Midland firemen turn a high-powered fire hose onto one of several blazes that destroyed the door-shop portion of Howard-McCarroll Lumber Co. in Midland early today. There were no injuries in the fire, which may have been the result of arson, according to officers.

Pre-dawn fire damages part of lumber company

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The door-shop complex of a Midland lumberyard turned into an inferno in the pre-dawn hours today, billowed smoke and spewed cinders in heavily damaging the Howard-McCarroll Lumber Co.

The Desert Inn Motel, adjacent to the lumberyard, was partially evacuated.

The fire, which may have been the result of arson, according to officers, has resulted in the arrests of three teen-agers, including a 17-year-old man, who was to be charged with arson today.

No one was injured in the fire. But Midland police evacuated about 20 people from the "back end" of the 112-unit Desert Inn, a single-story complex. The rear of the motel borders the lumberyard.

The teen-agers were arrested by police about an hour after the fire at the lumber company at 3105 Bankhead Highway was spotted by a patrolling policeman, Midland Police Sgt. Terry Garner. Garner said the teen-agers, two aged 15, and the 17-year-old, "apparently were watching" the fire when they were arrested by police. The two 15-year-old boys were confined to Culver Youth Home. The 17-year-old man, who was initially charged with public intoxication in the 1000 block of South Midkiff Road, later today was to be charged with arson.

The fire, which Garner reported at 2:14 a.m., destroyed the lumberyard's door shop, four trucks and four forklifts, said Mike McPherson, lumberyard manager. "It was a total loss," he said of the door shop and its four buildings. The main lumberyard was undamaged, he said, and the lumber company would remain open for business. The lumber company's office also was not damaged.

By mid-morning today, more than eight hours after the fire broke out, firemen were putting out "hot spots" — small beds of fire and smouldering embers.

Bobby Williams, assistant fire marshal, is investigating the fire.

FOR AWHILE during the peak of the fire, the fire department's primary concern was the adjoining motel and its occupants, said Midland Fire Department Deputy Chief Dean Williams.

"Usually in an inferno, sparks will fly," he said. "As far as we know, nobody has been hurt. That's been a real blessing."

Williams said that the lumberyard buildings were "totally involved" with fire when Garner spotted the fire.

He said firemen would be at the fire scene for a "day or two" to make sure all fires, large and small, were out.

"There's going to be some high-dollar losses," Williams said. "Of course, lumber is high anyway."

Approximately 25 on-duty and off-duty firemen fought the fire. The equipment included four pumping units, a rescue truck and the department's snorkel engine, which is capable of spewing 1,000 gallons of water per minute from its 85-foot snorkel.

"I don't think this fire is ever going to go out," fireman Ellery Stowell said about 5 a.m. today. "We'll see the sun come up. We've put a tremendous amount of water in there, but there is so much fuel."

A grateful Anne Huffman, who operates The Kitchen restaurant at the Desert Inn, said police awakened her to warn her of the fire.

"I'm definitely going to write a letter of commendation to the (police) chief" to recognize the officers who awakened her and other residents at the motel. "I'll tell you what," she said. "If we had a gully-washer like we have been having, it would definitely help."

EEC agrees to impose sanctions against Syria

LONDON (AP) — The Common Market today agreed to impose sanctions against Syria, including an arms embargo, in support of Britain's charge that Syria sponsored terrorism, officials said.

A formal announcement of the agreement was to be made shortly by British Foreign Secretary Sir Georeffrey Howe, president of the 12-nation Common Market's Council of Foreign Ministers.

The officials, briefing reporters on condition of anonymity, said in an apparent reference to Greece that one country could not associate itself with foreign ministers' statement, but would implement the four sanctions agreed agsinst Syria.

Apart from the arms ban, the Common Market agreed to suspend exchange visits by high-level officials and to tighten surveillance of Syrian embassies and of Syrian Arab Airlines operations.

"The essence (of the meeting) is agreement on the four points for action against Syria," said one British official briefing reporters.

Jacobsen returns for reunion he dreampt about

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Former hostage David Jacobsen hugged and kissed his 92-year-old father and other relatives as he returned for a reunion he said he could only dream about while being held by Lebanese terrorists for 17 months.

Jacob Jacobsen was waiting Sunday at the steps of the private jet that brought his 55-year-old son from Washington D.C., and they hugged for a long time before David Jacobsen moved on to his sisters and other relatives gathered on the tarmac at John Wayne Orange County Airport.

"Dreams of this homecoming kept me going," Jacobsen, who wore an American flag on his lapel, told reporters when the greetings were over. "The thought of a reunion with family and friends gave me hope. And now that day has arrived, and I look forward to sharing time with my loved ones.

"Faith in God has made this day a reality."

Jacobsen was abducted May 28, 1985, and freed Nov. 2 in Beirut. He was met Sunday by about 20 family members and friends who held red, white and blue balloons and a sign that read: "Welcome Uncle David. We Love You."

Fascination with mind altering substances not new problem

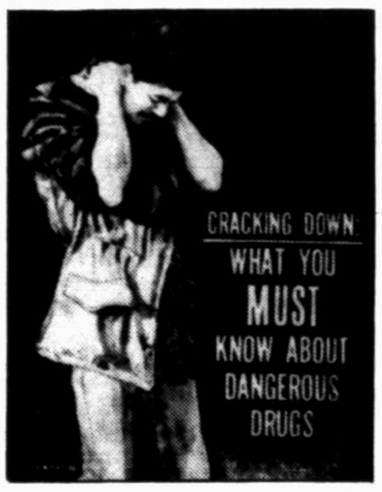

By JOHN A. BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The drug epidemic, which has ravaged America in one form or another for more than two decades, had such distant beginnings.

The human mind, it seems, has always had a fascination with substances which alter perception. But today those substances are manipulated into powerful stimuli that leave the mind changed. So powerful, in fact, that the drugs taken for thrill or recreation can alter perception beyond the mind's ability alone to return to the former reality.

No one knows for certain how long the plant, Erythroxylon coca, has been growing on the moist eastern slopes of Peruvian and Bolivian mountains. But it has been used by natives there for almost 5,000 years. They chewed the leaves for the stimulating effect.

In 1857, a Milan neurologist named Paola Mantegazza reported on the medical value of the plant's leaves. In 1858, the Austrian frigate Novara was sent to South America to bring some back.

First in a series

Scientists isolated an alkaloid from the plant and dubbed it cocaine. Young Sigmund Freud was one who worked with it and reported on its local anesthetic effects. So did an American surgeon, Dr. William Halsted. Unfortunately Halsted and his assistants became addicted.

Freud became dependent too.

Today, some 22 million Americans have at least tried cocaine and over four million are either already hooked or on the uncertain road to addiction.

To make matters worse, the price is low enough to attract youngsters; the potency is stronger, assuring quicker addiction.

Cocaine still has a long way to go to reach the popularity of marijuana, which some 20 million Americans use regularly as a recreational drug. But marijuana is falling on the best seller list, while cocaine is climbing.

Even more alarming is that more than half of the college students in a nationwide survey say that cocaine is easy to get and a third don't see much risk in using it.

It is the latest star in the firmament of dangerous drugs. Crack, cocaine, coco paste, designer drugs like Ecstasy, Rhapsody and other stimulants are advertised as the nectar of the gods of filmdom, rockdom, sportsdom. They suggest excitement and sexual proclivity.

Cocaine is versatile. It can be eaten, drunk, injected, smoked and sniffed. It gives you euphoria, man. It also kills.

Many of today's drugs kill brain cells, steal valuable years from the nation's young, and cost the nation some $100 billion in lost productivity each year. That lost productivity must be made up by those who show up for work everyday. It comes out of their paychecks as surely as if they handed it over in cash.

That does not include the cost in crime and vehicular deaths. Nor does it tally in the cost of the drugs themselves which some put at another $100 billion, all built into an industry where one in four users are sellers to pay for their own habits.

The outcry is substantial, as is the reaction. U.S. military helicopters help raid Bolivian cocaine factories. There are calls to mobilize the Army, Navy and Air Force to protect our porous borders. There are demands for drug tests on workers, and the death penalty for drug sellers.

Rev. Otwell surrenders because he says 'that's what God wanted'

FOREST HILL (AP) — The Rev. W.N. Otwell, who fled the state several weeks ago to avoid arrest for operating a boys' home without a license, surrendered to authorities today.

Otwell, who was met at his Community Baptist Church in this Fort Worth suburb by Tarrant County Sheriff Don Carpenter, said he made the decision to give himself up Friday.

"We just looked at some options and God gave me some peace," Otwell told a news conference. "I was very uneasy about coming back to Texas, but I was satisfied that's what God wanted."

Carpenter said Otwell would be taken to the Tarrant County Jail prior to his transfer to Austin to face contempt of court citations stemming from his refusal to obtain a state license for his now-closed boys' home, Carpenter said.

Otwell and his church face $67,000 in fines.

On Oct. 6, State District Judge Paul Davis of Austin ordered Otwell's arrest after the minister failed to appear for a hearing before Davis concerning the minister's refusal to obtain a license.

Otwell said today he has no idea what Davis will do.

"If Judge Paul Davis fears God, he'll back off," Otwell said. "If he doesn't, he won't."

Otwell said he had no faith in the judicial system. "Satan's in control right now," he said.

Before the news conference, Otwell conducted a fiery, 20-minute sermon in which he condemned Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox and other state officials. About 125 church members and supporters shouted "Amen" as he spoke.

"This is a ministry God put in my heart. We're doing what God wanted us to do and will not stop doing what God wanted us to do," Otwell said.

Otwell said he would attempt to reopen the boys' home if God told him to.

"I'd open it if I had to spend the rest of my life in jail," he said. "If God said it, I'd do it."

Otwell said he had no idea if or when the state will follow through on its threat to padlock the buildings used for the home.

Mattox has said he would recommend the fines against Otwell and the church be dismissed if Otwell would license the home with the state, a move that Otwell has said he never would make.

Otwell said today that he would work for a state law exempting church-backed child care homes from licensing laws.

After Otwell fled the state, he spent the next five weeks rallying independent fundamentalist ministers throughout the nation to his cause.

The minister's followers in mid-October thwarted the state's attempt to gain custody of the boys by spiriting them away before law officers made a pre-dawn raid.

Otwell's son, Rocky Otwell, 27, said Sunday night that the boys "are in good places," though he declined to say where.

"Just say they are all in good hands," he said.

FIRE

Ms. Huffman said that a fire developed in a Dumpster about 2 a.m. Friday behind the lumber company office. "They had to call the fire department."

"I JUST KIND OF wonder if they are being set," Ms. Huffman speculated.

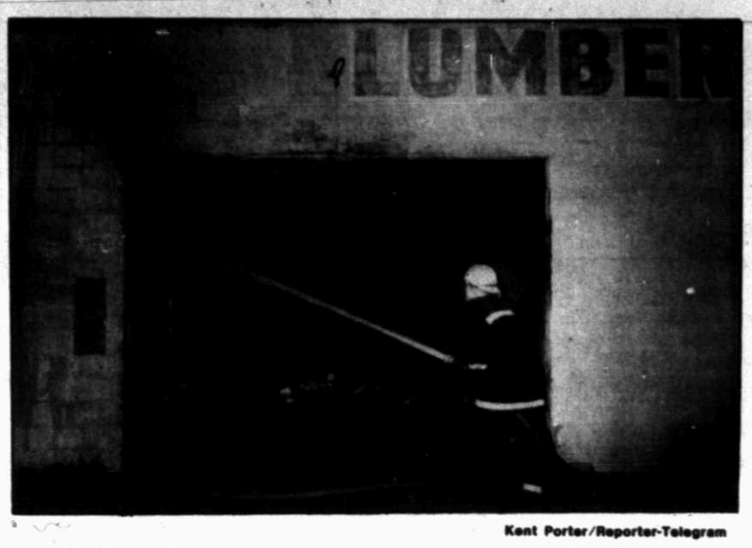

Jesse Ager, 45, and Louis Killius, 36, members of a seismic crew, were awakened by police while they slept in the motel.

"They did a real good job of getting everybody out of their rooms," Killius said, as the fire was billowing smoke. "Look at it go."

"I really want to commend the police in getting everybody out of the motel quick," he said.

However, 46-year-old Jimmy Brown, who lives in the motel, was critical of police for not awakening all of the motel residents.

"If the wind had picked up, it would have been a perfect time for the fire to hit that son-of-a-gun (the motel) and go," he said. "It would have been bad business. I believe in safety first. I'm glad my wife woke me up." Brown said that if the fire "gets a little bit worse," then he would have awakened other residents at the motel. "Then, they couldn't say they weren't warned — got plenty of time. Every tenant in this motel should be awakened."

A Midland fireman sprays a stream of water onto burning materials in a Howard-McCarroll Lumber Co. building in Midland today. The lumber company's door-shop complex was destroyed in the fire.

Firemen contained and extinguished the fire.

Desert Inn owner Stanley Hasek said apparently the motel was not damaged by the fire. "It looks so far that everything is OK." He said "nobody panicked."

While firemen were spewing tons of water onto the fire, axing holes in metal walls to gain assess to the fire, and dragging equipment from burning building, another fire broke out at Don's Metals, a scrap metal business just south of the lumber company. There, reportedly rubbish was burning.

Gary Goodman, a Texas Electric Service Co. (TESCO) serviceman, severed electric power from the lumberyard and back-end of the motel to make the area safer for firemen. "It would happen at a lumberyard, wouldn't you know it," he said of the fire.

He commended the firemen in combating the fire.

"I don't care what anybody says," Goodman said. "These suckers earn their money when they're working."

Goodman said he could see the smoke "plumb over to Wadley (Avenue)," which is about three miles from the lumberyard.

In nearby Huntington Beach, where Jacobsen lived for many years and where his son Eric still lives, yellow ribbons were tied to trees and banners on schools and churches welcomed his return.

Before leaving the airport for a private family gathering, Jacobsen asked for continued prayers for others still being held hostage in Lebanon, and also asked for undisturbed time with his family.

"I want to thank all the people who have followed my story and I ask them to continue to pray for Terry, Tom, Joe, Bill, Frank, Alec, Edward and all the other hostages. May they soon share a similar kind of celebration," he said.

Jacobsen referred to remaining hostages Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press; Thomas Sutherland, the American University's acting dean of agriculture in Beirut; Joseph Cicippio, an accountant at the American University; William Buckley, a U.S. Embassy political officer; Frank Reed, an American educator; Alec Collett, a British journalist on assignment with the United Nations relief agency; and Edward Tracy, an American writer.

"I know that you have many questions," Jacobsen said. "I want to answer them, and a press conference will be announced in the next day or two. But now I want to share this glorious day with the people that I love so much that I have waited 17 months to hug and kiss. God bless you all."

Jacobsen, his three grown children who had flown to meet him in West Germany, two sisters, father and other relatives then left for the party at the Altadena home of his sister, Carla Forbes.

In Huntington Beach, friends and neighbors around the apartment complex where Eric Jacobsen lives and on the street where David Jacobsen's former wife lives had tied yellow ribbons on trees and hung banners in case he came by.

"Welcome Back Dave!" read one sign.

"Free at Last," read another.

A high school, a Catholic church and an elementary school spread welcoming banners, as well.

Jacobsen, his children and their spouses returned from Washington aboard a jet provided by a board member of television evangelist Robert Schuller's Crystal Cathedral, said spokesman Michael Nason.

Schuller was among the airport greeters.

Nason said Jacobsen had attended services at the Garden Grove, Calif., church and when the ex-hostage was in West Germany "we got word that he would welcome a phone call from Dr. Schuller."

Iceland whale meat plant destroyed

Attack believed linked to scuttling of boats

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Saboteurs wrecked Iceland's only plant where whale meat is processed in an attack believed linked to the scuttling of two Icelandic whaling boats by a U.S. environmental group, police said today.

The attack on the whaling station, about 50 miles from Reykjavik, was discovered this morning when employees arrived for work. The plant's computer system and the machinery used to process whale meat were destroyed.

Helgi Jonsson, spokesman for Hvalur Whaling Co., the plant's owner, said it appeared saboteurs used sledge hammers.

There was no immediate claim of responsiblity for the attack, but police said it appeared to have been carried out by the same people who opened the bottom valves on the whaling boats, Hvalur 6 and Hvalur 7, early Sunday in Reykjavik harbor.

No crew members were aboard the ships, and no injuries were reported.

The Los Angeles-based Sea Shepherd Conservation Society said it carried out the attacks on the vessels. Its leader, Paul Watson, said in interviews with Icelandic state radio and television that a team from his organization sank the 430-ton boats because "the Icelanders were hunting whales illegally."

Environmentalists accuse the Icelandic government of using scientific pretenses as a cover for commercial whaling.

"They are trying to say they are killing whales for research, but the whale meat is being sold to Japan. They are prostituting science," Watson told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from Vancouver, British Columbia.

Iceland agreed to abide by an International Whaling Commission decision to cease whaling from 1986 to 1990. Although commercial whaling stopped, the government permits Hvalur to carry out scientific whaling in cooperation with the National Oceanic Research Institute.

The company, which has two other boats, is allowed to catch 200 whales a year under a plan to document the number of whales.

Last August, Icelandic and U.S. officials reached a compromise providing that half the meat resulting from the whaling be consumed by Icelanders. In the past, 90 percent of the meat was sold abroad, nearly all of it to Japan.

The United States monitors foreign whaling. If it determines that efforts to conserve the whales have been undermined, the secretary of commerce is required by law to recommend that the president either embargo the offending country's fish products or curtail its right to fish in U.S. territorial waters.

Iceland maintains that as a fishing nation it must conduct extensive research on how whales affect fish population and that it can finance its research only through the sale of whale meat.

Watson, 36, said a Sea Shepherd team went to Iceland several days ago and patrolled the harbor, watching for an opportunity to sink the vessels.

"As we don't want to cause bodily harm we therefore prepared the act very carefully," he said. "Our team was given instructions not to cause injuries and therefore explosives were out of the question."

A guard on a nearby boat noticed the two 150-foot-vessels taking on water at about 5 a.m., but attempts by the authorities to save them proved futile.

Watson would not specify how many people took part in the operation and said the team had left Iceland.

The boats went down in 45 feet of water, he said, and "Our supporters said a lot of young Icelanders were cheering when they saw the ships sunk in the water."

The Sea Shepherd group was founded by Watson in 1977 when he was expelled from the Greenpeace environmental group based in Vancouver. No reason was given for the expulsion.

The team has a history of harassing groups hunting whales, seals and dolphins. In 1980, the crew of the 200-foot Sea Shepherd boat claimed responsibility for sinking two whaling ships in Vigo, Spain, with magnetic mines. No one was injured.

EEC

the one-day meeting. Their agenda included East-West relations, the Middle East and the Syrian issue.

On Sunday, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and French Prime Minister Jacques Chirac said after a meeting that they expected the sanctions to be approved.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government broke diplomatic relations with Damascus on Oct. 24 after an Arab was convicted of trying to smuggle a bomb aboard an Israeli jetliner at London's Heathrow Airport last April. Howe said there was conclusive evidence of official Syrian involvement in the attempt to sabotage the El Al jumbo jet and kill the 375 people on board.

The United States and Canada recalled their ambassadors from Syria to demonstrate their support for Britain.

Belgium last Monday said it was recalling its ambassador for a week's consultation, but no other European country has followed suit.

U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz, appealing to the Common Market to crack down on Syria, said in Paris on Friday that the U.S. government would be "interested" in the results of the meeting and indicated some further U.S. action would then be taken.

At a foreign ministers' meeting in Luxembourg on Oct. 27, Greece refused to join the other EEC nations in signing a statement expressing a "common sense of outrage" at British evidence that Syria was involved in the El Al bomb plot.

The meeting did not produce agreement on joint measures against Syria. Britain blamed the lack of results on the presence of only six ministers, with the rest of the countries represented by deputies.

The Syrian government has said the bomb plot was a conspiracy by the United States, Israel and Britain to isolate Syria and cut it out of the Middle East peace process. Syria has circulated a six-page document to EEC countries, rejecting British charges.

On Sunday, Libya warned the European Community against deciding on "collective aggressive action" against Syria, and said if such measures were adopted, Libya would reply with "suitable measures."

In a report monitored in London, the foreign ministry said "any aggressive action against Syria is an aggression against the whole Arab nation...(and) would be considered as directly against Libya."

The statement also called on Arab countries to withdraw their assets from EEC countries, stop oil exports and boycott Western goods.

Anti-abortion activists walking to raise money

El PASO (AP) — A group of anti-abortion activists has begun a 55-mile walk to raise money for a center where women can live while completing their term of pregnancy, officials say.

The Rev. Keith Galbraith, chairman of El Pasoans for Life, said Sunday that eight walkers have pledged to complete the trek from El Paso's east side that will end Tuesday with a rally in Las Cruces, N.M.

"A lot of women are literally being dragged and pushed into abortion clinics against their will by lovers and family members," he said. "They are being coerced into having abortions."

DRUGS

Meanwhile, law officers raid 30 cocaine factories in the United States in one year and destroy twice as much domestically grown marijuana as Mexico raised in the same year.

Even drug enforcement officials say that the best hope for the future is prevention, stifling the appetite for drugs, and that must start with the homes and the schools and the children and their parents.

What to do with those already stricken with drug dependency? Treatment is expensive. Free clinics are swamped with the sudden rush of crack victims. Private clinics are expensive with treatment running $30,000 for starters. Relapse is frequent.

The trick today is to use more than one drug at a time. Cocaine for up. Alcohol and marijuana for down. Heroin and cocaine together for a really exclusive high, speedballing they call it. Any of the amphetamines and their designer cousins with alcohol.

It is not just this year's problem. America is facing a wave of drug epidemics, all born of ignorance. The solution is to abolish the ignorance.

Vietnam vets tearfully embellish monument

STATE

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Vietnam veterans who were moved to tears in a special dedication ceremony paid special tribute to their fallen comrades by tearing insignias and medals from their fatigues and laying them on the monument.

"This is for all the medics that never returned," one veteran said as he climbed San Antonio's Vietnam Veterans Memorial statue Sunday and placed an insignia near the fallen soldier depicted in the sculpture.

As each veteran placed his remembrance on the statue at Veterans Memorial Plaza, the crowd cheered. By late afternoon, the sculpture was covered with miniature American flags, medals, flowers, insignias and personal artifacts — including a pair of combat boots — from the war in Vietnam.

Some veterans, overcome by the memory of Vietnam, knelt at the foot of the giant sculpture and cried.

About 6,000 people — including many veterans in fatigues and active-duty military personnel — packed the plaza as military bands played and fighter planes and helicopters flew overhead.

The keynote speaker, retired Gen. William Westmoreland, said that the time has come for America to show its appreciation for Vietnam veterans.

"The Vietnam veteran is a precious and valuable national asset," Westmoreland said. "And the time has arrived for the American people to understand that in no uncertain terms.

"Sadly, in return, these men and women have been ignored and often abused by their fellow countrymen until now, and neglected by their nation until now," he said.

Westmoreland, who inspected the troops before making his remarks, said history may judge that the United States' attempt to keep South Vietnam independent and free of communism constituted one of "man's noble crusades."

"We wanted to give the people of South Vietnam some reasonable chance to achieve and keep a degree of freedom and human dignity," the general said. "This was indeed one of history's most selfless commitments."

He said U.S. forces held the line in Vietnam for 10 years against rapid expansion of communism in Southeast Asia and provided a shield to enable other countries in that region, such as Malaysia, Thailand, Singapore and the Philippines, to become politically stable.

"At last America and the world are beginning to realize that America was not defeated militarily on the battlefield in Vietnam," Westmoreland said.

Mayor Henry Cisneros said the plaza and statue would be "as sacred a place as Alamo Plaza" and likened the Vietnam veteran to the defenders of the Alamo.

"May this memorial serve as an ever-present reminder to San Antonians that hundreds who might be with us instead are not," Cisneros said. "Because they fought for principles as fundamental as the heroes of the Alamo."

Man arrested as suspect in abduction hangs self in cell

TEXARKANA (AP) — A 24-year-old man arrested as a suspect in the abduction of a Dallas woman hanged himself in his jail cell during the weekend, officials said.

Anthony Lancer Jackson was arrested early Wednesday and charged with attempted capital murder in connection with the shooting of a Texarkana, Texas, police officer. Jackson, held in lieu of $105,000 bond, also was charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Man held on bomb threat

HOUSTON (AP) — A church singing group member accused of threatning to blow up a plane after attendants refused to serve him an alcohoic drink remained jailed over the weekend pending an appearance before a federal magistrate.

Alfred Dukes, 31, has been held without bond at Harris County Jail on charges of interference with operation of an aircraft and interference with a flight crew, FBI spoksman Johnnie Joyce said.

Dukes was scheduled to appear before a federal magistrate today, Joyce said.

TDC escapes reach 'record'

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Escapes from the Texas Department of Corrections have reached a record number this year, but officials aren't overly concerned by the numbers.

Although 36 convicts escaped, only six remained at large more than 24 hours, records show. And the total number is small when compared to the 38,000 inmates now behind bars.

Educators: U.S. risks 'national suicide' unless spending increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national commission headed by former Secretary of Education Terrel H. Bell says the United States is risking "national suicide" unless it sharply increases spending on its schools and colleges.

The academic and civic leaders, in a report commissioned by a state college group, rebuked President Reagan and others who have sought to cut aid for college students.

The report, released Sunday, called for a domestic Marshall Plan to nearly double the number of college-educated adults by the turn of the century.

"Public officials who propose budget reductions in education at a time when the republic is handicapped by the burden of an undereducated populace are unthinkingly abetting an act of national suicide," the Bell commission said. "Their priorities are wrong."

The 56-page report, "To Secure the Blessings of Liberty," was prepared for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, which is holding its annual meeting in Phoenix. Bell was addressing the group today on the recommendations.

The 22-member panel included Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and former Mississippi Gov. William Winter, as well as a half-dozen college presidents, the heads of both national teacher unions and the chancellor of New York City's schools.

The association represents 372 four-year campuses that enroll 2.5 million students and award a third of all bachelor degrees.

It urged states to keep college tuitions as low as possible, in part to help recruit more minority students and stop the growth of "an American underclass." It also urged the state colleges to take the lead in producing the 1 million new teachers needed by public schools in the next decade, and to help cut the dropout rate in half.

The commission criticized states for curtailing spending on remedial programs. Remedial education will be needed "for the foreseeable future" in the state colleges, it said.

The report's pungent language echoed the 1983 "A Nation At Risk" report by the National Commission on Excellence in Education, which Bell appointed. That report warned of a "rising tide of mediocrity" in U.S. schools and likened their condition to "a unilateral act of disarmament." It spurred many states to raise high school graduation standards and boost school budgets.

"Tragically for the American people, the federal student financial aid program today is on the chopping block in Washington," the report said, claiming that the real value of federal aid has fallen 25 percent since President Reagan took office in 1981.

Bell served in Reagan's Cabinet for four of those years and went before Congress to defend the president's cuts in student aid. But Bell said in a telephone interview that he always battled inside the administration with then-budget director David Stockman over those cuts.

Bell's slap at budget-cutters drew a sharp rejoinder from his successor, Secretary of Education William J. Bennett.

"This is taxpayer money and we have a right to ask about how it's being spent," Bennett said in an interview.

Bennett's chief of staff, William Kristol, called it "silly, overblown rhetoric." He said real spending on higher education has doubled in the last 20 years.

Talks 'needed' between U.S. bishops, Pope

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, warning of "dangerous disaffection" between the Vatican and parts of the U.S. church, says face-to-face talks are needed between American bishops and Pope John Paul II before the pope's visit next summer.

Bishop James Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, president of the bishops' national organization, said today the pope is welcome in this country, despite "current tensions and controversies."

However, he said, it would be wise for members of the bishops' conference to fly to Rome "to share with him information about aspects of the church which will be highlighted when he returns to this country."

He didn't say exactly what the bishops would tell the pope, but he went on to describe deep divisions within an otherwise-flourishing U.S. church.

John Paul, who is to visit the South and West for a series of speeches and Masses in outdoor stadiums next September, was cheered by millions on his visit to Eastern and Midwestern cities in October 1979.

"But no one who reads the newspapers of the past three years can be ignorant of a growing and dangerous disaffection of elements of the church in the United States from the Holy See," Malone said.

The only case he specifically mentioned was that of Seattle Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen, who was forced to share his authority with a Vatican-appointed auxiliary bishop after being judged too liberal in ministry to homosexuals and divorced Catholics and in some liturgical matters.

However, in other cases that have been widely publicized — and protested by some Catholics — in the past year alone:

— The Vatican has stripped church-theologian credentials from a prominent professor at Catholic University because of views considered too liberal on sexual issues.

— Vatican pressure led a Jesuit priest to resign from his order after he polled bishops on their views on celibacy and women's ordination.

— Another Jesuit was told he would be expelled from the order if he spoke out, as he then did, against the Vatican's recent restatement of its views on the sinfulness of homosexuality.

Malone's comments, prepared for delivery at the opening of the bishops' annual meeting, were part of his farewell speech as he neared the end of his three-year term as the group's president.

He said Hunthausen's situation, which the bishops will discuss behind closed doors on Tuesday, could stand as an example of divisions within the church on such serious questions as dissent from high church authority.

"Some people feel that the local church needs more freedom," Malone said. "Others believe that more control is in order.

"Some feel that appeals to authority are being exercised too readily. Others applaud what they perceive to be a return to needed central control.

"Wherever you stand, this division presents the church in the United States with a very serious question: How will we move to address this developing estrangement, to strengthen the cognitive and affective bonds between the church here and the Holy See?"

He added that the organization of America's bishops, some of whom are known to be greatly upset by the treatment of a fellow church leader, "has no competence to interject itself into the special relationship between the Holy Father and a local bishop."

Still, the private meeting is expected to give the bishops a chance to hear Hunthausen's side first-hand and to decide what, if any, formal response to make to the pope.

Malone said that despite divisions, the Catholic Church in the United States — by far the nation's largest denomination with 52 million members — is strong.

Improvement is needed, he said, pointing in particular to a failure to achieve a stated goal of equality of women with men — but adding that bishops "do not and cannot stand with those who argue that the only response to this inequality is ordination to the priesthood."

On what he felt was a positive note, he said the bishops will vote this week on their major pastoral letter on good and ill in the U.S. economic system. And though some have criticized the bishops' entry into the public policy arena with this letter and one on nuclear weapons, he said they would continue such ventures "with an unwavering sense of duty to both society and church."

Terrorists promise to release some French hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An underground group believed made up of Shiite Moslem extremists loyal to Iran said today it would free some of the French hostages it holds in Lebanon within 48 hours.

The Revolutionary Justice Organization said in a statement delivered to the Beirut office of a Western news agency the imminent release of "some French hostages" was a result of Algerian and Syrian mediation.

The statement did not say how many hostages would be freed. The group has claimed responsibility for kidnapping three Frenchmen and two Americans in Moslem west Beirut.

Eight Frenchmen are being held hostage in Lebanon by various groups.

Today's promise of freedom came as the 12-nation European Economic Community met in London to consider British-sponsored sanctions against Syria in support of Britain's allegations that the Syrian government supports terrorism.

"As a result of the promises given by the French government on the demands that it very well knows and which had been previously discussed with the Algerians and currently through the constant French intervention with (Syrian) President Hafez Assad...We annouce that we shall release some of the Frenchmen within the next 48 hours," the statement said.

Among the Frenchmen held by Revolutionary Justice are two television crewmen of France's Antenne-2 station, soundman Aurel Cornea, 54, and lighting engineer Jean-Louis Normandin, 34.

They were kidnapped in west Beirut March 8, 1986 along with two other crew members, correspondent Philippe Rochot, 39, and cameraman Georges Hansen, 45.

Rochot and Hansen were freed in Beirut on June 21. They flew home via Syria.

The third French hostage in Revolutionary Justice captivity is Marcel Coudari, 54, of Marseille. He was believed kidnapped in west Beirut last February, but the group made the announcement of his abduction on Sept. 24. He is a French citizen of Lebanese descent.

The Revolutionary Justice statement accused the West of engineering an attack against Syria and said: "We declare in the name of the Revolutionary Justice Organization that we consider these (anti-Syrian) threats as directed against us. We shall confront them.

> "We also expect from all the European nations, especially the French government, to cast aside all their colonial plans in the region and in Lebanon and to lift the pressures off our people and strugglers."
> — Revolutionary Justice statement

"We also expect from all the European nations, especially the French government, to cast aside all their colonial plans in the region and in Lebanon and to lift the pressures off our people and strugglers."

The statement said the release of the Frenchmen would be a "gesture of good intentions to make the European nations apply pressure on their governments."

It did not spell out the demands it claims the French government promised to meet.

Revolutionary Justice, in a statement issued after the abduction of the Antenne-2 crew, warned Paris against continuing support for Christian President Amin Gemayel's "criminal regime...The illegal child of French colonialism."

France has since withdrawn a 54-man truce observation force that monitored Lebanon's civil war ceasefire in Beirut and the central Lebanese mountains.

But the French government maintained its contingent serving with the U.N. peacekeeping force in south Lebanon.

France ruled Lebanon after World War I until 1943, when the Lebanese gained independence.

In all, there are 19 foreigners missing in Lebanon — six Americans, eight Frenchmen, two Britons, one Irishman, one Italian and one South Korean.

The Americans held by Revolutionary Justice are Joseph James Cicippio, 56, acting comptroller at the American University in Beirut, and Edward Austin Tracy, 55, a west Beirut resident and self-described writer.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Peres to visit New York

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Foreign Minister Shimon Peres left Israel today for a week-long trip to the United States, where he will discuss the Middle East peace process and face questions about Israel's alleged role in the delivery of U.S.-made arms to Iran.

He is scheduled to meet in New York with State Department Middle East envoy Richard Murphy to discuss efforts to pacify the troubled region, a process stalled over the issue of who should represent the Palesinians and Arab demands for an international peace conference.

Peres is making his first trip to the United States in his new job as foreign minister. He swapped jobs with current Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir last month in accordance with a power-sharing agreement between Shamir's right-wing Likud bloc and Peres' left-leaning Labor Party.

Peres is expected to face a barrage of questions during his trip over reports of Israel's role in the clandestine sale of U.S.-made arms to Iran as part of efforts to free American hostages in Lebanon. According to the reports, top-ranking Israeli officials, including former Foreign Ministry Director-General David Kimche and Peres', and now Shamir's, adviser on terrorism, Amiram Nir, were in charge of Israel's part in the deals.

Peres does not plan to visit Washington during his trip. The visit will be devoted mainly to fund-raising speeches and dinners with Jewish organizations in New York and Chicago, a Peres aide said Sunday.

Incumbent mayor defeated

MONTREAL (AP) — Longtime incumbent Mayor Jean Drapeau's Civic Party was crushed as Jean Dore and his Montreal Citizens' Movement gained a landslide victory in the municipal election.

Dore, a 41-year-old labor lawyer, took about 67 percent of Sunday's vote, while Claude Dupras, a veteran organizer and Drapeau's handpicked successor as Civic Party leader, garnered 30 percent.

Dore's reform-minded party won in 54 electoral districts, while the Civic Party took two, the Democratic Alliance one and an independent one.

Election officials said about 50 per cent of the 695,845 eligible voters turned out in unseasonably warm but windy weather. Turnout was 52 per cent in the last election, in 1982.

Public opinion surveys regarding the election — the first in 26 years in which Drapeau did not run — consistently indicated that Dore would win, partly because Montrealers wanted change.

Dore has promised to lower taxes and attract more investment.

Gandhi given special car

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan has presented a bullet-proof Mercedes to Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, the United News of India reported today.

Gandhi was the object of an unsuccessful assassination attempt Oct. 2.

King Hussein and Queen Noor brought the car with them when they visited India last month shortly after the failed attempt on Gandhi's life.

Gandhi often drives himself to work and to his farmhouse on the outskirts of New Delhi in his U.S.-built Jeep.

Women's group appeals for another summit

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Margaret Papandreou, the American-born wife of Greece's Socialist premier and an ardent feminist, has appealed for a new superpower summit on the reduction of nuclear arsenals.

Mrs. Papandreou said Sunday that telegrams would be sent from Athens to President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev asking them to resume their talks where they left off in Iceland last month, reduce nuclear weapons stockpiles and meet with women peace leaders.

"We would like to discuss with you our views as women on common security and the future of humanity, and to tell you ways in which we think we can be useful in the peace process," the telegram said.

Mrs. Papandreou, wife of Premier Andreas Papandreou, signed the messages as international coordinator for the U.S.-based "Women for a Meaningful Summit" organization. The group ended a three-day conference in the Greek capital on Sunday.

The Washington-based group, a coalition of 90 women's organizations, was founded in 1985 and claims backing from more than 1 million women in the United States.

The conference was attended by over 60 women professors, politicians and peace lobbyists from 35 countries, including the Soviet Union, China and six NATO member-countries, including Greece.

In an interview with The Associated Press after the closing session, Mrs. Papandreou said women have a "more compassionate approach" which could contribute to eventually eliminating nuclear weapons.

"Women are closer to life and the human condition. In countries like Sweden with a large number of women politicians there is more emphasis on social issues and peace issues. We can make an impact," she said.

Mrs. Papandreou, who founded and now heads Greece's biggest feminist organization, said she joined "Women for a Meaningful Summit" earlier this year to crusade internationally for a cause she believes in.

Mrs. Papandreou said she plans to work for nuclear arms control alongside her husband, one of six world leaders promoting the Five Continent Peace Initiative, which seeks a ban on nuclear weapons manufacture, testing and deployment.

The Initiative was launched in 1984 by Greece, Sweden, India, Mexico, Argentina and Tanzania on the grounds that nuclear arms control was too important an issue to be left to the superpowers alone.

College 'study'

Having deplored in the last three years the dismal state of education in grades K through 12, the experts have now trained their sights on the nation's colleges and universities. Their findings, contained in the Carnegie Foundation's comprehensive study, disclose some disturbing trends in the groves of academe.

First there is the sorry state of undergraduate education in America, they say. The study finds that undergraduates are too often relegated to anemic courses taught by lower-rank professors. Worse, many of these students are stuck with inept teaching assistants as classroom instructors who lack the training, skill, and oversight to do an adequate job.

The professorial problem is aggravated by a publish-or-perish syndrome found on many college campuses. Preoccupied with second-hand research projects for obscure, scholarly journals, many tenured faculty simply shy away from the classroom. Their light teaching load generally consists of upper-division classes, leaving undergrads to make do with apathetic instructors.

This isn't to denigrate research, which permits professors to keep abreast of developments in their specialties. But the primary mission of a university ought to be imparting knowledge to students, and too many schools are shirking that responsibility.

Mindful of their particular deficiency, scattered universities already are taking steps to strengthen undergraduate education. Some have organized academic departments so that freshmen and sophomores have access to classes taught by the best and the brightest faculty members. These professors would, in turn, be evaluated for their teaching skills and be rewarded for classroom excellence.

That change is particularly promising and would mesh with the Carnegie recommendation that universities establish the rank of "distinguished teaching professor." Extending special status along with salary incentives for extraordinary classroom performance would help restore the crucial balance between teaching and research. Perhaps then, most college professors, who concede they want to spend more time in the classroom, would sharpen their skills. The net result could be stronger undergraduate programs and a renewed interest in the teaching profession among many students.

The Carnegie study also is on target in its call for an enhanced core curriculum. Seniors would be required before graduation to present and defend theses in their major subjects. Moreover, universities with big-time athletic programs ought to re-evaluate and reorder their priorities as the study recommends.

Of course, the bottom line is quality education. That requires good teaching, something the Carnegie study says is being circumvented in colleges and universities now. The goal of good teaching is not only within reach of higher education — its achievement is essential to this nation's future.

Another View:

No need for panic

The vast majority of AIDS victims continue to be male homosexuals and intravenous drug addicts. But in African countries like Zaire and Uganda, the disease spreads differently, affecting men and women alike. Is AIDS about to become epidemic among the general public in America, too?

Some experts fear it is, but so far the evidence for breakout is far from conclusive. AIDS is not easily acquired and does not spread through casual contact. The virus is principally transmitted among homosexuals by anal intercourse and among drug addicts by sharing needles.

The AIDS virus can also be transmitted, much less efficiently, in vaginal intercourse. Many of the regular sexual partners of drug addicts with AIDS show signs of exposure to the virus. But the likelihood of transmission in a single sexual encounter seems small. In vaginal transmission, the virus seems to pass more easily from men to women than women to men. That suggests AIDS will not spread along a chain of people as rampantly as other venereal diseases.

So far at least, heterosexually transmitted AIDS cases reported in this country remain a tiny percentage of the total. Most are partners of drug addicts or bisexuals. In New York, 156 people, about 2 percent of AIDS victims, contracted the disease heterosexually. Only two of them were men. Why then in Central Africa do men and women suffer in equal numbers from AIDS? One explanation is widespread medical use of unsterilized needles; another is the wider prevalence of sexually transmitted diseases, whose sores may give the virus access to the bloodstream. If so, there is no reason for the African pattern to be repeated in the United States.

Others fear that Africa differs only in being ahead of America. Five years may elapse between contracting the virus and coming down with the disease; Federal tallies of AIDS patients are way behind the real progression of the epidemic. A committee of the National Academy of Sciences warned last week of "substantially more" AIDS virus infections among heterosexuals in the next 5 to 10 years, particularly among "the population at risk for other sexually transmitted diseases."

There's little evidence of such spread so far. As Erik Eckholm reported recently in The New York Times, some 257 of the 331,000 blood donors in New York last year carried the virus. Of those, 90 percent had previous homosexual or drug experience or a partner who did. It's alarming that more than 1 percent of recent military recruits from New York were rejected because of exposure to the AIDS virus. But among those who sought counseling, the known risk factors were present in the usual proportions.

Even if AIDS stays confined to the present risk groups, there's a strong case for educating everyone how to guard against the virus — essentially by using condoms and by avoiding anal intercourse and unclean needles. But crash programs can be overzealous, like the swine flu vaccination program against an epidemic that never arrived.

With the homosexual community acting to educate and protect itself, the prime target for preventive efforts remains intravenous drug addicts. There is no proof yet that the general public is equally at risk. To prevent further spread of AIDS, the smartest thing to do now is to resist exaggerated fears of heterosexual transmission — and to fund more drug treatment programs.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 10, 1871, journalist-explorer Henry M. Stanley found Scottish missionary David Livingstone in central Africa. Stanley gave his now-famous greeting: "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?" To which the Scotsman replied, "Yes, and I feel thankful that I am here to welcome you."

Gold may be Aquino's second miracle

WASHINGTON — The Philippines government is backing efforts by a group of American and Filipino treasure hunters to recover a fortune in stolen gold believed to have been buried offshore by the Japanese during World War II.

Jack Anderson

The government's support is limited to protection by the Philippine coast guard, but the Aquino government has hopes that recovery of the buried treasure could give the Philippine economy a badly needed boost. In fact, when the American leader of the venture met Aquino last March, she listened intently and reportedly exclaimed: "My God! It could be the second miracle." (The first, of course, was her surprising progress from widowed housewife to president in the space of a few months.)

More than 10 years ago we first reported on the hundreds of pages of confidential State Department documents pointing to the existence of billions of dollars' worth of booty the Japanese plundered throughout Asia and buried in the Philippines during the war. According to these documents, the treasure was stashed in 172 secret locations in the islands, both on land and under water.

American prisoners of war reportedly were forced to help bury the treasure, and were then, like pirate captives of long ago, killed to safeguard the secret. At one site the POWs were reportedly buried alive.

We also reported that then-President Ferdinand Marcos, through a secret operation code-named "Leber," had uncovered some of the buried gold and added it to his personal fortune, estimated at $10 billion.

The latest treasure seeker is Al Meyers, an American engineer who has invented a laser-based gold detector. A reputable testing laboratory has confirmed that Meyers' device consistently locates gold.

Meyers enlisted the support of investors and Filipino businessmen who had maps of purported burial sites of World War II treasure. He was in the midst of pinpointing promising sites when the Marcos regime was overthrown early this year.

On March 9, Meyers met with newly installed President Aquino and several high officials and laid out his evidence of potential gold caches in Calatagan Bay, about 70 miles south of Manila. Though Aquino was restrained throughout the meeting, she quickly realized what several billions in gold would do for her treasury, which was systematically looted by Marcos for 20 years.

Meyers and his associates gave the government a good deal: 75 percent of any treasure they find. Philippines law requires only 50 percent for the government.

In return, the government provides the treasure hunters with protection. The "Calatagan Project" is being coordinated by Aquino's uncle, Francisco Sumulong, an assemblyman, who signed a memorandum ordering the coast guard commandant "to provide all necessary assistance and support to facilitate and expedite the smooth operation of the project."

The food and salaries of the coast guard protectors are being paid by Meyers and his associates. So the Aquino government could be getting a bargain: at no cost to the treasury, a possible 75 percent share in some 800 tons of gold worth more than $8 billion.

WATCH ON WASTE: Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, wants to be the next Speaker of the House, but first he had to get re-elected, so he took care of the home folks. Hardly noticed in the continuing resolution that is keeping the government running till budget approval was a flood-control project to protect the Fort Worth stockyards. The federal government will foot the entire bill, including costly feasibility studies. The Army Corps of Engineers won't even speculate on the overall cost, though our sources say it could go as high as $100 million. House insiders grumble at the way Wright ramrodded the plum for his home district into the continuing resolution.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Have you noticed that the White House investigation of the leak to the Washington Post about the anti-Libya disinformation campaign continues, while the promised investigation of the original disinformative leak to the Wall Street Journal has sunk without a trace? In other words, the government is determined to identify and punish the person who leaked the truth to the press, but has no interest in pursuing the person or people who leaked falsehoods. It's a strange world.

Sen. Byrd launches bird-in-hand vote hunt

WASHINGTON — Despite claims of more than enough votes to beat back Sen. Bennett Johnston's challenge in the fight for majority leader, Sen. Robert Byrd is looking for one more by sounding out Sen. John Kerry, the militant liberal from Massachusetts, for the potent post of Senate campaign chairman.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Kerry is one vote Byrd wants in his hand before the Nov. 21 leadership vote by the 55 senators composing the new majority. Another is Johnston's new colleague from Louisiana, Sen.-elect John Breaux, who is being courted with a seat on the powerful Finance Committee.

Byrd claims total confidence that he will duplicate his feat of two years ago when he trounced Sen. Lawton Chiles. Surprising, however, is heavy use of patronage, including an offer to appoint as Senate sergeant-at-arms Henry K. Giugni, administrative assistant to Sen. Daniel Inouye of Hawaii. In return, the well-liked Inouye would be expected to pin down votes for Byrd.

NIXON'S EYEBROWS

To such an inveterate politics-watcher as Richard M. Nixon, the most surprising election night news was the New Hampshire exit poll giving Vice President George Bush 41 percent in that key primary state.

At this time late in the Eisenhower administration, Vice President Nixon had virtually locked up New Hampshire and the 1960 presidential nomination. The former president's eyebrows raised Tuesday night when he commented to a friend that a sitting vice president below 50 percent at this stage of the game was in serious trouble. Rep. Jack Kemp ran a poor second to Bush in the exit poll, but his supporters were overjoyed that he had finally moved past Senate Republican leader Robert J. Dole in some survey.

A footnote: Dole, who is Nixon's first choice for president, has resumed baiting Bush. In post-election comments, Dole said Reagan showed no coattails in 1986 and that anybody who hopes to ride them in 1988 — meaning the vice president — should take notice.

TEDDY'S CHOICE

Amid their euphoria over Democratic recapture of the Senate, organized labor's stalwarts were dismayed to learn that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy might not take chairmanship of the Labor Committee after all.

If Kennedy instead opts for the Judiciary Committee chairmanship, Labor would go to Sen. Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio — no less liberal than Kennedy but a more difficult partner for the AFL-CIO. Key labor leaders are confirmed Kennedyites who still plead with him to change his mind about not running for president in 1988.

Insiders think Kennedy will yet pick Labor, but the prospect of more Reagan judgeship appointments coming before Judiciary has postponed his decision. Whether or not it affects Kennedy's thinking, key aides doubt Sen. Joe Biden of Delaware — second-ranking in seniority — is up to the chairmanship.

LAXALT PULLS BACK

In the morning-after reality of Senate defeat, Republican General Chairman Paul Laxalt cancelled plans to attend a weekend political gathering in Montana of his oldest political allies, including original backers of Ronald Reagan's 1976 presidential campaign.

The meeting is a regular affair put on by Frank Whetstone of Cut Bank, Mont., starting with a Draft Goldwater sesion in 1963. Prior to Tuesday's election returns, it was thought Whetstone would use this year's session to beat the Laxalt-for-president drums.

But the retiring senator is being criticized, more in sorrow than anger, for contributing to the worst Republican defeat since 1976. Laxalt hand-picked Frank Fahrenkopf as Republican national chairman and former Democratic Rep. James Santini as the best choice to run for the Senate seat in Nevada he was relinquishing. But insiders have always doubted Laxalt would run for president, whatever happened Nov. 4.

GOP SCAPEGOAT

Mitch Daniels, the chief White House political aide who has been considered one of the nation's top tacticians, has been nominated by fellow Republicans as a scapegoat for loss of the Senate.

He is criticized for swallowing the expensive, computerized telephone call system — using Ronald Reagan's recorded voice — to get out the vote. That expensive technique, rejected at the White House in 1982, proved a dismal failure.

In the Senate, Republicans claim Daniels never was sensitive enough to needs of endangered incumbents. Specifically, he is blamed for the loss of Sen. Slade Gorton of Washington state on the toxic waste disposal issue. For President Reagan to go across the continent in Gorton's behalf without getting him off the hook on that issue is considered a blunder of the first magnitude.

CHARLEY REESE

Intellectual answers can't solve crime woes

Most of the problems in the world are physical and most of the problem solvers in the world are intellectuals. That should give you a clue as to why the world is in such a mess.

Charley Reese

Intellectuals, to paraphrase the late Lyndon Johnson, could foul up a two-car funeral procession.

There is an old story about General George Patton that is to the point. The old fire-eater stormed into one of his division headquarters and demanded to know when the division was going to cross a certain river.

The division commander replied that he was at that very moment studying maps to find a shallow crossing point.

"Hell," said the general, "I just waded across the (expletive deleted) river."

The general, in the manner of practical men, was attuned to physical reality while the division commander, in the manner of intellectuals, was absorbed with symbols of reality. The general had been out to look at the river. The division commander was looking at printed representations of the river.

I'm not putting down smart people. I'm just saying that smart people and intellectuals are not necessarily the same. I'm just saying that in every area of concern there comes a time to either cut bait or fish, to stop studying and to start acting.

Crime in our cities is a physical problem. Human beings assault, kill and plunder other human beings. The solution is also physical. We kill, maim, or isolate in prisons the criminals. The only way you can make a community safe for people who respect human rights is to remove — physically — those people who do not respect human rights.

Now, after the criminals are removed, the intellectuals can conduct all the studies and write all the books they wish. Sociologists can write all the learned treatises they wish. At least, they'll have a safe environment in which to do it.

But solving the crime problem means physical removal of criminals, not studying or understanding or rehabilitating them. In cities with high crime, you don't need a degree to know what's wrong with its criminal justice system. The system is not removing the criminals. It is keeping them in the community to prey on the innocent.

Crime can become a non-problem for Americans if the people insist that their legislatures:

1. Establish by law a clear and undeniable right for a law-abiding citizen to defend with lethal force his person, his home and place of business.

2. Establish by law that any person injured while engaged in committing a criminal act forfeits all rights to sue and the survivors of any person killed while engaged in committing a criminal act forfeit all rights to seek any civil damages whatsoever.

3. Establish by law that no person convicted of a second offense shall receive probation.

4. Establish by law that any person convicted of three felonies shall receive a mandatory life sentence without parole.

5. Establish by law that any person injured by a probationer or parolee shall have the right to sue and receive compensation from the state.

6. Establish by law that any sane adult with no record of crime or substance abuse may own and carry a firearm and that the state must show cause for denying an application.

The disgraceful, barbaric state of many American cities today is our fault. We have the vote. We can insist that our legislators take the proper steps to perform the most basic duty of government, which is to insure domestic peace. Those who refuse, we vote out of office.

The present situation is that the environment is safer for the criminal than for the innocent. If we lack the will to reverse this situation, we have no right to complain about being victimized.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Conditions forecast for 7 AM Tuesday

Cooler weather in area forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Midland-area residents can expect mostly cloudy skies, cooler temperatures and a less-than 20 percent chance of rain through Tuesday, according to forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. The high on Tuesday is expected to reach only into the middle 40s, with a slight possibility of early morning drizzle.

A chilly overnight low of near the 30-degree mark is being predicted by the NWS. Winds out of the northeast at 10-20 mph will prevail through Tuesday.

Sunday's high of 60 was 26 degrees below the record high set for that date in 1942. Today's low, recorded at 12 a.m., was 30 degrees above the record low of 20 set for this date in 1950.

STATE

Temperatures are expected to plunge for sections of Texas tonight, with much colder weather expected in the Panhandle, South Plains and the western part of North Texas.

Early today, a weak cold front was stationary across extreme South Texas, stretching from the northwest Gulf of Mexico, across the coastal bend into the Rio Grande plains.

Scattered thundershowers were occurring over a small section of South Texas between San Antonio and Laredo. Meanwhile, dense fog was forming over parts of the Rio Grande Valley. Brownsville reported visibility was below a half mile overnight.

Elsewhere, skies were clear over the Panhandle and far West Texas while partly cloudy to mostly cloudy skies covered the rest of the state.

Showers and heavy thunderstorms drenched parts of South Texas along and either side of the frontal zone.

NATION

Bitter cold froze the North today with low temperatures breaking 75-year-old records and wind chills down to minus 50 as still more snow followed the season's first major snowstorm.

Snow fell from the northern and central Rockies to the northern Plains, the Great Lakes and northern Maine. Winds gusted over 40 mph in the Northeast, triggering gale warnings over three Great Lakes and the New England coast.

The first storm moved into Canada today after dumping up to 25 inches of snow on the Plains and Rockies over the weekend.

The bitter cold from eastern Oregon to the Great Lakes was produced by a large high-pressure system over Montana. Temperatures were below zero in most of Montana and sections of Wyoming and the Dakotas.

Charles Sims, right, thrift store manager at the Army and one of the few salaried employees, stores items in a warehouse facility to be "checked out" for a later sale. Next to Sims is Army worker Rusa Galinda. Items at the store, from clothing to furniture, are sold to the public at greatly discounted prices.

The Salvation Army, one of the most well-known and best-loved religious and charitable organizations in the world, has a very active unit in Midland, one that is gearing up for the glitter of Christmas while continuing to provide food, clothing, shelter, and spiritual guidance to those in need.

Maj. Harvey Harwell, commander of the local unit founded here in the 1950's, said several programs are planned for the Holiday season, including the Army's familiar "Christmas Cheer and Winter Relief": Officers ringing bells on the street and collecting donations in an oversized kettle. Harwell said applications also are being received for the "Dress a Live Doll" program. He said a person can sponsor a child and buy him or her new clothes, that are part of the Christmas gifts given just before Dec. 25.

A special toy and food distribution center will also be set up in December.

Regardless of any special programs, Harwell said the Army, with seven regular employees, including a social caseworker, continues to operate to provide daily necessities for those in need, especially in this area that has a struggling economy.

"Our welfare case load has increased 30 percent in three months," Harwell said. "The people who were helping us, we are helping now; but we always have friends. Whenever things get bad, we always find out that we have friends."

Harwell said the Army cannot help everyone in need — "We don't have enough income and we don't have enough goods," — but he did say the problem of the homeless, always well-publicized when cold weather arrives, is "less of a problem in Midland than in any place I've been."

Major Harvey Harwell of the Salvation Army, commanding officer of the local unit. Harwell, who has been in Midland for about 18 months, was the commander at the Texarkana unit before he came here.

The Army's transient lodge holds about 30 persons, and more if necessary. He said the lodge is usually full in the winter, especially when the weather is harsh.

"Our transient load has decreased significantly because of the economy, but local welfare cases have tripled," he said.

Harwell said a troubling problem caused by the economy is theft from the metal collection boxes. Harwell said some boxes have been removed, others will have to be manned, because persons are stealing from the boxes and re-selling the goods at garage or rummage sales. He said he hopes the problem will resolve itself.

Solar energy industry goes into 'cocoon'

AUSTIN (AP) — The once-bright prospects for solar energy in Texas have turned gloomy this year as sales of solar water heating equipment have plummeted and dozens of companies have shut their doors, officials say.

The industry was hit hard nationally when federal solar tax credits expired at the end of 1985. But business has been particularly bad in Texas, according to some industry officials.

The industry knew it would ail in Texas when the tax credits ended, but what was not anticipated was the sharp reduction in oil prices and the resulting effect on the Texas economy.

Even in Austin, where the city has promoted solar water heating through cash rebates and low-interest loans, sales have severely dropped, officials said.

More than 15 companies were selling solar units two years ago in Austin. Now there are three. Some have turned to air conditioning or related businesses and provide solar as a sideline. Others have shut down.

"We are very concerned about the solar industry in Austin because it is pretty much dead right now," Phil Barrett, manager of the rebates and incentives division for the city Resource Management Department, told the Austin American-Statesman.

"We still believe in the technology and want to push it, but we aren't getting any interest these days," he said.

Solar companies in other Texas cities are under a similar cloud, industry officials said.

"There is no doubt that the solar industry in Texas is flat on its back," said Mike Osborne, president of the Texas Renewable Energy Industries Association and head of Osborne Solar in Elgin.

"In Dallas, San Antonio and Houston there were probably 50 companies out there selling solar water heaters two years ago, and there are only a handful now," Osborne said.

The statewide industry organization, which had about 60 members two years ago, is down to 27 and probably will lose another 15 after the first of the year, Osborne said.

"The organization is pretty much going into a cocoon for now and will wait and see what happens," he added.

The renewable energy industry includes everything from solar electric cells to wind generators, but the big business in recent years has been the sale of equipment that uses the sun's energy to heat water and swimming pools.

Sales of solar units were spurred by a federal credit that allowed a 40 percent tax credit on purchases of up to $10,000 for renewable energy equipment. Despite heavy lobbying by the industry and environmental groups, solar tax credits were not extended this year.

"The companies knew something bad was going to happen when the credits ended, but that doesn't make it feel any better," said Scott Sklar, director of government relations for the Solar Energy Industries Association in Washington.

Nevertheless, Sklar and others are optimistic the industry will bounce back when energy costs go back up.

"We feel sure the tide is going to turn again," Sklar said.

National farm women group faces challenges

LUBBOCK (AP) — The new officers of the national Women Involved in Farm Economics organization will have to face some of the toughest challenges in their group's 10-year history, an agriculture official says.

Naioma Benson of Colorado was re-elected as president and Alice Parker of Washington state became first vice president Sunday at a ceremony during WIFE's annual convention.

Bob Bergland, who led the U.S. Department of Agriculture under the Carter administration and is now general manager of the National Rural Electric Co-op Association, told 200 WIFE members Saturday that their group was a constant presence in Washington over the last 10 years.

But he said WIFE faces even greater demands now because foreign nations once dependent on the United States for their food are becoming increasingly self-sufficient.

"Next year will be a wild one. ...There definitely will be a down-sliding in American agriculture. The question is, how will we solve it?"

— Bob Bergland

"Next year will be a wild one," Bergland said of farming's economic situation. "There definitely will be a down-sliding in American agriculture. The question is, how will we solve it?"

Bergland predicted that because Democrats gained control of the U.S. Senate in Tuesday's elections, there will be public hearings on the state of agriculture in the United States.

But he noted that one issue surely to be targeted in such hearings will be the enormous amounts of money being spent on the 1985 farm bill.

"Congress considers the farm bill a failure, and I don't know if they can change anything because they may not be able to override a veto," he noted. "It could be two years of a stalemate between Congress and the president.

"The deficits, the federal budget now will be the biggest item," he said. "It will be a political fight, a knock-down, drag-out battle royal."

WIFE was born in 1976 out of the economic hardships that have plagued the nation's Farm Belt for more than a decade.

"We have to figure out how we'll live in a world that we can't control," said Bergland. "The market-oriented export policy sounds real American, but it means that the American farmer will be competing with the peasant classes around the world — with $1-a-day wages."

Also elected to the WIFE board Sunday were Sheila Massey, second vice president, New Mexico; Wanda Zuroff, treasurer, Montana; and Shirley Ball, secretary, Montana.

Noah would be proud of modern-day shipment

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — Noah used an ark, but the people who are supplying a new zoo in Taiwan are using airplanes to transport giraffes, elephants, chimpanzees, zebras and other animals.

About twice a week, a special flight of 747s from China Air leaves Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport with some of what eventually will be 1,000 animals to be sent to Taiwan.

The new 400-acre Taipei City Zoo in Taiwan is expected to open in January. Total cost of the zoo, including purchase and transportation of animals, is estimated at $100 million.

The animals are being supplied by the International Animal Exchange of Michigan. It is one of the world's largest suppliers of exotic animals. The airlifts of the animals will take about three months and is about half complete.

The animals stay at the International Wildlife Park in Grand Prairie, owned by the International Animal Exchange, before the final leg of their journey, which is 15,000 miles and takes 24 hours.

Work on the various crates, boxes and other contraptions being used to transport the animals began five months ago.

"The crates were all custom-made to suit specific animals," said Ray Sutton, wildlife director at the Grand Prairie park. "Some will try to turn inside the crate and will require more room. But others are somewhat more nervous, and we want to confine their movements so they won't injure themselves."

Zebras don't travel well alone and must be shipped with other animals.

The duiker, an African antelope, was given a padded roof and special carpet so it would not slip during the journey.

Sarus cranes tend to jump straight up inside a container and need a fabric roof to prevent their bumping their heads. Rhinos, hippos and elephants are so strong that they need to be caged in steel pipes or iron slats.

A 10-foot-tall giraffe has a crate with a telescopic top.

To ease the transition, many of the animals are allowed to get used to their crates before being shipped, Sutton said. Most of them are fed before the trip, and they are fed again at a stopover in Anchorage.

About 80 percent of the animals are coming from other zoos in the United states, said Mickey Hunt, director of the International Wildlife Park.

"Twenty years ago, a contract like this would have required 50 percent of them to come out of the wild," Hunt said. "Today, about 50 percent of the work is done on paper."

Commercial vehicles to get permits

From Staff Reports

Beginning today, the Midland Police Department will be issuing permanent, non-transferable freight loading permits for commercial vehicles loading and unloading in the downtown area, according to Sgt. Jeff Marugg of the Traffic Division.

The permits, which cost $25, $12.50 after July 1, will allow parking in any place marked "freight loading zone," usually marked by signs or white painted curbs.

The permits, which must be displayed on the right hand side of vehicle windshields, will allow for 30 minute parking. Vehicles not displaying the permits will be towed.

Parking with the permits also will be allowed in public alleys between Missouri and Ohio Avenues, and between Main and Pecos Streets.

To be eligible for the permits, a registered vehicle must be commercial, with the name of the business painted on both sides. Magnetic signs on either side of the vehicle are acceptable.

The permits are available at the Midland Police Department, Traffic Division, 406 E. Texas St., 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Temporary permits are issued at no charge.

Mosquito population grows in city, bites may be dangerous

By JIM BROWN

Midland has been inundated with an increase in population...the mosquito population.

These little insects can make life miserable for humans and animals alike. Not only are they annoying, but their bite can be very dangerous. The bite of some species of mosquitoes transmit diseases such as malaria to man, encephalitis to man and horses and heartworm to dogs.

Mosquito control for Midland is the responsibility of the Midland Health Department, but residents can do a lot to aid in this control.

In Midland, mosquitoes breed during spring, summer and fall. Since mosquito eggs cannot hatch unless they are in water, it would be wise to eliminate any standing water on your premises. Insecticides may be used to kill larva, as well as adult mosquitoes. Below are some things to do to deter the growth of the mosquito population:

— Remove unneeded, temporary water containers.

— Flatten or dispose of tin cans.

— Drain or properly maintain swimming pools.

— Place tires in places where water cannot get into them.

— See that cisterns, cesspools, septic tanks, fire barrels, rain barrels and tubs, in which water is stored, are tightly covered.

— Empty and wash birdbaths weekly.

— Clean out rain gutters.

— Cut weeds and tall grass around your home.

Should you find mosquitoes inside your house, they may be eliminated with any good household spray designed for the control of flying insects indoors. Such sprays may contain pyrethrum.

Repellents should be used anytime mosquitoes are present outside and will usually protect humans for 1 to 5 hours. Care must be taken to keep the repellent away from the eyes, nostrils and lips. Since mosquitoes feed on any warm blooded animal, pets should be protected, if at all possible, and horses should be vaccinated against Western Equine Encephalitis.

The City of Midland's mosquito control program is based on informed action, not forced reaction. The surveillance program includes checking standing water for larva, knowledge of geographic areas that hold water for extended periods of time, physical trapping of adult mosquitoes for identification of breeds and for counts that show an increase or decrease of concentrations, environmental control through the use of mosquito larva eating minnows (gambusia) in the areas that hold water all year around, ground and, if necessary, aerial spraying for adult mosquito control, and larvaciding standing water.

Heavy rains during recent months have encouraged the growth of mosquitoes and they are in abundance.

The Midland Health Department asks for the help of all residents in locating and eliminating any potential breeding places of mosquitoes.

ARMY

Every Salvation Army officer is an ordained minister, and the organization is run in a "quasi-military fashion." The Midland unit is audited twice yearly, and inspection officers from the divisional headquarters in Dallas are periodic visitors.

Harwell said although the Army does have trouble attracting young people to the ministry, he said the organization is growing nevertheless.

"I would say the image of the Salvation Army is very high. It is almost frightening, because of the shoes they (new officers) are expected to fill."

The Salvation Army was founded by William Booth, a former Methodist minister, who conducted meetings to bring the Gospel to the poor in London's East End slums in 1865. He organized the Christian Mission, and in 1878, the name was changed to the Salvation Army.

It was organized in the United States in 1880.

Just recently Harwell said officers welcomed the first woman general, Eva Burrows, to hold the top post in the organization since the founder's daughter.

Dollar slides

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar fell against most major currencies in early trading today. Gold prices rose.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell against the Japanese yen for the second consecutive day, closing at 162.65 yen compared with Friday's 163. Later, in London, it was quoted at 162.55 yen.

Earlier, Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone said told Parliament 160-163 yen to the dollar was the range that reflected "the economic fundamentals" of the United States and Japan.

He was responding to an opposition legislator who urged the government to try to get the yen back to a 190-200 against the dollar to help small and medium-size companies. They have been hit by the yen's sharp rise, which makes their products expensive in the United States.

In September 1985, the dollar was trading at 242 yen.

Dollar rates against other major currencies at mid-morning, compared with late Friday:

—2.0505 West German marks, down from 2.0685

—1.7080 Swiss francs, down from 1.7260

—6.6895 French francs, down from 6.7500

—2.3290 Dutch guilders, down from 2.3350

—1,418.50 Italian lire, down from 1,427.25

—1.3872 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3867

In London, the dollar also fell against the British pound, which was quoted at $1.4390, more expensive than $1.4265 late Friday.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $408.60 a troy ounce, compared with late Friday's $408 and continued to rise in later trading. At mid-morning Monday, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $409.90.

In Zurich, the bid price was $409.20, up from $408.50 late Friday.

Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $5.80 dollars a troy ounce, up from late Friday's $5.76.

Business failures up 53 percent

HOUSTON (UPI) — The American Petroleum Institute holding its annual meeting here, has released a study showing that in the heart of the oil patch — Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas — business failures shot up by 53.1 percent in the first half of 1986 from the year-earlier.

"The stress in this region is largely a result of the downturn in the energy industry," the API said, quoting data compiled Dun & Bradstreet, the business research firm.

Bankruptcies in Texas, the largest oil-producing state, were up 57.1 percent in the third quarter of 1986 to 21,663, an API survey of U.S. district court clerks reveals.

Bankruptcies in Louisiana jumped 60 percent in the 1986 third quarter to 9,195. In Oklahoma the number of companies filing for protection under the bankrupty code soared 65.5 percent to 9,331.

In another measure of the deep recession that is gripping the oil states, unemployment in Texas on a seasonally unadjusted basis for August was 9.1 percent. Louisiana had a 12.3 percent jobless rate and Oklahoma had 9.2 percent unemployed.

The large oil states also are grappling with severe budget problems. Texas, during one of two special sessions of the Legislature this summer, reduced its projected $2.9 billion deficit for the two-year period that ends in August 1987 to $2.3 billion by a series of belt-tightening actions.

Louisiana has a $255 million deficit in the current fiscal year. Oklahoma faces a projected $331 million deficit under its current budget.

The oil industry trade group originally estimated as many as 2,000 industry and government delegates would attend the two-day meeting that was scheduled to open today at the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

"Attendance is lagging behind," an API spokesman said today. The number of actual delegates at the meeting will not be available until Tuesday, he said.

But the spokesman said the number of industry delegates preregistering for the conference was down by about 700, "which is symptomatic of the industry in general."

The mood in Houston was palpably different from the API's 1985 convention last November in San Franciso, which drew 2,400 delegates.

At that time, U.S. oil prices were about $28 dollars a barrel — just a month before the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries started a pricing war against outside producers.

OPEC will consider $18 per barrel price

KUWAIT (AP) — The OPEC pricing committee will meet in Ecuador at the end of the week to discuss Saudi Arabia's call for efforts to raise oil prices to $18 a barrel, Oil Minister Sheik Ali Khalifa al-Sabah said Sunday.

The Kuwaiti minister's statement was reported by the Kuwait News Agency. Sheik Ali heads the three-member committee. The other members are the oil ministers of Libya and Ecuador.

Saudi Arabia's proposal is aimed at getting the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to set a minimum $18 price per barrel. Prices currently range between $13 and $15.

No date was announced for the meeting, although Sheik Ali said it would take place at the end of the week. OPEC sources, who asked not to be identified further, said it likely would be held Thursday or Friday in Quito.

Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer called for the emergency meeting of the pricing committee immediately after being named by King Fahd to replace Ahmed Zaki Yamani on Oct. 30.

A full OPEC ministerial session is scheduled for Dec. 11 in Geneva.

At the Geneva meeting, the 13 members of the cartel are to discuss assigning permanent quotas to control output and maintain prices.

Unemployment steady, retail sales improving

By The Associated Press

The nationwide unemployment rate remained steady at 7.0 percent last month, primarily because the number of new jobs barely kept pace with the growing labor force, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said its monthly household survey showed a job growth of 349,000 after seasonal adjustments, offsetting an identical decline in September.

But the labor force grew by 360,000 last month, the first increase since June. In the past year, 2 million people have joined the labor force in search of work, nearly 75 percent of them women.

In a separate survey of business payrolls, employers reported adding 298,000 jobs in October, 175,000 of them in business and hospital services and in retail trade. But the household survey said that most of the growth — 228,000 jobs — was in part-time work.

On Thursday, the government said consumers are borrowing more rapidly than they are paying off debts, and the nation's major retailers major retailers reported sales improvements.

Analysts said the pickup in October retail sales owed a lot to stores that heavily promoted leftover fall merchandise that had not sold because of unseasonably warm weather.

Sears, Roebuck and Co., the largest retailer, said its sales for the four weeks ended Nov. 1 edged up 0.3 percent over the same period a year ago.

K mart Corp., the second largest retailer, reported an 11.2 percent spurt in sales, while third-ranked J.C. Penney Co. had an 8.7 percent gain.

Most of the strength came from a rise in auto loans as consumers borrowed heavily in response to attractive cut-rate financing deals offered by automakers seeking to reduce high inventories of unsold 1986 model cars.

Meanwhile, General Motors Corp. announced long-awaited plans to close 11 plants employing more than 29,000 workers in the next three years.

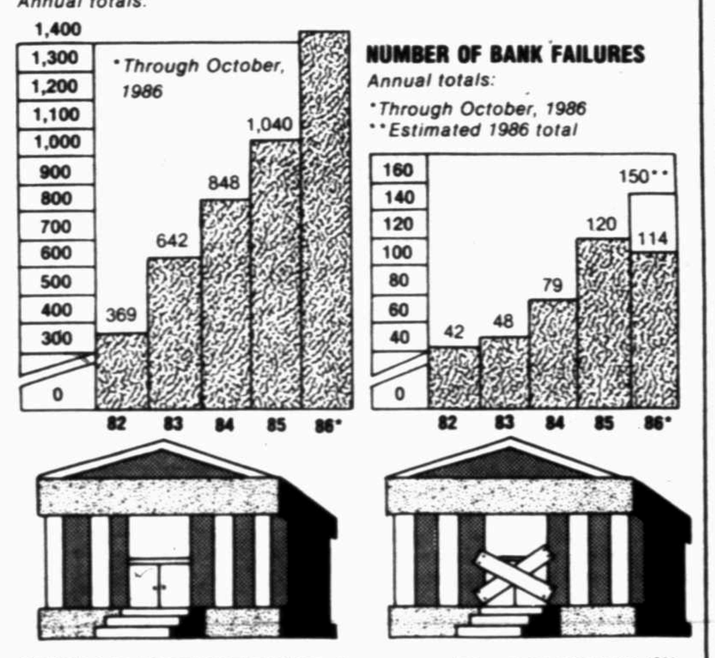

GM Chairman Roger Smith said Thursday that shutting down the three stamping, one body and seven final assembly plants in four states would reduce the automaker's fixed costs by $500 million a year.

The plants, in Michigan, Illinois, Ohio and Missouri, are older facilities, and most have been scheduled for shutdown for years as GM has invested in newer, more efficient plants and renovated some others.

In other economic reports —The nation's basic money supply rose $1.7 billion to a seasonally adjusted $704.2 billion in the week ended Oct. 27 from the previous week, the Federal Reserve reported.

Bank failures increasing

According to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), there have been 114 bank failures so far this year. This figure could top 150 failures by the end of 1986 -- the highest level in the last five years. Also growing rapidly is the number of "problem" banks, which has risen from 369 in 1982 to a current total of 1,456. (A "problem" bank is an institution with a ranking of four or five on the FDIC's one-to-five rating system: four being "having a potential for failure," while five is "having a high probability of failure.")

Distributor opens recycling center

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

Recycling is a "win-win" situation for both the community and the environment, according to Permian Distributing Co.

The firm today opened an aluminum recycling center at its facilities at 1 Coors Lane near Midland Air Terminal. In addition to the 24 cents per pound paid to individuals bringing in cans for recycling, Permian will make contributions to the Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center (PBRC) and other charitable organizations based on the total poundage of aluminum recovered in the area, according to Randy Howell, marketing administrator for the company.

"The recycling center is an important demonstration of our area's grassroots level participation in keeping the community clean and conserving the raw natural resources needed to produce sheet aluminum," Howell announced at a press conference this morning. Officials of both the Midland and Odessa chambers of commerce, the PBRC, Moseley Equipment Co., which manufactured the densifier machine installed at the center, and Odessa Mayor Don Carter were on hand for the announcement of the center's opening.

Initially the facility will be manned by a single full-time employee from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. But Howell forsees four to six full- and part-time employees being utilized once satellite collection centers are opened in Midland and Odessa by mid-December.

"With the help of Stroh's recycling operations, we have been able to install the $30,000 densifier," Howell said. Compacted aluminum from the local plant will be trucked to Longview for recycling at the Stroh's plant there, he added.

Bank of America will sell Schwab unit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — BankAmerica Corp. announced Thursday that it would sell its discount brokerage, Charles Schwab & Co., if the right buyer comes up with the right price.

Company founder Charles Schwab issued a statement that he would submit a buyout bid for the firm he started in 1971 and sold to BankAmerica in 1983 for $53 million in stock.

Schwab spokesman Hugo Quackenbush said Schwab might lead an investment group in bidding for the company, which analysts valued at $260 million to $312 million.

Quackenbush said Schwab could not finance the purchase of his company alone, but that he could put together an investment group to buy the company and keep himself in control.

BankAmerica spokesman John Keane declined comment on an overture from Schwab. He also did not comment on overtures about the discount brokerage from other companies, including First Interstate Bancorp, which recently made a $3.4 billion buyout offer to BankAmerica.

Several analysts have speculated that First Interstate was particularly interested in Schwab and that the sale of the company would help turn off First Interstate's interest and thwart a possible hostile takeover bid.

Among other banks with a reported interest in Schwab are Citicorp and Security Pacific. Citicorp declined comment, and a spokeswoman for Security Pacific said it has had no talks with BankAmerica about buying Schwab, although she didn't rule out an offer.

Keane for the first time identified three "basic strategic objectives" for BankAmerica, the nation's second-largest bank holding company, as it tries to recover from more than $1 billion in losses over the past 18 months:

— To be the principal bank in the western United States.

— To be the pre-eminent international bank operating in world markets, focusing exclusively on network customers, which use banks in several areas.

— To own and operate a portfolio of businesses in the financial services area which are created, acquired, improved, operated, and either retained or sold in order to maximize earnings.

"Schwab falls into the latter category," Keane said. "It's an excellent company providing needed services in a professional and innovative manner. Assuming a suitable purchaser ready to recognize the full value of the company, we would consider the sale of Schwab. If not, Schwab is a good profit contributer to the corporation and could be expected to remain so."

A.W. Clausen, who last month returned as chairman and chief executive officer of the beleaguered bank, has said he and senior management would concentrate on identifying the company's "core businesses" and sell those subsidiaries that were not among them.

Jim McDermott, senior vice president and director of research for Keefe, Bruyette & Woods, Inc. in New York, said Schwab is among BankAmerica's more profitable businesses with about $25 million in net income expected this year.

Schwab had 1985 net revenue of $160 million and after-tax net income of $11.4 million.

State Land Office seeks royalties from oil leases

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas land commissioner's office is sending out bills totaling $17 million to retrieve oil royalties the office says it is owed under Relinquishment Act of 1919.

Under that act, the state sold millions of acres of Texas land, but retained the mineral right to benefit the Permanent Free School Fund. Texas agreed to split the royalties with the surface landowner as a fee for acting as the state's agent in hand oil and gas leases.

But officials with the land commission and the state attorney general's office believe millions of dollars in state funds may have been bilked by investors who failed to pay the state its share of royalties, The Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

A special audit by Land Commissioner Gary Mauro's office examined 34 of Texas' 2,900 state oil and gas leases and showed more than $10 million was due from companies like Tenneco Oil Co., Samedan Oil Corp. and Oxy Petroleum.

Mauro then persuaded the Legislature to appropriate $3 million for a special auditing crew that would further examine the state's leases.

John Hall, the deputy land commissioner who is directing the audits, said $13.3 million has been recovered from oil companies and an additional $17 million in billings will be sent out this year.

Another 10 audits scheduled in April may yield as much as $17 million, Hall said.

A small tract of West Texas land may be the stage for an enormous legal battle between the state and the surface landowners. The land office is seeking $90 million in royalties it says were illegally siphoned by surface owners.

According to court records, the state sold a 24-acre tract of land, known as the Yates field, to John M. Tyler under the Relinquishment Act. Immediately after the purchase, Tyler deeded the property to M.H. Reed, a business associate.

State officials allege Reed then shuffled the deed through individuals and corporations that he controlled in order to increase his take of the royalties.

With each transfer, Reed, the individuals and the companies increased their take of the royalties until they were earning 10 times the state's share, according to court records.

Austin lawyer Roy Minton, who represents the land owners, said the state's efforts are misguided.

"They're out to lunch," he said. "The state participated in this for 52 years. They knew all about it. That oil and gas lease is ... good."

Trans-Pecos SPE to hear talk on risk evaluation

The Trans-Pecos section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers will hold its November meeting on Nov. 12 at Mission Country Club. The meeting will begin at 11:30 a.m., and the speaker will be L.D. (Buddy) Sipes.

Sipes, an SPE Distinguished Lecturer for 1986-87 is an independent oil operator from Midland. He will focus on "Assessing Risks in Reserves and Property Evaluation" at the meeting. Risk is an ever-present problem in the estimation and valuation of oil and gas reserves, and affects all facets of the process. He will discuss the different types of risk, from reservoir heterogeneity to foreign exchange rates and political stability.

Sipes earned a bachelor's degree in petroleum engineering from Texas Tech in 1957 and joined Core Laboratories, Inc. as a consulting engineer. In 1966 he joined Williamson & Associates and was a principal until 1984. He has been involved in prospect evaluations, reservoir studies, reserve estimates, property evaluations, acquisitions and production operations.

Greyhound finals labor pact

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Negotiators for Greyhound Lines Inc. and 7,500 employees have agreed to a two-year contract containing at least $27 million in wage cuts and other concessions, according to a report published today.

The proposed pact, which would cover bus drivers and mechanics and must be ratified by the union membership, includes a lower wage scale for bus drivers hired after Nov. 1, The Arizona Republic reported.

The 24-member Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions, which includes union presidents from around the country, met Sunday night in Scottsdale to decide whether to recommend the proposal to union members.

Under the agreement, drivers' wages would be cut by about 9 percent, the newspaper reported.

It would be the second time that the union has granted concessions to the Phoenix-based bus line. The current contract, ratified after a bitter 47-day strike in 1983, included a reduction of about 15 percent in wage and benefits.

That contract expired Oct. 31, but both sides have agreed to abide by its terms. Since Friday, either side could end the talks by giving 72 hours' notice, but there have been no preparations for a strike.

Greyhound Lines spokesman Herb Doherty declined comment Sunday night and the Amalgamated Council's president Domenick Sirignano could not be immediately reached for comment.

The bus line's parent company, Greyhound Corp., has threatened to sell the subsidiary unless the union grants more concessions.

The bus line employs about 10,000 people and operates 3,000 buses serving 15,000 locations in 48 states. It reported an operating profit last year before taxes of about $30 million on revenues of about $710 million.

Survey shows gasoline price decline stabilizing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The decline in gasoline prices may be coming to an end, according to the latest Lundberg Survey, which found the average pump price down only a tenth of a cent in the past two weeks.

A survey of 15,000 gas stations nationwide found the average price of all grades, plus taxes, at 84.63 cents per gallon on Friday, compared to an average 84.73 cents Oct. 24.

"The price decline has slowed and may now be halting," said Trilby Lundberg, publisher of the bi-monthly survey. "The drop was only a tiny portion of one cent per gallon, which was expected due to wholesale trends the past two weeks."

"It's very difficult to project either a rise or a fall from this apparent stabilization," she said by telephone from Houston. "Prices could fluctuate up or down for the rest of the season despite some strengthening in the crude oil market."

The survey found the average self-serve price of regular leaded gasoline at 71.56 cents a gallon, regular unleaded at 76.56 cents and premium unleaded at 91.13 cents.

At full-service pumps, regular leaded sold for $1.016, regular unleaded for $1.0726 and premium unleaded for $1.1658.

FSLIC needs priority treatment, official says

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The chairman of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions says the industry could support a scaled-down proposal to pump new money into the agency that insures depositors' savings.

Gerald J. Levy, head of the largest lobbying group for savings institutions, said Congress must make rescue of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. "one of its highest priorities when it convenes in January."

Levy's remarks, prepared for delivery today, came at the start of the league's annual convention.

The league had been supporting a plan to raise an estimated $15 billion over three years to replenish FSLIC's badly depleted coffers.

However, Levy said it might be advisable to adopt an approach suggested by Senate banking leaders that would re-fund FSLIC for just one year with an additional $3 billion with an option of adding more money later.

He said this scaled-back approach would meet the industry's immediate need while alleviating fears that a permanent program might force regulators into hasty closings of some institutions.

"The idea was to give the regulators enough tools to operate through the coming year, but not so much that the circuits would be overloaded," he said. "Congress would continue to monitor the conduct of the program and be able to modify it to any extent necessary."

The FSLIC insures about $800 billion in deposits at more than 3,200 S&Ls. However, the agency has warned that its reserves could fall to as low as $1 billion by the end of this year, about $29 billion short of what FSLIC may need to close or merge failed S&Ls over the next few years.

The FSLIC, which insures individual deposits up to $100,000, is so strapped for cash that regulators have had to keep technically insolvent S&Ls operating because they don't have the funds to close them.

Both the House and Senate passed versions of an FSLIC rescue bill in the closing days of the last session but were unable to resolve differences over unrelated banking issues dealt with in the measures.

In his report on the health of the industry, Levy said 1986 and 1987 both promise to be years of "strong profits and a good operating environment" as interest rates are expected to remain near current low levels.

Estimates of overall industry profits range as high as $6.5 billion this year, a substantial turnaround from a $4.6 billion loss suffered in 1981.

Declining interest rates are given much of the credit for the improvement. S&Ls have to pay less to depositors at the same time the lower rates boost the profitability of their main business — making home mortgage loans.

But still, hundreds of S&Ls, many of them in farming and energy regions, have been hurt by bad loans.

"We really have two industries," Levy said in an interview . "We have 2,600 institutions earning at almost historic levels. ... The problem is with the other 600 institutions."

Hearst executive named nation's top publisher

NEW YORK — Gilbert C. Maurer, president of Hearst Magazines Division and executive vice president of Hearst Corp., has been elected "Publisher of the Year" for 1986 by the executive committee of the Magazine Publishers Association (MPA).

Maurer will receive the magazine industry's most prestigious honor — the Henry Johnson Fisher Award — at a formal dinner at The Waldorf-Astoria in New York, Jan. 12, 1987.

Hearst Magazines Division publishes 12 titles: Good Housekeeping, Cosmopolitan, Harper's Bazaar, House Beautiful, Redbook, Town & Country, Connoisseur, Popular Mechanics, Sports Afield, Country Living, Colonial Homes and Motor Boating & Sailing.

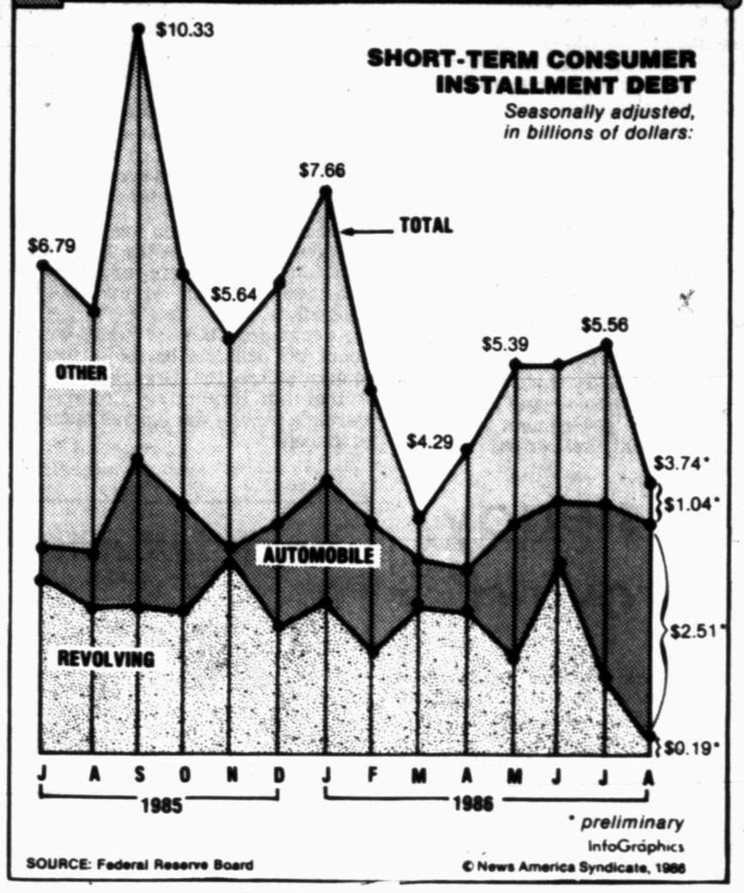

According to Emory O. Cunningham, chairman of the MPA selection committee, "Maurer was selected because of his outstanding leadership and vision in the development of magazine opportunities."

Maurer joined Hearst in February 1973 as vice president in charge of the motor division. Sixteen months later, he was promoted to executive vice president of the Hearst Magazines Division. He was named president in December 1976 and became chief executive a year later. In June 1985, he was elected executive vice president of The Hearst Corp.

Maurer joins a distinguished list of earlier recipients of the Fisher Award including DeWitt Wallace of Readers Digest, Henry Luce of Time, Inc., Richard Berlin of The Hearst Corp., Edward Weeks of The Atlantic, Arnold Gingrich of Esquire, Roy Larsen of Time, Inc., Richard Deems of Hearst Magazines, Malcolm Forbes of Forbes, Inc. and Ambassador Walter Anneberg of Triangle Publications, Inc.

U.S. consumer installment debt

Short-term installment debt dropped in August, according to preliminary figures from the Federal Reserve Board, although one component, automobile loans, grew substantially. Generally, short-term installment debt has been lower this year than in 1985.

Retailers post gain on rise in consumer debt

From Staff and Wire Reports

Consumers are borrowing more rapidly than they are paying off their debts, the federal government says. The nation's retailers, meanwhile, report signs of life at the cash register.

Americans took out $8.37 billion more in consumer debt than they paid off in September for the biggest advance in a year, the Federal Reserve Board said.

The gain meant consumer credit was growing at an annual rate of 17.4 percent in September following much smaller increases of $3.39 billion in August and $5.56 billion in July.

Most of the strength came from a rise in auto loans as consumers borrowed heavily in response to attractive cut-rate financing deals offered by automakers seeking to reduce high inventories of unsold 1986 model cars.

Analysts said the pickup in October retail sales owed a lot to stores that heavily promoted leftover fall merchandise that had not sold because of unseasonably warm weather.

The strong pickup in sales last month points to a good Christmas season for the nation's major retailers, financial analysts say.

The companies should see a 6 percent gain in sales and a profit increase in the low double digits during the five weeks following Thanksgiving, the analysts said Thursday after big retailers released October sales reports.

In a good sign for consumers, the analysts predicted retailers will push their merchandise hard with price promotions during the holidays, even though their inventories are lean.

"I think the consumer remains value-oriented, which leads one to believe that it will be a very promotional Christmas," said Walter Loeb, a retail analyst with the investment firm Morgan Stanley & Co.

"Sales were good," said Jeffrey Edelman, a retail analyst with the Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. "It suggests the economy is still moving along."

Permian Basin Cook-off benefits food lovers, worthy causes

Ron Jaap/Reporter-Telegram

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

West Texas' four most famous attributes — food, fun, hospitality and generosity — teamed up Saturday as the 1986 Permian Basin Cook-off kicked off at Midland County Exhibit Building.

This year the annual fund-raiser benefitted the Epilepsy Association of West Texas, the National Multiple Sclerosis Association Pemian Basin Chapters and Crimestoppers of Midland and Ector Counties.

The cook-off began two years ago by "several people who are current officers" of the board, said sponsorship committee member Loretta Fields, "who discussed the possiblity of raising funds for agencies not covered by United Way." The event was designed to serve as a supplement to the United Way, she said. Agencies chosen to receive the funds raised by the cook-off "do not have any operating capital outside of donations. We select the agencies that we sponsor every year based on the board's decision."

About $15,000 was raised by Saturday's cook-off, Ms. Fields said. In this year's cook-off, 61 teams competed by preparing either chili, brisket, fajitas or pork ribs, Ms. Fields said. Judging the event is considered serious business, she added. "We try to go back to the same judges year after year. We have been blessed with people who help us — they try to take it seriously."

Julio Pena won the Best Cooking Rig award; Showmanship was won by The Assblasters, with captains David Barnes and Wynn Poss.

In the chili division, first-place winning team was General Zapata's Lunch Bunch, captained by Johnny Huddleston. Winners in the pork rib division was the team from Omega Treating Chemicals, with captain Robert Beeson. Brisket division was won by Tres Banditos, captained by James Ash; and fajita division winners were from Petco Fishing and Rental, with captain Marl Freeman.

Chili judges were David Cobos, Sheriff Bob Brookshire, Darrel Ward, Carroll Thomas, Mary Mitchell and Bill Mitchell. Judges of the pork ribs were Carl Bond, Timber Floyd, Gordon Tate and Guy Hammer. In the brisket division, judging was done by Joe Weatherby, Jeff Sharifi, Bob Garvin, Steve Halvorsen, Lee Johnson and Larry Rankin. Fajitas were judged by Jack Rustamier, Larry Kington, Larry Clark, Mike Killman, Jan Campis and B. Mitchell.

In addition, the event featured children's booth, concessions, raffle and door prizes.

"We try to get imaginative door prizes," said Ms. Fields. This year the Cookers' Grand Prize was four tickets to the Dallas Maverick/Houston Rockets basketball game scheduled for March 14, 1987, including two rooms for two nights in the Ramada Inn and four round-trip airline tickets — won by KMID-TV's team.

Other door prizes included a western dance session donated by Suzie Hitchcock, week-end trip for two to Inn of the Mountain Gods in Ruidoso, N.M., donated by Inn of the Mountain Gods management; an autographed copy of the book "Iacocca," donated by Lee Iacocca; an autographed cookbook donated by Paul Newman and Newman's Own; and a mini trampouline donated by Dr Pepper and Texas Refreshments. Grand prizes included an autographed album "Back to the Country" and a black satin monogramed windbreaker donated by Charley Pride.

Nostalgic toys for adults

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Lisa Smith hadn't ventured 10 feet into the Urban Outfitters store at 20 University Place before she saw something she wanted in a plastic bin: a six-inch replica of Dudley Do-Right, the television-cartoon Mountie, in his red and blue uniform.

"I'll get this one, you get that one," Smith said to a friend, pointing to another miniature of a cartoon character, Underdog, with a detachable blue cape.

"I suppose the appeal is that these things remind me of when I was younger," said Smith, who is 19 years old.

Stores that sell toys and novelties are pulling adults by their heartstrings back to the days when "The Bullwinkle Show" was tops on television and getting a new yo-yo was tantamount to winning the lottery.

Gwen Duser, housewares and gifts buyer for the Philadelphia-based Urban Outfitters Inc., said: "I look for toys that would have a nostalgia appeal to our customers, who usually range from about 20 to 35 years old. We started carrying them about five years ago, and since then the business has more than tripled."

Urban Outfitters, with other branches in Cambridge, Mass., and Washington, also carries spinning tops, yo-yos and candy cigarettes, as well as inflatable animals modeled after children's animal crackers and packed in the same kind of box. "The animals you grew up with can be with you forever," reads the box. "Each friendly animal is lifelike for creative playtimes."

Sometimes the nostalgic borders on the trendy, with toys like the miniature Gumby, a 1960s television character revived in recent years in routines by the comedian Eddie Murphy.

Some popular toys at Urban Outfitters have no links to the past, among them the Happy Burp Day Pig that belches loudly when squeezed, or the inflatable palm tree, dinosaur and Christmas tree that double as punching bags.

Most of these toys sell for less than $5. However, some customers are willing to pay top dollar for a good flashback. At the Children of Paradise store, 154 Bleecker Street, near Sullivan, for example, you can purchase for $90 a replica of the robot from the 60s "Lost in Space" television series that lights up and yells, "Danger, Danger!" The marshmallow man in a sailor suit who made a cameo appearance in the popular movie "Ghostbusters" sells for $55.

Nathan Cohen, owner and president of The Last Wound-Up Inc., a chain of stores specializing in wind-up toys, says the whole concept behind his stores is nostalgia.

"People have been living in a push-button world so long that they want to actually wind something up," Cohen said in his store at 290 Columbus Avenue, at 73d Street. "With a wind-up toy, you're giving life."

Cohen seems to delight in demonstrating his plastic and metal toys for customers. To further the cause of dalliance, he has written "The Tin Commandments":

1. Don't postpone joy.
2. Toy with your future and spring to life.
3. He who winds up first will never wind up last.
4. Wind-ups spring eternal.
5. Those who hate toys hate themselves.
6. Those who hate themselves hate others.
7. Toys don't hate.
8. Today is the only day. Invest in NOW.
9. Youth has nothing to do with age.
10. Buy toys, not medicine.

DEAR ABBY

Other's letters are music to woman's ears

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing all those letters from people who keep hearing music in their heads. I am one. I am now 76, and never told others because I was afraid of what they might think. I have been a nurse for more than 50 years and had never heard of this condition; I feared that maybe I was experiencing senility. I was truly relieved after reading in your column that many others had the same experience.

During my waking hours I hear hymns and waltzes. All the waltzes I loved to dance to are drifting through my mind. Now I can tell my doctor about it and not be afraid that he will look at me, shake his head and think, "Poor soul. She is really failing!" — EMILIE IN BUCKS COUNTY

DEAR EMILIE: You would not believe the number of letters from readers who had also been hearing things and doubted their sanity. One man said he nearly went crazy because he heard bees buzzing continually in one ear — night and day. Another said he heard constant crackling sounds, like bacon frying. A woman heard "chirping" of crickets. Still another said it sounded like a freight train was roaring through her head. All thought they were going mad.

The constant sounds are due to a condition called "tinnitus," but the musical hallucinations are yet another matter. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: It was interesting seeing all the letters sent to you by people with musical hallucinations.

The two cases I describe in my book, "The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat," were rather rare and special examples of musical epilepsy associated with damage to the brain. But musical hallucinations are relatively common, especially in older people, and though they should be checked out, nearly always turn out to be benign — a nuisance, but not necessarily a sign of neurological disease.

Readers should be assured about this. Yours sincerely, OLIVER SACKS, M.D., PROFESSOR OF NEUROLOGY, ALBERT EINSTEIN COLLEGE OF MEDICINE, BRONX, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to my son who lives in Alaska and told him that I appreciated his thoughtfulness in sending me flowers twice a year (on Mother's Day and my birthday) for the last 25 years, but I would prefer instead subscriptions to magazines dealing with science and psychology.

When he called last week to wish me a "Happy 70th birthday," I said, "I hope you were not offended by my request."

His reply: "Write to Dear Abby."

Was I out of line with my request? If so, is there a tactful way to make things right again? Your column runs in The Anchorage Times, and he appears to be a fan, so maybe you can put in a good word for me. — HIS MOTHER IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR MOTHER: You were not out of line for stating your preference. Your son is too big (and far away) for you to spank, but I think he owes you thanks (not criticism) for your honesty. Write again and let me know if this helps. And if I've made matters worse, I'll try to patch things up in person when I go to Anchorage next spring.

CONFIDENTIAL TO A CONVICTED FELON WHO HAS SERVED HIS TIME IN CALIFORNIA: You may vote if your offense did not relate to any violation of the voting laws, and you are not on parole.

Before registering, you will be asked:

1. Are you 18 years old or over?
2. Are you an American citizen?
3. Have you lived in the county 29 days before the election you want to vote in?
4. Are you on parole for a felony?

If you have any further questions concerning voting, call your registrar-recorder's office.

California woman makes ultimate lemon meringue pie

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The California woman whose lemon meringue pie was named "THE American pie" says she became a good cook through patience and study in order to keep her husband's mind off his mother's cooking.

Cecelia Rubio's pie won over confections from 49 other states in a recent contest sponsored by Family Circle magazine and Crisco. The 33-year-old homemaker from Perris, who competed against the likes of a Wisconsin police detective and a nun from Montana, won a diamond ring, a dozen red roses and a trip to New York City with country music star Loretta Lynn.

The judges cited the appearance and light and airy texture of Mrs. Rubio's creation, garnished with gumdrops, mint leaves and lemon curls.

"Of all the pies we tasted, this one was just right for the way people are eating today," said Karen Theroux, a home economics magazine editor.

Jean Hewitt, food editor of Family Circle, said the declaration doesn't mean lemon meringue pie will become the American eagle of pastries.

"We were looking for one very special pie that America would love — that America would make," said Ms. Hewitt, foreman of the 10-judge panel.

Forgotten Heisman Trophy winner ruins Cowboys

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

IRVING — Former Heisman Trophy winners were running or hobbling all over Texas Stadium Sunday - Marcus Allen, Tony Dorsett, Herschel Walker - but it was the one most had forgotten about who decided the game.

Jim Plunkett, the 38-year-old quarterback who seemed destined to spend his 17th NFL season pining away on the bench, took over the Raiders' offense in the second half to lead the Los Angeles Raiders to a 17-13 win over the mistake-prone Dallas Cowboys.

The Cowboys threatened to blow the Raiders back to Oakland in a first half of squandered opportunities in which three touchdowns were called back. Seven times Dallas pierced inside the Los Angeles 20 and came away with just 10 points.

If it hadn't been for those misdemeanors, the five interceptions Steve Pueller suffered would of been of little consquence.

Plunkett, taking over for the distressed Marc Wilson to start the second half, guided the Raiders to two second half touchdowns, both coming on passes to Dokie Williams.

Williams out-leaped three Cowboy defenders in the end zone to haul down the winning TD with 10:45 left in the game.

"I went up with him and when I looked back for the ball, the lights got in my eyes," alibied defensive back Ron Fellows. "When I came down and looked around, I saw him on the ground hugging the ball."

Plunkett's performance created a quarterback controversy in Los Angeles as writers pressed coach Tom Flores as to who would start next week.

Perhaps the only reason there wasn't a quarterback controversy on the Cowboys, despite a club tying five interceptions by Pelluer, was because Danny White is out indefinitely with a broken wrist.

Asked if this was his worst game ever, Pelluer admitted "it was pretty bad." And pressed, if he gained any experience that might help him in later games, Pelluer replied, "I don't know whether it will help me in the future, but it sure didn't do me any good today."

Pelluer added he still felt he could lead this team to the Super Bowl, but there wasn't a Cowboy who didn't believe it would take a sweep of the remaining games to reach the playoffs.

Pelluer, 14 of 30 for 168 yards and no touchdowns, could be considered the goat. He just as easily could have been the hero, just as he could have been a week ago against the Giants. Only his teammates kept it from being so.

It was almost as if the Cowboys, to a man, resented the ink offensive tackle Phil Pozderac received after his attention-holding performance of a week ago in that loss to the Giants.

But this was one bumbled effort that couldn't be blamed on Phil. He never got off the bench.

"The first half was very frustrating," coach Tom Landry reflected. "We made too many errors to win the football game. We had five interceptions and I don't know how many costly penalties (nine for 76 yards).

"Every time we put the ball in the end zone, something would happen."

Pelluer turned out to be the victim of the Cowboys' ineptitude, but readily admitted the interceptions were the result "of bad judgment on my part."

With the score 3-3 after Chris Bahr matched Rafael Septien's 21-yard field goal on the first Cowboy possession of the game with a 45-yarder of his own with 13:14 left in the half, Pelluer's troubles begin.

Dallas drove to the Raider 10. After a sack to the 19, Pelluer scrambled to the one that set up what looked like a cinch touchdown, but Walker, diving over the middle, fumbled and the Raiders recovered.

Moments later Fellows returned a mid-field interception of Raider quarterback Wilson from the end zone, reaching the 32.

Three plays later, Dorsett burst up the middle for 13 yards to make it 10-3 with 7:05 left in the half.

"I got some great blocks at the line and it was like the ocean parted," Dorsett said.

Dallas was to score twice more before intermission. Neither one would count.

Pelluer scrambled 25 yards for a touchdown that was wiped out when guard Glen Titensor was detected holding. Soon after Everson Walls picked off Wilson and returned 54 yards for a touchdown that was scratched by an Ed Jones illegal block.

Bobby Layne enters hospital

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Hall of Fame quarterback Bobby Layne, who led the Detroit Lions to three NFL titles in the 1950s and was an All-American at the University of Texas, was listed in stable condition at a hospital here.

Layne, 59, was taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital late Saturday with a liver problem, said Nick Kerbawy, commissioner of the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame and the Lions' general manager from 1948 to 1958.

Layne was resting comfortably Sunday night and had been joined by his family, hospital spokeswoman Madge Lawson said. She declined to provide specific information about Layne's medical condition.

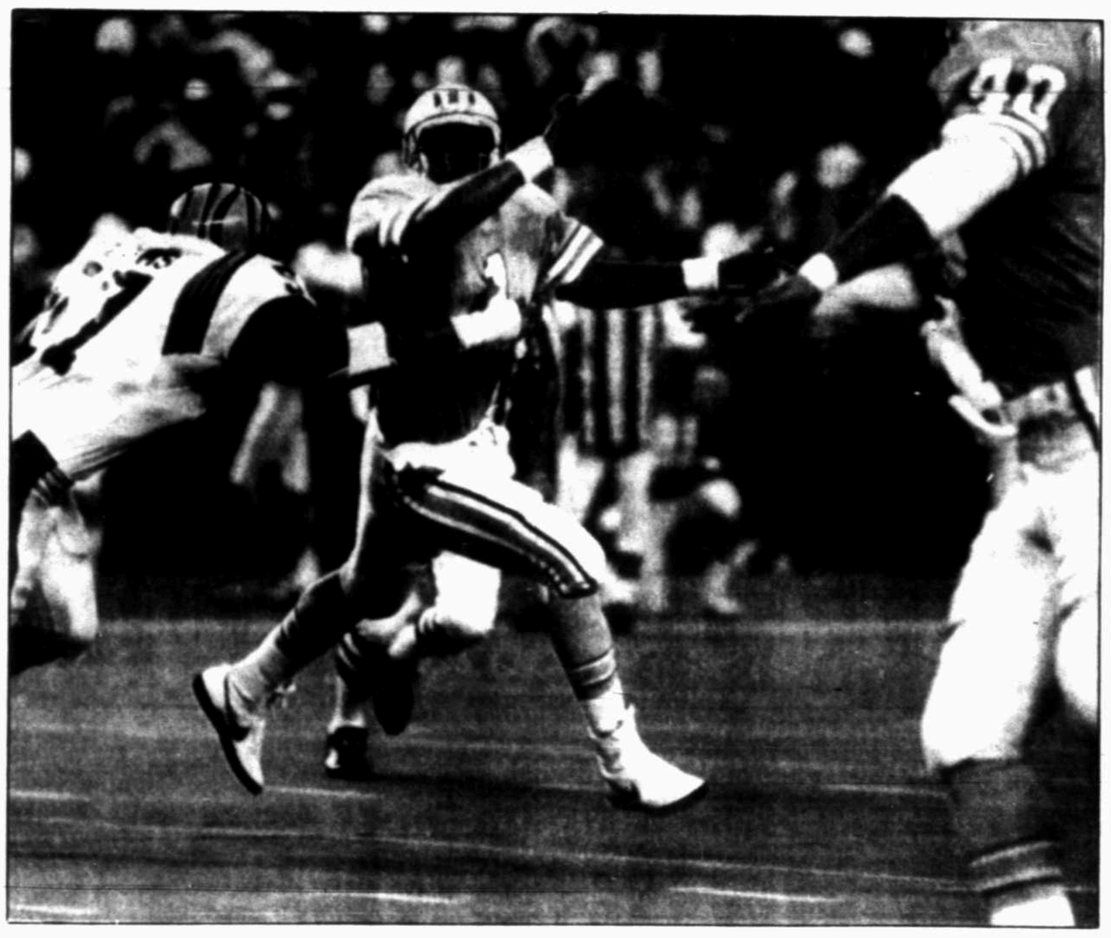

Kerbawy said, however, that Layne had received a blood transfusion Sunday and would remain at the hospital three or four days for tests.

"It's very serious, very serious," Kerbawy said, but added: "That Layne is strong. He's a tough kid."

Visiting Layne at the hospital late Sunday were his wife, Carol, of Lubbock, Texas, and sons Robert Jr. of Dallas and Allan of Oklahoma City, Kerbawy said.

Layne had flown from his home in Lubbock to Pontiac with former Lion Doak Walker and Cloyce Box to attend the team's annual alumni festivities, Kerbawy said. Layne returned to his hotel from an alumni dinner Saturday night and later was taken to the hospital, Kerbawy said.

Moon rises in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston quarterback Warren Moon has proved what he's been saying for eight straight weeks of losses: He can complete passes if he gets protection.

Moon was sacked only once and he responded by completing 25 of 44 passes for 310 yards and one touchdown Sunday to lead the Oilers to a 32-28 victory over Cincinnati, snapping an eight-game losing streak.

"We did a great job of protecting early and that was the key to the game," said Moon, who has been sacked 29 times this season. "I think from here we can salvage the season and get some respectability."

TONY ZENDEJAS kicked four field goals, including two in the tense second half, and rookie Ray Wallace scored on two 1-yard runs.

Moon hit his first seven passes of the game and the Oilers were ahead 19-0 at the half.

Houston went ahead 26-0 on Wallace's second touchdown early in the third quarter, but had to hold off a Cincinnati rally led by Boomer Esiason, who was benched at the start of the third quarter but returned to throw three touchdown passes.

"I reminded our players at halftime that we are a quick-striking ball club and we went out and played an up-tempo game in the second half," Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche said.

Ken Anderson replaced Esiason to start the third quarter and hit Larry Kinnebrew with a 29-yard touchdown pass before leaving the game with a shoulder bruise.

Esiason returned and completed touchdown passes of 39 and 8 yards to James Brooks and 5 yards to Anthony Munoz on a tackle eligible play.

ESIASON THREW a 39-yard touchdown pass to Brooks on the first play after Anderson was injured. Esiason then returned to the sidelines and slammed his helmet to the ground.

"He didn't like coming out," Wyche said. "But the team needed something. The obvious place to make a move is quarterback. It's the most dramatic position on the field to make a move."

Zendejas kicked field goals of 42 and 25 yards in the first half and his kicks of 30 and 46 yards in the second half provided the winning margin.

Oilers offensive tackle Bruce Matthews was happy with the new mix of passing and running plays.

"We mixed it up well and didn't have any long yardage situations," Matthews said. "It's still not as good as it should have been. It's not relief. It's just wondering why we didn't do this all along."

Moon completed 10 passes for 185 yards to Drew Hill, one of only two healthy Oilers receivers.

"I told the guys on the line 'you block and I'll catch,'" Hill said. "I guess the coaches cringed everytime Mike (Akiu) and I got hit."

Cincinnati, 6-4, missed its last chance in the final minutes.

'King Arthur' lifts 49ers' title hopes

Associated Press

Joe Montana's return to the San Francisco 49ers was right out of a storybook. After seeing his season nearly ended by a back injury, the quarterback returned to the NFL battlefield with a near-perfect day.

"It was just the fact that we had him," veteran guard Randy Cross said after Montana returned from career-threatening back surgery and led the 49ers to a 43-17 NFL victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday. "Armies work hard for Lancelot but they work even harder for King Arthur."

Despite advice from doctors that 55 days after surgery was too soon to return, Montana completed 13 of 19 passes for 270 yards, including touchdown passes of 45, 40 and 44 yards to wide receiver Jerry Rice.

"I got hit hard enough to test me," Montana said, but he added that he felt no pain or soreness after playing just over three quarters. He was sacked once, but the Cardinals were penalized twice for roughing the passer.

Montana was the driving force behind a San Francisco offense that clicked in all areas. The 49ers had 164 yards rushing, 64 more than their average, and Joe Cribbs had his first 100-yard game this season with 105 on 21 carries.

"Joe Montana played beautifully," Coach Bill Walsh said. "With Joe back we just seemed to be much more in synch."

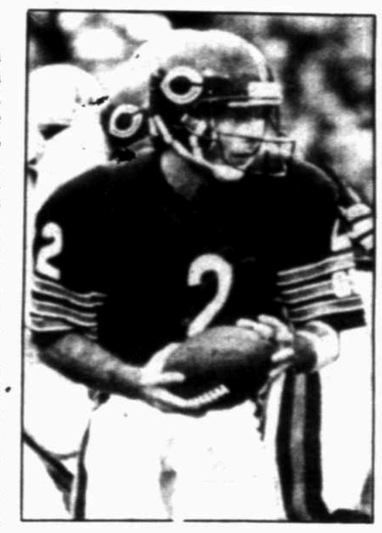

Rice, who leads NFL receivers in touchdowns with 12 and yardage with 1,030, caught four passes for 156 yards, a 39-yard average.

San Francisco, 6-3-1 and one-half game behind the first-place Rams in the NFC West, also was tough defensively, intercepting three passes by Cliff Stoudt, one of which was returned 78 yards for a touchdown by Tom Holmoe. Another interception was made in the end zone by Keith Fahnhorst when the Cardinals, 2-8, trailed by only 13 points in the third period.

But while he had plenty of help, Montana was the unquestioned leader.

"It boosted my spirits having him in there again," Rice said.

"I was just glad to be back," Montana said. "If you are afraid of getting hit or hurt, then you are going to get hurt. Once the game started, it was too late to start worrying about it."

Bears' Doug Flutie
...makes NFL debut

NFL Roundup

Bears 23, Bucs 3

Chicago, the defending Super Bowl champions, rebounded from Monday's defeat as Mike Tomczak took over at quarterback, passing for one touchdown and running for another to beat Tampa Bay.

Walter Payton, playing with a dislocated toe, ran for 139 yards.

Tomczak, who was relieved by former USFL quarterback Doug Flutie late in the fourth quarter, completed 11 of 24 passes for 265 yards. Two of the four scoring drives he directed covered 92 and 91 yards.

"I was not smooth, but good enough," said Flutie, who entered the game with just over four minutes to play and threw one incomplete pass.

The Bears lead the overall series 13-4.

Chargers 9, Broncos 3

San Diego, with the 25th-ranked defense in the league, used three field goals by Rolf Benirschke and two key interceptions of John Elway to upset Denver.

"I'm so proud I can't even tell you how it feels," said Saunders, who took over the head coaching position 11 days ago when Don Coryell resigned. "We have 20 players with two years or less experience in the NFL and a coach a little wet behind the ears."

The victory snapped an eight-game losing streak for the Chargers. Denver, the AFC West Division leader, fell to 8-2 and is just one game ahead of Kansas City, next week's opponent.

Elway drove the Broncos to the Charger 25 in the closing seconds, but he was picked off in the end zone by Vencie Glenn with 24 seconds left.

Saints 6, Rams 0

Two field goals by Morten Andersen and a swarming defense provived New Orleans with the shutout over Los Angeles and a 5-5 record.

Andersen's field goals covered 20 yards in the third quarter and 22 yards in the fourth.

Linebackers Sam Mills and Rickey Jackson and defensive end Bruce Clark keyed a defense that halted the Rams' powerful running game, limiting Eric Dickerson, the league's leading rusher, to 57 yards on 21 carries.

"I said it all week. I told everybody. I didn't look for him to get 100 yards against us. Nobody gets 100 yards on us," Jackson said.

Rebs vs. Sandies: Almost old hat

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

For the third time in four years, the Midland Lee Rebels will begin their playoff voyage against the Amarillo High Golden Sandies Friday at 8 p.m. in Lubbock's Jones Stadium making this bi-district confrontation almost old hat.

But after losing the first two playoff meetings with Lee, the 6-3-1 Sandies are hoping the third time is a charm and they are clinging to the fact that improvement was made from Game 1 to Game 2. In fact, the Sandies believe that if they improve any this year, they could win this one.

The Rebels bombed Amarillo High by a 30-3 margin in 1983 when the Rebels were on the way to the state finals. Last year, however, the Rebels escaped with a 13-7 victory when a defensive stand at the 20-yard line kept the Sandies from producing a come-from-behind victory.

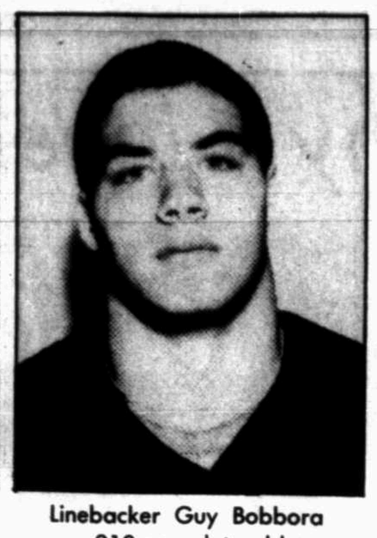

But Lee will enter the bi-district contest as the favorite and are in a little different situation than the last three years. Lee hasn't been in the state playoffs as District 4-5A's top seed since 1976. The last three years Lee has entered the playoffs as a runner-up. This time Amarillo High is the runner-up.

Lee has lost only one game in Jones Stadium in five outings and that came in a 15-14 loss to Odessa Permian in 1984 when the Rebels were designated as the visiting team. Lee is the designated home team Friday and hasn't lost a playoff game in three years in that role.

One factor that adds to the Lee edge is the schedule that Amarillo High has had to play down the stretch. Lee wrapped up its playoff spot a week ago against San Angelo. Then they lost a 6-3 decision to Abilene High while looking forward to the playoffs.

Quarterback Dod Clapp
...a worthy arm

Linebacker Guy Bobbora
...210-pound trouble

AHS, on the other hand, lost to Palo Duro a week ago and faced playoff survival against Amarillo Tascosa last Friday before pulling out a 20-7 victory. This will mark the third consecutive game that the Sandies are in a "must win" situation and that gives Lee another edge.

But the Sandies have some key weapons to throw at Lee and the size to do it with. Tailback Timmy Smith, who was injured prior to the Lee-AHS bi-district game last year and missed that game, is back in fine form.

Smith rushed for 109 yards on 28 carries Friday against Tascosa and is near the 1,000-yard mark for the season. Amarillo High also has an effective quarterback in Dod Clapp, who is accurate in the passing lanes.

Clapp, one of four team captains, completed five of 13 passes for 127 yards against Tascosa. The Sandies like to balance the run with the pass, but Smith usually gets the call when AHS runs.

Clapp will seek both wingback Todd McPhail and wide receiver Steve Howard. The Amarillo quarterback also gets good protection from an offensive line that is headed by giant 232-pound tackle Brit Whittenburg. Guard Gordon Niebergall, at 210 pounds, is considered the best offensive lineman.

"The key for Amarillo High against Tascosa was their defense," said Lee coach Larry Tate, who scouted that game Friday. "The only way Tascosa scored was to get the ball inside the 10-yard line on a bad punt snap."

The Sandies use a five-man front on defense and Lee offensive coordinator Van Tom Whately says that could pose some problems for Lee.

"We don't play many teams that use a five-man defense. Odessa High uses it and El Paso Eastwood uses it some, but none of the other teams we play use it," noted Whatley. "That is a preparation problem for us."

Nose guard Russ Crandall, a 195-pound junior, is the hub of the AHS defense and he will get to know Lee center Chris Jones rather well Friday. Guy Bobbora, a 210-pound linebacker, is also strong and gives AHS strength up the middle.

Safety Todd Ringo is also a good player and one of the team captains. However, AHS starts five juniors on defense and has led to some inconsistency defensively this year. They have given up some points, the worst being 42 points in a loss to Odessa Permian.

Tickets for the game go on sale at the Memorial Stadium ticket office at 8 a.m. Tuesday. All seats are being sold as general admission at $5 for adults and $3 for students. Tickets will be sold at the gate, but all tickets bought in Lubbock will cost $5. Tickets will be sold from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily through Thursday and until noon Friday in Midland.

Lee enters the game with an 11-5 playoff record in the history of the school and 10-3 in the last three years. Lee has lost only one of five bi-district playoff games and that loss came in a 35-8 setback to Wichita Falls Rider in 1974.

Maroon hue turns Cotton

Associated Press

The 1987 Cotton Bowl is beginning to take on a maroon-and-white hue.

The defending champion Texas A&M Aggies have a two-game lead with three to play, including a 2:30 p.m. regionally televised (ABC) meeting with the deflated Arkansas Razorbacks on Saturday in Little Rock.

Thanks to Baylor's 29-14 victory over the 10th-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks on Saturday, the Aggies are sitting pretty.

"There's no way in the world anybody can catch the Aggies now," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff.

A&M has games remaining against Arkansas, Texas Christian and Texas on Thanksgiving night.

"I guess you could say there is still a mathematical chance, but that's about it," Teaff said. "The Aggies are back again."

While A&M rested, they watched Baylor's come-from-behind victory on television. Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield said it was one of the toughest losses he's had.

"We're hurt as bad as we've ever been hurt before," Hatfield said. "It was a tough loss emotionally for our team and all of Arkansas. We didn't accomplish our mission of coming down here and winning to give us a chance to get to the Cotton Bowl.

"Now, everyone in the league has at least two defeats except Texas A&M. They still have three league gqames left to play, but they are playing very well. It will be difficult for us to still have a chance for the Cotton Bowl but it isn't impossible yet."

Other teams with two league losses include Texas Tech, Texas and Southern Methodist. SMU isn't eligible for title consideration.

In other SWC games on Saturday, Texas downed Houston 30-10 and Texas Tech whipped Texas Christian 36-14 to keep alive its bowl hopes.

Southern Methodist was humiliated on the non-conference front, falling 61-29 to Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind. It was SMU's worst whipping in 70 years.

The SWC finished the year 15-11 against outside competition.

Baylor was all but assured a bowl bid, and the Bluebonnet, Independence, Freedom and Sun Bowls are courting the team.

"I sure hope Baylor comes to Houston on New Year's Eve," said Ted Nance, the Bluebonnet Bowl's executive director. "We would sure like to have 'em."

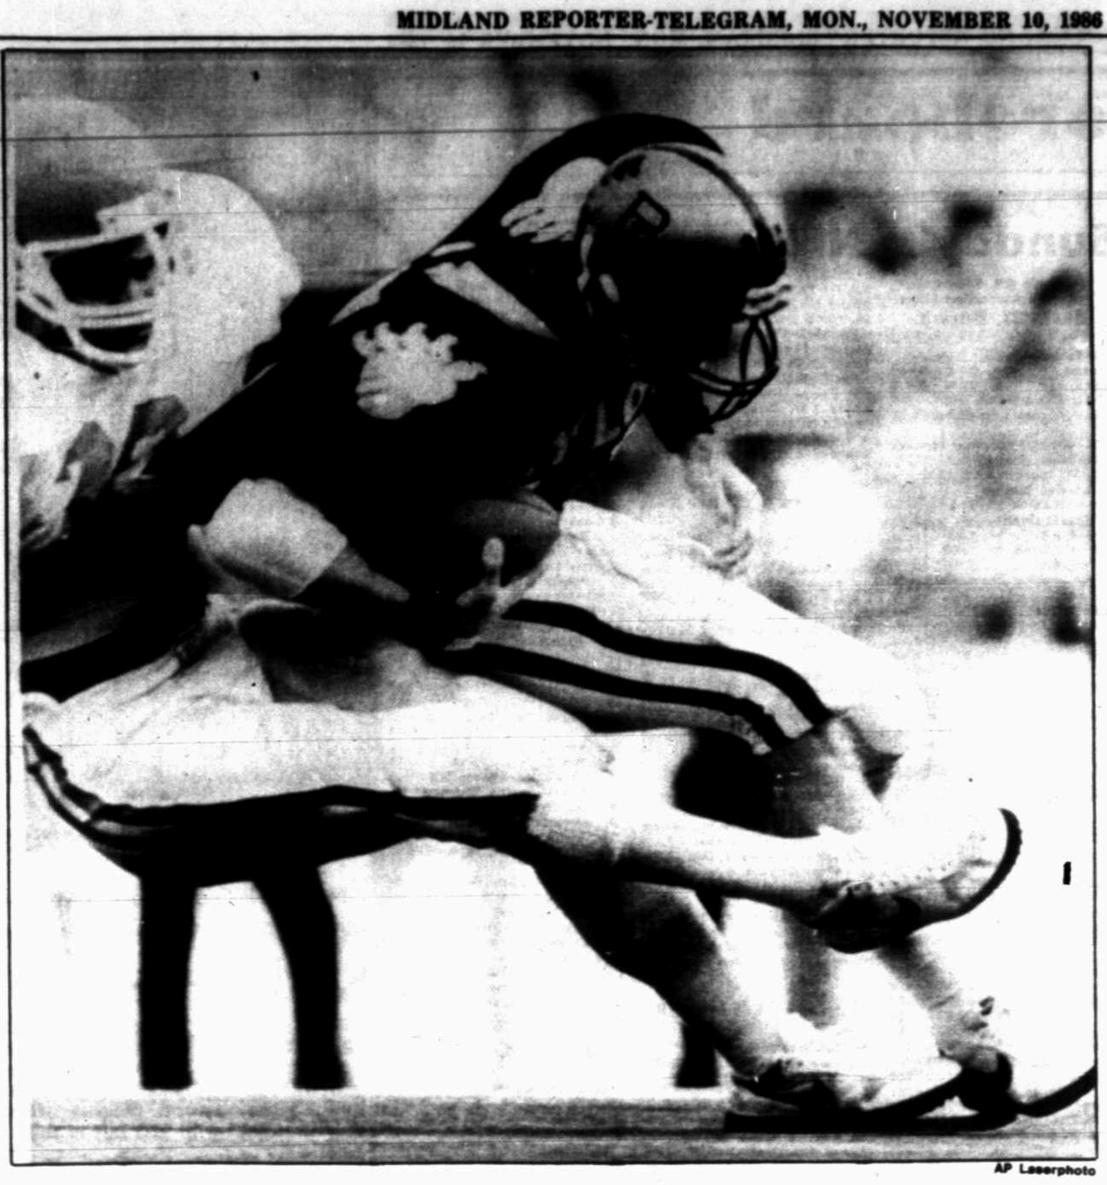

"There's no question we'll be in a bowl now," Teaff said. "We'll just have to wait and see what happens."

Bowl bids can't go out until Nov. 22 and the Red Raiders may get one. They are 6-3 and assured their first winning season since 1978.

In other games this week, TCU hosts Texas at 2 p.m., Baylor is at Rice in a noon Raycom TV game, and SMU is at Texas Tech in a 2 p.m. clash.

Contest Winners

Winners in the seventh week of the Reporter-Telegram football contest were: First Place—Ron Balzer, 4413, Crenshaw, Midland. Second Place—Bob Hellman, 2507 Castleford, Midland.

Hogs must find offense

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Running, passing and kicking can produce positive yardage.

On Saturday, Arkansas got none of the above.

"All of those are plus situations," Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield said Sunday. "No. 1 is to score and No. 2 is to gain as much yardage in field position that might equate into points later on."

Baylor, trailing 14-12 at the half Saturday in Waco, made some adjustments that Arkansas couldn't handle. The Razorbacks had 24 yards in the second half, none passing.

Greg Horne's punting also hurt.

ALL THAT added up to Baylor 29, Arkansas 14. "It was a total lapse offensively of us being able to do anything effectively," he said. "The defense played its finest game of the year. We didn't execute very well and probably didn't have good play calling either."

He said the Razorbacks played extremely well in the first half and scored on two plays the Bears had not seen before — the second TD was a 38-yard pass from Greg Thomas to Joe Johnson out of the spread.

In the second half, he said, the Bears started slanting their down linemen more. "They thought they could play with our big linemen early in the game and I think our linemen were ready to play," Hatfield said. "We made some big, big plays with the fullback and halfbacks early and I think our people matched up with them head to head.

"I think they finally realized at halftime they could not do that," he said. Slanting their linemen, he said, was Plan B or Plan C for the Bears.

Arkansas tried to adjust in the second half, he said, but "didn't get the full execution of those adjustments."

Hatfield said Baylor's defense forced Arkansas to read the option more in the second half and that Thomas did not do well in that area.

He said adjustments made after the half must be made quickly. "We were giving Greg an either-or situation on the sideline," he said. "We were saying, 'Hey, if they run in this defense, run this play; if they run this defense, audible and go to this situation. After having to get us in the right thing, then he had to read the option correctly. It was not an easy situation."

The Razorbacks also had to change their blocking because of Baylor's adjustments.

ARKANSAS WAS still leading 14-12 in the fourth quarter when Thomas overthrew a wide open Sammy Van Dyke flying down the right sideline. Last year, Thomas hit Luther Franklin on a 50-yard fourth-quarter pass that lifted Arkansas to a 20-14 victory over Baylor.

"We had worked on that play," Hatfield said. "Last year we pulled it out, this year we didn't."

Baylor then took over on its 46 and marched to the go-ahead field goal with quarterback Cody Carlson turning in the big plays. For the afternoon, he completed 21 of 35 for 258 yards and ran for 49 yards. His two interceptions were more effective than punts.

On their next possession, the Bears went 59 yards for their second touchdown. On third down, linebacker Kerry Owens hit the Baylor back at the 10 but couldn't hold on and the Bears had a first down inside the 5. The ensuing touchdown and two-point conversion "took a lot of the wind out of us," Hatfield said.

Life In College Football

Associated Press

Upsets

No. 10 Arkansas lost to Baylor 29-14, No. 12 UCLA lost to Stanford 28-23, No. 15 North Carolina State lost to Virginia 20-16, No. 16 Iowa lost to Illinois 20-16, and No. 19 Georgia lost to Florida 31-19.

Born To Run

Oklahoma rushed for 681 yards in its 77-0 victory over Missouri, the most for the Sooners since their NCAA-record 758 yards against Colorado in 1980. Five Oklahoma players ran for 80 yards or more.

It was the Sooners' largest margin of victory since a 157-0 victory in 1919 over Kingfisher College of Oklahoma. It was Missouri's worst loss ever, eclipsing a 65-0 defeat to Texas in 1932.

Honor Society

Ivy Joe Hunter gained a career-high 238 yards in 30 carries and scored four touchdowns in Kentucky's 34-22 victory over Vanderbilt, becoming the first Kentucky back to gain more than 200 yards since Sonny Collins had 229 against Mississippi State in 1973.

Temple's Paul Palmer gained 212 yards on 38 carries, scored two touchdowns and passed for another in Boston College's 38-29 victory over the Owls. He broke the NCAA record for rushing in four consecutive games with 987 yards. Mike Rozier set the old record of 929 yards during a four-game stretch in 1983.

Pittsburgh tailback Craig "Ironhead" Heyward gained 254 yards in 39 carries in the Panthers 37-10 loss to No. 1 Miami.

Montana quarterback Brent Pease completed 31 of 60 passes for 460 yards and four touchdowns in Montana's 55-29 victory.

Bobby Rahal takes his Budweiser-sponsored Indy car through a turn two in the Nissan Challenge on his way to winning the 1986 CART points championship. Al Unser, Jr. won the race.

Rahal, Unser Jr. celebrate

MIAMI (AP) — Bobby Rahal and Al Unser Jr. celebrated after a dream died for Michael Andretti and another turned into a nightmare for Roberto Guerrero.

Rahal won the CART-PPG Indy-car championship and Unser took the Nissan Indy Challenge Sunday at Tamiami Park in Miami.

For Rahal, the 33-year-old driver from Dublin, Ohio, it was the end of a year he described as "a rollercoaster ride."

He won six races this season, including the Indianapolis 500, but still had to battle the 24-year-old Andretti for his first season title until the middle of the last race on the 17-event schedule.

"What an empty feeling," Andretti said. He was still was running in third place, right behind Rahal, on the 60th of 112 laps when his transmission broke.

Andretti, the son of longtime racing star Mario Andretti, finished his race sitting in his car behind a concrete barrier, rather than on the victory stand.

"It was not the way I dreamed it," he said.

Rahal, who led by three points heading into the race, clinched the title when Andretti dropped out. But he suddenly found himself battling not only the competition but stomach cramps.

"I think it was just the release of this pressure," Rahal said. "I started to think about how uncomfortable the seat was, the heat and the other things that I was ignoring while I was thinking about Michael.

"Then all the tension, all the pressure, all the drive was just gone."

Still, Rahal managed to finish the race, winding up eighth overall and three laps behind Unser.

Meanwhile, Guerrero, a 27-year-old Colombian trying to win his first Indy-car race, was seemingly running away from everyone before a nearly empty fuel tank marred his effort.

"I just couldn't believe it when the engine began sputtering," Guerrero said. "I just wanted to die right there.

"Everything had been going so good. I couldn't believe how good the car was. It was just a dream."

Guerrero built leads of over 30 seconds over first Rahal and then Unser before turning down the turbocharger boost late in the race to try to conserve fuel.

Guerrero led 111 of the 112 laps, but after watching Unser accept the accolades of victory, said, "I just didn't lead the lap that paid the money, unfortunately."

In fact, Guerrero barely finished the final lap around the 1.784-mile circuit, weaving the car back and forth to slosh what little fuel he had to the engine.

Unser, winning his first race of the season and the fourth of his career, said, "I didn't know that he had any kind of problem. I was catching him, yes, but in my mind that's Roberto taking care of the car. I figured I was going to finish about five seconds behind."

Stanford band at it again

School limits game participation

By Mark Zeigler
Copley News Service

They call themselves "the one, the only, the truly incomparable Leland Stanford Jr. University (pause) Marching Band." But for the next two football games, the one, the only marching they'll do is from the stadium entrance to their seats in the stands.

Citing "an accumulation of problems," Stanford athletic director Andy Geiger has banned the 160-member band, known more for wacky and often risque halftime shows than musical excellence, from on-field performances at the Cardinal's next two games. Stanford plays UCLA at the Rose Bowl Saturday and rival Cal in Berkeley Nov. 22 in the 89th annual "Big Game."

Geiger said 95 band members might travel with the team to Tokyo for Stanford's regular-season finale, the Nov. 29 Coca-Cola Bowl against Arizona, but "only under certain conditions set by the athletic department." The band's participation at any post-season bowl game (Stanford is 6-2 and ranked 19th by United Press International) also is in jeopardy, according to band manager Jeff Stevens.

THE ATHLETIC department canceled the band's trip to Pasadena for Saturday's game against UCLA, which CBS will telecast to various parts of the country. Geiger said the band will be allowed to perform — from the stands — during the Cal game.

"It seems the band has been getting a little bit out of hand," senior John Wallin, one of its two announcers, said Thursday. "The stated objective of the band is to offend as much as possible without getting in trouble. But it's done some pretty blatant things lately."

Allegations include:

— Spelling out a four-letter word at halftime of the Oct. 4 San Diego State game.

— At least six band members dropping their pants and urinating on the field after the Oct. 11 Washington game.

— Refusing to change what Geiger called a "lewd and insulting" halftime show at the Oct. 25 USC game, then forming symbolic male genitalia on the field.

— Using four-letter-word scrambles at the Nov. 1 Washington State game containing terms that Bob Vazquez, Stanford co-sports information director, described as "not for family consumption."

All of the alleged incidents took place at Stanford Stadium in Palo Alto.

"Repeated warnings don't do any good," Geiger has been quoted as saying. "They're 4-for-4. I can't trust them. They don't seem to be able to have a level of tastes and values that represent this place. As long as it's that way, they're not going to perform on the same field as the football team."

BAND MANAGER Stevens, flooded with media requests for interviews Thursday, agreed that the allegations were more or less accurate and called Geiger "justified in taking some action."

"None of them was planned acts by the band, but by individuals who performed spontaneous acts on their own," Stevens said. "It's an attitude that's pervaded throughout the band recently. Certain members try to outdo each other. And this time it got out of hand."

Controversy is nothing new to the band at the private Northern California university, considered among the nation's elite academically. The band attracted national attention in 1982 when its members, thinking the Stanford-Cal game was over, charged onto the field while Cal returned a kickoff for the winning touchdown in a 25-20 victory.

Geiger said he often receives alumni complaints about the band; Vasquez said it is equally unpopular with most Cardinal football players.

But according to Jill Gilbert, a senior from Beverly Hills, "Most students I've talked to are pretty bitter. They love the band. They talk about how the band's so much fun."

The band doesn't actually march, but sprints onto the field in a frenzy. One formation doesn't flow into the next. Instead, when they complete a song, band members scramble haphazardly to their next spot on the field.

Uniforms are invariably eccentric. Band members wear wide, wild ties and sunglasses, and use masking tape to put messages on the backs of their jackets. The insides of tubas are illustrated. Students who are not musically inclined often join the band as "ringers," playing beer kegs or bed springs.

"The band has been a countermovement against the stereotype of the John Philip Sousa band and probably has got itself too wrapped up in it," said university bursar Jon Erickson, who has been involved with the band directly or indirectly since his days as a member in the early 1960s.

Crampton first senior to win $400,000

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Bruce Crampton had a lot of great years on the regular PGA tour, but nothing could compare with his 1986 season on the senior tour.

Crampton won for the sixth time this year and became the first senior golfer to surpass the $400,000-mark in earnings for a year with a two-shot victory Sunday in the inaugural $270,000 Las Vegas Senior Classic golf tournament.

"It's been a very rewarding year," said Crampton, who has won two of the last three senior events. "Not too many people get to see it come together like I did this year."

Crampton fired a final-round 4-under-par 68 for a 54-hole total of 206 to earn the $37,500 winner's share, which raised his 1986 winnings to $424,299.

The year Crampton has had on the senior tour in 1986 has surpassed even his wildest dreams.

"I'm amazed that I've passed the $400,000-mark in single-season winnings," Crampton said. "It's something I never thought could happen on the senior tour. I couldn't believe what Peter Thompson did last year."

Crampton's total betters Thompson's mark of $386,724, set in 1985.

There are still two events to play on the 1986 senior calendar.

Miami, Penn St. bowl shopping

Associated Press

If No. 1-ranked Miami and No. 2 Penn State remain unbeaten, they will stage a national championship shootout in either the Fiesta, Florida Citrus or Gator Bowls.

Miami would like to play in the state of Florida for the home-field advantage. Penn State's preference apparently is the Fiesta Bowl at Tempe, Ariz.

Since The Associated Press adopted the practice of voting for the national champion after the bowl games in 1968, only twice have two major independent teams gone through the regular season unbeaten and untied.

It happened in 1973 when third-ranked Notre Dame was 10-0 and No. 6 Penn State 11-0. Notre Dame won the national championship by defeating top-ranked Alabama 24-23 in the Sugar Bowl, while Penn State beat Louisiana State 16-9 in the Orange Bowl.

IN 1976, top-rated Pittsburgh and No. 17 Rutgers were 11-0. Pitt wound up on top by defeating Georgia 27-3 in the Sugar Bowl, but Rutgers remained unbeaten, untied, uninvited and unelected, finishing No. 17.

Miami and Penn State are 9-0 after the Hurricanes downed Pitt 37-10 and the Nittany Lions edged Maryland 17-15 Saturday. Their national championship showdown still is alive.

Miami has home games against Tulsa on Nov. 15 and East Carolina on Nov. 27. Penn State visits Notre Dame next Saturday and plays Pitt at home Nov. 22, the official bowl selection date.

The Fiesta, Florida Citrus and Gator Bowls had representatives with Miami and Penn State on Saturday and all three claimed they will be competitive money-wise with the Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls, which have conference tie-ups and can't invite both Miami and Penn State.

"If all things were equal, we definitely would like to play in the Orange Bowl," Miami Athletic Director Sam Jankovich said. "That's our community, that's where our fans would be and it would be a very good thing for our program."

But the Orange Bowl host team is the Big Eight champion, so Miami and Penn State must look elsewhere.

Don Meyers, chairman of the Tempe, Ariz.-based Fiesta Bowl's selection committee, said Penn State "has expressed a preference to play on a neutral field outside of Florida, and the only one that's really available to them is the Fiesta Bowl."

However, Jankovich, said, "I don't think Penn State can call the shot where the game is going to be played. We'll work at it together and see where it goes. I think that we would be in a position, if we're undefeated, that we could play a significant role where we're going to play it."

Only in 1974, when Oklahoma was on probation and couldn't play in a bowl game, and 1984, when Brigham Young completed a 13-0 season in the Holiday Bowl, has the national champion not come out of the Cotton, Orange, Rose or Sugar Bowls since the final poll has been taken after the bowls.

Money will not be a problem for the Fiesta, Citrus and Gator Bowls, all of which say they can match the approximate $2.5 million each team could expect from the Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls. The Rose Bowl is a closed corporation involving the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences.

THE FIESTA Bowl paid about $1.18 million apiece to Michigan and Nebraska last year and this year's payoff would have been around $1.25 million per team.

COWBOYS-

"We could have been up two or three touchdowns at the half," moaned Fellows. Instead, the Cowboys led 10-3 and Wilson, after a four for 14, 37-yard half in which he was sacked three times and intercepted a like number, was replaced by Plunkett to start the second half.

Flores when asked if Plunkett had earned a starting berth by rallying the Raiders, explained that Wilson was lifted because of a sore thumb.

In any case, it was a different Raider team. Plunkett quickly passed 19 yards to Williams to tie it at 10 and after Dallas drove from its 27 to the Los Angeles three only to have to settle for a Septien field goal, the die was cast.

"This is a team in trouble, Dorsett warned. "Our backs aren't against the wall. They are in the wall."

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K1054 ♡K963 ◇Q10762 ♣A76
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♠	1 ♡	?

What action do you take?
A.—If you are playing negative doubles, you would try that. If not, you have no safe bid available—your void in partner's suit makes any action fraught with danger. Pass, and see how the auction develops.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠7 ♡K106 ◇AQ983 ♣AQ105
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Your hand has improved radically with the auction, and no heart raise will do it justice. Start by bidding three clubs and then raise hearts next to complete a picture of your hand.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK95 ♡7 ◇KQJ6 ♣Q1093
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 ◇	Pass	Pass	1 ♡
Dble	?

What action do you take?
A.—You have just about the best hand at the table, and you must tell partner about that. Redouble. Don't worry about your heart shortage, you have enough high-card values to see partner through at that contract should it get passed out. It is crucial to tell partner to let the next bid come around to you.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ98 ♡7 ◇AQ103 ♣A76
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	4 ♡	Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Again, don't let the fact that you don't have support for partner's suit stop you from looking for more. Partner must have a good suit and you have excellent controls. Cue-bid five clubs to tell partner of your slam interest.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK9872 ♡AQJ ◇8 ♣763
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—If you elect to show partner you have a six-card suit by bidding two spades, you will have a job convincing him later that you have a good hand with strong heart support. You will find the hand easier to bid if you raise to three hearts immediately.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKJ ♡Q10543 ◇932 ♣Q7
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's reverse shows a good hand, but with so much of your values in the unbid spades suit you can't be sure of the potential of the combined holding. Jump to three no trump. That not only tells partner you have a good hand, but alerts him to the fact that a goodly portion of your strength is in spades. He will be better placed to decide whether or not to bid on.

Sinatra undergoes emergency surgery

Sinatra

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Entertainer Frank Sinatra could be hospitalized for up to 10 days after successful surgery for diverticulitis, a painful intestinal inflammation, a hospital spokesman said.

The two-hour emergency operation for Sinatra, 70, was Sunday, said Cliff Brown, spokesman for Eisenhower Medical Center.

Sinatra had been appearing in Atlantic City, N.J., at the Golden Nugget Hotel, but canceled further shows when the ailment struck, his spokesman, Lee Solters, said Sunday in Los Angeles. Sinatra flew home in great pain to Palm Springs, where he was admitted Saturday night to the medical center.

Dr. Alan Altman, Sinatra's physician, said in Palm Springs that the entertainer had acute diverticulitis and would probably wear a colostomy bag to collect waste for about eight weeks after the surgery until his intestines heal and can be restored to normal.

"He should be fine," Altman said before the surgery to remove the inflamed part of the intestine.

He said Sinatra would not be allowed visitors for the next several days and no telephone calls for 48 hours.

Solters said Sinatra, who was born in New Jersey, had been due to conclude his Atlantic City performances Sunday and "tried to make an attempt to continue, but the pain was too severe."

Skelton

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Red Skelton was resting comfortably at home after hot stage lights and an exhausting routine forced the 73-year-old comic to cut short a benefit performance, his secretary said.

The zany comedian was performing Saturday night at the Anaheim Convention Center during a benefit for Loma Linda University Medical Center when he told the audience he wasn't feeling well and excused himself. He was tended to by the center nurse and a doctor, and did not require hospitalization.

"It was complete exhaustion from the lights and he did more physical bits than he usually does," said the secretary, who asked that her name not be used. "It was too hot, and those extra bits didn't help too much."

Bill Harper, a spokesman for the convention center, said the comic was near the end of the show, having done about an hour and 45 minutes.

Skelton's Emmy Award-winning "Red Skelton Show" was broadcast weekly on television from 1951 to 1971. Skelton has kept up a busy schedule of appearances around the country.

MUSCAT, Oman (AP) — "Royal fever" has been sweeping Muscat's 8,000-strong British community, and retail shops say Union Jacks have been selling well in anticipation of a visit by the prince and princess of Wales.

Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, and his wife, Diana, were spending tonight aboard the royal yacht Britannia after flying in from Britain for their four-nation Gulf tour.

They are to begin a series of appearances Tuesday with a welcome at Al-Alam palace by Oman's ruler, Sultan Qaboos. The nine-day trip also will take them to Qatar, Bahrain and Saudi Arabia.

Charles also will play in a polo match attended by about 250 British nationals here, and Princess Diana will present prizes.

One of Diana's first stops will be the Omani Women's Association, where members will model the elaborate, jeweled costumes worn at Arabian weddings.

"We thought the princess might be interested in what we wear because she herself has such good dress sense," said Houda Al-Ghazali, a director of the association.

The men directed American foreign policy during the Cuban missile crisis, the Vietnam War, a period of improved relations with the People's Republic of China and fluctuating relations with the Soviet Union.

Rusk, secretary of state from 1961-69, served under John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. Rogers served Richard Nixon from 1969-73. Kissinger followed and was secretary through 1977, through the term of Gerald Ford. Muskie served in 1980-81 in the Jimmy Carter administration, and was succeeded by Haig, Ronald Reagan's first secretary of state, who served in 1981 and 1982.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Workers at the San Francisco Chronicle and the San Francisco Examiner have voted by a 2-1 margin to ratify a new contract, union officials said.

The workers, represented by the Newspaper Guild, voted 199 to 99 on Sunday to approve a contract that typically gives each worker a raise of about $85 a week over 43 months, said Guild negotiator Doug Cuthbertson.

They were among the first of 5,000 workers, represented by nine unions, to ratify the proposed contract.

"Nobody was happy with the contract, but the alternative was difficult to consider," Cuthbertson said after the vote. "They saw the modest gain a strike might bring as a poor alternative."

The other unions are to vote on the proposed contract over the next several weeks. The pact would cover editorial and non-editorial employees at the San Francisco newspapers and at the San Jose Mercury News.

New Congress to include vast, varied array of people

By JIM DRINKARD

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the 100th Congress assembles in January, its House ranks will include a Cheyenne Indian, a millionaire glass magnate, a sharecropper's son, a Shakespearean professor and the heir to the Kennedy political legacy.

Among the 50 new members who will take their seats, most have followed the tried-and-true route to political prominence: Election to local office, then to statehouses through organization and careful local spadework.

But among the House freshman class of 27 Democrats and 23 Republicans — two of whom are making return appearances — several stand out because of their uniqueness, their heritage or their accomplishments.

The most recognizable name will be that of Joseph P. Kennedy II, who as the oldest male in his generation of Kennedys wears the family political mantle. Kennedy easily won the Boston seat of retiring House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., and will automatically be more visible than most House newcomers.

Kennedy already will have a valuable connection on Capitol Hill in the form of his uncle, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., but also may have something to prove, since he has no previous experience in elective office.

Connie Morella is a Republican lawmaker elected from a Maryland suburb of Washington. Aides describe her as a driven overachiever who campaigns with gusto and is happiest with a full agenda.

Morella and her husband reared nine children — three of her own and six of her sister, who died of cancer. She is a Shakespearean scholar on leave from Montgomery College, where she taught at the same time she served in the Maryland Legislature.

Two days after being elected, Morella was out at subway stations shaking the hands of comuters and thanking them for their votes. "Someone has to pull her off the street and get her back to the office," said Sohrab Sobhani, a campaign volunteer.

Ben Nighthorse Campbell, whose father was a Northern Cheyenne Indian, spent several years in a California orphanage as a child when his mother, a Portuguese immigrant, was hospitalized. He was captain of the U.S. judo team in the 1964 Olympics, a sport he took up after being tested in a fight with a Japanese-American acquaintance as a child.

Campbell, a Democrat from Colorado, will be only the second American Indian to serve in the House, according to the American Indian Historical Society, but he made little of his heritage during the campaign, saying he did not want to be stereotyped.

Campbell runs a ranch near Ignacio, Colo., and also is a successful designer of jewelry.

Amory Houghton Jr., 60, is a newcomer to elective office but has a long business and political bloodline in western New York. His great-grandfather founded Corning Glass Works, where he has been chief executive, and his father was U.S. ambassador to France. His grandfather once held the same House seat for one term in 1919-20.

Representing Atlanta will be John Lewis, who literally bears the scars of the 1960s civil rights movement. One of 10 children of an Alabama sharecropper, Lewis earned a theology degree and became a founder of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee along with Julian Bond, whom he defeated in a bitter Democratic run-off election this fall.

Lewis was beaten unconscious four times and arrested more than 40 times in civil rights demonstrations and marches, and later worked for Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young and was head of the federal social agency, ACTION, during the Carter administration.

Fred Grandy, who left Sioux City, Iowa, to attend an exclusive prep school at age 14 and went on to Hollywood as an actor, fought off the "carpetbagger" label to win election to the House from a largely rural Iowa district.

He was best known for playing the bumbling purser Gopher Smith on TV's "The Love Boat," an image that caused trouble during the campaign. A Republican, he was the roommate of David Eisenhower at Exeter and was best man at Eisenhower's wedding to Julie Nixon.

The new Congress also will include two former sports figures. Tom McMillen, one time player for professional basketball teams in New York, Atlanta and Washington, will be at 6-foot-11 the tallest member of the new Congress. And Jim Bunning, who pitched a perfect game for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1964, is a new Republican House member from Kentucky.

While many of the new members are state legislators climbing the political ladder, one appears to be climbing down: Gov. Joseph E. Brennan of Maine. Brennan is barred from seeking a third term as governor, and declined to make a Senate bid.

Tour bus headed to Disney World flips, killing one, injuring 30 others

By DONALD W. SWINTON

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) — A trip to Walt Disney World became a "terrifying, horrible" ride as a bus loaded with Central American tourists flipped twice and landed upside down, killing one woman and injuring all 30 others aboard.

One witness said the bus was going 60-70 mph in a construction zone marked 45 mph, while the bus company blamed the accident on the wet road and highway conditions. Police were still investigating.

"It was horrible," said Rolando Chavez, 46, a Guatemalan customs official who suffered a fractured collarbone Sunday. "Horrible, terrifying, horrible. Thank God I'm alive."

Olga Batres De Leon, 44, of Guatemala City was killed, said Florida Highway Patrol Lt. Jim Lee. Of the other passengers, who were visiting from Costa Rica, El Salvador and Guatemala, eight were admitted to hospitals, three in serious condition.

The driver of the Galaxy International Tours bus was also hurt in the early morning wreck on Florida's Turnpike.

Mrs. Batres de Leon had left her husband and three children in Guatemala to travel to the United States with six members of her family, said her niece, Mirza Batres, 16.

"I was sitting just in front of my aunt," said Miss Batres, who was treated at a hospital for an injured right thumb. "We were just talking to her."

The 49-seat bus zig-zagged across the northbound lanes, spun completely around three times, flipped twice and landed upside down on the shoulder of the rain-slicked highway, witness Alexander Mundy said. The bus' cabin was crushed.

"Considering the number of people on the bus and the violent matter in which it overturned, it's amazing that more people were not injured or killed," Lee said.

Mundy, driving in a car behind the bus, said it was traveling 60-70 mph in a construction area posted at 45 mph. One of the three lanes is closed there.

But Galaxy spokesman George Hernandez denied that the driver was speeding.

"He's the best driver in the company," Hernandez said of driver Fernando Ortiz, 39. "He's driven with us for 10 years without an accident. You can see how many rocks there are on this road. That's why this happened."

Hernandez also blamed the wet pavement for the wreck.

Lee said officers were still investigating and no cause had been determined. No other vehicles were involved and no charges were immediately filed, he said.

The accident closed the northbound lanes of the turnpike for several hours.

Chinese students coming to U.S. universities on increase

By CARL HARTMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students from the People's Republic of China are flocking to American colleges and universities, with an increase of more than one-third during the last school year, the Institute of International Education reports.

Despite the 38.4 percent increase the total number from the mainland, 13,980, was still less than the 23,770 from Taiwan, which has a much smaller population. Taiwan sent more students to the United States than any other country and the total grew by 5.2 percent.

Eighty-three students came from the Soviet Union.

The count is made every year by the Institute of International Education, the country's largest exchange agency for students, with headquarters in New York. It receives a grant for the purpose from the U.S. Information Agency in Washington.

Countries in south and east Asia are rapidly expanding their industry and their trade with the United States and now send 156,830 students, nearly half of the foreign students in this country. Seven of the 10 largest national sources of foreign students are from this area.

The total from the region increased 9 percent last year while the total declined from the the Middle East, Latin America and especially Africa.

"There seems to be a relation between the price of oil and the number of students from oil-producing countries," institute spokeswoman Marie-Louise Taylor said in a recent telephone interview from New York.

The census showed the total of foreign students during the 1985-86 school year virtually stagnant at 343,777, an increase of 0.5 percent over the year before. Men outnumbered women nearly 2½-1.

Two-thirds of the foreign students depend on personal or family funds.

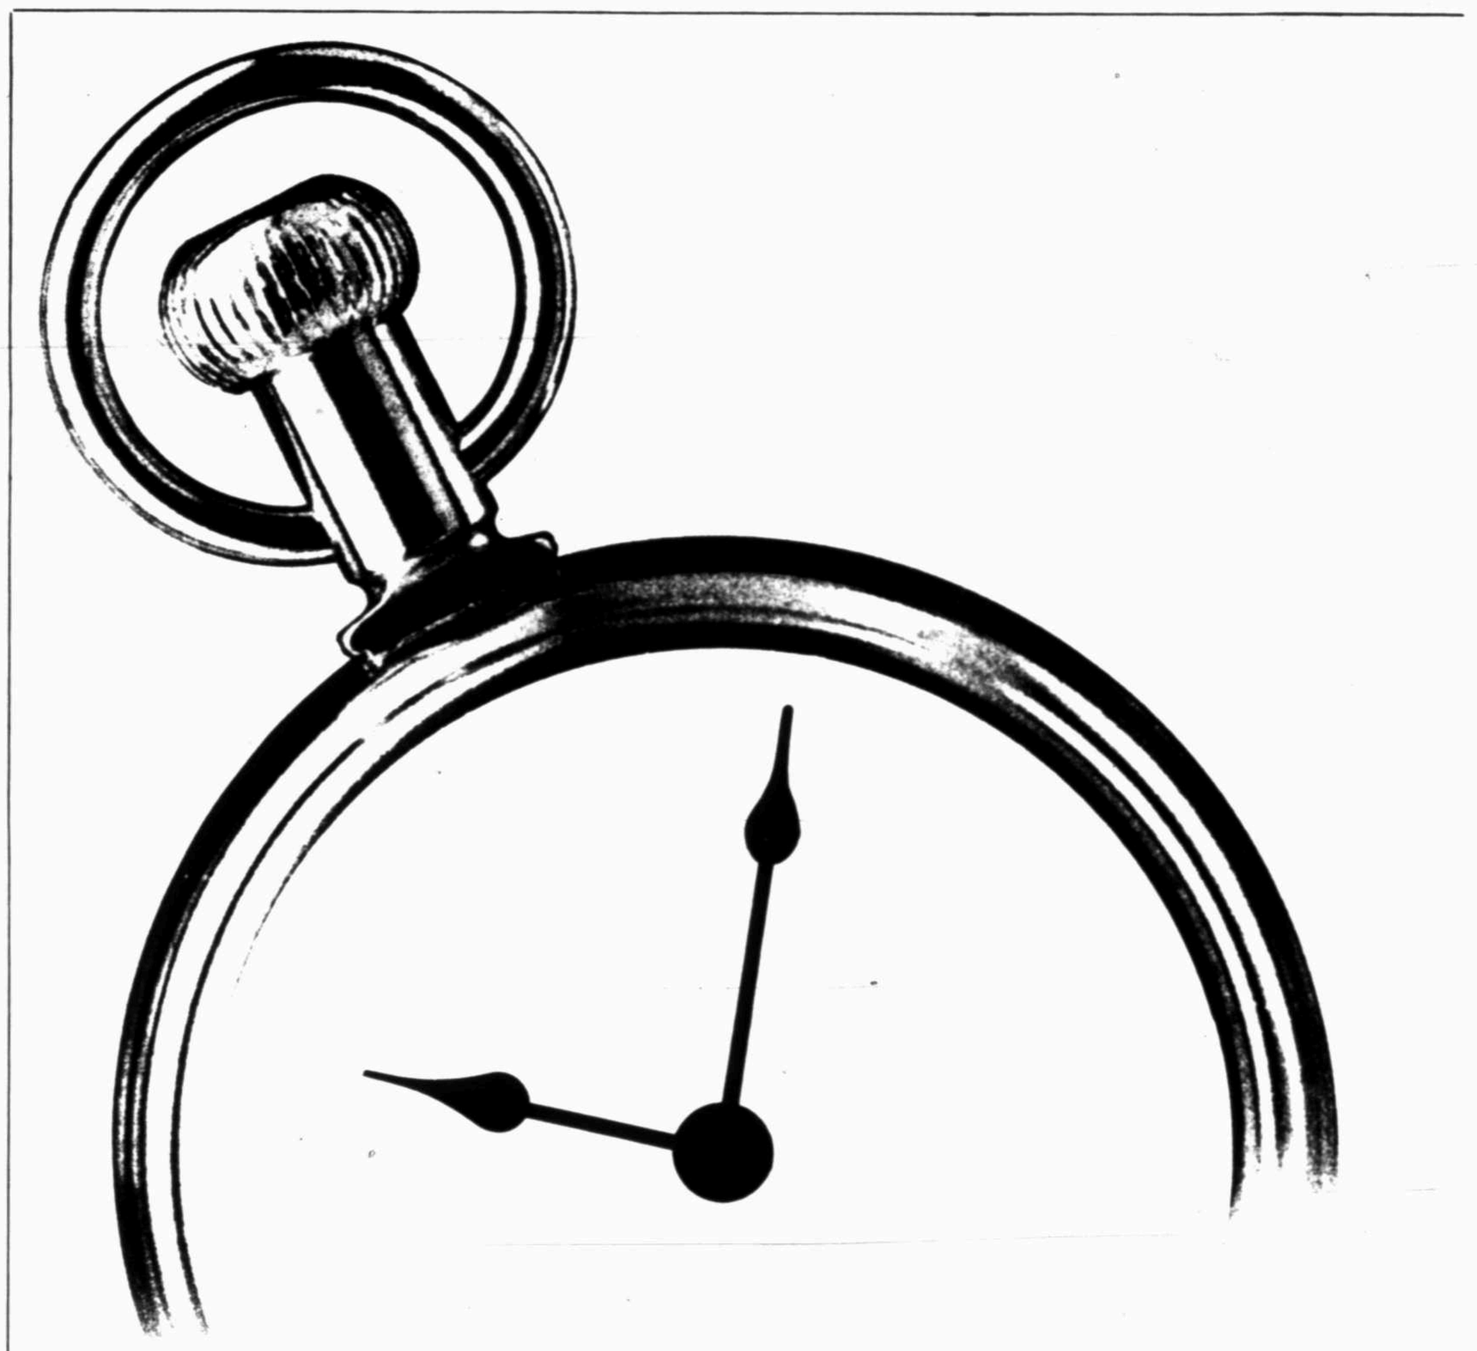

Many of the students from mainland China have relatives in this country who help them, Ms. Taylor said.

The U.S. government provides financing for 6,870 foreign students, a 6 percent decline from the previous year and 38,310 receive backing from their home government or university.

Engineering is the favorite subject of the visiting students, accounting for 74,580 of them. When students of business, management, mathematics and computer sciences are added to the engineers, the total reaches 175,460, more than half. Social sciences occupy 24,710; arts, 15,400 and humanities 11,910.

California attracts the largest number of foreign students, 47,586, and New York comes in second with 31,360. The most popular single institution is Miami-Dade Community College in Florida, where 4,730 of its 42,000 students came from other countries.

Nakasone promises Aquino increased financial aid

TOKYO (AP) — Philippine President Corazon Aquino won promises of increased financial aid shortly after arriving in Japan today. She also got word that all was secure back home, where rumors persisted of a coup plot.

Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone told her Japan would help her government with a $252.5 million loan to build a coal-fired power plant in Batangas province, Japanese and Philippine officials said.

Nakasone also said Japan "is ready to consider making a commitment exceeding" the loan package of $309.38 million Tokyo pledged to Manila last year, Philippine presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno told reporters.

Japan is second only to the United States in aid to the Philippines, which is struggling to revitalize an economy burdened with a $26 billion foreign debt.

Mrs. Aquino is here for a four-day state visit, seeking financial aid and investment. Before leaving Manila on her third overseas trip, she warned any "self-appointed messiahs" against trying to stage a coup in her absence.

The president received a message in the afternoon from Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, her armed forces chief, that the "peace and order situation is very secure and stable," Benigno said.

Benigno said Mrs. Aquino and Nakasone discussed the political situation in the Philippines, but that he could give no details.

Rumors of a planned coup have been rampant in Manila.

Referring to the rumors, Mrs. Aquino said at a departure ceremony, "The credibility of the Philippines as a country with a future, a country in which one could safely invest, and in whose recovery and development one could profitably participate has been rather diminished."

Philippine troops were put on alert for her visit to Japan, as they were during her trips to Singapore and Indonesia in August and to the United States in September.

Ramos said in Manila today he will pursue efforts to ease dissent in the ranks, and sources said he banned unauthorized troop movements in the capital.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile described the situation in the Philippines as "stable and calm."

Officers loyal to Enrile have reportedly been planning to move against the Aquino government, ostensibly to remove ministers and other officials they view as leftist or inept.

Enrile himself has criticized Mrs. Aquino's peace overtures to Communist rebels and has also suggested she call new presidential elections to validate her mandate.

Enrile helped lead the military rebellion that triggered the "people power" revolution which ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos and brought Mrs. Aquino to power in February. Mrs. Aquino said on national television Sunday that she would call people into the streets to counter any coup attempt.

Earlier today, Mrs. Aquino met privately with 85-year-old Emperor Hirohito, who "kept apologizing for what the Japanese cost the Philippines during World War II," Benigno said.

The president flew into Tokyo on a special flight and immediately boarded a helicopter to the government guest house.

At a welcoming ceremony there, she walked slowly alongside Hirohito while a brass band played the national anthems of the Philippines and Japan.

Mrs. Aquino appeared serious, but broke into a smile as she caught sight of 75 Japanese schoolchildren enthusiastically waving the flags of both nations and wearing caps of yellow, the color she used in her presidential campaign in February.

Dita Angara, an exchange student at Tokyo's Waseda University and one of 12,000 Filipinos living in Japan, said she enjoyed the ceremony but did not come to see the pomp.

"We would like to give her support," she said. "She's a very simple woman, but she's the best thing that ever happened to us."

Mrs. Aquino was expected to ask Japanese officials to open their market wider to Philippine goods, increase grants and approve loans of more than double the amount of last year.

AUTOMOTIVE REPORT

Six best cars for 1986

by Tom Cooper

We are now approaching the first anniversary of the "Automotive Report." When we first began this column it was not intended to be a medium for the delivery of automotive reviews as it has become. But, largely through the cooperation of our automotive dealers, it has evolved into such.

During the course of the past year I have driven and reported on more that 20 vehicles. Many others have been studied and observed. As the year draws to a close I would like to share with you the best of what I have seen. The many models from which one has to select have been boiled to down six categories, a total of six cars.

ECONOMY CAR-Toyota Corolla

Toyota has had a strong hold on the foreign car market for many years. And the vehicle selected for this category is the company's best seller.

The Corolla is small and economical (25/40 mpg, est.) but also serves as a good family car. It has impressive leg room and comfort for front seat passengers and adequate seating for rear seat riders. The amount of trunk space is also uncharacteristic for an "economy car." This package is toped off nicely by its reliability which can be expected to be above average.

FAMILY SEDAN-Ford Taurus/-Mercury Sable

This category enocompases vehicles which would be considered more the norm as family cars. The Taurus/Sable (virtually identicle cars) are part of the new generation of Ford Motor Company "jelly bean cars" (so called because of their jelly beanish shape).

New for 1986, they are very unlike anything else the American competition has to offer. Ford Motor Company took a new approach to this car which involved, among other things, a study of the best features of the worlds cars, identifying 400 of the best and then setting objectives for this vehicle. So impressed with this car was Motor Trend magazine, that they chose it as their "Car of the Year."

SPORTS COUPE-Merkur XR4Ti

The XR4Ti is produced by Ford of Germany and body master Wilhelm Karmann in Rheine, West Germany. It was introduced first in Europe with no apparant designs on the American market.

However, it was so successful making inroads on the competition there, such as Audi and BMW, that Ford could not resist importing it to the United States.

This vehicle is available only at specially qualified dealers in the U.S. and Canada who have met strict requirements to enable them to properly demonstrate and service the vehicle. It is billed by the company as a three door, five passenger sedan. It is really no less than a high performance sports coupe.

This feature appears each Monday as a reader service of the Midland Reporter-Telegram

Let's talk about Real Estate...

What determines "value" of a property?

In real estate courses we were always taught that a property was worth what a willing buyer and a willing seller would agree to. Unfortunately, however, in today's market, there are too many unwilling sellers who because of economic stress have had to accept sales prices much lower than would logically be expected. The repercussions from these transactions have depressed, not just "leveled" values throughout the entire market. I cannot see that this is a good situation for anyone!

Even though the short term benefit of purchasing a great property at a low price seems highly desirable to a buyer, the downward pressure of the transaction on the market only contributes to continued lowering of values-Bad news for other sellers on the market as well as for that buyer as a potential future seller.

As a broker, and as a 28 year resident of our community, I have great concern about todays real estate market. I feel it is not going to get better until buyers exhibit a greater responsibility to purchase properties at fair,reasonable prices and until more of our distressed sellers can resist pressures that force them to accept ridiculously low offers! I think it is imperative that we in the real estate community encourage sales at reasonable levels, and lend our support to the reestablishment of a more "normal" market. A "dream" situation I know, but something that we can all at least strive for.

Joanne Langston
