Dilemma—New Deal economists and politicians are scratching bald spots

Written by a group of the best informed newspapermen of Washington and New York. Opinions expressed are those of the writers and should not be interpreted as reflecting the editorial policy of this newspaper.

Curtail—This is a large order, as Secretary of Agriculture Wallace will concede.

The latter's advisers are convinced the world is at another of those periodic agricultural crossroads where nations lose their overwhelming dominance in given crops.

Sentiment among government experts favors a continuation of the crop curtailment program until our annual surplus carry-over gets down to 5,000,000 bales.

Thereafter prices may be more or less stabilized in the neighborhood of 12 to 14 cents a pound with the grower educated against future over-production.

Now this will strike the mill owners who are screaming for abolition of the processing tax so they may have lower prices is something else again.

Excess—The Roosevelt agricultural and economic program has not been very successful so far as cotton is concerned.

Secretary of Commerce Roper points out that Mr. Roosevelt stepped into office to find over 15,000,000 bales of cotton on his hands, which had been bought with federal funds by the Hoover Stabilization Board.

As a result of plowing under, process taxing and drought, this surplus has been cut to less than 10,000,000 bales but it still is way too high.

The world crop for 1934-35 will run around 22,000,000 bales with the United States again furnishing about 10,000,000.

Helpful—American capital is going into Brazilian cotton ginning in rather brisk fashion.

Cotton manufacturers tell Department of Agriculture men further that they can buy Brazilian cotton cheaper than the domestic product. Inquiry among these manufacturers fails to reveal any who are—save for a few hundred bales all told.

The American cotton processor hesitates to buy foreign cotton for fear it may not make up into cloth that will equal the home-grown product.

Nevertheless it is a fact that cotton now flourishing in southern Brazil came from selected American seed.

Harriers—While the utilities interests have been applying pressure to defeat the pending administration bill which would write holding companies off the books within five years the home team hasn't been overlooking its turn at bat.

The other day utility representatives appearing before the Senate Finance Committee in opposition to the proposal kept finding themselves confounded with embarrassing questions.

The answer: At least half a dozen of the more interested New Dealers were in the committee room. Every time a witness was in the midst of getting over a good point one of the administrationites would slip a penciled question to one of the presiding Senators. Most of them were rather embarrassing.

Youth—Republicans are of divided opinion regarding the regional meetings that are intended to develop a party program.

Some of the best speakers in the party are in the West. It is thought that these meetings will develop discord instead of harmony. Different regions favor different methods and different candidates. They don't agree upon issues. These strategists contend that rivalries over candidacies will confuse party councils.

With the Democrats fighting among themselves, why should Republicans start a row in their own family? This is the way one of the "old

Violence Feared In Illinois Mine War

Union Strife Cause Of New Mine Outbreak

Trucks Rush Men To Springfield, Where 2000 Are Reported Gathered

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—Alarmed by influx of hundreds of miners, authorities of the state capital waited tensely Friday fearing renewed violence in the prolonged mine war in the Illinois coal fields. Throughout the morning, trucks rumbled into the city adding scores to the massed miners, estimated by authorities to be more than 2000 and were camped in the city parks, and picketing highways leading to the Woodside mine. Heavy guards watched the city jail, where three men members of the United Mine Workers of America, were held on charges of slaying a member of a rival union, the Progressive Miners of America, in an affray that brought grounds to seven others last Sunday. The strife has torn Illinois mine fields four years as United Mine Workers and Progressive Miners of America struggled for dominance in the state's coal mining.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING FATAL TO 2 PERSONS IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—Mysterious shootings that brought death to a movie style creator and his chauffeur, and possibly fatal wounds to another in the film capital during the night were reported as a murder and a suicide Friday by sheriff's officers.

Deputy O. H. Cloud said Paul Ivar Wharton, designer of clothes for film actresses, was shot by William Howard, his chauffeur. Cloud said Howard later shot and critically wounded Henry E. Bolte, law instructor at the University of California at Los Angeles.

After wounding Bolte, Cloud said, Howard shot and killed himself. The Wharton slaying was the tragic climax to the supper attended by two guests in his Hollywood apartment studio.

The other shootings occurred later in an apartment several blocks away. Cloud said the sheriff's office was convinced the shootings were motivated by financial differences involving the three men, and that a violent quarrel concerning money Wharton and Bolte owed Howard preceded the shootings.

Farm Families Placed Under Rural Aid Plan

Two families to be placed back on the farm under the rural rehabilitation program in this county were located this week. By the middle of next week nine more families will have been added. If leases are approved, seven more families will follow soon afterwards.

Leases for the program are being effected for a period of five years. Families are allotted a small plot with approximately 35 acres, are furnished a horse, cow, pig, chickens, and implements. The rural rehabilitation agency retains a first mortgage on all lands and materials.

It is the hope of those in charge of the plan that the family will have become self-sustaining in five years and will have accumulated enough to retire the small obligation against their stock, goods and land. Families are taken off the relief rolls and returned to the country to make their own living under the workings of the plan.

A farm supervisor will regularly advise with the families to the end of increasing living conditions and making enough of a profitable showing that the capital outlay can be repaid in five years.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee, Friday made public a letter from Secretary Morgenthau proposing an inheritance tax system which could be used to cash the bonus, based on progressive rates up to 60 per cent. Hopkins Is Made Administrator Of Works Progress

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Roosevelt Friday completed his work-relief organization with appointment of Harry Hopkins as administrator of the works progress division. He charged the division with the task of making certain that persons employed on projects must come from relief rolls.

The United States Employment Service was given general charge of reemployment persons on work relief who desire to return to private employment. The President has called in his principal aides in the works setup for a general discussion Friday night.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, hitherto "Mystery Man" in the works-relief setup, was generally expected Friday to be placed in charge of the "division of progress" in administering the $4,000,000,000 fund. The division, one of main cogs of the works program, will have charge of checking up on and stimulating activities of the undertaking to provide three and a half million jobs.

Hopkins, present relief administrator, is to serve as a member of the board which passes on distribution the $4,000,000,000 fund to various projects.

FHA Officials Confer Here

R. E. Sikes, executive assistant director of the northwest district of Texas, and Carl Miller, representative for rural modernization and repair work, were here Friday in the interest of the FHA campaign.

Sikes, whose business it is to contact financial institutions lending under the provisions of the federal housing act, conferred with local bankers Thursday and was in conference with Mrs. Eck Lovelace, in charge of the Better Housing campaign office here, Friday.

Chief obstacle encountered in the campaign over the district, said Sikes, is misunderstanding. This, and not the lack of desire to cooperate, creates most difficulties, he said.

The entire FHA program was designed by leading business men of America with the double purpose of putting the idles dollar and idle man to work, and at the same time leaving the nation with improved housing conditions and a measure of improved economic conditions, he said.

Millers' work is under Title No. 1 as concerns modernization and repair work. He conferred with County Agent O. P. Griffin and other officials here Friday.

Mrs. Lovelace said that the data gained in the recent house to house canvass had been completed and would be turned over to building tradesmen soon.

Large Crowd Hears Program At CCC

A program arranged by Rev. E. C. Arther, pastor of the Church of God, struck a responsive chord Tuesday evening at the CCC camp, so much so that it will be repeated at a later date.

Aaron McGee and Wayne Nance gave a duet, and Mrs. E. H. Phillips, Loree Williams, L. E. Hull and G. T. Thomas were heard in a quartet arrangement, Pearl Boyce furnished accompaniment. All entertainers were repeatedly encored throughout the program. A large crowd packed the recreation hall to hear the entertainment.

Tom Brigance, TP Conductor, Dies On Train

The many friends and acquaintances of Thomas Brigance, aged 62, veteran Texas & Pacific conductor, were shocked to learn of his death, which occurred at 1:50 p. m. Friday as he was nearing the end of his run on the Sunshine Special as the train was pulling into Lancaster yard near Fort Worth.

Reports to local railway officials said Brigance dropped dead as he was walking through the train. No other details were given.

JOLLY SCAVENGERS' HUNT GIVEN BY TWO HOSTESSES; GUESTS MEET AT HART HOME

Misses Elouise Haley and Nell Brown Entertain; Town Ransacked For Articles By Parties Of Four

Misses Elouise Haley and Nell Brown were hostesses for a jolly scavenger hunt Thursday evening to a group of their friends, the meeting place being the garden of the Hart residence. Miss Haley lives with her sister, Mrs. R. V. Hart.

Invitations were sent to the guests signed Nellie and Ellie. When they arrived they were asked to register in the guest book, then seated on the lawn.

The lawn was lighted with electric lights, also heated with a gas stove for those who felt the chill of the evening. An outdoor radio added to the gaiety.

Men and women were lined up in rows of chairs opposite each other and paired off in couples. When the directions were issued for the 18 articles they were to locate, the guests went in parties of four. An hour and a half was allowed to collect the items.

At 10:45 all returned. Mrs. Roy Reeder, Miss Marie Faubion, B. C. Donald and Pete Sellers, were the only ones who secured all 18. They were presented with a little wagon filled with candy.

A scavenger's lunch was served in a bag. It consisted of sandwiches and apples. Tea was served in paper cups.

Laxative So Many Like
Old folks, young folks—thousands of them say they prefer Thedford's Black-Draught when they need a laxative. It does its work so well. "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught in my family since 1860," writes Mr. Heason Temple, Smithdale, Miss. "We do not feel like we could keep houses without Black-Draught. We are quite a good ways from town, and a good, simple medicine, like Black-Draught, is good to have on hand. All these years I have never changed because it gave satisfaction."

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Agenda for Recovery

In presenting the British budget the other day, Mr. Neville Chamberlain said that:

"Broadly speaking, we may say that we have recovered in this country 80 per cent of our prosperity."

Broadly speaking, the same thing may be said of the United States. We have recovered not 80 per cent of the boom prosperity of 1929, certainly not 80 per cent of the real estate and stock market inflation of 1929, but 80 per cent of the kind of prosperity which existed under President Coolidge round about the year 1926. Industrial production, as measured by the Federal Reserve index is within 90 per cent of normal; as measured by the well known index of Colonel Ayres it is within 80 per cent. The unemployed who number about 10,000,000, are about 20 per cent of the available working population, though it should be remembered that even in 1929 we are supposed to have had over 2,000,000 unemployed. But even taking the whole 10,000,000, 80 per cent of the available population is at work.

In proportion to their population, British unemployment is every bit as large, for the British figures, which do not include domestic servants, government employees, or those with salaries of more than $1,250 a year, show unemployment at the rate of about 18 per cent of the registered workers. In the United States about one person in six is receiving some kind of relief; in England, Scotland, and Wales, counting those receiving unemployment insurance, the ratio must be about the same.

If you are defending the Administration in office, as Mr. Chamberlain was, it sounds reassuring to say that 80 per cent of prosperity has been recovered. But the remaining 20 per cent is really a lot. An eight-cylinder engine with one cylinder dead and one more cylinder half dead will run, but it will not run well and may not run at all after a while.

The problem is to recover the remaining 20 per cent. The question is: What are the things we should do and can do to recover it?

As I see it, this 20 per cent depends upon two elements: one is the resumption of private investments, the other is the revival of foreign trade. If there is a recovery in private investment and in foreign trade the unemployed will be largely absorbed, the Federal expenditures will fall off, the Federal revenues will increase and the most critical features of the agricultural problem will subside. Very few competent persons will deny, I think, that the opening of the private capital market and the revival of exports and imports are the answers to unemployment, relief, the unbalanced budget and the chief difficulty in agriculture.

The heart of the problem of a foreign trade revival is the disordered condition of the currencies of the world. The sterling group, the dollar, the gold franc, the controlled currency of Germany, the deeply depreciated Japanese yen and the silver money of Asia are in such chaotic relations with each other that trade is strangled, international investment is impossible, speculation and hoarding are rampant, and world prices are depressed. The responsibility for bringing order out of this chaos rests upon the three countries which are most powerful financially, upon the United States, Great Britain and France.

There can be no full recovery for any of them or for the rest of the world until Washington, London and Paris decide to come together and arrange a working stabilization of the dollar, the pound and the franc. If they would do this they will certainly improve world trade, they will cause world prices to rise, they will end the fears of further devaluation and establish the basis for confidence in long-term investment. They will also make unnecessary the maintenance of

Sprightly Spring Social Season Begins As Lenten Season Closes

Parties are "in" again! The 40 days of Lenten observance are over and the social round begins again just in time to catch a new season and a host of new things to serve!

The season's color vogue is yellow, lavender and white with touches of green, and permits you to let Spring come to your party table with some of the prettiest taste-tempters that ever enhanced a table!

One of our most appropriate foods for the after-Lenten season is the ubiquitous banana. "Ubiquity" in case the word escapes you, is defined by Daniel Webster as "presence in an indefinite number of places." Rambling indeed is the banana for it seems to find its way into the beginning, the middles and the ends of our meals without even a flicker of its germ-proof peel. It is particularly appropriate for Springtime menus, especially as its yellow hue fits right into the color scheme chosen by Nature and unanimous vote.

Spring Color Schemes
Your first Spring luncheon might be served on white dishes, set on a pale green cloth. Choose a centerpiece of daffodils and lavender hyacinths with green leaves. Let the garnishes be celery stuffed with yellow cheese and little green onions, and the tidbits salted pistachio nuts and almonds. The dessert must crown the meal and since it should taste as good as it looks, serve banana cream tarts.

For an afternoon party, you might serve delicious slices of angel food cake frosted in lavender-tinted icing, and a banana sherbet

(a pale gold color that is lovely in green glass dishes), and some yellow and white cream mints. Even dinner can be mainly yellow and white, if you like the color scheme. Here is a menu to follow:

Grapefruit Juice Cocktail
Rice and Chicken Loaf
Carrot Strips and Celery Curls
Tiny Buttered Biscuits
Banana Salad
Cocoanut Cream
Coffee

And here are the recipes for these Springtime dishes, which fit into any occasion, even if you abandon the color scheme!

Springtime Tarts
6 tart shells, 3 ripe bananas, 1 cup cream, whipped; 1 tbsp. candied orange peel.

Slice the bananas and arrange in tart shells. Cover with whipped cream and garnish with candied orange peel cut in small pieces. Two tablespoons powdered sugar may be added to the cream if desired. If the orange peel is not used, flavor cream with one teaspoon of vanilla.

Banana Sherbet
3 cups mashed bananas (5 to 6 bananas), 6 tbsps. lemon juice, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 cup white karo, 1-8 tsp. salt, 1 egg white, 2 cups milk. Mash bananas and mix pulp thoroughly with lemon juice. Add sugar, karo, salt and egg white beaten stiff but not dry. Add this mixture slowly to the milk, stirring constantly. Place in tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze. Stir when mixture resembles a thick mush and again just before mixture is frozen hard. It will take about 2-3 hours. Serves 2 to 12.

Chicken and Rice Loaf
2 cups cooked rice, 1 1-2 cups diced chicken, 1 cup peas, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup milk, salt and pepper.

Combine thoroughly the rice, chicken and peas. Beat eggs, add milk and seasonings. Pour over mixture and blend thoroughly. Put into buttered pan, set into pan of water and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 F.) until egg mixture is set. 6 servings. Garnish with sliced hard-cooked eggs if you wish to carry out the color scheme.

Golden Salad
1 pkg. lemon gelatin, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup canned pineapple juice, 1 tbsps. vinegar, 1-2 tsp. salt, 1 cup canned pineapple, diced and drained, 2 sliced ripe bananas.

Dissolve lemon flavored gelatin in boiling water. Add pineapple juice, vinegar and salt. Chill in refrigerator until set. Unroll on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise.

NOT 'THE' MAE WEST, MAE ASSERTS

This record of a 1911 marriage in Milwaukee between an actress named Mae West and Frank Wallace, actor, is nothing more than a coincidence in names so far as Mae West, film star, is concerned. quotas, exchange control, and super-tariffs, of subsidies to their export industries and of special protection against imports.

Pending the achievement of international currency stabilization, a full and confident re-opening of the private capital market is not to be counted on. Nevertheless, a good deal can be done.

The foundations of a revival have been laid by the cheap-money policy inaugurated under Mr. Hoover and since continued. For a long time cheap money seemed ineffective. Now at last it is beginning to work precisely as the advocates of the policy way back in 1931 and 1932 said it would work. The rate of interest is falling and the first effects is to enable the government and private corporations to refund outstanding debts at a lower rate of interest. The process takes time. It has hardly reached mortgages. But it will reach them. After refunding of old debts comes investment at low rates of interest in new enterprises. We have not reached that stage. But according to all previous experiences we shall reach it if the government pursues a course which does not stifle enterprise.

The spirit in which the government needs to act is exemplified by the Securities Exchange commission which, under Mr. Kennedy's brilliant leadership, has become not merely a policeman to guard against the repetition of old abuses, but a cautious promoter of a revival investment. Mr. Kennedy has made notable progress. If he succeeds in his endeavors, the revival of investment will supplant government deficits by private borrowing and the budget will come into balance.

To achieve this result, an intelligent and prompt settlement of the remaining legislative program is necessary.

What, then, are the essential things that remain to be done by congress?

1. The N. R. A. with all its sins and follies has to be extended to a period beyond June 16. The business relations built up under the codes cannot be broken down abruptly. The undesirable features should be liquidated gradually by voluntary action by administrative decision, and by judicial determination. Probably the simplest thing to do is to amend the existing law by taking out of it what is plainly unconstitutional, by strengthening the law against monopoly, and then to re-enact the law for a period of one or, at the most, two years. It is vain to suppose that congress, the administration, or American business men can devise a permanent system of industrial law before June 16. A temporary extension of a deflated and amended N. I. R. A. would seem to be the most practical solution of the immediate problem.

2. Opinions may differ as to whether the utility question should have been raised at this session. But since it has been raised, it is better to settle it than to leave it open to intensive agitation for another year. There should be a compromise on the bill. Such a compromise is not difficult to imagine.

3. As to the social security bill, it seems to me clearly desirable to establish the old age pensions. As to unemployment insurance, my own belief is that the case for it is dubious, and the effectiveness of the present bill more dubious.

4. On the banking bill, like the utility bill, a settlement which will take the question out of politics is most desirable, and for my own part I can see nothing in the main proposals of the American Bankers Association which congress and the administration could not, in principle, accept.

5. The railroad legislation is on its way and is clearly desirable. Beyond these measures, there is nothing of any importance that calls for action at this session. Prompt action, based on fair compromise, would clear the atmosphere remarkably.

Movie Extra Now

Sunshine up, straight up, or down. How do you like your eggs? We read so much about the importance of eggs in the diet. And when you come to think of it, it's quite reasonable to expect that eggs should be good for us for they contain all the essentials for a living organism. Those who advocate an egg a day for each of us are probably right. Do you get at least one egg a day? You know you don't have to eat it as such, for for some reason eggs don't appeal to you. Or if you are a good housewife and are conscientiously trying to feed that family of yours so that it will be healthy, bright and happy, and find that some one of the members simply won't eat eggs, don't be discouraged. It's a very easy matter to slip a few eggs into prepared dishes, and it's an egg that counts—not so much the manner in which you cook them, as it is to get it down an unsuspecting throat.

Who doesn't like a good omelet, a custard pie, a ham soufflé, a fluffy cheese omelet? Or who will object to having an egg added to the white sauce used in creaming vegetables? It's really quite a game, this one of seeing to it that each one in your family has one egg a day.

There are all sorts of good egg dishes. Here are some of our favorites:

He used one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and regained his normal weight, his spirits improved and he did not complain of his stomach any more." What's The Truth About Mayonnaise?

Which side are you on when it comes to judging the truth about the origin of mayonnaise? There are two sides to the fence, you know. One faction maintains that the famous dressing was invented in honor of the Duc de Richelieu to celebrate the French victory on the island of Minorca, at the town of Mahonner. The chef is said to have been so overjoyed he was inspired!

The other side claims that mayonnaise is derived from the obsolete French verb "mahonner" meaning to worry, fret, or annoy. (The "h" later became "y.")

No matter! The real truth is that the dressing by any other name would taste as good; and fretting over the result is a bygone era that modern methods are in vogue. As to "worrying" the ingredients, modern salad oil has made all that as unnecessary as rubbers and galoshes on the same two feet!

Mayonnaise—or call it "oil dressing" if you like—is not only twice better than when that ancient chef invented it, but it is easy, delicious and so versatile it can be given forty different variations, and even form the basis for hot sauces, Mayonnaise, by the way, is not cooked; if you cook it, it becomes "salsad dressing" (don't ask why!).

Learn a good standard recipe, like the one below, then practice your variations, to suit your salad—or even your mood! Then try your creation on a couple of good salads. Here you are:

Chapter 22 RECONCILED

When they were alone, Jane came up to him and slipped an affectionate arm through his.

She looked so pretty, in her gleaming satin and lace that James' irritation vanished and he could do nothing but agree that it had been a lovely dinner, and that he was glad they had given it.

Jane, when she chose, could still be very tender and alluring, and now, of course, she must be most exactly cherished and considered.

Perhaps after the baby came things would be different and Jane not so avid for excitement. James knew he must have more time for his work, more time for study. Jane wanted him to succeed, expected him to succeed, but some way she could not realize that she, as well as he, must pay a price for that success. It was natural enough that Jane should not understand.

He would have to teach her, lead her instead of taking always the easier course of letting her lead him. Very tenderly he drew her down on his lap beside an open window after switching off the lights. "Honey," he began, "I want to have a talk with you—"

"I know that you are going to scold and I am so tired," she cooed.

"I'm not going to scold, dear."

"Don't you go to preach, I feel it in my bones. Can't we be happy like this on our anniversary without thinking of anything but pleasant things?"

Naturally, James did not preach on this night, and it was the same on other nights. As the months passed Jane was far from well and she grew more and more irritable and less easy to please. James felt guilty conscience that it was all his fault.

Jane impressed it upon him that the lot of women was a hard one and scarcely to be endured. Mrs. Northrup looked at him accusingly every time her daughter sighed or refused pudding at dinner, and Anna sniffed scornfully whenever she passed him his food.

Their Sundays went more awful than James had conceived possible. He finally had given up spending his free afternoons with his aunt after Jane cried and cried and almost had hysterics, claiming that he did not love her.

Damn it! the lot of husbands was not always a round of voluptuous enjoyment whatever. Jane and her mother thought about it. Heaven knows he hadn't invented the method and manner of bringing children into the world. He had thought that women wanted children and pitied old maids because of their childless state.

Perhaps it is an exaggeration to say that all of New Concord was somewhat relieved when it became common knowledge that Jane was "expecting." However, it is true that all those who had James' interest and welfare at heart were relieved.

For some time during the close of the second year of their marriage the belief had become general that things weren't going just as they should between this especially selected and uncommonly well-suited young couple.

It was not that James complained or Jane complained or that they quarreled in public or were seen less often together. It was hard indeed to define just what seemed to be the matter, but that there was a vague "something" everyone agreed. And it was felt or at least hoped, that whatever ripples there were were caused entirely by the state of Jane's health and would be smoothed out and forgotten "after the baby came."

Nappy was perhaps the first one to "suspect" that James was not as happy as he should be and he, worried, passed his uneasiness on to the Judge.

"It's Mister James' hair," he explained to Judge Holcomb. "It ain't been acting just right, not for a long while."

"His what?" boomed the Judge impatiently. He was getting old and his hearing bothered him and he flew into rages for no reason whatever.

"His hair, the hair on his head. I can most generally tell the state of Mister James' spirits by making note of how his hair acts. When he's raring round, feeling fit to bust, you'll notice as how every hair on his head is standing upon its hind legs looking the world in the face and shouting 'howdy'."

The Judge laughed. "Sounds like a Gorgon's head, the way you describe it."

"Yes, sir," said Nappy who had never heard of a Gorgon's head, but would not have admitted it for a hundred dollars. "It's one and the same thing to my way of believing."

"But what has James' hair been doing now to disturb you?"

"It ain't been doing nothing but lay down and play dead for weeks and weeks. That's as unnatural as for a lamb to lay down with a lion as fast as when he left home. A few weeks later when James confided Jane's condition to the Judge and the old man was enormously relieved.

He patted James on the back, assured him cheerfully that there was nothing to worry about, reminded him of Jane's general health and of the billions of babies who came safely into the world without harm to their mothers.

James dutifully took Jane and went to Chicago for a week, but when he came back Nappy reported that his hair was "laying" as fast as when he left home. A few weeks later when James confided Jane's condition to the Judge and the old man was enormously relieved.

He patted James on the back, assured him cheerfully that there was nothing to worry about, reminded him of Jane's general health and of the billions of babies who came safely into the world without harm to their mothers.

REMEMBER THE DOLLY SISTERS?

Then the Judge very wisely set James to work on the very stiffest legal problem he had ever before had to handle and when he finished that immediately found him another. This last probably saved James from going all to pieces in the following months, for he was horribly frightened thinking of the fate of his own mother.

Nappy continued to accord to Mrs. Stimson all the respect and deference due to the wife of his beloved "Mister" James, but he never again thoroughly approved of her. In his eyes any wife remained only a woman and a handicap to any real man.

But even Nappy forgave Jane one frosty morning in early December when James came stumping up the flight of stairs that led to the office and threw open the entrance door with a magnificent flourish.

His eyes flashed with their old fire, every single hair waved triumphantly aloft and his feet could scarcely keep themselves on the floor as he shouted out that there were twins at his house—a boy and a girl. As Nappy remarked, "Mister Stimson had more'n done himself proud."

The entire firm of Stimson and Holcomb stopped work then, and there and made a triumphant progress up and down Commercial Street announcing the news, giving away five and ten-cent cigars, receiving hilarious congratulations and having one very devil of a time.

When James went home he had a rocking horse under one arm, a doll under the other, a jeweler's box in his pocket and a bunch of flowers carried by a string in his hand.

Anna opened the door to James' ring and gave a contemptuous sniff when she saw the nature of his packages, but as usual she made no comment. The house was unnaturally quiet and James tiptoed cautiously upstairs.

The door to Jane's room was slightly ajar and he pushed it open with his foot and entered quietly. Mrs. Northrup, sitting by the window sewing, held up a warning finger, but Jane opened her eyes and welcomed him. "Shilly boy," she said when she saw the hobby horse and doll.

Commission Studies New 1935 Budget

City Manager Authorized To Purchase $23,000 In Bonds

City commissioners, meeting three times within the space of one week, spent most of their time in considering figures for a proposed budget.

They did, however, instruct City Manager E. V. Spence to start negotiations for payment of $23,000 in city waterworks bonds before their maturity in 1935. The city already owns $3,000 of this issue.

The bonds are the oldest against the city and were issued in 1912 when L. T. Deats was mayor and S. D. Bainbridge was city secretary. They carried an option clause for payment at any time after 1932.

Commissioners lowered the water rate outside the city limits to $2.23 minimum for 2,000 gallons and 40 cents per thousand excess. The revised figures was 25 cents lower than the former rate.

Sewer rates were revised in these respects: Drugstores and confectionaries, $1.00 per month with toilet, 50 cents without; office buildings with not more than 6 rooms, 75 cents per month, plus 10 cents per office for each office above 6; stores and business houses other than mentioned elsewhere, 45 cents per month; filling stations 75 cents per month, with grates $1.50; hamburger and sandwich stands, 50 cents per month.

Large Stock Of Meat Still On Hand Here

While other relief agencies in this district have been stocked with canned meat from the government meat cannery formerly operated here, a large quantity of the material is still on hand here.

Approximately 1,400,000 cans, mostly hamburger and mand-wich stands, 50 cents per month.

The blaze, origin of which is unknown, was quickly extinguished by the fire department. The building is the property of T. S. Currie. No insurance was carried. The loss was negligible.

M. McDonald Renamed Head Relief Board

Martelle McDonald, chairman of the relief board here for more than a year, was renamed to head that body Thursday.

Fred Stephens was re-elected secretary of the board.

R. H. (Homer) McNew in charge of relief administration here, at most since its inception, was re-appointed administrator.

Other members of the board are E. J. Phillips, Fred Keating and C. S. Blomshild.

The board heard a report of projects now underway, learned that the relief load is decreasing in the rural section and increasing in the town, found that first two families to benefit by the rural rehabilitation program had been placed on a lease.

Friday McNew predicted that the overpass job west of here and the municipal swimming pool project would take a large number off the relief roll. Several have already been called to work on the railroad overpass job which is scheduled to be in full swing by the middle of the week.
