Sworn-in Monday...

Castillo, Fowler accept posts

Fred Castillo and Joe Fowler were officially sworn in Monday as new city council members — filling vacancies created by the resignations of former council members Truett Bryan and Mickey Nunley.

Both men are current members of the City Planning and Zoning Commission — a position they must now relinquish.

A member of the Lions' Club, Castillo serves a variety of civic duties including vice president of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce. He is also a member of the Scurry County Fair Association board and the Scurry County Historical Commission. He serves as county coordinator of Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Stamford).

Fowler, owner of his own insurance agency here, is the current chairman of the Industrial Foundation Committee.

The two men took their oath of office during the regular June session of the council Monday.

In other action, council members addressed repairs to the wooden paddle stirring wheel at the city's water treatment plant.

They okayed authorizing some $3,500 for brackets to attach skirting to the settling basin at the plant.

This would bring total repair costs for the settling basin to some $20,000.

Max Smith with Triple F Controls said the cost for the project, in addition to the $3,500, is estimated at some $16,771. That estimate was approved in March.

Councilmen agreed also to use coated carbon steel to replace the basin's wooden mixing wheel.

Last March, city officials noted the "disintegration" of the bushing which serves as the pivot point for the wheel.

The bottom half of the wheel's shaft has also been worn away, it was noted.

In other city business, the council:

No pass, no play rule called 'overkill'

AUSTIN (AP) — A national survey says that Texas' controversial no pass, no play rule amounts to "overkill," but that's a finding the state's education commissioner disputes.

The Texas Association of Secondary School Principals asked executives of counterpart associations in other states for details of their laws on eligibility for participation in extracurricular activities, and 43 responded.

"Texas has shown overkill in legislation dealing with no pass, no play," the association concluded Monday.

"Practically all states require a student to pass only three, four or five courses to be eligible to participate in extracurricular activities," it said. "These states take into account extreme conditions not under the control of students that sometimes affect student achievement."

Only Hawaii and the District of Columbia require youngsters to pass all their courses, the survey indicated. Four states leave eligibility decision to local districts, and some California cities have rules as strict as those in Texas.

But state Education Commissioner Bill Kirby downplayed the survey and said the no pass, no play rule — which bars students from extracurricular activities for six weeks after getting a failing grade — is a model other states are adopting.

Cloudburst drops added inch here; 2 at J.B. Thomas

A cloudburst of rain Monday around 4:30 p.m. filled many Snyder low areas with water and contributed another inch of moisture to the year's rain total.

City streets which flooded with the sudden downpour were essentially clear shortly after 6 p.m., however.

Barricades were erected in some low spots, but Deep Creek never exceeded its channel at 28th St.

Rain of from ½ to 2 inches also fell at Lake J.B. Thomas, but water district officials said Tuesday it did not produce significant runoff or greatly improve the lake's level.

"We're getting rain, but it's on the lake itself and not the watershed near Gail," said O.H. Ivie, manager for the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

The lake has risen just over 1 ft. from the recent rainfall. It now stands at just over 2,218 ft. above sea level. This same time last year, the lake was at approximately 2,220 ft.

The rains are expected to be beneficial for Scurry County agriculture, however — particularly for farmers able to complete their cotton planting before the rainfall began last Thursday.

The rainfall Monday raised Snyder's year-to-date amount above the 7 inch level — the total generally considered "normal" as of June 1 here.

The southeastern portion of the county near Hermleigh received only a sprinkle Monday afternoon, while Fluvanna and Lloyd Mountain in the northern areas received amounts ranging from .50 to .80 of an inch.

Dunn located due south of Snyder received some .70 of an inch. Approximately 1 inch was reported further west near Ira.

The Snyder area has a 50 percent chance for more thunderstorms Tuesday. Some of these could produce heavy rainfall, it was forecast.

The chance for thunderstorms Wednesday was expected to decrease to 40 percent.

Proposed 'buffalo' generates debate of 'history vs. art'

A proposal to place a new bronze statue of a buffalo on the downtown Snyder square turned into a "history versus art" debate Monday from members of the Scurry County Historical Commission.

The project has been proposed as a replacement for Snyder's famous "white buffalo" statue, in place on the square since 1967.

At Monday's meeting, the "art" argument sided with portraying a new buffalo statue as a "dynamic" bull standing some 7 ft. at the shoulder.

But the historically accurate description of the albino buffalo shot by county pioneer J. Wright Mooar is of a small, white buffalo cow — a type now portrayed by the existing statue made of fiberglass.

"As a historical commission, it is part of our charter to preserve history. How can we approve history inaccurately?" asked committee member Jean Everett.

Brud Boren, a longtime commission member and one of the instigators of the original white buffalo statue, echoed this thought, "If we approve a statue in connection with the historial marker, I think it's important to history to keep it a cow."

The marker he was referring to commemorates Mooar shooting the rare albino buffalo — reportedly only one of eight ever killed in the U.S. — on Oct. 7, 1876. The marker now stands on the northwest corner of the downtown square beside the white buffalo statue.

Harry Krenek, another commission member, noted, however, "History is full of inac-

The feller on Deep Creek says, "One good thing about an egotist...he doesn't talk about other people."

A few days ago we printed some excuses given patrolmen for speeding. Since that time, a few more have been offered, and we find that motorists are pretty innovative in their mostly unsuccessful effort to talk their way out of a citation.

In Dallas, a woman was pulled over for speeding in a school zone. She explained to the officer, "I just let my daughter out at school and if I don't get away from her, I'm going to kill her."

Here are some others:

"I was just hurrying to get out of the school zone before the children got there."

"Yes, I know I was speeding. The brakes are out on this car and I'm going to the parts house to get parts to fix it."

"You are not going to believe this, but Barney fell in my lap, and I was trying to get him back into the box." Barney turned out to be a pet rattlesnake the motorist kept in a cake box.

"Please don't write me a ticket. You wrote me one yesterday."

"I was in a hurry to catch that train. Haven't you heard that if you go under an underpass when a train is going over, you make a wish and it will come true."

"Yes, I saw the ugly policeman waving his fist at me and I went around him to get away from him."

Some are honest. A man stopped for speeding near Dallas said he was exceeding the speed limit because police were after him. A check revealed he was right—an outstanding arrest warrant for him for theft by check.

Many are just excited when stopped. The best is a man who nervously explained why he was speeding in a residential neighborhood.

"My wife's about to get pregnant and I have to be there." Obviously he meant to say his wife was about to have a baby. The man got off with a verbal warning and a police escort to the hospital.

This statement once appeared on a DPS accident form: "My girlfriend kissed me. I lost control and woke up in the hospital."

June grand jury returns indictments

The Scurry County grand jury Monday returned nine felony indictments against eight individuals including two men accused of beating and robbing a paraplegic here on May 7.

Indicted on one count of robbery each were 22-year-old Lucio Ramirez Jr. of 1012 26th St. and 21-year-old Macario Hernandez Jr. of 2204 Ave. I.

They are alleged to have beaten and robbed 25-year-old Juan Hermosillo of 701 30th St. Hermosillo was found May 7 on the Ennis Creek Road north of Snyder after apparently being dumped from a car.

Both defendants were jailed late last week in Devine by authorities acting on arrest warrants issued here.

Tuesday morning, Ramirez and Hernandez remained in the Scurry County Jail in lieu of bonds set at $10,000 each.

Also indicted Monday was 57-year-old Floyd Eugene Breedlove of Rt. 2, Snyder.

He is now ordered to stand trial for one count of indecency with a child in connection with an incident allegedly involving himself and a 14-year-old boy on May 24.

In Brief

Polish probe

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Polish government announced today the military prosecutor's office has begun investigating charges that captured Solidarity underground leader Zbigniew Bujak plotted to overthrow Poland's Communist system by force.

The government accused the 31-year-old Bujak of having links with "foreign subversive centers."

More fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fierce fighting pitted Shiite Moslems against Sunni militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas today around refugee camps and in the two major west Beirut commercial districts. Police said 23 people died and 113 were wounded.

Nuke deaths

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet doctor said today two more people injured in the Chernobyl nuclear disaster have died, bringing the death toll to 25. He said 18,000 people initially were hospitalized after the accident.

Local

AD to meet

Budget work for the Scurry County Appraisal District will begin Tuesday when the board of directors meet in regular session.

Board members will begin deliberations on the 1987 appraisal and collection budgets during the 8 p.m. meeting in the district's office on College Avenue.

In other action, members will review the 1985 outside audit report prepared by Jerry Vestal and will approve district bills.

Trivia address

Individuals interested in entering a "Beef Trivia Game" sponsored by the local chapter of the Tejas CowBelles should submit these to June Wall, Rt. 1, Box 322, Snyder, by next Monday.

A drawing to determine the winner will be held and a $25 beef certificate presented.

The questions in the trivia game were printed in Sunday's "Scurry County Folks."

Russian evacuees to return home

MOSCOW (AP) — The first few hundred of 92,000 people evacuated from around the Chernobyl nuclear power plant will return home soon, but conditions for the remaining evacuees are "far from desirable," the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said today.

Pravda made clear that the estimated 25,000 people who lived in the town of Pripyat, adjoining the Chernobyl power plant, will not be among those returning home soon, and that they will not be home before fall at earliest.

An explosion and fire stuck one of four reactors at the Chernobyl plant 80 miles north of Kiev on April 26. An American bone marrow specialist, Dr. Robert Gale, has said that 23 people have died as a result of the accident and the radiation it released.

Pravda reported that the evacuees faced long lines for food and other necessities, and printed a long list of complaints about the failings of the Ministry of Energy to improve their living conditions.

Local agricultural authorities have begun organizing decontamination work on farms. Anatoly Shchekin, the head of the Communist Party organization in Chernobyl, said flax and lupines would be uprooted and winter grains sown in some places.

All fields that were supposed to be planted in corn will be sown instead with long-life grasses, Pravda reported, suggesting these fields will not yield crops for many years.

Pravda also said the whereabouts of 177 of the 2,611 Communist Party members in Pripyat are unknown more than a month after the Chernobyl accident.

Soviet media have reported occasional cases in which party members and others deserted their comrades after the accident, which released a cloud of radiation eventually detected around the world.

Some missing party members may be among the evacuees

Mandatory Drug Testing Creates Endless Mischief

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about passing a law that will require everyone to submit to a drug test? I say, if you're clean, you have nothing to worry about, right?

CLEAN AND NOT WORRIED

DEAR CLEAN: Wrong. I'm "clean," too, but I am opposed in principle to mandatory testing for everyone. Why? Because a lot of innocent people who have never used drugs and probably never will, will test "positive." According to Dr. William H. Anderson, who teaches at Harvard and Tufts, the most reliable drug test is no more than 90 percent accurate.

So what happens to the unlucky 10 percent of the people who could be labeled "drug abusers," but aren't? They could lose their jobs, be forced to submit to weekly drug tests for years and have their reputations ruined. There is no end to the undeserved misery and mischief it could create.

I say, if there is legitimate reason to test someone, fine. But to demand that everyone be tested for drugs is unconstitutional and a violation of civil rights.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know what really makes my day? It's when the phone rings while I'm up in the attic, down the basement, in the bathroom, taking a nap, out in the garage, under the house or out in the garden.

Yesterday I was in the garden when I heard the phone ring. I was in the midst of scattering seeds and fertilizer, but I jerked upright and made a dash for the porch when the phone rang again. With filthy fingers, I clawed the screen door open, ricocheted off a doorway, sprinted down the hall as the phone rang a third time. I lunged for the phone and snatched up the receiver just in time to hear a "click" — then a dial tone!

I replaced the receiver, looked down at my muddy footprints and quietly exclaimed, "Oh (bleep)!"

Abby, if someone thinks I am worth a telephone call, wouldn't you think he would have the common courtesy to let the phone ring six or eight times before hanging up? Agreed?

GEORGE L. HARVEY, MOUNTAIN VIEW, HAWAII

DEAR GEORGE: Agreed. Only I'd recommend letting it ring 10 or 12 times. A possible solution: a cordless phone that you can carry.

DEAR ABBY: I was one of the 30,000 who submitted a letter to correspond with a Marine on Okinawa through "Operation Dear Abby."

This has got to be the world's greatest coincidence: My letter was given to a young Marine, Mickey. I had written a short letter about myself and life in California and enclosed my picture. Well, Mickey wrote back really fast, and when I received his letter I went into total shock. He sent me his picture and told me he still loved me!

Abby, he and I had been childhood sweethearts — better yet, summer lovers! We had met in Hawaii in 1980 while vacationing with our families. (I was 15 and Mickey was 18.) It was one of the best summers of my life. We kept in touch for a while. Then he went into the service and we lost touch. His family moved, so there was no way I could locate him.

In April I celebrated my 21st birthday, and to my surprise, flowers were delivered to me at my office from Mickey by Mickey himself — in person!

He's still in the service, but stationed stateside (in California). We're engaged to be married and making up for lost time.

Thanks, Abby, for a happy ending! Love,

MICKEY & MINNIE IN ANAHEIM

Man pleads guilty to killing man

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin man who prosecutors say shot another man in the face with a sawed-off shotgun because he was driving too slowly pleaded guilty to murder in exchange for a 30-year prison sentence.

Manuel Espinoza, 22, pleaded guilty Monday to the Feb. 17 slaying of 44-year-old Louis Garcia Jr.

Garcia was driving a friend home when a car drove up behind them on a city street and pulled alongside, said Brian Case, an assistant Travis County district attorney.

The second car's occupants yelled obscenities at Garcia and his passenger for driving slowly, Case said.

The second car then drove up the street, stopped and backed up to Garcia's car, which had stopped to allow the passenger out at his house.

A man in the back seat pulled a shotgun from his coat and fired point-blank at Garcia's head before the car sped away, Case said. Garcia died shortly after.

Several weeks later, an informant told police that the second car's driver was Gilbert Espinoza, the defendant's brother. Police questioned Gilbert Espinoza, who said that his brother had killed Garcia, Case said.

A stipulation in the plea bargain struck Monday in state District Judge Mace Thurman's court was that there be a finding that a deadly weapon was used in the murder.

Merkt decision delights workers

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Three sanctuary movement activists convicted last month of participating in an alien-smuggling conspiracy expressed joy Monday at the federal government's dismissal of charges in Texas against sanctuary worker Stacey Lynn Merkt.

The Rev. John M. Fife III, a Presbyterian minister considered a co-founder of the grassroots nationwide movement, said, "First of all, we're delighted for Stacey."

But he said it also was clear government officials "realized that they had no chance of criminalizing sanctuary work in this (Ms. Merkt's) case."

Ms. Merkt, 31, had been convicted in May 1984 on a charge of transporting illegal aliens but the case was overturned last summer by a federal appellate court, saying the jury had been given improper instructions.

But a federal judge in Brownville on Monday granted the government's motion to dismiss, requested on the basis that the government was having difficulty finding witnesses.

Fife said the government has decided that "it cannot sustain a prosecution of Stacey Merkt."

He said that decision, coupled with last week's declaration by the city council in Rochester, N.Y., to declare that city a sanctuary for Central Americans considered political refugees, "are both very hopeful signs for the sanctuary movement as a whole, especially so close to the Tucson trial."

Fife said he placed little credibility in the government's stated reason about difficulty in finding witnesses in Ms. Merkt's case.

Another of the six Tucson defendants who were convicted of conspiracy, Philip Willis Conger, said, "It's great that they (government prosecutors) backed off for whatever reason."

"I don't know that I would go so far as to call it a new beginning. I haven't sat down and thought about the political implications of it all," he said.

But Willis-Conger said it appeared that "the government has decided it can't get any more out of the situation with Stacey."

Administration tries to keep its secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, after leading an hour-long Cabinet-level discussion on leaks of classified and sensitive information, is still weighing strategies for battling unauthorized disclosures, a spokesman said.

Reagan conferred with top-level officials Monday to discuss recommendations from lower-level aides on how to deal with what the administration considers to be a serious problem of leaks of unauthorized information.

"It was a discussion. It was not a decision-making meeting," said Edward Djerejian, a White House deputy press secretary. "There will be more discussions and meetings and recommendations made to the president."

Djerejian and another White House spokesman, Peter Roussel, refused to discuss the substance of the meeting.

However, NBC Nightly News reported Monday night that Reagan and his advisers agreed that there would be no blanket use of lie detectors by the federal government, and that each agency would decide for itself whether they would be used.

The Washington Post, in today's editions, said the "prevailing view" of the group was that officials who leaked secrets should be fired or punished.

But it said the group did not reach any agreement on whether stringent new procedures are needed.

ABWA learns of insurance

Deep Creek Chapter of American Business Women's Association met May 15 at Martha Ann Woman's Club for its regular monthly meeting.

Invocation was given by Pauline Withers. Mary Hall, president, led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance and the business portion of the meeting.

Gilbert Merritt, American General Life Insurance Company senior agent, was the guest speaker. Merritt is a native of Snyder and been employed by American General for four years.

He informed the group that life insurance is to provide money at the time of death to the family. He said that most people consider life insurance an expense and that certain types are. Life insurance should be a "must" for every family.

Tina Sullenger employed by Haney's Jewelry, was the vocational speaker. Haney's is a family owned business with the parent store in Roscoe. They have two jewelers with a large selection of rings, watches, clocks and brass. It is a good idea to have yourjewelry cleaned and checked once a month.

Linda Scalf, manager of the Noah Project, was installed as a new member.

Plans were made for July 4 and White Buffalo Day celebration.

Joyce McCoy was presented a gold charm and bracelet as an Inner Circle member. Guests were Jeannie Doles, scholarship recipient, Ruby Devers, Pat Favor and Mr. Merritt.

Hostesses were Vivian Cockran and Lajuanna Sellers. There were 12 members and four guests present. Benediction was given by Joyce McCoy.

A great play when it works

By James Jacoby

Although East and West were playing weak jump-overcalls, East's hand was rather mangy for his weak two-heart bid. In fact the bid propelled North-South into a thin game when South decided to trade on his double heart-stopper and carry on to three no-trump. Overbidding is nothing new to the game. Without the overbid we'd have no story, because against three no-trump West had to make an imaginative play to defeat that contract.

West led the jack of hearts, which was allowed to hold the trick. The 10 of hearts was continued and declarer won the queen. Next came a diamond to dummy's queen and East's king. East led a heart and West now had his opportunity to scuttle declarer's chances. Do you see the play? West discarded the ace of diamonds. Now although declarer had one diamond trick in the bank, there was no way for him to develop two tricks in the suit without letting East on lead one more time to run the hearts.

Is there a lesson to the deal? Yes. If you're going to make dramatic defensive plays like this, it helps to be lucky. The last time I tried it, declarer had the 10 of diamonds and made more tricks than anyone else in the room.

Bruises can be caused by aging

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My daughter's doctor told her that the black-and-blue spots on her legs are due to arthritis. My doctor told me that mine are from broken blood vessels. What's your opinion?

DEAR READER — Some types of joint inflammation, such as lupus arthritis and rhuematoid arthritis, can affect the body's clotting mechanism. Spontaneous bruising — that is, black-and-blue spots from no obvious cause — can occur. Also, easy bruising can be caused by certain medicines, like cortisone, that are used to treat arthritis.

However, aging itself can cause bruises. As your doctor pointed out, breaks in tiny blood vessels that are near the skin can result in leakage of blood and occasional bruising. In addition, bruises can be caused by weakened varicose veins that may leak.

By itself, arthritis does not cause bruising; certain blood compounds that are related to the arthritis are the culprits. I am sure that your daughter's doctor will want to explain to her, in more detail, the reasons for her bruising. I also think it would be prudent for you to have blood tests to make sure that your bruising is a common and benign condition caused by aging.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm a senior citizen, female, and in the past year, lots of hair has grown all over my body. I took estrogen shots for 10 years after menopause, but no longer do. What causes this hair growth and what can I do about it?

DEAR READER — Your hair growth may be caused by the small amounts of male hormone that every woman normally produces. After menopause, male hormone is not counterbalanced by the powerful female hormones, so hair growth may occur. Check with your gynecologist to see if the judicious use of female-hormone pills might prevent your problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What is a spastic colon, and does what I eat affect it?

DEAR READER — Spastic colon, or irritable bowel, is a common condition that produces various types of intestinal malfunction, particularly diarrhea, gas and the need for frequent evacuations. Some experts believe that nervous tension and stress stimulate the colonic nerves to overact.

A change in diet or the use of a bulking agent, such as Metamucil, might help control the spastic colon's intestinal overactivity. Doctors often recommend avoidance of stress to relieve symptoms but, in my experience, this is seldom practical. Make sure that your physician has ruled out other causes of bowel malfunction; for example, hiatal hernia, colitis and other intestinal abnormalities can mimic spastic colon.

I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report on irritable bowel syndrome. Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 plus their name and address to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on IRRITABLE BOWEL SYNDROME.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 75 years old. Why, at this age, should my breasts be developing so that I've gone from a B cup to a D cup? I asked my doctor, but he didn't know. I take 1 grain of Synthroid daily and weigh 151 pounds, but I am tall and can handle it.

DEAR READER — Your breasts may be developing because, at your age, excess fat is being deposited in them. If losing 10 to 15 pounds doesn't bring your breasts back to normal, get a second opinion from a gynecologist.

Judge won't grant bail to bomb expert

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has denied bail for a former Green Beret demolitions expert who is charged with delivering 19 bombs to federal agents posing as Mexican terrorists.

U.S. Magistrate Jamie Boyd, saying the public is "tired of terrorism," made that decision against 43-year-old Albert James Paxton after a 34-hour hearing that ended Monday.

Two special agents of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms testified that Paxton, a former Special Forces officer, sold them one pipe bomb and 18 "soap dish" bombs for $4,000.

"The climate of the times is that people are tired of terrorism," Boyd told Paxton. "I respect your military record, but this act, if it is true, shows someone who has lost his conscience along the way."

Paxton is charged with making, possessing and selling explosives. His wife, Frances Marion "Frankie" Paxton, 36; and David Thomas Nicewander, 33, once a member of Paxton's Special Forces team, face the same charges.

Mrs. Paxton, of Round Rock, is free on a $50,000 personal recognizance bond, and Nicewander, of Phoenix, Ariz., remains in federal custody in lieu of a $100,000 bond.

Paxton was arrested in San Antonio May 24 after 18 bombs were delivered to ATF agents. Mrs. Paxton and Nicewander were arrested at nearly the same time at the Paxton home in Round Rock.

Tom's Marine: local boat headquarters

It's nearly time to start heading for the lakes and now is the time to get that boat you were longing for all last summer. Tom Machen at Tom's Marine has just the boat to fit your needs for summer enjoyment.

You'll find Johnson and Mercury outboard motors, Galaxie and Glastron boats, deck boats and trailers. Whether your boating interests lean toward fishing, skiing, partying or just for leisure, you can find just what you're looking for at Tom's Marine.

Tom's Marine also carries a complete line of accessories too. You can get exactly what you need in the way of skis, ski ropes, life jackets, fishing equipment and boating supplies.

If your boat or motor needs to be serviced, Tom's Marine is the place to go and Tom will get them in tip-top shape.

Tom's Marine Sales and Service has a large selection of Lawn-Boy, Snapper, Toro and Simplicity mowers to choose from. He also carries Snapper riding mowers and tractors, Poulan chain saws and the ever popular Weed-Eater.

If you haven't been in Tom's lately, go by and take advantage of the great savings he is now offering on boats, motors and trailers and while you're there, take a look at the variety of merchandise he carries. Tom's Marine is located at 315 E. Highway, or you can give him a call at 573-6562.

LET DAVE CUNNINGTON at Tom's Marine Sales and Service show you the wide selection of boats they have to offer and help you with just the right one to fit your needs. (SDN Staff Photo)

Zoo attempts to restore calm

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Zoo workers were hoping a little peace and quiet today would restore calm to three antelope that panicked and injured themselves when a man rammed a stolen tractor through their enclosure.

"They're sedated, and we would like to keep them calm for awhile," exhibits curator Tom Dieckow said of the nyalas, or African forest-dwelling antelope.

Jean Hus Baptiste was charged with felony theft and felony criminal mischief after Monday's incident, and bonds were set at $5,000 and $2,000 respectively, prosecutor Belinda Hill said.

Police said Baptiste stole a front-end loader — a big, wheeled tractor with a loading bucket — from a construction site near the zoo.

U. S. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski is to plead guilty to DWI charge

CHICAGO (AP) — Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, says his drunken-driving arrest has taught him "a painful lesson" and that he will plead guilty to the charge.

The Illinois Democrat, arrested after failing a field sobriety test and refusing a breath test in Wisconsin early Sunday, faces a June 16 court date.

Rostenkowski, 58, was arrested after he sped past an unmarked police car while driving home from the 40th reunion of his high-school class, Racine County, Wis., sheriff's deputies said Monday.

"I overdid my 40th high-school reunion celebration," Rostenkowski told a news conference late Monday.

Your Birthday

June 4, 1986

Unique opportunities will be presented to you in the year ahead, but they will be whimsical. To capitalize on them, you'll have to move swiftly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In a delicate career situation today, someone you've been depending on to back you up might not be there when the chips are down. Count only on yourself. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Gemini Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Tasks that are your direct responsibility should not be palmed off on others today. If the job is done poorly, you'll be the one who gets all the heat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Strive to be objective and keep a cool head in your commercial dealings today, especially if something significant is involved. Conditions are more complex than they appear.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An agreement you hope to negotiate today must be treated seriously. Before you sign anything, be sure to get expert advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Erratic or careless co-workers must be watched closely today. It's best not to attempt to do anything risky together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you take foolish financial risks today, you're apt to come up with lemons. Pass where gambles are concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might make a commitment today just for the sake of expediency. Unfortunately, the other party will take your promise to heart.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unless you give your full attention to the task at hand today, the obvious may be overlooked. Total concentration will eliminate mistakes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Recently you've been doing well managing your financial affairs, but today you could lose your tempo and do something wild and extravagant.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Major achievements are possible today, provided you don't leave everything to Lady Luck. You'll only get what you earn.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Intuitive feelings that are usually accurate may emit faulty signals today. Don't let your optimism exceed realism.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A well-meaning friend's suggestions on ways for you to make money could be erroneous today. Verify the information with other sources before you act.

Canada to place duties on computer parts from U. S.

OTTAWA (AP) — The finance minister announced that Canada will retaliate for U.S. duties on Canadian cedar products by imposing tariffs on U.S. computer parts, semi-conductors and some publications, but said the action did not mean the start of a trade war.

"Our objective is to bring home to the United States the costs of protectionism, while avoiding measures which will only worsen our own situation," Finance Minister Michael Wilson told the House of Commons on Monday.

Tariffs also will be increased on bagged tea, diesel-motor rail cars and parts, oatmeal, cider, Christmas trees, and other U.S. products, Wilson said.

The import fees will go into effect on Friday, the same day America begins collecting the new tariffs on red cedar products used in roofing construction.

"The government takes no pleasure in implementing these actions but legitimate Canadian interests must be protected."

City hopes for best as strike continues

ALCOA, Tenn. (AP) — In the town that ALCOA built, life goes on as it has for the last 70 years, seemingly unaffected by the 3-day-old strike at the company that put the place on the map.

For now, the only thing out of the ordinary on Alcoa's streets is the presence of pickets marching with strike signs outside the ALCOA plant, across the way from city hall, which is a former plant headquarters.

Inside the huge plant Monday afternoon, several hundred managers and supervisors who have been eating and sleeping there since the strike began helping to keep one smelting furnance operating.

The eastern Tennessee town near the Smoky Mountains is named for the Aluminum Company of America, which built its first Tennessee plant here in the early 1900s along with a dam to provide hydroelectric power for the smelters.

After the plant was built, ALCOA engineers laid out the town for its workers to live in, including schools, roads, sewers, a golf course and swimming pools.

ALCOA's arrival was regarded in this area as the beginning of the New South. Dixie's change from a total agricultural economy to a mixed farming and industrial base.

More than 3,900 people — the town's population is 6,780 — are employed at the plant which makes aluminum for every

Hinshaw's can meet all your needs

Hinshaw's Flowers, serving Snyder since 1958, represents a broader scope of the flower business. Not only is Hinshaw's a flower shop, but it is also a nursery, and through the years, Hershel Hinshaw has realized that each compliments and is compatible with the other.

Brent and Hershel Hinshaw, both reputable florists and nurserymen, not only keep the nursery plants, shrubs and trees beautiful and in excellent condition, but they are also quite adept and at home in the flower shop designing arrangements and corsages.

Sometimes cut flowers just don't seem appropriate for the person or the occasion and if this is the case, Hinshaw's has a wide variety of other options available such as trees, rose bushes and shrubs.

You'll find just what you need at Hinshaw's from beautiful fresh flower arrangements and corsages to shrubs, trees and bedding plants.

If you're not sure exactly what you want, go by and let the friendly, helpful, qualified staff help you. That's Hinshaw's at 2804 College Avenue, where their motto is "Pleasing you, pleases us". And remember - they have everything from bouquets to bedding plants.

Senate plan would cut taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax-overhaul plan the Senate begins debating Wednesday would cut the taxes of a typical $35,000 family by about $129 a year. A person making over $200,000 would save $5,892.

If the total individual tax cut in the bill were divided equally among all taxpayers, the committee estimates, the reduction would average $215. The average tax rate would drop to 10.6 percent, from 11.4 percent under present law, according to a 1,124-page report describing the 2,847-page bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

The bill would produce the most changes in the federal income tax in at least 32 years, slashing individual and corporate rates while eliminating or reducing numerous deductions and exemptions. Individual taxes would be cut and corporate taxes raised by about $108 billion over the next five years.

The top individual tax rate of 50 percent would be cut to 27 percent, although upper-income people would, in effect, pay 32 percent on part of their earnings. The Finance Committee staff estimates that 80 percent of taxpayers would pay the only other rate — 15 percent — or nothing. About 6 million lower-income people would be swept off the income-tax rolls altogether.

But since those people at the bottom of the economic scale already pay almost no income tax, their reductions would be slight: about $43 a year on the average for someone making up to $10,000. That person would be left with a tax bill of $13 a year.

Those with incomes between $10,000 and $20,000 would see their taxes drop to $617 from $798, assuming average deductions.

Dribbler Nationals begin Wednesday

Brownfield teams double up in two of the three tip-off games of the Girl's Little Dribbler National Tournaments, which begin here Wednesday at 1 p.m.

Brownfield's Senior League team plays Kermit in Scurry County Coliseum while its Major League squad takes on HEB (Hereford-Euless-Bedford) at the college gymnasium. The other 1 p.m. ballgame pits Plains' Junior League team against Southwest Louisiana in the Snyder High School Gym.

Snyder's first outing in the tournaments will be its Junior League team which plays Levelland at 4:45 p.m. in the high school gym.

The local Major League squad plays Levelland at 6 p.m. in the college gym.

Snyder's Senior League team has the final game at Scurry County Coliseum on Wednesday, a 9:45 p.m. ballgame against Brownfield.

There will be over 90 games played in the tournaments, which consist of three divisions and three leagues.

Divisions are determined by the population of a city or area. The Continental Division consists of cities with 2,500 population or less; the American Division is cities 2,500 to 7,500; the National Division is cities or areas with a population of 7,500 to 30,000. Cities with a greater population than 30,000 are divided into areas.

Divisions are broken into age groups or leagues. The Junior League is girls age 9-10; the Major League is girls 11-12, and the Senior League is girls 13-14.

Tournament passes, good for all the games, are $10 for adults and $5 for students. Children under age 6 will be admitted free. Fans may also purchase a day pass for $3 for adults and $2 for students. Day passes are good for only one gymnasium per day, however.

Day passes and tournament passes may be purchased at each of the three tournament sites. Concession stands will also be open during each game.

Cities and areas represented at the tournament will include Crowell, Centerville, Plains, Leon, Dalhart, Quitman, Mexia, Fairfield, Seminole, Brownfield, Twin Counties, Kermit, Levelland, North Zulch, Amarillo, Levelland, Friendswood, Katy, Hurst-Euless-Bedford and Snyder from Texas.

Out-of-state representatives include teams for Deridder and Cenla, La., and New Baden, Ill.

Pecos rips Kangaroos to win regional crown; plays Tigers Thursday

SNYDER -- Javier Solis outdueled a trio of Weatherford pitchers here Monday to propel Pecos to the Class 4A state quarterfinal playoffs.

Solis pitched no-hit ball after the second inning as the Eagles dumped the Kangaroos 6-1 in a game which was finally called in the bottom of the seventh by rain.

The Eagles benefitted from five hits and a dozen walks.

Pecos, 21-8, heads into quarterfinal play against Snyder with the victor earning a trip to the state tournament in Austin. The best two-of-three series is scheduled to open Thursday with Game One in Midland. Game Two, and Game Three, if necessary, will be held Saturday in Midland. Officials were still weighing options, such as time and location, this morning.

Weatherford scored its lone run in the bottom of the second inning on Aaron Cooper's two-out single up the middle. He drove in Brad Moore, who had singled and advanced to second after David Pool walked. Pecos got out of the inning when Mark Springer bounced a slow roller to Solis, one of seven balls hit back to the Eagle pitcher in the game.

Pecos took the lead in the top of the third on Solis' two-run single and made a loser of Weatherford starter Terry Reynolds, 10-4. Leadoff batter Israel Natividad accounted for the tying run when he walked, stole second, and scored as Reynolds overthrew first base on Ponchito Bafidis' bunt. Omar Gabaldon then struckout, but Larry Avila and Lance Windham both walked to load the bases. Reynolds threw out Bafidis at home after Oscar Mariscal bounced a hard-hit ball back to the mound, but Solis followed with his two-run shot to short right field.

Pecos added another run in the fourth when reliever Jason Brunson walked home Tony Urquidi with the bases loaded. The Eagles scored again in the fifth when pinch hitter Danny Gonzales doubled off of a third Weatherford pitcher Gary Lightfoot, to score Solis, who had singled and stole second.

The Eagles wrapped up the scoring in the sixth when Mariscal hit a sacrifice fly to score Avila, who had reached first base on a fielder's choice and moved to third on Lance Windham's double.

The game was stopped in the bottom of the seventh because of rain and called 30 minutes later after the field received an inch and a half of water.

Solis, 9-3, faced only 14 batters in the final four innings. He struck out three, walked three and allowed just three hits in the game.

Weatherford, ranked fifth in the state, ends its season at 23-6.

Hough hurls Rangers past Chi-Sox

CHICAGO (AP) - Charlie Hough had his rhythm and was throwing his devastating knuckleball with ease. The only thing he failed to do was go the distance.

Hough's pitching and Pete O'Brien's run-scoring double in the first inning Monday night provided the Texas Rangers with a 1-0 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak and vaulted the Rangers back into first place in the American League West. The Rangers lead California by a half-game. Kansas City, which started the day tied with Texas, but lost to Milwaukee 7-2, trails by one game.

Hough had a two-hit shutout working with one out in the ninth when Harold Baines singled. Manager Bobby Valentine immediately went to his bullpen and called on Mitch Williams and then Greg Harris, who finished for his eighth save.

"If I had my choice, I'd have told Bobby to let me stay in there," said Hough. "But those other two guys bailed me out."

"Charlie had the best knuckleball he's had all season," said Valentine. "But I had a left-hander who gets people out and a right-hander who gets people out. It turned out all right."

Hough said he was confident going into the ninth inning because he had been throwing strikes.

"I felt good and we had a run but after Baines got that hit I had to face a guy who has given me trouble," said Hough of Greg Walker.

Williams retired Walker but, after walking Jerry Hairston, Valentine called on Harris who got Ron Kittle to foul out and end the game.

Hough, 4-2, had to be at his best to outduel loser Joe Cowley, 1-3. Cowley scattered six hits and struck out 10.

It was Cowley's first appearance since he set a modern major league record by striking out the first seven Rangers he faced in a 6-3 loss at Texas last Wednesday night.

"Cowley pitched good," said Valentine. "That's two outstanding outings against us. It looks like he's a pretty good pitcher."

Cowley gave up only two walks, but the first one burned him. Oddibe McDowell opened the game by drawing a walk after Cowley had him 0-2.

Scott Fletcher bunted McDowell to second and O'Brien followed with a bounding double past first as McDowell scored.

"It was a two-strike breaking pitch," said O'Brien of his hit. "I was fooled a little but I got most of the bat on it. I hit it pretty good."

Coaches propose changes in rules

AUSTIN (AP) -- A proposed overtime plan to break tie games in Texas schoolboy football games has been aired at a meeting of the University Interscholastic League athletics committee.

Richard Tatro, an assistant football coach at San Antonio Burbank, who previously coached 14 years in Oklahoma and Kansas, where overtime periods are used to settle tie games, briefed the five-member committee Monday night on the mechanics of the 10-yard overtime procedure.

Tatro also showed film of a game in which each team ran one overtime series from its opponent's 10-yard line to settle the tie.

Bailey Marshall, UIL director general, said the committee listened attentively to Tatro's presentation.

Three other presentations were made during the meeting, Marshall said.

One was from baseball coaches asking for the reinstatement of mandatory best-of-three state playoff series in Classes 4A and 5A, another was from basketball coaches seeking a coaching box in front of benches rather than the no-standing rule used in the 1985-86 season, and the final was from soccer coaches asking that varsity players be allowed to play on club teams in addition to their high school squads.

Cardinals shell Astros, 9-2

by The Associated Press

John Tudor said the St. Louis Cardinals were just returning to business as usual. It was anything but usual for the Houston Astros' pitching staff.

The Cardinals got 14 hits and 10 walks - both figures representing low-water marks for the Houston pitching staff this season - in a 9-2 victory Monday night. It was St. Louis' third straight triumph.

"Basically, we're starting to do the things we did last year to win," said Tudor, who pitched a four-hitter. "We're getting our running game going, and we're getting our bunts down."

Ozzie Smith led the Cardinals offensively, equalling his career high with four hits and added two RBI and a pair of stolen bases. Mike Madden lasted only 5 1-3 innings for Houston, giving up four runs on nine hits, three walks and three wild pitches.

In the rest of the National League, it was New York 11, San Diego 2; Philadelphia 13, Los Angeles 2; Chicago 8, Cincinnati 6, and Pittsburgh 9, Atlanta 2.

Mets 11, Padres 2

George Foster hit two home runs, and Dwight Gooden pitched a four-hitter to help New York end a two-game losing streak by ripping San Diego. Gooden, 7-2, won his second in a row after a stretch of three starts during which he had two losses and a no-decision.

Danny Heep also homered for the Mets. He scored three runs and drove in three more.

Phillies 13, Dodgers 2

Ron Roenicke had the first four-hit game of his career and homered as Philadelphia pounded out 21 hits to hand Los Angeles its third straight loss. The Dodgers, 1-6 on their current road trip, committed four errors and lead the league with 62.

Afterward, Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda said he had called a special practice today for some players, but he would not say who they were.

Cubs 8, Reds 6

Ryne Sandberg hit a three-run homer, and visiting Chicago scored four runs each in the fourth and seventh innings to send Cincinnati to its third straight loss. Rick Sutcliffe allowed five hits in 6 2-3 innings to beat the Reds for the second time in a week.

Sandberg now has 10 hits in his last 16 at-bats, and during a seven-game hitting streak has three homers.

Pirates 9, Braves 2

R.J. Reynolds went 2-for-4 with a walk, two stolen bases, three runs scored and an RBI to help Pittsburgh right-hander Rick Reuschel win his seventh straight game over visiting Atlanta. Reuschel also had two hits and two RBI, while giving up three hits in 5 1-3 innings against the Braves, to whom he has not lost since April, 1979.

Carew announces playing days over

ANAHEIM HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Rod Carew's next formal baseball function may be his induction speech at the Hall of Fame now that his playing days are officially over.

"That's a long way off," Carew said Monday, shortly after he announced his retirement from baseball. "I haven't started making speeches yet. But I never dreamed one day that I would come from Panama, get 3,000 hits, and the possibility of joining the great players in the Hall of Fame."

Carew, a winner of seven American League batting championships during a brilliant 19-year career, has been a player without a team since the end of the 1985 season. He had wanted to play one last season, but when the opportunity finally arose, he decided to retire.

"I started questioning myself whether to continue and finally said, 'Hey, I've had a heck of a career, don't have a lot left to prove, and I'm very happy that I brought enjoyment to a lot of fans,'" Carew said.

"My girls (three daughters) are getting older now and it's important for them to have both parents around. I think it's time for me to become a full-time father."

Carew's career had been in limbo since the California Angels decided after last season not to offer him a contract for 1986.

Carew wasn't seriously pursued by another club until recently. He finally was offered a contract by San Francisco Giants' President Al Rosen, but Carew decided the time had come for him to retire.

"I made the final decision last night," Carew said at his home Monday. "It wasn't tough."

Carew, 40, said that in the past few months he's found retirement to his liking.

"I'm having fun; for the first time in years, I'm having fun," he said.

Carew completed a 19-year major-league career with a .328 lifetime batting average and 3,053 hits, the 13th-highest total in baseball history. He played 12 years for the Minnesota Twins and seven more for the Angels.

King and Swindell top picks in baseball draft

NEW YORK (AP) - Bo Jackson may be No. 1 to NFL talent scouts, but not to those in major league baseball.

Jackson, the running back and Heisman Trophy winner from Auburn and considered to be potential baseball material, had to wait until the fourth round before he was picked in the major league amateur free agent draft Monday.

Third baseman Jeff King, an Arkansas junior, was the first pick of the draft, going to the Pittsburgh Pirates, while another college junior, Texas left-hander Greg Swindell, was chosen second by the Cleveland Indians.

Although some baseball scouts were very impressed with Jackson, his stock obviously was down because he has yet to choose a professional career. Jackson was taken as the first pick in the NFL draft by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and is expected to become a pro football player.

Jackson's agent, Tom Zieman, has said one of the considerations in whether to pick baseball would be how quickly Jackson might move from the minors to the majors.

While calling Jackson "a Kirk Gibson who can throw," Royals head scout Art Stewart said Jackson would have to spend some time in the minors. Jackson's major league stock may also have dipped because he hit just .246 in 21 games last season before he was declared ineligible at Auburn for accepting a plane ticket to a pre-NFL draft physical. Jackson hit .401 with 17 homers as a junior.

"The next step is for his agent and John Schuerholz (Royals general manager) to begin negotiations," Royals spokesman Dean Vogelaar said as the club confirmed the choice of Jackson.

Only the first-round selections were made public by the commissioner's office. Subsequent rounds, which may continue as late as Wednesday, will not be made public until next week. Teams were directed by the commissioner's office not to reveal the rest of their picks, but the Royals confirmed Jackson's selection because the player's agent already had announced it.

There was some speculation that King could step right into the Pirates starting lineup at third base. Club spokesman Joe Gallagher said, however, that King would work out with the Pirates for about four days then go to their Class A Carolina League franchise, Prince William.

King, who was at his Colorado Springs, Colo., home when he was informed of his selection, said he expected to spend some time in the minors, "maybe a year or a year and a half," before making the major league club.

The third pick in the draft was Matt Williams, a Nevada-Las Vegas third baseman, to San Francisco, and the Texas Rangers chose Kevin Brown of Georgia Tech, a right-handed pitcher, No. 4. The Atlanta Braves used the fifth pick to take the first high school player in the draft, left-hander Kent Mercker of Dublin (Ohio) High School.

Gary Sheffield, nephew of 1985 Cy Young winner Dwight Gooden, was taken sixth by Milwaukee. Sheffield is a shortstop at the same school Gooden attended, Hillsborough High School in Tampa, Fla.

Two sons of former major leaguers were selected in the first round. Derrick May, a high school outfielder from Newark, Del. and the son of former Baltimore Oriole Dave May, was chosen by the Chicago Cubs as the ninth overall pick and Lee May Jr., a high school outfielder-first baseman from Cincinnati and son of former Red Lee May, was tabbed by the New York Mets as the 21st overall selection. The Mays are not related.

Arizona nips Loyola, 7-5

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Todd Trafton might be fooled once in a while on a good pitch. But try the same pitch twice and he'll make you pay.

The Arizona first baseman, playing on a sore foot, did just that to Loyola Marymount relief pitcher Jeff Goettsch. Trafton hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to lead the Wildcats to a 7-5 victory over Loyola in a winners bracket semifinal at the NCAA College World Series Monday.

"I hit a slider," Trafton said of his game-winning homer. "I knew it was gone and started jogging. He had thrown me the same pitch before but I froze on it. This time I was looking for it."

Loyola Coach Dave Snow said it "was a mistake. It was supposed to be a slider away but it flattened out."

The victory puts fifth-ranked Arizona, 47-18, into Thursday's winners bracket final at 7:10 p.m. CDT against the winner of tonight's Miami-Florida State contest.

Loyola, making its first trip to the national baseball championships, drops into the losers bracket and will face fourth-ranked Oklahoma State, 55-14, in Wednesday's 4:10 p.m. CDT elimination game.

Joe Estes, 7-3, picked up his second CWS win for Arizona. He came on in the top of the ninth and got the victory in the Wildcats' first-round 8-7 win over Maine. He relieved Gary Alexander in the sixth inning against Loyola and shut out the Lions the rest of the way.

Rockets' win doesn't worry experienced Boston Celtics

HOUSTON (AP) - Larry Bird isn't worried about how Houston plans to defense him or which Rocket will be covering him. He's just worried about winning.

"I really don't care who guards me," Bird, the NBA's most valuable player the last three seasons, said. "If I get the same shots I got Sunday I'll be happy. Robert Reid is the least of my worries."

Bird scored 25 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and handed out 11 assists Sunday in the Rockets' 106-104 victory that narrowed the Celtics' lead to 2-1 in their best-of-seven championship series.

However, Houston guard Reid guarded Bird in the second half and the Celtics star forward scored only six points in the second half as the Rockets rallied.

The Rockets will try to pull even in the series tonight before another vocal sellout crowd of 16,016 in The Summit.

The fifth game is scheduled here Thursday night with Games 6 and 7, if they are necessary, in Boston Garden where the Celtics lost just one game this season.

Despite the Rockets' pulsating comeback Sunday, Bird and his teammates weren't demoralized or impressed.

"This team doesn't need to talk about games like other teams," Bird said.

"We don't need team meetings or pep rallies. We just need to know what we have to do to win.

"The only thing I worry about is being behind three or four points with one second to go."

Houston outscored the Celtics 12-2 in the last three minutes Sunday and Bird had just one basket in the final four minutes.

"I'm sure they were pleased with themselves but they realize that today is another day," Bird said. "... Now we know how well we can play. We knew yesterday (Sunday) was going to be their best game of the series."

But the Rockets claim the best is yet to come.

"We can still play a lot better," Reid, who is 6-foot-8, the same height as Bird, said. "We've got to be more mentally prepared for the third quarter and we've got to get over some of those shooting lulls."

Boston guard Dennis Johnson was a first-hand observer of Houston's comeback and he hopes he's seen the last of such efforts.

"I don't know if they can play any better, they hope they can and I hope they can't," Johnson said. "Those questions will be answered soon enough."

Johnson said Game 3 simply proved the Celtics are human.

"As much as I'd like to believe that we're invincible, we're not," Johnson said. "We've had partially bad games like that before and others when we've been hot. We just have to come back Tuesday and play our best."

Reid expects to draw more defensive duty against Bird and he plans to be ready. Reid said he picks up Bird farther from the basket than other opponents.

"If he goes to the other end and stands there, I'll go too and let them play four-on-four," Reid said.

Rodney McCray, the third-year forward who has started every game for the Rockets since midway through his rookie season, regularly draws the oppositon's top shooter and also will be back as a protagonist.

"I'll just play the same type of defense I've always played, the kind I've played since college," McCray said.

Houston Coach Bill Fitch inserted Allen Leavell at point guard and inserted Mitchell Wiggins into the lineup for Houston's fourth quarter surge and Wiggins rewarded his coach by getting the game-winning tip-in.

"The thing I have to do with the limited minutes that I get is to make the most of each minute I'm in there," Wiggins said. "I'm a hungry player. Coach has made me one of the hungriest players in the league."

Experience rules at French Open

PARIS (AP) - So much for the youth movement.

Experience took over Monday at the French Open, a tournament that in its first week had started to take on aspects of a tennis kindergarten.

Chris Evert Lloyd and Hana Mandlikova, two old-timers, became the first players into the semifinals when they turned back strong challenges from two teen-agers.

Lloyd, the 31-year-old defending champion, beat 18-year-old Carling Bassett 5-7, 6-2, 6-1. Mandlikova, the 1981 winner and a semifinalist here four other times, defeated 16-year-old Steffi Graf 2-6, 7-6, 6-1, ending Graf's winning streak at 23 matches.

Lloyd and Mandlikova, 24, play their semifinal Thursday, with the American trying to end a two-match losing streak against the Czechoslovak. For their careers, Lloyd leads in head-to-head meetings 18-5.

In the men's field, No. 8 Henri Leconte, 22, downed 18-year-old Horacio de la Pena 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

The only teen-ager to advance was Wimbledon champion Boris Becker, and the 18-year-old third seed from West Germany almost didn't make it, either.

Down one set and a service break, Becker rallied to beat Emilio Sanchez of Spain, the 14th seed who celebrated his 21st birthday last week, 6-0, 4-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The youngest of the youngsters was to try to stem the tide of old age today. Mary Joe Fernandez, the 14-year-old from Miami, Fla., was to play sixth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechosklovakia for a women's semifinal berth.

The remaining women's quarterfinal pitted top-seeded Martina Navratilova of the United States against Kathy Rinaldi, a 19-year-old American who - at 14 years, 1 month - was the youngest quarterfinalist ever at the French Open, in 1981.

The men's quarterfinals ended with the lone American left, 13th-seeded Joahn Kriek, meeting 33-year-old Guillermo Vilas and top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia against Equador's Andres Gomez, seeded ninth.

Graf was serving for the match at 5-4 in the second set when she sent a forehand long. Mandlikova forced a tiebreaker, won it to tie the match and breezed through the final set, breaking Graf twice in the first three games and winning eight of the last 10 points.

Lloyd and Bassett went through an hour-long first set on center court that the Canadian said drained her of energy.

Lloyd, in the semifinals of a Grand Slam tournament for the 39th time, said it was hard to get going against Bassett in the day's first match.

"At 11 o'clock, I'm not at my best," Lloyd said.

Becker said a brief rain delay midway through the fourth set helped him.

"I tried to pump myself up during the break," he said.

Pumped up he was. He won two games after the rain stopped to even the match at 2-2 and swept to a 5-1 lead in the final set before serving out the match at love. A forehand volley that Sanchez could do nothing with sealed the victory.

In the quarterfinals, Becker will meet unseeded Mats Wilander, a Swede who won the white and blue ribbon and won two NCAA championships at the University of Georgia. He beat Martin Jaite of Argentina 7-6, 7-6.

The first designated hitter to come to the plate in the American League was Ron Blomberg of the Yankees, who drew a walk in his first time up against the Red Sox on April 6, 1973.

Lie detector test indicates Fryar was telling the truth

BOSTON (AP) - Irving Fryar of the New England Patriots, his agent and a polygraph administrator agree that the wide receiver told the truth when he denied allegations he bet on National Football League games last season.

"I had nothing to hide," Fryar told The Boston Herald after he voluntarily took a lie detector test Monday. "I just wanted to prove to everybody what I said was the truth. I've never gambled on football games. Never. Ever."

Fryar, who reportedly was under investigation by the league for alleged gambling, took the 3½-hour polygraph in Texas. Sherwood Blount, Fryar's Dallas-based agent, arranged for Eric Holden, president of Eric J. Holden and Associates of North Dallas, to conduct the lie detector test.

"I got Mr. Holden's name from a number of high-ranking and respected law enforcement officials throughout the southwest," Blount said. "Neither myself nor any of the people in our company had ever met Mr. Holden before this afternoon."

Blount said the results of the exam would be forwarded from Holden to Jim Drakeley, Fryar's attorney, who will in turn send them to the NFL front office.

Holden, a licensed polygraph administrator since 1974, said the results of Fryar's test provided overwhelming scientific data that the football player told the truth when he denied the gambling allegations.

"After an extensive interview and development of the examination," Holden said, "it's my opinion conclusively that he (Fryar) is truthful in his statements that since turning pro, he had never himself gambled or bet on any NFL football games or had ever allowed or let anyone use his name or his money to gamble on any NFL game."

Holden said he believes the results of Fryer's examination had a 99 percent or better accuracy probability.

"I have every confidence in the results and feel that any competent polygraph examiner would be able to scrutinize and evaluate the series of polygraph charts and arrive at the same conclusion," Holden said.

Holden, chairman of the board of the Texas Association of Polygraph Examiners, said among the specific questions put to Fryar were if he had ever, since turning pro, bet money on any NFL game and if he gambled on the Patriots-Chicago Bears Super Bowl game last January. He said the answers were negative.

"Following the examination, I left the laboratory and did a complete analysis and numerical chart scoring of the examination," Holden said. "My findings were that Mr. Fryar was clearly truthful in his denials."

Fryar told the Herald that he hasn't gambled on anything since high school.

"Even though the results are in, I still don't feel at ease," Fryar said. "It was bad that my name was brought up (in connection with the reported NFL investigation) in the first place."

Usher testifying in antitrust case

NEW YORK (AP) - USFL Commissioner Harry Usher, claiming his league may cease to exist "without the help of this court," has implied on the witness stand that the NFL's alleged unhappiness when ABC provided his league with a contract in 1982 eventually led the network to offer it no contract at all.

Testifying as a witness Monday in the USFL's antitrust suit against the NFL, Usher said that shortly after he took over as commissioner in January, 1985, he was informed by Roone Arledge, then the head of ABC News and Sports, that the NFL had had a "negative reaction" to the network's first contract with the new league, which provided $9 million each for the 1983 and 1984 spring seasons.

The USFL is seeking $1.5 billion in damages from the NFL and is also seeking to have the older league barred from at least one of the three major networks to open at least a window for the USFL, which has been unable to get a contract for its switch from the spring to the fall.

Shuttle panel says astronauts need greater voice now

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential Challenger commission is asking for new NASA procedures to give astronauts and contractors a stronger voice in launch decisions, sources say, to ensure that the space agency's bureaucracy never again tramples safety objections like those voiced in January.

The commission's 225-page report, sent to the printer Monday, will be presented to President Reagan this weekend. It blisters the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for its management practices and instructs the agency to put safety requirements into every phase of flight operations.

"They're going to recommend that contractors and astronauts be a party to the decision to launch," said one of three sources, who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

One widely expected recommendation — for an independent safety board with enough power to stop a launch — was not adopted. "It was considered to be a stupid idea," said a source close to the commission.

But another commission source said, "There is going to be discussion in the report on setting up a safety organization. That organization could get into participating in the launch decision."

The 13-member commission, headed by former Secretary of State William P. Rogers, held nine days of hearings and its members scattered over the country to investigate the Jan. 28 explosion that destroyed the ship and its crew.

The report sets basic criteria for redesigning the joints on the shuttle's booster rockets, which are blamed for the accident. But it leaves specifics to designers from NASA and Morton Thiokol Inc., which builds the rockets. The commission recommends outside experts supervise the redesign, and NASA has agreed.

Reactions mixed to U. S. Senate on TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a puff of pancake makeup and a peal of classical piano, the Senate launched itself into the television era, but veteran Capitol Hill watchers say drastic changes are as unlikely as ever.

"Today, the United States Senate catches up with the 20th century," Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Monday at the start of a six-week experiment in making floor action available to networks.

Few doubt it will become permanent.

As the curtain went up, lawmakers betrayed a touch of stage fright.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, playfully dusted his bald spot with a puff of pancake makeup, and Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., declared with mock solemnity: "The bags under the bags under my eyes will just have to stay."

The producers of the broadcast — the Cable-Satellite Public Affairs Network — added an innovative touch designed to combat the bore factor, which is magnified by the Senate's numerous quorum calls.

Theoretically designed to bring more lawmakers to the floor, the tedious roll calls are an oft-used tactic to stall for time. The network broadcast classical piano music during the delays.

"Sometimes it seems like nothing is happening on the Senate floor," explained Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif. "And, in fact, nothing is happening."

Gavel-to-gavel action on a permanent basis on C-SPAN, which has carried House sessions since 1979, is expected even by such die-hard critics of television in the Senate as Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La.

Johnston says bringing "the intrusive eye of television" into the ornate, marbled Senate chamber will make it hard to stage filibusters to slow harmful bills driven by "the passions of politics."

Minority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., counters that it can only be healthy to "extend the galleries from ocean to ocean and beyond."

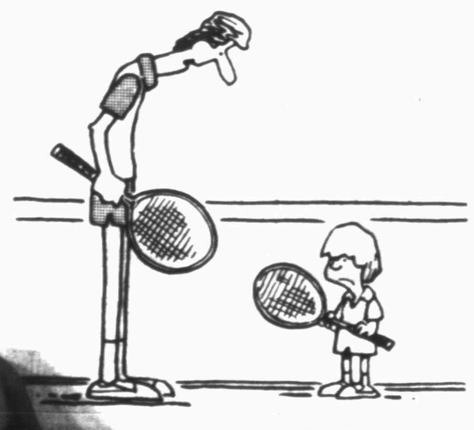

Expert Senate watchers scoff at the notion that television will bring radical alterations to the traditionally slow-to-change Senate.

Carew announces playing days over

ANAHEIM HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Rod Carew's next formal baseball function may be his induction speech at the Hall of Fame now that his playing days are officially over.

"That's a long way off," Carew said Monday, shortly after he announced his retirement from baseball. "I haven't started making speeches yet. But I never dreamed one day that I would come from Panama, get 3,000 hits, and the possibility of joining the great players in the Hall of Fame."

Carew, a winner of seven American League batting championships during a brilliant 19-year career, has been a player without a team since the end of the 1985 season. He had wanted to play one last season, but when the opportunity finally arose, he decided to retire.

"I started questioning myself whether to continue and finally said, 'Hey, I've had a heck of a career, don't have a lot left to prove, and I'm very happy that I brought enjoyment to a lot of fans,'" Carew said.

"My girls (three daughters) are getting older now and it's important for them to have both parents around. I think it's time for me to become a full-time father."

Carew's career had been in limbo since the California Angels decided after last season not to offer him a contract for 1986.

Carew wasn't seriously pursued by another club until recently. He finally was offered a contract by San Francisco Giants' President Al Rosen, but Carew decided the time had come for him to retire.

"I made the final decision last night," Carew said at his home Monday. "It wasn't tough."

Carew, 40, said that in the past few months he's found retirement to his liking.

"I'm having fun; for the first time in years, I'm having fun," he said.

Carew completed a 19-year major-league career with a .328 lifetime batting average and 3,053 hits, the 13th-highest total in baseball history. He played 12 years for the Minnesota Twins and seven more for the Angels.

King and Swindell top picks in baseball draft

NEW YORK (AP) - Bo Jackson may be No. 1 to NFL talent scouts, but not to those in major league baseball.

Jackson, the running back and Heisman Trophy winner from Auburn and considered to be potential baseball material, had to wait until the fourth round before he was picked in the major league amateur free agent draft Monday.

Third baseman Jeff King, an Arkansas junior, was the first pick of the draft, going to the Pittsburgh Pirates, while another college junior, Texas left-hander Greg Swindell, was chosen second by the Cleveland Indians.

Although some baseball scouts were very impressed with Jackson, his stock obviously was down because he has yet to choose a professional career. Jackson was taken as the first pick in the NFL draft by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and is expected to become a pro football player.

Jackson's agent, Tom Zieman, has said one of the considerations in whether to pick baseball would be how quickly Jackson might move from the minors to the majors.

While calling Jackson "a Kirk Gibson who can throw," Royals head scout Art Stewart said Jackson would have to spend some time in the minors. Jackson's major league stock may also have dipped because he hit just .246 in 21 games last season before he was declared ineligible at Auburn for accepting a plane ticket to a pre-NFL draft physical. Jackson hit .401 with 17 homers as a junior.

"The next step is for his agent and John Schuerholz (Royals general manager) to begin negotiations," Royals spokesman Dean Vogelaar said as the club confirmed the choice of Jackson.

Only the first-round selections were made public by the commissioner's office. Subsequent rounds, which may continue as late as Wednesday, will not be made public until next week. Teams were directed by the commissioner's office not to reveal the rest of their picks, but the Royals confirmed Jackson's selection because the player's agent already had announced it.

There was some speculation that King could step right into the Pirates starting lineup at third base. Club spokesman Joe Gallagher said, however, that King would work out with the Pirates for about four days then go to their Class A Carolina League franchise, Prince William.

King, who was at his Colorado Springs, Colo., home when he was informed of his selection, said he expected to spend some time in the minors, "maybe a year or a year and a half," before making the major league club.

The third pick in the draft was Matt Williams, a Nevada-Las Vegas third baseman, to San Francisco, and the Texas Rangers chose Kevin Brown of Georgia Tech, a right-handed pitcher, No. 4. The Atlanta Braves used the fifth pick to take the first high school player in the draft, left-hander Kent Mercker of Dublin (Ohio) High School.

Gary Sheffield, nephew of 1985 Cy Young winner Dwight Gooden, was taken sixth by Milwaukee. Sheffield is a shortstop at the same school Gooden attended, Hillsborough High School in Tampa, Fla.

Two sons of former major leaguers were selected in the first round. Derrick May, a high school outfielder from Newark, Del. and the son of former Baltimore Oriole Dave May, was chosen by the Chicago Cubs as the ninth overall pick and Lee May Jr., a high school outfielder-first baseman from Cincinnati and son of former Red Lee May, was tabbed by the New York Mets as the 21st overall selection. The Mays are not related.

Arizona nips Loyola, 7-5

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Todd Trafton might be fooled once in a while on a good pitch. But try the same pitch twice and he'll make you pay.

The Arizona first baseman, playing on a sore foot, did just that to Loyola Marymount relief pitcher Jeff Goettsch. Trafton hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to lead the Wildcats to a 7-5 victory over Loyola in a winners bracket semifinal at the NCAA College World Series Monday.

"I hit a slider," Trafton said of his game-winning homer. "I knew it was gone and started jogging. He had thrown me the same pitch before but I froze on it. This time I was looking for it."

Loyola Coach Dave Snow said it "was a mistake. It was supposed to be a slider away but it flattened out."

The victory puts fifth-ranked Arizona, 47-18, into Thursday's winners bracket final at 7:10 p.m. CDT against the winner of tonight's Miami-Florida State contest.

Loyola, making its first trip to the national baseball championships, drops into the losers bracket and will face fourth-ranked Oklahoma State, 55-14, in Wednesday's 4:10 p.m. CDT elimination game.

Joe Estes, 7-3, picked up his second CWS win for Arizona. He came on in the top of the ninth and got the victory in the Wildcats' first-round 8-7 win over Maine. He relieved Gary Alexander in the sixth inning against Loyola and shut out the Lions the rest of the way.

Rockets' win doesn't worry experienced Boston Celtics

HOUSTON (AP) - Larry Bird isn't worried about how Houston plans to defense him or which Rocket will be covering him. He's just worried about winning.

"I really don't care who guards me," Bird, the NBA's most valuable player the last three seasons, said. "If I get the same shots I got Sunday I'll be happy. Robert Reid is the least of my worries."

Bird scored 25 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and handed out 11 assists Sunday in the Rockets' 106-104 victory that narrowed the Celtics' lead to 2-1 in their best-of-seven championship series.

However, Houston guard Reid guarded Bird in the second half and the Celtics star forward scored only six points in the second half as the Rockets rallied.

The Rockets will try to pull even in the series tonight before another vocal sellout crowd of 16,016 in The Summit.

The fifth game is scheduled here Thursday night with Games 6 and 7, if they are necessary, in Boston Garden where the Celtics lost just one game this season.

Despite the Rockets' pulsating comeback Sunday, Bird and his teammates weren't demoralized or impressed.

"This team doesn't need to talk about games like other teams," Bird said.

"We don't need team meetings or pep rallies. We just need to know what we have to do to win.

"The only thing I worry about is being behind three or four points with one second to go."

Houston outscored the Celtics 12-2 in the last three minutes Sunday and Bird had just one basket in the final four minutes.

"I'm sure they were pleased with themselves but they realize that today is another day," Bird said. "... Now we know how well we can play. We knew yesterday (Sunday) was going to be their best game of the series."

But the Rockets claim the best is yet to come.

"We can still play a lot better," Reid, who is 6-foot-8, the same height as Bird, said. "We've got to be more mentally prepared for the third quarter and we've got to get over some of those shooting lulls."

Boston guard Dennis Johnson was a first-hand observer of Houston's comeback and he hopes he's seen the last of such efforts.

"I don't know if they can play any better, they hope they can and I hope they can't," Johnson said. "Those questions will be answered soon enough."

Johnson said Game 3 simply proved the Celtics are human.

"As much as I'd like to believe that we're invincible, we're not," Johnson said. "We've had partially bad games like that before and others when we've been hot. We just have to come back Tuesday and play our best."

Reid expects to draw more defensive duty against Bird and he plans to be ready. Reid said he picks up Bird farther from the basket than other opponents.

"If he goes to the other end and stands there, I'll go too and let them play four-on-four," Reid said.

Rodney McCray, the third-year forward who has started every game for the Rockets since midway through his rookie season, regularly draws the oppositon's top shooter and also will be back as a protagonist.

"I'll just play the same type of defense I've always played, the kind I've played since college," McCray said.

Houston Coach Bill Fitch inserted Allen Leavell at point guard and inserted Mitchell Wiggins into the lineup for Houston's fourth quarter surge and Wiggins rewarded his coach by getting the game-winning tip-in.

"The thing I have to do with the limited minutes that I get is to make the most of each minute I'm in there," Wiggins said. "I'm a hungry player. Coach has made me one of the hungriest players in the league."

Experience rules at French Open

PARIS (AP) - So much for the youth movement.

Experience took over Monday at the French Open, a tournament that in its first week had started to take on aspects of a tennis kindergarten.

Chris Evert Lloyd and Hana Mandlikova, two old-timers, became the first players into the semifinals when they turned back strong challenges from two teen-agers.

Lloyd, the 31-year-old defending champion, beat 18-year-old Carling Bassett 5-7, 6-2, 6-1. Mandlikova, the 1981 winner and a semifinalist here four other times, defeated 16-year-old Steffi Graf 2-6, 7-6, 6-1, ending Graf's winning streak at 23 matches.

Lloyd and Mandlikova, 24, play their semifinal Thursday, with the American trying to end a two-match losing streak against the Czechoslovak. For their careers, Lloyd leads in head-to-head meetings 18-5.

In the men's field, No. 8 Henri Leconte, 22, downed 18-year-old Horacio de la Pena 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

The only teen-ager to advance was Wimbledon champion Boris Becker, and the 18-year-old third seed from West Germany almost didn't make it, either.

Down one set and a service break, Becker rallied to beat Emilio Sanchez of Spain, the 14th seed who celebrated his 21st birthday last week, 6-0, 4-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The youngest of the youngsters was to try to stem the tide of old age today. Mary Joe Fernandez, the 14-year-old from Miami, Fla., was to play sixth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechosklovakia for a women's semifinal berth.

The remaining women's quarterfinal pitted top-seeded Martina Navratilova of the United States against Kathy Rinaldi, a 19-year-old American who - at 14 years, 1 month - was the youngest quarterfinalist ever at the French Open, in 1981.

The men's quarterfinals ended with the lone American left, 13th-seeded Joahn Kriek, meeting 33-year-old Guillermo Vilas and top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia against Equador's Andres Gomez, seeded ninth.

Graf was serving for the match at 5-4 in the second set when she sent a forehand long. Mandlikova forced a tiebreaker, won it to tie the match and breezed through the final set, breaking Graf twice in the first three games and winning eight of the last 10 points.

Lloyd and Bassett went through an hour-long first set on center court that the Canadian said drained her of energy.

Lloyd, in the semifinals of a Grand Slam tournament for the 39th time, said it was hard to get going against Bassett in the day's first match.

"At 11 o'clock, I'm not at my best," Lloyd said.

Becker said a brief rain delay midway through the fourth set helped him.

"I tried to pump myself up during the break," he said.

Pumped up he was. He won two games after the rain stopped to even the match at 2-2 and swept to a 5-1 lead in the final set before serving out the match at love. A forehand volley that Sanchez could do nothing with sealed the victory.

In the quarterfinals, Becker will meet unseeded Mikal Pernfors, a Swede who wears red, white and blue tennis uniforms and won two NCAA championships at the University of Georgia. He beat 11th-seeded Martin Jaite of Argentina 6-1, 3-6, 7-6, 7-6.

The first designated hitter to come to the plate in the American League was Ron Blomberg of the Yankees, who drew a walk the first time up against the Red Sox on April 6, 1973.

Lie detector test indicates Fryar was telling the truth

BOSTON (AP) - Irving Fryar of the New England Patriots, his agent and a polygraph administrator agree that the wide receiver told the truth when he denied allegations he bet on National Football League games last season.

"I had nothing to hide," Fryar told The Boston Herald after he voluntarily took a lie detector test Monday. "I just wanted to prove to everybody what I said was the truth. I've never gambled on football games. Never. Ever."

Fryar, who reportedly was under investigation by the league for alleged gambling, took the 3½-hour polygraph in Texas. Sherwood Blount, Fryar's Dallas-based agent, arranged for Eric Holden, president of Eric J. Holden and Associates of North Dallas, to conduct the lie detector test.

"I got Mr. Holden's name from a number of high-ranking and respected law enforcement officials throughout the southwest," Blount said. "Neither myself nor any of the people in our company had ever met Mr. Holden before this afternoon."

Blount said the results of the exam would be forwarded from Holden to Jim Drakeley, Fryar's attorney, who will in turn send them to the NFL front office.

Holden, a licensed polygraph administrator since 1974, said the results of Fryar's test provided overwhelming scientific data that the football player told the truth when he denied the gambling allegations.

"After an extensive interview and development of the examination," Holden said, "it's my opinion conclusively that he (Fryar) is truthful in his statements that since turning pro, he had never himself gambled or bet on any NFL football games or had ever allowed or let anyone use his name or his money to gamble on any NFL game."

Holden said he believes the results of Fryer's examination had a 99 percent or better accuracy probability.

"I have every confidence in the results and feel that any competent polygraph examiner would be able to scrutinize and evaluate the series of polygraph charts and arrive at the same conclusion," Holden said.

He said the answers were negative.

"Following the examination, I left the laboratory and did a complete analysis and numerical chart scoring of the examination," Holden said. "My findings were that Mr. Fryar was clearly truthful in his denials."

Guard trying to place statue

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite repeated failures by helicopter pilots of the Texas Army National Guard to lower the new Goddess of Liberty atop the Capitol, the Capitol architect says, "We are going to go with the guard all the way."

Architect Roy Graham said Monday using a crane would be too expensive, but added that airlifting the 3,000-pound goddess is "the best way to put it on."

On Saturday and Sunday, guard pilots failed in 25 attempts to place the 16-foot statue on top of the 311-foot Capitol dome.

The mission was then called off for the weekend. Graham told reporters Monday that rain, wind and pilot fatigue had combined to thwart their efforts. He said adjustments in the harness that held the goddess "and a lot of other things" were being considered.

Graham said another attempt to put the goddess in place would be made this month but probably not until after next weekend. He said the statue, which had only a little paint damage, would be stored at Municipal Airport.

The guard is using a twin-rotor Chinook helicopter to lift the aluminum statue, which is an exact replica of the zinc goddess that stood atop the Capitol dome for 97 years. The original became so weather-beaten that it was deemed a safety hazard and was airlifted down in November.

Asked about the possibility of taking the statue apart and reassembling it on top of the dome, Graham said, "We want the strongest goddess possible, and some of the problems with the older goddess was because she was coming apart at the seams, so to speak, and things were happening like that."

"We have the lightest material of metal that we could possibly use up there but it's also among the strongest, and there's not been any suggestion among our experts that we should take her apart — actually, we cannot take her apart at this particular time," Graham said.

The National Guard had about 100 calls Sunday suggesting ways to get the goddess back on the dome.

"Put a funnel on the thing," said Nadiah Beekun, one of approximately 100 callers to Camp Mabry on Sunday. "Make it something lightweight ... like aluminum, something that's gold enough to just funnel it in there."

She was the sixth caller to suggest that idea, said Maj. Felix Malone, staff duty officer at Mabry. He said the funnel theory was one of the few he passed along to those in charge.

"Put a camera in front" of the helicopter. "Put a camera in the back. Use more rope. Use less rope. ... Every time I turn around the phone is ringing. I've never heard this much enthusiasm from Austin," Malone said.

Strike causes delays

A nationwide strike by about 155,000 AT&T employees caused some delays in operator service, and company officials acknowledge that if the walkout becomes a long one, it will be difficult to keep up with repairs.

The strike, in its third day today, also has disrupted operations at some regional telephone companies formerly affiliated with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. as non-striking employees honored picket lines.

AT&T officials said there were minor delays in operator service, but that about 90 percent of the long-distance calls it handles are direct-dial and not affected by the strike by the Communication Workers of America.

A key issue in the walkout is the union's contention that AT&T's final offer allows the company to dismiss up to 20,000 technicians who now make $646 a week and rehire them at $300 a week less.

AT&T officials have said that no such technician now on the payroll would take a pay cut.

On Monday, about 400 of Michigan Bell's 10,000 employees scheduled to work also refused to cross CWA picket lines at shared facilities, said company spokesman Greg Gordon in Detroit.

Ohio Bell Telephone said up to 350 of its workers did not cross picket lines Monday at buildings it shares with AT&T.

Peter Cronin of New England Telephone Co. in Boston said there was illegal picketing at buildings shared by NET and AT&T.

Tom Duddy, a spokesman for Bell of Pennsylvania, one of the independent companies created in the breakup of the Bell System, said there were scattered reports of some workers who also belong to the CWA staying off the job in sympathy with the strike against AT&T.

New York Telephone obtained a court order late Sunday after some of its workers honored picket lines at buildings shared with AT&T.

ty Jail in lieu of bond set at $15,000.

Indicted for two sex offenses against children was Marion Elvy Tierce of Snyder.

Tierce is named in one indictment for indecency with a child involving a 15-year-old girl on April 29 and one for aggravated sexual assault on a child involving a 13-year-old girl on April 25.

Bonds for Tierce have been set at $20,000 on the sexual assault charge and $15,000 on the indecency charge. He has not been arrested and is thought to be currently out-of-state.

Indicted on a charge of sexual assault was Billy Wayne Guynes of Snyder.

The charge stems from an alleged incident involving Guynes and a female acquaintance in early May. He had not been taken into custody as of Tuesday morning. Bond in his case was set at $10,000.

Named in a single indictment for criminal mischief was 17-year-old Pamela Jo Lane of Snyder.

She was indicted for taking part in the May 17 BB gun shooting of the windshield of a 1972 Ford pickup owned by Hope Heaton of 3614 41st St.

Lane, who has been questioned but not arrested by city police, is thought to have been involved in that incident along with 10 juvenile suspects.

Bond in her case was set at $2,000.

Named in a felony indictment for possession of a weapon in a penal institution was 18-year-old Domencio Medrano Silva of Rt. 3, Snyder.

Silva is alleged to have smuggled a knife into the Scurry County Jail on April 7 while he was in custody on [illegible] charge.

He remains in jail in lieu of bond set at $3,000 on that count.

Indicted for felony driving while intoxicated in the month of May was 31-year-old Israel Thomas Torres of Rt. 2, Snyder.

He was jailed for that offense on May 20 and is currently free after posting a $2,000 bond.

Buffalo statue prompts debate

curacies. I think we have to realize we have a noted local artist with a growing reputation who is offering us a bronze statue which will be a work of art."

The artist, Robert Taylor, presented his proposal to the commission Monday, but noted early on in the meeting, "I'm not here to infringe on your idea of the buffalo."

He noted his concept of a bull buffalo has its roots both in art — "You're talking about a big, good looking animal as opposed to a smaller animal." — and the marketplace — "A buffalo cow won't sell and you won't get your funds to finance the statue."

Taylor's proposal, initially presented to the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, was to cast two smaller sizes of the buffalo in bronze, and to allow the chamber to sell 30 medium-sized and 60 small-sized buffalos to raise a $35,000 expense for the life-sized statue.

Taylor would reserve the right to sell other issues of the limited edition statue himself — donating half of these profits toward the local project.

One alternative discussed by several commission members would be to approve the bull buffalo, but to back away from portraying it as the historical "white" buffalo.

"The thing that brought people to this area was the buffalo herds, so why not change the emphasis to the importance of the buffalo to the region?" noted commission member Aline Parks.

"Then you'd have two statues, one enhancing the other."

While noting the reputation of Snyder's white buffalo would likely improve sales, Taylor indicated he thought the concept of a statue to commemorate "the buffalo" would also work.

After some 45 minutes of discussion, commission member Ned Underwood proposed tabling a motion made earlier by Krenek to approve the statue as proposed.

He noted the commission should likely consult with other county residents involved with the white buffalo legend, to include county woman Judy Hays, J. Wright Mooar's grandaughter who retains the skin of the buffalo at her ranch.

Commission Chairman Charles Anderson appointed a committee comprised of Brud Boren, Drew Bullard, Jean Everett and June McGlaun to make a recommendation to the full board regarding the statue.

The commission indicated it would meet June 26 to finalize its decision.

Longtime A&M administrator dies

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Charles W. Crawford, a longtime administrator and teacher at Texas A&M University, died Sunday. He was 88.

Crawford had been in a coma since suffering a massive stroke last week.

City council agenda reported

prehensive Financial Report presented by City Secretary Jeanne Johnson.

—Approved traffic control devices along the newly completed Houston Parkway. The signs, erected just prior to the road's opening, include a stop sign on Houston where the street intersects 30th Street, a two-way stop at the intersection of Houston and 32nd Street, a stop sign on Houston where the street approaches College Avenue and a three-way stop at Houston and 48th Street. Councilmen approved the placements with a stipulation by Councilman David Hines to place warning signs on Houston near 48th Street to warn motorists that stop signs have been placed at that intersection.

—Approved a request from Girl Scout leader Betty Bredemeyer to block off traffic at the intersection of Avenue Y and 35th Street during the Girl Scout Day Camp scheduled here June 9-13. Additionally, caution signs will be erected at Avenue V and Avenue Z.

—Approved a request from Western Texas College officials for city assistance regarding a deficit of some $4,901 in income to expenses related to the Region V Basketball Tournament conducted here in mid-March. Dr. Harry Krenek noted that expenses for the tournament totaled some $26,482 with receipts listed as $21,581. He added that some payment for advertisements has not yet been received. The city will be reimbursed as those monies are collected.

—Approved a request from the Snyder Chamber of Commerce for the city to fund half the expense — about $2,900 — for the annual fireworks display. After Hines expressed concern over spending money which "may not put money back into the hotel-motel tax fund," Chamber Manager Mort Ewing noted that the city funded half the cost last year. He added that a variety of booths open during the July 4th celebration will help defray part of incurred expenses.

—Approved a request from the Snyder Chamber of Commerce to conduct a July 4th parade.

—Renewed the data-processing contract between the city and the Scurry County Appraisal District. Members of the appraisal district's board of directors approved the transaction during their May meeting.

—Approved on first reading a city ordinance to restrict parking in front of Snyder Nursing Center. After approved on second reading, "no parking" signs will be placed in front of the facility.

—Approved a request from members of the Ave. D Baptist Church to hold a Vacation Bible School parade June 7.

—Approved on first reading a zone change request submitted by David Strunk to rezone five lots in the 1500 Block of 38th and 39th Sts. from R-2 (limited multi-family) to C-2 (commercial district). Strunk plans to construct a 26-unit storage facility at that location.

Councilmen attending Monday's session included David Hines, Tommy Davis, Fred Castillo, Joe Fowler and Don Osborn. Mayor pro-tem Troy Williamson conducted the meeting in the absence of Rod Waller.

Two tents said stolen Monday

Eunice Davis of 116 24th St. reported the theft of two tents to police at 8:39 a.m. Monday.

The tents, valued at $70, are thought to have been taken from an open garage at the Davis residence sometime between 10 p.m. Friday and 5:30 p.m. Sunday. They are described as red in color.

School windows said broken out

Police on routine patrol early Tuesday discovered an apparent vandalism incident at Northeast Elementary School.

Two broken windows and two damaged window screens were discovered on the west part of the school building at 1:36 a.m.

Investigators said the building appeared secure and there was no evidence of entry.

In other action, city officers jailed two suspects — one man and one woman — for disorderly conduct Monday evening in two separate incidents.

West students receive awards

The following West Elementary students received awards during the end-of-the-year awards assembly held last week.

Two first graders in Patti Palmer's room received perfect attendance awards. They are Jay Griffin and Casity Reneau.

Bill Decker serves Midland County with saw

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Bill Decker is a craftsman who believes in speaking plainly, working industriously and smiling all the while. Since 1982, Decker, a former Midland County sheriff's deputy, has been doing carpentry and engineering work in the 56-year-old Midland County Courthouse. He started out by building cabinets in the fifth-floor Midland County Jail in 1982 when he was a jail lieutenant under former Sheriff Dallas Smith. From there, he expanded downward — to the remainder of the courthouse.

Along with help from skilled inmates, Decker has modified and remodeled several offices, including those of the sheriff, constable, county attorney, district attorney, county court-at-law, district clerk, treasurer, and 318th State District Court Judge Barbara Culver.

He converted the Commissioners' Courtroom to a multipurpose room to accommodate trials, hearings and commissioners' proceedings. He built the law library and has custom-made hardwood bookcases for the library.

"I think it (Decker's work) has been very beneficial and certainly is cost-effective," said County Commissioner C. Wallace "Wally" Craig.

In 1985, Decker set aside his side arm and badge and with the blessings of the Commissioners' Court and Sheriff Gary Painter, he shifted into full-time remodeling work for the county.

In doing so, he has made existing space more efficient, noted County Judge Bill Ahders. "Everything that improves the proficiency of each office without great costs, I'm in favor of doing," the judge said.

One of Decker's recent projects is a custom-made oak counter-computer console for District Clerk Vivian Wood, who said Decker "Did a wonderful job. It's going to make our work easier. It makes our space so much more functional."

Angie Welch, Mrs Wood's assistant chief deputy, said the hardwood "adds to the office."

"It makes you feel better about where you work," she said, and it boosts the morale. "It makes us proud to work for Vivian."

"I'm trying to make the building look better — not old-fashioned necessarily," said Decker. "I'm trying to put hardwood-quality work in there to make it look more professional and more authoritative like it should.

"Everyone who comes in says it 'looks great' — breaks up the monotony of the old vinyl."

The courthouse was built out of rock in 1930 and was adorned with marble wainscoting, marble stairways, terazzo floors and wood-enhanced courtrooms.

But when the courthouse was remodeled in the early 1970s, the courthouse was gutted, the wainscoting and marble were ripped out and much of the old oak and American walnut woodwork was replaced, switched around or covered up with synthetic material. The courthouse took on a multi-colored contemporary look.

Synthetic materials replaced wood and marble. Simulated wook-grain wall covering, particle-board, plasterboard (Sheetrock), glass, tile and plastics were the new order. The dignified aura of old, dark hardwoods associated with courthouses was de-emphasized.

"You go in the federal courthouse and you see a lot of hardwoods in it," observed Decker. "It's more of a feeling of a courtroom — stately."

In his piecemeal remodeling of the courthouse, Decker is emphasizing the richness of hardwoods, such as oak and birch. Outside the courthouse, he works with other hardwoods, such as cherry, walnut, mahogany, butternut, maple and alder.

"It looks pretty dignified," Midland lawyer H.W. "Woody" Leverett Jr. said of Decker's craftsmanship in the District Clerk's office.

"I think it adds a certain dignity and decorum to the courthouse — not that it wasn't there," said Midland lawyer Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer. Seltzer noted that Decker's work "saves the taxpayers a great deal of money. It's a good effort on the part of the commissioners."

Decker has been into woodworking for 22 years — since he was 16 years old and studied it in high school.

Oilmen delighted about prospects of tariff on oil

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Independent oil and gas producers meeting here were told that prospects of an oil import fee may be improving.

Speakers at a Monday gathering of industry leaders were optimistic about the import fee's chances despite the fact it is now opposed by President Reagan.

U.S. Rep. Jim Jones, D-Okla., said the fee should gain momentum from the need to generate more revenue because of Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction measures.

Jones cited falling rig counts and said oil prices probably will not top $18 per barrel in the next several quarters.

"In human terms I think it has truly been devastating throughout the patch," Jones told about 500 members of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners gathered in Fort Worth for the 40th annual convention.

He said he expects more domestic oil companies to announce layoffs because of the glut of foreign oil.

The mid-1970s energy crisis haunted most of the discussion Monday as industry leaders warned the country could flip back into the pre-1973 habits of dependence on cheap foreign fuel and lavish consumption.

Jones said the increases in consumption coupled with the decrease in exploration is "putting the U.S. right back where we were in the early 1970s."

Gov. Mark White said the nation could see a replay of the energy crisis as early as 1988 if no steps are taken. He said an oil import fee is the fastest way to help Texas' oil industry.

White said protecting the interests of the domestic oil industry is vital to the national security.

He referred to the recent raid on Libya and noted the only European country willing to voice its support was Britain, which has its own oil reserves.

"This isn't just an economic question. You have to protect the nation's security first," the governor said.

Echoing that theme, Benjamin Netanyahu, Israeli ambassador to the United Nations, told the group that the dependency on OPEC during the 1970s was accompanied by a rise in terrorism.

Chain gang worked to 'Jailhouse Rock'

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A former Hill Country ranch worker has testified he was one of several men who held guns on three hitchhikers who were forced to dig ditches in a chain gang.

Marshall Van Scoyk Jr., 21, also told the court in an organized crime trial the men dug to the pop tune "Jailhouse Rock" played on a cassette player.

Van Scoyk also corroborated testimony given earlier by Travis Boyd and Robert McCafferty, two of the men who allegedly were on that chain gang.

Van Scoyk is one of nine people named in an organized crime indictment returned in the alleged abduction and slaying of drifter Anthony Bates.

His testimony Monday came in the trial of three of those defendants — Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 55; his son Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 33; and former ranch worker Carlton Robert Caldwell, 21.

The state claims the Ellebrachts lured workers like Bates to their Hill Country ranch with the promise of work, then forced them to stay.

Prosecutors also allege Bates was tortured to death with an electric cattle prod, then his body doused in gasoline and burned.

Van Scoyk testified he was hitchhiking from his home in San Antonio to Arizona when the elder Ellebracht picked him up in Kerrville and offered him a ranch job.

A few days after he arrived at the Ellebracht ranch, Van Scoyk testified four other hitchhikers arrived.

When three of the four asked to leave, he testified, "Junior got real mad and got real belligerent. He hollered to his wife to get the hardware."

The younger Ellebracht's wife Joyce, Van Scoyk said, "started handing him a bunch of guns."

Then the younger Ellebracht chained the three men together with a logging chain as the senior Ellebracht fired a rifle over their heads.

"Junior gave me a handgun and made the men get in the back of the black pickup truck," Van Scoyk said.

"Junior told me if those three guys run to stop 'em, shoot 'em," he said.
