Six earthquakes rock Mexico; 600 injured

MEXICO CITY (AP) — As many as 600 persons were reported treated for injuries or shock after six earthquakes that rocked Mexico City and southern Mexico, but officials said there were no confirmed reports of any deaths.

Some newspapers and radio stations reported at least seven persons killed in Oaxaca state, 300 miles south of the capital, but police and Red Cross spokesmen said no deaths were reported officially anywhere, and most damage to buildings was slight.

The first shock Wednesday afternoon lasted 70 seconds and caused panic among Mexico City's 13 million people. Many were in skyscrapers or in elevators on their way to lunch when it struck shortly before 2 p.m. Thousands of American tourists in Mexico City fled from their hotels, many with their bags.

Five more tremors were felt in the capital before 6 p.m. Readings on the first and most severe shock ranged from 6.5 to 7.9 on the Richter Scale. Mexican seismologists said is was possibly one of the strongest series of quakes in the country's history.

The National Geophysical Institute said the epicenter of the quake was located beneath the Pacific, about 10 miles off Puerto Angel, on the Oaxaca coast.

Police in Puerto Angel and Puerto Escondido said waves came 600 feet inland. But the police in Acapulco, Mexico's biggest Pacific coast resort, said there were no tremors there.

A Oaxaca police spokesman said the shocks were heaviest in the area of Jupila Oaxaca and continued there until 10 p.m. He said a jail wall in the state capital was badly damaged, and "when the firemen pulled it down, there was an attempt to escape." But he said the 10 inmates who tried were captured.

"I saw everything shaking and there was a tidal wave in the swimming pool," said Vivian Garner, 38, of Hackensack, N.J., a guest at the Holiday Inn in Mexico City.

A number of buildings were evacuated and closed overnight. They included the 11-story building that houses the Mexican offices of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. Another building nearby tilted about eight degrees.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs.

Albright, Pickle make pitch in Austin

Merits of super highway route along US 87 cited

By DON WOODS

AUSTIN — The merits of extending the proposed Interstate 27 into US 87 were cited by Joe Pickle and Bill Albright in talks made before members of the Texas Highway Commission here this morning.

Pickle and Albright were members of a 13-person Big Spring delegation present for the meeting, which was due to last into the afternoon.

No decision on the thoroughfare will likely be made on the interconnecting highway system for some time but delegations from Lamesa, Lubbock, San Angelo, Midland, Odessa, Brady, Kerrville and Fredericksburg were all present to point up the need for such a route.

By extending the north-south interstate along US 87, the thoroughfare would offer service to all those communities, either directly or indirectly.

Odessa and Midland would not be included on the route but delegations from those two cities said the artery would be of vast benefit to them.

A. Sam Waldrop of Abilene was introduced as a new member of the Texas Highway Commission. His appointment drew favorable comment from another member of the commission, Reagan Houston.

Albright said that a feasibility study of the proposed route made several years ago by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation pointed to the conclusion that a super highway routed along US 87 would better serve the interests of this state and meet the state's purpose in the Surface Transportation Assistance Act, a bill shepherded by Senator Lloyd Bentsen through Congress.

Albright also said that an improved US 87 would provide a new connecting link between six IS routes in Texas — IS 40, 27, 20, 10, 35 and 37.

Albright also mentioned the united efforts of such cities as Amarillo, Lubbock, Lamesa, Big Spring, San Angelo, Brady and others to locate the proposed road along US 87.

Armstead Rusk of San Angelo pinpointed the needs fo such a throughfare from San Angelo to Lubbock rather than points south of San Angelo.

"San Angelo is the second largest city in Texas not now served by an interstate and is badly in need of such a route," Rusk reminded his listeners. Texas Tech would also contribute a lot of traffic which would use the highway, it was pointed out.

"The US 87 route is the "shortest and most economically feasible" of all the routes proposed, Rusk added.

Travis Floyd of Big Spring introduced all members of his delegation. The group included, in addition to Pickle and Albright, Ray Don Williams, president of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, Bob Miller, Bill Henkel, a member of the Big Spring City Council, Jerry Worthy, Howard County Judge Bill Tune, J. Arnold Marshall, Mayor Pro Tem Polly Mays, City Councilman Ralph McLaughlin and City Councilman Ralph Brooks.

Attorneys taking case to state high court

Former Bell official won't quit

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The reversal of the $3 million slander judgement against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. is a "legal travesty" and will be taken to the Texas Supreme Court, says the attorney for a former Bell executive and the widow of another top Bell official.

The 4th Court of Civil Appeals ruled Wednesday that Bell owes nothing to former executive James Ashley and Oleta Gravitt Dixon, the widow of T.O. Gravitt.

Bell officials called the decision "a vindication" of the company and its employees.

Ashley and Mrs. Gravitt had sued Bell for $29 million, alleging that a wrongful internal investigation led to Ashley's dismissal and suicide by Gravitt, the $80,000-per-year head of Bell's Texas operations until he died in October 1974.

A state district jury awarded $1.5 million each to Ashley and Mrs. Gravitt after a lurid six-week trial here in which the plaintiffs accused Bell of numerous corporate misdeeds and Bell alleged that Ashley and Gravitt engaged in sexual misconduct on the job.

"I regard the result as an aberration. Naturally we will appeal," said a bitter attorney Pat Maloney. "Bell can count on this as their most influential day. The people can count this as their blackest day.

"The rich get richer. It has always been my experience as an attorney that the further you get from a jury, the less the people prevail," Maloney added.

But C.L. Todd, vice president and general manager of Southwestern Bell, said, "We view the appelate court's decision as a vindication of Southwestern Bell and its employees. We were sure all along that when the facts were considered in an objective, dispassionate atmosphere this case would be reversed.

"We're very pleased that the courts have upheld the right of a buisness to deal with internal wrongdoing and allegations of wrongdoing," he added.

Ashley, now a Hill Country real estate salesman in Blanco, and Mrs. Gravitt, who has since remarried and lives in Oklahoma, could not immediately be reached for comment.

In its decision, the appeals court ruled that Bell had a right to investigate alleged sexual misconduct and other alleged misdeeds by Gravitt and Ashley after receiving such reports.

"We agree with appellant (Bell) that the reports of wrongdoing established the defendant's conditional privilege to make inquiries or investigations in order to perserve its own effectiveness," the appeals court said.

". . .the judgement is hereby rendered that the plaintiffs take nothing," read the opinion written by Associate Justice Robert Murray.

Ashley, fired Oct. 31, 1974 from his $55,000-a-year post as head of the San Antonio office, and his wife also lost a $1 million invasion of privacy judgement against Bell in another appeals court. The Texas Supreme Court recently upheld that reversal. The Ashleys had alleged that Bell illegally wiretapped their telephone.

Ashley and Gravitt had alleged that Southwestern Bell, the largest component of the nationwide Bell system, kept secret political slush funds, was dishonest in rate practices and wiretapped employees. The telephone company, the two executives said, hounded them for opposing such alleged practices.

"Watergate is a gnat compared to the Bell system," Gravitt wrote in a suicide note that first aired the allegations. He took his own life by carbon monoxide poisoning at his Dallas home in the midst of the investigaton.

The jury said that the investigation was a "proximate cause" for insanity that led Gravitt to suicide.

During the sensational trial, Bell brought in several female employees who testified that they had sex with Ashley and Gravitt in order to earn promotions.

OUTLOOK IMPROVES
For UW campaign

United Way donations near halfway margin

Howard County United Way collections have soared past the $80,000 mark but the total represents only 51 per cent of the $145,300 objectives.

Officials of the drive said they were supremely confident that the campaign would go over the top, pointing out that a number of cards have yet to be worked and they represent givers who have been very generous in pledging for the campaign in the past.

No division within the committee has achieved its objective. However, the Professional group is within four per cent of going over the top and the Metropolitan division's collections are at 90 per cent.

Collections and pledges now total $80,530.

All the divisions report collections at 50 per cent or better, according to Champ Rainwater, office manager of the U.W.

Division captains convened at the Brass Nail Restaurant Wednesday to be updated on the progress of the drive. A similar meeting will be held next Wednesday but the site has not been determined.

UW General Chairman Daryle Hohertz urged volunteer workers to renew their efforts and insure the success of the drive, pointing out that Christmas is only a little more than three weeks away. Most UW campaigns in Howard County have been successfully terminated by that time, Hohertz said.

Pope meets with African leaders

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II met with four leaders of southern African black nationalist movements and discussed human rights, the leaders reported today.

The secret audience Wednesday, granted at the leaders' request, was held in the Apostolic Palace, and marked the first bold political act of the Polish-born pontiff.

The meeting was disclosed by Oliver Tambo, president of the African National Congress, and George Silundika, a member of the executive of the National Patriotic Front, the organization opposing Prime Minister Ian Smith's government in Rhodesia.

The leaders told a news conference they had drawn the pope's attention to alleged violations of human rights in southern Africa. The pope, they said, was greatly concerned with the situation of human rights in southern Africa.

The audience brought immediate memories of a similar act in 1970 by Pope Paul VI, who met with leaders of nationalist groups fighting in the Portuguese African territories of Angola, Mozambique and Guinea-Bissau.

That audience dealt a blow to the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Portuguese government, and triggered the temporary recall of its ambassador to the Holy See.

The other two leaders present at the 20-minute private audience were Kumbirai Kangai, secretary of social services and transport of the Patriotic Front, and Sam Nujoma, president of the South-West African People's Organization.

Construction of hangar right on schedule

Construction of the new T-hangar at the Big Spring Industrial Park is right on schedule, according to Roy Crim, the project's engineer.

"The concrete foundation work is 40 per cent complete, and if nothing disastrous happens it will be completed on schedule, Dec. 15," said Crim.

The work now under way includes construction of the floor, the slab and the concrete curtains for the hangar. Zack Burkett of Graham is the contractor for the work.

Materials for the fabrication of the metal building will begin to arrive Friday, according to Crim. Work on the building is scheduled to begin the day the concrete work is completed.

McRee Contractors of Levelland will handle the metal portion of the project.

"If everything goes according to plan, the hangar should be up by Feb. 15," said Crim.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Duties of judge

Q. Define the duties of a county judge, please?

A. His chief duties consist of presiding over meeting of the county commissioners' court and he is authorized a full vote when decisions are made. He helps determine the annual county budget. In addition, he presides over court hearings on applications for beer and liquor licenses and in matters probate. The law does not require that he be licensed as an attorney and no where does it say that he will be required to work full time.

Demo leaders to tackle new party chief issue

By WALT FINLEY

Texas Democratic leaders, including Jane Ray, state committeewoman of the 30th Senatorial District, will talk about a new party leader Friday in Austin.

State Democratic chairman Billy Goldbert of Houston has mailed letters informing the 64 members of the State Democratic Executive Committee of the meeting at 10 a.m. in the Stephen F. Austin Hotel.

Attorney General John Hill, the party's nominee for governor, was defeated in the general election by Republican Bill Clements.

Hill, who as governor would have been titular head of the party, personally chose Goldberg as the party chairman.

There have been reports the party leadership would pass to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby or to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, the top elected Democratic official from Texas.

Mrs. Ray is scheduled to meet with Calvin Gambill, Seymour, state committeeman of the 30th Senatorial District; State Sen. Ray Farabee and State Rep. Mike Ezzell to discuss, among other things — taxes.

JANE RAY

THOSE WHO want to attend the inauguration of Texas' first Republican governor in a century, Bill Clements, may have trouble finding a hotel room, but it's not the Democrats' fault, Austin officials are quick to point out.

"Any negotiations that we had or arrangements that we made were done with the idea that they needed to be done no matter who was elected governor," said Roy Butler, in charge of preliminary inauguration plans.

The festivities for inauguration of a Texas governor are financed and planned largely by Austin citizens, according to wishes of the incoming governor.

Butler said he would turn his preliminary work over to the Clements people.

Butler said there was nothing to rumors that hotel rooms had been reserved by Democrats in anticipation of a John Hill victory and the rooms have not been released by the Democrats.

Managers of Austin's largest hotels reported they were sold out at least two weeks ago. They said the full house situation occurred largely because mid-January meeting of the Texas Association of Realtors and the Texas Association of Teachers conflict with the Jan. 16 inauguration.

AND AWAY WE go with more "hot shots."

The candidates did their best. Now we'll see if the voters have done their worst.

Once again ticket-spitters issued their education message to Texans: The choice was not whether to vote'er straight or vote'er crooked.

There ought to be an off-switch to stop a candidate who says, "I'm running on my record... my record ... my record... my record..."

Democrats will organize the Texas Legislature as usual, but they don't mind having a few Republican members. They feel every piece of powerful machinery should have some spare parts.

The general election showed the GOP is still alive and well — but please don't tinker with its pacemaker.

Texans are going to have a Republican governor. That's enough to make lifelong Democrats wish they were dead, so they could roll over in their graves.

COME REST YE MERRY GENTLEMEN — But not until the Christmas shopping season is over. This is one of many Christmas scenes which will begin to appear around Big Spring as the final month of the year arrives Friday and there are only 20 shopping days until Christmas.

Last chance for merchants

Wednesday will be the last opportunity for local merchants to sign up to have plainclothes police officers in their stores during the holiday season.

The service is free, and is being arranged through the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Retail Committee and the Crime Prevention Unit of the Big Spring Police Department.

Sgt. Ed Kissinger of the local police will meet at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday with interested merchants and members of the retail committee. Chamber membership is not required to gain the service, but the Wednesday meeting will be the last chance for merchants to register.

Burglary nets prison term

Larry Glenn James, 25, Rt. 2, entered a guilty plea Wednesday in 118th District Court to burglary charges. District Judge Ralph Caton who heard the plea sentenced James to five years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

BILLY MEETS BIG SPRINGER — Lee Faught, right, Big Spring Herald employee, poses for a picture in Plains, Ga., with Billy Carter. Billy is holding a Billy Beer. Lee and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wiley, were returning from a visit to McRea, Ga., where her grandfather, H. G. Shearouse resides. The Big Springers decided to stop in Plains, where the Peanut Jamboree was in progress. They stopped at a gas station which they soon learned, was owned by Carter, who agreed to pose for the photo.

Tax Relief Amendment might cost Lamesans

LAMESA—The Tax Relief Amendment passed by Texas voters in the general election may be that proverbail gift horse that could cost the Lamesa School District at least $350,000 per year in tax revenues.

Neal Chastain, LISD superintendent, said a number of letters are being prepared, with the consent of the school board members, to be sent to local and area legislators, urging them to carefully consider the consequences of the Tax Relief Amendment.

While certainly not against tax relief per se, Chastain said he is worried about the outcome if all the provisions of the amendment are enacted since the school district would stand to lose a third of its revenue. "We cannot operate our schools without funds," Chastain emphasized.

The superintendent added, "Legislators cannot continue to run scared because of what happened in California with the Proposition 13 because it is politically popular.

Digest

Pornographer indicted

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Convicted pornographer Michael Thevis has been indicted on charges of possessing seven pistols and a false passport and transporting a pistol from South Carolina to Connecticut.

The 46-year-old former member of the FBI's most wanted list already is charged with murder, arson and extortion.

Thevis escaped jail while serving an 8½-year sentence for arson conspiracy and interstate transportation of obscene materials. He was a fugitive for 6½ months before being arrested here Nov. 9.

Bad reaction to vaccine

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — An apparent reaction to typhoid vaccine forced overnight hospitalization of 30 Marine recruits, while another 101 reported minor illness after the shots, officials said.

A military vehicle carrying five of the typhoid-reaction cases to the hospital Tuesday night collided with a civilian van, authorities said Wednesday. One recruit and the van driver were hospitalized.

Board gives approval

LINTHICUM, Md. (AP) — The state Board of Education has approved a proposal requiring students to develop leisure skills in sports and the arts in order to graduate.

State education department staff members must now determine the scope and number of skills to be taught, and return to the board with specifics. Students probably will be be exposed to some physical education and participate in art, music, crafts or drama, officials said Wednesday.

Oregon court gives ruling

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The state supreme court has ruled that tavern owners are liable for events resulting from illegal sale of alcohol to persons under 21.

The court on Wednesday held held that operators of the Golden Garter and the Old Irish Inn in Southwest Portland were negligent when they sold beer to two minors without requiring proof of age. William C. Davis of Portland claimed an ensuing party led to the death of his son, William J. Davis, in an automobile accident Sept. 25, 1976.

Glass workers try buy

JEANNETTE, Pa. (AP) — Faced with the prospect of a permanent shutdown, about 430 glass workers at ASG Industries in this southwestern Pennsylvania town are trying to buy the factory.

The employees hope to form a new corporation and, using borrowed capital rather than their own, generate enough money to buy materials, pay their wages and invest in new equipment. The workers' lawyer said Wednesday the company is willing to negotiate.

Police beat

Intruders steal coins

Wednesday was a relatively quiet day for local police.

Intruders broke into the home of A. C. Diaz, 2906 Parkway, sometime between 7 a.m. and noon Wednesday. Pennies, nickels and silver dollars worth $150 were stolen.

A .22 caliber pistol belonging to Eusebio Fierro Jr., 511 S. Goliad, was swiped from his car sometime Wednesday night. The gun was valued at $20.

Unsuccessful thieves tried to steal E. G. Vela's car while it was parked in front of his home at 1201 S. Monticello, Wednesday afternoon. The only thing the thieves succeeded in doing was $150 worth of damage to the steering column and ignition switch.

Three mishaps were reported Wednesday.

Vehicles driven by Mark Vassar, 3201 Drexel, and Jesse Leonard, 2310 Roberts, collided at Third and Scurry, 2:08 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Joe Gonzales, 406 N. Gregg, and Donald Douglass, Route 1, collided at 3400 I.S. 20, 7:50 a.m.

A parked vehicle belonging to Durwood Cummings, 508 Donley, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene in front of the Cummings' home, 9:26 a.m.

Powder Puff game Tuesday

The annual Powder Puff football game to raise funds for the March of Dimes will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

The juniors and seniors play freshman and sophmores annually. The older team claims experience and the younger team enthusiasm for the annual event.

Heritage Museum sponsors graphic art show Dec. 8-10

The third showing of the largest signed graphic art show in West Texas will be held again this year at the Heritage Museum Dec. 8 through 10.

There will be a preview reception for members on Dec. 7 from 7p.m. to 9 p.m. with Mrs. Edna Nichols as chairman.

The show will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on both Friday and Saturday, Dec. 8 and . and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 10.

The Folgers Ranch Gallery of Midland will again present the showing here.

The graphics are from some of the best artists in the Southwest including such notables as Peter lhurd, James Bama, Carolyn Blish and Frank McCarthy.

McCarthy is one of the group that is a member of Cowboy Artist of America. Others who feature cowboy art and are members of that organization are James Reynolds, Nick Eggenhoffer, Donald Teague, John Clymer, James Boren, Tom Lovell, Garry Niblett, Melvin Warren John Hampton, Tom Ryan and Joe Beeler.

Among the group who have received the Franklin Mint Great Western Art award are Gordon Phillips, Robert Summers, Ralph Wall, Buck McCain, Joe Grandee, McCarthy, Reynalda, Teague, Clymer, Lovell, Warren and Beeler.

Artists such as Frank Gee, Donald Yene, Jo Polseno, Gob Gartland, Olaf Weighorst, Joe Rader Roberts, and Lajos Markos are not to be overlooked.

The show is not all western art, although it has some of the best examples of it. There are also some of Paul Calle's pencil drawings such as "The Lonely Watch" and Larry Johnson's duck prints.

Bob Kuhn's "Jaguar" takes you right into the jungle and Carolyn Blish's "Tide's Edge" takes you to the sea.

The showing has been one of the most successful events held yearly at the museum. Mrs. Geri Atwell, curator, said, "We are hoping for a good crowd again this year."

Active, retired postal employees will be special guests at banquet

The Dora Roberts Student Union Building cafeteria will be the scene Saturday evening of a 7 p.m., dinner honoring retired employes and all present employes of the Big Spring Post Office.

Featured speaker will be Tumbleweed Smith (Bob Lewis). Jim Baum will serve as master of ceremonies.

Section Center Manager D. E. Holster of Midland will be a guest.

Superior Accomplishment awards will be presented to two postal employees for outstanding performance of their duties over a period of 12 months.

Families of both active and retired employees of the Post Office will be special guests at the banquet.

Midland County grand jury probes election

MIDLAND— A Midland County grand jury has undertaken an investigation of the Nov. 7 Precinct 2 commissioners election and subsequent recount, seeking possible criminal violations.

The probe, requested by County Clerk Rose Nelle Cherry, heard testimony for 5½ hours Wednesday.

Questions surrounding the close race arose when a recount reversed election results in favor of ten- year incumbent Charles Welch. First results in favor of ten-year incumbent Charles Welch. First results showed Republican challenger Sam Snoddy winning by a margin of 21 votes.

Both Snoddy and Welch appeared before the grand jury Wednesday.

Trustees expected to discuss rehiring of former BSHS coach

The Big Spring School trustees will discuss the annual audit report and the employment of an auditor today. Legal Counsel Mike McKinney will also be present for consultation during the 5:15 p.m. meeting in the board room near the Big Spring High School.

McKinney says he expects board members to discuss the rehiring of ex-coach James Griffith. Texas Commissioner of Education M. L. Brockette ruled Nov. 14 for the plaintiff, Griffith, that he should be rehired. The local school board has the option of rehiring him or appealing the case with the State Board of Education.

Community Christmas Concert slated Sunday

The first Community Christmas Concert will be held Sunday, Dec. 3, at 3 p.m. at the city auditorium.

The event is sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Cooperating in the event are the Big Spring public schools, Howard College and the First United Methodist Church.

Children in the second through fifth grade elementary music classes will furnish the main portion of the program.

The elementary music teachers include Mrs. Joyce Bradley, Mrs. Linda Mason, Mrs. Kathleen Tedesco, and Mrs. Jo Hazel Dawson.

Ken Sprinkle of Howard College will sing a vocal solo at the event. There also will be a puppet show done by Kelly Draper and Charles Parham.

A mass dress rehearsal will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the city auditorium.

Accused bandit seized; sack of cash recovered

HOBBS, N. M.—A man was arrsted in front of the New Mexico Bank & Trust Co., here Wednesday afternoon with what police said was a papersack full of money.

Horace E. (Bud) Lewis of Hobbs was charged with the robbery. Lewis was arrested within seconds after the robbery. No weapon was found.

Police said $3,113 was taken from the downtown bank by a man who entered the financial institution about 11:15 a.m., and handed teller Betty Jowell, 25, of Hobbs, a note that read "This is a robbery, put the money in the paper bag and keep you foot off the button." Ms. Jowell compiled with the demand.

Magistrate Don Hallam set Lewis' bond at $10,000. Lewis, 47, is an unemployed laborer. He was transferred to the county jail in Lovington this morning.

Police disclosed that Lewis had been under surveillance by the Hobbs police and the FBI since Monday night.

She won the world championship and will be back at this year's finals trying to retain the title. Miss Perrin is 14, and is a high school freshman.

Number of parrot fever cases in humans spiral

Pet birds smuggled from Mexico and legally imported birds with inadequate quarantine have more than doubled the number of parrot fever cases in humans in Texas this year.

As of mid-October the total was only five but that is apparently enough for two researchers at Texas A&M University to declare parrot fever "a significant public health menace in Texas."

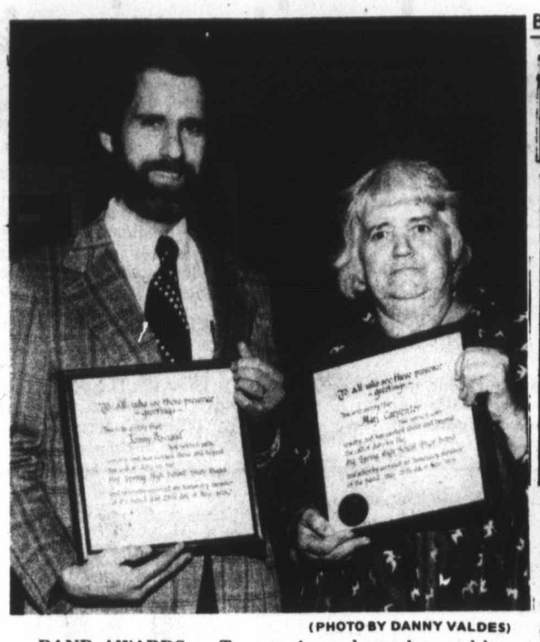

Parrot fever, also called psittacosis, is most common in people who often are around pet birds such as parakeets, parrots, macaws and cockatiels. The disease can be fatal for birds and people but it is treatable in both groups and is rarely transmitted from human to human.

Writing in the November issue of Texas Medicine, the Texas Medical Association's monthly journal, J. E. Grimes, Ph.D., and B. Panigraphy, Ph.D., said physicians should suspect psittacosis if a bird owner complains of chills, fever, sore throat, headache, sensitivity to light and lack of appetite.

The two authors, who are associated with the veterinary school at Texas A&M, also said psittacosis can occur in poultry, especially turkeys. Veterinary treatment and quarantine usually control psittacosis outbreaks and make poultry and pet birds safe for processors, consumers and owners. The researchers say quarantines apparently fail mainly when large numbers of badly infected birds do not get enough medicine to rid them of the infection.

Crane commissioners call Jan. 20 election

CRANE—Crance County commissioners have scheduled a Jan. 20 election, at which time the issue of splitting the duties of county tax assessor-collector and county sheriff will be decided.

The election will be conducted in the commissioners' court room in the courthouse.

County Judge Charles Blue said this was the second time for an election on the issue. Such a proposal was defeated last year.

Blue said that, in his opinion, it would be a lot better to split the duties, contending the voters could expect better performances out of both departments.

"The sheriff is in favor of dropping the tax-assessor duties and I think it would mean more money to the county," Blue said.

Crane is one of the few counties in Texas which still have the combination duties.

According to the election notice, if the measure gains voter approval, the office of tax assessor-collector will be filled at the next general election.

Budget surplus makes it easier to spend

The only thing wrong with state surpluses, as we see it, is that they provide too big a temptation for legislators to get out the checkbook and start writing.

Texas has boasted a budget surplus for several years now, a condition that can't always exist, and some of the people we have elected to legislative offices become downright frantic in their spending zeal.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, state governments in fiscal 1977 accumulated surpluses totaling $13.3 billion.

THE FEDERAL government, on the other hand, has long been known for spending more than it took in. Its deficit amounted to about $50 billion for the one year.

States, it becomes obvious, are better equipped to contain massive problems like inflation. The federal government, of course, is the cause of the double digit inflation this country has been experiencing.

What institutions do the states support? Well, for one thing, the cost of education. The states are also commiteed to support welfare, highways and hospitals.

The rate of spending went up by 5.1 percent last year, to a rather alarming $191.2 billion. Broken down, the states spent $64 billion for education, up 7.4 percent (Higher education accounted for more than a third of that).

Yearly welfare costs for the states reached a total of $32.8 billion, escalation to $3.1 billion. A 14.3 percent hike in medical assistance payments was the key increase. State transfers to local government for welfare amounted to $8.8 billion.

THE STATES CUT back rather drastically on highway expenditures (and many of the highways are beginning to show it). The percentage decrease was 3.3. In dollars, the figure came to $17.5 billion. Federal funding, let it be stated, was down.

Hospital funding by the states amounted to $8.7 billion, an increase of 11.8 percent.

One has to take into consideration the fact that much of the revenue increase can be charged off to inflation rather than economic growth.

As oil production goes now and the rate of spending goes up, Texas could be in serious trouble in a few years.

No one likes to talk about it but a state income tax is a distinct possibly in the not too distant future.

At the present time, the Texas economic look is so good the exodus from the snow belt is rocketing along with no indication it will slow.

The protectionist tiger

Evans, Novak

TOKYO — A nightmare haunts the upper reaches of the Japanese establishment: that the political influence of this nation's cattle raisers and citrus growers will provoke a protectionist reaction by the U.S. Congress, with ruinous consequences for the U.S.-Japanese alliance and the Western economy.

That nightmare was sufficiently vivid even without explicit warnings this week from American ruling Liberal Democratic party (LDP) on the small but strategically placed farm vote, there is no chance of lifting all quotas on fruit and beef. That political fact of life, though trivial in broad economic terms, could unlock the floodgates of trade protection.

Ironically, relations between the two countries are at their warmest since before the "Nixon shocks" of concern not President Carter's good intentions but his mastery over events.

"PRESIDENT CARTER is much more of a free trader than President Nixon," Nobuhilo Ushiba, who as minister for external economic affairs is the counterpart of U.S. trade negotiator Robert Strauss. "But can Carter do as well as Nixon in controlling the Congress?"

Ushiba and other Japanese leaders, accustomed to orderlv decision-making, are bewildered — and a little frightened — by fragmentation of power in Washington. Apart from Carter's weakness in Congress, they yearn for the good old days when they could concentrate on Wilbur Mills, in assurance that he could guarantee the outcome of trade legislation.

Retired Sen. Mike Mansfield, who has emerged as probably the most widely respected and popular U.S. ambassador to Japan, has tried to explain the new congressional reality to Japanese officials. Symbolically, he has placed photographs of the joint congressional leadership on his office walls. "I did this not because they are my old friends," Mansfield told us, "but to show that it is not enough only to talk to the president and the secretary of state."

When hordes of congressmen turned up here Nov. 14 on their post-election migrations, Mansfield urged them to speak frankly to Japanese Diet members. They did just that. Three House Ways and Means Committee members — Reps. Sam Gibbons of Florida, Jimmy Jones of Oklahoma and William Frenzel of Minnesota— bluntly warned hat the protectionist tiger will be let out of its cage unless Japan does more to ease U.S. imports.

The English-speaking Kiichi Miyazawa, director of economic planning, listened in obvious displeasure.

GIBBONS STRESSED the dire consequences of not removing trade barriers against the oranges of his Florida constituents, which sounds like threatening World War III because of a border incident. Maximum additional citrus and beef imports would not exceed $500 million - hardly a dent in Japan's current $18 billion trade surplus over the U.S. ($6 billion more than last year).

To foreign service professionals in the U.S. embassy, all this smacks of "Jap bashing." However emotionally irrational it may be, the stakes are enormous. There is real fear here by both government and business of a protectionist trade war set off by Congress that would be a tragedy for the West and sheer disaster for Japan, which must trade to survive.

Why not try to keep this tiger caged by dropping the last agricultural import quotas? That is a question asked by influential Japanese businessmen, who grumble about Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda's caution. But the malapportioned farm vote is so vital to Fukuda's conservative LDP that he must tread carefully.

Skin depigmentation mystery discorder

By the late George C. Thosteson, M. D., in collaboration with Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a skin problem called "vitiligo." For two years I have been going to dermatologists and have been told there is no cure. In my reading on the subject I have seen remedies mentioned. I have been told that eating liver can help. What are the chances of clearing up this condition? Help! — J.E.T.

Vitiligo (VIE-tih-LIE-go) is a patchy discoloration of the skin where melanin, the skin pigment, is lacking. The cause is not known and various treatments have been largely unsuccessful. One newer possibility is the combination of psoralens and ultraviolet light. It is not a permanent "cure" but repigmentation has been known to occur and, in some instances, to last several years. The results can be discouraging, so it is not a widely-recommended procedure. My personal opinion is that it can be worth the try, and you may find a dermatologist who agrees.

Other problems, such as diabetes, thyroid disturbance, pernicious anemia, and adrenal gland malfunction often accompany vitiligo. A Danish dermatologist reports that 10 per cent of his vitiligo patients also had pernicious anemia, which is an inability to utilize vitamin B-12 in food. That may be the basis of the liver suggestion, because that is high in B-12. However, injections of the vitamin are required. Eating foods rich in B-12 does not help much. I can't give you any odds for clearing up your problem, but you might mention the psoralen-light treatment and see if your doctor feels it is worth the attempt.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had major surgery (pelvic) about six weeks ago. It was successful, and my doctor told me I was OK and to enjoy life. But I have started having trouble, such as feeling faint in the morning. You have mentioned anxiety and depression as affecting the body this way. It was an item about low blood sugar. My neighbor told me she had same trouble after surgery, so she started eating a stick of candy to get over the faintness. Can you comment? Is this a common problem after surgery? — Mrs. H. D.

Trauma, which means any shock to the system. can affect the body's gland system. Major surgery can be considered traumatic. Can it cause a dip in blood sugar? I would say it can, but it should be only a temporary one. As you read this, you are probably recovered from this temporary quirk in your metabolism. In any event, the stick of candy idea might be all right in providing the temporary lift one needs. But for a more reliable lift the longer lasting effect of an occasional piece of cheese (protein snack) is sounder.

In the case of early morning fatigue, any high protein snack at night is best. If your faintness continues you should be examined. The blood glucose matter can be easily determined by a blood test. There is more on this subject in my booklet, "Help for Hypoglycemia," which you can order by sending 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Big Spring Herald. There is a natural tendency for a patient to be psychologically depressed following extensive surgery, but the blood sugar drop undoubtedly contributes to this in many instances.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

Recently Jimmy Carter imposed voluntary wage and price controls on the country, with a threat to make them mandatory if the people of the United States did not go along with the voluntary program. Mr. Carter, along with the vast majority of the American public, is, or seems to be, unaware of the real causes of "inflation." To say that the wage-price spiral causes inflation is like saying, "wet streets cause rain."

Business blames "inflation" on the unions, and unions blame "inflation" on business, and everyone thinks that 100 percent of parity for the farmers will cause more "inflation." Friends, all of you are WRONG, for only the GOVERNMENT can cause "inflation."

If Carter sincerley wanted to stop "inflation," he would put wage and price controls on the government rather than trying to inflict them on the rest of us. Yes, he did say that he was going to keep an eye on it. Some people are cheering Carter because he "did something"! This is like cheering for a motorist who shoots a pedestrian he has just run over!

Wage and price controls are at the very heart of Socialism. You can't have a totalitarian government without wage and price controls, and you can't have a free country with them. Why? You cannot impose slavery upon people who have economic freedom. As long as people have economic freedom, they will be free. Wage and price controls are PEOPLE controls! In his Phase II speech, President Nixon made it clear that the 90-day wage and price controls that he imposed would be with us in one disguise or another from now on. They are a major step towards establishing an all-powerful Executive brand of the Federal Government.

After the "Insiders" have created the United Socialist States of America, the next step is the Great Merger of all nations of the world into a dictatorial world government. This was the main reason behind the push to bring Red China into the United Nations. If you want to control the food, natural resources, transportation, commerce and banking for the whole world, you must first put everybody under the same roof.

Friend, they have everybody under the same roof and they have control of all the above except food, and believe me, they are rapidly gaining control of the food.

This is where the American Agriculture Movement has taken up the fight, and we need everyone's help.

Daryle Coates

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a Christian but have failed to live the Christian life. Now I am in jail. I hope to do better when I come out. Is there any advice you can give me?—O.F.

DEAR O. F.: You have tried to live the Christian life and when you get the chance you are going to try even harder. That is your problem. You are trying too hard. The secret of the Christian life lies not in trying to do our best, but in trusting Christ to do His best.

You cannot do anything to provide the forgiveness of your sins. You cannot do anything to remove from your life the penalty of sin. You have to trust Christ to take that penalty from you. You cannot live the Christian life. You have to trust Christ to live out that life within you.

The answer for you is the same as it was for Paul: "Christ in you, the hope of glory" (Colossians 1:24). Make certain that Christ has taken up an abiding place in your life, and then so commit your life to Him moment by moment that you are living in His strength and not in your own. Christ says: "My strength is made perfect in weakness" (II Coringhians 12:9). Do not try to face the world in your own strength. Go out recognizing your own weakness, and then you will depend upon Christ's strength. It is there that victory lies.

Being the financial ignoramous that I am (wisdom takes time to accumulate), I had assumed for a very long time that it was better to pay cash than charge.

With an air of superiority because I hadn't fallen into the "Buy Now Pay Later" trap, I proudly smiled and said no when any cashier in the past asked if I had a credit card after presenting her with a check.

But lately, because of my lack of a credit card, I have been subjected to inferior treatment. I have had to wait for check approvals and put up with sighs and glares from everyone behind me in line. Now it is with embarrassment, rather than pride, that I reluctantly admit "No, I don't have a credit card."

I have discovered that it is nearly impossible to obtain a credit card unless you already have a credit card just as it is futile to apply for a loan unless you already have a loan.

To not owe anyone anything has always been a financial ideal that I have strived for. But, alas, it seems that owing money is a worthy attribute while not to owe is to be an outcast from a society that weighs a person's financial worth in credit cards, rather than gold.

I figure I rank somewhere between "undesirable" and "valued" as I owe lots of money, but unfortunately, it's all to the wrong places. Sadly, I do not owe a bank or credit card company.

When you are a safely married woman, credit is not much of a problem.Marriage and credit seem to go hand in hand. In only a few years, you find you are a couple with a list of credit references.

But in the event that the marriage ends, as they sometimes do, the wife is apt to lose her credit along with husband and income at a time when she may need credit the most. This means starting over in building up her own credit references and doing it at a time when her income may be severely lowered.

I have observed that those who do well financially and need credit the least, have the easiest time obtaining credit, while those of us who have limited means and need credit the most, have the least credit potential. I regret that I didn't pay more attention to the credit rules when I could have afforded them.

The 1975 Equal Credit Opportunity Act has prohibited discrimination against women in borrowing money, but it doesn't automatically entitle us to a loan. It does mean that we now have a fair shot at establishing a credit history, married or single.

In addition to outlawing discrimination in the case of the single woman, the act allows a married woman to establish a credit history separately from her spouse. A married woman can obtain a loan in her own name without her husband's signature.

JUST IN CASE, it doesn't hurt to be prepared for the possibility of divorce or widowhood, however remote those possibilities may seem. It's advisable for every married woman to build credit in her own name, rather than use her husband's name.

Even in shared credit, such as a joint credit card account or loan, the simple act of using her own name next to her husband's, rather than having the credit issued to Mr. and Mrs., assures that charges made and paid will appear in individual credit histories if so requested.

A certain amount of togetherness is vital to marriage, but it should be left at the door to the bank. Just because you're entitled to use a man's name, doesn't mean you always should.

Military motto

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department's gargantuan budgets offer singular evidence that familiarity breeds contempt. Massive military spending has become so familiar over the years that the Pentagon bureaucrats have grown utterly contemptuous of the taxpayers' money.

With billions of dollars being tossed around like confetti at a New Year's Eve party, the value of each dollar has become as piddling as a fleck of colored paper. The attitudes that "this little bit won't be missed" and "everybody pads a little bit" are rampant, even though the Pentagon's "little bits" are often quite sizable by civilian standards.

PROPERTY DISPOSAL is a classic example of the waste that is spawned by this cavalier, let-them-eat-cake attitude toward the overburdened taxpayers. Close to $5 billion worth of military hardware — from tanks to refrigerators — is turned over to property disposal warehouses annually.

This treasure trove is discarded because the items are outdated or no longer needed, or because somebody goofed and ordered too much. The storerooms are piled high, for example, with spare parts for canceled and antiquated equipment.

About a quarter of the material is sold for scrap. The rest is usable. Some articles arrive at the disposal warehouses still in their original cartons.

Military regulations require that surplus property be made available at little or no cost to other defense agencies, a practice that saves millions of dollars a year. But unfortunately, millions more are wasted because too many brass hats consider property disposal as a license to forage for anything that strikes their fancy. Armed with requisition slips, they wander through the warehouses like kids in a toy store, gathering up whatever they want.

Some recent abuses include the following:

— A recent audit of 27 military facilities was unable to account for $400,000 worth of requisitioned property. One facility alone, the Mobile Inshore Underwater Unit in Winthrop, Mass., could not explain what had happened to $150,000 worth of such attractive items as chainsaws and outboard motors.

— The Navy and Marine Corps Reserve Center in Harrisburg, Pa., requisitioned 1,000 cans of canned heat worth $950. According to personnel at the base, 701 cans were used on personal camping trips, a form of petty thievery that reportedly is rampant in the Armed Services.

— Millions of dollars' worth of still-usable property is literally blown away each year in target practice. The targets include tanks, trucks, automobiles and personnel carriers. Fort Benning, Ga., for example, obtained 23 trucks worth $145,000 to use for target practice. Although base officials deny it, defense records show that 18 of the trucks were in running condition, and the other five needed only minor repairs to make them usable as trucks instead of targets. By coincidence, the trucks had conveniently been turned over to property disposal by Fort Benning officials shortly before they were requisitioned.

— EXPENSIVE electronic equipment, often brand-new or in good working order, is requisitioned by training units and destroyed through abuse and neglect. One facility destroyed $7 million worth of equipment in a single year. Sophisticated communications items, costing up to $45,000 each, is often ruined when trainees mishandled it — "when those klutzes get hold of it," as one disgusted defense official put it.

— Authorized units sometimes requisition surplus property and then turn it over for unauthorized activities. For example, the Lemoore Naval Air Station in California requisitioned a $64,000 fuel truck that wound up being used by the Lemoore Aero Club.

Most of the property disposal abuses could be avoided with proper bookkeeping methods that would make supply officials at each level accountable for what they requisitioned and how the material was used. But the free-and-easy attitude toward the public's property permeates the whole system. As one defense official told our associate Peter Grant, the attitude that taxpayers' money is somehow not real money "carries over to the type of records and controls maintained for the property."

Officials in charge of property disposal claim that accounting methods are being tightened to prevent the rip-offs, and that new regulations are being considered to bring some order out of the free-wheeling chaos.

But other officials say the problem will continue as long as the military feels that the property is theirs, not the public's. The fact that the property cost thousands of dollars is of no consequence to the profligate brass hats.

In earlier, more frugal times, the rule was: "Use it up, wear it out, make it do or do without." For our devil-may-care military, that has been changed to: "Use it a little, throw it away, get some more, the taxpayers pay."

Texas economy remains strong

As long as Texas remains the chief producer of energy in the United States, the state likely has little to fear from recessions that could grip most of the country from time to time.

One such economic setback is being predicted by some experts as early as the first quarter of 1979.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock reported recently that gross sales in Texas reached $44.2 billion during the second quarter of this year. Compare that to the $1.8 billion figure for the first quarter in 1978.

Bullock said the economic activity for the first half of 1978 was 'exceptionally strong.' It certainly was that and is the big reason the state is experiencing unprecedented growth.

POINT AND ORDER — "Ask her," said actor Anthony Quinn, pointing to wife Iolanda, when the couple were asked what anniversary they were celebrating at Quo Vadis in New York Wednesday night. The Quinns said they had always wanted to celebrate their wedding anniversary in New York. But Wednesday was either late or early since the record has their marriage Jan. 2, 1966.

Oxford students fling eggs

Nixon gets angry reaction

OXFORD, England (AP) — Five hundred student demonstrators flinging eggs and shouting "No crooks here!" and "No more Nixon!" gave former President Richard M. Nixon an angry reception today as he arrived at Oxford University to deliver an address on foreign affairs.

Once inside the Oxford Union debating society hall, Nixon got a friendly welcome from the waiting audience of about 800 students, who applauded loud and long. But at times the expresident's voice was almost drowned out by the chanting outside.

"Mr. President, sir," Nixon began, addressing Daniel Moylan, Oxford Union president. Nixon then hesitated as the chants cut in. He paused, smiled, and continued: "Thank you for the very warm welcome of those inside — and those outside for making me feel very much at home."

The audience broke into applause and laughter, and Nixon launched into his speech.

Protesters, just yards away from the building, shouted obscenities and roared in unison such slogans as "Who Killed Allende?" — a reference to Marxist President Salvador Allende of Chile, who died in a 1973 right-wing coup.

Earlier, the placard-waving crowd of British and American protesters pummeled Nixon's black limousine as it drove up outside the hall.

Demonstrators knocked off the helmets of a cordon of British policemen and pushed forward to surround Nixon's auto. Secret Service men in tan raincoats rushed forward and surrounded the car, and police eventually held back demonstrators to allow Nixon into a narrow passageway behind the building.

Nixon, told of the protest that awaited him here, had said it would make him feel "very much at home."

Leading American students at the famed British university had said they planned to turn out hundreds of students, including a busload of Americans from London, to try to keep the former president from speaking at the Oxford Union, the university's 155-year-old debating society.

At least one protester received a black eye. People close to Nixon's car were hit in the head or shoulders by flying eggs. But it was not known whether Nixon himself was struck, and a policeman who was in the middle of the fracas said no officers were injured and there were no immediate arrests.

Protest signs read: "Nixon Crawl Back Into Your Hole," "Why Shame Us Here" and "If You Can't Die, at Least Fade Away."

Demonstrators included 43 Rhodes and Marshall scholars, and more than 100 other Americans studying at Oxford. Some had fashioned themselves as an ad-hoc group called "CREEP," using the acronym of Nixon's one-time Committee to Re-Elect the President but changing the meaning to "Campaign to Resist the Effects of the Ex-President."

Andy Paalborg, 23, of Philadelphia, a graduate student in politics at Oxford's Pembroke College, was a vociferous leader in the protest.

"I feel insulted this man apparently thinks I have no memory and no intelligence," Paalborg said.

Spreading 'halo' effect of patrolmen faces test

COLLEGE STATION — Texas motorists will soon become more inclined to obey posted speed limits.

It will appear that more Depratment of Public Safety patrolmen are on the state's highways, without actual increases in their numbers.

The paradox is expected to occur as the result of Texas Transportation Institute studies contracted with the Office of Traffic Safety, in the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

The research directed by Drs. Mark Edwards and Quinn Brackett of TTI's Human Factors Division, is aimed at spreading the "halo" effect of highway problems. Preliminary findings indicate the concept has widened a single patrolman's effect on speed compliance behavior from six to 14 miles.

"It appears to work even when traffic includes motorists with citizen band radios and radar detection units," Brackett said.

If it is found feasible for use on a statewide basis, the research concept has the potential to enable Texas' almost 1,500 patrolmen to better influence traffic on the state's 70,000 miles of highways.

The result is paramount to Texans. Motorists observed the 55 mph speed limit "fairly well" for a year after its 1973 nationwide adoption, Brackett said. The trend since 1975 has been increasing speed.

"Unless the state can show a percentage reduction in speeders, Texas stands the chance of losing a corresponding percentage of federal highway funds," Brackett noted.

Adequate increases in the number of patrolmen to this end is economically impossible.

"It would take a 100 fold increase to have the desired impact. This would be one trooper for each three miles of highway," Brackett added.

Instead, the TTI researchers are developing a scenario in which patrol vehicles will be used in a "high visibility" manner that is randomized for time and location.

"It works on the psychological principle of reinforcement," Brackett explained. "One day, the patrol will park in one location along a stretch of highway. The next day, it will be at another site also randomly chosen.

"The third and fourth days, the patrolman will be at different locations at different times, also highly visible. The fifth day, he would work another highway. But his effect is still present."

Gradual site visibility reductions to effect maintenance levels would eventually allow a single patrolman to work three or four major roadways a week.

"The drivers will never know where to expect him," the TTI engineer pointed out. "If he moves to issue a citation, he will return to the assigned location for that day to maintain visibility."

TTI's first studies, under actual traffic conditions on selected highways, "showed a spread of the patrolman's 'halo' effect to 14 miles, where it was previously six," Brackett added.

"It will only work in peak commuter traffic," he added, such as main arteries from small outlying cities to major cities' work centers.

"If the motorist on the way to and from work is able to see the patrolman on a regular basis, then he will be led to suspect an increase of not only numbers of patrolmen but level of traffic surveillance," Brackett said. "It should affect the driver at other tmes as well, and thus derive other benefits."

The TTI investigator said these include reduced accident rates. Part of a new research contract package is to assess over larger areas the technique's impact on speeds and accidents, "to determine if cost warrants use of the concept."

At any rate, he pointed out, the technique promises savings by having patrol units standing most of the time, instead of on the move.

Good fighter

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — When Jason Pisano's parents want to buy him a gift they tend to stay away from the ordinary.

For Jason, a 6-year-old cerebral palsy victim, a real cool present would be a sweat suit, a Muhammed Ali T-shirt, a pair of boxing gloves and the like.

San Francisco mayor will be buried today

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco today buries its slain mayor after three days of lowered their flags but raised their chins since George Moscone's assassination.

"The people of San Francisco are indomitable even in the moments of greatest adversity," acting Mayor Dianne Feinstein told thousands of people who gathered outside City Hall Wednesday to pay last respects to the murdered mayor and Supervisor Harvey Milk, slain moments after Moscone.

Former Supervisor Dan White, in police custody since shortly after the killings Monday, allegedly has confessed to the crimes, the San Francisco Chronicle reported today.

The bodies of Moscone and Milk lay in state for six hours beneath the ornate dome of City Hall, where the two were shot to death. More than 15,000 persons filed by, some weeping.

After a funeral Mass to be attended by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and mayors from across the country, Moscone's polished walnut casket will be laid to rest in the Holy Cross Mausoleum in Colma, near the bodies of relatives.

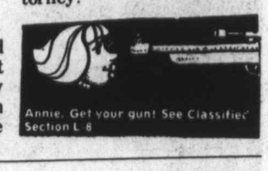

The Italian family has lived in San Francisco for decades, and Moscone was born, raised, educated and married here.

Extra buses were ready to transport San Franciscans to the funeral Mass, but the mausoleum service is private.

Milk's body will be cremated Friday and his ashes scattered over San Francisco Bay.

Both men were killed in their offices. White, who had resigned his supervisor's post wanted it back. But at the urging of Milk and others, Moscone had refused to reappoint him. The slayings occurred only minutes before Moscone was to announce Whites' replacement.

White, 32, was silent and dispassionate at a brief court appearance Wednesday where his arraignment on two charges of first-degree murder was postponed one week while he hires an attorney.

Fun Breakfast slated Tuesday

The second Fun Breakfast sponsored by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce and Citizens Federal Credit Union will be held at 6:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Howard College cafeteria.

The first one, sponsored by Big Spring Savings, was a big success and cash prizes are given at the event.

There are games, music, and a good breakfast for all who attend.

There will be the second "Big Spring Award." The first one was a spring on a wooden plaque and presented to Col. (ret.) Harry Spannaus.

Call reservations in to the chamber by noon Monday by calling 263-7641.

You do not have to be a chamber member to attend. There are prizes for both members and non members.

Dedication of museums

STANTON—Dedication ceremonies will be held at the Martin County Historical Museum and Old Jail Museum at 10 a.m. Saturday.

There will be tours following th ribbon cutting until 5 p.m.

The luncheon at the community center at 11:30 a.m. will feature a guest speaker. The Old Jail Museum dedication and tour is set for 2 p.m.

Ryan leaked story in 1975, newman says

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Rep. Leo Ryan, slain by religious cultists in Guyana, leaked a story on covert CIA operations in Angola to reporter Daniel Schorr in 1975, Schorr says.

The former CBS television newsman said Wednesday that Ryan gave him the information because he "felt the Angola operation was a terrible idea."

Ryan, a California Democrat, was killed Nov. 18 while returning from a fact-finding trip to the Peoples Temple commune in Jonestown. His death and that of four persons with him apparently prompted the suicides of more than 900 cult members.

Schorr told a military-media relations conference sponsored by the Naval War College here that he was not accustomed to revealing his sources. However, he said he felt it was proper to identify Ryan because he was "dead and beyond reproach."

Schorr said Ryan leaked the information to him after the congressman had received a top-secret briefing on the Angola activities from the staff of the House International Relations Committee.

Inspection of labor camps is pushed

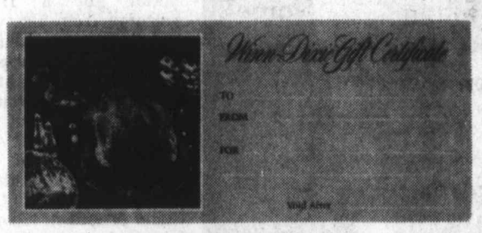

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — The wife of exiled Russian author Alexander Solzhenitsyn wants the United States to push for international inspection of Soviet forced labor camps and psychiatric hospitals that confine thousands of dissidents.

"Your oblivion to the reality of the suffering in today's world is dangerous," Natalia Solzhenitsyn told 1,800 people at Dartmouth College Wednesday.

In her first major speech since immigrating here in 1976, she praised President Carter's human rights stand, but warned that the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow has prompted a crackdown on dissidents.

She predicted dissidents would be expelled before and during the Games to prevent them from talking to foreigners about conditions in the Soviet Union.

PDAP: 'Treatment alternative for drug abuse'

DALLAS (AP) — Thousands of Texas drug addicts are stepping to a new beat, and the sound is a cadence of hope for those living in the shade of mind-clouding chemicals.

Bob Meehan is the Pied Piper of Houston, leading a parade of drug abusers in search for a place in the sun.

A former drug addict and convict, Meehan founded the Palmer Drug Abuse Program, which its National Executive Director Ed Leach calls the "treatment alternative for drug abuse."

But to former drug abusers and their families, working to salvage lives and personalities ravaged by mind-altering drugs, the program represents the last best hope.

"I wanted to kill myself three or four times," said Mark, a 16-year-old Dallas high school student, who pressured by his sixth-grade classmates, began using drugs four years ago.

Free of mind-altering chemicals for six months, Mark credits a feeling of "strength and unity" and "love" at PDAP with his new found sobriety.

"We do not believe the solution to chemical abuse can be found in another chemical," said Leach, a former addict. "Getting high is a way of life, a coping mechanism. Instead of chemicals we give them friends and relationships and love. The key is the constant affirmation that 'people care about me.'"

And Leach said, "There is a lot of healing in caring. Lonely and disconsolate persons find "the feeling that people care is mind-boggling."

"I was living a lie," said Jim, the 20-year-old son of an affluent Dallas family. "I thought people liked and respected me because I was into drugs. I picked friends who were into dope. I burned all my trails behind me."

Jim began "smoking dope" when he was 15. After he graduated to "hard" drugs, he began dealing to supply his habit.

"I had to start again, I had to be rigorously honest, change my morals, and conduct a personal inventory."

AT PDAP, Jim said he found a way to deal with his feelings of fear and inadequacy. "I found hope and trust and love."

Members embrace each other with contagious excitement at PDAP meetings in a genuine display of affection that trancends superficial cordiality and cuts right to the core of people who care about people.

"I found peace of mind for the first time in my life," said Jean, an alcoholic mother of a drug abuser. "For me PDAP means that my son will live instead of die."

Jean has been a member of the parent group for 2½ years, prior to her involvement she lived in fear of the son she could not understand and felt saddled with guilt because of his problem.

"I meet people with similar experiences, I know now it is not really my fault and I learned to feel good about myself," said Jean.

It's exactly that sense of selfworth that Leach said gives drug abusers the strength to overcome their habit.

If sobriety and self-esteem are the gospels of the PDAP, Meehan is the evangelist. PDAP supporters say he struggled alone to find a path back from addiction and prison, and now has dedicated his life to making it a well-traveled highway.

Meehan was digging ditches and shoring up his own self-esteem when an Episcopalian priest persuaded him to talk to a group of teenagers about his battle with drug addiction.

From that talk sprang a program Leach said has now affected more than 20,000 lives and is growing by leaps and bounds.

There are PDAP centers in Houston, San Antonio, Dallas-Fort Worth, Beaumont, Austin, Galveston, San Angelo and Denver. This spring it will expand into West Texas, and future plans call for centers in other states and Canada.

"We are having success problems," said Leach, "we cannot expand fast enough to meet the demand from communities wanting programs."

But Meehan refuses to give in to demands until the program is ready to expand. "We are not going to run the risk of damaging this program by being in a hurry."

Former drug addicts now living "chemically free lives" are trained as counselors. Leach said they have more credibility with participants and understand better than anyone else the problems and emotions of a drug abuser trying to follow Meehan's footsteps.

The program does have medical detoxification centers, but for the most part participants are treated on an out-patient, strictly voluntary basis, said Leach.

"The great thing about our program and what sets it apart from other programs is that it works," said Leach.

The list of PDAP trustees and financial supporters in Dallas reads like a "Who's Who" in civic circles.

Mayor Bob Folsom, a vocal supporter of PDAP, said it draws that support because it has been "successful at getting some Dallas kids off drugs and in keeping many others from becoming involved." And he said it has done so without any public funds.

The program operates on funds donated by individuals, industry and labor unions, said Leach.

He said PDAP never charges a fee for its service, and stressed its only membership qualification is a desire to lead a drug free life.

"We have many participants who have never been on drugs but simply like what the program does for people."

"The program," said Mark, "gave me something to believe in."

Bergland on swing through 4 states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is on a rapid-paced swing into four states to help spread the administration's gospel about inflation and let people know that China may be emerging as a major market for American farmers.

Bergland, who spent 10 days in China last month, is happily pointing out that Peking leaders apparently have decided the country should be an international shopper for farm commodities and many other items needed to modernize its agriculture and food industry.

In his first stop Wednesdah in Chicago, Bergland said longterm U.S. agricultural and technological trade with China depends on the stability of the Chinese government, which favors modernization.

"The turn to the West in China is being hotly debated," Bergland said. "As long as they (the current regime of senior Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping) stays in control, we will see this modernization continue."

Bergland also was scheduled today to make appearances in New Orleans, Dallas-Fort Worth and Denver before returning to Washington Friday.

One of his themes regarding China is that if it succeeds in modernizing its poultry industry, for example, American producers of corn and other feed grains could benefit.

"We know that an annual one pound per capita increase in the consumption of chicken would mean China would have to grow or buy an additional 32 million bushels of corn and soybeans each year," he said.

"We also know that a one pound per person increase in pork consumption would create a demand for an additional 75 million bushels of corn and soybeans annually."

China, after remaining out of the U.S. grain market since 1974, this year has bought about 3.9 million bushels of wheat and 2.3 million bushels of corn, plus soybeans, soybean oil and cotton.

In remarks prepared for his appearance in Dallas, Bergland noted that cotton exports to China "will almost certainly exceed last year's 414,000 bales."

Regarding inflation, he said in remarks for the New Orleans and Denver appearances that the Agriculture Department is following a policy of "stringent belt-tightening" in its spending for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

"For over two years," Bergland said, "President Carter has been asking Congress to cooperate in cutting excessive government spending and return to a balanced budget."

Morever, he said, "on Nov. 7 the voter sent all of us a clear message: reduce big government, or else."

Bergland added, however, that "high-priority programs affecting farm income, exports, human nutrition and some others will not be materially changed" by the department's belt-tightening.

UT awarded science grant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has approved a grant of $28,026 to some University of Texas scientists in hopes they can figure out what makes ticks tick.

Or, as the department's Science and Education Administration puts it, the scientists will work on ways to "fingerprint different kinds of ticks" by studying their "isoenzyme systems."

Those are chemical systems within the tick's body that have the same function but are different in the way they are put together.

By being able to figure these things out, scientists hope to "relate the genetic information to which hosts (victims) the ticks prefer and to ecological conditions."

If this can be done, they may find out ways to curb ticks which are bothersome to livestock, officials said.

Farm price figures to be out today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Figures showing how prices of farm commodities behaved in November are scheduled to be released later today, and the odds favor another overall increase.

The Agriculture Department report will include index figures for farm crop and livestock products as a group. The index rose in September and October following declines during the summer.

But livestock prices recently have continued strong, and prices of grain generally have been relatively steady despite the huge harvest this fall of corn and soybeans.

A month ago, the overall price index was up 23 percent from a year earlier.

Prices indicating expenses that farmers pay to produce also are included in the monthly report. Those were up 11 percent from a year earlier in October.

Gorilla goes ape over TV

ATLANTA (AP) — Whatever Willie B. wants, Willie B. gets. And Willie B., a 450-pound gorilla, has a television at the top of his Christmas list.

Willie B. is the only gorilla at the Atlanta Zoo and he gets lonely when his keepers aren't around, officials say.

"A television would keep him company," said Pat Dann of the Atlanta Zoological Society. "He likes to be talked to, but the keepers don't have time to stand around and talk to him."

Researchers have discovered primates enjoy television as much as humans do, Ms. Dann said. Animal behavior experts have assured her a television won't hurt the 20-year-old gorilla as long as he doesn't spend too much time watching it.

He hasn't been around another gorilla since his birth and zoo officials worry Willie B. would try to kill a playmate.

Until the television is delivered, his only entertainment remains a tire swing. He gets so bored, Mrs. Dann said, Willie B. unscrews nuts and bolts in his cage just to keep busy.

Entertaining in Washington: more than having a good time

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's more to entertaining in Washington than having a good time.

At parties, future meetings between diplomats are arranged. Strangers who will meet again and again check each other out. Important information is passed on. Sometimes an exchange at a party can effect the course of world events.

"The sternest purpose lurks under the highest frivolity," intones historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr. in his introduction to the newly published book, "Entertaining in Washington," written by Lucy Moorhead.

Although Mrs. Moorhead, wife of Democratic Rep. William Moorhead of Pennsylvania, calls entertaining in the nation's capital "a significant and useful enterprise," the prominent Washingtonians she interviewed shun the label "hostess."

"Nowadays women want to be involved in serious things, and for a long time, much entertaining in Washington was a meaningless exercise, giving a frivolous connotation to being called a hostess," says Mrs. Moorhead, who has given hundreds of parties during her 20 years in Washington — but wants to be known as a writer.

Entertaining is an art, however, and Mrs. Moorhead's friends who have been around official Washington long enough to know what will succeed, have shared their party secrets from state dinners at the White House to fox hunt breakfasts.

Evangeline Bruce, a writer and the widow of Ambassador David Bruce, suggests inviting a varied mix of guests. "Different groups love gaping at one another," she says. "Mix ages, have several beautiful women, cultural luminaries, writers, painters, stage and screen stars."

To avoid seating crises in case of last minute drop-outs or arrivals — a familiar Washington syndrome — Mrs. Cooper keeps a small table for two or three so place cards can be reshuffled. And she never seats husbands and wives together, because "they all make much more of an effort if separated."

Michael Edwards, an "international bachelor," warns against having "lemon couples" — those boring husbands and wives he says can be "the death of a party."

Mrs. Averell Harriman stresses the importance of the location of the bar, because that is inevitably where people congregate.

Mrs. Harriman also notes, "There is power in the importance of putting people together. If you get the right people together you should be able to reach the evening alone; the conversation runs itself."

Author Susan Mary Alsop speeds up the departure of lingering guests by just getting "quieter and quieter. And I stop offering drinks."

Mass suicides were horrible, Reagan says

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Ronald Reagan says the mass suicide by Peoples Temple members in Guyana was a "horrible thing" and that the cult's leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, appeared to attract more Democrats than Republicans.

Commenting on Jones in an interview with The Associated Press Wednesday, the former California governor said Wednesday: "I'll try not to be happy in saying this. He supported a number of political figures but seemed to be more involved with the Democratic Party. I haven't seen anyone in the Republican Party having been helped by him or seeking his help."

Jones was known tO have supported a number of liberal candidates for political office and to have urged his church's members to attend political rallies. Rosalynn Carter appeared at one rally with Jones during her husband's 1976 presidential campaign.

Carter's cousin wins outstanding journalism award

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The DeWitt Reddick Award for outstanding achievement in communication will go to Don Carter, group vice president of news with the Knight-Ridder Newspapers, University of Texas officials said Wednesday.

The award will be presented March 3 at the beginning of Communications Week, sponsored by the UT School of Communication. The award was created to honor a former dean of the school who is now professor emeritus of journalims.

Carter, who is a cousin of President Carter, also is president of the American Council on Education for Journalism.

Johnie Walker is recovering

Johnie Walker is in Houston for outpatient treatments at M. D. Anderson Hospital. He had a malignant growth removed from his voice box earlier this month, and was sent to Houston Monday for tests and thermo-nuclear treatments. He and his wife will stay in Houston for six to seven weeks, as he receives radiation treatments five mornings weekly.

Cards and letters to the Walkers can be sent in care of The Surrey House, 8830 S. Main Room 314, Houston, Texas 77030.

Wildcat takes shape in Martin County

A wildcat was scheduled in Martin County and a confirmer in Glasscock County this week in the oil patch.

Sparco Producing, Inc., Midland, will drill the No. 1 O'Bannon as a 12,800-foot Siluro-Devonian wildcat in Martin County, one mile southeast of the Siluro-Devonian opener, ¾ mile east of the second producer from that pay in the Breedlove, East (Spraberry and Siluro-Devonian) field, and five miles south of Patricia.

Location is 660 feet from the south and west lines of 23-260-Borden CSL.

The confirmer to the Breedlove, East field, Miller Exploration Co., Midland, No. 1-13 Gay-Wade, drilled to 12,015 feet and plugged back to 11,904 feet, was finaled Sept. 8, 1977 as an extension to Devonian production in the Breedlove field (and later amended to the Breedlove, East field) to pump 154 barrels of 42 gravity oil, plus two barrels of water, through perforations at 11,806-808 feet. It had been rescheduled Oct. 19 to plug back to test the Spraberry.

The discovery is still on the proration schedule, but shows not to be producing at the present time.

In Glasscock County, Ike Lovelady, Inc., Midland, will drill the No. 1-28 Powell as a ¾ mile south-southwest outpost to the current five-well Blalock Lake, South (Wolfcamp) field, separated by an 8,280-foot failure, and six miles northeast of Garden City.

Location is 1,980 feet from the south and 660 feet from the east lines of 28-35-3S-T&P. Contract depth is 8,400 feet.

Arthur Miller's 'Fame'

NBC to air an 'AW Gee' film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Network TV occasionally airs an original drama by a major writer. Great, but sometimes an Aw, Gee play results. It starts promisingly, then fizzles and you sigh, "Aw, gee."

Such is on NBC's Hallmark Hall of Fame tonight. It is "Fame," billed as a witty, ironic, lighthearted study of sudden success. It comes from Arthur Miller, the Pulitzer Prize-winning dramatist.

Richard Benjamin stars as young playwright Meyer Shine who, after years of discreet poverty, has hit gold. His comedies now lurk everywhere and his mug currently is on the cover of Time magazine.

(Anybody recognize Neil Simon here, shout "Bingo.")

Despite his wealth and Time cover, Shine wanders about in a wrinkled jacket, baggy pants, a day's growth of beard and expressions that go from bemused to amused to sardonic to annoyed and back again.

An ambivalent, seedy-looking millionaire, he is both obscure and famous and uncertain which one he wants. He seems to regard fame in the manner of a condemned man who, while on the scaffold, nervously asks the hangman: "Is this thing safe?"

A close pal is a barkeep, played by Nipsey Russell. He toils in the upper-class saloon where Shine once worked. He keeps urging the scribe to "start acting who you are," buy new threads, a Rolls.

Shine allows that he does okay now with women, but when he carries on with one, he feels three parties are in bed: "Me, her and my fame. (It) does something to the intimacy."

The scene is well-sketched, ditto one in which a pal from high school bumps into Shine at the saloon. Horrors; the pal doesn't know how Shine makes ends meet these days and offers aid.

Alas, the one-hour effort starts fizzling when the playwright goes to Rome to meet with Jose Ferrer, cast as a famous Italian director, on a movie to be made from a Shine play.

There ensues a long car ride from the airport with Raf Vallone, whom Shine first thinks is sent by the director, then suspects is a cabbie, then a kidnapper. To his embarrassment, it's none of these.

The ride goes on and on, adds little, and mainly features heavy sweating and no English from Vallone. But in time Shine survives this adventure and decamps to the director's house for dinner.

There, he learns the latter wants to cast a very small, homely lady jockey he recently met as the main event in Shine's play. This startles the author, as the play was about a beautiful, famous model.

The jockey (Linda Hunt, a fine actress, essays her) checks in. She proves to have a Ph.D. in contemporary drama. Which provokes no end of cosmic talk on whether perfect beauty is form of deformity, plus various rambles on the absurdities of fame and being famous.

Americans await World Golf Cup

PRINCEVILLE, Hawaii (AP) — While several major international stars are skipping the event for a variety of reasons, the fresh-faced American representatives are pumped up, excited and eagerly seeking the title in the 26th World Cup golf tournament.

"It's a different feeling," said John Mahaffey before teeing off today in the first round of the 72-hole test on the 6,940-yard, par-72 Princeville Makai course on Kauai, the westernmost of the Hawaiian Island chain.

"You're not playing for yourself and you're not playing for money," said Mahaffey, who scored a dramatic playoff victory earlier this year in the PGA championship. "You're playing for your country. It's different. You feel like you've got a lot at stake here, a lot to prove.

"It's the first time either Andy (U.S. Open champ Andy North) or I have had a chance to play for the United States. We're both pretty excited about it. We're looking forward to it," he said.

They appeared to have an excellent chance to win and return the United States to its long-held position of dominance.

Rose plays the field

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 100 expensive thoroughbred horses romped in nearby fields on the majestic 4,240 acres that make up John and Dan Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm.

But on this cold Ohio day the subject was baseball — specifically, the wooing of celebrated free agent Pete Rose into the already potent lineup of the Galbreaths' Pittsburgh Pirates.

Dan Galbreath, the club's president, said Wednesday he did not talk money in trying to land the 16-year Cincinnati Reds great for Pittsburgh, where the Pirates' attendance sagged to 964,000 in 1978.

"It sounds exciting," said the leading switch-hitter of alltime. "I'd be sort of a pioneer, getting the Pirates baseball fans turned on again."

Rose concedes he's now adding the Pirates to his list of top candidates after lunching with the Galbreaths and touring their farm.

"I know they weren't on my original list," Rose said, "but after talking to the Galbreaths, I have to change my mind. They are definitely an offensive team, which I love."

Rose and his agent, Cincinnati lawyer Reuven Katz, flew to Philadelphia for negotiations with the favored Phillies today, and a Friday trip to talk to the New York Mets was a distinct possibility.

STILL NEGOTIATING — Free agent Pete Rose, sixteen year veteran of the Cincinnati Reds, admires a stuffed tiger at the home of Pittsburgh Pirate owner John Galbreath, right. Rose visited the Galbreath farms near Columbus Wednesday to discuss a possible contract with the Pirates.

Hawks, Queens host WTC tonight

The Howard College Hawks and Hawk Queens open their conference schedule tonight when they play host to Western Texas College of Snyder. Both of the men's and women's teams from WTC are considered powerhouses and will be very tough to beat.

The Western Texas men's team is coached by Nolan Richardson. Richardson, a former outstanding player for Harold Davis at Texas Western (now UTEP), employs a pressure defense. Western Texas has excellent depth, and Richardson's troops will run a variety of defenses designed to harass the Hawks and tire them out.

Two returning players are the leaders of the Snyder crew. They are guard David Williams, a 5'10" guard, and Joe Mendoza, a 6'4" forward. Coach Harold Wilder, however, feels that Paul Pressey, a 6'5" forward from Richmond, Virginia, is the outstanding performer for WTC. Western Texas will carry a record of 9-1 into the contest. One of their wins was a narrow decision over Independence, Missouri, which annually is one of the top ten teams in the nation.

Coach Wilder, whose Hawks are 5-4 on the year, will start Rocky Rawls and Robby Randolph at the guards, Michael Wallace and Allen Bonds at the forwards, and R. Q. Tolliver at center. The Hawks game will begin at 8:00.

The Hawk Queens, with a record of 7-1, will be hoping to start a campaign that will end in another championship. This game is probably the biggest rivalry in girls' Western Conference play. WTC had won the championship every year of its existence until the Queens unseated them last year.

Another interesting note to the contest is rivalry between Hawk Queen Coach Don Stevens and WTC Dusters Coach Joe Cushing. They are good friends off the court, with both having coached at Forsan High School. But as in any friendship, each would like nothing better than to beat the other in head-to-head competition.

Game time for the female's game is 6:00. Special honored guests for Thursday's game are all students and employees of the Coahoma Independent School District, which will be admitted free.

Slew now a true stud

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Seattle Slew is safely installed in his new quarters at Spendthrift Farms with a set of illustrious paddock neighbors — Nashua, Wajima, Caro and Exclusive Native, sire of 1978 Triple Crown champion Affirmed.

Soon Slew, the 1977 Triple crown winner, will begin his career at stud and Spendthrift president Brownell Combs II viewed the dark brown colt's arrival as a sort of homecoming.

"We're very proud to have him," Combs said Wednesday. "We wanted him very much for two reasons. He was a terrific racehorse and will be a good stud, and he's a direct descendant of Myrtlewood, our foundation broodmare."

Karen Taylor, one of Slew's co-owners and a shareholder in his $12 million syndication, said "We bought him here and it's fitting he return to Kentucky."

Karen and Mickey Taylor bought Slew for $17,000 as a yearling at nearby Fasig-Tipton Paddocks' summer yearling sale.

Forsan edges Klondike

Klondike—The Forsan Buffaloes boys basketball team presented Coach Bobby Evans with his 100th victory in his stint at Forsan Tuesday night in an exciting overtime victory over the Klondike Cougars. The final score was Forsan 50, Klondike 46.

The game ended in a 44-44 tie at the regulation buzzer. Forsan used six free throws in the extra period, four by Angel Miranda and two by Dayton Robertson to escape with the win. Ironically, the Buffs connected on six of seven in the overtime period after hitting only six of fourteen in regulation.

Forsan was led by Robertson's 16 points and 10 rebounds. Bobby Hanson was high point for Klondike with 16. The Buffs are now 2-0 on the year, while Klondike slipped to 1-3.

The Klondike Cougars won the other two games of the evening. In the boys B game, Klondike beat Forsan by a margin of 63-28. Holcombe led the Cougars with 6 points, while Forsan was led by Brad Robertson with 12. It was the first game of the year for the baby Buffs.

Klondike emerged victorious in the girls varsity game. The final score was 54-32. Manda Mitchell was the high point girl for Klondike, now owning a 6-1 record, with 20 points. Val Stevens topped Forsan with 12 points. Forsan is now 1-2.

The Forsan boys return to action tonight at 8:30 in the Crane Tournament. They will play the host school in the first round. Both the boys and girls will return to action next Teusday when they travel to Greenwood.

Seminole beats Runnels girls

Seminole Junior High took both ends of their basketball games Monday night from Runnels in junior high girl's basketball action.

Seminole won the B team game by a score of 58—10. They were led by Rodriquez and Jenkins with six points each. Leslie Overman topped the Yearlings with four points. Others scoring were Michelle Perryman and Janet Fleckenstein with two a piece, and Renett Wilson and Mary Lynn Spencer with one point. Diana Lewis was lauded for her floor play.

Runnels also lost the A team match by a score of 45-14. The Yearlings were led by Shell Rutledge with five points followed by Shirina Newsom with four, Carmen Gonzales with three, and Sylvia Randle with two. Stacy Bott, Amy Ragan and Tammy Martin played good floor games. Runnels showed great promise in the second half, when they were outscored by a 13-11 margin.

Red fans incensed

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dick Wagner, who fired Sparky Anderson and apparently plans to let Pete Rose get away, has troubled the waters in this old river city where pro baseball was born.

Nine months after being named president of the Cincinnati Reds, Wagner has the natives howling for his head.

"I think the wrong man was fired," said City Councilman Thomas Brush.

"Have they gone bananas?" asked Mayor Gerald Springer, incredulous at the news.

In a 48-hour period, Wagner declared that the Reds were no longer interested in Rose and axed Anderson as manager after nine years.

It was too much for Mary Helwig, a 54-year-old widowed house cleaner from nearby Mount Washington. Hours after the stunning news, she strungup Wagner in effigy on her front porch.

"First Pete. Then he dropped the bomb on Sparky. That's when I decided to hang him," she said. "Pete is a legend here. He's our Babe Ruth. We've never had anyone like him. And Sparky got a dirty deal. There's something wrong with the front office."

The backlash quickly gained numbers.

An executive of a nationallyknown hotel chain said he will not allow Reds' promotional material in his six regional establishments.

"The only person I ever heard say anything nice about Dick Wagner was Sparky Anderson, and this is what he gets?" said Jeff Ruby, Holiday Inn's regional manager. Ruby, for years, has housed many Reds' players and coaches during the season.

Are the Horns really hurting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Twenty-four Texas Longhorns are listed as injured for the game with Texas A&M on Friday night, and Texas Coach Fred Akers says his players need to "tighten their belt."

"This is an amazing group of young men," Akers told the Longhorn Club on Wednesday. "I have so much respect for them and so much pride in them."

He said his squad is aware of "how many players they are going on the field without ... but they go ahead and tighten their belt. It's going to take that Friday night."

The injury list includes seven starters out for the season.

One of the latest casualties is punter Russell Erxleben, who has a hurt toe. "We're not sure about him," Akers said.

The nationally televised game ends the regular season for the two teams. Both have 7-3 records.

A&M will play in the Hall of Fame Bowl at Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 20. Texas will play in the Sun Bowl at El Paso Dec. 23.

Akers reviewed for club members the "awful day over at Waco."

Texas lost three fumbles and had a school record six passes intercepted in a 38-14 loss to Baylor Saturday. The defeat dropped Texas from No. 9 to No. 14 in the college poll.

"I don't know how to describe that thing," Akers said. "It looks like they took us totally by surprise."

Baylor was 2-8 and had lost to Rice by 10 points the previous week. Texas whipped Rice, 34-0, in its season opener.

"I think it (the upset loss) will serve to teach us a great lesson, painful as it was," said Akers.

As an illustration of how badly things went for Texas, the films showed quarterback Donnie Little was injured and lost for the season when a Texas guard knocked him off balance. As Little fell he pushed off the artificial turf with his left hand and tore ligaments and chipped a bone in his thumb. He had surgery Tuesday.

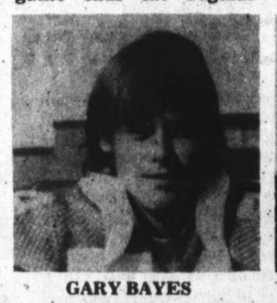

Akers' frustration mounted as he watched Baylor back Walter Abercrombie sprint 36 yards for a touchdown on a fourth down play with three seconds left in the first half.

"Oh boy," exclaimed Akers. "This is one nobody believes — three seconds and fourth and a ton."

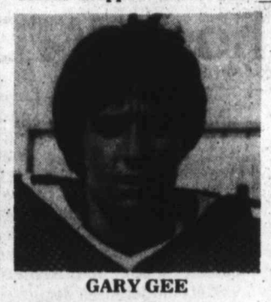

Nevertheless, Akers said, "We really felt at halftime we could win the football game."

Six Bulldogs make All-District

The Coahoma Bulldog football team, owners of an 8-2 record for the 1978 season, placed six of their members on the District 6-AA First Team All-District squad.

Besides the six spots on the First Team, the Bulldogs also earned two places on the second team and seven more on the honorable mention list.

Four of the first team All-District spots the Bulldogs earned were on the offensive team. They include quarterback Gary Gee (5'10", 150), halfback Ronald Sundy (5'8", 140), tackle Gary Bayes (5'11", 170), and punter Gary Paige (5'10", 165).

Two Bulldogs earned places on the first team defensive squad. They are down lineman James Dever (6'1", 180) and Cecil Walker (5'10", 155).

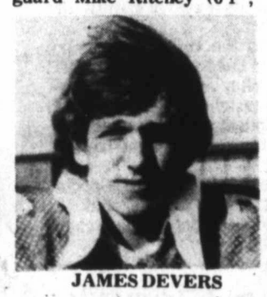

On the second team All-District team, the Bulldogs placed fullback Paige and guard Mike Ritchey (6'1", 170).

Three Coahoma players earned honorable mention on offense. They are halfback Tim Childers (5'6", 120), center Jim Bob Read (5'11", 185) and tackle James Dever.

The four players that were awarded honorable mention for their defensive work include defensive back Paige, down lineman Ritchey, linebacker John Mulkey (5'10", 155) and down lineman Mike Roever (60'0", 190).

NBA Roundup

When both of your centers are injured, what do you do? You do that the Philadelphia 76ers did Wednesday night — call on The Doctor.

In the 76ers' case, Dr. J., Julius Erving, provided the remedy in the second half after looking sick himself in the opening half against San Antonio. The result: a 120-114 National Basketball Association victory for Philadelphia in overtime.

With pivotmen Caldwell Jones and Darryl Dawkins ailing and absent, Erving was forced to do extra work underneath the basket in addition to his magical maneuvers outside. In the first half, however, The Doctor was more the problem than the cure, turning the ball over five times and scoring just six points.

In the second half, Erving scored 18 points, then added four points in the overtime, which the Sixers could have avoided had he hit a corner shot at the end of regulation play.

"When it went into overtime, I knew we'd win. We always win in overtime," said Erving.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Indiana edged New York 101-99; Golden State beat Houston 109-94 and Seattle topped New Jersey 125-111.

Philadelphia rallied from an eight-point deficit with four minutes left in the fourth quarter. Bobby Jones added 22 points to the 76er attack and Harvey Catchings filled in well at center.

George Gervin, the NBA's leading scorer, led San Antonio with 35 points and James Silas had 27. The Spurs had been shooting 52 percent from the field but hit on just 43 percent Wednesday.

"We should have won the game in regulation," said Spurs Coach Doug Moe. "But I'm not complaining. We played well, hard, and so did they. We certainly shot poorly."

Pacers 101, Knicks 99

The Pacers had their regular center, James Edwards, and he dominated New York pivot Marvin Webster as Indiana rallied from a 10-point third-quarter deficit. Edwards had eight points in the final period, including the field goal that put the Pacers ahead to stay.

Warriors 109, Rockets 94

Rick Barry returned to the Oakland Coliseum to a mixture of cheers and catcalls that turned into a chorus of boos as the game proceeded. The allstar forward, who left the Warriors as a free agent to sign with Houston last summer, scored 26 points. Phil Smith had 23 points, Robert Parish scored 22 and Sonny Parker added 20 to lead the Golden State rout.

SuperSonics 125, Nets 111

Sixth man Fred Brown broke out of a five-game scoring slump with 26 points for Seattle. Brown had scored just eight points a game in the last five games but was 11-15 from the floor and 4-5 from the line to tie his season high.

New Jersey's Bernard King led all scorers with 31 points.

Seahawks use Cowboys effectively

By the Associated Press

Gil Brandt pushed the button on the Dallas Cowboys' computer and out came...the Seattle Seahawks.

The master builder of the National Football League's defending Super Bowl champions has to get as much credit as anyone for turning the Seahawks, a 2-year-old expansion team when the season began, into a potential division champion.

Brandt, Dallas' director of personnel development, lost his assistant, Dick Mansperger, to Seattle when the team was formed in 1976. Since then, a veritable posse of Cowboys has trotted off to the Pacific Northwest to turn the Seahawks into quick winners.

Jim Zorn, Efren Herrera, Steve August, Tom Lynch, Terry Beeson, Duke Fergerson, Bill Gregory, Ron Howard... virtually all are starters on a team which won just two games two years ago, was 5-9 last year and now has a 7-6 record — and has the Oakland Raiders and Denver Broncos looking over their shoulders.

Zorn is a Cowboy castoff, the last player cut by Dallas before the start of the 1975 season. The left-hander from little Cal Poly-Pomona missed that season, then signed as a free agent with Seattle the next year. He instantly became the Seahawks' No.1 quarterback and has repeatedly wowed the crowds with his bomb-throwing, his scrambling and his knack for manufacturing sometimes implausible comebacks.

"Zorn has matured a great deal. He's a much better quarterback today than he was a year ago," says John Thompson, the Seahawks' general manager. "Today he's as good as the top quarterbacks in the league. The last two years he had his moments. Now he has consistency."

Zorn threw two touchdown passes against Oakland last Sunday, then guided the Seahawks into position for the 46-yard field goal with three seconds to play that beat the Raiders, the first season sweep of Oakland by any team since 1965. The guy who kicked the field goal? Herrera, dealt away by Dallas this year when he demanded a richer contract.

Starting on one end of the defensive line is Gregory, acquired from Dallas for a middle-round draft choice. Starting at tight end is Howard, a gift from the veteran allocation draft held when the league stocked the Seattle and Tampa Bay rosters.

The starting middle linebacker — Beeson. A starting guard — Lynch. A starting tackle — August. At wide receiver — Fergerson. That quartet is the result of the pre-draft deal that enabled the Cowboys to pick Tony Dorsett. The fans laughed then. Seattle had been snookered, they said.

A lot they knew.

The Cowboys got one player...a star, to be sure, but only one player. The Seahawks got the foundation for a franchise.

Dallas, of course, is doing quite nicely without Zorn & Co. "When the Cowboys win, we often say our farm team is doing well," says Thompson. "That's a common joke around here."

But the Seattle Seahawks aren't, anymore.

National Rodeo Finals beginning

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The 20th National Finals Rodeo gets underway here Friday with Tom Ferguson of Miami, Okla. leading a strong field of challengers into the race for all-around cowboy.

Ferguson has come out on top in the all-around competition for the past three years.

Last year, he worked right down to the wire to fend off a challenge by Paul Tierney of Rapid City, S.D.

This year, three challengers are after Ferguson's title.

Bareback and saddle bronc rider Ike Sankey of Rose Hill, Kan. and steer wrestling and calf roping experts Dave Brock of Pueblo, Colo. and Danny Torricellas of Eugene, Ore. are expected to do their best to unseat Ferguson.

Cowboys and cowgirls who finished in the top 10 moneywinners during the regular Professional Rodeo Cowboys' Association and Girls' Rodeo Association seasons will compete in the $330,000 finals competition that concludes Dec. 10.

Leach, Fusina share honors

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Quarterbacks Rick Leach of Michigan and Chuck Fusina of Penn State share honors on the American Football Coaches Association All-America team. They were elected in the first tie vote by the coaches group in 10 years.

"The voting was simply too close to call," AFCA president Carmen Cozza of Yale said Wednesday. "Both Leach and Fusina are great players and great leaders. They both clearly are All-Americans."

The dual selection all but overshadowed the selection of the nation's three premier running backs — Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims of Oklahoma, Charles White of Southern California and Charles Alexander of LSU, the only offensive player to repeat as an All-American.

Sims, who received the most individual votes, was the coaches' choice as Offensive Player of the Year.

The only previous tie vote by the AFCA involved quarterbacks Bobby Douglass of Kansas and Terry Hanratty of Norte Dame in 1968.

Rounding out the offensive team are center Jim Ritcher of North Carolina State, guards Pat Howell of Southern California and Greg Roberts of Oklahoma, tackles Kelvin Clark of Nebraska and Keith Dorney of Penn State, tight end Kellen Winslow of Missouri and split end Gordon Jones of Pittsburgh.

Linebacker Jerry Robinson of UCLA, the leading defensive vote-getter, was the only repeater on the coaches' defensive team.

Also chosen were linebackers Bob Golic of Notre Dame and Tom Cousineau of Ohio State, a defensive backfield of Henry Williams of San Diego State, Jeff Nixon of Richmond and Johnny Johnson of Texas, and a defensive line of Don Smith of Miami, Fla., Dan Hampton of Arkansas, Mike Bell of Colorado State, Bruce Clark of Penn State and Al Harris of Arizona State.

The coaches' All-America awards are sponsored by the Kodak company.

White is Pac-10 MVP

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Southern California tailback Charles White, the conference's all-time leading rusher, was named Player of the Year in the Pacific-10 Conference today.

Head coaches in the Pac-10 voted White the award after selecting his coach, John Robinson, Coach of the Year on Wednesday.

The Trojans, Pac-10 champions, take a 10-1 record into their final regular season game this weekend at Hawaii, then will be heading for the Rose Bowl. White has rushed for 1,608 yards this season and for 3,944 over three seasons.

He also is the conference scoring leader this year with 74 points.

Runner-up to White in the voting was tailback Darrin Nelson of Stanford, followed by teammate Steve Dils. Robinson's closest competition came from Craig Fertig of Oregon State, Frank Kush of Arizona State and Bill Walsh of Stanford.

Dawkins injured

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia 76ers' center Darryl Dawkins has been admitted to Temple University Hospital for treatment of a neck injury, a spokesman for the National Basketball Association said.

Dawkins was examined Wednesday by Dr. Michael Clancey, the team's orthopedist, who found no evidence of nerve damage. However, Dawkins was placed in cervical traction.

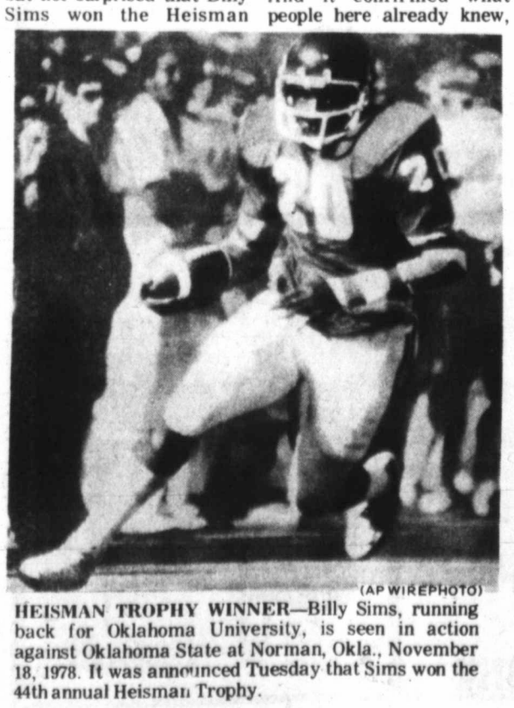

The 76ers' starting center, Caldwell Jones, who has been out with an irritation of a nerve in the right elbow, was also examined by Clancey. Jones had complained of an abnormal feeling in two fingers.

Hooks not surprised with Sims

HOOKS, Texas (AP) — Residents of this tiny northeast Texas town, basking in the glow of their favorite son, are excited and ecstatic, but not surprised that Billy Sims won the Heisman Trophy.

News of the announcement swept across this town of 3,000 faster than Sims ran through the Texas defense. And it confirmed what people here already knew, that Oklahoma University running back is the best college football player in America.

(AP WIREPHOTO)

HEISMAN TROPHY WINNER—Billy Sims, running back for Oklahoma University, is seen in action against Oklahoma State at Norman, Okla., November 18, 1978. It was announced Tuesday that Sims won the 44th annual Heisman Trophy.

"I cried for joy and then done everthing else," said Sims' great-grandmother Marcella Hubbard, who lives on Billy Sims Road almost next door to the small frame house where the Heisman winner lived with his late grandmother.

"I don't know what to say. I feel so happy and merry that my old boy won," said Mrs. Hubbard. "He always wanted that. He's a good boy. I love him."

Although Sims is just the sixth junior to win in the 44-year history of the Heisman Trophy, people here were confident he could win.

"He looked like he was just born in football," said J.C. Sims, Billy's great uncle.

"There was nothing like him for generating excitment. When Billy played here people would be in the stands by 4 p.m. for a 7:30 game," said Charlie Phillips, superintendent of schools.

And Sims gave them what they waited to see. In three years at Hooks, he rambled for an incredible 7,738 yards and 78 touchdowns. He rushed more than 100 yards in 38 consecutive games and, counting 48 extra points, tallied a whopping 516 points.

"I never realized at the time he would win a Heisman," said Joe Roper, former Hooks backfield coach and now a coach at Hallsville. "But when I saw him in the ninth grade I knew he would be a great athlete."

"He was strictly a ball player," said Mayor Clyde B. Aldridge. "A lot of good athletes like to put on a show, but when Billy got the ball he looked only for the end zone."

Sims carried that trait with him to Oklahoma, where he led the nation this season in scoring with 20 touchdowns, and in rushing with 1,762 yards.

In Hooks they remember more than just a talented athelete. They recall a quiet and unassuming lad with a big goal and the willingness to work for it.

Sims spent Thanksgiving at the home of Mary Hawley, his former high school counseler and a family friend. She described him as a very modest and quiet individual, almost too quiet.

"He's just Billy. He hasn't changed, and I don't think he will." Mrs. Hawley said.

Women being fed false notions about the business world

NEW YORK (AP) — Women who want to make it fast in the business world are being fed false notions about how the modern corporation works, says the man who pioneered managerial mobility studies.

The rules, routes, and skills involved in success are the very same for women as they are for men, according to Professor Eugene Jennings, who has studied mobility and the corporation for more than 30 years.

More recently he has been studying the careers of a dozen fast-rising women. "Their formula for success is the very same," said Jennings, a graduate professor of management at Michigan State University.

According to the Jennings formula, corporate success comes fastest to the person who becomes a crucial subordinate to an already mobile superior, complementing or supplementing the superior's skills.

Now he's concerned by what he sees developing: a corps of mentors, some self-appointed, who claim to be able to teach women how to do it. Their notions of corporate life, says Jennings, are often unrealstic.

By becoming a crucial subordinate to a mobile superior, he explains, a man or woman is carried along by mobility itself. Pity the subordinate, however, if the superior is a shelfsitter; the subordinate will be too.

Through the mobile superior the subordinate will be provided with visibility and exposure — visibility to see the all-important "sponsor," and exposure of his or her talents to that sponsor.

Sponsor? This person can really boost your career, a career that already has benefited from being a crucial suborinate to a talented, promotable superior who provided the visibility and exposure.

Anyone who's going anywhere in a big corporation is likely to have someone sponsoring him. Sponsorship, according to Jennings' analysis of corporate life, comes in four degrees:

There's the evaluator, a person who stands strongly with the higher ups so that his or her opinion regarding the subordinate is weighed heavily. Still, the evaluator is the weakest degree of sponsorship.

More potent is the nominator, possessor of power to actually suggest a name for promotion. Even more powerful is the next degree of sponsorship, to whom Jennings assigns the actual title of sponsor.

The sponsor, he relates, is so highly regarded upstairs that they dare not antagonize him or her by rejecting a nomination. The sponsor has a strong record, is a prized executive, a person with clout.

The fourth level of sponsorship is the promoter, the one with official corporate authority — the title or office — to promote.

That's the way it is, says Jennings, no matter what the mentors in their lectures, books or personal interviews are telling the women.

Camp David may become a ski resort

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Carter are about to turn Camp David, their Catoctin Mountain hideaway, into a ski resort.

The Carters and daughter Amy are taking up crosscountry skiing as a new family sport.

Three sets of skis and related gear have been ordered but have not yet been delivered.

Carter told two reporters he believes Camp David, about 60 miles north of Washington, will be an ideal spot for this activity. The terrain there is fairly level and, says the president. You can follow the perimeter fence for 2½ miles without retracing your steps.

Because it sits atop a mountain the Maryland retreat gets far more snow than the Washington area.

Carter apparently gave some thought to returning to Wyoming, where he spent much of his summer vacation, to try out crosscountry skiing there after Christmas.

Although the family's holiday plans have not been announced, the Carters are expected to spend at least four or five days at their Plains, Ga., home, then look for snow at Camp David.

The president's personal secretary, Susan Clough, has taken refuge from the ever-ringing telephone in her office. For nearly two years, Ms. Clough had no staff and always answered her own phone.

Now two volunteers, working on alternate days, do the answering. They receive no pay for their labors.

Carter's staff has restored to Air Force One a rotating gallery of color photographs initiated by resigned President Richard M. Nixon.

As part of the de-pomping of the presidency, the photos were removed from the big jet when Carter succeeded President Gerald R. Ford.

Carter and his people thought at the time there was no need to plaster the walls of the plane with candid pictures of the president and members of his family.

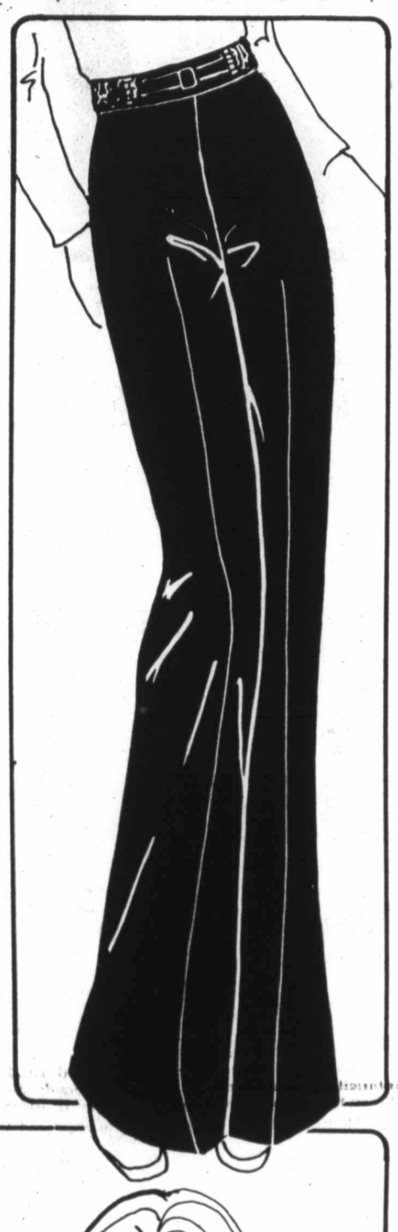

Well, all that has changed. When Carter flew Air Force One to St. Louis and Salt Lake City on Monday, the bulkhead art gallery was back.

Just outside the White House fence, a movie crew has wrapped up about three weeks' work on a film version of "Blind Ambition," the book John Dean wrote about his experience as White House counsel during Watergate.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. What is the PAY BY MAIL PROGRAM?

A. This is a program offered to readers of the Herald, whereby those people who prefer to pay for their newspapers through the office may do so.

A. How does the PAY BY MAIL PROGRAM work?

A. The reader may pay for his subscription for six months or a year in advance.

Q. Can the reader pay through the office by the month?

A. No. We are not able to offer this service.

Q. How much does it cost?

A. There is no charge for this service. In fact if you pay for 6 months or 1 year before Dec. 31, 1978 you will realize a substantial savings.

Q. What happens to my payment?

A. Your carrier is given credit for your payment each month after it is earned.

Q. Is there any advantage to my carrier if I pay by mail?

A. Yes. You are registered as a PAY BY MAIL customer and this eliminates the necessity of his making a collection each month.

Q. If I stop my paper for any reason, do I lose my money?

A. No. A full refund will be made if you must discontinue your paper for any reason.

Q. Will I be billed when my payment is due?

A. Yes. You will be billed by the Big Spring Herald on the first of the month prior to the expiration date.

Q. On what day does my subscription expire?

A. ALL PAY BY MAIL subscriptions expire on January 1, or July 1.

Q. What happens if my payment is past due?

A. If your payment has not been received by the expiration date your carrier will be notified and collection will be made at the home.

Q. What happens if I stop for a vacation?

A. The copies missed during vaction period will be saved in a vacation pack and delivered upon your return.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, DEC. 1, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An exceptionally fine day to decide policies and the principles under which you can best operate in the future. You get a chance to bring your views to a workable success. Organize the days ahead intelligently.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can confer with those whose ideas and background are different from yours and come to a fine understanding. Get expert advice before taking a new plan to a higher-up.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get an early start on money matters and make big headway. State your aims to loved one and get cooperation. Be kind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An association matter can be well handled during the daytime; then study details of contracts in the evening. Do whatever will improve your prestige in public life.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can handle many duties during daytime hours that have been difficult before this. Evening is fine for being with bigwigs you know. Get more cooperation from co-workers.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make arrangements early for amusements you like, and then get down to necessary work. Try to please fellow workers more also.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study the situation at home and know where to make needed improvements. Study a new interest carefully before commiting yourself to it. Count the cost.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can come to a fine understanding with close friends during the day. Take care of correspondence wisely. Study fundamental ideas carefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle monetary affairs before you visit with relatives and friends. Make that plan that will bring more success in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go after personal aims in the morning and get good results. Then get into practical matters. Later see as many friends as you can. Strive for greater happiness in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Schedule your activities wisely far into the future for best results. Wind up present work efficiently before attending social functions you like.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Attend to personal matters and see personal friends but only after necessary work is done. Keep active and you feel fine. Be alert at the wheel, also.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can advance more quickly through the auspices of bigwigs you know, so see them. Take a more optimistic outlook on life and be happier.

HE'S YOUR SANTA NOT MINE — Santa Claus found two-year-old Megan Johnson a little more than he bargained for as she visited him in a Sacramento shopping center. Megan didn't want anything to do with the strange white-bearded old fellow; she just wanted off his lap and back to the safety of her mother's arms.

Her Ego Trips Her

DEAR ABBY: I've been divorced for five years. I'm 57 and look my age. I dress fashionably, am well-groomed, wear glasses and my figure is so-so. I'm no beauty, but I'm far from ugly.

I would like to get married again, but I don't care for old men, and young men don't care for me.

Don't suggest travel. I've traveled plenty and all I ever meet are other women looking for eligible men. Don't tell me to develop my personality. I've got more personality than most men I know. Don't suggest singles clubs, computer-dating bureaus or those match-maker agencies; they're all frauds who belong in jail. Don't tell me to get contact lenses. I've tried them and can't wear them. And don't tell me to dye my hair. I think dyed hair looks cheap.

What can you do for me?

WANTS A MAN

DEAR WANTS: Not much, lady. But if I find a man who's looking for a woman who anticipates all the questions and knows all the answers, I'll let you know.

DEAR ABBY: I am a clock-watcher out of necessity as are many other working wives and mothers.

Most employees do not object to working a little overtime occasionally, but some bosses consistently start dictating five minutes before quitting time. And some people run into stores just as the doors are closing, and are annoyed if the clerks seem less than cooperative. Working people have time commitments, baby sitters, hair appointments, errands, dinner dates, hungry husbands, etc., based on the assumption that their working day ends at 5 p.m. and not 5:20.

Abby, you could rid the world of much confusion and frustration if you suggested that each person try to manage his own time so it won't overlap onto someone else's. It's just a matter of organization and consideration.

HARDWORKING CLOCK-WATCHER

DEAR CLOCK-WATCHER: I agree. Last-minute dictation should be held to a minimum. But an employer can't be expected to halt operations and clear the store of customers so that the help can zoom out the door at 5 o'clock sharp.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle an argument between my sister and me. Recently there was a wedding in the family. My sister and her husband were invited, but the husband couldn't make it, so my sister took her 11-year-old daughter instead.

None of the other children in the family was invited and you can be sure there were plenty of hurt feelings. My sister insists that as long as her husband wasn't able to make it, substituting her daughter was perfectly all right.

I told my sister if the bride and groom wanted her daughter at the wedding they would have invited her, and only those people whose names appear on the invitation are invited.

What do you say?

NO SUBSTITUTIONS

DEAR NO: I vote with you.

Party honors Mrs. Adkins on birthday

Mrs. D.W. Adkins was honored on the occasion of her 94th birthday Saturday by her children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, sister, nieces and nephews in the home of her daughter, Mrs. H.F. Awtry.

Mrs. Adkins is an active member of East Fourth Street Baptist Church, Big Spring Rebecca Lodge No. 284, Order of the Eastern Star and World War I Auxiliary.

Six of her seven children attended the affair, including Winefred Woods, Margueritte Marion, Idalou; Bernice Micallef, Charles Adkins, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Adkins and Mrs. Awtry. Her other son, Archie, resides in Melbourne, Fla.

Other relatives, including her sister, Lelia Petty of Tulia, and all her grandchildren and great-grandchildren, were also present.

Mrs. Adkins enjoys cooking, sewing, piecing and quilting quilts, and was the oldest person attending the past Old Settler Reunion.

Son's birth announced

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Gross, 1612 Harding, announce the birth of a son, Mitchell Wayne, at 10:54 a.m. Nov. 16 in Cowper Hospital.

Mitchell weighed 6 pounds 9 ounces and was 19 inches long at birth.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Arnold, Rt. 1, Big Spring, and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gross, 811 E. 13th.

Mitchell's maternal great-grandmother is Mrs. E. L. Arnold Sr., Rt. 1, Big Spring, and his paternal great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Cross, Colorado City.

The baby was welcomed home by his big sister, Jennifer Ann, who is 3.

Better to go crazy than to use grass

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I have read in your column several letters from teens who say pot has ruined their lives.

Well, I'd like to present the other side of it if you've got the guts to print it.

I'm 18 and a happy user of pot. I've been on grass for the past two years and I am happy to say that I now get "high" every day. I go to work "high" and it seems like I do better work when I'm "buzzing." Being high takes the boredom out of doing the same thing every day. When I'm high I find an adventure in everything I do.

People who smoke pot seem to be more friendly. My girlfriend smokes pot and she couldn't be happier. Even when I'm "crashing" from a high, I feel full of energy.

Around my area, teens think it is better to smoke pot than to drink booze. I for one have quit drinking.

Many of my friends have argued that if pot wasn't available, they would have gone crazy. I agree. — Dandy, Sussex County, N.J.

Dandy: I wouldn't be so down on the use of marijuana if those users would stay at home when they do their thing. The American Safety Council has produced statistics that show that in 30 percent of all fatal automobile accidents, the driver was "high" on marijuana. Much better if they had gone crazy.

Dear Dr. Wallace: I am writing to you because I am tired of playing match-maker! My friend (a boy) keeps coming to me and talking to me about the girl-in-his-life! (Namely, my best friend.)

I try to tell him to talk it over with her, but it's no go! So I try to give advice without being pushy, and he still doesn't listen. It's really getting tiresome, hearing it over and over again. But he's a close friend, and I can't tell him to buzz off. What should I do? — Gretta, Sacramento, Calif.

Gretta: Could it be the fact that this boy doesn't take your advice that irritates you so?

If this isn't true, tell him that since his girlfriend is your best friend you are just too close to the situation to be effective.

Clubhouse

Adams speaks to Altrusas

The Altrusa Club of Big Spring met at noon Nov. 21 in the Brass Nail with the president, Bonnie Bennett, presiding.

The Altrusa invocation was led by the president, and new members and guests were welcomed.

Mamie Roberts introduced the guest speaker, Bill Adams, who presented a Thanksgiving program using the scriptures Col. 3:15 and Phil. 4:4 and 4:11.

He pointed out how defeat is often turned into a blessing; how people must find a way to be happy, to adjust, to have forgiving hearts and to love their fellow man.

Two new members, Neva Green and Frances Loftis, were introduced, and guests in attendance included Jeanette McRae, Rose Hodnett, Eva Nail, Jody Wright, Aletha Kemper, Adams, Cassandra Green and Linda King, Howard College Nursing Scholarship recipient.

Twenty-two members were present.

The next meeting will take place tonight at 7 o'clock in the Brass Nail.

Lodge will trim tree

Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 met at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the I.O.O.F. Hall at 9th and San Antonio St. with the Noble Grand, June Wiggins, presiding.

There were 21 members present, 12 of whom were past noble grands, and 12 visits to the sick during the past week were reported.

Nominations were opened for noble grand, and Jewel Thompson was nominated. Other nominations included Malinda Blackburn, vice grand; Mrs. Wiggins, financial secretary; and Lila Holland, treasurer.

There were no further nominations for the evening and Mrs. Wiggins closed nominations.

Mrs. Wiggins announced that a Christmas party for Big Spring State Hospital will take place Dec. 12, and Olean Melton, Margi Norwood and Lillian Rhyne were named to a committee for this project.

Members were asked to cooperate with the committee in making sandwiches for the party.

The lodge's Christmas tree will be trimmed Sunday, and members were asked to assemble at 2 p.m. that day at the hall for the decorating.

Jewel Fields, L.A.P.M. president, announced that members of L.A.P.M. No. 23 will meet at the lodge after the tree trimming to practice their drills and prepare for inspection Dec. 9.

There was discussion concerning a Christmas party Dec. 16, and it was decided that the lodge would have a pot luck supper to begin at 6:30 p.m. Appointed to the committee in charge of this were Gay Smith, Marion Savell and Lona Crocker.

Each member should bring to the party a gift to exchange costing from $2 to $2.50. Ladies should bring a lady's gift, men should bring a man's gift and any children in attendance should bring a child's gift. Members were also requested to bring cans of food for the needy.

Members of the refreshment committee for December include Sheri Wilson, Grace Lee Grider, Ms. Norwood, Ms. Smith and Mattie Roberts

Ms. Holland, president of the Past Noble Grands Club, announced that their Christmas party will take place Dec. 11 at a location to be announced at a later date.

Ms. Savell, lodge deputy, presented a program of the Sovereign Grand Master, Hugh J. Bradley, and Gloria J. Mundt, president of the International Association of Rebekah Assemblies.

The next meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the I.O.O.F. Lodge.

Alpha Kappa Omicron meets

Alpha Kappa Omicron met Tuesday in the home of Donna Newell, and a program on energy conservation was given by Saundra Killough, Texas Electric Home Economist.

She stressed the importance of conserving energy in the home to reduce monthly electricity bills, and gave several examples on how to reduce energy consumption.

She suggested learning how to read the meter so as to become aware of electricity consumption in kilowatt hours; making storm windows by hand; lowering (in winter) or raising (in summer) the thermostate; caulking or using weatherstripping around windows and doors; using insulation in attics and walls; and lowering settings on hot water heaters.

Ceil Beddell won the hostess gift, and the next regular meeting will take place Dec. 12 in the home of Jan Sims.

Tejas CowBelles share easy main dish recipe

Tejas CowBelles, a group whose motto is "It's no bull, we push beef", are offering to the public an annual but useful Christmas gift. The item, beef gift certificates, are available at local banks.

The gift certificate idea was the result of their Nov. 14 meeting which took place at Furr's Cafeteria.

Other business included progressing plans for a ranch tour which will be offered to area club women in order to acquaint them with ranch operations so they might better understand what goes into producing the beef they serve to their families.

The CowBelles also reveal that brand napkins are still available in large or small quantities.

New officers of the group, elected at the meeting are Bobbie Nix, president; Jean Everett of Snyder, vice president and chairperson of "Beef for Father's Day"; Martha Huddleston of Snyder, secretary; Gerald Marie Wallace, treasurer; Sue Guelker of Colorado City, reporter; Jean Bullard of Snyder, legislative chairperson; Lucille Sterling of Vincent, education; and Gloria Griffen of Snyder, chairperson of Ag Day.

Their next meeting will be Dec. 12 at 10 a.m. The tentative meeting place is The Shack in Snyder.

Following is the Tejas CowBelle's Recipe of the Month, an easy dish to prepare when time is limited by necessity or choice.

MEAL IN A SKILLET

1 tablespoon oil
1 pound ground beef
1 cup chopped onion
3 cups uncooked noodles
3 cup tomato juice or V8
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons celery salt (or stalk of celery, chopped)
dash of pepper
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
½ cup chopped green pepper (or can green chillies)
1 cup sour cream
2-3rds cup sliced mushrooms

Heat oil in skillet. Add ground beef and onion; cook until tender, but not brown. Add uncooked noodles, tomato juice, salt, celery salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer 20 minutes. Add green pepper, cover and continue cooking 10 minutes. Stir in sour cream and mushrooms, heat and serve.

MR. AND MRS. VIC PHILLIPS

Reception to mark 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Vic Phillips of Sterling City Route, Big Spring, will observe their 50th wedding anniversary from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Holiday Inn Patio Room.

All friends, neighbors and relatives of the couple are invited to attend.

The couple was married Dec. 3, 1928, at the Big Spring East Fourth Street Baptist Church parsonage with the Rev. S.B. Hughes officiating.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are children of pioneer ranching families in Glasscock County. Mrs. Phillips, the former Marguerite Burns, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mack Burns. She was born in the Fairview community of Glasscock County.

Phillips, born in the Panther Draw community of Glasscock County, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Phillips.

The couple have lived all their married life in Glasscock County with the exception of six years spent in the Brownfield area.

Phillips is a retired rancher-stockman and his hobbies are his grandchildren and horses. Mrs. Phillips enjoys sewing and handwork.

Hosting the anniversary celebration will be the couple's children and their families. Their children include Virginia Louise Bridge, Lomax; Charles Ray Phillips, Big Spring; and Gene Phillips, Plains, Tex.

Their grandchildren are Mikel Bridge, Snyder; Sandra Whitehead, Midland; Amanda Phillips, West Texas State University; Brady Phillips, Plains, Tex.; and Janie and Jamie Phillips, Big Spring.

The couple's four great-grandchildren are Tonya and Phillip Mikel Bridge, Snyder, and Jonathan and Brandon Whitehead of Midland.

Higher prices account for increased spending

Higher prices rather than increased buying are responsible for two-thirds of the increased spending for clothing and shoes in 1977 over 1976, says Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Give your favorite cook a book for Christmas

By EILEEN McGUIRE
Family News Editor

The ideal Christmas gift for any cook, accomplished or novice, on your gift list is now being offered by the Big Spring High School's Home Economics Department.

For the past 17 years, home economics teachers from all over the United States have combined their skills and experience to create a series of over 25 practical, attractive and imaginative cookbooks.

The local home economics department is offering four of these books during a three-day sale, today through Dec. 2.

The revised "Original Desserts Cookbook" offers over 1,700 recipes for topping off the perfect meal. "The Poultry Cookbook" features a multitude of ways to prepare chicken, duck, turkey, cornish hens, pheasant, quail and any other fowl you can name.

A timely gift for the approaching holiday is "The New Holiday Cookbook," which offers recipes for every holiday of the year. Finally, there's "The Life Saver Cookbook," which is a craft and recipes book combined.

The dessert book is available for $5.95 while the other three are priced at $4.95. Proceeds from local sales will be used by the Big Spring High School's Home Economics Department to help finance Future Homemakers of America activities, including a Career Day during which students will be exposed to different careers and colleges available to them.

The books are being sold by the students who have been divided into teams with prizes to be awarded to the top sales groups. The cookbooks may be ordered from any home economics student or by calling the home economics department, 267-7461, extension 48.

Aiding with the cookbook project is one of Big Spring's new clubs, Young Homemakers of Texas, of which Luan Abernathy is president. The cookbooks are highly recommended by both local instructors and homemakers who have found them to be sources of inspiration in the art of cooking well.

Below are several recipes to acquaint readers with the kind of creative cooking that can be theirs with the aid of these popular cookbooks.

A GREAT GIFT for anyone who likes or has to cook is one or more of four cookbooks now available from the home economics department. The books are compiled from recipes furnished by home economics teachers throughout the United States and are sold to aid home ec department activities. The books are highly recommended by local teachers, from left, Alma Wrightsil, Sue Willbanks and Billie Grissom, and President of the Chamber of Commerce Johnnie Lou Avery, and home ec teacher Charlotta Hamilton.

CHICKEN SALAD SUPREME
From "The Poultry Cookbook"

2-2½ pound chicken, cooked
1 c. diced celery
1 c. cooked peas
1 pkg. salted almonds
3 hard-cooked eggs, diced
5 sweet pickles, diced
10 stuffed olives, diced
½ tsp. salt
1 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese
1½ c. mayonnaise
2 apples, diced
1 tbsp. lemon juice

Remove chicken skin and bones; cut chicken into small pieces. Add celery, peas, almonds, eggs, pickles, olives, and salt. Soften cream cheese; mix with mayonnaise. Add to chicken mixture; mix well. Mix apples and lemon juice; stir into salad just before serving. Garnish with asparagus and pimento strips, if desired. Yield: 12 servings.

NEW YEAR'S STUFFED TANGERINES
From "The New Holiday Cookbook"

6 tangerines (may substitute small oranges)
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon margarine
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup orange-cranberry relish

Make eight cuts from blossom end to about 1-inch from bottom of each tangerine peel. Pull peel down, turn pointed ends in. Remove any white membrane. Loosen sections at center slightly; place tangerine in baking pan. When preparing in advance, cover and refrigerate.

Pull tangerine sections apart just before baking. Add ½ teaspoon sugar and ½ teaspoon margarine to center of each tangerine. Pour orange juice over tangerines. Bake in preheated 325-degree oven 30 minutes.

Fill center of each with 2 teaspoons relish; place on serving platter.

RUM ICE BOX PIE
From "The Original Desserts Cookbook"

1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
½ stick melted margarine
25 marshmallows
¾ cup boiling water
2 teaspoons instant coffee
1 package Dream Whip
1 tablespoon rum or rum flavoring

Place graham cracker crumbs in pie pan. Pour margarine over and mix. Melt marshmallows in mixture of hot water and coffee. Place in refrigerator until begins to set.

Prepare Dream Whip according to directions on package. Fold into coffee mix. Add rum. Pour filling in crust. Chill until set. Serves six.

Fall fuel: soup and sandwich

The crisp, cool weather of fall calls for a meal of body-warming soup.

A mug of creamy soup with a sandwich can create a Four Food Group balanced meal that provides your family with their share of nutrients from the Recommended Dietary Allowances, say Dairy Council, Inc. nutritionists.

The Cream of Tomato Soup provides servings from the milk group as well as some from the vegetable-fruit group. Because the preparation of the soup destroys some of the Vitamin C, be sure to serve a food rich in this nutrient sometime during the day.

The sandwich provides servings from the meat group and bread-cereals group. This Chicken Sandwich recipe is excellent for preparing ahead and freezing for school lunches.

Use the basic Cream Soup Base as the foundation for creating soups using leftover vegetables, cheese, chicken, turkey, beef, ham, etc.

CREAM SOUP BASE
(For all favorite creamy soups)

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
2 cups milk

Melt butter over low heat in two-quart saucepan. Stir in flour, salt, paprika and pepper. Cook until smooth, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in milk. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly; boil and stir one minute. Yield: two cups.

CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP

1½ cups canned, drained, chopped tomatoes
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onion
2 teaspoons sugar
1 recipe Cream Soup Base

Combine tomatoes, celery, onion and sugar; bring to a boil. Cover and simmer 10 to 15 minutes. Bring Cream Soup Base to serving temperature over low heat. Blend tomato mixture in blender. Gradually pour tomato mixture into Cream Soup Base, stirring constantly. Return to serving temperature over low heat. Yield: 3¼ cups.

FREEZE-AHEAD CHICKEN SANDWICHES

(Freezer special for lunch)

½ cup (2 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
3 tablespoons corn relish
1 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons dairy sour cream
1 cup chopped cooked chicken
8 slices whole wheat bread, buttered

Combine cheese, relish, green pepper and salt. Blend in sour cream. Add chicken. Spread mixture on bread. Wrap individually and freeze. Remove from freezer two to three hours before serving; thaw in wrapper. Four servings.

PUBLIC NOTICE

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To: MOHMOOD YAZDANPANAH
Defendant (s), Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to appear by filing a written answer to the Plaintiff (s) Petition at or before ten o'clock A.M. of the first Monday after the expiration of forty-two days from the date of the issuance of this citation, same being Monday the 15th day of January 1979, at or before ten o'clock A.M. before the Honorable District Court of Howard County, Texas, at the CourtHouse of said County in Big Spring, Texas.

Said Plaintiff (s) Petition was filed in said court, on the 26th day of June A.D. 1978, in this cause numbered 24,835 on the docket of said court, and styled, CHARLES MATTHEWS AND JEWELL MATTHEWS, INDIVIDUALLY AND AS NEXT FRIEND OF CHARLES LEE MATTHEWS, AND KATRINA MATTHEWS, MINORS Plaintiff (s), vs. MOHMOOD YAZDANPANAH Defendant (s).

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to-wit:

Plaintiffs sue for injuries and damages sustained in an automobile collision which occurred in Big Spring, Texas, on March 19, 1977, when a car being driven by the Defendant struck the rear of Plaintiff's vehicle.

as is more fully shown by Plaintiff (s) Petition on file in this suit.

If this citation is not served within ninety days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

The officer executing this process shall promptly execute the same according to law, and make due return as the law directs.

Issued and given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Big Spring, Texas, this the 28th day of November A.D. 1978.

Attest:
Peggy Crittenden, Clerk
District Court, Howard County, Texas.
By Glenda Brosel, Deputy.

West Texas turnips

with Marj Carpenter

The turnips shown in the picture above were grown by Charlie Clay. That was in his garden at his home.

He didn't think too much about the enormous turnips but when he gave some to Pauline Petty she decided to bring them by the paper and show them off.

We kidded Charlie about having some big Texas-sized radishes. He said that he actually did have some extra large radishes this season as well as the enormous turnips.

One turnip would make a meal. Clay laughed and recalled that Russell Johnson told him when he planted on Aug. 20 that it was too late.

As it turned out, the rains came late and the frost came late so Charlie had plenty of time to grow some of the biggest turnips around.

I told Pauline that I would tell about Charlie's turnips. But actually, I was wanting to comment on Pauline. She is a Big Spring walking history book.

She worked in the courthouse over 40 years before she retired in 1974 and she kept records on everybody most of that time.

She can recall who married who, who bought what from whom and why, and even recalls some of the early brands in the courthouse records.

Her favorite old county record is the love letter from a Texas Ranger to his wife which officially served as his will after he was killed by Indians.

Pauline has lived in the same location on the north side for years and years and lives there still.

She was an excellent judge of character and hired very efficient deputies in the clerk's office. One of them, Margaret Ray, is now clerk and the rest of them are still there working.

Pauline is a dedicated member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and helps annually with the VFW Voice of Democracy contest because she considers it important that youth emphasize democracy.

When she first worked in the courthouse, she was a telephone operator there and worked for a very small wage.

She had more continuous years of service than anybody else around in that category.

And Pauline still keeps very busy. She enjoys her firends. She enjoys her memories. And she enjoys life.

Most folks wouldn't take time to get excited about Charlie Clay's big turnips. But Pauline did. Because she's Pauline.

In all of these years, I've never met another person exactly like her—in the many miles out where I've been ridin' fence.

Epilepsy Association books 'Snow White and Three Stoogies'

The Epilepsy Association of Texas is sponsoring a children's movie, "Snow White and the Three Stoogies," which will be screened at the Cinema Theater at 10 a.m., Saturday, Dec. 16.

Proceeds from the film will go to pay for medication and diagnosis of epilepsy.

Officials of the local chapter say they also have plans to enlarge their information program and make educational material on epilepsy more available to the public.

Everyone can help, the association officials remind, and the epileptic children are deserving of such assistance.
