State takeover of beach proposed

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

FULTON — Former Aransas County Navigation District Commissioner Ken Faulkner approached the town council Tuesday evening, asking Fulton to support his request that the ACND actively pursue sale of the property along Rockport Beach to the state.

Faulkner told council members at the Nov. 22 meeting that the navigation district needs to get out of the business of administering and maintaining recreational areas because the cost is too great. He told council members that sale of the beach to the state would minimize problems of vandalism, make funds available for harbor improvements and maintenance of navigable waters and allow professional management of the beach area.

The former commissioner said that the idea first came up when he was still a representative of the navigation district but it lacked support at that time. However, he stated that he has approached two present navigation district commissioners with his proposal and both have agreed it is a good idea. Faulkner said he has talked or will talk with representatives of the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce, the Rockport city council, art association officials and SeaFair officials. So far, most of the people he has spoken with have been receptive to the idea, he added.

"I can't see how it would hurt us all to let it go," Faulkner said. Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline agreed that the ACND needs to get out of the parks and recreation business and Alderwoman Lynelle Hunt expressed the fear that local people may have to pay to use the beach if the state takes it over.

No action or further discussion was taken by the council, which said the subject would be brought up in a workshop meeting. Faulkner plans to present his proposal at the Dec. 6 ACND meeting.

Alderman Leslie Cole made a motion to reject an $11,385 bid from Reuel Yarbrough for repairs on the Fulton Fire Station. "I think it's too much money to spend on that old building right now," he said. His motion was seconded by Alderwoman Pat Loflin and was unanimously approved by the council.

The Fulton council has decided to make repairs on the fire station instead of helping to finance an addition to and remodeling of the old building. Fulton plans to apply for a grant to build a combination city hall and fire station sometime next year. In the meantime, the council intends to make the minimum repairs necessary.

The second reading of the town's hotel-motel occupancy tax was conducted Tuesday evening. The third and final reading will be Dec. 6.

A motion by Loflin and seconded by Alderman Elgin Dietz to hire Triad Engineering of Austin to perform the engineering work for the hike and bike path along Fulton Beach Road was unanimously approved.

No bids were received on the bait stand at L.E. Casterline Fishing Pier.

The regular meeting was then adjourned and the council conducted a workshop sesion on its recently passed subdivision ordinance.

Fulton attorney Gene Garcia told council members to begin thinking about appointing members to the Planning and Zoning Commission established in the recently passed subdivision ordinance. The commission will be necessary, Garcia said, as the town grows and if and when the council adopts a zoning ordinance.

Fulton's municipal judge will be responsible for enforcing the subdivision ordinance and the hotel-motel tax ordinance as well as any other ordinances the town may enact. Fulton will also have to appoint a tax assessor/collector to collect the tax.

Garcia said that other positions may have to be filled as the need arises. Council members unofficially decided on a Planning and Zoning Commission of five members and will work on appointing persons to fill those positions.

THE FOUNDATION GOES IN for the O'Connor house at its new location near Rockport Harbor. Workmen for Norris Gottschalt's moving firm set the 4-foot foundation pilings in concrete and reinforced them with additional concrete this past week. Gottschalt's firm was hired to move the house from its original location on Broadway to the harbor area after the structure was donated to the Rockport Art Association for its long-sought art center. The mover estimates his part of the project — which includes setting up the building — will be completed by the first week in December.

Notable notes

Art show

The Rockport Art Association invites the public to a reception from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 27, for the opening of the association's week-long, members-only art show and sale at Allied Live Oak Center. The show will continue from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. weekdays through Dec. 2.

Decision due Dec. 13

City to appoint alderman

A successor to fill the vacancy created by the death of Rockport Alderman Murray McMillan will be appointed at the city council's Dec. 13 meeting.

That decision was reached following an executive session of the council Tuesday night after the council's regular meeting during which the council was informed of a possible problem regarding ownership of the land on which the city has proposed to build a new city hall.

Council members had three options for replacing McMillan, who died Nov. 10 in Houston: to appoint a successor, to call a special election or to take no action until the April elections when M[illegible]'s term was due to expire.

Following the executive session on the matter, City Mayor Burt Mills said the council's consensus was to appoint a successor due to the cost of holding a special election and the potential problem of not being able to raise a council quorum if McMillan's seat was left vacant until April.

Mills said some names have been submitted to the council for consideration and invited anyone interested in serving on the council to submit their name for consideration.

During the regular meeting that began at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall, City Manager Herman Johnson alerted council members of a question regarding ownership of a portion of a tract of land on Enterprise city officials are considering as the site for a new city hall.

Johnson told the council the 300-by-300-foot tract was originally bought from Emory Spencer who subsequently sold property west of the city's land to two other men.

A part of this second tract of land was subsequently sold to Dennis Jenkins and at some time, according to Johnson, a survey error apparently occurred. When Jenkins sold a part of his land to the federal government for construction of the new post office, a tract of land approximately 45 by 300 feet that actually belonged to the city was included in the sale.

City Attorney Allen Lee told the council he plans to seek a resolution with Jenkins and the post office over the land in question.

City officials reviewed plans submitted by C&D Construction Co. for a proposed mobile home park to be located on 11.7 acres north of Enterprise Blvd. Cecil Phelps, representing the company, told the council the park would be "hopefully, ready to open in about six weeks." No council action was taken.

City officials, after discussing whether to discontinue use of a tranquilizer gun used by the city's animal control officer, agreed to continue use of the gun which shoots a tranquilizer-loaded dart.

Officials emphasized the gun is used only as a last resort when the animal control officer has exhausted all other means of catching a stray animal.

In related action, the council denied a request by John Hiseman for reimbursement of a $30 beterinary bill incurred when he took his St. Bernard to a veterinarian to have a tranquilizer dart removed. Pointing out that the dog was several blocks from home and the animal control officer had attempted to catch the dog by other means, Mills commented, "I don't believe the dog had any right to be so far from home.

Emphasizing that the city plans to enforce its animal control ordinance, Mills later said, "People who have animals that are expensive or that they love a lot should keep 'em home, because we're going to go after 'em."

The council gave final approval to an ordinance rezoning two lots in the Benson Subdivision from R-5 to R-7 as requested by Thomas F. Zuniga and approved by the council on Oct. 31.

First reading approval was given to ordinances annexing the 176.95-acre Unit II of Rockport Country Club Estates and approximately 300 acres of land, including two state tracts, proposed for involuntary annexation.

City officials appointed four members — Joel Zapata, Gayle Atchley, Jimmy Hunt and Vernon Kleypas — to the city's personnel grievance committee.

Authorization was given for preparation of an ordinance that will increase the city's garbage rates by $1 for residential users of the city service and 16.7 percent for commercial users. The increase is needed, according to city officials, to offset the increase in the fees charged to the city by the San Patricio County Landfill. The proposed rate, if adopted, would become effective in January.

Following a joint public hearing at 7:15 p.m. and a favorable recommendation from the city's planning and zoning commission, the council approved a request of Charles H. Keller for B-1 zoning on a lot on the northwest corner of Hackberry and Fuqua for operation of a net shop and alternator, starter and generator rebuilding shop.

Area officials invited to floodplain workshop

Rockport, Fulton and Aransas County officials have been invited to attend a Floodplain Management Workshop at the Port Aransas city hall Wednesday evening, Nov. 30.

The workshop, to be held from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m., is sponsored by the Department of Public Safety Flood Insurance Assistance Program and the Texas Department of Water Resources. Nueces County Judge Robert N. Barnes and Port Aransas Mayor Charles J. Brown will preside at the meeting.

Topics to be discussed during the workshop include local flood procedures, details of sensible floodplain management, local ordinances and court orders, developing public awareness, flood insurance rates in relation to construction practices, lending money for construction in the floodplain, what to do in case of flood and the role the National Weather Service plays. A question and answer period will follow the workshop.

Aside from Rockport, Fulton and Aransas County, others invited to attend include officials from Sinton, Taft, Gregory, Odem, Aransas Pass, Ingleside, Port Aransas and Nueces County.

UDAG proposal topic of workshop

A workshop meeting has been called by Rockport's city council to discuss a proposed Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) project.

The meeting is set for 3 p.m. Monday, Nov. 28, at City Hall and will include discussion of a proposal to set up an industrial revenue bond board.

The workshop meeting will be followed by a special council meeting to allow the council to take action, if desired on the proposed project.

City Manager Herman Johnson said a proposed project has expressed interest in participating in the UDAG program. He added more information will be presented at the workshop meeting.

Serving six counties:

Skilled care in the home is this agency's A.I.M.

By PAT BLAIR
Managing editor

Frances Iles and Kay Akin can remember when there was some confusion about A.I.M. Home Health Agency's purpose — when not too many people other than themselves and some area physicians were quite sure what they did . . .

A.I.M. is still not exactly a household word, according to Administrator Kay Akin, R.N., but more and more people know what the agency is and what it can provide: service that allows people who otherwise would have to be institutionalized to remain in their own homes while receiving specialized nursing care and therapy.

Incorporated in 1979 and certified as a Medicare/Medicaid provider, A.I.M. originally consisted of three staff people, Akin, Business Manager Frances Iles and Nursing Supervisor Irene Anderson. There were also one home health aide and part-time speech and physical therapists.

At that time, Akin said, A.I.M. served a two-county area — Aransas and San Patricio — and headquarters was an annex on Bay Avenue in Rockport's Little Bay Shores.

In August 1981, due to the growth of the agency, A.I.M. moved to larger quarters on Nassau Drive in Key Allegro. This past August, the agency moved again, to its present location on North Church Street.

"We look to be able to stay here," Akin said, "because we've got room to grow."

Growth has been rapid in the past three years. Total people on A.I.M.'s payroll is now 32, including 20 staff members and four relief staff members. Anderson, who started with the agency part-time in 1980, has been a full-time employee since June 1981 and supervises the activities of four other full-time registered nurses (R.N.s) plus four home health aides.

"It's been real exciting to have got in on the ground floor and watched it grow," Anderson says of her work with A.I.M. "We used to have 15 patients — now we have 70. It seems like the community is really beginning to understand what we can do."

What A.I.M. can — and does — do is provide skilled nursing, rehabilitative and therapeutic services to patients in their homes, with a primary goal, according to A.I.M. officials, "to restore and maintain at maximum level of strength, activity and independence (the patient) in their own home."

Nursing services are provided by R.N.s Rebekka Harris, Ava Tarver, Jolane Wells, Barbara Miller, Judi Johnson and Donna Wofford who is in charge of patient discharges in Corpus Christi, and licensed vocational nurses (L.V.N.) Mary Ann Lee and Cristina Benavides.

Home health aides include Tracy Bennett, Frances McNutt, Edel Strickland, Patti Purdi, and relief staffers Dawn Orlando and Tina Hinojosa.

The home health aide, according to Akin, goes into the patients home "and carries out the plan of care agreed on by the doctor and R.N. She does personal care of the patient, bathing, she may follow through on an exercise program worked up by the physical or occupational therapist. She tidies up the sickroom and immediate environment, she can fix a light meal, check the patient's vital signs, provide skin care."

The aides have frequent conferences with Anderson and the primary nurse, Akin said, adding, "There is a lot of consultation between the caregivers of the agency."

This includes the therapists who work with patients referred to them by the agency. Karen Meador is A.I.M.'s physical therapist as well as supervisor for the auxiliary services provided by herself, Speech Therapist Denise Carnes and Occupational Therapist Jackie Gove.

Also on the staff is a medical/social service worker(MSW), Beryl Hill.

From serving two counties in 1980, A.I.M. has added four other counties to its service area: Nueces, Jim Wells, Live Oak and Refugio. "Those counties were added," Akin said, "because we would receive patient referrals."

Last month, she continued, A.I.M. personnel made 618 visits to patients in its six-county area, including 364 nursing, 145 by home health aides, 52 for physical therapy (not including, Akin pointed out, Meador's work with the Aransas County schools through the Sea Gull program), 22 occupational therapy, 30 speech therapy and five MSW.

Waste a major concern

Capitol update

U. S. Sen. John Tower

Wasteful government spending is a major concern for Americans. You are concerned that a portion of your tax dollar is wasted through duplication of efforts, unnecessary red tape and generally unproductive spending.

Finding and stopping these instances of waste in an organization as large and far-reaching as the federal government is a mind-boggling task, and one which, unfortunately, cannot be completed quickly. However, the administration is implementing fundamental improvements throughout government agencies and departments which already are yielding improved efficiency in spending while preserving the public services for which the money was intended.

This bold effort by the administration, with the cooperation of Congress, seeks to address three major areas of concern — spiraling administrative costs in how government operates, fraud and waste in government programs and fair delivery of services to those in need.

The administrative costs of running the government have been far too high, in large part because of duplication, out-moded equipment, unnecessary procedural red tape, and incompatible financial systems used by agencies and departments. For example, there are 330 different financial systems and 200 payroll systems in use by the various agencies and departments of the federal government.

Steps have been taken to standardize and streamline these systems. Already, 300 million hours a year of paperwork have been eliminated, and in another year that figure is expected to rise to 400 million hours.

Other cost-saving procedures have been instituted as well:

— Until two years ago, federal employees were not encouraged to use discount fares for airline tickets. Today, employees are required to take advantage of available discount fares, and the result is an estimated $400 million in travel cost savings.

— Government publications which are either outdated or available in the private sector have been discontinued. Among them are the publications "How to Buy a Christmas Tree" and "Hot Springs Bathing Instructions."

— Simplified guidelines for buying goods and services for the government will increase competition and reduce purchase costs by $5 million when the new system is fully implemented.

Additionally, steps have been taken to improve collection of delinquent debts. Of the $289 billion owed to the government, about $44.3 billion in delinquent. A private business with this 15.3 percent overdue debt ratio would long ago have collapsed. The administration from its beginning has required agencies to tighten administrative controls over loans and contracts. The results will be the collection of $3 billion in old debts this year alone.

Additionally, Congress passed the Debt Collection Act of 1982, enabling the government to collect debts and screen poor risk candidates for loans and contracts — something which has been routine for the private sector for decades. Agencies now are exchanging information on loan applicants and contractors and using private sector credit bureaus.

The federal government has asked state and local governments to share in the pursuit of greater efficiency, holding down to costs of programs which are jointly administered.

These efficiencies do not affect the delivery of services to those whom government programs were designed to help. To the contrary, the elimination of waste means that we can better direct our resources to those in need while taking steps to control the overall cost of government.

The measures thus far instituted are only a beginning. But the administration is committed to a continuing effort to bring more efficiency to government, and I am hopeful that Congress will be willing to take necessary action to further this goal.

Back in days when gas was less than 40 cents . . .

INDEED THERE ARE THINGS which passeth my understanding and not least among them is what appears to be the lack of public support for PBS television station KEDT and radio station KKED. KKED is, I understand, to be in near dire straits with not much more than 2,000 subscribers!

I look upon that figure with utter amazement, especially when I consider that there must be far more than that number of educators, college and secondary school teachers within the station's listening area. Is that not indicative of something, in a time when everyone presumes to be concerned about the quality of education?

FOLLOWING THE PRESIDENT'S SAFE return from South Korea I for one heaved a long sign of relief, especially as I wonder now — as I have from the beginning — about the wisdom and worth of the risky trip. Suppose there had been an attempt upon his life — even worse, had he been killed as the North Koreans all but promised? Might not the result have been all-out war?

This country is, and has been for 40 years, deeply involved in that region, a part of the world that is a smoldering tinder box, a circumstance of which few of us seem to be aware. Except those 37,000 U.S. troops stationed on the South Korean side of the border. As things stand the trip came off well enough, lots of friendly exchanges between the Japanese and South Korean governments and an appropriate amount of pagentry.

But did our president accomplish anything toward bringing Japan to assume its fair share of contributions in the defense of Asia, anything toward alleviating Japan's protectionest trade practices? I fear not.

HOW MANY TELLY VIEWERS have been following the PBS series, "Vietnam: A Television History?" Not many, according to my favorite tube critic, Dorothy Stanich of the Caller-Times. One veteran of that conflict, replying to my question, answered: "No, it's too depressing." To this perhaps naive viewer, the series so far has been well put together, extremely objective, although anything but pleasant viewing.

Early on I was suspicious that the whole thing might be extremely slanted, especially when one was titled "LBJ Goes to War," or words to that effect. How often have you heard the Vietnam war called LBJ's war?

Praise the producers. They handled the segment fairly and objectively. Finally, to end a note that could easily go on for pages, the series depicts the real horor of that war — which could be any war — it ain't no gentlemanly thing.

For the first time in all history real war was brought into people's living rooms, all the horror, torture and agony. Somehow many delude themselves into thinking that's the way it was only in Vietnam. Sorry, a suffering, mangled body from all wars past has felt as much pain as anyone who gave his life for his country in Vietnam.

But what do we learn? Especially when presently and for some years past those most vocally opposed to war contribute most to future wars.

Austin at Wharf

IT MIGHT HAVE RUINED my morning had it come as a surprise. One of the lead stories in my morning newspaper informed me that our good neighbor to the South, Mexico, has taken the lead in condemning the U.S. for its invasion of Grenada.

In another section of the same newspaper Arnaud de Borchgrave, novelist and former chief foreign correspondent for Newsweek, is reported from Austin as having said Mexico is a friend of Cuba and at the same time is headed for revolution. Is that news to anyone?

The ever-ongoing prospect of revolution may partially explain why the immediate past president of Mexico has removed himself to Spain and is not occupying his posh multi-million dollar compound near Mexico City. Also, if memory serves, he owns a nice estate in one of the New England states.

SEEMS I'M ONE OF those simple old-fashioned types who believe in shopping at home. Consequently it annoys me to no end when I extract my mail from the box and find that 75 percent of it is junk mail. Of course junk mail is not the term used by the Postal Service. It has a cute Foggy Bottom name for it which I can't recall at the moment.

However, to give the service credit I haven't noticed its wagons carrying bumper stickers that read "Shop by Mail," at least not for a year. Perhaps somewhere local businessmen raised their voices and put an end to that. If so I missed the story. If the mail houses can get free advertising of that sort, why shouldn't the owner of the corner grocery demand equal space. Corner grocery — boy, does that show where I am with the times.

Meanwhile, every buck any of us spend shopping by mail (and I've been guilty) means less tax revenue from home merchants, fewer local jobs, the whole smear, including higher local taxes for all of us.

People are funny, the things they won't do to save a buck. I once knew a housewife who carefully spent an hour or more studying the midweek grocery specials, listing all the best specials. Her weekly shopping tour took hours and she covered perhaps 40 miles going from one store to the next. Smart lady? Well, that was at least back in the days when gas at the pump was well under 40 cents.

Thanks — and help!

Dear editor:

Toys for Kids needs your help and dollars.

Just a few days left to make sure that Aransas County's needy children have a Merry Christmas. We only have $1,553 in donations and need $3,447 more to reach our goal.

This past week's contributors included RYSCO, $150; First National Bank, $50; Village Inn Motel, $50; Mrs. Fred A. Bracht Sr., $50; Aransas Butane Gas, $50; Elouise boling Insurance, $25; and GSM Insurance, $15.

One parent wrote last year "My husband is disabled, has had two operations, and cannot get a job. We thank this organization for what they do for the children who may not have a nice Christmas this year and every year. We sure are thankful."

So come on, folks, pitch in and help out. How about you Winter Texans competing and seeing which RV park can contribute the most money? All organizations, churches, schools and individuals in the county can help.

Please mail your donations to Box 222, Rockport. New toy contributions may be dropped off at any realtor's office.

Offering a trade

Dear editor:

For the first time since Castro took over Cuba we have a diplomatic chance to use our powerful leverage. Let's take a bipartisan approach to the following by offering to swap the Cuban "workers" (where did they get the guns to fight?).

We should offer to swap them along the following lines:

1. Return all hijackers of U.S. planes to Cuba. This would lessen the desire to gain "freedom" there while endangering American lives.

2. Remove all Cuban soldiers from Nicaragua, El Salvador and other central American countries.

3. Take back the Cuban criminals (I'm told these are the worst in the world) and mental patients shipped to the U.S. during the last major Cuba-Miami boat lift.

4. Remove all Cuban troops and support personnel from Angola and other countries where they are spreading communism when people all over the world want freedom (Poland).

5. Dismantle all offensive missiles.

Of course, Castro has told his soldiers to fight to their deaths to protect Grenada while he is surrounded by 20,000 soldiers, missiles, tanks and thousands of cigars. Smoking one at a time while he spreads the venom of communism wherever Russia tells him to go.

Reagan is the first president since Eisenhower to have the guts to do what's right to protect Americans (men, women, children and many medical students) in a foreign land — Grenada. Thank God for President Ronald Reagn. I'm just sorry that Senator Percy is Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. I think my 13-year-old son, Jeff, knows more about foreign affairs than Chuck does.

In fact, Percy scares me to death, although he seems like a gentle, kind man. Congressman Tom Corcoran wouldn't be like Percy. He's got common sense like most of us. Hopefully he will replace Percy in the Illinois Primary next year.

Sincerely,
s/John T. Kimbell

Watching Washington

By LLOYD BENTSEN
Senator

No one claims our country is trouble free.

I spend most of my time in the Senate, in fact, wrestling with a host of problems ranging from budget deficits to bilateral trade, from the high cost of medical care to higher education.

In spite of all our problems, though, we as Americans have a lot to be thankful for.

This is the season when we pause to reflect on what's right with out country and to give thanks for our many blessings.

In 1621 the Pilgrims of Plymouth Colony faced far more formidable obstacles than we do today. They were grateful for just surviving their first corn crop, so they took time out to observe our first Thanksgiving. Three days of feasting were declared, with the neighboring Indians invited to share in the rejoicing.

The custom of setting aside a Thanksgiving Day spread throughout the colonies. It was observed at various times down through the years.

President George Washington proclaimed in 1789 that Nov. 26 would be observed as a day of national Thanksgiving, but observations were sporadic, varying from state-to-state.

In 1863, President Abraham Lincoln declared that the last Thursday of that November would be a national Thanksgiving Day. Each year for the next 75 years succeeding presidents formally proclaimed the holiday. In 1939, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt moved the observance up by one week.

It wasn't until 1941 that Congress finally took action to set aside the last Thursday in November as a national, legal holiday.

It has become a time for families to gather and give thanks, each in its own way, for the good things we as Americans are blessed with.

Even though we are just emerging from one of the bitterest recessions in the history of our country, we should remember, during this season especially, that for nine out of 10 people on this planet, our problems would be their solutions.

Out country remains the biggest, most important, freest market in the world. At a time when half the world goes to bed hungry, the American farmer can feed about 78 people and some of our best-selling books are on how to lose weight.

Here we can live and worship and work as we please. We are committed to peace, but none should ever doubt that we have the will and the means to defend our freedom.

Sometimes we worry about the quality of our educational system — and with cause — but we should also remember that year after year we win more Nobel prizes than all other nations combined.

For the rest of the world, America still shines as the dream of a better, brighter future. We who are privileged to be living that dream have an obligation to preserve and defend it.

This is a time for each of us, in the midst of our problems and worries, to pause and look at the other side of the coin. It is a time to count our blessings and to Give Thanks for them.

It's all a question of mathematics

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula philosopher on his grassburr ranch reports on a visit he made recently to a big city.

Live Oak Peninsula philosopher

Dear editor:

It was necessary for me to visit a big city recently. No need to name it. Just fill in the name of any city above half a million population and it'll fit what I've got to say about its unbelievable traffic snarl.

I don't see how city people can endure spending an hour in the morning driving to work in bumper-to-bumper traffic, spending a half hour looking for a place to park and then after work spending another hour in bumper-to-bumper traffic going home.

After I got back to my house out here and got my nerves calmed down, I got to thinking about this and I've figured out what the problem is.

It's plain. City people are the world's worst mathematicians. They've never been able to figure out you can't put 50,000 cars in space big enough for only 25,000. I suppose it's a breakdown in the public education system.

I suppose that somewhere in the primary grades some underpaid teachers forgot to tell them that while you can put a mediocre man in Congress you can't put a gallon of water in a quart jar.

I thought about this problem long and hard and have concluded the problem goes beyond mathematics.

The trouble with cities I've been to, where everybody and everything are all jammed up together, is they've all been built in the wrong place.

Cities ought to be built out in the country where there's more room.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

It is a good idea for people in the Corpus Christi area to call Social Security before making a visit.

This is because most Social Security business can be taken care of over the telephone, David Tutt, District Manager of the Corpus Christi Social Security Office said recently.

Unless a person's business is urgent, it is best to call after the middle of the month. Questions can be taken care of better in that period.

Some of the things that can be taken care of by telephone include:

— Applying for Medicare.
— Changing name or address in Social Security records.
— Report starting or stopping work or other events that affect checks

Annuity holders need to be aware of their options

Scott Burns

Q: About two years ago I invested a substantial amount of our savings in a tax-deferred annuity with Executive Life Insurance in Beverly Hills, Calif. E.F. Hutton was the brokerage firm who handled it and I was under the impression I had made a very secure investment.

But in July, an article appeared regarding the dilemma of 100,000 Texans who had invested in annuities from Baldwin United which said "a state insurance regulator said that, even in the worst case, annuity buyers will not lose all of their money."

Can you explain why they would not receive their entire original investment? There has been a great deal of propaganda about the security of single-payment tax-deferred annuities in recent years, but I am now wondering if they really are secure. I'm sure other people are, too. Can you tell us? — D.T., Dallas.

A: To say that other people are interested in tax-deferred annuities is a wild understatement. Reader mail on the subject has increased week by week as the Baldwin story unfolded and worry spread to the other annuity companies.

Most recently, as Merrill Lynch announced that it would no longer market four major annuities and Thomson McKinnon followed suit, readers are asking whether they should move from the companies no longer marketed, even if they are subject to an early withdrawal penalty.

The answer, alas, is reassuring and alarming at the same time.

The first thing you should know is that the failure of Baldwin United is a consequence of their own actions, not some fundamental flaw in the product or industry.

In the course of its rapid expansion, Baldwin United forced some of its insurance subsidiaries to buy securities issued by the parent company. They did this to the extent that nearly 20 percent of the assets that backed the annuities were issued by Baldwin United itself.

When Baldwin United became overextended and filed for bankruptcy, the earning power and assets to support the debt disappeared, leaving large hole in the annuity portfolios. At the same time, annuity-holder requests for redemption came flooding in faster than the company could sell off its good assets.

So the payouts were frozen and the regulators offered plans for partial payouts to manage "cash flow."

What Baldwin United did — load its subsidiary insurance units up with its own debt securities — is unique. They are an isolated, special case and should be treated as such. The companies that remain are fundamentally sound.

Unfortunately, the same brokerage community that was sloppy in its due diligence while things were going well at Baldwin United is becoming ultra-cautious now that millions have been impounded or lost. The result could very well turn out to be the equivalent of a "run on the bank" for annuity companies that are sound.

The security of any annuity is based on two fundamental factors: (1) maturity matching of portfolio assets with the term of the annuities it represents (that is, the dollars you put into a five-year-guatantee annuity are invested in securities that mature in five years or less with some cash reserved for early withdrawals, etc.) and (2) the net worth and reserves of the issuing company.

The larger the net worth and reserves of the issuing company as a percent of the total annuity values outstanding, the greater your security as an annuity holder.

Many of the companies that have been aggressive marketers of tax-deferred annuities — Executive and Charter, for example — are relatively small and don't have other major businesses to support them in event of any problems. If there is a panicky movement from such companies to larger companies, it is possible that these fundamentally sound companies will be undermined by the movement itself.

To paraphrase a popular TV ad: "Thank you, Merrill Lynch."

My advice?

— Check your bailout provisions. Many annuity holders will find that the provision that allowed them to remove their investment without penalty if interest rates declined below a certain point will have worked in their favor. They can make a premature withdrawal at no penalty cost.

— Transfer some, not all, of your annuity assets to larger companies. Sun Life of Canada, for instance, will be a major beneficiary of current events. Although their "Horizon" annuity provides a yield that is about 1 percent less than the yields offered by the smaller companies, they have the matched maturities, reserves and cash flow that spell safety.

— When you transfer buy many annuities, not one. Rather than one $50,000 annuity you should buy five for $10,000 or 10 for $5,000. This will work in your favor for future withdrawals. Under new IRS rules, your withdrawals are regarded as taxable interest income until actual earnings are exhausted. By taking out smaller annuities, you can reduce the tax burden on some of your withdrawals.

December oil production rate set

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has continued the Texas oil production rate for December 1983 at 100 percent of market demand.

Chairman Mark Wallace and Commissioners Buddy Temple and Jim Nugent directed the continuance of the top production allowable after reviewing oil companies' nominations to buy a total of 2,381,804 barrels of Texas oil per day.

The December nomination total, a decrease of 5,074 barrels daily when compared to October purchaser nominations, indicates market demand.

Although next month's state total for the permissible rate of reduction is calculated to average 2,857,249 barrels per day. Actual production in December 1982 was 2,351,610 barrels of oil per day. December 1982 nominations totaled 2,463,231 barrels daily.

The Commission first went to the ceiling level for oil production in April 1972, and December marks the 82nd month in a row for the maximum allowable. It applies to fields in the state except those that are assigned lower legal rates of production so that reservoir pressures will not be depleted before the maximum amount of oil has been recovered.

Wallace also reported that December 1983 nominations for the purchase of Texas gas totaled 21,281,050 Mcf/d (thousand cubic feet of gas per day). November gas nominations totaled 20,530,672 Mcf/d. December 1982 gas nominations amounted to 22,382,896 Mcf/d.

The next statewide oil and gas production allowable hearing will begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 20, in Rm. 107 of the Railroad Commission headquarters building at 1124 S. IH 35 in Austin.

Major purchasers filed these floor nominations for Texas oil in December:

Amoco Production Co., 158,000 barrels daily, down 1,000 from the previous month; Arco Petroleum Products Co., 124,000, unchanged; Citgo Petroleum Corp.,73,000, unchanged; Conoco Inc., 64,000, unchanged; Gulf Oil Corp., 102,100, down 900; Marathon Petroleum Co., 66,820, unchanged; Mobil Oil Corp., 172,300, up 1,700; Phillips Petroleum Co., 72,000, unchanged; Shell Oil Co., 153,000, unchanged; Texaco Inc., 85,000, down 1,000; and Union Oil Co., of California, 25,000, unchanged.

Significant changes in December nominations were submitted in writing by these purchasers of Texas crude oil:

Exxon Co. U.S.A., 265,400, down 3,200; Geer Tank Trunks Inc., 9,275, up 1,045; Getty Trading & Transportation, 28,512, down 1,013; Howell Crude Gathering Co., 3,100, up 1,055; Koch Oil Co., 63,878, down 2,995; Matador Pipelines, 85,949, up 3,605; and P&O Falco Inc., 16,791, down 1,614.

Chairman Wallace reported that crude oil and petroleum products imported into the U.S. averaged 5,185,000 barrels daily for the four weeks ending Nov. 4, up 266,000 barrels per day from the same period a year earlier.

Southwestern Bell sets first quarter dividends

ST. LOUIS — Southwestern Bell Corporation today stated its intended 1984 first quarter dividends at $1.40 per share, payable on May 1.

The stated intention to pay this dividend was part of the company's registration statements. The documents were filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) by AT&T on behalf of AT&T and the seven Bell regional operating companies which will become publically-held companies.

The SEC made the registration statements effective Nov. 16. Trading of Southwestern Bell Corporation stock and that of the other regional holding companies and "new" AT&T on a "when-issued" basis is expected to begin on or near Nov. 21. ("When-issued" trading means actual stock shares will not be issued until a later date, probably February 1984.)

The filing of documents with the SEC is a result of the upcoming divestiture by AT&T of seven regional operating companies. This divestiture is scheduled for Jan. 1, 1984.

As a result of divestiture, AT&T share owners will receive one share in each of the regional operating companies (including Southwestern Bell) for every 10 shares of AT&T stock they hold.

Also included in information filed with the SEC today, Southwestern Bell, as well as the other regional operating companies and AT&T, discussed plans for a dividend reinvestment plan.

Southwestern Bell Corporation's plan is similar to that used by AT&T previously. It allows share owners to buy stock with reinvested dividends at a 5 percent discount and without paying brokerage fees.

Southwestern Bell Corporation is a holding company providing telecommunications services and products through four subsidiaries: Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, which provides telecommunications services to customers in Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas; Southwestern Bell Publications Inc., which will have as its principal line of business the marketing and publishing of Yellow Pages directories; Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems Inc., which will offer cellular mobile communications; and Southwestern Bell Telecom, which will market business telecommunications equipment.

Signing of the joint venture agreement combines the expertise of both companies to provide a full range of construction and installation services for marine projects. These services include loadout, towing, offloading and installation of fabricated components — jackets, decks, pilings, modules and bridges. Other services include diving and maintenance tasks.

Brown & Root brings to the joint venture years of experience in the marine construction industry in engineering, procurement, fabrication, installation and management services, not only from its Houston base but also from London, Bahrain and Singapore offices.

COES' experience in towing, barging, installation, diving, supply vessels and marine salvage operations complements the joint venture's capabilities.

Principal offices for COES Brown & Root Marine Construction Company, Ltd. will be in Beijing.

Earlier this year Brown & Root Inc. formed another joint venture, China Brown & Root Marine Engineering and Construction Co. Ltd. (CBR).

This company, also headquartered in Beijing, offers engineering design, procurement, fabrication and project management services to the offshore industry.

With the formation of both joint venture companies, COES Brown & Root and CBR, a full range of services to the offshore oil and gas industry will be provided.

IRS cracking down on taxable income reporting with new law

If you don't report all your taxable income this year, the new income reporting laws for businesses make it likely that you'll hear from the IRS.

Most people know that banks report to the IRS the amount of interest paid to each customer during the year and that corporations report the amount of dividends paid to each stockholder.

Now the law also requires reporting on transactions such sales of stock, tax refunds from state and local governments and transactions through bartering clubs. In fact, most transactions which affect a person's income must now be reported to the IRS.

With the help of computers, the IRS can compare the information it receives to what you report on your tax return. If the information doesn't match, you can expect a letter from the IRS asking you to explain the differences.

First basketball game of season

Pirates lose 69-78

The Rockport-Fulton Pirates were edged out of a victory in their season opener Tuesday against Port Lavaca. Losing 69-78, Coach Bobby Flanagan's Pirates "played good defense at times, but lost the game on the free throw line," according to their coach.

Having trouble getting started, the Pirates trailed Port Lavaca the entire game. With a 25-12 edge at the end of the first quarter, Port Lavaca kept up their drive and left the Pirates behind 45-29 at the half.

Scrambling through the third quarter, the Pirates managed to cut through Port Lavaca and get within seven points of the lead with a minute and a half left in the game but a couple of baskets more from their opponents left them behind at the close of play.

High point men for the night were Frank Canchola, with 18; Trinelle Walls with 13 and Jay Turner with 10.

According to Flanagan, the Pirates are working out a new man-to-man defense, "a pressure defense all over the court," and the team is having a little trouble adjusting. "They're just not quite used to it yet but they'll get it," he said.

With the tallest Pirate, Bill Mott, coming in at 5'11" the team lacks valuable height advantages, the main reason for the different defense. "We're running a pressure-type defense to force the other team off their normal game. That's the only way we can do it. We're pretty short."

While the Pirates' next opponent, Gregory-Portland, has even more heighth than Port Lavaca, Flanagan anticipates, "We'll do a better job against them than Port Lavaca."

The Pirate JV started their '83 season off with a win — 73-46 over Port Lavaca. During a 22-point first quarter in which Todd Billeiter hit 12 of his game high 31 points, the Pirates took control of the game.

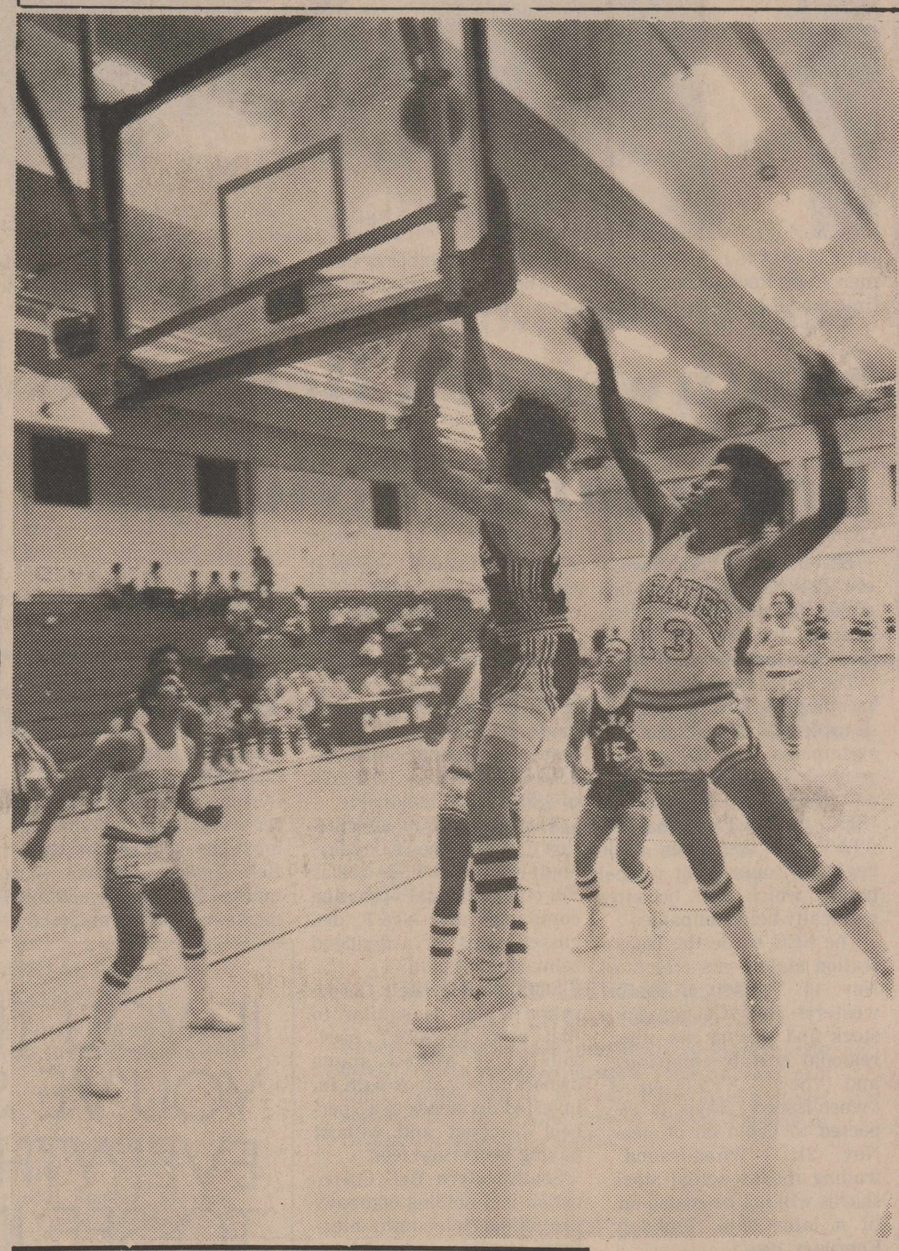

Billeiter and his teammates continued to control the game during the second quarter — shooting 50 percent for the first half, R-F led Port Lavaca 36-27 at the half, with most of the Pirates' shots made from inside the lane.

Outscoring Port Lavaca 18-8 in the third period, the Pirates were smoking by the fourth. A 19-11 difference in the fourth left the final score 73-46 in the Pirates' favor.

Billeiter's 31 points and 26 rebounds made him the point leader for the night — 18 of his rebounds were off the offensive boards. Brent Boone had 12 points and 12 rebounds, while Jesse Avila contributed 10 points, five rebounds and five assists.

Lady Pirates open '83 season with 39-17 win

The Lady Pirate basketball team opened its season the right way, taking a big 39-17 win over Aransas Pass Tuesday night.

Coached by Marc Walker, the team was led in scoring by Mona Cowen and Missy Mayes, earning 13 points apiece. "There was really good defensive effort from both of them," said Walker.

In addition to Cowen and Mayes, LeeAnna Cassel and Troy Hollinhead have been selected as Lady Pirate starters, with a fifth yet to be named. In Tuesday's contest, everyone on the team played.

According to Walker, the team "was a little weak on the rebounding" Tuesday. The coach added that he expected the girls to improve in the coming weeks. Looking toward their second game, with Ingleside this weekend, Walker said, "Ingleside's got a real good team. This game will give us a pretty good idea of how we stand."

The girls' junior varsity team also won Tuesday, 39-13; while the freshmen lost 10-12.

This season's Lady Pirates are led by senior captains Cassel, Mayes and Cowen. Other seniors on the team are Hollinhead, Jodi Welsch and Juanita Williams.

Varsity team Juniors are Karen Barre, Mary Bradshaw, Stacey Haile, Johnie Jordan, and Rhonda Miller. The sole sophomore on the Lady Pirate varsity is Regena Gatlin. The team is managed by Yvette Olson.

Junior varsity team members are Sylvia Ayala and Robin Biggs, juniors; sophomores Kristen Barneby, Missy Ferguson, Regina Flores, Casey Heser, Kim Meyer, Michelle Moon, Cheryl Strait and Gracie Tijerina and Krisann Gillis, Dana Hill and Mary Krogsgaard, freshmen. JV coach is Sharon Niehues.

Art association members' show set

The Rockport Art Association will sponsor a week-long art show and sale beginning Sunday, Nov. 27, at Allied Live Oak Center on Hwy. 35.

A reception from 2-5 p.m. Sunday will open the show. Open to the public, the reception will highlight an exhibition and sale of work by art association members. Approximately 50 Rockport area artists will exhibit two of their works in such media as oils, acrylics, watercolors and sculpture.

"Art in Rockport," the title of the show and sale, will continue through Dec. 2 at Allied Live Oak Center, which will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. weekdays. Twenty percent of the proceeds from the sale of works will be contributed to the Art Association Building Fund.

"Rockport area artists are doing so many exciting things," commented Pat Barnett, co-chairperson of the event along with Betty Walters. "Since our February 1983 show was such a great success and so well received and attended by the public, our association members felt they wanted another show before we moved into our new home."

The Rockport Art Association has moved the O'Connor Huse on Broadway, which has been donated by the O'Connor Family, to its new location near Rockport Harbor. The house will be reassembled and renovated before it is turned into a gallery.

Receiving committee for the show includes Marilu Garnett, Teeny Tiller, Warren Steinway, Eileen and Rip Harrison and Jane Turner.

Area marine life RFTA dinner topic

The marine life of area waters and Texas fishing regulations were the subject of talks at the Nov. 10 covered dish supper hosted by the Rockport-Fulton Tourist Association for Winter Texans.

Guest speakers were Richard Tillman with the Texas A&M Marine Advisory Service in Port Aransas, Texas Parks & Wildlife Game Warden Robert Newman and Jim Lawhon of the Sand Bar Bait Stand.

Tillman, who holds a master's degree and has completed the courses for a PhD in seafood technology told those at the supper about the marine life in this area and showed slides on the life cycle of shrimp and various fish.

Newman outlined Texas laws governing area waters, size limits and licensing requirements for fishing.

In Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma, Newman said, those age 17 and under or 65 and over are exempt from the laws.

Lawhon demonstrated how to make a bait aerator and methods for keeping bait alive.

Bon appetit!

By ANN THOMAS

This is the time of year when my mother would always start sifting through her recipe files in preparation for the holidays. In doing the same I found some rather unusual candy recipes which some of you may want to try. If you need a specific recipe write to me here at The Pilot. Your own favorites are invited, also.

MARIA'S STRAWBERRY CANDY

¾ can sweetened condensed milk
6 ounces strawberry gelatin
1 cup finely chopped pecans
1 cup finely flaked coconut
Bottle of red sugar (found in cake decorations section at the store)

Mix all of the ingredients and shape like strawberries. Roll in the red sugar. If mint leaves are available use for top. Dry and store in airtight container. Makes about 60.

SANDY'S MOUND BALLS

Submitted by Sandy Wolfe, Sherman

½ pound butter
1 can sweetened condensed milk
2 pounds powdered sugar
5 tablespoons vanilla
1 pound flaked coconut
1 cup finely chopped pecans

Roll into walnut size balls and insert a toothpick into each, then freeze.

Meanwhile melt over hot water 1¼ blocks paraffin, 1 large package semi-sweet chocolate chips. Dip frozen candy balls into the mixture and lay on wax paper to set.

CHINESE CANDY

1 can chow mein noodles
2 packages butterscotch chips
1 cup salted peanuts

Melt chips over hot water, stir in noodles and peanuts. Drop on wax paper.

DATE LOAF CANDY

Submitted by Thelma Bectol, Eagle Mountain Lake

2 cups sugar
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 box dates, quartered
1 cup nuts, chopped

Cook milk and sugar to soft ball stage, add dates. Cook until thick. Add butter and vanilla and beat until creamy. Pour onto a cold damp cloth and roll. Store in refrigerator in foil until firm. Slice into desired thickness.

LILA'S FUDGE

1 pound sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa
2 squares chocolate, cut into pieces
1 small can evaporated milk
1 tablespoon butter

Mix the ingredients in a heavy saucepan and cook over low heat. Stir constantly. Boil 15-18 minutes or to soft ball stage. Remove from heat and stir in ⅔ cup marshmallow creme. Add desired amount of chopped nuts. Pour onto buttered platter. Cool, cut and store in airtight container.

SOUR CREAM FUDGE

1 cup sour cream
2 cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup nuts, chopped

Cook cream, sugar and salt to soft ball stage. Remove from heat, add butter and let stand, stirring occasionally until able to touch bottom of pan. Beat until gloss is gone and mixture begins to "fudge." Quickly stir in nuts and turn into buttered dish. When firm, cut into desired pieces. Should yield 1¼ pound.

Note: This recipe does not use chocolate. It is a common misconception that all fudge contains it.

NO-COOK DIVINITY CANDY

Submitted by Betty Cook, Cisco

1 package fluffy white frosting mix
⅓ cup light corn syrup
½ cup boiling water
1 pound powdered sugar
1 cup chopped nuts

Combine the dry frosting mix, corn syrup, 1 tablespoon vanilla and boiling water in a small mixing bowl. Beat on highest speed until stiff peaks form. Transfer to large mixing bowl. On low speed gradually blend in sugar. Stir in nuts. Drop mixture by teaspoons onto wax paper. When outside of candy feels dry, turn over. Allow to dry at least 12 hours before storing in airtight container. Yields about 6 dozen pieces.

BROWN PECAN CLUSTERS

2 cups brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup pecans, chopped
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix sugar, salt, water and bring to a boil. Add nuts and butter. Boil 3 minutes. Remove from heat and add vanilla and let cool. Beat a little and drop by the teaspoonful onto wax paper.

This concludes our candy recipes for this week. One thing to remember when preparing to try these or any candy recipes is never do so when the weather is rainy. Do wait for a day when the sun is shining and the humidity is low to get the best results. If you don't, not even the most adept candy makers expect successful results. Have fun, and bon appetit!

Large crop is expected to lower pecan prices

AUSTIN — Every fall, state government workers leave their office buildings eyes down, searching the ground for pecans that have fallen from trees still standing in the granite and asphalt Capitol complex. During a good season a man or woman with 20-20 vision can locate a dozen of the brown, hard-shelled nuts simply by standing under a pecan tree and staring intently at the grass around it. With a sack and a little time to spare, he or she can pick up enough nuts for a pecan pie.

Their ritual is repeated every October-December all over the 151 counties in Texas where native pecan trees grow. Families who don't have a few trees of their own scour river bottoms and public parks for the rich-tasting nuts that will be eaten straight from the shell or as an ingredient in a multitude of recipes, many going back generations.

Texas would not be Texas without pecans. Native to the state, the tree may date to prehistoric times. At one time its nuts provided food to tribes of Indians living here or passing through, and later to settlers moving in from other parts of the country and the world.

By 1860 pecans were being exported commercially from Galveston. The sheer numbers of trees, however, caused many early citizens to take them for granted. They began cutting the tall, slender trees to make way for cotton, using the wood for farm implements and wagon parts. By 1904, according to "The Handbook of Texas," "trees had been cut to such an extent that laws to prevent their complete destruction were considered."

Fortunately, the commercial value of pecans was recognized and the trees were left alone. Today around 600,000 acres can be found, about half growing untended and unharvested. Of the other half, around 200,000 acres are native trees; about 100,000 are improved varieties. Together they have accounted for an average of $26 million in cash receipts every year for the past four.

This year 65 million pounds have been projected for harvest, but the crop may actually be larger. One grower-sheller predicted a 90-million-pound harvest, if the demand is big enough to accomodate that many nuts. If it isn't, more than 20 million pounds on the managed acreage alone will go to waste. "One of the saddest stories for Texas is the number of pecans left on the ground each year," said Norman Winter, executive director of the Texas Pecan Growers Association.

The abundance of pecans in Texas and a 300-million-pound crop nationally are expected to push prices downward this season. Kenneth Pape of Pape's Pecan House, Seguin, anticipates seeing U.S. No. 1 grade retail pecans per pound selling as low as $1.20-$1.50 per pound in the shell as the season progresses.

Eighty percent of the Texas crop, including most of the native varieties, is sold to shellers. Improved pecans are the type usually sold in-shell in grocery stores. They are larger and more attractive than natives with thinner shells and a higher ratio of kernel to shell, qualities that make them popular with consumers. Natives, on the other hand, have a higher oil content and, many say, a better flavor. It's all a matter of preference.

The pecan is a versatile nut with virtually no end to its culinary uses. It can be used in stuffings, salads, sauces, vegetable casseroles, baked goods and many other sweets. To demonstrate the pecan's many uses. Texas Department of Agriculture home economists have devised a holiday menu that includes pecans in every course. Though you won't want to try every dish at one sitting, incorporating one or two into holiday meal planning will increase your appreciation for this native food product.

Victoria museum seeks area quilts

VICTORIA — The Victoria Regional Museum Association is looking for quilts to display in a special exhibition of quilts from this region scheduled for next February.

"Quilts from the Heart" will include a variety of quilt patterns and techniques selected for the high quality of their design or execution.

All quilts made before World War II in any region of the nation will be considered for the exhibition. Tuesday, Nov. 29, Karey Bresenhan, guest curator for "Quilts from the Heart," will be in Victoria to select quilts for the exhibition. Quilt owners who would like to lend their quilts to a high security exhibition at the Nave Museum are invited to bring their quilts to the association that day.

The Nave Museum is an art museum serving the 10-county area surrounding Victoria. It is located at the corner of Moody and Commercial Streets in Victoria. "Quilts from the Heart" will open Feb. 2 and continue through March 18. Lenders to the exhibition would be expected to leave their quilts at the museum throughout that time.

Because of expected high interest in this exhibition opportunity, quilt owners are asked to contact the Museum Association before bringing a quilt. The museum phone number is 575-8227.

Access services for aged topic of COG workshops

State of the region

By JULIET K. WENGER
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

A neighbor was concerned about an elderly woman. She called the Council of Governments. A representative of the COG's Area Agency on Aging went to the home of the woman.

She found her sitting in a chair where the woman had been for two days, since she had fallen. The telephone was in another room. The woman's doctor was called and came to her home, to find that her hip was broken. She was hospitalized and a son in Virginia was called. He came to help her work out her future.

This is what is known in the language of bureaucracy as an access service. Another example was a call from a concerned friend of two elderly women. The friend said an individual she suspected of being a confidence man was selling off the women's antiques.

The provider in the community of services to the elderly, under contract of the COG, was advised and saw to it that the situation was investigated and that the women were not bilked.

These are types of calls that require immediate response. Other access services include transportation, escort, outreach, information and referral, any service that will give the elderly person access to the programs available.

Access services and nutrition programs will be the subject of discussions at county workshops to be held in the Coastal Bend the first weeks of December. At each workshop, a report will be given of the services that are available to the aged in the county. Then the workshop will be opened up to questions and comments about the needs that exist and how they are being met or not recognized.

The workshops are a part of an effort to direct senior citizens into the mainstream of life in each community. The hope is that they will expand the awareness older people of ways they can participate in the life of the community as a whole and help younger people see advantages of including the elderly in community affairs.

The one-hour workshops will be held 2 p.m. Monday, Dec. 5, at the Falfurrias Senior Center and Nutrition Site for Brooks County; Tuesday, Dec. 6, at San Diego Senior Community Center, for Duval County; Wednesday, Dec. 7, at the new Alice Senior Center off the old Kingsville Highway, for Jim Wells County; Monday, Dec. 12, at Kingsville Senior Center Cafetorium, the old Travis/Austin School, for Kleberg County; and Tuesday, Dec. 13, at the new Sinton Senior Center and Nutrition Site on Old Sodville Road, for San Patricio County.

Workshops covering other activities will be scheduled later in the year. At the end of the series of workshops for these counties, another series will be held for Bee, Live Oak, Aransas, Nueces and Refugio counties.

New tax law goes into effect Jan. 1

Employees who work for nonprofit tax exempt organizations may find that some extra money has been withheld from wages they earn after Jan. 1.

The Social Security Amendment Act of 1983 requires all employees of organizations exempt from taxes under section 501(c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code to join the Social Security system on or before Jan. 1.

This means that tax exempt religious, educational and charitable organizations must begin withholding Social Security taxes from employees' wages and paying them into the Social Security system along with a matching employer contribution.

Under the new law, organizations previously exempt from Social Security will begin reporting witholding taxes on Form 941 instead of Form 941E.

Under the old law, 501(c) (3) organizations had the option of not joining the Social Security system or of withdrawing once they had joined.

Raising teacher salaries is imperative to quality education

AUSTIN — Texas teachers who began their classroom careers back in 1973 earned the same $6,000 starting salary as a state prison guard.

Today, those teachers with a decade's experience on their resumes have learned a bitter economic lesson.

Although Texas teachers earned an average $19,500 during the 1982-83 school year, they experienced an overall loss in purchasing power over the last 10 years — and that beginning Texas prison guard now earns $2,600 more than the base state salary paid first-year teachers.

I have attended Select Committee on Public Education hearings in Dallas, Austin and Beaumont and heard teachers, parents, business leaders and labor union representatives argue the inequity of paying beginning teachers less than an apprentice pipefitter or Houston garbage collector. It is a convincing argument.

Last April, a report by the National Commission on Excellence in Education warned of "a rising tide of mediocrity" in the nation's educational system and recommended increasing teacher salaries, extending their contracts from nine to 11 months, and providing more incentives for the brightest students to enter the teaching profession.

Texas' schoolchildren cannot wait for better economic times to get a quality education, and teachers cannot meet their challenge in the classroom if they have to moonlight at a second job to make ends meet.

The Texas Education Agency expects more than 4,000 teaching positions will go unfilled this year. When a teacher with a bachelor's degree and 23 years' experience makes the maximum state-appropriated pay scale of $19,620 per year, it is no wonder that high-paying industries are luring the brightest college graduates away from careers in education, leaving acute shortages of math and science teachers.

A bipartisan Congressional task force reported last month that paying teachers based on merit is worth an experiment but offers no real solution to the problem of attracting more qualified people into the teaching profession.

Teachers' exodus from the classroom is not a problem unique to Texas. Teachers in all but eight states experienced a loss of buying power in the past decade, forcing many to enter different lines of work.

Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching reported this summer that the average amount spent per student increased 182 percent nationwide from 1972 to 1982. Teachers' salaries, as a portion of total school expenditures, dropped from 49 to 37 percent during the same 10-year period.

Polls have shown that the public is willing to accept some form of tax increase to support improvements in education but objects to paying more for the same programs packaged in fancy new labels.

I am confident that Select Committee on Public Education will recommend a far-reaching package of education reforms — one that will improve state aid to poor school districts, achieve a balanced curriculum, and significantly increase teachers pay. I look forward to signing a bill which recognizes, in tangible dollars and cents, the contributions and dedication of Texas teachers.

Low oxygen levels documented in Louisiana coastal bottom waters

COLLEGE STATION — Scientists and engineers from Texas A&M University have documented the occurrence of low oxygen levels in nearshore bottom waters along the Louisiana coast.

The presence of low oxygen levels is a common seasonal (June-August) event but is more severe in some years than others. Marine life including shrimp is severely reduced or absent where low oxygen levels occur.

Special cruises were conducted as a part of the Department of Energy-sponsored Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) brine disposal monitoring program to investigate the interaction of low-oxygen conditions with the west Hackberry diffuser pipeline site.

Dr. Roy W. Hann Jr., head of the environmental engineering program at Texas A&M University, noted that the immediate diffuser area actually has higher oxygen levels than surrounding areas because the diffuser helps mix surface waters with low-oxygen bottom waters.

The diffuser pipeline has not been observed to have a negative interaction with low-oxygen conditions. In fact, it may have a positive effect because of the mixing it causes. According to Hann, the brine discharge does not cause the low oxygen conditions.

Low oxygen levels are generally associated with fresh water flowing into the Gulf of Mexico from the Mississippi and Atchafalaya Rivers and with "upwelling" caused by summer wind conditions.

Less saline river inflow "floats on top" of the heavier sea water. This slows down the usual mixing that occurs in productive coastal waters. Without the necessary mixing, the oxygen along the bottom is used up by the marine life that lives in the bottom, explained Hann.

This year, low-oxygen conditions began in June. They became more severe in late July and early August when bottom-dissolved oxygen levels of less than two parts per million were measured at 30-foot bottom depths all the way from northeast of High Island in Texas to just west of Cameron, La. The condition existed at least 20 miles offshore.

Apparently Hurricane Alicia mixed the water enough to help cause the hypoxia to disappear, Hann said. Shrimp catches can be expected to be very low during these low oxygen conditions, he added.

Additional information on the oxygen-deficient areas or the SPR brine monitoring project can be obtained from the program director, Environmental Engineering Division, Civil Engineering Department, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

Social Security changes provided free of charge

Another scheme to bilk the public is now operating in the for of a "service" to help people — for a fee — get a Social Security number, get their name changed on their Social Security record or check up on their earnings record, according to David W. Tutt, district manager with the Social Security Administration. A $10 fee is the usual charge.

The Social Security Administration provides all these services free of charge, Tutt emphasized. "There is no need to pay anyone to help you get these services. All you have to do is contact the nearest Social Security office by phone or mail.

"To get a Social Security card or get your name changed on our records, you must complete Form SS5 Application for a Social Security Number," he continued. "You personally are required to do this whether you deal direct with Social Security or through someone else. So why pay someone $10 to get between you and Social Security?"

To check on an earnings record, all the person need do is call the nearest Social Security office and ask them to mail Form SSA-7004. This form should be completed and mailed to Albuquerque Data Operations Center. In a few weeks, the applicant will receive a statement of his or her earnings record.

All Social Security services are provided free to the public, Tutt stressed.

Items taken from Palm Harbor home

The Aransas County Sheriff's Department is investigating the theft of more than $2,000 in items from the Palm Harbor residence of Gene Goins.

Missing from Goins' residence are assorted pieces of furniture, crab traps, rod and reel sets, a gaff hook and two brass props. Total value of the missing items is estimated at $2,370.

Daniel Trent of City by the Sea reported the theft of a bicycle from his garage between 6 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, and 10 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 19. Estimated value of the bicycle is $109.

Former Rockport man injured in fall

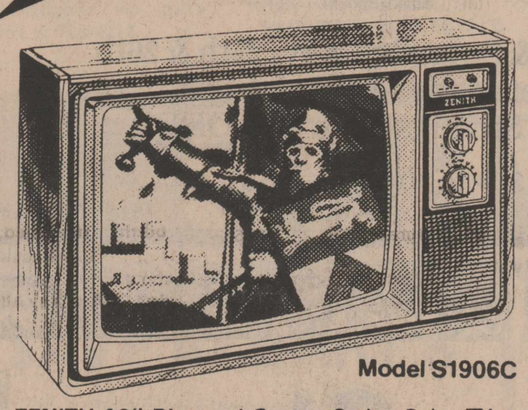

Oscar Bauer, a former Rockport resident, sustained two broken ribs and injury to two fingers in a fall from a ladder last Tuesday, Nov. 15.

Bauer, an employee of the City of San Antonio Water Department, was admitted to Southeast Baptist Hospital where he underwent corrective surgery to save two fingers on his right hand.

He was formerly employed by Wagley Lumber Co. in Rockport.

George Washington has a day; mothers have a day, and groundhogs have a day. It's about time we honored Adam and Eve with a day. So, let it be known, to whom it may concern, I now set hand and seal to this document, declaring May 2 as "Adam and Eve Day."

Without Ann Landers, Joyce Brothers and the millions of other experts to advise them, Adam and Eve had sex, raised a family and lived to the ripe old age of 930. As far as we can tell, they hardly knew each other before they decided to get married. When the first baby was forming, the young couple didn't know whether it would look like a possum or a sweet potato, much less how to raise it once it came.

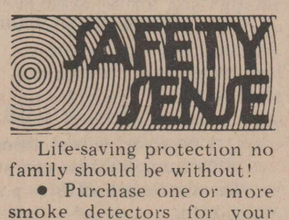

Things were tough in those days. Adam couldn't get steaks already wrapped in see-through material ... his were running around in the woods on a cow. He had to raise his own cotton to make his overalls and he was the only cotton-picking cotton picker on the place!

Far as we can tell, Adam and Eve worked long hours, six days a week, with no vacation and no retirement plan. At 65, they were just getting into the swing of things, and still having young'uns. (There were no experts to tell 'em they couldn't have kids after 65.)

It appears that Adam and Eve went to church, but the record doesn't say whether it was Baptist, Catholic, Jewish or what! There were no religious columnists back then like Billy Graham, Norman Vincent Peale or Parson Jones, so we don't know if they were as well-organized as religion is today.

Anyway, you can see the importance of having a special day for Adam and Eve. Hang an apple on your door come next May 2.

GOOD AS GOLD

A shining piece of history deals with the kingdom which first used precious gold as coins. It was the kingdom of Lydia in Asia Minor. The king who authorized these first gold coins was King Croesus in about 560 B.C.

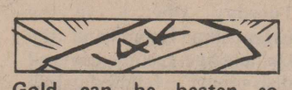

* * *

Today, gold coins are within the reach of nearly everyone. Coins for collecting, or numismatic coins, are valued for their rarity and condition, and for the beauty of their designs. Bullion coins appeal to those who want a means of physically holding gold as an investment. The famous South African Krugerrand, the most popular gold investment coin in the world today, contains exactly one troy ounce of pure gold.

* * *

The smaller, fractional Krugerrands available in 1/2 oz., 1/4 oz. and 1/10 oz. sizes lend themselves splendidly to men's and women's jewelry, and can be mounted in a ring, pendant, cufflinks, money clip or key chain; a gift to be treasured.

Gold can be beaten so thin that a gram will cover 56 square inches.

Would You Believe...

The single largest loss in a game of cards was determined by the turn of one card. William Northmore of England, an inveterate gambler of the 18th century, lost his entire fortune of $850,000 on the turn of an ace of diamonds.

* * *

The only way an owl can look around is to turn its head, but it can turn its head almost all the way around, and so fast that you can hardly see it move.

* * *

The average American gobbles up about 16 pounds of candy each year, including about 2½ pounds of chocolate.

Community service hosts all faiths

Several hundred people, of all faiths, gathered Tuesday evning at the Community Church in Fulton and engaged in a most interesting and worshipful service. It was sponsored by the Aransas County Ministers' Association representing 10 of the community churches.

The Rev. John Norvell, Pastor of the Gospel Lighthouse, delivered the sermon. Rev. Richard Giller, pastor of Fulton Community Church, was master of ceremonies and welcomed the well-packed auditorium.

Special music was rendered by the ladies from the Rockport Church of the First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Gregory Deane read an Old Testament Scripture opening the program. Rev. Ralph Gonzales, pastor of the Friendly Missionary Church, gave the Epistle reading from Philippians.

A Litany of Thanksgiving was lead by Rev. Giller. The Gospel lesson was read by Dale Pogue of the First Baptist Church.

In closing, the congregation entered into the Ritual of the Passing of the Peace lead by Rev. Bradshaw, and the singing of "America the Beautiful."

The offering, which was blessed by Rev. Charles Fake of the First Baptist Church, will be divided equally between the Aransas County Council on Aging and the Toys for Kids Christmas Campaign.

The meeting adjourned with peace and harmony prevailing.

FOR THE FAIR. Sandy Johnson, the new owner of Crazy Daisy, presents a wreath to Gayle Atchley for St. Peter's Episcopal Church's food fair coming up Friday, Dec. 2. The wreath will be given away in a drawing at 3 p.m. on that day. Chances are available for a $1 donation and the winner need not be present to win. [Photo by Pat Blair]

The Shepherd's staff

Don't offer me a drink . . .

By the Rev.
CHARLES FAKE
Pastor, First Baptist Church

They used to call them "insane asylums," but now they call them "mental hospitals." I guess they had to make the change because in some ways the whole world has become an insane asylum.

Since ethyl alcohol is scientifically classed as a drug, is it not insane to advertise it constantly, making a special appeal to young persons to use it?

Since ethyl alcohol is directly responsible for at least 25,000 deaths on the highways and streets of our nation each year, is it not insane to keep pushing this drug?

Since people sit in bars from midnight to 2 a.m. getting drunker by the minute, then try to drive home, is it not insane to endure this unwarranted extension of legal selling hours?

Since alcoholic beverages contribute to family fights and eventual divorce, is it not insane to put them on the shelves of a family place like a grocery store?

Since beverage alcohol messes up the judgment of automobile drivers, is it not insane to allow it to be sold where people also buy gasoline?

Since beverage alcohol destroys brain cells when imbibed in any amount, is it not insane to drink it at all?

So please don't offer me a drink. Do you think I'm crazy?

A WORD OF KINDNESS

If you like the chap you work with,
Why not stop and tell him so?
It will give him inspiration —
More than you will ever know.

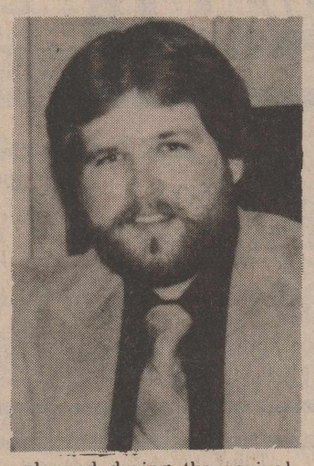

If you like the work he's doing,
Do not be afraid to say;
It will give him added courage
For the burdens of the day.

If you think he's being partial
To some members of the flock,
He is merely being friendly —
Do not start a lot of talk!

Just remember he has trials —
Just the same as you and I;
Though he can't please all the people,
Neither could our Lord on high.

If you have a word of kindness,
Not a lot of flow'ry praise —
You should let your helper know it
It will brighten up his days.

Greater Victoria Quilt Guild sponsors quilt contest

VICTORIA — The Greater Victoria Quilt Guild and Victoria Regional Museum Association are sponsoring a quilt block contest in conjunction with "Quilts from the Heart," an exhibition set for February in Victoria.

Selected quilt blocks will be used in the exhibition to exemplify traditional quilt patterns and quilting techniques. All entries will be displayed at the opening of the exhibition on Feb. 2. Prizes for winning entries will be awarded at that time.

An entry fee of $2 per block entered will be charged and deadline for entries will be Jan. 26. Cash prizes will be awarded of $40 for first place, $30 for second, $20 for third and $10 for fourth.

To qualify for the judging, quilt blocks must measure 12 by 12 inches and must be a traditional quilt block pattern. The design may be pieced, appliqued or a combination of the two and fabrics must be ironed, washable cotton or cotton/polyester blends and should be quilted and finished with a biased edge. Any block not meeting these requirements will be disqualified.

Entries will be judged on workmanship, overall appearance and use of color. Each entry must have the name, address and phone number of the entrant and the name of the pattern on a 3 by 5-inch card attached to the back of the block. All entries will become part of the Guild's permanent collection.

Entries should be sent to Quilt Block Contest, c/o Susan Manning, 110 Rio Vista, Victoria, Texas 77901.

"Quilts from the Heart," an exhibit of fine antique quilts, many made in this area, will be on display from Feb. 3-March 18. The exhibit will be curated by Houston quilt expert Karey Bresenhan. Funding permitted, the Museum Association plans to publish a catalog documenting the exhibition.

Patman co-sponsors bill against credit card fraud

Congressman Bill Patman, D-Texas, has announced his welcome for House passage of legislation to protect consumers from credit card fraud by significantly strengthening federal law.

Co-sponsor of the bill, Patman said, "This legislation is strong medicine for the credit card fraud epidemic that is sweeping the nation."

Patman is a member of the House Consumer Affairs and Coinage Subcommittee which recommended passage after hearing testimony earlier this year that an estimated 73 million of the 850 million credit cards in circulation in the U.S. are reported lost or stolen every year.

Of that total, some 20,000 cards are fraudulently used every day.

In 1982 financial institutions lost an estimated $128 million from bank card fraud alone, an increase of more than 35 percent over 1981.

About $40 million of the 1982 figure came from the use of counterfeit credit cards, and those losses are projected to grow to nearly $100 million this year. Fraud losses to the credit card industry as a whole approached $1 billion in 1982.

"The Credit Card Protection Act cracks down on credit card crime in four ways," Patman said.

"First, it makes it illegal to distribute credit card numbers except on a very limited basis and only to those who have a legitimate need for the number.

"Second, it makes possession of five or more illegally obtained credit cards and numbers a Federal offense. This provision is directed toward rings of organized criminals who systematically collect and fraudulently use credit cards and numbers.

"Third, it makes it a crime to fraudulently use a credit card number as well as a card itself. This reverses a federal court decision that held that the fraudulent use of a credit card number only, without using a credit card itself, was not a crime under present law.

"Fourth, it makes it a federal crime to illegally use a series of credit cards to obtain more than $1,000 in goods or services. Under present law, it is only a federal offense to use a single credit card for thefts of $1,000 or more, and criminals have avoided federal prosecution by never using a single card for more than the $1,000 limit.

"The Credit Card Protection Act will benefit consumers, creditors and honest merchants who are the innocent victims of this epidemic of crime."

Galveston County well is a safety and pollution threat, says Railroad Commission decision

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has decided to sue state funds to immediately plug a Galveston County well that continues to pose a safety and pollution threat.

Commission staff members have estimated it will take approximately $200,000 to properly kill and plug the well, which is about 2 miles south of Alta Loma.

The Commission acted on Nov. 17 after a state district court judge apparently decided to grant an injunction prohibiting the RRC from enforcing an Oct. 31 order that directed three companies to produce or properly plug the well.

Two of the companies, Ten-Exploration Corp. of Dallas and Olin Corp. of Houston, sought the injunction. Those firms, with Chauce A. Beane & Co. of Palo Alto, Calif., are the working interest owners in the well.

The Commission may still seek, through continued legal action, reimbursement for plugging expenses.

The operator of the well, Ca-Tex Petroleum Inc. of Wichita Falls, does not have enought assets to properly plug it. Ca-Tex representatives shut-in the well on or about Aug. 18 as a precautionary measure during the approach of Hurricane Alicia. Because the company was unable to pay its employees and agents, the well remained shut in.

On Oct. 3, the well began to blow out, releasing salt water, gas and condensates. Railroad Commission field personnel were required to do the work necessary to control the well, and have been maintaining it since then to keep well pressure at a safe level.

Recent evidence indicates, however, that fluids from the well may be polluting underground fresh water strata.

Current RRC expenditures, which include costs for hauling away some 1,000 barrels of salt water per day, are approximately $1,500 daily. Through Nov. 16, the Commission had spent nearly $47,000 on the well.

The $200,000 that the Commission estimates it will cost to properly plug the well will come from its well plugging fund. That fund is a special appropriation from the Texas Legislature and allows the Commission to take care of potential safety and pollution problems involving wells when the responsible parties cannot be identified.

For the current fiscal year, the Legislature appropriated $367,000 for the fund. In an effort to provide additional money for the well plugging fund, the Legislature has authorized the Commission to collect $100 with each drilling application.

Skin problem may not be mange

By Dr. HAP LUTZ
Rockport Veterinarian

Dear Dr. Lutz,

I've been treating my dog for mange with a solution I brought from the feed store. After two months of regular treatment, the skin is getting worse, instead of better. What should I do now?

s/"Penny Pincher"

Dear Penny,

You got started on the wrong foot. As a layman, you wouldn't attempt to remove your own appendix. Why subject your dog to a guessing game?

Many skin conditions look alike. For example, skin problems caused by fleas can be mistaken for mange by the layman. A veterinarian can make a scraping of the lesion, examine it under the microscope and demonstrate one of several types of mange — if the dog has mange.

If the veterinarian suspects a fungus, he could make a positive diagnosis by culturing the suspicious tissue. The more prompt a person is in treating a skin problem with the correct medication, the faster it responds to treatment.

If you have any questions concerning the health and care of your pet, please mail them to The Pilot. Dr. Lutz will answer them in the next edition.

Medicaid is not without some problems

By ERIC R. KINGSON
(12th of 14 parts)

Medicare has increased the economic security and access to health care for millions of Americans. Without Medicare, the aged and disabled would find the cost of comparable health insurance extremely high, and many simply could not afford adequate health care. Much of the financial burden for health care would be shifted onto the families of the aged and disabled.

However, Medicare is not without its problems.

Preventive services are not reimbursed by Medicare. Periodic physicals, much health screening, most drugs, dentures, eyeglasses and hearing aids are not covered. The failure to cover preventive services has to lead in some cases to hospitalizations.

A greater challenge is to protect families against the cost of long-term care and ensure that good long-term care is available when needed.

Medicare provides very limited protection against the cost of long-term care resulting from chronic illness. It focuses instead on providing benefits to cover the cost of illness that requires immediate, but not prolonged, treatment.

Medicare also has a strong bias toward providing care in hospital settings, although for the aged and the disabled, home care and nursing home services are often more important.

The great majority of the disabled elderly are cared for by family members. But population and social trends are making this more difficult. The aged population is growing; families are smaller; and more women work outside the home and are unable to provide home care.

Given the increasing need, there is little alternative but to plan for increased federal expenditures and better coordination of long-term care services at both the community and institutional levels.

Medicare does not fully protect against the high cost of health care. No catastrophic health care protection is provided — so, though lessened, the threat of losing everything you've saved because of health care costs still exists.

By itself, Medicare covers slightly less than one-half (45 percent for the aged) of the total health care bill of aged and disabled beneficiaries. Other public programs, primarily Medicaid, provide additional protection. But much of the cost is paid directly by beneficiaries. The Senate Committee on Aging reports that in 1981 the typical elderly person paid $914 out of pocket.

Recent legislation has increased out of pocket expenses. About half — $700 million — of the savings anticipated in the 1984 budget year from Medicare changes enacted in the 1981 Budget Act and $450 million of these anticipated savings from Medicare changed enacted in the 1982 Tax Act are the result of increases in premiums, deductibles and co-insurance. So, cost-savings of $1.15 billion are directly the result of shifting a larger portion of the cost of care onto beneficiaries.

This year, the Reagan administration made proposals designed to save an additional $1.86 billion in Medicare expenditures in the 1984 budget year. Most ($1.3 billion) would come through increased cost sharing by beneficiaries.

The 1983 Advisory Council on Social Security, which was appointed by the administration, is scheduled to give its report on the Medicare program at the end of the year. It has already recommended substantial increases in the Hospital Insurance deductible and the Medical Insurance premium. It has also proposed increasing the age of eligibility for full benefits from 65 to 67, over a 12-year period, beginning in 1990.

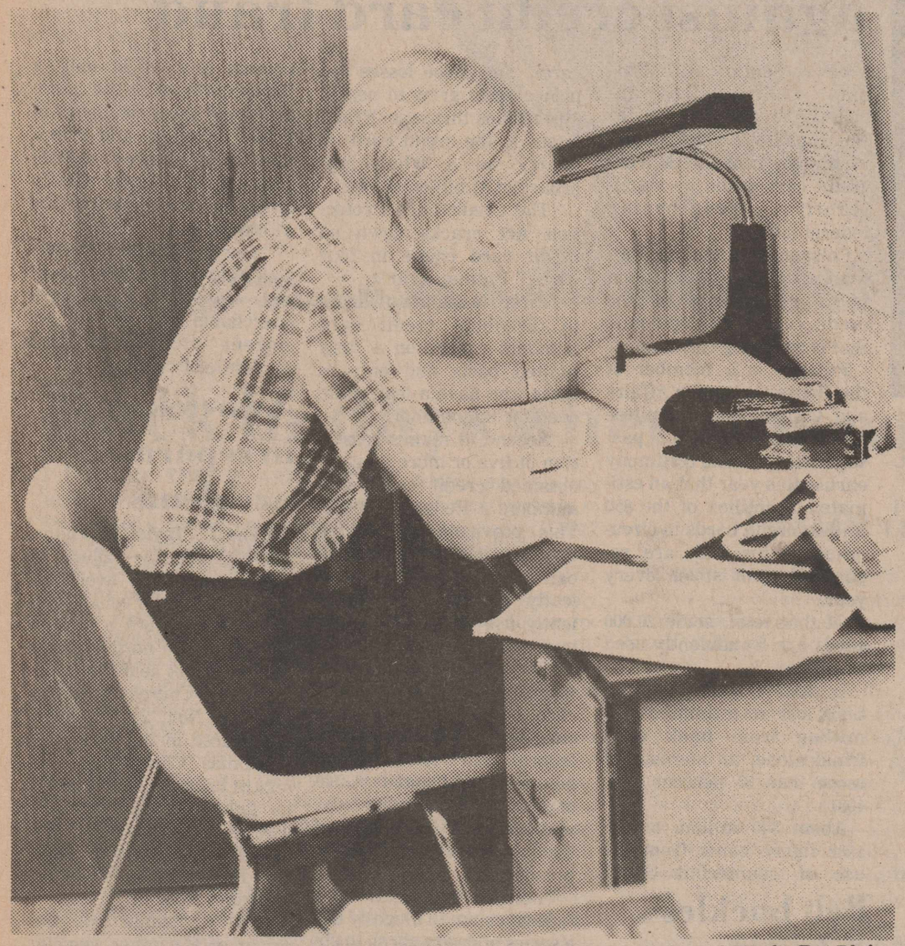

Rising health care costs, the growing need for medical services among an increasingly aged population, and a general lack of cost controls on health care providers will, barring remedial legislation, result in the depletion of the Hospital Insurance Trust Fund, most probably in the late 1980s or the early 1990s.

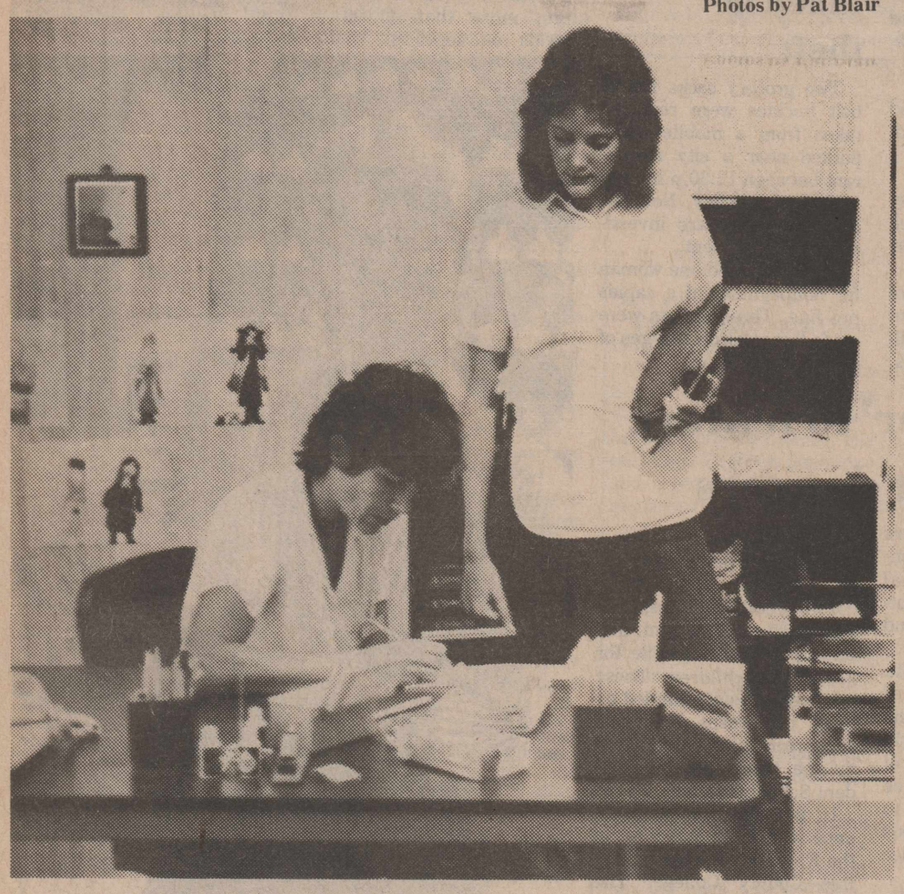

Medicare's financing problems are complicated and are part of a larger problem — runaway medical costs, especially hospital costs. The solution involves considerably more than increasing revenues or decreasing protection. The financing problems must be solved within the context of reforms that bring medical costs under control.

Health care is expensive. Regardless of what happens with Medicare, a growing aged population, along with increasing health care costs, are going to cost all Americans more.

The recent financing problems in Social Security's cash program were quite real. A fair solution was legislated for problems in the cash program. This, too, is possible for the emerging problems in the health programs.

A.I.M.

For the week of Nov. 13-19, A.I.M. staff members recorded 89 skilled nursing visits, 47 home health visits, 20 for physical therapy, five occupational therapy and six for speech therapy.

"We have," Akin said, "an excellent rehabilitative team and we have had some really great results."

Once a week, Akin said, "we have staff conferences — team meetings." In addition, A.I.M. provides an ongoing education program for its staff members, including not only weekly inservice training but sponsorship of employees to seminars and courses such as the evening medical terminology classes Eileen Spearman and Sandra Solis are attending at Del Mar.

Spearman, Akin said, is A.I.M.'s office manager. Solis does posting and clerical work for the agency. Solis started working for A.I.M. part-time while she was still in high school and is now a full-time employee.

Anderson is now in the process of planning a one-day seminar for nurses in leadership skills — the first time for a seminar of this type to be offered in Rockport. Target date is March and medical personnel are being invited from throughout the area, including Corpus Christi and Victoria. Anderson hopes to have 20 to 25 "at least" in attendance.

A.I.M. is contracted by the Texas Department of Human Resources to provide inhome primary care services to eligible Medicaid recipients and the order for such care must be made by the patient's physician. "Home" care refers either to a private residence or a nursing home and several residents in the Aransas Pass Nursing Home, for example, are eligible for — and receiving — physical, occupational and speech therapy.

In addition to the primary care, which must meet Medicare/Medicaid guidelines, A.I.M. also offers private pay programs that include private duty nursing in the home or hospitals and an inhome non-technical program of assistance with personal care, meals and other support services.

A.I.M. is a non-profit organization supported through the Aransas County United Fund and memorial donations. "We receive money for our services," Iles said, "but we also provide services for persons who are financially unable to pay for them."

This program was put together "using the same guidelines as for primary care," Akin said, and both programs are geared to involve not only the patient but the patient's family.

The program has had good support from area physicians from the beginning, Akin said, and it's getting better. "We work very closely with the family physician — they realize what we're doing is an extension of their service.

"We have an image problem still with the general public," she added. Some people still aren't quite sure what A.I.M. is — or does.

But as A.I.M. continues to grow and provide its specialized services for more and more people in the community, fewer people ask, "What is A.I.M."

And more want to know how they can receive its services.

Also on the recommendation of the P&Z board, the council tabled proposed amendments to the city zoning ordinance relating to definitions of "portable buildings," "office buildings," "modular homes" and sections of the ordinance where these definitions apply.

The council approved an agreement with Urban Engineering for preparation of plans and specifications for the Tule Lake drainage project. Some 750 feet of the Tule Lake ditch is to be covered by 5-by-9 concrete boxes in the first phase of the project.

Council members set Dec. 13 to open bids on purchase of a vacuum trailer for the city.

Approval was given to a request by Delmar Hiller for permission to connect a lot on Colorado Street in the Tule Subdivision to city sanitary sewer service.

Council members heard from Bessie Brown, a resident on South Magnolia, who told city officials she had a problem with water standing on her property. "Water is coming in not just from hurricane but from heavy rains," Mrs. Brown said. "The last two months I've been under water."

The council told Mrs. Brown they will ask Gene Urban of Urban Engineers to investigate the matter.

Chelation therapy unproven as disease 'cure'

Ever hear of chelation (pronounced Key-LAY-shun) therapy?

It's the latest "cure" being touted by a number of physicians across the country for hardening of the arteries. If it could be proven effective against one of the widest-spread of man's afflictions, it would certainly be an enormous breakthrough.

But it isn't.

"There is no evidence that chelation therapy is beneficial in treating hardening of the arteries, or athrosclerosis," says Dr. Charles B. Moore, an Ochsner Clinic cardiologist.

"The American Medical Association reported against it in 1982. On thebasis of our observation here at Ochsner, admittedly limited to only a few patients who have had the therapy elsewhere and returned to us, tests have revealed no change in their condition, even though the patients have reported that they feel better," he adds. He recently reported on the status of the treatment at a meeting of Ochsner staff cardiologists and residents.

Practitioners are advertising the treatment in Baton Rouge and Covington in Louisiana, in Houston and in various places in Alabama as well as other parts of the country.

They claim chelation therapy, because it cures hardening of the arteries, can also prevent strokes, heart attacks, senility, kidney disease, diabetes, muscular dystrophy, lupus and a host of other unrelated diseases.

Chelation therapy consists of a series of infusions of EDTA, ethylene-diamine-tetraacetic acid, a drug developed in 1945 for research purposes to bind heavy metals.

"It is used in the treatment of lead poisoning," Moore explains, "because it combines with the lead in the blood stream in such a way that it may be flushed out of the body through the kidneys." It is still being used for this purpose according to medical literature.

"In 1956, a doctor in Detroit decided that it could be used in the same way to find with calcium building up in the walls of arteries. There are only two studies on this procedure in all the literature — the original one written by the Detroit doctor and a later study in 1963 which concluded that the treatment was not effective in binding with calcium and thus affecting the hardening of the arteries," the Ochsner cardiologist states.

Nevertheless, the treatment has recently proliferated. The full course of treatment, which includes the initial examination, laboratory tests and the infusions can cost as much as $5,000. There is still no evidence that it affects or reverses the hardening of the arteries.

"The doctors touting this are recommending that the treatment be done as a preventive measure on an annual basis," Moore points out.

"This presents a real problem for desperate people because it takes money out of their pockets that might be better spent on more conventional and proven therapies," he insists. "Although there is no scientific basis to prove the chelation therapy works, there is no proof that it doesn't work either. In the absence of documentation of its effectiveness, people depend on anecdotal, or word-of-mouth, reports. It's like fad diets, but the stakes are much higher," he says.

Ask Kate

Is Vaughn running?

By Kate Woods

Robert Vaughn

A friend told me that actor Robert Vaughn is running for political office. Is this true? If so, what job? — L.B.

Vaughn does have a doctorate in political science, but has yet to put it to practical use as far as running for office. Acting-wise, he is taking over from Patrick O'Neal the role of the reactionary Harlan Adams on "Emerald Point N.A.S."

MEATBALLS MAIL — Where can I write to Bill Murray? — K.F.

Murray, who is currently on location in New York filming a remake of "Ghostbusters," can be reached through his agent, Michael Ovitz, at Creative Artists Agency, 1888 Century Park East, Suite 1400, Los Angeles, CA 90067.

BLUES FOR TWO — Wasn't the actor who plays the team owner on "Bay City Blues" also on "Hill Street Blues"? — D.M.

Both are MTM productions and have featured a few of the same actors. Pat Corley, who plays Ray Holtz, was an alcoholic coroner in several "Hill Street Blues" segments.

PASSIONATE FILM — Can you tell me where "The Haunting Passion" was filmed? The scenery was absolutely gorgeous. Was it California? — A.B.

A little further north. The Jane Seymour film was shot in Vancouver, British Columbia.

EARLY BIXBY — How many years ago did Bill Bixby star in "My Favorite Martian"? — M.N.

The star of "Goodnight, Beantown" had his first close encounter with an alien and television 20 years ago this past September.

MISSING FILM — What was the name of the movie that starred Judd Hirsch as an investigator seeking a missing child? It came out last year. — A. D.

"Without a Trace," which also starred Kate Nelligan.

Send your letters to Kate Woods, United Feature Syndicate, 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, N.Y. 10166. Because of volume of mail, we can not make personal replies.

SKID MARKS

Mark "Skid" McCormick (Daniel Hugh-Kelly) gets behind the wheel of a top-rated racing car when its original driver is injured, but Judge Hardcastle discovers that the car's owner is up to no good, in the "Hot Shoes" episode of ABC's "Hardcastle and McCormick," airing SUNDAY, NOV. 27.

SPORTS PROBE

College basketball finally gets in gear

While the professional basketball players have been shooting baskets for almost a month, the colleges just started their march to the NCAA championship game in April in Seattle. Last Saturday CBS began its coverage and cable's USA Network began its 13-game collegiate season.

This Saturday afternoon, Dec. 3, NBC opens its season with the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame hosting the Bruins of UCLA in South Bend, Ind.

At the microphones for NBC will be the ever-welcome team of Dick Enberg as play-by-play man and Al McGuire as expert commentator. Icing on the cake following the game will be "Al McGuire's Pre-Season College Basketball Special," during which McGuire gives his predictions for the 1983-84 season.

This is McGuire's seventh season with NBC Sports and the native New Yorker has proven an entertaining and knowledgeable commentator, putting his 13 years as head coach of Marquette University to good use.

Al McGuire

In those 13 years, McGuire's teams were in nine NCAA tournaments, including winning the championship in 1977. In his basketball-playing days, he starred as a guard with his brother Dick, an all-time great, at St. John's University in New York, then moved on to pro ball with the New York Knicks and the Baltimore Bullets.

In addition to sparking the basketball telecasts and doing halftime features during the games, McGuire hosts a nationally syndicated weekly half-hour sports series called "Al McGuire on Sports" and covers other events for NBC's "SportsWorld."

Week of Nov. 27- Dec. 3

Bono's Astro-Vue

© By Lillian Bono

ARIES
(March 21-April 20) Give in to the whimsical desires of a lover who would like to do something wildly romantic with you. You'll have a time you'll never forget.

TAURUS
(April 21-May 21) A decision that requires thought should not be made until all alternatives have been considered or an important aspect may be overlooked.

GEMINI
(May 22-June 21) Complications may arise in a financial transaction where there are people involved. Considering a relocation elsewhere could lead to domestic squabbles between you and others.

CANCER
(June 22-July 23) Use your imagination in a creative endeavor that you are working on. This enterprise could bring you to the attention of influential people.

LEO
(July 24-Aug. 23) Offer large quantities of affection to small children who are confused and feel unloved. Mental stress at work finds you in need of rest and relaxation.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Bite the bullet in a financial situation requiring an outlay of cash on your part. The return you'll receive on this investment could be considerable.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Entertaining at home could make you more comfortable and help in getting to know acquaintances better.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Strange experiences could leave you with a feeling of dejavu. Try not to let this set of circumstances rattle you. A close friend may need you for moral support because of a situation involving legal affairs.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Going against your better judgment in a business matter might not be a wise idea. Stick to your guns and keep your stance. A flirtation with a pretty friend may complicate another relationship.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) A career decision you have postponed making may have to be made quickly. Sharing an emotional experience with someone you are not close to could bring a drastic change.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Refusing to face up to your feelings in a family matter could put a strain on your dealings with relatives.

PISCES
(Feb. 20-March 20) Protecting the interests of a business partner might not be good for you and a conflict could be the end result. Social affairs provide you with time to fix yourself up.

INSIDE TV

CLOSEUP: Michael Nouri starring as baseball manager Joe Rohner in "Bay City Blues" was never a baseball fan until he was tapped for the series. "Now," says Michael, "I follow the Atlanta Braves because I so admire Manager Joe Torre." ... Richard Simmons puts his money where his mouth is. Along with several physicians, he's developed a set of exercises for the disabled. Maintaining exercise is good for you, no matter what your condition, he is donating all the royalties from his Never Say You Can't Exercise book to Y's and hospitals across the country to build gyms for the handicapped ... The title of Honorary Postal Carrier of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. was recently bestowed on John Ratzenberger who plays Cliff the know-it-all mailman in "Cheers." Says John, "I was presented with a plaque and all kinds of postal tidbits. The guys were so happy to have one of their own represented on network TV."

JOHN RITTER

John Ritter was the 1,768th celeb to be honored with a star on Hollywood Boulevard's Walk of Fame. His is next to his father's, the late Tex Ritter.

FOCUS: Linda Evans' former husband, Hollywood realtor Stan Herman and Ursula Andress seem to be serious. Wouldn't it be fun if they wed? Linda and Ursula were both married to John Derek ... Forget what you may read elsewhere, Morgan Fairchild's steady is photog Craig Denault ... I'm not denying there's something between Tom Selleck and former "Cats" dancer, Jillie Mack, but from what I know, they won't be making it legal, not now anyway ... If you have a spare $6 million and want to buy a "Pad," the former Jack Benny home is for sale ... Hoping to raise the ratings, "Boone" producers have signed sexpot Janine Turner to play "Boone's" girlfriend, Maggie Hunter ... Tommy Smothers says his most embarrassing moment was in 1962 when he was robbed of $700 by two prostitutes. The women told Tommy they needed work and had some jokes to sell ... Linda Lavin's marriage to Kip Niven seems to be a good one, although that's a risky statement in the land of showbiz ... "Samson and Delilah," a miniseries for ABC is before the cameras with Anthony Hamilton, an Australian actor/model/dancer in the coveted role of Samson ... Applaud Nancy Walker. The feisty little redhead has raised over $7 million for cancer research as Chairperson for the American Cancer Society. Nancy herself had a bout with Big C.

COMING EVENTS: Jane Seymour joins Vincent Gardenia and Stephen Collins in "Dark Mirror," an Aaron Spelling Production for ABC ... Circle Sunday, December 18th for the eighth annual CBS "Circus of the Stars." Beverly D'Angelo, Louis Gosset, Jr., Ann Jillian, Robert Preston and Dottie West are Ringmasters with a long list of your favorite stars performing death-defying feats ... There's a series in the works for the sisters Gabor. Boy, oh boy, oh boy! The girls love each other — BUT! There's a great deal of professional jealousy. Stay tuned.

PBS in the spotlight

A breathtaking view of the Andes Mountains is shown on "Ocean, Desert and Thin Air."

'Ocean, Desert and Thin Air'

In "Ocean, Desert and Thin Air," the second installment of "The Flight of the Condor," the award-winning miniseries being encored on "Nature," the cameras take viewers to the coastal deserts of Chile and Peru; to the lomas forests and salt flats of the Andes highlands; to the waters of Lake Titicaca; and to a great series of natural basins called the Altiplano. "Ocean, Desert and Thin Air" will be rebroadcast Sunday, Nov. 27 over PBS. (Please check local listings for time.)

The cold waters off the Pacific coast of South America are among the richest in the world, supporting huge colonies of cormorants and boobies -- the famous guano birds. Sea lions abound in the surf, but the shore is only yards from the driest desert in the world, yet a desert not devoid of life.

The cameras capture lizards creeping down to the tideline; seagulls flying 40 miles into the desert in order to nest; and the condor searching the beaches for carrion before returning to its roost high in the mountains.

Traveling north, viewers are taken into the highlands of the Andes to an area of incomparably clear light, the naked plateau called the puna. Here arid volcanos rise toward the dark sky and a whole complement of specialized animals survive the bitter cold of the nights and the heat of the day at 13,000 feet and higher.

The Wine Rack

By BIANCA St. JOHN

Oenophile's Notebook

* The Giumarra Vineyard won 5 bronze medals at the prestigious International Wine and Spirit Competition in London for their Chenin Blanc 1982, Vin Rose 1981, Burgundy 1981, Zinfandel 1980 and Petite Sirah 1979. At the International Viticulture and Wine-Growing Fair in Yugoslavia, Giumarra took five gold medals — for their 1979 Petite Sirah, 1977 Cabernet Sauvignon, 1982 Chenin Blanc, 1982 French Colombard and 1981 Grenache Rose. And, at the 1983 Los Angeles County Fair, Giumarra Vineyards received a silver medal for their 1981 Carnelian, and bronze medals for the 1979 Petite Sirah and 1982 Chablis. A consumer-oriented vintner, John Giumarra, Jr. has recently revised the vineyard's labels to offer the wine buyer extra information. Back labels list awards for each varietal or 'generic' wine in recent years, plus suggestions for complimentary dishes with each wine. Separate neck labels offer vintage dates clearly, instead of incorporating this information into the front label.

* Hanns Kornell has just released a Blanc de Blanc Champagne made entirely of Chenin Blanc, at $18 per bottle. Only two thousand cases are available, and each bottle is individually numbered, making these prime bottles to save in your cellar, as well as a crisp, smooth, dry champagne to celebrate with now.

* Callaway Vineyard and Winery has announced the release of their driest Chenin Blanc ever, made from 100 percent chenin blanc grapes, the 1982 vintage ($6-7). Light straw in color, it is a full-flavored wine with a rich, round finish — ideal for seafood.

* For premium varietal wines in 1.5 liter magnums at $5 to $6 prices, August Sebastiani wines include eight to select from — Fume Blanc, Cabernet Sauvignon, Chardonnay, French Colombard, Chenin Blanc, Zinfandel, Pinot Noir and Gamay Rose.

Soap Beat

LeBlanc operates on soaps, not at med school

By Connie Passalacqua

"Acting is a skill you can use just about anywhere," admits 25-year-old Christian LeBlanc who plays bad boy Kirk McColl on "As the World Turns." "Just like this during an interview!" he adds with a self-effacing giggle.

"I was pre-med in college, but I did a lot of acting in school plays at Tulane University (in New Orleans, where he was raised). When it came time to apply to med school I decided instead to give myself a year in New York looking for acting jobs. If nothing came up, I could always go back to school. And I could use my acting as a doctor — it's a skill that would have come in handy dealing with patients."

But at the tail end of that year, during which he worked as a busboy at the New York's plush Helmsley Palace Hotel, Christian landed his "ATWT" role. "It was wonderful to finally have some money," he recalls, "but unlike other soap actors I know I didn't rush out and buy a co-op apartment. I've stashed a lot of money away for the future. No matter how much an acting job pays, in this field you're always one step away from the unemployment line."

LeBlanc was not always so open and communicative. "I became an actor in high school in the first place to overcome a bad case of shyness." Roles in such plays as "Fiddler on the Roof" and "West Side Story" helped overcome the problem.

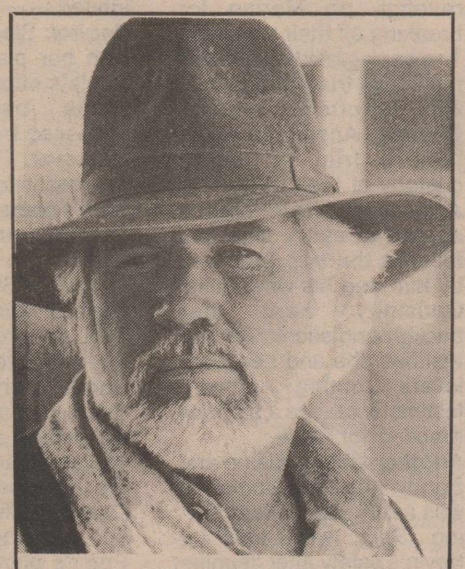

Christian LeBlanc

Yet it was not his acting skills that led him directly to the professional acting business.

"I was swimming at the Tulane pool when a fashion photographer offered me an introduction to a local talent agency. And it all turned out to be legit."

After a role in "Cat People," he went to New York where he worked for Zoli models. His "ATWT" stint has been successful so far and it looks like Leblanc's acting skills will be used in the future more in the field of professional acting than in medicine.

Do you have any additional information on thyroid tablets causing breast cancer? — C.R.

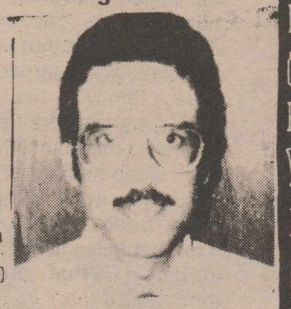

A recent communique from the American Thyroid Association has stated that results so far are inconclusive. The association recommends: "patients who are taking thyroid hormones for well-established indications continue to take their medication. In addition, the association recognizes the need for and urges strong support for carefully designed and controlled studies of a possible relationship between the thyroid and cancer of the breast in humans."

Is it true that the odds are 2 to 1 in favor of a baby girl if the mother has been taking the pill? — P.T.

A recent report indicates that this is not true. The study involved over 6,000 births. All the mothers had been on the birth control pill. Results? 3,045 girls and 3,064 boys. The pill hasn't conquered the laws of probability.

Can 'Ben Casey' be revived?

Vince Edwards has been trying to break out of the image he created for himself more than 20 years ago when he played the title character in "Ben Casey," one of TV's most popular medical dramas.

He's directed nearly 50 TV shows (including "Fantasy Island" and "Battlestar Galactica") and has continued acting. His most recent role is as the unscrupulous head of a weapons company in the new film, "Deal of the Century," a black comedy about arms merchants co-starring Chevy Chase and Sigourney Weaver.

But even to this day, 17 years after "Casey" left the air, Edwards is still primarily recognized as the blunt, unorthodox neurosurgeon. The 55-year-old actor calls the "Casey" role a "double-edged sword" that gave him fame as a younger man, but which subsequently hampered his career.

Still, he wouldn't rule out doing a TV movie updating his character — considering the popularity of such current medical dramas as "St. Elsewhere" and "Trapper John, M.D."

"I think we would do Casey now as a disillusioned idealist, fighting the business of medicine. When he first came out, he was fighting the bureaucracy. Then he learned all there is to learn. Now he's fighting some 30-year-old guy who has just come out of financial school who says, 'we gotta move those beds, we gotta make some money.'

"I think that's kind of an interesting premise since medical costs have gone through the roof... you know, the old greed syndrome. Doctors today are more concerned with billing than with curing.

Edwards says he'd do a "Casey" remake for the "obvious reasons": "The financial rewards are gigantic and I think we could say a lot."

But Edwards is also aware that TV has spawned few characters since the early '60s who were as memorable as Casey, who were, as he says, "bigger than the show."

"TV doesn't look for personalities anymore. Over the last 20 years I could name for you on one hand the solid characters on TV — Casey, Columbo, Eliot Ness, Kojak. I can't think of too many more who are bigger than their show. Maybe Mr. T is about the only current example."

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE:

I doubt you get many letters like this, but here goes. I am a female impersonator and have been doing this for the past seven years. I do not go with men, but neither do I go with women. I guess I'm asexual. I really enjoy what I do, but lately I've been having my doubts. I'm worried that I may in fact be a homosexual. This thought really disturbs me because I always believed that someday I would get married and raise a family — the "normal" American dream. It's getting to the point where I don't sleep nights worrying about this. In all honesty, I have been attracted to men, but I also find women attractive. What do you think about this?

SLEEPLESS

DEAR SLEEPLESS:

It seems to me that you're so afraid of discovering what your actual preferences are that you have avoided exploring your sexuality altogether. The fact that you don't go with women or men is evidence. While some people may disagree, female impersonators and transvestites are not necessarily homosexuals. You may not be at all. However, you owe it to yourself to find out. I suggest you start seeing a therapist to give yourself a chance to work this out. Good luck.

* * *

DEAR DEBBIE:

I have always abhorred gossip, especially when it's vicious, and now I find myself the object of it. Certain things have come back to me within my social set that really upset me. However, I don't know the exact source of this gossip, so I can't confront the person, although I have some pretty well-founded suspicions. Since admittedly, I have not been very discreet about some of my antics, I guess in a way I have it coming. The sad part is that now people are willing to believe anything about me, even if it's untrue. I'm angry at the injustice of this, especially since I've always made it a point not to talk about anyone else. Believe me, I know some things about the people in question that could really start tongues wagging! How do I redeem myself? Or should I not even bother and just walk away from it all?

JEZEBEL

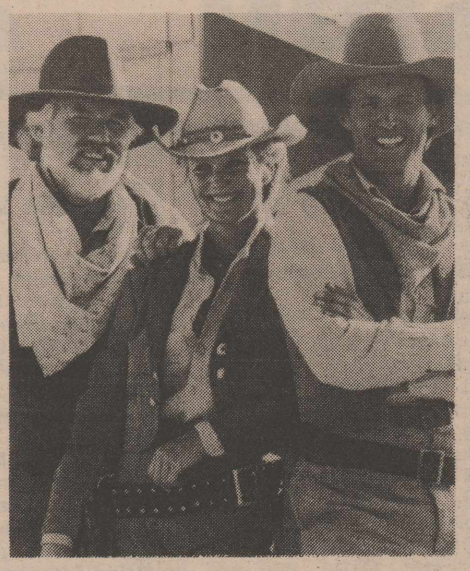

DEAR JEZEBEL:

It's amazing how some people absolutely love gossip. I have always found that disgusting. Since you are the brunt of it, though, it's not that easy to just shrug it off.

I suspect your wish to "redeem" yourself might be motivated by some guilt since you feel some of the gossip was justified. However, that's just not so. The best way to deal with this is to go about your business and not even acknowledge that anything's being said about you. By letting yourself react, you are making yourself an easier target. Also, did you ever think that the person or persons responsible for the vicious talk might be in some way jealous of you? Jealousy always seems to be the major factor involved in gossip and malicious rumors. That just might be so in your case.

You also might want to think about whether or not these people are worth socializing with. If they're so involved with all this talk, maybe they're just too petty and narrow-minded to waste any time over.

HEART LIKE A WHEEL (20th Century-Fox — PG) ★ ★ ★
Starring Bonnie Bedelia, Beau Bridges

By J.T. YURKO

"Heart Like a Wheel" was actually completed and released this spring, but the studio didn't seem to know what to do with the film. Here's the (mostly) true story of Shirley Muldowney, a female not only working within the formerly men-only world of auto drag racing, but sitting on top of it. She is the only person — male or female — ever to win the world championship of hot-rod racing award three times.

Miss Muldowney's tale is special, certainly, but it isn't a story that begs to be told, nor does it have the sensationalist aspects that Hollywood loves to exploit. So here's what some might call a feminist film, the story of a woman proving she can be just as good as a man, but also one that centers around the world of hot rods and cool custom cars.

The studio originally pulled the film from release. But it was shown recently at the New York Film Festival, and the reaction was encouraging enough so that the film is being re-released in several "selected" theaters.

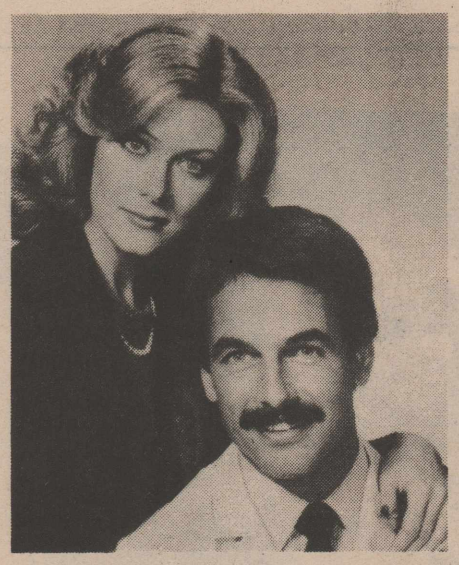

Shirley Muldowney had to face a lot of flack before she could get on the track. Most men told her "it's too dangerous for a woman" or simply "get back in the kitchen." Her persistence finally got her into some of the competitions, but it was her talent that allowed her to stay.

Bonnie Bedelia plays Miss Muldowney, and the film rests largely on her performance. She plays a working-class woman with the right amount of angst, and a racing champion who realizes the cost it took to get there. Even though the story itself lacks the high-tension drama and crowd-pleasing finale of a "Norma Rae," her performance is no less admirable.

"Heart Like a Wheel," directed by Jonathan Kaplan, hasn't the universal appeal of astronaut heroes, but Miss Muldowney shows she has as much of "The Right Stuff" as other occupants of fast-moving vehicles.

REFUNDING $$$ AND SENSE

VICTORIA R. FLEMING

We had an opportunity recently to visit with some of our out-of-state relatives and friends, and as many of them read this column, the conversation naturally turned to couponing and refunding. One person pulled a lovely corduroy accordion-style coupon file from her bag. It was a gift from her daughter and she was organizing it with great anticipation of its effectiveness. Another bragged that she had a box-type file that hooked over the shopping cart handles, leaving her hands free for shopping and pulling out cash-offs as she needed them. One of the men simply used his billfold and clipped coupons together in product categories. It was fun to compare notes and see how almost everyone today is into saving money by careful shopping and coupon organization.

Q. Where can I buy a convenient coupon holder?

A. Some of us are clever enough to adapt cancelled check files and fancy them up with contact paper or glued-on gift wrap. Ads often appear in the back pages of women's magazines and newspapers or in mail-order catalogues. And I've seen several in department stores and gift shops. You could also put a hint in your letter to Santa this year!

Tom's time off 'Dukes' not Hazzard-ous waste

By Joan Crosby

Tom Wopat says he had a scary year during the time he and co-star John Schneider were off "The Dukes of Hazzard" because of a well-publicized dispute with the studio.

But the year gave Wopat time to pursue a big love — music. The result is his first album, "Tom Wopat", which was released earlier this year. The LP was produced by Mike Post, who has composed the theme songs for many top TV shows.

Wopat isn't abandoning his musical career. During the upcoming "Dukes" hiatus in February, Wopat and his band will be touring Louisiana and Mississippi.

Singing has been a major force in Wopat's life for years. He has experience in musicals both on and off-Broadway, including a run in "I Love My Wife" on Broadway and the lead role of Curly in an Equity Library Theater production of "Oklahoma!".

"I had just finished 'Oklahoma!' when I got the chance to come to Los Angeles and test for 'The Dukes of Hazzard.' First thing I did was miss my plane by five minutes. I got the next one. I got to the motel here and was thinking that I didn't particularly want to do TV. Then I got the show and I was afraid it would be a big hit."

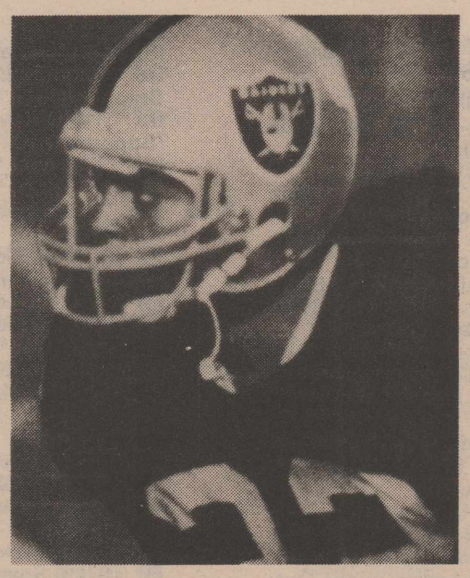

Tom Wopat

"The Dukes" made instant stars of Wopat and Schneider. The show gave him fame and security, but it took him away from music.

Looking back on his time away from "The Dukes," Wopat says, "It was a hell of a learning experience. I wouldn't want to do it often. I learned something from it and I think I gained respect because they learned John and I weren't just a pair of pretty faces."

TV Nostalgia

By Marie Iandiorio

In the wake of ABC's great success with its prime-time soap opera "Peyton Place," CBS decided to try its own version of the form during the summer of 1965. "Our Private World" was a spinoff from the highly successful daytime serial "As the World Turns" and focused on Lisa Hughes, one of the soap's leading characters.

As a young divorcee, Lisa decided to find a new life for herself by leaving her small home town and moving to Chicago, where she found a job in the admitting room of a big-city hospital. The two major plot lines involved her life at the hospital and her dealings with the Eldredges, a socially prominent and extremely wealthy family living in a nearby suburb.

For some reason, Lisa Hughes wasn't as appealing to audiences during prime time as she was during the day and the series was canceled at the end of the summer.

Question: Can you name the veteran soap actress who starred as Lisa Hughes?

Answer: Eileen Fulton

JILL JACKSON'S HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD: Kudos to Streisand for "Yentyl." In this warm and loving film about love-love of family, friends, lovers, she scores as an actress playing the Yeshiva boy and as a director-writer and producer.

BARBRA STREISAND

Barbra should be taking bows when Oscar-nomination time rolls around.

Last time I saw Mariel Hemingway in the grocery, she was as flat-chested as a boy. Now, as Dorothy Stratten in "Star 80," she has a full-blown set of accoutrements. You too can have same with time, money and silicone implants.

When Rock Hunter left for Israel to star in "The Ambassador," his good friends, producers Ross Hunter and Jacques Mapes gifted the Irishman (real name Roy Fitzgerald) with a book titled The Joys of Yiddish.

Hollywood tongues really wagged when Elizabeth Taylor showed up with Tony Geary at one of the town's posh restaurants. Liz also rendezvoused with Carol Burnett while Carol was in from Hawaii taping her special with Placido Domingo. The gals became good friends while filming "Best Friends" for HBO.

Julie Andrews won't be singing "Little Boys" on the soundtrack for hubby Blake Edwards' "The Man Who Loved Women." Although she co-stars in the film with Burt Reynolds, it will be Helen Reddy's voice on the soundtrack.

HOLLYWOOD IS READING: Steve McQueen, The Final Chapter by Grady Ragsdale, Jr. Ragsdale, a pilot and airplane builder became close friends with McQueen and his wife Barbara during the last year of the actor's life. He was with them throughout Steve's battle with big C until the end. If you want to know all about that last year and what went on in Mexico, it's all chronicled — right up to the last breath ... Alan Alda, A Biography by Raymond Strait (St. Martin's Press). Strait traces Alda's career from his early struggles as a New York actor through his successes and the final days of M*A*S*H. He also presents a personal insight into Alan's bout with polio, his private views, how he coped with his parents' divorce, etc. It's Alda "alda" way.

BITS 'N' PIECES: Mary Steenbergen and Malcolm McDowell have settled on a ranch in Ojai, Calif. They will raise oranges and avocados along with their two children ... Matt Dillon is a melted marshmallow over a beauteous college co-ed ... Lee Meriwether stars in "The Dolly Madison Story" to be on location in Washington D.C. and Virginia ... Marthe Keller is brushing up on her Italian for the love of Andrea Occhipinti ... Bridget Hanley and Barbara Eden appeared together in the TV series "Harper Valley PTA" and now they're reunioning in "Chattanooga Choo-Choo." ... You wouldn't believe the lines in front of a Santa Monica Theater showing old Charlie Chan films ... George Burns spent ten days at Caesar's Palace in Vegas. Not "playing a room," however. This time he was playing the dual roles of God and the Devil in "Oh God III" ...

ROCK ON

By Ethlie Ann Vare

INTERVIEW

John Mellencamp left his boyhood home of Seymour, Ind., to become a rock 'n' roll star. Along the way, he found himself renamed John Cougar, made a few albums he's proud of and a few he's not, and established a reputation as a rebel and an outlaw.

Today, Cougar is back to using the name Mellencamp, living once more in Indiana, and making records he likes. While not exactly mellow, he has outgrown his "brat" reputation. Thing is, John Cougar was never comfortable in the role of a star.

"I don't accept compliments easily," says Cougar. "And every time you play a live show, people come backstage and tell you how good they thought the show was — even if I thought it was horrible."

Since he is not excited about going on the road, he will indulge himself and only play a short tour this year (last year he did 170 dates). Keeping the thrill alive, "your heart beating fast," as he puts it, is what life's all about to Cougar. That's what he meant by "hold onto 16 as long as you can" in the No. 1 single "Jack and Diane."

John Cougar Mellencamp

He thinks he's captured that rock 'n' roll excitement in "Uh-Huh," an album that was recorded in a 16-day marathon at a farmhouse studio. And it's what he looks for in other people's music.

"I'm always looking for someone who's doing a little bit more than I do," he says. "Just because I'm 32, I don't want to get jaded."

As "Uh-Huh" and the single "Crumblin' Down" climb the charts, Cougar is staying young in Indiana, scooting around his seven acres on his beloved dirt-bikes. As he says in "The Authority Song" on the new LP, "Growing up' leads to growing old and then to dying/ And dying to me don't sound like all that much fun."

CHARITABLE COUPLE — Gary Collins and his wife, Mary Ann Mobley, work hard for several charities, which keep them traveling. They were in Denver for a ball benefiting Junior Diabetes, then they headed for Indianapolis for a Planned Parenthood fundraiser.

The weekend after that, they were in Dallas for the March of Dimes celebrity cook-off. In the works is a third trip to Africa for World Vision.

COMMERCIAL BITS — John Hillerman, of "Magnum, P.I.," has just been signed to do macadamia nut commercials. Of course, they will be filmed in Hawaii.

HONORED — Co-hosts of the fifth annual Youth in Film Awards, which will be held Dec. 4 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles, will be Kim Fields ("Facts of Life") and Glenn Scarpelli, ("Jennifer Slept Here"). This pair also co-hosted the awards last year.

TEACHER, TEACHER — Devon Ericson has just completed a five-hour ABC TV movie, "The Mystic Warrior." When she is not acting, she can be found in San Diego teaching acting at a school she owns with her mother.

TRUE CONFESSION — Robert Guillaume, who stars as "Benson," says he never explored how far he might have gone as a classical singer.

Guillaume was a choirboy and performed in school musicals but left voice training for courses in business administration at St. Louis University. He offers this honest assessment:

"I think about what could have happened had I stayed with classical music, but I don't agonize over it anymore. I was always blessed with a strong, healthy voice and could have become very good at it, but I must admit I didn't have the proper temperament for it.

"It would have taken tenacity and incredible technique for me to have become a black tenor at the Metropolitan Opera, but I was too quick-tempered and immature to go through with it. That temper has been my one regret."
