Last German Rail Escape Line Is Cut

Cherbourg Nazis Face New Crisis

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Saturday, June 17. — American troops cut the last German rail escape route out of Cherbourg yesterday with the capture of strategic St. Sauveur Le Vicomte, and also retook ruined Montebourg, only 14 miles southeast of the prize port, after a furious four-day battle.

The Germans clearly faced a crisis in trying to keep their badly-mauled troops from being split on the peninsula.

American seizure of St. Sauveur, 18 miles south of Cherbourg, was confirmed officially at midnight by Army officials in France. It all but cut in two the Axis forces on the peninsula because U. S. artillery now is within range of the west coast highway six miles beyond St. Sauveur. That highway is the last Axis link between the French interior and thousands of imperilled German troops in the Cherbourg area.

Near Highway Hub

Seven miles south of St. Sauveur the Americans were reported only four miles from La Haye Du Puits, highway hub of even more importance than St. Sauveur, since the west coast road runs through it. The Americans gained two-miles from Pretot in the drive on La Haye, dispatches said.

A three mile gain southwest of Carentan was made by another American column fighting its way across the peninsula.

Capture of St. Sauveur represented a three-mile gain from Reigneville and carried the Yanks across the Douve river on the east side of St. Sauveur. Associated Press front correspondent Don Whitehead said the Americans entered St. Sauveur at noon Friday, fighting from house to house. It is a junction of two big highways.

Westward Advances

Headquarters communique No. 22 issued just before midnight told of advances westward across the Cherbourg peninsula but gave no details. It also said that Allied troops had scored local successes in the Tilly sector near the eastern end of the front where British and Canadians are engaged. Tilly, however, remains in enemy hands, the bulletin said.

The Germans fought desperately

Berlin Pounded Again By RAF

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Saturday, June 17—Berlin was raided early today by the RAF in a sudden shift in Allied aerial strategy, the German radio reported.

The Nazi broadcast said that "nuisance raiders" were over the German capital at 2 a. m., but added that anti-aircraft batteries opened a "very voilent barrage." This seemed to indicate that the raid perhaps was on a fairly large scale.

Heavies Lash Coast

The night operation by the RAF followed an assault late Friday by American heavy bombers directly at military installations in the Pas De Calais of northern France from which the Germans were believed to have launched new "secret weapon" pilotless planes which exploded in England Thursday night and during the day Friday.

A fleet of nearly 1,000 Flying Fortresses and Liberators and escorting fighters made the assault, striking also at three Nazi air bases in the vicinity of Paris and Laon, 80 miles to the northeast.

Prime Minister Churchill disclosed weeks ago that the Nazis were preparing in the Pas De Calais area just such a robot attack as they directed against Britain last night and today. The American heavies streaked to their targets just as soon as they could after clearing of weather over the continent which had kept

Strikers Ordered To Get Back On Jobs

DALLAS, June 16 (AP)—The regional War Labor board (WLB) today ordered employes of the Mosher Steel company's Houston plant to return to work at midnight after they went on strike this morning in protest against the firm's vacation policy.

The strike followed posting of notices by the company yesterday that vacations would be on the company's old plan of two days after one year and three days after two years, WLB officials said.

About 275 persons are employed at the steel plant.

ARMY'S NEW SUPERFORTRESS—Shown here is the Army's new B-29 Superfortress, scores of which battered Japan's "Pittsburgh" in their first major action this week. The B-29 was engineered by Boeing, is powered by four 18-cylinder aircooled engines of 2,200 h. p. each, has speed of over 300 mph, and can fly over 30,000 feet high. They bristle with .50 calibre machine guns and 20 mm cannon.

Record Crowd Expected For Bond Sales Booster Parade

Colorful Event Is Set For 2 O'clock

Preparations have been made for one of the biggest crowds of the year in downtown Lubbock this afternoon.

The big attraction is the giant military parade which will start moving promptly at 2 o'clock as the final and climaxing event of the first week of the Fifth War Loan drive.

All buying during the first week of the campaign has been strictly

BANKS REMAIN OPEN

Be prepared to buy a War Bond when you come down to see the big military parade at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

All three banks and First Federal Savings and Loan association are going to open at 1:30 p. m., immediately after the parade, as a convenience to bond buyers. They won't transact any other business. They will be open strictly for the purpose of selling War Bonds.

So see the parade! THEN BUY A WAR BOND!

on a voluntary basis. Drive officials are hoping that a consciousness of patriotic responsibility will be sufficient to enable the county to reach its quota of $4,685,000 — including $1,110,000 in Series E bonds.

No attempt has yet been made to compile total figures on the results of the drive thus far. An effort will be made to round them up today. However, reports from the various issuing agencies have not been encouraging. Voluntary buying definitely has lagged.

Drive officials hope the parade today will provide the stimulus needed to push the campaign toward success. The issuing agencies, incidentally, include the banks, First Federal Savings and Loan association, the postoffice and the Junior Chamber of Commerce booth in the Lindsey theater lobby. Those who buy bonds in the Lindsey also get tickets to the bond premieres in local theaters on July 6.

To those who want to see the parade this afternoon—and it will be worth seeing, probably the best advice is: Be on time. Military parades usually start moving on time—and 2 o'clock is the time.

It will form at city hall corner, Tenth street and Texas avenue.

Fantastic Nazi Robots Are Loosed On England, But No Big Military Damage Done

By LEWIS HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Saturday, June 17.—The Nazis launched more of their fantastic robot explosive planes against southern England this morning, continuing attacks in which scores of the small, unmanned craft killed people and smashed buildings Thursday night and throughout Friday.

The strange "secret weapons" of which the Germans often have boastfully hinted, were launched from emplacements in France which Allied bombers have tried for months to obliterate.

(The Germans claimed in a broadcast late Friday night that they had virtually annihilated a convoy of ships in the channel with the robot bombers.)

Haphazard Bombardment

The Bizarre flame-spitting robots smashed against several points in a haphazard bombardment which started in darkness and continued intermittently through the day while Britain's anti-aircraft guns crackled at them sporadically.

Late Friday a force of American Flying Fortresses and Liberators swept across the channel and struck angrily at the "mystery installations" from which the little planes are thrown into the air.

There was no evidence that the new weapon had done important military damage or that it had shaken blitz-tempered Britain out of its determination to "carry on with its normal business," as Home Secretary Herbert Morrison asked it to do in a statement to Commons about the strange missle.

Nazis Tell Of Damage

A broadcast by the German Transocean News agency tonight declared that "damage of the greatest extent has been caused by new German high explosives in London. Warehouses on the Thames are in flames and rail communications are partly disrupted."

Morrison said it had been known for some time that the Nazis were preparing to use the pilotless craft against Britain, and disclosed that a small number were used in a raid last Tuesday morning.

"Last night's attack was more serious and I have not as yet full particulars of the casualties and damage, nor of the number of pilotless aircraft destroyed before they could explode," he told Commons. "Meanwhile, it is important not to give the enemy any information which would help him in directing his shooting by telling him where his missiles landed."

None of the planes was known to have been taken intact, but reports of many witnesses agreed pretty well on these points:

It has a wingspread of perhaps

Russia Rejects Jap Relief Supply Plan

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Russia has rejected a Japanese proposal to pick up relief supplies at Vladivostok for American prisoners, Congress was told today, but has offered the use of "other, equally accessible ports."

The Japanese government has not replied to that alternative.

The information was contained in a report of a House foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Luther Johnson (D-Tex) which reviewed steps being taken to speed repatriation and help those still held in the Far East.

The conclusions were that the State department and other agencies are doing everything possible and that:

1—"A great deal more has been done for the Americans held in Japan than is generally recognized."

2—Treatment of American civilians has apparently been more considerate than that accorded prisoners of war because of "the low opinion which the Japanese hold of soldiers who surrender."

3—Japan still refuses the Red Cross and Swiss government representatives access to the Philippines and some parts of China, contending "this is not Japanese territory." As a result a "serious situation" exists there.

Allied Officers Shot By Germans

LONDON, June 16. (AP) — The Air Ministry said today it had learned that three more Allied Air Force officers had been shot by the Germans.

These were in addition to the 47 who Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden reported previously had been shot after a mass escape from a war prison camp near Dresden on March 25.

Nazis Surrender In Large Droves

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, June 16.—Pursuing disorganized German troops who in many instances were throwing away their equipment and surrendering in droves, Allied forces leaped forward as much as 25 miles in the past 24 hours in their drive up the Italian peninsula and reached points within 85 miles of the enemy's so-called Pisa-Florence-Rimini defense line.

American troops pounding up the west coast captured Grosseto, nearly 100 airline miles from Rome, after a swift advance from Orbetello. Grosseto was the site of one of the Nazis' major military airdromes, and its long landing strips will be of almost immediate value to the Allied Tactical Air force in harassing the enemy's retreat.

Eighth Army formations swept through the industrial city of Terni and on beyond into the highway towns of Todi and Massa Martana, 60 airline miles north of Rome, without encountering any organized resistance. Fifth Army forces pounded beyond Lake Bolsena through Acquapendente, 65 miles northwest of the capital, and South African armored units raced 10 miles beyond Orvieto to Ficulle.

Since the break in their temporary defense line two days ago the Nazis have fled so fast the Allies have had difficulty keeping in touch with them. Abandoned enemy equipment carpets the roadsides and German prisoners have streamed to the rear in increasing numbers. One Eighth Army armored regiment took so many prisoners it had to call for assistance to handle them.

All across the peninsula, from the Tyrrhenian sea to the Adriatic, enemy forces were beating their way north under relentless punishment, trying to reach a defense line they could hold even temporarily.

Governor's Aides Top Bond Quota Quickly

AUSTIN, June 16 (AP) — Employes of Governor Coke R. Stevenson's office oversubscribed their war bond quota in one day—dedicating their effort to Freddie Neal of Menard who was killed in action.

He was the husband of Julia Fay Neal who is employed in the governor's office.

VATICAN GETS FOOD

VATICAN CITY, June 16. (AP)—Thirty truckloads of food arrived at the Vatican today. They were brought here by Vatican vehicles from Anzio where two Spanish ships docked with supplies for the Papal state. Part of the shipment will go to feed residents of Vatican City and part will be distributed to the poor of Rome.

Fuel Tank At Waskom Bursts Into Flame

WASKOM, Tex., June 16 (AP)—The Arkansas Fuel Oil company's gasoline refinery here was shaken by an explosion today and a fuel tank that burst into flames was still burning late in the evening.

Employes had left the area before the explosion and no one was injured.

One large tank collapsed, reports from the refinery said, and there was danger that the flames might spread to other tanks nearby.

There was no immediate estimate of damage, but it was expected to reach about $50,000. Highway patrolmen and other officers were on guard. Fire departments of Marshall, and Shreveport, answered a call but were unable to check the oil fire.

B-29 Raiders Wreck Japs' Steel Center

Four Sky Giants Reported Missing

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHUNGKING, June 16.—Scores of the mammoth U. S. B-29 Super-Flying Fortresses participated in last night's historic blow at the Japanese mainland, pouring a great weight of explosives on "Japan's Pittsburgh" at Yawata and leaving towering pillars of flame visible for 60 miles as the air battleships swept back across the Yellow sea to their Chinese lairs.

(Four of the $1,500,000 planes failed to return, a Washington communique announced. Two went down due to accidents, and the crew of one of these is safe. A third is missing, and a fourth fell "to anti-aircraft action over the target"—indicating that the wreckage of the highly-secret craft may be in enemy hands.)

Hard Blow Dealt

First detailed stories of the longest bomber flight ever made—more than a 2,000-miles round-trip—indicated that the Americans might have knocked out a fifth of the enemy's steel production at Yawata, on the north shore of Kyushu island 500 miles southwest of Tokyo.

A communique issued here said "heavy damage" was inflicted at Yawata.

Associated Press correspondent Thoburn Wiant, who went along on the raid, wrote while over the target:

"Japan's vital steel works is being reduced to a huge rubbish heap by America's biggest, fastest and deadliest bombers roaring overhead one after another. It will take the Japanese months to recover from this blow."

Japs Caught Napping

Preliminary reports indicated the Japanese defenders were surprised as the first big ship thundered over Yawata, which produces one-fifth of the enemy's steel. But intense anti-aircraft fire was encountered by succeeding bombers, which unloaded their destructive cargoes on the enemy's coke ovens and open hearth furnaces.

The Japanese also put some

Finn Diplomats Are 'Kicked Out'

WASHINGTON, June 16. (AP)—The United States government declared Finland's four top diplomats guilty of activities "inimical to the interests of the United States" today and directed them to leave the country as quickly as possible.

Pending their departure, the diplomats and their families were ordered confined to their homes except for exercise and other specified purposes and were placed under police surveillance. Their telephone lines were ordered disconnected although 45 minutes after the action was taken it was possible to reach them at the Finnish legation. There was no comment forthcoming, however.

Given Passport At 4 P. M.

The Finnish minister, Hjalmar J. Procope, was handed his passport at the State department at 4 p. m. (cwt) today. The passports of his three counselors were delivered to them by American diplomatic officials.

Later, Procope and the others appeared on the legation steps to pose for photographers.

"I am sorry this has happened," he told them.

Approximately a dozen plainclothes officers were stationed in the immediate vicinity of the house after the State department had disclosed its decision.

"This action," a State department announcement said, "does not constitute a rupture of diplomatic relations between the United States and Finland."

The announcement also de-

Snyder Men Lead In Storming Walls Of Castle And Not One Man Even Wounded

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two columns describing the capture by American troops of an ancient stone castle in the drive on Rome).

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE AEF IN ITALY, June 3—Men of company G didn't particularly want to storm the castle of Monte Cave, high in the Alban hills, but when the 70-odd Germans inside still refused to surrender after an hour's mortar barrage there was nothing else to do. They had to protect the flanks of their comrades moving ahead on both sides and the castle stood in their way.

DIXON

So Lieut. J. C. Williamson, 23, of Snyder, Tex., moved his platoon up to within a few yards of the only spot along the stone wall where there was a break in the barbed wire entanglement on top. His men were to lay down a base of protective fire for the platoon going over the top.

Lt. Robert Epsteen, 21, of Chicago, got his platoon ready to move up under the fire cover and go over. The wall was more than six feet high there and some of the men were to go over on their friend's shoulders while others found some old chairs to drop at the base of the wall and climb up on.

Three staff sergeants from Snyder, Tex., moved among the men they were to lead over the top and told them to fix bayonets and get ready to jump up and run like hell. They were Don Adams, 24, Henry D. Stokes, 22, and Jack L. Line, 23.

Adams had 32 men in his platoon. Stokes picked 12 veterans from his platoon; Line selected 12 from his all battle-tested fighting men and Staff Sgt. James Archer, 21, of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., picked 10 of his top men to add to the total.

"By that time were wild and mad and half crazy," Archer said. "Men had been lying there for an hour waiting for the surrender. They knew if it didn't come they'd have to go over. You should have heard Logan and Levinson. They were the first two over in my squad anyway, and they were yelling like Indians, howling and swearing at the top of their lungs."

They went over at 7 o'clock in the evening, into the smoke of the last mortar shells which dropped just inside the walls. As the order to charge came they hit the wall all at once. Later the lieutenant said the staff sergeants went first and the sergeants said the men

Task Force Batters Bonins, Near Japan

47 Nip Planes Downed, Two Ships Sunk, Dozen Damaged

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, June 16—Striking toward the heart of Japan's mainland, an American carrier task force swept in on Nippon's southeast flank and hammered the Bonin islands, only 588 miles from Yokohama, while Yank land troops pressed forward on Saipan island in the Marianas.

The strike Wednesday against the Bonins, vital guardians on the southeast approach to the Japanese homeland, was announced in a communique today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz. Earlier the Tokyo radio reported the attack.

47 PLANES DOWNED

Tonight's communique pictured Yank forces as making good progress northward along the southwest coast in spite of furious tank-led Japanese resistance.

The communique said task force planes which hit Chichi Jimi and Haha Jima, in the Bonins, destroyed 47 Japanese planes, sank two surface ships and damaged 12 other vessels. Simultaneously Iwo Jimi, a volcanic island 150 miles southward, was bombed.

While the carrier planes were smashing the Bonins to block Japanese air interference from the north with the Saipan invasion Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Liberators were carrying out the war's heaviest land-based air strike against Truk, in the Carolines. Truk is 667 miles southeast of Saipan.

Since the carrier plane attack on the Marianas started last Saturday, 191 Japanese planes have been destroyed, 16 ships sunk and 36 vessels damaged.

First Blow On Bonins

Wednesday's attack was the first against the Bonins since the start of the war. Undoubtedly it took American warships closer to Japan-proper than did the carrier-based Doolittle Tokyo raid of 1942.

A fleet spokesman at Pearl Harbor said the Bonins assault apparently caught the Japanese completely by surprise. As the task force moved in its spotted a medium Japanese transport. It was heavily damaged by carrier bombers and then sent to the bottom by a destroyer. The survivors, totaling 112, were rescued and made prisoners of war.

The Japanese tried interception at Chichi Jimi but 33 Nippon fighters were shot down by carrier planes.

The targets of the attacking sky fighters were fuel tanks, barracks, airfields and other ground installations. American losses were four planes and five airmen.

AFTER THOSE JAPS — Following up the landing by Americans on Saipan in the Marianas where Jap resistance has been smashed at the beach landing scene, an American carrier task force has hammered the Bonin islands, only 588 miles from Yokohama.

Jap Attacks On Biak Repulsed

Enemy Loses 160 Men, Two Tanks

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Saturday, June 17. — Three Japanese counter-attacks by screaming infantrymen supported by light tanks, were hurled back north of Mokmer airdrome on embattled Biak island, in the Schouten group, headquarters announced today.

The attacks, Thursday, cost the Japanese 160 dead and two tanks destroyed.

Americans, holding positions between the airdrome and over-looking hills northward, stopped the Japanese with bazookas and .50 caliber machine guns. The Nipponese made three attempts to break through American defense perimeters around the airdrome, which Allied planes are using.

Concentrated In Hills

A headquarters spokesman said the Japanese have concentrated most of their forces in the hills north of the airstrip. Americans are endeavoring to eliminate them.

The airfield, captured June 7, is within bomber range of the southern Philippines.

The Japanese assaults followed an American enveloping movement of their ridge positions and was intended to break the Yankee move.

The first attack started at sunrise, the Japanese coming down from the hills. They ran into a low piece of ground about 200 yards from the edge of the hills and were stopped there. Bazookas destroyed one tank and set fire to another.

Won First Tank Battle

It was on Biak that American forces won the first tank battle of the Southwest Pacific May 29, repulsing one of the defenders' early counter thrusts.

Allied destroyers off the Biak coast meanwhile silenced Japanese artillery and mortars which have been harassing supply lines to Mokmer. Aerial reconnaissance reported the Borokoe airdrome, two miles beyond Mokmer and the second American objective, is unserviceable and apparently never had been finished sufficiently for Japanese use.

OPA Offers No Hope For More Gasoline

WASHINGGTON, June 16 (AP) There is no hope for any expansion of civilian gasoline allotments "in the near future," the Office of Price administration said today in announcing that automobile fuel rations will remain at present levels for the third quarter of the year.

Gasoline consumption for the nation as a whole is running about equal to quotas, the agency said, but in the East allocations have been exceeded by a considerable margin.

"This picture points to a need for increased effort to conserve gasoline, and to live within quotas in the critical months we are just entering," Charles Phillips, OPA rationing chief said.

Yanks On Saipan Slashing Inland

Jap Resistance At Beach Is Smashed

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, June 16—United States assault forces have smashed Japanese resistance at heavily defended Charan-Kanoa beach on Saipan island after once having been hurled back a short distance, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced tonight.

Nimitz reported in a communique that the enemy resisted with intense mortar and artillery fire but the American positions were consolidated during the night of June 14 as naval forces heavily bombarded enemy installations.

June 15 Attack Gains

He reported that at midday on June 15 a major element of the Yanks began an attack which advanced the lines nearly half a mile in the palm-studded Charan-Kanoa area and that lesser advances were made in other unidentified sectors.

Preliminary estimates indicate that two Japanese divisions are defending Saipan, Nimitz stated after reporting:

"Our assumption that Saipan would be strongly held because of its strategic location in the Japanese defensive system has been proven correct."

There still was no announcement here regarding the number of Americans landed on Saipan Wednesday. Tokyo radio reported one division (15,000) men had been set ashore.

Fighting Is Bitter

A Japanese division normally is between 10,000 and 15,000.

Although the communique spoke of fighting only in general terms it appears the Yanks have advanced nearly two miles north from Agingan Point beachhead. This progress was made by bitterest fighting against mortar, artillery, machinegun fire and tanks through rich sugar cane fields and heavily palm-covered land.

The communique today did not mention tank action on either side although last night's communique reported enemy counterattacks with tanks and Tokyo radio said 16 American tanks were destroyed.

Reds Plunge On Toward Viipuri

LONDON, June 16 (AP)—Soviet forces smashing along the northern front captured more than 100 additional populated places today as the Red Army of Gen. Leonid A. Govorov forged deeper into Finland despite savage resistance by the Finns, Moscow announced tonight.

The Soviet striking force, estimated in Sweden as at least six divisions totaling probably 70,000 men, seemed headed irresistably for the key port and naval base of Viipuri.

Among the newly captured communities named by the broadcast Russian communique tonight were Uusikirkko, slightly more than 32 miles southwest of the big port, and Jukkola, Virola, Masseljarvi, Pistola and Putrola-Leitlila in the same area.

Others As Near As 25 Miles

But Moscow radio reports indicated that other points taken by the slugging Soviet Army were as close as 25 miles to Viipuri.

While the two main columns of Russian troops were slashing toward Viipuri, one on the direct route through Kiyennapa and the other, along the indirect coastal route, other Soviet forces were hammering away at both flanks to make the offensive a four-pronged drive.

The Finns claimed their counterattacks had thrown back the Reds near Siiranmaeki and that more than 5,000 Russians had been killed in the last three days.

Yet a report from Stockholm said Field Marshal Baron von Mannerheim, commander-in-chief, had told the Finnish government that his troops could hold out only two and half months at terrific cost.

A dispatch from Moscow by Associated Press correspondent Eddy Gilmore said the Finns had constructed a series of deep defenses as part of their Mannerheim line. This dispatch, quoting a field reporter for the Army newspaper Red Star, said that a breach of about 50 miles had been cut through the Finnish lines and that the Russians had taken a grip on two thirds of the Karelian isthmus in the first week's fighting.

GOOD REASON

OPA Figures Out Demand For Books

The reason, the OPA believes: To get a new liquor license, a person must present book No. 4 for identification.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This news letter is a weekly feature of this column and is meant for you to send to a relative or friend in the armed services.)

June 16, 1944.

DEAR _____

Service men and officers in the news this week.

Naval lieutenants (j. g.) Cecil Schwalbe and Culver Hill and their families have been visiting here this week. The men had completed training at Tucson, Ariz. Schwalbe is to report to Gulfport, Miss., and Hill to Harvard for assignments. Lt. (jg) Lloyd Croslin has been visiting his family here. He, too, is to report to Harvard.

Ensign Adrian Bowden, a former member of the Tech faculty, has been visiting here and will report to Mare Island for assignment.

Lt. S. C. Arnett, jr., and family are visiting relatives in Lubbock. He is on leave from the Coast Guard and is stationed in Palm Beach, Fla.

Lt. Chas. A. House of the U. S. Army Air Corps Intelligence has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. House of near town before going to San Francisco for re-assignment. He spent six months in England in pre-invasion work. One of the highlights of his military career was Feb. 21, 1943 when he was a guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House. He was one of 15 guests for the day and the group was entertained by Mr. Roosevelt who told them many interesting sidelights of his trip to Casablanca.

Lt. Ned Bradley, an instructor at Camp Hood, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Maude Bradley.

Maj. and Mrs. D. M. Clark and sons have returned to Dayton, Ohio after a 10-days visit with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. V. V. Clark, 2617 Nineteenth street.

Word has been received that two Lubbock men have been promoted temporarily from first lieutenant to captain: Henry Haynie Williamson and Emery B. Selman.

C. E. Maedgen, jr., has been promoted to captain at Luke field, Ariz.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hudnall have received a telegram repeating a short wave broadcast from Japan giving word their son, Sgt. Weldon S. Hudnall, is well. He was captured at Corregidor and the only communication prior was a post card, mailed months after he had been taken prisoner.

A special showing of a news reel, "Eve of Battle," at the Lindsey theater, meant much to Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Patterson because they were almost sure they recognized their son, Pfc. Purl I. Patterson. He was shown backing a bulldozer upon a landing barge. A second showing of the film was shown for the parents by order of Clark W. Abbott, manager of the theater, and identification was positive. The parents were presented the film which they will have made into a print.

It has been learned by friends that Col. Daniel S. Campbell, former director of training at Lubbock Army Air field has been transferred from the command of Pampa Army Air field to an undisclosed post.

South Plains men have been in the news of the war from all fronts. It's been exciting to Lubbockites to read the names of the glider pilots who landed troops on the Cherbourg peninsula and fought with the airborne soldiers because many of them are graduates of South Plains Army Air field.

News on the home front is concerned mainly with the Fifth War Loan drive. A big military parade is to be staged Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in its support. It will be dedicated to Gold Star mothers and to wearers of the Purple Heart. A special reviewing stand for the mothers and wives of soldiers who paid the supreme sacrifice in World Wars 1 and 2 will be placed on the balcony of Hotel Lubbock. The women will meet on the mezzanine floor at 1:30 o'clock.

Tom Pendergraft has resigned as manager of Hotel Lubbock to accept an executive position with the W. L. Tooley Hotel company and will leave this week-end for El Paso where he is to have headquarters at El Paso del Norte hotel.

Rev. D. C. Ross, a pioneer West Texas Methodist minister, died Tuesday afternoon after a lingering illness of many months. Floyd L. Jackson, former district court clerk, died Sunday night at his home after long illness.

Dr. W. A. Pettey has been elected president of the Lions club for the 1944-45 years. He will succeed Dr. Ewell L. Hunt.

That's all this week.

Yours.

Agreement Expected On Price Control

WASHINGTON, June 16. (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) views as "hopeful" the prospects for a Senate-House agreement on the price control extension bill that would permit Congress to recess late next week for the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

Barkley added that "about the best we can look for" is a recess starting June 24, two days before the Republican meeting at Chicago. The recess would continue until August 1. The Democratic convention starts July 19.

Although Barkley said the committee conferring on the bill failed to settle any of the principal points of dispute in its first meeting this morning, he told reporters:

"I'm hopeful we will be able to work out a bill, and avoid a deadlock."

Mechanized Warfare Wrecks Beautiful Norman Landscape

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN
United Press Staff Writer

WITH ADVANCED BRITISH FORCES, France, June 15. — I found a rose on the battlefield today, and beyond the rose a man and beyond that man a town.

All were dead, crushed by the mighty vortex of mechanized warfare that is grinding across this beautiful countryside, rolling rose bushes, whole fields of blood-red poppies and rich begonias under the treads of the tanks, splintering the trees with high explosives and burning, blasting, and obliterating towns and villages.

Smile On His Lips

A tank had ground across the rose bush. The petals lay crushed and red in the imprint. I saw a young British Tommy lying a little beyond, a smile on his lips as if he had entered Valhalla light heartedly in the inferno of battle.

He lay on the outskirts of a ruined village. Beyond him was a burned out tank, the tattered remnants of a man beside it. And a few steps down the road, lay two Germans, caught in a spray of machine gun bullets.

Can't Blow Away Stench

A breeze swept lightly in from the sea over the invasion beaches, catching up long curls of grey smoke rising from the mass of brick and smouldering embers which once had been a settlement. But it cannot blow away the stench of death and cordite from this valley of destruction.

Cannon blast a symphony of destruction through the gaunt arms of the trees, stripped of their foliage. Everywhere there is the clank of tank treads, the roar of gunfire, the metallic rattle of shell cases.

Barrage Swings To And Fro

This has been a No Man's Land between elements of the 2nd German panzer division and British armor. Even now the barrage swings to and fro across a valley in which one can pick out the smoking ruins of German tanks.

We have suffered some tank losses, too, but not as many as the Germans. The 2nd division elements have rushed up to support the badly-mauled 21st panzers, a division reformed since it suffered disaster with the Afrika corps.

Valley Is Littered

The valley is littered with broken field guns, burned out armor, discarded equipment and huddled forms in field grey or khaki. The village, part way up the slope, looks like a brick kiln. I've seen these little towns rolled under the crushing wheels of mechanized warfare in Belgium, in Africa, in Sicily. Now it is the beautiful Norman countryside that is being blasted into a charred house.

A German prisoner comes up the reeking slopes. He is followed by a Tommy with a bayonet on his rifle. Somehow the German resembles a steer being guided to market. He's a mere lad of 17, terrified as he passes along the bloody way. He had been taught that war was glory. Now his darting eyes see how closely horror has brushed past him.

Prolonged Rest In Bed Can Lead To Death, Doctors Say

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

CHICAGO, June 16. — Dangers in complete, prolonged bed rest, sometimes leading even to death, were emphasized in a series of reports to the American Medical association today.

This is a new trend in medicine, to keep sick people, and those injured in accidents, from complete inactivity, such as has been the practice for many years.

The reports were by Doctors William Dock, Los Angeles, Tinsley R. Harrison, Dallas, Texas, and Ralph K. Ghormley of Rochester, Minn.

The hazards are many and various, they said. One is shriveling of muscles and even of bones and joints.

Another peril is collapse of the lungs, something which has often been blamed on surgery, anaesthetics or plain illness, when the bed was really responsible.

There are other ills such as constipation and backaches which when started in long bed rest may persist for years.

Blood clots which are fatal when they reach heart or lungs are another common danger.

Hannegan Reported Anxious To Bring Texas Demo Unity

DALLAS, June 16. (AP)—Former state Democratic Chairman E. B. Germany said today that he had receeived word that national Chairman Robert E. Hannegan is anxious to discuss "a trade out" that would bring harmony in the ranks of southern Democracy.

Germany, who spoke at a Lions club luncheon, declined to comment further or to reveal the source of his information. He later told a Dallas News reporter:

"My personal attitude is that we can't say anything until after the national convention. If the convention should go along with the demands of the Texas delegation from the regular convention, I believe all of the uninstructed Texas electors would vote for Mr. Roosevelt or whoever the party nominees may be."

The News said that it had been reported from other sources that word went a few days ago to the pro-Roosevelt faction to try to compromise.

Germany told the Lions that Hannegan is eager to make peace with revolting southern Democrats, based on the desire of the party to hold on to patronage. If the party nominee for president is defeated, patronage is gone, he said, adding:

"The anti-southern campaign that everybody knows about is the cause of the revolt in the South, not Mr. Roosevelt."

He expressed doubt that the party would meet the demands of the uninstructed Texas convention, which included restoration of the two-thirds rule.

Shipbuilder Offers Jobs To War Vets

NEW ORLEANS, June 16. (AP) — Shipbuilding's Andrew Jackson Higgins "wants 50,000 maimed and partially incapacitated veterans of this war, right now," to train for "induction" in the nation's industrial and agricultural forces.

This plan was announced to newsmen last night at a conference in which the dynamic southern industrialist disclosed he already has advised one branch of the armed service he will employ 10,000 partially incapacitated men immediately.

"We have 14 training schools and men with five years' experience to instruct in mechanics and ships' trades," he said, "and I have the assurance of state and local agricultural leaders that these boys can be taught modern scientific farming if they want to learn it here. They can buy good productive farm land for a song if they decide to settle here."

He said that 300 returned "maimed" veterans already are working in his plants, many at highly skilled jobs.

Amarillo Turning Out Superfort Mechanics

AMARILLO, June 16. (AP) — Amarillo Army Air field for some time has been training aviation mechanics for B-29 Superfortresses such as those which blasted Japan yesterday.

Brigadier General Carl W. Connell, commanding officer at the field, said the men in the technical school are now potential aviation maintenance men who will become combination gunners and mechanics on the B-17 and B-29 bombers.

Connell stated that ground repair and maintenance is being deemphasized in stressing emergency flight procedure, interpretation of instrument reading and diagnosis of power plant operation.

To Amarillo field has been assigned the task of training mechanics in assembly line fashion to keep the Fortresses and Superfortresses aloft. Air force students graduating from Amarillo field are trained in the use of special aircraft mechanics tools, the replacement of parts, repair and visual inspection of structural uints, oxygen systems, heating equipment, propellors, engines and other vital parts.

When it was declared that mechanics would be trained in the field's technical school, civilian and enlisted instructors went through an intensive training program at the Boeing plant in Seattle, Wash.

King George Visits Normandy Beachhead

LONDON, June 16. (AP) — King George visited the Normandy beachhead today.

A court circular said the king was accompanied by the Sir Alan Lascelles, his private secretary, and Capt. Sir Harold Campbell of the Royal Navy.

No details of the visit were given.

King George's visit followed similar crossings by Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Gen. Charles De Gaulle, and several members of the Allied high command.

BOOM SPIRIT STRONG

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP) — The boom spirit continued strong in the stock market today despite a large volume of profit selling prompted by the week's sharp rise.

High lights of the session included a 2,517,340-share turnover, heaviest in over a year, a one-half point advance in the Associated Press 60-stock average to 84.9, the highest level since October, 1937, and a large array of gains of a point or more in steels, motors, rubbers, aircrafts, rails, oils, copper and industrial specialties.

News of the bombing of Yawata and other heavy attacks on Japanese positions, plus encouraging reports from Normandy, helped to keep buying interest at a high pitch.

Closing gains ranged from 1 to more than 2 points for Chrysler, Goodrich, Goodyear, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Bendix, International Nickel, American Smelting, Westinghouse, Du-Pont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Pullman, Phillips Petroleum, Southern Railway, and Atlantic Coast Line.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NE WYORK, June 16 (AP)—Cotton futures closed unchanged to 20 cents a bale lower today in quiet and reactionary dealings attributed to uncertainty over final outcome of price control legislation.

Also named by traders as a barrier to active dealings was the fact that prices have risen sharply in the past six consecutive sessions, with futures gaining more than $2 a bale and establishing new seasonal highs.

Profit-taking and hedge-selling were absorbed through mill buying and local covering.

Oil Allowables Set For Texas

AUSTIN, June 16. (AP) — The railroad commission today announced a July crude oil production order calculated to result in a daily output of 2,064,968 barrels.

The daily allowable for July is 2,225,130 barrels but underproduction of 7.21 per cent is predicted.

The Petroleum Administration for War certified to a need for 2,064,000 barrels of crude oil daily from Texas and estimated Texas production will exceed this figure by 698 barrels.

With addition of 143,490 barrels daily of distillates and natural gasoline total, Texas production will be an estimated 2,208,188 barrels or 4,188 barrels more than the PAW certified for all petroleum liquids.

Producing Days

The July production pattern included 24 general producing days, 23 for the East Texas field, 25 for the Van field and 27 for the Panhandle. This month there were 23 general producing days, 22 for East Texas and 27 for the Panhandle.

Major changes, by fields, are reflected in the following comparisons of June 10 and July 1 allowables:

Nazi Captives Print Anti-Allied Leaflets

CORSICANA, Tex., June 16. (AP) Navarro County Sheriff Cap Curington said today that German prisoners of war in the Mexia internment camp were responsible for the appearance in Central Texas of pamphlets criticizing Allied censorship and making extravagant claims of Allied invasion losses.

The pamphlets were distributed here, at Hubbard and in other central Texas towns.

Sheriff Curington said he had worked with the Federal Bureau of investigation and other agencies in tracing the pamphlets, which, he asserted, had been printed by the prisoners. The leaflets claimed that seven divisions had been annihilated, 64 warships sunk, 1,300 gliders and 1,436 planes destroyed in the first three days of the landings on the coast of Normandy.

The leaflets, according to the sheriff, were signed by the "American-Soviet committee," and contained a hammer and sickle insignia.

Youth Kills Himself Before Ex-Fiancee

ORANGE, Texas, June 16. (AP) —A love-stricken youth turned a revolver on himself while his 18-year-old ex-fiancee watched and then, in his dying moment, pulled himself erect to toss into the young woman's lap an engagement ring which she had returned to him only two days earlier, police said today.

Police Investigator L. M. Tully identified the youth as Paul A. Fitch, 22. Tully said his ex-fiancee told officers that Fitch demanded return of the engagement ring after they had quarreled earlier this week.

The ring was returned, she said. Yesterday, Fitch attempted to give the ring back to her and effect a reconciliation. She said she refused to accept the ring, whereupon he shot himself once and collapsed, then struggled to his feet long enough to toss the ring at her before dying.

St. Louis Browns Turn On Power, Blast Tigers, 14-1

DETROIT, June 16 (AP)—Pitcher Bob Muncrief gained his fifth successive victory and sixth of the season tonight as the St. Louis Browns pounded out a 14-to-1 decision over the Detroit Tigers in a twilight game before 14,931 spectators.

The Browns gathered four runs in the first inning and chased southpaw Frank Overmire in the fourth, making it easy for Muncrief. The lone Detroit run came in the second when Jimmy Outlaw doubled and Don Ross singled.

The Tigers sabotaged Overmire with two errors in the first that started the rally. Tom Hafey doubled the first run home and Milt Byrnes contributed a two-run single that provided the winning margin. Floyd Baker's fly drove in the fourth run.

Two singles and Byrnes' fly accounted for a run in the third, and the Browns got five in the fourth off Overmire and Joe Orrell before Bob Gillespie retired the side. Two runs in the fifth off Gillespie and two in the eighth off Walter (Boom Boom) Beck completed the scoring.

McCormick Stars In Reds Win Over Cubs

CHICAGO, June 16. (AP)—A Three-run homer by Frank McCormick was the turning point today as the Cincinnati Reds, after surrendering an early lead, came back to pound out a 10 to 5 victory over the cellar-holding Chicago Cubs.

His fourth round tripper of the season, McCormick's blow brought the third placers from behind during a seven inning rally. On the next pitch Eric Tipton also homered off Hi Vandenberg, who until that frame had pitched shutout ball. Paul Erickson, the Chicago starter, had been knocked out before he could retire a batter in the first inning.

McCormick also got a double and single to lead the 13-hit attack off four pitchers, which gave Clyde Shoun his season's sixth victory. Shoun, who allowed ten hits, was excused for a pinch hitter during the seventh and Ed Heusser hurled hitless ball the last three frames.

Bill Nicholson's eighth homer of the year, coming after Lou Novikoff singled Phil Cavarretta in with the 2-2 tying run in the fifth, put the Chicagoans ahead, 4-2. They added another run on a trio of singles in the sixth.

Erickson, who shut out Pittsburgh on two hits Sunday, lasted only long enough to face four batters. Woodrow Williams tripled and after a pass, singles by Gee Walker and McCormick finished him.

LAAF Civilian Team Noses Out Grocers

In a hard fought battle at the 23 street and Avenue W diamond Friday evening, the Lubbock Army Air Field Civilians edged out the Scarborough Grocermen with a four-bagger by Mangold in the eighth inning, bringing the final tally to a 7 to 6 count.

In the seventh inning, Cope homered for the Grocermen, bringing the score to an 6-6 tie. The remainder of the seventh passed without runs, and likewise, the first of the eighth. Mangold then reached the plate for the LAAF boys, and hammered out the winning blow.

Haygood went the entire route in the box for the Grocermen, whiffing ten men, and allowing only six hits, while Branch caught. For the LAAF Civilians, Spivey took the victory, allowing eleven hits, and sending four back with

Burl Gene Moore Reported In Top Shape For AAU Run

Burl Gene Moore, Lubbock's Blonde Comet, reported from New York Friday that he was in top shape and ready for "the race of my life" at Randall Island in the National AAU track and field meet this week-end.

In word sent to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Moore, 2012 17th street, the Westerner track star said that he was in top condition and had been working out for several days in New York city with other Texans in the meet.

FOUR MARKS THREATENED

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the amateur Athletic Union, figured that four records are in danger in the National Junior and Senior A. A. U. track championships this week-end. Ferris considers Charley Parker, the Texas schoolboy sprinter, capable of beating the junior 100-meters record of 10.4 seconds and that Coast Guardsman Clayton Farrar is likely to surpass J. Errol Vaughan's Junior 10,000 meters record of 32:37.5. In the senior events, Lieut. Cornelius Warmerdam may beat his 15 feet 2½ in. pole vault record and Earl Audet may better Jack Torrance's 55 feet 3 inch shot-put standard.

First Big Chance

Moore, who stepped the fastest 440-yard dash time recorded in the nation this year, expressed a confidence that he would meet with another victory at the National meet, his first showing outside his native state.

Moore reported that all the Texans were in top shape and ready to make New York track fans know the speed of Texas runners.

Moore didn't know when he would be called upon to run in the two-day meet, and all efforts to learn the time of his races failed to give local fans any information.

Mary Arnold Upsets Favored Doris Hart

DETROIT, June 16 (AP)—Another upset was tossed into the National Clay Court tennis championship today with fourth seeded Mary Arnold of Los Angeles defeating second ranking Doris Hart of Maimi, Fla., 6-1, 6-3, to advance to the women's singles finals tomorrow.

Miss Arnold faces Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, Calif., who yesterday eliminated defending champion Pauline Betz in a three-set match.

Both finalists are 27 years old. Miss Arnold won the public parks crown in 1937 at Pittsburgh, and three years ago she was a finalist in the clay courts meet, losing to Miss Betz. Last winter she spent two months in Mexico working on her game, but recently she has been a secretary at Wilmington, Del.

Miss Arnold is ranked sixth nationally, one notch behind Miss Bundy.

Francisco Segura of Coral Gables, Fla., and Bill Talbert of Indianapolis, the two top men players, were idle today. They play semi-finals matches tomorrow leading up to Sunday's finals.

The Kiwanis Club Cardinals turned on the pressure in three big innings Friday afternoon at Tech field, and rolled up an 18-to-4 victory over the Junior Chamber of Commerce nine in the junior baseball American League.

Lefty Jack McCabe started for the Jaycees and made a good start, but the fireworks exploded in the third inning with a four-run splurge by the Cardinals that iced away the game. Lynch relieved McCabe and finished the game.

Mike Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., one of the seven "golfing Turnesa's brothers, was deadlocked with Nelson at the 138 figure, after blasting out a sensational 67 on his second round. Next, with .139 after a brilliant 68 today, was Harold (Jug) McSpadden of Philadelphia, who entered the play as co-favorite with Nelson.

Vic Ghezzi, the broken Army sergeant from Deal, N. J., who paced the first round with a 67, skidded to 73 today and took over fourth place with 140. ## A Commendable Action

MOST Americans doubtless will look with favor upon the President's approval of a congressional measure providing that the courts-martial growing out of the Pearl Harbor attack must be started before Dec. 7, 1944.

This does not suggest that Americans, taken as a whole, would want the trials to start at a time which might be hurtful to the victory effort in any way. Delays in the past have been accepted with negligible criticism because of recognition of the possibility that disclosures in a trial or the animosities aroused by the proceedings might help the enemy.

But there can be no doubt that most Americans hold the opinion that the responsibility for this worst naval disaster in U. S. history must be fixed. Few people can pretend to know whether the blame should be placed at the door of Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, who were in command on that fateful day, or whether the responsibility rests upon certain bureaus in Washington. But, regardless of where the blame belongs—and someone certainly was responsible—it should be placed. Those responsible should be made to feel the disgrace, plus appropriate other penalties, which will provide an example for all time to come to restrain others who might be inclined to grow careless.

Naturally, disclosures that pertain to tragedies of the past should not be made if they might endanger plans for the future. At the same time, justice and the national welfare demand the earliest possible trials, consistent with the nation's safety and the conduct of the war. Every day of delay increases the risk that evidence which might be essential to justice will cease to be available.

By signing the bill, the President evidenced the opinion that, so far as can be seen now, no harm will be done by forcing the cases to trial before next Dec. 7. Such being his obvious view, his approval of the congressional measure was eminently proper. It was the only action to take.

Is It Belated Patriotism?

THE public reaction, if any, may be interesting to the announcement the other day that petitions for a strike vote in the Consolidated Vultee aircraft plant in Fort Worth were withdrawn because, as one union negotiator put it, "those bombers we are making are needed so damned bad."

The remark may or may not have been made with the thought that it would bring a mighty shout from the American people of, "That's the spirit!" Doubtless such a statement on behalf of the workers would have brought acclaim as recently as a few months ago. Perhaps it will and should be acclaimed now.

But it may happen that some people will take the view that this manifestation of patriotic spirit comes a little late. These skeptical people may wonder whether this expressed attitude was inspired by genuine patriotism, or by the realization that the days of bountiful feasts for war labor may be drawing toward their close.

It is true, of course, that the bombers the workers are making might be needed urgently if they were available for use immediately. It is entirely possible, if not probable, that the utmost bomber output of the nation will be needed badly for a long time to come. But it seems extremely improbable, in view of recent developments, that future needs for bombers—or for most of the other materials of war—will ever again be as great in the present struggle as they have been in the past and as they are right now.

It is entirely possible that the time may not be far distant when neither the United States nor its Allies will have need for all the bombers that this nation can produce. It is conceivable that, when victory is won in Europe, the Allies may find themselves with a surplus of bombers, and of many other materials, beyond any possible requirements for bringing the war in the Pacific to a successful conclusion.

If that should happen, then those who walk off their jobs are likely to discover that those jobs may be terminated abruptly. They may discover that there wouldn't by any jobs awaiting their return.

Perhaps, in the case of the Consolidated Vultee workers in Fort Worth, it is proper to accept at face value the claim that they were motivated solely by the spirit of patriotism in withdrawing the strike petition. But, if the action was patriotic, it also was smart. It recognized that the day is drawing near—in some cases, may be here already—when labor must mind its manners to prolong its stay at the fat job feast it has enjoyed so long.

One Minute Sermon

When thou shalt vow a vow unto the Lord thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it: for the Lord thy God will surely require it of thee; and it would be a sin in thee.

But if thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee.—Deuteronomy 23: 21 and 22.

LADS AND LASSES

X

The fat man's name is Willy. He is my partner now and, at last, I have a job that is almost all drilling. Only, alas, temporary. There are about 20 of us, "old-timers," "experienced girls" (did "experienced" once mean years instead of months?) that they shift around from job to job. Some day, when the Draft has captured the Lead-men, we will, I suppose, be "Lead-ladies" and our crews all-female. Not soon, I hope. Out where all those Sunday Supplement articles seem to be written, Women In Industry may be "better than men." Right here, I must admit, we distinctly are not.

There's Evelyn, for instance. Evelyn comes to work with a red rose tucked in her golden hair. She wears white shoes, rather dressy, and pastel-pink socks, and above her powder-blue flannel slacks she repeats the ping motiff in a puff-sleeved blouse. Most of us, by supper time, look as though we had worn our blouses for a week and had never washed our hands. Evelyn is always fresh from the bandbox.

Evelyn doesn't do a great deal of what you might call heavy work. Betty, on the other hand, is always eager to "get at it." She'll dash up and down from the stock-room, carry finished ships off to Inspection, push jigs with the best of them. In spirit, she's right up in the top flight of workers. But Betty's hand, holding a drill-motor, has no conviction in its grasp. Betty's gunsel assumes a life of its own and "goes and marks the rivet—mean old thing!"

The attitude of the "fellers" towards us females is a mixture of exasperation and indulgence, usually with indulgence triumphing. We are not expected to be able to adjust our dimplers, get our sets loose from the squeezers, get paint-stuck nuts "started." The fellers" live in a wonderful atmosphere of homage and appreciated superiority. A few of them—mean guys—will say, "It's your job, sister," but the majority are willing enough to help us out. They should be. Jim, six-foot, heavy-muscled, takes the wrench that ninety-five-pound Carol has been tugging at and, with a nothing-to-it air, turns the bolt loose. "Oh, Jim, aren't you wonderful!" Carol cries, "Annie, did you ever see any guy as strong?"

Heady wine, this.

"What does you girls find to talk about all the time?" my partner, Willy, asks. I have often wondered myself. Except for the moments of actual gunning, when making yourself heard is nearly impossible, almost all of us are always chattering. We keep up a running commentary on the work we are doing: "Gee, looka that hole!" . . . "There, them rivets is okay!" We keep up a more spirited commentary on the doings of our fellow-workers: "Say, look at Gwen and Bill, will ya? Looks kinda serious, don't it?" . . . "Take a look at Harry. Boy, is he burned up!" . . . "Say, did ya hear about Anne bein' sick?" We tell long stories of our pasts, or of other people's.

Occassionally the story is so engrossing that we forget to work, and stand, motor arrested in mid-air, but as a rule the narrative is broken with the clatter of gunning or the scrape of our files. "An' I was tellin' him . . . okay, hit it! interlude for gun) . . . I says to him I never told her no such thing. . . . Say, tap that one down a little, will ya? . . . and he says it wasn't only her told him. . . . Hit it! (interlude) Gimme the mirror, I better look at these just to make sure (interlude for inspection of rivets). Yeah, they're okay. Let's do them up by the rib now, huh? . . . What was I sayin'? Oh, yeah. Well, he says it wasn't just Dotty . . ."

Not, of course, on every job. It depends on what you're doing. And, to some extent, on whether you and your partner "click."

Willy and I "click." That is, we're not always at cross-purposes, both reaching for the drill at the same moment, never being ready simultaneously with our gunning, and bucking. We have the same "style" in riveting when I expect Willy to hit hard and short, he usually does; when I'm not sure of myself and want a light tapping he doesn't misunderstand and give it a "blast." We change around, swapping gun and bar back and forth between us. Most girls, Willy has observed, don't want to change. "They think they're gunners, and (unprintable suggestions) they ain't gonna do nothin' but gun—never!"

Pete refuses point-blank to have a girl for a partner and, so far, has had his way. Willy says any man would rather have a "feller," of course. I inquire into it, and it turns out that one of the reasons female partners are considered a pain is that "a guy's gotta be always watchin' out what language he uses." As Willy's vocabulary is, to put it decorously, picturesque, I wonder a little what his remarks might be, freed of my presence.

Looking At Life - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

IT'S STRANGE how the most unexpected things happen to you in places where you least expect such things.

Last Sunday in church I noticed a fellow a couple of pews ahead of me whom I seemed to remember.

I noticed how devoutly he was praying, how fervently he was singing, how attentively he listened to the sermon.

The service was over, I waited for him.

"For heaven's sake, if it isn't Jim," I said, as I shook him by the hand. "Haven't seen you in years. Where have you been, you old goat?"

"I have been in prison," he replied, and he looked as if he was proud of it.

I guess I must have looked pretty much surprised, and somewhat shocked.

"Don't look so startled," said Jim. "Prison has done me a lot of good. It has set me free."

And then he told me his story.

Like so many others, he had a good job and a fine wife.

But the job didn't pay enough to keep up with the Joneses, yet keeping up with the Joneses was important in the neighborhood in which he lived and in his social circles.

So, Jim got into debt to live the way he thought they should live.

He couldn't pay back what he owed and the loan sharks began to press him, and finally they threatened to go to his boss and to garnishee his salary.

That meant his job. So Jim started to "borrow" money from the till to pay the interest on his debt.

He lived in constant fear. Fear of discovery, fear of losing his job, of disgracing his family.

And what he feared finally happened. He was arrested for embezzlement, tried and sentenced to prison.

Everything he had lived for had tumbled down like a house struck by a bomb.

He thought of suicide. He thought he'd never survive the shame.

BUT THERE in prison he had lots of time to think. So he also thought of the sham of his life, of the false pretenses, the folly of social climbing, the idiocy of trying to be what he wasn't.

It was as if the chains had fallen off his legs, the handcuffs off his wrists.

Strange to say it was prison that set him free.

His wife stuck to him, and so did his real friends.

When he came out, they started all over again. Jim got another job — much smaller than the one he had before. There's no more sham in his life, no more false pride.

"There are thousands who are in worse prisons than the one in which I served my time," he said, as we parted.

"Those are self-made prisons, and no one can set you free but yourself."

When I got home, I did a lot of thinking. And one thing that Jim had said kept going round and round in my head:

"No one can set you free but yourself."

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

ENTRANCE of the war into its semifinal phase—the reconquest of Europe—has stimulated private and public discussions of a postwar program designed to maintain "full employment", although no one has yet defined that term.

Military men have given off-the-record warnings, based on blueprints for cancellation of huge contracts affecting shipyard and aviation workers early next year, that the country will confront the problem sooner than expected.

So far no practical or specific plan has been evolved, as the threatened discharges at the Brewster plant revealed. Thousands of other people have been laid off, or soon will be, but no method for giving them work in other emergency factories or in manufacture of civilian goods has been provided. None is in sight.

The Baruch-Hancock report has never received White House approval, and it is still kicking around on Capitol Hill. The answer is that, despite its distinguished authors, realists here do not regard it as a panacea. In their opinion, high-sounding words and mountains of figures cannot brush aside harsh realities.

Nobody has adequately explained how 50,000,000-plus industrial employes can be kept on their jobs when the need for more trucks, tanks, ships, planes, heavy artillery and uniforms disappears. Nobody has told how a national income of $150,000,000,000 can be maintained, although it is estimated that no smaller sum can underwrite even a comparative or present level of prosperity.

STAGGERING: Here is a single dramatic example of the difficulties we will face when Hitler has been hoosegowed six or eight months hence. The problems, of course, will be aggravated a thousandfold when Tojo is captured.

The government has built a $200,000,000 plant in Detroit for Chrysler to make tanks. It furnishes, directly and indirectly, work for thousands of men and women—from mines producing raw material to ports whence the finished product is shipped abroad.

No peacetime manufacturer will have any use for that sprawling structure or its equipment. No employer can take over all the employes now assembled in the Michigan city alone.

As RFC chairman, Jesse H. Jones advanced the money for this and many similar projects. He has heard vague reports that Henry Ford has said he might, depending on future conditions, pay five million for the tank plant. And it is no secret that Uncle Sam's No. 1 businessman would be glad to accept the auto wizard's check for that amount. Jesse would probably consider it a right smart bargain even though he would be assailed for "giving away government property."

When it is realized that Washington has invested $16,000,000,000 in new or expanded war factories and machinery, and that the Chrysler venture represents only $200,000,000 million of that total, the immensity of the postwar questions impresses practical officials as staggering and almost beyond solution.

BLAME: Industrialists look toward the future with foreboding. They begin to appreciate that their cherished system of private enterprise will be on trial, and that it may be discredited permanently unless it can make work for those now employed and millions of restless returning veterans.

They have suddenly awakened to the realization that FDR has dumped this appalling problem right in their laps. No recognized New Dealer has any connection.

Mr. Jones is Secretary of Commerce. His former aide and ex-Liberty Leaguer, Will Clayton, has charge of reconversions. Messrs. Baruch and Handcock wrote the only semi-official blueprint on postwar industry. Paul Hoffman, Studebaker president, heads the Committee for Economic Development.

Eric A. Johnston, fair-haired boy at the White House, is president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. The WPB is stocked with "economic royalists." In short, Mr. Roosevelt seems glad to let his one-time enemies carry the ball. They, not he, may get the blame if somebody falls down on the job of handing out postwar pay envelopes.

JOBS: Industry realizes, albeit belatedly, its prospective dilemma. Its spokesmen have begun to deny the generally accepted dogma that it is their duty to provide work.

Although Mr. Johnston is extremely optimistic, the Chamber's economist, Emerson P. Schmidt, does not hold the views of his boss. He recently wrote such a bearish report on "postwar readjustments" that it was not circulated publicly. It sounded too callous and cynical. Here are a few excerpts that reflect private employers' new attitude and concern:

"Many critics of our economic system are currently challenging 'private enterprise' to find the necessary number of jobs . . . There is no separate entity called 'private enterprise' which we can look up in the telephone book or before which we can lay the challenge . . . It is not the objective of businessmen to provide jobs. Businesses are established for the purpose of enabling their owners to make a living or secure a return on their investment, just as a worker seeks a job in a steel mill not to produce steel but to gain a wage.

"Grandfather does not make a cigar after each meal to give the cigar maker a job. Joe, the haberdasher, does not open a men's store to provide jobs for his clerks. Businessmen are constantly viewed as having a special responsibility to create jobs, but it is more fruitful in the long run to be realistic about the sourse of jobs."

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Loman

THE layman, confused by contradictory radio broadcasts and eyewitness reports, may grasp the situation in Lombardy more clearly from the following nontechnical information set forth by military experts:

It is paradoxical that, although we landed in France to attack, our first job is to go immediately on the defensive. Even if our advance guards could fan out through the Seine basin it would be folly to do so.

We must construct our own "Atlantic Wall" facing inland—a solid line of armor that will hold off enemy counterblows until we can mobilize our supplies and equipment and group our formations. Not until this has been done can we thrust spearheads in the direction of Paris or elsewhere, or beat off the enemy.

Rommel knows this A B C of logistics, too, hence he may be expected to strike with fury. Scattered Nazi forces and the peninsula garrisons are likely to hold out rather than to retreat, realizing that by doing this they will be more valuable to von Rundstedt in breaking up our concentrations than they would be in adding their weight to the German counteroffensives.

SHOPS: Nazi coastal barriers were not a myth, despite first accounts of easy going in some quarters.

As in North Africa and Italy, our men came upon mines. In Normandy, Reichswehr engineers had, with diabolical cleverness, laid hidden explosives one on top of the other so that when sappers removed the first menace the canister underneath blew up.

We, also, have learned a trick or two about mines. We spread them before us wherever our units stop.

An important task is that of gathering information about the enemy in a strange land. One huge warehouse in a debarkation port was used to house nothing but maps.

Mobile printing shops just behind the lines turn out the latest texts on which altered typography and damage are listed every few hours from reconnaissance reports and on word from patriots. A single warships in the invading armada carried two thousand charts.

San Antonio Man To Get His "T" Sweater After 14 Years

By WILLIAM E. KEYS
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, June 16.—It took him 14 years but Raymond Keller of San Antonio, University of Texas football halfback in 1899, is is going to receive a brand new orange and white, varsity "T" sweater.

Keller's persistence not only won the sweater but proved present day athletic officials of the school to be in error.

The background:

In September, 1899, the university's athletic council made maroon and orange the school's official colors. Some time later, after a straw vote showed orange and white to be favored by students, the council changed the colors and advised that holders of letter sweaters and jerseys of maroon and orange could exchange them for the new colors.

Case Turned Into Jest

In 1930 Keller became aware that his sweater no longer represented the true colors of the university. He wrote a letter to H. F. Ettlinger, council secretary. Ettlinger checking what he thought to be the correct record for 1899, wrote Keller that to his knowledge there were no orange and maroon university sweaters in existence. The case became somewhat of a jest as Keller continued to write periodically. He received no replies until a friend, Dr. A. E. Cooper, jokingly wrote him recently that he should send in the orange and maroon sweater.

Now A Museum Piece

Sure enough, a box arrived containing Keller's old sweater and a warm-up shirt — both in maroon and orange.

Not only is the department of athletics sending Keller a modern "T" sweater but is also displaying his old sweater and shirt in a showcase on the ground floor of the administration building.

Pamphlet On Spinach

TOM SUTHERLAND, field representative of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, invites schools, libraries, study groups and individuals to ask for a 25-page pamphlet on Spanish speaking Americans in the war.

He has several thousand copies.

Sutherland says:

"The full story of the part played by our Spanish speaking soldiers has not yet been written, but this booklet shows clearly that this country has ever reason to be proud of these men."

Some facts presented by the CIAA:

250,000 Spanish speaking Americans are in all services on all fronts.

One out of every four men on Bataan were Latin-Americans from New Mexico.

Sutherland's office is the Scarbrough Building, Austin.

No Shortage In Stamps

There may be a whisky shortage in Texas but it isn't reflected in sales of whisky tax stamps. True, the stamps are not affixed to bottles the minute they are bought, but eventually they are used for this purpose.

Consider this: In May of last year whisky tax stamp sales totaled $423,852. In May of this year they totaled $619,961. That's an increase of $196,109 in one year. However May's sales this year were $87,062 less than those for April of this year. The trend is downward for this year; nevertheless sales remain well above last year when whisky shortage was discussed as much as it is now.

State Big Land Dealer

LAND is big business in Texas and the state itself is one of the largest elements in the land business.

A report on an audit of the general land office from Jan. 1, 1938 to Aug. 31, 1943, shows the land office receipts for that period to be $41,189,058. The great bulk of it went into various permanent funds including $13,423,488 to the permanent school fund and $9,076,367 to the permanent university fund. The state's oil and gas royalties in the period yielded $14,021,020 and rental on mineral leases brought $10,890,599. Sale of land produced $7,174,773 and the interest alone on land sales produced $4,955,374.

Difficult School Year

The Texas State Teachers association says that the school year just closed has "been one of the most difficult in the history of the Texas Public School system."

A press release says a survey shows that since the start of the war more than 20,000 of the 48,000 Texas teachers have either resigned or changed places of teaching; that several thousand teachers did not return to the school room last September.

"During the year teacher training institutions in Texas were able to supply only one applicant for each seven calls for teacher," said the association. "The prospect for next school year promises no relief."

A decline in enrollments in teacher training courses indicates that "thousands of young persons in choosing a profession reject teaching because of the low money value placed on their services," the association concludes.

Officer Fined $1,000 For Buzzing Santone

SAN ANTONIO, June 16. (AP)—Army officials announced today that 2nd Lt. William L. Markham of Hondo Air Field had been fined $1,000 today by a court martial.

The Broken Arrow, Okla., pilot entered a guilty plea to a charge of flying at a low altitude over west San Antonio, and the $1,000 was ordered deducted from his pay.

USE SEA POWER TO GET HOGS IN A HURRY
FEED STANTON'S
20% PIG RATION
Today, more than ever before, it is extremely important to speed up growth and keep mortality down in young pigs. Feed is too precious to waste on the laggards and pork is too valuable to lose before it goes to market. Stanton's 20% pig ration provides extra protection against both. In hundreds of hog lots, it is working consistently to improve pig health, speed up growth and reduce mortality because it gives little pigs the same kind of boost that chick starter gives to baby chicks—it is being fed widely to sows before farrowing and through creep feeding—to pigs from 2-3 weeks of age on up.

MANAMAR
In Stanton's 20% pig ration supplies the hard-to-get feeding essentials—fish protein, food minerals and vitamins, including the important Vitamin B complex."

B-G PLUS
Is a patented vacuum concentrated extract from fish. This new and potent product, resulting from ten years of research and experiment, supplies extra trace minerals and vitamins in Stanton's 20% mix ration.

SOLD ---But Not Sold
Last week we thought we had this 4 rooms and bath FHA cottage sold, but the party buying it was transferred. We asked $4,850.00 but cut the price some due to the house needing paint and paper. The master bedroom is 13x15 and there is an attached garage that could be converted into another room. The way other properties are selling, we believe this to be a good value. Located in 2400 block 24th street and now vacant. We have the key. Oh yes, the house is insulated too.

Man Convicted For Desertion

LAMESA, June 16 (Special) — E. J. Emfinger, 35, prominent Dawson county farmer, today was assessed a 60-day jail term and $250 fine upon conviction by a 106th district court jury on a charge that he deserted his nine-year-old invalid daughter.

The jury, headed by Ross McDonald, foreman, received the case from special Judge J. E. Garland at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon, and reported an hour later.

The state alleged that Emfinger, a Dawson county resident since 1920, left the child alone, in the Emfinger residence, without food nor water from a Saturday night to the following Monday morning, while he and his wife went fishing at a place near Muleshoe.

Asked Neighbor's Help

C. D. Hogg, a neighbor to Emfinger, testified that Emfinger came to his place about 6 p. m. May 20, told him of the impending fishing trip and asked that he attend the Emfinger stock the next morning. Hogg said he asked his neighbor if he should see about the invalid child, and that Emfinger answered "she'll be all right."

Hogg stated that he and his wife and daughter, nevertheless, managed the next day to see how the child was getting along. He testified that they found the child on a pallet around which chairs had been stacked. There was no evidence, he said, of water and food. He opined that the child, who weighs about 26 pounds, could not possibly have moved from the pen formed by the chairs.

Called County Nurse

Hogg said he called Mrs. Jap Randle, Dawson county health nurse, who fed the child at 8 o'clock Sunday night, more than 24 hours after the Emfingers had left. Mrs. Randle testified that she found the girl with a swollen tongue, dry mouth and cracked lips which showed signs of blood. The invalid's clothing consisted of a cotton dress and nothing more, the health official declared.

Emfinger, when on the stand, stated that he and Mrs. Emfinger left the fishing spot for home at 8 o'clock Sunday night, but had tire trouble and were unable to reach their place until Monday morning.

Testimony brought out that the child had been an invalid since birth, unable to walk or sit up.

Two Other Children

The Emfingers have two other children, a boy, 3, and a daughter, 13. It was disclosed that these children were left at a relative's home during the fishing trip.

District Attorney Rollin McCord called only three witnesses, Hogg, Hogg's daughter and Mrs. Randle. The defense attorney, Kilmer Corbin, Dawson county judge, presented 15 witnesses, including two physicians.

The trial concluded the June term. Two cases scheduled for hearing were continued upon motions by defense counsel.

Mercury Pushes Past 100-Mark Here Friday

Friday was definitely shirt-sleeve weather.

For the first time this year the West Texas Gas company's thermometer showed a reading in excess of 100 degrees, the mercury rising to 101 at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There had been several days of 100-degree temperature but never before had the mercury risen beyond that number.

The weather forecast said the South Plains would have partly cloudy weather today.

Eight Hurt When Bus Strikes Fire Truck

SAN ANTONIO, June 16 (AP)—Eight persons were injured, two seriously, when a San Antonio Transit Co., bus crashed into the side of a fire truck, overturning the truck and scattering the firemen over the sidewalk and lawn at 6:30 p. m. today.

All five firemen on the truck were injured, two seriously, the bus driver was hurt and two soldiers suffered minor injuries.

Entire Crew Escapes Sinking Trawler

LEWES, Del., June 16. (AP)—The fishing trawler Hannah A. Lennon was struck and sunk by an unidentified tanker about four miles off the Delaware capes at 4 o'clock this morning. The entire crew of 45 escaped in lifeboats and rowed safely to Lewes.

Thomas Jett of Reedville, Va., owner of the trawler, claimed the tanker continued on its way without stopping.

Roosevelt Continues To Hold Support

Massachusetts Poll Reveals President With 53 Per Cent

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., June 16.—There is little indication that Massachusetts would desert President Roosevelt if he and Governor Thomas E. Dewey were the candidates in the presidential election today.

GALLUP

An intensive survey by the Gallup Poll throughout the industrial New England state indicates that the President has as much voter strength, percentagewise there today as he had in 1940 when he ran against Wendell Willkie.

In making the poll, field reporters for the Gallup Poll asked a carefully selected cross-section of Bay State civilian voters to choose between Roosevelt and Dewey, assuming that the election were being held today and that these two men were the candidates.

The results:

For Roosevelt ..... 53%
For Dewey ..... 47

One of the reasons for the continued support of the President may lie in the fact that Massachusetts voters are heavily in favor of the post-war cooperation with other countries, a policy of which Roosevelt has been an outstanding exponent.

In 1942 in a referendum conducted in more than one-quarter of the Massachusetts districts scattered throughout the state on the issue of U. S. taking the initiative in forming a federation of nations, voters gave their approval by an overwhelming 75 per cent.

The President does not, however, command the support in Massachusetts that he received in 1936 against Alfred M. Landon, former Kansas governor.

The trend of Roosevelt's support is shown in the following table, comparing his percentage of the major-party vote in 1936 and 1940 with its strength as shown against Dewey today.

| | Percentage of Roosevelt Vote |
|---|---|
| 1936 | 55% |
| 1940 | 53 |
| Today | 53 |

Other recent state-wide polls show the following results:

| Electoral Votes | | FDR | Dewey |
|---|---|---|---|
| 47 | N. Y. | 48% | 52% |
| 35 | Pa. | 52 | 48 |
| 28 | Ill. | 47 | 53 |
| 19 | Mich. | 46 | 54 |
| 16 | N. J. | 51 | 49 |

Fantastic Robots

20 feet and a length of about 25 and is usually painted dark brown or black. It is driven with some sort of motor with a distinctive, pulsating rhythm, carries a bright yellow light in its tail, shoots flames from its exhauts and sometimes trails smoke.

The plane's speed was variously reported as "terrific" and between 220 and 250-miles-an-hour. It flies rather low and on a straight course, making it a good target for guns and fighters. Usually they come over in groups of two or three, exploding on contact with buildings or within 5 to 15 seconds after landing. The explosive load was estimated anywhere between 1,000 and 8,000 pounds.

Special Emplacements

The "headless" craft were launched from special emplacements along the Pas-De-Calais coast of France—long targets for Allied bombers. A guess was that they were catapulted down steep rails and flipped into the air by a dip at the bottom like a roller-coaster.

Control of the craft remained a mystery. The simplest idea was that they merely were aimed and set on the take-off to travel a certain distance in a certain direction. A more popular theory was that they were controlled by radio either from the ground or from piloted planes.

The robots apparently were accompanied by regular fighter and bomber planes in the newest attack. In one district flares were dropped by an enemy plane which had been tracked through the skies by heavy anti-aircraft fire. This seemed definitely to be a regular German fighter-bomber.

Another One Explodes

Another plane, spouting yellow flame, apparently one of the pilotless craft, crashed of its own accord and exploded.

(The British Broadcasting company announced during the night that henceforth its transmissions were liable to be interrupted and that a record of the Big Ben chimes would be substituted for an actual pick-up of the famous clock's actual chimes. The broadcast, said the notes of Big Ben striking the hour would no longer be used, lest they might guide the enemy.

(Damage caused by the robot planes has been relatively small, BBC said, but acknowledged that some casualities had resulted from the raids.)

RAF Hits Berlin

Britain-based planes largely grounded during the day.

While the Britain-based American heavies were waiting for the weather over the continent to clear, Italy-based American big bombers struck again at the lifeblood of the German war machine, bombing an oil refinery at Bratislava, capital of the puppet government of Slovia, and five oil refineries in the Vienna area. The action took the bombers across Czechoslovak territory for the first time.

The Fortress and Liberator crewmen striking the French objectives in the lingering daylight found clouds still covering their targets and most of them were forced to use the overcast bombing technique. In addition, American fighters went out late in the day to renew strafing attacks against railroads and truck convoys south of the Normandy beachhead.

Few Patrol Battle Zone

A few fighters kept up patrolling of the battle zone throughout the day despite soupy weather, and one of these, a Canadian Spitfire, shot down a Messerschmitt within four miles of a new operational base.

This RCAF base was moved across the channel within the past two days by sea and air, and at dusk last night was fully operational, with Spitfires in constant readiness, field dispatches disclosed. It was the first such Allied unit to begin operating exclusively from newly-captured French territory.

Shipwrights were paid nine dollars a week, plus meals and lodgings, when they built the Great Lakes fleet at Presque Island in 1812.

Superfortress Engine Builders On Strike

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—Officials of the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, which is producing about 90 per cent of the power plants for the new B-29 Superfortresses, announced that 117 tool grinders quit work today in protest over the discharge of one worker.

The company would not say whether the work stoppage had affected the production of engines beyond stating:

"Tool grinding is one of the most important operations in manufacturing parts for the B-29 Superfortress bomber engines."

A spokesman at UAW local headquarters said they hod no knowledge yet of any work stoppage at the plant. The company said the worker was discharged for "refusing to work" and that the tool grinders said they would not return to their jobs until the man was rehired.

The strike, the first reported at the plant, came a day after the War department disclosed a raid by the huge bombers on Japan.

cluded in reference to the minister and his associates:

"The minister of Finland, Mr. Hjalmar J. Procope, and three counselors of the Finnish legation, Mr. T. O. Vahervuori, Mr. Urho Toivola and Mr. Risto Solanko, were handed their passports at 5 p. m. today and requested to leave the country at the earliest moment because of activities on their part inimical to the interests of the United States."

While no official announcement of a chief of legation was made, Aleaxnder Thesleff, secretary, apparently becomes charge d'affaires.

The American legation in Helsinki is maintained with only a skeleton staff with Edmund Gullion as charge d'affaires.

Policy Grows Tougher

American policy toward Finland has been growing more and more tough-handed as the Finns persisted in their refusal to make peace with Russia. Two weeks ago 84 Finnish firms were blacklisted.

A complete rupture of diplomatic relations has been expected ever since the Russians, British and American governments began pressuring Helsinki to get out of the war, but the White House and State department have preferred instead to maintain legal relationship while taking all economic and diplomatic steps short of a break to show their disapproval of Finland's course.

PIONEERS REUNION

TEMPLE, June 16 (AP)— The Central Texas Pioneers club, claiming a membership of 3,000 to 4,000, will hold its annual reunion here June 29, celebrating the 63rd anniversary of the founding of Temple.

Raiders Batter Jap Steel City

night fighters into the air, but there was no indication that these were effective in combatting the heavily-armed Superfortresses, which flew all the way unescorted.

"Their they go smack into their damned steel works," Wiant quoted one bombardier as shouting when he got his bombs away.

General Wolfe was ordered to stay at the main base after planning to make the mission. Sweating it out in his ward room with Maj. Gen. George B. Stratemeyer, second in command of Allied Air forces in the Southeast Asia theater, he awaited the flashed code word from the leading planes.

Several Bases Used

The word, "Betty," meaning "bombs away," came at 10:59 p. m. local time (10:58 a. m. Thursday, central war time, or 12:58 a. m. Friday, Japanese time).

The American Superfortress airmen took off from several bases created in western China with the sweat of nearly 500,000 Chinese laborers. Six-tenths of the territory over which they flew is hostile. To conserve fuel for their four 2,200 horsepower engines they kept as low as possible until reaching the Japanese mainland, where they went upward in a long slanting approach to Yawata.

Yawata was attacked from both high and medium altitudes. The city was picked as the likeliest spot of the first strategic bombing of Japan by the B-29s since within a 50-mile radius it contains a heavy concentration of shipping facilities, both rail and sea, as well as the Japanese imperial steel plant.

No Incendiaries Carried

No incendiaries were carried because the great number of inflammable products in the manufacturing city would feed the flames set off by heavy explosions in the blast furnaces.

This was not the first action of the B-29s, however.

A shakedown combat operation was carried out June 5, with an attack on the Makasan railway shops at Bangkok, capital of Japanese-occupied Thailand. A communique at that time describing the results without naming the planes said: "Black smoke rose to great heights through the clouds, as the bombers, despite bad weather, pressed home widespread attacks on railway shops and marshalling yards. The city's defenses apparently were caught by surprise as the formations converging on the target at a great height from all angles dropped a record tonnage of demolition and incendiary bombs on this important Japanese port."

Saunders In Charge

With General Wolfe grounded by the War department, the ranking officer on the smash at Japan was Brig. Gen. Laverne (Blondy) Saunders, one-time West Point footbal star. Saunders is a wing commander of the new 20th Air force, established for operation of the B-29s on a global basis.

Eight lead planes carried especially selected crews whose task was to inflict maximum damage before the enemy was fully alert. They dropped no flares. The glow of fires from their bomb hits was counted on for illumination of the targets for succeeding planes.

The eight lead planes took off from various fields at 10-minute intervals ahead of the main forces. Other take-offs followed every few minutes. As twilight settled over the Chinese fields, the great planes still were lifting into the air with their enormous bomb and fuel loads.

No Escort Necessary

American fighter planes of the 14th U. S. Air force, bolstered by late-type arrivals, kept watch at interceptor fields jutting out toward Japanese-controlled territory. They did not escort the big ships, each of which is a small arsenal in itself, with numerous 50-caliber machine-guns and a 20-m.m. cannon. The fighters were ready to repel any Japanese swoop on the bomber bases.

Correspondent Wiant's story said his plane was "in the forefront of scores of Superfortresses," and said the mighty ship "is longer than a pullman, carries nearly as much gasoline as a railroad tank car, and each of its four engines is more powerful than a locomotive."

The attack was no mere psychological raid" — otherwise we would hit Tokyo again," as did Doolittle's fliers April 18, 1942.

Much Ach-Ach Ineffective

Over the Kyushu island, the southernmost of the Japanese homeland group, the enemy began probing frantically with his searchlights and later began tossing up a curtain of flak. Most of the anti-aircraft fire was ineffective at some of the altitudes flown by the B-29s, which can go above 30,000 feet.

Bursting metal dug into the sides of some ships flying in at medium heights, however.

(Japanese broadcasts, which minimized the results of the raid, said Moji and Kokura also were hit in addition to Yawata. One broadcast acknowledged that the Yawata plant had been hit "with a few bomb fragments" but declared there was "no damage whatever to plant facilities.")

Gasoline Is Problem

As to conclusions to be drawn from the use of the B-29s in China, Wiant said that gasoline was the chief limiting factor of future operations. Every drop must be flown over the Himalyan "hump" by the Superfortresses themselves. That is the route by which the big planes flew from the United States into China.

"Frequent Superfortress raids cannot be expected against Japan unless a pipeline is extended from India to China, or unless an eastern China port is seized from the Japanese," Wiant wrote.

CRASH NEAR TROUP

SHREVEPORT, June 16 (AP) — An Army basic trainer from Barksdale Field crashed today near Troup, Tex., killing one airman and injuring another, the Barksdale public relations office said tonight. Names of those in the plane were not announced.

News Briefs

Cpl. and Mrs. H. F. Montgomery are here for a few days visit with friends. Cpl. Montgomery, employe of the Avalanche-Journal mechanical department when he entered service in September, 1942, is stationed at the Bryan Army Air field.

Pvt. Wesley B. Smith, former ad compositor with the Avalanche-Journal, is home with his family at his 1309 Twenty-fourth street residence on a ten-day furlough. Pvt. Smith, who has been stationed at Fort Sill since his induction several months ago, is being transferred to Camp Gruber, Okla., he said.

Funeral services for Mrs. John M. Marcy will be held today at 3 p. m. in the First Methodist church with Dr. H. I. Robinson, pastor, and Rev. Lee Vaughn officiating. Services were originally set for 3:30 p. m. Saturday.

Superfortress Fights Off Six Jap Fighters

U. S. SUPERFORTRESS BASE, Western China, June 16 — Six Japanese fighters unsuccessfully attacked a lone B-29 Superfortress on April 26 near the Indo-Burma boundary in the first actual combat involving the world's biggest and deadliest bomber.

The Superfortress, commanded by Col. Allan Clark, Larned, Kans., had just crossed the Himalayan hump on a transport mission from China when Japanese fighters attacked one by one. Each fighter made only one pass, the entire scrap lasting only 25 minutes.

Sgt. Harold Lanham of Fort Worth, Tex., the rear gunner, damaged one fighter which trailed smoke as it dived out of sight. Lanham thus became the first crewman to hit the enemy from a Superfortress.

(This chance encounter was viewed in Washington yesterday as providing a satisfactory answer to the question of whether the B-29s could protect themselves. Washington's information was that the attacking Japanese planes numbered a dozen and that two of them were shot down. Brig. Gen. H. S. Hansell, chief of the staff of the 20th airforce, said the big craft acquitted itself very well in the fight.)

yesterday in an unsuccessful effort to stem the Americans, Whitehead said. The Americans were moving over roads littered with Axis dead and wrecked equipment.

Tough young Nazi soldiers formed the core of resistance in the area, but they had hurled Polish Russian and Czech conscripts into the forefront.

The Americans entered St Sauveur at noon, and its capture was officially confirmed tonight Whitehead told of house-to-house battle inside the town. He himself entered it after patrols had gone across the Douve and penetrated into the town.

Counterblow Expected

A headquarters spokesman said it was expected that in a town of such obvious strategic importance the Germans almost certainly would try to win it back with counterattacks as they did last Tuesday at Montebourg on the approaches to Cherbourg. Montebourg is 10 miles northeast of St. Sauveur.

U. S. Troops trying to split the Cherbourg peninsula now hold a 10-mile-long semi-circle running southwest from the Quineville area on the east coast, through Montebourg to St. Sauveur and then southeast-ward to the Carentan area.

The communique said three U. S. battleships, the Texas, Nevada and Arkansas, carried out heavy bombardments in support of the U. S. troops near Carentan and Isigny, seven miles to the east. These points are in the center of the American front, on both flanks of which the Americans are well inland.

Battleships Shell Area

On Thursday the British Battleship Ramillies, assisting British-Canadian forces at the eastern end of the Normandy line, silenced an enemy battery at Benerville after an hour's duel, the communique said. Benerville is near Deauville and about 20 miles northeast of embattled Caen.

King George VI visited the Normandy front during the day and lunched with the Allied ground commander, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery. He crossed the channel on the Cruiser Arethusa and landed on shore from an amphibious duck.

Adverse weather once more crippled Allied air activity.

Whitehead said that the Germans threw cooks, truck drivers, and supply troops into the line before St. Sauveur.

went first and someone said the officers went over first but everybody agreed everybody else got over in nothing flat.

Fifteen minutes later the last echoing shot and last blast of grenade died out inside the castle walls. Out of the smoke came the picked men of Company G with about 30 prisoners. The rest had been killed. Half the captured were wounded.

They then counted noses and gasped in amazement; not a single man who scaled the walls had been even wounded.

"It's not possible," said the battalion commander. But he counted again and found it was.

Among the German dead was the lieutenant who had yelled to them in perfect English that he was sorry, but they couldn't surrender because they'd been ordered to hold the castle until 9 o'clock that night and "you know the army."

Nazi Robot Bombs Viewed As Just Another By-Play

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Initial British reaction to the Nazi cross-channel bombardment with robot flying bombs suggest that this particular German "secret weapon" is apt to have not much more effect on the course of the war in Europe than the super-gun firing on Paris in World war One had on that struggle, which was none at all.

SIMPSON

That was a hit-or-miss attack. Projectiles hurtled some 75 miles through the stratosphere fell at points in Paris a score or more miles apart. The dispersion factor was too great to make it an effective bombardment of military objectives.

Even Less Controllable

The robot bombs falling in Britain so far as yet disclosed seem even less controllable although it is too early yet to dismiss them as a Nazi war novelty or regard them as just another development of German war of nerves technique. It hardly seems probable that Berlin placed sufficient faith in their abiilty to crack British morale on the home front to have put into their manufacture what would have been necessary to turn them out in effective quantity. Presumably that would mean not scores or hundreds of flying bombs to be launched in a sustained bombardment, but thousands or tens of thousands of the missiles. Britain is a small place on the maps but a big target to shoot at.

Invasion Was Surprise

In any event, there is warrant for concluding that the Allied selected invasion area in Normandy caught the Germans by surprise. The set-up for the robot flying bombs was made elsewhere, presumably on the Pas De Calais natural bridgehead for a continental invasion. It could not be turned, or at least it was not turned against the embarkation beaches in England from which the descent on Normandy was launched, nor upon the huge convoys of naval craft. Landing boats, transports and supply ships which made the channel crossing into the bay of the Seine little hindered by the foe.

Resort to the robot bombers confirms the Allied disclosure many weeks ago that the foe was setting up some sort of special anti-invasion equipment.

Company Wins Suit On Bedford, Others

A federal district court jury, after deliberating nearly six hours here Friday, returned a verdict in favor of the plantiff in the civil case styled California Land and Cattle company against C. I. The June term, which was presided over by Federal District Judge T. Whitfield Davidson, was concluded with the announcement of the jury's verdict in the case. The fall term is scheduled for sometime during the month of November.

Housewives Urged To Store Up More Eggs

Uncle Sam is asking Lubbock county housewives to buy and store a few additional dozen eggs immediately, according to Peter F. Murray, area marketing supervisor for the War Food administration, adding that the family refrigerator is the last resort in getting 25 million dozen surplus eggs stored.

If the 25 million dozen, the equivalent of 1,400 carloads, are not stored at once they are going to spoil and they are needed by hard working Americans on the home front, he said.

Commercial storage space is "jam-packed" to capacity. Eggs have been going into storage at such a rapid rate lately that there is no room left for additional supplies. Every housewife is needed to help solve the emergency storage problem. Several additional dozen stored in every American home now will provide nutritious food for the family and help Uncle Sam solve a tough problem.

Conferences Set By Methodists

TULSA, June 16. (AP)—Methodists leaders tonight closed their south central conference with expressions of gratification at operation of the jurisdictional system which obtained its first full test in the five day series of meetings here.

It was the first time since the union of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Methodist Church South, that election of bishops had been held in the area conference, and delegates generally indicated opposition to any suggestion for return to the general conference system.

Tribute To Area

Dr. Frank Smith, Houston, senior bishop of the jurisdiction, paid strong tribute to the area, declaring that from it would come "the greatest development in civilization, industry and culture that any part of America will know.

"Oklahoma, Texas, and New Mexico represent the vast sweep of a new land which grips one with its opportunities. Here are to be found the two largest home mission enterprises in America—the Indian mission and the Southwest Mexican mission. These people have made splendid American citizens and they love their land and their church.

Bishop Smith was named to head the jurisdictional council which was empowered to select an executive secretary, to choose area headquarters, and to outline the duties of the staff. A $30,000 budget was set up for jurisdictional headquarters.

Others on the council are Bishop W. C. Martin of Topeka, Dr. Paul W. Quillian of Houston, Walter W. Parker, president of the State Teachers college at Camp Girardeau, Mo.; Marshall Steel, Minister of Dallas, Paul D. Womeldorf of Wichita, Kas.; Mrs. Earl Foster, Oklahoma City, president of the Women's Society of Christian Service for the Western Oklahoma conference, and Judge E. L. Walker of Ruston, La.

Fall Conference Dates

Dates and places of fall conferences were set in most instances. In some conferences, selection of the site was left to the jurisdictional council. Those set are:

Arkansas-Louisiana area under Bishop Paul E. Martin: Little Rock conference at Hot Springs, Nov. 8; Louisiana conference, Nov. 15; North Arkansas at Morrilton, Oct. 31.

Dallas area under Bishop Charles C. Selecman: North Texas at Dallas, Oct. 24; Northwest Texas, Nov. 7.

Houston area under Bishop Frank Smith; Central Texas at Fort Worth on Nov. 1; Southwest Mexican at Kerrville, Nov. 21; Southwest Texas at San Antonio, Oct. 18; Texas at Houston, Nov. 7.

Oklahoma-New Mexico under Bishop Angie Smith; East Oklahoma on Oct. 17; Indian Mission Sept. 14; New Mexico, Oct. 11; and West Oklahoma, Oct. 24 at Oklahoma City.

Voting machines were first used in England.

Governor Proud To Be A 'Fool' In His References To Lee

RALEIGH, N. C., June 16. (U.P.)—Gov. J. M. Broughton said today that he was proud of being called a "fool" by Richard Lloyd Jones, publisher of the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune, if he had earned the title for referring to Robert E. Lee as a great American.

Broughton, who this week announced his candidacy for vice-president of the United States, said in a Memorial day address at Gettysburg, Pa., that "Gettysburg is a memorial to two of the greatest Americans of all times, Abraham Lincoln and Robert E. Lee."

Referring to the Gettysburg statement, Jones said in a letter to Broughton yesterday "such silly statements as yours only add to the injury that the South loves to inflict upon itself."

"For heaven's sake quit making a fool of yourself and the South," a postscript to the letter said.

"If Lee had any American ideals you cannot name them. Poor man, he had no ideals. He was small, provincial, no bigger than Virginia. His own declaration. Not every American was it?

"By his own statement he disbelieved in both slavery and secession and he fought against his two chief convictions. Does that show American idealism?"

Broughton's reply said "you state that Lee had no American ideals. And, in fact, that he had no ideals at all. You add that by referring to Lee as a great American and a man of ideals I am making a fool of myself and of the south. If so, I am proud of the designation."

Texas Man Advocates New World Calendar

AUSTIN, June 16. (AP)—Dr. J. W. Baldwin, University of Texas professor, advocates a new world calendar of 364 days with equal quarters of 91 days each.

Dr. Baldwin says the calendar, adopted in 14 foreign countries, retains the 12 months basis with the first month of each quarter having 31 days and the other months 30 days.

In order not to disturb regularity of seasons the 365th day is observed as Saturday, December W, a world holiday, but not marked on the calendar. For leap year, an extra day, June W is added at mid-year.

The advantage?

Dr. Baldwin says stabilization of quarters, the basis of business for most government an industry, would save billions of dollars.

Also the dates of the month are frozen on the same days of the week every year. Christmas would always be on Monday, for example.

Tonight Is Deadline On Candidate Filing

Tonight midnight is the deadline for candidates to request that their names be placed on the official primary ballot, according to L. C. Ellis, chairman of the County Democratic Executive committee candidate who have not filed are asked to do so by midnight.

Otherwise, you've paid out your money to date in vain. By law tonight midnight is the final date for precinct and county candidates to file such requests to have named placed on the ballot Ellis said.

He added that three of the five candidates for justice of peace places had failed to file such requests.
