Duval falters

Forget about the rough, which looked more like a Marine's flattop than the shaggy stuff typical of a U.S. Open. The real change Thursday at Augusta National was David Duval. He finally looked human./1C

A child coming from the Kosovo village of Rakosh, near Istok, cries as he arrives after a two day walk, in the Montenegrin village of Jablanica, near the border of Serbia and Kosovo Thursday. More than 35,000 Kosovars have been flooding into Montenegro since NATO airstrikes began.

Kosovo bombings

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Yugoslavia urged refugees to return home Thursday, declaring "peace has prevailed in Kosovo" and saying its 14-month war against ethnic Albanian separatists was over. But Western officials feared those same refugees would be used as human shields against NATO attacks. As the United States pledged that NATO will press ahead with the bombing campaign against Yugoslavia, a former Cypriot president arrived in Belgrade to try to win freedom for three captured U.S. soldiers. His task could prove difficult: A hardline Serbian vice premier ruled out any release as long as the NATO bombardment continued.

Temporary fix?

While many computer systems have been made Y2K-complaint, some information system specialists have apparently fixed the problem only temporarily and those systems can expect another problem to recur in the year 2030, at least according to a report by the Associated Press last month. According to that report, "the temporary fix, using a sophisticated twist of logic to fool computers, is highly controversial among insiders because it's intended to work only for a few decades — typically 30 years.

Chris Creel, a local intern architect with Rhotenberry Wellen Architects, was honored Thursday afternoon for the mural, "Face It," that he painted on the wall of the United Way parking lot. Creel started the project in May 1998 and just recently completed the hundreds of faces. Originally he planned to draw and paint 96,000 faces to represent all of the people who United Way touches, but later decided on a few hundred. "Some are caricatures of people around Midland; others are characters I've been drawing all my life; others I made up as I went along," Creel said. He painted the mural to cover up graffiti.

Perry focused on education bills, tax cuts

■ Texas' lieutenant governor offered no insight as to whether Gov. Bush will seek the presidency.

State Rep. Teel Bivins, left, and Lt. Gov. Rick Perry, discuss pending education legislation during a visit to Midland Thursday to attend the Petroleum Museum Hall of Fame induction dinner.

As speculation swirls around him about a possible presidential campaign, Gov. George W. Bush's focus remains on the current session of the Texas Legislature.

His lieutenant governor, Rick Perry, shares that focus.

"The governor has not made a decision," said Perry, in Midland Thursday to appear at the Petroleum Museum Hall of Fame induction dinner. "Our focus is on the legislative session, on making our schools the best schools in the country, on making our streets safe and providing economic opportunities for all Texans regardless of where they live.

"And we will continue to focus on that throughout the session. ... After June 1 (when the session ends), we'll think about his possible presidential campaign.

"I will say this. The governor has formed an exploratory committee to find out if there would be a shock wave of support for a presidential campaign or a big yawn.

"Let me tell you — there is going to be $7 million-plus reported in contributions since March 4. That's not a big yawn; that's a big thunderclap of excitement about the possibility of a Bush campaign."

Perry was accompanied by State Sen. Teel Bivins and the two discussed recent legislation concerning education and tax relief.

"My No. 1 budget and policy priority is our children's education," Perry said. "There is some legislation pending to make our schools the best, possibly in the world, and Sen. Bivins has been a pivotal player and author of some of the legislation."

Senate Bill 1, authored by Bivins, which the Texas Senate passed last month, would end social promotion in Texas "and go a long way to helping teachers correct children's reading problems that develop at an early stage," Perry said.

Senate Bill 3, also written by Bivins, establishes a master reading teacher program that gives reading teachers extra training and, if certified, bonuses up to $7,000 a year.

Perry called Senate Bill 4 the largest education funding increase in the state's history and said it also contained the largest tax decrease and tax cut.

The bill calls for a $2,000 a year raise for the state's teachers while increasing their retirement, he said.

Bivins said that the salary increase would be 100 percent funded by the state and would not require school districts to provide additional incentives. The bill would increase the state's share of education fund-

Petroleum Museum inducts new Hall of Fame members

From Staff Reports

Described by Petroleum Museum Director Jane Phares as "treasures of the petroleum industry," five men who have added significant value to the U.S. petroleum industry were named to the museum's Hall of Fame Thursday, bringing to 100 the number of names on that exclusive roll.

Inducted were two teams and one individual: Midlanders Cyril "Cy" Wagner and Jack E. Brown of Wagner & Brown, Ltd.; the late Wm. A. "Monty" Moncrief and son, Wm. A. "Tex" Moncrief Jr. of Moncrief Oil Co., Fort Worth; and the late J. Clarence Karcher of Dallas, inventor of the reflection seismograph.

Dozens of nominations are received each year for the honor, but only three are admitted to the Hall of Fame rolls each year. Teams, however, are considered as a single selection. Nominations remain active and are considered the next term. Members are selected to the Petroleum Hall of Fame by a secret committee, only the committee chairman, Tom Sikes, is known to the public.

Special guests at the induction banquet included Patrick Manning, leader of the opposition in Trinidad and Tobago and a former geologist with Texaco; and Texas Lt. Gov. Rick Perry.

Perry said the individuals being inducted into the Petroleum Hall of Fame were giants in the oil business, and that made them giants in Texas. "These gentlemen helped build the oil and gas industry in Texas, and oil and gas has made us the proud and prosperous state we are."

Dr. Tulsi Singh, president of the Petroleum Museum, introduced a video presentation, which chronicled the inductees' early history and their achievements.

Men convicted of running meth lab receive sentence

By Rick López
Staff Writer

Attorneys armed with a recent Supreme Court ruling struggled with a federal judge's decision to raise the punishment bar for two men convicted of running a meth lab in Midland.

After hours of debate with defense attorneys, U.S. District Court Judge Royal Furgeson sentenced Rodney Doggett — who he called the "leader of the enterprise" — to 19 years and five months in prison.

Co-defendant Dunois Beman was sentenced to life in prison. His punishment was increased because Beman has "career offender" status resulting from two state court convictions for possession of methamphetamine.

Doggett and Beman — both shackled and wearing jail jumpsuits —reacted calmly when Furgeson read their punishments.

"It's OK. It's not over,"

Jury selection begins today in 'Butch' Martin murder trial

By Rick López
Staff Writer

Prosecutors said Thursday they won't pursue the death penalty for Garland "Butch" Martin, who will be tried next week in connection with the burning deaths of his wife and two children.

Martin, 36, goes on trial next week on capital murder charges, though phase one of jury selection begins today and will continue on Monday. The trial is expected to last for five to seven working days. More than 80 people have been subpoenaed, records indicate.

District Attorney Al Schorre said the death penalty is usually sought in cases where the defendant commits a crime against society as a whole.

Though some consider the elements of the Feb., 25, 1998, blaze to be heinous, it appears to be an act of domestic violence, Schorre said.

"It would be difficult for the jury to see him as a threat to society," Schorre said. "The evidence in this case shows that this was an in-family (conflict)."

Midland County court records also show that the defendant, a welder with a local construction company, doesn't have any prior felony convictions.

BABY PARTY

A group of longtime high school friends, some friends since elementary school, and all new mothers, held a reunion of sorts at Fasken Park to get reacquainted and share parenting tips.

"It's more fun to play with everyone else," said Jenny Hord of Bellville, mother of 4-month-old triplets Davis, Ellen and Hunt.

Her twin sister, Shelley Harper became the mother of Ferrell just days before Jenny's triplets were born.

Degen Fricker, mother of 2-month-old twins Keaton and Claudia, said it helps that her friends with babies in older stages can give her parenting advice.

Kelly Grover, mother of 4-week-old Riley, agreed. "We're all new moms, and this gives us someone to talk to. We can discuss our worries, get tips like how to get the baby to sleep through the night."

The new moms, like Anne Warren, mother of Megan, 7 months, were joined by "token single woman" Keira Koziol, who traveled from San Francisco to attend a christening.

Watching her friends from Lee and Midland high schools, Ms. Grover observed that "these babies will grow up together and be friends like we are."

EVERYBODY INTO THE POOL

Bill and Vera McClure have donated a therapeutic ladder to the Alamo YMCA, 901 N. Midland Drive, to assist those unable to enter the pool by using pool ladders.

A swimmer uses the newly installed ladder at the Alamo YMCA pool.

Leaf Faller, aquatics director for the Y, said the ladder, which is "not quite 3 feet wide," is designed to provide "easy access to the pool" for anyone who might have trouble using regular pool ladders. It also is designed to bear up to about 400 pounds, she added.

"The reason we got it (to donate) is that I couldn't get in the pool any other way," Mrs. McClure said. "The (regular) ladders are too close to the walls (of the pool)."

A lot of the participants in the Y's water aerobics and water arthritis program are finding the new ladder to be just what the doctor ordered, she added. "We figured it would be something for the community to use. ... It has really benefited me, (and) it has benefited others too."

The Alamo YMCA pool is now equipped with two hydraulic lifts and a therapeutic ladder and enhances its water arthritis program.

MUSIC MEN — AND WOMEN

Les Lawless of Midland is a member of the South Plains College touring ensemble, which will perform at several area high schools this spring. The schedule includes stops at Shallowater High School, Farwell High School, Cooper High School in Lubbock and Floydada High School.

Lawless performs on drums and guitar.

BLASTING OFF!

Eric Setzler and David Moore, science teachers from Midland's Abell Junior High School and San Jacinto Junior High School, were among the more than 20,000 educators who attended the National Science Teachers Association's (NSTA) national convention March 25-28 in Boston.

Among the speakers featured at the convention were John Glenn, astronaut and former senator; U.S. Secretary of Education Richard Riley; Robert Ballard, discoverer of the R.M.S. Titanic; Stephen Jay Gould, science writer, paleontologist and evolutionary biologist; and Jocelyn Elders, former U.S. Surgeon General and pediatric endocrinologist.

TOP JOB IN THE KITCHEN

Luis Melgar, a dishwasher with Abuelo's Mexican Food Embassy, really cleaned up in the recent Texas Restaurant Association (TRA) competition. Melgar was named Employee of the Year for the Permian Basin chapter of the TRA.

"Luis never ceases to do the best possible job he can, regardless of the task assigned," said Abuelo's manager Bruce Marczynski. "He is more than willing to help anyone around him accomplish their tasks, and his work ethic serves as a good example and fosters teamwork throughout the restaurant." Cited for his "positive attitude and enthusiasm."

Melgar will receive $100 cash and a plaque. He has been employed with Abuelo's for more than six years. The award is given by the TRA Education Foundation, Discover Card and Novus Brands. Melgar will be honored at a TRA event April 13.

"Braggin' Rights" will be published on Fridays periodically as submissions are received. Send submissions — and photos if available — of interesting tidbits about area residents to Myra Salcedo, Lifestyle Editor, P.O. Old soreheads to come out for Trade Days this weekend

From Staff Reports

STANTON — Stanton, "home of 3,000 friendly people and a few old soreheads," may be visited by hundreds of friendly people this weekend for Old Sorehead Trade Days.

The biannual event is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. until dark Saturday and noon-5 p.m. Sunday in downtown Stanton and at the community center.

Trade Days includes arts and crafts booths, food booths and attractions for the kids, including a "spinning apple ride, pony rides and a kiddie train that even goes to the old convent," said Lori Myrick with Trade Days.

There will be 364 vendors, which "is every bit as large as October's show," she said. "I'm pleasantly surprised."

The vendors include those presenting hand-crafted patio furniture, scented candles, stained glass, wearable art, metal art and wooden collectibles.

The artists include Sue McPeak of Fort Stockton, who creates historical quilts that tell a story, and Fred and Phyllis Willingham of Mora, N.M., woodworkers who carve bears and eagles from tree trunks, Ms. Myrick said.

There will be two separate food courts offering among other goodies, popcorn, fajitas, sausage on a stick and funnel cakes.

There is no admission fee. Proceeds from booth sales benefit the downtown beautification efforts, Ms. Myrick said.

For more information, call 756-2006.

OBITUARIES

Loyd Hicks

Loyd Calvin Hicks Sr. was born March 12, 1905 in Caldwell, Texas, to Henry and Ada (Alexander) Hicks. He has lived in Midland since 1947. Mr. Hicks was a loving father, brother, grandfather, great-grandfather, and friend.

Mr. Hicks was preceded in death by his wife, Julia Hicks, November 13, 1993.

He is survived by his sons, Jimmy Hicks of Midland and Loyd Hicks Jr. of Odessa; his daughters, Dorothy Beckham of Midland and Virginia Sessions of Baird, Texas; his sisters, Ann Jarolik and Belle Jett, both of Holland, Texas; 11 grandchildren; 15 great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Mr. Hicks died at a local nursing home Tuesday, April 6, 1999.

Graveside services have been scheduled for 11 a.m. Friday at Resthaven Memorial Park with Reverend Bob Porterfield officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is handling the arrangements.

His grandchildren will serve as honorary pallbearers.

The family requests memorials be directed to: Home Hospice of Midland, 1802 W. Wall, Midland, Texas 79701.

W. Wayne Weekes

Wayne was born in Ranger, Texas March 26, 1938, and left this part of his life April 7, 1999. He was preceded in passing by his mother, Matilda Weekes, and father, Willis H. Weekes.

He is survived by family members, Stanley and Glenda Weekes of Ranger, Billie and Jim Cunningham of Round Rock, Max Howard-Lloyd of Midland, and his many nephews and nieces, who are spread over the state of Texas and in the Kosovo war area at this time.

One of Wayne's last wishes was that his body be cremated, so that the devastation of cancer be burned and, possibly, contained and not spread. He also asked that memorials be flowers or remembrances to the "McLaren Comedy Playwriting Competition" at Midland Community Theatre.

If there was to be a regular funeral, rather than a memorial, the pallbearers would be Michael Fitz-Gerald, Jim Galyean, Richard Patterson, Joe Hathaway, Lynne Anderson, Nancy White, Arron Cranford, Herb Cooper, Dr. Mark Cox, and Carl Williams.

Honorary pallbearers: Ann Hathaway, Debbi Patterson, Loree Fitz-Gerald, Arlen and Betty Edgar, Alice Moxey, Dan Hallar, Richard David, Ben Weekes, Alice Williams and Sally Mogford.

Wayne was employed by the Scott Theaters and Hodge Theaters in Odessa, before he became a broadcaster and co-owner of KNFM/KNAM (now KMND) Radio in Midland. He also was a travel agent in Odessa, a package store owner, sales clerk at Folger's Superstore, and retailer at McLoyd's Spirits in Midland. He was always a good friend to many of those close to him and everyday acquaintances.

Memorial services are scheduled for Friday at 4 p.m. at Ellis Chapel in Midland with a "Celebration of Life" (a wake) at the Yucca Theatre following the memorial. Friends attending and friends who cannot attend the memorial are invited. The memorial will be officiated by Stanley Weekes.

Obituary & Death Notice policy

There is no charge for death notices of residents or former residents of Midland or for those who have Midland relatives. We also publish death notices for residents of the surrounding West Texas area.

Free death notices include date and place of death, service and burial information, funeral home handling arrangements, date and place of birth, brief biography, survivors and memorials. A longer, more detailed obituary is available for a charge. It may include tributes, expanded biography, organizational associations, notes of appreciation, pallbearers, honorary pallbearers and a photo.

Deadline for both free death notices and paid obituaries is 3:30 p.m. and information must be either received from or verified by a funeral home.

Parent center hopes fair increases child abuse awareness

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

The Barbara Yarbrough Parent Center, working to increase awareness of child abuse, is hosting a Children's Fair Saturday in conjunction with Child Abuse Awareness Month.

The fair is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday on the streets of 900 S. Loraine and 201 W. Dakota Ave.

"We're trying to get people into the fair and get all of Midland aware of the kind of abuse that occurs," said Barbara Yarbrough, who taught in Midland Independent School District from 1959 to 1996 and now serves as parent liaison at South Elementary. "Sometimes people say 'Oh, that doesn't happen here,' but when you sit on the Child Protective Services board, you know what happens."

She said abuse occurs across all social and economic classes and "the more we're aware of it, the easier we can recognize it."

According to the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services, it received 112,766 reports of child abuse and neglect by fiscal year 1997 and projected an increase to 126,300 in FY 1998 and 126,973 in FY 1999. In its Midland region, it conducted 3,036 investigations in FY 1997, of which 678 cases, or 22.3 percent, were confirmed.

Various agencies like the Rape Crisis Center, CPS and DARE will have booths at the fair to let people know where to go for help and what services are available. Food booths, games and other activities also will be available, and the Midland Health Department will give free immunizations from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The center, on the Midland College South campus at 201 W. Florida Ave., is designed to support traditional families and families headed by single parents or grandparents.

Free parenting classes are offered Tuesdays in English and Thursdays in Spanish. The four-week sessions cover topics ranging from building self-esteem, setting limits, communication, sibling rivalry and peer pressure to dealing with homework and understanding learning differences.

"Sometimes parents wonder if they're doing what's right and sometimes the children still aren't responsive," Ms. Yarbrough said. "We reassure them and show them other techniques to try."

The center also offers "make-and-take" workshops on manipulatives — reading or writing flashcards — that parents can use with their children who are in kindergarten, first grade or second grade.

The center is funded by the Children's Trust Fund of Texas, a state agency that promotes community support for children and programs that help families and prevent child abuse and neglect.

"The funding will always be there," Ms. Yarbrough said. "Every time a person buys a marriage license, a portion of that fee goes to the fund."

Police Reports

Monahans murder

MONAHANS — Police arrested a 20-year-old man Monday in connection with the Sunday morning slaying of a Monahans man.

A Bexar County pathologist has ruled that Daniel Warren Francis, 36, died from blunt-force trauma, Monahans Police Capt. David Watts said Thursday.

Officers found Francis' body in the bedroom of an apartment in the 400 block of South Franklin Street while they were investigating a possible burglary. Authorities were called to that residence because a window had been broken.

On Monday evening, police arrested Michael Wallace on charges of first-degree murder. He remains in the Ward County jail in lieu of a $100,000 bond.

Watts said neither of the two men lived at the apartment, but were guests at a party there Saturday night. Authorities suspect that no one else was inside the apartment when the slaying occurred, Watts said.

Francis was employed with the Opportunity Workshop in Monahans — a temporary work agency for laborers.

Officers had not been able to locate a weapon as of Thursday afternoon, Watts said. Police won't release what the motive was in the case.

MUSEUM: Members are selected by secret committee

synonymous with the oil industry and Midland, operating more than 600 wells in Sterling and Glasscock counties. Wagner was born and raised in Tulsa, Okla., and graduated from the University of Oklahoma with a geology degree. Brown was born in Brownsville and raised in San Antonio and graduated from Texas A&M University with degrees in mechanical and petroleum engineering.

According to the video presentation prepared by the Petroleum Museum, both got an early start in business. As a high school and college student, Wagner worked as a "shoe dog" for a women's shoe store and learned how to "keep showing the deal until somebody buys it." Brown first sold magazine subscriptions and then had a newspaper route.

The two met in Midland while employed by J.E. Jones Drilling Co. In 1962, they pooled their non-existent financial resources to form a company that today is known as Wagner & Brown, Ltd. The company was originally Stoltz, Wagner and Brown since they were joined by Dean Stoltz, another Midland oilman.

Wagner and Brown started with what they called a "popcorn" rig. It was during this time that Brown earned his nickname "Seven Sack Jack." To save a delivery charge, Brown would haul seven sacks of mud each day in his car out to the rig. Their big break came in the New Mexico Bagley Field near Tatum. A major oil company had lost interest in the wells because of the excessive amount of water produced with the oil. They developed the Burro Pipeline to dispose of the water, and the drilling began. Before they left the field, the team had completed more than 60 wells.

The next major development came in the Highlight Field and Muddy Play in the Powder River Basin in Wyoming. In 1975, the partnership initiated its largest drilling program ever on 30,000 acres of the Conger (Penn) Field in Sterling and Glasscock counties in Texas.

Wagner & Brown, Ltd. has diversified over the years. Today, it is involved in natural gas gathering and marketing; crude oil purchasing and reselling; pipeline development, construction and operation; real estate development; PFS Thermoplastic Powder Coatings; and Pinnacle CNG Systems, which designs, manufactures, sells and operates compressed natural gas fuel stations and equipment.

Both have been recognized by their universities — University of Oklahoma for Wagner and Texas A&M University for Brown; and they received the Top Hand Award from the Permian Basin Petroleum Association. They have supported numerous community organizations.

In accepting induction into the Hall of Fame, Wagner thanked his family, his partner and his partner's family. Brown said his grandson was overheard telling a friend that his "grandfather was being indicted by the Petroleum Museum. Thank goodness that is not the case," he said, laughing.

The museum video presentation called J. Clarence Karcher, Ph.D., the inventor of reflection seismograph, as the man who gave the petroleum industry "eyes" to see beneath the earth's surface.

Karcher's invention, designed in his early 20s, changed the methods of searching for oil, and has been responsible for the discovery and production of hundreds of billions of dollars of oil and gas around the world.

Born in Dale, Ind., Karcher attended the University of Oklahoma on scholarship, graduating with a physics degree and the highest grades in his class. In 1916 he entered the University of Pennsylvania to pursue a doctorate and the following year he was tapped to work at Thomas Edison's Laboratory. He often talked with the famous inventor and followed Edison's advice: "Without perseverance and persistence, little can be accomplished in any endeavor."

In World War I, the U.S. Bureau of Standards enlisted the young physicist, who spoke German, and sent him to the front lines in France. There he studied sound waves through air as generated by artillery fire.

When he returned to his studies after the war, Karcher focused on the use of seismic waves in relation to geology. In 1921, on a farm north of Oklahoma City, Karcher proved his theory: that reflected sound waves can locate subsurface oil structures that might be oil traps. The electromagnetic detector Karcher designed is on display in the Museum of History and Technology at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

In 1925, he formed a partnership with Everett DeGolyer, vice president of Amerada Petroleum, called Geophysical Research Corp. Over the next 2 1/2 years, the company's crews found more than 100 salt domes for Gulf Oil. They conducted offshore and onshore seismic work for Louisiana Land and Exploration Co. In addition, several large anticlines were found, two being the Conroe Field in East Texas and the Monument Field in southeast New Mexico.

In 1930, Karcher organized Geophysical Service Inc., the first independent company to provide seismograph services. After 1940, the reflection seismograph went worldwide; by 1960 GSI had more than 1,000 crews and was a major seismic contractor in the Permian Basin. Karcher then formed Comanche Corp., an independent oil company in 1945; and Concho Petroleum in 1950. Seaboard Oil used Comanche's seismic data and drilled the discovery well in the prolific Vealmoor Field in Howard County.

Among the numerous honors Karcher received was the Anthony F. Lucas Gold Medal from the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers. He also established and endowed the Karcher Symposium on Energy and the Chemical Sciences at the University of Oklahoma.

Coleen Karcher Stone, accepted the award for her father. "He was called 'Karch' by those who knew him, and he would have been proud to receive this award."

A father-son dynasty was born 70 years ago, when William A. "Monty" Moncrief took the plunge and left Marland Oil Co. to become an independent oilman, and was later joined by his son William A. "Tex" Moncrief. Today the names of Monty and Tex, when mentioned in oil circles, need no further explanation.

According to the museum video, after drilling 29 dry holes, Monty hit the big one with Lathrop No. 1 in the East Texas field. As his son watched the well come in that day, he told his mother he wanted to be an oilman someday. In the late 1940s, Tex joined his father in Moncrief Oil Co.

After serving in World War I in France, Moncrief returned to the States and went to work for Marland Oil in the accounting department in Ponca City, Okla. But he soon saw the money was being made in the land department and transferred. By the time he left Marland in 1929, Moncrief was executive vice president at the Fort Worth office.

The Lathrop discovery well was no one-time success for Moncrief. During the 1930s, he worked in the Conroe, Hastings, Cayuga and Rodessa fields. In 1946, he went into the Cedar Lake field of West Texas where he proceeded to drill nearly 50 producers.

In 1949, Moncrief bought a deal to drill in Scurry County, and asked fellow golfers Bob Hope and Bing Crosby to join in it; they accpeted. Moncrief first drilled a dry hole, then 28 straight producers in what became the billion barrel SACROC Field.

Tex described his father as having a knack for being in the right place at the right time. In a 1971 interview, Monty said he "just happened to be a worker who stayed with it."

Tex graduated from the University of Texas with a petroleum engineering degree and then served in World War II. He returned to Fort Worth and Moncrief Oil where he and his father became like "two peas in a pod."

The son made his own incredible gas find in Wyoming's Madden Field, which has proved to be a "long-life" field. He also participated in the Twelve-Well Deal in the Powder River Basin which turned into half a dozen discoveries.

The elder Moncrief was an early conservationist, serving as chair of the first Proration Committee in the Yates Field. The son served on the UT System Board of Regents. Both have given generously to hospitals and schools throughout the years, and they have received numerous honors for their work in the petroleum industry.

Monty died in his office on May 21, 1986, at the age of 90.

In accepting the award, Moncrief delivered an emotional account of his father's death.

"All the air went from his lungs. The darkened windows in the office became white, and I felt a peace like I had never known before. I know there is a God, and a Jesus and a heaven."

TRIAL: Schorre confirms second autopsies were ordered

(From 1A)

He has a few DWI arrests and an arrest for failing a drug test — which violated the bond conditions of his arson arrest.

However, a capital offense carries an automatic penalty of life in prison, Schorre said. Defendants convicted of capital crimes need to serve 40 years before they are eligible for parole.

In Martin's case, the jury will be presented with four charges stemming from the same case: capital murder, first-degree murder, first-degree arson and manslaughter.

Martin was arrested April 14, 1998, after a grand jury charged him with arson in connection with the death of his stepson — Michael Brady Stephens, 3.

On Dec. 18, another panel charged him with arson, manslaughter, murder and capital murder for the deaths of the other two victims: his common-law wife, Marcia Stephens, 24, and their daughter, Kristin Rhea Martin, 18 months.

They burned in a house that Martin rented from his father at 5512 S. County Road 1210. Authorities found that the blaze was started in the back of the home.

The victim's bodies were in different rooms throughout the house. Autopsy reports revealed that they all died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

The cause of death of one of the children was ruled as "accidental" because pathologists don't usually consider carbon-monoxide poisonings as anything other than suicides or accidents, Schorre said.

Schorre said Ms. Stephens had another daughter from a previous marriage, but she lives with her father outside of Midland County.

Schorre confirmed that forensic experts exhumed the victim's bodies last year for a second autopsy, but would not elaborate on their findings. He said he won't discuss the suspect's motive until the case goes to trial.

SENTENCE: Defendants' families very emotional

(From 1A)

Doggett, 36, whispered to his crying family.

When Furgeson asked Doggett if he had a statement, the defendant replied, "I think it's a little too much for the crime." Doggett pleaded innocent to the charges during his October trial.

Beman, 36, said, "It seems a little harsh for something I did years ago."

"I love you, Dad!" shouted his sobbing teen-age son as bailiffs escorted Beman from the courtroom. The son tried walking over to the defendant's bench, but was held back by his family.

Before the emotional sentencing, Doggett's attorney, Robert Leahey, argued that his client was protected from an enhanced sentence by a Supreme Court ruling made on March 24 — a car-jacking case, United States vs. Jones.

The ruling, Leahey said, prevents the court from using evidence during a sentencing that was not presented during the jury trial.

He contends that the judge increased Doggett's penalty because the U.S. Attorney's Office received a letter from a lab expert that corrected his testimony during the trial.

The expert claims in his letter that he underestimated the amount of meth the defendants were capable of making in their garage/lab.

But the expert had a solid theory on how much meth the defendants could cook, and gave a range that included his latest estimate, prosecutors said.

Furgeson said the ruling didn't apply to Doggett's case and had his own reasons for increasing the defendant's sentence.

"I feel you were the leader of this enterprise, and you were, so the leader pays a higher price," Furgeson told Doggett. "Since Mr. Beman is on career offender status, I have no option than to send him to prison for life. Your sentence needs to be consistent with his."

Beman's attorney, Jason Leach, argued that his client's two 1998 state court convictions should be counted as one. He pleaded guilty to them at the same time and sentenced for both offenses on the same date.

But the charges don't stem from one arrest, Furgeson explained. They were made in connection with two incidents that occurred on separate dates.

"It's hard for me to stand next to a man who didn't commit murder, rape, or assault ... and to look him in the eye and say there's no other option than to sentence him to life," Leach said after the sentencing. "I am sickened to be a part of the criminal justice system today."

Leach and Leahey have vowed to appeal their cases within the next 10 days.

On Oct. 30, a jury convicted the defendants for running a medium-sized meth lab from Doggett's west-side residence. Midland police learned about the lab when they responded to a disturbance involving Doggett and his then-son-in-law, who were arguing outside Doggett's garage.

Authorities testified that the men produced meth, valued at more than $92,000, over a two-year period.

They also put the community at danger by building a lab inside a residential neighborhood, agents with the Drug Enforcement Administration testified. Substances used in the production of meth are very volatile, and careless handling can lead to explosions, agents testified.

PERRY: Interest in tax decrease is 'alive and well'

ing, he said, reducing reliance on property taxes by the state's school districts, "which is what got us in the Edgewood mess in the first place.

"The districts can use this to pay facility debt or, in the suburban areas, deal with the rapid growth in their schools. Anyway you slice it, it's a great deal for teachers, for taxpayers and for the students."

Bivins said that SB 4 was one of 19 bills addressing public school financing heard by the Senate Education Committee recently and said it not only helps teachers but property taxpayers.

"Hopefully next week I can meet with Senate Democrats and my colleagues and we can get out a bill that recognizes the state's teachers and the part they've played in raising student performance, at the same time recognizing that state property taxes have risen 122 percent this decade and we owe taxpayers a monetary pat on the back as well," he said.

Bivins praised his colleagues, Bush and Perry, who all campaigned last November on an education platform, for maintaining that commitment by appropriating $3 billion to education.

Asked about State Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander's recent budget estimate that was smaller than expected, Perry noted that her estimate went back to June 1998 "and is closer to actuality. She's due to give another estimate in mid- to late April and there's some speculation that, with the economy perking along quite well, she may give an estimate higher than her original one. It's a fluid number."

He added that "Gov. Bush's and my interest in giving a tax decrease is alive and well. What form it takes is secondary. It could all be in property taxes or take into account a franchise tax cut.

"A severance tax cut has already been signed into law and a sales tax cut was approved by the Senate (Thursday)," Perry said. "There's a smorgasbord of tax cuts on the table and I expect to see substantially the largest tax cut in Texas history signed into law, not just passed by the House and Senate."

Texas Historical Commission hopes to get funding to help local groups

By Bill Modisett
Staff Writer

If the Texas Historical Commission's funding request is approved by the Legislature, historical preservation efforts will get a major boost, executive director Larry Oaks told a gathering of some 50 people at the Haley Library Thursday evening.

Oaks, who flew in to the meeting late because of an appearance before the Legislature, said the agency's request includes $100,000 each year for two years to fund 40 to 50 multi-day workshops throughout the state on such topics as downtown revitalization, the "Main Street" project and others.

That is part of what the THC calls its PET Project — preservation, education and training. Oaks said the commission wants to empower local history groups to make them better able to perform the work of historical preservation.

"Every historical site is somebody's local history," Oaks said.

So the THC staff has been holding meetings across the state like the one in Midland to gather information about what the local organizations need in the way of assistance.

He said the commission "has been very concerned about historic preservation organizations for some time.

"By talking with people across the state to learn their needs, we can determine how to most effectively channel our agency's resources toward the common goal of protecting and preserving the archeological and historical resources of Texas," he said.

Also at the meeting from the THC were Pat Mercado-Allinger, state archeologist; Lyman Labry, architectural project reviewer; and Karen Riles, historian.

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

State archeologist Pat Mercado-Allinger talks at the Texas Historical Commission meeting Thursday at the Haley Library. Sitting next to her is Nita Helmer.

Ms. Mercado-Allinger reiterated Oaks' statement about the goal of the meetings, asking, "What can we do as your state preservation agency to make your job easier?"

After the group divided into three focus groups — concentrating on assessing an organization, preservation tools and diversity — it became clear that many of the organizations present are still grappling with funding concerns.

Ms. Mercado-Allinger noted the opportunity for foundation funding and observed that, "Foundations really like to see projects that involve partnerships" on funding requests.

She also encouraged applicants to make a personal contact in regard to applications, rather than simply sending in a "cold" application. She said the THC conducts workshops around Texas on writing grant applications.

In regard to another funding concern, Elizabeth Heath of Monahans, representing the Ward County Historical Commission, said that group has utilized the STEP Program to fill some of its manpower needs. STEP, Senior Texas Employment Program, has proven to be a boon for the Ward County organization, she said.

As far as fund-raising efforts, Peggy Kelton, representing the Upton County Historical Commission and the Federated Woman's Club of McCamey, said activities such as chili cook-offs and craft shows had proven successful.

Concerning historical buildings and authenticity, Edna Hibbitts of Midland, who was at the meeting in regard to the Stanton Monastery, observed that, "People want to see the real thing — not some Disney World version of what they think it was."

In addition to the Midland meeting, the THC staff has already held similar meetings in Victoria, Brownsville, Abilene, San Angelo, Bryan, Houston, Beaumont, Grapevine, Jacksboro, Amarillo, Lubbock, Waco, San Antonio and Laredo, and still has meetings planned for Alpine, El Paso, Tyler, Mount Pleasant and Austin.

Oaks said he is interested in getting more people around the state involved in historical preservation but noted that the agency needs funding from the state to make it work.

If the funding comes, "we plan to come back out and help you do things," he said.

Jury gives driver 2-year prison sentence

By Rick López
Staff Writer

Jurors on Thursday rendered a two-year prison sentence against Pablo Lopez — a Midland man tried for killing one woman and injuring two others in a 1998 car accident.

After eight hours of deliberation, Lopez was sentenced to:

- one two-year prison sentence for one count of manslaughter;
- one two-year prison sentence for one count of aggravated assault; and
- one six-year probated sentence for another count of aggravated assault.

The prison terms will be served concurrently, court officials said. Lopez faced two to 20 years in prison for each count. He will serve probation once he gets out of prison, court officials said.

The panel also made several recommendations for the defendant's probation, which will be set next week at a formal hearing in the 238th District Court of Judge John Hyde.

Lopez's charges stem from an Aug. 30 accident that occurred at the intersection of Midland Drive and West Loop 250.

Witnesses testified that Lopez, then 21, ran a red light and struck a late-model sedan carrying the three women. He was driving his sister, her friend and his sister's 10-year-old daughter to Wal-Mart.

Killed in the accident was Clemencia Lago, 59, of Venezuela. Her sister, Luisa Searles, 63, and her Midland niece, Cecilia Leonard, 43, suffered serious injuries.

Ms. Lago, who, police said, was not wearing a seat belt, was ejected from the vehicle and died at the scene. Ms. Leonard and Ms. Searles had picked up Ms. Lago from Midland International Airport 30 minutes before the accident.

During the punishment hearing, witnesses described two sides of Lopez: the man who cared for his grandmother and his sister, who cannot hear or speak, and the reckless driver with a long list of traffic violations.

Jacqueline Smith, the defendant's fiancee, testified that she met Lopez when they both worked for a local hospital's physical therapy department. She recalled his gentle and compassionate rapport with rehabilitation clients.

"He was very encouraging to them and knew what to say to motivate them," Ms. Smith said.

Lopez was also the backbone of his family. He took care of his grandmother, drove her to work and helped his sister raise her 10-

The Sufferings Of War

Whatever the reasons and however one explains war, it yet remains as a grim tragedy in the pages of history. Newsweek reported the nightmare of a Kosovo family, forced to leave their home in Pristina, who said, "I can't explain what the train was like, Children were crying, people were passing out. There was no water; families were being separated." As air strikes have escalated, Serbian leader Milosevic increased his heinous acts of terrorism and murder. One historian has aptly called war "man's inhumanity to man." As the teeming masses stream from Kosovo and Serbians suffer our air attacks, the horror is tragic and troubling. Are we achieving a victory? Is there a purpose and plan? Is it our goal to win the battle, or punish the aggressor?

Let me urge you not to forget those "wars" here at home that are just as critical. Our enemy is Satan and those lovers of self and sin who worship man rather than God. John 8:44 and Romans 1:21-32. Their goal is to destroy morality and character of humanity, and reap a harvest of wealth. The most strategic target is our youth, and "Lies" are pured into their minds about drugs, sex, and selfish attitudes called "social freedom and rights." The wounded and dying are everywhere. God's institution of marriage is also engaged in a war with enemies who scoff at monogamous relationships, and their trails of divorce are strewn with broken hearts and lives.

How are we going to fight the battle and win? Not alone. The enemy is too strong and deceptive. I Peter 5:8. It is imperative that we join forces with Jehovah God and His powerful weapons of Prayer and The Word. It's time we joined the daily battle in life.

Heritage Hall of Fame to induct first pioneers this fall

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

A West Texas ranching couple, Tom Linebery and Evelyn Scarborough Linebery, are to be inducted into Heritage Midland's West Texas Heritage Hall of Fame this autumn as pioneers who helped mold West Texas.

"They are a typical, old-time ranching family," Gerald Nobles, a Midland banker and president of Heritage Midland, said Thursday.

The former Midlanders, who live at Frying Pan Ranch near Kermit, are to be inducted into the Hall of Fame in a ceremony set for 2 p.m. Sept. 26 at the West Texas Heritage Hall of Fame Center. The center is on the grounds of the historic Scarborough-Linebery House, 802 S. Main St.

The couple donated the Victorian-styled house and adjacent property to the city of Midland to preserve and use for civic activities.

"They gave this home to the city of Midland, absolutely," Nobles said. "It's the start for Heritage Midland to bring in historic homes, businesses, artifacts and other things" that represent Midland's heritage. "We have wonderful plans for it. It is going to take years, probably, to put everything into place."

The house has been deemed the heart of an envisioned Heritage Park on South Main Street between Florida Avenue and the railroad tracks. Midland's founding in the 1880s coincided with the coming of the railroad and the laying of the rails for the old Texas & Pacific Railway Co.

The Lineberys, now in their late 80s and early 90s, "used to go out as a couple and work the ranch together and put in a full day," said Nobles, who has a ranching-heritage background.

"They represent the wonderful (West Texas) heritage as far as ranching and people who are willing to take risks and live their lives in West Texas," said Frank Kell Cahoon, who serves on the nonprofit Heritage Midland's board of directors. "It's a great honor that we have people like that."

The Scarborough-Linebery House is "a wonderful facility for Midland ... because it represents the best of Midland's Heritage and it has been heavily utilized by various civic groups," Cahoon said.

The early day Midland ranch house was built by W.F. and Kara Scarborough, Mrs. Linebery's parents.

Heritage Park is "going to be wonderful," Frances Stapp, curator of the Scarborough-Linebery House, said earlier. "And I think it is going to be exciting and ... something for Midland that we can really be proud of."

Eventually, four blocks along Main Street in the Heritage Park area are to reflect the Medallion Home District, Residential District, Commercial District and Railroad and Cattle District.

The tree-lined park would include picket fences, restored old homes reflective of early Midland, brick-paved walks, perhaps an old ice hous . oil-field derrick, windmills, an old-style railroad depot, cattle cars and a cattle corral.

The district already includes the early 1900s (circa 1915) Clarence and Ruth Scharbauer ranch home.

"We'd like to bring in some of the historic homes (and) businesses in Midland, mix in antiques shops, bed-and-breakfast (inns), delis, make it a place for not only Midlanders, but where visitors to Midland can come and take a tour through these four blocks and see where Midland was and where it is going," Nobles said.

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Gerald Nobles Jr., president of Heritage Midland Inc., and Clynice Baker, Scarborough-Linebery Foundation secretary, stand in front of the remodeled guest house that will be the West Texas Hall of Fame. The first inductees are to be ranching couple, Tom Linebery and Evelyn Scarborough Linebery.

Judge OKs almost $200 million in settlements over oil royalties

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A federal judge on Thursday finished approving almost $200 million worth of settlements between oil companies and the royalty owners they allegedly shortchanged.

On Thursday, U.S. District Judge Janis Graham Jack approved seven settlements ranging from $350,000 to $11 million, said plaintiffs' lawyer Lee Godfrey.

On Wednesday, Jack approved an agreement by several oil companies to pay $164.2 million to tens of thousands of royalty owners nationwide.

Oil companies who were defendants in the cases included Exxon, Union Pacific Resources, Amoco BP, Chevron, and Shell.

A central accusation in the lawsuits was that the oil companies paid royalty owners on posted prices rather than on higher spot market prices.

The class action grew from numerous lawsuits filed in various courts in several states. A judicial panel consolidated the lawsuits and moved the class action to Corpus Christi last year. Ms. Jack gave preliminary approval to all of the settlements last fall.

New VA outpatient clinic christened

By T.E. Jenkins
Big Spring Correspondent

BIG SPRING — The Big Spring VA Medical Center christened its newly completed Outpatient Clinic Thursday afternoon, bringing two years of construction on the facility to a close.

Big Spring area residents, as well as representatives from federal, state and local government agencies, toured the 9,000-square-foot addition to the center that will allow the VA to meet the increasing need of its veterans.

U.S. Rep. Charlie Stenholm (D-Stamford) was on hand for the ceremony and to discuss the future of renovations and additions for U.S. veteran facilities all over Texas.

"Right now, with the proposed budget in Congress, there is no funding for projects like this one," Stenholm said. "That is the bad news. The good news, however, is that budget is not going to pass.

"The VA Hospital here in Big Spring has seen an overall increase in patients needing care of 40 percent. Without funding to keep these facilities up to date, and to help them grow over time, we will never be able to give these veterans the care that they so richly deserve. These men and women committed themselves to the care of this great nation, and the least we can do is provide them with the care that they now need."

Stenholm said budgetary woes should not affect funding that has been allocated for projects such as the renovations at the VA hospital and construction of the Veterans Nursing Home, which is to begin next month.

"Caring for our veterans is just one of the long-term goals that we have set for ourselves," Stenholm said. "This is not something you can just say, 'hey, we don't have the money for it.' We will find the money, allocate the money, do whatever is necessary to see to it these men and women are looked after."

Stenholm reflected briefly on the situation that America's fighting men and women face in Kosovo, criticizing President Clinton's admonitions that there will be no ground troops involved in the NATO-supported conflict.

"I really feel like it was a mistake to ever tell the public that there would not be any involvement of ground troops in the situation in Kosovo. I don't want to see ground troops have to go in there, and I'm sure the American public doesn't want to see that, either.

"We have to see this thing through 'till the end, however. We have to finish this now, and put an end to the dealings of (Serbian President Slobodan) Milosevic. Otherwise, everything that we have done until now is no good.

"Someone asked me the other day that if the three military men who were taken in Kosovo are prisoners of war, does that mean we are at war, and I told them, yes. Yes, we are at war. Anytime American men and women have to fight, whether it be from the ground or the air, it is war, and that is how we have to look at it."

Here at home, Stenholm said he was happy to see the positive effect of the new VA facilities.

The project, which has a $4 million price tag, began in May 1997, with construction finally wrapped up over the last few weeks.

"It really feels good to see this project completed and in operation," said Cary Brown, the medical center's director. "It's been a lot of hard work, and a lot of headache, but we are glad to see these patients using it.

"The addition of this wing, as well as the renovations and additions made through the old facilities, will help us provide better care for our patients. The new outpatient center will also help us get these veterans in and out of the facilities faster, and with a higher level of care than we have in the past."

Brown said allocating the funds for the project was hard, but hard work and perseverance have paid off.

"We had to do a lot of work and planning before the main office would even give the go-ahead on this project," Brown said. "It's worth it though, especially when you see these veterans actually utilizing the new facilities."

Taxpayer funds being spent out of public view

Officials of the city of Midland and Midland Independent School District have acknowledged making trips to other Texas cities as well as the states of California and Arizona to look at football stadiums — trips paid for with taxpayer monies although the reason for the trips had never been discussed publicly nor brought to the attention of taxpayers.

That should be a concern for Midland's taxpayers because the Texas Open Meetings Law requires that when public funds are being expended the public be informed that such transactions are taking place and specific expenditures are being made. There are certain exceptions to that rule, but gathering information about a possible new sports complex to be paid for by an increase in the city sales tax is not among them.

In this case, city officials have revealed that a trip to Dallas was made that cost the city of Midland — Midland taxpayers — $1,140, while MISD funds expended amounted to $588.66. And those are not all the taxpayer funds expended, but they are the ones that specific dollar amounts have been given for. At the time those trips were made early this year, the sports complex that first came to the attention of the Midland public last week was only being discussed privately by city and school officials as well as representatives of the Midland Rockhounds.

On March 29th, a group of about 40 Midlanders met to discuss the possibility of building a multimillion-dollar sports complex that would contain a new football-soccer stadium and a new baseball park, ostensibly to replace Midland Memorial Stadium and Christensen Stadium. That was the first public revelation that planning was under way.

This should not be interpreted as criticism directed at the plan for a sports complex, but as the method city and school officials used to acquire information on football stadiums. This plan had not even been discussed publicly yet public funds were already being spent without the public being informed. This would not qualify as "government in the sunshine."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, April 9, the 99th day of 1999. There are 266 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 9, 1865, Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered his army to Union General Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox Court House in Virginia.

On this date:

In 1682, French explorer Robert La Salle reached the Mississippi River.

In 1939, singer Marian Anderson performed a concert at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C., after she was denied the use of Constitution Hall by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

In 1940, Germany invaded Denmark and Norway.

In 1942, American and Philippine defenders on Bataan capitulated to Japanese forces; the surrender was followed by the notorious "Bataan Death March," which claimed nearly 10,000 lives.

In 1947, tornadoes in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas claimed 169 lives.

In 1959, NASA announced the selection of America's first seven astronauts: Scott Carpenter, Gordon Cooper, John Glenn, Gus Grissom, Wally Schirra, Alan Shepard and Donald Slayton.

In 1963, British statesman Winston Churchill was made an honorary U.S. citizen.

In 1965, the newly built Houston Astrodome featured its first baseball game, an exhibition between the Astros and the New York Yankees. The Astros won, 2-1.

In 1992, former Panamanian ruler Manuel Noriega was convicted in Miami of eight drug and racketeering charges.

In 1993, the Rev. Benjamin Chavis was chosen to head the NAACP, succeeding Benjamin Hooks.

Ten years ago: Hundreds of thousands of people marched in Washington, D.C, demanding continued access to safe and legal abortion.

Five years ago: Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali ordered U.N. troops to use "all available means" to roll back Serb military gains in the Muslim enclave of Gorazde.

JACK ANDERSON

Clinton's reaction to Kosovo has deep roots

President Bill Clinton's moral justification for war against Yugoslavian butcher Slobodan Milosevic in Kosovo is deeply rooted in what happened in Bosnia during his presidential campaign.

Though candidate Clinton took some public shots at President George Bush for his inaction regarding Milosevic's first round of "ethnic cleansing," his private anger at America's apparent impotence then was even deeper, White House sources close to the president told our associate Dale Van Atta.

Anderson

"He's working from his gut on this one, from moral outrage that... goes back seven years," one source elaborated. "He can never forget that, nor will Hillary let him. The crimes against women struck her viscerally" — so viscerally that Clinton ended up overruling numerous advisers who warned of a disastrous outcome from airstrikes.

To recap a little vital history in understanding the current conflagration and the president's motivations:

The breakup of former Yugoslavia began in June 1991, when Slovenia and Croatia declared their independence and were recognized by the United Nations. The Serbian-dominated Yugoslav army invaded Slovenia and retreated after a 10-day standstill.

Croatia was a different story. Few Serbs lived in Slovenia, but 600,000 lived in an eastern Croatian region called Krajina.

Bad blood had existed between Croats and Serbs since World War II. After Germany defeated Yugoslavia in 1941, a Nazi puppet state was set up in Croatia. The quisling Croatians, known as "Ustashis," imprisoned anti-German Serbs and massacred more than 300,000 of them. When the tide turned against the Nazis, Serbian communist partisans retaliated and executed more than 100,000 Croatians. Yugoslavia lost 1.7 million people in World War II — the majority killed at the hands of countrymen.

The Yugoslav army invaded Croatia in June 1991, ostensibly to protect the Serbian minority. Though this amounted to the invasion of a sovereign country, U.N. member states were slow to respond. Only after the Serbs had occupied one-third of Croatia did they agree to a U.N. cease-fire in November 1991.

Three months later, the U.N. authorized a 14,000-member peacekeeping mission called the U.N. Protection Force in Yugoslavia (UNPROFOR) to monitor the cease-fire. UNPROFOR, in essence, preserved Serbia's voracious territorial gain and allowed Milosevic to redeploy in Bosnia, which declared its independence in March 1992. There the ethnic brew was more mixed, with Muslims commanding 44 percent of the population, Serbs 31 percent and Croats 17. The Serbian minority, acting as proxies for the Belgrade-based Yugoslavian army, revolted against a Muslim-dominated state of Bosnia.

Then came the bloody summer of 1992, when the world was reintroduced to "ethnic cleansing."

Serb soldiers systematically began the worst atrocities seen in Europe since the Nazi Holocaust. The lucky ones left alive were shipped off as refugees in crowded railway cars to Austria, Hungary and elsewhere. The unlucky were rounded up and interred in dozens of concentration camps.

In barbed-wire camps, men, women and children were tortured, beaten, suffocated and starved to death. Word of mass executions swept through Europe like a whirlwind. Much of the physical evidence — the bodies — were dispatched in at least 151 mass graves, tossed in the rivers or cremated in an animal-fat-rendering plant.

As if this horror were not enough, Serbian thugs descended into a maelstrom of mass rape of women and girls, totaling an estimated 20,000 victims. The images for survivors were unforgettable. Girls as young as 6 and 7 were raped repeatedly while family members were forced to watch. Many were executed; others became pregnant and forced to relive their horror by birthing babies conceived by Serbian brutes.

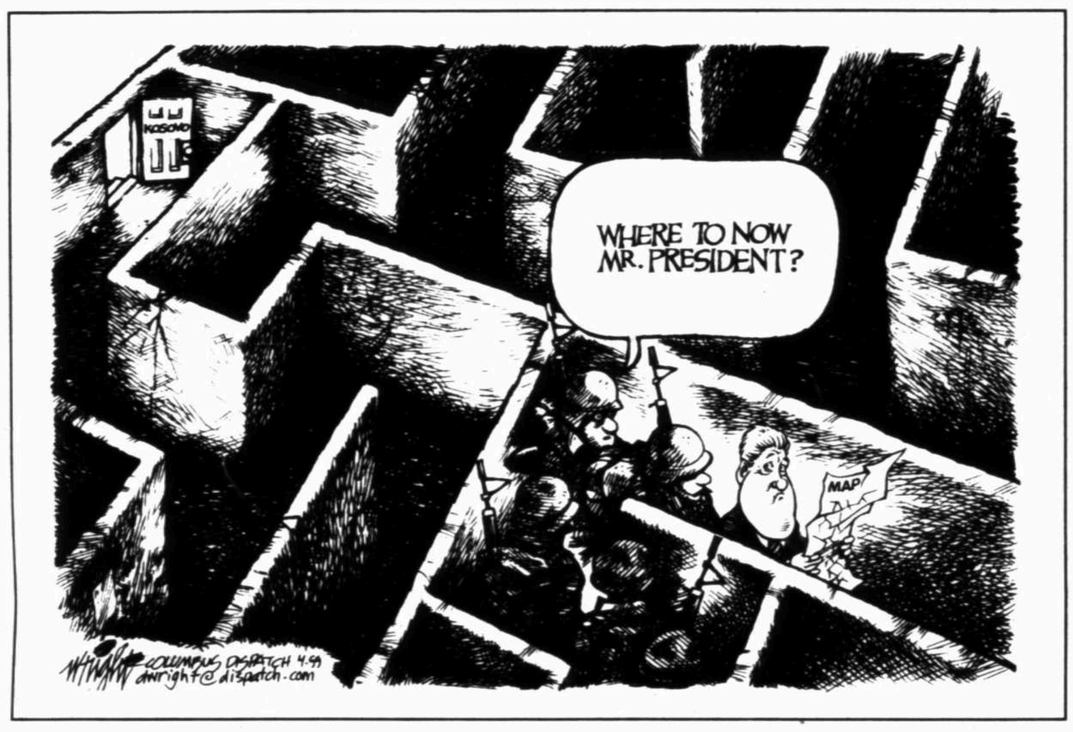
Candidate Clinton and his wife, Hillary, watched this unfold in horror while the United States did nothing.

The memory of that Milosevic-instigated evil is one of three factors driving the Clintons in standing steadfast on the bombing campaign.

A second factor is that Clinton's push for U.S. involvement in the Bosnian peace-keeping force — which was heavily criticized by Republicans in Congress and elsewhere — has been unexpectedly and enormously successful. After nearly five years, no American lives have been lost to enemy fire.

The third factor, of course, is the slow-burning pogrom against the Kosovar Albanians that Milosevic has been sponsoring over the last year. When that campaign began to accelerate over the winter, Clinton felt he had no choice but to begin bombing — and ask questions later.

Jack Anderson's and Jan Moller's column is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.



CHARLEY REESE

Media have problem in reporting stories

If you think news is slanted, take heart. So, too, do a majority of journalists in a survey.

A Pew Research Center survey of 552 "national" journalists found that 69 percent believe the distinction between news and commentary has eroded; 40 percent say news is full of factual errors and sloppy reporting; 45 percent say news drives controversies by emphasizing them; and two-thirds say journalism has moved too far toward "infotainment."

That's interesting, because as a rule, journalists are about dead even with lawyers when it comes to being self-righteous and perfect.

Though I wasn't surveyed, I agree. A straight news story — just the facts, ma'am, and all of the facts attributed to identified sources — is about as rare as a virgin in a newsroom.

Reese

Being a member of the commentary racket, I say without hesitation that if we opinion writers had a strong union, we'd be filing grievances against news reporters practically every day for encroaching on our turf.

What's bad for the future of the industry is that people don't care much what we opinion writers say, but they are enraged by bad reporting. They absolutely hate going to a public meeting and not being able to recognize it from the next day's news account. They despise watching something on C-SPAN and then seeing how news reporters distort it. A slanted news story is like a lie — the whole paper is tainted, for if readers can see error or deception in one story where they happen to know the truth, then it is a safe assumption that a similar pattern may be present in all stories.

Thomas Jefferson said — in much more elegant language — that if the press voluntarily whores for government, party or favored causes, the effect is the same as if the government compelled it to whore. The people are deprived of the truth.

You can certainly see the failures of journalism in the coverage of the NATO attack on the Serbs. The American press, especially television, is like a parrot repeating the official spin without question. Some of the TV airheads are so routinely loose with facts, they don't even notice when they contradict themselves within the span of a few seconds.

Early on, some bimbo quoted a report that there were 87,000 refugees at that time, and a few seconds later, in her babbling leading up to an inane question, spoke of "hundreds of thousands of refugees." Another spoke of the Serbs "killing every Albanian in sight," while the only semiofficial death estimate I've seen is 800. NATO has already killed more people than that.

The problem, of course, with these TV news shows is that they have more air time than they do facts to report. Instead of saying "that's all we know," they just start babbling and having bull sessions with various Rolodex talking heads who also don't have any facts.

Print reporters used to love the device "sources say" to inject their own opinion in a news story, but I've noticed the new fad is "critics say." If I had ever tried to drop that kind of horse manure into a news story back in the dark ages, the city editor would have cursed me, ridiculed me, possibly thrown a gluepot at me and, on a second offense, probably fired me. Today, of course, editors — like schoolteachers -- must baby their charges.

It's a serious problem, because neither laws nor Constitution will preserve a free press if the people come to despise and hate it. Like the character in "Saving Private Ryan," the press must earn its freedom by deserving it. That some in the business recognize the problem is a hopeful sign.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Now President Clinton is making war, not love

Oh, I see. Presidential character is secondary to presidential success. Hadn't thought of it that way before, but such was the viewpoint impressed on us by the impeachment brawl.

Under Bill Clinton, the nation was at peace, the economy was booming. Surely it was his business, not Congress', how he used and protected his recreational time. The Senate, in essence, agreed, and Clinton went on to other things, like bombing the Serbs.

Murchison

The character thing comes back to bite us. Sudenly the president is making war, not love. People are dying in Kosovo because of the bombing and the refugee expulsions. Coming to a refugee center near you: Kosovars by the scores of thousands, with a firm claim on the help of those allies who promised to make them safe and instead helped make them homeless.

It would be nice, accordingly, to think that the president was employing a policy he believed in and meant to see through to the end: the best conceivable policy, the only one in fact that made sense. Not easy, not sure-fire, but in keeping always with common sense and decency.

How many believe our Serbian policy to be such a policy? How many believe it is a policy, and not a reflex action?

A policy has ends, objectives. When a national leaader knows what he wants, he adopts the means necessary to that end. Our Serbian "policy" aims hazily at autonomy for Kosovo, but as we implement that policy, the Serbs are ruthlessly driving the Kosovars out of the country.

What is the matter? The matter, at least in part, is that the Clinton policy style — triangulating, splitting differences — has been transported from domestic politics to war policy. Clinton never liked foreign policy to begin with. A former war protester and draft resister, he has unsurprisingly gone at the Serbs with half measures. You don't win wars with half measures. A noted military expert, Napoleon, once declared, "If you start to take Vienna — take Vienna." Or Belgrade, perchance?

Presidential character is secondary all right — except when it becomes primary.

One concession to Clinton: The American people have no right to complain loudly that their president pulled a fast one on them.

Did he sell us, in 1992, a pacifist pig in a militarist poke? Not for a minute. Courtesy of the news media, the voters fully took Clinton's measure. We knew of the business with the Arkansas draft board, and of the antiwar activities in Europe. We knew Clinton to be a conciliator, averse to confrontation -- not quite the kind of fellow who, when the outlaws were banging away from ambush, would go to the well with you.

All this struck us as just fine. Who, in the post-communist era, needed to go to the well anyway? Peace and brotherhood reigned. In Clinton we discovered one likable rogue. If not to the well, he'd certainly go to the bar with you for a couple of quick ones. Young, vital, smart. Winston Churchill could not have beat such a man in 1992, or in '96 either. We got what we wanted -- and still apparently want, if poll ratings are any indication.

Our president's character, as such, mattered less than his people skills. Alas, people skills haven't been of much service with the Milosevites.

Bill Clinton's soul — at least what can be seen of it through the White House windows — is the soul of a small-state governor. Yet here he is, presiding over human tragedy, a good share of which he helped precipitate. We need a tough guy — a George H. W. Bush wouldn't come amiss — and we have, forgive my mentioning this, a president who pleasures himself with interns.

Character doesn't count in a U. S. president? Oh, no; not more than 99.999 percent of the time.

"He takes her (the niece) to the doctor, makes sure she brushes her teeth ... he's like a father figure," Ms. Smith testified. During her testimony, Lopez wiped tears from his face with both hands.

One of Lopez's former employers described him as "hardworking" and "dependable."

Then, there was another side to Lopez that officers have encountered. Midland police officer Henry Minton testified that Lopez was involved in a 25-minute vehicle pursuit with him in February 1994.

Lopez, then 16, drove from downtown Midland to the west side of town, running red lights, knocking over traffic barrels and driving over people's front lawns, Minton said.

At the height of the predawn chase, Lopez tried eluding officers by driving down the wrongs lanes on Loop 250. He also tried slamming his car into police units, Minton testified.

Authorities finally detained Lopez when his car stalled outside Midland College. Strangely enough, none of the alleged traffic violations occurring in that chase have appeared in Lopez's driving record, his attorney Thomas Hirsch said.

Hirsch told jurors that Lopez's family is so dependent on him that any punishment they assess him will also take an emotional and financial toll on his family.

"They have committed no wrong and could easily be punished in this case if you put him in the penitentiary," Hirsch said. "Community service is not a slap on the wrist. It's a second chance."

Prosecutor Ralph Petty showed jurors Lopez's driving record, which lists 15 traffic citations issued to him between 1993 and 1996. They include citations for speeding, running a stop sign, racing and license suspensions. None of them have any connection to the police chase or the deadly accident.

"Quite frankly, he has a poor driving record, but he's not been ticketed since December 1996," Hirsch said.

But Petty said Lopez should have learned his lesson over the years.

"It's been said that 'He who forgets the lessons of history has to relive it,'" Petty said. "The defendant deserves justice, but so do the victims in this case, but a punishment is designed to protect the community and deter the defendant ... ."

Lopez — during his two years at the rehab center — should have learned how much pain crash victims must endure on their road to wellness, Petty said.

"Did he learn to appreciate their suffering? No. He's constantly disobeying road rules," Petty said. "He's a danger to society when he's free. That's important to this case."

Lopez will be eligible for parole after serving half of his sentence, court officials said.

Man convicted, gets life term in murder-for-hire

ABILENE (AP) — A 23-year-old man accused of masterminding the murder-for-hire of a man for his gun collection was convicted of capital murder on Thursday and sentenced to life in prison.

After about two hours of jury deliberation, Billy Don Wilson was convicted in last year's slaying of Mark Lund, 46. The life sentence was automatic because prosecutors didn't seek the death penalty.

Police said the victim's son, 16-year-old Brandon Lund, sought to have his father killed. Wilson's group of rough loners was willing to commit the murder for the elder Lund's military gun collection valued at over $5,000.

Officials say the group was deep into masterminding the killing when Brandon Lund tried to call off the hit.

But Wilson and his gang executed their plan to kill Lund with assassin-like efficiency last Feb. 11. Dressed in black, they cut the phone line and crept through a window. After ransacking the house, Wilson pushed Lund onto a bed and shot him in the head.

Aid workers toil to reunite torn refugee families

STENKOVEC, Macedonia (AP) — The 5-year-old girl with light brown hair walked into a Red Cross tent, clutching a battered plastic doll. For the moment, it was her only family.

Like thousands of other ethnic Albanian refugees, little Jehona Aliu became separated from her relatives six days ago during their frantic, frightening exodus from Kosovo.

Jehona can remember being on the train from Kosovo with her mother, her two brothers and her sister. But she doesn't know where they are now.

Aid workers who are ministering to the extraordinary crush of humanity — nearly half a million Kosovars have poured into neighboring states in the past 2 1/2 weeks — can only hope they will be able to help.

"She was crying a little in her sleep last night, but one of the interpreters was with her," said Cpl. Carl Newbrooke, one of the British troops running the tent camp at Brazde, outside the Macedonian capital of Skopje. "Apart from that, she doesn't cry."

Aid workers who are ministering to the crush of humanity can only hope they will be able to help.

So chaotic were conditions as refugees flooded across the border that aid workers say they don't even have an estimate yet of how many families were wrenched apart.

"We've had about 50 people register missing children this morning," said Arlinda Rejepi, working a desk run by the humanitarian group Save the Children in the Stenkovec camp near Skopje, temporary home to about 20,000 refugees.

The day before, about 300 people registered lost children.

"One was a man looking for his grandchildren — a 2-month old baby and a 2-year-old," Rejepi said, continuing to jot down details as she spoke. Each evening, various aid agencies from different camps cross-check all the information they have compiled.

The refugees are not in a position to do much of the searching themselves. Macedonian authorities do not let them leave the camps or receive visitors, and there is no way to make telephone calls.

Sometimes, the refugees' desperation boils over. On Thursday at the Stenkovec camp, one man was carried into a field hospital, his nose broken and his head bloodied after an altercation with one of the Macedonian guards.

Dazed resignation is more common: In the camp, with its rows of green or white tents, people milled in the walkways or washed their muddy clothes in a culvert.

At the Save the Children tracing desk, Adile Ferizi joined the line. In the crush at the Kosovo-Macedonian border, she lost all six of her children, ranging in ages from 2 to 13.

"In one week, I have not heard from them," she said.

Magbule Miftari, 21, was trying to contact her younger brother, who is 18. He went to pick something up as they were being herded aboard buses at the border, and she lost sight of him. That was a week ago.

"He's probably in another camp," she said, hopefully.

NATO wary of claims that offensive has ended

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslavia urged refugees to return home Thursday, declaring "peace has prevailed in Kosovo" and saying its 14-month war against ethnic Albanian separatists was over. But Western officials feared those same refugees would be used as human shields against NATO attacks.

As the United States pledged that NATO will press ahead with the bombing campaign against Yugoslavia, a former Cypriot president arrived in Belgrade to try to win freedom for three captured U.S. soldiers. His task could prove difficult: A hard-line Serbian vice premier ruled out any release as long as the NATO bombardment continued.

On the 16th day of the U.S.-led air assault, hopes for the prisoners' release were mixed with concern over thousands of ethnic Albanian refugees whose fate was unknown a day after Yugoslavia sealed off its borders and stopped their flight out of Kosovo.

Yugoslavia urged refugees to return home Thursday, declaring 'peace has prevailed in Kosovo,' but Western officials feared those same refugees would be used as human shields against NATO attacks.

As night fell Thursday, several thousand people chanting "Yugoslavia! Yugoslavia!" gathered on two major bridges in Belgrade and the remaining Danube River bridge in the city of Novi Sad to serve as volunteer "human shields" against NATO attacks.

Shortly after 10 p.m., air-raid sirens sounded in Belgrade.

The Yugoslav government, which says it is observing a unilateral cease-fire in Kosovo since Tuesday for Orthodox Easter, claimed the refugees were voluntarily heading back to their homes in the province.

Spyros Kyprianou, currently the speaker of the Cypriot parliament, said he planned to meet Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic on Friday and that the Americans might be freed during the long Orthodox Easter weekend. He called on NATO to reciprocate with a cease-fire over the holiday, something the alliance has refused.

Vice Premier Vojislav Seselj, leader of the influential Serbian Radical Party, told reporters Thursday that releasing the Americans was "out of the question."

U.S. State Department spokesman James P. Rubin said only an unconditional release would be acceptable. "Any attempt to use this as a bargaining chip is both illegal and immoral," he said.

Vice President Al Gore, campaigning in Iowa, insisted the bombing would continue. "Milosevic knows what he has to do to bring this to a conclusion," he told reporters.

Although NATO arranged for safe passage for Kyprianou's flight, alliance warplanes and missiles struck before dawn Thursday in Belgrade and against government troops in Kosovo.

"We will prevail," Defense Secretary William Cohen told American pilots Thursday at the Aviano air base in Italy.

Air Marshal Sir John Day told a British military briefing that NATO forces would "take every precaution" to make sure they avoid targets where refugees may be used as human shields.

"(Still), at the end of the day, the responsibility is Milosevic's," he said.

In a statement Thursday, Milosevic's government claimed that "peace has prevailed in Kosovo," and said its security forces had "ended the offensive, anti-terrorist activities" against the ethnic Albanian Kosovo Liberation Army, which has been fighting for independence.

"The Yugoslav government once again calls on all citizens of Kosovo not to leave their country, to live in harmony and cooperation, and in that way resist the bombs that kill regardless of nationality," the statement said.

Nearly a million ethnic Albanians have fled or were driven out of Kosovo since the NATO bombing campaign began March 24, unleashing Europe's greatest mass displacement in half a century.

Those reaching refuge in neighboring states have described a systematic campaign of terror by Serb troops and police against ethnic Albanians, who made up 90 percent of the Serbian province's prewar population of 2 million people.

NATO allies have dismissed Yugoslavia's claims of a unilateral ceasefire, saying the bombing campaign will continue Milosevic allows the return of all refugees, withdraws all troops and accepts a peace plan for Kosovo.

It has been impossible to confirm whether the cease-fire has taken effect on the ground.

After targeting fuel depots, transport links and other infrastructure throughout Yugoslavia, Western officials say the latest wave of air attacks focused on Serb police and army units scattered in rural areas of Kosovo.

Small Yugoslav units have been blamed for most of the atrocities against ethnic Albanians, and targeting them in the hills and forests of the largely rural province has proven difficult.

NATO airstrikes on roads and bridges in Kosovo are hampering the ability of Serb forces to move around, according to accounts Thursday by French journalists who entered western Kosovo with KLA fighters.

"We have attacked the nervous system, we have attacked the central system as well, that is to say a part of the brain that is conducting the operations," French Army Chief of Staff Gen. Jean-Pierre Kelche said Thursday.

NATO, meanwhile, claimed it was not responsible for the widespread damage in Kosovo's capital of Pristina and blamed Serb forces for gutting the heart of the once-bustling city.

Air Commodore David Wilby, briefing reporters at NATO headquarters said while NATO has attacked military targets around Pristina, including its police headquarters, televised photos showed much more widespread damage.

"NATO has certainly not caused the reported widespread and random damage, which we believe has been orchestrated by Serbian forces," Wilby told reporters at NATO headquarters.

Municipal officials in Pristina declared a day of mourning for what it said were 10 victims of NATO strikes Wednesday.

At right, "The Great Escape" was mentioned by former POWs and historians as a favorite; below, top to bottom, "Saving Private Ryan" was said to be moving and although a fictional story, it was historically accurate; and "Memphis Belle" was named as an enjoyable movie by WWII airmen; at bottom from left, "The Bridge on the River Kwai" depicts the madness of war and like "Platoon" is considered an anti-war film.

IMAGES OF WAR

Former POWs identify with war movies, even if they're not quite factual

by Georgia Temple

Film makers have for decades painted either a grim and disturbing picture or a "Hogan's Heroes" view of what life as a prisoner of war means. For younger Americans, the sight of U.S. POWs has been restricted to film. The same does not hold true for all Americans, some of whom have experienced a closer view than they or their loved ones dreamed was possible.

"The artwork in 'Hogan's Heroes' was a lot like what we had, but we weren't that free and easy in that camp that we could do any of the things that Hogan did," said Dean Leyerly, who was a POW in a German camp for a little over six months near the end of the European campaign of World War II. "Ours was the case of standing roll call at 7 o'clock in the morning and 5 o'clock in the evening. And it was cold. You stood in snow pretty much all the time while they counted you."

Charles "Dick" Grice was in the POW camp about which the 1963 film "The Great Escape," starring Steve McQueen, James Garner and Richard Attenborough, was made — Stalag Luft North. The film was eighth in the 10 Best List of the National Board of Review in 1963 and McQueen received the Best Actor award at the Moscow Festival the same year.

Grice's stay at the prisoner-of-war camp began before the escape and continued afterward.

"Steve McQueen got out of there, but there wasn't an American that got out when the great escape occurred," Grice said. "There weren't any scheduled to get out. It went out of the British camp; it didn't go out of the American camp."

Of the movie, Grice said, "I enjoyed it very much. The setting was kind of realistic, but the things that happened were not. Actually, in that great escape 80 some-odd men got out, about 45 or so were shot by the Gestapo, only

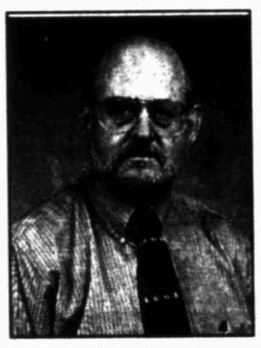
MC historians give their impressions of war movies

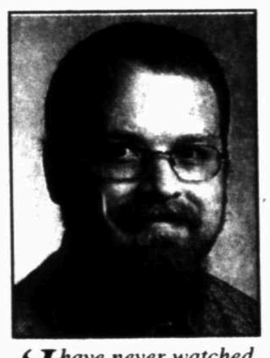


'It's ("Zulu") the one I always think about when I think about what war movies are supposed to do which is to show pride, nobility, sacrifice...yet at the same time showing you it is a bloody, nasty thing.'

—historian Will Morris, who teaches at MC

'It ("The Longest Day") was accurate in many aspects about hitting the Normandy beaches....The attack on the beach, the hedgerow fighting in France, capturing the German POWs and the pure slaughter that took place is accurate.'

—historian Wayne McClure, who teaches at MC



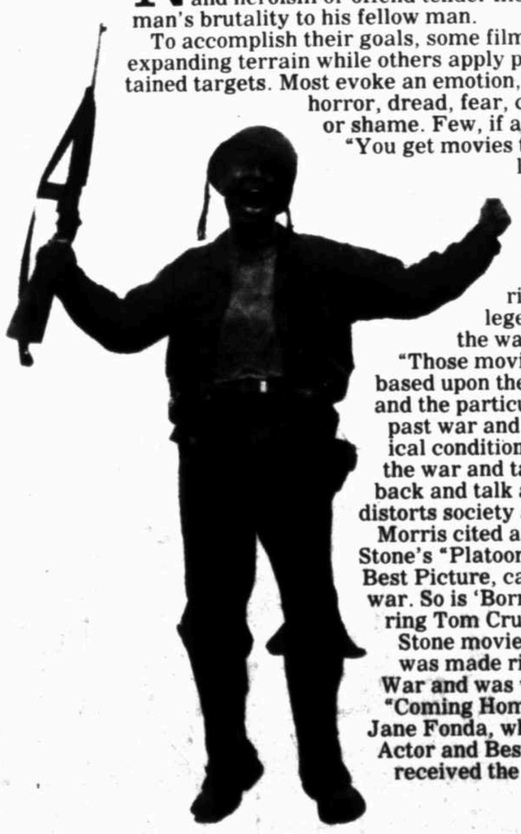
'I have never watched a war movie in my entire life regardless of what the outcome was and thought to myself that is something that would be exciting to be involved in by any means.'

—historian John Arnold, who teaches at MC

by Georgia Temple

Not unlike television coverage of Americans at war, films on the same subject can inflame slumbering notions of patriotism and heroism or offend tender mercies with their portrayal of man's brutality to his fellow man.

To accomplish their goals, some films deploy broad strikes over an expanding terrain while others apply pinpoint hits to tightly maintained targets. Most evoke an emotion, whether it be disgust, dismay, horror, dread, fear, charity, love, hate, greed, pity or shame. Few, if any, have no hidden agenda.



"You get movies that are made during the war, like World War II, and one of their primary functions is to build patriotism and get people to make the necessary sacrifices for the conflict," said historian Will Morris, who teaches at Midland College. "When they are made after the war, they are looking back.

"Those movies are going to have themes based upon the political climate of the time and the particular film maker's vision of that past war and his stance on the current political condition. Some of them look back at the war and talk patriotism, and some look back and talk about the folly of it and how it distorts society and values."

Morris cited as examples of the latter, Oliver Stone's "Platoon," winner of the 1986 Oscar for Best Picture, calling it "very critical of the war. So is 'Born on the Fourth of July (starring Tom Cruise),' which is also an Oliver Stone movie. And 'Coming Home,' which was made right at the end of the Vietnam War and was very critical of the war."

"Coming Home" starred Jon Voight and Jane Fonda, who received the Oscar for Best Actor and Best Actress in 1978. Voigt also received the Best Actor award from the

Other war movies

War, war, war and more war but hardly all of the war movies follow:

☆ "A Town Like Alice," starring Bryan Brown and Helen Morse and based on Nevil Shute's novel, is a love story set against World War II. The two first meet in Malaya when she is an English captive and he is an Australian POW. The movie is a remake of a 1951 film called "Rape of Malaya." Of the film, Anne Trout, film reference and acquisition librarian at the Midland County Public Library, said, "Everyone who has checked it out has really enjoyed it. I find it a film of feeling, poignant and suspenseful. You wonder how the two will meet again, if they meet again. Also, the country reminded me of the vast, barren West Texas mountains."

☆ "A Midnight Clear." The film shows American and German forces declaring a truce on Christmas Eve. Historian Will Morris said, "A powerful anti-war movie. I was just taken with it."

Arnold said, "It proves that there's usually not that much difference, everybody's human beings."

☆ "All Quiet on the Western Front," Number one on the National Board of Review (NBR) Ten Best (English) list of 1930 and received the Oscar for Best Picture, 1929-30 Academy Awards. Morris said, "Written by a German novelist about the end of the First World War. The purpose of the novel was to show the horrors and how war is really unnecessary and it leads to a distortion of society. It's an American movie filmed at the time that we were becoming disillusioned with our involvement in the First World War, really an anti-war movie."

☆ "Catch 22," Jon Voight and Alan Arkin. Morris said, "Horrible

WAR: Historian sees move toward accuracy

(From 1B)

New York Film Critics, Cannes film festival and the National Board of Review, the latter voting the film second on its Top Ten list.

Morris cited "The Green Berets," made during the Vietnam War and released in 1968 as representative of a film which is "very, very patriotic." The film starred John Wayne, David Janssen, Aldo Rey and Richard Pryor.

There are also movies dealing with peripheral wars, such as those depicting the Indian wars, Morris said. "Sometimes you'll see in those movies, the Indian is totally evil. Other times, the Indian is totally noble. Sometimes you have a noble white man and a noble Indian trying to keep peace, but there's a venal white man causing them to fight each other."

Morris laughed as he recalled an Errol Flynn movie called "They Died with Their Boots On." The film is about the Battle of the Little Big Horn where General George Armstrong Custer and his men are massacred.

"In this particular movie, instead of being a fool or a great man, George Custer comes across as being a sacrificial figure who sacrifices himself and his command in some strange logic to try and save the Indians," Morris said. "Really a weird, strange movie. That particular movie goes back to the resurrection theme because Flynn looks like Jesus on top of everything else — long hair, beard."

Morris's favorite war movie besides "The Great Escape" with Steve McQueen, is "Zulu," with Michael Caine and Stanley Baker, which shows a battle in South Africa between the British Army and the Zulus.

"It is one of the most bloody things I have ever seen," Morris said. "The violence in it is just unbelievable. And it's a true story in terms that it really did happen in pretty much the way the movie made it out to happen.

"It's a battle called Rorke's Drift. Everybody's noble. The Zulus are noble. The English soldiers are noble, and it's just a great movie. And what it does is echo the heights of the British Empire. It was made in 1964, which is just about the time that British power begins to decline, and it's essentially a British movie.

"It's the one I always think about when I think about what war movies are supposed to do which is to show pride, nobility, sacrifice, those things that war is supposed to glorify yet at the same time showing you it is a bloody, nasty thing."

Historian Wayne McClure, who also teaches at Midland College, finds that there is a "move today to make movies not just realistic but as accurate as possible according to the historical event that took place."

McClure cited as an example Spielberg's "Saving Private Ryan" saying, "It's fictional, but the Normandy invasion is accurate."

An older movie which also depicted the Normandy invasion accurately is "The Longest Day," McClure said. "It was accurate in many aspects about hitting the Normandy beaches, and the statistics they gave about how many were killed.

"The Longest Day"

The life expectancy for those hitting the beaches at Omaha was four to seven seconds. The attack on the beach, the hedgerow fighting in France, capturing the German POWs and the pure slaughter that took place is accurate."

Another movie that McClure mentioned is "Midway," released in 1976 and starring Charlton Heston, Henry Fonda, James Coburn, Glenn Ford, Hal Holbrook, Robert Mitchum, Cliff Robertson, Robert Wagner and Toshiro Mifune.

"They tried o make it accurate and they did," McClure said. "The love scenes and some of that are just Hollywood."

Among McClure's favorite movies that have war as a backdrop for the characters are the 1939 Academy Award winning "Gone With the Wind," starring Vivian Leigh, Clark Gable, Olivia De Havilland and Leslie Howard, and the 1965 epic "Doctor Zhivago," winner of five Academy Awards in 1965, including Best Original Score for "Lara's Theme. Based on Boris Pasternak's Nobel Prize- winning novel, the film starred Omar Sharif, Julie Christie and Geraldine Chaplin.

"My favorite movie of all time is 'Doctor Zhivago," McClure said. "And it was to the Russian Revolution what 'Gone with the Wind' was to the Civil War. They're fictional movies but they bring out the conditions that existed during those wars. Now, 'Platoon,' is fictional also, but it is supposed to be the best depiction of what life was really like in Vietnam."

He also mentioned "The Wind and the Lion," which starred Sean Connery as the kidnapping desert sheik, Candice Bergen as the spunky American caught in a game of international chess, Brian Keith as President Teddy Roosevelt and John Huston as John Hay, Secretary of State. The film is set in Morocco in 1904.

"That's another movie that's based on an actual incident — the Morocco crises," McClure said. "And Theodore Roosevelt really did send in the Marines."

Morris cited Spielberg's "Empire of the Sun" as an example of movies that deal with "instances and incidents that most people don't know about. I think it's really, really good."

The film, which tells the story of Jim Graham's experiences in a Japanese internment camp, is based on J.G. Ballard's best-seller. It was the first major Hollywood studio production shot in the People's Republic of China and earned National Board of Review awards in 1987 for Best Picture and Best Director.

"There's some visual images in that movie that are just breathtaking," Morris said, citing as an example when the young Briton "finds chairs and paintings and strange mechanical devices" in the desert "and there is the flash of the atomic bomb off on the horizon."

Historian John Arnold, who teaches at Midland College, finds there are two types of war movies.

"You have the much more gritty war movies, the type that deal with Vietnam," Arnold said. "And 'Saving Private Ryan' was a benchmark as far as on the war-movie theme. Probably the ones that more people are familiar with are the John Wayne-type movies. Hero goes to complete X objective. Hero completes X objective and end of movie more or less. Few break that mold as far as war movies are concerned."

As someone under 30 who has no experience with war, Arnold said that the war movies have "made an impression on me. Obviously, war's certainly horrible and terrifying. I have never watched a war movie in my entire life regardless of what the outcome was and thought to myself that is something that would be exciting to be involved in by any means."

But Arnold believes that older movies glorified war for just that purpose. "I would argue the point that war movies before the mid-60s did do that.

"They perpetuated the lie, 'This is something fun. This is something exciting. Go out and join the Army. Get to blow things up and kill people. Everybody's going to come home OK with the exception of one character."

Arnold's not a purist when it comes to capturing real life incidents in movies.

"There's a very big difference between history and making a marketable movie," Arnold said. He used as an example "The Great Escape. "It was a good movie movie wise. As far as being historically accurate, I don't know, but on the other hand, really what is?

"All of the movies lately are striving for some accuracy, which makes them interesting," McClure said. "But Hollywood has to add its own pizazz."

POWs: Midlander was in POW camp about which the film 'The Great Escape' was made four or five made it back out of the 40 or so that were not executed. They were all British or colonial servicemen, Canadians, South Africans and Australians."

Grice remembered the camp as being huge and divided into several compounds. When he first arrived, he was put in with the British because there weren't many Americans in the camp yet. While he was in the North camp with the British officers he said, "I did a little work on helping them scatter the dirt around. I never went down into the tunnel."

When the Germans finished the south compound, they moved the Americans there. "They kept adding to them (the compounds). When we first got there, there were three. By the time we left, there were five, three of them had all Americans."

The Americans were aware that an escape was imminent, Grice said. "We knew that it was going to happen, not when it would happen."

When the escape occurred, Grice said, "We knew it the next day. As a matter of fact, the German authorities within the camp were very disturbed. They were sympathetic with us. They wanted their men treated fairly, too. Kind of a tit for tat.

"It was the Gestapo that executed these men. The camp was run by the Luftwaffe, the German air force. They did what they were told, but they didn't like the Gestapo. That was obvious to us."

The escape came in the spring of 1944 just before the invasion, Grice said. "After the invasion and D-Day there wasn't any attempt to escape. We were there in the center of Germany and had all of Germany to cross. Without speaking the language, that was kind of tough. Those five guys that did escape, they all spoke the language. That was a necessity if you were going to get out. You couldn't move through the country and not say a word."

Along with "The Great Escape," Darryl F. Zanuck's 1962 war film, "The Longest Day," starring John Wayne, Robert Mitchum, Henry Fonda, Richard Burton and Sean Connery, ranks as among Grice's favorites. "That was very good," Oren Albright aid of Zanuck's film, which told of the Allied Forces invasion of Normandy on D-Day, 1944, from the perspective of its participants.

Voted best film of 1962 by the National Board of Review, which placed the year's other epic, 'Lawrence of Arabia (which won the Oscar for Best Picture)," fourth on its Ten Best list. Financially, "The Longest Day" was one of the most successful war films made.

"I enjoy war movies," said Albright, who was also a POW in a German camp in World War II. "And I've always enjoyed watching 'Mash.' Of course, it's a different war, but it tells you what people have to do to kind of stay sane under those conditions.

"I saw 'The Great Escape,' and thought it was good. Of course, a lot of that is kind of fantastic, too, but anything is possible, and a lot of things that happen, if you told people, they'd think you were lying anyway."

The recent capture of three battered, young U.S. soldiers brought the fighting in Serbia home to Americans. All three Midlanders expressed concern for the young men now in Serbian hands.

"I think we're in the same situation we were in in World War II," Leyerly said. "We've got a little Hitler over there. We didn't want to fight in World War II. We were all a bunch of lovers. That's where we are right now. Nobody wants to fight, but it's not fair to let somebody like that run their people out of the country. Since we've got the men over there, we need to go and get them or do whatever is necessary to get them."

"They're too valuable for propaganda purposes so I don't think that they will be hurt," Grice said. "They are not going to be treated like an ordinary prisoner of war."

"Hopefully, they will be safe," Albright said. "We had a little bit different situation. The Germans were not that hard on the prisoners. They pretty well abided by the Geneva Convention.

"The Japanese didn't. In fact, we've got some guys in our local POW chapter who were in Japanese camps, and they really had it rough as compared to what we had."

When asked if the conditions shown in "The Bridge Over the River Kwai" were anything like the ones he had faced, Leyerly said, the German camps were not "anything like 'The Bridge Over the River Kwai.' They were worse off than we were in Germany."

David Lean's "The Bridge Over the River Kwai" costarred William Holden and Alec Guinness and netted an Oscar for Best Actor for Guinness in 1957. The film also received the Oscar for Best Picture as well as best film awards that same year from the New York Critics, the National Board of Review and British Academy Awards for Best Film, Any Source and Best Film British. Guinness received the Best British Actor award. Set in a Japanese prisoner-of-war camp located between Burma and Siam in 1943, the anti-war adventure tells about the construction by British prisoners-of-war of a Japanese railway bridge and its eventual destruction by a British commando unit.

What did make a difference behind enemy lines in Europe was who captured the Americans, Grice said, recalling that those captured roughly in the area where the current U.S. soldiers are being held often did not fare so well in World War II.

"When you were shot down in that area, you may or may not have come down among friends," Grice said. "Sometimes you would come down with people who beat the hell out of you, and that was civilians. Those people were mean. Sometimes you got with someone who tried to save you."

In reality and in the movies, the French Resistance played a role in World War II, and Grice was fortunate enough to have spent three weeks with Resistance members before they were caught by the Gestapo. The Resistance members were sent to concentration camps, Grice said. "I do know that 17 Frenchmen went to the concentration camps aiding us — there were five of us. As far as I know, only six returned to France after the war."

For Albright, who was a gunner on a B-17 shot down on its 14th mission on April 13, 1944, being a POW meant marching across Austria.

"The Germans took us out of our camp to keep the Russians from getting us," Albright said. "Some of the guys that were captured by the Russians almost had to fight to get out."

Of the war movies he's seen, Albright cited Billy Wilder's "Stalag 17," starring William Holden, as one of his favorites. The film was voted number seven on the National Board of Review's Ten Best list in 1953. Holden received the Oscar for Best Actor in 1953 for his portrayal of a bitter, rugged, opportunistic POW.

"Of course there were a lot of things in it that were not factual, but probably about as near factual as I've seen," said Albright, who was in Stalag 17-B. "I don't remember where 17-A was but 17-B was down at Krems, Austria. Having been in 17-B, I could see things that others couldn't, but it was a good movie I thought."

Grice enjoyed "The Memphis Belle," because that "happened to be the same type plane that I was flying in."

Leyerly said of "The Memphis Belle," "The airplanes are beautiful, but as far as the stories and things, they glamour them up for the movies. There's some factual information in them. I enjoy them because they're bombers."

"The Memphis Belle," starring Matthew Modine, Eric Stoltz, D.B. Sweeney and John Lithgow, is the story of the young crew of the American B-17 Flying Fortress who flew 24 missions over Nazi-occupied Europe during World War II.

Leyerly appreciates such movies as Steven Spielberg's "Schindler's List" and "Saving Private Ryan" because they are true to life and factual. "And I like to see them out because the American people can see some of the things that took place at that time."

Grice said he "liked 'Private Ryan' very much, especially the cemetery scenes at the beginning and the end. The cemetery scenes were very moving and touching for me. The bombardier on our plane was killed, and I went and visited his grave about seven years ago."

Having lived through the hardships of war, Grice said, "There is a certain glamour to it. Even in prison camp, of course, you make very good friends. I have good friends that I dearly love that I met there. You want to get out, but after all, you have to make the best of the situation that you're in."

LIST: War, war, and more war movies

stories, high comedy, low comedy, little sex, it's a neat book (Joseph Heller) and they made a pretty good movie out of it. It deals with the insanity of war, and it's got one of those really neat time schemes. Time keeps spiraling backward on itself."

☆ "Come See the Paradise," Dennis Quaid. An internment camp movie about the American internment of Japanese in the United States during World War II. Morris said, "Racial tensions and ethnic tensions."

☆ "Courage Under Fire," Meg Ryan and Denzel Washington. Historian John Arnold said, "Denzel Washington is one of the best actors in Hollywood. If you take 10 average Americans and throw them into a room, more than likely all 10 of them are not going to have some huge tragedy going on in their lives. If you're going to make something based upon a historical happening, at least attempt to do so."

☆ "Farewell to the King," Nick Nolte. Morris said, "It shows how war just rolls over people and how the individual responds to war."

☆ "Gettysburg," Arnold said, "They play with some of the characters in it, but it's fairly accurate historically."

☆ "Glory," Arnold said, "To a certain extent, it did a very good job of showing the plight of African American soldiers during the Civil War."

☆ "Guns of Navarone," Historian Wayne McClure said, "Great movie. I don't have any idea how accurate it is." Morris said, "Classic patriotic us against the evil Nazis. The most chilling scene is when they kill the female spy." And, "Force Ten from Navarone." Morris said, "Harrison Ford goes to Yugoslavia to blow up a dam."

☆ "In Harm's Way," Otto Preminger's film. Morris said, "Despicable characters and noble characters and romance and bravery and some good battle footage. That particular movie was made in the mid-1960s, just about the time the Vietnam War was heating up. The way I look at that, this is something designed to build American patriotism and build American support for our involvement in the Vietnam War."

☆ "Paradise Road," Glenn Close, Frances McDormand, Julianna Margulies. Tells the story of a group of women held prisoner by the Japanese during World War II. These diverse women from different countries, speaking different languages, unite to form a vocal orchestra. Based on a true story.

☆ "Paths of Glory," one of 16 films nominated for best film by the British Academy Awards in 1957 and beat out by "The Bridge Over the River Kwai."

Morris said, "The French army had a practice in World War I that if a unit was declared to be cowardly in the face of the enemy then a certain number of men would be chosen randomly out of the unit and executed. Again, it was made at a time when we were being very critical of government and military. And so it was showing the insanity of war and the way the command structure gets caught up in artificial ideas of bravery and honor and sacrifice."

☆ "Patton," number one on the NBR Ten Best list in 1970 with George C. Scott receiving the NBR's Best Actor award. Also received the Oscar for Best Picture. "Morris said, "I'm not a fan of Patton's. I'm a great fan of George C. Scott."

McClure said, "Again, I think there was a real push for accuracy in Patton. I've known people who served under General Patton and they said George C. Scott did a magnificent job. certain scenes in the movie actually happened, like him slapping the GI."

☆ "Run Silent, Run Deep," Clark Gable and Burt Lancaster, based on best-selling novel by Edward L. Beach. Directed by Robert Wise ("West Side Story"). Morris said, "Just a good battle movie. Submarines."

☆ "The Alamo," John Wayne, Richard Widmark (Jim Bowie), Laurence Harvey (Colonel Travis) and Richard Boone (Sam Houston), received seven Oscar nominations. Wayne produced, directed and starred as Davy Crockett. McClure said of all films depicting the battle at the Alamo, "They've never made a perfectly accurate movie of the Alamo. There's always a few points that can be debated."

☆ "The Buccaneer," Yul Brynner and Charlton Heston. Will Morris said, "A War of 1812 movie about the battle of New Orleans, which actually took place in early 1815. It was made in late 1958, sort of a cold-war type time. Stressed American ingenuity and bravery, even how people who weren't part of the United States would be pulled in to help this new country, which was Jean Laffite and the pirates."

☆ "The English Patient," winner of nine Academy Awards including Best Picture, Best Director and Best Supporting Actress. Morris said, "When you start dealing with war and you're not trying to build patriotism, what you're looking for is the story of how people react to war. You get to the human stories. That's what 'The English Patient' was, and that's why I loved it, plus I love convoluted, complicated plots."

☆ "The Sands of Iwo Jima," Morris said, "John Wayne at his best."

☆ "The Thin Red Line." Arnold said, "It didn't quite make the impact on me I think it made on a lot of people. I don't think they ever actually addressed in the movie what was going on. There was not enough background given on the characters. A motley crew of characters were thrown together with no character development, which in most war movies is fairly crucial."

☆ "The Wings of War" and "War and Remembrance," both based on novels by Herman Wouk. "Morris said, "As near as I can remember, that was the first real attempt to bring the Holocaust story into television. And I think it was extremely powerful. The Problem with 'Schindler's List' and 'Life is Beautiful,' is that as good as those movies are, they're following in the wake of a 30-year tradition or even longer of Holocaust books and movies. What I like about Wouk's work is that it shows the complexity of events."

☆ "To Hell and Back," Audie Murphy as himself. Morris said, "The most decorated man in history. He's a Texan and he kills the German army single-handed. A great piece of propaganda. Early to mid-50s. When I was 14, 15, it was a wonderful movie, but now my comment is, 'Been there. Done that.'"

☆ "Tora! Tora! Tora!" Number 10 on the NBR English Ten Best list in 1970. Recreates the attack on Pearl Harbor. McClure said, "An accurate depiction of what happened at Pearl Harbor. I saw it in Greece and only understood half of what was said, but the events depicted were accurate in many cases."

☆ "Welcome to Sarajevo," Woody Harrelson, Marisa Tomei and Stephen Dillane. Arnold said, "It didn't make a lot of impression on me from a movie perspective or a historical one. Even though I know a lot of people thought it was a fairly good movie."

FAMILY MATTERS

Parents can 'help' children too much

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: If or at what time does a parent (mother) have to admit she is not helping a child?

For the last 12 years of being either involved with or married to this woman, I have seen everything. Her child (36 years old) calls her anytime that she gets into a bind and tells her mother that she is going to commit suicide. This happens three or four times a year, and every time mother rushes to the rescue. Not only does she miss work, but I can't even begin to say how much money she has spent, plus all the stress on us.

May

This last episode was about a month ago and was triggered by the fact that the child's husband has impregnated a younger girl (18 years old) and then left the state with her. So the daughter started doing the same thing — calling her mother saying she was going to commit suicide.

I told the mother she couldn't help her daughter by racing off to the rescue again, that her daughter needs professional help and not someone who is just going to apply another bandage.

Well you can imagine how that went over. Examples: "You just don't like her." "You're jealous of her." "She's not your child."

Well this went on for about a week and then she quit her job and moved out of town to take care of her daughter, her 16-year-old and a 4-year-old. This woman is 62 years old and doesn't need this. I told her that just as soon as the daughter was feeling better, that she would be looking up her husband and wanting to go back. It has happened too many times.

I believe that this woman is on a guilt trip because when she got divorced from the girl's father, she had to leave the girl with him because of finances. The girl always brings it up when she needs money or is in trouble.

I'm not the only one who thinks this. Her friends who have known the daughter forever have said that she is a spoiled brat.

Now I realize that we should help our children, but not to the extent that it hurts us and is not helping them. Am I wrong in the way I think or is the mother one of those who "can't see the forest for the trees?" Or is it both of us since I couldn't keep quiet on the subject. NO NAMES PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: I usually start from the simple perspective by asking "Is what I am doing working?" Your friend's actions have never appeared to render the desired results. Her daughter seems to be in as much trouble as ever.

I agree with your thought that the daughter is in need of professional help. I believe that we have to treat all threats of suicide as if the person is going to attempt. In this case, I would have encouraged the mother to call 911 wherever the daughter lived and sent them out to address her threat. As a general rule, that would result in an evaluation by the professionals at the state mental health agency. Her daughter needs help.

Your idea about the role of guilt in the mother's response patterns is very plausible. She may feel guilty over her decision to leave her daughter with the father. However, if the father was a good parent and provider, that would hopefully mitigate her guilt somewhat.

Regardless of the circumstance, I hope she does not allow her daughter to blackmail her. It is not an emotionally healthy process for either one.

Mom may want to apply the Guilt Rule when daughter tries that ploy: "Was it wrong to do what I did?" If the answer is yes, then some form of amends are in order. If the answer is no, then she should try to fight the feeling of misplaced guilt.

One final thought: You might encourage mom to attend a few Al-Anon meetings, wherever she is. They know a lot about dealing with emotional blackmail, threats and chaos.

THE FOLLOWING RESULTS OF A SURVEY ON STRESS RESPONSES ARE PRESENTED BY THE CENTERS FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES:

- 61 percent felt angry
- 58 percent felt burned out
- 47 percent felt powerless
- 37 percent felt sad
- 28 percent felt frightened
- 28 percent felt vulnerable
- 21 percent felt irrational
- 15 percent felt numb
- 10 percent felt exhilarated
- Women felt more burned out and sad than men.
- Men felt more vulnerable under stress than women did.

Parkinson's disease studied

By Henry F. Page, M.D.

The recent media flurry of stories regarding the health of such celebrities as Mohammed Ali, Michael J. Fox and Janet Reno has raised concerned interest in that condition known as Parkinson's disease (aka paralysis agitnas) that was first described in the 19th century by James Parkinson. This condition constitutes a prominent cause of disability in people usually older than 50 — 50,000 new cases every year with a total of 500,000 indicates a life span averaging 10 years.

Page

In starts insidiously, often with mushy speech, fatigue, unreadable handwriting and a tremor of one or all fingers and then the extremities. Occasionally only disturbances in gait and balance appear at onset. Then slowly but progressively comes a "pill-rolling" tremor most apparent while resting and disappearing with purposeful movement. I remember H.V. Kaltenborn on television, passing a small jade Buddha from one hand to another to avoid distraction. Musculature becomes stiff, with twitching and jerking, and facial expression becomes fixed with frequent blinking. The patient walks with a shuffled gait and short steps. The head falls forward on the trunk. Depression comes early, and finally in the latter stages, about 40 percent of patients develop dementia similar to Alzheimer's disease. The process takes years.

If you have a tremor on action but your face remains mobile and your gait normal, relax. Like so many others you have an intention tremor which is annoying but not serious.

Parkinsonism is due to death or impairment of cells (dopamine) deep in the brain that are needed to transmit muscle messages. The basic cause of this remains unknown in primary Parkinsons, but Parkinson's syndrome can be caused by encephalitis, drugs and lack of oxygen. Parkinson's is not contagious and does not pass directly from one family member to another.

The first effective therapy occurred in 1960 with the use of Levodopa, which is now used in combination with Carbidopa, and helps in 75 percent of cases. With progression of the pathology, half a dozen other types of drugs are often added at one time or another to fortify the therapy because of progressively diminishing effectiveness. A possible role for brain surgery became apparent as early as 1939, when relief of Parkinson's symptoms followed the removal of a brain tumor. Different surgical approaches have been subsequently attempted that have helped some people with advanced Parkinson's. Swedish and Chinese neurosurgeons have reported some symptom control with implantation of fetal tissue from aborted fetus and have even established a fetal brain bank.

The most encouraging long range aspect is the announcement that the National Institute of Health and National Human Genome Research Institute (NHGRI) have for the first time precisely identified a gene abnormality that causes some cases of Parkinson's. This affords a powerful new tool in understanding Parkinson's and its relationship to Alzheimer's.

Let me comfort and reassure all those of you who quiver on noting an intentional tremor, that the odds are 50 to one that you do not have Parkinson's. As gold miners found 150 years ago: "All that glitters is not gold!"

Dirt on the presidents?

Washington, Jefferson worked in 'the good earth'

By George Bria

SLEEPY HOLLOW, N.Y. (AP) — George Washington as a profit-making whiskey distiller was a role you might not have suspected of the Father of Our Country.

Nor might you have known him for his Potomac River fishery or as the designer of a 16-sided barn where horses treaded wheat. This building was so unique it has been recreated at Mount Vernon featuring daily shows of how it worked.

While Rip Van Winkle was sleeping here in legend, Washington was fighting Hudson River Valley battles. But his thoughts turned constantly to his Virginia plantation. His life as a farmer rather than soldier was re-enacted here in this 200th anniversary year of his death.

In a separate lecture at historic Philipsburg Manor, Thomas Jefferson was hailed as a super gardener who said "there's not a shoot of grass that springs uninteresting to me."

The two presidents' ties to the good earth were evoked by Dennis Pogue, director of restoration at Mount Vernon, and Peter Hatch, director of gardens and grounds for Monticello, Jefferson's Virginia home. The lectures were sponsored by the Lyndhurst site of the National Trust for Historic reservation.

Pogue said Washington went into the whiskey business when his Scottish plantation master convinced him that a distillery would be very profitable.

"In fact, it was," Pogue said. "In the first year of operation, they made over $7,000." That's the equivalent of about $63,000 today.

His fishery on the river, a major enterprise, was one of Washington's most profitable operations, Pogue said.

Washington, who marketed grain broadly, decided to bring his wheat-threshing operation indoors to a specially-designed barn because both the weather and theft were causing him losses outdoors, Pogue said.

In the Chesapeake area of that time, wheat was either flailed by hand or laid out in a large circle for horses to tread on it. The action of the hooves threshed out the grain.

Unhappy with the results outdoors, Washington built a barn with a floor on the second level large enough to accommodate horses.

Washington "conceived the innovation of leaving spaces between the floorboards so that the grain would fall through to the granary below," Pogue said. "There, it could be kept stored in bins and sent on to the mills to be ground."

That barn and other farm structures have been meticulously recreated at Mount Vernon as part of a $3 million project. The American lumber industry "helped us come remarkably close to the kinds of wood used in Washington's time," Pogue said.

Washington "worked on his farms virtually every day," Pogue said. "He would ride around all the different farms and inspect them and talk to the overseers.

"He was very much a hands-on guy. All the time he was going out and marking trees that needed to be cut down or relocated."

Two days before he died in 1799, he had been marking trees and came down with strep throat that killed him, Pogue said.

Jefferson, long celebrated for his Monticello farming and gardening, was pictured in Hatch's lecture as seeing "plants as a vehicle for social intercourse, as a way of relating to people.

"Throughout his gardening letters there is this sort of union of gardening and sociability, particularly in his letters to his daughters and granddaughter."

Hatch said Jefferson suggested adding gardening to the fine arts not as horticulture "but as the art of embellishing grounds by fancy."

"As a young man, he dreamed up futuristic and romantic grottos. He also had plans for cascading waterfalls and fish ponds." he said.

Jefferson pictured flower seasons as acts in a play, the tulips doing their acts and receiving their applause, followed by the iris and then the lilies, Hatch said.

A great grower of vegetables and flowers, Jefferson also set out 1,400 fruit trees in the south orchard alone, Hatch said, explaining that for most Americans before 1850 horticulture meant fruit growing.

"Pioneers began planting their orchards before building their houses," he said. One reason was the importance of peach brandy and apple cider. "Americans began drinking the fruit rather than eating it."

DEAR ABBY

Daughter's ban of cats, dogs peeves her pet-loving parents

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to have a family pet problem without a solution? I live in Virginia. Several years ago my parents retired to Florida after living here for many years.

The problem is they insist on visiting us with their cat and dog several times a year for weeks at a time. At first we accepted this arrangement despite allergies to animals and the dog having regular "accidents" in the house. It has been a sore subject between my husband and me, because he has never been a "pet person."

Van Buren

We recently purchased a new home and have invested in new carpeting. We have been honest with my parents and told them that while we welcome them anytime, to please make other arrangements for their pets.

They are furious about our decision, criticizing us for valuing belongings over family, threatening to never visit our children, and accusing us of "kicking them out." They will never put their animals in kennels.

Are they asking too much of us, or have we unfairly changed the rules on them, as they claim? — CONFUSED IN RICHMOND

DEAR CONFUSED: People are emotional about their pets and compromise is difficult. On their next visit, encourage your parents to stay at a motel or hotel that accepts pets. Even if you must share the cost of their lodging, it will probably be cheaper than carpet cleaning and the wear and tear on your new home.

DEAR ABBY: For many years I have regarded your column as a neutral observer of human problems. One recurring topic that appears concerns "giving the bride away" at a wedding ceremony. The custom exists worldwide in various ethnic groups.

Historically the custom is based on the centuries-old concept of a woman (daughter) being the property or chattel of the male head of the family (father). It precedes even Biblical practices.

In our contemporary strides for gender equality, the practice hardly seems necessary at a wedding. In all states, a man and a woman enter into a contractual union essentially and legally based on their individual free-will choice. They give themselves to each other. It's not a matter of giving away a female piece of property.

In 16 years I performed more than 25,000 civil ceremonies for couples from 50 states and 81 countries. I rarely permitted the giving away of a bride, making exceptions based on foreign practices. To me, the "giving away" was similar to selling a piece of real estate. I could not, and do not, accept the practice among contemporary brides born in the U.S.A. — "MARRYIN' SAM" FROM NEVADA

DEAR "MARRYIN' SAM": Your letter is sure to raise the eyebrows of many brides-to-be, although it may not diminish their desire to be "given in marriage" by their fathers. Although the contemporary bride in reality gives herself to her husband, one look through a bridal magazine should be a clue to how she clings to tradition.

RSVP

The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) is recruiting persons 55 years and older to volunteer with non-profit agencies. RSVP will match volunteers' skills and interests to community agencies' needs. The program is sponsored by Community and Senior Services, 3301 Sinclair. For more information, call 689-6693. A sample of current opportunities include:

■ RSVP needs volunteers to help with the musical, "Victory On Stage," to be presented May 1 at the Yucca Theater. Floor managers, ticket takers and decorators are needed. Training will be one week before the event.

■ Habitat for Humanity needs five construction site workers to work with supervisor and Habitat partner families. Duties include all aspects of home construction. Shifts are 8 a.m.-noon Tuesdays and Thursdays. Supervision and instruction provided.

■ Junior Achievement of Midland needs 15 volunteers to help with "ShrimpFest 99" annual fundraiser, planned for June 5. Volunteers are needed to help decorate, hostess and serve trays. Two hours shifts training, T-shirts and meal will be provided.

Volunteer on job for almost 25 years

By Lana Cunningham

As a child, Mary Lou Hogan traveled the oilfield circuit. Her father was among the first oilfield workers in Kermit and Levelland, and she fondly remembers growing up in Crane.

"Having oil in my veins," it was only natural that Mrs. Hogan hit a discovery when looking for a place to share her combined love of the industry and of people — The Petroleum Museum.

When the doors opened to the public in September 1975, Mrs. Hogan started volunteering in the Gift Shop, one of five charter members who still works behind the counter, greeting people as they walk into the Museum. What they see is a woman sporting a wide smile who helps people see the funny side of life.

Sharing constitutes much of her life. When her two daughters and son left home, she quit volunteering as a Girl Scout troop leader.

But she soon joined a First Baptist Church group who, every Wednesday morning, take refreshments to Courtyard Care Center and conduct a Bible study for the residents.

Her father worked for Magnolia Petroleum and traveled as the job required, which meant Mrs. Hogan saw life in the oilfields first hand. It could also account for where she picked up her humorous look at this world.

"We were Oil Patch kids," she said. "Crane used to be nothing but the Gulf Oil camp. We didn't live in a camp; we lived in town. But we knew everybody who lived in the camps."

She graduated from high school in Pampa and attended Midwestern University at Wichita Falls.

In 1960, she married a childhood friend from Crane — Gene Hogan — and the couple moved to Midland and put down roots.

The upcoming opening of The Petroleum Museum in September 1975 received wide publicity, and attracted Mrs. Hogan to sign up. She recalled the opening day. "It was exciting. President Gerald Ford came and spoke."

She explained the reason behind her signing on with the volunteers. "I felt this Museum was something that was needed for the oil industry. This Museum educates people who have misconceptions about the industry. They ask if those pumpjacks (in front of the building) are really pumping oil.

"We tell the visitors how difficult it is to find the right location to drill for oil. Visitors learn that when there's a downturn in the oil industry, a lot of common people are laid off and are the ones who are hurt.

"It's not all wealthy people who are in the industry."

Volunteering at the Petroleum Museum has given Mrs. Hogan an outlet for her favorite avocation — meeting people.

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Mary Lou Hogan, who has lived in the Permian Basin most of her life, is one of five charter members of the Petroleum Museum's volunteers who still works behind the counter in the museum's gift shop. One of her favorite aspects of the job is the fact that she gets to meet and greet people from all over the world who come to visit the museum.

Visitors come from all over the world to see the Museum. "We meet some really interesting people out here," she noted.

"We get a lot from Japan and Germany. They love the wide open spaces of West Texas. Some come back year after year.

"Recently, we've had people from Bahrain and a family from Norway. I didn't expect to meet people from so many different parts of the world."

At the same time Mrs. Hogan began working in the Gift Shop, she also volunteered to help for a short time (or so she thought) with her Sunday School teacher's mission at the care center.

"I was going to go for just a little while," she recalled.

More than 20 years later, she's still visiting residents, taking cookies, singing and helping with the Bible study.

"A lot of people are uncomfortable around older people, and I'm not," she said. "I love them. I know how important it is that someone show up and hug these residents and tell them they are loved."

Before her parents' deaths, Mrs. Hogan took that special ability to Trinity Towers and Manor Park where she was involved with the auxiliaries.

"I've just always liked to be involved with people," she said. "That's part of our Christian heritage. If the Lord gives you good health, you're pretty selfish not to want to share with folks. I like to be around people.

"Besides, if I stay home, I have to clean house," she joked.

"We all have to laugh at life, otherwise it would be pretty depressing. You can always find something funny in anything," said the 67-year-old West Texas native.

She applies the same philosophy to her work with the church's benevolence committee.

"When you're my age, you get a lot of calls for funerals," she said with a laugh.

Mrs. Hogan doesn't live in the past; she enjoys the computer age. "I love the Internet. I'm trying to get computer literate."

Every morning, she turns on her computer to see what e-mails her children have sent.

One daughter is a member of a storyteller's guild and starts her parents' day off with a funny story. "We e-mail all the kids and keep up-to-date with them."

Taking a minute to reflect on her life, Mrs. Hogan described it as living in the best of times and the worst of times.

"The worst was World War II," she said. "And the best was the time in which we all felt openness and trust. We still have some of that."

A visitor wanted to ask a question about an item in the Gift Shop, and Mrs. Hogan returned to her spot behind the counter where she has been for 24 years.

U.S. officials pledge to press attacks amid hope for POW release

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton said NATO can still win in Kosovo by air power alone, and he expressed hope Thursday for an early release of three American POWs.

Asked at a White House news conference if he had changed his mind about using ground troops in Yugoslavia, Clinton replied, "No. I believe our presen. strategy will work if we can keep the allies with it."

The president said the three soldiers captured March 31 and held captive in Belgrade "should never have been detained in the first place. They were in Macedonia. They had nothing to do with the operations against Serbia." Asked about Cyprus' efforts to secure the men's release, Clinton said, "I would be for anything honorable that would secure their release."

U.S. officials accused the Serb military of destroying civilian properties in Kosovo to create the impression of indiscriminate NATO attacks, although a Pentagon official acknowledged that an allied strike on a telephone exchange in downtown Pristina, the provincial capital, "possibly and perhaps even likely" damaged civilian property.

On the 16th day of allied airstrikes, NATO arranged for safe passage of an aircraft that brought Spyros Kyprianou, speaker of the Cypriot parliament, to Belgrade to possibly take custody of the three Americans captured March 31 and held in the Serbian capital.

Kyprianou said in Belgrade that he planned to meet Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic on Friday and that the Americans might be freed during the long Orthodox Easter weekend that started Thursday.

"While the Americans could be released over the Easter weekend to join their families, NATO could reciprocate by responding to the numerous international appeals for a cease-fire at least over the Orthodox Easter weekend," Kyprianou said.

But Serbia's hard-line vice premier, Vojislav Seselj, told reporters in Belgrade that freeing the three Americans was "out of the question" and that the soldiers should be tried as terrorists.

"The United States is leading an undeclared war against Yugoslavia," said Seselj, leader of the extreme nationalist Serbian Radical Party allied with Milosevic.

State Department spokesman James P. Rubin said only an unconditional release would be acceptable. "Any attempt to use this as a bargaining chip is both illegal and immoral," he said.

While campaigning in Iowa, Vice President Al Gore was briefed by national security advisers. Afterward, he told reporters, "There are no significant new developments in Kosovo. Milosovic knows what he has to do to bring this to a conclusion." Asked if that meant the bombing would continue, Gore said, "Yes, indeed."

NATO officials, meanwhile, reiterated that there would be no pause.

Defense Secretary William Cohen has given NATO's top commander, Gen. Wesley Clark, a green light to augment the air armada that is striking Yugoslavia, but no decisions have been made, officials at the Pentagon said.

The officials said Clark probably would ask for a relatively small number of extra fighter aircraft — probably Air Force A-10 "Warthogs" to hit Serb armor, more reconnaissance planes and refueling aircraft. NATO already has about 600 planes involved, including some of the most sophisticated bombers and fighters in the U.S. arsenal.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, spoke optimistically of the NATO air campaign after receiving a briefing from military, intelligence and State Department officials. "The air campaign each day is becoming more successful. The degradation of his military is appreciable. ... I think in a matter of days you will see significant change of tactics by the military in the Kosovo region."

Chinese promise help in spy, campaign probes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chinese Premier Zhu Rongji promised President Clinton on Thursday to cooperate in investigations of alleged nuclear-weapons spying and illegal campaign contributions by Beijing "no matter who it may involve."

But he ridiculed the suggestion of Chinese meddling in U.S. politics and denied the espionage charge.

Side by side with Clinton at a 91-minute news conference, Zhu also rejected U.S. charges of human rights abuses in China as "unfair" and an intrusion in its internal affairs

After a day of talks, both leaders pointedly took note of heightened tensions and suspicions between their nations. Zhu joked that he almost canceled his visit because the political atmosphere in the United States "is so anti-China." Clinton acknowledged there is an "anti-China crowd in America."

Yet, at a windup news conference, they claimed important progress on the contentious issue of trade, even though they failed to agree on a market-opening deal that would have cleared the way for China's entry into the World Trade Organization — a long-standing Chinese goal.

Clinton's economic adviser, Gene Sperling, said China made "significant movement and concessions" and the two leaders said they hoped to reach a final agreement by year's end.

Clinton and Zhu answered questions, joked and sparred with each other at length. Much of the time was taken up by Zhu's long answers and translation, with Clinton listening patiently. It was the second longest news conference of Clinton's presidency — just short of his 94-minute, year-end wrapup appearance before the cameras in December 1997.

Unapologetic about their differences, Zhu said that "maybe the friends who are able to say no to you are the best friends for you."

In what he said was "a very solemn statement," Zhu said he and President Jiang Zemin had no knowledge of suspicions that China stole nuclear warhead designs from U.S. labs in the 1980s. "I don't believe such a story," he said, chiding Americans for doubting China's ability to develop its own technology without U.S. help.

Zhu also mocked allegations that China funneled $300,000 to Clinton's re-election campaign in 1996 in hopes of currying favor. With China sitting on $146 billion in foreign currency reserves, he said, "why just $300,000? That would be too foolish."

Even so, he said China would cooperate with the U.S. investigations. "As so long as you can provide some clues, and no matter who it may involve, we will investigate into it."

Clinton said he discussed the allegations with Zhu in a meeting late Wednesday and was told privately what Zhu said publicly.

While Zhu denied any knowledge of the charges, Clinton observed that "China is a big country with a big government," much like America, and that "occasionally things happen in this government that I don't know about. And so I think it's important that we continue the investigation and do our best to find out what happened."

Conservative activist Gary Bauer, seeking the Republican presidential nomination, said Zhu "insulted" Americans by joking about the campaign finance charges. Bauer said Clinton insulted American values by "working overtime to reward China" with trade benefits when Beijing is cracking down on human rights and stands accused of espionage.

A new allegation surfaced Thursday when The New York Times reported allegations that China stole U.S. neutron bomb technology in 1995. Clinton said he had looked into the report and "we are doing our best to resolve all outstanding questions. And I've asked the law enforcement agencies to try to accelerate their inquiries insofar as they can."

A federal law enforcement official, requesting anonymity, said that despite a multiyear investigation, the FBI has yet to find any evidence that neutron bomb secrets were stolen from a U.S. national laboratory by China.

The sharpest exchange came on human rights. The State Department in February said China's human rights record "deteriorated sharply" late last year with a crackdown on political dissent and restrictions on religion and other fundamental freedoms.

Zhu denounced a U.S. resolution at a U.N. forum criticizing China's record. "I not only regard that as unfair but also take it as an interference in China's internal affairs," he said. Zhu said the Chinese "enjoy unprecedented extensive democratic and political rights" and that critics "should not be too impatient."

Yet, he acknowledged, "I concede there is room for improvement in human rights conditions in China" and said "we are willing to listen to you. ... We don't want to stage a confrontation in this regard."

Taxpayers use plastic to pay, reap rewards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Would an all-expense-paid ski trip to the Canadian Rockies ease the pain of that income tax bill? How about a few free flights to Paris or Rome?

Dozens of wealthy taxpayers are using their credit cards to charge hefty Internal Revenue Service bills — several over $1 million — so they can rack up airline frequent flier miles and other rewards.

"The biggest surprise we've had in the program is the people who want to pay more than $100,000," said Steve Johnson, senior vice president at U.S. Audiotex, a California company running the credit card program for IRS. "They want the miles."

For the first time this year, people can call an Audiotex toll-free number — 1-888-2PAYTAX — to pay their income tax bills using either an American Express, MasterCard or Discover card. Visa, the largest credit card issuer, is taking a wait-and-see approach this year.

Even though taxpayers must pay a service fee averaging 2.5 percent to use plastic, interest is running high among some of the well-heeled who determine the airline miles or other rewards are worth the price.

"If you run the numbers, some of these people who have a payment due figure there's a benefit to it," said Bob Barr, assistant IRS commissioner for electronic taxes.

Most of the big tax charges are coming from American Express cardholders because they have no preset credit limit, Johnson said. About 50 people have asked to pay $1 million or more, including one person who sought to pay a $9 million bill.

American Express spokeswoman Judy Tenzer said many cardholders are enrolled in the company's "Membership Rewards" program, which also has no limit and converts dollars charged into frequent flier miles and into points for free products ranging from music CDs to pearl necklaces to vacations in places like British Columbia, Costa Rica or Disney World.

"If they are using checks, they're not getting anything in return," Tenzer said. "While the size of these charges may be surprising, there are so many different things you can do."

Harper charged

WASHINGTON — Alvin Harper, a former wide receiver with the Washington Redskins and Dallas Cowboys, was charged Thursday with two counts of auto theft.

Maryland State Police say the arrest of Harper, 31, resulted from an investigation of vehicles with false identification numbers from the District of Columbia. Stolen vehicles were recovered from several locations in Montgomery and Prince George's counties, said Pete Piringer, a state police spokesman.

Among vehicles recovered were a 1997 Mercedes Benz S 600, valued at $130,000, and a 1995 Mercedes Benz convertible, valued at $70,000. Both vehicles were in Harper's possession and had fraudulent titles, Piringer said.

Harper may have purchased the vehicles from a distant acquaintance and under the premise the sales were legitimate, Piringer said. But the sales were at substantially reduced prices, which should have raised Harper's suspicions, he said.

ADDISON — High school pitcher Tony Adler savored baseball perfection that would make fellow Texans Roger Clemens and Kerry Wood envious.

Pitching for Greenhill, Adler struck out all 18 Episcopal School of Dallas batters he faced in an 8-0 six-inning victory Tuesday. He did it with 75 pitches — 55 of them strikes.

Episcopal batters managed just five foul balls off the senior right-hander and none worked a full count.

"We've had no-hitters here before, but nothing like this," said Greenhill coach Mark Parachini, who has coached the team for 15 years.

Duval shows he's human on back nine, loses lead before rain falls

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Forget about the rough, which looked more like a Marine's flattop than the shaggy stuff typical of a U.S. Open.

Those extra 25 yards on No. 17? No problem for Davis Love III, who hit a sand wedge into 8 feet for birdie and a share of the lead with Scott McCarron and Brandel Chamblee in the first round of the Masters.

The real change Thursday at Augusta National was David Duval.

He finally looked human.

The hottest player in golf, the anointed favorite for the green jacket, Duval was tied for the lead at 3-under when he headed to the back nine as storm clouds gathered. The wraparound shades came off, and Duval came unglued.

He missed the next six greens. He stopped making those par-saving putts. He proved that not even the No. 1 player in the world is immune from the one constant at Augusta that may never change — its brick-hard greens and unpredictable nature.

"If you want to win this event, you better find a way to deal with it," said Duval, who was hanging on at 1-under after 17 when play was suspended by darkness.

Despite all the hoopla over all the changes, Augusta National was up to its same old tricks.

Love, Chamblee and McCarron survived the sloping, brick-hard greens in the first round to share the lead at 69. Better yet, they didn't have to deal with a 95-minute storm delay that changed

TALL CITY RELAYS

Tall City Tuneup

MHS boys have good shot at win

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

With one week left before the District 4-5A Track Championships, the Midland schools will get in a first and final tuneup on a new surface at an old Midland Memorial Stadium.

Today, the Midland schools join a handful of visiting teams at the Tall City Relays, and for every good performance today, there are many coaches who hope there is another left when all seven district schools come to Midland next week.

"We definitely are going to look towards next week," said MHS boys coach Wes Cope, whose team is the favorite to win the boys division today.

"It is good because we will be on the same track (as next week)."

The Bulldogs will be joined by Lee, Odessa High, Odessa Permian, San Angelo Central and District 3-5A visitor Amarillo High. On the girls side, defending meet and 4-5A champion Midland Lee will be joined by MHS, Permian, OHS and Central.

However, it is the Bulldogs, who could prove to be the story not only this weekend but next week. Midland High has never won the district track title, but many are pointing to Cope's Bulldogs as the team to beat. The program's first West Texas Relays title since 1960 brought even more attention to the talented bunch.

Going into this weekend, Cope has the district's No. 1 400-meter and 1,600-meter relays, the No. 1 100 and 200 meter runners (Weldon Cooks and Raji Hickey), the top pole vaulter (Wes Solansky) and discus thrower (Luke Conder). All were regional qualifiers one year ago. In the case of Conder, Solansky and the 1,600-relay, all are at the top or among the best in Region I-5A this season.

Cope also has more depth, and that is why his team should win today and be a factor next week. The Bulldogs have potential to score points in every event with the exception of the 1,600 and 3,200.

"We have got depth for the first time," Cope said. "We have got field event guys who are really doing great things and we've got sprinters who are continuing to pick up the pace. You can't win this thing (the district title) with four or five good guys. Cooper has won this thing by out-pointing people."

Midland Lee's Julie Jay and her Lady Rebel teammates come into today's Tall City Relays as the defending champions, while the Midland High boys' team enters the meet as the favorites to win this year.

It has been two years since the Midland Lee boys contended for the Class 5A team title with arguably the best five-man group this district has ever seen. However while times couldn't be better on the football field, the track program is young and working its way up to the status it once enjoyed.

For Lee head coach Kelvin Ratliff, that means getting them experience wherever he can. At least this week, that place is at home.

"It will be good to compete at home right before district," Ratliff said. "Our kids are working hard, and there isn't much else I can ask from them."

Lee's top candidate for a medal today will be two big boys, who already are sporting championship rings as

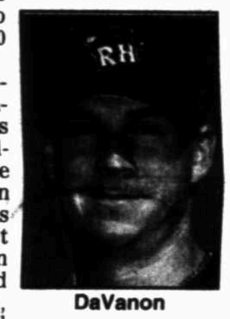
'Hounds bombard Missions

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — Midland RockHounds history officially got underway Thursday with a 7-2 win over the San Antonio Missions at Nelson Wolff Municipal Stadium.

Encarnacion



DaVanon

On a night when the RockHounds were making history, the sixth inning proved to be a memorable one. That's when Mario Encarnacion, Justin Bowles and Adam Piatt hit back-to-back-to-back home runs off Eric Gagne (0-1) to give Midland a 5-0 lead.

Those blasts provided enough cushion for RockHounds starter Tim Hudson (1-0) to earn the victory. Hudson was brilliant in his RockHound debut as he went seven innings, allowed just four hits, struck out five and walked none. Out of the 69 pitches Hudson threw, 50 of them were for strikes and not once did he take a batter to a three-ball count.

The RockHounds had a chance to go for the shutout but the Missions rallied for two runs in the ninth inning. Tony Mota spoiled the shutout when he hit a blooper of RockHounds reliever Jeff D'Amico to the outfield to score Mike Metcalf from third.

The flame throwing closer Chad Harville closed the doors on the Missions in ninth as he struck out two in his one inning of work. Harville's fastball was being clocked as high as 99 mph.

Scoreless through two innings, Jeff DaVanon brought in the first run in RockHounds history in the third with a double to left field to score Dionys Cesar.

In the fifth inning, Josue Espada picked up the first steal in RockHounds history when he stole second and then advanced to third on a throwing error. Espada later scored on another Missions error to give Midland a 2-0 lead.

The RockHounds added two more insurance runs in the ninth inning as Roberto Vaz and T.R. Marcinczyk had RBIs.

The RockHounds continue their five-game road trip to San Antonio at 7:05

Midland High's Lange signs to play hoops at Midland College

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

One of Midland's own has decided to continue her basketball playing career right at home.

Midland High's Heidi Lange, the MVP of District 4-5A, signed a letter of intent Thursday to play for coach Ron Jones at Midland College next season.

Lange, who averaged 14.2 points, eight rebounds and four assists this past season for the Lady Bulldogs, said she was very excited to sign with the Lady Chaparrals.

"I think it's going to be better that I stay home and get two years of experience and I'm really excited to play for coach Jones and the girls," Lange said. "I don't know if I'm really ready to leave, so I think this was a good step."

The Lady Chaps are coming off their most successful season with a third place finish at the NJCAA National Tournament and a program best 34-3 record.

"I'm so excited because they were third this year and I think they can have better players next year and they can go further," Lange said.

Lange said there were other schools interested in her but that she never wavered on her decision to chose Midland College in the end. Plus, there was the temptation of playing in front of the home crowd for another two years.

Lange is leaving MHS with a bag full of credentials. The three-year letterman under MHS coach Jim Raughton was a two-time first team All-District 4-5A selection, a first team All-Region selection, and was also an outstanding volleyball player as she garnered both All-District and All-State honors. This summer Lange will play in two all-star game — the TABC all-star game in San Antonio, and the THSGCA all-star game in Austin.

"I think it's a great day for coach Jones and a sad day for coach Raughton," said Raughton, who sees yet another of his players continue their basketball career at the college level. "I think it's great for the community and it's good for Midland College. When you take a person like Heidi away, you lose somebody very very special. She's a very special player and a very special person."

Jones said he liked Lange's athleticism and shooting ability. He's also seen Lange improve enough over the years to tell that her best basketball is still ahead of her.

"I think she's going to fit in to what we do," Jones said. "We play up tempo and she can get up and down the floor, and I think she's got the athletic ability to play defense for us, and at the same time, shoot the ball from the outside.

"I could see a couple of years ago that she had the potential to play at the college level. She continued to improve and I'm sure she'll continue to improve over the next two years."

Braves celebrate 25th anniversary of Aaron hammering 715th homer

By Tom Saladino
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Let the celebrations begin and the bitterness end.

The Atlanta Braves started a season-long salute Thursday night honoring Hank Aaron on the 25th anniversary of his historic 715th home run that broke Babe Ruth's record.

Commissioner Bud Selig, NL president Len Coleman and Al Downing, who surrendered the historic homer, were among the many on hand to honor Aaron during a 45-minute ceremony prior to the Braves' game against the Philadelphia Phillies.

"You know 25 years ago ... when I hit that home run to beat the Babe's record, it was truly one of the most remarkable evenings that I have ever had in baseball," Aaron said following a two-minute standing ovation from the big crowd at 50,000-seat Turner Field.

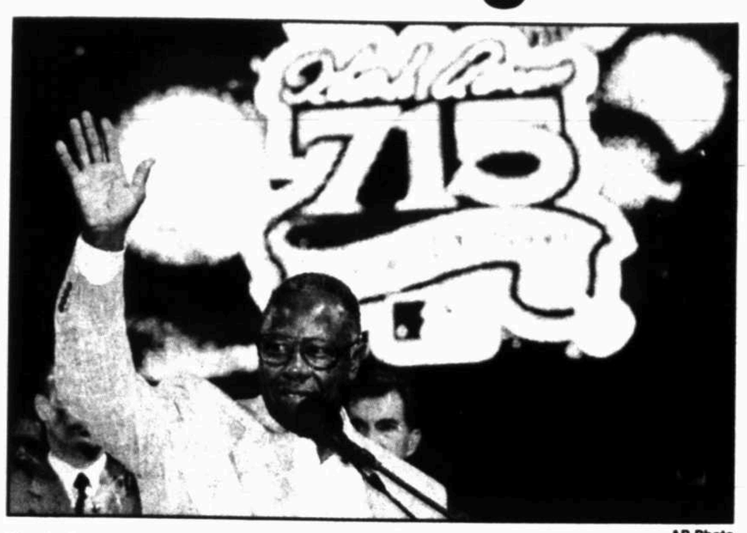
"But tonight tops it all," said Aaron, now 65 and a Braves senior vice president. "This is truly a wonderful day for me."

The tribute has helped Aaron, who finished with 755 home runs, forget his somewhat bittersweet memories of the chase to beat Ruth.

As he closed in on the record, Aaron received hundreds of thousands of parcels of mail, many filled with hate because there were people who did not like the idea that a black man from Mobile, Ala., was going to pass Ruth.

Adding to the hurt was the fact that then-commissioner Bowie Kuhn was not even at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium on the night when Aaron broke the record. Kuhn was at a dinner in Cleveland and sent one of his assistants, Monte Irvin, in his place.

"If you would have asked me 15 years ago, you would have found a much angrier person, but time has a way of healing things," he said during news conference, seated between his wife, Billye, and Selig.



AP Photo

Hank Aaron waves to the crowd at Turner Field Thursday in Atlanta. Aaron, a former Braves star, was honored prior to the start of a Braves-Phillies game. The ceremony marked the 25th anniversary of his 715th home run — the one that moved him past Babe Ruth as Major League Baseball's career home run record holder.

"I've seen him a few times since then," he said of Kuhn, "but have not talked to him about that."

Selig, Braves chairman of the board Bill Bartholomay and Tom Johnson, chairman and CEO of Cable News Network, each spoke glowingly of Aaron. Hall of Famers Lou Brock, Frank Robinson and Phil Niekro also took part in the ceremonies.

Aaron was honored with video tributes and two songs performed by Kenny Rogers — "The Greatest" and "Heroes."

Finally, there was the unveiling of the Hank Aaron Award, which was announced in February. It will go to the best hitter in each league at the end of the season.

"To have an award to be named in perpetuity after you for the rest of your life tells me that no matter what happens to me, my grandchildren and my great grandchildren will be able to say that their father had an award named in his honor," he said.

Selig, in a news conference earlier, presented the award — a handsome wooden plaque with an engraved silver bat atop home plate — to Aaron, as the first winner.

"Why so long? That's a tough question to answer," Selig said. "But I think this is the appropriate time. It's something that should have happened long ago. Like a lot of things in life, I wish it had been a happier experience."

Aaron said he had wished his march to surpass Ruth had been similar to the chase shared last season by Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa as both surpassed the single-season mark of 61 home runs by Roger Maris. McGwire finished with 70 and Sosa with 66.

"I didn't have that opportunity and I often thought that if I only had just a little bit of that, it would have made me feel a whole lot different," Aaron said.

The celebration was the first that will take place during the regular season at major league parks to celebrate Aaron's feat.

Aaron began his major league career in 1953 and spent his entire 23 years in either Milwaukee or Atlanta, breaking the revered Ruth's record of 714 career home runs on April 8, 1974.

It came off Downing of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the fourth inning with the Braves trailing 4-1 and two runners on base.

The ball sailed over the left-center field fence at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium, just across the street from the current stadium, as the crowd of 53,775 roared. It was caught in the bullpen by Braves reliever Tom House at 9:07 p.m.

Aaron played two more years in Milwaukee before retiring.

He has more RBIs (2,297), extra-base hits (1,477) and total bases (6,856) than anyone in baseball history. He ranks second in at-bats (12,364) and runs (2,174), third in games (3,298) and hits (3,771), ninth in doubles (624). During a 23-year career, he batted .305.

In February, President Clinton led a celebration in Atlanta of Aaron's 65th birthday and baseball named the hitting award for Aaron. In addition, the charity event raised $1 million for The Chasing The Dream Foundation, which was started five years ago by the Aarons for underprivileged youngsters.

The check was presented to Aaron by CNN's Johnson during the ceremony, which concluded with Aaron and his wife taking a spin around the field in a golf cart while fireworks went off in the distance to the delight of the cheering fans.

In 1999, the hitting award will go to the hitter with the most hits, home runs and RBIs, Selig said. In future years, it will be selected by a panel.

Tatis cranks his 3rd homer in three days to power Cardinals

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Fernando Tatis now has a two-home run lead on Mark McGwire.

Tatis' three-run, fifth-inning homer was his third in as many games for St. Louis and was the big hit in a 9-4 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Thursday.

He is now one homer away from tying one of McGwire's many records from last season, when the Cardinals slugger joined Willie Mays as the only players to hit homers in the first four games.

Tatis has six RBIs and he also stole his first two bases, helping to spoil the National League debut of Jim Abbott.

Abbott (0-1) lasted five innings and allowed six runs and five hits. The pitcher, who has just one hand, was 0-for-2 in the first regular-season at-bats of his career, although it took a perfect play by Tatis at third to catch him by a half-step on a chopper to start the third.

McGwire, who homered in the opener, was 0-for-3 with an intentional walk. He scored on Tatis' home run, which put the Cardinals ahead 6-3.

Shawon Dunston also homered for the Cardinals. St. Louis added three runs in the sixth off Valerio de los Santos on an RBI double by pinch-hitter Placido Polanco, a run-scoring single by Darren Bragg and a wild pitch.

Bobby Hughes homered and had an RBI double for Milwaukee. Sean Berry had three hits and Jeff Cirillo had two for the Brewers.

Kent Mercker (1-0) also lasted five innings and allowed three runs and eight hits.

Giants 12, Padres 4

SAN FRANCISCO — Barry Bonds hit a two-run homer and Marvin Benard had a three-run shot as San Francisco celebrated the final home opener at its wind-swept ballpark at Candlestick Point.

Shawn Estes (1-0), who walked seven batters in five innings, added a three-run double as the Giants scored seven in the fourth.

■ NL Roundup

Rich Aurilia had a solo homer and three RBIs and Brent Mayne had a career-high four hits for the Giants.

Stan Spencer (0-1) allowed eight runs and eight hits in three innings.

Phillies 6, Braves 3

ATLANTA — On the night Hank Aaron was honored, it was only fitting that home runs helped decide the game. Too bad for him, his Atlanta Braves didn't win.

Scott Rolen and Rico Brogna hit solo homers and Paul Byrd shut down his former team on two hits in 7 1-3 innings as Philadelphia beat the Braves.

Before the game, Aaron was praised on the 25th anniversary of his 715th home run, breaking Babe Ruth's record. Commissioner Bud Selig, NL president Len Coleman and Al Downing, who surrendered the historic homer at Atlanta, were among those taking part in the 45-minute ceremony.

Aaron, now 65 and a Braves senior vice president, was part of a sellout crowd of 47,225 that watched Brogna and Rolen homer off Kevin Millwood (0-1).

The Braves closed to 6-3 in the eighth, but Jeff Brantley struck out Andruw Jones to end the inning. Byrd (1-0) was the winner and Brantley got his second save.

Former Atlanta closer Mark Wohlers again struggled in his second appearance of the season. He faced three batters, walking two and throwing a sacrifice bunt over first baseman Ryan Klesko's head.

Cubs 2, Astros 1

HOUSTON — Sammy Sosa remained homerless for the season and 1-for-10 overall, but Henry Rodriguez and Jose Hernandez hit solo homers and the Chicago Cubs got a lucky bounce to beat the Houston Astros.

Jon Lieber (1-0) won his first start for the Cubs. He allowed five hits in eight innings, striking out six and walking none.

Rod Beck got a save in his first appearance of the season. With two outs in the ninth, Carl Everett hit a ground-rule double that bounced over the left-field fence, taking away Jeff Bagwell's chance to score from first base.

Beck got Richard Hidalgo on a game-ending grounder.

Sosa, who hit three homers last season off Jose Lima (0-1), was 0-for-3 with a walk.

Expos 5, Mets 1

MONTREAL — Vladimir Guerrero and Shane Andrews each drove in two runs and the Montreal Expos spoiled Orel Hershiser's debut for the New York Mets.

A near-sellout crowd of 43,918 at Olympic Stadium saw Miguel Batista (1-0) win the Expos' home opener.

Batista also had an infield single after starting his career 0-for-41. Ugueth Urbina got his first save.

Angels limp into town to meet Rangers

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — When AL West favorites Anaheim and Texas open a four-game series Friday, neither team will be at its best.

The Angels limp into The Ballpark without two and probably three of their top position players, while three-fourths of the Rangers' starting infield are nursing injuries.

Anaheim began the season with shortstop Gary DiSarcina out for several months because of a broken arm and outfielder Jim Edmonds on the disabled list with groin, back and shoulder injuries.

Then, in the first inning of the season opener on Tuesday, first baseman Mo Vaughn fell into the visitors' dugout chasing a foul ball and sprained his left ankle. His foot was in an air cast Wednesday and he was getting around on crutches. The team set no timetable for his return, but he wants it to be soon.

The Angels, who have dealt with more than their share of injuries in recent years, are prepared to live without their new $80 million man.

"You move on," said outfielder Tim Salmon, himself bitten by the injury bug last year. "You put yourself in a position where, when he comes back, we haven't lost too much ground. It's a long season. If he's out six weeks, we could play terrible the next six weeks. But how many weeks are left after that? We've got time."

Texas had three backups in the infield by the second inning of Wednesday night's 10-7 victory over Detroit because of injuries to first baseman Rafael Palmeiro, second baseman Mark McLemore and shortstop Royce Clayton.

Palmeiro, who missed most of spring training recovering from two operations on his right knee, has been the designated hitter while Lee Stevens takes his spot in the field. Luis Alicea played the first three games while McLemore rested the strained his right hamstring he suffered in an exhibition game last Friday.

Clayton strained a muscle in his throwing shoulder on Tuesday, tried playing Wednesday but took himself out after re-aggravating it in the first inning. His replacement, Jon Shave, was playing his second big league game at shortstop since 1993.

Having Thursday off should help all three injured Rangers, especially Palmeiro, who has been working extra hard the last week.

Both teams are viewing this matchup as just another series — as they should for any four games in April. But everyone understands the importance of their head-to-head meetings.

"You always want to win as many as you can in April so you don't have to win as many in September," said Texas pitcher Mike Morgan. "But you can't win the pennant in April."

The Rangers and Angels were tied for first with a week left in the season when they opened a three-game series in Anaheim last Sept. 21. Texas won all three and went on to claim its second division title in three years.

Both remain the AL West's teams to beat this season. The Angels bolstered their lineup and hoped to improve their locker-room chemistry by signing Vaughn. The Rangers dumped Will Clark in favor of Palmeiro's better bat and glove at the cost of a $45 million, five-year deal.

On Friday night, Anaheim will start Chuck Finley against John Burkett. Angels manager Terry Collins will have a strict 100-pitch limit for Finley, who was bothered by back spasms all spring.

Rangers ace Rick Helling (0-1) will try bouncing back from a horrendous opener on Saturday against Anaheim's fifth starter, Omar Olivares. Tim Belcher (0-0) will pitch for the Angels against Aaron Sele (1-0) in a Sunday night game on ESPN. And on Monday afternoon, former Ranger Ken Hill (0-1) takes on Mark Clark (0-0), who was unimpressive in his Texas debut Wednesday.

Devil Rays take 2nd straight win from O's

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — It was more of the same for Tampa Bay and the Baltimore Orioles on Thursday: Dave Martinez had a big game, Cal Ripken took the night off and the Devil Rays recorded a 6-3 victory.

Martinez drove in three runs, giving him seven RBIs in two games, as the Devils Rays won their second straight from the Orioles after dropping the season opener.

Ripken, meanwhile, missed a second consecutive game for the first time since 1981. The third baseman, who has been bothered by a stiff back, hopes to be back in the Orioles' lineup Friday night.

Bobby Witt (1-0), making his debut with the Devil Rays, gave up two runs in six innings.

■ AL Roundup

Red Sox 4, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Former Royal Jose Offerman had two doubles, scored one run and drove in another as Boston swept the series.

In the three games against his old team, Offerman was 8-for-15 with four doubles, a triple, and five runs scored.

Tim Wakefield (1-0), who was 3-0 against Kansas City last year, went 6 1-3 innings, giving up three hits and one run. Tom Gordon, another former Royal, pitched the ninth for his second save.

Jeff Suppan (0-1), facing his former team for the first time, gave up two runs and six hits in six innings.

Twins 11, Blue Jays 9

MINNEAPOLIS — Rookie Corey Koskie drove in five runs and Marty Cordova matched a career high with four hits.

Koskie, who played 11 games with the Twins at the end of last season, drove in a run in the second, two in the third and two in the fourth as he went 3-for-4 while hitting ninth.

Shawn Green and Jose Cruz Jr. homered for the Blue Jays. Craig Grebeck went 3-for-4 with a walk and two RBIs.

Mike Trombley (1-0) pitched 1 1-3 innings in relief of starter Eric Milton, who allowed six runs on eight hits in 3 2-3 innings. Rick Aguilera pitched the ninth for his first save.

Toronto starter Joey Hamilton (0-1) was even shakier in his AL debut, allowing seven runs and nine hits in 2 1-3 innings.

TRACK: Strambler stands out for Lee

members of the Lee offensive line in football. Steve Subia is ranked first out of all the district shot putters while Justin Painter is among the contenders for a region spot in the discus.

Last year, the Lady Rebels used the Tall City Relays to propel themselves to a district title and a number of regional qualifications.

"It is different this year. In year's past we have used this meet as a tuneup," Lee girls coach Randy Smith said. "There is a chance the kids we run Friday will not run in the same events next Friday (at district). We are in the experimental process. We could have kids running on a relay for the first time at the district meet."

Smith isn't sure what to expect today or down the road although he does have some talent. Maurion Strambler, the only member left from last year's nationally-ranked 800-meter relay team, has the top time in the girls 100 and is among the best in the long jump and triple jump. Smith also feels there are some other events, like the relays, where his team could surprise some people.

The Midland High girls could be in line for one of their more successful Tall City meets in a while. Coach Susan Nix may have the most dominating girls runner in her event in the district — Shai Simpson in the 400 — and with the addition of Simpson and Keisha Taylor to the mile relay, the Lady Bulldogs could be tough in that event too.

"It will be a great warmup meet for district," Nix said. "We are really close with all three of our times in all three relays with the other schools. It is just a matter of who gets the best handoffs and who gets the best start. I am ready to see Friday since we added Keisha and Shai if we get out (get to the regional meet) with the mile relay."

WHAT TO WATCH FOR: While MHS is favored to win the boys team title today, the Central girls might be the team to beat with point scorers across the board... The best race of the day may come in either the boys 100 or 200. MHS' Cooks and Hickey have not lost a finals race to anyone in the district since their sophomore year, but Permian's Roy Williams could be a big threat, depending on whether he enters one or the other or both... Permian's Josh Vickers has the top time in the 1,600... Central triple jumper Bryan Ward should not only win today and next Friday, but contend for a spot for state...

NOTES: Whether the MHS girls will send their mile relay to regionals for the first time since Nix became coach is still uncertain, but they will have a better indication about the prospects after today. Central and Permian are No. 1 and 2 in the event... As far as surprises go, watch out for some newcomers to the Tall City Relays. MHS freshman Amy Bell has a personal-best time of 11 minutes and 50 seconds which is second best in the district. Also, Lee's Linsey Johnson will be running in her first meet since coming to the Lady Rebel track team. Johnson was an all-district forward for the Lee soccer team... OHS' big guns should come in the form of 400-meter runner Cleveland Johnson and 300 hurdlers Ramon Espinoza and Victor Hernandez. Johnson and Espinoza lead the district in their respective events...

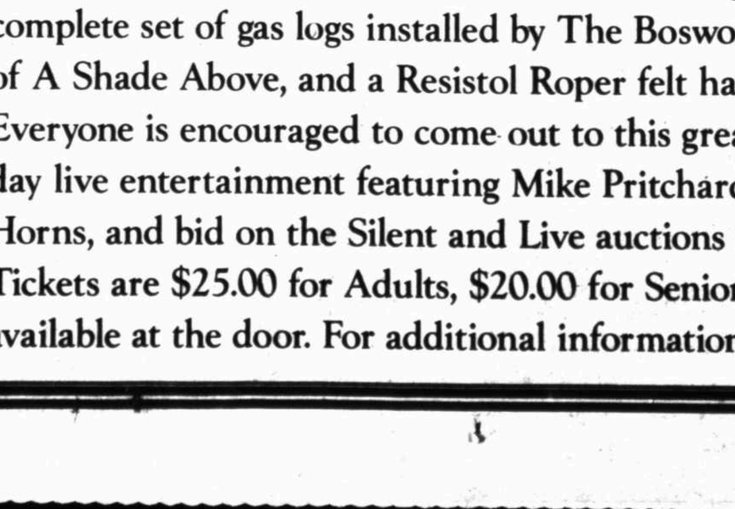
Special Olympics "Live Auction"



Special Olympics Texas-Permian Basin is pleased to announce their association with Thomas Kinkade Signature Galleries of West Texas. Shown (l-r) are Jo Anne Hudson, Special Olympics Development Director and Kathleen Young, President of Thomas Kinkade presenting the signed lithograph, "Everett's Cottage." The lithograph will be a premiere item offered for the Live Auction at Ragin' Cajun '99 being held Saturday, April 10th, at Midland Center from noon until 11:00 pm to benefit Special Olympics.

Spurs survive Rockets' rally, triumph 92-83

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Even after squandering much of their 19-point lead, the San Antonio Spurs weren't worried.

"We don't panic because we've got a veteran team," Mario Elie said Thursday night after the Spurs held off Houston 92-83 for their sixth straight victory. "We know how to close a game out."

Sean Elliott scored 19 points as the Spurs ended Houston's nine-game home winning streak.

"This was a very strong game for us," Elliott said. "It was as good as we've ever looked in stretches."

That's saying a lot for a team that's won 18 of its last 20 games, the best current run in the NBA.

"Defensively, we really got it done," said coach Gregg Popovich. "I think it was maybe our best performance of the year defensively."

Hakeem Olajuwon had 27 points and 12 rebounds for the Rockets, who made a late run after trailing by 19 points midway through the third period.

Houston closed to 88-81 with 1:17 left before Elie made four straight free throws in the final minute to clinch the victory.

Tim Duncan added 18 points and 13 rebounds for the Spurs. Elie finished with 14 points, David Robinson had 13, and Avery Johnson had 10 points and 10 assists.

"We executed our offense really good and we made our shots and played real good defense," Johnson said.

The Spurs held Houston to just two field goals for nearly six minutes to open the second half, while Robinson and Elliott each scored five points to give the Spurs a 68-49 lead midway through the third quarter.

Then the Rockets began chipping away.

Olajuwon and Michael Dickerson each scored five points during a 15-5 Houston run, and Sam Mack's 3-pointer to start the final period keyed a 7-2 spurt that cut the Spurs' lead to 77-71.

■ NBA Roundup

But a dunk by Robinson and a jumper by Johnson restored San Antonio's double-digit lead with 6:05 left.

"Our offense just wasn't there tonight," said Houston's Scottie Pippen, who had only four points on 2-of-7 shooting.

Pippen said a finger injury aggravated earlier in the week hampered him.

"I was not aggressive enough, plus my finger was bothering me," he said.

Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich suggested his team's problems went beyond a bad finger.

"We didn't have the fire we needed," he said. "I don't understand the lack of intensity. They (the Spurs) are a good team but I expected it to be more of a game than it was."

The Rockets, second in the league with more than six 3-pointers per game, were just 2-of-12 from behind the arc. The Spurs, 24th in the league from long range, were 6-of-13 on 3-point attempts.

Celtics 101, Raptors 89

TORONTO — Kenny Anderson scored 23 points and Antoine Walker had 18 points and 10 rebounds as the Boston Celtics beat the Toronto Raptors.

Boston won its second in a row after snapping a four-game losing streak. Toronto has lost two straight at home after winning nine in a row at home.

Ron Mercer had 18 points, Paul Pierce 15 and Vitaly Potapenko 11 for the Celtics, who beat the Raptors for the first time this season following two losses.

Rookie Vince Carter led Toronto with 31 points.

Magic 73, Cavaliers 69

CLEVELAND — Penny Hardaway scored 23 points, Matt Harpring added 14 and 12 rebounds and Orlando overcame a horrible shooting night for its fifth straight win.

The Magic shot 35 percent from the field, 52 percent from the foul line and scored only 14 points in the fourth quarter. But it was enough to beat the tired Cavs, who were playing their third game in three nights.

Cleveland also made only 35 percent of its field-goal attempts and managed just 13 fourth-quarter points. The 69 points were a season-low for the Cavs, who are in the midst of playing seven games in nine nights.

Jazz 92, Warriors 85

SALT LAKE CITY — Karl Malone scored 25 of his season-high 38 points in the second half as the Utah Jazz edged Golden State for their 10th consecutive victory over the Warriors.

The Jazz won their fourth straight game but never pulled away from a Warriors team playing for the fifth time in seven nights. Golden State led 81-80 on Bimbo Coles' jumper with 3:34 to play, but Malone and Bryon Russell hit jumpers to give Utah an 87-81 lead with 1:33 left.

Coles and Chris Mills then hit jumpers to cut Utah's lead to two points with 44 seconds remaining, but Tony Delk turned the ball over and John Starks missed a 3-pointer for the Warriors.

San Antonio's David Robinson (50) tries to block a shot by Houston's Hakeem Olajuwon, left, Thursday in Houston. Robinson's hand came across Olajuwon's face and dragged him to the ground, and Robinson was called for a flagrant foul. The Spurs won, though, 92-83.

Kournikova stays hot, beats No. 1 Davenport

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Anna Kournikova looked over to her mother and flashed a big smile she rarely shows on the court. Indeed, this was a victory to get excited about.

The ninth-seeded Kournikova defeated No. 1 seed Lindsay Davenport 6-4, 6-1 Thursday in the Bausch & Lomb Championships, a victory that intensifies the hot streak that began for the Russian about a month ago.

"I was just happy with the win," she said. "When you beat No. 2 in the world, you should be happy."

Combined with her appearance in the final of the Family Circle Cup last week, Kournikova has a chance to move up as many as 11 places in the rankings over a two-week span by winning a title here.

Either way, the world's 16th-ranked player has a big upset to add to her resume. Her last victory of this magnitude came against Martina Hingis last May in Berlin.

"This was important for me because I haven't beaten a top, top player in some time," she said. "So, this is very good. It gives me a lot of confidence. I need this."

Her next match will be against No. 6 seed Patty Schnyder, a rematch of Kournikova's victory in the semifinals last week.

Schnyder defeated Ines Gorrochategui 7-5, 6-2. Elsewhere in the round of 16, No. 5 Amanda Coetzer beat No. 14 Virginia Ruano Pascual 6-1, 7-5 and Ruxandra Dragomir defeated No. 8 seed Barbara Schett 6-2, 6-2. Two days after beating Venus Williams, Sonya Jeyaseelan fell 6-4, 6-2 to Fabiola Zuluaga of Colombia.

In a late match, defending champion Mary Pierce, the fourth seed, overcame a spotty effort to beat No. 15 Nathalie Dechy 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Pierce faces a quarterfinal Thursday against No. 7 Conchita Martinez, who beat No. 10 Chanda Rubin 7-6 (8-6) 5-7, 6-2 in a test of endurance that lasted 2 hours, 40 minutes. Martinez, who won this tournament in 1995, did a nice job changing paces from the baseline on the slow green clay that suits her game perfectly.

WICHITA FALLS — Midland High's Jay Christian has been selected to play here in the Oil Bowl All-Star basketball game on Thursday, June 24.

This is the second All-Star game that the 6-6 post has been selected to play in before heading to Rice University to play basketball for the Owls.

Christian will join teammate Charles Tatum in the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches All-Star game in San Antonio on May 7. Tatum, who is headed for Arkansas, has also been picked to play in the Texas High School Coaches Association basketball game in July in Fort Worth.

This is the second year in a row that MHS has had a player in the Oil Bowl All-Star game. Kirby Lemons, who now plays at UT-Pan America, also played in the Wichita Falls affair last year.

TAM results

PLANO — The Tennis Association of Midland (TAM) had some area members attend the Championship Major Zone recently.

Dana Giles qualified for the Superchamps in girls 18's. Emily Leeton made it to the quarterfinals.

In the boys 14's, Jonathon Webb made it to the semifinals, and Mathew Daugherty was in the quarterfinals of the consolation.

In the girls 14's, Lauren Wilson was in the quarterfinals of consolation, and Ame Blackater won consolation.

Other member participating were Jess Gimour and Sara Giles.

Arnold Palmer watches his drive off the first tee Thursday at Augusta National Golf Club in Augusta, Ga. Palmer is playing in the tournament for the 45th time.

MASTERS: Rain delays first round

(From 1C)

Augusta even more — from hot, hazy and sun-baked to stormy, swirling winds.

Nick Price, one of 12 players left on the course when play was suspended by darkness, was also at 3-under and will return Friday morning to play the 18th.

Defending champion Mark O'Meara birdied the 18th for the second straight round. This one got him to 2-under 70, along with Colin Montgomerie, Justin Leonard, defending U.S. Open champion Lee Janzen and former Masters champ Jose Maria Olazabal.

Two-time U.S. Open champion Ernie Els three-putted the 18th for double bogey to fall back to 71, tied with Greg Norman. Tiger Woods survived a triple bogey at No. 8 and finished at 72 to tie with a couple of amateurs — Sergio Garcia and Trevor Immelman.

"It was a long, hard day," O'Meara said.

Tell that to David Duval.

Two of the six greens he missed were par-5s. The real killer was No. 13, the easiest hole on the course, where Duval hooked his 3-wood into Rae's Creek and took bogey.

"On a course like this, you're going to run into some bad stuff," Duval said. "You try to outweigh it with the good stuff."

Almost all of the good and bad seemed to take place on the treacherous, tabletop greens.

Love noticed as much while walking down the 14th and 15th fairways. Ahead on the greens, course officials were dousing them with water, trying to keep them from becoming as hard as concrete.

"You can tell," Love said as a sly smile crept over his face, "they've got them right where they want them."

They were right on the edge of going from unrelenting to unfair. And that left players walking the fine line between a solid round and disaster.

"You just don't want to blow yourself out the first day," Love said. "This wasn't going to be a day for real low scores. They took the air out of the greens last night."

Of the 84 players who finished play, only 17 managed to break par.

One of them was Norman, who appreciates the cruel nature of Augusta as well as anyone. He played the final 10 holes in 2-under for a 71 — that's particularly significant since he had played his past five rounds in a combined 23-over.

"It was a fairly stable round, a consistent round," Norman said. "I just go about my business and let everything take care of itself."

The course was playing about one stroke easier than last year, but it was missing the howling, swirling winds from the first round a year ago.

Not that everyone found it easier.

Nick Faldo, a three-time Masters champion, showed how badly his game is suffering when he played the first 15 holes without a birdie and wound up with an 80. Faldo has not broken par at Augusta since his final-round 67 to win the 1996 Masters.

Phil Mickelson had a 3-foot birdie putt on No. 13 for a share of the lead. The putt rimmed out and trouble followed — a double bogey on No. 15, bogeys on the last two holes and a 74.

Els felt about the same way when he walked off the course. He was 3-under after a birdie on the 17th when his drive found the fairway bunker, then he caught a plugged lie in the greenside bunker and three-putted.

"You can't do things like I did on 18," he said.

Woods knows the feeling. His six birdies were more than anyone Thursday, but half of them were wasted on No. 8, where he took an eight.

He hit his drive into trees and found his ball between two pine cones, leaving him little choice but to play it straight — and straight into a tree. The ball caromed back and into the azaleas, from where he had to take a penalty drop.

"This is how you lose a tournament," Woods muttered to himself.

The changes at Augusta were the most significant ever — tee boxes moved back on No. 17 and the par-5 second hole, an elevated green on No. 11, 20 new pine trees lining the fairways between No. 15 and the 17th.

Still, it always comes down to who can survive the slippery, contoured greens.

Chamblee, playing his first Masters, followed his only bogey with an eagle on the par-5 13th, and finished off his 69 by curling in a 6-foot birdie putt on the 18th. If the lead holds up, he would become the first Masters rookie to have a share of the first-round lead since Tom Lehman in 1993.

"I really don't know how the course is going to play the next two or three days," he said. "Every day is going to be a new day for me. I think I know what to expect, but I'm not really sure."

He's not the only one.

The Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A look at Thursday's first round of the Masters at the par-72, 6,985 yard Augusta National:

Leading: Brandel Chamblee, Davis Love III and Scott McCarron at 69, with seven other golfers a stroke behind.

Still out: Nick Price at 3-under with the 18th hole left to play and David Duval 1-under with a hole left.

Shot of the day: Jumbo Ozaki's iron to the 10th green that hit twice and rolled into the hole for an eagle.

Pouring it on: A rare sight at Augusta National: workers watering the greens between groups in the 90-degree heat before a late afternoon thunderstorm came.

Day of delay: Play was slow even before a thunderstorm moved in and suspended action with 33 players still on the course. The first weather disruption of a Masters round since 1993 lasted 95 minutes and darkness settled on Augusta National with 12 players on the course.

Hard to repeat: Nick Faldo shot an 80 and still hasn't broken par at Augusta since winning the 1996 Masters over Greg Norman with a final-round 67.

Nearly perfect: Vijay Singh made only one par on the back nine, at the par-5 13th. He had five birdies and three bogeys for a 34 that gave him a first-round 72.

Play resumes: The golfers who didn't finish their rounds tee off beginning at 8 a.m. Friday.

Defending champion: Mark O'Meara made another birdie on 18, though not with the drama of the one he made to win last year. This birdie gave him a 2-under 70 and left him a shot off the lead.

Quotable: "When you ride horses, you're going to get hurt, and I never got hurt playing golf. So it was an easy choice" — Brandel Chamblee, one of three who shared the first-round lead, on his decision to quit riding cutting horses and concentrate on golf.

Threesomes, unusual rough cause stackups in afternoon at Augusta

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The Masters went to threesomes for the first time since 1962. Afternoon play was as slow as a Saturday at a municipal course.

Defending champion Mark O'Meara's group played the first three holes in exactly one hour.

Then O'Meara, amateur champion Hank Kuehne and Lee Westwood had to wait another 10 minutes before they hit their tee shots on the 205-yard, par-3 No. 4. O'Meara hooked his ball into trouble and took a bogey.

Then a 90-minute weather delay made things even worse.

"Threesomes made play more difficult and longer," O'Meara said. "A 6 1/2-hour round kind of takes it out of you. It wasn't a very good pace of play."

Freshly grown rough also contributed to the slowdown as players tried to figure whether a shot would fly without spin to the green. Augusta National traditionally has had little or no rough.

"Every time you missed the green it was a guessing game," said Scott McCarron, who shot a 3-under-par 69. "I know of one bogey I had because I hit a flier over the green. The rough is difficult to judge."

FLUFF IS BACK: Mike "Fluff" Cowan caddied for Tiger Woods in 1997 when they teamed to win the Masters.

Cowan was without a bag after they split but he landed a new money-maker when Jim Furyk, the man with the helicopter swing, hired him.

"We're going to try it out and see how it works," Furyk said. "My intention and Mike's intention is that Mike is working for me full time."

Furyk said Cowan is one of the best professional caddies on the circuit.

"I was fortunate when I needed a caddie that he was available and wanted to work for me," Furyk said.

Furyk was in the last group to tee off on Thursday.

ARNIE TAKES A BEATING: Arnold Palmer set a Masters record by playing in his 45th consecutive tournament, breaking a tie with Sam Snead.

That was the good part for the 69-year-old Palmer, who hasn't made a cut since 1984.

Palmer, a four-time Masters champion, made double bogey on the first and second holes on his way to a 7-over-par 43 on the front nine. He finished with an 11-over-par 83.

AUGUSTA'S PAR-5s PLAY TOUGH: The best way to go low at Augusta National is to destroy the four par-5s. However, changes to the course have spoiled that cakewalk.

Davis Love shot a 3-under-par 69 without a birdie on a par-5.

"They have turned No. 15 into a scary hole," Love said. "You can't hit it on the green with your second shot (because it's so fast) and you can't hit it on the green with your third shot."

Masters officials had the mounds cut down in the right fairway which used to produce more distance. They also planted pine trees on the right to keep players from bailing out.

Scott McCarron said No. 15 "is a big change. I used to hit it up on the hill and it kicked back to the fairway. Today I hit a 3-iron in there and that's a club or two different."

FALDO FOLDO: It was difficult to believe Nick Faldo had won two Masters titles in the 1990s the way he played on Thursday.

Faldo won in 1990 and 1996 but his game has been on a slow slide. He missed the cut in two tournaments this year, was diqualified in another, and finished 55th last week in the BellSouth Classic.

Disaster was his playing companion on Thursday. He double bogeyed the 575-yard par-5 second hole on his way to a 4-over-par 40. Coming home he got his first birdie on the par-3 No. 16, the only highlight for another 4-over-par 40 and an 8-over-par 80 total.

Gary Player, who is 63, beat Faldo by a shot.

SINGH ROLLER COASTER: How can you shoot a 2-under 34 on the back nine at Augusta National and make only one par? Just read Vijay Singh's card.

The 1998 PGA champion shot a 2-over-par 38 on the front side, and then came Vijay's follies.

He went birdie, bogey, birdie, par, bogey, birdie, birdie, bogey, birdie.

Singh finished even par 72 for the wild and crazy day.

EIGHTIES CLUB IS CROWDED: Doug Ford, the 1957 Masters champion, had the high score in Thursday's first round with a 16-over-par 88.

He was joined in the 80s by Joe Durant with 87, Billy Casper, the 1970 champion with 86, four-time champion Arnold Palmer with an 83 and Gay Brewer Jr., the 1967 champion, and three-time champion Nick Faldo with 80s,

O'Meara scores birdie No. 18 again

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Defending champion Mark O'Meara had that special feeling again Thursday standing over a birdie putt on the 18th hole in the Masters.

Last year, O'Meara holed a 20-foot birdie putt on the last hole to win his first green jacket.

This time it was an 8-footer that would give him a hard-earned 2-under-par 70 to conclude a weather-delayed round that took 6 1/2 hours.

"I wasn't quite as nervous today as I was last year," O'Meara said. "But I felt good over the putt like I did last year. It brought back memories knowing I could do it when I had to.

"It was a good way to end what turned out to be a long, hard day. It was nice to get off to a good start."

O'Meara was only a shot behind those who finished their round. Four groups were still on the course when play was suspended.

Not many fans followed O'Meara although he was defending champion. He was "third-fiddle" behind David Duval and Tiger Woods when the first round began.

He had about 150 faithful followers while most fans trooped after Duval, the No. 1 player in the world, and Woods, ranked No. 2.

O'Meara survived the day in his typical grinding style to prove once again it's foolish to overlook the man who won the Masters and British Open in 1998.

Oil prices drop

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil and other products fell Thursday for a second day in futures trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange amid increasing skepticism about whether world oil producers will honor commitments to reduce output.

Crude retreated below $16 a barrel, giving back more of the gains that came after the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries and other oil producers agreed to cut 2.1 million barrels daily from world production beginning a week ago.

Analysts say it may take months to determine whether producers are complying, and many market participants are noting that the producers never fully met a round of cuts agreed to a year ago.

Meantime, several key refineries on the West Coast were coming back to full service, easing fears about spot gasoline shortages across the country before the heavy summer driving period.

Contracts for May delivery of light, sweet crude fell 20 cents to $15.83 a barrel; May unleaded gasoline fell 0.99 cent to 49.52 cents a gallon; May heating oil fell 0.43 cent to 40.84 cents a gallon; May natural gas rose 3.6 cents to $2.060 for each 1,000 cubic feet.

In London, North Sea Brent Blend crude oil for delivery in May settled at $14.21 per barrel, down 14 cents, at the International Petroleum Exchange.

Euro falls

NEW YORK (Bloomberg) — The euro fell against the dollar after the European Central Bank cut its benchmark interest rate more than expected and ECB President Wim Duisenberg said he wasn't troubled by the euro's weakness.

Duisenberg's comments "led people to believe (the ECB) might tolerate a lower euro," said Hugh Walsh, a trader at Commerzbank.

The euro dropped to $1.0748 from $1.0775 yesterday in New York, reversing an earlier gain. Immediately after the rate announcement, the currency jumped as high as $1.0872 on optimism lower rates would support European economic growth.

Southwest help

All workers of Southwest Royalties Inc. of Midland who lost their job due to lack of work on or after Feb. 11, 1998, are eligible for Trade Adjustment Assistance. Under petition number TA-W-35,739 certified April 1, 1999 and expiring April 1, 2001, workers who were partially separated from employment with Southwest Royalties will also qualify for assistance. The assistance is available to workers who lose their jobs or whose hours of work and wages are reduced as a result of increased imports. Assistance includes benefits and reemployment services. Additionally, weekly trade adjustment allowances may be payable to eligible workers following their exhaustion of unemployment benefits.

Minority business

The Big Bend Region Minority and Small Business Development Center at Sul Ross State University will present Smart Jobs Fund training workshops April 14 and 15 in Alpine and Fort Stockton. Smart Jobs representative Peg Callahan will present the workshops at 10 a.m. April 14 at the Briscoe Administration Building at Sul Ross and at 10 a.m. April 15 at the Fort Stockton Chamber of Commerce. Report: Some Y2K fixes only temporary

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff Writer

While many computer systems have been made Y2K-complaint, some information system specialists have apparently fixed the problem only temporarily and those systems can expect another problem to recur in the year 2030, at least according to a report by the Associated Press last month.

According to that report, "the temporary fix, using a sophisticated twist of logic to fool computers, is highly controversial among insiders because it's intended to work only for a few decades — typically 30 years. One expert describes computers already fixed with the technique as 'little ticking time bombs waiting to go off.'"

That technique is called "windowing," and the procedure saves money because it's an easy fix, even if it just works for a small window of time. The permanent fix is called "expansion," and requires a tedious line-by-line repair of all the dates expressed in two-digit years rather than four digits.

Keith Yarbrough, information resources manager at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, said there's not a single problem or a single solution to Y2K.

"Most of our stuff will be remediated with a combination of stuff," Yarbrough said. "There's no specific fix. A lot of the stuff we have is a matter of testing and verifying that everything is going to be OK."

According to the AP report, by using windowing, "programmers instruct software to guess the century for dates that fall within a specific window of time, such as the next three decades. The computer interprets the year based on a future so-called hinge date that programmers choose arbitrarily.

Chuck Gibson, communications and information systems director with the city of Midland, said that he has gone the full four-digit fix, thus preventing any problems in the 21st century.

"What these programmers are doing apparently is going in and getting a real quick fix," Gibson said. "I guess they're thinking if they do it now, by the time the problem rolls around again they'll have a new system in place."

April 9, today, has also been identified as a potential problem date. Julian calendars recognize today's date as the 99th day of the 99th year. Four nines are an indication for a computer to shut down, but according to Gibson, the Julian calendar reads today as 99099, not 9999. Yarbrough said the four nines problem should affect only older, more outdated computers that were first put into use in the 1960s and '70s.

Yarbrough said the really interesting problem would come in the year 2038, a date that could bring a massive outage for any computer that runs on the Unix operating system.

"The way time is represented on the Unix system, it is basically represented as the number of seconds since a certain date," Yarbrough said. "That number of seconds can no longer be represented by a 16-bit system. You run out of ones. Sixteen bits is only a certain size number, so that's the more interesting and the even more troubling problem."

Dow in record territory again, up 112.39 to 10,197.70

AP Photo

Traders watch a monitor on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange Thursday. At the close on Wall Street, the Dow Jones Industrial Average was up 112.39 at 10,197.70.

Blue-chip index carries market to new highs

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks surged higher Thursday, lifting the Dow Jones industrial average to another record high, as a drop in interest rates eased investor fears about upcoming corporate profit reports.

The Dow rose 112.39 to 10,197.70, taking the blue-chip index past the closing high of 10,085.31 it set Wednesday. It was the Dow's third record close this week; the index has gained 365 points over the past four sessions.

Two broader market indicators, the Nasdaq composite index and the Standard & Poor's 500 index, also set new closing highs for the third time this week.

The Nasdaq, which is heavily weighted with technology stocks, rose 28.96 to 2,573.39 despite a lackluster performance from stalwarts Dell and Intel. The S&P 500 rose 17.09 to 1,343.98.

Two interest rate cuts in Europe — one by the Bank of England and the other by the European Central Bank — helped the stock market cope with worries about upcoming earnings reports.

The rate cuts sent prices higher and yields lower in the U.S. bond market — the yield on the 30-year Treasury bond fell to 5.44 percent from 5.50 late Wednesday. That trend pleased Wall Street because reduced borrowing costs will take less of a toll on corporate profits.

Financial stocks, which are particularly sensitive to changes in interest rates, closed higher, with Citigroup up 1 5/16 to 73 and American Express advancing 1 15/16 at 127 3/4. Both are Dow components.

Lower interest rates in Europe could also prompt more spending in that region, which would help U.S. companies that do business overseas.

Stock traders have treaded cautiously in recent days amid warnings that some companies' first-quarter earnings would be disappointing. Even the Dow's 121-point surge Wednesday was evidence of a wary market — investors were avoiding risky technology stocks and seeking the relative safety of blue chips.

Stocks of Dow companies with a big international presence rose moderately Thursday, including Coca-Cola, up 1 15/16 to 60 7/8 and drug giant Merck, up 1 7/16 to 81 5/8.

Technology stocks fluctuated through the session as traders were encouraged by a strong Yahoo! earnings report late Wednesday but remained cautious about other company earnings.

Yahoo! fell 1 3/4 to 206 11/16 after running up sharply earlier in the week.

On the Nasdaq, Dell Computer fell 1 7/16 to 45 and Intel fell 1 1/16 to 131 1/16, as some high-tech stocks dropped in response to a disappointing earnings outlook from Advanced Micro Devices, which fell 5/8 to 15 9/16.

Healthy March sales reports helped most retailers, including Dow component Wal-Mart, which rose 4 3/4 to 102 1/4.

General Electric, which reported earnings in line with analysts' expectations, down 1/2 to 114.

The biggest mover on the Dow was chemical maker Union Carbide, which rose 5 1/2 to 51 3/8 on takeover speculation. Union Carbide is frequently the subject of merger rumors.

The NYSE composite index rose 8.05 to 624.28, and the American Stock Exchange composite index rose 4.63 to 721.93.

The Russell 2000 index of smaller companies rose 2.121 to 399.89.

In local housing, sales increase while prices fall

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Midland housing sales leaped higher in March, figures from the Permian Basin Board of Realtors indicate.

In March, 114 homes sold, up from 85 in February and 71 in January. The average sales price, however, dropped to $88,270 from $96,346 in February and $95,776 in January.

Still, said Skeet Doss of Langston Realtors, president of the board for 1999, "We still have buyers and sellers who are holding out and getting their price."

He noted that listings also took a sharp increase, rising to 872 as of April 1 from 757 as of March 1. "But we're absorbing them fast," he said as the industry heads into what he said is the buying and selling season.

The silver lining to Midland's recent economic cloud, real estate agent Skeet Doss said, is that the housing market has improved its inventory.

With the price of oil up about 40 percent since mid-winter, buyers are feeling a little more optimistic "and I hope we've seen the last of the big layoffs," he said.

Low mortgage rates continue to support the market, he said.

One silver lining in the economic cloud that has hovered over the oil and gas industry, he said, is that it has allowed the Midland market to improve its inventory.

"We were short of houses, now we're back in a healthy market."

Jack Harris, research economist with the Real Estate Center at Texas A&M University, said that the Odessa-Midland metropolitan statistical area (MSA) is different from most other areas in Texas.

According to the center's statistics, sales in Odessa-Midland were up 1 percent in 1998 with prices gaining 5 percent — both median sales price and the average sales price. Meanwhile inventory fell 3 percent.

Statewide, however, sales were up 15 percent and inventory was down 13 percent, Harris said.

In most markets across the state, he said, "there's a combination of an increase or better-than-usual sales and lower inventory. Inventory is falling in those markets where the economy is doing well, where fewer people are having to move out."

Building permits for new homes rose 4 percent for Odessa-Midland, compared with a 22 percent gain statewide.

Harris agreed with Doss that interest rates are fueling the housing market "and I haven't seen any indications people expect rates to increase."

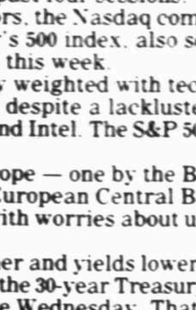
Higher oil prices will take time to impact the market in energy-dependent Odessa-Midland, he said.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Stock index funds wise choice for individual investor

By Eric Tyson

Q: I am new to the stock market and mutual funds. Given the choice to invest in stock market index funds, would you invest in Vanguard's Index Total Stock Market fund or Vanguard's Index 500 fund and why? What would be the determining factors?



Tyson

A: For someone who is "new" to investing, you're looking at excellent investment options and asking an astute question!

The difference between the two funds you're considering is that the Index 500 fund, which invests to track the performance of the Standard & Poor's 500 index, invests in larger company stocks. The Total Stock Market fund invests in those same larger company stocks as well as medium and smaller company stocks and seeks to track the performance of the broad Wilshire 5000 stock market index.

Over time, both funds should produce about the same annualized rate of return, so I don't think you should dwell on the choice for too long. During shorter time periods, one may do better than the other. For example, for the three-year period ended Jan. 31, 1999, the Index 500 fund returned 28.5 percent per year vs. 25.4 percent for the Total Stock Market fund.

Both funds have fairly similar dividend yields — 1.1 percent for the Index 500 fund vs. 1.2 percent for the Total Stock Market fund. During most market cycles, larger company stocks tend to pay higher dividends but that is not the case now. With the beneficial treatment accorded capital gains in the tax laws and relatively high tax rates placed on dividend income, it seems that investors rightfully prefer low dividends and having companies reinvest more of their profits.

I prefer the Total Stock Market fund for two reasons. First, it is more diversified since it holds stocks in companies of all sizes instead of just large company stocks. Secondly, since smaller company stocks have done worse of late, they may be due for a better run.

That said, we are late in a bull market — how late is unclear. When a down market hits, smaller company stocks often perform worse.

Q: The low interest rate on money funds is depressing, but I have some money that I don't want to put at risk in the stock market as I expect to spend this money in a few years. Can you recommend something better? Should I consider a bond fund?

A: Of all bond funds, short-term bond funds are the least sensitive to interest-rate fluctuations. Their stability makes them the most appropriate bond funds for money that you want to earn a better rate of return on than a money market fund could produce. But with short-term bond funds you also have to tolerate the risk of losing a percent or two in principal value if rates rise.

Short-term bonds work well for money that you've earmarked for use in a few years, such as the purchase of a home or a car, or that you plan to withdraw from your retirement account in the near future.

Bond funds that pay taxable dividends are appropriate when you're not in a high tax bracket and for investing inside retirement accounts.

State and federally tax-free short-term bond funds are scarce. If you want shorter-term bonds, invest in federally tax-free bond funds (the dividends on them are state taxable) if you're in a high federal bracket.

HOW TO READ THE MARKET IN REVIEW

Here are the 1,675 most active stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, 925 most active on the Nasdaq National Market and 405 most active on the American Stock Exchange. Stocks in bold are worth at least $5 and changed 5 percent or more in price. Underlining for 50 most active on NYSE and Nasdaq and 25 most active on Amex. Tables show name, price and net change, and one to two additional fields rotated through the week, as follows:

Name: Stocks appear alphabetically by the company's full name (not its abbreviation). Names consisting of initials appear at the beginning of each letter's list.
Last: Price stock was trading at when exchange closed for the day.
Chg: Loss or gain for the day. No change indicated by ...
YTD: Percent change in price since December 31.
How to use: The year-to-date percent change compares the most recent price with the company's price as of Dec. 31. The number is a good way to compare and track the performance of different companies in the same industry or the same town.

Benchmarks are important in investing and the year-to-date percent change can be a useful field of information when used as a benchmark. If you were considering investing in the automotive industry, for example, you could watch to see which auto stock was enjoying the best performance so far this year by looking at this field.

These numbers can be helpful in following stocks but as with all financial data are only one of many factors to use in determining how to invest. Consult your financial advisor before making any investment decision.

Stock Footnotes: cc – PE greater than 99. dd – Loss in last 12 mos. d – New 52-wk low during trading day. g – Dividend in Canadian $. Stock price in U.S. $. n – New issue in past 52 weeks. s – Split or stock dividend of 25 percent or more in last 52 weeks. Dividend begins with date of split or stock dividend. u – New 52-wk high during trading day. v – Trading halted on primary market. Unless noted, dividend rates are annual disbursements based on last declaration. pf – Preferred. pp – Holder owes installment(s) of purchase price. rt – Rights. un – Units. wd – When distributed. wi – When issued. wt – Warrants. ww – With warrants. xw – Without warrants.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll have: 5-Dymanic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, April 9, 1999:

Expect the most from life, and you'll create it this year. You find extraordinary opportunities for making money through innate talents. If you are an artist, writer or creative type, you seem to be unstoppable. However, no matter what field you are in, you prosper. Follow your inner voice, which could be very active. If you are single, romance reigns. Your unusual attractiveness draws others. You have your pick this year, and the relationship you choose could be long-term. If attached, you begin a new cycle together. Allow more caring to flow, and indulge the special person in your life. AQUARIUS is a pal.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Be imaginative and direct when dealing with those at work. Pat yourself on the back; you know when to spend and when not to. A gift for a loved one builds good will. Listen carefully to another; sharing feelings is his way of relating. Make plans to socialize with a co-worker later on. Tonight: Kick up your heels!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ You wake up knowing that you will get to do something you really want to do. Pack your day with at least one happy event. Take a break from responsibilities. Let more joy shine in your life. Your smile naturally wins you friends. Tonight: A must appearance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Take time to walk a partner through a business decision. You see the ins and outs of work differently than he does, yet you require his support. You could be overly sensitive; if you're feeling hurt, take an overview. Another does not mean for you to take a comment personally. Tonight: A weekend escape.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Others seek you out. The frenzy over plans keeps interrupting work. Be gracious with friends; understand how they want your companionship. A friendship could be developing into more. Examine long-term goals; be willing to break patterns. Tonight: Take off ASAP.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Plug into work. Allow others to pinch hit when you need help. Others appreciate your confidence in them and will do an excellent job. A boss or someone you put on a pedestal approves of you professionally, and possibly beyond. Build better relationships through greater trust. Tonight: With the gang.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ Allow your imagination to emerge. Let others offer more feedback. You resolve problems quickly if you work as a team. Catch up on correspondence. How can you refuse a special invitation? Be willing to try a new set of plans. Tonight: Go for the unusual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Build stronger foundations. Understand what others really want for you. Pace yourself to get everything done. Be careful about allowing too many distractions into your life. An associate seems more than happy to give you the kind of approval you want. Tonight: Go for togetherness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Think before you leap into action. Communication is active and takes you on a different route than you anticipated. Creativity surges. A friendship becomes very important to you. You can trust another. Simply ask for advice and/or feedback. Tonight: Play computer games.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Finances absorb all of your attention. You might not be ready to discuss problems on the necessary level. Discussions revolve around work, home and greater flexibility. You could easily be distracted by others. Keep objectives in mind. Tonight: Talk about work with a friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ You're inspired, both financially and creatively. Let a loved one know more about what works for you. Imagination peaks because of another's approach. Be willing to hash through ideas and concepts. Allow more caring into your life. Tonight: Treat another.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Accept another's counsel about a relationship or domestic matter. This person is coming from a loving space and can only help you. Listen to feedback from others on a money matter. You don't need to make a decision just yet. Be an information gatherer. Tonight: You are the star.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ You are full of information and chatter. Be willing to express your ideas. Don't let another inhibit you unnecessarily. You need to be more secure. Make that special phone call, reach out for another. A lunch meeting proves most positive. Be open to a little fun mixed with work. Tonight: Make it early.

Opening lead: King of ♠

You never know where lightning will strike. Consider this hand from an international team event.

Our choice with the West hand would be to open four spades. It could keep the opponents out of the auction and even opposite this worthless dummy, can be defeated at most two tricks.

At both tables, however, West opted for one spade and South became declarer at five diamonds. West started with the king and ace of spades, declarer ruffing the second. Declarer now had 10 tricks, and the easy route to 11 was to ruff dummy's last spade in the closed hand. Declarer crossed to the king of hearts and ruffed the spade, cashed the queen of diamonds and returned to the table with a trump. The remaining trumps were drawn and declarer's only other loser was a club. Seems simple enough, but...

The play started the same way at the other table but here, after ruffing the second trick, declarer entered dummy with a trump to ruff the remaining spade. On this trick East discarded the singleton heart! Now declarer, down to the bare queen of diamonds, had no way to reach dummy to draw trumps. If declarer overtook the queen of trumps, East would have a trump trick. Instead, South cashed the queen of diamonds, then tried a heart to the king, but East's ruff was the death knell!

Judge Judy's husband to replace Koch

NEW YORK — Next case up on courtroom TV: Sheindlin vs. Sheindlin.

Former Mayor Ed Koch is being replaced as the judge on "The People's Court" by Gerald Sheindlin — who's married to the tough-talking star of that other courtroom TV show, "Judge Judy."

The Sheindlins are retired judges who were appointed to the bench by Koch himself.

Ms. Sheindlin said the two shows "are like life's dessert and I'm really excited about the fact that my husband gets to share that."

But she warned: "I want him to become accustomed to the fact that No. 2 is very good. If he starts nipping at the heels of No. 1, he better use some of those extra dollars to hire a food-taster."

As for Koch and his failed TV outing, the former mayor said he once thought he could approach Ms. Sheindlin's success, but "she's a real judge. That's TV."

Ed Koch is being replaced on 'The People's Court' by Judge Judy's husband.

LOS ANGELES — Film 'em, Danno.

The TV series "Hawaii Five-0" will be made into a movie now that a rights dispute between CBS and the estate of the show's creator has been resolved.

The movie's producer, George Litto, and the widow of show creator Leonard Freeman prevailed in a 21-month arbitration battle with the network over film rights to the story about the island adventures of no-nonsense cop Steve McGarrett.

"It's a major franchise," Litto said Wednesday. "It's the kind of television show that became part of the fabric of society. McGarrett became the symbol, the epitome of the tough, honest, dedicated cop."

Litto said he has a script and a large line of credit. He plans to approach studios and stars about getting a big-budget project off the ground. He hopes to be on location in Hawaii as early as this fall.

CBS said in a statement: "We believe it would have been better for the project if we had prevailed in the arbitration, but obviously we did not. We wish Mr. Litto all the best with his project."

The series ran on CBS from 1968 to 1980.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — A lawsuit accusing Tammy Wynette's doctor and husband of negligence in her death has "no basis in fact," attorneys for the doctor said Thursday.

It was the first comment from the camp of Dr. Wallis Marsh of Pittsburgh since the $50 million wrongful death lawsuit was filed Monday by three of Wynette's daughters.

"When the facts become known ... it will be more than clear that Dr. Marsh, and the physicians from the University Medical Center who worked with him to develop Ms. Wynette's treatment plan, provided extraordinary medical care to a person who suffered extraordinary medical problems," read a statement from Marsh's attorneys.

The country star was found dead at home in April 1998 by her fifth husband, George Richey, also named in the suit. Marsh signed the death certificate and listed the cause of death as a blood clot in the lungs.

The three daughters have charged that Marsh didn't monitor Ms. Whynette's condition closely and overprescribed medication. They also said Richey didn't seek medical care for Ms. Wynette after being urged to do so by Marsh on the day of her death.

LOS ANGELES — A judge has tossed out a lawsuit claiming O.J. Simpson prosecutor Marcia Clark and two former detectives had no authority to publish crime-scene photos in their books about the murder case.

The suit said the photos were state property and should not have been used for personal profit.

Superior Court Judge Alan G. Buckner dismissed the case Wednesday, saying Merritt Lori McKeon failed to show she had legal standing to sue.

The suit was filed under a California whistle-blower law that allows a private citizen to sue on behalf of the state. The lawsuit sought unspecified damages and a halt to publication of the photos.

A lawsuit against Marcia Clark has been thrown out of court.

SPOTSYLVANIA, Va. — A former aide described by blind civil rights leader James Farmer as "my eyes and my legs" was sentenced to a year in jail for stealing from Farmer and was ordered to repay $10,000.

Lester William Day, 58, pleaded guilty in February. He was sentenced Wednesday.

"My situation did not give Lester the right to take advantage of me," Farmer wrote in a letter read in court.

Farmer, 79, lost his sight and both legs to diabetes.

Day moved into Farmer's home in 1997 and ran errands, such as driving Farmer and picking up the mail.

He intercepted several checks sent to Farmer in the mail and drew money from Farmer's account at cash machines.

Farmer organized the civil rights movement's Freedom Rides in the 1960s and founded the Congress of Racial Equality.

MEREDITH: Water clear; 41 degrees; Black bass are slow on jig-n-pigs fished in the backs of the creeks in the afternoon. Smallmouth bass are fair on Fle-Fly jigs tipped with a minnow fished off the main lake points and sluffs in 10 feet of water. Walleye are good on shad, jigs and crankbaits fished at night around the marina. During the day try slabs fished in 30 feet of water.

PALO DURO: Water murky; 49 degrees; Black bass are slow. Crappie are fair on minnows and jigs fished in the shallows. Walleye are slow. Channel and blue catfish to 15 pounds are fair to good on shad and perch fished in 15 to 20 feet of water.

CENTRAL

BROWNWOOD: Water stained; 75 degrees; 2.5' low; Black bass are good in the river on chartreuse and white Excaliber spinnerbaits fished around brush piles and off the bank (try fishing around the rock drop-offs at the dam on the main lake). Crappie are good on minnows and white jigs fished around the docks at night in 10 to 15 feet of water. White bass and hybrid stripers are good on silver and blue Rat-L-Traps fished in 5 to 10 feet of water.

Krone retiring after riding 3,541 winners

By Richard Rosenblatt
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Two months ago, while hanging on for her life in the starting gate at the Fair Grounds as a crazed horse tried to throw her, jockey Julie Krone came to this realization: "I don't want to do this anymore."

On Thursday, thoroughbred racing's winningest female rider sat comfortably behind a small table in the press box at Aqueduct and said she's retiring April 18.

"There's a constellation of reasons for me to retire," said Krone, who won 3,541 races and more than $80 million in purses over an 18-year career. "I'm on top, I'm 35 years old, I don't want to get hurt anymore, and I've got nothing left to prove."

At 4-foot-10 1/2, 100 pounds, Krone not only became the only female to win a Triple Crown race — she won the 1993 Belmont Stakes aboard Colonial Affair — but was an inspiration for other females to excel in sports previously dominated by men.

"She's been an inspiration for not only me, but for every girl that came along," jockey Diane Nelson said. "I can remember a change happening, when you had big outfits, and the nice horses, and people would take a chance on a girl. It wasn't an oddity."

Krone, married since 1995 to Matt Muzikar, said there are no definite plans for the future, adding she has "many options." Among those are working in television — "I'd love to be able to work in TV during Derby week" — dabbling in art and photography and continuing her education toward a psychology degree.

Krone, who rides this weekend in Florida and Maryland, will end her career the following Sunday at Lone Star Park in Texas.

Although her career was plagued by injuries, she appeared to be in top form after finishing third in the Fair Grounds jockey standings with 84 winners. She also surpassed the 3,500-win mark and won five races in a day on two occasions.

But there were too many aches and pains.

"It's like this Olympic runner I read about (who set three world records the summer she decided to quit)," Krone said. "I'd go to sleep at night, and my ankle hurt and my knee hurt and I'd think, 'I just want to get this over with.'"

Krone began her impressive run of success in 1987, five years after winning her first riding title at Atlantic City. She became the first female to win riding titles at major tracks such as Monmouth Park and the Meadowlands in New Jersey. In 1989, she was the nation's third-leading rider with 368 winners.

By 1991, she was a regular on the New York circuit and a year later won a career-best $9.1 million in purses. In '92 and '93, Krone won riding titles at Gulfstream Park.

On Aug. 20, 1993, she became the third jockey to win five races in a day at Saratoga. Angel Cordero Jr. and Ron Turcotte were the others.

But 10 days later, Krone went down in a spill and severely fractured her right ankle, which required two plates and 14 screws to reconstruct. Nine months later, she was riding again.

'99 Blue Grass Stakes features talented field

LEXINGTON, Ky. — The Blue Grass is deep this year.

"From top to bottom, this is as strong a field as I've ever seen," Elliott Walden, trainer of Menifee, said Thursday after eight 3-year-olds were entered in the Blue Grass Stakes Saturday at Keeneland.

"We could take these eight horses, put them in the Derby and you wouldn't need anybody else and it would be a good Derby."

The Blue Grass shapes up as the toughest of three Kentucky Derby stepping stones to be contested Saturday. The others are the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct and the Arkansas Derby at Oaklawn Park.

All three races will be televised live.

"It is a very deep field," said Scotty Schulhofer, trainer of Lemon Drop Kid. "It's going to be one of the best preps for the Derby there could have been."

Five of those entered for the 1 1/8-mile, $750,000 race, sponsored by Toyota, are 9-2 or less in the early line.

"All these horses have credentials to be the winner, and you can make a case for every horse in the race," said Barry Knight, assistant to D. Wayne Lukas, trainer of Cat Thief.

The only colt who could be considered an outsider is 30-1 Prado's Landing, owned by the Maktoum family of Dubai. He won one of three starts last year at Laurel, none farther than 5 1/2 furlongs. His only race this year was in a 1 1/8-mile trial in Dubai.

Although Vicar won the Fountain of Youth and Florida Derby, the 5-2 early favorite for the Blue Grass is Wondertross, who had a traffic problem in the upper stretch, then closed to finish second by a nose in the Florida Derby. Vicar is second at 3-1.

"It's nice to be the favorite, but it still doesn't put you in the winner's circle," said Jerry Bailey, Wondertross' jockey. "Vicar is a tough horse. I rode him before (to a win in the second start of the colt's career Nov. 4 at Churchill Downs)."

The co-third choices at 4-1 are Cat Thief, second by a neck in the Fountain of Youth and a half-length behind Wondertross in the Florida Derby, and Menifee, winner of his first three career starts before finishing second to Pineaff in the Tampa Bay Derby.

Gordon loves to be in Bristol in spring

By Joe Macenka
AP Sports Writer

BRISTOL, Tenn. — On paper, Jeff Gordon appears to be a prohibitive favorite to win the Food City 500 at Bristol Motor Speedway. Rusty Wallace knows better.

When the green flag drops Sunday on the .533-mile, high-banked oval, Gordon will be seeking his fifth consecutive victory in Bristol's spring Winston Cup race.

Such a feat would make Gordon only the second driver in the history of the circuit to win an event five years in a row. Richard Petty won five straight Capitol City 500s at the former Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway from 1970-74, and he holds the NASCAR record with six consecutive victories in the Gwyn Staley 400 at the now-inactive North Wilkesboro Speedway from 1970-75.

"I'm amazed that we've won as many as we have at Bristol," Gordon said as the drivers prepared for Friday's opening round of qualifying.

Had it not been for some misfortune by Wallace, however, Gordon's run of Bristol superiority likely would have ended two years ago.

Wallace dominated the 1997 Food City 500, leading four times for 240 of the event's 500 laps. He led going into the third turn on the final lap before Gordon tapped him from behind, loosening Wallace's Ford Thunderbird enough for Gordon to slip past in his Chevrolet Monte Carlo about 600 feet from the finish.

"Even though it wasn't fun in finishing second that day, it was quite amusing to hear all the fans later calling the place, 'the scene of the crime' and all," Wallace said. "It's one of those things that you file away mentally and hope to be able to respond accordingly, given the chance in the future."

That chance looked like it was coming last year, when Wallace again appeared to be the class of the field. He led six times for 220 of the first 397 laps before his car encountered engine troubles, fell off the pace and eventually crashed after hitting a piece of debris from Ricky Rudd's car.

"I was frustrated," said Wallace, who has six victories and five poles at Bristol, including top starting spots in both of the 1998 races at the track. "Every time I go to Bristol, it's always good, so I'm excited about it."

While Gordon's success in the spring race is impressive, it doesn't match the overpowering display of Darrell Waltrip at Bristol. He won seven consecutive races at the track from 1981-84.

"It wasn't like I always had the dominant car," Waltrip said, "but I had the dominant luck."

Gordon will be looking for a change of luck after posting the worst finish of his Winston Cup career two weeks ago at Texas Motor Speedway. The three-time series champion crashed hard into a concrete retaining wall, leaving him woozy and with bruised ribs and relegating him to a last-place finish in the 43-car field.

"I'm feeling much better," he said. "My ribs are still a bit sore and I can feel it mostly when I take a deep breath. I feel fortunate that nothing was cracked, chipped or broken. I've just been sore. I'm ready for Bristol, though. I won't need a relief driver or anything like that this weekend."

PHARMACEUTICAL SALES REPRESENTATIVE

Ortho- McNeil Pharmaceutical Inc.
A Johnson & Johnson Company is interviewing for a pharmaceutical sales representative.

In 1993 Johnson and Johnson merged Ortho Pharmaceutical Corporation with McNeil Pharmaceutical to create Ortho- McNeil Pharmaceutical. The merger of these Johnson & Johnson companies created a formidable new company- a leader in four core franchises: Women's Healthcare, Anti- infective/ Analgesic, Central Nervous System and Wound Healing.

The requirements are a Bachelors degree in any field, a valid driver's license and strong communication and interpersonal skills.

The job responsibilities are to call on targeted customers including physicians, pharmacists and other Healthcare customers to sell our products and services within a specific geographic area. Each representative is responsible for attaining sales goals and implementing company sales strategies in their territory.

There is tremendous opportunity for growth into management or marketing positions within the Organizations. We offer a fully structured training and development program.

We offer competitive starting salaries, bonus plans, company vehicle, full health insurance and many more exciting benefits.

If interested, please forward a resume to:
J.W. Davis
13423 Blanco Rd. #268
