BREWING UP A LITTLE MUSIC, these "witches" were among the third graders at Live Oak Elementary who entertained parents and teachers with a Halloween show during the school's PTA meeting this past week. Now a minor holiday for children, Halloween has a sinister history that's recounted on page 6b of today's Pilot.

Bahia Bay roads are accepted

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

A reluctant Aransas County commissioners court accepted the remaining portions of the roads in the Bahia Bay Subdivision Wednesday, Oct. 26, upon advice from District Attorney Thomas Bridges, who advised the commissioners of their legal responsibility.

The decision came after a closed session with Bridges Wednesday afternoon. Bridges had been retained by the county after Aransas County Attorney James Anderson, who also does title work, removed himself from the case.

The controversy over the roads and drainage in the Bahia Bay Subdivision has been going on since January of this year. At that time, developers and county officials met to discuss the elevation of the roads and drainage. The county contended that the roads were too low in places and the subgrade inadequate, leaving the pavement consistently wet. The Bahia Bay developers pointed out that the roads had been built according to specifications laid out in the county's subdivision requirements, but agreed to core tests in several places.

After core tests in several places revealed failure of the subgrade and an engineer's report by Naismith Engineers of Corpus Christi predicted that the roads in these spots would not hold up, the county requested Naismith to make recommendations which would make the roads acceptable. The developers reluctantly agreed to comply with Naismith's recommendations, saying that the roads were built to county specifications.

The county also requested that a cul-de-sac be constructed at the east end of Estes Drive in the subdivision, allowing cars to turn around without pulling into the driveways of residents. At the time, developer George Craig agreed to the construction of a cul-de-sac although it was said that the turn-around would have to be less than the regulation 100-feet set forth in the subdivsion requirements. Since part of the area for the turn-around is a drainage ditch, County Surveyor T.E. Griffith said that a culvert would have to be put in and the road built on top of it to prevent interference with drainage.

At the same time the core samples were being taken, the county had retained Naismith for consultation on a new set of subdivision requirements, which were adopted at a later date.

After Naismith filed their report on the core samples they suggested that the subgrade be mixed with concrete or a similar stabilizer in the portions of the road in question to keep the road from crumbling due to wetness. The recommendations were presented to Bahia Bay's contractor, Vermillion Construction, who carried out the firm's recommendations with the approval of the county.

The county had meanwhile accepted those roads in the subdivision which were not subject to repairs. When the work on those portions of the roads which were deemed unacceptable was completed, Naismith Engineers came out to inspect the work and give its report to both the county and the Bahia Bay developers. Naismith, in a September letter to the county, gave its approval to the portions of the roads which were repaired by Vermillion.

Charlie Zahn, one of the partners in the Bahia Bay Development Co., came before the court at its regular meeting Oct. 10 with a copy of the engineer's report, and requested acceptance of the roads by the county. Precinct 1 Commissioner John Lee objected, saying he wanted to inspect the site after a heavy rainfall which had occurred over the past several days. After inspection Lee refused to accept the roads, saying that they were underwater and covered with sand. He said that he would not be responsible for accepting the roads, the maintenance for which would be a burden to the taxpayers.

Zahn said that the requirements had been

THE 50s LOOK was on the agenda at Rockport-Fulton High School Tuesday as students and faculty observed one of a week of special days leading up to Friday's Homecoming game against Beeville. From left, teachers Deanna Daws, Laurie Hatfield and Kimberlee Schulz model some of the fashions for which the '50s were noted.

Notable notes

School board meeting

The board of education of the Aransas County Independent School District has called a special meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 31, to discuss and call bids for emergency repair of the high school gym floor. The meeting will be held in the ACISD Administration Building.

Appleton to speak

Scott Appleton, well-known former University of Texas athlete, will speak to the local Fellowship of Christian Athletes at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 31 in the Allied Live Oak Bank Center. Anyone interested in athletics is welcome to attend. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes meets from 12:45-1:30 p.m. each Thursday.

Tax Aide orientation

There will be a Tax Aide orientation session led by Velma Ramsey, Merritt Hulett and Phyliss McBride from 10 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. Nov. 7 at First National Bank Town Hall. All persons interested in assisting the Tax Aide group in helping to prepare income tax forms for older persons are welcome. There will be a Tax Aide School at a later date.

Rummage sale

The ladies' auxiliary of VFW Post 3904 will have a rummage sale at the VFW Hall on Market Street Saturday, Nov. 5. The sale will begin at 9 a.m.

AARP Bus Tour

There are a few spaces left on the AARP chartered bus tour to New Braunfels on Nov. 4. The bus will leave the Paws and Taws Building at 10 a.m. and stop at Encina Plaza about 10:15 a.m. The $20 fare will include a sack lunch and entry to the park for the accordian concert. The bus will leave the park at 9 p.m. For reservations and information call Patty Fishwick at 729-3085.

Rockport council resets meeting, public hearings

The Rockport city council's joint public hearing with the planning and zoning commission, public annexation hearings and regular meeting postponed from Tuesday, Oct. 25, has been reset for 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 31, at City Hall.

The meeting will begin with the joint public hearing on a request by Thomas F. Zuniga for rezoning of two lots in the 500 block of South Pearl Street from R-5 second multi-family dwelling to R-7 residential and office.

This is to be followed by a public hearing on Rockport Country Club Inc.'s request for annexation of the 176.95-acre Unit 2 of Rockport Country Club Estates.

Last on the public hearing agenda is the city's proposed annexation of approximately 300 acres of land including two state tracts in Aransas Bay and various properties along Hwy. 35 North and between Hwy. 35 and Little Bay Shores.

During the regular session, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. or immediately following the hearings, the council will consider adoption on second reading of an ordinance granting zoning changes and special permits approved during prior council sessions.

First reading will be given to a proposed updated subdivision ordinance for the city, incorporating changes recommended by the planning and zoning commission, and an ordinance granting a special permit to Les Chevalier Inc., doing business as Spice o' Life, to allow sale of liquor by the drink at the restaurant's location at 1405 Broadway.

The council will be asked to consider casting 319 votes for candidates to serve on the 1984-85 board of directors of the Aransas County Appraisal District.

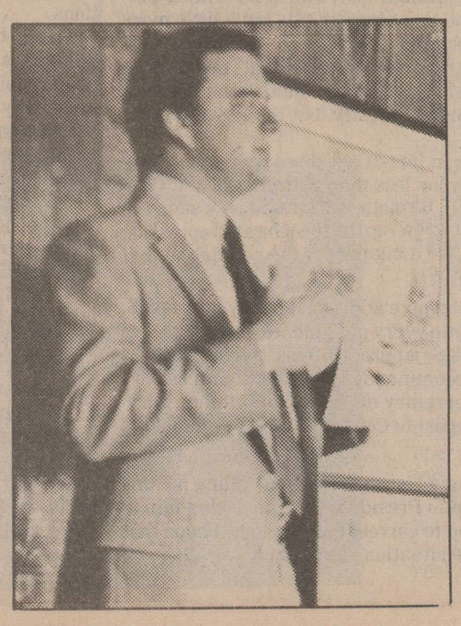

Alderwoman Betty Jean Ward is scheduled to report on the recent Texas Muncipal League Conference in Houston.

The Rockport-Fulton Soccer Association is on the agenda with a request for permission to locate a portable concession stand in Memorial Park. The request has received a favorable recommendation from the board of parks and recreation.

Also on the agenda is a request from the Aransas County Council on Aging for a variance from the Flood Plain Ordinance, to allow an addition to the COA Adult Activity Center at 912 S. Church.

State Sen. Sharp raps proposed fourth amendment

State Senator John Sharp expressed support for 10 of the 11 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution during the Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 25, luncheon meeting of the Rockport Area Board of Realtors at the Crab-N Restaurant.

The senator said he supported all but one of the amendments, Amendment 4, which provides for the succession of public officials in the event of death from enemy attack or nuclear holocaust. The amendment also authorizes the suspension of certain legislative procedures during such emergencies.

Sharp called the amendment "ridiculous" and said that the amendment, which comes from "good old Uncle Sam," could endanger $50 million in highway funds which would be earmarked instead for implementation of this amendment.

The 11 constitutional amendments include Proposition 1, which allows counties with populations of less than 30,000 to have fewer justices of the peace and constable precincts than those with larger populations. Sharp called the amendment "long overdue."

Could endanger $50 million in highway funds

Amendment 2 originated in metropolitan areas, he said. In rural areas, he explained, homesteads are protected from sale or debt up to 200 acres. In urban areas, the limitation is $10,000 rather than a size limitation. The amendment would change that $10,000 to 1 acre, giving it a size limitation.

Amendment 3 affects agricultural areas, providing for the establishment of commodities boards to aid in the advancement of production and marketing through research, education and promotion.

Amendment 5 will allow local school districts to issue bonds guaranteed by the state's Permanent School Fund, something which should allow for up to a two-point difference in percentage rages, Sharp said. He stressed that in no way would the state's Permanent University Fund be affected by the amendment.

Sharp said that Amendment 6 is probably the most controversial of the amendments. It authorizes the legislature to garnish the wages of those parents who fail to pay child support when ordered to do so by a court of law. The senator said that Texas has the highest percentage of non-payment of child support of any state in the U.S. He added that the amendment, if passed, would most likely be used in very few cases because the threat of garnishment will probably be enough of a deterrent.

Amendment 7 will allow the sale of $800 million in state bonds for financial assistance to veterans. Three hundred million dollars would go to the existing Veterans' Housing Assistance Program, a new program which loans funds to individual veterans for a down-payment on a home.

Amendment 8 originated in Refugio County

Trouble foreseen with industrial policy

By BRETT BADER
American Press Syndicate

The American economic debate has shifted.

For the past few decades, indifferent Americans sat idly by and watched as the fine points of Keynesian tax-and-spend policies were bantered about by an intellectual elite, much to the detriment of the nation's economy. That has all changed.

No longer satisfied with a government-managed economy that yeilded precipitous inflation and interest rates, rising unemployment, decreasing consumer confidence and a shrinking role in the global economy, voters have sent a clear message to Washington demanding reduced government intervention in the marketplace.

For the first time in years, new proposals have been both offered and enacted — chief among them tax cuts, production incentives and reduced bureaucracy and regulation.

Those who publicly embrace a relatively free economy, but privately abhor the notion, learned (slowly) that the same old bundle of goods would not sell anymore in the marketplace of ideas. Their tried-and-failed policies needed to be repackaged, test-marketed and courageously put back on the shelves in a "new and improved" form.

And so, "national industrial policy" was born.

Unfortunately for its proponents, and the nation should it be enacted, it's still the same old snake-oil.

The term national industrial policy itself is overused. There are literally dozens of proposals, differing quite distinctively in places, that claim the title. But while the actual definitions of a national industrial policy (NIP) are legion, they all appear to have a similar starting point, the decline of the American economy.

Proponents of NIP cite a spreading sense of fear that the very underpinnings of the American economy are at stake in the face of stiff foreign competition and the "transition" of America's traditional industrial bases.

This, they lament, along with a crumbling infrastructure, continuous recessions, unemployment and falling productivity, among other things, necessitates the call for "coordinated policies" and according to Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., a leading advocate, "building this transitional period and make our industries more competitive."

Once out of the gate, however, the proposals head in a multitude of directions. Currently there are as many as 30 different pieces of legislation pertaining to NIP. These bills include resurrecting the New Deal's Reconstruction Finance Corporation that issued loan guarantees to ailing firms, the creation of a National Investment Corporation that would target specific industries for financing and the establishment of a National Industrial Development Board that would set priorities for further industrial development.

Nobel laureate George J. Stigler concludes, "One thing we know about government is that it is not a good entrepreneur. Look at the splendid triumphs of government: It supervised the railroads into bankruptcy, destroyed interurban transportation with regulation and regulated thousands of banks out of existence in the 1930s." Reagan advisor Alan Greenspan is more succint: "When you strip away the philosophical paraphernalia, industrial policy is a mechanism by which the politically powerful get their hands in the till."

Robert Reich, of Harvard's Kennedy School of Government, in his book "The Next American Frontier," makes his case for a national industrial policy which includes: the complete elimination of taxes on savings, government incentives to firms that retrain workers and an aggressive globally competitive U.S. economy.

While excellent suggestions, they prompted George Gilder, author of "Wealth and Poverty," and a leading proponent of Reaganomics, to comment, "It sounds like supply-side economics to me." Truly the more economically advanced proposals seem to recognize the pitfalls of America's current tax policies but, in a confusing display of tunnel vision, they seek out government as the solution to its own problems.

Three proposals that are present in nearly every offering are: 1) The targeting of "sunrise industries"; 2) Some sort of policy-making tribunal; and 3) Protectionist trade measurers.

Pinpointing the so-called sunrise industries is based on the notion that Japan has enjoyed its post-war success by identifying industries of the future and prodding them along through continuous protection and subsidies. Proponents argue that a growth-oriented economy should do more than react. It should lead the way with tomorrow's technologies and what better tool than the government?

Nearly any other tool. The collection of necessary date is costly, time-consuming and becomes outdated almost immediately. It seems incredible that this still has to be said, but there remains no better mechanism than the marketplace to determine the value of a specific economic entity. It is for this reason that centrally-planned economies remain mired in outmoded technologies.

The uncertainties and unpredictabilities of a growth-oriented, open economy are something that cannot be duplicated in its planned counterpart. Only through the encouragement of investment and risk-taking — and the preservation of the profit-motive — will the dynamism exist that will continue to lure individuals into the marketplace to work and compete.

A planned economy cannot successfully predict and perform, it can only aim and hope.

Japan, today, finds itself having to shrink industries, such as alumnium and petrochemicals, that is earlier encouraged to grow. Outside Japan, the evidence that government can pinpoint sunrise industries becomes even weaker.

Atomic power in the United States and the Concorde in Britain and France are good examples of costly, ineffectual government investments in research and development. Subsidizing industry serves only to cost the taxpayer more; it does nothing to increase a country's ability to compete.

In the same breath, supporters of NIP also look toward some sort of tripartite council. A committee of Business, Government and Organized Labor that would exist to seek consensus, for instance, on how capital investment would be allocated, in Reich's words, "Differently than it is in free capital markets."

House Democrats have also proposed an Economic Cooperation Council that would collect and analyze data and recommend steps to restore U.S. competitiveness. Other proposals contain councils with much broader powers, but aside from adding an estimated $8 million to the budget, it is difficult to discern any real impact they might have.

First, even Reich admits that it would be difficult to build a consensus with such a diverse group. Since government quite often is serving as the antagonist of both business and labor, it is hard to imagine the three groups sitting down and devising anything but the most diluted of proposals.

Second, a commitee of this nature, by virtue of the fact that it is appointed, would become nothing more than a politicized, polarized organization. This term, above all others, demonstrates that it is nothing more than business-as-usual for those who would create government by the special interests.

Finally, the notion that this body could arrive at the optimal conclusions is specious, at best. Citing terror tales of life in the marketplace, advocates yearn for a more balanced, central planning organization.

The burden of proof is on them, for to complain of deficiencies in the marketplace, one must demonstrate that a planned economy is less deficient. A difficult task in light of present and past history.

With limited and outdated information, along with competing special interests, it is difficult to imagine a conclave of this sort arriving at anything but the most cosmetic of solutions, far from leading us down the garden path to prosperity.

Finally, the emergence of protectionist trade policies as a substantial component of NIP exist to (as proponents put it) restore America's international competitiveness, or industrial rivals will reduce the United States to a second-rate global economic power. This is achieved through a number of mechanisms, chief among them are import tariffs, export programs, subsides and domestic-content laws, all aimed at closing the nation's markets a little more to foreign products.

Wolfgang Hager, visiting professor at Gerogetown's school of Foreign Service, writing in the "Washington Post," galvanizes the protectionist sentiment of NIP advocates: "Without trade barriers rich countries destroy the domestic industries that used to make those products. There will never be enough 'hightech' jobs to employ those who lose more traditional jobs. Therefore, unrestricted trade would eventually destroy the economics of all high-wage, developed countries."

So we see that, to advocates of NIP, a principle cornerstone of their remedy for America's ills includes the preservation and protection of specific industries that, for whatever reason, cannot compete globally on their own. Hardly a new idea in theory or practice.

The effects, regardless of how unintended, of the latest proposals for American protectionist trade policies can best be compared to a family that is so distressed at the notion of contact with other individuals that they choose to reproduce strictly among themselves.

The genetic devastation that would result is mild compared to the ravages of these simplistic panaceas for the American economy.

The desire for a national industrial policy, sadly, does not represent a new page in the public policy debate but rather a rereading of an earlier, less than lucid, chapter. Indeed proponents are correct when they argue that the United States has had an industrial policy since it started building canals.

Truly the many public works that have been undertaken, such as roads and dams, are legitimate functions of government, but the record is replete with accounts of boondoggles, waste, fraud and incompetence that have accompanied these projects.

Recent calls for NIP bring back memories of the mercantilist, state-sponsored economies of the 18th century that prompted Adam Smith to react and plead for the freedom of the marketplace that, above all other institutions, leads to the optimal allocation of goods and services and offers promise to those who are willing to work and save.

The present ills of the American economy, cited by proponents as the reason for an industrial policy, are nothing more than the results of the massive governmental intervention that already takes place.

New method discovered to guage candidate's success

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula philosopher on his grassburr ranch examines a new polling system this week.

Dear Editor:

There's a new way to guage a candidate's standing in a political race that may put public opinion pollsters out of business.

Why go to the trouble and expense of taking a "scientific" sampling of voter opinion when this new method is available to anybody who can read figures? All it consists of is finding out which candidate is raising the most campaign money, on the principle that the one that raises the most is most likely to win.

Here it is a full year before the presidential election and the news pundits routinely say so-and-so is leading because he raised $2 million last month to his opponent's $1½ million.

You can figure up what your vote is worth under this financial polling system.

It is now estimated that to run a race for the nomination for president, a candidate, if he's to be taken seriously, has to raise at least $10 million. Then if he wins there, he'll need 20 or 30 or even 40 million dollars to run for the presidency itself.

Most of this money, candidates agree, will be spent on television commercials.

Therefore, it's possible that parents will now be telling their kids: "Sure, it's possible that any child can grow up and become president, but if you're smart you'll try to grow up and own a television station."

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Austin at Wharf

IT WAS INTERESTING conversation: three foreign correspondents stationed in Washington D.C., describing the manner in which they present news from this country to their newspapers at home. There was a Canadian, a West German and a Saudi Arabian. All were sympathetic and understanding of the U.S. dilemma in Central America.

However, with respect to our "peace keeping" force in Lebanon the Saudi suggested we'd be wise to cut our losses and get out. The others were in general agreement. The Saudi view was that we seem to not understand that what is happening in Lebanon is a civil war, a long ongoing strife brought to a head by the Israelis who are now sitting back, the damage having been generated. Well, I'm not sure that we can at this point "cut our losses and get out," as suggested. However, I did know well beforehand enough about what we might be getting into in Lebanon to oppose the sending of U.S. troops there.

Were you to sit down with a representative of any of those groups, he'd be able to give you a pretty convincing story in defense of his people and he'd not have to lie. Truthfully, all have honest grievances and claims.

A YOUNG MAN WHOM I happen to know rather well not so long ago won a fairly sizable cash door prize award at a chamber of commerce meeting in Corpus Christi. When he went to the head table to accept the prize he was asked if he wouldn't like to donate it to the chamber. "Certainly," he replied, "if you'll use it to paint that orange roof on Ocean Drive across from the T-Heads a less gaudy color." The roof remains orange and I presume my friend has devoted to money to some other worthwhile cause.

That brings me to plaudits for a Port Aransas tavern keeper who has vowed to not sell a certain brand of beer in his establishment because of its gaudy billboards. It is of course difficult for me to think of a billboard that is not gaudy (deliberately so).

Meanwhile in my book the city council in any town would serve its community well by restricting the type and size of signs of all sorts. Anyone ever been to places like Mystic, Conn., Jamestown, Va.? Needless to say though, once one gets past the immediate environs of either of those places the vulgar and tasteless show commences immediately. Still, it's nice while it lasts.

For all of this I must ask, why can't groups presumably bent on improving their towns get their heads together, create an overall design for their business districts and follow it through?

I WAS MILDLY distressed when a few days ago an area daily, not unfriendly to President Reagan, editorially observed that foreign affairs were not his strong point. Not that I deny the point but rather that I thought the commentary neither erudite or necessary. Point is that there has never been a president who has understood — and to be truthful — been interested in international relations.

To most, the subject is one that they have preferred would just go away. Quite understandably. Politicians win election and re-election at home and not abraod. Although there has been a changing awareness of the world in the course of the past four decades the man in the street retains a "just leave us alone" attitude.

Before we denigrate Reagan on his handling of foreign affairs let's take a quick look at our presidents since WWII, and this will be only off the top of my head: Truman muffed things in 1945 at the Potsdam conference and later, ignoring circumstances in Indo-China, laid the basic groundwork for the Vietnam War.

Eisenhower foolishly supported the French in their efforts to retain Indo-China as a colony.

Kennedy mishandled the Bay of Pigs, floundered helplessly in Vietnam and played a role in the assassination of President Diem.

Johnson, like his predecessors with no knowledge of the Far East, escalated the Vietnam War despite good intentions.

Nixon, best of the lot when it comes to foreign affairs, allowed us to become embroiled in Chile. No off-the-top of my head recollections on Ford, but . . . he did favor the Panama give-away which Carter accomplished. We'll pay dearly for that in years to come.

Skip the questionable good that came from Camp David and Carter's unaccomplishments and gross stupidity (the Teheran raid) would fill a book. So why pick on Reagan?

Someone said the other day that in the field of diplomacy we Americans move too fast and think about things later. By contrast Europeans think too much and do too little.

STILL I MUST fault Reagan on his most recent foreign affairs mistake, the commission he appointed to spend six days in Central America, and then ostensibly come home and tell him what it's all about. He might as well have picked half a dozen names from the telephone book.

Yet topping things off Henry Kissinger headed the group, a man rather notoriously contemptious of Hispanics. The irony of it all lies in the circumstances of there being available dozens, even hundreds, of men and women who are truly experts on Latin America, intelligent, educated people who have worked, lived in and studied those countries.

Weekly report

Solution sought to 'notch problem'

By BILL PATMAN
Congressman

The average life expectancy in the United States today is 74.

We are making such great strides in health care that doctors and scientists tell us the average life expectancy in the year 2020 will be 80.

But, while many can look forward with pleassure to a considerably longer and healthier life, many of our older people face numerous severe problems today.

My daily mail brings us many letters from the older men and women in the 14th Congressional district calling attention to their problems and asked for our help.

The kinds of problems seem almost endless, but we are always glad to do whatever we can.

As many people are aware, there has been a flood of protest about what is known as the "notch problem." The problem affects Social Security retirement benefits of people born in the years 1917 through 1972.

In 1977, before I came to Congress, S.S. officials told Congress that an error was created in a benefit formula written by Congress in 1972.

Social Security said the formula was overly generous to those born in 1916.

The reason was that people preparing to retire could drop out their five lowest years of earnings in calculating their retirement benefit.

As salaries skyrocketed in the 1970s, this meant that eliminating the five lowest years brought high benefits far out of proportion to low contributions to the S.S. fund from the 1930s through the 1960s.

This disparity was compounded by the indexing of benefits to give retirees cost-of-living benefits based on inflation. With the formula sending the system into bankruptcy, the 1977 Congress tried to correct the situation by gradually eliminating the formula.

However, it left the formula in place for those born in 1916 because in the next year, 1978, those people would be 62 and eligible for early retirement benefits — which they already were counting on.

Congress then created a less generous, transitional benefit for those born from 1917 through 1921. The new formula provided them less than it did those born in 1916 but a little more than those born in 1922 or later.

A study commission reported in 1978 that the change treated people in the 1917 to 1921 notch unfairly and recommended Congress correct the inequity, but the 1979 Congress failed to do so.

Now, those people born in 1917-21 are discovering they may get as much as $1,300 a year less than retirees born in 1916. The people born from 1917 through 1921 are a large segment of the generation which grew up in the Great Depression years of the 1930s. They are a big part of the population that served their country in WWII.

Any solution is said to involve additional heavy cost to S.S. But I have been looking into every possible way to help. When the House passed the S.S. appropriations bill recently, I raised this problem. I recommended that the Commissioner of Social Security and Secretary of Health and Human Services make a study and report to Congress ways to correct the benefit disparity.

I also am co-sponsoring a House resolution calling for this study. And I have written to President Reagan asking him to offer a legislative solution to correct the problem. I hope that Congress will correct the situation next year.

Don't be afraid of penalty

Scott Burns

Q: I am 24 and considering opening an IRA for the tax advantages. However, I am sure that I will want to withdraw some of the money early. Are the penalties so stiff as to make this an unwise investment, or can money be made in spite of them?

Also, I have heard that the tax bracket you are in determines the amount of time that the money must be left in the IRA before it will show a profit after the penalties and tax must be paid. Is this true? — C.H., Dallas.

A: Individual Retirement Accounts are the best and most flexible tool currently available for tax-advantaged savings. No one — repeat, no one — should be put off by the 10 percent penalty you pay for withdrawals made before age 59½. Here's why:

— It may not be necessary to pay the penalty. One of the provisions of the IRA legislation is that no penalty will be due in event of death or disability. If you are disabled temporily or permanently, you can witndraw any or all of your prior savings without paying the 10 percent penalty.

— The penalty may be offset by the decline in your tax bracket. Under what circumstances do you think you might withdraw money in the future? If you are worried about, say, a period of unemployment that might force you to tap your retirement savings, or a medical emergency in your family, the fact that a penalty is due won't be particularly important because your taxable income — and tax bracket — would be much lower.

Suppose, for instance, that you make $24,000 a year and lose your job in the middle of next year. If you don't get a job for six months, your earned income for the year will be $12,000 and your tax bracket about 10 percent lower. You'll pay the penalty, but your tax bill will be no higher than if you had worked the full year.

— Compound interest — the eighth wonder of the world — compensates for the penalty. When you save through an IRA you have two major advantages over normal savings: (1) You have more money working for you and (2) no current taxes to pay on the interest earned. Every dollar of extra interest earned grows for you until you retire or withdraw the money.

Consider this simple example: If you were in the 35 percent tax bracket and started with $2,000, you'd only have $1,300 left, after income taxes, to save. Invested at 10 percent, it would earn $130 in interest but net only $84.50 after taxes.

In contrast, you would put the full $2,000 in an IRA account where it would earn $200 - $115.50 more — and that amount would earn and grow for you. According to computer studies done by the American Association of Individual Investors, a Chicago organization that publishes a regular newsletter for investors, the compounding of that difference in earning power will compensate for the 10 percent penalty. How long you must save depends on what your savings earn and your tax bracket. Right now the break-even point is about six years for high-bracket individuals.

Since you are 24 and have 35½ years before retirement, chances are you'll benefit from an IRA and tax-deferred compounding, even if you have to make a withdrawal during that time.

While you should not be misled by advertising that shows you'll be a "millionaire" when you retire (because you may need to be a millionaire just to buy stale bread in another 40 years!) it remains that the IRA is the best low-risk tax shelter available.

Go for it!

Q: Our daughter, 41, wants an IRA. What is best for her future? She has little time for research and no experience in investing. She is single and earns $20,000 a year but has high living expenses and rent, and no company pension. What should she do? — K.V.L., Redondo Beach, Calif.

A: Both you and your daughter should understand than an IRA is not an investment in itself — it is a legal instrument that allows you to invest income without having paid taxes on it first.

Where the money is invested is an entirely separate matter. You can open an IRA at a savings or commercial bank; a mutual fund company; a brokerage firm; or through an insurance company. If you want to move your IRA from one place to another, it can be done with some paperwork. You are never locked into any one company, brokerage house or bank.

What I recommend, particularly for younger people, is that they choose an IRA plan that gives them the most options for forms of investment — a mutual fund company or brokerage house — and that they start with simple, interest-bearing investments such as money market funds, etc.

If you want some incentive, think of this: If your daughter saves $1,000 a year in an IRA and enjoys average growth of 11 percent a year, she will have $107,700 by the time she is 65 — a retirement income of about $11,000. (That's the good news. The bad news is that $11,000 will only buy $3,410 in goods if inflation averages only 5 percent.) Even considering inflation, however, IRAs are a good deal.

BAY HARBOR PRESENTATION. Strickhausen stands by a scale model of his residential development on Hwy. 361 just outside Aransas Pass.

Bay Harbor unveiled

Plans for Strickhausen Real Estate's new Bay Harbor development, just off Hwy. 361 in Aransas Pass, were formally presented to invited guests on Captain Clark's Flagship Paddlewheeler Wednesday, Oct. 26.

A scale model of the proposed 103-lot development was on view aboard the flagship, docked at Bay Harbor, and Strickhausen and representatives of his Corpus Christi-based firm were on hand to meet the guests and answer questions about the project.

Unit 1 of the development has been completed, Strickhausen said, with nine houses — seven custom-built — finished and construction starting on eight more. The developer said most of the single residences will be custom-built.

Planning for the Bay Harbor project began "probably about 1981," Strickhausen said, "but we're just now really starting." The developers are contemplating "possibly garden-type condominiums," Strickhausen said, and plans have been drawn up for a 17-story high rise at the corner where the development fronts the Intracoastal Canal, "but I don't know if we'll go through with it," he added.

"This is the crossroads," he said of the development. Six miles from the Gulf of Mexico — to which it is accessible through the Intracoastal Canal — the location offers good duck hunting and good fishing, Strickhausen added.

Approximately 28 lots are available in the first unit and about the same number in the remaining proposed units, he said. Lot prices range from $49,000 "up to a present high of $85,000," but the price will probably increase later, he said.

HONORED BY HUNT. Jordan, Harden, Ballou and Nelson are honored for their 30 years of service to the Hunt Family. [Photo by Pat Blair]

Hunt Energy honors employees

Four employees of Hunt Energy Corp.'s Rockport District were honored last week for 30 years of service to the Hunt Family.

Awarded for their service during a special dinner Friday, Oct. 21, at the Sandollar Restaurant were J. W. Harden, Richard Ballou, Neal Jordan and E. C. Nelson. The awards were presented by Al Chernosky, Rockport District superintendent.

Two of the employees, Ballou and Jordan, actually have been employed more than 30 years. Ballou began working with the Hunt Oil Company during his summer vacations while he was in high school and was hired full-time following his graduation in 1952. He is now assistant superintendent of the Rockport District.

He has two children, Richard Jr., a graduate student in engineering at the University of Texas in Austin, and Mary, a recent college graduate now teaching music in Needville.

Jordan, now a switcher for the Rockport District, has also been employed by the company since 1952. He and his wife, Janie, have six children and four grandchildren.

Nelson and Harden both joined the Hunt Family on the same day — Oct. 19, 1953 (Harden claims he reported to work one hour earlier than Nelson). Harden, first employed as a roustabout, has been a gangpusher for the company for the past 15 years. He is married to Aransas County District Clerk Tony Harden and they have one son, Adam, now in his second year at Southwest Texas.

Nelson is a switcher in the Arneckeville Field in Cuero in Hunt's Rockport District. A resident of Concrete, he is single and enjoys fishing and hunting.

Approximately 75 people attended the dinner honoring these four men, including 10 from the company's Dallas headquarters, several retired and former employees and several employees from the Hunt Family's Zoller Gas Plant in Refugio and the Alta Loma District office.

Also attending were several guests from Hunt Oil, now a distinct company from Hunt Energy Corp.

Cookbook features many favorites

A brand new recipe book, "Mexican Family Favorites Cook Book," by Maria Teresa Bermudez, has just been issued by Golden West Publishers of Phoenix, Ariz.

The book includes the basics of Mexican cooking, breakfasts, side dishes and appetizers, soups, salads, breads, sauces and salsas, main dishes and desserts — more than 250 recipes.

The plastic-bound book, printed in large, clear type, includes such popular favorites as arroz con pollo, carne asada, sopa de fideo, green corn tamales, chalupes, posole, nopalitos and guacamole, and such all-time favorites as jalapeno corn bread, quesadillas, menudo, Sonoran-style enchiladas, albondigas, almendrado and pan dulce.

A native of Arizona, author Maria Teresa has an avid interest in preserving the authenticity of Mexican cookery as it is practiced in the Southwest.

Her innate love of cooking provided the stimulus to write "Mexican Family Favorites Cook Book." Four years ago she began collecting and typing up her family's favorite recipes. Her preparations from the kitchen were warmly welcomed by family and friends, and now her long-cherished dream to write a "homestyle" Mexican cookbook has become a reality.

Maria Teresa lives with her family in Tucson and when she's not in the kitchen or at her typewriter she enjoys tennis, swimming, jogging and photography.

The author speaks and writes Spanish fluently, putting this skill to good use on her frequent visits to Mexico where she has relatives, and as a tutor at the University of Arizona.

Currently, Maria Teresa is pursuing a degree in medical technology. She has attended Pima College and the University of Arizona, studying nutrition and health.

She loves meeting people, enjoys working with children and is cooking up a storm putting the finishing touches to her next book — a Mexican desserts cookbook.

Maria Teresa cordially invites everyone to share her family heritage by using the recipes in "Mexican Family Favorites Cook Book."

The book retails for $5 and is available at most local book stores and book departments, or from the publishers at 4113 N. Longview, Phoenix, Az. 85014, by adding $1 for mailing.

FmHA office open

The recent addition of Aransas and Refugio counties to the Victoria-Goliad office of Farmers Home Administration has resulted in creation of new office periods in the Aransas County area.

According to Andrew J. Startz, FmHA Supervisor in Victoria, he or an office representative will be in the Rockport Courthouse office the first and third Thursday afternoons.

Due to the larger area served and the distance involved, Startz recommends a call to 576-1106 to make any appointments or to verify previously made commitments.

Chances are 50-50 that California will suffer a major earthquake within the next 10 years, reports "National Wildlife" magazine. To learn how to better predict an impending quake, U.S. scientists are monitoring the behavior of caged rats, mice and cockroaches prior to some of the nearly 500,000 detectable earthquakes experienced around the globe each year.

A CHECK FOR COA. Rockport Mayor Burt Mills presents Gwen Gonyea, director of the Aransas County Council on Aging, with a check for $2,500 from the city of Rockport to help subsidize the COA's budget for the year. Through its adult activity center, the COA provides meals, transportation and a sense of purpose to Aransas County's senior citizens.

Salt substitutes cost more, but worth it

Instead of reaching for the salt shaker, consumers are being urged to reach for their wallets to buy costlier salt substitutes.

Salt substitutes may cost up to $17 a pound, compared to 27 cents a pound for table salt, says nutritionist Mary K. Sweeten.

Most salt substitutes are simply potassium chloride, with added ingredients to improve its flavor, provide shelf stability, control acidity and perform other functions. Substitutes do not duplicate sodium chloride (table salt) in either taste of in functional properties, says Sweeten, a specialist with Texas A&M's Agricultural Extension Service.

In the past, taste problems and cost have limited the consumption of salt substitutes. But the potassium-based substitues now on the market claim to have overcome the bitter aftertaste of earlier products. They are also now more widely available in supermarkets, health food stores, drug stores and even by mail order.

Some of the products available include a light-sodium salt, a mix of one-half sodium chloride and one-half potassium chloride, sodium-free baking powder substitutes and low-sodium bouillion cubes, says the specialist.

"Salt substitutes are not for everyone," says Sweeten. Some labels state, for example, that the products should be used for "salt-restricted diets," or are recommended "only on the advice of a physician," or "for use by healthy persons."

The primary concern, says Sweeten, is for people with kidney disease or those taking hypertension medication who should avoid potassium chloride products.

Migration seminar

Heyerdahl to speak in Port A

PORT ARANSAS — Patterns of migratory animals — from locust plagues recounted in Biblical tales to the annual return of swallows to Capistrano — have long been of interest to humans.

Such movements are particularly fascinating to the scientists who study such problems as insect control, endangered species and life cycles of commercial fish and shellfish, for example.

This fall, a number of scientists from the United States and abroad themselves will migrate to Port Aransas. The Mustang Island town is the site of a conference on "Migration: Mechanisms and Adaptive Significance" Oct. 30-Nov. 2 at the University of Texas Marine Science Institute.

The meeting is being sponsored by the UT-Austin College of Natural Sciences and the Marine Science Institute in honor of the university's centennial.

A keynote speaker at the meeting will be Thor Heyerdahl, ethnologist, explorer and founder of the Kon-Tiki Museum in Oslo Norway. His address, titled "Historic Roles of the Ocean in Migration," is scheduled the evening of Oct. 30.

Also speaking will be Sylvia Earle, oceanographer and author of "Exploring the Deep Frontier," who will discuss "Migration and the Humpback Whale" the evening of Nov. 1.

Dr. Mary Ann Rankin, UT-Austin associate professor of zoology, is head of the organizing committee for the symposium.

She noted that the meeting has been designed to highlight the proximity of the Port Aransas marine laboratory to the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, the Welder Wildlife Refuge and the Padre Island National Seashore, at a time of year when many of the migrations under discussion will be in progress and observable by conference participants.

"The symposium will include lectures by distinguished scientists studying problems related to migrations of marine organisms, movements of terrestrial animals and migratory flights by birds and insects," Rankin said. "Aspects of migration such as navigation, adaptive strategies, physiology, evolution and communication will be emphasized.

Migration is an adaptation to exploit different habitats and sometimes to avoid harsh environmental conditions, Rankin noted.

"It is a phenomenon which has been of great interest to humans since ancient times, primarily because migratory animals could profoundly influence human livelihood," she said, citing as examples salmon fishing by coastal American Indians and the following of wet and dry season movements of hoofed mammals by African tribes.

"In recent years, as insecticides have become recognized as dangerous to natural ecosystems, problems of insect control and long distance insect migration have become a concern of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the National Science Foundation and American entomologists in general," Rankin continued.

"Successful migration is extremely important to endangered species of birds such as the whooping cranes that winter at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge," she said.

Registration fee for the symposium is $50, with registration materials available from the Migration Symposium Committee, UT-Austin Marine Science Institute, Port Aransas Marine Laboratory, P.O. Box 1267, Port Aransas, Texas 78373, 749-6740.

JV volleyballers first in district

Finally taking their place at the top of the district standings, the Rockport-Fulton junior varsity volleyball team defeated Sinton 15-12 6-15, 15-5 Tuesday night.

The JV win was the highlight of Tuesday evening, as both the RF freshmen and varsity teams lost their games to Sinton. A tough 5-15, 2-15 was the final score in the freshman contest. Despite strong teamwork, the varsity lost 8-15 in their first game. Keeping up with Sinton most of the game, the Lady Pirates fell 10-15 in the hard-fought second contest. Singling out Mona Cowan for her "consistency," Varsity Coach Patty Noble said of the evening's play, "We just made a lot of mental mistakes. It was a good team game, though, they played team ball the whole game."

Serving first in the JV contest, Sinton went ahead 4-0 in the first match. Breaking serve, RF didn't capitalize on their first opportunity and Sinton came back with an easy point. Breaking serve again, RF got two points on Lilly Buenano's serve. Sinton served again, then RF took over and Regina Flores served three points to tie the game, then another to put RF ahead 6-5.

They held the lead until Sinton came back and tied the game at 9-all. Falling behind two points, RF hung on and Rachel Flores served two points to tie it up at 11-11. Buenano served a point to put them ahead 12-11, then Sinton broke serve. Not allowing their opponent to score, RF broke through again and Regina Flores served, raising the score to 14-11. Sinton broke serve and gained a point, but the RF girls got tenacious and broke Sinton's serve. Then Nancy Vasek came in and served the last point to give the RF JV their first game win, 15-12.

Sinton took another 4-0 lead in the second game and held on throughout the contest. The RF JV was left to play catch up ball — unsuccessfully. The closest they got to Sinton was 4-9 on a serve from Norma Aleman late in the game but Sinton pulled ahead and won the game in two more serves, 6-15.

Coming back tough, RF broke Sinton's first serve of the third game and Norma Aleman served seven points to take a strong lead. Sinton took a point on their third serve when Regina Gatlin sent the ball into the net on a return but RF broke the serve quickly. Sinton returned to make two points, taking the score to 7-3 before Johnnie Jordan served and RF teamwork turned it into a point. From 8-3, the score went to 9-4, then 11-4 on Buenano's serve, 12-4 on a serve from Loretta Cassel, then 13-4 on a serve from Regina Flores. Sinton broke Flores' serve and made one point but RF came back. Vasek served the final two points and RF took the game, 15-5.

VARSITY LADY PIRATE volleyball team took a loss Tuesday night, falling 8-15, 10-15 to Sinton despite strong teamwork and outstanding serving.

Raiders, Tornadoes winning RFSA teams

The Rockport Fulton Soccer Association is in the middle of one of its best season ever. With 195 young soccer players, 40 parents and friends on the coaching staff and seven referees, the RFSA has had a "fun-filled first half of the season," according to President George Hernandez. "Thanks for all the parent participation. All the children's parents are involved with the kids in one way or another. I am very pleased and I hope for their continuing involvement and support of the soccer association." Hernandez' comments came at the end of the first half of RFSA play Saturday, Oct. 22.

Despite the rain-soaked field, play began as usual at 8:30 a.m. with the Junior division Raiders taking the Bucs 2-1. Both teams were well matched — Raider Charlie Lozano scored first in the seventh minute of play and Robert Robertson of the Bucs came back and scored in the twelfth minute of the second half of the game. Six minutes later, a pass from Lozano to Russell Crawford put the Raiders ahead, where they stayed.

In the second game of the Junior double-header, the Raiders won, beating the Mustangs 4-3 in a close competition. Lozano turned in all four of the Raider goals with the help of some strong team work and excellent passing. Scoring the three Mustang goals was Robert Schoen, also backed up by good team play.

In the Intermediate division, The Tornadoes edged out the Strikers 3-2. Robert Solis and Jerry Schibi scored for the Tornadoes and Byron Hailey and P.J. Levy were Striker goal makers.

In other Intermediate action, the Cosmos beat the Hurricanes 5-1. This was the first win for the Cosmos, leaving them with a 1-0-2 record. The Hurricanes stand at 0-3 for the season so far. The Tornadoes are 2-0-1 and the Strikers are 1-1-1.

In Pee Wee play, the Aztecs fell to the Kicks 5-2 and the Rowdies took down the Chiefs, 3-1. Scoring for the Rowdies were Lee Hayden and E.J. Minns, with Minns taking two goals. Jason Groseclose turned in the Chiefs' one goal.

In the last Pee Wee game of the day, the Stings were defeated by the Barracudas, 8-0, with outstanding defensive play provided by Jerry Schneider and some excellent goaltending by Nazario Benavidez Jr.

That's the average rate that Allied Live Oak Bank has been loaning money directly into the economy of Aransas County for the first three quarters of this year.

It comes out to something over $10,130,000 for the first nine months of 1983, and brings the total amount of Allied Live Oak Bank loans to businesses and individuals in Aransas County to over $24,000,000!

From December 31, 1979 through September 30, 1983, deposits at Allied Live Oak Bank increased 215%. During that same time, the bank's loans into this community increased 244%.

Allied Live Oak Bank deposits, December 31, 1979 - September 30, 1983

Allied Live Oak Bank local loans, December 31, 1979 - September 30, 1983

Now, these are a lot of numbers to be throwing around, but what they all mean is really quite simple. You can see it just by looking around. New businesses, new homes, increasing property values, more jobs, and all the other good things that are a part of the excitement of a solid economy on the grow.

You see, at Allied Live Oak Bank, we know that it's money that fuels a healthy economy, and we think it's part of a bank's responsibility to supply a lot of that fuel. That's why we have more money loaned to the people in Aransas County than any other local bank. And it's why we're ready—right now—to loan even more.

Obviously, a bank can't loan money if it doesn't have any, so the credit really goes to our depositors. They're the ones who see that by putting their money in Allied Live Oak Bank, they not only get all the immediate benefits we offer, they also get the long-range benefits of an improved economy in their community.

For that, we thank them, and you should too.

Rockport PTA urges viewing of 'Chemical People'

Members of Rockport Elementary School's PTA are urging Aransas County residents — particularly parents — to watch "The Chemical People," a two-part national television broadcast focusing on the drug abuse problem to be aired Nov. 2 and 9 on KEDT-TV, Channel 16 in Corpus Christi.

The telecast is part of a nation-wide "Chemical People" project to draw attention to the drug abuse problem and what communities can do to fight it.

In this area, the project is being coordinated by the Coastal Bend Families in Action Inc., headquartered in Corpus Christi and will begin in that city Monday, Oct. 31, with a proclamation by Mayor Luther Jones declaring Nov. 2-9 as "Drug Abuse Education Week" in Corpus Christi.

The first telecast, on Wednesday, Nov. 2, will be "The Chemical Society," which identifies the drug problem.

Channel 16 will carry "The Chemical Society" at 7 p.m. and will follow it at 8 p.m. with a local documentary featuring officials from Coastal Bend agencies and organizations focusing on the Coastal Bend drug problem and some organizations which can help.

On Saturday, Nov. 5, an information booth will be open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. at the Sunrise Mall. In addition to informational pamphlets, this display will include a series of special events such as a video close-up look at marijuana, a puppet show by Mental Health/Mental Retardation, a slide show identifying various drugs, a rebroadcast of "The Chemical Society" and a demonstration of drug-sniffing dogs. These events will be shown throughout the day.

"The Chemical Society" and Channel 16's local documentary will be repeated at 10 and 11 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 6, and the second program of the series, "Community Answers" will be aired at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9, on Channel 16.

Community meetings will be held at every school in Corpus Christi beginning at 6:45 p.m. on that date, jointly sponsored by the Corpus Christi Independent School District, Coastal Bend Families in Action and the Corpus Christi City Council Parent Teacher Association.

Bilingual speakers, interviews and additional information on Drug Abuse Week can be obtained through Families in Action by calling 884-9256 or the organization's President Shirley Way at 991-4932.

First National promotes four

Four employees of Rockport's First National Bank have been promoted, Bank President James Sorenson has announced.

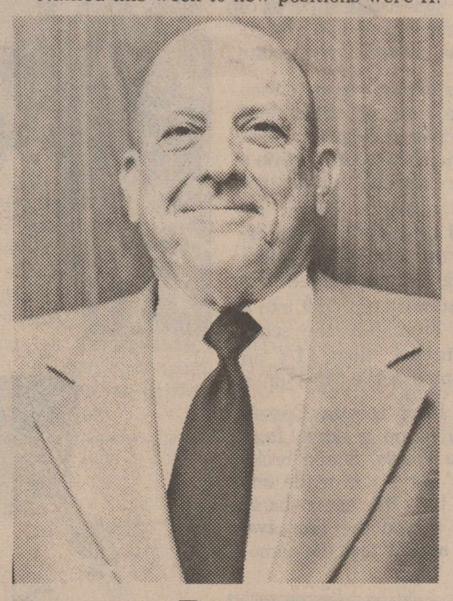

Named this week to new positions were H. R. Bean as vice president-executive assistant to the president; Pat Blackwell, vice president; Diana Eller, vice president and assistant comptroller; and Clay Wilcox, assistant cashier.

Bean joined the bank in June 1982 as assistant vice president and in early 1983 was made vice president and assistant comptroller.

Blackwell joined the bank in September 1969 as teller. She was subsequently named head teller then promoted to customer services. She has been an assistant vice president for the past two years.

Eller was also named an assistant vice president about two years ago. She was employed by the bank in May 1974 as loan secretary and later served as assistant cashier.

Wilcox has been employed by First National since January 1983 when she started work in the bank's "new accounts" department. She later was transferred to the loan department then back to new accounts where she has worked until the current promotion.

Applications are filed for two nursing homes here

Applications by two corporations for certificates of need (CON) to locate nursing homes in Rockport are scheduled for hearing before the Texas Health Facilities Commission in Austin on Dec. 19.

Set for joined hearing are applications by the Retirement Corporation of America Inc. of Aransas Pass and Parco and Care One Inc. for construction, equipment and operation of nursing facilities in Rockport.

Parco/Care One is proposing a 90-bed facility to be located on Mockingbird Lane. Size of the facility is proposed to be 24,500 square feet.

Care One is based in Tyler and operates several nursing homes elsewhere in Texas. The proposed Rockport Nursing Center will be the firm's first facility in South Texas. A representative of the project developers secured zoning to allow construction of the nursing home at a meeting of Rockport's city council last January.

The CON filed by Retirement Corp. of America is for a 120-bed nursing home of 35,000 square feet to be constructed adjacent to and operated in conjunction with RCA's Oak Villas Retirement Community on Enterprise Street. Twenty of the beds are reserved, under the CON application, for skilled nursing services and 100 for intermediate nursing care.

The joined hearing before the Health Facilities Commission is set for 9 a.m. Dec. 19 in the HFC offices, Suite 305 of the Jefferson Building, 1600 W. 38th St. in Austin.

Harrison speaks at ACTA meeting

State Representative Bill Harrison addressed the membership of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association Tuesday evening, Oct. 25, asking for input and ideas on education, highways, teacher pay, state prisons and state employee pay.

Harrison told the audience he is concerned with these issues and ways to finance changes in the status quo.

Aransas County Navigation District commissioners Hillis Dominguez and Hal McKnight presented a proposed plan for several new boat slips in Fulton Harbor. They emphasized that the work would be financed through the sale of revenue bonds and would not cost the taxpayers. McKnight and Dominguez requested public input and approval of the plans, which would add between 35 and 75 new slips for commercial and pleasure boats.

The plans are under review by the Navigation District. They may be seen by the public at the Navigation District office.

ACND Commissioner Charles Augustine presented ACTA members with a comprehensive review of the status of the local beaches and recreation areas. He said that the district is operating at a deficit this year of $26,900.

Augustine added that the general fund for maintenance of beaches and recreational areas comes from a 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation of property. Income, he said, falls far short of the $169,815 budget. Suggestions to alleviate the deficit by raising the ad valorem tax, charging more for leases on ACND property and charging a percentage of gross take from organizations using ACND property for fund-raising events were also presented to the membership.

While Augustine said that the ACND really does not want to have to enact these suggestions, alternatives such as charging admission to use the beach are unacceptable. ACTA members were asked their opinion on alternatives for preventing the deterioration of the beach and park areas.

David Boling, justice of the peace for Precinct 2, explained the proposed amendment to the Texas Constitution which would allow counties with populations less than 30,000 to have fewer justices of the peace and constables than are currently required. He urged those present to vote in the Nov. 8 election to consider 11 amendments to the Texas Constitution.

Package legislation solved some Social Security problems

By Eric R. Kingson
(Sixth of 14 parts)

SOCIAL SECURITY And you

When Ronald Reagan took office in January 1981, it was clear that something had to be done relatively soon about Social Security's short-term financing problem. It was less clear what, if anything, had to be done about the perceived long-term deficit.

In March and May 1981 the president put forth his own proposals, which would have produced nearly twice as much long-term savings as needed. However, almost all of this would have come from benefit reductions.

Strong reactions followed. Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., stated that by "any calculation, the administration has launched the most fundamental assault on the Social Security system since its inception 46 years ago."

In September 1981 the president withdrew the proposals that caused the greatest uproar and announced that he would set up a bipartisan commission to study Social Security.

The National Commission on Social Security Reform was composed of five members appointed by the president, five by the Republican congressional leadership, and five by the Democratic congressional leadership. The members included people, inside and outside government, who are active in making Social Security policy.

After the November 1982 congressional elections, the members appointed by the Democrats took the first step in behind-the-scenes negotiations. They offered to accept small benefit reductions as partial substitutes for the revenue-producing measures they had sponsored. Most of the 10 members who were appointed by Republicans took this as an indication that the Democrats were willing to negotiate.

The compromise package was not developed then, but the commission reached strong — although not always unanimous — public agreement on a number of important areas including the short-run and long-run financing goals.

The panel — composed of liberals, moderates and conservatives — also agreed that they were basically committed to the fundamental structure and principles of Social Security, rejecting, for example, a voluntary system.

Virtually at the final hour, a large and bipartisan majority of the commission signed a package that the White House and House Speaker Tip O'Neill had agreed to accept. It included expanding coverage for federal government employees; a six-month delay in the cost-of-living adjustment; a small payroll tax increase; partial taxation of benefits for higher-income beneficiaries; and changing the tax system for self-employed people.

No one liked every element of the package. But acceptance of proposals, which by themselves would be totally unacceptable, became an acceptable price to pay for a fair compromise package.

Altogether, the compromise package met the short-term financing goal and solved about two-thirds of the projected long-term deficit. The 12 members who signed onto the package "agreed to disagree" over what to do about the remaining third of the projected long-term deficit. The seven appointed by Republicans proposed raising the normal age of retirement beginning in 2000. The five appointed by Democrats recommended a modest payroll tax increase (about 0.5 percent on employers and employees) with a refundable income tax credit in 2010 if needed.

In Congress it was understood that too much tampering with the compromise package might lead to the unraveling of the whole agreement. While there were some minor refinements and one major addition, the major proposals were accepted.

The key congressional battle concerned what to do about the portion of the projected long-term deficit that the commission package had not dealt with. The debate centered around whether to raise the age of eligibility for full benefits from 65 to 67 gradually over a 27-year period beginning in 2000. Proponents argued raising the retirement age was a fair way to meet the problems of Social Security because people were expected to live longer.

Opponents argued that the proposed change would be a benefit cut that would disproportionately affect those unable to work because of poor health or unemployment. By a close vote, the proposal passed the House and was in the final legislation that was signed into law by Reagan in April 1983.

Roads

met and legally the county was obligated to accept the roads. The court delayed any action on the matter until it could consult with County Attorney Anderson.

At Wednesday's meeting, the Bahia Bay request was delayed from morning until 1 p.m. that afternoon when the court could meet with Bridges. When the district attorney did not arrive, discussion began.

Zahn and Craig were asked if the cul-de-sac had been constructed as required, to which Zahn disputed the county's request to put in the turn-around. Commissioner W.B. "Pete" Sanders said that Craig verbally agreed in a previous meeting to the construction of the cul-de-sac. Craig said he remembered discussing the matter but did not remember promising to put one in. He added that his engineer had advised against putting in a drainage pipe as it may constrict drainage further. An agreement was reached finally where the contractor will work with the county's engineers to put in an acceptable turnaround while maintaining drainage.

After the question of the cul-de-sac was settled, Aransas County Judge John D. Wendell asked the commissioners if they had all seen the engineer's recommendations with respect to the roads. The judge then presented Zahn and Craig with a letter from Naismith dated Oct. 12, saying that an Oct. 11 inspection had found the portions of the roads which were repaired acceptable, but that other portions of the roads which hadn't been delegated for repairs had failed.

"The letter that the court read, to me, is speaking to a warranty problem," said Zahn, to which Craig added that the developers have a one-year warranty from the contractor on the roads. The judge pointed out that there is no maintenance bond on the road.

"We have bent over backwards to do what you (the court) have told us," Zahn objected. Lee replied that it isn't right to put the responsibility for maintenance over on the taxpayers when it is obvious that the road will not hold up.

District Attorney Bridges arrived at 1:45 p.m. and the court recessed into executive session to discuss the legal aspects of the case. Court reconvened at 2:45 p.m.

Commissioner Ray Longino presided over the court after Judge Wendell had to leave for an appointment in district court. Longino stated that the county had agreed to accept the roads if a performance bond for the construction of a 100-foot long teardrop-shaped cul-de-sac and a one-year maintenance bond for the roads were posted.

"We have to accept because of the rules which were in effect at the time," said Commissioner Mike Womack. "We do not feel that the road will hold up for a year."

A motion to accept those roads not previously accepted in the Bahia Bay Subdivision Unit 1, condition upon receipt of a performance bond in the amount of $20,000 for construction of a cul-de-sac on Estes Drive and a maintenance bond in the amount of $30,000 for a warranty on the roads covering a one-year period beginning Oct. 26, 1983, with bonds to be received and approved no later than the next regular meeting of the commissioners court on Nov. 14 was made by Womack and seconded by Sanders.

"Do you agree with those terms?" asked Sanders. "I don't have any choice," replied Zahn.

The motion was called for a vote which was 3-1 with Commissioner Lee voting against.

"It was a no-win situation," explained Womack after the meeting had adjourned, saying it was a question of accepting the roads or being subject to a lawsuit. "This will end up costing the county less in the long run."

Craig commented Wednesday evening that the county had accepted the plat for the Bahia Bay Subdivision before he bought it in Dec. 1981. Craig and his partners bought the development from Calvin Williams of Taylor, who had submitted and had received approval of the plans and specifications from the county.

"The county had the ability to require the developer to post a performance bond but they did not ask Williams to do so," Craig said. He added that the roads have been in place for almost a year now so that "the county is getting not just a one-year warranty but a two-year warranty."

Sharp

and is Sharp's own amendment. It would allow exemption of certain veterans and fraternal organizations from taxation by the county and other taxing entities by choice.

The ninth amendment allows judges of statutory probate courts to be assigned to other county courts with probate jurisdiction.

Amendment 10, which originated in Houston prevents public funds from paying for private services, Sharp said. Under the amendment, cities or town may use public funds and then levy assessments against private property for the relocation or replacement of sanitation sewer laterals on that property. The city or town could go ahead and do the work but must give the homeowner five years on a 10 percent payback.

Amendment 11 expands the parole process, changing the Board of Pardons and Paroles from a constitutional agency to a statutory agency to give the board the power to revoke paroles.

Sharp urged members of the board to vote in the Nov. 8 election.

Council

The council is scheduled to consider a request from William C. Lindley to close James Street between South Austin and Water Street.

An executive session has been scheduled for a discussion with C&D Construction relating to an effluent ditch agreement. The regular council meeting will be convened following the executive for the council to take action, if needed, on the matter.

GROUND LEASING MAY REDUCE HOUSING COSTS

Ground leasing is used in some areas of the country to reduce the cost of housing.

In ground leasing arrangements, the homebuyer purchases only the house and leases the land. Lenders consider the lease payments as an obligation when qualifying a borrower. This arrangement can reduce initial purchase costs and may reduce the required down payment, but ground leasing does not necessarily result in lower monthly payments.

After lease payments are added to other monthly costs, the total monthly payments may be so high that a borrower cannot qualify for a loan. Ground leases typically are long-term and many offer an option to purchase the land sometime during the lease term.

Ground leasing is common to commercial property, but relatively new to residential property. For this reason, financing may be difficult to arrange.

WRITTEN AGREEMENT CLARIFIES COTENANCY ARRANGEMENT

In today's housing market, many individuals and families are joining economic forces to share the expense of buying and maintaining a duplex.

This form of ownership, called cotenancy, offers financial advantages. But it also can pose legal problems, especially if the owners have not drawn up a legally binding set of rules to govern their cotenancy arrangement. Owners who have not drawn up their own agreements are governed by the law of cotenancy. This law does not provide satisfactory answers to questions such as who pays for improvement or how the money is divided after the sale of the property.

Thus, most people considering cotenancy will want a formally drafted agreement that establishes the basic rights and responsibilities of all parties. If you have specific questions about cotenancy, contact a lawyer.

EXPERTS FORESEE CONTINUED RISE IN RENTAL RATES

The 1970s was the era of rising house prices. The 1980s may well be the era of rising rental rates.

On the average, house prices rose at a higher rate than most other goods. Rents, however, failed to keep pace with these price trends. This situation shows signs of reversing itself. While inflation has abated somewhat, house prices in most parts of the country have stabilized.

Apartment rents are picking up speed, rising by an average rate of 8.5 percent in 1981 nationwide. The average, however, is misleading, since some areas experienced declines. Rates for growing cities, such as Houston and San Diego, rose by almost 20 percent. Furthermore, experts foresee a continuation of such rental rises due to the low level of construction of multi-family projects.

LIMITED PARTNERSHIPS OFFER PASSIVE INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES

In its broadest sense, real estate syndicating simply means group ownership. One popular form of syndication is the limited partnership in which the general partner takes the responsibility of acquiring, managing and selling the property.

The limited partners are only liable for what they have invested, and they have no management voice. In a sophisticated syndication the expected rate of return, timing of income, degree of risks, amount of debt and taxation all are handled to meet the objectives of the investors. Increasing widespread syndication is offering the real estate industry a significant amount of capital formation — a predicted $40 billion worth this year. If you are interested in investing in a real estate syndicate, contact a stock brokerage firm or a real estate broker for more detailed information.

INVESTIGATE CONSTRUCTION PERMITS BEFORE BUYING

Before buying property to be used for a specific project, check to see what construction permits will be required.

Permits may be needed for such projects as digging ditches, drilling wells and constructing driveways. Find out if these permits may be obtained and, if so, at what cost. Some permits cannot be issued until the property owner submits specific project information. There may be specific time limits placed on construction. The time it takes a permit to be processed and issued may be a consideration.

Questions about permits can be directed to the city building permit office. The availability, time and expense involved in obtaining a construction permit are important factors in your decision to buy — or not to buy — a certain piece of property. Check these details carefully before committing yourself.

GET YOUR $$ WORTH

MONEY NERVOUSNESS

If you feel like a known-nothing when it comes to handling your money, and you'd like to at least understand the basics without making a career of it, there are some simple and practical steps you can take to increase your money IQ and conquer your insecurity about money matters. For example:

Start with a simple investment; mutual funds can be very wise investments and they don't require a great deal of financial savvy to understand. Ask a broker to advise you on this.

If you feel you lack confidence when you talk to a banker or broker, plan your questions before you make the phone call — even write them down. And, keep in mind that part of the service they offer you is the answering of questions so you're entitled to ask.

If you can't understand the newspaper's stock tables, get someone who knows to explain it to you by showing you on the table what every little number means. Then, pick a few stocks and follow them for a few weeks, writing down their fluctuations. This hands-on experience shows you how simple it is and can give you the confidence to try an investment. Your knowledge will really grow quickly once you have money on the line.

Read financial newspapers, journals and magazines whenever you can. They're not as intimidating as you might think, and many articles are exactly geared to novices, like yourself, who just want to learn the basics. An excellent side benefit of reading this kind of material is that you get a good grasp of money language.

Consider forming an investment club in which each member contributes a relatively small monthly amount to be pooled in investments decided upon by the group. A few savvy members can guide novices while they learn.

YOU AND YOUR HEALTH

by Peter J. Esse, M.D.

Dear Dr. Esse: I recall one of your columns in which you criticized doctors who were tactless enough to say to their elderly patients: "What do you expect at your age?" I had a recent disquieting experience when I brought my 81-year-old mother to a doctor. As we left the office, he whispered to me: "After all, what do you expect at HER age?" I'm looking for another doctor. Anyone who explains all symptoms that an older patient suffers, simply on an age basis, is not for me. I know you'll agree. Mrs. O.

Dear Mrs. O.: Someday we'll all be old (I hope). Various complaints will rise to the surface. I don't know what your mother complains about; whatever it is, it deserves as much investigation as if she were a younger patient. The still common practice of throwing all complaints of the elderly into a wastebaset ("What do you expect at his/her age?") may overlook disease of all types. Here are some examples: These days many elderly patients are labeled as having Alzheimer's disease. Yet, mental symptoms may completely clear when it is recognized that they've been overdosed with various drugs. Here is a patient who complains only of being tired at 78. For months, treated as "just being old" his pep returns when he is given medicine for an overlooked heart condition. Here is another patient who is diagnosed as "only" having a cold. Further x-ray investigations reveal pneumonia. And so on and so on. I'll repeat what I've been saying for many years: the elderly patient requires complete investigation when he/she complains. Ascribing the symptoms to "age" is almost a guarantee of overlooking illness that might be satisfactorily treated.

Parson Jones

"Marrying a woman for her money is better than marrying her for no reason at all"... at least that's what my Uncle Jessie always said. He was married four times and was quite familiar with the subject. Every time one of his friends got married, Jessie would announce, "They were joined in holy deadlock!"

I have an idea that God created marriage to be one of our best experiences ... at least, it looked good on paper. Then cometh the Devil, and fussing and fighting! And before long Eve could be heard to yell across the once tranquil terrain, "What do you mean, 'the kid doesn't look like yours?' " From that time on, no two people have clicked it off like it was worked out on paper. Hence, the divorce! Hence, having "affairs."

Modern folks are famous for their affairs. According to the original Webster's Dictionary, "affair" means "A passionate attachment of limited duration." According to Webster's brother, Clifford, it means "getting involved without getting involved." It puts sex under the "drink of water theory," where a night in bed with a stranger is the same as stopping at any water cooler for a refreshing drink. The problem is that a drink of water does not make a good companion. It's hard to carry on a meaningful conversation with a water fountain. To tell the truth, "affairs" are a pretty rotten substitute for real love. "Affairs" never take away the loneliness! Besides, "affairs" is a disease which can spread to all of life ... even our relationship with God!

Lots of folks prefer to have an affair with God. They stop at His House occasionally, get a few strokes, have a quickie, and leave only to return when the urge strikes again. When they're havng trouble with their other casual acquaintances, they'll return for a casual religious experience! Hence the term C and E worshippers — Christmas and Easter!

I wonder if the residents of Hell are allowed into heaven on C and E for a short affair with God? Holy Smoke!

newsworthy trends

States increasingly rely on alcohol taxes to help meet a host of social, safety, education and health needs. Any major increase in the federal tax on alcohol would seriously impinge on this important state tax source.

Since 1951, average state tax revenues per gallon of distilled spirits sold have increased 121 percent, resulting in a tax burden far in excess of that borne by consumers of any other product. Taxes currently account for some 44 percent of the average retail price of liquor. Hit hardest, as they are by any regressive excise tax, are low and middle income Americans.

Because states count on alcohol taxes for an average four percent of their budgets, if there were to be a major increase in the federal tax on beverage alcohol, it could have a serious impact on already strained state finances, say experts at the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States, Inc. (DISCUS), the trade association of the distilled spirits industry.

Doubling of the federal excise tax on liquor, to $21 per gallon, would force up to a 50 percent increase in prices and probably result in a 25 percent reduction in sales, futher weakening an industry already suffering from declining sales. The "shock impact" of a major price increase will lead to less than expected revenues, say experts who have studied the results of higher taxes on liquor in other nations. At best, because of declining sales, a 100 percent increase in the tax would reduce the federal budget deficit of $200 billion by a mere one percent, maybe less.

For a free brochure, "Distilled Spirits Tax Facts," write to DISCUS, 425 Thirteenth Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20004.

RESEARCH & DEVELOPMENT

INGENIOUS IDEA FOR MINE SAFETY

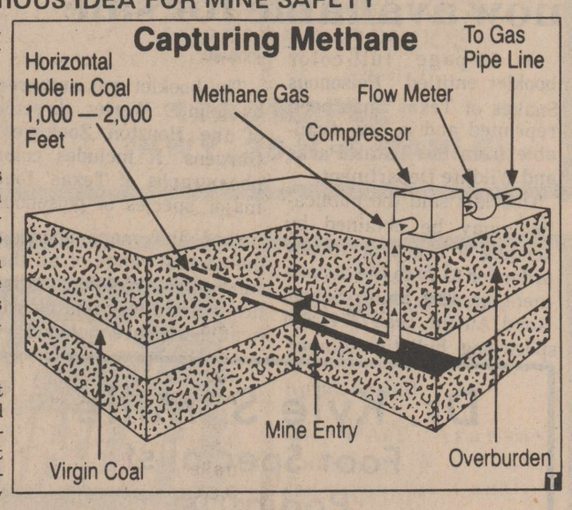

Technology adapted from oil drilling is helping to remove potentially explosive methane gas in advance of underground coal mining. The result is improved safety.

The technology involves a horizontal drilling system that bores three- to four-inch diameter holes up to 2,000 feet forward into a coal seam that is to be mined. The gas (which is like natural gas) is captured for processing and commercial marketing.

Four billion cubic feet of gas have been drained through six miles of horizontal holes during the test period at four mines of Consolidation Coal Company (Consol) in West Virginia.

The concept was developed by engineers at Conoco Inc. and Consol, a Conoco subsidiary. Consol has been using this system in northern West Virginia as a safety measure in reducing methane concentrations that could become dangerous if not vented from the mine.

Although the current equipment has been demonstrated in coal seams thicker than six feet, modifications for boring in thin seams (about three feet thick) and at the bottom of vertical shafts are now in progress.

QUICK QUIZ

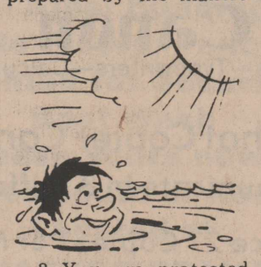

Like most people, you probably know that too much exposure to the sun without protection isn't good for you but you really don't know why. Here's a small quiz, prepared by the makers of Coppertone Suntan Lotion. Test your knowledge about protecting your one and only skin.

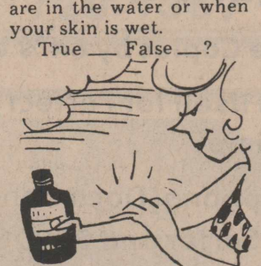

1. You can't get a sunburn on a cloudy day.
True ___ False ___?

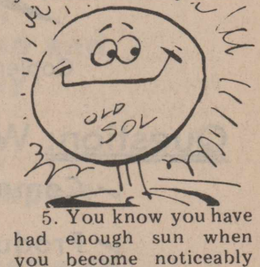

2. Sitting under a beach umbrella offers complete protection from sunburn.
True ___ False ___?

3. You are protected from the sun when you are in the water or when your skin is wet.
True ___ False ___?

4. If you use sunscreen, you never have to worry about sunburn.
True ___ False ___?

5. You know you have had enough sun when you become noticeably red.
True ___ False ___?

6. Long-term overexposure to the sun without protection may increase chances of wrinkles and premature aging of the skin.
True ___ False ___?

ANSWERS: 1. False. You can burn even on days when the sun isn't directly visible. 2. False. Beware of highly reflective surfaces such as sand, which may bounce the sun's rays and cause sunburn. Even beach umbrellas don't provide total protection. 3. False. Many people apply a sunscreen once and think they are protected for the rest of the day. Reapply the screen after swimming as it may wash off. 4. False. Sunscreens absorb some of the ultraviolet rays of the sun while letting others through. The labels of most sun care products have a Sun Protection Factor (SPF) number that tells you what degree of protection the product provides. SPF numbers range from 2 to 15, the highest numbers offering the most protection. A product with a number 8, such as Coppertone Shade Plus, provides eight times your skin's natural sunburn protection. Start the season with a high number; once your skin is sun-conditioned you may want to graduate to a lower SPF. 5. False. The time to come out of the sun is before you are noticeably red, not after. 6. True. If you protect your skin whenever you are outside, you may be able to minimize your chances of wrinkling prematurely.

This information was prepared by the experts on sun care at The Coppertone Solar Research Center.

Centuries of tradition behind Halloween holiday

It's Halloween time again.

Ashen and sober October skies. Rustling leaves "thrilled me, filled me with fantastic terrors never felt before," said poet Edgar Allen Poe. Bright pumpkins, harvest moons and stirring autumn winds. Apples to be nibbled. Finding spiders.

'Tis the season of lighted candles in jolly jack-o-lanterns, demon masks and hideous costumes. Bags o'loot and goodies toted by sweet-toothed hobgoblins knocking on doors. Everything seems creepy, chilling, spooky. Everything's magicked over. If you don't watch out, the goblins will getcha.

The scene is set for one wild whirlwind of mad macabre merrymaking and masquerading. Why the shenanigans and hullabaloo of Halloween?

Halloween is now a minor holiday of hilarity for children. Memories of ancient Halloweens call to mind the terrifying, the bizarre, the occult. It's an extraordinary time of outlandish doings — like calling on people and demanding goodies.

"Halloween (or Hallowe'en is a contraction of the former "all Hallows Even" or "All Hallow's Eve." It's the "e'en" or evening before the Christian All Hallow's or All Saints Day. "Hallowed" means sacred, and a "hallower" is one who "hallows" — who makes or honors someone or something as holy. But the noun "hallow" — a saint or shrine in early Anglo-Saxon — survives only in "All Hallows" and "Halloween."

All Hallows Eve sounds saintly. But it harkens back several centuries before Christianity to a pagan belief that on this night witches, warlocks (male witches), devils, malicious elves and evil spirits roamed the earth among the saintlier spirits. The legend strikes a grim note of modern reality.

Halloween dates back to the ancient Druids in Britain, France, Germany and the Celtic countries. The occasion honored the Druid deity, Saman, Lord of Death.

Samon convened all the wicked souls that within the past 12 months were assigned to the bodies of animals. Hence, the present belief that witches and "ghosties" are abroad this night. It's the time beyond all others when the supernatural prevails.

Before the reformation of the calendar, Oct. 31 was the even of the Celtic new year. A time of falling leaves and seasonal decay seemed appropriate for a death celebration. This is the true sense of Halloween.

Our Halloween kept the vestiges of the ancient festivals that took place at the grave regarding the funeral. There was sorrow and mourning on the one hand and joyous and frivolous exuberance on the other. If we mortals can't defy death or deal with its necessity, we poke fun at life's one certainty.

The Druids believed that on this night the souls of the dead returned to their former homes to be entertained by the living. If acceptable food and shelter weren't provided, these evil spirits would cause havoc and terror and haunt and torment the living. Here is a beginning of the expression "trick-or-treat."

The early Church christianized pagan customs rather than abolish them, but the old traditions remained. That's why trick-or-treaters wear masks. That's why the hollowed out jack-o-lantern — Halloween's chief symbol — has a masklike face. Where does the name jack-o-lantern come from?

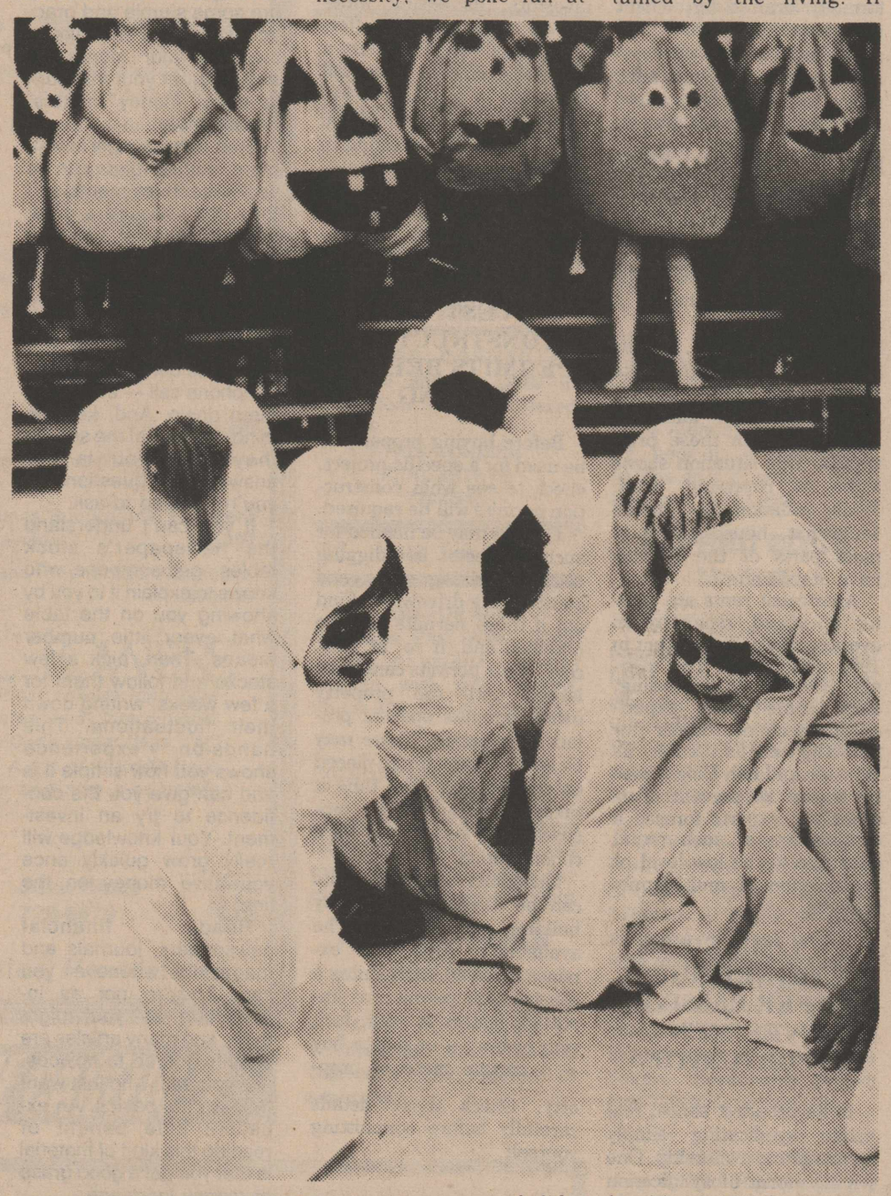

In 14th century England, murder, rape, beating and robbery by violence were everyday incidents. Charles II was dissatisfied with the informal protective associations and volunteer watchmen organized by many cities and parishes. He set up a new type of civic watch that patrolled the streets and alleys day and night. Since the night watchman had to carry a lantern, it became customary to ridicule him as a "jack of the lantern."

Everyday use led to the name's abbreviation. It was first applied to the phosphorescent lights hovering over swampy ground at night, caused by the burning of marsh gases. ("Jack-o-lantern" can now also mean any phenomena of light, alluring or not.)

Eventually, this shortened form was applied to a child's lantern by cutting out a pumpkin, squash or turnip to represent a human face.

Will Halloween survive? You bet. It's a big moneymaker for card and costume manufacturers, though the ritual trick-or-treat is disappearing. It's the passing of an era.

Should Halloween survive? The somber shadow of death already haunts the earth in such frightening forms. But the holiday afords us the opportunity to peer behind the secure walls of history towards the primitive terror. Halloween caters to the pagan spirit in us all. Boo!

FOR THESE YOUNG "GHOSTS" who were part of the program at Live Oak Elementary School this week, Halloween is a pleasant holiday when it's "fun" to be scared — but modern-day practices are a dim echo of the holiday's grim past.

Homemakers selecting sewing machine should be extra careful

Selecting a sewing machine is similar to choosing a car. When you buy a car, you closely consider its features, durability and dependability to determine the amount of mileage you can expect from it. When you purchase a sewing machine, the same factors should be considered.

One important area to investigate is the type of service you can expect from both the manufacturer and the dealer. This is especially important for beginners. Ask the following questions to determine service coverage:

Is the dealer a factory authorized representative?

Will dealers service the sewing machines in other cities in case you move?

How long does the dealer offer free service and is it transferrable to another city?

How long is the warrantor responsible for repairs or replacement of defective parts?

How long will the warrantor make replacement of parts for the model, free or otherwise?

Are there any conditions associated with the warranty, are lessons required, must you mail in a warranty care, must you bring the machine to the dealer?

The amount of features the machine has will affect the price. You don't want to pay for more features than you will use, but you don't want to economize by selecting a machine that will fall short of your epectations in a year either. So consider the features you select as an investment in developing your sewing skills. If used often, they will eventually pay for themselves. Compare the features of at least three models before deciding.

Test drive the machine before purchasing. A precision machine should be able to stitch on a variety of fabric types with equal ease. Look for even stitches with good tension control. If the tension is correct, the stitches will look the same on both the top and bottom of the fabric without puckers.

New sewers should ask the dealer to take you through a test drive on fabrics of different weights and textures. Experienced sewers may wish to make a test patchwork of fabric and use one for each machine you plan to test.

Hance bill on income tax wins committee approval

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, has announced that his bill to examine a gross income tax alternative to the current federal income tax system has been approved by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The Hance legislation, which received bipartisan support in the committee and was attached to a comprehensive tax reform bill, calls on the Treasury Department to conduct a two-part study detailing the economic and administrative consequences of adopting a low-rate gross income tax system.

With a gross income tax system, tax deductions would be limited and all taxpayers would be assessed on "gross" or total income. Because the taxable income base would be enlarged under a gross income tax system, the tax rates for all Americans would be much lower than under the present system.

"All taxpayers would pay one low tax rate on their income," Hance, a member of the powerful Ways and Means Committee, explained, "and the tax burden would be distributed more equitably among all taxpayers.

"Currently, there is much debate surrounding the complexity, equity and level of compliance of our present net income tax system," Hance pointed out. "This bill would simplify the American tax system at the same time it reduces an individual's taxes.

"The American people are demanding that Congress find alternatives to the current tax system," Hance said. "With deficits of more than $200 billion, the government must examine a tax system that is fair and also provides necessary services."

The Hance amendment authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to complete within six months two studies covering the advisability of replacing the present personal income tax or both the personal and corporate income taxes with a simplified tax on total income.

Hance also called on the Treasury Department to specifically consider the following gross income tax factors:

— Protection of the economically disadvantaged;

— Reduction of paperwork and auditing requirements and taxpayer fraud and evasion and expedition of disputes between taxpayers and the government;

— Increased economic incentives for capital formation and productivity;

— Removal of economic disincentives and obstacles; and — Exclusion of certain benefits, such as Social Security benefits, from gross income tax consideration.

The amendment by the Lubbock Democrat also would require the Secretary of the Treasury to identify the strengths and any potential weaknesses of a gross income tax system and to propose possible solutions to deal with any potential weaknesses.

TP&WD snake booklet now available for sale

A 53-page full-color booklet entitled "Poisonous Snakes of Texas" has been reprinted and is now available from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Officials said the publication may be obtained by sending a check or money order for $2.70 to the department at 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Teas 78744 and specifying bulletin number 9000-60.

The booklet was authored by John E. Werler, director of the Houston Zoological Gardens. It includes color photographs of Texas' four major species of poisonous snakes and maps showing the normal range of all the subspecies. Snakebite statistics, precautions and identification also are included.

'Pray-in' for world peace scheduled Sunday

A day of prayer for world peace has been proclaimed by the mayors of Rockport and Fulton as Aransas County church leaders prepare for a "Pray-in" at the Paws & Taws Building at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30.

The event will culminate a week during which residents of Aransas County have been asked to participate in a continuing prayer effort at 10 p.m. each night since the attack on U. S. Marines in Lebanon on Oct. 23.

On Monday, Oct. 24, Rockport Mayor Burt Mills and Fulton Mayor L. E. Casterline signed proclamations declaring the Oct. 30 Prayer Day observance.

All Aransas County residents are asked to attend Sunday's "Pray-in" which will be led by area religious leaders.

DAY OF PRAYER. Fulton Mayor L. E. Casterline, right, signs a proclamation declaring Sunday a day of prayer for world peace in Fulton as, below, Rockport Mayor Burt Mills delivers the Rockport proclamation to, left, Mary Hearn and Edwina Stranahan. A special observance is set for 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the Paws & Taws Building.

First United Methodist ready for Fall Bazaar

The annual Fall Bazaar of Rockport's First United Methodist Church will begin at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9, at the church, 801 Main St.

The bazaar will be in the church's educational building and will continue until 5:30 p.m.

A new format will highlight this year's bazaar: the booths will be set up in minimall fashion in different Sunday School rooms. Also new this year will be the buffeteria replacing the sidewalk café of previous years.

Coffee and "goodies" will be featured in the buffeteria during the morning and afternoon, and a chicken spaghetti lunch will be served buffer-style from 11:30 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Lois Devoe is general chairperson for the event, and Marilyn Young is chairperson in charge of the buffet-teria.

Mary B. Burke is in charge of the "Kountry Kitchen" which will feature jams, jellies, pickles, homemade cakes, pies, bread and candy, and Ola May Simpson is chairperson for the popular "cookie walk."

Other chairpeople for the event include Barbara Reddick, handcrafts and gifts; Lois Taylor, plants; and Lois Odell and Jackie Riley, "white elephant."

A variety of other booths will offer something for just about everyone, and everyone is invited to come to the bazaar, Devoe said.

Amarillo is site of Baptist convention

AMARILLO — A proposed $55.7 million Cooperative Program budget for mission causes and the election of a new president top the agenda for the annual Baptist General Convention of Texas (BGCT) in Amarillo Nov. 1-3.

Also, messengers from many of the 4,700 Texas Baptist churches and missions will transact business concerning 23 institutions and agencies of the BGCT.

D.L. Lowrie, pastor of First Baptist Church of Lubbock and current BGCT president, has served the maximum two one-year terms.

The annual convention sermon will be delivered by Paul Powell, pastor of Green Acres Baptist Church of Tyler.

Other key speakers include Lowrie, who will give the president's Message during the opening session; William M. Pinson Jr., executive director of the Baptist General Convention of Texas; Jose Rivas, dean for academic affairs at Hispanic Baptist Theological Seminary, San Antonio; and James Semple, pastor of First Baptist Church of Paris.

Also, Lester Collins, pastor of Tallowood Baptist Church, Houston; Richard Jackson, pastor of North Phoenix Baptist Church, Phoenix, Ariz.; Lloyd Elder, president of the Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.; and S.M. Lockridge, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, San Diego, Calif.

The convention will also feature a presentation on Texas Baptists' partnership missions emphasis in Mexico and Australia. The BGCT is working with Baptists in the two countries, in evangelism, church growth, leadership training and church construction.

The Texas Baptist Public Relations Advisory Committee will present the annual Communications Award to Susan Nethery, a homemaker and author from Milam. The award is given to an individual in the communications field who has made significant contributions to the religious life of Texas through the media.

Preceding the convention will be the annual meetings of the Woman's Missionary Union and Texas Baptist Men, auxiliary missions organizations to the BGCT.

Gordons celebrate 50th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lauren Gordon celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, Oct. 23, with a reception at the Paws and Taws Building.

Hosts and hostesses were their daughters and sons-in-law Sandra and Leslie Schustereit of Victoria; Linda and Monroe Elkins of Bossier City, La.; sons and daughters-in-law Robert and Mary Gordon, and Larry and Peggy Gordon, all of Rockport.

Also attending the reception were numerous friends and relatives of the couple including grandchildren Susan Lamb of Fairborn, Ohio; Cindy, Mark and Mike Gordon of Rockport; Roger, Nancy and Philip Elkins of Bossier City, La.; and Randy Gordon of Corpus Christi. Others attending included Kathryn Gardner of Hollywood, Fla., and Phyllis Bergman of Corning, Iowa.

Refreshments were served from a table laid with a gold embroidered lace cloth made 40 years ago by Mrs. Gordon's mother. The antique crystal candlesticks held gold candles and the two flower arrangements featured mums and other fall flowers.

The guest book was tended by Stacy Hockney of Houston.

Castaways present check during ACMSI style show

Presentation of a $1,500 check to the Aransas County Emergency Medical Service (ACEMS) highlighted last Friday's, Oct. 21, meeting of the women's committee of Aransas County Medical Services Inc. (ACMSI).

The check was presented by Vi Street on behalf of the Castaways following the annual Castaways Fashion Show during the ACMSI women's committee meeting at Charlotte Plummer's Party House.

Street also gave a brief history of the Castaways, founded in 1979 for the purpose of helping local civic organizations and individuals through sales of items from the Castaways Thrift Shop in downtown Rockport.

Street said through their general fund, the Castaways have given more than $9,000 in donations this year to community service organizations and groups.

Ella Anderson emceed the fashion show which featured models Nancy Koch, Myrt Blocker, Ann Daniels, Juanita Crenshaw, Juanita Wharton, Amy Schas, Wanda Sorem, Gertrude Morris, Skip Dinkler, Betty Aht and Ruth Gordon.

Blocker entertained the audience — 126 women's committee members and guests — with an imitation of country-western singer Loretta Lynn and Dinkler appeared as the "mystery model." Mary Coudy won a "Texas mosquito" for guessing Dinkler's identity.

Professional makeup of the models was by Doris Edwards and Doris Doss.

During the business portion of the meeting, Johnnie Vermillion announced 1,500 copies of the committee's new cookbook will be on sale at the end of the month for $6.95 at the ACMSI Handicraft Store.

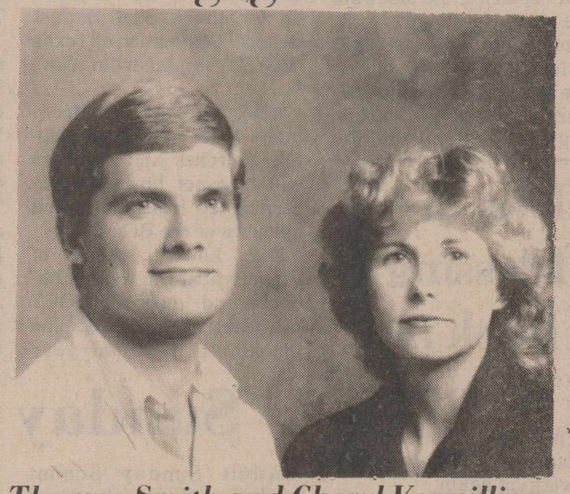

Dates for the committee's annual Christmas Bazaar — Nov. 19 and 20 — were announced by Mary Casey, chairman of the event. She called for donations of afghans, knitted and crocheted slippers, antique linens, old jewelry, white elephant items, pillows for the linens booth, knitted and crocheted bedjackets and shawls for nursing home patients, old candles and old pots, pans and dishes.

Casey asked that these items be brought to the workshop or to the Paws & Taws Building — site of the Bazaar — on Friday, Nov. 18, or call Helen Statesir at 729-0745 for pickup.

The committee's Country Store & Bake Sale held Oct. 22 in the Wal-Mart parking lot netted $566 and an additional $100 was collected in donations for the Christmas Bazaar drawing. Sales at the ACMSI shrimp booth during SeaFair brought $1,721.10 in profits.

All monies raised by the organization are used to fund the county's paramedic service.

Does your carpet take a lot of kidding?

All right. We all know kids are tough on carpets. And if you have kids, your carpets have to take a beating. Fortunately, Wear-Dated is kid tough. In fact, before you buy your Wear-Dated, it's given a test tougher than a herd of kids could give it.

It's tested for soil and stain resistance, pile resilience, static control, durability, and resistance to fading and color loss.

And if you don't believe the test is tougher than kids, Wear-Dated gives you a 5-year warranty just to prove it.

At (dealer name) we sell Wear-Dated carpets at prices people who have kids can afford.

Let us sell you a Wear-Dated carpet, because a carpet that takes a lot of kids won't take a lot of kidding.

• WEAR-DATED® carpet is warranted by Monsanto for five full year's normal wear from date of original installation; carpet installed on stairs or put to nonresidential use excluded. For repair or replacement of identical or equivalent carpet, forward your sales slip to Monsanto. WEAR-DATED and ULTRON® are registered trade marks of Monsanto Company. Bon appetit!

By ANN THOMAS

Did you know that there are over 200 varieties of apples? This is the time of year to take advantage of their abundance. There are so many ways to use them that it was difficult to choose just a few recipes this week. It occurred to me that one recipe in each category might be a good idea. I have purposely omitted commonly used ones in favor of introducing new recipes. I hope you enjoy them.

APPLE-CHEESE BREAD

½ cup shortening
⅔ cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
3 large cooking apples, grated
Juice from grated apples
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
½ cup chopped walnuts
2 cups all purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and mix well. Add apples, cheese and nuts. Stir to mix well, then add dry ingredients which have been sifted together. Mix last mixture lightly in other. Grease 9 by 5 loaf pan and bake for 50-60 minutes in 350-degree oven.

APPLE-ORANGE-NUT CAKE

For this you must choose apples that are sweet and enough of them to produce the 2 cups of apple puree needed in the recipe. Well worth the effort, but if time does not permit you may substitute commercial applesauce.

2 large oranges
1 cup golden seedless raisins
2 cups apple puree
4 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups sugar
1½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups chopped pecans or cashews
2 eggs, beaten
6 tablespoons melted butter

Grease 2 loaf pans and preheat oven to 350 degrees. Squeeze oranges and reserve the juice. Chop the rinds and raisins. Add all to apple puree. Sift all dry ingredients together and add first mixture and nuts. Mix well, then add eggs and butter. Pour batter into 8 by 5 by 3 pans and bake about 1 hour and 10 minutes. Turn onto rack to cool and frost.

APPLE SLUMP

A friend from New England gave me this several years ago. It's easy to make and very good.

1 small recipe of baking powder biscuit dough
8 cooking apples
1¼ cups sugar
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¾ cup water, apple juice or cider

Peel and core apples then cut into eighths. Put in heavy saucepan and add all the ingredients except the dough. Place over moderate heat. Slowly bring to a boil.

Meanwhile prepare the dough. When apple mixture is hot, transfer into greased baking dish and drop the dough in like dumplings. Cover tightly and bake 1 hour. Serve with whipped cream, heavy cream or lemon sauce.

APPLE CUSTARD

2 large eggs
2 cups milk
2½ cups spicy applesauce
1½ cups chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Beat eggs and add milk, applesauce and nuts. Pour into greased baking dishes and place in center of oven in a shallow pan of water. Bake 20 minutes then reduce heat to 350 degrees. Remove when inserted knife comes out clean. Top with whipped cream if desired.

APPLES AND PORK CHOPS

4 1-inch pork chops
½ cup shortening
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon paprika
1 cup water
2 unpeeled apples, cored and cut into 1/8-inch slices
½ cup seedless raisins
½ cup brown sugar
Water

Brown chops on both sides. Remove and rub mixture of flour, salt, pepper and paprika over chops. Return to skillet and brown again. Pour off drippings. Pour 1 cup water around chops. Top each chop with 2 apple rings. Fill centers with raisins. Sprinkle with sugar. Cover and simmer 2 hours. Baste every 20 minutes as sauce forms. Every 30 minutes add about ¾ cup water. Yields 4 servings.

Now is excellent time to stock meat in quantity

"Now is an excellent time for cost-conscious consumers to stock up on meat for the freezer," says Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

More cattle and hogs are being marketed because of the summr drought. This increased supply has resulted in lower prices.

According to USDA economists, steady to slightly declining prices for red meat are expected from October through December, says Sweeten. The economists expect that price levels for meat will be relatively unchanged at the first of the year, but anticipate moderate price increases through 1984, she adds.

If freezer space is limited or you prefer cuts from a particular section, then whole or primal cuts (also known as wholesale cuts) will probably be your best buy, says Sweeten.

Before buying meat in quantity, Sweeten suggests that you consider your available freezer space, the amount of meat your family can use within a reasonable amount of time, the type of cuts your family enjoys and the amount of money you have to spend.

A carcass, side or quarter is sold by its "hanging weight," or total weight including fat and bones, says the specialist. The amount of edible meat will be about 75 percent of the hanging weight, with the other 25 percent lost in cutting and trimming.

The carcass or side will yield a variety of all cuts and not all of them will be equally tender or equally liked by your family. A quarter is limited to only certain cuts, so the buyer can choose more specifically the type of meat wanted, she says.

The hindquarter includes the short loin, sirloin, round and flank sections and will yield more steaks and roasts. It will also cost more per pound than the forequarter.

The forequarter contains the delectable rib section, but also has more of the less tender cuts coming from the chuck, shank and brisket sections, says the specialist. The yield of edible meat is actually greater in the forequarter.

Wholesale cuts usually are bought from locker and freezer provisioners and others who sell meat as sides or quarters, although sometimes they can be bought at a supermarket.

Individual cuts of beef, like pot roast or T-bone steak are called retail cuts. Their wide variety allows consumers to buy as little or as much of a particular cut as they want. Even though the price per pound is usually greater, it is not as costly initially as buying a large quantity of meat all at one time, she says.

But retail cuts usually must be rewrapped for long-term freezer storage, notes Sweeten.

"Comparing costs and making sure you are getting a good value can be difficult when buying a product with which you are unfamiliar. And most consumers are unfamiliar with meats in carcass form," she says.

That's why it pays to find a dealer who has a well-established reputation for honesty and fairness. In general, beware of advertisements which offer meat bargains which are too sensational to believe.

Treat junior goblins to peanuts, pecans

When junior goblins and preschool witches ring your doorbell on Halloween, give them a treat that tastes good and is good for them.

Peanuts and pecans fill the bill on both counts.

Peanuts are 26 percent protein, higher than many protein foods, and they rank high in niacin, thiamine and phosphorus. Kids love to munch them plain or in candy or cookies.

Peanuts are sold in a variety of ways including in the shell, raw-shelled and dry roasted. Peanuts in the shell are available raw or roasted. They are usually sold at sporting events and circuses.

The shell has been removed from raw-shell peanuts, which can be roasted or eaten as is. They are the perfect peanut to use in recipes for peanut brittle, cakes, cookies and breads.

Dry-roasted peanuts are shelled, skinned and roasted. They make delicious snacks, and, like raw-shelled peanuts, can be used in a variety of recipes.

Texas ranks fourth nationally in peanut production. In 1982 the crop was valued at $80 million, making it 14th in cash receipts in the state.

Pecans are also an important cash crop. Among the top five pecan-producing states, Texas is expected to be second this season with a 65 million-pound harvest. Between 1979-82 the crop averaged was nearly $24 million.

Pecans contain protein, carbohydrates, calcium, iron, Vitamin A, Vitamin C and small amounts of thiamine, riboflavin and niacin. Pop a few unshelled pecans into cellophane bags for a nutritious Halloween treat. Pecans are available in limited quantities now. Number will increase in November when harvest is in full swing.

Here are some recipes from the Texas Department of Agriculture that will help your neighborhood children have a healthier Halloween.

DOUBLE PEANUT CLUSTERS

1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
½ cup peanut butter
1 cup roasted peanuts

Combine chocolate chips and peanut butter in top of double boiler and place over hot water until chocolate melts. Stir until blended. Add peanuts and stir until coated. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper. Chill until set. Makes 2 dozen clusters.

PEANUT PARTY TREAT

2 cups cocktail peanuts
1 cup oatmeal
½ cup dark seedless raisins
1 tablespoon orange peel
¼ cup honey
1 tablespoon melted butter
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves

Toss together peanuts, oatmeal, raisins and orange peel. Combine honey, butter, vanilla, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves; pour over peanut mixture, tossing until evenly coated. Spread mixture on 15½ by 10½ by 1-inch jelly roll pan and bake in preheated 250-degree F. oven 30 minutes stirring several times. Makes 4 cups.

GLAZED PEANUTS

1 cup sugar
½ cup water
2 cups raw, shelled, unblanched peanuts

Dissolve sugar in water in heavy frying pan over medium heat. Add peanuts and continue cooking on medium high heat, stirring constantly. Cook until peanuts have shiny, glazed, rosy look. Spread onto aluminum foil to cool. Break apart while still warm. After cooling, store in airtight contain-

Mediterranean diet tasty and healthy

The typical Mediterranean diet is simple, healthy and appetizing. Even better, its components lend themselves to the preparation of low cost, nutritionally balanced, tempting one-dish meals.

Below is a recipe for a typical Mediterranean one-dish meal — Pasta Primavera — that combines the basics of the guidelines — cereal products, vegetables, dairy products and oils.

PASTA PRIMAVERA

1 (8 ounces) package pasta
¼ cup light olive oil
1 medium onion, finely chopped (½ cup)
2 cloves garlic, minced
3 small zucchini, thinly sliced
2 medium tomatoes, peeled and diced, or 1 cup drained, canned tomatoes, chopped
½ cup chicken broth
4 to 6 olives, pits removed, sliced
Salt and black pepper to taste
½ cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, if desired

Cook pasta by package directions, al dente. Drain. Prepare sauce while pasta cooks. Pour olive oil into large skillet. Add onion and garlic and stir-cook until onion is yellow. Do not brown. Add squash and stir-cook for about 1 minute. Add tomatoes, broth, olives and season to taste with salt and pepper. Cook until squash is tender-crisp, about 3 minutes. Stir in cream. Add pasta and toss until lightly coated. Mound on serving dish and sprinkle with cheese if desired. Makes 4 servings. (Note: ½ pound of fresh green beans may be used instead of zucchini.)

OYSTERS IN PATTY SHELLS

1 pint fresh Standard oysters, undrained
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ onion, finely chopped
1 tablespoon corn starch
1 (4-ounce) can mushroom stems and pieces, drained
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon lemon pepper
Dash of red pepper
6 commercial patty shells, baked

Place oysters in a saucepan; cook over medium heat 8 to 10 minutes or until edges of oysters begin to curl. Drain.

Melt butter in a large skillet; add onion, and saute until tender. Add corn starch stirring until blended. Stir in next 6 ingredients and oysters. Simmer, uncovered, 15 minutes, stirring frequently.

Spoon oyster mixture into patty shells, and place on a lightly greased baking sheet. Bake at 375° for 5 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Yield: 6 servings.

Ivan Olenick: boatbuilder extraordinaire

By PAT BLAIR
Managing editor

"All my life, as far back as I can remember, I've loved boats," says Ivan Olenick.

For him, the love turned him not to buy them, but to build them. Ivan figures he's built, unassisted, around 110 boats — including the one he himself uses in shrimping, the "Cherokee."

A lot of the boats Ivan has built can be recognized by their Indian names — the "Cherokee", "Cheyenne", "Choctaw." The reason, says the San Antonio native, is simple: "I'm half Cherokee." The other half, he adds, is Polish . . .

Ivan recalls building his first boat when he was 10 years old and later, he worked for a boat company in San Antonio. "I used to build speedboats," he says.

His love of boats — and the water — brought him to Rockport in 1968 and seven years ago, he married his wife, Nancy. The Olenicks have three children, Dianna, 7, Sharon, 6 and Matthew, 3, plus dogs, cats, chickens and a calf named "Spot" (he was named by a friend, Nancy adds) "who thinks he's a human."

They live, interestingly enough, on San Antonio Street . . .

Ivan both designs and builds boats, both for customers of his own and for various companies he has worked for. He specializes in shrimp boats and bay skiffs, "and I was the first in this area to build and install metal keels on wooden boats." His biggest project, he added, was a 75-foot steel hull clam boat. That one, he added, wasn't his own design: "They just put me in charge of constructing it."

Ivan was employed for 13 years by Rockport Yacht & Supply where he was carpenter foreman and cabinet-maker, and he is now building a boat for one of the company's current employees.

From building boats to building other things — such as furniture — was only a short step for Ivan. "I used to build furniture for others," he said. He doesn't these days, but in Clarence, Mo., there is this table he built:

"It's the only one like it in the world," Ivan says. "It has 825 pieces of wood in it and 20 different optical illusions built into the top. I worked on it about six weeks. My daughter by my first marriage has it."

For Nancy, he built a wooden bread box about three or four feet tall and the wooden frame for the large mirror in their living room.

His latest project — with assistance from Nancy — is construction of their new house. Ivan designed it himself and the couple began work about two weeks ago, pouring the foundation.

"This house is pretty much my own," Ivan said during the interview this week, taking a break from work on the frame. "Nancy and I did most of it." He added he is also being "helped" by Matt: "He loves to work with me."

For recreation, Ivan has a motorcycle that he takes out when he can. "I love to go bike riding," he says. "That, and music — I play the guitar. A few of us, just friends, get together once or twice a month and just play.

"And I love to dance."

But his big love remains boats and water — and building the one to put on the other . . .

Council on Aging plans open house

The Aransas County Council on Aging will have an open house from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, featuring presentation of merit awards to outstanding senior citizens and volunteers.

Crafts and baked goods will be offered for sale and a buffet will be served during the event at the COA's Adult Activity Center on South Church Street.

Also featured will be a drawing for a quilt made by employees of the COA. Chances on the drawing are being offered for a donation of $1 each or six for $5.

The center is presently making plans for construction of a workshop to be available to senior citizens of Aransas County.

Other services now offered by the COA include its Dial-a-Care, comprised of two volunteers who will call any home-bound Aransas County resident over 60 years of age to check on their well-being, including medicines and groceries. Anyone who needs this service or who knows a senior citizen who could benefit from it is asked to call 729-5352.

The Adult Activity Center has planned two trips to Corpus Christi, one in November and one in December.

Woman ticketed following collision

Laura Hill of Rockport was ticketed for following too closely after the vehicle she was driving was in collision with a vehicle driven by Boyd McMillan of Rockport at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 26, in the 1000 block of Broadway Street.

Hill was traveling southbound on Broadway Street when McMillan slowed down for a vehicle turning in front of him. Hill, according to the report filed by Rockport police, was unable to stop, resulting inthe collision.

No injuries were reported.

Criminal mischief under investigation

Floyd Brown of Fulton reported that someone broke a rear window in his vehicle with a beer bottle sometime between 1 a.m. and 8 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 23. Aransas County Sheriff's deputies are investigating the incident.

Joe Dominguez of Rockport reported to the sheriff's department that the rear window of his pickup truck was shot sometime between 11 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21 and 5 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 22. The vehicle was parked at his residence at the time. Damage was estimated at $150.

A TV antenna was reported taken from a residence off of Hwy. 35 between Saturday, Oct. 15 and Saturday, Oct. 22. The incident is under investigation.

Aransas County Sheriff's deputies arrested two persons for driving while intoxicated last week.

ARIES

(March 21-April 20) Feelings of boredom could prevent you from getting anything accomplished. Being afraid of success might prevent you form taking advantage of an opportunity that may present itself.

TAURUS

(April 21-May 21) Added responsibility within your family might not delight some of your relatives. Handle this matter with as much diplomacy as possible.

GEMINI

(May 22-June 21) Be wary of mishaps occurring while you are commuting between places. A quick, observant eye could prevent an accident.

CANCER

(June 22-July 23) Consider the feelings of those around you before taking action against someone who is close to all of you. It's possible you can curb this individual's misguided ways without causing a major conflict to arise.

LEO

(July 24-Aug. 23) Your happiness in a new love affair may depend upon this potential partner's ability to forget about someone else from the past. Career dilemmas should be resolved quickly with the aid of amore experienced colleague who likes you.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Long distance communications hold the key to your staying in touch with someone who can be helpful to you financially.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) The misguided attempts of a friend should not go unrewarded. This person is honestly trying to be of aid to you regardless of how the situation has turned out.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An attraction could develop between you and a business associate you'll be spending lots of time with on an important project. Persuade someone younger to make more of an effort to obtain an education.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Trying to steer an acquaintance along a path towards success would win you the respect and affection of others.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Your belief in a friend could be questioned following a series of unusual events. Finances should stabilize as long as you watch your spending habits.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Ending a relationship with someone you have known for some time might be difficult but necessary. Seek out the assistance of a talented colleague on a project at work.

PISCES

(Feb. 20-March 20) Stabilize your emotions when dealing with someone you care a great deal for or this individual could try walking all over you. An argument with a loved one might cause hurt feelings to develop.

Ask Kate

More Garner to come

By Kate Woods

Please tell me if James Garner is planning to do any more series or movies. Is he married? How old is he? — B.M.

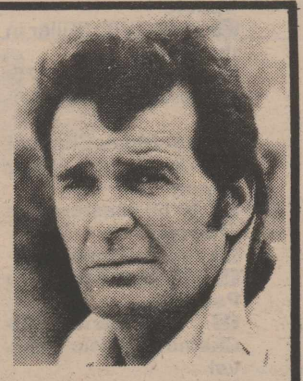

The 55-year-old Garner just signed a contract with Warner Bros. to develop and appear in both TV movies and a possible series. Nothing specific has been announced yet. Meanwhile, the Oklahoma charmer is still married to his first wife, Lois.

IF I WERE A CARPENTER — Did the Carpenters once host a weekly show? If so, for how long and when? — L.K.

Following their enormous success with "We've Only Just Begun," Richard and the late Karen Carpenter headlined NBC's "Make Your Own Kind of Music," a replacement series from the summer of '71. Also featured were Al Hirt, Mark Lindsay (formerly of Paul Revere and the Raiders) and comics Tom Patchette and Jay Tarses, now successful sitcom producers ("Buffalo Bill").

NOT IMPOSSIBLE QUESTION — Who were the principal actors on "Mission: Impossible"? I have a bet on it. — A.M.

When the I.M. Force first appeared on CBS in 1966, the stars were Steven Hill, Barbara Bain, Martin Landau, Greg Morris, Peter Lupus. Hill quit after the first season and Peter Graves took over leadership duties. The husband-and-wife team of Landau and Miss Bain quit in '69 and were essentially replaced by Leonard Nimoy and Lesley Ann Warren, who was in turn replaced by Lynda Day George. Sam Elliott was a semi-regular during 1970-'71.

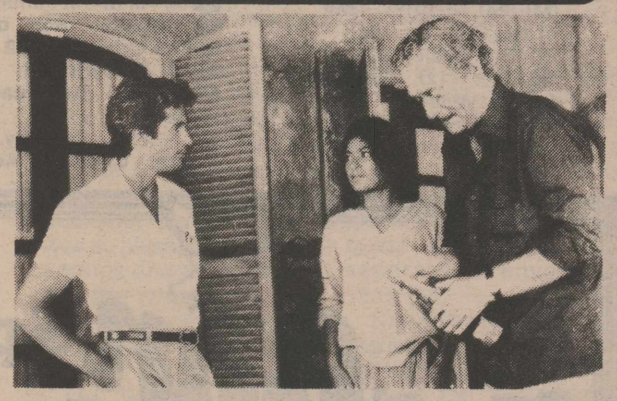

James Garner

TONY'S SERIES — What was the name of the series that starred Tony Franciosa in which he had an Oriental houseboy? Who played the houseboy? I've often thought about it over the years. — Y.I.

"Valentine's Day" was the name of the 1964-'65 ABC comedy. The great, late Jack Soo played Rocky Sin, Valentine's live-in valet and the main source of wit and wisdom.

MARQUEE

BEYOND THE LIMIT, from Paramount Pictures. Directed by John MacKenzie, screenplay by Christopher Hampton. Starring Michael Caine, Richard Gere, Bob Hoskins. Rated 'R' ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

Michael Caine is a solid veteran of dozens of movies and Richard Gere is one of the hottest actors in motion pictures today (even if his last film left neither critics nor viewers "Breathless"). Graham Greene is one of England's finest novelists, short-story writers and playwrights.

Greene's novel "The Honorary Consul" was part-thriller, part-psychology, part-religion. Turning the novel into film seemed like an ideal project, especially with these two stars.

The book "The Honorary Consul" has become the film "Beyond the Limit." The title sounds like it was taken from central casting of marketable titles, but changing the film's name will not help it be successful if Caine/Gere/Greene don't bring people in.

Each of these men has his following. Fans who attend the film will not be turned off. "Beyond the Limit" doesn't exceed any limits of sensationalism of story, level of acting, or political innuendo. It's just a remarkably average film.

Seedy South American towns all look and sound alike in the movies, and "Beyond the Limit" is no exception. There is a curfew after dark, the army patrols the streets arresting anyone who they think can read, and the revolutionaries are "in the hills just outside of town." The police chief is corrupt enough to drive a two-seater Mercedes, and would shoot his mother for an oil change.

Part of the reason that the film's name might have been changed is that Gere is really its star. Gere is a doctor who becomes involved in revolution as well as with Caine's wife. It's his story as much, if not more, than Caine, who plays the Honorary Consul.

"Beyond the Limit's" box-office potential is dim. There's not enough Harold Robbins to be steamy, and politically, Woody Allen's "Bananas" was more on-target.

Motown memories quiz

By Andy Noble

"Motown 25: Yesterday, Today, and Forever" — the Emmy Award-winning special marking Motown Records' 25th anniversary — will be rebroadcast Sunday, Oct. 30 on NBC.

When the special first aired in May, it garnered a 22.8 rating and 35 share, the highest for that week. At the recent Emmy Awards ceremonies, the special won as Outstanding Variety, Music or Comedy Program.

Featured are past and present members of the Motown family including Michael Jackson, Diana Ross, Smokey Robinson, Lionel Richie, Stevie Wonder and Marvin Gaye, the Temptations and the Four Tops.

Here's a quiz to test your knowledge of Motown.

1. Name all the members of the Jackson Five.

2. Marvin Gaye's "I Heard It Through the Grapevine" (now featured prominently in the film "The Big Chill") was one of Motown's biggest smashes. But can you name the Motown group that had a hit with the same song a year earlier?

3. What was the last record cut by Diana Ross and the Supremes?

4. What Motown artist was once called by Bob Dylan "America's greatest living poet"?

5. Which Motown artists originally recorded three songs covered by Linda Ronstadt (who, incidentally appears on the special) — "Heat Wave," "Ooh Baby Baby" and "Tracks of My Tears"?

6. Which two Motown artists originally recorded "How Sweet It Is," covered in 1975 by James Taylor?

7. Who is Levi Stubbs?

Answers: 1. Michael, Jackie, Jermaine, Tito and Randy 2. Gladys Knight and the Pips 3. "Someday We'll Be Together" 4. Smokey Robinson 5. Martha and the Vandellas, Miracles 6. Marvin Gaye, Junior Walker and the All-Stars 7. lead singer of the Four Tops.

Soap Beat

Genie will never say never again

By Connie Passalacqua

Nov. 11 marks the soap opera event of the year when Genie Francis finally does what millions of fans have been clamoring for her to do. She returns to "General Hospital" as Laura, the role she left two years ago.

Her departure seemingly ended the phenomenally popular romance between Laura and Luke Spencer, played by daytime superstar Tony Geary. Geary has remained on "GH."

Says the 20-year-old Miss Francis: "I never said I would never go back. I love Laura as much as the fans do. I want to see Laura happy. She's led such a tragic life."

Laura was last seen in Port Charles disappearing into a fog. Her body was never found, thus leaving open the possibility that she was still alive. Meanwhile, Luke went on to a new life, establishing new romantic interests.

Miss Francis went on to star in the TV movie "Bare Essence," which was such a ratings success that it became a continuing series. However, it was canceled after a few months.

Says Miss Francis: "I don't take the failure personally. Last year only a few new prime-time shows succeeded. And our series was developed in too short a time. We were shooting hour one while hour two was being written."

She seized the opportunity afforded by the cancellation and moved from California, where she had lived all her life, to New York to study acting.

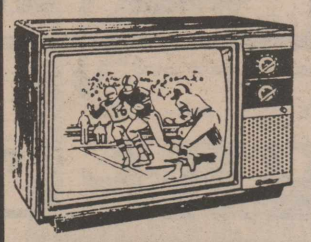

Genie Francis

"I never went to high school or college, because I was too busy working on 'General Hospital.' I'm making my life in New York into my own 'little college'."

Miss Francis will appear on "General Hospital" for six weeks, after which she will return to her studies in New York. Although ABC is keeping Laura's story line secret, Miss Francis says, "Remember that Luke and Laura are still married. I think the jumping-off point will probably be the curse the widow Cassidine (played by Elizabeth Taylor) bestowed on Luke and Laura on their wedding day."

NEW AND TIPS

* California wine shipments to market were up 1.2 percent in the first half of 1983, totaling 178.3 million gallons, and shipments are expected to be above those of last year for the second half of '83 as well. While total wine shipments rose by 0.6 percent over last year, it was the sparkling wines, with shipments up 11.5 percent over the same period last year, that showed dramatic gains in popularity.

* Spanish white wines are netting awards not only at prestigious competitions, but also from value-conscious consumers. The white rioja, Olarra Blanco Seco of the '78 and '79 vintages rated among the top three choices at a blind tasting in New York. The '80 vintage Olarra Blanco Seco was awarded a gold medal at 1983 VinExpo France in Bordeaux. Riojas have previously been known for their strong oak flavors, but the Bodegas Olarra have styled their riojas differently to make them more like California chardonnays and French white burgundies. The new white riojas from Olarra are dry white wines with good fruit, a complex flavor, and just a hint of butter oak fragrance.

* Two new releases from the Landmark Vineyards of Windsor, CA, are Landmark 1981 Proprietor's Reserve Chardonnay which winemaker Bill Mabry introduces by commenting: "This wine was made by selecting from 14 different lots of Chardonnay, a blend which would be the finest Chardonnay of the vintage." And, Landmark 1980 Estate Bottled Cabernet Sauvignon is produced from Alexander Valley vineyards with the characteristic straightforward fruitiness and a well-defined structure and balance.

BEFORE & AFTER ..... By Seli Groves

All My Children: Opal asked Phoebe to give her lessons in how to become a lady. Donna's friendship with Benny grew. Angie was rushed to the hospital. Coming: Nina makes a decision that surprises her.

Another Life: Stacey was in turmoil after speaking with Gil. Dave returned to work with many patients leery of him. Charles learned Erick had been beaten up on his way home from school. Coming: Vicki takes a desperate chance to find a way out of her dilemma.

Another World: Janet claimed she didn't know Jeremiah. Donna invited Jennifer, Kevin and David to her house and told David to talk to Sally about the baby. Nicole, worried about Jamie's coldness to her, passed out from a cocaine overdose. Coming: Evidence against Jeremiah mounts as Mark is forced to deal with the fact.

As The World Turns: Ariel took steps to work out her anger over Dusty's custody. Craig had another plan to unleash on Betsy. Nels found Charmaine more than just good company. Coming: Someone confides a secret in Nels; James is later shocked to learn what Nels knows.

Capitol: The mysterious "accident" that killed Dr. Parker was still under investigation when Paula let slip a curious comment Wally found a strange message waiting for him. Coming: Myrna changes her story when she learns about Paula's comments and Trey refuses to take good advice, but insists on doing what he thinks is best.

Days Of Our Lives: Anna was caught in a lie after a blood test proved the stains on her clothes matched Renee's blood. Marlena returned from Denver furious with Roman because they closed down the "right connection." Hope learned about Beau's strange date. Coming: The mysterious spy continues to watch Sandy's every move.

Edge Of Night: Jody agreed to go to the Video Disco after Robbie told her he'd help her get Preacher back. Meanwhile, she was being prepared to kill Preacher via post-hypnotic suggestion. At the disco, Jody raised a gun and prepared to shoot. Coming: Jody's action causes a new chain of events to begin for Preacher.

General Hospital: Bobbie and Brock fought over giving Blackie back his job. Gregory and Grant learned the microfilm was phony. Scorpio found Luke and Holly and thought they were dead. Coming: Celia must make a decision about Grant.

Guiding Light: Lesley Ann's addiction deepened. Warren was after something more than a simple explanation. Maureen suspected Nola and Quint were hiding something from her. Coming: Annabelle's memories contain mysterious clues to her past.

Loving: While Lily tried to forget what had happened to her, her alter-ego, Trish, actively solicited a sexual encounter. Merrill agreed to spend time with Roger, but with no strings attached. Garth felt he had triumphed in his plans. Coming: Garth learns how easily triumph can turn to doubt.

One Life To Live: Marco stood Edwina up again. Dorian learned some fascinating things about David's other life as a secret agent and was tempted to confide them to someone, but to whom? Bo bought his father's football team, the Cougars. Coming: Bo's feelings for Becky begin to grow deepr.

Ryan's Hope: Not knowing that Bess is really her mother, Jill talked about her child and Bess learned she had once been a grandmother. Jack and Leigh resume their friendship, but not their once close relationship. Joe persuaded Siobhan to see him. Coming: Delia's custody suit for little John takes a new turn. Maeve gets involved in Siobhan's problems with Bill and Joe.

Search For Tomorrow: Brian played a cat and mouse game with Vargas. When friend Martin arrived, Brian shot at the shadow, hitting Martin. Kristen agreed not to incriminate Warren during questioning. Coming: Martin's life hangs in the balance while Vargas continues to elude capture.

Young & The Restless: Allison's reasons for taking the baby away were misinterpreted by Kevin. Andy was disillusioned by some "facts of life" he hand't expected to come upon after marriage. Traci had misgivings about her new "health" kick. Coming: Victor gives Nikkie some unsolicited advice which she begins to think about.

MEDICINE CHEST

Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

I take Feldene for my arthritis. Why can't I take aspirin with it, when Feldene alone doesn't work? — P.J.

You may or may not know that either Feldene or aspirin is capable of increasing the possibility of getting gastric ulcers. When you combine the two drugs, the risk of ulcers is increased significantly. Also, animal studies indicate that the anti-inflammatory effect of either drug is not increased by taking them in combination. Most people do not think aspirin is a powerful drug, but it is. If you are taking any drug to reduce pain or inflammation, and you think you will get more relief by taking aspirin with it, check first with your physician or pharmacist. Chances are you should not take the combination.

I take my blood pressure readings at home. What can you suggest I do to insure accurate readings? — A.C.

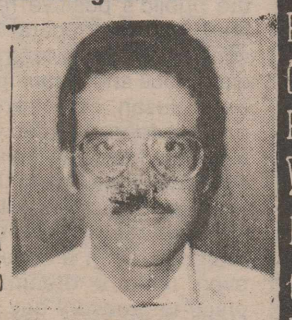

In addition to the proper technique, you should avoid exertion and not eat or smoke for thirty minutes before measuring your pressure. For optimum conditions, you should also rest for five minutes in a warm and comfortable room.

Should elderly people take vitamins? — O.H.

Many elderly people do not receive adequate nutrition. Cost, disinterest in cooking and social isolation are some of the causes. Ask your physician if you should take vitamins. Your pharmacist can assist you in selecting a vitamin formula that supplies the basic needs of water and fat soluble vitamins.

EMERALD POINT

Dennis Weaver stars as Rear Adm. Thomas Mallory, a widower and base commander with three daughters, played by Stephanie Dunnam, Doran Clark (standing) and Susan Dey (r.), in CBS' drama "Emerald Point NAS," airing MONDAY OCT. 31.

USA will begin its coverage of the 1983-84 National Basketball Association season on Wednesday, Nov. 2 when the Boston Celtics meet the Milwaukee Bucks at Boston Garden. Both of the teams always figure prominently in playoff competition. And, of course, Boston has Larry Bird, one of the league's top centers.

Three interesting bands — the Animals, Cramps and REM — will appear on MTV's "The Cutting Edge" on Sunday, Oct. 30.

The Animals were one of the best rock groups to emerge from Britain in the early 1960s. However, when the band, led by Eric Burdon, abandoned the blues and r & b influenced style that marked their earlier records and jumped on the psychedelic bandwagon, they went from good to incredibly bad.

The band has recently reunited and are playing their old songs in the old style. Whether they're more than just a moldy oldies act remains to be seen.

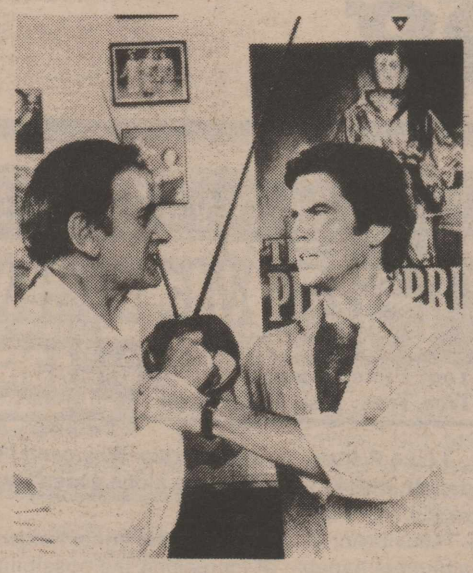

The Cramps have had an up-and-down career. The Cramps combine rockabilly, psychedelia and horror-movie themes. The band has been around for quite a while, predating the rockabilly craze, but they never have really been able to get beyond having a cult audience.

Larry Bird

REM has not been around long enough to have much of a decline yet. They are one of the most interesting new bands around. Hailing form Athens, Ga., they combine a folksy, Byrds-like sound with provocative, if hard to decipher, lyrics.

INSIDE TV

BY CHRIS COLBY

CLOSEUPS: For the past eight years, in almost every episode of M*A*S*H, Col. Potter (Harry Morgan) mentioned his wife Mildred. All America knew about her but never met her. Now in "After Mash," Mrs. Potter, played by Barbara Townsend appears, and she was worth waiting for. At a kick-off party on the set at Twentieth Century Fox, Townsend, along with the rest of the cast and crew announced they hoped the show would run for another eight years ... Susan Howard, born Jeri Lynn Mooney in Marshall, Texas, couldn't be happier about her role as Donna Culver Krebs in "Dallas." Heeding the public's positive reaction, the producers are making the character more glamorous and meaningful. Says Susan, "Contrary to rumors, none of us can wait to get our hands on the next script and get to work." She too hopes her series will run forever. Who wouldn't? A running role in a series is every actor's dream. (A place to go every day and a paycheck every week).

JAMIE FARR

FOCUS: When news reporter Tawny Little, recently wed to John Schneider, tried to interview Jamie Farr at the Friday night "After Mash" party, he turned the tables and asked her why she wasn't at home watching "The Dukes of Hazzard"... Larry Hagman and his mom Mary Martin are mulling an appearance together in "Arsenic and Old Lace"... When "Lottery's" Ben Murphy isn't before the cameras, he's on the tennis court. Ben is booked for tournaments well into next year ... Speaking of tennis, Martina Navratilova plays herself in a segment of "Hart To Hart" entitled "Love Game." She will be Jonathan's partner in the doubles match of a charity tennis tourney ... Contrary to what's been wafted round, rock star Rod Stewart and wife Alana were lovey-dovey on a recent Sunday night supping at Hollywood's posh L'Orangerie Restaurant. No one told me. I was there and saw them ... Joe Namath will be Barbara Eden's love interest in the $4.5 million madcap movie "Chattanooga Choo Choo" locationing in Sacramento, Cal. come November ... Elizabeth and Richard playing "Private Lives" to so-so houses in Los Angeles are taping the play for Home Box Office ... Joan Collins avec date at "La Cage Aux Folles." Not the Broadway play, the Los Angeles night club ...

COMING EVENTS: The search is on for an actor and actress to portray Samson and Delilah in a two hour movie to air via ABC. Comworld, the producers, promise "filming in a lavish scale with pageantry, parades, lions, exotic beasts, scenes of temple destruction and etc." How many of you remember the feature film with Victor Mature as Samson and Hedy Lamarr as Delilah? ... Cannon Productions planning a TV movie based on the life of Nat "King" Cole with singing sensation Al Jarreau starring as Cole. That same company will also make the life story of "Mama" Cass Elliott. No word as yet as to whether they will seek an unknown for the role or go for a big name star ... Jessica Walter joins Matt Killon and Richard Crenna in "Sweet Ginger Brown" now filming in New York for future airing on ABC.

REFUNDING $$$ AND SENSE

VICTORIA R. FLEMING

The art of creative couponing doesn't have to be limited to grocery, beauty, drug, or automotive products. I recently received a booklet of over $300 in selected merchandise coupons from a leading department store. After shopping carefully for men's shirts, sweaters, and blouses for myself, I waited on line and rejoiced that I had coupons on these items totaling $12 off. The man on line behind me was carrying over $40 worth of goods and I showed him my coupons. Another man and then the girl behind him checked their selections and all of those were also on sale. Off they ran to get coupon books from the customer service desk. I was so pleased with my $12 savings and the additional $50 the other three shoppers were going to realize, that I even held their places in line!

Q. When you buy clothing etc. with coupons and have to return an item for whatever reason, how much do you receive as a refund?

A. This store, and others who run these special sales, carefully mark both your sales receipt and the item's price tag with the amount of the coupon discount. If you make a return, you would receive exactly what you paid for the merchandise. By the way, every coupon was carefully monitored to see how well this particular promotion affected sales.

PBS in the spotlight

Ronald Pickup stars as Giuseppe Verdi in "The Life of Verdi."

"The Life of Verdi"

From peasant to world-honored composer of 28 operas, Giuseppe Verdi was a remarkable man guided by strange and fortunate quirks of fate, passionate loves and the tumultuous political climate of the times. Burt Lancaster hosts and narrates "The Life of Verdi," a lavish recreation of the composer's life and times airing on PBS' "Great Performances" Monday, Oct. 31. (Please check local listings for time.)

In part II of the six-part series, all of Northern Italy, under Austrian rule, adopts Verdi's music as fuel for the patriotic fervor uniting Italy. Influenced by the intellectuals and patriots he meets at the salon of Clara Maffei, Verdi writes the operas, "I Lombardi," "Ernani" and "Attila," which all have political overtones.

Soon Verdi finds himself in direct confrontation with the Austrian censors. In 1846, the French Revolution is in the air and Verdi is writing "Macbeth." Increasingly, his melodies seem to express Italy's longing for freedom. Cementing his ties to the place of his birth, Verdi begins to purchase land in his native Busseto, while in Paris, Giuseppina Strepponi, no longer able to sing, is giving voice lessons. Verdi journeys to Paris, beginning a relationship with Strepponi that will last a lifetime.

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE:

This is in response to the letter from "No Real Son" which you answered in this week's issue of your column. I am saddened that you gave this young man such off-the-cuff answers without first doing some research.

The fact that he wrote to you was not a "testimony of his love for his adoptive parents," but a plea for help as he unraveled 16 years of hiding the truth. Imagine what this deception has done to his ability to trust these people who have taught him not to lie. Of course he needs counseling, but he also needs to know some other truths.

First, he needs to know that, in fact, birthparents do go on with their lives — they have to in order to survive. We cannot freeze time, but it is sure that the time of his birth and surrender are forever etched in the heart of his birthmother. She has not forgotten him. As the birthmother of an 18-year-old daughter, I know this. We may have to put this sad time aside for a while in order to function, but it is still forever with us. I would suggest that you write to Concerned United Birthparents, 595 Central Avenue, Dover, New Hampshire 03820 for information. We are a national organization of people who surrendered children for adoption. We wait for our children to find us, or we search for them. We have a reunion registry, as do ALMA, Orphan Voyage, Tri-Adoption Library and other support organizations for those affected by adoption.

I really feel that you answered this young man without awareness of the truth, which is that his birthfamily may WANT contact with him. For heaven's sake, after the horror of finding out that he has been deceived for 16 years, give him some reasonable hope. Send him to CUB. We can give him an understanding of his birthmother. I urge you to personally write to this young man, or send him my address and I will. This is not a situation to be ignored. It is too bad that you didn't research this first. I know NO birthmother (and I know many) who wouldn't be thankful to know what had happened to her child, now a young adult. Thank you for reading this letter. Please respond and please write Concerned United Birthparents. You'll be glad you did.

CONCERNED MOM

DEAR CONCERNED:

Thank you for the valuable information about CUB. I apologize for not having that information when I answered the young man's letter.

I must, however, disagree with you on one point. There are birthparents who do not wish to be contacted for any number of reasons. I would not want this young man to search for his parents under the illusion of a fairy-tale ending. He should be prepared for whatever might happen, including the possibility of rejection.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED & SCARED: Under the circumstances, it was natural to have a dream such as yours. It is absolutely no reflection on your sexuality. You have nothing to worry about whatsoever. However, if you really feel the need, do consult a therapist. I'm sure you'll receive the reassurance you need.

McGeehan hits 'Crest' by thinking positively

By Joan Crosby

Last year auditions were being held for a small role on "Falcon Crest." One of the auditioners looked at the script and saw the role had only two lines. She told the secretary in the casting office she didn't do two-line parts and walked out.

The other auditioners, Mary Kate McGeehan among them, stayed. Miss McGeehan got the role of Linda Caproni, girlfriend of Cole Gioberti (Billy R. Moses).

"They liked the chemistry so much between us," she said, "that they brought me back for five more episodes."

That took care of last season. This season, Miss McGeehan is an established regular whose character will marry Cole in an upcoming segment.

"At the end of last season they said I might be back, and I spent five months wondering. But I'm back and so far I have been in every episode filmed except the first. I'm living proof that you can come out of the extra ranks and have lines.

"I began as an extra on 'General Hospital.' Then I got small parts. Work is work. I don't care if I only have one word to say. I'm glad that girl was unhappy over the two-line part. She might have been very good and gotten the role and become a regular."

Mary Kate McGeehan

Miss McGeehan went through a period of working at other jobs, but all the while she maintained a positive attitude.

"Too many people spent too much time being negative about everything in the industry. I was working as a waitress at the time and I hated what I was doing. I sat and looked at myself in the mirror one day and said to myself 'You're so boring that I can't stand it.'

"So I set about to visualize myself as a serious, working actress and that turned my life around."

Positive thinking paid off. The first time Miss McGeehan met the casting people at "Falcon Crest," it was for a small role as Lorenzo Lamas' friend.

"But they said I wasn't what they were looking for in that role. But they remembered and called me back and here I am."

TV Nostalgia

By Marie Iandiorio

One of the classics of TV's "Golden Age," "Your Show of Shows," which featured Sid Caesar, Imogene Coca and Howard Morris (the latter two are pictured during a recent "Fantasy Island" appearance). This landmark comedy-variety series was first telecast in 1950 and left the air in 1954.

"Your Show of Shows" was surely one of the most ambitious undertakings on TV, featuring 90 minutes of live original comedy every week. In addition to the well-remembered sketches, there was a large group of singers and dancers, and a nominal big-name guest star each week. Most of the show's writers were movie buffs and many of Hollywood's most pretentious epics were lampooned.

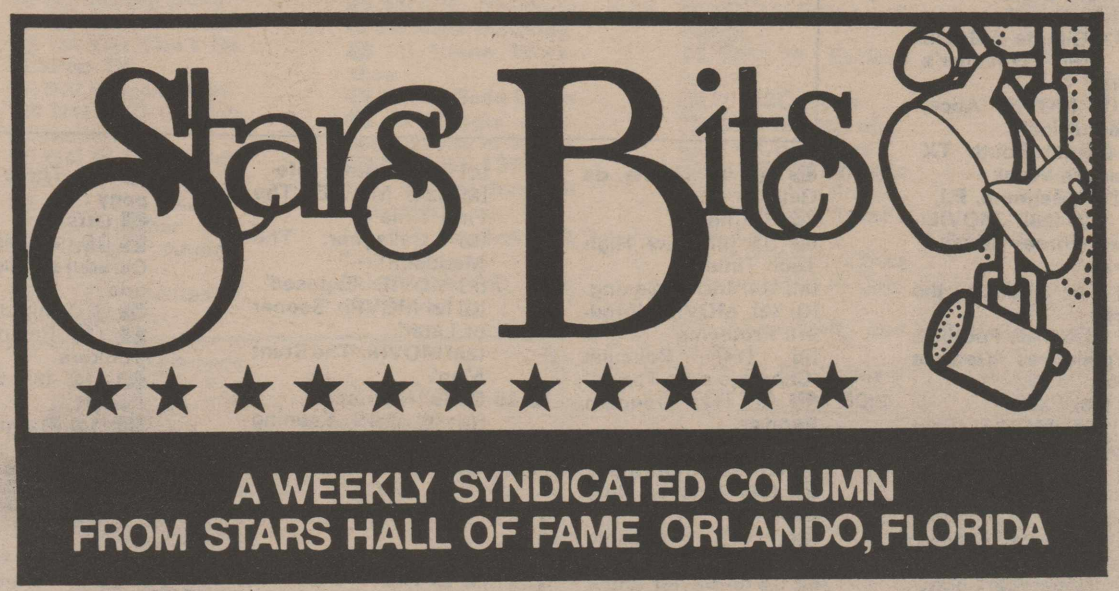

Question: In 1951, a supporting player was given a more prominent role in this show. He has since gone on to score well as a writer and director, most notably in films such as "The Jerk" and "The Man with Two Brains." Can you name him?

Answer: Carl Reiner

JOHN GILBERT
THE VICTIM OF SOUND

When Rudolf Valentino died in 1926, John Gilbert was waiting in the wings to step into the role of the 'Greatest Screen Lover.' And so, for the next three years, Gilbert took top billing in his films and grosses millions of dollars for the studios, establishing himself as the screen's top male star during the late twenties.

Gilbert worked his way up the Hollywood ladder the hard way. Born in Logan, Utah, on July 10, 1897, he was already on stage by the time he was a year old. He tried a number of different occupations, including acting [under the name John Pringle] and finally got the chance to meet with studio heads from the New York Motion Picture Corporation in Santa Monica, California. Gilbert was signed to a two-year contract for the grand amount of $30 a week.

Without attracting much attention, Gilbert worked the studio rounds. In 1923 he appeared as a Mississippi riverboat gambler in "Cameo Kirby" and caught the eye of Irving Thalberg, a producer with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. MGM signed him up, and created their top male star for the rest of the decade.

Without doubt, Gilbert's finest hour was his appearance in King Vidor's "The Big Parade" in 1925. Breaking away from the inaccurate heroics and relationships portrayed in earlier war films, "The Big Parade" focused on reality with the air of a documentary, rather than a fictional account. Gilbert was dynamic, and "The Big Parade" was the most popular film of 1925---grossing an enormous $15 million. Following that success, Gilbert then teamed up with the smouldering Greta Garbo to make "Flesh and the Devil" in 1927. For movie audiences, this was a first-hand glimpse into their stars' private lives---for it was a well-known fact that Gilbert had gone as far as to purchase a marriage license, but that the elusive Garbo had left him standing in the church. Nevertheless, Gilbert continued his wooing, both on and off screen and their next film together, the 1927 "Love," explored the depths of their passion to the total satisfaction of their fans. Together, Gilbert and Garbo were considered the supreme sex symbols of the twenties.

In 1929 Gilbert was signed to a four-year, $1 million contract with MGM and three months later he made the inevitable move into talking pictures. Choosing the beautiful Norma Shearer as Juliet, John Gilbert played Romeo in the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" in "The Hollywood Review of 1929." He opened his mouth to utter his first words---and recited the flowery dialogue in high tenor. A shocked audience was silent, only as long as the first snicker. John Gilbert, the 'Greatest Screen Lover' was laughed off the screen.

Desperately, Gibert's friends and employers gathered round. His elocution was explained away as a malady called "White Voice"---a problem which could be cured by the combined efforts of time, voice coaching and improved recorded technology. He tried again in "His Glorious Night," but again audiences could find no parallel between their handsome hero and his piping voice.

In 1930, Gilbert made "Way for a Sailor," for the first time second-billed to Wallace Beery. Again, he was met with derision and the studio tried to buy out his expensive contract. Gilbert refused, and stoically continued his assault on sound. Finally, his former passion and co-star Greta Garbo came to his rescue and insisted that he be cast opposite her in "Queen Christina" in 1933. Although this film marked Garbo's peak, it also served to reconfirm that Gilbert's remaining fans could not come to terms with the contrast between his voice and features.

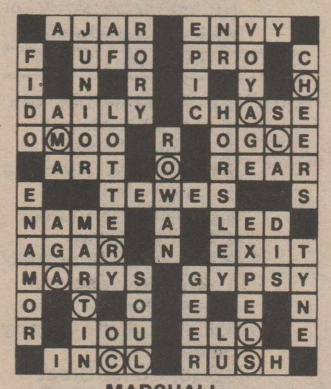

Still refusing to give up, Gilbert signed with Paramount and made "The Captain Hates the Sea" in 1934. His performance as a drunken Hollywood script writer was tragically accurate---and although the film was a far cry from his 'Great Lover' roles, it was sadly appropriate for his own life---and voice.

John Gilbert died in 1936, after literally drinking himself to death. Although his sound performances cast a blight on his career, he will long be remembered for his epic films in the twenties.

At Stars Hall of Fame in Orlando, Florida, John Gilbert stands with his greatest love Greta Garbo on the set of "Queen Christina."

'Any Which Way'

Clint Eastwood stars as Philo Beddoe, the best barroom brawler in southern California, in "Any Which Way You Can," which CTV rebroadcasts on Saturday, Nov. 5.

The 1980 film also stars Sondra Locke, Geoffrey Lewis, William Smith, Harry Guardino and Ruth Gordon.

The film's plot: Beddoe is living with his two buddies, Orville (Lewis) and Clyde, his 165-pound orangutan. His girlfriend is kidnapped in order to persuade Philo to fight a highly acclaimed East Coast brawler.

CBN CORNER

New weekday lineup

by Kim Cooper

This week the CBN Cable Network premieres a new weekday morning lineup of family programs in addition to its full schedule of original programming and Westerns, comedies, game shows, movies, children's and women's programming.

On Monday at 7 and 7:30 a.m. (ET), two new half-hour weekday exercise-health programs, "Fit for Life" and "Alive!," debut. "Fit for Life," also seen Mondays at 3 p.m. is an exercise and aerobics program hosted by Pamela Carter, actress Lynda Carter's sister. Miss Carter will feature complete exercise and aerobics programs for viewers to follow at home.

Susan Stafford, television celebrity and former co-host of "Wheel of Fortune," hosts "Alive!" Miss Stafford's show will feature daily health and fitness issues, with guest experts offering in-depth advice on areas in health news, health tips, beauty and cooking. "Alive!" is also scheduled for Thursdays at 2 p.m.

Also premiering on the new weekday morning lineup are longtime favorite comedies "Blondie" (8), "My Little Margie" (8:30). "Dobie Gillis" (9) and "Ozzie and Harriet" (9:30)

"Blondie" is the TV adaptation of Chic Young's popular comic strip, starring bumbling "Dagwood" (Arthur Lake) and his delightfully funny wife, Blondie (Pamela Britton).

Charles Farell and Gale Storm star in "My Little Margie." Margie always has a knack for calamity.

"Dobie Gillis" combines romance, drama and comedy to tell the story of two teenagers growing up. Dwayne Hickman, Bob Denver and Tuesday Weld star.

The Nelson family — Ozzie, Harriet, David and Ricky — star in "Ozzie and Harriet," one of the longest-running shows in TV history. It also airs weeknights at 10:30.

Added to an already popular lineup of weekend Westerns is "Cisco Kid," starting on Saturday at 10 a.m. Duncan Renaldo stars as Cisco and Leo Carillo as his partner, Pancho. Cisco and Pancho, who in the eyes of the authorities are outlaws, help the down-and-out and protect the citizens against desperadoes and other dishonest characters.

Kim Cooper is publicity director of the CBN Cable Network.

Watch how NBA stars display their top skills

ROUND BALL — They're back. It's time for the stars of the National Basketball Association — considered by many to be America's finest athletes — to put their skills on display.

The NBA's 38th season, which has just gotten underway, will run 171 days, the length of each of the past three seasons. The regular season will end on April 15. It is followed by the playoffs.

For TV fans, a total of 89 NBA games are scheduled for network coverage during the season — the most in league history. In addition, local stations broadcast many games of teams in their region. Check daily TV listings.

CBS plans to televise eight regular-season games, plus the All-Star Game.

The USA Cable Network and ESPN are expected to show 40 games apiece — USA primarily on Thursdays and ESPN on Sundays (although both cable networks will also show games on other nights).

All three networks — CBS, USA and ESPN — plan extensive coverage of the NBA playoffs as well.

The teams which battled in the NBA World Championship Series the last two years, the 1983 champion Philadelphia 76ers and the 1982 champion Los Angeles Lakers, will meet twice during the 1983-84 regular season: Sunday Feb. 26 in Philadelphia and Wednesday, March 7 in Los Angeles.

The 76ers — led by Moses Malone, Julius Erving & Co. — are trying to become the first team since the 1968-69 Boston Celtics to repeat as world champions.

Key newcomer to the NBA this season is rookie Ralph Sampson, the ex-Virginia center making his long-awaited debut with the Houston Rockets.

The mid-season highlight of the 1983-84 NBA campaign is the 34th annual NBA All-Star Game, which will be played at Denver's McNichols Arena on Sunday, Jan. 29. There are no games scheduled for the previous Friday or Saturday in order to give the All-Stars time to prepare.

Moses Malone

This season three NBA teams will play some home games at sites other than their normal home arenas. The Utah Jazz will play 11 games in Las Vegas, the Seattle SuperSonics will play four games in Tacoma, Wash., and the Boston Celtics will play three games in Hartford, Conn.
