Carter wants nuclear halt

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Jimmy Carter today called for a five-year U.S.-Soviet agreement to halt nuclear testing for all purposes, including peaceful development.

He also proposed a World Energy Conference, sponsored by the United Nations and patterned after meetings on food supply and population.

The former Georgia governor, who is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, spoke at a conference on nuclear energy and world order. The conference was not an official U.N. function.

"Nuclear energy must be at the very top of the list of global challenges that call for new forms of international action," he said, while repeating his position that "U.S. dependence on nuclear power should be kept to the minimum necessary to meet our needs."

Carter called for a worldwide, voluntary moratorium on the purchase and sale of nuclear fuel enrichment and reprocessing plants because "highly enriched uranium can be used to produce weapons and because plutonium, when separated from the remainder of the spent fuel, can also be used to produce nuclear weapons."

He proposed "centralized multinational enrichment facilities" and said that "the first U.S. reprocessing plant, which is now nearing completion in Barnwell, S.C., could become the first multinational reprocessing facility under the auspices of the International Atomic Energy Agency."

Discussing nuclear weapons, Carter said a U.S.-Soviet agreement reached in April and awaiting President Ford's signature is "a wholly inadequate step beyond the limited test ban." The treaty would ban nuclear explosions above 150 kilotons.

"The longer effective arms reduction is postponed," he said, the more likely it is that other nations will be encouraged to develop their own nuclear capability.

"There is one step that can be taken at once. The United States and the Soviet Union should conclude an agreement prohibiting all nuclear explosions for a period of five years, whether they be weapons tests or so-called 'peaceful' nuclear explosions, and encourage all other countries to join."

In Washington, the White House denied a report that Ford is holding off signing the April treaty because of fears it would hurt his chances in Tuesday's Michigan primary.

Carter, who is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and studied nuclear physics while in the Navy, has said previously that the nation's goal should be the worldwide elimination of all nuclear weapons, but today's speech was his most detailed position to date on what steps to take to achieve the ultimate end.

He said he was "aware of the Soviet objections to a comprehensive treaty that does not allow peaceful nuclear explosions." But he said: "I believe the United States and the world community could persuade the USSR to dispose of this issue and accept a comprehensive test ban."

In the United States, the government currently holds a monopoly on uranium enrichment, owning and operating the nation's only three enrichment plants. A bill approved Tuesday by the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy calls for ending the monopoly.

The United States and other nuclear powers have refused to export plutonium reprocessing plants. The other nuclear suppliers are the Soviet Union, Canada, Britain and Japan.

In making several other recommendations, Carter said there also is a need for new international action to meet the energy needs of all countries while limiting the reliance on nuclear energy and a need for action to limit the spread of nuclear weapons. He called for the creation of a world energy agency and multinational fuel centers.

Spring TSTA banquet set

Upwards to 200 people are expected to attend the spring banquet of the local chapter of the Texas State Teachers Association, scheduled to get under way at 6:30 o'clock this evening in the high school cafeteria.

Mrs. Lynn Calvert will formally be sworn in as new president of the organization, succeeding Mrs. Janice Ross.

Other incoming officers include president-elect Rhonda Rothell, Mrs. Shirley Shroyer, secretary, and Miss Sherri Alexander, treasurer.

Incoming president of the Classroom Teachers Association, Mrs. Nan Howard, will also be recognized. She succeeds John Stiles. Teachers retiring from the system will be given awards and several service pins will be presented. They include:

Recipients of 25 year pins will be Essie Person and Louise Spradling. Twenty year pins will go to George Archer, Mary Koger, Doris Mason, Viola Merrill, Marjorie Morris, C. W. Tanner and Bobby Zellars. Fifteen year pins will be awarded to Betty Adams, Beverly Bradford, Bagna Brandon, Mary Breckenridge, Cleo Carille, Betty Conley, Joseph Daves, Kathleen Elliott, Ruelene Frazee, Lee Frazee, Nan Howard, H. H. Hulbregtse, Dorothy Humphreys, Bernice Jordan, Urdine Kerndle, Marie Landers, Nellie Mathis, Dolly Parker, Imogene Puckett and Irene Wiley. Ten year pins will go to Walter Alexander, Audrey Arnold, Mabel Bense, Judith Black, Vivien Buckner, Kelsie Carlisle, Rattie Mae Chapman, Irene Cook, Juanita Dittrell, Barbara Ervin, Katherine Gresham, Charlotte Hamilton, John Hamilton, Freda Hoover, Lynn Hise, Mary Nell Hise, Gloria Jordan, Velta Lloyd, Willie McDaniel, Raye McGregor, Walter Nichols, Loyce Phillips, Willie Phillips, Betty Prather, Bonnie Sorely, Floyd Sorely, Ruth Williams, Vevagene Williams, Nellie Wright and Maxine Zant. Retiring personnel who will be honored include Oma Anderson, Bagna Brandon, Bagna Brandon, E. Y. Buckner, Bernice Coates, Margaret Cooper, Marie Landers, Opal Newton, James Rankin, Irene Wiley and Dorothy Rice.

ROCKEFELLER AT SCENE OF QUAKE — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller embraces and kisses Elisabetta Badoic, 80, a victim of last week's earthquake which struck Northern Italy, during a tour Thursday of a tent city in the Alpine foothills village of Caoppo. The town was destroyed by last Thursday's massive earthquake. Visibly moved, Rockefeller told the victims: "It's so hard. I'm so sorry. You have been through a lot."

Quake shaken area evacuated again

UDINE, Italy (AP) — Italian officials today ordered the evacuation of another 2,250 people from four villages in earthquake-devastated northern Italy because of the danger of landslides, adding to the more than 100,000 rain-drenched refugees now huddled in tent cities.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, arriving for a tour of the disaster area, paid a half-hour visit under driving rain to the Alpine foothills village of Osoppo, a town destroyed by Thursday's massive earthquake.

Survivors mobbed him, trying to shake his hand. Visibly moved, Rockefeller told the victims: "It's so hard. I'm so sorry. You have been through a lot."

The vice president's wife, Happy, toured another section of the tent city, also shaking hands and comforting survivors. "You have been through a tragedy. You are great people," she said.

On his arrival at the Aviano NATO base 30 miles from this provincial capital, the vice president praised the government for doing a "splendid job" in reacting to the quake. The Italian government relief efforts have come under some fire from opposition newspapers and some survivors.

Rockefeller and his wife, Happy, accompanied by U.S. Ambassador John Volpe and Italian officials, flew over the area in an Italian helicopter, then landed at the tent city.

The vice president embraced and kissed many survivors and went into some tents to speak with those too weak to come out.

"He kissed me twice, he embraced me. He cares for us and we should feel better," said 73-year-old Lena Casasola, a widow, tears rolling down her face. "I lived alone. I lost the only thing I had in life — my home."

"We are in bad shape," one survivor told the vice president. "We don't want to live in barracks. We need our homes and we thank you for your aid."

"I know," the vice president replied.

Rockefeller was greeted on his return to Udine by a crowd of residents who applauded and shouted "Hey, Rocky."

Country-Western 'stars' due to sparkle at rodeo

"Four big stars will highlight the 'bigger than ever' Big Spring Rodeo this year," according to Charlie Creighton, president of the Big Spring Rodeo Association. The event is scheduled June 23-26.

LaCosta, increasingly well-known in the Country Music World; Jody Miller, a Grammy award winner; Fiddlin' Frenchie Burke of Country-Western fame and Big Spring's own Hoyle Nix and the West Texas Cowboys will highlight the four nights of rodeo in Big Spring this year.

Each star will appear one night and will also appear at a dance following the night of their respective performance. "We feel fortunate in obtaining four stars of this caliber where each night will be a completely different show," Creighton stated here today.

LaCosta, enthusiastic, bubbling country singer, has pushed her way to the top in recent months. Originally from Seminole, Tex., she sang in public for the first time at a talent show in Snyder when she was four years old.

While in high school, she and her younger sister, Tanya Tucker teamed up to sing for a Country-Western band. She made her first album in Las Vegas and her second in Nashville. Her first big success was a Capitol Record, "I Wanna Get to You." Among the songs she will sing here are "That's My Love" and a new record, "Western Man."

Jody Miller, Grammy award winner, television personality and dynamic stage performer, will perform the second night. Her television appearances number all of the major shows of the past few years.

Jody spends hours listening to material submitted by young writers, looking for a new song she might record. She headquarters in Nashville.

Fiddlin' Frenchie Burke, will appear the third night. Born in Louisiana, he grew up in East Texas and left the Air Force in 1963, living in Houston. Since then he has played with Ray Price, Little Jimmy Dickens, Johnny Bush and others. His first record was "Warm With Love in Here."

Top students will be guests of honor

Criswell, Newhouse keynote achievement dinner tonight

John Criswell, producer and cohost of the A. M. Show, will be master of ceremonies and Robert Newhouse of the Dallas Cowboys will be the main speaker at the annual Zales-Herald Youth Achievement dinner at 6 p.m. at the Big Spring Country Club.

Guests of honor will be the 16 finalists from the four high schools in the county with four from Big Spring High, Coahoma, Forsan and Sands at Ackerly.

Four will be named top winners in the contest and will receive special honors tonight. Only the finalists and their parents and escorts are the guests of honor.

City and school officials from the respective schools are also invited to the event.

The dinner is traditionally held to honor the outstanding seniors in the county, who have contributed to

He and his band, "The Outlaws" recorded a lively version of the Cajun waltz, "Big Mamou" at Houston's Nashville Sound. They also recorded "Colinda" and then "The Fiddlin' of Jacques Pierre Bordeaux" and "Frenchie's Cotton-Eyed Joe."

On the final night, Hoyle Nix and the West Texas Cowboys will perform. They were one of the performers in the Odessa rodeo early in the year.

The band formed in 1946, has three of the original members including Hoyle Nix, Ben Nix and Tommy Harwell. Other members include Jody Nix, Larry Nix and Dusty Stewart. They have recorded for Queen, Talent, Winston and Caprock Recordings.

Nix and his band have performed with such outstanding country entertainers as Bob Wills, Ernest Tubbs, Marty Robbins, Merle Haggard and many others.

Victim's father injured

Oil tank blast kills Colorado City worker

Johnny Lee McKinney, 20, Colorado City, died at Malone-Hogan Hospital here at 9:20 p.m., Wednesday from injuries sustained in the explosion of an oil tank on the Col-Tex Refinery Tank Farm one mile southwest of Colorado City earlier in the day.

The victim and his father, John McKinney, 49, were dismantling the tank when the accident occurred. A unit of the Mitchell County Ambulance Service rushed Johnny Lee to Big Spring.

The youth was to have been transported to Brooke Army Hospital in San Antonio in a Webb AFB plane for treatment of his burns.

The victim's father was taken to Root Hospital in Colorado City for treatment of injuries, where he was reported in "stable" condition. He was reported to be resting comfortably.

The Mitchell ambulance was diverted to Malone-Hogan Hospital after attendants thought the plane was going to be late arriving at Webb. As it turned out, the plane landed at Webb at the same time the ambulance showed up at Malone-Hogan.

The two men were cutting a steel stairway from Tank 49 on the farm when the blast occurred.

Fire Chief Pat McKinney (no relation to the victims) said the dead man was atop the tank cutting away steel beams which support the stairway when the explosion was set off. The blast apparently was detonated by the cutting torch.

The elder McKinney had just reached the top of the stairway. He was singed by the flames, but was able to drive himself to Root Memorial Hospital.

Johnny Lee McKinney was thrown 30 feet from the tank by the explosion. Medical attendants said he suffered burns over 60 per cent of his body and he had multiple fractures.

The younger McKinney was found by volunteer fireman shortly after they arrived at the scene.

Because of a water shortage problem, firemen were unable to battle the fire immediately. County fire trucks from Lorraine and Westbrook were summoned. About 7 p.m., the firefighters made a concentrated effort to snuff the blaze. Colorado City's Volunteer Fire Departments units and trucks from Webb AFB also were sent to the site.

Ultimately, officials decided to let the fire burn itself out. Oil still in the tank was being pumped out. Firemen stayed on the scene to keep it from spreading to ten nearby tanks. High winds gave the firemen trouble. The wind gusted at speeds of 35 miles per hour.

Heat from the blaze melted one side of the tank on which the McKinneys were working.

The fire could be seen all over Colorado City. Flames boiled upward to 30 feet in the air and thick black smoke kept boiling from the blaze.

A Texas Electric power line near the tank was burned but linemen succeeded in cutting off the power and ultimately by-passed it to other lines.

Rites will be said at 10 a.m., Saturday in the Kiker-Seale Chapel, with the Rev. John Ford, pastor of Central Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Colorado City Cemetery.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McKinney, Colorado City; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Velda Huff, Brownfield; a sister, Mrs. Eva Fay Salazar, Colorado City; two brothers, Eddie Dasso, Freeport, and Bruce McKinney, Colorado City.

Mr. McKinney was born May 1 1956, in Lorraine.

CRISWELL

school, church and community events.

Criswell, who serves as the master of ceremonies is a top newsmen and served as correspondent and anchorman in Washington, D. C., for WFAA-TV from Dallas and Fort Worth.

While in Washington, Criswell covered the 1968 and 1972 political conventions, the campaign burglary of Vice President Spiro Agnew, the Watergate burglary and covered the riots which followed the killing of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Newhouse was the Cowboys' second-leading rusher in 1974, totaling most of his 501 yards while filling in when Calvin Hill was hurt. He rushed for 2,961 yards during his college career in Houston, averaging 6.4 yards a carry and scoring 19 touchdowns despite a near-fatal auto accident just prior to his junior season.

Robert, his wife, Nancy and their son, Rodrick live in Dallas where he underwent training during the off-season at Texas Bank and Trust. He was a high school football star at Hallsville, Tex.

Other special guests will be dignitaries from Zales Jewelers and Big Spring Herald staff members.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Dishes washed?

Q. "I've heard that a few elementary schools don't have proper dishwashing or any kind of dishwasher. The 'squirters' they have don't get rid of all the material. Why?"

A. Ray Lawless, head of the Big Spring cafeteria system, said that every cafeteria either has dish tubs or dishwashing machines. He said there is a series of three tubs used in washing the dishes, one with soap for washing, one with hot water for rinsing and one with chlorinated water for sterilizing. The 'squirters' mentioned are only to knock off food before the dishes are washed, said Lawless. "We are inspected every month by a county health inspector," said Lawless, "and our dishes are very clean."

Offbeat: Dixie dynamite

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Alexandria's mayor wishes Walter Heatherwick would whistle "Dixie" or hum it. Anything except what he's doing now: playing it from loudspeakers down the street from the mayor's office.

"It's evident he's doing it to incite blacks to riot," Mayor John Snyder said Wednesday. "Maybe he thinks they'll blow that old building up so he can collect the insurance. It's completely vacant — except for some pigeons."

Heatherwick was unavailable for comment. His secretary said he was "out of town."

Heatherwick, 55, an insurance agent, not long ago bought an empty five-story building and attached two loud speakers, Snyder said. The speakers soon blared the Confederate anthem at high volume. Complaints followed. Blacks were offended. Merchants said it was bad for business. The mayor said he couldn't hear himself think in his own office a block away.

Heatherwick was arrested Tuesday for disturbing the peace and freed on bond. But Wednesday, "Dixie" boomed again.

Best bet on TV: 'The Quest'

Tonight's best bet is the made-for-TV flick, "The Quest," 8 p.m. on NBC, starring Tim Matheson, Kurt Russell and Brian Keith. Assumes tax cuts through '77

Budget settlement near?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appears ready to settle on a $413.3-billion federal budget ceiling that assumes continuation of individual income tax cuts through all of 1977.

But the congressional ceiling for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 is $17.5 billion above what President Ford wants and could trigger another monetary confrontation between the Democratic Congress and the Republican White House.

The Senate approved the budget ceiling by a vote of 65 to 29 on Wednesday and there were indications the House would give the plan final approval today.

The measure is based on the assumption that temporary individual tax cuts in effect this year will be continued through 1977.

The floor manager for the bill, Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, quickly warned Ford against touching off a budget battle with Congress.

Moss told the Senate that efforts by Ford to use a veto to cut Congress' spending closer to his own $395.8 billion proposal would bring "a long summer of futile confrontation between Congress and the White House."

If the President wants political confrontation instead of a sound fiscal policy these differences can become a battlefield and the public will be the loser.

Democratic backers of the budget legislation contend the higher spending figure, including $6.3 billion to be used to create 1.1 million more jobs, is needed to maintain economic recovery, but Ford contends higher spending risks more inflation.

The $413.3 billion spending target envisions a federal deficit at the end of the fiscal year of $50.8 billion, compared with a deficit estimated at $44.6 billion under Ford's budget proposal.

The ceiling is part of Congress' new machinery for setting its own federal budget rather than simply acting on presidential proposals.

The $413.3 billion is broken down into 17 spending ceilings, which congressional committees and then the full House and Senate are to meet in approving regular spending bills.

When the new fiscal year starts Oct. 1 Congress will set final, binding limits on the spending it can approve.

The $100.8 billion target for defense spending included in the Congressional measure is only $300 million below Ford's proposal.

But Congress included major increases of $23 billion for education, training and employment — 5 billion more than Ford proposed; $3.9 billion for health — $2.4 billion above Ford's figure; $15.7 billion for energy and resources — $2 billion above Ford's figure.

Congress' ceiling also includes $19.5 billion for veterans benefits, which is $2.3 billion above Ford's proposal, and $139.3 billion for income security, $2.2 billion above Ford's figure.

Baylor coach to speak during Gail celebration

By MARJ CARPENTER

Enthusiasm continues to run high in Borden County as their big Bicentennial celebration draws near. Nearly every man, woman and child in Gail and out in the county are working toward the weekend of activities.

At the big outdoor church service to be held at 10:30 a.m. on Sunday, May 30, Grant Teaff, Baylor football coach, will be the speaker.

This talk will be followed by lunch for all who attend at 12 noon and visiting, singing and old-fashioned games for the children in the afternoon.

Teaff, who is well-known in the West Texas area, due to his years at Texas Tech and San Angelo University, was selected as first choice by

TEAFF

Borden County Bicentennial committee for the speaker. Teaff has become one of the nation's most sought-after speakers after giving Baylor University the first Southwest Conference championship in 50 years.

In his talks, Teaff shares his Christian testimony and love for Baylor University in speeches to the youth of the land. At major football clinics, Teaff explains football plays to fellow coaches.

Last year he was featured all over the nation at the Kellogg's Coach of the Year clinics. The Texas Baptist Convention made history last fall by electing Teaff as third vice president, one of the few times a layman has been accorded such an honor.

Saturday, May 20, will be the big day in Gail and will begin with a parade at 10 a.m. that will include floats, buffalo and Indians. A noon barbecue will be followed by a pageant at 1:30 p.m. and a Wild West show at 3:30 p.m. There will also be arts and crafts displays during the afternoon. Thousands are expected to attend the two-day event.

Former MP 'cleans out' bar, kills four, himself

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A former military policeman who said he wanted to clean out heroin pushers and pimps shot and killed four persons in a bar before taking his own life, police said.

A police spokesman said the four people David McRae Jr., 22, killed had a combined total of "approximately 66 pages of criminal records. It ran the gamut from every type of criminal activity you can think of."

The spokesman said each of the four had a police record of some kind. But officers added there was no evidence that McRae knew his victims, and details of the victims' records were not available immediately.

Police said McRae, of Norfolk, entered the Club 304 at 12:10 a.m. and began shooting patrons as they sat in their booths. In addition to the dead, three other persons were injured in the shooting rampage.

An employee of the club said McRae had telephoned the club 20 minutes before the shooting warning that he would clean out all the pimps, prostitutes, homosexuals and dope pushers in the bar. The club is located in what one police source described as "a bad section of town where all the real wild bars are."

Authorities said McRae had been charged Wednesday evening with carrying a concealed weapon — a .357 magnum pistol, which was confiscated by police. He was released on bond shortly after his arrest and went to the club, police said.

One witness in the bar said McRae first went into the restroom and loaded his .45-caliber pistol. He told the witness he was a police officer and was preparing to make arrests.

McRae was a delivery man for the Henry B. Gilpin Co., a wholesale drug firm. He had been arrested earlier in the evening against the steel from the club.

Police said McRae, who once served as a Norfolk police cadet while still a teen-ager, carried four clips filled with .45-caliber ammunition. It was not known where he got the weapon.

McRae entered the Army as a private in December 1972 and was honorably discharged in December 1975 as a corporal.

The dead were identified as Alfred White, 28; Steven Ballard, 27; Gramond Clark, 32; and Raymond Babb, 31. The injured were Rebecca Dobbin, 63; Lenwood McCray, 20; and Harry Chipchase, 26. Chipchase was identified as a sailor, but no other details were available on the backgrounds of the other two persons who were wounded. None of the three was seriously injured.

Capping ceremonies scheduled at college

Graduation and capping ceremonies will be held at 7:30 p.m. today at Howard College auditorium for the first class of Registered Nurses to graduate at the college.

Main speaker will be Mrs. Verona Riegel, R.N., and Mrs. Lettie Acox, department head, will present the students.

Presentation of caps and candles will be made by Dr. Coy Little, R.N., Dorothy Woodard B.S.N., Ellen Taylor, B.S.N., and Kathy Molpus B.S.N.

Charlotte McElligott, S.N. will give the invocation and Dr. Charles Hayes, college president, will give the welcome. The Class of 1977 will give the Nightingale Pledge. Sandra Rhodes, S.N. will give the benediction. The processional and recessional will be furnished by Ms. Betty Newman.

Class members include Ms. Janice Phillips Bernzoff, Ms. Sandra Carden, Ms. Pauline Conway, Fred Davis, Ms. Mary Dean, Ms. Sue Ann Easterling.

Also George Frimel, Ms. Kay Gaskins, Ms. Billie Gilbert, Bruce Hinshaw, Ms. Louise Kirkpatrick, Ms. Charlotte McElligott, Ms. Mary McIntosh, Ms. Jean Morris, Ms. Olga Perez, Ms. Peggy Phillippe, Ms. Cathy Ransom, Ms. Sandra Rhodes, Ms. Laquita J. Glasscock County road grant okayed

Three grants, including one for a Farm to Market Road in Glasscock County, were approved Wednesday at Midland Airport by the board of directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council board of directors.

The grant requested by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is requesting $84,800 from the Federal Highway Administration for improvements to 3.1 miles of an existing gravel surface county road in Glasscock County. It will join improvements in Reagan County to tie FM 240 in Glasscock County with 1357 in Reagan County.

The board also approved Head Start grants with $14,155 approved for the Midland Independent School District and $99,446 to Permian Basin, Inc. program.

New grant review committees were set up to split the duties of the present grant review board so there would be closer scrutiny of the grant applications.

The Regional Development review committee will include 16 members. Some from this area of the region on the committee are Charles Tompkins, Big Spring city councilman; Glenn Toombs, Fluvanna, former Borden County judge; and C. A. Taylor, city manager at Lamesa.

The second committee, dubbed the Human Resources advisory committee includes 30 members. From this area on the committee are Jack Powell, VA Hospital administrator; Ron Cohorn, Big Spring State Hospital; Mrs. Nadeen Blair, Senior Citizen Center, Lamesa and Mrs. Josephine Jones, city of Stanton Housing Authority.

Gene Day of Fort Stockton was named as one of three representatives in cities under $50,000 on the board. He is a councilman in Fort Stockton.

The June board meeting was scheduled to be held June 23. Harold Hall, chairman of the board, was unable to attend as he was in Fort Worth. Judge Darrell Glover from Pecos presided.

Among those attending from this area were Judge Bill Tune, Howard County; Judge Leslie Pratt, Dawson County; Judge Jimmy Mathis, Martin County; Judge D. W. Parker, Glasscock County and Mrs. Ruby Greenhaw, Martin County Hospital District.

Police beat Local thugs, vandals busy

Gus Tatum reported a burglary at his Texaco Station, IS-20 and Highway 350, 7:03 a.m. Wednesday. According to reports, a sheet metal wall on the east side of the station had been pried open to gain entry. Missing were two CB radios, and a shotgun. Including $100 worth of damage, total loss came to $500.

Criminal mischief, which occurred at the home of Sandra Nelson, 1623 E. 3rd, sometime early Wednesday morning, was reported Thursday. According to reports, someone smashed the windshield of Ms. Nelson's car. Damage was estimated at $100.

A burglary was reported at the Sonic Drive-in, 1200 Gregg, which is thought to have occurred sometime after 12:10 a.m. Wednesday. Burglars may have been hungry because, along with an unknown amount of cash, they made off with four 10-pound boxes of hamburger valued at $28.

Juggling of genes

Nervous naked chick problem lingering

OMAR BURLESON, M.C. 17th District, Texas

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The juggling of genes can have frightening possibilities. Researchers in the field have some agreement among themselves to limit attempts to create forms of life in the test tube but, seemingly, some feel that under some circumstances they can improve upon what the Creator did in the first place.

In the case of food production, the genetic engineers have accomplished some remarkable results. Even as far back as 1850, the idea of hybrids came into being through experiments conducted by an Austrian monk, Gregor Mendel. Application of genetics for increasing plant yields has advanced considerably in the last five or six years. According to these scientists, chemical fertilizer and complex farm machinery are reaching limits for increasing production to any considerable degree beyond what it is at present. They reason that genetic modification is the best hope for increasing food output to feed an expanding population.

ONE RECENT advance is growing faster, cheaper and meatier chickens by breeding them without feathers. Featherless fryers and bare-bottom broilers save time and processing costs by cutting out the plucking, bringing fresher poultry to the table faster.

More important, they say, by eliminating feathers about 25 per cent of the protein in an ordinary chicken is saved. This much goes into the feathers. Customers would be getting more meat and chicken raisers would be spending less on feed.

It seems that when this theory was turned into practice at the University of Connecticut and the University of Maryland some problems appeared. They found that the naked chickens were extremely nervous, prone to chills and stomach ulcers. Many spent so much energy rushing around to keep warm that they ate more than feathered chickens. They are trying to solve these problems. The breeders of new chickens think that when they get the answer they can produce cheaper, meatier, and fresher poultry since, without feathers, they weigh 6 per cent more than others and leave 16 per cent more meat after cooking because they have less fat and, consequently, shrink less when cooked.

TEXAS A&M is working on laying hens too. While smaller hens have been developed which lay more eggs than others, researchers at Texas Research Stations of the U.S. Department of Agriculture are trying to breed hens that lay eggs low in cholesterol.

While all of this is going on, other efforts in a brave new world are being made which affect the amount and quality of our food. One such effort is in finding food plants to grow in acidic soils. It has been concluded that enough food for the world can not be raised on our good soils alone. Research is going into finding the proper plants for the poorer soils instead of trying to fertilize nonproductive land for food plants. In other words, it is changing the plant to fit the soil instead of changing the soil to fit the plant.

ONE OF THE most intense efforts has been under way at Washington State University where different strains of wheat, of which there are thousands, are being tested. Experiments are being made to find strains resistant to certain diseases; to increase volume per stalk; and increase protein per grain.

As with the featherless chickens, problems with the miracle grain have arisen which the theory did not anticipate but solutions are being sought.

INSPECTS THE PRODUCT — President Gerald R. Ford, wearing safety glasses, views the spindle inspection and packing while touring the Ford Motor Co. plant in Sterling Heights Wednesday evening during a full day of campaigning in suburban North Detroit.

Tornadoes, flooding damage Texas property

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes danced across numerous areas from North to Southeast Texas and storms dumped flash-flooding rains in turbulent weather which broke out during the night and persisted in some sections today.

At least two of the twisters inflicted property damage but there was no word of any persons suffering injuries. There also were reports of widespread minor damage from hail in many points as the thunderstorms kept spreading across the state toward the southeast.

In the wake of a cold front generating the rough weather, skies cleared west of the Pecos River in West Texas and in parts of the Panhandle-Plains sector by this morning.

It was at least partly cloudy everywhere else with rain continuing in Southeast Texas, where a flash flood watch covered the countryside east of a line from Bryan to Palacios, and Southwest Texas from around Del Rio toward the Orange counties.

One of the tornadoes struck northwest of Fort Worth near Weatherford, wrecking two barns and injuring a cow. Another

Sightings of still other twisters—none apparently causing damage—were reported south of Haskell in West Central Texas; in the Fort Worth-Dallas vicinity near Haslet, between Arlington and Grand Prairie, and close to Carrollton and Lewisville; west of Gainesville and west of Greenville in North Texas and close to Jefferson in extreme Northeast Texas.

Still more rain was expected across the southeast quarter of the state as the cold front kept working toward the coast.

Behind the frontal zone the early morning temperatures dipped as low as 45 degrees at Lubbock and 46 at Amarillo in the Panhandle-Plains section. At the same hour it was still 77 in Brownsville at the mouth of the Rio Grande.

Wednesday's top temperatures climbed into the 90s at high a dozen points, going as high as 97 at Presidio in far West Texas.

Deaths Polly Lewis

Pauline Ruth (Polly) Lewis, 15, died 7:15 p.m. Wednesday in Stanton. Services will be held 2 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church of Stanton with the Rev. David Blacett, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in the Evergreen Cemetery under the direction of Gilbreath Funeral Home.

Miss Lewis was born Dec. 20, 1960 in Big Spring. She was a student at Stanton High School.

Survivors include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lewis, Stanton; two brothers, Richard Wayne Lewis, George Ray Lewis, of the home; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ray Russell, Hobbs, N. M. and a great-grandmother, Mrs. Elsie Russell, Sulphur Springs.

Pallbearers are Terrell Pinkston, Jimmy Wheeler, Todd Smith, Kendall Blocker, Tommy Morrow, Lanny Hanson, Larry Butler and Kenneth Hull.

The family requests that memorials be sent to the First Baptist Church Youth Center in Stanton.

Mrs. Wood

Mrs. Jesse R. (Maude) Wood, 92, died Wednesday in a Dallas Hospital. Graveside services will be held 2 p.m. Friday at Trinity Memorial Park with Dr. William R. Fleming, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, officiating.

Mrs. Wood was born Maude Johnson, April 25, 1884, in Mt. Vernon, Ill. She married Jesse R. Wood in March of 1905 in Mt. Vernon. He preceded her in death Jan. 10, 1966. Mrs. Wood resided in Mt. Vernon until 1965 when she moved to Big knifed into a suburban business center on the north side of Austin and tore the roof off a building.

As the worst weather still lashed at Southeast Texas, police spotted a funnel cloud over Port Arthur shortly before 6 a.m. today. It caused a brief tornado warning for Jefferson and Orange counties.

One of the tornadoes struck northwest of Fort Worth near Weatherford, wrecking two barns and injuring a cow. Another

Deaths

Spring. She had been a resident of Dallas since 1971. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church of Big Spring.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Knox (Freda) Chadd, Big Spring; Mrs. Gladys W. Berg, Miss Lelamae Wood, both of Dallas; a grandson, Ken Chadd, Big Spring; two granddaughters, Mrs. Kaye Richert, Washington, D.C., Miss Mary Berg, Dallas; and a great-grandson, Joel Chadd, Big Spring.

Leroy Lydia

COLORADO CITY — Services for Leroy Lydia, 53, of Colorado City who was pronounced dead of natural causes Tuesday morning by Justice of the Peace Mary Lee Moore, will be at 4 p.m. today at the Kiker-Seale Chapel here.

The Rev. Henry Lee will officiate. Burial will be in the Mitchell County Cemetery.

Survivors include a son, Leroy Lydia Jr. of Colorado City and a brother, Charles Ray Lydia of Mansfield, Tex.

Mental state at issue

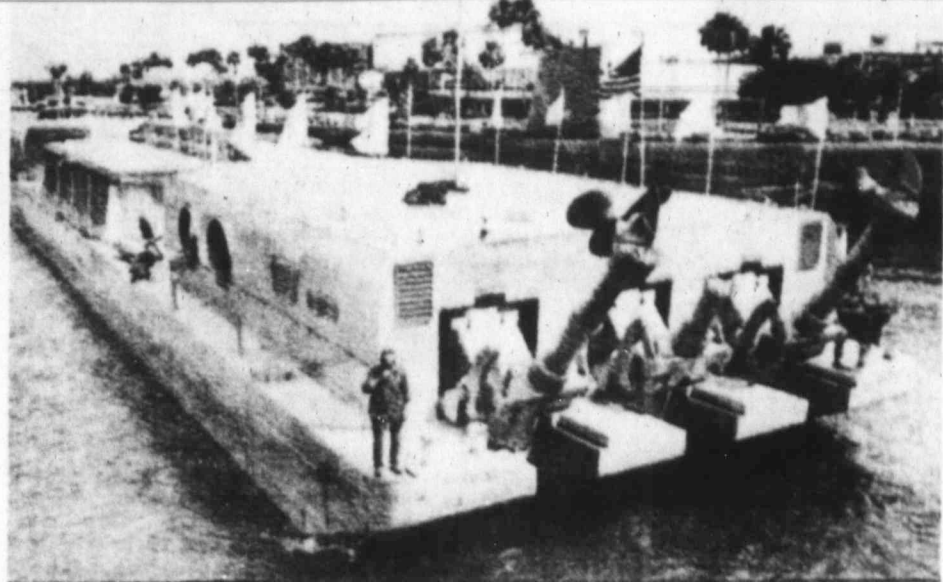

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst's mental condition, the subject of intense debate since her kidnapping more than two years ago, still is an issue as she prepares for her second trial. Her attorney raised it again Wednesday in asking that Miss Hearst not be required to enter a plea to kidnap, assault and robbery charges because there is doubt as to her mental competence. Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler set May 28 for a hearing on the question. The newspaper heiress' appearance in court was her first since suffering a collapsed lung last month.

Haskell intervened

DENVER (AP) — Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., whose Senate subcommittee is investigating Howard H. Callaway's allegedly improper role in a ski resort case, intervened himself on behalf of a proposed winter sports development, government records show. In a 1973 letter to the head of the U.E. Forest Service, John McGuire, Haskell asked the agency to remove 6,600 acres from land under study for designation as a wilderness area. The land figures in plans by a Skokie, Ill., developer to build a ski area on San Juan National Forest land in Colorado. Speaking from his Washington office Wednesday night, Haskell said the letter was "routine" and denied it was an effort to exert political pressure on the Forest Service.

Want to avoid 'blowup'

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — American delegates at the fourth United Nations Conference on Trade and Development say they want to avoid a blowup that could harm President Ford's campaign in the presidential primaries. But Ronald Reagan's victories "underscore the fact that we cannot go on farther than we have already," one representative of the Ford administration said.

THE BICENTENNIAL BARGE — The Bicentennial Cultural Barge, on a 90-city, 15,000-mile journey to help celebrate America's 200th birthday, glides up the Hillsborough River (top), for a concert at the University of Tampa, in Tampa, Fla. by the American Wind Symphony of Western Pennsylvania (bottom). The side of the 195-foot barge, Point-Counterpoint II, opens and the 50-member orchestra plays on board. The trip, which began April 30 in Mississippi, will take the floating arts center through Florida, up the Eastern Seaboard, across to the Great Lakes and down the Mississippi River.

Will landslide

Many write like Hughes

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Wills purportedly written by Howard Hughes are popping up from coast to coast, and a longtime employee of the late billionaire says: "I think it's becoming apparent there are a lot of people who can write like Howard Hughes."

At last count Wednesday, there were five documents claimed by various people to be the one and only authentic Hughes will.

The atmosphere turned carnival Wednesday, when two "wills" were delivered to the Clark County courthouse, and a New York newspaper said it received another in the mail.

Further adding to the hubbub was a claim that the first and most seriously considered will was a gag.

A genealogist hired by distant relatives of Hughes told a Chicago news conference Wednesday he had contacted a person in Salt Lake City who claimed to be one of five forgers who wrote the document as a joke.

However, William A. Jones, of Nashville, Tenn., was vague about "the person."

Clark County officials found the situation less than humorous.

"To the public at large it may be a carnival, to the people who may be sending this stuff in it may be a carnival, but certainly it's not a carnival to the court or any of its attaches," County Probate Commissioner Russell S. Waite said.

A man identifying himself as Grover Walker of Las Vegas walked into the county clerk's office Wednesday accompanied by three apparent bodyguards and filed will No. 3.

Walker said the will was delivered to him by Richard Robard Hughes, who claims to be Hughes' illegitimate son, Joseph Michael Brown, who changed his legal name to Richard Robard Hughes, claimed last year that he and his "father" communicated by tiny radio transmitters implanted in their heads.

Later Wednesday a document printed in green was sent to the manager of the Desert Inn in Las Vegas, where Hughes lived in seclusion between 1966 and 1970. A cover letter with will No. 4 was signed "Howard Hughes Jr." It listed his return address as the Oasis Motel in Banning, Calif.

"The spelling errors are unreal," said Asst. County Clerk Elda Hanks, referring to that purported will.

The alleged junior Hughes said, "I do not want to claim (sic) any of my father's inheritance." The document leaves all of the money except a few million dollars "to the government of the United States to give jobs for the people."

Hughes' fortune, estimated between $1.5 billion and $2.5 billion, may be the largest probate case in American history.

Plains Co-op plans major expansion of marketing

Plains Cotton Cooperative Association will make a major expansion of its electronic marketing system, General Manager Dan Davis has announced.

Known as TELCOT, the advanced marketing system was introduced by PCCA to its 20,000 producer-members in Texas and Oklahoma last fall. It is considered by many as the most significant advancement in cotton marketing in over 20 years.

At a recent meeting in Lubbock, PCCA directors voted to expand the cooperative's marketing program and enlarge its data system with a more modern, higher capacity computer.

In addition to the incorporation of marketing program refinements suggested by participating merchants, producers and cooperative gins, the expanded version of the electronic system will provide for a major new marketing option.

Davis said the expanded system will be known as TELCOT II and should stimulate much higher volume.

"The aim of our marketing system is to accommodate both the producers and the merchants in the most efficient manner and of course achieve the best price that is attainable from the trade," Davis stated. "We anticipate that the cooperative gins in the Southwest will use TELCOT as their chief marketing vehicle."

Basically, TELCOT is a system for offering and invoicing cotton. Using PCCA's computer, cotton is offered for sale over electronic communications tubes placed in the offices of merchants as far away as Memphis.

The initial program of the past season provided for 16 merchants and PCCA to bid "in the blind" on cotton recaps offered for sale from the cooperative gins. Each bidder had a period of 15 minutes in which to submit his highest offer on each recap. The cotton was sold to the highest bidder.

TELCOT II will continue the 15-minute bidding program and provide for local buyers as well as regional merchants and PCCA to bid on each recap offered. The expanded system also will provide for producers to set their own asking price on cotton offered if they so choose.

Davis said the new marketing feature of producers offering cotton at their own price, determination will appeal to those who do not wish to accept someone else's version of what cotton should be worth.

Farm markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 1 were higher by as much as $4.55 a bale in midday dealings today.

Summers of export demand for U.S. cotton from Far Eastern textile mills spurred demand for contracts, brokers said.

The average price for strict low middling, 1 1/4 inch spot cotton advanced 35 points to $1.21 cents a pound Wednesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were $300 to $405 a bale higher than the previous close. July, $5.99; October, $5.80; and December, $4.03.

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Cattle and steer quotations Thursday. Demand for steer and heifer beef moderate. Fully 1.00 higher. No sales cow beef. 600,000 acres are damaged

WASHINGTON (AP) — An additional 600,000 acres of land in parts of the Great Plains were damaged by wind erosion last month, raising to more than six million acres the area damaged since an annual survey began last Nov. 1, says the Agriculture Department.

A year ago, fewer than 3.8 million acres were damaged during the entire five months of the "wind erosion season," which runs from Nov. 1 through May 31, according to the department's Soil Conservation Service. Drought last fall and during the winter has been the main cause of the damage.

Most of this season's damage—a two-month total of more than 3.5 million acres—occurred in January and February.

The four-month total of 6,044,352 acres damaged by wind erosion is the most in the area in 20 years but still is much smaller than the damage inflicted at that time. During three years, 1954 through early 1957, for example, 10 million to 16 million acres were stripped by wind erosion annually.

In the southern plains, Colorado was reported with 866,815 acres damaged; Kansas 904,288; New Mexico 285,525; Oklahoma 605,872; and Texas 1,498,644.

House ethics panel probes congressman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee, for the first time in its eight-year existence, is going to conduct a formal investigation into a congressman's conduct.

The panel voted 9-0 in closed session Wednesday to move from a preliminary inquiry to a formal investigation of conflict of interest charges against Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla.

Common Cause, the self-styled citizens' lobby, filed a sworn complaint with the committee in April charging that Sikes used his position to enhance personal investments in Florida.

Sikes, 69, who has served in Congress since 1941, is chairman of the House military construction appropriations subcommittee. Sikes promised to give the ethics committee "whatever information they need and we'll cooperate fully." He said he welcomed the probe "because I do not want innuendoes and defamatory allegations to be allowed to stand."

Sikes said Common Cause and "the liberal media" conducted "a year-long attempt to destroy me politically."

Common Cause's charges first surfaced in news reports last year.

Chairman John Flynt, D-Ga., said the ethics committee's decision to investigate reflected no judgment on the charges against Sikes.

Sikes sponsored legislation to permit commercial development of some Florida land on which a company he partly owned held a lease, Common Cause said. It also said Sikes voted for a $73 million contract for Fairchild Industries while owning 1,000 shares of Fairchild stock.

In addition, the organization said Sikes urged local and state officials to permit establishment of the First Navy Bank at Pensacola Naval Air Station. It said he was an initial bank stockholder.

Sikes replied in a formal statement to the Ethics Committee that the land legislation he sponsored was requested by a local agency to rehabilitate part of Santa Rosa Island. His company did not directly benefit, he said.

Sike said the 1,000 shares of stock in Fairchild were so "miniscule" that they did not come under the House rule against a member voting on a bill benefiting himself.

He said the request to locate a bank at the Pensacola air station was made by the Navy and that he did not become a stockholder until after the bank branch was approved there.

Women join firefighters

DALLAS (AP) — Female firefighters may soon be bunking in with the boys in Dallas.

The city has entered into an agreement to hire 15 percent of the fire department's work force from women trainees.

One complication may be sleeping arrangements. Some new fire stations have separate bedrooms, but most have only a large dormitory shared by all.

"Of course a lot of wives will raise Cain about women sharing bedrooms with men," said Lt. Jim Carlin, "but the situation hasn't come up yet, so we'll have to wait and see how it works out."

Dog bites man

BEDFORD, England (AP) — After he rejected a magistrate's order that a 168-pound Great Dane be destroyed because it was dangerous, Judge Robert Lynt.ry gave the dog a friendly pat.

The dog bit the judge's hand twice.

Remember Webb's open house

Don't forget you've got a date from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Webb AFB open house.

THE OPEN HOUSE is the culmination of a week of activities as the traditional Armed Forces Day is extended to Armed Forces Week in honor of the bicentennial.

In addition to the many exhibits planned for the open house, a fly-over has been set for about 2:30 p.m.

The exhibits and other activities are to be centered around the base operations end of the flightline.

All kinds of aircraft will be on display, including those from other commands and perhaps even some from the Navy, and a collection of antique airplanes alone should draw a big crowd.

Attending the open house at Webb is not only a way to have fun, but it is also a way to express to our nation's men and women in uniform that we appreciate their standing every-ready for us.

Those of us in civilian life do not often pause to thank those who serve in the military. We are grateful enough to them in times of emergency when the security of our nation is in danger, but in peacetime we take them for granted.

THAT IS WHY it's important that a special time of the year be set aside as Armed Services Week. This week serves as a reminder to us that the personnel at Webb are serving and that, on this small globe with its potential for instant war, we need them there at all times.

One way the community is saying thanks is through the mini-rodeo and barbecue sponsored by the Century Club this Saturday. This event, which will begin at 5:30 p.m. at the Howard County Fairgrounds, is open to all enlisted personnel at Webb. More than 1,000 Webb people are expected.

Another Armed Forces Week event which is open to the public is the retreat ceremony planned at 5 p.m. Friday in front of the Howard County Library.

Remember this is Armed Forces Week. Tell Air Force officers or enlisted person you appreciate his service. And mark your calendar for the big open house Saturday afternoon at Webb.

Jimmy and Strauss

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter, having secretly wooed McGovernite liberals by promising to dump Robert S. Strauss as Democratic national chairman, may now ingratiate himself with party pros by keeping Strauss on the job through the November election.

Such chicanery is commonplace for Carter, who campaigns as a non-deviant non-politician. But it also confronts worried liberal Democrats with this question: now that Carter has nearly clinched the presidential nomination, will he abandon commitments — explicit and implicit — to them?

CARTER'S COMMITMENT on Strauss was explicit enough, playing on unreasoning anti-Strauss passion from the party's left-wing despite his success as national chairman in keeping intraparty peace. Carter told one Strauss-hating liberal that getting a new Democratic chairman was high among his priorities. In other words: back Carter if you want to sack Strauss.

Carter did not mention Strauss by name, but his operatives were less circumspect. Three ex-McGovernites — Democratic national committeewoman Patt Derian of Mississippi, Mike Abrams of Florida and the Rev. James Wall of Illinois — recruited fellow liberals with promises that Carter would get rid of Strauss.

Hearing about this, Strauss several weeks ago asked a Carter adviser, Atlanta lawyer Charles Kirbo, what was wrong. Kirbo replied there was no problem. Strauss asked Carter himself following the gridiron dinner in Washington April 3. There ensued a political chat, during which Carter expressed no complaints whatever with Strauss.

With Carter reassuring party regulars following his Pennsylvania win, word seeped out that Strauss would be retained through the election. But doubts were renewed with the kiss-and-tell revelations of Bob Shrum, Carter's disaffected left-wing speechwriter.

IN HIS KEYHOLE memorandum on Carter, Shrum wrote that Strauss' status was discussed by Carter and aides over dinner in Pittsburgh April 25, adding: "I understood that Carter's managers were conveying indirectly to Strauss that he could remain chairman through the November election, but I suppose I wasn't really surprised when Carter said: 'If we can't remove Strauss, I'll be a pretty pathetic nominee.'"

When this inevitably got back to Strauss, a Carter lieutenant immediately telephoned an explanation of the Pittsburgh dinner: somebody had mentioned the difficulty of naming a new chairman, and Carter merely replied that a nominee who could not do that would be "pretty pathetic."

That this explanation is being made — and accepted — points to present political realities: Jimmy Carter is a cinch to be nominated and will be better advised to retain the popular Strauss than change the guard now.

RONNIE AND BARRY Sen. Barry Goldwater's sudden new animosity which could seriously impede Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign follows two long, friendly telephone conversations between them containing no hint of what now seems quite possible: open endorsement of President Ford by Mr. Conservative.

THERE HAS BEEN no contact between Goldwater and Reagan the past month. But Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr. of California quietly informed Reagan operatives in Indiana last week that his father might endorse Mr. Ford. The younger Goldwater revealed he has tried to persuade his father to stay neutral.

"In order to maintain our usual bungling, inefficient standards, once again we must issue a new first-class stamp."

Gout can rear its head

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has gout. The medicine he was on gave him such a severe reaction that he was hospitalized. He is now on others, but they, too, upset his stomach.

He is at the point where he'd rather suffer the pain than the reactions.

Please tell me why this uric acid problem has developed. We have annual physicals and his tests always were negative. Our diet is anything but rich, because I have cholesterol and we eat very low-fat foods. I'm so puzzled. — L.M.N.

It would be dandy if we could tell the "whys" of many of our ailments. Why is this person stricken with a paralyzing stroke, why with gout? We do know certain factors that are present, but why at this time to this person?

Gout is what we call an "inborn error of metabolism." In this case, all that means is the person's body is unable to handle uric acid properly. Normal levels of that can range from 2 mgs. to 7 mgs. per milliliter of blood. When it gets higher than that you have gout. The "distance" between 7 mgs. and 8 mgs. can be reached quickly.

So it is not surprising that gout was diagnosed from one examination to the next. Symptoms, such as pain in the joints, don't have to appear with slightly high readings, but the process is under way.

The three drugs you mention in your letter (in a part not printed) are commonly used in gout. But there is still room for substitution. Those you don't mention include allopurinol and plain benemid. These might be tolerated and still keep the uric acid in control.

The colchicine he is using is for acute attacks. It can often upset the digestive tract. Your husband's doctor should be kept posted on these side effects so he can change to other drugs if necessary.

Remember, it can take time to determine just the correct dosage of just the right drug or combination of drugs in gout. The same is true, of course, with many other drug therapies.

There are other aspects of this too lengthy to go into here. Read my booklet, "Gout, The Modern Way to Stop It." For a copy, send 25 cents to me in care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

And incidentally, your low-cholesterol diet has no effect on the gout. Diet no-no's in gout are the high-purine foods, such as organ meats. The purines are what cause the acid.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain about adhesive capsulitis. I have seen a doctor for this for six months with no improvement. My arm and shoulder are very painful and uncomfortable at night. Any suggestions? — E.D.

Let's call it by its down-to-earth name — "frozen shoulder."

The "capsulitis" refers to inflammation of a protective fibrous tissue (the "capsule"). This adheres to the bone of the shoulder joint. The inflammation causes a stiffness that usually disappears relatively quickly. But the dull, aching pain can linger much longer and be downright unpleasant to live with.

But six months is not considered overly long for such symptoms to persist.

Try wearing an arm sling during the day. This will give the arm needed rest and ease the strain on the shoulder joint. Later, when the pain subsides, you may need some appropriate exercise. You should ask your doctor about this when the time comes.

Don't risk the danger of further damage with unwise or too early use.

Dear Doctor: I am 26 and have a few tiny blood vessels on my cheeks around my nose. I am thinking of having them removed with an electric needle. Can you give me the pros and cons? — C.S.

They sound like "spider veins." The nose is a common site. In the procedure you mention a tiny electric needle is placed in the vessel. A small electric current is applied and the blood is coagulated. The results are usually effective, with a slight swelling in the area that lasts a few days.

Your doctor may suggest you wait a bit to see how the veins develop on their own.

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — One of the things that has both political parties worried is the apathy of the American people. There is a fear that the 1976 presidential election could produce one of the lowest turnouts in recent election years.

My friend Rademacher has a solution to the problem.

"WHY NOT GIVE everybody their flu shot on Election Day?" he said. "Then they have to come out."

"How would you do it?" I asked him.

"Simple. You have two booths — one for voting and one for the flu shot. After a person votes he gets his shot."

"Why not give him his flu shot before he votes?"

"Because," said Rademacher, "he might get sick from the shot and not want to vote."

"But what about children, and people who aren't eligible to vote?" "They would have to show up, too, but we'd have a third booth for them. If they can prove they're too young to vote or they're not a resident of the state, they would get their flu shot without having to pull a lever for one of the presidential candidates."

"But wouldn't getting a flu shot keep a lot of people away from the polls? There are many voters who don't like to be stuck with a needle."

"I thought about that," Rademacher said, "and I think I have the answer. Anyone who votes on Election Day and receives his or her flu shot gets a free lollipop."

"A free lollipop?"

"SURE. MOST people don't mind getting inoculated if the doctor or nurse gives them a free lollipop afterward."

"I think they should get a free lollipop if they vote," I said. "With the choices this year, it's going to be much more painful to vote than it is to get a flu shot."

Rademacher said, "I hadn't thought of that. It would mean two lollipops. One for voting and one for the flu shot. That could run into a lot of money."

"What difference does it make as long as you get a large turnout for the election?" I said. "Have you made the suggestion to the Democratic and Republican parties?"

"Yes, but I got a mixed reaction on it. The Democrats want everyone to get their flu shots in October, two weeks before the election."

"Why?"

"Well, the shots were Ford's idea and if a lot of people get sick from the shots they'll blame the President. They'll say, 'I'm not going to vote for a man who gave me swine flu.'"

"THE REPUBLICANS," said Rademacher, "want the flu shot to be given after the election because they're also nervous about how the inoculations could affect the President. That's why I came up with Election Day as a compromise. If the people get sick, they'll already have voted so it won't affect their choice. It would be a big mistake to have swine flu decide who the next President of the United States would be."

"It's a good plan," I admitted, "and makes sense."

"THE BEAUTY of it," he said, "is that the networks could give the results of both the election and swine flu shots at the same time. ABC, CBS and NBC could go on at eight o'clock at night and say, 'On the basis of our computers with three per cent of the vote in, President Ford has won in Maine by 75,000 votes. Twenty-five thousand of these voters, according to our sample precincts, now have 101 deg. fever and 35,000 won't be able to go to work tomorrow.'"

"Fantastic. The audience will stay with television just to find out how the flu shots turned out," I said.

"Right," Rademacher said. "It will give the presidential election a real shot in the arm."

Promised caviar

Around the rim

The Herald receives each week a "package" containing information and pictures from television networks about their upcoming shows, tube stars, and specials. Usually, if the show costs a lot of money to make or if Bob Hope is in it, the buildup is bigger. We will receive three pages of notes or (rarely) four if the show is a blockbuster.

THIS WEEK we received 12 pages from the networks announcing their annual "let's pat ourselves on the back and tell the viewing audience how great we are" session, the Emmy Awards. All I can say is, "Typical" and "Who cares?"

I love television and I'm not sure I could get along without it. My parents recognized this when they gave my wife and me a color boob tube for a wedding gift.

I enjoy TV for what it is, a good way to go into limbo for a few hours without using up any brain cells. I admit I watch a lot of the magic box (sometimes starting with Star Trek, straight through Johnny Carson), and I even feel guilty once in awhile.

But I don't especially want to criticize TV for being a waste of time. Everybody knows that.

What really sends me running for the Alka Seltzer is when television begins to take itself seriously.

RICH MAN, POOR MAN has swept this year's Emmy nominations.

Doing it Rockwell way

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Last fall, a mystery man calling himself "Moses" tipped us off that the giant space contractor, Rockwell International, had given gratuities to scores of government space officials.

AFTER MONTHS OF digging, we can report at least this much: Smiling Rockwell executives have taken federal officials on hunting trips, to race tracks and to football games. On these occasions, Rockwell usually has provided plenty of food and liquor.

Corporate hunting lodges at Wye Island, Md., and near Albany, Ga., were opened to space officials, depending on whether they prefer to shoot geese in Maryland or quail in Georgia. The corporate jet has also been made available to officials in need of transportation.

To spare their government guests from embarrassment, Rockwell uses perforated expense vouchers. Above the perforation, the Rockwell executive writes down how much money he has spent on entertainment. But the government officials who were entertained are discreetly listed below the perforation.

After the Rockwell auditors have approved the reimbursement, the lower sections of the vouchers are removed and suppressed. Despite these precautions, we have learned the names of some of the officials who have partaken of Rockwell's hospitality.

Rockwell once invited some distinguished guests, including Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, chairman of the Senate Space Committee, to its Georgia hunting retreat. Then the company brought in astronaut James Lovell to impress upon the guests the importance of the space program.

On another occasion, Rockwell sent its private Sabre liner to Houston to fly astronaut Jack Louma to a hunting lodge. The corporate files show that astronaut Stuart Roosa has also used the Rockwell jet.

As we reported in an earlier column, space officials Clarence Gay, Ryndal Wetherington, Gerald Griffin and Jack Cramer have been guests of the space contractor at its Wye Island hunting lodge.

Other space officials who have accepted favors from Rockwell include Charles King, H. Dale Grubb, Jeffrey Hamilton and Al Alibrando.

Footnote: We called all the government officials who received gratuities from Rockwell. Those we reached denied any wrongful intent. A Rockwell spokesman said his company will no longer provide gratuities

Therein lies the network's claim to have brought serious adult drama to the viewing audience. This mini-series has been promoted as if it were the greatest thing since Shakespeare.

Baloney! Slick entertainment — a well produced, prime-time soap opera it is. But art it ain't. Unfortunately we will now be flooded with RM, PM imitations on every channel.

One network pretended to greatness last year when it offered us Beacon Hill. This show was forgettable at best, and mostly an exercise in boredom. But when it was watched by almost no one the network seemed to say, "We gave you art, you didn't tune in, so now we will give you The Bionic Woman."

Listen closely the next time Big Brother is touting one of his (educational, historical, dramatic) specials. What he is actually saying is, "I know I can't demand too much from you, so I will sugarcoat a little culture, and if you swallow it, I will let you get back to On The Rocks." It is insulting.

BUT IT IS dangerous to generalize. There is some genuinely good stuff on the tube (the exception not the rule), particularly on the public station (watch out here, there are also some very tedious, pretentious programs on PBS). What I'm really objecting to is being promised caviar when all I'm getting is hot dogs, and when hot dogs would have been O.K. to begin with.

to government officials.

THE NEW PERIALISTS: It is a grim historical irony that the Soviets who profess to be leading a world crusade against imperialism, are spreading the imperialism they cry so loudly against.

It is a new, insidious form of imperialism which imposes Soviet tyranny upon nations in the name of peoples democracies. This new imperialism is being carried into Southeast Asia, South America, Africa and the Middle East not by Soviets bearing arms but by Soviets bearing gifts.

The degree of tyranny varies from nation to nation. The Soviet technique is to make these nations so dependent on Moscow that slowly, inexorably, they become Soviet satellites.

A CLASSIC CASE is the remote former British protectorate of South Yemen. It is closed to U.S. newsmen, but we sent out associate Joe Spear to the border at the far end of the Arabian peninsula to get the story. Writing from across the border in North Yemen, where thousands of refugees have fled from the new tyranny, Spear reports:

"South Yemen has become almost a total puppet of the Soviet Union, the worst police state in the Arab world." The Sovietizing of South Yemen began with the usual gifts — military shipments that gave the rulers illusions of power. Spear reports that the small sheikhdom now has at least 20 modern MIG-17 fighter-bombers, another 20 older MIG-17s and enough support aircraft to complete a formidable air force.

The Soviets have also supplied the South Yemeni ground troops with 250 tanks, many of them advanced T-54s and T-55s.

With the impressive military weaponry, of course, came 3,000 to 4,000 Soviet advisers and technicians ostensibly to train these South Yemenis to operate their new equipment. To give the advisory force an international flavor, the Soviets also brought in 300 to 400 East Germans and more than 200 Cubans.

The visitors are more interested in giving political than military advice. Under the guidance of the Russians, for example, the East Germans virtually run the Interior Ministry which has turned South Yemen into a Soviet-model police state.

AN ESTIMATED quarter of the population is engaged in some kind of security work.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have tried to get into reading the Bible but it always bores me. Do you have any suggestions? — M.K.

DEAR M. K.: There are many people who find the Bible boring, and even foolish, because they have never really received Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior and been born again by the Holy Spirit. The Bible says, "The man without the Spirit does not accept the things that come from the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness to him, and he cannot understand them, because they are spiritually discerned" (1 Corinthians 2:14, New Int'l. Version). If this is the reason for your lack of interest in the Bible, I urge you to accept Christ as your Savior today.

There are also some practical suggestions you might find helpful.

First, I would urge you to get one of the excellent modern English translations for your study.

Second, don't move randomly from one part of Scripture to another. Have a definite method. If you have never done so, I suggest you start with the Gospel of John and read it through, one chapter at a time.

Third, before you open your Bible, always pray that God will give you an understanding of it. Pray also that He will help you to apply it to everyday life.

Finally, as you read your Bible, always ask yourself what the passage is really teaching. Ask God to show you what difference that passage should make in the way you live or think. Remember, "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves" (James 1:22).

Earl Butz claims new evidence on Callaway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says he's prepared to offer "new evidence" to a Senate subcommittee trying to determine if former Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway used improper pressure to win permission to expand his Colorado ski resort on federal land.

But Butz, scheduled to testify today as the Interior Committee's subcommittee on the environment resumes its hearings, wasn't saying in advance exactly what the "new evidence" would be.

Subcommittee chairman Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., said in an interview that he's got no idea what's on Butz' mind — unless Butz plans to follow through on an earlier claim that he's prepared to list members of Congress who have sought to influence Forest Service decisions.

The panel is attempting to determine if Callaway, as Army secretary and later as chairman of President Ford's election committee, used improper influence to get the Forest Service to approve expansion of his Crested Butte ski resort onto a nearby federal mountain.

The service, which is part of the Agriculture Department, tentatively approved the expansion in December, overruling a preliminary recommendation against the expansion.

Haskell recessed the hearings last month after Callaway protested that the panel hadn't called his original accusers to testify.

Those witnesses, Crested Butte Mayor Tom Glass, Gunnison County, Colo., Judge John Levin and Myles Arber, a Crested Butte newspaper publisher, are scheduled to testify following Butz.

Haskell has said the three first came to his office in the fall of 1975 to accuse Callaway of trying to pressure the Forest Service into approving the expansion of his ski resort.

Butz became involved when a panel investigator said a note in Butz' handwriting was found on an Interior Department memo urging that the Forest Service be encouraged to approve the resort expansion.

Former Agriculture Undersecretary J. Philip Campbell told the panel he sent the memo to Butz in July 1975, shortly after a meeting in Callaway's Pentagon office at which Crested Butte was discussed. Butz has acknowledged seeing the memo, but said he sent it to a subordinate and did not become personally involved in the matter.

Butz recently said, "As I indicated previously, I want to get the record straight on this thing. As a matter of fact, I have some new evidence to put in the record." When asked to elaborate, Butz dismissed the matter by saying, "that will go into the record."

Earlier, Butz had responded to the allegations that Callaway had exerted influence on the Forest Service by noting that many members of Congress had done the same thing.

Haskell said he has no reason to doubt that, and that on at least one occasion he himself had asked the Forest Service to speed up a decision affecting Colorado lumber operators. Government records show Haskell once intervened on behalf of an Illinois developer who wanted 6,600 acres removed from consideration as a wilderness area.

"I have no question but that many congressmen and senators do this sort of thing," Haskell said.

ARTIST ROBERT GARTLAND
'Cowboys and Cattle' author-illustrator

Gartland will display paintings at museum

Robert Gartland, award-winning artist in the western tradition, will hold a one-man show at the Heritage Museum, 510 Scurry, Sunday. There will then be a display of his works at the museum Monday through May 23.

From 1952 to 1962, Gartland was the staff artist at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City, for whom he did many murals in addition to illustrating for Natural History Magazine.

He was also the authorillustrator of "Cowboys and Cattle," a book for young people, published in 1962. During this year and the following, he traveled extensively throughout the United States, part of Canada, Colombia, Cuba, Mexico and Europe, settling in Spain for 17 months of painting and writing.

His work is now found in more than 100 private collections, and he has had one-man shows throughout Texas, Oklahoma and much of the world.

For those who like western art and wildlife paintings in a realistic vein, this show is not to be missed.

The tickets can be purchased by contacting High School Principal Jack Woodley's office or Elementary School Principal Bill Cregar at Elbow.

Man swimming to Olympics

WINDSOR, Canada (AP) — It's 624 miles from here to the Olympic site in Montreal and 74-year-old Boyne "Ben" Wiseman has covered about half the distance — swimming.

However, he's not stroking across Lake Erie and down the Welland canal. The project is part of a recreation center swimming program and the participants do their swimming in the pool.

New home prices skyrocket

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of new homes are rising at an annual rate of 22 per cent, throwing "a big question mark" over the ability of builders to construct houses that are cheap enough for families buying their first home, a government agency says.

The median sale price of a new home in February was $43,000, compared to $38,000 in February 1975, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported Wednesday in its monthly economic analysis newsletter.

Prices rose 13 per cent in the 12-month period, but soared at the 22 per cent annual rate during the last six months. And early indications were that the median price rose to nearly $44,000 in March, the board added.

The median price of $43,000 means that half the new homes in the country were sold for less than that sum and half were sold for more.

Many builders have reduced lot and house sizes and eliminated luxury trimmings in an attempt to keep new-home prices within reach of first-time buyers who otherwise would be squeezed out of the market. But the board indicated that strategy may not be working.

Mesquite cowboy ropes loot at Johnnie Lee Wills Rodeo

DENVER, Colo. — Fast times and high scores were abundant at the Johnnie Lee Wills Tulsa Stampede rodeo in Tulsa, Okla., which ended Sunday paying cowboy winners nearly $20,000.

The Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association's world champion bull rider, Don Gay of Mesquite, Tex., won first in his event by scoring 92 points on a previously unriden bull owned by Harry Vold of Fowler, Colo.

Gay rode number 444, and if that wasn't enough, the second-place finisher, Lyle Sankey of Rose Hill, Kan., took second with a 91 on another previously unriden bull, Vold's number 33. Gay won $1,110, while Sankey took $904.

One of the fastest times ever in steer wrestling was recorded by Carl Deaton of Hamshire, Tex., who won first in the second go-round with a time of 2.4 seconds for $644. Mike Saltsman of Eufaula, Okla., was second in that round with a time of 2.8 seconds.

Billy Hale of Checotah, Okla., 1971 event champion, won first in the steer wrestling average payoff with a total of 8.7 seconds on two steers, good for $1,288.

Other winners included reigning saddle bronc champion Monty Henson of Mesquite, who won the average payoff in his event for $1,650, which included a first and second split in the opening go-round, and a first-place win in the second go.

Chick Elms of Stephenville, Tex., was the bareback riding winner, winning the first go-round, and taking second in the second round for $941 overall.

Kim Gripp of Hereford,

Tex., won first in calf roping with a total time on two calves of 19.9 seconds for a total of $1,121. John Rothwell of Hyannis, Neb., set an arena record at Tulsa when he won first in the second go-round of the event with a time of 8.2 seconds.

All around champion Tom Ferguson of Miami, Okla., also placed at the rodeo. The 25-year-old cowboy is rodeo's biggest winner this season, with more than $30,000 in earnings.

Tug crew testifies

Heavy seas snapped lines to capsule

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tugboat crewmen who tried to rescue 20 men from a survival capsule floating near their sunken offshore drilling rig have testified that heavy seas snapped three lines to the capsule.

The capsule overturned April 15 about 40 miles east of Corpus Christi, Tex., and flooded through an open hatch, drowning 13 who were trapped inside. The other six escaped safely.

Crewmen on the tug Gulf Viking testified Wednesday before a Coast Guard board of inquiry seeking the cause of the rig sinking and the deaths in the unsinkable capsule.

Store blast puzzles Rangers

WILLS POINT, Tex. (AP) — Federal agents, Texas Rangers and local peace officers said today they are stumped over the bizarre bombing of the Brookshire Food Store here Wednesday.

Investigators said a pickup truck carrying two container drums loaded with explosives was aimed at the storefront, put into gear and left to crash into the building.

Texas Ranger Stewart Dowell said the drums carried detonators but they could not be located.

Damage was estimated at around $350,000.

A spokesman for the food store chain said the blast was one in a sequence of bombings carried out against the chain. He said the bombings are "baffling."

and definitely not a labor problem.

"We're taking great precautions," the spokesman said.

The driver of the pickup apparently vanished after the blast, and officers said they have no clues to his or her identity.

Van Zandt County Sheriff B.W. Ward said this is not a case of harassment.

"The man who did it is sick, and he could have blown up half the town," Ward said.

T.J. Boyd, market manager of the store, said he was there at 5:30 a.m., but awoke late and was drinking coffee across the street when the blast rocked the store.

"God was really watching over me," Boyd said.

Most of the 35 men abandoned the sinking rig in two of the capsules — shaped like covered saucers — in gale-force winds and 25-foot waves. Fourteen in one of the units were rescued. Only six of the 20 in the other capsule managed to get out after it overturned and flooded.

Marzette Snowden told the board members that the Gulf Viking first secured a 3/4-inch nylon line to the capsule, but it broke, and then a 1-inch nylon line snapped.

The third time, Snowden said, the tug attached a 1 3/4-inch nylon line.

"We surely thought that would hold," he said. "But it didn't."

Snowden said he and two other crewmen were holding the third time when it snapped. Almost simultaneously, he said, a huge wave swept over the tug and the capsule, knocking all three down.

When they got up from the deck, Snowden said, "the capsule had capsized."

Some of the rig survivors had said earlier they believed the capsule hit the side of the tug and flipped over.

But both Snowden and another crewman on the tug, Gene A. Milne of Mobile,

DISD attorneys reaffirm desegregation support

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Independent School District attorneys have reaffirmed support of an April 7 desegregation order in a brief to the 5th Circuit Court of appeals in New Orleans.

The move responded to a request earlier by the NAACP to halt implementation of U.S. Dist. Judge William M. Taylor Jr.'s order.

The school district brief said the two black trustees and the Mexican-American trustee have voted to support the district court's final order in entirety.

The NAACP asked for a stay of the order in the Circuit Court after Taylor denied the request here.

Prices celebrate 50th anniversary

The children and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kent Price invite all the couple's friends and relatives to attend a reception in honor of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The reception will be held from 3-5 p.m. Saturday in the First Baptist Church fellowship hall. The couple requests no gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon G. Boggus of Fort Stockton, the Price's son-in-law and daughter, will host the reception.

Assisting them will be the grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Boggus Jr. of Big Spring and Tommy Boggus and Miss Teri Cavnar of Fort Stockton.

The ladies of Mrs. Price's Sunday school class will also serve as hostesses.

Visitors are expected from Lubbock, Stamford, Abilene, Bradshaw, Winters, San Angelo, De Leon and San Antonio.

The former Clifford Taylor and Price were married in Abilene on May 15, 1926.

Mrs. Price taught school four years and worked in Parent-Teacher Association activities for several years. She was a clerk in the Goodfellow Air Force Base Post Office for three years. She attended college at Hardin-Simmons University and West Texas State College.

Price received his bachelor's degree from Howard Payne College and his master's degree from Hardin-Simmons University.

Price taught in public schools for 15 years. His last position was principal of Andrews High School.

Price spent three years as administrative assistant with the U.S. Corps of Engineers in the construction of air force bases at Midland, Big Spring and San Angelo.

For seven years he was administrative officer for the base engineer station at Goodfellow AFB in San Angelo.

For 18 years, until his retirement in October 1969, Price was training specialist in the pilot training program at Goodfellow and Webb Air Force Bases.

The couple has resided in Big Spring since January 1958.

Mr. and Mrs. Price are active in the First Baptist Church, senior citizens' activities and in bowling.

New members are Ms. Sherri Alexander, Ms. Rhonda Rothell and Ms. LaVonne Smith of Big Spring and Ms. JoDell Myrick of Sterling City. Following the banquet, Ms. Jean Wilder presented a founder's ceremony in honor of the women who began the first Delta Kappa Gamma Society chapter.

Led by Ms. Movelda Rhine, outgoing club president, each officer for 1976-77 was installed by the person who held the office during the past year.

New officers are Ms. Dorothy Smith, president; Ms. Fern Alexander, first vice president; Ms. Oneita Hardy, second vice president; Ms. Judith Blick, recording secretary; Ms. Mary Newell, corresponding secretary; Ms. Mabel Beene, treasurer; and Ms. Corinne Buckner, parliamentarian.

Duplicate bridge winners named

Women participated in duplicate bridge games Wednesday and Friday of last week at the Big Spring Country Club.

In Wednesday play, Mrs. E. O. Ellington and Mrs. John Stone were first-place winners. Mrs. Henry Bell and Mrs. Birt Allison were second. Third-place winners were Mrs. R. E. Dobbins and Mrs. Joe Hayden. Mrs. W. J. Harris and Mrs. James Raoul placed fourth.

In North-South division play on Friday Mrs. E. L. Powell and Mrs. R. H. Weaver were first. Other winners in the division were Mrs. John Stone and Mrs. Bell, second; and Mrs. Wally Slate and Mrs. Malcolm Patterson.

Mrs. Hayes Stripling and Mrs. Ellington were first-place winners in East-West play. Others placing were Mrs. Hollis Webb and Mrs. Ward Hall, second, and Mrs. H. W. Smith and Mrs. Rogers Hefley.

Parnell graduates from Texas A&M

Gregory Parnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Parnell of 3202 Cornell, graduated May 7 from Texas A&M University at College Station.

Parnell received one of the 11 bachelor of science degrees in physics awarded to graduates.

Parnell will begin work on a master's degree in physics this summer. He will act as assistant professor of physics at Texas A&M during the coming school year.

Parnell is presently employed at the Cyclotron Research Plant at College Station.

Landscape, turf symposium set Friday at Reddy Room

Area residents will have the opportunity to discuss their problems with plants, vegetables and lawns with specialists associated with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

A landscape and turf symposium will be conducted Friday at the Texas Electric Reddy Room at 409 Runnels.

Interested persons are invited to attend all or part of the Friday symposium. Bruce Griffith, county extension agent, will welcome guests and introduce speakers at 9 a.m.

Everett Janne, ornamental horticulturist with TAEX, will open the workshops with a lecture on adapted landscape plants, including shrubs, trees and ground covers.

Dr. Bill Peavey, area horticulturist, TAEX, will speak on soil and water management at 9:45 a.m.

Following a morning break, Janne will discuss maintenance of ornamentals, adapted plants and vines and flowers at 10:35 a.m.

The last lecture of the morning will begin at 11:15. Dr. Peavey will tell guests "How to Have a Beautiful Lawn."

A home horticulture clinic is slated from 1:30 to 4 p.m. The public is invited to bring specimens of ornamentals, vegetables and turf for discussion of diseases, insects and other problems with the specialists.

Present for this portion of the symposium will be Dr. George Philley, area plant pathologist; Charles Neeb, area entomologist; and Dr. Peavey.

Center Point HD Club approves 76-77 officers

The Center Point Home Demonstration Club met Tuesday afternoon at Kentwood Center to approve officers and plan future activities.

Mrs. Alden Ryan presided during the meeting.

Mrs. N. R. Garrett, chairman of the nominating committee presented the slate of incoming officers. Members approved Mrs. C. K. Orr as president and Mrs. James Petty as vice president. Other officers named were Mrs. J. R. Petty, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Bob Wren, reporter; and Mrs. L. J. Davidson, council delegate.

Mrs. John Couch was voted as delegate to the HD state convention in College Station Sept. 21-23.

A large delegation of HD club members plans to attend the convention from Big Spring. A chartered bus will leave from Big Spring on Sept. 21 and will return on the 24.

Members were reminded to make plans to attend the Bicenennial Tea slated May 27 at Kentwood Center to honor all former and present members of HD clubs. All former members are encouraged to attend the tea.

HD members will also honor the 4-H scholarship winners throughout the years.

Women approved plans for several activities. A 4-H member will be the guest speaker for the June 8 meeting.

An arts and crafts workshop will be conducted June 22 at Kentwood Center. A covered dish luncheon is planned that afternoon.

Mrs. D. H. Griffith will host a brunch in July for club members and guests.

In August the club will host

CALLING ALL HOMEMAKERS

Brought to you by Ted Hatfield

THE GENERATION GAP probably isn't quite as big in most things as it seems. What seem to be enormous differences often turn out to be the same human aspirations in the end.

How does that apply in carpeting? Well, a generation ago the big favorite in carpets was a strongly patterned floral, usually in wool. In area and room-size rugs there was nothing more desirable than a uniquely patterned Oriental.

But that was yesterday. . . and we've gone through a long reign of plain colors and tweeds in carpets of nylon and polyester and acrylic fibers as well as wool since then. So is the "gap" real? Not at all.

Take a look at the newest carpets, and you'll find new ideas that leap the generations. Pattern is again with us in exciting new ways with weaves and cutting. Oriental designs are making news, and yesterday's area rugs are today's big trend. There are even dramatic designs in contrasting color mixes that combine the best of old and new. . . and look great with both kinds of furnishings.

There doesn't have to be a "gap" between what you want in fine carpeting and what you can afford. You'll find a great selection in every budget range in our huge displays . . . created for you by America's leading names in carpets. Come in soon!

Dear Abby

Son's transsexual mate plans television appearance

DEAR ABBY: About three months ago my son, who is 37, divorced and the father of two, introduced me to his fiancée—a nice-looking, intelligent, refined person. I took to her right away. (I'll call her "Agnes.")

My son told me that Agnes was a "transsexual." I never knew such people existed. Abby, He explained that she was born a male and lived as a man for 26 years, but always felt she should have been a woman. She had a sex-change operation two years ago and is now a normal woman, except that she can't bear a child.

Agnes looks as much like a woman as I do. Nobody would ever know she wasn't a born female. Anyway, I had a hard time accepting all this, but when I saw how happy she is making my son, I couldn't hold it against her.

Nobody in our family knows her background, and I don't want them to, but Agnes is going on a national TV show to tell her story. (She says it will help other transsexuals.) If she goes on TV, all our friends and relatives will recognize her, and I don't think I could hold my head up. My son says he doesn't mind, and he's considering going on TV with her! Don't you think they should consider me and keep this whole thing a family secret?

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: Agnes' first consideration is to herself. If she and your son want to go on TV, it's up to them. Ask Agnes to tell you more about the transsexual phenomenon. Nature sometimes makes mistakes, but God has divinely inspired men with the medical and scientific knowledge plus the surgical skill to correct them. Hold up your head. You have nothing to be ashamed of.

DEAR ABBY: I belong to a card club that has eight members. The other night I won first prize, which turned out to be a set of brass candlesticks.

I tactfully said that I liked them, but I didn't think I could use them. One of the other ladies spoke up and said that she could use them. She asked if I would please sell them to her.

I asked the hostess how much she paid for them, and she said she thought I had a lot of nerve to ask. It created a scene, with members taking sides. I resigned and so did two other members.

Well, I went home without my prize or the money. When I told my husband about it, he said I should have accepted the prize and kept my mouth shut. What do you think?

LOST OUT

DEAR LOST: I think with a husband as smart as your husband, you don't need to write to Dear Abby.

drick, Donna Hull, Kenny Young, Vee Sabin, Elsie Harvell, Jo Ann Loudamy, Brenda Harden, Normal Friesen and Margie Hill.

GREEN ENCHILADAS

By Donna Hull

2 lbs. ground beef
1 chopped onion
1 pkg. longhorn cheese
2 cans cream of chicken soup
2 cans cream of mushroom soup
1 can full of milk
2 cans chopped green chilies
1 small jar chopped pimentos
1/4 lb. Velveeta cheese
1 chopped onion
Tortillas
Brown meat and one chopped onion. Grate longhorn cheese and add to cooled meat mixture. Prepare sauce by combining soup, milk, chilies, pimentos, cheese and chopped onion. Drag tortillas through hot grease until soft. Wrap meat mixture in tortillas and arrange in a casserole dish. Pour sauce over all. Bake in 350 degree oven for approximately 20 minutes.

BLUEBERRY COBBLER

By Brenda Harden

2 pints frozen blueberries
1-3rd c. sugar
1 tsp. tapioca
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 c. water
2 tbsps. butter
1 c. flour
1 1/2 tbsps. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt
3 tbsps. oil
6 tbsps. milk
In a pot combine blueberries, sugar, tapioca, cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon salt, water and butter. Cook slowly until blueberries are softened. In a bowl mix flour, baking powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Blend in shortening. Gradually add milk to form a soft dough. Place dough on a floured board. Roll into an 8x10 inch rectangle. With a sharp knife cut dough into 1/2 inch slices. Pour blueberries mixture into a greased baking pan. Place slices on top. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes until brown. Remove to a rack. Let stand for 5 minutes. Cut into squares. Serves 6.

Let cool at least 20 minutes. Mix sour cream sugar and vanilla and spread over top of cheese cake. Bake again for 10 minutes at 325 degrees. Let cool and refrigerate at least 2 hours.

Old Glory Pancakes & Betsy Ross Sauces

2 cups large curd cottage cheese
1/4 cup Imperial Granulated Sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 cup all-purpose flour
Dash salt

Whip cottage cheese until creamy smooth. Add Imperial Granulated Sugar, vanilla, eggs and salt; mix well. Add flour to make batter proper consistency for frying. Melt enough butter or margarine in hot skillet to lightly coat pan; avoid excess butter. Cook pancakes until brown on first side; turn and cook on second side until golden being careful not to overcook. Pancakes should be moist and tender, not dry. Serves 4 to 6.

Betsy Ross Sauces: Heat strawberry preserves or strawberry ice cream topping with a little butter for red topping. Heat pineapple preserves and a little butter for white topping. Heat grape jelly and a little butter for blue topping.

Food potpourri means good eating for First Federal Savings employees

The women employed by First Federal Savings agree that one of their favorite dishes is a red bean concoction made by Floyd McIntyre, also employed by First Federal.

Until now they have been unable to pry the recipe out of him. But he has decided to share his recipe with the public.

McIntyre brings the savory bean and meat dish to work at least one month. He says the recipe is a spiced-up dish his family created during the Depression years as an alternative to plain red beans.

But the women have favorite recipes of their own that they often share. Recently the women brought the dishes from the recipes on this food page to share during the lunch hour.

Many of the women brought their favorites salad recipes, including Pineapple and Cheese Salad, Angel Salad, Cherry Pie Salad and an unusual recipe for Deviled Eggs.

Besides main dishes of Porcupine Balls and Green Enchiladas the women brought an abundance of dessert dishes to choose from.

Look over the recipes and add your own special secrets and perhaps they will become recipes to share with your friends.

RED BEAN GOULASH

By Floyd McIntyre

1 lb. red beans
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove of garlic
Hog jowl
3/4 lb. ground beef
8 sticks chorizos

Combine soaked red beans, onion, hog jowl and garlic in a large pot and cook slowly until about two-thirds done. Add raw ground beef. Peel chorizos and crumble them into bean mixture. Cook slowly until done.

Mix all of the above together in bowl.
SAUCE:
Juice from pineapple chunks
2 egg yolks
1/2 c. sugar
2 tbsps. flour
Cook together and boil, add handful of miniature marshmallows to above mixture and stir until melted. Mix with first mixture when cooled.

MEXICAN CHEESE DIP

By Kenny Kay Young

Melt one 16 oz. package Velveeta cheese in double boiler, after cheese is completely melted add one 7 1/2 oz. can of Jalapeno Relish and stir until well blended.

FAVORITE PECAN PIE

By Margie Hill

3 eggs
1 cup of brown or white sugar or mixed
1 cup light corn syrup
1 cup shelled pecans
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. melted butter
Beat the eggs and sugar until thick. Add corn syrup and nuts, then add vanilla and butter. Pour into a 9 inch pastry shell. Bake in a slow oven of 300 degrees temperature for one hour.

ANGEL SALAD

By Jo Ann Loudamy

1 can mandarin oranges
1 can chunk pineapple
1 can coconut (flake)
1 small pkg. small marshmallows
1/2 pt. of sour cream
Drain oranges and pineapple. Mix all together and let set at least 12 hours in refrigerator before serving.

Fryman's turn, every 5 years

HOUSTON (AP) — It was a long time coming but Woody Fryman finally registered another career victory over the Houston Astros.

The veteran Montreal lefthander, who had not defeated the Astros since 1971, pitched seven strong innings of one-run ball as the Expos defeated the Astros, 7-2, Wednesday night.

Fryman benefited from a four-run eighth inning Montreal rally.

Gary Carter's two-out, two-run single off Houston pitcher ace J.R. Richard, 5-2, gave the Expos a 3-1 lead in the eighth. Larry Parrish then connected for a two-run homer off reliever Larry Hardy in the same inning to provide Montreal with a four run bulge.

"I think I could have finished the ball game," said Fryman. "I always like to pitch here because the humidity is low and you don't tire as easily."

The Expos pushed across two more runs in the ninth on singles by Pepe Mangual and Jerry White.

Montreal had taken a 1-0 lead in the fourth on walks to Carter and Parrish and Tim Foli's run-scoring single.

"Foli has been getting key hits for us," said Montreal manager Karl Muehl. "We made some mistakes but they were good mistakes."

Detroit hexed, on one play

BoSox resort to sorcery, win

By The Associated Press

Double, double toil and trouble; Fire burn and cauldron bubble. Eye of newt and toe of frog. Wool of bat and tongue of dog. Three drop hits, a fly, a balk Ended all the panic talk. Witch from Massachusetts came; Boston's Red Sox won a game.

Make room in the Witches' Hall of Fame for Laurie Cabot.

For 12 days in May and the last seven in April, the Red Sox hadn't won a game as the Texas Rangers, Kansas City Royals and Cleveland Indians cast 10 consecutive spells over the defending American League champs, the club's longest losing streak since 1960.

Manager Darrell Johnson, at a loss what to do, kept sending the same pitchers out day after losing day. Then, a Boston radio station signed a free-agent witch, Laurie Cabot of Salem, Mass., to do something about the hex.

"I don't know a thing about baseball," she said.

A slow-starting witch, it took her 11 innings to come up with the right spell. She said incantations are not part of her routine, but rather the use of clairvoyance.

So with Ms. Cabot sitting behind the Boston

Flyers look to home ice

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Despite conflicting views of their 2½-year home ice unbeaten string against the Montreal Canadiens, the defending champion Philadelphia Flyers all agree on one thing: they have to win tonight's third game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup playoff final or they're in real trouble.

The Canadiens, effectively harnessing the top scoring Philadelphia forward line of Bill Barber, Bobby Clarke and Reggie Leach, have jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the series. But they haven't won here since Oct. 25, 1973, and aren't certain they can end the string in Game Three.

"I don't believe strongly in a home ice advantage for any team," said Montreal goalie Ken Dryden, who has won 10 of the 11 playoff games the Canadiens have played this spring in quest of their 18th National Hockey League title. "We've had a very hard time in Philadelphia, and whether you think you can do better or not, until you show you can do better, there is still a question."

Flyers left wing Dave Schultz, who ruined Dryden's shutout with 2:25 remaining in Tuesday night's 2-1 Montreal triumph, says that "It's not going to be an advantage unless we play well. We can't just walk out there and win a hockey game because it's on our home ice."

'I'll win one,' Player

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "You've got to have patience," explained Gary Player, a nonwinner on the American golf circuit last year for the first time in his lucrative career.

"You can't force it," he said. "What you've got to do is bide your time. Then, bang, all of a sudden you win one, and I'm going to win one."

The classy little South African figures the drought could quite possibly end here this week in the $200,000 Colonial National Invitational golf tournament.

"This has been a good course for me," said Player of the 7,190-yard, par 70 Colonial layout, a rose-tinged bit of treachery on the banks of the Trinity River.

"This is a fantastic golf course, a tough golf course," Player said. "It's not only one of the best on the tour, it's one of the best in the world. And it is in excellent shape."

A field of 102, with an eye on the turbulent sky, was poised today for the first lap of the 72-hole chase for the first prize of $40,000.

Horton resigns as teacher-coach

Big Spring High School baseball coach Larry Horton turned in his letter of resignation as a teacher-coach today to E. H. McKenzie, school superintendent to take effect at the end of the school year.

Horton said it was a tough decision. "I was offered a position in private business that I couldn't turn down. I enjoyed my four years at Big Spring and if I ever return to teaching or coaching I would like to do so here."

The Big Spring Steers just concluded (last Saturday) the best season the local team has ever had in 4A competition. Horton's charges finished the year on a six-game winning streak which brought their season's mark to 21-7 and their final District 5-4A record to 11-3, second best to Abilene High's 12-2.

A mid-season slump after Steer third baseman Arthur Olague broke his ankle, cost them both the first and second half championships. Big Spring won its first four games, but lost two of its next three to lose the first half and, as it turned out, the Steers' opening loss to Abilene in the second half cost them that title.

Division leaders take it on chin

Both division leaders took it on the chin in the two Texas League games played

Wednesday night.

Lafayette, on top in the East, bowed to Jackson 5-4 and El Paso, the West pacesetter, fell victim to Amarillo 2-1. Rain washed out San Antonio at Midland and Shreveport at Arkansas dates.

A solo homer by Lee Mazzilli and a two-run clout by Ken Perry put Jackson ahead 4-2 in the sixth inning. Lafayette pulled even but handed the victory to the home club on four walks in the eighth.

Don Alfano's bases-loaded single in the ninth frame drove home Tucker Ashford with Amarillo's winning run. Pitcher Bob Shirley, now 1-4 for the season, claimed the mound decision on a steady seven-hitter.

Four Longhorns make All-SWC

DALLAS (AP) — Pitcher Richard Wortham of Texas and Houston catcher Jerry Wilford are The Associated Press co-players of the year in Southwest Conference baseball.

In a poll of SWC baseball coaches, Wortham and Wilford each received three votes for player of the year, while Texas A&M pitcher James Gibson had two.

Wortham, who set a new NCAA record with 48 career victories last week, was 7-1 with a 1.51 earned run average in conference play. Wilford batted .442 in conference play, far ahead of any other player.

Newcomer of the year is Rice freshman Allen Ramirez, who set an SWC record of 96 strikeouts in conference play.

Roland Walton of Houston, which stayed in the race for most of the campaign against overwhelming favorites Texas and Texas A&M, was chosen coach of the year.

Three players from the conference champion Longhorns besides Wortham were named to the 15-man all-league team. Charles Proske won an outfield spot, Garry Pyka is the utility infielder and Mickey Reichenbach the first baseman.

Second-place A&M was represented by Gibson and utility outfielder Bill Raymer.

Rice, Texas Christian and Texas Tech also had two all-SWC players each. The Owls had Ramirez and third baseman Mike Macha, the Horned Frogs were represented by second baseman Danny Twardowski and designated hitter Gene Burton and the Red Raiders had designated hitter Gary Sims and shortstop Ron Mattson.

FORT WORTH, Texas — British Open champion Tom Watson shot a three-under-par 67 and swept low pro honors in the pro-am preliminary to the $200,000 Colonial Invitational Golf Tournament.

Singer blanks his old mates

ANAHEIM (AP) — "I'm tired of making comebacks," Bill Singer sighed. "I hope this is the last one. It's beginning to get traumatic."

Actually, Singer, who now plies his trade for the Texas Rangers, left his former teammates, the California Angels, in somewhat of a trauma Wednesday night.

Although he had innumerable scares and had to pitch out of trouble in almost every inning, Singer survived nine Angel hits and unfurled his first shutout in almost three years as the Rangers edged the Angels, 1-0, on Jeff Burroughs' run-scoring single in the eighth inning.

It was the 10th victory in 11 games for the rambunctious Rangers, who maintained their three-game lead atop the American League West.

"That's the toughest shutout I've pitched in my life," Singer smiled. "But I was psyched up. It was nice to come back here and do a job."

California will try to earn a split of the brief two-game series in the finale tonight, sending Frank Tanana (2-3) against Jim Umberger (3-1) in a battle of young left handers.

Aeros host Whalers

HOUSTON (AP) — The deadlocked World Hockey Association semifinal playoff series between Houston and New England has been a succession of heroics by little-used substitutes.

The best-of-seven series, tied at 2-2, resumes here tonight and if the past trend continues, a backup will step forward to figure in the outcome.

Jan Popiel, who had not been in a game since April 25 against San Diego, fitted into one of the Aeros' re-shuffled lines Tuesday to help Houston even the series with a 4-3 victory.

Popiel scored his first goal of the playoffs in the first period when Houston zoomed to a 3-0 lead.

No instruction for good rider

BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Laz Barrera knows exactly what he will tell jockey Angel Cordero before he goes to the post on Kentucky Derby winner Bold Forbes Saturday in the Preakness.

Nothing. Barrera said he will discuss the race with Cordero but "when you have a good rider on your horse, you don't give instructions on how to ride your horse."

Bold Forbes broke on top in the Derby and stayed in front all the way for a one-length victory over Honest Pleasure. It is impossible to say whether a horse will break on the lead, but Barrera said, "One thing I'm going to tell you, he ain't gonna be behind anyone for long."

Bold Forbes, Honest Pleasure and four other 3-year-olds were expected to be entered today for the $150,000-added Preakness, which at 1 1/16 miles is one-sixteenth shorter than the Derby. The other four were Life's Hope, Bold Forbes' stablemate; Elucutionist, third in the Derby; Cojak, sixth in the Derby; and Play The Red, eighth in the Derby.

Barrera's Preakness entry developed when Life's Hope, who runs from off the pace, won the Illinois Derby the same day Bold Forbes won the Kentucky Derby. After the Illinois Derby, Louis Wolfson, owner of Life's Hope, wanted his colt to join the Triple Crown competition. Bold Forbes is owned by Esteban Rodriguez Tizol.

The Preakness shapes up like the Derby — a duel on the lead between Bold Forbes and Honest Pleasure, with the others hoping the two speed burners will falter so that they can make a winning run in the stretch.

"That's the wish everybody got — they kill each other and they come from behind," said Barrera. "But you better believe one thing. Bold Forbes hasn't stopped on the lead yet."

Honest Pleasure, the 1975 2-year-old champion who had a nine-race winning streak snapped in the Derby, worked Wednesday, going five-eighths of a mile in 58.3 seconds, with the half in 46.3-5.

"Before all of his good races he had the same type of blowout," said trainer LeRoy Jolley, who has had little to say to the reporters since the Derby.

Andy Messersmith looks like anything but a million dollars. And Dave Kingman appears to be worth much more than $125,000.

The respective values of those two baseball players are receiving considerable attention these days, in light of their early-season performances.

Messersmith, the pitcher who landed a million-dollar contract with the Atlanta Braves after turning free agent last winter, can't buy a victory so far. Wednesday night, he dropped a 6-3 decision to the New York Mets for his fourth loss in six starts in an Atlanta uniform.

The key to Messersmith's downfall was Kingman, who continued to hit baseballs with unusual authority. Kingman, purchased for a relatively cheap $125,000 before the 1975 season from the San Francisco Giants, collected four hits — two of them his 13th and 14th home runs of the season.

Messersmith, who has obviously seen better days with the Los Angeles Dodgers and California Angels, can't understand his current predicament.

Andy Messersmith looks like anything but a million dollars. And Dave Kingman appears to be worth much more than $125,000.

The respective values of those two baseball players are receiving considerable attention these days, in light of their early-season performances.

Messersmith, the pitcher who landed a million-dollar contract with the Atlanta Braves after turning free agent last winter, can't buy a victory so far. Wednesday night, he dropped a 6-3 decision to the New York Mets for his fourth loss in six starts in an Atlanta uniform.

The key to Messersmith's downfall was Kingman, who continued to hit baseballs with unusual authority. Kingman, purchased for a relatively cheap $125,000 before the 1975 season from the San Francisco Giants, collected four hits — two of them his 13th and 14th home runs of the season.

Messersmith, who has obviously seen better days with the Los Angeles Dodgers and California Angels, can't understand his current predicament.

"I just don't know what the trouble is," noted the righthander. "I don't feel any different pitching in Atlanta than I did in Los Angeles."

New York left-hander Jerry Koosman, 4-1, limited the Braves to seven singles until Jimmy Wynn hit a three-run homer with two out in the ninth.

The Giants, meanwhile, are sorely missing Kingman's long-range bat. They suffered their third straight shutout Wednesday, losing a 1-0 decision to the Chicago Cubs in 11 innings. In the other National League games, the Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3; the San Diego Padres blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0; the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Cincinnati Reds 6-3 and the Montreal Expos ripped the Houston Astros 7-2.

Cubs 1, Giants 0 — Steve Swisher knocked in the game's only run with a two-out single in the 11th inning as Chicago beat San Francisco. Jerry Morales singled after Andy Thornton had grounded out in the 11th. Manny Trillo's bouncer put Morales in scoring position for Swisher's base hit to right.

Dodgers 6, Cardinals 3

Ron Cey snapped a tie with an eighth-inning double, leading Los Angeles over St. Louis for the hot Dodgers' 15th triumph in 17 games. Cey, who entered the game hitting .333 with eight home runs and 21 RBI, delivered his game-winning blow off reliever Harry Rasmussen.

Padres 4, Phillies 0

Left-hander Randy Jones threw a six-hitter to become the first National League pitcher to win six games this season as San Diego beat Philadelphia. Jones, who has lost twice, struck out two and walked three in snapping the Phillies' three-game winning streak and handing the league's second-best hitting team its second loss in 11 games.

Pirates 6, Reds 3

Willie Stargell lined a two-run double as Pittsburgh scored four runs in the fifth inning to defeat Cincinnati. Jim Rooker, 4-1, who knocked in the Pirates' first run in the fifth with a double, stopped the hard-hitting Reds on eight hits and walked only one — an intentional walk.

Stanton coach resigns, will become counselor

Stanton High School Athletic Director and head football coach Bob Richardson resigned that position Monday night and was hired as high school guidance counselor.

Richardson's resignation, which was subject to his approval as guidance counselor, was submitted at Monday night's regular monthly meeting of the Stanton Independent School District Board of Trustees.

Superintendent Russell McMeans read a letter from Richardson stating that he understood the position of guidance counselor would be open next year, and was submitting his resignation as athletic director-football coach if he was hired as counselor.

After several moments of discussion the board voted unanimously to accept the resignation and to hire Richardson as counselor.

After more discussion the school board told McMeans to look for a new grid coach and athletic director outside the school system. Richardson has been a member of the SHS coaching staff for the past three and one-half years, two and a half years of that time as assistant coach under Bill Young.

When Young became junior high school principal last year, Richardson was promoted. This year his football team racked up a 5-5 win-loss record and a third place finish in District 5-A.

Slow times at Indy

Speeds will go up, Ruby

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — While virtually everyone favors Janet Guthrie's every move, a curious thing is happening to a lot of other drivers preparing for the May 30 Indianapolis 500.

Their cars aren't going fast enough. Not fast enough to chance a qualifying run, not fast enough to warrant timing, not fast enough to even attract any interest.

"You've got three guys running 189, 190 miles per hour, and except for five other guys, no one else is even over 176. That's got to have a few people worried," said one veteran observer. "The way it is, no one is going to accept a qualifying run under 182 m.p.h. the first weekend. If that's the case, the way it stands now, we're only looking at six or eight qualifiers."

Drivers only had today and Friday to find the extra speed they needed before pole position qualifying, scheduled Saturday.

"The speeds will go up, you can bet on that," said veteran Lloyd Ruby. "It's just a matter of some drivers getting their act together."

Ruby predicted it would take speeds "at least the same as last year" to make the field for the $1 million May 30th race. The slow qualifier in 1975 was Mike Hiss at 181.754 m.p.h.

"There's more good cars than last year, fewer variables," Ruby added.

Last year, there were 14 different types of tires alone to choose from. This year it's down to "front, back and backup," according to tire suppliers.

The early line on the three-front-row qualifiers is Johnny Rutherford, fastest in practice so far, Al Unser and A. J. Foyt.

Foyt won the pole position for the last race here with a speed of 193.926 miles per hour, but new power restrictions might keep speeds below that this time.

Rutherford cracked the 190 m.p.h. barrier for the first time this year, in practice Wednesday. Officials agree he did it, but the electric timing clocks didn't catch it.

Others among the swift group are Gordon Johncock, Tom Sneva, Wally Dallenbach, Pancho Carter and Mario Andretti.

Andretti will be forced to wait until the second weekend of qualifying, since he's left to compete this weekend in the Belgian Grand Prix.

Another driver likely to qualify the second weekend is Miss Guthrie, whose crew just can't seem to keep her car running more than just a few laps at a time.

Her hopes of completing the final half of her rookie test Wednesday were dashed by a persistent, mysterious electrical problem.

Miss Guthrie, the first woman to compete at Indianapolis Motor Speedway, hoped to finish up the final 50 miles of the test today or Friday and qualify Saturday or Sunday.

"I have no idea how fast I can go until I get the rookie test out of the way," Miss

Guthrie said.

So far, her top speed has been 164.414 m.p.h., which was limited to less than 165

m.p.h. under provisions of the rookie test rules. Under the second phase of the test,

she would be able to exceed 165 m.p.h.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Middleweight Mike Nixon carries a 27-8 record into tonight's 10-round main event against Puerto Rico's Rico Dinerios.

Nixon, with eight knockouts, KO'd Angel Cordoba in five rounds six weeks ago. Dinerios has a ring record of 17-2 with 11 knockouts.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals have signed Tony Davis, a 6-foot-2, 212-pound running back from the University of Nebraska.

Davis, 23, was selected in the seventh round of the NFL draft and scored 22 career touchdowns on Nebraska, 18 of them rushing.

"Tony is a very complete running back," said offensive backfield coach Jack Donaldson. "He was an outstanding tailback, then was switched to fullback where he became a top notch lead blocker."

Terms of the contract were not announced.

DETROIT (AP) — Nationally known painter Robert Thom of Grand Rapids, Mich., has been commissioned to do a series of paintings depicting some memorable moments in baseball. The paintings will be placed in the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Tony Lopes, an 18-year-old high school senior from Brockton, Mass., is making a pro boxing career of fighting veteran Beau Jaynes of Lowell, Mass.

Lopes and Jaynes will meet for the fourth time tonight with the schoolboy defending his New England welterweight championship in a scheduled 10-round bout.

Lopes won the vacant New England title with a split decision over Jaynes, 28, in Portland last Oct. 23. Jaynes captured the title with a split decision over Lopes in Boston Dec. 20. Then Lopes regained the crown with a split decision April 26 in Boston Garden.

BOSTON (AP) — Dennis Brogna, a University of Arizona graduate, has been named trainer and traveling manager of the Boston Lobsters of the World Team Tennis league.

Dallas 'wide open'

Mafia figures spotted in Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Mafia figures have been spotted in several Texas areas, reports the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council.

Dallas police told the council they have identified members of five Mafia families.

This leads the police to believe syndicate figures think Dallas is "up for grabs" rather than an exclusive territory for one family, the council's annual report said Wednesday.

Police, however, have "no conclusive evidence of the extent of syndicated crime activities by these families in that city, if any, and feel that none have gained any significant grip on criminal activity in Dallas," the report said.

Other areas reporting the presence of suspected Mafia figures include Houston, Texarkana and Cameron County in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Two members were reported in Texarkana, together with "five associates," and two in Cameron County, plus "approximately 22 associates."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who released the report, said increased trafficking in narcotics represents the most serious organized crime problem facing the state.

An estimated 64,000 pounds of heroin, at street purity, are required to supply the approximately 40,000 users in Texas, according to the report.

The Department of Public Safety estimates there were at least 1,173 bookmakers in the state in 1975. "Football season represents peak bookmaking activity in Texas," the report said.

"In September, the athletic department of the University of Texas was besieged with frantic calls, many from out-of-state, asking for the exact score of a football game which had been stated differently (by one point) in news accounts. The discrepancy vitally affected the point spread placed on the game by bookmakers," the report said.

Prostitution in Texas more and more is using massage parlors as fronts, the report said. A San Antonio police official told the council that "women working in some 20 massage parlors in that city now wait for the customer to suggest sexual massage, a possible form of entrapment if an undercover officer were to make such a suggestion," the report said.

Austin police reported 11 massage parlors "involving an estimated 100 prostitutes," the report said.

Massage parlors are becoming a problem in Dallas, Tarrant and Harris counties, as well as Odessa and Waco, the report said.

GETTY ATTENDS TRIAL — J. Paul Getty III, grandson of the American oil billionaire, and his mother, Gail Harris, sit in the courthouse at Lagonegro, Italy Wednesday watching the opening session of the trial against seven men charged with having kidnapped him, cutting off his ear and releasing him after five months for $2.5 million.

Man who executed jailbreak arrested

DALLAS (AP) — A former Marine who led a raid on a Mexican prison that freed 14 U.S. citizens is now facing the possibility of going to prison himself for violating the U.S. Neutrality Act by carrying unregistered weapons into Mexico.

Don Fielden, 31, an unemployed truck driver described by his attorney, Ernest Kuehne, as a "typical East Texas country boy," was planning to surrender to U.S. marshals today.

The husky former Marine sergeant said earlier this week he was aware of the possibility of charges being filed against him, but added he was not worried about them. "Like that old song says, 'if you can't do the time, don't do the crime,'" he told newsmen.

Kuehne said Fielden faces a possible two-year sentence and a $25,000 fine.

Fielden was named in an arrest warrant charging him with violation of neutrality laws following an investigation by U.S. Customs officers of his activities in connection with the March 12 raid on the Piedras Negras jail. Fielden had told the Dallas Times Herald Sunday that he and two other Dallas men conducted the raid which was financed by a Dallas psychologist, Sterling B. Davis, whose son was jailed in Piedras Negras on a drug charge.

Young Davis and 13 others were released by Fielden and his companions who held 10 policemen at gunpoint while opening the jail cells. Most of those released swam back to Eagle Pass across the Rio Grande and surrendered to county officials or simply made their way to their homes. Young Davis turned himself over to authorities to face charges of parole violation and is currently at El Reno prison in Oklahoma.

Princess back in competition

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne returned to public horseriding competition today for the first time since she suffered a cracked vertebra in a riding accident on April 21.

The 25-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth entered two horses in the Spillers combined championship at the Royal Windsor horse show.

The princess was said to be anxious to return to competition since she wants to earn a place on the British equestrian team for the Montreal Olympics. The five riders to compete at Montreal are to be named July 11.

"In simple terms, he (Fielden) is accused of taking guns across the border without declaring them," said U.S. Customs Agent Charles Conroy in Houston.

Kuehne declined to say how Fielden would plead to the charges, "because there are other potential charges and because of some possibility of plea bargaining."

Kuehne said Fielden "is prepared to meet the charges. He was prepared before this thing became public."

Kuehne said the names of Fielden's two companions have not been revealed.

Energy

Solar heating available, getting cheaper

About one-fifth of this nation's consumption of fuel is used for heating buildings. Most of the energy needed to heat buildings can be delivered from flat plate solar collectors, and the solar energy hitting most buildings can meet their heating needs.

The basic technology for solar heating is available. The problem has been that solar energy could not be delivered at costs competitive with the costs of fossil fuels. Sunshine is free, but the equipment that collects, stores, and distributes the heat from it is not. As fuel costs rise, however, the investment in a solar heating system becomes more attractive economically.

The heat absorbed by a flat plate collector is drawn off by a liquid such as water or by a gas such as air. In a liquid system, water circulates through solar collectors and is heated. The hot water then flows into an insulated storage tank for use when needed. Hot water can be used for domestic hot water, in a swimming pool, or it can be piped through the house for space heating.

A water system transfers heat more effectively than an air system and uses small pipes. However, the system must be watertight. Also, water can corrode a metal collector, and freezing water can burst the pipes.

A dual system solves the problem of freezing water. In one system, water and antifreeze are circulated through the collector. The heat is transferred to domestic water in the storage tank through an immersed heating coil.

In a gas system, air is blown over a flat plate collector and is heated. The warmed air is then blown over a pebble bed containing gravel or crushed rock to store the heat. When warm air is needed, cool air from the living area is blown over the warm rocks, picks up heat, and is ducted back into the house.

An air transfer system does not have the problems of freezing water or leaks or corrosion of a metal collector due to water. However, an air system is not well suited to domestic water heating or pool heating. Ductwork for an air system is expensive and occupies more space than the piping for a liquid system, but a leak in an air system is far less critical.

Most solar energy systems include an auxiliary energy source to provide heating during extended spells of cloudy weather. Very large collector areas are needed to approach 100 per cent solar heating. By adding an auxiliary fossil fuel or electrical system in parallel with the solar system, the maximum amount of energy can be obtained from the solar system with the balance coming from the auxiliary system.

Next week the use of solar energy for air conditioning will be examined. "The Energy Forum" is a service of the Center for Energy

Studies, ENS 143, The University of Texas, Austin, Texas 78712.

Oil patch

A wildcat was slated in Glasscock County, a re-entry in Dawson and a confirmer in Scurry.

Belco Petroleum Corp., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Raliff as a wildcat and as a 1 1/4 mile southwest outpost to Strawn oil production and as a 1 1/2 miles west outpost to Fusselman oil production in the Garden City field of Glasscock County, four-fifth mile northwest of the three-well proposed Apple Creek (Fusselman oil) field and seven miles northeast of Garden City.

Location is 467 feet from the south and east lines of 1-33-45-T&P. Contract depth is 9,900 feet.

The Apple Creek wells, which probably will be assigned to the Garden City field, were reported as gas wells, however, potentials were filed as oil producer. They produce at 9,628 feet.

Strawn production is the Garden City field at 9,349 feet and Fusselman 9,740 feet.

LARIO OIL & Gas, Odessa, will drill the No. 1 Blalock as a location east-northeast offset to the opener and lone producer in the Tonto, North (Strawn) field of Scurry County, six miles northeast of Snyder.

Location is 1,165 feet from the south and 660 feet from the west lines of 44-97-H&TC. Contract depth is 7,400 feet.

The discovery, the firm's No. 1 Shuler, was finalized Sept. 9, 1975 for 304 barrels of 39.6 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 3,789-1, through a 12-64 inch choke and perforations at 6,978-8,002 feet.

COQUINA OIL CORP., Midland will re-enter and clean out to 8,300 feet for completion attempt at a fifth producer and a one mile northwest extension to the Gin, North (Spraberry field) at the former Humble Oil and Refining Co. No. 1 J. R. Weaver, Dawson County 12,710-foot Ellenburger wildcat failure, 2 1/2 miles west of Lamesa. It is the No. 1 Humble-Weaver.

Abandoned May 22, 1956, it topped the Spraberry at 7,705 feet and the Wolfcamp at 9,640 feet on ground elevation of 3,008 feet.

Location is 3,104 feet from the north and 5,290 feet from the east lines of Taylor CSL. No. 1.

RECEIVES DIPLOMA — At age 133, Charlie Smith, a former slave with little schooling, leaves Polk County Fla. school board after receiving an honorary high school diploma Wednesday. Still dressed in the traditional robes, Smith clutches his attaché case, his black pocketbook and the cap, which kept slipping off during ceremonies which event caught the attention of President Ford.

Drying-out funds asked

MIDLAND — Midland County commissioners have approved a resolution to funnel about $17,000 toward a $75,000 drying-out facility for alcoholics and problem drinkers.

The amount of funds will depend on the maximum grant the county is allowed in community development funds from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The proposed treatment center would include dormitory units.

Newton says Texans need vigorous thinking

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Democrat Jon Newton, a runoff candidate for the Texas Railroad Commission, says that Texans need vigorous new thinking to solve the energy problem, "not just a well known name from the past."

Newton, 35, faces Jerry Sadler, 68, on June 5.

Newton said it was ironic that Texans voted for Sadler because they remembered his name "when they apparently had forgotten why they remembered it."

"They may have remembered his name because he is one of the few state officials in the history of Texas who ever received a reprimand from the legislature. Or they may have remembered him because he tried to choke a legislator who was merely trying to check the inventory of sunken treasure which was in his (Sadler's) custody," Newton said.

"Since the voters booted him out of the land commissioner's office six years ago, I cannot imagine them electing him now to the railroad commission — except, perhaps, as a case of mistaken identity."

DOES THIS BELONG TO YOU? — Joe Mac receives an accusing finger from zookeeper Jacinta Green Tuesday at Manchester's Belle Vue Zoo after Joe Mac laid the egg, surprising everyone and letting out a 15-year-old secret, that he is a she. The zoo director was quoted, commenting on birds like Joe Mac, "They are very hard to sex, you know." The bird reportedly has the new name of Joe Mavis.

Choate invited to attend national security forum

Wade Choate, mayor of Big Spring and general manager of Webb AFB Federal Credit Union, has received an invitation from Gen. David C. Jones, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, to attend the 23rd annual Air War College National Security Forum. The Forum, which culminates the 10-month Air War College course of study, will be held at Maxwell AFB, Ala., May 17-24.

The Forum itself is designed to expose the Air War College students to the viewpoints of approximately eighty representative civilians on the fundamental issues of national security. Guests selected to attend the Annual Forum represent business, industry, labor, education, and the news media, law, medicine, religion, and government.

Out of those nominated to attend the Forum, only one in four nominees are invited in order to have the desired number at the Forum.

The Air War College, the senior professional school in the Air Force educational system, has a student body of selected colonels and lieutenant colonels of the U.S. Air Force and representatives of the other U.S. military services, civilian departments of the U.S. Government, the British Royal Air Force, the Canadian Armed Forces, the Royal Australian Air Force, the Imperial Iranian Air Force, and the Israeli Air Force.

Purpose for inviting civilians such as Mayor Choate of Big Spring is to broaden the professional background of the Air War College students by an exchange of ideas with distinguished civilians. At the same time, civilian guests are provided with an increased understanding of national security problems and are exposed to the Air Force's professional military education system.

Brig Gen Stanley M. Umstead of the Air War College said he felt one of the main objectives of the Forum was to afford both civilian and military personnel the opportunity to engage in a "frank exchange of views on national security issues" and that "lectures, question-answer periods, and small group seminars will provide the means for this interchange of ideas."

Other civilians in Big Spring who have attended the Forum are Tom Locke, former district director of Texas Electric, and Jimmy Taylor, president of the First National Bank.

Search ends for downed Odessa flier

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — Search operations have been called off for an Air Force pilot who ejected from a T38 jet trainer over the Atlantic Ocean last Thursday some 70 miles off the Virginia coast.

An Air Force spokesman said today the search for Capt. James V. Phillips ended at 5:45 p.m. Tuesday.

The spokesman said the six-day search involved 37 aircraft flying a total of 160 hours over a 14,000-square-mile area. Coast Guard and Navy ships also participated in the search.

The copilot, Lt. Neil G. Kacena of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was rescued by a Navy helicopter about an hour after he bailed out.

Phillips, a native of Odessa, Tex., was stationed at Nellis Air Base near Las Vegas, Nev., and was on temporary duty at Langley Air Force Base here.

He was a nine-year Air Force veteran who won the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal during the Vietnam war.

The Air Force has not said why the men were forced to eject from the aircraft.

Adoptions clarification

The County Welfare Association does not place children in adoptive homes, Mrs. Ruby Phillips, director, said.

Some persons got this impression after publicity about the State Department of Public Welfare child protective services division Monday, Mrs. Phillips said.

Head start

funds granted

Texas Tech University's college of home economics has been granted $400,761 for training and technical assistance of Texas' Head Start Program, president Grover E. Murray announced today.

The Lubbock-based university has formed a consortium for Head Start training and technical assistance with Pan American University in Edinburg, Texas Southern University in Houston and Texas Woman's University in Denton, Dr. Murray said.

The other Texas universities serve as subcontractors, with Texas Tech listed as primary contracting agency with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Dr. Mary Tom Riley, associate professor of home economics, is the project director.

Head Start is a pre-kindergarten program for culturally deprived children. Its aim is to give the youngsters a more equal opportunity to excel when they begin their formal education.

Ammonia crash probed, fifth man dies

HOUSTON (AP) — Investigators for the National Transportation Safety Board continued a probe today into the freeway explosion of an ammonia-carrying tank truck that killed five persons and injured nearly 200 others.

The truck plunged through a guard rail on the busy West Loop 610 Southwest Freeway interchange Tuesday and plunged 20 feet onto the Southwest Freeway.

The vehicle exploded on impact, releasing a white toxic cloud. Most of those injured were overcome by fumes.

Grace Gillebaard, 33, of Houston died in a Houston hospital Wednesday to become the fifth person to die as a result of the accident.

Four bodies were recovered at the scene Tuesday. They were William Gregory Schmidt of Corpus Christi, driver of the truck, Gordon D. McAdams of Conroe, George Henry Pearson of Sugar Land and David Randall Whiteman of Houston.

Forty-nine persons remained hospitalized Wednesday night, including

Brezhnev attends reunion

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist party general secretary Leonid Brezhnev, wearing his Army uniform and new marshal's star for the nation's highest military rank, has met with surviving wartime comrades of the 18th Army.

The 69-year-old Soviet leader congratulated the veterans Wednesday for five listed in critical condition.

One of those listed in critical condition was Mrs. Gillebaard's five-month old son, Robert.

Also listed in critical condition was Bill Mayes, 47, of Goodrich, who jumped from his car with his five-year-old son Toby wrapped in a blanket but collapsed before he could outdistance the ammonia fumes.

Other motorists fleeing the toxic cloud grabbed Toby and carried him to safety, police said. The boy was listed in fair condition.

Police said Wednesday 22 vehicles were involved in the accident. Only two of them, both passenger cars—were hit by parts of the exploding truck, police said.

Authorities said other vehicles which were damaged were tossed around by the shock of the explosion or struck by chunks of flying concrete.

Francis McAdams of Washington, a member of the National Transportation Safety Board, said he and a six-man investigating team will survey the scene, talk to witnesses and look at photographs.

"We really want someone who was following the truck and someone in front of the truck when it went off the overpass," he said.

He said he will present his findings to the board for recommendations and the board should know in two or three days whether a hearing into the accident will be held here.

Edward Mudrowsky, chief investigator of the NTSB highway safety division, said it will be several months before the board issues a report.

Sign of times

LONDON (AP) — A sign in a London supermarket warns shoplifters: "God helps those who help themselves, but we prosecute."

CLOUDS OF AMMONIA FUMES — Clouds of deadly ammonia fumes spread over the Houston expressway intersection after an ammonia tank truck crashed through a guardrail and exploded. Five persons were killed and some 200 others were injured with 57 of those being admitted to Houston hospitals Tuesday.

Goldwater 'stabbed' Reagan?

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Nancy Reagan says she feels "as if I'd been stabbed" by Sen. Barry Goldwater's criticism of her husband's stand on the Panama Canal.

The wife of the former California governor responded at a news conference Wednesday to questions about Goldwater's statement that Ronald Reagan's views on U.S. sovereignty over the canal stem from ignorance or "a surprisingly dangerous state of mind."

Reagan said she was "surprised, hurt. Of course everyone knows what my husband did in 1964 for him. I feel as if I'd been stabbed."

Reagan defended Goldwater against charges of extremism in 1964, when the Arizona senator was the GOP presidential nominee.

Goldwater said Reagan's position could "needlessly lead this country into open military conflict."

Mrs. Reagan said she was "surprised, hurt. Of course everyone knows what my husband did in 1964 for him. I feel as if I'd been stabbed."

Reagan defended Goldwater against charges of extremism in 1964, when the Arizona senator was the GOP presidential nominee.

Goldwater said Reagan's position could "needlessly lead this country into open military conflict."

Regional airport suit back in court

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A legal fight over whether all air lines that serve the Dallas-Fort Worth area must use the new $600 million regional airport is back in federal appeals court.

Lines that use the new Dallas-Fort Worth regional airport, known as DFW, appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals after they were enjoined against pursuing Southwest Airlines in state court.

They asked that a federal court injunction be canceled so that a state court suit, filed in Austin, may proceed. The 5th took the issue under advisement Wednesday with no indication when it will rule.

Southwest operates between Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. It has stayed at Dallas' old, convenient and cheaper Love Field despite outcries from air lines lodged at the new airport.

For Dallas residents, Love Field is closer. It takes $3.50 for the cab ride, compared to $2 to DFW. And critics complain that almost every move one makes at DFW costs 25 cents or more.

Other air lines contend that Southwest's refusal to move to the newer airport gives it an unfair competitive advantage and indirectly costs DFW lines an extra $1 million a year.

But when they filed suit in state court at Austin, a U.S. district court said that amounted to an attack on a 1973 federal court judgment won by Southwest stating it could not be forced to leave Love.

Robert S. Harkey of Atlanta, Ga., representing Delta Air Lines, American Airlines, Frontier Airlines, Ozark Air Lines and Eastern Air Lines, argued that the wrangle involves state law, not federal.

"Only the state court can rule authoritatively on the state law," Harkey said in asking that the federal injunction be cancelled.

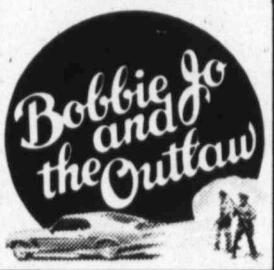

Continental Airlines argued that Southwest's refusal to move to DFW dilutes DFW's income from landing fees and thus increases costs to air lines that use the big field, midway between Dallas and Fort Worth.

Continental also argued that the state suit should be allowed to proceed because Continental was not a party to the federal court case won by Southwest but now finds itself affected by that decision.

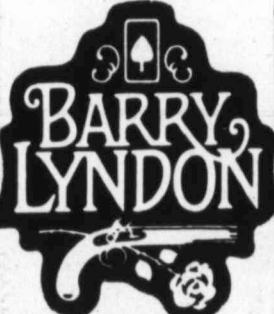

Jack L. Hauer of Dallas, Southwest's lawyer, said the issues already have been settled in federal court and that should be the end of it.
