College construction about 85% complete

Has seven miles of computer, video cable

By DARLENE BIRKES
Special writer

Clarendon College-Pampa Center students will begin the year 2000 in a new classroom building equipped with the latest technology for long-distance learning in the area.

This will enable students to take advanced college courses for credit, beyond the two-year level. Approximately seven-miles of computer and video cable have been installed by MicroAge of Lubbock for the advanced technology system, and this does not include the electrical cable installed.

"Barring bad weather, we should be completely finished (with the building) by the end of November," said Vijay K. Mittal of West Texas Contractors Inc., of Amarillo. "This has been a very good project; everyone has really cooperated," added Mittal, who estimated the building is 85 percent complete.

Construction of the new building was four years in the planning and required two community financial drives. The first phase raised approximately $700,000 in 1996.

The original plans called for a $4.6 million, two-story complex. After scaling down the project to a proposed $2.6 million building, the second drive, a "now or never" campaign, was held in July, 1998, with a $600,000 challenge from M.K. Brown Foundation. The community exceeded the challenge within two months, with contributions and pledges from several companies and organizations and from many individuals.

"The Pampa Center Foundation Board members were pleased with the generosity of donors for making the building possible without tax money being used," said Don Lane, chairman.

Contributions are still needed for furniture and landscaping, and these can be mailed to Clarendon College-Pampa Center, P.O. Box 1781, Pampa, TX 79065.

BGR Architects-Engineers of Lubbock designed the building. The construction contract was awarded to West Texas Contractors, Inc., for $2.1 million with approximately $900,000 of subcontract work

High marks have PHS band tuning for area contest

Middle school band receives honors, too

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Pampa High School's marching band is one of the top bands in the Texas Panhandle. The Pride of Pampa band received such high marks at the UIL contest they will represent the 4A region at the area marching contest Saturday in Odessa.

Under the leadership of Band Director Bruce Collins, Pampa High band received a Division I rating from each of the three judges at the region contest held at Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo.

Pampa High band will be among 14 high school marching bands from Lubbock, El Paso, Odessa regions as well as Amarillo's region competing for the right to march at the state competition on Nov. 1 at Waco. The top two bands selected by judges in the Odessa competition will advance to the state contest.

Collins said the high school students performed very well. "It is a real privilege to get to go to this contest. Competition will be fierce. It will be the best of the best as the best two out of 14," said Collins. "We are refining our show all week. Even though the students did really well Saturday, the competition will be tougher at the upcoming competition."

The Pampa High Band competed at area two years ago when it was held in Amarillo. Collins said the 1999 show is a lot more competitive. "It is real exciting and has lots of energy in it. There is a lot more movement," he said. "It is very difficult to play and march, and our kids are taking great pride in being able to march at the rapid speed and play their instruments at the same time."

"These kids are really excited about this contest," said Collins. "They really want to win."

Roger Myers, Pampa Middle School band director, said he felt the high school band has a good chance to go on to the state competition. "I heard several people at Saturday's contest in Amarillo

Railroad crossing hearing Oct. 26

Pampa area residents will soon have the opportunity to voice their opinions about plans to build an overpass or underpass at the railroad crossing on Price Road adjacent to U.S. Highway 60.

A public meeting is set for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 26 in the Chamber of Commerce Building at 200 N. Ballard. It will be the first meeting to decide what future plans are in store for the intersection.

"We really need to receive public input," said Jerry Raines, Pampa Area Engineer for the Texas Department of Transportation.

"We recently received funding (about $4 million) to put an underpass or overpass at the railroad crossing on Price Road. Feedback from the people who use this roadway is essential to building the project."

Previously, TxDOT spokesman Tonya Detten said 72 trains a day go across the crossing.

All interested people are invited to the meeting. Verbal or written comments regarding the project will also be accepted no later than 10 days after the meeting. Letters may be sent to the TxDOT District Office, P.O. Box 2708, Amarillo, TX 79105.

Enterprise zone future's bright, officials report

By KATE B. DICKSON
Associate Publisher

After seven years with no takers and a few years with no plans, the future seems bright for enterprise zones in Pampa.

So said Pampa Economic Development Commission Interim Executive Director Susan Tripplehorn and Community Development Director Bill Hildebrandt.

Enterprise zones entice new business and industry by offering incentives such as tax abatements and breaks on franchise taxes.

But, in turn, the businesses must agree to locate in the zone which must be situated in a low-income area.

"Whether the timing was bad or the incentives weren't right or it was not marketed properly there were no takers," Hildebrandt told city commissioners last week.

He was making reference to the city-county enterprise zone put into effect in 1988 and then ran its seven-year course before expiring.

"We have people literally knocking on the door," he said.

going to local Pampa firms. The Pampa work included electrical, plumbing, concrete, dirt work, roofing and paving contracts.

The official groundbreaking was held on Dec. 11, 1998, at the building site located on 12 acres of land donated by Dr. Ray Hampton and family. Construction work began in early January.

The Pampa Center is part of Clarendon College, established over 100 years ago. "The advanced technology incorporated in this new building adds a new dimension to college instruction for the Pampa area and is an exciting way to enter the new millennium," said Joe Kyle Reeve, dean of CC-PC.

The building will include 17 classrooms and labs as well as offices for teachers and staff. It will exceed the present footage at the current Sam Houston Elementary building by 4,000 square feet, and will have larger computer labs. The improved facility will enable expansion of short-term, continuing education courses to serve those living in Pampa as well as the surrounding area.

Band

say they thought Pampa was the best of the 40 bands at the contest," said Myers. "I don't think any other bands can touch them."

Musical selections performed at Amarillo Saturday were Espana, La Suerte de Los Tonto, Baja and Malaquena. The band has been entertaining football fans at halftime with this Spanish and Latin American theme all season. The same program will be performed at Odessa.

Middle school band members from Pampa earned a division II rating at the contest. One of the three judges who rate the bands at the marching contest rated PMS as a division I rating while the remaining two judges rated them a Division II. Myers said he was really pleased with the students' performance at the competition.

"The kids played really well. Our program is pretty tough and these kids have great attitudes," said Myers.

Over half of the PMS band members are in their first year of band, and have only been marching a few weeks. Myers said this was the third year year for the middle school band to march after a four-year absence of marching.

"Learning to march in middle school band helps the band members to learn the fundamentals and to develop really high quality skills to use when they get to high school band," said Myers.

Local residents are encouraged to attend the marching competition at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa to support the Pampa Harvester band members.

Zone

"Even though the economy is not booming, the timing seems good for an enterprise zone.

Before such a zone can be put into effect it has to be submitted jointly by the city and county and approved by the state.

Enterprise zone requirements include:

• The unemployment rate must be 1.5 times the state rate which equals 7.8 percent. By taking in portions of the south area of Pampa that requirement will be met.

• The income in the zone must include 20 percent who live below the federal poverty rate. The proposed zone contains 26 percent.

Every two years the state approves 65 enterprise zone projects and 25 have been awarded during the current cycle, Tripplehorn said.

Vandals strike Super Playground

By JEFF WEST
Staff Writer

Vandals have once again struck the Super Playground and other city property.

In what appears to be gang related activity, all four murals at the Super Playground were marked with red and black paint, according to Pampa School Resource Officer Colby Brown.

Besides the playground, vandals also spray painted several bridges along the path from the playground to the bridge at Duncan and Christine. A restroom at Central Park was also damaged. The exact time of the offense is not know but Brown thinks it was late last week.

The paint on the murals has already been removed, according to Park Supervisor Reed Kirkpatrick. Using a spray solution designed as a kind of paint remover the offending gang symbols were taken off without any damage to the original art work. The parks department will paint over the graffiti underneath the bridges.

Including the cost of materials and man hours, Kirkpatrick said the cost of the cleanup will be approximately $3,000. He said over 15 people will eventually be involved in the cleanup.

Brown said he has suspects in mind but has not had a chance to interview everyone yet and could not mention any names.

Texas files lawsuit against Clearing House

AUSTIN (AP) — Comparing the mailings of Publishers Clearing House to "letter bombs, filled with deceptions," Texas Attorney General John Cornyn says misleading advertising tactics aimed at senior citizens prompted his state to become the ninth to sue the company.

In a suit filed Monday in Travis County, the state asks for damages and an injunction against the Port Washington, N.Y.-based company for creating "a web of trickery that snares consumers and sucks money out of them month after month."

"Sadly, the preponderance of the consumers who are victimized by this type of practice are our senior citizens," Cornyn said.

Publishers Clearing House spokesman Chris Irving called Cornyn's claims "completely inaccurate and 100 percent untrue" and said the company was "very surprised and disappointed" by the lawsuit.

The state accuses the company of creating a false sense of urgency with "deadlines" and inflating the likelihood of winning by sending people simulated checks, draft deposit slips and false 1099 tax forms and asking people to return a map telling the Prize Patrol how to get to their homes.

The lawsuit asks for Publishers Clearing House to stop misleading advertising, pay civil penalties up to $10,000 per violation and give victims their money back. The attorney general would not estimate the amount of victims in the state.

Irving said the company has done what it can to fight negative perceptions of the sweepstakes.

"While we are lucky to have millions of satisfied customers, we realize that there have been some consumers who have been confused," Irving said. "We are the only company that has a program to call our most frequent customers to ask them if they have been misled."

Weather focus

PAMPA — Partly cloudy today with a high of 55 and north winds of 10-20 mph. Tonight, light and variable winds with a low of 34 and clear skies. Tomorrow, sunny with a high in the mid 50s. Yesterday's high was 59; the overnight low was 39.

STATEWIDE — Clearing and warming trends are expected through the rest of this week across most of Texas.

Light rain was tapering off today in Southeast Texas and coastal areas as an upper-level disturbance moved toward western sections of the state.

Widely scattered light rain fell in the northern Texas Panhandle while a cold front was pushing south through the South Plains.

Winds were northerly at 5 to 15 mph and gusty along the coast.

Overnight temperatures ranged from the 30s in West Texas to 40s in the Hill Country and South Central Texas, with 50s elsewhere.

It was 34 degrees at Midland and Wink, 37 at Junction and 61 at Galveston.

Monday's high of 60 at College Station broke a record. The date's minimum high of 61 was set in 1913.

San Angelo's low of 36 tied the record set in 1938.

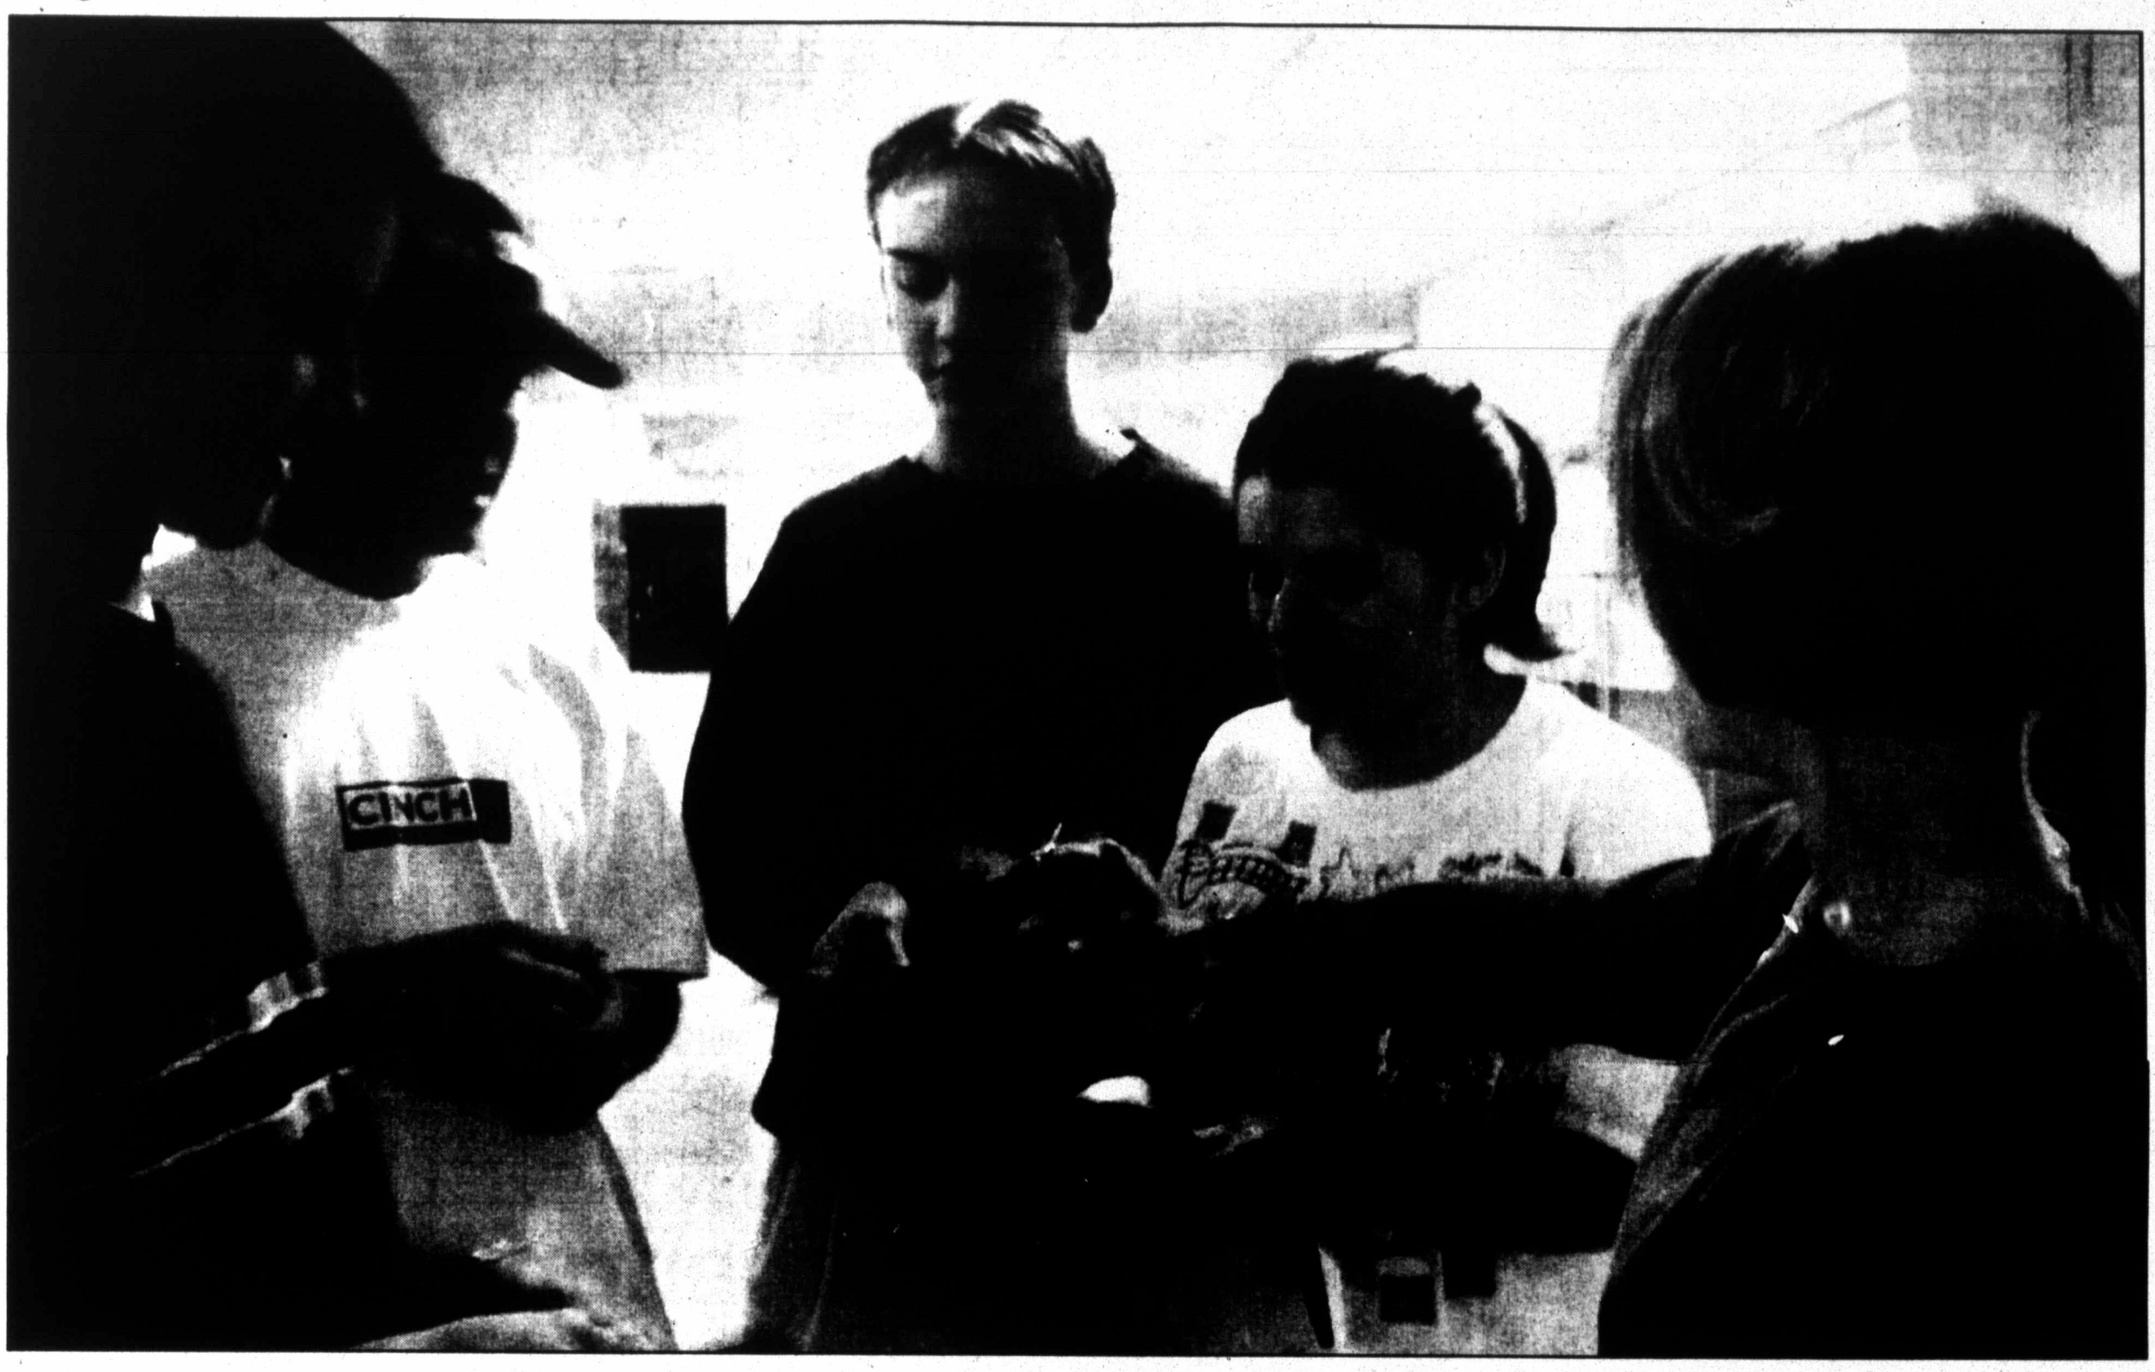

More patchy light rain was expected over Southeast Texas and along the coast. Snow was possible in the Panhandle.

High temperatures through Thursday should warm somewhat, with highs in the 50s to mid-80s along the Rio Grande.

Overnight lows should range from the 20s in the Panhandle to near 50 along the Rio Grande.

Skies were expected to clear across South Texas, with lows from the 40s and 50s in the lower Rio Grande valley and along the coast.

Meals on Wheels helps brighten seniors' day

This article is one in a series of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 1999 "Caring Hearts Build Hope" fund-raising campaign .

Mrs. "M" came to Meals on Wheels a short time before she died. At age 94, she began to need some assistance in preparing her meals. Because of high prescription drug bills, she was unable to pay the full cost of $3 for her meal. She determined that she could comfortably afford to pay $1 per meal. This "sliding" meal cost is made possible in part by United Way funds. The money Meals on Wheels receives from United Way helps to provide food for those seniors who need help preparing their meals and who cannot afford to pay full meal cost.

Mrs. "M" soon became a favorite to the volunteers. Her cheery smile and positive attitude made their day. You see, the Meals on Wheels volunteer was the only person she saw in a day's time. The meals she received and the daily contact helped her to maintain independence in her own home. Mrs. "M" always managed to make the volunteers smile. Then one day, Mrs. "M" didn't answer her door. The volunteer alerted the Meals on Wheels office and they in turn contacted her emergency contacts. Unfortunately, Mrs. "M" had passed away hours before.

Meals on Wheels provides a hot, noon meal along with a smile and a cheery word from a caring volunteer. Along with this meal, Meals on Wheels also checks on the meal recipient's well-being. So you see, Meals on Wheels is more than just a meal delivered — it helps keep seniors independent.

Personal business on-line to be focus of KACV program

AMARILLO — Today people are using computers for everything from errands – like bill payments, banking and shopping, to major projects such as investing, financing loans and even retirement planning. What advantages are there to doing personal business on the information superhighway? Are there disadvantages? If so, are there ways to get around them? Could the on-line trend affect our local economy? These are just a few of the questions to be addressed during a special half-hour program to air at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 19 on the local Public Television provider, KACV-TV in Amarillo.

The program, "Banking and Business on the Net," will allow viewers to call in questions during the program, or to e-mail them in advance to clhunt@actx.edu (no later than 4 p.m. on the day of the show.)

"People like me, who are computer-phobes, might want to bury our heads in the sand and pretend we will never need to go on-line," says host James Hunt. "But the truth is, the world is changing, and there are things done more conveniently on the Internet. The show should highlight for our audience the kinds of opportunities they can access through a modem."

Guests experts, including Eric Spellman, director of Training for ARNet, Inc., Cathy Phelan, Internet banking assistant coordinator for Amarillo National Bank, and James K. Owens, professor of finance at WTAMU, will join Hunt live in the KACV-TV studios to answer questions and to provide guidance to viewers new to E-commerce as well as to those who want to learn more.

A repeat broadcast is scheduled at 5 p.m., Oct. 24. Check local listings for the broadcast and cable channels in your community.

Agriculture facing numerous problems

Most people agree that one of the main causes of the economic crisis in agriculture today is the collapse of the Asian economy.

The loss of this market and its impact on world commodity prices has been severe. Partly as a result, Congress provided over $6 billion in emergency disaster payments to farmers and ranchers last year. The House recently gave final approval to nearly $9 billion more in disaster payments.

While these payments are clearly needed, we must address the larger problems facing agriculture. The House took a step in this direction by approving a bill that will make crop insurance more accessible to producers. Among other things, this bill will reduce the insurance premiums producers have to pay, increase producers' insurable yields and establish new risk management for livestock producers.

But beyond these payments and this bill, there are a number of critical things Washington must do.

First, we need to sell more of our products overseas. The Clinton Administration must begin taking advantage of the resources it has at hand to promote and encourage exports.

At the same time, both Congress and the President must take a serious look and hopefully overhaul the current trade sanctions and embargo policy, which all too often punishes our farmers and ranchers more than it does a foreign government.

We must also continue the push to reduce the high taxes and over-regulation which producers struggle with every day. Finally, we should reexamine the Farm Bill from top to bottom to see how it can work better in times of low prices.

We have a lot of work to do in the coming weeks and months to address the problems facing agriculture. It's critical that those of us from rural areas speak with one voice on this issue to build a better safety net for producers and provide farmers and ranchers much-needed relief.

San Antonio Express-News on Jesse Ventura's comments:

Minnesota Gov. Jesse Ventura, the Reform Party's fast-rising superstar, has reduced his national influence with remarks made in an interview with Playboy magazine.

According to the Associated Press, the wide-ranging interview included a swipe at organized religion and a characterization of the Navy's Tailhook scandal as "much ado about nothing," which will rightfully alienate women voters.

Ventura said legalized prostitution should be considered but that it would be blocked by organized religion, which is "a sham and a crutch for weak-minded people who need strength in numbers."

After knocking all voters affiliating with any religion, Ventura said the Tailhook controversy, which involved the groping and fondling of female Navy officers by aviators attending a convention, was not "a major situation."

Ventura's shoot-from-the-lip comments are offensive, but they offer a window into his mind.

At least Americans are getting a good idea about the real Jesse Ventura.

The flamboyant ex-wrestler and Minnesota governor clearly is not presidential material.

Corpus Christi Caller-Times on lottery as a con game:

The Texas Lottery is losing customers; that indicates that a lot of Texans are finally wising up. Sales of the twice-weekly lottery sales have been falling for years. But the sales drop was especially steep in early September, Texas Lottery Commission officials said, when sales fell by $17.1 million, or 12.36 percent, from the same period in 1998.

But not only Texans are getting the message that the lottery is a state-sponsored scam; so are residents of other states. Lottery sales are falling across the nation as interest wanes. To revive interest, Texas Lottery officials want to increase the size of the prizes. To do that they want to increase the number of balls in the cage from 50 to 54, thus raising the total prize money faster. They want to raise the average jackpot from $4 million to $15 million.

Not surprisingly, players are raising a howl. The commission, which is holding hearings around the state, has drawn opposition from thousands of players who object to making the odds longer. Those opposed are right: The odds of winning would go down. But we're talking about the odds of winning going from microscopic, 1 in 15.8 million, to infinitesimal, 1 in 25.8 million. As if it mattered.

As those who have opted out of the games have figured out, the Lottery is not about winning, it's about the state conning its own citizens.

Equal opportunity guarantees unequal results.

This is a politically incorrect truth that people nevertheless should keep in mind. Some federal judges have practically destroyed school systems by demanding that they produce equal results. Demagogues frequently falsely accuse people of racism based on no evidence other than unequal outcomes on various tests.

Equal results cannot be ordered, ordained or programmed for the simple reason that people aren't equal. They differ in intelligence, aptitudes, energy levels, general health, family backgrounds and in other ways. These differences cannot be eradicated by court order or bureaucratic indoctrination. The human condition cannot be legislated to fit some ideological model.

When our Declaration of Independence said that all men are created equal, it did not mean equal in a physical or intellectual or economic sense. At that time, Great Britain and other countries had a class system. A person born into the nobility had certain rights and privileges that a person born into a commoner's family could never attain.

So what the Declaration of Independence says is that a class system based on birth is hogwash. People are equal in the eyes of God and equal in their rights and privileges as citizens. That ideal of equality before the law was difficult enough to realize, but it should not be confused with egalitarianism, which seeks to achieve equal outcomes.

This is important because politicians love to scapegoat teachers. Teachers, however, cannot turn lead into gold. Whether a school is successful or unsuccessful — as measured by academic test scores — depends more on the students than on the teachers. Students have to do the hard work of learning. Teachers only guide them. Children with below-average IQs are never going to equal the test scores of children with above-average IQs. Children who come from a dysfunctional family are never going to perform as well as children who come from a supportive family environment. Students who are unmotivated to learn will never equal the results of those who are highly motivated. And there's nothing teachers can do about it, though many try hard.

A sensible school system would try to educate each child to make the most of his or her potential, whatever that may be. That is difficult to do in an institutional system, especially when politicians and kibitzers are demanding uniformly high results while at the same time are unwilling to pay the price, not only in terms of money but also in terms of intellectual honesty. There is nothing more unjust than to condemn a person for failing to achieve an impossible task.

Schools ought to be judged on the basis of how well the students function after they finish school. Education is not an end in itself but is rather a means toward some end. The end, of course, should be the shaper of the education. It seems to me that, these days, people are so confused about the ends that it is no surprise the means are a muddle.

But a good start toward improvement would be to banish this egalitarian hogwash that there is some way to produce equal outcomes. There isn't. It is an injustice to both students and teachers to pretend that there is, because to do so is to set them both up to be branded as failures.

It is precisely the political pressure for equal outcomes that has motivated education bureaucrats to lower standards to the point that even a college degree is no longer a guarantee that a person isn't for all practical purposes a functional illiterate. Plastic surgeons aren't the only ones charging a high price for creating boobs these days.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 1999. There are 73 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 19, 1781, British troops under Lord Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, Va., as the American Revolution neared its end.

On this date:

In 1765, the Stamp Act Congress, meeting in New York, drew up a declaration of rights and liberties.

In 1812, French forces under Napoleon Bonaparte began their retreat from Moscow.

In 1864, Confederate Gen. Jubal A. Early attacked Union forces at Cedar Creek, Va.; Union troops rallied and defeated the Confederates.

In 1944, the Navy announced that blacks would be allowed to become WAVES as members of Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service.

In 1950, United Nations forces entered the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

In 1951, President Truman signed an act formally ending the state of war with Germany.

In 1960, the United States imposed an embargo on exports to Cuba covering all commodities except medical supplies and certain food products.

In 1977, the body of West German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer, who had been kidnapped by left-wing extremists, was found in Mulhouse, France.

In 1977, the supersonic Concorde made its first landing in New York City.

In 1987, the stock market crashed as the Dow Jones Industrial Average plunged 508 points, or 22.6 percent in value.

Ten years ago: The Senate rejected a proposed constitutional amendment barring desecration of the American flag. Camilo Jose Cela of Spain received the Nobel Prize for literature.

Five years ago: Twenty-two people were killed as a terrorist bomb shattered a bus in the heart of Tel Aviv's shopping district. Entertainer Martha Raye died in Los Angeles at age 78.

Modern academia: Degree of silliness

Edwin Feulner

Syndicated columnist

Time was when college students studied the classics. No more. Race, class and gender have driven Plato, Dante and Shakespeare from the curriculum. And when academia isn't bowing to liberal orthodoxy, it's chasing ridiculous fads.

A recent issue of "Campus Report," the newspaper of the watchdog group Accuracy in Academia, singled out 12 college courses — "The Dirty Dozen" — that are making a mockery of American higher education. Some highlights:

Bucknell University offers "Green Utopias," a course that introduces students to "literary utopias and to the cultural writings of various ecological movements offering alternative concepts to the increasing destruction of nature." In other words, students are taught that heaven on earth will arrive just as soon as we all move into grass huts and burn manure for fuel. Bucknell charges $28,350 a year.

At the University of Northern Arizona, there's "Women, Gender Identity, and Ethnicity," a class where "students will play the role of a single mother on welfare." UNA even asks the class to develop a welfare recipient's weekly budget — a useful exercise for students not learning any useful skills.

The University of Indiana offers "Star Trek and Religion," which requires students to read critics "who hope for the demise of religion, then explore those who think religion can be re-imagined in mystical or cosmic terms." Who needs Moses or Jesus when you've got Captain James T. Kirk?

Undergraduates at the University of California at Berkeley can opt for "Lesbian and Gay Detective Fiction," which "will give the students and instructor an excuse to spend time during a busy semester reading and discussing a pile of detective novels." At least we can credit the course catalog writer with truth in advertising. The discussions, incidentally, center on how "the outlaw sexuality of the protagonists plays out against the outlaw activities of the antagonists." Expect the relationship between Sherlock Holmes and Watson to be cast in a whole new light.

At the University of Pennsylvania, where I attended graduate school, students now pay $29,354 a year for courses such as "Feminist Revisions of Fairy Tales and Myths." The course teaches that traditional fairy tales "construct gender categories that identify women with children, thus infantilizing the feminine subject and erasing her sexuality." Apparently the Grimm brothers were sexist for not making more of the trolls under the bridge female.

The '60s radicals now tenured on America's campuses don't stop with revisionist literature either. They stuff a hard-core political agenda down students' throats. For example, a University of Michigan course called "Issues in Afro-American Development: Affirmative Action" argues that "all the rights gained in the sixties are now being eroded by legal challenges to affirmative action" and aims to "develop the language to articulate affirmative action as a right and not a benefit." So much for debate over the merits of racial preferences.

Given how radically politicized the curriculum has become, some of the more frivolous courses now being offered can seem refreshing. Don't get me wrong: I would never spend $25,000 for my own children to study "Elvis as Anthology" or "Rock Journalism," but at least these courses don't pollute young minds with unthinking liberalism.

Of course, they don't teach much either, and that's the problem. Whether it's left-wing propaganda or academic fads, colleges that used to graduate students with serious degrees now seem interested only in degrees of silliness.

WHITE DEER — White Deer fell to Highland Park 27-6 in a District 6-2A game last weekend.

The Bucks only score came on a 14-yard pass from Matt Henderson to Dustin Harper in the fourth quarter.

Nick Albino ran for two of Highland Park's scores. Raheem Travis scored on an 89-yard kickoff return and Chris Bryan tossed a TD pass to Mark Hulcy.

Highland Park had 255 yards in total offense and White Deer had 150. The Bucks were hurt by four turnovers.

White Deer travels to Panhandle for its next game Friday night. The Bucks are still looking for their first win after seven outings.

Highland Park has a 4-2 record.

ICE SKATING

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The boo birds were absent, replaced by well-wishes and hugs for Tonya Harding at her debut in professional skating.

Despite falling twice and placing fourth among five women entering tonight's final round of the Pro Skating Championship, Harding emerged with a smile and a sense of accomplishment.

"I was very glad to see everyone was supporting me," Harding said. "It made me feel welcome. It helped me carry it through the program.

"I was very nervous and my legs were shaking. I went out and did the best that I could after being off the ice for so long. I just had a great time."

Harding's debut came after several months of trying to persuade promoters to sign her. She announced her intentions to return to the ice in February, five years after her implication in the attack on rival Nancy Kerrigan, which resulted in Harding's banishment from amateur competition.

Some pros were leery of appearing on the same ice as her. Others came to her defense Monday night.

"She was a friend of mine before, and I'm so glad she's back skating with us," said first-round leader Surya Bonaly, who then exchanged hugs with Harding.

Harding's only other performance since the 1994 Lillehammer Olympics was between periods of a 1997 hockey game in Reno, Nev. There, she was booed and a few batons resembling the one used in the attack on Kerrigan hit the ice.

This time, her audience in a half-empty arena was figure skating fans, some from as far away as Tokyo, Japan. None who were asked were willing to admit that they came specifically for Harding.

Nonetheless, the crowd was loud and supportive, many giving the 28-year-old Harding a standing ovation before and after her skate.

As she stepped to the ice, a spectator flashed a sign that read "Good luck, Tonya."

"When she came out, she had tears in her eyes," said her adviser, Michael Rosenberg. "Then some little girl yelled, 'We love you, Tonya.' She perked right up. I think she handled herself well."

Wearing a turquoise-and-purple outfit, Harding performed to a saxophone-and-guitar medley. She fell on her first and final jumps.

"Tonight she proved she's a fine athlete," former Olympic champion Dick Button said. "She had a very structured program. If she had packaged it better and not been so nervous, it would've turned out better."

Harding said she's not ready to predict whether her future as a pro is secure.

"I take things day by day. If things come up from this, that will be absolutely wonderful," she said.

Cowboys lose to Giants with one tick on clock

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — As a rookie in 1996, Tiki Barber quickly earned a job as the New York Giants' running back. Just as quickly, he lost it.

But his up-and-down career hit a new high Monday night when he almost single-handedly beat the Dallas Cowboys, outperforming Deion Sanders, who pulled a similar act on a Monday night against New York last season.

Barber's 85-yard punt return broke a 3-3 tie with just 7:50 left in regulation. Then, after Emmitt Smith's 2-yard TD run with 1:57 left tied it for Dallas, Barber went 56 yards to the Dallas 3 with a short pass from Kent Graham, setting up Brad Daluiso's 21-yard field goal with 1 second left.

"Our main focus this week was not to let Deion make any plays," said Barber, who like Sanders, wears No. 21. "He didn't make the plays. The other 21 made the plays."

For the Giants (3-3), the win made up for a 31-7 thrashing last season in which Sanders returned a punt 59 yards for a touchdown, an interception 71 yards for a score and caught a 55-yard pass to set up another TD.

Barber had 233 all-purpose yards, which were 5 yards more than the Giants had from scrimmage.

Dallas didn't do much better. With Michael Irvin out, New York played eight and nine men near the line of scrimmage and held the Cowboys (3-2) to just 24 yards on the ground. Smith, who came into the game needing 25 yards to reach 13,000 for his career, made it, but just barely — he had 26 yards in 22 carries.

That's what made the special teams so special.

"Coming to the game, all the attention was on myself and Deion. What is Deion going to do to hurt us?" said Giants punter Brad Maynard, who averaged just 35.6 yards per kick, but got four out of bounds and two high enough to be downed. Sanders ended up with just one return for 10 yards and actually got called for pass interference, a rarity because teams don't often throw to him.

The game ended on a wacky note and a bad one for the Giants.

Daluiso's field goal came with 1 second left, meaning Dallas had one shot at taking back a kickoff.

Sanders took it and threw it to Kevin Mathis — obviously forward. As a flag went down to negate the play, Mathis threw it to Signor Mobley, who went into the end zone.

There was no TD, but Daluiso tore a ligament in his left knee trying to tackle Mathis and is gone for the season, meaning the Giants will have sift through the unemployed kicker pool to find a replacement.

The game was dominated by the two defenses.

"It was frustrating for me, frustrating for all of us," said Smith, who was consistently stifled by linebackers Jessie Armstead, Ryan Phillips and Corey Widmer as well as strong safety Sam Garnes, who spent most of the night as a fourth linebacker.

"I don't ever remember running the ball outside as much as we did tonight, and every time I slipped away from one guy, there were two other guys there to tackle me."

The Giants also benefited from knowledge of the Meadowlands winds that swirled for most of the game at 10-20 mph.

With the clock running down in the third quarter and Dallas about to attempt a field goal, Fassel called time to force the Cowboys to kick into the wind. Richie Cunningham's 41-yard attempt hit the right upright.

"It's worse than it looks down there," Fassel said. "The wind was swirling and it's tough for a kicker who's not used to it at that end of the field. I figured it might be worth it and it was."

But Fassel didn't gamble in the second quarter, after Garnes' interception set the Giants off on an 80-yard, 18-play drive that ate up almost 10 minutes. With fourth down and less than a yard at the Dallas 10, he sent on Daluiso to kick a 27-yard field goal that tied the game at 3.

"I just wanted to tie it, " Fassel said. "I figured we'd have to make a big play later, and Tiki made it."

Two, in fact.

Notes: The last punt returned for a touchdown against Dallas at Giants Stadium was by Terance Mathis, then of the Jets, who went 98 yards in 1991. ... The return was Barber's first for a touchdown in his four-year career. ... Dallas' Wane McGarity separated a shoulder in the second quarter while tackling Garnes after an interception. ... Barber's punt return was the second-longest in Giants history. Amani Toomer had an 87-yarder in 1996.

McLean 2-0 in District 2

McLEAN — McLean rolled to a 62-16 win over Samnorwood in a District 2 Six-man game last weekend.

Senior running back Aaron Rice and senior end Brett Montgomery sparked the Tiger attack. Rice rushed 18 times for 220 yards and scored two touchdowns. He scored on touchdown runs of 46 and 35 yards.

Montgomery caught six passes for 170 yards and three TDs. His touchdown receptions covered 57, 27 and 28 yards from Chris Hauck.

Frankie Sparling scored twice on two short runs and Brian Fuller caught a touchdown pass for the Tigers.

The 45-point mercy rule was applied with 7:46 remaining in the fourth quarter.

McLean had over 500 yards in total offense. Its defense held Samnorwood to around 180 yards.

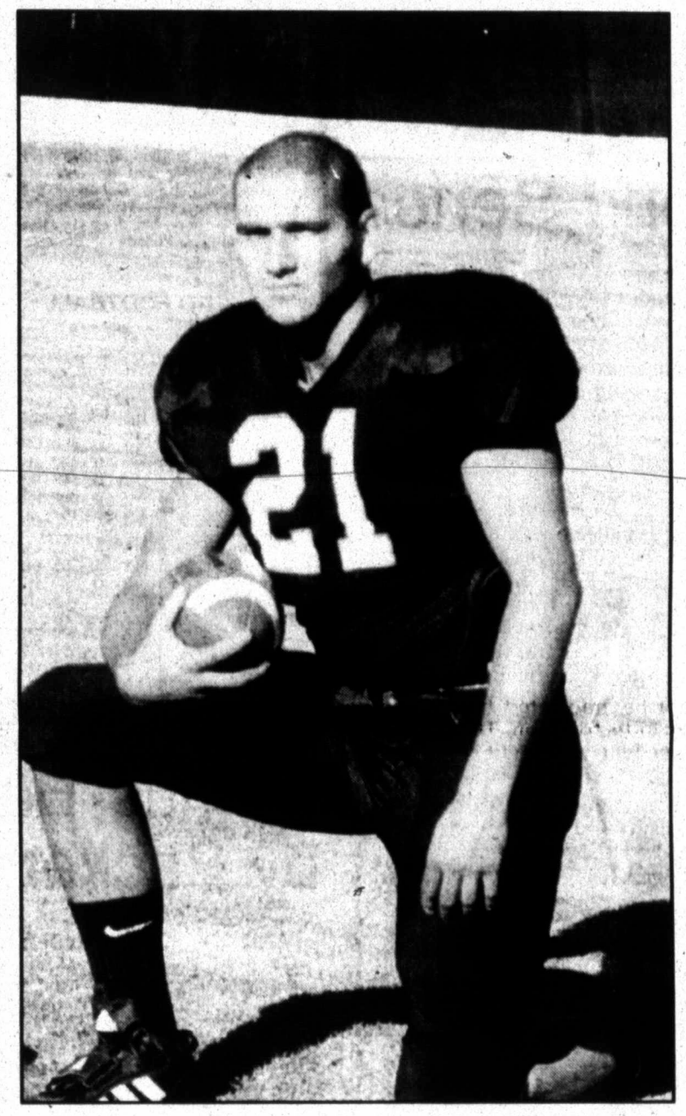

"It was quite an effort from all the boys. Basically, last year we had one offensive weapon in Ike Hanes and the defenses were concentrating on stopping him. They can't do that this year because we've got other guys who are a threat," said McLean coach James Burch. "It's been a team effort all season."

Hanes, a senior running back, rushed for over 1,700 yards and scored 28 touchdowns a year ago. However, Hanes was hurt earlier in the season and won't be able to play anymore.

McLean is now 2-0 in district and 6-1 for the season. Samnorwood falls to 1-1 and 3-4.

McLean's win against Samnorwood sets up a showdown Friday night with Hedley (2-0) for sole possession of first in the district standings. That game starts at 7:30 in McLean.

Pampa tennis team has another perfect outing in district play

PAMPA — The Pampa tennis team have proven once again why they are ranked No. 7 in the state.

The Harvesters never dropped a set in beating Palo Duro 18-0 last weekend, winning all 18 matches in straight sets. Their District 3-4A record to now 8-1.

"It is amazing how this team has re-focused after their one loss to Dumas (10-9). They are playing better, smarter tennis than I have seen all season. Everytime they take the court it is with great intensity and determination to reach our goals," said coach Carolyn Quarles.

Players of the week are the boys varsity team, consisting of Michael Cornelison, Ryan Mills, Matt Rains, Bryce Jordan, David Philips, A.J. Smith and Kerry Turner. Rains, Mills, and Turner are seniors, Cornelison and Jordan are juniors, Philips and Smith are sophomores. They lost only 5 games against Palo Duro in six singles matches and only 5 games in three doubles matches.

"One of the things we work on is cutting out unforced errors and these guys are certainly doing just that to lose so few games as a a team," Quarles said. "All seven of these boys have shown marked improvement this fall."

Pampa also defeated PD 12-0 in the junior varsity match. The Pampa JV is now 6-0 in district play.

South Division is anyone's game

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There's no sure bets in the Big 12 South Division this year — except, of course, for the one that says Baylor won't win it.

While the Big 12 North is shaping up as the expected battle between No. 3 Nebraska and No. 7 Kansas State, the South is just about anyone's game.

Every South Division team has at least one loss, and league coaches say no one has emerged as the favorite for a berth in the Big 12 championship game.

"I think this is going to play out to the last drop," Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes said Monday. "There's a ton of football games this week with a lot of importance. It's going to be interesting."

Dykes' Red Raiders are one of three teams currently logjammed in first place in the South. Tech (3-3), No. 13 Texas A&M (5-1) and No. 18 Texas (5-2) all are 2-1 in league play.

Just behind them are Oklahoma (3-2, 1-1) and Oklahoma State (3-2, 1-1).

Only Baylor (1-5, 0-3) appears out of the running.

Defending conference champ Texas A&M was the early favorite when the season started. The Aggies' 21-19 loss three weeks ago at Texas Tech opened up the division for everyone else, said Texas coach Mack Brown. The Longhorns play Nebraska this week.

"A&M is the team that everybody thought would win the league. You just look around the South and it's amazing to me ... this league is really, really tough," Brown said.

All of the South leaders have stumbled.

A&M fell at Texas Teoma, which hosts A&M this week, hopes to complicate things even further with a victory.

"If we're going to contend for the South title, it's a must win," said Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops.

"What we had said early is still the case. We're a team that matches up and can compete with anybody in this league. Hopefully we'll improve as the year goes on," he said.

A good division race is good for the conference, said Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum.

"I thought it would be a real competitive in the South Division and it is," Slocum said.

"This is one of those weeks where you either take a step forward or you take a big step backwards. In championship races it should be close."

Tech, which has played superb in its two league wins over Texas A&M and Colorado, has struggled with teams it was supposed to beat.

The low point came in a 21-14 loss to North Texas early in the season that left the Red Raiders looking like a flop. Some fans called for Dykes' job. Tech plays at Baylor on Saturday.

"I hope we get on an even keel and start playing the same every week," Dykes said. "We're still going to try to win a championship."

The North Division is anything but as complicated. Nebraska (6-0, 3-0) and Kansas State (6-0, 3-0) have asserted themselves as the teams to beat.

Nebraska faces a potential stumbling block at Texas.

The Longhorns are 2-0 against Nebraska since the league expanded in 1996, including a 20-16 victory last year that snapped the Cornhuskers' 47-game home win streak.

Brown isn't counting on recent history for a victory. Second-year coach Frank Solich has the Cornhuskers playing as well as anybody in the country, Brown said.

"Frank's done a tremendous job," Brown said. "They're like the Nebraska teams of old."

EXTRA POINTS: The losing streak is over at Iowa State. Last week's 24-21 victory over Missouri was their first conference road win since beating Missouri 23-22 back in 1991. At 4-2, the Cyclones have the school's most victories since going 4-7 in 1992.

Upsets shake up rankings

By The Associated Press

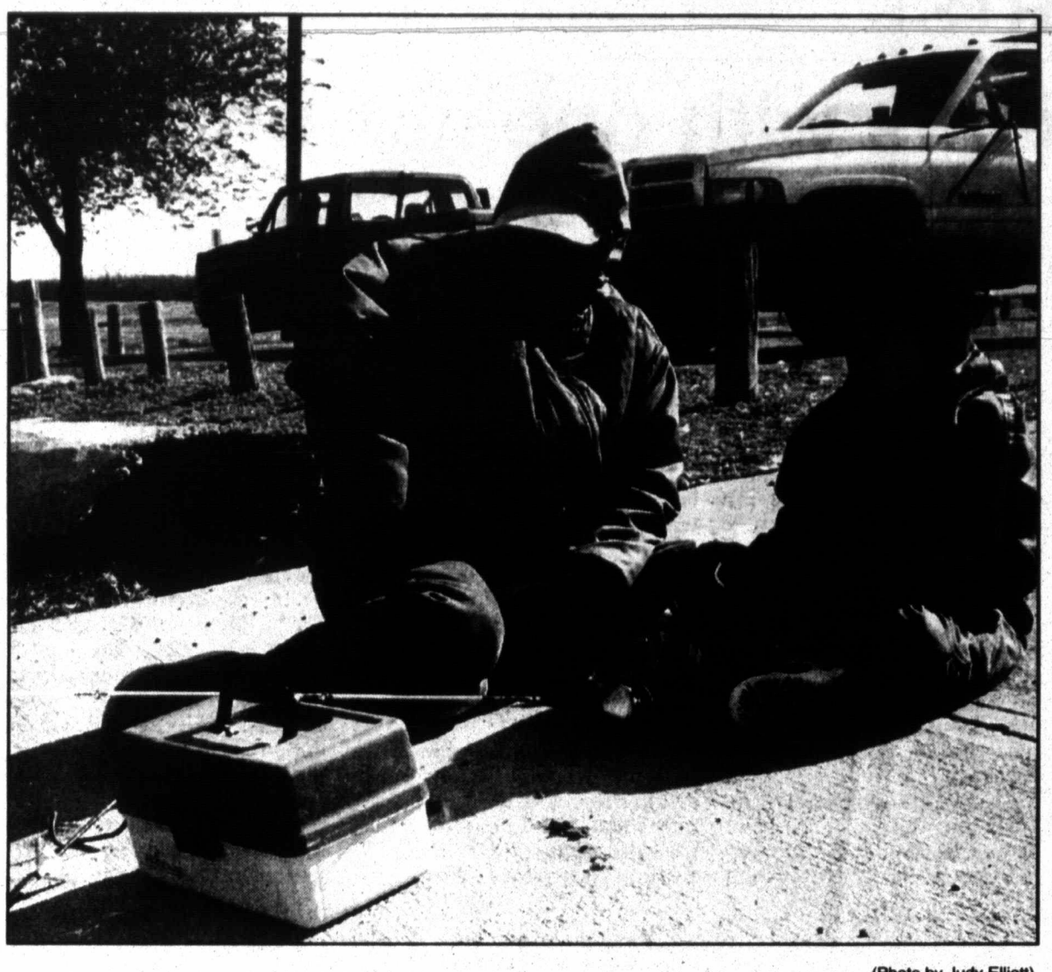

Nine of the state's 50 ranked teams lost last weekend, causing one of the biggest shakeups of the year in The Associated Press high school football poll.

The top teams in all five classes retained their No. 1 rankings in the poll of 20 sports writers and broadcasters, as 5A Midland Lee, 4A Stephenville, 3A Sealy, 2A Omaha Paul Pewitt and 1A Wheeler all remained unbeaten with big victories on Friday.

The rest of the rankings look drastically different. In 5A, Lewisville jumped into the No. 2 spot, Austin Westlake fell one position to No. 3, followed by Copperas Cove, South Grand Prairie and Converse Judson. Katy improved from No. 10 to No. 7 after beating previously eighth-ranked Alief Hastings, while Duncanville jumped one spot to No. 8.

In addition to Hastings, San Antonio Roosevelt also fell out of the poll after an upset, enabling Humble Kingwood and Euless Trinity to make the Top 10 for the first time this season.

Yankees headed for World Series

BOSTON (AP) — Next stop for this New York Yankees express, Game 1 of the World Series.

Orlando Hernandez, Derek Jeter and the Yankees earned a return trip Monday night, once again frustrating the Boston Red Sox and their fans with a 6-1 victory in Game 5 of the AL Championship Series.

"To repeat after the incredible year we had last year is a great accomplishment," Yankees manager Joe Torre said.

"I tried to warn the club in spring training that we cannot compete against ourselves because it was a once-in-a-lifetime thing," he said.

Still, the defending champs did just fine. They wrapped up their record 36th pennant, and became the first AL team to win two in a row since Toronto in 1992-93.

The World Series opens Saturday night at the home of the NL champion. Atlanta leads the New York Mets 3-2 in the NLCS, with Game 6 tonight at Turner Field.

The Yankees faced both teams this summer in interleague play, meaning this will be the first time World Series opponents have met in the regular season. Torre formerly managed both clubs.

"The best part about it is I don't have to pull for anybody to win now," Torre said. "It's nice to take a day or two off."

While the Yankees won for the 14th time in 15 postseason games, Boston will now get a whole winter to figure out how to beat the New Yorkers next century.

The wild-card Red Sox brought out all their good-luck charms at Fenway Park, and yet it did no good against their longtime tormentors.

Babe Ruth's 82-year-old daughter threw out the first ball — trying to reverse the Curse of the Bambino — and Red Sox ace Pedro Martinez roused the well-behaved crowd of 33,589 from the dugout and bullpen.

"We really had a fine year. I told those kids in there we had a fine year all year long," Red Sox manager Jimy Williams said. "They really did a lot for this city this summer."

From DiMaggio and Bucky Dent to El Duque and Derek, the result stayed the same in baseball's longest running drama.

Yankees win, Red Sox lose.

"With the rivalry getting back to where it was, it's sweet to wrap it up here," said third-base coach Willie Randolph, a longtime Yankees star.

Coming off its record 125-win season, New York headed back to the World Series for the third time in four years.

The Yankees will have a chance to win their 25th title. All of them have come since the Red Sox won their last championship in 1918, two years before they sold Ruth to New York.

Certainly it was special to Torre, who missed the first 36 games of the season while recovering from prostate cancer surgery.

"You're never sure you're going to care once you get back," Torre said.

Hernandez, blowing on his hand to keep warm on a chilly night, improved to 4-0 with an 0.97 ERA in five career starts in the postseason. Two years ago, his half-brother Livan was MVP of the NLCS for the Florida Marlins.

"This is a beautiful moment," El Duque said through an interpreter. "I've very happy to be pitching in these situations."

Hernandez got a no-decision in Game 1, allowing two earned runs in eight innings.

El Duque shut down the Red Sox on three hits through seven innings, striking out nine. He left after Jason Varitek homered to start the eighth and Nomar Garciaparra followed with a double.

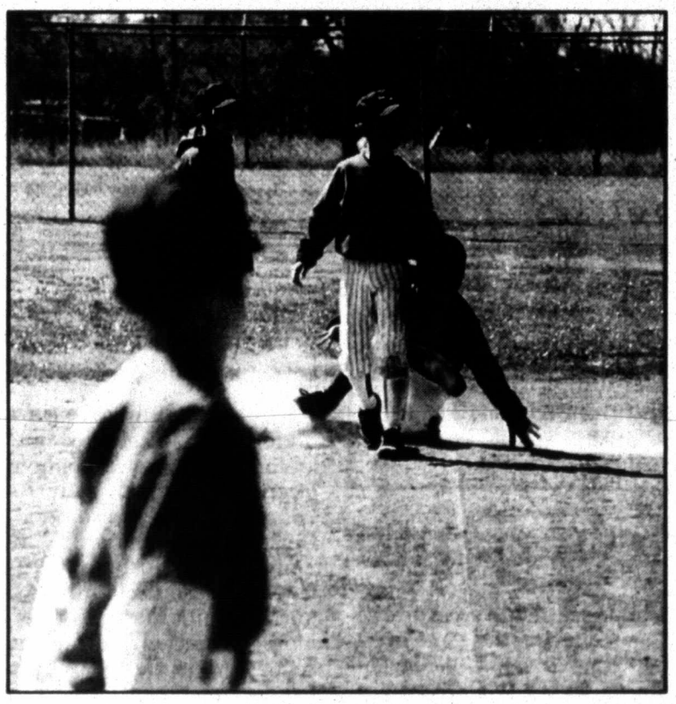

Mike Stanton relieved, setting off a series of mix-and-match moves by Torre and Williams.

Allen Watson wound up walking pinch-hitter Butch Huskey to load the bases with one out. But Ramiro Mendoza, New York's fifth pitcher of the inning, struck out pinch-hitter Scott Hatteberg on a 3-2 pitch that bounced and got Trot Nixon on a foul pop.

Jorge Posada hit a clinching two-run homer off Tom Gordon in the ninth, and Mendoza closed for a save.

This first-ever postseason meeting between the Yankees and Boston ended up the same way regular-season duels did for so many years, from the days when Joe DiMaggio led New York over Ted Williams and the Red Sox, to the afternoon when Dent's homer won a 1978 AL East tiebreaker.

Dumas' Bar W Steelers get branded by Packers in Tiger League contest

PAMPA — With an incredible display of courage and teamwork the Pampa Packers put their brand on a huge Dumas Bar W Steelers team 12-6 when defensive end Jacob Davis returned a Steeler lateral pass for the vanning score on the last play of the game.

Playing against a much larger and very aggressive opponent the Packers were able to take the opening kickoff 5 5 yards in IQ plays for the first score of the game. Jared Bivens ran for the touchdown from 2 yards out. The extra point failed when Bivens was tackled in the backfield. The big play of the drive was Bivens 35 scamper around left end.

On the ensuing kickoff the Packers got a break when Colby Greenhouse's kick bounced off a Steeler player and Greenhouse recovered at the Steeler 35 yard line. The Packers moved the ball to the Steeler 26 yard line before fuming it over on downs. The remainder of the first half became a defensive struggle as neither team could move the ball consistently. The half ended with the score 6-0 Packers.

The second half was much like the first in that both defenses dominated. The Steelers got a break near the end of the third quarter when the Packers fumbled at their own 30 yard line. It took the Steelers 8 plays against the tough Packer defense to tie the game at 6-6. The extra point failed and the score was knotted at 6-6.

The Packers had a chance to take the lead when Greenhouse broke around left end and ripped off 23 yards to the Steeler 24 yard line. The Packers however were stopped on fourth down and 2 at the Steeler 16 yard line. The gang tackling Packer defense held the Steeler offense to 18 yards on the next series and took over at the Steeler 34 but were unable to move the ball as time wound down.

The Steelers took over and picked up two short gains. On the third and last play of the game the Steeler tailback tried to sweep left. Outside linebacker Joshua Humphrey came up and grabbed an ankle, with a host of other Packer tacklers arriving; the tailback tried a lateral pass to a trailing teammate. Enter Davis. Davis stepped in front of the lateral and raced untouched 45 yards for the winning score.

This game was a total team effort and every Packer player had a part in this win, said coach Ron Carr.

Packer Roster:

Nebraska-Texas is budding big rivalry in Big 12

AUSTIN (AP) — As if Texas and Nebraska need another rivalry.

Saturday's matchup between these budding rivals is one of the Big 12's premiere games this season, thanks to Texas upsets in the 1996 conference title game and a 20-16 win last year in Lincoln, Neb., that stopped the Cornhuskers' home winning streak at 47 games.

"It's two of the best programs in the country," said Texas coach Mack Brown.

Now, beating Oklahoma and Texas A&M isn't enough for No. 18 Texas (5-2, 2-1 Big 12).

Third-ranked Nebraska (6-0, 3-0) represents the top competition in the league and the level of consistency the Longhorns strive for, Brown said.

"This is a big game from the standpoint that both schools have great traditions. Nebraska has been consistently a top 10 team and we've been up and down in recent years," Brown said.

"We need to get that consistency back."

The Cornhuskers' trip to Austin is their first since 1960.

The teams won't play each other again in the regular season until 2002. Because Texas is in the Big 12 South Division and Nebraska is the North, the teams aren't scheduled to play annually unless they should meet in the league championship game.

Unlike last year when Nebraska struggled to 9-4 in coach Frank Solich's first season, the Cornhuskers look as good as ever, Brown said.

"They are back," Brown said.

Nebraska's first-team defense hasn't surrendered a rushing touchdown this season.

Even so, Brown said Texas can't rely solely on the passing of quarterback Major Applewhite to win.

Junior tailback Hodges Mitchell rushed for 204 yards and a touchdown in the Longhorns' 38-28 win over Oklahoma two weeks ago. Texas and Nebraska both were idle last week.

"I don't think we can protect well enough to be one dimensional and just throw the ball," Brown said. We're going to be have to be able to run."

Seventh-ranked Kansas State forced Texas to throw in a 35-17 Wildcats victory. The Longhorns turned the ball over six times on three interceptions and three fumbles by Applewhite.

"(Nebraska) is every bit as good as Kansas State," Brown said.

"They're so quick and that's hard for us," he said. "We have a big offeorts Writer

Abusive Mother-in-Law Is Sign of Big Trouble Ahead

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ABBY: I had to write after reading the letter from "Hurt in Adams Center, N.Y.," the woman whose future mother-in-law is abusive to her because she thinks "Hurt" is "stealing her son away."

Please tell her to run, don't walk, to the nearest therapist and take her fiance with her — and if therapy doesn't fix things, to please, please, not marry this man. I was once married to such a man and an almost identical set of parents. I was wife No. 2 — we had both been married before — and I quickly found out what had happened to his first marriage. His mother didn't want other women around her adored son; this included his daughter from the first marriage. And she was not nice to my children either because she felt "disloyal" to the real grandchild.

My husband simply would not or could not stand up for his bride over the craziness of his parents. The mother walked closely past me in the hall one time and punched me in the stomach as hard as she could. When I let out a howl of protest, this goofy woman actually said she hadn't done such a thing; this was just another example of my trying to cause trouble! She had a way of "needing" his help urgently when she knew something was going on at our house and, every time, my husband would walk out on me to take care of this manipulative woman, his mother.

Again, run, don't walk, to a therapist. Remember, these are the people who raised the fiance to be the person he is. He's been yanked around and manipulated by them all his life — and there could easily be trouble ahead.

CRAZY LADY'S FORMER DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR FORMER DAUGHTER-IN-LAW: That's good advice, providing the couple will heed it. If it doesn't help them deal with the problem, at least it will help them gain insight. I have a stack of letters 6 inches high from women who have experienced the same problem. Every single one said to break the engagement and run like the devil. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Hurt in Adams Center" to put on her running shoes and exit that relationship as soon as possible. My ex-in-laws didn't approve of me, either.

At the wedding and reception they refused to be in any photograph that I was in. (How many wedding pictures have you seen without the bride?) My former mother-in-law called friends of mine and told them what an awful wife she thought I was, and my husband refused to intercede because he was sure everything would get better once children arrived.

After 18 months of this abuse, I got a divorce. I am now very happily married to someone else, and his mother and I get along just fine.

DIXIE DARLING

DEAR DIXIE DARLING: I advised "Hurt" that her fiance and his mother were still attached by an emotional umbilical cord, and the only person who could successfully sever it was her fiance — by making it clear to his mother that he expected his future wife to be treated with courtesy and respect.

To that I will add: If he is unable to do that, then she must read the handwriting on the wall. Better a broken engagement than a bitter divorce.

Good advice for everyone — teens to seniors — is in "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Play it smart and don't get triggered by what is going on. Somehow, you need to anchor. Communication needs to be heartfelt. Express what is really going on with you. Clear out work; you can get a lot done quickly. A boss pitches in. Tonight: Take some time for yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Emphasis is on desires, plans and goals. You are heading in a new direction. Check out a rumor; more might be going on than you suspect. Attend a seminar or workshop to increase your expertise in your field. Experimental ideas work well, presently. Tonight: Accept a friend's invitation to try a new spot.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You maintain a high profile, knowing what you want. Popularity soars; finally, another lets you know how much he stands behind you. Your intuition supports a professional decision. Know what you want and where you are going. Tonight: In the limelight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Break patterns. Be willing to take off at the drop of a hat. Another's word might be rough, but he is more out of sorts than you realized. Somehow, you easily get past a problem. Your smile wins friends. Make a must meeting. Tonight: Rent a movie on the way home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Others clearly need to have their say. You have pushed way too hard to make a relationship happen. A natural give-and-take is necessary. A money deal that seems to good to be true knocks on your door — it's true! Tonight: Celebrate a stroke of luck with a loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ You are sought after, as popularity makes its imprint on you. Your message comes through loud and clear. Others are ready to act on your ideas. Make calls; spread your ideas. A travel opportunity pops up out of the blue. Consider taking dance lessons or developing a new sport. Tonight: Having a good time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Dig into work. An associate comes through for you. Be sensitive to a partner; he appreciates your care and feedback. A family member pushes you hard, and you might be surprised by your reaction. Clear out any residual paperwork. Tonight: Bring extra work home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Your imagination knows no limits. Allow others to brainstorm with you and add to your ideas. Life takes a very pleasant turn as you watch your popularity increase. Friends bring more joy into your life. Do work first, then enjoy socializing. Tonight: You won't have to look far to find a reason for celebration.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Accept another's role in your life. Cooperation on the homefront can make you or break you. Spending comes all too naturally; hopefully, making money will also come as easily. Think about what you are doing in the finance department. Tonight: To the gym, then home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Your high-voltage energy brings others together. The amount of communication you receive may be overwhelming, but you cruise right through this. A relationship takes a heated twist. Tonight: Holding court in the center of your social circle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Something you have always wanted lands on your doorstep. You are able to make a difference and add to the quality of your existence. Allow more humor into your life; float with a changeable situation. Take some private time with someone special to you. Tonight: Balance your budget.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ You beam in whatever you want. Allow your gregarious side to emerge. Another clearly has your best interests in mind, even though he is pushing you very hard. Don't react to his forcefulness; listen to the message. Tonight: Others are only too happy to please.
