(Q) Can someone write in a person on either the Democratic or Republican ballot in the May 5th Primary? Example: Can a person write-in someone for the Sheriff seat on the Republican ballot and if he wins can he run against the Democratic nominee in the General Election in November?

(A) There can be no write-in candidates in the May 5th Primary, said Mitchell County Clerk Joan Beach. She said a person must declare himself a write-in candidate with the county judge to be a valid write-in candidate in the November General Election.

The deadline for the declaration of candidacy is September 12 at 5 p.m.

Mrs. Beach said that the only write-in spot on the ballot will be for the Precinct Chairman position.

LISD board nixes consolidation

By LUIS RIOS

The Loraine Independent School District Board of Trustees unanimously voted not to investigate further into the feasibility and possibility of consolidating with the Colorado Independent School District during a special meeting of the board Thursday night.

The 7-0 vote came after LISD superintendent Glenn Sanders read a letter to the board from the president of a group calling itself Concerned Citizens Committee for the LISD.

In the letter to the LISD Board, the committee requested some action concerning the possible consolidation proposal.

It is very possible that the Concerned Citizens Committee will proceed with a petition to abolish the LISD, said Sanders.

The abolition of a school district is initiated by a petition requesting an election on the question, according to the Texas Education Code. The petition must be presented to the County Judge of each county in which part of the independent school district is situated.

The judge will then issue an order for an election to be held on the same day in each county.

However, it was the consensus of the Board that the committee will be unable to obtain the 10 percent of the registered voters in Loraine. There are approximately 800 registered voters in Loraine and the petition would need only 80 signatures for an election to be held.

The consolidation issue was initially proposed by Dr. Smith during a meeting of the Board October 10, 1983. In the committees' position paper, Dr. Smith asked that the board investigate the feasibility and possibility of seeking consolidation with the CISD.

However, the proposal was more of an ultimatum, according to some members.

The last paragraph of the position paper read, "We further request that you give us an answer within a reasonable length of time. Our next step, in case of unfavorable decision, will be to obtain a petition containing at least 10 percent of the registered voters and seek to initiate a referendum vote on the question."

Dr. Smith said Thursday night that he would be unable to make any comment until meeting his committee and looking further into the matter.

A comprehensive study conducted by Dr. Raymond Bynum, Commissioner of Education of the Texas Education Agency was conducted on the LISD on request by the LISD and consent of Dr. Smith and his committee. The Texas Education Agency also looked into the possibility of consolidation of the LISD and the CISD during their financial study.

The agency submitted a copy of the completed study to the LISD Board April 3, 1984.

The study outlined the financial status of both school districts. According to the study, the CISD taxes would increase if a consolidation measure were approved.

The study also stated that a consolidation measure would be strictly a local matter.

Absentee voting hits record turnout

Mitchell County voters may turn out in full force for the May 5 primary elections if the pattern continues as witnessed in the absentee voting where the turnout may set a county record.

The interest in the 1984 election was generated by the considerably large number of candidates vying for the various offices. The most contested and talked about races are the Precinct 1 and Precinct 3 County Commissioners' races where eight candidates are vying for two seats. Another race which has merited some discussion has been the three-candidate Sheriff's race.

Mitchell County Tax Assessor-Collector C. C. "Mike" Burt said the number of registered voters is up from the November 1982 election. The county has 4,594 registered voters, Burt said.

The precinct breakdown in the number of registered voters is: Precinct 1, 1,615; Precinct 2, 511; Precinct 3, 1,406; Precinct 4, 818 and voting Precinct 7, 244.

The number of absentee votes cast by late Friday were 165, said Mitchell County Clerk Joan Beach.

Burt said he presumed that the turnout for the May 5 election would be considerably up from any other year.

"I would believe that there will be a runoff this year," Burt said. "The 50 plus percentage votes are pretty hard to come by. And with three or four candidates running, it is pretty hard for someone to get a majority."

"It is indicative to me that this is going to be one of the largest turnouts we've had."

The turnout in the past has been approximately 42 percent, Burt said. But he said he felt there would be a much larger turnout this year.

"During an off year the turnout has been about 1,800 voters," he said. "I think we will have up to 2,800 voters turn out."

M.C. Republican ballots ready at courthouse

County Treasurer candidate Coleen Palmer and County Commissioner Precinct 1 candidate Jackie Joiner are the only two persons listed on the Republican Party Primary election ballot for Mitchell County.

The Republican Primary will be the second for Mitchell County, which considers itself solely a Democratic Party county.

Republican Party County chairman Bob Reily is also listed on the ballot. He has served as the chairman for the party for several years.

The Republican Party ballot also contains eight other candidates vying for various state offices.

The candidates winning in the May 5 primary will face the Democratic challengers who win the Democratic primary. The General election is slated for November.

RECORD endorses Kent Hance

For the first time in recent history, Texans have the opportunity to elect a man to the United States Senate that is indeed a real Texan; a man who "knows the philosophy of this state" and can represent that philosophy.

On Saturday, May 5th, we have an opportunity to vote for a West Texan for the U.S. Senate. Congressman Kent Hance of Lubbock is the man we need as our next U.S. Senator.

Rep. Hance has done a tremendous job in Washington. He is for a strong defense, a strong agricultural economy, tax cuts, economic growth, a balanced budget, fair social legislation, a comprehensive energy policy, and a strong foreign policy. We believe his views reflect the philosophy that best serves our state and our nation.

When Rep. Hance was in Colorado City in December it was easy to see why his political career has advanced so rapidly. He has that unusual ability to use good humor and a warm personality to win people over. Yet his political experience allows him to be tough, but fair; and still be effective.

Kent Hance's effectiveness was demonstrated in Congress' celebrated 1981 tax battle when he co-authored the largest tax-cut bill in the nation's history and withstood the intense political pressure from his party leaders. After all was said and done, he won, and still has their respect. Kent Hance has fought for what he believes on the basis of issues and not personalities.

We believe that is what distinguishes Kent Hance from the rest of the candidates in this race. He has the innate ability to disagree with someone, without being disagreeable...and win.

We believe that Kent Hance will continue to display the qualities that this state and nation so desperately need in the U.S. Senate.

have already submitted applications seeking the position.

Mason said no timetable has been setup as to when a new City Manager will have to be selected. Gary Smith, planning and management consultant from Abilene, is currently serving as the interim City Manager.

Smith told the Council that he would serve in the city manager capacity for approximately two months or until a city manager is selected.

The open Chief of Police position has drawn considerable interest, said Hoback, who is also serving on the Chief screening committee.

About 14 persons had submitted applications to City Hall for the job, he said.

The screening committee, consisting of Hoback, Mayor Elmer Martin, Munoz and alternate Dee Hearn, have interviewed five applicants for the vacancy.

"So far we have had some real good applicants," Hoback said. "As far as a final decision, not one has been made yet."

However, Hoback said the committee was hoping to have a final decision by the next 30 days.

The Council and screening committee are waiting for more applicants since the advertisements for the position are just beginning to run, he said.

First rabid skunk killed in county

Colorado City veterinarian Dr. Nancy Bozeman said the first report of rabid skunk for the Mitchell County was reported to her office after an incident Tuesday.

Dr. Bozeman said she received the results on the skunk Friday morning. The tests performed on the skunk was positive, she said.

The incident was when a resident's dog killed the skunk on South Austin Street sometime Tuesday, she added.

Despite the report on the rabid skunk, Dr. Bozeman said she had not noticed many skunks in the city this year. She said that there were quite a few reports on skunks last year.

The Concerned Citizens Committee for LISD met with the board October 10, 1983, stating their position.

"We are part of a group of citizens who have become increasingly concerned with the heavy tax burden, especially the escalating school taxes in the Loraine School District. The high tax rate has been brought by a set of unfortunate circumstances over which nobody had much control. We also want the children of our district to have the best possible education," read a portion of the proposal.

The Loraine ISD tax base is approximately $24 million compared to the CISD tax base of $277 million.

"It is a question of keeping the school and the community," said LISD President Ronald Bruce.

Sanders told the Board that CISD Superintendent Charlie Uselton said he thought it somewhat premature to have an official meeting of the CISD Board of Trustees.

Sanders also said that with the introduction of House Bill 246, the same type of curriculum would be available in virtually every school district.

The entire board agreed the quality of education at Loraine was better than the one offered in Colorado City compared to last year's Texas Assessment of Basic Skills (TABS) scores.

In other LISD business, Sanders told the Board that Ronnie James, a former Loraine coach, had been hired as the assistant coach.

Frank Garcia was also appointed to fulfill the unexpired term left vacant by James Clifton.

Research: a big source of jobs

Suppose more jobs could be created in America without increasing the cost of living. Sounds like a pipe dream?

Well, it's really not that far-fetched. Just think of the jobs created by the invention of the steam engine, the cotton gin or the motion picture camera. More recently one small innovation, the integrated circuit, gave rise to whole new industries.

Those kinds of results make it well worth our effort to encourage the kinds of research and development that lead to new inventions and technological advances. On this foundation, America can build a more prosperous future.

Unfortunately, though, the U.S. has been spending less and less of its total economic output on R&D. We have not nearly kept pace with the civilian R&D efforts of nations like Japan and West Germany.

Even more disturbing is the shift of funding away from basic research, which produces inventions, to applied research, which develops products from those inventions. According to the latest figures, U.S. industry spends only 3.3 percent of each research dollar on basic R&D, down from seven percent in the mid-1960s.

Congress attempted in 1981 to stimulate research and development by offering a tax credit for such work, but it hasn't helped much. There are too many strings attached. For example, President Paul Grey of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology last year reported that the tax credit had resulted in only one research agreement being negotiated at his school.

Recently, several of my legislative proposals aimed at encouraging basic R&D were included in legislation approved by the Senate Finance Committee, where I serve as a senior member.

They would make permanent and more attractive the R&D tax credits for firms that perform basic research.

Companies would also be able to claim tax credits for basic research grants to universities and private, non-profit scientific research organizations.

Deductions would be increased for firms and donate scientific equipment, such as computers and software, to universities, community colleges and post-secondary vocational programs.

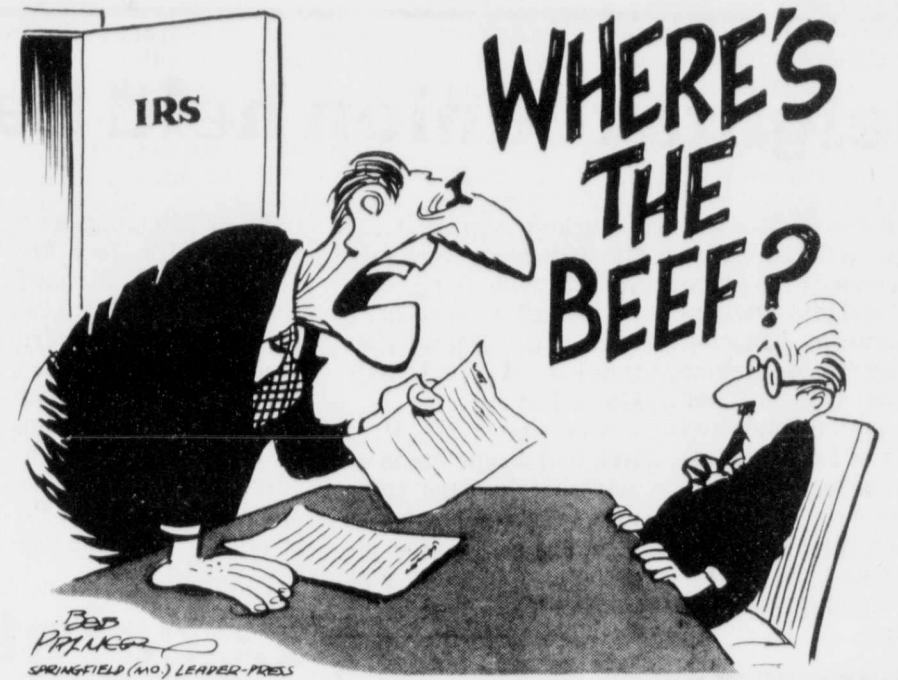

Basic research grants would be excluded, for tax purposes, from the gross income of graduate students receiving them.

I'm pleased that these proposals have been approved by the Committee. They should combine effectively with two other bills I have introduced in the Senate. One would establish a presidential task force to make recommendations to Congress on adopting methods other countries use to encourage R&D. The other would help ease the critical shortage of math and science teachers in our public schools.

We should be doing all we can to promote technological innovation in the U.S. It may well be the most efficient way we can create jobs without driving up living costs.

We must make sure that government policies are encouraging, not hindering, our nation's commitment to research and development.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Tuesday, May 1, marks our celebration of Loyalty Day, LOYALTY DAY...a day that has been set aside since 1958...when it was first authorized by Congress...as a day to demonstrate our Loyalty to Flag and Country. As instructed by Congress, the President proclaims May first as Loyalty Day.

devotion to the United States and our way of life, the Veterans of Foreign Wars worked diligently and finally won Congressional approval for the establishment of May 1st as Loyalty Day.

On occasion people have asked, "Why do we have a Loyalty Day?"

The reason is simple...we had need for such a day...and we still have that need.

How did Loyalty Day come about? Early in the twentieth century, Communist nations adopted May 1st as their special day of celebration and all over the world they staged parades, rallies and demonstrations.

America was the scene of many such activities in past years. In order to combat these Communist activities, and to provide Americans a special day to display their loyalty and

Let us...through our Loyalty Day celebrations...show the rest of the world that Americans are still proud of their freedom, their heritage and their country.

Alcohol abuse in older citizens being ignored

Alcohol abuse among older men and women is a more serious problem than people generally realize. Until recently, older problem drinkers tended to be ignored by both health professionals and the general public. The neglect occurred for several reasons: our elderly population was small and few were identified as alcoholics; chronic problem drinkers (those who abused alcohol off and on for most of their lives) often died before old age; and, because they are often retired or have fewer social contacts, older people have often been able to hide drinking problems.

Some families may unknowingly encourage drinking in older family members if they have the attitude that drinking should be tolerated because older people have only a limited time left and therefore should be allowed to enjoy themselves. However, as more people learn that alcohol problems can be very successfully treated at any age, more are willing to seek help to stop drinking.

Many people are unaware of the effects of alcohol. It slows down brain activity; impairs mental alertness, judgment, physical coordination, and reaction time...thereby increasing the risk of falls and accidents. Over a period of time, heavy drinking can cause permanent damage to the brain and central nervous system, as well as to the liver, heart, kidneys, and stomach.

Alcohol can affect the body in unusual ways, too, making certain medical problems difficult to diagnose. For example, the effects of alcohol on the cardiovascular system (the heart and blood vessels) can mask pain, which may otherwise serve as a warning sign of heart attack. Alcoholism can also produce symptoms similar to those of dementia...forgetfulness, reduced attention, confusion. If incorrectly identified, such symptoms may lead to unnecessary institutionalization.

Alcohol, itself, a drug, mixes unfavorably with many other drugs, including those sold by prescription or over-the-counter. In addition, use of prescription drugs may intensify the older person's reaction to alcohol, leading to more rapid intoxication. Alcohol can dangerously slow down performance skills (driving, walking, etc.), impair judgment, and reduce alertness when taken with certain drugs. The use of alcohol can cause other drugs to be metabolized more rapidly, producing exaggerated responses. The combination of alcohol and diuretics can reduce blood pressure in some individuals, producing dizziness.

Anyone who drinks...even moderately...should check with a doctor or a pharmacist about possible drug interactions.

In old age, problem drinkers seem to be of two types, namely, chronic abusers who have used alcohol heavily all their life, or, those who begin to drink excessively in late life due to changed situational factors...retirement, lowered income, declining health, or death of friends and loved ones.

Older problem drinkers and alcoholics have an unusually good chance for recovery because they tend to stay with treatment programs for the duration. Getting help can begin with a family doctor or member of the clergy; through a local health department or social services agency; or with Alcoholics Anonymous.

Most importantly...don't ignore heavy drinking by older persons. They may need help with this problem just as much as for any other disease.

Roy N. Byrd, Pastor First Presbyterian Church BEFORE YOU PRAY

....Ask these questions:

- 1) Does my prayer make sense?
- 2) Am I asking God to do what I must do?
- 3) Do I believe I'm asking for what God wants?
- 4) Do I believe God has power to answer my prayer?
- 5) Have I turned my need to God, relinquishing myself?

"We can approach God with confidence for his reason: if we make requests which accord with his will he listens to us; and if we know that our requests are heard, we know also that the things we ask for are ours."

Johnnie McGuire

Cook's Corner

McGuire starts cooking after marriage

Trying to fry chicken during your first year of marriage, for the first time, can be a real experience.

But the experience came for Johnnie McGuire's husband when he ate her fried chicken.

"I didn't know how to cook when I got married. We lived with his parents for a couple of months after we married. I learned a little bit from my mother-in-law."

Mrs. McGuire continues,

"When we did move out, I thought I would fry chicken. I fried the chicken and thought it was done because it was burnt on the outside. We would eat it and found out it was raw on the inside. Bob ate a lot of burnt and raw chicken that year."

Also during the first year of marriage, Mrs. McGuire just cooked by trial and error.

She recalls, "Bob ate a lot of trails and errors, but he did eat everything I fixed."

Mrs. McGuire uses a recipe for nearly everything she prepares. She also likes to make everything from scratch.

Her favorite thing to cook is what her family calls stacked tacos. She gets corn tortillas and fries them pretty crisp, puts ground meat, onions, cheese and pepper and then stacks a tortilla on top of that and starts all over again. Last but not least, she tops it off with cheese, puts it in the oven and lets the cheese melt.

Now her favorite thing her family likes for her to make are muffins—any kind of muffins, it doesn't matter what kind.

She has been married 43 years to Bob McGuire. They have two children, Judy and Bill.

Now, after 43 years of marriage, when Johnnie McGuire fixes fried chicken, she can look at her husband and say, "I've come a long way Bob, from burnt and raw chicken."

Today she is sharing three of her recipes with RECORD readers.

Library Notes

By Nancy Mayo

Joseph Wambaugh recently published another non-fiction book, "Lines and Shadows" is a true story of lawmen and bandits. Wambaugh re-creates the myth of the Western hero.

"Lines and Shadows" focuses on the Border Crime Task Force, an 18-month-long experiment conducted by the San Diego Police Force, whereby 10 policemen foot-patrolled the Mexican-U.S. border between Tijuana and San Diego.

Their objective was to stop the gangs who mug, rob, rape and murder Mexican illegal aliens. Wambaugh's portrayal of the plight of illegal aliens—and the contrast between starving, disease-ridden Tijuana and the upper-crust city of San Diego—is filled with both truth and compassion. This true story reads like a detailed, finely crafted novel.

Perhaps you prefer something on the lighter side—then try Erma Bombeck's new book, "Motherhood, the Second Oldest Profession." In the spiritual section there is "Approaching Hoofbeats: Horsemen of the Apocalypse" by Billy Graham. For a good novel, why not try "The Danger" by Dick Francis.

These best seller books as well as others can be found at the Mitchell County Public Library.

Jones, Palmer united in Dallas ceremony

Ellen Pyne Jones of Dallas became the bride of Charles Thomas Palmer, also of Dallas, Saturday, April 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Church of Incarnation in Dallas.

Palmer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Joe Palmer of Waco. He is also the grandson of Mrs. E. L. Tiller of Colorado City.

The Rev. Paul W. Pichart, Rector of the Church of Incarnation, officiated the ceremony.

The bride wore an ivory gown of tissue taffeta designed by Phyllis Bianchi for Nieman-Marcus. The gown featured a fitted bodice with a drop waist and Queen Ann neckline fashioned in Alencon lace and encrusted with seed pearls and crystal sequins. The tapered sleeves were slightly gathered at the shoulder and came to an elegant floral tip over the hand. The full gathered skirt was trimmed with a wide Alencon lace scallop which flowed into a graceful chapel length train. Delicate Alencon lace appliques accented the tissue taffeta skirt.

To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a lovely tiara of beaded pearls with a dramatic chapel length veil and blusher fashioned of sheer illusion and trimmed with seed pearls.

Maid of Honor was Miss Gay Glazbrook.

Bridesmaids were Miss Leslie McClaim, Miss Linda Chambless and Miss Amie Seelman all of Dallas. The Jr. bridesmaid was Miss Katherine Whitesell of Dallas.

The attendants were gowned alike in slipper length dresses of grape organza. The sweetheart neckline was complemented by a triple ruffle sleeve worn off the shoulder. A wife taffeta sash in Tampico pink accented the natural waist.

The groom's attendants were best man, his father, Thomas Joe Palmer; groomsmen, Chris Freyer, James Kappus and Michale Jones (brother of the bride), all of Dallas.

The ushers included Richard L. Jones, Jr., Matthew Jones (brothers of the bride), Paul Self, Robert DeLeem, Bill Poague and John Nelson, all of Dallas and John Nienhiser of Chapin, Illinois.

The groom is an electronics technician for the Mobil Oil Company in Dallas.

The couple will honeymoon in Santa Fe, NM.

The house party included Miss Elizabeth McBee, Mrs. Paul Self, Mrs. Robert DeLee, of Dallas and Mrs. John Nienhiser (sister of the groom) of Chapin, Illinois.

My name is Don Henderson, and I live Northwest of Westbrook.

The people of this county will on May 5th be faced with an important Sheriff's election.

For the voters to make an informed decision, there are some things about the present Sheriff's Office that you folks should think about:

1. There are no Deputies living in either Loraine or Westbrook. I think we should have a Deputy living in each of these communities, so the people there will have a local contact with the Sheriff's Office.

2. Wendell Bryant is quick to point out that one of his accomplishments of his term of office is the fact that he was able to get the County Jail certified by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

The voters should think about the fact that the Jail Standards Commission has attempted for years to get the County Commissioners and the Sheriff to comply with state standards, and only after a death occurred in the jail, last year, was the certification of the jail completed.

3. There is evidence of at least two occasions where a Sheriff's Deputy failed to provide emergency back-up for Colorado City Police Officers in potentially dangerous situations.

4. There is evidence of at least two occasions where there were escapes from the Mitchell County Jail and the City Police Department was not notified by the Sheriff's Office until many hours had passed. This created an unnecessary danger to the City Policemen because they could have made an attempt to stop one of these men not knowing to be prepared for an escaped prisoner.

5. I have even seen a sworn statement from an ex-deputy Sheriff which says that Sheriff Bryant refused to allow that deputy to cooperate with a City Police drug investigation.

Think about it. Is this the kind of Sheriff you want for Mitchell County?

When Kent Hance is in Washington, he thinks and votes like a Texan.

WHAT HE'S DONE

In three terms, Kent Hance has accomplished more than some politicians do in a career.

He's done it by fighting for what he believes in and calling issues the way he sees them.

Here are just some of his accomplishments:

For the Taxpayer: Hance legislation cut income taxes you pay by 25% over three years. If your family earns an average of $25,000 a year, the tax cut will save you more than $1,500 by the end of 1984. That doesn't include other savings Hance won, such as a reduction in the so-called marriage penalty.

For the Economy: Hance won tax cuts to help stimulate economic expansion; voted against more than $400 billion in wasteful spending; fought for a balanced budget amendment.

For Jobs: Hance delivered $15.5 million in urgent relief for areas of Texas suffering from high unemployment.

For the Consumer: Hance is working to keep telephone service reliable and affordable after the phone company breakup. And Hance led the fight against a withholding tax on interest from savings accounts and on dividends.

For the Farmer: Hance has always been a fighter for the family farm...both as a member of the House Agriculture Committee and the Ways and Means Committee. He successfully pushed through changes in the tax code to reduce crippling estate (inheritance) taxes.

For Women: Hance supports full equality under the law, equal pay and pension equity legislation. Won battles to make day care more affordable for working couples. Hance also leads the fight in Congress to allow homemakers to save as much as their spouse for retirement through IRA or Keogh accounts.

For Equal Opportunity and Rights: Hance fought the Reagan Administration's efforts to weaken the Voting Rights Act. Hance also worked to keep the Civil Rights Commission independent and free of political pressure.

For Education: Hance was named "Head Start Hero" in Texas for his work to make the State's program one of the most effective in the nation. Hance is a strong supporter of vocational education and quality education for all.

The May meeting dates will be May 7, Westbrook 4-H after school; May 14, Loraine 4-H at 7:30 p.m. and May 21, Lone Wolf 4-H at 7 p.m.

xxx
Please elect officers for next year at your May meetings. We're planning to have officer training this summer, and you will need a list of your new officers as soon as possible.

xxx
County Camp: Interested in attending summer camp at the Texas 4-H Center in Brownwood? We hope so because we'd like to reserve several spaces for Mitchell County 4-H'ers to all attend the same session. This is a 4-day camp with the total cost being $54 which includes all meals, lodging, refreshments and a limited accident coverage. Activities include canoeing, swimming, shooting sports, archery and many others. Details will be sent after plans have been finalized.

xxx
Special Interest Camp, June 18-23, Texas 4-H Center: Any 4-H member, 14 years of age or older with an interest in Canoeing and sailing, food and nutrition, computers, natural resources, or shooting sports, may be interested in this week-long special interest camp. 4-H'ers select one area to participate in for the entire week. In addition to this specialized training, the week will be filled with parties, dances, movies, and other "camp" activities for everyone. The fee is $96.50 and deadline for application is June 10. Contact the extension office for details and registration forms.

xxx
District 4-H Camp: Makes plans now to attend this camp May 29-31 if you are 13 years old or older. Approximate cost $32-33 per person.

Mitchell County is one of the counties responsible for planning activities, so we need good representation from here.

xxx
Time to start those clothing projects. In order to help you out on your six meetings, plans are being made to have a 4-H Fashion Fair, Saturday, May 12 in the C. C. Thompson Room.

Grooming tips and techniques for young girls will be on the program. You will also have the opportunity to visit a local fabric department and have hands-on experience with the pattern catalog, selecting fabric, notions, etc. Approximate time is 10-2, with a sack lunch at noon.

xxx
Parents and friends are welcome to attend. However, an approximate count is necessary. Please let Debbie know no later than Monday, May 7, if you plan to attend.

This will be fun as well as good experience in preparing for your clothing projects. Good activity for your record book, too! Construction workshops will be scheduled at a later date. The Fashion Show has been tentatively scheduled for the latter part of May.

xxx
Has your family applied to the Texas 4-H Standard, Texas family magazine? Contact the Extension office for details.

xxx
Have you started your 4-H Record Book yet? Remember to receive a county medal you must turn in a completed 4-H Record Book or a project record form.

xxx

TEXAS GARDENER TIPS

Use Native Annuals To Beautify Your Yard

During the spring and summer, Texas fields are overflowing with wildflowers, but did you know that many of these annuals can be grown in home gardens?

The right time to plant seed of many wildflowers is in the fall and winter. You should take time now, however, while the flowers are blooming in the wild, to take notes and order the flowers you would like to try from wildflower seed catalogs (please don't dig up flowers from the wild—in many cases, it is both destructive and against the law). The following are native annuals that grow in the wild and can be cultivated in your garden.

Indian paintbrush is a beautiful annual often found accompanying bluebonnets along Texas roadsides. The plants grow 12 to 15 inches tall and flowers appear in April and May. Transplanting from the wild is very difficult, but paintbrushes grow well from seed, which should be sown in the fall or early winter. The seed are very small and should not be covered.

Coreopsis is a common Texas native whose bushy, attractive plant grows to about 2 feet. Coreopsis produces seed abundantly, and is best propagated by sowing seed in January or earlier.

One of the showiest of natives all over Texas is the Indian firewheel, or Indian blanket. It grows in rosette form during the winter and sends up flowering stems in the spring. Plants will reach 12 to 20 inches and the inner part of the flower petals are red and the outer edges yellow. Propagation is by seed, which should be sown in the fall.

Our most famous annual is the Texas bluebonnet, or lupine. Plants are rosettes only inches high throughout the winter, but flowers appear in an intense blue in March and April. Propagation is by seed, which is very hard and should be scarified, or scratched, before sowing in the fall. If the hard coat is not scarified, it may take several years for bluebonnets to come up.

Lavender verbena is widespread all over Texas and sometimes covers whole fields. One plant may sometimes cover an area 2 to 3 feet in diameter. Flowers appear very early and bloom until summer, when the plants produce seed and die. Propagation is from transplants or seed, which is available commercially.

"Damping off" of vegetables common in most gardens

By DEANNA MYERS

Damping off of garden vegetables is common in most Texas gardens. Although it is caused by several fungi, pythium is one of the more prevalent. A plant is susceptible to damage from this disease complex from the minute the seed is placed in the soil until it begins to produce true leaves. The older a seedling is, the less likely it is to be damaged by the fungi complex.

The damping off symptom varies with the age and development stage of the young seedling. Damage may first occur as the fungi attack germinating seed.

The infected seed becomes soft and mushy and fail to germinate.

Young seedlings can be attacked before they come through the soil. Losses occurring during this period are known as preemergence damping off; losses occurring after the seedling emerges are called postemergence damping off. Mostly the same group of fungi are involved in all stages of damping off.

Stems of young plants attacked by damping off become water-soaked and slightly darker in color near the ground. As the lesions or spots enlarge, cells of the plant stems collapse, and the seedling dies rapidly. When the cells collapse, the plant breaks from the weight of the top.

As seedlings mature they are less susceptible to damping off. The plant may not be killed but it is weakened, and high winds may later break the plant.

The severity of the disease is directly related to soil moisture. The disease is most severe when the soil is near saturation. Moisture affects the movement of the disease. It also reduces the plants ability to repel the fungi because water-logged soil has less oxygen and lower temperatures.

Nematodes injure the young plant's root system and slow seedling growth. This increases the period of susceptibility to damping off. The wound from the feeding also serves as an infection site for the damping-off fungi.

Suggestions for preventing damping off:

-If possible plant the garden in a well-drained area.

-Plant on a raised bed (six-inch minimum).

-Plant when soil temperature is suitable for maximum seed germination and seedling development (refer to seed packet).

-Use captan as a preplant fungicide whenever possible.

-Plant only good quality seed which have been treated with a protective fungicide.

-In severely infected gardens it may be necessary to apply Vapam (R) as a preplant treatment.

Ogallala Aquifer

Evidence mounts high-level nuclear dumps in Texas Panhandle ill-conceived and dangerous

■ The Ogallala Aquifer, the nation's largest fresh water aquifer, lies above the proposed nuclear waste dump. The repository shaft would punch through the Aquifer to the dump site below. The Ogallala region produces 15% of major U.S. crops. 37% of all Texas crops, valued at $1.7 billion annually.

■ The Nuke Dump would require 2,000 underground acres and a 400 to 500 acre surface facility. Some additional land would be needed to maintain the integrity of the site—all productive land.

■ 200-million cubic feet of salt would be excavated. Farmers fear Panhandle winds and rains would spread the salt across miles of fertile soil and contaminate the water table.

■ 619-thousand gallons of water per day would be needed to operate the dump—223 gallons per minute needed during construction. Farmers wonder where the water will come from and where it will go, especially if contaminated.

■ 1.5 million pounds of radioactive wastes to be waltzed across Texas each year.

■ Farmers in the 9 square mile sites in both counties say land value has already plummeted and worry about what will happen to the tax base for area towns and school districts, as well as their own futures.

■ Farmers worry about the effect upon the marketplace. Will buyers turn away? Frito-Lay says it might have to go elsewhere for its corn and Arrowhead Mills' business is based upon consumer trust in the purity of its foods.

■ Farmers worry about their economic futures. Deaf Smith county earns nearly $240 million from its crops and livestock while Swisher county farmers bring in nearly $130 million.

■ Farmers and cities want to know if the price of water would skyrocket if they had to compete with the Nuclear Dumps for the already limited supply. The city of Tulsa and several area farmers are already tapping into the deeper, more costly Santa Rosa Aquifer.

■ High Plains Underground Water Conservation District officials say there is moving water in the salt beds, which shows up in the saline flow along the Canadian and Red River basins. Farmers want to know if the water will scatter the nuclear wastes far beyond Deaf Smith and Swisher counties.

■ Farmers also fear the excavation of so much salt would cause ground movement and subsidence, which could cause the site to be breached by water.

■ Several earthquakes, one reaching almost 4 on the Richter scale, have occurred in the area, causing fears of nuclear contamination.

■ Texans claim the Department of Energy keeps changing its own rules for a safe facility and are concerned that no one really has the answers to their questions.

■ Panhandle residents feel no one can guarantee there would never be a nuclear accident at the site, that there would never be a spill on Texas highways, and that the waste would not affect their health, their crops, and their water during the tens of thousands of years the materials would remain radioactive.

RULES — There are three parts to THE WORD CAGE: (1) clues and (2) quiz, which lead to (3) the final answer, the MYSTERY WORD. The clues and quiz are hidden in the grid — up, down, across, backward or diagonally. First circle the clue words (we've found the first word for you). You may find the same letter in more than one word, so circle each letter clearly. Next, circle the quiz words; the first letter and number of letters are given for each. When you have circled all the clue and quiz words, the remaining uncircled letters will spell out the answer to this week's WORD CAGE.

Senior Update

BY VIVIENNE BODEAU

In our last column we wrote of being overweight and we continue today with some health problems pertaining to eating.

A friend recently had a heart attack following a large steak dinner after which he had settled down to watch television and eat some snacks. It took several hours and a squad of doctors and medical personnel to save his life during which his heart stopped twice.

The friend was sent by his physician to a nutrition counselor who learned that his typical day included ten or more cups of coffee a day, little food until night when he ate a huge rich meal followed by nightly snar s from dinner time until bed time. No exercise. The high intake of saturated fats and cholesterol had helped build fatty deposits in his blood vessels. Finally the coronary arteries above his heart became clogged, depriving his heart muscle of oxygen and causing the heart attack.

The nutrition counselor gave a new diet pattern to the friend: three balanced meals a day including controlled amounts of carbohydrates, low-fat meats, poultry and fish dishes and the substitution of soft margarine and polyunsaturated fats for saturated fats. All of this designed to lower elevated blood-fat levels.

This type of food intake can help anyone to ward off possible heart attacks and strokes. And if we are all going to live longer then we would be happier to live that life without being disabled.

Many disorders including high blood pressure, liver, kidney, digestive tract and metabolic disease, heart disease and diabetes can be helped through nutrition counseling.

Another source of diet help is through the chapters of the American Heart Association who are ready to assist physicians and patients with diet plans and recipes suitable for the general public as well as for the heart patient.

Just because you are older does not mean that it is too late to reverse the bad eating habits of a lifetime. It is never too late to start to do something right. The goal is worthwhile — a longer and better life.

Health and Human Service Secretary Margaret M. Heckler has said, "I am deeply concerned about the well-being of the more than 25 million Americans over age 65. For some, the prospect of growing old is filled with confusion and fear about declining health."

The National Institute on Aging and the National Institutes of Health and Pfizer Pharmaceutical have joined forces to produce and distribute self-help information for the elderly at 40 shopping malls across the country. Heckler says, "Educational programs such as this exhibit are needed to assure that everyone has the opportunity for health and dignity in their later years."

Answer to Puzzle

Your Stars Above

BY EVE EWING

ARIES (3-21/4-19) You need excitement in your life, and should have it. Keep this in mind when planning the future. Try to get into the kind of work that will fulfill this need — travel, politics, the arts.

TAURUS (4-20/5-20) Being self-sufficient is something we all strive for, but don't let it become a fixation. Let a loved one know you need support. Reach out and take the hand offered.

GEMINI (5-21/6-20) Your need for new horizons will never be quenched, so put it to good use. No point in warning you to be careful — you won't be — ever. You consider the bruises well worth it and part of life.

CANCER (6-21/7-22) Stick to your ideals but don't turn against others who can't meet your impossible standards. A little understanding goes a long way toward reconciling your differences with someone dear to you.

LEO (7-23/8-22) Seek expert advice on a business matter. You are too involved to make a wise decision. Your opinion may be right, but you tend to let your emotions run away with you.

VIRGO (8-23/9-22) A long-standing relationship should take a turn for the better soon. Remember, a true partnership involves two people on an equal footing. Listen to one another, and learn.

LIBRA (9-23/10-23) Sometimes it is good to express your feelings even when you know it will displease someone else. If you feel strongly about a matter, don't be afraid to defend your views.

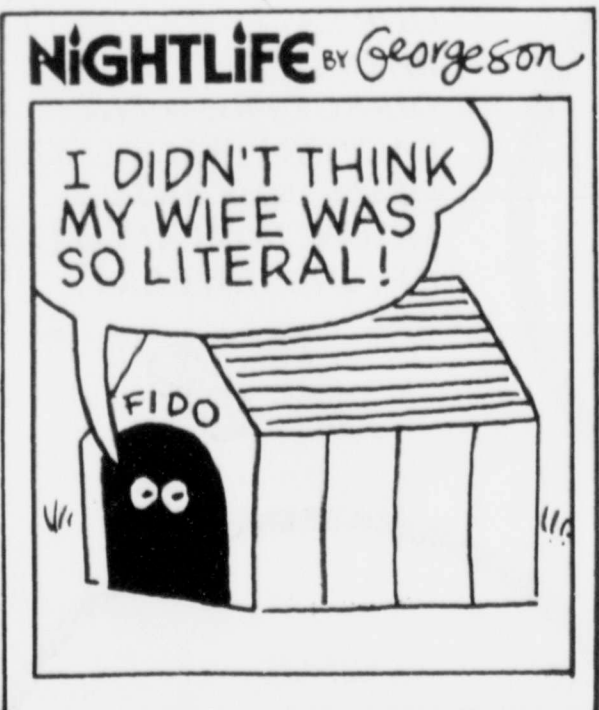

SCORPIO (10-24/11-22) Disaster can be turned to success if you don't become obsessed with jealousy. Stop brooding, forget vengeance, and move on with moderation and restraint.

SAGITTARIUS (11-23/12-21) Today's disappointment will be forgotten in a month. Another chance is just around the corner and you won't pass it up. Look for exciting travel in the not too distant future.

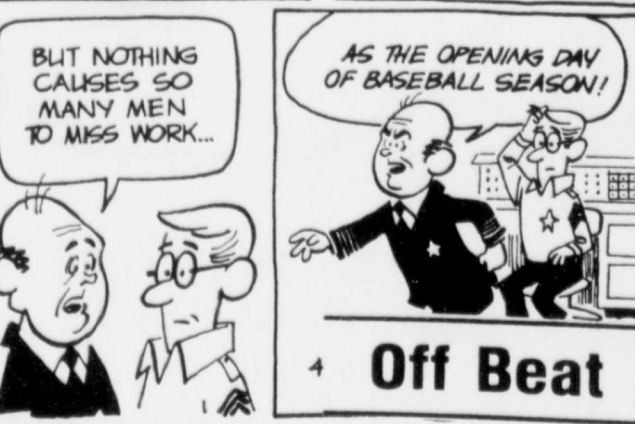

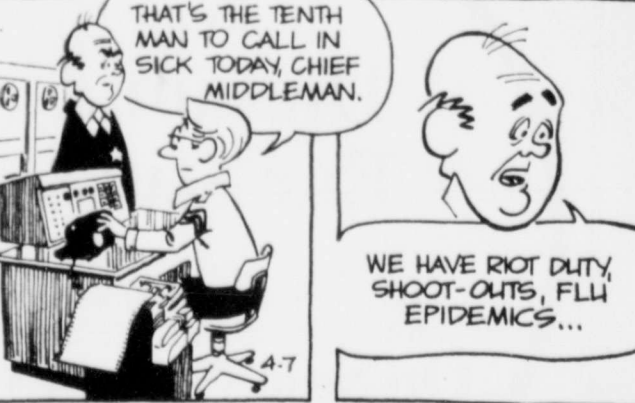

CAPRICORN (12-22/1-19) A past indiscretion haunts you needlessly. Confide in someone you love. You'll be amazed at how unimportant it becomes when you bring it into the light.

AQUARIUS (1-20/2-19) You are a born dreamer who never cries over today's sorrow because you know tomorrow will be better. And this time you'll be right. Something wonderful is coming your way.

PISCES (2-20/3-20) You will come through a current crisis by putting aside superficial values and getting to the heart of the matter. Forget what others think and follow your heart.
