U.S. Economy Surges

...But Inflation Hits 10 Percent Rate

WASHINGTON (AP)— The nation's economy grew by the largest amount in more than two years during the spring quarter as it reached the $2 trillion mark, but inflation climbed to an annual rate of 10 percent, the government said Friday.

Although it was the first time in history that the economy reached $2 trillion, government officials said the 7.4 percent growth rate in the second quarter was less than expected.

Because of this, said Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps, the Carter administration may be unable to achieve its goal of 4.1 percent overall economic growth for 1978. She said the target now "looks too optimistic."

Inflation Rate Climbs

The Commerce Department said inflation during the second quarter was at an annual rate of 10.1 percent, the worst in more than three years since the nation recorded a 10.7 percent rate in the first quarter of 1975.

The latest inflation figure was in line with recent consumer price statistics that have shown prices rising at a 10 percent annual rate during the first five months of this year. However, the administration expects inflation to taper off and end the year at about 7 percent.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Jody Powell said the inflation figures were "not encouraging."

Powell said President Carter has ordered a very tight federal budget for fiscal 1980. The press secretary also said the budget, now in the preliminary stages of preparation, possibly "will leave very little if any money for new initiatives."

Budget Cuts Ordered

Powell said Carter has ordered all federal agencies, including the Pentagon, to find ways to trim their projected spending levels for fiscal 1980, which begins on Oct. 1, 1979.

But he would not confirm reports that Carter is seeking a $15 billion reduction in projected 1980 spending levels. "I don't think it's worthwhile for us to get into specific figures," Powell said at the regular White House briefing.

In discussing the economic growth report at a news conference, Mrs. Kreps said the outlook for the remainder of the year is for expansion in the range of 3.5 to 4 percent.

Best Since 1976

The economy had declined at an 0.1 percent annual rate in the first three months of the year, largely because of the impact of an unusually severe winter and the coal strike. Although the 7.4 percent growth rate in the second quarter was less than expected, it was the best since the first quarter of 1976 when the economy expanded at a 9.3 percent annual rate.

The rate of expansion is also better than the 4 percent rate the government feels is needed to keep unemployment from getting worse. But Mrs. Kreps said that Carter's proposed $19 billion general tax cut will be needed to keep the economy growing near the 4 percent rate in 1979.

The Commerce Department said the nation's gross national product was $2.08 trillion, at an annual rate, during the April-June period — up from a rate of $1.99 trillion in the first three months.

Two trillion is 2,000 billion. The GNP, which measures the total output of goods and services in the economy, crossed the $1 trillion mark in 1971, so it took just seven years to double total output in dollar terms.

However, much of the increase in dollar terms results more from the effect of inflation on prices rather than from real production gains. After discounting for inflation, the GNP in the second quarter was $1.38 trillion.

Mrs. Kreps said that when the results of the first two quarters are combined, it shows the economy grew at an annual rate of 3.6 percent and inflation was at a rate of 8.6 percent.

Thus, even if the economy grows at 4 percent during the second half of the year, the top range of the administration's expectations, it would still fall short of 4.1 percent, which the administration recently said was its target for the yar.

The economy grew 4.9 percent during 1977. In determining the growth of the economy, the government discounts the effect of inflation. The quarterly growth figures are computed at an annual rate, meaning that would be the growth for the entire year if it continued at the same pace.

Economists both in and out of government had been expecting growth during the second quarter in the 9 to 10 percent range following the poor first quarter performance.

Mrs. Kreps said the rise in interest rats has served as "a restraining influence" on the economy, and is one factor in the slower growth.

But she also said the second quarter benefitted from strong sales activity, which increased by 7.2 percent at an annual rate. Auto purchases led the list.

Mrs. Kreps said other favorable developments were the healthy pace of home building and a decline in the nation's trade deficit from an annual rate of $24 billion in the first quarter to $14 billion in the second.

Clouds Fail To Deliver, But Chance For Rainfall Continues Over Area

TODAY'S FORECAST is for a good chance of rainfall, and South Plains area residents from farmer to fire fighter will be looking skyward.

Area residents were treated to cloudy skies for most of the afternoon Friday, but only light showers in Lubbock and splatterings near Floydada resulted, according to official reports.

Thunderclouds were building from noon to 7 p.m. around the greater part of the South Plains Friday, only to scatter at sunset.

The National Weather Service predicts more partly cloudy skies and a probability of rainfall today and tonight measured at 40 and 30 per cent, respectively.

High temperatures should stop short of 90 today, and dip into the mid-60s tonight, with highs in the 80s for Sunday, according to the NWS.

Southerly winds at 10 to 15 miles per hour are expected.

The forecast for the state offered a glimmer of hope for the first time in almost of a month of glaring heat.

The Dallas-Fort Worth weather station has received no officially-measured precipitation since June 7. Many water-supply reservoirs are down and some communities have begun restricting outside watering of lawns and plants.

A few scattered thundershowers lingered Friday morning over the upper Gulf Coast and the mountains of far West Texas, but it was mostly sunny and hot over the remainder of the state.

Early afternoon temperatures recorded by the Weather Service included a 101 reading at Wichita Falls, keeping that city's consecutive string of 100-plus degree temperature days alive at 25.

Meanwhile, ministers in Durant, Okla., were asked to fill the air with prayers for rain as radio station manager Glen Burke of station KSEO invited them to pray publicly for rain and asked the public to join them.

Ironically, much of the nation was soggy, as showers and thunderstorms extended from Wyoming through the upper Mississippi Valley into the lower Great Lakes, and from Florida through the southern Atlantic Coast region and over the southern and central Rockies.

Temperatures in the 90s and high humidity made it hot and muggy over much of the eastern half of the country.

Iranians March Here Without Incident, Plan New Protest

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CLAIMING vistory over city hall, about 500 masked and unmasked Iranians from Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma marched peacefully Friday during a seven-mile walk from the 21st Street home of Iranian Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi to downtown.

Organizers of the parade, in protest of the U.S. flight training of the Shah of Iran's only son, termed the march successful because of its coverage by the news media outside the city and because of the last-minute permission to parade past the prince's home.

Originally the protest parade was to be restricted to the downtown area, a city policy for parades.

U.S. District Judge Patrick Higginbotham of Dallas, filling in for vacationing Judge Halbert O. Woodward of Lubbock, ruled Thursday the policy was unconstitutional and that the march was "clearly protected" by free speech provisions.

Although the march went peacefully from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., when marchers disbanded at the fountain at Lubbock Memorial Center, Lubbock police were prepared for any incidents had they occured.

Major C. G. Bartley, commander of uniformed Lubbock police officers, declined to say how many officers were on duty but said the police escort of the parade cost $1,660, excluding the cost of gasoline and wear and tear on cars and motorcycles.

An unidentified police officer estimated there were between 55 and 60 uniformed officers on duty plus some plainclothes officers in unmarked cars parked

Taxpayer Group, City Officials Clash Over Budget Proposals

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE LUBBOCK Property Owners Association, after receiving a report from the city council Friday night detailing city services cuts which might be required if all the association's demands are met, issued a statement decrying the report as misleading and calling for a sensible budget with which the citizens of Lubbock can live.

Members of the group plan to study the report and present their comments on the service cuts at a July 31 preliminary hearing on the city budget for next year.

Preliminary study of the report, however, prompted the association, according to spokesman Gene Medley, to state that if Mayor Dirk West believes the proposals in the report are proper, that "he has been sold a bill of goods by our city manager just like the taxpayers."

The association statement indicated the group felt that the cuts in the report given to the council by City Manager Larry Cunningham reflected only the general portion of the budget and that insufficient attention had been given to administrative and upper management levels. "Consequently," the statement continued, "the burden and sacrifice has been shifted to the lower echelon city employees and we find this totally unacceptable."

The association has demanded a 25 percent reduction in city ad valorem taxes, a $10,000 homestead exemption for the elderly and the removal of automobiles from the tax roll.

A letter-writing campaign flooded city hall with 11,000 letters requesting city action on the three tax cuts.

When presenting the report Friday night, Mayor West said the three cuts would require a budget reduction of $5.5 million.

West pointed out that the ad valorem taxes only pay for those city services which are "non-revenue producing, or are only partially offset by fees, fines and charges," even though the proposed city budget totals about $71 million.

The mayor discounted accusations that the list of services which could be cut amounted to "scare tactics" or that emotional items were selected for cuts to discourage angry taxpayers.

"This is simply a review of all services provided and their costs," he said. "As an example, a reduction in the playing times and playing areas of slow pitch softball could easily be an emotional issue with a slow pitch softball player."

West emphasized the potential services cuts are not necessarily supported by the council — "in some cases it is quite the opposite," he said.

"This information probably does not

Lawsuit Seeks To Force Ward System School Trustee Voting

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A CLASS-ACTION suit was filed in federal court Friday in an attempt to change the way the Lubbock Independent School District elects its trustees.

The suit seeks to scrap at-large election of school board members in favor of a single-member district system. Under the latter, certain seats on the board would be designated for particular geographic areas of the city.

Listed as plaintiffs are Rose Wilson and Mary McGraw, both black; Francisco Rivera, Lupe Rivera, Bidal Aguero, Juanita Aguero, Alfredo Jaime and Guadalupe Jaime and "all others similarly situated."

Similar action advocating a so-called "ward system" of electing local public officials has been pending against the Lubbock City Council for two years. Rose Wilson also is an intervenor in that case.

The suit filed Friday in U.S. District Court claims that the school board's present citywide election system dilutes the voting strength of minorities and handicaps them in getting representation on the board.

Consequently, the plaintiffs say, racial minorities in Lubbock "suffer the indignity and humiliation of second-class citizenship which is affixed to them as a painful and degrading badge of slavery."

The plaintiffs, represented by attorney William L. Garrett of West Texas Legal Services, are seeking more than $31 million in damages.

"Plaintiffs seek a declaratory judgment that the existing 'at-large' method of electing trustees to the school board of the Lubbock Independent School District violates plaintiffs' civil rights in that such method unconstitutionally dilutes the voting strength of black and Mexican-American electors," the lawsuit says.

The five-page complaint asks federal Judge Halbert O. Woodward to bar the school board from conducting future at-large elections and to order the "formation of a school board whose members are elected from single-member districts."

The minorities contend their civil rights are violated because at-large elections "deny plaintiffs equal access to the political system..., encourage and sustain the unresponsiveness of the elected board of trustees to the special needs of the plaintiffs... (and) perpetuate the past history of racial discrimination."

Unless citywide election of school trus-

Death Ends Fight Of 'Miracle Baby'

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — "Miracle baby" Stevie McLaughlin's fight for life has ended after 13 months.

The youngster, who was named the "miracle baby" by doctors at Riley Hospital for Children after surviving three open-heart operations, a pacemaker implantation and a tracheotomy, died Thursday.

The infant, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McLaughlin of Plainfield, succumbed at his grandmother's home in Indianapolis when a weak artery in his neck burst.

Last month, a garage sale at a Wayne Township fire station raised more than $2,000 to help pay for the youngster's medical bills, which surpassed $100,000. Insurance paid about 80 per cent of the medical bills.

The boy returned to Riley July 3 with an enlarged neck artery and heart problems. He was released July 14.

Blanchard Asks Commission For Jail Budget Increase

Lubbock County Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard met with the county commissioners Rriday with his request for a $500,000 office and jail budget increase but failed to win any immediate concessions.

The commissioners opened budget hearings last week, and Blanchard is one of several department heads to be summoned during their deliberations.

He brought six sheets of statistics and other information to justify his proposals to increase the combined budget from $990,000 this year to $1.5 million for calendar 1979.

He is asking for two more secretaries and six more deputies to add to the three secretaries and 42 deputies he has now and an average raise of about $100 per month for everyone in the department.

In addition, Blanchard has a standing request made last month for two more secretaries and four more deputies contingent on the opening of city automobile tax suit filings.

County Judge Rodrick Shaw told Blanchard that the budget studies have not been concluded and that the sheriff will be recalled to discuss the conclusions the commissioners draw.

"We don't have enough money to add anything, judge," Commissioner Alton Brazell told Shaw.

Blanchard detailed the duties of the various classifications of deputies and said those in the civil department will average serving 3,060 papers per man this year.

He appeared during a lull in board of equalization hearings, which had drawn only three taxpayers questioning assessments in the two days of hearings ending Friday afternoon.

Jail Administrator Gary McGrew attended the 1:30 p.m. Friday meeting with Blanchard and offered the commissioners a compromise to his proposal of adding three jailers to the jail staff of 33 jailers, five dispatchers, two doctors, a nurse, a cook and a janitor.

McGrew said afterwards that they had been cool to the first proposal, so he offered Friday to fill the personnel need with off-duty deputies working overtime approved by the commissioners.

Children Dehydration Signs, Care Explained

Mothers of Lubbock infants should watch closely for signs of dehydration in their children during a summer heat wave, according to City Health Director Dr. Marjorie Orr.

Dr. Orr's warning comes only two days after the death of one-month-old Cecelia Sainz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lupe Sainz of 5007 36th St. The infant was pronounced dead at 3:40 p.m. Wednesday on arrival at Health Sciences Center Hospital. Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack ruled the death caused by cardiac arrest due to dehydration.

Very young infants may not show any symptoms of dehydration other than lethargy and refusal to take liquids.

"They think if the baby is not crying he doesn't need anything," Dr. Orr said. "Consequently the infant takes less and less liquids and the damage can be irreversable."

If an infant shows symptoms of dehydration, it should be taken to a hospital or clinic immediately, she said. Often, administering fluids by mouth is enough to save a child who is very near death.

Infants should be kept as cool as possible, she said, and should not be wrapped in blankets.

"Water, in addition to the formula, is probably the best thing to prevent dehydration," Dr. Orr said. "It might be good that they (mothers) use bottled water since Lubbock water has so much mineral content."

Lubbock has the highest infant mortality rate in the state, she said, and 21 infants died here in 1977 who would not have died elsewhare in the state.

"This certainly contributes to our 21 preventable infant deaths per year in Lubbock," she said.

Texans Ready To Import Rain Dancer

By United Press International

If Woogie Watchetaker, a Commanche from Oklahoma, can't bring rain across the Red River into Texas, it may be an even longer, hotter summer than expected.

But sponsors of his Sherman, Texas, rain dance ritual Friday predicted a downpour by Saturday.

"We're carrying umbrellas. We're anticipating rain, to be quite honest," said Stefanie Ritchie, who organized Watchetaker's appearance before an estimated 1,000 persons Thursday night.

"We're looking at some rain clouds that are coming in. We are anticipating rain in this area from southern Oklahoma late this evening or tomorrow."

Watchetaker, 62, has been dancing most of his life and Mrs. Ritchie insisted his efforts were serious.

"He has done rain dances and had results," she said. "He talks in terms of 24 to 36 hours. It is a very important thing with him, a prayer, a ritual."

There hasn't been any measurable rain in Sherman since June 14 but even the National Weather Service conceded there was a chance for thunderstorms this weekend.

The rain dance idea, meanwhile, spread across Texas, with weekend gatherings scheduled in Waco, Killeen and Fort Worth.

Pawnshop owner John Boyd invited Gov. Dolph Briscoe and President Carter to his tongue-in-cheek dance scheduled Sunday on a Killeen parking lot, but said he expected them to take a rain check.

He said the motto of the event would be: "If you dance for rain, don't cuss the mud."

Businessmen offered prizes including lifejackets, umbrellas, rain caps and there was talk of free burial Sunday only to anyone who drowned in the ancipated downpour.

But, said Boyd, "we cannot be rained out." There hasn't been any rain in Killeen since June 8.

Jennie Gillaspy, sponsor of the Fort Worth rain dance, said Friday evening's efforts were certain to produce results by Saturday.

It's Terrorism--By Any Color

LOST IN THE furor over the trial of the Russian dissidents and Carter administration protests have been two bloody events in Rhodesia which in many ways are just as despicable.

Both have been charged to the Marxist-led guerrilla forces fighting to "liberate" that nation.

In one instance, a band of Patriotic Front (Red) guerrillas crossed into eastern Rhodesia and laid waste to a British-run mission, killing 12 whites living there, including three small girls and a baby.

EIGHT DAYS later, black gunmen raided a farm in another section of eastern Rhodesia, this time slaughtering 14 blacks, shooting and burning them.

Both attacks, which mark a new era in terror in the region, are designed to throw fear into both white and black Rhodesian residents in hopes of scuttling the inside peace agreement for the nation.

The massacre of the whites at the missionary post was unusually brutal. Both the men and women victims had been abused in just about every way imaginable. One woman was found with her three-week old daughter's body nearby, her skull crushed.

PERHAPS THERE are those who will argue that to bring about so-called black majority rule in Rhodesia, and perhaps South Africa, such tactics are justified.

And even the likes of UN Ambassador Andrew Young had the temerity to question whether the Rhodesian government had a hand in one of the attacks.

But, the truth is that the incidents are, although on a broader scale, typical of the reigns of terror which often accompany the "liberation" of black African nations and the assent of some Communist or military backed dictator to power.

IT IS NO accident that in most such countries, even those which admittedly had hard times under colonial rule, find themselves in much worse shape under the new regimes.

In most such instances, those who invest in the business of these nations already have or soon pull out and leave that nation's economy in shambles.

As things now stand in Rhodesia, Prime Minister Ian Smith and the moderate black leaders inside the nation are working toward an end of the year assumption of power by the black. And while the problems are still great, there are hopes for some sort of success.

In the meantime, Mr. Young, along with other do-gooders in the U.S. and elsewhere, still make shrill sounds for a "more broad-based regime," one which would include two outside Marxist-backed guerrilla forces.

And back in Washington, efforts by some Congressmen to get trade restrictions lifted against Rhodesia in an effort to help make the internal agreement work have run into opposition from the State Department.

Indeed, Alice, it is a strange world in which we—and the Carter administration live. We neither look at nor through the looking glass.

Am I My Robot's Keeper?

IT SOUNDS like something out of science fiction, but it's actually a very well-educated guess at what the industrial future will be like.

The four-day workweek or, as many may prefer to think of it: the three-day weekend, is racing up on us, it appears.

We have it on the prescient authority of the Delphi Forecast, a look into the near future of employment trends by a joint research team of the University of Michigan and the Society of Manufacturing Engineers.

IN JUST 12 years, the study predicts a 32-hour workweek will be standard in unionized industries. And it will be in large part because of the advent of a new stage in industrial development which might be called the Robot Revolution.

Within the next few years, Delphi advises, new generations of robots and other mechanical devices with sensory sophistication approximating human capabilities in assembly work will be developed and introduced into basic manufacturing processes.

By 1990, at least half of the direct labor presently involved in small parts assembly will have been replaced by programmed automation. Production patterns also will have been changed to eliminate repetitious simple tasks by workers.

Instead, individuals in a streamlined workforce will perform a variety of tasks that have not or cannot be automated, in some cases following the production of an item from start to completion.

THE NEW industrial era isn't likely to be problem free, however.

Delphi foresees a shortage of technicians with the skills necessary to service all the new computer-controlled robots and automated equipment.

The 32-hour workweek could thus turn out to have some unprogrammed and not so desirable characteristics—such as a high rate of robot absenteeism and a lot of overtime for their human repairmen on those long three-day weekends!

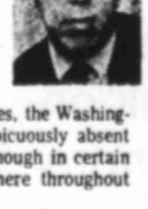
'Press' Shining Through Capitol News Blackout



WASHINGTON—Can a fledgling newspaper with a circulation of only 8,000 or so have major impact on the nation's capitol?

Reed Irvine of Accuracy in Media (AIM), Inc., is betting that it can. In fact, he argues with a fair degree of plausibility, it already has.

Though so far only a single issue of the Washington Press has hit the streets, there is evidence that its influence is being felt on Capitol Hill, in the White House and in the corridors of media power.

"The idea for the project was relatively simple," Irvine says.

"WE HAD BEEN SPENDING a lot of money taking out ads in the Washington Post and Star to correct misinformation or to bring suppressed facts to light.

"It occurred to us that we could use that money to bring out a publication of our own that could perform these functions just as well and give us additional space to tell our story.

"The result is a relatively inexpensive newspaper that we will bring out as often as need requires and funding permits."

The maiden issue of the Washington Press is a four-page tabloid with heavy emphasis on stories that had been omitted or downplayed by the major media.

AMONG THE SUBJECTS covered are a June 12 demonstration at the Capitol Building to protest the Communist genocide toll in Cambodia; a speech by President Leopold Senghor of Senegal, urging a more consistent anti-Communist U.S. policy in Africa; admissions by Rep. Donald Fraser, that he had engaged in manipulation of payrolls to avoid legal ceilings on staff; and conflict-of-interest charges involving Carter appointee David Garter.

In these and several other stories, the Washington Press provides details conspicuously absent from other Washington media, though in certain cases reported by papers elsewhere throughout the nation.

(The Gartner case, for instance, had been covered by Scripps-Howard which has no Washington outlet.)

WHILE THE INITIAL press run for the new publication was relatively small, its circulation was strategically targeted—to the White House press corps, offices on Capitol Hill, correspondents at the National Press Club and the like.

The result was that details of suppressed stories were widely seen by people who shape or influence public policy.

And by coincidence or otherwise, this modest publishing event was followed by a sudden change of front on at least one of the issues covered.

"The day after the paper was distributed to the office of every senator and congressman on Capitol Hill," Irvine notes, "the White House reversed a position that President Carter had taken at a press conference on June 14. David Gartner was asked to resign...

"The President (said) he had studied the matter more carefully since his previous press conference.

"It seems probable by influential members of the Senate and House who may have learned the facts in the case from the story in the Washington Press."

As AIM points out, the June demonstration at the Capitol was an event of some importance —featuring Cambodian refugees, U.S. senators and congressmen, State Department officials and others denouncing the Communist genocide in Cambodia.

Yet not a word of this event was reported by New York Times, the Washington Post or the TV networks.

So long as that kind of blackout continues in the capitol, it seems safe to say there will be a need, and market, for the Washington Press.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Onward 'n Downward

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Jimmy Carter, his self-confidence undiminished by political misfortune, believes Democratic Senate candidates who now treat him like a leper would help him in the Senate and provide necessary votes for a new SALT treaty.

This is no public relations proclamation, but President Carter's private comments, most recently made to a visiting delegation of liberal Democrats.

In this meeting and other similar ones, the President's faith in himself has seemed totally unaffected by his precipitous fall in public esteem.

During a half-hour meeting in the Oval Office, the liberals expressed fear that U.S.-Soviet detente was on the rocks and that any newly negotiated arms control (SALT II) treaty probably would not get through the Senate.

The President disagreed, predicting SALT II would be ratified by the Senate next year and that negotiations would get underway for a SALT III treaty.

One visiting liberal pointed out that some Democrats most likely to win Republican-held Senate seats tend to be conservative, hawkish and anti-Carter.

The President laughed that off.

He forecast he would get support in the Senate from all three on SALT and other questions.

He particularly stressed a warm relationship with Virginia's Miller forecasting that he would vote to ratify a SALT treaty.

That was an awesome exhibition of confidence, but perhaps not realism. Virginia is a defense-oriented state — avoiding identification with the President.

The other two Senate candidates mentioned are even more intent on avoiding the Carter imprint.

Exon vows the President will not set foot in Nebraska during this campaign.

Oklahoma's Boren never has forgiven Carter for reneging on natural gas deregulation and declined to attend a recent Carter fund-raiser in Dallas (while consenting to send his wife as a proxy.)

AT LEAST THREE strategy meetings preparing the imminent Republican presidential campaign by Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois have been held at the Virginia headquarters of the mysterious right-wing fund-raiser Richard Viguerie.

That confirms word which has been circulating through conservative circles since the 1976 election: Crane is Viguerie's choice for President, no matter whether Ronald Reagan runs or not.

While a superb fund-raiser, Viguerie is no total asset.

He has opposed so many Republicans and made clear so often that he is not a Republican but an independent conservative that he may prove a liability in Republican primaries.

A footnote: Viguerie has returned to concealing his operations.

After the 1976 election, he tried to improve his image by hiring William Rhatican, a well-liked public relations man in the Nixon-Ford administration.

WHILE SCRUPULOUSLY loyal as a vice president must be, Walter F. Mondale is realistic enough in private sessions about the hard facts of campaign life this year.

A Democratic candidate making an uphill fight for a conservative, Republican-held congressional district in the West talked bluntly about those facts during a recent visit with the vice president.

The candidate said Carter was a distinct political liability for his campaign, and he had no choice other than to occasionally criticize the President.

He expected but received no argument from Mondale.

The vice president replied that he understood the situation and realized that all candidates should do what they must to get elected.

INTENSE CONGRESSIONAL endorsement of Rep. William Steiger's amendment to reduce capital gains taxes is reflected by the support for it in the face of presidential opposition by the man known as Jimmy Carter's congressman: Rep. Wyche Fowler of Georgia.

Fowler, who left the Atlanta city council to replace Andrew Young in Congress, supports the President most of the time and defends him personally.

But he objects to the Carter policy on capital gains, contending that the investor who takes risks ought to be rewarded.

ANDREW TULLY:

Tax Man Gain-ith

WASHINGTON—It seems reasonably safe to predict that Congress ultimately will pass legislation substantially reducing the tax on capital gains.

President Carter made a mistake by indulging in demogoguery to denouce a stiff capital gains tax cut as a gift for the rich. In fact, although millionaires would benefit, so would a lot of moderate-income Americans, and Congressional mail reflects hefty support from that sector for such a tax break.

These correspondents make the point that the wealthy are not the only people who invest money for profit. Millions of non-rich citizens own stocks and bonds and otherwise have stakes in the economy. They pay capital gains taxes, too.

Thus they don't much care what a capital gains tax cut would do for millionaires so long as they also get a slice of the pie, however thin.

THERE IS ANOTHER point. Profits on investments, whether in Wall Street or in real estate, are not buried under the cellar. They are banked, reinvested, or spent. In any case, this money provides capital to stimulate the economy.

To be sure, people invest capital in hopes of making money. They don't ask for condolences if they suffer losses, but they would like to retain more of their winnings when they're lucky. And the more money Uncle Sam lets them keep, the better the chances they'll reinvest it in savings or General Motors.

Most economists now agree that lowering capital gains taxes would dampen inflation. Many others claim that reducing them eventually would increase tax revenues by creating more jobs and boosting productivity. A working man pays taxes, a jobless man doesn't.

ON THAT SUBJECT, another viewpoint is submitted by William Bonner, executive director of the National Taxpayers Union. Bonner notes that there are some groups whose positions are improved by high capital gains taxes, namely, the biggest businesses and the biggest banks. Says Bonner:

"To big business, high capital gains taxes provide a way to cut off competition. Up-and-coming entrepreneurs are not able to get the equity financing they need. As a result, big businesses stay big and little businesses stay little.

"While taxing capital gains and doubly taxing dividends, tax laws allow businesses to deduct interest on borrowed money. This makes debt financing relatively cheaper to businesses than equity financing. In 1976, businesses received six times as much in borrowed money as in equity capital.

"GENERALLY, BANKS will not lend to entrepreneurs. Instead, the money goes to large, well-established companies, already rich enough to guarantee repayment. The banker, like the bureaucrat, is a risk-averter."

As any small businessman or would-be small businessman can testify, Bonner is right on the mark. But a capital gains tax cut at least would encourage the small investor to gamble some of his profits on the prospects of the entrepreneur seeking to expand, say his small machine shop.

If enough investors are found, that machine shop can provide new jobs — and more income taxes for the Treasury.

Shock It To Me...

I HAVE ALWAYS suspected for lo, these many repair bills, that the washer and drier and refrigerator in my house were out to get me. I had my doubts about the doorbell, too.

And now it turns out I've been right all along. I'm being zapped by my electrical gadgets. Worse than zapped, if you can believe the report in the current issue of Gallery magazine. I'm risking my health, my sanity, even my sex life, every time I flick a switch or plug in an appliance.

I may save a little elbow-grease but, according to science editor Lowell Ponte, I'm unleashing the awesome forces of electromagnetic radiation that will eventually do me in.

IT'S THE ELECTRONIC smog in the kitchen I need to worry about. Sexual impotence, nausea and dizziness are the LEAST that can happen to me.

"Electricity does leak," Ponte warns. "Wherever it flows through wires it generates radio-frequency electromagnetic fields that extend far beyond the wire itself, bombarding you with electronic pollution."

Everybody knows people with heart pacemakers have to stay out of places where microwave ovens are used. But Ponte says we all have a "natural pacemaker" that orders our heartbeat, regulates our sense of time and space and keeps our mind and moods stable.

And the electronic radiation we get from too many household appliances subtly affects those pacemakers, leaving us "irritated, exhausted, unable to think clearly and sometimes even ill."

AHA! AND ALL along I thought I was going out of my mind because the washing machine was leaking. It never occured to me to blame an electrical leak. To tell the truth, I was beginning to get a little paranoid on the various malfunctions of my many machines.

They broke down (or blew up or burned out) with such clockwork regularity I was convinced they held midnight meetings to plot whose turn it was to blow the next fuse. I tried not to take it personally.

But there was always that small vestige of the Puritan work ethic that left me feeling guilty about having so many labor-saving gadgets. I figured the periodic hassles with repairmen were my punishment for refusing to take the dirty laundry down to the river and beat it on the rocks.

SO IN A WAY it's something of a relief to find out why housework REALLY makes me sick. And why, if Ponte has his facts straight, I can never find the car keys. It's not old age that's making me forgetful: I'm being exposed to "electronic brainwashing."

Boy, am I ever. Just for openers, there are the hours I spend bending over a hot typewriter. Absorbing electronic radiation with every brilliant phrase.

My kitchen turns out to be an electronic battlefield, with (count 'em) a refrigerator, freezer, stove, two ovens, broiler, can opener, knife sharpener, food processor, blender, coffee pot, dishwasher, garbage disposal, trash compactor, portable TV, clock, radio, intercom, fry pan and telephone.

LURKING IN THE laundry room are a washer, drier, vacuum, floor polisher, carving knife, ice cream machine, yogurt maker, crock pot, a tennis ball spitter-outer and a furnace. And in the garage, two automobiles, a saw and drill, and an automatic door opener.

All electric. Everything in my house, seems like, has to be plugged in, turned on, tuned in or hooked up. I am not unique in this. Not only are most American homes equipped with similar devices, they're getting more every day. Sales of home appliances in May alone were up 24 percent from last year.

Back in the old days (20 years or so ago) everybody thought microwave radiation was harmless as long as it came in small doses. The U.S. Public Health Service set up a safe-exposure standard of 10 milliwatts per square centimeter.

But Ponte says the Russians have studied this more than we have and they think that's too much, that anything one-thousandth that size is dangerous to the human body.

RECENT STUDIES show that even small doses of microwave radiation can have cumulative effects, with each exposure permanently damaging genetic cells.

One of these was conducted by the CIA, which found that the dosage our own government says is "safe" alters heartbeats, causes convulsions and disorientation, changes the chemical composition of the blood, and might result in genetic damage and even cancer.

What everybody's afraid of, of course, is that one of these days somebody, either the United States or the Soviet Union, is going to unlock the key of electromagnetics, ionization, laser beams, etc., and come up with a "death ray" weapon that will make missiles and bombers obsolete.

But that's something to worry about later. What we need now is a warning from the Surgeon-General that cooking and cleaning can be dangerous to our health. That's the excuse a lot of us have been waiting for.

Only with my luck, Old Dad will probably buy me a lead-lined vest.

ANOTHER LITTLE KNOWN fact about the genius Thomas A. Edison is that he was a judge in the world's first organized beauty contest.

The Miss United States competition at Rehoboth Beach, Delaware, in 1880. The winner was one Myrtle Meriwether, clearly fated by her name to be a heroine. Edison's role, if any, in the invention of pulchritude pageants remains a mystery. He didn't talk much about it.

Was way back in 1940 that Gregory Peck posed for men's clothing ads in the Montgomery Ward catalog.

Suspected German Terrorist Held In New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Kristina Berster, suspected of having links to the notorious Baader-Meinhof terrorist gang in West Germany, was being held under routine security Friday in the Albany County Jail although bail was set at $500,000.

Miss Berster, 27, was charged Thursday with violation of the U.S. passport law in a federal magistrate's court in Burlington, Vt. She was detained Sunday when she and three other persons tried to cross the Canadian border in a sparsley populated area of Vermont.

The other woman and two men were released because they presented what appeared to be valid identification documents, but authorities said Friday they were trying to locate the three for questioning.

Albany County Sheriff John McNulty said no special security arrangements were made for Miss Berster. She was being held with about 15 other prisoners in the regular women's tier of the county jail that houses about 200 prisoners.

He said she will be allowed to have regular meals and to take part in recreation and educational programs. He declined, however, to accept requests for interviews or photographs.

"She hasn't been a problem," he said. "I just let her know what the situation in the jail is. She can participate in anything she wants."

A Karlsruhe, West Germany, state official who asked not to be identified, said Miss Berster had been a member of the Socialist Patients' Collective in Heidelberg, a group that preceded the Baader-Meinhof group.

He said she spent seven months in "investigative custody" in 1971 as a suspect in a conspiracy to set off explosives.

Miss Berster was sought on a 1973 warrant on charges of criminal conspiracy involving a series of terrorist bombings and the forging of identity documents. She is also charged with belonging to an illegal organization.

The state official said the West German government probably would not seek to extradite Miss Berster because she was thought to be a minor figure. But a spokesman for the federal prosecutor's office said a new arrest warrant was sought Friday, in the event the Bonn government decided to press for extradition.

Miss Berster was scheduled for another hearing July 28 before U. S. Magistrate James D. Foley at Burlington. She was detained at the marshall's office there for five days, while her fingerprints were checked.

Jerome O'Neill, an assistant U.S. attorney at Burlington, said Miss Berster was spotted by a customs officer on patrol as she walked near the border.

He said she was detained because she had entered the country illegally, with no American visa on an Iranian passport identifying her as Shahrzad Nobari.

Violation of the passport law carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

"I am not guilty of these things," she said at her arraignment.

O'Neill said she was taken to Albany because it is a more secure facility than any local jails in Vermont.

An FBI spokesman in Washington said it was believed to be the first time a suspected member of the Baader-Meinhof gang had entered this country.

The group terrorized Germany in the 1960s and early 1970s, with a series of bombings, kidnappings and bank robberies.

Both founders, Andreas Baader and Ulrike Meinhof, died in prison, in what authorities said were suicides.

Mrs. Meinhof was found hanged in her cell in May 1976. Baader was found shot to death last October, the same day two other terrorists were found dead in the same prison. The deaths came only a few hours after German troops stormed an airliner in Africa which had been hijacked by persons demanding the release of such prisoners.

Space Scientists Fail In Efforts To Regain Control Of Skylab

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Johnson Space Center Director Chris Kraft said Friday the space agency may be running out of miracles to keep the aging Skylab from prematurely crashing back to Earth next year.

"I just want to point out that we can only do so many miracles and if we lose the capability to control the attitude of this vehicle, it is unlikely we will be able to perform any new miracles to keep it up there," Kraft said.

Kraft spoke as scientists continued efforts to retain control of the unresponsive 85-ton satellite, which has veered out of control several times during the past month.

Kraft said the space agency isn't giving up its efforts to keep the giant space laboratory in orbit until a Space Shuttle crew can attach a booster rocket late next year to raise the craft to a 270-mile high orbit.

If that effort fails, debris from the disintegrating Skylab could make an uncontrolled re-entry into Earth's atmosphere over a track 3,000 miles long and 100 miles wide, possibly striking inhabited areas.

But scientists are working around the clock to keep the aging craft functioning.

"I think we are doing everything we can to bring that about," Kraft said. "The facts are that we are struggling to keep control of the vehicle. We've had a number of problems and we've got to be realistic about whether or not we can keep it alive."

Kraft said the principal problems involved in keeping Skylab aloft are maintaining electrical power and having the vehicle accurately carry out commands given from the ground.

"The probabilites that we can continue to get the exact responses to our commands are diminishing," Kraft said. "The vehicle was getting sick when we left it in 1974. It has improved since we woke it up but the older it gets the less responsive it gets.

"We are getting things happening that we didn't ask for when we send up a command. If we are able to precisely tell it what to do, there should be enough fuel but we don't always know what it will do."

Skylab was launched in 1973 and was home for three separate astronaut crews before it was abandoned in 1974. Original estimates indicated the vehicle would remain in space until the mid 1980s.

Skylab never was intended to remain in space forever, Kraft said.

"We took the risk when we put it up there and now we're making a good college try," Kraft said. "But now we going to have to live with the idea that Skylab is going to die a natural death."

Space agency calculations have indicated as many as 400 pieces of the space lab could crash randomly back to Earth. Parts likely to survive include the craft's three gyroscopes, each weighing several hundred pounds.

Kraft is sure of one thing. "If we don't get something on it (booster rocket) it is going to come back down."

The Skylab's orbit takes it over open water 75 per cent of the time and Kraft said there was little chance that debris would hit any cities. He compared it the likelihood of being struck by lightning.

Meanwhile, controllers had the tempermental space craft under control Friday and made plans to put the vehicle in a minimum atmospheric drag position on Tuesday.

A space center spokesman said the vehicle was stable and had not used any more of its nitrogen fuel, which would be needed to make maneuvers when a Space Shuttle crew approached to attach the booster rocket.

The craft currently is in a hold position with all of its energy-giving solar panels pointed toward the sun.

Controllers hope Tuesday to maneuver the craft into a position where it will have the least atmospheric drag to help it stay aloft.

NO TAKERS — No one attempted to take on the police officers or private guards guarding the home of Iranian Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi at 4904 21st St. and no one on the city bus took the phamplets offered by this Iranian protester during Friday's march through the city. Police officials refused to say how many officers were on duty during the five-hour parade but numerous marked and unmarked police cars were stationed on side streets off the main route of the parade. # Capital's Metro System Remains At Standstill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The capital's bus and subway system remained at a standstill for a second day Friday as drivers and mechanics defied a court order and pleas from their own union officials to end their wildcat strike.

But city riders and commuters from suburban Maryland and Virginia appeared to cope far more smoothly than on Thursday, when the walkout produced traffic jams stretching for miles and worsened air quality in an area already under a pollution alert.

Authorities throughout the area instituted emergency steps to ease the crisis as the estimated half-million riders of the publicly owned Metro transit system resorted to car or foot.

The District of Columbia government and some federal agencies and private employers instituted a policy permitting workers to arrive late, depart early or simply stay home on unscheduled leave time.

Police opened some no-parking areas, and meter spaces were pronounced free for the duration of the strike. Autos were permitted in bus-only lanes and special rush-hour traffic rules were extended to cover four hours in both the morning and evening.

Commuters quickly organized car pools and left earlier for work than usual.

There was no clear indication when the strike would end, despite U.S. District Judge Luis Oberdorfer's temporary restraining order banning the action late Thursday.

"We're stuck in this together," said one driver. "I don't think any of us plan on backing down to the courts or to Metro."

The walkout was triggered by Metro mechanics dissatisfied over delays in arbitration proceedings on what they claim should have been an automatic cost-of-living wage boost July 1. Their picket lines were honored by 4,500 bus drivers and subway motormen, all belonging to the same union.

Metro officials, calling the strike "senseless," say they are pressing to resolve the arbitration as quickly as possible. Meanwhile, they suspended and threatened dismissal of some 180 mechanics and drivers identified as principals in the wildcat action.

George Davis, president of Local 689 of the Amalgamated Transit Workers, agreed the strike was illegal and urged the union members to return to their jobs. But he and other union leaders have been greeted with derision by the wildcat group in making that plea.

Some commuters looked upon the crisis as an adventure. Connie Morris, 27 walked the five miles to work from her home in Arlington, Va., turning down several offers from motorists for a ride. At that, "I stayed neck-and-neck with a Honda for 45 minutes," she said.

A group of Indians, some of whom had walked 3,000 miles from California to dramatize Indian causes, had to cancel their plans for one crosstown meeting, however. They had planned to take the bus.

Transportation Agency Gives Auto Buying Tips

By The Associated Press

The automobile is the second-biggest purchase in the lives of most Americans, but consumers often fail to give the selection process the attention it deserves.

The car you buy today can turn into the disaster you drive tomorrow unless you shop carefully, read the fine print and know your rights.

Too many people start with their minds made up. They have decided what they want based on friends' recommendations or advertisements.

The Transportation Department warns, however, that a lack of flexibility is a dangerous thing. Spend a little time checking consumer and specialty magazines.

"The consumer magazines generally pay more attention to practical things like roominess, gas mileage and repair records," says a department guide to buying a car. "The enthusiasts' magazines pay more attention to things like performance and style ... Read about several road tests of the car you are thinking of getting ... They may change your mind."

Federal law requires manufacturers to provide information on performance. The material must be available at the dealer's showroom.

Among the things to compare are braking performance and acceleration and passing ability. Make sure you know not only how long it takes to go from zero to 55 miles per hour, but also how long it takes to go from 55 to 65 when you want to pass. Check tire reserve load. This indicates the percentage by which the RATED load — the amount the tire is able to bear — exceeds the ACTUAL load when the car is filled to its maximum recommended capacity. Look at the spare tire. Many manufacturers now include a spare that is smaller than the regular tires; it will do in an emergency, but you can't rotate it with the others for everyday use.

Selecting a dealer is almost as difficult as selecting a brand. Price is important, since your car will probably cost more than any other single item except your house, but it should not be the only consideration.

Some dealers have a much better reputation for service than others. Check the local Better Business Bureau to see how many complaints have been lodged against the dealer; ask friends and relatives what sort of repair service they have gotten.

Find out how hard — or easy — it will be to get repairs. Where will you have to go? Can the work be done evenings or Saturdays or will you have to take time off from your job? Does the dealer provide a "loaner car" if your repairs will take more than a day? How many loaners does he have available?

All new cars are sold with written warranties. By law, the warranties must be labeled "full" or "limited."

The word "full" means a defective product will be fixed or replaced free within a reasonable time after you complain. You do not have to do anything unreasonable to obtain the repairs. (You cannot, for example, be required to take or ship the car to the factory.) The warranty is good for anyone who owns the car during the period specified. If the car turns out to be a "lemon" and cannot be fixed after a number of tries, you have your choice of a new automobile or your money back.

A "limited" warranty covers only specified conditions and circumstances. It may, for example, apply only to parts, not to labor. It may allow a partial credit or refund based on how long you have used the car.

The most common warranty is for 12,000 miles or 12 months, whichever comes first. Some manufacturers offer longer warranties, but you should check the provisions to make sure you are really getting something extra.

You may be offered what is called an "extended warranty" at an additional cost. This is not really a warranty at all, but a service contract providing additional protection — for a price. Again, be sure you know what you are getting. Some service contracts, for example, require that you use a certain brand of lubricant when you have your car serviced; others exclude particular types of repairs.

Make sure the car you get is the car you ordered. Check to see whether all the options you selected are actually included. Compare every piece of equipment on the car with the list on the window sticker. (Federal law requires that the sticker remain on the car until it is delivered to you.)

Compare the bill of sale against the window sticker. If there are differences, track them down. Was something added or left off without your authorization? Were changes made, but not listed on the window sticker? If there are problems, insist on a correction BEFORE you sign anything. Don't accept the dealer's assurances of a future remedy.

Further information is available in a Transportation Department guide, "Common Sense in Buying a New Car." Copies are available, at no charge, from: Consumer Information Center, Dept. 693F, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Authorities Probe Medical Kickbacks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Federal authorities in California are investigating allegations that some medical students are required to kick back part of their Medicaid-Medicare fees to professors and hospitals, HEW officials said.

Charles F.C. Ruff, deputy inspector general in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said his office in San Francisco is investigating the charges, but he declined to identify the teaching institutions or hospitals that might be involved.

The students have completed residency requirements and are taking advanced work at the hospitals, Ruff said.

Haitian Refugees Return From Cuba

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The government says 294 Haitian refugees have been brought home from Cuba and negotiations are continuing to bring back more.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said a freighter picked up the refugees Monday at Santiago de Cuba, on Cuba's southwest coast, and then docked south of Port-au-Prince. Cuba has told the Haitian government nearly 50,000 Haitians are in Cuba illegally.

Lozano Grand Juror Dismissed From Case

MIDLAND (UPI) — A member of a federal grand jury investigating the Jan. 22 death of a Mexican-American inmate in the Ector County jail was dimissed Friday because he was under indictment for felony theft.

The dismissal of Clyde Lee Yancey leaves 21 members on the jury, which apparently will continue looking into possible civil rights violations in the death of Larry Oretga Lozano.

A special inquest jury in Odessa, Texas, ruled in April that Lozano died accidently while struggling with deputies and jailers trying to stop the salesman from bashing his head into a cell door.

Members of the Mexican-American community have alleged Lozano died as a result of police brutality.

Yancey was indicted for transporting an allegedly stolen motorcycle in his father's pickup truck, according to records in the district attorney's office in Odessa, Texas. He is currently free on $2,000 bond.

U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd offered a certified copy of the complaint pending against Yancey. Under federal statute, a person under indictment or convicted of a felony punishable by more than one year in prison is prohibited from serving on a grand jury.

CRASH CLEAN-UP — Workers struggle to overturn the engine of Frank A. French's crop dusting plane after the craft crashed at 2 p.m. Friday about one-quarter mile south of a Lubbock International Airport runway. French, of 710 Wabash St., a pilot for AvTech Aviation, made the forced landing after experiencing engine trouble, according to Jim Newsome, assistant director of aviation at the airport. French was uninjured and Federal Aviation Administration officials are continuing their investigation into the cause of the trouble. Helping move the wreckage are, from left, Harold Phillips, accident investigator for the FAA, Scott Holland of AvTech Aviation, David Hodges of the Lubbock Fire Department, and Ricky Hafley of AvTech Aviation. FIRST AID FOR THIRST — Texas Christian University's campus in Fort Worth, has suffered along with the rest of north central Texas during these days of intense heat and dryness. In an attempt to keep trees and shrubs alive during the heat wave, Dr. Rick Pleunneke, left, and Jack Cobb, school grounds manager, use a portable trickle irrigation unit to wet the soil surface and get water directly to the tree's roots. Water and the wetting agent in the irrigation unit can water the trees for 26 hours. (AP Laserphoto)

City Manager Named Outstanding Young Texan By Jaycees

City Manager Larry Cunningham has been named one of five Outstanding Young Texans for 1978 by the Texas Jaycees.

Cunningham, city manager since September, 1976, will formally receive the honor in Fort Worth ceremonies July 29.

In January Cunningham was selected for the Lubbock Jaycees Distinguished Service Award on the basis on his nomination by the Lubbock Rotary Club.

He was then submitted for the five Outstanding Young Texans competition and will now be nominated by the Texas Jaycees for the 10 Outstanding Young Men of America.

Other past honorees from Texas include Dr. Denton Cooley, 1954; George H.W. Bush, 1956; Dolph Briscoe and Van Cliburn, 1958; Bill Moyers, 1964; Ben Barnes, Bill Hobby, 1965; Gus Mutscher, 1967; and Sen. Lloyd Doggett, 1977.

Cunningham, 33, humbly attributed the honor to the city staff which he said "helped me look good."

The city manager said he was "very honored and pleased" and thanked the Lubbock Rotary Club for nominating him for the Jaycees service award.

Cunningham became city manager after serving as assistant city manager for 3 1/2 years. He is currently the youngest city manager of a major Texas city and is believed to be the first person in Texas to become a city manager of a major city at his age or younger.

A graduate of Monterey High School and Texas Tech University, Cunningham served as an administrative assistant to the city manager from November, 1968, to April, 1973, and as an administrative assistant in the Public Services Department from September, 1966 to 1968.

The Lubbock Jaycees cited three areas of achievement and contribution which qualified him for the state honor:

— "His attainment of the city management position at an early age which lends encouragement to other young professionals to enter the public service career field.

— "His interest in improving local government through citizen-city staff communication.

— "His interest in improving local government through more efficient business approaches to delivery of municipal services."

Handicapped Man 'Hikes' To Honor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scope of Gregory Wittine's achievement — completing a 10-mile "hike" and becoming an Eagle Scout — is clear when you see the handsome, blond 23-year-old sitting in his wheelchair, his body shaking with uncontrollable tremors.

"If you want something real bad, you must push yourself," explains the lifelong cerebral palsy victim, who crawled the first mile on his hands and knees, then pushed himself in his wheelchair nine more to climax his 11-year struggle to win scouting's highest rank.

Only then did Boy Scouts of America relax its rules, enabling some 60,000 physically handicapped Scouts to continue in the organization and work toward becoming Eagle Scouts even after the age of 18.

Wittine was the first over-age handicapped person so honored, and the Baldwin, N.Y., man, was recognized at the White House by first lady Rosalynn Carter on Friday for his accomplishment.

He was 11 when he set his sights on becoming an Eagle Scout. Eleven years and 24 different tests intervened. Wittine passed them all.

Colorful merit badges adorn the front of his green uniform, attesting to his competence in areas including first aid, wildlife, fire safety, communications and money management.

They do not, however, tell the story of the handicaps he overcame.

Wittine's muscles do not function properly. His movements are spastic, and his words are unintelligible. He drools when he tries to speak. His life is an ongoing struggle between mental assets and physical failings, both of which are considerable.

Wittine's mind — so far, at least — is winning. He has recently enrolled in college and is studying psychology and English.

"My brother can't walk or talk," said his sister, Judy. "But he has always had this insurmountable amount of determination."

His scoutmaster and lawyer, Richard Golden, added that, "Greg's struggle demonstrates that with perseverance there is no limit to what you can accomplish."

At the White House, Wittine told Mrs. Carter he was "honored to meet" her. He didn't say it, but pointed letter-by-letter to a typewriter-like clipboard that sits on his lap. Golden acted as his interpeter.

Afterwards, with Golden's help, Gregory Wittine explained why he kept going against such considerable odds.

"M-y m-o-t-h ('mother,' Golden said) w-a-n ('wanted') t-o s-e-e m-e b-e-c ('become') a-n E-a-g-l-e," he spelled out.

But his victory was bittersweet. Wittine said his mother died a short time before he was accorded scouting's highest honor.

Female Ordination Battle Flares

NEW YORK (AP) — A long-smouldering conflict in the Reformed Church in America over the ordination of women has veered suddenly into some unprecedented initiatives on the home fronts. In some cases, they're ordaining women without specific denominational authorization.

They claim they don't need it. Opponents insist it's required, and are launching a battle to enforce it. The confrontation has headed the drawn-out, sometimes hairbreadth issue toward a possibly splintering climax.

"It could mean a split for us," says the Rev. Dr. Arie R. Brouwer, the new chief executive of the denomination, the oldest in America with a continuous ministry and with a tradition from the start of select, highly educated clergy.

"That doesn't mean a big schism," he added in an interview. But if the denomination's governing synod eventually upholds the local, custom-breaking ordinations as legal, "some people possibly may leave the church because of it."

This is what happened in the Episcopal Church after it began ordaining women this year, even though such ordinations were officially authorized — a step that has repeatedly, and narrowly, lost out in the Reformed Church.

"Some people simply got tired of waiting, and are not about to wait any more," Brouwer said. "So they're just going ahead. They argue that the book of church order doesn't have to be amended. But opinion about that is divided.

Although the depomination's governing synod declared in 1958 that there ws no theological or Biblical reason not to ordain women, subsequent, repeated synod actions specifically to authorize it have regularly failed to gain ratification by regional units, sometimes by a single vote.

Six times, over the years, the measure cleared the top governing body, only to fall short of the required two-thirds ratification by regional "classes" — a necessary 30 out of the 45 of them. Twice, it got 29, each time failing to get the 30th because of a tie vote in it, in California in 1975 and in the Seattle area in 1976.

In each instance, the measure lost because of a single person's vote.

In the 350,000-member denomination, whose Dutch origins go back to the New Amsterdam (New YOrk) colony in 1628, such authorization has been strongly supported in its predominant eastern churches, with the oppositioin in the western churches.

"More than two-thirds of our members favor it, and do so unanimously in the eastern churches," Brouwer said. "But the ratio has just never come together in quite the right way."

Already one woman, Valerie Demarinus, was ordained June 25 by the Brooklyn "classis", and another, L'Anni Hill-Alto of Fairlawn, N.J., wife of a pastor there, was scheduled for ordination this month.

Opponents have filed judicial complaints, challenging the ecclesiastaical validity of the ordinations without specific authorization. The protests go first to area "particular" synods before hitting the national general synod, probably next year.

Airwaves Filled With Rain Prayers

Glen Burke, general manager of radio station KSEO, extended the invitation to the Durant Ministerial Alliance to have a different minister come to the station every 30 minutes to pray for rain on the air.

The station also is asking the public to pray for rain.

Thursday was the 20th straight day of 100-degree weather in Durant, which has not had any rainfall for more than a month.

Handicapped Called Oppressed

NEW YORK (AP) — A leader of a Riverside Church group concerned about handicapped peoples says that "one of the most oppressive systems in our society is the transportation system."

Ruth Elizabeth Knaff, head of Mainstream, says that "if the churches are truly concerned about oppressed people, they must realize that disabled people are not worried about where they can sit on the bus, front or back, because they can't even get on that bus at the moment."

Bishops Deplore Capital Punishment

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Eight bishops in Alabama — Episcopal, Roman Catholic and United Methodist — have issued a joint pastoral letter in opposition to capital punishment.

They said there is no evidence it effectively deters crime, that it affects the impoverished and obscure more than the influential, that it is irreversible, cutting off the possibility of repentance and forgiveness in this life and that the church believes the taking of human life falls within the providence of God and not the right of man.

Homosexual Clergyman Deposed

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — An Episcopal clergyman convicted a year ago of homosexual acts at a boys farm has been deposed from the priesthood. Bishop G. Paul Reeves of Georgia took the action against Claudius I. Vermilye jr., who is free on $20,000 bond pending an appeal process. He had formally renounced his holy orders, making it possible for Bishop Reeves to depose him without a church trial.

Inflation Hits Missionary Work

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A Southern Baptist leader says the declining value of the U.S. dollar, coupled with worldwide inflation, is putting a crunch on American missionary activity.

"Every month we're having to add to the cost of living supplement we provide our missionaries," says the Rev. Keith Parks of the denomination's foreign missions board. "Every time the dollar is devalued, we have less buying power."

Protestants Object To Army Training

EAST BERLIN, German Democratic Republic (AP) — Protestants in communist East Germany have reiterated their objections to a proposed "pre-military training" schedule to begin in state schools for students about 14 or 15 years old.

In a letter read in its congregations across the country, the Evangelical Lutheran Church said education for peace is essential in the schools and questioned "training for defense" instead of concern for disarmament and detente.

The government secretary of state for church affairs, Hans Seigewasser, after an earlier meeting with church representatives, had said the pre-military training would begin this fall despite their objections.

Individual Effort Urged Christians

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — The work of Christianity always hinges on individual efforts, 5,000 women were told at the assembly of the International Christian Women's Fellowship.

"If the world is to be better, it must begin with me," said Addie L. Wyatt, a labor leader. The Rev. Dr. Beatriz Melano Couch, an Argentine theologian, said "the most difficult place to proclaim the gospel is in our own little towns."

Tech Historian Studies Roman Catholic Church's Leadership

What goes into church leadership will come out in the church's approach to world events, according to a Texas Tech historian whose special research interest is in the Roman Catholic Church of the World War II era.

Dr. George Q. Flynn, for a recent Colloguy of the International Commission for Comparative Church History in Warsaw, drew a comparison of the attitudes of the German Roman Catholic Church and its American counterpart during World War II.

"The American Catholic Church flourished during World War II," he said. "Like its German counterpart, the American Church gave loyal service to the state and the war effort. But this service was never as blind as it was in Germany.

"Fortunately," he added, "American Catholics functioned in a less centralized political environment.

"This distinct advantage should have caused church leaders to reconsider their traditional neutrality toward political forms and the mission of the church."

Flynn said that several factors influenced the church's wartime attitude. In Germany the church's freedom of action became increasingly proscribed and Hitler was dismissing Catholic officials to bring down the Center Party. Roosevelt, on the other hand, appointed an unprecedented number of Catholics to high office, which tended to solidify his Catholic support.

In each country, Flynn said, there was great suspicion of alliances with Russia and communism.

There was, however, a difference in the leadership of the German and American churches.

"The German episcopacy represented the triumph of traditional noble families in that country. Most of these men came from aristocratic backgrounds which taught the importance of national service and also rejected much of modern liberalism.

"In contrast, the American hierarchy represented the triumph of the immigrant Irish who came to the United States in the 19th century.

Although a few German immigrant families also spawned church leaders, the Irish dominated."

As a result, Flynn said, the U.S. church leadership had closer ties with the working class and had consistently taken a more liberal view toward the aspirations of labor. This leadership had enthusiastically supported New Deal social reform programs.

The American church leaders also shared the isolationist mood of the U.S. which rose in the 1920s and '30s.

As to the problems of the Jews in Germany, the indifference of the German church "is clearly established," Flynn said. There was, at the same time, a considerable number of Catholics and non-Catholics in an American movement which thrived on anti-communism and anti-semitism, but there "can be no serious comparison between German Catholic leadership and American bishops on the Jewish question," Flynn said.

The international colloguy from June 25 to July 1 brought together eminent specialists from Europe and America to foster comparative studies in socio-cultural history.

Evangelist To Recount Chinese Tales

Chinese evangelist Nora Lam will speak at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in Bethel Temple Assembly of God Church, 36th Street and Avenue K.

Mrs. Lam will recount her experiences spent in mainland China during her childhood. As a child she lived through the bombing of Shanghai by the Japanese.

She also will tell of her experiences as a child and a Chinese refugee during the Japanese occupation and her university days after the Communist take-over of mainland China.

As the adopted daughter of the wealthy, influential Sung family associated with the powerful Bank of China, she was marked for persecution by the Communists unless she would completely capitulate to their demands.

Church To Dedicate Baptistry Sunday

Westmont Christian Church will dedicate its new baptistry during morning worship services Sunday.

The morning worship service begins at 10:45 a.m. Sunday.

As a part of the services Sunday at the church, there will be a day devoted to prayer beginning at 7 a.m. and concluding at 5 p.m. with an individual signing up for a 30-minute prayer period.

Rev. Herb Miller, the Hi Plains area minister for the Christian (Disciples of Christ) Church, will give the sermon Sunday. Mrs. Harry T. Bridwell, widow of the honoree, will be a special guest for the dedication service.

Church Honors Music Minister

First Baptist Church of Lubbock will observe Ron Lowry Day Sunday, in celebration of his tenth anniversary of ministry at the church.

Lowry, the church's minister of music, joined the staff in 1968. His ministry has included approximately 900 persons annually who have been participants in the music programs of the church.

A special reception for Lowry and his family will be held following evening services Sunday.

For five years prior to coming to the Lubbock church in July, 1968, he was minister of music and youth at Westbury Baptist Church in Houston. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Grand Canyon College in Ariz., and later his master of religious education degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth.

In the past 10 years, he has expanded the church's music program to include six children's choirs, two youth choirs, the University Choir, the Young Adult Ensemble, a special university group, the "Cross Roads Choir," the "PraiSingers," the "Promise Singers," three handbell choirs, a minister of puppeteers, and a church orchestra.

During his association with First Baptist Church, the music division has presented special programs including Christmas presentations such as "Down From His Glory," with composer John Peterson, directing; Easter specials, "The Centurian," "Seven Last Words," "Allelulia" with a 150-voice choir, and "Reconciliation."

Productions under Lowry's direction have utilized a wide variety of communications methods, such as development of drama, the orchestra, narration and multi-media effects.

He has added professional assistants to the musical staff, developed training programs for lay participants and choir leaders, enlisted and trained adult sponsoring groups for youth choirs, and encouraged technical participation of light and sound technicians, drama specialists, instrumental and vocal soloists.

Synagogue Design Uses Biblical Descriptions

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — There never were any blueprints for the proposed new synagogue of David Raab's congregation and the architect has been dead for about 3,000 years, but the rabbi anticipates no construction problems.

"We are working from the Biblical descriptions in the Book of Kings and the book of Chronicles," he explained in an interview Friday.

the rabbi and the 200 families of his four-year-old congregation of Temple King Solomon are attempting to remodel the former home of a brokerage firm on Miami Baach's Lincoln Road shopping mall into a replica of the temple King Solomon had built in ancient Jerusalem.

The dimensions, said the rabbi, will be "almost the same.

"Everybody thinks the original King Solomon's Temple was a huge building. it wasn't.

"The dimensions given in the Bible indicate it was 120 feet long, 40 feet wide and 60 feet high," Rabbi Raab said.

his congregation has spent about $100,000 to buy the building, known as "the Dome." It is in the process of raising the additional $400,000 needed for the conversion and hopes to have it completed in about a year.

"We have received donations from all over the world — Caracas, Paris, Tel Aviv," he said.

The temple will attempt to conform to the design of the original, destroyed in 586 B.C. by the Babylonians, rather than the second Temple of Solomon, rebuilt about 80 years later and destroyed by the Romans in 70 A.D.

Given an end to the civil war, cedar timbers will be brought from Lebanon. "if not, we'll have to get them from California," said the rabbi.

Marble will be brought from Italy for the two giant pillars flanking the bronze front doors. Hand-hewn stones will be imported from Israel. And an artist will come from Israel to work on the interior and prepare special paintings.

You can find plenty of Biblical texts about the wind. That's not why so many colonial churches have weather vanes atop their steeples.

Our early American ancestors were religious—and practical. A weathercock had to be mounted well above trees and roofs which could alter the course of the wind. Often the local church steeple was the highest place.

Nor is there anything irreverent in the custom. For centuries man has looked to the Church for guidance, direction, hope. It seems natural as he pursues his daily work to look to the Church to see which way the wind blows.

We get our weather news today from press, radio and TV. But look to the church of your choosing to gain the faith and courage that see reverent souls through "fair wind or foul."

Iranian Protest March Goes Without Incident

Protesters carried signs proclaiming "U.S., Get Out of Iran, the Next Vietnam" and "Stop the Training of Another Tyrant by the CIA in Lubbock."

A Lubbock police officer filmed the march. Bartley said the videotape was not a standard procedure for parades, but then "this was a unique situation." He said the videotape would be used for information and instruction purposes to teach crowd control and traffic direction in the police academy.

An unmasked protester who used the nickname "Poyan" and said he was a member of the Iranian Student Association in Lubbock disagreed with Bartley's statement.

"They will turn the film over to the secret police who will use it to identify us and torture our families in Iran," he said.

The secret police refers to SAVAK, a group in Iran whom the protesters claim were trained by the United States.

Masked marchers said they were hiding their faces to protect their identities from SAVAK agents who might be watching the parade.

Unmasked marchers said they shed their masks because they felt their names were already known by SAVAK agents, yet they gave only nicknames to the news media.

"Wearing a mask is a symbol of fascism — that's the real idea of it, " said an Iranian from Austin who identified himself with the last name of Mobarez.

By the end of the five-hour march in 90-plus degree heat, many had removed their masks from their sweat covered faces.

Local Brown Beret leader Gilbert Herrera, along with a few others from his group, marched near the front of the parade.

"We support all minority and human rights," Herrera said.

Pairs of Iranians walked ahead of the parade to hand out flyers to motorists who were at a standstill at each intersection the marchers passed.

Some accepted the literature bearing the address of the local Iranian Students Association and carrying banner headlines saying, "Condemn Training Another Fascist."

A couple of white-haired senior citizens rushed from a trading stamp store on 34th Street to their car, rolled up the car windows and locked their doors as an Iranian attempted to hand them leaflets.

The pamphlets the marchers sought to distribute claimed freedom of speech, assembly and press have vanished from Iran since the Shah took over and that mass uprisings by the people have been met by bullets and the "massacre" of thousands.

The pamphlets urged "all freedom loving people in the United States to support democracy and independence for Iran and prevent U.S. involvement in our country." They said there is danger of Iran being "the next Vietnam."

"What the heck, as long as it's peaceful, they have the right (to march)," said a middle-aged white man standing on Avenue Q, who declined to give his name. Others, though, appeared to resent the intrusion or chafed at being delayed by the marchers.

Speakers from Houston, Austin, Beaumont, Oklahoma City and Baton Rouge took over the microphone when the marchers sat cross-legged on the lawn at the civic center fountain.

One was Nancy Hormachea, an attorney from Houston, who was in Iran earlier this year. She said as regional vice president of the National Lawyer's Guild she had got involved in the Iranian protest because Lubbock's city ordinance against residential parades was "definitely not constitutional."

She also chided city attorney Fred Senter for his statements which she said included the remark that masked protesters in neighborhoods would frighten women and children.

The attorney claimed the city ordinance was not enforced for other parades and said the city had tried to discriminate against the Iranians.

The chanting of "He's a fascist, he must go, down with the Shah" was never heard by the prince, who reportedly was not at his 4904 21st St. home.

His neighbors were there though.

"I've never seen 21st Street so busy," said Mrs. James Reynolds of 4906 21st St. as the marchers assembled in the normally quiet neighborhood.

Mrs. Reynolds said she was disappointed in Judge Higginbotham's decision to allow the marchers to parade through the neighborhood.

But all in all, protesters, police and bystanders agreed things went very smoothly.

"It was as slick as it could be, " said Bill Morgan of the police information office. "There were no incidents at all and only a minor inconvenience to motorists."

Organizers of the march said additional protests would continue as long as the Shah's son is stationed at Reese, although a date has not been set for the next parade.

It is expected that date may be Aug. 19, the 25th anniversary of what the protesters said was the day in 1953 that the "C.I.A. organized, financed and carried out a coup against the popularly elected government of Dr. Mossadegh of Iran and reinstated the Shah to his throne."

Rebellion Removes Bolivian President

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — President Hugo Banzer resigned Friday night and air force Gen. Juan Pereda Asbun took power three hours later after mounting a rebellion that threatened Bolivia with civil war.

Banzer, an army general who came to power in a bloody coup seven years ago, turned the government over to a three-man junta, composed of the senior commanders of the three branches of the armed forces.

The junta was in symbolic charge of the country while Pereda flew to this mountain capital from Santa Cruz, seat of the revolt, 620 miles south of La Paz.

The rightist air force general arrived at the presidential palace dressed in civilian clothes and surrounded by hundreds of soldiers. Many in the crowd at the palace plaza applauded as Pereda entered and was received by the military chiefs.

Vote Fraud Charged

Pereda was Banzer's handpicked candidate in the July 9 presidential election, called to put Bolivia back on the road to democracy after 12 years of military rule. He held a substantial lead in the vote count as of last weekend when the government halted the official tally amid charges of widespread vote fraud.

Bolivia's election court annulled the results Wednesday, after Pereda formally requested a new election. It was not known what prompted the coup.

"This is not the moment to look for new justifications for my fight," Pereda said in a radio address to the nation after assuming the presidency. "It is the moment to honor the popular will, a majority of the vote and the collective decision of the people," he said. "These are the circumstances that no one can question."

Mild-Mannered Man

Observers described Pereda as a mild-mannered man of half-Arab ancestry.

Banzer, faced with a spreading rebellion, announced his resignation on radio and television and said the military chiefs would "adopt the decisions most convenient for this hour."

His voice quavering with emotion, Banzer read his resignation statement at the presidential palace. The building was ringed by troops loyal to the president.

"The hour has arrived to leave command. I believe I have complied with my duty," Banzer said.

He personally swore in Gen. Victor Gonzalez Fuentes, Gen. Alfonso Villalpando and Admiral Gutenberg Barroso, and asked them to uphold the constitution and laws of the republic.

Hugs Officers

"You are in possession," he told them, then hugged each of them.

Banzer announced his resignation in the Colonial Room of the presidential palace. Beside him were his wife, Yolanda Prada, and a number of friends and colleagues.

The resignation appeared to end the rebellion, which began before dawn Friday.

The government said the rebellion was confined to Santa Cruz but rebel broadcasts claimed the insurgents controlled all of eastern Bolivia. Provincial radio stations had indicated the uprising was moving closer to this capital city, in Bolivia's western mountains.

The only indication of actual fighting was one radio report saying an army officer had been killed in a tin-mining area.

State Of Siege

Banzer's right-wing military government had ordered a nationwide state of siege. Loyal troops, with tanks and armored cars, were deployed around the hilltop presidential palace and other strategic locations in this 12,000-foot-high city.

Before his resignation, Banzer, 52, went on nationwide television and radio and said his government "is taking all measures necessary" to end the rebellion and "guarantee and assure the maintenance of order and tranquility for all Bolivians."

The Banzer government reportedly sent a representative by plane to Santa Cruz to try to persuade Pereda to end the rebellion before it flared into full-scale civil war.

The envoy, Interior Minister Gen. Guillermo Jimenez, told reporters, "The fatherland confronts a difficult situation but we hope to control it by means of persuasion."

The rebels, who identified themselves as anti-Communists, demanded that power be turned over to Pereda despite the Bolivian Supreme Court's decision Wednesday throwing out the results of the presidential election because of alleged vote fraud from opposition leaders and invited foreign observers.

On Wednesday, Pereda asked the National Election Court to scrap the election results and schedule another vote "to avoid sorrow and tears for the nation." There was no immediate indication what was behind the rebellion.

One apparent hint came in a broadcast from Santa Cruz in which the rebels called on the populace to join the "nationalist revolution ... which is trying to defend the country from the danger of communism."

(Informed observers in Buenos Aires suggested that Pereda's rebellion might be the result of pressure from right-wing groups in the military who are opposed to a return to civilian rule.)

Running against six other candidates, Pereda won more than 50 percent of the vote, according to the official tally.

Radio reports said pro-Pereda rebellions also broke out in the western tin mining centers of Huanuni and Siglo Veinte, about 200 miles from La Paz, and a rebel broadcast was heard from the major city of Cochabamba, just 175 miles east of here.

The rebels claimed that regiments based near the borders with Brazil and Peru and a regiment garrisoned in Tarija, near Argentina, also were backing Pereda.

Some armed forces units in Santa Cruz, Bolivia's second largest city, reportedly remained in their barracks and declared allegiance to Gen. Banzer.

Reports said the rebels who took over Santa Cruz were from the air force academy and an anti-guerrilla rangers regiment there, as well as local civilians.

The rebels' long-range intentions were not clear. One rebel broadcast urged the armed forces not to compromise with what it called "a self-coup resulting from the annulment of the elections."

A rebel broadcast from Cochabamba demanded that leftist presidential candidate Hernan Siles Zuazo leave the country immediately. Siles, a former president, returned from exile in Venezuela just before the election, had the political backing of the small Bolivian Communist Party and received 22 percent in the official tally.

Siles responded to the rebel call by saying he would not leave Bolivia "under any circumstances."

Banzer came to power in a bloody military coup in 1971 in which three military officers overthrew the leftist government of President Juan Jose Torres and were in turn ousted by Banzer's forces a few days later.

Taxpayer Relief Via School District Fund Surplus Seen

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

On paper, the Lubbock Independent School District has a $5 million surplus with which to work in the coming year's budget. And if trustees find they can get by with less, that may translate into significant relief for taxpayers here.

One benchmark according to Avalanche-Journal computations: for every $1 million the surplus can be reduced, the district's tax rate could be cut almost eight cents.

That estimate is based on a 45-page "Summary of Budget Data" released Friday by Superintendent Ed Irons. The school board will hold its first work session on the coming year's budget Monday at 3 p.m. in the district's administration building, 1628 19th St.

Analysis

Irons did not address the possibility of a tax cut in his "work copy" document. He said tax reduction is the school board's prerogative, not the administration's.

Instead, the superintendent's data are predicated on revenues that would be generated by keeping the school district's tax rate at its present level of $1.58 per $100 assessed value.

But in the study, there are strong signs that tax relief is possible.

For one thing, Irons's document projects that if the tax rate is left unchanged, the school system would have a "carryover" or balance in its general fund by August, 1979, of nearly $2.5 million.

Also, Irons is projecting a $2.6 million carryover by August, 1979, in the district's debt service fund.

Both funds certainly need some sort of buffer to guard against emergencies. But the projected figures may be far more than adequate. If so, school trustees may well decide to return part of the expected surplus in the two accounts to taxpayers via a tax cut.

By A-J calculations, for every $126,100 that the school board can cut, the district's tax rate could be reduced one cent. Thus, for example, if the board should decide to trim its carryover balances by $2 million, the school tax rate could be slashed about 16 cents — from $1.58 to $1.42 per $100 valuation.

Irons said discussion on the size of carryover balances may come up at budget work sessions next week.

One reason the district seems so well off — despite the fiscal burden of court-ordered integration — is the big increase in the district's tax base due to property revaluation. According to Irons's projections, the base will jump from slightly over $1.1 billion to about $1.3 billion.

Most of the revaluation concerns residential property in southwest Lubbock. Homeowners there are clamoring for a tax cut to help offset their increases in assessed values.

Another reason for the district's good financial position has been careful fiscal management of the school system during the past year.

When they drafted the 1977-78 budget, school trustees had expected to show a $1.3 million carryover at the end of the fiscal year in August. And that was before the district tapped its present year's carryover for about $800,000 to pay for such unexpected items as integration-related buses and school renovations.

But Irons's data show that even after paying for the unanticipated expenses, the school district's year-end balance will be $1.8 million.

A third reason for the district's healthy financial state is the conservative nature of Irons's "Proposed 1978-79 Budget." By putting most unanticipated expenditures in the current year's budget and by carefully screening next year's budget requests, Irons and his staff managed to keep the proposed increase in expenses low.

According to the budget information, the school board will be looking at a 1978-79 budget of about $41.3 million — 7.6 percent above the present figure of $38.4 million.

On Monday, Irons said, he will brief the board on how the budget relates to personnel and programs. A major increase in the budget for the coming year, for example, is in transportation needed to implement the district's integration plan.

Transportation-division salaries are projected to go up from $160,000 to $628,000 to provide for more drivers. (However, part of this is offset by a reduction in teacher aide salaries. The bus drivers will double as school aides.)

School trustees received copies of the budget data summary Thursday. After receiving a request from the A-J and contacting trustees, Irons released the document to the newspaper Friday morning.

However, Irons said school attorneys do not believe the district is required by law to release the material because it still is "highly tentative" and in the working stage.

reflect cuts that you particularly would want — this is for your information and study. It is for our information and study. It is for the information and study of every citizen in Lubbock," he said.

"Sweeping service reductions are not the only method of arriving at a final budget cut for our city," West said, "but you can be sure that the varying amounts of service cuts will have to be implemented in any plan to arrive at a substantial reduction in city taxes."

The mayor reminded the nearly 50 persons gathered in council chambers that nearly half of the property taxes collected go to the school district.

"We have been working very hard to put together a city budget that will give you some tax relief and still maintain the quality of life in Lubbock," West said.

He promised the association members that the council would be responsive to demands for tax relief, although "we are all liable to grow a lot older waiting on much help from federal and state levels of government."

Association spokesman Medley said the expertise of the group's members would be applied to a study of the potential service cuts.

The test to be applied to each reduction, Medley said, will be "what is the price tag, the benefit derived and is it practical for the majority."

That yardstick may lead the association to decide "25 percent is too much," Medley said, adding the association wanted to arrive at "what we can all live with at the most reduced, practical price."

Association members and other city residents will have their say on the budget at a preliminary hearing July 31.

West pledged the hearing would begin early in the morning and last long into the night to allow everyone to comment.

Copies of the report detailing the $5.5 million in service cuts will be available for review at the City Secretary's Office in city hall, at both the Mahon and Godeke libraries and at all community centers.

The city employee newspaper will contain much of the information and will be available at the same locations as the report, beginning sometime Monday.

Postal Workers Get 19.5 Per Cent Hike Over Three Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mail was moving normally in most parts of the country Friday after the Postal Service and unions representing 554,000 workers agreed on a contract that avoided a possible nationwide mail strike.

The agreement will increase the current $15,877 average salary paid to postal employees by 19.5 percent over the next three years, including estimated cost-of-living adjustments, President Emmet Andrews of the American Postal Workers Union said.

"I think it's a little bit over Mr. Carter's program," Andrews said in reference to President Carter's proposal for a 5.5 percent annual ceiling on federal wage increases.

Barry Bosworth, head of Carter's Council on Wage and Price Stability said through a spokesman that he would have no comment on the inflationary effects until he has studied the agreement. Bosworth and other White House inflation-fighters had urged the postal unions to moderate their pay demands.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger said the contract, if accepted, would mean postal rates will not have to be increased for 2 1/2 to 3 years. Labor costs are crucial to what consumers must pay for postage since seven dollars of every eight spent for postage goes to labor costs.

The contract includes periodic cost-of-living increases plus a 2 percent general wage increase in the first year, 3 percent in the second and 5 percent in the third year, Andrews said.

The agreement is subject to ratification by members of the four unions in mail bailoting that will take several weeks. Andrews, who heads the largest union, said the settlement is "the best we can get" and ratification is expected.

The negotiating breakthrough came in the final afternoon of three months of talks, and only a few hours before the old contract expired at midnight Thursday, when management withdrew its demand that a no-layoff clause in the old contract be dropped from the new pact.

Union members had signaled a willingness to strike on the job security issue unless management backed down. After that happened, the wage part of the agreement was negotiated with the help of federal mediators.

Management had wanted to eliminate the no-layoff clause to gain greater flexibility in adapting its work force to automated methods of handling mail. Bolger said retention of the clause might hinder the effort in the future, but would not have any immediate effects.

Bolger was called in by federal mediators at about 2:30 a.m. for the final bargaining over wages.

tees is stopped, the minorities say, they "will be irreparably harmed by the continuing violation of their civil rights...

"The moving spirit present at the conception of this nation that all men are created equal will not rest, and the grave purpose of the Constitution to 'establish justice, insure domestic tranquility and secure the blessings of liberties to ourselves and our prosterity' will be only a dream, until every person has an opportunity to be equal," the complaint adds.

"To have this opportunity, every person must be treated equally; this includes being treated equally in the electoral process."

Unlike the City of Lubbock, the Lubbock school system has had and still has minority-group members on its governing board. Joan Ervin, a black, served on the school board from 1970 to 1978; Jose Ramirez, a Mexican-American, was elected school trustee in 1974 and has two years left in his term.

Mrs. Ervin was defeated in her bid for re-election in April. The school board now consists of six whites and one Mexican-American.

As a whole, the school district's population is estimated at 61 percent white, 27 percent Mexican-American and 12 percent black.

Hotel Operation Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying that the chief concessionaire at Yellowstone National Park has allowed Old Faithful Inn to deteriorate, the Interior Department on Friday asked a Senate panel for approval to buy out the company and rehabilitate the hotel.

Assistant Interior Secretary Robert L. Herbst asked a Senate subcommittee on parks and recreation for $20 million to buy out the Yellowstone Park Co., a subsidiary of General Host Co., and rehabilitate the structure.

The park service said another $25 million may be needed for revamping facilities at Grant Village, Lake Lodge and Fishing Bridge.

Herbst testified that the company has let the inn and other buildings deteriorate. The upper floors of the inn have been closed because of its poor condition, and park service Director William J. Whalen told the panel that company facilities this year failed 12 of 26 spot health inspections.

Youth Unemployment Seen As World Problem

By MALCOLM G. SCULLY
(c) 1978 Parific News Service

University degrees are "fast becoming tickets to nowhere," according to a recent report from the International Labor Office (ILO) in Geneva.

Unemployment among youths in 23 developed countries that belong to the Organization for Ecomomic Cooperation and Development reached a 10.7 percent in 1976, a report from OECD indicates.

Youth unemployment — which once affected only a relatively small number of young persons, mainly school dropouts — now affects the yound at large, the OECD adds.

The reports mirror a mounting concern over youth umemployment in a number of Western, developed countries.

While country-to-country data are not wholly comparable, the OECD and ILO reports reveal that umemployment among youths between the ages of 15 and 24 has become a major international headache with potentially dangerous long-term conseqences.

As a result, many countries are reexamining the connection between education and work and are trying to develop programs to ease the transition from school to jobs.

The problem varies from country to country.

According to the International Labor Office report:

In the United States, "projections of supply and demand for university graduates suggest that there will be a surplus of 950,000 over the 1974-1985 period."

In France, a surplus of 16,000 enjineers, architects and scienctists is expected by 1981. In 1976, 45,000 professional and managerial personnel were unable to find work.

In Japan, only 70.7 percent of the 1976 university graduates were able to find jobs by the end of that year.

Anecdotal reports from other countries provide a similar picture. In the Netherlands, for instance, more than 1,000 students who graduated in 1977 were out of work at the end of that year. Among them were 300 engineers and 400 psychologists and sociologists.

The total number of umemployed university graduates reached 4,000 in 1977 — 30 percent higher than the total of umemployed graduates in 1975.

Furthmore, the problem is not limited to the developed world, according to the ILO.

"In some developing countries the high number of umemployed university graduates is a major headache. Their number increased tenfold in India between 1966 and 1971, whereas the total number of workers looking for jobs had increased only half that much.

"In some parts of the Third World there is a glut of graduates in some professions while many others have to be filled by foreign specialists," the report says.

"As more and more professionally qualified people step down on the emploeymnt ladder and accept jobs for which they are overqualified, they set off a chain reaction which affects the entire employments market. This job-bumping forces each category of worker out of his own employment niche and into jobs opening which are below his training and experience."

Officials at the International Labor Office and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development attribute the youth-unemployment problem to shorterm economic recessions and to more fundamental "structural problems." Among the ladder are a recent rapid rise in the number of young workers — those who were born in the postwar baby boom — and a sharp increase in the number of women entering the labor force.

Because some of those structural problems will change over the next two decades, the problem of youth unemployment may ease, the OECD says. "Best current estimates suggest that somewhere between 1985 and 1990, depending on the country in question, the problem will become intense."

Meanwhile, however, countries are looking to the creation of public jobs, to the stimulation of jobs in the private sector and, in some cases, to systems of higher education to meet the problems.

John C. Hoy, executive director of the New England Board of Higher Education, structure of post-secondary education."

"The nation's educational resources have been woefully underutilized in the formulation of policies to ease the mounting dimensions of youth unemployment," he said.

Hoy called for federally financed pilot

Father Battles Bureaucracy To Gain Dead Son's Benefits

By TOM TIEDE

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (NEA) — In September of 1942 a sad telegram was delivered to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Huff: "Deeply regret to inform you that your son, Private First Class Robert B. Huff, U. S. Marine Corps, was killed in action in the performance of his duty and in the service of his country."

The lad was 18 years old. He had dreamed of being a doctor. Instead, eight months after enlisting in World War II, he waded ashore at Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands where he was killed while trying to defend a strategic Allied airfield. Even today, says his father, "it still hurts to remember the boy's death."

Something else also still hurts. When Pfc. Huff was killed the government said he had not applied, and therefore was not eligible, for GI life insurance benefits. The father insists his son was covered, or at least should have been, and he says it stings to have to fight the U.S. year after year to prove a point.

The point, says Huff, now 83, is that his son "thought" he was covered by GI insurance. The father does not know if Robert believed he was automatically protected, or if he had indeed taken out proper papers that were later lost. In any event, Clayton Huff has spent the last 35 years arguing for the disputed money.

He has not argued continuously for all this time. He says he tried for quite a while after the war to straighten out the matter, "but I didn't get anywhere." He wrote to Presidents Truman and Eisenhower, who didn't reply. The Veterans Adminstration also refused to help. So, says Huff, "I gave it up."

Then, earlier this year, something happened to put Huff back in the battle again. President Jimmy Carter announced he supported a congressional measure (HR 9114) to grant life insurance benefits to the widow of Pvt. Eddie Slovik. Slovik was the only soldier in World War II to be executed for cowardice in combat.

Huff says the Slovik thing "boiled me." He says he feels sorry for Slovik's widow, who lives on the edge of poverty in nearby Detroit, "but even so I wonder about the justice of it." If a deserter can suddenly be considered for GI insurance benefits, Huff asks, "then what about my son Bob who died a hero?"

The father is presently repeating this question, though letters, to the Carter administration and to members of Congress. He keeps copies of the correspondence in the same boxes that contain the yellowed effect of his long dead son. "I am fighting in Robert's memory," he says, "the war is not yet over for me."

Huff's war is against the federal bureaucracy. He says it is run by machines instead of people. "They say they have no record of my son's insurance policy. And that's it. They won't consider anything else. They won't look any deeper for the

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Help! Our son, in his 30s, was sick for some time before he found out what was wrong. He had pernicious anemia. But he is allergic to the B-12 shots he must take for this. The itching keeps him awake. Is there no help for such a problem? And why can't he take the B-12 material orally? — Mrs. E.

The B-12 deficiency in the blood is caused by the inability of the stomach lining to absorb it from the food eaten. The same, of course, applies to the pills, so it can't be given orally at all. The stomach lacks a substance that is the key to absorption. One might theorize that your son is sensitive to some substance in the B-12 preparation used for injection, in which case a substitute preparation might be tried. Otherwise, there is no answer, and your son would be faced with a serious situation.

This sounded so unusual to me that I consulted a hematologist (blood specialist). He questions the diagnosis of pernicious anemia at age 30. The deficiency causing PA is usually congenital (present at birth) and is detected early in life. Or it may appear in a milder form quite late in life. Another thing, sensitivity to the B-12 injection is rare. All in all, I believe the diagnosis of prenicious anemia should be checked. A hematologist should be consulted.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was seen by a gynecologist for a common female infection called "monilia." I read where this can also be present in the mouth and digestive tract. If true, how does one know if monilia is present in the mouth? Would this cause a bad breath? If monilia can be eliminated in the vaginal area with medicine, how is it treated in the mouth? — Mrs. J.S.

Monilia is a yeast (and no, it has nothing to do with the yeast used in baking.) It is also called candida, and the infection is called either moniliasis or candidiasis. It is, as you suggest, a common vaginal infection.

When it is present in the mouth membranes, it is called "thrush." This produces painful canker sores and frequently bad odor. But it is not the cause of the bad breath so frequently noticed. Treatment for the oral infection is with anti-fungal medicine tablets that are dissolved in the mouth. Infection in the digestive tract usually causes sores about the anus. Treatment in this case is with anti-fungal pills. See my booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment," for further details. Send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 14-year-old girl of normal height and weight. For the last couple of months I've been drinking large amounts of liquids. So at first I thought I had diabetes, because you mention that as a symptom sometimes. But then I had a urine test taken and the results were normal. Is that a good enough indication or should more tests be taken? — T.W.

Diabetes at your age (14) usually provides more dramatic symptoms that you don't mention — weight loss, frequent urination and fatigue. If you had diabetes in your family or if you were overweight I would be more suspicious. The first voiding of urine in the morning is not reliable for diabetes tests because it can be negative in mild cases. The better test is a blood sugar study done two hours after eating a fairly heavy meal. That way doctors can tell if the digestive process has resulted in too much of the sugar ending up in the bloodstream. Better still is a formal six-hour sugar tolerance test. But I suspect your thirst could be more of a recent habit than anything else.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it common practice for a patient to be taking four tranquilizer pills a day if he is being treated for addiction to such pills? — M.W.

It would not be unusual. In fact withdrawal from seemingly harmless tranquilizer drugs can require the same care as in withdrawal from any addictive hard drug. Dosages should be tapered off gradually even when stopping unaddictive use — both for physical and other reasons.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: With all the new medical knowledge, isn't there a way to remove a cataract from a healthy eye without removing the lens? — Mrs. D.S.A.

You are confused. A cataract IS the lens — a clouded one. Since there is no way to eliminate the cloudiness, the lens is removed.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I really like the way you run things in your column about thoughtful gestures, particularly toward older people, along with the household hints.

It makes me happy to know that humanity still survives in so many hearts. But my hint is not for the older people, it's for the very youngest ones.

When my baby was first born, the commercial baby wipes seemed so cold and harsh for his tender skin. So I thought of something just as handy but warmer.

I bought a box of diaper liners and kept them on the changing table with a vacuum bottle of hot water. At changing time, pour a little hot water in the cup of the vacuum bottle, wet the diaper liner and wash baby. The liners are so thin they cool quickly.

The liner can be thrown away or if you're thrifty it can be washed with the baby's diapers.

Hope some other mothers find this as handy as I did. Michael sure enjoyed it! — Linda Weaver

You're precious, Linda. Your kind words were just like receiving a big bouquet of red roses. Love you!

And I know mothers and babies will love you too for sharing your brilliant idea on how to make baby more comfortable and happy. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I save the lids of my small tubs of margarine, then when I buy any amount of hamburger I pat it into the lids, cover with plastic sandwich bags and freeze the patties.

When I want a hamburger, all I have to do is flip the bottom and, presto, out comes the hamburger, each in a uniform size. — Mrs. Adrienne Beyer

If there is anyone out there who has been saving those lids like I have...here's a great hint!! Hugs — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

I have been reading your column for a long time and find many good ideas and hints in it. Now I have an idea which I would like to share with others.

We have two smoke detectors in our home. One in the back end of the kitchen and another at the kitchen side door entrance. When my wife fries onions or French fries these smoke alarms go off and buzz and there is no way of stopping them as long as she keeps frying.

Now what I do is, before my wife starts to fry, tape a plastic bag over the smoke detectors. Eureka! — no alarm!

But these bags must be removed after the frying is finished or your smoke alarm system will be of no benefit. — Stephen J. Krall

Hon, I had the same problem with mine when it was too near the stove and hard to move it...that buzz...Oh! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a suggestion I've found most useful. Hope you decide to share it with other faithful readers.

For those who love to sew and need an extra space to work, pull out two top dresser drawers and lay your unfolded dressmaker's cutting board across the drawers. Pull up a chair and you're in business.

DEAR HELOISE:

I had an idea that helps me keep glasses straight when I have several children around.

I have colored plastic glasses and I match the color of the glass to what the child is wearing.

For example, a red or pink glass for one who has a red shirt. That way if the child leaves his glass somewhere and comes back later for another drink I know which glass is his. — Karen Yost

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

East's double of six diamonds was one of those Lightner lead directors. West dutifully opened his deuce of spades and there was South somewhere between a rock and a really hard place.

South could finesse and wind up deep in the soup or he could rise with dummy's ace and try to find some way to make 12 tricks.

Can you do as well as South did?

We'll give you a hint. There are two 10 spots in dummy. South used both of them to bring in the slam.

He took dummy's ace of spades and drew trumps with four leads. Then he cashed his ace and king of clubs and ace of hearts and entered dummy by overtaking his jack with the queen.

Next came the jack of clubs lead. Now came the real key play. South chucked his king of hearts.

West was on lead with the queen and had to lead a heart or a club. It made no difference. South discarded his last two spades on dummy's pair of tens.

Cooking Methods Described For Boneless Beef Roast

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Saving money on your food budget sometimes requires the training of a food scientist and the mathematical skills of an electronic calculator.

For example: which of four popular cooking methods actually represents the best value in cooking a boneless beef roast?

We put the question to Pamela Brady of Fayetteville, Ark., a graduate assistant in the Department Of Food Science, Nutrition and Food Systems Administration at the University of Tennessee's College of Home Economics.

Miss Brady and assistant professor Marjorie P. Penfield had conducted laboratory tests comparing beef eye round roasts prepared in a conventional oven, a slow cooker, a pressure cooker and a microwave oven.

They rated the cooking methods of 1 ½ pound roasts for energy consumption, total cooking loss, slicing and sensory values.

The roasts tested came from the same source. Each was cut into two pieces of about equal size and assigned at random to cooking methods. Before cooking, they were wrapped, frozen and stored in a homestyle freezer at -15 degrees Celsius (5 degrees Fahrenheit), then thawed 36-46 hours at refrigerator temperatures. Each was cooked with ½-cup of water in an assigned utensil or appliance.

The pressure-cooked roast rated highest for moisture and juiciness and used only .011 more kilowatt hours of fuel than the slow cooker, Miss Brady said in a telephone interview from Knoxville.

She said the roasts were cooked according to the manufacturers' directions for medium, leaving the meat pink in the center.

Miss Brady said the difference in energy usage between the conventional and microwave ovens was not significant: the microwaved roast used 1.242 kwh, compared with 1.48 kwh in a conventional oven.

The pressure cooker used .389 kwh, compared with .378 kwh for the slow cooker.

Miss Brady said laboratory devices used to test the cooked meats showed the slow cooked meat was more tender than others, and the pressure-cooked and microwaved roasts were about equally tender, but significantly less tender than the conventional oven roasts.

So much for lab tests.

A 15-member panel of students, staff and faculty members who actually ate the meats rated each sample for color, tenderness, juiciness, flavor and overall acceptability. The only significant difference they found was in juiciness: the slow-cooked roasts were exceptionally drier than those prepared by other methods.

The panelists rated all the roasts good to very good in overall acceptability.

The Beef Industry Council of the National Live Stock and Meat Board also has suggestions for stretching food dollars. For a 50-cent postage and handling charge, it will send you a "Beef Buyer's Guide," a cardboard device containing shopping and cooking suggestions and a sliding scale designed to show at a glance which cut of beef is the best buy, based on servings and price per pound. The price-per-pound range reads like ancient history: 69 cents to $3.09.

The guide is out-of-date in another respect: it doesn't mention slow cookers, pressure cookers or microwave ovens as possible cooking alternatives.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our 17-year-old daughter graduated from high school in June. She was four months pregnant and fortunately built so she didn't show anything.

Peggy and her boyfriend, who is 20, want to get married. They are both happy about the baby and his parents are thrilled, which is a real mind-bender. I think it's a disgrace.

The boy has had three years of college and plans to continue so he can teach. His parents have agreed to help financially. Peggy wants to go on to college, too, but with a new baby, I don't know how she will manage.

My husband is very much against the marriage and dislikes the boy for "ruining" his daughter. He says they are both too young to know what marriage is all about and is betting it won't last a year. I am not happy about the way things turned out, but I'm willing to go along with it because they seem to be very much in love. Do you have any thoughts on this situation? — A House Divided

Dear Divided: Your daughter is pregnant. She wants to marry the man and in your state she does not need parental consent. He wants to marry her. She has graduated from high school and could continue her education at a later date. It would be very helpful to all concerned if you and your husband would give them your blessings and hope for the best.

Dear Ann Landers: My father died when I was five and mother raised me to believe I was beautiful and brilliant — destined to marry someone at the very top of the ladder socially and financially. She actually thought Prince Charles would be nice and said so openly.

Somehow my life didn't turn out as mother had planned. I married the only man I ever loved. He was neither rich nor social and, of course, Mother loathed him.

Our wedding was performed in the pastor's study. (No point in having an elegant affair for such an ordinary selection, she said, although we could have well afforded it.) Mother cried throughout the entire ceremony.

All this happened two years ago. My husband and I moved 400 miles away and we have seen Mother only once, at my grandmother's funeral.

Yesterday my aunt phoned to say mother is very ill and would like to see me. Should I go? — Stamford, Conn.

Dear Stam: Yes. Go at once. You will never regret it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband retired six months ago at the age of 65. If he had worked half as hard at his job as he works at his hobbies we would be millionaires.

Five months ago Herbert bought a second-hand violin. He takes two lessons a week and practices from three to four hours every day. I can't stand it. When our kids were growing up somebody was always practicing something, but even as beginners they never bothered me as much as Herbert's constant screeching. Any advice? — Ear Trouble In Florida

Dear Ear: Don't complain because your 65-year-old husband is fiddling around. At least he has a violin.

If you can't schedule your outside activities away from the house when Herbert practices, buy a transistor radio, plug it into your ears and carry it from room to room.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Slayings Condemned By Spain

MADRID (AP) — A man and a woman believed to be left-wing terrorists stepped out of a stolen taxi and gunned down an army general and his aide Friday in what Premier Adolfo Suarez called a clear attempt to provoke an army takeover in Spain.

Police said they arrested six persons in connection with the slayings of Brig. Gen. Juan Sanchez Ramos, a 64-year-old artillery officer, ane his aide, Lt. Col. Juan Perez Rodriguez, 59. Police said none of the suspects appeared to be the assassins.

An anonymous female caller told the newspaper Informaciones that a Maoist organization that goes by the name of GRAPO took responsibility for the attack. Earlier, another caller to the news magazine Cambio 16 said a gang called the Proletarian Armed Group was responsible and said, "We have executed two military fascists this morning, and we will continue doing so."

In a tense session of Parliament three hours after the killings, Suarez called the shooting an attempt "to provoke the armed forces and the police."

He vowed that democratic reforms instituted since the death of dictator Gen. Francisco Franco in 1975 would not be dismantled because of the threat of terrorist action.

"This government is not going to tolerate extremist reactions of any kind," he said, a warning to right-wingers demanding the army seize power to quell violence.

Extreme left-wing groups strongly opposed the monarchy since King Juan Carlos took over from Franco. Through notes to the media, they have repeatedly said they would fight the monarchy using all means in their hands until Spain became a socialist republic.

Government and political party officials have said such groups would do all they can to provoke an army takeover, in hopes of creating public outrage that would pave the way for leftist revolution.

Hours after the shooting, the Chamber of Deputies, the lower house of Parliament, approved a new constitution guaranteeing civil liberties. If approved by the Senate and endorsed in a national referendum, the constitution would replace the charter Franco used to maintain his four-decade iron grip on Spain.

Most of Spain's political parties joined in condemning the assassination and called for a "peaceful demonstration" in support of democracy to be held at a later date.

Witnesses to Friday's assassination said a young man with a mustache and a young woman in a green dress got out of a taxi and approached the general's car as his aide was unfurling the one-star flag denoting the rank of brigadier general.

Police said the two pumped nearly a dozen bullets from their pistols through the windows of the car, and that two bullets hit the general inthe head.

The killers fled in the taxi but a police sergeant attracted by the gunfire shot at the fleeing car. Blood stains found in the abandoned taxi indicated one of the terrorists may have been wounded.

Police sources said the Proletarian Armed Group could have links to a splinter group of the Italian Red Brigades, which also uses the same name.

Police said the six suspects arrested included two members of ths Maoist organization called GRAPO that kidnapped one of King Juan Carlos' advisors in late 1976 and an army general in 1977, both of whom were freed unharmed in police raids.

GRAPO is an acronym that stands for "Revolutionary anti-fascist group of the first of October," a date the group's commandos killed a number of policemen in Madrid three years ago.

Sanchez Ramos, in charge of military supplies and a man with virtually no political record, was the highest-ranking Spaniard assassinated since Premier Luis Carrero Blanco was killed in a bomb blast in 1973.

The assassination pattern was a familiar one in Spain — picking a victim with a regular daily routine.

SHA NA NA — This popular group celebrates its 10th anniversary this month and in honor of the greaser group, Billboard magazine uncovered the disguise they've been operating under all these years. Among the most startling discoveries were, top to bottom, Bowzer, who when de-greased becomes curly-haired Jon Bauman, Columbia graduate and classically trained musician; Johnny Contardo is still the group's swoon without the slick stuff; Jocko Marcellino, one of the original members, has been studying drums for 21 years; and Danny "Dirty Man" McBride, a Boston University graduate who says of Sha Na Na's impact on his life, "a gig is a gig." ## Sleepwear Exemptions Axed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan to exempt some children's sleepwear from flammability standards has been withdrawn by the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

The commission had been considering an exemption for sleepwear in sizes smaller than 1.

After investigating the matter and studying comments received on the plan, however, the agency has decided to withdraw the proposal and to leave the standards in effect.

While studies did not disclose many cases in which infants' sleepwear were involved in fire injuries, a few such cases were reported, and the agency said that in at least two instances flame-retardent sleepwear protected the child from severe injury.

The commission also noted that infants often cannot move about and escape sources of fire, which increases the danger to them.

Several consumers commenting on the proposal had indicated a desire that untreated cotton nightwear be exempted because it is more absorbent and is less likely to cause allergic reactions.

However, the commission concluded that "the potentially higher risk for injury to infants due to burns exceeds the possible benefits from untreated cotton garments."

Sophia On The Lam

Sophia Loren is used to being chased by paparrazzi, but when it comes to the police, even Sophia has trouble making a good getaway.

When she left Rome last year, Sophia was questioned at the airport for nine hours about possible illegal exporting of money. They finally allowed her to fly to Paris, where she met husband Carlo Ponti. Then Carlo was later charged with illegally removing $12 million in Italian lire from the country.

SOPHIA LOREN

Sophia has since been charged as an accomplice, but since exiting Italy she has become a French citizen.

Still, when she returned to her native land recently to do a film with Lina Wertmuller, everyone was expecting the authorities to come a calling. Oddly enough, they never showed.

Gorillas Act Like Gentlemen

If it rained, the wedding was going to be for the birds. As it was Jody Sussman and Kurt Metzger did not have to tie the knot in the Bird House of the Cincinnati Zoo. They got married in front of the gorilla exhibit.

The couple was wed recently before the zoo's gorillas, with only a narrow moat separating them from the hairy gang in the outdoor display.

"We wouldn't think of getting married anyplace else," said the bride before the ceremony. "We both love the zoo so much and we go there as often as we can." The groom added: "We both have a tremedous love for animals and wanted to be married in a place that means the most to us, and that's the zoo. I think it's great to get married in front of the gorillas. I prefer them as wedding guests over a lot of people I know."

Baboon Monkey Business

When John Johnson of Columbus, Ohio, visited the African Lion Safari in Rockton, Ontario, the baboons tried to make a monkey of him.

The last thing he expected was that a band of baboon buffoons would acquire a craving for his car. But it seems just such a band of merry monkeys climbed atop his car and began turning his vinyl roof into dinner.

At least Johnson escaped with his skin intact, and on his return to Columbus, he didn't monkey around. After submitting an auto insurance claim, Johnson collected $117.52 for repairs to his vinyl roof.

Council Challenges Ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FMC Corp. has agreed to drop some of its advertising for Bolens tractors following a challenge by the National Council of Better Business Bureaus.

Listing 'Factory-to-You" prices, the ads directed consumers to dealers where the tractors were sold.

The council challenged the "factory to you" claim because a dealer was involved in the sale.

FMC responded that it had intended to imply that the dealer bought direct from the factory without a distributor involved. After the council stated that the claim might be misleading, the firm agreed to drop the ads.

The action was one of 11 challenges to advertising brought in June by the council.

In six cases, the council investigations were closed when advertisers reported that the questioned ads already had completed their runs or were about to do so.

These included challenges to claims made for Anacin-3 pain reliever, Car-Plate auto wax, Rinsenvac carpet cleaning systems, Gaviscon antacid tablets, OXY-10 acne medicine and Success Rice.

Norcliff Thayer, makers of OXY-II, said it would take the council comments into consideration in developing future advertising.

WASHOE, the mother-to-be

Chimp Pregnant Again

Washoe, the first chimpanzee to acquire the mystery of sign language, is pregnant again. And the scientific community is more nervous than a ward full of expectant fathers.

Washoe's first infant died within hours of its birth in 1976, thus postponing research by University of Oklahoma psychologists to determine whether the chatty chimp could or would teach her offspring the American Sign Language (Ameslan) that she uses to communicate with her primate and human companions.

If the language were to be transmitted from mother to child, some widely held scientific theories would be smashed. It is thought to be an ability unique to human beings.

The infant should be born around Feb. 1, 1979. We'll have to wait to see whether or not mother and child strike up a conversation soon after.

By MURRAY OLDER OLDERMAN

PALO ALTO, Calif. (NEA) — From his pocket, Lou Robinson pulls out a little square of silicon that measures ¼ of a inch on each side.

"This is a memory bank," he explains. "It holds 48,000 different bits of information.

"It is possible in our technology to compress 100 million bits of information into a square inch."

Lou Robinson's mission in life is, bluntly, to promote computers — as a way of life.

He wants to allay the fears that we're about to be devoured by monstrous machines that spew out myriads of numbers and symbols, reducing us to tools of the automatons.

Robinson, a mathematician by training and a former college professor, is the director of scientific computing for International Business Machines Corp. He checks the dozen scientific centers that IBM, the biggest U.S. computer firm, maintains around the world — from Heidelberg to Tel Aviv to Palo Alto.

"We're in a new society," he cries out, "an information world.

"For personalized, customized treatment for everyone," he elaborates, "you need computers." They can bank and channel information on the differing facets of every individual.

"If you want to treat everyone the same, without regard the their individuality," he shrugs, "you don't need computers."

Most of us might not realize how much computerization already permates our daily lives.

Computers are used to make airline reservations, rent cars, reserve hotel rooms, check out books from libraries, and control the assignment of police cars and fire engines.

"To provide the information you get on your phone bill," says Robinson, "everybody in this country would have to work for the telephone company if the bills weren't computerized."

There is hardly a citizen in this country who doesn't already come under the pervasive influence of the computer.

On the shelves of the nation's supermarkets, 80 per cent of the goods have been marked with symbols that consist of 10 lines of varying intensity. They identify the product and its price when checked through the computerized register.

Computer control checking accounts. When you read the magnetic characters at the bottom of a check, some of the numbers themselves really don't mean anything. But the amount of ink in them does the identification.

To Mr. and Mrs. Average, this tremendous reliance on machines can be overwhelming and frightening.

"Automatons were all evil," admits Robinson, "until Isaac Asimov started writing science fiction. Our mission is to show the public — convince the public —, that these machines do good things."

Over a billion dollars a year is invested in developing computer technology by IBM alone.

Oddly, in the world of computers small is better. In Palo Alto, a 50-pound desk top computer (cost: $9,000) has been developed. It is as powerful and comprehensive as a machine that cost $1 million a decade ago.

The computer age is remarkably recent. UNIVAC, the first commercial electronic data processing machine, arrived in the 1950s, became popular during the national political conventions and led to the new world.

There are computer horror stories: a deficit of $2 billion in a personal checking account, or no airline reservation because of a mechanical failure.

But human errors affect the feeding of information to computers.

"Programming screws up more than the machines do," says Robinson. "These are not hardware errors when the computer goes awry."

The advent of the transistor, miniaturing the technology, has put computers within reach of individual budgets. Last year, 50,000 computers were sold for home use.

"By 1984," says Robinson (referring to the mythical year George Orwell's "Big Brother" takes over), "30 per cent of all employed people will have to have some knowledge of computers."

Ancient Ship Shows 'Modern' Techniques

By WILLIAM J. O'NEILL
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — Archelogists hope this summer to recover a "modern" ship that sank off Turkey more than 900 years ago.

Divers retrieved much of the freighter's cargo of glassware last year and now are working on the hull. The American-Turkish project is directed by George F. Bass, head of the American Institute of Nautical Archeology.

Dr. Bass reports in the June National Geographic that part of the 11th-century vessel has been preserved because: "In her final plunge she had come to rest at the base of a rocky slope that had tipped her on her part side into a bank of sand.

"The sand had protected that portion of the hull, including the 30-foot-long keel, from shipworms that otherwise would have made short work of it."

He thinks the wreck may be the earliest example yet found of a vessel built using the technique still followed today.

Frederick van Doornieck of Texas A &M University, who is working with Dr. Bass, explains that "Greek and Roman ships were built without an inner framework of ribs."

Planks were joined to form a hull and the frames were inserted afterward, he says, making "a relatively weak hull, something you'd hardly want in a storm or on a deep-ocean voyage."

Later shipwrights learned that by first erecting a rigid framework of keel and ribs, then attaching the planks, they could build sturdier craft. But almost nothing is known about how and when the change took place.

Dr. Bass, whose research is supported by the National Geographic Society, previously uncovered a wreck from the 7th century that may represent a transition period. It had been built frame first from keel to waterline, but from there up its hull was constructed by the ancient method.

His latest find lies in 110 feet of water at Serce Limani, or Sparrow Harbor, Turkey. An anchor in the sand forward of the wreck suggests the vessel may have been anchored when it foundered.

Divers last spring brought up several amphorae, the large clay jars used to carry oil or wine, and fragments and specimens of nearly 200 different shapes of glassware.

Dr. Bass that on one dive he brushed sand away from what he expected to be a glass shard and found instead a dim-necked bottle "miraculously unbroken."

"In the small crater left by the bottle lay nested clear-glass tumblers, each paper think and engraved with gracefully swirling patterns," he relates.

Gunduz Golonu, of the Istanbul State Academy of Fine Arts, concluded the tumblers are of Islamic origin, and Islamic glass weights

Chemical analysis of the glassware and cullet — large chunks of raw glass found in the wreck — may enable experts to determine whether the glass came from Egypt, the Levant, or even from Persia.

Nations Seek Solution To Youth Unemployment

projects in which colleges and universities would develop "new strategies for relating education and work for the jobless."

For instance, he said, a college or university could establish programs in which unemployed youths could work part-time and take courses on campus.

Other countries have experimented with the concept of paid educational leaves for older workers to open up jobs for young people, the OECD reports.

Germany, France, Belgium, Italy, Japan and Sweden have passed laws enabling workers to pursue "recurrent education" without losing their jobs.

Many of the reforms adopted to ease the problems of youth unemployment are too new to be of immediate benefit, the organization reports. Even with assurances that they will be able to return to their jobs, it notes, workers may be unwilling to take "paid educational leaves" in a period of economic recession.

Generally, observers in the United States and other countries feel that efforts to cure the problem of youth unemployment have had, at best, mixed results. A number of social scientists say they fear the consequences, especially as the problem spreads from persons who have dropped out of school at an early age to those with university degrees.

Torsten Husen, director of the Institute for the Study of International Problems in Education at the University of Stockholm, notes in an OECD analysis:

"As the elimination of economic and geographic obstacles and the development of mass education enhanced opportunities for further education, there occurred a revolution of rising expectations among young people in the less-privileged classes. Formal equality of access to education was expected to lead to equality of life chances.

"It is easy to imagine the frustration felt, particularly by these students, on discovering that their degree leads only to unemployment or, at best, to poorly paid jobs previously held by people with less education."

One consequence, he says, has been that "even those (young people) who are quite negative about the schooling they are receiving are ready to embark on long courses of study. They are perfectly aware that the more their formal education conforms to the conventional criteria, the better their position for entry to the next level of education, and also for employment and subsequently for social advancement."

Husen and other observers already note a shift in the attitudes of youths toward education that may reflect a reaction to the lack of jobs. In his report, Husen indentifies changes in attitudes:

Students oppose curicula centered on specific occupational skills because they feel they are being locked into occupations from which it will be difficult to escape.

Reforms introduced in France and Sweden to gear education programs to labor market needs, he says, "have been poorly received by the students, who refuse to be trained solely as function of employer's needs."

They reject the "notion of a successful career as a continuous climb from one point of selection to another, where the able and amitious succeed and the others fail."

They actively resist the "spirit of competition and the cult of diplomas." They "increasingly regard their studies as something that can in various ways be combined with a career."

They attach more importance "to personal fulfillment, security and the chance to devote time to rewarding leisure activities."

Husen notes that many of the shifts had taken place "among young people from comfortable homes (who) increasingly look for intrinsic satisfaction in their work."

However, he adds, "while poorer and less-educated youths attach more importance" to the benefits of work, their attitudes are shifting as well.

Krishan Kumar, lecturer in sociology at Great Britian's University of Kent, has suggested that such a shift in attitudes must take place to cope with the slowdown in growth of the traditional industrial societies of the West.

"We are forced to consider different ways of reordering industrial society such that we can meet a future of slow or even no growth without splitting the society apart by conflicts over distribution," he wrote recently.

Officials Deny Getting Request For Insurance

The father believes the piece of paper may well have existed at one time. He doubts his son would have gone into combat without insurance. The $10,000 GI policy only cost $6.40 a month in those days; besides, Huff says the boy knew he was going into rough places and had told relatives he was covered by insurance.

What happened to the records, then? The father says they were probably lost. In 1942, he points out, the nation was brawling for its survival, the military was expanding rapidly, and paper work was not always reliable. "It's possible a company clerk misplaced the form, or a ship bringing it home was sunk. Who knows?"

Or perhaps the policy fell victim to bureaucratic bungling. Huff says that kind of thing was not unknown during the war. He recalls that his son was reported killed twice, the first time erroneously and the family received the personal property of another dead soldier before the wretched mistake was corrected.

Yet even if the policy record was not lost, even if it never existed, Huff says the benefits should be paid: "Maybe Robert thought he was routinely covered. He was only 18, very frightened, and he had other things to worry abut. Maybe he just assumed that his government would take care of those kind of details."

Huff says the government should be responsible for such details in wartime. He says the country puts itself in an unworthy position, "and a faithless one," when it sends young men to war without benefit of insurance. "How many widows have been left penniless," he wonders, "how much extra suffering has there been?"

FIGHTS FOR BENEFITS — Clayton Huff's son Robert was killed in action at Guadalcanal in 1942. Although the father insists the 18-year-old Marine was covered by GI life insurance benefits, he has spent the last 35 years arguing with the government for the disputed money.(NEA Photo)

Lawmaker Preparing Legislation To Aid Dead GIs' Families

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A bill will soon be introduced in the House of Representatives to bring relief for at least some of the families of uninsured casualties of World War II.

Rep. Bob Carr, D-Mich., says he is preparing legislation to extend the so-called "Pearl Harbor Insurance" to uninsured soldiers who died in the first two years of the war.

Pearl Hsarbor insurance benefits of $10,000 were given gratuitously to victims of the Japanese attack on Hawaii. Because of the absence of hostilities prior to the attack, many servicemen had not bothered to apply for regular GI insurance.

The original Pearl Harbor payments covered a period from October 8, 1940, to April 21, 1942. Rep. Carr's bill would extend the benefits to the survivors of men killed through 1942.

Travelers Discover Problems With 'Wrong Kind' Of Money

By BARBARA S. MOFFET
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON –Some travelers find out the hard way that certain forms of money aren't worth a wooden nickle on a trip.

"A lot of people assume they can cash a personal check anywhere they go, but that's not true," pointed out Anna Ingram, director of airprot volunteer services for the Travelers Aid Society of Washington, D.C.

Personal checks can be used to buy airplane and train tickets if the traveler has identification bearing his name, address, and signature. But the person who expects to write a check for cash or anything else on a trip is often out of luck.

Second-party checks are the source of even more despair among travelers, who often end up telling their tales of woe at one of the 69 Travelers Aid booths in the nation's airports, train stations, and bus depots.

Second-party checks, such as paychecks, cashier's checks, and money orders, that are made out to the traveler cannot even be used to buy a seat on a plane, train, or bus, Mrs. Ingram told the National Geographic Society. Even when such checks are made out to the transportation line, they are not universally accepted.

What kind of money is best to take on a trip? Mrs. Ingram suggests four forms: Travelers checks, at least some of them in small denominations; personal checks, to pay some transportation and some hotel bills, major credit cards, for identification and some purchases; and a bit of cash, to pay extras such as parking fees.

Although its main purpose is to help the stranded traveler return home, Travelers Aid does everything from lending an empty-pocketed traveler 15 cents for a phone call to helping a destitute passenger put his life back together in a new city.

If, for instance, a traveler discovers he lacks the cash to buy a ticket home, a Travelers Aid representative will study his predicament and help him get out of it.

The best way for a person without money to get home–or anywhere else–is a "prepaid" ticket, Mrs. Ingram says. To get one, the stranded traveler must have a friend or relative buy a ticket for him in an airline or railway ticket office anywhere in the country. Some bus tickets can also be prepaid.

Record of the purchase is transmitted by computer or telephone, making the tickets available almost immediately. Some tickets can even be "over-paid," so that the traveler gets cash back along with the ticket.

Besides money tips, Travelers Aid has some advice for people picking up their friends at the airport. Before leaving for the airport, they should find out the airline, flight number, time of arrival, and the name of the airport in cities that have more than one.

Long-Lasting Duos Enjoy Lovers' Lane

WOODLAND, Calif. (AP) — Perhaps it's the water, but something on McKinley Avenue is conducive to long marriages. Five couples on the street have stayed together for a total of 251 years.

"It's an outstanding neighborhood," says Nola Christensen, who celebrated her 50th wedding anniversary Wednesday. "Such nice family people live here. It's like a big family, but we're not in each others' hair."

Her husband, Chris, said he thought their long marriage was due to "good water, good liquor and we behave ourselves."

The Christensens have lived for 24 years on the street, which used to be Lovers' Lane in this town of 27,000 about 20 miles northwest of Sacramento.

Next door to them are George and Vida Daly, who will have been married 40 years on Sept. 4 and who moved to the block in 1952.

Next to the Dalys are Harry and Sena Gravink, whose 60th anniversary was July 13 and who have lived on the street since 1958.

Across the street are Tom and Hilda Wallace, who will mark their 49th anniversary Sept. 8. Their next-door neighbors are Sam and Jennie Harding, who had their 52nd anniversary June 18 and who moved to the block in 1963.

"We have wonderful neighbors," said Daly.

"I don't see them as neighbors but as family," his wife added. "I may not see them every day, but I consider them to be like family."

The Dalys had no children, but the other four couples have 11 children and 12 grandchildren among them. All the couples are retired.

Banks Eye Fingerprint Requirement

By PEGGY HUGHES
(c) 1978 Pacific News Service

Banks across the nation are increasingly insisting on taking customers' fingerprints to deter fraud, and the controversial practice might spread to whatever people write checks.

Proponents contend the system protects customers, and they say the fingerprints won't be distributed beyond the institutions that use the system. But a 1976 Supreme Court decision that punctured confidentiality of bank records weakens that assertion.

Opponents say the practice intimidates customers. Banks cite its effectiveness, but to some extent this effectiveness relies on criminals' ignorance of the system's drawbacks.

Behind the controversy is a commercial venture begun by Identicator Corp. in 1972 to market an inkless rapid form of fingerprinting. Targets for the system include department stores, supermarkets, hotels and gas stations, although the prime market in the United States currently is banks. About 125 banking corporations in the country fingerprint customers, according to the American Bankers Association. A majority of the 50 major banks in the country use it, according to the company that markets the system.

East Coast users include Bankers Trust, Chase Manhattan, Chemical Bank and Citibank. Security Pacific National and Crocker National are among those who use it on the West Coast. The practice has expanded to Europe, the Middle East and South America.

Among 16 banks surveyed in the San Francisco Bay Area, seven use fingerprinting in some way in the state, two are testing it and two have dropped it.

The use varies. Fingerprints have been required for new accounts, large transactions, special credit card features, interbranch or interbank transactions, alternate identification or when a teller doubts the customer or check. According to the banks, the prints are filed, neither used nor referred to unless a crime warrants it. Some banks use it in all branches or just where it is felt fraud justifies it.

Customers who object to the practice are told they can take their money elsewhere unless they are considered "substantial and can be readily identified," the bank officials questioned said. Most, however, said few people object.

Although some people do get upset about it, one bank worker said, "we can usually talk them into it. You tell them it's for their own benefit. And then they're very pleased."

At another bank an official said people felt they were considered "as a crook to begin with." The bank subsequently dropped it.

"Usually the older men get upset about it --the professionals, businessmen and attorneys," said another official.

But another said, "None of us even like it. I'd probably walk out myself," he said, if a store asked for his print.

And another official said, "They think it's going to be used for something other than just identification. People think there are so many secret files on them. That's not the case, but..."

According to Oscar Pieper, president of Identicator Corp., "It's far from being Big Brother."

Use of fingerprints as identification and as a deterrent should be distinguished he said. Tellers don't check prints as they do signatures, but rely on the assumption that the demand for a print will scare off would-be criminals.

Regardless of the use, the practice is objectionable to Charles Marson, Former director of the Northern California American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and now a law professor at Stanford University.

People get frisked at the courthouse, X-rayed at the airport, shaken down at city hall and now fingerprinted at the bank, he said. People are "getting used to surrendering their privacy."

The American Civil Liberties Union is looking into fingerprint, but hasn't yet formed a position on the issue, according to Alan Scholosser, ACLU counsel for Northern California. No statutes clearly declare fingerprinting illegal, but, he said that doesn't mean it's legal.

The controvery centers on these arguments:

It catches and convicts criminals.

Actually, not even proponents claim this, though they contend it helps. Neither the banks surveyed nor Identicator Corp. Keep track of its effectiveness as evidence in court.

As industry paper by Card Inc. said the system works because "criminals do not generally know that it is unlikely that they will be apprehended based just on fingerprints."

However, fingerprints could prove instrumental in catching criminals in the near future. A few police departments have a computer that matches prints with those on file. However, the expense limits its popularity.

It deters crime.

Industry studies have found that where fingerprinting was used there was not as sharp an increase in fraud as where it wasn't used. Bank of America however, decided to "phase out" fingerprinting after two years because, "We haven't been able to substantiate that there's any saving," according to Shirley Norten, the bank's public information officer.

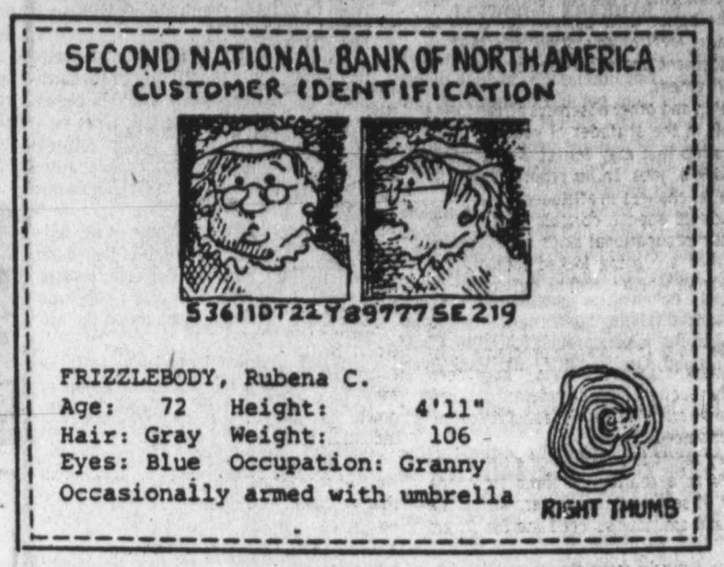
When the American Bankers Association was asked why other banks continue to use the system, spokesmen Sheldon Golub said, "They haven't been convinced that it's not a deterrent."

It's not identification.

For technical reasons, the fingerprinting system lacks the computer ability to match prints. Opinions vary, however, on whether it's impossible or just a matter of time.

Fingerprints don't leave the bank.

The U.S. Supreme Court held in 1976 that "the depositor takes the risk, in revealing his affairs to another, that the information will be conveyed by that person to the government...even if the information is revealed on the assumption that it will be used only for a limited purpose and the confidence placed in the third party will not be betrayed."



The American Bankers Association, when asked why banks would require fingerprinting under the pretext of confidentiality when they couldn't assure it, responded, "It is confidential...unless an authorized government source" investigates. "The IRS can go in where others fear to tread. It's just a fact of life in society."

Congress is considering a bill that would restrict government access to financial records by requiring an administration summons or subpoena and customer permission or a special waiver.

A few states, including California, have such right to financial privacy acts, but most do not.

A few states, including California, have such rights to financial privacy acts, but most do not.

They are, but the variation is not always obvious.

In one court case the use of more stringent than usual criteria reversed the supposed match of two prints and unraveled the case against a murder suspect.

The criteria were stricter than what the FBI or courts require.

An FBI spokesperson disputed the case --a flawed sample could show an illusory difference. He defended the FBI's standards. "If the FBI says it's identical, it's identical. There's no ifs, and, or buts about it."

Man Samples Life's Delights, But Misses Most Valuable Gift

By MARK TWAIN

One

In the morning of life came the good fairy with her basket, and said: "Here are the gifts. Take one, leave the others. And be wary, choose wisely; oh, choose wisely! for only one of them is valuable."

The gifts were five: Fame, Love, Riches, Pleasure, Death. The youth said, eagerly:

"There is no need to consider"; and he chose Pleasure.

He went out into the world and sought out the pleasures that youth delights in. But each in its turn was shortlived and disappointing, vain and empty; and each, departing, mocked him. In the end he said: "These years I have wasted. If I could but choose again, I would choose wisely."

Two

The fairy appeared, and said:

"Four of the gifts remain. Choose once more; and oh, remember — time is flying, and only one of them is precious."

The man considred long, then chose Love; and did not mark the tears that rose in the fairy's eyes.

After many, many years the man sat by a coffin, in an empty home. And he communed with himself, saying: "One by one they have gone away and left me; and now she lies here, the dearest and the last. Desolation after desolation has swept over me; for each hour of happiness the treacherous trader, Love, has sold me I have paid a thousand hours of grief. Out of my heart of hearts I curse him."

How little a while it was! Then came envy; then detraction; then calumny; then hate; then persecution. Then derision, which is the beginning of the end. And last of all came pity, which is the funeral of fame. Oh, the bitterness and misery of renown! Target for mud in its prime, for contempt and compassion in its decay."

Four

"Choose yet again." It was the fairy's voice. "Two gifts remain. And do not despair. In the beginning there was but one that was precious, and it is still here."

"Wealth — which is power! How blind I was!" said the man. "Now, at last, life will be worth the living. I will spend, squander, dazzle. These mockers and despisers will crawl in the dirt before me, and I will feed my hungry heart with their envy. I will have all luxuries, all joys, all enchantments of the spirit, all contentments of the body that man holds dear. I will buy, buy, buy! Deference, respect, esteem, worship — every pinchbeck grace of life the market of a trivial world can furnish forth. I have lost much time, and chosen badly heretofore, but let that pass: I was ignorant then, and could but take for best what seemed so."

Three

Three short years went by, and a day came when the man sat shivering in a mean garret; and he was gaunt and wan and hollow-eyed, and clothed in rags; and he was gnawing a dry crust and mumbling:

"Curse all the world's gifts, for mockeries and gilded lies! And mis-called, every one. They are not gifts, but merely lendings. Pleasure, Love, Fame, Riches: they are but temporary disguises for lasting realities — Pain, Grief, Shame, Poverty. The fairy said true: in all her store there was but one gift which was precious, only one that was valueless. How poor and cheap and mean I know those others now to be, compared with that inestimable one, that dear and sweet and kindly one, that steeps in dreamless and enduring sleep the pains that persecute the body, and the shames and griefs that eat the mind and heart. Bring it! I am weary, I would rest."

Five

The fairy came, bringing again four of the gifts, but Death was wanting. She said"

"I gave it to a mother's pet, a little child. It was ignorant, but trusted me, asking me to choose for it. You did not ask me to choose."

Braniff Notes Earnings Hike

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International Corp. reported record second quarter net earnings Wednesday of $11,209,000, equal to 56 cents per share, up 14.9 percent over the same period last year.

Braniff Board Chairman Harding L. Lawrence said the record second quarter brought Braniff's net earnings for the first six months of the year to $20,084,000, equal to $1.00 per share. This also was a record for the period and an increase of 22.5 percent from last year.

Operating revenues in the second quarter were a record $236,022,000 with operating expenses of $214,887,000. Operating income was $21,135,000, up 19.3 percent from the same 1977 period.

Lawrence noted the second quarter included $2.5 million in mutual aid payable to a struck airline (Northwest).

He said airline passenger traffic also set new records during the second quarter and first half and that all divisions of the airline, including domestic, Hawaii, Mexico, South America and the new European service, contributed to the increases.

...in water

Scientists fear we may have to add water to that lengthening list of cancer-causing substances. The reason is contamination of water supplies by chemical discharges from factories, farms and sewage systems.

The Environmental Protection Agency recently tested the water of 113 U.S. cities for a groq of chemicals called trihalomethanes, some of which are thought to be dangerous. Cities with fewest of the chemicals in their systems were:

1. Baton Rouge, La.
2. Boston, Mass.
3. Fresno, Calif.
4. Greenville, Miss.
5. Madison, Wis.
6. Portland, Maine.
7. Providence, R.I.
8. Rockford, Ill.
9. Spokane, Wash.
10. Whiting, Ind.

1. Annadale, Va.
2. Charleston, S. C.
3. Columbus, Ohio.
4. Houston, Tex.
5. Huron, S. D.
6. Ilwaco, Wash.
7. Jackson, Miss.
8. Melbourne, Fla.
9. Oklahoma City
10. Tampa, Fla.

...with women

The Ladies Home Journal did not give out its "Women of the Year" awards in the days when Eleanor Roosevelt, Helen Keller and Elizabeth Cady Stanton were doing their good works. So, the magazine included the three posthumously among the recipients of its 1978 "Women of the Year" title.

The 10 modern women who shared the honors with Roosevelt, Keller, and Stanton were:

Social Responsibility: First Lady Rosalyn Carter.
Performing Arts (Movies and Television): Actress Cicely Tyson.
Science: Nobel laureate Rosalyn S. Yalow.
Politics and Government (State and Local): Carol Bellamy, president of the New York City Council.
Music (Classical) Conductor Margaret Hillis.
Music (Popular): Singer Natalie Cole.
Sports: Tennis player Chris Evert.

...with idols

You probably would not find Billy Graham and Pope Paul VI in the same church pew. Nor would you find Jacqueline Onassis and Golda Meir patronizing the same dress designer.

But you would find all four on Public Opinion magazine's compilation of American idols of the past 15 years. The list is based on annual polls of the living men and women Americans admire the most.

Top 10 men for the 1963 to 1977 period were:

1. Dwight Eisenhower.
2. Billy Graham.
3. Lyndon Johnson.
4. Robert Kennedy.
5. Richard Nixon.
6. Edward Kennedy.
7. Pope Paul VI.
8. Hubert Humphrey.
9. George Wallace.
10. Harry Truman

Most admired women for the same period were:

1. Jacqueline Onassis
2. Mamie Eisenhower.
3. Golda Meir.
4. Lady Bird Johnson.
5. Pat Nixon.
6. Rose Kennedy.
7. Indira Gandhi
8. Queen Elizabeth II.
9. Margaret Chase Smith.
10. Ethel Kennedy.

Urbanites Turn To Houseboats

By BARBARA McDOWELL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

For some, it's deliverance from lawn mowing. For others, it's catching dinner from the front porch. For most, it's simply the peaceful spell of water all around.

That's why some people have abandoned urban congestion and suburban sprawl for houseboats.

According to Seattle houseboat aficionados Ben Dennis and Betsy Case, nobody is quite certain how many people live on the water. The continent's largest houseboat colonies — numbering several hundred floating homes each — are located in the waters around Sausalito, Calif.; Portland, Ore.; Seattle, and Vancouver, B. C.

But houseboats aren't only a West Coast phenomenon.

Case, a Louisiana native, estimates that as many as 200 "shantyboats" may be tucked into the bayous of the Mississippi River. A few houseboats have even been sighted off Manhattan in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty.

Floating homes are nothing new. In researching their new book, "Houseboats: Reflections of North America's Floating Homes," Dennis and Case learned that Americans and Canadians have been living in houseboats for nearly a century.

For instance, wealthy San Franciscans spent turn-of-the-century summers aboard their plush arks. Many of the boats became their owners' full-time homes in 1906 following the city's devastating earthquake and fire.

Meanwhile, more proletarian houseboat colonies were being founded by Pacific Northwest loggers. Some of their camps on water included floating hotels, general stores and "cook houses" as well as homes.

Originally all-male preserves, the communities soon imported female cooks, who eventually became wives and mothers. According to Dennis and Case, as many as 50 such outposts may still dot British Columbian inlets.

Farther east, fleets of shantyboats traveled down the Mississippi from St. Paul to New Orleans in the late 19th century. One of the voyagers was "Espanto, the Mexican-Indian Medicine Man" — actually a Michigan fellow named Billy — who once sold more than $1,000 in remedies for assorted human afflictions in a 10-day period. He didn't even have to leave his boat to do so.

"Used to be a lot of houseboats, but people went to something better," one Mississippi River resident told Dennis and Case. "Me, I wouldn't have anything else. I sleep so quiet every night."

But many houseboat dwellers are now spending their nights tossing and turning, thanks to local government efforts to upgrade floating communities. In many populated areas, a houseboat must pass official inspection and be moored at one of the limited number of approved berths with water, power and sewer hook-ups.

Houseboat residents have not always given in to these requirements without a fight, Case notes.

Seven years ago off Sausalito, the conflict erupted into the "Battle of Richardson Bay." After county officials began towing away artist Russell Grissom's "substandard" boat, a hastily formed convoy of Chinese junks, canoes, rowboats and tugs followed in Grissom's defense.

Case describes the outcome of the battle as a "standoff." Grissom regained his boat in the confusion, but civic leaders pressed ahead with their plan to upgrade Sausalito's "Haight-Ashbury-on-the-water."

Forced improvements such as these have brought a more affluent group of residents to the water. According to Dennis and Case, today's typical houseboat residents are professionals — doctors, lawyers and stockbrokers — ranging in age from their late 20's to early 40s. Some have young children, who are strapped into lifejackets day and night.

As one member of the Sausalito counterculture lamented, "It all started with a bunch of drunken plumbers during the war, then the artists moved in ... now the rich people have discovered the lifestyle."

Despite their change in economic status, houseboat dwellers remain an independent lot. "Mavericks," Dennis calls them.

Case describes them as "a hard-working, free and easy group of people who have a live-for-today attitude and a love of the water." Most love the water so much that they have small sailboats tied to their floating homes, adds Dennis.

Houseboat living seems to bring out one's artistic tendencies. Owners are continually modifying their floating homes, adding a stained-glass window here or a redwood tub there.

"Houseboats reflect the spirit of their owners more than any other dwelling since man discovered caves," claims Case.

Houseboats visited by Dennis and Case range in price from the whimsical "Annie's Boat," built mainly of scavenged materials by an ex-schoolteacher who says she "took Peter Pan too seriously," to the $500,000 "Taj Mahal," complete with elevator and swimming pool.

"Anything that floated at one time or another has probably been made into a houseboat," says Case. Some are renovated sidewheelers, ferries, battle tugs and barges. And the authors discovered a "houseboot," fashioned from recycled offset printing plates to resemble a high-topped shoe.

The size of North America's houseboat population has changed little in recent years, says Case. And she sees few prospects for expansion in the years just ahead.

But for looking farther into the future, Dennis forsees a time when floating homes may be used to "take the pressure off highly populated area."

Docile Women Amaze Career Researcher

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — A researcher at St. mary's University says he can't understand why women are so docile in accepting less money and less prestige than men in their careers.

"You'd think women would be furious — underpaid, underused and in lower prestige jobs, yet with the same qualifications or ability as their male counterparts," said Dr. Cahrles N. Weaver, a professor of management who recently published a survey comparing the professional satisfaction of men and women.

Weaver's study, published in a management journal, samples the relative satisfaction of men and women throughout the work force ranging from judges, doctors, lawyers and business administrators to janitors and manual workers.

Surprisingly, Weaver said, he found women were equally satisifed with their jobs.

The survey may reveal two significant factors about employed women, the researcher said.

First, Weaver said women do not seem to be fully aware of job discrimination they may suffer, and second, if they are aware of their inferior treatment, they apparently have not learned effective methods of gaining partity with men."

"The problem seems to rest largely in women's attitudes," he said. "If they recognize imbalance and exert means to correct it, it seems to be only in scattered pockets."

The professor said he based his research on questionaires gathered by the National Opinion Research Center at the Univesity of Chicago from white men and women from age 18 to retirement.

Although the data were conducted from 1972-74, Weaver said he believes there is little evidence of a change in women's attitudes since then.

"For instance, it is obvious that the Equal Rights Amendment has lost ground," he said. "At a regional meeting of sociologists I attended not long ago, women were asked if an invitation to hold a convention in a state that has rescinded the ERA should be declined. The motion was defeated."

Weaver said he soon will underrtake a survey for a project to upgrade the status of secretaries, sponsored by the National Association of Federally Employed Women."

"Many times the contributons of these secretaries are actually of greater value than the boss', but they are not given recognition, prestige or adeqcate pay for such service," he said.

Roller Coasters Make Comeback Across America

By DONALD J. FREDERICK
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON --That thrill-a-second-in-the-sky machine, the roller coaster, is roaring down the comback track.

In the last few years parks around the country have spent millions of dollars trying to provide the ultimate in heart-stopping rides. Some of their creations include the Turn of the Century, the Rebel Yell, Screamin' Eagle, and Space Mountain.

The newest entry in the sinking stomach sweepstakes is a $5-million creation called the "Loch Ness Monster" in the Old Country, a park near Wiliamsburg, Va. At one point, it subjects victims to a g-force of 3.5; that's enough to give a test pilot the jitters.

All this has not been lost on a group of fanatics who spend their vacations going from park to park trying to find the perfect ride. They have plenty of roller coasters to choose from. There are about 200 in the United States, and more are being built, reports National Geographic World magazine.

That's a far cry from the bonanza of roller coasters that wowed the Roaring Twenties crowd. Experts estimate that from 900 to 1,300 of the spider webs of white painted wood dominated amusement parks before the Depression brought their demise.

among them the Cyclone at Coney Island. Gulps an ardent Cyclone fan. "You look down from the top of the first hill, straight down 100 feet, and you can't even scream because you know you're dead."

In the '20s another Cyclone at an amusement park on the Canadian side of Lake Erie reputedly was even more terrifying. A nurse was on duty at a first aid station, ministering to riders who fainted.

LOCH NESS MONSTER — Coaster Connoisseurs savor an opening day ride on the Loch Ness Monster, one of the recent entries in the wildest-ride-in-the-sky sweepstakes. Giant loops, terrifying turns, and plunges into total darkness are some of the embellishments that are giving roller coaster addicts a run for their money. Theme parks have spurred the coaster's revival; and there are about 200 to choose from, although that's a sharp dip from the 900 to 1,300 that rolled in the '20s and '30s. (National Geographic Photo)

More Theft-Proof Autos Goal Of Proposed New Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is considering moves aimed at making automobiles more secure from theft. Consumers have until July 31 to comment.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says an estimated 350,000 cars were stolen for joy riding last year, and it is this type of petty thievery that the agency hopes to curtail.

These stolen autos are involved in one of every 350 accidents, the agency said, leading to 5,100 disabling injuries and 130 deaths each year.

In 1976 the agency originally proposed moves to make cars more theft proof, and that plan drew 61 comments, including 35 in favor and 26 against. The administration has developed a detailed proposal and wants to hear from the public, industry and consumer groups. The proposal includes the following:

— Stronger ignition locking systems that would make the ignition inoperative if any part of the lock is removed. It would also require that the activating wires be shielded so they cannot be "hot wired" from the passenger compartment.

— A hood latch release operable only from inside the car.

— The key operating the doors and trunk would have to be different from the ignition key.

Doormen Perform Essential Functions

EDITOR'S NOTE -One lure of the big city is that you don't have to answer to nosy neighbors. But any anonymity you seek usuallyends at your apartment building entrance. That's where the doormen stand to serve. And to see, to know if not to tell.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writers

NEW YORK (AP) — He sees everything. He says nothing. Usually. He doesn't bat an eye when you introduce the "cousin" who will be staying the weekend. He'll usually accept a glass of "Jackie Gleason iced tea." He's your doorman.

If you live in a big city apartment, he probably knows more about you than your spouse, your psychiatrist, your best friend. In fact, he might as well post a sign: "Abandon privacy, all ye who enter here."

He's hired to look presentable, open the door and announce visitors. That's it. But this uniformed legion, most with World War II haircuts and of Irish extraction, doesn't stop there. The doorman carries groceries, signs for parcels, waters plants, feeds cats and parakeets — he usually balks at walking dogs — watches youngsters as Mommy ducks to the corner store, chats with the lonely on summer nights, consoles a man whose girl just left him, says "Welcome Home" when the vacation is over, recommends babysitters and cleaning women, lends you $5 for the taxi, and hels you out of a tight spot.

Take Tom, a doorman for 15 years. That's not his real name, but he'd like to keep his job. One night he saw a tenant s girlfriend getting out of a taxi in front of the building. He also saw the tenant getting off the elevator with another woman.

Tom raced to the taxi, put his considerable girth between the girlfriend and the door, put his around her, spun her in the opposite direction and engaged her in small talk all the way back to the canopied high-rise. The young man and his date walked behind Tom and caught the same taxi.

As the cab pulled away, Tom did what he's paid to do. He buzzed the young man's apartment and reported he wasn't at home. The girlfriend saw nothing. Tom saw everything and said nothing and the tenant tipped him $10 later.

"Quickest 10 bucks I ever made," says Tom.

Then there's a doorman on Manhattan's chic East Side who would like to be called Larry. He's only been on the job a few years, but his powers of observation are keen.

He noticed, for instance, that one married man played squash a few times a week and that a married woman on the same floor played bingo the same nights.

"You just put two and two together," he says.

Do you know that he knows? Sure. "At first they didn't. But now I kid with them."

Larry knows a lot more about his building than the facts that there are 199 units, 276 tenants and 33 dogs. Exactly 33 dogs? "It can get boring here, so I counted 'em one night."

A girl going with a married man? That's easy.

"He's never here on the weekends, he leaves by 10 to 10:30 and they always send out for dinner."

Larry and Tom both work the most lucrative and interesting shifts, late afternoon until midnight, the hours in which tenants are most likely to display their foibles.

Doormen in New York City earn about $220 a week — plus tips and Christmas gifts from tenants.

Their union says a doorman averages between $750 and $1,000 at Christmas.

Counters Larry: "Who are they kidding? Anybody who doesn't pull in $3,000 at Christmas has bad breath, a bad personality and body odor."

Other doormen agree. They also say they average about $25 a week in tips throughout the year. The IRS hears about some of it. In some cases, none.

Most doormen prefer cash gifts, but a lot of people throw in a bottle. "I got stuff at home I won't drink in 10 years," says one.

What about drinking on the job, a la Carlton the Doorman on the "Rhoda" show?

"Sure," says Tom. "Tenants bring down a cold beer or some Jackie Gleason iced tea in a glass. The super knows, but as long as you're not blatant he doesn't care."

The doorman can be your best friend or your worst. He tries to be nice, but some tenants look down on him as the hired help and can get a little nasty. Tips don't necessarily make the difference.

"The one you do the least for gives you the biggest tips," says a Park Avenue doorman. On the other hand, if you get nasty, the doorman can, too. He can refuse to sign for deliveries or pay for a postage due letter. He can forget to tell the super about the leaky faucet you reported. He can deny most requests by saying he's not allowed to leave the door, which is true.

Doormen become members of the family to some tenants. They are invited to parties, weddings and bar mitzvahs. Billy Jackson, a 64-year-old doorman in Brooklyn Heights — one of the few who said he didn't care if he was quoted by name — says he's been invited to spend vacations at one tenant's Cape Cod home.

Jackson knows the neighborhood as well as the tenants. A doctor's office is across the street, and Jackson talked a policeman out of giving tickets to two pregnant women who had parked illegally. Both later delivered boys — one named Jackson and the other for the cop who looked the other way.

On rare occasions, the work can be hazardous. Tom once got a call from a tenant saying she had just been robbed.

"Quick, describe him," said Tom. She did and Tom accosted the robber.

"Give me everything you took and I'll let you go," said Tom.

The man threw a radio at him. Tom, a 6-footer and well over 200 pounds, pummeled him to the ground, taking his knife in the fight. "I couldn't get him to go to sleep no matter how hard I hit him, though."

Some doormen carry chemical sprays, others have billy sticks or baseball bats, and some buildings hav a buzzer linked to the nearest police precinct.

Mostly, though, they talk people out of making trouble.

"A good bouncer never touches anybody," says Tom. "It's the same with the doorman. I had a guy here one New Year's Eve who had a blind date with a girl in the building. I buzzed and she asked him to wait. He said he was going up anyway. 'No you're not,' I said. He was a real crazy. I sat him down and buzzed the girl and told her I didn't care if it was New Year's Eve. This guy's a real nut. Better to stay at home."

The young woman took his advice. "Later she told me she used to have a Jewish mother and now she's got an Irish father."

Some doormen listen sympathetically to tenants' personal problems, some are matchmakers, introducing young people, and some don't get involved at all.

Larry is an introducer and one introduction ended in marriage. But usually his introductions are for practical reasons. Tenants with the same last name, for example, so they can solve their mail mixups without bothering him.

A golden age of doormanship rose in the early 1960s, when many apartment towers were being built on New York's East Side. It was also a time when a lot of prostitutes lived in fancy buildings, and that was where the big money was.

Doormen seem to like their jobs, and one sums it up this way: "I see everything and I see nothing. If you don't bother me, I won't bother you."

Nicklaus Plans Further Cutback In Tourneys

"I've cut back my schedule a little bit this year, and my intention is to cut it back even further next year," said Nicklaus Friday after he finished a 7-under-par 64, and took a 3-stroke lead with 130 after 36 holes of the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

"How far I cut it back I'm not sure," Nicklaus noted.

"I talked with Dean about that last night (Thursday)," Nicklaus confided. Dean is Deane Beman, commissioner of the Professional Golf Association (PGA).

"I told him (Dean) I intended to cut back further," Nicklaus revealed.

Nicklaus said there were a variety of reasons why he was cutting back on his competitive golf, not the least of which is spending more time with his family.

He said Thursday that his teen-age children needed their parents at home and the guidance he and his wife had to provide.

The other major factor is Nicklaus' many business enterprises off the golf course. He's involved with people and friends that he said he was "locked in" with.

"I'm not complaining," Nicklaus quickly added. "The people I say I'm locked to have been very good to me."

"Pretty soon this becomes a continuous thing and you never get to play anywhere else," Nicklaus said. Nicklaus was including among these "locked" in items several golf tournaments he felt compelled to participate.

The blond champion from Ohio said he was headed in the direction of playing in the major tournaments and a few others.

"I'm not trying to prove anything more in golf," said Nicklaus who has won everything in sight on the world's golf courses.

"I enjoy playing golf, and I'll play as long as I can compete successfully," Nicklaus said.

"And I think my best chance of playing successfully is to play when I can have as much interest and excitement, rather than just being there every week," Nicklaus explained.

Nicklaus said he had been misunderstood recently when it was reported that he would play for the next 10 to 15 years.

"What I meant was that I probably physically could play that long, but not mentally," he said.

He said he would try to play some tournaments that he hadn't played in quite awhile, such as the Bob Hope Classic and the Citrus.

He confirmed that he was phasing out his golf career so that he would leave on top. He said that he didn't want to become just a decoration on the course.

He also made it clear he wanted more variety as long as he does play, not appearing at the same places every year.

Nicklaus said that by gradually phasing out his career he will play golf a lot longer. He is concerned with losing the desire mentally to play the game.

"I'd like to play. I'd like to be around for a long time. But I'd like to be around on the basis that I can compete, and be a part of the scenery on a competitive basis and actually can be valuable to the tournaments I'm going to play in, rather than just be a decoration."

Rose Streak Continues

MONTREAL (AP) — Pete Rose extended his hitting streak to 34 games with a first-inning single and drove in one of six Cincinnati runs in the sixth inning when he was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded as the Reds defeated the Montreal Expos 10-3 Friday night.

Joe Morgan drove in two runs with his second single of the inning and Dan Driessen, LaCoss and Ken Griffey singled in a run apiece against Grimsley and reliever Jerry Pirtle, who hit Rose with a pitch, as the Reds sent 12 men to the plate.

Driessen slugged a two-run homer in the seventh after a run-scoring double by Ken Henderson, and Dave Concepcion singled in a run in the second inning.

Lopez Joins Twosome At Top

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rookie Nancy Lopez, teetering on the brink of potential disaster, pulled her game together and, with a birdie on the final hole, moved into a three-way tie for the lead Friday in the second round of the U.S. Women's Open golf championship.

Miss Lopez, the 21-year-old sensation who has caught America's golfing fancy, had to rally from a bogie-double bogey-bogey string for a hard-fought 2-over-par 73 that put her at 144.

That's two shots over par after 36 holes over the hilly 6,115-yard Country Club of Indianapolis course.

"Boy, that's dumb, really dumb," Miss Lopez said after the bogey stretch had knocked her out of sole control of the lead.

She shared the lead at the halfway point of the American national championship with Donna White and amateur Carol Semple.

The perky, 24-year-old Miss White, like Miss Lopez completing her rookie season this week, had a 72. Miss Semple, a former national amateur champion and a longtime amateur competitor, had the best round of the hot, humid day, a par 71.

But she minimized her chances.

"Most amateurs come to the Open looking to be the low amateur, not win the tournament," she said.

"It's not unusual to see an amateur have a couple of good rounds but they have a hard time trying to sustain it for four days."

One shot off the lead at 145 were defending titleholder Hollis Stacy, two-time champion JoAnne Carner and amateur Cynthia Hill.

Miss Hill, another former amateur champion, shot 74. Mrs. Carner bogeyed three holes in a row on the way to a 72. Miss Stacy was tied for the lead until she bogeyed the final hole for a 75.

"It was a pretty hectic day," the disappointed Miss Stacy said.

Last Six-Player Tilt Slated At Plainview

PLAINVIEW (Special) — The last six-player basketball contest in Texas will kick off tonight at the site of some of the state's best collegiate, five-player competition.

Wayland Baptist College will host the all-star game beginning at 7 p.m.

The contest, matching the top graduating senior basketballers from Texas and Oklahoma, the game will be played in Wayland's Hutcherson Center. Tickets for the contest are $2 for adults and $1 for students and children.

The ninth annual match may be the last under six-player—three forwards, three guards—since Texas schoolgirls will play the regular five-player game next year while Oklahoma will stay with the six-player system.

Wayland's Dean Weese, who guided the Wayland Flying Queens to a fourth-place finish in the nation last season, will coach the Texas squad and will be assisted by Don Stevens. A pair of high school coaches, Wilburton's Sam Taylor and Jay Peck of Woodward, will direct the Oklahoma squad.

Tonight's starting roster for the Texas all-stars has 5-8 Merry Johnson of Canyon (28.0-point scoring average last year), 6-0 Cheryl Hartman of Nazareth (31.0) and 5-11 Debbie Polk of Palacios (42.9) at the forwards. Starting guards will be 5-9 Doris Thompson of Cushing, 5-8 Carla Wojtek of Robert Lee and 5-8 Christine Srubar of Victoria.

Oklahoma starting forwards are Jody Swart of Merritt (22.0), Venessa Welhelm and 6-0 Cyndy Brady of Balko (23.1). The guards are 5-10 Charla Miller of Mustang, Denise Evans of Byng and 5-11 Linda Parrack of Parkins-Tyron.

Oklahoma leads the series 6-2 and won last year's game here 73-67.

Grid, Cage Games End Annual Clinic

STEPHENVILLE (Special)—Texas small school athletes will conclude the annual coaching clinic at Tarleton State University today with an all-star football and basketball contest.

The basketball game matching all-stars from Class B schools begins at 2 p.m. in TSU's Wisdom gymnasium, and the six-man gridiron contest follows at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

The starting lineup for the East basketball squad is 5-6 Alfonso Campos of Huckaby at guard; 5-11 Billy Gelepye of Graford and M.D. Rowney of Poolville at the wing positions, 6-2 Tony Phillips of Poolville and Blum's 6-0 Ricky Jean at the posts.

The West squad will alternate with 6-1 Harvey Oatman of Quail, 5-11 Mike Barnell of Hedley, Spade's 6-2 Lynn Cowan, 5-9 Lewis Arrezola of Wellman, 5-11 Bob White of Hedley, Vernon Northside's 6-2 Mike Riggin and 6-0 Tom McGee of Darrouzett.

The East's six-man football squad will feature Gary Ellis of Venus at quarterback, Brian Holmes of May at tailback and Monte Williams of Buckholts at wingback. Star's Vandell Norwood will play center, and the ends will be Robert Windam of May and Strawm's Carl Frazier.

On defense, Cherokee's Terry Francis will play end, and the linebackers will include Rocky Adcock of Quistenen, Oglesby's Carl Rodler and Mark Thweatt of Mozelle. Cherokee's Sammy Flores will play safety and Kinny Massingill will play linebacker too.

The West squad will have Ivan Krecji from Highland at the helm with Marathon's Lonnie Salmon playing halfback. Benjamin's Keith Pierce will play tailback and the offensive ends will be Bryan Andrade of Blackwell and Larry Gates of Harrold.

The defensive squad includes Marathon's Mike Avery and Randy Etheridge of Hobbs at tackle. Clay Freeman of Loop will play linebacker, along with Three Way's Albert Rand and Lewis Fortes of Clind.

Jack's Blistering 130 Produces Phillie Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, who was concerned he might be physically and mentally tired after winning last week's British Open, took a 3-stroke lead Friday after 36 holes of the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

The 38-year-old Nicklaus, who had expressed a preference for home rather than golf this week, shot a 33-31—64 in the second round, for a two-round total of 130, tying the tournament course record, and shattering the 36-hole mark of 132 set by Jim Barber in 1973.

Nicklaus was an early starter, and it was late afternoon before Ben Crenshaw, the 26-year-old Texan took up the chase, scoring a 32-34—66, and a total of 133.

"There is still time," said the grim-faced Crenshaw, who hasn't won on the tour since the 1977 Colonial. "I'm not giving up."

Nicklaus' seven-birdie, no-bogey round under a searing sun and humidity to match gave him an early 4-stroke lead over Fuzzy Zoeller, and Miller Barber. He started the day a stroke behind Hubert Green, who fell off the leader board at Whitemarsh Valley Country Club.

Nicklaus' 64 tied the tournament record of 65 for 18 holes set in 1965, by R.H. Sikes. The course mark is 63, carded by Gary Player, Ray Floyd and Tom Kite in pro-am appearances.

The 26-year-old Zoeller carded a 33-32—65, and Barber 34-31—65, each at 134 after 36 holes over the par 35-36—71 course in suburban Philadelphia.

Nicklaus' birdie rampage placed him in excellent position to erase the 16-year-old tournament's 72-hole record of 271, 17 under par, set by Green in 1974.

"I would say the scoring record (at Whitemarsh) is in danger if the weather holds up," remarked Nicklaus, who holed birdie putts of 5, 30, 12, 4, 9, 3 and 20 feet. He just missed another when his ball rimmed the cup on the final hole. He predicted the eventual winner would double his 12 under two-round performance.

"Obviously I played well," said the sweat-drenched Nicklaus in the understatement of the week. "I really putted well, and even the shots I missed I managed to get back for pars."

Ironically, the only reason Nicklaus is here this week is because the Philadelphia event is a designated tournament and all the stars of the tour must make a PGA command performance.

"While I was afraid of a physical and mental letdown after the British Open, I hoped it wouldn't affect my golf game," Nicklaus said before the tournament. It didn't.

Grouped at 135, were Bobby Walzel, Bruce Lietzke, John Lister and Lee Elder.

Zisk Listed As Disabled

ARLINGTON (AP) — Richie Zisk, the slugging outfielder of the Texas Rangers, has been placed on the 15-day disabled list because of a severely sprained left wrist, it was announced Friday.

Zisk injured his wrist July 2 at Anaheim, Calif. when the Rangers and the California Angels were involved in a fight. Since then, Zisk has collected four hits in 51 at-bats.

Zisk's wrist was placed in a cast, and Gary Gray, a first baseman who has been serving as a designated hitter for Tucson in the Pacific Coast League, was called up to replace him.

In opening round action, Lampe faces East Grand Baptist of Dallas at 11 a.m. on field No. 2. The Fort Worth Northside Stars will play the Austin Bruisers on field No. 3 at 11 also. At 12:10 p.m., the Kingsville Bandits play the Grand Prairie Hoppers on field No. 2 and the Junior Cardinals from Corpus Christie will tackle the Hurst Saints on field No. 3.

The Corpus Christie Hustlers face the Baytown Beauties on field No. 2 at 1:20 p.m. and the Hurst Blue Angels play on field No. 3 at the same time. Alice VFW will tackle the Wichita Falls Tomahawk Halfbreeds on field No. 2 at 2:30. On field No. 3 at 2:30 p.m., Metro will play the Fort Worth Dusters.

Teams will play additional games today and Sunday, leading up to the championship tilt which is scheduled for 1:40 p.m. Sunday on field No. 2.

This will be Lampe's third straight trip to the state tournament. It lost twice in the tournaments the past years at Corpus Christi and Fort Worth.

Colts, Oakland Swap Veterans Siani, Chester

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Siani is coming to Baltimore, the team which came close to drafting him in 1972, and Raymond Chester is headed for another stint with the Oakland Raiders.

The two National Football League veterans were involved Friday in a trade in which the two American Conference rivals also exchanged undisclosed draft picks.

Siani, a wide receiver with six years experience, comes to the Colts and Chester, a tight end starting his ninth season, goes back to the team which drafted him first in 1970 and traded him to Baltimore in 1973.

"I was frustrated in Baltimore a long time," Chester said in a telephone interview from his home in Oakland. "I don't think my efforts, mental and physical, were appreciated. I hustled, but evidently it wasn't enough."

During five seasons in Baltimore, Chester at times complained that not enough passes were thrown his way, and he was a target of boos from the home fans when he dropped aerials.

"I have no grudges against anybody —players or management," Chester said. "I have a lot of regrets leaving some of the guys. We came a long way. . .we were kicked around together, and we grew up together."

The Colts had a 6-22 record during Chester's first two years on the team, but they won the last three AFC Eastern Division championships.

Chester, a native of Cambridge, Md., who was graduated from Morgan State in Baltimore, has income property plus a retail liquor store and delicatessen in Oakland.

"Moving back and forth across the country for the last five years hasn't been easy," he said. "It's worn on me over the years. One time we had 25 pieces of luggage to move, and two Great Danes. And, from a business standpoint, I couldn't have asked for a better trade."

In the wake the trade, coach Ted Marchibroda of the Colts and general manager Dick Szymanski tried to downplay Chester's public outcries of past years while hinting they may have helped influence the move.

"I think the underlying factor was that he wanted to leave Baltimore," Marchibroda said. "I heard that when I first came here three years ago, and it was still true last season.

"I must have called 23 or 24 teams since the end of last season, and this was the best possible trade we could have made."

Szymanski said only that Chester's attitude "didn't help any," but quickly added that you don't deal off such players at any cost unless there's a replacement ready to take over.

The Colts have been impressed by rookie Reese McCall, the team's No. 1 draft choice, while veteran tight ends Jimmie Kennedy and Mack Alston also are on the squad.

At the 1972 college draft, the Raiders momentarily passed after failing to make a first round selection at the end of their 15-minute time limit.

Baltimore officials were torn between Siani and offensive lineman Tom Drougas, and while they debated for some 30 seconds, Oakland came back on the conference line and picked Siani.

Meanwhile, at Santa Rosa, Calif., the absence of Ted Kwalick and Warren Bankston from the Raiders' training camp Friday led to the trade for Chester.

Kwalick, former San Francisco 49ers tight end, has decided to retire because of knee problems, according to one published report. But Raiders executive Ron Wolf asked, "Has he (Kwalick) said that?" and said he was not certain about Kwalick's status.

Bankston, another backup tight end who has been captain of the Raiders' special teams, also has a knee problem and still is getting it examined, Wolf said. Kwalick and Bankston have played behind starter Dave Casper the last two seasons.

Jets Outscore Giant Rookies

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Jets outscored the New York Giants three touchdowns to two in a scrimmage of rookies from the National Football League clubs Friday.

Jets quarterback Pat Ryan, a 10th-round draft choice from Tennessee, hit on seven of nine passes for 111 yards, including one touchdown. Mickey Shuler of Penn State was on the receiving end of a 14-yard scoring pass and also gained 49 yards on a pass reception.

Vitali, Rookies Waived By Chiefs

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — Second-year quarterback Mark Vitali and five rookie free agents were put on waivers by the Kansas City Chiefs Friday as the remainder of the National Football League team's veterans checked into camp.

Vitali was a tenth round draft choice last year from Purdue. He was waived at the end of the 1977 exhibition season but recalled and put on the active roster for the final eight games of the regular season.

Rookie free agents released were runningback Robert Elliott of Texas-El Paso, wide receiver Dwayne Taggart of Texas Southern, offensive linemen Dennis Baker of Wyoming and Bill Stout of Puget Sound and defensive back Al Clegg of New Mexico.

Muncie Changes Hats But Not Lifestyle

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Runningback Chuck Muncie said the raised eyebrows on the sidelines bothered him more than the leg cramp which sent him writhing to the ground during his first test of the New Orleans Saints preseason training camp.

The cramp dropped Muncie after he had completed all but the final 400 yards of a 1½-mile run Friday. The distance run is the first requirement for each player checking into training camp at Vero Beach.

"I thought, 'Why me? This is just what I need,'" Muncie said after the pain in his left calf subsided.

"I came to camp a day early. I weighed in at a perfect weight. I'm in great shape. I was running easy, and it hit me.

"I knew there were a lot of people watching, just waiting for me to make a mistake."

Muncie acquired the reputation of being unreliable last year when he missed team planes and practices.

He said Friday that there were good reasons for his lapses, but nobody bothered to find out what they were.

"But I'm not going to change my lifestyle for anyone," he said. "I like to stay home, watch television, play with my dog."

Muncie said his liking for solitude led to speculation and rumors about his private life.

"I don't like a lot of social life, and because I'm so secluded, it makes people wonder what I do on my own time," he said.

Muncie said he hopes to gain more than 1,000 yards rushing this season. Although plagued by an ankle injury last year, Muncie led the Saints with 811 rushing yards—seventh best in the National Football Conference.

"I've had a history of small ankle problems," he said. "Every year I do what I can to strengthen my ankles, but there's not a lot you can do about that.

"I go back-packing and mountain-climbing during the summer, and that's about the best thing you can do for it."

Muncie checked into training camp without the floppy straw hat that had been his trademark for his two previous seasons with the Saints.

"It's been my lucky charm since college, but it was getting a little weather-beaten. But I will buy another one."

Ex-Big Springer West Departs Detroit Camp

ROCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — Charlie West has left the training camp of the National Football League's Detroit Lions and it doesn't look like he'll be back.

The veteran strong safety was assured Thursday before heading back to his home in Minnesota that coach Monte Clark will trade or waive him.

Clark underscored that point by acquiring Jimmy Allen, another veteran defensive back, from Pittsburgh in exchange for a future draft choice.

"I'm going to go home and wait for a call to see who might show interest," said West, who has spent the last four of his ten pro seasons in Detroit.

"They got close, but not close enough," Curry said.

"I'm going to honor his demand to trade or waive him. . .I want to accomodate him if I can by trade," Clark said. He added that the trade-waiver promise was made to West before Clark took over as coach early this year.

West, a native of Big Spring, who played college ball at Angelo State College and Texas-El Paso, was a Minnesota Viking for six seasons before he was traded to Detroit.

Allen, a former all-America from UCLA, started five games for the Steelers last year and played every defensive backfield position. He played in 14 games his rookie year in 1974 after being drafted on the fourth round.

Allen played 14 games the following year, then 10 in 1976 in a season cut short by an emergency appendectomy.

"I'm really pleased to have Jimmy," said Clark. "He makes an excellent addition to our secondary. He's a versatile performer and can help us at safety or corner."

Steelers Start Work Without Cornerback

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers assembled their full squad at training camp Friday, mugged for photos, and looked beyond the cameras to the challenges ahead.

One question is at cornerback, where starter J.T.Thomas is apparently out for the season with a blood disease and may be replaced by a rookie in the Aug. 5 exhibition opener against the Colts in Baltimore.

"It's an interesting, exciting adventure," ever-forward coach Chuck Noll said of replacing Thomas.

"Many times a thing like this is a spur for bigger and better things.

"We're not going to fold our tent and go away. We'll still play defense and we'll play it well."

The team welcomed 22 veterans to camp Friday, joining 24 veterans and 31 rookies who'd already spent a week at the St. Vincent College training site. Among the rookies is No. 1 draft pick Ron Johnson, a cornerback who could succeed Thomas.

"I don't doubt my ability to play. But I have to get the mental aspects down," said Johnson.

With temperatures in the 90s, the veterans dripped sweat at as they posed in uniform for news cameramen and fans.

They later drilled in shorts and helmets. The real work starts today when the veterans join the rest of the squad in two full-scale drills.

Quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who'd been in camp with the rookies, flashed the same smile for pictures Friday that he did during the offseason when he had a bit part alongside Burt Reynolds in the movie "Hooper."

The movie opened Friday in Pittsburgh at a theatre just across the Allegheny River from Three Rivers Stadium.

"It was fun. I had a ball," said Bradshaw. "I did all my own stunts and my big fight scene. I plunged through a window, missed the target and landed on my elbows."

Among the defenders Bradshaw will face in early training camp scrimmages is middle linebacker Jack Lambert, who was an All-Pro contract holdout when camp started last season.

After signing a hefty contract last season, Lambert was hampered by a knee injury.

"It was a terrible year. I'm probably looking forward to this season more than any other since my rookie year," he said.

Meanwhile, the Steelers announced Friday they had traded punter Rick Engles to the Philadelphia Eagles for an unspecified future draft pick.

Engles, signed by Pittsburgh late last season after Bobby Walden was hurt, became expendable when the Steelers drafted punter Craig Colquitt of the University of Tennessee.

The Steelers also said second-year defensive back Tony Dungy, sidelined with mononucleosis, had shown improvement but would be unable to begin practice today.

Dickey Needs 'Miracle' For Season Opener

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Quarterback Lynn Dickey says it will "take a miracle" for him to be ready for the Green Bay Packers' Sept. 3 National Football League opener against Detroit.

Dickey said he hopes to be ready by Oct. 8, the sixth week of the season.

"That's about the best I could hope for in my present condition," said Dickey, who still walks with a noticeable limp from the fractured leg he suffered Nov. 13 in the last play of a game against the Los Angeles Rams. "I'm certainly hoping for that date."

Dickey underwent an operation in early July to have a steel plate removed from his leg.

"I thought when I started working out the first of May that it wouldn't be any problem coming around," he said shortly after his arrival here Thursday. "Maybe I was pushing it in my own mind, but it didn't come along the way I was hoping. So now I just don't know."

The surgery July 5 left a six-inch sear and he said he still has soreness from the operation.

He said that if he can't return for this season, he still plans to play again 1979.

"I definitely want to play as long as I can," he said.

Dickey was interviewed shortly after arriving for the start of practice. He said he will discuss with Packer coach Bart Starr how much time he will spend watching practice and in team meetings.

San Diego Drops Sam Houston Back

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers released four players on waivers Friday to reduce their National Football League training camp roster to 65.

Dropped were Paul White, safety from Towson State, Md., Ed Howard, cornerback from Sam Houston State, Lepoleon Ingram, cornerback from Sacramento, Calif., State, and Mack Atkins, wide receiver who didn't attend college.

All were rookies except White who was with New England briefly last year before being released and signed by San Diego as a free agent

Ongais Hits 200-Depending On Timers

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — By one way of reckoning, Danny Ongais cracked the 200 mph barrier Friday at Atlanta International Raceway. But in another way, he didn't.

During the opening session of practice for the Indianapolis car portion of Sunday's twin 150-mile races here, U.S. Auto Club officials recorded Ongais' fastest lap at 27.03 seconds around the high-banked speedway, which is either 1½-miles or 1.522 miles around.

By the regular method of measuring here, Ongais ran 200.27 mph. According to the USAC timers, however, it's going into the books as 199.78 mph.

The "official" track record of 169.014 mph was set in 1966 by Mario Andretti, who is not competing here this weekend. The official record can't be broken until qualifications, which are scheduled today.

Either way Ongais' time is figured, he was the fastest of the day. It wasn't much of a surprise since the Costa Mesa, Calif., driver and his team spent several days testing here earlier this month.

And Ongais has been the fastest at most of the USAC events he's entered this season.

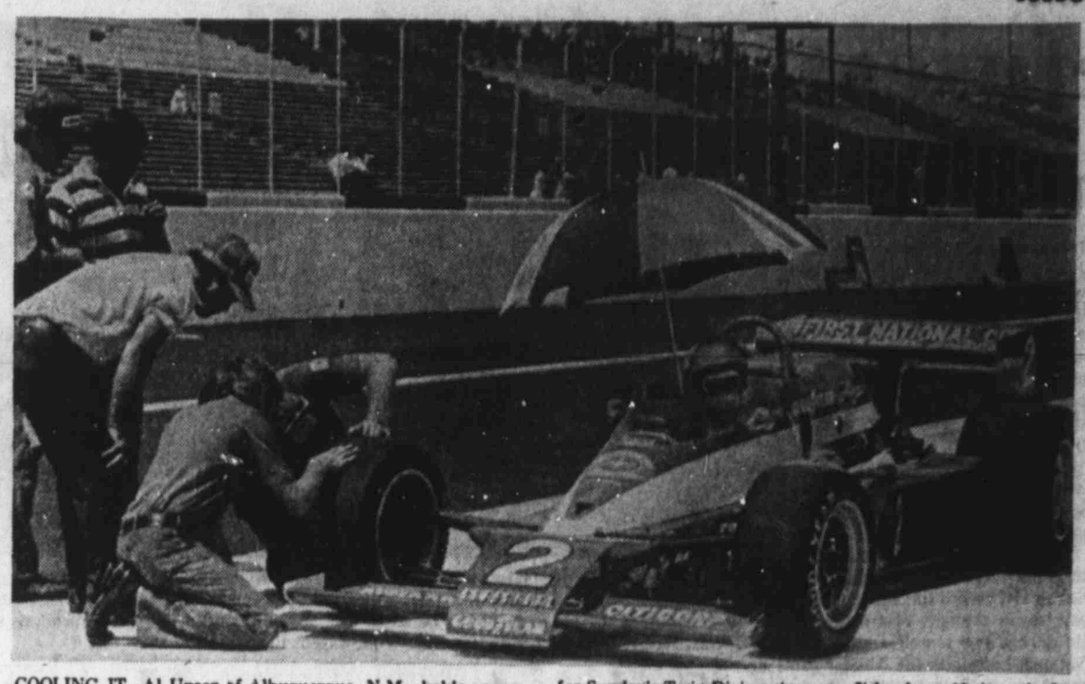
In the stock car segment, A.J. Foyt recorded the best speed of the day at 161.570 mph. Bobby Allison was next at 160.762 mph.

H.B. Bailey escaped injury when his car plowed into the end of the pit wall. Cliff Hucul was uninjured when he hit the wall in Indy car practice.

Foyt, Unser, Mears and Roger McCluskey are the only drivers planning to compete in both races.



COOLING IT—Al Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., holds an umbrella over his cockpit in an effort to stay a bit cooler on a hot run around the Atlanta International Speedway while practicing for Sunday's Twin Dixie auto races. It has been 12 since the Indy-type cars have raced at the Atlanta track. (AP Laserphoto)

Borg Takes Easy Win

BASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg, the three-time Wimbledon champion, overcame extreme tiredness and outlasted New Zealander Chris Lewis 7-6, 6-3 Friday, advancing to the semifinals of the Swedish Open tennis tournament.

"It's just getting worse every day and every hour," said the weary Borg. "I have no joy in playing any more. I just push the ball back and make it easy for my opponents."

In his earlier matches in the Swedish Open, Borg had only allowed one game to his opponents.

Borg's coach, Lennart Bergelin, said, "I've never seen Bjorn so worn down in all my years with him."

Borg won the Italian and French open titles on clay, then took his third straight Wimbledon title on grass and, after that led Sweden to a 3-2 Davis Cup European semifinal victory over Spain on Bastad's clay courts last weekend, before entering the Swedish Open.

To his unbeaten streak since before the Italian Open last May, he added his 24th and 25th straight Davis Cup singles victories.

After this tourney, he will take a three-week vacation with his fiance Mariana Simonescu, resting for the U.S. Open in September.

In today's semifinals, Borg will face Spain's Antonio Munoz, who beat Sweden's Kjell Johansson 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 Friday.

The other semifinal pits last year's Swedish Open finalists, Italian Corrado Barazzutti and Hungarian Balasz Taroczy. Defending champion Barazzutti beat Ray Moore of South Africa 6-1, 7-6 and Taroczy eliminated Mark Edmondson of Australia 6-4, 7-6 in Friday's other quarter-finals.

Cook Facing Challenge At Speed Bowl

Hershel Cook, who came out of retirement last Saturday to open the season's second half at Lubbock Speed Bowl with a sparkling win, may face an additional challenge tonight.

Larry Johnson, season first-half winner, should be back in action after a brief vacation and Bubba DeBusk, previous owner of the car Cook drove so successfully, is reported ready to field a machine newly purchased from San Angelo master car builder Marvin Fillip.

Figuring in the ever-present challenge of erstwhile leader Charley Whorton and past champion Jimmy Bilbrey, Cook will have his work cut out for him when the modified stock cars go into action beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Also on tap are racing for street stockers and Volkswagens, and as an added highlight nominations will be received and votes recorded for a drivers' "Mr. Macho" contest, with the winner to be named next week.

Bengal Stars Report Ready

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Isaac Curtis and Ken Anderson — two of the team's most potent offensive weapons — have rebounded from injuries which plagued them last football season, according to Cincinnati Bengals coach Bill Johnson.

Curtis, who missed about half of last season because of injuries, had surgery on his left knee during the off-season, but has been working toward getting into shape for the opening of the National Football League team's preseason camp here Friday.

The wide receiver worked out with the last week during special sessions with the rookies.

"Isaac looks good and he feels good, but we're not going to rush him. He's too important to us to take a chance and set him back," Johnson said.

"He can run, but there's a question about whether he can move at breakneck speed."

Anderson, the Bengals starting quarterback, also worked out during the rookie sessions, and Johnson said that he appeared free of the leg problems that had hampered him last year.

Anderson nearly underwent surgery during the off-season to carve a calcium deposit out of his right thigh.

The operation was put off and Johnson said off-season rest has helped.

White Shoes Don't Fit Oiler Budget

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Billy "White Shoes" Johnson and two other Houston Oiler veterans will be fined up to $500 daily beginning today if they do not report to training camp, Oiler coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips said Friday.

Johnson, the National Football League's punt return champion in 1975 and 1977, starting offensive tackle Greg Sampson and starting defensive end James Young failed to report Friday with most other veterans.

"Until tomorrow, they are not late so there's not much I can say," Phillips said prior to the Friday afternoon workout on the Angelo State University campus. "But if they aren't here by then (Saturday) it's going to cost them."

Johnson, a key figure in Houston's playoff hopes this season, and Young, a former Houston fireman who won a starting job last season, want to renegotiate their 1978 contracts.

Sampson, a former No. 1 Oiler draft choice, reportedly has agreed to terms but has not signed his contract and has not reported to camp.

Former Oiler assistant general manager Tom Williams, who is negotiating Johnson's contract, said the next move is up to the Oilers.

"We went in the last time with two proposals and they said no to both of them," Williams said. "Now it is either they change their minds or they can waive or trade White Shoes."

Pat Peppler, the current Oiler assistant general manager, said the present problem is that Johnson is supposed to be in camp. "He's on the last year of a contract and should be here."

Peppler, who negotiates Oiler contracts, said Sampson had not reported to camp and was scheduled to talk to Phillips.

Oiler veterans are not required to be in camp until this morning but Phillips had asked the veterans to be present for Friday's workout and most took part in the morning drill.

Johnson led the league last season in punt returns with a 15.4 yard aerage and ranked fifth in kickoff returns. Johnson's 13.7 career punt return average is a league record.

Morgan Claims Reggie 'Victim'

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds second baseman Joe Morgan feels Reggie Jackson, the New York Yankees slugger who is currently on the sidelines for failing to follow his manager's orders, was the victim of circumstances.

"He was the wrong guy to put out front," Morgan told Tom Callahan in a syndicated column in Friday's The Cincinnati Enquirer. "He's a little kid who found a big candy store and wanted to eat it all at once, gulping all the publicity, becoming the epitome of what we're all supposed to be. Greedy."

Jackson has been suspended for failing to follow manager Billy Martin's instructions, and his actions in the past, coupled with his salary, have made him a lightning rod for criticism.

Morgan wondered whether Jackson's salary meant that he had to take anything that was thrown at him.

"For some reason, people believe if you make enough money, you're no longer entitled to human frailties, pride and things like that," Morgan said. "What about feelings? Are you supposed to divest yourself of feelings after a certain amount of money?"

Morgan made it clear he is not justifying Jackson's most recent actions in continuing to try to bunt when Martin took the sign off.

"You can never justify hurting your teammates to get even with the manager," Morgan said. "You owe them loyalty."

Morgan, instead, points to other actions by the Yankees, such as putting Thurman Munson in right field.

"I got so mad and I wasn't even involved," Morgan said. "Take a catcher who can't run and put him in right field? In one day, he's a better right fielder than you are after 14 years? All they talked about all spring was how hard you worked on defense. How are you supposed to feel?

"I'll tell you why they put Munson in right field and made Jackson the designated hitter. They wanted a young kid to catch, but they didn't want to say Munson can't play. And, once again, Reggie's the most convenient target. You know something, Thurman Munson never wanted to leave New York until Reggie came along making more money. Do you see the jealousy?"

All of the turmoil has Morgan very upset.

"People won't let baseball be fun anymore," Morgan said. "It's sickening to me. It irks me to see anything become bigger than losing.

"Winning and losing were the game, not individual things or outside junk. Watch. You'll soon see the guys making high salaries retiring earlier. They could play three or four more years but will say the heck with it.

"They've had enough. They won't be able to stand hearing all the time about the money. I hate the fact that the game I'll watch five or six years from now won't be the one I played."

Montreal GM Refuses Comment On Scuffle

MONTREAL (AP) — Montreal general manager Charlie Fox refused comment on a clubhouse scuffle with Expos pitching ace Steve Rogers before Montreal's 7-3 victory Thursday night over Atlanta Braves, The Canadian Press said Friday.

"Anything that happens in our clubhouse stays there," said Fox, who refused to confirm or deny the incident, according to the CP.

Sources said Fox punched Rogers, the Expos' player representative, after he intervened when Fox loudly criticized shortstop Chris Speier for a batting slump.

Rogers told Fox "that's just the kind of thing we don't need in this clubhouse" and told him to leave. The two argued nose-to-nose and, after being challenged several times, Rogers shoved Fox, who then hit Rogers in the jaw with a left.

Fox said Rogers and his agent kept an appointment Friday afternoon to discuss a new contract but declined to say whether the clubhouse episode had been mentioned. Rogers' current contract expires after next season.

Speier reacted to the criticism by hitting for the cycle and driving in six runs against the Braves. Fox was especially critical of Speier for taking a called third strike with two men on base in the fifth inning of a 3-1 loss to Atlanta in the second game of a doubleheader Wednesday night.

Fox, 56, was manager of San Francisco Giants when Speier broke in with them in 1971 until he was replaced as manager June 28, 1974. Fox made the trade by which the Expos acquired Speier from the Giants for shortstop Tim Foli on April 26, 1977.

The pregame scuffle occurred in front of "seven or eight" players, said an Expos' spokesman. "It was probably the starting lineup. The others were on the field, I guess."

He said: "These kinds of things happen with every club, ours and the others. Some go unreported and others become public issues."

Rogers has been the ace of the Montreal pitching staff for several years and has an 11-7 record this season with a 2.12 earned-run average, best in the league. He pitched two scoreless innings for the National League in the All-Star game at San Diego earlier this month.

Speier volunteered in an interview following his 4-for-4 performance that "there was a motivating factor tonight that I don't want to talk about."

"Everybody on the ballclub knows about it, but it's better left here in the clubhouse."

Speier was known to have been involved in a verbal dispute with at least one other player before the Fox-Rogers confrontation. The earlier episode was dismissed as relatively uneventful.

Speier agreed with manager Dick Williams that he had been taking too many pitches during his slump.

"I was thinking too much, waiting for too perfect a pitch," Speier said. "That kills you, not being aggressive at the plate."

Williams said Speier should be taking more cuts at the ball. "He makes pretty good contact when he swings the bat. He was taking too many pitches. That was his problem."

IN ACTION TONIGHT — Street stock cars plunge through a turn at Lubbock Speedway in recent typical action. Tonight's program at the paved speedway on south U.S. 87 will feature late model stock cars, sprint cars and Volkswagens in addition to the street machines. Racing gets underway at 8:30 p.m. The track's shift to Saturday night operation has been highlighted by a reduction in admission prices. (Staff Photo by Gary Davis)

Italian Boxer Reported Dead Following Bout

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — Italian boxer Angelo Jacopucci, knocked out by Britain's Alan Minter in a European middleweight title fight Wednesday, died in a hospital Friday after two emergency brain operations, the Italian News Agency ANSA and the national television reported.

The hospital declined to confirm or deny the reports.

ANSA said Jacopucci's death was being temporarily withheld for "bureacratic reasons" and for formalities to accord his wish that his kidneys be donated for research.

The news agency said its information came from reliable hospital sources. The national television also flashed the news of the death of the boxer.

But a hospital spokesman, reached by telephone, said: "I can't tell you anything. I know of no change." Earlier the hospital had said that Jacopucci's heart was still beating although he showed no brain activity.

The 29-year-old Jacopucci had lapsed into a coma soon after the bout two days ago.

While the hospital continued to give out no information on the boxer, ANSA said the chief reason why the official announcement was being withheld was because of a conflict between a planned kidney transplant and an autopsy.

Jacopucci, according to the news agency, wanted his kidneys to be either used for research or be transplanted. But, in view of the nature of his death, investigators felt that an autopsy— and not a transplant— should be performed.

Jacopucci had been rushed to the hospital shortly after being knocked out in the 12th round of a fight for the vacant European middleweight title. He fell unconscious a few hours after a terrific fight.

Jacopucci, a former European champion, was hit by a heavy series of lefts and rights before falling to the canvas.

Minter said before leaving Bellaria Thursday that he was extremely sorry but added he did not feel responsible.

"It was a fatality," Minter said. "I did not hit him especially hard. I also received powerful rights before sending him down. He had staged a very good fight. He probably paid from previous blows."

Wednesday's defeat had been Jacopucci's third setback as a professional. He had suffered another bad knockout in a non-title fight against Benny Lucas of Britain in Turin last November.

An hospital spokesman said the first surgery was aimed at removing a large hematoma just under the parietal bones. The second surgery was needed to treat an oedema.

Meanwhile the Italian Boxing Federation and a local magistrate announced an investigation into the case.

Tulia Man's Horse Wins Feature Race

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (Special)— Hopeful Journey toyed with her competition while gliding to an impressive victory in Friday's 5½-furlong feature at Ruidoso Downs.

The filly, ridden by Carlos Rivas as a heavy favorite, led all the way and clocked the distance in a stunning 1:05 3/5. The time, a seasonal record, was only two ticks shy of the track record.

Hopeful Journey, after getting only a mild threat from the 9-1 outsider, Asian Lady, opened up at will in the final furlong. The payoffs were $3.60, $3.20, and $2.60. Proud Clarionette (12.30, $5) came on belatedly to take second. Third went to Me Franci ($3).

Hopeful Journey is owned by B. Raymond Evans of Tulia. The margin of victory was three lengths.

A glum note was added to the race when Make It Me, a filly that had won three times at the meeting and also finished third in the Peter Hurd Handicap, tossed her jockey, Gilbert Villescas, at the break. Make It Me continued on her own, then tried to scale the outside rail in the backstretch.

The filly had to be destroyed.

Oiler Vet Quits; Seven Players Cut

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Veteran Houston Oiler safety Mike Weger retired and seven other players were waived Friday, the Houston Oilers announced.

Weger, an 11-year veteran, signed with the Oilers as a free agent in 1976 but a knee injury kept him out of 10 games that year and three games last year. Weger played for the Detroit Lions nine seasons before signing with the Oilers.

Players cut were: rookie defensive backs Anthony Francis of Houston, Mickey Early of SMU and Charles Stewart of Southern University; kicker Bobby Matthews of North Texas State, runningback Mose Rison of Central Michigan, receiver Mike Ashcraft of Abilene Christian and veteran defensive back Rich Sowells.

Cuba Approves Marathon Swim

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Long distance swimmer Diana Nyad said Friday that the Cuban government has invited her and her team to Havana on Aug. 6 to begin her 125-mile marathon swim to the Florida Keys.

The 28-year-old author says she will begin her much-touted swim as soon as weather permits.

Miss Nyad had originally planned to begin the swim July 14, but it was first postponed a week and then further delayed because of a Cuban youth festival in Havana which has attracted more than 22,000 persons, she said.

Miss Nyad had been awaiting a visa from the Cuban government, which she said was delayed because officials said they could not handle additional tourists during the festival. Miss Nyad said she received the okay from the Cubans Thursday night and expects to receive her visa soon.

"They are very much looking forward to the swim," she said at a poolside press conference. "They are going to treat it as a great international event when we get there."

Miss Nyad said she planned to fly to Havana on Aug. 6, "and swim whenever the weather is opportunistic."

She and her backers had hoped for a swim in July because of the greater likihood of hurricanes later in the summer. But she dismissed the delays, saying, "we got a yes for Aug. 6 and I'm very happy. So it looks like I got two more weeks of training."

Only last week, a retired cookie baker, Walter Poenisch, completed an ocean trek through the shark-infested waters between Havana and the Florida Keys.

Poenisch, whom Nyad called a cheat, had no trouble obtaining permission for his quest, but Cuban officials have noted he billed his journey as a "Swim for Peace" and that he began planning two years in advance.

Cuban President Fidel Castro spent two hours at dockside before the swimmer embarked on his 33½-hour venture.

There were no independent observers on the Poenisch swim. He was accompanied only by his personal crew aboard the escort boat, the Amy N.

Weak Hitter Ruins Rangers 4-3

By The Associated Press

Buck Martinez, hitting a mere .186, delivered two run-scoring singles to help the Milwaukee Brewers edge the Texas Rangers 4-3.

Milwaukee, with the third-best record in the major leagues, blasted Doc Medich, 4-5, for nine hits.

Texas scored two quick runs in the first inning on Al Oliver's single. Winner Bill Travers, 7-4, then retired 13 straight batters until he walked Bump Wills in the fifth inning.

Milwaukee rallied for a run in the third and two in the fourth inning, climaxed by Martinez' RBI single. Martinez knocked in the fourth Brewer run in the sixth when Robin Yount singled, went to second on a sacrifice and to third on a grounder.

TIGERS, ANGELS SPLIT

Rusty Staub drove in two runs with a double and a homer and Jack Billingham pitched his second consecutive shutout over California with a seven-hitter as the Detroit Tigers blanked the Angels 5-0 to gain a split of a twi-night doubleheader.

California won the 11-inning opener 4-2 on run-scoring singles by Lyman Bostock and Brian Downing.

YANKEES 7, WHITE SOX 4

Roy White drove in four runs with a two-run homer and a bases-loaded single to power the New York Yankees to a victory and send the slump-ridden Chicago White Sox to their seventh straight defeat.

White slugged his seventh homer of the year in the fifth inning, then snapped a 4-4 tie with a two-run single to cap a three-run sixth.

ORIOLES 5, TWINS 4

Ken Singleton's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning scored Mark Belanger and gave the Baltimore Orioles a victory over Minnesota, saddling the Twins with their ninth straight loss.

Belanger walked to open the inning against reliever Mike Marshall, 4-8, and went to second when Rich Dauer singled. After Marshall walked Eddie Murray to load the bases, Singleton hit a long fly ball to center and Belanger came home easily.

Don Stanhouse, 4-5, worked the final two innings in relief of Mike Flanagan to get the victory.

ROYALS 9, RED SOX 0

Rookie Clint Hurdle drove in six runs to tie a club record and Paul Splittorff scattered six hits, leading Kansas City to a rout of Boston that saddled the Red Sox with their first shutout in 108 games.

Hurdle, a 20-year-old right fielder-first baseman, smashed a Dennis Eckersley pitch 410 feet over the right field wall to give the Royals a 3-0 lead in the second inning. He added a sacrifice fly in the fourth and RBI singles in the sixth and seventh as the Royals recorded their seventh consecutive victory.

Alan Ripley, replaced Eckersley, 11-3, to start the sixth and gave up a leadoff double to Pete LaCock. Darrell Porter then tripled off the center field wall and Boston outfielder Fred Lynn crashed into the wall going for the ball. Lynn was removed from the game but was reported not seriously injured.

PHILLIES SWEEP ASTROS

Greg Luzinski hit his 23rd home run of the season to back Larry Christenson's six-hit pitching as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Houston Astros 8-2 and complete a twi-night doubleheader sweep.

Mike Schmidt homered in a four-run third inning and Dick Ruthven scattered 11 hits as the Phillies took the opener 6-1.

BLUE JAYS, A'S SPLIT

Al Woods drove in two runs, including the winner with a one-out double in the seventh, as the Toronto Blue Jays downed Oakland 5-4 for a split of their twi-night doubleheader.

INDIANS 11, MARINERS 0

Rick Manning and Johnny Grubb drove in three runs apiece to support the two-hit pitching of Mike Paxton as the Cleveland Indians pounded the Seattle Mariners.

Manning's two-run double capped Cleveland's four-run second inning against Mike Parrott, 1-2. Grubb's two-run double highlighted a three-run fourth and Manning and Grubb each singled home a run in a three-run fifth.

METS 12, BRAVES 3

Nino Espinosa scattered seven hits and drove in a pair of runs with his second single of the game in New York's five-run seventh inning and the Mets beat the Atlanta Braves.

Espinosa, 8-8, struck out six in only his fifth complete game in 20 starts, walking three. Lee Mazzilli also drove in two runs with a triple in the fourth inning, as the Mets won their fourth straight game, a feat they have not accomplished since July of last year.

One-Hitter Wins For Abilene In NBC

Troy Limbaugh kept the defending champions Abilene in the West Region NBC tournament Friday as he hurled a one-hit 3-0 shutout at the Lubbock Bulls winning 3-0.

The Town Draw Brewers turned five walks into a 4 ninth-inning runs to beat El Paso 7-3 and gain a spot in Sunday's finals.

Today's action at Mackenzie Park begins at 1 p.m. with the Lubbock Z's against the Lubbock Cardinals, and the 3:30 p.m. game pits Abilene against Wichita Falls.

The double-elimination tournament concludes Sunday with a possible 6:30 p.m. doubleheader. The winner advances to the Texas State Tournament which will begins at Mackenzie Park next Thursday.

Limbuagh struck out eight and walked five as his counterpart, Kenny Blackwell, struck out seven and walked five. Bobby Reeves spoiled a no-hit bid with a clean single to left center field in the third.

Larry Tatum's double drove in a third-inning run for Abilene, and the Key City team plated another run in the fourth. Rusty Hamric's double in the ninth drove home an insurance run.

Both El Paso and the Brewers managed five hits, but it was those five walks, plus a wild pitch and an error on the catcher trying to nip another runner at the plate, that gave Town Draw its 12th victory in as many tries this summer.

Gary Long and Pat Foster got the only 2 RBIs for the victors. All 3 of El Paso's runs were unearned, with Tim McNeil and Tom Airington driving in 2 sixth-inning runs.

Couple Browse Sights, Eateries Of America

"It's the pits," complains Stern, 31.

"We're at the mercy of cabs, airports and big hotels," groans his wife.

The Wilton, Conn., couple are more accustomed to back-road hideaways and small town cafes, having spent five years finding the unusual in America for their books "Amazing Amrica" and "Roadfood."

The books list 600 sights and 400 eateries, including:

— Croaker College, where celebrity-owned frogs learn how to lift weights and ride horses.

— The Lyme, Conn., Nut Museum, featuring nut spec mens from around the world as well as nut paintings and collages.

— The Spider Museum in Powhatan, Va., displaying live scorpions, tarantulas and other arachnids inside as well as an outdoor two-mile spider trail hike.

Other discoveries were an annual tobacco-spitting contest, the songwriters' hall of fame, the world's largest dump and the earthworm bakeoff contest.

"Not many people can find them, let alone go to them," says Stern.

Thir method of travel began when they were doing a photo essay book on truckers and learned that old adages aside, truck stops are definitely not the best places to eat.

"The truckers ar captives of the freeway, just like most tourists are," says Mrs. Stern. "We got absolutely sick of eating at those plastic places. If you stay on the highway you get the same old burgers and chef salads day after day."

"Being on the freeway is as bad as being in an airplane," Stern says. "You are isolated from the true variety and regional delights of the country."

Another advantage — it's cheap.

"We'd sometimes have six meals a day," Mrs. Stern says. "But nothing ever cost over $5 a person. We didn't spend more than $40 a day on food and sightseeing."

The wrong way to find good good food is to ask motel clerks for the "best food in town," they say.

"We got smart. We started looking on our own and asking people on the street — we found the sheriff's offices or laundromats are good places to get good information," Stern says.

There are drawbacks to the Stern style of adventure.

"We found some real ratholes that were dirty and had bad service," Stern recalls. But their only case of food poisoning came from an Alabama restaurant.

"We had decided to try some posh food to balance out our palates," says Mrs. Stern. "We both ended up as sick as dogs. We were mad because we knew there were really good roadfood places around we could have gone to."

The only serious problem they experienced was a car wreck in North Carolina.

"We were okay, but Michael had several shampoo bottles filled with barbecue sauce from different roadfood places and they broke all over the road and it looked like we were bleeding to death," says Mrs. Stern.

Benjamin Franklin invented bifocals in 1785.

Furniture Rental Trend Seen

BIGGEST IN THE BUSINESS — Beverly Hammond, sales manager for three San Francisco area GranTree outlets, poses with some of the furniture her firm rents. The practice of furniture rental has been ballooning for years, and the biggest in the business is GranTree Furniture Rental. (AP Laserphoto)

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Filling a home with furniture can be a costly proposition, which may explain the success of GranTree, a growing firm that will rent you what you need to sit, eat and sleep on.

The practice of furniture rental has been ballooning for years, industry insiders say, adding that GranTree Furniture Rental is the biggest in the business.

Based in Portland, Ore., the company is a subsidiary of GranTree Corp. It started in 1963 in Portland and now rents and sells furniture, including office furnishings, in nearly three score outlets in nine Western states and Western Canada.

"In 1973 our revenues were $8.3 million," James Jensen, president of the company. "At the end of 1977, $41 million. This year we expect the revenues will be between $65 million and $70 million. As an industry we haven't even begun to penetrate the potential market.

"The industry really grew out of the apartment owners who had previously been providing furnished apartments and charging more for a furnished apartment than an unfurnished one," he said. In the San Francisco area, apartment developments account for 85 per cent of the rental business.

One of GranTree's more popular policies is one that allows customers to credit all of their rent payments toward the purchase of the furniture without making a commitment before renting it.

The sales manager of three San Francisco area GranTree outlets, Beverly Hammond, said renters pay 25 monthly installments, and at the end of that period own the furniture — if they care to.

"Some people don't want to own the furniture," she said. In that event, they continue to pay the rental, or the company will take back the pieces and either bring them up to rentable condition and let them out again or sell the items in GranTree retail stores.

"There is a growing segment of society which places much greater value on use of furniture than ownership of furniture," Jensen said.

Miss Hammond said furniture renters include stewardesses, men and women in the military, young people, students, athletes, "people in a temporary situaion," and those who simply don't want to tie themselves to a large, instant debt.

In San Francisco, GranTree is headquartered in a large showroom where several hundred items for rent are displayed, each labeled with the monthly charge.

A large desk is $15.25 a month. A chair costs $3 a month. An oak room divider is $22.75 a month. A sofa $11 a month, a love seat $14.75, a chair and ottoman $10.25 a month.

The company offers a $24.75-a-month special to "completely furnish a one-bedroom apartment." That includes a bed, lamps, chest of drawers, chairs, tables, sofa, dinette. That costs $643.75 over the 25 payments.

Dodge City Gets Overdue Marshal

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — Despite its television image, Dodge City has never boasted its own U.S. marshal — until now.

His name is Raymond K. House, and the recently-appointed Dodge City lawman Thursday hosted his boss William Hall, director of the U.S. Marshal's Office, at a new bureau that would make Matt Dillon proud.

Hall's visit was marked by his appointment as parade marshal for the annual "Dodge City Days" parade.

The new marshal's office here is replete with furniture and wall hangings from the late 1800s in an effort to recreate those days when the Old West was young and sheriffs or marshals were the only law.

Hurricane Camille

Camille — the strongest hurricane ever to hit the United States, roared out of the Gulf of Mexico in August 1969, and devastated vast areas of the Louisiana and Mississippi coast. About 200 were killed, 100 later in storm-caused floods in Virginia, and thousands were left homeless. Most of the Gulf Coast was left without electricity, gas or drinking water. Mississippi was allotted $1 billion in federal relief and declared a major disaster area.

FILMETER

A capsule look at cinema

FILMETER is compiled by Dick Kleiner in Hollywood and the Newspaper Enterprise Association staff in both Hollywood and New York.

New Releases

General Release

BIG SLEEP, THE (R) — Robert Mitchum, Sarah Miles. Mystery. Another try at Philip Marlow, the prototype private eye, but this one misses. The direction is heavy, the acting over-emotional and the plot so convoluted you'll need a road map to stay even. Still, Mitchum makes a fine Marlowe. GRADE: B.

CAPRICORN ONE (PG) — James Brolin, Hal Holbrook, Brenda Vaccaro. Action-adventure. Plenty of action here, and something to think about, too. This suggests that the space program fakes a Mars landing — the astronauts are really in a Martian mock-up on Earth — and builds a great chase and survival thriller from that. GRADE: B-plus (and counting).

CAT AND MOUSE (PG) — Michele Morgan, Serge Reggiani. Romantic mystery. A wealthy Frenchman dies under unusual circumstances, and his wife appears to be the most likely murderer. Of course, she insists otherwise. Fans of French director Claude Lelouch ("A Man and a Woman") find this film one of his best, but others may find the subtitled offering a bit difficult to follow. GRADE: B. (McDowell)

CHEAP DETECTIVE, THE (PG) — Peter Falk, Ann-Margret and a cast of dozens. Comedy-Mystery. This is Neil Simon's follow-up to "Murder by Death." It's a spoof of all those old Bogart movies. Most of it works, some of it doesn't, but you'll smile most of the way. The plot has more twists than a roomful of disco dancers, but don't worry about it. Just enjoy the gags and funny situations. GRADE: B-plus.

COMING HOME (R) — Jane Fonda, Jon Voight, Bruce Dern. Drama. One of the new wave of Vietnam war pictures, this is a strong, emotional story about a shattered man, the woman who waited for him, and another man. It is very strong stuff, but will leave you quivering. GRADE: A-minus.

DAMIEN OMEN II (R) — William Holden, Lee Grant. Thriller. Sequels seldom live up to the original, but this one is even worse than usual. Where the first "Omen" was scary, this one is ludicrous. The boy — the devil's son — is now in military school and everybody who ferrets out his secret dies in a gruesome way. Caution: There are grisly scenes, but the rest of it is more funny than frightening. GRADE: D.

DEAR DETECTIVE (PG) — Annie Girardot, Philippe Noiret. Mystery. Delightful romance between a reclusive classics professor and a hard-nosed, yet feminine, woman police inspector makes up for an average murder plot. French fun all the way. GRADE: A-minus. (Handler)

DIFFERENT STORY, A (R) — Perry King, Meg Foster. Romance. Boy meets girl with a twist — they're both homosexuals. Soon they need each other and they "go straight" over a lopsided birthday cake. That's when the film falls flatter than the cake. Overall effect is amateurish and superficial, but the film has its comic and touching moments. Caution: Some nudity, strong language. GRADE: B-Minus. (O'Brien)

END, THE (PG) — Burt Reynolds, Dom Deluise, Sally Field. Comedy. Sonny (Reynolds) is dying of a blood disease. He'll be gone in a year — or less, if he can swing it. As his lovable mad "helper," Deluise is enchanting. In fact, the touch in all areas — writing, acting, directing — is sure and skilled. A witty, sometimes touching film with more laughs than one would imagine. GRADE: B-plus. (Grossman).

F.I.S.T. (PG) — Sylvester Stallone, Rod Steiger. Drama. Basically, this is the story of the rise and fall of a Hoffa-like labor leader. The early part — dealing with his start and the problems in organizing the men — is more fascinating than the second half. It's far too long, but contains some very strong scenes. GRADE: A.

GREASE (PG) — John Travolta, Olivia Newton-John. Musical. Not much plot, but plenty of fun, energy and music. Travolta can't sing, but, who cares? — he's a star. Slow direction stalls some of the musical numbers, but overall this has a very enjoyable quality, and it builds up to a great musical climax. It's all fine summer fluff. GRADE: B-plus.

HEAVEN CAN WAIT (PG) — Warren Beatty, Julie Christie, Dyan Cannon, Charles Grodin. Comedy. A cheerful, gentle fantasy about a Heavenly mistake concerning the death of a pro football player. So he gets another chance — and another body. This time, he's a tycoon, but he still wants to be a quarterback. Even the heavies are lovable in this upbeat film. GRADE: B—Plus.

INTERNATIONAL VELVET (PG) — Tatum O'Neal, Christopher Plummer, Nanette Newman, Anthony Hopkins. Drama. Frankly sentimental, this belated sequel to "National Velvet" has Velvet, now 40-ish, adopting her orphaned niece and overseeing her desire to be an Olympic equestrienne. Fine for family viewing, but tending to be a bit over-sweet. GRADE: B.

JAWS 2 (PG) — Roy Scheider. Action-thriller. Here we go again, but this time it misses the mark. The story is poor, the direction is weak, the shark looks fishy. Some moments of excitement but generally pretty dull. Compared to the first one, this sequel is strictly a sinker. GRADE: C.

OUR WINNING SEASON (PG) — Scott Jacoby. Comedy-drama. Another "American Graffitti" copy, this film about high school kids growing up in the '60s starts slowly but manages to find itself in the last reel. Mostly, it's about a young track star trying to find himself. The beginning is so cliche-ridden it's embasrrasing, but the last part is okay. GRADE: C.

PRETTY BABY (R) — Keith Carradine, Susan Sarandon, Brooke Shields. Drama. Set in New Orleans' famous Storyville brothel area, this is a beautifully photographed look at a family of prostitutes. The subject matter may be objectionable, but director Louis Malle has handled it tastefully, or as tastefully as possible. Good performances all around. GRADE: B-plus.

SERVANT AND MISTRESS (R) — Victor Lanoux, Andrea Ferreol. Psychological drama. She was the servant, he the arrogant nephew. Rich uncle dies; now she's the arrogant mistress of the manor and he, well, you get the picture. Fine acting fails to save this French import from final absurdity, pointlessness and bad taste. Caution: Not for the pure of heart. GRADE: C-minus (Grossman)

UNMARRIED WOMAN, AN (R) — Jill Clayburgh, Alan Bates, Michael Murphy. Drama. The title is a misnomer, because the film is about a very-married woman and the trauma she goes through when her husband divorces her. A brilliant performance by Miss Clayburgh in a film that would have been better had it been cut a little tighter. Caution: nudity reigns supreme. GRADE: A-minus.

WE WILL ALL MEET IN PARADISE (PG) — Jean Rochefort, Claude Brasseur, Guy Bedos, Victor Lanoux, Danielle Delorme. Comedy. The affairs, follies and foibles of four middle-aged friends. Only the French can create farce with feeling and this is one of the first order, combining scenes of convulsive horseplay with moments of sensitive horse sense. Pluperfect performances make two hours an all-too-brief visit with these "pals." GRADE: A. (O'Brien)

Film Mogul Ousted

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan J. Hirschfield, the ousted president of Columbia Pictures, said Friday he was determined to remain on the embattled firm's board of directors "and make my views known."

"I'm going to do what I believe is right," Hirschfield, 42, said during a telephone interview. "I am going to be there and will try to represent all the shareholders."

Asked whether he and Leo Jaffe, Columbia's chairman and the only director who supported Hirschfield in Thursday's dramatic board meeting, would form an insurgent group of directors, Hirschfield said: "I haven't really considered that at this point."

Hirschfield was fired from his $250,000-a-year job Thursday in the culmination of a long-running dispute with a powerful faction of the firm's board of directors.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

FARMERS CAN BRACE THEMSELVES for higher costs again this year.

As directed by the 1973 farm act, USDA economists have been estimating production costs for 10 major commodities since 1974. For 1978, they see increased per acre costs for all 10.

Depending on the crop, cost per acre will range 2 to 9 percent higher, reflecting larger outlays for machinery and labor. Chemicals and fertilizer, on the other hand, probably will cost about the same as last year, USDA says.

In their report, the economists emphasized that the projected costs are weighted national averages, recognizing that outlays vary across regions and states and from farm to farm.

THE COSTS INCLUDE MANAGEMENT expenses, general farm overhead, machinery ownership, and variable costs — a category made up of items like seed, chemicals, fertilizer, labor and fuel.

For cotton, average costs per acre, excluding land, climbed just over 6 percent from 1976 to about $260 in 1977. Only the Southeast escaped the increase — due to lower farm chemical prices and reduced ginning charges brought about by smaller yields.

Economists indicate that at the mid range of possible 1978 yields, per unit production costs would increase about 16 percent to 60 cents a pound.

Per acre costs are slated to rise only 3 percent to $267, but range from a projected high of $527 in the Far West (Arizona and California) to a low of $185 in the Southern Plains (New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas).

EXTENSIVE USE OF IRRIGATION continued to make the Southwest (California and Texas) the most expensive place to grow an acre of corn last year. Growers in the Southeast, however, encountered the highest costs per bushel because of unusually poor yields.

This year, total costs per acre, excluding land, are projected to rise about $7.25, or 5 percent, to an average of $152.80. Economists pin most of the increase on rising prices for energy, machinery and labor.

Soaring energy costs will hit Southwest growers the hardest, with fuel and lubrication for irrigation equipment running nearly $61 an acre — $14 more than in 1976.

Based on trends, yields could be higher this year, but not enough to offset the gain in per acre costs. As a result, the cost of producing a bushel of corn will climb an estimated 7 cents to around $1.67.

ALL GRAIN SORGHUM PRODUCING REGIONS last year chalked up bigger yields as well as higher costs per acre. In the Central Plains, though, costs rose only 6 percent while yields shot up 29 percent. As a result, the cost per bushel dropped 30 cents from 1976, lowering the U. S. average by 19 cents to $1.80 a bushel.

This year, sorghum producers again face higher costs per acre in all regions. On a per bushel basis, farmers are expected to pay 44 cents more in the Central Plains and an additional 36 cents in the Southwest.

Meantime, Southern Plains producers may spend a little less per bushel than last season, according to USDA, if yields follow previous trends.

Farmland Co-op Suffers Slump

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Last year's merger that made Farmland Industries one of the nation's largest companies was touted as the way to increase profits. But earnings now are no higher than before.

Farmland, a cooperative that helps market the production from about 500,000 member farmers and ranchers in 15 Midwestern states, has suffered from the national slump in agriculture. And problems such as a grain elevator explosion, a rail car shortage and a weak fertilizer market haven't helped.

But the president of the co-op, Ernest Lindsey, says Farmland's problems would have been worse without the merger.

Lindsey arranged the May 2, 1977 merger of Farmland, based in Kansas City, and Far-Mar-Co, headquartered in the central Kansas community of Hutchinson. The two co-ops then had a total of 2,200 affiliated local farmers cooperatives, and 60 more have since joined. In addition to marketing crops, the giant co-op is involved in foreign grain sales, fertilizer production, soybean processing, research and other services for members.

Because of Farmland's difficulties, sales this year are expected to reach $3.03 billion, the same as last year for the two farm groups. That's about $300 million less than Lindsey forecast last February.

When the fiscal year closes Aug. 31, net profits could be as low as $40 million or less — about half the earnings Farmland and Far-Mar-Co realized in 1977 and only 20 percent of what Farmland earned by itself during the agricultural boom of 1975.

Lindsey said that earnings would have dropped this year regardless of the merger and that the combination streamlined Far-Mar-Co's operations and held its losses to a minimum. He predicted that Far-Mar-Co, now a separate corporation owned by Farmland, might break even this year.

"I don't think the merger is in any way responsible" for the financial setback, Lindsey said recently. "I don't think the members will tie anything to the merger. They will understand that it's an industrywide situation."

Farmland is ranked 78th on the Fortune magazine list of the 500 largest industrial firms in the country. That puts it in the neighborhood with Allied Chemical, TRW, National Steel and Sperry Rand.

After the merger, the cooperatives combined operations ranging from soybean processing to security sales, as well as their data processing, printing plants, research, training facilities and employee-benefit programs.

The new firm has pursued foreign markets, sending trade teams to Japan and Mexico and negotiating with buyers in Western Europe, China, South America and the Soviet Union.

The grain elevator explosion in Galveston, Texas and the shortage of railroad hopper cars have been particularly tough on Far-Mar-Co, which is involved mainly in wheat marketing and relies heavily on grain exports.

The Galveston elevator, wrecked in a grain-dust explosion last December, had been used by Far-Mar-Co and five other cooperatives to export members' grain.

Lindsey said Far-Mar-Co has had to use other Gulf Coast exporters and has had to pay higher handling charges than at the Galveston facility. He said the Galveston elevator is being rebuilt and is expected to be back in service in about 18 months.

"When the Galveston elevator is back in business, it's sure to step up the exporting capability of the Farmland and Far-Mar-Co members," Lindsey added.

Despite all the problems, Far-Mar-Co has moved more grain this year than last, but not as much as had been anticipated, he said.

Equally frustrating is the shortage of hopper cars. The shortage has prevented Farmland from getting grain to Los Angeles, where a West Coast office was established last year.

"We're still very optimistic about the grain export business, not only on the Gulf, but the West Coast as well," Lindsey said. "We've had good domestic business out of Los Angeles as long as we could get the hopper cars."

He said fertilizer revenues are down at Farmland because the company, like many others, spent heavily to develop new fertilizer plants during the shortages brought on by the agriculture boom of 1972-1975. Now the market is glutted with liquid fertilizer. And sales have dropped between 10 percent and 15 percent because of wet, cool weather during the past fall and spring planting seasons.

Cutbacks caused by a federal program requiring farmers to take 20 percent of their acreage out of wheat production in order to qualify for various government farm programs also has hurt the fertilizer market. Fertilizers had been the company's biggest profit item.

Lindsey said that the railroad-car shortage reduced sales of solid fertilizers, where there is still a market, because the company could not ship the products. He estimated that it would take of couple of years before the car shortage is corrected.

Lindsey said that he is still confident the merger will be a success.

"I still feel very strongly it was the thing to do," he said. "It will be good for farmers and members in the long pull. I think we've gone through the bottom of the trough. I feel sure next year is going to be better."

Beef Futures Higher In Active Trading

By Reuters

CHICAGO — In an active trade of about 26,169 contracts, live cattle futures ended 140 points higher to 10 lower Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

October was up most at the day's high with only distant October lower. The market rallied after nearby August gave up 67 points.

Prices were lifted to six-week highs in later months with nearby October gaining sharply on nearby August. Active commission house short covering and other buying was led by several houses with cash connections.

Friday's slaughter was estimated at 135,000 head. The six markets expect 17,800 head to arrive on Monday.

Feeder cattle futures finished 95 points higher to 10 lower. November was up most after March gained 105 points, while only September ranged lower. Volume was estimated at 2,872 trades.

The market rebounded sharply after nearby August lost 127 points, then climbed to its highest points since May at 64.2 cents a pound.

Aggressive short covering and other buying followed similar action in live cattle futures after early profit-taking.

Six-market arrivals on Monday are expected to be 1,100 head.

Hog futures moved up 35 to 102 points led by April and June at the best levels of the day. Sales were 4,971 cars.

Prices turned around after an initial loss of 100 points in October.

Traders also noted mostly higher cash hogs and firmer tones to cash hams at noon as supporting influences.

Wholesale hams were up one-half cent to 2 1/2 cents at 77 to 78 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were up $1 to off 50 cents on a top of $49 per hundredweight in Peoria.

Friday's kill was estimated at 265,000 head. The major terminals expect 28,500 receipts on Monday.

Pork belly (bacon) futures tumbled the daily limit of 200 points in nearby July, while later months added 65 points, paced by August. Volume was estimated at 5,139 turnovers.

The nearby option fell to its lowest point in a week on liquidation pressure ahead of Monday's expiration. Weakness in cash bellies and heavy deliveries, 147 so far, also weighed on the contract.

Later months were up on spill over buying from other meat pits, gaining 100 points for a time.

Wholesale bacon was off three-fourths-cent to two cents at 49 1/2 to 59 cents asked per pound, f.o.b. river.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures staged a late rally, enabling wheat and soybean prices to finish with sizable gains on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Part of the abrupt turnaround stemmed from a sharp surge in precious metals futures, attributed to a report that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had decided to peg crude oil prices to a group of world currencies rather than exclusively to the U.S. dollar.

A subsequent clarification, however, said that an OPEC committee had decided only to recommend the oil pricing change.

Another development that inspired buyers, especially in wheat futures, was Senate subcommittee approval of a bill that would make China eligible for special consideration in grain transactions.

Earlier in the day, prices had resumed a downtrend that has prevailed in recent weeks. Grain analysts said the extent of a slight recovery in the past two days had proved disappointing.

"Some people thought it might be a key reversal, but it wasn't strong enough to sustain itself," one analyst commented.

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed 65 cents to $1.50 a bale higher Friday.

Concern over continued dry weather in the western Texas cotton growing areas and confusion over OPEC policy on the currency on which it will base its oil prices influenced demand for cotton futures, brokers said.

Tech Researchers Study Combinations Of Forage

By mixing kleingrass, sideoats grama and tobosagrass together in pastures where tobosagrass and mesquite have been dominant, ranchers can help provide year-round grazing for their livestock.

Dr. Billie E. Dahl, range and wildlife management instructor at Texas Tech, along with graduate students W. E. Bean and John P. Goen, has been studying cattle acceptance of seeded kleingrass and sideoats grama in native tobosagrass-mesquite pastures.

"It is the combination of forage that appears to work," Dahl said. "By seeding native pastures with kleingrass and sideoats grama, a rancher can provide enough types of forage to give the cattle a preferred species no matter the season or weather conditions."

Preliminary research has shown that while cattle prefer kleingrass when it is green and growing and at its peak nutritionally, when the grass is dormant in drought or in winter, cattle will select the native grasses over kleingrass.

In experiments near San Angelo in Tom Green County, mechanically cleared tobosagrass-mesquite rangeland was seeded to kleingrass and sideoats grama.

"In the growing season, kleingrass was the preferred forage by livestock and was higher in quality, as measured by crude protein, moisture, phosphorus and digestibility," said the researcher. "Sideoats grama was intermediate in quality, with native tobosagrass ranked last."

In this period, cattle were found to gain almost 1½ pounds per day on kleingrass, compared with slightly less than a pound on tobosagrass.

Cattle also ate considerably more per day of the kleingrass than tobosagrass. The animals consumed 22 pounds per day of kleingrass, versus 14 pounds of the tobosagrass.

Another study in the same area revealed, however, that when kleingrass and sideoats grama are dormant, either during drought or in winter, kleingrass was the least selected grass by livestock.

With less than normal rainfall from June through November 1977, the period of the study, it was found that sideoats grama, previously eaten only lightly by the livestock, was the main forage grass in mid to late summer.

Tobosagrass was the next preferred forage during the period, followed by kleingrass, which was eaten only sparingly.

In the winter, kleingrass again was the least selected forage by livestock. Sideoats grama was most preferred, followed by native grasses, Dahl said.

Beef Supply Seen Lower By USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second month in a row, consumers will have only "adequate" supplies of beef in August, according to the Agriculture Department.

The department said Thursday in its monthly "Food Marketing Alert" that there will be a slight seasonal increase in the August beef supply but that overall there will be 4 to 6 percent less than a year ago.

As used in the report, which is circulated to large-volume food buyers, adequate means "enough to meet needs" while plentiful is "more than enough for requirements." Another category, light, indicates "less than adequate, not enough for normal needs."

A month ago the report for July put beef on the adequate list for the first time in almost three years after being rated as plentiful since September 1975.

Other items in the adequate category included pork, milk, turkeys, fresh oranges, some processed fruit, fresh potatoes and a few other commodities.

Graduation Speech May Be Brief

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Summer graduates of the University of Tennessee-Knoxville may not be waving their caps this year to keep cool during the commencement address.

University officials announced Thursday the speaker for the Aug. 25 commencement will be Chancellor Larry T. McGehee, who is noted for the three-minute commencement address he gave at the University of Alabama in 1972.

"They thought I was still in the introduction when I sat down," he said, adding that he does not know how long the Knoxville address will be.

Ag Committee Okays Fee Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee this week approved legislation allowing livestock brokers to make more money off the current high cattle and hog prices.

The bill passed unanimously, as it did in the House panel.

It would allow auction houses and others to charge fees for their services based on the value of the animal or to have a fixed rate per head. The fees are paid by ranchers, farmers and others selling the animals through the brokers.

The Supreme Court has upheld an Agriculture Department ruling that present law does not permit percentage fees.

The firms originally covered by that law used fixed rates but a recent expansion of its coverage brought in many that have been using the value-based method.

The measure, now pending in both the House and Senate, would still prohibit any firm's fees that the Agriculture Department found to be unfair or unreasonable.

The Carter administration has endorsed the legislation.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am really distressed. I planned on cashing $3,000 of U.S. Treasury 3¼ percent bonds ths past June 15. On each bond is stamped "Redeemable on or after 6-15-78." But my bank informs me that I cannot cash these bonds, until 1983.

Should I lose faith in my government for not living up to its promise to redeem its bonds on June 15?

A. Although this is a bitter pill for you to swallow, the federal government did not break any promise. If the U.S. Treasury ever reneged on even one of its debt obligations, the financial structure of this country and the entire world would collapse.

The Treasury "3¼s of 1978-83" are due to mature in June, 1983. At that time, the U.S. Treasury will pay them off at par value. I hope you'll be around to get $3,000 for your bonds.

The June 14, 1978 notation stamped on the bond means that the federal government has the right to call the bonds for redemption on and after that date. It does not mean that owners of the bonds have the right to present them for redemption.

With interest rates where they are these days — and likely to stay way above 3¼ percent for years to come — it's most unlikely that the Treasury will call your bonds before June, 1983.

Sorry. But these are the hard financial facts. They are spelled out in the fine print on your bonds.

Q. I was surprised to read about tax-free municipal bonds paying interest. "by check every six months." I always thought that municipal bonds came with interest coupons attached and that the owner cut off a coupon every six months to collect interest. Am I wrong?

A. No. Most municipal bonds are issed in "bearer" form, meaning that there is no record of the owner — either on the bond or on the books of the issuer. The owner collects interest by clipping a coupon and sending it in — normally through a bank.

But some — not many — municipal bonds come in "registered" form. In those cases, the owner receives an interest check in the mail semi-annually. Most of these are housing autority bonds.

Q. When a person cashes a savings certificate beforg maturity, there is usually a heavy penalty — the loss of three months' interest and the reduction of other interest to the passbook savings rate. Who decrees this penalty?

A. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in the case of insure banks and the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp., in the case of insured savings and loan associations.

There can be other fine points of difference with different savings certificates at different institutions. So, before you put your money away, you should check out all the detail at the particular bank or S &L.
