SO SOON?

It's "goodby, swimming, hello, books" all too soon for nine-year-old Kacy Richards as she surveys a "back-to-school" display in a local store. Aransas County schools will officially open for "business" on September 2... and youngsters like Kacy are already counting the days until they trade swimsuits and shorts for school clothes and homework. Still, the outlook isn't all grim, what with the Labor Day Weekend coming up and then the holidays... Kacy, who will be in the fourth grade this year, is the daughter of Cy and Dee Dee Richards of Rockport. [Pilot Photo by Pat Blair]

District Approves $269,200 Budget

Aransas County's Navigation District voted approval to a $269,200 budget for the current fiscal year — $11,200 more than anticipated revenues for the year.

However, officials said, the Navigation District does have some $146,000 in Certificates of Deposit so that expenditures will not exceed actual funds available for the fiscal year that began July 1, 1980, and will continue through June 30, 1981.

The budget item was one of 12 cleared from the District's agenda last Tuesday, August 5.

The budget approved by a split vote of the Navigation Commission — Ken Faulkner voted against it — will be submitted to the Aransas County Commissioners' Court which sets the tax rate.

Faulkner said Thursday, August 7, that the rate is expected to be four cents per $100 valuation. He also said the budget needs neither county nor citizens' approval to go into effect.

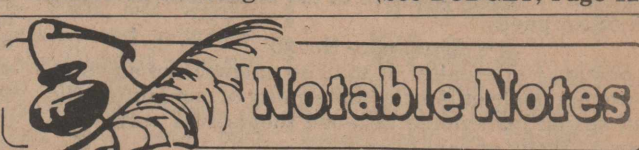

"The Navigation District is almost autonomous," he added.

Included in the budget is some $80,000 in salaries for Navigation District personnel and $75,000 to cover proposed dredging in Cove Harbor. These are the two most expensive items.

Also budgeted is $38,000 for repair and maintenance work on Navigation District property and $9,700 for bond interest and principal.

Public Hearing Called On County Tax Rate

A public hearing on proposed Aransas County tax rates of 59 cents per $100 valuation has been called for 5 p.m. Monday, August 11, in the Aransas County Courthouse.

The hearing will be in the District Courtroom.

The new tax rate represents a 34 percent increase in county taxes, according to County Tax Assessor - Collector Allena Jones.

County Judge John Wendell said the tax rate breaks down into 40 percent for the general fund, 14 cents for the road and bridge special fund and five cents for bond retirement.

The Judge continued that the "staggering loss in taxable property value for 1980" is the primary reason for the 34 percent increase. Under state legislation, property tax exemptions are given for homesteads, to individuals over age 65 and to disabled veterans. Judge Wendell said the total loss in taxable value due to these exemptions is more than $7.5 million.

Also contributing to the loss in tax dollars in 1980 is new state legislation affecting the tax base for agricultural and ranch land.

These changes in agricultural land valuations has resulted in a loss to Aransas County of some $10,216,000 in taxes.

In the meantime, while state legislation has cut into available tax funds, the county is looking at a need for some $1.7 million just to take care of general fund expenditures for 1980-81. This does not include money for the road and bridge special fund, the mosquito control fund or money to operate the airport during fiscal 1980-81.

A public hearing will be scheduled later on the proposed 1980-81 county budget. No date for that hearing has been set at this time.

The five cents out of every $100 valuation will be used to help retire the $400,000 in highway bonds approved by Aransas County voters earlier this year.

The bond money is Aransas County's share of the money needed to purchase right-of-way for the proposed new Highway 35 Bypass.

New Tax Appraiser Organizing Office

By Pat Blair

Jack Groseclose has a "lot of groundwork to be done" before he can start appraising property in Aransas County.

And right now, his top priority project is to fix up the building he's using for an office.

The building is a white frame structure with green trim located behind the high school and Jack - Aransas County's new chief appraiser, moved in Friday, August 1.

So far, he has air conditioning, one desk, one pocket calculator -- and a telephone that was installed Thursday, August 7.

"It's a little bare right now," says Jack, who hopes to have additional furniture for a secretary-receptionist -- as well as the secretary-receptionist -- within the next three to four weeks.

Even with all the furniture in place, there's going to be a lot of preliminary work.

Jack was hired by Aransas County's Central Appraisal Board, a new organization formed as a result of the adoption -- by the Texas Legislature -- of Senate Bill 621.

This bill sets up, on a county-wide basis, a central appraisal organization that will be responsible for appraising all property and setting all property valuations in a county.

These valuations will be used by all taxing entities within the county -- although it will be up to each individual entity to set its own tax rates.

In Aransas County, each taxing entity -- which includes the cities of Rockport and Fulton, the county government, the school district and navigation -- will also be responsible for collecting its own taxes.

The central appraisal district itself has no powers to tax. Its operating funds come from each of the five taxing entities. The money is provided on a proportionate

Area Shrimp Catches Good For '80, Bad Compared To '79

Shrimp landings in the Aransas Pass-Rockport-Fulton area are still ahead of the rest of the state but well below last year's catches for the first six months.

That's the word from the National Marine Fisheries Service which reported landings of headless shrimp in this area totaled 2,668,100 pounds from January 1 through June of this year.

That put this area in the lead in terms of shrimp landed along the Texas coast so far this year, but it was a far cry from the 4,019,200 pounds brought in for the same period in 1979.

The outlook for shrimping this year overall looks grim according to National Marine Fisheries officials who described the brown shrimp drop from Mississippi to southern Texas as "middle of the road between disaster and catastrophe."

White shrimp catches were reported actually up about 30 percent in June, 1980, compared with June, 1979, "but can be attributed to intensive pressure on the spawning population off Galveston, Port O'Connor and Aransas Pass," according to NMF.

Landings of shrimp in June in this area were the second highest in the state, 938,100 pounds, some 300,000 pounds less than the 1.23 million landed in the Matagorda-San Antonio-Lavaca Bay ports during the month.

Third-highest landings in June of this year were reported in the Galveston Bay ports where 928,000 pounds of shrimp were brought in, and next-highest was the Brownsville-Port Isabel area with 827,400.

Remaining ports in the state all reported landings of less than 200,000 pounds for the month. Lowest was Freeport where June landings totaled 82,600 pounds.

For the year through the end of June, the Brownsville-Port Isabel ports were second behind the Aransas Pass-Rockport-Fulton area, with landings of 2,155,600 pounds. Third was the Matagorda-San Antonio-Lavaca Bay area.

Woman Enjoys GOP Convention

By Pat Blair

"We heard a lot of good speakers," Sylvia Berry said, "although after seven hours of speeches Tuesday night, you got to wondering how many ways you can say,

'Let's get Jimmy Carter out of Washington'..."

She was speaking, of course, of the Republican National Convention in Detroit, Michigan, which she attended as an alternate delegate from Texas and from which she just recently returned.

It was the second convention the Rockport woman has attended -- the first was in 1976 in Kansas City.

Of the two, she liked this year's convention better. "The 1976 Convention was a tear-jerker," she said. But she also feels that the Texas delegates were more united in 1976 -- this year's delegation included 19 Bush supporters.

In a way, both groups, the Bush people as well as those who backed Reagan got some satisfaction this year with a ticket that has Reagan as front-runner but Bush as the vice presidential nominee.

"In 1976, it (the Convention) was a fight to the bitter end between Ford and Reagan," Sylvia said in a recent interview back home on Key Allegro.

"This (year's) convention was more relaxed," she continued. "The Reagan delegates knew we had it -- the main excitement was in seeing the man we had chosen get that long-awaited nomination."

On the question of the vice presidential nominee, Sylvia added, "I think the majority of the delegates in their hearts wanted Jack Kemp,

Public Hearing Set On ACISD Budget

A public hearing on the proposed $4.9 million 1980-81 budget for the Aransas County Independent School District has been called for 7 p.m. Monday, August 11.

The hearing, in the ACISD Administration Building, is to give Aransas County residents an opportunity to voice their opinions on the proposed budget.

School Superintendent Joe Randow will also recommend that the school board of trustees adopt an effective tax rate of 89 cents per $100 valuation for the 1980-81 budget year.

The school board will consider a proposed budget of $4,915,750 of which some $3,826,903 is earmarked for salaries for some 230 positions in the county school system.

Randow said the proposed budget figure "takes into consideration special education, the co-op and all federal funds."

Editorials The Rockport Pilot Features

I WAS RECENTLY THE RECIPIENT OF SEVERAL bound editions of the old "American Mercury", vintage 1925. Founded in 1920 the magazine under the guidance of H.L. Mencken and George Jean Nathan influenced an entire generation of Americans and at the same time was the bane of others whom Mencken categorized as "Boobus Americanus."

The magazine flourished for some 10 years under the founders and then for reasons forgotten it was sold but continued publication at least until a few years ago.

It may still exist. However, after the departure of its founders the "Mercury" became not much more than just another magazine, becoming about as innocuous as say, The Readers Digest.

Two features which appeared regularly in the Mercury were Americana and Clinical Notes. The former under the heading of each of the then 48 states was a combination of comment and quotes. Under Alabama:

The spread of morality in the back country, as revealed by a recent addition to the statutes of the rising town of Norphelt:

Ordinance No. 20

Section 1 - Hereafter, it shall be unlawful for any man and woman, male or female, to be guilty of committing the act of sexual intercourse between themselves within the corporate limits of said town....

Section 3 - Section 1 of this ordinance shall not apply to married persons, as between themselves, and their husband and wife, unless of a grossly improper and lascivious nature."

From Clinical notes: "Marriage - No marriage can be a successful and happy one which calls upon the man to change his ideas of what constitutes amusement after his day's work is done. If a man whose idea of pleasure after working hours is strip poker or playing a snare drum loves a woman passionately and marries her only to learn that her idea of pleasure in the same hours is Old Maid or Kelly pool, a time-table to Reno, if the man is a gentleman, or one to Atlantic City, if he is not, will be found on the drawing room table before the year is over."

And - "Unanimous - On only one thing do all women agree: that they are sorry that they are not men."

"Learned Men - In every American university there is a professor of philosophy, often with very formidable whiskers. Every year he delivers 250 lectures of an hour each. Yet everything he says was once put by Pontius Pilate into three words.

"A Footnote - a wife, a child, a home - these three things, it has been said, round out the completeness and perfection of man. And to think that the Lord God Almighty Himself has only one of them."

Back then to Americana.

"From a propagandist address by the Hon. William Clendenin before the annual meeting of the American Kraut Packers Association of Cincinnati:

"Sauerkraut contains more alcohol than the one-half of 1 percent that the Volstead Act permits in beverages. The alcohol in it ranges from .72 of 1 percent to well over 1 percent. These figures come from the experts of the University of Wisconsin."

"Oklahoma"

"Editorial announcement in the Baptist Messenger: "We have just recieved a large shipment of baptismal pants. We can fit you and furnish your size without delay. Price $22.50."

These quotes mark the lighter side of the "Mercury". More thoughtfully there is a piece by James A. Reed titled "The pestilence of Fanaticism." Please remember this excerpt was written 55 years ago:

"Of course no plan of government has ever been or ever will be absolutely perfect; even if perfect, its administration would necessarily be faulty. Intelligent persons know that in this latter fact is lodged nearly all the difficulties attendant upon governmental activities. Defective administration is inseparable from frailty, dishonesty and ignorance of human agents."

"What is needed is better execution of the law, not destruction of the governmental plan. Clearly the new-hatched schemes must be enforced by men as inefficient or as corrupt as those embarrassing the present system. Accordingly, thoughtful and patriotic men agree that no principle of our government should be abandoned or changed, except for grave reasons, and then only when there is approximate certainty that the proposed substitute will not only remedy the evils that now exist but will not bring worse and greater ones in its wake."

"These considerations, however, do not appeal to the modern reformer. Like the patent medicine quack he proclaims himself the master of human ills and drives straight on. All too often the public is convinced. More frequently an active and organized minority is converted, and timorous congressmen, although unconvinced, hut cover. Thus half-bake schemes, commonly promoted by intolanters, montebanks and dreamers, are put upon the nation. And before the great, good-natured public is aware, it has been placed in leading strings, its rights circumscribed and its natural privileges abolished."

"More appalling is the fact that little by little the great edifice erected by toil and wisdom of the past is being defaced and its very foundations undermined. As one contemplates these occurrences, one instinctively contrsts the character of the men who established and preserved the Republic with that of the modern tinkers."

"The statutory reformer has a single and invariable method of procedure. He magnifies the wickedness and suffering of mankind and attributes them all to the object of his special malediction. Witness the Prohibition propaganda. Its literature blazed with assertions that all vice, crime, poverty, and human agony were directly chargeable to the Rum Fiend. He was the devil incarnate who produced virginal incontinence, marital infelicity, theft, arson, rape, robbery, murder. . . —ahab (C.M. Henkel)

Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr ranch discusses political lies this week—we think.

Dear Editor:

The problem of lying by public officials has been in the news lately, as it has been since governments were invented.

Some people are outraged when they hear of some official's lying, but that's because most of us set higher standards for politicians than we do for ourselves.

As Mark Twain said, truth is a precious commodity and should be used sparingly.

Studying a politician's lies can be useful. The nature of his lies is one of the best standards I know for gauging his importance and estimating how far he will go.

For example, a six-bit politician (in pre-inflation days known as a two-bit one) will lie whenever it's handy or he's cornered, with no thought of how he's going to get out of it.

This variety rarely gets past the state legislature level.

On the next level there's the politician who will lie only when he believes there's little likelihood of getting caught and has an explanation if he is. Congressional material.

At the top level are the truly successful politicians. They'll lie only when they know there's no likelihood of getting caught, at least in their lifetime.

History is full of them. Some have been excellent leaders and produced national holidays.

Now there's another side to this truth-telling business. For every politician who has lied to voters there are thousands of voters who have lied to him.

This explains his defeat when everybody was telling him he was winning. It explains why he led in the polls and lost at the ballot box.

It's said that the people get the kind of politicians they deserve, and it's possible the politicians get the kind of voters they deserve, excusing the readers of The Rockport Pilot.

You'll notice I sign this not yours truly but Yours faithfully, J.A.

GOVERNOR'S REPORT

by William P. Clements Jr.

Much has been written about the initiative and referendum proposal I will submit to the Legislature in 1981.

Unfortunately, a great deal of misunderstanding remains — some of it, I fear, due to deliberate efforts of opponents to confuse the issue.

Here is a kind of primer on the subject, which, I hope, may serve to clear some of the cobwebs:

Initiative is the power of people to enact laws independently of a legislative body. Referendum is the power of the people to repeal an unwanted law.

Twenty-three states already have some form of initiative and/or referendum. No state that ever has adopted initiative and referendum has repealed those powers.

Polls have indicated that some 70 percent of Texans favor initiative and referendum. Eight seven percent of Texas Republicans who participated in a May 3 party primary referendum indicated via petition and the ballot.

A constitutional amendment would be required to give Texans that power.

Regardless of some concern, there has been no pell-mell rush to pass new laws or repeal old ones in the I&R states. Use has been restrained.

I feel it is important, however, that voters be given the powers of initiative and referendum for use in those situations where the legislative process refuses to respond to the clear will of the majority. Particularly in the area of taxation and spending, citizens should have emergency clout to deal with an unyielding bureaucracy.

I propose a procedure by which at least 10 percent of those voting in the last gubernatorial election have to sign a petition to get a recommended law on the ballot. The petition requirement for a constitutional amendment election should be a minimum of 15 percent.

To prevent concentration of petition powers in the major cities, signatures should have to come from 75 percent of the 254 counties. And the Legislature, then, should have authority to approve the petition as submitted or to offer voters an alternative version. Where an alternative is submitted, voters should have a choice at the statewide election between the original and the legislative option.

The U.S. Supreme Court has held that I&R constitutes no violation of the Republican representative form of government.

Legislatures still account for 99.5 percent of all laws passed in the 23 states which have I&R.

Opponents claim bad legislation, too many issues for the ballot, emotional issues and ill-conceived laws are spawned by I&R.

The truth of the matter is that in the 23 states using I&R, only 20 percent of the issues submitted for initiative action get enough approving signatures to get on the ballot, and two-thirds of those which make it to election are defeated. Obviously, no legislation which violates the state or federal constitution or federal law can be adopted by either initiative or legislative routes.

No radical initiative legislation has been approved in the I&R states, regardless of opposition charges. Many of the arguments used by opponents have been raised throughout history against other expanded efforts of people to control governments.

During framing of the U.S. constitution, James Madison argues tyranny would result if citizens were in control of government. Thomas Jefferson countered that the real tyranny lay in centralized government. A compromise was reached, but the election of U.S. senators by direct vote was not permitted for many years. Not until 1920 did women get voting rights.

The Texas Constitution states: "All political power is inherent in the people, and all free governments are founded on their authority and instituted for their benefit." Initiative and referendum will help keep that principle alive.

You Can Toilet Train Your Cat

Your cat may qualify for his (or her) very own "Master of Dispersment" degree.

That's after he (or she) successfully completes his (or her) course in toilet training -- and it's no joke, says the man who invented the "Kitty Whiz Transfer System."

The "Kitty Whiz" system is a product that automatically toilet trains cats, invented by Ernie Hemple because, he explains, "I got sick of the mess, odor and expense of the litter box."

"It works with any cat, any age or breed," Hemple says. "It's quick, clean, effective and makes it easier to toilet train a cat than housebreaking a dog."

Hemple demonstrated his product live on NBC's "Real

People" television show on November 28, 1979, and the audience responded with an avalanche of letters -- more mail from viewers of the program than any other story ever aired.

The response was so great, in fact, that Hemple and his "Kitty Whiz Transfer System" were featured in another segment of "Real People" on February 27, 1980.

The System uses a process called "selective environmental adaptation" to condition the cat to use the toilet.

The system includes a complete and easy-to-understand instruction booklet, a special blend of herbs to entice the cat to the toilet and encourage the animal to use it for the first time, and a "precisely calibrated flex form" that goes on the rim of the toilet.

The kit also includes a diploma from the "Kitty Whiz Transfer University" to be given to your cat when he completes transfer.

The flex form, says Hemple, acts like training wheels, compelling your cat to sit correctly on the rim of the toilet.

Once your cat gets used to sitting on the rim, Hemple continues, just remove the form and the cat will automatically use the toilet without the form.

The form can be given -- or sold -- to someone else, or you can save it for your next cat, Hemple adds.

The price of the "Kitty Whiz" is $12.95 -- $2 extra for the heavy-duty model for cats weighing 12 pounds or over -- and that includes postage and handling. The system may be ordered through Hemple's Brite Ideas Company, 396 Elm Drive, Wheeling, Illinois, 60090.

It is, to revive an old expression, "the cat's meow."

State Of The Region

By Juniet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

Only 10 percent of us who could benefit from therapy are receiving it.

That's the figure quoted in the profession.

In many parts of the Coastal Bend, there are no occupational or physical therapists. In others, there are an insufficient number to meet needs. Where such therapy is available, cost prevents many people from receiving it.

Only in the last few years has the medical profession learned many of the ways that therapy can be important in treatment of a wide range of illnesses and injuries.

The Texas Occupational Therapy Association is helping to make facts more generally known. Carolyn Lewandowski, an occupational therapist at Ada Wilson Hospital, is their spokesman in the Coastal Bend. They recently held a workshop in the region and are developing plans to respond to needs they found here.

Most of us are aware that therapy is used with stroke victims and with children who have problems of muscular and speech coordination, such as victims of cerebral palsy.

But less is known about the use of therapy after accidents that resulted in fractures and burns, to control pain, to meet situations of stress and depression, some of which lead to substance abuse, and for arthritis and other limiting diseases.

Ms. Lewandowski explains that a doctor makes a referral of a patient to a therapist. An evaluation is the next step in determining a course of treatment.

The aim of the therapist is to get the patient to understand the needs of the whole body for exercise, diet and rest, rather than concentrating on a malfunction or limitation.

Learning how to relax, to avoid stress, may be the only medicine needed to cure pain or to restore functions. But the treatment may be long and complex.

The therapist has many tools to use, such as biofeedback, acupuncture and acu-pressure, whirling water, electricity, and ultra-sound.

In some instances, use of therapy may mean a return to normal. When that isn't possible, it may result in enabling the person to function within limitations.

The therapist works with the parents of children and with the husbands and wives of patients so part of the treatment can be carried on at home.

There are many means of attaining ends. The way a person walks may be important. It may be too painful for a person to pick up an object in the way he is accustomed to picking it up, but he can be shown a way to pick it up without pain.

When arthritis means full range of motion cannot be restored, you can be taught how to function within the limited range.

Older men and women, unable to do things in the way they have in the past, may be taught other ways.

The goal of therapy, expressed in its simplest form, is to help the individual be as independent as possible.

This may mean teaching him dexterity in a wheel chair. If he is paralyzed on one side, it may mean adapting the wheelchair to one sided control.

While therapists are students, they spend time moving around the community in a wheelchair, they cook meals blindfolded and do many things to be sure that theory is practical.

The therapist works in a context of long and short term goals. With a cerebral palsy child, the short term goal may be to get a spoon to his mouth. A swivel spoon may be the answer.

A long-term goal will be for the child to feed herself.

A patient in a mental ward, stabilized by medication, may have a short-term goal of relearning some everyday skill such as making change. The long-term goal will be resuming full responsibilities of life.

Apparently there will not be a sufficient number of therapists to meet needs in the immediate future. Recently, in one university class in Texas, 300 applications were received where 24 students could be accepted.

Explore the possibilities immediately after an accident, a stroke or other limiting illness, or if it is suspected that a baby lacks coordination.

Ms. Lewandowski and her associates stress one thing, therapy must begin at the earliest possible time for full benefits to be received.

Coal comes to South Texas CPL turns to new fuel sources to generate electricity

Central Power and Light Company is now operating its first coal-fired power plant, Coletto Creek Power Station.

Coal and nuclear plants will provide an increasingly large share of the electricity used by CPL customers in the years ahead—more than 40% by the late 1980s. We must use these two fuels if we are to continue reliable service to South Texas.

Coletto Creek Power Station, located between Goliad and Victoria

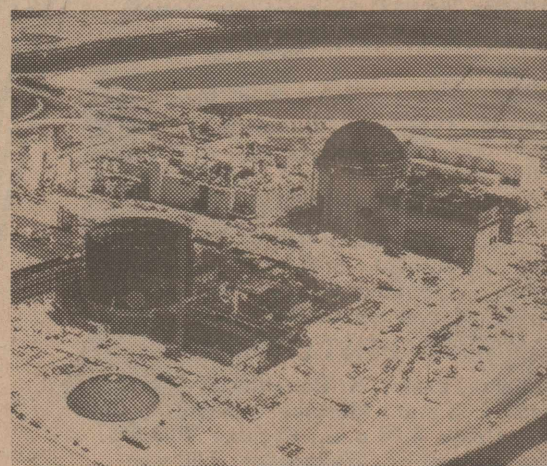

We have no option. The Public Utility Commission of Texas has announced that it will not approve the construction of any new gas-fired plants for making electricity. And, the federal Power Plant and Industrial Fuel Use Act of 1978 prohibits even existing power plants from using natural gas as a primary energy source after January 1, 1990.

Although Coletto Creek is CPL's first coal-fired plant, it won't be the last. In fact, a second coal unit for Coletto Creek is already on the drawing boards.

And, South Texas Project, the nuclear plant in which CPL is a participant, is scheduled to begin supplying power in the mid-1980s.

Future energy sources

In cooperation with research agencies and other utilities, CPL is studying three new possible energy sources for long-range use: gasification of solid or heavy fuels, nuclear fusion and geothermal wells. We hope that these or other technologies someday will prove economically feasible.

Meanwhile, CPL must depend on new coal and nuclear plants to assure an adequate supply of electricity for its customers.

Worship in Church This Week

PEACE

Peace can be a moment of stillness, steeped in the beauty of God's world, shared with those you care about.

Yet there is no definition that can fit every human experience of peace. That's probably why the Bible speaks of the peace of God which passeth all understanding.

And the way to find peace — the best way — has always been to seek God. As we turn to Him in prayer and fix our thoughts upon his truth we know a calmness and confidence that neither nature nor companionship alone can provide.

If you haven't already begun the quest for peace — start this week in your place of worship.

Healthful Hints

Most Often-Asked Questions On Nutrition

By Jean Glowka

Q. I've recently been reading a lot of health food books. Hydrochloric acid is supposed to be great at aiding in the digestion of protein, calcium and iron. I'm very impressed with it, but doesn't the body secrete this stuff by itself? If not, where could I buy some in a supplement form?

A. Hydrochloric acid is secreted in normal stomachs. However, such things as stress, anger, worry, as well as just the pressure of our daily living or the lack of B vitamins or protein can cause a deficiency of this natural digestant.

Hydrochloric acid is usually known as HCl. Many experts recommend HCl Betaine-plus-pepsin tablets sold at most health food stores to be taken after protein meals.

Apparently, the amount to use has to be worked out on a trial-and-error basis. One could start with one tablet and work from there depending on how much it helped. In the unlikely event that you should get too much HCl, simply drink a glass of water, which will flush the excess away.

Q. I've been drinking a high-protein drink made with milk. However, for the next week or so I'll be on antibiotics that I'm told not to take with anything containing calcium (such as milk). I sure miss my drink. What kind of juice could I substitute temporarily?

A. I'm sure there are several kinds of juice that you could experiment with. However, many people find that papaya juice gives high-protein drinks a really smooth, sweet taste. Also papaya juice is excellent for the digestion.

Q. I've been considering doing a seven day fast and have been getting all kinds of advice from friends. Most of them insist that I drink juices during the fast.

That doesn't seem like a real fast, but I might try it and would like to know the advantages of juice fasting over water fasting.

A. Since juices are absorbed directly into the bloodstream without the usual process of digestion, a juice fast can still be considered a true fast, and according to many authorities is definitely superior.

Their theory is that the difference between a juice fast and a water fast are that during a juice fast your body's eliminative and detoxifying capacity is increased; healing processes are speeded up and you feel less debilitated.

Elimination of uric acid and other inorganic acids will be accelerated, and the sugars in juices will strengthen the heart. Fresh raw fruit and vegetable juices and herb teas are recommended as being the most effective aids to a therapeutic fast.

Q. My son's track coach recommends that the boys take wheat germ oil capsules. He says they will increase stamina. Is that right?

A. Many experts agree with the coach. Wheat germ oil is rich in vitamin E. It has been tested by various laboratories on animals and humans, especially athletes and been found invaluable in building energy and fighting fatigue.

Until next week, Folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Three Telephone Operators

Back in 1918, the telephone company had an office in Rockport, and these three ladies worked for it. Shown in front of the old telephone building are from left, Bertie Court Nugent, Tiney Young Gayle [standing] and Ada Roberts Campbell. The telephone building fronted Water Street overlooking the bay next to the First National Bank Building in those days, according to Tiney who loaned the photograph to the Pilot for the Progress Edition. Tiney said the buildings were about where Lettie's Liquor Store is now on Austin Street.

How To Make Prize-Winning Jam

Does it take a special "knack" to make prize-winning jam? "No," say fair judges, who pick the winners. Using fully ripe, high quality fruit, a good recipe and following procedures exactly are the secrets of blue-ribbon success anyone can copy.

Judges look for smooth, thick jam with bright color and excellent natural fruit flavor. Jam should be slightly softer than jelly.

For perfect jam that can win approval from fair judges or your family, use this recipe for Spiced Peach Jam and follow these tips:

— Use high quality powdered fruit pectin. A recipe with powdered pectin eliminates guesswork and allows you to use fully-ripe fruits, for best flavor and color.

— Measure accurately. Top quality results depend on exact amounts of fruit, pectin, acid and sugar.

— Use a large, flat-bottomed pan, so jam will cook quickly and not boil over.

— Make only one batch at a time.

— Stirring and skimming for five minutes helps distribute fruit evenly in the syrup.

— Check fair rulebook for jar size. Most call for standard 1/2-pint jars or glasses.

5 cups prepared peaches (about 4 lbs.)

2 tablespoons lemon juice

1 tablespoon grated lemon peel

1 large cinnamon stick

7 cups sugar

1 pkg. Jel Ease Fruit Pectin

Wash and sterilize 8-oz. jelly jars; scald lids and rings. Wash and pit fully ripe peaches; peel, cut into pieces and grind. Measure fruit into 6 to 8-quart saucepan; if necessary add water to make 5 cups. Add lemon juice, peel and cinnamon stick. Measure sugar into large bowl; set aside.

Combine pectin with fruit mixture. Cook over high heat until mixture comes to a hard boil, stirring constantly. Add sugar all at once. Cook and stir over high heat until mixture comes to a full rolling boil (one that cannot be stirred down). Boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from heat; skim and stir with metal spoon or skimmer for 5 minutes to remove foam. Remove cinnamon stick. Ladle into hot jars, leaving 1/8-inch rim at top*. Immediately wipe jar rim clean, place hot lid on jar and screw metal ring on firmly. Check for seal in 12 hours. 7 to 8 cups.

*To seal with paraffin: Ladle jam into hot jars, leaving 1/2 inch at top. Cover with thin layer of melted paraffin, about 1/8 inch thick.

Nursing Home News

Celebrating at the monthly Birthday and Bingo Party given by the W.M.U. of the First Baptist Church of Aransas Pass, highlighted the week's activities at the Aransas Pass Nursing and Convalescent Center.

Seventeen of the residents were honored by the group, which served ice cream, cup cakes and punch and provided diet cookies for the diabetics. Each honoree was then given a gift.

The bingo playing involved about forty-five residents Wednesday afternoon.

Tuesday visitors included Sandra Lee, Annie Stacey and Ada Griffin, who provided one-to-one companionship.

Wednesday morning, Delma Rodgers visited to read the Bible and write letters for the residents and Elsie Barton did small chores for them on Thursday.

Also making a weekly stop was Koto Cooper, followed Friday morning by Lyla and Frankie who taught their painting class.

Saturday morning, Father James Hamilton gave Holy Communion to the Catholic residents and Reverend Al Bankert conducted Sunday morning worship services.

The usual activities, including reality orientation and exercise classes, were observed, along with afternoon coffee hour.

The residents also enjoyed stereo music this week.

'Sure-Footed' Socks Buyers Read Labels

COLLEGE STATION — Be a "sure-footed" sock buyer — read labels and study the socks.

Labels tell the story on quality — with a word about "no-droop" features and other important information, says Becky Saunders, a clothing specialist.

Mrs. Saunders is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Colors, fabric and seams also tell consumers several things about sock quality, she says.

COLORS SAY 'QUALITY'

Look for striping and patterns that are sharp and clean — a definite sign of quality. Poorly made socks will have uneven borders and overlapping between the stripes and body of the sock.

STUDY FABRIC, SEAM

Also, examine sock fabric for smoothness and an even, clean stitch. A flat toe closure with a smooth seam is another advantage of quality socks.

AVOID 'DROOPS'

To avoid socks that droop, check the label for spandex used in the top rather than rubber. Spandex fibers are less binding, provide more durable service over the life of an item, hug the leg and do not curl or droop.

SPECIAL FEATURES

Today's socks are available with "engineering for high performance," Mrs. Saunders says.

New special features include odor control and anti-static finishes.

Some offer special support construction which uses spandex panels through the ankle, arch and calf areas.

Look for other features, such as cushioned soles that resist abrasion or reinforced heel and toes for longer-lasting wear.

WHY QUALITY?

A good quality sock that meets your own needs is a more satisfactory — and economical — buy in the long run, the specialist says.

Baby Bundles

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Anderson Jr. are the parents of a son, Jason Lee, born Tuesday, July 29, at Spohn Hospital in Corpus Christi.

The infant weighed in at eight pounds, four ounces and was 20 1/2 inches long.

The Andersons have two other children, a daughter, Ashley and a son, James L. Anderson III.

CROSSWORDS

"Why, Casey, you a policeman! How did you come to join the force?"

Former Grocery Clerk: "I've always wanted to be in a business where it's the customer who is always wrong."

An Army captain, stationed overseas, was elated over the snapshot his girl had sent him from the States. It showed a happy couple sitting on the beach, while she sat alone in the background looking forlorn. The message on the back read: "Darling, this shows how lonesome I am for you."

The captain showed the picture to everyone who would look at it, over and over again, until he and his picture became number one bore. Finally a fellow officer devised a way of inducing him to put the snapshot away permanently.

"John," said his friend innocently, "who do you suppose took that picture?"

"I hate to tell you this, lady," sadly said the stranger, as he stood at the front door, hat in hand, "but I just ran over your cat. I hope you'll forgive me, and I want to replace him."

"Well, don't just stand there!" she barked. "There's a mouse in my kitchen."

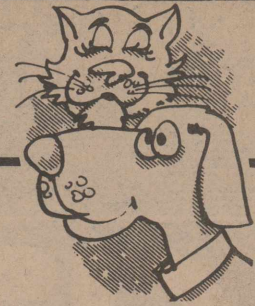

Moral: When you're full of bull, you had better keep your mouth shut!

Always forgive your enemies; nothing annoys them so much.

A canny Scot was engaged in an argument with the conductor as to whether the fare was to be five or ten cents. Finally the disgusted conductor picked up the Scot's suitcase and tossed it off the train just as they were crossing a long bridge.

Pet Talks

By Dr. Hap Lutz
Dr. Lutz is a graduate of Baltimore City College and Texas A&M University. He specializes in small and exotic animal practice. He was an instructor of small animal diseases and surgery in the Veterinary School at Texas A&M and was in private practice in Waco for 25 years.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS
Dr. Dr. Lutz, do cats have heart trouble? Mine doesn't seem as playful and active as he was.—Sincerely yours, Mable.

Dear Mable:
Cardiac disease, while not as common in the cat as in the dog, is still a serious problem in feline medicine, and one that we are beginning to learn more about.

A large number of congenital cardiac defects have been recognized and reported in cats. Affected animals tend to be sedentary in nature. They usually live in a restricted environment, very often in apartments.

The incidence of heart disease is higher in male cats than in females at the level of about three to one.

I think the most important sign (other than an acute attack) in feline cardiac disease is lethargy and hiding.

Take your cat to your veterinarian and he will carefully question you and check the cat. Be sure you give him as many clues as you can to the cat's behavior modification.

Dear Dr. Lutz, we would like to buy or adopt a dog for our growing family. We have two small children, 4 and 6, but think it is time that they assume some responsibilities and learn to love and not be afraid of animals. Do you have any "guidelines" for this situation?—Bill P.

Dear Bill,
So many factors must be considered in choosing a dog — the size of your living quarters and your yard, the number and ages of children, the way you live, even your own temperament.

The apartment dweller usually prefers a small dog; a large family needs an affectionate, patient animal.

Here are a few points to consider before you take your choice home so that your new friend won't be making a round trip.

1. If you have chosen a large dog, are you sure your yard is big enough and your fence is strong enough?

2. If there are children, does this dog seem relaxed enough to enjoy biostorous play? Is he gentle? Is he old enough to be handled safely by young hands?

3. If you are adopting a female, are you prepared to keep her safe in season?

4. If you have chosen a cute puppy, have you the patience to put up with his not-so-cute mischief?

5. Which suits your disposition better — a vivacious animal or a more relaxed one?

6. Have you thought about the expense in feeding a large or small dog?

7. Does this dog have the clear, sparkling eyes, the cool, moist nose, and the vitality that show his health is excellent and that he loves people and wants companionship?

If you answer all these questions correctly, you've just bought yourself a "dog's life" of devotion.

Dear Dr. Lutz: I know you are a busy man, but maybe you can help me with a problem.

The other night, I went into a local bar rather than in the evening. In the middle of the floor, an old shaggy dog was asleep, who I had to step over to get to the bar.

I was sipping a "night-cap" and talking to the bartender, when the old dog got up, stretch, walked across the room to the back wall, walked up the wall, across the ceiling, down the front wall, and out the door.

I turned to the bartender in astonishment and said, "Did you see him?" The bartender said, "Sure, he never says Goodnight".

Now, what my friend the bartender, and I would like to know, is why an otherwise well-behaved and apparently well-mannered dog, would walk out of a bar late in the evening, leaving two companions, without saying "Goodnight"?

With your wide experience, I thought you may have encountered a dog before with this type of disposition and I would be pleased to know what you did about it.—Sincerely W.P.

Dear W.P.

This is a hard question for me to answer because the dogs that I have treated don't drink. However, like people, we all know some that do, don't we?

The actions of this dog you saw walking across the ceiling and not saying "good night" can only be chalked up to bad manners.

P.S., W.P., you might consider changing your brand of "night-cap" — one that doesn't cause nightmares or cause you to chase dogs!

$500 FOR ABC

Mary Coudy, left, representing the Castaways organization presents a check for $500 to Dee Dee Richards of ABC Learning Center. The Castaways are among regular contributors to the Learning Center which is in extra need of funds right now. The school for preschool age youngsters had to move from its former location on Church Street. The school has a building -- the old Prophet Home on Magnolia Street -- but is in need of some $10,000 to fix the place up so it will meet minimum standards for a school building. The Learning Center is also in need of furniture and a copying machine.

Police Report

Mark D. McClory, 25, was fined $53.50 on a charge of public intoxication following his arrest about 2:56 a.m. Wednesday, August 6.

McClory was stopped by police on Highway 35 South between Hackberry and James.

Larry Wayne Sheppard, 22, of Aransas Pass was fined $28.50 for running a stop sign on Fulton Beach Road at the south end of the Harbor Oaks Bridge.

Sheppard was stopped by police about 3:40 a.m. Wednesday.

William Gardner Garrett, 80, of 1217 Orleans was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way following an accident about 9:04 a.m. Wednesday.

Garrett's vehicle struck a car driven by James Gilbert Coston, 43, of San Antonio as Garrett was turned left from Magnolia onto Liberty Street. Coston was southbound on Liberty when the accident occurred.

Evelyn Green Henze, 61, of San Antonio was ticketed for making an improper turn from the wrong lane following an accident about 11:23 a.m. Wednesday.

A rose by any other name is still a rose, and a chigger — whether it's called a red-bug or Eutrombicula alfreddugessi — is still a chigger.

"The threat of chigger bites will last until cold weather when the adult chiggers usually seek protective places and don't lay their eggs until early spring," says Bobby L. Davis, with the General Sanitation Division of the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

South Texas is an extension of a new world biological region called the Tamaulipan Biotic Province. Like the state of Tamaulipas, Mexico, many of the plants and animals found in south Texas are distinctly neotropical (from the new world tropics).

The Coastal Bend of Texas is a small part of this unique area. No region in North America of comparable size, with the exception of Mexico, has such a rich diversity of plant and animal life.

Of the 650 species of birds known to breed in the United States and Canada, more than 470 have thus far been recorded for the Coastal Bend during the summer are:

Least Grebe - The smallest of North American Grebes looks somewhat like a small dark duck, but has a short, sharp beak. The adult has a golden eye. Look for this bird in fresh water ponds near Rockport and Ingleside.

Masked Duck - This species superficially resembles a Ruddy Duck. Although it has bred on several occasions in the Coastal Bend, at the present time it is a rare occurrence in the United States.

White-tailed Kite - A beautiful falcon-shaped white hawk with red eyes and a black patch toward the fore edge of the wing, this species often soars and glides like a gull. Look for this species in grasslands.

White-tailed Hawk - This medium-sized, short-tailed hawk has clear white underparts and a white tail with a black band near its tip. The White-tailed Hawk is thought to eat mainly snakes.

Parake - A Parake looks somewhat like a Whippoorwill, but has white in the tail and wings. It can frequently be heard calling at night and usually is located in rather heavy brush or woodland. The parake eats mostly insects.

Buff-bellied Hummingbird - The Buff-bellied Hummingbird is a medium-sized hummingbird with a bi-colored beak, buff belly and green throat. Hummingbirds eat mostly insects; however, this species can be attracted to your garden by providing a feeder.

Tropical Kingbird - This medium-sized flycatcher has a bright yellow breast and a dusky brown, forked tail. Flycatchers eat insects. Look for this Kingbird at Corpus Christi State Park and along the Nueces River.

Kiskadee Flycatcher - This large, brightly colored flycatcher has a yellow breast with rufous wings and tail. Normally preferring a fresh water source, it is found near Kingsville.

Wied's-crested Flycatcher - Frequently seen perched on telephone wires, this rather large flycatcher has a bright yellow breast, light throat, rufous tail, two prominent wing bars and a totally black beak.

It often uses abandoned woodpecker holes as a nesting site and can usually be seen in appropriate habitat throughout the Coastal Bend (less common in Aransas, Refugio and Calhoun Counties).

Green Jay - As the name implies this jay is green in color, has a black throat patch, bright blue top-head and yellow stripes along the sides of the tail. It is a common resident in the vicinity of Kingsville and will occasionally frequent feeders.

Long-billed Thrasher - The Long-billed Thrasher looks somewhat like a Mockingbird in general appearance but has a long somewhat decurved beak, yellow eyes, rufous grey back wings and tail and light breast with black-brown stripes.

This species is extremely secretive, preferring the security of dense chaparral

"Chiggers have a special affinity for low, damp places covered with vegetation. Bermuda grass harbors them well, but for some unexplainable reason they are usually not found in carpet grass.

"Just for the record, it's only the young chigger or larva, which hatches from the eggs, that cause the trouble. These parasitic larva congregate in shaded niches near the tips of grass or weeds and grab you as you walk by. They then scurry to a place where the clothing fits tightly, such as your sock top or around the waist."

After feeding for several days, the larva drops to the ground and never bothers either man or animal again. On the ground, the chigger passes through the nymphal stage into an adult.

Davis says that contrary to popular belief, chiggers do not burrow into your skin. Instead, the chigger attaches to a skin pore and then secretes an anti-coagulating solution that also disintegrates skin cells so that they can be used as food. This digestive fluid is what causes the fiery itching—even several days after the chigger has left the victim.

Davis said that although chiggers are probably harmless to humans, their wayward offspring can cause health problems as well as being annoying. "Not that they spread any specific disease," he said, "but their bites demand frequent scratching which often cause secondary infections in the form of sores and boils."

Several commercially available repellants are effective against chigger infestations, according to Philip J. Hamman, Extension Entomologist, with the Texas A&M University System.

He said these repellants contain one or more of the following compounds: diethyl toluamide, dimethyl phthalate, dimethyl carbate, ethyl hexanediol and benzyl benzoate.

"Repellents usually provide protection from chiggers for several hours," Hamman said. "For protection which lasts several days, saturate clothing by soaking or spraying it with repellent. For more protection, wear loose-fitting clothing and avoid sitting or reclining on the ground when picnicking, camping or working outdoors."

Hamman explained that immediately after exposure to chigger-infested areas, you should take a hot, soapy bath to kill and remove chigger larvae. Then apply an antiseptic to any welts that may have appeared to kill trapped chiggers and to prevent infection.

"Destroying the chigger usually does not stop the itching completely because the itching is caused by tissue reacting to the fluid injected by the chigger," he said. "Normally, two or three days pass before the itching stops. Temporary relief can be obtained by applying a commercial product that contains a mild, local anesthetic. Your pharmacist can suggest an appropriate product."

Any unusual allergic reaction, fever or infection should be treated by a physician.

Davis said that the spraying of large areas such as forests and campgrounds is impractical and that the repellents are your best bet for reducing chigger bites.

He did say, however, that some home lawns, particularly those with Bermuda grass, may need chemical protection.

"Light applications of sulphur dust on lawn or low branches or shrubs have been used successfully for years," he said. "But one of the newer sprays or powders that you can now buy from nurseries would probably do a better job."

Davis said that if you think your backyard or picnic area is infested with chiggers, stand a piece of black cardboard on end where you suspect they might be.

"If after a few moments you see tiny yellowish or reddish mites accumulating on the upper edge, you'll know it's time to check your supply of insect repellent," he advised.

'Big Canaries' Actually White Pelicans

Birders along the Texas Gulf Coast shouldn't be dismayed if they see rather large canary-colored birds mixed in with flocks of white pelicans.

Almost 100 adolescent white pelicans have been banded and dyed bright yellow by wildlife biologists of the Parks and Wildlife Department and volunteers from the Rockport - Corpus Christi area.

Biologist John Smith of Rockport said each bird received leg bands, a bright green plastic wing streamer and patches of bright yellow dye on its feathers to aid in identification.

Smith said 50 birds were banded and stained last year.

Of the 50, 11 were spotted in South Texas, four were sighted by area Audubon Society Biologist David Blankinship on the Yucatan Peninsula and two were found dead.

"I'm satisfied with the Republican ticket," she said. "And Mr. Kemp will have his day."

A native of Whiting, Indiana, and a journalism major at the University of Missouri, Sylvia became involved in politics after her first husband was shot down in Vietnam in 1969 and became officially listed as "Missing in Action" (MIA). A resident of Colorado then, Sylvia organized a group there whose goal was to try to find out about the MIAs. Their efforts brought them into close contact with then-President Nixon in the White House.

That, Sylvia says, is when she really got interested "in government, not politics. Politics is just a part of government. I met with Nixon and I realized how important foreign policy is, how important our defense is."

Later, when the prisoners came home, Sylvia's husband was not among them and his status was officially changed to PFO (Presumptive Finding of Death). But, says Sylvia, "I continued to be interested in government." She added her active involvement with the Republican party began in about 1972.

That was about the same time she came to Rockport, but back then it was only for visits; she didn't live here full-time.

A year later, in 1973, she married Ed Berry, an airline pilot for Braniff. Like many other now-permanent residents of the area, the couple came to Rockport on vacation, decided they liked it -- and stayed.

Sylvia had two children and Ed three when they married, she added. Together, their children range in ages from 15 to 30 years.

Sylvia has been active in the Republican Party in Aransas County since 1975 and adds, "We have a very active group in Aransas County."

She added that many of the delegates were "very apprehensive this year when they learned that Detroit was going to be the Convention site. "We didn't know what to expect. But Detroit had cleaned their act up -- the city really worked to make it a good convention."

The Texas delegates went up on about five separate flights, Sylvia recalls, and she went up a little earlier than some of the others -- Sunday, July 13 -- so she'd have time for a side trip to Ohio to visit her brother. Among the high points of that trip up is that she was on the same flight as Diane Warwick!

The Texas delegates finally got together at the Book Cadillac Hotel in Detroit, the chosen hotel also for the delegates from Tennessee, Hawaii and Louisiana.

Other delegates stayed elsewhere -- including across the river at the Windsor Hotel which is actually in Canada. And, Sylvia added, because that part of Canada dips downward on the map, the Canadian Hotel was actually south of Detroit.

"I could have gone south to shop in Canada," says Sylvia who added that she didn't because she was usually too tired to. "The hours we put in, the glare of lights, the noise...it was exhausting."

She and some friends did find time to attend the Texas reception at the Detroit Athletic Club -- which resulted in one of her more amusing memories of the Convention.

"About five of us showed up in high-heeled shoes and designer jeans (cost about $65) and they wouldn't let us in," she recalled. "The rule of the club was no jeans and no men without ties."

"So I went back to the hotel and changed into a pair of $20 slacks and they welcomed me with open arms."

Other memories of the Convention include the night John Warner spoke and his wife, Elizabeth Taylor, sat with Mrs. Reagan. "There were so many people around her (Miss Taylor)," Sylvia said, "that the people in charge asked them to move -- they were afraid the bleachers were going to fall in."

There was also the Texas-style barbecue brunch that Governor Clements threw one day for the Texas delegates -- scrambled eggs, picante sauce, meat, the works...

And Tuesday night, July 15, when the president of the NAACP spoke to the Republican assembly in Detroit...

And security the whole week. "It was excellent," says Sylvia. "Buses took the delegates from the hotels to the Convention Center and back again" and security guards and/or police were never far away.

It was, all in all, a good experience, Sylvia reports. She had a good time, she came away with a satisfied feeling about her party's unity and its chosen ticket for 1980 and she came away with some enjoyable memories.

You can't ask for much more...

gorda-San Antonio-Lavaca Bay system with just over 2.05 million pounds.

Together, these three systems accounted for more than two-thirds of all the shrimp landed in Texas so far in 1980. Total shrimp landings so far in 1980 have amounted to 9,245,700 pounds compared to last year's 13,535,400 pounds for the same period.

The shrimp season closed by statute on June 1 in offshore waters under Texas jurisdiction and reopened in mid-July. The 60-day bay season went into full swing in mid-June.

Marine Fisheries officials said the depressed state of the industry forced vessels into closed waters throughout June and as a consequence, many shrimpers were fined for territorial violations as well as for taking undersized shrimp.

Embalming No Longer Compulsory

Embalmers of a dead human body may be performed at the request of a family, but recent state legislation -- backed by an Attorney General's opinion -- has changed the compulsory requirement of embalming.

State Health Commissioner Dr. Robert Bernstein said Senate Bill 277 of the 1979 66th Texas Legislature did away with mandatory requirements pertaining to compulsory embalming of human bodies.

Families still may request embalming, Dr. Bernstein added.

Section 10' of SB 277 states: "This board (State Board of Morticians) shall promulgate no rule or regulation requiring embalming. No other state agency shall promulgate or enforce a rule or regulation requiring embalming without a finding that such rule or regulation is necessary to protect the public health."

In his opinion on the new legislation, Attorney General Mark White stated that embalming cannot be required "unless and until the State Board of Health makes a finding that the rule is necessary to protect the public health."

The State Commissioner of Health said there are situations when embalming is appropriate and for aesthetics the family may desire to have it done.

He said this is a personal decision in which the state cannot interfere unless there is a public health necessity.

Dr. Bernstein said the Texas Department of Health currently knows of no situation in which embalming is necessary to protect public health. "I don't know of any disease which would be affected by embalming," he said.

The State Health Commissioner said there are means to handle and transport bodies of those who died of a transmissible disease without danger.

APPRAISER

[Continued From Page 1] basis with the county and school district -- as the largest taxing entities in the county -- together paying about 90 percent of the central appraisal district's budget.

Setting the value on Aransas County property will be Jack's job -- but before he can do that, he said, he has to do a lot of preliminary work.

This early work includes consolidating the property tax rolls kept by the five taxing entities -- "a big job," says Jack, because each entity has its own system for recording property -- and preparing maps.

"Good maps are one of the most if not the most important tool," Jack said.

He also plans to check city, county and school district records to see what evaluations have been put on property in the past -- then go from there.

It's going to be a lot of work, but Jack is ready for it. A business major with a minor in economics in college in Abilene, Jack went to work for a real estate firm while still in school.

"I sold some real estate," he says, "then I got into the appraisal end of it. It was a little easier to arrange my college class schedule for appraising than it was for selling."

After college, Jack was hired by the City of Abilene as tax appraiser. Later, for six years, he was with the Corpus Christi tax office and coordinated that city's reappraisal program.

Just before coming to Aransas County, he worked in Lampasas as school tax assessor.

Jack has hopes for the central appraisal system. It definitely comes with problems, he says, and he expects a lot of the "bugs" will have to be ironed out in the next legislature.

"I feel like they (the next legislature) will have to do a lot of work on some things," he said.

But, he observed, "very few people will argue with the concept of a central appraisal office."

So while there is a lot of work ahead... problems to be solved... Jack Grose-close views his new work as a challenge.

One he's ready, and eager, to meet.
