HALF MILLION GREET AL AT BOSTON

Posse Arms After Rochester Man And Son Are Slain At Home

OFFICERS HUNT NIGHT CALLER AT RESIDENCE

D. W. and Earl Hamilton Are Killed After Man Asks to Talk

150 MEN IN SEARCH

Wife of Victim Tells Of Conversation Held On Front Porch

A man was arrested early Friday morning by Blackie Wilson, deputy constable, and was placed in the county jail for questioning in connection with the shooting Thursday night of D. W. Hamilton and his son, Earl, at Rochester.

ROCHESTER, Texas, Oct. 24.—Dudley W. Hamilton, 48, prominent farmer, and his son, Earl Hamilton, 17, were shot to death at their home one and one-half miles southeast of Rochester tonight after a man had called them outside of their house to "talk."

An armed posse of 150 men, led by officers from Rochester, Haskell, Rule, Knox City and Benjamin were searching for Will Fritz after reports of the killing had been broadcast by telephone to all neighboring towns and other points in Texas.

Fritz resides several miles west of Rochester.

Killed Instantly

The elder Mr. Hamilton was shot while he sat on the front porch of his home and his son was killed as he ran into the yard as several shots were fired at him. Both died without making any statement.

Mrs. Hamilton reported to officers that a man came to the house and called out. Mr. Hamilton answered the summons of the caller, who said he wanted to talk to Earl Hamilton.

The elder Mr. Hamilton woke his son and went with him onto the porch where the three sat down to talk, Mrs. Hamilton said. After a few minutes, according to Mrs. Hamilton, "what did you tell 'em?"

"I told them I bought some from you," Mrs. Hamilton said her son replied. Mrs. Hamilton heard the conversation from the front room.

The caller then drew a pistol and shot Mr. Hamilton through the heart. Earl ran into the yard and he was shot once in the back.

Officers Notified

Cotton pickers on the Hamilton farm came to the house and were sent to report the shooting to officers. J. S. Turner, Rochester deputy sheriff, immediately formed a posse to search for the slayer, who was said to have driven to Rochester from the Hamilton home.

Mr. Hamilton was a prominent farmer in this section, being a member of the Rochester board of education, and widely known. He had relatives in other parts of the county and feeling was running high as news of the killing spread.

He is survived by his wife, a son in Simmons university at Abilene, a 2-year-old son, and two daughters.

Officers in Wichita Falls, Abilene, Fort Worth and other Texas cities were notified but the Haskell county search was being vigorously pressed early Friday morning under the direction of Deputy Sheriff Tanner.

The opinion was expressed among officers that the shooting was the result of a grand jury investigation before which Earl Hamilton was said to have testified.

"Daughter of West" Sings Here

"The Silver-Throated Nightingale" of the Southwest is the title given Dorothy Greathouse of New Mexico by music critics of the North and East. Miss Greathouse will appear in concert here Nov. 2 under the auspices of the Wichita County Woman's Democratic league. The singer's early life was spent on a 20,000-acre New Mexico ranch.

Noted Soprano to Appear Here In Concert at Democratic Rally Nov. 2

Woman's League Introduces Novelty in Campaigning With Presentation of Opera Star on Program

Dorothy Greathouse, lyric coloratura soprano and noted as a Chicago grand opera and concert star, will be presented in concert at the Memorial auditorium Nov. 2 under the auspices of the Wichita County Woman's Democratic league, it was announced Wednesday by Mrs. G. B. Smedley, chairman.

Miss Greathouse will give a complete program of classical and popular numbers in connection with the rally sponsored Nov. 2 by the women's league, it was stated. The entire program will be free to the public, with attendance of music lovers of all political affiliations invited, it was announced.

New Departure

Booking of a grand opera and concert star as a part of a political rally marks a new departure in campaigning in Texas. Democratic leaders said Wednesday. It is believed the first time in the history of the state that an artist of national reputation has been secured for such a program, and Democratic women were given credit for smashing political precedent at least so far as Texas is concerned. Contract for the appearance of Miss Greathouse was closed Wednesday by leaders of the Wich-

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN TO MEET TODAY

Plans for the political rally Nov. 2 sponsored by the Wichita County Woman's Democratic league will be completed at a meeting of members of the league Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock at Democratic headquarters, it was announced Wednesday. The rally is on behalf of the nominees of the Democratic party. The program which the league will sponsor Monday night over radio station KGKO will also be completed at the meeting, it was said.

Yankee Doodle' Again Attempts To Set Record in Continental Flying

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 24. (AP)—The cigar-shaped Lockheed Vega monoplane Yankee Doodle shot like a white projectile from the runway this afternoon and headed for Mines field, Los Angeles, in an attempt to beat a record that has stood for more than five years.

Harry Tucker, owner of the plane, was in the rear seat, dressed in an ordinary business suit, while the controls were in the hands of Capt. C. B. D. Collyer, skywriter and joint holder of the round-the-world speed record.

Last August, Tucker, piloted by Art Goebel, crossed the country in one hop from Los Angeles in 18 hours and 58 minutes, beating the time of the only transcontinental non-stop flight there had ever been by almost eight hours.

That early flight was made from east to west by Lieut. John MacReady and Oakley Kelly in 1923, their time being 26 hours and 50 minutes. In the flight started today Collyer and Tucker will attempt to beat MacReady and Kelly over their own course.

COLONIZATION OF VALLEY TO START SOON

Weeks Signs Contract For Development Of Farms

$15,000 TO ADVERTISE

"Most Important Step," Says Francis Of Program

A contract was signed Wednesday afternoon between Charles Weeks of Owensmouth, Calif., and J. A. Kemp and a group of land owners in Wichita Falls, under which Mr. Weeks will begin immediately a national colonization campaign for the settlement of colonists on small intensively cultivated farms, specializing in poultry and dairying.

The first Weeks community will be established near the Johnson Poultry farm west of the city.

Funds Pledged

The directors of the chamber of commerce Wednesday agreed to raise and advance the sum of $15,000 as an advertising fund for the development of Wichita valley lands in connection with the Charles Weeks colonization plan now being worked out with local landowners.

The fund pledged by the chamber of commerce directors is to be raised separately from the 1929 chamber of commerce budget, and will be invested in the colonization project if Mr. Weeks has demonstrated by Feb. 1, 1929, that he is getting concrete results in bringing settlers into the Wichita valley that will justify the investment to the entire satisfaction of the chamber of commerce board.

The entire sum to be advanced by the chamber of commerce is to be refunded to the subscribers to the fund out of money received from the sale of land at the rate of $10 an acre for the first 1,500 acres colonized.

One-third of the special advertising fund has already been pledged and the directors expressed the feeling that the other $10,000 could

Fatal Fight At Church Described in Trial

CAMERON, Texas, Oct. 24. (AP)—Neal Baggett, charged with the murder of his step-son-in-law, Aubrey A. Beatty, two months ago at Sand Grove church near here, today heard witnesses testify for the state that Beatty, a small man, and unarmed was struck down with a knife as he tried to escape from his assailant.

The stabbing, witnesses said, occurred shortly after church services were completed. Baggett, they declared, accosted his step-daughter, Mrs. Beatty, on the porch of the church and accused her and her husband of talking about him. Mrs. Beatty then called her husband, they said.

WINDS DELAY ZEPPELIN HOP

Dirigible Forced to Wait Until Today

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 24.—Due to the heavy winds which have kept the Graf Zeppelin in the hangar here Commodore Eckener decided shortly before 10 o'clock tonight not to attempt to take off on the Mid-West cruise before tomorrow.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 24. (AP)—A cross hangar wind that increased to more than 20 miles an hour at dusk, just when it had been expected to die away, caused postponement of departure of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin on its inland tour until least 10 o'clock tonight.

It was decided definitely not to take the navy dirigible Los Angeles, due to leave on a training flight out of the hangar tonight, and there seemed a strong possibility that the Graf Zeppelin might not get away until tomorrow.

Tot Burns to Death

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 24. (AP)—James Harold O'Connell, 5 weeks old, was burned to death here today when fire destroyed the four-room bungalow of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Martin.

Taxation of Stored Property Considered

AUSTIN, Oct. 24. (AP)—The question of whether the millions of dollars worth of private property stored in warehouses of Texas can be reached for taxation under the law requiring warehouse men to furnish lists of property and the owners' addresses was taken under consideration by the supreme court today.

The court granted a writ of error to the interstate forwarding company of Dallas in its appeal from a district court mandatory injunction, requiring that the company's list of stored property, valued at $4,000,000, be furnished the Dallas county tax assessor.

Detroit-Chicago Daily Air Service Announced

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 24. (UP)—Announcement of the inauguration of a daily air passenger service line Nov. 1 between Detroit and Chicago was made today by the Stout Air Service, Inc.

The schedule calls for one trip daily except Sunday from each city, a plane leaving both cities at 2 p. m. The fare will be $30 one way or $50 round trip. The distance is approximately 300 miles.

American Ship Catches Fire in London Harbor

LONDON, Oct. 24. (US)—Fire swept the hold of the American steamer Coelleda as it was tied to the Queens dock at Cardiff tonight. The city's fire brigade and two fire tugs played streams of water on the burning ship.

The fire started in number four hold of the vessel which contained tobacco. Firemen were able to put the blaze under control after several hours' stiff fighting.

Capt. Wilkins Says Farewell And Sails For Land Of Frozen Mystery

By CAPT. SIR WILKINS,
Commander of The Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition

MONTEVIDO, Uruguay, Oct. 24.—We're off!

This afternoon our sturdy whaler, Hektoria, weighed anchor for the second leg of our journey into remote, ice-bound antarctica.

All of us most cheerfully send our farewells. Lieutenant Eielson, Joe Crossan, Orville Porter and myself are in the highest spirits. We look forward to a complete success.

The Norwegians who man the whaler which is to carry us to Deception Island are a splendid lot, strong, willing, and brave. They have been of tremendous help in getting our two airplanes and our impedimenta stowed away securely.

From now on the journey will be rougher. It was necessary for us to take every precaution to protect our planes and our equipment, on which our lives and the success of our expedition will depend. We look for rougher seas and stormier weather as we voyage toward Deception Island. Hence we took all possible pains to get our material safely aboard the Hektoria. Come what may we think we will reach Deception Island without any mishap to our equipment.

From Deception Island we will plunge farther into the Antarctic, first establishing a base to the south of the island.

Then our real adventures will begin.

We have no qualms, no other thoughts but that we will reach our goal. Indeed I believe our party are in happier spirits today even than we were when we set out not long ago from New York on our way to Montevido. Everyone here has been very kind to us.

Our start today means that we will be in the Antarctic by the middle of November.

The land of blizzards and mystery, the immense ice barriers, and the frozen mountains beckon us. We are happy to be on our way to the fringe of the domain, and we are confident we will wrest from mother earth what is probably her last big secret.

NORRIS CAN'T HELP HOOVER

Senator Says It's 'Beyond Him' to Aid G. O. P.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 24. (UP)—Senator George Norris, progressive Republican of Nebraska, in an interview today, announced his unqualified support of Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee for president.

The Nebraska senator explained his support of Smith and his opposition to Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, was based on their views on the issues of farm relief and water power development. He added that he was not in accord with Smith's views on the prohibition question but said he preferred to consider his pledge to better conditions to the "hollow mockery of prohibition enforcement."

Senator Norris granted the interview between trains here when he stopped off en route to Omaha, where, he said, he would explain his views in detail in a radio speech next Saturday night.

Confirms Report

"Yes, I am for Smith," Senator Norris told the United Press. "I favor his candidacy over that of Herbert Hoover. I guess that's about all there is to it."

The announcement confirmed reports that had been current for several weeks.

"How any person who is progressive can support Hoover, is beyond me," Norris said.

"On both the farm problem and the water power issues he has demonstrated that he is anything but progressive. In his New York address he termed advocates of government water power development, socialists.

"There are thousands and thousands of people throughout the Middle West who believe that the McNary-Haugen bill is the savior of agriculture," he said. "How many of them stand for Hoover after his statements on that question, I cannot understand.

Norris Is Dry

"Smith stands right on it. Hoover stands wrong. I have not had a closed mind on the question of farm relief legislation. I am willing to work for the best possible solution that can be devised. I can't see how those who have struggled for that solution can find hope in the attitude of Hoover. They can in the attitude of Smith.

"I am not in accord with Governor Smith on the prohibition question," Norris said. "I am a prohibitionist. I believe in prohibition. I do not believe, however, in the unholy mockery of alleged enforcement that has been given the nation in the past seven years.

"As far as I am concerned, when and if, there should be an honest effort made to enforce the law, and a full and fair effort demonstrated that some change should be made I would be willing to listen to what best could be found to better conditions."

Garza County Jailer Indicted For Murder

LUBBOCK, Oct. 24. (AP)—A jailer and two prisoners were indicted for murder and assault with intent to kill respectively today as a result of jail disorders in the Garza county jail at Post City.

J. H. Ramsey, jailer, was indicted for murder for the slaying of E. L. Bracken, prisoner, who was shot to death in the jail. Carl Benson and Henry Edmondson, negro, were indicted for assault with intent to kill as a result of an attack on Ramsey.

A Pastor Writes His Constable

Nat Tells Frank of Elusive 'Legger

October 23, 1928.

Mr. Frank Morgan,
Wichita Falls, Texas.
Dear Frank:

I read your statement in this morning's paper and want to congratulate you on cleaning up the stills in your bailiwick. Now that you have finished that joy you are ready, no doubt, for another, and bigger one. I have a job for you—a real job, a "he-man's" job. I want you to go after my bootlegger and put him out of business. If you do that you will show up these other officers as rank amateurs. My bootlegger is a smart old "rat." Been bootlegging since saloon days. Knows all the ropes. Bet you have run across him. He is a bad hombre. Thus far he has licked every officer that has attacked him—licked government officers, sheriffs' department, police department, detective agencies, the district attorney's department, and I am told by an officer, that he licked a grand jury. Now, is not that a shame? Frank, if you lick my bootlegger it will be a feather in your cap sure enough.

I call him "my bootlegger" because he operates in my neighborhood and I feel responsible for him. He has been at it two years. You know, old fellow, I had hoped that when all these other officers were running in July that some of them would catch my bootlegger and put him out of business. Too busy, I suppose, catching negroes and poor ignorant whites, so I am appealing to you.

I am not going to tell you in this letter where he operates. Might get my Presbyterians who own "Times-Record News" sued for libel; might get a licking myself. I will tell you this: He rents his house from a church member, through two church members and for aught I know, sells booze to other church members. May have to tell you his name and the names of church members before I get rid of my bootlegger. Get him Frank, and all my neighbors will join me in giving you a loving cup two feet high. Now Frank, do not ask me to furnish you air-tight evidence and to do everything but arrest him. That is your job—mine to pay taxes, which pay you to do your duty.

Yours truly,
NAT F. GRAFTON.

P. S. When you get him I know two more.—Nat.

Hoover to Speak on Waterways and Agriculture in St. Louis Address

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. (AP)—Herbert Hoover will make waterways and agriculture the subjects of his Middle-Western speech at St. Louis Nov. 2.

The speech will be delivered in the coliseum over a nation-wide hookup. The Republican presidential nominee will arrive in that city late in the day and will go immediately to the auditorium, leaving St. Louis to proceed westward after he finishes his speech.

Hoover now expects to leave Washington on his transcontinental trip to his home in Palo Alto to vote a week from tomorrow and will make stops at Cumberland, Md., and Louisville, Ky., on his way to St. Louis. He will make brief platform talks at both of those stops. From St. Louis, he will move to Grand Island, Neb., and thence to Wyoming, Utah, and Nevada, over the shortest route to his home.

The candidate expects to arrive in Palo Alto on the afternoon before the election and probably will make a radio address that night in which he will urge all citizens to vote.

Hoover had no comment today on an announcement that Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska Progressive, would raise his voice in advocacy of the campaign of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

STAID OLD CITY JAMMED FULL FOR OVATION

OLD RESIDENTS AWED

Buildings Black With People As Candidate Parades Streets

By FRASER EDWARDS

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 24. (US)—Staid old Boston simply ran amuck today to rip into Herbert Hoover for denouncing the Democratic program for farm relief, prohibition modification and public control of water power as "state socialism" in Madison Square garden.

There is no other way to describe the scenes in the narrow winding streets of this sedate community as the Democratic standard bearer rode between solid walls of humanity than to say that the town went wild. It was like a Florida hurricane, it could not be exaggerated. It made the monster demonstration in Chicago look like a casual street gathering.

Old Timers Popeyed

Old residents of Boston were popeyed with amazement. The mob which jammed the streets from

Editor's Note: This story on the tremendous ovation accorded Gov. Alfred E. Smith at Boston was carried by Universal Service, a corporation owned and controlled by William Randolph Hearst, owner of the Hearst newspapers and one of the most bitter foes of the Democratic nominee. That fact alone, in the editor's opinion made the story the "biggest" political story of the day. A complete summary of Governor Smith's speech is on page nine today.

building line to building line merely opened up reluctantly to allow the governor's car to pass. Then it immediately closed and the next car had to fight its way through inch by inch. The crowd was entirely beyond the control of the police. The police merely devoted their attention to preventing men, women and children from being run over by the automobiles in the parade.

It was only a miracle that scores were not run down and crushed in the mob. The car in which this correspondent rode knocked down several persons, but they just picked themselves up and dashed after the governor's car. Many women fainted in the crush and ambulances and police patrols were busy hauling away the casualties.

Half Million There

The climax of the political demonstration was reached on Boston Common. Rivers of humanity poured in solid, seemingly unending

Feverish Trade Features Stock Market Session

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (AP)—Feverish trading in stocks continued unabated today on the New York stock exchange, which was so swamped with orders that the ticker lagged 20 to 45 minutes behind the market all day. Prices advanced briskly during the greater part of the session, more than 40 issues touching new high record, but a late selling movement cut down or wiped out many of the early gains.

Cottonseed Freight Rate Hearing Opens

DALLAS, Oct. 24. (AP)—Shippers today began introduction of additional testimony supporting their petitions for a reduction in rates on cottonseed and cottonseed products at a hearing here before examiners George Esch and John T. Money of the Interstate Commerce commission.

GRAVITY LAWS BROKEN, CLAIM

Young Scientist Declares Force Eliminated

LONDON, Oct. 24. (UP)—R. H. Tate, young scientist, claims to have overcome the laws of gravity, according to dispatches tonight from West Hartlepool to the Daily Express.

The experiment was demonstrated in a secret laboratory test, when a piece of metal, absolutely unattached to anything, was suspended in mid-air the dispatches said.

Tate placed on the floor the metal, which was said to resemble aluminum but was of a composition heretofore unknown, and placed a similar piece of metal above it in the air. The top metal remained suspended, not for just a moment, but for as long as Tate left it there.

"I have eliminated the force of gravity," Tate said. "The metal is not insulated and it is there that the practical possibilities of the discovery are apparent. I have discovered the new force from known forces, by eliminating gravity from the metal. The composition of the metal is known only to myself, but among its possibilities is the controlling of aircraft from the ground."

Experts said that, if true, the discovery would be the greatest in centuries.

SLAYING GOES BEFORE JURY

Dallas Man Killed in Fight With Police

DALLAS, Oct. 24. (AP)—The Dallas county grand jury will be called on tomorrow to begin investigation of the slaying of W. P. Fletcher, 49, killed here today in a pistol battle with police after he had wounded Emergency Officer A. A. Ivey in an exchange of shots.

Cornered by a riot squad in a clump of trees, Fletcher, under indictment for violation of the prohibition laws, fell before a police bullet.

Officer Ivey was wounded when he went to Fletcher's residence in response to a telephone call saying that the man had threatened his wife. When Ivey and Robert Sliger, another policeman, arrived at the house, they found Fletcher standing under a tree with two small children, a revolver in his hand.

Fletcher fired and the slug struck Ivey in the shoulder, shattering the bone. Fletcher ran and was found thirty minutes later about a mile away. Here, crouched behind a tree, he cried out, "You'll never take me alive," and began shooting it out.

While reloading his weapon Fletcher was shot through the head and another bullet struck his body near the heart.

Mrs. Hattie Fletcher, 37, said her husband had been away from home seven weeks until last night, when she saw him prowling in the neighborhood. She told police he had awakened her early in the day and threatened to kill her and two children.

Clergy to Attend Kinsolving Rites

AUSTIN, Oct. 24. (AP)—Clergy and lay members of the Episcopal church from many parts of Texas, will assemble here Saturday to pay respects to the Right Rev. Geo. Herbert Kinsolving, bishop of the diocese of Texas, widely revered, who died suddenly late last night.

The bishop's body will lie in state at All Saints chapel Saturday morning where it will remain until funeral services in the afternoon.

Seventy nine years old, Bishop Kinsolving had given long service to the church and was one of its best known ecclesiatics. He ranked fourth among the Episcopal bishops of the United States in point of service.

Upon the death of Bishop Kinsolving, the Right Rev. Clinton S. Quin, of Houston, bishop coadjutor, was automatically elevated to head the diocese of Texas.

A son, Rev. W. Ovid Kinsolving, rector of Calvary church, Summit, N. J., is en route here to attend his father's funeral.

be secured easily as soon as the success of the colonization project is demonstrated.

Local landowners have already provided a substantial sum of money in cash to be used in the building of a model farm, equipment of tracts of land and in a preliminary advertising campaign in Northern and Middle-Western states.

Leaders Pleased

Charles I. Frances, president of the chamber of commerce, said: "I believe that the proposed colonization plan formulated by the Wichita valley landowners with Charles Weeks, marks the most important forward step that has been taken in the development of the valley. We have a tremendous community investment which must be made to pay us a fair return; and this project in my judgment, is a concrete step in the right direction."

Mr. Weeks explained in detail to the directors his plan for moving settlers into the Wichita valley and the establishment of some intensified cultivated farms featuring poultry and dairying.

Members of the board of directors expressed the opinion that Mr Weeks' proposition is the most promising plan that has been considered for the colonization of the Wichita valley.

The directors present at the Wednesday meeting were: Mr. Francis. Lamar Fain, J. J. Perkins, Harry Hines, C. E. McCutchen, Burton Stayton, Jack Barnard, Alvin Gardner, R. O. Harvey and Arthur Rayzor. Members of the advisory committee composed of past presidents in attendance at the meeting were: R. E. Huff, N. H. Martin, J. C. Mytinger and J. T. Harrell. Members of the agricultural committee present were: J. A. Kemp, George D. Keith, G. D. Anderson, J. M. Baber, John W. Thomas, Hubert M. Harrison, general manager, and J. W. Chatham, industrial commissioner.

BRICK HOME FOR MUNY ZOO

Many Aid Plan For New Building Here

Work on the permanent winter quarters for the animals of the Lions club municipal zoo will start at once, it was announced Wednesday evening by Dr. R. H. Graham of the Lions club and George D. Fairtrace, city manager, at the end of a day of conferences and inspections.

The present plans call for a building 50 by 100 feet with a concrete foundation, brick walls and steel trusses for the roof. The roofing material has not yet been determined.

Hauling of material has started, and a portion of the 24,000 bricks already donated have been hauled. Sand, cement and other materials will be hauled as quickly as possible so that the animals may be protected against the cold weather.

The Lions club will furnish the materials for the building mainly through donations, and the city will provide the labor. Several local labor unions have volunteered to donate some of the labor, and local contractors have announced their willingness to aid in supervising the work.

Sun Bear at Muny Zoo Dies Wednesday

One of the two sun bears of the Lions club municipal zoo died Wednesday from an unknown cause, it was learned.

Dr. R. H. Graham of the Lions club said that the bear is being sent to a taxidermist to be mounted so that it may be added to the collection that is being assembled for the future Wichita Falls museum.

Several animals already have been mounted and are being treasured for this future city building.

The sun bear which died Wednesday was presented by Charles I. Francis and the National Security Life Insurance company.

Boy Snake Charmer's Dad Files Complaint

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Oct. 24 (AP)—After he allegedly had employed a 13-year-old boy as a snake charmer, a man attached to a carnival here today was charged with enticing a minor away from home. The boy's father, in his complaint, said that he found his son, clad as a woman, in the showman's tent handling "big snakes" like a professional.

streams from every adjoining street and when the governor reached those historic acres, a crowd estimated at fully 500,000 was massed there.

Throughout the parade, the din was deafening. Every known noise-making apparatus was put into use. But most of the racket came from human lungs. It was a constant roar, pierced occasionally by a wild feminine shriek.

The windows of every building along the line of march were black with people, people waving flags and yelling and showering the governor with ticker tape, ripped up telephone books and confetti. Even the mad celebration here on Armistice day was eclipsed by the ovation given to the man in the brown derby, according to the police. Not only in numbers but in frenzy did it out-do the wild night which closed the World war, they said.

Arena Is Packed

Members of the governor's personal party were caught in the jam at the South station and manhandled by the mob before they could make the haven of the cars which awaited them. And that was just a forecast of what was to come.

Hours before Governor Smith was scheduled to speak, the Boston arena, with a capacity of 13,000 was packed to the rafters. So were Mechanics hall and Symphony hall, with a capacity of 17,000.

The governor merely appeared and said "hello" at the two latter halls, which were equipped with amplifiers to hear his speech. Thousands outside of the halls listened on loud speakers.

The demonstration put the governor in rare form for his reply to Hoover.

Mrs. Sayre Cheered

Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, daughter of Woodrow Wilson, brought the crowd to its feet with a ringing endorsement of Governor Smith.

Although classing herself as a "bone dry" Mrs. Sayre declared she was supporting Smith because he "spoke out" on the prohibition question, "a law which has been laid on the shelf."

When Mrs. Sayre introduced Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, there was another demonstration. But that was eclipsed by the wild yell which greeted Walsh's announcement that Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, progressive Republican leader, has declared for Governor Smith.

General Charles H. Cole, Democratic candidate for governor, the next speaker, said the only question about Massachusetts was the "size of the majority" which Governor Smith will receive in the state.

Jeers For G. O. P.

A statement signed by Louis K. Liggett, Republican national committeeman from the state, warning of the "critical situation" facing the Republican party brought a storm of jeers, boos and hisses. Cole said it was a "confession of defeat."

Bedlam broke loose when the Governor and Mrs. Smith entered the hall at 8:51 o'clock. There was no let-up in the din for ten minutes.

Every time there was a sign of abatement a wave of the brown derby started it anew. Kisses thrown to the crowd by Mrs. Smith had the same effect—so did the inevitable "Sidewalks of New York."

In fact after the demonstration had been in progress for eight minutes there was an attempt to end it for it was nearing the scheduled time for Smith to speak and would encroach on his radio time.

But the crowd was enjoying itself and refused to stop until the governor himself came forward and waved for silence.

The governor asked the crowd to save applause until the end of the speech because "then it won't cost anything."

A moment later he admonished the crowd not to be "selfish" when it began to "boo" the first mention of Herbert Hoover.

Boos for Borah

There were "boos" for Senator Borah when Smith referred to him as "one of the most distinguished Republicans who tripped over to the Socialist party" and voted for government development of Muscle Shoals.

After referring to Hughes as "another distinguished socialist" the governor grinned broadly and remarked: "If I'm a Socialist; Hughes is a Socialist; Senator Borah ought to return home tonight because he has been disowned by the leader of his party," said Smith.

Governor Smith pointed out that the Salt creek leases to Harry F. Sinclair by former Secretary of the Interior Fall had been introduced in evidence by the government in the oil trials in an effort to show collusion in the Teapot Dome case.

"That should have put Dr. Work on notice,' he said.

The crowd booed lustily when Smith referred to Hoover's claims of Republican prosperity.

"What must be the conception of the average intelligence of the American people of the man who wrote that Republican "ad" about putting a "chicken in every pot and an automobile in every back yard?" asked Smith, while the crowd roared.

"What is the solution?" asked the governor, "What does the country actually need?"

Al's the Answer

"Al Smith," came the answer from a leather-lunged man in the gallery. Smith beamed, but said it was "leadership,' something he said the Republican party had not given the country for eight years.

The crowd did not make the customary rush for the exits, but hung on for several minutes in the hope of getting an extra glimpse of Smith.

John F. Fitzgerald, "Honey Fitz," one of Boston's famous Democratic idols, gave the finishing touches to the meeting by singing "Sweet Adeline" the song which sent him to congress years ago. Although 66 years of age, "Honey Fitz" still sings a clear tenor.

The meeting closed with the crowd singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

ELECTRAN DIES IN EXPLOSION

Bruton Funeral Services To Be Held Today

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 24.—J. M. Nowell is recovering in the Parmley-Ogden hospital here from serious burns received in an explosion in the Rock Crossing oil field near here early this morning which took the life of D. B. Bruton, 26.

Bruton died an hour after the explosion, which resulted when an engine on which the men were working exploded after a back-fire ignited a quantity of gas. Nowell's injuries will not prove fatal, hospital attendants said.

Bruton's wife arrived here today. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon with burial at Henrietta. Mr. Bruton is survived by his widow, one child, his parents and nine brothers.

Second 20-Year Penalty Assessed in Murder Case

CORPUS CHRISTI, Oct. 24. (AP)—For the second time, K. M. Simmons today was convicted of murder for the slaying of Bud Stoner, foreman at the Welder ranch near Stinton two years ago, and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

In his first trial, Simmons received the same sentence, but the case was reversed on appeal. Today's trial was at Sinton.

Simmons was a game warden at the time of the shooting, testimony showed, and had gone to the Welder ranch in search of game law violators.

Leahy's Sentence Of Death Upheld

AUSTIN, Oct. 24. (AP)—The verdict of the Williamson county district court assessing the death penalty against Harry J. Leahy for the murder of Dr. J. A. Ramsey, Mathis physician was upheld by the court of criminal appeals today.

Leahy's asserted action in approaching Mrs. Ramsey, after the doctor's mysterious disappearance, and offering to produce Dr. Ramsey, "dead or alive," for $10,000, influenced the higher court, the opinion intimated in sustaining the conviction, since this gesture on Leahy's part the court thought had a tendency to corroborate circumstantial evidence against him.

Commenting on Leahy's effort to obtain the posting of a reward, the court said "all good citizens should have donated their services" in this respect.

Leahy was tried first in Liveoak county, where the crime was alleged to have been committed, and the jury gave him fifty years. His application for a new trial was granted and the case sent to Williamson county on a change of venue.

Dr. Ramsey's body was found in a shallow grave several weeks after his disappearance, his throat having been cut.

Temple Man Killed As Auto Overturns

PECOS, Texas, Oct. 24. (AP)—I. T Sadler, 60, Temple, Texas, was killed, and his brother-in-law, a Dr McCarver of Los Angeles, was cut by glass when their automobile overturned on the highway west of Pecos today.

Erroneous Reports on South Plains Crops Causes Shortage of Pickers

LUBBOCK, Texas, Oct. 24.—Erroneous statements to the effect that the South Plains cotton crop is to be exceedingly low have worked a hardship on the U. S. Employment service in getting sufficient laborers to come here to harvest a crop that will total 317,000 bales in this section, R. F. Nelson, special agent for the U. S. Employment service, declared here today.

Nelson, who has been located in Lubbock for the past several days, working out of the Fort Worth office and doing all in his power to serve the entire South Plains section, estimates that over 10,000 cotton pickers are needed here to fill the demands that are coming in to him each day.

Reports have been circulated that the cotton on the South Plains will make exceedingly low yields, Nelson says, while the cotton here is better than the average crop anywhere in Texas.

Farmers are anxious to have pickers and are paying $1.25 per hundred for picking, and from 75c to $1.00 for pulling bolls. The few pickers that are arriving from day to day, are being employed as soon as they arrive.

Harry E. Blocker, head of a Lubbock cotton firm and considered one of the best posted cotton men in West Texas, estimates that the 14 South Plains counties surrounding Lubbock will make 317,000 bales as compared with 261,500 of last year. There is a slight increase in acreage this year which has helped boost the cotton production.

Estimates of the cotton production of the South Plains counties as made by Blocker follows:

Bailey 4,000 bales; Briscoe 10,000; Cochran 4,000; Crosby 38,000; Dawson 35,000; Floyd 20,000; Garza 18,000; Gaines 3,000; Hale 20,000; Hockley 30,000; Lamb 35,000; Lubbock 50,000; Lynn 35,000; and Terry 15,000.

Other members of the U. S. Employment service working under the direction of C. W. Woodman at Fort Worth are turning all surplus labor that can be directed this way to help harvest the cotton crop.

Nelson has issued a special appeal to San Angelo, Abilene, Sweetwater and other West Texas points to direct all surplus labor to Lubbock, where they will be distributed over the section to the fields of cotton.

Nelson has visited a number of South Plains towns within the last few days and will likely visit them all in the near future. In visiting the towns, Nelson gets an accurate idea of the number of pickers needed and also gets the names of people to whom he can readily direct labor.

EMPLOYMENT AGENT LOCATED AT LAMESA

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Oct. 24.—J. R. Martin of the farm labor division of the U. S. Employment Service is now located in Lamesa with the local chamber of commerce and is making an effort to supply five counties from this station with needed labor. Labor is coming in slowly to date, according to Martin. Martin says that he now has a demand for 3,000 cotton pickers here.

Despondency Blamed For Man's Fatal Act

HOUSTON, Oct. 24. (AP)—Said to be despondent over ill health of himself and wife, W. F. Forrister, 65, of Houston, shot himself fatally today.

Coleman's Population Estimated at 6,500

COLEMAN, Texas, Oct. 24.—From advanced returns from the census being taken of Coleman, the population is estimated at 6,500 people, according to Mayor E. P. Scarborough. This number, he said, exceeds early estimates by almost 1,000 people. The census will be completed within 10 days.

The check is being made of the city's population to allow Coleman to take advantage of the state laws regarding cities of more than 5,000 people, if the people desire. Under the governmental census of 1920, this city was listed as having 2,600 people.

Arrival of Father of Dead Tots Awaited

CLEVELAND, Oct. 24. (INS)—New York police should await the arrival from London of Milton Waldman, father of the two children who were killed in a fall from a 13-story building in New York last Friday before they close their investigation of the tragedy, Mrs. Ida Waldman, grandmother of the two little victims, declared at her home here today.

Milton Waldman, assistant editor of the London Mercury, is in a London hospital, according to news dispatches, prostrated by shock suffered when he was informed of the death of his two sons.

He and his wife had agreed to separate, it was learned here, and it is believed that divorce proceedings had been filed in Paris.

Supreme Court to Settle Boundary Line Dispute

AUSTIN, Oct. 24. (AP)—The long, drawn-out dispute between Travis and Williamson counties over location of their boundary line, involving about $150,000 worth of taxable land, will be decided by the supreme court as the result of a writ of error granted in the case today.

The third court of civic appeals held against Williamson county's contention for validation of an 1883 survey and ordered the line established as provided in various legislative acts on the subject. The appeal is from Burnet county.

DAIRY CENSUS IN DEAF SMITH

Efforts Made to Increase Milk Production

Special to The Record News.

HEREFORD, Texas, Oct. 24.—Twenty-two interested citizens of Deaf Smith county, including both rural and urban residents, began in earnest the taking of the Deaf Smith county and Hereford trade territory dairy cow census Tuesday morning. Answering a call extended at the chamber of commerce luncheon Monday at which more than 65 citizens were present, these men reported to the chamber of commerce office early Tuesday morning and started on this task in earnest.

The entire county has been laid out in districts, 11 in number, and to each of these districts was a committee of two men assigned. Every farmer and dairy man who owns milk cows will be interviewed and a number of cows owned, now being milked, young cows owned quantity of products sold, etc., will be obtained on an uniform questionnaire gotten out by the local organization.

In every district visited an owner of milk cows in that district is assisting our townsmen in securing this information and when this is compiled, Deaf Smith county should have as complete record on the dairy cow situation as any county in the state. This census is being taken for the purpose of determining the size of the creamery or other dairy industrial plants which Hereford needs and which can best serve the trade territory. As soon as this information is compiled immediate steps for the organization of a cooperative plant will be begun and practically every business interest in the city, as well as farmers and dairymen in the rural communities, are exhibiting great interest in the movement.

Letters of information received this week in answer to inquiries sent out by the local organization reveal that many parties in other sections of the United States might become interested in the creamery situation in Deaf Smith county and local committees will push the work of organization at a rapid pace. It is variously estimated that Deaf Smith county has from 3,000 to 4,000 milk cows and efforts will be made to interest practically every dairyman and farmer in the Hereford trade territory in the new plant.

Showings made recently at the various fairs by Deaf Smith county dairy cattle shows this county to have some of the finest dairy cattle in the Southwest and practically every dairyman is at this time building up his herd to where it will compare favorably with those in the more highly developed dairy sections of the United States.

REHEARING REQUESTED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. (UP)—Attorney General Sargent today requested the United States supreme court for a rehearing of the government application for a writ of certiorari in the appeal from the decision of the circuit court of appeals at Buffalo, N. Y., in the Canadian labor immigration case.

Kaiser's Kin by Marriage Joins Circus as Rider

PARIS, Oct. 24. (UP)—Alexander Zoubkoff, brother-in-law of the former kaiser, has signed with a French circus as a trick rider.

The circus has been appearing in Luxembourg and Italy. Zoubkoff could not follow the circus to Italy because he had no passport visa, but he is scheduled to appear in public when the circus returns to France.

It was recalled that Zoubkoff was expelled from Luxembourg recently when he tried to enter that country on a street car from Belgium.

Riding with a circus will only be another incident in the checkered career of the young Russian, who stirred the bitter wrath of the Hohenzollerns when he married Princess Victoria of Schaumbourg Lippe, sister of the ex-kaiser. The princess is 62.

Fifteen Year Goitre

Removed. Texas Woman Wants Others to Know Her Experience With Home Treatment

Mrs. N. A. Holtman, Honeygrove, Tex., says in her own home paper, the Honeygrove Signal: "My goitre bothered me terribly. Had such pains in my head and eyes. Had dizzy and choking spells. Two different treatments did no good. Then commenced to use Sorbol Quadruple the colorless liniment. Imagine my joy when in about a week the goitre began to disappear. Now after two months the goitre with its disagreeable symptoms is gone. I will be glad to tell or write my full experience to anyone."

It is not expensive and is easy to use. Sold by all drug stores. For more information write Sorbol Company, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at Allison's Drug Store.—Adv

All members of the committees are eligible to this luncheon and reservations may be made with Mrs. Evelyn Bain at telephone 7230 until 11 o'clock.

STOP THE FAT AND GET THIN

The way to reduction is to stop the formation of fat. Modern science has found that way—by turning your food into fuel and energy—by supplying a natural element that helps do that. It is much better than starvation. That modern, scientific method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality, are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects are beneficial, and why they all occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

For Inflamed Breathing Tubes

Try Dr. Blosser's Medical Cigarettes in the Next Attack

If you have catarrh you are in danger of losing your hearing. The first symptoms of catarrhal deafness are roaring or buzzing sensations and a stopped-up feeling in the ears. A neglected cold, or an uncured cold, leads to catarrh, and as everybody knows, catarrh affects the eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs and frequently undermines the general health.

The secret of the successful medication of these hidden parts was discovered by Dr. Blosser in his medical practice. This remedy is applied by smoking a certain combination of medical herbs (containing no tobacco) in a pipe or cigarette. Dr. Blosser's Remedy produces a dense smoke vapor which is inhaled or forced into the Eustachian tubes leading to the middle ear. It penetrates to parts impossible to reach with balms, salves, sprays, douches, pills, tablets, liquids and so-called "constitutional treatments." This harmless Remedy is being used successfully by adults and children.

You can get from any drug store a convenient pocket-size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes and prove for yourself their pleasant beneficial effects.

Sage Tea Dandy to Darken Hair

By DOROTHY LANG

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. It costs only 75 cents. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.—Adv.

Crockett School P.-T. A. Rally Draws Attendance of 200

Members of the Crockett school held a rally meeting Tuesday afternoon at the school following a membership drive. More than 200 members were present. The meeting was opened with devotionals followed by a singsong led by Lester Aldrich, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. C. DeMontel, featuring the national P.-T. A. song, "A Little Child Shall Lead Them."

A special number on the program was a group of songs by the children from the music department with a butterfly dance by little Miss Lucille Hodge.

The prize which was offered to the room having the greatest per cent of paid members was presented to room 21. This room is averaging a percentage of 78. Miss Dowdy's room won the room count for most mothers present, and was presented with the pennant for the month.

In the business session that followed, Mrs. W. N. Maer's letter of registration as president was read and accepted and Mrs. C. M. Crowell was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy. Delegates appointed to attend the state P.-T. A. convention at Amarillo in November are Mrs. Crowell and Miss Ida Moore, principal. Those elected to the city council of the P.-T. A. are Mrs. John Dobbs and Mrs. Stanley McGrgegor.

Mrs. Grover Bullington presented nine children who were found to be 100 per cent perfect in the recent health clinic. Mrs. Jack Speegle, chairman of the sponsors announced that the teachers and sponsors of each room had called at every home represented in the school, resulting in a greater interest in the school and the P.-T. A.

The library committee was authorized to buy a set of books entitled "The Master Library" to be presented to the school by the mothers. Reports of various committees were heard which was followed by social hour.

Federated Missionary Society to Meet

Members of the Federated Missionary society will meet at the new Methodist church building, Thursday afternoon, when the following program will be given:

Singing, led by Mrs. Fred Barron; vocal solo, Joel H. MacGregor; organ solo, Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr.; vocal solo, Miss Modena Howell, and devotionals, Mrs. W. W. Silk.

Mrs. Knox Finley will preside at the business session, when reports will be given.

Royal Neighbors To Meet Today

A called meeting of the Royal Neighbors will be held at the I. O. O. F. hall at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon for the purpose of balloting on applications and for a school of instruction to be held by the state supervisor, Mrs. Eva Huskey of Greenville. Plans will be completed for an entertainment to be given at the hall Friday night.

Golf Association To Open Tourney

Members of the Women's Golf association of the County club will meet and play the qualifying rounds for the championship of the club Thursday.

Eighteen holes will be played in the first flight and nine holes will be played for the consolation.

Hubby's Middle-Aged Flirtations Indicate Mental Eclipse, Says Dix

How to Retrieve a Wandering Husband—Should a Man Tell His Real Financial Condition to His Future Wife?—Reforming a Slovenly Spouse.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a married woman with two children, have a good home and a good husband and was very happy until a short time ago, when I found out that my husband was paying attention to a little married flirt in our town. He has taken her riding at night and has given her boxes of candy, and has been seen sitting in the store talking to her instead of being in his own office. I taxed my husband with it and he said that he took her riding because she was so cute, and that her own husband was too busy to take her out.

This woman has broken up several homes, for the men all seem to fall for her, although they all know that her husband is a fine man who works himself to death to give her the money to buy clothes in which to vamp other men, and they know, too, that she neglects her little children, who run the streets.

What must I do? Shall I leave my husband?

A MISERABLE WIFE.

Answer: Of course, you mustn't leave your husband merely because he has become entangled in a silly flirtation. It's just a brainstorm that will pass if you will give it time. Many men, along toward middle life, are afflicted with a temporary mental eclipse. They have the hallucination that they are tired of their wives and children, of domesticity and decent living, and that they have fallen in love with some siren.

But it doesn't last. After a bit the man comes to his senses, and he is ashamed and repentant, and glad enough to come back home to his wife and thereafter be as domestic as the house cat. The whole episode may be written down in the comic annals of the family history, unless the wife has been as foolish as he has and has broken up their home and made a tragedy of it.

For we are talking of mere flirtation now. Not infedility. A married man's philandering with a pretty woman, not his having found that some other woman rouses in him a passion of love that his wife can never inspire. The flirtation is bad enough, of course, and it naturally tortures the wife with jealousy, but if she is wise she laughs at it and refuses to take it seriously. She doesn't wreck her whole life over it.

It's pretty hard to see anything humorous in your husband making a fool of himself and falling for the wiles of a cheap little vamp, who flatters him and makes eyes at him while she digs her predatory little fingers into his pocketbook, but it is one of the occasions upon which a woman must either laugh or cry, and the wise wife is the one who doesn't cry or nag or reproach her husband or point out his duty to him.

Most wives, when they find they have a rival, surrender without firing a single gun. They simply pack up their dollrags and quit without making an effort to hold their own, thus leaving the field clear for their enemy. They should have more spunk and backbone. Instead of running up the white flag, they should dig in and fight to the last ditch for their own sakes and their children's.

After all, the wife has a great advantage merely in being a wife. A first love, a first romance, never wholly dies. And all the forces of society and convention and property rights are fighting at the wife's back. And a wife knows her husband's weaknesses and how to work him as no other woman ever can, so nine times out of 10 she can out-general the other woman if only she has the grit to carry on.

So, my dear lady, if you want your husband, fight for him. Begin by cutting the ground from under his feet by writing to the lady's husband. Tell him that your husband feels called upon to enter and that you think he had better look after his own fences a little. Then decoy the woman's poor neglected children across your husband's vision and get your friends to turn upon him a barrage of ridicule for being simple enough to be taken in by a cheap little manchaser.

But don't give up your husband and your home and your living because your husband makes a few sweet eyes at another woman.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Should a man tell his real financial condition before marriage to the girl he desires to make his wife?

—PERPLEXED ED.

Answer: Of course he should. There can be no question about that. Every woman has a right to know before marriage exactly how much money a man makes and what his prospects are for the future.

Then she can take him or leave him, but at any rate she knows just what she will have to live upon, and tha will save both of them many stormy scenes and bitter quarrels.

For, strange as it may seem, many men deceive girls on this point and lead them to think that they are far better off than they are. The girl marries thinking she is going into a life of ease, and that she will be able to have the luxuries she craves. Then, when she finds out the truth, as she is bound to do almost immediately, and finds that they have not even enough to live decently in the humblest way, she naturally feels that her husband has played a dastardly trick on her.

A wife's well-being is bound up in her husband's. If he is poor, the hardest part of poverty falls upon her, for she must do the contriving to feed and clothe a family, and hers is the keenest anxiety for the future, for she must depend upon her husband's efforts instead of her own. If this is to be her lot in life, is it certainly only honorable of a man to warn her in time and not commit her to it blindly.

No woman who loves a man will fear to face poverty at his side, but nothing would kill her love sooner than for him to inveigle her into a life of hardship under false pretenses.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—My husband is a fine man and he treats me with kindness and consideration, but he is very careless about his appearance. He wears soiled linen, won't shave, won't bathe, won't care for his nails; in short, is utterly slovenly. I feel he should be neat and clean if only for the sake of his business. I have tried appealing to his vanity, coaxing, getting angry and nagging, but nothing does any good. How can he be cured?

Answer: Slovenless is nothing but the ultimate expression of laziness. Your husband neglects the care of his person because he is too indolent and shiftless to make the effort to keep clean. And I fear laziness is an incurable vice. Certainly a slouchy, slovenly man has small chance in business these days, and he would probably brace up and wash up if a few of his customers would tell him that they would not deal with him unless he became more sanitary-looking.

As far as the clothes are concerned, you can manage by following the example of a woman in a plight similar to yours. Every night when her husband went to bed she removed all the clthoes that he had worn and put fresh linen and a newly pressed suit and freshly polished shoes in their stead. It being no more trouble to put on the new clothes than the soiled ones, the lazy man donned the glad raiment and was well dressed.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—She was a round faced lady, with a bulbous figure and she was plumped into a chair in a cafe having lunch. She ate potatoes, drank milk, ate custard with ice cream on top of it, and as if that wasn't enough, she wore a tan felt hat with a parade of elephants made of brown celluloid round the crown. They started with very small elephants and they got bigger as the parade proceded, till the one smack in front was at least four inches high.

Now I ask you!

"It must be nice to live in New York and see all the good shows," said a young innocent.

"Yes," said her aunt. "It would be if you could. I started a charge account with a theater ticket agency and offered to pay the extra price for seats when they gave you the usual stall, 'sold out.' I thought it was all arranged that if I paid an extra fee I'd get tickets, the explanation being they could send out to another broker if they didn't have them—provided you would pay enough.

"I phoned to get seats and was told the baseball opening made it impossible. That the good shows were sold out, that no broker had any. I forgot to mention the big commission.

"I then called a hotel and got two in the sixth row center, marked $6.50 each, and I paid for them $23.75. The total charged $10.55 commission."

"The girl in the theater ticket office smiled as if amused and I wondered if she got a commission, too."

Two business girls, too busy for a real luncheon, visited the soda fountain in their building. As they paid their check, the woman at the cash register announced: "We have Nick back with us, come in and visit, anytime."

Nick, it seems, was a clerk who had been on a vacation, and was brought back to stimulate business. You should have seen Nick—glasses, moustache, spats and everything!

The soda fountain business ain't what it used to be.

It's the women who started tipping the nifty soda jerkers, and now it has come to pass in the larger cities, that if you don't tip, you sit and wait indefinitely. It isn't the fact that they call white haired women "girlie" that amazes you, it's how on earth they can keep their cheerful point of view, bobbing like corks behind a counter sticky with the remnants of ice cream, and squirting orange juice all day long for a lot of hurried indifferent customers.

A man in California was married either in 1912 or 1922. The certificate was blurred and so was his memory. So many things happened in the interim, that when he asked for a divorce and said it seemed like he'd been married forever, the judge decided to consider it as 1912.

In Huntington, L. I., there is a woman with three children and another woman who stole her husband. The mother has relinquished her husband to the other woman, and dropped an alienation suit for $100,000, and the two are "good friends." Its possible that down in her heart she feels sorry for the new love.

If a man in love ever considered personal values, that ought to make him think.

Building Permits Hit $300,000 at Lamesa

LAMESA, Texas, Oct. 24.—Building permits for this year to date run better than $300,000, according to E. B. Warren. Building is active with ample labor to take care of building now in process. Most all building during the year has been done by local capital.

Home Training Should Continue, Says Parent-Teacher President

By INA CADDELL MARRS

(This is one of a series of educational articles written especially for The Associated Press and The Record News).

(President National Congress of Parents and Teachers)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. (AP)—America's greatest concern today is the education of her youth. The most important educational institution is the American home. The most responsible teacher is the American parent.

We no longer think of the school as the place where the child begins his education. But we are realizing more and more that learning begins with birth.

INA CADDELL MARRS

It is during the early and most impressionable years in which he is under the care and guidance of his parent teachers that the child's habits are formed, his ideals set up that will largely determine his whole attitude toward life. The foundation of all education is laid in the home. No matter how early a child goes to school, he goes as an individual who has already done an immense amount of learning.

That parents are recognizing their responsibility in the education of their children, and the need of meeting this responsibility intelligently is a most significant and encouraging fact. Today parents, like teachers, are preparing themselves for this important task. Today the thinking, intelligent parent wishes to send his child to school physically, mentally, and socially equipped to meet successfully the new environments and conditions in which he finds himself.

Parents have learned that their obligation to the education of their children does not cease when they have provided funds for good school buildings and equipment and trained teachers. They know that good homes and well-trained parents must share in their responsibility of educating the citizen of tomorrow.

The National Congress of Parents and Teachers, an organization of 1,275,000 men and women, parents and teachers, has a definite program which aims to prepare parents for their responsibility as educators. The National Education association is tremendously interested in this program of parenthood education and is lending its best efforts to its accomplishment. It realizes the fundamental importance of home and school co-operation and of interesting all parents everywhere in the great problem of education.

Bare Legs Win Over Proprieties In Health Test

VIENNA, Oct. 24. (INS)—Bare legs of young girls won a victory against the proprieties of old-fashioned professors, when the superintendent of Viennese schools decided that "while it can not be proved, it cannot be disproved that this fashion is a most healthy one."

The bare-legs-fashion, which came into vogue this summer reached its climax during the last hot days of the season, which were at the same time the first school days of the coming season.

Many highschool girls, appearing in school without their stockings, met with severe disapproval of their professors, especially of the women professors.

The matter came before the superintendent, who decided in favor of bare legs. The judgment was received with much satisfaction by the Viennese youth, but it has also caused sever affliction among hosiery manufacture.

Motor to Match Coat Is Latest Paris Chic

PARIS, Oct. 24. (AP)—Patchwork decoration for motor cars is the idea of a Paris actress who has had her roadster enameled to match her motor coat of many colors. Car and coat are a hodge-podge of bright colors applied in modernistic design with the lack of system of a painter's palette.

The coat inspired the motor's decoration, accordin gto its owner, and she claims to be Paris' first owner of a motor to match her coat.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SATIRE WEEK RULES DRAMA

"Mr. Moneypenny" Proves Best of Lot

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Anticipating Halloween by a full fortnight, the hobgoblins of the drama dusted off their broomsticks and rode rampant through the theater last week, shaking crooked fingers under whatever noses happened to be aligned along the aisles of our bustling playhouses. It was international satire week, with Channing Pollock and Ferenc Molnar heading the drive committee.

Bitter Satire

To the Liberty theater, Mr. Pollock brought a series of verbal cartoons lampooning the money-grubbing tendencies of the day. Deftly sketched in with Hogarthian cunning, and ably acted by a cast of 30 earnest troupers, "Mr. Moneypenny," the Pollock play, left deep and favorable impression upon a first-night audience which expected much of the author of "The Fool" and "The Enemy" and got even more than it expected. For in addition to the sincerity and skill which shape the structure of every Pollock play, "Mr. Moneypenny" brings to the stage a new technique, a medium of expression more succinct and plastic than any of the definitely defined schools or isms.

Mr. Pollock's method is an adaption of the expressionistic manner, but to the terseness and repetition of that ritual he adds comic-strip grotesquery and the most bitter sort of satire. Thus he achieves a collection of cadaverous caricatures.

Pillorying the weakness of a generation ruled by its hunger for riches. But he does not rest his case there; a less experienced playwright might have made the mistake of presenting these brief sketches episodically, but Mr. Pollock binds them into a complete and fast-moving play, enhanced by every grace of the scenic arts and directed with penetrating skill by a master technician of the "new" drama. The result is a play which reflects great credit upon the author; upon Robert Edmond Jones, who designed the settings; Richard Boleslavsky, who stages it, and upon the splendid players who enact it.

Tables Turned

The captain has his price, and Olympia pays it. He promises to disappear if first she will give herself to him. Then it is that she discovers she truly loves him, no matter what his rank or station. But, vain, cowardly creature that she is, she lacks the courage to admit it, and again puts him out of her life.

Fate and Mr. Molnar turn the tables on Olympia in the third act. The captain, it then appears, really is an officer and a gentleman of sorts. The cloud of suspicion hovering over his head was his own invention, a sly scheme to avenge his treatment at the hands of the woman he loved. Being rejected in his own person, he thus had forced Olympia to accept him as her lover when she thought him to be a criminal and an outcast.

By this time the craven princess is happy enough to accept the man of whom she had been so anxious to rid herself. She would resurrect the love she had been to such pain to kill, but the courageous captain will have none of her, and the final curtain reveals the unhappy Olympia forlorn and humiliated, a perfect picture of a self-seeking woman wrecked on the shoals of her own spinelessness.

Rogers Wise Cracks

Lack of synchronization between the entrepreneurs of Broadway and struggling slaves to newspaper edition schedules sent your unsuspecting correspondent tethering off into the rough on Monday night, and this postscriptural paragraph is intended as an effort to get back on the fairway, which seems the only fair way. Up to 11 o'clock when your investigator rushed breathlessly from the Globe theater to file his report on "Three Cheers," that play had not been much to arouse enthusiasm. Afterward and long into the night, I am told by those who remained, Will Rogers shook off the restrictions of plot and made merry in his own inimitable style. I am sorry all this came after my bedtime, for no one enjoys the Rogers wisecracks more than I, and none is more anxious to render accurate reports of the plays.

CONTRASTS NEW PARISIAN VOGUE

New Influence Seen in All Models

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—A pronounced contrast in costuming is the evident note of the French "demi-saison," as the present in-between time is known in Paris.

This note is seen throughout the latest models, running from sports to the most elaborate evening gowns. A coat so simply cut that it might be for a school girl must have one of the world's most expensive furs such as a blue or silver fox fur piled high around the neck and draping in flowing lines far down the sides. The coat is intrinsically worth very little, and the fur is worth a fortune—that's the vogue.

In evening gowns the note of contrast is even more noticeable. Gowns in the brightest scarlet, very decollete at the back, from Patou, Chanel and Chantal — the last named being a new house in the Champs-Elysees—provide a marked contrast to the blackest satins of Worth, Vionnet and Poiret.

Tastes Divided

Among fashionable women, the taste seems about equally divided. If the Duchesse de Nemours appears in red, the Princess Murat has been seen in a stunning Chantal creation in black. The divided sentiment is most noticeable among the fashionable persons seen at the Ritz and elsewhere.

Afternoon frocks and sport suits show the same tendency. Mrs. Mason Day was seen at the Ritz grill in a lovely gown done in two shades of blue. Mrs. Howard Johnston was noticed at the some time in emerald tweed with a diagonal pleat pressed flat but showing enough of a lighter shade to create an effective contrast.

Mrs. Lyman H. Hine, Long Island hostess, wore a sports costume consisting of a tweed skirt with a jacket of imitation leather material that has become so fashionable since the Prince of Wales started the vogue for leather jumpers on the golf links.

But really so far as the women are concerned, jumpers as such are distinctly out of it. Instead, there are to be one-piece dresses with coat to go over.

Pajamas in Vogue

"Like this," explained Mme. Evelyn Exner at Chantal's, producing a dark blue tweed coat with a red fox collar just completed for the Duchesse de Nemours. The jewelry to accompany the costume for the duchesse was a necklace wherein there were three stones—one red, one blue and on yellow—caught on a thin platinum chain.

Pajamas too are receiving special attention since Lady Milford-Haven started the vogue at Juan-Les-Pins by appearing on the beach in dark blue ones trimmed in beige and red.

Parisian designers now have their eyes on the Palm Beach, Miami and Havana seasons, hoping the beaches will present a fashionable kaleidoscopic effect. One feature pajama suit, which it is hoped to produce at the American winter resorts, is in two shades of red. It consists of a coat of scarlet, and trousers of magenta with a top belted in beige.

LONDON.—An order recently issued by the Bishop of St. Brieuc, Brittany, bars any woman with bare arms, legs or shoulders and boys with shirts open too low at the neck, from entering any church or presbytery in his diocese.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone, somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but you may try it free by using this coupon.—Adv.

There's Another Bonanza Right Outside Our Door!

P. B. M. Co. served Wichita Falls when it was a small town of the Western plains. This store saw it go through one of the greatest booms a Texas city has ever known, emerging a shining city of an oil empire.

Now, P. B. M. Co. rejoices with the city . . . for another bonanza is going to be opened up, right outside the city's door!

The colonization plan to be worked out under the direction of Mr. Charles Weeks is, in our opinion, the greatest stride forward Wichita Falls has taken since it reached the status of a city. Our enthusiasm has no bounds, for our faith in the irrigated valley and in the capacities of the men who are building it is limitless. The best times our city has ever seen will be from now on—the future glows brighter than ever!

No doubting opinion can quell our enthusiasms or halt plans based upon expectation of continuous prosperity and limitless progress.

Every look behind, every thought of the future heartens us to push boldly ahead.

Wichita Falls is sound. And the colonization project is the start of a movement that will bring our city to new heights.

All honor to the landowners who are bringing it about. There isn't a cloud in sight that waiting brooms can't brush away! Come on, let's go!

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The smart alecks of the country towns used to haze a green kid by sending him on a fruitless hunt for a left-handed monkey wrench, and fraternity men in schools and colleges of all sizes can think up terrifying stunts for hazing their freshmen.

It turns out now that the runners in the big, dignified Wall Street brokerage houses take time off from delivering millions of dollars in stocks and bonds to haze a newcomer in their ranks in a unique fashion.

The new boy among the runners is given a faked message to deliver to the firm of Lay, Down & Reade, which, he is assured, he will find on Wall Street. He can (and sometimes does) hunt all day for it, for no such firm exists. Or he is sent to pick up a package of bonds from a firm at Church and Grave. When he returns with the true information that there is no such location he is promptly taken to old St. Paul's and shown both the church and the grave.

The commuter had an idea that the younger generation needed practical training—that is the very younger generation.

His four-year-old son either had broken or discarded all his games and the commuter, acting on his conviction, purchased a game that was composed principally of money, imitation, of course. He would inculcate into his son's mind the value thereof.

He arrived home and after dinner produced and explained the game.

"Now," he said, "all these pieces of paper represent money and so do these metal disks. They are all marked and they will teach you to calculate."

"All right, dad," responded little Jimmie, "let's play a game, shall we?"

Dad took the piano bench.

"Now," he said, "do you want to buy this piano bench?" Little Jimmie looked it over carefully and decided he did.

"It will cost you $8.37," said the commuter. "Now count out $8.37 for me and you can have the bench."

Little Jimmie was thoughtful for a moment or two. Then he handed out an imitation bill.

"Here's a 10-dollar bill, dad," he said. "Give me the change."

Oklahoma Highway Contracts Awarded

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 24. (UP)—Two contracts for asphalt tops on graveled roads today were awarded to C. S. Beakman and T. E. Wadg, both of Oklahoma City, by the state highway commission.

The contract for 12.82 miles of road east of Okemah was given Beakman whose bid of $186,223.05 was low.

The contract for six miles of road west from Hugo in Choctaw county went to Ward whose bid was $90,284.50.

The contracts will be paid for out of department maintenance funds as maintenance projects.

LEARNING

When I consider things I know—
The way to spell a word or so;
A rule or two of rhetoric;
A little plain arithmetic;
A muddled mass of history—
(Such stuff would never stick with me);
A little plane geometry.
And less of trigonometry—
When I consider, here apart,
What few of facts suffice my heart,
I marvel at the thoughts that come;—
I'm happy, and supremely dumb!

Radio Election Returns

IF YOU are planning to listen in on radio election returns on the night of election day, with pad and pencil to jot down results, here's a tip for you: be wary of shutting off the set about 9 o'clock and going to bed thinking that you know the final verdict.

This probably will be a pretty close election. Early returns, coming from big cities, may not jibe at all with later returns. In 1916, you may recall, Mr. Hughes went to bed on election night satisfied that he would be the next president. The next day it didn't seem so certain.

It is very possible that this year's returns may show a similar discrepancy, one way or the other, between early and late results. As you get the early ones over your radio you may console yourself, if your candidate is trailing, by the thought that next morning he may be doing better.

Reducing Medicine

EFFORTS to reduce weight by taking thyroid extracts are undermining the health of thousands of American women, according to an article by Prof. Ivor Griffith, noted chemist, in the current issue of The American Druggist.

"Thyroid should not be self-administered," writes Professor Griffith. "It is much too potent a medicine to place in lay hands. Even the doctors hesitate to use it simply for reducing physical ponderosity."

This warning is timely. Any person who wants to lose weight would do well to consult a doctor first. The indiscriminate taking of patent medicines may do a great deal of harm, just as ill-advised attempt to diet without medical advice are often weakening. To be slender is much to be desired, no doubt; but not to be slender and sick, too.

The "Lost" Battalion

EVER since the end of the world war Americans have cherished the story of the famous Lost Battalion.

This story has been considered one of the finest tales in American military history. As an example of pure heroism and endurance it ranks with anything in our annals.

But a disagreeable cloud has been rising about it in recent years. Strange rumors and whispers have passed back and forth. It has been hinted that the Lost Battalion did what it did only because of a ghastly blunder not unlike that which sent the British Light Brigade to charge the Russian guns at Balaclava.

Incompetent leadership has been charged. When Lieutenant Colonel Whittlesey, the commander of the unit, committed suicide by jumping from the deck of an ocean liner a few years ago there were many furtive noddings of heads. A magazine writer not long ago wrote a short story, telling of an imaginary incident closely parallel to the Lost Battalion, and setting forth that the commander, feted for his bravery, had really bungled the affair frightfully and caused hundreds of brave men to go to their death.

So the story of the Lost Battalion has been robbed of its savor. A lot of us have not known whether to be proud of it or ashamed.

Now a book, "Without Censor," written by Thomas M. Johnson, who was a war-time newspaper correspondent with the A. E. F., has appeared to clear up the whole situation.

Johnson tells the entire story. In the battle of the Meuse-Argonne, the greatest fight American soldiers ever participated in, the 77th division was pushing forward over difficult ground against stiff resistance. Whittlesey's battalion was one of several moving forward on a wide front. Whittlesey and his men gained their objective and dug in, in a remarkably well-chosen site; the flanking battalions were driven back. Whittlesey and his men found themselves left "up in the air," without support. Strict orders had been given not to retreat. The detachment dutifully held on.

It was not really "lost." It knew precisely where it was, and so did the rest of the army. The only trouble was that the supporting troops could not break through to reach it. The battalion was isolated within the German lines. Time and again efforts were made to relieve it. They failed. The Germans attacked this outpost repeatedly, without success. They finally called on it to surrender. Whittlesey refused—although it happens that he did not use the words "Go to hell!" attributed to him. He had his orders—to stick; and he and his citizen-soldiers stuck, as manfully as any soldiers in history.

Finally, after five days, the American attack caught up with the Lost Battalion and relieved it.

Mr. Johnson pays especial attention to the derogatory rumors and refutes them all. Whittlesey, he says, was brave and wise. He did exactly what any good leader would have done, except that he did it better than some might have done. There was no bungling. The whole incident was what it was first reported—an untarnished episode of pure gallantry.

This is splendid news. We suggest that the American Legion might be interested in seeing that it gets the widest kind of publicity. The Lost Battalion can remain one of the brightest spots in our military record.

ALWAYS IN LIMELIGHT

It is safe to say that during the eight years that he has served the state of New York as governor, Alfred E. Smith has had all his official acts under closer scrutiny than any other governor in the United States.

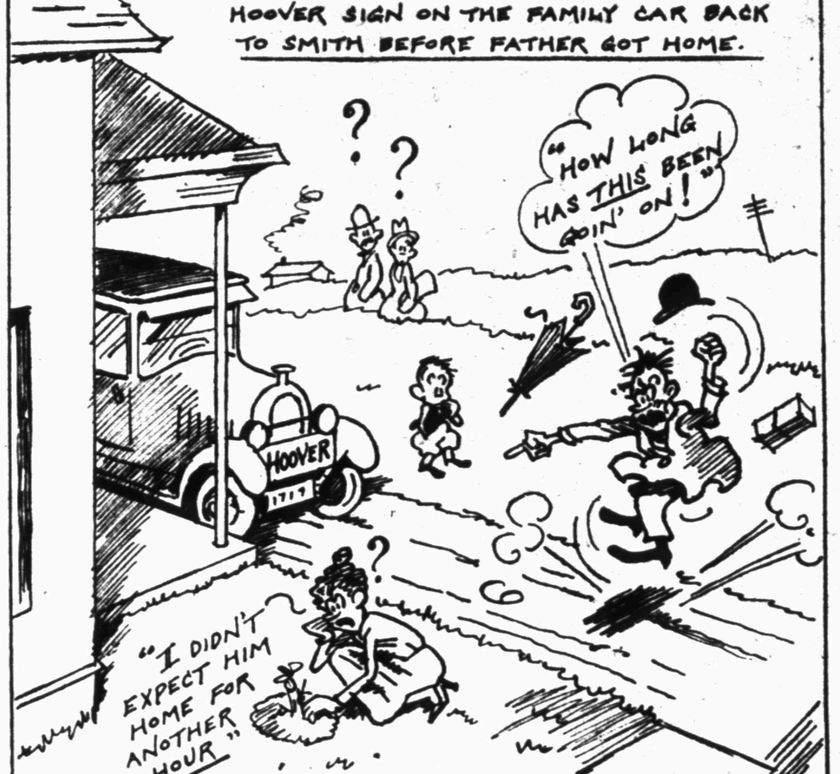

There are two reasons for this: One is that he has passed through four campaigns to succeed himself, and the other is that during all the time he has been governor he has had a hostile legislature, always in one house and in every term but one in both houses, to deal with.

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Thomas Dean, successful young novelist, has hidden from the world his old name Paul Forrester, because of a crime later connected with a self-defense killing out West, and Dean still carries the scar of that encounter. But a series of circumstances swirls him into a vortex of mystery. First he reads a deathbed confession of the murder of Paul Forrester five years before, made by Martin Lamont, western business man, on a visit to New York, and witnessed by Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, and Dr. John Ballinger, well-known doctor. Then a mysterious lady, Viola Gray, visits him and Lieutenant Shane finds the remains of the murdered man in "The Room Under the Stairs," of Dean's deserted family home. A watch marked "P. F." completes the identification, although Dean finds pieces of another watch crystal at the scene of the murder. Later an attempt is made on his life by Freddie Mills, a hired assassin, and Dean's subsequent appearance alive produces a startling effect on both Miss Gray and Dr. Ballinger. Finally, after Dean has heard a woman's screams through the latter's telephone, Lamont is murdered, and Dean trails the lawyer to a hidden room in the latter's house. There he finds Shirley Lamont, the dead man's daughter, held as prisoner and is discovered by Littleby, who warns them both and mysteriously vanishes. Trapped together they can find no way out of the secret room. Meantime, Lieutenant Shane finds Miss Gray in "The Room Under the Stairs" at the old Forrester home and shares her discovery of an important piece of paper. Together they set out for Littleby's house. Trapped together Dean and Shirley are nearly suffocated by a gaseous cloud that descends on them in the secret room, but a sudden ring at their telephone shows that Littleby is willing to make terms. Appealing to his chivalry, the lawyer forces Dean to suicide to save the girl.

A Woman's Wit

An uncomprehending expression, accompanied by a cautious glint in the hard gray eyes, crossed the lawyer's face.

"That's an odd question, Miss Gray."

"I have a reason for asking it. An ordinary mortal couldn't be in two places at one and the same time, could he?"

"Naturally not."

"That's what I would say, but Lieutenant Shane," with an arch glance at the detective, "has discovered evidence that seems to prove that Lamont was about two thousand miles from here on the night the murder on Hudson street was committed."

A slight tremor disturbed the lawyer's magnificent equanimity. For a moment his face seemed to freeze up; his personality appeared to retire behind a screen of glacial inscrutability. Then, with a shrug, he turned to Shane with a smile.

"I suppose even a hard-working lieutenant must have his little jokes. What about it, Shane?"

Shane's apologetic airs had suddenly vanished. He had noticed the lawyer's momentary confusion, and it seemed to instill a mingling of suspicion and perplexity in his mind.

"Miss Gray is too modest," he declared. "She found the evidence herself. Don't know why she should want to give me the credit."

Littleby shifted his bland and yet cautious gaze from Shane to the girl.

"I fear it will take a great deal of evidence to controvert Lamont's confession," he remarked sadly. "Of course I should welcome anything that would clear his name of such a deplorable stain. I am afraid it is hopeless, however. What did you find, Miss Gray?"

"Just an old letter. I found it among a heap of rubbish. I didn't suppose you would be interested." She paused for a moment, smiled tantalizingly, and then, to Shane's bewilderment, abruptly changed the subject. "Did you ever hear of Beulah Vance?"

Again the lawyer started. He bent a quick, searching gaze on the young woman's face, as if suspecting a hidden purpose behind its teasing serenity.

"Beulah Vance? Let me see. Ah, I believe I recall the name. Wasn't she the showgirl who instituted breach of promise proceedings against Paul Forrester some years ago?"

"You ought to know, Mr. Littleby. Weren't you her lawyer?"

Littleby coughed, vaguely disturbed by the girl's question as well as by Lieutenant Shane's sidelong glance.

"Ahem, not exactly. If I remember correctly, my connection with the case was only in an advisory capacity. I did not appear personally in the matter. All that happened several years ago, and the details have escaped me. Why did you ask?"

"Vulgar curiosity—that's all. Wasn't the case finally dropped?"

"I believe so. It appeared that young Forrester was practically penniless, so there was no reason for prosecuting the suit. Afterward he dropped out of sight, and the mystery of his fate remained unsolved until Lamont's confession cleared it up."

"And Beulah Vance?" What became of her?"

Littleby shrugged. "How should I know? Perhaps she married a title, as some showgirls do."

"Or maybe she neglected her figure and permitted herself to go fat and frowsy. In that case she would hardly have married a title, would she? Do you suppose, if Paul Forrester were alive today and should happen to meet her, that he would recognize her?"

Again the lawyer stiffened perceptibly, but his outward expression was one of patient weariness with the girl's idle speculations.

"Maybe not. People do change, and show girls faster than others."

"Especially if they have had disappointments," suggested Miss Gray. "Do you know, Miss Farnham who was Lamont's nurse looked to me as though she'd had a lot to contend with. She has a hard look in her face and she's let her figure turn into a lump. A few years ago—say five or six—she might have been just as beautiful as Beulah Vance."

Littleby's lips came open, but he found no words. For the moment all his poise seemed to have left him. Shane, standing a little to one side, watched him with a grim, calculating eye.

"By the way, who engaged Miss Farnham?" was the girl's next question. "Did you or Dr. Ballinger."

"I—I believe I made the suggestion," stammered Littleby, "and Dr. Ballinger approved."

"So I thought." Miss Gray reflected for a moment, her big, dancing eyes fixed inexorably on the lawyer. "Show girls sometimes go in for nursing, don't they? It's one way of doing penance for a frothy past. And I suppose it helps them forget things that—that they want to forget. I wonder if Miss Farnham—"

She paused, her roguish eyes sobering a little, but in the next moment her volatile mind seemed to have skipped off on a different trail. Littleby, perceiving that her questions were about to take a new turn, looked instantly relieved, but her next words had an immediately startling effect.

"Have you had any news of Miss Lamont?"

"Not a word," said the lawyer with a sigh. "It is very peculiar."

"Very," said Miss Gray gravely. "She was last seen in your house, I understand. One of your servants saw her in the stairway. Then she disappeared. And there is Mr. Dean. He, too, was last seen in your house, only a few hours ago. That makes two disappearances in the same place."

"Rather astounding, isn't it?" admitted the lawyer. His face was averted, but her vaguely tormenting eyes seemed to pursue him. "As for Dean, though, it is just possible that he had the best of reasons for disappearing."

"Think so? Do you know, Mr. Littleby, that for a while Lieutenant Shane and I thought you had disappeared, too? We were coming down the hall, about three-quarters of an hour ago, and could hear you talking in your room. After a while we moved on, and a little later, coming back the same way the door stood open, but you weren't in. We wondered where you could have gone."

"Curiosity is characteristic of trespassers," remarked Littleby in a tone of mingled jocularity and petulance.

"And then," Miss Gray went on, "we began to wonder who you could have been talking to. We couldn't hear what you were saying, even if we had been inclined to eavesdrop. At first we thought you were talking to yourself, for all the talking was in the same voice. Then we finally decided that no man would talk as long as that to himself, and that you must have been speaking with some one on the phone."

"A natural deduction, I should say," remarked Littleby, stiffly.

"Were you?" persisted Miss Gray in the naive tone that seemed to save her questions from sounding impudent.

"Really, my dear young lady, you are overwhelming me with your interest in my trivial doings.

"If the doings are trivial, you surely can't object."

"I don't in the least. I am extremely complimented, but also a bit puzzled. As for my conversation over the telephone it suddenly occurred to me that I would be unable to go to my office in the morning, so I called up one of my associates and called his attention to certain matters that require immediate consideration."

"Oh." Miss Gray exchanged brief glances with Lieutenant Shane. "That makes it all the stranger. You see, Mr. Littleby, the lieutenant was so curious that he went to the telephone exchange—it is a few blocks from here, you know—and inquired if any calls had been put through from your house in the last hour. The operator seemed positive there had been none."

Littleby gave her a lowering glance. He seemed to require a great exertion of will power to maintain his dignity.

"Your conduct is truly amazing, Lieutenant Shane," he declared, stiffly. "You enter my house without my permission, search it from top to bottom, and subject me to a surveillance that is nothing short of impudence. I shall be constrained to report your conduct, sir."

"Go ahead," said Shane carelessly. "I expected it. Now that we've caught you in a lie, I don't mind. At first I felt like apologizing, but now I'm beginning to think Miss Gray's hunch was right. It was your fib about the telephone call that quseered you, though I've discovered lately that there are a whole lot of other things that need explanation. You were talking to somebody inside the house, Mr. Littleby."

"Indeed?" drawled the lawyer, sarcastically.

"You must have been, since your call didn't go through the exchange. I've noticed that this house has an intercommunicating system of telephones."

"You are very observant, but you are overlooking two facts. One is that a telephone operator is a hard-working person and cannot remember all the calls that come in. The second is that a busy man of affairs, when pestered with foolish and impudent questions, is justified in resorting to subterfuges that are just as good as the truth. You may take that any way you like."

Littleby drew himself up; a mantle of ineffable righteousness seemed to drape itself around his tall, gaunt form.

Shane seemed impressed, but only for a moment. "Mind if I have a look at your telephone connections?" he asked softly.

"I do," declared the lawyer coldly. "If you had approached me in the proper fashion at the start I should have acquiesced without a murmur. After the way you have conducted yourself, you will have to go and apply to a magistrate for a search warrant before you proceed a step further. The local magistrate knows what sort of reputation I enjoy in this community as well as among my professional colleagues in the city. He will probably have a good laugh. Good morning, sir."

He opened the door, smiling triumphantly as Miss Gray and the lieutenant passed out into the drizzly dawn.

"Come again, Miss Gray," he called after her. "I have enjoyed our little chat. I never imagined that such a pretty little head as yours could be so full of odd hunches."

For a moment he stood watching their departing figures, then closed the door and crossed the vestibule toward the stairs. The austere directness had suddenly left his body, leaving it limp and drooping. There was a black look in his face, a glint of baffled malice in his eyes. His steps dragged as he ascended.

"Narrow escaped," he muttered. "If Shane gets his warrant—but he probably won't. At any rate, I have an hour or two in which to arrange things. Confound that little Miss Gray!"

He reached his room, where the light was still burning, sank into a chair and for a time sat gazing dully at the telephone.

"And there is still Miss Lamont," he mumbled, finishing a long train of thought. His face had once more hardened into a fixed, glacial composure. "She must be disposed of, somehow. Wish she would follow Dean's example. H'm. Arselene?"

He jumped up nervously. In the gray, wet dawn the doorbell's peal sounded uncannily sharp.

Another Visitor

Cautiously Littleby opened the door a few inches. Outside, with a dripping slouch hat on his head, and his powerful figure draped in a raincoat which he had neglected to button, stood Dr. Ballinger.

"Come in," said Littleby, and showed the way to his study on the ground floor.

Without a word the physician followed, hanging up his hat and coat on the rack in the vestibule. Entering the study, the lawyer turned on a light and motioned his visitor to a chair. There was an illegible frown on Ballinger's handsome face. His quick gray eyes traveled over the objects in the room, resting for a moment on a safe incased in an oaken cabinet, occupying an inconspicuous position behind the writing desk in a corner.

"Well?" said Littleby, breaking an awkward silence, during which the two men looked like poker players trying to outguess each other.

SUIT FOR CHILD NON-JURY CASE

State Supreme Court Rules On Technicality

AUSTIN, Oct. 24. (AP)—Where the custody and possession of a child is not sought merely through an ordinary suit, but by invoking the writ of habeas corpus, neither party thereto is entitled to a jury trial as a matter of right, the supreme court held today in ordering judgment dismissing writ of error set aside, reversing the judgment of the court of civil appeals and affirming judgment of the district court, in the case of Minnie Burckhalter et al, vs L. A. Conyer, et al. from Dallas county.

Through habeas corpus the plaintiffs botained judgment awarding her custody and possession of a minor child, but the court of civil appeals reversed the judgment. While pending in the supreme court an order was entered requiring plaintiffs to return the child from another state to which they had transported her to this state. Because of the child's absence from the state, the supreme court dismissed the writ of error.

New Sugar Discovered In Tubers of Dahlia

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. (AP)—Discovery of a new sugar in the juice of dahlia tubers is announced by the United States bureau of standards.

It was discovered during tests to find out the structure of inulin, which is a starch-like substance found in the dahlia juice. About 92 per cent of this juice was resolved into the already known sugar called levulose or fructose, but the remaining eight per cent was a mystery.

This residual substance was subjected while in syrup form to a light polarization test. Fructose when given a similar test rotates the oplarized light to the left, but this unknown syrup rotated it to the right. Other tests reduced it to crystalline form, which the announcement says is a sugar that has "never heitherto been isolated."

Banking Houses Invest In New Air Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (UP)—The formation of a complete trans-continental air passenger service between New York and San Francisco was forecast today as a result of a large investment by two leading banking houses in the Boeing Airplane and Transport company.

The National City company of New York, in association with the Pacific National company of Seattle, Wash., is putting from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 in the Aircraft corporation, it was announced.

CHORUS GIRL SEASON HERE

Grand Rush Opens With Many Disappointed

By GERALDINE FITCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (US)—Looks and luck are the chorus girl's golden keys.

Without them she can't get past the stage door. But unless she has what is known as "the goods" to keep them shiny, her job is as uncertain as the course of a windtossed leaf.

Stage-struck girls—"God bless em!" murmurs the producer—are gathering in New York for the rush of next month. Around the fifteenth of November the chorus girl season will be at its height. Thousands of them will click high heels over the rough boards of stages, under glaring, ugly light, awaiting the verdict of a shirtsleeved producer sitting out front in an empty house and steeped in critical appraisal.

The "Axeman"

The producer may not in the least corrospond with the bogey idea of his type—he seldom does. But whether he chews a mean cigar or wiggles a fat forefinger, his gesture of acceptance or dismissal has for the anxious girl the significance of the masked headsman's gesture with the axe before the block.

How to get in the chorus? That isn't so frightfully hard. How to stay in for a show's run, for a sufficient time to enable one afterwards to say she's been on the stage? That is difficult, and is getting more and more difficult.

The chorus Equity association places the number of actual chorus girl jobs all over the country at less than 4500. That is the number of their lists, and some of these pay dues while not actually working. Every chorus girl must be a member of Equity. The number of applicants for these jobs exceeds 25,000.

Within the last four months Florenze Ziegfeld has interviewed 10,000 girls. At his call for "Whoopee" 785 applied for 80 openings. At J. J. Shubert's call for girls who could both sing and dance in "Music in May," 2500 girls managed to get his ear with their appeal. At the height of the season the Shuberts, largest employers of chorus girls, use 1500.

Training Essential

The day when a girl could get a job as a beautiful clothes-horse is practically gone. Today she must have training in stage arts, unless she is one of the few glorified revue "showgirls." These still receive the highest chorus salaries; from $75 to $100 a week. Being tall and stately, they have little to do but show off their loveliness and dress up a show. They are the last symbol of feminine beauty such as the stage of 20 years ago adored. Their figures are permitted curves, they may be languid, even haughty. But their place in public admiration has been taken to some extent by the more petite and sparkling type of girl, and it is this type that has the best chance of landing a 1928 chorus job.

Actual experience in different shows is no longer necessary to a chorus job. Indeed, such experience may subtly imply that a girl is "getting on" and getting nowhere, perchance losing the youthful freshness of the average naive-looking, stage-struck miss. Experience today means proficiency in dancing, singing, stage deportment. Without such training, the applicants lot may be hopeless. "Youth, beauty, talent, training!" the old cry goes up from the makers of stage confections, needing chorus girls for icing on the cake. Invariably they get what they want. The unlucky girl who fails goes back home, or back of the counter, or to the back line of the ensemble in other shows.

Miss Dorothy Bryant, executive of chorus Equity, says of chorus girls:

"There is such a surplus that the little 16-year-olds have the best chance. The average stage life of a chorus girl is three years. Fifty-five per cent of our membership is new every year. The others just fade away. Many are taken away by marriage, humble, ordinary marriage. Our oldest member is a girl of 26, who was in the strike of 1919, and is still working happily for the same producer. About 140 chorus girls a year progress to small parts and principal roles."

A young girl with chorus ambitions, on coming to New York, gravitates to the office of the producer she has heard most about in her home town. There she meets Equity girls who send her to the Equity association, where announcements of all "calls" are posted. At Equity she is told she can not become a member until she gets her first chorus job. After she gets the job, her initiation fee will be $5, her yearly dues $12. Then she will be protected on her contract. Her lowest salary will be $35 a week.

If she is broke, she can wait to pay up until her four weeks' rehearsal period without pay is over. She can have the benefit of cheaper lessons in dancing and singing and elocution. She is told where she can live cheaply and well while hunting work and rehearsing. There are studio clubs and rehearsal clubs all over the city, many of them endowed, just to look after her. Most of them have long waiting lists.

On the bulletin board are notices of calls from producers. These are for girls of a certain height, who have good voices; or small dancers; or mediums who can both sing and dance. the girls are instructed to appear at a certain time in a certain theater or hall. At the appointed hour the stage is likely to be mobbed with pretty young things. They line up while directors walk in front of them, looking them over carefully.

Rarely Give Up

This girl is told to come forward, that one that she is not the type. This last remark is the kindest way of letting a girl down. Another way is to let her give her name and address to a secretary sitting nearby, who promises to send for her when more girls are needed.

Being turned down from one call after another fails to dampen the average stage-struck girl's ardor. There is the great God Chance, and he is by her side. Indeed he is, for only chance can account for the summary dismissals of some girls from try-out lines, and their eager acceptance at the stage door of another theater, before which they hesitated in fear and trembling.

The Reader's Opinion

The columns of The Record News are open to its readers for the discussion of questions of current interest or import. Letters should be not more than 500 words in length, preferably shorter, and should be signed with the name and address of the writer. Initials, or pen-name, will be substituted upon request. Letters must be free of personal abuse or libel, and the editor reserves the right to reject parts or all of letters.

STILL DOES NOT BELIEVE OATH QUOTED TRUE ONE

Editor Record News: Some time since you were generous enough to print one of my letters. I wish to thank you for that courtesy. However, you refer to some parts of my letter in a fictitious manner. Now I am going to ask you to correct one word of the sentence in which I stated that I was not willing to be submerged in a lake of beer. You made me say keg of beer. I meant just what I said "lake," for if Al Smith should be elected president of this nation we would have not only lakes but rivers and oceans of strong beer. Now, Mr. Editor in commenting on the part of my letter which referred to LaFayette being a Mason you said that at that time it was not uncommon for Catholics to belong to the Masonic fraternity. I wish to call your attention to the "Papal Bull" issued in A. D., 1738 which said that all Roman Catholics who joined the Masonic fraternity were automatically excommunicated from the Roman Catholic church.

I will state that George Washington took his master's degree on August 4, 1753, so you see Washington's and LaFayette's Masonic aprons which are displayed together at Washington's old home proves my point.

It is indeed refreshing to meet a fraternalist who so willingly and unhesitatingly gives the innermost secrets of his order. Mr. Editor, you will bear in mind that I did not say that the Congressional Record which purports to be the real obligation of the Knights of Columbus was true, for I am unable to bring myself to believe that the mind of man or a human tongue could conceive or express such a hellish oath, but I wish to remind you that the Smithites are sending out copies of a Congressional Record which they say is true. Now I want to ask if one Congressional Record is true why not all of them be true.

No, I am not willing to believe all of the records neither do I believe the oath quoted by Dr. Henry Van Dyke is the true oath of a fourth degree Knight of Columbus. Call the shades of Luther, Calvin, Knox and Wesley, but of more modern times, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Roosevelt, and of Madero and Obregon. My dear editor if you will only open your eyes you can see things as they have been and are now at this moment.

Al Smith's stand on immigration and our national liquor laws are sufficient to disqualify him for a leader of as progressive a nation as ours. Al Smith has never to my knowledge denied drinking alcoholic beverages. Now if Al Smith is elected leader of this great nation how is he going to get his booze—from a private bootlegger or his confessor -- both unlawful sources. If our president is a law violator what can be expected of his followers?

Please print.

MARS MESSAGE AT BAD TIME

Powerful R. C. A. Station Puts on Test to Interfere

By SAM LOVE
United Press Staff Correspondent

GARDEN CITY, L. I., Oct. 24. — Dr. Hugh Mansfield Robinson's billet doux to Miss Oomararu, his girl friend of Mars, and all the other floppy-eared ladies and gentlemen on the neighboring planet went on the ether at an unfortunate time.

Just as station JBR at Rugby, England, started sending "Mar La oi de earth" at 9:09 p. m. the Radio Corporation of America's high powered station at Rocky Point, L. I., which up to this time had taken no part in the interplanatory love feast, began a series of tests of their equipment.

When R. C. A. makes an ordinary test, all other stations in North America just stand around and marvel. Last night, however, was no ordinary test. If Mars received any message from earth during the period prearranged telephatically by by the gifted Britisher with Miss Oomararu, it probably consisted of "WSS testing . . WSS testing . . . WSS testing."

At least seven other major stations scattered around the globe also fought a game battle with the Rugby senders, and the chances are that if the Martians had their earphones on they heard enough gossip about earth affairs to make up for not receiving Dr. Robinson's love and kisses

This is the opinion of Charles B. Ellsworth, veteran radio operator at UX, the United Press radio station here.

"There's LY, Lyons, France, coming in like a bell," said Ellsworth. It's a personal message. Somebody named Ginsberg has missed a boat. There's IRB at Rome. There's Rugby again. Nothing for the girl friend, however. There's R. C. A., testing . . Ow, such a test . . R. C. A. still testing. . . ."

The time for the "Mar la oi de earth, Oom ga Mar" message came and went while R. C. A. buckled down to testing in good earnest. Well, anyhow, maybe they would get tired and quit before Mars replied.

There are very high powered sending sets on Mars, and the receiving sets, because of the size of Martian ears, look like small dishpans.

The people on Mars can only receive short messages at a time because of their breathing. The air there is four times as thin as our earth, so aside from their ears, the populace consists mostly of lungs. Thus a Martian looks like an animated bellows, spindly at the lower end. It has been established by authorities preceding Dr. Robinson that a Martian can only listen while he holds his breath.

R. C. A., stopped testing, and Ellsworth, exclaiming, "What tha!" suddenly seized a pad and began to write.

Listening intently, he scribbled the mystic word, "Nasorovia."

Skepticism on the part of the rest of the watch-party was tinged slightly—but tinged—with awe. Suppose it was actually something from, well, from somewhere.

But Ellsworth couldn't keep his joke long.

"I picked it up, all right," he said "From AXL, Warsaw, Russia. But not" tonight. It's a good old Russian word that they may use on Mars, meaning "here's looking at you!"

Red Grange Faces Claim That He's Father of Infant

CHICAGO, Oct. 24. (INS)—Harold (Red) Grange, "galloping ghost" of football fame at the University of Illinois, appearing at a downtown theater here, was named today in a warrant sworn out in the court of domestic relations by Miss Helen Morrissey, 22. The charges involve paternity. Miss Morrissey said she was the mother of a seven and one-half months old baby.

The warrant was issued today by Judge William R. Fetzer after Miss Morrissey had appeared several days ago with her attorney.

Miss Morrissey charged that Grange had failed to pay any hospital bills for her and refused to support her child or make any provision for her.

Miss Morrissey told Judge Fetzer she merely wished the $1,100 provided by the laws of Illinois in such cases.

Policeman R. J. Sheehy, of the detective bureau, served the warrant upon Grange at a loop theater and hearing on the case was set for 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

BANK ROBBER IS CAPTURED

Bandit Taken One Hour After Holdup

MORRILL, Kan., Oct. 24. (UP)—One hour after he successfully held up the Morrill State bank this afternoon and escaped with $3,000 in cash, Ralph Steele was captured in a nearby cornfield.

Steele, 20-year-old son of the publisher of the Morrill Weekly, entered the bank shortly after noon and held up Floyd McKim, cashier and only occupant of the building.

After raking the money into a sack Steele struck McKim over the head with the butt of his gun and started from the building. A patron at the door was felled by the gun butt as Steele continued his flight.

After hiding the money in the alley at the rear of the bank Steele tried to escape in a stolen car but was overtaken.

TECH EXPECTS GREAT SESSION

Board of Directors Meet to Hear Reports

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Oct. 24.—The biggest summer session in the history of the Texas Technological college is the aim of the board of directors who met here today to make plans for the next summer session and to work out matters of the expansion program which they will lay before the next session of the Texas legislature.

Directors were pleased to learn that a total of 1,801 students have been enrolled to date this year. This is thought to be a record attendance in a college or university as young as the Tech. The college is just entering its fourth year.

Due to the splendid summer climate, the attendance next summer and each succeeding summer is expected to increase. This past summer a total of 965 students were enrolled.

Details of the expansion program or plans for the increased work of the summer session were not announced.

Directors of the college present today included: Clifford B. Jones, Spur, chairman; John W. Carpenter, Dallas; Frank E. Clarity, Fort Worth; Henry T. Kimbro, Lubbock, and C. G. Comegys, McKinney.

Ernest O. Thompson, Amarillo; Houston Harte, San Angelo; R. A. Underwood, Plainview, and Mrs. F. N. Drane, Corsicana, were absent from the meeting.

President Paul W. Horn and Business Manager E. W. Provence met with the board and Clifford B. Jones has as his guest his father, C. A. Jones, of New York, who attended the meeting as a visitor.

C. T. Watson to Judge Martin County Fair

Special to The Record News.

STANTON, Texas, Oct. 24.—C. T. Watson, secretary of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, will be official judge for the Martin county fair which will be held at Stanton Friday and Saturday, Oct. 26-27. Watson, a former county agent, before assuming the job of secretary at Big Spring, is considered one of the best judges in the country on such occasions.

The Martin county fair, in spite of the late date, has promise of being one of the leading county fairs in West Texas for this season.

A fair association will be organized and officers elected at the fair this year and the fair will be an annual event at Stanton hereafter.

Man Who Killed Self While Deaths Of Tots Were Probed Had Strong Case

OSBORNE, Kan., Oct. 24. (AP)—Fred Kaser, young farmer of Covert who killed himself yesterday so he would not be compelled to stand trial today for the alleged murder of his brother's family of eight, had a good chance to prove himself innocent, Judge W. R. Mitchell of the Osborne county district court said.

In a conference with Judge Mitchell last week, Kaser had convinced the judge there as "considerable doubt" that he had any connection with the death of his brother's family.

"I have never seen a guilty man who talked so straight," Judge Mitchell said today. "He looked me straight in the eyes and said he was innocent. I did not want him to talk with me about the case, but he insisted on it."

H. McCaslin of Osborne, attorney for Kaser at the preliminary hearing last August, resigned from the case recently because Kaser's father, a well-to-do farmer, refused to bear the expense of the case, Judge Mitchell said.

Before taking his own life, Kaser wrote the following note, which was made public today:

"Dear wife and children: I love you with all my heart but this is more of a burden than I can stand when I never h i nothing to do with it. But forget me and enjoy life."

AUTOPSY SHOWS CHILDREN NOT SHOT

OSBORNE, Kan., Oct. 24. (INS)—Autopsies on the bodies of the six children of Albert Kaser, whose brother, Fred, committed suicide yesterday on the eve of his trial on a charge of murder, disclosed that the children were not shot.

The bodies of Albert Kaser and his wife and six children were found after a fire destroyed their home May 31. Fred Kaser shot himself at his home near Covert yesterday leaving a note stating he was not guilty of the murder charged. Bullet wounds were found in the bodies of Albert Kaser and Mrs. Kaser.

The bodies of the children were exhumed on the order of the attorney general in an effort to establish the theory that all had been killed and the house set afire. Dr. J. W. S. Cross, county coroner, headed the inquiry today.

LETTERS LAUD C OF C CARAVAN

West Texas Body Praised For California Trip

STAMFORD, Texas, Oct. 24.—Many enthusiastic letters have been received by Manager Homer D. Wade, at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce here about the benefits received by those who went on the agriculture-dairy-poultry motorcade to California with B. M. Whiteker, agricultural manager.

J. O. Jackson, of Rule, who was one of this number of 25, reports that he has 500 White Leghorn hens and will be able to put into practice many of the things he learned on the trip and realize a profit on them.

Part of Mr. Jackson's letter follows: "I appreciated very much the opportunity of making the trip to California with Mr. Whiteker, your agricultural manager. Being a farmer with a number of years' experience in diversified farming, I am frank to say that this trip was worth a great deal more than can be estimated to those who made the trip. The knowledge brought back of the practical methods used will be of untold benefit for years to come in helping develop our wonderful resources.

"Mr. Whiteker had planned a splendid itinerary and it was carried out to the letter. I do not believe he could have planned a more interesting route. Every opportunity was given our party to learn the facts regarding the methods used through the excellent service of our convenience."

The trip was made by motorbus, starting Sept. 1, and lasting two weeks. The itinerary included such places of interest as the Charles Weeks' one-acre colony, Adohr Dairy farm, Petaluma Poultry colony and the Burbank Botanical gardens. It was made at a minimum of expense, but will be even less expensive on the next trip of like nature, which will be made this fall.

CONFERENCE ON TREATY

Gore Declares 'Socialist' Speech Lost West

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 24. (UP)—"Herbert Hoover, in a desperate attempt to grasp recognition in New York which is manifestly lost to him, told his audience in New York that the agricultural farm relief program was a socialistic doctrine, and has thus alienated himself forever from the farmers of America," former U. S. Senator Thomas P. Gore said in a statement issued by Democratic headquarters here today.

Gore also claimed the support of Governor Smith by Senator Norris of Nebraska "reassures us that the states Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas."

"When Senator Bob La Follette, the senior, died, his mantle as leader of the progressive wing of the Republican party fell on Senator Norris," Gore added.

John A. Simpson, president of the Oklahoma Farmers' union, asserted "Farmers of Oklahoma will hear with great satisfaction that Senator Norris is now in the open in his support of Governor Smith."

SMITH LINKS HOOVER WITH POWER TRUST IN BOSTON ADDRESS

SOCIALISM IS UTILITIES' PET

Patent Argument Used By Hoover, Is Claim

BOSTON, Oct. 24. (AP)—The charge that Herbert Hoover was using words to "conceal rather than convey" a meaning was made tonight by Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who ripped into utterances made by the Republican presidential nominee in New York City on water power, farm relief, prosperity and prohibition.

Opening his final drive for the presidency in this city where Hoover spoke nine days ago, the Democratic candidate declared in a speech prepared for the occasion that the expression of "state socialism" was the "stock argument of the power trust" which had been used against him in his gubernatorial fights in New York state.

Power's Patent Cry

"The cry of socialism has been patented by powerful interests," he said, "that desire to put the dampers on progressive legislation."

The governor argued that on the question of waterpower the problem simmered down to this:

"Either the people are to retain these water power sites under public ownership and public control, or they are to lease them to private companies for private profit."

The nominee then said he was "not simple minded on this subject" and declared that he had known "all along exactly where the Republican candidate stood."

Hoover Hides Meaning

"What I have been trying to do is to drag him into the open," he continued. "From Aug. 11 to Oct. 22, Mr. Hoover succeeded in using words to hide his meaning, but on last Monday night the cat got out of the bag, and, at Madison Square Garden in New York City, he told the progressive member of his own party, as well as the Democrats of the country, that their proposals would 'cause us to turn to state socialism.'

"If what he says in his Madison Square Garden speech is true, then all the members of congress, Republicans and Democrats, who voted for the Muscle Shoals bill—vetoed by President Coolidge—are socialists.

"I can almost picture the Republican candidate saying to Chairman Machold: 'What argument did you use against Smith's waterpower proposal in New York?'

"And Machold's reply: 'Refer to it as state socialism; that is best calcuated to scare businessmen, large and small'."

The Mr. Machold referred to by the nominee is the chairman of the Republican state committee in New York and the nominee aded that he was "pretty sure, however, that Chairman Machold did not explain" that a number of distinguished New Yorkers were lined up "with what he pleased to call a socialistic doctrine."

Roosevelt Quoted

The governor then quoted Theodore Roosevelt as having said: "Coal and oil barons cannot compare to water barons. Do not let them get a monopoly on what belongs to this state."

"Another distinguished socialist—according to the Republican candidate and the Republican chairman—is former Governor Hughes," the nominee went on. "As far back as 1907, 21 years ago, he first advocated the development of public waters in the state of New York under state ownership and state control.

"If Mr. Machold and Mr. Hoover are right, former Governor Miller takes his place among the socialists on the question of water power development.

"Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric company, an advocate of state owned and state controlled power sites, must, according to the language of the Republican candidate, take his place in the rank of state socialists.

"Taking the candidate's own word, why does he not, instead of hiding behind the catch phrase of 'state socialism,' come right out and say:

"'I believe in leasing or selling or otherwise alienating the water power of this country in the interest of private power companies for the development by them for private profit and private gain, and I am opposed to government ownership, government control and government development'?"

Questions Meaning

The governor said Mr. Hoover had touched upon water development in Tennessee without mentioning the words "Muscle Shoals" and asked what the Republican candidate had in mind in using the words "deadly destructive doctrines."

"Did that mean public ownership and public control?" he asked. "If so, why not use words to convey the meaning? And what did he have in mind when he tried to hide it?"

Governor Smith also charged his opponent with quoting from a speech once made by Samuel Gompers against government ownership of railroads to bolster up his argument.

"There is a wide difference," the Democratic nominee added, "between a privately owned railroad and a water power site. Mr. Hoover failed to differentiate between the development of a natural resource and the operation of a privately built up business."

Work Gets Strapping

The nominee again assailed Hubert Work, now chairman of the Republican national committee, for renewing the Salt Creek oil lease to the Sinclair interests while serving as secretary of the interior. He declared that references to this lease "during the trial of one of the oil magnates and during the senate investigation, should have been sufficient to put Dr. Work on notice so that at least before renewing the option he would get an opinion from the attorney general as to its validity."

He added that Work, however, not done this and that the attorney general had held the lease illegal.

The governor said that Hoover, besides referring to public water power development by calling it "state socialism," had taken an identical course toward farm relief. He also declared that the Republican candidate had referred to his (Smith's) proposal for a change in prohibition by the same term.

On prosperity, the governor declared his rival, in his Boston speech, "spoke of the prosperity of New England, but in his speech of acceptance he said that agriculture, coal and textile industries are still lagging behind."

Employment Figures

"What are the facts?" the governor asked. "In one manufacturing city alone in this state the number of wage earners in industry dropped from 33,300 in 1921 to 24,800 in 1927, a loss of work for 8,500 men and women, particularly in the woolen and cotton mills. In that same period the amount of wages earned in a year had fallen from $36,904,884 to $28,961,874 or a loss in wages of $8,000,000 a year.

"These figures come from the Massachusetts department of labor and industry.

"In his Boston speech Mr. Hoover offered the textile workers of New England the consolation that they earned on an average of 40 cents an hour and, for that reason, they were much better off than textile workers in other parts of the world.

"For a little over a 53-hour week, 40 cents an hour would make the weekly wage of a full-time textile worker $21.36 a week. Even this small amount is not agreed to by the bureau of labor and statistics in Washington, which only recently issued a statement declaring that a survey of the cotton textile industry showed that for a little over a 53-hour week, the worker received $17.30."

"I should like to have a picture of a $17.30 a week textile worker riding out to dinner in his own automobile with his silk stockings on. In the face of the candidate's own statement, in the face of the Republican party's own declaration that agriculture is prostrate and that the buying power of one-third of the people of the nation has been paralyzed, the Republican candidate at Madison Square Garden on Monday night of this week declared the Democratic remedy for the economic ills of agriculture to be state socialism, without offering anything in the way of a remedy for their solution. "Untold statements of that kind go farther to build up the ranks of socialism in this country than anything else."

On Prohibition

On prohibition the governor quoted Mr. Hoover as saying:

"Our country has deliberately undertaken a social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose. It must be worked out constructively."

"What does that mean?" asked Smith. "What is the matter with the noble experiment, that after eight years of trial, it is necessary for the Republican candidate to say it must be worked out constructively? It is working now? If not, what is the matter? And what is his remedy? Why not use words to convey the meaning and not hide it?

"Further in his speech he says: 'Common sense compels us to realize that grave abuses have occurred.

"What are they and what is the remedy for them?"

Curtis 'Socialist'

Again, the governor said, Mr. Hoover declared "My plan for farm relief to be state socallism." He said that as a result of this Senator Curtis of Kansas, Republican vice presidential candidate, was a "50 per cent socialist" as he had originally voted for the McNary-Haugen farm bill and then voted to sustain President Coolidge's veto.

The nominee added that, further, Mr. Hoover, by so referring to his farm plan, had included Vice President Dawes and Frank O. Lowden, former Illinois governor and a leader in the farm movement, as well as many members of the house and senate in the "state socialistic party."

"As far as all these problems are concerned," the governor concluded, "I have certainly used words to convey my meaning and I have not attempted to conceal it, and it made no difference in what part of the country I was talking.

"To refer to the remedies for all these evils as state socialism is not constructive statesmanship, it is not leadership; and leadership is what this country is hungry for today. It has not had it in the last eight years and it has little prospect of it in the four to come, in the event of Republican success."

Greatest Ovation

Governor Smith received the largest and noisest demonstration of his presidential campaign when he arrived in Boston.

For nearly two hours he was paraded through a milling mob of tens of thousands of persons and into the mobbed streets of the downtown district before he was taken at dusk to the Parkham bandstand on Boston common to appear before a crowd so vast he could not see it all.

Time after time cheering men and women broke police lines and thronged about his open automobile. Before the parade had proceeded three blocks, it was broken in half by the crowd and could not be reassembled.

The front part of it, led by Smith, proceeded on the route, but the remainder had to be disbanded.

Thousands of persons were perched in windows and on top of buildings, tearing up telephone books and newspaper and showering bits of paper down upon the nominee.

Police were unable to hold their lines along the parade route.

Noise Terrific

The whole scene was accompanied by a terrific din set up by hundreds of persons with cow bells and horns.

Down Summer street the parade proceeded to Washington street and then through the financial district. A complete canopy of ticker tape thrown from windows had formed on the telephone wires there. Turning into State street the slow moving procession continued on to Boston common. It was just after 5 p. m. when workers were leaving their downtown offices.

A fire engine was pressed into service to get the governor to his hotel, after the brief meeting on the common. It went flying through the streets, scattering crowds right and left, with the governor's car right behind it. More crowds blocked the entrance to the hotel and the lobby and it required 15 minutes to get the governor upstairs to rest for tonight's address.

ANTI-SMITH RALLIES LISTED

B. D. Sartin, who spoke in Childress Tuesday night, passed through Wichita Falls Wednesday on his way to Dallas and announced that he has eight talks to make in the next seven days.

Dwight Llewellyn of Dallas spoke at a rally in Archer City Wednesday night and A. V. Grant of Wichita Falls spoke at the Huff school Wednesday night.

Hyer Urges Early Payment of Taxes

The daily tax receipts at the office of W. R. Hyer, city tax assessor and collector, have fallen so low that Mr. Hyer Wednesday suggested that property owners "pay up."

"It is better to pay the 1928 taxes now than later," he said. "There are two reasons. The first is explained by the expression 'come early and avoid the rush,' and the second is 'pay now and avoid the penalties of late payment'."

Jury Frees Negro Accused By Deaf-Mutes

Jim 'n Willie, black-face pantomimists who recently enacted a "theft from person" skit in a local justice court, repeated their "act" for the delectation of a jury and gallery crowd in 30th district court Wednesday when they testified against Walter Scott, less nubian but nevertheless negro. Walter was charged with stealing $4 from the pocket of Willie Smith, negro deaf-mute.

But Jim 'n Willie didn't "click." Their offering, while as entertaining as it was in Judge R. V. Gwinn's court, wasn't convincing enough to "stick" the defendant in whose favor the jury rendered a verdict.

Both the complaining witness and his co-starring partner, James Jackson, are deaf-mutes and the trial occupied almost all the day. E. F. Fruechte represented the defendant while all members of the district attorney's office took part in the prosecution. Mrs. R. C. Williams acted as interpreter.

Mayor Welcomes Baptist Meeting

Negroes Open Convention With Addresses

An address by Rev. S. A. Pleasants of Houston on "The Need and Advantages of Manpower in the Church" closed the laymen's meeting of the general Baptist convention (colored) at the Mt. Pleasant Baptist church Wednesday. Prof. C. H. McGruder was elected president, Prof. G. W. Williams secretary, and J. H. Anderson treasurer. Rev. H. B. Southern of Austin talked at the closing meeting on "The Stewardship of Life."

An address by Dr. S. R. Prince of Fort Worth, president of the convention, opened the general meeting Wednesday noon, and was followed by many addresses of welcome Wednesday night, including a talk by Mayor J. W. Akin.

In his opening address, Dr. Prince called on the convention to cooperate in putting both "business and spirituality" in the meetings. The first hour was given to enrollment and was followed by an address by Dr. P. A. Prince, Chicago pastor. This was followed by the enrollment of associations, churches, pastors and annual members. Dr. J. E. Woods of Danville, Ky., president of the National Baptist convention, and Dr. A. A. Graham of Washington, D. C., corresponding secretary of the National Baptist Foreign Mission board, were guests of the convention and will speak later.

Wednesday night Mayor Akin welcomed the delegates on behalf of the city, Rev. W. H. Townsend on behalf of the Ministerial alliance (white), Rev. M. K. Curry on behalf of the Ministerial alliance (colored), Prof. A. E. Holland on behalf of the colored schools, Lawler Smith on behalf of the churches of the city, Mrs. E. M. Wasren on behalf of the Mt. Pleasant Baptist church, and H. Dyer on behalf of the negro business league. R. D. Evans of Waco responded to the addresses on behalf of the convention.

The general Baptist convention is composed of 38 district associations, 1500 churches and 150,000 communicants, with the fostering of home and foreign missions and Christian education as its purpose.

From Japan, which has arts and crafts immeasurably more ancient than any that flourish in the Western Hemisphere comes Amemya, who left the land of cherry blossoms for an artistic career in the United States. Amemya has since been acclaimed one of the foremost artists in his particular field.

Yosei Amemya

"This story of mine," Amemya told me, "is one that comes from Japan. It seems that one Japanese bragged to another that he made a fan last for 20 years by opening only a fourth section, and using this for five years, then the next section, and so on.

"The other Japanese registered scorn.

"'Wasteful!' he ejaculated. 'I was better taught. I make a fan last a lifetime. I open it wide, and hold it under my nose quite motionless. Then I wave my head.'"

1,000 Housewives Expected At Final Cooking School Session

Noted Culinary Expert to Close Demonstrations With Auditorium Lecture Today

A class of about 1,000 housewives is expected to attend the last lecture of The Record News and Daily Times cooking school being conducted at the Memorial auditorium by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, noted culinary expert. Mrs. Chitwood has been conducting daily lectures in the preparation and serving of food since Monday afternoon.

The Thursday lecture will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock with the expert demonstrating the practical procedure in preparing ice box cookies, croquettes and waffles. She will also take up parts of her home demonstration lectures left unfinished in previous lectures.

The Wednesday afternoon class was the most enthusiastic of the week, members breaking into spontaneous applause as Mrs. Chitwood displayed the finished product of her demonstration. In addition to taking up novelty salads such as the tomato, parsley and creamed cheese specimen, she gave new recipes for standard bean salads.

Mrs. Chitwood demonstrated cake mixing, stressing the importance of obtaining the greatest value from the use of eggs. She also demonstrated the proper manner of incorporating air into the meshes of the cake batter. The cooking of vegetables often left off the menu because they are unpalatable was taught the class.

Among the home economics demonstrations of the afternoon was the 10-minute display of becoming house dresses shown on models. Mrs. Chitwood displayed models in becoming and comfortable shoes for use in the kitchen, emphasizing the need for thought and study in selecting proper footwear.

Mrs. Chitwood also gave a clever demonstration of labor saving devices to be had for the kitchen, showing the possibility of saving a great many steps daily by using the kest kitchen equipment on the market.

Embattled Wives and Hubbies Keep Police in Hot Chase Over City

Family rows and fights galore confronted the police Wednesday night when officers investigated three cases in which husbands were "beating wives" and one in which the wife was whipping her husband.

One woman was cut and bruised so painfully after her fight that officers were forced to carry her to a physician to have her wounds treated. N. Daves and L. N. McKelvey, officers who investigated the case, were unable to find a trace of her husband.

No charges were filed against any of the participants in the four melees though two of them were escorted to the police station and given lectures. One man who was carried to headquarters was released when his wife refused to appear against him.

The woman who administered a severe thrashing to her husband in the down-town section last night was carried to the station but charges were not filed against her.

It was revealed in another case that a man had grabbed a pistol and gone in quest of his wife who had escaped after a preliminary quarrel. Elmer Thornton and Fred Fountain, city detectives, were unable to locate the would-be assailant after he departed with the gun.

Soprano Sings At Demo Rally

ita County Woman's Democratic league.

In addition to the appearance of Miss Greathouse, a speaker of statewide reputation will also be on the program for the rally Nov. 2, it was announced. Miss Greathouse will open and close the program, while a speech setting forth the qualifications of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee, will be featured between her appearances.

Southern Woman

Miss Greathouse was born in Kentucky, of a famous old Southern family, but at an early age was taken to a 20,000-acre ranch in New Mexico where she lived an outdoor life, riding broncs, roping cattle and joining her brothers in various ranch duties as a true daughter of the West. She obtained a part of her schooling in Amarillo, but later went East to study music and dramatic art under masters.

Her rise in the musical world was exceptionally rapid, Miss Greathouse having made a national reputation as a concert star, as well as a member of the Chicago Grand Opera company.

Her family is one of the oldest in America, her ancestors being prominent in the revolutionary war and the civil war. She has sung for many affairs of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and is eligible to membership in that organization. Her grandfather was Major Stull Greathouse of Kentucky, partner of Stephen A. Douglass and later attorney general of the state of Illinois.

Optimist Club Hears Manager of KGKO

J. M. Gilliam, business manager of KGKO, the National Security Life Insurance company radio station, Wednesday discussed his station with the Optimist club and told of the efforts to get the power increased to 1,000 watts. The meeting was held at the Kemp hotel.

J. V. Allred introduced the guests, and Joel MacGregor led the community singing. Miss Lorene Tucker played the piano accompaniments.

Clifford ("Happy") Goldsmith of New York talked on child management from the point of salesmanship by the parents. He is touring the country under the auspices of the plumbers' association and is speaking generally on sanitation.

DeMolay Chapter Has Dance and Ceremonial

The semi-annual ceremonial and dance of the Wichita Falls chapter of DeMolay were held Wednesday night in Maskat temple on the top floor of the City National bank building.

The ceremonial and initiatory degrees were confirmed from 6 until 9 o'clock while the dance extended from 9 until 12. The Little Rovers, local orchestra, furnished the music for the dancers.

J. D. (Dan) Bright, chairman of the advisory committee, supervised the ceremonial while Bentley Bacon, also a member of the advisory committee, acted as chaperone for the dance.

Clinic Hospital To Provide New Entrance

Cutting down the slope of the alley running from the rear of the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital to Seventh street in front of the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium was started Wednesday by the hospital.

The walls of the alley will have a sufficient slope to prevent caving, and the pavement will be 20 feet wide. This will allow for a Seventh street entrance to the hospital.

BANCITALY DIVIDEND

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (AP)—A. P Giannini, head of the Bank of Italy and Bancitaly corporation, today announced Bancitaly would pay a quarterly dividend of $1 instead of the usual 56 cents and that the Bank of Italy would pay $1.80 and a special dividend of 50 cents.

DOKEYS PARADE AT CEREMONIAL

300 Attend Initiation At Electra

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 24.—More than 300 Dokeys from several towns attended the annual fall ceremonial of the Tex-Ok local No. 1 held here tonight following a colorful parade. The parade, in which Knights of Pythias took part in full regalia with Boy Scouts, the Electra band and "pep" squad, was two blocks long.

The line of march ended at the banquet hall where a chicken dinner was served by the Pythian Sisters. Representatives from Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Henrietta, Vernon, Burkburnett and Iowa Park, with many from Davidson, Frederick and Altus, Okla., participated in the ceremonial at which a large class of candidates were initiated.

Woman's Bicycle Ride Ends at City Jail

"Joy water" and a bicycle ride added great zest to an already pretty large evening for a young white woman on the streets of Wichita Falls Wednesday night. She had great fun riding her boy friend's "wheel" from one side of Eighth street to the other.

But her joy changed to sorrow when she encountered Elmer Thornton, a city detective, as she pedaled merrily to the intersection of Indiana. Sorrow turned to anguish when Thornton booked her at the city hall a few minutes later on a charge of being drunk.

Dallas Aviation School To Be Greatly Enlarged

DALLAS, Oct. 24. (UP)—Dallas will be the home of an all-year training school for eighth corps area air reserve officers, it was announced by Lieut. Harry Weddington, chief army officer at Love field. The final decision was made by the war department at the instigation of the eighth corps area chiefs.

Four new mechanics, a medical attachment of four members, an ambulance and additional airplanes will be assigned to Dallas within the next 30 days and the first schedule of training with attending officers receiving pay, will get under way.

A reserve training encampment was held this summer at Marsh field, two miles north of Love field, off the Midway road. The camp will be held again next summer, but separate from the new training school, it was explained.

Beaumont Seeks Next Canal Ass'n Meeting

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 24. (AP)—The Beaumont Chamber of Commerce has launched a drive to bring the next annual meeting of the Intracoastal Canal association of Louisiana and Texas here.

The session this year is to be held in Baton Rouge, La., and delegates will attend in force from here, armed with arguments designated to land the 1929 convention.

Two years ago the meeting was held at Port Arthur.

Flippen Returned To Wichita Jail

Jack Flippen, alleged companion of Tom Shook in his recent jail break in Wichita county, was returned here Wednesday afternoon from Albany, Texas, where he was arrested last week. Flippen was brought back by Sheriff W. G. Brally and Deputy W. W. Belcher. He is being held for alleged automobile theft.

Eye Exercises

Like all other vital organs of the body, the eyes can be taxed far beyond the limit of safety before any discomfort may be experienced. Eyestrain and eye fatigue go hand in hand. When your eyes tire easily, begin to smart, perhaps slightly blur, or the lids feel heavy, nature is signaling you to give your eyes more rest. Do not wait for the second signal but heed the first warning. Remember, poor vision is not the only cause of eyestrain. If rest is all that is required to again give you perfect eye comfort, your problem is comparatively easy. But if the annoyance continues after ample rest has been given, then it is time to consult your optometrist.

Within a comparatively recent time, science has opened new ways of taking care of eyes that are not functioning properly, due to faulty innervation to the eye and its muscles. Formerly only two courses were available; one to put on glasses immediately, the other not to do anything in the hope that the trouble would soon disappear. In a case of purely muscular weakness due to overworked eyes, both the above courses would be wrong as the proper procedure is along entirely different lines. Suppose you have a cramp in your arm, what is the first thing you do? Of course you massage it to create better circulation which after a time alleviates your trouble. After this, proper exercises will develop the arm muscles so evenly that the cramping will not return. The eye muscles are no different in construction than your arm or leg muscles. Each is composed of bundles of fibers, stimulated by similar nerves, and nourished by the same blood supply the rest of the body receives. One of the main benefits derived from having muscle treatments is increasing the circulation to and from the muscles so that the accumulated toxic materials are more readily carried away. Of equal importance also is the increasing of innervation to the weaker muscles with the consequent inhibition of the stronger ones. The science of optometry has contributed greatly to man's eye comfort by perfecting a technique for building up weak eye muscles. At the present time, splendid equipment is available which enables the optometrist to direct innervation to any set of muscles which need attention. These orthoptic or muscle treatments in many cases remove the necessity of wearing glasses by establishing a normal balance between the two eyes. Even those who are wearing glasses find that their eyes are more rested after a course of treatments. Their beneficial effect cannot be overestimated. Lawyers, accountants, bookkeepers, stenographers and others who use their eyes at close work constantly, are greatly relieved by these systematic exercise which give them greater flexibility of th eye muscles and therefore greater ease when using their eyes. This type of muscle training is also employed in all types of strabismus or crosseyes, a subject that will be discussed later.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Encephalitis

Question: Mother writes: "My son is 37 years old and has been sick for four months. His leg is getting numb and he is unable to walk. We have had three nerve doctors examine him, and they all claim he is suffering from encepalitis. Kindly tell me what is best to do."

Answer: You probably misspelled the name of your son's idsorder, meaning "encephalitis" which is a disorder caused by inflammation of the brain. This can affect any part of the body according to the section of the brain irritated. I am sure your son would improve through a fruit fast and would also get along better afterwards on a carefully planned diet, but it would be unwise for me to attempt to give you any specific advice about his case through this column, as his trouble is too serious and requires the care of a competent physician who can watch his case carefully.

Lazy Liver

Question: Mrs. J. S. writes: "My husband has brown patches on his chest on the right side. Some tell me he has a lazy liver. Has he liver trouble? Some days he is terribly yellow."

Answer: A skin that is intermittently yellow is an indication of some liver derangement. The brown spots on his chest, although not definitely diagnostic of liver disorders, nevertheless are seldom found with those in good health, and is seems that those having these spots are always toxic and consequently have overworked livers.

Red Face

Question: Mrs. R. writes: "When I become nervous, excited or am in a warm room my face always turns red. Is this due to high blood pressure? What can I do to overcome it?"

Answer: The symptoms you describe may be due to high blood pressure but I should not guess at this cause, for you can find out very quickly by going to your physician and having a blood pressure test made. If you find you have high blood pressure, I will be glad to send you a special treatise on this subject, telling you how to bring your blood pressure to normal.

FLOOD SURVEY PROGRESSES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. (UP)—The entire $24,000,000 appropriation for Mississippi river flod control work during the current fiscal year will have been exhausted by June 30, the war department announced today, a bulletin which reported that the flood control program was "progressing rapidly."

INDIANS LEAVE FOR CLASH TODAY WITH NORTH TEXAS AGGIES

TRIBE TO MEET STRONG ELEVEN

Arlington Game to Force Baggetts to Limit

By GORDON FULCHER

Engaging the North Texas Aggies in what probably will be the most-sought after victory of the season, Coach E. A. Baggett and his Wichita Falls Junior college Indians left at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for Arlington which will be the scene of the Indian-Aggie skirmish this afternoon.

The Indians probably are in better form and keyed to a higher pitch than they have been this season with pep and interest in the game exceeding all demonstrations in the student body at the college this season.

No brilliant display of football has been demonstrated thus far by the local college team, though the Indians did flash excellent form in the early minutes of the conference opener here Friday with Ranger Junior college when they registered nine points in a few minutes of neat playing.

The team is perhaps the best that has ever been turned out by the school, with good reserve material, and should the local collegians decide to play the whole game with the Aggies as they did the first few minutes of the tilt with Ranger their chances of victory would take a considerably higher percentage.

Only one serious handicap is suffered by the team this week on account of injuries, though three reserves will be absent on scholastic standings and one with injuries. Gabbert Stephens, the ace of the Indian defense at end, will be unable to resume his position this afternoon because of a broken hand which he received in the game with Ranger.

Avis and Ed Howell, ends, and Garland Black, guard, will be absent from the contest through the ineligibility route while Bill Stephens, a reserve back, will be unable to participate on account of injuries.

Bill McMillan is almost sure to be shifted from halfback to end to replace Stephens while Cecil James probably will be Baggett's choice for the other flank.

This week's backfield probably will lineup with Jimmy Harvey at quarterback, Mitchell and Castleberry at halves, and Dickey at fullback when the Indians take the field today at Arlington. Tommy Hutcheson and Donald Penn, halfbacks, and John Weller, fullback, are almost certain to get backfield assignments during the fray.

From tackle to tackle the Indian forward wall is bulky and capable. Captain Ox Edmondson and Eggleston Ramey, will probably be at tackles, with Bill Habern and Arthur Pruett doing duty at gurads, and Walter Pinney starting the game at center. The men who were carried on the trip are as follows:

J. T. and Henry Barton, J. T. Castelberry, Olin Dickey, Ox Edmondson, Oliver Fudge, Bill Habern, Jimmy Harvey, Foster Herd, Tommy Hutcheson, Emil Hutto, Cecil James, Bill McMillan, Raymond McPhail, Ray Mitchell, Donald Penn, Walter Pinney, Arthur Pruett, Gabbert Stephens, Roy Bonomaker, Eggleston Ramey, John Weller and Bill Duncan, team manager.

AGGIES READY FOR INDIAN GAME TODAY

ARLINGTON, Oct. 24. — The North Texas Agricultural college Hornets are preparing for the most crucial game of their Junior college championship race when they meet the Wichita Falls Indians on the Arlington gridiron Thursday. Although the Hornets have won two of the three contests between the two colleges, they are by no means over-confident of winning this one.

The Hornets have won three out of four games played this season, only one of which was a conference match. They started off the season by trumming Clifton college 22-6 and seconded the performance, getting a 12-0 final score with Texas Military college of Terrell, Texas. When they met Wesley, however, the Hornets were suffering from a weakened lineup caused by sickness and injury and the result of the game was a 26-0 defeat. Last week the annual Hillsboro conference go ended 8 to 6 in favor of the Hornets. The last score indicates only that the Hornets were back in form, for the field was in bad condition and little chance was afforded for either team to show any speed.

Captain Creecy, one of the Hornet's best ground gainers and their most dependable punter, is back in form again after several weeks' sickness. Connally, the best pass snatcher of the aggregation and an excellent ground gainer, is out for the season because of sickness. With the exception of a few minor injuries the team is otherwise in good condition.

The starting line-up for the Hornets will likely be Hood and Sims, ends; Seale and B. Jackson, tackles; Weller and Gravely, guards; Spencer, center; Taylor or Jackson, quarterback; Creecy and Faith, halves; Polley or Maxey, fullback.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

INTERSECTIONAL football games played so far this season, that is, contests involving major elevens, have been closely contested. Which is to be expected in this day of far-flung grid popularity and the class of the game played in all sections. Eastern clubs lead in the matter of games won and lost in combats with teams of other regions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Southwestern teams have won two and lost four games in intersectional play, and in all six games the teams of this part of the country were meeting the best of other districts. Texas Aggies' defeat of Sewanee and Baylor's upset of Centenary were the victories. Defeats of Texas by Vanderbilt, Arkansas by Mississipp, S. M. U. by Army and Texas Aggies by Centenary were sustained by Southwestern teams.

◆ ◆ ◆

Southern teams have engaged in the greatest number of intersectional melees—a total of 15, of which they have won seven, a splendid record in view of the strong teams encountered. Georgia Tech's victory over Notre Dame probably was the outstanding feat of a Southern club, at least in its bearing on the national grid situation. But victories of Centenary, Vandy and Mississippi over Southwestern teams were no less impressive, although the triumph of the Gents over Aggies were lessened by their loss to Baylor. Other victories were by South Carolina over Chicago, West Virginia over Haskell and Vanderbilt over Colgate. Included in the defeats were those of Loyola (New Orleans) by Notre Dame, Sewanee by Texas Aggies, Georgia by Yale, North Carolina by Harvard, Virginia Poly by Colgate, Centre by Missouri and Kentucky by Northwestern. Virginia scored a "moral victory" by fighting Princeton to a scoreless tie.

◆ ◆ ◆

Teams in the Missouri valley district, including the Big Six and Missouri Valley conference, won three and lost three games. Nebraska captured two, with Syracuse and Montana State the victims, in addition to Missouri's rout of Centre. Defeats were of Oklahoma by Indiana, Oklahoma Aggies by Marquette and Haskell by West Virginia.

◆ ◆ ◆

Middle Western clubs have won six and lost three games, but in a majority of their wins they were playing foes of inferior rating. Their victories include those of Indiana over Oklahoma, Notre Dame over Loyola, Chicago over Wyoming, Notre Dame over Navy, Marquette over Oklahoma Aggies and Northwestern over Kentucky. The reversals were sustained by Chicago from South Carolina, Notre Dame from Tech and Michigan State from Colgate.

◆ ◆ ◆

Eastern teams have won six and lost two games and have played some of the outstanding machines of other sections as enumerated above. Far Western elevens, except for Wyoming and Montana State, both defeated, but neither the best way out in the land so highly praised by Mr. Greeley and native sons, have remained aloof in their own ballwicks.

Jim Jefferies, Here, Talks of Fighters

Of Presidential Candidates and Prohibition

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

I shook the hand of the original mankiller of pugilism. James J. Jeffries, a former heavyweight champion of the world, one of the greatest battlers who ever trod the resin, is in Wichita Falls for a vaudeville engagement. In the room of the once mighty warrior and his charming wife at the Kemp hotel last night, I heard Jim discourse on boxing, prohibition and other subjects.

I came away, a very much enlightened man.

Jim Jeffries, if you are familiar with the history of the sour science, was the man who brought the heavyweight championship of the world back to these United States. He accomplished that feat by knocking out Bob Fitzsimmons in 11 rounds at Coney Island in 1899. He proved that victory was no upset by stopping the ruddy 'un in eight rounds at San Francisco in 1902.

Two knockout triumphs over Jim Corbett, after the first exponent of the art of hit-and-get-away had lost the title to Fitzsimmons, also glitter in the record of Jim Jeffries, to help bolster his claim as being one of the greatest fighters of all-time. Otto Floto, than whom there is no more astute critic of boxing, who has seen them all from Sullivan to Tunney, once told me that Jeffries was the greatest heavyweight fighter of history. So Jim's remarks on the manly art may be taken as from one who knows what he is talking about.

Mr. Jeffries does not think much of the present crop of fighters. Or to be exact, of the heavyweights. Indeed, he doesn't think there is a heavyweight today to compare with the fighters of his day. Jack Dempsey was the last of that race of real fighting men, Jeffries says. Dempsey, incidentally, was a fighter of the same type of Jeffries, a rushing, two-fisted "killer."

Jim says that fighting passed out along with the defeats of Dempsey. "They don't fight nowadays as we used to," sighed Jim, with a reminiscent, far-away gleam in his eyes. And he probably was thinking of the days when a fighter had to battle 20 or 25 rounds against REAL fighters and not the synthetic boxers of today.

"Tunney was a good fighter," Jeffries said. "But Dempsey, in his prime, would have beaten Tunney. Gene was an excellent one-two fighter. But I was surprised at his lack of boxing skill in his Chicago fight with Dempsey. There was no boxing, no feinting, in that fight. But you don't see that sort of fighting any more."

Jeffries is neutral over the presidential race. "Gov. Smith and Mr. Hoover are both good men, of course," he said. "But after reading of the things said about both of them by rival factions one wonders who to vote for. It is too bad that we have to have such mud-slinging against two such excellent men. I don't like those tactics."

Jeffries doesn't believe prohibition has been effective. And he is NOT for the return of the saloon. "I used to take my drink of good liquor when I felt I needed it," said Jim. "But I have not had a drink for years. One is better off without it. But I see enough of the effects of drinking today by boys and girls, and of liquor and beer made in the homes, to make me feel that the eighteenth amendment has not been successful."

"I wish all young people, and all people, for that matter, would participate in athletics or take proper exercise. A healthy body is essential to success and is only gained by right living."

That is not a mere platitude. Jim Jeffries is an exponent, and an example, of right living. He is 53 years old. But his bright, sparkling eyes, erect carriage, free stride and absence of very much excess weight show that he is in the proverbial "pink of condition." He weighs about 230 pounds now, about 25 pounds over his fighting weight of two-score years ago. Exercising and right living keep him fit.

After we had settled the important matters of the time, like who is going to be president and all that, I reverted to a discussion of boxing. And of course I asked Jim who gave him his hardest fight.

"Jack Sharkey," he replied, without hesitation. "My, how that Irishman could 'take it.' We'd fight a round and I would go to my corner thinking I had him. He'd slump down in his stool, apparently 'out.' Then he'd come out for the next round like fury. He had remarkable recuperative power. A tremendously strong man was Tom Sharkey. Boy, how he made me fight."

Though they battled, like real fighting men for two grand mills, Sharkey and Jeffries are pals now. They toured together in vaudeville last season but Sharkey stayed at home this year.

Jeffries will be at the Majestic theater today and tomorrow in an act in which he gives a monologue and boxes with his brother Jack, who also was a good fighter of yesteryear.

Wichita Falls sports enthusiasts will accord him a great reception. He was a great champion and he is a real man, a clean man, a good man. And boy, how he could fight. Honest fights. No faking. No dancing. May the best man win.

McCallum Probably To Start New Backs

Coach Bud McCallum yesterday continued his attempt to perfect new backfield material for Wichita Falls high school team before the second encounter of the conference schedule with Vernon high school Saturday.

Jack Carstarphen, a reserve back, and Clarence Bains, who has played at end in every game this season are the most likely as new backfield prospects.

Wade Plugs Line Gap With No. 14 Brogans

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 24. (AP)—Coach Wallace Wade, tutor of championship elevens at the University of Alabama, has plugged one of his tackle positions for the 1928 season with a "No. 14" size pair of shoes.

As a freshman Charles "Big Foots" Clements made an impressive showing and Coach Wade was jubilant until Clements reported for new footwear this fall. Size 13, the largest regulation football shoe, was too small and a special shoe had to be ordered for the big tackle.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 24. (AP)—C. F. Nosek, 22, died here today with a broken neck. He was injured when his automobile overturned on the Port Arthur road.

GOPHERS MEET IOWA SATURDAY

Big Ten Interest Centers On Unbeaten Elevens

CHICAGO, Oct. 24. (UP)—All Big Ten elevens will be engaged in conference struggles next Saturday, but attention will be centered at Iowa City, where Iowa and Minnesota will clash to settle the argument as to which team has the better claim or prospects for titular honors.

The Iowa City affair also may settle another interesting speculation—whether the Hawkeyes' huge Indian fullback, Mayes McLain, is the equal or superior of Bronko Nagurski, Minnesota's giant, who has been crashing opponents' lines to fame this season.

McLain is freely mentioned for all-American honors. His plunging offensive ability has been responsible for Iowa's clean slate this season and Hawkeye followers are looking for him to overshadow the performance of Nagurski next Saturday.

Individual Battle

Likewise, Nagurski has led the Gophers to victories this season. He has stepped into the shoes of Herb Joesting in such a manner that many predict Nagurski will exceed the former's fame in the hearts of Gopher alumni.

Neither team has had its 1928 conference record marred. Both have large, powerful teams that on paper and performance stack up with other undefeated elevens, including Illinois, champions of 1927.

Illinois' veterans, who downed Pat Page's Hoosiers last Saturday, will play Northwestern on the former's home grounds. Northwestern has bowed to Ohio State already this season and should expect to get similar treatment at Urbana next Saturday, but a large crowd of Purple fans will accompany the team on the trip and carry brighter hopes.

Advance sale of tickets at Urbana and reservations of trains indicate a crowd of 65,000 will sit in the stadium to see the game.

Michigan, twice defeated this season by conference opponents, and once by a non-conference team, will take on the strong Wisconsin Badgers at Ann Arbor. The Badgers, who consider themselves still in the running for the title, despite a 19-19 tie with the Purdue Boilermakers, should hold the edge.

The Boilermakers are rated a little better than the Chicago Maroons in the contest scheduled at Chicago. The Maroons have made a weak showing this year and Purdue's ability in holding Wisconsin to an even basis would give the Boilermakers the game, if pre-game comparisons counted.

Ohio State, undefeated this year, will meet Indiana at Bloomington. The game will give a good indication as to the real strength of the Buckeyes. Indiana lost to Illinois last Saturday by one touchdown and if Ohio can duplicate the Illini performance their claims to the title should be considered seriously.

SPUDDER ROOKIE HURLER CY SMITH HAS IMPRESSIVE RECORD

BIG LEAGUERS HERE IN SPRING

Usual Attractive Training Program Planned

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

While sports enthusiasts generally have their interest centered on football, officials of the Spudders are going ahead with plans for the 1929 campaign. There is work, and lots of it, done in the office. It is behind the scenes, where the magnates transact their deals for players, that clubs are built, and the Wichita Falls baseball office is no exception.

Indeed, President J. Alvin Gardner is an indefatigable worker. He receives averages of players from all leagues, which are filed away for reference. His baseball men friends and fan acquaintances throughout the country are legion and they keep him informed about players in all leagues.

Gardner Knows Baseball

Gardner knows baseball men and players as few know them. He has "contact" with somebody in almost every league, from the majors to the class D circuits, and it is that fact that has helped him to gather so many fine young players in recent years.

The boss and Manager Jim Galloway and Secretary Guy Airey are busily engaged in plans for spring training, even this early. This applies both to the assembling of players for the Spudder club and to the scheduling of exhibition games. The major league teams usually to play here probably will be back again next spring, including the Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers, and others also will be added to the program. From three to five big league teams will play here in addition to several minor loop nines of class AA and A rating, and the usual attractive training card of about 25 games will be arranged.

Cy Smith, the big right-hand pitcher purchased a few months ago by the Spudders from Winston-Salem of the Piedmont league, writes a pleasing letter to Gardner. Cy evinces gratitude at his chance to play in a fast minor loop and writes that he has been told that to play for Gardner is a rare privilege. Which, as all the ball players know, it is.

Cy's Record Impressive

Records at Spudder headquarters show that Cy won 20 and lost only six games last campaign. He allowed 2.89 runs per inning, a most impressive record. Cy is six feet two inches tall and weighs 185 pounds, which is plenty of heft to add to the already promising recommendation of his record.

He has played four seasons in organized baseball, all in the Piedmont league. Smith started his professional career in 1925 with Winston-Salem, was with Salisbury in 1926 in the same circuit and went back to Winston-Salem in 1927.

Oklahoman Hope of Iowa

Mayes McLain, 200-pound fullback at the University of Iowa, has gladdened the hearts of Hawkeye followers by his sensational plunging. His first big test of the season comes Saturday, October 27, when Iowa meets Minnesota which, in Bronko Nagurski, also has a promising fullback.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Oct. 24. (AP)—Mayes McLain, Iowa's 22-year-old Indian fullback, who spent most of the afternoon of Oct. 20 pushing Chicago's tackles backward, carries Hawkeye hopes for the 1928 Big Ten championship.

If Iowa gets by the Minnesota game Oct. 27 it probably will become an outstanding favorite for the title. In this game McLain will be pitted against a team whose attack centers around the Indian's rival for Mid-Western fullback honors. He is Bronko Nagurski, a 205-pounder.

Iowa, which hasn't had many good football teams since the days of its last great fullback—Gordon Locke—is depending on McLain to provide long needed plunging power. His hardest test of the year so far is expected when he faces the veteran Minnesota line.

McLain is one of the most colorful figures in Western conference competition. He is six feet two inches tall and weighs more than 200 pounds. He is fast for a big man, a good passer and strong on defensive play.

His football spirit is tireless. When Iowa advances the ball he laughs. Indian blood inherited from his mother, a quarter-blood Cherokee, is betrayed by a wild, barbaric yell when in the midst of an exciting fray.

McLain has two loves, his football and his wife. Last November he was married to Lorena Hatfield of Pryor, Okla., his birthplace. They live in a little house, but take small part in the usual run of university social life.

The young Indian star matriculated on the Iowa campus for the spring term in 1927 and as a member of the freshman team a year ago took particular delight in ripping through the varsity line.

Dempsey Prayed Before a Fight And Was Always 'Scairt,' He Says

Jack Reveals Some Interesting Facts to Runyon; Damon Still Believes Man-Mauler Will Battle Again

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (US)—"I never went into a fight that I wasn't a little scairt * * * I was always very nervous, * * * I used to pray before a fight. * * *"

This, my friends, from the greatest of all the pugilistic "killers," from that panther of the Sangre de Christo hills of Colorado, William Harrison Dempsey, called Jack.

He sat in a drawing room with me the other night coming down from Boston. I was making a flying trip to New York to complete the details of withdrawing from the cast of "The Big Fight," and signing with the Warners for a Squawkie, or moving picture with conversational accompaniment.

His face, blue-black from a new shave, looked as drawn as if he was on the final week of a training seige. He wore a long pointed collar, and his hat brim was pulled down all around, giving him a rakish aspect. His clothes fitted his burly body loosely, indicating that the erstwhile Manassa Man Mauler isn't carrying extra heft. He fits his clothes like a banana pulp fits its skin when he is up above 200 pounds.

I never saw him look better. His boxing in "The Big Fight" has evidently put him in fair physical condition. His teeth, gleaming white, regular, and every one still there, frequently showed in a grin. He was in rare good humor. His dark brown eyes sparkled. There is scarcely a mark on him, despite over 70 bitter ring battles in which he "caught" plenty. Facial surgery has restored the once battered beezer, and raggedy ears.

No Use to Argue

I didn't ask him if he is going to fight again. I think he is. He thinks he isn't. I didn't want to waste time arguing with him.

The only suggestion of the veteran gladiator about him is his disposition to reminisce. To look backward To recount, with some fondness, old days, and old experiences. We spent the evening "cutting up old touches," as the boys say.

I suppose I have talked with the Manassa Mauler a thousand times. I was associated to some extent with his early career, and with his heyday, traveled with him, lived with him But he said things the other night that I have never heard him say before, such as the remarks with which I open.

I never had any idea that William Harrison Dempsey knew the feeling of fear. I knew he was very nervous before a fight, to be sure. Eager to get in there and get along. But it never occured to me that this man of pugilistic murder had the human instinct of fear, or that he PRAYED as ordinary human beings pray on the eve of important venture.

He said another thing, too.

"I never went into a fight with the though of trying to knock the other man. I would just go in there and fight the best I could, and I suddenly find the fellow stretched out on the floor, without knowing just how I got him there. But I never deliberately tried to knock out a man."

"You know who gave me my hardest fights?" he asked, suddenly. A couple of other chaps were in the drawing room trying to talk football, but William Harrison Dempsey, oddly enough, seemed to want to talk about fights.

"Gene Tunney," I answered promptly.

It's Old Carl Morris

"With all due respect to Tunney, he replied, "he ought to have knocked me out in Philadelphia in two rounds, considering my condition. And he ought to have knocked me out in Chicago, as far as that's concerned.

"The fellow who gave me my toughest fights was Old Carl Morris, the Sapulpa Okla., engineer," he continued. "I fought him three times. Morris wasn't a great fighter, but he had a way of slopping around in there, getting on top of me and hitting me all over with every kind of punch you can think of.

"I thought he shaded me in our first fight out in California, though I stopped him twice after that. But after my first fight with Carl I saw that if I was ever going to be a real fighter I'd have to school myself to get in there close and bang away.

"Tunney was a good fighter," he went on. "His gretest asset was condition. He was always in marvelous condition."

Doesn't Like Heavies Now

He doesn't think much of the heavyweight fighters of the present day. Though the name wasn't mentioned, he paid a compliment to his old manager, Jack Kearns, perhaps unconsciously.

"The average manager doesn't know what to do with a heavyweight nowadays when he gets one," he said. "He doesn't know how to match him properly. I was put in the right spots at the right time.

"A lot of these fellows I see nowadays don't seem to like to fight, and if a man doesn't like to fight he ought to quit. I loved fighting I liked to train. I liked everything about the game. But I was brought up with fighters, and in a fighting atmosphere, and that's the only way a boy can be properly schooled.

"I had a good old fighter named Andy Malloy with me for a long time. He's dead now. You remember him? And my brother Bernie, was a fighter in his day. They handled me without gloves 'G'wan and fight, or you get swatted on the bean with a bottle,' was the substance of my instructions in those days. In every town in my Western country in those days there was a fighter of more or less ability, and as a kid I went through a tough grind.

"They don't get that nowadays. Most of these fighters of today are gymnasium made, and very carefully tended. I fought some hard guys. Jess Willard was a greater fighter than anyone thinks, but he had too much over-confidence the day he fought me. If he had taken me seriously I think he'd have licked me. He was a great hitter. Louie Firpo would have been a great fighter if he could have taken it.

Lou Knocked Him Dizzy

"You've got to be able to take it as well as give it in that ring," mused the Manassa Mauler. "I could always take a smacking. Firpo knocked me out with the first punch he hit me, and I don't have more than a hazy idea of what happened after until I got back to my corner and they cleared my noodle with smelling salts for the second round.

"I was pretty lucky throughout my fighting career. I never had my hands hurt, and I never got badly bunged up. There's a lot of luck in the game, good and bad. I haven't paid much attention to the heavyweights around right now, but I guess that fellow Paolino must be a tough one. None of the kids have shown enough as yet to judge them.

"I feel great now, and I'm happy," he concluded. "Got enough money to go along. Got about everything I want. I made an agreement with Sam Harris before I went into 'The Big Fight' that I could withdraw any time I wanted, and Sam has kept his word with me. I guess it just wasn't the right kind of show to be a big success, though people have been good enough to say I was fine in my part.

"Now I'm going back to the movies, and to California. That's the spot."

SMITH EASILY BEATS MOORE

Dempse's Efforts Unavailing Against Veteran

Warnie Smith last night showed boxing fans here why he has met the best of scrappers for 10 years, and never been knocked out. The veteran Oklahoma light-heavyweight gave Dempse Moore, local youth, a boxing lesson in the 10-round windup of a mat-ring show staged by Alec B. Ross at Spudder park.

Smith, despite his long ring service and bulging waistline, flashed speed and ring cleverness that bewildered Moore. Except for occasional flurries Dempse was on the defensive. Warnie gave Moore a shellacking to the body, as the old-timers usually will beat the kids.

Though beaten by the best and most experienced adversary he has met, Dempse kept trying and was always dangerous with his right-hand haymaker. It was a very good mill, particularly in view of the expert infighting of Smith, at which he is an adept.

Sprague May Be Out of Yale Tilt

Injury Threatens to Keep Bud on Sidelines

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (UP)—Eastern football supremacy for the present, at least, will hang in the balance Saturday at New Haven where the Army mule and the Yale Bulldog clash in the Yale bowl before 80,000 persons.

Both teams are undefeated and each boasts an outstanding intersectional victory, Army over S. M. U., and Yale over Georgia. Against eastern rivals, Army has a victory over Harvard and Yale a victory over Brown.

Blue in Better Shape

The Army came out of the Harvard game with four men on the injured list, including Captain Bud Sprague, O'Keefe, Perry and Messinger. Sprague may not be able to play against Yale.

Yale, on the other hand, came out of the Brown game in tip-top shape. Only Oldt, a promising end, who was out of last week's game, is not likely to play against the Army.

Johnny Hoben, star quarterback, has fully recovered from early season injuries and will start the game at that position, although Hoot Ellis, his substitute, who has won recognition by his clever handling of the Yale attack and his fine broken-field running, undoubtedly will be given his chance in the game.

Yale Slight Favorite

Speculation over the outcome of the game has largely dealt whether Army will be able to stop Yale's cutback play with Garvey carrying the ball. Garvey has run roughshod over Georgia and Brown, gaining almost at will against those two teams. The Army has a big, powerful set of forwards who from all outward appearances are capable of stopping any play or plays.

Betting odds slightly favor Yale, but in many quarters the game is regarded as a tossup.

Messrs. Pyle and Pickens Plan Rival Affairs

By FRANK GETTY
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—There is this much about even associating with optimism. Like the goblins, it'll "git yuh if yuh don't watch out"

Take the case of Will H. Pickens, who associated with Charles C. Pyle until he contracted optimism in its most virulent form, and doesn't know it yet.

When what promised to be the beginning of a beautiful friendship came to an end, Pickens departed, leaving Pyle with a bunion derby and a double handful of gray hairs on his hands.

He Laughs and Laughs

Many a time since, the soft drink parlors have rung with Will's contagious "haw-haw-haw" at mention of the late and unlamented transcontinental footrace. No one ever is quite so heartily amused at a fiasco as the man who just escaped it.

And now, it seems, C. C. Pyle, dissatisfied with the way the bunion derby rolled from Los Angeles to New York last spring, is preparing to wind it up and roll it right back again.

More "haw-haw-haws" from Will Pickens, the unfeeling brute. The transcontinental foot race, having provided a financial and artistic flop when it proceeded from West to East, is to retrace its course through the spring of 1929. Haw-haw-haw!

Will Stages Marathons

Mr. Pickens has taken his share of the losses in the bunion derby and sunk them into professional marathon running. It is he who tucks El Ouafi into bed each night, hears Joie Ray with his prayers, and even looks forward to adding Paavo Nurmi, recently turned marathoner, to the flock of little innocents under his care.

Pickens' marathoners are nursing their blisters, preparatory to a series of training jaunts which will take them down to Philadelphia in time for another race Oct. 30. In this way, Will saves carfare and exercises his stable at the same time.

After Philadelphia, the boys will jog up to Boston and pursue their quaint profession and each other around the Hub's new Madison Square garden. A special pursuit race between Mr. Pickens and the sheriff may be an added attraction. On the other hand, the marathoners may run right on into the winter before Mr. Pickens' roll runs out.

"It is all," says Will, "in the interest of good, clean sport."

Snyder Man Plans New Chicken Ranch

SNYDER, Texas, Oct. 24. (UP)—Giles Garner, most generally known outside of his home town as the "wheat king" of the world, may yet become known as the "chicken king" or something similar.

Garner won fame as a wheat producer when his land produced 86 bushels per acre when 20 was average on the other farms in the section. He was one of the representatives from Snyder on the West Texas Chamber of Commerce agriculture-dairy-poultry motorcade to California recently. On this trip he observed how the ultra modern construction of the chicken houses, and the methods of poultry feeding, were causing the Californians to reap rewards from the poultry that were unheard of before these innovations were tried.

Consequently, he is now building on his farm near Snyder, a model chicken house. His flock of hens will have private homes with numbers on them to enable him to keep a check of their output. The hens will not have electric lights to wake them at 5 o'clock in the morning for food as has been the custom with hens that were fed food containing ruffage. They will be fed on whole grain at night which will take 12 hours to digest. It has been found that in this way the hens get more rest and are better producers.

Garner does not intend to devote all of his time to raising chickens and will continue to raise wheat as before.

Pickers Needed in All Valley Cotton Fields

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 24. (UP)—Stories of bad cotton this season have left the impression with many pickers that there are sections so poor they can not afford to go there, according to C. W. Woodman, assistant director of the farm labor division of the United States employment service.

"There is always spotted cotton in every section every year," declared Woodman, "but at the same time in every section there is a world of good cotton, making it worth the while that pickers go to any county."

Pointing out that he has a demand for nearly 40,000 pickers in the various sections of West Texas, Woodman said that many are suffering for lack of cotton pickers because of the reports.

Surveyors Work on New Tarrant County Project

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 24. (UP)—Five new survey parties are being sent out this week by County Engineer Damon Davis to begin intensive work on Tarrant county's $4,920,000 state highway program.

The five parties, which have been awaiting arrival of transportation equipment, will make a total of eight in the field on the eight major projects of the county road schedule.

The entire bond issue highway program, with the exception of a few small details, was approved by the state highway commission in Austin, last week.

Driver Disregards Cop And Drives Into Deep Mudhole

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 24. (AP)—Because old "Lizzie" had never failed him in any kind of mudhole, a motorist disregarded a policeman's warning and drove into more than five feet of water which had covered an avenue during a recent heavy downpour here.

The result was that the thoroughly drenched man had to be assisted from the water by the officer and his car towed out by a wrecker.

HOOVER LEADS IN 44 STATES

Digest Poll Shows Smith 'Hopelessly Beaten'

Hoover is shown holding his strong lead over Smith in the semi-final returns of the Literary Digest nation-wide presidential poll published today and there are impressive indications that the Republicans may capture several states in the "Solid South" that have been Democratic for more than 50 years.

Of a grand total of over 2,700,000 votes tabulated this week Hoover has 1,717,041 and Smith polls 971,356, a ratio of approximately 63 to 36.

Four for Smith

With the returns announced as nearly complete from all sections of the country Hoover is ahead in every state with the exception of Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina, which Smith is carrying with ample reserves.

Though the Republican candidate has a plurality in Alabama and Arkansas, his margin is so scant that the Literary Digest classes the outcome in both states as doubtful.

Texas, which has the largest electoral vote of all the southern states, is for Hoover by 31,269 to 34,683 votes in this "post-card election."

Florida shows a return of 17,247 to 9,162, or almost 2 to 1, for the Republican nominee and the Democratic strongholds of North Carolina and Virginia evidence striking pluralities for Hoover.

The Republican candidate is obtaining a majority of his strength from the Democratic ranks in all 10 states of the South with the exception of Virginia and North Carolina, where most of his votes are shown to be from his own party.

The border states of Kentucky, Maryland, Oklahoma and Tennessee are each returning comfortable pluralities for Hoover. In Oklahoma, he has a lead over his opponent of 2½ to 1.

Northwest for Hoover

In the northwestern states of Wisconsin, Minnesota and North and South Dakota, which are classed as "doubtful" by many political authorities, the Literary Digest poll shows Hoover leading by odds as high as 2½ to 1.

In the La Follette-Progressive center of Wisconsin, with returns from Milwaukee included, the Republicans are polling 31,841 votes to the Democrats' 22,071.

In Maine, where a Republican governor was elected by a 3 to 1 majority in September of this year, Hoover is receiving 15,624 votes to Smith's 5,261.

Governor Smith's home state of New York gives him 188,420 to Hoover's 215,548 which figures are stated to be inclusive of New York City. New Jersey, considered as one of the battlegrounds of the current campaign, gives Hoover a lead in this week's returns of 55,296 to 20,816.

In a separate section of the poll in which the entire electorate of several large cities is being polled Smith has a decided advantage in New York City with 139,020 votes to Hoover's 109,847 while Hoover leads in Chicago by 98,363 to 70,769 and in Philadelphia by 69,494 to 48,172.

Party Changes

The analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1924" indicates that the Democratic standard bearer is now receiving almost 62 per cent of his support from his own party whereas in the earlier returns more than one-half of his votes were from former Republicans. Over three-fourths of the Hoover ballots are from 1924 Republicans and 22 per cent are switching to him from his rival party.

Of the 435,868 voting in this 1928 Literary Digest poll who state that they did not vote in the last presidential election, 59 per cent record that they will vote Republican this year and 38 per cent mark their ballots for the Democratic candidate.

"Several Democratic editors," the Literary Digest states editorially "find cause for optimism in the fact that the poll of four years ago, while amazingly accurate in totals, showed a deviation from the popular vote of several states as registered in the actual election.

"The Digest itself is acting as a mere recorder of opinion, seeking and presenting facts in that spirit of non-partisanship, of honest desire to get at all sides of a complex question, which this periodical has made peculiarly its own.

Leaves it to Reader

"It presents its figures, vouches for the honesty and carefulness with which the poll was taken, and leaves its readers to draw their own conclusions."

The editor of the Literary Digest issues a caution in his columns to reinterpret the figures in case there is an eleventh hour shift of political sentiment.

"If there should be evidence," he writes, "of a wholesale shift from camp to camp this year, readers should take it into account and modify their reckoning from our poll figures accordingly.

"While we know of no shift of that character, it is only natural that many voters who marked the straw ballots for one candidate may change their minds and vote for the other, which would throw the forecast just that much out of line. If there is no such drift, of course the forecast would not be affected."

BAD HOMBRE

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 24. (UP)—Angered when his teacher asked that he leave the room after he had been expelled, an 8-year-old Dallas schoolboy took a knife from his pocket and declared he would not leave. With assistance, he was finally ousted. The father said he had been expelled from eight different schools.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (AP)—After ruling comparatively quiet during the greater part of the day, the cotton market became more active late yesterday and not only recovered early losses but sold above yesterday's final quotations. December contracts which had eased off to 19.43 under Southern selling and liquidation accompanied by reports of heavy private ginning returns, advanced to 19.63 on covering and closed at 19.75, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 3 to 7 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 5 to 8 points, with active months soon showing net losses of 9 to 11 points under Southern selling and liquidation which appeared to be influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables, rather a better weather map than expected, and the talk of probable heavy ginning figures.

There was considerable trade buying as well as covering which absorbed these early offerings and caused rallies to about yesterday's closing quotations, but trading was quiet after the first flurry of selling, and prices eased off again during the early afternoon.

The selling was attributed chiefly to liquidation of long accounts influenced by uncertainty as to the showing of tomorrow's official ginning figures and private reports placing the out turn of the gins up to October 18th at comparatively large figures. Three of these reports were issued, one of them estimating the ginnings at 8,526,000 bales while another placed it at 8,129,000 and a third at 7,997,000.

Selling on the maximum figure was supposed to be restricted by the estimate of slightly under 8,000,000 bales, and the late afternoon covering movement which sent March up from 19.34 to 19.59, was attributed partly to an idea that if the census report tomorrow should show heavy ginning figures, they would represent a relatively large percentage of the crop. Some Southern selling was reported early, but it was not much in evidence later.

Private cables reported that hedge selling and liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling and continental buying in the Liverpool market and that there was a moderate inquiry for cotton cloths from China but a less active demand from India. Exports today, 31,301; making 1,885,047 so far this season. Port receipts, 76,198. U. S. port stocks, 1,930,490.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24. (AP)—The cotton market was quiet today with the extreme fluctuations of prices less than 20 points. In early trading values declined under selling promoted by weaker Liverpool cables and fair weather in the belt but the loss was recovered later when the weekly weather and crop summary proved less favorable as a whole than traders expected. In the final hour the market rallied again on belated covering by shorts and December contracts traded up from 18.85 to 19.03 and closed at 19.00, 5 points net higher. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 2 to 11 points.

The opening was easier. Liverpool cables were 4 to 5 points lower than expected and early weather reports indicated favorable conditions in the belt. First trades showed losses of 7 to 10 points and prices eased a few points additional after the start to 18.85 for December, 18.86 for January and 18.83 for March or 8 to 10 points under the previous close.

During the remainder of the morning session and into the early afternoon the market ruled quiet with prices fluctuating within the early range. In the last hour, however, belated shorts covered in advance of the census bureau's ginnings total, to be issued tomorrow, and there was some buying on the absence of hedging which traders claimed indicated that the pressure of the crop movement had relaxed. All active positions made new highs with December at 19.03, January 19.05 and March 18.99, or 17 to 19 points above the lows. The market closed near the top.

Two private estimates of ginnings to October 18 were issued during the day one making the total 8,526,000 bales and the other 7,997,000 bales.

Sinclair Leads Independents As Oils Forge Ahead on Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (US)—Oils and mining shares moved ahead as continued profit taking influenced irregularity in industrial stocks as volume trading increased to the 4,500,000-share level again. Nervousness was enhanced as the call rate was raised to 6½ from renewal of 6 per cent after the banks called $20,000,000 more loans. Atlantic Refining and Greene Cananea with advances of 12 points each were the skyrockets of the day, while Sinclair stood out in the Independent oil group with steady advance of over 3 points to a new high level for the move.

General Motors rallied quite strongly also due to realization that the melon cutting is drawing near while other motors slipped lower. Chrysler was turned over in big volume and lost close to 2 points. Briggs dropped 3 points as it met heavy profit taking also. Carbide and Simmons featured the specialties with further climb into new high ground. Missouri Pacific preferred led a more active and stronger railroad group.

Sinclair Merger Rumored

Sinclair's outstanding strength was no surprise to those who have watched the stock and affairs of the company in recent months. The third quarter, it is estimated, was the best from an earnings standpoint the company has enjoyed at such period in any year in its history. In addition to the improving earnings that promise dividend there is the increasing likelihood of combination with another prominent company. Having carried through the vicissitudes of the last three years with earning power and financial position unimpaired, Sinclair stands with Texas as the leading independent oil organizations. When the merger plans of prominent bankers are carried through, it will be in a position to show even greater earning power. Due to its large foreign holdings, it benefits from the planned world stabilization of crude production.

Other Oils Gain

Pan American, Mid-Continent Petroleum, Atlantic Refining, Union Oil, Maracaibo, Skelly and Standard of Kentucky were other oil shares to reflect individual favorable developments as well as the improved condition of the industry. Pan American was helped by report here that Standard of Indiana was after more stock. Mid-Continent, it was learned, will earn over $5.25 a share this year. Atlantic Refining's net of over $30 a share this year does not make its advance appear unreasonable while Union Oil is effected by rumor of merger with Atlantic Refining. Maracaibo was influenced by announcement of closing of favorable contract with Standard of California for drilling on its Venezuelan properties. Report here that Standard of Kentucky planned a 50 per cent stock dividend caused its further rise.

Strength of the oils, however, covered up rather important liquidation in some of the recent industrial favorites, particular in the automobile and motor accessory shares while those who dominated the market in such stocks were somewhat less optimistic in discussing the immediate outlook of the market. However, the groups interested in mining and metal shares continued constructive activity. Alaska Juneau registered a new high for the move following report here of earning improvement. Warren Pipe gained further also following report that it had perfected the puddling process on which it has been working for many months.

Speculative Orgy Prevented

The calling of loans that resulted in advance in the rate to 6½ per cent from renewal of 6 was regarded as due to desire of the money powers to keep the market strong for the next two weeks while at the same time preventing any speculative orgy. Leading operators are not averse to seeing their favorite industrials slide off at this time for the same reason as well as the fact that they hope to build up a short account for the next phase of their bullish activity. Inquiry of leading exchange firms indicates that the reserve bank's statement tomorrow afternoon will not have much market effect as reduction of loans effected late last week should offset in good part whatever increase has been recorded in the last two days.

Foreign exchange remained quiet and steady with sterling holding close to the final quotation of Tuesday. Commodities turned irregular on receipt of bearish weather advices. Cotton rallied on covering toward the close and finished slightly higher but wheat and other grains lost fractionally further.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 24. (U. S. D. A.)—Finished beef steers and yearlings around the 11-market circuit held fully steady but weak to lower values prevailed on short fed descriptions and grassers; country demand for stockers and feeders was narrow at all points with prices the lowest of the season; packers have been picking up fleshy western steers which ordinarily would go to feeder buyers; Kansas City had a liberal supply of well bred stockers and stock calves; trade at this point was especially slow on stock calves with values on these 50c@1.00 under last week; choice yearling steers on the Chicago market topped at $17.25, while best heavy steers stopped at $16.85; aggregate receipts were estimated at 47,900 against 48,373 a week ago and 57,166 a year ago.

Moderate receipts stimulated demand for fat lambs and prices were firm to 25c higher; aged stock was generally steady a few points reporting a slight decline; choice native lambs in Chicago reached 13.60 and choice westerns at Kansas City scored 13.50; the supply approximated 67,800 a shortage of 42,300 from last week, but 4,500 more than the corresponding day a year ago.

Hogs were unevenly steady to 25c lower, most centers showing losses of 10 to 200; the day's top of $9.50 was paid at Chicago; total offerings were around 91,600 as compared with 76,093 last Wednesday and 98,020 a year ago.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 24. (UP)—Hogs—receipts 1,000; market steady to 10 cents higher; light showing advance; top $9.30 paid for choice truck butchers; rail top $9.25, paid for 185 to 260-pound weights; bulk 175 to 260-pound averages $8.90@9.25; bulk 130 to 170-pound weights, $7.50@8.85; packing sows steady, mostly $7.25@$8; pigs steady, feeder pigs $7@7.25, fat pigs up to $8. Medium to choice heavyweights $8.40@9.30.

Cattle—Receipts 5,400; not enough slaughter steers on sale to test values; few sales desirable lightweight fat yearlings up to $12.50, steady; butcher and beef grades she stock slow, mostly 25 cents lower; few sales good to fat cows around $8@8.25; butcher grades $7 and less. Cutters mostly 15 to 25 cents lower, occasional sales barely steady; bulk low cutters $4.75@5.25; other classes cattle generally unchanged; very little inquiry for stock steers; sausage bulls, mostly $6.75@7.25; few heavy individuals up to $7.75 and above. Calf trade slow, 25 to 50 cents lower, mostly 50 cents lower.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24. (AP)—Hogs—Receipts 22,000; mostly 10@25c lower; top $9.50; packing sows $8.25@8.85; pigs, medium to choice $8.00@8.60.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW
By Thomas Temple Heyne

CHICAGO, Oct. 24. (US)—Grains closed lower today. Wheat wilted after a bulge apparently caused by short covering and corn could not show independent strength to hold its own.

At the close wheat was down ⅝ to 1¼ cents; corn was ⅝ to 1 cent lower; oats were off ⅛ to ¼ cent; rye was down 1¼ to 1⅝ cents.

In spite of the weak finish in both wheat and corn it does not seem by any means certain that they will go on down to a lower close today. Both markets in their action suggested that there might have been a lot of short selling at or near the bottom of the decline.

If prices open lower this morning and get down near the bids, buying against those may develop and turn the markets upward for a higher close. Bids were freely offered today, a fact that suggested shorts might be selling them with the hope that they could cover wheat in that way if it broke through them and stayed down today.

There is not much that can be said in favor of buying wheat for the long pull. All the statistics are bearish, although it is estimated that the Canadian crop may turn out considerably smaller than was expected.

But the fact remains that two months or more ago December wheat sold down to $1.11½ and that it has never since touched that figure, in spite of the emphasis of all the bearish news and the movement of the new crop.

This fact may have no meaning, but it may be warning against selling wheat down at the present level with careless confidence.

Corn being brought in the country to arrive is, of course, being hedged in the pit.

From that price new cash corn sold up to 98c depending on the grade. The price range for old corn, No. 1, 2 and 3 mixed, ranged from $1.05 to $1.08½.

Wheat in the cash market was unchanged to 1 cent higher than the day before; corn was 1 to 3 cents lower; oats were steady; rye was ½ to 1 cent off; barley was steady.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Oct. 24. (AP)—Frequency of grass fires outside the city limits has resulted in a ruling that the city's fire equipment will not answer such calls.

Rusk County Doctors Seek to Collect Debts

TROUP, Texas, Oct. 24. (AP)—Rusk county residents must hereafter pay their medical bills promptly if they expect calls from physicians in time of sickness.

At a special meeting, doctors entered into an agreement calculated to cut down their list of bad debts by insisting that obstetrical fees be paid in full at the time service is rendered.

"Patrons of any physician who are in arrears for the last two years shall be considered delinquents," the physicians stated in their resolutions. "It shall be considered unethical for any other physician to render medical service to such persons until satisfactory arrangements have been made with the physician to whom they are indebted."

Newton County Trees Need Rain Badly

ORANGE, Texas, Oct. 24. (AP)—Although Orange county has been visited with frequent rains throughout the summer and fall, reports have been received here that trees are dying in the adjoining county of Newton because of the lack of sufficient rainfall.

The section is only 40 miles from here.

STOCK-A-DAY

(Five-Year Record)

The Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., was formed in 1920 as a consolidation of two old established manufacturing firms. It manufactures rugs, carpets, tapestries and velvets. The concern has some 54 mills, including carpet and yarn plants, machine shops and a foundry, located at Amsterdam, N. Y. The volume of sales has changed little in recent years but net income has varied. Profits in 1923, the company's best year, total $4,478,305 and dropped as low as $1,243,277 in 1926. In 1927 they were $2,619,819 or $4.37 a share. For the six months ended June 30, 1928, net was $1,039,389 or $1.73 per share.

The company has decided to sell direct to the trade after Nov. 1, 1928, and officials declare their belief is this will result in increased sales and better service.

There is no funded debt. Capital stock outstanding consists of 600,000 shares of no par common. The former 6 per cent preferred stock was retired April 1, 1927, at 106. Dividends were paid regularly on the former preferred issue and on the common at various rates from $8 a share in 1924 to $2 in 1927. Throughout the first part of 1928 the $2 rate was maintained but this was increased to 62½ cents a quarter on Oct. 1.

As of June 30, 1928, total current assets amounted to $12,080,104. Current liabilities totaled $848,107 and net working capital was $11,231,997. Cash and call loans were more than the current debts, but inventories comprised about two-thirds of the current assets. Book value applicable to the stock amounted to $39.28 a share.

Only Needy Students Now Work Way Through College, Prof. Finds

FORT WORTH, Oct. 24. (AP)—The number of students who are working their way through college is on the decrease, is the belief of John W. Ballard, chairman of the student employment committee of the Texas Christian university.

Professor Ballard gives as his reason for this statement that while formerly the general idea was held that the "self-made" man must work his way through college, whether his parents were able to send him or not, it is now coming to be that the student who works is the one who really needs the money. "This is the way it really should be," Professor Ballard comments.

More than 1,000 students have been assisted in finding work in the four years that the student employment committee has functioned at T. C. U. Almost every business house of any size in Fort Worth has at least one T. C. U. student in its employment. Undergraduates are serving as cashiers, clerks, stenographers, elevator operators, ushers, freight haulers, soda clerks, waiters, bell hops, insurance salesmen, newspaper assistants and in many other capacities.

An effort is being made to get the working student to cut down on the amount of school work carried, Professor Ballard says. "It is better to take five years for his degree than to work himself down in mind and body in order to get a degree in four years."

Burglars Shuffle "Cold Deck" As Raids Return Little of Value

Wichita Falls burglars shuffled another cold deck in the seventh round of the new knob-knocking series when they failed Tuesday night after opening a small safe in the office of the L. E. Whitham & company plant at 1901 Austin avenue to get any loot. The safe contained nothing except papers and records which the yeggs scorned and they overloked a wall safe, according to Frank Burns, chief of police.

Seven burglaries in Wichita Falls since yeggs opened their winter activities Sunday night have netted thus far $2 in cash, $7 in postage stamps, a diamond necklace and other articles, the later taken from a private home.

Chief Burns said the burglaries so far, in his opinion, have been committed by amateurs and he believes all of the "jobs" have been the work of the same person because the same tactics are used in each place. No arrests have been made, Chief Burns said Wednesday.

Pro And Con

PARTIES EXHAUST SUPPLY OF BUTTONS

No one has any buttons now. At least none of the political headquarters. The Democratic headquarters, the Woman's Republican headquarters and the anti-Smith Democratic headquarters all reported their supplies exhausted Wednesday. The Republicans still have a few little G. O. P. elephants left, but otherwise the supply of straight "Hoover" or "Smith" campaign buttons is a minus quantity. All have sent in rush orders for more.

HEAVY HOOVER VOTE AT VERNON PREDICTED

G. W. Wilson of Vernon was a caller for supplies at the Woman's Republican headquarters in the Hamilton building Wednesday and said that Vernon is one of the best Hoover strongholds in that part of Texas.

DEMOS EXPLODE "WHISPER" CHARGES

"The Whispering Campaign Against Governor Smith" is the title of a new campaign pamphlet which is due at the Democratic headquarters in the Hamilton building, it was learned Wednesday. Samples have been received exploding several of the whispers, it is said.

100 SMITH VOTES IN BURK, SHE SAYS

Mrs. Frank Watson of Burkburnett called at the anti-Smith Democratic headquarters in the Perkins-Snider building Wednesday to say she doubted if there were 100 Smith votes in Burk. R. H. Henry of Burk also was in town during the day.

SIGN DEMO BOOK

The Smith-Robinson Democratic club book in the Democratic headquarters Wednesday night showed a total of 992 signers to date.

G. O. P. RADIO PROGRAM

Republican women of Wichita Falls are busy completing the arrangements for their Friday night radio program which will be broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock over KGKO.

HENRIETTA WOMEN SUPPORT SMITH

Mrs. Pearl Lane, Miss Jennie Keene and Mrs. Frank Marshall of Henrietta signed the Smith-Robinson club register at the Democratic headquarters Wednesday.

NORTH CAROLINA SAFE FOR SMITH

Mr. and Mrs. Van W. Hall of Brownwood have just returned from a trip to North Carolina and were visitors Wednesday at the Democratic headquarters. They said that Governor Smith will carry that state in a walkaway.

FOR HOOVER

H. C. Gilbert of Burkburnett was at the Woman's Republican headquarters Wednesday to say it is hard to find a Smith voter in Burkburnett.

ANOTHER VIEW OF BURK POLITICS

Mrs. C. W. Gilbert and Mrs. R. L. Jones of Burkburnett obtained new supplies at the county Democratic headquarters in the Hamilton building and said that when the votes are counted the Smith vote at Burkburnett will be heavy.

TESTS GIVEN PRO AGENTS

Civil Service Tests Here Nov. 20

Announcements for open competion in civil service examinations for government prohibition agents were received this week by C. K. Johnson, assistant superintendent of mails at the local postoffice, who is in charge of civil service examinations for this district.

The test is the first of its kind that has been offered by the government in several months, according to Mr. Johnson. Applications must be filed by Nov. 20. Examinations to persons in this district will be given by Mr. Johnson on qualification from the civil service board at Washington.

The deep test of Murchison & Cranfill, located in block 33, Hezekiah George survey, Waggoner brothers land in Wichita county, missed all of the sands expected and is abandoned at a total depth of 1825 feet.

HAMILTON-MARTIN

After creating plenty of interest among operators in the district, by the encountering of a deep pay at 2407-18 feet in their No. C-1 W. T. Waggoner in the Consolidated pool, Wilbarger county, Hamilton-Martin completed the well as dry at a total depth of 2532 feet. The sand showed a considerable amount of oil, also water.

SIMMS-WAGGONER

The Simms Oil company placed its No. 7 W. T. Waggoner, in section 5, block 5, H. & T. C. R. R. survey, on the pump, and it is gauging 240 barrels from the sand at 1865-83 feet.

SOUTHEAST OF OLNEY

The Prairie Oil and Gas company No. 2 R. Campbell, located in section 1570, T. E. L. survey, southeast of Olney in Young county, is making 40 barrels per day from the sand at 989-95 feet.

STILL FISHING

The Texas company No. 1 Clisbee in the Reeves survey, located in Hardeman county, is enjoying a job fishing for the bit at a total depth of 3885 feet.

Midland Shows Oil Advantages

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 24.—West Texas again this year furnished the unique exhibit of the International Petroleum exposition. The idea of a town exhibit at the big oil show was originated last year by Midland, and Midland is the only town this year to have an exhibit exploiting its claims as an oil town.

A huge sign reading: "Midland—the Tulsa of West Texas," and a drawing of the 12-story Petroleum office building now under rapid construction in Midland, are the chief attractions in the Midland booth to the thousands of people who daily visit the exposition. Oil maps showing Midland as the chief city of the West Texas Permian basin are being distributed by Paul T. Vickers, secretary of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, who is in charge of the booth, and C. A. McClintic, wealthy oil man, who is in Tulsa to boost Midland.

Scores of oil men from the Permian basin were in Tulsa on Midland day at the exposition. Midland, Chicago and New York were the only cities outside the state of Oklahoma to be honored with special days.

Spanish Vets to Take Porto Rico Trip in 1929

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 24. (AP)—The Kansas City Chamber of Commerce has joined with Beaumont in sponsoring an excursion to Porto Rico and other West Indies ports next June, on the occasion of the state convention of the United Spanish war veterans, and will send a delegation of approximately 200 from that city to make the trip.

The steamship Shawnee has been secured for the occasion.

Spanish students and teachers from various schools of the state have signified their intention to go. Many delegates to the U. C. V. convention, for whom it is being conducted, are expected to sign for the trip to visit scenes of the days of '98.

Official Guides Mailed By Bus Association

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 4. (AP)—The Texas Bus Owners association has mailed out to members an official guide carrying every bus schedule on file with the Texas Railway commission, J. C. Carrington, secretary, has announced.

Distribution of the official guides satisfies a rule of the railway commission requiring publication of bus schedules by the individual bus lines, Carrington said. The association will issue new guides monthly.

NEW TOWNS ON OIL WELL SITES

Two Communities Spring Up Near Borger

BORGER, Texas, Oct. 24. (UP)—Discovery of oil on the famous Byrd Armstrong ranch in Moore county west of Hutchinson county has resulted in a race for townsites in that district. Two towns have already been laid out and lot sales announced.

One of the towns is Burden, started by P. W. Burden, pioneer Stinnett man, who has a 40-acre plot of ground on the north side of state highway 41. The other townsite is Belle Plains, started by H. M. Hood of Borger, who is acting as agent for the owners of the Byrd-Armstrong ranch.

The towns were started with a population of approximately 200 persons, who are living near the two producing wells just across the Hutchinson county line in Moore county.

These are the first town development plans to be announced here in many months.

Vote Interference In Oklahoma Is Curbed

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 24 (UP)—Legal action necessary to curb alleged practice of interference with registration of voters in the state will be taken by county and district leaders, under orders of Frank A. Parkinson, Republican state chairman.

Parkinson alleges that he has received nearly a score of reports from over the state indicating voters are being barred illegally from qualifying themselves to vote in the general election Nov. 6.

Many places, Parkinson said, were without registrars.

A registrar in Tulsa, Parkinson said, drew a pistol on a negro because he demanded to be registered.

Woman Shoots Man Over Farm Boundary

HONESDALE, Pa., Oct. 24. (AP)—Russell Butler, 36, was shot and killed today by Miss Josephine Loring, 55, over a dispute concerning the boundaries between their farms near Hamlin.

Butler was tearing down a barn near the boundary line when he was shot. Miss Loring was taken to the county jail.

Coolidge Approves Grayson Retirement

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. (AP)—Application for retirement made by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, formerly personal physician to President Wilson, has been approved by President Coolidge. Admiral Grayson has been elected president of the Gorgas Memorial institute.

POSITIVE OTHERS WILL BENEFIT AS SHE DID

Sherman Woman Suffered With Her Stomach for Six Years, Few Doses Orgatone Brings Relief

"If Orgatone does for others what it is doing for me and I have every confidence it will, they will be more than satisfied with the results," said Mrs. Ed Hix, well known Sherman woman, who lives at 712 South Willow street, while in conversation at her home a few days ago.

"For five or six years I suffered with liver disorders," continued Mrs. Hix, "and from this trouble I had a dull pain and soreness in my back extending high up under my shoulder blades. At night after eating I would bloat up and be miserable from this gassy condition. Finally had to give up eating an evening meal. I also suffered a great deal with bad headaches. Recently I found something that is bringing relief from all this, Orgatone.

"I began reading about Orgatone in the local papers and decided it might be the thing for me in my case. After just a few doses I began getting relief from my troubles and soon reached the point where I could eat again without suffering for it. I do not bloat any more, headaches have disappeared, pain and soreness much improved. I know Orgatone is good and I am glad to recommend it."

Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily.—Adv.

Alec B. Ross, who is directing "Discovery Week" to open at the Olympic theater Oct. 29 under the auspices of the Brown Theatrical company of New York and Chicago, is getting plenty entertainment along with his work.

There is a young lady in the city who is confident that she would be elected to the highest eminence in the theatrical world should she be given half a chance.

The little lady has just the correct shade of pretty brown curls, eyes so blue that the audience would be spellbound by their magical spell, and a figure—but that is evidently as graphic a word picture as one would want in this limited space.

Might be interesting to watch Mr. Ross and the aspirant to theatrical fame, for from the tone of the letter it is difficult to decide who is teasing who (or whom).

But seriously, an opportunity is being offered these in the city and nearby who are seeking a tryout for a dramatic, singing or dance act, for Henry Brown, manager of the Brown Theatrical company, will be here in person during the entire week beginning Oct. 29 to review entries in "Discovery Week." Mr. Brown is at present touring the country seeking new talent for the vaudeville stage.

Milton Sill: is versatile—in his new picture "The Crash" he is a mountain wrecking boss—but clears the tracks in time to save a wreck in his domestic affairs. Thelma Todd, once a school teacher in Lawrence, Mass., shows practical versatility, too, for she plays opposite Milton Sills in this picture.

Sills drives a locomotive in this First National picture. That's a little different from handling a megaphone in a spelling role. "The Crash" will be shown at the Olympic theater from Thursday through Saturday.

Another five-act vaudeville bill is scheduled for the Majestic theater Thursday and Friday. This is the second such bill following a series of unit shows. Patrons express themselves better pleased with the diversified programs.

◇ ◇ ◇

By the way, C. M. Morehead, better known as "Charlie," is the most nimble man in town. With Mr. Federer, manager of the Dent theaters, out of town, Mr. Morehead has been doing some sort of fancy step taking in all the theaters. As house manager for the theaters, the young man is being kept more than fairly busy.

◇ ◇ ◇

"King of Kings" at the Strand theater is still attracting a good attendance of theater-goers who express themselves as more than pleased with the super-production.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mullen's Musical Maids at the Mission are proving a popular vaudeville group. They are playing with a complete change of program every other evening.

◇ ◇ ◇

Bill Saling at the Olympic theater Wurlitzer pipe organ is attracting many music lovers. You know, there are many people who are not movie fans but who like to sit for an hour or two and have an artist perform for them. Mr. Saling plays the accordion, a difficult instrument, with the mastery of an artist.

Mexican Government Aids Tourist Traffic

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 24. (US)—To facilitate tourist traffic, the federal department of Gobernacion, which has charge of internal and interstate matters in Mexico, has entered into an agreement with steamship lines calling at Mexican ports, by which their passengers may stay in Mexico as long as they like upon the responsibility of the companies.

The lines included in the arrangement will issue to their passengers a card of identification which upon authentication by Mexican immigration officials will serve every purpose of the traveller's stay in the country.

Cotton Brokers Ask 50-Bale Trade Unit

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24. (AP)—The New Orleans Cotton Futures Brokers association today recommended to the board of directors of the New Orleans cotton exchange that 50 bale contracts be made the sole unit of trading. At present both the 100 bale and 50 bale contracts are traded in. The New York exchange on Monday refused to adopt the proposal.

WAR DAYS

San Antonio Under Heavy Shell Fire In Mock Attack

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 24 (AP)—Shells thrown by monster 240 millimeter howitzers of the Red army threatening San Antonio from the northwest, were bursting in the very outskirts of the city today, theoretically speaking, while the blue defending army under command of Brigadier General Albert J. Bowley, commander of the Eight corps area, was marshaling its forces to launch a furious drive tomorrow morning.

"Personality Girl" On KGKO Tonight

Ruth Muse, "Texas Radio Personality Girl," will feature the Thursday program of station KGKO with Zack and Glenn, popular KGKO artists, broadcasting at 8 to 9 o'clock in the evening.

The day's program will be: 8:30 to 9 a. m., bargain hour; 9 to 10 a. m., musical program and announcements; 12 to 1 p. m. and 5 to 5:45 p. m., musical programs; 5:45 to 6 p. m. Honey Boy and Sassafras; 7 to 8 p. m., All-American Hawaiians; 8 to 9 p. m., Ruth Muse and Zack and Glenn; 9 to 10 p. m., male quartet from City National bank with Miss Modena Howell, soprano, and a brief address by Wiley L. Robertson.

El Paso Offers Site For Aviation Field

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 24. (INS)—El Paso today offered an additional square mile of land to the government for use as an aviation field at Fort Bliss, in an attempt to get the war department to locate the third attack group here. This would give the government a field two miles long by a mile wide.

Sufficient land for bombing practice would be provided by the military reservation in Dona Ana County, New Mexico. This comprises 100,000 acres and is uninhabited. Practically 1,000,000 acres of uninhabited land to the south and east would provide sufficient room for tactical flying.

The city's offer was wired to Congressman C. B. Hudspeth at Washington for presentation to the government officials.

John McCormack Sends $10,000 For Smith Cause

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (AP)—The Democratic national headquarters today announced receipt of a campaign contribution of $10,000 from John McCormack, the Irish tenor, cabled from London.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 24. (UP)—Senator Charles Curtis, Republican vice presidential nominee, received an elaborate reception when he arrived today from Pittsfield, Mass.

WISCONSIN VOTE NON-PARTISAN

Smith Strong But Not At All Certain to Win

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 24.—This state is so closely divided between Hoover and Smith, apparently, that good judges of Wisconsin politics are unable to make up their minds privately.

One of the shrewdest of these told the United Press: "Except for Wisconsin's Republican background I would say without reservation that Smith would carry Wisconsin. But mindful of that background I consider the state exceedingly close."

Neither side is claiming the state by any considerable margin, and all hands agree the result is in real doubt there.

Vote of 900,000

Wisconsin casts about 850,000 votes normally, although extra heavy registration will run this up possibly to 900,000 this year. In 1924 the elder La Follette carried the state by 146,000 over Coolidge—the only state in the country which he carried. Harding had 365,000 over Cox in 1920. In 1916 Hughes carried Wisconsin in spite of the Wilson anti-war campaign. But so far as this campaign is concerned these past results are important only in that they show the underlying Republican complexion of Wisconsin.

However, the La Follettes have educated Wisconsin voters to take party tags lightly. That Smith is called a Democrat does not weigh very heavily against him in Wisconsin. Voters here think through partisan tags.

Senator La Follette has refused to say where he stands as between Smith and Hoover. Neither he nor any of his family attended a Smith meeting here last week, at which Senator Reed of Missouri and Senator Blaine of Wisconsin spoke. The Smith fight in Wisconsin is being waged largely by an organization set up by Senator Blaine, a Progressive and allied with La Follette in the past.

It cannot be said that young Bob La Follette is going along with this Blaine pro-Smith movement. None of his intimate lieutenants are associated with it. It is all in the hands of Blaine men. There is a feeling here that La Follette will not make any statement of his presidential preferences at all. His intimates feel that way about it. This silence may deprive the Smith movement of the final push that would put it over.

Strong in Milwaukee

Some of La Follette's friends resent the aggressive tactics of Blaine who set up his campaign headquarters and hung out a sign which reads: "Progressive Republican Headquarters, Al Smith for President."

Smith forces are working in two directions here. They are seeking both the La Follette progressive vote and the wet vote of Milwaukee and the lake shore. Betting is that Smith will run two to one in Milwaukee county, where one-fifth of the state's vote is cast. Smith's wet speech strengthened him there. Progressive leaders felt he should have bid more strongly for the Progressive vote at the same time. On the other hand, Hoover's attempt to brand Smith's policies as "socialistic" will have little adverse effect in Wisconsin, as the voters have been educated for a generation by La Follette to support large participation by the state in economic affairs.

The fact that the state went 170,000 for beer on a referendum two years ago and the strength of the Blaine organization favor Smith. On the other hand, Hoover is favored by the fundamental Republican complexion of the state, the large Lutheran vote, which is inclined to be anti-Catholic, and the fact that the conservative Republican candidate for governor, Kohler, beat the La Follettes in the primary and is now out to set up a new conservative machine in the state, an end which would be tremendously facilitated if he could carry Wisconsin for Hoover.

HORSES MUST GO

Ancient Newspaper Containing Support of Automobiles Found

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 24. (UP)—I. S. Winner, in cleaning out the basement of his store, found a June 9, 1906 copy of the El Paso Evening News. The copy contained a special section devoted to the opening of the new home of the Elks lodge, the present Elks home.

An editorial in the paper has this to say about automobiles:

"What's the use of talking against automobiles? They are here to stay and the people who rail against them are just a lot of clams. The motor vehicle is sanitary, clean, effective, healthful, occupies less than a quarter of the space of a team and wagon, and we are rapidly drifting into its use."

Winner said he will present the paper to the Elks lodge.

Lamesa Prepares to Hear Ben Vardaman

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Oct. 24. — Lamesa is all set for Ben R. Vardaman of Chicago, nationally known community lecturer. All business men, the schools, women's clubs, and the farmers of the county will cooperate to make this the greatest week in the history of Lamesa and Dawson county. Luncheons will be served at noon by the Parent-Teacher association each day during all next week to the business and professional men of the city as they gather to hear Vardaman. The evening sessions will be held in the district courtroom at which time the neighboring towns will meet with Lamesa business men for the programs. All clerks and employes of the city will hear Vardaman as will the entire citizenship.

His first lecture opens the week's engagement at the high school building when he delivers his lecture, "Building the City Four Square," to the citizenship of Lamesa and Dawson county.

Major Parties Employ Newspaper Ad Columns

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. (UP)—With less than two weeks of campaigning left to them, the major parties have extended their political hostilities to include newspaper advertisements.

The advertising columns of thousands of newspapers will be devoted to the respective merits of the candidates, platforms and issues.

Costly full page "ads" already are beginning to appear in the big metropolitan dailies. Others will follow every day until the voters go to the polls. Hundreds of thousands of dollars will be spent.

Merger of Huge Aircraft Concerns Is Rumored

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24. (UP)—A possible merger of the Western Air Express and the Fokker Aircraft corporation which probably would result in the building here of one of the largest airplane factories in the world, was announced today.

Associates of Harris Hanshue, head of Western Air, said he was in New York conferring with Fokker officials regarding the proposed combine.

GRAND JURY TO RETURN TODAY

25 Witnesses Called For Final Session

Following a two weeks' recess the Wichita county grand jury will reconvene for work Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, Dick Kenley, district attorney, announced Wednesday. About 25 witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear before the investigators who are expected to complete all work in connection with the October term of the 30th district court by Saturday, Mr. Kenley said.

One of the most important matters to be taken up by the grand jury, Mr. Kenley said, is a continuation of investigations into alleged cattle thefts in Wichita county. The district attorney's office has received reports alleging loss of $5,000 worth of cattle in the county during the last year. The jury made an investigation before it took a recess the second time but no indictments have yet been returned.

"Routine matters that have arisen during the last two weeks, with no capital cases, will be presented to the jury Thursday, Kenley said.

Five Acts Listed For Vaudeville

Ruth Muse, the "Texas Radio Personality Girl," and popular alike on the stage and on the air, will appear on the bill. Miss Muse is a Brunswick recording artist and a popular radio entertainer.

The other three acts will be Fulton and Parker in "Diversions a la Carte," a program of songs and stories; Ward and Van, formerly known as the De Michele Brothers, harpist and violinist; and the Rasso and company jugglers who can juggle phonographs while they are playing and who keep the air musical as they work.
