Dundee Suspect Seeks Release Through Habeas Corpus

ALIBI DEFENSE TO BE PUSHED IN HEARING

Newcastle Youth Charged With Dundee Shooting Takes Action

HABEAS WRIT ASKED

Case To Be Heard in 30th Court Wednesday Afternoon

George Duckett, held in the Wichita county jail on charges of murder in connection with the death last Wednesday of Charles McDaniel of Dundee, will seek his release through a writ of habeas corpus to be heard by Judge E. G. Thornton in 30th district court Wednesday at 1:30 p. m., according to announcement made Monday by B. W. King of Marshall and King of Graham, attorneys for Duckett.

Duckett, whose home is in Newcastle, will represent that evidence is insufficient to hold him in view of the fact that he can bring forward a number of witnesses to show that he was in Newcastle at such time as to have made impossible his participation in the attempted robbery of the First State bank of Dundee Wednesday noon which resulted in Mr. McDaniel's death.

Efforts Opposed

Ben Allred, district attorney, said Wednesday that he would fight any efforts to secure Duckett's release from the Wichita county jail on the grounds of identification of Duckett by three persons as the man who shot and fatally wounded Mr. McDaniel.

Duckett was arrested at his father's home in Newcastle early Friday morning, almost two days after a lone bandit, attempting to rob the Dundee bank, had scuffled with Mr. McDaniel in front of the bank, finally firing the shot which resulted in the death of the Dundee cattleman and merchant, and sped away in an automobile which had been stolen in Wichita Falls a few days before.

The chase of officers after the bandit led through three North Texas counties into Wichita Falls, where the third automobile commandeered by the bandit was found abandoned Wednesday afternoon.

Bond Denied

Acting upon orders of Mr. Allred, Duckett was ordered held without bond by the Archer county justice of the peace before whom charges were filed Friday afternoon.

The charges against Duckett were filed by Sheriff Ed Goodwin of Archer county after his arrest by Mr. Goodwin, Sheriff W. G. Bralley of Wichita county, and deputies of the two county officers.

Mr. Allred declared Monday night that not only would he fight any attempt to secure the release of the prisoner but that he also would contest any effort on the part of defense to secure setting of bond.

Dan Moody Explains Cause Of Newspaper's Enmity

Governor Says Refusal to Appoint Fort Worth Man Stirs Ire Of Star Telegram Publisher

FORT WORTH, July 23.—Opposition of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram to his re-election is the result of his refusal to appoint a Fort Worth man to a state office at the request of that newspaper's publisher, shortly after he took office, Governor Dan Moody charged tonight in a speech in Capps park here. It was the first time the governor has taken public cognisance of that newspaper's opposition.

"This is the first time I have spoken in Fort Worth since the campaign of two years ago. In that campaign a friendship was formed which unfortunately has been wrecked over an appointment to office," he said. "I do not have the benefit of the support of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in this campaign.

Incurs Enmity

"Respect for the friendship that was destroyed because of my refusal to appoint a certain gentleman to office restrains me from the use of offensive words toward the Fort Worth Star-Telegram or its publisher. The paper is, of course, free to oppose me upon any grounds, but it would be fairer to itself and fairer to me and fairer to its readers if it had openly opposed me instead of attempting my destruction by indirection and innuendo.

"Before I had been in the governor's office 30 days, I had the misfortune to incur the enmity and opposition of the paper and its publisher.

"I was requested to appoint a certain gentleman to an office. I refused to make the appointment because I did not believe that he had any particular interest in the position or that he was the best suited man that I could find for the office. I regarded it as my duty then, and I consider it my duty now, to secure the services of those best equipped and qualified, who have an interest in the service to be rendered to the state. In breaking with my idea of my responsibility as governor of Texas, I declined to make the appointment requested. From then until now the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, like the Fergusson Forum, has seen no good in me. It is the only large daily paper opposing me. Candor to the public who read this paper would have demanded that it tell why it withdrew its support of me. It has been relentless in its thrusts and

BARD LEAVES WORLD BEHIND

Bodenheim to Maine After Set-to With Girl's Dad

NEW YORK, July 23. (US)—Maxwell Bodenheim, a long-haired novelist and poet of Greenwich Village, was said to be speeding to Maine after his name had been linked in the papers with three women, one of whom committed suicide.

Gladys Loeb, one of the three girls in the picture, has been sent to the country by her father who found her Saturday at Provincetown, Mass., where he had gone to question Bodenheim about her disappearance last week.

Calls Him Coward

When her father, Dr. Martin Loeb, returned to New York today he characterized Bodenheim as a "weak, jelly fish and a coward."

Bodenheim vanished from his New York haunts last Tuesday after Virginia Drew had told him she was going to commit suicide because of his severe criticism of her verses which she had submitted to him.

The next day her body was found in the Hudson river here.

The third girl whose name has been linked with the case showed up today in Provincetown. She said she is Mary Powell and she took charge of Bodenheim's cottage there and added that she expected a letter or telegram from him very soon.

Pair Talk It Over

Dr. Loeb and Bodenheim talked things over in the presence of Gladys Loeb at Provincetown last night. Gladys, like Virginia Drew, had submitted her verses to Bodenheim more than a month ago and attempted to end her life with gas.

As a result of the conference it was decided to send Gladys to the country to live with relatives for the summer. Her mother has gone to join her.

The physician came home and Bodenheim, so Dr. Loeb said today, left for Maine "because he is afraid to meet the New York reporters."

SMITH TO TOUR ENTIRE NATION

Nominee to Capitalize On Personality

NEW YORK, July 23. (US)—Confronted with the task of overturning normal Republican majorities in virtually every state outside of the solid south, the Democratic high command today decided to send Gov. Alfred E. Smith on a greatly expanded tour of the nation.

While it remains to be decided whether the governor will go to the Pacific coast, Chairman Raskob of the national committee said the campaign swing will cover the country completely and give the people of every section an opportunity to see the Democratic candidate as well as to hear him over the radio.

Uses Personality

In all of his campaigns in New York, Gov. Smith has made use of his magnetic personality as a vote-getter and the Democratic managers are planning his tour with the view of providing personal contacts for the governor with Democratic leaders and with crowds along the route.

Rear platform speeches, however, are taboo with the governor and the Democratic managers. They believe such speeches not only are tiring to the candidate but ineffective as well.

At present the governor is scheduled to limit his speeches to a dozen carefully thought out addresses on the issues before the country. These will be delivered at strategic points with widest possible radio hook-up.

Radio Difficulties

It is the difficulty over getting a nation-wide radio hookup that is delaying the selection of the date for the notification ceremonies at Albany, Chairman Raskob said. He said the National Broadcasting company is cooperating to the fullest extent and that he expected everything to be ironed out by the end of July.

Asked if the amount needed for the campaign had been decided, Chairman Raskob said:

"We cannot determine that until all of the departments have been organized and estimates made for the conduct of each department. We anticipate no difficulty in raising the necessary funds. The largest expenditures will be for educational work and getting the voters to register. The latter requires time and that means money.

"Personally, I anticipate an instructive campaign. Before it is over the voters will know the issues involved and have a keen appreciation of the candidates. Time is the essence in that effort. We plan to use the radio, the press, speakers and pamphlets in this campaign of education."

Chief of the preceding events had been a reception for them by Acting Mayor McKee, staged in the city hall.

TESTS REVEAL NEW WIZARDRY IN CHEMISTRY

Present Industries May Be Upset by Professor's Experiments

NEW MOTOR FUEL

University of Illinois Is Site of Chemists' Weird Research

By VICTOR RUBIN

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., July 23. (US) Research chemists at the University of Illinois are on the threshold of discoveries so tremendous that their consummation will revolutionize existing industries.

By uniting coal gas, or carbon monoxide, the same deadly gas found in the exhaust of automobiles, with hydrogen under pressure, Professor Norman Krase has already produced ethyl or grain alcohol in small quantities.

Eventually he expects to make synthetic grain alcohol so cheaply that it will displace the product of distillation now used, just as synthetic wood alcohol already has replaced the distilled product.

Standing in the little wooden laboratory where Professor Krase tirelessly "bubbles" hydrogen through the compressed carbon monoxide, by means of an ingenious arrangement of compressors and pipes, one at first misses the significance of his experiments.

Widely Used

But remember that ethyl alchol is the most universally used solvent in the arts excepting only water and a basic material in the manufacture of more than 300 articles in daily use—ranging from artificial silk and leather, varnishes and photograph films to the flavoring you use in your cakes and ices, and its importance begins to dawn on you!

Bakelite, the hard, rubber-like substance on your radio set, the dye which colors your clothing, the medicines, the ink you write with and that prints your newspaper, your bar of soap, perfume, the linoleum on your floor and the countless celluloid and artificial ivory articles all depend on grain alchol.

And if Professor Krase realises his hope of synthesizing grain alcohol at half the cost of distillation, he will save American industry a cool $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year and erect a new industry in place of the present distilleries.

New Motor Fuel

By the same method of shooting hydrogen through coal gas, Professor Krase disclosed he expects

DUCE REVOLTS AT CRITICISM

Mussolini Orders Review Of Facts On Italia

ROME, July 23. (UP)—The strong hand of Benito Mussolini was raised today against a tide of universal criticism sweeping over leaders of the polar expedition which resulted in the fatal crash of the dirigible Italia on May 25.

A complete investigation of the expedition and action of the leaders after the disaster will be held, said Premier Mussolini, but it will be held only when the heated arguments of critics have been cooled by a review of all the facts. Furthermore, the investigation will be conducted in Italy and by Italians, the premier announced, and after every agency has been employed to rescue any living survivors of the dirigible wreck.

The premier emphatically denied an investigation would be held in a foreign country near the scene of the rescue party bases. It previously had been indicated that such action might be taken.

"Such a hypothesis is absurd and offensive," the premier said. "If any proposal is made to hold the investigation abroad it will be rejected at once."

Charges of a serious nature had been made against the management of the polar flight since the rescue of Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the Italia. Nobile was brought to safety before other members of the crew, apparently for the purpose of directing rescue work. He was not permitted, however, to participate in the rescues.

KANSAS CITY INTERESTS BUY MILLER PLANT

Taxman Refining Company To Operate Works On Park Road

OIL CONTRACTS MADE

Officials Hope to Begin Operations in Texas On August 1

The J. J. & M. Taxman Refining company will begin operation of a refinery with a daily capacity of 2500 barrels in Wichita Falls about August 1, according to announcement made Monday by J. J. Taxman of Kansas City.

Wichita Falls' new refinery will use the plant of the Miller Refining company, off the Iowa Park road just north of the American Refining company plant, Mr. Taxman said.

In Operation Soon

Work of remodeling the Miller plant, which was shut down several months ago, will begin immediately, with an aim of beginning operations on August 1. North Texas crude oil will be refined and contracts for crude have already been signed, the Kansas City oil man said.

Mr. Taxman is chairman of the board of directors of the Atlas Petroleum company, marketers of petroleum products, which has offices in Chicago, Kansas City and Dallas, and the Atlas company, although an independent organization, will supervise marketing of products of the Taxman Refining company, Mr. Taxman said.

Although Mr. Taxman's home is in Kansas City, he will spend much of his time in Wichita Falls, he announced. Management of the plant will be under the direction of Maynard Taxman, son of J. J. Taxman, and he will make his home in Wichita Falls, it was announced.

Offices Here

The plant will be under the direct supervision of H. G. Smart, formerly connected with the Miller Refining company here. Sole owners of the Taxman Refining company, Mr. Taxman said, are the brothers, J. J. and M. Taxman.

The consideration involved in the transfer of assets of the Miller Refining company to the Taxman Refining company was not made known.

Prior to organization of the Taxman Refining company Mr. Taxman was engaged in the refinery business in Missouri.

Definite location of the company's offices, which will be in Wichita Falls, was not announced.

Upright Young Girl Hater Erases Townsfolk's Illusions in Bombing

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 23. (UP)—Staid townsfolk of Rockford used to speak highly of Paul Reed as a young man who went about his business quietly and who didn't have "girls in his head."

They received their first shock when Paul ran away with the pretty girl wife of Vernon Plager, a radio repair man, who immediately gave chase, separated the couple, returned home with Mrs. Plager and tried to forget about the matter.

That was last fall. Today Paul Reed shattered the last illusions of his esteem when, pallied and trembling, he was led from a jail cell and formally charged with planting the dynamite bomb which blew Plager, the forgiving husband, to death.

Plager was killed when he stepped on the starter of his automobile a few days ago. The bomb, wired to the ignition, hurled his body through the roof of the sedan. With the final spark of life that remained in his torn body he uttered four words:

"Paul Reed did it," he said. Then he died.

Authorities are confident the mass of evidence they have collected against Reed will be sufficient to convict him of first degree murder.

Morones Disappears 'After Young 'Assassin Confesses Obregon's Death

MEXICO CITY, July 23. (AP)—Luis Morones, political foe of General Alvaro Obregon and who resigned the ministry of labor at the behest of Agrarian elements, was today the object of a search by police.

General Antonio Rois Zertuche, appointed chief of police to investigate the assassination of Obregon, said that Morones was reported to be in hiding. He added the police were investigating a rumor he was concealed in Mexico City.

The chief also stated that Jose de Leon Toral, the art student who killed Gen. Obregon, had made a "complete confession." Just what was in this statement was not revealed.

Catholic clergy had been cooperating with the police in their investigation. The first pronouncement by President Calles after the killing of Obregon laid the blame for the crime on Catholics, generally and members of the priesthood in particular. This sentiment was echoed by Gen. Zertuche. He did not go into details respecting the cooperation which he is now receiving from leaders of the church.

Tracing the pistol which De Leon Toral used, police said they had discovered it had been furnished by one Manuel Trejo. They assert he has fled to the United States.

CHARGE FILED AGAINST SHOOK

Former Electra Officer In County Jail

Tom Shook, former Electra chief of police, was back in the Wichita county jail Monday night, charged with driving a car while intoxicated, following a midnight disturbance in Electra Sunday night. Shook also is charged with carrying a weapon, a misdemeanor.

Shook was released from the Wichita county jail a few weeks ago after he had been indicted by the grand jury for burglary. The burglary indictment, wherein Shook was jointly billed with Ed Pryor, constable of Electra, and Henry Shumate, escaped prisoner, grew out of the burglary of the King newsstand in Electra the latter part of May.

The former city official of Electra was arrested by Dick Morris, deputy sheriff, after Morris and other officers had answered the call of an Electra cafe. Shook made a move as though to draw a pistol when Mr. Morris hooped upon the running board of his car, according to the officers.

Tests Reveal New Wizardry

to produce a synthetic motor fuel that resembles gasoline, but is cheaper and capable of standing higher compression in the motor.

"The economical production of synthetic motor fuel from carbon monoxide will mean the conversion of coal into liquid fuel with its resultant disadvantages to all users of power," said Professor Krase.

"The development of the fixed nitrogen industry (the manufacture of niturates used as fertilizer from the nitrogen in the air) was rapid, but there is every reason to believe that the development of other processes involving high pressure will be even more rapid because of the fact that the technique is developed and equipment is now more or less standardized."

Tests Revolutionized

In his x-ray laboratory Professor George L. Clark is revolutionizing the method of testing materials used in all industries.

By means of his radiographs he is able to tell the chemical nature of a bit of steel, its toughness, the process of manufacture or finishing it has undergone and even the structure of its atoms—the ultimate particles of matter of which it is composed. An asbestos fiber under his x-ray reveals sixteen different types of information concerning it so clearly that he can tell from what mine it came!

Now he is able to do this is a story of modern science more wonderful than any fairy tale.

The human eye, explained Professor Clark, sees the world with the sole aid of the light rays—a comparatively narrow band of all the electro-magnetic rays that surround us and of which the waves used in radio broadcasting, the ultra-violet rays and the mysterious Millikan rays which ceaselessly bombard our planet and well-known examples.

Studies Atom

The x-ray, one ten-thousandth as short as any ray to which the human eye is sensitive, is of the same order of magnitude as the atom. For many years scientists wondered how they could get a screen fine enough to break up the x-rays into single rays, so they could use it to examine the atom. Obviously it was impossible to etch lines close enough together upon glass, as is done in studying the nature of light. A few years ago, however, two German scientists reasoned that the tiny planes which form a crystal of matter must be an atom apart. Then they proved it by sending x-rays through a crystal of metal onto a photographic plate. Theoretically, the atoms should reflect the rays on the plate and form a pattern. They did— and a beautifully symmetrical one.

Professor Clark was one of the first scientists to x-ray atoms of different elements, discover their characteristic forms and then apply that knowledge to the world of industry.

Recently, when an industry asked him to find a lubricant that was not black, he compared his models of atoms and reasoned that boric acid ought to make a good substitute for graphite. It did.

Covers Many Fields

Most scientists are of necessity specialists within a narrow field. Professor Clark displays an amazing interest in the entire field, not only x-rays, but of the other invisible rays. He has used x-rays to study the cause of dental decay, for instance, and has discovered the cause of a particular form of rickets in fish found in the Illinois river.

Professor B. S. Hopkins, who, with two assistants, J. A. Harris and F. F. Entema, discovered Illinuim, or element 61, in 1926, is another believer in the unbounded possibilities of shedding light on the mysteries of life in the knowledge of the electromagnetic rays and the structure of the atom.

"There is as much reason to believe that the arrangement is a matter of chance as to believe that the pouring of materials from a bag in the sky would produce a building," he said.

He was referring to the fact that the elements taken in order of their atomic weights form a series whose properties, including the x-rays they produce, solubility, structure, etc., form a practically perfect system.

Work on Coke

Perhaps as important as any other announcement that has come out of the laboratories of the University of Illinois is that of Professor Samuel V. Parr, who since the anthracite strike of 1902 has been working on a process of coking Illinois coal.

Within a year, possibly within a few months, Professor Parr disclosed, industry will begin making the new type of coke on a large scale if present plans materalize. Coke has been used for domestic purposes for many years, but had the drawback of producing a fire that goes out easily.

Permit for Methodist Church Building Issued

A permit was issued at the office of the city clerk Monday for the erection of the new church edifice of the Grant Street Methodist church at 2308 Grant street.

Archer City Mayor Gives Club Talk

"It took God's chosen people 40 years to go from Jericho to Jerusalem," declared F. M. Power of Archer City, in an address at the Kiwanis club luncheon Monday noon, "and a man flew the distance recently in 40 minutes.

"We are living in a fast age," he continued, "and should not expect boys and girls to have horse sense in this day of automobiles. Time goes so fast that the ink on a 30-day note barely has time to dry before the note falls due. We used to miss the stage coach and wait patiently three days for the next one. Now we get mad and swear if we miss one section of a revolving door.

"We have the best young people in this age that the world has ever known. We canont meet new ideas and conditions with old ideas and conditions. A few years ago, we had the horse and buggy age, but now we have the automobile age."

Mr. Power mayor of Archer City, told a few jokes and edged in a number of wise cracks which would have made Jimmy Walker, another mayor, far-famed for his snappy comebacks, slip to cover in shame.

"Children," he told Kiwanians, "are the interest coupons attached to the bonds of matrimony which, when clipped at maturity, yield jelly beans or flappers, as the case maye be."

The Social Side—Wichita Falls' Woman's Interests—Clubs and Churches

Cool Colorado Breezes Call Wichita Falls Folk From City

Colorado seems to be calling Wichita Falls people and the general late summer exodus will soon be well on the way toward depleting the ranks of the society of the city.

Opinions expressed by those left at home, are that a smaller number than usual will be leaving the city, but each day brings announcement of a new group making plans or actually on its way for the cooler regions ow the west.

Some will spend the intervening weeks until cool weather, while othes plan to be away only two weeks. Lovers of the expanse will camp out and are carrying along the appropriate luggage for such enjoyment; while others will adhere to the cities and summer resorts in the state.

Among those who plan to leave about the first of August for Colorado are Mr. and Mrs. Burton Stayton of Ninth street, Mrs. T. B. Noble, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Hoffman and children of 2004 Avondale will leave Saturday for Creede, Colo., where they will visit the coming month or six weeks. In the Hoffman party there will also be Mrs. W. R. Johnston, Mrs. Hoffman's mother, and her brother Sam Johnston, all of San Angelo.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Smedley of 1822 Elizabeth will leave Thursday for Colorado and will spend the next several weeks camping and visiting along points of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Snider are planning to leave soon for the mountainous state and will be accompanied by other members of the Snider family.

Among the number who have already left are Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hamilton and family, who are spending the three summer months among the other guests at the Conejos Recreation association near Antonito.

Mrs. W. A. Fresar is spending the summer at Colorado Springs. Mrs. J. D. Bright and family and Mrs. E. W. Wade and daughter, Miss Wilton Wade, left Saturday for Boulder, Colo., where Miss Wade and Miss Marjorie Bright will enroll for the second term of the summer session at the University of Colorado. They were scheduled to arrive in Boulder Monday.

Among other parents who are in Boulder where their children are enrolled in the University of Colorado, are Mrs. Charles J. Tucker and family two members of which Miss Jane and Bruce Moore are students in the university there, and Mrs. W. J. Grisham, who is accompanied by her daughter, Miss Ruth Grisham.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Roberts of Tenth street are summering in Denver as are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Britton and daughter, Charlotte, of 1903 Collins street, who are guests of relatives in Colorado Springs, Denver and Loveland. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kell and two daughters, Willie Mae and Mary Jo are at present in Denevr.

And so on and so forth, and each new day adds to the list of those who are already enjoying the cooler breezes and those who are planning to avoid as much of the Texas heat as possible in the remaining weeks of hot summertime.

SOCIETY Personals

Mrs. Alva Phillips and two sons, Warren Alva and Joseph, of Wink are the guests of Mrs. Phillips' mother, Mrs. W. Roberts of 113 San Antonio street. They will be here two or three weeks and will also visit among other relatives while here.

Ramblin'
with Marie Theresa

CAN a woman be both petite and tall? And can she be willowy and petite? I just wonder what you think of it, I must have used those three adjectives in a recent story, for a lady just called me and wanted to know just what such a woman would look like in real life.

Now that my attention has been called to it, the three words are somewhat at variance, but I would never think to call a person's word for anything like that, would you? And the lady is such a good fellow that I think she must have something up her sleeve.

Maybe she wants to persuade friends that she is both tall and commanding in appearance and still petite. What woman has not admired both characteristics in those of her sex?

You know women admire good sized women, but men prefer 'em sort of petite, consequently the average member of the feminine denomination has difficulty getting settled between preference and policy.

❖ ❖ ❖

AFTER all the newspaper columns and the books written on the subject on lovemaking, nobody has ever been clever enough to tell us when not to make love. Here we have a London man arrested by request of his wife, somewhat estranged, it would seem, because he didn't know when NOT to kiss the lady.

❖ ❖ ❖

WITH the advent of a new serial story in one of the local papers, my suggestion to readers would be to just admit that they read the story. It is such a bother to keep shifting from the society page or whatever page the instalment story may be published, to the front page or sport page, when someone comes near or shyly peeps over your shoulder. I have seen that stunt pulled even by newspaper people, callused and careless as they have grown.

❖ ❖ ❖

A HOLLYWOOD miss boasts of her hair which measures 50 inches. The modern miss, I should say, the average modern girl whose hair reaches her shoulders refers to her hair as long. There seems to be a discrepancy there of about 40 inches of hair length. And the miss mentioned above says that her hair is the reason for her ability to wear her clothes better than the movie stars of the movie city. But we have no proof of that. Besides, we've seen a picture of the lady posed in bathing suit and we believe she'd wear dresses equally well with bobbed tresses or the conventional "yearling" length hair.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE cool breezes and rain of the last few days have brought out a queer array of clothing—winter coats, spring coats, advance fall styles in dresses and many an old-fashioned umbrella. Many of the hats were worn in improvised hat bags fashioned more or less amateurishly from newspapers.

Young Man Is Advised to Work For Money Before Marrying for It

The Foolish Young Man Who Is Willing to Sacrifice the Girl He Loves for Money—How to Deal With a Martyr Mother—Why Do Girls Keep Their Dates Waiting?

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man 21 years old and I am engaged to a girl whom I love dearly, but there is another girl who is very rich who says that she will marry me. I don't care anything for her, but she has lots of money, while the other girl is a poor girl. What would you advise me to do?
—C. J. M.

Answer: Well, if I were a young man, I shouldn't sell myself out. I wouldn't be able to look myself in the face if I belonged to some woman who had bought me. I would rather roll up my sleeves and go to work and make whatever money I wanted myself.

Money is a good thing to have, but you don't require a great deal of it and there is a strict limit on its purchasing power. When you have enough money to feed you and clothe you and give you a shelter, you have all the physical comforts that money can give you. If you had all the wealth of a millionaire to pay for it you could only eat a certain amount of food. You could only wear one suit of clothes at a time. You could only sit in one chair, sleep in one bed, ride in one automobile. And the finer things of life—love, congeniality, peace of mind, self-respect—money cannot buy.

Furthermore, the fun about money is not in spending it, it is in making it. Any rich man will tell you that all of the kick he has got out of his fortune he got when he was planning, contriving, scheming, plotting to build up his business. The game was in outwitting the other fellow. The triumph was in pulling off a good thing. The excitement was in the chase of the illusive dollar. He was never bored when he sat in the big game, but now when he has nothing to do but spend he finds it a dull and tedious affair.

So, it seems to me, that a young man makes a bad bargain when he sells himself for money which he could so easily make for himself and have such sport in the making. To give up love and romance and the girl who keeps you interested and thrilled and your own independence for the sake of a few dollars looks like a mighty bad trade to me.

I don't remember that I ever saw the poor husband of a rich wife who looked really happy and contented and like a regular fellow. On the contrary, somehow, such men always get a kind of prize Pomeranian pup look about them—the look of a thoroughly housebroken pet who is fed on cream and bonbons and gets fat and wheezy for lack of exercise and doing a he-man's part in the world.

Invariably it breaks the man's spirit, because he is in an abnormal position in which the only thing he can do to pay for his board and keep, is to lie down and roll over and jump through the loop to please his good, kind, generous owner. For if wife or wife's family are furnishing the money to run the establishment, what can he do but yes-yes them? It is always the privilege of the one who pays the piper to call the tune, and it is up to him to dance to it.

No man is the head of his house who doesn't settle with the butcher, the baker and the candlestick-maker.

Furthermore, to marry a rich wife is death to ambition, because it takes away a man's incentive to succeed. He doesn't have to struggle and strive to make a place for his wife or in order to give her luxuries and that is what drives more men on to achieving things than anything else in the world. It is love for a woman that goads a man on in the race and makes him put forward his best efforts. It is necessity that is a spur in his side.

All of this a man misses who marries a girl for her money. He has taken the line of least resistance when he marries for money instead of making it for himself, and he follows it to the end which leads nowhere except just to the feed trough. And he is never happy, because he has neither the respect of himself, his wife or his fellow creatures.
—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix: Three years ago I was married to the best man on earth and we went to live in our own home, and four months ago our first baby was born. Until the baby came I used to telephone my mother every morning and go to see her every afternoon and then go back to her house to spend the evening. Now I can't do this as the baby keeps me tied down and I can't even telephone her as I have no phone and have to go to a neighbor's phone. My mother is making me perfectly miserable by finding fault with everything I do. She objects to the name we gave the baby and the way I take care of him, and finds fault continually with my husband. She says I don't love her because I don't come to see her every day, and she has had a nervous attack, which she says I brought on her by my neglect. There is no reason for her not coming to see me, but she won't do it. What should I do?
—UNHAPPY DAUGHTER.

Answer: Just laugh at her. Make a joke of it all, and perhaps you can make her see how ridiculously she is acting.

The trouble with her is that she is jealous of your husband. Jealous of the baby. Jealous because you love somebody else better than you do her.

If you give in to her now and apologize all over the place for not devoting your time to her and if you wheedle and coax her into trying to be reasonable, you will just encourage her in her folly. She will make a kind of cult of it, and will take a pride in never going near you and a morbid satisfaction in being a martyr.

So let her alone. Don't notice that she doesn't come to see you. Don't inquire after her health or evince any concern about her nervous attacks. She works them up deliberately. And if you will just give her time to sulk it all out alone she will come down off her high horse and be sensible and reasonable. She won't be able to stay away from the baby.
—DOROTHY DIX.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK.—It's all very well to be a broker and make a century a day, but there are a number of contributing circumstances which sometimes make the big tape and ticker men wish they were back on the farm in Ioway.

Several weeks ago a young man who had just purchased a seat on the curb and was not thoroughly wised up to the intricacies of the racket, was given an order to buy some Hoboken and Northern railway rights. In very much of a hurry—as is the habit of young brokers—he set out for the specialist which his phone clerk pointed out to him as the Hoboken bookkeeper. The order directed him to buy 500 shares at the market, so he nudged his way to the center of the milling group surrounding this particular post where the stock was being traded.

In a very professional manner, and in a loud voice he asked the "market" and was told that it was about 30. As soon as the words were out of the specialist's mouth a pandemonium of bidding broke loose. All the brokers within a radius of 50 feet rushed to the post and began furiously buying Hoboken and Northern Railway rights.

Whenever the freshman broker gathered his fleeting wits together long enough to shout "35 for 500," some one just behind him would shout much more distinctly, "35½ for 1,000." After 15 minutes of feverish bidding the market had risen from 30 to 78 and the Y. B. had failed to buy anything even vaguely connected by the Hoboken and Northern railway.

Bathed in a cold wave of perspiration he left the mob and retired to his phone booth to consider plain and fancy methods of suicide. He would first resign from the exchange and give the proceeds accruing from the sale of his seat to his wife. He knew of a quiet place up in Connecticut where he could rent a room in an old hotel which still had gas jets in the rooms. His wife would bear up all right and in Europe no one would remember her as the wife of a disgraced broker.

A firm hand grasped his shoulder. The face behind the hand was wreathed in a grin which threatened its possessor with apoplexy. He was barely able to speak.

"Oooooo, what a sucker you turned out to be! Do you think for a minute that there is a Hoboken and Northern railway? Do you imagine for a split second that there are Hoboken and Northern railway rights? And were you imbecile enogh to think that any one would want a fractional part of one even if there were any? Or that the entire exchange would devote half an hour to the exclusive buying and building of such a highly imaginative security? Oooooo, what a sucker!"

"Pa, I'm a scout now. Will you lend me your new cigaret lighter?"

Father gazed at his young son in wide eyed amazement. Did the scouts welcome their tenderfoot with a smoker? He opened his mouth to start the well-known and popular lecture but Johnnie saw it coming and beat him to it.

"You see pa, you have to make a fire without matches so I thought your cigaret lighter would be handy. That is if it still works. Does it?"

An all-star pageant of stars of musical comedy, vaudeville and sports was staged as a testimonial to the American Olympic team at the Palace theater, midnight on Friday, July 6. This performance arranged in the office of Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the board of Keith-Albee-Orpheum, was under the direction of the Allied Theatrical Committee of New York, and the gross receipts went to the New York City Olympic Fund committee, of which Hon. James J. Walker is honorary chairman and Grover A. Whalen the New York chairman.

Captain of His Ship

SIR JAMES CHARLES, commodore of the famous Cunard line, died the other day just after his ship, the Aquitania, had docked at Southampton.

He was to have retired at the conclusion of that voyage, having completed 50 years at sea. As the Aquitania approached the British coast he felt ill; yet he refused to leave the bridge when urged to by his subordinates, sticking to his post until after 3 a. m. when the ship docked. Then he retired to his cabin and collapsed, dying a short time later.

In the long history of the sea and the ships that sail it that little story probably could be duplicated dozens of times. The law of the sea, unwritten but binding, is explicit. The master—the man to whom command is given—must always think first of his ship. If disaster comes he must see every other soul safe the the boats before he himself leaves; if he is ill he must remain on duty as long as his legs can hold him.

Probably that is why most of us have such an instinctive admiration for sea captains. We recognize that they order their lives by sterner standards than ours. They submit to a discipline of which we know nothing. They have evolved a strange, commercial sort of unselfishness, in which they accept the notion that a cargo of hides or sewing machines is worth more to the world than the life of a brave man.

Yet they have their compensations. They are spared the perplexities and doubts that beset us on shore. Most of us move a part of the time in a sort of mental fog, in which the difficulty comes from the fact that right and wrong are hard to distinguish. We make mistakes, not because we are wilful but because we are blind.

For the sea captain duty is always clearly defined. If it is sometimes hard, he at least knows it is. Sir James Charles, clinging to the bridge rail in his last hours, paid with his life for his fidelity, but at least he knew exactly what that fidelity required of him.

The main trouble with most of us is the complexity of life. We are capable of great industry and great sacrifice if only we knew just what we were supposed to do. Black and white, too often, merge into a sort indistinguishable gray. We are befogged, looking vainly for a sign.

The sea captains are luncky. If we can find codes similar to theirs—codes that are unyielding, rigorous and plain—we may count ourselves fortunate. To know exactly what one's duty is is one of the greatest boons a man can have.

Carranza—The Effect

NEW YORK saw its greatest military demonstration in years the other day.

Soldiers of the regular army and national guard paraded down the streets, following a casket draped with flags. Army airplanes circled overhead. All the pomp and circumstance that modern military science can muster were in evidence.

The United States government was sending the body of Captain Emilio Carranza back to his home in Mexico. A black-haired stripling of an alien race, killed when a storm dashed his plane to earth in New Jersey, was getting an armed tribute such an this country had not seen in years.

Captain Carranza was Mexico's foremost flyer. He came to the United States on a "good will" flight, seeking to do for his country what Lindbergh had done for ours. The project cost him his life; but the tragedy of its end caused it to succeed better, perhaps, than it would have if he had lived.

For it is one of the hard facts of this world, that a man often can best gain his end by losing his life. This is particularly true when a man puts off his own individuality and becomes, for the moment, a symbol of some intangible value. And that is precisely what Captain Carranza was required to do.

The people who thronged New York's streets to watch the ceremonies and lift their hats as the casket went by on its rumbling caisson did not stand there primarily to say goodby to a likable young man. The whole process was a sort of ritual, made impressive by the fact of Carranza's death.

To be sure, it is easy to say that most of the people who witnessed the procession were drawn to the curbs simply by curiosity. It is easy to predict that Carranza's achievement will quickly be forgotten and will have no lasting effect on any of us. Admittedly, the emotions raised by the whole affair passed quickly.

Yet it is such trifles that help us advance. For a fleeting moment this young Mexican aviator gave us a vision of something better than we are used to. He lifted our eyes so that we could see beyond our customary routine of squabbling and grasping selfishness. We got a glimpse, brief but important, of the fact that men of diverse nations and races can be brothers. The nation to the south of us is not made up exclusively of swarthy, ignorant half-breeds. Carranza demonstrated the fact.

Of course, we put the whole business out of our mind next day. Yet its effect will linger with us for a long while. Subconsciously we shall make it part of the background against which we view all Mexicans hereafter. South of the Rio Grande, likewise, it will have a similar effect. The two nations will get along just a bit more easily after this because of it.

If that legless aviator fails to fly the Atlantic at least he'll have no kick coming.

Michigan conservation officials say the automobile is "a menace to wild life." But maybe they haven't tried the experiment of loading an automobile with a little gin.

Now that cigaret lighters are the vogue, what in the world is one to pick one's teeth with?

GAS BIG FACTOR

The story of gas is a modern epic. From its inauspicious beginning a little over a hundred years ago it has steadily progressed to the extent that John P. Mullen of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, recently said that the gas business and its securities show a stable value that entitles them to rank with the best of public utility issues.

The manufactured gás industry has not reported a decrease in annual sales or revenue in 21 years. Sales have increased 352 per cent in 25 years, in spite of a population increase of but 50 per cent. Sixty million people are now said to buy gas, and it has 21,000 industrial uses. Yet in industry its life has barely begun; the future is beyond prediction.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster, after losing both father and wealth, consents to make her home with Clarissa Dean and her father. Dean plots to separate her from her fiance, Nathaniel Dann, but fails and later is forced to pay blackmail to a Mrs. Farley or face a scandal.

Clarissa becomes jealous of her and Virginia resolves to leave, but Dean insists that she marry him. When she refuses, he threatens to reveal the fact that her father cheated him out of $100,000 in a bootlegging deal. Recklessly, she promises to earn enough to repay him in one year—or marry him.

Virginia leaves but has to pawn a ring to tide over until she can find a position. She goes to Niel's studio, but her joy at seeing him is clouded because she dare not reveal her financial need or her promise to Dean; and also because of the familiarity with which his model, Chiri, treats Niel.

She seeks work through an agency but without success. Upon arriving at her hotel one evening, she finds orchids from Dean and wonders how he learned her address. Niel takes her out to dine and on the way home Virginia notices a man whom she has suspected of shadowing her for several days.

Next morning she calls on a broker friend, Oliver Cutter, who has promised to help her. His secretary suddenly seems aloof after having been friendly to Virginia at first. A call from the agency brings hope.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XXIX

Mrs. Phelps flushed slowly under Virginia's straightforward question and her glance slipped uneasily away from the girl's face to the glass-topped desk.

"I'm not really trying to discourage you," she protested lamely; "but I've been thinking about you and it seems...well, a bit absurd for a girl of your position to be subject to such—er, indignities as you met at the Gernsners.'"

"There were no indignities," Virginia stated gravely. "Mrs. Gernsner lost her temper, it's true, but I'm sure she felt she had sufficient reason to do so. And as far as my position is concerned...it is that of a girl who must take whatever comes to her in the effort to get work."

"That's just the point I wish to make, my dear. Is it necessary for you to get work? Don't you think it would be more becoming if you allowed your friends to assist you?"

A frown appeared on Virginia's forehead, to be quickly followed by raised eyebrows. She smiled coldly and shook her head. "I assume you have been in communication with someone who has advised you against helping me," she said stiffly. "May I ask who it was?"

Mrs. Phelps lifted her chin a trifle. "I am telling you what I believe is for your best interest," she answered evasively. "You have no idea, I'm sure, what it will mean to you to undertake to earn your own livelihood. And surely you do not intend to go on indefinitely holding a position. Why should you bother with it at all?" she added lightly in tones that were subtly suggestive of the inconsequence in which she held the idea of Virginia Brewster looking for a job.

"Because I will not accept charity," Virginia replied warmly.

"But you are engaged, I understand," Mrs. Phelps said suavely. "It occurred to me that it is rather needless for you to go through all the unpleasantness and self-denial of this sort of thing so long as you are not in pursuit of a career. That would be different, but as it seems you are only seeking employment until you are married I think you are a very foolish girl to turn your back upon your proper station and your real friends."

Virginia considered her remarks with scant courtesy.

"Yes, I do intend to marry—at the end of the year, I hope," she said spiritedly; "but in the meantime I must face things as they are and it is impossible for me to go to any of my friends. It is absolutely necessary for me to find employment."

Mrs. Phelps looked grieved. "Well, I've tried to show you how difficult it is," she said defensively; "but if you still wish us to retain your application we shall be pleased to do so."

"Thank you," Virginia replied briefly and departed.

She was quite sure there was more to the interview than appeared on the surface. One thing was certain. Mrs. Phelps' indirect reply to her request for the name of the person who had interfered proved to Virginia that her first suspicion was correct. Someone had interfered! But who could it be?

Virginia cogitated over it the rest of the afternoon, with small satisfaction. Quite apparently it was someone who knew of her visits to the agency—someone who did not wish her to have success there.

Virginia was at a loss to decide who it might be. She had not mentioned Mrs. Phelps to anyone, not even Nathaniel. Miss Evans knew; but she had sent Virginia there. It was preposterous to suppose she had been responsible for Mrs. Phelps' sudden change of attitude. Unless...but that was utterly absurd. Oliver wouldn't have had any reason to interfere even if Miss Evans had told him of Virginia's plans. But aside from those who knew that she had wanted work who could it be who would try to stand in her way?

It came to Virginia in a flash of conviction that there was one person she could always depend upon to try to balk her, Frederick Dean! But he could not have known what she was doing!

Virginia tried to make herself believe that he could not. It would be too harrowing to think that he was keeping watch on her. Still there was simply no one else she could think of who would have any incentive to intervene in her affairs in a way to make her life more difficult.

But how had he turned Mrs. Phelps? "I suppose he told her what a little idiot I was to refuse his aid," Virginia stormed hotly. "Perhaps he bought her consent to let me down. But I'd rather think she really believes I'm making a fool of myself," she concluded, averse to condemning anyone without proof.

The aftermath of the whole thing was to leave her with a feeling of being in a blind alley without an exit. Miss Evans was inexplicably unfriendly. Nathaniel could not help her because she dared not let him know how badly she needed advice. Oliver was hardly to be trusted to have any sensible ideas and Mr. Gardiner would undoubtedly urge her to accept a loan or the uncertain kindness of friends. Well, there were other agencies. The telephone directory would afford their addresses.

The next day she made the rounds, deciding to use her own name. She decided that it would probably leak out anyhow, and she wanted to show Mr. Dean, if he actually were having her watched, that she was not afraid of anything, even publicity.

And she got plenty of it. Someone who knew a newspaper man tipped him off that the Brewster girl was hunting a job.

During the next few days Virginia was besieged with calls, by telephone and in person. Requests for an interview and her story came from every direction. Virginia knew the resourcefulness of the men she had to deal with. In fact, she knew several of them by sight, liked them, too, for she and her father had always been well treated by the press; and they in their turn had recognized the fact that rich people are "news," and had never been disagreeable to those whose line of duty crossed their path.

But she hardly knew what to do when they stormed her en masse, and when she appealed to Mr. Gardiner and Nathaniel for advice they told her to remain in seclusion and to refuse to talk, even to employes of the hotel. Still there were stories and pictures just the same, and the pleas for an interview did not cease. Finally Virginia used her own judgment, called the editorial offices of the different newspapers and asked to have a reporter sent to her at a certain hour that day.

The hotel management, elated with the publicity she was bringing them, arranged her reception to the representatives of the press in great style. They even went so far in their hospitality as to serve refreshments.

When all the "boys" and "girls" of the party were gathered around her, Virginia talked to them quietly and earnestly.

"I appreciate all your kindness of the past," she told them, "but I assure you there is nothing I have to say that can be of any interest to your readers."

"Oh, now," Miss Brewster, some one broke in. "People want your point of view, you know. Just why you're looking for a job."

"That's right," echoed another.

Virginia glanced from one speaker to the other with deep distress in her eyes. She looked very white and shaken and everyone present felt a touch of compassion for her.

"Please," she began softly. "Don't press me for a story. You all know that I've suffered greatly, and there has been so much publicity already. Surely one lone girl cannot be of such importance that she must be sacrificed endlessly to satisfy the curiosity of the world."

"But you're front-page stuff, Miss Brewster," one of them objected. "Can't you just say a word or two about being sick of society and wanting to be useful or something."

"I'm sorry, I can't say anything," Virginia replied wearily. Then her voice rose slightly and she spoke with forced calmness. "I've asked you to come here so I might beg you to let the public forget about me," she said. "I am at your mercy, ladies and gentlemen. Won't you please spare me?"

"That sounds like the end of this trail to me," a dean among them remarked sotto voce. But Virginia heard. She turned quickly to face him.

"Thank you," her lips formulated, but the words were inaudible.

"You won't change your mind?" a young suspicious fellow asked, fearful of drawing off and then being scooped.

"I pledge my word that I shall say no more than I have," Virginia promised in full understanding of the thought that troubled him, and others perhaps. "And I will be undyingly grateful to you all if you will write no more about me than you must.

"Thank you very much for coming," she hurried on. "I hope some day I may give you some pleasant news for your papers," she added, smiling upon them through a mist of tears. With those who pushed forward she shook hands and then broke away, to disappear through a nearby doorway.

Just as she passed out of sight she turned to bed in final farewell to the men and women who watched her go with a unanimous feeling of good will. Her eye caught on one of the group who stood a little apart—a man she had not noticed before, and a quick stab of apprehension pierced her heart.

FALLEN IDOLS RENEW QUEST

But Other Screen Has Beens Open Cafes

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 23. (UP)—When the final close-up has been taken and a fickle public forgets, the former idols of the screen seek varied ways of carrying on.

Many who have fallen from the pedestals continue to knock at the doors of the studios. Some are admitted once more, usually in minor parts and occasionally in feature roles. The majority, however, when once they have lost their places in public favor or have lost in the game of "politics" constantly played in the studios, return no more.

Those who can't come back often continue to profit from the names built up on the screen.

Some Open Cafes

They hang on around Hollywood, operate cafes or other establishments where they can expect to reap reward from associations with the screen world.

A great number of them are entirely unsuited for other endeavors, especially after having experienced the riches of a few brief years in cinemaland, but they never forget the days of fleeting fame. They dream of a time when their names again will be blazoned to the world.

Maurice Costello, once one of the most popular leading men on the screen, is rehearsing a vaudeville act in a nearby community. His two daughters keep the family name before screen fans.

Anita Stewart is reported ready to give the world a message in a movie which will soon be published.

Night Club Hostess

Alice Lake has become a hostess in a night club, friends reported.

Ann Little, star of a few years ago, was said to have turned from the silent drama to secretarial work.

Ruth Roland of serial fame is a business woman. She is one of the few who invested money wisely when at the height of her film earning capacity. Miss Roland bought real estate and won wealth, but even she recently answered the call to act.

A "chicken shack" was the venture of Raymond McKee of Sennett fame, and he serves dinners to the current celebrities.

William Russell runs his ranch and supervises his automobile washing business.

Some just rest.

Charles Ogle, featured in a number of Paramount productions, has quit the world to a great extent. He lives in a small house near the ocean. A high wall shuts out visitors. Doorbells and telephones are taboo. He, for one, has had sufficient of the public.

Bishop Questions Pro Attitudes

ATLANTA, Ga., July 23. (UP)—Calling attention to the prohibition plank in the party platform, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in an open letter to Major John S. Cohen, Democratic national committeeman, and C. E. Maddox, chairman of the state legislative committee, asks if the party nominees have a right to advocate modification of the law.

In his letter, Bishop Ainsworth says that the party pledged itself and its nominees to "honest enforcement of the 18th amendment" and that it was not pledged "for one month, six months, or two years, but for the four years of the national administration if entrusted to them."

"To enforce for this time," the bishop wrote, "excludes all idea of modification, weakening nullification, repeal or substitution of the specific thing that they have pledged an honest effort to enforce.

"I am troubled and our people are in distress," the bishop wrote. "They want to stand together but there are millions of them who still own their own souls and will not support an infamy that outrages their moral sense, under any specious plea of party regularity.

"Can we stand for both the party platform and its nominees or walk in the opposite directions at the same time?"

Thugs Loot Safe Of $20,000 in Jewelry

ST. LOUIS, July 23. (UP)—Burglars who chiseled through a two-foot brick wall into the vault of the Stone Brothers Jewelry company here secured jewelry valued at $20,000 and $150 in cash.

German Pilot Escapes Injury in Crash

PARIS, July 23. (UP)—The pilot of a German postal plane narrowly escaped death in the French Alps today when his craft was destroyed in a forced landing. The plane made a hazardous landing near Kenne, Svoie, while en route from Geneva to Barcelona.

NO AID THERE

Loitering Males Allow Thief To Escape With Woman's Purse

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—Miss Gladys Buckey, assistant office manager for the National Aeronautic association saw a negro run out of the office and downstairs with her purse today.

She climbed out of a window and standing on a ledge 20 feet in air shouted to four male passersby: "Thief coming out of this building. Catch him."

The negro appeared in an instant, mounted a bicycle and rode away. No hand was lifted to stop him.

The stolen purse contained $8.50 cash and $48 in endorsed checks.

G. O. P. Hopes To Win Senate Seats

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Republican campaign managers are casting hopeful eyes at 35 senate seats which must be filled in the November election. This is three more than the usual one-third of the senate which is elected every two years due to the deaths of Senators Gooding of Idaho and Willis of Ohio and the denial of a seat to Frank L. Smith of Illinois. The status of Vare of Pennsylvania is still undetermined finally.

Twenty of the seats are now held by Democrats, 10 of which are in states where the other seat is held by a Republican, the Republican national committee pointed out tonight.

Republicans whose terms expire all of whom are candidates for re-election are Cutting, New Mexico; Fess, Ohio; Frazier, North Dakota; Green, Vermont; Hale, Maine; Howell, Nebraska; Vandenberg, Michigan; Johnson, California; La-Follette, Wisconsin; McLean, Connecticut; Reed, Pennsylvania; Robinson, Indiana, and Thomas, Idaho.

Democrats whose terms expire and all of whom except Reed of Missouri are candidates to succeed themselves are:

Shipstead, Minnesota Farmer-Labor senator, also is a candidate for re-election.

Committee To Collect G. O. P. Funds Named

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—The Republican national committee has set up a special committee to collect campaign subscriptions of $100 and less, Republican headquarters announced tonight.

John W. O'Leary of Chicago, iron and steel manufacturer and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, has been placed in charge with headquarters at Chicago.

Solicitation for large contributions will be handled by others.

Fresh Fruit Shipments By Railroads Increase

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—By improved speedy refrigeration car service the railroads are contributing toward the fresh fruit and vegetable diet of the nation. Rail shipments of these commodities have doubled in ten years, the bureau of railway economics announced.

France's Poet Laureate Hurts Arm in Fall

PARIS, July 23. (UP)—Countess de Noailles, poet laureate of France, was injured today when she lost her footing on a highly polished floor and fell. She was trying on a new summer gown when the accident occurred. Her arm was severely sprained and she will be unable to write for several weeks.

Proposed London Dance Marathon Raises Protest

LONDON, July 23. (UP)—Santos Casani, noted dancing instructor, started vigorous protests today after it had been reported C. C. Pyle, American promoter, intended to start an endurance dance here. Casani branded marathon dancing as "disgusting and degrading and a spectacle which would not appeal to Britain."

PLAN WORLD 'PHONE SERVICE

Lines To South America Is Next Step

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—World-wide telephone service—an idea incorporated in the charter of the American Telephone and Telegraph company in the early eighties—is fast becoming a realty through American enterprise.

Radio-telephone communication is already in operation between the United States and nine European countries and plans are nearing completion for extension of the service to South America early next next spring, the United Press learned today.

This service will be opened first at Buenos Aires, Argentina, and will connect by direct telephone points in the United States, England, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland and France. The service will be extended to other South American countries as fast as facilities are installed.

The first international radio-telephone service was opened January 7, 1927, between New York and London and has since been extended to the other European nations. The opening of service to South America, it is understood, is but a forerunner to the plan to connect the civilized world by telephone.

Phones Increase

On January 1, 1927, there were a total of 29,876,430 telephones in operation throughout the world, according to an American Telephone and Telegraph company survey. Of this number the United States had 17,746,168 and on June 1, 1928, the figure had increased by more than a million. Of Europe's 8,080,643 telephones by the 1927 census, more than six and a half million are interconnected with the United States by radio-telephone.

Argentina has 204,463 of the 427,-746 telephones in South America, most of which are located in Buenos Aires.

Direct telephone service between the United States and Mexico was inaugurated recently, and it is estimated by Edwin F. Hill of the American Telephone and Telegraph company's information bureau, that 75 per cent of the world's telephones can be interconnected with Canada, Mexico and Cuba.

For the South American service, nine short wave radio channels have been granted the company by the federal radio commission for transmission of telephone conversations after they leave the wires and are broadcast over great distances by radio.

South America Heavy Buyer of Airplanes

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—Nearly one-third of aeronautical products exported from the United States go to South America, the commerce department announces. In three years South America has purchased $1,204,000 worth of the $8,715,000 aviation products shipped abroad.

New Altimeter For Airplanes Invented

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—A new style altimeter for airplanes which registers the distance between planes and ground objects rather than the distance above sea level has been developed by army air corps engineers.

RAIL MERGER HEARING OPENS

Orient Road Purchase Meets Opposition

WASHINGTON, July 23. (AP)—Consideration of the proposed purchase of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe system, was begun today at a joint hearing conducted by the Interstate Commerce commission. Chairman Clarence Gilmore of the Texas commission sat with Examiner N. C. Davis, representing the federal agency as the evidence concerning the proposed transaction was taken.

The records relating to the Orient sale, incorporated in an option contract taken by the Santa Fe were but in preliminary to the calling of witnesses. The Santa Fe was shown to have agreed to pay $41.50 per share for the outstanding stock of the Orient line, which amounts to about 35,000 shares in return for which it would obtain 735 miles of railroad operating between Wichita, Kan., and Alpine, Texas. This was declared to represent a fair value for the property.

Sale Opposed

At the same time the New Orleans joint traffic bureau intervened with a petition asking that the commission forbid the transaction on the ground that the sale of the Orient to the Santa Fe would result in a combination of lines of roads which are now competing. The interests of shippers and the best service of the public demand that the Orient line retain its present independent status, the New Orleans petition said. Two other interventions presented in behalf of the Missouri Pacific and the Fort Worth and Denver lines did not ask that the sale be stopped but urged that the commission require the Orient to maintain the present joint routes for handling traffic. The intervening railroads also asked that the commission revise existing joint rate schedules in which the Orient participates with them, on the ground that during recent years the Orient has obtained preferential division of joint rates because of its difficult earning status.

All the interventions were taken into consideration and the case allowed to proceed.

Scotland Yard Doesn't Measure Up To Chicago's Cops, Says Official

CHICAGO, July 23. (AP)—Commissioner of Police Hughes believes Scotland Yard's famous detective forces would be "as helpless as rank amateurs if they were moved into Chicago to suppress crime."

"I could name 20 of our men who could accomplish more in a given time than 100 of the best men of the yard," he said last night after perusing a history of the Scotland Yard force and its accomplishments.

Commissioner Hughes was appointed by Mayor Thompson after a successful mayoralty campaign which claimed international attention because of Thompson's attacks on "King George of England." During the campaign, the mayor urged the voters to elect him so he could "bust King George on the snout" and oust "King George from the Chicago public school system."

Different Obstacles

Discussing the comparative merits of the Chicago and Scotland Yard sleuths, the police commissioner said: "We have an entirely different situation to contend with, handicaps that we cannot overcome, but have to meet every day. To begin with there are more than 57 racial groups in Chicago, each with its own customs and attitude toward the general scheme of things. Over in England the population is overwhelmingly English.

"Anyone convicted of murder in England is hanged within three weeks. Here the murderer is first convicted, then he gets a delay to have his case appealed, he has his execution deferred pending a rehearing, next it is postponed to examine him as to his insanity, later he might win a new trial on some technicality and finally he either is acquitted or his sentence is changed to a few years in the penitentiary.

"That difference has a tremendous bearing on crime and criminals. There are scores of other contrasts I could cite. It is really a wonder the police accomplish as much as they do with so many overwhelming obstacles in their way."

MAYFIELD TO REMAIN DEMO

Thought Repetition of His Stand Unnecessary

Special to The Record News.

BRYAN, Texas, July 23.—Senator Earle B. Mayfield today made the following statement which he declared was his answer to the Houston Post-Dispatch poll of all candidates on support of the national ticket:

For over 20 years I have held office in Texas through the grace of the Democrats of Texas, and as a candidate for re-election to the senate I shall certainly give my support to the nominees of the Democratic party from president to constable.

"I have not thought it necessary to repeat this declaration in every speech because I am not running for re-election on the coat tail of any man, but upon my record in the senate.

"I am a life-long prohibitionist and as long as I am a member of the United States senate I shall never vote to change our prohibition laws unless it be to strengthen them and to make their enforcement more sure and certain."

Every Three Minutes Somebody's Home Burns!

Don't risk yours—
Build with Lone Star Concrete

AN average of 175,000 homes catch fire every year in the United States! This means a home every three minutes. From seventy-five to ninety per cent of this loss could be prevented by building with concrete.

If you are planning to build, don't subject your home to the ever-present hazard of fire. Safeguard yourself and your family by building at least the first floor of concrete. Remember, seventy out of every hundred house fires start in the basement. Concrete lasts longer than ordinary materials, is sanitary and beautiful; it saves upkeep expense.

And, remember, the better the cement the better the concrete. Before you buy cement, simply ask your Building Material Dealer these four questions—the same questions architects, engineers and contractors ask when they buy cement. We give you the Lone Star answers.

1. Does the Cement exceed U. S. Government standards?
   Every shipment of Lone Star Cement is guaranteed in writing to exceed U. S. Government standards. The Lone Star dealer, in turn, guarantees every bag to you.
2. How is the cement made?
   Lone Star Cement is made by the famous International Wet-Blending Process, a process which has made cement-making an exact science and has established a new high standard of cement quality.
3. Is the cement uniform, bag for bag?
   The chemical content of Lone Star Cement varies less than 2/10 of 1% in millions of bags—a new high standard of uniformity.
4. Are you certain to get delivery when wanted?
   The 13 mills of the International System, with a capacity of 20 million barrels a year, assure "on-time" delivery, no matter how great the emergency.

It will pay you to buy cement on the basis of this comparison. Concrete will save you money. Lone Star concrete will save you more.

The facilities of our Research Department, directed by Prof. Duff A. Abrams, are available to all users of cement. Write us your problems.

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By TRADER HORN

TRADER HORN

Not many months ago an ancient peddler of tinwear knocked at the door of a prospective purchaser in South Africa. The lady was hot and the picturesque old man was obviously fatigued, so the lady who answered his knock invited him to sit for a while on her porch and rest.

They talked of the weather and the newly discovered diamond mines at Kimberley and finally—themselves. The old man began relating his experiences as a trader among the natives. There were breath-taking tales spiced with humor and softened here and there with a tear. The lady's interest and enthusiasm waxed until at last she convinced the peddler that, with her help, he should write a book.

The book was written, and today the old man, Aloysius Smith, is famous the world over as "Trader Horn," and his book—by the same name—is one of the year's best sellers.

"In my younger—and leaner—days," Trader Horn told me, "when I was tramping South Africa to earn what was rather a sketchy existence by painting anything from a portrait to a house—at whatever price the customer would pay—I woke up one morning, took inventory and found my total wealth to amount to half shilling (about 10 cents.)

"I pondered for some time as to whether I should spend the money for a cup of coffee to satisfy the inner man, or whether I should spend it toward improving my personal appearance by getting a shave.

"The question was a serious one, and I couldn't make up my mind. Presently I noticed an officer standing across the street, so I went over and told him my predicament.

"After due deliberation the officer concluded that perhaps the best method of settling my quandary would be for me to flip the coin—heads I get the shave and tails the cup of coffee.

"This advice seemed sound, safe and sensible, so I tossed the coin into the air. But, sad to relate, the an iron grating and disappeared down the drain. Therefore, I could get neither coffee nor shave.

"All good stories," the Trader went on, "should have a happy ending, and the end of this one is that the officer, out of sheer kindness gave me a shilling (about 25c) —which enabled me to get both a cup of coffee and a shave."

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Poison Oak and Ivy

In hiking through the mountains you may observe a pretty little shrub, which sometimes assumes very beautiful autumnal colors, leaning vine-like upon stone walls or trees. Many people are ignorant of the identity of this plant, which is known by various names, such as "poison oak," "summac," and "poison ivy." The leaves are usually a bright green and appear in groups of three. You may distinguish it from all other plants because the stem of the middle leaf is always longer than the stems of the outer two leaves.

These plants secrete a clear, transparent poisonous oil which is insoluble in water, and their leaves and bark are covered with it. If one of these plants is disturbed, this oil is discharged into the air, and a breeze may become impregnated with its poison. The sensitive person is sometimes poisoned even by being in the vicinity of a clump of these plants.

This poison causes a painful inflammation of the skin and in severe cases may even be carried internally to all parts of the body, with sometimes very dangerous consequences, and has been known to result in death.

It is apparent that some people are more subject than others to these poisons, just as some are more easily irritated by the pollen of flowers or dust from hay, and consequently develop attacks of hay fever. Those who have sensitive mucous membranes or a skin which cannot resist the oak or ivy poisoning, are, in every case, subject to a definite acidosis. If this is corrected, there will be less susceptibility to either hay fever or vine poisoning.

Many people have such a good blood alkalinity that they can chew and swallow the leaves of poison oak without suffering intestinal irritation as a result. Such a normal alkalinity should be kept by all people at all times. If this were done there would be little danger of catching an outside infection whether of a toxic or bacterial nature.

If, however, you do contract vine poisoning, the following treatment will be found to be effective. On or before the first appearance of the rash, go immediately to the bathroom and prepare a weak solution of lye water, using one teaspoonful of dry lye to a quart of water. Do not apply this solution to the skin, but have it ready by the side of the bathtub. Next, take a warm shower bath, or dip into a tub of water so that the body becomes wet all over, then reach over and dip a nail brush into the lye solution. Vigorously brush the affected parts and for several inches around where the rash shows for two or three seconds. This must be washed off immediately after, or the lye will eat into the skin. Use the warm shower or immerse the body completely in the tub of water.

This quick application of lye will counteract the poison and stop the trouble immediately. If the poison has penetrated deeply into the tissues, this treatment may not remove all of the toxin. After this, paint the affected parts twice daily with a mild solution of permanganate of potash. Your druggist can prepare a solution for you. This is another alkali, and will help you to neutralize any oil that comes to the surface. It may be necessary to paint the affected part for several days.

If you are susceptible to this trouble, you should keep this article in a scrap book for future reference. Those who wish to alkalinize their blood to overcome this tendency should send a large, self-addressed, stamped, envelope and ask for my article called "A Cleansing Diet."

Questions and Answers

Question—J. F. asks: "Is erysipelas a blood or a skin disease? What is the cause and cure of this disease?"

Answer—I consider the true cause of erysipelas to be an acidosis produced through the use of wrong food. It is true there is a particular bacterium associated with this disease, but this micro-organism cannot live in a body free from acidosis. Please write for further personal advice, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope.

Question—W. R. Y. asks: "Are flavoring extracts wholesome?"

Answer—True fruit extracts are quite wholesome and may be used freely but they are rather expensive and are not generally used commercially being replaced by chemical compounds having similar tastes but much more concentrated in flavor and more economical for use. Some of these extracts may be slightly poisonous but the United States government has conducted extensive experiments and prohibits the use of the most injurious ones. Soda fountains and many manufactured products using artificial colorings and flavorings are required to indicate this by some type of sign.

Question—Mrs. W. L. writes: "Please advise me if there is any harm in using non-perspirants for checking perspiration under the arms."

Answer—Your system is bound to be harmed by anything which will check elimination of poisons from the body. Stopping the elimination through the pores will hurt you in much the same way as if the flow of urine were partially stopped, or in the same way as if you did something to make your bowels more sluggish. It is all right for you to use some deodorant or just plain talcum powder which will keep the sweat from soiling your clothing.

CHIC DRESSERS LOSE STYLIST

Famous Dressmaker Quits Job in Disgust

PARIS, July 23. (UP)—Paul Poiret, the world's best known dressmaker, is about to retire in disgust and the chic dressers of Paris do not know whether to laugh or weep.

For the great Poiret has convinced himself that women are now spending more time and thought on their heads than on their bodies, and the great Poiret is not one to compete with a lot of barbers.

He has announced his intention of abandoning his dwindling clientele and spending the remainder of his days in quiet contemplation of the foolishness of females in an old fashioned provincial chateau.

"My work is over," Poiret is quoted by a recent interviewer. "I am no longer necessary. Paris has become a holiday resort, filled with foreigners of every nationality, and the woman of today does not pay the same attention to clothes that she used to."

Goes to Trim Trees

Pressed for reasons, the great Poiret is said to have snorted into his graying but carefully tended whiskers. It appeared that the modern gal, young, middling, and old, is now much more worried about the shaving of the back of her neck than the hang of her gown. A proper "permanent" has come to mean more than a perfect Poiret.

"No longer have we the lovely creations of the past," said the old master of drapes and flounces and the sworn enemy of the exposed knee cap. "Women are thinking more of comfort than of elegance. Sports suits and sweaters epitomize the ambition of the modern woman."

M. Poiret's abdication as dictator of fashion takes effect immediately. His art treasures have been shipped to his new abode, the address of which has not been learned even by his closest friends. Henceforth, the great Poiret will trim shrubbery, not silks, and his inspirations will adorn mother nature, not her frivolous and thick-skulled daughters who have lost their submissiveness to the gracious whimsies of art.

Egyptian Ouster Traced To England

BERLIN, July 23. (US)—That Great Britain is at the back of King Fuad's coup d'etat overthrowing the Egyptian constitution and ousting the parliament, sealing the doors of the house of parliament, and that the Egyptian masses are aroused and the situation is grave, are the statements made by Mustapha Nahas Pasha, leader of the Egyptian nationalists and until the other day premier of Egypt.

The nationalists had a three-fourths majority in the parliament which the king and the new premier, Mahmoud Pasha, have closed for three years.

In answer to a request for a statement Nahas Pasha telegraphed today from Cairo as follows:

"The overthrow of the constitution and the ousting of parliament was a bold step that amounts to a coup d'etat which no Egyptian would dare do without British support or connivance. It is far from an Egyptian autocratic dictatorial regime, but is in fact veiled British domination. For the authors of the overthrow do not rely on any Egyptian support."

Berlin, N. H.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was in a family way because I was run-down and falling away every day. My food wouldn't digest and I could not do my work. I had to have a hired girl all the time. I took several medicines before I tried yours but none would help me. A friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and told me to try it as it would help me a lot. Your medicines have done me a lot of good and I cannot praise them enough. Rumors of Kaiser's Further Attempts To Regain Throne Stir Criticism

Tanned Skin Changes Styles

PARIS, July 23. (US)—"Sunburn fashions" are responsible for radical changes in the color combinations for the smart woman's summer wardrobe.

Delicate pastel shades, especially for formal evening wear, found their most effective background in the much sought-for coat of tan.

Several discerning dressmakers now foster summer togs in three shades of sunburnt beauty—blonde, brunet and intermediate. Continental beaches from Deauville to Juan Lespins are thronged with fashionable women whose sole ambition seems to be the acquisition of a complexion like Pocahontas.

Sun Bathers Idea

Devotees of sun-bathing are inspirers of the new note in dress-making, which seems to start from the principle of the less clothes the more health. Mark Nowitzky, whose beach furniture is exceedingly popular at Lido, Monte Carlo, Biarritz and Newport, created the new backless bathing suit for the Irish-Argentine beauty, Mrs. Forrester Agar. Now Nowitzky's bathing costumes are cut almost to the waist in the back and are held up in front by twisted shoulder straps forming a collar.

Jane Regny was successful in showing several practical swimming suits of thick Jersey wool closing over one shoulder only and leaving one arm and shoulder completely free.

Rouge Banned

Rouge for the cheeks, whether for afternoon or evening, is almost completely out of fashion. Smart women content themselves with the rich bronze tint of sunburn and use a brilliant cerise tone of rouge for the lips.

The contrast is extremely effective.

AMSTERDAM, July 23. (AP)—The socialist newspaper Het Volk declares that the former German kaiser's attempts to further his design of remounting the imperial throne have been made the subject of a formal protest to the Dutch government.

The newspaper publishes a translation of a letter that it alleges was sent from Doorn to the "Kaiser Wilhelm association" in German in which the former emperor thanks the association for its homage on the occasion of the consecration of its banner and speaks of the time when it may "become a question of freeing the German fatherland and re-establishing it under its kaiser and hereditary prince."

The Het Volk declares that Freiderich Welter, "plenipotentiary representative of the German complaint bureau at Berlin," had addressed a formal protest to The Netherlands government against William's "abuse of Dutch hospitality in thus continuing to threaten the stability of international relations by publicly voicing designs for the restoration of the German monarchy." He has further called upon the Netherlands government to forbid such demonstrations in the future.

HEAT VACATES STATE OFFICES

Federal Government Runs On "Cafeteria" Style

WASHINGTON, July 23. (UP)—The United States government is operating more or less on a cafeteria style—running itself—during the blistering heat of summer.

Only two cabinet officers are engaged in overseeing their departments and by the end of the month there may be only one and perhaps none on the job.

Secretary of State Kellogg appears to be sticking closest to his desk concerned with his anti-war proposal received from most of the world powers. Kellogg may leave next month to participate in the signing of the treaty, which is scheduled for Paris in August.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, whose health has been poor, is spending short hours in his office and will leave this week for Alaska.

Postmaster General New has been on a short vacation and is planning to remain in Washington during the summer. He said, however, if the heat continues he may leave for "some place cooler." New has been in ill health and has been advised by his physician to avoid overwork.

Hubert Work, as secretary of the interior, left the direction of his department to others since becoming Republican national chairman a few weeks ago. His resignation as a cabinet officer was accepted by President Coolidge Friday. His successor R. O. West of Illinois is due this week.

Other members of Mr. Coolidge's cabinet are absent from the city. Mr. Coolidge is fishing in the Brule river.

PARIS, July 23. (AP)—A group of French lawyers having been punished today for their part in making divorces easy for Americans, their colleagues have set out to see what can be done to discipline American lawyers established in Paris "whose clients and whose money" made the divorce wheels go round.

A protest against the "morally reprehensible conduct" of certain American lawyers was sent to the American bar association late today by the executive committee of the national association of advocates practicing in the courts of Paris.

Anthropologists Seek Traces of "Copper Age" on Lake Superior

CHICAGO, July 23. (UP)—Three ships, bearing a party of sportsmen and scientists, sailed northward toward Lake Superior today on a journey which may solve a riddle of anthropology.

On Isle Royale, in the northern part of the lake, near the Canadian border, the party expects to find proof that a prehistoric race of men developed a civilization in that part of North America ages before the coming of the Indians.

E. F. McDonald Jr., millionaire radio manufacturer, is commander of the expedition. George A. West, president and founder of the Wisconsin Archeological society, heads the staff of scientists, among whom are Prof. Baker Brownell of Northwestern university; Dr. Alvin W. La Forge, Chicago archeologist, and Director George R. Fox of the Edward K. Warren foundation, noted anthropologist.

Traces of an early "copper age" will be sought by the men. Two months will be spent exploring the western end of the island for relics of the prehistoric race, believed to have been the first to exact copper from the mines of the region for making weapons and domestic articles.

A search for graves will be made as soon as the explorers land, members of the party said. Should that fail to reveal traces of the early inhabitants, excavations will be made on the island.

Curious Bar Unearthed By Denver Police

DENVER, Colo., July 23. (UP)—A unique system of dispensing liquor was disrupted when police arrested six men and a woman here. The officers reported that a 30-foot hose led from a five-gallon keg of whisky to a number of bottles in a box in a vacant lot. When a customer appeared a siphon was used to fill the bottles, they said.

GENE PREDICTS KAYO VICTORY

Champion Boastful and Arrogant as Mill Nears

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 23. (UP)—Becoming more bold and defiant as the hour nears for the defense of his heavyweight match at Yankee stadium, Thursday night, Gene Tunney said today that one solid punch might be enough to finish Tom Heeney.

"If I can land a solid punch against the contender—punches like I have been showing in training—a knockout is likely," the champion boasted.

The detached air of calm which Tunney displayed before his two bouts against Jack Dempsey is conspicuous by its absence. Almost arrogant in his attitude toward the approaching battle, Tunney is directing his last few movements with lordly air of a Napoleon of the ring.

The champion issued orders to his manager, trainer and chief second that he would not workout today, but would wait until Tuesday to go through his final ring work. The public will be barred from the final workout, but newspaper men will be permitted to attend. He will rest Wednesday and fly to New York Thursday morning.

He's "the King"

Tunney has become so impressed with his own importance that no one, not even his manager, Billy Gibson, or his chief second, Jimmy Bronson, dare disagree with him at this late stage of training.

Success or failure Thursday night for Tunney will be a personal triumph for the champion or a crushing defeat brought on by his haughty contempt for the advice of others.

For the first time in his career Tunney has conditioned himself to his own satisfaction and he does not hesitate to say that he made a successful job of it.

"I feel in better condition for the coming contest than for either of my fights with Jack Dempsey," Tunney said.

"With the bout being held in New York I had an opportunity to train here in the mountains and condition myself to my own complete satisfaction. My hands are stronger than they have been for years and this in view of the fact that I am punching harder than I have for years. This is the first time since I began professional boxing, that my hands have been strong enough to stand the power of my punches."

Gibson Expects K. O.

Tunney predicts he will win, but says he is not overconfident. Then in the next breath he virtually says he expects to finish Heeney the first time he lands his right on the challenger's jaw.

It is too late for any of Tunney's associates to cross him so they are stringing along with him, lending all possible moral support. Billy Gibson admits he will be disappointed if Tunney does not stop Heeney.

"Gene is in the best condition of his entire career," Gibson said. "He is sharp in boxing judgment and he is punching with a viciousness that means business. He does not underrate the contender as many champions have done, but I will be disappointed if he does not stop him."

Risko Likes Tunney

Steve Hannagan, the blond smiling ambassador of good will, who is the go-between man for Tunney, predicts Tunney will leave the ring at Yankee stadium the most popular champion in history.

"I expect Tunney to make sand of the Hard Rock From Down Under'," Hannagan said. "The new Tunney has not an equal in the history of Fistiana and he will prove it Thursday night."

All of the cheers for Tunney today were not from the inside. Johnny Risko, who fought Tunney in the latter's last bout before the Philadelphia battle and who witnessed the champion in action yesterday, had some nice thoughts to say.

"Tunney is hitting hard enough to knock out Heeney," Risko said. "I've fought them both and I believe Tunney can stop him."

Tunney is down to 189 pounds, but expects to enter the ring at about 191.

TOM READY FOR BELL AFTER FINAL WORKOUT

FAIRHAVEN, N. J., July 23. (UP)—Tom Heeney recovered from stage fright today just in time to wind up his training in a blaze of glory.

Heeney, who meets Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship of the world at Yankee stadium Thursday night, was a changed fighter when he went into the ring against Jimmy Braddock this afternoon.

On Sunday Heeney looked pitiful. The presence of Jack Dempsey, Tex Rickard and a large party of fight fans so disconcerted the challenger that he lost both of his sparring bouts on points. Today a large crowd gathered to watch Heeney, but there were no fistic notables present and the challenger went to work with a will.

He slashed out at Braddock with vicious rights and lefts, boring in and keeping the clever New Jersey light heavyweight on the defensive throughout the two rounds they worked. At the end of his session in the ring, Braddock testified that Heeney was hitting like a trip hammer.

Not content to demonstrate his fighting ability, Heeney then went into the ring with Eddie Crozier, New York welterweight, for a speedy workout. Heeney's footwork was the best he has shown to date.

Charley Harvey, Heeney's manager, was enthusiastic.

"That's the way Heeney is going to fight when he gets into the ring against Tunney," Harvey said.

Leo P. Flynn, former manager of Dempsey, was another one who was impressed by Heeney's changed tactics.

The challenger is still neglecting his defense. Apparently he believes his granite jaw can withstand the hardest blow Tunney can deliver, for he is training himself to wage a battle of aggression. Heeney is determined to keep moving forward and absorb the punches as they come at him.

Heeney is probably in the best shape he ever has been. His stomach, which will be one of Tunney's chief targets, is as hard as iron.

Heeney weighs 200 pounds and expects to go into the ring at 201. The extra weight will be picked up during his next three days of comparative leisure. From now on the challenger will take only light exercises and some road work.

Corbett Says Tunney Should Win But Accords Heeney Good Chance

Gene Has Superior Ring Craft and Cleverness and Hits Harder But Tom's Durability May Put Him Over

By JAMES J. CORBETT
Former World Heavyweight Champion
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, July 23.—The logical choice in the Gene Tunney-Tom Heeney battle is Tunney.

The champion has the something that is called "class" in the prize rings; he has a greater science than Heeney, perhaps punches harder, is more of a ring general and his past performances are better than those of the New Zealand challenger.

However, in picking Tunney one does so with plenty of "ands," "buts" and "ifs," for Heeney is not without a chance—a good chance. If the whole thing simmered down eventually to where durability is to be the deciding factor it strikes me that Heeney would be the nominee.

If Heeney can weather the blizzard of blows that Tunney will fire at him for the first eight or nine rounds; can take them all without being seriously damaged and can go along after that at the same steady pace, then he might pull through to victory by a rally in the closing rounds that would find Tunney tiring.

As I see it, Heeney's only chance is to step out with the opening bell and start rushing Tunney and keep on rushing and crowding him without cessation. The short arms of Heeney, being a great handicap to him, make it necessary for him to get close to Tunney to do any damage. He hardly can hope to accomplish anything at long range fighting. So he must tear in—constantly—constantly—keeping close to Tunney and pumping away with both hands.

If he does that, then he is reasonably certain to get an even break in the punching that's done in close fighting. However, when he is going into Tunney—when he is making his rush—Heeney is almost certain to get a pounding. For Tunney, a master with a left hand, and possessor of a good right cross, certainly will reach Heeney each time the New Zealander starts after him.

Tunney's jabs hurt—and rip; his right hand, even if it does not possess the deadly power of Dempsey's and the other hard hitters, certainly can jolt and jar. So for the first eight rounds or so, before Tunney possibly can tire, the champion surely should be rolling up plenty of points by smashing Heeney as the challenger goes in at him.

If Heeney can take all the hammering that he must take for eight rounds, while Tunney is still fresh and strong, and if Heeney then has in reserve all the stamina that I think he has, it is likely that he will go on from that point and make things awfully uncomfortable for Tunney. For I do think that if the early pace is fast it will find Tunney a bit weary after the eighth while Heeney will still have the same eagerness to carry-on and the physical powers to do it.

Can Heeney "Take It?"

But can Heeney take eight rounds of hammering on his face, his chin and his body and still be strong? That is the big question? His admirers think he can do it easily; that Tunney's best punches will just rattle off him and not weaken him. If they are right then it ought to be a terrific battle the rest of the way, with Heeney cutting down by a terrific rally the lead that Tunney undoubtedly will gain in the early rounds.

Of course, if Tunney should exhibit as much durability as Heeney; if he should surprise by showing that he is as hard as the "Rock from Down Under" and be fighting as fast and as furiously at the finish as at the start, then I cannot see anything else but a victory for Tunney by a wide margin.

Heeney's trick of letting the other fellow hit him on top of the head occasionally might spell sudden disaster for Tunney. I do not think the champion's hands are the strongest in the game today. He has had plenty of trouble with them in the past. Bones are brittle things. In such a case, Tunney always runs the risk of smashing some of his knuckles if he shoots out some powerful smash for Heeney's jaw or nose and the blow finds lodgement on Tom's heavy skull.

I note where Heeney is quoted as saying that he will start off trying to make a fight of it by rushing Tunney and forcing action "but if Tunney won't do a little rushing of his own I won't go tearing into him all the time; I'll wait for him to come to me." If Heeney does that—if he waits for Tunney to come to him, or elects to stand out and swap punches with Tunney—it seems to me that Tom will be signing his own death warrant. For Heeney cannot slug it with Tunney in mid-ring and he cannot wait for any Tunney rushes for the simple reason that Tunney's greater reach and Tunney's greater skill in open warfare would beat Tom.

Heeney's Big Chance

Tom must tear into Tunney all the time; he must get in close where he can hit with damage; he must crowd Gene and he must try to wear him down by a savage attack that either will force Gene to retreat and grow tired in retreat, or force him to mix it and grow tired in the mixing.

Only by such tactics, as I view it, can Heeney win.

Heeney's big chance lies in wearing Tunney down; in punching and rushing and mauling the stamina out of Tunney.

But Tunney's chances are many. He can beat Heeney by battering him into weakness with his ripping left hand or his snappy right; he can make Tom weary by coaxing plenty of wild swings or by making Tom rush him wildly and then get out of the way. He can outsmart and outstep Tom.

So because Heeney's chance lies largely in the fact that he has greater durability, whereas Tunney has half a dozen assets in his favor, I think, that Tunney will win. But if he does, I'm reasonably certain that he ever will remember that he was in a fight all the way and that he needed all that he has in the way of fistic greatness to beat the challenger from the region of the Southern Cross.

Kopecky Meets Parelli Tonight

Another rough an' tumble go, with every man for himself, will be staged Tuesday night in Spudder park by Alec Ross.

Joe Parelli and Joe Kopecky, who last week entertained the customers of Ross' boxing and wrestling cards, will mix it again on the mat due to the fact that the ticket-buyers were not satisfied last week because Kopecky got the decision on a referee's decision.

A scheduled boxing bout between two monkeys in the city zoo was "called off" Monday because of the illness of one of the monkeys.

Ross has carded for his program Tuesday night a 10-round bout between Battling Potts of Little Rock, and Jack Matlock. Both of the men are rated as top-notchers and a fast go is promised by Ross.

The opening event on the card will be a four round mit slinging contest between Johnny Owens and Walter Jernigan.

DAILY DOPE

By Larry Dailey

FRED FUSSELL has come into his own. The former Spudder southpaw was slow in achieving form, but his recent work on the mound has justified the good things said of him by the scribes in spring training. Frederick recently was beaten by the Brooklyn Robins in a pitchers' battle. But in yesterday's game against Brooklyn, Fussell employed all the skill and cunning that is his to best the same Robins in another hurlers' duel. Incidentally, it was McWeeny, who had beaten Fussell in their previous battle, who was on the hill to start yesterday's game, though Bill Doak finished as Uncle Wilbert Robinson's chucker.

HECTIC DOINGS marked play Sunday in the Southern association. Memphis trounced Nashville 26 to 12, which if it isn't a modern record for high scoring in a ball game, is close to it. The Chicks made 24 hits in their winning rampage to 13 blows by the Vols.

The second game between Chattanooga and Little Rock on the former's diamond was marked by a rare occurrence in professional baseball—the forfeiture of the game. Stalling by the Chattanooga players and the overflowing of the crowd on the playing field caused that action by the umpires.

WHILE THE DIXIE LOOP was thus furnishing unusual episodes in this interesting and odd pastime of ours, an umpire out in the Pacific Coast league was forced to seek shelter from an irate mob, in the security, such as it was, of a club's dugout. The game was played at Wrigley field, with the Hollywood team as the "home nine." Aroused by a decision of an arbiter the riled fans took after him. The umpire was protected by players until police rescued him. Such occurrences are becoming more rare in this day of Landis' regime, thanks to the stern rule the high mogul of balldom holds. But Landis' domain doesn't extend to the fans—and fans are the same as they were 10 and 20 years ago. When sufficiently aroused they are going to vent their displeasure in such outbursts as that out in California.

THE FEAR OF LANDIS doubtless serves to keep many athletes within the bounds of propriety where otherwise there would be more bodily attacks on arbiters. Suspensions of from one to three years face the athlete who attacks an arbiter. Indeed, the mere touching of an umpire, in anger of course, by a ball player would result in a long layoff.

GRAVES LEADS TWILIGHT LOOP

Robertson Foremost Hurler In Final Averages

Panhandle Refinery athletes showed the way in batting in the Twilight league. Averages including all games of the championship season show Connally leading with .567, in 30 times at bat. Graves of Panhandle, however, should be viewed as the real leader and champion batsman of the Twilight league.

In 75 times at bat Graves clouted at the high figure of .413, with Andree of Texas Electrics second with .386, in 70 times at bat.

Francis of Texas Electrics, Anderson of Panhandle and Glidewell of James Brothers creamery all batted .500 or more, but each in less than 40 times at bat.

There were 19 players to hit .300 or better.

Trout of Texas Electrics and Harris of Panhandle were the only pitchers with 1.000 averages. Each won two games and lost none. The actual pitching leader, however, is Robertson, the ace of the Texas Electrics, who won 10 and lost only one game, a most impressive performance. Other high hurling averages were shown by Lupher and Anderson, both of Panhandle, each of whom won six and lost two for marks of .750.

The complete batting and pitching averages for the Twilight league follows:

Red Sox Win, 8-3 Despite Ruth's Long Smash

BOSTON, July 23. (AP)—Babe Ruth hit his 40th home run today, one of the longest drives of his career, but the Yankees lost to Boston, 8 to 3. Ruth's drive cleared the center field fence and put him a month ahead of his record of last year. Score:

British Sports Authority Amazed Tom Given Chance to Beat Gene

Few English Boxing Notables to See Fight, Under Impression That Challenger Is in for Shellacing

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, July 23.—Tommy Webster, of the London Daily Mail, the greatest sports cartoonist in all England, has arrived in this country to view the proceedings between Mister Gene Tunney and Thomas Heeney, the Rock of Down Under.

Thevor Wignal, otherwise known as "Yank," a famous English sports writer, got in several days ago and is up at Speculator listening in deep astonishment to Mister Tunney's moralizings on the conservation of physical power—and one thing and another.

The Messrs. Webster and Wignall seem to be the only English sports authorities to take more than passing notice of the Tunney-Heeney affair, whereas when Jack Dempsey fought M. Georges Carpentier, the cauliflower of France, you could scarcely take a step in the vicinity of the training camps without stumbling over an "h" dropped by the visiting brethren.

It was almost the same when Jack Dempsey met Senor Luis Angel Firpo, but thereafter only a few of the English sports journalists came over to glare at our pugilistic extravaganzas. However, you would think they would be attracted in shiploads to a spectacle that features a representative of the dear old British Empire, even though he is a colonial.

Perhaps the lack of interest in England is explained by Tommy Webster's attitude when I came upon him this morning steaming in the heat. Tommy's ruddy countenance was aglow, with perspiration, and the latest thing in collars that you can always find around Tommy's neck was sadly wilted. The greatest sports cartoonist in all England seemed strangely disinterested in life.

Dan Has Texas Gusher

He was in the custody of Mr. Dapper Dan McKetrick, the big oil operator, who was explaining to Tommy that he was just awaiting news from Texas that a gusher had come in on his property.

"This is the same gusher you spoke to me about in England when you were over for the Milligan-Walker fight?" asked Tommy.

"No," said Mr. Dapper Dan McKetrick, "this is another gusher. That gusher I told you about over there didn't gush. But never let it be said that I haven't always got another gusher on tap."

"Oh," said Tommy Webster, mopping his forehead with the latest thing in handkerchiefs. (The Prince of Wales is said to copy Tommy Webster's haberdashery.) Then he turned to me, remarking: "Hot, eh, what?"

"Hot?" I repeated. "Well, now it may be a little warm, but do you know this is the first time in 40 years we've had a hot day in July?"

"Yeah," replied Tommy, wearily. "That's what you told me the last time I was over here. No chawnce for Tawm, eh, what? No chance for Heeney?"

He asked the question perfunctorily, as if he knew the answer in advance. His tone told me why Eugene Corri and Harry Preston and all the other hot sports of England are not coming for the fight.

Tommy Brightens Up

"On the contrary," I said, "Heeney's got a good chance. He may catch Tunney off his fighting edge and outplod him in 15 rounds."

"You don't say! said Tommy, brightening up. "My word! Can it be possible? Why, I saw Tawm fight Phil Scott and Tawm didn't strike me as a tophole man. No, indeed, Phil beat him, did Phil. I wouldn't call Phil a great fighter, yet he beat Tawm rawther easily."

"Well, Tom's improved," I suggested. "He's come on. A rough, tough chappy with plenty of moxie."

"I beg pardon!" interrupted Tommy, looking bewildered. "Moxie?"

"Heart-courage," I explained.

"Ah, yes," said Tommy. "Well, I'm surprised. I really am. I'd like to see old Tawm win, of course, but I didn't think you were giving him much of a chance over here. They don't in England. Not generally."

"If you gentlemen will excuse me I'll step into the telegraph office and see if my gusher has come in," remarked Mr. Dapper Dan McKetrick.

"You're sure it's not that same gusher you had when you were in England?" asked Tommy Webster.

"No, no, no!" replied Mr. McKetrick. "This is another gusher."

Now, oddly enough, it was this same Tommy Webster whose O. K. was stamped on Thomas Heeney when the Rock of Down Under first reached these parlous shores. It was on the strength of Tommy Webster's O. K. that Thomas Heeney got more attention from Tommy's journalistic friends over here than Thomas's appearance or record justified.

Thomas Heeney was brought here by John Mortimer, who is one of Tommy's pals back home. John bore letters of marque from Tommy to various American newspaper men, for Tommy has a wider acquaintance in this country among the members of the newspaper craft than any man in England. He has been here several times and is a good two-handed mixer.

"This chap Heeney that my friend Mortimer is taking to America may not be the greatest fighter in the world, but he is a satisfactory performer and can beat a lot of the heavyweights I saw in your country," was the tenor of Tommy Webster's letter to me, for example.

"I have seen him fight," the letter continued, "and I am sure that his style will please the American fans. It is more American than it is English. I am sure that Heeney will give a good account of himself."

But it is obvious that Tommy Webster never dreamt that Thomas Heeney would give such a satisfactory account of himself as to one day figure in a bout for the world's heavyweight title, and that he—T. Webster—would have to take a boat ride in the heat of the summer to see it.

Bill Definitely Out Of Davis Cup Play

NEW YORK, July 23. (US)—There is no possibility of William T. Tilden representing the United States in the challenge against France for the Davis cup.

"Big Bill" is out.

And it is a foregone conclusion that the trophy emblematic of the world's tennis supremacy will remain in France.

The playing of the matches this week is expected to be a mere formality, as with America's ace on the sidelines, there does not appear to be one chance in a hundred that Hunter, Lott, Hennessey and Coen can defeat Lacoste, Cochet, Borotra and Brugnon.

HERBERT COBB LIKELY HURLER

Swenson Recovering From Recent Illness

SAN ANTONIO, July 23.—Herbert Cobb probably will oppose the San Antonio Bears tomorrow in the first game of the Spudders' three-day siege here. The Pinetop, N. C., right-hander, who in recent weeks has been among the most consistent Wichita Falls chuckers, is ready to fire his best, which is very, very good, to keep the Spudders in the hunt for the top place.

Jim Galloway and his men hied themselves to this town today and enjoyed a day of rest, something rare in the Texas league. The off day was occasioned by the playing of today's game scheduled at Waco as part of a double header Sunday, as did the Bears and Cats and the Sports and Exporters.

Spuds Confident

Complete confidence that they will win the second half is held by the Spudders. They view the Houston Buffs, tied with them for the lead, as mighty formidable, of course. But there is a feeling that the first half win of the Buffs was gained through a lot of excellent luck, though there is no denying the class of the Houston club. Dallas, only two games behind the Spudders as a result of yesterday's loss to the Buffs, also is highly regarded by Galloway's Ten Gallons.

The athletes hold the Buffs and Steers as their greatest menace, though as one of the boys said tonight, "They're all tough."

Bears Formidable

Thea Bears are tough. Frank Gibson's club looks better than in the first half. Of greatest importance is that the San Antonio team seems to be hustling more than before several deals were made recently that changed the lineup. Anyhow, while they expect nothing worse than the copping of two games in the series here, the Spuds anticipate battles all the way.

Fillingim or Cox probably will oppose Cobb tomorrow.

Wally Swenson believes he has the jinx routed. Injury and idleness kept the peppery third sacker out of several games and even when he played detracted from his work. Wally is rounding into condition now, however, and is in good health again. This should result in a continuation of the form that made him one of the league's star hot corner guardians last year.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 23. (AP)—Reports of beneficial rains in West Texas were followed by declines in cotton at the opening today, but after selling off to 20.60, or 20 points net lower, October rallied to 20.84 and closed at 20.77, compared with 20.80 at the close Saturday. The general market closed very steady, net 1 point higher to 3 points lower.

The market opened steady at a decline of 7 to 14 points on the southwestern rain news and relatively easy Liverpool cables and the market sold off to 20.53 for July and 20.43 for December.

After the first wave of pressure, offerings were comparatively light, and the market showed the influence of a firmer technical position.

The rally carried July up to 20.62 and December to 20.65, or about 3 to 5 points net higher, but business tapered off and later fluctuations were nervous and irregular. While some trade buying was reported on the early decline, the bulk of demand was attributed to covering by recent sellers, some of whom were supposed to have sold last week in anticipation of the Texas rains. Closing prices were about 4 to 7 points off from the best.

Failure of the Texas rain news to bring in more general and aggressive selling, was regarded by some local traders as indicating that much progress had been made in discounting recent crop improvement and part of the late trading was attributed to evening up of accounts pending further developments or the end of July crop reports.

Port receipts today, 2,194. U. S. port stocks, 673,972. Exports today, 5,030, making 7,700,824 so far this season.

Futures closed steady, 1 point higher to 3 low; spot quiet; middling 20.15.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 23. (AP)—A decline of approximately $1 a bale on reports of rain in the western drought section met trade buying and covering in cotton today and prices recovered most of the loss only to weaken again and ease off to levels within 4 points of the early lows. In the final trading, however, a renewal of covering carried prices up 5 points and the market closed net 3 points up to 7 down.

October contracts eased off to 20.03, rallied to 20.25, then eased off to 20.07. The final rally carried the delivery to 20.19 and it closed at 20.16, or 7 points net down.

Liverpool cables were 3 to 7 points lower than due and first trades here showed losses of 14 to 17 points. The market was decidedly weak in initial trading under pressure of selling based on reports of rain. Before the offerings were absorbed, December contracts had sold off to 19.98, or 18 points net down.

This decline attracted trade buying and some by ring traders on the theory that a rally was due after the recent heavy decline. There was also some covering by satisfied shorts. The demand carried December back to 20.18, or 20 points up from the low and 2 points over Saturday's close. After mid-session, however, the market weakened again when the detailed weather report showed considerable rain in West Texas and comparatively dry weather in the eastern belt where too much moisture has been complained of recently. When these offerings were absorbed December had sold down to 20.02, or 18 points off from the top, but in the final trading a renewal of covering by shorts carried it back to 20.07 where it closed at a net loss of 5 points. March showed a gain of 3 points, closing at 20.07.

Warner Brothers Leads Scant Tremor Of Stocks On New York Exchange

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, July 23.—Specialties in which pools were at work monopolized trading in another quiet, firm stock market, today. Warner Brothers was pushed up 6¼, Carbide 4¾, Montgomery Ward 8¾, and American Smelting over 5. General Motors was the most active but in company with other motor shares was subjected to continued profit taking so only gained a point. Other standard industrials remained extremely dull and held to narrow price range. Rails were somewhat soft while the oils showed no change. There was better demand for coppers which closed the entire group higher with Kennecott the outstanding feature. Money held at 5½ percent throughout, but was in less abundant supply than in the closing of last week.

Durant is given most credit for the rather sensational strength in Warner Brothers but his operations are helped by activity of associates in the so-called "Big Ten." "A second radio," they call the Talking Movie stock now and the same old "pinochle" score price forecasts are spread widely. The fact is that there is very little Warner, Carbide, and Montgomery Ward available for the street so that when the Durant-Cutten clique desire it is not difficult to bring about further price advance. Thus far these group managers have had no success in attracting the public back into the market actively, mainly because most of the "public" are holding stocks at higher prices than they hope to get out of. From the conversation of the bulls it would appear they intend to keep their handful of pets the feature of the market for some time to come as they one and all admit that further loan correction is probable and therefore not much advance is likely in the market as a whole.

The appearance of strength given to the market by the pool work afforded opportunity to run in a few more shorts in Radio that caused advance of 2¾. The second quarter report on which the bears hoped to cover is expected almost any day now. Kennecott's further gain was entirely due to expectation of a higher dividend next month which was first exclusively forecast here many weeks ago. The operation in Warner and Carbide is entirely based on the belief of what earnings will show in years to come.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, July 23. (AP)—(USDA)—Curtailed supplies of cattle around the 11-market circuit resulted in strong prices on lightweight fed steers and yearlings while steady values were maintained on weighty grain feds. The broad feeder demand was a supporting factor in the trade on western grassers. Choice yearlings scored $16.75 at Chicago, a new high level for the season. Feeder buyers in Kansas City purchased numerous loads of fleshy western steers, paying up to $14.40 for six loads of 1,308-pound Texans. Total receipts of around 66,200 were 8,500 short of last Monday and 14,000 less than the same day last year.

Packers again displayed very bearish attitudes toward hogs despite the fact that receipts of around 78,000 showed a decrease of 27,000 from last Monday and were 17,400 under the same day a year ago. Shippers procured the bulk of the better grades at steady to 25c higher values, while the limited supply going to packers was at weak to 15c lower rates. The day's top of $11.40 was paid at St. Louis.

Fat lambs were tendered a general decline of 25c to 50c. Total supplies were estimated at 37,600 as compared with 59,030 a week ago, and 37,836 a year ago. Aged stock held fully steady. Choice western lambs in Chicago topped at $15.60, while the best price along the river was $15.10.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, July 23. "Debacle" is the word often used to describe what happened in the grain markets today. Wheat and rye collapsed like the proverbial house of cards. Corn and oats broke less badly but looked sicker at the finish, for that very reason.

At the close wheat was down 4⅞c to 5⅜c; corn was down ⅛c to 2¼c; oats were down ⅛c to 1⅛c; rye was down 3⅝c to 4c.

July corn, the center of so much discussion and consideration for weeks, sold off only ⅛c, but the strength there was no influence on the other futures. The July "deal" does not look like a good thing to the bulls who must take in corn on July contracts.

Today it was said that Arthur Cutten was beginning to sell December corn. I do not know whether there is any truth in this hearsay.

It was also said that he was selling December wheat. Sometime ago he was supposed to have sold out a long line of wheat at Winnipeg and to have taken the short side of the market here. This information may, or may not, be correct.

In any event wheat was sick and hopeless today. The prospects for an enormous crop in Canada—probably one of record proportions—are bright. This country will probably raise a good deal more wheat than any government figures or private "experts" have estimated.

Ordinarily after such a break as that in wheat today, one might reasonably look for an upturn tomorrow. Under the present circumstances, however, the long side looks dangerous. Any show of strength in the market is likely to meet with renewed selling.

Eliminating consideration of the July future, corn appeared at the close today as if it would seek a lower level tomorrow. Especially does the december future look weak. If liquidation in that really starts it will be hard to hold up.

In the cash market wheat was down 3c to 4c; corn was down ½c to 2c; oats were down 1c to 3c; rye was dull; barley was unchanged.

Test of Cure for Sleeping Sickness To Take Scientist to Congo Jungles

NEW YORK, July 23. (INS)—In an effort to prove what he hopes is a cure for sleeping sickness, Dr. Warren K. Stratman-Thomas, 28, research pharmacologist of the University of Wisconsin, will sail on Aug. 2 for the jungles of the interior of Belgian Congo.

Under the direction of Professor A. S. Loevenhart new arsenical compounds have been developed and prepared at the University of Wisconsin which, it is felt, will enable men to conquer the scourge of centuries, it was announced today. Sleeping sickness is said to take a toll of 100,000 human lives each year.

Dr. Stratman-Thomas will establish a large clinic in the jungle where he will treat thousands of natives with the six various compounds of the new drug. The expedition is being financed by the John Simon Guggenheim memorial foundation, of which Henry Allen Moe is secretary.

"We are interested in tropical diseases," Dr. Stratman-Thomas said today, "because there is great danger of their spread and it is important to control them at their source. Since the late war the tse-tse fly, which carries sleeping sickness, has been reported to have been found in Arabia and trypanosomal diseases of camels in Palestine."

Hefty Heflin Breaks Three Bed Slats

Fears Assassination When Aid Comes

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 23. (UP)—Senator Thomas J. Heflin of Alabama, making a speaking tour against Governor Smith, dislodged three slats in his bed and called the hotel office to have them replaced.

"Send a trustworthy man," the senator told the office.

An assistant treasurer of the hotel appeared.

"How do I know you are the man sent up by the clerk? My life has been threatened in letters from Catholics and I do not intend to take chances with you, sir. I'm going to lock this door a minute now and telephone the clerk and if he identifies you properly, I'll let you in," Heflin said.

He locked the door, called the office and received the assistant treasurer's description. Then he opened the door slightly, carefully inspected the treasurer and finally admitted him. The assistant treasurer could not repair the bed himself and called a carpenter and finally the bed was repaired.

Testing awaited connecting up with a 200-barrel storage tank. The well is 2790 feet from the south line and 200 feet from the east line of section 25, G. G. & H. Abuse of Private Car Rights By Road Officials Claimed in Report

WASHINGTON, July 23. (INS)—An effort to check the abuse by railroad officials of the private car privilege was sought today by Commissioner Frank McManamy in a report to the interstate commerce commission.

As a chief complaint McManamy pointed to the widespread use of official cars in carrying persons to amusement resorts.

He urged the commission to hold that movement of private cars by one railroad for another without cost or at a rate below the published rates should be held contrary to the provisions of the interstate act.

The commission was also asked to hold that it is unjustly discriminatory and unduly preferential and prejudicial to haul such private cars on other roads free, or at less than published rates, while charging certain minimum fares and revenues for the movement of privately owned or chartered cars.

The transportation of persons in private cars, including berth and meals, at the rate charged passengers provided only with ordinary coach accommodations is unjustly discriminatory and unduly preferential, the commission was further asked to hold.

Doc Breaks Sunday Law; Wins $500

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., July 23. (UP)—Dr. William S. Baxter has been an explorer in Tibet, where he contends dangers are real dangers.

Someone told him that Ocean Grove, N. J., would permit no motor car traffic on Sunday and that a man who would try it would get more thrills than anything Tibet had to offer. A $500 bet was made.

Dr. Baxter drove to Ocean Grove.

"I am a doctor, I must get to Wesley avenue, at once," he told the keeper of the city gate. Dr. Baxter didn't know whether there was a Wesley avenue or not. The keeper of the gate accompanied him.

Back and forth the taxi sped over the automobileless streets—while the residents looked on askance at the strange sight of a motor car on Sunday. Then just about the time the street was to be found, Baxter recalled something: "I have forgotten my instruments, I must go back."

The keeper of the gate agreed and the doctor motored away to collect his $500.

Drys Seek to Organize Ministers Against Smith

ATLANTA, Ga., July 23. (INS)—A ministerial alliance which would unite pastors of local Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches in a campaign against the candidacy of Gov. Al Smith for president, was sought here today by dry leaders.

STOREY VOWS PARTY LOYALTY

Request From Opponent Draws Answer

Cecil Storey, candidate for reelection to the legislature from Wichita and Wilbarger counties (district 112), defines the request for his position on national candidates purported to have been written him by an opponent in the race as "a strange request to come from one who is seeking at the hands of the Democratic party an office."

Mr. Storey in a letter to the Record News and Times declares that no one, so far as he knows, except the candidates in question, has questioned his position in this respect.

To do otherwise than support the nominees of the party, Mr. Storey writes, would be "disloyalty to those Democratic voters who supported me."

Mr. Storey's letter follows in full:

The Record News and Times:

A statement in your Sunday issue says that one of my opponents has written me requesting that the candidates state their position on the Democratic nominee for president; that is, whether or not such candidate will support the nominee of the Democratic party. I never received such letter.

It is a strange request to come from one who is seeking at the hands of the Democratic party an office. Loyalty to the party, sincerity and good faith would in my judgment require one who is a candidate for a public office upon the Democratic ticket to support the nominees of that party.

No one, as far as I know, except this candidate has ever questioned my position in this respect. His seeming doubt may lie in his own intention to bolt the party's ticket upon which he is asking for public honor. No one who knows my political record would challenge my intention of supporting Democratic nominees. I have always done so and whether I am honored with this nomination or not I will support the nominees of the party from constable to president. To do otherwise would be disloyal to those Democratic voters who supported me.

Yours very truly,

CECIL STOREY.

Moody Explains Papers' Enmity

attacks, but I have never, to this hour, replied to a single word which it said.

"News columns which should impartially reflect things as they transpire have been colored to injure me. It is unfortunate that a great newspaper with a great public duty to perform in carrying information to the people and upon which the people rely for information and for leadership in public matters, should become an instrumentality through which its publisher vents his anger aroused by personal disappointment, and that news items should be colored because of personal dislikes of the publisher.

"These antagonisms arising out of political patronage are some of the misfortunes which the governor must be prepared to suffer. He cannot please everybody about everything. He ought to have a mind of his own and he ought to follow it.

It is amusing to see the Fort Worth Star Telegram trying to convince its readers that Ferguson does not have his candidate in this campaign and that Ferguson is not an issue. This is not surprising, however since there are some associations at which the Star Telegram rebels. We have not forgotten certain things which happened a few years ago and which make the Star Telegram feel uneasy when it is associated in the public mind with the Ferguson Forum. But Ferguson is an issue in this campaign and the Star Telegram cannot extricate itself from associating with that issue.

"The Fort Worth Star Telegram can't support Mr. Ferguson's candidate and dodge the fact that it is pouring water on old Jim's wheel.

"Politics make strange bed fellows and it is amusing to watch the Fort Worth Star Telegram try to deny the identity of its bedfellow. It wants to cover Jim's head up with a pillow so the people cannot recognize him.

"Just a few days ago the Fort Worth Star Telegram published an editorial headed 'stick to the real issue.' This editorial said the question was whether the voters wanted to re-elect me or one of my opponents and further said, 'Ferguson has not anything to do with it.' The fellow that wrote this editorial must have taken a Rip Van Winkle nap during the last six or eight months. He overlooked some facts which could be gleaned from the news columns of his own paper. He forgot that Jim Ferguson went to center and helped his candidate open his caimpaign for governor and after this the Star Telegram adopted Jim's candidate. He forgot that the Fort Worth Star Telegram said that the man who is its candidate for governor announced his candidacy after a conference with Jim. He also overlooked the fact that the speeches of this candidate are written and printed in The Forum, and days before the candidate delivers them and that the candidate is the mere echo of The Forum's violent opposition to me. It is a case of the voice of Esau but the hand of Jacob, the modern application being, it is the mind of Jim and the voice of the mutual candidate of The Forum and the Star Telegram. Everything their candidate has said has been first printed in The Forum.

Mutt and Jeff

"The Star Telegram and the Ferguson Forum are the Mutt and Jeff of this campaign.

"News papers take pride in being the first to publish any item of news and the one which publishes the item first says that it has scooped its competitors. It is amusing to watch the Ferguson Forum scoop the Star Telegram, for the speeches of their candidate appear one week in The Fotum, the candidate makes them the next weeks and the Star Telegram publishes them the following day. It must be distasteful to the Star Telegram to have to print the speeches of its candidate, which were printed in The Forum the week before the candidate made them.

"The Star Telegram seems to have overlooked the fact that Jim made a speech for their candidate at Thorndale in Milam county; that he made a speech for their candidate in Austin county; that he was billed to speak for him in Bosque county, where the ranch is; and last, but not least, the Star Telegram has overlooked the fact that at Austin last Saturday night, T. H. McGregor introduced Jim Ferguson, and then Jim Ferguson introduced their candidate.

"The Star Telegram evidently has overlooked the editorials of its compatriot in the journalist field. I am certain that it would not put on blind bridles and refuse to see all of these things and that its statement that Ferguson hasn't anything to do with this campaign is just simply because they have overlooked the facts. The Star Telegram does not want their readers in West Texas to know about the line-up and that they are working in double harness with Jim Ferguson and supporting his candidate for governor.

"There is one thing, however, that the Star Telegram has overlooked that they should not have overlooked. Their candidate is in partnership with Albert Tankersley in the stock feeding business near Glen Rose in Somerville county, less than a hundred miles from Fort Worth. Albert Tankersley, as you know, was at one time city tax assessor and collector of the city of Fort Worth. Albert Tankersley forms the bond of union between the candidate and Jim through the abuse of the pardoning power during the Ferguson administration, and the Star Telegram wants Albert Tankersley's partner elected governor of Texas. That is a heavy demand to make on the people of this great city."

Will they ever get New York fixed or finished?

Easily the most marvelous island in the world, they never seem to keep it in repair, or else they haven't got it finished.

When they were blasting for the Eighth avenue subway a year ago, they had big boards and wires in the shape of the letter X pressed against the plate glass windows in store fronts to reduce the vibration of the glass so it wouldn't break.

A few hundred feet away the shows were in full swing and they didn't seem to know that anything else in the world was happening. There was so much ballyhoo around the theaters and Times square that the blasting dynamite of the tube wasn't heard by 99 out of 100 persons.

◇ ◇ ◇

Here in Wichita Falls we're lucky, for that ballyhoo isn't necessary. The good shows are still good, and the flops have flopped long and merry ago and don't see the light of day. The result is that practically all of the shows here are good shows.

◇ ◇ ◇

There are shows which some individuals don't care for, but it is usually a matter of personal taste. One man says he doesn't like a show, and his neighbor thinks it is wonderful.

◇ ◇ ◇

Tuesday is the last day of one mighty good show, "The Drag Net," at the Majestic. It has met the voiced approval of many people, the hoi polloi and the 400.

◇ ◇ ◇

◇ ◇ ◇

Harold Lloyd won't have to do much disguising in making his newest feature, "The Butterfly Chaser," in which he plays the part of the bespectacled botanist. This will be his first picture with sound.

◇ ◇ ◇

Floating universities attracted widespread attention when they first started out, and they are still a big novelty. William Collier, Jr., is to play the leading roll opposite Sally O'Neill in "The Floating College," a romance of the new type college life which is now being made.

◇ ◇ ◇

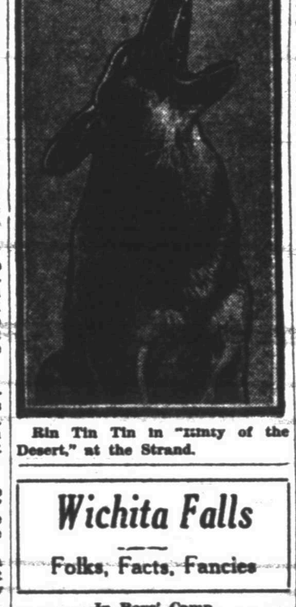

"Chicago After Midnight" is on the boards at the Mission. This picture has been booked in for a long time and should be viewed with interest by Mission fans.

"Rinty of the Desert" made a terrific hit in its opening at the Strand Monday. The dog actor, Rin Tin Tin has many friends.

RAIN ASSURES COTTON CROP

Precipitation General Over Valley

Practically enough rain to make the cotton crop fell Monday in slow showers over the greater part of the Wichita valley, it was reported by the dispatchers of the local railroad offices Monday night.

The Fort Worth and Denver reported that light showers similar to the rain yesterday in Wichita Falls fell along the line as far as Vernon from 3 o'clock until 6 yesterday afternoon.

Slow showers from Wichita Falls to Haskell and Goree were reported by the Wichita Valley railroad while reports of slow rain over the valley were given by the Katy though no extension of the area covered was reported.

Light Rain at Memphis

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, July 23.—In a slow drizzle, about one-half inch of rain fell here this morning. The precipitation seemed to be general over Hall county. Crops of all kinds were greatly aided. Total rainfall here within the last three days totals about two and one-half inches.

Two-Inch Downpour

CHILDRESS, Texas, July 23.—Rain which fell in Childress since Friday noon, amounted to more than two inches. Rain has fallen intermittently since Friday, the heaviest precipitation coming Friday night and Sunday afternoon. The downfall amounted to more than two inches in some sections of the county while other sections did not receive any rain.

The rain will be of greatest value to all growing crops and will insure a good yield this fall. Some crops were needing rain badly and the moisture that has fallen will save these crops from probable failure. Plenty of stock water is now on hand and indications are that the supply will be sufficient to last through the summer.

Indications were for continued rain during the night. The sky being heavily undercast and rain clouds apparently close to the earth's surface.

Floydada Reports Rain

FLOYDADA, July 23.—One and three-tenths inch rain has fallen here since Saturday night's reports from southeast and west that rain was heavier with as much as two inches in west Floyd county. Wheat harvest practically complete and rain will benefit all row crops and cotton.

Candidate Group in Final Rally Tonight at Park; Miller Cancels

Candidates of group one will speak at Bellevue park Tuesday night, beginning at 8 o'clock, as they bring to a close their campaign for places on the Democratic second primary ballot.

Barry Miller, candidate for lieutenant-governor, who previously had announced that he would speak in Wichita Falls on that date, cancelled his engagement here when it was learned that this date conflicted with a speaking date of county candidates. The cancellation of Mr. Miller's engegment here was announced by E. T. Duff, local attorney, after the conflict was discovered and Mr. Duff had talked to Mr. Miller over long distance telephone.

Candidates of group two will speak at Burkburnett Tuesday night, and will end their speaking campaign Wednesday night at Bellevue park.

With the exception of Robert K. Crain, candidate for county attorney, John P. Marrs, candidate for county judge and candidates for representative of the 111 district, group one of the Wichita county, precinct and district candidates for office delivered their campaign speeches at Thrift Monday night to an audience of about 150 voters. It was announced Monday afternoon that the speaking had been canceled because of rain.

The four men in the race for district attorney of the 30th judicial district have arranged to speak at Olney and Graham, both in Young county, Thursday and Friday night, respectively, according to announcement made Monday by Sam B. Spence, one of the candidates, Monday.

Grain Prices Slip to Very Bottom Of Board On Prospects of Good Crop

CHICAGO, July 23. (AP)—All grain prices dropped on the Chicago board of trade today, wheat leading the recession and winding up at the lowest prices of the season.

Improved crop prospects, indifferent export demand, crop reports from Canada, and a big Canadian carry over of old wheat contributed to the drop in bread grains.

Selling of corn futures was prompted by the break in the wheat market and by ideal weather for advancement of the crop. Corn prices declined rapidly with December making a new low, although there was fair buying on the break, but no active support was developed and receipts were large.

Oats also were affected, although the break was not as pronounced.

Wheat dropped from 4 5-8 cents to 5 7-8 cents per bushel, July closing at $1.13 3-8, September at $1.21 3-8, and December at $1.25 1-4. All the closings were near the day's lowest figures.

Corn wound up about even for July deliveries, but 1 1-8 cents to 2 3-8 cents lower for September and December. July corn closed at $1.06 1-8, September at $.94 3-4, and December at $.78.

Oats lost from 1-4 cent to 1 1-8 cents.

MOTOR GRIEF STOPS FLIGHT

French Aviators Held At Azores Landing

HORTA, Azores, July 23. (UP)—Lieut. Paulin Paris and his two companions of the seaplane La Fregate, who are attempting a round trip flight across the atlantic, were detained here today by a faulty motor and it was considered possible continuation of the flight would be postponed until new parts are delivered from France.

The forward motor of the twin-motored plane developed trouble when the French aviators were 200 kilometers from Horta on their flight from Brest. They flew the remaining distance with one motor and landed here at 1:20 a. m., eastern standard time.

The faulty motor was being dismantled this afternoon and the fliers will attempt to repair it so that they can continue their flight to New York—possibly by way of Bermuda—without waiting for equipment to be delivered from France.

The exact nature of the motor trouble has not yet been determined, however, and it was considered likely that it would prove so serious that repairs cannot be made without waiting for supplies.

The aviators—Lieutenant Paris, Mechanic Marot and Radio Operator Cadou—took off from Brest Sunday afternoon and arrived over Horta shortly before dawn. Not caring to land in the darkness they circled over the island until the skies lighted up and then came down in Horta harbor with comparative ease.

The flight from Brest to Horta was made at a high altitude, mostly over clouds, the aviators charting their course by the stars. They never for an instant lost their direction, however, and were flying over Horta almost an hour before the populace expected them.

The new market features one of the most complete and sanitary meat counters in the city, as well as a refrigerated storage vault for meats and vegetables and a second story storage plant for surplus canned goods, Mr. Huff said. The new store also boasts of one of the few Wichita Falls markets and grocery stores equipped with tiled display windows.
