GOV. HANNETT SPEAKS HERE SATURDAY

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION MEETS HERE NEXT WEEK

OVER 200 MESSENGERS ARE EXPECTED FOR THE TWO DAY SESSION

The Portales Baptist association will meet here with the Portales Baptist church Thursday and Friday August 19 and 20 and approximately 200 delegates and messengers are expected from over the territory covered by the district.

The association will hold the first meeting at the Baptist church Thursday morning at 10:30, at which time Rev. D. B. Jackson of Melrose will preach the annual association sermon. The afternoon of Thursday will be given over to the meeting of the laymen and the Woman's Missionary Union, the laymen meeting at the Methodist church while the women will hold their sessions at the Baptist church.

"Many matters of importance are to come up at this meeting," said Rev. Joe F. Grizzle, moderator, Wednesday "and we urge all Baptists to attend. Not only do we urge Baptists to attend, but all Christian people are invited, as matters touching upon the general interest of Christians will come before the body."

"If you would know what Baptists are doing in New Mexico, you should come out to these sessions, as reports on the work will be made from time to time throughout the two days."

The work of the association is expected to be brought to a close with the afternoon session of Friday, according to Reverend Grizzle. Visiting messengers and pastors will be entertained in the homes of Portales Baptists and others.

More Members on C of C Board

Several important committees were named at the luncheon and meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at the Portales Hotel last Friday evening, and it was decided to increase the board of directors from nine members to either twelve or fifteen and the new members are to be named at a meeting to be held soon.

The present board of directors is composed of Fred Luper, Sam Seay, R. L. Yonchum, A. D. Ribble, Dave Isenbarg, J. G. Greaves, E. N. Neer, A. C. White, and A. F. Jones.

DRY WEATHER HAS NOT DAMAGED CROPS MUCH

While the sun and hot winds of the past week have slightly damaged some of the dry land crops, the damage has not reached alarming proportions, and a good general rain within the next few days will put every crop in the county safely past the danger mark.

In the shallow water belt where irrigation is carried out, nothing is suffering. The damage throughout the county so far is confined to small patches in different fields. The cotton does not seem to have suffered at all and the sunshine has so far agreed with that staple and indications are that there will be a record crop.

GREAT SINGER COMING TO PORTALES MEETING

When Harry K. Shields, tenor soloist, comes to take charge of the music at the Powell revival at the Christian church here next week, the citizens of Portales, Roosevelt county and this part of New Mexico, will be given the opportunity to hear one of the greatest singers of today.

While Mr. Shields devote his time entirely to church work, he is well known for his ability as a singer in other lines. There are no greater singers than Harry K. Shields, and his determination to give his time and talent to the cause of Christ, is a manifestation of his interest in the cause of the souls of men and women.

Already, according to Evangelist Powell, letters have been received from as far away as Tucuman, stating that large delegations would be here some time during the revival.

C. C. Osmont of Albuquerque was transacting business in Portales the latter part of last week.

Portales Schools to Open Sept. 5

Enrollment in the Portales schools will show a decided increase over that of the past year, according to Superintendent Krattill, this week in his announcement that the 1926-27 term of school would open the first Monday in September. Superintendent Krattill will start his fifth year as head of the schools.

There will be thirty-five teachers in the faculty this year several of whom have been connected with the schools here for several terms.

With the paper cooperation on the part of the citizens and patrons of the schools the most successful term in their history is predicted by Superintendent Krattill. The Portales schools have enjoyed a position at the head of the list in the state and there will be no let-down from that standard.

Tennessee Club Organized Here

In response to a call published in this paper several weeks ago, the Tennessee Club was organized on last Saturday afternoon with the following officers:

Judge F. T. McDonald, President.

Albert Morgan, vice-president.

A. C. Browne, secretary-treasurer.

Those present and registering at this meeting:

Geo. L. Jones, W. A. Gumm, Arthur Brown, J. A. Tinsley, A. Morgan, F. T. McDonald, S. B. Haskew, Doc. Witt, J. F. Morgan, Dodson, D. G. Horn, J. P. Adams, J. W. Wallen, J. N. Pierce, Fred Duke, Ike Hughes, R. M. Sanders, J. G. Greaves, and W. F. Jernegan.

The next meeting date was set for Saturday, August 21st, when the date and other arrangements will be made for the Tennessee Club picnic, which will be held some time in September.

It is estimated that there are over two thousand ex-Tennessee people in Roosevelt county. All of those who have ever resided in the state of Tennessee are requested to send their names and address to the secretary, and to be out at the next meeting.

This club is also open to the ladies, and they are especially requested to come out and take part in the organization.

S. H. SHACKELFORD DIES; FUNERAL HELD WEDNESDAY

Funeral services were held at the Nazarene church Wednesday afternoon for S. H. Shackelford, age 83, who died at the home of his son, W. W. Shackelford two and a half miles north of the city, Tuesday morning. Interment was in Portales cemetery with George and Seaver, undertakers in charge of the funeral.

Mr. Shackelford was born in Louisiana, December 15, 1843. He fought in the Confederate army and soon after the war moved to Texas. For the past eleven years he has spent his winters at the Texas Confederate home and the summers at the home of his son here. He is survived by his widow, W. W. Shackelford, a son, Mrs. Clara McCord, a daughter both of Portales, and two granddaughters, one living in California and one in Claude, Texas.

MILLINERY SCHOOL

The fall millinery season will begin with a county millinery school at the Portales Court House. There will be two all day sessions on August 23 and 24. Miss Grace Long of the A. & M. College will give the instruction. All of the women of Roosevelt County are invited to come.

A CORRECTION

In the article on the school funds of the state, as carried in the News last week, the following correction should be made.

The figures carried for the different counties were those of the school census and should not have read so many dollars. In the case of Roosevelt county, there were 3278 registered. The state apportionment nine dollars for each enrolled in the school census, therefore this county's share of the state fund will be $29,502.

Some Inside Information

Editor Sees New Mexico as Scene of Next Great Boom

The following prediction is a story which appeared a short time ago in the Shore Line Times, published at Guilford, Conn.

"After Florida, New Mexico." Thus saith the prophet.

When the tide ebbs in one place it rises in another place. It will be high tide soon in New Mexico.

All this relates to the rush of civilization to the Florida peninsula, the land of which has not been known on this continent since the gold rush of '49 to the Pacific Coast. More than that this hebra bears the same relation to that other migration that the motor vehicle bears to the ox-drawn wagon. After the California rush, the Florida rush. After Florida, New Mexico.

So, with our eyes turning toward New Mexico, the question naturally arises, "What do we know of New Mexico? And what do we know of that vague and distant portion of these United States?"

A jumble of impressions: Kit Carson; the cliff dwellers; Spaniards; Indians; rows of prehistoric cliff dwellings where an unknown race "holed in"; roseate skies; sad sand dunes; these all pass in confusion before the mental vision.

The question reveres itself. What does New Mexico know of New England, specifically, Connecticut? New Mexico has heard of Waterbury, for there is made 'the watch.' It is familiar perhaps with Derby and Danbury, Hartford and New Haven for other reasons connected with manufacture. But what does New Mexico know of our sandy beaches, where the people congregate for the salt water dip and the sun-bath in the hot August days? Of the blue expanse of Long Island Sound where the solitary canoe of the Indian has been succeeded by the busy motor craft, ranging from the sedate carrier to the racing sealer; where strings of barges, the camels of the ocean, are silhouetted against the chalky cliffs of Long Island; where go the white-sailed schooners bringing cargoes from foreign countries; where pass the stately liners running from New York to ports east as far as St. Louis; where the lighthouse stands sentinel, with its green in fog and its flash through the dark night to guide those who go down to the sea in ships?

Unfamiliarity Strange that such unfamiliarity can exist between two members of the group surrounded by the protecting arm of Uncle Sam.

Lately returned from a visit to his ranch near Santa Fe, New Mexico, Dr. Waffensmith of Guilford and New York becomes a connecting link between these two of the United States than which two none could be more diametrically opposite in characteristics, geographical, racial or historical.

From Dr. Waffensmith we learn that New Mexico has three civilizations existing side by side—the Indian, the Spanish and the Anglo-Saxon. Connecticut has known as many, but has had them in sequence not all at once.

New Mexico was, anciently, a Spanish kingdom. But the Spaniards, arriving in 1598, found here Indian inhabitants; and these had been preceded by that unknown race, the cliff-dwellers, whose strange habitations are the only clue of their identity the only sign of their presence.

Kit Carson is the earliest attraction of New Mexico to the inquiring mind—Kit Carson, Indian Scout, fighter, path finder. Who has not been thrilled over the stories of his exploits? Carson lived at Taos, and is buried there. The Indians called him 'Father Kit.' The United States dubbed him Brevet Brigadier General. Those who came after him named their hotel 'Carson House.' What more could fame do for any man?

Then there is the climate; dry, so that dampness and consequent rust and decay are unknown; cool at night, so that blankets are needed yet at noon the friendly sun makes all outdoors a glorious place to be. The rainfall is about one-third that of New England, a day without some sunshine being rare. Irrigation is successfully used.

Fruits Fruits in the high altitude that marks Santa Fe are fine and rich of flavor, high in color. Apples, peaches, Prunes and apricots grow here in perfection.

The fuel is largely wood brought to customers by wood choppers in small quantities, burro-drawn. Out (Continued on page four)

Ballow & Price Safe is Robbed

Approximately $200 worth of checks were taken from the safe of the Ballow and Price office some time Sunday night by yeggs who wrecked the combination to open the safe.

The robbery was discovered by John Ballow when he opened the office Monday morning. A quantity of heavy cord which had been hanging on the wall at the rear of the office was wrapped around the combination knob and a heavy sledge hammer was used to break the knob off the door.

Entrance to the office was gained through a window. No clues to the robbers have yet been found according to officers who have been working on the case.

One woman living in the vicinity of the office, who does not wish her name mentioned, reported that the night before the robbery she saw two men, one a tall one and one a short one, both wearing caps, in the vicinity of the office, and saw them climbing over a fence at the rear of the office yard.

Elida Gets Ready for Picnic-Rodeo

The folks at Elida and in fact, the entire southern end of the county are getting ready for the big Elida picnic, barbecue and rodeo to be held there next Thursday and Friday.

Several thousand people are expected during the two days of the picnic and a great amusement program is being arranged. There will be something doing every minute of the two days and everyone who attends will be well paid for the trip.

Prominent speakers are on the program; there is to be a big rodeo each day and ball games for those who are lovers of that sport. A Platform dance, will help, while away the evening and night hours and the barbecue will be the big feature event of the picnic.

DISTRICT JUDGES MAY RESIGN SAYS REPORT

Two district judges may resign shortly, according to unconfirmed reports heard here—Judge R. R. Ryan of the Sixth judicial district embracing Grant, Hidalgo and Luna counties, and Judge Carl A. Hatch of the Ninth district including the counties of Roosevelt, De Baca, Curry and Quay.

Judge Edwin Mechem of the Third district has already resigned, effective some time this fall, with the intention not going into private practice at Las Cruces—New Mexican.

J. B. PRIDDY VISITS IN EASTERN MARKETS

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Priddy, accompanied by their two daughters left last Sunday for the eastern markets where they will buy the fall and winter merchandise for the Priddy and Foshee store here. They expect to be gone about two weeks, Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago and other points will be visited.

Prof. Frank Stocking one of Portales High popular teachers of 1925 was a guest in the C. V. Harris home the first of the week.

Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Means are looking forward with pleasure to a visit from the Dr.'s old school friend, Loyd Anderson and mother of Joplin, Mo. They will arrive about the 22nd, coming via Amarillo bringing the Dr.'s parents. Later the party including the Dr. and family plan a trip to the Carlsbad Cave.

L. T. FULTON DELIVERS TOMATOES TO FACTORY

The first load of tomatoes to be delivered to the new Portales Canning company was delivered at the factory here Wednesday morning of this week by L. T. Fulton. The tomatoes were for at the contract price.

Growers have contracted to deliver a minimum of 500,000 pounds of tomatoes to the factory this year. The factory is now all ready for operation and will start canning sometime the next week when it is expected that the deliveries will start with a rush.

BROOMCORN GROWERS TO HOLD BIG PICNIC

OTHER SPEAKERS ON PROGRAM AND BAND MUSIC AT THE H-RANCH

Governor Hannett of New Mexico, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at a picnic to be held by the Portales Valley Broomcorn growers association and their friends at the H-Bar ranch Saturday of this week, according to announcement of officers of the association.

Other speakers who will address the assembly will be the president of the state agricultural college and the head of the cotton growers association from Roswell, The Portales band will be on hand to furnish the music for the occasion.

The broomcorn growers association will furnish the bread and meat for the barbecue and there will be a big free dinner on the grounds at noon.

"We are going to make this the greatest occasion ever pulled off in Portales," said M. B. Jones, secretary of the Broomcorn growers association, "and we want everyone, whether member of the association or not to come and take part in the festivities."

THE CAPTAIN COAL COUNTRY

At one time Captain was the chief coal mining center of New Mexico. Since the war the mines at Gallup and Dawson have produced most of the coal used in the state. The mines at Captain have been abandoned for those on main line railroads. Large quantities of coal has been discovered near Captain that were known when the Phelps Dodge mines were worked. Plans are now under way to open mines on the newly discovered areas. Nearly all of the territory west and north and northeast of the Captain mountains is underlain with coal. The chief trouble with development being lack of transportation. Captain has a branch line which is capable of handling a large tonnage if the new mines are opened.

Coal is not the only mineral available. Sam Wells, an old prospector has located several other minerals in large quantities. At one place Mr. Wells says there are a thousand tons of lead, zinc and silver ore in sight. This ore will assay $54 per ton. Asbestos has also been found in large quantities. No one has ever attempted to mine asbestos here but no doubt that will be developed in the future. North of the Captain mountains are large deposits of iron ore. A company with large capital has been formed to develop the iron and coal which are found close together.

Sam Wells has spent 45 years prospecting and probably knows the business better than any other man in the state. He is very optimistic about the future developments of these resources.

HE MADE FIRST LOAN ON PORTALES BUILDING

J. W. Veeder, of Las Vegas, manager of the Aetna Building and Loan association, was in the city this week looking things over in company with Coo Howard, local agent for the Aetna.

Through Mr. Howard, Mr. Veeder made the first building loan in the city of Portales. This was done nearly twenty years ago and the building was the one which is now occupied by the Cosy Theatre.

PARTS OF COUNTY GET A GOOD RAIN WEDNESDAY

While the threatened rainfall passed Portales and vicinity by, several sections of the county received good, soaking showers and crops are looking much better and in most instances are now safely past the danger line.

At Elida a heavy rainfall is reported and at Floyd the fall was general over the community but did not extend very far east. Dora reports no rain but says it looked like a heavy fall to the south of that place.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN GROWING BROOMS?

Broomcorn, from the cultivation of the ground for planting the seed, to the finished broom found in every home, is treated in a new circular by George R. Quesenberry and Ralph R. Will, of the New Mexico A. & M. College.

What sort of seed should be planted to make the best broom?
Why does one broom sweep cleaner than another? What process does your broom go thru before it comes to you? The circular, written primarily for use in broomcorn clubs in New Mexico, discusses need bed preparation and methods of seedling, cultivation, classes of broomcorn used in broom making, grades of broomcorn, harvesting and marketing, baling and curing.
An unusual feature of this circular given in the words of two Quay county club boys who demonstrated broomcorn growing at the state club contest, and again at the International Livestock Hay and Grain Show at Chicago. These boys in their demonstration tore up a broom and explained each detail of its making. The subject of the demonstration is "Good broomcorn the best cash crop for Eastern New Mexico."

If you are interested in growing brooms, write for Circular No. 91 to the Extension Service, State College, New Mexico. These circulars are for free distribution.

HOME TOWN OPPORTUNITIES

The distant city with its towering buildings and promises of gay life is often an irresistible lure in the eyes of youth, seeking opportunity and excitement. True, the big city has its charm and magnificence, but these are not to be found readily by the young man or woman who goes there in search of a job.

Better opportunities are to be found here in Portales where there is a greater and increasing demand for those who have vision and ability. The big city is full of fortune hunters, yet only a limited number can win out in the great struggle. Those who fail often lose heavily.
The best advice that can be given the young people is to stick to the home town and reap the rewards of faithful service to it. They should remember that success is not a matter of geography. To be successful in Portales is to be accepted as a success everywhere.

A BRIEF REPORT OF THE POTATO MARKET

A brief report showing the trend of the potato market is given by A. L. Walker of the New Mexico
A. & M. College.

Available sources of information indicate that the early Irish potato acreage for 1926 is 16,000 acres in excess of the 1925 acreage, Virginia, Louisiana and N. and S. Carolina being the heavy producers. The forecast in production indicates that there will be twenty-four million bushels of early potatoes available for market, there being three million bushels more in sight than was true last year at this time. What reflection this condition has on the present and future market is hard to determine, since the yields of late potatoes of Minnesota, Michigan, and Wisconsin are entirely speculative and subject to future weather conditions.

The heavy yields and the Irish market movement is apparently affecting the price trend, there being a general reduction from $2.44 per bushel in May to $1.00 daily, the bulk from Virginia and North Carolina. These spuds have found sale in the larger eastern markets coming as far west as Chicago, thereby leaving the Kansas City, Omaha and Texas city markets to western produced potatoes, of which Oklahoma has been the largest shipper, marketing in the neighborhood of 100 cars daily.
Arkansas, California, Colorado, and Kansas are also shipping considerable tonnage to these markets.

The intermediate potato crop is late, the yields moderate, but the quality is good, taking the country in general. With a continued dry season, the late summer movement is apt to be light, with prices generally in favor of those who buy a part of the crop in the early part of the season.

The most recent market reports available at State College indicate a steady market condition on the Omaha, Dallas and Fort Worth markets, with a stronger trend being shown in the Kansas City potato market than was true last week. Oklahoma and Texas grade
No. 1 potatoes were quoted at $3.75 per cwt. at Kansas City, while the quotations reported for sacked U. S. No. 1 was $4.00 and $4.25 per cwt. At Dallas and Fort Worth, Bliss Triumphs and California Long Whites both grading U. S. No. 1, were quoted at $2.50 to $3.00 per cwt, with some favoritism being shown the California spuds. The El Paso wholesale market quotes California Burbanks at $3.65 and California Whites at $3.75 per cwt. The Denver potato market was weak, western slope produced potatoes being quoted at $2.25 and $2.50 per cwt.

The Los Angeles market is being supplied almost wholly by the Stockton, California, district sacked Whites grading U. S. No. 1, being quoted at $2.25 and $2.35 per cwt.

Indications point to less than a normal potato crop in both Colorado and Missouri this year, while the estimated production for the country as a whole indicates an increase, the crop appearing especially favorable in the far eastern and far western states.

PEN POINTERS

"Vegetarians," says a prominent dietician, who evidently never was a red tie in front of a bull, "never lose their tempers."

A motorist who ran over a girl has married her. If they all had to do that there would be a lot less reckless driving.

Friday, so it is said, is an unlucky day for marriages. Peggy Archibald-Hopkins-Joyce-Morrer, for instance, makes it a rule never to marry on Friday.

The only way movie directors can make Indians look savage enough to film is to tell them how much of their salary will be income tax.

The only thing that's more aggravating than a bad husband is a perfectly good one.

Good Things to Eat

FOR a change from the every-day muffin here is a good one to try:
Rice Muffins.—To two well-beaten eggs add one cupful of milk, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, three cupfuls of flour sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder; add one cupful of boiled rice and five tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Stir lightly and bake in muffin pans.

Asparagus Cream Salad.—Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water, add one cupful of boiling water and cool. Rub one can of asparagus through a very coarse sieve, or cut into small pieces. When the gelatin has dissolved and cooled add the asparagus, one cupful of pecans, and one cupful of grated cheese and a few dashes of cayenne. Whip one cupful of heavy cream until thick and fold into the mixture. Let it harden in molds.
Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Stuffed Egg Salad.—Cut six hard-cooked eggs into halves lengthwise and remove the yolks. Cream four tablespoonfuls of butter and mix with the egg yolks; add six skinned and boned sardines to the egg yolks and stuff the whites with the mixture. Serve on head lettuce with a mayonnaise dressing.

Pimento Butter Sandwiches.—Cut white bread into one-fourth inch slices. Spread generously with pimento butter; spread lettuce leaves with mayonnaise and place between each pair of slices. Press edges lightly and cut into triangles.
To prepare the pimento butter, cream one-half cupful of butter, drain the liquor from one can of pimentos, rinse with cold water and dry. Rub the peppers through a sieve and gradually work the pulp into the butter; season with salt.
If the pimentos are small, use four.

PUBLISHER TO BE PROSECUTED

The federal trade commission has determined to place publishers of shady stock or business deals on an equal basis of liability with the advertisers of false goods. The commission holds that publishers are engaged in interstate commerce, and that false or misleading advertisements constitutes unfair competition. Thousands of these advertisements which have been published over and over in the columns of popular and respected periodicals have been collected. Most of them are so misleading that any intelligent editor would recognize them as fakes, and should be held responsible for willful negligence or deliberate participation in the criminal effort to deceive the public.

Those magazines and newspapers which accept misleading and unfair advertisements as well as fraudulent publicity become the most necessary part of the adver-tiser's complete selling service which defrauds the public of hundreds of millions annually. These cases will be brought within the next few weeks and it is confidently hoped to close this avenue of exploitation. — Albuquerque

Veteran Warriors and Plainsmen Plan to Pass the Pipe of Peace

REDSKIN and white, who battled each other on the plains of the west sixty years ago, may meet next year for the first—and perhaps the final—reunion ever arranged. Only a few of the buckskin-clad plainsmen of Custer and Phil Kearney days are left; but a handful of the painted warriors who rode, whooping, against their ranks, still are alive.

This year the frontiersmen and scouts are meeting in Seattle. Over in Spokane the Indians hold their national convention. Now plans are being made to bring the two conventions together, so that the ancient enemies may bury the hatchet and smoke a final pipe of peace together before they travel to the happy hunting grounds beyond the blue.

Famous Indian fighters still are scattered thru the west, white haired, but straight as saplings and with eyes as keen as those that roved the plains "when the pesky Sioux licked hell outa Uncle Sam," as Maj. J. B. Ostrander, prairie scout with Jim Bridger, says.

"You talk about persistence," says the major, a picturesque figure in beaded buckskins, hatted and gunt, "I know; I kept track. And finally we gave up. They were too much for us."

With the major in Fort Kearney was Jim Bridger, who discovered Yellowstone park and, for describing Plainsmen and Indians who fought each other over western plains more than half a century ago are planning a last reunion out west for next year, to swap stories like that Maj. J. B. Ostrander, plains scout with Kearney and Bridger, is telling a tourist.

It was dubbed the biggest fictionist in the west. The major coveted an Indian pipe and beaded tobacco pouch belonging to Bridger.

He Got Them

"If you get back from your next scouting trip I'll give 'em to you," promised Bridger.

When the major came back, with three Sioux war-bonnets dangling at his belt, Bridger was as good as his word. Ostrander still has the relics. Those were the days of "Bang! Bang! Two Redskins lit the dirt!" And they'll all come back next year, when glossy-black haired veterans of the tribes that "licked hell outa Uncle Sam" gather to swap memories with the white-haired frontiersmen who finally licked them.

Prof. Harry K. Shields of Glendora, California who is now in New York for the recording of his voice in conjunction with his singing for the making of sacred phonograph records, will delight the people of Roosevelt County with his rich tenor voice. Evangelist L. Farris Powell will bring the "Old Gospel Message" in a new and interesting and soul saving way. This meeting is for every Saint and Sinner within its reach. A good cool seat, song book, welcome, Gospel solo, and Gospel sermon for everyone.

Misses Cleetus Grant and June Priewe visited at the Grant home at Arch Saturday, and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Skipper arrived recently from Miami, Arizona for a visit with Mrs. Skipper's sister, Mrs. W. B. McCombs.

Roy and Eleanor Bancom, nephew and niece of Mrs. John Kimmons are here from El Reno, Oklahoma visiting the Kimmons family.

Mrs. Earl Denton and little daughter returned home recently from Portales.

R. R. Reppert, Entomologist. In our press letter of May 29th, we advised that the cotton leafworm had already appeared in Texas. Its progress since has been very slow, but a heavy infestation occurred during the month of June, with scattered lighter infestations occurring further north at the present time.

It is our belief that damage from this pest will become more or less general over the more eastern part of Texas during July, extending toward the Panhandle country the latter part of the month or sometime in August. Especially is this to be feared if the showers at present being experienced in Texas, continue.

The cotton flea has delayed the fruiting of cotton. This damage is expected soon to cease, but a condition has been created that makes it unusually desirable to prevent the ravages of the leafworm for the remainder of the season. Consequently farmers should keep a close watch for the appearance of this latter pest and be fully prepared to control it on its first appearance.

Calcium arsenate is the best poison to use considering its cheapness and effectiveness. This may be dusted on by the pole and bag method, but preferably by means of some type of dusting machine. Best results are obtained if dusting is done while the dew is on the plants so the poison may adhere; but usually enough adheres to the plants, even when applied during the heat of the day, or in the dry climate, to make it highly effective. Use from three to six pounds per acre according to the size of the plant.

The next best poison to use is lead arsenate. Apply in the same amount as is recommended for calcium arsenate.

Paris green may be used but is apt to burn the plant. Hence, it should be diluted with equal parts of all-slaked lime. Many persons use as high as four parts of the lime to one of the Paris green, or substitute a cheap grade of flour for part of the lime. This procedure is all right, but in any case some lime should be used to prevent leaf

SANITATION REDUCES PIG LOSSES

A system of swine sanitation developed by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture in McLean County, Ill., has gradually spread until it is widely used in hog-growing states. The method used greatly reduces losses caused by roundworms, and extension workers in Iowa, Nebraska and other states have been active in acquainting swine growers with it. The Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture says that many hog men, using the system, are now raising as many pigs as formerly with about two-thirds as many brood sows, being equivalent to reducing pig losses one third. The method, though directed principally against roundworms, is so effective in controlling other disease conditions that death losses from any cause are rare and runtiness is seldom observed.

The foregoing results show the practical application of scientific work which at its outset was extremely technical and involved a detailed study of the worm's life history and characteristics. Although control methods are now well established, the bureau is continuing its experiments with other parasites and related disease.

HOME, DAD AND THE BOY

By FRANK H. CHELEY

Real Dads Are Real Sports

BECAUSE these fathers play the old "Game of Life" for all that is in them, but always according to the rules that every boy understands as "being square."

Because They Believe in Team Games as educators in sportsmanship and social living and insist that the bleachers are rarely, if ever, the place for real boys. "Every Boy in the Game," is their slogan.

Because They Are Friendly with their neighbors, rich and poor alike. Invariably boys and dogs in the neighborhood know them and like to "hang around" them.

Because Their Instructions are always of the positive sort—and backed up by personal demonstration, too. They despise "don't," and "nagging" is strictly against their principles.

Because They Are Invariably interested in dogs and chickens and stamps and stars and radio. They believe that a boy without a hobby is likely to be no boy at all.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD REVIVAL

The crowds are increasing and people from out of town and out of State continue to come in to attend the Assembly of God Camp meeting now in progress on Nevada street.

Several have obeyed the divine injunction, as recorded in Acts 1:5 and have received the outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

One attending these services could not but note the joy manifested by the participants.

The singers in the choir seem to put their whole soul into the singing.

Rev. A. C. Bates, the local pastor, who is in charge of the meeting is rejoicing in the increasing interest and is constantly urging all to prayer and deeper consecrations.

The morning devotional exercise is attended with great power of the Divine Presence. Some are moved to weep, others to prayer and praise, occasionally shouts are heard from someone who has received a blessing. It is as though some master musician was striking the strings of a mighty harp. The sounds thereof blending with the notes of the seraphic choir above.

Elder Wm. McCafferty of Ft. Worth, the Bible teacher in charge of the afternoon Bible studies is bringing forth some soul inspiring truths from the word of God. Wednesday evening he closed a series of studies on the book of Romans, emphasizing the doctrine of "Justification by faith without works," saying that this is the keynote to the book of Romans. Mr. McCafferty will take up another line of thought for the remainder of this week.

Rev. Chalmers of Amarillo, who is the Evangelist for the meeting, brought a message Tuesday that was soul searching. He had for his theme, "A Swarm of Bees." His method of presenting the gospel is unique and he speaks in such a way that none can fail to understand him.

Come on friends, let us go for we're here today and tomorrow gone.

SOCIETY

Party at Wollard Home.

Miss Betty Hoover was hostess on Monday evening at the home of her aunt and uncle Dr. and Mrs. N. F. Wollard to a number of her girl friends. The young ladies formed a Dutch line party at the Portales and then enjoyed a slumber party on the Wollard lawn.

The following were the guests: Misses Mozelle Armstrong, Lucile Wurster, Lois Oldham, Clovis Garrett, Iris Ribble and Marjorie Thurston.

Mrs. Mears Entertains With Dinner.

Mrs. T. E. Mears entertained with a three course dinner honoring Miss Elizabeth Hoover of Springfield, Mo. Wednesday evening. The house was beautifully decorated with golden glow. After the dinner which consisted of:

Cantaloupe
Roast Mashed Potatoes

Ice Tea
Stuffed Tomatoes

Shower For Miss Gladys Thurston.

The beautiful lawn of the Carr home was the scene of a merry party on Wednesday afternoon from 5 to 6 when Mrs. J. M. Bradley and Mrs. Carr entertained with a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Gladys Thurston, who becomes the bride of Bryan Hall Tuesday evening of next week.

The gifts were displayed on a lovely table under an arch, which was hidden by a curtain of maize and blue.

At the appointed time Miss Elizabeth Greaves asked Miss Thurston to take a little drive and brought her to the Carr home. Chimes begun to sound, upon her arrival and she was led to the altar. Miss Frances Estelle Bryant and Miss Albertine Doughton drew the curtains displaying the gifts and a kewpie who held a heart, saying "Loves Secrets" which when removed displayed the announcement of the wedding.

Gladys is the eldest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. L. L. Thurston and is a modest and beautiful girl. She received her A. B. degree from Texas Woman's College in Fort Worth in June. She was voted the best all round girl last year and the past year was president of the Student Body, a position which she filled to the satisfaction of the faculty and with much credit to herself.

Bryan Hall was president of the Student Body at S. M. U. last year and it was said he was the best president they had ever had. He received his A. B. from S. M. U. a year ago and the past year did work on his B. D. degree.

After a honey moon trip these young people will go to Smithville, Oklahoma where they have positions as teachers in the Methodist school for Indians at that place.

CHAPTER VII—O'Donnell, Jacobite in the Spanish service, with his daughter, are on the treasure ship. He has given Murray particulars of her sailing. Robert and Peter agree to remain with Flint.

CHAPTER VIII—Reaching Skeleton island, in the West Indies, Flint's men, at Murray's suggestion, begin the erection of a fort and stockade. The Royal James is made ready for the encounter with the treasure ship. Robert and Peter go aboard the Walrus.

CHAPTER IX

Peter Plays at Bowls With Destiny. DARBY MCGRAW'S red head shone in the lantern light.

"Whist, but it's Master Bob again. Now, ain't this the mighty fortune to have ye with us! He ye left the old devil yon for good?"

He nodded his torch of hair at the vague hull of the James. Flint exploded with raucous laughter.

"The old devil yon," he repeated. "Me, but it takes Darby to put the right word to a man. 'Tis what he is, blast him for the—"

Darby proffered him a huge silver beaker of rum.

"I fetched this from the cabin after ye, captain," said the Irish boy in his wheedling brogue. "Troth, say I to myself, if the captain must talk with Murray he'll ha' a bad taste in the mouth o' his to be washed out, and I'd best ha' a bit o' sugar-juice handy for his needin'."

Flint seized the rum, threw back his head and drained the fiery stuff as if it had been wine.

"You said right, my lad," he answered sourly. "And I'm thinking I'll need need all the luck that darby o' yours can bring me. Where's Billy Bones?"

"Drunk under the cabin table," returned Darby promptly.

"Gut him for the souse he is! And Long John?"

"Sure, captain dear, 'twas yourself sent him ashore to keep the lads up to the fort from carvin' themselves."

"So I did. Well, I'll see to the prisoners myself then."

"Prisoners!" protested Darby, wide-eyed. "Och, captain, ye won't be hard on Master Bob! He's as kindly a young gentleman as ever I see—and Peter there is a grand fightin' feller. Ye should hear tales they tell o' his murderin' and slayin' with the red Indians."

"I'll be as hard as they make me be," returned Flint. "But for tonight I must have them safe."

Peter, at my elbow, spoke for the first time.

"Ja, Ja. We go. I have a wish to sleep."

"Sleep, is it?" jeered Flint. "That's a shame, my hearty! Come along o' me."

He led us aft, the others following. Darby in the rear almost in tears. At the end of a dark passage Flint unhooked a lantern from a wall and one of his men heaved up a trapdoor. Below was a pool of shadows that scuttled and swayed as if to escape the feeble light. There was an odor, also, none too pleasant.

I drew back.

"Certes, you could lodge us securely otherwise than this," I protested.

"No, no," answered Flint. "There's but a door aboard that a lock would hold Darby, let alone you two. I'm sorry for ye, lad, if it's no fault o' yours that ye're here; but for tonight at least you must lie in the lazaret. Here, ye shall ha' the lantern to keep the rats off, and in the morning we'll manage different."

Peter pushed past me, and took the lantern from his hand.

"We go, Ja," he squeaked. "Come, Bob."

I followed him without another word, already wondering at his extraordinary docility. A hasty clacked home in a bolt, and footsteps thudded away. I sat on the bottommost step of the ladder and peered helplessly around me as Peter, swinging the lantern as high as the low deckroom allowed, prowled around the limited area of our prison.

A black rat as large as a cat rushed across my feet. Squeaks and rustlings sounded in the corners.

Peter returned to the ladder-foot, deposited the lantern on the floor and plumped himself beside it.

"What you 'ink, Bob?" he said blandly. "Do we stay or get out?"

"I frowned at him.

"'Tis no joke," I snapped. "I had reasons for—"

"Ja," he agreed. "Der little gal." "How did you know?" I exclaimed.

"I know," he replied with his simpering imitation of a laugh. "You 'ink it is not goodt dot she be taken aboard der James. You want to be there and be sure that she is safe."

"'Tis true as gospel, Peter," I groaned. "I hoped to the last this ridiculous plan of Murray's would fall through in some manner, but the man has a damnable determination."

"Ja," agreed Peter. "I 'ink he takes der treasure ship, Bob. Dot's easy."

"Easy? I see not how!"

"Ja, it is easy to take her. But after comes his troubles. Much troubles."

mountable obstacle. He heaved and shoved and twisted. 'Twas no manner of use.

Peter backed out of his predicament to an accompaniment of sneaking grunts, and I followed him, too bitterly disappointed for words. Escape had seemed so easy—and now we were condemned to two months aboard the Walrus, very likely to exceedingly uncomfortable deaths, for I fancied that Flint was the sort of man to lose his queer mixture of fear and respect for my great-uncle as soon as they were out of touch.

"Hold der light here, Bob," said Peter, squatting on the litter on the deck, and he proceeded to extract a splinter from his foot.

"Ja, dot's goodt," he went on standing up. "Well, we don't get out dot way."

He felt his way toward the ladder to the cabin-hatch.

"Always there is another way, Bob. If one way is not goodt, der other maybe is better. Ja! You see."

He climbed the ladder silently in his bare feet until his great shoulders were directly beneath the square of the hatch, and I heard a faint grinding and straining of metal, the cracking of tortured wood.

"Ja," he panted, desisting. "We do dot. Now you be ready, Bob. Jump oop quick. Maybe we got to kill some fellers, and if we do we don't let them holler."

I could feel his legs quivering above me; the ladder itself vibrated under us. There was a whine, a sudden pop—and the hatch flew up in the air. Peter caught it on the flats of his hands before it could settle again, and lifted it back. He was out in a flash, and I was hard on his heels.

We crouched on the main-cabin floor, staring about us for a sign of the pirates. The lights had all burned out, and it was several minutes before our eyes became adjusted to the starshine that sifted through the stern windows.

At the exit to the deck we tarried to reconnoiter our situation, and 'twas lucky we did so. Eight bells rang out from the Royal James, and a voice most astonishingly close muttered a curse.

"Ye might think they 'ad a blasted admiral aboard," answered a second voice.

A whistle shriiled, and the great voice of Saunders reached us quite distinctly ordering the topmen aloft.

"There they go, Jumny," returned the second man. "We'll be free o' the swabs in another glass."

In a letter to Mrs. Rhoda Johnson, Prof. Pryor R. Timmons says, "In my tour of the western states, I do not remember seeing sweet potatoes growing after I left the Portales Valley. My trip took me from Portales to Wyoming and through California. I saw all kinds of irrigation projects, but according to my judgment nothing to equal the Portales Valley system."

Mr. and Mrs. Pies Tharp of Lamesa, Texas and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Tharp and son, of Bojone, Texas were visitors the first of the week with the families of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. SEEKS NEW MEXICO'S NEXT GREAT BOOM

In the remote sections grain is threshed in the primitive fashion of Palestine, except that the horse and the goat take the place of the unmuzzled ox that treadeth out the corn.

The kindly climate has had much to do with the preservation of the prehistoric cliff-dwellings, the pictured rocks, the pre-Columbian foundations buried beneath desert sand.

New Mexico was made a territory of the United States in 1851, and is now raised to statehood.

The old Santa Fe Trail's end in Santa Fe, is marked by a boulder bearing a tablet set there by the Daughters of The American Revolution in 1910. It bears the dates 1822-1879.

The automobile has succeeded the covered wagon and the Circle Drive replaces the Trail.

Tourists across the continent after May 1 are privileged to stop for three days in "oldest America" visiting ancient Indian pueblos and prehistoric cliff-dwellings. Detraining from railroad coaches "de luxe" such travelers find spacious closed automobiles of latest design awaiting their transportation over 300 miles of historic country in the Indo-Spanish Southwest.

Who does not desire to visit these wonders, so strange to New England ears and eyes?

COUNTY BOARD MEETS

The County Board of Education met on Monday morning. Z. T. Campbell of Elida sent in his resignation as a member, and recommended the appointment of Oliver Lambirth of Elida. The board elected Mr. Lambirth.

The other members are, L. A. Little, J. H. Breshers and E. G. Sparks.

J. A. Luster of Prague, Oklahoma was in town Saturday, having visited old friends in the Judson community. The editor of the News and Mr. Luster were neighbors in the early days of the homesteaders in the south part of the county.

Mr. Luster homesteaded just over the line in Roosevelt county and the editor just over in Chaves county. Those where great days when practically all the water was hauled from the McBride ranch to the south and Judson to the north. Many settlers hauling water from five to eight miles.

There is a Sunday school started at Causey it is your Sunday school and every bodies. Will you come and join in and help make the school worth while.

There will be a road working near Causey. All that want to work this road, and get their road tax receipt you may do so. We have an overseer—that will give you, your receipt. Let's talk it up and keep our roads in better shape around Causey.

There is some making a big racket in some places about the good roads, but it is all jaw bone. If we want better roads, better schools, better churches, we must get in the game and put a little labor and a little cash behind these things and not quite so much hot air. If our country is not worth better roads, better schools, and cleaner churches it is not worth living. So let us get in line and pull together, as we have never pulled, fast Tuesday two of the best boosters that Roosevelt county has passed through Causey, shaking hands with old friends and telling us we had fine crops and a fine country and kissed about a dozen babies and passed on to Portales. These gentlemen and boosters were, W. B. Oldham and P. E. Jordan, do you know them. We hope they will call again and give the ladies another treat.

J. W. Stone has built a new garage. Jess Campbell passed through Causey in his Spaulding roadster. There is a number of tourist passing through Causey now looking at the best land on earth for the price.

Mr. Alexander from Oklahoma, was in Causey last Tuesday looking after his land holdings.

Jim Duty and family will leave Thursday for different points in Eastern, Oklahoma.

The big picnic at Cross Roads last Friday was quite a success, according to reports brought back to Portales. The program was one of the best and while the attendance was not what was wished for, those who did attend enjoyed the different events. The rodeo was one of the best ever seen in this part of the country. The night's amusement was somewhat enlivened by a short, fierce fight between three or four men and one of the participants was slashed with a knife but it is understood that the injuries were not serious.

Working Off Energy

BANCROFT and I were walking to church on Sunday morning. It was the first of November, the evening before had been Halloween, and I was interested to see how little mischief had been wrought the night before by the school children of the neighborhood. It was not so when I was young. There had been a football game the day before, also—one of the most remarkable games in the history of our college—and we were talking about it.

Bancroft is a stoop-shouldered bloodless educator whom I had known in college, and who believes that intercollegiate athletics is the educational menace of the present day. He looks back with approbation to the customs and the practices which were extant when we were in college.

"We're going crazy over football," he asserted. "Just think! Sixty-two thousand people at the game yesterday. What an awful waste of time and money and strength. I presume there was more than a hundred thousand dollars in gate receipts."

"I suppose so," I assented. "There wasn't anything like that when we were in college. The college didn't get that much from the state during all the four years that we were undergraduates."

"I wish we could abolish the whole system. It's wrong."

"And go back to what we had when we were undergraduates?" I inquired.

"I believe it would be better," he replied.

"I did not say anything for a few minutes."

"Last night was Halloween," I said finally. "Do you remember what the fellows did in 1887? That was when they tore up the board walk on the east side of Wright street between University avenue and Green street—six blocks of it—and dragged it to the commons and burned it. You were in that gang, weren't you?"

He nodded a reluctant assent. "The walk was in pretty rotten repair, and the fellows thought that if they destroyed the old walk the city would put down a new one. We've been walking through the mud on that side of the street ever since."

"I'd forgotten about it," he said. "In those good old days we used to roll the university cannon into Silver creek and bring in the farm wagons from the south farms and set them up on the chapel rostrum. One strong-arm group hauled a mule to the roof of University hall, where the janitor found him next morning looking over the edge of the building. Fellows have to find some way to work off their surplus energy. Why not athletics?"

"Maybe it is just as well," he assented. "Maybe."

WASHINGTON LETTER

(Special to Portales Valley News)

Washington, August 11.—Vacation days are depleting the ranks of government executives in Washington. Everybody who can find an excuse leaves Washington during the "dog days" of August, as the National Capital is notorious for its humid climate in the summer-time. Although the executives are away, the minor officials continue to operate the Federal department without any noticeable change. Many of these officials look forward to the vacation of departmental heads as a time when power will come to them even though temporarily. It is more difficult to obtain an interview or conference with a minor executive than with the "big chief." It is usually the outcropping of arrogance which characterizes the petty Government bureaucracy.

A Few Good Sandwiches

FOR an occasion when hearts are an appropriate decoration try:

Heart Sandwiches.—Drain one pint from a can, rinse in cold water, dry between folds of a towel and then mash through a sieve. Mash one cream cheese, add gradually the pulp of the pimento, stirring until well blended; add an equal measure of finely chopped stuffed olives, moisten with mayonnaise. With a heart-shaped cutter cut small hearts from slim slices of bread. Spread half of them with mayonnaise and the other half with the cheese mixture. Put together in pairs, press the edges together, and garnish each sandwich with a tiny heart cut from the drained pimentos—use a small vegetable cutter for this purpose.

Chicken and Ham Sandwiches.—Cream one-third of a cupful of butter, add gradually one-half cupful each of chicken and lean cold boiled ham finely chopped. Season with salt, paprika and cayenne to taste. Spread thin slices of entire wheat or graham bread with mayonnaise and an equal number of slices with the meat mixture; put together in pairs, trim off crusts and cut into triangular pieces. Serve with tea or cocoa.

Brown Bread Sandwiches.—Steam brown bread in one-half pound baking powder can. Cut into slices one-fourth inch thick, spread with butter. Chop one-half cupful of walnut meats, mix with one cupful of apricot cheese and moisten with salad dressing. The cheese should be grated. Use as filling on buttered bread and garnish each sandwich with a perfect half of a nut meat. Serve with coffee.

Swiss Cheese Sandwiches.—Spread thin slices of rye bread with prepared mustard, cover with thin slices of Swiss cheese. Spread on many slices of bread with mayonnaise, cover with very thin slices of southern onion, spread the onion lightly with the mayonnaise, put together in pairs, trim and serve with coffee.

They Say--

HAVEN

Blow, Winds, Blow!
Beat and buffet and storm
Your fury can not reach me;
I am sheltered and warm—
Hid in a safe retreat
Close beneath a sheltering wing,
Safe from the tempest that beat,
Safe from the gale's icy sting.

Bitter winds of hate,
Cruel winds of greed,
Love that came too late,
Anger that would not heed;
Merciless winds of neglect,
Pitiless winds of pride,
Laugh at lives that are wrecked,
Scream at souls that have died.

O, horrible winds that burn!
You power o'er me is past.
I laugh at you in my turn,
I am safe in the covert at last.
So, blow, winds, blow!
I am hidden from harm—
Nestle the wing of my Father's love
Close in the curve of His arm.

"Like parting with an old and dear friend to see some of those old trees go, but they are dead and should be removed," mournfully came from an old time among the court house lawn gang the other day as the ax brought a big fellow down.

"You have the cleanest streets here that I have seen in all my travels. I like to see them that way and they are certainly a big advertisement of the progress and advancement of the citizens of Portales," said a Kansas tourist in the city Wednesday.

"Business has shown a good increase during the past two weeks and the next three or four weeks will show a still greater gain and everyone in the city will have their hands full," reports Jack Meyers, cafe proprietor. "Of course we expect to get our share of the prosperity."

George Wallace, former Elida business man, was in the city the latter part of the week on his way back to Amarillo from Elida. "I have some property in Amarillo and expect to erect a building," George reported. George, who now claims newspapering as a profession, having worked on the Amarillo News as a reporter, was one of the boys who went to Columbus with the Portales national guard company shortly after that burg had been raided by Pancho Villa.

$12,000,000 BAPTIST UNIVERSITY BRANCH FOR HOT SPRINGS

Hot Springs, N. M., July 30.—Hot Springs has been named by Clarke University, Louisville, Ky., as the location for the American Branch of that great Baptist Institution, according to a telegram from Dr. B. T. Kimbrough, president, to Tom H. Hobbs, secretary of the Hot Springs chamber of commerce. This means that a $12,000,000 plant will be built at Hot Springs and that the future of this well known New Mexico health resort is assured. Dr. Kimbrough visited Hot Springs July 17th in company with Dr. Hooker, Memphis, Tenn., and Dr. John McElroy, of El Paso and after a tour to Elephant Butte Lake and the surrounding district stated that he favored Hot Springs for several reasons: First, the wonderful climate which is considered second to none in the United States in its curative influence on tuberculosis and pulmonary trouble; second, the radio-active waters of the famous old springs from which the town derives its name and which is daily becoming more favorably and widely known and more justly celebrated in the cure of rheumatism, stomach and kidney troubles, etc., and third, the assurance of plenty of pure water from the great artificial lake at Elephant Butte Dam just above the town.

The location of this great institution at Hot Springs is a victory not only for Hot Springs but for the state of New Mexico as well.
