OFFICERS' KIDNAPERS SURROUNDED

Smoking Lava Swallows Four While Helpless Crowd Watches

ETNA'S TORRID BREATH KILLS NINE PERSONS

Molten Torrent Lazily Pushes Way to Sea, Razing Towns

PEOPLE TERRIFIED

Air Observer Says Scope Of Stream Widens And Branches Out

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI

ROME, Nov. 9. (US)—The terrifying, slow, but inexorable advance of the torrent of lava from the gaping sides of Mount Etna has now killed at least nine persons and destroyed more than $15,000,000 worth of property, including the homes of thousands of families.

The hot, smoking river today reached within 200 yards of the railway station at Mascali, flowed near the railway at Catania, and turned toward the sea. Part of the city of Mascali was destroyed.

Troops in Service

Military forces were today employed to see that all families near the path of the torrid torrent were safely out of their homes. Yesterday five men were burned alive when they refused to abandon their homes in the path of the lava flood. At Santa Venera, a village wiped out by the lava stream today, two nuns and two peasants who were isolated on rocks, were watched by the villagers as they knelt in prayer until they disappeared under the molten stream.

More than ten miles from the open craters in the sides of Mount Etna, the Sicilian river of lava is reported to be in some places a mile in width and flowing at the rate of 20 feet an hour.

Prof. Ponte, director of the Mt. Etna Vulcanological institute, crossed the river of lava in a hydroplane three times today, using special visibility devices. He reports that the flood of lava has a triangular shape, and is widening as it approaches the sea. He reports that the lava flows in a compact mass for about four miles and then divides into many branches, the principal stream, flowing by Mascali, leaving only a few rows of houses there.

Flow Continues

Prof. Ponte states that there is no apparent diminution in the eruption and that "incandescent material continues to be thrust forth with the initial violence."

With the crippled railway facilities between Mt. Etna and Messina, steamboat service has been started between the towns of Catania and Messina, to aid in carrying the crowds away from the terrifying scenes. Over 6,000 of the men of the affected district have been mobilized by the Fascist authorities and have started the work of building homes for the refugees.

Pope Pius today made the first contribution to a relief fund for the suffering Sicilians with a gift of 25,000 lire.

Paris, Texas, Millionaire Pictured As Mentally Alert in New Evidence

Aspect of Late W. J. McDonald's Will Contest Changes With Defense Testimony

PARIS, Texas, Nov. 9. (AP)—The contest of the will of the late William J. McDonald, which bequeathed more than $1,000,000 to Texas university for an observatory, presented a changed aspect today when proponents of the instrument began presentation of testimony.

Since the first testimony introduced last week there had been a stream of contestants' witnesses on the stand, among them a specialist in nervous disorders. Where the testimony of these witnesses combined to picture the late Paris millionaire as an enfeebled person, unsound mentally and afflicted with "insane delusions," initial testimony introduced by the defense today indicated McDonald was mentally alert and capable of transacting business until the last days of his life.

Letter Introduced

Defense attorneys bolstered testimony of witnesses with introduction of a copy of a letter McDonald wrote to the New Orleans representative of a life insurance concern soon after the death of his brother, Henry McDonald, in which he explained that he would assume charge of Henry's affairs. The wording of the letter, defense counsel declared, indicated unusual clarity of purpose for a man of McDonald's advanced years.

A deposition was next read from the Rev. O. T. Cooper of Dallas in which the minister recited he had visited McDonald shortly before his death and that he was of the opinion McDonald was of sound mind. He said he discussed a wide range of subjects with McDonald, including the sciences, and found the aged man talked normally.

Transaction Told

Tom Jeffus, banker of Deport, Texas, detailed a transaction in which he, McDonald and a third party were involved only four or five days before the capitalist's death. He said McDonald made his own terms as to extension of a note for a Deport man and apparently was normal in every respect.

Others who testified for proponents of the will were John Paxton of El Paso, former manager of several theaters at Paris; Dr. W. M. Wright, Paris minister; and Marion Shelton, Paris ginner.

TEXAS SWELLS HOOVER'S LEAD

State Serenity Looms In Wake of Outbursts

DALLAS, Nov. 9. (AP)—Straggling returns from far-flung counties of Texas today continued to increase Herbert Hoover's majority by a few votes as factional political leaders settled back at ease after having uttered their election pronouncements.

The latest returns gave Hoover 353,763 to Governor Smith's 334,236, a majority of 19,437, increasing the probability that Texas, for the first time, had gone Republican. Reports giving these totals had been received from 252 counties, all but one, with more than two-thirds—175—complete.

Despite the apparent lethargy of the political situation, there still remained the possibility that a flare-up could be expected momentarily. Leaders who issued ultimatums to other groups had taken no apparent notice of those hurled at them in return.

However, two outstanding opposing leaders had offered tentative peace proposals, Alvin S. Moody, chairman of the anti-Smith Democrats of Texas, said that his organization bore no malice as a result of the campaign just ended, and that it would not seek removal of members of the present state executive committee.

W. A. Thomas, manager of the Texas Democratic campaign, agreed that the interests of the party can best be served by forgetting things that are past and working in peace and harmony in the future.

Arrangements Under Way For Itinerary of Most Important Cities

PALO ALTO, Calif., Nov. 9 (UP)—President-Elect Hoover's plan for a trip to South America, leaving San Francisco on the battleship Maryland late next week for the southern continent, was revealed here today.

The trip is expected to last about two months, taking the president-elect on an extended tour through the countries of South America. Under present plans, he would return to New York about the middle of January, going then to Washington.

A formal statement by the president-elect that he was considering the trip was given out at his home here tonight, following President Coolidge's announcement in Washington that Hoover had informed him he would make the trip.

While Hoover said there are certain considerations which delay a final determination, it is known that he has decided definitely upon the trip. Arrangements are now being made with the South American countries to be visited, and formal announcement of the itinerary wait only upon completion of these arrangements.

The itinerary under consideration is from San Francisco down the west coast of South America to Valparaiso, thence across the Andes to Buenos Aires, up to Montevideo, with a stop at Rio de Janeiro, and then to New York.

The purpose of the trip, it was stated, is entirely one of good will and the promoting of closer co-operation and better trade relations with the nations to the south for the mutual benefit of all.

Mail Car Bandit Leaves Fort Worth Loot Behind

Lone Robber Sticks Up T. and P. Passenger Train Near City But Drops $53,000 Bag of Money

FORT WORTH, Nov. 9. (AP)—A satchel containing $50,300 in currency was discarded, perhaps inadvertently, by a man who robbed a mail car of an east bound Texas and Pacific railway passenger train less than a mile from Fort Worth tonight.

The bag containing the money, in bills of $5, $10 and $20 denomination and in packages, was found by emergency policeman beneath an abutment on the viaduct near which the bandit left the train after he had "stuck up" two postal clerks, M. E. Pruitt and P. E. Carney, both of Fort Worth, disarmed them and trussed them up in mail bags.

The money found was consigned to the federal reserve bank in Dallas and was in three shipments, one of $46,900 from the F. and M. National bank, Abilene, Texas; one of $5,000 from the First National bank of Cisco, Texas; one of $2,000 from a bank at Seymour, Texas. Apparently the thug had stuffed $2,700 in his pockets.

On the theory that the robber might have hidden the bag under the abutment, officers placed a guard around the spot. The clerks said the hi-jacker entered the train probably at Aledo.

Postal inspectors, who counted the money recovered, began an investigation.

Girl's Clothing Shown In Trial Of Case Here

Relatives of Defendant Testify of Teacher Drinking And Smoking at Lake Wichita Dance

A torn dress and other feminine apparel worn by a girl school teacher on the night of an alleged attack, was introduced in evidence by the state Friday in the trial of Carroll Onstott, Wichita Falls automobile salesman, on a statutory charge.

The clothing was offered for the identification of the girl, who closed her testimony in the trial Friday. A crowd of all ages and both sexes jammed the eighty-ninth district court room Friday during the entire day. Indications were late Friday afternoon that the case would not reach the jury until late Saturday.

Testimony Contradicted

Testimony given by the girl Thursday to the effect that she did not drink or smoke was contradicted Friday by Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Onstott, brother and sister-in-law of the accused man. They testified that on the night of the dance that Carroll Onstott, the girl, and John Henry Onstott drank and smoked together several times at Lake Wichita.

Dr. M. M. Walker, who examined the girl soon after the affair, took the witness stand and said that from the medical point of view she remained untouched.

Mrs. John Henry Onstott had previously testified that during the dance she had watched the girl dance with Carroll Onstiott that she thought they danced too close together, that the girl's cheek rubbed Carroll Onstott's cheek, and that she had commented about it to her husband.

F. C. Webster, manager of a used car department of a local automobile agency for which Onstott was working at the time the affair is alleged to have happened, testified that he had driven Carroll Onstott to the lake that night as he, Webster, was the only one who had the right to take out a used car belonging to the company.

Questions of Arms

A laugh passed over the court room when W. L. Lawlor, a character witness for the defense, testified he had known Carroll Onstott since he was a baby in arms.

Democrats Lose Places To 'Independents'

EDINBURG, Texas, Nov. 9. (AP)—"Independent" Republicans dented in two places the Democratic administration of Hidalgo county, storm center of Texas politics for several days, it developed tonight when the last and decisive box, that of Edinburg, was counted while a throng milled about, shepherded by Texas rangers.

Two "Citizens-Republicans," or Independents, were elevated to office on the strength of returns from the local box. Every other county office was won by administration candidates.

Gordon Griffin, McAllen, Independent, defeated his Democratic opponent, Judge J. E. Leslie, 3,859 to 3,593 for district judge and Henderson defeated his administration opponent for county commissioner of Precinct 2.

The county as a whole went Republican by only four votes but Governor Moody beat the Republican gubernatorial contender, W. H. Holmes, Amarillo, 6,200 to 3,500.

Although state rangers and county deputy sheriffs have stood guard over the Edinburg polling place since tabulation of votes began, only one instance was reported where the officers found it necessary to curb activities of the crowd. Ranger Captain Frank Hamer collared three men who had crawled under the voting booth and bored holes in the floor.

While final results were being announced here, Independent candidates and their supporters were holding a mass meeting at Weslaco to discuss their grievances at the conduct of Tuesday's election and raise funds to prosecute a contest of the election.

The car was found abandoned 10 miles farther west in Chautauqua county, and the posse early tonight, was closing in on what was thought the hiding place of the kidnapers.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Nov. 9 (UP)—A hundred armed men left here early tonight responding to a call from the Cautauqua county sheriff who stated that a posse had surrounded two men believed to be the ones who early this afternoon kidnapped Earl Hackney, chief of police, and U. H. McCurtney, patrolman, both of Coffeyville.

A posse of 500 persons using airplanes and automobiles have been searching all afternoon and tonight in an effort to find the two missing officers whom they thought might have met foul play at the hands of their abductor.

The two officers were kidnapped single-handed by a chicken thief who who is said to have been caught in the act of stealing chickens. Oil Expert Reveals New Scheme To Make Millions From Dead Wells

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 9. (AP)—A plan whereby producers assertedly might place billions of additional dollars in their pockets was revealed to a meeting of geologists and petroleum engineers at the University of Oklahoma today by Ben E. Lindly of the United States Bureau of Mines experiment station of Bartlesville, Okla.

Lindley's scheme, on which he said he had worked for two years, involves the use of heated natural gas under pressure to volatilize and recover crude oil from sand strata that have been considered drained, but which, he said, contained large quantities of oil. He said he never before had made public the results of his experiments.

In many fields, the technician said, not more than 15 per cent of the oil is recovered. In few fields he added, does the recovery run higher than 30 per cent.

His plan is based on the theory that if the oil is raised to a high temperature virtually all of it could be vaporized and forced out of the sand.

BISHOP DEFIES COMMONS' RULE

He Authorizes Use of New Prayerbook

LONDON, Nov. 9. (US)—In what is considered to be an absolute defiance of parliament, the bishop of London has addressed circulars to 160 churches in his diocese authorizing the use of the principal rubrics of the so-called revised prayerbook. This is the book of common prayers which was rejected recently by the house of commons.

The principal rubric of the new prayerbook, to which chief exception was taken by the parliamentary opponents, and which Dr. Ingram has authorized for use in the churches of his diocese, is that permitting perpetual reservation of the consecrated elements for use in giving communion to the sick.

This always had been insisted upon by the Anglo-Catholic wing of the Church of England, and just as vehemently opposed by the Evangelical group. It was the chief point which caused the rejection of the new prayerbook in the house of commons.

Today's action by the bishop of London is not only an open defiance of the house of commons, but it is the first time in history that a diocesan bishop has officially replied to the declared will of parliament.

Playful Prince Amuses London

LONDON, Nov. 9. (US)—Antics and adventures of the Prince of Wales on his African tour are amusing all London, as details reach here daily in a series of dispatches to the leading newspapers of the British capital.

His activities include the following:

1.—Breaking the bank in a roulette game on board ship, and then in turn losing all his winnings.

2.—Romping with the children on board ship, and leading them in a Lilliputian invasion of the captain's quarters on the bridge.

3.—Appearing at a fancy dress ball as a "native house-boy," and dancing with the "Queen of Sheba."

4.—Adorning himself as an African patriarch with a beard of white monkey's hair when reviewing troops at the court of an African king.

The latter incident was one of exceptional interest, although the event was one of great state solemnity. It took place when the heir to the British throne, who with his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, is touring Africa, was received at the capital of the kingdom of Bunyoro. Here he was invested by Mukama Toto, Uganda's Christian king, with the royal order of the princes of Bunyoro.

Injunction Sought Against Hoover For Alleged Non-Residence in U. S.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 9. (UP)—Twenty million Americans may think they elected Herbert Hoover as president of the United States, but that doesn't mean anything to Carl A. Neibling, chairman of the board of the anti-Prohibition Society of America.

"Alfred E. Smith or Joseph T. Robinson still have a chance for the presidency," Neibling told the United Press.

He explained it like this:

"We expect to file an injunction against Hoover because of his alleged non-residence."

According to Neibling, in the event of Hoover being disqualified, Smith would be the next choice because Charles E. Curtis, vice president-elect, could succeed only Hoover. He also pointed out if Governor Smith refused the office on such a basis, that Senator Robinson would be next in line.

And—stumbling over a few more "ifs"—in the event a disqualification and a series of refusals, Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, might find himself being addressed as "Mr. President."

The anti-Prohibition Society of America is a relatively small organization in Kansas City, waging its fight against the prohibition amendment in the Middle West.

Gas For Floating All Metal Blimp To Be Generated

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9. (US)—Because of difficulty in obtaining enough hydrogen gas to float his huge all-metal dirigible, Capt. Thomas B. Slate, designer of the ship, has added the manufacture of gas to his other activities.

He is now engaged in the construction of an electrolite gas generator, and expects to have the plant in operation in about a week. It will take approximately another week to generate gas enough to float the ship. About 40,000 cubic feet of gas will be needed.

The preliminary tests of the dirigible have been delayed, but the date for its first appearance outside the big hangar at the Glendale airport will be set shortly. Plans are being made for a celebration at that time.

According to Captain Slate, the problem of filling the ship with hydrogen is greatly simplified, as the hull itself is the only gas compartment.

For some time the hull of the dirigible has been filled with natural gas, both to test it for leakage and to simplify the work of introducing the hydrogen. No leaks have been discovered, Captain Slate stated.

It is planned to have similar meetings, rotating among the four towns, during the year.

ELECTION COST 15 MILLIONS

Final Inquiry Into Expense to Start Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Investigation of the cost of the record-breaking presidential campaign will get under way at once, Senator Frederick Steiwer, Republican, of Oregon, chairman of the special senate elections committee, announced tonight.

Full inquiry into all expenditures of national, special and state political groups "as far as is necessary" will be undertaken, he said.

Based on reports already made by officials of the two major parties and the estimated expenditures of state and special political organizations, the presidential contest cost upwards of $15,000,000, it is thought.

The Republican and Democratic national committees alone spent over $10,000,000.

No Irregularity

So far, Senator Steiwer said, no complaints of irregularities in expenditures have been received by the committee. Of its own volition, however, the committee is anxious to have complete report ready for the senate when congress convenes.

While the estimated total of $15,000,000 for expenses seems high, it was suggested in committee circles that based on the unusual activity of each political organization in the campaign just closed, and the total vote obtained, the money expended represented a smaller per capita cost than in 1924.

Both parties, it was pointed out, spent large sums in the usually "solid South"—a section heretofore overlooked in this connection.

The combined radio bill for the two major parties will account for nearly $2,000,000 of the total outlay, it is thought. This represents an entirely new item of expense.

Inquiry at the department of justice revealed only one complaint has been received so far alleging election irregularities.

The Republican county committee in Hidalgo county, Texas, sent a telegram to the department charging that final returns were being held up by election judges.

The committee was notified by the department to file its complaint with the U. S. attorney for the district.

NEW EVOLUTION FIGHT STARTS

Liberties Union in Arms Against Ark. Law

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (UP)—The American Civil Liberties Union today renewed its fight on laws restricting the teaching of evolution.

Passage by the voters of Arkansas on Tuesday of a law forbidding the teaching of the theory of evolution in schools of that state, aroused the organization to new activity.

It issued an appeal today for some school teachers in Arkansas, Tennessee or Mississippi to sponsor a test case which the civil liberties union is ready to conduct.

Quiet Process Assured

"The union promises," the announcement of plans for the campaign said, "that a case such as it proposes will not be another drama of international notoriety like the Scopes case, because the effort now is solely to get the legal issues in effective shape before the higher courts."

The inference was that no long, drawn out discussion of the merits of the Darwinian theory in an open court, such as made the Dayton trial of John Scopes a spectacle which held world attention, would grow out of this case.

"It will be necessary," the union's announcement said, "for a teacher in one of the states where the anti-evolution law is in effect, to file a suit against its enforcement, claiming that he desires to teach evolution and is prevented from doing so by the statute and will be discharged if he does.

"He must allege that his rights, under the federal constitution, are being violated by this legislative restriction on his freedom of teaching."

Other Fights Promised

In addition to Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas, which now have evolution laws, the civil liberties union said today that in the 1929 sessions of numerous state legislatures anti-evolution laws will be offered.

The Arkansas anti-evolution act, which passed Tuesday, will become effective as soon as the vote is officially certified. It then will be required that experts go through the text books and eliminate from them those portions which deal with the theory of evolution. It will require expurgation of the theory from the texts used in many courses in biology, zoology, geology, psychology and perhaps some of the text books used in English courses. High school and college courses will be affected the most although some of the courses taught in elementary schools are involved.

Anniversary of Kaiser's Abdication Almost Day of Mourning in Germany

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—Today, the tenth anniversary of the kaiser's abdication and the proclamation of a German republic revealed Germany as somewhat abashed if not "ashamed" of the revolution.

Large number of Germans, apparently, are still somewhat uncertain if the republic is "respectable" despite the presidency of Von Hindenburg.

Except for newspaper comment the anniversary passed unhonored and unsung—a more a day of mourning than rejoicing.

Government Silent

Members of the government agreed to remain silent and most Republicans did likewise.

Nationalist papers thunder against "Germany's day of shame" and the "German saturnalia."

Communist papers demand a "German Soviet republic."

The Democratic Morgenpost admits the memory of Nov. 9, 1918, is no cause for rejoicing, for it is tragic that the birthday of the Republic coincides with the military collapse."

Foreign Secretary Gustav Stresemann writing in the Leipsiger Neueste Nachrichten said:

"The new generation will reject the old idea of hereditary monarchy but it is erroneous to believe that the monarchist idea is dead. The idea has taken new form; namely, recognition of personality. Whoever rises from the ordinary level through personal talents—him youth acknowledges as the leader."

Still 'In Chains'

Nationalist newspapers still denounce the "Novemberlings" as "traitors who stabbed the army in the back."

All voices agree that, despite the miraculous German economic and political recovery, which makes American visitors exclaim: "What Price Defeat?" Germany is still harrassed by the Versailles treaty, or as the Nationalist newspapers characterize it, "groaning under the chains of Versailles."

INSURANCE OF SNYDER VOID

Relatives of Slain Man Lose Payment

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (AP)—The insurance policies totaling $95,000 on the life of Albert Snyder, murdered by his wife, Ruth, and her lover, Judd Gray, were declared null and void today by Supreme Court Justice Mchoney.

The insurance, taken out not long before Snyder's death, was established as the motive for the murder for which Mrs. Snyder and Gray were executed.

The Prudential Life Insurance company brought action against Mrs. Josephine Brown, Mrs. Snyder's mother, and Lorraine Snyder, little daughter of the executed woman, for annulment of the policies on the ground that the contract was not valid because Mrs. Snyder had deceived her husband in taking them.

Robert W. Stewart On Trial Again Monday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (UP)—Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, will go on trial in District of Columbia supreme court Monday on an indictment charging perjury before the senate Teapot Dome investigating committee, Frank W. Hogan, Stewart's attorney announced today.

Hogan, who obtained an acquittal for Stewart on a senate contempt charge last spring, said he was anxious to bring the perjury case to trial as soon as possible.

Transformer Blast Excites Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Nov. 9. (INS)—Several downtown blocks were without electric light or power for several hours today when a huge transformer at Sixth and Throckmorton streets, one block from the International News service bureau, blew out about 9:35 a. m.

There were no casualties, but officer L. W. Norwood, who was standing near a manhole at the time, was blinded temporarily and knocked several yards. The driver of an automobile had a narrow escape when another manhole cover blew off just as the rear wheels of his car passed over it.

There were two explosions, and within a few minutes hundreds of workers from nearby offices were on the scene. Ambulances and fire equipment also were rushed there but were not needed.

WOUNDED MAN DIES

PAMPA, Texas, Nov. 9. (AP)—Grover B. Landers, wounded by a city officer yesterday when Landers allegedly resisted arrest, died last night.

Atheist's Hangout Again Is Raided

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 9 (AP).—Police again today raided the atheist headquarters of Charles Smith, president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, and seized literature which they said Smith was preparing to distribute. A previous raid on Smith's headquarters resulted in a fine of $25 on a breach of peace charge, a part of which he served out in the city jail and meanwhile staged a "hunger strike" in protest against anti-atheism laws in the state.

Police Chief B. C. Rotemberry announced that Smith would be arrested later on a state charge of blasphemy, which provides for imprisonment as well as a fine.

Formal Tea At Woman's Forum Is Lovely Affair of Social Season

One of the loveliest and most elaborate affairs of the season was Friday afternoon when Mesdames J. Truman Stevens, Dan Hardy, James L. Duffy and Phil Lesh were hostesses at a formal tea from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Woman's Forum.

The reception room was strikingly decorated with huge baskets of cut flowers and vines. The stage was beautifully decorated with huge urns of chrysanthemums with pieces of fern hanging to the floor.

Guests went through the receiving line into a lovely autumn garden and into the dining room. The garden presented a goregous scene and was decorated with baskets of cut flowers and oak trees with autumn leaves. At the end of the garden was a miniature fountain and on each side of the fountain were large urns of pampa blooms. Birds in cages added reality to the setting. In the center was a large sundial and reflection of lights cast beautiful shadows making it look as if the sun were setting. The background appeared to be the garden wall and was artistically decorated with haw berries. The lattice work at the back of the garden added beauty and gracefulness to the scene. Three musicians were seated at the side of the garden and played soft Hawaiian music throughout the afternoon.

The dining room carried out the same effect with baskets of cut flowers and the long dining table with the three gold tapers in silver holders placed diagonally across from each other was very artistic. The table cloth was Italian hand cut with insets of filet lace. At either end of the table Mrs. J. B. Stokes and Mrs. J. E. H. Railey poured tea from silver tea services. A large bowl of chrysanthemums formed the center piece. Plates with a salad, tea and mints in the shape of an autumn leaf were served.

In the line with the hostesses were Mesdames Charles R. Hartsook, J. B. Stokes, J. E. H. Railey, Claude Miller, Nydia Young, A. G. Holmes, J. R. Terrill, W. W. Cook, J. W. Stringer, Alvah Connor, Jess Waggoner, R. L. Underwood, S. S. McKenney, Cad McCall of Nocona, E. C. Harvey, J. M. Spoonts, George D. Fox, C. J. Coffee, Thomas H. Peery, J. A. Huber, James W. Ryan, R. A. Lincoln, Lloyd Sigler of Fort Worth, J. E. Hall, J. G. Menke, R. T. Belcher, John T. Carter and Miss Elsie Bushman. Mrs. John Chambers of Dallas was the honored guest.

Those who served tea were Mrs. L. F. Chestnutt, and Misses Nell and Maxine Duffy, Dorothy Everts Isabel Graham, Marie Threlkeld and Erma Schnell.

Little Misses Phyllis and Jane Lesh and Mary Irene Duffy served at the card table.

Approximately 400 guests called during the afternoon.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (US)—Whenever you see a story of a woman suing some man for heart "balm," don't you feel certain she is the one her mother should have drowned?

If you have something to say to your wife and don't dare to say it, watch this column and get your scissors.

A professor was talking to teachers on the subject of scientific speech correction and voice culture. According to him a child will have perfect enunciation, a delightful voice, and be a charming person to listen to, if he holds in his chin and pushes in his stomach, and relaxes the back of his neck.

As they walked home, two of the teachers who, it happens, teach the professor's boy, talked the child over. One said to the other, "I'll tell you, you shove in his stomach and I'll poke him in the chin and hit him in the back of the neck," and they said it with a laugh and a good deal of enthusiasm. Myself, personally, I wouldn't have considered their joy a compliment.

A lady sat sewing and listening to a political speech. Having a radio she couldn't do much of anything else if she wanted entertainment. She wondered whether it was his heart or his mind or his mouth that spoke when these words came forth:

"Smith is going to win, and he's going to win by 525,000 dollars plurality!"

That will give the dolls who live in hotels a chuckle. But if they want to see what that kind of a woman looks like, they aren't likely to meet her at the night clubs or in divorce courts.

If women didn't go down town when they didn't need anything the lives of men would be ever so much happier.

A Los Angeles couple were married 42 years before they were sure it was a mistake, and sought a divorce.

They were trying to stick out that first 100 years that are the hardest.

Chicago has a woman who has married seven times, and is suing the seventh for divorce. When she says "they are all alike," women should listen, and keep the one they have.

Elinor Smith, Freeport, L. I., girl aviator, ducked under four bridges in her plane, and says it's easy.

Crossing bridges is what is difficult. Another advantage is that if we ducked under them, maybe we wouldn't have to duck until we go to them, and that should eliminate a great deal of our present trouble.

CHIC CHERIE

Latest Fashions

Cherie is wearing riding breeches and riding coat of different materials and all the smarter for that fact. The breeches are cavalry twill. Her hat matches the shade of her coat. The topcoat is a loosely cut affair of camel's hair. She is feeling a little lonely—can she trust herself with a horse alone in the world?

True, her horse has always brought her home safely . . . . but suppose the horse simply got tired of her? She wishes she had learned to ride at the age of the youngster in the tan whipcords jodhpurs, tweed coat and velvet jockey cap. Well, she asked for an elderly horse with an amiably disposition—it won't be her fault.

It took Sue and Dina fully half an hour to persuade her to make up a bridge table. They had no idea she was so fond of riding! With great reluctance—if they can find Alice—Cherie consents to make the fourth. Dina is wearing a colorful sports ensemble of knit fabric with a coat and skirt in diamond pattern, a jumper and scarf of wide stripes and a little tricot turban whose color matches the scarf. Sue a tweed suit with a cape pockets and a buckled belt. With a few remarks about the foolishness of staying indoors when there's all the world to gallop in, Cherie will bid three hearts.

NUPTIAL VOWS ON AIR TONIGHT

Radio Wedding at KGKO At 11 P. M.

Identity of the bride-elect of the first radio wedding in Wichita Falls was made known Friday afternoon by station KGKO from which station the wedding is to be broadcast. The young lady is Miss Mamie Young of this city. She will be married to Robert Shreves, staff artist of the station at 11 o'clock Saturday evening in the studio rooms of the broadcasting station with none of the "frills" attendant at more conventional weddings lacking.

Rev. Patrick D. Moreland, pastor of the Grant Street Methodist church, has been substituted for Dr. S. A large number of telegrams and gifts have been received by Miss Young and Mr. Shreves.

The wedding was scheduled for last Saturday evening but was postponed on account of the illness of the bride-elect.

Would You Know One If You Saw It?

If you ever came face to face with a germ, would you recognize it? Of course it is not likely that you ever will see a germ, unless you own a tremendously powerful microscope, for you would have to magnify one over a thousand times to make it as big as a pin head. But you should recognize the fact that these tiny germs can get into your blood streams through the smallest cut, and give you typhoid fever, tuberculosis, lockjaw, blood poisoning, and many more dangerous and perhaps fatal diseases. There is one sure safeguard against these dangers — washing every cut, no matter how small, thoroughly with Liquid Borozone, the safe antiseptic. You can get Liquid Borozone at Miller's Drug Store

As the Father Is, So Will Hubby Be, So Girls Should Be Careful

How Can a Woman Tell What Her Husband Will Be Like at Sixty?—Helping to Discourage a Foolish Marriage—Outwitting Eight Step-Children

Dear Dorothy Dix—Can a woman judge her husband by his father? Will he be at 60 what his father is at 60? Is a woman supposed to be married to her husband or his people?—Mrs. C. M.

Answer—When a woman marries a man she does to a certain extent marry his people. For one thing, he is pretty much what they have made him by the inheritance they have given him and the environment in which he has been reared.

She also marries his people in the sense, that their name becomes her name, and she should at least make the attempt to become one of them. She should show them affection and consideration and make every effort to get along amiably with them. And she should not attempt to separate her husband from his family.

As for whether a man will be at 60 the sort of a husband his father is, that depends largely upon the sort of a wife he marries. Of course, every man's tendency is to be the sort of husband his father was, because about the only husband with whom he has ever been intimately associated was his father.

Naturally, therefore, his father has unconsciously formed his ideal. If his father has loved his mother and been tender and courteous and considerate to her, that's the way he thinks a man should treat his wife. If his father has always waited on his mother and shown her all sorts of little attentions, he is gallant to his wife.

But if the father has been surly and grouchy and made nothing but a domestic slave of his mother, if he has heard all of his mother's opinions derided and pooh-poohed and if his father has been niggardly and stingy to his mother, he grows up with the idea that a wife is nothing but an unpaid servant that a husband has a right to kick around and abuse as much as he pleases.

The only exception to this rule is when a boy sees his mother mistreated and neglected, and is so filled with sympathy for her that he swings to the other extreme and treats his wife as considerately as possible.

However, there are many cases in which a woman can take warning from her father-in-law and educate her husband into being an entirely different sort of a husband. For husbands are like children, they can be spoiled until they are rotten and make life miserable for all about them or they can be spanked and made to behave and become sweet and lovable and good as gold.

But you have to begin with both when they are young if you want to train them in the way they should go. So if you see that your husband is developing the objectionable traits of his father, squelch them on the spot. If he is tyrannical assert your independence. If he is grouchy laugh at him. If he is stingy, smash the lock on his pocketbook. If he won't give you an allowance, refuse to work without wages.

Make him respect you as a human being as well as a wife. Tell him that the days of martyr wives went out with his poor, dear mother, and that if he wants to keep you he will have to make the wife job attractive.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—My son, a boy of 21, who can hardly support himself, even though he pays the smallest amount at home for his board, who has not even a permanent job and a penny saved, is thinking of getting married. Won't you publish a list of the different expenses married man must meet, as he has no idea of what it costs to support a family. Tell him that it must be good-by to dances, good-by to cars, good-by to golf, good-by to vacation trips and all the innocent expensive pleasures of young life, if he gets married.—READER.

Answer: Dear lady, I should have to monopolize all of the space in this paper if I printed even a partial list of the bills that a married man must meet. I should have to tell butcher bills and grocery bills, milk bills and light bills, fuel bills and rent bills, and bills for clothing, medicine, cosmetics, shoes, stockings, lingerie and—oh, what's the use? Nobody can know how many bills and ills there are in matrimony until they try it, and then it's too late.

Certainly the youngsters wouldn't set sail so blithely on the Sea of Bills if they had any idea of how boundless they are, but the trouble is the girl and boy think they have supported themselves when they have only paid for their clothes and good times and handed mother a few dollars that didn't begin to pay for their board and lodging.

They don't realize what it costs merely to exist in these days of the high cost of living, and when they try to figure out a budget on which they can live after they are married they assume that they are always going to be healthy and have no doctor bills, and that they will be able to live upon the minimum amount, whereas they find out that they have unexpected sickness and doctors and hospitals and nurses, and that everything costs twice as much as they thought it would.

It is no use in shrieking warnings to the young who are in love, however. They'll go on believing that two can live as cheaply as one, and that all they will want is bread and cheese and kisses, anyway, and when they find out they are just as hungry after marriage as they were before marriage and that it costs four times as much for a married couple to live on as it does a single one, why a certain percentage of them will draw in their hunger belt a little tighter and fight their way through and the balance will go on the rocks.

But, oh, the misery it would prevent, the broken hearts and the years of struggle it would save, if only young people would wait to marry until they have the price and could afford it!—DOROTHY DIX.

Fruits and vegetables are bearers of health

Eat them, cooked and raw, each day

One of the country's leading food scientists was asked what rule he could give for healthy eating. "This would be my first rule," he said. "Eat at least one raw salad (vegetable) and at least one raw fruit each day. In addition to that, eat at least one cooked vegetable and one cooked fruit each day. Rotate the fruits and vegetables with season, price and taste."

He went on immediately to emphasize the value of sugar in making fruits and vegetables palatable and enjoyable. People no longer need feel that a meal has to be unenjoyable in order to be healthful. In fact, the opposite is true. It is of great importance to the health of the body to enjoy the right foods as well as to eat them. And sugar is nature's most perfect flavor, the adder of zest and pleasure to eating. Many of the most healthful fruits, for example, would be almost uneatable without sugar. Adding sugar makes the harsh fruit acids delightful to the taste. It does not injure or change in any way the beneficial health qualities of the fruits. And the good cook knows that nearly every vegetable has its flavor improved when sugar is used in cooking.

Successful cookery and health-giving diets revolve around sugar. Sugar in the kitchen and on the table can be so useful in promoting health and good digestion. What, for example, is so enjoyable and refreshing as fresh grapefruit, sweetened to taste? It is important to eat fruits and vegetables daily and to enjoy them. The Sugar Institute

MOVIE HEADS GREET WRITERS

British Newspapermen Are Hollywood's Guests

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9. (US)—Hollywood last night gave distinguished visiting journalists from Great Britain a typically spontaneous and warm hearted welcome.

In the banquet room of the Roosevelt hotel, with the flags of Great Britain and the United States mingling, the visiting editors and writers were given a taste of Hollywood hospitality at the dinner table. Later, after the brief and informal addresses, they participated gayly in the dance which brought the affair to a climax.

The banquet and dance, entirely informal, was tendered in honor of the British writers and journalists by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Douglas Fairbanks, as president of the academy, presided. As he stood under two large photographs, one of King George and the other of President Coolidge, he proposed a toast to the leaders of the two great nations.

The visitors and guests promptly responded.

Gus Edwards sang a song he had written in honor of the distinguished visitors with the willing assistance of the notable gathering.

Then William De Mille, vice president of the academy, was introduced as the chairman. In witty fashion he welcomed the visitors to Hollywood and the United States, pointed out that their presence would serve further to link the two nations in friendship, and introduced the various speakers.

Among the principal speakers of the evening was William Randolph Hearst.

Oldest Literary Societies Merged

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 9. (AP)—Whig and Clio halls, the two oldest college literary societies in the United States, were merged formally into one organization today after the approval of the Princeton students body and alumni had been obtained. In the future all forensic activity on the Princeton campus will center around Whig hall, and Clio hall will be loaned to the administration as a university center.

Lack of interest in debating is the chief reason for the disuse into which the two halls have fallen in recent years.

Clio hall was founded in 1765 and Whig four years later. During their long history they have included many famous Princeton undergraduates in their membership. Both James Madison and Woodrow Wilson, Princeton's two presidents of the country were active in the work of Whig hall, while in college.

Could Do Housework After Taking Cardui

Too Weak to Keep Going. Chair Looked Good to Tired Lady. Took Cardui and Felt Fine.

Waycross, Ga.—"I was weak and nervous," says Mrs. J. B. Coffee, of 1036 Albany Avenue, this city. "The least thing tired me out. I did not feel able to do my housework. After I would do some little work, a chair would look good to me, I was so easily tired.

"I had some pain in the lower part of my body—a soreness. I felt like if I didn't find something to help me, I was going to get in bed. I was getting too weak to keep going.

"A friend of mine advised me to try Cardui. I began using it at once. On my third bottle, I felt some improvement in my condition. I had a better appetite, and did not feel so weak.

"I kept up the Cardui. I took six bottles in all. The soreness left my body, and I felt stronger and better than I had in some time; could do my housework with ease, and felt fine."

'Super-National' Secret Powers Caused World War, Says Ludendorff

Former German Field Marshal Claims Foch and Wilson Were 'Deceptive' in Offering Peace Terms

Editor's Note: From the outset of the great war, Field Marshal Ludendorff held high positions in the German army, mostly as Hindenburg's assistant. Later he became chief of staff of the eastern armies, and ultimately, when Hindenburg was made commander in chief of all the German armies, Ludendorff was appointed quartermaster-general, with the rank of field marshal. For a long period Ludendorff was practically military dictator of Germany under the kaiser, upon whom he exerted a strong influence. In the following article he claims that "super-national" powers started the world war and are active still.

By FIELD MARSHAL ERICH LUDENDORFF

(World Copyright, 1928, by United Press. All Rights Reserved)

MUNICH, Bavaria, Nov. 9.—Ten years ago the armistice was concluded in the forest of Compiegne. The super-national secret powers, which incite nations against one another and plunge them into misery, believed that they had achieved their goal, as I pointed out in my new political book "War Incitement and the Murder of Peoples During the Past 150 Years."

For centuries these secret super-national forces have been striving for dominance over free nations and, to this end, they instigated wars and revolutions in Europe and America. The world war was intended to crown their task and especially to ensiave the Russians and Germans, which until then had not succumbed as readily as other nations to the will of the super-national powers.

Causes Tension

This was the purpose of King Edward VII's policy of encirclement; this was the reason for the artificially-produced tension among the nations and particularly between Russia and Germany, which were to tear each other to shreds. The people themselves never suspected the infernal threads being woven around them.

In the world war, the Germans defended themselves heroically against the fate of destruction which had been assigned to them. They defeated Russia, but the Germans' military preparedness had not been developed before the war to the required degree for defending the homeland. Thus they could merely place their defensive forces in the field gradually, while the enemy was steadily increasing his own superiority at the front and was more than compensated for the loss of Russia through the acquisition of the United States.

Wilson "Deceptive"

Simultaneously, the propaganda of falsehoods was more and more undermining the will-power of the Germans. Thus they were no longer capable of seeing through the final struggle in the autumn of 1918. They hearkened to the deceptive words of Wilson and ignored my warning.

Through Foch, the secret super-national powers then dictated to the German delegates the harshest terms. Representatives of the same super-national powers in Germany, who had meanwhile overthrown kaiserdom and grasped the reins of government, meekly accepted these unheard-of terms.

Disarmed Germans are today fighting on behalf of all peoples against the super-national secret powers, and their weapon is truth.

Election Painful To Cognac Makers

PARIS, Nov. 9. (US)—French action to the American election has been alcoholic rather than political. While French newspapers and politicians have been wary in expressing any positive opinion as a result of the overwhelming victory of Herbert Hoover, French wine-growers and cognac dealers have thrown up their hands in despair at the prospect of a continued ban on the marketing of their products in the choice American market.

Jean Hennessy, the cognac king and producer of the famous "Three Star," remarked:

"I foresaw that prohibition would remain unchanged regardless of the elections. But the important factor is that prohibition attained the status of an election issue, and this indicates that sooner or later, there must be a modification of Volsteadism.

"Meanwhile, I fear prohibition will continue for a lengthy period."

Edouarde Barthe, president of the wine growers' group in the chamber of deputies, expressed his feelings in the following words:

"The United States election result tells me that America will be forced to continue under her regime of fraud and contraband when she seeks alcoholic beverages. The bootleggers, of course, would not endanger their huge profits by supporting legislation for light wines and beer.

"The French can only regret the situation, for we realize the benefits of moderate drinking."

ANGER MAKES 'MUTE' SPEAK

Mother Who Sought Damages for Boy Arrested

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (AP)—Five-year-old Hyman Friedman, drilled to pretend he was mute, was able to withstand the efforts of seven specialists to make him talk, but anger finally started his tongue wagging today and shattered his mother's alleged $50,000 dream.

Almost five years ago a department store truck knocked over the carriage in which Mrs. Anna Friedman was wheeling the baby Hyman and injured Mrs. Friedman.

She settled her case for $3,500 and thus, supreme court justice Gibbs said today in ordering her held for perjury, "undoubtedly whetted her appetite for more plunder."

She brought suit against the department store on the complaint that the child had suffered an injury to his brain which would make him always mute. Justice Gibbs took the child to his chambers after seven physicians had tried unsuccessfully to get him to talk. For 45 minutes he tried to make the boy speak, but without success. Then he turned him over to Arthur Ivans, court attendant.

Ivans learned that the child had been pinched recently by one of his friends.

"Who pinched you?" Ivans asked suddenly.

The boy burst into a voluble denunciation of the offending one, speaking more plainly than most children of his age. Justice Gibbs ordered the mother, who already had testified that the child was mute, held in $10,000 bail and had the facts in the case sent to the district attorney to see if the father, who had not yet testified and so could not be charged with perjury, could be indicted.

Phelps Again Leads In Oklahoma Race

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 9. (AP)—Justice James I. Phelps of the state supreme court up for re-election, again swung into a lead over Judge James B. Cullison of Enid, his Republican opponent, when complete returns from 35 counties received by the state election board were combined with returns received by the Associated Press.

Look out for SORE THROAT

check it with Listerine—
so powerful against germs

When you get home from a football game, gargle immediately with Listerine full strength. It may spare you a dangerous siege with a cold or sore throat or both.

Listerine attacks the disease germs which get the upper hand when bodily resistance is lowered by exposure and nervous tension accompanying a football game.

Listerine is so powerful against germs that even the virulent B. Typhosus (typhoid) germ is killed by it in 15 seconds. Repeated tests show this.

For your own protection use Listerine after any exposure to cold weather or to crowds.

Countless colds start when germs are carried to the mouth on food. By using Listerine on the hands before every meal, you attack such germs and lessen the risk of cold. Remember this, mothers, when handling baby's food.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Statistics disclose many things about New York theater goers, among which is the fact that most of them are hard of hearing. So maintains a box-office tyrant in one of the play houses that happens to be very popular this season.

He reports that when he tries to sell them seats far from the footlights and make them like it, they will, nine times out of the historic 10, begin to play on his sympathies. They plead that they are hard of hearing and that if they cannot get seats in the front row or approximately there, it really is practically useless for them to come to the show.

"A lady came in the other day," he says. "She was hard of hearing when she arrived, and I put up an awful struggle. She was not only hard of hearing when she left, but she was near-sighted. She had a couple of tickets when she departed though."

As the stream of automobiles came to a stop on upper First avenue in response to the traffic signal, a girl started to cross. She recalled the fat, old lady, who had been standing alongside her on the sidewalk and she retraced her steps.

"Can I help you?" she asked, flashing a smile.

The woman nodded humbly, the girl took her arm and they began to cross. Occasionally, the old woman glanced uncertainly toward the motor cars. More often her eyes darted furtive glances at the trim girl's face. The girl decided that she held a great fear of automobiles.

When they were still in the middle of the street, the old woman gazed nervously at the girl.

"Say, tell me something," the woman said.

"Yes, what is it?" the girl asked, desiring to reassure her.

"Is them yer own teeth?"

The girl assured her that they were and after leaving her on the sidewalk, went giggling home.

An otherwise surfeited buyer from an up-and-coming Southwestern city has two thrills and two only, if you ask him suddenly. One of them he can get at home; that is fire engines. The other he can get nowhere else on the face of the globe but in New York; that is Times Square at 11 p. m.

He comes to New York with almost astronomical precision every two months. On his last trip he took more than one furtive look at his watch during the interesting third act of the play that he and a New York host were watching. Then the buyer announced to his host that, interesting as this play was, he must go outside, else he would miss Times Square at 11 p. m.

They reached the square just as traffic whistles screamed from a dozen directions to hear above the brilliant din of the Crosswords of the World the clangor of oncoming fire engines.

The two-thrilled man seized his host's arm, hustled him to the curb, and from the heights of two taxicab bumpers—one fore and the other naturally aft—the otherwise surfeited buyer yelled:

"Jim! Look! Here comes the only things in the world that can get through Times Square at 11 p. m. in a jiffy!"

A PICTURE

Once I saw a priceless picture
Of a quiet woodland scene,
With its soft and blended colors
Done in shades of brown and green.
It was art of great perfection,
But it failed to show the worth
Of the woodland that inspired it—
Of the trees that gave it birth.

England's Divorce Publicity Law

A GREAT increase in the number of divorce suits filed is reported to have followed the enactment of a law in England forbidding the publication of details of divorce trials.

The law was enacted upon the theory that the publication of divorce scandals was bad for public morals and that it led to more divorces.

So far as the number of divorce suits is concerned it is now seen that this view was erroneous. As to whether the publication of details was bad for public morals is a question for debate.

There may be some suggestion toward crime and immorality in the publication of such news. But on the other hand such publicity does awaken the people to conditions as they exist which knowledge is a prerequisite for measures to remedy these conditions. Very often too the wrong doer fears the publicity he will receive more than he does the punishment the courts may deal out.

Party Tradition and Votes

IN A communication to this newspaper Edwin Bebb Sr. criticizes an editorial which sought consolation in the greatly increased popular vote for the Democratic ticket and which expressed regret that the result putting Texas in the Republican column apparently did not mean that we were to have a strong Republican party in Texas.

Among other things Mr. Bebb said: "If the election taught anything it taught that party tradition did not hold the intelligent voter."

We are not so sure that Mr. Bebb has interpreted the returns correctly. It seems to us that party tradition did hold the Republican voters but that it failed to hold the Democrats. We are inclined to believe with the Hartford Courant, a Republican paper, that "prohibition and religion cut both ways, more so in some states than others. If Mr. Hoover had been a Catholic wet and Governor Smith had been a Quaker dry, while still retaining the leadership of their respective parties, in all human probability Hoover would have won just the same, although he might not have made such inroads on the South."

As stated in the Record News editorial we believe that a candidate could have been nominated who would have held the vote of the solid South for the Democrats but that no other candidate could have polled the great popular vote north of the Mason-Dixon line that Smith did.

We still believe it to be for the best interests of this country that it have two strong political parties. We are not without hope that great popular vote given the Democratic ticket means that the Democratic party is about to be revitalized.

Sentiment alone makes us regret that the solid South has been badly broken, but we can hope that this is for the good of both the Republican and the Democratic parties and for the benefit of the people of the nation as a whole. We will not go so far as to say that we are glad that Texas and other states of the solid South have landed in the Republican column but our regret is not unmixed with hope that it is for the best, and that out of it will grow a stronger Republican party in Texas and in other southern states.

As for prohibition we sincerely hope that it can be made effective, but we have a suspicion that Mr. Hoover himself believes that changes in the prohibition law must be made to make it an enforcible law.

As for the principle that religion must not be a test as a qualification for public office, we believe it is eternally right and we hope the Democratic party never abandons that principle.

Storm Brews in Congress

RODNEY DUTCHER writes from Washington that the next session of congress ought to be a fairly stormy one.

The presidential campaign, he says, has left soreness in a good many congressional breasts, and a good bit of this soreness is due to be aired on the floor of congress. Various senators and congressmen will stand up and say exactly what they think about various men and issues.

In addition to providing plenty of worth-while entertainment, this ought to be all for the public good. Politicians do not always speak with the frankness and fervor to which a waiting country is entitled. If the stings of a hot campaign induce them to do so, so much the better. We may learn something.

An English Traffic Case

ENGLAND has always been noted for the speed and severity with which its courts deal with crime. Listen, now, to the way in which an English judge recently handled a traffic case.

A motorist was arrested for driving while intoxicated. It developed that he had been up on the same charge before. The judge, thereupon, fined him 50 pounds—about $250—and suspended his driving license for life.

British traffic is not so heavy as ours. But this British judge, trained in courts that have the protection of the public as their primary aim, had no hesitation about depriving the prisoner of the right ever to drive a car again as long as he lives. Isn't there a little object lesson there for some of our own traffic courts?

VERNON TO CREATE FESTIVE ATMOSPHERE

Vernon business men are making plans for an extraordinary effort to create an atmosphere of Christmas even before the calendar announces the arrival of the holiday season. Primarily, of course, the object sought to be attained is to stimulate early buying of Christmas gifts. This fact does not, however, detract in any way from the commendable aspects of the plan. —Vernon (Texas) Daily Record.

EXTEND USEFULNESS OF TEMPLES

By remaining closed six days in the week, churches do not fulfill their obligation to humanity, Elbert M. Conover, director of the bureau of architecture of the Methodist Episcopal church of Philadelphia, declared at the annual convention of the Playground and Recreation Association of America. He made a plea for churches to provide recreational as well as prayer facilities, pointing out that a gymnasium and rooms for recreations and fellowship are just as important as religion. —Denton (Texas) Record-Chronicle.

DENTON COUNTY HAS BIG PEANUT CROP

The peanut crop in Denton county this year will probably run between 75 and 80 carloads, based on estimates given by Lee Brady and John Simmons, the two men who have bought most of the Denton county crop. A part of the crop has not as yet been sold, but is stored with the hope of a better market. The price paid this year, it is said, has been from $1 to $1.05.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

CHARACTERS

GERANE, only daughter of
JONIFER THE HAWK, a robber chieftain who is planning a raid on a rich merchant who is to pass along the King's highway, begs to be allowed to accompany the bandits. Her father commands her to remain at home.

She catches up with the rear guard and proceeds with it.

Julius Broadaxe, one of her father's trusted lieutenants, takes her to him. He is so delighted to know that she is safe that he forgets to punish her.

The COUNTESS KATRANE JABASSY, her husband and a small band of conferedates, all of whom live quietly in Edelweiss. Least of all does any one suspect the relationship between the countess and the bandit chief, who were separated as children, after a political upheaval involving their family. The Countess Katrane, learning that a rich merchant, Leopold Mathias, is to pass through the forest with a fortune in gems that are destined for sale in the capitals of Europe, sends the information to her brother.

INSTALLMENT VI

Leopold Mathias, comfortably seated in a roomy coach, surrounded by bags and parcels and innocent-looking bales, set forth shortly after dawn on the morning of the tenth. One of his clerks sat facing him, while his personal servant was up beside the driver. Two postillons rode behind and another went in front. This was his usual retinue. But today there were six troopers ahead, with six more behind. There were in charge of Captain Starcourt, a young officer recently attached to the smartest regiment in the army, the Duke's Dragoons, so named because their predecessors were commanded by Her Serene Highness's brother at the battle of North-Gate, in the year 1642, during the war with Drawsbergen.

By nightfall the party was well into the Pass of the Two Kings, having covered over 40 miles of the journey to Balak. They went into camp alongside the highway in a glen known as Night's Rest. Here, at the base of a shelving cliff, were stone ovens, a spring, and a few crude sheds. This glen was situated on the very threshold, so to speak, of the forbidding far-stretching Inn of the Hawk and Raven.

Mr. Mathias was glad to get out and stretch. Also he was glad to have some one to talk to besides the sleepy clerk who had sat opposite him all the way from Edelweiss. And he was more than glad to see all these sturdy men-at-arms about him. They were most comforting. He felt quite jovial.

Presently fires were going in the ovens and the heavenly odor of stews and broiling meats — ah, beamed Leopold Mathias, what a joy it was to be really hungry like this! And sleepy, too. He would sleep like a log, with all these brave fellows about. And this Captain Starcourt — what a fine-looking chap he was. Never had he seen a more soldierly-looking, gallant young fellow in all his life. He was very proud of young Captain Starcourt. Not even in Vienna, famed for the splendor of its military Adonises, were there such elegant specimens. It was a pleasure, a distinction, to be served by such a specimen.

Moreover, for the first time, Mr. Mathias found himself taking notice of the uniform of the Graustark army. Heretofore, he had regarded it as rather commonplace, lacking in all the qualities that made for a good, upstanding soldier. He eyed Captain Starcourt with increasing favor. Yes, said he to himself more than once during the day, the uniform of the Duke's Dragoons was well worth looking at. It had style, it had what one might call flourish, and it was undeniably valiant. He approved of the dark green coat—especially did he like the way it fitted about the back and shoulders—and the rakish red cap with the black band and visor . . . Well, commented Mr. Mathias critically, one certainly ought to feel safe in such company as this.

Nevertheless, he was a little awed and, to a certain extent, annoyed by the reserve, the seemingly unnecessary taciturnity of the captain of his guard. He took some comfort, however, in the reflection that, no doubt, this strapping young fellow was a trifle conscious of his own insignificance in the presence of so important a person as he. If that were the case, he would make a point of putting the shy dragoon at his ease. He would show him that the great Leopold Mathias could be as genial and as affable as anybody else.

So, while the men were quartering their horses and preparing supper, he strode over to join the captain who was seated on a log, moodily puffing at his pipe. In order to carry out his design to put the young man perfectly at ease, he stuck his thumbs in the armholes of his floreated waistcoat, exposing the full expanse of an amiable and ingratiating paunch, set his Homburg hat far enough back on his head to reveal the outskirts of a very jolly sort of bald-spot, and assumed his most benign smile.

"Well, Captain," said he, sitting down beside the officer, "it has been a comfortable journey so far, has it not?"

"It has been a long one," said the young man, briefly.

"I daresay it is rather fatiguing to one who is obliged to sit in the saddle for so long a stretch."

"Stand where you are! The first man to move a hand or foot will have bullets for breakfast."

"Quite," said Captain Starcourt.

This was not getting on very well, thought Mr. Mathias. He drew forth a case of cigars.

"Have one," said he.

"No, thank you. I am enjoying my pipe, if you see what I mean, sir."

"Ahem! Spoken like an Englishman. Am I mistaken in assuming that you—er—have spent some time in England?"

"I was born in England," said the other.

"Indeed? You surprise me. Or rather, you do not surprise me. I know England very well. Many delightful acquaintances in London. Some of my best customers live—ahem! As I was saying, pipe smoking is distinctly an English habit. I sometimes envy the English the enjoyment they obtain from—ahem! You will pardon me if I express surprise that you, an Englishman, should be in the Graustark army. Quite unusual—ah—if you see what I mean—Captain—ah—"

"Starcourt is my name."

"Starcourt? Ah, that is English. And now that I have had a good look at you, I can quite believe you when you say you are English—typically English."

"My mother was born and bred in Graustark, Mr. Mathias," volunteered the other. "She married an Englishman. That's how it happens, you see."

"You mean she was a—ah—native-born Graustarkian?"

"She is, Mr. Mathias, not was."

"Ah, I see, I see. How interesting. So that is how you come to be in our army. I see."

He waited for the implied invitation to take effect. Captain Starcourt took two or three deliberate pulls at his pipe. Then he turned to Mr. Mathias with a smile.

"My mother's father was an officer in the Duke's Dragoons, Mr. Mathias, and his father before him. It is not my fault that I happened to have had an English father, you know."

"Not at all, not at all," agreed Mr. Mathias, hastily. "I see, yes, indeed, I see quite clearly. An international marriage, so to speak."

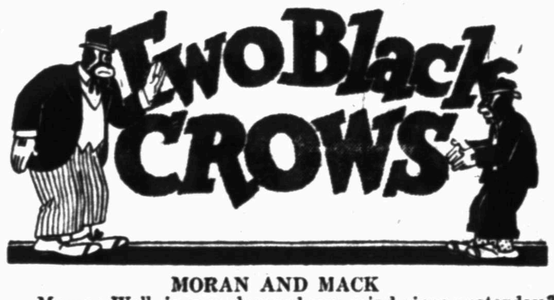

"So to speak," said Captain Starcourt, obligingly.

He blinked and then sat up frowning. "Bless my soul," he muttered, "I must be dreaming all this." For every sound outside the coach suddenly had ceased. An absolute silence supported his suspicion that he had dreamed "all this" and that the camp was still deep in slumber. He was on the point of blissfully sinking back upon his improvised couch when an impulse caused him to glance out of the window. Then he heard a clear, stentorian voice uttering these startling, hideous words:

"Stand as you are! The first man to move hand or foot will have bullets for breakfast."

Mack: No, Ferdinand, I ain't.
Moran: Every man changes his mind.
Mack: Th' only time YOU changes you mind is from dumb to dumber.
Moran: What plans is you got for our Thanksgivin' dinner?
Mack: Th' only plans I got is an appetite.
Moran: Say, th' last meal I ate was on th' boat to Europe. And then I was seasick.
Mack: Why bring THAT up?
Moran: Well, I'm goin' shoppin' for my turkey. You better come along.
Mack: No sir, Hugo. I don't want to buy NOTHIN' off a man with a shotgun.
Moran: Well, you won't be eatin' no turkey.
Mack: No, and I won't be wearin' no bullet-proof napkin around my NECK, neither.
Moran: Big boy, you's white-livered.
Mack: It don't show in my complexion.

PICKFORD GIRL IS KIDNAPED

Mary's Sister and Friend Beaten By Bandits

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9. (US)—Four bandits attacked Lottie Pickford and Jack Daugherty in the Hollywood hills early this morning, according to Miss Pickford's report to Hollywood police.

Miss Pickford, sister of Mary Pickford, said she was kidnaped, beaten and robbed after Daugherty, former husband of the late Barbara La Marr and of Virginia Browne Faire, had been slugged unconscious.

According to the report, Miss Pickford and Daugherty were returning to her home in Hollywood when the motor of Daugherty's car stalled. Daugherty was engaged with the motor when the men appeared and knocked him out.

The four assailants then got into the car and drove Miss Pickford to a lonely spot in the hills, where they attempted to attack her, according to the report.

She was beaten and her clothes were badly torn in the struggle. She was robbed of her watch and necklace, but saved two diamond rings which she had hidden in her shoe.

The bandit leader finally gave orders for the combat to cease, she said, and she was then driven back to the place where Daugherty lay. She finally managed to revive him and he drove her home.

Pilot Buys Dog As Plane Mascot

A blooded Boston terrier, that will soon be as wild over airplane rides as some dogs are over auto rides was sold Friday by Dr. L. I. Lucey of Wichita Falls for the gigantic Ford airplane from Rapid City, Mich., at the Wichita Falls Air Transport field on the Henrietta road.

The dog is seven months old and is registered by the American Kennel club. She had her first rides Friday, and went wild with joy, Dr. Lucey said. "She liked everything except 'zooming' downward," Dr. Lucey said. "She will soon get to like it, and will become an investrate flier."

Clyde Ice, pilot, was the purchaser, and has been looking for a suitable mascot, but it remained for Dr. Lucey's Texas dog to fill the bill.

Youths Confess to Oklahoma Robberies

BRISTOW, Okla., Nov. 9. (UP)—Earl Burgett, 18, Floyd Krigbaum, 16, and Bill Pinon, 17, today confessed to robbing the postoffice and a store at Newby, Okla., 10 miles south of here, Tuesday night, according to Chester Bryson, deputy sheriff of Creek county.

Cash amounting to $30 was taken from the postoffice. In the confession the boys told where the money along with articles stolen from the store were hidden.

Willie Burgett, 21, also arrested with the confessed culprits, had not confessed today.

Two Lawton Men Are Found Guilty

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Nov. 9.—Clarence Maples of Cache was found guilty in district court here this afternoon of a charge of manslaughter in the first degree in connection with the shooting to death of Harrison Unsell, at Cache, last June 5. Maples and Unsell "shot it out" on the streets of Cache following an altercation earlier in the day, testimony developed.

E. A. Stanley was also found guilty by the jury today of manslaughter in the first degree in connection with the killing last April of Edward Bassett at Lawton. He was given the minimum penalty of four years in the penitentiary.

Dick Driggers is now on trial charged with the murder of Bassett. The men were first charged jointly but later a severance was granted. Two sessions of the district court are now being held daily to dispose of the heavy docket. Judge Pugh of Duncan and Judge Richardson of Lawton are presiding. FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to
FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By JACK DONAHUE

Jack Donahue is the celebrated stage comedian who made a hit in vaudeville and followed it up by sharing honors in a Ziegfeld show with Marilyn Miller.

Jack Donahue

"Perhaps this isn't a regular joke," Jack told me, "but I do know that I've retold it and laughed over it more than any cut-and-dried anecdote.

"One of the girls in our show has a weakness for stray dogs. Why, that kid brings in every stray dog she finds running loose. Just before rehearsal the other afternoon she came in, dragging the queerest-looking hound I ever saw. The rest of the company had a great time kidding her. She topped it all by announcing seriously that she was going to enter the hound in the dog show.

"'Well, for crying out loud,' said one of the girls, 'you surely don't think that cur would win a prize.'

"'Well, no,' replied the canine fancier, 'but he'll meet some awfully nice dogs.'"

Telephone Order for Insurance Made Firm Liable, Judge Holds

If an automobile is wrecked after a verbal order for automobile insurance is given and accepted over the telephone, but if the policy was never issued, is the insurance company liable?

Judge W. W. Cook held in the 78th district court Friday that this unusual case finds the automobile owner protected and entitled to damages, although his car was wrecked before the policy itself was delivered.

J. G. Flowers in suing the Southern Casualty for damages, said that he had purchased a new car and telephoned the insurance company to change his insurance from his old to his new car. Then the car was destroyed.

The insurance company refused to pay, and the suit was filed. Testimony was completed Thursday night, but Judge Cook reserved decision until Friday morning when he found for the plaintiff. A notice of appeal was filed immediately by the insurance company.

Bar Committee to Report Today On Changes at County Courthouse

Recommendations favoring as little change as possible in the Wichita county courthouse except the changes be of a permanent nature probably will be made to the Wichita County Bar association at a special meeting in the 78th district court at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, it was learned Friday night.

A committee composed of Harvey Harris, W. E. Fitzgerald and A. H. Britain was named by the bar association several days ago, to consider possible solutions to the problem.

If more room is actually needed at once, the committee will suggest the possibility of moving Justice O. L. Gibbs and his court to the same quarters occupied by Justice R. V. Gwinn and his court.

The county tax assessor's office would then be moved from its present quarters to the larger space in the present quarters of Justice Gibbs' court.

The county tax collector's office then would be enlarged to include the space now occupied by the county tax assessor's office, and a stairway would be run down to the assessor's office from the collector's office.

The decision of the bar association on these suggestions and also on starting plans for an eventual north wing to the building will be given to the county commissioners' court Tuesday.

Blackness of Night At Noon Time Amuses and Frightens Chicagoans

CHICAGO, Nov. 9. (UP)—Sons of the idle rich awoke at noon today and looked to the sky for a "midnight sun" when Chicago went into reverse, day turned into night, and the populace was divided in a spirit of fear and gaiety.

To the credulous and fatalists who accept dark rumors as the truth, the end of the world was at hand. To thousands of office workers and "sun dodgers" the spread of "daylight darkness" over the city brought forth exchange of wisecracks and jovial conversation.

Hundreds of telephone calls besieged the weather bureau with appeals from the terrified.

Populace Scared

One asked "where is the tornado and when will it strike." Another thought the midnight appearance was caused by the eruption of Mt. Etna in Sicily. "Where is the earthquake?" "Is the world coming to an end?" and "Is it going to snow?" were other questions among the many that clerks were called upon to answer.

Darkness as black as the inside of a tomb descended at noon. A combination of fog, smoke and low-hanging clouds with only a three-mile wind blowing caused the strange atmospheric condition.

The city's gay white way—State street—presented an unusual picture. Large electrical theatre signs, display windows and office buildings blazed suddenly into whiteness but still something was lacking.

Lights Forgotten

The city lighting department had forgotten to turn on the big lights that line the curbing in the loop district and for two hours the blackness in the center of Chicago's main artery of traffic stood out in striking contrast to the bright sidewalks.

"Can it be that this is London?" came a query in affected English accent.

The office buildings and department stores had just released thousands of workers and they trudged along through a drizzling rain, laughing and joking about having to "work at night," and wondering who turned the clocks ahead on them.

Policemen were frantically endeavoring to have autoists turn on their lights. Some obliged but others refused. The latter were within their rights as the city ordinance provides that lights be turned on "after sundown." The sun was still in the heavens but it was a "midnight sun."

The Banker's building, 35 stories high, in the center of the loop, stood out as a giant monster in the black hazy atmosphere. From the window of the United Press on the eleventh floor of the Consumers building, it gradually loomed out in its magic.

One by one the offices in the building were lighted, and each large window looked as though the multifarious eyes were blinking in the monster as it suddenly "came to life."

The weather bureau finally set at rest the minds of the troubled. Chicago was in the center of a low pressure area, it was explained, which extended northward into Minnesota, to the west through Iowa, south beyond St. Louis and east through Indiana to the Ohio border.

A gale was heading towards Chicago tonight that will lift the magic blanket and the loop's famous flock of pigeons that went to roost today will be awakened in the morning from their prolonged slumber.

Literary Trial Draws Crowds

LONDON, Nov. 9. (UP)—In a courtroom packed with prominent members of society, the most sensational literary trial in recent years opened today in Bow street court in connection with the government's seizure and proposal to destroy copies of a novel written by Miss Radclyffe Hall, well known author noted for the frankness with which she treats sex subjects.

The government charged that the book is obscene.

The novel, "The Well of Loneliness" deals with the love of a woman for another woman. The defense attorneys summoned 30 prominent authors and society leaders to testify in behalf of Miss Hall.

Decision was reserved by the court until next week.

Miss Hall, a noted figure in London literary life and distinguished by her mannish attire, defended her novel on the ground that the time had come for frank literary handling of the subject of "inversion." Her attorneys insisted that the story dealt with inversion and not reversion and held that there was not an obscene word in the novel.

Among those called to the witness stand by the defense were Hugh Walpole, Sheila Kaye Smith, Prof. Julian Huxley, Ashley Dukes, Gerald Barrie, Derwent Hall Caine and Rose McCaulay.

Magistrate Sir Charles Biron permitted the witness to testify only as to the literary value of the novel.

City offices will be open as usual and the council meeting will be held in the Memorial auditorium as usual Monday night. The district courts will hold court if possible.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 9. (UP)—A "sock" on the nose—his horse's nose—was too much for Norval Creamer, even on election night. So two young men—Stanley Mathewson and John Cadisans, who leaned out of a cab and punched Dorval's horse, paid $2 each in court.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

Ulcers and Abscesses

Ulcers and abscesses are practically always caused by a break or slight injury to the skin or mucous membranes of the body, which allows the entrance of various bacteria or toxic substances. Croton oil, ammonia and turpentine, when injected under the skin, may also produce abscesses.

The mere presence of micro-organisms is not alone enough to cause pus formation. In fact, streptococci and bacilli coli, which are often found in ulcers, are frequently observed in many healthy tissues. The virulence of the bacteria depends largely upon the condition of the individual. Those who are in bad health, with diabetes, febrile diseases, or Bright's disease, are especially susceptible.

Skin cracks from frostbite, sunburn and scratches are frequently the site for abscess formations.

Foreign bodies, such as splinters, needles and buttets do not usually cause abscesses unless they introduce pus-forming bacteria, or are moved and in this way cause an internal irritation, or unless they manufacture toxic substances through some chemical action with the flesh. They may remain buried in the tissues for years without producing suppuration (the formation of pus).

Although abscesses usually form where there has been a break in the skin, they may also form in the mucous membranes of the throat, stomach, intestines and urinary passages, or the bacteria may work their way through the sweat and oil glands of the skin, when the body's resistance is low, or when it is chronically overstuffed with carbohydrates and fats.

The best method of cultivating an immunity from ulcers and abscesses is to cultivate good health by fresh air, exercise and wholesome food. Once bacteria have gained entry in a rundown individual, they multiply, divide and form various toxins and poisonous substances, which irritate and even cause destruction of the surrounding tissue. The body counteracts this by producing a dilatation of all of the capillaries in the immediate neighborhood, causing a local congestion which forces the white corpuscles and blood fluid through the capillaries into the neighborhood of the invasion.

The exact effect of the white corpuscles on the bacteria is unknown, but it is supposed that they wage a kind of war, with heavy casualties on both sides. The white corpuscles then undergo a fatty degeneration and die. This forms the white part of pus. Meanwhile the area about this field of combat is cut off by a plugging of the blood and lymphatic capillaries so that the tissues of the abscessed area die and are either digested by the white corpuscles or slough off.

Whenever there is an abscess we have the typical indications of inflammation, such as redness, soreness, swelling and heat. In deep abscesses there may be severe fever and even delirium. Internal abscesses can usually be determined by an examination of the blood.

In treating abscesses, the physician should place the patient on a diet of fruit or non-starchy vegetables if the ulcer is external, or milk if in the stomach or intestines. Whenever possible an ulcer should be drained to permit the escape of pus. Hot poultices assist in bringing an abscess to a head so that the pus can break out or the abscess be punctured.

Questions and Answers

Question—L. B. writes: "I am working in a large office and forced to sit where electric fans are constantly blowing on me. I have had many colds and think that the fans have something to do with it. What do you think about it?"

Answer—In the best ventilating system nowadays the fans are placed in the walls of the building, and fan outward so that the foul air is sucked from the room and borne out into the open air. This makes less draft and is much more effective. Ventilation by fans blowing into the room is very expensive and unsatisfactory. Undoubtedly the strong currents of air blowing upon the heads and necks of workers make them more subject to colds and earaches and consequently give them more sick days. To avoid colds eat less, exercise more, and in your own case try to sit where the fans do not blow upon you.

Use of Butter, Salt and Salad Dressing

Question—Mrs. E. R. writes: "I am on your diet for constipation and would like to know whether butter should be used on Melba toast, and whether butter and salt are correct for the vegetables. If salad dressing is used on the salads, what kind?"

Answer—It is all right to use butter on Melba toast, also on vegetables, and it is all right to use salt on the vegetables if they have not been cooked properly. With proper cooking very little salt is needed. I have a special article on salad dressings which I will be glad to send you if you will enclose a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Worry

Question—Mrs. L. K. writes: "How can you cure worry?"

Answer—By getting rid of any bodily toxins which may be irritating the nervous system, and then by studying mental science in order to learn how to better adjust your mental processes.

SOUTHWESTERN CONFERENCE GAMES HAVE BEARING ON TITLE

LEADING PONIES BATTLE AGGIES

Texas Meets Baylor; Frogs Engage Rice Owls

DALLAS, Nov. 9 (AP)—With Southern Methodist setting the pace by virtue of triumphs over Rice and Texas, Southwest conference football squads will round the turn this week-end and prepare to thunder down the stretch in Garrison finishes.

The staunch line and versatile backfield of the Mustangs has given them at least a temporary edge on the field, and Rice is hopelessly out of the running, but remaining elevens promise to run neck-and-neck to the wire. Fortunes will be settled finally on Thanksgiving day in stadiums likely to be packed to such an extent that the boys who foot the bills at seven institutions of higher learning will smile broadly for weeks to come.

Between S. M. U. and the conference title stand the Texas Aggies, Baylor and T. C. U., a trio of near-great squads bristling with enough football sattelites to cause Coach Ray Morrison and his advisors many a sleepless night pondering over a method of clearing the barriers. The Bruins and Horned Frog loom menacingly ahead, but Morrison's present cause for concern is turning back the Farmers in what promises to be one of the season's most colorful contests at Dallas tomorrow.

They Remember 1927

The Mustangs still have a familiar dark brown taste in their mouths from a 39 to 13 defeat administered them by the Aggies last year when they seemed headed for an all-victorious finish.

Joel Hunt and others who played leading roles in the season's chief upset are missing from the Aggie ranks this year, but after experiencing a discouraging start the Cadets apparently have struck their stride again.

As an indication of what the public expects to happen at Ownby stadium, 24,000 customers are expected to be on hand for the affair. Redman Hume, boastful but brilliant, is missing from the Steeds' backfield by reason of an injured ankle received last week and whether others can display sufficient drive to atone for his absence remains to be seen. Ross Love, a great back who has been overshadowed by the Pony leading light, likely will bear the brunt of the attack.

Burgess May Be Out

Burgess, the Aggies' line-smashing fullback, received an injury in scrimmage during the week that may keep him out of much of the contest also.

From all sections of the southwest Baylor alumni were gathering in Waco tonight for the annual homecoming game tomorrow with Texas. If the Bears had not halted T. C. U. so convincingly last week when the Frogs drove deep into their territory, nothing but a Texas victory by a substantial margin could be expected. The young Bear team, however, has continued to improve with each game and unless Vergil Gilliland, its best ball carrier, has failed to recover from injuries, the affair should be worth coming far to witness.

Paradeaux, Baylor center, is out of the game and Shelley and Wray of Texas also are on the injured list.

Frogs Out to Beat Owls

T. C. U. hopes to profit by mistakes in the Baylor game and exhibit a brand of play that will flatten the hapless Rice Owls. Morgan, a first-string back, ran afoul of scholastic difficulties and is ineligible, but otherwise the team is intact.

Bell plans to start his best defensive backfield, against which no touchdowns have been scored this year.

Long Auto Race Here Tomorrow

100-Mile Stock Car Event At Fairgrounds Track

The 100-mile motor race to be staged at the Texas-Oklahoma fair grounds Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock is attracting probably more interest than any other like event held in the south this season. The race of 200 laps of the local half mile course is said to be the longest ever attempted on a half mile track and will be a test of real endurance for driver and car, as well as a speed duel.

The rules of the race are are that the cars participating must be strictly stock except certain changes in carburation and removal of wind resistance, which is permissible according to the official entry blank.

The cars in the race are entered from Denver, Omaha, Kansas City, San Antonio, Houston, Dallas, Oklahoma City and Tulsa, and in most instances the owners have secured the services of the popular professional race pilots to drive the long grind.

The gates at the fair grounds are scheduled to open at 8 a. m. and the time trials or qualifying heats will be run at 10 a. m and the race will be sent off at 2:30.

DELAWARE, Ohio, Nov. 9. (UP)—The Ohio Wesleyan football team which is in the East Saturday to play Syracuse at Syracuse in an intersectional game, features a football player-preacher.

Norman Scribner, Baltimore, Md., tackle on the Ohio Wesleyan team which beat Michigan, 17 to 7, early in the season, will play against Syracuse Saturday and preach at the University Methodist Episcopal church at Syracuse the following day.

Aggie Captain

Z. W. Bartlett, captain of the Texas Aggies, will lead the Farmers into battle today at Dallas in an effort to upset the S. M. U. Mustangs, sole unbeaten leaders of the Southwestern conference.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

FOUR WEEKS, including this one, and a few post-season games remain of football, and another afternoon replete with interesting and colorful contests is carded today in this brilliant season. Meetings of unbeaten teams, battles between rivals of ancient traditions and intersectional combats are carded for today. In all areas there are a host of outstanding games and the Southwestern conference is no exception, with three games listed involving the loop championship.

The S. M. U. Ponies, only unbeaten leaders, face Texas Aggies at Dallas. The Mustangs are favored to win. Records of the two teams this season point to such a result. But remembering the upset of 1927 when the Aggies overcame the Ponies in a form reversal constrains an "expert" to view this affair as a tossup. This is particularly so in view of the absence of Redman Hume, ace ball-toter of the Steeds. But the Ponies have other star oval-luggers as they showed last week in beating Texas without Mr. Hume's valuable service. The Ponies should win today by a touchdown.

TEXAS AND BAYLOR. There's a puzzler for you. The Longhorns have a great team. A combination that held Vanderbilt 13-12 and S. M. U. 6-2 is nothing but great. On the other hand, Baylor has been coming along at a tremendously fast clip recently, as evidenced by their victory last week over T. C. U., the Frog's first reversal of the season. I look for Texas to win this one in another close battle. It's time some of the breaks are going the way of the Longhorns.

T. C. U. SHOULD defeat Rice without great difficulty in the third conference engagement. Texas, T. C. U. and Baylor all have mathematical chances to win the title, in the event of a defeat of S. M. U.

SOUTHERN GRIDIRONS scintillate with glittering games today. Foremost of course is the meeting of Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech. Mighty teams are these, unbeaten and untied and with victories over some of the best clubs in the country. Vandy has beaten Texas, Colgate, Virginia, Tulane and Kentucky. The Tornadoes have outscored V. M. I., Tulane, Notre Dame, North Carolina and Oglethorpe. What a battle this will be. I wouldn't be surprised if Vandy wins. Just a hunch. Otherwise it's toss a coin.

Alabama meets Kentucky and Florida faces Georgia in a couple of other notable battles below the Mason and Dixon line. I give Alabama the edge over Kentucky and strange as it may seem, favor Florida over Georgia if there is any choice, which if one were betting on it, there isn't. Tennessee will trim Sewanee in a romp. Tulane and Alabama Poly will fight out another of those even contests. Virginia looms stronger than Virginia Poly. The governor of North Carolina will say to the governor of South Carolina, "Let's see another football game." Institutions of the Carolinas clash in their annual games today. Another tossup.

NEBRASKA'S MIGHTY juggernaut, one of the most powerful elevens in the Middle West, meets Oklahoma at Norman in the feature engagement in the Missouri valley region. In view of the Sooner's loss to Iowa State last week and an unbroken succession of Cornhusker successes one can only accord the Nebraska team a decisive margin, though they may encounter a fighting team that will hold them to a closer score than accomplished by Missouri and Kansas. Missouri has the margin over Kansas State and Kansas over Marquette.

THE BIG TEN title may be decided when Ohio State and Iowa, only teams who have not been defeater or tied in the conference, meet at Columbus. I accord the Buckeyes the edge ocer their Hawkeye rivals, but a smashing battle it will be. Wisconsin, which hasn't been beaten but was tied by Purdue, clashes with Chicago and the Badgers should win. There isn't anything to choose between Northwestern and Purdue. Minnesota seems to be set to beat Indiana. Illinois has a romp with Butler in a non-conference setto.

NOTRE DAME and the Army meet at New York in the outstanding game of the day. Not only is this the most colorful contest of a most colorful afternoon of pigskin pastiming, but it has bearing on the mythical national title that may be claimed by the Cadets. That is, the Army now is regarded as foremost of the few teams which haven't been beaten or tied. And of course, if the future generals take it on the chin they lose that rating. However, despite the undoubted fact that canny Knute Rockne has wrought great improvement in the Irish play in recent weeks the record of the Army seems safe today and Mr. Cagle and mates probably will go marching on to victory by a comfortable margin of two or three touchdowns.

Harvard and Pennsylvania renew grid rivalry of more than half a century and it looks as if the Crimson will win this one. Navy and Michigan play another intersectional affair. Records of both have been hugely disappointing but each won their last starts, the navy from Penn and Michigan from Illinois. To a man up a tree, which is where a grid forecaster is in picking these tough ones, it's a standoff. Well, if you must, a vote for Michigan.

GEORGETOWN AND Carnegie Tech, few of the remaining teams which have not been beaten or tied, have it out today. Despite the clean records of the teams neither has engaged in more than two hard games. I cast this vote for the Skibos. Likewise one for Bucknell in their fray with Lehigh. And for Colgate to beat Hobart. And Columbia to trim Johns Hopkins. Cornell plays one of those grid doubleheaders that have been anything but successful, at least in the matter of winning games, with Knox college from Illinois and St. Bonaventure furnishing the opposition. The big Red machine, or machines, should win. Dartmouth and Brown. Dartmouth has a badly crippled team. Not much to choose. But one hesitant vote for the Green.

HOLY CROSS probably will "take" Boston university. New York has little more than a practice session with Alfred. Penn State will beat George Washington, the team with a record—but not an enviable one. George Washington hasn't won a game or scored a single point in five games this season! Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson will play a close game, with the edge seemingly held by the Panthers. And Princeton looms as victor over another hyphenated team—Washington-Lee. Lafayette should beat Rutgers handily. The same goes for Yale in its contest with Maryland, just a breather in preparing for Princeton and Harvard. Amherst takes on Trinity, if that is any interest. Williams and Wesleyan plan a "little three" engagement. Wesleyan and Amherst fought a 20-20 tie in the first "little three" game. Williams should win today. They were champions last year. West Virginia apparently has little more than a workout with the Oklahoma Aggies, in a contest at Morgantown that finds the Sooner Farmers not up to standard.

NOTHING EXCITING is carded today in the far West. California is held as much more powerful than Washington. Southern California will run a crusher over Arizona and Stanford will beat Santa Clara decisively.

GRID LEADERS BATTLE TODAY

Army-Irish Head Colorful Day of Football

By ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (AP)—The tumult, the shouting and the battle for touchdowns reaches the season crest tomorrow. The alibis, the wreckage and laurel wreaths will be sorted out next week.

All along the college gridiron warfront the hand to hand conflict will be renewed while millions of non-combatants look on, trying to keep warm as well as enthusiastic. The big November blast has set in only the hardiest clans can hope to survive the rest of the campaign.

Rocky Going Today

Tomorrow is the crucial spot where those brigades that have been marching along the unbeaten trail well may have some misgivings. The pace is difficult to maintain on a battlefield where any given array may climb up now, after having taken the long count, and administer a knockout blow.

West Point's men o'war, among the scattering new unbeaten battalions in the broad gridiron land and aiming at national championship honors, have been carefully drilled to sidestep this mid-November jinx and avoid any fatal letdown against Notre Dame at the Yankee stadium.

There will be other big battles and big crowds, with around 70,000 watching the Navy-Michigan game at Baltimore and perhaps 82,000 viewing the critical Ohio State-Iowa tussle at Columbus, but the colorful intersectional clash between the Cadet and Hoosier tops the list.

86,00 to See Irish-Army

Some 86,000 are expected to watch the spectacular renewal of the east-west rivalry, eager to see whether Notre Dame can upset the Army or stop the rampaging Redhead. Christian Keener Cagle, Army's all-American candidate and just about the most widely discussed ball-carrier in the country.

Notre Dame couldn't stop Cagle or Nave with much success last year when the Cadets romped to an 18-0 victory. Red has about the same strong supporting cast this season while the Hoosiers have been somewhat below their usual high standard. On most any basis of figuring, the Army has a pronounced edge, but it is prepared to meet as severe a test as it has all fall.

Wichita Falls Should Win With Help of Reserves

Wichita Falls high school Coyotes will engage Quanah high school in a conference game today at Quanah.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Nov. 9. (AP)—Tex Rickard, on vacation here, announced today that he expected to return to New York next week to discuss with his associates and Jack Dempsey the possibility of the latter's return to the prizefight ring in quest of the heavyweight title vacated by Gene Tunney.

Facing their hardest game of the season and one that promises to be a real battle from start to finish, the Wichita Falls junior college Indians meet the Gainesville junior college Bulldogs this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Athletic park.

The Indians woefully lacks reserve material, with many men on the sick and injured list, and are receiving their last chance today to get back into the race for conference.

Gainesville made an excellent showing in a 13 to 12 loss to John Tarleton Plowboys and like the Indians they are making their last desperate stand to climb again into consideration as title possibilities.

Coach E. A. Baggett spent the greater part of the week trying to perfect new plays and smooth the weak spots in his machine. If the Indians are hard-pressed they are likely to take almost wholly to the air, though barring farther injuries to his backfield Baggett probably will continue to hold his men to straight football.

The Indian line probably lines up better this week than it has during any game this season, with the chunky Garland Black back at guard after several weeks of ineligibility. Ramey will no doubt be Baggett's starting choice for the other guard as injuries to his ends forced the Indian mentor to shift Bill Habern to a wing.

Walter Pinney, lanky six-foot center, probably will be called upon to play the entire game at the pivot position, as injuries have kept Henry Barton in bed for more than a week.

Baggett's starting backfield will more than likely consist of Jimmy Harvey at quarterback, Penn and Mitchell at halves and Dickey at fullback. Jake Castleberry, star halfback, probably will be sufficiently recovered from leg injuries to play a part of the game, though it is doubtful that he will start the contest.

CAGLE ANOTHER STAR REDHEAD

Mr. Grange, Whose Hair Is Auburn, Recalled

By ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (AP)—Gridiron greatness seems to go with red hair. You hear the coonskin-coated brigade these days debate the relative merits of Red Grange, the exgalloping ghost, and Red Cagle, the Army's Louisiana lightning.

Some 80,000 will turn out this Saturday in the Yankee stadium to see just why at this stage of the current campaign Red Cagle happens to be the most widely talked of backfield ace in the country and as certain an all-American as any candidate can be by the first fortnight of November.

Cagle isn't a 1928 flash in the pan. He was one of the greatest backs in the country last year. Notre Dame admitted it and they may vote him a majority again this Saturday when the Hoosiers try Knute Rockne's latest tricks on the cadets.

But is Cagle greater than Grange was? His hair is a trifle redder and he's a trifle faster, but no more eel-like than Harold the Red was in negotiating a path through a broken field.

Cagle, they argue, is more valuable to the Army than Grange was to Illinois, because the southern star is a tripie threat on attack as well as a stalwart defensive back. Cagle can run, kick and pass superlatively and Yale will testify he knows how to back up a line.

20,000 Will See Pony-Aggie Game

Mustang Hopes Rest With Reed and Love

DALLAS, Nov. 9 (AP)—Their hopes of victory resting on the ability of Sammy Reed to toss passes into the hands of scurrying ends and Ross Love to rip the Aggie line, the S. M. U. football squad finished preparations today for the A. and M. clash tomorrow.

The two Pony backfield stars will be aided by the Mustang line which has outscrapped all opposition this season and the outcome hinges much on the ability of the Red and Blue forwards to stop the Farmer drive.

The seat sale neared the 20,000 mark today and although weather conditions were favorable for showers tomorrow, a sellout of Ownby stadium was expected.

Hume will be out of the game, it was announced today.

WACO BEATEN BY CORSICANA

Three-Year Rule of Texas Prep Football Halted

CORSICANA, Texas, Nov. 9. (AP)—The Waco high Tigers, for three consecutive seasons unchallenged rulers of Texas schoolboy football, and undefeated since the season of 1924, today were rudely jolted from their position at the top by a fighting Corsicana Tiger eleven, 19 to 13, in a battle replete with thrills.

The game was a conference affair and practically eliminated the Waco Tigers as contenders for the District Four championship.

The Waco team came to Corsicana with the most impressive record of any high school team in the country. After decisively defeating Cathedral Latin of Cleveland, claimants of the Eastern schoolboy title, in a post-season contest last season, the Waco Tigers laid claims to the scholastic football championship of the United States.

The champions' famous spin play which baffled all opponents last year enabled them to rush over two touchdowns in the opening period but after that they were stopped cold by the husky Corsicana forwadrs.

In the second quarter the locals uncorked the most dazzling aerial attack ever seen here to march to victory. Three times, with the brilliant McNutt rifling passes to Wells and Price, the Corsicana machine romped down the chalk marks and across the visitors' goal line.

Waco made a desperate bid to overcome Corsicana's six-point lead in the closing period. Several times the Tysonmen marched deep into the locals' territory, only to be thrown back when near the goal line.

Aggie Harriers Race Longhorns

Champion Farmer Runners Open Season Today

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 9.—Coach Frank Anderson's Texas Aggie cross country team, Southwest conference champions last fall, will open their 1928 schedule with a dual meet at Austin Saturday with the University of Texas harriers.

Saturday's meet will be the third for the Longhorn runners this year. Last week they won a surprising victory over the S. M. U. harriers, who had previously held the Rice Owls to a one-point win. The Owls had defeated Longhorns by an overwhelming score and the Longhorns' victory over the Mustangs indicates a big improvement in the Texas team.

This year the Aggies will have a new team on the track, since not one of the runners is a letterman and only two of them have ever been in varsity competition before. In the order in which they finished in their final competition the men who will run for the Aggies are: R. N. Winders, Houston; C. Y. Shoemaker, Jacksonville; L. H. Brown, San Antonio; Capt. G. H. Moore, Dallas; M. G. Perkins, Mt. Pleasant; J. B. Michael, Fort Worth, and M. H. Badger, Austin. These seven runners and Coach Anderson will leave College Station for Austin by train Friday morning.

Aimee's Conspiracy Case Reopened To Learn Cause of Dismissal of Case

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 9. (INS)—The Los Angeles county grandjury today began a sweeping investigation of the dismissal of criminal conspiracy charges against Aimee Semple McPherson by summoning the evangelist and other persons who figured in her famous kidnaping story.

A subpoena was issued for Mrs. McPherson despite the fact that the woman pastor is in Europe, presumably in London.

Others for whom subpoenas were issued include:

Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother.

Roland Rich Wooley, Los Angeles attorney who defended Mrs. McPherson at her preliminary trial on the conspiracy charges.

Mrs. Emma Schaeffer, personal secretary to Mrs. McPherson who first reported the evangelist's disappearance from the beach at Ocean Park more than two years ago.

Joe Ryan, formerly deputy district attorney who investigated the alleged kidnaping and unearthed the fact that Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator for Mrs. McPherson, sojourned at Carmel-by-the-sea with a mysterious "Miss X" during a part of the time the evangelist was missing.

Harold L. Davis, formerly deputy district attorney who prosecuted Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Ormiston and others on the conspiracy charges and who recently "broke" with his chief, District Attorney Asa Keyes.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (AP)—An early advance on a continuance of the buying inspired by the bullish view of yesterday's official crop and ginning figures was checked by realizing as prices approached the 19¼ cent level in the cotton market here today and reactions followed under liquidation which appeared to be coupled with some local and southern selling. December contracts, which sold up to 19.50 during the early trading or 80 points above the low level of yesterday morning, declined to 19.26 and closed at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 1 to 10 points, with the more active months showing net losses of 9 to 10 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 9 points, and after some little irregularity, the market sold 13 to 15 points above yesterday's closing quotations on continued covering, trade buying, and a moderate demand from commission houses. January advanced to 19.49 and May to 19.35, but the demand seemed to slacken at these figures while new crop offerings were encountered. Prices sagged off in consequence, reaching the lowest levels of the day in the late trading when January sold at 19.25 and May at 19.11.

The early buying was stimulated apparently by the standard cloth statistics for October which indicated that sales for the month had been 411 per cent in excess of production and that unfilled orders in hand at the end of the month exceeded the stocks held for the first time since last December. This was regarded as tending to confirm the reports of improved conditions in the cotton goods markets, while the bullish sentiment in evidence early was also promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables. The failure of these features to create a material or aggressive demand on the advance was considered a disappointment from the bullish standpoint which contributed to the reactions later in the day when there was realizing or liquidation by recent buyers as well as some selling supposed to be for southern account.

Private cables reported London Continental and Bombay buying in the Liverpool market and said that hedging was light, but added that buyers of cotton cloths and yarns were cautious. Exports today 65,313 making 2,980,607 so far this season. Port receipts, 55,519. U. S. port stocks, 2,161,048

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 9. (AP)—Early advances were followed by declines in the cotton market today when traders realized or liquidated in advance of the holiday Monday, when trading will be suspended in observance of Armistice day. January contracts sold down from 18.95 to 18.89 and closed at 18.73, or 5 points net lower for the day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 5 to 7 points.

Liverpool cables were better than due at the start here and this coupled with a renewal of bullish enthusiasm as a result of yesterday's crop ginning report issued by the government was responsible for an opening gain of 11 to 16 points. There was some profit-taking after the start but it was absorbed without material setback and prices worked upward again under buying promoted by bullish statistics of the New York Cotton Textile association. The statement issued by the association said October consumption of cotton goods were 141.1 per cent of production.

On the subsequent bulge December contracts traded 18.91, January 18.96 and March 18.82, or 16 to 17 points above the previous close.

Later in the morning the higher prices attracted liquidation by longs who had held contracts over the slump preceding the sharp advance yesterday and there was more or less realizing by early buyers in an effort to even-up commitments for over Monday's holiday. Mill takings for the week were rather disappointing and may have contributed to the decline which, despite several minor rallies, eventually carried December off to 18.65, January 18.69, and March 18.66, or 26 points down from the early highs. Final prices were at or near the bottom.

Steel Leads 'Higher With Hoover' Movement on Stock Exchange

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (US)—Steel took over the leadership of the "higher with Hoover" movement on the stock exchange today. It advanced steadily to within a point of its record high to close with net gain of 4½ points.

Wild movements characterized trading in Radio and some other specialties particularly in the last hour when Radio after soaring to 270 dropped to 250 for gain of 17 points.

General Motors met heavy profit taking but lost only fractionally while other motors quieted. Union Pacific gained over five points, Central over two, Wabash more than three and Baltimore and Ohio 3½ points as the recent steady accumulation of the rail shares finally was reflected in market value.

General Electric added more than eight points to its gain while Montgomery Ward jumped 18 more to a new high. Renewed pool operations put Transcontinental two points higher while other oils remained quiet. Banks called $15,000,000 more loans and put the call rate to 7 per cent from a renewal of 6½ per cent.

Steel Condition Good

Steel's strength offset the continued heavy profit-taking in General Motors. Conditions in the steel industry now are better than ever before at this time of the year. The Motors split-up of two and a half for one will put outstanding more than 43,000,000 shares of stock. Earnings this year thereon will approximate $6.50 a share.

According to the policy of distributing 60 per cent of earnings such incomes, if maintained in 1929, would mean extra disbursement of at least $1.25 a share in addition to the $3 regular cash dividend.

Radio's wild fluctuations were further indication of the very narrow market in the stock and went to prove that none of the important holders had liquidated. Keith-Albee's strength indicated that profit taking, influenced by merger announcement, had been fully absorbed.

Warner selling followed a report that the pool was not adverse to getting cheaper stock. Murray Body responded to expectation that earnings for the third quarter wou'd exceed the showing of the first six months.

Kelvinator insiders took more interest in their stock coincident with further advices celling of improving earnings. Vanadium was helped by a special analysis of a leading firm outlining prospects of its specialized products.

Dividend Increase Rumored

Better demand for Baltimore and Ohio followed the rumor that stockholders could expect higher return, with most expectations indicating an increase in regular dividend to a $7 annual rate.

Kansas City Southern recovered further as the belief will not now that special distribution will be made as a result of the sale of its Katy holdings.

Texas Gulf Sulphur, it was learned, was taken in hand by a new group and there was some talk of the possibility of an extra dividend.

Underwood continued to benefit from operations of insiders.

Paramount-Famous was influenced by the expectation of a $3 dividend rate next week. Bush Terminal remained quiet but continued absorption by important interests was noted.

General Electric along with its associate, Electric Bond and Share stood out by reason of further gain as other utility and power stocks steadied.

Electrification by railways, governmental construction plans and other prospects promise further benefits for General Electric while Electric Bond and Share reflects the outlook of companies in which it is interested.

Streling eased as reports were received of a $10,000,000 gold shipments coming here in the next week. Other currencies held firm in a dull market.

Profit taking halted the recovery in cotton and wiped out part of the gain Thursday. The grain market recovered a little with wheat and corn helped by weather news.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Nov. 9. (AP)—Anticipating the substance of the government crop report, grain traders today hoisted corn and oats both to above topmost prices heretofore reached this season. The report shows 1s,000,000 bushels less corn production than the average of latest unofficial estimates, with farm reserve stocks of corn about 6,000,000 bushels below trade expectation.

Closing quotations on corn were unsettled, ⅝c@1⅛c net higher, with wheat ⅝c @⅞c up, oats at ¼c@½c@¾c@¾c advance, and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 10c.

From the outset today, commission houses were active in purchasing corn futures deliveries, being influenced by snow and rain over the corn belt and by correct belief that the government crop report due after the close would show reduced figures on crop yield. Besides, receipts of corn in Chicago today, 135 cars, were hardly half as much as a week ago, country offerings were again scanty, and eastern shipping demand was good.

To a large extent, wheat and oats followed the leadership of corn, but wheat was also influenced by improved export demand as well as by word of unwelcome showers in the sections of Argentina where the first of the Southern hemisphere 1928 wheat crop is about ready to cut. Meanwhile, it was estimated that Europe today bought 1,300,000 bushels of wheat from North America. First sales of July delivery of wheat in Chicago were made today, and brought ½c over May.

Provisions averaged higher, helped by upturns both in hog values and in grain.

NEW MISSION WELL SOON

Roxana-Marland Test Next To Be Brought In

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 9.—The Roxana Petroleum corporation and Marland Production company No. 1 Hearndon, in the northwest of the northeast of 7-8-6, will probably be the next producer in the Mission pool of the greater Seminole area. It had the top of the Simpson sand at 4175 feet for a small show of oil. From 4185 to 4192 feet the oil increased. It is now shut down for orders.

Hopes of connecting the Little River pool and the Bowlegs pool were blighted when the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company No. 1 Lawyer, in the southeast of the northwest of 26-8-6, had the Wilcox sand from 5,043 to 5,055 feet for a hole full of water. It is shut down.

The greater Seminole field again made a 4,617-barrel loss in production. It produced Thursday 296,446 barrels from 1,263 wells as compared with 301,063 barrels, Wednesday's gauge.

The comparative output report follows:

Harlingen Taxes Lowest in State

HARLINGEN, Texas, Nov. 9 (AP)—City officials said today they believed reduction of the city tax rate, voted yesterday, from $2.50 to $1 on the $100 valuation had given Harlingen one of the lowest tax rates for a city of its size in the South.

Reduction, they said, was made possible by the purchase of the city electric and water plants by the Central Power and Light company. The Central Power, under the purchase, took over Harlingen's indebtedness of $1,580,000, the transaction leaving the city free of debts with many paved streets, a sewerage system, city hall, womens' buildings, park and a municipal auditorium fully paid for.

The $1 rate, commissioners said, will produce sufficient revenue on present taxable valuations of $8,000,000 to cover overhead.

FARMERS PLAN GROUP BUYING

Meeting Saturday At Iowa Park

Farmers of the Iowa Park territory will hold a meeting at the Iowa Park chamber of commerce at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon to make a survey of their needs of sorghum, corn and oats.

If the need is sufficient and the plan is approved, the men will order their grains as a unit and in carload lots in order to obtain the advantage of group buying and also the lower prices possible in larger purchases.

Freight handling and other advantages of this plan have been advanced with the result that Electra adopted it a week ago and is now ordering the grains needed.

The idea of pooling community interests of this kind is being advanced at Iowa Park by Ernest Birk, chairman of the Iowa Park chamber of commerce agricultural committee, according to G. C. McGown, county agricultural agent. Mr. McGown said he would attend the Saturday meeting at Iowa Park.

Girl's Clothing Srown in Trial

immediately inquired "in whose arms?"

E. F. Fruechte, defense attorney, then brought out that it was an expression to mean extreme youth and did not refer to the arms of anyone in particular.

Several tilts between opposing attorneys gave the crowds thrills and brought light suggestions as to the correct courses of questioning from Judge P. A. Martin.

The offense with which Onstott is accused is alleged to have been the result of a double attack. E. Smith was introduced as a witness for the defense. He testified that he saw Carroll Onstott at the Mission restaurant at 2 o'clock in the morning after the first offense is alleged to have been committed. As both offenses were supposed to have been near Weeks park, the defense attempted to show that if the girl had been attempting to escape, she had a chance to do so when the car was down town before it returned to the country.

Onstott Denies Charge

Onstott himself was placed on the witness stand in the afternoon. He testified that he was not guilty of the charge against him.

Julian McFall was placed on the witness stand as a character witness for the defendant.

L. D. Piper told of a conversation with the girl over "a possible beer party" that never materialized. The conversation took place in a room where another man lay asleep, he testified.

George Young, L. T. Francis, C. L. Baum, R. L. Doggett and George Tidwell took the stand in quick succession as character witnesses for the defense.

Mrs. Estella Smith, in charge of the dormitory at the West Texas Teachers college, Carl Hoag of Canadian, Miss I. Rummer of Lockney, Betty J. Ribble of Crowell, Mrs. F. E. Hedgecope of Canyon and Miss Verdie Triplett were placed on the stand as additional character witness for the girl in the case.

21 Patrol Leaders Go On Boy Scout Camp

Twenty-one Boy Scout patrol leaders, with heavy rolls of bedding and cold weather clothing for emergencies, left scout headquarters by truck at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon for Camp Ephraim Griffin at Diversion dam, where Scout Executives Harry E. James and Frank B. Creighton had made preparations for two days of intensive study and training. Several additional patrol leaders from Burkburnett were scheduled to arrive at the camp Friday evening.

Mr. James and Mr. Creighton will be assisted Sunday by four scoutmasters from this city, and will return with the party late Sunday afternoon.

The following made up the party leaving the local headquarters: Malcolm Ducker, Billy Steger, Jerome (Red) Allen, Dan Cox, Leroy Hair, Dean Harrison, Lloyd Holmgren, Herbert Wiley, Thurmon Conrey, Bruce Benton, Bryant Creighton, Will McKenney, Homer Lee, George Napier, Woodrow Williamson, Thomas Cox, Woody MacFadyen, Sherman Anderson, Clifton Word, J. C. Pierce, and Randall Leverett.

Hotel Company Sues Electric Sign Firm

A backlash of the gale which caused heavy damage in Wichita Falls the night of June 3 was noted in the district clerk's office Friday when a damage suit for $1,750 was filed by the Ford-Holt company, Inc., against the Texlite Electric Sign company.

The complaint says that the Ford-Holt company paid the defendant company several thousand dollars for the sign which was placed atop the Holt hotel and that it was not sufficiently well placed to give service when the wind came.

The collapsed Holt hotel sign was one of the sights of the city the morning after the storm for it had been slapped over the top of the building in such a manner as to bend it almost at right angles.

Vaudeville fans are looking forward to the opening of the tabloid show program of the Zippity Zip company led by Lillian Murry at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Olympic theater. "Rose of Texas" will be the first number to be presented with Miss Murry taking the role of Susie, and Elmer Wright that of Ben, both country bred young people who participate in a beautiful love story.

Florence Holland is cast as Rose with Jimmie Stein playing opposite. Others to take part in the show will be: Betty Lee, Fat Wilds, Roy Wright and "The Unkissed Chorus." New song and dance specialties have been prepared for the opening number. The show will be closed with an impressive finale.

"I knew him slightly in London . . . ." "You mean, he knew you slightly in London, for evidently he trusted you. . . ." the words should give some idea of situations which are brought up in the Carl Laemmle's special picture, "The Foreign Legion," which opens Saturday at the Majestic theater. Stars in the production are Lewis Stone and Mary Nolan, June Marlowe and Norman Kerry. Not a sorry list, is it?

In common with pictures using Northern Africa as background, the settings are beautiful and spectacular.

"Sorrell and Son" with H. B. Warner is on schedule to appear Tuesday at the Mission theater for a three-day run. Although not new, the picture is well worth seeing for those who did not take the opportunity when the movie of the well-known book came out.

Hoot Gibson will appear at the Mission theater in "The Danger Rider" Sunday and Monday.

"The Perfect Crime" with Clive Brook and Irne Rich is in the near future as a vitaphone picture.

Manager Warren of the Strand and Majestic theaters announces that he finally found a street with the name marked on the curb. He seems to think much more of Wichita Falls now.

Texas Constitution 'Beyond Repair,' Britain Tells Business Council

The state of Texas has outgrown its constitution and progress in the state is being retarded because of a makeshift constitution that is past the stage for repairs, was the opinion expressed by A. H. Britain, chairman of the Texas Bar association's new constitutional convention committee, in an address on "The Necessity of a New Constitution for Texas" before members of the business council of the chamber of commerce Friday at the Kemp hotel.

Need For Change

The present state constitution is past the stage of amendments, the speaker said. This fact has become clear to individuals and organizations in the state who have gone on record in favor of steps toward formulating a new constitution. The Texas Bar association in the annual meeting in Dallas went on record in favor of such a step, as did the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Commercial and business organizations in the state have also passed such resolutions, Mr. Britain said.

In a review of the history of the constitution of the state, Mr. Britain pointed out that increase in the population of the state would call for a constitution so constructed as to allow for changes. The present constitution is verbose and not sufficiently pliable to allow for changes in state government which have arisen since 1876.

Explaining specific cases, Mr. Britain pointed out that the three judges in the supreme court and a similar number in the criminal court of appeals are overburdened with work and have been obliged to annex a "ladies' aid" to help in the work of the courts. The governor and the legislators of the vast state give their services at a meager salary, Mr. Britain explained.

J. W. Chatham Jr. discussed briefly the Wichita Falls special train to the South Plains, Nov. 21 and 22, stating that there is left only 47 reservations in the quota of 125 in order to charter the train.

NEW PASTOR GIVEN WELCOME

150 Attend Banquet At Floral Heights Church

An attendance of 150 was reported at the banquet given by the Men's club of the Floral Heights Methodist church Friday night as an occasion of welcome to Dr. Ed R. Barcus, formerly of Denton, who began his pastorate here last week.

Dr. Barcus was the principal speaker of the evening and discussed the church as an institution for the betterment of man, declaring that it fills a place which no other organization could fill.

The speaker was introduced by Walter Nelson, following the latter's brief address of welcome. Dr. A. F. Leach discussed the layman's place in the work of the church, and S. E. Trevathan, chairman of the board of stewards, spoke on behalf of that body in welcoming the incoming pastor and pledging him full cooperation of the stewards.

Musical numbers were interspersed with the speaking throughout the evening, vocal solos being given by Mrs. George Thorburn, accompanied by Mrs. T. W. Temple, and by Lester F. Aldrich, with Mrs. G. Wayne Barker at the piano. Viola Grace Doern, accompanied by Mrs. Barker, offered several violin selections. Walter S. Curlee was chairman in charge of the banquet, which was served by the Floral Heights Missionary society.

Property Owners Urged To Avoid Tax Suits

Those who have not paid their county taxes for 1927 and prior years may expect tax suits to be filed in the near future, it was revealed by Wayne Somerville, county attorney, Friday.

"There is a total of 1,300 suits awaiting filing," Mr. Somerville said.

"Between 300 and 400 of these cases are for 1926 and prior years. They will be attended to ahead of the 1927 suits except where 1927 taxes are delinquent on the same property on which 1926 and other years are due.

"It seems too bad that so many property owners will not pay their taxes until their property is put in jeopardy by court action. This action is inevitable and when it is taken, it simply means the property owner has costs of a suit as well as the taxes to pay."

"Since bringing him home, I have taken care of him myself as he fights anyone else who goes near him."

The local station is at present in the same wave length with five other stations in Texas and 28 other stations in the country. Interference with the other stations in Texas in the same wave length will be eliminated when the new classification is put into operation, Mr. Shepherd said.
