

Vietnamese Plead 'Take My Baby to America'

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — President Ford sent his friend and photographer David Hume Kennerly to Vietnam to find out how it really is, and the young man returned Saturday calling the North Vietnamese "really crummy people."

The 28-year-old White House photographer used a vulgar term to describe the chaotic situation in South Vietnam. "It is really s---y and you can quote me," he said.

Kennerly said the refugees are "terrified they are going to get killed."

"The North Vietnamese are really crummy people," he said.

Kennerly, who won a Pulitzer Prize for his combat photography in the while working for UPI a few years ago, described what has happened to the country and the people since he was there.

He spoke of officers running out on their troops. He talked of Vietnamese friends begging him to take their babies to America.

Ford dispatched Kennerly, at the photographer's request, to Saigon along with Army Chief of Staff Frederick Weyand. Aides said the President wanted not only the general's official report but the views of a person with experiences, friends and contacts in South Vietnam.

Saturday morning when Weyand joined Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to report to Ford at his Palm Springs vacation villa.

Kennerly talked to reporters.

"All my friends were begging me to take their children," he said.

His hands jammed into the pockets of his white suit—the blouse and jacket that for a decade has been a kind of unofficial uniform of reporters and photographers in Vietnam—he said "It is the worst thing that has ever happened to me in my life."

Then came that dirty word.

"They (South Vietnamese) feel they have been let down by the United States. There is no doubt about that. I cannot even blame the people who shot at me," he said.

South Vietnamese marines, rioting aboard a refugee ship from Da Nang, fired on a U.S. helicopter carrying the bearded photographer and others. There was no damage.

"The leadership of South Vietnam has not been exactly premier," Kennerly said. "You cannot blame the soldiers. If you see your colonel getting on a helicopter to leave, it would be pretty disheartening."

It is so terrible to see what is happening to my old friends. All of my friends (South Vietnamese) know they are going to get killed.

"There are a lot of people who want to fight they are wondering why it does not get organized," Kennerly said, referring to Saigon's leadership.

What can America do? "Some additional aid would help," he said.

South Viets Plan Comeback While Americans Flee Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government has re-established radio contact with pockets of troops still holding out along the central coast and may try to retake some of the two-thirds of the country it has lost, military sources said Saturday.

At the same time, more American civilians, wives and dependents fled Saigon in what one said was the beginning of a U.S. exodus from the capital. Hundreds of Vietnamese war orphans left by plane for the United States, but military orders closed the city's gates to virtually all other Vietnamese trying to enter or leave.

The military commander of Saigon threatened today to arrest any resident spreading rumors or attempting to leave Vietnam illegally. U.S. officials warned of possible anti-American outbursts.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, who has vowed to defend Saigon and keep the city calm, banned both evacuation of the capital and the entrance of war refugees into Saigon, government spokesmen said.

"Those who disseminate false information will be put under house arrest," a statement issued by Minh's Capital Military District office said. The office enforces security in the Saigon area.

Residents of Saigon have shown signs of panic for the past week. Today there were long lines again in front of all locally owned banks in the capital as depositors withdrew all their money.

Airlines reported all flights out of Saigon booked for more than a week, with long standby lists for every flight.

U.S. officials meanwhile said they feared an anti-American backlash because of President Nguyen Van Thieu's speech to the nation Friday night.

Thieu, speaking on radio and television, blamed the United States for poor morale among the army and citizens because Congress has refused to vote sufficient aid to his beleaguered nation.

"The American people as well as the American Congress must see now that they have got to do something for the people of South Vietnam to keep from earning the label of traitors," Thieu said.

The president's speech put much of the blame for South Vietnam's losses on the United States.

He charged America had let the Communists bring all the arms and men into South Vietnam for the offensive that began three weeks ago while not replacing Saigon's losses.

The president also blamed foreign news agencies for causing panic in lost cities by their pessimistic reporting.

Thieu announced he was dumping his prime minister of almost six years, former Gen. Tran Thien Khem, and replacing him with a civilian politician, lower house speaker Nguyen Ba Can.

The change will give Thieu a civilian-based government, but political analysts said Khem might attempt to draw support from his military friends and present Thieu with a tough opposition.

In Paris, the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government condemned the Saigon government shakeup as "just one more political maneuver" by Thieu.

"We will not negotiate with this new Thieu cabinet," a Viet Cong spokesman said.

In Palm Springs, Calif. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with President Ford in an Indochina strategy session Saturday and said afterward that Ford is making "very careful and prayerful" study of several options aimed at stabilizing the military situation in South Vietnam.

American sources said government forces had restored radio contact with pockets of defenders in and around the enclaves of Phan Rang, Phan Thiet, Cam Ranh and Nha Trang, 100 to 180 miles northeast of Saigon.

According to reports, the Saigon government may reinforce some of these areas, and attempt to re-establish control over coastal cities abandoned when crowds of panicked refugees, swept through them earlier this week.

Government sources also said Saturday three top generals had been detained on charges of improper leadership in connection with the debacle that cost South Vietnam 18 of its 44 provinces in lightning succession of Communist strikes.

Only scattered fighting was reported in the countryside Saturday. A Saigon command spokesman said sporadic shooting had broken out around Xuan Loc, about 40 miles east of Saigon, and in the Thuan Nhon district of the Mekong Delta 75 miles southwest of the capital.

Americans Sabotage Reactor To Keep Bomb From Hanoi

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A team of Americans has flown secretly to South Vietnam and successfully blown up that country's only nuclear reactor to keep Hanoi from getting raw materials for an atomic bomb, Pentagon sources said Saturday.

The team was dispatched about two weeks ago to Dalat city, now surrounded by Communist troops, when the South Vietnamese retreat started sources said.

Before destroying the reactor team members removed the nuclear fuel and sent it back to the United States so the North Vietnamese could not obtain the raw materials for an atomic bomb.

The reactor building itself was dynamited, sources said. But they said the primary worry had been the fuel.

"We went after that fuel immediately when we saw what was happening in the fighting," one source said.

The 250-kilowatt reactor was built in the 1960's to help generate more power for the mountain region 150 miles north of Saigon and to carry out experimental work. Pentagon sources said a State Department spokesman said it was used "for medical research."

Pentagon officials said the highest technology item known to have been captured by the communists in this campaign was a FADAC computer used to coordinate field artillery operations. But they said the North Vietnamese had captured this type of computer in earlier campaigns and the technology is about 15 years old.

Sources said the reactor was operated under strict U.S. controls to prevent Saigon from diverting the byproducts of the nuclear fuel which could be used in building an atomic bomb.

If Dalat fell to the Communists with the reactor fueled and in order, American officials knew they would no longer have any control over it.

Sources did not say exactly when the reactor was blown up. But since that time they said the roads leading to Dalat have been captured by the Communists and local defenders have left.

North Vietnamese troops however have apparently bypassed the city so far in their rush to the coast. Pentagon sources said.

Fords Greet Viet Orphans In Historic Mercy Mission

United Press International

Airlines stocked with diapers, milk and hot dogs Saturday flew Vietnamese orphans in record numbers from the war zone to the United States, Britain, Canada and Australia. Below them lay the smoldering wreckage of Friday's tragic start to Operation Babylift.

Other jets ferried Americans, Canadians, French, West Germans, Belgians, Danes, Dutchmen and Swiss citizens from this increasingly frightened capital.

The United States' Operation Babylift carried almost 900 orphans Saturday, some of them survivors of the crash of a U.S. Air Force C-5 Galaxy transport on Friday's inaugural flight. Of the 319 persons aboard, including 243 orphans, 178 were killed.

Three jetliners headed toward the West Coast Saturday night, part of the biggest save-the-babies mercy mission in history.

President and Mrs. Ford flew to San Francisco to meet the plane carrying survivors of Friday's tragedy.

A scheduled Pan American Airways flight was to touch down at San Francisco International Airport at 5:20 p.m. PDT. It was carrying 18 children. And a flight paid for by a Connecticut businessman was due to land at 9:30 p.m. PDT at San Francisco with 320 orphans, including the survivors.

The third plane with 407 children was due in at Seattle, Wash., at 11:59 p.m. PDT.

The Fords took time out from their Easter vacation in Palm Springs, Calif., to fly to San Francisco to greet the children.

A Pan American World Airways 747 jet, chartered by the Holt Children's Agency of Eugene, Ore., left with 408 orphans—the biggest mercy flight yet of youngsters out of Vietnam. It was scheduled to arrive in Seattle at 11:10 p.m. EDT.

On board were a doctor, eight nurses, diapers, 1,000 bottles of milk and a plentiful supply of hotdogs.

"None of these children will lack a home," said Wink Guthrie of the Holt Agency.

Half the children were bound for adoptive parents in the Chicago and New York areas, and the rest will be housed in Seattle until they are picked up or delivered to new parents on the West Coast.

A few hours later, another Pan Am 747 left with 321 orphans.

In addition, five U.S. Air Forces C-141 Starlifter Transports flew another 141 orphans as well as 12 civilian refugees to Clark Air Base in the Philippines, en route to the Aboard one of the flights that landed at Clark Field were American civilians, wives and dependents fleeing South Vietnam's capital. Although the U.S. Embassy said no evacuation had been ordered, some on the flight said they believed the fall of Saigon was imminent.

Canadian non-essential embassy personnel were aboard the orphans shuttle flight that landed in Hong Kong. More than 100 French dependents departed Saigon Saturday night aboard a special Air France flight and a West German chartered Lufthansa DC10 left Saigon with 52 West Germans, Belgians, Danes, Dutchmen and Swiss citizens aboard.

Other nations flying non-essential embassy personnel, wives and children from the war zone included Japan, Nationalist China and Australia.

Volunteer doctors, nurses and non-professionals readied an Army Reserve barracks in the San Francisco Presidio to handle the latest arrivals. The facility was used Wednesday night when the first flight of orphans arrived from the war-torn Southeast Asia nation.

A spokesman said medical and immigration screening would be accomplished as quickly as possible so the children could be placed in the homes of the adopting parents at once.

A spokesman for Friends for All Children, a Boulder, Colo., organization handling the adoption of the Vietnamese orphans, advised the American families which have adopted the children that they would be notified if their children were on the flights.

The Saturday night flights made up the largest contingent of such mercy planes to have arrived in the United States since the start of Operation Babylift which has touched the hearts of Americans from all walks of life.

Since the flights began, adoption agencies across the nation have been besieged by requests for information on how the Vietnamese children can be adopted. State offices in Sacramento, Calif., were kept open the whole weekend to handle inquiries.

May Thwart

PALM SPRINGS, CALIF. (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Saturday South Vietnam may yet thwart a Communist victory and President Ford will outline Thursday what the United States can do to help.

He said he "does not anticipate" American bombing to aid Saigon but told reporters "The United States has an obligation to the hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese who were closely associated with us."

He charged America had let the Communists bring all the

Mobile Homes Invade Lefors From Ft. Walters

The first of 41 mobile homes to provide temporary housing for victims of the March 27 tornado began arriving Saturday in Lefors from a storage center in the old Ft. Walters facilities in Mineral Wells.

Most of the government-owned trailers — 32 of them — will be located at a site to be developed by the City of Lefors on the north side of town.

The trailers were described as being 12 feet wide by 60 feet or 65 feet long, either two or three bedrooms.

Top O' Texas Democrats Set Meeting

A constitution and by-laws for the newly organized Top O' Texas Democratic Club will be adopted at its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the county courtroom of the Gray County Court House.

Committee and staff position assignments will be announced by J. L. Holmes, club president.

Members also are expected to discuss additional plans for encouragement of voter participation in government, study of governmental and political structures and functions, and improvement of communication between elected officials and electors.

A clearance was obtained from the Department of Public Safety so the trailers could be pulled on highways on the weekend — a practice normally considered illegal.

Nine of the trailers will occupy commercial trailer sites available at a mobile home park on the south side of Lefors.

There were 57 families in Lefors to apply and qualify for temporary housing with the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Sixteen of the 57 have found housing facilities in Pampa, a HUD spokesman said.

Applications for assistance still will be accepted by HUD. A Pampa HUD office has been set up at Room 106, 1313 N. Hobart, 665-3768.

There is room on the Lefors trailer park location for 40 trailers, so additional applicants can be accommodated, an official commented.

The trailers first are being taken to a staging area in Lefors where they are inspected and made ready for installing on a site. People may begin moving into the first nine trailers in the commercial trailer park, late Monday or Tuesday.

A spokesman said that it may be a week or 10 days before the sites at the new park are wired, plumbed, and ready for use.

GYM SUITS — The Lefors High School Gymnasium is full of clothes donated for the victims of the March 27 tornado. Red Cross volunteers worked many hours sorting and separating the items. Donations of clothing, cash, food and other items have poured into Lefors from surrounding towns. When all the needs of the Lefors tornado victims have been met, the clothing that remains will be boxed up and held ready for the victims of a future disaster, a spokesman said. See story on page 4. (Pampa News Photo)

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — An eight-man, four-woman jury Saturday night found John Hill, 23, of Buffalo, guilty of murder in the death of a corrections officer during the 1971 Attica prison riot.

Charles Parnassio, 22, of Camillus, N.Y., was found guilty of attempted second degree assault.

The State Supreme Court jury deliberated more than 24 hours before finding Hill guilty of killing William Quinn.

Quinn was the first of 43 persons to die during the uprising, the bloodiest prison rebellion in the nation's history.

Parrs Still Win

BENAVIDES, Tex. (UPI) — The family of the late "Duke of Duval," George B. Parr, swept the Benavides school district elections Saturday, showed it still held a majority in the county but failed to intimidate as it had for the past half century.

Hilda Parr, widow of the Duke of Duval's brother and running mate Ruben Chapa each won by a two to one margin over the candidates supported by the Carrillo family.

Holds Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House tapes played at the Watergate cover-up trial cannot be released yet to broadcast and recording companies, according to U.S. District Judge John Sirica, because of pending court cases. Sirica said in an opinion and order Friday there is "no compelling reason" to grant an immediate release of the tapes.

since the public's right to know has been satisfied by the release of transcripts of the tapes.

It might be as long as four years before the tapes are actually released, Sirica indicated.

Should Invade

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former White House Advisor Walt Rostow, one of the leading proponents of troop escalation during President Lyndon Johnson's administration, says the United States should consider invading North Vietnam.

Lefors Elects Board, Council

Lefors voters went to the polls Saturday to elect two city councilmen and fill three places on the school board.

New members of the Lefors Independent School District Board include Joe Dan Watson, 93 votes, Earl Tarbet, 51 votes, and Garrel Robertson, 92 votes. Tarbet was an incumbent.

Someone Finally Said It

We feared it would never come to this — recipients of federal "aid" crying, "Much, much LESS, please!"
The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association is doing just that, asking Congress this year to go "Back to Basics for the Bicentennial," at least as far as civil aviation is "We've seen enough of federal 'aid' to airports and federal plans for bigger and better things and that. We know they will be ruinous for U.S. taxpayers and for aviation," says AOPA's Vice President Robert Monroe.
"We pilots and the nation as a whole never really could afford frills, the niceties, and the swelling federal bureaucracies, but the situation has changed now from aggravating to critical," Monroe contends. "Citizens simply have to tell Washington to cut back to the bone... now!"
AOPA is urging its 180,000 member to write, telephone or call on their Senators and Representatives and ask for no more than the bare bones minimum funding for the basic airport and airway system that the public interest requires.
"The federal government seems to require three or four dollars to do the work of one," Monroe declares. "But we know that local and state governments can make one dollar do the work of two or three."
To which this newspaper adds, "Amen."
We would like to see the entire federal bureaucracy and federal spending cut back to the bone. As a starter, we endorse AOPA's "Back to Basics" drive for civil aviation and airways, and we urge our readers who share that conviction to join AOPA's pilots in their campaign.

Homosexuals: love and let love, says Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a minister who also does counseling. A young man recently came to me for counseling and he showed me a clipping from your column that he had been carrying for over two years. He said it saved him from suicide.
I am enclosing it. Will you please print it again? It might save another life. God love you
T.B.M.

DEAR T.B.M.: With pleasure.
"Dear Abby: Another advice columnist keeps insisting that homosexuals are 'sick.' She says, 'Thousands of homosexuals have written asking me where they can get straightened out, so they must consider themselves twisted, or they wouldn't be asking for help.'
"Occasionally I hear from homosexuals who are at peace with themselves, but they are few and far between. I believe the majority of homosexuals would be straight if they were free to choose."
What do you say, Dear Abby?
L.A. TIMES READER

DEAR READER: I say that if a heterosexual had been raised to believe that his preference for the opposite sex was 'sick,' twisted, abominable, sinful and a disgrace to his family, he would ask for help on how to 'straighten himself out,' too.
Homosexuality is a problem because an unenlightened society has made it a problem, but I have received letters by the thousands (and not just 'occasionally') from gay people telling that they wouldn't be straight if they had a choice. All they ask is to be allowed to love in their own way without facing the charge that they are 'sick and twisted.' I say, love and let love.

DEAR ABBY: Our lovely 18-year-old daughter was accepted at a fine church-affiliated college. She did poorly the first year and was not invited to return. We were very disappointed.
We learned later through some friends that one of the reasons our daughter had done so poorly in college was because she had become involved in a love affair with a professor, 35 years older than she was! He is married and has a family.
We never dreamed that this college would have a man of such low character on the faculty.
My husband is furious. Should we write to the dean and inform him so that other girls can be protected against this lecher? Or shall we speak to his wife about this matter? I doubt if she knows anything about it.
IRATE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't write to the dean, or speak to the professor's wife unless you check out the facts. Start with your daughter. Consider, too, that if the story is true, even though the professor clearly overstepped his bounds, your daughter is far from blameless.
DEAR ABBY: When we have a dinner party, my husband has the very bad habit of dragging all the male guests into another part of the house—away from the women guests.
I personally feel that this is very rude when we are hosting a dinner party for couples. I also think that most women and men would rather socialize together.
Please let me know your feelings on this matter, and send a solution if you have one.
ANTI HEN PARTIES

DEAR ANTI: Arrange seating for all your guests where you want them after dinner. Then subtly maneuver them there for an after dinner drink, and your problem will be solved.
And what's wrong with telling your husband NOT to drag the men off?

IRS Probe Better Late Than Never

By PETER GRUENSTEIN
News Washington Bureau Chief
WASHINGTON — Congress is now in the unprecedented position of having undertaken simultaneous investigations of the three most powerful agencies in all of government — the Central Intelligence Agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and, most recently, the Internal Revenue Service.

As noted in this column recently, after exposes in the news media revealed abuses of power by the FBI and CIA, congressional committees fell all over themselves in the rush to investigate the gumshoes. In doing so, they inadvertently revealed the most scandalous aspect of the investigations: Congress' consistent failure to oversee and control the activities of these two powerful and vital agencies.

The IRS case fits almost too neatly into this pattern. First, there were a number of accounts of political influence being successfully exerted within the tax agency; then the New's Washington bureau reported that the IRS Mid-Atlantic regional office had failed to pursue charges of bribery and other illegal activities by IRS personnel; and then the Miami Herald revealed that the IRS had established "Operation Leprechaun" in Miami which resulted in spying into the personal lives of taxpayers.

And, most recently, ABC aired a one-hour, investigative documentary on the IRS. Like CBS' excellent 60 Minutes program, the ABC special gave the viewer a rare glimpse of television's great potential as a news medium.

Specifically, ABC showed that taxpayer returns are really not confidential, that the advice given to taxpayers by IRS employees is often not reliable, and that the IRS has in some cases abused its confiscatory powers by seizing property without due process of law. ABC also further documented charges of political influence by showing how special investigative files irrelevant to tax collection had been kept on a variety of organizations, including the League of Women Voters.

The commentary at the end of the program was also on the mark. It deplored the consistent absence of any congressional oversight of the IRS, noting that the committee primarily responsible for such oversight — the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation — had not held so much as one day of hearings on the IRS's internal operation. Even IRS chief Donald Alexander, the man who would be the subject of congressional inquiries, was critical of Congress' lack of scrutiny of his own agency.

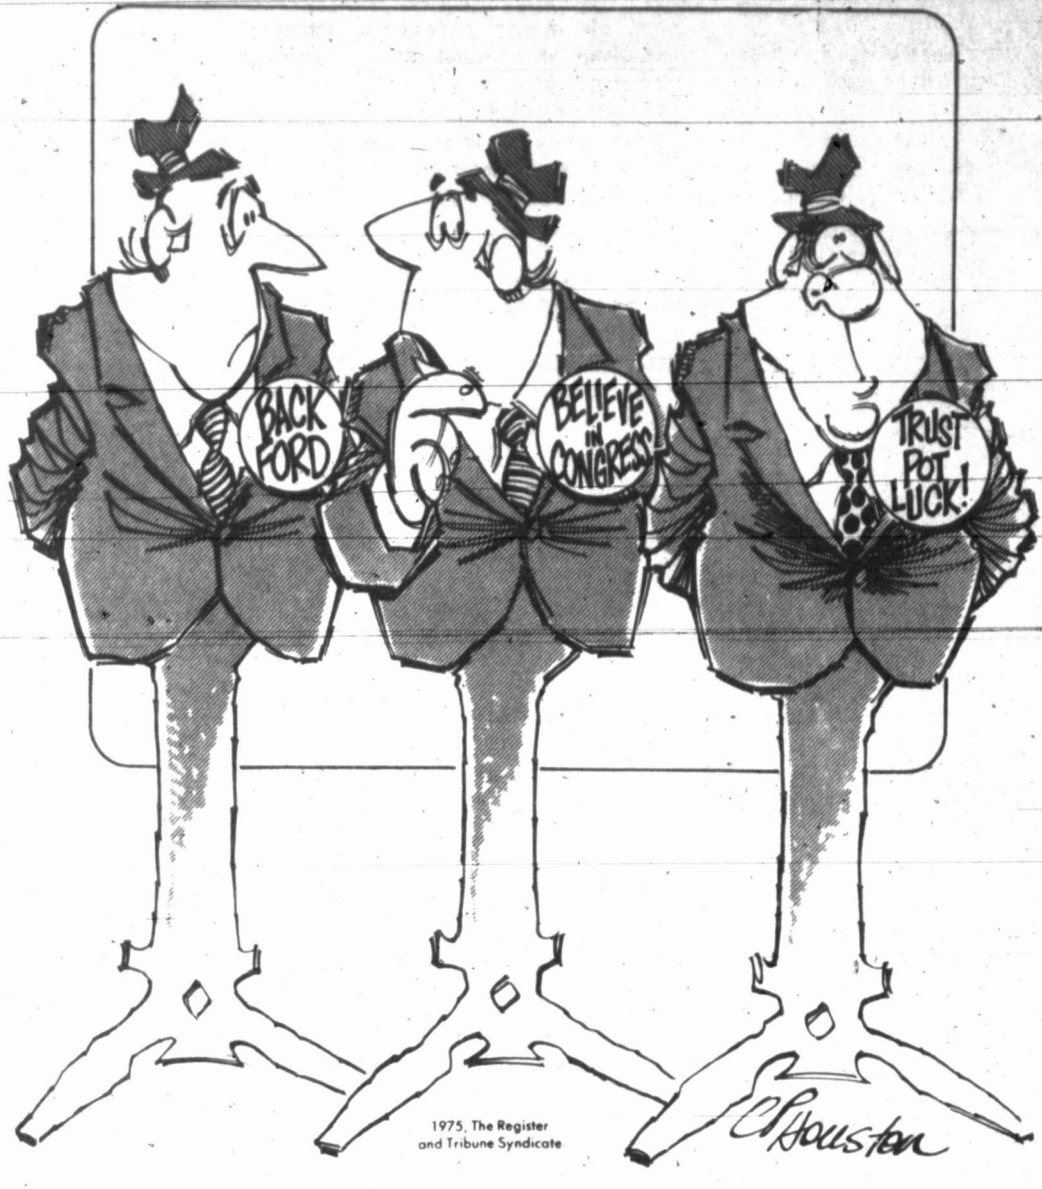

Congress' response to the sundry IRS press disclosures again mimicked the CIA and FBI cases. A Senate Finance Subcommittee began an investigation, a Senate investigations subcommittee prepared to open hearings on the IRS and a House Ways and Means IRS oversight subcommittee actually began hearings; two other subcommittees expressed interest in looking into the tax agency.

Thus, while for the past 20 years congressmen have shown about as much enthusiasm for digging into the IRS as for cutting their own salaries, they are now approaching the task with nothing less than missionary zeal.

Better late than never. But why should the press, which does not have the power to subpoena documents or command public officials to appear before it, have to do the work which Congress exists to do — insuring the federal government operates efficiently and honestly?

"Now there's a man who knows where to place his faith!"

As the old saying goes, there's nothing as sure as death and taxes. But when a person dies, will he or she live again? At the very center of the Christian Gospel stands the fact of Christ's resurrection. Death couldn't hold Him (Acts 2:34).

Christians confess, "I believe in the resurrection of the body and the life everlasting." This is hooked right into Christ's becoming alive again. The Bible says that He is the "Firstfruits" (I Corinthians 15:20), the first in the long line of those who shall experience resurrection from the dead.

THERE'S A CERTAIN amount of warm sentimentality that comes with good news about old friends and former associates with whom you have been out of touch for years.

Such was the case as news arrived during the week from Princeton, N.J., that James J. (Jim) O'Connor, former manager of Pampa's Coronado Inn, has just been elected president of the New Jersey Hotel - Motel Association and also was named recipient of the Goldman Memorial Innkeeper of the Year Award.

O'Connor, who managed the Coronado Inn for several years, resigned in November of 1968 to become manager of the historic Nassau Inn at Princeton.

O'Connor's many Pampa friends were happy to learn of his election and his being chosen to receive the most respected and coveted award of the New Jersey hotel industry. Jim and his wife, Joan, reside with their three children in Belle Meade, N.J.

PAMPA'S Industrial Foundation Board is to be commended for its action in voicing opposition to a proposal being considered by the state legislature down at Austin to make it possible for cities and counties to float revenue bond issues to attract industry.

When the local PIF board took that stand at a meeting last Tuesday, it let it be known they were thinking in terms of sound business acumen.

It is foolish to try to attract industry by offering subsidies or public credit. Marginal operators always are on the lookout for free this or free that from a community.

Floating a bond issue to build a manufacturing plant is simply a method of using the public credit to finance a private operator, which is about as corrupt a turn of government as can be imagined, this side of unabashed state socialism.

Congress Password For Spending Is 'Emergency'

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, April 6 — Have you noticed the frequency with which the designation "emergency" appears on those multi-billion-dollar bills highballed through Congress?

Headline examples: Emergency Employment Appropriation; Emergency (farm) Price Supports; Emergency Middle-Income Housing; Emergency Livestock Credit; Emergency Home Owners Relief; Emergency Supplemental Appropriation; Emergency Local Public Works.

"Emergency" is the new politico-legislative gimmick; the open sesame for ramming through gigantic spending programs.

In the last Congress, the password was "reform" — tax reform, campaign spending reform, pension reform, congressional reform, environmental reform, reform this and reform that.

This time around, with the economy sagging, unemployment high and inflation still menacing, the huckstering incantation has changed to "emergency."

Particularly, it's an apt fit for the 75 freshman Congressmen furiously straining to chalk up vote-winning records — come hell or high water, and the sky is the limit.

Handy Gimmick
Even congressional boondoggling has been wangled under the "emergency" label.

Included in the $300 million-plus "emergency" grant to the bankrupt Penn-Central Railroad was a $17.2 million item for additional office space for the House — by renovating and air conditioning a former FBI warehouse.

The House already has three huge office buildings, but it was explained the additional facilities are urgently needed to take care of the hundreds of employees required by the numerous committees and subcommittees created by the "reforms" enacted by the last Congress.

As House Democratic floor leader Thomas O'Neill, Mass., inelegantly but accurately put it, "We're going to have a lot more bodies to take care of, so we'll need a lot more space. It's as simple as that."

More To Come
Just how much this rash of multi-billion dollar "emergency" legislation adds up to is a guess.

The record on them is far from over. Examples: "emergency" tax reduction — as passed by the Senate $3.1 billion as against the House's $21.3 billion; "emergency" farm price supports — Senate around $800 million, House about $450 million; "emergency" middle-income housing subsidies — $12 billion as passed by the House, still awaiting Senate action.

On their face, the "emergency" measures total in the neighborhood of $100 billion — approximately one-fifth of the national debt.

And there's a great ss hasn't even begun as yet even began consideration of the regular appropriation measures those that comprise the annual federal budget. The budget, as submitted by President Ford early last month, totals upwards of $300 billion, with a deficit variously estimated as ranging from $50 to $80 billion — with the latter more likely.

Who knows? Maybe things will become so "emergent" that Congress will have to pass an emergency bill dealing specifically with emergency.

Anything can happen in these dire and unpredictable times — with a Congress potentially influenced by 75 "emergency" minded newcomers who have the bits in their teeth and appear bent on roaring ahead regardless of cost.

As Madame Pompadour reportedly remarked to Louis XV, "After us the deluge."

Local Cancer Society Begins Crusade Today

The Gray - Roberts Unit of the American Cancer Society will begin its residential crusade Sunday.

Volunteers will try to reach every resident in the two country area for a cancer donation. Workers include The Key Club, Kiwanis - etts, Jaycees and Jaycee - etts, senior Girl Scout and Boy Scouts directed by Tommy Hill, Rho Eta and Epsilon chapters of Beta Sigma Phi, youth groups of the First United Methodist Church and groups from Barrett Baptist Church and New Hope Baptist Church.

Money collected in the drive will go for research of such types of cancer as leukemia. It is the greatest cause of death among children less than 15 years of age, according to the cancer group. Today the situation is radically different from what it was not many years ago. With a proper use of a combination of drugs, in many medical centers 90 per cent of all acute lymphocytic leukemias can be put into remission. Most doctors won't use the word "cure" as yet, but there are many cases of leukemia patients who have lived normal lives free of all symptoms years after treatment.

The American Cancer Society Unit in Pampa has a list of more than 80 medical centers throughout the United States providing highly effective treatment for leukemia.

There are a whole series of tests that can detect cancer in the early and curable stages: the Pap test for women, breast examination, the procto for men and women - especially those older than 40. And there are the Seven Warning Signals on the leaflet which tell you, if you have one, to go to a doctor. Only your doctor can tell if a warning sign is cancer.

Only 35 years ago uterine cancer was the major cancer killer of women. Today, the death rate from this type of cancer has been cut by two thirds, mostly because of the Pap test.

The Pap test is a simple, painless method for detecting early cancer of the uterus. It can also find changes in cells that could mean cancer will develop. The value is tremendous. Treatment at this early stage is almost 100 per cent successful.

A recent Gallup study surprised a lot of people by showing that the years of efforts by the American Cancer Society and the medical profession, have had startling results. Almost 9 in 10 women now know about the Pap test. And more important, 78 per cent today, have had a Pap test.

It is true that the remaining percentage includes those who are harder to reach. Uterine cervical cancer is more prevalent among low income groups and those who have had

Cuevas Sentenced To Chair; But It's Been Unplugged

HOUSTON (UPI) — The only survivor of an attempted breakout at the Texas state prison last summer has been sentenced to death, but it is doubtful Ignacio Cuevas or the 15 men now on death row in Texas will sit in the electric chair soon.

The U.S. Supreme Court is scheduled to hear arguments late this month on a case testing the legality of the death penalty on grounds execution is a cruel and inhumane punishment.

The last execution in Texas was July 30, 1964, when Joseph Johnson Jr. of Houston was electrocuted. The chair later has since been disconnected.

"It's still there intact and it has been taken care of," a prison official said. "The electrical nodes would have to be reworked and reconnected, but it wouldn't take long to do that."

The first man to be sentenced to death under the Texas Penal Code which went into effect in January 1974, John DeVries of Jefferson County, hanged himself after he arrived on death row. Jerry Jurek of DeWitt County is the inmate with the longest time on death row in the Walls Unit. He's been there since March 4, 1974.

The red brick maximum security center was held under siege 11 days last summer by narcotics kingpin Fred Gomez Carrasco, Rudolfo Dominguez and Cuevas. The escape attempt ended in a blazing gunbattle with Texas Rangers and other peace officers in which Carrasco and Dominguez and two women hostages, Julia Standley and Elizabeth Besada, were killed.

Cuevas, 43, a Mexican national with a long criminal record, was indicted on two counts of capital murder and convicted of Mrs. Standley's execution-style shooting death.

The trial established that bullets from Dominguez's 357 magnum revolver killed the prison librarian, but as an accomplice in the escape conspiracy, Cuevas was equally responsible under the law.

"The people are entitled to protection," prosecutor Jerry Sandel of Huntsville said in final arguments. "I believe it is a deterrent. Certainly this is a justifiable killing."

Sandel wanted the death penalty as a lesson for inmates and to demonstrate the Texas Department of Corrections' concern for the civilians who work behind its walls.

Defense attorney Will Gray, an appellate lawyer who has fought the death penalty in 28 previous cases, was emphatic in his denouncement of the state's right to kill.

"I'm opposed to capital punishment and I've fought it for 15 years," he said. "That's the main reason I became involved in this case. It's just as wrong for the state to take a life as anyone."

Appeal is automatic in capital sentences and Gray conducted his case with the idea of establishing reversible error, should the heart of the statute be upheld in the state or federal courts. Gray called no witnesses for the defense.

Gray also fought the state's introduction of evidence he claimed biased the jury.

Jury Foreman Explains Return

HOUSTON (UPI) — The foreman of the jury that convicted and sentenced Ignacio Cuevas said the convict's remarks to a hostage about how he killed a man in 1970 convinced the panel to return the death penalty.

James D. Thomas, a steelworker, said the two holdouts on the nine-man, three-woman jury were not coerced into changing their votes to death.

"I don't believe people could live with themselves if they changed their minds because of pressure," Thomas said.

Sierras Attack Hathaway

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Conservationists have launched their attack against President Ford's nomination of former Wyoming Gov. Stanley Hathaway as secretary of interior by charging he will "sell off every oil and coal field in sight."

"It looks like the President has picked a man who is committed to pushing energy development at all costs, regardless of environmental

Tornado Relief Roundup

Lefors Folks Give Thanks

By Bobby Combs

It almost seems a study in contradictions to see a man or woman standing amidst utter desolation and hear them say, "We have so much to be thankful for" but those are the words you would hear from many residents of storm-ravaged Lefors if you visited with them this morning.

Within minutes after the storm had subsided, aid, in many forms, began flowing toward the Gray County village.

Here are just some of the things for which the community is grateful:

The high school gymnasium, which normally holds basketball or volleyball players and cheering fans, is packed with clothing contributed by relief organizations, families, individuals and even entire communities. Those who lost their clothing in the storm can find something to wear. Maybe the size is not just right and the style is not always the latest, but wind-chilled bodies are keeping warm. The volunteers working in Lefors could use a few more helpers willing to sort and size the clothing. There is still a need for infant clothing, towels and wash cloths and sheets for double beds.

Area building contractors, already loaded with projects scheduled as much as a year in advance, are taking time to go to Lefors, give estimates on repair work, and make arrangements to get homes re-constructed or repaired. Much work already has been done with many new roofs in evidence, much clean-up accomplished and other repairs well underway on many homes and buildings.

Plainview relatives of the Arlie Carpenter's of Lefors, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Ray Smith, accompanied a United Farm Industrial Truck carrying furniture, clothing, food and a few hundred dollars to the disaster site early Saturday from business people, neighbors and friends in the Plainview area.

Box loads of bed spreads, cooking ware and twin sheets and pillow cases were donated by Gunn Bros. Thrift Stamps of Pampa and mattresses, beds, and furniture can be picked-up in the old gym.

The library in Lefors High School was being decorated for the wedding reception of Sheila Taylor and Mickey White, who repeated nuptial vows Saturday evening in the Lefors First Baptist Church.

The reception originally was planned to be hosted in fellowship hall of the church but it has been condemned along with the Sunday school class facilities.

The bride's mother did not know how many guests to expect for the event.

"Most folks planning to attend the affair lost their clothing in the storm and have nothing to wear," said Mrs. Freddie Cody who was assisting with houseparty duties. "So it's hard to determine the number of guests who will attend."

One of the latest reports from Libby Shotwell, executive secretary of the American Red Cross, included the story of Terry Sanders, son of Mrs. Lena Sanders whose house was destroyed by the storm. Young Sanders is serving in the armed forces and is stationed at Pearl Harbor.

"When Terry heard about his mother's home, he hopped the first plane to the states without waiting for official leave," Mrs. Shotwell said. "After many telephone calls and telegraph wires, we finally got Terry a 14-day official pass," she stated.

A small group of storm victims gathered at the school were commenting about aid-for-tornado victims, loan applications and government grants.

A voice said, "I'm a Republican, but whatever Phil Cates runs for, I'm going to vote for him."

Cates, a state representative, was reared in Lefors.

Mobil homes will provide temporary housing while residents of Lefors rebuild, but according to L.N. Howell, a retired employee of Cities Service Gas Co., "Our main worry at present is the weather. Things are going fairly smooth now, but if it rains, we are in trouble."

Indicative of the spirit in Lefors is the act of some who are delivering flowers to women and families who suffered damage in the storm.

The card says simply, "Lefors, Love you."

Texas House Creates Inmate Defense Fund

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The huge defense bill accumulated in the Houston trial of Ignacio Cuevas, convicted of capital murder in the death of a hostage during an attempted prison break, prompted the House to create a $500,000 fund to cover defense debts in the future.

The House voted 93-35 Friday to establish the fund in trials involving state prisoners who commit crimes behind bars.

"Walker County was picking up the cost of the entire bill for the defense (in the Cuevas trial)," said Rep. Jimmie Edwards, D-Conroe. "They were willing to do so, but they figured they would have to double or triple the ad valorem (property) taxes to do so."

The bill "now goes to the Senate. If finally passed, however, it will not provide funds for the Cuevas trial."

Edwards said Walker County obtained a $121,000 federal and state grant from the Texas Criminal Justice Council to take care of the defense costs, including fees for Cuevas' court-appointed attorneys.

Rep. Joe Spurlock, D-Fort Worth, objected to the bill. He said the fund should likewise be applied to jails in counties with large populations.

But Rep. Neil Caldwell, D-Alvin, said people in counties such as his are stuck with a prison like it or not.

"Our's are certified felons and there are a heck of a lot more of them," Caldwell told Spurlock. "If they break out, our's are the first homes they break into."

The House also approved a measure by Rep. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, to change the of Tyler State College to Texas Eastern University.

Clark said the name change was requested by the two-year upper-level school. Rep. Bud Sherman, D-Fort Worth, objected, saying the new school is not qualified for the university designation since it is only a two-year institute.

Legal Steps For Land Nearing End of Road

Legal steps were nearing completion Friday for the filing of condemnation proceedings this week in 31st District Court to obtain the remaining right-of-way needed for the widening of S. Cuyler from Brown to the McCullough Street city limits.

Bob Gordon, city attorney, said that seven parcels of land still had not been cleared out of the 69 needed.

The city attorney said he met with the appraiser on the property Thursday and expected to get a final report early this week.

Under the law, when the cases are filed, the district judge will appoint a three-man condemnation commission to hear testimony in the cases of property owners on S. Cuyler with whom right-of-way purchase agreements have not been reached.

The thoroughfare is to be widened 10 feet on each side of the street. The 10 foot strips of land comprise the necessary right-of-way to make the improvement.

S. Cuyler also is SH 273 which makes the project a joint participation by the city and state.

consequences," said Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club. "Hathaway undoubtedly will rush to sell off every oil and coal field in sight, while cutting every environmental corner he can."

But Hathaway said some "very hard decisions have to be made" to achieve energy self-sufficiency.

"Some in the environmental movement feel it is wrong to develop our national resources," Hathaway said after Ford introduced him to a group of western governors meeting here.

"We have to develop some of the indigenous fuels of the United States—a greater use of coal, a greater use of oil shale, of course using geothermal energy, solar energy and all the resources we can summon to help us solve the problems of the energy crisis."

"I think we have to strike a keen balance between the protection of the environment and using some of the resources we have in this country," said Hathaway, a former small town lawyer who served as Wyoming governor from 1968 to 1975.

If confirmed by the Senate, Hathaway will succeed Rogers C.B. Morton, who was nominated for secretary of commerce.

SUNDAY, APRIL 6
Your birthday today: Should find you eager to go ahead with the present course you've created for yourself. New resources are close by and may be brought in whenever you're ready to present an organized proposal. It's better to have considerable progress underway before you ask for help. Relationships flow smoothly if you let them. Today's natives have a faculty for philosophy and metaphysics.

unfamiliar places and consider new ideas in search of ideal solutions.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Put business aside to expand your social life. Share your opinions candidly; accept the fact that others believe in something else. Seek cooperation despite differences.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Once you've done your share in local customs and visited those you care about, stop to consider recent changes. See a pattern, decide where it leads and get busy to improve matters.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Leave business out of this Sunday's program if you can. Otherwise, be definite and explicit, but stay away from financial schemes. Romance and social matters are under tension.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: There'll be a better time than now to throw your weight around. Two words among relatives will result in dissent or objections. Smile pleasantly and think your own thoughts.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Assign priorities early; attend to what you feel is essential. Keep moving: You have many bases to touch and various suggestions to offer. Don't linger anywhere long enough to bicker.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: The antics of some people are inconvenient to the point where you can no longer ignore them. It's a tiring day; pace your efforts so you still have energy to enjoy the evening.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You're called on to take care of matters that are usually not your concern. Quietly and effectively do only what is necessary. Return to your usual program with no comment.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Forcing issues isn't the thing to do. Let well enough alone; wait your proper turn. Exercise and sports work off energy to good advantage. Quit before you get overly tired.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: It's just one of those days; even minding your own business in public can attract comment or disagreement. Be serene and self-assured. Leave commercial activity off of your schedule.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Be up early to get yourself organized and presentable. Meeting the views of your community takes wisdom. Gather friends to celebrate past achievements in the evening.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You can make good use of today's restless stirrings. Listening and watching yields vital, interesting information. Just stay out of squabbles.

MONDAY, APRIL 7

Your birthday today: Take fuller responsibility for what you feel should be brought to reality. Broader social contacts are yours for minimum effort, but each brings an obligation to redeem at a future date.

Relationships are divergent; you'll have to select sooner or later and may as well begin now. Today's natives can summon up great personal energy for jobs that interest them.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Bear in mind that you aren't very easily understood today and tomorrow, even by long-time associates. You can help matters by avoiding elaborate excuses or theories.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Don't spend time or effort broadcasting your intentions. Simply do what you've planned and let the deed announce itself. It's a productive day and calls for mild celebration tonight.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: No matter how static the situation is supposed to have remained over the weekend, it's different somehow. Begin with an open mind; make the most of it. Bring home symbolic gifts.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Business perks up, particularly if you're on the job early pursuing opportunity. Many things aren't worth full effort, others aren't ready. Home life improves!

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Your week opens with some minor inconvenience or extra resistance. Once adjusted, you're on the way up in your business-acumen cycle. This start sets a permanent mark on the record.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Stop and look at what must be done. Decide which matters take precedence.

Give yourself a midday break to catch your breath. Overtime is worth it now.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: The rare occurrence happens to be the rule today. Putting in an early appearance and hard work are requisites for success. Home life includes a surprise.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Move promptly to achieve constructive change. Try better methods and tools. It's a great day to begin a new job or make innovations on the old one.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: If you've managed recent stress and temptations well enough, you're in excellent shape to proceed.

Pampa, Texas
Make your true feelings plain (again) to those you love.

Scientist Dreams Of Planet Life

HOUSTON (UPI) — NASA scientist Noel Hinners dreams of life on other planets—not exactly little green men but proof man is not unique.

"In the last 400 years we learned we aren't the center of the universe but only a mere speck in the scheme of things," Hinners said. "But finding life elsewhere would finally crumble that image and convince the last holdouts.

"It would be one of the most compelling arguments that man, that life on earth, is not unique."

Hinners said such proof could make men look more closely at the future.

"Once in a while I dream that way, but in reality I seriously question if it could happen," Hinners said. "I think it would be good for us."

"Realizing that we're not alone would do something toward the attitudes of where we're going and what we're trying to accomplish with our lives. Some people said those things after the Apollo moon flights, but I doubt it really did much. I'm pretty cynical about man."

Hinners said in an interview at the Johnson Space Center that the Viking spacecraft to be launched in August may be the ship of discovery of life on Mars just as Leif Ericson's Viking ship came to North America in the year 1000.

Hinners, associate administrator for the Office of Space Science at NASA headquarters in Washington, said most of the experiments aboard the Viking lander, which will take almost a year to reach Mars, will test for present or past life.

"Once people believe that life has been able to originate and evolve elsewhere in the solar system, then they may say there is probably intelligent life in other reaches of the universe," he said. "I hope we do find life. It would be so exciting."

The life forms which scientists hope to find are amino acid building blocks or more advanced stages such as plant life.

But what if a little green man walks up to the cameras on the Viking lander and peers at America?

"Well, I'd ask him to sweep off the lens so we could get a better look at his planet," Hinners said.

The possibility of life elsewhere induces fright in many people, angers some religious groups and sparks interest in UFOs.

"I don't think life on Mars would be frightening to people," he said. "We're going to have to face the issue, at some point, of returning samples from Mars. Some people will raise the question of whether life from elsewhere would be potentially dangerous to terrestrial life."

"We had to quarantine the astronauts who made the first trips to the moon to satisfy a lot of people in this business."

Hinners said although he believes we will one day find other intelligent life, he doesn't believe manned UFOs are exploring the Earth now.

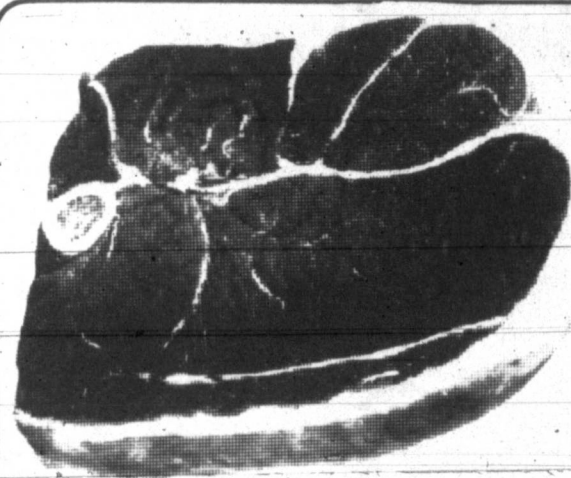

"That's great for discussions at the beer hall, but if they (inside the UFOs) are so intelligent they can make it here, why haven't they gone one step further and made contact?" he asked. "My beer hall buddies argue that they are experimenting and when you're experimenting with something you don't monkey with it."

School adopts 'no bell' idea

LOS ANGELES — "Bells are like punching a time clock," says Angela Heath, 12.

For Angela, an eighth-grade student at suburban Inglewood's Monroe Junior High School, bells amount to what she calls "robot-like programming."

So, school bells have stopped ringing in the 1,150-student school in an experimental no-bells policy.

Monroe is believed to be the only junior high school in California to have ended the tinkling of classroom bells.

The policy will give the teen-agers more responsibility and provide a less regimented, more relaxed campus atmosphere, says Principal Dennis Flynn.

"Once students are out of school, they have to take the responsibility of getting to work on time," he says.

"Tardiness is a problem in society, and some students always have difficulty arriving at class on time. Bells don't change that. Only now it's their responsibility to be punctual."

In keeping with the principle — if not the practice — of "responsibility, not license" laid down by Flynn and the faculty, the school will have sporadic "lockouts" to reinforce that responsibility.

"School is learning how to live life — we all have to have checks and balances on ourselves," Flynn says.

"The lockout is one check and balance."

Under the lockout — there has been one thus far — a bell is rung at the beginning of a period and if students are late, they're locked out of class and must go to the principal's office for a tardy slip.

Flynn says the idea for silencing the bells came from students.

"I was concerned about tardiness and asked the student council what to do about it," he said. "They suggested no bells."

The idea was tried during summer school, he says, and the faculty decided to extend it to the regular school year.

"Quite honestly, the staff was surprised it worked," he adds.

"I admit, we still have some tardiness, but fewer students are late for class than before the no-bells policy."

Students have five minutes between classes and, as Angela put it: "You do whatever you have to do (between periods) — but you make sure you get to class on time."

Sharon Harris, 13, says it makes students responsible for their own schedules.

"The common excuse if you were late to class was to blame it on the teacher for letting you out late," she says. "Now it's the students' fault if they're tardy."

HOMEMAKERS NEWS

By ELAINE HOUSTON
Dora Dougal, Home Demonstration Council Chairman, from Lefors escaped the tornado and its destruction. She's been keeping us informed of items needed. They are in need of clothing and household items. If you take clothing, please put the size on the garments. Also, stick in some coat hangers. Also, needed are volunteers to sort and size garments.

NEW PUBLICATIONS
We've received copies of several new publications consumers might be interested in. A new publication MP-1176, "Sweetness - The Choice is Yours" helps consumers determine cost comparisons of different sugar alternatives. In addition, a sweetening conversion chart, general sweetening stretchers and recipes using sugar alternatives are given.

Also, USDA has sent us a copy of the publication "Buying Used Appliances." With the cost of appliances rising right along with other goods and services many homemakers are paying more attention to garage sales. Some may find used appliance bargains, others won't. What do you look for when buying a used appliance.

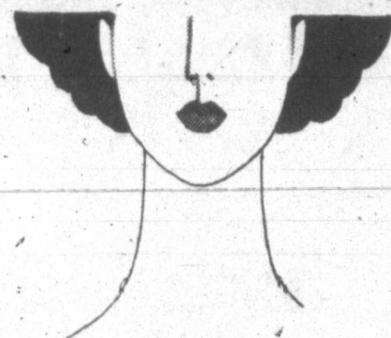

Large coffee urns and roaster-ovens used only a few times, a year may be priced low enough to make it practical to own them.

A try before you buy test is one way to find any problems the appliance might have. Other conditions are general condition and cleanliness of the appliance; fitting of lids and other parts; presence of the UL Seal; convenient and safe handles; and whether the open heating coils have broken wires. When buying a portable with detachable cord, check appliance terminals where the plug is inserted. Pitted terminals indicate that the cord has repeatedly been attached to the appliance after the plug was inserted into the wall outlet.

Arcing and Subsequent carbon deposits resulting from this practice reduce the electrical conducting ability of the terminals and shorten the appliance's life. If open heating coils have broken wires, replacements are simple and inexpensive. Broken coils should never be stretched and reattached.

ELECTRICAL SAFETY
Home Demonstration Club Members are meeting at Southwestern Public Service with Mildred Prince this month to learn about electrical safety. This is a good time to visit and join a Home Demonstration Club. Contact a Home Demonstration Club Member or the Extension Office for details.

"The Killer Angels," Michael Shaara, McKay.
The battle of Gettysburg becomes a very personal event when seen through Michael Shaara's eyes. His account gives living flesh to the dead heroes of that battle and that war.
The scenes are real: General Lee so tired he cannot rise from the ground; General Longstreet crying as his men make a futile effort to break through the Union lines.

The soldiers, frightened and running; others moving up to fill the gaps in the line; the eerie Rebel yell echoing over the battlefield.

You may not agree with Shaara's assessment of the men and the battle, but you won't forget the book quickly. - Helen Carter
"I Am Thinking of Kelda," Evelyn Wells, Doubleday.
Kelda and Joseph are immigrants in the late 1800's who have a dream of owning their own land in Kansas.

It is a story of success, not in the usual sense of increased property and wealth; but in holding onto joy and wonder in spite of hardships and death.
Kelda's life spans the continent, starting in a sweat factory in New York and ending in Hollywood, California, once a sleepy village.
The reader gets a glimpse into the early days of silent movies, when Westerns were filmed in New Jersey and stunt men practiced roping and riding on vacant lots.
Kelda and her granddaughter are avid movie fans - and they get bit parts in a crowd scene, earning two dollars each.

Family Budget Planned

Families will get the most satisfactory results from income if they set up a spending plan or "budget."

This plan should be made to fit your particular needs. Percentages or amounts set by others may not be good budget guides for you. We suggest that money decisions be made as a family and plans kept simple and flexible.

A new publication called "Your Family Spending Plan" is available for free with instructions and forms to help you keep a record of where your money is going. Your family can plan its spending to get more of what you want and need. Write Elaine Houston, P.O. Box 1756, Pampa 79065, or call her at 669-7429.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK
I don't want to panic anyone. Out this country is on a collision course headed for disaster.

Specifically, it was brought to my attention by two stories buried in the newspaper. The first was a prediction that cars are going to be built smaller than ever to conserve energy and cut down on pollutants. The second was a two-year anthropometric survey revealing that by 1980 women will be larger than ever.

taller, firmer, and will definitely mature earlier.

Wake up, people, before some ten-year-old finds herself wedged between a steering wheel and puberty.

I've seen it coming for some time. With every generation the women seem to get healthier and healthier. I have a friend so healthy she has to lean against a wall for balance.

Researchers say we have brought it on ourselves. We take too good care of our children, plying them with vitamins, balancing their diets, providing them with recreational facilities. I defy you to line up the last two generations and compare. Beside my daughter I look like a quail.

She is definitely a station wagon model... built long, sleek and always consuming something. I am small, compact and impossible to get into gear.

Due to the country's limited resources, we are committed to smaller cars. That is a fact. But it is not too late to start a parts center to convert the large women to compact size. First, a bucket seat. The women of 1980 will have to be fitted into a bucket girdle for her anatomy to fit snugly into the car seat.

Second, a hat with a sun roof so that when she sits with her head through the roof of the car she can be prepared for all kinds of weather.

Third, folding legs. This could be a simple kind of surgery where the legs collapse like a card table just until the driver is in the car and they can be opened again.

Fourth, a cross-your-heart seat belt for the full-figured woman.

Oh, there are still some minor bugs to be worked out like where to put the door handle so that it will not embed itself into the kidneys of the driver, and how to get people in and out of the back seat without sedating them, but it'll work out.

The major problem of fitting the woman of 1980 into a compact car is the steering wheel. For the moment, it's listed as an optional.

Treat New Kin Like 'Royalty'

Copley News Service

Whenever new parents-in-law get together, there is a flurry of social activity. This relationship between folks, who are not really relatives, presents a special social phenomenon in every culture and age.

The Armenians have a special word for it - khunam. Once the children are engaged the two families become khunamians, and custom dictates they treat each other as kings and queens. It is certainly a good way to give a nonrelative relationship a full chance for success.

In America, an informal evening at home is often a favored way to entertain new relatives. This is your chance to serve something light and unique, with flavors common enough for everyone to enjoy.

The date and cream cheese dip is easy to make ahead or just before serving. The pasteurized pitted whole dates quickly blend with the applesauce, water and lemon juice during cooking. Then small pieces of cream cheese are stirred in for a smooth blend of mellow sweet flavor.

ARMENIAN THIN BREAD

Makes 4 sheets bread

1 cup warm water
1 package active dry yeast
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine, melted and cooled
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
3/4 to 3/8 cups unsifted flour

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add cooled margarine, salt, sugar and 2 cups flour. Beat until smooth. Add enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

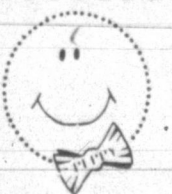

Punch dough down; divide into 4 equal pieces. Roll and stretch each piece into a rectangle, 10 x 14 inches. Place each on an ungreased baking sheet.

Bake at 350 degree F. for 15 to 20 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire racks. Break into pieces and serve with date and cream cheese dip (recipe below).

DATE AND CREAM CHEESE DIP

Date and cream cheese dip: In a saucepan combine 1 package (8-ounce) pitted dates, 1 cup applesauce, 1/4 cup water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring until mixture is well blended. Remove from heat. Blend in 1 package (3-ounce) cream cheese, cut into small pieces. Cool thoroughly.

Caprock Ruins Pampa Hopes For Opening Win

By PAUL SIMS
A loose ball in left field spelled two runs for Caprock in the top of the second extra inning and defeat for Pampa, which lost 5-3 in the teams' district baseball opener Friday afternoon in Optimist Park.

Jesse Brown singled to left in the ninth inning, the ball got away from Pampa's Kory Gambin and two runners — Kevin Jones who singled and Mark Mendez who reached on an error — scored. The runs gave the Longhorns a 5-3 lead.

Pampa, in the bottom of the ninth, was unable to knot the game because of the sturdy pitching of Mark Leonard, who got Mark Adair to ground out and Doug Burns and Dennis Edwards to pop out.

The win leaves Caprock with a 10-5 record and was the Longhorns' sixth in a row. Pampa, which had won six straight prior to the game, fell to 8-6 for the season.

Leonard, 6-1 with the win, and Pampa's Dennis Edmonson 3-3, were locked in a scoreless duel through the first four innings.

Pampa had runners on base in each of the innings and had a man on third in the first three.

Leonard, however, worked his way out of trouble throughout the contest.

Pampa jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the fifth after Mike Adair singled and scored with two outs. Mike Fraser bunted down the third base line and, on the throw to first, Adair rounded third and scored. Fraser was safe on the play and advanced to second on the first baseman's (Barry Trickey's) throw home.

Pampa Rolls To Dumas Title

DUMAS — Pampa took first place in both relays and three other events, racking up 115 points and its third team championship in four meets this season Saturday in the North Plains Relays here.

The Harvesters, who "really laid it to 'em," according to Pampa coach Scott Dunnham, finished ahead of Amarillo High with 68 points, Palo Duro 65, Plainview 50; Hereford 46, Borger 39; Perryton 37, Canyon 28, Muleshoe 27 and Dumas 18.

The win gives the Harvesters a victory over every one of 3-AAAA's teams. Pampa beat Caprock and Tascosa in the Top O' Texas Invitational and Palo Duro, Amarillo High and Borger in the Dumas meet.

"I don't want you to put us out on a limb. I think we've got a good chance (to win district) but a lot of things happen at the district meet," Pampa coach Scott Dunnham said. "I'll tell you this much — we're looking forward to it."

Dunnham added, "I was really pleased with the way we competed. I feel like we're just now starting to peak out and run up to our potential. I've thought so all along and now they're finally realizing they can run with good people."

Pampa, for the second meet in a row, took top honors in both relay events. The 440-relay team of Chuck Quarles, Rick Leverich, Willis Price and David Caldwell, won in 44.4 seconds. Plainview was second with 44.7.

Pampa's mile-relay team of Noel Hansen, Barry Lemmons, Price and Howie Lewis had a 3:30.4 clocking, 2.6 seconds ahead of runner-up Perryton.

"With the mile relay, I was pleased with the way we competed, the fact we won it. But I was just a little disappointed with the time. In the sprint relay, I was pleased by the fact Leverich was running with a minor muscle strain, and Willis had worked out on it only a week," Dunnham said.

Lewis captured first place in both hurdles, winning the 330 intermediates in 38.3, his best time of the season, and 120 highs in 14.6. In the highs, the 6-5 Pampan hit the last hurdle and broke it, was knocked off balance and still won over runner-up Greg Sellmyer of Palo Duro (14.7).

Roberts Fails To Up Record

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Paul Cummings of Brigham Young University turned in a sub-four-minute performance Saturday to capture the Texas Relays mile run, but Dave Roberts failed in an attempt to raise his world pole vault record closer to 19 feet.

Roberts, who last week set a world mark of 18-6 1/2 in the Florida Relays, easily cleared 18-1 on his first attempt Saturday to tie the Texas Relay mark set three years ago by Sweden's Kjell Isaksson.

The former Rice vaulter then asked that the standard be raised to 18-8, but he hit the bar going up on all three attempts at that height.

"I need a stiffer pole," Roberts said. "This one bends too much. I think I would have had a chance on my last try with a different one."

Cummings captured the Jerry Thompson mile in 3:59.79, turning in one of the top performances on a day generally set aside for disappointments.

Dwight Stones, world record holder in the high jump, was among those involved in a letdown, winning his event in 7-1.

"I have been bothered by an ankle injury," Stones said, "and the wind bothered me a little too."

The wind was relatively calm for a Texas spring, blowing at about 12 miles an hour, and it had little effect on another world record holder — Jim Bolding, Bolding won the 440-yard hurdles in 49.89, only two-tenths of a second off his world mark.

"I am pleased with this time," said Bolding, former student at Oklahoma State. "This is my first outdoor hurdles this year. I felt a little sloppy and on the straightaway I felt the wind a little and tried to stretch out my stride."

Collins turned in a slow 9.53, which was only two-hundredths of a second better than Okyr.

Hansen, who has been several seconds under his 1974 880 times prior to the meet this year, won with a 1:59.5, his season best.

Lemmons was second in the 440 with 51.9, a tenth of a second behind Stan Freeman of Amarillo High.

Sprinter David Caldwell was second in the 100 and third in the 220. Price was second in the long and high jumps and Leverich was fourth in the 100. Leverich ran a 10.1 in the preliminaries.

Pampa will compete in the Amarillo Relays Friday and Saturday. In the meet, Harvesters sprinter Glover, who has been nursing a hamstring pull since Odessa's West Texas Relays, is listed as a possible entrant.

"I believe Mike will be ready," Dunnham said, "but I'm still a little bit reluctant about running him."

Glover will, however, definitely compete in the district meet April 19 in Amarillo.

About the district meet, Dunnham said, "PD will be tough. I don't know why they didn't run any better today. One thing though — we can compete with them. We're almost up to our potential. We still haven't gotten there but we're on the right track."

Sunray won the Division II crown at Dumas, with 91 points. Stratford was second with 72.1-3.

One of the most interesting races of the day was run in Division II. In the 120 high hurdles, Panhandle's Kerby Daniels nipped Sunray's George Rasor, 14.2 to 14.3. Both are consistently the top high hurdlers in the area.

Pampa had runners on base in each of the innings and had a man on third in the first three.

Pampa jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the fifth after Mike Adair singled and scored with two outs. Mike Fraser bunted down the third base line and, on the throw to first, Adair rounded third and scored. Fraser was safe on the play and advanced to second on the first baseman's (Barry Trickey's) throw home.

Taylor Drinnon singled to score Fraser.

Caprock tied it in the sixth. Kim Killian grounded out to shortstop, then Bobby Stewart reached on an error. Trickey doubled to knock in Stewart and scored on Jones' single.

The Longhorns went ahead in the eighth stanza on a homerun by Stewart. The solo shot cleared the centerfield wall (343 feet).

In the bottom half of the inning, Fraser tripled to right and scored on a base hit by Drinnon.

Pampa coach Ronnie White was miffed at his team's play, especially the outfield part which he called "very poor." The game was White's fifth extra-inning contest in 11 district games at Pampa High.

"I was disappointed. We didn't want it," White said. "When we got Caprock down 2-0, you could see it come over them in the dugout. They looked like they were getting ready to take the victory, and they did."

Pampa travels to Tascosa, a 6-4 winner over Palo Duro in those teams' opener, Tuesday in a 4 p.m. game. "They'll be tough," White said. "They'll all be tough for us. We evidently aren't gonna hit the ball consistently, looking at what we've done so far."

"If we play like we did yesterday, we won't win it (district title)."

White, however, was pleased with Edmonson's performance. The senior hurler went the

Lone PHS Qualifier

Young Grabs 5th In Relays

AMARILLO — Cindy Young, Pampa's only qualifier for the finals, placed fifth in the 100-yard dash, giving the Harvesters two points in the Amarillo Relays Girls Invitational Track Meet Saturday in Dick Bivins Stadium.

Miss Young qualified for the finals Friday. Saturday, the event was won by Flecia Freeman of Palo Duro with 11.2 seconds. The winner was followed by Donna Smith of El Paso, 11.4; Diana Jackson, Brownfield; Dene Johnson, Canyon, and Miss Young.

Perryton won the AAAA-AAA Division with 78 points, winning only the mile relay but getting several points with its exceptional depth. The Rangelettes were followed by El Paso Burges 76.1-3, Tascosa 60, Amarillo High 59, El Paso Coronado 52 and Palo Duro 48. In all, 16 teams were entered in the big-school division.

Olton, which has a definite shot at winning the Class A girls' state title, piled up 105 points to capture team honors in the AA-A-B Division. Abernathy was second with 54 points, ahead of Tula 40, Friona 40, Groom 36, Vega 36, Canyon B-team 35, Sunray 32 and McLean 32. 24 teams competed for the small-school championship.

McLean's Sheri Haynes earned second in both the 100 with an 11.4 clocking and 60-yard sprint

Pampa Tennis Team Doesn't Make Semis

AMARILLO — Pampa High's tennis team had no players in Saturday's semifinals of the Amarillo Relays, although one Harvester, Stacy Douglas, would have been had she not been forced to withdraw.

Miss Douglass won her first round "B" singles match over Palo Duro's Sharon Martin by default and then defeated Melody Saunders of Amarillo Tascosa, 6-2, 6-3; Maria Martinez of Pampa, 6-3, 6-3, and Kathy Price of Tascosa, 7-6, 7-5, in the quarterfinals.

She would have played Saturday in the semifinals but had to default because of a prior engagement.

"I was real pleased with Stacy," Pampa tennis coach John Michie said Saturday. "She played real well. I think if she hadn't had to default she could have gotten into the finals."

Overall, Michie was "real disappointed. I figured that we would go a lot further than we did. I was real disappointed with Eugene's (Laycock) match."

Laycock, Pampa's only entrant in "A" singles, lost to Steve Massarang of Lubbock Estacado, 6-1, 2-6, 6-3.

"I think we were looking forward to another match before we played this guy. The next match would have been against Hank Holly of Lubbock High. He beat the No. 1 seed, Alan Alpar of Tascosa in the semifinals. We were looking to beat him and looking to beat Alan Alpar.

"If he (Laycock) could have beaten both of them, he would have gotten the No. 1 seed in district."

The district tournament is set for Friday and Saturday at Borger.

Besides Laycock, Michie has high hopes, in the district meet, for his boys' doubles team of Jerry Allen and E.B. Ellis. The pair whipped Amarillo Caprock's Leroy McMurtry and Tim Wyble, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4, in the first round of "A" singles Friday. They then lost to second-seeded Ben Ballingee and Jim Montoya of Amarillo High, 7-6, 6-1.

A BOYS SINGLES — Steve Massarang, Lubbock Estacado, def. Eugene Laycock, Pampa, 6-1, 2-6, 6-3.

A BOYS DOUBLES — Jerry Allen - E.B. Ellis, Pampa, def. Leroy McMurtry - Tim Wyble, Amarillo Caprock, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4. (Second round) Ben Ballingee - Jim Montoya, Amarillo High, def. Allen - Ellis, 7-6, 6-1.

B BOYS SINGLES — Mark Nelson, Snyder, def. Amanda Mesa, Pampa, 6-4, 6-1; Doug Hughes, Pampa, def. Dan Replegle, Perryton, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4; (second round) Hughes defaulted.

The follow through is as important to a bowler as it is to a golfer or a baseball pitcher.

A successful bowler must deliver the ball out past the foul line with the arm continuing on through to complete the swing. Don't swing the ball out from the body to the right or to the left across the front of the body. Follow through toward the target. End your pendulum swing with your hand to the right of your face and you will eliminate the problem of pulling the ball across its intended line of roll.

If you roll a hook ball, the follow through encourages the hook lift by the fingers. The straight ahead follow through will greatly assist the development of accurate control. Good timing and delivery form generally insure a good follow through.

Don't cut off the follow through by dumping the ball. Reach for the target. Don't force the swing and don't lunge. Keep the pendulum swing (stroke) smooth.

Now we will give you some of the scores from the past two weeks rolled during league play.

Duniven Hits 5 of 8 Passing

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Billy Taylor, sophomore running back from San Antonio, scored three touchdowns and kicking specialist David Mellott kicked field goals of 58 and 55 yards to highlight a three-hour Texas Tech scrimmage Saturday.

Taylor scored on runs of three and five yards and caught a 70-yard scoring bomb from quarterback Rodney Allison, a sophomore from Odessa. Taylor piled up 66 yards rushing on nine carries to lead all rushers.

Mellott, a sophomore from San Antonio made both field goals with ease on his two attempts. Earlier in the week, Mellott had cleared the athletic department offices at the south end of Jones Stadium with two of his kicks.

Quarterback Tommy Duniven, a junior from McLean, led the first team offense to a touchdown on its first possession, covering 70 yards in 10 plays. Duniven wound up the day hitting five of eight passes for 90 yards and one touchdown, a 30-yard toss to flanker Willie Kent of Corpus Christi.

Allison hit four of seven passes for 104 yards and a touchdown. He also had 41 yards rushing.

Fullback Cliff Hoskins, senior from George West, carried the ball eight times for 61 yards including a one-yard touchdown.

Ricky Bates, senior from Arlington, caught two passes for 38 yards from his split end position.

Curtis Jordan, all-Southwest Conference safety from Lubbock, intercepted a pass during the scrimmage and romped 60 yards for a touchdown.

Lou Bound For Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Lou Henson, tutor of winning basketball teams in the Missouri Valley Conference, Saturday was named head coach at the University of Illinois by Athletic Director Cecil Coleman.

Henson left New Mexico State University, where he was basketball coach and athletic director, to replace Gene Bartow as coach of the Fighting Illini.

GRUVER — Canadian rolled up 110 points, winning the shot put and triple jump events, to finish second in the Gruver Girls Invitational Track Meet, won by powerful Panhandle, Friday here.

Jackrabbits Well-Adapted, Hare Cuts Not Predicted

By JIM CORNETT
Copley News Service

Topping 35 miles per hour in the straightaway the black-tailed jackrabbit is one of the fastest animals found in the open prairie. Powerful hind legs account for his rapid gait which enables him to outrun coyotes and bobcats, his principal ground-dwelling enemies.

But speed isn't the only thing the black-tailed jackrabbit has going for him. He's an exploiter of an environment that at times has little to offer such a relatively large mammal.

So successful is Lepus californicus (his scientific name) in obtaining his bodily needs that scientists are constantly studying his behavior and physiology to discover just how he manages in the midst of burning summers and winter blizzards.

Water is a necessity in short supply within the black-tailed jackrabbit's range of western North America, and he must have water. Not necessarily water as we know it. But rather water locked up in green leaves and grass shoots. Such plants as mesquite (Prosopis) and certain grasses can provide the needed moisture in amounts able to sustain Lepus if he practices the utmost economy in water use.

Large ears can help in this respect as they perform a function similar to that of your car radiator.

Heat from the jackrabbit's ears is given off to the relatively cooler atmosphere. The more heat given off in this manner the less water used in evaporative cooling.

That the jackrabbit has survived and in considerable numbers is obvious to anyone who has hiked across a field or driven down a little-used highway. They are a common and conspicuous animal known to most everyone.

Part of their familiarity can be explained by an inherent aversion to digging holes. Lepus will always be seen on the ground's surface not being a digger of any sorts. He's a hare, not really a rabbit, and as such relies more upon his speed to escape enemies rather than a burrow like his cottontail cousin. Thus, while walking along a "rabbit trail" blazed by hundreds of hares over the years one will frequently startle a jackrabbit lying low in his form.

The "form" is home for Lepus from birth through death.

It is nothing more than a slight depression excavated under a shrub or tree. The young are born in this unlined nursery complete with fur and open eyes. Within hours they are able to run and frolic about apparently inspecting their nest for choice bits of greenery. Mother nurses them, of course, but their dependence upon her is short-lived. They strike out on their own at an early age.

Twice I have found offspring lying in the dirt with no evidence of parental care. Apparently both had just been born and I had frightened the mother away by my approach. One was under a bush but the other was lying in the open. Occasionally an overzealous eater will hang onto the dinner table when mother jackrabbit must flee. Perhaps the newborn Lepus I found in the dirt remained too long at mother's milk supply and had been tossed to the ground in her escape.

Black faculty have fewer Ph.D.s

NEW YORK — Having a Ph.D. is not essential to begin teaching in college, but is important for advancing in the profession.

According to Ford Foundation, nearly half of the nation's 500,000 faculty members and administrators have the doctorate, but for the estimated 20,000 black faculty members the proportion is only about 15 per cent. — CNS

Amazon basin is huge greenhouse

Geologists believe that millions of years ago a large freshwater lake existed in the present drainage basin of the Amazon River which now is covered by a massive rain forest.

The wet tropical forest, sometimes called the world's most spectacular greenhouse, contains as many as 3,000 plant species per square mile. — CNS

DRUG FELS APE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Eli the orangutan suffocated at the zoo Monday by pressing his own weight against his windpipe while woefully trying to recover from a knockout drug.

The 365-pound giant red ape was given the drug so he could be moved. While recovering, Eli rolled about in his cage and pushed his shoulders up against a door with his head down on his chest. "His air supply was cut off. By the time we found out it was too late."

Agriculturally Speaking

By FOSTER WHALEY
The 4-H Club members are very busy in a sales project that will benefit everyone that participates. They are selling a packet of five varieties of garden seed. In addition, they are selling a special spineless okra seed that is very adapted for Gray County conditions. Fact is this seed was produced right here in Gray County.

The 4-H youngsters are packaging this special okra seed in small packages that will have an ample amount of seed to plant for the largest family. The small packages will have enough seed to plant over 350 feet of row. This would be enough okra for daily family needs in summer months after it came into production. In addition, enough extra for freezing large quantities and selling to your neighbors. You can purchase these one-half ounce packages of okra seed for a very nominal fifty cents. The packets of five varieties of either flowers, vegetables or a mixture to sell for $1.

Another project the 4-H youngsters have underway is the sale of both 16 and 21 quart canners. These are Presto canners and are painted a beautiful harvest gold. Elaine Houston, home demonstration agent, now has one you may look at if you are in need of the canner.

The 4-H'ers are taking orders on these now. They will arrive in early June. Four or five had already been sold before it was announced the clubs would be selling them. The 21 quart size will cost $48 plus tax. The 16 quart size will cost $45 plus tax. This will represent a considerable savings over standard retail price.

Hogs and pigs on U.S. farms March 1 in the 14 quarterly states are estimated at slightly more than 40 million head, down 17 per cent from a year earlier and 15 per cent below March 1, 1973. Number kept for breeding at 6 million head is down 20 per cent from each of the last two years. Market hogs and pigs, at 34 million head are 16 per cent below March 1, 1974 and 14 per cent below March 1, 1973. The all hogs and pigs inventory in the ten corn belt states at 35 million head is the lowest for this date since the series of these reports began in 1960.

The status of the above situation on swine coupled with the anticipated two month slow down in grass fat cattle marketing along with startling lower numbers of cattle on feed will produce some added sparks in the cattle market within the next few weeks.

In our opinion, the timing of the grade change beef cattle was no accident. It will make more cattle available in the choice grade that is now in the high grade. This might serve to hold the lid on price to some extent. However, I feel it is a much needed change and the change would be less harmful now than at any future time. Certainly it would be a bad blow to make this change when we had a glut of beef such as we have experienced for the past 12 months.

Panhandle Water

Felix W. Ryals

The Governor's Task Force on Water and Natural Resource has called its monthly meeting for Monday in Austin. This is the same day the Senate Development Committee will hold hearings on House Joint Resolution and Senate Joint Resolution 67 and 49 to 800 million dollars. This would merely set the necessary legal machinery in motion to place an amendment on the ballot for Texans to voice their approval or disapproval.

The Task Force meeting is arranged for the same day so the members of the Task Force can attend both hearings and also conduct its own business session. The Texas Water Conservation and Governor's Task Force has endorsed the increase in the bonding for the Texas Water Development Board to carry out the recommendations of the Short Range Texas Water Plan.

The Texas Water Conservation Association has gone all out to back the Governor's Task Force in its efforts to put together a workable short range and long range water plan. At the February annual meeting of the Texas Water Conservation Association there were general policy statements. Fred S. Vandenburg of Gray County and Felix W. Ryals of Carson County attended the annual meeting. Vandenburg is a member of the irrigation panel board of directors of the association. The policy statements firmly stated the position of the association.

General Policy

The state faces a growing water and energy crisis, and the conservation, development and effective management of the water resources of the state are of the highest priority. The Texas Water Conservation Association will continue to support and assist efforts to provide adequate supplies of clean water for all beneficial uses in Texas at the lowest cost and to prescribe and enforce reasonable discharge criteria; all with full regard for economic, social, and environmental considerations.

In view of the current and projected energy shortage, we believe that there must be a commitment at all levels of government to the early development of additional water resources to support and enhance expansion of the national available energy capacity.

The Association supports specific projects and legislation affecting Texas water resource development which are engineeringly sound and economically feasible and which are compatible with the nation's well being.

WEeping LOVEGRASS — Cattle graze on the Donald Walberg ranch 20 miles east of Pampa on weeping lovegrass seeded under a contract. (Soil Conservation Service)

Weeping Lovegrass Proves Valuable to Sandy Soils

By PERRY D. GRUHLKE
District Conservationist
Soil Conservation Service

Weeping lovegrass has proven to be an excellent improved grass for the sandy soils of this area. The key to maximum production and use of weeping lovegrass is proper fertilization and subsequent management. Ranchers and farmers interested in planting this grass should begin preparation of their soil for a late April or May planting date. All other competitive plants need to be destroyed and a clean, firm seedbed prepared.

The recommended rate for planting weeping lovegrass is 2.0 to 2.5 lbs. per acre of pure live seed. This will mean planting over 3 lbs. per acre of commercial seed. Prior to planting, fertilizer needs to be applied at the rate of 30-40-0 per acre to aid in establishment of the grasses. More vigorous plants and better stands will be obtained if the grass is not grazed the first summer after seeding. Light grazing may be desirable the following fall and winter.

As an average figure, weeping lovegrass will provide grazing for about one cow and calf on four acres for a year or one cow and calf on two acres for six months. This stocking rate would be under good management with proper fertilization and a rotational grazing system. If a landowner had 100 acres of good lovegrass, managed properly, he could graze 100 yearlings for six months and in better years he could increase this figure.

Weeping lovegrass will fit well into an overall ranching operation by planting a portion of the ranch to lovegrass. The grass can be used in the spring and early summer allowing the native grasses to rest and gain vigor for higher forage production.

Weeping lovegrass is not a cure-all for the rancher in sandy country but it does aid in making a more balanced forage program.

Parasite Kills Weeds

LUBBOCK — A Texas Agricultural Experiment Station scientist here is using a microscopic, parasitic organism to kill a prolific weed pest that infests millions of acres in the Southwest.

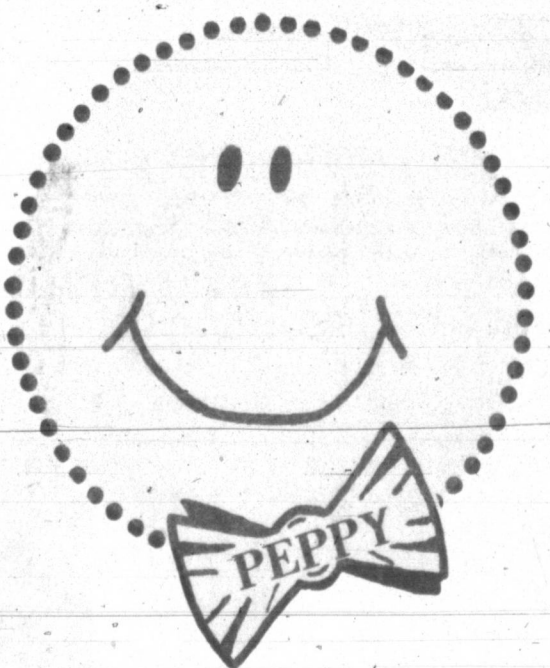

Dr. Calvin C. Orr, nematologist based at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lyubock, said the organism, a specific type of nematode, "appears to have possibilities as a biological control agent for silverleaf nightshade in semiarid West Texas."

Orr said he found severe, lethal natural infestations of "Nothanguina phyllobia" on a silverleaf nightshade weed in 1974. Nematodes, he explained, are microscopic worms which live in the soil.

Cotton producers view the silverleaf nightshade as an extremely troublesome weed, causing substantial economic loss by reducing cotton yields.

Orr said that herbicides used in cotton production are largely ineffective in controlling the seedling and perennial stages of the weed. Mechanical cultivation is a more effective but expensive control, but with the development of effective herbicides for control of annual weeds in cotton, cultivation has decreased.

Happy Anniversary, KPND

Radio station KPND today begins its 39th year of broadcasting.

Pampa's first radio station, KPND was originated in 1948 by the people who then owned the Pampa Daily News.

"It was originally broadcasting at 100 watts of power," he said. "Now we're 1,000."

Hasse bought the station in 1952 from the Pampa Daily News. That year it was moved to the present location in the basement of the Hughes Building from the Culbertson - Smelling Building which was located at 212 N. Ballard where Pioneer Natural Gas is now.

The station has 10 full time and two part time employees, Hasse said and "We have had a Vocational Office Education (VOE) student from Pampa High every year since the program was started," he added.

Three of Hasse's staff have been with him for 15 to 20 years each.

"It gives an organization like ours a good solid undergirding to be able to work for the community," Hasse said. "Four of us have a total of 80 years of experience at the station and in Pampa. It helps us know what the community wants." Hasse said that since he purchased the station it has grown from 250 watts to the current 1,000-watt strength.

Known throughout the Panhandle as the "Voice of the Buffaloes" Hasse has announced West Texas State University football games since 1953. He also is interested in Pampa's sports programs.

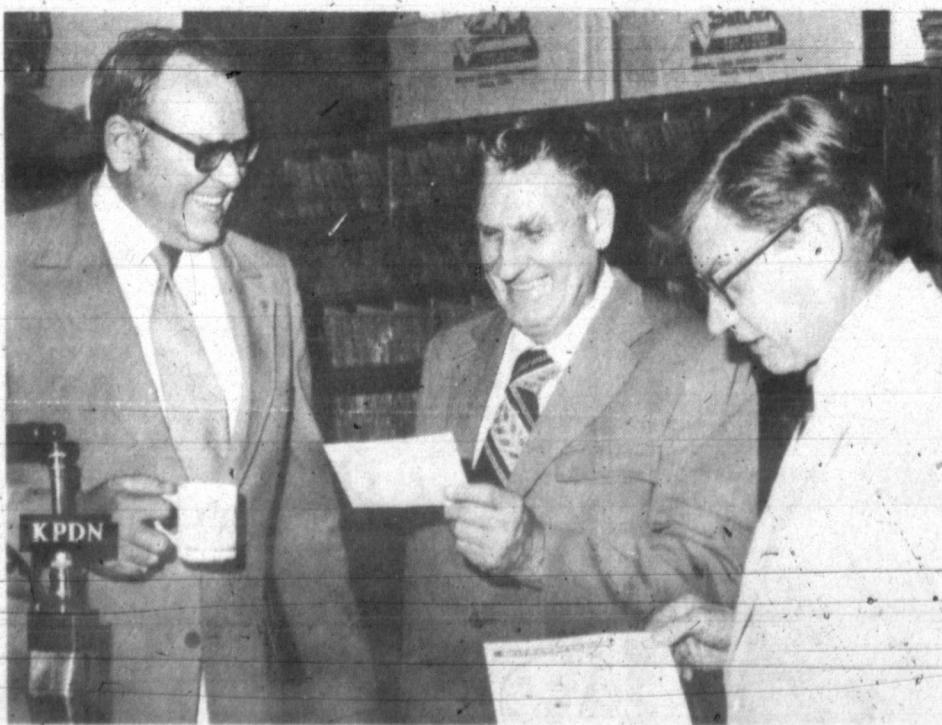

"We are glad to be back broadcasting the Harvester games after a six-year interruption while I served on the school board," Hasse said.

He said that the emphasis at KPND has been "on as much local programming as we could muster — news, special events, and sports."

The station is a member of the Mutual Broadcasting System and Hasse serves as a director on the Mutual Affiliates Advisory Committee.

The radio business has been good for KPND, Hasse said, and "I think it will continue to be excellent," he added. "The Pampa community always has been good to support its own businesses and its own people. And that's what we're trying to do too — be a helping hand in the community."

Garden Could Save $200 On Summer Grocery Bill

By WILLIAM O. DRINKWATER
Written for United Press International

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) — Not since World War II victory gardens has there been so much interest in home vegetable gardening. The pleasure of outdoor activity is part of it, but this year, with inflation and recession, many people are looking to a vegetable garden as a means of cutting their food bills.

How much can you save? There is no single answer since it depends on how much you would ordinarily spend on vegetables at the store and how much of that food your particular garden will supply. A very rough estimate for a small garden, 20-by-20 feet, would be a saving of a little over $200. That would be after paying your gardening costs but not counting anything for your labor.

How much time will it take? This, too, is impossible to answer for everyone. Some people have soil that is easier to work than others. Some years it rains at the right time, and some years you have to do a lot of watering. As a ball park figure, once your garden is spaded and planted, you can probably expect to spend about three or four hours a week keeping things in shape.

To start, select a location away from shade and the competition of trees. Well-drained sandy loam is ideal, but other soils can be improved by adding organic matter. If your soil is poorly drained, you can get advice from your county cooperative extension agent about installing drainage tile.

A soil test will indicate the amount of lime and fertilizer needed for a successful garden. Here again, your county agent can tell you how to have the test made.

Plan your garden on paper first to ensure using your land most efficiently. When possible, grow vegetables vertically on a pole or trellis, but place these vegetables at one end of the garden so they will not shade smaller plants.

Arrange early-maturing crops so it will be easy to plant a second vegetable in the same spot after the first is harvested.

For instance, early peas or lettuce can be followed with bush beans or beets.

You can also interplant late vegetables between the rows of another maturing crop. Winter scallions or fall radishes can be seeded between ripening snap beans. After harvest, pull the bean plants out to make room for the scallions and radishes.

Select varieties carefully. Your county agent, again, can advise you on vegetable varieties, such as bush forms of butternut and acorn squash which are particularly well suited for small gardens.

If you are thinking of raising soybeans, as many people are this year because of their high protein content, it is a good idea to buy ready-to-cook soybeans first at the market and try them in a couple of recipes to test the family taste buds. If you decide to plant them, be sure to buy edible soy, not the variety used for animal feed.

In many areas, certain plants such as tomatoes must be started early indoors in order to have a long enough growing season for a good crop to mature. You can try raising your own seedlings at home, or you can buy transplants. Other crops, such as peas and lettuce, must be seeded outdoors early to mature before hot weather comes.

Wheat Men Sets Election For Board

The Texas Wheat Producers Board formed in 1971 to support wheat research and market development will hold its second biennial election May 20. The terms of three current board members, elected at the formation of the organization, expiring at that time include: C.L. Edwards, Panhandle; N.F. Renner, Spearman; and W.R. Moore, Jr., Munday. Board members are eligible for reelection to one additional consecutive term.

Any wheat farmer producing within the 34-county commercial wheat area, is eligible to vote for a board member for that district.
