that energy you've put into it over all those hours has come back to you."

An audience member interjects: "It's the moment of 'Oh wow!' or 'Oh gosh.'"

Bones transfers each color separately by rolling the dyed print positives onto the print paper's emulsion.

Bones agrees.

"You've got to have an immense amount of patience to do this, but the rewards that come from that patience are tremendous" he says. "The quality of print that you get, I believe, makes it worth doing."

THE PLUSES FAR outweigh the length of time involved in the work or the cost to get started (at least $2,000-$3,000 in darkroom equipment not including the enlarger).

"It's terrible to have to spend half of your life in the dark," Bones says. "The great thing is doing it (printing) in the light."

"How many exposures do you take," someone asks.

"One."

"Are you that sure of yourself?" asks another member of the audience.

"No, but there's too much else going on. If I shoot three or four of something, I may miss something else that I want.

"You can get to where you're within a third or a half-stop exposure, if you take your time. With this process, I can correct that. I can correct up to about two-thirds of a stop underexposed and about a third to a half-stop overexposed."

BONES RECALLS "a wonderful quote that Eliot said one time, 'No picture is indispensable.' There's always something else to be done."

Dye transfer offers almost unlimited options.

"I can make any kind of reality I want to (with this process). It offers the greatest artistic control of any of the color print processes.

"In one sense this is a tremendous advantage, and in another sense this is a disadvantage because you are constantly faced with decisions," he says as the audience laughs.

"You sound as if you're more interested in turning out pretty pictures than ones that are real," says someone from the back of the room, his words begging a reaction.

"I THINK YOU'RE right," Bones responds. "Although I've been deceiving myself all these years that what I wanted was a believable picture. I do want the image to be as engaging as possible.

"These are all lies, these are all illusions. They're not the real thing.

"There's no way that a two-dimensional abstraction of dye and paper is going to have the same physical impact on your emotions that being in a place and hearing the wind and smelling the air and feeling the textures that are around you will have.

"So in a sense you have to exaggerate the photographic image to bring you close to the same experience that was there.

"When I say they're lies and illusions, they're exaggerations of nature designed to provoke you into looking for those colors when you go out there because the colors that are there are even more beautiful and even more subtle than anything you can render in the dye transfer. And the contrast range and the color saturation is much greater than anything that can happen in a print.

"No I don't claim these colors are real. I mean these are aniline dyes. There's no way that they're going to be the same as the mineral pigments and the spectral reflections that you find, say, in birds feathers or flower petals.

"I never have even thought about them being real just because the whole process is unreal. The whole of photography, the whole of art, basically is unreal.

"The experience that you have looking at the pictures is real. What goes on in your mind is real. What you make of the images is real, but they themselves are not."

Bones displays final product of the dye transfer method. The nine-hour process is a refined form of the wash-off relief process which grew out of an earlier method.

Process requires reversal of thinking

"It is not a photographic process; it is a fine print-making process," Jim Bones says of the dye transfer method he and only about 150 photographers in the United States use.

For those familiar with photography, this method requires a complete reversal of thinking.

"This is the additive color process; all the others are what are called subtractive color processes," he says.

"You are not dealing with the compliment. If you want to make it redder, you don't add green filters to it, you just add the red to it or you take out the other colors."

Unlike other color processes, "with this process the bigger it is, the sharper it is."

He describes dye transfer, the most permanent color photographic process known, this way:

"I start out with a four-by-five transparency. I have to make two color masks which are very faint diffuse black-and-white negatives. I expose those, develop and dry them and then put them back in contact — in register with the transparency. What they do is reduce the overall contrast of the scene, and they also help to do color correction.

"With that sandwich I contact-expose sheets of black-and-white film for each of the three primary colors of light which are red, blue and green.

"I develop those.

"When those are dried I make my density reading to determine what my exposure is going to be for the matrices. I then expose one matrix for each of those primary colors — red, blue and green — and then dye them in a complimentary color because I'm going from separation negatives to printer positives.

"Red, green, blue comes out cyan, magenta, yellow when you go through the reversal process. It's just like positive to negative. It's also primary color to primary pigment. There's a big distinction there between the spectral color of light that you start with, and the spectral color of pigment that's going to reflect the light.

"Once I have the printers exposed and developed, I put them in their respective dye baths.

"They being the very delicate sponges that they are, take on the dye in proportion to the densities. The dark areas taking on a great deal of dye and the lighter areas taking on a very little dye.

"I will them take them out of the dye baths, rinse off the excess and one after another squeegee them into contact with the paper in register on the transfer board.

"The process is really very simple in theory, it's complicated to go through it. But, if you're consistent, it's very repeatable."

Tower to be state campaign chairman

From Staff and Wire reports

BRYAN, Texas — U.S. Sen. John Tower, who has decided not to seek another term, will become President Reagan's re-election campaign chairman in Texas, the Bryan-College Station Eagle reported.

The newspaper also said Midland oil and mining magnate William B. Blakemore II, would be named one of five Texas finance co-chairmen for the re-election campaign.

The newspaper quoted an unidentified campaign committee source in Washington as saying Tower would be named to the post Monday.

Former Gov. Bill Clements led the state's 1980 GOP effort, in which Reagan's campaign received $2.5 million in state contributions to President Jimmy Carter's $1.9 million.

Tower, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, announced in August that he would not seek re-election.

The other Texas finance co-chairmen for Reagan's re-election campaign to be named today, the newspaper reported, are Michel T. Halbouty, a Houston geologist and former Texas A&M University regent; Houston developer Walter M. Mischer; San Antonio motel chain chairman Samuel E. Barshop, and Dallas developer Robert H. Dedman.

Officials to check grain conditions at elevator

PLAINVIEW (AP) — The condition of corn being inspected at an elevator here is the focus of a battle between Texas officials and the U.S. Agriculture Department over whether to make the government grain available to drought-smitten farmers and ranchers.

A team of federal experts headed by the state's top grain-warehouse regulator were scheduled today to inspect the 21.5 million bushels of grain to determine its quality.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary John Ford said the inspection is "a fact-finding mission for the secretary (John Block). "We are not down there to announce any (grain) release. I can tell you that."

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, who wants the grain made available to drought-stricken areas of West Texas, says that an analysis he commissioned of the corn indicated its quality had seriously deteriorated.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, last week asked the Senate Agriculture Committee to investigate the condition of the corn at the elevator, operated by the PLB Grain Storage Corp.

The Agriculture Department lists less than 1 percent of the corn stored at the elevator as of the lowest grade, while the Texas officials' sampling showed 53 percent was of the lowest grade.

Federal inspections in 1981 and 1982 found discrepancies between official inventories and the actual quality of the corn in the elevator, Bentsen said.

But Block told Bentsen in a letter that the government had examined the grain in both March 1982 and March 1983 and that "the quality of corn appears to be the same".

A spokesman for Bentsen, however, said the federal inspection of last March was not a full-fledged inspection of the grain's quality.

Police investigate burglaries

Police are investigating burglaries which occurred Sunday.

At 10:06 p.m. Paul Yoringer reported a burglary at 4406 Illinois. According to reports, the Alamo Car Wash's coin machines were burglarized. Reports stated there was $800 worth of damage to the machines and $25 was taken.

Janice McCullough reported at 12:29 p.m. a burglary at 2811 N. Loop 250. Apparently entry was gained through a south bathroom window and a TV valued at $500 was taken.

Darla Smith told police about 4:45 p.m. Sunday that a burglary occurred at 1704 Morgan Way. According to reports, a shotgun, watch, gold ring and 15 silver dollars valued at $2,206 was taken.

At 6:56 p.m. Robert Hicks, 2929 W. Illinois, reported a burglary of a TV valued at $780.

Texas schools enter the computer world

DALLAS (AP) — A gap is emerging between schools that have computers and those that don't because of funding inequities state officials say they haven't been able to correct.

"The rich get richer and the poor play video games," said Sandy Pratscher, who was hired a year ago to develop a statewide plan for classroom computers. "There's no question there's a discrepancy."

Use of computers in Texas classrooms has tripled in the past year and now more than half of all the state's schools use computers, the Dallas Morning News reported Sunday.

According to Market Data Retrieval Inc. statistics, 3,085, or 57.6 percent, of the state's schools have computers this year, compared to 872, or 16.4 percent, in 1981.

"Everybody feels they have to get on board," Ms. Pratscher said of the state's schools. "They've bought computers even if they weren't prepared for them."

But many schools who can't afford to buy the equipment and software are being left behind, she said.

The Texas Education Agency has been mostly unsuccessful trying to iron out the inequities, said Joe Neely, TEA director of special programs.

"Funding is the big issue now," Neely said. "Most computers are bought with local money. The schools that are the richest have money for them. The poorest schools can qualify for some federal funds. It's the ones in the middle tha sometimes get left out."

"This puts a strain on them," he said. "It certainly opens up the question of equity."

Texas schools primarily are using computers in high school programming classes and for mathematics drills in elementary schools, Ms. Pratscher said.

In some school districts, students are writing programs, using word processors to write English themes and hooking up to data-retrieval systems.

But many schools, according to a nationwide survey by Market Data Retrieval, have entered the computer age blind.

"I think a lot of schools bought computers because of parental pressure," said John Hood, vice president of marketing for Market Data Retrieval.

"It was a little surprising but we found quite a number of schools using more than one brand of computer. Some of the software is not as advanced as the computers," he said.

TEA has drafted guidelines for computer literacy, which have been presented to the State Board of Education for adotpion.

"We're urging districts to slow down," said Ms. Pratscher. "We prefer that they use caution and establish well-thought-out plans."

Planned Parenthood will sponsor Thouvenel concert

A special benefit performance by the Thouvenel String Quartet will be the highpoint of a special evening sponsored by Planned Parenthood of the Permian Basin Thursday.

The short concert, "Favorites of the Thouvenel String Quartet," will be followed by a champagne reception. Sharon and Don Davidson will host the event at 1606 Country Club Drive.

The only professional string quartet with a performing residency in Texas, the Thouvenel was rated "one of the best anywhere in the world" in a recent Texas Monthly article. Formed in 1975, the group took its name from the 19th century craftsman, Henri Thouvenel, who had made the cello used by Jeffrey Levenson, one of the quartet's founding members.

Other players are Eugene Purdue and Edmund Stein, violinist, and Sally Chisholm, violist. All four are members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

Donations received from the event will help fund Planned Parenthood public affairs projects. The major goal of the agency is to make quality family planning care available to all, regardless of income.

Tickets, priced at $30 per person, can be obtained by calling Planned Parenthood, 563-2530.

Teens fight against DWI

BLANCO, Texas (AP) — Today was the beginning of RID Week — "Remove Intoxicated Drivers — in this small Hill Country town.

More than 700 balloons were to released at the high school as the school district and city began the weeklong campaign against teenage drunken driving.

It all began because Debbie Robinson, 16, wanted a project to earn a Silver Award as a Girl Scout.

"What we are trying to impress on the kids is, 'If you are going to drink, don't drive.' " she said. "We're not telling them they can't drink. Alcohol is socially acceptable. Drunken driving is not."

Debbie, a Blanco High School Senior, said her project began when she read a magazine article about drinking and driving and decided to learn all she could about the problem.

The Girl Scout cookie box that was her first filing cabinet was soon overflowing. She heard about RID-USA which has been used in several cities.

Today, teen-agers and their parents in Blanco were asked to sign personal contracts. The teenagers agree to call a parent or guardian for a ride at any hour of the day or night if they have been drinking while out in a car. The parent agrees agrees to pick up the teen-ager at any hour, with no questions asked.

Woman arrested in man's death

ODESSA — A 49-year-old woman was arrested here Sunday night in connection with death of a 70-year-old man, according to a spokesman at the Odessa Police Department.

Arlos M. McClintock, of 210 S. Lee, was pronounced dead at 9:45 p.m. Sunday by Justice of the Peace R.G. Hungerford. An autopsy has been ordered.

According to reports, the Ector County Sheriff's Department notified police at 8:29 p.m. A police spokesman said officers found McClintock with injuries to his head.

McClintock's body was taken to Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

Defense attorneys to call girlfriend to stand

DALLAS (AP) — Defense attorneys say they would call the girlfriend of an armed robbery defendant to the stand today to support his contention that the charge stems from racism and faulty investigative work.

Anthony Williams, 25, testified Saturday that he was at home watching television with his girlfriend when a suburban convenience store was robbed of $31.

The black engineer told an all-white jury he had no idea why he was arrested last year by police in Greenville, 50 miles northeast of Dallas. He subsequently was charged with the Aug. 22 robbery of a Garland 7-Eleven store.

Williams' former roommate and coworker, Lenell Geter, was sentenced to life in prison last year for the robbery of a Balch Springs restaurant the day before the convenience store was robbed.

At Geter's trial, five eyewitnesses identified him as the robber, but nine co-workers said he was at work the day of the robbery.

Both men moved here from South Carolina last year to work for E-Systems, Inc.

Also taking the stand Saturday was a thrice-convicted felon who testified after authorities apprehended him through a telephone trace. James Samuel Wilson had called defense attorneys repeatedly with anonymous information he said cast doubt on the prosecution's star witness, Lyla Bagget.

Mrs. Bagget, a clerk at the convenience store, testified Thursday that she had "no doubt" Williams was the gunman who robbed her.

Wilson, who said he was Mrs. Bagget's nephew, testified outside the jury's presence that he once heard her plot to fake a robbery.

Wilson testified that in 1979, he was in Mrs. Bagget's apartment when she and a man whose name he could not remember discussed faking a robbery of the convenience store where she worked to steal the store's money.

The 50-year-old Albuquerque, N.M. man said he telephoned defense attorneys with the allegation because "I thought I was helping somebody ..."

One-year-old boy listed as critical

ODESSA — A one-year-old boy is listed in critical condition at Women's and Children's Hospital, following a car-pedestrian accident Sunday afternoon.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Steven Parker Childs, 6503 Mesa Circle, was injured when he was playing in his driveway about 2 p.m. Sunday. The DPS said his uncle, Kerry Lee Reed, 31, of Odessa, did not see the child and backed out of a driveway.

Church members pledge millions

DALLAS (AP) — Members of the giant First Baptist Church responded to the congregation's annual fund-raising drive by pledging $1 million more than needed for the church's $9.3 million budget.

"When the tally was completed after the morning service (Sunday), we had counted pledges totaling $10.3 million for our 1984 giving," said Dallas businessan Dick Clements, who spearheaded the campaign for "Victory Sunday."

Clements, who said he was overwhelmed by the 26,000-member congregation's response, gave the credit to the church's pastor, Dr. W.A. Criswell.

Criswell called it a "God-glorifying budget."

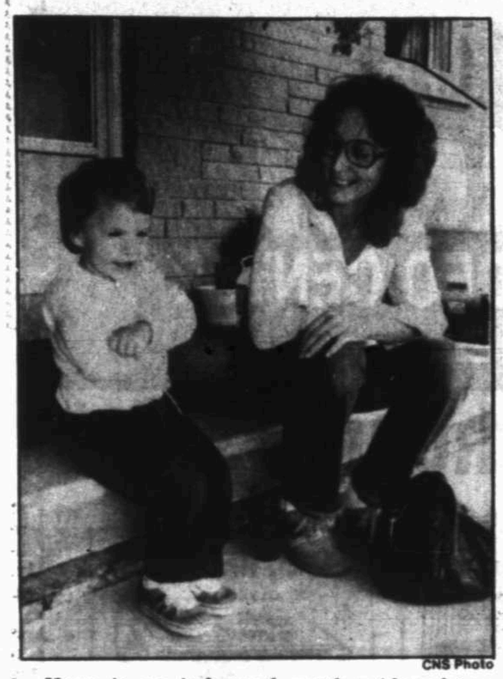
Photographs of children can be improved



CNS Photo

By HOLT CONFER
Copley News Service

Children are probably the most photographed subject in the world, yet most of the pictures aren't all that interesting. How often do you look through the family photo album, glancing at pictures of yourself as a child, and recalling with vivid detail just what was going on when each photograph was taken.

Yet lots of times, as you look at those same pictures with the eye of a critical photographer, chances are you'll see a few thing that might have been improved.

Before cameras were so easy to operate, and much before there was such a proliferation of photographic advice available, the "hold still, look at the camera and smile" method of taking pictures was used by just about every camera owner.

Today, you and I are a bit more sophisticated. We don't want the obviously posed picture. Instead we are looking to capture a whole range of emotions and activities so that the pictures we take appear to be (because they really are) a natural part of life. And the secret to capturing those "natural" photographs is to wait until your subjects are busy doing things — reading, washing dishes, raking leaves, combing the dog, feeding the cats, hiking, bike riding, getting a haircut, climbing a tree and so on.

Putting these special natural moments on film means that you'll need to keep a camera handy — a simple camera, one that doesn't require a lot of fiddling with dials and manipulating controls to get good results. My recommmendation would be one of the new wave of auto focus cameras. Once you begin to use an auto focus camera for these "everyday" shots, I believe you'll become a firm believer in this type of equipment.

Another of the prime rules for photographing little children is to get down to their level. Unless you're willing to sit on the ground or floor so that you can shoot at the child's level, better restrict your picture taking to teenagers who are more nearly adult height.

If you don't think the difference in height between adults and children makes a difference in the way they appear in pictures, ask you husband or wife to sit on the floor, and then take the picture from your visual standing position. You won't have to look at too many of these pictures to understand what I'm talking about.

When you're beginning to photograph kids, one of the secrets to getting a memorable shot is volume — takes lots of photographs, and edit them carefully. Sure there will be that one fleeting moment which you'll have to capture with a single shot — or lose forever, but most situations you'll encounter will allow you the time to take a series of pictures.

Making half a dozen or even a dozen shots of the same type of activity in order to get a really good shot isn't wasteful, it's just good photographic sense.

Weather watchers' work easier

The volunteer weather observers' faithful measuring stick for snow and rainfall is giving way to a tape device that automatically records the daily amount of precipitation. The tape has to be collected only once a month.

Also, the volunteers' outdoor mercury and alcohol thermometers are being replaced by digital readout devices that can be read indoors.

DEAR ABBY

Woman finds company

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last week I read in your column a letter from a young woman who discovered that her mother had been having an affair with her husband. Believe it or not, I was happy to read it because I realized that I was not alone! My mother and husband had an ongoing affair for 16 years before I found out. It had been going on right under my nose and I never suspected a thing.

It's been a year now, and I'm still struggling with the anger, bitterness and feelings of betrayal. I'm seeing a counselor who is helping me deal with this. Until I read that letter in your column, I thought I was the only person in the world in such a bizarre situation.

Abby, you do such a great service by allowing people to tell their stories. So many times we feel we're so alone that no one could possibly know what we're going through and how we feel.

Now I'm sure I'm going to make it. Thanks for being there. — CLIMBING BACK UP IN COLORADO SPRINGS

DEAR CLIMBING: Don't thank me; that's what I'm here for. Please write again and let me know how you're doing. I care.

DEAR ABBY: On a recent trip returning from London, I was driven to near madness by a hyperactive 5-year-old boy who ran up and down the aisles screaming and intentionally ramming people with his toy truck while his parents drank martinis and beamed at him.

After the third time he connected with my second-degree sunburn, I gave up hoping for either the flight attendants or the parents to discipline the child. I told the mother bluntly that the next time the boy rammed me I would probably "ram" him back.

A plane is no place for a child to be running around unsupervised. Also, it was not what I paid a thousand dollars for.

Perhaps major airlines should schedule two or three flights a week for families on long trips — and those of us who want some peace and quiet can fly on the other days when no children under a certain age are allowed on those flights. A sensible idea? — DEB IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR DEB: Sensible indeed. But please don't offer the major airlines suggestions until they resolve their own major problem — surviving.

PLANTS IN THE HOME

Camellias grow well in cool parts of home

By ELVIN McDONALD

My apartment is too warm for growing camellias, but this doesn't stop me from admiring them. Last week I saw my first two of season, 'Kickoff' and 'Touchdown,' at Dixon Gallery and Gardens in Memphis.

Over the years I've observed that hardly anyone ever has just one camellia. They are definitely among the most desired and collectible of all flowers. In my dreams I will have a slathouse to shade mine in the summer and a glasshouse to protect the fall-winter-spring blooms from inclement weather.

If you have a sunporch, sunny guest room, home greenhouse or any space that is cool (40-60 F.), airy and moist in winter, I urge you to try some camellias. One major catalog ($1 per copy) source is Nuccio's Nurseries, 3555 Chaney Trail, Altadena, Calif. 91001.

Another vital resource is membership ($12.50) in the American Camellia Society, Box 1217, Fort Valley, Ga. 31030. A quarterly "Camellia Journal" reports dates and places of camellia competitions and top growers share insights into culture.

When a camellia grows vigorously, buds well but doesn't bloom, the causes could include letting the soil become too dry, lack of humidity (they need 70 to 80 percent), and temperatures below freezing or above 60 F., especially in combination with a dry atmosphere.

Camellias also need soil having an acid pH. Use a fertilizer labeled specifically for them and a potting mix with generous amounts of sphagnum peat moss.

Camellias can be good winter blooming plants if one has a proper place to grow them.

Q. What does it mean when you say you "mulch" your plants?

A. I cover the soil surface in the pot with almost any attractive material that might be found on the ground in an outdoor garden: woods or sheet moss, pine needles, or pebbles. I have also used rose or other scented geranium leaves (dried and chopped coarsley), cut lavander trimmings and crushed clay pot shards.

Mulching, whether done in pots or in an outdoor garden conserves moistures and can help stabilize soil temperatures. Black plastic, which is often used outdoors, won't do in the house, unless of course you're into high tech.

I enjoy mulching because it gives a finishing touch that is satisfying. I try to match the color texture with the plant. This kind of activity leads from minutes of gardening to hours of pleasure.

Q. How much humidity do you maintain for your plans?

A. I live in a modern highrise apartment. In the summer, when air conditioning is used, I put away the humidifiers; running both at the same time would be counter productive. In autumn and spring, on nice days when the windows can be opened, I let New York City breezes do the humidifying.

When winter heat is needed, then I pull out as many cool-vapor humidifiers as can be mustered. I try for one in each room where I have a sizable number of plants. This kind of moist atmosphere definitely benefits plant growth and means that I can be comfortable in cooler temperatures.

My bulletin on air moisturizing for healthier house plants gives more nitty-gritty. Send 50 cents coin and a stamped, self-addressed, long envelope with "humidity" written on the back flap to Elvin McDonald Reader Service, Box R, Niagara Falls, N.Y. 14305; in Canada, 4141 Glenayr Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont. L2E 6K1.

Quick Take: "The Low Maintenance Garden" by Graham Rose has just arrrived from the Viking Press ($13 paper, $26 hard; at booksellers or write to the publishers at 40 W. 23rd St., New York, N.Y. 10010). It's the second in a series and every bit as useful and appealing as the first, "The Contained Garden" (same prices). These are published in cooperation with the Institute of Urban Horticulture of The New York Botanical Garden and highly recommended.

Thailand's all-women banking operations successful

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) - With feminine charm, financial savvy and expertise in judo and sharpshooting, Thailand's all-women banking operations are giving male bankers a run for their money.

Bangkok Bank has two award-winning branches staffed entirely by women and the Thai Government Savings Bank has one. Bangkok Bank Vice President Prachuab In-Odd says they are the first of their kind in Asia.

No strident women's liberation talk here — and no inhibition about using femininity for financial gain. Says Aree Supapan, one of the Bangkok Bank branch managers: "Our soft and gentle manners make for better service. To us, customers are kings."

Bangkok Bank — the largest in Southeast Asia in terms of assets — established the first all-women's branch in 1964. The thinking, says Prachuab, was that women customers would find it easier to discuss financial problems with their own sex and that more women — the traditional purseholders in the Thai family — should be elevated to senior banking positions.

CONSUMER BULLETIN

NO SALT ADDED VARIETY DEBUTS NATIONWIDE FOR PREGO® SPAGHETTI SAUCE

Prego® No Salt Added Spaghetti Sauce is being introduced at supermarkets nationwide for consumers who are cutting back on salt intake or who are on sodium restricted diets. The new product contains only 35 milligrams of sodium per four-ounce serving and is available at the same suggested price as three other varieties in the Prego® line: plain, mushroom and meat flavored spaghetti sauces.

The newest addition to the popular Prego® line, Prego® No Salt Added Spaghetti Sauce, now is available at supermarkets nationwide. Rich tasting and robust, Prego® No Salt Added Spaghetti Sauce contains no added salt or sugar, no starch and no artificial colors, flavors or preservatives. What does it contain? Homemade Taste! Prego® sauces were selected by seven out of 10 consumers as "homemade" in a blind test against the competition and a homemade sauce prepared from an Italian recipe. It is the same skillful blending of juicy red tomatoes and Italian herbs and spices that make Prego® No Salt Added Spaghetti Sauce every bit as flavorful as its predecessors.

For today's health conscious consumer, Prego® No Salt Added Spaghetti Sauce meets a specific need. In a 1981 Gallup study, a question was asked regarding the agreement or disagreement with the statement "I am very concerned about the nutritional value of the foods my family eats." The survey found 85 percent of the people agreeing with the statement.

Another recent consumer survey conducted by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration shows that salt ranks second only to sugar as a food ingredient which people look for on food labels...in order to avoid them.

According to supermarket consumer advisors, consumer acceptance of low sodium products has been slow. The ones that have fared well are those skillfully flavored with herbs and spices. That's why this new no salt added spaghetti sauce with seasonings of oregano, basil and garlic, to name a few, bursts into the low sodium market as a refreshing alternative.

Aside from good taste, consumers want a product that brings them value for their money. Prego® No Salt Added Spaghetti Sauce has versatility: as a sauce, it will enliven any poultry, meat or fish dish; when stirred into vegetables, it makes the most humdrum side dish a show stopper. It can be layered between lasagna noodles or over cannelloni for new pizzazz.

Furthermore, Prego® No Salt Added Spaghetti Sauce provides the foundation on which creative cooks can build more elaborate homemade sauces.

Prego® No Salt Added Spaghetti Sauce is available in 15 1/4 and 31 1/4 ounce jars, and sells at the same suggested retail price as its popular predecessors: Plain, Mushroom and Meat Flavored Prego® Spaghetti Sauces. The best part is that the flavoring is in the spices...with no salt added. It has only 35 milligrams of sodium per four-ounce serving.

Newspapers. We can open doors for you

A newspaper is read in 75% of all households—over 62,000,000 every day.
