

Much in U.S. Economy Will Improve in 1971

tion time lost due to labor disputes. The outlook for 1971 promises little relief from the strike factor. A lengthy series of labor pacts expire in the next 12 months. Among the more significant are the following: Contracts with the major metal container producers run out on Feb. 14; the aluminum industry has a May 31 deadline; the copper producers' pacts expire June 30; and the all-important United Steel Workers' contracts with the steel industry end July 31. In addition, contracts covering approximately 80,000 dockworkers are up for renewal in 1971, involving the International Longshoremen's Association working the Atlantic and Gulf ports, and the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen Union on the Pacific Coast.

Productive Capacity—Helpmate and Villain

As 1971 debuts, American industry is operating well below its theoretical capacity. Moreover, new plant and equipment projects started prior to the deceleration of capital outlays last year will be coming on stream in 1971. The nation's productive capacity—which is growing in might and efficiency—provides at least a measure of hope that inflation can be kept within tolerable bounds. Excess productive capacity relative to current levels of demand tends to moderate the severity of price markups, while the use of efficient facilities can bolster profit margins.

But there is another face to the productive capacity factor. Due to the large gap between productive potential and near-term demand, the urgency to increase new plant and equipment has moderated noticeably. Hence, the Babson's Reports staff does not expect businessmen immediately to resume the expansive rate of outlays for capital equipment which fired the economic boom of the last decade. To the extent that recent cutbacks in business capital expenditures are not fully restored, progress of the economic revival in 1971 could be restrained. Overall, there should be an upward trend in business capital expenditures, but much of this will be due to price inflation. On a physical volume basis, the increment will not be signally impressive. However, there could be some assistance if efforts to stimulate the economy incorporate measures restoring even part of the investment tax-credit incentive to capital expenditures.

Building and Construction

Physical volume of construction in 1970 slipped below that of 1969, reflecting the low level of residential building during part of the year. However, as monetary conditions eased, a promising pickup in new housing starts emerged. The staff of Babson's Reports forecasts increasing vitality in the housing field in 1971. In the move to revitalize the economy, new home building is paramount, and some steps have already been taken to assist housing. With residential vacancies negligible and the nation on the threshold of a surge in new family formation, the need for new housing facilities is certainly present. Thus, with mortgage money now more readily available and mortgage interest rates likely to ease some in 1971, the home building field should provide important support for the economy. The outlook for commercial and industrial construction, however, is less promising. Reflecting deceleration of business capital expenditures, the nonresidential building sector is likely to evidence sluggishness in 1971. In public construction, the hold-back in federal spending for new projects because of budget and anti-inflation considerations plus the stringent credit climate, restricted 1970 activity. But the ease in credit and the termination of federal hold-backs on new construction outlays should enable this phase of the industry to contribute to the overall economic improvement looked for in the ensuing months.

As the recovery in residential building gains momentum, and as consumers loosen their purse strings, production and sales of home furnishings, supplies and building materials, and lumber should show marked improvement.

1971 Economic Profile

The staff of Babson's Reports envisions a strong business tempo in the first half of 1971. Depending upon the scope and length of the tie-ups in the steel and copper industries, however, at least a significant slowdown seems unavoidable for a portion of the second half. If the steel workers "hit the pavement", industrial production will encounter a down-draft after midyear; but even if the now apparently remote possibility of an amicable settlement occurs, there will be a "breathing spell" in industrial production, as the steel companies and their customers, work off strike-hedge stockpiles. Toward the end of the year, renewed buoyancy should be in evidence.

Strength in the first half of 1971 will not be uniform. During the first quarter, we project a definite uptrend in factory output. This will be due largely to the carryover of post strike catch-up efforts in the automobile industry. This impetus will be augmented by inventory accumulations in preparation for labor troubles in the industries cited earlier. The second quarter of 1971 will likely see a leveling-off in the business climb as the automotive field returns to more normal levels of operation. Thus, the crucial phase is expected to center in the third quarter of the year when the steel industry must cope with the United Steelworkers. The fourth quarter is likely to encounter some lethargy to begin with, but a show of strength should close out the year.

Throughout 1971, residential building is expected to provide a measure of strength for the economy. Since consumers may require some additional time—and a spell of good business—to fortify confidence sufficiently to unleash the pent-up buying potential, not too much vitality is anticipated during the first half of the year from consumer spending; but the tide should run more favorably in the second half, and particularly in the fourth quarter.

Trillion-Dollar Economy

The nation's Gross National Product should rise to a new record rate in 1971, with the year's average exceeding the trillion-dollar mark. The measure of the dollar value of goods and services produced, in current dollars, is expected to average approximately 6% above the rate for 1970. However, much of the gain will stem from price increases; on a deflated basis, Gross National Product will show a much smaller increment, perhaps approximately 3%. Greatest part of the strength is expected to occur during the first half-year with the first three months evidencing most of the vigor, yet with the second quarter sustaining at a high level. The second half of 1971 will see a degree of pullback from the first half, with labor conditions the primary determinant.

Consumer Spending Slated for Revival

One of the disappointing aspects of 1970's business picture was the tight-fisted attitude of consumers. Despite the peak rates of personal income, consumers boosted their savings. With the unemployment problem likely to remain a source of concern in much of 1971, the task of reviving consumer confidence will be difficult. We anticipate only moderate gains in consumer spending in the forepart of the year; but strength should become more evident as the year progresses, with 1971 closing out vigorously.

Personal Income

The General Motors strike and layoffs in defense-related lines caused a tapering-off in the upward trend of personal income in the second half of 1970. The stronger trend should be resumed in 1971, but the bulk of the upthrust is expected in the first six months or so, with some tapering off during the second half. Fresh wage boosts under new labor pacts signed during the year; automatic step-ups in wage rates under existing multi-year contracts; pay boosts for federal, state and municipal employees; and upward wage adjustments triggered by cost-of-living escalator provisions will combine to propel personal incomes upward.

Employment Conditions

On the strength of brisk factory operations in the first half of 1971, total employment is expected to post some gains in the new year. But the pinch on profit margins, plus high labor costs, will tend to restrain job expansion. With the natural growth of the population and the retrenchment of U.S. armed forces overseas, the economy may be hard put to absorb all of the growth in the civilian labor pool. Unemployment, close to 6% of the available labor force as 1970 drew to a close, seems destined to edge past the 6% mark before relief is encountered.

Taxes

Because of the top priority economic stimulus is slated to receive in 1971, the Babson's

Reports staff anticipates little change in personal income tax and corporate profits tax rates at the federal level, but somewhat higher federal levies toward the year end should not be ruled out if inflation gets out of hand. The tax burden will surely be heavier at the state and municipal levels, occurring in a wide range of levies including those on incomes, corporate profits, sales, and property.

Business Profits and Dividends

Corporate profits after taxes in 1971 are expected to show a better year-to-year comparison than was the case in 1970. We forecast an increase of some 7%. However, the profits outlook will take on its healthier hue primarily because of the comeback from the lean year just past. Nevertheless, businessmen must stay on their toes during the next 12 months since cost pressures will keep nipping away at profit margins, even though an anticipated higher rate of general business and price markups should give a fillip to earnings. The degree of improvement in profitability could look quite impressive for those companies which turned in poor earnings results in 1970 due to strikes, inventory losses and changeovers in accounting procedures for the handling of sales and profits not yet earned.

Reflecting the improvement in profits, the outlook for corporate dividend disbursements in 1971 is more promising than in 1970. While a spate of generous dividend rates increases is not anticipated, we do recognize the change for the better in corporate liquidity which together with improving profits will encourage management to take a somewhat more liberal view toward dividend payouts.

Further Easing in Credit Conditions

In 1970, monetary authorities expanded the nation's money supply at a rate which seemed somewhat on the generous side. However, some "armchair quarterbacks" feel even that was inadequate to give the economy a real uplift. So the Federal Reserve may well be under pressure to step up its injection of credit into the banking system, particularly since the Nixon Administration will be applying fiscal measures to pump more life into the ailing economy. In this joint effort both participants are on the horns of a dilemma—namely, that the economy must be given added vitality without inflationary pressures being granted free rein. Hence, Federal Reserve authorities undoubtedly will keep a finger on the pulse of consumer and business capital expenditures while the Administration must watch even more closely the rate of increase in prices and wages. Though price-wage controls now seem politically unacceptable, they should not be ruled out as possibilities if "jawboning" tactics fail.

Since short-term money rates have already receded significantly from the oppressively high levels when the credit crunch was most painful, there is likely to be only a moderate further dip despite the salutary monetary policy and added progress in rebuilding bank liquidity. At the long-term end of the interest rate spectrum, we foresee a paring of borrowing costs, also, but it will probably be only slight and not till the latter part of 1971. The degree of easing of long-term money rates will be restrained by the ravenous need for capital, not only by the private sector of the economy but also by states, municipalities, the federal government and its various agencies.

The International Scene

International problems evident during much of 1970 will persist in the year ahead. The staff of Babson's Reports visualizes a continued touchy and highly inflammable international climate—with numerous tinderboxes—but no World War III. Instead, there will be stalemates in most 1971 world trouble spots, all having explosive possibilities.

In addition to beefing up the ailing economy, the Nixon Administration can be expected to hew closely to the established "Vietnamization" policy to forestall any further erosion of the GOP's 1972 Presidential hopes. As to other world areas, U. S. foreign policy seems likely to stress persuasion rather than military involvement, in hope that the combatants can amicably resolve thorny issues.

In 1971, the greater danger on the international front may be in the trade and financial sectors. The new Congress will have to tangle with the Trade Bill once again. Because of the likelihood of a massive federal budget deficit—and with the emphasis upon credit-easing measures to move the economy forward—the U.S. balance-of-payments position could once more be in jeopardy. The important European central bankers are renowned for their abhorrence of budget deficits; hence, the American dollar could fall into disfavor again. Such a development could cause another "flight from the dollar" and drain our already grossly inadequate gold reserves. While these dangers are serious and should not be lightly dismissed, we forecast that economic and inflation problems, which are plaguing most of the leading Free World nations as well as the United States, will take enough pressure off the dollar in international currency marts to avert devaluation in 1971.

Bond Market Outlook

The protracted uptrend in money rates resulted in a severely downtrodden bond market during much of 1970. However, toward the end of the year the series of reductions in short-term money rates prompted a vigorous rally in bond prices, particularly in issues bearing near- and intermediate term maturities. Only sustained brisk demand for long-term capital funds kept prices for long-term bonds from posting commensurate gains.

As 1971 unfolds, prospects favor a continuation of firm-to-higher bond prices. Monetary moves to stimulate the economy should enable money rates to ease a little further. This will be translated into somewhat higher bond prices. Just how much further bond prices will advance will be determined by the degree of aggressiveness which the Administration and the Federal Reserve exhibit in seeking to lift the economy. Also, in the second half, and particularly toward the end of the year, the economy should be on a sufficiently strong footing to create more active demand for short- and long-term credit. This could push interest rates back upward.

Even though the extremely generous yields available on bond investments a few short months ago have been pared, investors who require a solid base of fixed income can still find reasonably rewarding bonds among the intermediate- and longer-term bonds. There are also some less-lucrative-yield convertible bonds and preferred stocks which can provide inflation-hedge protection via their conversion privilege.

Stock Market Prospects

Threat of a massive liquidity crisis for debt-laden corporate enterprises, and the shock of the Cambodian invasion, sent stock prices sharply lower during most of the first half of 1970. But when investors realized that monetary policy had shifted convincingly to an anti-recession posture, the stock market rallied sharply from late May until midsummer. There followed a fairly confined trading range until the latter part of November when the lowering of money rates sparked a new flurry of buying which carried the Dow-Jones Industrial Average out of its limited-range consolidation phase.

Even though the stock market has already recouped a good deal of the ground lost since the long decline began in late 1968, participation in the rally has been confined to a fairly small segment of the market. Thus, there is still ample room for the rally to broaden. With the advantage of expansive monetary and fiscal policies, the Babson's Reports staff foresees an extension of the late 1970 upthrust. Earnings reports more favorable than those of a year ago will also help to bolster investor confidence in the early months of 1971. Thereafter, worries over the steel industry's labor situation may instill renewed caution.

Overall, the stock market is not likely to experience a sustained upsurge into new high ground in 1971. Limiting forces include the restraint upon corporate profits by cost increases, uneasiness over international developments and labor problems. Hence, there will be spells of uncertainty as regards the stock market in 1971. A plus factor of significance, however, is the still well-deflated position of a majority of stocks.

There continue to be attractive opportunities for investors who have thus far failed to participate in the market recovery, or for those operating under a conservative investment program. In the long pull growth area, the Babson's Reports staff favors selected issues in the drug and hospital supply, petroleum, utilities, life insurance, and offshore oil and gas industries. Certain undervalued and depressed cyclical issues offer opportunities for capital appreciation, particularly in the building-related home furnishings, food, automotive equipment, precious metals, trucks and truck transportation fields. But in view of the many areas of uncertainty, emphasis should be placed upon stocks of companies which are well established and capable of achieving profitability in conjunction with the anticipated business betterment.

Questions People Ask About the Catholic Church

How can you prove your seven Sacraments from the Bible?

Baptism (John 3, 5), Confirmation (Acts 8, 15-17), Holy Communion (Matt. 26, 26-28), Confession (John 20, 23), Holy Orders (2 Tim. 1, 6), Matrimony (Eph. 5, 31-33), Anointing of the Sick (James 5, 14-15).

Does Infallibility mean that the Pope can do no wrong?

It does not. It does not mean that the Pope is incapable of committing sin. He is liable to sin like any other Catholic or Protestant, and he is bound like any other Catholic to use the same divine means of pardon, the Sacrament of Penance. Infalibility is not a personal, but a divine, official prerogative, given by Christ to St. Peter and his successors to keep them from error in defining the content of the Gospel.

Area Pioneers Move to Improve Environment

There is a mounting concern over the environment in this country. Collingsworth County farmers stand out as pioneers in the battle to improve the overall quality of the environment and prevent and reduce pollution.

Gary L. Reed, District Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service in Wellington, points out that many Americans are becoming more and more aware of pollution problems. However, for years the nation's farmers have been steadily carrying out conservation measures that reduce pollution.

Reed is encouraged by the sudden interest in environmental quality by great numbers of Americans. "We all have a tremendous stake in rebuilding a quality environment that will insure every American clean air, clean water, and open spaces," he said. "If we will all work and cooperate with each other, we can do the job."

Reed points out that the SCS administers the Great Plains Conservation Program. This program and the ACP program, administered by the ASCS, have been sharing costs with farmers for conservation and pollution-prevention practices. Although many farmers practice conservation and anti-pollution practices on their own, cost sharing helps assure consistently wise use of the nation's soil and water resources. It helps pay for practices which farmers could not carry out by themselves to the extent needed in the public interest.

Reed emphasizes that conservation measures also provide immediate scenic and recreation benefits for everyone—plus cleaner water and air for now and the future. At the same time, the soil is conserved for future uses.

He singled out one important conservation practice, seeding of vegetative soil cover, as helping prevent erosion and siltation, which are major pollution problems. "Green, growing, well rooted cover keeps soil where it belongs and prevents it from washing into our streams, rivers and lakes," he comments. Engineers estimate that it costs 20 times as much to remove a cubic yard of silt from a river or harbor as it does to keep it where it belongs in the first place.

A few of the more important accomplishments for 1970 fiscal year in Collingsworth County were:

—Establishment of 1,678 acres of enduring cover for soil protection as well as grazing, with extensive anti-pollution benefits;

—Construction of nine dams to furnish livestock water, control erosion and enhance wildlife habitats;

—Construction of 43 acres of grassed waterways which will handle excess water, prevent erosion and reduce pollution of downstream land, waterways and reservoirs;

—Construction of 417,250 feet of diversions, standard and parallel terraces which will help control erosion, manage water safety and reduce pollution of streams.

Despite these successes, a recent conservation needs inventory shows that rural America is barely holding its own in conservation and anti-pollution work, Reed says. "For that reason, we want to find ways for the Soil Conservation Service to furnish more assistance with greater impact in solving problems of environmental quality and preserving and enhancing our soil, water, wildlife and recreational resources."

"We want to place more emphasis on practices and projects with greater community benefits," Reed explained. "We are going to make more effort to enlist community support in planning and applying conservation and pollution abatement practices that benefit the entire populace."

Trash Glass Is Recycled

WACO.—All of Central Texas was represented by the 324 groups that brought in more than 80 tons of glass to the second Owens-Illinois glass day. Scout troops, Little Leaguers, garden clubs, store keepers, ranchers, and private citizens collected one cent per pound and contributed to the total of 163,115 pounds of used glass removed from the Central Texas landscape and scheduled for recycling by the Waco Owens-Illinois plant.

The largest amount weighed in from a group was the five tons turned in by 50 Little League boys from Tours.

Visiting with Mrs. Bura Handley during Christmas were her children, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Brock, Jackie and Janet of Portales, and Joe Brock who is here from West Texas State University for the holidays; Mr. and Mrs. Leland Bonneau, Charles and Brock of Carrollton; and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Brock, Jill and Jeanna of Amarillo.

Mrs. W. E. Thomas had as Christmas guests her son, Mr. and Mrs. Olan Thomas, and daughter, Margala of Los Alamos, N.M. Their son, Dale, who was here a few weeks ago is touring the Middle East with the Choir of Dallas Baptist College during the holidays. The group was among those who sang at the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem Christmas Eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Nunnelley and daughters were in Dallas during Christmas to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hoffman and other relatives.

Conclusion Jumping

BY GAYLORD COOK

John was driving home one day when he picked up a hitchhiker. As they rode along, John felt for his wallet and found it missing; whereupon he stopped the car, ordered the hitchhiker out, and then said, "Now hand over that wallet before I smash your face in!" The frightened hitchhiker handed over the wallet and John got back into his car and continued on. When he arrived home that evening he started to tell his wife about his experience with the hitchhiker, but she interrupted him. "Before I forget it," she said, "do you know that you left your wallet at home this morning?" Let this teach us not to jump to conclusions. Many an unkind word has been spoken and many a friendship has been severed because someone thought it happened this way when it really happened that way.

Other Editors Say . . .

Local Business

Just what is a hometown newspaper? This question is faced recurrently by the editors and publishers of small town newspapers.

The answers are manifold:

The hometown newspaper is a freely operated chamber of commerce.

It is the hub around which all cultural actions of the community revolve.

The hometown newspaper is the town hall of the 20th century, where the most humble voice may find expression.

It is the record keeper of the community—the repository for future historians.

The hometown newspaper is the unifying force of a trade area which makes a center for shopping, talking, companionship, and recognition of common problems.

The good hometown newspaper is a place where recognition is given for accomplishment and service, and where sloth and greed are scorned.

Overall, the good hometown newspaper is the reflection of a good community.

The local newspaper is not only the mirror of the quality of local schools, government, culture and economy, it is also a prime builder and guardian of these institutions which make for a good community.

Sour Note

Communist Cuba's Fidel Castro has admitted finally, what rumors have been saying for some time. He confessed that he may not reach the 10-million-ton sugar quota on which he often has staked the honor of his revolution and government. Castro blamed everything except his regime—rains, equipment trouble at mills, low yields, etc.

Noncommunists might conclude that this is just one more case where the government that promises to be a Sugar Daddy to everyone strikes a sour note.

—Dallas Morning News

Big Spender

It took 186 years, from the Declaration of Independence until 1962, before our Federal Government spent $100 billion dollars in one year; but it took only eight more years for the annual budget to rise a second $100 billion up to $200 billion.

—Independent, Collegeville, Pa.

Worth Trying

An anti-poverty program that seems to have potential is the one developed in Fort Smith, Ark., for elementary school children and elderly citizens.

The poverty-level oldsters are hired under a joint federal government-United Fund program to staff care centers for children who have no adult at home when they leave school.

The oldsters get needed cash, the kids get attention and love, and the community should avoid some problems at both the upper and lower ends of the age scale. Other communities should watch the progress of this effort.

CARRIAGE TRADE comes to a drive-in at New Glarus, Wis. The question is however, if the waitress serving autos is called a car hop, is this one called a horse hop? Her main concern seems to be, "Where do I hang the tray?"

AUSTIN.—Frantic preparations are underway to ready the State Capitol for the 62nd legislative session which begins Jan. 12. Construction workmen still have to complete renovation of the building and completion of new offices and committee rooms. Staffs must be hired and assigned, opening sessions planned and the budget and other major bills drafted.

Surveys indicate that most legislators are agreed that taxing and redistricting of congressional and legislative boundaries are their toughest tasks. But there is no shortage of tough tasks for the lawmakers in 1971.

Legislative Budget Board has pushed the estimated new revenue need to $645.1 million, and many think it will run a great deal higher, perhaps as much as $800 million or more. Very few ideas have been offered on how to raise the new revenue.

Political futures of many legislators ride on the redrawing of their district boundaries, which must follow population patterns of the 1970 census.

Among other major problems pinpointed by legislators are:

—A multi-billion-dollar state budget.

—Liquor-by-the-drink legislation.

—Welfare programs, including an increase in the $80 million a year ceiling on categorical assistance payments.

—Laws to curb drug use and prevent crime.

—Revision of auto insurance regulations.

—Air and water pollution control.

—Financing higher education, including a proposed tuition hike.

Inauguration Planned

Six inaugural balls will mark the second-term inauguration of Gov. Preston Smith and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes on Jan. 19.

Main ball, a formal event, is scheduled for the Austin Municipal Auditorium. Governor and Mrs. Smith will lead the traditional grand march of state officials. An admission charge of $15 a couple will be levied.

Five other dances will be held in the Austin coliseum, a square dance at the University of Texas gymnasium, and three others at downtown hotels.

Formal inaugural ceremonies will be held at noon on the capitol steps. A prayer breakfast will open the day's events.

Preceding the inaugural will be a Democratic victory dinner on the night of Jan. 18 at the Austin Municipal Auditorium. Singer Wayne Newton is the headline entertainer for the $30-a-plate dinner.

Appointments

Gov. Smith appointed District Judge Wendell A. Odom of Houston to the Court of Criminal Appeals. Judge Odom will take the seat of Judge John F. Onion, Jr., who was elected presiding judge of the court and assumes the top post on Jan. 1.

Smith named Gerald T. Bissett of Victoria, as Associate Justice of the 13th Court of Civil Appeals. He succeeds Judge Paul Nye who moves up to Chief Justice on Jan. 1.

To fill Judge Odom's 17th district court bench, Smith ap-

CROSSROADS REPORT

I see where Congress argued for a while last week about whether adult people who refuse to work should be given Food Stamps.

Some suggested stamps for the kids in a family, but none for the old man if he won't work. But somebody who must have got into Congress by mistake, said the kids couldn't enjoy eating while their hungry papa sat there watching them.

So it appears that as long as work-allergic parents can vote they will continue to eat higher on the hog than many of the taxpayers who feed them can afford.

The papers say that unemployment is rising and in some places there are numerous formerly affluent citizens walking the streets looking for a job.

My rural philosopher neighbor says nobody's education is properly balanced until he has been fired from a job or lost an election and spent a while desperately hunting for another job so he can eat.

This experience shapes up either natural or college-dilated egos, and teaches folks like it is: that whoever you are, society at large is inclined to feel like it can get along fine without you.

AG Opinions

County commissioners court should order proceeds from the sale of county hospital bonds deposited with the county treasurer pending completion of proposed construction or improvements, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin has held.

In other recent opinions Martin concluded that:

—Odessa College cannot lawfully contract with a vending machine company where a member of the board of regents is president and a stockholder.

—State Welfare Department has authority to purchase fidelity bonds but not insurance against loss by theft of food stamps and cash.

—Maximum fee schedule authorized for Texas Private Employment Agency Regulatory Board does not apply to those charged by an employment agency to employers, but only to those charged employees seeking work.

Courts Speak

A three-judge Federal court in Dallas held that Texas' political filing fees are unconstitutional, although low, "reasonable" fees may be permitted. Governor Smith said the ruling would lead to "tremendously chaotic conditions."

Attorney General Martin applauded the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court that voting in national elections must be extended to 18-year-olds but that Congress cannot direct the states to permit the teenagers to vote in state and local elections.

Rate Hike Upcoming

Auto owners will be getting notice this week of the new insurance rates they will be paying after Jan. 1.

News won't be so bad as first anticipated. While an average statewide increase of 23.4 percent had been recommended by the State Insurance Board staff, it now appears that the jump will be between 12 and 18.6 percent.

Board calculations indicate companies will get an after-tax rate of return of six or seven percent of total assets. Companies wanted an increase of 27.7 percent and are not expected to be overjoyed with the "compromise."

Island Row Roars On

One of the hottest continuing controversies in the state is over the proposed $4.1 million purchase of land on Mustang Island for Park purposes.

Gov. Smith pledges to do all in his power to prevent the buy with state money, and proposes private fund contributions for the purpose.

Parks and Wildlife Commissioners Harry Jersig of San Antonio and L. P. Gilvin of Amarillo bypassed the Governor and PWC Chairman Pearce Johnson of Austin in asking the release of $2.1 million of federal funds to buy the land. Over $2.1 million would come from the state bond fund. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation said it would allow use of federal money.

Smith said other areas need parks more.

Their letters read: Mr. Xuan Thuy North Vietnamese Delegate to the Paris Peace Talks Paris, France

Dear Mr. Thuy, I am deeply concerned about the condition of the American and Allied prisoners of war held in North Vietnam.

I urge you to release a full list of the prisoners now being held. I also request the immediate release of all prisoners who are ill or seriously wounded. Further, I ask that the Red Cross or another impartial humanitarian agency be allowed to inspect the prison camps. In addition, I earnestly encourage the free flow of mail between prisoners and their families.

Finally, I seek your support and compliance with the provisions of the Geneva Convention, which your government endorsed in 1957, prescribing humane treatment for prisoners of war.

Sincerely,

Catholic Church Holds Midnight Mass Dec. 24

A huge throng of people, of all ages and faiths, overflowed Our Mother of Mercy Catholic Church for Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve.

The altar was decorated with poinsettias, and with Christmas greenery and red berries. The Nativity Scenes erected by George Brewer and Father Pat had a place of honour inside the sanctuary.

Before the Holy Sacrifice began, the statue of the Infant Jesus was carried to the Crib by Irma Cortez, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isidoro Cortez.

Altar boys on duty were George Brewer and Gabriel Aguirre. The choir of children sang Christmas carols under the direction of Tipton Miller, with Mrs. Jesse Peters at the organ and Susan Peters on the flute. During Holy Communion, a solo was sung by Mary Helen Langford, daughter of Mrs. Rosemary Langford. She selected for this sacred moment the "Cherry Tree Carol" by Gearhart.

In his Christmas address, Father Pat urged all Catholics to continue the Spirit of Christmas throughout the entire year. "The Spirit of Christmas," he said, "is nothing more or less than the Infinite Love of God for Man, summed up in that beautiful scene around the manger in Bethlehem."

Wilkersons Have Christmas Guests

Visiting over the Christmas holidays with Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Wilkerson were their daughters, Mr. and Mrs. K. V. Willard, Vance and Billy Ray of San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. Euris Phipps, Jim and Jan of Amarillo. They also visited their brother, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Wilkerson and Bobby.

The Phipps' visited Mr. and Mrs. Amos Phipps and the Willards went on to Wheeler to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. V. Willard, Sr.

Other relatives visiting the Wilkersons during Christmas were her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Rogers, David and Ronnie of Wichita Falls.

TB Is a Stubborn Disease But Cures Are Possible

Some 25 million people in the United States have TB germs in their bodies, even though most of them will never become sick with TB.

With this in mind, the first free countywide tuberculin skin testing program will be held in Wellington Jan. 5. Its purpose is to screen out those persons with active tuberculosis as well as those who carry the germ but are not sick with TB. Both groups can be treated.

The Top of Texas TB-Respiratory Disease Association has released this information about tuberculosis.

It is caused by a germ, not by dirt, bad blood, or crowded rooms although crowding makes it easier for the germs to spread. TB is not inherited.

Who gets TB? Anybody can. Can a person get over TB? Yes. There are medicines, mainly pills, that stop it. Those with it can live with their families, hold down a job and lead normal lives, often while they are still taking medicine.

How is TB caught? Almost always by breathing TB germs into the lungs. Someone whose TB is in the catching stage coughs or sneezes the germs out. Usually they float in the air until somebody else breathes them in.

Are there tests for TB? Yes, the tuberculin skin test or a chest x-ray or both.

What is the Tuberculin test? It is a skin test done on the arm with tiny prongs or a needle. It feels about like a pin prick. The tuberculin test shows if there are TB germs in the body. It does not tell whether or not a person has active TB.

What does a chest x-ray do? It shows if TB has damaged the lungs.

What are the symptoms of TB? A TB patient may feel tired or cough a lot. He may have a fever, sweat at night, lose weight, or spit up blood. But many times, particularly with early TB, a person may feel well, have no symptoms at all—and still have TB.

How is TB stopped? It can be stopped if the patient takes his medicine regularly, as often and as long as his doctor says. The medicine can be shots with a needle or occasionally a liquid to drink. But mainly it is pills—sometimes lots of pills.

Is pill taking important? Yes. A person who takes his pills regularly can get well again. The pills, usually INH, also make his disease non-catching, so that it cannot spread to others. Even when still taking the pills, a TB patient can often live with his family and go to work and he won't be a danger to anyone. But if he stops the pills too soon, his TB can come back worse than before. The germs may have grown stubborn; the same medicines may not work a second time.

Ft. Worth Fat Stock Show Observes Diamond Anniversary

Officials of the 75th Diamond Anniversary Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, Jan. 29 through Feb. 7, 1971, anticipate an exceptionally fine livestock show as the final deadline draws near.

Stock Show President-Manager W. R. Watt, in reminding exhibitors of the deadline dates said "Based on the entry cards I've seen, this year's show will have more than 11,000 head of livestock. We're happy, too, at the growing number of entries by young people."

Cattle entries include more than 1,000 head of top commercial Hereford heifers consigned to a special show-sell auction. "These heifers represent the best from Hereford breeders in the Southwest," Watt said. "The sale will be an excellent opportunity for farmers and ranchers to pick up top quality replacement heifers for their herds."

Deadline for entries in the cattle, horses, sheep and swine contests is Dec. 15, 1970. Poultry, rabbit and pigeon exhibitors have until Jan. 15, 1971 to submit entries.

Friendship Baptist Aids Border Church

By Mrs. J. C. Hartman, Jr.

In a small South Texas town near the Old Mexico border the Gospel is carried on even though the obstacles sometimes seem insurmountable. The Missionaries are serving endless hours to take the message of Jesus across the border to a people willing and eager to listen.

We think about hardships and poverty in our United States but to the Mexican majority, poverty is a way of life. No social security or government commodities, and wages are menial compared to the United States.

The Missionaries are constantly getting new converts who wish to work and help with the ever increasing Missions that are being built in different towns. The new students are zealous and eager to tell others about Jesus but after coming to the United States to learn how to do this mission work and working on this side of the border they are reluctant to return to the lower standard of living.

A new school has just been built by the American Baptist Association and sponsored by the Missionary Baptist Church of Dallas. The school has 21 new Mexican students enrolled.

THE LIFE SPAN OF A DOLLAR BILL

Do you know the life span of a dollar bill?

Paper money passes constantly from bank to bank, store to store, and hand to hand. Dollar bills, in particular, are in perpetual use.

The average working "life" of a dollar bill is nine months. After that time it usually becomes too worn for more use.

Banks will take in torn, worn or mutilated money and return it to the U.S. Treasury for new bills. At the Treasury the old bills are inspected, recorded and then destroyed by burning or pulping.

A British 10s note, in comparison, has about the same life span as the American dollar bill. However, because the British use more coins than we do, their one pound note lasts more than twice as long as our dollar.

For Low Income Workers

CAC Seeks to Upgrade Vocational Classes

Courses to provide some degree of vocational knowledge to now unskilled workmen will be sought during the coming year through the Wellington Community Action Center, Mrs. Bob Sessions, director, announced following a meeting of interested citizens with CAC district officials here recently.

The meeting was to review programs which the Wellington CAC has offered and suggest future programs of work among low income residents of the area.

County Judge Zook Thomas presided and the Amarillo District Community Action Program was represented by George Parrish, director for the Neighborhood Centers, and Bob Wilson, accountant attached to the CAP office in Amarillo.

Securing teachers to give men elementary instruction in such work as welding, auto and farm machinery care and mechanics, will be a major factor, it was pointed out.

Along with this, an effort will be made to get those seeking employment and those needing workers together.

During the current CAC year Sept. 1970 to May 1971, twenty-two programs will be offered, said Mrs. Sessions. Some—and the Day Care Center is among them—are in operation the full time.

Mothers' improvement courses and the Busy Homemakers, sponsored jointly with the Extension Service, are also on a full time basis, as are programs carried out with youths.

Other programs vary with the needs of the people, and most are short term: consumer education, basic nutrition, sewing, and the various immunization drives.

There is a used clothing project, supplied by many individuals and organizations. Garments are sized, hung, and distributed according to need.

There is no indiscriminate giving.

The Center works with Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts. Reading and writing classes have been held for adults. One of the better known are the drivers' license classes for those preparing to take drivers tests. Others include a child development program, in conjunction with the Day Care Center, which works with both mothers and children, and the lunch program which provides two meals and an afternoon supplement for children at the center. Still another is planned parenthood.

There have been classes in child care and baby nutrition, and there has been tutoring available for boys and girls having trouble with their school work or who are dropouts.

An employment service is attempted, but Mrs. Sessions feels this hasn't yet gotten off the ground as it should.

Besides the paid personnel at the center, there has been much volunteer help from people in many walks of life—business and professional men and women, housewives, women whose families are grown, all have made a contribution to the center.

Loss Heavy in Burglary of Stephens Home

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis John Stephens four miles south of town was burglarized during the week of Christmas and a large quantity of family possessions was taken, ranging from shotguns to tools to clothing, Sheriff John Rainey has reported.

The burglars apparently intended to pay a second visit, for a car drove up to the house in the early hours Sunday but left hurriedly when it was apparent the family had returned, the Sheriff added.

Entry was gained by prying a lock off the front door. The Stephens family had left Tuesday, Dec. 22, to spend Christmas with relatives, and returned Saturday to discover the burglary.

Sheriff Rainey reported the family's loss as: one .410 shot gun, a 12 gauge shot gun, a large tool box of assorted tools valued at about $300, a cutting torch with gauges and hose, a small metal box with an assortment of old coins, clothes, dishes, and records. He added that it was possible there were other items not discovered during the first check.

WHS Teams Drop Games to Paducah

Wellington Skyrockets and Rockettes dropped their games to the Paducah boys and girls here Tuesday, Dec. 22, the last game before the Christmas holidays.

Paducah Dragonettes were winners, 44 to 35, in a game that was fairly even during the first half.

Cathy Singley led the scoring with 23 points; Patti McAlister had 6, and Phyllis Sullivan, Leigh Nall and Carole Cochran 2 each.

Guards playing were Debbie Neeley, Mary Saied, Janie Davis, and Katy Sullivan.

Dorothy Harrison scored 26 points for Paducah.

Paducah Dragons downed the Rockets 83 to 67, after jumping to a first period lead.

Bobby Saied scored 17 points; Ted Harris 12, Ronnie Pennon 10, Ray Shrubs, Sammy Coffee and Danny Waters 8 each, Deny Carter and Ted McLain 2 each.

Mark Killian, David Hodges and Rozell Outley were the other players.

Danny James, with 30 points, was high for Paducah.

TB Test

It is one step in eradicating tuberculosis in Collingsworth, for two cases of active tuberculosis were found in the county in 1969 and two in 1968. Each year, one of these victims died.

The tuberculin skin test is painless, Judge Thomas pointed out. Its major advantage lies in detecting tuberculosis which is latent or inactive in a person, long before it becomes an active case of TB. Chest x-rays reveal pulmonary TB only after it has become active.

"These TB tests are being given for our own protection and the protection of our children," declared the county judge.

"We are the only ones who will benefit from these tests. "One of the major sources of infection among children is from adults of their own families, who do not know they have TB," he continued.

"For this reason, we cannot urge too strongly that every person who has not been tested to come in Tuesday."

Treatment of tuberculosis has changed radically in recent years, it was pointed out. No longer is a long period of bed rest considered necessary.

Should there be any cases of tuberculosis appear from the testing program here, the patients most likely will be treated with a medicine known as INH, Dr. Holcomb explained.

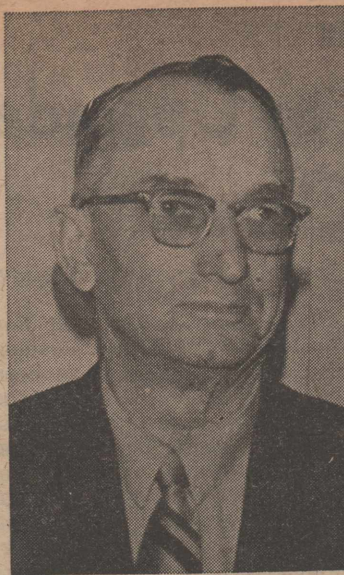

This is available only from one source, the Texas State Department of Health. It is secured by prescription only, and it is provided free to the patient.

The tests were administered earlier this month to residents of the Samnorwood, Quail and Dodson areas under the direction of Mrs. Clemmie Davenport, county school nurse.

Assisting in the setting up of the tuberculin skin testing program here is the Top of Texas TB-Respiratory Disease Association of Amarillo, and the State Department of Health.

The local sponsors working with Judge Thomas and Dr. Holcomb are the Community Action Center and the Skyrocket Youth Conference.

Mrs. Tom Ferguson and children, Regina and Bill, spent the Christmas holidays with relatives in El Paso.

RETURN TO COUNTY OFFICES

These four, re-elected to county offices in the first and second democratic primaries, will begin new terms January 1. At top are Mrs. Yvonne Brewer, county treasurer, and County Judge Zook Thomas. Below, from left, are Melvin Seale, Commissioner of Precinct 2 and W. R. Breeding, Commissioner of Precinct 4.

You Never Know Where You'll Find a TB Case

You never know where you're going to meet a case of TB.

It was one of these chance meetings that caused County Judge Zook Thomas to request the tuberculin skin testing program for Collingsworth County.

Local law enforcement officers a short time ago picked up a man on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He stayed in jail a few days. Then he was tried in county court and his case was disposed of.

The man went his own way. So did several other prisoners jailed with him.

But in a sense the case was not closed, Judge Thomas learned when a nurse from the TB Control Division of the State Department of Health called at his office.

Study Courses to Begin at First Baptist

Two Bible study courses will begin the first week of January at First Baptist Church, both taught by the pastor, the Rev. Roy Collins.

The annual January Bible Study will be held for five consecutive Sunday evenings, beginning Jan. 3.

Each study will start at 6:00 p.m. The course will cover the first, second and third New Testament Books of John, said Rev. Collins.

This study is an annual event throughout the Southern Baptist Association.

A noon study course will be held each Tuesday, beginning at 12:10 p.m. and ending at 12:50.

"Everyone in town is invited," said the pastor. "They are to bring sack lunches and the church will furnish drinks."

The Book of Romans will open the study, and each session will include 30 minutes of verse by verse, in-depth study, based on the original Greek scriptures, Rev. Collins explained.

These sessions will be in the church fellowship hall, and they will continue as long as there is interest.

Hardeman Tract Bought for Use As State Park

AUSTIN.—The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Park Services has acquired four tracts of land—two in North Texas and two adjacent to Somerville Reservoir in Southeast Texas—for use as state parks.

They are a 1,931-acre Hardeman County tract purchased from H. L. Gossage for $143, 862, and a 524-acre tract on Lake Arrowhead in Clay County purchased from the City of Wichita Falls for $50,000.

The Gossage property is located between Quanah and Crowell, approximately 20 miles from the Texas-Oklahoma border. The ranch sold for $75 per acre. The Lake Arrowhead site is located on the lake's north side, just above the dam, and has been used by the city as a park with limited facilities.

The two North Texas sites were purchased with funds authorized by Texas voters in a 1967 bond issue election.

Aluminum Cans Can Bring Money

EL PASO.—About 30% of the total number of aluminum cans handled by a beer distributor in El Paso are being returned for recycling. The percentage may climb even higher as more people realize the aluminum cans are worth 10¢ per pound.
