

It's Showdown Time At Convention Gulch

Ike, Herter Resume Talks

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter resume talks today on the mountain Cuban crisis and Soviet rocket-launching support of the Castro regime.

The President and Herter held a first round of discussions at the summer White House Sunday night, just 24 hours after Eisenhower had sternly warned the Soviet Union against trying to set up a Cuban regime dominated by international communism.

Eisenhower and Herter arranged an early morning fresh analysis of the situation.

Their meeting at the President's office at the Newport Naval Base was scheduled with Roy R. Rubottom, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, and other aides.

Herter, who flew here from Washington Sunday and plans to return shortly after today's session, declined comment on the conference he had with Eisenhower Sunday night. So did White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, who sat in at the huddle. Both that meeting and the one today had an agenda item related to the Cuban crisis—a U.S. plan for goodwill aid to Latin American nations.

The plan has been under study for some months. But it is being pushed to completion at this critical time when the administration is striving to win the backing of Central and South American countries for its tougher policy on Cuba.

Eisenhower and Herter conferred for an hour Sunday night at Ft. Adams, the temporary White House on the shore of Narragansett Bay. Then they chatted further on a brief boat ride across the bay to the naval base headquarters where Herter spent the night.

The President returned to Ft. Adams without comment. At the start of their conference they were advised that Cuba's fiery Prime Minister Fidel Castro had canceled because of a reported lung infection a speech he had been scheduled to make last evening at a big rally in Havana. Later, however, Castro addressed Cubans by television.

Hagerty also declined comment on another development which appeared to indicate a further turn for the worse in U.S.-Cuban relations. That was an announcement by Cuba's President Osvaldo Dorticos that his country would return to the United States the money paid recently for the annual rent on the U.S. Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba. Dorticos strongly implied that the United States would be told by Cuba to give up the base.

Any move by the Castro government to demand U.S. withdrawal from the Guantanamo base would come as a surprise to Washington officials. They have taken at face value statements by the Cuban Prime Minister that he has no aggressive intentions against the base. Castro reiterated this view last May 24.

The American-Cuban treaty on the base provides that the agreement remain in force "until the two contracting parties agree to the modification or abrogation of the lease agreement. It therefore would take mutual consent, rather than a return of the annual payment, to break the agreement.

High naval authorities, including Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, have stated that the Navy would defend the base in accordance with the treaty. Burke is chief of naval operations.

Guantanamo is a key link in the anti-submarine operations for the South Atlantic, the Caribbean, and U.S. Gulf Coast. Naval air operations from the base consist mainly of anti-submarine patrol flights.

Eisenhower's solemn warning to the Soviet Union to keep hands off Cuba came Saturday night a few hours after Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had pledged all-out Communist support to the Castro regime in its bitter quarrel with the United States.

Khrushchev also had boasted threateningly that the Soviet Union now has the rocket power to blow up the U.S. heartland if this nation dared intervene in Cuba.

Eisenhower was advised of this while he was trout fishing. After a telephone conference with Herter, the President put out a statement denouncing what he called the Soviet "clear intention to establish Cuba in a role serving Soviet purposes in this (Western) Hemisphere."

The President noted that the American republics are committed by treaty pledges to resist outside interference in the area.

"I affirm in the most emphatic terms," Eisenhower said, "that the United States will not be deterred from its responsibilities by the threats Mr. Khrushchev is making."

"Nor will the United States, in conformity with its treaty obligations, permit the establishment of a regime dominated by international communism in the western hemisphere."

Lake Thomas Now Near Stabilization

The big in-flow of the past week boosted the lake level back within a foot and a half of where it was a year ago at this time.

Other lakes in this area did not fare so well. Lake Colorado City, which supplies the Texas Electric Service Company generating plant southwest of Colorado City gained 1.75 feet in reaching elevation 2001.35. Lake Fort Belcher, which is being filled by a new reservoir on Champion Creek caught only .10 of a foot and stood at elevation 2034.50.

Moss Creek and Powell Creek lakes south of Big Spring and formerly part of that city's water source, were virtually unchanged. Moss Creek was 32 feet and 4 inches deep at the intake and Powell Creek was 22 feet and 4 inches deep.

Level of Lake J. B. Thomas virtually stabilized at elevation 2253.30 late Friday. This was slightly less than 4 1/2 feet below the spillway level.

O. H. Ivis, assistant general manager-program, estimated the lake level at 36,500 acre feet for the past week. This is over 13 billion gallons of water.

At the present time the lake contains 168,500 acre feet of water and covers some 6,900 surface acres. Both the Colorado River and Bull Creek, which feed into the big reservoir of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, are running slowly. However, the rate will just about offset the loss from evaporation and the amount soaking into the banks of the lake, Ivis said.

PERPETUAL EMOTION

Castro Sick Abed, But Tongue Is Unaffected

By ROBERT BERRELEZ
HAVANA (AP) — The Castro government implied Sunday it may demand that the United States abandon its Guantanamo Naval Base in eastern Cuba.

President Osvaldo Dorticos told a labor demonstration attended by 100,000 that Cuban territory is "not for rent or sale to foreigners." He said the annual rental check paid last month by the United States for the base would be sent back to Washington.

Under a treaty signed in 1934, the United States has a perpetual lease on the 45-square-mile base at a rent of 2,000 gold dollars—the equivalent of $3,886.25—a year.

The bespectacled, bearded President, growing bald in stature in Cuba's revolutionary hierarchy, delivered the main address at the rally after pneumonia kept him in bed for several days.

But illness did not keep Castro off-stage entirely. Looking feverish, the 35-year-old Prime Minister put an army field jacket over his pajamas and made a 45-minute television speech from his bedroom.

Speaking in a hoarse voice, the revolutionary leader again attacked the United States as an aggressor nation and hailed the Soviet Union as the champion of underdeveloped countries.

There was growing speculation here that Cuba may be preparing a formal accusation of aggression against the United States before either the Organization of the American States or the United Nations. Foreign Minister Raul Roa made a sudden trip to the United States over the weekend for consultations with Cuban diplomats at the U.N.

Observers speculated that the Cuban leaders might be planning to throw the first blow in an attempt to get the jump on an expected U.S. move to chastise the Castro government in the OAS.

"The whole world is turning against the United States," Castro said repeatedly in his bedside chat, which he delivered with his usual arm waving to dispel any idea he was seriously ill. In solemn tones he wound up with thanks to the Soviet Union for its support of his revolutionary regime.

Dorticos at the rally read a note from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev saying: "If Cuba finds difficulty in the sale of its sugar, the Soviet government expresses its disposition to acquire additionally in Cuba for delivery in 1960 the 700,000 tons of sugar

Mrs. Randolph Fusses, Fumes

By DAVE CHEAVENS
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Lyndon Johnson's home state delegation today faces its final test of party loyalty, but the Texas leaders are not expecting serious trouble.

A credentials committee session a few hours before opening of the Democratic National Convention is the last chance for any question to be raised about the right of any Johnson delegate to a seat.

A threatened effort by Mrs. R. D. (Frankie) Randolph, ousted national committeewoman and bitter enemy of Johnson, to put the Republican label on some of his delegates failed to materialize last week.

The Texas delegation leaders and Mrs. Randolph fought a battle of guest tickets Sunday and Mrs. Randolph won by hanging on to half the 120 passes allotted Texas.

She said she was going to distribute them to "a group of fine, loyal liberal Democrats from Texas," some of whom felt they also were entitled to be delegates.

The upsurge over tickets left a large group of family and friends of delegates without a chance of getting in to see even one session of the convention. Instead, they will gather in Johnson's public reception room at the Biltmore to watch it on TV.

Both Johnson and Gov. Price Daniel said National Chairman Paul Butler was "rigging the gallery" by giving the guest tickets to Mrs. Randolph, who is out as national committeewoman when the convention is over.

She insisted it was still her right to have the tickets and Butler backed her. Mrs. Randolph herself was for a while without a ticket because she inadvertently left her credentials in the national committee offices. They got into the hands of the Biltmore, national committeeman, and he kept Mrs. Randolph in suspense for awhile. Then he delivered them.

The harsh words aimed at Butler and Mrs. Randolph gave the jittery Texans a chance to let off some steam and perhaps relieve their tension. Los Angeles is a volcano of rumors, such as one that Johnson was about to throw in the towel.

This was quickly squashed by Johnson himself who said he was just beginning to fight. The Johnson leaders have one major objective: to get by the first ballot, then cash in on switches.

Every Johnson lieutenant is working on that.

Johnson is wheeling almost around the clock himself. At the other end of the hall on the seventh floor of the Biltmore, Speaker Sam Rayburn is working on congressmen.

The first official caucus with Johnson presiding as delegation chief was often an uproar of applause as Johnson and Daniel ripped into Butler and Mrs. Randolph.

"The votes may not be rigged but the attendance and galleries are," Daniel said heatedly.

Johnson also drew shouts of applause when he noted that Mrs. Randolph had taken a 2,252 to 37 whipping in the state convention, but was favored with half the tickets by Butler.

"And they lecture us about unfairness," Johnson said.

She said she was going to distribute them to "a group of fine, loyal liberal Democrats from Texas," some of whom felt they also were entitled to be delegates.

ADLAI SMUG, NOT IN RACE

Kennedy Strong; Johnson Smiling

By SAUL PETT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Democratic National Convention opens today with a rising feeling of sinking suspense.

The experts say it's all over but the shouting. Now if we could only eliminate the southing.

This convention is like a ball game which already has been played and the score posted; but the starting pitchers still insist on warming up. Everyone says the Kennedy is in. Everyone but Johnson and Symington, who smile bravely and say they are. Stevenson still says he's not actively in the race, and he never seemed more right.

After four days of public hearing, the Platform Committee has gone into hiding to draft a platform. After the election, the platform will go into hiding.

The good, gray Johnson people still say that Kennedy is too young for the job. But if someone the balloting should go beyond the fourth or fifth ballot, he'll be enough in that time for any job.

A man in a blue suit and a white Johnson-for-president tie happened to be sitting near the free soda pop stand in the senator's reception room. A woman and her young son walked up and asked for a bottle. The man said he was sorry he couldn't help her.

"Come junior," the woman said, pulling her son. "They're just cheap here."

In the Kennedy reception room a ventriloquist's dummy answers visitors' questions; in the Symington reception room girls pass out adhesive bandages saying "Stick with Symington"; and in the lobby a lovely man walks with a "Sign for Stevenson" sign.

—he's a lousy gaffer. Which will give you an idea of the riotous wit at the convention.

Symington was about to go on a TV show when a technician told him, "Senator, you've lost your garter." Symington boasted the garter, saying, "That's not all I've lost around here."

The incident occurred shortly after the senator learned that his No. 1 supporter, Harry S. Truman, had definitely decided not to attend the convention.

Tommy Almer of Hermleigh was released from the Cogdell Memorial Hospital this morning after being kept overnight for observation following a car accident. Almer reportedly rolled his pickup Sunday night and received minor chest injuries.

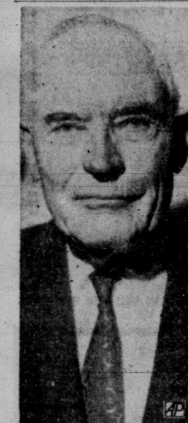

Taken to the hospital by a Bolger Funeral ambulance, he was treated and admitted for observation.

Commissioners Accept Bids On Two Jobs

The Commissioners Court met this morning and accepted bids on two city jobs which have been pending.

E. M. Bailey of Ahlene was awarded the contract for construction of the 21st Street and Deep Creek bridge, his bid of $18,500 being the low one submitted. That amount was approximately $3,000 below the next lowest bid.

The bridge is to be a four-span reinforced concrete structure complete to specifications as drawn up by the City Engineer.

The deadline for bids on the steel in the old bridge which is being dismantled was extended to the coming Monday in other action of the court.

Lubbock Pavers of Lubbock submitted the lowest bid for the west 37th Street paving job in the amount of $6,949.50, which was $400 less than that of Bud Chastain of Snyder, who was the only other bidder for the job.

Pat Moore of Precinct 3 moved that of that accepted figure the county pay $4,949.50 and the city be asked to supplement the remaining $2,000. J. C. Massingill (Precinct 4) seconded Moore's motion, which carried.

Dyed-In-Wool Neutral Picks Sen. Kennedy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, an avowed neutral up to now, threw his support today to Sen. John F. Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Jackson is one of those whose name has been mentioned as possible choices for the vice presidential spot on the ticket.

Jackson released a statement saying he has so many friends running for the presidential nomination that up to this point he has "studiously" refrained from supporting any of them. He said he now is informing the chairman of the Washington delegation, however, that he will vote for Kennedy's nomination.

Rocky, Uphill Battle Facing Dixie Demos

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A plank pledging a bold federal attack on racial discrimination, written over strong Southern objections, appeared headed today for adoption in the Democratic party platform.

The platform goes before the Democratic National Convention Tuesday after preliminary action today by the full Platform Committee. Approval by both groups seemed certain.

But unanswered was what Dixie delegates might do about it. They could stay and fight on the issue on the convention floor and take a probable defeat.

Their final decision, some of them said, was tied to the fate of the candidacy of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas for the party's presidential nomination.

Southern backers of the Texan were reluctant to stir up too much trouble at this point lest such action embarrass him with Northern delegates who support him for the nomination but also favor a strong civil rights declaration.

They said drastic action by Southern delegates might well be associated with Johnson, inasmuch as he represents a Southern state and has many Dixie votes for the nomination.

Northern civil rights groups were jubilant over the plank approved Sunday night by a 20-member drafting committee of the convention's full 109-member resolutions committee. It gave them "just about everything they had hoped for." The drafting committee also approved other planks covering foreign and other domestic issues, but civil rights promised the biggest fight.

Speaking for the Southland delegates, Sen. Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina said he could not accept the civil rights proposal. He was one of four Southerners on the drafting committee. However, two of these were absent from the session at which the plank was approved. Significantly, one of the absentees was Rep. Paul J. Kilday of Texas, a Johnson supporter.

Ervin declined to speculate, however, on what steps Dixie delegates might take.

Wording of the plank was not made public but it promised to use full legislative and administrative powers of the federal government to end racial discrimination in voting, public education, employment, housing, and other fields.

The plank commits the Democratic party to enactment by Congress of legislation to broaden powers of the attorney general in the racial field. He would be given authority to obtain injunctions against any infringement of constitutional rights because of race, color, or creed.

It also promises legislation to give permanent status to the present temporary Civil Rights Commission. The commission is authorized to investigate complaints of discrimination.

The proposal also expressed sympathy and understanding for what it called peaceful sit-in demonstrations carried on by student groups in many parts of the South against lunch-counter restrictions. These demonstrations have evoked bitter Southern criticism and arrest of many participants.

Ervin contended the reference to the sit-in strikes would, in effect, constitute party endorsement of the demonstrations.

Rep. Chester Bowles of Connecticut, chairman of the Resolutions Committee, said little difficulty was encountered in writing planks on foreign and other domestic issues.

presidential aspirants in the convention opening today trotted from one hall to the other to repeat their gems.

The route between halls led through the kitchen, which brought this crack from Adlai E. Stevenson: "I've been through the kitchen a few times, the last time through they offered me a job."

In addition to the glamour performance, featuring the candidates, a big outside, for-free party was held for delegates and alternates in a department store, parking lot across the street.

Tables were set up to provide a bar 300 feet long. Forty-eight bartenders tended furiously. Fifty-six waiters whipped about rescuing used glasses. The booze was stacked in cases under the tables like eggs in crates at a chick hatchery.

A small river ran through the lot, ice melting and leaking out of the paper bags in the late afternoon sun.

A brass band and an orchestra provided music, and then, because Democrats traditionally play it poornouth even when they're winning in it, girls circulated through the crowd peddling a new Democratic cook book. At $3 apiece, the books are supposed to raise money to put the candidate on television.

If you're always wondered how Mrs. Jack Kennedy makes waffles, this is your literature.

Not many delegates are big-money boys, so few crossed the road to hear the four presidential contenders make their pitch.

As was expected, each took potshots at the Republican, and as each painted his idea of the leader he would save us, it became apparent that we must have written their pieces while looking in a mirror.

For the record, Stevenson, who has the fewest delegates, got the most applause. But Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who wandered in while the program was in progress, got more applause than anybody.

The head tables presented a curious sight.

Democratic governors were stretched across the back row with no role to play other than to take brief bows.

On the front row, and in the limelight, were candidates John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, Stuart Symington and Stevenson, plus such other well known Democratic woeers as Sammy Davis Jr., Judy Garland, Milton Berle, Tony Martin, Mort Sahl, George Jessel and Frank Sinatra.

Give The Big Catch The Works

Vacation time and Dad's long-planned fishing expedition has the family all agog. But what if he really lands a big one? What's to be done with the catch when he brings it home? For those homemakers who may be at a loss for ideas on how to serve the "big ones", we suggest the baked and stuffed method with a few gourmet touches to make a meal memorable.

BAKED FISH, GOURMET STYLE

Rub a 5-pound fish, such as red snapper, sea trout, or bass, inside and outside with the lightly salted juice of 3 limes, and chill it for at least 4 hours.

Meanwhile, prepare a stuffing as follows: In a saucepan place 1 clove garlic, crushed, in 5 tablespoons butter, and in the garlic-seasoned butter, saute 1 small onion and 2 stalks celery, all finely chopped. Add 1/4 cup prepared herb-seasoned stuffing, 1/4 cup almonds or cashews, blanched and chopped, 1 cup mild cheese, grated, and 1/4 cup chopped parsley and moisten the mixture to the consistency of a stiff paste with 1/4 to 1 cup milk. Add 2 bay leaves, finely crumbled, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, and salt and cayenne to taste and blend the stuffing well.

Wipe the chilled fish dry, arrange it in a well-greased baking dish, and fill the cavity with stuffing. Sprinkle the top with 1/4 cup herb-seasoned stuffing and dot generously with butter. Bake the fish in a moderately hot oven (375 F.) for 15 to 20 minutes per pound, basting frequently with a mixture of 1 cup dry white wine and 4 tablespoons melted butter. Just before serving, sprinkle the fish with 1/4 cup chopped almonds or cashews, tossed in melted butter, and place it under the broiler for a few moments to brown the nuts. Serve with wedges of lime.

If desired, a 5-pound fresh-water lake or river trout may be substituted in this recipe by using the shorter baking time.

BRUNCH CRESCENTS

Brunch Crescents
Berries with Cream
INGREDIENTS: 2 packages active dry yeast, 1/4 cup warm water, 1/4 cup milk (scalded), 1/4 cup shortening, 1/4 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 4 1/2 cups sifted flour. Peanut Butter Filling. Butter or margarine (melted).

METHOD: Sprinkle yeast over water; stir until dissolved. Stir into hot milk the shortening, sugar and salt; cool; stir into yeast mixture with eggs. Beat in 1 cup of the flour until smooth; continue to beat in flour, 1/4 cup at a time, adding enough to make a soft dough. Cover bowl and refrigerate 24 hours. Divide into fourths; roll out each piece on floured surface into an 11-inch circle 1/4-inch thick; cut each circle into 8 pie-shaped wedges. Spread with Peanut Butter Filling. Roll, starting from wide side, and shape into crescents. Dip each roll into melted butter, and place 2 inches apart on greased baking sheet. Cover and let rise until doubled. Bake at 375-400 F. for 10-12 minutes.

Heat and Serving: Blend 1/2 cup peanut butter, 1/2 cup honey, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon allspice and 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

After using fat for deep-frying, strain out any particles of food. This care helps keep the fat fresh tasting.

Broad Vista Pictured By His Powerful Pen

CEREMONY IN LONE TREE. By Wright Morris. "That much hadn't changed... How much really had?"

With this question old Tom Scanlon's story rises to a stirring climax on his 90th birthday in Lone Tree, Neb., his state—and Morris.

You met Scanlon way down in Mexico in 1936 in Morris' "The Field of Vision." Some unfriendly Nebraskans had hinted that he was abandoned: So his daughter Lois and her husband McKee rode off with him for a vacation, and by chance ran into Gordon Boyd. It was Gordon who tried to walk on water and write about it. Gordon who first kissed Lois; now in a rash moment McKee has invited him back for the ancient's birthday party.

Daughter Edna is coming in the huge trailer brought by Texas oil. Boyd brings a friend, a daughter to some people encountered on the road but a suspiciously sophisticated, free-and-easy girl to the Scanlons. Jennings is a writer hunting material about a gory tragedy. Lee Roy in a savage temper ran down and killed two schoolmates who goaded him too far, and Munger gave in to his contrary streak and shot down a round dozen of "chance victims." Already there, poignantly, besides the McKees, are the Mommeys, of Lee Roy's family; Calvin with his stutter and lovely Etolile; a grandson; a pair of mules, a dog. And there is a vast fascinating clutter of solid-gold Americana.

This is our heartland past and present, from buffalo herd and Redskin to Lindbergh and Ike, vital, teeming, eccentric, restaurant signs, jukebox, motel, extra leaves in the table, detachable collar, pencil box, erasers beaten outside the classroom on the fire escape. Time and again these people stand looking out the window. "Come to the window," are the first words, summoning us to the vista of the plains outside the Lone Tree Hotel, and at the close Maxine from another window views Calvin with Etolile, who reminds Old Tom of his Samantha. With the old man dead, is it going to start all over again?

The window frames all Midwest and the native spirit Morris is telling us that the American richness is still with us. This is the great dream being dreamt, and it is presented in more meaningful and picturesque details than I believe, any other American novelist could assemble for us. I must admit to a special interest in "The Field of Vision" and this new novel. "That much hadn't changed... How much really had?"

Slow Start to Mighty Climax

TO KILL A MOCKINGBIRD By Harper Lee Lippincott

A youngster with a broken arm, an arm that didn't heal well but that still works fine for football, starts off this first novel, and ends it.

The boy is Jem. His sister Scout, as the family calls her, tells this story about their childhood in Alabama in the mid-1930s when Hitler was persecuting Jews in Germany and when Jews got along all right in Alabama but Negroes did not. The head of the family is Atticus Finch, a widowed lawyer, his servant Calpurnia does what she can loving to compensate to the children for the lack of a mother. The boy and girl, with a companion Dill, keep pretty busy wondering about a neighbor, Boo Bradley, and his eccentricities, acting one day like a friend and another like a foe—only the clue of the book tells which. But little by little they are forced into a thorny awareness of their father's most pressing case: The court has ordered him to defend a Negro, Tom, accused of raping Mayella, of the poor, white, trashy Ewells. Echoes of local hostility to Atticus reach the young folks, the father tries to shield them, they witness a tense and dangerous encounter on the jail steps. They sneak in at the trial, they are not allowed to forget Bob Ewell's mad threats.

The story begins in a purposely easy-going way, in fact you may be tempted for a while, as I was to dismiss it as too slight. But it turns into a powerful picture of an abused Negro, a jury unshakable in its prejudices, ignorant and evil-nogged whites, and a lot of good to balance the bad. As a Literary Guild selection, it is bound to have some readers everywhere, even in the South among the real-life Finches, Ewells, jurymen neighbors and others in these pages.

For crisp salad greens, store them in a refrigerator container that offers high humidity and low temperature.

COULD BE PRETTY SLIPPERY!

Ike's Golf Promoting Game Appeal

By HAL BOLWE
NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Do men have more self-control than women? Doctors say it's easier to break men of the smoking habit. And it also has been pointed out that men are more determined about sticking to a diet.

Growing older has some advantages over youth. For example, after 60 most people become more immune to poison ivy.

The sports parade: Thanks partly to the push President Eisenhower gave the game, some four million Americans now play at least eight rounds of golf a year. But the number of bowlers is estimated as high as 25 million.

Inventive monarchs: We owe the handkerchief to King Richard II. The fork to Henry III.

Americans spent more on chewing gum last year, 330 million dollars than they contributed to all the national health agencies—about 200 million dollars.

Suggested motto for both national political conventions: "He serves his party best who serves the country best."—Rutherford B. Hayes, in 1877.

Ever worry about how many pairs of false teeth you'll have to buy in your lifetime? George Washington is known to have had at least six—one pair was carved from hippopotamus tusk, another, made of lead, weighed more than three pounds.

Actor Walter Slezak gives this description of a bore: Here today and here tomorrow!

Girls, don't hesitate to marry a genius for fear he'll prove a bad mate. Contrary to popular belief, surveys have shown that geniuses although they tend to marry a little later settle down better than average husbands.

And rate high in humor, affection and strength of character. My own wife, however, says this has not been her experience.

It was George Bernard Shaw who observed: "The more things a man is ashamed of, the more respectable he is."

Presidential Pride Works To Columnist's Advantage

By INEZ ROBB

LOS ANGELES.—Although by actual count I am one of two persons attending the Democratic National Convention who isn't running for anything, even cover, I find myself an occupant of the Presidential Suite of the Biltmore Hotel, convention headquarters.

I owe this heady eminence either to the superstition, the innate modesty or the fear of last laughter—or a combination of all three—among the pride of Presidential candidates, stalking the political jungles of southern California.

Not one of 'em would touch the Presidential Suite with a 10-foot pollster, although the Messrs. Kennedy, Stevenson, Johnson, Symington and a saggie of favorite sons seem to entertain no similar diffidence about possible occupancy of the White House.

So the suite fell to the lot of Dan A. Kimball, former secretary of the Navy in the time of Truman and Mrs. Kimball, who is the political columnist, Doris Fleeson. Kimball is the other Democrat who isn't running for anything, but he is also the party stalwart who, as chairman of the Los Angeles host committee, raised the funds to defray the expenses of the 1960 Democratic convention.

The long and short of it is that the Kimballs invited me to share the Presidential spread with them. The one penalty attached to this hospitality is the constant necessity to deny the rumor that former President Truman is fighting mad and shunning the convention because he didn't get the Biltmore's Presidential Suite.

The truth is that Mr. Truman never asked for the suite. In addition, the Kimballs are such devoted friends of the former President that if he should show up in Los Angeles and ask for the suite, the Kimballs would move out instantly, snatching me with them. And there would be another trip sleeping in the park in this overcrowded town.

Selishly, I pray that the former President sticks to Independence, Mo., as he threatened.

As the Democratic show gets on the road today, it is obvious that the most imperative need of anyone attending it is not arch supporters, or vitamins or stamina, but a social secretary.

The social schedule is so crowded that delegates and Democratic VIPs will find difficulty in sandwiching in a little time to attend the convention proper.

Over the week end, it was a simple matter of paying your driver and taking your choice of a party in Pasadena for Adlai Stevenson, the reluctant dragon, given by Mrs. Agnes Meyer of Washington, D.C., or of a barn-raising in Los Angeles for the press given by California's Gov. Pat Brown, or a glittering cook-out in Beverly Hills given by Jules C. Stein, president of the Music Corporation of America, and Mrs. Stein, at which the stars of the Democratic party and of Hollywood exchanged autographs.

Nor should I forget the reception and buffet dinner given by Paul M. Butler, chairman of the Democratic party at the Beverly Hilton Hotel for, as the invitation read, "the distinguished representatives of the media of communications." I think that means "reporters."

Or the dinner dance given by Gov. and Mrs. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Pauley, Pauley was treasurer of the national committee in 1944. Or the $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner attended by all the candidates.

Tonight delegates can forget the rigors of the convention's first day

Consumer Loser In Sugar Dispute

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—You pay the premium on Cuban sugar, not your government.

The grocery price of sugar—higher here than elsewhere in the world—is based on what U.S. sugar importers, refiners and distributors pay to sugar growers, millers and shippers, whether they be Cubans, Filipinos or Americans.

The premium—which isn't paid to the foreign government as such in checks from the U. S. Treasury—comes about this way:

The current price of granulated white cane sugar at the store is around 14 cents a pound. Part of that is the cost of distribution and handling, which is higher than it once was. Part is the cost of refining, also higher than formerly. Part is the cost of buying and shipping the raw sugar.

And better than two cents of that sugar price is the difference between the government-controlled price here and what sugar sells for on the world market outside the United States. Here the raw sugar price now is around 5 1/2 cents a pound, but going as high as 6 1/2 cents where duty also is paid. The raw sugar price outside the United States has ranged recently just above or below three cents a pound.

This two to three-cent-a-pound spread in refined sugar as it comes from the mills runs into big money when American refiners buy some three million tons a year from Cubans and some six million pounds from all other sources.

That spread between world sugar prices and the price set here is what is referred to as the sugar subsidy. The same differential, varying in some instances due to U. S. tariffs and shipping costs, applies to all sugar raised either at home or abroad.

Last week's trimming of the U. S. quota of sugar from Cuba is primarily a political matter rather than economic. But the U. S. quota system was originally set up in 1934, largely for economic reasons, with international politics in a secondary role.

The price in the United States today isn't set by outright price controls but by a sugar quota system aimed at tailoring supply to demand.

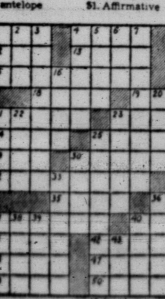

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is instructed to raise the amount of raw sugar that can be brought here when prices drop below a level deemed reasonable. This lowers the duty and perks up prices. Also under the law the department lowers the amount refiners and dealers can buy when the price here drops more than is deemed desirable. This pinch on supplies causes a price rise.

Dodgers Hottest, But Bucs Way Out Front

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates have the largest lead in the National League at the All Star break in the race for the pennant.

While the Bucs have padded their lead with five games over second-place Milwaukee by picking up 1½ games over the past two weeks, they've played no better than .300 ball in that span. But the Dodgers, who were in sixth place, 12 games behind two weeks ago, have won 12 of 16 since for a four-game gain.

With Frank Howard walloping home five runs and Norm Sherry's homer breaking a 7-7 tie, the Dodgers knocked off St. Louis 11-7 Sunday and regained third place from the Cards. It was the sixth victory in seven games for the Dodgers.

The Pirates, holding the biggest lead at All Star time since the 1955 Dodgers set a record with an 11½-game spread, defeated Philadelphia 6-2 with four runs in the ninth—their 12th last-inning victory. Milwaukee cracked Cincinnati 7-1, and San Francisco, after losing five in a row, scored five unearned runs in the seventh inning for a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

In the American League, last-place Boston made a sweep of a three-game series with New York, whipping the Yankees 9-5 and trimming their lead to 2½ games over second-place Cleveland. The Indians split a doubleheader at Chicago, winning 6-2 before the White Sox took the nightcap 6-4. Washington beat Baltimore 2-1. Detroit, down 7-0, whipped Kansas City 12-10.

Howard, the star of the Dodgers, who has 12 hits in his last 23 at bat, was 3-for-5 in their 16-hit barrage, upping his average to .301. He drove in two runs with a double in the first inning, doubled home two more in the sixth, and then singled ahead of rookie Tommy Davis' first major league home run in the eighth. Sherry's shot, his eighth, came in the seventh inning and beat reliever Bob Dillie 4-4.

Stan Musial, who makes his 18th All-Star appearance today in Kansas City, drove in the Cards' first four runs, three with his sixth homer in the first inning off Stan Williams. Musial had two of the Birds' six hits before Ed Roubek 8-1, came on and won his seventh in a row with three innings of no-hit relief. The Dodger right-hander has allowed just one run in his last 28 frames.

A throwing error by Robin Roberts (5-8), who had won four in a row, gave the Pirates the tie-breaking run in the ninth. Pinch hitter Rocky Nelson and Bill Virdon added RBI singles in the rally, with another run scoring on catcher Cal Neenan's error. Harvey Haddix, 6-4, backed by Bob Skinner's running catch with the bases loaded in the sixth, was the winner. Ted Lepcio homered for the Phils, who had taken four of five from the leaders.

Wes Covington socked across four runs for the Braves. He brought in the winner with a sixth-inning double off Bob Purkey 8-3, and then hit a three-run homer as Milwaukee scored four unearned runs in the seventh.

US Rowers Called 'Strongest Ever'

By JIM KOCH

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The United States Olympic rowing squad, headed by Navy's varsity eight, is considered by officials the strongest combination ever put together.

Twenty-six oarsmen in seven rowing classes were picked Saturday in finals that climaxed three days of pulse-pounding trials over the 2,000-meter or 1¼-mile Onondaga Lake course.

Navy's powerful varsity heavyweights, coming with a rush in the final 500 meters, nosed out California and a Syracuse alumni boat in the premier eight-oared event.

It was the first big win of the year for Navy after a series of disappointing second and third-place finishes.

Seattle's Lake Washington rowing club landed four of the small-boat spots—pairs with and without coxswain and four with and without coxswain.

The Philadelphia Vespers' duo of Jack Kelly and Bill Knecht took the double sculls, and the Vespers' Harry Parker, 24, a Navy lieutenant, won the single sculls.

This will be the fourth Olympics for Kelly, brother of Monaco's Princess Grace and a former champion single sculler.

Fourteen of the oarsmen have previous Olympic or Pan-American experience.

"This is the strongest rowing squad we've ever sent to the Olympics," Clifford T. Goes, chairman of the U.S. Olympic Rowing Committee, said.

"But it will have to be," Goes added, "because the competition will be stronger."

The United States has been all-winning in the eight-oared competition since 1920.

That supremacy is being challenged seriously this year by Germany's powerful Dittmaris Kai-Ratschberger eight, Australia and Canada, traditionally a late starter, also are expected to be strong.

The present Navy boat doesn't match the Navy Admirals of 1952 or Yale of 1956, Goes acknowledged.

"But we're hopeful Navy will have developed into a champion eight by Aug. 30 when the rowing begins on Lake Albano, outside Rome," he said.

The United States won three Olympic rowing gold medals, two seconds and a third at Melbourne, Australia, in 1956.

Goes considers Lake Washington entries powerful and Parker the best American sculler since Kelly and Joe Buck, now the Pennsylvania coach.

Redbirds, Indians Ring Up LL Wins

Little League action of Saturday night went true-to-form, in that the two league leaders each came through to strengthen their respective grips on the top rungs of their leagues, with the Cardinals nudging the Braves, 4-3, and the Indians breezing past the Athletics by 9-2.

Starter Roy Hunter and Ray Kizer teamed up to hurl the Cards to their close win, with Hunter getting the victory's nod. Each worked three innings on the hill, Hunter striking out a pair and Kizer five.

Chunky chunker David Holt was the loser, although he allowed only four singles while fanning eight. Roy Kizer was the only Card to land more than one base blow, as he singled twice in three trips.

Over on the Brave side of the ledger, six hits were landed off the offerings of Hunter and Kizer. Jackie Beane singled twice, and Don Jones rounded out a two-batger to lead the losing onslaught.

Weaver Weaves Win
In the American League contest, Barry Weaver of the Indians fourfisted the Athletics in ringing up the triumph. In addition, he sent 10 A's down via the strike route, while walking six.

Meanwhile, back at the reservation, the Indians battered Terry Holt and Kirby Corbell for a total of nine safeties, with Danny Howell slapping a two-run third-inning homer for the big display of fireworks. Teammate Jerry Smedley, the hot-corner man, also aided the

Phils Nudge Loop Leading Red Sox

The Red Sox Continental Express was temporarily detailed here Saturday night, as the Phillies squeaked past the league leaders by 7-4 and at the same time slipped into second place in the Eastern Hemisphere.

A big seventh-inning made the difference, as the Phils won it in true storybook fashion by plating four runs at that time: High lighting the uprising were singles by Roger McEwen, Ronnie Young, and Lyndon Baitz the three of whom all eventually scored: The A's victory was none other than Miller, who had been granted a base on balls.

Young, who came on in the fifth frame in relief of Miller, was the victor, with the two of them allowing a total of 10 hits to the Sox. Miller struck out six and Young three during their respective hit stints, while each issued two free passes.

Southpaw Mike Moffett was nailed, with the defeat. He went all the way in allowing 10 base knocks, whiffing eight, and walking six.

Leadoff man Skip Franklin was the big stickman for the Phils, powering out a double and two singles in five appearances. McEwen and Miller picked up a pair of singles apiece for the winning nine, also.

Bubba Fleming and Louis Herndon slammed doubles for the Sox, while Jerry Fleming collected two singles to spur the effort, also.

Uppets Aplenty
It was a Knock-Off-The-Leader Night over in the Texas Loop, too, as the fifth place Rebels rose to slap a 6-4 licking on the once-conquered Buffs.

Ronnie Bennett toiled for six innings for the victory, but gave way to Jimmy Featherston in the seventh and final frame, who went on to successfully quell a Buff rally at that point.

The Rebels were outlived by 9-6, but capitalized on their six singles to post the important decision. Durrell Aldridge represented the only Rebel to pick up more than a single hit, as he went two-for-four.

Pacing the Buff sluggers were Adam Romero and Ed Forre, each of whom doubled and singled. Romero went the distance on the mound for the Buffs, striking out 1 and walking six. Winner Bennett fanned nine and doled out free tickets to a quartet.

The line score:
Red Sox 040 100 1-6
Phillies 010 101 4-7
Rebels 060 411 0-6
Buffs 010 002 1-4

Final Tilts In Series To Be In Texas

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Texas and Mexican League officials agreed Sunday to play the first three games of the Pan American Assn. playoff in Texas.

The final games of the best-of-seven series will be in Texas, under the new arrangement.

Association officials, meeting here prior to the Pan American All-Stars game Sunday night, said they would decide at the end of the season whether to continue inter-league play.

Rafer Staves Off Yang In Decathlon
By MATT KRAMER
EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — United States' Olympic hopes in the decathlon are up today now that Rafer Johnson is back, established as the greatest decathlon performer of all times.

He won the finest duel in decathlon history by nosing out C.K. Yang of Formosa in a weekend meet in which both cracked the recognized world decathlon record of 8,357 points.

Johnson, making his first competitive start since automobile accident injuries laid him up last year, ran up 8,683 points. Yang achieved 8,426.

"I'm awfully happy to return the decathlon record to the United States — but Yang almost took it right back from me," Johnson said. "I think it was the high jump which kept me going. When I cleared 5-10 Friday after giving only 5-6 or 5-8 in practice, it gave me a boost. But I didn't come to Eugene to set a record. No, sir, I just came to make the boat to Rome."

It was not certain until the last event that the 24-year-old Johnson would be able to outdo the 27-year-old Yang, who will compete for Formosa in the Olympic Games.

Texas League Winner Of Second Game

By The Associated Press
The Texas League pushed seven hits to the hill, paraded eight pitchers to the mound and pranced to a 7-2 victory over the Mexican League Sunday night in the second Pan American Assn. All-Star game.

The Texans' outbait by one, never trailed, taking a 1-0 lead on a home run by Don Blalock in the second inning.

Ducote's homer, in his home park at San Antonio, enabled Texas League starter Bobby Bolin of Rio Grande Valley to notch the victory. Bolin worked the first two innings, allowing two hits, walking one and striking out two.

Teams from the two leagues take Monday night off before resuming their respective loop action Tuesday. As the Lone Star teams head into the final portion of the schedule, Rio Grande Valley holds a comfortable edge over the field. The Giants lead San Antonio and Victoria by seven games.

A crowd of 8,061 turned out for the all-star contest, which saw 37 players shuttle in and out of the field. Nineteen players—the entire Texas squad—got into the battle.

Catcher John Orsino of the Valley was the leading batter of the night with two singles, a double. Ducote got a single to go with his homer and scored three runs.

The Texans wasted none of their hits as they used two for one run in the second, three for three in the fourth and two for three in the sixth.

Mexican League starter Francisco Ramirez of the Mexico City Reds took the loss. Ramirez, hurled three innings, was the first of seven Mexican moundmen.

Giants, Cubs Slip Through To Wins

High scoring but tight games marked the Farm League action of Saturday night, as the loop-leading Giants eked out a 12-11 decision over the Cardinals and the second-place Cubs outlived the Braves to the tune of 14-11.

Jerry Boyd hurled the victory for the Giants, relinquishing 10 hits and striking out a like number. As did Boyd, Iser Mark Wilson went the route in absorbing the defeat.

Landing the big blows of the contest were the Giants' Jackie Weaver and Randy Owens, each of whom tripled. Other resounding Giant hits were landed by Mitchell Rambin, Clark Bostick, and Bill Taylor, each slapped out two-baggers.

For the Cards, Larry Lewis and Mike Hogan laced out doubles.

Trio Delivers
In the Cub triumph over the Braves, three Cubs trudged to the hill over the tenure of the game including starter David Casey and a pair of Mikes—Keller and Kenner.

Ronal Gladson and Dennis Harmon shared mound chores for the losing Braves.

Tragic Wreck Kills One; Injures Pair

SONORA, Calif. (AP)—Howard A. Davidson was in fair condition here today after spending three hours in a hospital following a head-on collision with a truck on the Tuolumne River Sunday.

Davidson, 37, of San Carlos, was returning from a Sierra excursion with Mrs. Avis Watson, 31-year-old divorcee and her two-year-old son, Michael, when his truck went over the 300-foot embankment.

The little boy was thrown to the bottom of the canyon and died instantly.

Davidson was thrown out half way down and tree limbs pierced his upper chest and lower abdomen. His feet touched the ground but he could not move. Rescuers had to saw away part of the tree to free him.

Mrs. Watson was trapped in the cab of the truck, which plunged into the river. Mark Lippert, a Modesto motorcyclist who saw the accident, got to her in time and held her head above the water until rescuers arrived. She is in fair condition.

They Wouldn't Let Me Pitch, Neither

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — "I got tired chasing baseballs and went for a walk. When I realized how late it was I panicked. I knew 'everyone had checked in and I was afraid to go back.'"

This was John C. Motley's explanation Sunday, when police picked him up at his family's home in nearby Port Carbon some 24 hours after the trusty walked away from the Schuylkill County prison.

Motley, 27, serving a 14-3 year term for stealing a fire chief's car, had been placed on a street outside the prison to shag balls that were hit over the wall during a baseball game Saturday.

He was charged with prison breach.

Keeping In Touch With Outside World

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One room at the Democratic convention headquarters hotel was taken by the 730 Club, composed of Democrats who have contributed $1,000 or more to the party.

A newsman discovered the club ordered a direct telephone line to some point downtown. He didn't know where but suspect there might be political significance he called the number to see who would answer.

It was the brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith.

Unemployment Up; Also Employment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government sources indicate the number of unemployed increased about one million in June while the number of employed reached a record high.

Official figures will be released Tuesday.

The sources predicted about 4½ million unemployed and about 66,100,000 employed—an increase of more than 500,000 in employment over last July's record.

Both employment and unemployment can climb because of the expanding labor force.

Oh, Bess! Could You Call LA And Tell 'Em...

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman had reservations when he decided not to attend the Democratic convention.

The Ambassador Hotel said Sunday that a $123-a-day suite was still reserved for Truman and that he'll be billed for it even if he stays home. The hotel said the suite was reserved last November.

A hotel spokesman said the reservation might be cancelled if the ex-President didn't show up today.

Cowboy Band Will Perform At Convention

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)—The Cowboy Band of Hardin-Simmons University will be the official Texas band at the national convention of Veterans of Foreign Wars in Detroit, Mich. Aug. 22-26.

The Texas VFW has picked the famed band to head the parade for the election of Ted C. Connell of Dallas as national commander.

The band is expected to follow its tradition of naming its senior vice commander to the post of commander-in-chief. He has served as senior vice commander for the past year.

About 45 musicians and specialty performers will make up the Cowboy Band for the Detroit appearance, according to Marion B. McClure, director. Featured twirlers will be Griff O'Neill of Alamo and Lynda Lynch of McAllen, both former national baton twirling champions. The University Girls Trio, made up of Marilyn Myatt, Nancy Stevenson and Barbara Lunsford, all of Pampa, will accompany the band. Miss Lunsford also is vocal soloist.

In addition, George French of Angleton, bullwhip expert, and Billy Ray Johnson of Clinton, Ark., rope specialist, will perform with the band.

While in Detroit, the group will march in the big VFW parade, play for the Dixie banquet of 12 Southern states, stage numerous impromptu concerts in hotel lobbies and other public places in support of Connell's candidacy, and will escort the new commander-in-chief to the speaker's platform after his election.

Glitter And Glare Will Brighten LA

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's only a dozen miles from Hollywood to the site of the Democratic-National Convention. So naturally, the big show will take on some trappings of the glimmer capital.

It's not like the old days, when Hollywood was virtually an FDR camp. Like many wealthy and fairly settled towns, Hollywood now leans toward the Republicans. But there are still enough Democratic stars to give the convention a glittering look.

Tonight's opening session will see a star-spangled chorus singing the national anthem on TV. Among the chorists: Ralph Bellamy, Nat King Cole, Tony Curtis, George Jessel, Peter Lawford, Shirley MacLaine, Lee Marvin, Sherry North, Vincent Price, Barbara Rush, Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr., Shelley Winters and Jan Sterling.

The man who corralled the talent and prepared the entertainment is veteran screen writer Allen Rivkin, director of the Democrats' Art Council. He explained: "We're not going to give the delegates a lot of entertainment at the Sports Arena. They're here for business; they can get entertainment elsewhere. The main thing we provide is a musical frame for the sessions. We'll have the national anthem at the beginning and at the end, too, following some spirituals. I've seen the English sing their anthem at the beginning and close of their public events and it's a good system."

Helping to complete the frame will be the 25-piece brass band that also plays for the Los Angeles Rams, plus Gaylord Carter at the mighty organ. They'll no doubt be belaboring TV and radio listeners with the convention's official 1960 tune, "Walkin' Down to Washington." Described by Demo musical Director Johnny Green as a "wowser," it goes: "I'm walkin' down to Washing-

"To shake hands with any good Democrat."

"Like we used to do!"

"Hosannah! Hosannah! . . ."

The big, big show, as Ed Sullivan might say, comes this Friday, when the nominees make their acceptance speeches in the Coliseum. The Democrats are hoping to fill the big bowl to its 107,000 capacity.

Youth Beats Odds In Fall At Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—The odds against young Rodger Woodward's surviving his 161-foot tumble down the Horseshoe Falls were 100 million to one, a state engineer says.

Rodger, 7, was swept over the falls Saturday when a motorboat in which he, his sister, and a family friend were riding capsized in the upper Niagara River. His sister, Deanne, 17, was plucked from the swirling rapids at the brink by two New Jersey tourists.

The boat's owner, James Honeysett, 40, of Niagara Falls, was missing and presumed drowned. The life jacket the boy was wearing saved his life, said Roger Williams, executive secretary and chief engineer of the Niagara Frontier State Parks Commission.

Rodger landed in a 100-foot well at the base of the falls. Authorities believe that unlike the foot of the American Falls, the base of the Horseshoe Falls is free of fallen rock. There is no record of anyone surviving a plunge over the American Falls.

Rodger was in good condition Sunday night at Greater Niagara General Hospital in Niagara Falls, Ont. Doctors said he didn't need as much as an aspirin.

Both he and his sister suffered only cuts and bruises.

Please Look Out For Flying Glass

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Grocer B.C. Russell, 59, triggered a booby trap he had rigged to protect his store and was shot in the right side Sunday.

Russell, who intended to throw a watermelon in the garbage can opened the back door of the store. The door jerked a string which discharged a .38 caliber pistol. His injury was not serious.

The device killed Earl Wayne Hanson, 21, last September after he had broken into the store.

Gimmick Backfires

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The back wash from a jet airliner hurled a 6-foot aluminum step ladder through a plate glass window in the terminal building at Love Field Sunday. Five persons were treated for cuts and bruises at a hospital and released.

A spokesman for the American Airlines said one of its Boeing 707 jets—flight 32 Yu Chicago—was taking away from the loading ramp when the backwash sent the ladder tumbling into the window.
