Burkett Enters Strong Denial of Dan Moody's Charges

SAYS CLAIM OF OBLIGATION TO ROAD MEN A LIE

WANTED LOW PRICES

Insisted on 25 Cent Charge For Paving Roads, He Says

ABILENE, Tex., Nov. 14.—State Highway Commissioner Joe Burkett, in Abilene tonight issued a statement to the press denying allegations made in the suit filed by Attorney General Dan Moody against the Hoffman Construction company, in so far as they related to his conneetion with the letting of said contracts, as reported by dispatches sent out from Austin today.

A copy of the dispatch was shown Judge Burkett here tonight and he made the following statement: "The allegations that I am under personal obligations to said defendants, or any of them, is false and untrue. Neither is it true that C. R. Starnes, or any one else, approached me and informed me that contracts like those made with the American Road company would be profitable to the Hoffman Construction company, and it is likewise not true that I obtained Lanham's consent and the commission entered into such contracts. General Moody knows that I, at all times, insisted on a 25 cents per square yard contract instead of 30 cents until State Highway Engineer Hank assured me that 30 cents was a reasonable price, and in line with what had been theretofore paid by the older commission for the same character of work. Neither is it true that 17 contracts were made with the said company, as reported in press dispatches."

All of this is the result of three month's investigation by the attorney general and the Travis county grand jury which has been probing state affairs for several weeks.

Rumors afloat today were to the effect that Governor Miriam A. Ferguson contemplated asking for the resignation of Frank V. Lanham, chairman of the highway commission, and Joe Burkett. Lanham said he had not resigned and gave no indication that he would. He was here preparing to contest the attorney general's authority to prosecute the American Road company case which comes up for hearing Monday morning before Judge George Calhoun, upon recent instructions of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Indications at the governor's office were that she intends to back the highway commission in the American Road company case as stated in her recent letter to Chairman Lanham when she denied the right of the attorney general to file the suit. Counsel for the commission has been working in preparation for the hearing Monday.

Snow On Plains And Panhandle

A blizzard that promises to temper the constitutions of Texans for a crisp Thanksgiving swept down upon the northern plains of the state late Saturday and was biting its way southward, leaving in its wake snow in the panhandle and plains country.

Western Texas was hit first by the blizzard and tonight the thermometer was hovering around the freezing point in the plains country with a promise of colder weather Sunday. Several points in that part of the state reported snowfall. Three inches of snow fell in Perryton, Ochiltree county and at Amarillo and Plainview.

At Dallas the thermometer fell 20 degrees in less than three hours late Saturday.

SCHOOL KIDS GIVE FLOWERS FOR REPAIRING OF STREETS

SAN ANTINIO, Nov. 14.—Students of Washington Irving school presented Mayor John W. Tobin and Commissioner of Streets Paul Steffler each with a bouquet of flowers today in appreciation of their response to a petition asking that the streets around the school building be graveled.

Church Will Burn Mortgage On Piano At Service Today

Burning of the mortgage on the church piano will be a feature of the Sunday morning service November 22 at the Yale Avenue Evangelical church, according to the pastor, Rev. W. D. Cook.

Three years ago the church bought a piano, and a mortgage of $275 was made. Now that the debt is paid, and the piano is really owned by the church, a short service of thanksgiving will be held. Following the close of Sunday school, at the closing assembly, the superintendent, J. L. Arnold will place the mortgage on a plate, and strike a match, firing the paper.

Church Meeting Postponed Due To Theft Of Batteries

PETROLIA, Nov. 14.—For the second time a protracted meeting of the Harrville German Baptist association has of necessity been postponed due to theft of batteries from the church's lighting system.

Last July a meeting was interrupted by reason of thieves stealing batteries from the plant, and another session dated for Friday night of this week was postponed when it was found another theft of newly purchased property had been made, plunging the church in darkness.

The batteries are worth $250, it is said, which stands the association a $500 loss.

Satterwhite Asks Solons To Meet With Tax Envoys

AMARILLO, Texas, Nov. 14.—(AP)—An invitation to the members of the Texas legislature to meet with the state committee of tax clubs at a session called for Austin November 23, to discuss the inheritance tax situation, was issued today by Lee Satterwhite, speaker of the house of the legislature.

Satterwhite hopes that as many of the Texas legislators as possible meet with the tax club members for a full and free discussion of the matter.

The speaker said that in the event a considerable number of legislators assembled at Austin on that date it was not his intention to use it as a modus operandi for the convening of a special session of the body.

Same Government In Australia Wins

MELBURNE, Australia, Nov. 14.—(AP)—General elections throughout Australia for which the recent seamen's strike was responsible have resulted i nthe return of the nationalist-country coal government of which Stanley M. Bruce is head.

Although the returns are incomplete, they indicate an increased majority for the present government with all members of the ministry almost certainly re-elected.

The elections were held under novel conditions, the new law making voting compulsory being invoked. For failure to cast a ballot a penalty of two pounds sterling was provided. This brought a record poll, the women being especially prominent.

Blazer Freed, May Seek a New Trial

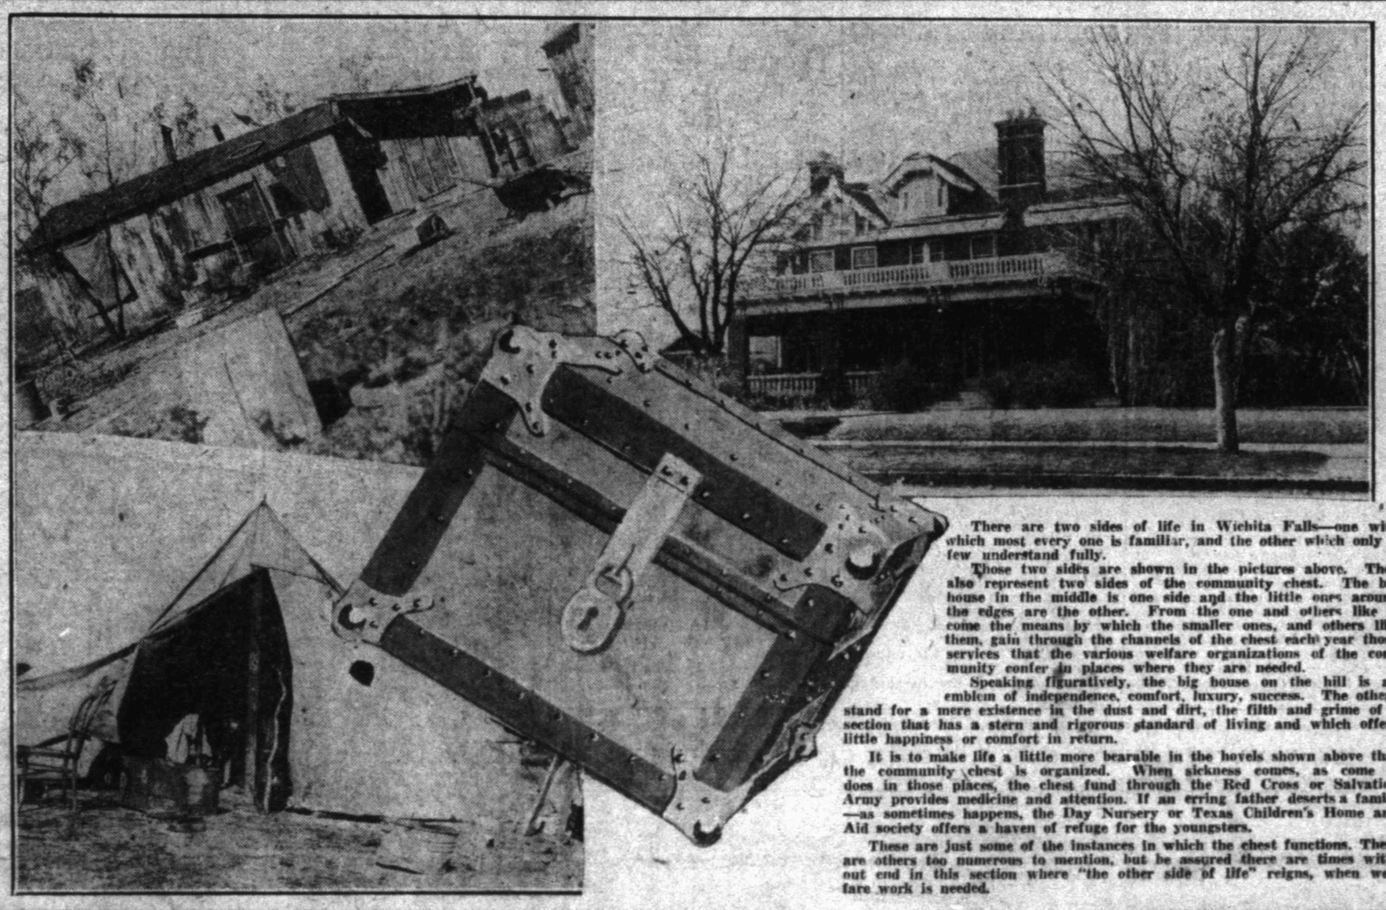

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 14.—(AP)—The state will resist efforts of attorneys for Dr. Harold E. Blazer to bring about a re-trial of the aged country physician on a charge of murdering his 34-year-old "child-woman" daughter, Hazel.

Joel E. Stone, prosecutor of the trial, which ended with a deadlocked jury and subsequent dismissal of the murder charges against Dr. Blazer, announced tonight he would fight all attempt to re-try the case and place Colorado in the position of legalizing this character of crime."

Tenth Victim Of Train Wreck Dies

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 14.—(AP)—The tenth victim of the Pennsylvania railroad wreck near Plainsboro early Thursday was identified this afternoon as Earl T. Brown of Thomaston, Maine. The nine other bodies have been removed by relatives.

Community Chest Backers Graphically Portray How the Best In City Care for the Poorest.

There are two sides of life in Wichita Falls—one with which most every one is familiar, and the other which only a few understand fully.

Those two sides are shown in the pictures above. They also represent two sides of the community chest. The big house in the middle is one side and the little ones around the edges are the other. From the one and others like it come the means by which the smaller ones, and others like them, gain through the channels of the chest each year those services that the various welfare organizations of the community confer in places where they are needed.

Speaking figuratively, the big house on the hill is an emblem of independence, comfort, luxury, success. The others stand for a mere existence in the dust and dirt, the filth and grime of a section that has a stern and rigorous standard of living and which offers little happiness or comfort in return.

It is to make life a little more bearable in the hovels shown above that the community chest is organized. When sickness comes, as come it does in those places, the chest fund through the Red Cross or Salvation Army provides medicine and attention. If an erring father deserts a family—as sometimes happens, the Day Nursery or Texas Children's Home and Aid society offers a haven of refuge for the youngsters.

These are just some of the instances in which the chest functions. There are others too numerous to mention, but be assured there are times without end in this section where "the other side of life" reigns, when welfare work is needed.

Mrs. Clint Wood Succumbs To Stroke of Apoplexy At Home Late Saturday Eve

Husband, In Austin at Time Of Fatality, Is Reached By Telephone

Mrs. G. Clint Wood, wife of one of this city's most prominent business men and civic leaders, died very suddenly at 5:45 o'clock Saturday evening from a stroke of apoplexy. She was stricken in her home, 1000 Brook avenue, and expired before medical attention, hastily summoned, could reach her.

Mrs. Wood had apparently been in good health up until time of her death. She had gone about the routine duties of her home as usual yesterday, it was said, and gave on indication that a fatal illness was approaching.

Husband In Austin

Her husband was in Austin yesterday visiting a son, Preston, and was informed by telephone last night of his wife's death. He and his boy left immediately for Wichita Falls, driving through, it is understood, and Wood had gone for a short pleasure trip to visit with his son and had been there but a short time when the summons home came.

Mrs. Wood was born in South Carolina in 1877 and would have been 48 years of age next spring. Her family later came to Texas and for a time she resided in Beaumont and Houston, coming here after her marriage. She and Mr. Wood were married in 1896. She had long been

Bones Of Ancient Race Unearthed

KRASNOYARSK, Siberia, Nov. 14. (AP)—Excavations on Afrontov mountain near here have resulted in the discovery of several skeletons of paleothic men and the remains of several hundred mammoths, wolves and bears. The skeletons are believed by Russia archaeologists to be about 30,000 years old.

Weapons and tools of hitherto unknown types also were found. Among these are curiously shaped cudgels made of tusks of the mammoth.

Never Again, Says Mrs. Valentino Of Life In Wedlock

NE WYORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—"Never again" is Mrs. Winifred Hudnut Valentino's attitude toward further matrimonial venture. All artists should be unmarried, she said, and added:

"Children and domesticity are incompatible with a career, that's all."

Mrs. Valentino complained that it had taken Rudolph who departed today for Paris, three years to develop his lack of appreciation for her ambition to become a motion picture star in her own rights. She said that she would remain in the east to make pictures because she was "fed up" n Hollywood.

Valentino also announced that he believed it better for persons in his profession to remain single. He said that after establishing a residence in Paris so that his wife might more easily obtain a divorce he would visit his family in Italy.

ASK GAS FRANCHISE

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Filing a written application for a gas franchise from the city of San Antonio today, Seagraves and Moody proposed to enter into a profit sharing agreement with the city, meaning that they are willing to give the city a certain percentage of their net earnings.

East Texas Conference Closes Business; Name Pastors Today

JACKSONVILLE, Texas, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Texas conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, which has been in session here since Wednesday completed all its business today except announcement of pastoral appointments which will come tomorrow night. A memorial session is to be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow and there will be preaching by visiting ministers in Jacksonville pulpits tomorrow.

LOCAL WOMAN HURT AS AUTO STAGE WRECKS

Passengers of Motor Car Are Injured at Electra

ELECTRA, Nov. 14.—The 2 o'clock stage out of Electra for Vernon was overturned at the intersection of Waggoner and Glisson streets here this afternoon. The stage ran into the curbing in an attempt to avoid a collision with another car. The passengers were slightly injured. Mrs. Ine Hardy of Wichita Falls, was injured more than any of the other passengers. Mrs. Hardy received an injury to her back and was taken to Wichita Falls.

Mrs. W. P. Reese, of Vernon, was injured about the body, but later resumed her trip to Vernon.

The stage was a six passenger touring car driven by Robert Walker, of Vernon. The windshield was broken and the top crushed in.

Hatcher Refuses To Give Up Oil Fund

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 14.—(AP)—W. Gregory Hatcher, state treasurer, today again refused to deposit to credit of the Texas university permanent fund royalties on oil production from university lands in Reagan county. A warrant from S. H. Terrell, comptroller, ordering the treasurer to deposit to the permanent fund $1,461,280.05 was refused to Mr. Hatcher. This money now is drawing interest of about 3 1-2 per cent.

2 Found Guilty In Sealy Murder Case

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Nov. 14. (AP)—Foster Bell and John Miller were found guilty of the slaying of Robert Schaffner, at Sealy in 1922, and were sentenced to five and seven years, respectively, in the penitentiary by a jury here today. They were tried jointly on a murder charge.

F. C. Shaffner, father of Robert, and two other men lost their lives at the time of the trouble. The case has been one of the hardest fought in the history of Williamson county, it coming here on a change of venue from Travis county but having been originally sent there from Austin county.

POLITICS AND OIL DISCUSSED BY GEOLOGISTS

Comment Divided Pro and Con on A. P. I. Crude Report

An echo of the old contention that the oil business is going to be forced into politics sooner or later, either to protect its interests or in a more or less passive capacity to shoulder burdens that other industries are going to put upon it was heard at last night's meeting of the North Texas geological society at the Wichita Club. The discussion on the matter was the outgrowth of more or less critical comment made on the report of the American Petroleum Institute's committee of eleven to the president of the United States oil conservation board regarding the future supply of petroleum in the nation.

Supply Overestimated

The charge was made by a number of those present, including L. E. Trout of the Consolidated Oil company, that the estimate of the A. P. I. committee was considerable overestimated. The charge was based on several aspects of the report; the amount of petroleum which the report estimates may ultimately be derived from coal and oil shale was attacked: the amount of proven acreage granted in the report was stated to be much too high; and there was considerable criticism of vast areas included in the report as potentially productive which in the opinion of various geologists present had never and would never likely produce any great amount of oil.

The discussion was led by M. E. Hubbard, of the Humble Oil and Refining company. Mr. Hubbard, possibly of all those present, held the best opinion of the report. "An immense proposition, extremely liable to error and certainly not free from mistake. But on the whole, inasmuch as it dissipates fear that the available crude supply is only sufficient for ten or twelve years, it is good. Its most pessimistic detractors do not question the fact it was intended to purvey to the public that there is plenty of petroleum left in the ground for decades yet to come and no need to be worried about where gasoline for tomorrow's auto-

STEPHENSON CONVICTED IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Madge Oberholtzer Took Poison After Mistreatment

2 PALS ACQUITTED

Klenck and Gentry Were Charged With Abduction and Attack on Girl

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Life imprisonment in the Indiana state prison at Michigan City is the price which a jury determined today that D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Indiana ku klux klan, shall pay for the death of Madge Oberholtzer.

It took a panel composed of ten farmers, one business man and a truck driver less than six hours to reach the verdict. Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, body guards of Stephenson and charged jointly with the abduction and attack of the girl last March 15, were acquitted.

Miss Oberholtzer took poison in a Hammond, Ind., hotel after the alleged mistreatment and died at her Indianapolis home 29 days later. The men were charged with responsibility for her act.

Says Fight Just Begun

Murder in the second degree was the finding of the jury. It calls automatically for 20 years' servitude which the Indiana law designates as life imprisonment. Good behavior can reduce the term by several years. Stephenson took the verdict without flinching. A short laugh and a shake of the head were his only manifestations. "Surrender, hell!" he said as he lay on his bunk a few minutes later in the cell that has been his home for seven months. "I am just beginning to fight. The last chapter has not been written."

Floyd Christian, of defense counsel, notified Judge Will M. Sparks that a motion of appeal would be filed. The judge left the court immediately after the verdict without indicating when sentence will be pronounced. Stephenson will be removed to the state prison pending appeal.

Rose to Fame Quickly

Less than a year ago a domineering figure in Hoosier politics, Stephenson's fall was as sudden as his rise to prominence. Four years ago he entered the state unknown without friends or money. A dynamic speaker with a personality which was felt even in the court room during his trial, he ascended in the Ku

H. Terrell, comptroller, ordering the treasurer to deposit to the permanent fund $1,461,289.05 was refused to Mr. Hatcher. This money now is drawing interest of about 3 1-2 per cent.

2 Found Guilty In Sealy Murder Case

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Nov. 14. (AP)—Foster Bell and John Miller were found guilty of the slaying of Robert Schaffner, at Sealy in 1922, and were sentenced to five and seven years, respectively, in the penitentiary by a jury here today. They were tried jointly on a murder charge.

F. C. Shaffner, father of Robert, and two other men lost their lives at the time of the trouble. The case has been one of the hardest fought in the history of Williamson county, it coming here on a change of venue from Travis county but having been originally sent there from Austin county.

POLITICS AND OIL DISCUSSED BY GEOLOGISTS

Comment Divided Pro and Con on A. P. I. Crude Report

An echo of the old contention that the oil business is going to be forced into politics sooner or later, either to protect its interests or in a more or less passive capacity to shoulder burdens that other industries are going to put upon it was heard at last night's meeting of the North Texas geological society at the Wichita Club. The discussion on the matter was the outgrowth of more or less critical comment made on the report of the American Petroleum Institute's committee of eleven to the president of the United States oil conservation board regarding the future supply of petroleum in the nation.

Supply Overestimated

The charge was made by a number of those present, including L. E. Trout of the Consolidated Oil company, that the estimate of the A. P. I. committee was considerable overestimated. The charge was based on several aspects of the report; the amount of petroleum which the report estimates may ultimately be derived from coal and oil shale was attacked: the amount of proven acreage granted in the report was stated to be much too high; and there was considerable criticism of vast areas included in the report as potentially productive which in the opinion of various geologists present had never and would never likely produce any great amount of oil.

The discussion was led by M. E. Hubbard, of the Humble Oil and Refining company. Mr. Hubbard, possibly of all those present, held the best opinion of the report. "An immense proposition, extremely liable to error and certainly not free from mistake. But on the whole, inasmuch as it dissipates fear that the available crude supply is only sufficient for ten or twelve years, it is good. Its most pessimistic detractors do not question the fact it was intended to purvey to the public that there is plenty of petroleum left in the ground for decades yet to come and no need to be worried about where gasoline for tomorrow's auto-

STEPHENSON CONVICTED IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Madge Oberholtzer Took Poison After Mistreatment

2 PALS ACQUITTED

Klenck and Gentry Were Charged With Abduction and Attack on Girl

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Life imprisonment in the Indiana state prison at Michigan City is the price which a jury determined today that D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Indiana ku klux klan, shall pay for the death of Madge Oberholtzer.

It took a panel composed of ten farmers, one business man and a truck driver less than six hours to reach the verdict. Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, body guards of Stephenson and charged jointly with the abduction and attack of the girl last March 15, were acquitted.

Miss Oberholtzer took poison in a Hammond, Ind., hotel after the alleged mistreatment and died at her Indianapolis home 29 days later. The men were charged with responsibility for her act.

Says Fight Just Begun

Murder in the second degree was the finding of the jury. It calls automatically for 20 years' servitude which the Indiana law designates as life imprisonment. Good behavior can reduce the term by several years. Stephenson took the verdict without flinching. A short laugh and a shake of the head were his only manifestations. "Surrender, hell!" he said as he lay on his bunk a few minutes later in the cell that has been his home for seven months. "I am just beginning to fight. The last chapter has not been written."

Floyd Christian, of defense counsel, notified Judge Will M. Sparks that a motion of appeal would be filed. The judge left the court immediately after the verdict without indicating when sentence will be pronounced. Stephenson will be removed to the state prison pending appeal.

Rose to Fame Quickly

Less than a year ago a domineering figure in Hoosier politics, Stephenson's fall was as sudden as his rise to prominence. Four years ago he entered the state unknown without friends or money. A dynamic speaker with a personality which was felt even in the court room during his trial, he ascended in the Ku

IOWA PARK, Nov. 14.—An armistice program was rendered before an audience of more than 700 people Wednesday morning in the auditorium of the W. F. George high school. The porgram:

Patriotic songs led by Mr. Wilgies and Mr. Pittman from the First Presbyterian church of Wichita Falls; prayer, Rev. J. C. Newman, special songs by girls from the 10 the and 11th grades, reading "My Only Son," Arthur Estes, an address by Judge B. D. Sartin of Wichita Falls.

The People of Iowa Park also enjoyed the second number of the Lyceum Course given by the business people of this place. Miss Emily Waterman rendered a good program.

Tarantula Bites Iowa Park Youth

IOWA PARK, Nov. 14.—S. J. Dean, son of Dr. Dean of Iowa Park, was bitten by a trantula while working on a lease about twenty miles from Iowa Park. He was rushed to Iowa Park soon after the bite but by the time he got home his body had been stiffened by the poison and he is still in a serious condition. He will recover.

Holliday Schools Observe Armistice

HOLLIDAY, Nov. 14.—Armistice Day was observed by the students of the Holliday public school the afternoon of the eleventh, when an appropriate program was presented in the auditorium. After singing, "The American's Creed," by William Tyler Page, was read.

Supt. B. L. Bradford related some of his personal experiences during the the years 1917-18.

A quartet of sixth grade students and a group from the third grade sang, followed by a reading by Jack Dykes. Mrs. T. B. Parrish cleverly interpreted a dialect piece and responded to an encore. Catherine Hawley read "Armistice Day." Then followed a dramatization of an attack on the Germans, staged by the fifth grade, with Red Cross nurses in attendance. Nellie Smith read "In Flanders Field."

J. C. Thomas, new mayor of Holliday, addressed the student body and reviewed some of the salient facts in American history, particularly of the revolutionary and civil war periods.

G. A. Holloway made a short talk, urging a realization of responsibilities and emphasized the need of preparation for them.

COTTON CROP IN IOWA PARK MUCH SHORTER

Grade and Prices Are Also Lower Than Previous Year

IOWA PARK, Nov. 14.—The cotton gins at Iowa Park and K. M. A. are again very busy. The gins are running early and late.

In three or four weeks the bulk of the cotton will have been gathered and ginned. Most of the farmers are selling the cotton as fast as they have it ginned, while a few are holding for higher price. The sample and grade of cotton is far below the samples of last year's crops, prices lower and turn out not so good which make the cotton growers' money somewhat shorter than expected this summer.

Waurikan's Auto Is "Buried" by Sand

WAURIKA, Nov. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Kerr drove home from Oklahoma City last Friday night, getting caught in a regular cloud burst near Rush Springs. Stopping their car, a new Ford sedan, they waited for the storm to abate and when it was over the sand had washed down the hill side until they were in sand above the wheel hubs. Nothing and nobody could extricate them until a passing car carried the message into town and three men came out with shovels and literally dug them out. They reached home several hours behind schedule, but without further mishap.

Joe Burkett Charged With "Favoritism" by Dan Moody

AUSTIN, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Charging connivance in efect with Joe Burkett, state highway commissioner, Attorney General Dan Moody today filed suit against the Hoffman Construction company of Eastland to cancel contracts with the highway department. The petition was filed in the 53rd district court of Travis county and claims $100,000 damage.

The petition names besides the construction company C. R. Starnes of San Antonio, G. A. Davisson, F. G. Hofman and M. J. Kelley of Eastland as defendants. It alleges that Joe Burkett, highway commissioner, had long been and is now friendly to and under personal obligation to the individual defendant herein sued or some of them, and that the said defendants were active in promoting the appointment of the said Joe Burkett to the office of highway commissioner for being their then design and intention to acquire, through said Joe Buckett, profitable contracts, for highway construction, maintenance and repair within this state."

The petition states that the highway commission on April 7, 1925, attempted to ratify certain agreements, Frank V. Lanham, highway commission chairman, "theretofore made or attempted to make, with E. S. Heyser and Whitaker Brodnax of Dallas, for the American Road company; that lowering of the attempted contracts, C. R. Starnes approached Joe Buckett, and informed him that live contracts would be profitable to the Hoffman Construction company. It alleges that Burkett obtained Lanham's consent and the commission entered into diverse contracts" with the Hoffman concern.

"Personal Favorism" Charged

"Your petitioner now charges that in his conduct aforesaid and in procuring the contracts hereinafter alleged the said Joe Burkett, highway commissioner, was inspired by motives of personal favorism without regard to the best interest of the state of Texas," the petition reads. "That his acts in the premises and the consent of the chairman of the highway commission constitute in effect a connivance with the defendants herein named whereby they should be permitted to defraud the state of Texas, as hereinafter particularly appears."

It is alleged in the petition that the highway commission made 17 contracts with the Hoffman Construction company for surfacing approximately 600 miles of state highways, all of which is said to be in Commissioner Burkett's territory. The work was to be done in Reeves, Hudspeth, Midland, Brewster, Terrell, Scurry, Coleman, Eastland, Ward, Howard and Potter counties.

RUBBER MONOPOLY TO BE BROKEN.

Raw rubber will cost the American public $400,000,000.00 this year. Rubber is a monopoly practically controlled by British colonists with the financial backing of the British government. Now comes the commerce department of the United States government with the information that rubber production in the Amazon valley of South America, which was the original home of the forest tree, that is now principally nurtured in the plantations if British East India can be brought up to a very high mark.

This infirmation was given in a bulletin in outlining results of a special study in the Amazon area. There are three hundred million rubber bearing trees in the Amazon country, most of which were allowed to fall back into neglect when the plantation rubber of East India lowered prices and if crude rubber prices at New York remain at a level at 40 cents a pound, it is predicted by the agents of the commerce department that an output of upward of 44,000 tons a year would be attained.

The rubber study has been persued vigorously by the agents of the department because under the influence of the British government restriction scheme, the price of raw rubber has been forced from a very low figure to upward of $1.00 per pound. It was the belef of the American investigators that the Amazon production was showing signs of great stimulus from high prices and that labor conditions made it possible that large expansions in the output would result this year.

Furthermore, the report is one of a series made through Secretary Herbert Hoover by special investigators who have been looking into possible sources of production of essential raw materials needed for American industry. Colonel Harvey Firestone and his associates have invaded the black republic of Liberia, on the African coast, where they have invested $5,000,000 as a curtain raiser in rubber plantations and expect to make an investment of $100,000,000 to push rubber production in Liberia.

Other American capitalists have made large investments in the Philippean islands where the rubber tree has an ideal home and where the industry may grow by leaps and bounds. Mr. John Bull and his rubber producers are going to have a smashed monopoly on their hands in less than five years time.

They thought they had the rubber supply cornered. They forced the Americans to pay exhorbitant prices. Now the men of genius and the men of billions in America are going into the rubber producing business, and they are going to win.

A most valuable public servant is Herbert Hoover, one of the world's greatest engineers, a multi-millionaire in his own right, who thinks in world language and not in local patter and who is sending the agents of his department to all part of the world to obtain information as to the raw materials which enter so largely into American manufacture.

AN ENGLISH HISTORIAN.

John Fortescue is a noted English historian, who in contributing to the London Times interesting articles concerning Americans of revolutionary days. Should he come to America, Mr. Fortescue is certain to be given the icey shoulder. In a recent historical sketch he says Americans were a very curious stock in colonial days.

He says Virginia in its early days had been peopled with criminals, and Carolina in the 17th century was a refuge for the rascality of the earth. New England was no better. Indeed, he says New England had been settled mainly by the sourest and narrowest fanatics, who prated about liberty of conscience and desired liberty to prosecute.

To be very exact; this English historian says, "If the first American settlers were to present themselves in New York now, most of them would, perhaps, be consigned at once to Ellis Island." Henry Ford said in a famous newspaper libel suit, that all history was bunk.

Descendants of the cavaliers of Virginia and the Carolinas will agree with Henry when they read the Fortescue history of the early Americans, and the 30,000,000 descendants of Mayflower forebearers, will rise in their wrath and call for a new declaration of American independence.

Speaking of the League of Nations or a world court, Mr. John Fortescue is not helping along the cause the least bit.

MILLIONS FOR TEXAS' WORKERS.

It is announced by the management that about $9,000,000.00 will be spent by the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad on Texas property of the company during the coming year for maintenance. This sum is practically half of the system expenditure next year for maintenance, and next year the Katy system will build a thousand new freight cars in its own shops, and at least five hundred will be made in the shops at Denison.

All the great chains of finance, all the great captains of industry, all the heads of gigantic corporations, are insisting that a period of prosperity is about to be ushered in that will last for many years to come. There is no reason why Thanksgiving day should not be observed by the inmates of every American household.

WORLD'S GREATEST TALKER.

Winston Churchill was the greatest talker during the last session of the British parliament, his speeches consisting of 145,000 words, filling 309 columns of the official Gazette.

Senator Heflin of Alabama has a more unique record than Winston Churchill, the prize talker of the British Isles. He talks oftener with greater volume of flow than any living statesman. Flowers for the living, home first. Always guard the record of the American product.

Heflin is entitled to first rank, not in America, but the wide world over. Cyclone Davis of Texas should be awarded second place. He hasn't let loose this year, but is said to be oiling his oratorical guns for 1926.

THIS IS THE LAW IN TEXAS.

Child desertion is not the law of the jungle, but it is the law in Texas, according to the court of criminal appeals. A husband and father in a west Texas county deserted his children. He was convicted of child desertion and fined a hundred dollars and sentenced to a year in the county jail. Then came an appeal to the court of last resort and the conviction was affirmed.

According to the opinion written by Judge O. S. Lattimore, members of the court are of the opinion that "one who is shown to have deserted his children when they are in destitute or necessitous circumstances, should be held guilty of a violation of the law without proof of his inability or unwillingness to supply them. It may be otherwise when reliance is had in a particular case on that part of the statutes which makes guilt dependent on neglect or refusal to supply the wife or children. When the charge laid embraces all of the ways in which the law may be violated the state may claim conviction upon proof of either mode."

Judge Lattimore's opinion also states that while in this case the proof might not show the children, under 16 years old at the time, to be in absolute destitute circumstances, nevertheless, it abounds in testimony showing them in necessitous circumstances. This is the law of civilization. It is not jungle law. And the law of civilization is that a father must provide for his children.

If he deserts them, he is guilty of a criminal act and the penalty is both fine and imprisonment if a jury returns a verdict of guilty and the court sustains the verdict and imposes the penalties prescribed by law. It is a righteous law and the decision of the court of criminal appeals is a most righteous decree.

A child deserted isn't entitled to special consideration. He is entitled to the full weight of the displeasure of a statute violated and a civilization that has decreed that a father shall care for his own.

SOUTHERN METHODISTS DEFEAT UNIFICATION.

Southern Methodists have defeated unification. Opposition of the south will prevent the reunion of the Methodist Episcopal churches north and south. Of course, the northern church voted overwhelmingly for the union, but the southern church, although registering a slight majority for the amendment, failed to show the three-quarters majority required for its consummation.

Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington, says the vote now stands at approximately fifty-two for union and forty-eight against with only 12 conferences to be heard from in the south, and these 12 cannot alter the outcome. Mississippi voted against union, 43 for and 170 against. According to this distinguished bishop of his church, the conferences of the south objected to the admission of negroes to the church, and also felt that the church should preserve its historical identity as a separate and distinct jurisdiction.

In the long ago the Methodists of the north and the Methodists of the south, split on the issues of state rights and chattel slavery. Chattel slavery died long ago, the right of a state to secede was shot to pieces in the closing battles of a great war, and the dogma of state rights was shot to pieces for a second time when southern democratic senators voted for certain amendment to the federal constitution. Mississippi furnished two of these senators, and Jefferson Davis was a distinguished adopted son of Mississippi and the president of that confederacy which fought to create a planters republic with slavery as one of its established institutions.

All this has nothing to do with unification, but it is a story of the passed, a moss covered story, whose recital rekindles memories or recollections of other days. In the long ago the negro was responsible for the split. Now, according to the distinguished Bishop McDowell, the negro continues to be the bone of contention, and one of the principle causes of the defeat of the unification amendment.

A SOLDIER FOR PERSONAL LIBERTY.

Gen. James G. Harbord, one of the American heroes of the world war, is certain to get himself criticized by the drys of America, in a speech on Armistice day, General Harbord said, "a decent personal liberty as to the milder forms of beverage with the accompanying appropriate internal revenue tax, would obviate the necessity of an income tax in this country."

That is, General Harbord would modify the Volstead act. He would permit the manufacture of milder forms of bear and ale.

General Harbord made a prediction along these lines and in these words, "The amendment of the Volstead act, far wider in its application than was ever contemplated by the eighteenth amendment, its disregard of the constitutional provision against unreasonable searches and seizures and the wholesale official corruption to which it has led, is an issue which patriotic Americans must face."

John Barleycorn refuses to remain in his grave. New Zealand, where the battle between the pros and antis has been on for years, voted again last week. By a majority that ran into the thousands, men and women of New Zealand voted against prohibition and for government control of the liquor traffic.

In all the English speaking colonies or dominions, the majority votes for moisture and against absolute prohibition. This appears to be the only English speaking country where the drys have a death-like grip and intend to keep it if possible.

It required 75 years agitation and the greatest war in history to write prohibition into the constitution. Will it require another period of 75 years and another world war to write it out of the constitution.

As for the saloon, it is dead in America and unless all signs are misleading, it will remain dead until Gabriel blows his horn, and after that horn has been blown, moisture may not be necessary.

WHAT THE DROUTH DID.

Texas corn crops this year have averaged only eight bushels to the acre, the lowest on record. This is one of the things that the drouth did. This is only one-fourth of the five year average of 116,972,000 bushels. As for the corn crops of the nation, a new record has been made, and the total value of the crop of 1925 is placed at $3,000,000,000.00. Never sneer at the farmers of the corn belt. They produce the high money crop of America.

JOY IN THE CORN BELT.

There is joy in the corn belt section of the United States this year. These corn belt farmers have a yield to their credit of 3,013,390,000 bushels. This is the latest estimate made by the department of agriculture, and the real corn belters the tillers of the soil astonished the world with the yield of 1925. In the Texas corn belt, the drouth is responsible for a new low record. However, if the price of corn is reasonable, perhaps the Texans who are compelled to buy corn, will be correspondingly happy.

Potash & Perimutter Discuss Getting a Divorce. —By Montague Glass

"Many an American lady has paid good money for a duke or a marquis only to find that the marquis ain't got a marketable title to his title but has only, so-to-speak, squatted on it."

"I see where another New York lady has gone to Paris for her divorce, Mawruss," Abe Potash said the other day, "which the old fashioned, reasonable-priced domestic divorce seems to be getting in a class with the old time domestic cigar. Nobody uses them nowadays except those that can't afford the imported article."

"Well, the advantage in getting a divorce in Paris is, Abe, that the divorce can pick up something in the way of a French marquis as a second husband at a very reasonable price," Morris remarked. "But such a method, she can kill two birds with one stone, even if the second bird is apt to be a cuckoo or at the best, a sparrow painted up like a canary. But on the other hand, Abe, if a New York woman is in the market for a divorce and goes to Reno or some other domestic point, and picks up a second husband there, y'understand, it ain't so much a divorce as a swap y'understand, and the chances is that she will have to go back to Reno again in six months at the latest, on account of a Reno divorce's second husband is liable to be so much like her first husband, that only her intimate friends can detect the difference."

"Still, Mawruss," Abe insisted, "them divorced ladies who marry domestic second husbands, or anyway husbands who are domestic in nationality if not in their habits, are taking a much smaller chance than the divorced ladies who shop for their second husbands in Paris and get what they suppose to be a duke or a Marquis only to find that the Marquis ain't got a marketable title to his title but has only, so-to-speak, squatted on it."

"Well, any American lady who gets her divorce in Paris and picks up a duke for a second husband, Abe," Morris said, "has only got herself to blame if she don't get her title examined by a good French lawyer and even follows it up with a policy of title insurance from some French title guarantee and trust company.

"Not an American marriage ain't," Morris admitted, "but with these here Paris marriages by American divorcees, Abe, the party of the first part should ought to take just so much precautions in buying a marquis or a duke as in buying a six-story new-law-walk-up with basement stores; fifty feet front by one hundred feet eleven inches deep, free from all encumbrances except a first mortgage, a second mortgage, the taxes for 1925 and the usual party wall agreements. Not even anyone as silly as the average American lady who gets divorced in Paris, would pay her hard earned or anyhow her first husband's hard earned money to a real estater on his mere word that his title was good and marketable, so why take a chance on a marquis? Am I right or wrong?"

Original Cost Plus Upkeep

"Then again if you acquire a bad title with even a cold water tenement, Abe," Morris continued, "you can always sue to get your money back, but if an American lady with a French divorce gets a fake title buying a marquis, y'understand, she is stuck for keeps, and the up-keep of a broken down flat house, even if the title is good, is nothing compared with the up-keep of a French marquis, genuine or fake."

"At that, Mawruss," Abe said, "anybody's liable to get stung buying antiques on the other side. Every year, people who are good judges of such things come back from Paris with furniture, pictures and rugs that some dealer has eased off on them as being the genuine articles, so if an American lady gets stuck with an occasional, marquis or a duke, Mawruss, what is it?"

"It's practically the same swindle," Morris agreed, "except that with fake pictures and furniture, Abe, your first cost is your last, as the automobile dealers say, but you can't hang a fake marquis in the dark corner of your living room, and leave him stay there in the hopes that nobody will get onto him. He's as noticeable to his wife's friends as if he would be poison ivy or something else the poor lady had been unfortunate enough to catch over in Paris."

"Well, in a way, Mawruss, it's a woman's misfortune that when she marries a marquis right away she becomes a marquisette." Abe observed, "which I wouldn't put it beyond a lot of millionaires in this country, that if they could become counts by getting divorces in France and marrying countesses, y'understand, they wouldn't have unloaded on them a few French countesses whose titles would be absolutely genuine except for the fact that there was a fire in the orphan asylum and the records got burned up."

Judge Should Compare Two Parties.

"And even when these ladies do marry marquises for their second husbands, Mawruss," Abe continued, "you've got to hand it to them that they're anyhow looking for a radical change, y'understand, whereas when the average American man gets a divorce, Mawruss, he usually picks someone for his second wife who is a ringer for his first wife, only worse. The result is that he usually loves his second wife about as much as he did his first, and becomes a repeater in divorce as well as marriage."

"Oh, I don't know," Morris said. "I've seen some divorced husbands whose second wives was just as dear to them as if they would have been their first."

"Dearer even," Abe added, "because in addition to his second wife's living expenses, he's also got to pay alimony to his first wife. In fact, Mawruss, it seems to me that the divorce laws should ought to be altered in this country so as to give the court authority to investigate what kind of woman the plaintiff is going to marry if he gets a divorce from the defendant. The judge might even be compelled to subpoeny the future second wife, so as to compare her with the defendant, and if necessary, the divorce could be denied upon the grounds that the plaintiff was jumping out to the frying pan into the soup."

"Well, then, why couldn't the French divorce laws be altered in the case of Americans," Morris suggested, "so that the French judge could not only take testimony as to the first husband's misconduct, but also as to the proposed second husband's title. In any number of cases, Abe, while it might be proved that the first husband had undoubtedly eloped with his stenographer, y'understand, yet the divorce would be denied because the evidence as to the proposed second husband pointed stronger to his being a bartender than a marquis."

"But why wouldn't a French bartender make just so good a husband for an American lady as a French marquis?" Abe asked.

"I never said he couldn't," Morris retorted, "but nowadays, Abe, we've got plenty of unemployed bartenders right here in this country, not considering the fact that when an American divorcee is getting married again in Paris, she's entitled to receive what she's paying for, and if she insists on a marquis, that's her look-out."

"Besides, Abe, a French marquis could be just as much a gentleman as a French bartender," Morris concluded, "and very often is."

Eloping Pastor Is Freed by His Wife

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Rev. Wilson W. Culp who twice deserted his wife and ten children to elope with Mrs. Dorothy Culp, his brother's wife is free to marry again, his wife having been given a final decree of divorce here.

The pulpitless pastor was forgiven by Mrs. Culp after his first elopment with a choir singer, but yesterday she said "I will not," when Judge L. G. Care, in circuit court asked her, "will you take your husband back if he returns." Culp's whereabouts are unknown.

FIRST PARIS SNOW

PARIS, Nov. 14.—(AP).—Paris had its first snow of the season at midnight last night.

Snow is rare in Paris at any time and it is seldom seen so early in the winter. The present cold snap, coming abruptly on top of a long period of exceptionally mild weather, is being felt much more keenly than would appear reasonable from the reading of the thermometer.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"Dear, we always get into Paris in the morning—and I love it!" glowed Helen, as they taxied through the crooked streets. "There's something about the air and sunlight—it seems more Paris-y somehow."

"Good thing we stayed all night at Havre," Warren shoved over a suitcase to make room for his cramped legs. "No fun gunnin' up a room after midnight—not in this burg."

The thrill of "coming back" Eagerly Helen watched for familiar landmarks.

That green-hedged cafe—memories of an evening at that end table. And that tiny old curio shop—what did she get there? Oh, that crystal vinaigrette! And the lace shop where she had bought that real "val" collar for Carrie.

But her joyousness was clouded by the uncertainty of getting a room. Warren would never write or wire ahead—and Paris was always overcrowded.

"Now, this time we park at a good hotel!" telephathically. "Put up at that rotten Rue Caumartin joint for three years—we're not goin' back there! Get that?"

"Why, Warren, I haven't said a thing—"

"No, but you're thinkin' it—want to go there 'cause it's cheap. We stop at the best hotels in every other country—but in Paris you think we ought to live for nothing. You steered me to that dump for three years—never again!"

"Why, we only went there because we couldn't get in anywhere else. Of course, if you'd go way out—"

"Well, I won't! Only here five days—got to be central. Plenty of other hotels besides that fourth-class 'find' of yours. That's off! I said that last year and you wheedeld me back there—but now—"

"Warren, I don't know why you're blowing out at me. I haven't said a word—"

"No, and I don't want you to! Fed up with that place. Rotten service, punk plumbing, dingy dark rooms, and couldn't sleep for the noise on that court. And that prehistoric lift that never runs—"

"Why, it takes you up. In Paris you always have to walk down."

"Well, we're not goin' there!" explosively. "You always fall for this bunk 'bout how cheap you can live in Paris. But if you want any comfort—got to go to a first-class hotel and cough up. Same as anywhere else!"

As Warren sprang out, he was greeted by the uniformed doorman.

"You have reservations, sir?" No? Then no use taking off your luggage, sir."

"I'll see the clerk 'bout that!" curtly. "You take care of our baggage and pay the driver. See you later."

The frock-coated French clerk answered Warren's brusque demand for a "double room and bath" with the inevitable, maddening, "Reservations, sir?"

"No, but you can fix us up. We're not tourists—here every year."

"Impossible," with the exasperating French shrug. "Everything booked for the next three weeks."

"Same old spiel!" muttered Warren, turning away. "Well, if we've got to chase around let's have breakfast here. No, I'll be hanged if we do—they're too darned independent. Come, on the Cafe de la Paix right here."

"But, dear, our trunks?" anxioused Helen, intent on her platinum vanity.

"They're all right. Trust a European porter to take care of your luggage—that's his job. Leave 'em till we get a room."

"Get anything out here," Warren dropped into a wicker chair at one of the small round tables.

Early as it was many of the tables were taken. Coffee, chocolate, and even drinks were being served. Three Americans were having cocktails!

Breakfasting on the sidewalk of the world's most famous corner! A stone's throw from the Opera, with the Avenue and the three-fingered Boulevard before them.

Helen fairly purred!

But warrent was in no mood to enjoy it. He was up against the "reservation" custom of French hotels. His boasted "Take a chance—never reserve rooms ahead" worked all over the Continent. But not in Paris!

Any I-told-you-so remark now would precipitate an explosion. So Helen refained from comment.

The waiter had brought rolls, butter, and the tall glasses for coffee. Now the special coffee man came out.

In each hand was a huge straight-handled pot, wielded with astonishing dexterity. Holding them high above the glass, he poured the coffee and hot milk in foaming unison.

"Without spilling a drop," admired Helen.

"Ought to be good at it—slings these pots all day long. Ugh, too hot! No handles to these blamed glasses—ought to serve mits with 'em."

"Better than most French coffee," Helen slipped a spoonful. "Not quite so much chicory. Wouldn't you think they'd have cream? Serve it with everything else—but never with coffee. Dear, we'll have Coeur Creme or Creme d'Isinjny for lunch—and what else?"

Her decoy failed. Even the planning of their first luncheon in Paris did not banish Warren's scowl.

"Dear, don't think about the room now. Let's enjoy this. It's so wonderful—breakfasting out here!"

The French women were not smart. Decidedly dowdy. Then why their preeminence in fashion? "What Paris Is Wearing!" That ad phrase of the shops-at-home always maddened her. If the American women only knew what Paris really did wear!

Yes, there was a smart costume—an American, of course. The only well-gowned women one ever saw in Paris were Americans.

But she checked this line of thought. She was here to enjoy not to criticise. And there was so much to enjoy! The very air seemed festive.

How gay the boulevard this morning! The colored awnings, the balconies, the sun-glinted taxis, the adflaunting kiosks under the trees.

Five whole days! Tomorrow she would start out for the antique shops on the other side—along the Rue du Bac and Rue Saint-Peres. Or perhaps if they got settled in time she could go today!

Again the clouding thought of the room.

". . . if we ever come again, we'll stop in the center," New England voice from a nearby table. "All those hotels around the Etoile are too far out."

"But you never can get in around here. Carl Thompson told me he spent a whole day trying to get a room—and finally had to go way out near Passy——"

Ferociously Warren buttered another roll, and Helen pretended not to hear.

"Dear ,look at that—those filthy cigar butts," as an old man, a sack over his shoulder, searched the gutter with a spiked stick. "Don't you ever smoke any French cigarettes—I believe that's what they're made of!"

"Hotel Continental!" as he swung Helen in.

When a moment later he reappeared, his mouth was set in grimmer lines.

"Nothing doing," filled up with these damned tourists—forty just came in. Wouldn't I like to ship 'em back? Swarmin' all over Paris. Well, plenty of other hotels around here—nothin' but! We'll get fixed up somewhere."

As they drove on, Helen settled back for a weary ordeal. Every year the same fruitless quest to get into a good hotel "in the center."

The driver, accustomed to this hotel canvassing, automatically drove on to the next.

After each futile inquiry, Warren slammed the cab door more profanely.

Helen had lost count, but they had been to a dozen places before he shouted with irate finality.

"Rue Caumartin!" Then to her up-voiced question, "Yes, we're goin' to your 'old-world' dump. Hope you're satisfied."

"Warren, I haven't said a word! I dont want you to go there and then keep grumbling at me. And they may be full, too."

"Don't worry, get in there, all right. Nobody ever stays longer'n one night."

"Now, Warren, you sure you want to go?" putting him on record. "I don't want to be fumed at as I was last year. Now, you remember the noisy court? And the plumbing? And you always swore at the bathtub—the water wouldn't stay in. And the slow service—the poor lights—the lift——"

"You needn't rub it in. I'm through—no more scoutin' around! Can't get in anywhere else."

"Then you're not to blame me for all the discomforts. I'm perfectly willing to ride around all day till we get a room," to make his capitulation complete.

"Well, I'm not! If another lacquered-hair, frock-coated Johnnie says 'reservations, sir?'—I'll punch his map. Guess we can put up with your moldy old joint for a few days."

"But it's the last time! Next year I'll—— What's that? No, I'll not make reservations! But this tourist rush won't keep up. Next year some of these rubbernecking' mobs'll stay at home—where they belong. Then watch me park at a decent hotel!"

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Scorpio.

Today's planetary aspects are not actively favorable, nor are they, by any means, adverse. They bespeak, if nothing out of the ordinary is attempted, a contented frame of mind and a fairly happy spirit. At certain stated periods, just after noon, and, again at about 9 p. m., there are indications that doubt, suspicion or jealousy will try to get the upper hand. To be forewarned is to be forearmed," and these unhealthy influences can easily be overcome, if the will and determination to do so is exercised. They is nothing to denote that there will be anything to interfere or prejudice the usual recreations or doings of a Sunday. It is, however, an occasion when a little forebearance will go a long way.

Children born today are promised happy and healthy times during infancy, but, according to the indications, are liable to experience a serious "setback" just prior to adolescence. This will tax patience to the utmost. If, however, they "putt through" this time of stress and the signs denote they will), there is nothing then that will hinder them from attaining a normal majority. In character, they will, in their early days, be rather evasive, and very rarely willing to accept the consequences of their own acts. Discipline and example will eventually convince them of the futility of "alibis" and deception, and then their inherent good qualities will assert themselves, and success is assured.

If today is your birthday, you are "always on the go," full of pep and vital energy and the only one regret that you should have is that so much of your enthusiastic activity counts for so little in the profit and loss account of your life. You are quick and impulsive, and would rather do things yourself than direct others. You, while underrating the capabilities of others, are prone to overrate your own and often wear yourself out in incidentals and thereby lose a clear vision of the main issue.

You are fond of outdoor sports, enjoy travel, and take an interest in many things outside of your ordinary routine duties and obligations.

Your nature is sympatetic and affectionate and you are always willing to make a sacrifice to help out a friend. Your personality is compelling and attractive and you have a large circle of loyal friends.

POEMS THAT LIVE

WHERE DID YOU COME FROM?

Where did you come from, baby dear?
Out of the everywhere into here.

Where did you get your eyes so blue?
Out of the sky as I came through.

What makes the light in them sparkle and spin?

I found it waiting when I got here.

What makes your forehead so smooth and high?
A soft hand-stroke as I went by.

What makes your cheek a warm white rose?
I saw something better than anyone knows.

Whence that three-cornered smile of bliss?
Three angels gave me at once a kiss.

Where did you get this pearly ear?
God spoke and it came out to hear.

Where did you get those arms and hands?
Love made itself into hooks and bands.

Feet, whence did you come, you darling things?
From the same box as the cherub's wings.

How did they all come just to be you?
God thought of me, and so I grew.

But how did you come to us, you dear?
God thought of you, and so I am here.

—George Mamcdonald.

COMMON SENSE

The Autumn days have come again,
As Autumn days'll do:
And the "R" that's in September
Puts the oyster in a stew.

Worry's a thief—
A robber of sleep;
If you worry a minute
Your widow will weep.

You're never down if you're outdoors.

A lot of low habits come from high living.

The sun rises in the East—in time to dress for dinner.

If we'd but use what we invent
To stop disease we can prevent,
We'd cease to swallow liver pills
To cure our real and fancied ills.

For a cold in the head,
Is to do nothing for it—
But just go to bed.

When you're run down you should walk up.

And a sick cook cooks for a sick family.

I tell you friend—it's surprising
The way we pant and blow for air.

ELECTRA

SMASHUP

A Buick Six, owned by Hiriam Miller, a grocerman of West Bryan avenue suffered a broken frame, two broken wheels and the front fenders knocked off as the result of an entanglement with a gravel truck driven by an employe of the Hill, Wilson and Watson Construction company, at the intersection of the roads near the Haynes General Merchandise store six miles north of Electra, Friday morning. The truck was completely destroyed. No one was injured.

MRS. WHITE ILL

Mrs. A. M. White, of West Bryan avenue, is quite ill at her home as a result of a lingering illness. She has been confined to her bed for the past three months, and Dr. Johnson of Wichita Falls and other out-of-town physicians have been summoned in consultation with the local physician. Little hope is held out for her recovery.

LION'S CLUB LUNCHEON

The Lions' club held their regular luncheon at the Marriott hotel on Thursday from 12:10 to 1:10 at which time there was a good attendance. President C. W. Coffey presided, and was presented with a splendid gold bell, by F. M. Baker, and Mr. Coffey in turn thanked Mr. Baker, in behalf of the club and was said later, felt his authority by ringing the bell occassionally. Dr. A. F. Homme of the Rotary club was a guest and made an address on "The Aid of Denistry to the Human Body." A short business session was taken up, and the problem of cleaning up the city park which is located on Roosevelt avenue, across from the high school, was discussed, and a report was made that a caretaker had already been placed on the grounds, and in a course of a few days, definite plans will be made as to the setting out of trees and planting flowers and shrubery. W. A. Shanafelt, who is chairman of the program committee during November, arranged a splendid program, which consisted of several selections of vocal and piano music by Misses Irene Keller and Letrice Wofford. At 1:10 they saluted the flag and dismissed.

HIGH SEVENTH PICNIC

The high seventh grade of the Waggoner Ward school chaperoned by their teacher, Miss Lena Ray, and her guest Miss Ferne Tubb, went to a small creek, two miles east of Faulks Station Friday night for a wiener roast and picnic. Paul Groves, one of the students took a truck for the occasion and each one making the trip report a lovely time. The young people spent the evening in playing games and enjoying the necessary eats.

AMERICAN LEGION

Plans are already being made by several members of the McDonald post of the American Legion and the ladies auxiliary in Electra to attend the world wide expedition of the American Legion in Paris, France, in 1927. The following members have pledged themselves to make the trip: Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Weller, Mesdames George McGann, Ada Hannah and Louie Schlemeyer, Mr. Steve Rumore and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hannah. Quite a few members of the American Legion in Electra attended the annual expedition, last year in Omaha, Nebr.

Much interest is being taken in the Legion in Electra, and the ladies auxiliary are at present engaged in making garments for the boys in the hospital in Kerrville, for Christmas, and these will be worked on until about two weeks before Christmas, at which time the box will be packed. Gifts will also be sent to the Leper colony, and the soldiers in the state prisons.

MRS. S. C. HYTER HOSTESS

Mrs. S. C. Hyter entertained with a party fo rthe chain of socials given by the Federated Missionary society, at her home on the Vernon highway, with a luncheon at 12:30 Friday. Three courses were served and the first party of the afternoon was spent in sewing and chatting. A profusion of roses were used for the decorations. Those enjoying her hospitality were: Mesdames, J. M. Hemby, E. E. Markt, John Shaw, George Schaffer, W. I. Wilson, E. P. Birk, J. E. Graham and Carpenter.

T. G. F. CLUB

The T. G. F. club met on Thursday night with Jessie Weaver, at which time plans were completed for a dance on Friday Nov. 20, and also plans were discussed for other Thanksgiving entertainments. Lovely refreshments were served to the following young men: Messrs. Wayne Green, Ralph Delashaw, Gordon Wilcoxson, Jessie Weaver, Dink Robb, Ray B. Dickey, Robert Moore, Adams Talley and Busby Smith.

FAREWELL PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Curt McCorkle of 809 North Main street were hosts to a farewell party honoring Mrs. McCorkle's sister, Miss Willie Mae Wade, who leaves Friday for her home in Nocona. The evening was spent in playing such games as "spinning the pan," clap-in-and-clap-out and others, while Clifford Landers was awarded a balloon for pinning the tail on the rabbit. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed, and the hostess served refreshments of hot chocolate and cake to the following young people: Misses Willie Mae Wade, Joy Bishop, Janice Bishop, Sue Bishop, Cleta McCorkle, Louise McCorkle, Sophie Novitt, Madeen Avens, Zelma McCorkle, Sue Suddath, Bernice Bishop, Inez Barnett, Grace Edwards; Messrs. Bud Wade, Curt McCorkle, Clifford Landers, Verge Landers, Theodore Bishop, Cecil Suddath, Richard Allen, Kinnebrew Bishop, Welborn Allen, Henry Lay and Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Wade.

ALL DAY MEETING

About twenty ladies of the North Circle of the Baptist church met at 10 o'clock Friday morning in the parlors of the Baptist church, where they spent the day quilting for the Buckners' Orphans Home at Dallas. During the day four quilts were made and quilted, and these will be sent to the home for a remembrance of Thanksgiving. At noon a very tempting picnic lunch, with hot coffee and hot chocolate was served in the basement of the church, a splendid social time was enjoyed as well as much being accomplished.

LAMPAS CLUB

Mrs. Jack Dale entertained the members of the Lampas club, of the First Christian church on Thursday afternoon, at which time a program on "The Golden Rule" was rendered. Mesdames Frank LeBus, K. R. Moore, C. E. Pye, D. L. Dovell, J. M. Ashley, George Ezell, C. W. Scheurer, read articles on the Golden Rule, after which the chairman made a few comments. The by-laws and constitution of the club were read by Mrs. Sid Gamblin, and a short business session followed at which time it was voted to start a "Love Sister" entertainment, and after six weeks duration of the contest, a party will be given.

Rheumatism Aching Joints Lumbago Neuritis

With applicator attached to cork, just brush "Heet" over the pain area, whether in hands, shoulders, feet, legs, back, neck or body. Instantly, you feel this harmless, glorious, penetrating heat draw the pain right out of the aching or swollen joint, muscle or nerve. Besides, "Heet" scatters the congestion and establishes a cure.

"Heet" contains two soothing, penetrating ingredients, too expensive to use in ordinary liniments or analgesics. "Heet" is a clean, fragrant liquid; doesn't stain, blister or irritate the skin. Druggists guarantee each 60-cent bottle.

Lanham Silent On Resignation Rumor

AUSTIN, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Asked to confir mor deny the report he had tendered his resignation as chairman of the state highway commission to the governor, Frank V. Lanham said, "That's one I hadn't heard before." He refused to add to this statement. Sometime ago, Mr. Lanham said he would not quit under fire. He spent the morning looking over official documents and conferring with highway department employes.

Mrs. Claude Conyers was elected assistant secretary. At the close of the meeting a one course luncheon was served to the following members: Mesdames K. R. Moore, Byron Hester, C. E. Pye, E. A. Stephens, Homer Grizzle, Frank Lebus, J. K. Freese, J. M. Knight, C. W. Scheurer and Sid Gamblin. New members present were: Mesdames, C. F. Suggs, D. H. Dale, D. L. Dovel, G. D. Ezell, L. C. Noack, C. R. Conyers, W. T. Benbow, C. C. Alexander and E. C. Wilson.

The next meeting will be with C. C. Alexander on West Ida avenue on Thursday afternoon.

NEW HATCHERY AT MUNDAY TO OPEN ON DEC. 1

Incubation Plant to Have Capacity for 40,000 Eggs

MUNDAY, Nov. 14.—The new Munday hatchery composed of C. L. Mayes, C. A. Eiland and W. C. Bevers, has just received and installed three machines which have given their hatchery a capacity of 40,000 eggs. These men are very optimistic over the poultry outlook for 1926, believing that the demand for baby chicks will far exceed the demand. Their hatchery will begin hatching December 1. The machines will be under the supervision of W. C. Bevers, who is an experienced hatchery man, having operated a hatchery here of his own for the past wo years.

Landreth Completes Buying For Big Development Program

By A. HALLMAN.

Rounding out of as ambitious a development program as has ever been attempted in North Texas oil fields by Landreth Production corporation of Breckenridge, and wildcat discoveries of possible major importance both in Wilbarger county and in the Olney district proved last week's features in North Texas' oil fields. Highlights, too, but of secondary import, are Superior's east Archer county failure and the Wichtex-Dixie disappointment north of Archer City. There were two bigger than usual wells completed during the week, but beyond these events could be classified only as routine.

Fields Quiet.

A survey of North Texas fields on the whole shows comparative quietitude. There has been no discovery opening an area of sufficient size to set everybody in nearly a year. Such were the Carey, the Ragle, the Harpel, the Gambrell, and the Litchfield discoveries. Nothing of such size since their time in the Archer-Young-Wichita areas, however, has popped up. Chalk Hill, Southeast Baylor county, the Southeast Litchfield, the Barkley and Meadows district, the Wolfe pool, the Mankin district, and more recently the Caldwell, the Oldham, and south Megargel areas have been opened only to see the major portion of development carried out by one or two companies. There would be a tendency toward decline in production in this part of the state if it were not for an almost continual rise in the Wilbarger fields.

This can be looked for to continue in the next six months; the 13,000 barrels a day or better that the district showed last week may possibly be doubled as development continues. There are those that place a maximum of six months on the time required to reach 25,000 barrels a day from that county. In connection with the production figures it is noted that Wichita county, after some months in second place is once more on top among the North Texas counties ,the combined fields at South Electra, Burkburnett, and Iowa Park, having shown a margin of about 1,000 barrels or better over Archer county in the past few weeks. Wilbarger has usurped Young county's old third place in the column and leads that county by about 2,000 barrels a day now.

Landreth Transaction.

Outstanding in the history of Wilbarger development is the completion of transactions in southern Wilbarger county whereby Landreth Production company has obtained practically the whole of what looks like one of the largest potential oil fields in North Texas. The leases obtained represent 2,513 acres of what might be termed "proven" stuff, containing already some 1,700 barrels a day production from 13 rather well scattered oil wells, producing from three horizons. They represent an initial investment of about $5,000,000. Approximately 900 acres obtained this last week accounted for $1,500,000 expenditure, and gave to Landreth the Noble discovery well and its 227 acres, 280 acres on the west end of the district owned by Upham interests of Mineral Wells, and some 480 acres of the Waggoner estate needed to fill out small holes still left in its big block.

The size of the deal, the quantity of oil that must be taken from the ground before the lease money and development expenses are paid for and the tremendous development program necessitated—all of these things make the outcome of such a project as that launched by Landreth a subject for considerable speculation on the part. But, the deal gives Landreth what looks like all of one of the biggest pools ever uncovered in North Texas. To all appearances the stretch from Landreth's M-1 to a point east of the Noble well, an area five miles long and nearly a mile wide will prove more or less uniformly productive. And just as this appearance becomes realty so will Landreth profit for the company, with a few exceptions, which are almost immaterial, owns the whole thing. On the acreage obtained Landreth already has 13 wells making in excess of 1,000 barrels a day. Seventeen wells are drilling; two of these are on the ground and about ready to drill in.

Atlantic, Sigler.

The major wildcat strike in Wilbarger county came in Atlantic Oil Producing company's No. 2, Sigler-Waggoner, in the southwest corner of the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 51, block 2, H. & T. C. R. R. Co. survey, a half mile east and a quarter mile north of the Sigler pool. A pay topped at an approximate depth of 2,453 feet, unexpectedly, has partially filled the hole with oil. The well has flowed once or twice and has shown considerable gas. It was carrying nearly 1,000 feet of open hole at the time of the strike. Since then there has been considerable caving and late Friday the boilers were being moved back in preparatory to lowering a string of 6 inch casing and drilling into the pay which has barely been touched. When the conditdion of the hole at the time the pay was topped is accounted for and the life that the well has shown taken into consideration the prospects for a sizeable producer from the pay, which, it is believed will correlate with the 2,400-foot pay found in South Vernon and elsewhere, are figured exceedingly good. Other production in the Sigler pool, more than half a mile away, is from the 2,000-foot level.

On the northeast corner of the southwest forty of the northeast quarter of section 46, block 2, H. & T. C. R. R. Co. survey, southeast of Landreth's M-1, Waggoner, Pratt et al. had a 73-barrel well on six day's testing from sandy lime at 2,335-37 feet, but are reported to have bettered themselves to about 135 barrels a day after deepening to 2,348 feet.

Landreth Production corporation's No. M-1, Waggoner, located in the northeast corner of the northeast forty acres of the southwest quarter of section 47, block 2, H. & T. C. R. R. Co. survey, nearly half a mile east of the old Beatty well, is making between 90 and 100 barrels a day from sandy lime at 2,360-73 feet. Landreth will start two offsets to the Pratt well just south of this at once.

Landreth G-1, an east offset to A-1, a Landreth discovery in section 43, block 4, was expected Friday on the sand at 1,830 feet, while D-6, some distance to the east in the same section, was on the same sand at a depth of 1,880 feet and setting and cementing casing.

Wilbarger county furnished the district's biggest oil well in Humble Oil and Refining company's No. 20, Castlebury, credited with flowing 2,100 barrels initial from pay at 2,071-81 feet. The well is located in the section 83, block 14, H. & T. C. R. R. Co. survey, south Vernon.

Mahlstedt-Mook.

The Olney district's wildcat discovery came in the Mahlstedt and Mook completion on the Lauster land, in the southeast corner of the west half section 3, B. B. B. & C. R. R. Co. survey, abstract 51, a half mile north and east of the Gambrell pool, on the Young-Archer line. The well looks like a possible fifty barrels from sand at 1,180-84 feet. The casing is being pulled to reseat with the expectation of shutting of considerable water which it is believed is coming from above. The dry holes, one a quarter to the north and one to the south limit this new pool to a comparatively small expanse and it is not expected that there will be more than 10 or 12 wells completed there.

East Olney.

Southeast of the Litchfield pool Texhoma Oil and Refining company and Camp Oil and Gas company completed the second largest well of the week in their No. 5, Campbell, two locations north of the discovery well. The hole made about 500 barrels of oil in the first 24 hours from sand topped at 886 feet. Tidal's No. 2, Campbell, offset to the discovery well to the east went on the pump for about 200 barrels initial.

Tidal has two other wells on the sand at this writing and should show completions here early this week. A third is drilling. Texhoma is drilling three.

Clark-Harbin-Baldridge are getting down on their No. 2, Leath, offsetting the Texas Unity No. 1, Sloan, east of Archer City to the northwest. Texas Unity is drilling on a north offset, No. 1, West, and Murchison and Fain should be almost on the sand on their No. 1, West, north these two wells.

South and S. W. Olney.

Hazlett Simmons Plans Development Of Texas Acreage

FORT WORTH, Nov. 14.—Believing that 1926 will be a banner year for oil producers, officers of the Hazlitt Simmons corporation have outlined an extensive drilling campaign in development of proven acreage in the Electra and Texhoma fields and in the new oil district tapped by the discovery well on the Powers Banking Co. lands in Archer county.

Electra Leases.

The campaign calls for several additional wells below 500 feet on the 20-acre tract known as the Bentley lease in the Texhoma field where three of the corporation's wells already are producing from sands ranging from 980 feet to approximately 1,200 feet. Three prolific sands have been encountered in recent drilling of this tract and the corporation intends to thoroughly develop each strata. The corporation also has six wells producing from depths less than 500 feet on this tract.

Augmenting considerable shallow production on the 40-acre lease on the Fisher farm in the Electra field, the corporation is awaiting outcome of adjoining tests to deeper sands, with all preparations made to drill into whatever strata is proven the most prolific.

The Hazlitt Simmons Corporation No. 1 on a tract adjoining the discovery well on the Powers Banking Co. lands is down approximately 1,000 feet. This is the first of four wells already contracted to be drilled on the leases of the corporation in the new field. Plans also call for additional tests to be started in the near future. The discovery well, which is only partially equipped, is estimated good for from 200 to 500 barrels daily production, and activity in that section is increasing daily.

Wildcat Planned

Checks are being mailed out this week by C. E. Simmons, president of the Hazlitt-Simmons corporation to interest holders in the deeper production on the Bentley lease. The distribution is being made under date of November 15.

Although the drilling campaign is necessarily centered on the proven acreage, full plans for the corpoation call for considerable wildcatting in various sections of the state. The corporation and its associates have thousands of acres of "wildcat" under lease in Texas, much of it being considered semi-proven by recent nearby developments.

News of the Fields

SE Baylor County

Petroleum Producers and Cranfill No. 4, Mills, located in the northwest corner of the southwest quarter of block 2427, T. E. & L. Co. survey, east and north of the southeast Baylor county production, was reported down 1,150 feet yesterday and drilling.

NW Harmel Area

Magnolia Petroleum company has some sort of an oil well in its No. 2, Cowden-Portwood, a location west of the No. 1, which is in the southeast corner of the northeast quarter of block 1581, T. E. & L. Co. survey, northwest end of the Harmel pool. Shady shale at from 1,383-94 has been taken. The well will be equipped for the pump. No. 3, north of the No. 1, has set and cemented casing above the sand.

Consolidated, Turbeville

Consolidated Oil company has set casing and was testing late yesterday a sand at a depth of 1,465 feet in its No. 1, Turbeville, located in block 141, Robert Carson survey, northwest of Archer City, central Archer county.

Burns, Tabor

L. T. Burns No. 1, Etta Tabor in the center of lot 10, of that tract in the southeast portion of the Dallas county school lands, southwest of the Comac pool, is a rig and spudding.

Caldwell Area

Burns No. 1, Wisdom, in the northwest corner of the Wisdom tract in the Jose Ostane survey, southeast of the Caldwell well was down 1,260 feet early yesterday and should have had the sand sometime during the day.

Maer and Staniforth are rigging up their No. 1, Young and Langford, southwest of the Caldwell well, in the northeast corner of the west sixty acres of the east eighty of the Young and Langford tract.

South Megargel

Simms Oil company estimated its No. 1, Richardson, in the northeast corner of its lease in T. E. & L. Co survey, block 2425, at 20 barrels or a little better yesterday. Sand has been taken from 1,458-60 feet. The well will be equipped for the pump.

Greene, Wilburn

W. J. Greene et al. have a probable 50-barrel well in their No. 1, Wilburn, located in the northwest corner of block 1597, T. E. & L. Co. survey, south of the Harmel field. Sand has been taken at 1,340-45 feet. It was understood that the well was to be swabbed yesterday afternoon. The well opens a nice new stretch of territory south of the old Harmel after the fashion of other small pools surrounding this area.

Burns-Maxson, Wilson

Burns and Maxson No. 1, Wilson, in lot 41, Geraldine townsite, about 2,500 feet east of the Sunshine pool production, north Archer county, is a derrick and a rig moving in.

BELL SUBMITS HIGHEST BID IN U. S. SALE

Offers $101,000 for Oil Lease in River Bottom

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Bell Oil and Gas company, of Tulsa, Okla., submitted the highest bid today for an oil and gas lease on a 120-acres tract of public land in the Red river oil field between Oklahoma and Texas. The bids were publicly opened at the interior department and they ranged from $25,500 to $100,000.

The Bell company's bid of $101,000 and the others will be referred to the mineral leasing division of the geological survey for recommendations to the secretary of the interior who will later make the award.

Waite Phillips Still Heads That Co.

Waite Phillips, Tulsa's newest millionaire, who recently tendered his resignation as president of the Waite Phillips company, following the purchase of it for a major oil interest by Blair and company, New York bankers, is home from an outing spent at his ranches in New Mexico.

On his return home, Mr. Phillips was surprised and pleased to find a refusal from Blair and company to accept his resignation. The new owners wish him to remain as the executive of the oil company that he perfected and which he has recently sold for $25,000,000.

While the real owners of Waite Phillips company are still unknown, it is reported in financial circles now that the Standard Oil company of New York is the real purchaser. This firm, which has recently engaged in a bitter war with the Standard of New Jersey, has just acquired control of the Magnolia Petroleum company of Texas, and endeavored to gobble up another Tulsa oil firm, but found its move check-mated.

It is reported also that the heads of departments of Waite Phillips company who received stock in the firm in lieu of bonuses are now receiving payment for their stock, on a reported basis of 1.64 for one. This will give some of the department heads substantial sums of money.

"A nice Christmas present,' one of these men told a friend.

Guy Mosley in charge of Texas operations for the White Eagle Oil and Refining company has been made head of the land department for that firm, with headquarters at Wichita Falls, Texas, succeeding C. V. Storrs, resigned.

What is it?

It is about five feet eight tall, has black hair a la Valentino, brown eyes, and lady fingers. Wears cavalry boots, skin tight pants, a short leather jacket, and one of these I'll get my man hats. Hunts logs and has been known to go to sleep during his searching. Is reported to be making a great hit.

Answer—Geologist?

Bobby Burns, scout for Prairie Oil and Gas company, with headquarters at Breckenridge, is confined to the general hospital following a tonsilar operation. He is reported to be getting along nicely.

Production Report

South Vernon continued its increase but north Texas oil production showed a decrease of nearly 1,000 barrels despite this, a daily average out put table compliation for the last week shows. The figures follow:

District	Last Week	Week Before
Electra	16,995	17,345
Burkburnett	16,169	13,725
Iowa Park	5,575	5,525
Archer county	33,140	34,995
Clay county	375	375
Vernon	13,000	13,015
Nocona	770	815
Young county	9,390	10,370
Jack county	20	10
Baylor county	365	425
Throckmorton	250	320
Total	96,379	97,220
Decrease	842 barrels.

Consolidated Wells

Other Consolidated Oil company tests were reported progressing as follows:

Consolidated No. 1, Jeffreys in lot 58, T. E. & L. Co. survey, southwest of Orth, central Young county, was downw 400 feet and drilling.

Consolidated was reported spudding on its No. 1, Mangold, located in lot 27, Mangold subdivision, north of Dundee.

The Duncan Oklahoma, well was reported rigging.

SE Litchfield

Texoma Oil and Refining company nad Camp Oil and Gas company's No. 7 were swabbing their No. 7, Campbell, in block 1483, TE&LCO survey, yesterday and looked like they had a nice well. The bottom of the hole was given as 896 feet. No. 6 was drilling at 900 feet in sandy lime, possibly a dry hole. No. 8 was drilling at 675 feet, and No. 9 at 525 feet. No. 10 was rigging up rotary.

The new locations have been made, No. 11 to be located 803 east and 150 feet south of the northwest corner of the tract in block 1483, and No. 12 just 300 feet southwest of the No. 11.

Throckmorton County

Texhoma Oil and Refining company's No. 3, Reynolds county school lands, located in lot 57, Comanche Indian Reserve, in southern Throckmoton county, was reported underreaming 6 5-8 inch casing at a depth of 2,322 feet. Depth of the hole was given at 2,364 feet in lime.

Caldwell Area

Burns, Wilson

L. T. Burns No. 1, Wilson, in lot 4, block 75, A. T. N. C. L., east of Chalk Hill, north of Archer City, was down 1,150 feet yesterday and drilling. The well is about 2,000 feet east of production.

Kentucky, Jackson

Kentucky Oil corporation had cored into a good looking sand at an approximate depth of 1,425 feet in their No. 1, Jackson, in the southwest corner of the school house lot on the Annie P. Jackson, land, W. B. Aldridge survey, east of the Barkley and Meadows area, yesterday.

The well was reported reaming down to set casing early yesterday and should have been able to get casing on bottom and bail some time Saturday night. The core is reported to have shown plenty of oil. Only the approximate depth of the sand is known.

Considerable interest is attached to the outcome of the wildcat which may open a new area north of Chalk Hill and east of Barkley-Meadows.

Atlantic, Sigler

Atlantic Oil Producing company's No. 2, Sigler-Waggoner, located in the southwest corner of the northeast forty acres of the northwest quarter of section 51, block 2, H&TCRRCO survey, a half mile west and a quarter north of the old Singler pool, swabbed 65 barrels in two hours yesterday. Oil standing nearly full in the hole was not lowered appreciably.

After two hours swabbing a string of five-inch pipe was started in the hole and this was expected to take the rest of yesterday. There is about 70 feet of caving on the bottom of the hole. At is stands the test has every prospect of being one of the best wells ever completed in the country. Pay is a sandy lime, presumably, at a depth of 2,453 feet.

Oldham Area

Consolidated Oil company has purchased two important tracts in the general Oldham area. One, the entire Porter ranch, consisting of 1,000 acres in the J. Pointevent survey, abstract 346, and Peter J. Bailey survey, abstract 30, section 27. Consideration was $30 an acre or $30,000 for the whole tract. The tract is located southeast of the Oldham well.

The other acquired consisted of 307 acres southwest of the well. It is described as follows: The west 160 acres of the D. L. Wolf farm in section 1, S. P. R. R. Co. survey, abstract 415; the north eighty acres of the northwest quarter of section 2, S. P. R. R. Co. survey, abstract 1300; the third piece is the northeast 67 acres of the south half section 17, Swisher survey, abstract 396, W. A. Keys farm. Consideration on this block was not made known. The last named block is between the Waite Phillips Wolfe area and the Oldham district.

Consolidated should have been looking for the sand sometime yesterday in its No. 1, Oldham, located in the ten acres just east of Texhoma's lease, southeast of the Comac pool.

FOR THOSE WHO CARE WHAT THEIR MONEY BUYS

Dodge Brothers, Inc. have always built a good, sound, long-lived product.

They have never built "yearly models" and never will.

They do not make frequent expensive changes simply to catch the whim of the hour.

On the contrary, they devote themselves steadfastly to the improvement of a car that has been good from the very beginning.

This process of improvement has now been going on for 11 years.

Its influence on the car's appearance and performance has been nothing short of remarkable.

Always eminently dependable, it is now also an exceptionally easy riding car.

Always up-to-date, it is now strikingly attractive.

Sheer logic never made the choice more obvious—

Infant Oklahoma Surpasses Texas In Way of University

Oklahoma University has distinguished architecture of the Norman-Gothic type, uniform throughout one of the most picturesque educational plants in the Southwest.

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff

(This is the first of two articles by Mr. Fitzgerald dealing with Oklahoma's unusual educational institutions. The second will appear next Sunday.)

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 14.—It is a long call from the date of the articles of annexation which granted the Republic of Texas admission to the union of states as one of the glittering jewels in the diadem of the republic. It is a longer call from the day General Sam Houston and his heroes won the battle of San Jacinto and proclaimed to the world that the Republic of Texas was an institution and not an experiment.

It is yet a longer call from the date that the framers of the Declaration of Texas Independence and the writers of the first constitution provided that all the children of all the people under the Lone Star skies should be given educated brains and trained hands, beginning with the public school and ending with a great university that was to come in the fullness of time. Comparisons may not be to the liking of the many, and yet comparisons convey and teach powerful lessons to all men and women of an inquiring mind who believe in the same march of progress and the mighty onward rush of liberty, education, truth and morality.

Texas was a republic when Oklahoma was a wilderness of wild men and wild animals. Texas was a state many years before the territory of Oklahoma was organized and when the old Indian territory was peopled by the five tribes, who were the wards of the nation and the bold adventurers of the Caucasian race invaded the wilderness and its primitive life. This much is a curtain raiser.

It was announced not long ago that the University of Oklahoma had a registration this year of approximately 4,500 young men and women. It was announced that the University of Oklahoma had a campus second to none in the South or West, and that it had 13 beautiful buildings on the campus which appealed to the lovers of classic and beautiful architecture whenever they visited this home of knowledge where the inquiring mind is trained for the battle of life.

It was announced earlier, at the close of the World War of history, that the government had complimented this university as one of three state institutions of learning which ranked high in proficiency and efficiency while that ever memorable contest or conflict of fire and blood and smoke and flame was on.

Oklahoma a New State

Oklahoma is a very new state. Thousands of its original settlers were sons and daughters of Texas. Many of its leading citizens, living or dead, first saw the light of day beneath Texas' skies.

Now why should the people of a new state make such gigantic strides? Now why should the university of a new state draw to its walls thousands of young men and women, in point of number, as great, or almost as great, as that of Texas which was born in another century and has been on the map of the republic for years antedating that civil strife which fell upon the people of the republic and when the smoke of battle had cleared away, the institution of slavery had been destroyed and the verdict of the sword was that this was a union of state indissoluble now and forever.

Texas has a population of more than five million. Texas is a mighty empire in fertile land and resources. Texas is a land of vast wealth and magnificent possibilities. It has university lands of priceless value with golden rivulets oozing from the broad acres in many places. It has shacks on its campus which are a disgrace to the people of Texas, and its niggardly support in appropriations has led to many of the brightest minds of the state accepting calls to other colleges and universities beyond its borders.

Appropriations given are specified ones for this salary and that salary, and this item and that item of educational expense. For building purposes, even the royalties from its black gold sources are placed to the credit of the permanent and not the building fund. Texas has a population twice as great as Oklahoma. Texas has a history, as years are counted, that goes back to the days of Stephen F. Austin and his incomparable fellow pioneers and empire builders. As for the wealth of Texas, its taxable property, it is not necessary to make a comparison at this time.

Publicity the Thing

Publicity is the thing. Intelligent and impartial publicity throws its searchlights and mirrors before the reading public the story of the hour, or the year or the ages. To throw a searchlight upon the new state and its university, as well as its achievements, the writer was commissioned to visit Norman and get a close-up view. He followed instructions.

There is a Texas, Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of the University. His career, his achievements, his accomplishments have been told by the writers of Texas in the press of Texas, many many times. First, he was president of the College of Industrial Arts. Then some 14 years ago he was called to the presidency of the State Agricultural and Mechanical College. His record as a citizen and educator is open to all men and is known to many beyond the border lines of Texas.

He was called to Norman last summer. He did not seek the place. He was elected by unanimous vote of the regents, and men tell me that he fits in as the glove fits the shapely hand. Of course, the university is a part of the public educational system of Oklahoma.

Are Far More Liberal.

THIS call to Dr. Bizzell to become president of a university of the first class, carried with it a handsome salary, four or five thousand dollars greater than he had received in Texas, and a far greater salary than is paid to the president of the Texas university. Now why should the new university of a new state be far more liberal in the compensation line than the people and the lawmakers of Texas, the fourth state in the sisterhood in wealth and population as well as an empire in territorial dimensions as it has been from the beginning. This for Texans to ponder and digest and then make answer. It was established by legislative action and is supported by legislative appropriations made biennially. It was founded upon authority of an act of the legislature of the territory of Oklahoma approved December, 1890. The act provided that when $10,000 and 40 acres of land should be given to the territory by the city of Norman, the school should be located at the place.

Students were accepted for the first time in the fall of 1892. In the spring of 1893 work was begun on the first building which was occupied by the following September. The university occupies a campus of 182 acres, situated in the southern part of Norman, a tract which is rectangular in shape and includes besides an original 40 acres given by the people in 1892, 20 acres given by Norman in 1902 and 60 acres additional obtained in 1914 in exchange for a section of land granted to the university by congress in 1907.

By this exchange the university secured, a president's house, one of the show places of the campus, and several lots adjacent to the campus. In the southwestern quarter are the nursery and greenhouse, with experimental plates of horticultural, agricultural and pharmaceutical botany. In the southeastern quarter are the gymnasium and armory, with athletic fields for men and women, while the northern half of the campus is occupied by the main hall. At the north end of the oval, facing a magnificent boulevard, which leads from the central part of the city to the campus, are magnificent Gothic gateways, memorials of the classes of 1915 and 1917. Facing the other grand avenue leading to the campus from the city are similar gateways, memorials of the classes of 1919 and 1920.

Plenty of Trees.

Men of vision constituted an early administration of the university. They provided for the planting of an abundance of trees, which have grown to such wonderful proportions as to largely increase the natural beauty of the spacious grounds. During the last few years the campus has been greatly beautified by careful planting of flowers shrubs and trees and an artistic rearrangement of walks and driveways. It is a dreamland, this campus and one of the beauty spots of the southwest. All the buildings are of Norman-Gothic architecture and the administration building is one of the most beautiful of its kind in the country. Informative knowledge calls for facts and figures. "How is the university supported?" some one will ask. These are the figures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926:

Salaries	$ 787,000
Support, maintenance and power plant	239,650
Land	20,000
Buildings	186,000
Equipment	20,000
Total	$1,252,650

General revenue fund	$1,107,650
Section Thirteen fund	107,650
New College fund	43,000

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, the following appropriations were made:

Salaries	$ 787,000
Support, maintenance and power plant	194,650
Land	20,000
Buildings	186,000
Equipment	none
Total	$1,187,650

These amounts were appropriated from the following funds:

General revenue	$1,042,650
Section Thirteen fund	102,600

"Section 13" Fund.

A WORD of explanation is necessary as to Section 13 fund and the origin of the New College fund. Section 13 fund was established by act of congress in 1897. The fund consists of (a) proceeds from sales of lands; (b) indemnity lands granted lieu of these sections; (c) income, interest and rentals from these sections or from moneys received from their sale. The money is appropriated by the legislature among the different educational institutions. Section 13 in each township, in what is known as the Cherokee out let, and in the Kiowa, Comanche and Wichita reservations, open for settlement in 1901, was reserved for the university, normal schools, preparatory schools and agricultural college.

In addition to Section 13, the enabling act, approved June 16, 1906, granted to the university 250,000 acres of land to be taken from any public lands within the state, remaining unfiled as homesteads on that date. The legislature provided for the sale of these lands, the proceeds of such sale to be set aside for the university. Total value of land endowment and the proceeds from the sale of school lands is estimated at $8,200,000.

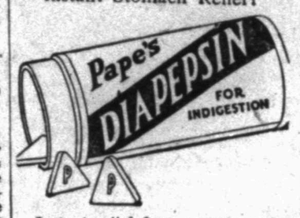

Oklahoma lawmakers are not captious. All the appropriations constituted what is known as a lump sum. Furthermore, the president is given a free hand. He is the executive and he is held responsible by the board of regents. Every year there is a building program, and the people and the lawmakers and the regents and the president and the faculty work hand in hand, in what is known as magnificent team work, for the glory of the university and the state which is so proud of it.

221 of 242 School Children Defective

On tabulating her reports of the examination of the children of Barwise school, Miss Mary Quinn, Red Cross nurse, has found that of 242 children examined, 221 of them are defective. Of the 221, 116 are underweight.

Defects have been corrected in 37 of the children, the nurse said.

"The follow-up of the examinations has been slow this year," Miss Quinn said in speaking of the work. "Last year of 274 children examined, 74 had had corrections within almost the same period of time after the examinations."

As a possible reason for the small number of corrections Miss Quinn gives that follow-up work of the examinations was given to Austin and Sam Houston districts during the summer months.

Good Looking And Stylish Wardrobe Featured in Play

Girls if you want to get a thrill be sure to see "A Slave of Fashion," the Hobart Henley production, which opens at the Strand theater Monday.

In the first place it stars Norma Shearer and Miss Shearer never has looked more beautiful nor worn such a wardrobe as she does in this picture. She makes your heart palpitate with envy every time she comes out in a new creation and my only regret was in the fact that I couldn't see the colors in the gowns.

Lew Cody plays the hero, Nicholas Wentworth, and he is the sort of a hero any woman would be glad to worship. He has never made love more wonderfully girls than he does to Norma Shearer, who plays Katherine Emerson, the little girl from Ioway who goes to New York and through a series of coincidences finds herself ensconced in the luxurious apartment of Nicholas Wentworth, one of Manhattan's richest bachelors who has hied himself to Europe for a six months' vacation.

Katherine meets the man who lives across the hall. His name is Dick Wayne and William Haines plays the part. It looks for a time as though Katherine is really going to fall for Dick, but at the psychological time her family, including her mother, her father and her Aunt Sophie arrive.

Mamma doesn't approve of Katherine's friendship with Dick, because Katherine has told her mother she is married to Wentworth. Being of the conventional type that believes wives should go out with only their husbands, Mother Emerson cables to her supposed to be son-in-law who is more than puzzled when he receives a wire telling him his wife wants to see him. He is curious to know who is posing in such a light, and takes the next boat for America.

Then girls there are some exciting scenes in which the man threatens to expose Katherine as an imposter unless she will permit him to make love to her. Which she refuses to do. He shows his cave man instincts by locking her in a room, but she makes a perilous escape along the window edge and up ten stories from the ground, too, mind you.

The end is unexpected and different and vurr, vurr thrilling. Be sure and go to see it.

Mary Carr plays Mother Emerson and is a dear cuddly sort of a mamma. Vivia Ogden gives a flawless performance as provoking Aunt Sophie.

William Haines is a mighty handsome youth, and he will appeal to more than one feminine heart. Lew Cody is the grandest hero imaginable, and Norma Shearer has certainly earned her stardom for she is the abiest of troupers and so pretty besides.

Samuel Shipman wrote the story, "A Slave of Fashion," and Mess Meredyth adapted it to the screen, and Hobart Henley directed it.

Leatrice Joy and 14 Beauties Play In Palace Picture

Matching one's own personal charms against those of fourteen of the most beautiful girls obtainable from all parts of the world is a test for any screen actress.

Leatrice Joy has come through this ordeal with flying colors in "The Dressmaker from Paris," at the Palace Monday and Tuesday which marks her return to the screen. For the roles of manikins in this Paramount production, Paramount assembled 14 beautiful girls from all parts of the globe.

There are Latin beauties, Oriental beauties, Norse beauties, Gallic and Gaelic beauties—the most perfect faces and figures obtainable. In addition to the "fortunate fourteen" is Mildred Harris, recognized as one of the screen's most attractive women.

Leatrice Joy, herself a "perfect 36" with jet black hair, ivory skin and flashing black eyes, is seen throughout the production with the fourteen gorgeous manikins, each of them adorned with magnificent and exclusive creations.

Every gown was designed at Paramount's west coast studio by a style creator, who was brought from Paris expressly for this production, directed by Paul Bern.

Adelaide Heilbron and Howard Hawks wrote "The Dressmaker from Paris," directly for the screen. Ernest Torrence is featured with Miss Joy in the cast. Other big names are Mildred Harris, Allan Forrest, "Spec" O'Donnell, Larry Gray, Charles Crockett and Rosemary Cooper.

A Scene from "THE LIMITED MAIL" A WARNER PICTURE

Amusing Incidents Occur in Filming "Police Patrol"

Some of the most amusing incidents which occur during the production of a motion picture do not always appear on the screen when it is shown in a theater. This was the case with "The Police Patrol," a new Gotham production starring James Kirkwood, which comes to the Mission Theater today.

James Kirkwood appears as a New York policeman and in matters of this kind it is essential that permission of the department be secured in order to avoid unpleasant official complications. One of the first scenes called for a "shot" of a squad of policemen leaving the station to go on duty. On the morning this was to be taken, Mr. Kirkwood in uniform, appeared in the line up before the desk and marched out with the men, who did not know but what he was a new man assigned to the precinct. The squad marched out in regular formation, lined up outside the station and were dispatched to their posts by the sergeant. Once out of range of the camera, which was concealed to avoid attracting curiosity seekers, Mr. Kirkwood casually lit a cigaret. Immediately he was pounced upon by an irate police sergeant who proceeded to "bawl him out" much to the amusement of Mr. Kirkwood and the police captain who was "in the know."

Another comical incident which was not so funny for the victim, took place while the runaway horse scene was being taken. Among several thousand spectators on 42nd St. and Second Ave. New York was the driver of a newspaper delivery wagon who had left his horse and wagon about a block away to watch them make the "movies." He was so interested at watching the film runaway that he neglected to notice that his own horse had wandered off. The last seen of the newspaper man he was chasing a horse and wagon towards Fifth Avenue, where it was stopped by a traffic officer.

Picture, "Grounds For Divorce," Will Appear at Palace

What are "Grounds for Divorce?"

This question seems to be tearing our modern civilization to pieces. Each day the papers blaze forth in headlines all about the 'So-and-so's Sensational Divorce Suit."

Consider for a moment the case of the Sorbiers, showing at Palace Wednesday and Thursday.

Maurice Sorbier, a highly successful French attorney, married Alice. She was beautiful. He was handsome and rich. What more could a newly married couple wish for? Nothing until it happened.

Their first wedding anniversary finds him wrapped up in his latest case, never for a moment giving a thought to the theatre party his wife has so carefully planned for the occasion.

A misunderstanding develops into a small size riot and ends up in a divorce. Alice marries again; Maurice is mixed up in an affair with a French actress, his latest client; the girl finds her new husband worse than the first and has Maurice help her obtain a divorce, and they are remarried.

Great stuff for a movie, what! And what a laughing matter Paramount has made of it!

Florence Vidor, Matt Moore and Louise Fazenda, screen comedienne, are featured in the leading roles of the production, written for the screen by Violet Clark from Ernest Vajda's Broadway stage success of the same name, which in turn was adapted by Guy Bolton.

Harry Myers plays in support.

"Merry Widow" To Come to Olympic In Film Showing

Seldom does a picture create such wide-spread interest as has "The Merry Widow" the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production coming to the Olympic Saturday, November 21. But it was inevitable with such a significant combination of story, director and cost. The title suggests picturesque romance, and in the hands of the gifted director, Erich von Stroheim ideally suited to stage such a thing, the production has exceeded the fondest expectations held for it. The title role, in which Miss Murray is featured, furnishes this piquant actress with the best role of her career, and that she gives "The Merry Widow" the charm and vivacity it needs goes without saying. John Gilbert, one of the most popular men on the screen today invests the part of "Prince Danilo" with a brilliance and dash which has come to be associated with this actor. Other members of the cast including Roy D'Arcy, a new von Stroheim discovery who plays the villanous Crown Prince, Tully Marshall, George Fawcett, Josephine Crowell, and Dale Fuller acquit themselves nobly in their respective roles.

"The Merry Widow" was filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. The picture is based on the international famous stage play of the same name as written by Victor Leon, Leo Stein and Franz Lehar. It was adapted to the screen by Erich von Stroheim and Benjamin Glazer.

State legislators and other politicians flocked to his office in Indianapolis, it was sworn by testimony at his trial. He was in constant communication, the state charged, with a large group of state senators and representatives sitting in the legislature last January and February.

"I am the law in Indiana," was the statement attributed to him by the state—a statement ascribed to him by Madge Oberholtzer in her dying declaration which played so big a part in his conviction, a statement which the prosecution rung in his ears again and again as it pleaded with the jury to sentence him to death.

Gentry was most affected of all the defendants when they were summoned into court early this afternoon to learn their fate. Pasty-faced and nervous, he waited with apparent dread the reading of the verdict that made him free.

When his friends crowded around him a minute later he could only shake hands—his voice was gone.

"Man of Granite"

Klenck, called by the prosecution "the gorilla" and "man of granite," lived his reputation and role until the farmer foreman had spoken in the dingy, high walled court room the last sylable of the jury's verdict. Not a muscle flickered in his massive face.

Then after the perfunctory handshaking both Klenck and Gentry followed their leader back to his cell.

"Why acquit me and convict Steve?" Gentry demanded indignantly of the coterie which accompanied Stephenson back to the jail.

"It is the most ridiculous verdict I ever heard of," Klenck spoke up. "It should be a notice to the public that it is not a vindication of any law, but persecution of the best man that ever lived. He has been the best friend thousands of Indiana people ever had.

It was the lost leader who finally sent the faithful pair from his side.

"Let me stay in jail with you tonight," Klenck urged, but Stephenson laughed and urged them to "get out and get some fresh air."

Then Stephenson made a statement. "Every one knows," he said, "that under the circumstances and in the atmosphere which surrounded the jury during the entire trial and under the usual procedure before the court the jury expressed noble courage in acquitting Gentry and Klenck, against whom I doubt if the pernicious hate which manifested itself was at any time directed.

"Not a Law Suit"

"This has not been a law suit. It has been an expression of envy, jealousy and malice interwoven with a campaign of propaganda which was pursued with feverish intensity and design for no purpose except to wield an unsavory influence upon the public mind. The last chapter has not been written."

The verdict freeing Gentry after Stephenson had been found guilty of second degree murder surprised those in the court room. He was alleged to have been with Stephenson on the trip to Hammond and to have slept in a drawing room berth above that in which the girl was held captive by Stephenson.

Klenck's connection with the case was less important. He was alleged to have procured the Pullman tickets for the ride to Hammond and to have carried Miss Oberholtzer to her home after her return to Indianapolis.

The jury began its deliberations at 11:46 o'clock and returned its verdict at 5:22 this afternoon. Eleven ballots were taken, most of them bearing upon the verdict as to Stephenson.

Face Other Charges

The case began October 12. Thirteen days were consumed in choosing a jury, 228 men being examined. The state used just a week to present its evidence and the defense four and a half days.

Klenck and Gentry, together with Stephenson are under indictment at Indianapolis on the charge of conspiracy to commit a felony, the charge growing out of an investigation of a mysterious fire at Stephenson's palatial suburban home to which it was alleged Miss Oberholtzer was lured. State and local officials who investigated said cans containing a mixture of oil and gasoline were found about the home after the fire. Prosecutor Remy has indicated that the conspiracy charge will be pressed against Stephenson's companions.

Harold Lloyd Is Big Mirth Maker In 'The Freshman'

By Winnie Jackson

It has become such a habit for Harold Lloyd to make comedies of a high grade of excellence that it seems commonplace and savoring of repetition to say that "The Freshman," which had its initial showing here yesterday at the Olympic Theater, is another link in his unbroken chain of hits. In fact, in our humble opinion, it is the best of all of them, and that statement is made after careful reflection.

While not as breath-taking as "Safety Last," as filled with hilarious farce as "Why Worry?", or as crammed with gags as "Hot Water," it is nevertheless better entertainment than any of these, for it combines the best laugh-getting points of them all. In type it more nearly resembles "Girl Shy," for the laughs have been hung on a farce comedy frame work in which there is just enough story to carry them, strong human interest and a plentiful sprinkling of pathos.

As soon as the characters and the atmosphere are well planted, the laughs start in—at first gently, and they working up with increased volume and velocity, until your laughs have become one prolonged roar. We see Harold in his home, just prior to leaving for college, planning his campaign to be the most popular boy on the campus. Then come enough scenes on the train to introduce him to the heroine, Jobyna Ralston. His arrival and welcome exceed his fondest dreams, for he doesn't realize, in his simplicity, that he's been recognized as a dub and is being kidded to a fare-ye-well. There is excellent humor and human interest in the scene where he makes a speech to the students while he has a kitten fidgeting under his sweater.

The laughs become more robust and the action more strenuous when Harold substitutes for a dummy in tackle practice with the football squad. In this sequence a tear or two is mixed for an extra measure of emotional reaction. This sequence is followed by the Full Frolic, of which Harold is host and which he is forced to attend in a basted tuxedo that causes a solid quarter of an hour of hilarity.

The great climax comes in the football game, into which Harold, only a lowly water boy, is thrown in as a substitute to at least save the school from the disgrace of forfeiting the game. That football scrimmage simply can't be described, and we wouldn't do so if it could, for it is far too much fun to see it. It makes you want to stand up and cheer for good old Tate and that lucky boob, Harold Lamb. And when "The End" flashes on the screen the marvel is that your eyes are a little moist.

It's a great picture of laughs and thrills and tears, extremely well constructed, smoothly directed, and perfectly acted by a cast that couldn't have been more wisely selected.

"White Desert" Is Showing at Strand Beginning Friday

Up in the "Top of the World" country, with its wind-worn peaks and desert-like stretches of snow and ice, was born what is reported to be one of the greatest out-door pictures of the year, "The White Desert," which will open at the Strand Theater on Friday.

Reginald Barker, who has gained fame with the picture-going public for plays of this type, directed the production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It is said to surpass his recent picture, "The Great Divide," which was heralded as one of the greatest pictures of its kind.

Atop of the U. S. A.

The picture was filmed at the top of the continental divide in Colorado and Barker believes that the "Top of the United States" presents more obstacles and perils than anything he has ever tackled in his directorial career. The story was adapted for the screen from the popular novel by Courtney Ryley Cooper. In order to lose none of the vivid portrayal of the book Barker took his entire company up into the great snowlands where they faced everpresent death.

The story deals with the hazards of drilling a railroad tunnel through the Rocky Mountains. The undertaking is considered so important that the president of the company, Sam MacFarlane, is living with his daughter, Robinette, near the construction camp. John Keith, the head engineer, and Barry Houston, his assistant, are both in love with Robinette. She distributes her favor evenly.

Sousa Aids Glove Trade, White Kids Are His Favorites

If you are interested in figures, you may be interested to learn that somewhere along the route of his third-of-a-century tour, Lieut. Com. John Philip Sousa will work his fingers into his ten thousandth pair of white kid gloves. Sousa upon the director's stand probably would be more at home without a baton than without his white kid gloves, and with a record of a new pair of gloves every time he has appeared on the conductor's stand over a stretch of 33 years, the march king has been somewhat of a friend to the kid glove industry. This present season, it is estimated that the 40 weeks of his tour will require about 400 pairs of gloves. He and his band will appear here at the Palace Theater the evening of Dec. 2.

Theatre Patrons Face a Week of Excellent Offerings

Majestic Offers Big Attractions At Its Vaudeville

Five big acts of vaudeville are offered this week at the Majestic when the program is topped off with comedy, humor, just a little pathos and enough of everything to make it interesting.

Today when the dancing is of infinite variety and an intricate terpsichore will find some difficulty in retaining her throne the competition is so great that now it is only a case of the survival of the most fit. Among the fittest of the fit may be recorded Eunice Miller young dancer who succeeds admirably in hiding her perfect technique with charm and poetic motion. Miss Miller and Ned Bolles present a dancing offering called "Tip Toes" and they are assisted by Jean Chandler. The trio present a program of several different numbers.

Among The Swells

The location of "Sweldom" is a matter of opinion. In the minds of Jones, Morgan and Rush it is Palm Beach and as their skit is called "Among the Swells" and has to do with the wealthy and the would-be wealthy by matrimony.

They have selected Palm Beach as the locale. The scene depicts a bit of the beach. Among those present is a fascinating heiress on a quiet little hunt. There is also a life guard and financially impoverished jockey on a dollar hunt. The three meet and a humorous flirtation with deception as the keynote ensues. This is a great deal of a plot for a skit but it doesn't in any way interfere with the fun, in fact Mr. Jones as jockey rides a winning race for laughter.

The little piece is the breeziest, brightest collection of repartee this bright and breezy trio have ever had.

Jest For Awhile

Here are two jewels in a new setting—Clara Barry and Orval Whitledge have both won their professional spurs in separate endeavors and now they are uniting their ability and personality. Miss Barry is one of the daughters of the late Billy Barry of the "Riding Generation" and "Muldoon's Picnic Fame." She comes of a family of comedians and has done her share to keep the name of Barry a favorite in the theatre. Those who remember her father declare that her methods are his and that she is a chip "off the old block" which to her is the greatest kind of a compliment.

Miss Barry is of course Irish. She has the natural brogue and the Irish sense of humor. She is both good to look upon and pleasing to hear.

Orval Whitlege is an excellent feeder for Miss Barry and pianist. "Jest For Awhile" they have assembled a quantity of clever songs and patter and they hit upon a new idea for its dispersement.

Richard Kean

Richard Kean until he entered the Music Halls was one of the best known character actors in England. During the days of the late Sir Henry Irving, he was known as the Distinguished Actor's Double and was frequently called upon to play Sir Henry roles. A few years ago he conceived the idea of using these parts in the Music Halls and for this purpose he worked out a play that enables him to present several characters in rapid succession. In this offering he takes the big scene from usual standard plays and offers some of the best known characters in the drama.

Clown Show

A big gun carries a larger charge than a little one. Oleson and Johnson are big guns of comedy. They are loaded with laughs. When the big guns are discharged there is a barrage of fun. These two men have been called likeable lads. They are. High class clownery has no better exponents. They offer a choice blend of song, piano and monkey shines; the latter being an assortment of classical nonsense, and the powder that drives home the shot.

Ex-Burk Resident Dies In This City

Burkburnett, Nov. 14.—James Biddy, 48 years old, former resident of Burkburnett died this morning at two o'clock. Mr. Biddy left surviving him his wife, three sons, George, Seamon, Neona, and three daughters, Mrs. R. C. Sicklan, Mrs. A. E. Morgan and Mrs. E. C. Bailey.

Funeral services will be held from the family home, 205 Burnett street, Wichita Falls, at three o'clock Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. A. J. Holt. The body was brought to the Owen Funeral Home, in Burkburnett.

MAY NOT SEAT NYE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Opinion was divided today at the capital as to whether the senate would seat Gerald P. Nye, appointed by Governor Corlie of North Dakota as successor to the late Senator Ladd.

Holding that the law of North Dakota requires a special election for the selection of a successor to a senate seat, administration leaders said the right of Mr. Nye to a place in the senate would be challenged and that when he presented his credentials he would be asked to stand aside until the senate could decided the issue.

ATHLETES ORGANIZE.

Association of Texas Amateurs Is Organized in Waco.

WACO, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Texas Amateur Athletic association was organized here today at the Y. M. C. A., when representatives of nine amateur sports, from the leading cities of Texas met after three years of preliminary work and discussion.

The purpose of the association, as set forth in its constitution is "to create and maintain in the state of Texas a permanent organization composed of amateur athletes and of organizations devoted thereto.

DOROTHY DIX ADVICE

What Can the Woman of 50, Whose Children Are Married, Do for Companionship? How Can She Prevent Her Husband From Lending Money They Cannot Spare? Ancestor-Worshiping Wife

A man says:

"Modern marriage is a failure. Do you believe that the marriage institution should be done away with at this day and time?"

Certainly not. I think marriage should be made more permanent, more binding. Marriage is far from ideal, but it is the best arrangement for the association of the sexes that human ingenuity has so far been able to devise.

Marriage is the very foundation stone on which civilization rests. It insures the solidarity of the family. It is the bulwark of the home. It is the first aid to law and order and all the commonplace virtues that go to build up a prosperous and progressive country.

You cannot imagine any great race springing from the promiscuous and animal matings of men and women. You cannot conceive of any real home in which the father and mother at the head of it are transient guests, here today and gone tomorrow. You cannot vision children having any respect for parents who are forever being swapped on them and who are continually getting a new papa or a new mamma.

Things are bad enough as they are, with our divorce mills running overtime, turning out a ghastly grist of wrecked homes and the half-orphaned children who recruit our hoodlum class, for statistics show that the large majority of youthful criminals are the offsprings of quarreling parents, who have broken their marriage vows and separated. But a world in which there were no permanent homes, no eternal altar on which the fire never went out, no honest-to-goodness, never changing fathers and mothers would be a world of chaos.

It is easy enough to pick flaws in marriage, but the trouble is to find a remedy for them.

Those who believe that marriage should be abolished claim that the mere knowledge that they are bound together for life slays all romance in a man and woman's heart, and that the only way to keep love alive is to keep it free.

Never was there a greater error than this. The thing that kills romance is not matrimony, but daily association.

You cannot keep up illusions about the one with whom you live; whom you see sick and tired, slouchy and disgruntled; whose every mood and tense you come to know; whose every weakness you fathom with pitiless exactness. But the shrewish, vixenish, slovenly mistress has no more allure for a man than has the shrewish, vixenish, slovenly wife. The brutal, cruel, selfish lover—God save the word—has no charms that the brutal, cruel, selfish husband lacks.

When men and women cease to be loveable Cupid quits on the job, whether they are legally bound to each other or not.

It is also a fallacy that love thrives better outside of the matrimonial fold than within it, and that there is some peculiarly strong and tender in the tie that binds the unwed together.

On the contrary, love is a domestic flower that strikes its deepest roots at the doorsteps and the real tie that binds is forged by the priests at the altar. In proof of which we can all count among our acquaintances dozens of husbands and wives who are still lovers after thirty, or forty, or fifty years of marriage, but we can scarcely recall one liaison that has lasted ten years.

There are many reasons why this should be the case. The first is that there is something in the mere fact of being married that makes us feel settled and keeps our fancies from roaming. We have made our pick of the men and women we know. We have sealed our bargain and we have enough common sense to try to make the best of it and be satisfied with it instead of always being on the lookout for something more alluring.

Then comes in our vanity that enhances the value of anything just because it is ours. The same spirit that makes us thing our individual automobile, and house, and dog, and gun the best in the world, makes us spread the halo of possession over our husbands and wives and endow them with superior charms.

And, above all, our husbands and wives are endeared to us by association, by the struggles we have fought through shoulder to shoulder, by sick beds we have bent over together, by graves we have wept over, by memories of joys and sorrows and triumphs and failures that make the old husband and wife literally one.

The men and women who are not married who have no tie but a passing gust of passion, are bound by a pack thread that breaks under the slightest strain. Knowing that there is no permanency in their relationship they are always on the lookout for some one who has a fairer face or who can give them a more potent thrill.

They never know the real peace of love, for their love is always full of fear of change, fear of age, fear of disenchantment, fear of losing out. For there inevitably comes the day when youth is gone and beauty dead, when one's wand of enchantment is broken and one's magic love philter used up to the last drop. And who is then so lonely and forlorn as those who have depended solely on their personal charm to hold love.

Assuredly marriage has many faults and it does not always bring happiness to the individual. It is full of disillusionments, but it stabilizes society. It brings out the finest and noblest qualities in men and women who find in doing their duty a peace that the pursuit of pleasure does not always give.

And marriage enables men and women to make the sort of homes in which children are reared who are the hope of the world.

Death Beacons to Screen Star

Death is slowly sapping away life of Barbara La Marr, famed screen vampire. Her voice gone, her body wasted away to 80 pounds, she nevertheless refuses to surrender without a struggle. Photo shows her when she was at heighth of screen glory, just after her fifth marriage. She is 29.

Barbara La Marr Is Making Struggle For Life; Doctors Say It Is a Hopeless Fight

One of Fildom's Most Colorful Stars Is Near Death

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14. When death has taken its inevitable toll and Barbara La Marr lives only in the films in which she has played, the screen will have lost one of its most colorful personalities.

Barbara is making a brave stand against the Reaper in a secluded spot in nearby Pasedena. Doctors say that the end is near.

Her voice is gone, her body wasted to eighty pounds. Miss La Marr fights on; but a hopeless fight, the physicians declare.

Early Life Obscured.

Barbara is only 29. She has been in the public eye since she was 15. Her early life is obscured, and there is doubt as to whether even she knows her origin. It was said when she first came to Broadway in a musical revue, after her first work as a model, that her mother was Italian and her father French, but that she had never known either.

In that day she was known as Reatha Watson, and a family of the name of Watson was said to have adopted her in infancy. Later, when the press agent stage came into her career, the press copy said that she came of distinguished ancestry, hailing from Richmond, Va., but there was never any fact to hang the press narrative upon in the offing.

Her Marital Record.

Her astonishing marital score stands among the records for one of anything like her age. She had been married five times before she was 27. In the order of their appearance—and disappearance—they were: Jack Lytelle, died; Lawrence Converse, annulled; Phil Ainsworth, divorced her; Ben Deeley, divorced her; Jack Dougherty, married in 1923.

She came to the screen first as an extra at $10 a day, working with Anita Stewart in "Harriet and the Piper." Then Douglas Fairbanks engaged her in "The Nut," and she rose to a place paying $2,000 a week. Any number of pictures followed her first advance by Fairbanks.

Barbara a Marr was not a great actress and she was not, perhaps, an actually great beauty. Yet Barbara La Marr was one of filmdom's great personages. She was a remarkable woman. But she would not have been had she not been bent by the winds of experience.

Her Experiences.

Once a judge, looking down at her sternly, told her she was too beautiful.

It was a rather thrilling drama which that face propelled her into.

Consider these things that went into the making of the Barbara La Marr: A kidnapping at 15; a capture by a cowboy and a mad dash to the altar carried across the saddle of her conqueror; widowhood; a police court; banishment from Los Angeles because of her beauty; marriage to an insane bigamist and a second widowhood; cabarets; vaudeville; a literary leaning and motion picture scenarios; the extra route to stardom.

New Western Star Is Playing Today At Gem Theater

Surrounded by a good cast, and appearing in an excellent story which has been brilliantly directed by James Gruen and Robert De Lacey, Tom Tyler, a new Adonis of the screen with the shoulders of a young Hercules, flashes a fascinating smile and a dynamic personality across the silver sheet at the Gem Theatre on Sunday when his first F. B. O. production is shown here. "Let's Go, Gallager," is the title of the picture, and it is just as fast as its name, if not a trifle speedier. It travels about as far as Nurmi could run in four months of furious footing, and it is lighted with a lot of good comedy and corking human interest material. Percy Heath adapted the story to the screen, and he has done a splendid job. A western star with the promise that Mr. Tyler holds forth is an event in these days, what with the cry from the picture going public for new faces. It is said that Mr. Tyler was selected after screen tests had been given by F. B. O. to more than a thousand candidates; and his possibilities certainly justify the painstaking efforts which the producers put forth to find the right man.

Birch Acquires Full Stock in Auto Firm

Announcement is made today of the dissolution of the partnership of Birch and Gates, local distributors for Oldsmobile and Gardner automobiles. Mr. Birch acquires the interest of Mr. Gates. The business will be conducted in the future under the name of Birch Motor company, M. T. Birch, owner. Mr. Gates is retiring from the firm to enter a new line of business in Wichita Falls. Mr. Birch says the past year has been very successful and profitable to Mr. Gates and himself. They have expanded to the extent of being the fourth largest automobile dealers in Wichita Falls. He attributes this wonderful success to the conservative and personal service they have rendered to their customers.

The lines are two of the oldest in the United States. The Gardner factory recently celebrated their fiftieth anniversary in the manufacturing of vehicle transportation and during the past year they have sold more straight eight-in-line Gardners than any other straight-eight automobile. During the past year they have sold over 1,000 new and used automobiles. Mr. Birch entered the automobile industry five years ago in Wichita Falls as a mechanic and he rates among his customers some of those he serviced at that time.

The personnel of the Birch Motor company will remain the same with Mr. Birch as owner and general manager; Charles S. Cook, sales manager; Clifford Hughes, service manager; G. R. Tucker, office manager; C. E. Martin, parts manager and J. F. Reilley, used car manager. There are now 19 Wichita Falls families being supported by the earnings of this organization.

MRS. WALLACE LECTURES

Mrs. Charles William Wallace lectured to the New Century club Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. T. T. Reese when she took for her subject the club study, "Henry VIII."

Following the lecture and round-table discussion, dainty refreshments were served to Mesdames Luke McCrory, Watts, C. J. Barnard, W. P. Bolding, C. B. Felder, W. W. Gardner, W. J. Grishma, C. R. Hartsook, T. P. Duncan, Reese M. D. Rowe, Mack Thomas and Wallace.

Healthy Hair
Gleamy, Thick, Wavy
—Full of Life

Modern style in hair dress, particularly constant curling and waving, is slowly burning the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; often the hair roots shrink, then the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty-tonic acts on the hair liek fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your hair-brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

CANTATA RUTH WILL BE SUNG SUNDAY NIGHT

Choir of First Presbyterian Church Offers Sacred Story

The cantata, "Ruth," a sacred story composed by A. R. Gaul will be sung at the First Presbyterian church Sunday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock by members of the choir under the direction of Alva Willgus. The story is that of Ruth, Bibical character, telling of her wandering and return to the land of Israel, the parting of Orpha, Ruth and Naomi; of Ruth's gleaning in the fields of Boaz, the wedding of Ruth and Boaz. The cantata concludes with a chorus of rejoicing because God had led them along such pleasant paths.

Solo parts will be taken as follows: Ruth, (soprano) Mrs. T. C. Brownlee; Mrs. J. S. Pitman, Orpha, (soprano); Naomi (contralto) Miss Dorothy Burke; Boaz, (bass) Alva Willgus; Mrs. O. E. Haer, organist.

The chorus is made up of the following singers: Sopranos, Mesdames Brownlee, Pitman, C. N. Cameron, A. E. Hall, J. A. Hockman, C. A. Beavers, Doris Farmer; Misses Faye Goss, Nellie Lewis, Arline Wood, Nannie Scott, Helen Leach.

Altos: Misses Dorothy Burks, Lucile Ainsworth, Ruby Brown, Mesdames J. M. Bell, T. B. Smith.

Tenors: Paul Von Allman, J. N. Hockman.

Basses: Fred Goss, R. M. Tittle, Robert E. Mathis, Grover Bullington, Alva Willgus.

At the morning service the choir will sing for the offertory anthem "The Lord is my Rock," by Woodman. Mrs. Maer will play for the prelude "Motif from Lohengrin" and for the postlude "Postlude" by Ashford.

Two Quartettes To Sing in Odd Contest

The public, both white and colored, will no doubt receive a rare musical treat when two colored male quartettes stage a contest for honors at Anderson Chapel, African Methodist church, Monday night.

One quartette represents St. John's Baptist church and one, made up of the porters of Perkins-Timberlake company, will represent Anderson Chapel. A small admission will be charged, which will go to the church fund.

An interesting program is said to be arranged and a special section has been reserved in the church for the white people.

STILL FISHIN'

"Well, I've got lots of strings out, and I expect to pull 'em in soon; and if I've caught anything, I'll let you know right on the jump!" That's the winter baseball situation right now in Wichita Falls as President Gardner put it to us yesterday.

Spud moguls are dickering away daily in effort to strengthen the 1926 Spudder machine at several points, but have not closed any deals yet. And until the transactions are completed, they do not care to break anything on the news market.

FEE FANS GET BONUS

One item of interest for the feminine fans, according to announcement by J. Will Gray, there will be two ladies' days each week through the 1926 campaign. Phemale fandom crashes the gate on Monday and Fridays gratis. "Get the women to following the club, and the men will tag right along," avers J. William.

RAZZERS BECALMED

If on would believe the chirps of the winter leaguers here there'l be none of that razzing doled out at expense of the home squad next season. The boys at odd intervals the past several seasons came in for quite a bit of tough palaver from the grand stands when the breaks were not falling right or one of 'em booted the ball or made a bad throw.

* * *

Yessir, the bugs seem to have reorganized and decided to get behind the gang and pull for 'em every second, regardless of how the outlook may be. Cutting out the razzberries will go a goodly distance toward bringing the bacon home. Fact of the matter is, the Spudders in 1925 were a better road club than home team. Why, because home fans wouldn't stay in and pitch with 'em, but instead started the hammers whamming on the anvil the second anything went wrong out there on the field of play.

Bubber Jonnard, best catcher in the Texas league during the past two races, came in for more than his share of verbal drubbing by irrate fans who couldn't see him as the biggest hustler over the loop and the classiest backstop of the lot. They made it miserable for Bubber some times, these wise boys did who doubtless knowing less about baseball than the bat boy continued to roast the Spudder receiver, taking the position of a John McGraw and bawling him out with avidity on several occasions.

Its' a good thing for baseball in Wichita Falls that the master minds of the grandstand have decided to lay off the club and let the manager do the brain work.

CAGERS MAY FIND HOME

Wichita Falls basketeers, still hunting for a court on which to stage the annual city league games, may be able to use the junior college courts. That would be a boon to the cage game here, for never in the history of Wichita Falls have the city leaguers boasted a regulation cage in which to play. The school board meets next Thursday to decide on the matter. Coaches McCallum and Moseley, it is said, are in favor of letting the leaguers use the courts. It's understood that a majority of the school board are willing, also. If we have been informed correctly, there is but one man who stands in the way.

AND THAT'S THAT

Ray Maywood won't get a comeback shot at Duke Trammel. A member of the American legion executive committee has declared that if necessary to prevent the staging of such a bout he will bring an injunction against the legion to halt boxing of all types in this city. This gentleman, when told it was likely Maywood would be billed with Duke, arose in indignation and uttered quite a few unkind remarks.

TOMMY AND DUKE

Speaking of Trammel, they're talking about bringing Tommy White back here in the next week or so to take the Cowtown mauler in a third meeting. Tommy completely outboxed Duke in two matches, but the promoters aver Trammel has improved astonishingly since those occasions and will make a great mill of it with White. Wofford goes so far as to opine Duke will kayo the clever little Texas City scrapper.

BENEFIT CARD FOR NEWSIES

The mayor gives his first Christmas dinner to Wichita Falls newsboys this year. It is planned to make this an annual affair, and our promoting friend, Alec B. Ross, has been asked to come in on the matter this year. Alec acquiesced immediately, and plans the staging of a wrestling match December 22 to raise the funds for the dinner and cash presents to be given the lads. It's all tentative right now, nevertheless Alec is rocking along with the purpose of lining up Paul Jones, the Houston heavy, with some good opponent. Jones hasn't been approached on the matter, but Ross declared Paul is always willing to give a helping hand to a worthy cause.

TEXAS AGGIES IN EASY WIN OFF OWLS, 17-0

Touchdowns in Third And Fourth Quarters Clinch Victory

RICE IS HELPLESS

Light and Less Experienced Team Has Little Chance

HOUSTON, Nov. 14.—Touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters following a field goal scored in the first quarter gave the Texas Aggies a 17 to 0 victory over the Rice Owls in their annual football clash here today. The Aggies were not forced to extend themselves to achieve this victory. Against the lighter and less experienced Owl machine the visitors seemed content to play a safe game while Head Coach Stewart of the Texas Longhorns looked on in the capacity of a scout.

Lead by the powerful Ox Deitrick, aided by Bones Irwin, the two stellar tackles, the A. & M. farmer line played furious and effective football.

The Owls played equally well on defense in the first half. The Owl line was charging viciously and had it not been for an intercepted pass by Wilson near mid-field, and one of the two Aggies first down of the first two periods, Joe Hunt would not have been in a position to kick his field goal from placement from the Owls' 28-yard line in the first period.

But it was a different story in the second half.

The Aggies came back primed for the battle, while the Owls apparently tired by their vigorous play in the earlier stages, could not repel the vigorous attack they were to face.

The lineup and summary:

Rice	Po.	Texas A&M
Joseph		Price

Dandy Dick About Ready to Begin Pugilistic School

Plans are moving right ahead for the inauguration of a Wichita Falls boxing school under the leadership of Dandy Dick Griffin, classy Fort Worth veteran featherweight, aided by Don Wofford and Blondy Cross.

Shower baths will be installed in the 812 1-2 Scott street boxing quarters this week, according to Wofford. It is planned to begin installation Monday.

Just as soon as the quarters are put in order, Griffin will open doors for business, he says.

Dandy Dick expects to get down to work with his classes either the latter portion of the week or the first of next week. He plans to give a course of 12 to 15 lessons, depending on the latent boxing ability of his pupils.

That Griffin is fitted for the role of boxing instructor cannot be doubted in the least. Dandy Dick has been rated as one of the greatest little fighters in the game. However, he has just about passed his prime as a pugilist now in that he is not heralded as a title contender but still is good enough to stay in there and pitch with the best of 'em.

Griffin has narrowly missed being a champion in his class on several occasions. Incidentally, he has defeated a number of titleholders, but refused to take advantage of openings for knockouts. It sounds unusual, but it's true that Griffin time and again has had an opponent on the verge of a knockout but deliberately refused to follow up his advantage and stow him away.

There's not a cleaner cut little fellow in the game today than Dandy Dick.

Ohio State Loses To Michigan, 10-0

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Ohio State's game efforts were not enough to defeat Michigan here today, and the Wolverines, availing themselves of the first two good opportunities which came their way, scored a touchdown and a field goal in the first half and won, 10 to 0.

Finding a weak spot in the center of the Buckeye line the Wolverines pounded it incessantly, scoring six first downs in third quarter alone by that attack.

The Michigan aerial attack was not at its full point of efficiency, it was revealed during the first half, so in the closing periods line dives were substituted for the passing game.

Nebraska Fights Aggies to 0-0 Tie

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 14. (AP)—The Nebraska Cornhuskers battled through four scoreless periods at the Kansas Aggie stadium today, threatening only once to score when Mandery, Nebraska right half back, attempted a place kick that went wide of the posts.

The two squadrons fought each other to a standstill, making almost no gains through the two opening periods, while their toe experts exchanged yardage with a strong north wind at their backs. Nebraska's rally in the third session brought the sphere back from their own one foot line where an Aggie player had stopped an Aggie put and carried it deep into wild cat territory, but failed to make a serious threat.

Poloists Play At Fair Park Today

The Wichita Falls lineup will be Cowden, Featherston, Fletcher and White, Pendegrast and Fastnow will be substitutes.

Will Rogers is to be a guest of the Wichita Falls club. He has signified that he would like to play.

Should the weather be exceedingly cold, spectators will be allowed to line their automobiles around the race track which incloses the polo field.

INDIAN FIGHT SLAPS IT ON WEATHERFORD

Tribe Rallies in Third To Overcome 12-Point Advantage

BEATTY LEADS ATTACK

Weeth Proves Big Factor On Tackle-Around Plays

Displaying a relentless fighting spirit, brilliant line play, and hard driving running attack, Wichita Falls junior college's Indians rallied desperately yesterday on the Spudder park gridiron in the third quarter of a hectic grid combat to overcome a 12-point lead amassed by Weatherford college's Coyotes, and cop the grapes in a conference contest, 21 to 12.

Vicious line plunging by Curtis Beaty, a hard driving attack by Stephenson, West and Deems, abetted by off-tackle forays on tackle around plays with Charley Weeth toting the pigskin brought the victor's laurels to the home crew.

Weatherford uncovered a great overhead attack in the second period and before the smoke had cleared from the field of battle had piled up a 12 to 0 score. The Indians fought back in the third quarter and with steady line plunging, tackle around plays, and end runs amassed up fourteen points. In the final quarter they again scored seven points.

Charles Weeth, plunging right tackle, was one of the most consistant ground gainer of the Indians on the times he used the tackle around play. The line plunging by Curtis Beaty was the outstanding feature of the Indian offense. Beaty gained more through the line than any other player in the game.

Captain John Clary and Doyle Stephenson played great defensive games for the Tribe. Weeth, Hirschi, and Burks staged great defensive games in the line.

Baker was the outstanding linesman of the Coyotes, while Grant, Ray and Barbee showed up well. The Coyotec could do little through the tribe forward wall, but passes came very near bringing defeat to the Indians.

The game was played with a high wind blowing out of the north, and punts were very short when going against the gale. The cold caused the played to fumble often, and many of these came at crucial stages.

In the first quarter, West covered a fumble on the Weatherford 33-yard line and the Indians plunged through to the Weathrford 10-yard marker, but there the Weatherford line braced and held the tribe assaults for downs.

Hearne Scores on Pass

Early in the second quarter Weatherford covered Beaty's fumble of a punt on the Wichita Falls 16-yard line. Butler ploughed through center for three yards. Hearne hit the same position, but Clary stopped him for no advance. Then the Coyotes uncorked their first big pass when Butler hurled the ball to Hearne behind the goal line for a touchdown. Try for point failed.

About the middle of the quarter the Coyotes took a punt on the Indian 34-yard line. Butler skirted Wichita Falls' right end for eight yards. Carrow hit center for six yards. Harris spilled Butler for a one yard loss at left end. Butler heaved a pass eighteen yards to Hearne who raced the remaining three yards to another touchdown.

The Indians covered a Weatherford fumble on the Coyote 38-yard line. After Deems had lots a yard, Weeth came out and rounded end for 11 yards and first down. The club bucked down to the nine-yard line, and Deems broke through right tackle for a touchdown. Clary kicked goal from placement.

Bucks Do It

A bad pass from center in the last few minutes of the third quarter gave the Indians another touchdown. Crites recovered the oval on the Weatherford 5-yard line. Weeth made one yard at right end, and Stephenson 2 at center. The Coyotes were off sides and penalized half the length, one yard. Deems failed to gain through center. Beaty hit the line for the remaining yard. Clary again booted the extra point.

Wichita Falls took a punt on the Weatherford 30-yard line and bucked again to a touchdown. Stephenson made three yards at left tackle. Crites made two yards at right end. Beaty made five yards at left tackle. Stephenson made three yards through center. Beaty made three more around left end. Deems went through center for ten yards. Beaty made eight yards at left tackle and a touchdown. Clary again kicked goal.

Wichita Falls	Position	Weatherford
Hirschi	Left Guard	King
Clary	Center	Barker

Minnesota Gets Hold on Pennant

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. Nov. 14.—(AP)—Minnesota took a real hold on first place in the western conference championship scramble today by an impressive 33 to 0 victory over Iowa in Memorial stadium.

The Gophers' victory, achieved before a home coming crowd of 40,000 frantic rooters, leaves only Michigan barring the way to a big ten football title for Minnesota.

Displaying an offensive dash and a defensiv power far superior to anything shown in previous games, the Gophers swept through the Hawkeyes repeatedly, using an occasional forward pass, but generally hitting the line or running the ends.

TEXAS TAKES 20 TO 0 WIN OVER ARIZONA

Leo Baldwin in All-Around Playing Features Contest

AUSTIN, Nov. 14.—(AP).—Terrific smashes of ttackle by Rufus King and the sterling all-around play of Leo Baldwin featured the 20 to 0 victory here today of the Texas Longhorns over the Arizona Wildcats. The Steers started a combination made up in the main of second stringers, the first combination going in the last five minutes. Diebold and Salmon showed to advantage for the losers.

The Longhorns presented a varied offense, driving back with forward passes the secondary defense of the visitors, whenever the Wild Cat backs massed to stop the Steer plungers. Olle was on the receiving end of the most of the passes.

Baldwin's triple threat work was sensational. Starting far behind the line, he swept around end for repeated long gains. His passes were accurate and the few times he was called on to punt he booted the leather far and accurately.

The first touchdown came shortly after the initial kick off. "Pottsy" Allen leading the advance through the line and plunging over for the touchdown.

Rufus King, who substituted for Allen in the second quarter, scored two touchdowns in the third quarter. His first touchdown was attained after three successive smashes had gained 18 yards; the other came on an 18-yard plunge ot right tackle.

Arizona was on the defensive practically all the way.

Texas (30).	Position.	Arizona (0.)
McCullough	Center.	Gentry
Sewell	Right Guard.	Gridley

Olle	Right End.	Flickenger
J. King	Quarterback.	Salmon
Baldwin	Left Halfback.	Diebold
Estes	Right Halfback.	Crouch
Allen	Fullback.	Gilliland (c)

Score by periods:

Texas	6	0	14	0	—20

Texas scoring: Touchdowns, Allen, R. King (substituting for Allen) 2; goals after touchdown, J. King 2; officials, Braun (Sewanee), referee; Garrity (Texas A. & M.), umpire; Ettinger, (Texas) field judge; Venne, (Carlisle), head linesman.

Grange Bids Adieu To Illini Gridiron

URBANA, Ills., Nov. 14.—(AP)—For two minutes this afternoon Red Grange was on the field of Illinois memorial stadium and then he said farewell to the gridiron where he had attained fame while his teammates piled a lead of 21 to 0 over Wabbash in the season's final here. The All-American Illini captain failed to carry the ball while he was in the game and the contest ended two minutes later without any further scoring. Grange will close his collegiate career next Saturday when the Orange and Blue eleven meets Ohio State at Columbus.

The PASSING HOUR

~ by Wm. B. Ruggles ~

I think that there are other forms beside the chalk-marked field—
Beside the few that kick and pass to make the foemen yield—
I hear a hint of ghostly mirth that ripples through the air

They did not know the triple threat—they never saw a pass—
Who fought in days that knew DeWitt, Pierkarski, Poe, and Glass—
When those old ghosts come back to watch the open game's new dream,
They speculate no doubt if they today could make the team!

Fort Worth is already stopped for 1926. They've bought a new ball park.

All that has to be done now is to give the Cats a floral horse-shoe on opening day and Jake Atz a diamond ring and their doom is sealed.

In Due Respect.

Fort Worth may present next spring, as President W. K. Stripling has announced, a newer, bigger and better ball yard to the inspection of the fans. It can not be better kept and looked after than one baseball orchard the minor leagues have known a good many years, the same being the Fort Worth park today.

No small part of the success of the club may have been due to this fact. Panther park has been inspected by magnates, managers and players, major and minor, and all have agreed on that—that the grounds and stands are the best looked after they have seen.

In connection with the new park announcement, no statement as to cause of moving were given. Inability to renew park lease may have figured. But it is probable that LaGrave and Stripling wanted to obviate the perpetual threat of a swollen river that time and again has risen to flood their park and prevent spring play.

Revising Sir Walter again:

Breathes there a coach who has not said
"When this grid year is over—dead—
I'll quit!"

Dr. Cranfill says there are no animals in heaven. We always hoped the horses we bet on would land in the other places.

The 40-Play System.

The experiment with the 40play quarter tried by Brown and Boston university on November 8 probably proved conclusively that adoption of the system would materially reduce playing time. The actual time from start to finish was 110 3-4 minutes as against 155 minutes required for the Texas-Baylor battle in Austin. This, however, was a fairly long drawn out game. The result of the Aggie-TCU game at Fort Worth had already flashed to Austin before the fourth period there was well under way. Still it would be difficult under ordinary conditions to beat the time of the Brown-Boston game, 1 hour and 59 minutes, start to finish, including the 17 minutes intermission.

If the Texas-Baylor game is any criterion, however, 40 plays per quarter is well above the average for each period by establishing a new average somewhat lower, the game could probably be further speeded up. (However the two eastern schools used by 25 plays in the last two periods) and this is close to the average shown by the game at Austin.

Stories sent out on the play system failed to indicate whether a play on which a penalty was assessed counted as a play. The actual number of plays in the Texas-Baylor game were:

First period, Texas 20, Baylor 74; total 34.

Second period, Texas 24, Baylor 12; total 36.

Third period, Texas 21, Baylor 9; total 30.

Fourth period, Texas 27, Baylor 10; total 37.

The total by quarters with penalty plays deducted runs 33-34-29-36. The grand average is 34 and the average for the total less penalties 33. Plays were counted between kickback of a Texas kick-off counting as only one play.

Typographical errors lengthens Texas open season on fur-bearing animals. There must be another one in the open season on two-legged folks.

The Status of Ens.

Pittsburgh's technical act in the case of Jewel Ens to make room for another type of player limiting the ex-Texas leaguer's work to coaching, calls to mind the oddities of baseball graduation. The tall blonde St. Louisian was a valuable player in this company, a very good mechanical performer and hitter with a lot of pep that made him a good asset. He was never regarded over seriously as a thinking player and as a manager in one year's tryout with Houston did not fare so well. Now as a thinking tactician he has been good enough to hold a coaching job for a matter of four years. You can't tell what's inside or outside in this game.

Munn Wrestles McGill Here Nov. 24—Winner Tangles With Paul Jones Following Tuesday

Great interest locally is attached to the coming of Wayne (Big) Munn of Nebraska and Pat McGill, the Canadian heavyweight wrestling champion, to Wichita Falls for a finish match Nov. 24. But this match, as big as it is, after all is nothing but a preliminary to what is to come, announces Matchmaker Ross.

For the bout is figured as an elimination contest, the winner to meet John Paul Jones, the Houston grappled and along with the late Pet Brown, the gratest matman ever turned out by the state of Texas.

Papi Jones is the next heavyweight mat champ, so many of the wisenheimers down this way opine. Incidentally, he chunked Strangler Lewis from the ring in an hour limit match the other night down at Houston. Seems the Strangler has become an adept at the diving act for, as you remember, none other than Munn himself pitched Mr. Lewis over the ropes last year whereby grabbing that much mooted heavyweight championship, temporarily holding it until he made the mistake of tangling up with one of the Zbyszko boys.

Now Munn's on the road back, they say, but if he beats McGill here Nov. 24 that's Tuesday a week hence) he'll have to hurdle that Jones barrier before he can get anywhere close to a meeting with Stetcher, champion at present.

As was announced through The Record News the past week, Matty Matsuda, the wily Nipponese welter, clashes with Charley Mason of Butte, who hodls the Pacific coast middleweight championship. These boys are slated for a finish match, also.

MARTIN MEETS LEE IN LEGION GO THURSDAY

Promoter Wofford is working toward lining up a feature match between two good boys as an added attraction, he said Saturday.

Harvard Defeats Brown by Kicking

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 14.—(AP)—A rebuilt and fighting Harvard football team today ended the series of defeats the Crimson has suffered at the hands of Brown by out-scoring the Brownians 3 to 0 in a bitterly contested game here. For 60 minutes the two elevens waged battle back and forth the length of the field, but neither was able to cross the other's goal line. The lone tally was the field goal that Chauncey, Harvard fullback, kicked from the 24-yard line early in the second period. Four other Harvard attempts to kick a field goal failed.

The game was one of the "dedication games," for Brown's new stadium and 30,000 spectators filled the stands. Twice in successive years Brown teams have brought defeat to Harvard and the Bears had hoped today to make it four straight.

Brown's great back, Keefer and his mates, Dixon and Payor, charged in vain the Crimson line. The Brown attack broke and melted against the sturdy defense. The Bears' aerial attack failed even more signally.

RACE DRIVER FATALLY HURT

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Roy Smith, race driver, was fatally injured at the state fair grounds this afternoon and Johnny Carminetti, another driver, was seriously hurt when their cars piled up at the three-quarter mile post on the north end of the track.

Pups Hook Up With Archer City Coming Friday

The Coyote Pups are scheduled for a game at Spudder park Friday with Coach Wilson's Archer City gridsters. The club is in great shape and will be ready to give its best. Dale Carter was nursing a sore ankle at a party given Friday night in honor of the Pups' win over the Burkburnett second stringers during the afternoon.

Outside of Carter the club seems to be in perfect shape and will be ready to go next Friday.

The Pups showed a great improvement and with another week of practice to go they should wind up in top form. They are planning on settling down and working hard to condition themselves for later games. With the improvement shown in his injuries it is expected that little Ray George will be back in the game before the season is over.

NEW BAIN ON CITRUS

Stringent Regulations Made to Keep Canker Out of Valley

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 14—(AP)—Stringent regulations on shipment of citrus nursery stock into Texas, designed primarily to keep the Rio Grande valley free of citrus canker were announced today by George B. Terrell, agricultural commissioner. The regulations go immediately into effect.

S.M.U. WINS IN HARD BATTLE WITH BAYLOR

Mustangs Take Bears Into Corral For 7-6 Defeat

AIR ATTACK FAILS

But Pony Offensive Is Enough For a Victory Saturday

DALLAS, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Southern Methodist university Mustangs defeated Baylor university Bears, 7 to 6 in a spirited gridiron battle here this afternoon, both teams making their scores in the second quarter. The Bruins had the ball within two yards of the Mustang goal at one point in the scoring period but in a final attempt to put the pigskin over Strickland tried a plunge off guard and was stopped by Magness, who an instant later broke through the line with Ford and nailed Strickland for a two yard loss, the ball going over. The Mustang aerial attack blew up but they had enough offensive left to obtain a win.

The game today was hard fought, both teams unleashing desperate gridiron tactics. The first quarter ended with the teams scoreless despite the fact the Bruins at one time had the ball within two yards of the Mustang goal line. The threat came after Strickland got away through a broken field for a 37-yard gain, placing the ball on the Mustang 28-yard line. Strickland and Morris by a series of wings plays and plunges eluded the Pony tacklers and worked the ball so near the Mustang goal line that they seemed paralized. In a final attempt to put the ball over Strickland tried a plunge off guard but was stopped by Magness. Magness and Ford broke through the line and nailed Strickland fo ra two yard loss, the ball going over.

All the scores on both sides were made during the second quarter.

Baylor (6)	Position.	S. M. U. (7).
Coates	Left End.	Key
Miller	Left Guard.	Vaughan
Reiley	Right Guard.	Tatum
Taylor	Right Tackle.	G. Watters
Nash	Right End.	Dawson
Jones	Quarterback.	Mann
Strickland	Left Halfback.	Kimbrough
Morris	Fullback.	Wade

Score by quarters:

Baylor	0	6	0	0	—6
S. M. U.	0	7	0	0	—7

Northwestern In Win Over Purdue

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 14.—(AP)—With Ralph Baker and Lewis carrying the brunt of a diversified attack Northwestern marched over Purdue to a 13-to 9 football victory today. Purdue scored first when Wilcov received a punt and dashed 73 yards through the whole Purple team for a touchdown. Baker scored for Northwestern in the second period after receiving a pass and in the third period Lewis plunged over Baker and Wilcox each made one point after touchdown. With both lines playing tight football Baker gave Purdue a safety rather than try to kick from behind his own goal.

Midshipmen Stop Bucknell, 13 to 7

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Bucknell succumbed to the Navy today, 13 to 7, after battling the midshipmen to a standstill for the greater part of two periods.

In the first five minutes of play a strong wind dropped a Bucknell punt into the arms of Shapley, Nack back, on the visitos' 15-yard line. Shapely shoved it back within a foot of the goal and Caldwell took it over. Bucknell scored in the third period on a spectacular forward pass, McCormick to McCleary.

In the fourth period the Navy on their own 35-yard line blocked an attempted field goal from McCormick's toe and marched down the field for their second touchdown.

PACK WILL BE AT ITS BEST IN VERNON BATTLE

Entire Squad Primed And In Shape for Monday Encounter

TO TAPER OFF TODAY

Starting Eleven Intact With Exception of Rowdy Curtin

Wichita Falls' Coyotes will enter the Vernon contest Monday at Spudder park for the eastern half title of district one with their strongest lineup of the year barring, of course, that halfback position vacated two weeks back by Rowdy Curtin, brilliant performer, who was declared ineligible by the interscholastic league.

The club wound up intensive training Saturday with a pair of workouts, and will taper off this afternoon on a hiking jaunt with Coach Bud McCallum.

There'll be a different score from that of the contest played with Vernon earlier this season, Coyote followers declare.

Swede Wainscott was injured in the Vernon game. Mogan Gillum played the game while he was sick, and several other minor injuries cropped up to upset the Coyotes, but Monday they all will be ready to give their best. The backfield showed a great improvement in the Electra game, and pierced the great defensive wall of the Tigers with apparent ease. Dempsey Moore and Ed Powell were the most consistant ground gainers. Moore, in fact, led the field on ground gaining.

The Lions will be weakened greatly by the loss of Robinson, captain and center, and with this youngster out of the game the club will have a hard time putting out a strong line. Robinson and Norwood have for some time been the backbone of the Lion forward wall.

The Coyotes came out of the Electra game with four men somewhat on the limp, but none of the injuries were serious. The club will have to watch the Vernon backfield with care, but if they can hold the onslaught of the Tiger back so they should me able to halt Vernon.

Tank Horton and Bill "Flip" will be on ends, and this pair have been playing a great brand of football all year. Both showing well on snaring passes and breaking up their opponents wing plays. Horton will be depended upon for the Coyote punting with Hunky Ray helping.

At tackles, McCallum has Swede Wainscott and Wilks Dobson. Both of these men have done some great work at these positions. They are both hard hitting men and have plenty of sand. Wainscott is the more finished football player with a bit more experience under his belt.

Gillum and Ray will hold down the guard positions and here are two more who have been giving their full share in all the games. Walter Penney will be at center. He is a very capable man for that position. Penne, is a hard hitter as well as a good passer.

Ed Powell, one of the best all-around quarters of this section, will be at his usual position. Powell is a cool headed player while under fire as well as a smart field general.

Coyal Francis will be at left half. Francis first loomed in the backfield with the Coyote Pups where his passing ability as well as his line plunging made him a star. Francis was the chief heaver of that well known passing team Montgomery at junior high last year.

Buck Steed, broken field runner deluxe, will be at the other half. Steed has a natural grudge against the Vernon club for a broken arm from last year, and can well be expected to give his best Monday. Steed is a man who is very hard to tackle, and often it requires more than one man to bring the "twister" to the ground.

Dempsey Moore will be in the fullback position. Moore was the big man in the Electra game, and expects to make the Lions sit up and take notice. Moore is not a man for the long sprints, but there are very few in this section who can beat him when yardage from five to one is needed for first downs and a touchdown.

Frita Taylor is one who may see action, and his placekicking for the point after the touchdown can usually be depended upon. Taylor also showed some ability in gaining ground during his short stay in the Electra setto. Taylor may get in a large part of the game. There are several other of the second stringers who may get some action.

Jewell Sisk, Zeke Taylor, Harley Herndon, Joe Bailey Bell, W. J. Howard, Raymond Mitchell, Roy McAnish and Lofton Edmondson probably will be used, also.

DARTMOUTH, PRINCETON WIN

Ed Hughes' Column

The Wills Johnson fiasco went through as scheduled and without any upset in the form predicted for it. Harry Wills settled the decrepit, ring-wrecked Floyd Johnson in a few punches. It was an abbreviated massacre, and never shaped up to be anything else.

Perhaps the most interesting thing connected with it is that the huge drill shed of the Fourth Regiment Armory was filled. Some thirteen thousand Newarkers paid fancy prices to see the slaughter. This despite the fact that they had been warned what was to happen. Now they are squawking shrilly about the miserable, abrupt entertainment they received.

The writer finds it difficult to shed a tear for the suckers' moans that drift over the Jersey meadows. They received due notice of the trimming in store for them, hence richly deserved what they got. The Broadway line, "never give a sucker an even break," is not without logic. The so-called promoters. "The Four Horsemen of the Applesauce," applied Broadway wisdom to Broad and Market streets, Newark, and found that it worked as serenely there as on Broadway. Thirteen thousand of them answered the sucker call of the Four Horsemen's bugle—all volunteered, too! It doesn't speak much for the perspicacity of the average Jersey fight fan.

As for the Jersey booking authorities, they should be sent to Siberia for permitting such a fiasco to take place.

"Suckers" Play

A "Sucker" is not responsible for anything he does. He permits bright-colored illusions in his mind on the strength of mad ravings of the nimble press agent. Boxing commissions are formed for the express purpose of protecting the dumb peasant from himself and from the unscrupulous promoters who attempt to state such hippodromes as the Wills-Johnson thing.

This time the Jersey promoters joined with the "promoters" and blackjacked the innocents. A cop, as it were, lighting a cigar while the hold-up relieves the yokel of his ticker.

All of which makes the writer think the more highly of New York's boxing solons. Far from permitting such a disgraceful business as Johnson against Wills, it would not even permit Tommy Gibbons to go against the Black Panther—in which it was right.

Algebraically speaking, the Jersey boxing authorities are to the New York solons as Johnson is to Tommy Gibbons, which isn't much.

Another Affair

Also, the more I see of boxing promotion in Newark (and I wasn't over there this time) the more highly I regard Richard as a promoter. One scribe, commenting on the crowd, wrote that it reminded him of the Fulton-Willis assemblage in that same armory. If so, I'm the more glad I wasn't on hand. Ye scribe was present on the evening that "Flopper Fred was bumped the canvas, and he'll never forget it.

As a piece of disorder—well, it was simply Homeric, and no mistake. The bout was run by Newarkers for the now defunct International Sporting Club of New York. When the members of the latter organization arrived, resplendent in evening dress, they discovered that their reserved, high-priced seats had vanished into thin air. At least that was the impression I got watching them peer skyward for some sign of a squatting place.

As a matter of plain fact, however, the aforementioned chairs were in the armory, but scattered in every conceivable section of the drill shed. I watched the thieves at work. Their technique was surely a revelation. Whole bands of gorillas simply walked up to the International section and ripped the attached seats, one from another. This done, they blithely folded the chairs under their arms and made off with them to vantage spots near the ringside.

The ushers—most of them—were army lads. They hadn't the least concern for the complaints of the indignant ticket-holders. I distinctly remember one of the latter stating his case to one of the uniformed cooties. The latter listened in a bored sort of way, shrugged his shoulders and then dismissed the case with this astounding proposal:

Quite a difference from the perfect order that Tex Rickard and his excellent band of ushers effect at all New York boxing exhibitions!

A night hard to forget—and never to be forgiven!

Gridiron biological note.—Once there was a big, husky guard who for a whole year never once forgot to lock legs with the centre. In his sophomore year he found out how to pick off a defensive back. He learned how to diagnose a play the following year.

They played him at tackle in the last game of his last season at college. The difficulties of the job kept him in a blue funk. Half of the time he did not know which side had possession of the ball. Once he got balled up on a short end run from a punt formation and spilled his own ball carrier.

He is out of employment at present and would like to hook up with some fast semi-pro team as a guard for Sunday game.

GRID TITLE OF U. S. CAPTURED BY DARTMOUTH

Spikes Claim to Championship by Trimming Chicago

Oberland's Great Passing Attack Is Puzzle To Maroons

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Dartmouth, undefeated and untied, spiked its claim to America's football championship by vanquishing Chicago, 33 to 7, before a capacity crowd of 35,000 on Stagg Field today. The game was the final contest on Dartmouth's schedule.

The big green eleven crashed over with five touchdowns, Lane scoring three of them. Dartmouth's scoring was chiefly the work of "Swede" Oberlander, whose bewildering forward passes kept the Maroons dizzy. It was the worst defeat a Chicago team has received in a score of years.

Chicago's lone marker was scored in the third period, Kernwein carrying the ball.

The big Green eleven, victors over Brown, Cornell and Harvard in its major eastern contests, finished its season with today's game with a record of being untie daud undefeated.

Dartmouth virtually ran away with the game, continuing its bewildering forward pass attack from start to finish and scoring four of its five touchdowns with aerial tosses hurled by "Swede" Oberlander, the "Red Grange" of the east.

The Maroons fought hard, crashing over with their lone touchdown by line smashes in the third period, but their offensive efforts in the other three periods were futile. Two of Chicago's stars, McCarty and Kernwein, were forced to quit because of injuries. Chicago went down trying to combat the greatest forward passing attack ever witnessed on Stagg field.

Opening up with a deceptive forward passing offensive in the first few minutes of play, the Dartmouth team filled the air with long passes until the Maroons became dizzy looking at them. The eastern invaders out-tricked the Maroons, catching them off balance by interspercing their their passes with swift thrusts at the line and then mixing up a few end runs in between passes and line smashes.

In almost every play Oberlander, Dartmouth's candidate for all American honors. This Scandanavian displayed some of the greatest field running, punting and forward passing the middlewest has ever seen. No team in the east has ben able to stop him and Chicago did not even slow him down.

Colgate Keeps Up March of Victory

SYRACUSE N. Y., Nov. 14.—(AP)—The dogging steps of Colgate continued their ceaseless tread toward the pinnacle of eastern football today when the Maroon overwhelmed its traditional rival, Syracuse, 19 to 6, on a gridiron of mud and water. Under the driving leadership of its captain, Eddy Tyran, the Maroon not only eliminated Syracuse from the ranks of the undefeated, but violated the hitherto uncrossed Orange goal line three times. Thirty thousand persons saw the contest. With only a fair fighting team behind him Tyron wallowed fast and far in the mud and demoralized the Orange defense with his broken field maneuvering.

Two Orange fumbles anda blocked kick gave Colgate its three touchdowns while Syracuse scored as the indirect result of a poor kick by Tyron late in the final quarter.

Columbia Upsets Dope and the Army

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—An Army Mule which tramped over Notre Dame and stubbornly battled Yale, tripped at the Polo Grounds today and enabled Columbia to score its first notable gridiron triumph against a leading eastern foe since 1905. The final score, 21 to 7, ranks as one of the year's outstanding upsets. The attendance was 45,000.

The Army of today was not the Army that smothered Rockne's team, however. Except for a few minutes in the final quarter Wilson, Hewitt and Harding, three regular backs, remained in the sidelines to nurse injuries. The fleet footed Trapnell, only member of the first backfield able to play throughout, reeled off spectacular runs repeatedly, but he was unable single handed to balance a newly found Columbia offensive which sprang into being today when rare opportunities developed.

Rolla Mines Lose To Washington, 7-0

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A fighting Washington university football team met and defeated the Rolla Miners today at Francis field, 7 to 0. The Pikers won their first game of the season in turning back a team that was the general favorites to wallop them.

Washington put forth a punch in the pinches and led by Bob Mahan, fleet footed half back, was able to out score the Miners.

FIRE LOSS $589,135

AUSTIN, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Fire loss in Texas during October was $589,135, reports made to J. J. Timmins, state fire marshal, by city marshals, show. oss from unknown causes totalled $212,572, while the largest loss from a known cause, use of matches in smoking, was $68,369.

Sports Done Brown

Williams, with the Jackson club of the Cotton States league last season, turned in the winning average among the huriers of that organization. He won 11 games and lost but 4. He pitched 160 innings, issued 38 passes, fanned 77 men and hit nine batters.

Nap oughtta know a left-hander when he see one. The veteran Brooklyn idol was one of the greatest left-handers the game has known. I saw Williams last spring when he was showing his stuff to the Dodgers. "I don't know whether I'll make good or not," said Williams. "What I do know about pitching I learned from Nap Rucker, though."

Robby's pitching staff is in a rather uncertain state as it stood at the close of the 1925 campaign. So Williams may get a chance to shine next season if he shows that the year in the minors has done him considerable good.

Washington and Pittsburgh fans, both confident that their teams will repeat, are already ordering tickets for the 1926 world's series. And they are asking seats on the upper deck, so they won't get splashed by the mud from the pitcher's box.

Eastern football critics who saw Red Grange make Pennsylvania look absurd are considering the possibility of changing the football rules to bar any player who can't be tackled because you can't get near enough to him.

Joe McCarthy, new leader of the Chicago Cubs, must have had his mind on the new job when he led his Louisville team against the San Francisco Seals in the little world's series. The Colonels got demoted by the "Seals."

Jack Monroe, colored fighter, has been suspended indefinitely by the California state boxing commission because of unsporisman-like conduct in a recent bout with Jimmy Byrus. Jack told Jimmy to count the house and then hit him in the interim.

"Baker and Smithy to Meet," says New York headline. Perhaps the comparative deadliness of hot biscuits and anvils will now be settled.

And Augie Gets Wisenheimer Told

Once in a while the razzing of the fans gets on the umpire's nerves. Augie Moran, who was one of the leading arbiters in the Three-I league this season, will be remembered by old-timers as one of the officials of the National league during the days that "Iron Man" McGinnity was in his prime. Naturally, he doesn't take kindly to the jeers of a minor league crowd. He found the bugs particularly hard to please in Quincy, where things were going badly for the club.

During this particular series, he had been especially irritated by a boisterous fan who occupied a box right behind the plate and who persisted in proclaiming to the world that he could see them better than Augie could. In the game in question, the opposition had been slamming Manager Hunter's hurlers high, wide and frequent. After several switches had been made, a new hurler strode to the mound. In the excitement nobody notified Moran so that he could announce the newcomer.

Augie did not need a second opportunity. "You ought to know," he shouted back, "you've been umpiring out here for a week."

INDIANS PLAY CORDELL NEXT

Cordell defeated the Cameron Aggies, 13 to 0, whereas the Tribe played Cameron to a 6-6 tie game early in the season.

Olney Murders Bellevue, 52-0

OLNEY, Nov. 14.—The Olney Hillbillies swamped the Bellevue club by the score of 52 to 3. The Hillbillies went wild right at the start and scored a touchdown in the first minute of play. The Bellevue score came in the final period after taking a brace and walking down the field to the 15-yard line and then kicked a field goal.

Olney used but five first string men in the game. Rufell, of Olney, was the outstanding ground gainer with several long off-tackle runs. Watkins, Gregg, Enloe and Dunagan were other Olney players who played well.

Olney will meet Jacksboro here Friday, and Archer City will play here Thanksgiving.

Score by quarters:

Missouri Tigers Defeat Oklahoma

ROLLINS FIELD, COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Missouri Tigers, champions of the Missouri valley, won the home coming gridiron classic from University of Oklahoma here today, 16 to 14.

Elimination of the Sooners leaves only one more obstacle in the Tigers' drive for the second consecutive valley championship—the Missouri-Kansas game at Lawrence next Saturday. The game was the last gridiron contest the Tigers play on their home field this season. It also rang down the curtain on historic Rollins field. Next year Missouri's new memorial stadium will be open for play. A crowd of about 10,000 persons witnessed the battle. The weather was cold and during the last half a chilling rain and muddy fiel made playing conditions miserable.

Lindenmeyer's punting was a feature of the game.

YALE, FAVORED TO WIN, LOSES TO PRINCETON

Tigers Furnish One Of Greatest Upsets of The Season

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Princeton furnished one of the biggest upsets in this season of upsets today, by taking the measure of the Yale Bull Dog in the presence of a crowd of 78,000 by the score of 25 to 12. Yale was a heavy favorite to win.

The game was replete with thrills and was featured by sensational runs. Slagle right halfback, was the hero for the Orange and Black, making many long runs, one of them a dash of 82 yards for a touchdown. Allan of Yale also ran through the whole Tiger eleven for a thrilling touchdown.

Notre Dame Beats Carnegie Tech 26-0

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Weakening rapidly after the first quarter under the assault of Rockne's men, Carnegie Tech fell before Notre Dame today, 26 to 0, at the latter's home coming celebration.

The Kilts never threatened offensively and Rockne used substitutes in most of the positions throughout the game.

It remained, however, for Flanagan, Riley and Enright to do the Notre Dame scoring after the reserves had worn down the Pennsylvanias' line Entering the second quarter Flanagan wove his way peated gains despite a centering of the Tech defense upon him which left him without interference.

Fumbles marred the contest and Notre Dame lost the ball thrice within Tech's 15-yard zone.

AUSTIN, Nov. 14.—Bids for construction of the new Y. W. C. A. building and dormitory and remodeling of the present building will be opened at a meeting of the building committee Tuesday afternoon, according to Giesecke and Harris, local architects.

VERNON STARS IN BAD SHAPE FOR CONTEST

Lion Followers to Invade Wichita Falls in Heavy Numbers

VERNON, Nov. 14.—Football interest is higher here than at any time this season as the date draws near for the Wichita Falls-Vernon game at Wichita Falls Monday for the championship of the eastern end of district one. A gigantic rally was staged in the district court room of the local court house tonight, and the largest crowd of the year, if not in the history of Vernon, attended. Arrangements have been made to run a special train to Wichita Falls Monday in order that all rooters may have a way to attend the game.

Fate has apparently decreed that the Lions shall not play the Coyotes with their squad intact. Ryan, quarter and outstanding field general for the local squad, has not been out for practice during the last two sessions, and Hollar, Coach Baggett's best bet as a pass receiver, is nursing a swollen ankle that will likely keep him out of the game Monday. Though coaches still hope to use both the injured men, it is certain that neither will display their usual form. Baggett has been working Newth constantly at Hollar's position at left end, and the substitute player probably will start the game.

Parker and Lewis Show Well.

Parker and Lewis are both being driven at top speed at center in an effort to adequately fill the place left vacant by ex-Captain Robinson, who was recently ruled ineligible by the executive committee of the Interscholastic League. Both Parker and Lewis are showing up well in the practice sessions, but it remains to be seen how the two will work under fire, as neither has played any to speak of in games this year.

With Ryan on the side lines, Coach Baggett is working Luttrell at quarter. This seems to be the Lion mentor's only hope for a substitute quarter since the league ruled Robinson ineligible. No other man on the squad appears to know the signals well enough to call them, much less fill a field general's position. It is very much a matter of conjecture as to what will happen should Luttrell be injured during the game.

Rest of Squad O. K.

With exception of the above mentioned injuries, the Lions are in good condition. The men are displaying a fighting spirit that has not been equalled at aany time this year, and it is clearly apparent that they will enter Monday's game determined to repeat their performance during the early part of the season and win the championship of this end of the league district.

Baggett has been drilling his men this week until it was so dark they could hardly distinguish each other. Off tackle plays have still featured the practice sessions, and it appears that Baggett believes his line can do what Electra's forward wall failed to do—break through the Coyote defense.

If Ryan is able to start the game, the Lions will probably have a much more versatile attack than they will with Luttrell at the quarter position. With Ryan out, the aerialsattack will be practically eliminated.

Jim Brown Back After Winning Out In Two of Bouts

Jim Brown, the Chicago Greek grappler who although twice defeated here by Matty Matsuda won himself a world of friends, returned to Wichita Falls Saturday, after a successful tour through Oklahoma and Kansas.

Jim engaged in three matches and won 'em all. He pinned Angelo Palusa, the Italian, at Kansas City, beat Joe Barbola in Wichita, Kan., and downed Fritz Anderson in straight falls in Oklahoma City. The Anderson match was the toughest of the three, said Brown.

Jim will be managed by Blondy Cross. Matches are planned inside of the next few days in various north Texas and southern Oklahoma cities. It is not likely, however, Brown will be booked in Wichita Falls any time soon because Alec Ross, Wichita Falls wrestling association matchmaker, has his cards filled up for the next several weeks to come.

SANTONE INVITES EDITORS.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 14.—Members of the Texas editorial association, veterans of 25 or more years in newspaper work, will be invited to hold their 1926 convention in San Antonio at the annual meeting of the body to be held in Brownsville, Dec. 2, 3 and 4.

T.C.U. DEFEATS ARKANSAS BY MARGIN OF 3

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 14.—(AP)—T. C. U. defeated Akansas university in its final conference game of the season Saturday. The score was 3 to 0. Johnny Washmon, center, whose toe kicked T. C. U. to a 3-0 victory over Texas A. & M. last week, repeated his performance to beat the Porkers.

The defeat was a hard one for the Crimson Razorbacks to take. Nearly every break of the game fell against them. But it would have been a harder game for the Frogs to lose. The winners outplayed the visitors at practically all stages, but it took an offside in the Arkansas line to keep the score from being different. Had there been no offside the big break of the game would have fallen against the Frogs and they might have suffered a heart breaking defeat.

In the third quarter when T. C. U. had the ball inside the Arkansas territory it was fourth down and about a yard to go to make it first down. Playing safe Herman Clark dropped back to punt.

The lineup:

Arkansas	Position	T. C. U
Rose	Left Tackle	Brewster
Scott (C)	Left Guard	Levy
Boosman	Center	Washmon
McGill	Right Guard	Matthews
Japp	Right Tackle	Scarborough
Parker	Right End	Acker
Dhonau	Quarterback	Clark (C)
Shipment	Left Half	Carson
Cole	Right Half	Taylor
Smith	Fullback	Frazee

Score by periods:

T. C. U.	0	0	0	3	—3

Blazer Case Revives Old Query; "Should Insane Be Let To Live?"

Age Old Controversy Was Renewed in Blazer Trial

Central Press Photos

LITTLETON, Col., Nov. 14—(AP)—One of the strangest murder trials in the history of American criminal jurisprudence—involving the question of an imbecile's right to live—was enacted in Littleton's plainly appointed court room.

The body of Hazel Ingrit Blazer, 4-year-old daughter of Dr. Harold E. Blazer, retired country physician, was found in the Blazer home on the evening of February 24, when Blazer's married daughter, Mrs. Frances Bishop, and her husband returned from Denver.

The elderly physician in an apparent stupor was on a bed in the same room with the body of his daughter—"child-woman"—hopelessly imbecile and a cripple from childhood. Later that night he attempted suicide by slashing his throat with a razor. The self inflicted wound, although serious, did not prove fatal and he was released from the hospital after several weeks.

The death of the girl was not made public until two days later when Coroner J. J. Mackin was notified by Dr. H. H. Aldredge of Englewood, who first was called to attend Blazer.

Friends Financed Defense.

A coroner's jury held Dr. Brazer responsible for his daughter's death and he was held in jail nearly two months before his release on $5,000 bail furnished by friends from his old home, Montevista, Colo.

These same friends raised a defense fund.

When the case came to trial on November 4 the little court room became the center of a nation-wide interest aroused by the announcement of defense counsel that they would plead not only insanity for their client but would hold that taking the life of a hopeless invalid and imbecile was justified. They referred to the girl as the "human husk" and the "thing that had no soul."

Three days were consumed in selecting a jury.

The state rested less than two days later after calling but six witnesses including Roy Bishop, son-in-law of the defendant. It sought to prove that Blazer was not insane and that he only assigned insanity as he made two "suicide attempts in an effort to cover up his deed."

Prosecuting Attorney Joel E. Stone announced that the state would not ask the death penalty.

Daughter Lauds Him.

Mrs. Bishop came to her father's defense, testifying he always treated her helpless sister with the "utmost kindness." Her recital of Hazel's physical and mental condition and of her father's devotion to his first born brought tears to the eyes of the jury and spectators alike.

The defendant on the stand for nearly an entire day declared he became subjected to "spells" that made him uncertain of his conclusions and caused his retirement as a practicing doctor for fear he "would prescribe incorrectly" for some of his patients. Confronted with several statements he made apparently in conflict with those made on the witness stand Blazier declared he "did not remember" and that could not "differentiate between what I knew and what had been told me." Contrary to announced defense pleas, he testified to his belief in immortality and stressed that he "never thought of slaying his daughter," and that "if he made the statement that he was satisfied with her fate," he did not know what he was saying.

The defense closed its testimony with the presentation of three alienists who declared they firmly believed Dr. Blazer was "unable to distinguish between right and wrong at the time of the homicide."

Dr. Blazer is 61 years old. He was born near Steubenville, Ohio and practiced medicine in Ohio for many years before coming west in 1900. He is a graduate of Wooster college.

Trial Instructive.

The educational value of the Blazer trial will be of "immense important" in the opinion of Judge Samuel Johnson.

Through the newspaper phases of human life problems were brought to millions of readers and undoubtedly the trial will be extremely instructive.

"The idea of the survival of the fittest of the human race developed during the trial of this aged physician accused of slaying his malformed and imbecile child has raised a question of paramount interest to the medical and legal professions. This phase probably will be incorporated into professional discussions and I would not be surprised to see the Blazer trial developments become a subject of research and study.

"But, although Dr. Blazer has been cleared of the murder accusation, I believe that the trial will impress upon the public that the taking of human life should not be justified under even extraordinary conditions, like this case. The trial brought out with sufficient impression the crime of taking life.

Rid World of Insane.

"The trial raised the question of the validity of ridding the world of its population of imbeciles and insane by painless death—this would be for the betterment of the physical side of the human race, but I seriously believe it would be detrimental to the betterment of mankind. The destruction of the virtues of love, mercy and kindness by such a practice would be extremely harmful."

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Unexpectedly figures on domestic mill consumption for October and relatively steady cables from Liverpool appeared responsible for the advance of 49 points, but more southern selling and realizing developed at this figure and that delivery closed at 20.00. The general market closed easy, although final quotations showed net gains of 12 to 28 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 7 to 26 points in response relatively steady Liverpool cables. The showing there evidently led to covering by local traders who had yesterday on the talk of short time in Lancashire. The support was evidently influenced by the report of the census bureau placing the consumption of cotton in this country for October at 543,679 bales, compared with 483,266 bales for September and 534,233 last year.

The increase over th eSeptember figures surprised local traders who had felt that a continuance of southern mill curtainment might have held down the regulations and led to predictions that with southern mill operations increasng the November report might make a still more favorable showing. December sold up to 20.85 and March to 20.37 net advances of 45 to 50 points on the active months. The early trade buying here was accompanied by reports of a firmer basis in the south last night. Offerings showed a tendency to increase as prices approached the 20.25 cent level for January contracts, however, and last prices showed reactions of about 20 to 23 points from the best.

Private cables attributed the relatively steady ruling of Liverpool to trade calling and continental buying.

The amount of cotton on ship board awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 213,000 bales, against 232,000 last year.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 14.—(AF)—The cottaon market was a very active affair for a short Saturday session and the price trend was upward practically throughout the session except for the final minutes of trading when quite a reaction resulted from profit taking.

At the start Liverpool was much better than due and the census bureau report on domestic consumption during October was issued showing that the total had reached 543,679 bales of lint cotton which was very much larger than looked for. First trades consequently showed gains of 19 to 22 points and right after the call December traded up to 20.20, January to 20.09 and March to 19.73 or 37 to 47 points above the previous close. Although there were several minor reactions during the session on profit taking by satisfied longs, the market in each case promptly rallied and in the late trading new highs were made with December at 20.23, 50 points above the previous close. As much as 22 points o fthis gain was lost right at the end on realising. The consumption listers during October totalled 73,750 bales, the largest total on record for a single month.

LIVESTOCK REVIEW.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 14.—Five hundred head of cattle and 300 head of calves made up the total of arrivals in the cattle division, Saturday. The small number of supplies made anything other than a nominal trad eont of the question.

No beef cattle were present in carlots, odd head moved at $4—light grassers.

The nominal trade in she stock put butcher cows over at a $3 to $4.50 spread, canners were going at $2.25 and cutters taking a range of $2.50 to $3.75. Heifer prices were widely spara—$2.50 to $7.00 and at the supply was only a mere handful. Bulls were unchanged from the decline of the week at $2.50 to $3.25 and the best of the few calves notched $5.50, only three full cars showing.

Again the swine supply for the market was confined to one car and a piece, the carload going to a Dallas packer at $12 and the rest of the arrivals taking $11.50 to $11.80. Pigs and packing sows were quotable as steady. Nothing arrived in the sheep division, but six decks of various grades of slaughter sheep and lambs selling late on Friday formed a market 15 to 50c higher—wethers up to $6.25 and lambs taking $14.

K. C. LIVESTOCK.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 14.—Cattle, 2,000; calves 300; bulk prices for week: short fed steers $8.25@10.00; grassers $6.50@7.50; butcher cows $4.00@6.00; heifers $5.00@5.85; canners and cutters $3.25@3.75; veals $6.00@11.50; stockers and feeders $5.75@8.25.

Hogs, 4,000; active; bulk of sales $11.40@11.65; packing sows $10.50@10.75.

Sheep 1,000; for week: fed western lambs $15.40; natives $14.75@15.35; yearling wethers $12.00@12.50; ewes $7.25@7.85; feeding lambs $14.25@14.50.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Renewal of selling presure against the industrials, particularly the motors, halted the upward movement of prices in today's stock market but not until a score of rail issues had mounted to their highest prices in a year or longer. Trading was on an enormous scale, the day's sales of 1,506,300 shares being the largest of any half holiday session in the year.

Rails were under heavy accumulation from the start with buying influenced by rumors of forthcoming increases in dividends on New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and some of the western carriers. "Nickel Plate" jumped six points to a new top at 157 in expectation of early approval of the Van Sweringen merger by the interstate commerce commission.

New peak prices in the rail group also were established by Baltimore and Ohio common and preferred, Chesapeake and Ohio common and preferred, Pere Marquette Erie common, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, New York Central, Norfolk and Western, Leigh Valley, New Haven, Southern Railway, Wheeling and Lake Erie common and preferred, Seaboard Air Line, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific and Great Northern preferred. The early gains in these issues ranged from 1 to 5 points, but many of them were substantially reduced in the late wave of selling.

Motors were heavily liquidated on the theory that with the recent declaration of the $5 extra cash dividend on General Motors all the "good news" in sight had been discounted by the rise. Chrysler broke over 10 points to 208 and then rallied to 212¾; Hudson fell over 7 points to 109 and then rallied a point and General Motors, Studebaker, Chandler, Jordan, Hupp, Paige-Detroit, Pierce Arrow, Mack Trucks and White Motors showed recessions of one to three points.

United States Steel common was bid up to within a fraction of the year's high at 138¾, but a flood of offerings appeared around that figure and carried the quotations down to 134½. It subsequently rallied to 136¼ for a net loss of 1¾ on the day. American Can showed a net decline of over two points at 253¾ and Baldwin dropped 1¾ to 127¼ after having sold as high as 130¾. General Electric broke nearly 10 points to 320 and then rallied to 323. United Cigar Stores and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe also reacted sharply.

Oils developed a temporary burst of strength. Under the leadership of Marland and Mid-Continent, which were elevated to new 1925 higher levels, but they later reacted with the rest of the list. Recent buying of these issues had been predicted on reports of an early increase in eastern crude prices.

Independent strength also was shown by Foundation company, Liggett and Myers, American LaFrance Fire Engine and American Safety Razor, all of which eclipsed their previous maximum quotations.

Foreign exchanges moved within rather narrow and irregular limits with the principal continental rates showing an easier tone.

Market Gossip

R. E. Flowerree and Co., brokers, Staley Bldg., today received the following market comment from Fenner and Beane from New York, New Orleans and Chicago:

COTTON.

Unexpected large consumption figures together with the prediction of bad weather in the cotton belt, caused buying at the opening today and prices rose about $2.50 per bale at one time.

Profit taking in last half hour wiped out part of the advance, but the net gain for the day was about $1.50.

The census bureau showed consumption for October was larger than last year. This was considerable showing in view of the fact that many mills in the Carolinas were on short time a large part of the month due to the lack of power.

On top of this was the forecast of bad weather, over Sunday, probability of further damage to the crop and a big spot demand.

Most of the news coming into the market is of a constructive character while the weather forecast is unfavorable. The combination is proving helpful to the buying side.

STOCKS.

Stocks mostly continued active with Motors again to the fore.

There seemed to be demand for specialties also, and many of them regained their loss of last Tuesday, but some profit taking near the close, wiped out most of today's advance.

We believe rails, oils and stocks which have not yet received attention will be the next groups for the upward move.

GRAINS.

Wheat: Continued very strong, and established new highs for the movement in all position, and new season high on new style December and May and July

Foreign cables were good, and gave wheat its initial advance, while extremely heavy buying kept the ball rolling.

The close was near the top of the day.

We continue to advise purchase of wheat on all breaks of consequence.

Corn and oats were strong and higher in sympathy with wheat, while rye showed very little activity.

Produce

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 14.—With Saturday representing the end of the freighting period for turkey movement to eastern markets and no particular desire to carry over birds for the week-end, activity at Texas points today was but moderate, but at fully steady prices. Receipts everywhere were only fair and the tendency to hold back stock for the Christmas deal was distinctly apparent, considerable encouragement in this regard proceeding from the buyers themselves who can operate more safely in the latter markets and who also find it hard to cut back to a number 2 grade young turkeys which with a few days more of range would more than easily make the grade of a number 1.

The inquiry fro mthe outside for carlots of dressed stock is reported less active, but representatives of several firms are making their headquarters in the state this year and buying on personal inspection.

There is also quite a bit of dickering between dressers themselves on cars of dressed turkeys around and slightly under the 40 cent mark, bu ttrading is slow with operators finding it hard to get together on an understanding of quality.

San Antonio—Paying mostly 27 cents liveweight for No. 1 turkeys, 18 cents for No. 2's and 24@25 cents for old toms. Receipts continue light. Demand good.

Fort Worth and North Texas markets—Turkey situation remains about steady at all points in this section. No. 1's bringing farmers mostly 27 cents liveweight; No. 2's 15@17 cents, old toms 24@25c. Receipts only moderate. Activity limited to needs of buyers for finishing cars.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 14.—Poultry and eggs are about steady at Texas points this morning. Turkeys are holding a straight 27c pound liveweight for No. 1 quality, with demand for the holiday trade only moderate, as today is the last freighting day for east and there appears no desire to load up for the week-end.

San Antonio: Hens weak 12@15c; supplies too liberal; fryers small 25c; large 18c up; roosters 10@12c; turkeys 27@27c.

Eggs, mostly $11 per case of 30 dozen.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Black rust in Argentina together with reduced estimates of exportable surplus of wheat looked for both there and in Australia gave a decided new upward send-off to the wheat market here today. Closing prices on wheat were firm at 1¾ to 3 cnet gain. December $1.56¾ to $1.56¾ and May $1.50¼ to $1.50¾ with corn ¼ to ¾c higher, oats unchanged to ¼ up and provisions unchanged to 25 cents advance.

Enlarged trading as wel as higher prices accompanied the news indicative of curtailed supplies of wheat from the southern hemisphere. It had of late been a rather general belief that crop losses in Australia would be more than made up by an increased yield in Argentina. Today's advices, however implied that the total exportable surplus in Australia and Argentina together would show a reduction of 17,000,000 bushels compared with last year. Smallness of world shipments for the week tended further to lift values, one authority asserting that the amount of wheat on ocean passage would show a fresh falling off of 3,760,000 bushels.

The reports of black rust in Argentina came from Santa Fe and Cordova provinces, territory from which of late there has been complaint that the yield was turning out to be of les volume than expected. Under these circumstances May delivery here led the price advance today whereas heretofore the December delivery has displayed the greater strength. One reason for the comparatively backwardness of December today was word that 100,000 bushels of wheat had been profitably bought for shipment from Minneapolis to Chicago and that other like transactions were probable.

Corn shot oats sympathized with wheat strength. Besides, general rain or snow in the corn belt was predicted.

Provisions were firmer, influenced by the advance of grain and of hogs.

Are "Badly Prepared" And "Rusty" on Work, Society Says

DALLAS, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A general spirit of dissatisfaction with the business administration graduates of the University of Texas and others for the work of public accountants was expcessed in the business session of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

The graduates were designated as "badly prepared," "rusty," and "immature," by the members of the society following a report of Chairman Frank Rodgers o San Antonio for the education committee, later adopted by the assembly.

The actual instruction of the University was not questioned, but it was declared that often the students of business administration had taken the auditing courses practically for only two years, and rarely ever in their final year. Also, many never take cost accountancy at all, it was declared.

ATLANTIC

survey, showed salt water in sand at 1,186-89 feet. The result of the well was surprise inasmuch as the sand had been encountered "high" and a well was expected.

Harmel and N. W. Harmel.

South of the Harmel pool in the northwest corner of block 1597, T. E. & L. Co. survey, W. J. Reene et al., have a sand and are testing at a depth of 1,340 feet. The sand is reported to show some oil although rather low. A well would add a nice stretch to that general area.

The second location south of the old Muse et al., hole on the Brazina. Trio Oil company's two. 5, Brom, has topped the sand at 1,384 feet, the same depth as in the No. 1, and is setting casing to test. This well is just north of the big well of two weeks ago. No. 6 is down below 1,000 feet.

Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 5, Cowden-Portwood, a west offset to No. 1, which was a west offset to the Jones et al., discovery on the Darnik, was reported fishing at the last of the week after drilling the plug at 1,375 feet. No. 3, north of the No. 1, has set and cemented casing above the sand at about the same depth.

South of Megargel.

South of Megargel Simms Oil company provided the feature of the week with its No. 1, Richardson, located in the northeast corner of the north portion of its lease in 2425, offsetting the Sun company's No. 3, to the south. The well had originally set upon an upper sand at about 1,420 feet. Salt water there. It tested next dry at 1,451 feet, but was sent lower and has apparently made a fifty barrel well or thereabouts in sand at 1,458-9 feet. There is no water although the top of the sand is 15 feet lower than the bottom of Sun company holes to the north which are showing water with the oil. Gulf has offset the well to the east.

On the northwest edge of the field 300 feet west of the discovery well Sun Oil company has set and cemented casing at a depth of 1,432 feet in their No. 4, Richardson. Offsetting this well to the north Litchfield et al., are down 1,275 feet and drilling on their No. 1, Young. East of Pandem's first well their No. 2 is on sand and setting and cementing at a depth of 1,438 feet. North of the Pandem-Simms No. 1, Pandem and Simms have set and cemented casing at a depth of 1,406 feet on one of the upper so far non-productive strata in their No. 2, Cockrell. To the north of this well the railroad interests under the name Trinity Drilling company, have a derrick and are rigging up for their No. 1, Cockrell. Both Pandem-Simms and Gulf are drilling wells other than those mentioned here but they will not be down before the end of the week.

But with the first of the week completions should bring the total number of producers in the district to twelve.

Oldham Area.

In the Oldham area southeast of the Comac pool, Texhoma, by virtue of its $100,000 deal with Anderson-Prichard last week, formerly half owner of the discovery and its 280-acre tract, are now sole owners of that property. The well itself is reported holding up to about 70 barrels. Four others are drilling but none are down. To the west, Petroleum Producers has a rig going on the Wolfe, to the east, Texhoma has one going on the Abercrombie, to the southeast Texhoma has one going on the Oldham and Consolidated Oil company has a running rig offsetting this on its Oldham ten acres.

North of the Major pool, Major Oil company's offset its old No. 11, Turbeville, with No. 1 on acreage retained following the sale of E. L. Smith Oil company, and has a 35-barrel well below 1,100 feet. No. 2 is a rig just ot the east.

North Archer.

North of Archer City, the Caldwell well went on the pump for 180 barrels in the first 24 hours. Status of the Caldwell No. 2, Wilson and the Simmonds northwest offset to the discovery well is not known. To the southeast of the well, Burns was last reported at about 1,300 feet and looking for the sand in No. 1, Wisdom. Maer and Staniforth were reported rigging up rotary on their No. 1, Young and Langford in the northeast corner of their 60 acres on the Young and Langfor dtract southwest of the well.

Further to the north some three or four wells are drilling in the Barkley and Meadows area, but this section is comparatively quiet when its teeming activity of four weeks ago is taken into consideration. Interest here is centered almost wholly on the outcome of the Kentucky Oil corporation's No. 1, Annie P. Jackson, in the southwest corner of the school house lot, Aldridge survey. This well, one of the most interesting wildcats in the district, located as it is north of Chalk Hill and east Barkley-Meadows, was reported Thursday night down 1,389 feet and drilling. The sand should have come within the next fifty or seventy-five feet.

Wichtex-Dixie Area.

Wichtex-Dixie handed the area bearing their name a powerful blow at the beginning of the week when they failed to make a well out of their No. 2, Jackson, located in the northeast corner of lot 63, of the Aldridge survey, southwest of their single producer. The hole was abandoned at 1,590 feet definitely cutting off any expanse of the productive area to the southwest. There is left but one way for the pool if such there is there to run, that southeast and northwest. A well by Grisham in the northwest corner of the east half of lot 65 of the survey, will tell the tale here. This test, southeast of the producer, has spudded and is drilling.

Gulf's No. 1, Jackson, a north offset to the Wichtex-Dixie dry hole, was reported Friday down 1,375 feet and drilling. The well itself is holding a steady at about eight barrels of oil and plenty of water.

Elsewhere on the Annie P. Jackson land, Aldridge survey, in lot 37, Muse and Robertson have abandoned their wildcat at a depth of about 1,000 feet.

East Archer County.

Superior Oil Producing company suffered its fourth east Archer county disappointment when its No. 3, Kinder (drilled jointly with T. J. File) failed to make a well in sand at 1,291-94 feet and was abandoned at a depth of 1,325 feet. The well was located 300 feet north of the No. 1 drilled about a year ago. It was the third test drilled here, in lot 58, Clark and Plumb block 5, and the fourth in east Archer county.

In western Clay county Murchison and Fain are last reported drilling at about 1,500 feet in their No. 1, Halsell.

The week's dusters in Wichita and Clay county included also Trahan No. 1, Finley, Nails survey, southeast of Holliday, dry at 1,750 feet and O'Donohoe and Gates No. 1, Putnam, in the Netherly survey, between Holliday and Iowa Park, in southern Wichita county, dry and abandoned at 1,850 feet.

Miscellaneous Reports.

There is a small flurry over Hardeman county developments where Benedum-Tres interests have taken over the Sigler Oil company's old Wheat well about seven miles southwest of Quanah and have set and cemented casing at a depth of about 2,702 feet on a sand showing oil and gas. The well is the rankest of wildcats and any sort of a showing would be of the utmost importance to North Texas development.

Throckmorton nor Baylor showed nothing new. Montague county was quiet with a little excitement aroused over the latter part of the week completion across the river in Jefferson county, Oklahoma. Clay as usual was quiet.

Magnolia Petroleum company had a gas show at 5,285-5,335 feet in its No. 1, Cassidy Southwestern Commission company, near Chico, in Wise county. The well is one of the deepest holes in north Texas. It was last reported drilling at 5,340 feet, more than a mile deep.

HOSPITAL FOR CHILDRESS IS NOW PROPOSED

Move on Foot Due To Pressing Need For Institution

CHILDRESS, Nov. 14.—An effort is being made to get the citizens of Childress interested inthe construction of a city-county hospital. At the present time it is necessary to take the sick or injured at least 30 miles to the nearest hospital, or else by train south to Fort Worth or north to Amarillo. It is said that the Denver railroad would send its emergency cases he e if an adequate hospital was built.

HOME WRECKED WHEN FATHER GOES INSANE

Mother and Child Left Helpless But for Welfare Workers

This is story with a plot founded on pathos but which probably would have had an entirely different ending if Wichita Falls was not peopled with the type of citizens it has. The pathos is unavoidable. It came into being through the fault of no one; and perhaps for that very reason it is a little more poignant than usual.

It had its beginning several years ago when another one of those domestic barks was launched on life's seas. It was an average young couple; the romance grew and budded into courtship in an average way; the betrothal followed as a matter of course; there was a quiet wedding—all was well.

The baby came—and all was still well. That is, on the surface, but tragedy which is sometimes even more appalling than death was brewing underneath. No one suspected it; no one could have forestalled it had they suspected. It came swiftly, struck with appalling and numbing force, and when it had passed a happy and prospering little home was blighted, probably beyond all hope of recovery.

Father Loses Mind.

It was not a moral failure—just a mental one; a failure that saw the mind of a dutiful husband and conscientious father break and fade. Doctors and alienists made their examinations.

"It's gone," they said, "he must go to an asylum."

That was less than two months after the baby came and by the time the tiny mite had passed his two-month mark the man, a sobbing, pitiable figure, had been taken to Austin for treatment. He was a splendid physical speciman, handsome, erect, strong. But his mentality, once normal was gone—not entirely but enough to render him unfit for contact with society.

Behind him he left a demoralized household. A wife and a little boy faced the world alone. The woman, when she dried her tears and looked about found that the world is grim some times. She learned that it creates a balance of human emotions, sometimes, and turns happiness and comfort into sorrow and hardship all in one fell swoop.

Mother Perplexed.

Her plight might not have been so bad it it wasn't for the baby. She was young, able bodied and possessed of at least an elementary education. She had shifted for herself before and, all other things being equal, could have reverted to the routine of a former day. But a two months old baby was on her hands. It was a perplexing situation.

How it was solved is just a repetition of the story of many other young Wichita Falls mothers who have found themselves suddenly and unexpectedly face to face with the world in its most stark realism.

Somehow or other she got in touch with the Day Nursery. Her case was one that brought ready aid from these quarters—and thus began the life that has existed for her tiny boy up to the present day. He was just an infant when he came in, and now he is about ready for school. Every day between 7 in the morning and 5 in the evening he has been a charge of Mrs. H. E. Carrington, matron of the nursery home. He was grown as would any normal, healthy boy under normal condidtions. He is an established institution at the nursery and is one of the favorites.

Woman Succeeds.

In the meantime his mother, too, has succeeded. She found work in a local business institution and not only held her job but forged ahead until now she holds a minor executive position. Free from worry over her youngster she has worked industriously and conscientiously. Each morning she takes him to the nursery home; each afternoon she returns to claim him. By stint of careful management she has managed to retain the little home that not so many years ago was the castle of a king built for his queen. In it, perhaps, memories she cherished and dreams she dreamed when days were happier are coming to a sort of fruition. It's a home, anyhow, where at night she and the boy may find shelter and protection.

That is what the Day nursery has done and is doing for one deserving mother in Wichita Falls. Who will question but that she was entitled to help. It was no fault of hers that she was thrown on her own resources. It was no fault of anyone's. She made a good choice when she chose the man who led her to the altar.

But fate in its grim dealings sketched a disordered mind and asylum bars into the pictures of her future. Overnight, almost, she became an object with just claims on a community's time and pocketbook. She was willing to do it if others would help her to help herself—and others did by providing her boy accommodations in the nursery.

Nursery Shares in "Chest."

On Nov. 23, 24 and 25, Wichita Falls will be asked for the fifth time to raise sufficient funds to maintain its welfare organizations. The goal this year is $55,000, a part of which will go to the maintenance of the nursery. It will help this particular mother through another year—and it will also help other mothers, some in worse plight, even, than she.

For women and babes such as these is the community chest designed and for them the city has in the past given generously. This year it ought to be the same story.

MUSICIANS CLUB TO MEET

Folk Music Is Topic of Elaborate Program on Thursday.

An elaborate program has been prepared by the Musician's club for their opening meeting to be held at the Wichita club Thursday afternoon beginning at 3:30 o'clock.

Folk music and its modern settings is the subject of the lesson which will be directed by Miss Emma Nala Voss.

Groups of school children will appear in German, Swedish and English folk dances, in costumes suggestive of the countries they represent.

Membership cards will be given at this meeting, and members, associate members and prospective associate members are invited to be present.

Dean Taylor Talks To University Club

T. U. Taylor, dean of the engineering department of the University of Texas, was the chief speaker at the University club at the weekly meeting at the Kemp hotel Saturday noon. Dean Taylor was presented by the president, Judge J. S. Dickey.

Miss Frances Carter, student of Junior college, asked the support of the University club for the football games which the Junior college Indians play during the season.

Miss Mamie Raybon, head of the history department of Junior college, announced the coming lecture of George Creel, the "Uncle Hanry" of Collier's magazine. Mr. Creel is brought here under the auspices of the City Teachers' association and will lecture at the Junior college auditorium. Tickets will be on sale for 50 cents each.

A sing-song was held by Alva Willgus. A trio composed of Judge B. D. Sartin, Mayor R. E. Shepherd and Mr. Willgus, sang "Wichita," and the song was then taught to the assembly.

Two groups of songs popular during the war were played in duets by J. S. Pitman and Miss Jessie Mae Lawler.

HANNON ASKS PART IN ESTATE OF 8 BILLIONS

Wichita Falls Man Among 2,500 Heirs of Rich Sailor

A Wichita Falls man, T. F. Hannon, of 608 Seventh street, is one of some 2,500 men and women comprising the Edwards Heirs Estate, Inc., of Greenville, S. C., which is waging a fight for a division of the estate of one Robert Edwards, a sailor of the Eighteenth century, who is said to have owne dland which is now the heart of New York city. It is estimated to have a present day value of about eight billion dollars and the direct descendants of Edwards of which Mr. Hannon is said to be one, have organized to obtain a just share of it.

Given Land by King.

Robert Edwards was a British sailor and back in 1716 came to America and settled. Because of valient services rendered the crown, King George III gave him large grants of land on which part of New York city now stands. From these grants and other concessions he acquired vast holdings, and today parts of his ground are covered by such buildings as the Woolworth, Old Trinity church, practically all the great banking houses in Wall street, many of Broadway's most famous theatres and many valuable buildings cithe New Jersey side. The value of these holdings now, plus cash in New York and London banks, has been estimated in the neighborhood of $8,000,000,000.

Texas Heirs to Meet.

When he was an old man, Robert Edwards returned to England, but before leaving he leased all his property for 99 years, while at the same time he drew up a will leaving all his property to the direct descendants of his six brothers and sisters. It is this will that the Edwards heirs are now using as a basis for their attempts to secure a division of the estate.

A regular quarterly meeting of the mid-west Edwards heirs of Texas will be held in Fort Worth November 21, according to a letter received recently by Mr. Hannon.

Old Time Officer With Two Hands And Two Guns is Brought Here To Help Solve Robberies of Stores

Merchants Bring Burns Detective Here to Help Clear Up Recent Activities of Yeggs; Is Ex-Newspaper Reporter

An old-time peace officer, one of those whose quick two hands with the guns helped rid Oklahoma of its cattle rustlers in the old days, and who, under the new regime of less open-handed lawlessness is an executive in an international detective agency is Wichita Falls' addition in the matter of ferreting out numerous thefts in leading department stores of this city in the past few weeks. C. H. Bailey, assistant manager of the Burns Detective Agency, southern division, with headquarters at Dallas, is the man. Mr. Bailey has been in Wichita Falls intermittently over a period covering the last two weeks, and with three assistants, has, he believes, secured a good start in unraveling a number of major theft mysteries in this city of recent date.

Bailey is an old newspaper man, having 30 or 40 years ago worked in the editorial department of the Mexican Herald, in Mexico City, an English paper in the capital of the southern republic, the old Fort Worth Gazette and others. Following his newspaper career he was connected with the Cattle Raisers' association of Oklahoma and became known throughout the old territory as a "gunman peace officer."

Apprehension of several of the more prominent cattle rustlers of that day and time are laid at his door. He left the employ of the cattlemen to take an appointment as special investigator at Camp Bowie during the war, being thereafter connected with the Fort Worth police as investigator in the regime of Bill Davis as mayor of that city. He was special investigator under L. S. Turley, police commissioner at Dallas following this, leaving this place to accept his present office as assistant manager of the southern division of the Burns Detective Agency.

Mr. Bailey has been brought to Wichita Falls by a number of the more prominent retailers here to work in collaboration with local officers in the apprehension of those responsible for numerous thefts in the department stores here.

Engineer, Held In Wreck, Gives Bond

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Timothy J. Carroll of Jersey City, engineer of the Pennsylvania train which crashed into another at Plainsboro on Thursday, taking a toll of ten lives and 29 injured, today was released from Middlesex county jail on $10,000 bail. Carroll was arrested at Jersey City last night, on ten charges of manslaughter. The case waits action of the grand jury.

WESLEY GIRLS ENTERTAIN AT CHURCH PARTY

Good Program of Entertainment Features Meeting

With members of the nurses' association, husbands of the members of the class and also Mrs. O. W. Harvey's division as special guests, the Floral Heights Wesley Girls entertained in a pretty party in the church parlors Friday evening when the following entertaining program was given:

REAL ESTATE REAL ESTATE

"Scotland Addition"

Scotland Addition is the only close in addition on the market and it will soon all be sold out. You should use good judgment and common sense in purchasing real estate.

Vacant lots are worthless to build on unless you can secure all the modern conveniences. When you purchase a lot in Scotland Addition you absolutely know it is accessible to water, sewerage, electric lights, street railway, telephone, gas, paved highway, etc.

WHY GO WAY OUT SEVERAL MILES TO BUY VACANT LOTS, without modern convenences, when they can be had close in to the business district with all modern conveniences at a saving of several hundred dollars We still have a few choice lots in this addition which we can sell as low as $400 each, on good terms.

If you purchase one of these cheap lots now you do so with the assurance that your lot will be worth $200 more on the first day of March. This is a 50 per cent advance in four months; what better could you ask? Should you not have the money to buy one of these lots you should go borrow it, for there will never be another close in industrial addition with all these conveniences placed on the market.

SCOTLAND ADDITION is in the city limits. If you are proud of our city you will want to live in the city limits where you can assert your American right to vote and take part in its development by paying taxes rather than trying to shirk them.

FIRST COME, first served and remember our best lots will soon be sold. I mean every word of this advertisement.

Suppleness Is Demanded in Hats in Milady's Array at This Season, and Their Nails Likewise Are Important

But in Speaking of Nails it Is Meant Toe-Nails Rather Than Those of the Finger Tips and Has To Do With Booterie Fashions

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The effect most desired in hats at the moment is suppleness. That explains the vogue for velvet and velours which have replaced felts to some extent. The velvet hats are so cut and pleated as to give an effect of great suppleness, and this trend also is shown in the draped turbans. The larger hats earned popularity although models still are seen which are wide in front but cut and folded close to the nape of the neck in back.

Nails

It matters now how you wear your nails. This involves a reference to the feet rather than to the hands. In Switzerland nails are worn in the boot soles but in London, Paris and New York, they are being worn on the top of the toes and instep. One of the favored decorations of the black satin pump at present consists of nail heads of cut steel widely spaced on a one-strap model.

It is an adge that the leopard cannot change his spots. But any leopard who started to address other spotted furs today probably would get an icy stare. Fur spots are subject to change. Mole, after the dyer gets through with it, becomes golden chipmunk. Pony skins become leopard, or zebra at the command of the dye pot. Persian lamb has become pale gray and squirrel in latest guise resembels nothing so much as herringbone tweed.

Coasting Costumes

Preparations already are being made for the annual exodus to Quebec and Switzerland for winter sports. The latest skiing and coasting costumes consist of trousers and coat of burella or some other classely woven woolen fabric, lined with water proofed woolen cloth. The trousers are loose to the knee and tight from there down to where they tuck into heavy woolen socks which in turn are rolled down over heavy boots. The jacket is buttoned high to the chin and belted.

Mental Experts Say Rich Boy's Love For Negress a Result Of His Queer Inferiority Complex

Say Young Rhinelander Will be Branded for Life As a Result of the Shattering of His First Real Affair of the Heart

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 14.—The psychological effect that young Philip Kip Rhinelander's reluctant fight for freedom from his colored bride will exert on the future of his blocked personality was the topic that engrossed psychiatrists as they followed the halting testimony of the young blue blood in the most sensational marital case Westchester county has known in years.

Three mental specialists opined that, whatever the outcome of young Rhinelander's suit for annulment of his marriage to the comely mulatto, Alice Jones Rhinelander of New Rochelle, Rhinelander has been stamped for life with his "inferiority complex."

Wholly aside from the social aspects of the marriage of the scion of a proud old family with a negress, the mental specialists declared the shattering of his first romance has been about the worst thing that could have happened to him. (Inferiority complex.)

Testimony was introduced to show that the youth had suffered from a pronounced inferiority complex since childhood. His self consciousness manifested itself in stammering that made conversation agony to him.

Already has bobbed up in the testimony a suggestion that when he was with Alice Jones, his embarassment lifted and his stammering speech became almost normal. The defense will attempt to show that had Phillip Rhinelander, the young man's father, swallowed his pride and permitted the boy to continue his romance with his dusky first sweetheart, he would have his inferiority complex and became a thoroughly normal personality.

Still Loves Her

Young Rhinelander, the defense contends, still is in love with his Alice, and is suing only because of pressure on him by his family. It is certain that her name still comes cleanly from his halting tongue as he testifies. In all testimony, he hasn't stammered once in attempting to speak it.

But with the dark skinned Alice removed from his life, the psychiatrists say he probably will never again speak a woman's name without stammering.

LAMAR AVENUE AND ALL POINTS EAST

Mrs. R. T. Watts is in Ardmore, Oklahoma, where she is the guest of her daughter.

Miss Dorothy Ellis has returned from Norman, Okalhoma, where she spent "horse coming week" with friends at the Oklahoma University.

Al Ellis, recorder of Maskat Temple, will leave today for Dallas where he will spend the week attending the Consistory.

Among the Wichitans Who Will attend the Consistory at Dallas this week are J. D. Avis, George Lawler, Lee Joiner, and J. S. Pitman.

Mrs. J. W. Grisham will leave this week for Nashville, Tenn., where she will visit her daughter, Helen, who is a student at Ward-Belmont.

W. W. Gardner, Potentate of Maskat Temple, will leave Friday for Dallas where he will be the guest of Hella Temple.

Mrs. George Harris and daughter, Frances, and Mrs. Mathan Reynolds of Snider, will arrive today for a 10 day visit with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Mayfield.

Miss Opal and Master Leon Brooks entertained a group of young people at their home at 1003 Mississippi street Friday evening with a tackey party. There were about 30 young people present, and at the close of the evening refreshments were served.

Members of the Pen Women's club will hold an open meeting at the library Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock when original work will be read. The chapters of the club composite novel will also be read.

Dr. Austin F. Leach and family have returned to Wichita Falls after an absence of several days. Dr. Leach was at the Medical convention at Dallas, while Mrs. Leach and children were visiting friends and relatives at Weatherford.

Dr. and Mrs. Wallace J. Masters will arrive here this week coming direct from the Harvard University and New York hospital to make their home here, where Dr. Masters will be located. They will be at home, 708 Van Buren.

Battery D of the 131st Field Artillery of the local National Guard unit will have another pay day Sunday at Call Field Armory according to announcement made yesterday by Capt. John H. Fletcher. All men must appear in uniform for their pay envelope.

W. W. Gardner, potentate of Maskat Temple, Mayor R. E. Shepherd, Judge Guy Rogers, Walter Caldwell, Otto Stehlik, Lester Boardman, Al Ellis and the Maskat Shrine Chanters, R. Vaughn Ray, Paul Von Allman, Grover Bullington, Ivan Murchison, and J. S. Pitman, accompanist, were in Vernon last night where they were guests of the Vernon Shrine club.

J. F. Riggs, proprietor of Riggs Clothing Store at 600 Eighth, left Saturday afternoon for Chicago on a hurried mid-season buying trip. Mr. Riggs opened this Men's Furnishing store some two months ago and bought liberally at that time but his fall business has far exceeded his expectations. He will rush a big shipment of men's suits and overcoats on the first express out of Chicago. Mr. Riggs will be gone about ten days.

The Shrine Quartette of Maskat Temple will leave Friday night for Dallas where they will be guests of Hella Temple during the fall ceremonial there. The Chanters are Grover Bullington, Ivan Murchison, Paul Von Allman and R. Vaughn Ray, with J. S. Pitman, accompanist. They will sing at the Palace theatre of Dallas Saturday at 3 p. m.; broadcast from the Dallas News radio station from 6-7 p. m.; sing at Hella Temple for the ceremonial at 7:30 p. m. and at the Majestic theatre at 9 p. m. On Sunday morning they will sing at the First Presbyterian church, and in the evening at the First Baptist church.

They evidently waited for Friday the 13th to pass and then made a rush to start material careers with the unlucky bugaboo in the rear. Only one marriage license was issued Friday by the city clerk's office, but six were given out Saturday. They were as follows: O. L. Birchfield, Burkburnett, and Miss Estele Burton Gray, Burkburnett; P. S. Sneling, Wichita Falls, and Miss Lois Holloway, Wichita Falls; William Morgan Hanks, Wichita Falls, and Miss Hazel Arletha Perry, Wichita Falls; J. W. Scott, Duncan, Okla., and Mrs. Myrtle Taylor, Wichita Falls; Henry Caraway, Electra, and Miss Thelma Kuykendall, Dundee; B. D. Lloyd, Matador, and Miss Ethel Bradley, Wichita Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Jackson have returned home following a month spent in Rochester and Milwaukee, Minn., Madison, Wis., and Chicago. They attended one of the first performances given in the new Auditorium Theatre which seats 10,000 persons. They also attended "Rigoletto "given by the Civic Grand Opera company here. One of the special items of interest, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson reported is the new train which is on exhibition, not having made its first run. It is equipped with specially designed diners, Pullman coaches and every convenience. They accompanied Joe S. Jackson to the Mayo Brothers' Clinic where he is being treated at the present time.

an active and esteemed member of the Baptist church and had also taken a prominent part in club work and women's organizations of Wichita Falls.

4 Children Survive

In addition to her husband Mrs. Wood leaves as survivors three sons and one daughter. Her sons are Preston of Austin, Frank Wood and Clinton Bailey Wood, both of Wichita Falls. Her only daughter is Mrs. Raymond Meyers, wife of a local attorney.

In addition to these children Mrs. Wood is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Martin of Leesville, La., and by two sisters and three brothers, Mrs. P. G. Pye of Leesville, La., and Mrs. M. E. Long of Fresno, Calif.; J. E., John L. and Tom Martin of this city.

News of Mrs. Wood's death came as a stunning blow to her many friends in Wichita Falls, hundreds of whom called last night at the residence to offer sympathy and condolence.

No funeral arrangements have as yet been made and none will be attempted until the arrival of Mr. Wood this morning.

"CHAW" HELPS TEETH

Tobacco Chewers Healthy Because They Exercise Gums

AUSTIN, Tex. Nov. 14.—(AP)—Tobacco chewers have good teeth, according to Dr. W. L. Wear, local dentist who discussed school dentistry with the city school board recently, not because the school board is considering placing a course in fancy twists of chewing the weed in the school curriculum, but exercising the jaws and tissues of the mouth make healthier teeth.

Americans eat too much prepared food and fail to get sufficient exercise for their gums, Dr. Wear told the board. Tougher foods are needed to develop a race with good teeth, because without exercise tissues of the mouth fail to perform their duties and teeth decay is the result.

GALVESTON GETS CONTRACT

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 14—(AP)—Galveston was chosen as the next convention city for the Southwestern Public Service association by the executive committee of the organization meeting here Saturday. The opening date of the convention in 1926 is April 12.

The meeting will be a joint session with the Southwestern Geographic division of the National Electric Light association.

MACHINERY IN BIG WELFARE DRIVE BEGINS

Publicity Campaign And Organization Work Is Started

"Three weeks of preparation and three days of execution."

That is briefly the story of the "inside" workings of the community chest campaign which, when it is launched here, one week from tomorrow, will in one swoop raise the $55,000 fund needed to carry on Wichita Falls' welfare work for the coming 12 months. It is a story repeated every year when campaign time rolls around late in November and while the general public knows little of what is done to prepare the field for team workers, it is a work requiring painstaking care and a vast amount of planning.

Inasmuch as the success of the campaign depends entirely on the response the public makes, publicity plays a highly important part in the pre-drive activity. The solicitation, if is true, actually brings in the cash; but Tom, Dick and Harry dig it out of their pockets and it is the advance knowledge they have of what the contributions are for that guides them in the amount they give.

Publicity Drive On.

It is accordingly essential that they be informed; that they be given facts and figures beforehand; that they be convinced of the worthiness of the propositions to which they are subscribing.

A series of stories is being carried in both local papers, while reports of activities of the various organizations; statements of their financial conditions, interviews with business men and other articles having a pertinent bearing on the drive also are given space.

Newspapers, however, are by no means the only medium through which the community chest plea is given the public. Tomorrow practically all retail houses in the business district will display campaign posters in their windows. Some are arranging for special displays to occupy considerable space. This, the newspaper material and the other forms of publicity are handled by a special publicity committee of which Joe Art is chairman. Other members are R. O. Kenley, Ben Donnell, Frank Baldwin and T. A. Bradley.

Letters, Too.

Letters are playing an important part in the pre-drive work. Letters have already been mailed to team workers and captains giving instructions and suggestions; while other letters have been sent to all the ministers in town asking that on Sunday, November 22, they either give special sermons on the value of the chest or make prominent announcement of the drive to their congregations.

Some time this week letters will be addressed to all the larger employers of labor in Wichita Falls asking that they take some steps to make their institutions 100 per cent contributors. Placards have already been printed which will be distributed to each business institution reporting 100 per cent support by all its employes; these placards proclaim to the world that this particular business has discharged its obligations to charity in 100 per cent style.

Oral Activity.

While the written word and signs are carrying the community chest gospel in their particular ways, the city is also to be approached from another angle—that of oral argument.

The law profession is being called on principally through this route which contemplates a complete coverage of all gatherings of importance by five-minute speakers. Every luncheon club this week, for instance; every meeting of a missionary society; parent-teacher association gatherings—and all the theatres will be visited. Moving picture and vaudeville houses have agreed to suspend each evening's performance for five minutes in order to allow some speaker to present the community chest cause.

The speaking committee with J. N. Sherrill as chairman and composed of Mrs. A. H. Carrigan, Mrs. Homer McGregor, Jack Barnes, Rev. Leslie Miller and Tarleton Morrow, has already made out its list of assignments and will see that they are carried through. The value of such short talks is readily apparent.

Solicitation Starts Nov. 23.

With the field prepared by all this preliminary work, actual solicitation will start Monday afternoon, November 23, after team workers and captains have met with the Kiwanis club at lunch to receive final instructions. The first report will be made Tuesday noon at a joint meeting of the Advertising club and real estate board while on Wednesday another joint meeting will be held, this between the Lions and Optimists clubs who will turn over their sessions to the workers.

If necessary, the full three days will be devoted to the campaigning but it is the hope of Hubert M. Harrison, general director of the campaign, to go over the top in one day if possible and two at the most. Six hours of effective work by each team of workers, he believes, will suffice to put the thing across. There is great likelihood of Tuesday night seeing the campaign wound up successfully, but if necessary the stage will be set for a continuation.

Personal solicitation by the team workers will not be a haphazard, hit-or-miss proposition. A rating committee will have done some intensive work before the drive is launched and workers, when they appear to seek a contribution, will have a pretty fair idea of what the firm or individual is able to pay. Contributions will range from $1,000 down to five cents, depending, of course, on the financial standing of the contributors. At least 4,000 and perhaps 5,000 individual pledges are expected to be made, the idea being that every one able to help should do his or her bit.

150 Engaged to Work.

In order that no one may be missed, the chamber of commerce staff has recently made a complete caucus of the business district to list all names and addresses, thus assuring that all new enterprises are recorded and that the old ones are properly filed. This will insure a call on every institution and will also eliminate the possibility of a second call on anyone.

With 150 business men and women engaged in the work, the first two or three days of the week of the twenty-third will be active ones for the community. They will be days in which a whole year's work will be wound up in short order and they will mean that Wichita Falls will successfully meet once more a challenge from the needy, the down-trodden, the helpless, broken and despairing.

The Record News want ads are the quickest medium between buyer and seller. Use them for results.

King Takes Post at Orchid Shop

W. C. King will be the new manager of the shoe department of the Orchid Shop it is announced. The department will come under the new management about December 15, Mr. King, who has been in Wichita Falls for several years, first with the P. B. M. company and for the last fifteen months with the Cinderella shop, assuming complete charge then. J. L. Cobb will work with Mr. King as general manager and buyer.

The new management promises a superior shoe fitting and furnishing service and a complete new stock, being purchased now by Mr. Cobb, who is in New York now.

MUSIC AND WIT PLEASE CROWDS AT ELK REVUE

Dancing, Pretty Costumes And Singing Also Appeal

Good music in abundance, pretty voices, talented dancing as well as beautiful costumes and scenes, characterized the Elks annual Revue in its opening performance last night at the Majestic theater when a cast of one hundred and fifty persons played before a capacity house. Humor, too held its place in the productions, and if it is entertainment one wishes, well, see the Elks Revue in the other performances Monday and Tuesday night, and the Tuesday afternoon matinee.

The play opened with a garden scene with a number of entertaining solos for the guests B. D. Sartin in a Pierrot costume sang "Wait for the Moon," and Peggy Eastwood in Pierrette costume gave a solo dance. Among the humorous parts in the number were those by Joe Carrigan and Joe Marlow, who as darkies, presented an unusual line of song and chatter. Especially did Carrigan appeal to the audience in his singing, "The Baby Looks Like Me."

Straus Struts His Stuff.

J. C. Straus, Jr., distinguished himself further as a comedian in "Susie," and as a negro speaker.

Mrs. J. S. Pitman took a leading part in the opening number singing "Drug Store Cow Boys."

One of the best liked numbers of the revue was "Don't Mind the Rain," sung by Lois Gray and Baldwin Montgomery. The set for this act was unusually pretty, and the two were assisted by splendid chorus. "Someone Loves You After All," was the solo by Zona Marie Ehlert.

Plain Little Jane.

"Crinoline Days" sung by Mrs. J. S. Pitman and chorus was another of the numbers well received by the audience.

"Plain Little Jane," featuring Louise Lauderdale and her Plain Jane chorus of boys and girls, Gladys Engle and her "Charley Boys" and Maurice Franklyn Davis in "Winiger Wolks" were other pleasing numbers of the evening.

Mrs. Lois Parker presented an Indian love song; and appeared in a Spanish scene as the soloist.

Montgomery Stars.

Other musicians of the city who took solo parts in the revue included Baldwin Montgomery who sang in the Spanish scene, and in "Toyland" with the Dutch kiddies; Virginia Hotchkiss, soprano soloist in "Spain," Kathryn Sullivan, Paul Rutledge, Virginia Gray Stogner, Joyce Craft, Gladys Evelyn Kramer, Alice Mohala Hanley, Billy Lewis Westfall, Francis May, Gordon Harris, Margaret Kadane, Helen Fowler, Jimmie Allred and A. L. Huey in "Looking for Fitina."

In the absence of Miss Josephine Fisk who is ill, Mrs. J. S. Pitman substituted, beginning her work Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Pitman executed well her part in the play.

The leads in each number were ably assisted by the choruses.

Topics Scheduled

A report of the program committee by W. C. Thompson showed a number of discussions on local and general topics, ranging from geology in Africa and Brazil to Archer county problems scheduled for the next meetings of the society.

Last night's meeting was preceded by dinner at the Wichita Club, the technical discussion following later in the Texhoma offices. M. M. Garrett, president of the organization, was in charge.

Will your Skin bear close inspection?

A woman's skin will add to or mar her beauty. It is her greatest charm. And a man's skin is his certificate of merit.

How is your skin? Will it bear close inspection? Or, are you embarrassed when anyone is near you, because of your muddy, sallow complexion, pimples, blackheads, blotches, rashes, boils or eczema?

S. S. S. will give you the clear, healthy skin that everybody admires. You know that rich, red blood is absolutely necessary to a beautiful, unblemished skin.

It's a fact! There never was anything more certain. And S. S. S. helps Nature build this rich, red blood—it builds red-blood-cells by the millions! S. S. S. will give you a skin that you'll be proud for people to see.

Build rich, red blood with S. S. S. That's the thing to do. And just watch blemishes disappear and the sleeping beauty of your skin come out for the world to admire. Beautify your skin by feeding it with the rich, red blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build.

S. S. S. will give you strength and energy, too. That comes from red blood. It will drive out rheumatism, increase your appetite, put firm, plump flesh on your body.

News of Wichita Falls Club and Society Events of a Week

Peggy Piedmont

MY DEAR KITTY:

DIDN'T I tell you Kitty, this was going to be an usualy gay winter? Well, I reiterate that statement, feeling fully justified in repeating it, and adding a little more to it by saying that it has certainly already begun to be gay, when we can have about three elaborate parties a week, football games, bridge tournaments, golf tournaments, two huge home talent shows and last but not least, a big dance given at Miller's Winter Garden Saturday evening.

And speaking of football reminds me that the interscholastic league officials ironed out the muddle in this district caused by all three contenders, Vernon, Electra and Wichita Falls, having been declared ineligible by relieving the individual schools from blame and ordering all contests to be played over. Then the Coyotes again met Electra and won in the contest, much to the elation of the local school fans.

* * * *

AND the football contingent is also quite on tiptoe over the appearance here of Harold Lloyd at the Olympic in that long-awaited college comedy, "The Freshman," coming just in the midst of all the football excitement of the past week. In this picture Harold is seen as the funny rah-rah boy.

While the entire week has been filled with social functions, and Armistice programs, it remained for Saturday to be the banner day, for on this date one of the largest parties of the fall season was given at the Wichita club when Mrs. C. W. Stevenson entertained with an autumn tea. The guest list included about 400, and Wichita Fall's women will long remember this pretty affair and the hospitality of this charming hostess.

And then on Saturday night, the younger set all went to the dance out at the Lake Wichita pavillion where a cozy winter ball room has been arranged. Among those present was noted several of the college students home for the week-end, from some of the closer-by schools.

IT has been said that there is "nothing new under the sun," but Kitty dear, I believe I have found something new in the way of an organization. Have you ever heard of a sorority named "Nota Bita Rouge?" Such a one is now in existence at the Junior college and the aim of it is the prevention of the use of rouge among the members. The society has its colors n'everything. The by-laws permit the use of rouge only on one day of the week; on Friday pale cheeks are not seen on the campus. Those who break the rules are required to pay a fine of ten cents, and the fees thus obtained to be used as the members see fit.

The officers of this unique sorority are: Miss Ina Myrl Robinson, president; Miss Imogene Roberts, vice president; Miss Margaret Brown, secretary-treasurer; Miss Jewel Millican, press reporter. Other charter members are Misses Margaret Lewis, Bertha Hays, Mary Wisdom, Lucile Collier, Marjorie Bright and Alma Jo Short.

ANOTHER group of young women who were more active than usual, was the Rainbow Girls, Friday night they met at the Y. W. C. A. and all enjoyed a theatre party after which they returned to the "Y" and enjoyed refreshments and made ready for a "slumberless" party. Chaperones on this occasion were Mesdames H. E. Bradley, C. C. Bunnenberg, Edna Voght and Charles Milliorn.

I know a whole lot of people down here will hear with dismay that Herbert Janvrin Browne of Washington, has predicted that we shall have no summer next year. Something or other in connection with the specific gravity of the moon, and the ocation of the sun-spots will bring this condition about, he says, and he backs his prediction with the predictions of scientists from various nations of the earth, including Norway.

We should worry when right now we are having spring weather and the roses are all in bloom.

* * * *

AND while there are numerous social events, Wichita Fall's women are not giving all of their time to these things. Mind culture is holding an important place in the calendar of each day, and especially was the reading of good books stressed the past week which was observed as Children's National Book Week at the library and in the schools. In keeping with this idea, Wichita Falls women and children heard splendid lectures on "What to Read and Why" by the noted writer of children's stories, Charles J. Finger.

And speaking of literature, certainly the most important works coming out of France today is that of Romaine Rolland. That gentle man's "Jean Cristophe" was warmly welcomed in both England and America, and his "A Soul Enchanted"—of which "Summer" is a part—must be equally well received.

* * * *

AND then A. S. M. Hutchisons' September fiction list included "One Increasing Purpose," which it is said compares favorably with "Summer" and Kathleen Norris "Little Ships."

Many book worms have expressed themselves as favoring Mrs. Norris' sacrifice in refusing to allow her book, "Little Ships," to be serialized as the continued story is not popular with many readers who claim that they can not digest them piecemeal, and are not fortunate enough to save up the successive issues of a magazine long enough to accumulate a novel.

Just again my mind turns again to football, for with the game Saturday between the Junior college Indians and Weatherford here, and then again the game between the Coyotes and Vernon scheduled for Monday, me thinks I can already hear the rah, rah, rahs of the football fans.

So me for a touchdown and if we win, you may expect a touch way in New York from

Barwise Mothers Hear Addresses On Good Books

They Keep Children Out Of Trouble, Teacher Says

A large crowd of mothers attended the meeting of the Barwise Parent-Teacher association held at the school Friday afternoon when splendid talks were made in observation of Children's National Book Week.

Miss Olds, one of the teachers of the Barwise staff, presented some of her talented pupils in a delightful playlet, "The Magic Box," which was the opening number on the program, and was received with much applause. After this she talked on the right kind of books for children to read.

Mrs. H. M. Camble gave a splendid lecture on "How Good Reading Molds Our Children's Lives," and she said in part: "Reading good books keep children from going places they would go if we didn't give them good books to read. It also causes them to be proud of the fact that they did read them, in after years. Teach them of great men who have left their footprints on the sands of time," she urged.

Mrs. L. R. Buchanan, was the next speaker and gave an interesting talk on good books, saying they are good friends in our homes and it should be kept in mind, good classics, a reader of good books is a doer of good deeds. She also urged the mothers to help the teachers in every way to select good books for the children.

Mr. Pate, principal of the Barwise school, praised most all good books for children, with probably David Copperfield. He also said he thought that each child should have a library of his own with his or her name in each book.

CHORAL CLUB ANNOUNCES FIRST CONCERT SOON

Members of the Woman's Choral club announce their first concert of the season to be given on Monday evening, November 23, at 8:30 o'clock at the First Christian church.

Among the artists to appear on this program are Mrs. T. C. Brownell, soprano; Alva Willgus, tenor; Paul Von Allman, bass; Miss Dorothy Burks, contralto, and Miss Katherine Kilander, pianist.

The club began the year of study and practice the first week in October under their director, Mrs. Luella B. Thompson, who is a vocalist and instructor of unusual ability, and hopes to present to the public from time to time during the season programs that are both artistic and worth while. It is the aim of the organization to further the appreciation and love of music in this city by familiarizing the public with the works of the best composers.

Local artists have at all times shown a willingness to assist the club in these programs.

The public is invited to this concert, the program of which will be published at a later date.

The boys' chorus will sing, "Sweet Genevieve" and the girls' chorus will sing, "The Lass With the Delecate Air." The choruses are under the direction of the music supervisor, Mrs. Hermione Stewart Vaughn. The question "Are Our Children Acquiring a Love of Good Books," will be discussed by Mrs. Milo Atkinson, from a mother's viewpoint, while Miss Works, English supervisor in the school, will discuss it from a teacher's viewpoint.

Some Women Pin Their Faith On Velvet Hats; Others Pin Their Scarfs on Their Velvet Bonnets

New Fashion Calls for Trimming Which Also May Be Wrapped Around the Neck to Keep Out the Chilly Blasts

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Some women pin their faith on velvet hats for this winter, and some pin their scarfs on the velvet hats. One of the newest twists of fashion is to use the roses of metal tissue or the jeweled clasps which trim the hats to attach to the headgear a silk scarf which is then wrapped around the throat. The vogue has already made its appearance on the Riviera.

No Bigger Than a Minute.

The latest party vanity case is as minute as one could wish. It is a triangular affair of leather, with a strap handle. But within it is a swivel mirror, as effective as the one on a dressing table, a lipstick, a powder puff and a comb. It is unnecessary to hold the mirror with one hand and apply the cosmetics with the other.

The Louder the Fewer.

London is undecided as to whether to be glad or sorry at the passing of the ukelele. The Prince of Wales has abandoned that instrument since his return from Argentina and has taken up the bandolein, a type of concertina played in the tango bands. It is a difficult instrument to play and will probably attract less players than the uke but it makes louder and more agonizing noises when played badly.

The Lineup.

The masculine arm now is the only real indication of the normal waist line. On froeks the waist line has gone up. For those who hesitate to wear a belt or girdle at the higher levels, the designers have invented a method of setting a girdle on skirts so cleverly into the bodices that a high effect is achieved without a support marking time.

Exotic Friezes.

A stencil frieze no longer is confined to architecture. Friezes are a feature of many of the new velvet house gowns and pajamas used as lounging robes. Elaborate designs are hand blocked and stenciled on the velvet or are worked out in embroidery done in contrasting shades of silk and metal thread. The larger women, however, are warned against the use of a frieze around the rotunda.

Mrs. C. W. Stevenson Is Hostess To Several Hundred Guests at Tea At Wichita Club Saturday Afternoon

Rooms Charmingly Decorated for Attractive Hospitality

Several hundred guests were entertained at the Wichita club Saturday afternoon during the hours, 3 to 6 o'clock when Mrs. C. W. Stevenson was hostess to one of the most elaborate teas of the autumn.

The arrangement of the club suite proved a most effective setting for this artistic party. Decorations of yellow chrysanthemums were used profusely and softened lights entwined with deep golden autumn leaves and red berries cast their glow over the pretty picture.

The club lounge was divided by two massive bronze torchiers, while in the foyer and dining room smaller torchiers and brass candelabra holding yellow tapers were used. In the dining room the tea table was most attractive with cloth of Italian cut work and fillet lace over yellow satin while the centerpiece was a lovely Bohemian glass bowl of irridescent green and gold filled with yellow chrysanthemums. Two seven-branch candelabra of brass held yellow tapers.

The guests were welcomed at the door by Mrs. Everett Jones, who presented them to the hostess and her mother, Mrs. George W. Graves, who greeted them at the entrance of the lounge.

An atmosphere of informality was achieved by grouping the house party at intervals throughout the club rooms. In the first group were Mesdames M. R. Garrison, Robert Brown of McKinney; Landon H. Cullum and Dillard Anderson. These were followed by Mesdames Sanders Walker, W. I. Sims and Frank Timberlake, and at the entrance of the dining room were Miss Willie Mae Kell and Mesdames Homer Lee, Ivan Murchison, P. F. Gwynne, W. S. Langford and John O'Donohoe. Dispensing hospitality in the dining room were Mesdames N. B. Chenault, C. U. McCutcheon, Joe Kell, J. A. Heyman, W. L. Parker and Miss Lillian Fain. Little Misses Gladys Stevenson, daughter of the hostess, and Phoebe Jane Chenault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Chenault, both wearing pretty green georgette rocks, presided over the card trays.

Soft music was played throughout the afternoon by a stringed orchestra, and the guests were given the last greeting at the door, by Mrs. C. R. Hartsook.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy P'Pool are spending today with relatives of Mr. Pool at Munday.

200 Girls to Sing At Mothers' Meet

Two hundred girls of the Junior high school will be presented in a big chorus at the meeting of the Mothers' club next week at the school, according to Mrs. Hermione Stewart Vaughn, supervisor of music of Junior high. They will sing "The Lass With the Delicate Air."

A two-part arrangement of "Sweet Genevieve" will be sung by a chorus of 30 boys with unchanged voices.

"A duet, "Sing On," will be sung by Lora Arbuckle and Evelyn Brown, with Mrs. Vaughn playing their accompaniment.

FIRST METHODIST WOMEN TO MEET IN CIRCLES.

The Woman's Missionary society of the First Methodist church will meet in circles Monday at 3 p. m. as follows: Circle Two, Mrs. J. J. Perkins, 1801 Tenth; Circle Three, Mrs. W. D. Cline, 1500 Tenth St.; Circle four, Mrs. Dan Hardy, 1100 Travis; Circle Five, Mrs. J. H. Johnson, 1111 Alma street; Circle Six, Mrs. Mack Thomas, 1615 Tenth St.

The Business Girls' class of which Mrs. C. R. Hartsook is teacher, will have a party in the church basement, Tuesday evening.

W. R. Hamilton, superintendent of the Sunday school, is asking one hundred per cent attendance of the officers and teachers of the Sunday school at a council meeting next Wednesday evening. All who will are urged to come for dinner at the church at 6:30 and meet Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Bohmfalk. Important plans will be discussed at this meeting.

MRS. HARDY HOSTESS TO D. O. D. CLASS.

Members of the D. O. D. Sunday school class of the First Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Dan Hardy Thursday afternoon, and after a brief business session, a talk on "Physicology" was given by Mrs. J. H. Hancock.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames W. J. Johnson, A. C. Walker, E. H. Yager, G. D. Hall, C. E. Pross, A. G. Sullivan, Edgar Haney, O. J. Wilson, W. C. Stanton, L. Wheeler, G. A. Remington, C. E. Huffman, T. A. Baggett, J. G. Kilgore, Roscoe Staton, J. M. Sweeton, J. H. Hancock, John S. Gerock, W. L. Keens, S. D. Livingston, E. B. Kirfley, R. L. Underwood and L. G. Childs.

Three Charming Matrons in Series Of Pretty Parties

Mesdames Bonner, Chamberlain and Hancock Entertain

Proving one of the most delightful affairs of the week, was the bridge party given at the home of Mrs. Stayton Bonner Friday afternoon when Mesdames T. M. Chamberlain and Peery Hancock were joint hostesses. This is the second of a series of parties being given by these three charming matrons, the first being on Thursday afternoon, the concluding one to be on Tuesday afternoon which will be in the form of a tea.

Ten tables were arranged for the games Friday afternoon when Mrs. Jonette Bonner won the high score favor, a dainty compote, Mrs. Claude Gannon made low and was consoled with a small picture entitled "Light of the World," while Mrs. Roy Riner won the cut favor, a brass tray.

Eleven tables were arranged for bridge Thursday afternoon when Miss Vera Hale won the high score favor, a compote, and Mrs. J. L. Jackson was awarded the prize in the cut, a jeweled picture frame. Mrs. Jack Speegle was consoled for low, with a picture.

The house was beautifully decorated for both parties in chrysanthemums carrying out a color scheme of orchid and yellow and the Thanksgiving motif was noted in the score cards and pads.

Dainty refreshments were served to about 90 guests both afternoons.

TRAVIS MOTHERS MAKE FOUR SPLENDID QUILTS.

Four quilts have been set together and quilted by the members of the Travis Mother's club recently, the last one being completed at the meeting held at the home of Mrs. W. O. McAda Thursday afternoon.

Children of the Travis school were asked to bring blocks for one quilt for which the women had an order for, and when the block were counted, it was found that there were enough to make four quilts, which have been completed and sold. The club realized a neat sum from this sale for the treasury.

During the social half hour, refreshments were served to Mesdames I. H. Bird, L. Van Sebolaien, Minnie King, Jack Ogle, T. J. Laster, A. M. Cale.

The club will meet at the home of Mrs. Ogle, 210 Lee Street Monday afternoon when the members expect to complete their fifth quilt, the top for which being donated by Mrs. Bell.

B. B. OF L. ENJOY KID PARTY.

Each was given an all day sucker and during the afternoon, Mrs. Bradley, the new president, presented Mrs. Friberg, the retiring president, a colonial lady perfume bottle.

Kodak pictures were taken in the back yard and another entertaining feature was a crossword puzzle cut out contest, which resulted in Mrs. D. Dellis winning the favor, a candy jar filled with assorted candies. Mrs. Simmons received the booby prize, a large stick of peppermint candy.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames Margaret Bradley, Estelle Kerrenbreck, Annie Friberg, May McCormick, Christen Uhrich, Althea Simmins, Mertu Dellis and Mary Sherwood.

The hostess was assisted by Miss Thelma Simmons.

MRS. FLOWERS HOSTESS TO STITCH AND CHATTER CLUB.

Mrs. C. E. Flowers was hostess to the Stitch and Chatter club at her home on Filmore Friday afternoon when the birthday of Mrs. O. O. Adkins was remembered with a tea towel shower. During the afternoon, a reading "Tom Boy" was given by little Miss Dorothy Flowers.

A salad plate was served to Mesdames H. D. Biles, J. L. Gibbs, I. R. Moore, M. H. Seale, K. C. Spell, J. L. Tate, L. W. Proctor, Felix White, F. J. White and Miss Ida Ort.

STARK-HURST WEDDING ANNOUNCED

Announcement is made of the wedding of Miss Ruby Stark to Donald B. Hurst, which took place Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Stark, at Sherman.

Mr. Hurst is known here by numerous friends, having spent two years in this city, and Mrs. Hurst is also popular here, where she has been the guest of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurst will make their home in Sherman.

MRS. ATKINS HOSTESS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE.

Mrs. I. V. Atkins was hostess to the Weekly Bridge club at her home when two tables were arranged for the games. Mrs. Walter West made the high score, while Mrs. Norton was consoled for low.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames Walter West, D. E. Silkwood, J. W. Clements, J. M. Vann, Norton, W. H. Branner and Howard.

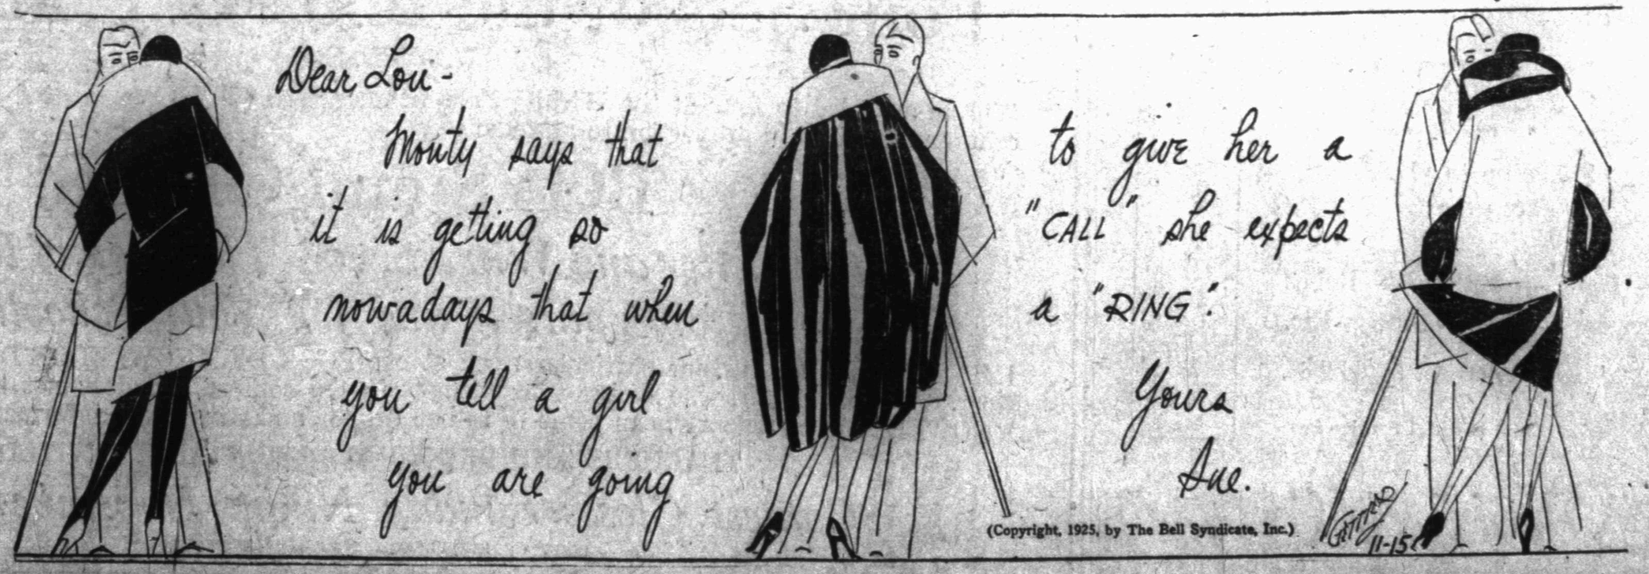

MRS. POTH ENTERTAINED BY CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS

Mrs. Louis Poth of Yoakum, grand regent of the Catholic Daughters of America, was entertained by the local order at the Knights of Columbus hall Thursday evening, when a large crowd listened to an interesting talk by the guest.

Mrs. Pott announced that the national convention of Catholic Daughters will be held here in May.

WARNS ABOUT SOFT COAL

Can't Burn Bituminous In Anthracite Furnaces, Says Lewis

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Families in thousands of American homes with heating plants built for anthracite will run the risk of "wholesale asphyxiation" if they attempt to burn bituminous coal as a substitute during the present suspension in the anthracite field, warns John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Girl Reserve Club of College and High School Here Observe World Fellowship Week With Program

World Fellowship Week was observed in the program given by the members o fthe Girl Reserve club of the Junior college-high school organization Friday. Virgie Mae Adams, dressed as a maiden of Japan, wearing a beautiful Oriental costume sang a song of Japan with piano accompainment by Lorene Tucker.

Evelyn Hardeman gave the devotional for the morning. A prayer was offered by Miss Ivo Lorene Wilson, girls' work secretary of the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. C. R. Hartsook made a talk to the girls on the value of time, showing the importance of the eight hours working, the eight hours of sleeping and stressed the eight hours of recreation in the division of time as among the most vital in the life of a girl, the time in which character was formed. She pointed out also the value of good books and the influence which books had upon the girl.

The program was in charge of Frances Boyd, chairman of the social committee.

Announcements were made by Marjorie Bright and Miss Juanita Kinsey, sponsor of the club.

Mrs. Joe Crouch and Miss Oscar Lillian Bilbro entertained with a violin duet with piano accompaniment by Mrs. R. E. Strange. Mrs. Crouch returned to play for an encore, "Listen to the Mocking Bird."

Fannin School Club.

The first program given by the Girl Reserve club was in keeping with the world fellowship program, when it was heard by a number of visitors, both parents and teachers. Those taking part in the program included Naomi Palmer, Maya Franks, Elizabeth West, Lulu Bell Hepner, Elsie Harris, Bernice Jones. Miss Estelle Price is an adviser of the club.

The Junior Business Girls' club observed the week also with their pageant program at the Y. W. C. A. on Thursday evening when each girl represented a girl of another country. Rachael Shipman dressed in the garments of a Chinese told of the religious customs and habits of the people of that country; Iva Lee Jones represented the girl from Spain; Dora Blank in an imported costume from Japan, a lovely Oriental garment, told a story of Japan.

Russia was depicted by Bessie Yapp. Pauline Wright as a Scotch lassie did a solo dance for the girls, showing the folk dance of Scotland. Earline Chapin, also as a Scotch maiden, did the Highland fling. Eunice Carr represented a boy from Czechia and with Earlin Chapin presented a folk song.

Miss Ivo Wilson, girls' work secretary, represented an Indian maiden and gave some Indian dances. Miss Blank appeared a second time, representing a Spanish senorita. She gave an entertaining sketch of the history of Spain and Mexico.

Mrs. Ivan E. Austin, representing the American secretary of the Y. W. C. A., served refreshments to the girls. Among the guests were Mrs. B. L. Fain, Mrs. Wheatley and Miss Linni Watson.

Howe About Lazy Ladies Adivce? By Ed. W. Howe

Citizen-Chuckolds.

I am usually suspicious of the opinions of those men who spend their early years in school, sport and love, and then go in for social problems, teaching, writing, debating, book agenting, etc. A real worker is a much safer thinker.

Such men (and they are very numerous) usually accept erroneous notions in their callow years, and are ashamed to get rid of them in maturity. I recall but one who did not end up as a madman, mild or violent: Mussolini, the Italian.

This man was fair enough to accept the truth as he found it, and finally organized a revolt against his former playmates in mischief.

All school boys have notions they must rid themselves of. Life is one thing at twenty, and another at forty. The man who does not discover this difference is either stubborn, or incapable. Usually it is stubbornness.

Anoted Parisian fashioner of womA noted Parisian fashioner of womlowing in eating and sleeping that not one in a dozen has a decent "figure." He says the daintiest fabrics cannot be made pleasing when draped on a figure like a flour barrel, so he gives notice that unless the women quit being so lazy, careless and pigish, he will start a restaurant.

The papers are always looking for something new, and have just announced that an heiress gave an elaborate entertainment celebrating her father's death, and her coming into a fortune. A reader who finds fault with an item like that is unreasonable! it is certainly something new.

How cheerfully men give advice! And how worthless it usually is. A doctor friend advised me to do a certain thing. Another doctor friend advised me to do exactly the reverse. I wish I knew a really capable man able to give me sound advice. How I need it!

I have stepped into a good many traps, and been punished; but some other baits didn't suit me, and I have avoided them.

I have been an advice giver a long time, but do not recall having saved anyone. Once I thought I had rescued a man, but he fell back.

Writers who give no advice are most popular. Ring Lardner's success is largely due to the fact that he gives no advice.

So is the man who knows we are traveling at too rapid a pace in everything, and makes no effort to apply natural and just remedies.

When a woman urges her husband to stuff himself with palatable but dangerous food, and says, "O, it won't hurt you," it is a fine instinct; she means well, although the subject of her solicitude is injured.

"O, It Won't Hurt You," should be placed on our shield instead of In God We Trust.

We say of everything that hurts us that it won't.

When tempted to engage in war, we say it won't hurt us; that it will, indeed, end war, and prove a fine thing: that it will afford occasion for fine deeds and sacrifices that will give us satisfaction in years to come. Thousands who say war won't hurt them are mangled with shot and shell and suffer and die.

Beer Scandal In Chicago Breaks Out

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Disclosures which government officials indicated might develop into a prohibition enforcement scandal of huge proportions have been made in connection with a federal inquiry into Chicago's $800,000 a month beer syndicate.

The rumblings came on the heels of the fifth extended stay of prison sentence granted Abe Levin, wealthy certificate broker, and the resignation of James L. McDowell, assistant United States attorney.

In the Cemetery.

"Then we'll say he walks past a cemetery. Reflections on tombstones cause a very pale light. Back into the vision of the individual comes the figures he has seen in the bright light of his previous experience. The pale light has once again stimulated the retina upon which the actual image was so clearly established by the bright light. The sequence of bright and soft light has caused the repetition of the image."

These experiments bear out the findings of Professor J. F. Schwindler, University of Missouri physiologist.

WHITEWASH CHURCHES

MOSCOW, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Under orders from the government every church monastery, cathedral and convent in Moscow has been white washed. This has given the otherwise drab and dull city an air of immaculate cleanliness and purity.

Even the diminutive shrine of the Iberian virgin at the entrance to Red Square which to the devout Russian is the most sacred spot in Russia, has been painted. Nearby worked out in letters of white stone on a red background is the famous communist inscription borrowed from Karl Marx "Religion is the opium of the people."

French Woman Takes Poison in Effort to Evade Tax.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—AP)—In an endeavor to prevent the government from taking away part of her small fortune under provisions of the proposed capital levy of Premier Painleve, Mme. Marie Girard swallowed a sleeping potion and probably will die. She evidently overlooked the fact that in case she dies the minister of finance will collect a goodly part of her money under the estate dues law.

50 Bandits Dead In Syrian Attack

BEIRUT, Syria, Nov. 14.—(AP)—One hundred and fifty bandits and 40 Maronites have been killed during an attack by bands of brigands on the village of Kawkaba near Hasbaya. The information comes from French sources.

When the encounter ended the munitions of the villagers were exhausted and they retired toward Mardjeyoun, where large French forces are concentrating in order to prevent the reat of the bandits.

TO FACE CHARGES

HOUSTON, Nov. 14.—Sailor C. E. Hofman may or may not have to face the broken-hearted sweetheart of Louis Allen Ridenour, the man whom he admits having killed, more than a year ago. It all depends upon whether the girl can come to the final trial from her home near the Texas Panhandle.

Sheriff T. A. Binford, who brought the sailor back to Harris county from the navy prison at San Diego, Calif., early in the week, refuses to disclose the name of the sweetheart or her place of residence, but turned over to District Attorney Horace Soule's department a letter from the girl's aunt telling of the love affair of Ridenour.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Salts, castor oil, pills and other harsh cathartics are bad for children because they act by irritation.—They act much like putting pepper in the eyes or nostrils."

—DR. CALDWELL

Mother! Never Give Your Child a "Physic"

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" every day or two was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even if the child was heretofore chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwells' Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN

Short Minutes - - Long Hours

There are a few minutes each day — just a few — when everybody wants the service of their telephone company. This is during the rush period when people are all needing the service at one time.

While this rush period lasts but a few minutes each day, the between-time lull covers hours. But expensive plants must be maintained ready to serve during the dull hours and employes must be paid just as though all the time were rush time. Telephone service must be always equal to its maximum ability whether that ability be demanded for ten minutes or twenty-four hours.

November Dress Sale Extraordinary

339 Dresses Reduced

Every One a Smart Style

The types of dresses most wanted now for all the occasions of a Fall day are offered in this specially selected group so that you may shop at a saving. Tailored and sports frocks of immense chic—afternoon dresses, simple but very smart. Dresses for the dinner hour—and afterward, sparkling evening frocks—in finest materials and smartest colors—these better P. B. M. Co. dresses come at the height of the season, specially priced. You may expect unusual values.

Tea or Dine In These Fashionable Frocks

Lustrous black satins with new necklines and unique cufflines are brilliant and gay in their trimmings of bright color. Gold laces, tiny buttons, French appliques, embroidered animals, glistening metallic leathers or gleaming embroideries are used cleverly to achieve effective results. Dainty organdy collars and cuffs, soft tucked vestees and sleeve puffs of Jenny pink georgette, tailored vestees of white crepe de chine, high tie-collars and deep cone cuffs of gold lace add alluring touches to these lovely frocks.

On the Links

Imported tweeds from Scotland feature the finest of wool fabrics in rough heather weave. Vestee and stock collar are of crepe de chine in harmonizing shade.

The popular balbriggans are in trim two-piece and one-piece modes with kick pleats at the knee. High collars, rows and rows of buttons, clever pockets and smart cuff and sleeve designs mark them new.

At School or Business

Tailored frocks of satin are gleaming in smartness. The tailored cloth frocks of mirroleen and charmeen are of the finest wool fabric. Their tailoring is beautifully developed in many tiny buttonholes, set-in godets, and the new high collars. The fitted princess bodice with flaring skirt is found with the severe mannish straight line style. Both are equally favored.

For the Fine Occasions

Rhinestones sparkle on swaying chiffons in these dance frocks and evening dresses. A tunic over gold cloth is fashioned into a severely smart two-piece frock with a flaring skirt of fine chiffon velvet. French flowers, pearls, crystal beads and mirrors adorn lovely models. Net is posed over gold cloth, and crepe romain in soft colors is lovely when contrastively embroidered.

Shop or Travel

The popular two-piece mode is found at its smartest in the trim satins. Jumpers and bolero effects appear with long or short sleeves. The flare appears in many ways and is contrasted with the severe straight line frock or the ever popular basque. Graceful movement is expressed in flowing jabots or shoulder ties, and rhinestone jewels, mirrors, sparkling buttons or a gleaming bit of gold kid give brightness.

Why Marriage Fail — By Rupert Hugh

Has it ever occurred to you, or to anyone else, that the reason why so many marriages are failures nowadays is not, because our ideals are lower than they used to be, but because they are higher.

I have seen nearly every other reason given for the increasing prevalence of broken homes except the flattering one, and I think, the true one, that the old homes are breaking up and the old ideals of home are being cast off because the old homes were not big enough nor the ideals high enough to contain or to content the high spirit of our new era.

A hen's egg is a perfect thing of its sort and if it is sterile it will remain undisturbed for a long while. If it is kept on ice, it will remain comparatively fresh indefinitely. But if that egg contains life and is kept warm, life will grow and complications will set in until finally there is another little hen ready for the outer world.

On the soft beak of that chick is a little hard point, and the first muscle that can move turns the head back and forth until the egg is cut and split and the chick falls out. For a brief while she sprawls helplessly but she begins to make grotesque efforts to use the troublesome powers rises, falls over, gets up.

The hard point on her beak falls off as it has no further value. By and by the chick can walk; she helps herself to walk by the use of wings that will never learn to fly far. Chickens used to fly but by long disuse, by a process of evolution, their wings have lost the ability to lift them further than the top of a fence or a low bough. A flying fish can go farther.

In time, the chick is a pullet, and in further time a hen, who will probably lay another egg and keep it warm.

The feeling of a hen when she finds that the perfect egg she has emitted is being ruthlessly crushed by some inner deviltry, must clotely resemble the feelings of the excited human poultry that cackles over the ruin of the modern home. It must be startling to have a hen's mind and watch a long cherished egg going to pieces as a queer little piece of fluff falls out and tumbles over on its nose. Yet if eggs are not broken there will be no future hens. If eggs had never broken, we should not now possess the marvelous variety of domestic fowl that evolution has produced from the wild jungle fowl of India.

Of all people in the world farmers ought most to believe in evo ution, for they see all about them the astounding results of it; great fat gorgeous egg-laying meat producing chickens, from little wild birds: huge tame ducks from lean wild ducks; geese, bees, silkworms, horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, dogs, corn, wheat, fruits, flowers—all developed from crude and coarse beginnings.

So the home is evolving onward as it has evolved upward from the cave, the treetop, the bush, the corral, the harem, the home where a number of wives was gradually reduced to one, who was kept busy at cooking, weaving, and nursing.

Today we see in the home a place where two citizens of equal rights and equal responsibilities meet together for mutual comfort and mutual help and whence they go forth to the tasks which become duties as soon as they become opportunities.

It was all very well to demand the old fashioned home of the old fashioned couple. Though there have always been many and dazzling exceptions to the general rule, the old fashioned home was a place where a man kept in more or less seclusion of female of the species when he or his father had obtained from the home of her parents who were supposed to have trained her to make herself useful, ornamental and fruitful inside the walls.

For many centuries, and still today in certain communities, the parents of the husband selected his wife for him and saw to it that her parents paid as much as they could afford to get rid of her and establish her in the new prison.

The moment this carefully trained slave became a wife she lost her identity. I never cease from marvelling that American women once permitted their husbands to claim absolute sovereignty over their souls and bodies. Is seems impossible to believe that no American woman raised a mob and started a riot when the judges refused to let married women enter the courts except in their husband's name; that they did not even shriek with rage when American judges dared to say: "a husband and a wife are one and the husband is the one."

Imagine what would happen to a judge who said that today. If the American woman of today did not denounce him for a beastly tyrant it would be because she was laughing so hard that she could not get mad.

A canary in a cage sings happily enough and hops about contentedly in a little cage. But a free bird beats itself to death or starves to death behind the bars.

The old fashioned wife found perhaps more happiness in the more or less gilded cage than the modern wife does in her freedom. But who dares maintain that freedom is not a priceless possession, however much it costs?

The old fashioned man was perhaps more satisfied with his wife than the modern man, though you have only to read the old records to realize that if the old homes were happy they did not seem to know it.

But the old fashioned man was himself a slave to a thousand restrictions that a child would resent today. The old fashioned man probably had no vote, no dignity, no equality, no large opportunity. If his wife had even less, what of it?

In those days the highest ideal was obedience for both men and women. In our days obedience is unbearable, and independence is the ideal.

The old fashioned wife could not live with the modern husband because he would not live with her. He would find her too stupid, too stodgy, too limited in interests, intellect and ambition to be a companion to his free-ranging soul.

As soon as the average citizen was emancipated his wife had to seek emancipation with him. The good old fashioned home with its dull expectations and its narrow interests was like a cabin on an old plantation in which two slaves dwelt together. The slaves expected little and got less. They sang and danced and laughed and, made the best of it, as brave people have always done, but their best was worse than our worst.

For he is a base soul unworthy of freedom who will either accept slavery from somebody else or inflict it on somebody else.

In am not slandering the ancient dead. They were as good and as bad as we, no better and no worse according to their lights. But the lights have changed.

The race is evolving out of efforts of slavery, and the women must come up out of bondage with the men. The children must keep at the heels of their parents, too, or there will be no progress.

And so today we find, in theory at least, a free people, whose wives have the vote and the right to choose their own husbands, their own lives, their own tasks, and whose children are also encouraged to be free and are protected in their freedom even from the tyranny of their own parents.

In other words, there has been a mighty smashing of egg shells in the little barnyard of this earth, and a lot of old hens of both sexes are cackling their heads off over the ruin of the world and the destruction of the good old home. But it is all for the best. The new chickens are too big for the old eggs. Their eggs will be too small for their chickens and theirs for theirs, if progress is to be made.

The hard thing for all of us is to realize that a broken egg is not necessarily a sign of disaster; it may be a sign of a new birth.

A vast increase of divorces is noticed by everybody. Almost everybody says that this is a calamity that must be stopped at all costs. Many people actually propose that there shall be no more separations. This would be as wise a step as varnishing all the eggs or soaking them in vinegar; there would be no more broken egg shells then. Also there would be no more chickens.

These good souls who solemnly beg for a republic bound in matrimonial chains might as well call for a restoration to the good old days of George Washington when there were slaves in all the states, when few women were educated, when none of them were admitted to any of the professions, and when only a small portion of the grown men were allowed to vote.

Imagine somebody getting up in Boston and proposing a return to the good old Puritan laws which punished with death a disobedient child and permitted only church members to vote.

That return is just as probable as a return to a divorceless republic. In fact a republic without separation is not a republic.

Imagine trying to put over in this nation—or an other modern free state, a law compelling free women to accept as their lrds and masters for life the men they selected as husbands in their sentimental days. Imagine telling our women that they could not under any circumstances free themselves from their husbands no matter what their husbands might decide to do! It is unthinkable and a number of busy people would save themselves a vast amount of wasted energy if they would give up the effort to force women back into their old serfdom.

Even the judges of our supreme court hold their life offices only during good behavior. There is no office the tenant of which is not liable to impeachment.

Why should husbands and wives be granted the power to ruin each other's lives with no recourse to the law for release or protection?

It is lamentable that there should be so many broken homes today. It is impossible not to regret the tragedies, thwarted hopes, the frustrated dreams of love that matted in the hope of finding a paradise only to find that it had misread the name.

Nobody expects the business world to get along without bankruptcies, fires, embezzlements and dissolved partnerships. Why should we demand perfection and unvarying triumph in the far more uncertain world of romance?

In the old days when neither men nor women were free, when the farmer's son expected to be a farmer and the clerk's son a clerk, a man asked no more of his wife than she should be physically attractive, sentimentally congenial, and able to cook, sew, wash, and take care of babies. If he didn't like her he could beat her and neglect her; if she didn't like her he could beat her and neglect her; if she didn't like that she could lump it, or go back to her mother and do the housework at home.

Now a grown man has the world before him, the sky is the limit to his opportunities, and his own limitations are the only limitation to his ambitions and possibilities. He has as good a right to aspire to the highest offices in the land as any other man or woman in the country. He has as good a right to riches and artistic eminence. He reads a morning paper that spreads the world before him. He telephones, telegraphs, travels, uses the radio. He is a citizen of the world.

The same is increasingly true of the women of today. There is no reason in the world to doubt that women will be future presidents of the United States, future judges, generals, admirals, chiefs of aviation, cabinet members, governors, what not?

The girl of today having thus suddenly discovered a Golconda of opportunity before her would be a fool and a cravan not to demand her share of the sunlight and the treasure. If the man she loves is stupid or brutal enough to deny it to her, she will break the chains he casts about her, or she is unworthy of freedom; she is deserving of chains.

The man of today must have a wife who is his companion. Being no longer a slave himself, he cannot be satisfied with a slave for a wife. The woman of today demands a companion fitted to her soul. If she is worth her salt, she cannot accept slavery or endure tyranny. She cannot be content with a man who has no ambition and no deside for her own development.

A hen is a good enough wife for an old rooster, a goose for a gander. But an eagle must have an eagle for a mate. If an eagle finds that his or her mate has no appetite for flight, shall he or she be denied the sky and the use of pinions?

The things that is wrecking so many modern homes is the new freedom of both partners. The cure is not the withdrawal of the freedom but the enlargement of the ambition.

Even if the cure were the withdrawal of the freedom, who is going to withdraw it? Who is there today big enough to cry "Back to your tents!" and compel the world to slink off the field and huddle under canvas? It simply can't be done. The people who are making so much noise are simply trying to howl down the wind, to blow out of their own lungs enough power to combat the oceanic gales.

If a woman's husband finds her too slow to keep up with him, it is not wise to cripple him for her sake, as so many good people seem to think; but to quicken her for both their sakes. For a crippled athlete is not happy, though a stimulated plodder may become so.

Another thing too—much forgotten is that a divorce may be a proof of idealism and cleanliness. In the good old days (and today in some countries) the infidelity or incompatibility of one partner was something from which the other partner had absolutely no relief. The husband of a wanton could do nothing to shake off his chains. His disgrace was jokingly referred to as his "horns" and he could wear them till he died. A wife whose husband was promiscuous had no refuge from the shame and the hideous peril of her bondage.

There was, in consequence, a frightful loathsome habit of accepting the inevitable. The plague of infidelity ruined homes and health and nobody could see a way out any more than anyone could see a way to escape the black death, yellow fever or smallpox.

Nowadays in enlightened countries it is considered the most abominable of things to endure the disloyality of a partner. The most odious of words is "complacency." We can not understand the people who seem to prefer complacency, however, disgusting or disastrous, to freedom.

Is it not true that there is more cleanliness of mind today than before? There is infinitely more cleanliness of body.

There is increasing impatience with people who maintain nuisances. We don't like to sit next to people in street cars or railroad trains unless they are clean enough to be inoffensive to our nostrils. We can not expect a woman or a man to go on living with a man or a woman who is disgusting, unclean.

To be uninteresting in these interesting days of ours is in itself a crime. It surely can not be decently required of any man or woman that he or she should consent to be bored to death for life.

In short, the reason why so many homes are breaking up is because our people are becoming so alert for their own best development that they can not endure to wreck their souls for the sake of conforming to worn-out ideals of conformity.

Marriage at its best is so wonderful, so heavenly that any marriage is a failure in which both partners do not find comfort, happiness even unto rapture, sympathy even unto a union of souls as well as bodies, stimulation to the best that is in both.

In any individual case, the placing of the blame may be in question, but in general it is inevitable and it is desrable that marriage should adapt itself to progress, not that progress should sacrifice itself to outworn conditions.

Liberty is itself the supreme ideal of humanity. The most beautiful marriage is possible in the union of two free souls eager to make the best of themselves and each other. But woe unto those who dare to stand in the way of freedom. They will lose not only their partners but their opportunities as well.

Therefore, I say that the reason so many marriages are failing is because our ideals are higher, our demands are higher. If women would hold their husbands, let them see to it that they keep pace with them. If husbands would keep their wives, let the men look to their souls, f women, being free, will no longer have their lives arranged for them by either parents or spouses.

Today is a better day than yesterday, and tomorrow will be better than today—and very different.

HE BLIGHT OF EDUCATION, BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

hese college presidents are begin- to make trouble again," said the y handicap man, as he threw a the paper and sat back in his r to allow the processes of diges- to get far enough under way to le him to go out and make an- r attempt to break one hundred ten.

t's discouraging. I don't know we're going to raise any golfers others insist on their having col- educations. Take that kid of . I bought him a set of clubs n he was five, and had the pros him lessons twice a week so he ld develop a style that would e him an international champion he time he was eighteen.

didn't want the poor youngster o through life like I have had to with never a score under a hun- and five—and glad to get that n he could. I made up my mind day he was born that I would him every advantage, and I have k to that resolution.

le got along fine right from the p. When he was ten he could k them over our water hole with ashie—mind you, and sometimes them right up to the pin. The pro proud of him and promised me would bring in all the trophies e were after he got big enough to a real swing.

But his school work began to cut his golf. As soon as they be making him attend morning and rnoon sessions he could only get wenty-seven holes a day, and of se with so little practice he be- to slip. He came home in tears a the golf course one day, and n I asked him what was the ble he said he had to take on the t second instead of his regular because he was thinking about e fool home work when he was ing his drive.

I wanted to take him out of school t away and send him down to hurst, where there is a profession- who does simply marvelous things growing children. But his moth wouldn't hear of it. We had a about it, but at last I gave in. I ays do give in to domestic dis- s and regret it afterward. The r I grow the less moral fiber I e.

When we considered the question prep school I took the car and e to all the schools within a hun- l miles of the city till I found the that had the best championship se. You'd be amazed at how rot- some of those school courses are sy holes and no golf on them at You'd think the head masters and ctors would be ashamed of their simony, with all those boys in r charge. Heaven knows we have ay enough tuition to entitle our to a complete all-round golf edu- on.

At last I found a school that was a good summer resort course that kept in first rate condition. I ght the boy a membership and him up there with the admonit- to work hard to get under ninety. wanted a little sport care to drive nd in, but of course inasmuch as was under eighteen I couldn't let drive it, and the school authori- objected to his having his own uffeur, so I couldn't offer that as rize for good golf. But I did tell if he broke eighty before he got of prep school I would buy him car on his eighteenth birthday.

And what do you suppose hap- ed? The head master absolutely sed to let him play golf at all un- he ranked at least fifteenth in a o fthirty. Naturally the poor e chap, who was thinking about to handle the mashie for short roaches and trying to extend his e by doing gym work that would x his shoulder muscles would k an examination now and then when he did he had to stay out the golf yard for two weeks. I te letters to the school and went there to remonstrate personally h the head master, but it wasn't good. And they had me, of course theirs was the only institution of ning that was anywhere near the t kind of a course.

The boy used to come home holl- s and go right over to our pro extra lessons, but he slipped and ped, and finally grew so despond- over his putting that I was afraid would make away with himself. in I took up with his mother the stion of taking him out of school il he got his game going right, she made a terrible fuss about it, asked me why I didn't disown him and adopt a caddie if I must have a champion golfer in the family.

"When he got out of prep school he hadn't broken eighty, but I got him the car just the same, and took him over to Scotland for the summer where I placed him in charge of the best teachers I could find. He did very well over there, having no studies to interfere with his work and no nagging teachers on his back asking him a lot of fool questions about binominal theorems and the literature of the mid-Victorian period. He wanted to spend a couple of years in Scotland, but I am a hundred per cent American and I couldn't permit that.

"After we got back that fall he was clouting them out two hundred and fifty yards, straight as a string, and running up his approaches till they kissed the pin. Then I sent him to college.

"Well, do you know they wouldn't let him play on the golf team till his sophomore year and wouldn't give him any time to practice unless he averaged one point six in all his studies, a thing which was manifestly impossible for a boy who had a real ambition to do something with his life that would be worth doing.

"He is half way through college now and he hasn't broken ninety this term. Think of that. Think of the humiliation of it. I don't see how he can look his college mates in the face. A lot of them are the quick studying kind that can cop Phi Beta keys and play in all kinds of athletic games at the same time. But my boy can't. Thank heaven he is able to concentrate on only one thing at a time, which is an absolute essential in golf.

"He is droopy and moody when he comes home from school, and every now and then he says to me, 'Dad, it's no use. I'll never be able to break seventy as long as I live. All the formative years that are so necessary in making a golfer are behind me now and I shall have to drag out my life in the nineties.' Then the tears come into his eyes and I have to turn my face away to keep him from seeing how deeply affected I am.

"The more I think of our educational system the more disgusted I am. I am not what is called a man of great wealth, but if somebody would endow a golf college, in which the fool branches of learning that these dodos regard as important were left out, I would subscribe a couple of hundred thousand to the endowment fund. It would be too late to save my poor little fellow, but it might bring a world of happiness to parents who will be sending their children away to be educated after I am dead and gone.' "

PRISON YAWNS FOR CONVICTED CONGRESSMAN

Two-Year Term for Langley on Wet Charge Is Upheld

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 14.—(AP)—The sentence of two years imprisonment imposed upon Congressman John W. Langley of Kentucky, who was convicted on the charge of violating the national prohibition act was affirmed by the United States circuit court of appeals here today.

The court also affirmed a two-year sentence imposed on Milton Lipschutz, Philadelphia, convicted with Langley.

Both men were tried in the federal court at Covington, Ky., on charges of attempting the removal of 1,400 cases of bonded whiskey from the Belle of Anderson distillery at Lawrenceburg, Ky., in violation of the national prohibition act.

In addition to the sentences of two years each in Atlanta penitentiary, Federal Judge A. J. M. Cochrane imposed fines of $10,000 each. The case was appealed on error.

While the appeal was pending Langley again made the race for congress and was re-elected by his district.

NO BAN ON XMAS TREES

Forest Service Says Cutting Of Trees Does Little Harm

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The joy that the Christmas tree brings to children far outweighs any damage that the cutting of these small trees does to the forests, the United States forest service declared today in endorsing the tinsel bearer of the Yule tide.

As a matter of fact, the service pointed out, the annual harvest of Christmas trees is exceeded many times by those used in the manufacture of tooth picks.

Damascus Is Like A Besieged City

DAMASCUS, Syria, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Damascus is like a besieged city. Everybody except the military must be indoors by 8 o'clock in the evening and during the day there are so many soldiers in the narrow thoroughfares that one is almost continually bumping into rifles, picking one's way through barbed wire entanglements or stumbling across sand-bag barricades.

At the curfew hour the street cars cease running, the people disappear like magic, and the most beautiful of the Syrian oases become as dead, apparently, as the desert surrounding them.

MISSING BOY AN HEIR

EL DORADO, Ark., Nov. 14.—Authorities today were searching for a youth who ran away from home four years ago and has inherited an estate valued at $200,000. Robert William Bradley, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bradley, both of whom are dead, has failed to claim the property bequeathed to him which consists principally of valuable oil lands. His present address has not been ascertained by local friends.

CHILD POEMS FAKED

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Doubts about the authorship of internationally famous poems credited to 12-year-old Nathalia Crane of Brooklyn are now raised by Edwin Markham, honorary president of the Poetry Society of America and winner of last year's $200 poetry review prize.

Over his signature in the Brooklyn Eagle, Mr. Markham wrote yesterday: "Unquestionably the whole thing is a genial hoax, fabricated, perhaps, by four young men and two young women while lingering over the wine and walnuts—all of them distinguished poets, with dexterous pens and all determined to break the monotony of the hour with this delectable deception. This is a moment in merry America.

BAR SALACIOUS BOOKS.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 14.—(AP)—An agreement ending the controversy over the alleged Salacious magazines has been reached here. News dealers plan not to sell or display magazines which they know will not meet official approval. Plans of preferable magazines were abandoned in a conference with Chief of Police Cavender, a legal representative of the magazine dealers and a delegate of the ministerial association.

Lemons Tighten Wrinkled Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

GRID STARS INVITED

An invitation was to the Weatherford football team to attend the dance which was given at the Country Club Friday night for the De Molays by Jerry Vinson and Emmett Banknight.

HIKING CLUB MEETS

The Hiking Club of the Junior College held a called meeting Friday morning and planned some novel stunts to advertise the football game Saturday. Edna Preckel, president, presided. The club met at 11:30 o'clock Saturday at the corner of Indiana and Eleventh and to distribute circulars about the game and sell tickets.

BROWN EYES VS. BLUE EYES

The senior high school class is staging a contest between the brown eyed and blue eyed members. The contest ends November 14 and the losers are to treat the others in the annual spring class party. Both sides have printed posters and are waging strong campaigns.

FATHER-SON BANQUET

Plans are being formulated for the Hi-Y club Father and Son banquet, which will be held December 5. A meeting of business men representing the various clubs and churches has been called for Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Christian church. They will meet with officers of the Hi-Y and will pass on their plans for the banquet.

The Hi-Y club is to finance the affair this year rather than the churches as last year.

HOLD PEP MEETING

A mass meeting of high school and college boys was held in the cafeteria of Junior College Friday when Dean S. H. Rider called for student opinions concerning the game Saturday. John Ebner responded, and urged "every red blooded man to turn out Saturday to see the Junior College team play Weatherford."

Jack Martin made a rousing talk and offered to furnish the price of admission of any boy who could not raise the necessary fifty cents for a student ticket.

Bob Humphries led several pepps yells.

Coach Bud McCullum praised the students for the fine support of the team at Electra, stating that 400 rooters made the trip Friday. He complimented the playing of Junior College at Abilene against McMurray.

Bube Mosley delivered a strong appeal to the students to attend the games Saturday and Monday, and stressed the value of student support in winning games. He said no team in the state has played as hard a schedule this year as Junior College.

Dan Rider announced that the Electra high school peps squad would probably be at Vernon Monday to root for Wichita Falls. R. O. Jonas announced that the tickets for the Weatherford game are on sale by members of the pep squad.

DR. FLETCHER TO SPEAK

Dr. J. H. Fletcher will address the local De Molays on the subject, "Sexology," at the next regular meeting of the order Wednesday evening, November 25. Cards are being mailed to all De Molays in this section inviting them to attend this meeting and the one to be held two weeks later when the "Hope Drill Patol" will stage the complete program.

BUSINESS CONFAB

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A "mass meeting" of business men to be held in Washington, Dec. 10, in protest against the "principle of the government in business," was announced today in a call issued in the name of several prominent industrial leaders. They included J. E. Edgerton, Nashville, Tenn., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, and R. C. Marshall of Washington, general manager of the Associated General Contractors of America.

IZZY AND MOE FIRED

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, dry sleuths extraordinary, are definitely out. Confirmation of their dismissal came today with that of 33 other prohibition agents. One hundred and forty-five agents were retired. An official announcement declared that Izzy and Moe "were dropped for the good of the service."

MORE COTTON USED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Cotton consumed during October amounted to 543,679 bales of lint and 75,750 bales of linters, compared with 483,266 of lint and 70,008 of linters during September this year, and 534,283 of lint and 57,452 of linters during October last year, the census bureau today announced.

URGE DEPORTATION

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 14.—(AP).—Deportation and not imprisonment is the remedy for illegal entry of aliens into the United States, the eighth circuit court of appeals held in the case of Stefan Flora, a Canadian, who entered near Noyes, Minn., about July 14, 1924, without a passport.

Numerous requests have been received by the court for copies of the opinion which was written by Judge Robert E. Lewis of Denver.

Durkin's "Suicide" A Hoax, Cops Told

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP)—A woman may have placed the two coats and suicide note on the Michigan Boulevard bridge that led yesterday to a search in the Chicago river for the body of Martin J. Durkin, automobile thief and police slayer.

The skeptical police, who abandoned the hunt for the body, were further convinced the affair was a hoax when Charles Mason, a chauffeur, said he saw a woman unwrap two coats and drop them on the stairs leading from the bridge to the river.

U. S. LAWYER MISSING

Karl Hau, Wanted to Complete Murder Term, Evades Police.

KARLSRUHE, Germany, Nov. 14.—(AP).—The police have been unsuccessful in their search for Karl Hau former Washington, D. C., lawyer, whose arrest was ordered for the completion of a sentence for the murder of his mother-in-law 20 years ago and it is intimated that he has left Germany.

Hau recently published a book depicting his trial and life in prison, scathingly criticizing the judicial and prison officials.

AUTO HITS WHEEL CHAIR.

Dallas Invalid Barcley Escapes Injury in Accident.

DALLAS, Nov. 14.—(AP).—J. F. Chapman of Dallas, an invalid for many years barely escaped injury when his wheel chair was struck and demolished by an automobile. While police were investigating the accident the youth who was driving the car walked away but was recaptured. Two other youths in the car made their escape.

ACCUSE MILLIONAIRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Samuel Dorfman, millionaire clothing manufacturer has been indicted by the grand jury for receiving stolen property in connection with the alleged theft of $1,116,000 worth of jewelry by Harry A. Cohn, salesman.

OKLAHOMA OFFICER KILLED.

RUSH SPRINGS, Okla., Nov. 14.—(AP)—James Lee, 50, Rush Springs, city marshal, was killed and Dan Williamson, 60, Grady county deputy sheriff was seriously wounded in an exchange of shots between the two officers here last night.

Lady Astor Would Scrap Submarines

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Lady Astor urged the women of all countries to unite in a demand for the abolition of submarines and poison gas in a speech before the women of Plymouth today.

"Scrap submarines!" she cried. "I am quite ready to go around the world and try to rouse women on this question. I do not advocate total disarmament—we are not ready for that yet—but it is practical for the women to say that there shall be no more submarines. I am informed that they are not really necessary except in war."

USE EGGS AS MONEY

ERIVAN, Armenia, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Eggs are being used as currency in the Kara Kala district of Armenia, where the American near east relief is operating. Twelve eggs are accepted on their "face value" as equivalent to one ruble or fifty cents in American currency. If any of the eggs prove bad they may be returned as "illegal tender."

"MY MOTHER'S KEEPER" By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

YOU never knew the like of Mary Martin. She was wiry in the very literal sense of the word. A bundle of nerves that kept her dancing from dawn until dusk, on the balls of her tireless feet.

When Mary Martin was twenty-nine, she was already three years a widow, and the mother of six children. Steps.

When Mary Martin was twenty-nine, she weighed exactly what she had weighed when she was eighteen years of age. One hundred and six pounds.

When Mary Martin was twenty-nine, she was considered the best private dressmaker in Zenia. The smartest people in the town, even those who went to New York once a year, came to her. She was charging $15.00-and-findings, to make a gown, when no other dressmaker in town could command more than eight.

Mary Martin could stir her baby's gruel, coddle an egg for her young son's breakfast, brighten up her little girl's school dress with a ribbon rosette, make six beds, and dye a bit of lace in coffee, before most of the women in Zenia were shaking the sleep out of their bobbed heads. Mary Martin's hair was bobbed, too. Although not exactly that. Mary had always worn hers short. It was part of her little personality.

So when Mary Martin was twenty-nine, and the town's best dressmaker, and her oldest child, a little girl with her mother's elfish face, was twelve, a man named Walter Pulliam, said to have made $300,000 by cornering the sugar market, fell in love with her.

According to the law of opposites, it was rather natural that he should. Mary Martin had the bones of a little dove. She was fragile enough to seem almost transparent, and with all her amusing, wiry, incredible vitality, when Walter Pulliam looked at her, he was morally certain, as he stood there, six-feet-three, with a magnificent head on him that always seemed to be ready to charge at something, that he could have lifted her by one stroke of his arm. And he yearned, too. She was like something delicate and alien. He wanted to own her, and to dress her up and travel with her and to make her the little "Lady" of a big house. That's what he always called her. "My little Lady of a great big house."

He used to visualize her that way. Something tiny in the magnificence of a big setting. Something tiny in the magnificence of a big limousine. Her tininess could sometimes seem to make him want to cry. Big Walter Pulliam and tiny Mary Martin.

And Mary, who was so tired—the six children, you see, and the dressmaking; and the running of the household; and the keeping her little girls happy; and the tending of the baby; and the strain of little boys—was ready for the big house. It was almost incredible that this great big man with the great big heart and the great big desire to make her happy, could really care for this tiny little mother of a brood of six.

But he did. Walter Pulliam loved the whole six of them.

It was curious, though, that from Virginia, the eldest, down to the tiny boy, the children were bitterly, angrily, incredibly jealous of Pulliam. Try as she would, Mary could never get them to be more than sullen, or to accept his gifts with more than a natural distaste. The little brood of Mary Martin, jealous of her, guarding her from her suitor.

And then one night when the brood was in bed, Walter Pulliam proposed. And for the first time in a life singularly devoid of it, ecstasy smote Mary. She could have cried of the magnificence of her fulfillment, and did. And did with her cheek against the roughness of Walter Pulliam's coat, and Walter Pulliam, who had yearned so to do it, had her on his knee with the joy of the heft of her which was like a feather, and the contrasting heft of him which was to guard that feather.

There was to be a white colonial house set in the middle of vast acreage and a sun parlor in which Mary was never to be allowed to sew, and playrooms clear across the top of the house for the children and a pony and cart for Melville, Mary's next to the eldest child, and a phaeton for Virginia, Mary's eldest child. There were to be nursemaids for the babies and a tutor for the twins and, all across the top of the house, playrooms and schoolrooms, and a sleeping porch with six cots on it and six little sleeping bags, for the brood of them.

It was at the breakfast table that Mary Martin told her brood. Virginia, aged twelve, was

When Mary Martin was twenty-nine she was already three years a widow and the mother of six.

Mary was afraid of her brood.

And so there was an eight-page letter to Walter Pulliam—eight tear-warped pages from little, delicate Mary Martin, who belonged as the little mistress to a great house.

Dove-like little Mary Martin. "My Little Lady of a great big House."

eating her gruel, and Melville his soft-boiled egg, which he liked, in a piggy little fashion, half buried in butter. Constance, the third girl, who was eight, had a sty on her eye to which her mother kept applying hot cloths. The twins were too young quite to know what it was all about, except to take their cue from the older children.

It was at this breakfast table in the cluttered little household of the dressmaking establishment, that Mary told her children—shyly, a little proudly, and yet a little beseechingly, that they were to have a new father. In her heart of hearts Mary was afraid. She was afraid of the clear, almost insolent eyes of Virginia, who remembered her own father even as he had used to come home, sometimes groggily.

She was afraid of the little way the flanges of Constance's nose could seem to turn green, and her face stiffen when Walter Pulliam tried to make up with her. She was afraid of the white, rather sick look of her young son's face as she beheld him put down his egg spoon, as she talked.

For three hours of that morning, when she should have been in school, Virginia lay in a stiff little hysterical huddle on her mother's bed and refused to be comforted or even approached. The twins, taking their cue, spent the morning howling. Her son went up to his room with the sick look on his face and did not come out that day. Constance, who was less given to repression, screamed openly and went into long shudders. Not only the little flanges of her nose, but her face, actually green with temper and fear and distaste.

The little Martins did not want another father.

Virginia went off into more hysteria at the mere mention of the phaeton and cart. Constance sobbed that she would die sooner than have a new father. Virginia said she hated the thing that trembled in the neck of Walter Pulliam. His Adam's apple.

All morning, Mary Martin's son, whom she adored and even in his childhood feared and respected, remained up in his room with his door locked.

Poor Mary, her heart was in her shoes, like a cold, dead thing. That was the night she wrote her letter to Walter Pulliam. Eight pages of it. Tear-warped.

When Mary Martin was sixty, she lived in a double three-story house on a wide, placid street. By herself. Her brood was scattered and married. Every month the joint check sent by the brood to Mary Martin amounted to considerably more than she could spend. There were three servants and a motor car and a landscaped garden and an eleven-room house revolving about the tiny, slight figure of Mary Martin.

Sometimes at dusk, when it was pretty dull for Mary, she walked up the street three blocks, and then down a little canyon to the town's greatest estate, the Pulliam Place. Walter Pulliam and his wife lived in a house as big as a Tudor Castle. There were nine children, all of them living at home, four of them married, and with families. It was pleasant sitting there for an hour or two in the evening, in the warm glowing home of the Pulliams.

Promptly at nine o'clock Mary went home, one of the boys, or sometimes Walter himself, taking her as far as her door. Then Mary went in, locked it softly behind her, drew three bolts, turned out the hall light, put out the cat, and went upstairs to bed.

Lyrics of Life

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

NIGHT THOUGHTS

Night thoughts, night shadows, when the day is done,
Around the house, around the heart of one,
And though the weary body cries for sleep,
Night thoughts, night shadows, their attendance keep,
Filling the garden with fantastic dreams,
Filling the mind with more fantastic schemes.

A wall a precipice, the children's swing
A gibbet in the gloom. And so our cares
Are with us even as we climb the stairs;
Some little loss, perhaps some sentence rude,
Becomes a shadow of much magnitude.

Let not the things of day the night distress,
When God has given you forgetfulness.
Now close the curtains, close the weary mind,
For not at night the answer you will find.
Yes, close your eyes and put your cares away,

Father of 19 to Die For Wife's Murder

COLUMBIA, Miss., Nov. 14.—(AP) J. D. Wallace, 73-year old retired farmer and father of nineteen children was sentenced to death yesterday for the murder of his wife here Oct. 8. The date of execution was set for Dec. 18. The body of his wife was fouund in a ravine near their home, with her head crushed.

Testimony that the slayer had beaten off children of the couple who tried to come to their mother's aid was presented by the prosecution.

Dry Officer Held As Rum Car Flees

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Washington's police rum squad is indignant because one of its members was held for 12 hours in Maryland when he was unable to pay a $30 fine for speeding, while a machine being pursued rolled away after its occupant had paid his own fine.

Some friction has been in evidence for some time because the Washington police, also armed with federal authority have been invading Maryland to cut off part of the Washington moonshine supply.

Fable of Benefit That Didn't. By George Ade

A good many people think that the American Legion took part in only one war but it happens that the Post out in Griggsville started a series of Battles which made all the Fighting in the Argonne look like Progressive Bean Bag.

The Hostilities were precipitated by a chalk-face Thespian from the City whose Hair met the Collar behind. For no particular Reason he came out and persuaded the Legion to put on a Show with Home Talent so that the Boys could buy some Padded Furniture and Electric Light Fixtures and Red, White and Blue Poker Checks for Headquarters.

The name of the unemployed Trooper who framed up the Dramatic and Musical Festival was Basil Ingoldsby and probably the meanest thing you could say about the Bird was that he looked and acted just like his Name sounded. He was the Kind who wears a Light Overcoat in the Winter Time and then tries to keep himself warm by putting on his Lapel a frozen Carnation. He used the English Accent as spoken west of Rockford, Illinois. A man who owed his Life to the Fact that Lynching is now discouraged in many States.

The Curse of Wealth.

William S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan both being deceased, they were unable to go into Court and ask for an Injunction, so the Opera chosen for the Clinic was none other than our old friend "The Mikado." It is a favored Stand-by among the half-baked Amateurs because it has so much apt Dialogue and so many tuneful Melodies that even the most determined Butchers cannot mangle it sufficiently to destroy all the intrinsic Merits of the Composition. It is what they call Boob-Proof.

If the Orchestra plays the Airs so that they can be distinguished at the outermost Limits of the Hall, and the Members of the Cast Lift their Voices so as to be heard across the Footlights, the Performance cannot be a total Flop. At the same time it is possible for a Crew of Blacksmiths to so maltreat and abuse the Masterpiece as to make it quite different from any Performance ever given at the Savoy Theatre in London.

The Legion Boys turned the whole Smear over to Basil the anemic Actor, and said all they wanted was to give a Show which would induce the local Gentry to come across for so many Seats at $2.50 per Throw. They suggested that it would be advisable to recognize the First Families and get them all to rooting and paddling Tickets.

So the Producing Directors started out with a fourton Handicap, because, in selecting his Cast, he was supposed to favor the Aristocracy Instead of looking around for Performers who could both Sing and Act.

It is a well known Fact that all who have Social Eclat are entirely devoid of the Dramatic Instinct or Vocal Ability. It seems that one who is divinely endowed with Patrician Superiority automatically dispenses with the usual Symptoms of Intelligence and has no use whatever for the standard Accomplishments. To be consistently Better than the Neighbors across the Street is a Life Work which will not permit of any frivolous Incidentals.

She Was Fat, But Willing.

Of course, everybody began to ask who would take the part of Yum-Yum. She is the Chief Soprano and the Main Excuse for the Love Interest. According to Tradition she should be small and young and cute and vivacious, with much girlish Beauty and large, eloquent Eyes. The Director wanted somebody of the dainty Type and he rather favored Miss Susie Tilford who taught in Grade B and was a Dinger for Looks and had a Voice which had been done over at a Conservatory.

But it seemed that Susie was simply a Young Person who had moved in from the Country. It was tipped off to the Director that he had better choose Some One whose Name on the Program would give the Affair a distinctly Aromatic Flavor. So he was kidded into assigning the important Role of Yum-Yum to Mrs. Ephraim Childock because she was the Queen Bee of the Hive and the Bell-Cow of the Herd.

In the way of being Petite and Chic it may be remarked that if she had done a little Gymnasium Work to remove the Fat she could have given Gene Tunney the Battle of his Life. Any one might have known that in a Japanese Costume she would resemble Something delivered on Contract by the U. S. Tent and Awning Co. but when she indicated a Willingness to save the Day by stepping in and being Prima Donna the Impressario was so overwhelmed by her Importance that he couldn't tell her that she was Overweight and Punk.

So that precipiated Battle Number One, for which no one in Town had Pull enough to oust her Nibs, there was no Law against the Hammer Wielders talking it over among Themselves and predicting that, as a Diva, Mrs. Callock would be somewhere between a Calamity and a Holocaust.

Those who are familiar with the sprightly Composition known as "The Mikado" will recall that the romantic He or Tenor Part is that of Nanki Poo, who is supposed to get off a lot of Love Songs in a silvery Voice. The only Excuse for giving the part to Wilbur Spiggot was that he owned the Hall in which the Legion met and the Boys thought they might swell him up a little and get a better Lease out of him. He was squatty and had a frost-bitten Mustache and his Voice, which never had been a Caruso, had sold off about 200 Per Cent but did you ever see a woozy Amateur who didn't think he was a Barrymore?

The Legion Was Wise.

When the Word went around that Wilbur was to be the sentimental Hero the Roar that went up could have been heard in the Next County. Then it came out that the Director had gone all over the Candidates and selected E. Worthington Crudley to be Ko-Ko the Comic. The Fact that Mr. Crudley parted his Name on the Side and played up "Worthington" showed that Nature intended him to be an Embalmer and Coffin-Trimmer rather than a breezy Buffo in Comic Opera.

He was a Small Town Banker who specialized in refusing Loans and he had been brought up in the Belief that 8 per cent is the Minimum Rate named somewhere in the Scriptures. If any one asks why he should have been given the Fat Part it may be well to explain that nearly every one in Town owed him Money.

In the Opera there is the Part of a haughty and dignified Aristocrat named Pooh-Bah. According to Tradition, this Part should be played by some one of deep voice and imposing Personality about a foot taller than DeWolf Hopper. Mr. Ingoldsby, the Director, gave this Part to Edgar Timmons, President of the Chamber of Commerce, so as to get all of the regular Boosters lined up. Mr. Timmons could hide behind an Arm Chair.

The Two Little Maids from School, who are Girl Friends of Yum-Yum in the play, were played in a very earnest Manner by Miss Ernestine Mink and Mrs. Lyman Jeffries, both of whom were held in high Repute in Griggsville because of the Support they had given a Company of Volunteers organized during the Spanish-American War. It was thought that they would know more about the Opera than some of the Younger People as they had attended a Performance given by the Bennett and Moulton Opera Company in 1885.

The Director had some Trouble in talking a well-known lady in playing the part of Katisha, because she is supposed to be old and ugly, but Mrs. Harvey Bleason finally took the part on Condition that she would be allowed to wear a Blonde Wig and do the whole thing as it probably would be done by Marilynn Miller.

When Tomlinson Frisbie, the Poultry King, had been given the Title Role of The Mikado and all of the Chorus had been recruited from the active Membership of the Dante Club, it was evident that the Promoters and Mr. Ingoldsby had done everything humanly possible to make the whole Bust-Out an Affair of real Social Significance and bar from the Stage all those who did not have Birth Certificates printed in Blue Ink.

On the night of the Massacre the Legion Boys waited until the House was sold out and the Velvet amounted to $1,600 and then they sneaked away and shot Craps, turning all of the Good Seats in the House over to those who wished to bask in the effulgent Presence of all the Old Families dating away back to 1900.

B. P. Women's Club At Waurika to Walters

WAURIKA, Nov. 14.—Business and Professional Women's club of Waurika was the guest of the Business and Professional Women's club at Walters Tuesday night to dinner, which was served at 8 p. m. in the dining room of the New Cotton hotel. The club's colors, red and white, were used in all the decorations of the evening, with a big shield of red and white bearing B. and P. W. of Walters, another of green and gold naming Waurika. A four course dinner was served. There were songs and talks and a general get-together. Mrs. Ethel Anderson and Mrs. Amy Burge each gave clever interesting talks along the lines of B. and P. W. club interests as viewed locally, while the program closed with a talk no national aims and ideals of B. and P. W. C. by Mrs. Heacock. The program closed with the good night song sung with joined hands around the table. The Walters club proved its ability as hostess in the delightful evening given the Waurika guests. Fred Hohler, Hugh McFall, J. S. Cole, and Hal Huffman acted as chauffeurs for the B. and P. W. S. with Mrs. Ruth Koeniger and Mrs. Ethel Anderson driving their own cars.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

OAKLAND IS PIONEER IN CLASS TALKS

Will Inaugurate School For Foremanship Training

To maintain a standard of quality manufacturing at the highest possible peak, the Oakland Motor Car company this last week has established a permanent department for foremanship training—a pioneering development among large industrial institutions.

The 81 foremen who have elected to take the evening course have been divided into two classes, one meeting on Tuesday and one Wednesday evenings of each week.

Course in Two Parts

The course is divided into two sections, each to continue for 10 weeks, the first deals with practical foremanship and the second with management in the factory.

G. L. Gardiner, an authority on production management and author of two books on this subject, "Practical Foremanship" and "Management in the Factory" is in charge of the courses. Mr. Gardiner was formerly employment manager of the Chevrolet assembly plants at Janesville, Wis., and for three years conducted the extension couses in industrial management for the University of Wisconsin.

The first section daels with such subjects, as handling men, breaking in the new man, selecting men for jobs and industrial good will and stresses the human element in production. The second section gives a bird's eye view of the whole scheme of management, because it is believed a foreman cannot function at his highest efficiency unless he also understands the work of the co-related departments.

Spends Time in Factory

During the working days Mr. Gardiner spends his time in the Oakland factories, showing the practical application of the subjects covered in the course. He states that the course particularly emphasizes a manager's point of view, making each department foreman realize that he is the actual head of a large division of a business concern, the success or failure of which depends almost entirely upon him.

A. R. Glancy, president and general manager and A. J. Brandt, works manager, addressed the first gathering of the foreman. Mr. Glancy pointed out that more foremen are likely to fall through lack of information than through lack of ability and that the course is intended for the definite purpose of fully informing Oakland foremen of the standards of manufacturing which the management has set up for quality.

In addition to the classes for foremen, classes will also be conducted for promising workmen who have been recommended as potential foremen, in order that promotions may be made from within the ranks. Already 61 men have enrolled for these classes.

Florida Land Boom Crowds Indians From Ancient Homes

Again American Indians are feeling the crush of a land boom. Extraordinary development of Florida is pushing Seminole Indians out of territory long held by them. The Seminoles are leaving the Everglades and moving westward. Their plight has aroused the interest of many Floridans, who have induced the federal and state governments to set aside two tracts in Monroe county for the use of the redmen. Photo shows a typical Seminole family at home, and (inset) the chief of the tribe.

"It does enhance the already high values of property in a limited area. But this value will eventually be offset and reduced by the fact that stores and offices in this area will soon become inaccessible to those who travel in motor cars.

"And that is the class from which greatest revenue comes. It is of greater consequence to increase values over a greater radius—level them up, rather than to create peaks and valleys. Again the abuse is finding its own solution. While experts are poring over statistics and trying to work out an artificial solution, the condition is finding a natural way out. The spreading out of residence sections is bringing back the small community store. You see them springing up everywhere— 20 and 30 miles out.

"I verily believe the department store has seen its best days. People will not drive so far and will not suffer the crowding and delays incidental to trading in these mammoth places where the atmosphere is rather that of a sweat shop, than a store.

Look It In Face

"Look the situation in the face and you see hundreds, yes thousands, of community stores springing up in outlying districts. Every suburb has its own general supply places. They must prosper or they would not increase so rapidly. These things go in cycles. We are rounding the turn now again and coming back to the community store as we used to know it. It is neighborly, it carries the goods its own circle desires and, while not so 'efficient' perhaps in cold figures it does give an intimate personal service that is more human and less like a machine. There is lots of street room in the down-town areas of our cities now—just develop the full width instead of using up 24 or 32 feet of a sixty or eighty foot right of way. Meantime people are moving further out where there is lots of space and where new subdivisions provide wider thoroughfares than were the rule in the day of the horse.

"Commerce follows the customer—so I expect to see a still greater development of this community store—a factor which in itself tends to a greater and more even distribution of wealth, purchasing power and service."

TIRE SURGERY IS EXPLAINED AT DIXIE SHOP

Sharpe and Putty Install Latest Repair Equipment

Sharpe and Putty of the Dixie Tire Service company recently conducted reporters on a personal tour of their newly installed tire repair and vulcanizing plant, which they operate in connection with their business.

The care and preciseness which is taken in the removal of ruptured portions of casings, impresses the thought that "tire surgery" is the correct expression to use in the way of explanation of the advanced processes which they use.

Operate on Tires.

The art with which the "diseased portion of the tire carcases are pulled and a new strong material inlaid produces an awe of wonderment in anyone who is not familiar with the intricacy of the operation.

After the operation of tearing down and building up is completed, only a short period of convalescence is required during which it is necessary to apply the proper heat and pressure until the injured carcass is discharged ready for active service, fit as a fiddle.

Dixie Tire Service company's manager explained that the latest and most advanced methods of balloon tire repairing is a method o fextraction of old ruptured material and in laying in a criss-cross fashion new material at such angles as to give the repaired portions greater strength and better wearing qualities than any portion of the tire body.

Inspection Week.

According to actual test, tire ruptures treated in this fashion flex easier ,wear longer, and outlast the life of the casing itself.

Messrs. Sharpe and Putty are much enthused over their equipment and the nea work which it does, and are anxious to explain personally "tire surgery" 'to anyone who desires it during inspection week which will be held November 16 to 22 at their place of business.

NEW CABLE CAPACITY

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Electrical cable experts in the Worcester mills of the American steel & Wire company, according to a statement made today by one of the officials, have solved a problem in the manufacture of insulated electrical cables so that the plants are turning out for a Chicago power company a cable which has a capacity of 132,000 volts, which is about twice the voltage which could be carried with safety by any previous cable. A vaseline soaked paper is used in insulating the new cable which is then covered with a sheath of lead.

Defense rebuttal witnesses will be heard then also. It is believed the case will go to the jury probably on Tuesday.

OCTOBER THIRD BEST MONTH IN CHEV'T OUTPUT

Company Builds 1,000 More Than in Month Previous

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 14.—Exceeding its production schedule by more than 1,000, the Chevrolet Motor company built 55,504 motor cars and trucks during October, the third highest production month in the history of the company.

This achievement followed a similar performance in September when the company built 55,865 units, exceeding its production schedule by 2,700 after the schedule ad been increased nearly 7,000. September was the second highest month in Chevrolet production, being only 378 under the high mark established two years ago.

The production maintained during the last 60 days aided the company in its efforts to meet the heavy demand which has continued consistently throughout the entire year.

Average Is High

During the last seven months Chevrolet average production has been 52,457 per month. During only one of these months did production fall below 50,000, that being July when 45,670 cars and trucks were manufactured. The slight July decrease was due to changes being made at the factories in preparation for the improvements which followed the price reduction announcement of August 1.

A further stabilization of Chevrolet year-round production is expected to follow the recent development of inexpensive passenger bus bodies which three body manufacturers now are making for the one-ton utility, express chassis.

Rickenbacker Not Worried Over Traffic

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 14.—I am not a bit worried about the future traffic congestion says B. F. Everitt, president and general sales manager Rickenbacker Motor company. "I see statisticians are worrying about how we will handle the traffic problem of the future, if and when, as they now fear, the per capita ownership of motor cars becomes twice or three times what it is now," says Mr. Everitt. "I see no reason to get excited about that problem. In fact I look forward to that time with sanguine assurance that everything will come out all right.

Intolerable

"Some sage has said "No abuse is ever corrected until it becomes intolerable—then it finds its own solution. And so I am certain that with the increased ownership of automobiles will also come other factors which will automatically solve the problem. In fact it is already relieving itself.

"By spreading out the residence districts and also the business areas of cities, the motor car is itself effecting a cure for the very disease for which it is responsible. Cities will become less congested as time goes on and homes extend to a radius of 50 instead of 15 miles of city centers. Trolley cars which now serve to congest streets, and, by compelling riders to breast the tides of traffic to get to the center where the tracks are, will soon be memories only.

"Big double decked motor busses, picking up and depositing their passengers at the curb will make it safer for them and at the same time leave the runs on each side the center of streets, free for speed ways.

Subways—No!

"Subways—no! Experience proves that subways do not relieve, but increase, traffic congestion in down town areas. Subways encourage the building of sky-scrapers therefore mean more persons per square foot of area. That is not a solution. It

HARMON HAS DEPARTMENT OF QUALITY

A. J. Rogers Is Placed In Charge of New Branch Of Service

Nordyke and Marmon company announce the establishment of a quality and style department under the management of A. J. Rogers, recently appointed assistant to the vice president. The new department, an innovation for the Marmon company, will be a link between the sales and manufacturing departments to insure keeping the Marmon product up to a maximum degree of perfection.

Rogers Well Known

Mr. Rogers is well known to the automobile trade, having been for years advertising manager of the Nordyke and Marmon company and more recently assistant to sales manager. He is well equipped for his new duties as a result of his experience in practically every branch of sales activity and his acquaintance with manufacturing problems.

"In manufacturing Marmon cars, we constantly have before us the customer's viewpoint," said H. L. Purdy, vice president and assistant general manager, in announcing the new department and the promotion of Mr. Rogers. "We are serving a discriminating class of users and we must be on the alert constantly to keep our product fresh and attractive in appearance and appointments and increasingly satisfactory in operation.

A Missing Link.

In creating a new department with Mr. Rogers in charge, we are forging a link between sales and manufacturing which will co-ordinate the efforts of the two branches more closely on the vital necessity of constantly pleasing the buyers. This department will not only receive suggestions and criticisms but will give constant close attention to new features with the idea of incorporating them to increase the desirability of the product."

Oldsmobiles to Take to Closed Cars in Future

The big general public trend toward the closed type of automobile is strikingly illustrated by the experience of the Olds Motor Works, one of the big units of General Motors. Where a year or two ago 50 per cent closed cars was the general average, today 85 per cent of all cars shipped from the big Oldsmobile plant at Lansing are of the closed type.

This unprecedented demand for coaches and sedans has necessitated material changes in Oldsmobile production plans. It has been necessary to provide additional floor space and rearrange shop layouts in certain departments to accommodate the increased operations made necessary by the greatly increased closed car demand.

The most important change made was the taking over by the Fisher Body corporation of an additional group of buildings comprising over 60,000 square feet of floor space. This additional space added to the original Fisher operations gives them facilities for greatly increasing their production of closed bodies—for Oldsmobile exclusively.

May Double Output

These increased facilities in the Fisher plant at Lansing, together with extensions and expansions in the Olds factory, will make it possible for Oldsmobile to double its production by January, 1926.

Of the entire production and sale of Oldsmobiles for the first months of 1925, including export, 75 per cent were closed body models and 25 per cent open cars and chassis. However, the domestic sale was 85 per cent closed bodies and 15 per cent open. While the export sale was only 21 per cent closed bodies, this is far higher than in previous years, when practically every car shipped overseas was of the open body type. This shows that the trend toward closed cars is also extending to foreign countries.

Oldsmobile, with 75 per cent of its entire production closed cars, rated far higher than the average for the entire automobile industry. The percentage of closed cars built by all companies during the first eight months of 1925 was approximately fifty-seven.

Klan Burns Cross at Hammer Murder Victim's Grave

While police are endeavoring to clear up the details of the crime, William J. Clark, hammer victim, lies in a grave in Evergreen cemetery, Hillside, N. J., under a wave of flowers placed there by the Ku Klux Klan, which conducted the burial service. Mrs. Clark arrested at the grave, is held without bail, as is her alleged lover, Joseph H. Cowen.

U. S. to Lead In New Car Development

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The car of the future, which will be of 100 horsepower and capable of making speeds of 90 miles per hour, will be an American product.

European engineering and manufacturing facilities are not yet in a position to provide the product which the motoring public, particularly in America, is beginning to require, because of the kaleidoscopic traffic conditions.

This is the opinion of Walter P. Chrysler, head of the Chrysler corporation, who has just returned to this country from a month's visit in England and the continent.

Mr. Chrysler, together with J. E. Fields, vice president in charge of sales, and Fred M. Zeder, vice president in charge of engineering, attended the nineteenth International Motor Exhibition held at the Olympia in London. They also visited a number of European motor car plants. It is on his investigations at these factories that Mr. Chrysler bases his prediction that the new car will be an American development.

"For years we have been accustomed to going to Europe for the finest in motor cars. European engineering and craftsmanship as expressed in their hand built cars were considered the very essence of style and quality," said Mr. Chrysler on landing. "New ideas in engineering design and coach work invariably came from across the water. But this has all been changed.

Detroit Now Motor Style Center.

"American ingenuity has proved beyond doubt that its development of the marvelous precision machinery not only enables us to build greater quantities, but to build these quantities with even greater accuracy that is possible by the laborious handicraft of European workmen.

"As our Paris distributor recently expressed it, 'You come to Paris for style in clothes, but we repay the compliment now by going to Detroit for our style in motor cars.'

"Old traditions of motor car building are fast being discarded. We have been passing through a transitional phase in our industry for the last two years which has caused us to cast aside many antiquated ideas and methods in automobile designing and building.

"In the popular priced field the old notion no longer holds that a car to ride comfortably should be huge and massive. Redesigning of springs and their suspension, lower body lines and more scientific distribution of weight today makes it possible for cars of shorter wheelbase to ride with greater ease and smoothness than cars of much longer wheelbase and more weight—not to mention the advantage of greater facility in handling and parking.

"An engine no longer need be a ponderous and clumsy power plant to develop speeds of 70 and 75 miles an hour. New ideas in carburetion and manifolding, new discoveries in alloys and other materials, enable us now to build motors small in size but capable of developing tremendous energy.

"The builders of our better cars have begun to see the trend and are commencing to apply engineering principles and manufacturing economies which up to now have been considered only for the popular-priced field.

New Cars to Meet New Demands.

"The result is that we can look forward to cars of the highest standards being of much shorter wheelbase, but giving greater comfort, greater sustained speeds and pick-up to cope with the changing highway and traffic conditions and produced at 25 per cent less cost than existing types of the greatest efficiency.

"It has been the astounding growth of the industry in this country which has made the motor car of these new specifications not only possible but necessary. It is only mete and just that America take the initiative in the development of the motor car that will carry out these conditions to the utmost."

Mr. Chrysler also expressed himself most optimistically over the European export prospects for the coming year. Chrysler cars, he said, had met with decided approval and were ranked among the most popular American cars now being sold throughout England and Continental Europe. The outlook for increased Chrysler sales, not only in England, but particularly in France, Spain and the Scandinavian countries, Holland, Belgium and Germany is most promising, contract renewals with distributors in those countries being vastly ahead of a year ago.

MEN INTELLIGENT

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Men showed the widest variation, winning highest and lowest places in intelligence tests of 372 freshmen at the University of Vermont this year while women in general held the middle ground, it was disclosed today. The same was true of the freshmen class of last year. As a result of the same tests investigators concluded that "intelligence did not appear to be a matter of preparation, for students from small schools stood as well as those rom the largest."

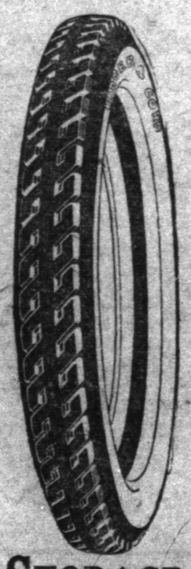

TO FACE SWEETHEART

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Lillie Woods Nowell, recently of Big Lake, furnished $500 bond to answer in Tom Green county court in January to a charge of negligent homicide filed as the result of the death of Micket Molete Harlason, 4, of Bay City, here November 7. The little girl was killed when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Nowell.

An automobile may well be compared to a man's business—It represents an investment of considerable money. It pays a return in faithful service and, like a business it cannot be neglected and last.

You wouldn't think of letting your mail go unopened—of letting your business run down from lack of attention. You shouldn't think of letting your automobile pursue the same course. Failure to pay attention to a slight knock, or a trivial grind in the rear end will do just as much harm to your "automobile investment" as letting a week's mail go unopened at your office.

If you really want to get the most out of your car—want it to give you the service that is in it—then heed the warnings of trouble. An automobile must wear—the best of them will get out of adjustment and if you as an owner of an automobile will see the necessity of having your car attended to when the need first arises—in place of waiting until the knock or grind develops into a serious breakdown, the cost of keeping up your investment will be very small.

It will cost but a few dollars to have your car put in ship-shape when trouble first starts. The wise motorist is the man (or woman) who puts his or her car in the hands of a responsible garage or repair man in the spring—to have it thoroughly overhauled—tightened up—cylinders re-ground, valves ground and the countless other details that go to make an efficient performance. Those who do that are assured of a summer's full enjoyment of motoring with a decided lack of those troubles which are not only annoying but expensive as well.

The wisest step, you as a motorist can take, is to really get acquainted with your garage or repair man. Talk things over with him—listen to his advice and counsel which is based upon years of actual experience. Let him show you the shortest cuts to a perfect motor performance. Give him the chance to show you that he can help you and that he is willing to stand solidly behind his work.

Californa U. Has School of Traffic Study

The first comprehensive modernized traffic ordinance adopted in any American city was given to Los Angeles, Calif., by its traffic commission, of which Paul G. Hoffman was president and Dr. Miller McClintock was expert.

When Mr. Hoffman went to South Bend, Ind., as vice president of the Studebaker Corporation of America, he interested A. R. Erskine, president of that corporation, in the problem of relieving traffic congestion and lessening automobile fatalities. Mr. Erskine sent for Dr. McClintock and went over the expert's researches.

As a result, the University of California has announced the creation of the Albert Russell Erskine bureau for street traffic research, established through a grant of the Studebaker corporation.

Given to University.

In offering to the university this bureau, Mr. Hoffman wrote:

"The Studebaker Corporation of America, realizing the pressing character of the street traffic problem and the need for collection of scientific information on the subject, desires to offer funds for the creation of a research bureau and graduate fellowships in the University of California."

Mrs. Erskine commented on the offer:

"Much of the failure of American cities to deal effectively with street traffic may be attributed to lack of technical information. Traffic is an engineering problem. It can be controlled satisfactorily only by sound engineering methods.

"With this principle in mind, we have offered to co-operate with a great university to make a constructive contribution to a problem vitally affecting the utility and safety of automotive transportation."

Dr. McClintock in Charge.

The bureau will be in charge of Dr. McClintock, who firmerly was connected with the government research bureau of Harvard university and who is known widely as a traffic engineer. He is author of "Street Traffic Control" and "The Los Angeles Traffic Code."

Located in the southern branch of the University of California, at Los Angeles, the bureau will limit its study to urban traffic difficulties and their correction. Pedestrian control, conflicts between street cars and motor cars, parking methods, speed, street design, grade separation, signalling devices, uniform regulations and allied subjects will be studied. Its reports will be available for all American cities.

The two fellowships created will pay $1,000 a year each to graduate engineering students of the university, to encourage traffic control as an engineering profession and to develop intensive research.

Britain Keeps Communists on the Move

Scotland Yard is continuing its campaign to break up "Red" intrigue in Great Britain, where for many years radicals have been allowed comparative freedom of action. Communists are not allowed to congregate. Photo shows "bobbies" breaking up a meeting in a street, held in protest against prosecution of Communist leaders on charges of attempting to demoralize the army.

Willys-Overland Makes Huge Hit In Great Britian

Establishing a new sales record marking the firm entrenchment of Willys-Overland products in British territory, more than $250,000 worth of Overland and Willys-Knight automobiles were sold during the Olympia Motor exhibition in London, according to cable advices just received at the Willys-Overland factory.

Sir William Letts, managing director of Willys-Overland Crossley, Ltd., European manufacturing plant of Willys-Overland, cabled the following report concerning the Olympia showing in London: "High enthusiasm voiced by everyone for new Willys-Overland products. More than $250,000 of orders taken at our exhibition." Sir William is president of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders, Ltd., the organization which sponsors the Olympia show.

To Great Britain and continental countries the Olympia Motor Show in London is held in the same light as is the annual New York Automobile show in America, thousands of automobile manufacturers, dealers and factory representatives from all parts of the world attending. Willys-Overland representatives from Sweden, Switzerland, Belgium, Spain, Holland, Ceylon, Czecho-Slovakia, Rhodesia and other countries were on hand and expressed their delight for the Willys-Overland products, according to Sir William.

FT. WORTH BUILDING

FORT WORTH, Nov. 14.—Fort Worth is in the list of 25 southern cities showing the largest building activity during October, according to the National Monthly Building survey of the S. W. Straus and company, made public late Friday. Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, and Austin are other Texas cities in the list of 25 leaders.

Point Out Value Of Side Highways

One of the points stressed by the American Automobile association in connection with its good roads work is the importance of developing feeders for the main highway system of the country. Surveys have indicated that there has been a notable tendency to sidetract the side road. The danger in this tendency is brought home during the touring season when it becomes necessary to put caravans of cars over long detours.

There are in the country 2,640,000 miles of side roads, as compared with the 200,000 miles of improved roads classified as state highways. The difficulty in working out a scientific program of improvement for the gigantic feeder mileage is and has been that approximately 3,000 local administrative units have been hitting at different targets and expending an annual sum of $600,000,000 without results commensurate with the expenditure.

The A. A. A. road program for the years immediately ahead calls for the coordination of the work of the numerous agencies so that the funds appropriated for what are now classified as side roads will be properly spent with a view of getting the greatest possible road service, not only from them, but also from what are being directly spent by the federal government and the states.

Graham Brothers Show Large Growth

Graham Brothers production of motor trucks for the single month of September, 1925, according to official figures, was 171 per cent of their production for the entire year of 1921.

With the combined output of their four large factories located at Detroit, Evansville, Stockton, Calif., and Toronto, Ont., Graham Brothers, a division of Dodge Brothers, Inc., and now the largest exclusive manufacturers of motor trucks, month by month and week by week, are shattering all their previous production records.

Graham Brothers production for the first nine months of this year exceeded that for 1924 by 128 per cent and exceeded the 1923 figures by 248 per cent.

"This progress is not surprising to owners of Graham Brothers trucks," says Mr. McFall of McFall Brothers, local Dodge Brothers dealers, "because they know the satisfactory service these trucks give, and appreciate their unusually low cost of operation."

TEXAS HOTEL MAN DEAD.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 14.—H. B. Christian, former owner of the Westbrook hotel, Fort Worth, died today of pneumonia.

MANY MORE MILES

Often you hear men say that if they cared to invest a little money in this or that, they could get thousands of more miles out of their cars. But they don't bother. They trade in on a new car. Then we make the repairs—and the cars are good for thousands of more miles, just as they said.

AGAIN!—with these sweeping price reductions—Nash eclipses all motor car precedent in giving value.

Just a little more than three months ago Nash first introduced these new Special Six and Advanced Six models.

They presented striking new body designs, plus important improvements in construction, together with many decisively new refinements in engineering and equipment.

And though all these notable advancements added greatly to manufacturing cost, still Nash DID NOT INCREASE PRICES.

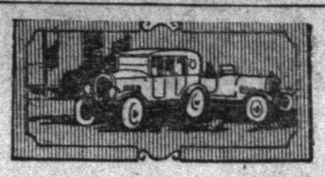

The public response to these phenomenal values was sensational. Sales swiftly rose far beyond all Nash records.

And it is this history-making sales success that makes it possible now to heavily reduce prices on exactly these same cars. COME IN TODAY and see the price on the model you want.

Birds' Colors Go Into Scheme Of Lincoln Car

A unique and original theme in color treatment of motor car coachwork effected by nothworthy American body designers on the Lincoln car chassis promises to be one of the most impressive features at the annual automobile salon opening today in the Hotel Commodore, New York City, to continue for a week. The fact that rate American and tropical birds have furnished the colors and color combination for the custom built bodies and trimmings will carry intriguing appeal to those who appreciate beautiful harmony of colors and distinctive coachwork in a motor car.

Nature has never been equalled in creating or combining colors, and it is on birds that she has lavished her richest gifts of beauty. In the effort to capture the secrets of nature, the research department of the Lincoln Motor company co-operating with body builders, for the past year has made an exhaustive study of birds in the collection of the American museum of natural history. Those in which the loveliest colorings and color contrasts are found have been selected as the foundation for the finishing of body types to be exhibited on the Lincoln chassis.

Extreme Care.

Extreme care was exercised to make certain that in the specimens which serve as "master standards of color," none of the brilliance had been lost that characterized the live birds. The delicate plumage was carefully shielded from strong light while paint chemists who caught the spirit of the attempt to reproduce "live shades," duplicated the colors after months of experimenting.

The results of the research are interesting. Not only have new colors been developed, but practical combinations which have never before been conceived have been discovered. Nature, it was found, had combined colors which man had never dared associate but so delicately had the shades been compounded and proportioned that the effect, transferred to color panels is one of warmth and life.

At the New York salon, 12 body types—the limit set for any one manufacturer of motor cars by the salon board of governors—will be displayed on Lincoln chassis by eight of America's noteworthy custom body builders. Coachwork by LeBaron, Dietrich, Bunn, Judkins, Willoughby, Holbrook, Locke and Fleetwood, finished to interpret nature's loveliest colorings applied to motor cars will be exhibited together with the birds from which the theme has been derived.

A representative sample of the plumage treatment is found in a fully collapsible cabriolet by Holbrook for which the golden headed trogan of Ecuador has supplied the inspiration.

The golden green head, wings and back of metallic shades of green and breast of scarlet are interpreted in the motor car in bronze green of the forward portion of the car and the wheels. That part of the body to the rear of the coupe pillar is of darker green with a suggestion of blue. Striping is in scarlet. Other body types to be displayed are equally interesting.

A sport cabriolet, by LeBaron, faithfully reflects the plumage of the green tanager of Ecuador. The green of the bird's body feather is used in the treatment of all body panels of the car while the bright red of the eyes and lighter red of the bill are utilized in the moulding line. Green and red are the dominant colors of the interior.

Gray Good Color.

Gray is the outstanding color of the lizard-cuckoo from Haiti and gray is the color which dominates the fleet-wood limousine. Two tones of brown striping and black moulding complete the effect.

The orange and black of the Brazilain oriole have been duplicated to enrich the Judkins two-passenger semi-collapsible coupe. The entire body is a lustrous black with brilliant orange striping, louvres and wheels.

Dietrich has caught and expressed the purple blue of the purple breasted chatterer of British Guinea in a fully collapsible cabriolet, the entire body of which is given over to that distinctive coloring. Moulding and wheels are in maroon with maroon stripings on the louvres; an interpretation of the effect given by the colored tips of some of the chatterer's feathers.

In duplicating the colors of the American ring billed gull, Brunn has resorted to polished aluminum in a sport phaeton. Black fenders and running gear contrast sharply with the lacquered finish of the natural aluminum, black moulding and striping on the louvres complete the striking effect of nature's treatment of this American bird applied to motor car coachwork.

A deep shade of blue green, peculiar to the swallow tanager of Ecuador is the basic color in the scheme of a laundulet by Willoughby. Even the wheels are of this rich coloring, the only departure being black mouldings and a white body stripe.

Blue, blue green, verditer and azure, reproduced from the plumage of the Indian roller of southern India is the color symphony of the Locke non-collapsible cabriolet. Another treatment is found in a two window semi-collapsible Berline by Judkins, taken from the Merida Jay of Venezuela, light blue is the note struck in the lower portion of the body and wheels with fenders and moulding in black, the upperworks in dark blue and the body stripe in a light shade.

Victoria Coupe.

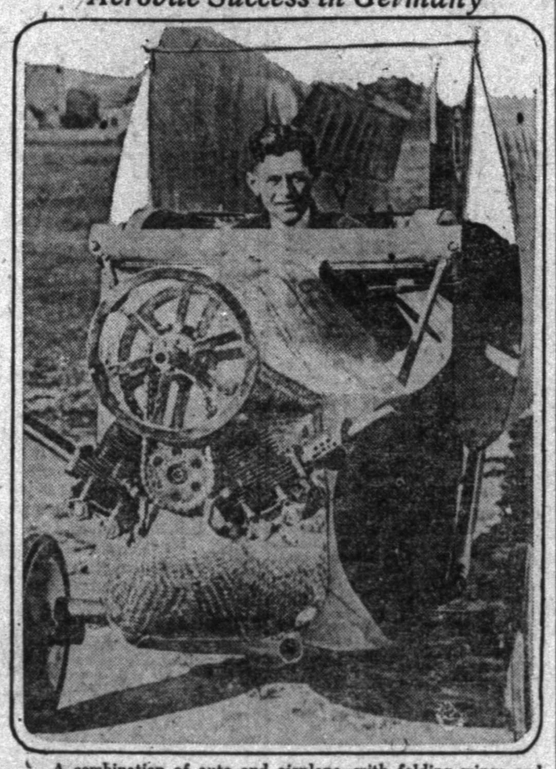

In a Victoria coupe by LeBaron, the colors of the red chatterer cotinga of British Guinea are adopted. Light brown body and wheels; moulding and upperworks in deep brown and brilliant red body striping combine to produce a color effect peculiarly fitting to this type of car.

The striking plumage of the yellow woodpecker of Venezuela, resplendent in cream and brilliant red, has been duplicated in a semi-collapsible cabriolet by Brunn. Body panels are done in cream with red striping. Black fenders and running gear supply contrast.

Noted for its depth of color, the Chinese Jay has provided the theme for a Dietrich four-passenger sedan. The effect of the ensembl is unusual, carrying through several graduated browns and blues.

The unique color scheme does not end with the exteriors of the cars, but is carried right on through interior trimming and fittings. Such creators of fabrics and fabric designs as Laidlaw, Chase and Wiese have reproduced in trimmings with amazing exactness the shades of the body, providing the final touch of individuality which makes each of the cars stand out with a personality all its own.

Aerobile Success in Germany

A combination of auto and airplane, with folding wings and pneumatic wheels that make it equally useful on land or in the air, is being manufactured in Germany for popular use. It can be housed in an ordinary garage. One of the machines is shown.

Ford Accomplishes Standardization

The first move by an automobile manufacturer to establish complete standardization of methods in repair service has been made by the Ford Motor Company in a text entitled "Ford Service" which is for distribution to authorized Ford dealers and service stations. The book, which includes about 300 pages is the culmination of several years of research by Ford engineers. It covers in minute detail, with numerous illustrations, every operation in assembling and repairing Ford cars.

Automobile engineers all over the country have long urged that a system of repair methods, standardized by the manufacturer, be worked out in the interest of car owners. Practically no two mechanics follow the same method even on the same operation, they assert. Efficiency may also vary, it is pointed out, and it is as assurance of the highest type of service if in every shop the methods conductive to highest efficiency are employed.

For years the company has maintained a direct and close service supervision over its dealers and service stations and with the new txt this is strengthened by giving mechanics in simple form the approved methods for servicing Ford cars. Publication of the book, a statement says, is "in line with the company policy of improving service to Ford owners in every way proven practical."

Going! Going! Gone!

One hundred foot chimney of a building in Brooklyn, N. Y. was made to fall within a prescribed area by tearing a hole in one side, shoreing it with timbers; and then setting fire to these supports. The 200 pound structure is seen in flight.

NEW CARGO RECORD

GALVESTON, Nov. 14.—The shipping board steamship Oakwood with 21,500 bales of cotton for Havre, will likely set a new seasonal record for a single cotton cargo when she sails Sunday.

Truck Builder Must Be a Careful Buyer

Before a great manufacturing concern producing motor equipment can serve its own customers it must first be a tremendously big and discriminating customer itself—much more so than the buyer of its product may realize.

The White Motor Company, of Cleveland, for example, has a large new building of three floors devoted solely to receiving and immediate inspection of incoming raw materials to be made into White trucks and busses. Here are railroad freight sidings and platforms where half a dozen motor trucks can load or unload at once. Hand trucks, industrial trucks, overhead cranes are busy every day pouring in tons of materal—iron and steel castings, forgings, screw stock, machine steel, steel tubing, iron sheets, aluminum, copper, lumber leather, paint and varnish, glass and dozens of other items.

And scarcely have these touched the floor when inspection, safeguarding the White reputation for quality and performance, begin. Samples are drilled from the ends of steel bars for chemical analysis and other samples and subjected to rigid physical and metallurgical tests. A model machine shop on the second floor of the building is used exclusively in preparation of samples for tests.

TO HIT BIG ONES

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Economy in government will be materially benefitted by extension of the income tax, both state and national, to include large classes of citizens now exempt, the national tax conference closing its convention here today agreed in a resolution.

The conference also accepted a resolution presented by Louisiana delegates terming the taxation of inheritance and estate taxes a legitimate source of revenues for state governments.

NINTH LARGEST BOAT

GALVESTON, Nov. 14.—The ninth largest steamer in the North German-Lloyd fleet, the Crefeld, will hold open house for visitor here Sunday. This is the ship's first time in Galveston. She is a combination vessel with accommodations for 1,50 passengers.

Drive a Chrysler Four and You Will Want To Own It

A ride in a Chrysler Four goes beyond all previous conception of what a car of this price should be and do.

Its quiet engine, with all sense of vibration eradicated, gives a flow of power that is continuous and dependable.

Its smooth and flexible pick-up takes you through traffic with consummate ease.

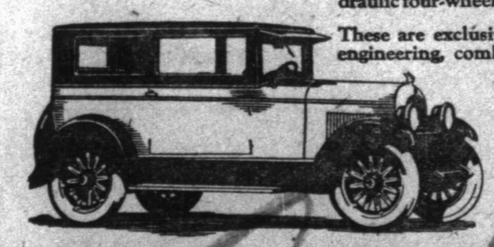

A new degree of riding and driving comfort results from Chrysler-designed spring suspension, low center of gravity, full balloon tires and pivotal steering. Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes are available at slight extra cost.

These are exclusively the results of Chrysler advanced engineering, combined with prodigal use of the finest alloy steels, and a precision of workmanship heretofore unknown in cars anywhere near the Chrysler Four price.

Only a demonstration can do justice to the unexcelled performance which these Chrysler qualities assure.

Only by driving it can you fully realize the Chrysler Four's true worth. Only by a personal experience can you know beyond doubt the supreme quality and extra value it gives in results not even remotely approached by cars of any type near it in price.

Prof. Gwatt Hands Ring the Cold Dope. —By Ring Lardner

Prof. Gwatt Us Recognized as the Red Hot Papa of Them and When It Comes to Weather Predictions.

To the editor: Residents of this nk. of the wds. is all agog these days over the question of what kind of a winter is this here libel to be and is the papers right when they say we are about to experience the hardest and coldest winter of the 20th. century to date. Almost without exception the weather experts has interpreted the signs as meaning zero mercury and blizzards from December on and in fact the outlook has become so discouraging that they's a movement on ft. in some northern states to postpone Christmas till after the holidays.

Right up the hill and around the curve from our place lives old Prof. Gwatt who is generally recognized as the red hot papa of them all when it comes to weather predictions and it was to he that the writer decided to go in search of verification or denial of the current rumors. Prof. Gwatt came to Long Island in the first Reo. He remembers mah jongg.

The Winter of '76—'79

"Yes," said Prof. Gwatt after his widow had leashed his beard to a hook over the mantlepiece, "you can tell your clientele that the coming winter will make other winters feel like scalloped tomatoes. This one is going to knock everybody cold. It will be worse than the winter of 1924-25 which I can still recall like it was only last yr."

Prof. Gwatt was asked on what he based his pessimism.

"Unmistakable indications," replied the professor as he made up his lips. "They are in evidence around the neighborhood day and night. For example I seen Ed Bartlett putting up the side curtains on his car yesterday. The Marshalls has began taking down their screens. Marshall himself went to New York Thursday and bough an overcoat, the first time in 6 yrs. Mrs. Walton called up Snyder's Monday and told them not to bring no more ice till further orders. Little Sonny Buck cried all Monday night for a new pair of skates. Kids knows. So does women.

"Mrs. Craven has been hinting for a wk. about a new Kerensky or something. Mrs. Stewart called up last night and said they was something in the house that sounded like a rat. Charley Egan says he heard a flock of wild geese trying to reserve a drawing room for Miami. Every southbound train is carrying a extra diner for mosquitoes. And Judge Bacon reports that his town car is beginning to crank hard after starting with the first flip-over since 1912."

"You must have seen a great many hard winters in your day," remarked the writer, removing a police dog from his lap.

Prof. Gwatt produced a pruning knife and went after his nails in no uncertain fashion.

"Say," he said, "hard winters is what I ain't seen nothing much else. But still some stands out above others. I won't be libel to forget the winter of 1878-79. The snow was so deep that you had to be 6 ft. tall to see. The blizzard started at 9 o'clock in the morning on the 4th. of December and by 10 o'clock the next night the ground was covered with snow. For days at a time the thermometer hovered between 26 and 27 above zero. It was hard to tell."

Something New in Cases

"What was hard to tell?" asked the writer.

"What to do under the conditions," replied Prof. Gwatt.

"What did you do?" the writer inquired.

"I married. It seemed to be the only way out."

Mrs. Gwatt got the writer's eye at this point and indicated by lip reading that the professor was having one of his bad days.

"Never mind the professor," Mrs. Gwatt was as much as to say, but her husband paid little attention and went on with his memoirs.

"The next winter was very mild, and the big difficulty was in telling whether you were indoors or outdoors. A friend of mine named Jerry Knoll took off his hat to his own maid in the dining room, thinking they were both in the park. There was very few divorcees that winter. Maybe you heard of Kroll. A great boy."

"No," said the writer. "I never did."

"Well," went on the professor, "it ain't a point I feel like arguing. You either heard of him or you didn't."

"I didn't," the writer replied.

"You know your business better than I do. But anyway that brings us to 1920, which had them all beat for pure coldness. I had a friend named Bilty who I hadn't seen for 2 or 3 days and one day I met him on Broadway and when we shook hands, his arm snapped off and I had to carry it around like a cane till the spring thaws. Maybe you heard of Bilty."

Mrs. Gwatt again coughed slightly to attract the visitor's attention and indicated by a series of wry faces that it was time for the professor to test the mules. It should be explained that every afternoon at 3:30 the professor goes out in the corral and tests all the mules. It is a fad with him.

HISTORIC OLD PHILADELPHIA STORE IS RAZED

Leary's Book Shop Refuses To Give up Its Site, However

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—Edwin S. Stuart, one time mayor of Philadelphia and one time governor of Pennsylvania, snapped fast the old fashioned padlock on the front doors of Leary's old book store today for the last time. There was a suspicion of moisture about Mr. Stuart's eyes, for this strange character in the bustling Philadelphia of today was making his great sacrifice in the interest of "progress."

Progress had won out over sentiment, but it was only a partial victory. Mr. Stuart has agreed that the old building, which was considerable of an eyesore along busy South Ninth street, should be razed. But he has resisted to the last ditch all suggestions that he let the old Leary site go with the building.

A new Leary's sticking like a thorn into the side of the new great Gimbel department store, is to rise on the site of the old. The new Gimbel store will occupy all the block bounded by Eighth and Ninth streets and Market and Chestnut—all except the Leary site, which Gimbel's must build around.

Once Had Job There

It was nearly 50 years ago that young Eddie Stuart, looking around him in his home town for a career got a job at Leary's old book store. The store itself was new then—a fine brick building, in which the musty tomes in which old Mr. Leary specialized looked decidedly out of place. The job quickly became more than a job. Young Stuart contracted Bibliophobia from his employer. Old books became his passion.

Mr. Leary died—and bequeathed the business to Mr. Stuart. On that day, it is said, Mr. Stuart registered a vow that he would keep Learys going at the old stand as long as he lived.

Time moved on and Mr. Stuart went into politics. His flair for politics swept him into the mayoralty in 1891 and into the governorship in 1907. But his vow held. His first love was books and he never married.

Meantime, the Gimbel store was growing. A few years ago it decided to build the "biggest store in America" on the block, half of which it already occupied. Emissaries went forth to buy up options on the desired land. At Learys they ran up against a stone wall. The higher they bid, the more firm came Mr. Stuart's refusals.

Won't Give Up Old Site

Finally they decided to build around him. But would Mr. Stuart consent to dress his ramshackle place up a bit, so that it would be more in keeping with its surroundings? To prove that his sentiment wasn't just plain stubbornness, he decided to go one step further. Leary's old book store was new when he started here. He would leave it new when he passed on. So he carted off his rare old books to another temporary location and gave orders for a fine new building to house them.

Mr. Stuart looked over the tops of his glasses in his temporary shop today and smiled enigmatically.

"Sentiment?" he echoed. "Well yes, I suppose you would call it that. I couldn't consider giving up the old site. You see I have been there all my life."

Scholarship Not Going to the Dogs, Bishop Declares

JACKSONVILLE, Tex., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Orange was chosen as the next meeting place of the Texas conference Methodist Episcopal church, South, in a spirited contest with Port Arthur here today.

Bishop John M. Moore of Dallas, presiding, in the opening address today, delivered a broadside against those "who are slaves to the past."

"It is a pity when men get to thinking that our scholarship is going to the devil and laboratories are mechanisms of evil," he said. "We should conserve proceeds of the past without being enslaved by them. We ought to get out of the pyramids all the good in them, but we don't want pyramids in our front yards. The Roman forum was a great thing in its day, but we don't want Roman forums all over our land today. We have no appreciation of yesterday if out of it has not come a greater today."

ENACT ARTICLE 27

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies' acceptance of President Calles' bill for enactment of Article 27 of the Mexican constitution eliminating only the clause which would give foreigners 10 years in which to dispose of property in the forbidden zones along the frontiers, has been followed by Mexican press criticism of the attitude of the United States in this and related matters.

Intense Headaches

"FOR several years I suffered with very intense pains in my head," says Mrs. Julian Warren, of Batesburg, S. C., whose picture is printed here.

"These would come on periodically and would last for days. I would nearly go crazy; the pain was something awful. Nobody except a woman who has gone through with such suffering can understand it.

"I fell away until I was just a shadow. I could not eat. I had no appetite at all. Nothing tempted me, no matter how much I had liked it before. I was steadily losing flesh and seemed to be on the downhill, always getting worse.

"I was very nervous and the children bothered me dreadfully. I know now I was as cross as two sticks, but at that time I was so ill I did not realize my condition, or how irritable I was.

"Some years before I had taken Cardui for womanly troubles, so I told my husband to get me a bottle and I would try it. It really surprised me how fast I began to recover. After I had been taking Cardui a short time my appetite picked up. I began to eat and to sleep better and then I began to pick up in weight. I saw I was regaining the ground I had lost and was delighted. I kept up the medicine for some months until I was a well woman.

"Now I can do a good day's work and it does not bother me at all. I am equal to my tasks as a farmer's wife and I give all the credit to Cardui. I recommend it to all suffering women."

Cardui is on sale at all druggists'.

What is the Service of a Thousand Feet?

¶ What is the service rendered by a thousand feet of natural gas? Someone with a "bug" for figures states that a thousand feet of manufactured gas will bake 50 loaves of bread in the home oven, or cook enough ham to make 1750 sandwiches, or broil 73 pounds of steak.

¶ Since natural gas is almost double the value of the best manufactured gas in heating units, when properly used it should bake a hundred loaves of bread, or broil 140 pounds of steak—or cook the average meal for a family of five for about two weeks.

¶ Just from the economical standpoint, the service per dollar expended for gas is one of the lowest priced given anywhere, for no other fuel approaches natural gas in its cheapness.

¶ But that is not the only advantage, as users well know. All the conveniences and the cleanliness are extra — not paid for — and they are perhaps the greatest advantages in the use of this premier of all fuels.
