Dana Ulibarri "fiddled" her way to the title of Miss Hereford 1981 Saturday night at the Hereford High School Auditorium. She was one of 26 entrants who really put on a show for the large crowd in attendance.

Her first duty will be to reign over the Town and Country Jubilee this week in Hereford. She was presented with a dozen red roses and $600 cash, along with the Miss Hereford crown, placed on her head by Diane Warden, 1980 Miss Hereford.

Miss Ulibarri is the 18-year-old daughter of Minnie and Larry Ulibarri. She played a medley of "Milk Cow Blues" and "Barlows Cabbage Down" on her fiddle while outfitted in a western costume of black pants featuring a white satin shirt with fringe on the sleeves. Her black western hat with white feather topped off her attire.

First runner-up to the winner was Gina Robyn Griffin, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Griffin. For her talent she sang "The Laughing Song." She was awarded a silver tray and $300 in cash, provided from the Women's Division.

Lisa Snyder, 17, was second runner-up and awarded a silver tray and $200 cash. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Snyder. She did a dance routine. "The Main Event," as her talent.

Cristi Crawford, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thompson, was selected by the entrants as Miss Congeniality. She was presented a silver tray.

Other finalists included Kellie Howell, Becky Hughes, Colleen Keating, Cynthia Lady, Betty Lucero, Louise Mays and Elaine Reinart.

All 26 entrants presented their talent at a preliminary show Saturday afteroon. The top 10 presented their talent at the pageant Saturday night. Judges considered the girls on their interviews Saturday morning, talent and evening wear, scoring each one third.

The pageant was opened with a production number of all the entrants singing "Raisin' A Ruckus," which was the theme for the show, and then they danced to "Cotton Eyed Joe." Candidates ranged from 15 to 18 years of age.

Providing special entertainment was the Country Four featuring Holly Hodges.

Special recognition was given to Keith Ann Gearn, director, and to the steering committee, Shirley Wilson, chairman, Betty Gilbert, Carolyn Hays, Betty Lady, Donna Jones and Janice Faulkner.

Mrs. Wilson said the committee was most appreciative to the community for supporting the pageant the way it did this year. They were pleased with all the entries and enjoyed working with them, she said.

Mrs. Gearn said she had so much fun directing the show, that she is "ready to go again." She expressed her appreciation to all the girls for being so cooperative. She said some of the girls had to be coaxed to stay in the pageant after they had signed up, but the girls told her the attitude of the members of the steering committee gave them the confidence they needed to stay in it.

Mrs. Gearn says she feels like most of the girls will compete in the Miss Hereford pageant again next year.

She said she regreted a couple of things that happened, but they were mechanical difficulties that could not be anticipated. One was when Colleen Keating came out on the stage to present her talent, which was a humorous pantomine of "Mule Train," and the recorder blew a fuse. Miss Keating "hamboned" it up while waiting for the recorder to be replaced and stole the applause and laughs from the crowd.

This was the second time in

City Fathers To Fight Gas Hike

Hereford city commissioners wasted little time Monday night in postponing a rate increase requested by Energas, Company, and voted to join in with other Panhandle cities in fighting the request.

As commissioner Wesley Fisher said, "I feel that we would be remiss in our duties if we didn't fight this." The resolution postponing the increase keeps the old rate in effect for at least the time being.

Energas filed a notice of intent to raise rates for domestic and commercial type, small industrial and large air conditioning-electric generating customer classes in the 63 cities and towns on its West Texas City Plant System, effective Sept. 4, 1981.

The proposed increase would result in a 16 percent increase in Energas' gross revenues on its West Texas City Plant System.

In other action, the city fathers briefly discussed details concerning the lease of a city farm, and looked over the operating report for July. All four commissioners were present for the meeting, as were City Manager Dudley Bayne, Mayor Bartley Dowell, and City Attorney Earnest Langley.

Economic Advisers Urging Cuts in Defense Spending

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's chief economic advisers are urging him to cut planned defense spending by $20 billion to $40 billion to keep alive any realistic hope of balancing the federal budget by 1984, a knowledgeable administration source says.

Budget director David A. Stockman planned to recommend the defense cuts at a meeting with Reagan in Los Angeles today, according to the source, who said there is no other feasible way for Reagan to fulfill his pledge to balance the budget within three years.

Backed by other top administration officials, Stockman wants to reduce military spending by $10 billion to $20 billion in both 1983 and 1984, said the source, who is close to the budget process and asked not to be identified.

County Rejects Renovation Bids

Deaf Smith County Commissioners met in an emergency meeting Monday afternoon, and rejected all bids concerning the renovation to the district courtroom after the firm to which the bid had been awarded had been purchased by another firm.

The commissioners voted to reject all bids received and to re-advertise for bids on the job, which will cost approximately $20,000 if figures submitted in previous bids hold true.

E&C Interior Construction, Inc. of Amarillo had been awarded the bid on the renovation job at a cost of $18,542. The court has received notice that E&C has been purchased by another firm, and that problems had arisen with the bid.

District Judge Wesley Gulley was authorized to secure an architect to draw up detailed plans for the renovation project by the court, and to make a recommendation to the court at their next regular meeting on Aug. 24.

Hereford Gets Rebate Check

AUSTIN, Tex. – State Comptroller Bob Bullock last week said August city sales tax rebate checks to 952 cities will total $95.8 million.

This month's payment brings the cities' year-to-date totals to $439.3 million compared to $392.9 million during a comparable period in 1980.

On a statewide average, sales tax payments are up this year by nearly 12 percent over 1980, according to Bullock.

Bullock said the August payments include quarterly payments from merchants and businesses for the year's second quarter.

The city of Hereford's rebate for the period totaled $67,462.39, bringing the yearly total to $327,775.36, 3.28 percent above the 1980 total to date of $317,357.07. This year's payment more than doubled last year's figure of $33,551.42 for the same period.

Houston's check this month is for $19.8 million bringing the city's total this year to $90.7 million, up 10.2 percent over 1980 payments.

Dallas will receive $10.8 million this month pushing the city's yearly total to $49.7 million, a 74. percent increase this year over last year.

Fort Worth will receive $3.4 million bringing that city's 1981 payments to date to $16.1 million, a 4.6 percent increase over 1980.

San Antonio's August payment will be $5 million. The city's rebates through August total $23.6 million compared to $21.8 million during the same period in 1980, an 8.2 percent increase.

City sales taxes are collected along with the state's sales tax by merchants and businesses and rebated monthly by the Comptroller's office to the cities in which they are levied.

Rain Will Help Milo, Corn Crops

Hereford received an additional .30 of an inch of rain Monday night, bringing the total since Saturday to 2.03 inches and the August total to 6.80 inches. Meanwhile, Amarillo residents were threatened by raging flood waters as the area Monsoon-type weather continued, and Lake Meredith enjoyed a resurgence as the watershed filled up from the deluge.

ASCS director John Fuston said that he "hasn't heard any complaints" about the high amount of rain that's hit the area over the past 10 days, but added that the excess moisture may slightly affect area cotton crops.

"It could hurt cotton some, and we'd get a lot of stalks and not much cotton," Fuston said. "Plus, we've still got a few onions and potatoes that have to be harvested, and the farmers need to get into the field for those."

Fuston said area milo and corn crops should benefit greatly from the rain. "We've got a chance to make some excellent dryland milo crops," he said.

County-wide reports are "between six and eight inches," Fuston said. Dan Hall at Walcott reports 8.25 inches of rain for the month of August, while H.C. Hershey has had 6.3 inches during the month at his place northeast of town.

Flash flood watches covered much of the western Panhandle and Eastern New Mexico last night, and Lake Meredith was reportedly rising a half-inch an hour, and had risen over 11 feet within the past week.

Widely scattered thunderstorms were forecast for the entire Lone Star state today, with warnings of possibly heavy storms forecast for Southwest Texas today.

The official rainfall for Amarillo for the pat 24 hours was .47 of an inch, and the National Weather Service has recorded 3.51 inches of rain since Aug. 9.

Services Wednesday For Howard Gault

A longtime, prominent Hereford businessman, Howard W. Gault, 77, died early Sunday morning. He was owner of Howard Gault Co., a produce distributing company.

HOWARD GAULT

Funeral services have been scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday in First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Doug Manning, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiating. Arranements are by Gililland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Gault died in Deaf Smith General Hospital Sunday morning after a brief illness.

Born in Metz, Mo., he moved to Hereford in 1941 from Buhl, Id. He married Edna Cameron on March 18, 1928 in Pocatello, Id.

Grinding Crash

A head-on collision of two cars Saturday, about 6.5 miles south of Hereford, resulted in the death of a Vega man and serious injury to his daughter, and the serious injury of a Hereford man. Dead is James R. Scott, 48, a Vega farmer. His daughter, Susan Jean, 21, driver of one car, was seriously hurt. Clyde H. Gilliland, 72, of Hereford was also seriously hurt. Both of the injured were taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital Saturday and then transferred to an Amarillo hospital. (Brand Photo)

Vega Man Killed in Collision

A Vega man was killed and two other persons seriously injured in a head-on collision of two cars about noon Saturday 6.5 miles south of Hereford on US-385.

James R. Scott, 48, a Vega farmer and feedlot operator, was killed in the accident, and his daughter, Susan Jean Scott, 21, was seriously injured. She was taken to an Amarillo hospital.

Clyde Henry Gilliland, 72, of Hereford was also seriously injured in the mishap. He was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital and later transferred to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo with multiple cuts, a broken arm, two broken legs and broken ribs, according to the DPA officer.

The Hereford ambulance, transferring Gilliland to Amarillo, was in a minor accident there Saturday afternoon. A vehicle pulled out in front of an ambulance driven by J.W. Dickerson, causing heavy damage to the ambulance but no injuries were reported.

Since the accident occurred in Castro County, a highway patrolman from Dimmitt investigated the mishap. Officers said Gilliland was headed south and apparently was passing another vehicle when his car met the Scott car head-on. The Scott car was driven by Susan.

Traffic was blocked for a long period of time while rescue officials removed the wreck victims from the vehicles.

Funeral services for Scott were scheduled at 10 a.m. today in Vega United Methodist Church with the Rev. Steve Campbell, pastor, and the Rev. J.B. Fowler, pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Pampa, officiating.

Burial was to be in Memorial Park Cemetery in Amarillo by Griggs & Sons Funeral Directors. Survivors include his wife, Shirley; three daughters; his mother, and one brother and one sister.

Key Club Needs Help

HHS Key Club sponsor Gene Brock has expressd concern over the special storefront bunting decorations the Key Clubbers have been distributing the past few weeks. Strong winds have damaged some of the tie-downs on the bunting, and some vandalism has been occuring to them as well.

"We are asking the public to keep an eye out for any damaged bunting and for anyone vandalizing any of them," Brock said Monday. "The Key Club is liable for them, and we urge citizens to

Japan Wants No California Lemons

By The Associated Press

Japan wants no more California lemons or other fruit until the state solves its fruit fly problems, and California Republicans want no more of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., saying they'll try to impeach him unless he gives up control of the pest-eradication project.

Florida Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner, meanwhile, asked U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block to order the regulation of all California produce. Conner claims California was the source of the five Mediterranean fruit flies whose discovery in Florida led officials to quarantine 52 square miles of residential area near Tampa, just west of Florida's lucrative citrus belt.

Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Tommy Irvin said Monday he had asked Block

Two Men Get Probated Sentences In Gun Silencer Scheme

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge George E. Cire has sentenced two men to five-year probated sentences in connection with the May 6 seizure of 800 illegal gun silencers at a Houston airport.

Sentenced Monday were Aaron Phillip Knopps, 45, a Houston machinist, and Homer Gene Hawkins, 33, a Sugar Land welder, who pleaded guilty to one count of possession of the silencers in return for other possession, manufacturing and conspiracy charges.

Another Houston man, William Kimball, 37, is scheduled to stand trial in October.

Judge Cire said he was "originally inclined to impose prison terms" because of the seriousness of the charges. The probated sentences were granted because the men had no prior criminal record, he said.

The three men and two of their wives were arrested after 806 silencers were seized at Lakeside Airport, their homes and a west Harris County machine shop.

The charges resulted from a scheme to sell the silencers to federal Alchol, Tobacco and Firearms agents posing as smugglers, authorities said.

Governor Vetoes Airlines Resolution

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements vetoed a resolution approved by the secial session because he said it involved the Legislature in a "stock war" between Texas International Airlines and Continental Airlines.

The veto, the only one of the session, was signed Friday but not announced by his office until Monday.

The concurrent resolution, by Rep. Robert Valles, D-El Paso, put the Legislature on record as supporting employees of Continental Airlines in their efforts to acquire controlling interest of the firm through an employee stock ownership trust.

Clements said the resolution "places the Legislature squarely in the middle of a clash between corporations involved in a 'stock war.' ... This one deals with a Texas-based airline, Texas International Airlines, and a California-based airline, Continental Airlines. Both Continental and Texas International have provided good air service to Texas for many years. The matter is also currently in litigation," he said.

Testing Begins For Second Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Technicians hooked up ground-support electrical equipment and began data-processing and systems checks in a series of tests on the space shuttle Columbia that will continue through the beginning of next week.

The tests are to prepare the Columbia for its second flight into space Sept. 30. The reusable spacecraft spent more than two days in space in an April 12 mission.

Dick Young, a spokesman at Kennedy Space Center, said officials hope the tests can be completed in time to keep an Aug. 27 scheduled date for the shuttle's rollout to the launchpad.

Testing, which began Monday, is running about three days late because the mating of Columbia to its external fuel tank took longer than expected. The delay last week threw National Aeronautics and Space Administration technicians off their schedule.

Bush Blast Soviets At VFW Convention

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — To those who accuse the Reagan administration of endangering peace, Vice President George Bush says, "Nuts."

"If we spend billions on defense, on new weapons and manpower, it is in the hope that we will never have to fire one single shot. It's a lot less expensive than American lives," Bush said Monday in an address opening the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The vice president, skipping a meeting of the National Security Council in Los Angeles to honor his commitment to open the VFW's 82nd annual meeting, scoffed at Russian claims that beefing up U.S. defenses endangers world peace.

"Since when have we had anything to learn about peace from the Soviet Union?" Bush asked. "This is my answer to people who say that we're the big danger to peace, 'Nuts.'"

He brought roar after roar of approval from the crowd when he jabbed at Russia.

"If they're so in favor of peace, let them pull out of Afghanistan. They've got more than 85,000 troops in there, and not for any Boy Scout Jamboree," he said.

Reagan In History

We're almost too close to the first half-year of President Reagan fully to appreciate its historic significance.

At the moment, neither Tip O'Neill, the air traffic controllers, nor Washington newspeople seem to know what hit them.

The psychological influence of strong leadership has an inevitable impact on the numbers.

It is less because of anything he has done than because of the confidence he has inspired that Americans are betting on themselves again.

One year ago unemployment was 7.6 percent with 8 million people idle.

One year later only 7 percent are unemployed, only 7.5 million idle.

A year ago oil supplies were tight and prices high; today oil is plentiful and prices coming down.

Soaring food prices have stabilized.

High interest rates did not cause our economy to collapse, did knock some cents back into our dollar. The American dollar is relatively worth more than ever before compared to most European currencies.

This audit is not intended to justify Reaganomics, but to recognize that Reagan, as president, is doing all the things he has promised he would do since the beginning of his public life – and it's working!

He promised a woman and a constructionist on the Supreme Court and he gave us both in one.

He was and remains opposed to limitless government spending, high taxes and labor unions thumbing their noses at the public interest.

Until Reagan it was inconceivable that we could have severe recessions in both houses and cars and not crash.

It was inconceivable that a president could discipline a union and still retain public support.

It's as though we the people are catching up with where Ron Reagan has been all along – reflecting an attitude which Vermont Royster has called "enough is enough."

No president since FDR has so strengthened that office, so rallied the electorate to influence the Congress.

And as a bonus which makes us all stand taller, the impeccable example of our First Family begets new respect worldwide and renewed dignity stateside.

Mr. President – lead on!

to quarantine produce from counties bordering the areas in California that are known to be infested by the flies. There was no immediate response from Washington.

On Saturday, South Korea and Taiwan began accepting only treated grapes, citrus, pears and apples from California, said George Strathearn, chief deputy director of the state Food and Agriculture Department.

The Japanese Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries announced Monday in Tokyo the U.S. Embassy was informed Japan wants no citrus crops or other fleshy fruit from California, beginning Wednesday.

Japan already is refusing crops from a 2,427-square-mile quarantine area infested by the medfly, state Food and Agriculture Director Richard Rominger said. Japan is threatening to block the crops from the rest of the state until both sides agree on fumigation procedures.

But, Rominger said, "We don't have enough fumigation facilities to fumigate all the citrus.

"It would mean California citrus growers would have to find another market. It won't be that easy because citrus goes to all the markets that are available to it."

Negotiations were to continue today in Washington.

Scott Morse of the California Farm Bureau Federation said Japan had been expected to import $67 million worth of lemons this year in addition to $27 million worth of oranges, $14 million worth of grapefruit and $7 million worth of melons, grapes and avocados.

In Sacramento, Calif., Assembly Republican leader Carol Hallett said Monday an impeachment resolution against the Democratic governor was being drafted, and she would introduce it Thursday if Brown has not turned over control of the eradication program to qualified agricultural experts.

Brown's chief of staff, Gray Davis, called the threat "the basest form of political demagoguery."

Brock said the Key Club will make sure any damaged decorations are repaired promptly.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan are among the top officials who support the defense cuts, the source said.

On Monday in Los Angeles, however, Meese said the administration is prepared to spend as much money as it takes to strengthen the nation's defense.

"We're not going to be imprudent or be wild spenders," Meese said, "but we will do what is necessary to maintain the defensive capability."

Administration officials have said previously that cuts in Reagan's defense spending plan — the largest U.S. military buildup in history — would be needed to reduce projected deficits over the next few years.

However, the cuts to be unveiled today are considerably larger than those previously suggested and are certain to touch off vehement opposition from Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and the Pentagon establishment.

One senior Defense Department official, who asked not to be identified, vowed that the Pentagon would wage an all-out fight against reductions of that magnitude.

For most other government programs, a $20 billion to $40 billion reduction would be monumental. But for the military, a cut of that size is relatively small given the administration's plans to spend more than $1.6 trillion on defense between 1983 and 1987.

The administration's latest plans call for defense outlays of $225 billion in 1983 and $254 billion in 1984. Stockman's proposals would amount to reductions of less than 10 percent a year.

"We're talking about peanuts," the administration source said. "We're telling Defense we can no longer afford those additional luxuries."

Just last week, Reagan signed into law the budget and tax cuts he had sought from Congress. But he still must come up with $74 billion in spending reductions during 1983 and 1984 to bring the budget into balance for the first time since 1969.

The budget cuts approved by Congress are estimated to reduce federal spending by $140 billion over the next three years. That is not nearly enough to offset Reagan's plans for sharp defense increases and a tax cut that reduces government revenues by $280 billion through 1984.

From the start, Reagan's economic plan has required that he find additional savings beyond those already enacted to turn a projected $42.5 billion deficit for 1982 into a $500 million surplus by 1984.

However, administration economists no longer believe more sizable reductions can be found without cutting into the defense budget.

Social Security is the only other major area where significant savings are possible. Reagan already has proposed cuts in that popular program, but he drew a storm of protest in the process, raising doubts about whether he can persuade Congress to go along with Social Security cuts that voters would remember during the 1982 congressional elections.

If Reagan were to leave defense spending intact, budget officials say, the only alternative for balancing the budget would be to make 50 percent across-the-board cuts in domestic programs — a politically unrealistic scenario.

Even with defense cuts, the administration is growing increasingly pessimistic about its chances for balancing the budget. That is because higher-than-expected interest rates threaten to drive up spending while the prospect of slower-than-expected economic growth could produce less revenues.

Reagan has pledged to increase defense spending between 1980 and 1986 by 7 percent a year after adjusting for inflation.

Stockman planned to argue today that because of earlier miscalcuations, the defense buildup now exceeds the 7 percent annual target.

As a result, the defense budget can be stretched out over a longer period of time without jeopardizing specific programs or military objectives, according to budget officials.

Pentagon officials counter that a stretched-out budget plan leads to increased costs for building weapons. If there is to be a budget squeeze, these officials would rather drop programs than stretch them out.

Strike Not Causing Airplane Collisions

A fatal collision between two light airplanes in California and two incidents involving commercial jets in New Jersey and Florida were not related to the strike by air traffic controllers, federal and airline authorities said.

But officials with the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization hinted that the New Jersey and California incidents could have stemmed from inexperience in the tower.

Investigators sifted through the wreckage of a Cessna 172 two-seater and a Piper Cherokee to determine why the two planes collided above San Jose, Calif., Monday, killing one man and injuring two others.

The Cessna pilot, James Elbert Moses, 47, of Santa Clara, was killed, the coroner said. The Piper's pilot, Bruce Marlow, 25, of Los Altos, was hospitalized in fair condition, and a passenger, Robert Short, 54, of Mountain View, was treated and released.

The tower at the San Jose airport "had just cleared the 172 to land and the other plane had not contacted the tower for clearance," said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Alex Garvis.

In Washington, National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Ira Furman said preliminary indications were that the pilots were flying under visual flight rules and were not under jurisdiction of controllers' radar.

"They were talking to the tower, but they had the responsibility for separation between themselves," said an FAA spokesman at the airport, who declined to be identified.

Ken Huston, a spokesman for PATCO West, said the airport tower was being operated by six supervisors and six military personnel.

"I think that means the system was being operated by people who did not have the skills that the journeymen controllers have," he said.

Two Injured In Traffic Accident

A traffic accident at Greenwood and Moreman about noon Monday resulted in injuries in two persons.

Police reported that vehicles driven by Janice Bell of 246 Greenwood and Sarah Petree of 213 Ave. K were involved in the collision. Both were taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital, where Bell was reportedely treated and released. Petree was admitted and reported in stable condition this morning.

Police also reported that Estalla Gomez was taken to the local hospital yesterday with a stab wound in the leg. The investigating officer said she refused to give any information about the cause of the injury and did not want to file charges.

Police were called to investigate a case of an harrassing phone call, and four traffic citations were issued Monday.

Land and Water Farming Projects

By PENNY CRIBBS
County Extension Agent

Agriculture is moving in new directions which increased use of modern technology for innovative productive ways of farming – both on land and in water.

Youth in the national 4-H agricultural program already are exploring new concepts in agriculture and hydroponics, points out Penny, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The program is conducted by the Extension Service and supported by the International Harvester Co.

Youth in some states are experimenting with aquaculture or "fish farming." Using small, drainable, fresh water systems, like family ponds, 4-H'ers are raising catfish, bluegills and trout. Ponds are stocked with fingerlings in May and the fish harvested in Sepember. At the end of the season, youth sell the fresh fish to area restaurants, neighbors and friends, or keep them for family consumption.

4-H members also are experimenting with hydroponics, raising plants year-round in an environment without soil, notes Penny. Plants and vegetables, such as tomatoes, cucumbers and lettuce, are raised in a sterile environment, usually in a greenhouse, and various nutrients are added to the water.

4-H agricultural program members also are keeping abreast of new farming techniques on land. They are actively involved in agricultural innovations to increase efficiency and economy of farm management. One such project is intergrated pest menagement, where 4-H'ers study and survey fields to determine if and when spraying is necessary, says Penny.

International Harvester provides incentives and awards, arranged by the National 4-H Council, for members who excel in the agricultural program: medals of honor are presented to four members in each county; one 4-H'er from each state earns an expense-paid trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Ill.; and six outstanding 4-H members, named as national winners, receive $1,000 scholarships. Many IH dealers also serve as resource persons for local 4-H clubs.

Boys and girls, nine to 19, can obtain more information on 4-H programs by contacting the county Extension office, adds Penny.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

'Mule Train'

Colleen Keating did not let technical difficulties bother her too much as she "brought the house down" doing a pantomime of "Mule Train" at the Miss Hereford Pageant Saturday night. The crowd loved her pot belly, chaps on backwards and her crack of the whip. (Photo by Speedy Nieman)

At Wits Ena
By ERMA BOMBECK

A woman in Texas entered her apartment just in time to see a 165-pound burglar ripping off her fur coat.

She became incensed and took off after him in her two-inch wedge heels, apprehended him in less than block, and got her fur coat back.

I am sitting here trying to think what I have that I'd run after in two-inch wedge heels to get back.

Furs? Anything I own would serve the burglar right. The last time I wore my stole, a shag dashboard wanted to mate with it.

Jewelry? How excited can you get over a couple of pig pendants and a 40-wpm typing pin?

Appliances? What have they ever done for me? Take them. They're yours.

The truth is I've never been a materialistic person. I have never lived in a house where I could not pick up and move if I thought there was better plumbing at the end of the next rainbow.

I've never had a "favorite" dress, a "lucky" dinner ring, a "classic" car, or anything I valued as a "collector."

I've never had a painting that I was attached to or a hobby that had become priceless as a tax write-off.

I don't have a little gun loaded with little bullets by my little bedside. The only thing antique in the whole house is me and even that's sluggish market.

No. There are no bottles of Dom Perignon stored in the basement, no safes behind a fake copy of "War and Peace," and nothing in my medicine chest except three-year-old antihistamines and a rectal thermometer.

If you can find cash, it's yours. I have to write a check for postage due on an 18-cent letter. I guess you can safely assume there is nothing I would run down the middle of the street in pursuit of.

Unless...

No. No one would take my photo albums of the babies. C'mon. No one in this world is that mean. I would like to see a burglar get two feet with the only thing in my past worth saving or remembering. Not to see my daughter leaning over to smell the tullip in Grandma's backyard? Or my first son's holding the Dry Soap Award from camp? Or the baby sitting under a coffee table eating a raw potato?

Just try something! I'd destroy the intruder before he got to the door!

Ten Finalists

The judges at the Miss Hereford pageant Saturday night had a hard time choosing the top 10 finalists from the 26 beauties entered. In the pictures above are the top 10 after they were named. Miss Hereford Crown Comes As A Surprise To Miss Ulibarri

By LAVON NIEMAN

"Totally surprised" was Dana Ulibarri's comment when we asked her how she felt about winning the Miss Hereford Pageant Saturday night.

Dana is an accomplished violinist, playing in the Hereford High School Orchestra, but because she thought the audience would like a country "fiddling" tune better, she learned "Milk Cow Blues" and "Barlows Cabbage Down" to play as her talent. Sure enough, the audience showed their approval, and evidently the judges did, too.

Dana's sister, Delfine Mazzamuto, who was Miss Hereford in 1976, was at the pageant and tuned her fiddle for her. Her talent had been playing the violin when she won. She went on to Texas Tech after high school and is graduating with a degree in All Level Art Education Wednesday. Delfine has a daughter and she and her husband will be living in Houston after her graduation.

Dana and Delfine are the Ulibarri's only two children. Dana was born in Hereford and finally got a touch of how it feels to live in the "city" this summer when she attended Texas Tech in Lubbock the first semester and earned seven hours. She plans to go back to Tech and major in Spanish and minor in Italian, so she can later become an interpreter.

Dana said she thought the whole week preceding the pageant was super and really well organized. "The women who worked with us were great," she said. This was her first time to enter the pageant.

Dana stands 5 feet, 4 inches and has brown hair and brown eyes. She is a 1981 graduate of HHS and was a cheerleader. Among her other honors and awards are junior varsity cheerleader, drill team, orchestra treasurer, National Honor Society student of the six weeks, student council, and student board to the superintendent.

Jubilee Features Western Artists

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center will sponsor a two day art exhibit Friday and Saturday featuring Texas Women Western Artists. TWWA is a professional women's artist organization with headquarters in Cresson, near Fort Worth.

Site for the art show will be in the Hall of Fame which is located downstairs at the Deaf Smith County Library. The center will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Twenty-two artists will display 110 pieces of art, which will include oil, water color and bronze sculpture.

The exhibit is in conjunction with the Hereford Town and Country Jubilee and All Girl Rodeo.

TWWA, which features a statewide membership, stresses recognition of talented women artists in a variety of mediums. Jean Lyles, artist and owner of Texas Gallery and Frames in Hereford, will be one of the 21 artists to display her art.

Hereford State Bank and First National Bank have provided a showplace for the group's art this week before the official opening of the exhibit Friday. Also on display at both banks is the painting which will be given away at the rodeo to the lucky ticket holder. Tickets are available at both banks and the Hall of Fame for $3 each.

After their art exhibition here, TWWA has scheduled its Second Annual Statewide Show in Cresson during the month of October. Also confirmed by TWWA state director is an art exhibit next February at the Greer Garson Theater in Santa Fe, N.M., sponsored by the Business and Professional Women of that city.

TWWA's recent show at the Capitol Rotunda in Austin was met with high praise by many in attendance. An offer for a future exhibit in Washington, D.C. came from the successful Austin show.

Ann Landers

Put Up A Fight

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a single woman who works as a waitress. I get off at midnight and have to walk three long blocks from the bus to my apartment. Three of the girls I work with have been raped on their way to or from work in the last six months. I am petrified that it might happen to me.

I carry a can of Mace in my pocket and an icepick, too. Frankly, I doubt that I would have the nerve to use the icepick. As for the Mace, I don't think I would have the presence of mind to use that either.

Some articles on rape say if a woman is attacked she is better off to submit – that her chances for being beat up or killed are greatly reduced if she does as she is told and doesn't put up a fight. Other articles say just the opposite. I am terribly confused and hope you will settle this matter once and for all. I am going to follow your advice, no matter what it is. – N.Y. Worry

DEAR N.Y.: I'm with Dr. Mary Conroy who teaches at California State University in Los Angeles. She advises, "Kick him in the scrotum. Geouge his eyes out. Slash him in the Adam's apple. Scream! Shriek!" Dr. Conroy claims that the more noisy you make, the better your chances for escaping the would-be attacker.

I consulted with several authorities in law enforcement and almost all agreed that women who were submissive or begged to be let go accomplished nothing. Would-be rapists are mean and single-minded. They do not respond to tears or pleas for mercy. (Also, many are doped-up and off their rockers.)

So, N.Y. and any other woman who is faced with the decision: Put up a fight and yell your head off. It's your best bet.

And now an additional word, in case you lose. I implore you to go at once to the nearest telephone and call the police. They will come and take you to a hospital where you will be cared for immediately. Give as detailed a description of the rapist as possible. And, please, please, accept the offer for counseling. Rape is a hideous experience that can leave scars on the psyche that never heal unless the victim ventilates her feelings of violation and purges herself of the rage. The sooner after the incident, the better.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is becoming depressed because he is going bald. Phil has sent away for over $500 worth of tonics, lotions, creams and massagers. (He even tried sheep dung.) It is pathetic to watch him examining his scalp every night to see if anything new is coming up.

I have read up on balding patterns and know it is almost always inherited. Maybe if Ann Landers says in her column these hair-raisers do NOT help he'll believe it. Please say so. – Beaumont, Tex.

DEAR BEAU: Those "hair-raisers" DO help – the people who sell them. They get rich because people like Phil want so desperately for them to work.

Suggest that he consider a custom hairpiece. Not every man can wear one successfully, but some look so much like the real thing it is virtually impossible to tell the difference.

Another possibility is a transplant. This procedure is costly and NOT pain-free. If he decides to do it, he should go to someone whose work he has seen and admires. A botched job can be worse than baldness.

Off And Running

Whiteface gridders didn't let damp weather deter their mile run Monday morning as the Herd opened fall drills. After a brief check of each player's increase in strength, the 'Faces turned a quick mile as the coaching staff timed them. About 125 players showed up for the first day of drills Monday. Joe Soliz clocked the fastest mile of the day with a time of 5:00 flat. (Brand Photo by Bob Nigh).

Vargas, Grimsley Over-Take Hereford Tennis Tournament

Pudgy Vargas turned the Hereford Closed Tennis Tournament into a near monologue last weekend, winning three titles during the meet. And, while Vargas was definitely the star of the show, Karen Grimsley turned in a stellar performance as supporting actress, winning a pair of crowns herself.

Vargas won the Men's A Singles title in a 6-2, 6-0 win over former coach Robert Cox, and then teamed with Cox to take the Men's A Doubles championship over the team of Dave Hopper-Dave Zinser by a 6-4, 6-4 count.

Vargas and Miss Grimsley defeated Cox-Carol Zinser 6-3, 6-2 for the A Mixed Doubles crown, and Miss Grimsley captured her second first place with a win in the Women's A Singles with a 17-9 record in a round robin affair.

YMCA director Weldon Knabe shook off a challenge by Charles Gilliam to take the Men's B Singles title in a 1-6, 6-2, 7-5 marathon, and Morris Blankenship-John Perrin won the Men's B Doubles crown in a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 win over Julius Bodner-James Williams.

Consolation winners in the tournament included Adolpho Garcia in Men's A Singles, Chick Russell-Jim Easley in Men's A Doubles, Monty Hutto in Men's B Singles, Donny Anderson-Eddie Aguilar in Men's B Doubles, and Gloria Easley in Women's A Singles. In addition, Susan Grimsley took second in the fem A Singles division.

One title is yet to be determined in the tourney. The Women's A Doubles was postponed by rain in the latter stages over the weekend, and again Monday afternoon. Play was to be completed tonight, pending the weather according to Knabe.

Morgan 'Not Just Another Joe'

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

He isn't just another Joe in a baseball uniform.

"Joe Morgan," says Pittsburgh Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner, "that's the old pro."

Though a loser Monday night, Tanner could still appreciate Morgan's artistry after the gritty little second baseman led the San Francisco Giants to a 5-1, 11-inning victory.

Morgan not only delivered a three-run double in the 11th inning to break the game open, but also contributed two key defensive plays for the Giants.

"He's worth his weight in gold," said Giant Manager Frank Robinson of Morgan, even though he began the night batting .239.

With the score tied 1-1 in the Pirate ninth, Morgan snared a leadoff line drive by Tim Foli. With two Pirates on base and one out in the bottom of the 11th, Morgan dived behind second base to grab a hard grounder by Lee Lacy and threw to second base for a key forceout.

"He's done that many times," said Tanner, "more times than I can remember."

In other National League action, Chicago beat Los Angeles 3-1; Montreal stopped Houston 6-2 and St. Louis nipped San Diego 2-1 in 13 innings.

Street Champ

Hereford's George Pacheco drove his Chevy Nova Wagon to the Street Division title at the NHRA Western Conference Championships in Amarillo last weekend. Pacheco qualified for the bracket finals with his win. (SPL).

Local Drag Racer Pacheco Street Division Champ

Hereford drag racer George Pacheco drove to the Street Divison championship at the NHRA Western Conference Championship last weekend in Amarillo. Pacheco, sponsored by Jerry's Automotive of Dimmitt, drove his Chevy II Nova Wagon to the street title, earning himself a spot in the bracket finals at Green Valley's Race City in early October.

Other winners at the races last weekend included Gary Stanley of Leveland in Super-Pro Division; Aubrey Scott of Fort Worth in Pro Division; and Otis McLearer of Comanche, Okla. in the Heavy Division.

SWC Football Series

Defending Champions Bears As Dangerous As Namesake

WACO, Texas (AP) — Baylor's backfields ensure the Southwest Conference defending champion Bears of being just as dangerous this year as their namesake.

Offensively, Baylor can claw you with the likes of running back Walter Abercrombie, a third team AP All-American and 1,000-yard gainer, fullback Dennis Gentry, a blocking demon who can pickup tough inside yardage, and young meteorite Alfred Anderson, a sophomore swiftie who has been moved from running back to wingback.

Controlling this rocketry will be steady Jay Jeffrey, a concensus All-SWC quarterback last year.

Defensively, Baylor returns a secondary that led the nation in pass thievery last season headed by third-team All-American selection Vann McElroy, a heady free safety, plus Scott Smith, Cedrick Mack and Vic Vines.

"The backfields are our strengths," said Coach Grant Teaff. "We have great depth in our offensive backfield particularly at quarterback. Mike Brannan and David Mangrum will push Jeffrey hard for the starting job. We could also be strong in the offensive line...it could turn out to be a real bonus for us."

The Bears must depend on newcomers for linebacking help because such stars as All-American Mike Singletary, Lester Ward, and Doak Field have gone on to professional football.

"Linebacker is our biggest concern," said Teaff. "However, we have some excellent prospects such as Greg Gibson, Geff Gandy and Steve Malpass."

The Bears' SWC schedule opens softly with Lamar, Bowling Green and Louisiana Tech, not exactly national titans. They must travel to Houston, Arkansas and Texas once the conference schedule begins.

Teaff said the schedule "is not conducive to winning another Southwest Conference championship. Last year was just the opposite. We have all of the toughies at home and it really helped us. This year we'll have to learn to win the tough ones on the road."

"I know last year, after we beat Houston, it gave me a very good feeling because we had cleared a very big hurdle in beating the defending champs."

Warnings of Another Black Sox Scandal, With LaRussa in Middle

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Sinister warnings of another Black Sox scandal are going out across the land and pretty soon you may find little kids sadly beseeching Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa (as an urchin once did Shoeless Joe Jackson after the sullied 1919 World Series):

"Say it ain't so, Tony, say it ain't so."

You could even write a song with woeful lyrics like that. Come to think of it, somebody did.

LaRussa is the innocent middle man in a series of blunders that baseball's architects made in hurriedly trying to get the game back on track after a frustrating seven-week player strike over the free-agent compensation issue.

In a closeted meeting of baseball's biggest brains — from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to the league presidents, their lawyers and statistical whizzes, it was determined that the season be cut in half. The pre-strike divisional winners — the Phillies, Dodgers, Yankees and A's — would play second half winners except where one team won both division titles. Then, the double winner would go against the club in its division with the highest winning percentage for the year.

It took a trio of alert sports writers — Joe Falls and Jerry Green of the Detroit News and Dave Nightingale of the Sporting News — to discover that there was a bug in the ointment.

It was possible, they told everybody within earshot in Cleveland 10 days ago, for a circumstance to arise in the closing week of the season whereby a team could profit by purposely losing a game or games and sneak into the playoffs through the back door.

It took LaRussa to trigger some action.

The most obvious threat was in the American League East where the Yankees, Orioles and Tigers could be involved in a neck-and-neck race at the end with Baltimore playing Detroit Sept. 28, 29, 30 and New York Oct. 2, 3, 4.

Hypothetically, the situation could exist that the Orioles, for example, would not be in a position to clinch the second-half title outright, and would benefit by allowing the Yankees to win the second leg as they did the first. This might put the Orioles into the playoffs on an overall overall record.

Agreed, this is all hypothetical but it's mathematically feasible in other divisions as well. It's too dangerous a boil for baseball to allow to get to a head.

So back to the drawing board.

The most ludicrous aspect of this comic opera was the horror with which some people greeted LaRussa's statement that if it came to the choice of winning a final season series or assuring his team a playoff spot he would take the latter.

"The key word is 'win,'" explained LaRussa, a licensed attorney in Florida. "The purpose of the game is to win and get in the World Series. I couldn't purposely deprive our players of that."

Most clear-thinking managers and players agreed despite the ugly connotation of "throwing a game." If baseball should choose to leave open such an escape hatch, who can blame anyone from taking it?

A lot of critics suddenly became overly sanctimonious.

A national TV network raised ghosts of the Black Sox scandal, in which Shoeless Joe and other White Sox players were banished for life 61 years ago for allegedly fixing the World Series against the Cincinnati Reds.

Over on the New York Yankee mike, Phil Rizzuto and Bill White questioned LaRussa's judgment and carried on a colloquay of dire consequences.

"Anybody throwing a game ought to be expelled," said Rizzuto.

"All 25 players?" asked White.

"All 25," said Rizzuto. "The credibility of the game is in enough trouble as it is."

LaRussa acknowledged that reaction has been monumental and mixed.

"Some said it was good that I called attention to the flaw in the playoff plan," he said. "Others agreed with me. There were others, who didn't understand, who blistered me for suggesting such an idea.

"I was victim of a scare newspaper headline. It said I favored throwing a game. I never said or meant that. I would forfeit the game. I couldn't, in clear conscience, put a team on the field and tell the guys to lose. I couldn't and I wouldn't."

Who Am I?

In the 1960s, I spent a pair of seasons with the Kansas City A's before retiring. Yeah, I was getting slow. But I managed to bounce an inside-the-park homer past Mickey Mantle in Yankee Stadium — an ironic way to say goodbye.

ANSWER: Hank Bauer, an outfielder for the Yankees (1948-1959) and A's (1960-61). He managed in Kansas City (1961-63), Baltimore (1964-68) and Oakland (1969).

Seahawks Release Bill Gregory

By The Associated Press

The age old war of football experience vs. the value of youth has claimed another victim — Bill Gregory of the Seattle Seahawks.

Gregory, a 10-year National Football League veteran, was waived Monday by the Seahawks and he was quick to point out that his age had to be a factor in the decision.

"I had a feeling they wanted to move somebody else into my starting position," said the 31-year-old defensive end. "But I felt before and I still feel I can play football, that I can still rush the passer."

Gregory, a graduate of Wisconsin, wasn't quite ready for the harshness of a preseason release.

"You see it happen to other people every year, but you seem to think it will always happen to the other person," he said. "It's just like death."

What kind of future lies ahead for Gregory depends on Gregory, himself and the NFL general managers.

As down as Gregory is, Fred Anderson is up.

Anderson displaced Gregory on the Seattle defensive line.

The Prairie View A&M graduate impressed head Coach Jack Patera after he was acquired on waivers from Cincinnati last year.

Anderson now joins Jacob Green, Manu Tuiasosopo and Robert Hardy on the Seahawks' front four.

The Seahawks also released former Notre Dame running back Al Hunter.

There were other veterans who felt the blade of the cut and the Washington Redskins led the way releasing a number of experienced players.

First-year head Coach Joe Gibbs asked waivers on running backs Ike Forte and Bobby Hammond, linebacker Dallas Hickman, and wide receivers Jon McDaniel and Zion McKinney. The Redskins also released 14 other players and placed veteran cornerback Ray Waddy on the physically-unable-to-perform list.

Other veterans of note released by their teams included, San Diego punter Rick Partridge; Minnesota wide receiver Kevin Miller; Baltimore defensive end Ron Fernandes; Green Bay linebacker Jim Gueno; running back Don Woods by San Francisco; defensive backs Dave Becker and Wentford Gaines by Chicago.

Miami running back Delvin Williams headed a list of players placed on reserved lists.

The Dolphins placed Williams on the reserved, did-not-report list, while Tampa Bay put nose tackle Randy Crowder on injured reserve along with strong safety Mark Cotney.

The New York Jets placed second-round draft pick Marion Barber, a running back from Minnesota, on the injured reserve. Barber sustained a concussion in a training camp collision with teammate John Woodring.

Baseball Leaders Meet To Revise Plan For Play-Offs

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and presidents Chub Feeney of the National League and Lee MacPhail of the American League hope to announce, before the end of the week, a revised plan for determining which teams will qualify for the post-season playoffs.

The three met Monday and, according to a spokesman for Kuhn's office, the announcement could come as early as today.

Feeney had said earlier Monday, "We want to get this thing settled as soon as possible."

They discussed ways of closing the loopholes in the split-season plan, which was intended to revive interest in baseball in as many cities as possible, as quickly as possible, after the 50-day strike.

The plan was agreed upon by the owners after the strike was settled. Both leagues accepted the plan as did the players, but according to Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, the plan was news to the players.

"We heard about this split-season idea for the first time on that last Thursday of the negotiations," said Miller, referring to the lengthy bargaining session that began on July 30 and, after more than 12 hours, produced an agreement ending the strike.

There were no miracles for baseball and gaping holes were exposed in the second season format.

Under the plan, the division leaders at the time of the strike were declared winners of the first part of the season and the second part was set up as a separate entity, with the winners of the two sections meeting in best-of-five, intra-divisional playoffs. If the same team won both sections, it was to face the team in its division with the next-best overall record.

However, that left open the ominous prospect of a team purposely losing games in order to improve its chances at a playoff berth. It would take an intricate and unlikely set of circumstances for that to occur, but the mere fact that it is a possibility cast a shadow dark enough to prompt officials to re-evaluate the arrangement.

The situation was brought to a head when Managers Tony LaRussa of the Chicago White Sox and Whitey Herzog of the St. Louis Cardinals both spoke openly about their opinions of the plan.

Both said that since their primary responsibility was to get their teams into the playoffs, they would forfeit games if that would increase their chances. Those comments quickly provoked a response from Kuhn, who pledged to change or "adjust" the system.

There are other options available to the owners.

One would be to scrap the split-season concept and pick up the standings as they were before the strike. That plan would hurt the teams who were well behind at the time of the strike.

Another option would be to keep the idea of a split season but to change the playoff system.

If a team were to win both sections, a bye could be given or the double winner could face the runnerup in the second part of the season. That would provide incentive for a team to win as many games as possible in the rernainder of the season.

Solid Defense Bolsters '81 Nebraska Huskers

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The University of Nebraska defense was one of the best in 1980 college football, ranking third nationally in total defense, third in rushing defense and second in points surrendered.

But ninth-year Coach Tom Osborne says the 1981 edition of the "Blackshirt" defense, with nine returning starters, including an end who can outrun every offensive back on the team, might be better.

Defensive end Jimmy Williams, a 6-foot-3, 225-pound senior, is the fastest player on the squad with 4.4 speed over 40 yards. He dropped opposing backs for 137 yards in losses with a team-leading 72 tackles in 1980 and was named Most Valuable Lineman in the Cornhuskers' Sun Bowl victory over Mississippi State.

Osborne says the only problems he foresees defensively are developing depth from untried younger players and finding an end to replace graduated Derrie Nelson at the flank opposite Williams.

He didn't mention the loss of defensive coordinator Lance Van Zandt, who went to the New Orleans Saints after four campaigns at Nebraska. Osborne didn't name a new defensive coordinator.

Tackles Henry Waechter and Toby Williams and nose guard Curt Hineline return in the defensive line, as do Steve Damkroger and Steve McWhirter at linebacker.

In the secondary, starters Rodney Lewis, Ric Lindquist and Sammy Sims are back. The other spot probably will go to Jeff Krejci, a battle-tested reserve a year ago.

Most of Osborne's questions are with the offense, where he must replace running backs Jarvis Redwine and Andra Franklin, both second-round draft picks by the National Football League.

Only third-string I-back Roger Craig, a junior, has playing time under his belt. But saying Craig was a third-string back is a bit deceiving. Despite playing behind Redwine and Craig Johnson, Craig rushed for 782 yards and scored 90 points, good enough to tie him for sixth place nationally in scoring.

The quarterback situation is up in the air. Mark Mauer, backup to senior Jeff Quinn last year, finished spring practice No.1 on the depth chart. But strong challenges are expected from Nate Mason, Turner Gill and Bruce Mathison, especially Gill.

Franklin's fullback spot will be filled by Phil Bates and Mark Moravec, a pair of reserves who saw clean-up duty last year.

Osborne said the quarterback situation will have to develop rapidly to take advantage of excellent receivers in split end Todd Brown, wingback Anthony Steels and tight end Jamie Williams.

Unlike last year, Osborne will return a veteran offensive line.

"Offensively, we feel the line should be awfully strong," he says. Osborne labels center Dave Rimington and tackle Dan Hurley as "very solid." Rimington and tackle Randy Theiss were starters last year as sophomores, a rarity in the Nebraska line.

The Huskers open with Iowa, then meet Florida State, Penn State and Auburn before jumping into Big Eight competition.

Nebraska has a tough conference road schedule, playing defending champ Oklahoma and perennial contender Missouri away from home.

CFA Changes Strategy Against NCAA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Three days before the showdown vote over television controls, the College Football Association has apparently switched strategy in its fight against the NCAA.

Meanwhile, cross-country telephone calls have been going out from presidents of Pac-10 and Big Ten schools urging support for the NCAA in what one termed "a critical time for collegiate athletics."

The 61-member CFA, a dissident group of major and would-be major football powers, will vote in Atlanta Friday on ratification of a four-year deal with NBC for football telecasts. The NCAA has already reached agreement with CBS and ABC for the same period, and other NCAA members, including the Big Ten and Pac-10, insist that disciplinary proceedings will be launched against CFA schools that adopt their NBC plan.

This could lead to a split from the NCAA, with consequences CFA and NCAA backers alike say could be destructive to sports programs.

At issue is control of football television rights. The CFA includes all top independents and five conferences, the Big Eight, Southeastern, Southwest, Atlantic Coast and Western Athletic.

Charles M. Neinas, executive director of the CFA, said when he announced the NBC deal the decision would be made by each school's president, in line with the concept of "institutional control." Neinas said at the time each CFA school would cast a vote at the Atlanta meeting.

However, sources told the Associated Press Monday the CFA is now trying to line up block voting among the conferences. The Southwest and Western Athletic conferences in particular are divided on the issue, sources said. It will be up to the conferences themselves whether to vote as a block or individually.

"The statement released by the Pac-10 and Big Ten presidents over the weekend apparently caught some CFA people off guard," said a source who asked not to be identified. "And those presidents are busy on the phones to CFA presidents urging them to turn down the NBC deal and defuse a catastrophic situation. But if the CFA got the Big Eight, Southeastern and Southwest conferences to vote as a block, that's 27 right there, and they could carry it with just four independents."

After a meeting in Denver Saturday, the Pac-10 and Big Ten presidents issued a public statement reaffirming their support of the NCAA, saying, "... efforts by member institutions or groups of institutions to embark on ventures outside the established national structure to which they belong threaten grave consequences potentially harmful to intercollegiate sports, to valued relationships and to higher education generally."

"They're busy on the phones, calling presidents at the CFA schools," said the source. "It's not an organized campaign, where everybody's got a list to contact. They're just contacting the ones they know personally, or have a good working relationship with."

After the Friday vote in Atlanta, there is to be a three-week period in which schools can change their ballots.

Bum Phillips' Revenge Against Houston Oilers Coming True

By The Associated Press

Bum Phillips' chance for revenge against the Houston Oilers is like a box office success — there will be a Part II.

Phillips, coach of the New Orleans Saints, watched his new team beat his old team 27-7 in a National Football League exhibition game Saturday night. Phillips knows it doesn't count, but he also knows he will get another chance Nov. 22 in a regular-season game.

A victory in November could be very sweet for Phillips, fired by the Oilers at the end of the 1980 season.

Also on Saturday night it was San Diego 31, San Francisco 28; Los Angeles 33, Dallas 21; Miami 24, Denver 14; Philadelphia 36, Pittsburgh 20; Green Bay 34, Oakland 14; Cleveland 13, Buffalo 10; Cincinnati 30, Detroit 20; New England 17, Tampa Bay 16; Atlanta 21, the New York Jets 20; Kansas City 13, Chicago 0, and the New York Giants 20, Baltimore 17. On Friday night it was Washington 27, Minnesota 13, and St. Louis 30, Seattle 21.

Saturday night the Saints received excellent performances from three of their high draft choices. Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers, the first player taken in the NFL draft, scored touchdowns on bursts of three yards and one yard.

Quarterback David Wilson, taken in the first round of a supplementary draft, hit wide receiver Wes Chandler on a 17-yard scoring toss. Houston's only score came on a 1-yard run by Earl Campbell in the second quarter.

San Diego beat the 49ers as Dan Fouts and Ed Luther combined for completions on 28 of 33 passes for 358 yards and two touchdowns, the latter a deflected pass that wound up as a 73-yard play.

Pat Haden bounced back from a horrendous showing the previous week to lead the Rams over the Cowboys. Haden, who was intercepted four times in the first half of last week's 34-21 loss to New England, completed 17 of 25 passes for 205 yards against the Cowboys.

Don Strock, still the No.2 quarterback behind David Woodley, was impressive in Miami's victory over Denver.

Tony Franklin kicked field goals of 44, 47 and 49 yards as Philadelphia beat the Steelers.

Lynn Dickey threw for 143 yards and one touchdown, a 65-yard pass play to James Lofton, and rookie Rich Campbell guided Green Bay on a 70-yard scoring drive in the fourth quarter, capped by Eric Torkelson's 1-yard TD plunge as the Packers beat Oakland.

Tigers Aim to Sweep Twins

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers want to move into first place, and they figure the Minnesota Twins represent the most immediate obstacle in their path.

And the Tigers, after beating the New York Yankees three straight times, crushed Minnesota Monday night to move to within a half game of American League East leader Milwaukee.

"We want to sweep a team like Minnesota, so everybody came out swinging the bats and we got a few breaks," said Detroit pitcher Dan Petry.

Scoring eight runs in the first inning, the Tigers romped over the Twins 12-2.

In other games in an abbreviated American League schedule Monday, the Chicago White Sox stopped the Yankees 4-1 and Kansas City toppled Toronto 5-3.

Milwaukee at Texas was postponed by rain and will be made up as part of a doubleheader tonight.

Petry, who raised his record to 5-6, limited the Twins to just four hits over the first six innings before reliever Dave Rosema worked the final three innings.

The big hit in the first-inning outburst was a high fly ball by Alan Trammell that Minnesota center fielder Mickey Hatcher lost in the lights. The ball dropped in for a three-run double.

Kirk Gibson, whose three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth Sunday night lifted Detroit to its victory over the Yankees, and Lance Parrish had three singles each as the Tigers raked three Minnesota pitchers for 15 hits.

IT PAYS TO SHOP IN THE HEREFORD BRAND

LEGAL NOTICE
The Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, Inc. P.O. BOx 753, Hereford, Texas 79045, is making an application for a loan from Rural Electrification Administration which provides for the construction of approximately 12.5 miles of 69 KV transmission line. This line will be along a general point beginning approximately eight and one-half (8½) miles South of Summerfield, Texas, in Castro County; thence North, adjacent to Farm to Market Road 1057 along the East side to a point approximately two and one-half (2½) miles North of Summerfield, Texas, in Deaf Smith County, thence West on the North side of county road approximately one and one-half (1½) miles.

These facilities will help make it possible for the Cooperative to comply with our power supplier's requirements, thus insuring adequate capacity for the increasing demand for electric power. If there are any comments on the environmental aspects of the proposed construction, it should be submitted to the Cooperative on or before September 17, 1981. Additional information may be obtained at the Cooperative office at the above address.

Cummings Celebrate 67th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. O.C. Cummings celebrated their 67th anniversary Sunday. A dinner was held in the home of their daughter Lois McDermitt. Another daughter, Mrs. Raymond Dement of Roswell, N.M. and her three children attended.

Open house was held at the couples home at 510 Ave. K Sunday afternoon. Friends and relatives visited.

Mr. Cummings entertained his visitors by playing his Violin.

The couples are both 85 years old and were married in Hereford on Aug. 16, 1914. Although they did not live here at that time. They came to Hereford in 1945. After working for Phillips Petroleum, he worked as a millwright here in Hereford. She worked for the HISD Cafeteria. They are both retired.

They have a son, Raymond, who lives in Lander, Wyo. They also have another daughter, Mrs. Ernest Neff from McAllen. The couple had nine children, five are deceased. They have 22 grandchildren and 22 great grandchildren.

And The Winner Is...

As Dana Ulibarri was named Miss Hereford Saturday night, the remaining finalists show their approval. Miss Ulibarri was a crowd pleaser playing her fiddle for talent. On the right, 1980 Miss Hereford Diane Warden has just crowned the new Miss Hereford and presented her with the official crown. She was also presented a beautiful silver tray and a dozen red roses, along with $600 cash. (Photos by Speedy Nieman)

Allsup's Graduates Assistant Manager

Amalia Mendoza received her diploma recently from Gary Whittington, instructor, for successfully completing the Allsup's Assistant Store Manager Training Course.

Held at the company's home offices in Clovis, N.M., the class is a requirement for all Allsup's assistant managers.

According to Whittington, "The training prepares individuals for future advancement by teaching them proper food handling, cooked food procedures, store cleanliness and maintenance as well as public relations. It's designed to produce a more professional employee who can better serve the customer and community."

Ms. Madoza is employed at the Allsup's store at 529 Avenue H, Hereford, as manager.

Large Crowds Expected To Cheer Ducks

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

DEMING, N.M. (AP) — The town of Deming is going to the ducks.

More than 400 ducks, and about 10,000 people, are expected to show up in the town this weekend for what Chief Quacker Steve Marlowe bills as the "World's Richest Duck Race." Marlowe, a Deming realtor, said the first place duck, and his coach, of course, will get a $1,500 prize. And that's something to quack about.

The race is the brainchild of Marlowe and Harold Cousland, editor of the Deming Headlight, who organized it in six weeks last year.

"One Saturday morning after spending Friday night in a local bar stacking cigarette lighters and beer cans into pyramids, Steve said, 'There's got to be something more than this to do in a little town,'" Cousland recounted. "He remembered hearing about a duck race in a bar in Las Vegas and thought we ought to have one here. He got real mad when I kept laughing.

"The committee was formed a week later," he said.

This year, the duck committee started organizing the event in April to get everything prepared. Local and area businesses are sponsoring the event, which already has led to the booking of nearly every hotel room in the town of 12,000.

The races are held at the Luna County Courthouse Park. Entrants are placed in 16-foot-long track enclosed with "duck" wire, Cousland said. The ducks' coaches are allowed to run along narrow tracks atop the cages, shouting encouragement to their protegies.

The winners are recorded with an electronic laser-like timer and Cousland said videotape will be used this year "in case we need an instant replay."

Another addition will be the Governor's Cup race, which will pit the representatives of New Mexico's many gubernatorial candidates in a war of the webbed feet, Marlowe said.

He said current Gov. Bruce King won't be allowed to participate. "No lame ducks," he said.

Continuing from last year will be the Duck Queen pageant on Saturday night after the Duck Ball. In the pageant, human females in their flashiest feathered finery compete for the approval of the judges.

Preceding the Sunday races will be the Best Dressed Duck contest, which includes categories such as "Tastiest Looking Duck," Marlowe said.

Last year's race winner was Duc Andra owned by Tommy Brdecko of Deming, who finished in 1.966 seconds. Marlowe said Brdecko will be entering Duc Andra II this year.

"We still think we've got the fastest ducks in the world right here in Deming," he said.

That statement will not go unchallenged, however.

Marlowe said a man in Nephi, Utah, recently called and "wanted us to let him use a drag chute to stop his duck. He said it was so fast it burned off some of its breast feathers."

Cousland said proceeds from last year's tongue-in-beak race went to buy bleachers for the county park. This year, more money is expected as well as more fun, he said.

"With all of the bad news that's out, people are looking for something that is sheer nonsense," Cousland said. "We've never tried to pretend it's anything more than sheer nonsense."

The U.S. Coast Guard was created in 1790, when the first Congress authorized the construction of 10 vessels for the collection of revenue.

The Annual Report of the U.S. Commissioner of Pensions for 1874 notes that "With the death of Daniel T. Bakeman, of Freedom, Cattaraugas County, New York, April 5, 1868, the last of the pensioned soldiers of the Revolution passed away."

Firing Squads Execute 25 More

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iranian firing squads worked overtime executing 25 more foes of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime, and more than 160 more prospects for the executioners were rounded up in the provinces, the official Iranian media reported.

Twenty-three of those executed were members of the "central committee" of Mujahedeen Khalq, Iran's largest leftist underground movement, Tehran Radio said Monday. It said they were condemned to death for "waging war against God and God's prophet."

Two other people convicted of setting an explosion at an official's house were executed Sunday night in Larestan, the government radio said.

This brought to at least 422 the number of people executed since the Moslem fundamentalists of the Islamic Republican Party engineered the ouster of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr on June 21.
