Enemy Position Said Hopeless By MacArthur

Jap Strongholds Of Lae, Madang Receive Bombing

(By The Associated Press)

American and Australian jungle fighters who wiped out the last pockets of Japanese in the Buna area of New Guinea over the week-end were closing in today on the invaders' defenses in the swampy Sanananda area to the north, where, a communique from General MacArthur's headquarters said, "the enemy's position is now hopeless."

In Washington, the Navy announced that United States motor torpedo boats scored a hit on one and three possible hits on two other of eight Japanese destroyers sighted Saturday off the northwestern end of Guadalcanal island in the Solomons.

CONQUEST IS MAPPED

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — The Berlin radio quoted a Japanese army spokesman today as declaring that Japan would continue on the attack through 1943 to put herself in position for the conquest of China, India and Australia, Midway and Hawaii and perhaps for landings on the North American continent.

Such a statement of war aims, which the Berlin broadcast attributed in a Tokyo dispatch to Col. Nakao Yahagi, went beyond the most ambitious statements recently of other Japanese people that the war has entered the long, hard, defensive stage.

Inflict "Slight Damage"

This apparently was the latest Japanese attempt to supply their forces on the island. The communique did not say whether any of the destroyers got through.

Enemy aircraft were said to have bombed the motor torpedo boats inflicting "slight damage."

Meanwhile Flying Fortresses and long-range Lockheed Lightning fighter planes carried the aerial attack again to the Japanese strongholds of Lae and Madang, far up the New Guinea coast, and the bombers raided Gasmata on New Britain island, setting a 10,000-ton ship ablaze.

800 Japs Killed

Sanananda, some two miles up the coast from Giropa and five miles from Buna, was described as the last stand of Japanese forces on the Papuan peninsula who advanced last September to 32 miles from Port Moresby, stepping stone to Australia.

The communique announcing that the Japanese were hemmed in a narrow pocket there said the Allies had "completed the destruc-

Japanese Designs To Capture FDR Brought Out In White Book

Mid-Pacific Parley Between Konoye And President Urged By Bold Japs

BY WADE WERNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—How close Pearl Harbor came to being a much greater national humiliation than it actually was is disclosed in the white book issued by Secretary of State Hull over the week-end to promote "a clearer understanding" of war problems and issues by Americans.

The final and most dramatic portion of the book reveals that the Japanese not only planned months in advance for "a surprise mass attack at Pearl Harbor", but did their diplomatic utmost to maneuver Japanese-American peace discussions in such a way that President Roosevelt would be in the hands of the Japanese navy when its torpedo planes stabbed at the heart of American seapower in the Pacific.

Planned Pacific Parley

Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, informed the State department on Jan. 27, 1941, of reports that Japan planned the surprise attack in case of "trouble" with the United States.

Apparently the Japanese government did not know the American ambassador had got wind of its designs, for a few months later it began urging on the State department a plan to bring President Roosevelt and Premier Prince Konoye together aboard a Japanese warship in the Pacific for a "frank exchange of views."

Japanese Ambassador Kichisabura Nomura broached the subject to Secretary Hull on Aug. 8, when the presence of Japanese troops in French Indo-China was complicating the already strained relations between Japan and the United States.

"The ambassador then inquired," says the white book, "whether it might be possible to arrange for a meeting of the responsible heads of the two governments to discuss means of adjusting relations between the two nations."

Konoye Urged Meeting

Secretary Hull's response is not recorded, but a few weeks later the subject was reopened; this time by a message from Prince Konoye himself to President Roosevelt, pointing out that in-

White Paper Bothers Axis

(By The United Press)

Berlin radio propaganda fumed today over the United States state department white paper demonstrating the war guilt of the Axis and revealed that enough of it had already reached the German people to force a concentration of domestic propaganda upon refutation.

The propaganda broadcasts to neutral countries where the white paper had been conspicuously and approvingly published, revealed the concern of the Nazi propagandists lest the German man in the street accept its proofs. Germans as a whole had not been informed of the context of the paper by their own newspapers and radios, of course.

Denunciate Paper

Berlin Radio said Berlin newspapers were devoting their front page sto denunciation and refutation of the white paper. It said typical headlines were, "White Book Against Truth," and "Apology of War Monger Roosevelt." It said Voelkischer Beobachter "compares the different points of the white book with reality." Transocean, a German propaganda news agency, said that for the "first time during this war," all the Monday afternoon Berlin papers devoted their front pages to "a political announcement of a foreign country."

The theme of the Nazi radio

Leonard Seen As Appointee

BY GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN, Jan. 4 — Withdrawal of Speaker Homer Leonard of McAllen from the race for presiding officer of the House of Representatives of the 48th legislature, popped his name today into the list of possible appointees to be submitted to the Senate shortly by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson.

Early openings which the governor will have to fill include the offices of Secretary of State, adjutant general, insurance commissioner and highway commissioner.

Linked With Highway Post

Most capitol gossipers linked Leonard's name with the Highway commission appointment. The appointment is to succeed Robert Lee Bobbitt of San Antonio and Leonard is geographically in the right part of the state to succeed Bobbitt on the three-member board. The other members are from Tyler and Fort Worth.

Bing Crosby's Home Destroyed By Flames

(By The Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4 — Charred framework and a mass of blackened debris were all that remained today of Crooner Bing Crosby's 20-room colonial mansion and his valuable collection of musical recordings, golf awards and horseracing trophies.

The residence, a rambling two-story film colony showplace situated on a four-acre landscaped estate fronting suburban Toluca Lake, was gutted last night by fire, believed to have started from a short-circuit while Mrs. Crosby, formerly Actress Dixie Lee, and their four sons were dismantling Christmas tree decorations.

Battalion Chief Joseph C. Roeder of the Los Angeles Fire department tentatively placed the loss at $250,000, but declared an exact evaluation would await complete inventory of furnishings and personal effects.

Mrs. Crosby and the children ran safely from the blazing dwelling to a neighbor's home, where fire companies from Los Angeles, North Hollywood, Burbank, Glendale and Van Nuys were summoned. Firemen, however, were unable to check the swift course of the flames.

New Congress To Face Tough War Problems

Nation's Stamina To Be Tested In Victory Efforts

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 — The crucible of global war held for the incoming 78th Congress today one of history's toughest assignments —the job of testing the nation's stamina as it fuses the ingredients of manpower, money and material for victory and eventual peace.

From its work will be shaped the way of life on the home front; from its appropriations will be forged the weapons of war for the American fighting forces; from its deliberations may come the pattern for a lasting peace.

Membership Evenly Divided

The 78th Congress convenes Wednesday. Not for a decade has the membership of the House and Senate been so evenly divided.

Behind the scenes already has begun the preliminary skirmishing in a controversy of world importance — that of deciding what this nation's foreign policy will be after the war. It may assume major importance next June when the administration seeks renewal of its reciprocal trade agreements with 25 countries.

Here are some of the issues which will confront the new Congress:

1. New taxes, possibly adoption of a pay-as-you-go collection plan.
2. Economies in non-military governmental spending.
3. Plans for postwar reconstruction and employment.
4. Revision of present labor statutes.
5. Probably the biggest budget in history.
6. Revision of rationing.
7. Elimination of the poll tax as a voting prerequisite.

Pendergast Verdict Reversed By Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—The Supreme court reversed today the conviction of Thomas J. Pendergast, former Democratic political boss at Kansas City, and two others on a charge of criminal contempt of court in connection with Missouri's $10,000,000 fire insurance settlement.

Justice Douglas delivered the 6 to 1 opinion, which also applied to Robert Emmett OiMalley, former Missouri superintendent of insurance, and A. L. McCormack, St. Louis insurance agent.

They were accused of "fraudulently fosting upon" a three-judge federal court at Kansas City "a corrupt settlement of insurance rate litigation, procured through bribery of the Missouri superintendent of insurance."

Validity of the conviction was challenged on the ground that the alleged activities did not take place "in the presence of the court or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice." This was necessary, it was contended, before the judges could punish summarily for contempt without the formality of an indictment and jury trial.

German Home Front Beginning To Show Strain Of War, Winter

Victories Of Allies Widening Cracks In Nazi Morale

EDITOR'S NOTE: What is happening inside Germany? For more than a year the only information reaching most outsiders has been a thin trickle through neutral sources, supplemented by unreliable propaganda broadcasts from Berlin. Much information about actual conditions within the reich are still beclouded by secrecy and purposeful distortion. But from travellers reaching neutral capitals, from the reports of Allied agents and from German newspapers which occasionally find their way across the German borders it is possible now to begin piecing the picture together. In recent weeks the United Press staff in Europe has called every available source about the enemy country with a view to making a report to the outside world. The first installment of this report begins today in the following dispatch by Joe Alex Morris, United Press foreign editor now stationed in London. It will be followed by others covering other phases of German life as gleaned in various European sources of information.

LONDON, Jan. 4—Little cracks are beginning to appear in the structure of the German home front as the reich finds itself in the fourth winter of war.

Those cracks can be widened by Allied victories and by additional hardships which the German civilian population must undergo, but it would be false optimism to say that the structure is in imminent danger of collapse. German civilians still are capable of withstanding additional hardships and it must be remembered that conditions on the home front were much worse in 1918.

Dark Side Of Picture

From the Allied standpoint, recent developments in Germany can be divided into two categories

Armed Services Almost Sure To Claim Every Replaceable Young Man, McNutt Predicts

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower commissioner, said today the armed services "will almost certainly claim every replaceable male employee of military age and fitness in every industry, regardless of its essentiality."

McNutt, writing in the magazine Factory Management and Maintenance, said that during the current year withdrawals probably would equal, for the average plant, the total of all previous withdrawals since the start of the war.

Commenting that the "coming impact of selective service withdrawals on industrial personnel is still not generally realized," McNutt urged employers to make up "manning tables" showing essential workers and the length of time required to train employes who are to replace those drafted.

Deferment Provided

Selective service boards, he said, would then be notified to defer essential employes long enough to permit training of new men.

The manpower boss predicted a pronounced drop in the turnover of industrial personnel as a result of the ban on voluntary enlistments.

"Employers will find, I am sure, that the rate at which they lose men to the armed services will become much more stable and predictable, while the restless tendencies of military-age workers will naturally be stilled," he

Area's Supply Of Labor Ample

Lubbock is listed as one of only six cities in Texas with a surplus of labor that would be available in the event of government contracts for war production, Abilene, El Paso, Laredo, San Angelo, and Wichita Falls are the other five. The announcement comes from the War Manpower commission in Washington.

The WMC classified 85 industrial committees in the nation, and the six Texas cities listed as "plentiful labor areas" are the only ones falling into the list of those in which it is recommended that first preference be given for renewing contracts, placing new contracts, and for locating new production facilities.

Supply Not Fully Utilized

"Plentiful labor areas" were listed in group 4, a new classification by the WMC. Group 4 is defined as "including all areas in which available labor supply is not fully utilized on essential civilian or war production, or in which a substantial surplus of workers exists."

The commission pointed out, in an Associated Press item from Washington, that in negotiating contracts officials should be guided by many factors, and that manpower is only one of these factors.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4. (AP)—Crew members of a Pan American Airways Clipper today held a record for commerical trans-ocean travel after having flown the South Atlantic 12 times in 13 days and 15 hours—with only a little less than their usual amount of sleep.

Captain of the flying boat, which landed at La Guardia field yesterday, was Joseph H. Hart, jr., 35, of Greenwich, Conn. With him was a crew of 11 men.

A Pan-American Airways spokesman said the flights were made to Africa on missions for the U. S. Army.

Converted Freight Cars May Be Used To Transport Troops

By JOSEPH LAITIN
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Converted freight cars may be used soon to transport troops because of the shortage of railroad equipment, Director Joseph B. Eastman of the Office of Defense transportation said today in an interview.

He cited that possibility as an example of how railroads have abandoned thinking-as-usual to make peacetime equipment serve war needs.

Eastman predicted that the railroads—by using ancient pullmans with coal burning heaters and ramshackle wooden cars from New York City's abandoned elevated lines—would just about "get by" in 1943.

To Be Hard Job

"It's going to be a hard job," he said. "But we'll make it if we all pull together."

The railroad, because of trucking and shipping, started out in this war with far less importance in the national transportation picture than the railroad of 1917-1918. But Eastman said the burden of heavy losses from submarine ac-

Arabs Really Shoot The Works For Grounded American Flier

(By The United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Jan. 3. (Delayed)—Lieut. George Humbrecht, St. Louis, came back to headquarters today, his weight up considerably, to report on the three Arabian nights—and days—he spent in the desert.

Arab chieftains wined him and dined him. They killed fresh antelope for him, lit ceremonial fires in his honor and, at a succession of banquets which left his eyes glazed, offered him everything from cream puffs to the specially prepared eye of a goat.

Humbrecht said he didn't eat the eye.

One motor of Humbrecht's plane failed near Tunis. He flew for five hours, seeking good weather and a landing place, and made a forced landing near a desert village.

Nazis Set Back At Each End Of Russian Front

Allied Planes In Tunisia Down 28 Enemy Aircraft

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Editor

The new Russian offensive which smashed the Germans back from Mozdok and the Grozny oil fields was reported unchecked today, rolling the Nazis steadily back across the Caucasus, while the Red army announced further gains in the Kalmyck steppe, the middle Don and on the north central front 70 miles from the Latvian border.

Thus with an enlarging offensive which set the Germans back at both ends of a battlefield more than 1,000 miles long and kept them on the defensive along its entire length, Premier Stalin's armies showed their reserve power and the extent of Adolf Hitler's miscalculation.

Tanks Raid Axis Positions

On the north African front British tanks raided Axis positions northwest of Medjez-El-Bab, French forces stabbed closer to the Tunis-Tripoli highway and pushed deeper into Libya from the south, and Allied air power came out winner again by a heavy margin in the battle for the skies.

At Allied headquarters in north Africa it was announced that heavy attacks by German and Italian tank forces yesterday upon French positions near Foudouk, southwest of Kairouan on the road to Sousse, were beaten off by a counterattack. The French were supported by American anti-tank units and planes.

First Mention Of Units

It was the first mention of American ground forces such as the anti-tank units in this sector.

A spokesman said the Axis tanks apparently were unloaded at Sousse, where the road from Tripoli is menaced by the Allied thrust, and there was nothing to indicate that they represented part of Marshal Rommel's forces withdrawn from Tripolitania.

Battlefront dispatches and the Moscow communiques gave this account of the long eastern front:

Caucasus—The Russians pressed northwest and west on the heels of German troops retreating from Mozdok and Malgobek, recapturing "several more populated places." The Moscow war bulletin said "the enemy is suffering heavy losses."

Mozdok, 60 miles northwest of Grozny, was a major trophy of the Axis drive toward the oil fields last August.

Germans Face Fuel Crisis

(By The Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 4 — The failure of the Nazi armies to take the Grozny oil fields in the Russian Caucasus after a month-long drive which culminated yesterday in their loss of the key rail city of Mozdok has left the Germans with the most serious fuel bottleneck since the start of the war, informed sources said today.

The collapse of the Grozny drive was said to have forced the Nazis into wholesale conversion of farm machinery on the home front to the use of gas generators instead of gasoline.

Nazi Tanks Stranded

At one stage in the summer campaign in Russia the Germans were so hard pressed for gasoline that they demanded and [illegible] off from Hungarian reserves [illegible] 000 tons of fuel, said the informants.

A traveler from Germany said the Russians had [illegible] German tanks on the [illegible] front because the tanks were stranded for lack of fuel.

Food Forecast Is Presented

Now is the traditional time for predictions and plans for 1943, says Mrs. Mona K. Hildreth, assistant county home demonstration agent. She suggests the homemaker ring in the new year by making resolutions on food for the future.

"Probably the most important predictions and plans for 1943 concern food," says Mrs. Hildreth. "Under stress of war it becomes more important than ever to have a well-fed nation. In reviewing the past, the diets in this country were better in 1941 and 1942 than they were during the previous five years. Many families had more money, so could buy more and better food. The national nutrition campaign roused public interest in better diets. Home demonstration women and 4-H club girls are eating by the Texas Food Standard. But in 1943 more money to buy food and more interest in good nutrition will not be enough to insure better diets. For civilians will be unable to get as much of some important foods such as meat, butter, milk, and many vegetables and fruits as they would be able and willing to buy.

"Looking into 1943, the food picture looks this way: Civilians can count on their daily bread and breakfast porridge, for the supply of cereals will be ample. The sweet tooth will be in the same fix next year as this. Sugar supplies may be smaller than for the year 1942 as a whole, because of the transportation situation. American families will no doubt eat more grain foods, potatoes and beans for the food energy they have been getting from sugar. Diets should be improved because white sugar offers only calories, while whole grains, potatoes, and beans have valuable minerals and vitamins.

"The fruits and vegetables in family meals in 1943 will depend on crops, labor for harvesting, and the shipping situation. With many fruits, a big crop one year is almost a signal that next year's crop will be small. So, the fact that there were large crops of a number of fruits last summer will probably mean some shorter crops in the year ahead. Restriction on commercial canning will mean fewer canned fruits and vegetables on the grocery shelves. So family gardens and home food preservation will be more important than ever before.

"In the light of those predictions, the homemaker should resolve to learn enough about food values so that she can keep her family's meals up to the best possible standard in spite of wartime shortages," says the agent.

Some varieties of roses have a very high content of vitamin C.

We The Women

BY RUTH MILLETT

Tiresome Types:

The man who, simply because he has a wife, is still sitting around leading a comfortable, safe life, and spending his evenings telling anyone who will listen how the war ought to be run.

The woman whose son is safe in this country, but who can't mention his name without tears—simply because HER boy is in the Army.

The woman who tells you in dead seriousness that she doesn't think she can get along on one cup of coffee a day—and who obviously is more worried about the prospect of coffee rationing than what is happening in North Africa.

THERE'S THE HOUSEWIFE

The healthy woman with no children and no other job than that of housewife, who is getting gray hairs worrying for fear that before the war is over she will be without a maid.

The capable, well-educated young woman who tells you how quickly she would join the WAACs or the WAVES if she weren't married—but who isn't doing a single thing to help with the war effort.

The woman who belongs to several organizations doing war work and can tell you how poorly each one is being managed by the persons in charge.

The people who can read about what our young men on the fighting fronts are enduring and still talk about the things civilians are asked to give up as "sacrifices."

The long-faced person who apparently has decided not to laugh or make anyone else laugh for the duration.

Anti-Aircraft Boys Really Get Kick Out Of Downing Japs

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 4 (AP)—Lieut. W. L. Shick, of Urbana, Ill., and El Paso, Tex., told of visiting an anti-aircraft battery at one of the advance airfields and seeing it down a Jap plane.

"Every gun around here cut loose at that plane and tracer bullets were speeding toward it almost faster than you could see," Shick said.

"When I visited them the boys were highly elated and they had cause to be. They were the first antiaircraft unit brought to New Guinea by air and they have brought their official score of enemy planes downed to seven."

Commander of the battery is Capt. Ernest W. Permenter of Jackson, Miss.

Janice Thompson Is Married To Lt. Walter L. Buenger

Miss Janice Thompson of Plainview and Lt. Walter Louis Buenger of Fort Stockton were married recently at the First Presbyterian church in Van Nuys, Calif., where Lt. Buenger is with the 35th Quartermaster company.

A single ring ceremony was read by Rev. Thomas Irwin Nalbach, pastor of the church, before the altar which was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and lighted with white tapers in candelabra.

Commanding Officer In Party

The bride, who was given in marriage by Lt. Col. W. H. Browne, the bridegroom's commanding officer, wore a white woolen suit with black accessories. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid.

The couple was attended by Lt. and Mrs. Marlyn Pederson.

A reception was held at the officers club of the bridegroom's company immediately following the ceremony.

Is Graduate Of Tech

Mrs. Buenger, daughter of Mrs. D. M. Thompson of Plainview, was awarded a bachelor of science degree from Texas Technological college in 1940. She was a member of Ko Shari social club. She taught school in Plainview for a year and prior to her marriage was employed in San Antonio and Dallas with the Eighth Service command.

Before entering the Army, Lt. Buenger was manager of theaters at Fort Stockton. He met his future bride when they were attendants in the wedding of Miss Winnie Jo Hooser and Dexy Sudduth in Plainview in August of 1941. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Buenger of Taylor.

The couple is at home in Van Nuys.

Miss Ingram Is Married At Service In Chapel

In a single ring ceremony read in the post chapel at Sheppard Field, near Wichita Falls, Miss Bessie Mae Ingram, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ingram, and Sgt. J. I. Speer of Sheppard Field, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Speer of Idalou, were married the afternoon of Dec. 29. Arlten M. Parce, post chaplain, officiated at the service.

The bride wore a pastel blue alpaca dress with black accessories. Miss Mary Cathryn Speer, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Cpl. Thomas W. Armstrong served as best man.

The bride's parents, the bridegroom's mother and sister and several of Sgt. Speer's associates were guests.

Sgt. and Mrs. Speer are graduates of New Deal High school at Monroe and Mrs. Speer later attended Draughon's Business college. They are at home in Wichita Falls.

Fisher Is Only New Texas Delegation Member In Capitol

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Representative-Elect O. C. Fisher, San Angelo, visited the capitol and looked over his office suite.

As the suite was still in use by Rep. Ward Johnson (R-Calif), Fisher attended to personal affairs. The Californian is transferring to another suite.

Fisher is the only new member of the Texas delegation. He established residence in the same apartment which had been occupied by his predecessor, Rep. Charles South.

Fisher was accompanied by Mrs. Fisher and their daughter, Rhoda, 14, and Mr. and Mrs. Grady Hill and their daughter, Jerry. Hill, former San Angelo newspaperman, is to be Fisher's secretary.

NYA-Trained Youths Go Into War Plants

AUSTIN, Jan. 4. (AP)—Southwestern war production industries have employed 16,105 young men and women trained in NYA shops during the past year, J. C. Kellam, regional administrator, announced today.

Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico are included in the region.

A single aircraft manufacturing plant in North Texas employed 2,000 of the youths included in the report, Kellam said. Other war industries taking the NYA-trained workers hired shipworkers and machine tool operators.

DECLARE WAR NOW ON EPIDEMIC COLDS
Put "Vicks Plan" To Work
Results of medically-supervised test show followers of Vicks Plan had fewer colds... shorter colds... 50% less sickness from colds!
WITH contagious colds spreading, you've got to keep on your toes. So put Vicks Plan to work at once! Certified results of a winter-long test among 2650 children show that followers of Vicks Plan had fewer colds . . . shorter colds . . . 50% less sickness from colds!
Right in your own home this simple easy-to-follow plan may do less—or it may do even more for you and your family than this remarkable record indicates. But with colds on a rampage, it's certainly worth trying! Get full details in your package of Vicks.
IT'S EASY— HERE'S WHAT YOU DO!
Observe A Few Simple Health Rules. Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Avoid crowds and people who have colds.
At First Sniffle or Sneeze, put a few drops of clinic-tested Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Use as directed in package. This specialized medication is expressly designed to aid your natural defenses against colds—and if used in time, Va-tro-nol helps prevent many colds from developing. (Even when your head is all stuffed up from a head cold, Va-tro-nol relieves distress, makes breathing easier.)
If A Cold Does Develop, or Slips By Precautions, rub clinic-tested Vicks VapoRub on back, as well as on throat and chest. VapoRub penetrates to the cold-congested upper bronchial tubes with soothing medicinal vapors. It stimulates throat, chest, and back surfaces like a warming poultice. This penetrating-stimulating action works for hours to relieve miseries of colds . . . even while you sleep!
NOTE: If the miserable symptoms of the cold are not relieved promptly—or if more serious trouble seems to threaten—call in your family doctor right away.

War Plants And Training Camps Bring Population Boom To Texas

Nueces County Leads In Gains

BY WILLIAM C. BARNARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

To almost every part of Texas, training camps and war industries brought population booms during 1942.

From 47 other states, thousands poured in to find their part in the war effort.

Busy cities looked down their noses at housing problems, shortages, transportation cramps, crowded schools and the pressing necessity of extending gas, water and sewage facilities.

Service men, not included in census estimates, made the load greater.

Field Day For Merchants

A field day for merchants dawned — sunset seemed a distant unreality.

Based on sugar ration books issued, the United States Bureau of the Census estimated gains in civilian population for 137 metropolitan counties over the nation between April 1, 1940 and May 1, 1942. South Texas' Nueces county, with Corpus Christi and a giant Naval Air station, led the rest of the state on a percentage basis with an increase of 28 per cent.

San Antonio (Bexar) was second with 12 per cent and Galveston third with 10. Only one county, Potter, showed a loss.

Case Of Growing Pains

Corpus Christi experienced a full-fledged case of growing pains. Especially acute was the housing shortage; many newcomers found homes in the nearby towns of Portland, Gregory, Taft and Robstown. Temporary additions to schools were improvised. Public transportation facilities were severely taxed, street maintenance became a nightmare to Mayor A. C. McCaughan and suburban developments begged for utilities, sewage and storm sewers.

Following are the 11 metropolitan Texas counties listed by the census bureau. The figures show the estimated civilian populations, as of May 1, 1942, the gain or loss from April 1, 1940 and the percentage of increase.

Amarillo (Potter county), 51,000, 3,000 loss, minus 5.6 per cent; Austin (Travis), 117,000, 6,000 (gain), 5.4 per cent; Beaumont-Port Arthur (Jefferson) 160,000, 15,000, 10.3 per cent; Corpus Christi (Nueces), 119,000, 26,000, 28 per cent; Dallas (Dallas), 431,000, 33,000, 8.3 per cent; El Paso (El Paso) 136,000, 10,000, 7.9 per cent; Fort Worth (Tarrant), 236,000, 10,000, 4.4 per cent; Galveston (Galveston), 88,000, 8,000, 10 per cent; Houston (Harris), 555,000, 26,000, 4.9 per cent; San Antonio (Bexar), 354,000, 38,000, 12 per cent; Waco (McLennan), 109,000, 7,000, 6.9.

Texas Farmers Have Heavy Fall Pig Crop

AUSTIN, Jan. 4 (AP) — Texas farmers responded to a call for more pork production this year by saving a fall pig crop of 1,695,000 pigs.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reported the fall crop (June 1 to Dec. 1) exceeded the record spring crop and was 36 per cent more than the fall crop of 1941.

On Texas farms 269,000 sows were farrowed, the same as indicated by intentions last June. This was 30 per cent more than were farrowed during the same period a year earlier.

Continued expansion of hog numbers was indicated by intentions to farrow in the spring of 1943.

Increased farrowings were recorded in all parts of the state, except in the extreme southern counties. The largest percentage increases in sows farrowing were in the plains counties where 2 consecutive large grain sorghum crops made grain supplies plentiful.

Sailors To Be Given Taillights In Street

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 4 (AP) — Columns of sailors marching on Columbia streets after dark will carry taillights.

Lieut. John G. Grotenrath, commander of the Diesel training school at the University of Missouri, said the taillight was to insure the men's safety and added:

"The red lantern at the end of the column must be visible for two miles and show an arc of at least 16 points from midship, starboard and dead astern."

FISHING GOOD

If Chinese Were Not One Of Politest People, U. S. And China Would Be In A Crisis

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
United Press Foreign Editor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. — But for the fact that the Chinese are one of the politest peoples on earth as well as one of the most civilized, there would now be a serious crisis in the relations between China and the United States.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has felt for a long time that when it came to war aid, China was being slighted. He has readily admitted the importance of smashing the Nazis, but he has been in tital disagreement with those who seem to think that the war against Japan can be safely put on ice until a more convenient time.

Will Be Inviting Disaster

The generalissimo does not believe the Japanese will be so obliging as to wait. He is convinced—and many Allied leaders agree with him—that the Japs intend to complete their conquest speedily and then dig in. If allowed to do that it may be impossible to dislodge them short of many years of bloody and costly war, if then. Yet if China is deprived of the minimum of material necessary to check the Japanese, the Allies in general and the United States in particular will be inviting disaster.

Among those who share this view is Prime Minister John Curtin, of Australia. He, too, is now making representations to Washington and London to get the Allies to increase their forces in the Pacific. Japan, he said, is consolidating her gains and added that "the policy of dealing with Hitler and the European war first is being overdone." And ever since his return to this country, Joseph C. Grew, our ambassador to Tokyo, has been warning the Allies not to underestimate the Japanese as a dangerous and tricky foe.

Has Good Answer

The Chinese generalissimo has never taken a high and mighty position in demanding lease-lend supplies. He might have said something like this:

"Se here! China has been in the war against one of the Axis partners for going on five years. That is longer than any of the rest of you have been at it. We have been fighting your war for you all that time, and with only a trickle of aid. Once, at Japan's request, you actually blocked our principal supply route. Again, with more than a million troops just across the border in India, you let the Japs take Burma and seal up the Burma road. Today, China needs help as never before. Give it to us or we may have to drop out."

Somewhat Familiar Ring

That has a somewhat familiar ring. But the generalissimo has never taken any such stand. He not only appreciates the difficulties facing the United States, Britain, Russia and the others, but does his best not to add to them. Unlike the ally that refused the gift of a shipload of oleo and insisted on—and got—butter, China has accepted with graditude the little e have had to offer. Instead of threatening to walk out on her Allies, she has, on the contrary, maintained that she intends to fight it out against Japan even if she has to do it alone.

Military experts who know the Far East best say that a little goes much farther in China than a lot goes in Europe. And while everybody admits the physical difficulties of supplying China are almost super-human, the Allies have performed miracles for others, so why not for China?

Would Imperil Siberia

Failure to hold China would imperial Siberia. Without China at their rear, the Japs would almost certainly invade Siberia's maritime provinces while Russia is busy in Europe. And without China and eastern Siberia, the Allies would find it difficult if not impossible seriously to get at Japan proper, even with bombers.

Gen. Hsiung Shih-Fei, head of the Chinese military mission now in this country, is about to return to China. He is said to be disappointed over his stay here. Normally such reports portend a crisis. But the Chinese have 3000 years of experience and understanding. Already, Chungking has announced that the general will return to Washington after making his report.

The generalissimo's wants are said to be moderate, like Prime Minister Curtin, he does not hold that the European war is not vitally important; he merely believes the importance of the Pacific war is greater than some seem to think.

Italy, Texas, Hasn't Had A Traffic Death In 35 Years Or White Person Slain In 64

(By The Associated Press)

ITALY, Tex., Jan. 4.—This little town doesn't brag about its name any more but it starts the new year off proudly recalling it hasn't had a traffic death in 35 years and not a white-person murder in 64.

Italy offers even more fervent thanks that out of its 200-odd young men under arms all over the world, only one has been reported missing.

As far as Justice of the Peace Robert E. Sparkman knows, no serious injury has befallen any of the others.

Plenty Of Hazards

Judge Sparkman hasn't heard of a record like that for any other town of comparable size—1,224—in the country. He assures everyone the fatality record isn't the result of no hazards. Italy has plenty of them—two trunk highways, two railroads and an electric rail line which runs smack down the full length of Main street.

Judge Sparkman, who deals out justice, keeps the vital statistics records, writes for the papers, and philosophizes on the side, says:

"Students have traveled to this city to learn why these things (accidents and murders) have not occurred here. They found it true but the answer they could not solve.

"The reason may be that those who founded this community were families of good common sense, people who believed first in the church and second in schools as the best means of establishing and maintaining a peaceful society."

First Car 35 Years Ago

The record for non-fatal car accidents is perfect. The first car showed up on the streets of Italy more than 35 years ago. Before that, traffic was no problem, not even in Italy.

A year ago the record was threatened. An automobile turned over, caught fire and burned to death four passengers. The accident occurred 50 yards outside the city limits.

Judge Sparkman does not include the "very few murders among the peaceful negro population" in the 64-year record which dates from the town's founding.

Italy started to change it name about two years ago, for an obvious reason, but didn't.

After all, Judge Sparkman recalled, only one Italian ever lived here, and he came from Philadelphia.

H. W. Hamilton Rites Are Scheduled Today

Funeral services for H. W. (Jack) Hamilton, 47, gin manager at Steagall, will be held at 1 p. m. today in the chapel of Plains Funeral home with Dr. C. E. Hereford, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. Interment will be in Lubbock cemetery.

Hamilton died in Payne-Shotwell hospital in Littlefield Saturday afternoon of burns received Friday. He was cleaning the lint flue at the Steagall gin and struck a match which ignited the cotton to cause the fatal burns.

Survivors are: his widow; five sons, Horace of Oklahoma City, Nelson of Houston and Bill, Wayne and Bobby, all of Steagall; one daughter, Mrs. George Johnson of Hot Springs, Ark.; three sisters, Mrs. W. L. Buckley of Jayton, Mrs. G. W. Moore of Port Arthur, Mrs. N. Grady of Como; one brother, C. A. Hamilton of Brady.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too
When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's. Adv.

Frogs Take Strong Spot In Cage Race

T. C. U. May Be Team To Unseat Razorback Five

(By The United Press)

Decisive games come early in this year's Southwest conference basketball campaign, which gets underway this week with six games scheduled. Every team in the loop will see action in at least one contest before the week closes.

As usual, all eyes will be on the consistent Arkansas Razorbacks, the tall boys from the Ozarks, but this year a new face enters the title picture for the first time in many seasons. Texas Christian, a doormat of the league for the past eight or nine years, shows a surprising upturn this year and is figured by many as the team capable of stopping the Razorbacks, if anyone does.

Also figuring strongly in preschedule possibilities are Texas and Rice, with Southern Methodist rated as the likely dark horse candidate. Baylor and Texas A. and M. are given little chance to cut any ice in the conference race.

Texas and Rice have looked impressive in pre-conference games and may hit an all-winning stride as the season gets into official swing.

It's Texas Christian and Arkansas, however, in most forecasters books.

The Arkansans, paced by Gordon Carpenter, a 6-foot 7½ inch center, and Clayton Wynne, 6-foot 4-inch guard, have won a greater portion of their warmup games, although losing to TCU in the Oklahoma City invitation tournament finals. Observers blamed the loss on travel weariness on the part of the Arkansas lads, who played a busy holiday schedule.

The Razorbacks have been the most consistent cage winners in the conference, having bagged eight championships and tied for two others in the 19 years they have been in the conference.

The Horned Frogs, beside wading through the stiff competition in the all-college tourney, have disposed of several other fine teams in their warmup games, having dropped only two out of 13 played, while averaging better than 40 points per game.

A fair picture of the things to come may be gained Friday and Saturday nights when the Ozark cagers come down from Fayetteville to meet Southern Methodist in two games on the latter's court.

A sweep by either team would put that quintet in a fair position to go on to higher laurels, while an even break would serve to emphasize how tight the race might be.

Games Usually Hard-Fought

Games between the two usually are hard-fought. Last year the Dallas five wound up in the cellar and the Porkers tied for the title, but Arkansas was barely able to eke out two-point victories in the two games they played.

The season lid will be opened at Fort Worth and Austin Wednesday night when Baylor invades the Christian gymnasium and Rice comes up to Memorial gymnasium at Texas.

The Waco Baptists are not expected to create much furor against Texas Christian, but the Austin melee bids fair to find the fireworks popping as the Longhorns and Owls seek to oust each other from the title picture.

Saturday night, in addition to the second game of the Pony-Porker series, Texas Christian invades College Station to open the Aggies' season and Texas moves up to Waco to engage the Bears.

Neither TCU nor Texas are expected to be extended in these contests.

Outlook Brightens For Racing Season

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 4 (AP) —Tropical park officials counted their racing season over the hump today as far as war-created doubts were concerned and looked for brighter conditions in the last eight days of their present meet.

Attendance was down 40 per cent in the first two weeks of winter racing and wagering slumped $807,000 under last year, but the 43,480 attendance and $2,199,871 betting figures were very near the blue ink stage.

"With the holiday season and football behind us, we should pick up steadily now," said Thomas J. Lyons, comptroller of the Gables Racing association.

Army Team Defeats Sailors In Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 4 (U.P.)—A crowd of 7,000 spectators —largest in this island's history— watched an Army football team shade a Navy team, 19-18, in the first gridiron contest ever played in Bermuda.

Army scored two touchdowns in the first quarter but Navy drove to a touchdown in each of the next periods to tie the score. Both clubs put over a touchdown, each in the last quarter. Army's extra point provided the margin of victory.

Baseball Meet Starts Tuesday

Light Expected On War Problems

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 — Baseball officials began gathering in Chicago today for ommissioner K. M. Landis' emergency session at the Palmer house tomorrow, which President William Harridge of the American league believes "will definitely straighten out the 1943 season."

"We'll know the where and when of spring training," he said. "And after we find this out we can map a definite schedule.

"I'm not sure what Judge Landis has in mind. He hasn't mentioned his conference with ODT Director Eastman with anyone. All baseball men can do until tomorrow is speculate."

Shorter Season Seen

Harridge believes if the regular 154 game schedule is continued it easily could be fitted into a shortened season by making "double-header days" common attractions just like double features at theaters.

The main questions for the mileage conservation parley center on inaugurating the season April 13 or about the 27th, trimming schedules from 154 to 140 games, reducing traveling squads from 25 to about 20 players by leaving utility men at home, and whether to open spring training within a radius of home or actually at home.

Champ Miler Finds Facing Japs Easier Than Track Ordeals

(By The Associated Press)

HEADQUARTERS, SEVENTH AIRFORCE, Jan. 4 — Lou Zamperini, former national collegiate mile champion, finds it easier to face Japanese anti-aircraft fire on a bombing raid than to compete against Cunningham, Fenske, or Venzke on the cinder track.

Zamperini, 25-year-old former U. S. C. distance star from Torrance, Calif., was a bombardier on the Army Air force's Wake island raid Dec. 24. Lou, a second lieutenant in the Army Air corps, bombed a runway and bunkers on Wake. He was one of those awarded an air medal for their deeds.

"Nobody was scared," said Zamperini after his return. "I think everyone had an excited, jumpy feeling — exactly the same as that one gets before a big race. I've been scared more before a race against Cunningham, Venzke and Fenske than I was that night."

The Wake Island raid was the first combat flight for this group, which was organized a few months ago and is comprised of young men just out of Randolph and Kelly and Midland, Tex., flying schools.

"As bombardier," Zamperini continued, "I have all the fun. We had orders to watch everything. We checked everything carefully. There was only one miss by our whole squadron. That was a bomb that fell offshore only 20 feet and it might have done some damage.

"The Japs were asleep for a long while. My plane was one of the last in the formation. We thought we'd get out without having to face gunfire. Then they opened up but none of our planes was hit and we got back all right.

"Only one Jap plane pursued us. I made certain that he did not land on his return. I saw him taking off and dropped a 500-pound bomb on the runway. My objectives were the bunkers but I figured it would do more good to place one bomb there. I aimed at the plane but knew I couldn't hit it since it was taking off. I had a good chance to hit the airfield so he couldn't land again, however. My bomb blasted a hole in the north-south runway.

"I dropped the rest of my bombs on my objective."

SIX LITTLE SISTERS—And they all swim! Here we have the Lawson family of Brooklyn. Reading up the ladder they are: Marilyn 9; Dorothy, 11; Edna, 16; Joan, 14; Betty, 18; and Kay, 20. Edna, Betty and Kay are members of the New York Women's Swimming Association team. The other three will join them early in 1943.

Frankie Sinkwich Accepts Film Offer

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4. (AP)—Minus their backfield star, Frankie Sinkwich, who scored the only touchdown in their 9 to 0 Rose Bowl victory over the UCLA Bruins New Year's day, the Georgia Bulldog football players left for home by train today after a week-end of sightseeing around the film capital.

Sinkwich, who flew to the Pendleton and San Diego marine bases over the week-end, boarded a commercial airliner late yesterday for Washington, D. C. There he is to appear before the Touchdown club to receive the Walter Camp memorial cup.

While in Hollywood, Sinkwich conferred with Columbia studio executives and afterward President Harry Cohn announced the all-American grid star had accepted an offer to make a motion picture sometime before he dons a marine uniform in March.

Sinkwich's wife, Adeline, also received a movie offer, but she turned it down, at least until Frankie enters the service.

Constantino Fight Scheduled Tonight

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4 (U.P.)—Lulu Constantino, New York, erstwhile contender for the featherweight crown, resumes his lightweight title quest tonight against Ellis Phillips, hard-hitting Philadelphia negro, in a ten-round bout at Convention hall.

Constantino rules a slight favorite on his record of 74 wins in 77 bouts.

Phillips, a bull-rushing puncher, holds two decisions over Petey Scalzo, former featherweight champion.

Tech, LAFS To Play Tuesday

Tourney Showing Pleases Robison

Coach Polk Robison's Texas Tech basketeers will be after sweet revenge Tuesday night when they play the Lubbock Army Flying school quintet at the Tech gymnasium at 8 o'clock. It will be the second game of the season between these two teams. In the previous battle, the Lubbock Army base loopers turned on a late rally to defeat the Red Raiders, 35 to 34. The Red Raiders have just returned home from the All-College tournament at Oklahoma City where they lost to the University of Arkansas 38 to 43 and the Norman Zoomers 34 to 30.

Coach Polk Robison said he was well pleased with the scoring of the Tech players in the Oklahoma City tournament even though they lost both games. "We gained a lot of needed experience by playing in the Oklahoma City meet, Robison said. Tuesday night's game at Tech gymnasium will be the last home game for the Red Raiders until February 11-12 when they play Hardin-Simmons here. The Techsans will leave Lubbock next Wednesday for Albuquerque where they will play Kirtland Field at Santa Fe on Thursday night, Jan. 7th, and the New Mexico University Lobos on Friday and Saturday nights, January 8 and 9th. The game with Kirtland field was arranged Saturday between Athletic Director Morley Jennings of Texas Tech and Coach Ted Shipkey of Kirtland field. Shipkey formerly was head football coach at New Mexico University.

All soldiers in uniform will be admitted to Tuesday night's game for 25 cents. A regular admission of 55 cents will be charged for others who wish to attend the game. The Red Raiders will be after their second win of the season Tuesday night. They have played four, lost three and won one. George Allen, alert forward, leads the Red Raider scoring attack with 16 field goals and 7 free shots for 39 points. He is trailed by freshman Roland Nabors who has accounted for 13 field goals and 7 free shots for 33 points. Garland Head, tall guard, is third in the scoring race with 11 field goals and 8 free shots for 30 points. In their four games this season the Raiders have collected 60 field goals and 28 free shots for 148 points.

Main Thing Is To Enjoy Game, Cage Mentor Believes

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—There are priorities on building materials but Frank Keaney is hunting new doors and locks for the Rhode Island state gym to keep his basketballers from fast-breaking right into the Pacific ocean.

"By actual count," says the shepherd of the New England Rams, "my coaching style has been called 105 different names. The kindest of them has been 'unsound.'

"But what the heck, if I find a boy who can shoot baskets only while standing on his left ear, I let him shoot that way. As long as I get some fun out of a game and the boys like it, I am satisfied."

Team Loses 84-75

That is why Keaney wasn't too disappointed Saturday night after his rollicking Rams lost to Fordham in Madison Square Garden, 84 to 75. It was the third time in 12 months that his club had collected more than 70 points, only to lose.

Creighton, which ran its unbeaten streak to five Saturday by trimming Long Island university, 31 to 30, on the same garden program is en route home to protect its half of the Missouri Valley conference flag. After meeting Duquense tonight, the Bluejays are idle until Saturday when St. Louis university will be met.

The Oklahoma Aggies, who shared the 1942 banner with the Omaha five, also open their league schedule Saturday with Washington university as the foe.

Dartmouth is favored to annex the Eastern Intercollegiate flag for the fourth straight year and Texas Christian moved into the Southwest conference limelight last week by defeating Arkansas, co-champion last spring with Rice, in the final of the Oklahoma City collegiate tourney. Both leagues get under way this week with Cornell playing three games in the Eastern circuit.

FORCED PLAY—"I gotta play him. His old man's on the rationing board."

Answers To Baseball Puzzles Due To Be Revealed Tomorrow

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—The answers to two guessing games that have puzzled sports fans for some time are due before very long . . . Tomorrow Judge Landis will tell the baseball big-wigs what he learned in Washington last week and they'll decide how far they can go with the 1943 season . . . And as soon as he disposes of a few important matters, New York's new governor, Tom Dewey, will settle the $64 question for fight filberts—what about the commission? . . . That $64 doesn't refer to the price of ringside seats this year . . . The New York commission always has enjoyed (and that's just the word, a unique position because the best fights and biggest dough came under its control . . . So if Dewey should toss out the present incumbent and put in a more cooperative group, it should have a decided effect upon boxing everywhere—except maybe in Maryland.

AGED ON CANVAS

Another question that has caused as much talk along Jacobs' beach as a good thing in the fourth at Tropical is whether the law should be changed to allow 16-year-olds to fight professionally . . . Al Weill, who has only four or five boxers left in his stable, shoves for the change so he can get somebody to work with and develop . . . "They're not too young to fight if they're not overmatched," Weill says "and you can over-match a man no matter how old he is." . . .

So far we've seen $125,000 worth of good excuses for playing those New Year's day football games . . . That's approximately the amount raised for charity by three of them . . . The East-West and the Sun Bowl games were all-out benefits, the Rose Bowl had to wait until after the game to announce its $50,000 gift to the Red Cross because of the rule that no event can be billed as a Red Cross benefit unless the entire take goes to that organization. . . . There may be some good reason why we haven't heard of any donations from the others. For instance, the Sugar Bowl had some sort of financial setup that required the Sugar Bowl association to make up the difference between $1.10 and the regular price on all cut-rate seats sold to service men.

Armstrong To Meet McDaniels Tuesday

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP) — Fistiana's former kingpin of three divisions, Hammerin' Henry Armstrong, climbs into the ring here tomorrow night for his 16th fight in an amazing comeback campaign.

Hurricane Hank's opponent will be Jimmy McDaniels, who obtained a release from a fight he had scheduled at Hollywood Jan 15 against Cecil Hudson in order to get a crack at the little negro. McDaniels will not be getting any more money for the Armstrong 10-rounder. He simply thinks he can stop Hank's march toward regaining the lightweight crown.

Seven months ago Armstrong began his comback. An operation on sensitive scar tissue around his eyes was pronounced a success and the California Boxing commission gave him the go ahead signal.

Tight Fordham Defense Holds 'Em To 75---

Rhode Island State Cage Team Averages 92 Points Per Game

BY JACK CUDDY
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 — Eastern basketball enthusiasts are still agog over that goofy game at Madison Square garden Saturday night in which Fordham abandoned its usual defensive tactics and pitted "firehouse" against "firehouse" methods to upset Rhode Island state, 84 to 75.

The Garden's record cage crowd of 18,394 developed balata necks from watching the torrent of shots at both ends of the court, as a half-dozen garden scoring marks were bettered.

Today the experts are arguing all over the east about the significance of this upset — if any. Some say Fordham's triumph proves that the object of basketball is to outscore the other team, regardless of defense. Others maintain that Fordham's superior defense prevented Rhode Island from scoaring as much as the Fordhamites in a fast-running game.

A High-Scoring Team

The latter school of thought, which supports the bookish game against the blitz type, points out that the Rhode Island Rams had averaged 92 points per game, before tangling with the Fordham Rams. In fact, the Rhode Islanders defeated Ft. Williams by the adding-machine figure of 124 to 59. And because of Fordham's apparent abandoned but instinctive defense, Rhode Island was unable to maintain its average of 92 Saturday night. It was restricted to a mere 75.

However, supporters of the "firehouse" game insist that Fordham's unexpected all-out attack surprised the Rhode Islanders and put them on the defensive, thus permitting Fordham to monopolize the ball, do more shootin, and make more baskets.

We do not know which theory is correct. We do know, however, that last season Coach Ed Kelleher of Fordham concentrated on defense against the Rhode Islanders' perpetual-motion play, and lost to Coach Frank Keaney's team in an extra period. Kelleher kept his two tallest Fordham men in the back court where they could do no scoring. Meanwhile his two smallest men forward tried to fight five husky staters under the boards. Because Kelleher was expected to use the same system Saturday night, his team was a 9-5 underdog.

Needles Other Coaches

We were sorry to see Rhode Island lose, because Coach Keaney is one of our favorite characters. This pudgy, middle-aged mentor is as refreshing as a mint julep when he rises at a basketball luncheon and, in slap-stick fashion, gives the "needle" to other coaches present for taking the hoop game too seriously, and for being "just too, too technical."

"Basketball is just a game which was invented so that the boys could have fun playing it," Keaney says. "I just send them out there to have fun — win or lose. If anybody beats us — so what? I just pivot and go home. I can always eat my supper."

Does Keaney ever read books on the technique of basketball?

"Sure I do," he chuckles. "I read them all, even the books by Holman and Bee. But we always do the opposite from what those books tell us. If they say float, we don't float. That's why the other coaches call me 'unsound'.

"I'm always willing to give the other fellow one basket if we can get two in exchange. I tell the boys to go out there and run around and shoot and have fun. We don't expect to win every game. But as long as the boys and I have a good time I figure we're playing the right kind of basketball."

Rationing Cuts Traffic Deaths

(By The Associated Press)

The nation, looking back over its New Year's holiday period, learned today that apparently gasoline rationing, reduced driving speeds, general travel curtailment and holiday operated war plants had served to slash the toll of violent deaths compared with year ends in recent years.

An Associated Press survey of the nation showed only 232 fatalities since New Year's eve, 139 of which were traffic deaths and 93 from miscellaneous causes—drownings, stabbings, shootings, suffocation and falls.

Highest In California

Comparatively, last year's shorter New Year's holiday ended with a toll of 265 deaths, of which 171 were in motor accidents.

California recorded the highest number of deaths, 29, of which 23 were traffic fatalities.

The list by states, traffic figure first and miscellaneous second, included: Oklahoma 4 and 0; Texas 1 and 0.

LUBBOCK AND TYLER WITHOUT FATALITIES

AUSTIN, Jan. 4 (U.P.)—Corpus Christi and Abilene were the safety exceptions among Texas cities in 1942, with an increase of traffic fatalities while others showed reductions.

Both are centers of large war activities, State Police Director Homer Garrison, jr., reported today.

Tyler and Lubbock were without traffic deaths throughout the entire year.

Dallas maintained a nationally outstanding record with a rate of 9.8 deaths per 100,000 population. Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio all scored greater reductions in fatalities, compared with the previous year.

Beaumont had the greatest decrease in the 50,000 to 100,000 population bracket, dropping from eight deaths in 1941 to five in 1942. Galveston, with only three fatalities for the year, led this group of cities with a rate of 4.9 deaths per 1,000 population.

Relative standings of the cities, computed by the amount of reduction made in the traffic toll during 1942, follow:

Cities of 100,000 population or more: Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio, Dallas.

Cities between 50,000 and 100,000 population: Beaumont, Austin, Amarillo, El Paso, Galveston, Waco, Corpus Christi.

Cities between 25,000 and 50,000 population: Tyler, Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Port Arthur, San Angelo, Laredo, Abilene.

As a result of 35-mile speed limit the state highway department has discontinued temporarily the work of its safety engineering division.

Registrants Must Carry Draft Cards

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—All men in the 18-45 age group who have been subject to selective service registration for six months must carry draft classification cards starting February 1.

Selective Service headquarters announced the ruling last night as part of a program of "vigorous action" against draft delinquents.

Failure to carry both classification and registration cards would subject the offender to possible penalties totaling five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Selective Service said the action was directed against men "believed to be delinquent by reason of failure to keep in touch with local boards as required."

Area's Labor Supply

ager here for the U. S. Employment service said this morning the Washington report of a labor surplus comes from recent surveys made in this immediate area by F. A. Wells of Amarillo, acting district supervisor of the USES, and that it is his personal opinion that in spite of farm labor, dairy, and livestock farm shortages of manpower, a reasonable supply of manpower can be marshalled in the Lubbock area from non-essential industry and utilized on any contract for war production that might be negotiated here.

Waldron would not subscribe to the statement that "a surplus of manpower, or a surplus of labor exists," but he does believe, he said, that Lubbock holds a top position among those communities in Texas and the Southwest where a labor supply is present and available for war industry.

Axis Fuming

propaganda for foreign consumption and of the newspapers for domestic consumption, was that President Roosevelt was facing hostility because of his "chaotic" war policy from the new Congress convening Wednesday and the white paper was a "desperate" move on the part of "a trembling war inciter" to head off congressional action. Mr. Roosevelt was savagely attacked by the radio and by the newspapers, as quoted by the radio.

Italian Reaction Mild

The Italian reaction, by contrast, was mild. Rome Radio broadcast the summary of the diplomatic commentator of the Stefani agency who said the white paper was both incomplete and "based on entirely wrong assumptions." If the United States had had any serious intention of averting a European war during the 1930's, it should have urged France and Great Britain to give in to "justified German and Italian demands." American efforts to avert Italy's entrance into the war had been 'insincere," he said.

NEW HIGH REGISTERED

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — The stock market, on balance, today chalked up another new high since early October, 1941.

Dealings, as in the first part of January last year, were much slower than in the latter days of December although sizeable blocks of low-priced issues put the day's turnover at around 600,000 shares.

Stocks in new top ground for 1942-43 included General Motors, Philip Morris, General Electric and Radio Corp.

Favored were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Great Northern, Southern Railway, American Telephone, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Zenith Radio, United Aircraft, Sperry, U. S. Gypsum, American Can, Dow Chemical, Anaconda and Union Carbide.

Among occasional losers were Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Chrysler and Dupont.

shaped front from the Don, across the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway into the Kalmyck wastelands.

Middle Don—"Our troops continued their offensive and occupied a number of populated places," the communique announced.

Northwest of Moscow—The Russians thrust westward beyond recaptured Velikie Luki, long an anchor of the Nazi line, and reached Novosokolniki, 70 miles from the Latvian border.

28 Axis Planes Downed

In a striking display of growing Allied air might in Tunisia, American and British planes shot down 28 enemy aircraft and damaged 34 others over the week end.

Most of that toll was taken by American bomber and fighter planes in a Saturday raid into the blaze of anti-aircraft fire and fighter defenses the Axis has concentrated at Tunis.

The Flying Fortresses accounted for 17 of the swarm of German and Italian planes which tried in vain to save Tunis harbor and waterfront from another battering. Twin-tailed Lockheed Lightning fighters got two more.

No Fortresses Lost

Not one of the Fortresses was lost, although perhaps 32 took part in the Tunis attack.

Altogether, Allied losses were seven planes, two of them American. The Allied planes attacked Sousse and the hard-hit rail line between Sousse and Sfax, and intercepted an Axis air attack on the Algerian port of Bone.

A Cairo communique said Tunis was attacked again Saturday night, without loss of a plane.

"Yesterday," the communique state "there was nothing to report from our land forces."

These last were reported in contact with the enemy west of the Wadi Bei El Chebir. There were indications that part of Marshal Rommel's forces was digging in for another attempted stand, this time near the Wadi Zem-Zem, 20 miles west of Wadi Bei El Chebir and 160 miles from Tripoli.

Nazi Fuel Problem

picture of the situation:

In order for the Germans to conduct the war on the grand scale of previous years, and to keep the home front moving as well, at least 20,000,000 tons of gasoline are required annually.

Half that amount in the past has been supplied by German production of synthetic fuel plus what could be obtained of the output of satellite Rumania.

Windfalls Stopped

For the rest Germany drew on reserves accumulated before the war and depended on windfalls in the form of stocks found in occupied countries. These windfalls now have stopped.

General Alfred Jodl (recently reported as replaced as Hitler's personal aide) is reported to have said the German army, in order to continue the war on the extensive scale of the past, would have to occupy not only the relatively small Russian oil fields at Maikop, which they now control, but also the Grozny region.

They took Maikop, but the Russian scorched earth policy was carried out so effectively that, informed sources said it will still require months to get the field into production. What that scorched earth policy means, these sources said, was demonstrated in Esthonia, the largest producer of oil from shale.

The Germans required a year after ousting the Russians there to return the shale plants to operation. They are now producing about 30,000 tons of oil, perhaps half of peace-time production, mainly for the forces in Finland.

LAFS Sergeant Is Victim Of Robbery

Police this morning were asked to investigate the case of a Lubbock Army Flying school sergeant who claimed $50 in money had been taken from his room in a downtown hotel.

Two negro maids and a Lubbock "fortune teller" were listed as suspects.

Earl West said $15 in cash and a $50 government check had been taken from his room in a break-in of a residence at 1501 Twenty-fourth street. The money was in a billfold, which was removed from a larger purse.

Police said a Tahoka automobile, a blue 1937 Ford coach, license 969-724, had been reported stolen, and that a tire and wheel disappeared from a car parked at Fifteenth street and Avenue K. J. L. Chancey of 1203 Thirty-second street said clothing and groceries valued at $30 had been stolen there, and Burl Moore of 2012 Seventeenth street reported a bicycy had been stolen from a downtown theater.

Two girls, 13 and 15, were described as missing from their parents' homes, and prowlers were sighted in 2400-block Twenty-second and in 1700-block Fourth streets.

A 42-year-old Mexican paid a $50 fine for drunkenness, and a 38-year-old Lubbock resident $15 on a similar offense.

Willie Pep To Meet Dell-Orto Tonight

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4 (U.P.) — Willie Pep, world's featherweight champion and winner of 56 straight professional bouts, will meet Vince Dell-Orto of New York in a 10-round non-title battle here tonight.

Matchmaker Lew Diamond said Pep's crown would not be at stake because both fighters agreed to come in over the 126-pound featherweight limit.

German Home Front

—good and bad. On the dark side of the picture:

1. Adolf Hitler's personal position with the German people seems secure. A woman who worked in a German munitions factory and recently escaped to England said the Germans blamed all the military and economic blunders that Hitler has committed on his subordinates. The Gestapo, she said, maintains an unbroken grip on the civilian population, particularly in the factory areas.

Contrary To Reports

2. Contrary to published reports, there is no serious dissension between Nazi party leaders and the German generals. An authoritative source, discussing the recent removal of Gen. Franz Halder as chief of staff of the German high command and the appointment of Gen. Kurt Zeitzler to the post, said, "scapegoats had to be found for the failure of Hitler's intuition and the German inability to take Stalingrad." That change, it was added, was not an attempt to put an ardent Nazi in command of the armed forces, for Zeitzler—again contrary to reports—is not a close, personal friend of Hitler. He is a capable, ambitious general and is known to military men as an excellent staff officer.

Leaders Are Divided

From a neutral source comes the information that there are at least two schools of thought among German officials and military men on how to conduct the war, but the difference of opinion has not broken in open animosity. On the contrary, such bitter enemies as Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler and Reichsmarshal Herman Goering are reliably reported to have composed some of their differences in the face of Allied danger.

The two groups are described as "fanatics" and "moderates." Hitler, Himmler, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, and Alfred Rosenberg, commissar for the conquered eastern territories, head the "fanatics." They are the ones who insisted on the winter assault on Moscow last year and the blood bath that ended in disaster this year at Stalingrad.

The "moderates" are headed by Goering and include most of the werhmacht generals—professional soldiers who distrust intuition as a guide to military action. They opposed the assault on Moscow and the pouring out of military might in the attempt to capture Stalingrad. Goering's position with Hitler has changed considerably in recent months. Reliable reports say that the army leaders wanted Hitler to appoint Goering as supreme commander in Russia after last winter's defeat, but the fuehrer rejected that idea and assumed command himself. Since then Goering has been kept in the background and when he is permitted to make a speech it usually is for the purpose of breaking a piece of bad news to the German people.

On the bright side of the picture are these facts:

Food Getting Scarcer

1. The scarcity of food is beginning to pinch the Germans. This will be discussed in detail in a later dispatch, but one example will show the extent to which the Germans are being forced to tighten their belts. On Nov. 1 the Haus Hungaria, a restaurant on Kurfuerstendamm in the fashionable west end of Berlin, posted a menu listing six meat dishes. A large crowd lined up at the door waiting for the restaurant to open. Almost as soon as the doors opened, four of the dishes were crossed off the menu and all six of them disappeared while many persons in the crowd still were trying to get into the restaurant.

2. Nazi propaganda put out for home consumption has taken a negative, almost defeatist, line in recent months. Goebbels no longer tells the Germans they are invincible and that riches will pour into thir laps from conquered countries. Instead, he tries to convince them that a horrible fate awaits them in event of an Allied victory. Apparently Goebbels has created a real fear in some minds, for a porter asked a traveller: "How will all this end? What are they going to do to us if we lose the war?"

Clothing Is Precious

3. Clothing, particularly winter garments, is becoming the most precious commodity in Germany. Advertisement in the Berlin newspaper, Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung: "Gentleman's overcoat wanted in exchange for a tricycle."

4. Royal Air force bombings have imposed a severe strain on Germany's transportation system, which also will be discussed in a separate dispatch.

5. The fact that German armies have suffered severe casualties in the Russian campaign gradually is becoming known to the public despite the attempt of authorities to put a good face on the situation. Swiss sources reported that up to October casualties among Germans sent from the Lake Constance area to Russia totalled 90 officers and 2,100 men. That is only a few less than the total casualties for the same area for all of World war I when the figures were 103 officers and 2,900 men. The wearing of mourning is discouraged by the Nazi authorities and when a soldier's next of kin is notified of his death, this letter accompanies the notice: "The fuehrer is sad enough over the loss of German life: Help him to bear this sorrow by carrying it in your heart and not displaying it in public."

People Want Peace

6. There are instances of peace talk among Germans and a resident of Stuttgart was bold enough to tell a traveller: "Peace? Of course we want peace. But how — tell me how?" But there appears to be no organized peace movement, even though there is considerable crumbling in Munich, birthplace of the Nazi party which has been heavily hit by RAF raids. Returning travellers say there is even talk of revolution in Munich, and cynics have changed the slogan — "town of the movement" —which Hitler bestowed in commemoration of the rise of the Nazi party there. They now call it, "Town of the counter-movement." But so far this has been talk — carefully guarded talk. There is no indication that people will stop talking and start acting in the immediate future.

Work Of Dies Group Scored

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Dissension in the Dies committee, which lost its official standing yesterday, boiled to the surface today on the eve of an expected request to the House to continue the group, which was formed in 1938 to investigate un-American activities.

Disagreeing with the committee's summation of the work it has done, Representative Voorhis (D-Calif) criticized his colleagues for having "neglected to strike a blow" for the unification of democracy.

Voorhis made public his minority views simultaneously with release of the committee's annual report listing, among other claimed accomplishments, assistance it has given to scores of public agencies, exposures of activities of Fascists, Nazis, Communists and Japanese, and investigations of federal employes.

Some Agencies Criticized

The majority report criticized some agencies, notably the Office of Price Administration, the Federal Communications commission and the Department of Agriculture, for having failed to dismiss employes whose Americanism the committee had questioned, and censured Attorney General Biddle for not having made a thorough probe of the background of government workers in accordance with a Congressional request.

Voorhis complained that members of the committee had no opportunity to discuss or amend the report, which was released by Robert E. Stripling, secretary and chief investigator for the committee. Voorhis said the report was handed to members on a "take it or leave it basis."

Overlooked Opportunity

But his main objection, he said, was that the committee had overlooked an opportunity to "contribut to the maximum possible extent to stiffening of the resistance of the American people to open or covert pro-Axis propaganda and to the building of a vigorous and unified democratic sentiment in the United States."

The Voorhis statement was expected to be seized upon by opponents as a strong point in their fight to block renewal of the committee, headed by Representative Martin Dies of Texas.

Dies probably will ask for a new lease on life for the committee late this month and for another appropriation.

Leonard Appointee!

this year, is from Brownsville, closer still to Leonard's home.

Leonard's withdrawal from the race left Rep. Price Daniel of Liberty apparently unopposed for the speakership. Leonard said he dropped out to promote harmony in the war-time legislative session after conferences with Governor Stevenson. Leonard has been a member of the House since 1931 and was speaker of the 47th (last) legislature.

Daniel Has Pledges

In seeking the speakership, Daniel said that he had 100 members pledged to vote for him, and 32 others offered their support as seconds to Leonard. Attempts were being made by Daniel to reach the other legislators, and if the vote appears unanimous, pre-session work of accepting committee applications will be started.

Daniel, 32, succeeded Alf Roark as a member of the House in 1939. He has been re-elected twice without opposition. A graduate of Baylor university, Waco, and a practicing attorney, Daniel is also chairman of the board of the Trinity Publishing company, publishers of the News-Vindicator at Liberty, Tex.

For three years he served on the state Democratic executive committee, and for one year was attorney for the committee. He assisted in organizing the Young Democrats of Texas and is a past president of the group.

McNutt's Statement

said.

The magazine, in an article accompanying McNutt's statements, said the day when practically every man of military age and fitness will be inducted is neither theoretical nor remote.

Dependency About Through

"Few officials will say so publicly, but few will deny off the record that dependency alone is just about through as a basis for deferment," it said.

"Meanwhile the lowering of the draft age limit to 38 would tend to intensify slightly the strain on the age groups between that figure and 20. But the inclusion of men 18 to 20 will ease it considerably for the present. In all events, the burden will fall finally with the greatest weight on the group between 20 and 30. Some studies have shown that only about 30 to 40 per cent of men over 30 are likely to prove physically fit for military service."

BANK CALL ISSUED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — The comptroller of the currency today issued a call for a statement of the condition of all national banks at the close of business Thursday, December 31.

Getting Plenty To Eat And Well, Says Japanese Prisoner

Text of a recorded message, as reported in a newspaper clipping, from Henry Thornton Sharp of Lubbock, broadcast over the Tokyo radio Dec. 23, was disclosed today by his mother, Mrs. C. C Sharp of 1807-B Tenth street.

Sharp, revealed by the Japanese as a prisoner of war in Java, was a member of the ill-fated 2nd battalion of the 131st Field Artillery which fought a valiant but losing battle to invading Nipponese hordes last winter. Information on the battalion has been scarce since that time.

Mrs. Sharp's sister, Mrs. Robert McGee of Los Angeles, heard the broadcast. It was as follows.

"Dear Mother, Friends and Family. As you probably know by now I am a prisoner of war in Java. I am getting along real well and my only need is to get back home. We get to exercise all we want to and never have to work too much. We are getting plenty to eat and have very good medical attention. I have not been injured and have never been sick at all.

"Our treatment by the Nipponese is good enough so we have nothing to complain about. I hope you are getting along all right and won't worry about me. I send my love to all my friends and hope they are doing all right. I wish I could see them now and naturally I hope it won't be long before I get back to see them all.

"For the benefit of Walter Starnater of Houston, Tex., I wish to inform all of his friends that he is okay.

"I hope this news will cheer you and cause you to worry less. God bless you and keep you all until we meet again. All my love. Henry Thornton Sharp."

W. A. Collier Dies At Home Near City

William Allen Collier, 89, died at his home, route 3, Lubbock at 9 a. m. today. Mr. Collier had lived in this vicinity for 31 years.

He is survived by two sons, W. J. Collier of San Antonio and S. F. Collier of Lubbock; two daughters, Mrs. Lizzie Showalter and Mrs. Artie Greenhill, both of Lubbock; nine grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. Bryan McDonald and Son Funeral home is in charge of arrangements which are incomplete.

Japanese Designs

formal Japanese-American conversations were getting nowhere in a situation "which might produce unforeseen contingencies."

Konoye told the President, says the white book, "that he considered it, therefore, of urgent necessity that the heads of the two governments meet first to discuss from a broad standpoint all important problems between Japan and the United States covering the entire Pacific area."

In a conversation with Secretary Hull the same day (Aug. 28) Ambassador Nomura said Prince Konoye planned to meet the President "in a Japanese warship," and that his government was "very anxious that the meeting be held at the earliest possible moment."

Hull was cool to this suggestion.

Took Alternative Plan

"Throughout September, 1941," says the white book, "the Japanese government continued to urge upon the United States an early meeting between the President and the Japanese prime minister. On Sept. 23 the Japanese ambassador told Secretary Hull that such a meeting would have a psychological effect in Japan by setting Japan on a new course; that it would counteract the influence of pro-Axis elements and provide support for the elements desiring peaceful relations with the United States."

The Japanese finally gave up and did the next best thing; they sent their special "peace" emissary, Saburo Kurusu, flying to Washington, where he and Ambassador Nomura waved the olive branch while Japanese planes crept closer to Pearl Harbor.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate foreign relations committee said Hull surely must have informed the Army and Navy of Grew's warning. Connally added:

"If the Army and Navy department knew what the state department says it knew, their tragic negligence of our security in Hawaii is all the more significant."

tion of the enemy's defeated forces" in the Buna area.

William F. Boni, Associated Press correspondent, reported from the New Guinea front that at least 800 Japanese were killed or captured in the cleanup at the Buna government station and Giropa point. Another pocket of perhaps 100 Japanese was wiped out in a 400-yard beachfront just west of Giropa point.

A high Australian officer was quoted as saying that altogether the enemy lost 1,200 in killed alone in the entire Buna operation.

RAF fighter planes continued their daily attacks on Japanese occupied villages in western Burma. The latest communique from New Delhi gave no new information on the progress of British land forces which had pushed across the Indian border into the Rathedaung area some 25 miles northwest of the west Burma port of Akyab.

Influenza during the first nine months of 1942 was little more than a quarter of the rate for the same period in 1917.

News Briefs

Lost Chow Pup? — A black Chow pup strayed to the residence of Capt. Alvin L. Smith at 2404 Twenty-second street and is being cared for there pending its owner's calling for it, police said.

Loses Purse—J. P. Stalcup of Shallowater asked police to assist him in finding his purse, described to have been laid down in the postoffice this morning when Stalcup attended to correspondence. It contained $73, two ration books and papers of identification.

Reports Prowlers — J. R Ashmore returned to his car at noon and found two strangers prowling through it. The car was parked near county jail. The men explained they thought the car belonged to "somebody else—we were looking for a name." Ashmore took down license number of a car the men left in, and turned it over to police for investigation. The men's car was registered in Terry county.

Rifle Stolen—Thomas Pardue of 2013 Ninth street informed police a .22 rifle had been stolen from his automobile, parked next his residence, Sunday night.

Bike Stripped—James Fowler of 1905 Avenue F reported to police this morning his bicycle had been stolen. Officials found it hours later—or what was left of it. It had been stripped, and only the frame was left.

No Fire Damage—Firemen said no damage was caused at 6:55 o'clock Sunday afternoon when papers on the floor of a closet on the porch of a residence at 1806 Twentieth street caught fire.

In Defense Capacity — A. H. Davis, battalion chief of the El Paso fire department, is in Lubbock in connection with fire class teacher training espoused by the Office of Civilian Defense. He will be here five days and will instruct personnel of Lubbock, Plainview and Crosbyton fire departments, as well as those of the two Army flying schools in Lubbock county.

Go After "Westernettes" — Maj. W. W. McCollum and Lt. Rose Smothers left the Army recruiting office here today for a tour of the South Plains which will take them to 15 towns and occupy their full time until Friday afternoon. The purpose is to recruit WAAC's and fill the South Plains platoon of 50 Westernettes by Jan. 9. Word also comes from the local recruiting office that another platoon of 50 from the Panhandle will be recruited at once to supplement the Rangerette platoon already organized. A revision in Maj. McCollum's itinerary for this week takes him and Lt. Smothers to Levelland at 10 a. m. Thursday, Morton at 1:30, Muleshoe at 4 p. m., and Littlefield at 8 p. m. On Friday the two will be in Floydada at 3:30 p. m.

Home From San Diego—Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Darby of Ropesville are enjoying a visit this week by their son Eugene, home from San Diego on a nine-day leave. Young Darby is a hospital corpsman, first class, and when he returns to the Pacific coast will be stationed at the U. S. Naval hospital in San Diego, being a member of the medical corps. He grew up in the Ropesville community, attended the public school there, was graduated by Lubbock high school, attended Texas Tech one year, and enlisted in the Navy last Nov. 7. He arrived home in time to spend New Year's with homefolks, but not Christmas.

Degree Candidates—J. W. Coursey of Lubbock and D. W. Matthews of Petersburg are among the 642 men who will graduate from Texas A. and M. college Jan. 22, officials announced. Coursey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Coursey, 2505 Twentieth street, is to receive a bachelor of science degree in agricultural administration, and Matthews a degree in petroleum engineering. Early graduation of the class was made possible by a streamlined program providing for three sixteen-week semesters yearly instead of two as in the past. By attending school last summer graduates have been able to complete their training a full semester ahead of normal time, it was pointed out.

Reflects Activity—Lubbock residents had 5,870 complaints charging this and that to attention of police in 1942, records on file at the police station showed this morning. The calls ranged from murder to requests that dogs be chased off property; from the "Thanksgiving dinner" roosting in the topmost branches of a tall elm to a "dead baby in a syrup can abandoned in tall weeds" (subsequently found to be a skinned rabbit).

To Market—A. R. Berger of Lubbock Furniture company left today for the furniture market in Chicago. He expects to return the first of next week.

J. Orville Smith May Get City Post

J. Orville Smith will be recommended for appointment as assistant city attorney, succeeding Vaughn E. Wilson, according to information given this morning by Durwood H. Bradley, city attorney.

The city commission asked Bradley at its meeting last week to recommend a successor to Wilson, who is scheduled to begin duties as an examiner of the Texas Railroad commission in Austin Jan. 10.

Smith was born in Plainview but has made his home in Lubbock most of his life. He is a graduate of Senior High school, Texas Technological college and the University of Texas law school. He has been practicing law here about four years, having office in Lubbock National building. He is married and has two small sons. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ran Smith, whose dairy is located northwest of Lubbock.

Wilson, a former county attorney, has been assistant city attorney about three months. He plans to go to Austin the latter part of this week. Mrs. Wilson and the children, all of whom are in school, will remain in Lubbock at least temporarily.

More Ships Of Allies Sunk

(By The Associated Press)

Navy announcement last week of the sinking by submarines of nine more merchant ships in the south Atlantic was the heaviest announced seven-day toll in more than a month.

No sinkings in other western Atlantic areas were listed, emphasizing the problem faced by shipping in the waters off South America.

Two Were U. S.

Of the nine ships announced last week as lost, four were British, three Norwegian and two flew the flag of the United States. Of the crewmen, 15 were killed and 119 reported missing.

The Associated Press count of Allied and neutral merchantmen announced as sunk in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor rose to 581 in the week. Of the total, 112 were listed as lost in the south Atlantic.

Arabs Shoot Works

spired, asked:

"New York?"

"New York," responded Humbrecht and the Arabs were delighted.

They took him to the chieftain's palace.

"It was almost fantastic," he said today.

Dinner was prepared. An Arab stood right behind him, a bottle of red wine in one hand, a bottle of white in the other. Every time Humbrecht took a sip from either of his two glasses the Arab would lean over and fill it to the rim again.

At this first banquet, Humbrecht ate four fried eggs, a steak, fried potatoes, a dish of native kush-kush, oranges, cream puffs, dates and cakes. There was coffee also.

The Arab chiefs and French officers who soon arrived took turns banqueting Humbrecht. Three times a day there was a feast.

At each Arab home he visited, a fire was lighted in his honor.

Taken To French Base

The colonel commanding the French officers drove him to the French garrison miles away. There Humbrecht was given fried chicken and put up at a desert resort hotel.

Returning to try to repair his plane, he found 200 fezed and turbaned Arabs squatting in a circle around it, just staring.

After still another banquet, this one with the leading chief, Humbrecht was taken back to the French garrison to have a banquet with a French general and a rich Arab farmer at the farmer's house.

Arabs Light Path

"A line of Arabs stood on both sides of the path to the house with lanterns, lighting the way," Humbrecht said.

"First we had steak and pork. Then we went to a side room where we had an entire roasted lamb. After that they offered me the eye of a goat.

"Then we had a round of desserts, topped off by sponge cake. Just like home."

Humbrecht spent Christmas eve with the French garrison at a European style banquet and, having repaired his plane, came back to base.

Freight Cars

tivity and the loss of the chief sources of rubber placed the major burden of transportation on the railroad.

"It is a great tribute to our transportation system and particularly to our railroads that thus far they have done all that they have been called upon to do and done it well," he said.

Little New Equipment

Little new equipment is being added. But there exists a slight surplus in freight cars which has prompted experiments with their possible use for troop movements, Eastman said. He declined to comment further, but pointed out that with the Army growing at its present rate "the problem of moving troops this year promises to become difficult."

It is known that the Pennsylvania railroad is experimenting with reconditioned freight cars for use as troop transports. Army authorities, it is understood, have already inspected one car made over with three tiers of steel berths and portholes cut in the sides for windows. The model has been described as "comfortable" and is believed to have met with approval. Railroad officials said in general only new type steel cars would be used for such purposes.

Serious Problems Seen

Turning to general problems, Eastman said:

"The transportation problem in 1943 will be serious but not critical. I'm not too optimistic about the coming year but I'm not pessimistic either. I think we'll get by."

He said the rationing of travel was not imminent.

"There are other difficulties in its administration, but the manpower factor alone is enough to give you pause," he said. "We're not contemplating passenger travel rationing except as a last resort."

The present campaign to discourage travel brought such satisfactory results that two railroads complained after the Christmas holidays that they felt the government had "gone a little too far" in urging people not to travel, he said.

The PLAINSMAN Says:

That Girl on Broadway says any man who is meek and submissive enough to allow himself to be tied to an apron string isn't worth getting hitched to.

Well, anyway, we West Texans are learning how to do a lot of staying at home on those four gallons of gas a week!

MANY Americans, including some South Plainsmen we know, chuckled the other day when they read a news item which said the Russians would not accept oleomargarine on a lend-lease-give basis; that if they couldn't get butter, they'd take lard and spread it on their bread. The news story went on to say that margarine-declining Russians like lard on their hard black bread and are willing to consume it in great quantities.

Well, it is a fairly funny thing, so the chuckles can be forgiven. But a lot of Americans who for years have turned up their noses at margarine will eat it—and like it—during 1943, providing, of course, that they can get it

Not being an expert on dietetics, The Plainsman declines to argue whether or not oleomargarine has as much food value as butter. Probably it does not.

But we're willing to bet that the average person can be given a bite of bread coated with butter; then a bite coated with margarine—and won't be able to tell the spreads apart.

The oleomargarine business has probably had more obstacles thrown in its way than any other business under the American sun.

Because their product serves most of the purposes of butter, and can be produced cheaper, margarine makers have been legally driven from pillar to post by legislatures in various sections of the country where dairymen and butter manufacturers have organized into powerful political blocs. As a result, until the current food situation grew out of the war, the makers of margarine have occupied one of two very uncomfortable positions: either behind the 8-ball, or between a rock and a hard place.

Now, however, margarine is expected to decorate many American tables—day after day and month after month—until the food emergency is over. The government, itself, forecasts, that there won't be enough margarine to go 'round. Therefore, some of the laws which, in the past, have kept people from getting oleomargarine will have to be removed—at least for the duration of the war.

HERE is a true story that should make soldiers giggle and sailors run high blood pressure. But since we have more soldiers than sailors in Lubbock, The Plainsman reckons it can be safely told.

En route home for a brief Yuletide visit with his father, W. B. Powell, of 1202 Avenue N, Ensign Bill Powell—one of 45 Avalanche-Journal staffers on leave to do a bigger job—strolled through his train to the diner. On guard outside the rolling restaurant was a burly, but polite, diningcar waiter.

Ensign Powell, who has been a single-striper for the better part of a year now, was wearing his khakis, which Navy officers wear for hard usage instead of their fancier blues. But on his uniform, of course, were the various doodads indicating rank and service.

As he started to reach for the diningcar doorknob, the dusky guard said:

"Pahdon me, sah, but the dinah is only for use of the men in the armed services!"

Postal regulation prohibit our giving you Ensign Powell's reply!

According to a grapevine telegram passed on to us by Vic Lamb, the industrious editor of the Hale Center American, shortage of gasoline, rubber and ammunition is playing hob in an unbelievable way in Hale county and environs. The three-ply shortage is giving longer life to thousands of jackrabbits which, in turn, are gobbling up everything in sight.

For years and years, frequent "jackrabbit drives" have been part and parcel of life in Hale county. Shooting the jacks from the fenders of automobiles, or from the beds of trucks, long has been a favorite pastime up that way.

Now, with all sorts of motorized transportation at a premium, and with ammunition all but impossible to corral, the jackrabbits literally are over-running the country and even wusser is expected next spring, summer and fall.

Verily, the war causes all sorts of troubles here-to-fore unsuspected. But maybe some sort of poison—harmless to stock—can be concocted to do the job.

THE other day we commented here regarding statements made by George Livermore and Charlie Gallagher that automobiles can be made to run fast, far and cheaply on butane gas—providing tanks, carburetors and service stations can be equipped to handle the fuel.

Since then we have received a report from a Washington correspondent setting out that the U. S. is on the lookout for motor fuel to take the place of the customary gasoline, made scarce in much of the nation due to transportation difficulties and shortage of steel.

American engineers, the report said, as well as our domestic charcoal experts, are making extensive studies of European experiences with "producer gas propulsion." In Sweden and Germany, fleets of essential civilian cars have been equipped with new burners and carburetors and are doing satisfactory work over long distances. With national rationing on in the U. S., and with ever-increasing war commitments, it is believed quite possible that the pinch of oil and gasoline supplies may be felt much more keenly than at present.

The London Ministry of War Transport has been investigating for some time the conversion of about 10,000 automobiles to operate on producer gas. There has been a great deal of hesitancy in pushing the program because Britain does not manufacture charcoal and the change-over would simply cause importation of the latter, instead of petroleum.

All this admittedly sounds pretty far-fetched as far as the U. S. goes—especially in West Texas where the greatest oil reserves in the world are still untapped underground.

But three years ago, most of us never would have believed there'd be a rubber shortage—and look at us now!

Is It Love?

Chapter 23
Wed But Not Wed

Johnny was going overseas and leaving her. Was that the way of a man in love, or was he man in love?

He was a soldier. The thought terrified Sue Ellen. Johnny was a soldier. He might never come back from overseas—he might be killed—

She fell asleep and dreamed of Johnny on shipboard and in danger. She had never told him that she loved him. She wore his ring, but she wasn't his wife—

Someone knocked and she said: "Come in," and sat up, with her hair spread out in a shining web about her neck and her eyes as green as the green of the dressing gown which covered her shoulders.

"Hello," said Johnny.

"Hello."

She would never hear that little word without thinking of him. Never hear it again without seeing him standing there with the door half open and his brown head ben and his eyes so serious and grey, admiring her.

"Papers all fixed," he slapped his pocket. "No more business tonight."

"Tonight?"

He smiled. "It's six-thirty. Hungry?"

She was ravenously hungry and all her doubts were gone. Whatever Johnny planned would be the course to follow. There would be time enough later for lovemaking.

He went away with her promise to meet him in twenty minutes. She could hear him whistling a marching song as he left her. The whistle died away and she sat on the edge of the couch and stared at her slippers.

Wonderful to be in love, even though the man you loved didn't know it. Someday he would know, and then—she turned and lay with her face buried in the pillow, shaken by the thought of what that day would mean to her.

'No Regrets'

While they ate their dinner, Johnny explained that they would arrive in a small Ohio River town about ten o'clock in the evening. She could remain there and cross over into Kentucky the following morning. They would return after the wedding and take a train for Cincinnati, from which point they could catch a limited for Memphis, about noon.

"Your aunts will be surprised." He smiled at her across the table.

Sue Ellen said: "Aunt Car will be delighted. You have quite won her heart, and even Aunt Pleas cannot understand how you can be a Yankee. That is the greatest compliment a southerner can pay you."

The train was late and it was eleven when they descended in the face of a blizzard. An icy sleet which cut their faces and made them cling together as they stood impatiently waiting for a small-town taxi.

It was half past eleven when they entered the over-heated ornate lobby of the town's only hotel.

"I'm going on," Johnny explained. "ou register here, and I'll stay across the river. I'll make all the arrangements and be back for you about ten in the morning. Get a good rest—don't worry. No regrets?"

The eyes she turned to him were shining. "No regrets."

"Good. See you tomorrow." He took her hand and her fingers clung to his and again that gleam in his steady eyes hinted that someday — someday soon they would not be parting. She would belong to Johnny then. Right now her love was hidden. It was a secret she would carry until that day. A day when all the upset and uncertainty of her love affair with Riv would be behind them. When Johnny would know that what she felt was no passing infatuation because he had been kind, but something deep and real.

"Good night," she said softly.

She stood and watched Johnny leave. His military overcoat turned up to his ears his head bent against the storm as he opened the door and wind and snow and sleet rushed in to meet him.

She slept that night. A deep and dreamless sleep, from which she awoke with the sun shining brightly through the long hotel window. She bathed and dressed in her warmest dress, a leaf-brown wool with wooden buttons. With her fur coat over her arm, she went down to meet Johnny.

He was waiting in the lobby. "Hello."

"Hello."

"Susan Eleanor Fairhope Harris. Not bad," he decided. "Not at all bad. What do you think?"

She could only smile. Something arose in her throat and choked her this November morning. All her surroundings were strange, but Johnny was not strange. It seemed the most natural thing in the world to be sitting across from him at breakfast. "Eat," he ordered. "Getting married is serious business and we may have a late lunch." He consulted his watch as he drank his third cup of coffee. "We'll have just two hours, but I've gone through the preliminaries, which are pretty sketchy. Kentucky is a popular place since the draftees started rushing down south to take advantage of a state where there is no three-day limit."

"The marriage will be legal?" she gasped.

He threw back his head and laughed. "You'll be legally married," he assured her. "You'll be Mrs. Johnny Harris, U. S. A., until you decide to take a trip out to Reno to dissolve it."

Before she thought ,she said: "But I don't plan to do that." Then the color spread across her cheeks and up to the brim of her smart green felt hat.

"You're a thoroughbred," said Johnny. "Shall we go?"

Kentucky, with the Ohio River a sheet of ice behind them and the hills blurring into blue in the distance against the bright winter sky. Narrow village streets and a shabby little office where Johnny picked up the license. Then a soft-spoken Methodist minister who eyed them gravely. "You, John Harris, take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife—"

Johnny's "I do" was deep and reverent.

"You, Susan Eleanor Fairhope, take this man—" She looked up and for an instant the expression in Johnny's eyes blinded her. Some of the emotion she felt crept into her voice as she made her responses.

They were married. Johnny's ring on her slender finger and then his arms were about her holding her tight. His lips were hard and firm against her soft mouth for a moment. "The preacher expects this," he whispered in explanation.

She wondered what her lips

A FINE PIECE OF ESSENTIAL WORK

The speed and efficiency with which the City of Lubbock has attended to the removal of broken limbs and brush resulting from the ice storm of Dec, 20-21 merit the appreciation of the citizenship as a whole.

As will be recalled, the storm occurred during the night of Dec. 20-21. The City commission held a called meeting the afternoon of Dec. 21 to authorize the employment of men and trucks to remove the debris. Twelve trucks were put on the job the next morning.

The job has been a stupendous one. Approximately 500 truckloads of limbs and brush already have been hauled away. About half that many remain to be hauled. Yet, with reasonable weather, the expectation is that the job will be finished this week. For this fine work the chief individual credit is due C. D. McGehee, city park superintendent, who has direct supervision of the job.

Meanwhile, it is pleasant to contemplate his expert opinion that the number of trees actually killed by the storm will be negligible. Likewise his assurance is most encouraging that most of the trees will, of themselves, repair the damage they have suffered without other attention—even though expert treatment might be beneficial if given by those who actually are expert.

FINE Stories I Never Wrote: I never wrote this one because it is a "Passion in the Desert," worthy of a minor Balzac. It is the year 1935. The scene is the Dust Bowl. Here is the Colorado-Oklahoma border. On either side lie hell's half-million acres.

The land has been picked up by rapacious winds. The sun hides behind clouds that hold no rain. The earth has lost its fibre and gone dead, and been sucked up into the sky.

Once it was strong, deep in grass. Bison and cattle grazed upon it. Then came the first World War and $2 wheat.

Delilah took Samson's hair, the source of his strength, and he died. Two-dollar wheat took the thousand-year mat of sod off the plains. It was ploughed under. The strength of the topsoil was bare to the winds. The land died. Men and animals died. The soil dissolves and thickens the air. Bones and bare clay make up the setting of a new Inferno.

You hold a damp handkerchief to your nose to breathe. Then suddenly, at a turn in the road, there in an old, wizened house, once a stage stop. You screech your brakes and drive in. You can buy soft drinks there, but you may have only half a cup of water.

A cramped old crow of a woman apologize to you. Water must be hauled 40 miles, and there is hardly enough for her plants.

She crooks an arm toward a side window, and there — there is such an oasis as the Koran pledges to the faithful! Geraniums, begonias, rubber plants, climbing ferns and trailing ivy, clematis, African violets. The old lady tries to explain why she rations human beings to keep the plants alive and vivid.

"You've got to have something green, you know, because, well, mister, you just got to have something green! I keep them livin'; they keep me livin'."

I never wrote this one because for a long time I didn't think you should tell about seeing the President of the United States in his flowing, old-fashioned nightgown. It is 1924. On the second floor of Walter Reed Hospital in Washington there are two rooms. In one, Calvin Coolidge, jr., lies dying. He had blistered his foot playing tennis. A fatal infection has set in, an infection that the sulfa drugs of today would have cured.

In the other room, Calvin Coolidge, sr., is sleepless It is dawn. Three of us, by agreement, are representing the entire press on the "death watch." I have been awake 72 hours. I have had black coffee every half hour. I must get out for fresh air.

I tiptoe to keep from crunching the gravel of the driveway. I don't want to look up, though I know someone is watching me. So I turn my eyes up through the screen of my eyebrows.

The President of the United States stands there like any little Vermont farmer just out of bed, silent as always, flicking a glance at me, then looking at the dawn, knowing his boy won't see another.

Somehow, to me, that dawn —with his old-fashioned nightgown and all—the grieving President was a figure of imperishable greatness and dignity.

I never wrote this before, because I loved Elizabeth McCourt (Baby Doe) Tabor. She was very old. I was very young. It was not a romantic love, but the adoration of youth for a great woman who was also a great lady.

She was a legend of a woman, inaccessible. Remember, she had been the wife of "the richest man in the world," Senator H. A. W. Tabor, the Silver King, who never knew even when he lost them how many millions he had owned. The name of Tabor was to the world then as are the names of Rockefeller and Ford now.

But the bottom fell out of silver. Tabor died. His widow lived on, in a miserable one-room shack in Leadville, Colo., trying to save two things: her memory of their daughter, Silver Dollar Tabor, and her claim to the Matchless mine, held in the clutches of creditors and litigation.

Now Silver Dollar Tabor had set out to make a name for herself. But like many a rich girl, suddenly plunged into poverty, she couldn't take the toughness and coldness of the world. She never found fame, but she was in headlines when she was burned to death in a fire in a sordid Chicago rooming-house.

"Baby Doe" Tabor would never admit her daughter was dead.

I met the old lady one day in Denver, where she had come to try to reclaim the Matchless. No newspaperman had been able to get to her for years. I got to her by the simple expedient of knocking on the door of her cheap hotel room and starting to talk to her.

We became friends. She told me her daughter, Silver, was alive, and that she often had letters from the girl. She spoke of her as "My Darling" and "My Honeymaid."

"Baby Doe" had such charm, you could talk with her and never realize she was dressed in an old blue denim shirt, a horrid, rough, faded wool skirt, and heavy miner's shoes.

She died one day in her Leadville shack, alone. She knew she had lost her fight to save the Matchless.

And, as I rummaged through the pitiful possessions of this woman, once the beloved of "the world's richest man," I found evidence she had lost the fight to convince herself of the thing she had always upheld to the world.

In the corner of the battered bureau was a crumpled pair of stockings, a young girl's stockings. Pinned to them was a note in "Baby Doe's" handwriting which I still have. It said:

"Silver's stockings. O, Lord, where is she?"

Food Shortages No One's Fault But Our Own

BY PETER EDSON
Journal Washington Correspondent

APPARENTLY the only answer which Washington can give on relief for the increasing shortages in foodstuffs, fuels and practically every other "necessity" of daily life is rationing and still more rationing.

EDSON

Easing up on the restrictions wouldn't help—it would merely make the shortages more acute and the shortages are growing worse.

It is noteworthy, however, that most of the grief is now being experienced with commodities which are not yet under rationing control, or which are just beginning to be rationed.

Sugar rationing has now settled down to a routine which no one worries about. The coffee situation was rather hectic in the rush before rationing took effect, but that storm is subsiding. There may be a clearing storm when consumers are forced to declare their stocks of coffee hoarded on Nov. 27, but it will pass.

Currently the worst headaches are fuel oil and gasoline rationing on a national basis. Gas rationing in the east was so well established that when a military diversion was ordered on petroleum products from this area, the shutdown for civilians on A, B and C rations for several days was almost without incident.

But if the country gets through the winter without rioting over shortages of some of these commodities which will be rationed later, it will be the luckiest break in the war.

STAPLES LACKING

ANYONE who goes to market can tell what these shortages are. Meats, canned goods, some dried fruits, butter, other fats and oils, other dairy products. Later it may be towels, sheets and pillowcases. Still later, clothing.

To people who don't stop to think, encountering these shortages may be an indication that the country's entire national economy has broken down.

The sad fact is that the news there's a war on still hasn't registered with millions of people. The reasons there are meat shortages and canned goods shortages and butter shortages will probably have to be told again and again and yet again and again before they sink in.

There will be critical shortages in all these commodities until the machinery for government rationing can be worked out and put in effect on a national basis. Rationing is simply an equal distribution of a scarce item.

Many American people have behaved like stampeded cattle. They have rushed in to buy and hoard, to consume more than their fair share. As long as there were no compulsory controls, they bought by the dozen bags coffee that will certainly grow stale before it is used, they bought butter by the eight and 10-pound lot where one and two-pound purchases were the custom, they filled pantry shelves with stocks of canned goods that could keep the family going for a fortnight. The people who haven't done these things are the ones who suffer.

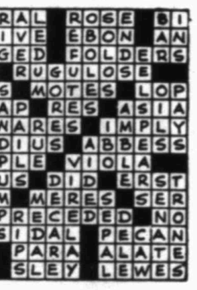

NATURE A CHEAT

THE point is that voluntary control over the distribution of scarce commodities is a complete failure The trouble isn't with the voluntary controls. The trouble is human nature which prompts people to lie, cheat, steal, chisel, hoard and in general behave like guttersnipes as long as compliance is left on a voluntary basis. Put on their honor, enough people will display that they haven't any to such a degree they'll spoil life for decent people who have.

Voluntary meat rationing was typical The government asked people to consume at the rate of 2 1-2 pounds—40 ounces—per week for the last three months of 1942. Distributors were asked to hold back on deliveries. And in most localities the three-months' quotas were consumed in from eight to 10 weeks.

It is hoped that compulsory meat rationing, when it can be put into effect nationally, will end such sorry spectacles.

Serial Story—"Is It Love?" . . . .

had told him. He gave no sign. He slid a bill into the preacher's hand. He was as matter-of-fact now as though he were back explaining the rotation of crops at Belle Acres.

He was doing nothing to alarm her and she loved him for it, even though she wished that he might guess what her marriage meant to her. She had grown up wishing for security and foolishly thinking security was a material thing. Now she had a security which was like an armor, something vital and real, which would last as long as life lasted — if Johnny really cared and if what he had done had not been done solely to offer assistance to Aunt Car.

Almost she was jealous of Aunt Car. She would be jealous of anyone who came before her in Johnny's affections.

More About Deedora

Did he love her? The thought obsessed her. One moment she read love into every glance from his clear grey eyes. She next studied his face anxiously until every feature became so familiar to her she could close her eyes and see him clearly. She watched him, and then when he surprised her eyes fastened upon him, she forced herself to be light and casual as she discussed their marriage.

What a fool he must think her, when he knew that only a few days before she had rushed to Washington to make Riv marry her. Now she was married to him, and how could she convince him that in that short time her heart had changed? Or had it changed? Rather, hadn't she been blind and too stubborn to see what she had felt for Johnny even back in Tyler Springs?

They left Kentucky and drove back across the river to collect her bags. They were just in time to catch the train for Cincinnati. Another quick change and they boarded the Memphis limited.

For the first time Johnny revealed his plans for their future as they sat together over a late lunch.

"I have to report to camp immediately," he told her, "and get things simplified for you. I shall be at Camp Shelby a month, possibly two, and then I expect to get an important commission which may take me abroad. No one can be sure, but my father believes that's the way it will be. That will make it easier for you. You will have time to think over what you want to do in the future. If you meet someone you want to marry, you only have to tell me. If you should want to revive your affair with Moore—I'll try to understand."

"Riv is married to another girl."

Afterwards she realized that this remark did not express what Johnny wanted to know. It might even indicate that she was sore at heart, for he withdrew his hand from hers.

He said thoughtfully: "Frankly, I believe that Deedora cares for Riv Moore in spite of all her assertions that she hates him. Probably her present condition makes her bitter—"

She started at him in blank astonishment.

"Deedora is going to have a child," he told her bluntly.

She felt terribly shaken. Riv had been a coward not to tell her of his marriage, but the fact that he would plan to break off with Deedora, urged her to marry him as soon as he could get a release from Deedora— "It can't be true," she stammered.

"She told me the evening you came out to see her."

He changed the subject quickly.

There'll Be Plenty Of Bread Knives, WPB Officials Say

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Take your choice of wavy sawtooth or straight edges, experts of the War Production board said today—there are plenty of knives to cut bread.

Starting late next month bakers won't carve the loaf for you because of a government order to keep down the price of bread despite more expensive flour.

The government declined to enter the public controversy of bygone days on what shape of edge cuts bread easiest.

"Any knife at least seven inches long—and sharp—will cut bread," one expert said.

Although most bakery bread has been pre-sliced for years, knives suitable for cutting bread are still being manufactured at a maximum rate, limited by WPB, of 60 per cent of 1941 levels. This rate, officials said, should be enough for all normal demand, provided housewives make prudent use of their knives—not use them as can openers, for instance.

Caste System Main Problem For India

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW DELHI, Jan. 2 (Delayed)—History provides few human tragedies so awful as that of India's 60,000,000 untouchables who are condemned by tradition to live as pariahs just as their ancestors have done for hundreds of years.

That word "pariah", says a lot, by the way. Here in this ancient land it is applied both to the person who is an outcast from society and to the gaunt wild dog which by day skulks outside the cities and towns and by night races wailing through the streets in search of garbage and offal with which to fill his hungry belly.

The War Today

The untouchable will tell you that there isn't much to choose between the life of the man and that of the beast. Many would feel that the advantage rests with the dog. After all, he isn't condemned to such tasks as emptying night vessels for his betters and he is not lucky enough to live as long as the man.

I've just come from talking with Dr. Bhimrao Ramji Ambedkar, champion of the untouchables, and I want him to tell you what this stigma means and how he is working to drag his people up out of the slough of despond.

Dr. Ambedkar Is Leader

You doubtless know Dr. Ambedkar already as a leader who is trying to secure a place in the sun for the untouchables under the new constitution which has been promised India.

He is a lawyer by profession—a man of wide learning who has been educated in Columbia, London and Bombay universities. Now he is a member for labor in the viceroy's council and from that post he is fighting the battle of the depressed classes.

He is a striking exemplification of the truth that God made the untouchable the same as the other natives of India, but the religious caste system has challenged the work of the Almighty.

Caste System Explained

That caste system with its innumerable ramifications permeates the whole structure of society.

Let Dr. Ambedkar take up the recital:

"In order that you may understand our problem I must start at the beginning and give you some of the fundamental facts. One of these is that India is a land of villages. There are few towns and cities, but there are 700,000 villages.

"Now the villages consists of two sections. There is the village proper and apart from it there is the settlement of the untouchables. This depressed class represents on an average perhaps one-tenth of the total population of the village.

Not Part Of Village

"The untouchables are not a part of the village but are wholly outside its life, though for purposes of taxation they are regarded as in the village. These untouchable settlements have no economic independence.

"They have no land. In some places, like the Punjab, they are forbidden by law to own land.

"Thus the untouchable is helpless and dependent on the village for his livelihood. All ways of earning a living are blocked to him except for the lowest and most menial tasks. Because he is untouchable nobody, for example, should buy butter, milk or vegetables from him if he had any to sell.

Can't Wear Ornaments

"Untouchables may not wear ornaments. They may not even have metal utensils, but must use clay. I've known places where women have been assaulted for carrying brass pots to the well. The villagers took offense.

"The whole administration of the country—the whole civil service, police, judiciary, etc.—is mainly in the hands of Hindus and partly in the hands of Moslems. Untouchables have no place in it.

"If an untouchable has a quarrel with the village then the police prosecute. The regular courts won't deal with it, or if they do they handle it badly and in favor of the Hindu. The case always goes against the untouchable. There is no possibility of his getting justice.

Remedy Is Tried

"We tried to remedy this situation by claiming for the depressed classes seats in the provincial legislatures. The untouchables have 151 seats of a total of 1,558 and these were given to us by way of safeguard.

"The problems are, first, how to protect ourselves from local tyranny in the villages and, second, how to get justice at the hands of the police and magistracy.

"Here is my solution:

"All these scattered settlements of untouchables should be removed and regrouped into villages of their own. There is a lot of free land in India which can be cultivated. The government should provide the money and in 20 years the change could be made.

"We want to escape from perpetual slavery to the Hindus. We want to be free people in our own villages.

"As regards the police and magistracy we should have a certain number of places reserved for us in those security services.

"We look to America to come to our rescue in the settlement of the Indian question."

Strange Fate Brings Aerial Enemies Together Afoot On Lonely Coast Of New Guinea

(By The Associated Press)

PALESTINE, Jan. 4—From far away jungles comes a war story woven around a strange fate that brought aerial enemies together afoot on the lonely eastern coast of New Guinea.

Sergeant John Riley Henson, 22, bomber gunner home on a furlough, said, "we were flying over Lae on a bombing mission. Japanese anti-aircraft fire fouled our hydraulic system and a Jap Zero fighter shot out our left engine. The strain on the other engine soon burned it out so we released our bombs and prepared to set her down on the water, 10 miles from shore."

Two Fliers Killed

In the fight with the Jap Zero two members of the American crew were killed. The remaining five scrambled into rubber life rafts as the big ship hit the sea.

Eighteen hours later the Americans reached shore and wandered into a native trading post. After dispatching a native with a note by boat on a long and circuitous trip toward Port Moresby, the Americans settled down for three weeks with the natives, and it was during this time that a Japanese aviator, armed, wandered into the camp.

Graduate Of U. C. L. A.

"The Jap bailed out of his own plane during a fight," said Henson.

"We were startled when he walked into our camp but when he started speaking good English we learned he was a graduate of U. C. L. A. He offered us his gun and assured us he didn't want to fight Americans."

When the Americans finally boarded a trading boat and started back for Port Moresby they took the Japanese prisoner with them. The captain of the boat, said Henson, did not want to give the Americans a place to sleep nor did he want to give them much to eat.

"The Jap liked us so well that he held the gun on the captain and made him give us everything we wanted. Also he stood guard over us while we slept to make sure we were not bothered."

Jap Was Bitter

At Port Moresby the Jap was interned. Later he was sent to Australia.

Henson does not tell the account out of affection for the Japanese because he had battled them in the skies in 16 raids against Rabaul and Lae. He said he had shot three of them out of the skies and declared, "they're too yellow to come out and fight without plenty of advantage."

The Jap was bitter against his government which, he told Henson, had called him home under the promise that he was to be given a high diplomatic position. Instead he was hustled into training as a combat pilot.

ANOTHER CASUALTY

DALLAS, Jan. 4. (AP)—The Navy announced Saturday through its zone public relations office that the name of Ernest Linwood Moore, jr., coxswain, U. S. Coast Guard, has been added to the list of dead in last Thursday's casualty list No. 19.

Coxswain Moore's father, Ernest Linwood Moore of Stamford has been notified.

RAF Balance Of Losses Turns In Favor Of British, Air Ministry Figures Reveal

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Jan. 4 — Royal Air Force fighters and anti-aircraft fire destroyed 738 enemy planes over the British Isles and the continent during 1942, it was announced today.

The air ministry's news service said that as in the preceding two years the fighter command had maintained the balance of losses in its favor although most of its actions were over enemy-held territory. It lost 593 planes, but the pilots of 49 of the machines were saved and many others bailed out and are believed to be prisoners.

Nazi Losses Total 10,573

German losses, equivalent to 62 squadrons, included 443 planes shot down on the enemy's side of the channel, the report said. Over England, 118 enemy planes were shot down during daylight hours and 177 during night raids.

The latest figures brought to 10,573 the number of enemy aircraft Britain has destroyed in Europe and the Middle East since the war started.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)
