Trainer Gwyn Byrd puts this 3-year-old through a maneuver at Gardendale's Diamond Four Quarter Horses facility.

Whole family involved at Diamond Four

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

GARDENDALE — Diamond Four Quarter Horses is a horse training facility that is the pride and joy of Mary Rowland and her 27-year-old daughter, Gwyn Byrd.

The mother and daughter team, along with help from 25-year-old Deema Wheeler, another of Mrs. Rowland's daughters, her husband, Ernie, and Ken Rowland, Mary's husband, make the operation work.

"It's a family operation," says Mrs. Rowland. "Everyone pitches in occasionally."

Mrs. Rowland has been training horses about 40 years. She started breaking and selling horses on a ranch near Monahans when she was 8-years-old. As a teen-ager, she started "running barrels, roping and riding cutting horses" and training for the public about the same time.

Ms. Byrd began riding by herself when she was 3-years-old on a small mare her mother had broken when she was in high school. She started showing horses when she was sbout 14.

"No credentials are needed to be a horse trainer," says Mrs. Rowland. "Anyone who can ride a horse can claim to be a horse trainer."

The proof of the effectiveness of a horse trainer "is results" and their training efforts have produced results.

On their five-acre facility located on Buttercup Avenue, north of Cottonwood Road in Gardendale, Mrs. Rowland and her daughter have quarter horses brought to them from Amarillo, Abilene, Marfa, the El Paso area, Olney near Fort Worth, as well as Midland and Odessa, for futurity and reining training and eventually showing in events sanctioned by the American Quarter Horse Association.

The Gardendale training facility can handle 11 horses at one time, though Mrs. Rowland and her daughter now are working with 14 horses. They're currently working with three members of a Ponderosa Estates family. Mrs. Rowland and her daughter last year helped the mother, Nelda Scott, qualify in western pleasure horse riding to go to the amateur world finals in Oklahoma City.

Woman kills herself after shootings

Dann

WINNETKA, Ill. (AP) — A woman opened fire in an elementary school, killing one child and critically wounding five others Friday. She was found dead when a SWAT team stormed a nearby house where she had wounded a seventh person.

"I've just received information that the suspect has been found and she is dead," Police Chief Herbert Timm said about 7:30 p.m., nearly nine hours after the shooting began at Hubbard Woods Elementary School. "The situation is over."

She shot herself once in the head with a .32-caliber pistol, Timm said. "She indicated (in a telephone call to her parents) that she had shot some people and felt very sorry about that," he said.

The woman, identified as Lori Dann, 30, was carrying three handguns around 10:45 a.m. when she opened fire inside the one-story, red-brick school, killing a child and wounding five others, police said.

"There was blood all over the classroom and desks knocked over" as the children panicked during the 15 minutes the shooting lasted, said Glencoe Patrolman John Cegliesli.

"Kids were lying around in very serious condition," in the school, Timm said. "Kids were hiding under the desk as well as they could."

The assailant then ran to a nearby house and wounded one of its occupants during a struggle. Hostage negotiators arrived moments later and Ms. Dann spoke by telephone to her parents, who were brought to the house in hopes of talking her out.

Asked why police had not attempted to storm the house earlier, Timm replied, "We've had seven people shot already. We're not going in there without taking every precaution."

Timm said he decided to send the SWAT team into the house after repeated efforts by police and Ms. Dann's parents failed to contact her. The team was accompanied by FBI agents with sound detectors probing for movement in the house.

Timm said police had yet to establish a motive for the rampage. Ms. Dann allegedly set a fire earlier Friday, eight blocks away at the home of a couple where she worked as a housekeeper in this affluent North Shore community.

She reportedly was upset, having been told she was losing her job because the family was moving, police said.

Timm said Ms. Dann apparently had planted a number of incendiary devices in North Shore communities. Authorities responding to a fire at Ravinia School about 9 a.m. Friday found one of the devices burning, but extinguished it before it could cause any damage.

Timm said several other incendiary devices were found in Ms. Dann's car in the neighborhood near the house where the standoff took place.

The FBI said it had "an investigative interest" in Ms. Dann and Madison, Wis., police Lt. William Sprague said she had been arrested there March 14 on a charge of retail theft. He gave no further details.

Keith Wilson told the Wisconsin State Journal from his home in Los Angeles that he had roomed across the hall from Ms. Dann when they attended the University of Wisconsin.

Midland man sentenced to 50 years for sexual assault

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Only "genuine torture" could have been worse than the brutal knife-point rape of a Midland widow, a state district judge said Friday before sentencing a 28-year-old Midland man to 50 years in state prison.

Albert McAfee showed no emotion as 142nd State District Judge Pat Baskin pronounced sentence.

Because of the severity of the crime, McAfee will have to serve at least a fourth of the sentence before he is eligible for parole, attorneys for both sides said.

McAfee was convicted by a jury Thursday of aggravated sexual assault and burglary of a habitation for the late night Dec. 15, 1987, attack on a 67-year-old southeast Midland woman in her one-bedroom home.

The sentence was less than the 99 years requested by Assistant District Attorney Robin Sams.

During punishment phase final arguments Friday, Ms. Sams told Baskin that the punishment should fit the crime — and fit the offender.

The victim, who testified at the trial, was "totally helpless...totally at the mercy of the defendant as an intruder," Ms. Sams said.

The facts of the case — which included evidence that the victim contracted gonorrhea from the attack — "could not get much worse," the prosecutor said.

Defense attorney Paul Williams argued Baskin should be lenient because McAfee was so drunk the night of the attack he passed out almost immediately on the victim's couch, where police found him less than an hour later.

The defendant, who ealier did not testify during the guilt-innocence phase of the trial, took the stand and told Williams he began drinking whiskey the morning of the attack. He drank a third of at least five bottles of whiskey and several beers between 10 a.m. and the 10 p.m. hour that woman was assaulted by a masked man. The man had forced his way into her home through the front door, testimony showed.

McAfee said he had been at the Chat & Chew bar, 307 N. Lee St., and was walking to his parents' home on Mineola Street around the time the woman was attacked.

Doctor wants to publicize health centers

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The president of the Texas Tech University Health Science Center said Friday an effort is being launched to better publicize the mission of the three regional academic health science centers.

Dr. Bernard Mittemeyer told those attending a luncheon at the regional health science center that the three centers — in Odessa, El Paso and Amarillo — enjoy a well-deserved reputation for excellence and that this needs to be communicated to those in positions of influence who can help advance the mission.

Terming family medical practice "the backbone of rural health care," Mittemeyer said there are critical shortages in the medical field — doctors, nurses and allied health personnel.

He said communities can help resolve this problem by "sending us your bright young people."

There is a need, he said, to provide young people in West Texas, as well as the rest of the state, opportunities to attend medical school. There is a need to establish scholarships to make these opportunities possible, he said.

It was business as usual Friday for nurses in Midland Memorial Hospital's intensive care unit despite a leaky ceiling. From left, are Rilla McBroom, Linda Anderson, Dorteo Flores and Willy Rowe.

MMH ceiling needs intensive care

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

It was a first-floor ceiling that needed intensive care Friday morning at Midland Memorial Hospital after overflow rains the night before drenched and disintegrated acoustic panels over a nurses' station.

Hospital engineering staffers hung a 12-feet-by-five-feet formica panel under the drippy east-end ceiling that diverted water runoff into a tall metal trash can poised strategically on the floor.

But Thursday night — prior to the makeshift rainwater diversion nurses likened to a Water Wonderland amusement slide — attendants held umbrellas over their heads as they manned the monitors at the post critical care unit.

Rick Yeates, assistant director of MMH engineering, said the leak began at 11:30 p.m. and lasted until early Friday morning.

Rainwater pipes on the roof of the hospital overflowed and leaked into the ceiling area over the post critical care unit, Yeates said.

Nurses Friday afternoon had set up a collection cup on the station's counter charging — in jest — 25 cents for a look at the formica panel.

The nurses were quick to add that the leak hadn't disrupted patient care on the floor and that no leaks occurred in patients' rooms.

"But I think sitting here with an umbrella over your head disrupts you," nurse Linda Anderson said.

Southwestern Bell employee Minority Advocate of Year

Gifford

"I find these people very enthusiastic and it's easy to help people who help themselves," said Darlene Gifford of her friends in such organizations as the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, League of United Latin American Citizens and the Odessa Black Chamber of Commerce.

Ms. Gifford, area manager of public relations for Southwestern Bell in Midland since 1984, was named Minority Advocate of the Year for U.S. Small Business Administration Region VI, an area that encompasses 70 counties in three states.

She received the award Friday at a luncheon hosted by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, the organization which nominated her.

Johnnie Lou Avery, who nominated Ms. Gifford, said that Ms. Gifford exemplifies a minority advocate.

"She's given as much as she could through her company, and she's met on her own with various groups and given them the benefit of her expertise and knowledge."

Ms. Avery cited Ms. Gifford's regional efforts in nominating her for the award. "The Big Spring Chamber may have nominated her, but we consider it to cover the entire Permian Basin."

She added that the award reflected well on Southwestern Bell because the company gives Ms. Gifford "support and leeway" in what she can do for the minority organizations.

Ms. Avery cited Ms. Gifford's activities such as helping form the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce. Southwestern Bell was that chamber's first corporate member.

Ms. Gifford also helped organize the MHCC Ambassadors, sponsored the first Chamber mixer and quarterly TAMACC meeting, and hosted a reception for Chihuahua, Mexico's industrial committee. In addition, she donated office furniture, equipment and a vehicle for MHCC use.

Civil war forces Sudanese to flee homes

By DALIA BALIGH

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Mary Deng once lived with her husband and five children in the relative comfort of a village in southern Sudan. Today she lives in her nation's capital in a shack without water or sanitation, a refugee in her own country.

A 5-year-old civil war in southern Sudan chased the family away from their home, along with an estimated 820,000 other people, forced from their homes into lives of poverty, hunger and social ostracism.

Mrs. Deng's story is similar to those of many of the others.

"The army came into our village and took our cattle and killed many people," she said.

"My husband fled before me to get away from recruiters for both the army and the rebels. I joined him with our five children later."

The Dengs are among the estimated 400,000 to 600,000 southerners who have crowded into eight camps around Khartoum.

They run in all directions, mainly toward Khartoum and Sudan's other cities, to become wards of an impoverished state.

More than a quarter million have fled even into neighboring, starving, war-torn Ethiopia. Several thousand of those died because they arrived after long treks too weak to be saved.

The refugees blame their plight on both sides in the war, rebels and soldiers, and the tribal and ethnic conflicts that are at the root of the fighting.

About 6 million people remain in the south, where the population is mainly Christian and animist of African extraction. Sixteen million Arab-descended Moslems live in the dominant north.

Because of the great religious and ethnic divisions between north and south, Sudan has been torn by hostilities in the south for most of the 32 years since it asserted its independence from Britain and Egypt on Jan. 1, 1956.

But for hundreds of years before that, southern and northern tribes have fought over pastureland and water, northerners traditionally dominating as they do now.

The current round of warfare began in the spring of 1983.

The rebel leader, John Garang, is fighting for a greater share for the south of development money and of Sudan's potential wealth from petroleum and mineral reserves, mostly in the south.

Southern tribes like Garang's Dinka form the backbone of his Sudan People's Liberation Army.

The Sudanese army recruited Arab tribes and gave them modern weapons.

"In 1985, the government started a policy of arming Arab tribes to help in fighting the SPLA," said Sulaiman Baldo, a southerner who is a professor at the University of Khartoum. He told an interviewer the new automatic weapons enable Arab tribes to dominate in intertribal clashes.

Baldo recently co-authored a book on an alleged massacre a year ago by an Arab tribe. He wrote that more than 1,000 Dinkas were burned to death as police and soldiers watched without intervening.

The government denies the atrocity charges, maintaining that the victims died in crossfires. It also denies that it shirks its duty to displaced southerners.

"We give them help, but not just to anyone so that they don't become encouraged and come to stay and be fed for free and not work," said el-Hag el-Tayeb, Sudan's acting commissioner for relief and rehabilitation.

The southerners in the Khartoum camps, he added, are "people who used to be producers and are now just consumers. They affect the city's already taxed infrastructure."

In the civil war itself, the SPLA now controls most of the southern countryside, with government troops in control of a handful of large towns, diplomatic sources said.

The fighting, nevertheless, has forced southerners to flee their cultivated land and their cattle.

Non-combatant southerners who have remained in the combat area also are in a bad way, said a diplomatic source.

Baylor's Reynolds says faculty suit 'hypothetical'

Herbert Reynolds

STATE

"I absolutely do not see Baylor falling into the hands of fundamentalists. If I thought this was going to occur, my wife and I would not continue to make commitments into eight (endowment) funds at Baylor."
— Herbert Reynolds

DALLAS (AP) — Baylor University's president on Friday soft-pedaled earlier comments that he would join tenured faculty in a class-action suit if fundamentalists gained control of the Baptist-run school in Waco.

Herbert Reynolds said after a university trustees meeting in Dallas that a plan for faculty members to sue the school is just "hypothetical" and that he has not discussed it with attorneys or faculty as a whole.

Baptist conservatives were upset earlier this week when Reynolds said he would join 329 tenured faculty members "in a class-action suit based upon changed criteria and terms of employment" if fundamentalists were to take more control of the school.

The courts would likely rule in favor of the faculty, which would turn the institution back over to the grass-roots Texas Baptists who founded the school in 1845, he told the school's alumni magazine.

After a meeting of the trustees at the Baylor University Medical Center's Roberts Hospital Friday, Reynolds told reporters no lawsuit is pending.

"I have not sat down with the faculty about this," Reynolds said, adding he spoke of legal action to a reporter for the school's alumni magazine, the Baylor Line, only as a "hypothetical."

"I absolutely do not see Baylor falling into the hands of fundamentalists" soon, Reynolds said. "If I thought this was going to occur, my wife and I would not continue to make commitments into eight (endowment) funds at Baylor."

He said the control issue did not come up at Friday's board meeting, but added it might at the Southern Baptist Convention's national meeting in San Antonio next month.

"It was an extremely harmonious meeting," said board vice chairman Bob Kiesling of New Braunfels. "The Dallas meeting (in May) is usually devoted to the medical center. Nothing was brought up" about the controversy.

"The trustees support Dr. Reynolds," Kiesling said. "To this day, I have not seen any lack or declining of that support."

But a longtime Baylor trustee, the Rev. Jimmy Draper of the First Baptist Church of Euless, earlier called Reynold's comments in the Baylor Line "presumptuous and arrogant."

Reynolds disputed that Friday, saying, "I can't think of anything more presumptuous and arrogant as a group of bishops who are trying to take over the Southern Baptist Convention.

"I do not believe this group of 30 to 40 individuals, led by a select half-dozen are representative of our people at the grass-roots level."

Reynolds said control of Baylor is a controversy that has existed for eight years and that he made statements in 1980 concerning the university's role as an autonomous institution.

"If a majority of the board were of a political and ideological mind and began to introduce policies that would take Baylor down a different path than those who teach here, if they began to go down that road, we would have to say that this is not the same governing board and that the terms and conditions of our employment have changed," he said.

A decade-old struggle for control of the Southern Baptist Convention, the nation's largest Protestant denomination, has been waged by moderates and fundamentalists.

Fundamentalists, led by the Rev. Paige Patterson, president of Criswell College in Dallas, and Paul Pressler, a state appeals court judge in Houston, have elected the denomination's president for the past nine years.

Both Baylor and the Dallas-based Baylor University Medical Center are governed by trustees appointed by the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Official calls for marching felons to TDC

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Tarrant County commissioner says marching 441 felons to the Texas Department of Corrections would save the county prison space and transportation costs.

"We're not talking about running out of bed space," said county commissioner Bob Hampton. "We're talking about running out of floor space.

"I am deadly serious. I'm not calling for the Bataan death march or anything like that, but these people are the responsibility of the state and we need to get that message across."

Overcrowding at state prisons has prompted TDC officials to repeatedly curtail admission of new prisoners to comply with court orders concerning populations. That backup, in turn, has jammed county jails statewide.

Hampton said Thursday the state has responsibility for convicted felons and he is tired of county taxpayers footing the bill to house them.

"We may be very close to having to close our jail," said County Judge Roy English. Continuing to house state prisoners could result in a 33-percent tax increase locally, he said.

But commissioner O.L. Watson said there are some problems with the Hampton's idea.

"I don't think we can do it. It would be inhumane," Watson said. "Besides, you've got killers in there. How are you going to camp them out at night? Those small towns along the way would run you off."

Defense lawyer Art Brender, board member of the Fort Worth chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, first thought Hampton was joking when he was told of the plan. He went from disbelief to anger and compared such a march to the Bataan death march in which thousands of American and Filipino prisoners of war died during a 70-mile march while being moved to a Japanese prison camp during World War II.

"You've got prisoners sitting over there who get no exercise," said Brender. "You'd have them falling by the road."

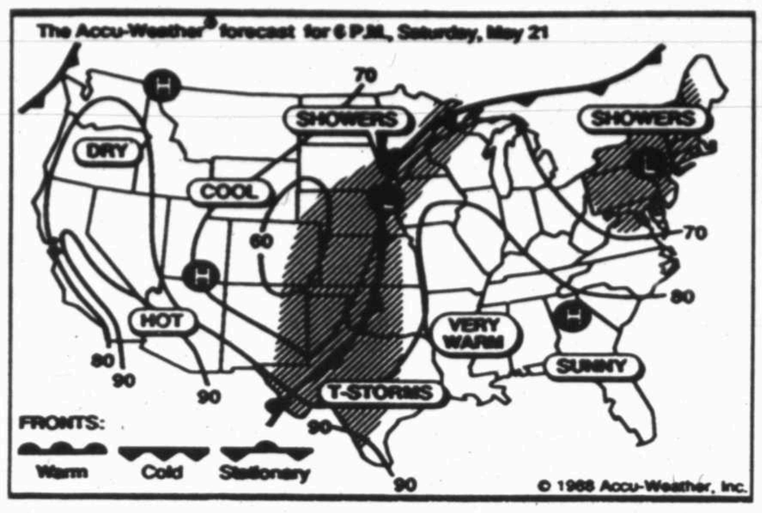
WEATHER SUMMARY



Cooler weather forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Cooler temperatures are expected across the Permian Basin, along with the chance of continued thunderstorm activity, weather observers say.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport, today will be partly cloudy, with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms, and a high in the mid-70s. Winds will be from the northeast at 10 to 15 mph.

Tonight calls for partly cloudy skies and a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms. The low will be in the lower 50s.

On Sunday, skies will be mostly cloudy, with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms, and a high in the mid-70s.

Friday's high of 82 was 18 degrees cooler than the record of 100, set on that date in 1939. The low of 56 was 7 degrees warmer than the record of 49, set on that date in 1967.

STATE

Thunderstorms with winds of up to 80 mph, hail as large as golf balls and torrents of rain pounded widely-separated sections of Texas on Friday.

The same storm system that spawned three funnel clouds in eastern New Mexico churned into West Texas in mid-afternoon, the National Weather Service said, but no injuries or major damage was reported.

Highly unstable moist air combined with an upper level storm over northern New Mexico to trigger the thunderstorms, some of them severe in the watch area, the weather service said.

Two separate storms hit the Texas hill country. Hail was reported Friday morning and again Friday afternoon near Kerrville. Hail in a mid-morning storm at Kerrville was described as golf ball-sized.

Marble-sized hail was reported on the Angelo State University campus in San Angelo at 3:55 p.m.

The Dallas-Fort Worth area was hit by a severe thunderstorm Friday afternoon. It hit Fort Worth first, and play at the Colonial golf tournament was halted for two hours — from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. — by lightning, high winds and heavy rain. Marble-size hail was reported across Dallas and Fort Worth as the storm moved through.

The weather service said it received reports of two funnel clouds south of Corpus Christi between 6 and 6:30 p.m.

Thunderstorms are likely to continue across Texas through Saturday, the weather service added. Highs should range from the lower 60s in the Panhandle to the 90s in South Texas.

Friday, thunderstorms moved across from the low rolling plains into North Central Texas producing very strong winds and heavy rainfall. Wind speeds estimated at 75 mph raked Weatherford, 25 miles west of Fort Worth. Small hail fell across sections of North Central Texas.

Showers and thunderstorms also covered the Rio Grande plains, the Permian Basin and the Trans-Pecos.

In the Trans-Pecos, west to southwest winds were common. Wind speeds were mainly in the 10 to 20 mph range. However, strong gusty and variable winds were in the vicinity of the thunderstorms.

NATION

A western cold front spawned thunderstorms, high winds and hail over most of the Great Plains and central United States Friday, while the rain-saturated East Coast got still more precipitation.

Severe thunderstorms blanketed the Great Plains, with clusters of showers over central Texas, northern Oklahoma and southern Kansas, as well as eastern Nebraska to southwest Minnesota.

Residents in Hobbs, N.M., reported seeing two tornadoes touch down Friday. One twister tore part of the roof and a side from a building, uprooted trees, knocked down telephone poles and overturned a pickup truck, slightly injuring the driver. The second tornado destroyed an unoccupied mobile home, and tore off parts of the roofs of two houses, a witness said.

Official says deal made with Noriega

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and Panamanian negotiators have tentatively agreed on a deal that calls for Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega to leave Panama for nine months starting this August and for the United States to drop drug smuggling indictments against him, an administration official said Friday.

The arrangement would give Noriega a role in setting up a transition government before leaving, said the official, who has followed the negotiations but insisted on anonymity.

The agreement, subject to final approval by both governments, allows Noriega to return to Panama for holidays and to go back permanently after presidential elections set for May 1989, said the official, who described himself as opposed to the arrangement.

He said Vice President George Bush has expressed reservations.

However, one of Noriega's criminal attorneys in Miami said Friday night that no agreement has been reached.

"I've just talked to a high-ranking member of General Noriega's staff in Panama City, and he denies that any deal has been struck," Raymond Takiff said.

Roman Popadiuk, deputy White House press secretary, also denied that a tentative agreement had been reached.

"The talks have not broken down, nor has there been any agreement," he said. "The process still continues."

Noriega on Friday made no reference to the reports of a deal when he addressed thousands of supporters in the San Miguelito district outside the capital of Panama City.

In response to questions from local officials about talks with the United States, Noriega said any discussions must be based on "respect for the president of the republic, Manuel Solis Palma."

"There cannot be conversation, there cannot be a solution if an exaggerated number of troops remain on our territory as psychological aggression," Noriega said. "Neither can there be any solution as long as the popular forces and a militantly recognized government are not part of it."

Bush's chief of staff, Craig Fuller, said Friday that the vice president opposes negotiating with Noriega over the conditions under which Noriega might surrender power.

"The administration sources who have suggested that the vice president favors ending the negotiations and bringing the envoy back to Washington are essentially correct," Fuller said.

Bush had lunch with President Reagan on Friday, but the vice president's aides would not say whether they discussed the Noriega negotiations.

The official who discussed the tentative deal also said Bush has recommended that the State Department recall deputy assistant secretary Michael G. Kozak from Panama. Kozak has spent virtually all of May in Panama trying to work out an agreement.

The official who disclosed the tentative agreement to an Associated Press reporter said, "If it gets accepted, it gives Noriega everything he wants."

The official said there were no assurances that Noriega was negotiating seriously and he raised the possibility that the defense chief has no intention of resigning his post, as the agreement specifies.

If the deal receives final approval, the official said Noriega would be in a position to leave his associates in positions of authority because he will be able to influence the formation of the transition government.

Late Friday, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Kozak was returning to Washington for consultations.

He said Kozak's return does not mean any change in the process.

"The process continues," Redman said, declining further comment.

Associates of Noriega have said in recent weeks that Noriega sees Aug. 12 as an appropriate time to resign because that is the fifth anniversary of his accession as commander of the Defense Forces.

The State Department view is that dropping the indictments against Noriega is a defensible bargaining position because he cannot be extradited so long as he remains in Panama.

It contends that if Noriega's price for leaving Panama is dismissal of the indictments, this would be a low cost way of resolving the 12-week old crisis, which has dropped U.S.-Panamanian relations to a low point and produced economic collapse in Panama.

According to a published report earlier this week, the United States would reserve the right to reinstate the indictment once Noriega returns to Panama.

The Reagan administration has been calling on Noriega to step down since the indictments were returned on Feb. 5.

President Eric Arturo Delvalle tried to fire Noriega on Feb. 25 but was ousted himself the following day by the pro-Noriega National Assembly. The United States continues to recognize Delvalle as the legitimate authority in Panama.

A series of U.S. economic sanctions have contributed to Panama's economic demise.

U.S. apprehensions about Noriega were heightened on Thursday when a pro-government newspaper published photographs of U.S. Embassy employees and their families so that Panamanians will "know the Gringos who are starving us to death."

HORSES

She is currently working to qualify for the 1988 Oklahoma City competitions.

Mrs. Scott's 17-year-old daughter, Christie, rides a horse called "My Dirty Dream," and he is currently qualified "to go top 10 in western pleasure from the State of Texas to the American Junior Quarter Horse Association world finals in Tulsa, Oklahoma" this year, said Mrs. Rowland.

Kelly Scott, 16, has a new horse being trained now at Diamond Four. Kelly just missed qualifying for the Junior World last year, Mrs. Rowland says, but should have no trouble qualifying this year because "she's a very good rider, a very competitive rider and she works very hard."

The day after school is out, Ms. Byrd said, she'll leave with Mrs. Scott and her daughters on tour and be gone almost four weeks, showing horses at events in Indiana and Michigan.

Kelly will be competing in a show in Indianapolis that Ms. Byrd describes as "one of the biggest English shows" in the country.

"It's going to be a long tour," she says, "I'm real excited and the girls can't wait." They'll rest when they get back home, she says, then probably do the same thing a couple more times through the summer.

Mrs. Rowland says she and Gwyn like to make the tours together, but often they head in different directions on separate tours, showing horses.

In El Paso, a horse trained by Mrs. Rowland and her daughter, Gwyn, won the Southwestern Quarter Horse Futurity and another horse they trained was the Reserve Champion Maturity Horse.

In the Border Circuit, a three-day show, "we had the high point senior Western Pleasure horse," Mrs. Rowland said. All three of the horses winning in the El Paso show belonged to Midland horse owner Bill McNeill.

A horse Ms. Byrd bought as a colt, named "Dusty Air," last year was co-champion Reining Horse in the High Sky Reigning Stakes, which is a breeders' association. As a result of this showing, Ms. Byrd says, Dusty Air sold immediately.

Mrs. Rowland says she and her daughter "have worked together so long we practically work on mental telepathy."

The ultimate goal of horse training, according to Mrs. Rowland, is to have the horse and rider operating almost as a single unit. It takes time and patience.

"We want the rider to have a horse completely under control, collected, as it's called, in mind and body," she says. If a horse is well trained, she says, it will appear that the rider is doing nothing because the animal will respond to such light control signals.

SCHOOL

He described her as "just an absolutely bizarre lady" and said "sometimes she'd wander the halls and try to open doors."

Timm said when the woman walked into the school around 10:45 a.m., her first stop was a boys' bathroom, where she shot a youngster.

"She left him and ran into one classroom, telling the teacher there that a boy had been wounded," said Timm. "Then she entered a second classroom, announced she had a gun and opened fire."

Police recovered a .357-caliber Magnum revolver from the school, for which Timm said Ms. Dann had been issued a permit. "How did a woman with that kind of background get licensed to carry a gun?" Timm said.

Joe Sumner, director of Winnetka police operations said the woman then ran through the woods across from the school and entered the home, where four members of a family and their maid were present.

"Apparently, she just walked in and confronted the homeowners," Sumner said. "The mother came running out and said, 'There's a woman in my home with a gun.'

"Then we heard a shot. The son came out, holding a gun, and fell over in the driveway," Sumner said.

The son, 20-year-old Philip Andrew, apparently struggled with the suspect, grabbed one of her weapons, and was shot in the chest, Sumner said. The father, maid and grandfather fled by a side door, leaving her alone inside.

Wilmette police Sgt. Michael Geier said the woman was believed to have set fire to the home where she worked while a mother and her children were in the basement doing laundry.

"This woman set a fire in the house, trapping the people in the basement," he said. "They escaped, got out, apparently without serious injury."

Eight-year-old Nick Corwin died of his wounds at Highland Park Hospital, said spokesman Mark Newtwon.

Another 8-year-old boy and Andrew were in critical condition at the hospital, said spokeswoman Sue Masaracchia.

The four children at Evanston Hospital were reported in critical but stable condition with gunshot wounds following surgery, said spokeswoman Mary Ash. They were identified as Mark Tebourek, 8, Robert Trossman, 6, Lindsay Fisher, 8, and Kathryn Ann Miller, 7, said another spokeswoman, Cheryl Soohoo.

At the school, parents clustered in groups, consoling each other. Village Manager Robert Buechner said children were released in small groups throughout the afternoon to ensure their safety.

In addition, she was one of the first corporate members and donated office furniture and equipment to both the Odessa Black Chamber of Commerce and the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, and supports activities by both organizations.

She also hosted a luncheon of Midland corporate chief executives to reactivate the local TAME organization and worked with the state director on a presentation for the meeting.

She also helped organize the State Hispanic Women's Conference.

To help efforts in curbing the high school dropout problem, Ms. Gifford and Southwestern Bell have introduced films on high school dropout awareness to Permian Basin Regional Planninc Commision Region 18, area schools and community centers, the Big Spring Private Industry Council and helped Casa de Amigos to form a drop-out prevention program aimed at junior high school students.

Said Ms. Avery: "She has gained such a widespread reputation for herself and for Southwestern Bell in the Permian Basin that, whenever a strong advocate of any minority group is needed, we all call on Darlene for her insight, sensitivity and ability to inspire, guide and support the cause or needs of the minority group."

It was her company's high profile in dropout prevention programs that began her community involvement. She was approached by the Midland Hispanic Chamber to join, and did, she said. "Southwestern Bell perceives that minority groups such as the chambers address their specific problems that we may not be aware of. It works well with economic development endeavors affected by the dropout problem. Solving the two go hand-in-hand and gives us a better standard of living."

Characteristically low-key, Ms. Gifford explained that "Our company likes complete community involvement by the employees."

CENTERS

Commending the efforts of those "who worked so hard to make the regional academic health science center in Odessa a reality," Mittemeyer said continued community support is vital to the success of the regional centers.

The purpose of the increased public information effort, he said, will be to communicate the needs of the facility to citizens of the area and encourage their support.

The health science center president also said that, while funds are not yet available, plans are being made to expand the Odessa facility by adding a second story.

As well as the need for student doctors, nurses and allied health personnel, there is a shortage of doctors to teach at the centers, Mittemeyer said. This problem will also be targeted by the new public information campaign.

Mittemeyer said the opportunity now exists to "bind together the centers in El Paso, Odessa and Amarillo" and doing so will help strengthen the system and "improve the ability to deliver quality rural health care."

SENTENCE

His next recollection was being awakened by police on the woman's couch, he testified.

Williams said his client was "unaware of the world around him" when the crime occurred, and said "he didn't have any idea what he was doing."

"The Court finds that the offense was vicious, without regard for the welfare, feelings or emotions of the victim," Baskin said.

The defendant must have been "at least instinctively" aware of what he was doing, since testimony showed he tried to hide his identity, the judge noted.

"People in American homes should be entitled to safety and the sanctity of their homes...and their persons," Baskin said just before he pronounced sentence.

Dispatchers hear father beating son

HOUSTON (AP) — An 11-year-old boy allegedly beaten by his father while an emergency dispatcher listened was taken into protective custody by child welfare officials who earlier decided to let the child stay with his family.

Police on Thursday criticized the Harris County Children's Protective Services' decision to let the boy go home despite a tape-recording rescue officials had of the alleged attack.

Hours later, the boy was taken into protective custody.

An emergency dispatcher received a telephone call May 12 from the boy who called because he thought his father was having a heart attack. But the dispatcher soon heard the boy crying out and being beaten.

Calls to the 911 emergency line are routinely recorded.

The boy's father, John Thomas Whiddon, 40, has been charged with felony injury to a child and is free on bond. The boy was not seriously injured.

After authorities went to the home where the call was made, the boy was taken away. But hours later, he was returned to his father and the rest of his family, Children's Protective Services' officials said.

The boy's initial return to his father came after a worker determined he would not be in a "life-threatening situation," spokeswoman Judy Hay said. The worker did not listen to the recording before making the decision, she said.

Inmates unhurt in prison shoe factory fire

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A fire broke out in a Texas prison shoe factory Friday where more than 100 inmates were working, but all of them escaped to other parts of the prison unharmed, officials said.

The blaze at the Ellis 1 Unit outside Huntsville was still smoldering Friday afternoon, but it had been brought under control, Texas Department of Corrections spokeswoman Shelly Zent said.

"There are no injuries that we know of, but there was heavy damage, a lot of smoke," Ms. Zent said.

She said 133 inmates and five prison employees were in the factory at the time of the blaze. The building is not connected to any other prison building.

The inmates working in the factory were back in their cells Friday afternoon, she said.

The fire started in a factory storage area on the second floor, but the cause has not yet been determined, Ms. Zent said.

There are 1,971 inmates, including death row prisoners, housed at the maximum-security prison.

TDC officials in Huntsville were alerted to the fire at about 10:45 a.m., she said.

Inmates work in the shoe factory, where nearly all of the boots and shoes issued to state prisoners are made.

Driver charged with involuntary manslaughter

HOUSTON (AP) — An involuntary manslaughter charge was filed against a woman who was driving a school bus that overturned onto a truck, killing the other driver and injuring 13 children.

Police accused Patsy Windom of several traffic violations while she used the school bus to chase a car carrying a woman and two teen-age boys. One of the boys had been throwing rocks at a youth on the bus before last week's accident.

"She was going at a speed greater than a prudent person should be driving under those circumstances. She ran through a yield sign, and she didn't keep her eyes on the road," police investigator Robert Hadaway said.

Killed in the accident was Arthur Moreno, 23, who was driving the truck.

In addition, 13 Dowling Middle School students suffered minor injuries in the accident.

Woman sentenced on forgery charges

BELLVILLE (AP) — A State District Judge who last year granted a Kerrville woman a new murder trial sentenced her to seven years in prison after she pleaded guilty to forgery, attorneys said.

Julie Milam, 39, a horse rancher and former oil company employee, received 30 years in prison for the July 23, 1986, shooting death of her husband, James Milam, 45.

After requesting additional tests on blood on the woman's clothing last year, State District Judge Oliver Kitzman ordered a new trial, which is still pending.

In February, Milam was indicted on charges of aggravated perjury and forgery based on information turned up in her 1986 murder trial. The perjury indictment accused her of lying to an Austin County grand jury when she said her husband did not know of her alleged embezzlement of $1 million from her employer, the late oilman Walter H. Mengden Sr.

Raising Angus cows corrals teen-ager's spare time

NOME, Texas (AP) — Keili Dunagan, an eighth grader at Henderson Junior High School, is an honor student, a cheerleader and a member of the track, volleyball and basketball teams. She also plays the flute in the school band.

But none of those interests can compete with the six true loves waiting patiently for Keili at home — five Angus cows who weigh upwards of 1,500 pounds apiece and one 800-pound Angus steer.

Keili has been building her small herd the way some teen-agers build wardrobes or record collections.

Long-haired and statuesque, with the practiced air of seasoned performers, her cows are more than beautiful beasts. They've helped the 14-year-old earn the distinction of being the youngest Texan ever to qualify for the National American Angus Show.

Keili has been a member of 4-H Club for five years, showing market steers, pigs and lambs along with her heifers, at the South Texas State Fair. Her father, Jim Dunagan, is a rice farmer and rancher, but she says it was a babysitter who sparked her interest in showing livestock. At age 8, Keili raised pigs, and by age 11 she had taken on steers.

Keili's father bought her her first heifer to fill the three-to-four-month void after showing and selling livestock at the fair. He wanted an animal she could raise and take care of for years to come.

Keili's focus soon changed to marketing the pigs, lambs and steers to build up her herd. She hopes eventually to show the calves she is raising now.

Her many awards are one measure of her accomplishments. Keili won the Texas Club Calf Association's Angus heifer division this year by a margin of 400 points. She ranked sixth in an all-around division comprised of 1,000 competitors showing 19 different breeds.

She won the junior showmanship contest and first and third places with her two heifers at the Southwest Exposition Stock Show in Fort Worth and qualified for the National American Angus Show set for Missouri in July. In 1986, she showed the reserve champion steer of the South Texas State Fair. Her 1987 steer died just before the fair.

Such heartbreaks are a part of raising animals. "She's never there when they take the steer off (to be slaughtered)," her mother, Pam, says.

Keili says she could never bear to sell one of the heifers. "I'm real close to my cows."

That closeness has to do with how much time she spends with the animals. Keili feeds her herd before and after school and keeps the cows well-groomed with frequent brushings. In the barn, fans directed onto the cows help grow hair long and blow dust and sand out of their coat.

One of her daily responsibilities is to coach the cows repeatedly so they learn the proper gait and positioning for competition. Nearly every weekend finds the family traveling to livestock shows or off in search of an addition to their bovine brood. "We all pitch in our opinions," Keili says.

One of the best things about her hobby is "going places, metting new people," she says, even though that means missing out on parties and other activities her friends enjoy.

Dressed in a pair of acid-washed jeans and red Reeboks, silver hearts dangling from her ears, Keili says she occasionally wears her boots and Wranglers to school. "I'm the cowgirl of the school," she says.

Man wins suit against former nun, Brownsville Diocese

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A jury Friday awarded $1.5 million to a man who claimed his marriage was destroyed by a lesbian nun who seduced his wife, and that church officials did nothing to prevent it.

Steve Woolverton had sued former Sister Mary Kregar and the Catholic Diocese of Brownsville, alleging that a homosexual affair between Ms. Kregar and his wife, Mary Woolverton, broke up his 12-year marriage in 1984.

Woolverton's personal-injury lawsuit, filed in 1986, also claimed church officials were negligent by allowing Sister Kregar to serve as a nun in Port Isabel and continue serving there after Woolverton told them of the lesbian affair.

"The jury has returned a verdict finding not only the conduct on the part of the nun (was negligent), as we had stated in our lawsuit, but also the conduct on the part of the parish priest in not attending and responding to this in a timely fashion," said Edwin Randolph Fleuriet, Woolverton's lawyer.

Ms. Kregar came to Our Lady Star of the Sea Church in Port Isabel in September 1983 and became director of the choir, for which Mrs. Woolverton played the guitar. Ms. Kregar left the Franciscan order of nuns in August 1984.

The Woolvertons, who have three children, separated in May 1984, and Woolverton claimed in his suit filed two years later that Sister Kregar "used her fiduciary position of trust to commence a seduction of plaintiff's wife."

Jurors deliberated for five hours Thursday and Friday before awarding Woolverton $500,000 in actual damages, an additional $500,000 in exemplary damages from Ms. Kregar and $500,000 in exemplary damages from the diocese.

The Rev. Ben Verbrugge, then parish priest, Bishop John J. Fitzpatrick, Ms. Kregar and Sister Cecilia Rolling, a nun at the Port Isabel church, were found guilty of "gross negligence" by failing to intervene in the matter after Woolverton told the priest of the lesbian relationship.

Although Woolverton had sought $5 million in damages, Fleuriet said he was pleased with the judgment.

Defense lawyers never denied that there had been a homosexual affair between Mrs. Woolverton and Sister Kregar. Most of the trial testimony took the form of videotaped depositions.

Darrell Barger, lead attorney for the diocese, contended during the trial that the suit was for "money, money, money" and that when Bishop Fitzpatrick became convinced of the lesbian relationship in March 1984, he acted quickly to remove the nun.

Woolverton said he convinced the bishop with a secretly recorded conversation between his wife and the nun, described as sexual in nature. He also employed a private investigator to watch his wife.

Woolverton now lives in Durango, Colo. His ex-wife lives elsewhere in that city with their children, and Ms. Kregar is a social worker in Pueblo, Colo.

"I'm glad it's over for everybody," Woolverton said. "I'm going back with my kids and help raise them."

He declined further comment.

Church officials quickly left the Cameron County Courthouse after the jury's decision, and were not available for comment.

Disclosures indicate Gramm given 3 gifts, Bentsen accepted 1

■ Related story — 10C

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Texas A&M Aggies gave Sen. Phil Gramm a Cotton Bowl championship ring worth $150 last year, while millionaire Sen. Lloyd Bentsen accepted only one gift — a $300 Steuben-glass eagle, according to financial disclosure reports released Friday.

The reports give a glimpse into the lives of the two Texas senators: one a wealthy Democrat with a farm on Virginia's Shenandoah River and a Houston condominium, each worth at least $250,000; the other a Republican who supplements his Senate salary with speaking engagements and rent from college-town houses and duplexes.

Added up, the reports show Gramm, a former economics professor at Texas A&M University, earned in a range from $140,872 to $173,365 last year. That includes the Senate salary of $89,500 and $28,865 in honoraria.

Gramm spoke to such groups as the Salina, Kan., Chamber of Commerce, the Carpet and Rug Institute, the American Meat Institute, the National Grocers Association and McDonald's.

He had articles in the Wall Street Journal and the Washington Post, and earned $40 from the Indianapolis Star for an article called "Applying Pearl Harbor's Lessons To Today's World."

Bentsen, meanwhile, had income ranging from $296,733 to $418,225 and up, including at least $100,001 from a blind trust with a value listed at $250,000 and up. He accepted no money for speeches and articles — a long-standing policy — and listed his only gift as the Steuben eagle from the Private Sector Council.

All congressmen must file an annual disclosure form listing honoraria, gifts, assets, income and liabilities. In most cases, members need only report finances in broad dollar ranges, such as $15,001 to $50,000, or $250,000 and up. They are not required to list their homes or furnishings.

Bentsen's assets range from $1.4 million to $2 million and up. Gramm's are listed from $296,015 to $785,000, while his wife had assets of at least $85,001.

Bentsen's liabilities ranged from $100,001 to $250,000 — the mortgage on the Virginia farm. Gramm's liabilities ranged from $75,005 to $250,000 for mortgages on five College Station houses and duplexes.

Bentsen lists four assets of $250,000 or up — a blind trust; a loan to Brazoria Lake Inc. in Brazoria County that yielded interest last year from $50,001 to $100,000; a Warwick condominium and furnishings in Houston that earned him rent of $15,001 to $50,000; and Bellfield Farm — 130 acres on the Shenandoah River in Clarke County, Va., with a house and tenant house.

The senator's earnings last year included $21,224 from the sale of cattle from the farm. His wife, Beryl Ann, earned $61,100 in director's fees from 13 Houston-based mutual funds.

Gramm's disclosures list three gifts — the ring, a $125 miniature television set from Mrs. Campbell Smith, mother of Republican U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith of San Antonio, and a $1,985 ship model of the USS San Jacinto. Gramm's wife, Wendy Lee Gramm, was the ship's sponsor.

Gramm was reimbursed for air fare and two night's lodging in Los Angeles by the National Rifle Association, and traveled also in 1987 on behalf of U.S. Rep. Jim Inhofe of Tulsa, Okla., and the 1990 re-election committee of Sen. Mitch McConnell of Kentucky. Both are Republicans.

Gramm's forms show him as owner or half-owner of five College Station and two Bryan houses or duplexes. Five earned him rent between $2,501 and $5,000, while two earned him rent between $5,001 and $15,000. College Station is the home of Texas A&M.

The junior senator also had $5,001 to $15,000 in Riggs Bank in Washington D.C., between $15,001 and $50,000 in Castle and Cook stocks of Honolulu, Hawaii, and several thousand dollars in pension plans and individual retirement accounts.

TI awarded part of weapons contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy awarded a $68.6 million contract Friday to a joint venture of Texas Instruments and Raytheon Corp. to develop the electronic components for a new generation of "smart" weapons, said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

About 40 percent of the work to be completed under the contract will be done at Texas Instruments' facilities in Richardson, Texas, Gramm said. Texas Instruments probably will hire 50 to 60 new workers as a direct result of the Navy contract, Gramm said.

The remainder of the work will be done at Raytheon facilities in Massachusetts and California, officials said.

The contract calls for development of gallium arsenide microcircuits.

"Ultimately, the demand for high-performance, reliable and cost-effective microcircuits will be enormous as the military moves into the next generation of weaponry," said Gramm, the ranking Republican on the Senate's Defense, Industry and Technology subcommittee.

Hospital seeks therapy in fresh, tasty meals

BOSTON (AP) — The chief chef at a popular seafood restaurant chain returned to the hospital where he had been a patient recently to perform some corrective surgery of his own. In the kitchen.

As the specialist he is, Jean-Jacques Paimblanc supervised a well-scrubbed staff of more than 100 at Beth Israel Hospital.

A few watched as he made an incision into a cooked fish.

"Perfect," said Paimblanc, of Legal Sea Food's restaurants. "It should taste moist, but not too soft. This is good."

For one day this week, Paimblanc and two Legal Sea Food employees oversaw preparation of lunch and supper, which included 1,400 meals for patients and staff at the 460-bed hospital.

"It just takes a little attention to make good, fresh meals," said Paimblanc. "Hospitals serve fish sticks when they could get in fresh fish. They serve frozen vegetables when they could buy presliced fresh vegetables. It doesn't take much to make a much better meal."

The items on the menu were identical to those served at Legal Sea Food's six Massachusetts restaurants, including the fish chowder included at President Reagan's inaugural dinner in January 1981.

Paimblanc added a newly created low-calorie clam chowder with clams and vegetables.

"With all the studies talking about the benefits of fish and fish oils on health, it seems like hospitals should be talking a closer look at their meals," Paimblanc said.

"We'll put the hospitals out of business if people keep eating like this."

Gail DeLuca, Beth Israel's director of nutritional services, said research is still ongoing on direct correlations between fish oils and lower incidence of cardiac problems. The hospital omitted a reference to fish oil's health benefits from the back of the Legal Sea Food menu used at the hospital.

War with Iran forces Iraq economy to shape up, ship out

By JOHN RICE

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq's economy lost its footing in the 1986 oil price collapse but is regaining its balance, partly because of the 7½-year-old war with Iran.

The conflict, which is costing $10 billion a year, has forced President Saddam Hussein to streamline a bloated prewar bureaucracy, increase efficiency in government sectors and scrap some of his socialist programs.

Oil prices are firmer and oil exports are climbing. Saddam has sold off inefficient state-owned enterprises in a program aimed at revitalizing the private sector, long suppressed by socialist policies.

All this has helped ease the worries of Iraq's many creditors, who last year had to reschedule the country's debt repayments because the Iraqis did not have enough cash.

Even so, Iraq is only just managing to keep pace with a war-incurred foreign debt of at least $35 billion, diplomats say.

The government's decision last year to loosen its grip on subsidized prices and foreign exchange has helped reduce once-chronic shortages but at a painful cost for many of Iraq's 15 million people.

The long lines of shoppers outside stores are fewer now than in 1986 because goods are more plentiful.

Some Iraqis grumble about prices, however.

Local meat, which used to cost the equivalent of $7.50 to $9 a pound, now sells for $9 to $10.50 a pound, at the dollar's official rate of exchange against the dinar of $3.30 to one. Exchange houses outside Iraq, however, trade the dinar at 50 cents for one.

Bread, rice and cooking oil remain subsidized. But a package of 30 eggs that once cost $4.30, now sells for at least $8.30.

Even the cost of candy bars has risen, from 25 cents to nearly $1.

These are stiff prices for many workers. Civil servants, for example, earn 90 to 150 dinars a month.

Many Iraqis have found their incomes squeezed further this year by increased working hours in essential industries and offices, making the once-common practice of moonlighting nearly impossible.

It's still difficult to find many goods at subsidized prices, forcing Iraqis into the costly black market for such things as car parts or cigarettes.

The variety on the vegetable stands is the most visible sign of Iraq's move away from 20 years of strict socialist controls on the economy.

The government told businessmen last year they could import goods with foreign currency, with few questions asked about how they got the money.

Saddam also abolished labor laws that had guaranteed employment.

Iran's speaker calls for arms buildup to fight U.S. in gulf

WORLD

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran's powerful Parliament speaker on Friday repeated his government's claim that Tehran is at war with the United States and called for an arms buildup to fight the Americans in the Persian Gulf.

"The Americans have officially entered into a war with us," Hashemi Rafsanjani told Revolutionary Guards commanders. He was quoted by the official Islamic Republic News Agency, which was monitored in Nicosia.

"We are really at war with the United States at the present time."

Six newly arrived U.S. warships took up station in the Arabian Sea, and two others sailed into the gulf.

But there was no sign of hostilities as the U.S. frigates Pharris and Elmer Montgomery, accompanied by the missile frigate John H. Sides, passed through the Strait of Hormuz where Iranian speedboats have attacked two commercial ships in recent days.

The Pharris and Elmer Montgomery are part of an eight-ship battle group, headed by the aircraft carrier Forrestal, that arrived in the Arabian Sea this week to provide air support for U.S. convoy and patrol operations in the gulf.

Rafsanjani also told Moslem worshipers at a weekly prayer session in Tehran University that if the United States fought Iran, "they must wait to receive lots of their youths' dead bodies."

Iranian leaders have repeatedly said they consider that their country has been at war with the United States since the U.S. Navy buildup in the gulf in July to protect American-flagged ships from Iranian attack.

IRNA quoted Rafsanjani as saying: "Should this war extend to new frontiers, the Americans will simply take delivery of the bodies of Americans throughout the world."

Tension heightened since the Americans destroyed Iranian offshore oil platforms and sank an Iranian minelayer in the gulf last year.

U.S. warships and aircraft sank or disabled six Iranian vessels in a string of clashes April 18 in the most serious confrontation since the U.S. intervention.

Iranian anger mounted after a long-range raid by Iraqi warplanes on the Larak Island oil terminal in the southern gulf May 14 in which five tankers were set ablaze.

Iran claimed the Americans jammed its radar and radio systems to help the Iraqis. U.S. officials denied that.

Rafsanjani reiterated that allegation Friday and said: "U.S. ships guided Iraqi forces and caused trouble for our defensive forces," Iran reported.

Despite the fiery rhetoric, the Iranians are clearly outgunned by the U.S. Navy in the gulf, especially since two of their frigates were either sunk or crippled in last month's naval clashes.

Those two British-built warships comprised half the major operational warships the Iranians had.

The Iranians still have several missile boats and a fleet of armed speedboats manned by Revolutionary Guards, which have attacked two neutral merchant ships in the gulf this week after a three-week lull.

Following Baghdad's recapture last month of the Faw peninsula in southern Iraq, seized by the Iranians in February 1986, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini dismissed the armed forces chief of staff, Brig. Gen. Ismael Sohrabi.

Unconfirmed reports from Tehran noted that other senior officers have been replaced, heightening the belief that Khomeini seeks a more aggressive strategy to make up for the chain of recent defeats.

Rafsanjani, closely allied with the Revolutionary Guards Corps, is considered the most powerful figure in Iran after Khomeini and is the revolutionary patriarch's represenative on the Supreme Defense Council.

The council determines Iran's military strategy in the 7½-year-old war.

The Supreme Defense Council called April 18 on Iranians to fight the United States.

A Foreign Ministry statement on the same day warned the United States to expect a severe response from Iran, alleging that American military helicopters fought on the Iraqi side in the recapture of Faw.

Attacks continue in Punjab villages

AMRITSAR, India (NYT) — Gunmen presumed to be Sikhs continued their attacks on villages in Punjab state Thursday night and Friday, killing at least 25 people and wounding more than 55, a government spokesman said.

The violence came in the aftermath of the surrender Wednesday of the last Sikh militants at the Golden Temple complex here after a 10-day siege.

A Sikh religious leader and dozens of his followers entered the Golden Temple Friday night and began washing away the dirt and signs of the clash between the militants and security forces.

The chief of the Punjab police, K.P.S. Gill, said additional police troops would be deployed in the districts hit by the violence. The death toll in killings across the state is 155 so far this week.

Under the supervision of Baba Uttam Singh, a respected religious figure, about 100 of his followers and others began hosing the temple complex of the dirt, the stench of death that lingers in some places and the shards of glass and pieces of brick that litter the marble walkways.

Carpets were taken out of the gold-plated sanctum, set in the temple pool, where 47 people had taken refuge for several days before surrendering.

Reporters who visited the Golden Temple on Friday were able to view a wide range of weapons, including pistols, assault rifles, and Sten guns that were in rooms flanking the open center of the temple complex.

Meterologists 'get the vapors' with new device

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists are testing a new way to gauge the invisible water vapor in the air, a measurement that could clear up some of the problems in predicting sudden storms.

Their new device measures the weak microwaves given off by water vapor, allowing them to calculate the amount of water in the air above. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration researchers in Boulder, Colo., are using a radiometer to measure the radiation.

Ed Westwater, a supervisory physicist at the NOAA Wave Propagation Laboratory, said the readings are particularly helpful in detecting sudden changes in moisture, such as when a front passes through an area.

The radiometer can measure the water vapor every two minutes, and tests at Stapleton Airport in Denver have found occasions when the amount rose or fell as much as four times in a half hour, Westwater said.

Knowing about a change like that can help a meteorologist trying to predict whether rain or snow will occur, and when. It could be a major factor in issuing a warning of a sudden storm, said the researcher.

Westwater said atmospheric water vapor typically has been measured using balloons and satellites.

Louie Roussel's Risen Star
...reluctant Preakness entry

Winning Colors seeks second leg of Triple

BALTIMORE (AP) — A triumph by the filly Winning Colors in the Preakness today would be something to savor for trainer D. Wayne Lukas, who was a victorious villain eight years ago.

A visit to the winner's circle at Pimlico would be a step into racing history for Lukas and his Kentucky Derby winner, who would become the first filly to win two Triple Crown races.

Eight colts, six of whom ran in the Derby, including runner-up Forty Niner, will oppose her in the 1 3-16-mile race.

ABC will televise from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. CDT.

The only other filly who had a chance at two wins in the series was Genuine Risk, who won the 1¼-mile Derby in 1980.

In the Preakness, she lost momentum when she was carried extremely wide at the top of the stretch by Codex, who won by 4¾ lengths, with the filly second.

Louis Roussel III, who has spent the last month playing the "Po Boy" from New Orleans to the D. Wayne Lukases and Woody Stephenses of the world, finally made a decision of sorts Friday.

Risen Star, his third-place finisher in the Kentucky Derby, will start in the Preakness ... probably.

"He went from doubtful to probable," Roussel using football terminology to describe the status of his huge colt after Risen Star worked three-eighths of a mile Friday in 36 4-5 seconds. "I was very happy with his work. It took a lot of the pressure off."

Roussel, co-owner and trainer of Risen Star, has kept Preakness-watchers guessing for the past week.

Codex, who withstood a foul claim, was trained by D. Wayne Lukas.

The following morning a guard at the stable gate gave Lukas a bag containing 50 or 60 telegrams.

"I thought the whole world would congratulate me," Lukas recalled Friday. "I just won the Preakness."

When he began to read the telegrams, however, Lukas "found they were running 10-1 against me, so I stopped reading them.

"Most of them were from women and children. They said things like 'You quarter horse trainer, what are you trying to do?' "

The 52-year-old Lukas, a former basketball coach, began his racing career by training quarter horses.

The fourth and last filly to win the Preakness was Nellie Morse in 1924.

A victory by Winning Colors would be generally popular and would put her in position to become the 12th Triple Crown winner and first since Affirmed in 1978 with a win in the 1½-mile Belmont Stakes June 11.

Genuine Risk, who finished second in the Belmont, was the only filly to run in all three races.

"If she were to win this one and the next one, I think she would be great," Lukas said.

"The difference between the Derby and now is that this time we're not underestimating her," said John Vietch. who trains Brian's Time, who was sixth in the Derby. "We doubted the quality of her California races."

Brian's Time, a stretch runner, will need someone to pressure Winning Colors and not let her set her own pace, and Veitch feels he'll get help.

"I'd be very surprised to see her get her own way early in the race," Veitch said.

Trainer Woody Stephens said Forty Niner, who was second by a neck in the Derby, will go for the lead when he breaks from the No. 4 post just inside the filly.

Midland loses to 'other' Osteen

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

Dave Osteen is a long way from the Texas League pitching leaders. But to the Midland Angels, he might as well be Roger Clemens.

Osteen threw a complete-game eight-hitter in the Travs' 8-2 win over the Angels on the first night of a 10-game homestand at Angels Stadium Friday. The son of Philadelphia Phillies pitching coach (and former major league pitcher) Claude Osteen has allowed two earned runs in 18 innings against Midland, despite carrying a lackluster 5.70 earned run average against the rest of the league.

Meanwhile, the Travs belied their league-low .239 batting average by cranking out 17 hits against Angel hurlers Steve McGuire and Vinicio Cedeno. Arkansas scored two runs in the first, one each in the fourth and fifth, three in the seventh, and one in the ninth with the help of six doubles.

But the Angels could do little with Osteen, whose sinker tied the Midland hitters in knots much of the evening. The Arkansas righthander said the Haloes have just caught him on his good nights.

"They're a real good fastball-hitting team," Osteen said. "I just think my sinker keeps them off-balance."

Osteen said he's the type of pitcher who needs to keep the ball down for success. But he said a shutout in his second start of the season threw him off-course for about a month.

"I relied too much on my sinker and didn't mix my pitches well," Osteen said.

The Angels scored single runs in the sixth and ninth innings. The sixth-inning run was produced by Jim Thomas' double, Craig Gerber's single and Jesus Alfaro's sacrifice fly.

In the ninth, Alfaro led off with a walk, Lee Stevens moved him to third with a single and Dan Grunhard picked up the RBI with an infield hit.

In other Texas League action, El Paso maintained at least a tie for the Western Division lead with a 6-5 win over Jackson. Co-leader San Antonio played at Tulsa late, while Wichita stayed in last place in the West with a 4-2 loss to Shreveport.

The Angels finished 6-4 on the recent road trip to Arkansas and Jackson, and Angel manager Max Oliveras was encouraged with the progress of his pitching staff.

"The pitchers were a little more aggressive. They went after the hitters more," Oliveras said.

MEDICAL REPORT: Utilityman Bill Geivett was placed on the disabled list with a knee injury suffered at Jackson earlier this week. Norman Carrasco was brought in from Venezuela to replace Geivett on the active roster.

Carrasco, whose arrival was delayed several days by visa problems originating in his native Venezuela, finished the 1987 season as the M-Angels regular third baseman, but had not been active this season.

On a more positive note, first baseman Jim McCollom may return to the Midland lineup tonight after being unable to play in the field for more than a week due to a nagging groin injury. McCollom is the Angels' leading hitter at .339 — good for third in the TL.

Also, pitcher Mike Fetters resumed throwing this week after being released from Midland Memorial Hospital on Monday. Fetters was stricken with a staph infection and virus during the Angels' last home stand and will be out indefinitely.

Mortal Chaps finish title

From Staff Reports

PASADENA, Tex. — Taking two singles and one doubles title, the Midland College women's tennis team made it official here Friday. They accepted the National Junior College Athletic Association's championship trophy, their fifth in 14 years of competition and their second in three years.

After the domination the Chaparral women had shown during the first four days, winning every match they played, they proved they were mortal after all. But the letdown wasn't unexpected as MC had wrapped up the team title Thursday when all the semifinals were completed.

Midland concluded the tournament with 40 points, while conference rival Odessa College garnered 34 to edge Tyler Junior College by a single point.

Midland College Joe Williams also was named NJCAA women's tennis Coach of the Year. Gabi Csorba, playing the number five singles position, and Jill Vallandigham, played number six, captured individual titles in singles.

Csorba then teamed with Rebeca Nevarez-Ayon for the number three doubles crown. For the other four singles players and two doubles teams, it was the runner-up trophy. All the Midland players were given NJCAA All-American honors.

Midland won its first national women's tennis title in 1975 and repeated in 1976. In both those years, the tournament was played in a single bracket. It later changed to flights, with Midland capturing team titles in 1981 and again in 1986.

Except for the number one singles bracket, it was an all-Texas affair in the finals of the five-day tournament played at the Strawberry Tennis Center and hosted by San Jacinto College.

Midland's number one player, freshman Raquel Colvin, was defeated by Nine Schmidt of Broward, Florida, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3. Nevarez-Ayon was edged by Odessa's Julie Cass, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, at number two. Lena Holm-Larson of Tyler beat Caroline Bhaguandas of Midland, 6-1, 6-0, in the number three and Sara Hancock of Midland lost a close, 7-5, 6-4, match to Muffin Lupien of Odessa in the number four.

But Csorba came through at number five, beating Dena Hohn of Odessa, 6-1, 6-1. Jill Vallandigham won Midland's other singles title by defeating Karhrine Vigander of Tyler, 6-4, 6-3.

Bhaguandas and Hancock lost at number one doubles to Nelson-Cass of Odessa, 6-1, 6-4, and Colvin-Vallandigham ran out of gas against Nall and Frazier of Tyler at number two, 5-7, 6-1, 6-1.

Csorba and Nevarez-Ayon held on for a 1-6, 6-1, 6-4 victory over Vogt-Anderson and Monica Larson of Tyler. Only two freshmen, Colvin and Csorba, return for the Chaps next season. Bhaguandas will play for the University of Houston while Sara Hancock is going to Kansas State.

Mims scrimmage tonight

Bulldogs' McCutchen divides teams evenly

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

While Coach Doug McCutchen says his Midland High football team isn't executing as well as he would like, the Bulldogs will nonetheless wrap up spring practice with the 35th annual Bill Mims Scrimmage at Memorial Stadium today.

Tickets for the 7 p.m. varsity tussle are $2.50. All proceeds will be used to defray the cost of Mims' care. Mims was paralyzed in a pre-season scrimmage with Big Spring in 1953, but has been an active member of the Midland community despite his disability.

The MHS sophomores-to-be will square off at 5:30, before the varsity takes the field for a game-type situation. The Midland High Booster Club will also be grilling hamburgers in front of the main gate at Memorial Stadium at 5 p.m.

McCutchen said he prefers the game situation to a controlled scrimmage for several reasons.

"First, we want it to be more fun for the kids," he said. "If they go out in a controlled scrimmage, it's more like a regular workout.

"Secondly, we want to see what they can do in a game-type situation."

The Bulldogs won't run a live kicking game, but will otherwise simulate a game with teams split as evenly as possible among the 70-odd players donning a varsity uniform Saturday.

McCutchen said his young players have shown a good deal of diligence this spring.

"We'd like to be farther along, but we've had a good spring," he said. The intense heat of the past few days hasn't adversely affected the Bulldogs.

"It's always tough when it's hot," McCutchen said. "It's definitely something to be aware of, but we give them plenty of water breaks and opportunities to get ice during practice.

"It normally doesn't affect the intensity of the workout, but it definitely has its effect."

McCutchen has a fool proof plan to insure that the scrimmage with be competitive.

"For example, we'll have one starting guard on one team and one on another. We want to divide it up as evenly as we possibly can."

McCutchen said several players distinguished themselves in the Bulldogs' second scrimmage of the spring recently, including running back Greg Milios, defensive end Ronnie Forrest, defensive tackle Robert Wilson and linebacker Ernie Carrasco.

Also, the seven MHS baseball players who missed the first two weeks of spring ball while playing in the bi-district playoffs are suited up for practice this week. McCutchen said the seven have jumped right into the scheme of things.

"They've been through the program and they all know the plays, so it's just a matter of getting them going."

UIL woos corporate sponsorship

Williamson

Bailey Marshall, director of the University Interscholastic League, said this week that he may be announcing in the near future of landing some corporate sponsorship of UIL events for the next school year.

Marshall said that as much as $1 million dollars annually may be raised for the UIL from corporate sponsorship deals over the next four or five years.

What it means is that we are looking at something like the Pepsi-Cola state basketball tournament or the Coca-Cola state track meet. After all, we already have that idea running rampant in the college bowl games. Every bowl game worth salt has a sponsor, even though no one I talked with could name one.

Just how far can this idea go across the state?

Can you imagine Rental R Us Runnin' Rebels of Midland Lee? How about the Alpo Biscuit Bulldogs of Midland High, or the Feed Barn Bronchos of Odessa High? And, of course, you might have the First Class Trophies Panthers of Odessa Permian's Black and White Mojos.

San Angelo and Abilene Cooper could surely find a willing taxidermist to jump on board while Abilene High's Eagles might even be a public relations coup for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

According to Marshall, however, headline writers won't have to worry about such names in the near future. In fact, he says it will never reach that stage.

"We realize that commercialization can be dangerous and we've looked at that," said Marshall. "We want to make sure that we never use a corporate sponsor as part of our budget. This will be something extra for the UIL. We always want to be able to run our programs without corporate sponsorship.

"For instance, we may use the extra money to buy the district championship trophies for all the districts in the state. We could also offer more money to our academic scholarship programs. If the sponsorship dries up, that practice will just end. Corporate sponsorship will never be the way we will run our athletic programs."

Marshall said the legal aspects still are under study by the UIL. He estimated that a sponsorship agreement, possibly by Coca-Cola, may be reached this summer on a one-year trial basis that would involve a $250,000 payment for sponsorship of athletics only, or $375,000 on an athletics-academics combination.

"It's an idea that is growing across the country. I think 50 percent or more of the state athletic associations across the country are now involved," said Marshall. "But I want to say right now that no proceeds from corporate sponsors will be paid directly to schools."

Marshall also said that the UIL is again talking with ESPN for a possible live national telecast of the Class 5A football championship game next December.

"We're not looking at big dollars. They want you to do this for glory, not the money," said Marshall. "We're talking about blacking out Texas, so that we can still have our 5A football game televised in local markets like we've done since 1983 when Midland Lee played Converse Judson in our first state telecast."

Who knows? The state football final might eventually become known as the Ewing Oil of Southfork Class 5A Championship, co-sponsored by Boone T. Pickens Committee for Oil Stabilization Around the World.

Now, does that interfere with Permian's corporate sponsor when they reach the state finals? Only the courts know for sure.

The San Diego Padres won their 13th game on May 15. Last year, they didn't win No. 13 until June 5.

Clippers have deck stacked for NBA lottery draw

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Clippers will have the deck stacked in their favor when they and five other teams try their luck in the NBA's draft lottery today.

The Clippers, the only NBA team that has failed to make the playoffs for the past 10 years, have a 28.6 percent chance to win the right to pick Kansas' Danny Manning No. 1 in the June 28 NBA college draft.

Five other teams who failed to make the NBA playoffs — New Jersey, Golden State, Phoenix, Philadelphia and Indiana — have a 14.3 percent chance to draft Manning, the 6-foot-10 forward who led the Jayhawks to the NCAA title this year and is the unanimous choice to be the No. 1 pick.

Sacramento would have been in the lottery because of its 24-58 record, but the Kings traded their 1988 first-round pick to the Clippers in 1986 in a deal that sent Derek Smith to Sacramento. Thus, Los Ageles will have its own lottery chance, plus the Kings', doubling the Clippers' chances.

The lottery, to be held at the Museum of Natural History during halftime of the Los Angeles Lakers-Utah Jazz game, will establish the order of the first seven selections in the draft. The first three picks will be determined purely by chance, and the fourth through seventh picks will be placed in reverse order of the remaining teams' finish in the standings.

The Clippers, with the NBA's worst record of 17-65, are assured of no worse than the fourth pick in the first round. New Jersey, with the second-worst record of 19-63, will pick no later than fifth.

Charlotte and Miami, the expansion teams who will join the league next season, will pick eighth and ninth, but the order will not be determined until June 13, when a coin flip is held.

Willis Reed of the Nets, who are strongest at the forward position, summarized the feeling toward Manning when he said, "Where would we play Manning? I don't know, but I would love to have that problem."

The Clippers, who finished third and fourth in the two previous lotteries in which they participated, held a radio promotion to determine the best lucky charm.

The winner was Don Carter, a truck driver from Manhattan Beach, Calif., who will be at the lottery to put a magic spell on NBA Commissioner David Stern, who is in charge of opening the lottery envelopes that contain each team's logo.

"Give me Manning. Give me Manning," is the mantra Carter chants, a play on the California lottery's plea of "Give me money. Give me money."

Other teams in the lottery also will make an extra attempt to increase their luck.

Bernie Mann, co-owner of the Nets and owner of Escort, winner of the first Meadowlands Pace in 1977, will take one of its horseshoes to the lottery.

Phoenix appointed new coach Cotton Fitzsimmons to sit in the Suns' chair at the lottery.

"I've always considered myself lucky," Fitzsimmons said. "I don't think bad thoughts and I always think I'm going to win."

76ers owner Harold Katz is sending John Nash, the team's general manager, figuring he needs an Irish counterpart to Golden State's Jack McMahon.

"I'm not superstitious, but I believe in the luck of the Irish," Katz said.

The 76ers won the 1986 lottery and traded the No. 1 pick in that draft to Cleveland, which selected Brad Daugherty. New York won the first lottery, in 1985, and took Patrick Ewing, and San Antonio grabbed David Robinson No. 1 after winning the 1987 lottery.

"The odds are small that it would happen to a team twice in a row, but we still have a 14 percent chance," Katz said.

Manning will be the first non-center taken No. 1 since 1982, when the Lakers selected forward James Worthy.

"It's just a fluke that there are no dominant centers this year and probably won't be one next year," Nash said. "It doesn't mean that teams won't go after a big man when they can get one."

No clear-cut choices exist after Manning, with several names mentioned as the No. 2 pick.

Centers Rony Seikaly of Syracuse and Rik Smits of Marist, forwards Charlie Smith of Pittsburgh, Tim Perry of Temple, Chris Morris of Auburn and Harvey Grant of Oklahoma, and guards Hersey Hawkins of Bradley, Rex Chapman of Kentucky, Gary Grant of Michigan and Mitch Richmond of Kansas State are among those being mentioned as possible picks by the lottery teams.

"It depends on which team is picking No. 2," Nash said. "Seikaly or Smits will be considered, but it's the same situation as last year. Everyone knew the No. 1, but no one knew the No. 2."

Nash said the 76ers likely would take a shooting guard if they don't get the No. 1 choice. Hawkins, Richmond and Chapman, an early-entry sophomore, are considered the best of a strong field of guards.

Celtics head for Boston's parquet floor

ATLANTA (AP) — Larry Bird and the Boston Celtics weren't ready for an extended vacation. Not yet, anyway.

"We came down here knowing tomorrow would be a long vacation," Bird said Friday night after the Celtics avoided their earliest exit from the NBA playoffs in five years by beating the Atlanta Hawks 102-100.

"We're really not used to that," Bird said.

The victory, keyed to some clutch shooting by Danny Ainge late in the third quarter, squared the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series at 3-3.

"We had to come out and fight and scratch and do anything to stay alive and take it back home," Celtics coach K.C. Jones said.

The Celtics now get the decisive Game 7 on their own parquet floor at the Boston Garden on Sunday, a site that has been unkind to Atlanta. The Hawks snapped a 13-game losing streak in Boston with a 112-104 victory Wednesday night to seemingly take control of this series.

NBA

"They had their chance," Bird said. "They had a big chance to beat us."

The Celtics also avoided, at least for now, becoming only the fifth NBA team to lose a best-of-seven series after taking a 2-0 lead.

Atlanta had swept the last three games in the series. Sunday's winner will advance to the Eastern final against the Detroit Pistons, who wrapped up the other Eastern semifinal Wednesday night with a 102-95 triumph over Chicago for a 4-1 series victory.

"We showed a lot of character," Bird said after the Celtics almost squandered the game with two turnovers in the final minute.

"It was a situation where we could have gone home for four months," he said. "I don't think anybody's ready for that yet."

"What matters most was we got some sense of offense," said Jones, the retiring Celtics coach who had complained about Boston's offense in earlier games.

"I think we can recover and win in Boston again," said Dominique Wilkins, who led the Hawks with 35 points.

"We've got to get our intensity back," Wilkins said. "We can't get down on ourselves."

"That's as good a 48 minutes as we've played in a long time," Ainge said. "None of us wanted it to end here tonight."

The Celtics, who have reached the NBA finals in each of the last four seasons, held a 101-98 lead with a minute to play, but gave Atlanta chances.

Ainge was called for walking with 52 seconds left and Ainge then hit one of two free throws with 33 seconds left for a 102-98 lead.

Atlanta guard Doc Rivers sails between Boston's Danny Ainge (44) and Robert Parish during NBA playoff action Friday night in Boston.

Wilkins completed his night with a running one-hander with 29 seconds to play, ending the scoring.

The Celtics then permitted the 24-second shot clock expire on them, giving Atlanta one last chance to force overtime.

But Cliff Levingston's shot on a drive down the middle bounced off to the left, where Dennis Johnson claimed the rebound with one second left, assuring Boston of the victory.

Kevin McHale led the Celtics with 26 points and 10 rebounds, Bird added 23 points and 11 rebounds and Ainge contributed 22 points and 14 assists.

The Hawks, who had won three in a row in the series, got scoring from only two players — Wilkins with his 35 and Glenn Rivers with 32.

The Celtics had lost eight of its last nine games in The Omni to Atlanta, but now get back to the Boston Garden, where the Hawks appeared to have taken the upper hand Wednesday night by snapping a 13-game losing streak on the parquet floor with a 112-104 victory.

Ainge scored nine points in an 11-4 run late in the third quarter that created an 83-74 Boston lead, which the Hawks were never able to erase.

The Celtics bolted to a 5-0 lead in the first half-minute when Ainge hit a 3-pointer and McHale scored on a turnaround jumper in the lane.

Boston stretched its lead to 15-6 on consecutive three-point plays by Bird and Ainge before the Hawks rallied with a 12-6 run that featured six points by Wilkins and chopped the Boston lead to 21-18 with just under five minutes remaining in the first quarter.

Spud Webb came off the bench to ignite a Hawk burst late in the first quarter, scoring six points in a 9-0 run that gave Atlanta a 37-32 lead two minutes into the second period.

Boston came back to tie the game at 37 and 39 before Atlanta regained the lead until McHale's two free throws with 4:06 left in the half gave the Celtics a 48-47 advantage.

The lead changed on the next six baskets before Mark Acres hit a layup and two free throws to give Boston a 56-53 lead.

Atlanta regained the lead at 57-56 on a dunk and two free throws by Wilkins before Johnson gave the Celtics a 58-57 lead by hitting from the top of the key 20 seconds before halftime.

Mavericks still celebrating

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks are so busy celebrating their first appearance in the NBA Western Conference playoff finals they aren't worrying about their next opponent.

Dallas will play Monday night against either the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers or the Utah Jazz.

The Lakers-Jazz series is tied 3-3. If Los Angeles wins the deciding game Saturday, then the Mavs will play the opener at Inglewood, Calif. If Utah wins, Dallas will be home for the first game of the best-of-seven series for the right to meet the Eastern Conference champion for the league title.

"We just don't care who we play," guard Derek Harper said. "We're just happy to finally make it to the finals. It's a big step for this team and this franchise."

Dallas was eliminated by the Lakers in six games in 1986 in the Western Conference semifinals, the Mavs' playoff watermark until Thursday night.

Center-forward Roy Tarpley said he was glad Utah beat the Lakers in Game 6 Thursday night because "it will give us more time to rest and celebrate."

Dallas reached the NBA's version of the Final Four with a 108-95 victory over the Denver Nuggets as Tarpley had 18 points and 19 rebounds.

Guard Rolando Blackman scored nine straight points in the fourth period as Dallas won the series 4-2.

It was sweet revenge for Dallas, which was beaten by Denver for the Midwest Division title.

"It's absolute fantasy," Dallas owner Donald Carter said. "It's like a fairyland. We've come a long, long way. I feel like a daddy-sized Jolly Green giant."

Denver's Alex English scored 34 points, but couldn't make up for the loss of Lafayette Lever and Jay Vincent, both of who missed the last three games with injuries.

"We had to change our lineup and play with what we had," Denver coach Doug Moe said. "We had to scramble to find some scoring. You just have to accept what fate deals you. Some things you have no control over."

Blackman and Sam Perkins each had 23 points for Dallas.

"It's a great feeling to be part of history," Tarpley said. "We can always say we were the first ones to get to the Western Conference finals."

Blackman relished the role of getting the ball in the clutch.

"I wanted the ball in my hands," he said. "I live for those situations. The plays down the stretch were designed to get me the ball and try to make chances to score."

Moe called Blackman "a great clutch player."

Mark Aguirre, the Mavs regular-season high scorer, had only four points as Dallas went to Blackman down the stretch.

"We're going to a place we've neve been before," Aguirre said. "We're going to do some celebrating, then get ready to go to the finals."

Dallas center James Donaldson said, "We're getting stronger as the playoffs go on."

Blackman said, "No matter who we play, we will be ready. This is a different Mavericks' team this year ... one that the NBA hasn't seen in the playoffs before."

Dallas coach John MacLeod said the victory over Denver was for the Mavs' fans.

"This is the first big win we've been able to give them in this building and we are a lot different looking team than we were at the start of the season," MacLeod said. "I'm glad we didn't disappoint the fans."

Lakers face crunch time

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers are one loss away from missing out on what coach Pat Riley has often called a great opportunity — repeating as NBA champions.

The Lakers have beaten the Utah Jazz in 32 of the last 35 games between the teams at the Forum, site of Saturday's seventh game in the Western Conference semifinal playoff series.

But the way things have gone in the series, those numbers don't appear to mean very much.

The series, originally a best-of-seven affair, became a best-of-one when the Jazz overwhelmed the Lakers 108-80 Thursday night at the Salt Palace.

"It all comes down to one game, a seventh game," Riley said. "You work hard all year for an edge. (Utah coach) Frank (Layden) and I have done everything we can do. It basically comes down to five guys out there doing a job."

Utah's five guys did a much, much better job in the sixth game as the defending champs played like chumps.

The Jazz victory deadlocked the series at 3-3. Afterwards, when Magic Johnson was asked about the game, he said, "It's sort of indescribable, really."

When asked if it was the most stunning loss in his nine-year Laker career, he said, "Oh, yes, the most embarrassing, stunning, everything."

As it turned out, the game was decided in the first quarter when the Jazz outscored the Lakers 26-2 to take a 28-9 lead. Los Angeles wasn't closer than 12 points after that.

"This game is over with now," Johnson said. "The best team will win on Saturday. I haven't (given up) on this team, not me."

Riley issued a guarantee last June, after the Lakers won the NBA title, that they would repeat as champions, becoming the first team in 19 years to accomplish such a feat.

New Mexico's Bliss era underway

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Newly-named New Mexico basketball coach Dave Bliss has started trying to solidify the team and his staff for next season.

Bliss, 44, spent his first day as the Lobos' leader meeting with players and considering potential assistants.

Bliss, who spent the last eight years at Southern Methodist University, met with three New Mexico players in person Thursday and talked to three others by telephone. He also met with Larry Shyatt and Scott Duncan, two of former New Mexico Coach Gary Colson's assistants who are helping with the change of command.

Bliss later said Shyatt would not remain with the program. Duncan also is expected to leave UNM once his contract expires in June.

"Basically I met with some of the players, tried to get some office keys and worked on learning the video equipment," said Bliss. "Right now we're just trying to get the dust to settle."

Bliss agreed to a five-year contract with New Mexico, reaching agreement with UNM Athletic Director John Koenig less than 24 hours after his arrival from Dallas for an interview.

Bliss met with returning Lobo players Charlie Thomas, Rob Newton and George Adams, and was trying to reach 7-foot-1 sophomore center Luc Longley in Australia.

Longley, who will play on the Australian Olympic team in Korea next fall, has said he may transfer as the result of Colson's forced resignation last month.

"The only factor (Bliss) would have is personality," Longley said. "He just has to be of a personable nature. He has to be fair."

Bliss said he hoped to talk to Longley before the sophomore makes a decision.

"It's necessary for us to talk to him and express the fact we want his agility, good hands and maturity back in Albuquerque," Bliss said.

Bliss also was trying to reach Chris Tower, a 6-foot-10 high school senior in Westminster, Calif., who signed a national letter of intent with the Lobos during the early signing period last winter.

New Mexico apparently has lost Las Vegas, Nev., point guard Matt Othick as a result of the change in coaching leadership. Othick, who also had signed with the Lobos, was released from the letter of intent when the NCAA determined it had not been properly dated. Othick this week indicated he would attend Nevada-Las Vegas in the fall.

Spurs' Robinson ready to play basketball

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — For almost seven months David Robinson folded up his 7-foot-1 frame behind a government-issued desk and played civil engineer.

Now it's time for Robinson to get back to what he does best — play basketball.

"In the last year, I couldn't even tell you the kinds of experiences I've had," Robinson said at a press conference before leaving for Colorado Springs, Colo., where on Wednesday 92 players began trying out for the 12 spots on the U.S. Olympic basketball team.

Robinson, the first player selected in the 1987 college draft, spent most of the last seven months working as a Naval civil engineer "building waterfront facilities for submarines in Georgia," he said.

"It was different, something I've never done before, sitting behind a desk for nine hours a day," Robinson said. "That was interesting. I liked the people and I liked doing that sort of thing.

"I spent two months out in civil engineer school. It was a lot like school. We spent about eight hours a day in classes. But then we went out on a couple of trips and they were pretty good. I got a chance to do some recruiting, visit some high schools in D.C., talking about 'Say No To Drugs' and telling them about Navy opportunities. That was an experience.

"The things that I've done in the last year have helped me tremendously and I've enjoyed it. It agreed with me. Plus, it allowed me to get ready for the Olympics so I really couldn't ask for much more."

For nearly a month, Robinson worked out at the U.S. Naval Academy, running, lifting weights and playing pickup basketball. It was the first serious training he's been through since last summer.

The first organized basketball Robinson played since the 1987 Pan Am Games was with a team representing the Navy in an Armed Services basketball tournament in mid-March.

"I came off my job after six or seven months ... I hadn't practiced. I hadn't played," said Robinson, who also played in two other amateur tournaments after the first one. "They had been practicing twice a day getting ready for these games.

"Then I came out in the first game. It was really frustrating. We were playing the Marines. I scored 13 points and I didn't play very well. I'm 7-1 and their tallest guy couldn't have been more than 6-8 or 6-9. It was frustrating because I knew I could play better than that.

"The next game we came out against Army and I only scored five points or something and I fouled out. That was probably my low point. I came back after that and started to play a little better, but I definitely needed to get in shape."

So it was back to Halsey Field House, where Robinson played for four years, becoming the 1987 College Player of the Year. As a senior at Navy, Robinson averaged 28.2 points, 11.8 rebounds and 4.5 blocked shots per game. He set or shared 33 records at Navy.

The workouts lasted four to five hours a day. Lifting weights, running sprints, swimming, anything Robinson could do to get his legs back.

"I've seen (Olympic coach) John Thompson's teams and I've seen the way they pressure for 40 minutes and they run up and down the court. That's just about all they do," Robinson said. "I knew I wasn't going to make the team if I wasn't in any kind of condition. I knew that's what I needed to work on through this month."

When Robinson took the floor for his first scrimmage at the Olympic tryout camp, it marked the end of some long, lonely workouts.

"I've been working out by myself for a while. I miss the guys. I think it makes it so much more fun to come out and work with all the guys," Robinson said. "When you're working by yourself, it's hard to keep your spirits up and keep yourself motivated all the time.

Even though he had a two-year commitment with the Navy facing him, Robinson was signed to an eight-year, $28 million contract by the San Antonio Spurs.

"All of my money goes to a trust fund. You can eat and have an apartment and all of that sort of thing so those allowances are made," he said.

As far as Robinson knows, the NBA will have to wait until his two-year hitch is up. He's not thinking about it.

"Right now, the Olympics are the main thing. The NBA is too far off," he said. "I know right now I'm just not ready for that. But I will be when the time comes."

Former champs seeking 12 spots

Indy Practice

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Former champions A.J. Foyt, Johnny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock head a list of about 20 drivers trying to wedge into 12 open spots in the Indianapolis 500 lineup.

They hope to get a chance when qualifications resume today.

The three veteran racers, all over 50, were on the 2½-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway oval Friday during the last full day of practice for the May 29 race, trying to find enough speed to climb into the field.

Twenty-one drivers, led by pole-winning Rick Mears, made the tentative lineup by completing four-lap, 10-mile qualification runs last Saturday and Sunday, the first of two weekends of time trials.

Once the 33-car field is full, the slowest of the qualified cars can be bumped out by faster cars until the track closes at 7 p.m. EDT Sunday.

The National Weather Service forecast mostly sunny weather with highs near 80 today and a chance of thundershowers on Sunday.

Rutherford, 50, crashed last Sunday during a practice lap, coming away with bruised ribs and a battered Lola race car. His crew finally got the car back together in time to get him on the track Friday, and Rutherford, aiming for his 24th Indy start, quickly got the rebuilt car up to 211.168 mph.

That was about 4 mph faster than the three-time Indy winner had been running before the crash.

"I guess the guys put something into it that it didn't have before," Rutherford said. "It feels pretty good. We're just going to keep working at it and get it in the field."

Foyt, 53, has three cars entered and spent time in two of them Friday, getting his own car up to 202.657 and his backup to a more substantial 208.972.

The four-time Indy winner, who is trying for his 31st consecutive start here, also has Lolas entered for old friend George Snider, who will attempt to qualify for his 23rd Indy start, and Rocky Moran.

Foyt, who cut short one qualifying attempt because of an engine problem and a second because of an enlarged tire last Saturday, said he is setting up his cars for race day now, and not for a special qualifying run.

"Now, what I'm going to qualify, I'll try to race," he said. "I don't think speed's going to be a problem."

Johncock, a two-time winner who didn't even get in a car until Monday, had his 1987 March up to 205.011 Friday.

"We're starting to get it together," Johncock said. "We had an oil seal problem the first day we went out, then we had an engine blow (Thursday). But we'll be okay. We'll be ready to qualify when the time comes."

Johncock, 51, will be aiming for his 22nd Indy race.

Among the other non-qualified drivers running strong on Friday were Pancho Carter, fast for the day at 213.878, Raul Boesel 213.068, Tony Bettenhausen at 211.515, rookie John Andretti 210.477, Steve Chassey 208.683, rookies Tero Palmroth of Finland 207.804 and Dominic Dobson 207.612, Howdy Holmes 207.600, rookie Billy Vukovich III 207.325, Ludwig Heimrath Jr. of Canada 207.086, Ed Pimm 206.753, Moran 201.612 and Johnny Parsons 201.072.

Veteran Gary Bettenhausen, Tony's brother, blew a new engine late in the day, closing the track eight minutes early. Snider and Tom Bigelow also went out, but failed to get above 200.

Mario Andretti, who will start on the inside of the second row in the race, got his backup Lola up to 212.314. Four other drivers took already-qualified cars onto the track to work on race setups. They were Jim Crawford, Phil Krueger, Dick Simon and Randy Lewis.

Scott Atchison, the slowest qualifier of the first weekend at 205.142, was released from Methodist Hospital Friday after an overnight stay for observation. The rookie from Bakersfield, Calif., became the seventh crash victim of the month on Thursday, badly damaging his backup car. Track officials said he will be allowed to resume practice on Sunday.

Parsons, the son of 1950 winner Johnnie Parsons, moved into the car entered here for rookie Harry Sauce, an Indiana county judge.

Indianapolis 500 winners

The Indianapolis 500, first run in 1951, is the most prestigious of all U.S. auto races. The race has been won four times by veteran drivers A.J. Foyt and Al Unser, and three times by Bobby Unser and Johnny Rutherford.

Waltrip snares Winston's pole

NASCAR

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip shattered the single-lap qualifying mark at the Charlotte Motor Speedway on Friday, grabbing the pole position for The Winston, NASCAR's winners-only event.

Waltrip, who won the first edition of The Winston in 1985, was clocked at 174.154 mph in his Chevrolet on an 85-degree day, breaking the track record of 171.860 set by Bobby Allison last October.

"We've been running pretty good all day (in practice)," Waltrip said. "I'm just tickled to death for everybody that works so hard on this car. We're going to be tough."

Waltrip's last pole position was in June 1986 at Riverside, Calif.

"I can run better yet," Waltrip said. "I got a little loose in Turn 3 ... but I thought I could run a 180 (mph lap), but we'll get that next week."

Waltrip, of Franklin, Tenn., was one of six drivers to break the track mark.

"We're ready to race," Waltrip said. "They're going to put the car in the truck and I'm not sure it will be back out until Sunday."

Joining Waltrip on the front row Sunday will be Geoff Bodine, who was clocked at 173.980 mph, also in a Chevrolet.

"We're a little disappointed," Bodine said. "We were hoping to get that 175 (mph) or a little bit more today, but conditions just weren't right for that type of speed.

"The track really isn't that bad. I was surprised," Bodine said, noting that drivers have been practicing on the track for a week. "The car is sticking pretty good."

The second row will consist of last year's winner, Dale Earnhardt, and Allison. Earnhardt toured the 1.5-mile track in 173.544 in his Chevrolet, while Allison was clocked at 172.695 in his Buick.

"The car was real comfortable," Earnhardt said. "We feel like we'll run a competitive race."

Bill Elliott, the 1986 winner, was clocked at 172.629 in his Ford, while Terry Labonte was at 171.914 in his Chevrolet.

Davey Allison, Ricky Rudd, Cale Yarborough and Rusty Wallace round out the top 10 qualifiers.

The 19th position in the three-segment race — 75 laps, 50 laps and a 10-lap shootout — will be determined by the winner of Sunday's Winston Open.

Tim Richmond, who also was invited to the race, must present NASCAR with medical records of his 1986 hospitalization for pneumonia in order to compete.

Tom Cotter, a spokesman for Charlotte Motor Speedway, said Richmond has yet to file for entry, but has until race time Sunday to do so.

The King of NASCAR Winston Cup racing has been humbled — for the time being.

Richard Petty, the 50-year-old winner of 200 races, won't be participating in the $600,000 The Winston all-star race at the Charlotte Motor Speedway Sunday unless he can capture the Winston Open — the race's companion event.

Petty was bumped from the 20-car field of recent winners when Phil Parsons won the Winston 500 at Talladega, Ala., three weeks ago.

However, Petty isn't looking for a handout.

"If they (NASCAR) are going to have a race for winners, that's the way it should be," Petty said.

Indy 500 great event for Sullivan

By DANNY SULLIVAN
For The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis 500 is the greatest race in the world. That's a pretty big statement, but the numbers and the history of the event more than back it up.

Like all the great events in sport, Indy has a tradition and a history which set it apart. It's like the Masters, or the Kentucky Derby, an annual event at the same site.

Even people who don't follow racing always watch the Indy 500. Offices have pools. There are over 250,000 permanent seats here, plus the infield area where I watched my first race here in 1967.

A lot of the people in the infield catch only glimpses of race cars, but they still have a great time by being part of the scene at the largest one day sporting event in the world.

If the Indianapolis 500 didn't exist, we would need to invent it.

The first thing you see when you enter the Speedway is the Indianapolis Hall of Fame and Museum. I always figured the reason was to make you appreciate the cars and drivers who had preceded the current competitors before seeing the new cars and modern heroes.

Racing is built on a pyramid. For every driver here at Indy, there are hundreds of drivers in national amateur classes and thousands competing on the local and regional level. Indianapolis is the absolute top of the pyramid.

Only 50 drivers have won the Indianapolis 500. Win here once and you are forever titled. It's a little like being knighted. Everywhere you go the rest of your life, you will be introduced as an Indianapolis 500 winner.

Suddenly your time is no longer your own. You get to meet thousands of people, go places you never imagined you would visit and, best of all you get to put your name with the other winners of the biggest race in the world.

No other event matches the intensity of the Indianapolis 500. One day, a single three-hour race, can mean the fulfillment of your dreams, the success of your career, or maybe even its end. Each year, there is but one day, one shot. No two-of-threes or four-out-of-sevens here.

I think part of the reason that there is so much interest in the Indy 500 is because there is so much drama here. Every driver has a story, but you have to wait until the last lap to see how it ends.

Last weekend, my Penske Racing teammates Rick Mears and Al Unser and I were part of something historic as we became the first team in history to sweep the front row in Indianapolis. After our struggles here last year, it was a very sweet day for the entire Penske team.

Of course, we didn't celebrate too long. Sunday morning, we were out at he track for the traditional front row photo session and then we ran over 350 miles in tests throughout the day.

So far this month, I've run nearly 1,000 miles in testing and practice here.

When the 72nd running of the Indianapolis 500 starts on May 29, we don't want to be wondering if we could have done a bit more testing or worked a little harder. We want to know that we have done everything we possibly can to prepare to win the race. That's how you get to the top of the pyramid.

Bob Charles fires tourney record 63 for Seniors lead

SCARBOROUGH-ON-HUDSON, N.Y. (AP) — Bob Charles shot a tournament record 7-under-par 63 Friday to take the first-round lead in the $300,000 Commemorative Tournament.

The 52-year-old New Zealand native, winless in nine events on the PGA Senior Tour this year, had an eagle, six birdies and a bogey at the 6,545-yard Sleepy Hollow Country Club to take a two-shot lead over Larry Mowry.

Mowry was the first-round leader last year, but finished in a tie for seventh.

Chick Evans, a rookie playing his sixth event on the Senior Tour, was tied for third at 66 with Charles Coody.

Harold Henning, Bruce Crampton and Jim Ferree were next at 67.

Art Silvestrone, Don Massengale, Miller Barber and Kel Nagle were tied at 68. In all, 22 players matched or bettered par.

Gene Littler, the defending champion, three-putted three consecutive on the front nine and finished at even-par 70.

The 63 by Charles erased the old mark of 64 set in 1986 by Chi Chi Rodriguez, Lee Elder and Buck Adams.

Aggies nail Baylor, 6-1

SWC Baseball

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Scott Livingstone belted his 13th homer of the year to help Texas A&M to a 6-1 victory over Baylor in the Southwest Conference baseball tournament Friday night at George Cole Field.

The win improves the Aggies to 50-11 and moves the team into the championship round. Baylor fell to 25-30. The Bears face the Longhorns of Texas in an elimination-round game at 1 p.m. today.

In an earlier game Friday, Texas eliminated Arkansas from the tournament with a 7-1 victory.

In the night game, the Aggies had a pair of three-run rallies in the third and fifth innings.

Second baseman Terry Taylor blasted a two-run homer in the third and doubled later to lead the Aggies' attack.

Junior lefthander Fred Riscen, 3-0, picked up the pitching victory as he struck out six and walked two in six innings of work. Relief man Anthony DeLaCruz earned his third save of the year with three innings of shutout pitching.

Baylor starter Bruce Aguilar, now 7-3, was tagged with the loss.

Three Baylor players — Trent Weaver, Chad Patterson and Joe Guidry — each collected two hits while the lone Bears' run came in the first on a throwing error.

In the Texas-Arkansas matchup, Freshman righthander Kirk Dressendorfer of Pearland, Texas, fired a four-hitter to advance to 14-2 for the Longhorns, now 52-9.

In the process, he tied school and conference records for pitching victories by a freshman, set by Texas' Greg Swindell in 1984. Dressendorfer struck out seven and walked one while allowing Arkansas only run in the sixth.

Razorback catcher Jimmy Kremers singled in Billy Dawson with that run as Arkansas dropped to 39-21. The Razorbacks retained hopes of getting an at-large NCAA Region berth.

A pair of run-producing doubles by catcher Brian Johnson helped the Longhorns to their win. Johnson batted in three runs with the doubles and also had a single.

Righthander Mike Oquist, 3-4, started for the Razorbacks and absorbed the loss. The Longhorns got seven hits off three Arkansas pitchers.

Oilers' Gretzky sinks Bruins again

Stanley Cup Playoffs

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Wayne Gretzky, who set up Edmonton's first two goals, scored the game-winner with 8:39 to play Friday night, giving the Oilers a 4-2 victory over the Boston Bruins and a two-game lead in the Stanley Cup finals.

Gretzky set up first-period power-play goals by Glenn Anderson and Mark Messier, and it looked like that would be enough after the Oilers slowed Boston's attack to a standstill for the first two periods.

But Bob Joyce gave the Bruins life when he beat Edmonton goaltender Grant Fuhr with a slapshot from the top of the left circle 35 seconds into the third period. Ex-Oiler Ken Linseman tied it at 3:16, backhanding his own rebound behind Fuhr.

But the Oilers regained control of the tempo and Esa Tikkanen set up the winning goal, stealing a pass just inside the Boston blue line and relaying the puck to Gretzky, alone in the slot. Gretzky deked Boston goaltender Rejean Lemelin to the ice and backhanded the puck under his stick.

Jari Kurri scored into an empty net with seven seconds to play for the final margin.

The series moves to Boston for Games 3 and 4 Sunday and Tuesday nights.

The Oilers, who limited Boston to just 14 shots in Game 1, were even more stingy in Game 2, outshooting Boston 31-12 and stifling the Bruins' attack for all but the early part of the third period in winning their 10th straight home playoff game this year.

The Oilers took a 2-0 first-period lead on almost identical plays set up by Gretzky, the all-time playoff leader with 243 points. Both goals came when the Oilers had a two-man advantage.

The first came at 15:57, when Gretzky put the puck on net from the deep slot and Anderson deflected it through Lemelin's pads.

With the goal, Anderson moved past Phil Esposito into sole possession of 10th place on the all-time playoff goal-scoring list with 62. The point also moved him past Jacques Lemaire into ninth place on the points list with 140.

The Oilers needed only nine seconds with the two-man advantage to score their first goal. It took them 24 seconds to score once they got another two-man advantage in the final minute.

This time, Messier, standing a few feet to the left of Lemelin, made a spectacular deflection of Gretzky's blast from about 40 feet, tipping the puck into the top of the net with 30 seconds left in the period.

Prior to the opening goal, the Oilers had wasted three power-play opportunites, although one lasted only three seconds.

All-Star dream fades as O'Brien hits slump

ARLINGTON (AP) — Playing in an All-Star Game may have to remain a dream for Pete O'Brien.

This seems to be a good year for the Texas Rangers' first baseman to make the American League All-Star team for the July 12 game in Cincinnati. Minnesota's Kent Hrbek has said he won't play if selected, and Baltimore's troubles have put five-time All-Star Eddie Murray in a funk.

But while O'Brien may have been the Rangers' saving grace during April, his statistics have fallen off in May. Meanwhile, the cast of outstanding first basemen in the AL have started rolling up numbers.

O'Brien goes into a six-game homestand against Minnesota and Toronto hitting .309, but six other first basemen have passed him statistically.

"It would be nice to do, but it's something that really I don't have much control over," O'Brien said. "I've kind of resigned myself that I could never be voted into an All-Star game. For me to get into an All-Star Game, I have to go above and beyond what is considered good.

"I need to get right again and put up a nice month and a half, five weeks, like I was playing at the beginning of the year," he told the Dallas Times Herald. "If that happens, you have to see who they need, who it comes down to picking to fill out the team."

O'Brien, 30, in his sixth season with the Rangers, ranks in the second tier of AL first basemen, behind superstars Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees and Murray.

Some observers say he has been bypassed by relative newcomers Mark McGwire of Oakland and Wally Joyner of California, and is jockeying for position alongside Hrbek, Alvin Davis of Seattle and perhaps Darrell Evans of Detroit.

George Brett shifted to first base at Kansas City late last season. Even Toronto's second-year first baseman, Fred McGriff, could outshine O'Brien's achievements, which one day might rank him as the most productive player in Rangers history.

"He's in a tough position," teammate Charlie Hough said. "He's an All-Star for us, a legitimate star, but he's not a 40-plus homer guy, he's not a .350 hitter and he hasn't driven in 100 runs every year. There are guys who do some things bigger than him — some things — but not the overall game. I'd like to see him make an All-Star team. He deserves it."

O'Brien's and Hough's play has been the most consistent element of the Rangers since O'Brien took the position from Dave Hostetler in 1983.

O'Brien has yet to have the banner year offensively he says he feels he has in him, yet he ranks among the club's all-time top five in games (828), hits (807), doubles (140), homers (105) and runs batted in (430).

All four ahead of him in those categories — Larry Parrish, Buddy Bell, Toby Harrah and Jim Sundberg — have been invited to at least one All-Star Game. But they weren't first basemen in an era where it seems almost every team has a star at the position.

"There's pretty good talent at first," O'Brien said.

Former Angels beat Clemens

AL Roundup

Associated Press

BOSTON — Former Midland Angels DeWayne Buice and Bryan Harvey combined to defeat Cy Young winner Roger Clemens as California rolled to a 4-2 victory over Boston Friday night.

Chico Walker led off the 10th with a walk, just the second issued by Clemens, 6-2. Butch Wynegar fouled off a bunt attempt and then lined a double to right as Walker scored easily. Mark McLemore's run-scoring single made it 4-2. McLemore is another former Midland Angel.

Clemens, 6-2, walked only two while raising his major league-leading strikeout total to 102.

Buice, 1-2, who replaced starter Chuck Finley at the start off the eighth, got the victory. Harvey pitched the 10th for his second save.

The Angels ended Clemens' scoreless streak at 19 innings with two runs in the second. But the Red Sox scored an unearned run off him without a hit to tie the score 2-2.

Clemens, who threw three-hit shutouts at Kansas City and Seattle last week and had not allowed a run for 18 innings, allowed eight hits and struck out nine.

The Angels combined three hits to overcome a 1-0 deficit in the second. Chili Davis led off with a double and took third on Jack Howell's single off the wall in left field. After Chico Walker struck out, Butch Wynegar hit a ground ball directly to third baseman Wade Boggs. Boggs fumbled it, costing him any chance at a double play, then threw out Wynegar as Davis scored.

Schofield then tripled, scoring Howell.

Finley allowed seven hits, walked five and hit a batter.

Athletics 11, Yankees 3

NEW YORK — Carney Lansford, the major league's leading hitter, had four singles, Dave Parker homered and Ron Hassey drove in three runs as the Oakland Athletics beat the New York Yankees 11-3 in the first meeting of the AL division leaders.

Lansford now is batting .396. Dave Henderson got three hits, including a pair of doubles, and Glenn Hubbard also had three hits in the 14-hit attack. Bob Welch improved to 7-2 as the Athletics, with the best record in baseball at 29-11, won for the 14th time in their last 16 road games.

Welch had faced the Yankees four previous times, in the 1978 and 1981 World Series. He was 0-1 with a 10.39 ERA against New York in those appearances.

Oakland, eight games ahead of Texas in the AL West, continued its clutch hitting. The Athletics are batting .321 with runners in scoring position.

Oakland has scored 237 runs this season, one more than New York and most in the majors. The Yankees, leading the AL East going in, and the Athletics began tied for the first in the league with .272 batting averages.

John, who turns 45 on Sunday and is the oldest player in the majors, fell to 22-18 lifetime against Oakland. He has beaten the Athletics more than any team in his career.

Blue Jays 3, Brewers 1

MILWAUKEE — Jim Clancy got his first victory in a month and Lloyd Moseby homered as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the slumping Milwaukee Brewers.

Clancy, 2-4 and winless in his five previous starts, struck out six and gave up seven hits before giving way to reliever David Wells with one out in the seventh after a single by Jim Gantner and double by Paul Molitor.

Royals 4, Indians 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Bo Jackson's two-out double in the eighth inning scored Bill Pecota with the winning run as the Kansas City Royals edged the Cleveland Indians.

The Royals, who prevented Cleveland from moving into first place in the American League East, had blown a 3-1 lead. But Bill Buckner's infield single in the eighth was followed by Jackson's double off the left-field wall off John Farrell, 4-3.

Steve Farr then pitched the ninth for his second save.

Tigers 14, White Sox 6

CHICAGO — Alan Trammell hit an upper-deck homer, a double and two singles in leading the Detroit Tigers to a trouncing of the Chicago White Sox.

Ray Knight and Darrell Evans each had three of the Tigers' 20 hits. It was Detroit's third straight victory and Chicago's fifth loss in a row, their longest losing streak of the year.

Frank Tanana, 7-2, gave up three runs and three hits — all in the fourth inning.

Detroit got a pair of runs in the first off Jerry Reuss, 2-2, when Tom Brookens doubled, Luis Salazar walked and Trammell and Chet Lemon followed with RBI singles.

Mariners 3, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE — Alvin Davis singled home Harold Reynolds in the eighth inning lifting Seattle to a victory over Baltimore.

Reynolds reached first on an error by second baseman Billy Ripken to open the inning, and advanced on a sacrifice bunt and an infield out before Davis' single.

Mark Langston, 4-3, worked into the eighth inning, leaving after a leadoff walk to Fred Lynn. Mike Jackson pitched two scoreless innings for his first save of the season.

Rain Saves Rangers

ARLINGTON — The American League game between the Minnesota Twins and Texas Rangers was postponed because of rain with Minnesota leading 2-0. The teams will make up the game with a doubleheader Sunday.

Astros' Hatcher produces five hits

NL Roundup

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Former Midland Cub Billy Hatcher went 5-for-5, including a tie-breaking RBI single in the ninth inning, and unbeaten Bob Knepper won his sixth game as the Houston Astros beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 Friday night for their fourth straight victory.

Loser Scott Terry, 2-2, walked pinch-hitter Terry Puhl to open the ninth with the score tied 2-2. After Gerald Young's sacrifice moved Puhl to second, Todd Worrell relieved Terry and gave up a run-scoring single to Hatcher on his first pitch.

Kevin Bass and Rafael Ramirez added two-out RBI singles to make it 5-2.

The Cardinals, who had a four-game winning streak snapped, scored a run with two outs in the ninth on Tom Brunansky's double. But with men on second and third, Dave Smith got Bob Horner on a fly out to right to end the game, picking up his ninth save of the season.

Hatcher had five singles, two RBI, scored one run and stole a base.

Knepper had a shutout until the eighth inning, when he gave up a two-run homer to catcher Tony Pena. He leads the National League with an earned-run average of 0.89.

There were seven errors in the game, four of them by Houston.

The Astros took a 1-0 lead in the first when Hatcher singled and scored on Jim Pankovits' double. They made it 2-0 in the seventh when Young singled, took third on a steal and Pena's throwing error, and scored on Hatcher's infield single.

St. Louis starter Larry McWilliams went six innings, giving up six hits and one run.

The Cardinals loaded the bases with one out in the third, but Horner fouled out and Pena grounded into a forceout to end the inning.

Pirates 10, Braves 3

Former Midland Cub Mike Diaz drove in three runs with his first two hits of the season as Pittsburgh snapped a five-game losing streak.

Diaz had been 0-for-9 since coming off the disabled list earlier this month. He had torn a ligament in his thumb during spring training.

Junior Ortiz also drove in three runs for the Pirates, who scored three runs each in the first, third and fourth innings off Braves starter Tom Glavine, 1-6.

Mike Dunne, 2-2, picked up his first win since opening day. He allowed nine hits and three runs over 7⅔ innings, struck out four and walked three. Dunne was on the disabled list from April 6 through April 28 with a muscle strain in his left side.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead in the first on Andres Thomas' third homer of the season. But the Pirates came back with three runs in their half of the inning.

Barry Bonds singled to lead off the Pirates first and Andy Van Slyke followed one out later with an infield single, breaking an 0-for-18 slump. Consecutive singles by Bobby Bonilla and Diaz produced two runs before Ortiz's sacrifice fly made it 3-1.

Walks to Van Slyke and Diaz and third baseman Ken Oberkfell's error loaded the bases in the third. Ortiz then drove in two runs with a double and Felix Fermin drove in another run with a sacrifice fly to make it 6-1.

Glavine left the game after giving up a two-run single to Diaz in the fourth. Reliever Juan Eichelberger then gave up an RBI single to Randy Milligan before getting Ortiz to hit into an inning-ending double play.

The Braves are 1-8 in Glavine's nine starts this season. He has given up 24 runs, 22 of them earned, in his last nine innings and the Braves have allowed 47 runs in his last six starts.

Gerald Perry singled home a run in the sixth to extend his hitting streak to nine games. The Braves scored their final run in the eighth on an RBI groundout by Ozzie Virgil.

Reds 7, Cubs 2

CINCINNATI — Paul O'Neill drove in three runs and Mario Soto won the 100th game of his career.

Soto, 3-2, allowed five hits, three of them by first baseman Mark Grace. He struck out six and walk one in his third complete game of the season.

Reds rookie Jeff Treadway had three hits, extending his hitting streak to 13 games. O'Neill hit two hits, including a homer, and scored three runs.

The Reds scored four runs on five hits in the second inning.

Buddy Bell singled and scored on O'Neill's second homer of the season. The Reds then loaded the bases on singles by Treadway and Terry McGriff and a walk to Kal Daniels, his league-leading 30th of the season. Barry Larkin drove in two more runs with a ground-rule double.

Longing for days of corked bats, juiced-up balls

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Forget those corked bats and juiced-up balls. The only thing lively this season is the debate about the lack of home runs.

Mike Schmidt isn't hitting them. Neither is Eric Davis or George Bell. The Baltimore Orioles and Chicago Cubs aren't connecting, either.

Home runs, which increased at a record rate last year, have decreased by an ever greater margin this spring. The drop is at 25 percent and the drain has affected most of baseball's top sluggers.

"I'm still a long way from where I want to be," said Schmidt, who has hit four homers, compared to 13 at this time last May.

Davis was leading the majors with 15 a year ago. Now, he's stuck at six.

"They're not giving me pitches to hit, and I'm trying to force the issue instead of staying back and just waiting," Davis said. "I'm going to have to play a waiting game, I guess."

Most teams are still waiting for more home runs. Of the 26 clubs, 22 have hit fewer homers.

Baltimore, which led with 63 home runs at this point last year, has hit a puny 23. The Cubs, who were second with 53, are down to 34.

Baseball Notebook

California has dropped from 46 to 20, Boston has dipped from 40 to 17, Atlanta 42 to 21 and San Francisco 51 to 29.

Only Kansas City, Pittsburgh, Seattle and the Chicago White Sox have shown increases, with Chicago's rise from 32 to 41 being the biggest improvement.

"Everybody was saying last year that the ball was juiced up. This year, I haven't seen any of that," Royals batting coach Mike Lum said.

Overall, through 265 games in the American League, there were 461 home runs this season instead of 594 last year, a drop of 22 percent. After 225 games in the National League, there were 317 as opposed to 446 last season, down 29 percent.

A total of 4,458 homers were hit in 1987, a 17 percent increase over the then-record 3,813 in 1986. Eight clubs set team records last season. Of the 226 players with at least three years' experience, 50 established career-highs with lightweights such as Rafael Santana and Luis Aguayo leading the way.

But these days, even big boppers like Eddie Murray and Jesse Barfield are looking like weak-swinging shortstops. Kurt Stillwell, Kansas City's shortstop, is one of the few who has done well, having hit a career-best five homers after just four in 674 previous at-bats.

"Home runs are down everywhere. We don't know why," said Seymour Siwoff of the Elias Sports Bureau, which compiles major league statistics.

Strikeouts, which often parallel home runs, are also down this year after last season's record totals, but not so significantly. Batting averages, meanwhile, are slightly up.

"Maybe the weather is a factor with the home runs," Siwoff said. "It's been cool, and the dampness affects the ball."

There have already been 29 games postponed because of bad weather, compared to 27 for all of last season. Many games have been played in poor conditions, although not enough to account for such a huge homer disparity.

Most people figure it's a combination of reasons.

"I think pitchers are a year older and more experienced," Rangers starter Charlie Hough said. "The ball might have been a little juiced. I think the higher strike zone might be a factor."

Umpires have been instructed to call higher strikes, but the difference has not be noticeable. At least, not like balks.

Many still believe a lively ball caused home runs to jump last season. They claim changes this year have resulted in a return to something resembling the Dead Ball Era.

"Maybe the ball is not juiced up as much. I saw too many right-handed hitters putting the ball into the right-field stands last year, guys who don't have that type of power," Boston manager John McNamara said. "The good power hitters are going to get their share of homers all the time."

Mark McGwire, who hit 49 home runs last season as a rookie and tied Andre Dawson for most in the majors, is tied with Kent Hrbek for tops with 11. McGwire had 13 at this point last May.

Dawson, Darryl Strawberry, Barry Bonds and Bobby Bonilla lead the NL with 10.

But Bell, who hit 47 last year and had 10 at this time, is struggling with six — including three on opening day. Dale Murphy has dropped from 11 to five, Murray from 11 to four and Barfield 10 to three.

At this rate, home runs will not be the only thing to drop. Historically, scoring has affected attendance: when home runs go up, fans show up — and vice-versa.

Maybe that means it's time to put some more zip in the horsehide.

"Evidently, they decided to start messing around with the balk and the strike zone instead of the baseball this year," Minnesota pitching coach Dick Such said. "Over the years, even in the early 1970s, they've tried to use different balls. I believe you can do anything with the ball you want to."

Cougs defeat Coronado

Last seen, Andrews-Canyon still playing

From Staff Reports

Abilene Cooper defeated El Paso Coronado 5-2 in Game 1 of a best-of-three series Friday night while the Andrews Mustangs fought more with Mother Nature than their opponents.

Cooper, the district 4-5A runner-up, and Coronado will complete their series this afternoon with an 11 a.m. game, followed by a third game, if needed. The series winner advances to regional action against Duncanville.

Andrews and Canyon, playing in a Class 4A bi-district game, were delayed by rain in the top of the third inning with Canyon leading 4-0. The two teams began play at the Texas Tech baseball field at 6 p.m. Friday before the rains came. Play was expected to begin again at 11 p.m. Friday night at Lubbock Christian University, following the completion of the Hereford-Pecos game. LCU's artificial surface would make playing conditions more acceptable for the completion of the first game.

Cooper's Scott Malone had a two-run double in the bottom of the first to put the Cougar's ahead 2-0. Coronado never caught up with Cooper after Malone's shot and the Cooper lead was extended to 4-0 before Coronado was able to muster its first run.

Despite a severe bout with the stomach flu, which has caused him to miss two days of school this week, Cooper starting pitcher Jason Satre went the distance, allowing only two hits. Satre also hit two Coronado batsmen.

Prep Playoffs

In an unusual statistic, through two playoff appearances, Satre has hit three batters and allowed only two hits.

Victor Marquez collected both hits and drove in a run for Coronado.

Cooper's Phil Carpenter went 3-for-3 with a double and two runs scored; Malone finished 1-for-3 wirh 2 RBI.

Approximately 1,000 fans witnessed the game, which was marred by threatening weather conditions, including a thunderstorm, and steady rain through the first five innings.

Cooper advanced to the area round after sweeping Lubbock Monterey last weekend. The series clincher against Monterey featured a no-hitter by Satre, who came within one walk of pitching a perfect game through five innings. That deciding contest was called in the fifth due to the 10-run rule as Cooper went on to a 10-0 victory.

If Cooper goes on to capture the series, the regional round between the Cougars and Duncanville will be a rematch of last year's state quarterfinals, a series which Cooper won en route to its state championship.

Cooper's Lance Grider is set to start against Coronado in Saturday's first game.

Students make discovery at Sun company

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

About two dozen Sun Exploration Co. employees made a startling discovery this week while conducting office tours for second and third grade students.

The visit, which celebrated the end of a year-long tutorial program involving Sun employees and children enrolled at Casa de Amigos, included a first-time elevator ride for many of the students.

"What surprised us the most was that some of these kids had never been in an elevator before. The ride up and down was really a thrill for them," said Roxanne Parks, district coordinator of environmental affairs.

Ms. Parks explained that the purpose of the field trip was to give the elementary school-aged children a first-hand look at what their tutors do for a living.

"They've worked with us twice a week for the past year and a lot of them were curious to know what we do. This way they got to see for themselves," she said of the tour that invited students to observe computer demonstrations, peek through a microscope and have a seat at the chief executive's desk.

To their delight, the children were also treated to a geological sample, plastic visor, T-shirt and personalized computer calendar. Company officials topped off the tour with a cake and ice cream party in the employee lounge.

"We were trying to think of something to do on the last day (of the tutoring session) and it sort of mushroomed," said Manager Bruce Welborn, who gave his employees the OK to take an hour off from work each week to participate in the program.

Sun employees took a liking to the tutoring program following a United Way-sponsored tour of Casa last September. The organization, whose headquarters are based in east Midland, offers one-on-one tutorials to children and adults in need of perfecting their reading, math, spelling and English skills.

Most of the students, said Ms. Parks, come from low-income families, the majority of which are Hispanic.

The list of Sun volunteers included 16 geologists, engineers, accountants, including department heads. Another nine employees registered as substitute tutors.

In the end, the children "developed an incredible bond with their tutors," Ms. Parks said. "It's almost like they were their big brothers and big sisters."

Gunmen abduct woman, son

DALLAS (AP) — Three armed men abducted a mother and her 3-year-old son from a residence in southeast Dallas Friday, and a man who interrupted the struggle was shot to death, police said.

David Wilborn, 25, described by witnesses as a family friend, was found dead at the scene, said Dallas detective Linda Irwin.

Witnesses told police that three men carrying guns forced their way into the house of Evelyn Banks, said Lt. Ron Waldrop.

Wilborn entered the house afterward and was shot, and an unidentified man ran out of the house and yelled to neighbors to call police, Waldrop said.

Cambodians' fears of possible quake force many to leave state

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A recent powerful earthquake and an unfounded prediction of a devastating temblor have spurred many Cambodian refugees to leave Southern California, members of the community said Friday.

Fears have been widespread in the community since a quake Oct. 1 that measured 5.9 on the Richter scale, and were revived by recent publicity about a purported prediction by the 16th-century seer Nostradamus that Los Angeles would be destroyed by a temblor.

"How many people are leaving for this I really don't know. But people are talking about it. People are leaving, are scared," said Than Pok, executive director of United Cambodian Community, a center for immigrant education and vocational training that serves about 10,000 people a year.

One reported estimate put the number of Cambodians who have fled at 2,000.

"My real gut feeling — 1,000 may be more realistic," Than said.

An estimated 35,000 Cambodian refugees live in Southern California, mainly in Long Beach. It is the largest Cambodian community in the nation. Most came after the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia in 1979, Than said.

Until last October there had been no significant earthquake or other natural disaster in the Los Angeles area in the time since the Cambodians arrived.

The reaction to the October quake is based in Cambodian culture, Than said. "The Cambodian culture is a mixture of Buddhism, Hinduism and animistic belief. They believe in the super (natural) power, the storm, the earthquake, the fire, the flood. So this theory is in the back of their mind. They think they cannot control; they just fear," he said.

Ben Kelly, director of the Department of Social Services in Fresno County, 200 miles northwest of Los Angeles, said that 343 people of Cambodian ethnicity have been added to the welfare lists since last October.

"That is unusual growth," he said, although he did not know whether quake fears were behind the influx.

Namany Keam, operator of the private Cambodian Translation Bureau, said she did not know anyone who had moved, but there has been a great deal of talk about people leaving to join friends and relatives in such places as Arizona or Washington.

"Everybody is scared. Some of them just move.... They'd rather go to the cold states than the earthquake state," she said.

Impetus to the exodus apparently also came from publicity about a video, "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow," in which a filmmaker interpreted a vague prediction by Nostradamus to mean Los Angeles would be destroyed by an earthquake in May.

The purported prediction was dismissed both by scientists and experts on Nostradamus.

"Cambodian culture really believes that...somone can tell the future," Ms. Keam said. "When they talk about the fortune teller in the newspaper and TV, they really believe."

Than agreed that such fears can be triggered by things such as children being put through earthquake drills at school and the frequent discussion of earthquake preparedness in California.

"This kind of thing, unless you make an effort to communicate to people, they're never going to understand it," he said.

Than said he wasn't certain whether the refugees were leaving permanently.

Vora Kanthoul, associate executive director of United Cambodian Community's Orange County office in Santa Ana, said, "There are some fears around. To actually leave because of that fear, there's only a small percentage."

Fitzwater says column 'foolish'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House dismissed as "foolish" a report Friday that the administration is trying to determine whether telephone calls between first lady Nancy Reagan and her San Francisco astrologer had been intercepted by Soviet spies.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "If the Soviets wanted to monitor White House phone calls to get information on the president, there are thousands of calls a day from White House staff of more significance (than Mrs. Reagan's).

"The most definitive information they're likely to get (from Mrs. Reagan's calls) is how many pizzas are ordered by the first family," he joked. He said the column by Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta "seems foolish to me."

On a more serious note, he said Mrs. Reagan does not have or use a secure telephone, designed to prevent conversations from being overheard.

Elaine Crispen, the first lady's press secretary, said Mrs. Reagan routinely places her calls through the White House switchboard.

The Soviet consulate in San Francisco can listen in on long-distance microwave-transmitted telephone calls coming into that city, the column said.

The Soviets would, however, have to recognize and select the calls from an immense volume of telephone traffic.

Unnamed sources in the White House, CIA and National Security Council said they have been asked to conduct the investigation without telling President Reagan for fear of offending him, according to the column.

On To Maturity

The writer of Hebrews' phrase, "let us . . . go on to maturity" (Hebs. 6:1) has meaning for all people, especially that long-suffering group of people known as parents. I'm convinced Mark Twain put his finger on what causes parents to suffer when he said,

"When I was fourteen I thought my dad was the most ignorant man in the world. But when I became twenty-one I was amazed how much the old man had learned in seven short years."

That reality of such an experience not only causes pain in parents, it also produces maturity, because maturity comes from being able to survive some of the frustrations that come from parenting children, especially during teenage years.

Yet, when the children follow Hebrews' advice and "go on to maturity," then the parents experience a growing maturity that comes precisely because they have hung-with the growing children.

And both children and parents ultimately come to know the joy of being family, of being "maturing family."

Church to have groundbreaking

Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 West Michigan, will celebrate a sanctuary groundbreaking ceremony at 4:00 p.m. on Sunday. Following the ceremony, a fish fry, sponsored by the church's Fellowship Committee and Bob Christensen, will be held on the church grounds.

The new sanctuary will seat approximately 375 people, including the choir loft, and will feature a moveable seating arrangement which will enable the church to host many local and district functions. The addition will be joined to the current church facility by a narthex and a visitation area, and the present sanctuary will be converted into a fellowship hall.

Construction of the new sanctuary will begin within the next 10 to fourteen days with a proposed completion date of December 1, 1988.

Midland Lutheran Church was established in 1952 and the Michigan Avenue church was built in 1953 with Erling Peterson serving as pastor.

In 1985 the membership voted to "Arise...and Build" an addition to the present church. Bill Benson and Associates, of Dallas, were hired as architects at that time. Church Builders, Inc. of Fort Worth, will serve as construction managers of the addition.

The church's Building Task Force committee is made up of Bernard Lankford, chairman; Audni Hacke, Jim Nicholson, Pat Orseth, Herman Porsch, Carol Reinert and Bill Skinner. Pastors Charles Meyer and Danny Koenig serve as pastors responsible on the committee.

Midland Lutheran Church is a member of the Northern Texas — Northern Louisiana Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. For more information concerning worship services and church activities call 694-1373.

Publishing company to print between 10-15 million Bibles

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The United Methodist Publishing House plans its largest press run ever this summer — for the Southern Baptists.

The publishing house will print from 10 million to 15 million New Testaments for the Baptist Sunday School Board, officials said Thursday.

"This will be one of the largest religious press runs ever, though it's always hard to prove it's the largest," said Jim Lowry, Sunday School Board spokesman.

The United Methodist Publishing House and the Baptist board are among the largest church publishing firms in the world.

Cliff Goodlett, media relations coordinator for the publishing house, said the publisher has printed materials for the Southern Baptists before, but nothing of this magnitude. The previous high was in 1984, when the publishing house printed 1.1 million New Testaments for the board.

"We normally print between 100,000 to 200,000 books a year," Goodlett said.

The Baptist and United Methodist publishing agencies have a history of cooperation, going back to the 1890s when the Methodist house gave rent-free space to the fledgling Sunday School Board as the Baptists were building their plant here.

Lowry said the Baptists plan to distribute all copies of the run in 1989.

"It's part of our 1989-90 denominational plans for Scripture distribution and simultaneous revivals nationwide," he said.

The New Testaments will be sold at cost to the Baptist associations across the country for distribution to local churches. The churches, in turn, will distribute the testaments in their communities and in a series of "simultaneous revivals" to be held next April.

The Southern Baptists make up the nation's largest Protestant group in the country.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Methodists begin new needy ministry

The United Methodist churches of the Midland community will begin a new ministry to the needy this week.

Located in a portion of the building of Asbury UMC, 907 S. Loraine, the new ministry office will be open each weekday morning and early Tuesday evenings. The office will be staffed by Linda Moore, fulltime director, and volunteers from the churches.

The purpose of the agency, which is being called Area Methodist Outreach Service, is assistance to needy residents of Midland. The primary help given will be food.

As items become available, there will be blankets, clothing and shoes for children, clothing for women and babies and work clothes and boots for men.

A special celebration service will take place at 4 p.m. Sunday in the sanctuary of Asbury UMC. After that event, the new facility will be opened for inspection, and refreshments will be served.

The public, especially UM members, are invited to attend. Residents who have needs which might be met are encouraged to apply, beginning Monday morning.

Reverend visiting area

Caudill

The Diocese of the Southwest of the American Episcopal Church has announced that the Rt. Rev. H. Edwin Caudill is visiting churches in the Permian Basin area today and Sunday.

The bishop will celebrate the Holy Eucharist at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Midland, at 5 p.m. Sunday.

A dinner will be held following the services to honor the bishop and his wife, Mavis.

Today and Sunday morning, the Caudills will be in Hobbs visiting the Church of the Holy Trinity where Caudill will deliver the sermon Sunday morning. Mrs. Caudill will instruct Sunday School personnel in classroom techniques.

St. Paul's Anglican Church meets at 5 p.m. Sundays at 3800 Bluebird Lane at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd under the direction of the Rev. Charles E. Hageman. Services use the 1928 Book of Common Prayer.

Home emphasis planned

Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas Ave., is hosting Christian Home Emphasis Events through June 19.

Coming are such events as "Bind Us Together," Sunday; "Circle of Two/What a Friend We Have in Jesus," June 12; Family Ministries Testimony, June 5; Children's Day, June 12; Marriage and Family Film Series, beginning at 6 p.m. June 12; and "Men's Cake Bake," Father's Day, June 19.

In addition, the church is offering a Financial Freedom Seminar, June 24-25.

For more information call the church.

Deacon ordination set

Emmanuel Baptist Church, 1800 E. Cherry Lane, is hosting a Deacon Ordination Service for Adam Ramos, Roman Hernandez and Damacio Rodriquez at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Guest speakers will be the Rev. Mateo Rendon Jr., pastor of Iglesia Bautista Jerusalem, Odessa; the Rev. Joe Torres, pastor of Iglesia Bautista Central, Big Spring; and Dr. Jimmy Law, director of Missions for Midland, Odessa, Pecos Valley Baptist Associations.

Classes center on temple

Sheehy

Members of the West Texas District of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints met this past weekend at the Holiday Inn T-Dome.

Guest minister was Howard "Bud" Sheehy, from the offices of the First Presidency of the church. Classes for adults and children centered on the topic of the temple. Headquarters for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is in Independence, Mo.

"The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints received recent revelation to proceed with the building of a temple in Independence, Mo.," says a news release from the church. "The project will require $60,000,000 for building and staff. the RLDS is planning to complete the structure in 1992."

Locally, the Midland Branch of the RLDS is raising funds to build a structure in Northwest Midland. Architect David Messersmith will meet with the congregation to explain the design plans and answer questions pertaining to the design at 11 a.m. Sunday. The meeting will be held in the Central YMCA, current meeting place for the Midland congregation. All members are urged to attend.

The public is invited to attend.

Works shown at program

Elder Bob Wood of the Southwestern Union Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists recently presided over the Church School Investiture Program.

Clyde McCoy, principal and teacher of grades 5-8 was Master of Ceremonies.

Joanna Herr, teacher of grades 1-4, presented her students and other children in a program with work they had done in their progressive class work.

"Their presentation bore evidence of much hard work on the part of students and teachers," says a news release from the church.

Students were invested as Busy Bees, Sunbeams, Builders, Helping Hands, Friends, Companions, Explorers, Voyagers, and Rangers.

Honors were received by all including grades 5-8. Honors received were on dogs, cats, mammals, cactus, fish, birds, snakes, cycling, husbandry, orchids, laundering and shells.

"Each of these honors required intensive research, effort and work," the release says.

As a surprise element of the program, Home and School Leader Donna Barroso presented McCoy and Ms. Herr with gifts of appreciation from the Home and School Association.

"These youth now have a greater knowledge of many things," the release says. "They will continue this work next term."

Parish workers meeting set

The monthly meeting of Grace Lutheran Parish Workers will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Linda Johansen, 1604 North "L". Janet Matschull will serve as cohostess.

The topic will be given by Ms. Johansen and is entitled "A Woman Becomes More Radiant When She Reflects God's Love in Welcoming Visitors." Dee Dee Kamis will give the closing prayer.

Annual elections will be held at this meeting, so all members are encouraged to attend.

CROP walk set for today

A 10-kilometer "CROP Walk for the Hungry" is scheduled for 9 a.m. today at the Midland College circle.

"Millions of people in the world must walk for their daily needs and tasks," says walk spokesman the Rev. Jonathan Holmer, pastor of Hope Lutheran Church. "Many Midlanders will, in a limited way, share that experience as they join in the walk to fight world and local hunger."

Christian Rural Overseas Program is a division of Church World Service, which raises money for worldwide hunger through community walkathons. Area churches are sponsoring the event.

Of the funds raised, Holmer says, 75 percent will go to worldwide relief and development work of Church World Service and the remaining 25 percent will go to the Permian Basin Food Bank. Sponsors may designate that their donations go to Church World Service or to other specific church relief agencies.

The Permian Basin Food Bank distributes to local social service and relief agencies. For every dollar raised, 90 cents goes directly to people in need.

Church sponsors bazaar

The Lighthouse Church of God in Christ, 506 S. Fairground Road, is sponsoring a bazaar today beginning at 9 a.m.

Items and booths included in the bazaar are homemade cakes and pies, crafts, a yard sale and concessions.

The public is invited.

'New Day' seminar slated

A "New Day" Seminar will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. June 3 and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. June 4 at 312 E. Illinois Ave.

"We are perhaps entering a period like the world has not seen before," says a news release from the Businesswomens Downtown Bible Study.

"It is a new day. Some of the urgent questions that must be addressed during this time are: How may I walk daily in the fullness of the holy spirit? How do I effectively fight in spiritual warfare? How may I appropriate the promises God has made in his covenant?"

The seminar will be conducted by Betty Isaacs, Linda Chaffin, Paula Ramsey and Eddie Lue Hunter. All are associated with the BDBS, which meets at noon Wednesday at 312 E. Illinois Ave.

Charge for the seminar is $6 which includes a continental breakfast and a catered lunch Saturday. For reservations call 682-4780 or 683-5610 or mail check to New Day Seminar, 312 E. Illinois Ave., Midland, Texas 79701 by June 1.

Film series continues

A new film series by Dr. Larry Crabb entitled "Inside Out: How to Develop the Real You" is being presented by the Family Ministry of Golf Course Road Church of Christ, 3500 E. Golf Course Road.

The series, which began May 4, is being shown at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays in the church's Family Center.

"The films deal with self-exploration to heal, restore and fulfill the inner self to release it to its fullest potential," says a news release from the church.

Crabb is chairman of the Biblical Counseling Department at Grace Theologicaly Seminary. A clinical psychologist, he is the author of five books including "Marriage Builders."

The films are being presented as a community service and no offerings will be taken. Classes for children are provided at the same time.

SUNDAY, MAY 22, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Job opportunities appear in the fall. Stay put, however, if a new situation will not fit in with your long-term financial plans. Avoid putting your foot in your mouth when traveling abroad. Be appreciative, not critical. Your excitement about the future grows. Children produce results you never imagined possible. Show them how much you love them. Set up a program to take care of debts.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Victoria Wyndham, lefty Tommy John, corporate raider T. Boone Pickens, artist Mary Cassatt, pianist Peter Nero, director Richard Benjamin, singer Charles Aznavour, actor Sir Laurence Olivier, actress Susan Strasberg, actor Paul Winfield, movie critic Judith Crist, composer Richard Wagner, actor Michael Sarrazin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may be overwhelmed by an offer until you find out how many strings are attached. Travel is fine, but allow extra time for delays. The stage is set for an emotional drama.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You could get more done this morning than you think possible. Catch up with an old friend. Personal relationships thrive on shared experiences. Anecdotes reveal a special side of you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pressure to conform will be strong at a family get-together. You owe it to yourself to speak your piece. Romantic overtures will strike the right chord. Follow your instincts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Deeper feelings rise to the top. Deal with them openly and honestly. Parents will be helpful, not judgmental. Cuddle up with a good historical novel this afternoon. A pet brings great joy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Some things brought up in anger will be hard for you to understand or forgive. Refuse to get down in the gutter with those who sling mud. Move toward a new relationship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work harder to repair a relationship before it is too late. Learn from past mistakes, but do not dwell on them. Time with family members is meaningful. A sermon will inspire you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Listen to your inner voice; your instincts are right on target! Deal with emotional undercurrents. Take the initiative in discussing a sensitive matter. Clear away household chores while you have the time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep records of expenses and you will learn how to change spending habits. A long-desired personal relationship is within your grasp. You may have to make the first move. Send flowers!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Opening up new lines of communication brings you more than you bargained for. A social gathering will be fun as long as you do not rattle any family skeletons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A change of scene is inspiring. It will also introduce you to new people. Your family knows what is best for you right now. You are in control but may not know.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An early morning message could cause an abrupt change of plans. Make the best of it. Family ties and domestic responsibilities continue to complicate your schedule.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Close your ears to gossip. A brother or sister offers to baby-sit so you can spend time alone with mate. Resolve to return the favor in the near future.

Japan to decorate Weinberger for security treaty contributions

Weinberger

TOKYO (AP) — Former U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger will be decorated Monday by the Foreign Ministry for his contribution to the U.S.-Japan Security Treaty during an upcoming five-day visit.

Weinberger arrives Saturday in Japan as a guest of the Japanese Foreign Ministry, a ministry official said Friday, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The former defense secretary is scheduled to make courtesy calls on Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita, Foreign Minister Sosuke Uno and Defense Agency Director Tsutomu Kawara during his stay.

LONDON (AP) — Sarah Lindsay, whose husband was killed two months ago in an avalanche that narrowly missed his friend Prince Charles, has given birth to a daughter.

A brief announcement in The Times of London on Friday said the baby, as yet unnamed, was born May 14.

Maj. Hugh Lindsay, a 34-year-old career army officer and former aide to Queen Elizabeth II, was hit by a lump of ice when the avalanche swept down a mountain at Klosters in the Swiss Alps on March 10 while the royal party was skiing off the main trail.

Charles, heir to the British throne, and several members of the party skied clear but another friend suffered serious leg injuries.

Mrs. Lindsay, a 34-year-old Buckingham Palace press aide, was feeling fine and was "very happy" about the baby, her father, Brian Brennan, was quoted as telling the London Evening Standard.

MORRISON, Colo. (AP) — Gov. Roy Romer will drag race against a police officer to promote Communities for a Drug Free Colorado, the governor's anti-substance abuse program.

Romer

The Memorial Day event was set up by officials of the Bandimere Speedway and Chevrolet dealers. The governor will drive a Corvette.

Romer never has raced a car, he said.

Still, the 59-year-old Romer says he isn't worried about the race.

"I've never driven a Corvette in my life...but I deal with fast equipment," said the governor, a pilot since he was 18. "Surely if I fly, I can drive a drag racer."

The police officer, Steve Adams of Arvada is part of a "Race-A-Cop" team that competes in the Denver area in an effort to bridge the gap betwen youth and police.

And on Sunday, the governor will address Agate High School graduates. Both of them.

The address will be in the school gymnasium at Agate, a tiny farming community 90 miles east of Denver. The two graduates are Penny Robbins and Richard Padilla.

HIBBING, Minn. (AP) — Elementary school lessons still play a role in his life, the Boston Celtics' Kevin McHale told a fifth-grade class that produced a biography of the basketball player, the school's most famous alumnus.

"I still remember the books you read for us back in school," McHale wrote to Pat Mattson, who was his language arts teacher in the late 1960s. "I read a book or two every week now. It must have been that good schooling."

Earlier this year, students in Mattson's creative writing class at Greenhaven Elementary School produced nine pages of verse titled, "The Tall Tale of Kevin McHale."

But McHale first saw a copy of the book when interviewed by CBS Sports for a feature on the class project. The feature was broadcast May 8 during half-time of a National Basketball Association game.

"Like most things that happen, I was one of the last people to see the poem," he said in a letter thanking the class this week.

CHICAGO (AP) — Whoopi Goldberg, nearing the end of a six-week, 12-city tour of her one-woman show, "Living on the Edge of Chaos," canceled performances due to illness.

Goldberg

The actress and comedian, hospitalized with a high fever, will honor at a later date the shows called off this week at the Chicago Theater, a spokeswoman said.

Spokeswoman Nannette Leonard said late Thursday that the actress, who won an Academy Award nomination for her role in "The Color Purple," was hospitalized with a high fever, but had no further details.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Special Olympics will benefit from the competitive efforts of Charley Pride, Juice Newton and Alabama's Randy Owen and other country music stars in a battle of hula hoops, brooms and volleyballs.

The All American Country Games, set for June 8, will include a home-run derby, volleyball game, hula hoop contest, basketball shootout and ski-walk race.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The legal problems of soul singer James Brown and his wife, Adrienne, continued Friday with Mrs. Brown arrested for the third time in a little over a month and charged with possession of the drug PCP, police said.

Mrs. Brown's arrest came two days after her husband was arrested on drug and weapons charges, assaulting his wife and resisting arrest.

Brown, 55, denied he has a drug problem when he posted bail Thursday, and his lawyer said he would petition the court to let the man known as "The Godfather of Soul" leave the country for a European concert tour.

Mrs. Brown, 38, of Beech Island, S.C., was arrested at the airport in nearby Augusta on Friday afternoon after arriving on a flight from New York. Police acted on a tip that she would be carrying drugs, said Ron Maher of the Augusta Police vice and narcotics unit.

Narcotics investigators stopped Mrs. Brown in the Bush Field parking lot and confiscated a wet, leafy substance believed to contain PCP. She was taken to the Richmond County-Augusta Law Enforcement Center, where police said a search turned up a further two vials suspected to contain PCP hidden in her blouse. She was charged with possession of PCP, a powerful psychedelic drug.

On May 10, Mrs. Brown was arrested in Bedford, N.H., after a small fire in her hotel room and later charged with possession of PCP, criminal mischief and arson. Bedford Police Chief Richard Audette said Mrs. Brown is due to appear in Bedford District Court on Wednesday.

Pilotless surveillance aircraft tested near South Texas town

By PONCHO HERNANDEZ, JR.

FREER, Texas (AP) — Residents in this quiet oil town 110 miles south of San Antonio on Texas Highway 16 are buzzing about Lockheed's latest innovation — a small, rugged, pilotless aircraft designed for surveillance.

The prototype is being tested north of here at an undisclosed location by Lockheed Missiles and Space Company, Inc., Austin Division.

Lockheed project manager Norman Tosch said the test site was chosen for its remote location and its proximity to the Navy's Target Test Site several miles to the east in McMullen County. Because the Navy controls the air space, Tosch said the site is ideally suited for testing.

"There are only two such locations in Texas, and this is one of them," he said.

The prototype, code named "Altair," has completed eight successful test missions since last September. It takes its name from a star that is one of the brightest visible, in the constellation Aquila, or eagle.

The vehicle is being developed for a variety of applications, including day and night surveillance.

Tosch described the system as both mobile and practical, with commercial and military applications.

Because of its mobility, the Altair system can be deployed in almost any terrain with little difficulty.

Its military applications can "provide the battlefield commander with very accurate reconnaissance, target location, and target acquisition capabilities far beyond the normal range of ground observers, and without risk to pilots," he said.

The system also could be used for surveillance by law enforcement agencies, particularly to monitor large geographical areas such as the Texas-Mexico border.

According to Bill Drake, director of engineering and testing for Lockheed, the system took a year to develop.

Test site manager Pete Dunn said the project currently enlists a staff of 20 to 25 professionals. The crew work out of portable buildings located at the test site, with most of the group boarding nearby in Freer and Three Rivers.

Unlike conventional aircraft, Altair is catapulted into the sky at about 80 mph via a portable launch system and is retrieved by a special net.

The launch system, which consists of a 39-foot launch rail mounted on a standard issue military truck, can be set up in about 10 minutes, and is retractable for easy mobility.

The recovery system, resembling a net of strings, is also mounted on a truck and requires about 45 minutes to assemble.

The aircraft is powered by a 25-horsepower, 2-cylinder, 2-stroke engine and can cruise at a speed of about 120 kilometers an hour.

A special video camera mounted on the aircraft's underbelly transmits video images during its flight to a control station on the ground. The images are recorded and can be frozen for later evaluation.

Different payloads, including the system's infrared camera, can be mounted in a matter of minutes by flight engineers.

The airplane, which weighs some 280 pounds, is made from a Kevlar epoxy based on a modular structural concept for added strength.

Drake said the airplane cruises at 3,000 to 5,000 feet up to a maximum of 9,000 feet. It can cruise for about three hours without refueling.

Altair has a sophisticated computer system that monitors its course and speed. Although its flight is preprogrammed, an operator on the ground also can control it.

WE'RE HURTING.

Saving lives can be very expensive. The costs of our disaster relief and other humanitarian programs keep mounting. And we can't afford to come up short.

Please help.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Seals in Danish waters dying of pneumonia

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Hundreds of seals in Danish waters are dying of pneumonia, and the mysterious epidemic could spread to marine mammals in the Baltic Sea, a biologist said Friday.

More than 200 harp seals are known to have died in recent weeks on the island of Anholt in Kattegat strait between Denmark and Sweden, said biologist Paul Mortensen.

He said the area's entire 1988 generation of seals was lost because their sick mothers aborted.

Dying or dead seals also have been found beached on the islands of Laesoe, Hesseloe and as far south as the port city of Helsingoer, giving rise to fears that the infection might spead, he said.

He said the virus spreads by direct contact between adult seals as they lie close together on land, adding that it resembles an influenza that struck hundreds of seals on the Canadian and U.S. eastern coasts in 1980.

Another expert, Knud Pedersen of the State Veterinary Serum Institute, said he suspected a herpes-like virus similar to one blamed for seal deaths of seals off The Netherlands a few years ago.

Sports council dissolved

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — King Birendra dissolved the National Sports Council after a government report blamed the group for failing to control a stadium stampede in which more than 70 people died, the royal palace said Friday.

The action backed the request from Prime Minister Marich Man Singh Shrestha. A government commission found the organization negligent in its ownership, control and protection of the stadium and for failing to keep the stadium gates in proper condition.

On March 12, panic broke out in the crowd watching a soccer match when a hailstorm began suddenly. Fans rushed toward the exit gates — which were all locked except for one exit — and more than 70 people were killed and 100 injured in the stampede.

The government earlier dissolved the All-Nepal Football Association, which organized the match, saying it failed to handle the incident properly.

3 white farmers freed

BULAWAYO, Zimbabwe (AP) — A judge has released three men detained without charges for more than four months for alleged links to a fatal bombing on a house occupied by the African National Congress, their attorney said Friday.

High court judge Fergus Blackie ruled May 13 that detention of the three white farmers from the Matabeleland district of Shangani was illegal, said attorney Steve Richardson.

Brothers Harry and John Bawden and Gregory Sloggett were among 18 people detained under the Law and Order Act after the Jan. 11 car bombing of a house near the southern Zimbabwe city of Bulawayo occupied by the ANC, which is fighting for the overthrow of South Africa's government.

The ANC had said two people were killed in the blast, but police said one person was killed.

Soviet boat runs aground

TOKYO (AP) — A Soviet fishing trawler with a crew of 16 ran aground Friday off the coast of Japan's northern island of Hokkaido, but no injuries were reported, a Maritime Safety Agency official said.

The 163-ton Snarsky was found stranded about 33 miles northwest of the city of Wakkanai, which is 680 miles from Tokyo, according to agency official Iwao Saga.

Saga said the Soviet crew was still aboard the vessel, which was not seriously damaged.

Group calls for news program boycott

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A citizens' group is calling for a boycott of the major news program in Mexico, accusing it of bias in covering of the 1988 presidential campaign.

"The public has a right to choose with its preference or rejection of the type of information that it wants to receive," handbills distributed by the Active and Peaceful Civic Resistance organization say.

The organization charged that 24 Horas, the nationally broadcast news program of the private Televisa network, is dedicating 97 percent of its time to promote one candidate.

"Let the public make its decision and maintain it until it can be proven that these news shows have stopped being instruments of one party and have become true outlets of objective information," the handbill concludes.

Carlos Salinas de Gortari, candidate of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party known as the PRI, is certain to win the July 6 elections over five minority party candidates.

Rodolfo Bermejo, who identified himself as Civic Resistance's training director, said in a phone interview Friday that it is an independent, non-partisan organization that now operates in 29 Mexican cities.

He said it formed in 1986 after controversial elections in the northern border state of Chihuahua, won by the PRI and considered a major setback to the opposition National Action Party.

Televisa reorganized its news programs in response to numerous complaints of biased coverage in the Chihuahua elections, adding an evening news program that it said would emphasize provincial coverage and add additional viewpoints.

No one was available Friday at Televisa offices to comment on the boycott call.

Bermejo said Civic Resistance has trained 3,500 people in non-violent tactics, inspired by Mahatma Gandhi's theories. He said they are people "of any party and any ideology."

"It is not an organization as such, it is not a new movement," he said. "People act within the groups they already belong to."

Minority candidates have complained frequently that they are prevented from equal access to broadcast media and newspapers. President Miguel de la Madrid and other PRI and government leaders reject the accusation, maintaining that democratic procedures

Raul Trejo, a researcher at the National Autonomous University of Mexico, said in an interview that a study done by the government's Channel 11 found that 24 Horas in February dedicated 67 bites totaling 86 percent of campaign coverage to Salinas de Gortari.

Contras haven't responded to cease-fire extension

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — U.S.-backed Contra rebels have still not responded to a government proposal to extend the civil war cease-fire past the May 30 deadline, Deputy Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinico said Friday.

"They still haven't answered a government proposal to call off for another month offensive operations," he said at a breakfast meeting with foreign correspondents.

The leftist government and the U.S.-supplied rebels known as Contras have been exchanging charges on who's responsible for the faltering peace plan to end more than six years of war.

Almost two months after the two sides signed the pact, they agree only on the desire to end the fighting. The government has warned it will stage the largest offensive to date if the cease-fire is not extended after May 30 or if no progress is made.

The Contras, meanwhile, are suffering from infighting, a move that favors the ruling Sandinistas. From the government's point of view, the best way for the war to end would be for the enemy to self-destruct.

Pro-Sandinista newspapers were giving widespread coverage to the Contra bickering. At the same time, the government last weekend cautioned private radio station directors against broadcasting news that violates the public order law and warned of permanent suspension.

Radio station directors called the warning a "direct threat" and described it as self-censorship that replaces the harsh media restrictions withdrawn by the government to comply with last August's regional peace plan.

The problems surrounding the cease-fire plan appear to have started almost immediately after the March 23 signing. All of the meetings held since then have been marked by mutual distrust.

The government announced on Wednesday a tentative agreement for a new round of peace talks to be held May 25-28, but the Contras immediately disagreed.

The years of civil war have left deep scars in this nation of 3 million. Families are divided; sons have gone off to fight with one side or the other.

If all had gone according to plan, the war would just about be over and Nicaragua would be well on its way to full democracy.

A state security officer argued recently that Nicaragua already was a democracy. His comments came minutes after police hauled off several opposition political leaders who spoke to journalists near a building where workers staged a hunger strike.

Because the cease-fire plan has not moved forward, the Sandinistas have not freed more than 3,000 political prisoners nor permitted the Contras to have a say in internal politics.

Talks with the internal opposition political parties stand at an impasse. The meetings were suspended by the opposition as a show of support for the strikers. The government responded by saying it would consider whether future talks would be held.

According to the cease-fire plan, the first measures should have been completed by April 15. In exchange, the Contra rebels would have gathered in agreed upon cease-fire zones and been permitted to receive humanitarian aid through a neutral organization.

The Sandinistas have said the insurgents could now receive food, medicine and clothes distributed by the International Red Cross. But the Contras rejected that, saying the organization sympathizes with the government.

"The tactics used at the last meeting were almost to torpedo the agreement," Contra spokesman Bosco Matamoros said in a recent interview. "They put into question everything we had agreed upon."

Meanwhile, thousands of rebel troops, according to sources, moved toward the northern border. The U.S. Agency for International Development is providing supplies to the Contras through Honduras.

A group of rebellious Contras has demanded the ouster of the top Contra military officer, Col. Enrique Bermudez, a former officer under the ousted dictator Anastasio Somoza.

Matamoros, the Contra's main spokesman, said recently the talk of divisions was exaggerated.

Nicaraguan Vice President Sergio Ramirez said Sunday that the Contra infighting puts into doubt future cease-fire negotiations.

"In Honduras the mercenary forces (the Contras) are on the verge of civil war," he said. "The political heads that come here to negotiate have very little influence."

The people, meanwhile, are war weary. The Sandinistas continue to draft youths into the military. The economy is in shambles. And farmers who fled the war zones in the northern mountains cannot yet go home to plant.

Experts say alternative energy sources needed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Oil experts who held a three-day meeting here said the world must find alternative energy sources and suggested coal was the best answer for countries that have supplies, the state-owned oil monopoly Pemex said.

Abandoning nuclear power plants already in operation "would have unsuspected economic consequences," Pemex said.

It said the experts agreed petroleum will continue to be the energy source that sustains economic development for the next 40 to 50 years.

OPEC Secretary General Fahdil J. Al-Chalabi said short term profits from oil production could have very bad long-term effects.

Mexico depends on oil for 90 percent of its energy needs and the amount will continue to grow, Jose Luis Garcia Luna, director of the Mexican Petroleum Institute, told the meeting.

Dukakis angered by tentative deal with Noriega

NATION

Associated Press

Vice President George Bush took another step away from President Reagan's controversial negotiations with Panama's indicted leader Manuel Noriega on Friday. Democratic front-runner Michael Dukakis said the "American people want an explanation" of a reported deal that would drop drug charges against Noriega.

Dukakis, campaigning in California, reacted with outrage as news of the tentative agreement with Noriega broke. He said "somebody in the administration" should tell the American people "who it was who thought it was in the interests of the American people and this country that we do business with somebody who was a known drug peddler and who was suspected of murder."

He added, "Unless and until we have that explanation, I'm not going to be satisfied."

Bush said nothing publicly on Noriega, but his maneuverings came two days after he declared that he would not negotiate with accused drug runners in this country or on foreign soil. At the time, he did not mention either Panama or its indicted leader, Noriega, by name.

But following the publication of a story Friday in The Washington Post, the vice president's chief of staff, Craig Fuller, issued a statement saying that "the administration sources who have suggested that the vice president favors ending the negotiations and bringing the envoy back to Washington are essentially correct."

The statement was issued just hours before sources disclosed a tentative agreement for Noriega to relinquish power and leave Panama temporarily in exchange for the Reagan administration dropping the drug indictment.

The Fuller statement was as close as Bush has come to publicly uttering words of disagreement with Reagan over his Panamanian policy, and came after several days of slippage in the public opinion polls and with many Republican allies urging him to air his differences with the president.

The issue of Panama and drugs also arose in a court deposition given by Donald Gregg, Bush's national security adviser.

Gregg said in the sworn statement that the president of Panama told the vice president in December 1983 that allegations of drug running among government officials were untrue.

"The vice president said he had not been aware of the charges or he would have raised them" during the session, Gregg testified in a deposition for a private civil lawsuit.

He added, "We did nothing to follow up." The vice president was chairman of the South Florida Drug Interdiction Task Force at the time.

Spokesman Stephen Hart had no comment on Gregg's deposition.

Dukakis, who has the Democratic nomination all but wrapped up, campaigned in California in advance of the state's June 7 primary.

He said he and Jackson, his sole remaining rival, met on Sunday and will "be meeting regularly." The Massachusetts governor did not say what he and Jackson would discuss in their talks, but his challenger has been pressing for a greater share of votes from "super delegates" to the Democratic National Convention. These party and elected officials, who are automatically entitled to attend the nominating convention, have largely been lining up behind Dukakis.

At home, the Dukakis administration announced new proposed spending cuts, efficiency steps and revenue plans designed to improve the bottom line of Dukakis' $11.9 billion state budget proposal for next year by $217 million.

Faced with a shortfall in tax collections, Dukakis is proposing to cut $92 million from expansions he had previously proposed in dozens of individual programs. He also signed off on a hoped-for $47 million in savings through improved government operations. He also hopes to raise millions more through bottle deposits and a higher tax on cigarettes. Friday's sobering budget news could hurt Dukakis' attempts to campaign on earlier balanced budgets.

Democratic platform writers met in suburban Washington, where Sen. John Glenn of Ohio said the public is under "the great misconception" that nuclear arms treaties may allow the United States to spend less on conventional weapons.

Glenn, mentioned as a possible running mate on a Dukakis ticket, said the truth was "exactly the opposite....We may have to spend more instead of less."

Rep. Ron Dellums of California, representing both the Jackson campaign and his own views, said the Democrats should find ways to reduce the burden of the Pentagon's $299 billion budget, which has doubled since 1980.

Dellums said the United States should call home some of its 325,000 troops in Europe and scrap a wide range of weapon systems, from the MX missile, the Midgetman and Trident II to research on Star Wars.

Democratic National Chairman Paul Kirk, meanwhile, unleashed a stinging attack on Bush as a "quintessential elitist establishment Republican country clubber."

In a speech before the Association of Democratic State Chairs meeting in Atlanta, Kirk said the vice president has been "applauding in the dark shadows of this Republican administration as it turns thumbs down on the Civil Rights Restoration Act, thumbs down on a simple 60-day notice to working men and women who are about to lose their jobs."

He said Bush "has neither the toughness to govern nor the compassion to care."

Deficit for April higher than 1987

WASHINGTON (AP) — Income tax payments in April helped shrink the federal budget deficit, but the monthly surplus was less than a year ago, leaving government red ink so far this year 24.6 percent higher than 1987, the Treasury Department said Friday.

The April surplus of $13.9 billion, representing the difference between what the government took in and what it spent last month, helped hold the deficit for the first seven months of the fiscal year to $105.0 billion.

But that figure was much higher than the $84.3 billion in red ink during the first seven months of fiscal year 1987, when the total annual deficit eventually amounted to $150.2 billion.

Economists say the April report indicates the Reagan administration will have a tough time meeting its goal of a $146.7 billion deficit for fiscal 1988, which ends Sept. 30, or even the Congressional Budget Office projection of $157 billion.

Michael K. Evans, head of an economic forcasting service in Washington, said the April report indicates the deficit for the year will be between $170 billion and $175 billion.

"April's the big month. After that, it's all arithmetic....The belief that it was going to stay below $150 billion was just pure fiction," he said.

The 1988 deficit target in the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law is $144 billion. Budget Director James C. Miller III warned Congress on Tuesday that an across-the-board cut in federal programs, which would occur in October under the law, was "perilously close."

The April surplus, bolstered by $53.3 billion in individual income tax payments, was about $5 billion less than expected by private economists. They had been waiting for the report to see what effect the new income tax law would have. Some had thought the new tax law would provide a small windfall.

However, Evans said the average, median taxpayer enjoyed a tax cut.

"People who used deductions and shelters paid more than they did the year before, but the rank and file paid less," he said.

April income tax collections were 25.8 percent less than the same month a year earlier, which was inflated by the rush to take capital gains in 1986 before the favorable rates on that kind of income disappeared under the new tax law.

Personal income tax collections of $237.6 billion for the first seven months of the fiscal year are running 2.7 percent behind last year. However, that has been offset somewhat by corporate income tax collections of $50.6 billion, 8.4 percent greater than last year.

In April, all government revenue totaled $109.3 billion, 11.0 percent lower than April 1987. Spending totaled $95.4 billion, 13.6 percent ahead of the same month a year earlier.

For the first seven months, revenues totaled $522.1 billion, up 3 percent over 1987, while spending was $627.1 billion, up 6.1 percent from the same period a year ago.

As usual, the largest spending categories in April were the military, followed by Social Security, other programs in the Department of Health and Human Services and interest on the national debt.

Military spending totaled $26.1 billion last month and $168.4 billion for the fiscal year so far, up 6.3 percent from the same period a year ago.

Spending for Social Security totaled $16.3 billion last month and $121.3 billion for the past seven months, up 5.7 percent from the same period in the 1987 fiscal year.

Forms show many senators well-to-do

Disclosures indicate more than one-third millionaires

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators gave the public a peek at their personal finances Friday, disclosing a generally well-to-do group that loves to talk for money, collects interesting gifts and leans toward conservative investments.

Release of the financial disclosure forms, required annually, showed there are far more millionaires in the Senate than are found in most other 100-member groups. Some, although not many, of the senators are not doing nearly so well, including Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., the former presidential candidate, and Robert W. Kasten, R-Wis.

Biden's assets, not including the family home, total only $21,000 and his liabilities are at least $260,000. But he earned more than $110,000 last year, including his $87,483 Senate salary.

Kasten reported assets of $21,000 to $45,000 and liabilities of $20,000 to $30,000.

Although it is likely that as many as three-dozen senators are millionaires, it is difficult to determine real financial worth from reading the disclosure reports. Senators are required to report income, assets and liabilities only within a broad range; for example, a $10 million investment need be reported only as exceeding $250,000.

On that basis, John D. Rockefeller IV, D-W.Va., the Standard Oil heir who could be the Senate's richest member, is shown as having a net worth that could be as little as $132,000. Another millionaire, Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., put no dollar value on the trusts that make up the bulk of his wealth although he reported income of at least $596,747. Kennedy has the type of trusts whose worth are not subject to the disclosure law.

Some other millionaires and their minimum net worth:

John C. Danforth, R-Mo., a member of the Ralston-Purina family, $7.5 million; John Heinz, R-Pa., of the ketchup-and-pickle family, $10 million; Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., $1.9 million; Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., of the Squibb drug fortune, $1.9 million; Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, $1.2 million; Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., $1 million; John Warner, R-Va., $2.2 million; Chic Hecht, R-Nev., $1.6 million; and Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., $2.5 million.

Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas won top honors in the talk-for-pay category last year. He reported $106,050, mostly for speechmaking, and gave $80,000 of it to charity. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., who was in demand chiefly because of his role as senior Republican on the Senate Banking subcommittee on securities, picked up $47,350 in honoraria.

Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., reported $37,350 in honoraria; David Boren, D-Okla., $59,175, almost $30,000 of which was given to charity; Tom Daschle, D-S.D., $60,450, including $23,450 given to charity; and Sam Nunn, D-Ga., $50,500, of which $16,007 went to charity.

Senators are allowed to earn as much as they like by speechmaking, but they cannot keep for their own use any more than 40 percent of their Senate salary, which was $89,500 annually as of April 1987.

Several senators picked up pocket change last year by writing for newspapers and magazines. The New York Times' standard fee appeared to be $100; the Los Angeles Times paid $150 or $200; USA Today paid $150; the Christian Science Monitor paid $33.33. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., pocketed $300 for an article in Conservative Digest.

A few listed among their honoraria fees for "appearances" — no writing or speaking, just appearing. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., was paid $2,000 for an appearance before McDonnell Douglas aircraft company in St. Louis. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., got $1,000 for an appearance before the American Business Conference.

Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., whose panel oversees the securities industries, owns not one share of stock. Like many colleagues, he favors tax-free municipal bonds; freshman Robert Graham, D-Fla., a millionaire, laid out a list of municipal-bond holdings that appeared to include an issue for every hamlet in his home state.

Senators consider banks a safe place to put their money. Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., reported all his assets — a maximum of $70,000 — in bank accounts. The largest single investment held by David Durenberger, R-Minn., outside his blind trust was in a bank certificate of deposit.

Senators visited the far reaches of the Earth last year, and in many cases, a special-interest group of one kind or another picked up the tab.

Tom Harkin, D-Iowa., was reimbursed for travel to Hollywood to give a $2,000 speech to the International Foundation for the Conservation of Birds. Kasten and his wife, Eva Jean, went to Santiago, Chile, at the expense of the U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., got $2,000 and expenses for speaking to the Chamber of Commerce of Curacao.

Among the gifts: Thad Cochran, R-Miss., got a framed illustration of the Battle of Corinth; Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., a $180 case of scotch; DeConcini, two clock radios and a Navajo rug; Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a $150 ring to commemorate Texas A&M's Cotton Bowl championship; Kent Conrad, D-N.D., World Series tickets valued at $320 from baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

— A dozen senators list zero liabilities.

— Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., was paid an $800 advance for his new book.

— Paul Simon, D-Ill., a former candidate for president, was paid $1,250 by Northwest Airlines for losing his luggage.

— William Armstrong, R-Colo., a millionaire, had no honoraria, no liabilities and no gifts to report.

— J. James Exon, D-Neb., spoke to the American Association of Airport Executives in Waikowa, Hawaii. He was paid $1,000 plus $934 "mounting of fish for Mrs. Exon."

House members' disclosure forms will be released next Wednesday.

During this great sale, you can own a quality gas grill installed from Energas for what you might expect to pay for an ordinary grill. Because gas is our only business, we probably have more new grills to choose from than anywhere in West Texas. And every one is on sale.
Look at all you get when you buy your new gas grill from Energas:
• Every grill discounted from $33 to $125 off list price.
• 9.9% APR—that's well below market rates.
• Super convenience—no credit application, no crowded stores.
• Monthly payments included in your gas bill.
• All prices include professional installation.
• Wide variety—26 models to choose from.
• Dependable source of parts and service.
• Quality gas products from a company whose only business is gas.

Driver pleads innocent to 27 counts of murder

CARROLLTON, Ky. (AP) — The driver of the pickup truck that slammed into a church bus last week pleaded innocent to 27 counts of murder on Friday, one count for each person killed in the fiery crash.

Larry W. Mahoney, 34, of Worthville in Carroll County, was taken to the psychiatric unit at the Kentucky State Reformatory in LaGrange, where doctors will determine whether he is competent to stand trial.

The pickup was traveling in the wrong direction on Interstate 71 Saturday night when it plowed head-on into a bus from the First Assembly of God Church in Radcliff. The bus was carrying 67 people, mostly teenagers, on their way home from an outing at an amusement park near Cincinnati.

The pleas were entered by Mahoney's attorney, Gary Sergent.

Meanwhile, funerals were being held Friday in three states for 15 of the 27 crash victims, including an evening service for nine youths and one adult at the church that owned the bus, Radcliff First Assembly of God.

In Bardstown, the funeral Mass for Sandy Brewer, 12, at St. Monica Catholic Church "just got terribly emotional," said the Rev. Jim Graf.

Family, clergymen and choir joined hands and wept in front of the altar, he said, calling it "a moment when the whole church just let go together."

Mahoney, who police said was legally drunk at the time of the crash, kept his head bowed or his eyes lowered throughout the 18-minute arraignment. He did not say anything.

Earlier in the day, Mahoney had been released from Humana Hospital-University of Louisville, where he had been treated since the accident.

That left 13 people injured in the crash still hospitalized Friday, five of them in critical condition.

After the hearing, State Attorney General Fred Cowan announced that former Jefferson County Commonwealth's Attorney Paul Richwalsky was named special prosecutor for the case to replace Carroll Commonwealth's Attorney John L. Ackman Jr., who suffered a heart attack Wednesday.

Cowan said prosecutors still intend to seek the death penalty in the case, and it was too early to consider a plea-bargain.

"We'll be going to the grand jury directly," Cowan said, "and the case will proceed from there."

Richwalsky said he believed the case was the first time in Kentucky that the death penalty would be sought in a vehicular homicide case.

When asked how difficult the case would be to prosecute, Richwalsky said: "I can't answer that. You can't forecast what a jury might do in a particular case."

Convicted spy's sentence cut

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — The 30-year prison sentence imposed on former Marine Sgt. Clayton J. Lonetree in a Moscow embassy sex-for-secrets case was cut by five years Friday by the commander of the Quantico Marine Base.

Lt. Gen. Frank E. Petersen also lifted the $5,000 fine imposed on Lonetree after his Aug. 24 espionage conviction in a court-martial at the northern Virginia installation.

Petersen acted after a review of Lonetree's case "because of his total cooperation and conduct during his voluntary post-trial debriefings by counter-intelligence specialists."

Gunnery Sgt. Dean Chamberlain said Lonetree would be eligible for parole after serving one-third of his sentence, which means he would have to spend 8⅓ years instead of 10 years behind bars before being considered for release.

Lonetree also was sentenced by the eight-officer court-marital to a dishonorable discharge, reduction to private and forfeiture of all pay and allowances. Those penalties were unaffected.

Chamberlain said Lonetree has been held at Quantico since his trial.

Lonetree was convicted on 13 counts, including allegations that he turned over CIA identities and floor plans of the U.S. embassies in Moscow and Vienna to the Soviets.

Prosecutors alleged that Lonetree became a spy after falling in love with a Soviet translator, Violetta Sanni.

135 MEETING PEOPLE

I'VE searched for years for a warm, honest, family minded woman, and at 27 and still single, I'm beginning to believe that these expectations are too high. I've found party animals who live for the moment, and bitter divorcees who dwell on the past, and I've found women who think that there is something better in store for them than a man that makes her happy, or a man who is happy because of her. I hear that single men are outnumbered. I believe it, because there seem to be a lot of women who want the shining armor without the knight. Are you holding out for something you saw on T.V., or am I just too old fashioned? I own a wonderful business, a beautiful home, a nice car, am dependable, financially stable, very artistic, have brown hair, hazel eyes, and cannot find a loving woman to share it all with. Maybe I'm crazy, but I still believe that there is nothing more important in life than a happy family, and if you can handle that, I'll buy your dinner.
