Nazi "Detachment"

Remnants Of Master Race Humbled Now

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

RIPPED and torn by lunging Allied columns, remnants of shattered German armies in France are in confused flight eastward between the channel coast and the Swiss frontier at a pace that virtually forbids a new defensive stand anywhere short of the Reich itself.

The Berlin-admitted "detachment" maneuver has lost all semblance of an orderly military movement. It is obviously leaving behind great segments of once powerful armies now shredded by the Allies to military impotence. There was every reason to believe that the Belgian border had been crossed by American troops near Sedan, and that soon German frontiers leading to the upper Rhine would be reached and passed to test out the actual strength of the Nazi "west wall" before fleeing enemy forces in France can even reach it for refuge or to help hold it against the brewing American power thrust into the Saarbrucken gap.

SIMPSON

Headquarters Far Behind

The rolling Allied sweep forward along the whole front was moving at a pace that apparently left even supreme Allied headquarters in the dark for hours as to its full penetrations. Bulletins from the field announcing new captures at critical points all the way from the area of Le Havre at the Seine mouth to the Rhine-Marne canal linking those French and German rivers at Strasbourg, overtook and passed Allied official reports on progress time and again.

A scene of utter confusion among German elements bent on nothing but escape from the Allied "avalanche was drawn by press eye-witnesses. There is no comparable German, Allied or Russian spectacle of total military disaster in all the records of this war or of the battles of a quarter of a century ago over the same ground across which Allied forces now are sweeping.

Mapping Is Problem

The pace was so fast it defied accurate mapping of the front. So far as it was possible to trace Allied movements, however, it was clear that while Field Marshal Montgomery's British-Canadian wing on the left was busy trapping and mopping up the coastal area from Le Havre to the Somme mouth and outflanking the robot bomb coast to Calais and beyond, Bradley's American Army group was knifing into Belgium through the Ardennes and storming toward the Saarbrucken gap into Germany from newly won strongpoints like Sedan, Verdun, St. Mihiel and Commercy.

They were threatening such potential Nazi strongholds as Mons, Charleroi and even Brussels through the Sambre by-pass in the northwestern Ardennes that points the way into the plains of central Belgium.

To the south, Patch's Franco-American Seventh Army was fast coming up the Rhone valley, virtually in sight of its Lyon metrop-

Reds Sweep On Westward

Junction With Tito Planned As Other Forces Reach Bulgar's Danube Border

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 2. — Russian motorized troops speeding westward through Romania toward a junction with Marshall Tito's Partisan Army yesterday drove to within 150 miles of the Yugoslav frontier and also reached Bulgaria's Danube border with the seizure of the big river port of Giurgiu, 35 miles southwest of occupied Bucharest.

Gen. Ridion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine Army swept through more than 160 towns and villages, fanning out west and south of Ploesti, and south and east of the capitulated Romanian capital.

Darmanesti, 12 miles west of Ploesti, was among 60 villages taken in that area, and one report put the Russians only 130 miles from the Yugoslavia border.

Other Soviet units striking toward the Predeal and Buzau passes above Ploesti were reported within 20 miles of Brasov, Transylvanian city on the other side of the Carpathian mountains, in their swift pursuit of the broken Nazi Balkan forces.

Disorderly Nazis Flee

Field dispatches said the bulk of the routed Germans were in disorderly flight westward through the Danube valley toward the "iron gate" pass leading to Hungary and southern Germany.

Striking southwest of Bucharest, the Russians seized Ghimpati, 19 miles beyond the capital, and rolled on into Giurgui, headquarters of commerce between Romania and Bulgaria. (Giurgiu, a city of 30,000, is two and one-half miles across the river from Ruse (Ruschuk), flourishing Bulgarian port city of 50,000. A train ferry links the two cities, and Giurgiu also is the terminus of pipeline from Ploeesti.)

On Bulgarian Frontier

Sixty-two miles southeast of Bucharest the Russians also reached the Bulgarian frontier with the occupation of Calarasi, and 100 other localities were taken in the cleaning out of a huge area between the Danube and the Bucharest-Constanta railway.

Moscow's broadcast bulletin, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukraine Army also occupied several localities southwest of Constanta, occupied Black Sea port.

The Soviet bulletin did not mention any other sector on the 1,300-mile front between the Baltic and the Black Sea, and Berlin declared that no other important development had occurred beyond the "cheap successes" in Romania.

Nazis Set Red Losses

Berlin estimated that since the Russian drive began June 23 the Red Army had lost 4,200 tanks and 5,000 guns. The Germans also have taken 13,000 prisoners, the communique said.

Moscow's communiques have listed more than 1,000,000 Germans killed or captured, including 35 generals captured and 15 generals killed.

The Germans did not expect any long lull in other areas of the eastern front. The Nazi agency Transocean said the Russians were regrouping their forces along the entire front and that "massive new drives are in prospect soon."

Axis Cabinet In Bulgaria Falls

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 1. — Another Axis government — that of Premier Ivan Bagrianov of Bulgaria —tottered and fell today, adding to the wreckage of Adolf Hitler's crumbling military and political setup in the Balkans but temporarily suspending Bulgarian armistice talks in Cairo.

An initial conversation between American and British diplomats and the two-man Bulgarian peace mission took place before news of the resignation was received.

Talks apparently will not be resumed until a new government is formed in Sofia.

Sent Peace Delegates

Bagrianov himself broadcast over Sofia radio the announcement of the resignation of his three-months-old government, which recently tried and failed to wriggle out of the war into "neutrality" and then sent peace delegates to Cairo to sign an armistice with the Allies.

The fallen cabinet will continue to administer affairs of state pending formation of a new government, Bagrianov said.

The Bulgarian cabinet was the fourth Danubian government to resign or be ejected since Aug. 23, when King Mihai set off the landslide by ousting Marshal Ion Antonescu and switching Romania to the side of the Allies.

Resignation of the Bagrianov cabinet was announced amid widespread rumors that Hungary —where Doeme Sztojay's regime has just been supplanted by a new cabinet of generals—was asking the Allies for armistice terms.

Soviet Forces Welcomed

In Bucharest, street banners emblazoned "long live Stalin" already were flapping a welcome to Soviet forces of occupation.

Puppet Croatia, on Hungary's southern border, had a new day-old government trying to bolster the Nazi hold on that area. To the north in Slovakia another puppet regime was trying to maintain itself with wehrmacht help against a furious flareup of revolt backed by Czechoslovak forces.

In Ankara, the Turkish foreign office ordered the interment of 310 German diplomats and 150 German civilians. They were to be exchanged for Turkish diplomats and civilians at the Bulgarian frontier, but no word has been received from the Turkish diplomats since they reached Vienna and there has been no news of Turkish civilians from Germany.

Prisoners Of Japs Due Relief Supplies

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP) — Arrangements have been made for a Japanese ship to enter a Soviet port near Vladivostok to take on 1,500 tons of accumulated relief supplies for American and other Allied prisoners of war and civilian internees held by Japan, the State department announced today.

The United States government has agreed to pay all costs connected with the transportation of these supplies to Japan and has told the Japanese government it would be willing to reciprocate in distributing relief supplies sent by Japan for Japanese nationals in United States custody.

FDR To Meet Churchill At Quebec Soon

By ALEX SINGLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 1. — President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill will meet soon to plan the shift of American and British might from Europe, where they now sight victory in the near future, to the Pacific for a joint effort to crush Japan.

The meeting probably will be held this month at Quebec, it was disclosed today, and may be followed after Germany's final capitulation by another session with Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin sitting in to discuss Russia's role in the Pacific war as well as the future of Europe.

Met Last Year

Roosevelt and Churchill met in Quebec in August of last year to approve the master plan for the invasion of the continent. Not until these plans had been partly carried out in the organizing of men and materials did the two leaders spread them out before Stalin.

This time it is different. In the Far Eastern war it will be the American and British forces, backed by combined air and naval forces of unquestioned superiority, which will have the initial task of softening up the enemy. In the European war the Red Army had this job.

Reds May Need Rest

Furthermore, because Russia may need time to gather strength after her tremendous and long struggle in the west, it is likely that Stalin will bide his time before throwing in his chips with the Allies in the far Eastern war, especially since Japan has posted some of her best troops near the Soviet Union's eastern border.

But because the potential stake in the east is so high and because he hopes to have an important voice in that area of the world, it is equally probable that Stalin at the opportune moment will send his forces against Japan.

These factors, and the question of when to try to convince Stalin that the opportune moment has arrived, will be considered by Roosevelt and Churchill along with such problems as where to concentrate the attack, the proportionate number of American and British forces and vast supply problems.

Several Factors Involved

Much of the spadework alerady has been done. The swift progress of the Allied armies toward Germany and the approach of the presidential election in the United States play a part in the speculation on time and the place of the meeting. From the election angle approach it is argued that President Roosevelt would want to get the subject settled this month so that he can devote October to any final demands for campaigning which might arise.

The progress of the war is involved through the general belief that both Roosevelt and Churchill would like to get the Pacific strategy fixed and available for discussion with Stalin before the European war's end brings a full dress peace meeting of the big three.

Baruch View On Benefits Rapped

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP) — Bernard M. Baruch's comment that House-approved demobilization legislation is "inadequate" brought from Rep. Doughton (D-NC) the reply today that "it is not the time to hastily enact legislation costing unknown billions—when the atmosphere is polluted with political considerations."

"Congress has not closed the doors on relieving unemployment," Doughton said.

House Passes Bill

The House yesterday passed a demobilization and reconversion bill drafted by its ways and means committee, headed by Doughton. The committee agreed with the Senate to leave unemployment compensation to states, but junked Senate provisions for retraining war workers for other jobs, transportation back home, and blanketing 3,500,000 federal workers under unemployment compensation protection.

Baruch, presidential advisor who spent a hunk out of his own funds in buying railroad tickets to get stranded former government workers out of Washington after the last war, said in a statement today that unemployment compensation is "must legislation." The House bill "seems certainly inadequate," he said.

Both Doughton and Rep. Knut-

Cotton Gloves Due For Area Harvest

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—Orders are expected to be issued next week by the War Production board for manufacture of cotton work gloves needed to pick the oncoming West Texas cotton crop.

Following a conference today with WPB officials, during which we estimated approximately 100,000 dozen pairs will be needed, Rep. Mahon (D-Tex) said he was told a directive probably would issued in a few days authorizing manufacturers to fill orders of West Texas dealers.

Cotton in that area is gathered by pulling the boll, rather than just the fiber, and laborers frequently wear out a pair of gloves daily.

Texas War Hero Is Given Full Pardon

AUSTIN, Sept. 1. (AP)—A conditional pardon given two years ago to a man convicted of burglary and sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary will be revoked —in favor of a full pardon and restoration of citizenship.

Governor Coke R. Stevenson announced the decision today and explained the reason.

The man was conditionally pardoned so that he could join the Army. He did so and entered an officer candidate school, graduating as a second lieutenant. He has since been promoted to first lieutenant and has to his credit 51 combat missions as an air corpsman. He has also been decorated for bravery.

The governor said that he preferred that the man's name not be announced in view of the fine comeback he has made.

WRITER FLEES NAZIS

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—The New York Sun said today it had received a cable from Gault MacGowan, Sun war correspondent who was captured by the Germans near Chartres Aug. 15, saying he had escaped and was safe in Paris.

Yanks Dash Across Belgium, Double Speed Of Nazi Blitz

ALLIED VISE CLOSING ON NAZIS — Pressure on Germany is becoming terrific as Anglo-American forces close in from several directions on the west, and Russians slash ever nearer the Reich from the east. Arrows show paths of the mighty juggernauts, with several columns approaching Nazi borders in northern France, others in southern France, and another believed on the verge of lashing out again in Italy. Meantime, Hitler's Balkan support is falling apart and deserting him.

Seek To Crack Up Siegfried Before Huns Can Man It

By WILLIAM F. BONI
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, Saturday, Sept. 2 — American armies pounded at or beyond the Belgian frontier today and raced the Germans in an attempt to reach the Siegfried line before the routed enemy — beaten in the battle of France — can man it for a last-ditch defense of the Reich.

Behind these lightning columns, now operating at double the speed of the Nazi blitz of France, lay the fallen fortresses of Sedan, Verdun and St. Mihiel, and the breached Maginot line.

(With Allied forces at or near the Belgian border, the Nazis admitted in a strange broadcast from Brussels that the Belgian capital might fall soon, but threatened "one day we shall come back"

Appeal To Belgians

(One Nazi announcer made a last appeal for Hitler's cause and admonished Belgians "not to show hatred against us or against those in your country who worked for us." Another cautioned the people to remain calm, adding "we shall never rob you and we shall never pillage you."

(SS leader Hans Friedrich told the Belgians, "I know you are eagerly awaiting the British and American forces" and added "we nationalist-socialists however will face any situation x x x We shall never give up our principles. One day we shall come back.")

Hardly A Shot At Verdun

The fortress of Verdun, where 300,000 Frenchmen bled to save France in the first World war, fell with hardly a shot after armored infantry swept through the Argonne forest—still scarred and seared by the agonies of battles generations old—without a single casualty.

It was no longer a battle. It was simply a race for the Germans trying to get into positions in the rusty Siegfried line before the American lightning strikes.

Where the Germans elected to stand, they were overwhelmed by flying columns, bombed and strafed and pelted from the skies by pamphlets calling on them to "surrender now."

Battle columns streaming into Lorraine may now have brought the city of Metz, less than 25 miles from Germany, within their artillery sights.

Already hard-riding patrols may have lanced across the Belgian border five miles north of Sedan

Gothic Line In Italy Is Cracked

By GEORGE TUCKER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, Sept. 1—British troops, attacking hard behind a rolling aerial barrage laid down by waves of fighter-bombers, have penetrated the Germans' Gothic line defenses at three points near the Adriatic coast, advancing to a depth of 1,000 yards through a maze of strongpoints, Allied headquarters announced today.

Nazi troops sitting behind their presumably attack-proof defenses have taken a "severe jolt," declared Lynn Heinzerling, Associated Press war correspondent accompanying the new Allied push.

Germans Confused

"Eighth Army troops are digging about inside the line," Heinzerling said. "At three different places where Eighth Army troops bit into the line they found the Germans confused and unprepared. They apparently had expected an Eighth Army brand of artillery barrage to warn them of any hostile action."

Monte Della Croce, described as a key point of Gothic line defenses in the Adriatic area, was captured in the first rush of the British, and forward elements were reported fighting hand-to-hand on the slopes of Mount Calvo. Other British units were slashing forward within 1,000 yards of Monte Gridolf, another heavily fortified height.

(Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, German military commentator, said in a broadcast that the "whole right wing of the Eighth British Army" was attacking between the Ardiatic and the main ridge of the Appennines in a "serious attempt to force access to the Po plain.")

Strongpoint Captured

The strongpoint of Montecchio, west of Borgo Santa Maria, was captured, and tank-supported British infantry pushed on and established itself firmly inside the Gothic line defenses north of there.

Headquarters said Pesaro was divided between the Germans and the Poles and that fighting was in progress along the railway line running through the city.

(A British broadcast recorded by CBS said that "Berlin is already speaking of a full-scale Allied offensive in Italy, but there is no confirmation from Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's headquarters.")

An Allied communique said that "significant gains" also were made in the Florence area near the center of the front. Only patrol activity was reported from the Fifth Army front west of Florence.

Probe Of O'Daniel's Campaign Reported

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP) — The Senate campaign expenditures committee was reported today by Chairman Green (D-RI) to be "looking into campaign matters" in Texas which he said involved the anti-New Deal campaign of Senator O'Daniel (D-Texas).

Green refused to elaborate other than to say that the preliminary inquiry relates to campaign contributions received and "the amount of money spent on his paper," known as the "W. Lee O'Daniel News."

"There's nothing to give out now", Green told reporters following an executive meeting of the committee. "There's no formal complaint. The committee has certain responsibilities of its own."

Seagraves Marks Several Firsts On First Of Month

SEAGRAVES, Sept. 1 (Special) —Today was not only the first of September in this Gaines county own, but was also first in many other activities.

The first Gaines county whisky still, now located in the sheriff's office, was found four miles west of Seagraves today. It was equipped with a modern oil burner with auto radiator for cooling coil.

The first annual softball league barbecue, paid for by losing team captains, L. M. McAdoo, Jap Adams, Al Yeager, Cecil Proctor, and Nig Moore, was held today with 500 people attending.

Other firsts are: First day of school Monday Sept. 4, with R. L. Vestal as new superintendent, and C. L. Brannon, coach. First annual watermelon day is scheduled to be celebrated here about Sept. 16. All of Texas is invited to free watermelon.

Pope Pleads For Christian Peace

By GEORGE BRIA
Associated Press Staff Writer

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 1—Pope Pius XII appealed in a world broadcast today for a peace founded on Christian principles, acknowledged that the use of force might be necessary to prevent future wars and, although defending the right of private property, condemned a "capitalism" which "arrogates to itself an unlimited right over property."

The address, made on the fifth anniversary of the war's outbreak and broadcast by Vatican radio, stressed the necessity of collabration by all nations in the maintenance of security.

Special Pies For Italy

The vanquished should share with the victors "not only rights and duties but also in the benefits of a true civilization" in the new era, the pontiff said.

He made a special appeal in behalf of Italy — fighting against "misery, famine, unemployment and economic unrest"—and said "prompt and effective remedies" were needed with the approach of winter.

The entire address underlined the imminence of the end of the war in Europe. "The hands on the clock of history are now pointing to an hour both grave and decisive of all mankind," he said.

Nazis Hacked To Shreds In Flight

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, Sept. 1 — American troops who drove to Gernoble in a lightning dash from the Riveria last week have speared on more than 15 miles beyond that city and are advancing within less than 55 miles of the Swiss border, it was officially disclosed today as the secrecy which had shrouded the operation of the Yank task force was partly lifted.

An announcement said the column was operating north of Voiron, 15 miles northwest of Grenoble and but 44 miles from Lyon, through which battered remnants of the 19th German Army were fleeing from southern France.

Flanking Threat

Presence of the column southeast of Lyon offered a flanking threat to Nazi troops fighting fierce rearguard actions against pursuing Americans between Valence and Lyon while the main body of enemy troops pelted northward in a desperate attempt to escape to Germany.

(Capt. Ludwig Sertorious, Nazi radio commentator, said Friday that the "increasing tendency of the enemy to outflank with motorized American formations the German detachment movement had increased the difficulties of the German retreat but could not prevent it.")

Allied headquarters reported that American troops chasing the Nazis up the Rhone valley had made contact with enemy rearguards between Touron, 10 miles above captured Valence, and Le Bourg Du Peage, 11 miles northeast of Valence.

Nazis Put On Their Own

German prisoners said that the weary, disorganized enemy units being hazed up the valley had been put strictly on their own by their commanders—told to get back to Germany by their own resources. They were a far cry from the proud legions Hitler sent chasing into Poland five years ago. They had lost all stomach for battle.

Allied airmen reported heavy movement of enemy troops on highways leading out of Lyon to the north. They were racing to reach Germany before they could be cut off by an American column plunging eastward from Paris toward the Swiss border.

A report from Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's headquarters quoted captured Gen. Otto Richter, commander of the German 198th Infantry division, as saying that "the 19th Army is undertaking to extricate itself from southeast France by any means possible."

C. A. Rush Dies Of Heart Attack

Charles Adams Rush, 58, owner of one of the early-day drug stores of Lubbock and associated with one of Lubbock's first dry goods stores, John P. Lewis company, died at 2:45 o'clock Friday afternoon in St. Mary's hospital of a heart ailment.

Rush, who has been in the tailoring and cleaning business with his son, Will Edd Rush, in Levelland the last two years, had complained of a pain around his heart the last four days, relatives said, but he did not go to the hospital until Friday morning.

He moved to Lubbock in 1898 with his parents, attended school here and at Clarendon college, and owned the Star drug which will be remembered by old-timers. At one time he was in the cattle business with his brother, Rufus R. Rush of Lubbock, and was associated with his father, the late G. A. Rush, in farming.

Funeral services are pending the arrival of relatives, Bryan McDonald and Son Funeral home said.

Other survivors are his wife; three sons, George F. Rush of Cushing, Okla., Charles G. Rush, who is in the air corps stationed in Kansas, Bobby R. Rush of Coleman; two sisters, Mrs. S. O'Neal and Mrs. C. C. Lane of Lubbock and one grandchild.

CARE FOR DOG ASKED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1 (AP)— Wilbur W. Stewart left a $30,000 estate to his brother, Robert, asking that he "take proper care of my beloved pet, Red Prince Michael"—a cocker spaniel—" and in the event of his death give him proper burial."

New Trial For Thomas Sought

PLAINVIEW, Sept. 1 (Special) —A motion for a new trial for Jim Thomas, convicted and assessed the death penalty by a jury here Wednesday night in the slaying of Dr. Roy Hunt at Littlefield, was filed in 64th district court today by one of his attorneys, George McCarthy of Amarillo.

The motion claimed, among other points, that a continuance was overruled and that the defense was forced to trial without a material witness who was temporarily absent from the state.

Names Littlefield Man

(The continuance motion alleged that a Littlefield man, Porter Humphrey, had told Thomas in Lubbock county jail that he knew of his own knowledge that Thomas did not commit the Hunt slayings, and that he knew who did do them; further that he said he would not like to reveal the name of the murderer to authorities; that later Thomas heard that he would name the murderer under oath.

(The defense counsel told reporters at the trial that Humphrey recently had been reported working in a west coast war plant, but that efforts to locate him and ask for his voluntary appearance at the trial had failed.)

German Underground Calls For Revolt

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP) — The ministry of information said today the "Volksender," identifying itself as the "German people's underground radio," broadcast an appeal to all Germans in the Reich and Czechoslovakia to revolt against Hitler's rule.

The call was being issued to all Germans "on the fifth anniversary of the war," the broadcast said

Governor Seeks To Smooth Out Texas Demo Differences

By WILLIAM E. KEYS
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Sept. 1. — Attempts to soothe disaffection among Texas Democrats who are split on the presidential elector issue gained added weight today when Gov. Coke R. Stevenson put out his first peace feeler.

At a press conference the governor, who has maintained strict neutrality in party affairs, declared:

"I don't mind discussing with both sides some plan that will allow the will of the voters to be expressed. I believe in that fundamentally. The elector situation is but an episode in history and it is necessary to take the long range view in the interest of equity."

He said no more but his brief declaration, linked with recent visits by persons on both sides of the elector squabble lent credence to undersurface indications that certain influential members of pro- and anti-Roosevelt groups are seeking to adjust differences in the intrest of party harmony before the Sept. 12 convention in Dallas.

It was the governor's first public utterance on the elector fight and it should be remembered that the September convention is by party custom the governor's convention. Normally he is expected to take the lead in shaping the party's state platform for convention approval.

Marshall Urges Small Army With Full Citizen-Reserve

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP) — Gen. George C. Marshall has told Army planners that the post-war American Army must consist of the smallest possible professional organization, with citizen-reserves, because the large standing Army "has no place among the institutions of a modern democratic state."

His directive, it was learned tonight, has just been issued as basic policy for all officers planning the permanent post-war Army organization. It contains, however, a warning that the wartime Army may be needed long after the defeat of the Axis powers, in order to help establish peacetime conditions agreed upon by the Allies.

And it contains also a statement that the policy directive is based on the assumption that Congress will approve a system of universal military training, under which "every able-bodied young American shall be trained to defend his country," remaining a member of the reserve components of the Army for a "reasonable period" after his training is completed.

Details of the permanent organization, the directive says, cannot be determined until the nations post-war commitments are known—they "change with the changes in weapons, modes of transportation, and interantional relations." It adds, however, that the type of organization—the small professional nucleus augmented in emergencies by the citizen Army —has been the American way since the foundation of the republic and "will therefore be made the basis for all plans for a post-war peace establishment."

Sept. 1, 1944.

DEAR . . . . . .

Jim Thomas is under death sentence for the slaying Oct. 26 of Dr. Roy E. Hunt of Littlefield, convicted Wednesday night by a jury that deliberated 2 hours 40 minutes. The three-day trial was held in Plainview in 64th district court with Judge C. D. Russell presiding. District Attorney Harold M. LaFont opened for the state; George McCarthy, Amarillo, opened for the defense; Curtis Douglass, Pampa, closed for the defense and George Dupree closed for the state.

The state did not introduce evidence indicating a motive for the slaying. The entire burden of testimony centered on circumstantial evidence presented by West Texas officers; Texas Rangers and acquaintances of the suspect.

Thomas showed no emotion when the verdict was read.

Defense motion is expected to file a new trial motion today. In the meantime, Thomas has been returned to Lubbock county jail.

Mothers, and others, were fearful today when a case of infantile paralysis was reported. The patient is Barbara Butler, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Butler. Her illness does not appear critical, according to Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer, who made the report.

Servicemen in town the past week have included Lt. (jg) Rex Webster, USNR, who has been serving in the Mediterranean theater aboard a destroyer. This is the first trip home in 16 months for dashing Rex, who is a popular staff member of KFYO and popular in college and town circles. He says he is one man who is anxious to come back to Lubbock when the war is over and settle down.

Capt. Edward D. Maner of Hillsboro, former Tech student, is visiting his brother, Otis Maner, who lives on the Slaton highway. He is back after 13 months in the India - Burma - China theater where he completed 60 roundtrips over the "hump" as first pilot on a C-46 transporting supplies to the front lines from an air supply depot in India.

An appeal is being issued from the Tech dean of women's office to Lubbock residents for rooms in which to house women students this fall. The two dormitories were filled several weeks ago.

Fred G. Gurley, president, and other high officials of the Santa Fe railroad system aboard paid an inspection trip here Tuesday. Accompanying Gurley, who at 55 is one of the youngest railroad presidents in the nation, were George H. Minchin, vice president in charge of operations; Tom A. Blair, assistant chief engineer; J. J. Mahoney, general superintendent of transportation, and T. H. Bothwell, general freight traffic manager, all of Chicago; and E. P. Dudley, assistant general manager of the Santa Fe Western and P&SF; H. C. Vincent, P&SF traffic manager, and R. H. Deitiker, P&SF general freight manager, all of Amarillo.

Effective Sept. 30 Texas Tech's contract with the government for service to the ASTR program will be cancelled, Dr. Clifford B. Jones has announced. Cancellation of the contract was activated by two reasons: Dormitory facilities are needed and other colleges are able and anxious to increase their ASTRP quotas, the college president pointed out.

Lubbock's newest ward school, an 8-room building, now under construction and located adjacent to the Arnett-Benson addition will be called "McWhorter school," named for one of the county's pioneer citizens, the late Burton Owen McWhorter. It will receive its first pupils sometime between Dec. 1 and New Years day.

At a meeting of the Lubbock Ministerial association this week, it was decided that prayer services will be held in city churches at 8 o'clock on the night following collapse of Germany. It was pointed out such an observance will be more in keeping with the occasion than would the blowing of sirens and sounding of automobile horns as has been planned in some Texas towns.

After having broken all previous records for business, the city swimming pool in Mackenzie State park has been closed for the season. Russell E. Wimberly was pool manager last season.

Coach Dell Morgan, coach of the Tech Red Raiders, and Coach J. Mule Davis of the high school Westerners, have started their football squads in training, preparing for tough schedules. For instance this season Tech will face such gridiron greats as Texas A. and M., Oklahoma A. and M., Tulsa, Texas Christian university, SMU, Rice, Southwestern university and West Texas State Teachers.

Goodbye until next week.

Wood Resigns ODT District Post Here

Richard E. Wood announced Friday that he had resigned as Lubbock district manager of the Office of Defense Transportation, effective Saturday, Sept. 9. He has held the position since the office was opened here Oct. 15, 1942.

He will leave Lubbock with his family about Sept. 15 for San Angelo where he will serve as traffic manager of Sunset Motor lines, the position he held before joining ODT.

J. C. Hilton, assistant manager of the district office, will serve as acting district manager until a successor to Wood can be named.

When the Lubbock office was opened the personnel totaled 14. There are 21 ODT employes here now, Wood said.

He had high praise for the cooperation and willingness shown by the public in the district in all efforts of the ODT to prolong the life of commercial vehicles. "Millions of unnecessary mileage has been eliminated through the cooperation of truck operators in the past two years," he added.

BY, OF, and FOR THE PEOPLE

OPPOSES NEW DEAL

Editor, The Avalanche: In World War I, Woodrow Wilson's administration had 917,000 federal employees.

In World War 2, the Roosevelt administration employs more than 3,000,000. At one time 98,053 were holding draft deferments.

This payroll of more than 3,000,000 persons does not include thousands of part time workers, thousands more on joint federal-state payrolls, et cetera.

The present number is at least 1,500,000 too many for the job to be done and for the overburdened taxpayers to support. More important, the overleaded federal payrolls in Washington and throughout the nation are actually impeding the progress of the war. Our federal government is continously asking, and justifiably so, for greater sacrifices from all its citizens. But our government itself is making no sacrifices!

All persons on federal payrolls should be disfranchised from voting and those on relief should be disfranchised as long as they are on relief. This would cause a check to dangerous federal spending and prevent building up gigantic federal political machines, supported by the votes of those who receive the money. Appropriate to the situation is the old political proverb," Whose bread I eat, his song I sing."

Roosevelt has practically the unaninous support of the federal employees, who in most instances vote for selfish reasons to keep their jobs on the federal payrols.

There is precident for the disfranchisement of voters in the disfranchisement of all citizens of Washington, D. C., because of their pecuniary interest in the federal government. If federal employees were barred from voting, the taxpayers might have something to say about how their money was spent, and we might be able to elect a Democrat President in 1948 instead of a so-called Democrat with dictatorial and Socialistic ambitions, and who is doing all in his power to bring about Socialism and regimentation as a permanent form of government in the United States. Our only hopes are to purge the Democratic party by defeating Roosevelt and organize a new Democratic party that bars all with alien isms. This should be done at once, regardless of who is elected.

I don't want Eleanor either.

Yours very truly
Chas. P. Smith,
Henderson.

Houston Leaders Form Roosevelt-Truman Support Organization

HOUSTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—A 33-member committee to promote the candidacy of the Roosevelt-Truman ticket in the November election has begun to function here, it was disclosed today, as a formal statement demanded that active anti-administration elements of the Texas party yield their leadership or "form a new party or vote the Republican ticket."

The group opened headquarters at a downtown hotel under the name of the "Committee for the Democratic Nominees."

In its statement blasting dissident party leaders who dominated the May state convention at Austin and instructed presidential electors to vote against the presidential nominee, the committee said:

"Anti-Roosevelt extremists have no right to seize the machinery of the Democratic party in Texas, block off the main highway and tell real Democrats they must use a rough and dusty detour. . . . We demand that those who desire to vote against President Roosevelt either form a new party themselves or vote the Republican ticket. They must not violate Texas traditions . . . and deliver the state into the hands of the Republican party by indirection."

Attorney Robert F. Peden is chairman of the committee. Among its members are prominent Houston attorneys, bankers and civic leaders.

One of the 32 atolls in the Marshalls is named "New Year."

Texas Political Conventions

EVERY once-in-so-often, apropos of almost anything, someone—usually a politician—will break into print with an attack upon the primary system of choosing nominees of political parties and urge a return to the old convention system in Texas.

The most recent instances that have come to this attention followed the U. S. Supreme court ruling that negroes could not be barred from Democratic primaries. Several well known Texas politicians remarked, with obvious wistfulness, that the decision should mean that Democrats would abandon popular primaries and go back to the convention plan.

Let us emphasize, at once, that these did not include Gov. Coke Stevenson. He immediately, in an interview in The Avalanche-Journal, re-affirmed his support of and preference for the primaries.

Only people who are well into middle age will remember, from experience, how the old convention system worked. Under it, precinct conventions would name delegates to county conventions which, in turn, would choose delegates to a state convention. Precinct conventions would choose Democratic nominees to precinct offices, county conventions to county offices, state conventions to state offices, etc., etc. At first, no popular primaries were held at all. Then primaries were started, but at first they were only "advisory." Usually the conventions followed the "advice" indicated in primaries, but not always.

Texans finally got fed up with the abuses that crept into conventions, and took nearly all power from them. Now the Texas electoral system is about 90 per cent primary and 10 per cent convention. Recent events may tend to cause many Texans to wonder whether it wouldn't be just as well to throw that remaining 10 per cent; or whatever percentage remains, out upon the political scrap heap.

We refer, particularly, to all the confusion,—present, past and prospective—that has attended and probably will attend the selection of Texas presidential electors. On that subject, we do not propose to enter into partisan discussion here. We merely suggest the confusion as being indicative of the possibilty that political conventions have outlived their day, and might properly be retired to oblivion. In other words, that there should be even more primary, and less convention—if any at all—in the Texas election system.

The U. S. Stand On India

IF any among the British imagine that American expressions of opinion as to the future of India can be silenced by command from any source, unquestionably they are due for disillusionment.

It is difficult to believe that any Englishman in a position of high responsbility could hope to silence Americans with a frown. Surely anyone should know that the best way to start Americans to talking about any given subject is to try to forbid discussions. Seemingly, among all the men in the British government, the two who should be most conscious of this fact are Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Foreign Minister Anthony Eden.

Yet it was Mr. Churchill who, a few weeks ago and with India in mind, declared that the British did not want people of any other nation even to talk about the future of the empire's possession. More recently—just a few days ago—it was revealed that Mr. Eden had demanded the withdrawal of William Phillips, the President's personal ambassador, from London for having expressed opinions about India in an official report to his superior, the President.

The British seem to take the view—and, from their viewpoint, it is understandable—that what happens to India is strictly their business, and definitely none of the business of Americans. But many Americans simply will not recognize such a hypothesis. Their view is that the peace of the entire Far East is linked, inextricably, with events in India. They know that anything that dsturbs the peace in the Far East is sure to affect the United States in vital degree. India, definitely, is the business of Americans, both in this war and in the post-war future.

Americans disagree among themselves as to what may be best and what may be justice for India. Not many, even among those who believe that India should be given independence, would be willing to go to war for the sake of India's liberation.

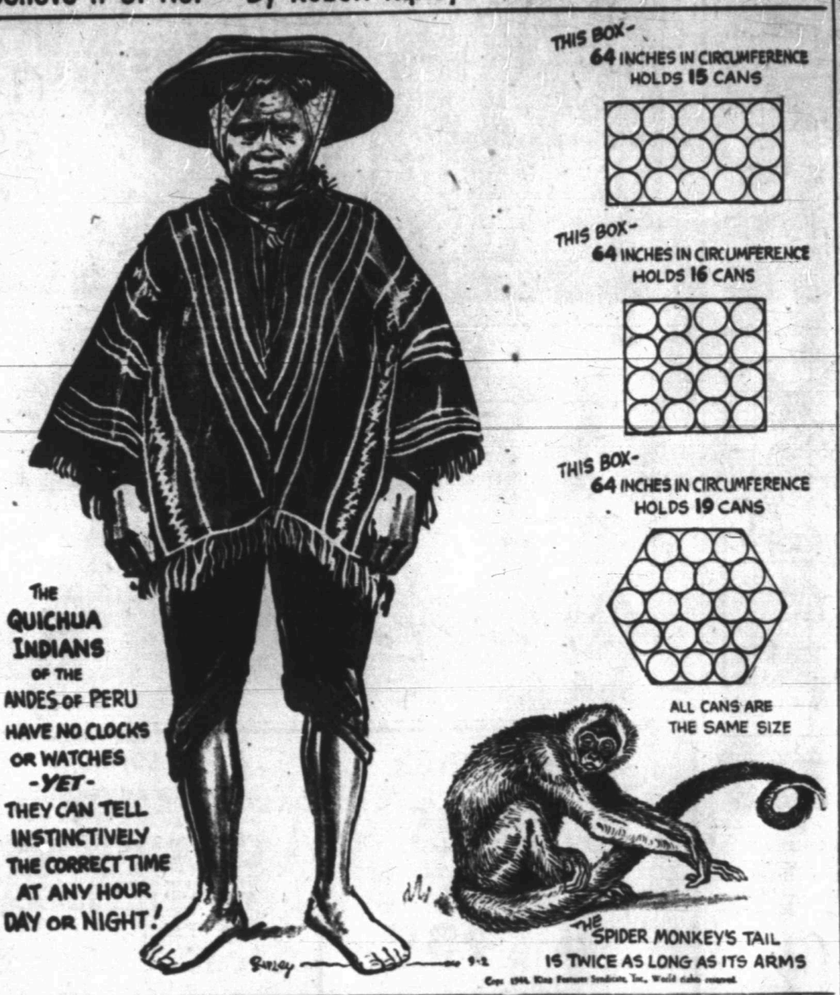

But no matter what individual American opinions may be as to India, all who are worthy of their nation will uphold the rights of themselves, and of others, to express their views. They will not submit to gagging of themselves or others, and the British will be wiser if they avoid everything that suggests the intent or the desire to gag.

The One Minute Sermon

Hear my prayer, O Lord, and give ear unto my cry; hold not thy peace at my tears; for I am a stranger with thee, and a sojourner, as all my fathers were.

O spare me, that I may recover strength, before I go hence, and be no more. Psalms 39:12-13.

Believe It Or Not --- By Robert Ripley

The Life Of Eisenhower

By Francis Trevelyan Miller

(Copyright, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.)

SOLDIER BRIDEGROOM

VII

Second Lieutenant Eisenhower, 24 years old, stepped from West Point into World War I. Here he was to show his genuius in the new age of mechanized warfare as the organizer of the first American tank corps to enter battle.

America was preparing for the inevitable day when it would be drawn into the vortex. Thirty-six days before Ike graduated from West Point, German submarines had sunk the transatlantic passenger ship Lusitania (May 7, 1915), war a loss of 1195 lives, of whom 124 were Americans. Protests only brought defiance from the Germans. Ruthless submarine warfare came home to ships flying the American flag.

We find young Ike first assigned to the 19th Infantry at Fort Sam Houston, in San Antonio, Texas, on Sept. 13, 1915, a few miles from his birthplace in Denison. Here again he was under the shadow of the historic Alamo. Six months later when Pancho Villa began his raids over the Mexican border, Lieutenant Eisenhower was made Inspector-Instructor of Militia on the Mexican border. This was his job from Aug. 1, 1916, to April 1, 1917. Punitive forces under Gen. John J. Pershing began chasing the bandit into the Mexican mountains. Some years later, after Pershing had won fame leading the American Expeditionary Forces in France, Villa was ambushed and killed in Durango.

Daniel S. Miller, now a military policeman at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, tells this story about young Eisenhower at Fort Sam Houston in the fall of 1915. Miller was Ike's first orderly.

"One evening I had a date at San Antonio and needed a pair of civilian shoes so I sneaked a pair of the lieutenant's without being caught. The next morning I arose early to replace them under his bed. As I was cleaning his room that morning the lieutenant quietly remarked, 'If you want a pair of shoes don't be bashful, ask for them—don't sneak them out!' I was dumbfounded when he added, 'You can use those shoes any time—they are yours.'"

Young Eisenhower received his promotion to first lieutenant while stationed at Fort Sam Houston on July 1, 1916, and on that day was married to the charming Mamie Geneva Doud in Denver, Col. The soldier groom was 25 years old and his bride was 19.

The vivacious Miss Doud had left Iowa, her birthplace, and gone to Denver, Colo., during World War I. Her parents were in San Antonio, Texas, and she went to visit them. The story in the Eisenhower family is that when young Dwight met her—he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston at that time—he decided then and there, "This is the girl I'm going to marry."

It is further said that on the night Mamie, as he calls her, first met Dwight she had a date with another man and was anxious to get away. Together with her parents and a neighboring judge and his wife, she was having dinner at the officers' mess. Mamie didn't want to stay. Her mother told her they would be polite guests—Mamie's young man could pick her up at the post after dinner, or not at all. There was to be no argument about the matter. Mamie stayed.

This was on a Sunday night, and Dwight was at theofficers' mess. He and Mamie got along well from the beginning. Before her date, Mamie walked around with Dwight to inspect the first sentry. The next night Dwight called the Doud residence again and again. Mamie herself had gone to a picnic. When she returned the maid told her a Mr. "I Something" had been calling every 15 minutes. The telephone rang again and Mamie answered it. "He asked me to go to the show at the 'big night' at the Majestic," she admits. "Well, all of us girls were always dated up for that night, so I told him it would be four weeks before I had an evening open."

After much futile argument, Dwight took the engagement four weeks ahead, but he says he managed to arrange some dates in advance of the big event. The courtship started in October, in December they were engaged.

Tense excitement swept the United States on April 6, 1917. Savage submarine attacks on American shipping forced us to enter World War I. Thirty-nine days after we entered the war First Lieutenant Eisenhower became Captain Eisenhower, on May 15. Captain Eisenhower was sent to Camp Wilson to train the National Guard of Illinois, and later became Assistant Mustering Officer of the Southern Department. He was now receiving his first experience in the making of an army.

The first American troops landed in France on June 5, 1917. Captain Eisenhower was at this time the Regimental Supply Officer, with the 57th Infantry at Leon Springs, Texas., from April 1 to Sept. 20. Across the sea battles were raging along the Somme, along the Ypres-Menin Road, at Verdun, at "Dead Man's Hill" and Hill 304, and at Cambrai.

Captain Eisenhower was making a reputation as one of the ablest young officers in American training camps. He was sent to Fort Oglethorpe, in Georgia, as instructor at the Officers' Training Camp from Sept. 20 to Dec. 1.

It was during this period that Eisenhower's war bride, back in Texas, presented him with his first son, christened Doud Dwight Eisenhower, born on Sept. 24, 1917, at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio.

Looking At Life - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

I WOULD like to tell you a little bit about New York, because most people seem to have such an entirely wrong idea about this so-called metropolis.

I know it, because we have lots of relatives and friends in all parts of the country and whenever they intend to come to New York they write in effect as follows:

"We are coming to your sinful town. We are against sin, but we want to see all the sin there is.

"We may have a hard time staying up until four or five in the morning, but we'll do it because we know New Yorkers do it every night.

"We want to see a different show every night and do the night clubs afterwards, just like you people do."

So then, my wife and I madly find out what the best shows and nightclubs are and the best places to eat.

Then, when the aunts and uncles and nieces and friends arrive, we chase them all over the place and play suckers for ticket speculators and headwaiters and hatcheck girls.

We go to bed exhausted and frequently pray for the day when the folks go home again.

And as they leave us they say: "How in the world do you New Yorkers stand the pace? This is a wonderful place to visit, but we wouldn't live here for all the money in the world!"

And that's how we New Yorkers get our reputation for sophisticates and wise-guys and rounders.

BUT in the meantime we are just a lot of small-town folks puting on a big bluff for the visitors.

We live in the suburbs or away uptown or over in Brooklyn, where the tree grows. We have stuffy apartments or houses just like you.

We cook and wash and sew and gossip and have children and divorces and owe money just like you people in Allentown and Peoria and Dayton and Lubbock.

We are no smarter and no more stupid than anybody else, but because there are so many of us there are more smart and more stupid people here than anywhere else.

So don't let your New York kin kid you. The great majority of us came here from towns just like yours and most of us wish to heaven we were back where we came from.

Of course, if you like delicatessen stores, canned food, dirt, noise and stone canyons, you'll love New York.

It is, indeed, a wonderful place to visit!

Pleasant Labor Day Weather In Prospect

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—On the word of the weather bureau, most of the country is in for a pleasant Labor day weekend.

A special national-wide forecast issued today said the only hot and humid weather will occur in the Southeast, where, too, showers will be fairly general.

Elsewhere the outlook is bright for a "generally fine weekend," says the bureau.

AWARDED CLUSTER

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 1. (U.P.)—Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the Allied Air forces in the Southwest Pacific, has awarded the Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal of 1st Lt. Edward J. Magee of Taos, N. M.

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE Army and Navy have taken special pains to "facilitate" voting by members of the armed forces. But they are applying no official coercion or compulsion in an attempt to drive them to the polls in absentia.

Pre relations spokesmen of both services authorize this statement in response to a few complaints that commanders of certain units had ordered their men to obtain postcard applications under penalty of court-martial. Any threat of that sort is a flagrant violation of regulations, and any gold-braider who makes it is subject to trial himself.

War and Navy are giving every fighter a chance to exercise his constitutional privilege, if he wishes to do so. Each group on land and sea has what is known as a "voting supervisor." There are about 80,000 altogether in the two branches. It is their assignment to inform their commands how to get either a federal or state absentee ballot. At that point their electoral responsibility ends.

Wherever feasible, these instructions are attached to the warriors' pay checks, and they must sign slips showing that they have received these directions. But, say War Ballot commission officials, whether the soldiers and sailors and fliers actually apply for those important pieces of paper and mail them to their home cities is nobody's business but their own.

The military vote might easily prove decisive, especially as it is reported that the boys in uniform favor President Roosevelt overwhelmingly. If only a third of the 12,000,000 under arms forward their John Hancocks, they may sway the election.

PERSUASION: Some political researchers have advanced the somber speculation that Japanese of American extraction could conceivably swing the election in the extremely important state of California. The presumption, which is not borne out by some of the youngsters' military behavior in our forces overseas, seems to be that they would vote against the administration.

The facts do not substantiate this conjecture. Around 61,000 were evacuated, mostly from California, and settled in seven states — Idaho, Colorado, Utah, Oregon, interior California, Arizona and Arkansas. Another 18,000, living far from the Pacific Coast long before Pearl Harbor, were unmolested.

Only two thirds of this 79,000 are citizens, and from that number must be deducted those below voting age. Since their present habitats are remote from electoral centers and newspapers, it is believed that not many will take the trouble to qualify or vote. Even if they should, it is questionable whether they could affect the outcome anywhere.

The government is making no organized or official effort to advise them of their rights, or to aid those eligible in exercising the suffrage. Indeed, except for Sidney Hillman's CIO campaign to drag pro-Roosevelt workers to the polls, Washington indulges in no acknowledged or concerted plan to persuade any class of citizen to vote.

INSURANCE: Further investigation of the government's war insurance program, which threatens to grow into a national scandal unless and until Congress and the administration correct admitted shortcomings, discloses that soldiers should change their policies for protection of their families.

The revision will not be necessary if the legislators remedy this evil, and—this is an extremely important item—if they make the improvements in the statute retroactive.

Under present law, as this column revealed exclusively, the immediate beneficiary (mother, wife, child, father) collects the full $10,000 value provided that he or she lives 20 or 30 years, depending on the claimant's age at the time of the fighter's death.

A secondary beneficiary, however, can collect only a comparatively small amount annually for 10 years, with previous payments to the original recipient discounted. In many instances this type of heir will receive only $4,000 or $5,000 on a $10,000 policy.

RETROACTIVE: So, until the present statute is amended in accordance ith Veterans' Administrator Frank T. Hines' June 6th request, a soldier would be wise to name two joint beneficiaries—a mother and father, or a wife and child.

The secondary legatee will not receive the full annual amount designated for the original beneficiary. But he or she will be paid half the total for FOR LIFE. The capitalized words are the important ones.

Incidentally, for quick action on the remedial bill, which is Senate 2508, write to Sen. Walter F. George of Georgia and Sen. Bennett C. Clark of Missouri. The former introduced Senate Bill 2508 at the request of Major General Hines, and Clark heads the Senate Finance subcommittee which is studying the proposed changes.

It might be advisable to prod the White House, Vice President Henry Wallace and Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky.

And be sure to suggest that all corrective provisions be made retroactive for the benefit of the widows, children and parents of men who have already "gone west."

By JACK STINNETT
Associated Press Staff Writer

THE gentleman from Tallahassee, Fla., Sen. Claude Pepper, sometimes referred to as the administration sounding board in the upper chamber, has come forward with another resolution to put the proceedings of Congress on the national radio networks.

This is a chuckle and you don't need to take it seriously. The temptation is to paraphrase the proceedings of Congress slightly and give a sample "script" of what might go out on the radio as "My Day in Congress."

The Washington Post editorially gave that story a fling, suggesting Congress adopt a musical signature piece and pointing how dramatically you might pack 15 minutes with whether Congresswoman X would yield the floor in debate to Congressman Y.

This, of course, as all in fun, but there are more or less serious aspects to the proposal too.

In the first place, with an exception that occurs hardly once a month, there is nothing duller than a session of either chamber of Congress. And when the drama comes, there are two factors that would make catching it by radio as impractical as trying to broadcast the buzz of a mosquito on its mission of delivering malarial knock-out drops.

The point is that you could never be sure that you would have the microphone right there at the moment of contact and if you followed the mosquito for hours all you would get would be a monotonous buzz.

SESSIONS of Congress move slowly. They are filled with long pauses, some so long that a musical diversion like Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony" wouldn't fill the gap. There are long moments of parliamentary procedure which, even if put to the tune of "Oklahoma!" and crooned by a trio composed of Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra and Deanna Durbin, wouldn't be entertaining.

The alternative, of course, would be to "stage" the sessions of congress which would go on the radio. Nothing could be phonier and probably even funnier than the Washington Post has outlined. The spectacle of 531 members of the two branches of Congress battling for that free time on a national hook-up would, in itself, probably make the whole business a sideshow.

Texans In Washington

Post-War Labor Vote Seen As State Political Force

By TEX EASLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. — With smoke of Texas' second primary election battle cleared, several Lone Star state congressmen held a post mortem here and agreed:

That industrialization of Texas in connection with establishment of shipbuilding yards, airplane factories and the like has injected organized labor into the political picture in their state . . . and probably not on a "duration" basis.

One Texas member, who like all the rest had diligently worked to get war plants located in his district, admitted that he knew he would henceforth have to worry about an organized labor element and that he didn't think his area would ever enjoy peaceful economic conditions that prevailed before the war.

With Texas still predominately an agricultural state, many of her congressmen still find it politically advantageous to draw the wrath of the CIO and other organized labor groups down upon their heads. More than one remarked that charges of being placed on the "CIO's black list" because of the way they voted was a big help to them during the recent campaigns.

Industrial Growth Shown

Speaking of industrialization Texas, the publication, "Domestic Commerce," issued by the Commerce department, says in its latest issue:

"The income of Texas from its four sources (agriculture, oil, manufacturing and non-agricultural payrolls) has more than doubled since 1940. (It then was estimated at $2,500,000,000.) And because the greatest industrial development of the state still lies in the future, further increases may confidently be expected within a comparatively short period after the readjustments following the war have been made.

"The biggest economic problem occasioned by the war in the Southwest region will be that relating to the war plants financed in whole or in part by the government. What disposition will be made in the case of aircraft, shipbuilding, and ordnance plants is as yet a matter of pure conjecture.

"Chemical science and technology are playing a large part in the industrial development of the Southwest region. The phenomenal expansion of chemical industries in this area since Pearl Harbor has grown out of the urgent need for war materials and the abundance here of the types of natural resources required."

THERE will remain a lot of room for conjecture in regard to the disposition of war installations, and equipment notwithstanding the Surplus War Properties bill, for many matters of policy will of necessity be formulated as the act is administered.

Sen. Wilbert Lee O'Daniel has expressed conviction that major oil companies will buy up the "big inch" and "little inch" oil pipe lines — they cost the government $140,000,000 — to use for piping Texas natural gas to the East, and he thinks they will buy them up at about 10 cents on the dollar.

When the House passed its own version of the bill, before conferees were picked to iron out differences in it and the Senate bill, at least there Texans shouted "No" when the vote on passage was taken. They were Reps. Bob Poage of Waco, O. C. Fisher of San Angelo and Paul Kilday of San Antonio.

"There's going to be a lot more heard about that bill in the future," commented Poage. "There's no reason why great quantities of that stuff, including bulldozers and trucks, shouldn't be turned over to public tax-supported agencies and institutions.

"The way things look now that won't happen. It'll be bought up by brokers and then sold to the public. The government will take in some cash on the sales, but will have to go right out on the market and pay full price for much of the same kind of equipment to meet its future needs. It's like a farmer selling all his grain at harvest time, then having to go out in the winter and buy feed for his stock."

Lanham Offers Suggestion

There likely will be an increasing number of vacancies in the war housing projects around industrial centers as war output is curtailed, says Fort Worth's Congressman Fritz Lanham, and there's no good reason why they couldn't provide shelter for wives of soldier or for returning veterans.

Under consideration in the House is a bill he introduced which would make these individuals eligible to rent such units. At present occupants must be connected with war work.

His proposal would in no way interfere with the presplans of National Housing authority officials to tear down these temporary emergency housing projects when they are no longer needed in connection with the war effort.

It would be applicable to cases where vacancies existed in one or two units in a building containing several units, and the structure could not be demolished as long as there was any need for the housing for war workers.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—Cotton futures declined 65 to 95 cents a bale today under pressure of aggressive liquidation and increased hedge selling.

Factors in the decline were continued favorable war news and sharp reactions in grains. Final prices were a little better than extreme losses of as much as $1.15 a bale.

Traders ignored reports indicating a general withholding among producers for higher prices.

Futures closed 65 to 95 cents a bale lower.

Pope Pius' Plea

lied authorities electricity was furnished throughout Rome so that Romans could hear the broadcast, and the Allies also set up loudspeakers in several squares.

Most of the Holy Father's address dwelt on the economic world to come after the end of the "tremendous tragedy," a future period when he said men expect far reaching and definite betterment of economic and social conditions.

But he warned that the promises of many statesmen, the many plans and proposals of experts and specialists had given rise in the victims of unhealthy social orders "illusory hopes of a complete rebirth of the world and to an over-enthusiastic expectation of a millenium of universal happiness."

He said that such ideas offered "fertile ground for the propaganda of the most radical programs, disposes men's minds to a very understandable but unreasonable and unjustified impatience, which looks for nothing from organic reforms and puts all its hopes in upheavals and violence."

Asserting that the "Christian conscience cannot admit as just a social order which either denies in principle or renders impossible or negaotry in practice, the natural right to property," the pontiff declared that neither could it accept "unlimited right over property," permitting immense riches to dominate public and private economic life.

The Pope said the state should have the right to regulate or even expropriate property where it is against the public welfare, and "where big business even today shows itself more productive there should be given the possibility of tempering the labor contract with a contract of co-ownership."

Benefits Measure

son of Minnesota, ranking ways and means Republican, contended that state unemployment compensation funds are adequate to take care of unemployment problems for the present. The House passed the "states rights" bill after rbeating back administration-supported efforts to set minimum jobless benefit standards, with the government contributing to the state funds while leaving control with the states.

A Senate-House conference committee will begin tmorrow efforts to compromise differences in the bills passed by the two chambers.

Baruch, in a carefully-worded statement, indicated he believed payments should vary according to the living costs in individual communities, rather than favoring uniform, nation-wide sandards. He also recognized the argument that payments should not be so high as to leave little incentive to find work.

That seemed still the major Allied design in the fast moving action, largely a mopping-up operation against meagre German resistance with no sign whatever of Nazi intention to stand and fight short of fortifications within German frontiers.

Northern France

and plunged into the Ardennes forest, out of which the German hordes poured four years ago to subjugate France.

From 60 to 75 miles to the northeast lies Prussia, with her great Rhineland industrial center.

On the left the onrushing British seized Arras, 27 miles from the Belgian border, while the American First Army was no more than 19 miles away after taking Montcornet in an 18-mile drive from Laon.

(The Stockholm newspaper, Tidningen declared the Germans amid "scenes similar to Paris a few weeks ago," the Office of War Information reported.)

Canadians Take Dieppe

Triumphant Canadians captured Dieppe to wipe out the memory of their bloody landing of 1942 and dashed 15 miles on up the coast to Le Treport.

A front-line dispatch said the American First Army was attacking toward Mons, 7 miles inside Belgium where a fierce battle was fought in the first World war. Highways were loaded with American trucks, all hurrying north.

The clandestine Belgian press called on Belgian patriots to redouble their blows against the Germans.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army at Verdun and St. Mihiel were on the historic soil where their fathers 26 years ago launched the big offensive that drove Germany to her knees.

90th Is With Patton

With him, is was revealed, was the veteran 90th Infantry division, which fought at Verdun and St. Mihiel in the last war.

Other units now identified as driving on Germany are the Fourth Armored division, which earlier sealed off the Brest peninsula, and the Seventh Armored, and the Fifth, 35th and 80th Infantry divisions.

The Germans were taking terrible punishment from the skies. One group of Allied fighters alone reported they shot up 20 German troop trains in Flanders and the Pas de Calais area. Ninety-two locomotives were hit.

The whereabouts of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First American Army was a question, but the Germans placed them in the vicinity of Vervins, 15 miles from the Belgian border and 23 miles north of Laon, their last officially reported position.

The sweeping nature of the Canadian, British, and American Army advances along the 200-mile northern front indicated that the Germans were incapable of further resistance in France and were leaving it faster than they entered.

Nazis Say Fight Over

(The Germans said the fight for northern France was as good as over.)

Gen. Heinrich Hans Berbach, who took over the Seventh when Nazi Col. Gen. Paul Hausser was wounded, was caught at breakfast and captured along with seven of his staff.

One force of Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's British Second Army wheeled northwest from Amiens and pushed to Longpre, 10 miles inland from Abbeville, virtually sealing off 80 miles of rocket bomb coast southwestward to Le Harve.

Col. Gen. Josef Diretrich's 15th Army has been using the 20-mile Abbeyville gap in its flight to Flanders, just as the Germans used it to hurdle the Somme in 1940's climatic battle for France.

1,126 U. S. Fliers In Romania Evacuated

U. S. 15TH AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS, Italy, Sept. 1 (AP) — Of the more than 3,000 American airmen shot down over the Ploesti oilfields and interned in Romania during the last year, 1,126 have been liberated and safely evacuated to Italian soil.

They were brought from Bucharest to an air base in southern Italy in a fleet of 38 Flying Fortresses, which were hounded by enemy fighters going and coming.

The spectacular mass evacuation was arranged by Lt Col. James A. Gunn, 3rd, Kelseyville, Calif., who hid in the fuselage of an enemy ME-109 and was flown out of safety by Capt. Carl Contacuzino of the Romanian Air force.

Cantacuzina, a member of Romanias' royal family, is credited with shooting down 64 Allied planes before Romania came into the war on the Allied side.

Westerners Elect Pearson, Benefield As Co-Captains

By popular vote of their teammates, Johnny Pearson, guard, and Clinton Benefield, end, were named co-captains of the Lubbock Westerners Friday morning as the squad reported 87 strong for the first workout of the season, and to receive equipment.

Pearson and Benefield are two of the seven lettermen returning this season. Pearson was one of the outstanding guards of the district last year, and this season is expected to be even stronger at the same post. Benefield played most of the season at guard last year, but has been shifted to end, where he is slated to see a lot of action this year.

After uniforms were issued, the squad went through two brisk workouts, both morning and afternoon. Passing, ball handling and blocking assignments took up most of the two workouts.

The Westerners have just two weeks in which to whip into condition for the invasion of Clayton Hopkins' Odessa Bronchos, one of the toughest teams the club will have to face this year. Odessa opens the season here on the night of Sept. 15.

Red Raiders Get First Workout

The Texas Tech Red Raiders dolled up in brand new uniforms Friday afternoon, and took to the gridiron for the first football workout of the 1944 season. There were 45 men on hand for the start, with 21 expected to return from vacation from summer school classes on Monday, and several more yet to arrive.

Coach Dell Morgan said Friday that he expected "between 70 and 80" boys to be on hand next week to try for places on the team.

Club Shows Promise

There were a lot of very promising boys on the field Friday afternoon, and the battle for places in the starting lineup appeared to be wide open. There was very little on the field in the way of experienced stars in college ranks, and only two lettermen were on hand.

T. M. Cox and Don Dudley were the lettermen on the field Friday, with Bobby Hayes expected back from Burkburnett for the workout Monday. Such familiar faces as Don Grove, Clyde Black and Ed Robertson off last year's squad were also on hand. Jack Dillon, a 1942 Freshman letterman, was on hand.

While West Texas schools produced the largest number of the candidates, lads from every area of Texas was represented, and a number from New Mexico were on hand.

1-AA Stars Few

Many of the lads who were making headlines in West Texas circles were on the list with Billy Greenfield, Brownfield's All-District back from District 1-AA, and Billy Joe Snodgrass, 280 pound, honorable mention for All-District from the same team, were the only 1-AA stars on hand.

While schools in this area were well represented, there was only one "home town" boy on the squad Friday. This was Buddy Boles.

Two more workouts are on the schedule for today.

Wakefield, York. Sacrifices—Mayo, outlaw, Richards. Triple play—Christman, Gutteridge and McQuinn. Bases on balls—Newhouser 3, Potter 1, Hollingsworth 1. Strikeouts—Newhouser 8, Caster 2. Hit by pitcher — by Hollingsworth (Wakefield). Losing pitcher—Potter. Attendance (paid) —14,020.

Olton Coach Seeks Oversize Grid Suit

OLTON, Sept. 1 (Special) — John Cox arrived here to take over the job of coaching Olton Mustangs, and faced a major problem before he ever handed the Mustangs a football.

Among the prospective gridders for the Mustangs club is a lad that packs plenty of weight in matters—exactly 240 pounds of it. The chief trouble is the lack of equipment with which to prepare the player for the field of battle.

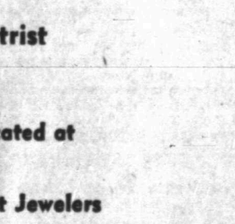

A hasty search has failed to bring to light the equipment needed, and Cox has sent out an SOS for a uniform. Any coach, or school official, with a spare uniform that will fill the bill is urged to contact John Cox at Olton High school.

Just what will be the prospects of the Olton eleven this season will not be determined until Cox has a chance to count noses on Friday and see who turns out.

The Mustangs have a tough schedule ahead of them. It is as follows:

Sept. 15—Hereford at Hereford. (night)
Sept. 22—Morton at Olton (night)
Sept. 29—Lockney at Lockney (day)
Oct. 6—Littlefield at Littlefield (night)
