Dr. J. A. Hill, President of Canyon State Teachers' College, Named

APPROXIMATELY 125 TO ATTEND

J. Roy Quinby, President of Chamber of Commerce to Preside at Meet

Dr. J. A. Hill, president of the West Texas State Teacher's College, Canyon, has accepted the invitation of the chamber of commerce to make the principal address at the annual banquet of the organization to be held Friday night, January 25.

President Hill is one of the outstanding educators and speakers in this state, and has spoken previously on like occasions in much larger cities than Chillicothe. He is a past-president of the Texas State Teacher's Association and has much experience in speaking before large audiences. His coming to Chillicothe will mark a new order as being the first college president to address an annual chamber of commerce banquet in this city.

The program committee has completed a well-arranged program, to be presided over by President J. Roy Quinby of the chamber of commerce.

Guests from the following are to be invited: Wichita Vernon, Crowell, and Quannah. Among the invited guests are County Agent Wendt of Quannah, with his wife and little daughter, Mack Boswell, secretary of the Crowell chamber of commerce, and Dick Todd, the famous football star, who will be called upon to give a talk on high school football.

Other members will round out a varied and interesting program. Fully 125 persons will attend the banquet, it is now felt by the committee.

Secretary Gouley of the chamber of commerce declared the banquet is primarily for members and their wives, or others who are invited to accompany them. However, should anyone desire to attend they may feel free to do so by purchasing a ticket. Monday the committee on ticket sales, H. J. Taber, O. L. Boston, J. P. Heilbecker, and Raymond Touchstone will see all desiring to buy tickets. Sales will close Wednesday afternoon. Attention is called the price for a ticket is much less than charged at other banquets held in this section recently, but even so a fine dinner will be served in addition to the good program offered.

Since this is the only open meeting of the membership of the chamber of commerce this year the president urges everyone to be present, as activities for the year will be announced, as well as plans being made for the remainder of the fiscal year.

JAMES V. ALLRED WAS INAUGURATED GOVERNOR TUES

10,000 People Present for Ceremonies Held in Front of Capitol Building

SUCCESSOR TO MRS. FERGUSON

Signed Receipt for Relief Money from Federal Government as First Act

James V. Allred, born in Montague county, officially became the Governor of Texas Tuesday, succeeding Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

The mist that had been a veritable fog over the Capitol lifted and cerulean spots broke through the coal dust clouds. Finally a brick Texas breeze shunted the clouds away and the sun shone brightly on an alert young man in a light gray winter suit, standing before a microphone and 10,000 men, women and children, telling them in tones of crisp vigor that he means to be the open door Governor of the 6,000,000 people in Texas. James V. Allred, son of a United States mail carrier, husbandman of the Saturday nighters that a shine boy in a country town barber shop garters, had become Governor of Texas.

It was over. Away from the microphone and away from the listeners, Allred was shaking hands right and left in a pressed and packed crowd. It had been his forte as a three-time candidate for attorney general, on unsuccessful and twice successful. It was his forte as a candidate for Governor and it was his forte again as with a smile of victory on his lips and the solemnity of responsibility above his brows, he edged his way toward the office of the Governor, alone and unattended.

A group of newspaper men and photographers were there ahead of him. Three secretaries, two of them old working comrades in the Attorney General's Department, hovered about as the successor of Houston and Hoock, Coke and Colquitt, Sayers and Sterling, went into the room that is to be his workshop and the seat of Government in Texas for the next two years.

Message Marked Before him was a great hanging basket of yellow roses festooned with smaller flowers and adorned at the top with an orchid. It came from Mr. and Mrs. Lutecher Stark of Oregan. Another hanging basket of orange red carnations off to one side bore no mark of the sender. On the desk of the Governor was the open Bible left there for Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson in 1925 and bearing in gilt letters on the outside the words: "Presented to my successors in office—FAT M. NEFF, 1921-1925."

On that ten-year ago occasion, Governor Neff left this passage marked from Psalms 119:

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." Tuesday the Neff Bible was open at Jeremiah 50 and in ink Governor Ferguson had written: "Marked by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, Jan. 15, 1935." The 32nd verse was in ink bracketed:

"And the most proud of them, and fall and none shall raise him up, and I will kindle a fire in his cities, and it shall devour all round about him."

"Way of All Officeholders" Once before Mrs. Ferguson had left the office of Governor after a single term and Jan. 18, 1927, she marked this passage for Dan Moody:

"Therefore, all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets." The new Governor went swiftly to the desk that is to be his and gave a penetrating look at the open book. He read in rapid tones (Continued on Page Eight)

Pays for Theft of Merchandise 8 Years Ago

YOUNG WOMAN WAS EMPLOYED AS SALES CLERK FOR NAYFA IN OKLAHOMA

Some eight years ago when E. A. Nayfa was operating a store in Oklahoma he had in his employ a young lady as sales clerk. And this young lady, from time to time, without his knowledge, helped herself to hose, and other wearing apparel.

This past week he was informed of what the young lady had done—the young lady, and she also forwarded a money order of $5.00 to pay for the cost of what she had taken, saying it should be sufficient for the amount of wearables.

Because this young lady since that time has become a Christian, she felt she could not go on living as one as long as this incident bothered her. Now she feels free, and E. A. Nayfa is richer by $5.00 than he was before the letter arrived, and too, thinks much more of the former sales clerk.

GAS COMPANY OFFICE TO BE IN NEW HOME

WILL BE LOCATED ON WORTHAM STREET; PLAN TO MOVE THIS WEEK

Office of the Northern Texas Utilities Company will be located in the McDonald building on east Wortham street, the removal to be made this week.

The new home of the gas company is one of the most attractive of any of the company's offices in this part of the state. It will provide plenty of space for displaying the merchandise, as well as being more convenient for the public. The local manager, Mrs. Alene Guy, is greatly pleased with the new quarters as is Robert L. Peary of Quannah, company representative.

Mrs. P. G. Turner and daughter, Treaselle, and Mayella Campbell were visitors in Quannah Tuesday evening, going there to visit Mrs. Turner's daughter, Mrs. Jack Roark, and family.

FIRST EVENT OF YEAR SCHEDULED NEXT WEDNESDAY

HORSE-TRADING IS ENCOURAGED

Good Chance for Farmers to Do Trading; Everybody Is Invited to Attend

Chillicothe's first trade day for the year of 1935 will be held on Wednesday, January 23, and preparations for offering a wide range of values at local stores are now being made.

Elsewhere will be found advertising matter from several of the stores, cooperating to send readers a message and it will be to the advantage of everyone to read each advertisement closely in order to cash in on greater values. It is hoped by merchants to establish a new high in sales on this day, and if lower prices mean anything then they should be successful.

Aside from the store values the trade day committee hopes rural people especially will take advantage of the day to do some horse swapping—or anything they want to trade. There is available plenty of space where trading may be done, and farmers should feel no hesitancy in coming.

For the past few years the Chillicothe merchants' cooperative event has been carried on, until today it is recognized as one of the most successful held in this part of the state.

Here's the Line-Up

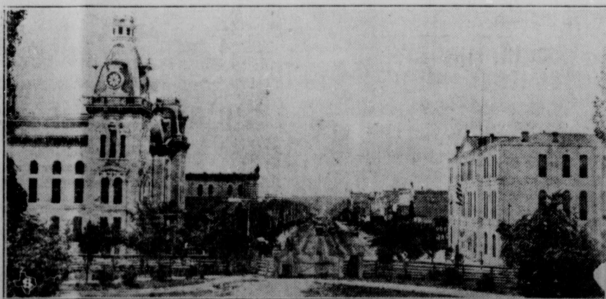

Rudolph Brothers grocery store is featuring a new coffee-cake brand, and the company claims for it to be as good as the best. Moreover there will be other values found at this store. The Chillicothe Lumber Company points out the need for new glass to replace the broken glass in windows. Touchstone Motor Company again tells of the new Ford V-8 for 1935 now being supplied. The Chillicothe Auto Supply, having just received a large shipment of auto parts, urges that you visit the store. J. E. and K. G. Davis, grocery and service station, extends a welcoming hand for you to visit their place for gas, oil, or foods. Glazener Chevrolet Company tells about the new Standard model of the 1935 series now being shown.

Perfection Bakery, owned by Claude Estes, has something to say about the bakery's products, while Arledge Service Station announces a change over to the Phillips Petroleum products, and Lawson Service Station advising of the fine offer on National tires and Sinclair gasoline and oils. Boaz Rexall Store tells of values at the store, while Gene Williams manager of the S. H. Williams & Sons dry goods store repeats that now, as in the past, true values will be found.

Wallace Waldrup, manager of the M-System stores, jogs your mind relative to prices to be found there on foods. M. T. York, according to J. Collier Fleish, invites the public to see the new merchandise being shown. Graham Dry Goods store, according to Frank Graham, is "A Mighty Good Place to Trade," and he wants to prove it. The Northern Texas Utilities Company announces the removal of their office to the McDonald building on Wortham street, where a better display of the company's merchandise, can be had. There is always to be found "tough steak" at the City Market, declares Carter Forbes, the major domo of that place, and John Hayhurst, manager of the Chillicothe Farmers Co-operative Association, advises what the farmer needs, is to be had at his store.

Austin, Texas, Was Different Place 50 Years Ago

You're not going to believe this, but the above picture was taken with the camera looking down Congress avenue in Austin, Texas, more than 50 years ago—in 1880 to be exact. The camera was set up on the lawn of the State Capitol. Instead of big buildings, as one sees today, only structures of two and three stories lined the streets and it was no trouble at all to see the far side of the river plainly. (Texas News Photos)

THE INAUGURAL BALL

Following the inauguration held during the day, the grand ball for Texas' new governor, Jimmie Allred, was held Tuesday night. We would like to have been in attendance. We received the invitation, but the sad part of the whole thing is we could not be there.

Being just old country boys we would enjoy, for a time at least, wearing a rented dress suit and be made into a city dude for a spell. And, too, have the honor of being addressed by the governor by our first name. Furthermore, we would see how Ben Oneal and George Moffett act at a swell function like that.

Twice over thus for a newspaperman who wants to keep the wolf away from the door—work, trying to get out a paper and then when it is done have some of your readers point out the mistakes that appear so clearly, yet, before being printed, hid themselves so that it would have taken a microscope to find 'em. Oh, well, there is some joy after all in this grand old Texas. We live in Chillicothe.

WHERE OUR MONEY GOES

A local business man comes forth with a suggestion that should be approved by everyone. At most, there is nothing to lose, while everything is to be gained.

It is this: There would be an agreement, signed by the head of a family residing in this community, that when it was possible to do so, his family would first try to buy what they needed in Chillicothe without going elsewhere.

Nothing in the contract that would be binding, of course, other than to point out, and certainly it will always be a good reminder, that what is spent in Chillicothe is that much toward keeping the town alive. It would be worth trying in as much as the idea was, and is now, carried out in a town near Lubbock. The results have been very satisfactory. All of us, to be sure, realize that Chillicothe makes us, and that by rights we should be appreciative enough to hold that money here to keep Chillicothe growing—not allow it to deteriorate into nothing, because once it reached that stage we would be forced to go elsewhere.

Let's start something like that. Anyone approached to sign such an agreement need not become offended, and take the attitude that "I will trade where I please." That is granted, but if you could spend a little more money in Chillicothe, just think how much better off the town will be.

A friend tells us that the New Year presents to him the problem of thinking up some New Year's resolutions that he knows he can keep.

A country cousin who attended a football game at one of the state universities remarked as he squeezed into a seat and glanced over the crowd that packed the place, "Say, if this depression keeps up you folks are going to have to enlarge your stadium."

Knee-Action Is Optional On New Chevrolet "Six"

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Amplifying his announcement of prices of the two new Chevrolet lines for 1935, W. E. Holler, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, today stated that enclosed knee action, optional on the Master De Luxe models, will be available at an additional charge of $20 list. Mr. Holler predicted that at least 90 per cent of persons buying Master models in 1935 would exercise the option and obtain knee action at the small price difference involved.

Mr. Holler emphasized the fact that knee action will be built in at the factory, not installed by the dealer.

"Chevrolet's knee action mechanism," he said, "is an integral

SPACE GRAFTERS

A waste paper basket mounted high with "junk" from the morning mail convinces us again that no one receives the amount of propaganda, canned material, free readers and plain efforts to graft space, than a newspaper editor does.

No one would think of asking a clothing merchant for a $20 purchase gratis; or a grocer for $5 worth of produce; or a garage for $4 in free service. Yet individuals, corporations, causes, churches, societies, manufacturers, inventors, and just plain nuts write in daily to ask for more space as "free matter" than the average newspaper is able to sell at advertising rates. If one out of every thousand gained one-thousandth of what they ask, every newspaper in the country would be in the hands of a receiver before the six months had ended.

And if all the effort and expense represented in this never-ceasing effort to graft free space was devoted to the purchase of legitimate advertising, the message that these varied agencies have, or think they have, might be conveyed to the public in a fair and business like manner.

A good demand and a good price is predicted for seed corn next spring.

The prediction is made that some form of sales tax will one day replace all other forms of taxes.

Ed Howe, the veteran newspaper man says that the way to find a man's weakness is to give him authority and the way to find his strength is to give him trouble.

Since Japan is seeking other countries where she may unload part of her people, we suggest she get in touch with Admiral Bird and see if they can be placed in "Little America."

We wish there were some way to get it across to these fellows who insist on trying to write original poetry that there is something else to poetry than rhymes and having all the lines the same length.

A local farm woman describes her way of caring for sausage as follows: The sausage is ground, seasoned, moulded into cakes, packed into glass jars and processed 80 minutes in a pressure cooker. The jars are then covered and the lids tightened. To serve the sausage, the cakes are taken from the cans and browned.

From a contemporary: "The hosiery advertisements nowadays remind us of the pictures that used to run in the pink pages of the Police Gazette, a publication found only in barber shops and pool halls." Tut, tut, tut. Evidently the writer has forgotten how the Police Gazette pictures looked—certainly not like hosiery ads.

It is pointed out that there were in this country last year 12,000 murders, 3,000 kidnapping, 50,000 robberies, 4000 cases of arson, 40,000 burglaries, and 100,000 assaults, and the Golden Age points out all is wonderfully encouraged by a system that for so much paid to somebody for influence, gets time off from punishment.

All over the country branch lines of railroads are being abandoned because they have come to be unprofitable, due to truck competition. In each case the counties affected have appealed to the ruling commission to force the railroad to continue to operate even at the continuous loss. The inconsistent feature of the demand usually is that practically all of those asking that the railroads be refused permission to discontinue operation do all of their shipping by truck.

part of the car. It cannot be installed as an accessory. There will be no conversions in the field. Cars will be available both with and without knee action, but they will be built complete at the factory, where special machinery skilled workers, and other factors all focus on the production of this major feature, which is offered only by Chevrolet and builders of higher-priced cars."

Just Between Us...

BY THE NEWS HOUND

Some states are proposing a law providing for the sterilization of all those citizens who come up for a third prison sentence. The law would not be a bad one. It will have proven the individual coming up for a third sentence is a habitual criminal, and should not be allowed to produce his kind and thus become an additional burden and expense upon the state.

All of us agree, but none have accomplished anything toward securing a swimming pool for Chillicothe. While we are going through the winter period little attention is given the matter, but just as soon as warm nights come around we begin to think how wonderful it would be to have a local swimming pool. Won't you kind Santa Clause come forward and donate the city one.

We didn't get very much rain during the year of 1934, and from the way the new year has started out, prospects are none too bright for this year being a wet one. Based on records kept by C. W. Underwood we had a total of 19.40 inches for 1934. That isn't sufficient for our needs. It will take around 30 inches of moisture to insure making good agricultural crops. And yet, there doesn't seem to be anything we can do to relieve the dryness.

Troubles may come and troubles may go, but show us a man who has never faced difficult problems and we'll show you a sorry citizen.

Instead of explaining what should be done to relieve the cotton situation, let's have somebody do something.

Writing in a newspaper one says: "A thing I don't admire is dogs. If a dog comes running where a couple of other dogs have started a fight, he invariably tries to take a bite out of the under dog. A dog has no feeling of right and wrong."

Imagine a person writing such stuff. A dog is his master's best friend, if that master has bestowed the right kind of treatment, and not kicked the dog around. We have known dogs to do the nearly impossible, save human lives from drowning and so on. Does the dog understand right from wrong? We say yes.

Our good friend, J. A. Heath, who side-kicks with Hardin Cole, in dishing out prunes and so forth, has agreed with us at least one time. He admits we are right when we say rain would be welcome. J. A. knows if plenty of rain falls this community will produce plenty of agriculture crops, and by the by, if it does he can jingle a few more coins. Let 'er rain! Hardin would be in an acceptable mood too, I feel confident.

It used to go, "Lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine," but we suppose that's out of date like most everything else.

A chronic joker informs us the reason for a woman's mind being so much cleaner than man's. It's because she changes it more often. And that's that.

MRS. CHARLES BUTTS HAS IMPROVED YARD

Mrs. Charles Butts, yard demonstrator for the Friendship club, has her goal for 1934, the addition of the nine shade trees and the screen plantings which are to be chiefly native plantings. The club will meet with Mrs. Butts in February at which time Miss Elsie Phillips will give a demonstration on planting screen plantings.

In preparation for the demonstration Mrs. Butts will have the ground prepared and have the necessary plants for the planting.

Miss Juanita Wickliffe of Washington, D. C., who was here for over the Christmas holidays for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wickliffe, has returned to her home. After leaving Chillicothe she stopped en route for a visit with her brother, Cantrell Wickliffe, in Tyler.

That nothing contributes as much to the growth of a city as the strong backing of its business institutions by the citizens.

Right now is the time for every one to become a part of the wide-awake progressiveness of the home city.

Faithstaking and intelligent thoughts for the betterment of the city are uppermost in the minds of the business men.

It is their ambition to make the city a larger, better city and, above all, they work constantly with the thought of permanency.

Every citizen should get right with the home city by getting busy and staying busy.

They can develop its resources to a surprising extent if they will give their time and energy reserved and wholeheartedly to this work.

They should do everything in their power to make the home city a thriving and growing city.

JUST THINGS GOSSIPY

A. L. Honeycutt must have his joke. For instance: the other day he informed his friend, Joe Anderson, the latter should not be too concerned about placing a man in a government job. Joe wondered why, and A. L. replied "I'm saying in four more years a Republican would be installed. Case, A. L. must have his joke. Case it is a joke."

T. Boaz, Jr., is now realizing it takes money to live properly, and he has dreams of making good money in the not too far distant future, and being an inter-betwixt an optimist and pessimist, I am not convinced he means what he says. Should he reach his goal I trust he will remember we have always been good friends.

I thought Saturday morning I was going to have the chance of starting some scandal on a local man. He was standing in front of The News office when a very charming young lady, driving a good looking automobile, whirled past all the while honking the automobile horn. Joe Bob didn't look up—perhaps wasn't used to that—but when she rounded the turn and came back, she resumed the honking and he looked up, waved, doffed his hat as a knight of old. She smiles and waves her hand. If that wasn't supposed to write about, then kind friend, what is it? It looked like scandal—but it wasn't. It was the Missus.

I have my own opinion about the automobile driver who drives from one side of the highway to the other, fearing not what might result. You have your opinion, likewise, but I dare say both are the same. Anybody driving in such a manner ought to be in the "bug house."

Well, that's what is happening every day—and night, and mostly at night, because the nut that steers the wheel usually gets an over dose of spirits, and thus takes matters into his own hands. For instance: the other night I was driving what is considered sensible-like, when I noted an oncoming car. At a distance it could be seen the driver was in doubt, which side of the pavement belonged to him, and he became befuddled as he drew near. It was necessary I leave the road to escape a collision.

In answer to my suggestion of a week my friend, C. W. Underwood will do his best to bring rain.

Bob Pearcey, once a resident of this fair city, now habitates in the town of Qunah. His appearance of late leaves no doubt in a person's mind that he is doing very well in so far as eating and drinking. I dare say he has gained some fifty pounds in the last year. After all there may be health-giving qualities in Qunahs water.

A local citizen passed on something worth noting the other day: "If we would get it into our noodles that the other fellow is to be considered, and not so much ourselves; that they be given credit for something they have done without others claiming it, this world of ours will be a much better place to live. People as a whole will be more satisfied."

He is quite right. I cannot condone a person who feels self-importance, when he has done nothing to gain it.

Frank Graham is taking it easy since the first of the year. You might call it a vacation, and then you could call it just plain old laziness. But the latter would be wrong. Frank is not lazy. He is, on the contrary, quite industrious. He tells me it will soon be time to go to work in earnest, and I take it he means going after 1935 business.

25,000 CENSUS WORKERS CHECK NATION'S FARMS

ENUMERATORS WILL FINISH JOB DURING MONTH. IT HAS BEEN ANNOUNCED

An army of 25,000 census workers are now enumerating the Nation's farms, farm population, crop production in 1934, and the number of livestock. Each enumerator has been allotted a specific territory to canvass and has been trained in "schools" held during December.

There are 100 inquiries in the farm schedule being used by the Census enumerators. These inquiries relate to the tenure, age, and race of the farm operator; the acres in the farm; the classes of land, according to use in 1934; the farm value; number of farm dwellings occupied and unoccupied; farm population; the number of persons now living on farms who lived in non-farm residences 5 years ago; the number of family laborers and hired help; the acreage and the production of crops in 1934; the number of livestock on farms; and the production of milk, eggs, wool, and mohair in 1934.

The enumerators will finish their work during January and the farm schedules should be on their way to Washington by February 1. In Washington, these farm schedules will be edited, coded and tabulated and the results published.

Because of the effect of drought and economic conditions, this is perhaps the most important agricultural census ever taken. The work of enumeration, editing, and tabulation will be facilitated as much as possible so that these data may be available in planning and carrying out crop and livestock, farm credit, subsistence, homestead, marginal land, and other programs.

Farmers are urged to write, phone or call at the headquarters of the Census Supervisor in their district and procure a sample copy of the farm schedule, study the questions and have their answers ready for the enumerator who will visit them during January.

proprietor of a hardware store, has something on his mind not at all bad. Otto sees where more business might come to Chillicothe if Chillicothe people who trade more at home, or at least, try to buy here first. An agreement signed in writing on the part of the citizen would read that this citizen will do all his buying in Chillicothe, in so far as it be possible. Certainly it would not be hard to live up to, and most of us would do it.

GIVES INSIDE PICTURE OF PRESS CONFERENCES WITH 'FIRST LADY'

Martelle Wickliffe Trager, Former Chillicothe Resident, One of Group Attending Press Interviews With Mrs. Roosevelt

Its "calling time" in Washington. However out of date it may be in other cities it's still in vogue in the Capital. Socially minded women devote an afternoon or two a week to it in season.

The convening of Supreme Court and opening of Congress are signals for drawing room doors to be thrown open. And do people rush in! So many attend the first few "at homes" of the season that guests have to wait in line to be received.

Wives of the officials, diplomats, Senators and Representatives have certain days to receive. On Monday it's the wives of the Justices of the Supreme Court, on Tuesday it's the Representatives, Wednesday Cabinet members and Speaker of the House, Thursday the Senators and Friday members of the Diplomatic Corp. Those who wish to leave their cards at the White House do so in the fall. Addresses should always be written on them. The cards are filed and all callers are invited to tea later.

Rules for calling are quite disconcerting to the wives of some government official and congressional members. They're not in the least arbitrary and one's failure to live up to them when she first comes to Washington often leads to unpopularity and embarrassment. A new Senator's wife should leave her card at the White House within two weeks after her arrival. She should call upon the wives of the Vice-President, Ambassadors, Justices and Senators who were elected before her husband as soon as possible. She waits for wives of Cabinet members, Foreign Ministers and Representatives to call upon her.

The public are invited to the "at homes" and one sees a miscellaneous lot of them. The curiosity seekers and professional callers are easily spotted. The truly prominent are usually in the background. A few men, usually from diplomatic circles, are seen in the dining rooms and drawing rooms. The dining room tables are heavily laden with dainty sandwiches, cookies, candies, tea and coffee. Wines and cocktails are served by the Foreign Diplomats.

The seating arrangement at dinners and luncheons are quite a problem for Washington hostesses. The Gann-Longworth feud started over it and many hostesses have made enemies by the wrong seating arrangements of guests. The Chief Justice and Ambassadors are never asked to the same dinner because they are of equal rank. The same is true of the Associate Justices and Foreign Ministers.

Cabinet members rank in accordance with the establishment of their departments. The following is the order: State, Treasury, War, Justice, Post Office, Navy, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor. The army officers precede the navy where rank is equal because it is of longer standing. The President accepts very few invitations to dine out—only one a year from the Vice President and Cabinet members. The Vice President is the official "diner out."

invariably discover the presence of this parasite. This safeguard against the disease must necessarily be taken by consumers of the infested pork. Thorough cooking may be counted upon to kill the parasite.

Trichinosis results from eating uncooked pork, usually in the form of sausage, that contains the larvae. There is often danger of not maintaining sufficient temperature to thoroughly cook the meat. Outer portions of the meat may appear well cooked while the inner part is quite rare and will retain the living parasites. Especially is this true if the piece of pork is quite thick. Cases of trichinosis have occurred from eating just such inner portions of uncooked pork. Pork with the slightest red tinge may contain the living parasites. Pork should be cooked until all color disappears through the piece of meat. This is the only safeguard against trichinosis.

The disease is rather extensively distributed among hogs, and all pork should be regarded with suspicion unless treated to kill the larvae. Freshly killed pork is more dangerous than meat that has been kept in cold storage for some time because parasites tend to die out during prolonged storage at low temperatures. Other processes of preserving meat also tend to kill the trichinella larvae. No method of meat inspection will

CANNING PLANTS IN SOME PARTS OF STATE CLOSED

SUPPLY OF GOVERNMENT-BUGHT CATTLE EXHAUSTED IS REASON GIVEN

AUSTIN, Jan. 16.—Texas Relief Commission canning plants were being closed in various parts of the state last week as the supply of government-bought cattle became exhausted, it has been announced by C. Z. Crain, head of the commodity distribution department and supervisor of the plants.

Seven of the 22 plants will remain open to process 10,000 head of cattle recently allotted to Texas by the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation. Those remaining in operation temporarily are located at Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Amarillo, Paris, Tyler, and Waco.

Mr. Crain said figures supplied him by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration on drought cattle purchases show the administration paid approximately $20,500,000 for about 2,000,000 head of cattle in Texas, an average of approximately $10 per head. Relief Commission canning plants processed 374,000 head, turning out 47,000,000 cans of beef, 1 1/2 pounds to the can, and affording employment to between 20,000 and 30,000 persons, counting extra employees required by slaughter houses.

In addition, the AAA bought approximately 700,000 head of sheep and some 400,000 goats. County administrators gave away 75,000 head of goats one at a time to relief clients.

Fifty cars of sheep pelts have been shipped out of the state and a like number remain to be shipped, Crain said.

Relief officials were hopeful the government would authorize another large cattle buying program in the state in order that the operation of the canning plants may be continued. They pointed out that the canning plants are the biggest work project for relief clients in the state, serving particularly to decrease the number of unemployed women.

Mr. Crain said he hoped to keep equipment intact in closed plants for the next 30 to 60 days until it is learned definitely whether a new cattle buying program will be ordered for Texas. He also indicated there will be some changes in the method of slaughtering and contracting for the slaughter of cows, if a new program is ordered.

WHAT FARM FOLKS ARE NOW DOING

Timely Tips on What Farm Folks are Doing in Texas

Madisonville: By terracing 50 acres of land, Fred Seay of Madison county estimates that he has saved for a cash outlay of $25, he sold W. L. David, farm demonstration agent, Mr. Seay used the county grader and machinery to do his work and found that it cost him 4 1/2 cents per acre. The terraces were built 24 feet wide and 24 inches high. Since Mr. Seay has found out how little it costs him to have this work done, he plans on having more terracing done in the near future.

Kountze: Thirteen thousand five hundred pounds of wool were sold by 45 members of the local wool growers' association in Hardin county during December for $2400, averaging $60 per grower, according to W. P. Barrett, farm demonstration agent. Through a cooperative agency, small growers in the county have been able to sell their wool for several cents above the price offered them individually by buyers. The wool was assembled at two central points in the county where it was weighed, branded and listed.

Gatesville: The cost of digging and filling a 60 foot trench silo was only $18.50 for an estimated amount of 25 tons of silage. W. T. Perryman, Corryell county, told B. W. Sherrill, farm demonstration agent, Mr. Perryman declared that the $18.50 covered the cost of labor and all other expenses, and that the estimated replacement value of the 25 tons of feed in the silo is $250. "In a time of short pasture and feed the use of trench silos and the saving of feed is very important," Mr. Perryman says.

Canadian: An average of 11 eggs per hen was laid during November of last year by 550 white leghorn hens belonging to Mrs. Smith Morehead of the Washita Home Demonstration Club in Hemphill county, while standard production for that month is only 9 eggs per hen, according to Miss Sadie Lee Oliver, home demonstration agent. The 109 1/2 dozen eggs sold for $150 while the cost of production was only $82.55, leaving Mrs. Morehead a profit of $77.35 for the month. Her chickens are raised by methods outlined by the Texas Extension Service and her expenses were for laying mash, grain, oyster shell, medicine, and lights.

Palfurrias: Sixteen Brooks county women taught to can by Mrs. J. M. Word, member of the Palfurrias Home Demonstration Club, have preserved $205.50 worth of meat and vegetables this year, according to Miss Louise Hogue, home demonstration agent. Meat canning was taught to 13 women, 11 of whom were not members of the home demonstration club. These 13 women canned 210 quarts of meat valued at $283.50. Vegetable canning demonstrations given to three women resulted in the canning of 110 quarts of vegetables valued at $22. In addition one non-club member taught by Mrs. Word

H. D. COUNCIL TO MEET JANUARY 26TH

The home demonstration council will have the first meeting in 1935 on the fourth Saturday, January 26th at 2:30 o'clock in the county court room. Mrs. W. T. Green, the new chairman, will have charge of the meeting.

The program will be a study of "America Must Choose" by Henry A. Wallace. The following women will be on the program: Mrs. Harlin Goulson of the Goodlett club, Mrs. C. B. Kennedy of the Bailey High club, Mrs. R. L. Barlow of the Chillicothe club, Mrs. R. R. Swindell of the Marshall club, Mrs. Wilbur Rogers of the Friendship club and Mrs. B. D. Butts of the Spring Creek club.

made six quarts of orange marmalade valued at $2.19.

Quitman: Doris Jeanne Holley, 11 year old bedroom demonstrator for the Cartwright 4-H club in Wood county, has completely refinished her bedroom at a cost of $14.80 by doing all of the work herself with the help of her father and other, according to Miss Katherine Kelly, home demonstration agent. Doris Jeanne planned her walls, used heavy building paper to cover them, and sewed sacks together and laced them to use as canvas. She repapered her walls and ceiling, finished her woodwork and floors which had previously been unfinished, and then enameled her furniture jade green.

Brady: Twenty-one acres of sandy hillside land terraced two years ago produced seven bales of lint cotton for Ben Mayo of McCulloch county, while surrounding farms which were not terraced averaged about one bale to seven or eight acres, according to James D. Frewitt, farm demonstration agent. The sandy land in the Voca community where the farm is located seldom averages more than 100 pounds of lint per acre, but since the demonstration of the increased yield on the Mayo farm, 43 farmers of the community are terracing their land.

Lagrange: During four years of 4-H club work, Clifton Galle of the Willow Springs community in Fayette county made a net profit of $1772.49, according to W. H. Dufay, farm demonstration agent. Young Galle started out in 1931 with one pig. In 1932 he raised two breeding hogs and 100 chickens, and in 1933 he increased his swine herd to 16 hogs and raised 420 chickens. He also grew 5 acres of corn.

His fourth year of work consisted of raising 797 fryers that he sold on the Houston market, raising 134 pullets for his flock, and keeping records on his flock of 239 hens. His swine herd consisted of 43 animals in 1934, and he produced 190 bushels of corn on 10 acres of land.

Comanche: By the use of night lights, automatic water system, cooling and other modern methods, A. H. Caraway of Comanche county made a profit of $238.37 for the year on his flock of 197 white leghorn hens, according to J. A. Barton, farm demonstration agent.

Mr. Caraway fed grain and mash continually and used lights close to the feed and water troughs each night from September 1 to March 1. Hens were housed in a 16 by 14 foot house of the shed roof type and in a semi-monster type which was 20 by 24 feet.

Dickens County Club Work For 1934 Summarized

SPRING, Jan. 16.—More than 185,000 quarts of canned foods with an estimated value of nearly $40,000 were preserved in Dickens county during the past year by farm food supply demonstrations, cooperators, and non-club families, according to figures compiled by Miss Clara Pratt, home demonstration agent. Of this amount, home demonstration club members canned 26,170 quarts with a value of $8,971.45, while the canning by non-club members was estimated at 150,000 quarts with a value of $31,000.

These club members made their own canning budgets and helped 97 non-club members in making and partially filling theirs. During the year, 1,050 families were benefited by the Extension Service through efforts of the club women and the home demonstration agent. This is 85.5% of the 1228 farm families in the county.

In addition to the farm food supply work, wardrobe demonstrations and bedroom improvement work were stressed for the club women, and gardens and bedroom improvement were emphasized in the work of the club girls. Sixteen of the 18 wardrobe demonstrators finished their records, stories, and dresses before the county clothing contest. The goals for the cooperators were to make and exhibit dresses and slips made by foundation patterns. More than 100 of each were made, and 73 dresses and the same number of

Because the work done by the farm demonstration agent in terracing proved so valuable to farmers, in Montgomery county, the county court has employed a terracing assistant for a period of 50 days and invested in a crawler type of tractor and a grader to be used only in terracing.

In the drought emergency of 1934, D. G. Vick, Young county rancher, found cotton to be the cheapest and best feed he could raise for his 17,000 head of sheep. As used by him the cotton was stripped and stored for winter feeding which he values at four cents per pound. In 1934 his plantings averaged 250 pounds to the acre. No other lands planted in feed stuffs produced so much, Mr. Vick states.

Tanning has taken firm hold in Runnels county according to Elmo V. Cook, farm demonstration agent. More than 700 pounds of hide were tanned and cattle produced in the county still have 500 hides being held for tanning leather. The work was introduced by Mr. Cook with a home leather tanning school. This was so useful he plans to follow it with several additional schools.

slips were exhibited. Reports also show that 207 foundation patterns were fitted, of which 107 were for non-club members.

Bedroom improvements were reported by 111 club women and 82 club girls. Forty-seven new clothes closets were built, and 83 others were improved by the addition of rods, shelves, hat and shoe racks. In addition 56 mattresses were added, 778 pieces of linen were provided, and furniture was reconditioned.

First of a Series of Articles Taken From the Bexar Archives at the University of Texas and Pertaining to History of State.

BY LORENE DRUMMOND

(Note: This collection, considered the greatest single historical treasure of the North American continent, has been catalogued and is now being translated by the University of Texas. It consists of 400,000 pages of original Spanish handwritten documents comprising the official archives of the Mexican government for the Department of Bexar, which covered almost the whole of what is now the State of Texas, for the period from 1721, to the Battle of San Jacinto. This series of articles will consist principally of quotations from the documents, many of which have heretofore been unpublished, and will reveal for the first time what actually transpired during the century in which Texas was transformed from a wilderness inhabited only by savage Indian tribes to an independent American republic.)

Series I, No. 1

Austin, Texas, Jan. 16—Generations ago it was predicted that the translation of the documents in the Bexar Archives might necessitate the rewriting of many portions of Texas history. For years it was the dream of historians that these valuable records should be transcribed and translated. That vision is at last on the way to being realized.

When Texas won its independence, and an Anglo-American seat of government was set up within the new republic, the Mexican capital at San Antonio was abandoned. During the century that Mexico ruled over Texas, San Antonio, now county seat of the county of Bexar, was the official seat of government of the Department of Bexar and from San Antonio all of Texas was governed. The capital of Texas as a republic was never located in San Antonio, and consequently the official archives of Bexar did not become a part of the archives of the Republic, but fell into the possession of Bexar county.

Far-sighted historians realized the importance of having these records translated, but lack of funds and lack of interest on the part of competent persons blocked the project. Legislative appropriation was eventually made for the project, and a translator appointed. Progress was made. Funds finally dissipated.

In 1898, an agreement was made between the officials of the county and the University of Texas, whereby these rare documents, in their entirety, were to be deposited in the University Library. The materials were to be arranged, no semblance of chronological or other order having existed previously, and translations were to be made. Copies of the records, as translated, were to be furnished to the commissioner's court of Bexar county.

After removal of the priceless archives to the University library, there was still lack of financial support. Mrs. Mattie Austin Hatcher, University architect, among a multitude of other duties, had charge of the Bexar collection. Handicapped by the lack of even a filing clerk, she worked alone. Each day she managed to retrieve a few minutes of her time to spend on the Bexar Archives. Without assistance, she has assorted the hundreds of thousands of documents, has catalogued them chronologically and according to subject matter. That calendar, or index, is now complete, and the archives are in order for systematic translation.

It was in the spring of 1934, just as Mrs. Hatcher was in the last stages of making the calendar, that fortune came the way of University historians. Federal funds were allotted to the University for student relief work, and a corps of University students were set to work checking and re-checking each document and making copies of each index card. The University Board of Regents then appointed an official translator for the Bexar Archives, Juan Haggard-Villasana, a graduate of the University and a Spanish scholar.

In former years, translations have been made of certain documents in the Bexar Archives, but they were of little importance, but the first translation of the whole collection is now under way. The period from 1803 to 1821 was recognized as the most significant era in the history of early Texas, and the documents covering this era are the ones first to be translated. It was in 1803 that the sale of Louisiana made Texas a frontier province and a bone of contention between the United States and Spain. It was in 1821 that Mexican independence was established, opening the way for American immigration to Texas.

When the Bexar Archives came into the possession of the University in 1898, Lester G. Bugbee, then instructor in history at the University and later adjunct professor, prepared a brief description of this collection which was published in the San Antonio Express, September 23, 1898. It was later reprinted in pamphlet form, copy of which is in the rare book section of the University's Texas Collection. His article pointed out the international significance of Texas' strategic position.

"The Spanish occupation of Texas is inseparably connected with the French occupation of Louisiana," Mr. Bugbee wrote. "The founding of the missions around Nacogdoches and San Antonio is but a chapter in the history of the conflict between France and Spain for the possession of the country west of the Red River. Spain's first attempt at occupation, which was occasioned by the landing of the French in the Gulf of Mexico, failed, and in a few years Texas was again an uncivilized wilderness. Then Louisiana fell under the control of a commercial company that was more interested in opening a contraband trade with Mexico than in defending its sovereign's title to the vast wilderness to the west; under the auspices of this company, another Frenchman, who we know in Texas as history as Saint-Denis, aroused Spanish jealousy by penetrating the forbidden country. But he told such tales of the willingness of the French to yield the disputed territory, and of their desire to open trade with Mexico, that the Spanish authorities resolved to seize the opportunity to take possession; and thus it was that, under the guidance of Saint-Denis and with the tacit consent of his superiors in Louisiana, the missions and forts around Nacogdoches and San Antonio came into existence during the latter half of the century following 1716. This was the beginning of the permanent occupation of Texas.

"The French soon became hostile again, and from this time to 1763 the theme of greatest interest in Texas history is the attempt of the French to give up the Spanish and, on the other hand, the preserving endeavors of the Spanish to hold the country by civilizing and Christianizing the native tribes. Such was the political and humanitarian use made of the missions.

"A frontier settlement which joined an unfriendly neighbor needed a government of its own, so that in 1727 Texas was constituted a separate province. San Antonio was made its capital, and but for one or two brief intervals remained so until Texas became a Republic. All the official business of the few settlements was managed by the governor of the province, who was also military commandant, and thus began the accumulation of papers which we now call the Archives of Bexar.

"When Mexico gained its independence the province of Texas became Department of Bexar, which still included nearly all the territory of the present State, and was at that time one of the administrative units of the State of Coahuila and Texas. The size of this department was not diminished until a very few years before our revolution, the district of Nacogdoches being set off in 1821 and that of Brazos in 1834. So we can say with a near approach to the truth that all the business of government relative to Texas between the dates 1727 and 1845 was carried on from San Antonio and is recorded in these papers.

"It would be an endless task, even if one possessed the information, to enumerate the events and subject mentioned in these papers. Here reposes the history of Texas to 1825—the complete story of the rise, rule and fall of the Spanish power between the Sabine and the Rio Grande; the voluminous details of the ceaseless war against hostile tribes, with insurmountable tales of thrilling incident and tragic horror; the Spanish account of the long struggle with the French; the record of the unselfish toiling of patient missionaries; the Spanish version of the quarrel between the United States and Spain; the wild story of the Mexican revolution, so intimately connected with Mexico and Long; reports from the neutral ground of the gathering of turbulent crowds around Nacogdoches, and finally, the coming of the Anglo-American, the building up of the settlements, and the Revolution."

Indian Baby Girl Now Living With C. E. Lancaster

Everything is as it is in the C. E. Lancaster household. Callers arrive; the telephone buzzes; gifts are received; interesting new dishes are prepared in the kitchen.

And no wonder. Rev. Lancaster, pastor of the First Baptist Church, and Mrs. Lancaster are making a new home for little Margery Jayne Wilson, a charming 29-month-old Indian baby. Margery is the child of a highly cultured parents, but the mother died at her birth and the father, George Wilson, who conducted the singing at a recent revival meeting here, is unable because of his travels to give her the care he wishes her to have. Local persons heard him sing over station WOAI a few nights ago. There are three other children in the family.

Many gifts have been presented to the child. Recently a shower was given in her honor by Mrs. J. A. Arwood and Mrs. C. O. Huber in the home of Mrs. Robert Seeds.

Margery well-deserves all the attention she is receiving. A few minutes with her will convince the caller that she has an intelligence quotient above the average. She speaks words and short sentences distinctly and learns new words every day. She handles her silver carefully at meal time, helps to dress herself, and cries but little. "Reading in bed" is one of her favorite diversions. She has already made a pal of the family's dog, "Pepper," and pictures of small dogs are referred to by her as "little Pepper." She is in excellent health.

The youngster was born April 9, 1933, in the Indian hospital at Albuquerque, N. M. Her father is a Sioux Indian and her mother was a Navajo princess. The parents received $900 a month and expenses since before they were converted to the Christian faith seven years ago, after which they were employed by the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board. The father is a graduate of the University of Kansas. The mother majored in kindergarten work and was giving her time to the education of her own people when she died. She had a rich contralto voice and was training for a presentation of "The Messiah" at the Easter season when she died.

The baby already is showing musical ability. When a caller leaves the Lancaster home, Margery waves "bye-bye" and throws a kiss quite as gracefully as any young actress closes a successful program. The baby formerly was cared for by the superintendent of nurses at the Baptist hospital at Clovis, N. M.—Pampa News.

Rev. Lancaster was formerly pastor of the Baptist Church here.

Liberal Exchange For Cotton Seed Offered By Mill

As a means of helping the owner of livestock solve part of his problem of feeding during the winter months when pastureage is scarce, the Chillicothe Cotton Oil Company, has announced a very liberal exchange deal on cottonseed meal and hulls for straight cottonseed.

This company proposes to the livestockmen that they can trade for 3250 pounds of cottonseed hulls and 10 sacks of cottonseed meal for a ton of straight cottonseed, or they can secure 26 sacks of cottonseed meal for a ton of seed.

The offer is subject to change without notice, and it is not often such an exchange basis can be had.

She also used it to cover the unsightly top of a general utility table.
