DR. HARTER'S (Endorsed and recommended by the medical profession, for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, Nervous Prostration, and Convalescence from Fevers, &c.)

GENTLEMEN: I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the Tonic. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the Tonic has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. J. P. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

(The Iron Tonic is a preparation of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark, and Phosphates, associated with the Vegetable Aromatics. It serves every purpose where a Tonic is necessary.) IRON TONIC.

PRICKLY ASH

BITTERS
The majority of the ills of the human body arise from a derangement of the Liver, affecting both the stomach and bowels. In order to effect a cure, it is necessary to remove the cause. Irregular and Sluggish action of the Bowels, Headache, Sickness at the Stomach, Pain in the Back and Loins, etc., indicate that the Liver is at fault, and that nature requires assistance to enable this organ to throw off impurities.
Prickly Ash Bitters are especially compounded for this purpose. They are mild in their action and effective as a cure; are pleasant to the taste and taken easily by both children and adults. Taken according to directions, they are a safe and pleasant cure for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Habitual Constipation, Diseased Kidneys, etc., etc. As a Blood Purifier they are superior to any other medicine; cleansing the system thoroughly, and imparting new life and energy to the invalid. It is a medicine and not an intoxicating beverage.
ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR PRICKLY ASH BITTERS, and take no other. PRICE, $1.00 per Bottle.

FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY AND SPERMATORRHŒA.
A valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, an entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and exerting its specific influence on the Seminal Vesicles, Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostate Gland, and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, and does not interfere with the ordinary pursuits of life; it is quickly dissolved and soon absorbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organizations wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the system, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Dimness of Sight, Nervous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, etc., etc., and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has stood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with but little if any permanent good. There is no Nonsense about this Preparation. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction. During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble, that is well known to be the cause of untold misery to so many, and upon whom quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big fees. The Remedy is put up in neat boxes, of three sizes. No. 1, (enough to last a month,) $3; No. 2, (sufficient to effect a permanent cure, unless in severe cases,) $5; No. 3, (lasting over three months, will stop emissions and restore vigor in the worst cases,) $7. Sent by mail, sealed, in plain wrappers. Full DIRECTIONS for using will accompany EACH BOX.
Send for Sealed Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations and Testimony, which will convince the most skeptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sold ONLY by

"NOW I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP."

When fades the last faint ray
Of the rosy tinted day,
There gently steals a solemn thrill
Through the evening air so still,
As from each hearthstone, far or near,
Rise the voices of children clear,
As in their perfect trust they say,
While from their noisy sports they stray,
And twinkling stars in wonder peep;
"Now I lay me down to sleep."

Not alone for childhood fair
Is meant this simple prayer;
But even to manly strength and prime
Shall come at last a needful time,
When, 'mid life's battle's sudden gloom,
He hears the nearer step of doom,
And though strong with Samson's power,
He knows the coming of that hour,
And repeats in tones more deep:
"I pray the Lord my soul to keep."

When the form that's now so proud
Shall with age be lowly bowed;
When the hair, now black as night,
Shall with winter snows be white;
When the head slow time is keeping
To the eyes with sorrow weeping,
And vainly tries to call the past,
Slipping from its grasp at last—
Then faintly from the lips shall break:
"If I should die before I wake."

Not for a little childish dream
Should be told this simple theme;
Not alone for quiet and calm,
But the bivouac and fierce alarm;
When dangers round about us swell,
As when peace and plenty dwell,
From age and youth and manhood's prime,
At life's closing evening time,
In accents soft and low should break:
"I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to take."

ONE WAY OF LOVE.

She was a clerk in the Treasury at Washington, on a salary of nine hundred dollars a year; he was in the Post-office, enjoying the privileges afforded by an income of twelve hundred. Once in a while there was a holiday, when they would take the boat down to Mount Vernon, if it was warm, and spread their luncheon in the shade of its historic trees and patronize nature as successfully as if they were nabobs. Sometimes they had tickets given them for a comedy or tragedy, when they laughed or cried with the discernment of millionaires and the old families. On Sunday mornings they sang in a choir, and walked out to Long Bridge later in the day, or strolled in the Capitol grounds and surprised the first violet in its hiding place. Helen's landlady told every new boarder that Mr. Van Vleck "was going with" Miss Hildreth, but Miss Helen always protested that he was merely a friend, that they were neighbors at home, and had gone to school together when they were in their pinafores; and the landlady always sniffed when she remarked: "If he's nothing but a friend I should think there'd be a secession of his love-making sooner or later."

One day when they were rambling about Mount Vernon together Helen fell into a romancing vein. "Suppose this is my country seat," said she, "and I have furnished it in the Queen Anne style, and I'm entertaining the creme de la creme, just as they do in novels"—

"A sort of Lady Geraldine—and I am the poor poet, eh?"

"All but the poetry," mocked Helen.

"Now suppose this is my manor-house," suggested Theodore, "furnished in the renaissance, let us say—I'm making great demands on your imagination—and I'm entertaining all the swells. I've lured you here on the pretext of looking for a four-leafed clover, but really to ask if you will share my magnificence with me; what should you say?"

"I should put my lessons in gymnastics into use and jump at the chance."

"And if I should ask instead,
'Come share my cottage, gentle maid?'"

"Don't?" cried Helen.

He looked at her a little blankly.

"You don't mean that you care so little for me?"

"I don't mean anything. Don't let us talk about marrying and giving in marriage; we are happy enough as we are."

"But if I don't marry you some other fellow will!"

"Nonsense; penniless girls are a drug in the market. I've seen misery enough from marrying on a small salary; I've seen people living in two rooms, on 'water and a crust,' so to speak, doing their own work, with no pleasures and no society, and no hope of amendment; people who thought love would tide them over all the quicksands—and presently the hallucination wore off, but the quicksands remained; reproaches set in; she grew bitter and unlovely, and he morose and neglectful—"

"Then you think love an hallucination?"

"I think marriage is a mistake on twelve hundred a year. If I became dowdy and hadn't time to cultivate a taste for æsthetics or whatever was the fashionable craze, and grew jaded and spiritless with the uncongenial task of washing pots and kettles and stewing over a range, and if nobody turned to look after me as I passed, one day you would find yourself disenchanted. Then, supposing the new Administration should push you out of office, even for a month, or you should fall ill? No, we are happy enough just as we are; don't let us discuss marriage: let us wait, like Mr. Micawber, till something turns up."

And so Van Vleck waited. Perhaps he was disappointed in Helen's views, but he refused to confess it even to himself; all women felt so, he supposed, cared more for shadow than substance, or mistook the one for the other; it was their poetic temperament which made poverty hateful to them and splendor their natural atmosphere, and he applied himself more diligently than ever to his idea, working far into the night at times.

"You were not at the President's last evening," one of his fellow-clerks said to him later.

"I? No; I should think not."

"But Miss Hildreth was there; she and Mr. Sterling, M. C., were hand in glove. I heard him ask her to go and hear 'Lohengrin' to-morrow night."

"Mr. Sterling is in luck," was all Van Vleck ventured to say; he did not choose to carry his heart on his sleeve for every clerk to peck at. If Mr. Sterling was fascinated by Helen it surely was no fault of hers; many a man had been bewitched by her before this elderly Congressman, only Theodore forgot that they had all been needy suitors—and as for Helen, he felt as sure of her as of seed time and harvest.

But on one occasion he left his work early and hastened to see her; a cloud of ugly rumors had assailed him and interfered with his tasks; she should brush all the cobwebs out of his heaven. He met her coming down the staircase, in a white evening dress, with flowers in her hand—costly exotics, such as wealthy lovers send their sweethearts, such as he had never dared to buy.

"Where did they come from?" he demanded.

"They grew, I 'spects—like Topsy," answered Helen, laughing uneasily.

"Where did you get them, Helen?"

"You are inquisitive, Mr. Van Vleck. They were sent me."

"By Mr. Sterling?"

"You do credit to your nationality; you're a capital Yankee. Yes, by Mr. Sterling, of course."

"Helen," he cried, beneath his breath —"Helen, are you going to marry Mr. Sterling?"

"I—I believe I am," she said, dropping her eyes.

Theodore never knew exactly how he found his way out of the house; he was vaguely aware of brushing against a stout gentleman in a fur-trimmed ulster, as he shot into the street, of a stately carriage and pair standing at the door, and a dark-browed lady leaning out to look after him.

The next day he resigned his position in the Post-office, drew his savings from the bank and left Washington. It were well, perhaps, if he could put deserts and seas and mountain ranges between Helen and himself. It seemed to him as if the earth had reeled from its orbit, and it required time for him to readjust himself to the situation. His idea was all that was left to him; he put into it all his earnings, he devoted heart and soul to its development, and he finally forgot himself and Helen Hildreth in his work and its success.

It was seven or eight years later that they met, oddly enough, on the Mount Vernon boat. Her vivacity was no longer the spontaneous effervescence of youth and hope; she was a trifle passee, perhaps.

"Wealth and splendor have not proved all her fancy painted them," he thought, as their eyes met. "Mr. Van Vleck," she cried, "who would have dreamed of meeting you here!" Was the pleasure which brightened her eyes and deepened her somewhat exaggerated dimples a reminiscence of her power, or was Mrs. Sterling a married flirt, he wondered. "We have heard of you often, to be sure," she purred. "The newspapers have not been silent concerning you and your great invention. I've always felt an ownership in that invention, do you know? I felt as if I were behind the scenes, let into the secret before the rest of the outside world, when it was only a dream. I've resented every infringement—"

"I am flattered that you remember my small affairs," said Theodore, humbly.

"Remember," she repeated, with a lingering accent, "I have nothing else to do."

"I come down here sometimes," she pursued, after a brief pause, "when we have a holiday, for the sake of auld lang syne, and try to believe I am seven years younger and the world before me where to choose. I like to come when the peach trees are in bloom, as they were that day when we built our castles in the air. Mine have crumbled into dust."

"Mrs. Sterling, I am sorry to hear you speak so."

She stared at him an instant, blushed and dropped her eyes in the old effective way. "Haven't you heard," she said, "I didn't marry Mr. Sterling."

Perhaps she expected Theodore to beam with sudden happiness and rehearse the old story she had refused to hear once before.

"You left no address, you know," defending herself from the reproaches she anticipated. "Mr. Sterling died before the wedding day was set. I thought you would see it in the newspapers. I am a Treasury girl yet, Theodore. Do you know that I sometimes wish that I had never seen Mr. Sterling?"

Only the Fates know what Van Vleck would have answered, but just at that moment a bit of crepe lisse floated into their neighborhood and a voice like a summer brook cried: "Oh, my veil, Theodore!" Theodore put out a hand, but it eluded him; Helen made a quick movement and caught it on the wing.

"Let me introduce you to Mrs. Van Vleck, Miss Hildreth," he said. "She would like to thank you."—Mary N. Prescott, in Our Continent.

A Little Baby's Big Adventure.

The beautiful little girl of Conductor W. B. Ward, now about eighteen months of age, was playing in the yard of his new residence, in Waycross, Ga., where a well had just been dug but not curbed at the top, as is usual, but had a lot of planks put over it, which the little child managed by some means to move, and in so doing fell into the well, there being a quantity of water at the bottom. The great mystery is why the child was not drowned. Mrs. Ward, hearing its screams, ran to the well, but to behold her darling little one sink out of her sight with her head downward. She at once gave the alarm, when Mr. W. T. Murrow went with great haste to her assistance, and in removing the cover so that he could descend, dropped several short pieces of scantling into the water, which, possibly, caused the child once more to rise to the surface, when he grabbed hold of one of its little feet and brought it out. After a short time it was resuscitated.—Waycross Reporter.

—The Czar of Russia doesn't have as good a time as an ordinary tramp. He is so afraid of being poisoned that his appetite can't be said to be of the best, and as for sudden explosives, he is on the lookout for them all the time. Very naturally he wants to be crowned, but he doesn't dare to have the coronation services, lest a few dynamite cartridges be introduced as a pleasant surprise. He can't travel on the railroad, because there is a degree of uncertainty about his reaching his destination which disturbs his mind. He would rather be a dog and bay the moon than such a Russian. He wants to live, but the people seem determined that he shall go to heaven. The school boy who sits down on a bent pin is in bliss when compared with this man, who is afraid lest at any moment his crown may be blown off his head or his head blown off from his crown.—*N. Y. —A miller in Alsace, resorted to the use of lead to fill up open spaces in his burr, and the result was that many of his customers showed decided symptoms of lead poisoning. It has been demonstrated time and time again that lead can not be used for this purpose with impunity.

—A scientific writer says: All portions of oleander are deadly. A very small quantity of the leaves has been known to kill a horse. The flowers have produced death in those persons who have carelessly picked and eaten them. The branches, divested of their bark, and used as skewers, have poisoned the meat roasted on them and killed seven out of twelve people who partook of it.

—In selecting a pump care should be taken to have it of a much larger capacity than that needed to supply the boiler, as there are many things which affect the workings of a pump, such as defective suction pipes, leaky valves, etc. It is the practice of most manufacturers to give the capacity of their pumps in gallons of water delivered per minute, from which it is easy to select a suitable size, but the speed given in the tables at which the pump is to run is generally faster than that at which it is desirable to run them.

—A singular magnetic property of some specimens of meteoric iron obtained in Brazil recently has been observed. Small detached fragments, not weighing more than 0.1 to 0.5 grains, were very weakly affected by a magnet, but on being flattened on a piece of steel with a steel hammer they became very sensitive to it. Again, by heating red hot the particles were made to be still more easily attracted than by flattening. The meteoric iron presenting these peculiar characteristics contains of iron sixty-six parts and of nickel thirty-four.—N. Y. Sun.

—That high astronomical authority, the Providence Journal, speaking of the retrograde movement of the equinoctial points, says: "This movement produces some curious results. It gives a constant increase to the longitude of the stars, and renders necessary a change in celestial charts as often as once in fifty years, to exhibit their altered position. Thus the stars that were once in the sign Aries are now in Taurus; those that were in Taurus are now in Gemini, and so on. The polar star changes many times during one of these long circuits; for to whatever point of the heavens the poles of the earth point, the star nearest will be the polar star for the time. Thus Caph in Cassiopea was thousands of years ago the polar star, and twelve thousand years hence the brilliant Vega in Lyra will fill the honorable celestial office."

GRANDPAPA'S SPECTACLES.

Grandpapa's spectacles cannot be found;
He has searched all the rooms, high and low, round and round;
Now he call to the young ones, and what does he say?
"Two pence for the child who will find them to-day."
Then Harry and Nellie and Edward all ran,
And a most thorough hunt for the glasses began;
And dear little Nell, in her generous way,
Said: "I'll look for them, grandpa, without any pay!"
All through the big Bible she searches with care,
That lies on the table by grandpapa's chair;
They feel in his pockets, they peep in his hat,
They pull out the sofa, they shake out the mat;
Then down on all fours, like two good-natured bears,
Go Harry and Ned, under tables and chairs;
Till, quite out of breath, Ned is heard to declare
He believes those glasses are not anywhere.
But Nellie, who, leaning on grandpapa's knee,
Was thinking most earnestly where they could be,
Looked suddenly up in the kind, faded eyes,
And her shining brown ones grew big with surprise;
She clapped both her hands; all her dimples came out;
She turned to the boys with a bright, roguish shout:
"You may leave off your looking, both Harry and Ned,
For there are the glasses on grandpapa's head!"

MEDDLESOME MOLLIE.

Mollie never saw anything in the way of closet, cupboard, box, bundle, parcel, package or letter, but what her prying eyes were at once concerned in. And it was well if her mischievous fingers were not very soon concerned in it, too.

She was, in most things, a very good little girl, but it is really surprising to see how many grave faults will spring from a habit, which, perhaps, might not be called sinful in itself. Disobedience came of it, for she was often led into meddling with things her mother had forbidden her to touch. Then to hide what she had been doing, she would sometimes be tempted to tell a lie.

Her mother often talked to her about the meanness of trying to spy into the affairs of other people. Mollie would promise to give up this bad habit, but forgot all her good resolutions at sight of the first thing which seemed in any way to be hidden from her. She could not rest till it was found out, and her mother began to fear it would take some very severe lesson to cure her. And she was not at all sorry when the little lassie got herself into a scrape which was so ridiculous and so mortifying that she began to think that the best work in the world for little girls is minding their own business.

One Saturday morning her mother, before going out, suggested to Mollie, that, as she was going visiting in the afternoon, it would be well for her to do her practicing and weed her little garden in the morning. Miss Mollie did not feel in a mood for work, and wandered idly into her mother's room. She opened the upper drawer of the bureau.

"Ah!" she exclaimed, in great pleasure, "that must be the new sash mother promised me. I am to wear it this afternoon. What a beauty!"

She looked with delight at the lovely pale blue, with its delicate brocading of moss rosebuds. She tried it on, making a very poor attempt at a big bow at the back, and tried to get a view of it in the glass. Not succeeding very well, she laid the sash on the bureau, and turned her attention to a case of perfumery. She put some from each bottle on her handkerchief, and set them loosely on the bureau, not troubling herself to put them back in the case.

Then she took up a bottle that stood behind the glass and, pulling out the cork, took a good smell. It almost knocked her down, and made the tears run from her eyes, for it was the strongest ammonia. Hastily setting it down, she knocked over two of the perfume bottles, and alas! they broke on the marble slab, and the perfume splashed over, and ran under the beautiful sash.

She gazed in dismay as soon as she could see anything. She carried it to the window and hung it in the sunshine to dry—then tried to clean up things on the bureau. While doing this she spied a bottle she had never seen before.

"Hair-oil!" she said to herself. "Now I can put some on my hair. Mamma never lets me have any—now I'll have plenty."

She did take plenty. She was proud of her hair. It was long and wavy and glossy. She daubed and smeared the oil over it without stint and rubbed it in well. It did not make her hair quite so soft and shiny as she expected it would, but she forgot this for a while as she went to look if the sash were dry. It was, but it was sad to see the streaks and blotches, where the crimson and green of the rosebuds had "run" into the pale blue ground.

She folded and laid it back in her mother's drawer, then went to her own room, for she did not feel like seeing her just then.

Dinner-time came. The bell rang and rang again, but no Mollie appeared. Her mother sent a servant to her room to desire she would come down at once. And soon at the dining-room door stood a forlorn figure with woeful face and tear-swollen eyes, and—such hair.

"What's the matter with your hair, my child?" cried her mother, in astonishment and alarm.

"Gr-r-r-racious!!" exclaimed her elder brother.

"Je-whillikins!!!" shouted her younger brother.

No wonder. Her hair hung in stiff strings and sticks, looking as if it were made of split shingles:

"What have you been doing to yourself?" asked mamma.

"I—I oiled it with the hair-oil on your bureau, mamma."

"I have no hair-oil. Go and bring what you have been using." She came and showed it—it was a bottle of Prepared Glue.

The boys gave a great shout of laughter, and thought it the best joke they had ever heard. But mamma took her poor little girl to her room and talked long and loving with her.

The pretty hair was all cut off so close that Mollie thought herself a perfect fright. But every time she looked in the glass, and very often besides, she remembered that it was her ugly trick of meddling that had caused her so much shame and vexation, and made up her mind she would persevere in curing herself of such an odious fault.

The "Correction" Box.

Yesterday morning a missionary man came to our Sunday-school and told us all about the little heathen. They don't have to be dressed up, nor learn the catechism, nor sew patchwork, nor behave, nor do anything disagreeable. And they don't know the value of money; they'd a great deal rather have a bright button than a gold dollar.

In the afternoon, when we were ready for church, mother gave us each a five-cent piece. "That's to put in the correction box," says she. "The missionary is going to preach, and your father and I want you to give him something for the heathen."

On the way to church Johnny said: "It isn't the least use to send five centses to the heathen. They'd rather have a bright button than a gold dollar, and of course they wouldn't care about five cents. And there's no candy in heathenland, so what do they want of money, anyhow?"

Then I said: "If I only had my button-string, we could each give a button and spend the five centses for candy, and so we'd be pleased all 'round." Johnny said that was a good idea: and "there's a button loose on my jacket this minute; and if I can twist off another before the correction box comes 'round I'll give it to you, Kitty."

I thought it was a lovely plan, for Johnny's buttons are just beauties. I heard mother tell sister Em that they cost two dollars a dozen. They look like gold. But when we got to church, they made me go into the pew first, and father put Johnny beside him next the door, so's we couldn't talk.

The missionary talked a long time, and then they sang "Greenland's Icy Mountains," and then they went 'round with the correction boxes. Father takes one of them, and they're on long sticks like a corn popper, and deep, so't other folks can't see what you put in. I had to drop in my five cents, and then mother and Em put in their money, and last of all Johnny put in his button. He held his hand close to the box when he did it, and then he looked at me behind the others, and nodded, so I'd know he had his five cents all safe.

This morning we bought five lovely squares of taffy. We didn't have time to eat it before school, and when we were going home, Johnny said: "Let us wait till after dinner, and then give every body a piece; and then I'll tell father what the missionary said, and may be after this he'll give buttons, and it'll save him a great deal of money."

So we waited, and after dinner, just as we took out the candy to divide it, father pulled something bright out of his pocket, and rolled it across the table to mother. She thought it was money, and said: "Just what I wanted!" But it wasn't money; it was a brass button.

"How did you come by this?" said she.

"I found it in the correction box, yesterday afternoon," said father. "Some little rascal put it in, I suppose, and spent his money for candy, and whoever he is, he ought to have a wholesome lesson. If he was my son——"

And then mother said: "Why, it is just like Johnny's buttons!" And sister Em said: "Well, there's one gone off his Sunday jacket. I noticed it this morning, and meant to speak about it."

Everybody looked at us. Father asked what we had in that paper, and "John, is this your button?" And what could we say but yes? They called us unhappy children, and sent us upstairs.

We've both had a wholesome lesson. I had one 'cause they said I put it into Johnny's head. For two weeks, father is going to put our pennies away for the heathen, to make us remember.

Johnny says he wishes he was a heathen.—Ada Neyl, in St. Nicholas.

Coincidences.

Seven young ladies were perceived in the car, of whom not one had both gloves on, and none were wholly bare-handed. Of these, four had gloves on their right hands, and three on their left, and in every instance the ungloved hand lay in the lap above the other. All the seven bare hands had diamond rings upon them, and whenever any attentions were needed by the hair or raiment of the ladies, in every instance the ungloved hand was employed to bestow them, and in the necessary movements the stones flashed and glittered very much. And when, as happened in process of time, the seven young ladies left the car, one after the other, four of them waved their left hands to the conductor to direct him to stop, and the other three agitated their right hands, and again the rings sparkled quite copiously. All of which was very curious and interesting to the scientific mind.—Boston Journal.

—Prof. Whitney does not lay any weight on the removal of forests as a cause of the dryness and desolation of former fertile and populous regions of the earth. He admits that the greater proportion of land to water in late geological eras may have a little to do with the decreased rain-fall; but he attributes the diminished precipitation mainly to a lowering of the intensity of solar radiation during geological time.—Chicago Journal.

—A New York butter and egg firm has got into trouble through counting its eggs before they were laid. It calculated on a big egg crop, and contracted to deliver 100,000 dozen eggs at 14½, 16 and 16¼ cents per dozen. But the weather went back on the hens, the hens went back on the eggs and the firm went back on its contract. Now all parties are l(a)ying around cackling about the weather.—N. Y. Graphic.

SATURDAY, JULY 1, 1882.

THE freight depot at Fort Worth was burned down last night. We did not learn the cause or what the losses were.

GUITEAU, the angel-maker, has gone to give an account of himself to his maker. We say angel-maker, for just before his bullet struck our president, Garfield, according to the press accounts, was a veritable political trickster, while just afterward no laudations were flattering enough to do him justice. Was there ever another such a sudden conversion?

Since the return of the editor of the Baird CLARENDON, there has been little in that paper but "Our trip to California.—Democrat-Advance.

That can hardly be so, for, in the issue of the Democrat-Advance in which the above appears we see three other items taken from the CLARENDON. But admitting the above to be true, the readers of the CLARENDON are just so much ahead of those of the D.-A. for they can find one interesting feature in the CLARENDON.

Guiteau's "Removal."

Yesterday at precisely 12:46 p. m. Guiteau paid the last penalty to the law for the killing of President Garfield. The whole circumstance of the assassination and trial is still too vivid in the minds of the people to require reverting to it again; but he is gone now, and the country is satisfied. Had our own feelings been consulted we should have consigned him to a life of servitude at hard labor in the penitentiary, believing that to be the severer and the more just punishment of the two; but the people clamored for his blood and that thirst for vengeance has been appeased. We predict that the time will come when as much regret will be felt over this hanging as is now entertained over the fate of Mrs. Surratt. Many people admit freely that he was crazy, but they said "hang him anyhow, it's the surest way of getting rid of murderers." But is that right, or is it law? There is no doubt, in our mind, that he was insane, but it is hard to convince a prejudiced mind of this fact. He was methodical in his insanity, it is true, but are there not thousands of instances recorded where inmates of insane asylums have been even more methodical in their calculations and deliberations in "removing" persons whom they considered as standing in their way. While Guiteau committed an atrocious, a deep dyed, villainous deed, we cannot think that any sane man with no more motives than those which prompted him could be guilty of a deed so vile. He is gone, now, to meet the higher tribunal and is beyond the judgement of mortal man, where he will receive the punisment he deserves.

Sheep Manure 23c. per Pound.

While sauntering down street the other day we stepped into the old drug store building of West & Fraser which is now being used by our enterprising wool buyers, Wright & Seay, as a wool depot. We saw here both of these proprietors with their sleeves rolled up and busy as bees handling wool—picking it over and re-sacking. They pointed to a large pile of sheep manure, tags and little lumps of sheep hair lying in one corner and they said they had just paid twenty-three cents per pound for it, but they had concluded not to ship it to Boston for freights were too high This was in a lot of wool they had bought by sample and gave the best market price for it, and when they came to examine it they found it in such a filthy condition that it was deemed necessary to sort it and re-sack the whole of it as they could not afford to pay two cents per pound freight, and then pay parties in Boston to pick it over.

Now let us say a word to sheepmen. Wool, as defined by Webster, means "that soft, curled, or crisped specie of hair which grows on sheep and some other animals, and which in fineness sometimes approaches to fur; chiefly applied to the fleecy coat of the sheep, which constitutes a most essential material of clothing in all cold and temperate climates." When a dealer pays the highest market price for this fleecy staple he does not calculate upon paying from twenty to twenty-six cents per pound for manure. In the pile which we refer to we saw many "tag locks" weighing all the way from three or four ounces to two pounds. Now a producer may cheat a dealer in a few instances in this way, but it is not legitimate trade, and we should value a man's reputation worth something to him. We do not think there is even policy in sending wool to market in this way. If your wool is clean and in a good marketable condition it is worth several cents more per pound than when it is mixed with tag locks, yard manure and other trash. The cleaner and the better the condition in which wool is brought to market, the better will be the price realized. Produce a good article and bring it to market in a good condition and it will surely pay in the end.

OUR TRIP TO AND ON THE PACIFIC.

What We Saw in West Texas, Mexico, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Oregon, Washington Territory and Victoria, on Vancouver's Island.

In our last we said we would give our readers some information regarding New Tacoma, the terminus of the Northern Pacific railroad on Puget Sound. It is situated on an arm of Puget Sound, called Commencement Bay, near the mouth of the Puyallup river. The greater part of the town is built upon a side hill and the road in reaching it necessarily makes quite a curve and a very heavy grade. The train runs through the upper part of town where there is a station, or rather, a platform, but the train only stops long enough to give the impression that they are going to stop and about the time a passenger gets out of his seat and grabs his valise it moves off on its way down towards the wharf, which is the regular station. Here we notice several steamers, some being repaired and others discharging and loading freight. There is a large wharf here with a number of railroad tracks upon it, also a large warehouse and a commodious hotel. A short distance down the bay is the coal wharf, where we see several vessels loading coal for the San Francisco market. Still further down the bay is the town of Old Tacoma, which has retrograded instead of advanced within the past eight or nine years. Here is located the large mill owned by Hanson & Ackerson of San Francisco. This is one of the best mills on the Sound, of which there are quite a number, and when the improvements which are now under construction are completed it is claimed it will be the largest mill in the world. Here we noticed four large vessels loading lumber. Two of them are flying the English flag and two are American ships engaged in the local trade between here and San Francisco. The export of lumber from Puget Sound for a year is something enormous. It is, as yet, the principle article of export from this territory, hence, the trade is to Washington what the cattle trade is to Texas, and is now, just about as booming. This means to Washington employment to a great many loggers at good wages, ready sale at handsome profits of large amounts of lumber, and general prosperity. Saw logs were considered as selling at good prices several years ago when they brought $4.50 per thousand feet, while now they are selling as high as $7.00. While the demand is enormous the supply will be nearly equal, unless as is the case this year the unusually large demand increases so rapidly that loggers are not prepared to meet it. To give our readers a slight idea of this increase of business we will state that one year ago there were on the Skagit river two logging camps, while now there are twenty with 10,000,000 feet of logs on hand at the opening of the season. This is only a drop in the bucket as compared with the general logging business of Puget Sound. To show the prices paid at these camps we give this item from that old reliable source, the Olympia Transcript. E. T. Gunn, its editor, is a truthful man and never hangs or misses fire; he is a son of a Gunn, but that is a credit to him.

"Logs still range in price from $6 to $6.50 for extra good, and $7 for long timber, per thousand. From $150 to $200 are now paid for work oxen, from $50 to $53 for California ground feed, from $38 to $40 for Puget Sound ground feed, and from $14 to $16 for hay. Men's wages range from $50 to $60 and often $70 per month."

But to return to Tacoma. New Tacoma is the county seat of Pierce county. As we said last week, this county did have a hard name in the past, but that lawless element has long since dropped into oblivion and now the county is settled with a law abiding, energetic and prosperous class of people. Two years ago the county was in debt $9,000 with her warrants below par, and to-day she is out of debt with $300,000 worth of property more upon her assessment rolls than in 1881. This shows what good management will do in the matter of county finances.

In leaving the wharf to go up town (in this case it is emphatically up, for it is up a hill a quarter of a mile long) after getting to the top the main streets run parallel with the hill and are comparatively level. The town is about a mile long and extends far up the hill where the large fir trees are fast disappearing and giving way to fine and comfortable dwellings and large, substantial business houses. Tacoma has long been at a comparative stand still, Macawber like, waiting for something to turn up; but she has awakened from her lethargy and arisen in her might and gone to work to do something. There are now over fifty houses under contract and were it not for the scarcity of lumber (although she has a large mill) there would be more. The railroad company have very extensive car manufacturing shops here and they are turning out a large amount of railroad cars and other work.

She has a splendid harbor sufficient to float the navies of the world, a large commodious wharf and a smaller one containing the coal bunkers. She has two railroads—the N. P. R. R. and the Tacoma & Puyallup road running to Carbonade, the extensive coal mines up the Puyallup valley, which is carrying down immense quantities of coal. The population of New Tacoma is now about $2,500 and is rapidly increasing. Who can tell but that in the near future this young city may yet prove to be a formidable rival to San Francisco herself. Let the Northern Pacific railroad be completed and there will be such a growth take place on Puget Sound as history never saw. We will now quote from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer a description of Puget Sound which we think is about correct except the picture at the close, which is somewhat overdrawn:

"A good many not very well read persons in the east have heard of Puget Sound, but they have not heard enough or cannot recall enough to give them a very accurate idea concerning it. Some imagine it to be a bay of ten or fifteen miles depth, setting back from the ocean. Others have a vague extravagant idea of its immensity, believing it to be only a little smaller than the Gulf of Mexico, Mediterranean Sea or Hudson Bay. Still others think it the name of a town.

Puget Sound, as originally named and described on the earlier maps, comprised only those waters above Point Defiance, or from where is now the town of Tacoma south to the head of what was then regarded as a system of waters, including sounds, bays, straits, gulfs, inlets, etc. North of this earlier Puget Sound was Admiralty Inlet, Hood's Canal, Possession Sound, Rosario and Fuca Straits, the Gulf of Georgia, etc. Now, by the wider acceptance of the name, Puget Sound is considered as including all the waters in the group or body south of the British line, and as so considered we will briefly attempt its description.

It is an arm of the sea extending inland from the Pacific ocean about two hundred miles; first in an easterly direction about one hundred miles, and then in a southerly direction one hundred miles further. These waters ramify the country in many directions, there being indentation here, there and everywhere. The Straits of Fuca is about ninety miles long, and from twelve miles in width at its mouth to thirty miles in width at the beginning of the Sound proper, near Port Townsend. Rosario Strait and Canal de Haro are bodies of water thirty miles long and three to ten miles wide, connecting the Strait of Fuca with the Gulf of Georgia, which (in British Columbia) separates the island of Vancouver—two hundred and fifty miles long from the mainland, the strait and canal named being on either side of the San Juan group of islands. Puget Sound, from Olympia to the strait at Port Townsend, is about one hundred miles in length, but to the Gulf of Georgia, near our northern boundary, following the east shore, it is one hundred and fifty miles long. One of its principal divisions is Hood's Canal, sixty-five miles long and three miles wide. Bellingham Bay, sixteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, and located in the extreme north, is the largest bay. Other bays are those of Port Angeles, Port Discovery, Port Townsend, Port Susan, Seattle, Tacoma, Steilacoom, Olympia, Port Orchard, Port Gamble, Padilla, etc. A glance at the map will show that all these bays, straits, gulfs and a dozen large inlets, are connected by passages of varying widths and lengths, several being of only a few hundred yards in width and others of three or four miles.

The whole of this collection of waters is deep, averaging thirty fathoms, the only exceptions being at the heads of bays into which streams of water flow, forming at their mouths the deltas to be found under like circumstances all over the globe. Not only is the depth all that can be desired for the purpose of navigation, but there is a freedom from rocks and bars that commends the Sound most highly to shipowners and masters, and for all the purposes of commerce. The fact is that Puget Sound is a harbor from end to end, and fifty years hence, when we have three or four million people, it will be so regarded and used. Not only is Puget Sound blessed as above described, but there is an immunity from other dangers seldom to be found on like bodies of water, in the absence of fogs and heavy gales. We do not mean an entire absence, but such a presence of fog and wind as to interfere with moving vessels in only the slightest degree.

Puget Sound is dotted with islands from end to end. The principal one is Whidby, forty miles long and from three to eight miles wide. Harstsein, Vashon, Brainbridge, Camano, Fidalgo, Lopaz, Orcas and San Juan islands are each from ten to sixteen miles long. The islands of less than ten miles in length, and yet large enough to inhabit, must be close to a hundred in number. These islands are generally of great attraction, and favored above the mainland in many respects. The soil is generally good and fine farming is carried on. They are also well timbered and watered, and many valuable minerals are to be found upon them. They further afford excellent stations for fisheries. It is enough to say of these islands, in conclusion, that people who live upon them praise them in the highest manner and assert their preference for them over any and all other parts of the country.

The rivers emptying into Puget Sound are the Deschutes, the Nisqually, the Puyallup, the White, the Snohomish, and Snoqualmie, the Stilliguamish, the Skagit, the Nootsnack, the Skokomish and many other streams. These rivers are not all navigable, but those that are have a combined length available for the ordinary stern wheel steamboat of over two hundred miles. Of these rivers the chief is the Skagit, about one hundred and fifty miles long, eighty of which can be ascended by steamers. The Dawamish and its feeder, the White river, are navigable forty miles, and so are Snohomish and its feeder, the Snoqualmic. After these streams the Nootsack comes with thirty miles available for steamboats. On several of the Puget Sound streams are great water powers, notably Whatcom creek and the Deschutes river, and on others are magnificent falls, the grandest being the Snoqualmic, where the whole river makes a single leap of 270 feet.

This section is also blessed with scores of lakes of fresh water, spread all over the country, and of every dimension, from that of the pond up, the largest being Lake Washington, two miles back of Seattle, which is thirty miles long and from two to five miles wide. Lake Samamish is the next largest, Whatcom the third and Union the fourth. In the matter of lakes we have all that can be desired.

The entire region between the Cascade mountains on the east and the Coast range on the west, covering two and a half degrees of latitude, is known as Puget Sound, though properly speaking that title applies to the water alone. This covers an area of 10,000 square mile, being about 150 miles long by 60 and 70 miles wide. This little spot, (about as big as the State of Massachusetts) we believe the most favored on the globe. No other like part has inland waters the equal of those described in the foregoing. No other part has a more equable and healthfull climate. No other part has timber at all comparable with the timber of Puget Sound, and no other part can excel this in fertillity of soil, in mineral resources, and in general capabilities.

Some of these days, and the beginning of that time is not more than ten years off, there will be a quickening, a development, and a growth right here more astonishing than anything yet seen at Chicago, New York, Glasgow or Melbourne, the end of which will not be until Puget Sound is as noted and important in the commercial world as London itself."

The following items we clip from the Transcript, which we give thinking they may interest our readers:

"It is believed that there are 5000 elk ranging on the headwaters of the streams and tributaries heading up in the Olympic range and putting into Gray's Harbor. Fish, both salt and fresh water, are abundant. It is simply a paradise for sportsmen."

"The thirty-sixth ocean-going sail vessel built by Hall Bros. on Puget Sound was launched at Port Blakely this evening and named the John Smith. She is a barkentine and will be owned in San Francisco and commanded by Captain Kastel."

"McReavy Bros. have opened a logging railroad on Hood's Canal costing $10,000. The locomotive will cost $5,000 more. It taps a 4,000 acre tract of fine timber, from which 30,000 to 50,000 feet can be cut daily for ten years."

"Blackman Bros. have been putting into the water at their Pillchuck camp, Snohomish county, some large logs of late. Last week three fir trees were cut, which, after being sawed into logs and scaled, were found to contain 38,000 feet of lumber. One scaled 14,000 and the others 12,000 each."

"Last Saturday the Port Blakely mill really eclipsed itself. In the 12 hours it turned out 190,000 feet of merchantable lumber. During the week ending on that day the mill cut a little less than one million feet of lumber."

"The cut of the sawmill at Utsalady is from 90,000 to 100,000 per day. Not long since the largest cut on record was made, consisting of 108,000 feet of marketable lumber."

"J. C. Smith, of Walla Walla, sheared last week 2460 pounds of fine, clean wool off 160 fine graded sheep, being 15 1-2 pounds per head, which is the best yield we ever heard of in this country."

"There are 22 vessels chartered by the N. P. R. R. to bring railroad material from New York to New Tacoma."

[Concluded next week.]

McCabe's Pictorial History of the World.

This book, from the first page to the last, is interesting and instructive. We never remember to have seen a book that so completely fills the wants of the general reader, as this History. It takes up each nation separately and relates its history down to the present time. The History of Greece, Rome, the nations of Europe, America, all are found in its pages. To all who wish to study the history of the various nations of ancient and modern times, without delving into hundreds of volumes, it is invaluable, for it contains the pith of hundreds of histories. Especially to the young is this book a treasure, and we trust that every one of our readers will subscribe for the book, for we not only recommend it, but urge all to have it in their possession.—Chicago Journal.

Over The State.

Texas leads the country this year with 731 miles of new track, followed by Colorado with 253, Indiana with 212, Iowa with 207, and Ohio with 208.

A suit is threatened to test the validity of the Confederate land scrip of Texas, upon the ground that the act under which the scrip was issued is in violation of the constitution of the United States.

A negro at Lampasas, while being drawn up from a well, fell a distance of fifteen feet, fracturing his skull. It is thought he entered the well before the smoke from a blast had cleared off and was suffocated.

During Tuesday's fight at Llano a stray shot passed into Colonel Miller's law office, through the plank walls, and missed only a few inches, the head of District Attorney Lessing, who sat at a desk writing.

Although the Texas Pacific railroad west of Weatharford runs through a very sparsely settled country, the company is not able to supply cars to handle the immense amount of freight offered. Thousands of head of cattle and sheep, and immense quantities of wool await shipment all along the line.

Driskil & Day, the Austin, Texas, stockmen, have purchased from the Mexican government a territory of land in old Mexico, a million and a half in extent. They paid 7 1-2 cents an acre for the land, thus securing a territory of 2,344 square miles for $11,250. They will establish an immense cattle ranch upon it. Capt. Hilliard, formerly of St. Louis, has bought 55,000 acres of land, sixty miles west of San Antonio, at 55 cents an acre, for a cattle ranch. These facts will show the extent of the cattle trade in Texas and the impetus which has recently been imparted to it.—Panhandle.

A terrible explosion on the extension of the Galveston, Houston and San Antonio railroad occurred on the 5th inst., in tunnel No. 1. The tunneling from two ends, and 150 kegs of blasting powder were used on the east end for the blast. While the blast was being inserted the sound of picks and drills could be heard from the workmen at the west end but it was not thought possible to injure them. The men on the east end completed their preliminaries and touched off the fuse, leaving the tunnel in haste. A terrific explosion penetrated through to where the men were approaching from the west end, hurling rocks upon them, killing three and badly injuring five others. The two ends of the tunnel thus met over dead bodies. This is the first tunnel ever completed in Texas.

San Antonio special to Galveston News: An Englishman called John Farnhan came to San Antonio on June 2nd, and stayed here at the Alamo house. He left on June 13th and went to work on Gamblar's farm, on the Rosillo. On Saturday last he went out to plow, and stayed out so long they went to look for him. On arriving where he had been plowing they found him lying face downward near the fence, and his horses stood still by him. They left some one near the body, and came to San Antonio to get the resident justices of the peace to hold the inquest. Both of them declined to go, and a justice in the precinct called Gus Schmidt went. It is said a jury of six was impaneled, but the jury was, for some reason, afraid to touch the remains, and they brought in a verdict of died probably from sunstroke, without undressing the man or examining him. When the inquest was over they wanted to drag the remains to a hole to bury him, but this was objected to by some present, and then they got a step-ladder and rolled him on to it, carried him thus to a hole and dumped him in and buried him without any service. This is so heathenish as to be almost unbelievable, but is a fact. Farnhan has a sister living at a place called Woodlawn, near Ballinasloe, Ireland.

Poison of Sheep from Weed.

This is the season of the year when sheep-growers suffer slight losses by death among their flocks from a poisonous weed. One or two sheepmen in Runnels county, we are informed have lost 75 or 100 each. Mr. Sims, of Bustin & Sims, wool-growers and merchants, Concho county, was in town yesterday. He says very few sheep have died this year from their flocks; and he gave us his remedy which he says is sure cure when applied in time. There seems to be two poisonous weeds, one which causes swelling in the face and the other swelling in the stomach. When the sheep appears sick, stupid and swelling in the face and eyes, the animal should be bled in the ear, from the large vein. For the poison which effects the stomach bleed in the mouth. In both cases the animal is very sick and drooping, lags behind the flock, and commences swelling. There are a good number of new men in the sheep business, and we give this hoping it will be of benefit to some who know of no better remedy for the fatal effect of the poisonous weed.—Abilene Reporter.

STOCK OF GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Ever kept in Callahan county.

His stock consists in part of Dry Goods, Groceries, Boots Shoes, Hats, Ready-Made Clothing, Fancy Goods, Notions, Hardware, Farming Implements, Corn, salt, etc., etc.

AND IN FACT EVERYTHING GENERALLY KEPT IN A

First Class Store.

Thankful for the very liberal patronage received heretofore from the people of Callahan and adjoining counties, he will henceforth be better than ever prepared to supply their wants. His long experience in the mercantile business in the West has made him familiar with its requirements.

LOCAL NEWS.

Fifty pounds turnip seed at Turner's drug store. Now is your time to buy.

Full line California canned goods, at Ogle & Son's.

A hog was killed in the railroad yard this morning. Baird could well spare a few more of them.

When you want the best nickel cigar in town, go to Ogle & Son's.

A communication from "Bachelor" was crowded out this week for want of space.

A large stock of flour, meal and corn at Ogle & Son.

Messrs. Donohoe & Heyn have sold all but about 450 head of their sheep.

Messrs. Wright & Seay shipped this week 90 sacks of wool—about 18,000 pounds.

Try a can of the maple syrup at Ogle & Son's.

Mr. T. J. Walls has rented Mrs. O. M. L. Parker's building and opened a laundry. This is a move in the right direction.

Messrs. Donohoe & Heyn have dissolved partnership in the sheep business, Mr. Donohoe retaining the sheep.

Cheapest coffee in the West, at Ogle & Son's.

The Domestic sewing machine is the chief.

"Say, Rhoda, what's that 'way up thar?"

"Oh, go 'long, Sammy, it's the Domestic, of course, it's always at the head."

(Soto Voce) 'Spose I'll have ter git her one or thar'll be no peace in the family.

For the Domestic sewing machine go to J. P. Rettig.

Barrel of pickles at Ogle & Son's.

Ed. Coppins offers his store and stock of groceries for sale. Will trade for sheep.

A full line of bacon and hams, at Ogle & Son's.

There is a fish-fry near Mr. Parish's farm on the Mahair, to-day.

If you don't think business in Baird is on a boom, just watch the stampede toward Ogle & Son's grocery store.

Parties wishing to buy anything in the line of machinery, such as cotton gins, etc., will do well to call on Harry Meyer. He is the manufacturers' agent.

Owing to the fact that we have no printers this week, and having a press of other work, this issue of the CLARENDON is unusually late; but no one regrets this more than we do.

I am coming, you cant stop me, I am bound for the Cheap Cash store of Ed. Coppins, he keeps all kinds of staple and fancy groceries. He has just received a car-load of flour and a car-load of meal.

Some of the sportive boys in town won all the money our barber had and, as they express it, made a "believer" of him, and we guess they did, for he did leave and now we have no barber. Who is next.

Mr. W. A. Glenn has been delivering the books for which he agent, "The Western Wilds." We are well pleased with our copy. The binding is first-rate and the book an interesting one.

The Crystal Palace is the boss place in town to get your cool drinks, which are always prepared by none but imported artists, who always test their drinks just to see that they are palatable and they always are. Go and see for yourself.

A little carelessness in handling freight cars in the yard last Wednesday caused quite a little colision, damaging several cars and some freight. Two box cars were left to come down the house track with no one upon them to hold them. Cars will run down hill.

Mr. H. H. Rogers, formerly of Lee & Rogers wishes us to say to the people that he has bought the Baird meat market and will furnish beef at Baird and also at Belle Plain every day. The market here will be open from four o'clock a. m. to two p. m.

Mr. J. F. Patterson has purchased two lots from conductor John Scully, which are situated between the stores of Messrs. Harry Meyer and Ed Coppins, on Market street, upon which he will commence the erection, at once, of a livery stable. Jim is an old hand at the business and will, no doubt make a success of the enterprise.

Mr. J. M. Parish, the young school teacher who was seriously stabbed at Cottonwood sometime since, is about again, although not yet recovered. He called at our office last Wednesday and gave us some of the facts regarding the unhappy affair which are substantially as we gave them at the time, with the addition of the fact that the remark which was the cause of the whole affair was simply this: that Helton said that if Mrs. Parish visited a certain lady in the neighborhood, that she (Mrs. Parish) was not of the right kind, or something to that effect. This lady is a respectable person, but the objection to her, we understand, is ore entirely of jealousy and prejudice. We give this much space to the matter simply because we deem it justice to Mrs. Parish to do so, for parties unacquainted with the affair might infer from our account of it that the charge was something serious against that lady's good name.

Personal.

Two of Dr. Allen's daughters have been seriously sick, but, we are glad to say, are recovering.

T. J. Dean, our blacksmith, left last Sunday night for Mineral Wells, where he goes to recuperate his health.

Col. J. W. Adams, after several unsuccessful stock speculations, left with his family last Tuesday evening for Fort Worth. We wish them success wherever they go.

Maj. Perry left last Sunday night for Mineral Wells for the benefit of his health. He has been on the sick list for several weeks and we trust that he will now recover.

We regret to say that the little son of Mr. John Rice, who has been seriously sick for a week past, is still lying in a critical condition, but we trust that the little sufferer may soon recover.

Mr. J. B. Cutbirth and family left on the east-bound train last Wednesday night for Pilot Point, Denton county, where they go for a short visit to relatives and many old friends. The CLARENDON wishes them a happy visit.

Miss Addie Bennett, the accomplished sister of Mrs. M. H. Donohoe, of this place left last Tuesday night, after a stay of about two and a half years in Texas, for her home in Michigan. We trust she will return to Baird sometime in the near future.

Mrs. F. W. Heyn left last Tuesday night for Fort Worth, where she goes to visit a sister. In her absence Fred looks so young that an agent for the Texas Marriage Aid Association, made a vigorous attack upon him for a policy. All right, Fred, we wont tell on you.

A CALL.

By virtue of the authority vested in me by appointment from the Chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, I hereby call a convention of the voters of Callahan county, Texas, to meet en masse in Baird on Saturday the 8th day of July, 1882, at 1 o'clock p. m., to send delegates to the State Democratic Convention that meets in Galveston on 18th day of July 1882. It is earnestly requested that there will be a full attendance of the voters of Callahan county.

A. W. OLIVER,
Chairman Dem. Ex. Com. of C. C.

Good Book.

W. A. Glenn is agent for the "Western Wilds, and the Men who Redeem them." This is a very interesting work, and will be read with interest by every man, woman and child. We commend Mr. Glenn to our readers, and hope they will all buy a book from him. 51-3m

Notice.

Parties indebted to us will please come forward and pay up at once, otherwise we will be compelled to turn accounts over to our attorney for collection.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.

Whereas, by deed of trust, dated 28th day of June, A. D. 1881 and recorded in book No. 1, pages 112 and 114 Callahan county Texas, by E. H. Newlon and F. E. Newlon to Geo. E. Johnson as trustee of Caroline Johnson, the following described real estate, to-wit: Lots one (1), two (2), three (3), four (4), five (5), six (6), seven (7), and eight (8), in block forty-six (46) situated in Baird, Callahan county, Texas, and known as City Hotel property. This conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of certain notes specified in said deed, and whereas, it was among other things provided in said deed of trust that should default be made in the payment of said notes or either of them a sale of property might be made by said trustee for the purposes therein mentioned, and whereas, two of said notes, to-wit: the principal note of three thousand dollars ($3,000), and interest note of ninety dollars ($90) became due and payable and now remains unpaid. Now, therefore, in pursuance of said deed of trust and at the request of the legal holder of said notes, I hereby give notice that I will sell, on 31st July, 1882, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., at the court house door, in Belle Plain, Callahan county, Texas, the property above described for the purposes in and by said deed of trust in such cases authorized.

GEO. E. JOHNSON,
Trustee.

THE

PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE WORLD.

Embracing Full and Authentic Accounts of Every Nation of Ancient and Modern Times, and Including a History of the Rise and Fall of the Greek and Roman Empires, the Growth of Nations of Modern Europe, the Middle Ages, the Crusades, the Feudal System, the Reformation, the Discovery and Settlement of the New World, etc., etc.

BY JAMES D. McCABE,
The Well-Known Historian.

This work has taken rank as the Standard History of the World. It contains a separate and admirably written history of every nation of ancient and modern times, and is full of the most valuable information, presented in a manner that will enable the reader to refer instantly to any subject upon which information is desired. The book is a complete treasury of history, and there is not a question that can be asked concerning any historical subject, but an answer to it can be found in this great work. The author does not content himself with a mere dry statement of facts, but sketches the life and manners of the various nations of which he treats, in life-like colors. He shows us the various great men—the warriors, statesmen, poets, sages and orators—of ancient and modern times and makes them familiar to the reader.

Catharthic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

CALLAHAN COUNTY CLARENDON.

It is our aim to have the CLARENDON visit every family in Callahan County, and we feel confidant it will become a welcomed weekly visitor to all such if the interest of the family is taken into consideration, and such should be the object of every man so situated.

Certainly there is no one living in this progressive and intelligent age, who attempts to keep abreast with the events of the day, but rightly understands the position and aim of the modern country press.

Who expects to find by perusing the columns of a weekly newspaper, published in a town of from 500 to 1500 inhabitants, a complete and accurate account of all the minor and important foreign and domestic happenings that are constantly occurring? None but the thoughtless and non-progressive.

The object of the CLARENDON is to acquaint its many readers with the facts of all the doings and occurrences transpiring in our midst. Without a knowledge of which no one can keep pace with his better posted neighbor.

Every man and woman in Callahan county, who is not at present a subscriber to the Clarendon is respectfully invited to bring or send the sum of two dollars to pay for a copy of their home paper for one year.

$2 00 per year, in advance.

You Should ADVERTISE.

By a liberal use of printer's ink P. T. Barnum, the great showman, made a fortune and became famous. Others have been likewise blessed through the same agency. The CLARENDON has a subscription list of which it is not ashamed and the same is increasing daily. Immigrants are arriving and settling in our county very rapidly and they lose no time in finding their way to the CLARENDON office and subscribing for the paper, and reading the advertisements therein, find out who deals in this, that and the other classes of goods and know just who to call on when in need of any article of merchandise, and every business man knows the advantage there is in selling a new settler his first bill of goods—by fair dealing he secures his trade for the future. In view of this fact, we consider it an advantage for all the business men of Callahan county to make liberal use of our columns for the purpose of securing a share of this constantly increasing trade. Our prices are very liberal and within reach of the peanut vender as well as the wholesale merchant.

Any one having stock or other property for sale, should advertise the fact through the columns of the CLARENDON if you really want to sell.

Childhood Troubles.

How few realize that the troubles, frets, disappointments and annoyances which cross the path of little children are as real—as hard for them to bear patiently—as those which cloud our brows, make us impatient, and rob us of rest or self-control. The pain they bring the young, fortunately, is not as lasting, else they could not endure it. The childish heart is as yet full of hope, and its sources of enjoyment so simple and so easily supplied that the present pain can be more speedily soothed, by anticipations of coming pleasures, than it can be in more mature life. Still the darkness and disappointments that often come to the little folks bring, for the time, as acute pain as older people can feel, and worse in this respect: that the child's heart has not yet learned the secret of quiet, patient endurance.

A child, it is true, finds its pleasures and makes its plans on a small scale; its hopes and anticipations are usually centered on what its elders consider trifles. But to the young their plans and pleasures all seem of the utmost importance, and they can not understand the indifference shown by their parents or elder brothers and sisters. They cling to their fancies as earnestly as men do to the great schemes which they labor night and day to perfect. The child values his small possessions as highly as men do the millions they have gained by hardships, self-denials and ceaseless labor. Then the "children of a larger growth," who have battled for years to ward off reverses and disappointments, to place the wealth so hardly earned on sure foundations, have had time to learn by many sad experiences that there is always an element of uncertainty in every plan or scheme that human wisdom or foresight can weave together, and therefore, though hoping for success, they recognize the danger, and are more or less prepared for the failure.

Not so the young. It takes many and grievous disappointments to teach them to look for shadows over their bright hopes and rose-hued expectations. For this reason, when such losses come to their young, undisciplined hearts, and the brightness of their anticipation goes out in darkness, the sense of loss is far more acute than older hearts will feel when their most important projects come to naught.

Children often suffer real injustice, and are quite as keenly alive to the feeling that it is cruel and unjust as their elders can be. The parent, teacher or playmate who is responsible for the wrong and the sharp suffering it brings, of course, it is to be hoped, has no intention to act hastily or unkindly. But what to the little one is of untold importance seems so trivial that parents do not feel it is worth while to investigate and ascertain the true state of the case. So in a hasty, off-hand manner they silence the complaints of the child, and decide the case in a way that will cause it intense pain and plant the first seeds of distrust. Their confidence is shaken in the wisdom of those who should watch untiringly to secure the most perfect development of the best qualities in those young minds which are so dependent on their care and prudence for the wise use of the authority vested in them.

If parents could understand how much the future of their children depends upon their thoughtful care, on their habits and manner of training their little ones when young, they would feel the great necessity of weighing well their words and acts; they would bear in mind that their own convenience, ease, or pleasure should not be of more importance than the comfort and happiness of their young children. No innocent pleasure and enjoyment should be sacrificed to the too common plea that it is "inconvenient." Do parents imagine that they can enjoy the blessings of seeing their little ones grow up around them without making many sacrifices of their own present ease and convenience? They should rather count any sacrifice for the innocent amusement and healthy development of happy, loving natures in their children as all joy; for by judicious indulgence and tender sympathy in the small pleasures and rights of the little ones they may safely look forward to the time whey their lads and lassies will cluster around them, in full maturity, the crown and rejoicing of their parents. Then, as loving sons and daughters, they will repay by the tender, watchful care of their parents' declining years all the self-sacrifice, the tenderness and indulgent sympathy bestowed upon their childhood.

We do not believe in that indulgence which has no limit and exercises no control, and think that, perhaps, while wishing to exercise proper restraint and truly seeking the best good of their children, there may be as many parents who over-govern as there are who deny the little ones perfectly safe and harmless pleasures, for no reason whatever, but that by allowing them the mother will find it inconvenient or likely to curtail some of her own outside enjoyments. Yet the first desire that everything they do should be for the best good of their loved ones; the second act from purely selfish motives.

No mother need be a slave to her children, or give all her time and thought to their pleasures and amusement. It requires but little to make them supremely happy. Loving words, gentle smiles, "stooping"—if so one chooses to term it—to notice and manifest pleasure and interest in all that pleases and interest them, listening to their childish remarks for a short time, will make them very happy for hours. If at times it is necessary to refuse some childish request, it can be done without causing pain or discomfort if the mother in simple child-language, gives her reasons, and directs their thoughts by finding something else more appropriate, but equally pleasing, to substitute in its place. A few gentle words and loving caresses will recall the smiles and ensure the child's full enjoyment.—Mrs. H. W. Beecher, in Christian Union.

—Dogs that get drunk are uncommon. "Old Jack," of Indianapolis, Ind., belonging to the fire department, regularly drank refuse beer from the empty kegs at the door of the saloon adjoining his home, but getting drunk the other day, just as an alarm of fire sounded, he fell beneath the wheels of the machine and was crushed to death.

—A "quiet Mr. Brown," of Nebraska, declares that if it were not for the "noble efforts of our agricultural societies" the youth of that State would be likely to remain "ignorant as heathens of the fine art of driving fast horses and manipulating the pool-box."

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—The royal wedding cake at the marriage of Prince Leopold was built in three stories, was six feet high and weighed 200 pounds.

—"The early study of nature," says Sir Charles Dilke, "not only bears fruit upward in the intellect but strikes root downward in the heart."

—Luciano Bizarri, of Rome, has made a statuette of the Queen of Italy from solid gold. It is forty-one centimeters in height and is worth $5,000.

—The Maltese declare that St. Paul, after his shipwreck, cursed all the venomous reptiles of that island, and banished them forever, as St. Patrick is said to have afterward treated those of Ireland.

—It is said that the fashion of wearing eye-glasses has seriously injured the sight of four-fifths of the Russian army officers. An order has been issued forbidding their use by officers in uniform, except on a medical certificate declaring them to be necessary.

—The following is to be the inscription on the statue of Sir Rowland Hill, which is to be erected at the Royal Exchange, London: "Rowland Hill. He founded uniform penny postage in 1840." Mr. Ford, the sculptor, says that the statue will be ready by the middle of June.

—Lord Derby is the admiration and envy of all Irish landholders, having cleared out of that country with $800,000 for his land five years ago. "Ted," as his father used to call him, knows a thing or two, and probably bore in mind that clause of Peel's will prohibiting the investment of a penny of his property in Irish soil. Sir Robert had been a Chief Secretary.

—Another noise is to be added to the many which make the streets of Paris hideous by night and day. Hitherto the approach of a steam fire-engine has been announced by the sound of a small trumpet much resembling those used by the tramway cars. The authorities, in order to avoid the confusion arising out of the similarity between the two sounds, have adopted a new kind of trumpet, of double-distilled screeching power, which, if it does nothing else, will effectually frighten into fits the horses it encounters.

—A most affecting incident is said to have taken place in St. Petersburg, at a meeting of Jewish notables, who assembled to see what could be done for the prevention of further atrocities. After several had spoken, none of them having anything to recommend except emigration, a venerable old man with silvery hair, named Schmerling, representative of the community of Berditcheff, began to relate the trials to which his friends had been exposed. As his tale proceeded he grew more and more excited, and so did his audience with him, till all at once, overwhelmed with emotion, the speaker fell down dead. A thrill of horror passed through the assembly, and we are told that thousands of Jews followed his interment at Berditcheff.

Going it Blind.

Moses Schwartz, a trunk manufacturer of Brooklyn, is totally blind, yet he is proprietor of several trunk stores, and is a prosperous business man, and does business with many customers who do not detect his misfortune. When he was a boy he ruined his eyes by putting a match in a pan of gunpowder, and, although his sight was ruined for life, and he was advised to spend his life in an asylum for the blind, he resented such expressions of sympathy, and said that he intended to make his way in the world by means of his remaining senses. He was passing St. Paul's churchyard one day, and being attracted by the noise made by the "fakirs" who stand by the iron fence to sell their wares, he halted and opened a conversation with one of them. "I am blind," he said, "and am not going to beg or steal. I think I can stand here and earn a living as you do. Now, tell me where I can buy a stock."

The next day he was at the churchyard fence with a small lot of goods, and he at once found that, though his sight was gone, he could cry his wares with a good pair of lungs, and make his fingers serve him in assorting money and making change. For years he remained a familiar figure in Broadway. He found that his sense of hearing became most acute, and he acquired a sensitive touch. Having a mechanical turn, he began the manufacture of trunks in a small way, and now he runs a factory. He has devised several things in trunk-making, and he avers that one patented article now yielding a good income to another was originated by him.

In walking the streets Mr. Schwartz uses no guide. He holds his head erect, and carries a cane with which he deftly feels his way. His pace is slow, and he seems to have no difficulty in getting along. His firmness of manner and dignified bearing create a space about him, and persons who do not know his blindness instinctively turn aside to let him pass. If by chance he strikes against anyone he politely begs pardon, touches his hat, if the collision chances to be with a lady, and passes on. "It is foolish," he says, "for a blind man to have a boy or a dog to lead him. It teaches him dependence, and, from what I can learn, men who have guides do not get along as well as I do."

"Are you never run over by vehicles?"

"I have been once or twice. I was knocked down by a lady's phaeton in Schermerhorn street once, because I miscalculated the distance of the vehicle on account of the tar pavement, which deadened the sound of the wheels. But I have a trick for saving myself when I'm knocked down."

"What is that?"

"I roll over and over just as fast as I can, sideways, until I'm sure I'm out of danger of being crushed. Then I jump to my feet, call out I'm all right, and go my way."

"Few persons know that you are blind?"

"Yes, that's true. My present wife did not know it until after we got in love with each other. I go into company as much as I can, and as I can talk and sing I get along pretty well. I had, however, to tell my wife of my infirmity on one occasion before we were married, to excuse my awkwardness in a dance. I bumped against some of the others in the figure so often that they became angry, and I had to confess my blindness. I go to the theater very often, and nearly always have a front seat in the balcony. I'm fond of the music and I like comedy very much."

"How do you decide upon your stock of leather goods?"

"By the sense of touch and the sense of smell. I can tell you all the different kinds of leather by sample—by the oily feeling and smell. I never was deceived yet. In fact, I get along so well that some of my rivals have started the story that I am not blind—that I only pretend to be."—N. Y. Sun.

HOME AND FARM.

—A California cow died in convulsions, from gangrene, five days after a copper ring was inserted in her nose.

—A Breeders' Gazette writer predicts that not many decades hence horns on cattle will be as great a curiosity as is their absence now.

—A good barometer, if watched closely during haying, will enable one to keep clear of the rain, and thus save much hay that would otherwise be injured by unexpected rains.

—Mr. J. B. Olcott remarks that the same argument that defends oleomargarine "because it keeps the price of butter within reasonable limits," "would allow anything, even money, to be counterfeited so as to make its acquisition easy."

—Harness Galls: A good way to prevent them is to have good collars; keep them well cleaned and oiled. Each time the horse is unharnessed bathe the shoulder with cold water. White oak bark boiled in water makes a good wash to harden and toughen the skin.

—Absence or prevalence of cockroaches in a house is a capital test of the cleanliness and neatness of those having charge of the sanitary management of the dwelling. If any are seen, be sure that bread crumbs or other food refuse are left in apartments, for roaches do not live on air.

—Jelly Roll: Make sponge cake mixture, spread it thinly on a sheet of manila paper and bake it light colored, on a baking pan. Lay the sheet, when done, cake downward on the table, brush the paper over with water and pull it off the cake. Spread with jelly and roll up.—Chicago Herald.

—It is claimed that water heated to 130 deg. is fatal to all insects that infect plants, even though exposed to it but for an instant, while the immersion of a plant for an instant in water of that temperature does not injure the plant in the least unless the leaves are very tender from having been grown in the shade.—N. Y. Times.

—Mothers who were troubled—as most mothers were—to keep the boys' blouses in proper shape last year will find that to make them long enough to belt down is a great improvement. They look well, too. Last year's blouses can be cut off a trifle at the bottom, and have bands put on, and buttons, and they will take the place of under-waists.—N. Y. Post.

—Rabbit Hash: Cut up and put into a saucepan with a quart of their own broth and an onion in quarters. Let it boil half an hour; strain through a sieve. Mix two tablespoonfuls of flour with the hot broth; boil upon the fire and strain again through a sieve. Lay the rabbits in the saucepan, pour the gravy on them, and let simmer gently for a quarter of an hour. Serve with stuffing and pieces of toast in slices.

—Orange Pudding: Peel, seed and cut in small pieces four good-sized oranges; add a cupful of white sugar and let it stand awhile. Into a quart of nearly boiling milk stir two tablespoonfuls of corn starch, mixed with a little water and the yelks of three eggs beaten light. When cooked to the consistency of thick custard, put away to cool, after which mix with the orange and sugar. Make a frosting of the four whites of eggs and powdered sugar. Cook the pudding in pastry. When done, spread on the meringue and brown slightly.—N. Y. Examiner.

Roup.

This is perhaps the most common of the diseases with which poultry are afflicted. It may be said to hold the same rank as colds with human beings. The causes are exposure to draughts, damp houses, and cold, wet weather; in short, the same exposure that would produce a cold in a man is very likely to give a hen the roup. The symtoms are the same also—sore throat, running at the nose, swollen eyelids; and as some men take cold more easily than others, so some breeds of fowls are more readily affected. Those known as hard feathered, the Hamburgs, Leghorns, Black Spanish, etc., are more likely to have the roup than those whose feathers are more downy, as the Plymouth Rocks, Brahmas, Cochin Chinas, Shanghais, etc. The former seem well protected; but lift a wing or part the feathers and it will be seen that with the exception of the large feathers the bodies are nearly bare, while the bodies of the latter can scarcely be seen, so thick is the down or small feathers.

The roup, like an ordinary cold, shows itself in many forms, and consequently is liable to be misunderstood. To guard against this, if any fowl in damp, cold weather shows any symptoms of illness, look out for roup, and proceed accordingly. We could fill the whole of this column with approved remedies for roup; and in this respect again it resembles colds, for who ever knew of a person without half a dozen infallable remedies for a cold? We will print a few, which are all highly recommended, and let our readers take their choice. But before applying any remedy, the first thing to do is to remove all fowls that seem in any way indisposed to a dry, warm place for a hospital. A heroic remedy is to take a small feather, dip the end in nitric acid and insert it in the nostril of the bird, giving it a twist while in. This is to be repeated two or three times a day, always removing the burnt scab before repeating the operation.

A more humane treatment is a tablespoonful of castor oil for a week, with mashes and chopped vegetables for food. Others wash the back with warm water. Swab the throat with strong copperas water every night, and give a teaspoonful of solution of chlorate of potash three times a day. For aggravated cases we have the following: Sulphate of iron, half a drachm; capsicum powder, one drachm; extract of licorice, half an ounce; make into thirty pills and give one at a time three times a day for three or four days. Then mix half an ounce of sulphate of iron and one ounce cayenne pepper. Put a teaspoonful of this with butter to make a paste; divide it into ten parts, and give one every morning and night. Keep the head, eyes, mouth, and nostrils clean, by washing in vinegar.

We approve the following: Feed lightly on oatmeal, mixed with ale or beer, and chopped vegetables. Wash the head, bill, etc., in tepid water, and give one grain of sulphate of iron daily. We prefer to avoid all medication when not absolutely called for, believing drugging and dosing kills quite as many as it cures. If fowls be kept warm, well nursed, and the heads clean by bathing, they will be quite as likely to recover as by any other treatment.—N. Y. Sun.

—A Cincinnati woman desired to communicate by telephone with her husband who was in the pest-house, and got a newspaper reporter to manipulate the instrument for her because she was afraid of catching the small-pox over the wires.

—The two little daughters of Luke Healey, who were drowned in Starch Factory Creek, near Utica, N. Y., the other day, got into the water to save Robert Burton, a boy, who clung to a twig on the side of the bank, and was saved.

—A St. Louis man who was refused credit for a drink in a saloon on Sunday shot himself through the head. If this custom is to be kept up St. Louis will soon be depopulated.—Chicago Herald.

Men of Large Brain.

Men of large brain sometimes suffer from feelings of extreme mental exhaustion. This feeling should not be neglected. Heed such symptoms as nervous debility, blotches, skin diseases, dimness of sight, cough, catarrh of the bladder, and general despondency. When thus afflicted hasten to use Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It strengthens mind and body exhausted by disease and suffering. It is the truest of all life-giving tonics, and Nature's best assistant in restoring the proper function to every organ affected. Ask your druggist to get it for you.

A COLLECTOR of antique furniture was hunting through the auction shops the other day for a "signal service bureau."

MR. ARTHUR MCLANE, of Greensburgh, Ind., writes: "After suffering many years from extreme mental exhaustion and nervous debility, and failing to find relief, I expected to die, having tried all advertised remedies for early decay, with no benefit. My mother was using Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. I took a dose occasionally and it made me feel better. I bought a bottle, it did me great good. I am now healthy as I ever was, and have no more disturbing dreams."

A LITTLE Georgia baby fell down a well and was already out of sight when a neighbor, attracted by its mother's cries, came to rescue it. In taking off the timbers through whose crevices the child had fallen, some of them fell into the water. The disturbance in the water caused the child to rise to the surface, when she was picked up and resuscitated. That is certainly a new way of raising children.—Detroit Free Press.

"Well-a-day! That is remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George—I know hops are good."—Salem Post.

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

HEALTH

At this season the health needs careful attention. The blood being weakened and the system run down, dangerous disease is liable to secure a hold that cannot be easily removed. What at first appears to be but slight indisposition, often develops into troubles that may be incurable.

At this season the liver becomes inactive, the complexion sallow, pimples appear on the skin, dyspepsia and indigestion affect the digestive organs, &c.

What is needed is a complete, reliable and strengthening tonic. Such a medicine is

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, which, by its great strengthening powers, diffuses new life in the blood, revitalizes the whole system, giving tone to the stomach, muscles and nerves, effectually relieving all weakness and tendency to lassitude.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is a true tonic which has been thoroughly tried, is made by a reliable firm, and has the hearty endorsement of the medical profession. It will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, and malaria, and relieve all wasting diseases, such as consumption and kidney affections.

As a medicine for those diseases peculiar to women it is without a rival.

For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine.

BEATTY

THE FAMOUS 27 STOP BEETHOVEN ORGANS.

Suitable for the Parlor, Chapel, Lodge, Church or Sabbath School.

—Front View—

THE BEETHOVEN ORGAN.

Height, 75 ins., Length, 46 ins., Depth, 24 ins.

New Style No. 9000, Handsome Solid Black Walnut Case with Organ Bench and Music Book.

27 STOPS, 10 FULL SETS GOLDEN TONGUE REEDS.

—A BRIEF DESCRIPTION.—

PRICE Boxed with Organ Bench, Book and Music, ONLY $90.00

CASE.—Handsome Solid Black Walnut, manufactured so as not to take the dirt or dust. Thoroughly seasoned and kiln dried, so that it will stand the test of any climate; handsome rubbed Varnish finish and polish; carved and ornamented with arabesque designs in gold, fret music desk, pocket, handles and lamp stands. It is built to last, not for show.

ACTION.—Containing 27 Stops, with a great variety of Stop Combinations, enabling the performer to imitate (by following the simple instructions sent) a French Horn, Violin, Piccolo, Saxaphone, Full Orchestra, Cello, Church Pipe Organ, and many other beautiful effects. In addition you have the regular ordinary Organ at your command.

27 STOPS as follows:

1—Cello, 8 foot tone.	14—Echo, 8 foot tone.
2—Melodia.	15—Dulciana, 8 foot tone.
3—Clarabella.	16—Clarionet, 8 foot tone.
4—Manual Sub-Bass, 16 foot tone.	17—Voix Celeste, 8 foot tone.
5—Bourdon, 16 foot tone.	18—Violina, 4 foot tone.
6—Saxaphone, 8 foot tone.	19—Vox Jubilante, 8 and 4 foot tone.
7—Viol di Gamba, 8 foot tone.	20—Piccolo, 4 foot tone.
8—Diapason, 8 foot tone.	21—Coupler Harmonique.
9—Viola Dolce, 4 foot tone.	22—Orchestral Forte.
10—Grand Expressione, 8 foot tone.	23—Grand Organ Knee Stop.
11—French Horn, 8 foot tone.	24—Right Knee Stop.
12—Harp Æolian.	25—Automatic Valve Stop.
13—Vox Humana, Tremulant.	26—Right Duplex Damper.

with grand and thrilling accessory and combination effects.

BELLOWS.—Finest Treble Rubber, Upright pattern, three bellows combined, with four Steel Springs, with Automatic Valve Stop, an ingenious arrangement for preventing an over-supply of air.

REEDS.—10 full Sets Reeds. Are of the Celebrated Golden Tongue (patented,) the tongue of which are secured to the block by dovetailing instead of ordinary rivet, which soon breaks or rattles. The Golden Tongue never breaks or wears out, holds its tone perfectly. No tuning is ever required after leaving factory.

TONE.—Superb, Thrillingly Sweet and Pure. I challenge comparison with any instrument ever manufactured at four times the price. An Organ like the above containing the same variety of music would cost through high-priced organ manufacturers at least $400. This combination of Reed-Board and Stop Work, bear in mind, in the BEETHOVEN is patented. No other organ maker dare build it.

PRICE.—The price of this Organ, which includes a music book, organ bench, choice music, &c. securely packed and delivered on board the cars at Washington, New Jersey, is ONLY $90.00.

TERMS.—The terms are Net Cash. Remittances may be made by Bank Draft, Post Office Money Order, Registered Letter, or Express prepaid.

WARRANTED.—The BEETHOVEN is warranted for six years. Shipped on one year's trial.

FACTORY.—Corner Railroad Ave. and Beatty St., Washington, New Jersey. Largest in the world. Running day and night to fill all orders promptly.

To Whom it May Concern:

☞ If the Beethoven Organ, after one year's constant use, does not give you perfect satisfaction in every particular, and is in any way not as represented in this advertisement, I hereby bind myself to take it back and refund you your money paid in current funds, with legal interest of New Jersey, (six per cent.) I further agree to pay freight charges on the instrument both ways, the money to be refunded immediately upon receipt of the instrument at Washington, New Jersey. I further agree, if requested, to exchange it for any other organ or piano as shown in my catalogue.

Very truly yours,

Daniel F. Beatty

HOW TO ORDER.—Enclosed find money for Beethoven Organ. I have read your statement in regard to it in this advertisement, and I order one on condition that it must prove exactly as represented in every particular, or I shall return it at the end of one year's use and demand the return of my money, with interest from the very moment I forward it, at six per cent., according to your offer. Be very particular to give your Name, Post Office, County, State, Freight Station, and on what Railroad. ☞ Be sure to remit by Bank Draft, Post Office Money Order, Registered Letter or Express prepaid.

SPECIAL TEN DAY OFFER TO THE READERS OF THIS NEWSPAPER.

I desire the Beethoven Organ introduced among the readers of this newspaper WITHIN THE NEXT TEN DAYS, so that all can see and appreciate its wonderful merits and stop combination effects. Now, if you will REMIT ME seventy-five ($75.00) dollars, I will ship you this Organ immediately, and send you a receipted bill in full for ninety dollars ($90), which is the regular and only price at which this Organ is sold. The price will soon be advanced to $125.00, on account of the increase in the price of labor and materials used in its construction.

☞ I desire this instrument introduced without delay, and make this special offer so you may order one now. I look to future sales for my profit, as the Beethoven makes me thousands of friends. I regard this manner of introducing it better than spending hundreds of dollars in newspaper advertising. The Organ speaks for itself. Often 20 sales have been traced from the first sold in a new neighborhood.

☞ This offer is positively good for only ten days from date of this newspaper. PLEASE BEAR THIS IN MIND. This newspaper must be returned to secure this special price. If mailed from your postoffice within ten days from date, it will be received, not otherwise, or you may accept by telegraph on the last day, and remit by mail on that day. I shall POSITIVELY refuse all orders under $90, unless accompanied with this newspaper, and payment must be mailed within ten days as specified.

N. B.—As this special offer is limited and will not be repeated, if you have not all the money in hand, it will pay you to borrow a part from your friends, and thus secure the best organ that can be offered, at a less price than an ordinary organ by other makers is usually sold at.
