Mayor runoff forced

Reed upsets incumbent in Ward 3 contest

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer
It was a day of upsets in the Pampa city elections Saturday. Mayor Calvin Whatley, seeking his second term, was forced into a runoff with Sherman Cowan and challenger Joe Reed defeated Ward 3 Commissioner E.L.

"Smiley" Henderson by just 25 votes. In the third contested city race, Ward 1 Commissioner R.W. "Bob" Curry won re-election over write-in challenger Floye Christensen. Whatley drew the most votes in the three-man mayor's race with 937, or 46.3 percent. Cowan was close behind with 811 votes, or 40.1 percent. Jerry Mulanax, who billed himself as the candidate of the "common working man," played the spoiler and helped force the runoff by taking 274 votes, or 13.6 percent. The city will conduct a May 4 runoff election to decide the mayor's contest. Absentee voting in the race between Whatley and Cowan will be from April 15 through April 30. Reed pulled off the biggest upset in squeaking by Henderson, 1004 to 979. The challenger took the 25-vote

The bunny route

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer
The two incumbents for trustee positions with the Pampa Independent School District face a runoff with two challengers following Saturday's school board election.

None of the six candidates in the two races gained a majority of the votes, forcing a runoff between the two top vote-getters for the Place 4 and Place 5 posts.

Though the incumbents remained in the race, they did not garner the upper hand of total votes in their respective races.

For Place 4, incumbent Mary Braswell, now serving as the board president, had 587 votes, while challenger David Robertson gained 606 votes. The other Place 4 candidate, G. M. Walls, Jr., got 376 votes.

Incumbent Curt Beck had 629 votes for the Place 5 position, but challenger Joe Van Zandt received 748. Mark Workman, the other Place 5 challenger, had 185 votes.

Of the 1569 votes cast for the Place 4 trustee post, Braswell had 37.4 percent; Robertson, 38.6 percent, and Walls, 24 percent. Beck had 40.3 percent of the 1562 votes in the Place 5 race. Van Zandt had 47.9 percent, with Workman getting 11.8 percent of the votes.

Business Manager Jerry Haralson reported 1575 voters cast ballots in the school board election.

He said the date for the runoff election will be set by the school board. The election has to be held within 30 days, he said, adding it probably will be the first Saturday in May.

The election drew out a larger number of voters than the past two school board elections. Only 159 ballots were cast last April, when none of the incumbents up for re-election had any opposition.

In the 1983 election approximately 1,200 voters cast ballots, with one race involving opposing candidates.

With absentee voting ending Tuesday, the number of ballots cast indicated a large turnout could be expected, 428 persons voted absentee, a number Haralson said probably was a record.

Reacting to the election, Robertson said, "I guess we get to go again." Since this is his first time to seek public office, Robertson said he was pleased with the support and thanked those who worked for him.

He said it was "a real hotly contested election" and expected it "to get more interesting now."

His opponent, Braswell, could not be reached Saturday night for comments.

Beck said, "I'm looking forward to the runoff" and hoped to be able to win. "I'm anxious to serve the people in the Pampa Independent School District again for another three years," he added.

He observed it was "a fairly close" election, but said he was getting ready for the runoff.

Beck's opponent, Van Zandt, also could not be reached Saturday night.

Miami chooses new mayor; Groom rejects speed bumps

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

Groom residents said they can do without speed bumps and a town marshal, Miami voters chose a new mayor and Canadian school patrons said they want a seven-member school board during city and school elections Saturday.

In Groom's nonbinding public opinion referendum, residents were asked two traffic-related questions: whether they want to re-establish locally-supported law enforcement and establish a municipal court and whether the city should install speed bumps at heavily traveled intersections.

By a margin of 132 against to 72 for, residents here turned town a question asking whether the city should establish a municipal court and hire a town marshal. Fewer people opposed the speed bumps. That proposal lost by a margin of 114 to 103.

In Groom city elections, incumbent mayor Alfred Homer was re-elected with 133 votes, compared to 100 votes for council member and Carson County Deputy Sheriff Jerry Gaines. Although he chose to run for mayor, Gaines will be able to keep his seat on the city council. City council member Bobby Babcock was re-elected with 178 votes. For the remaining council seat, Jerry Thornton defeated incumbent D.A. Watson, 130 to 106.

In the Groom school board race, Pat Weinheimer was re-elected with 188 votes. Don Lyles, a former trustee who left the board last year, was elected with 132 votes.

Also running were Glynda Eschle with 98 votes, Bobby E. Pool with 78 and Joe Homer with 71.

In Miami, 124 city residents chose feed & seed store owner and

Pampa teenager dies from accident injuries

One of six Pampa teenagers injured in a two-vehicle accident Thursday afternoon died Saturday at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Teresa Dawn Guthrie, 13, 701 E. Kingsmill, sustained severe head injuries in the wreck. The girl received initial treatment at Coronado Community Hospital, then was transferred to the Amarillo hospital's intensive care unit. She was pronounced dead about 8:15 p.m. Saturday.

The Pampa girl was the middle passenger in a pickup truck driven by her brother, James Guthrie, 16. Timmie Shorter, also 16, 1306 E. Browning, sat next to the girl, police reported.

James Guthrie and Shorter were admitted to the Pampa hospital, where they were listed in stable condition Saturday.

The eastbound Guthrie pickup collided at 24th and Mary Ellen, an unmarked intersection, with a northbound pickup truck driven by Brent Eugene Baten, 16, 1124 S. Sumner, police said. Riding with Baten was David Staples, 15, 935 Cinderella.

Baten and Staples were treated at the Pampa hospital and released.

On impact, the pickups loaded with teenagers spun out of control. The Guthrie vehicle struck a street sign and at least one pedestrian standing near the northeast corner of the intersection, according to reports. The Baten pickup struck a tree, reports said.

win, finishing with 50.6 percent of the vote.

Curry had an easy time with his write-in challenger. The Ward 1 incumbent won his second term with 70.6 percent of the vote. Curry had 1,283 votes, and Christensen had 533 write-in tallies.

The challenger announced a write-in campaign after being disqualified from the ballot because she wrote the wrong ward number on her filing application.

"I would like to have won without a runoff," a disappointed Whatley said Saturday night.

"We'll stay in there to serve the people and win the runoff," the mayor added.

Cowan said he would have won the election in a two-man race.

"I feel like I won," he said. "If Mr. Mulanax hadn't split the votes, it wouldn't have been any problem," Cowan added.

The challenger was confident about the runoff. He said Whatley "has served his community well, but it's time for a change."

"I still feel I will be the next mayor of Pampa," Cowan added.

A defeated Henderson said Pampans were the big losers in the election.

"I feel very unfortunate to have lost the race. My disappointment is very small compared to the damage that will be done to the City of Pampa. Pampa is the loser," the ousted incumbent said.

Henderson said he isn't sure whether he'll ask for a recount of his narrow loss. He said he will decide about a recount in the "next few days."

Reed said he plans to assume office on Tuesday. The new Ward 3 Commissioner said he thinks Henderson will ask for the recount.

Curry, though a winner in his own Ward 1 contest, was disappointed about Henderson's defeat.

"We've had an excellent commission," he said.

"We were just on the verge of making some real headway," Curry said. "I'm disappointed our team might not be together for the next term."

The winner of a second term was surprised by the showing of his write-in challenger, who took 29.4 percent of the vote.

"I think it was excellent, considering the write-in," Curry said.

Cowan, Reed and Christensen were sponsored by the Citizens for Better City Government group and shared the same campaign treasurer.

The group's candidates and supporters met at Cowan's home Saturday.

The incumbents also stayed together on election night, getting the results at Henderson's home.

The better government group was formed in response to the city's removal of hundreds of driveway pipes and mounds during street repairs last summer. The pipes and humps at the ends of driveways lowered the grade between the drives and streets. The city said the driveway approaches interfered with street drainage and cleaning and maintenance.

The city commission ignored a petition with 572 signatures asking the city to stop the street project.

Cowan said the group's success in Saturday's election wasn't only because of the driveway pipes issue.

He said the voters also were upset about taxes being spent on "extravagant" items, rather than on the city's basic structure, things such as streets and parks and water and sewer lines.

Curry said the sponsored candidates' strong showing "indicates that the block (concerned) about this little issue was much greater than we thought it was."

"A lot more important things than that (the removal of driveway pipes) are going on in Pampa," he said.

Reed said the challengers' success was due in part to citizens' opinions being ignored by the elected commission.

"I want the public's opinion in here, which we haven't had for a long time," Reed said.

"I think the people of Pampa will get what is the right of all free men, and that is to be represented. They have been ignored. They haven't been represented. That's why I became involved in this," he added.

Reed said he will vote the will of the people, even if that conflicts with his own beliefs.

The new commissioner expects to be the odd-man-out on the five-member panel. He said commissioners have voted unanimously most of the time. He likely will cast many dissenting votes, breaking up the usual harmony on the commission, he said.

The results of the city races by ward are as follows:

Mayor
Calvin Whatley: Ward 1, 251; Ward 2, 527; Ward 3, 56; Ward 4, 103; total, 937. Sherman Cowan: Ward 1, 198; Ward 2, 285; Ward 3, 151; Ward 4, 177; total, 811. Jerry Mulanax: Ward 1, 62; Ward 2, 85; Ward 3, 47; Ward 4, 80; total, 274.

Ward 1 Commissioner
R.W. "Bob" Curry: Ward 1, 318; Ward 2, 643; Ward 3, 122; Ward 4, 200; total, 1,283. Floye Christensen: Ward 1, 150; Ward 2, 167; Ward 3, 102; Ward 4, 114, total, 533.

Ward 3 Commissioner
Joe Reed: Ward 1, 240; Ward 2, 355; Ward 3, 175; Ward 4, 234; total, 1,004. E.L. "Smiley" Henderson: Ward 1, 257; Ward 2, 528; Ward 3, 75; Ward 4, 119; total, 979.

City Manager Bob Hart said about 2,030 total ballots were cast in the city election. The number was deemed a "heavy turnout." He said the results will be reviewed again by the city staff on Monday.

Dallas mayor wins a narrow victory

DALLAS (AP) — Mayor Starke A. Taylor won a narrow victory Saturday in his bid for a second term, and challenger Max Goldblatt demanded a recount.

Unofficial returns showed Taylor was re-elected with 50.64 percent of the vote, or 38,998, to 45.5 percent for Goldblatt, or 35,081 votes.

Both candidates had predicted a win. After the final returns were announced Goldblatt, a city councilman, refused to concede the victory.

"I don't know what the final figures are," he said. "I guarantee there will be a recount."

In other balloting, six of eight Dallas city council races were decided, while two will require a runoff.

Dallas County residents also passed a $236.5 million bond issue for roads, a new criminal courts building and other improvements.

Goldblatt, a 73-year-old hardware store owner, used the closing hours of the mayoral campaign Thursday evening to stump for votes alongside congested Central Expressway as supporters held out a sign proclaiming: "Max Says You Could Be At Home By Now."

Goldblatt has favored a monorail system as a solution for Dallas' traffic-clogged freeways.

Andrea Peters, Taylor's political aide, said she was optimistic Taylor would be elected to a second term if his supporters went to the polls. Terry Elkins, Goldblatt's campaign coordinator, said that if telephone polls were correct, the challenger would win.

Taylor, a 63-year-old retired millionaire cotton broker, assembled a campaign war chest of more than $500,000 compared to Goldblatt's $25,000.

During the last 11 days of the mayoral campaign, Goldblatt questioned Taylor's ethics in pushing for proposed State Highway 190 in far North Dallas. Taylor, his son and many of his campaign contributors own land near the highway.

former city council member Tom Stribling as mayor. The rest of the votes were split nearly evenly between incumbent Paul Goodman, who got 76 votes, and Ray McGee, who got 78.

Stribling, who could not be reached Saturday for comment, ran on a theme of cutting expenses. Wanting to follow the lead of President Reagan, Stribling said earlier that he wants to cut some of the city's "high spending." He did not, however, specify what city services or policies he would cut.

Goodman, who runs a computer service at his home, said earlier that he wanted another term so that he could "finish what I set out to do."

Riding on the outcome of the Miami mayor's race was a proposal that the city buy the water system from Consolidated Utilities, which recently received a water rate increase. Neither Goodman nor Stribling voiced support or rejection of the proposal, although Stribling questioned whether the city could afford the purchase. McGee, a retired maintenance man, said he was 100 percent in favor of the purchase. Engineer Gene Barber is studying the feasibility of such a purchase.

In the Miami city council race, incumbents Royce Bailey and Joe Bill Suehs were re-elected unopposed.

In the Miami school board race, incumbents Charles Clark with 241 votes and Marcele Locke with 235 votes were re-elected. Kay Thompson, with 261 votes, replaces Ben Wheeler, who chose not to seek re-election. Terry Underwood received 121 votes and David Brown received 118.

Canadian school district voters approved a proposal increasing the number of school trustees from five to seven. The margin was 334 for and 285 against.

Canadian school superintendent Jim Pollard said the seven-member school board will go into effect at next year's school board election.

Dick Waterfield with 417 votes and Kenneth Thrasher with 362 votes were elected to the five-member board. Other candidates were John Wheeler, who got 268 votes; Bill Rogers, 162 votes; and incumbent Richard Northcott, 318 votes.

Canadian mayor Therese Abraham was re-elected unopposed with 436 votes. Incumbent Joe Schaefer was returned to the council with 432 votes. Kathy Fuson, a resident who led unsuccessful opposition to a revenue bond election to improve the city water system last summer was elected to the council with 382 votes. Pat Waters received 244 votes.

In other area elections:

SHAMROCK:
By almost a three to one margin, 315 to 109, voters here passed a referendum legalizing Bingo games sponsored by non-profit groups.

MCLEAN:
Incumbent mayor George Terry was re-elected unopposed with 167 votes.

Filling two full terms as council members were George Green with 189 votes and Miro Pakan with 147 votes. Martha Jo Bailey was elected to complete one year of an unexpired term with 118 votes. Challengers were Rick Jones with 14 votes and Rocky Bailey with 63 votes.

In school elections, Gwen Henley with 114 votes and incumbent Joe Magee with 118 votes were elected to the two positions. Also running: Bill Thomas: 62; Lloyd Hunt, 86; Bonnie Fabian, 80; Boyd Thompson, 35 and Diann Dalton, 37.

MOBEETIE:
All school trustee candidates were elected. Archie Summers received 70 votes to complete an unexpired term. Nadeen Morris (78 votes) and Randy McCurley (80) were re-elected and Mark Hefley (77) was elected to fill the seat vacated by Joe Darnell.

In city elections, mayor Leona House was re-elected unopposed with 52 votes. Roy Stribling (39 votes) and Dennis Hillburn (21) were elected to the city council. Also running were Margaret Trout (17), Dennis Jones (17), Sharon Arganbright (17) and Marie Gudge (17).

WHEELER:
In school elections: Shari Gail Porter received 198 votes to Bobbye Carol Hill's 155 and Delbert Thomas received 200 votes to write-in candidate's Gail Ledbetter's 134 votes.

WHITE DEER — SKELLYTOWN ISD:
Skellytown position: Mike Chaney received 290 votes to incumbent Merle Kramer's 115. In White Deer: Bobby Blodgett was elected with 192 votes. Also: Jennifer Rapstine, 78; Al Lemons, 136.

In White Deer city elections, incumbents Lloyd Collis, Dean Wyatt and Charles Sutterfield were re-elected unopposed.

LEFORS SCHOOL:
Joe Watson, incumbent, and Joyce Cotham were elected without opposition. Watson received 37 votes, Cotham 26, and 11 write-in votes were cast.

The cheaters always win

Last week, I wrote about cheap eating in Las Vegas. This week, the topic deals with how much you can trust guys with names like, "Vito," "Big Pops Louie" and "Primo — 'Break-Your-Kneecaps' — Gianella."

Many people will swear up and down that the games of chance in Las Vegas are honest and that winning or losing depends entirely on a player's skill and dumb luck, called "the odds," which favor the house.

The casino operators don't have to cheat, people say. The house wins so much from the tilted odds that it doesn't need to rig the games to get most people's money, the story goes. Anyway, the legalized gambling is "strictly" regulated by laws enforced by the state, it continues.

That standard explanation of why the games must be honest was given to me recently by a Vegas cab driver.

But he failed to persuade me that an industry controlled by organized crime (the Mafia) can be on the level. Regardless of any honest profit, a crook with an opportunity always finds ways to steal more.

In my opinion, and based on personal experience, cheating is the standard operating procedure in many of the Las Vegas casinos. I have no proof, only suspicion based on personal observation.

Even if I had evidence of cheating, I doubt whether I'd make a big fuss about it. I don't want my legs broken any more than the next fellow.

My favorite casino game used to be blackjack. I'm a pretty good player. I know the odds of the game well enough to know the best plays, keeping an honest house's advantage as small as possible.

But that knowledge of blackjack has done little good in Las Vegas. I have watched tables as professional dealers defied all odds to win hand after hand after hand. Hands that the odds say the house should have lost. Not just a few times. Often, it continued for hours on end and past all the laws of probability.

To me, repeatedly breaking the laws of probability proved interference with random selection among 52 cards in a deck. Specifically, the cards were manipulated by slick dealers.

You say it can't be done.

Then, remember, the hand is quicker, much quicker, than the eye. To a skilled magician, card tricks are child's play. A card sharp can monkey with a deck so fast that eyes looking straight at the manipulator's hands won't see it happen.

I think the casinos keep at least two or three skilled card manipulators on the premises at all times. Regularly switching dealers at each of the tables eliminates the need for dishonesty or skill in all of the dealers.

Most people can't play blackjack well enough to get ahead of the house, without incredible luck. A regular dealer playing by the rules would easily take most players' money.

But I believe the "specialists" stay ready to move in and take care of those lucky players who hit a hot streak. The "pit boss" watching the action at all of the tables knows when to send in the magician.

The boss quietly whispers, telling the sharp to go and take care of ol' so and so on table such and such. The manipulator taps the regular dealer on the shoulder and takes over the cards. In short order, if he's still putting his money down at the table, Mr. Lucky's clock has been cleaned.

I think that may be the method of cheating in blackjack, and ingenious crooks probably have ways to rig many other games in Sin City.

I'm not against gambling, per se, just gambling with cheaters. Some say cheaters never win. I'm convinced they do, at least in Las Vegas.

Next week: Travel by jet.

PROPER STORAGE
Believe it or not, a medicine cabinet may well be the worst place in the house to store some medications. The high humidity of a bathroom can play havoc with capsules that are not tightly capped. Pills and capsules should be stored in a cool, dry place out of direct, bright light or sunlight. Pills that are exposed to moisture have a tendency to disintegrate and lose their potency. Most liquid antibiotics should be stored in the refrigerator to preserve the bacteria-fighting effectiveness of the medicine. Refrigeration, however, does not mean freezing. Freezing can change the molecular structure of the medicine and undermine its healing properties.

Over the years B&B PHARMACY has played a significant role in the health care of hundreds of families in this area. If you are new to Pampa we suggest you become acquainted with us before you actually need our service. We carry just about everything you would hope to find in a well inventoried drug store so chances are excellent that there will never be any need to go elsewhere. EVER STRIVING FOR TOP 'O TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Our opinion

Complete freedom the best solution

Even when politicians try to do good things, they usually come up short. Consider, for example, legislation introduced in the Texas House of Representatives by State Rep. Ed Emmett aimed at reforming the trucking industry.

Rep. Emmett's heart is in the right place. He wants to remove some of the regulations that make it difficult to get into the trucking business in Texas, and to operate with maximum efficiency if you do get in. But like most politicians, he is still unwilling, or feels it is politically impossible, to try for the best possible solution—getting government totally out of the trucking industry and letting it be regulated only by free market forces.

Emmett points out that current law makes it virtually impossible for a trucking firm to obtain a "certificate of need" for a route if its application is protested by a firm already serving that route. The applicant is required to first prove "public convenience and necessity" and the "inadequacy" of the existing carrier to serve the demands of the route.

One of the bills Emmett has introduced would remove the "adequacy" test and allow the Texas Railroad Commission to issue certificates if it determines it would be in "the public convenience and necessity" to do so.

That may be a step in the right direction. But why not go all the way? Why not eliminate the requirement that a firm obtain a "certificate of need" to operate a certain route? What business is it of the Railroad Commission whether one firm or two dozen serve the route? If there is no "need" for the service, the workings of the free market will put the carrier out of business. The free market does not need a government agency to determine whether a service is necessary or not.

Rep. Emmett's other bill would change current law specifying that the Railroad Commission may set a maximum rate and a minimum rate carriers may charge in certain areas. Emmett wants the commission to set only a maximum rate and allow carriers to charge any minimum rate they want. He says a maximum rate will protect small communities from price gouging where one company can monopolize a trade area and charge prices well beyond what a competitive market would allow.

Again, a step in the right direction. But again, not enough.

In the first place, "price gouging monopolies" are not possible in a free market. They can exist only when protected by government regulations such as those now existing in the trucking industry. Remove the "certificate of need" requirement and any attempt at "price gouging" by any firm would immediately create a competitive market.

If a little more freedom would help the trucking industry, or any other industry, why wouldn't complete freedom help even more?

Rep. Emmett has sent copies of his bills to newspapers across the state asking them to consider editorially favoring his proposals.

The Pampa News has concluded his bills would represent an improvement over the current situation. But not much of one.

Walter Williams

Please, no more miracles

In Marcus Cook Connelly's play, "Green Pastures," God laments to the Angel Gabriel, "Everytime Ah passes a miracle, Ah has to pass fo' or five mo' to ketch up wid it." That's precisely the plight Congress faces in its "miracle" making efforts.

In 1973, under the Rail Reorganization Act, the assets of Penn Central and six other bankrupt railroads were purchased and consolidated into a federally owned corporation: Conrail. During its early years Conrail suffered huge losses and received $3.3 billion in federal handouts. Congress discovered: federal ownership couldn't solve the railroad problem. So in 1981, Congress enacted the Northeast Railroad Service Act which mandated Conrail's sale.

After 1981 Conrail began operating in the black, with a profit of $39 million. The profit has grown to about $500 million (1984). Without a doubt part of this turnaround was due to excellent management by its chairman, L. Stanley Crane. But even more important was the now-besieged Staggers Act of 1980 which brought significant deregulation to the rail industry. Deregulation permitted Conrail to compete more effectively by allowing it to set rates and yielding other managerial prerogatives.

But Conrail's success is deceptive thanks to congressional miracle-making. Its profits are exempt from federal and state income taxes and the federal government pays its employee-protection benefits. But for these miracles, Conrail would have been in the red until 1984.

Elizabeth Dole, secretary of the Department of Transportation (DOT), has announced the selection of Norfolk-Southern (NS) Railroad as the purchaser of Conrail for $1.2 billion. This is not only a giveaway; it's a bad deal, and eventually will bring about another taxpayer bailout. The reason for selling Conrail, as a whole, to a single buyer is that it would guarantee continued service to shippers who have no doubt applied enormous political pressure on the White House.

As a part of the deal Norfolk-Southern promises to accept "Public interest" covenants to protect Conrail employees and customers. This means: not to abandon lines, to operate the system as it's currently being operated, and to make capital investments. The sweetener is Norfolk-Southern will be forgiven $3.3 billion in Conrail debt.

This is a mistake. DOT should have offered Conrail to the highest bidder. According to Conrail Chairman Crane, numerous inquiries have been received from financial institutions about public offerings of Conrail stock. The major benefit of a public offering is that a "right" price will be reached by investors freely bidding against each other. The private investor who bids too low or too high will lose. But what will Secretary Dole lose with a wrong price?

There is no sound economic arguments against a public stock offering of Conrail, but there is a political one. The government would have less control. Because of the HUGE tax benefits to Norfolk-Southern from buying Conrail, the government has leverage. "If you don't do what we say, the tax benefits will be rescinded."

The government didn't start railroad miracles in 1976 or 1984. These began with the Interstate Commerce Act (ICA) of 1887. The railroads used the ICA to cartelize the industry - rigging prices, schedules, and markets. The ICA miracle gave some of the railroads monopoly profits, but it also brought rigidity and inability to meet the challenge of changing market conditions.

We've had enough congressional miracles. Let's use the ONLY true miracle: that of the free market place.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Easter Sunday, April 7, the 97th day of 1985. There are 268 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 7, 1927, an audience in New York saw an image of Commerce Secretary Herbert Hoover in the first successful long-distance demonstration of television.

On this date:

Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford, addressing the National Association of Broadcasters in Las Vegas, Nev., urged Americans not to give in to self-doubt or "paralysis of will power."

Five years ago: President Jimmy Carter announced that the United States was breaking diplomatic relations with Iran and imposing a formal embargo on U.S. exports one day after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said the American hostages would remain in the control of the embassy militants.

One year ago: Jack Morris of the Detroit Tigers pitched a no-hitter, shutting out the White Sox in Chicago, 4-0.

We need a special section

On certain commercial flights, airline passengers now may make phone calls back to the planet Earth. I was on one of those flights recently.

There was a portable phone on the wall near the galley. The flight attendant said if anybody wanted to use the phone, they simply could insert their credit card in the proper spot and then take the phone back to their seat.

I considered making a call. There wasn't anybody I particularly needed to talk to, but I thought it would be fun to try to impress the person sitting next to me.

I would dial the "800" number for Amtrak reservations, which nobody ever answers. I would pause for a few moments and then say, "Hello, Mr. President? Grizzard here returning your call. A meeting with Secretary Shultz at 10 in the morning? I would be delighted to be there, sir, and give my best to Mrs. Reagan."

I decided such a ploy was fruitless, however, since the passenger next to me was some kid wearing one of those Walkman things in his ear.

Everytime he opened his mouth to yawn, I could hear some strange sort of music coming out, likely being played by a punk rocker with orange hair.

I suppose telephones in airplanes were bound to come sooner or later. In fancy hotels, they even have telephones in the guests' restrooms nowadays, which isn't such a bad idea when you consider that studies indicate nine out of 10 times you walk into your restroom either to take a shower or do anything else, the telephone will ring.

I don't, however, like the idea of phones in planes. The only thing I liked about flying in the first place was it enabled me to get away from telephones for a few hours.

You see, I suffer from a condition known as Black Cord Fever, a disease that is at its worst around midnight, especially if the victim has had several drinks.

What happens is the victim has this overwhelming urge to talk to somebody on the telephone, even if it means waking them from a deep sleep. The problem is that very few people want to talk to a Black Cord victim in the middle of the night.

The long-range effects of this condition are that the victim encounters huge telephone bills and finds his or her list of friends dwindling away.

I can see myself on a late night flight now. I've had a few beers, and I get hit by an attack of Black Cord. I grab the phone on the plane and start dialing. A weary voice finally answers.

"Guess where I'm calling from?" I begin. "A bar."

"No, Zero, I'm calling from an airplane! What do you think about that?"

"Get out of my life."

"Want to hear the engines?"

Click.

What the airlines are going to have to do is they insist on having phones on their planes is to remember those of us with Black Cord Fever.

"Phoning or non-phoning?" the ticket agent should ask.

"Non-phoning." I will reply and retire to the back of the airplane with the others so afflicted. (c) 1985 Cowles Syndicate, Inc.

Let's hope Reagan will fool Congress

BY CHARLES VAN EATON

Several years ago my friend Professor Leland Yeager of Auburn University published a study which investigated the historical process of inflation in various countries over the past one hundred years. His study concluded that nations which had experienced short yet intense periods of hyper-inflation had been more successful in ending inflation with minimal permanent damage to the economy than had nations in the grip of long-standing but relatively moderate periods of inflation.

Our own recent experience with fifteen years of comparatively moderate but persistent inflation fits Professor Yeager's model of difficult-to-end inflation. Even though the current rate is less than 4 percent, it is still far from being eliminated and efforts to bring it to zero will be politically difficult - as the protest of farmers caught by disinflation attests.

But I'm not aware that anyone has done a parallel study of the success or failure of a particular nation or group of nations' efforts to end budget deficits after they have become large and have persisted for a long period of time. It is my own opinion that ending inflation is a simple task compared to ending high and persistent government deficits.

Inflation is now and always has been a pure monetary phenomenon. It can be stopped by simply "shutting down the printing presses." Deficits, on the other hand, are a pure political phenomenon and can be stopped only by the application of raw political resolve. Moreover the larger the absolute size of the budget deficit, the harder it becomes to gather the broad political support needed to eliminate it. Why? Because every single budget item carries with it a vocal and powerful political constituency which can and will argue that cutting or eliminating that specific item will make, at best, only an insignificant contribution to deficit reduction while at the same time causing grave "distress" to "innocent" people.

Precisely because of the political problems every elected official must face when even one of his many constituencies faces distress, there has never been a time when enough essential political courage and public support could be brought to bear in sufficient quantity to do the job. If anything, the situation is absolutely worse today than in past years.

In a careful analysis of the respective roles played by taxes and spending in the federal deficit picture since 1970, Professor Thomas S. McCaleb of Florida State University concluded - as has virtually every other student of the issue - that the real source of our twenty-five-year-old deficit problem has been uncontrolled spending, not inadequate levels of taxation. According to Dr. McCaleb, "Fundamentally, the problem is the size of government, not the method of financing government activity. Federal expenditures have grown from only 18.5 percent of Gross National Product in 1960 to 24.1 percent of GNP in 1983 and are - even with the program cuts currently in place - expected to fall to only 22.3 percent in 1988." Revenues, on the other hand were 18.2 percent of GNP in 1960 (there was a deficit) and even with the Reagan tax cuts are expected to rise to 19.3 percent in 1988. Both revenues and expenditures have grown faster than GNP for twenty-five years. But expenditures have constantly outpaced the growth in revenues. "Clearly," Dr. McCaleb argues, "the only deficit reduction strategy that makes sense is expenditure reduction."

The federal deficits of the 60's, 70's, and those projected for the rest of the 1980's are distinctly the result of run-away spending. So why don't we get expenditure reduction? Because to reduce total expenditures some programs will

Resurrections do come

To the editor,
It's Easter! Resurrections come in all sizes, shapes and forms. For us, that which precedes resurrections are psychological wildernesses, gethsemenes, palm days, and yes, crucifixions. But the only reality for mortals to remember is the fact that following every crucifixion there comes a resurrection.
As I alluded to earlier, resurrections for us come in all forms—a handshake, a sincere smile, a hug, a kiss, one person lifting up another, giving people second chances, going the second mile, especially when it hurts. These are what put meaning into life. These are outward manifestations of an inward grace that makes the world a viable and livable place. A communion of "ragpickers" is a community of positive believers that affirm their own authenticity by confirming someone else's "specialness."

Because of affirmative action, we become confirming activists. Love replaces hate, peace replaces war, forgiveness replaces degradation. These are the attributes for which we must strive, making our community one where "freedom rings..." in the press, in the church and in the marketplace. We must be a community expressing our opinions and launching our ideas so that together we can make it a credible place for those who come after us.

The "staff of life" is that special "stuff" that surfaces when great needs arise. Let us assure you our community is made of that kind of fiber.

LOU DEAN COTTEN

Don't blame the cops

Dear Editor,
I am writing in regards to the case and lawsuit against the DPS and Johnny Carter.

People are saying that Mr. Carter has no regards for the citizens of the city. I also hear people saying all the time "where is a cop when you need one."

They're always saying "that it takes forever for a cop to show up." They call in and complain about speeders going up and down their street and they are afraid they are going to kill someone.

But when cops have to get into high speed chases with the reported speeder and someone gets hurt or killed, people tend to blame the police officer. If you are going to blame them, why call them? That's like the man who cried wolf.

Then if the speeder was to hit and kill someone, there would be headlines one day, the next a lawsuit and two weeks later forgotten by the general public.

If a speeding violator running from an officer who was attempting to stop him lost control of his vehicle and came in your yard and hit and killed one of your children at play, who are you going to blame, the violator or the officer? Think about it.

The people complain about the patrol car being a hazard because of the way the emergency lights are mounted on the car. The people don't even see them if they are mounted on the roof. If people would keep calm and pull over to the right lane or the curb when they hear the siren, things like this would not happen. But people keep driving in the lane that they are in knowing there is an emergency vehicle coming because they can hear the siren. They hope they have time to get where they are going before it gets too close to them. Yet it's the officer's fault because the citizens don't pull over to the right side of the road and out of the emergency vehicle's way.

We think it is wrong to punish someone for doing their job to the best of their ability.

DONNY AND KRIS BROWN

Lunch period dangerous

Dear editor,
As a parent of a 16-year-old who attends Pampa High School, I am very concerned with the safety of my teenager as well as other students who leave the school during their lunch period.

In the past few weeks, there have been at least 3 accidents involving students during their lunch period. They presently have 35 minutes for lunch. Last year the students petitioned the school for 15 minutes longer for lunch and for school to begin earlier at 8:15. I wish we had supported their initiative at that time, but it isn't too late to let our school board members and administrators know how you feel about the issue.

The other alternative to a longer school day would be to have a "closed campus" where students are not allowed to leave for lunch. This has been successfully handled at many high schools all over Texas, but is not a popular alternative with the teachers, administrators, or students.

The pressure to get back to school before the tardy bells rings, along with lack of understanding of the responsibility of driving an automobile and peer pressure, has made for a dangerous and potentially tragic situation.

My solution has not made me "mother of the year" for refusing to let my licensed teenage driver take the car for school in order to leave at lunch, but perhaps conditions will change where it will be safer for her to do so.

If you'd be interested in supporting either alternative, I'd be interested in hearing from you. Please write P.O. Box 643, Pampa, Tx. 79066-643, with your opinion. Perhaps as a group we can do something before a tragedy occurs.

CONCERNED PARENT

Stop sales to minors

Dear Editor,
Last week I spent two evenings on the "drag" trying to find out where our youngsters were buying their liquor since a part of them were under age. It didn't take too long.

We are all concerned and worried about our children. Even when we know where they are buying their drinks what good does it do? Call the police, ha, ha! Liquor Control Board? Hardly...We can't depend on the Highway Patrol because they are not welcome in the city limits. They do too good of a job. Where is the police? On the drag? Who knows.

When you see a 16-year-old buy beer, a 17-year-old pulled from a wreck, then is it time to get involved, or is it then too late? Or do you find out at the funeral home, or the hospital.

I think it's time to put pressure upon the police department to enforce the law, close down the liquor stores that are selling to our youngsters. If they don't do their job, then it's time to say "Get a rope."

Put drive pipes back

To the editor,
I have just read Gerald Vaughn's letter about the driveway pipes.

I too have bad memories of Labor Day—the day Allyn Moore stopped and ordered Mr. V. Collum to get his iron slab from his driveway.

You have read in The Pampa News what they tried to do to Mr. Collum. I watched. There was at least seven men from the city who came out the next day to remove his iron slab. They even got a summons for his arrest. I didn't know if I was still in America or maybe I was in Russia.

What I would like to know is this: If Allyn Moore had so much power to wrongfully remove everyone's drive pipes, why doesn't he have the power to make it right with the people and put them back at no expense to the people.

It cost us taxpayers for the removal. They need and should be put back no matter what.

Opposition forced revision of plans to aid Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration revised its aid plan for Nicaraguan rebels at a high-level meeting last week after President Reagan learned his original proposal faced almost certain House defeat, U.S. officials say.

The plan was drawn up Tuesday when the administration sensed that it could not overcome an estimated 28-vote deficit in the Democrat-controlled House to release $14 million in military aid for the rebels, said the officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified.

Under the revised initiative, which was almost immediately rejected by Nicaragua, Reagan would spend the assistance for non-lethal equipment only for at least two months if the Sandinista government engages in good-faith talks on national reconciliation with an opposition coalition.

If the negotiations do not bear fruit, Reagan would reserve the right to begin shipping arms to the insurgents.

The revised aid plan was put into final form at the Tuesday meeting attended by Reagan, Secretary of State George P. Shultz and National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, according to the officials.

The sources said Reagan had intended to make the proposal public this week but decided to announce it Thursday after becoming concerned about possible press leaks.

Because of congressional opposition, the rebels have received no U.S. aid for almost a year. A five-month congressional ban on aid to the contras expired Feb. 28, and since then the administration has given high priority to persuading Congress to approve more aid.

Last fall, Congress gave the green light to a $14 million appropriation for the rebels but said the funds could not be released without the approval of both houses of Congress after the Feb. 28 deadline.

The political intelligence that prompted Tuesday's decision was underscored Wednesday when House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., told the president the original program was "dead in the water" without changes.

In contrast to the strong opposition in the House, the Republican-controlled Senate is believed to favor renewed aid by a small margin.

The officials said they believe the new approach will enable many skeptical congressmen to support the administration.

"This way, they'll be voting for a peaceful settlement," one official said.

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill dismissed the Reagan plan as a "dirty trick" and a fellow Massachusetts Democrat, Rep. Edward Markey, said, "Behind the thin veneer of peace is the reality of aggression." Nonetheless, the officials said they have high hopes for the proposal.

Shortly after Reagan announced the new initiative, Nicaraguan Ambassador Carlos Tunnermann said here that his government is not going to negotiate with the rebels.

Nicaragua "can't negotiate under the threat that if in 60 days there is no agreement, the covert aid will be renewed," he said.

U.S. officials said Nicaragua's quick rejection offers advantages to the administration. Lawmakers who vote against the proposal will be vulnerable to charges that they are aligning themselves with the Sandinista position, the officials said.

have to be eliminated all together and theirs will have to be radically reformed and cut - back. There is no other way it can be done.

A spending freeze will not do the job. Freezing a program at current expenditure levels might save money in 1986, but funding for that program will increase in the years following under the system of current service budgeting.

President Reagan's 1986 budget calls for an increase in total spending of less than 2 percent.

That is not an expenditure reduction even if it is a positive break from the ancient trend of annual accelerating rates of expenditure increase. But, significantly, Mr. Reagan's budget does call for the total out - right elimination of some 25 programs.

He's not going to get what he wants. To cut, say, $700 million of annual expenditures on Amtrak (the annual amount saved by total elimination of a program which has already cost taxpayers $9 billion and is projected to cost another $8 billion over the next decade) would, in the face of a $200 billion deficit, reduce the deficit by less than four - tenths of one percent (i.e., .0035 to be exact).

Amtrak has a vocal constituency, including many small town mayors who can make life miserable for a district Congressman.

Cutting needless required federal offices and field personnel could save $4 billion. But that would reduce the deficit by only 2 percent. Again the political damage outweighs the budget savings.

Indeed the same case can be made for every line - item in the federal budget. Spending has always provided high political yields to Congress. Spending cuts yield absolutely no short - term political pay - off.

I fully suspect that Congress will try to out - fox the White House and delay the budget until it's time for the fourth October "continuing resolution" in a row. They will count on Mr. Reagan not vetoing the whole package for fear of shutting down the government. I pray that the old man will fool them and, if necessary, bring the whole bloody mess to an end. They deserve it.

Midwest, south hit by twisters, wind

By DAN FREEMAN
Associated Press Writer

A spring storm spawned at least 17 tornadoes and winds up to 80 mph on a path from Illinois to the Deep South, killing four people and injuring nearly 30 more as it devastated trailer parks and knocked out electricity before moving out into the Atlantic Saturday.

High winds lashed Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia on Friday. At least 20 Alabama counties reported power outages and roads were closed in several areas because of fallen trees.

"We had hurricane-force winds in some parts of the state," said Mark Miller, a spokesman for the Alabama Emergency Management Agency.

The storm, which spawned at least 17 tornadoes, mostly across Tennessee and Alabama, and more than 75 reports of damaging wind — some to 80 mph — weakened overnight and was moving off the Atlantic Coast, said Pete Reynolds of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

"Things will calm quite a bit today," he said.

Two people died in their car in Roanoke, Ala., when a tree limb fell on them, said Randolph County Sheriff Fred May. At least 10 people were treated at Alabama hospitals for cuts and bruises they suffered as twisters and storms downed trees, overturned trailer homes and damaged houses.

Winds gusting to 65 mph in Marion, Ohio, toppled a tree on a 2-year-old boy, killing him, authorities said.

One man was killed and his sister was injured in Tilden, Ill., when winds demolished their mobile home, said Randolph County Coroner Neil Birchler. "It was apparently tossed about 20 to 30 feet from its pads and there was just nothing left of it," he said.

A tornado touched down near Albertville, Ala., destroying an automobile dealership, and two people were injured in the Tilden area.

Tornadoes touched down in at least seven places in south-central Indiana, but caused no injuries, said forecaster Paul Hunt in Louisville, Ky. Two people were injured in Perry County, Ind., when high winds overturned a mobile home.

Six barns were blown down north of DePauw, Ind., and roads were blocked by downed utility lines and trees, state police said.

"We've had trailers scooted off their foundations and roofs torn off barns and sheds," said Bob Smith, a sheriff's spokesman in Washington County, Ind.

High winds in Kentucky toppled a 765-foot transmission tower in Louisville, knocking radio station WHAS-AM off the air. Power outages were widespread, affecting about 6,000 people, and barn roofs and silos were damaged.

In Cincinnati, four TV stations were knocked off the air for about 30 minutes and about 10,000 customers lost electric power.

Circus says unicorns not one-horned goats

NEW YORK (AP) — While the ASPCA threatens court action, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus is sticking to its story: the "Living Unicorns" are real unicorns, not "surgically produced" freaks.

The battle over the one-horned animals was joined Friday as the circus responded to charges from the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals that the "unicorns" are merely goats with grafted-on horns.

"The Living Unicorn arrived at the Circus exactly as it is seen today," said circus vice president Allen J. Bloom. "The only difference in it now is that its horn has grown several inches since it joined the circus."

But John Kullberg, president of the ASPCA, said the four animals he was allowed to inspect Thursday were definitely goats, and unless circus officials answer his charges he will take them to court.

Kullberg accused the circus of being "cruel and severely unethical" and called on the public to boycott "The Greatest Show on Earth," which opened this week for a nine-week run at Madison Square Garden.

"Unless their attitude changes, and that doesn't seem likely right now, I don't think the public should be paying for surgically produced freak shows," Kullberg said.

Bloom's statement coincides with Ringling's public relations campaign, which claims the animals are, indeed, the "elusive, mythical beasts."

The campaign is geared toward only one "unicorn," but a circus spokeswoman admitted there were four in the troupe. "Only one appears in the show but all four are unicorns," said Susannah Smith.

Miss Smith said circus officials are not doing anything about the ASPCA's charges.

Bloom called the ASPCA's charges of animal cruelty ludicrous and said the call for a boycott was "an unfair and ill-conceived effort by grinchers to steal the kind of wholesome fantasy all too rare in today's entertainment."

Ringling Bros. advertising campaign this season is built around the unicorn, which is described by the dictionary as a one-horned beast with the head and body of a horse, the hind legs of a stag and the tail of a lion.

Circus programs feature color pictures of the animal — which looks very much like a well-groomed, long-haired goat — and a fact sheet with tidbits like where it came from, what it eats, and how long it lives.

The answers, the circus says, are: it appeared out of the blue last summer and joined the circus in Houston, its favorite food is rose petals, and as for its life span, "He is ageless."

Reagan defends plans

President buffeted on budget, Nicaragua

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan, ignoring criticism of his budget compromise plan and a new strategy to aid Nicaraguan rebels, asked Congress on Saturday to rally behind the two controversial proposals.

"This week is ending on a very hopeful note," the vacationing president said in a radio address beamed from his mountaintop ranch, where the weather was foggy and overcast.

"We've received encouraging reaction to our peace proposal for Nicaragua and we've reached an immensely important budget agreement that can help keep America's economic engines running full speed ahead for years to come."

As Reagan settled in for the first full day of a 10-day ranch stay, the administration was buffeted by attacks on both the budget plan and the rebel-aid package.

Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said Reagan "has said nothing new and he certainly has presented no peace proposal. In fact, what President Reagan has said to Nicaragua (is), 'You drop dead or else I'll kill you.'"

Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., chairman of the Intelligence Committee, said, "It's an apple with a razor blade in it."

Seeking $14 million in aid for the anti-government forces in Nicaragua, Reagan pledged last Thursday that the money would not be used for arms if the ruling Sandinista regime agreed to reconciliation talks with the opposition and consented to a settlement within 60 days.

Reagan described his compromise with Senate Republicans on the budget as "the most far-reaching spending reduction plan in post-war history."

Noting that it would eliminate 17 domestic programs, such as Amtrak subsidies, the Job Corps and the Small Business Administration, Reagan said, "What the Senate Republicans have done is bite the bullet on spending, and I believe they deserve your support and that of the other members of Congress."

The president said the plan would cut $300 billion from expected deficits and "provides the foundation for historic progress because those deficits will be wiped out without raising taxes a nickel, without jeopardizing vital defense programs or any essential services."

The plan combines deep cuts in domestic spending with a slowdown in the Pentagon buildup and a limit on Social Security increases.

Reagan said the plan guarantees an increase in benefits of at least 2 percent annually over the next three years.

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST

The resurrection of Christ is significant because it declares Him to be the Son of God (Romans 1:4); it made possible His ascension to the right hand of God (Acts 2:29-36); it made possible the sending of the Holy Spirit who guided the apostles into all truth (John 16:1-13); established Christ as the high priest over the house of God which is His church (Hebrews 10:19-25); and makes the way for the resurrection of the faithful members of His church (I Corinthians 15:20-28.)

There is, however, no Bible authority for the observance of a special Sunday known as "Easter Sunday." Jesus was crucified at the Passover feast of the Jews (Luke 22:1), which occurs in the spring of the year. But the early church did not observe Jewish feast days (Colossians 2:16-17), neither did it observe the heathen feast days. The early disciples did observe the Lord's Supper upon the first day of every week (Acts 20:7.) This they did because Jesus commanded them to partake of the Supper in remembrance of Him (Luke 22:19.) In remembering Him, we remember His life, death, burial and His resurrection. Faithful members of the Lord's church observe the Lord's Supper today in remembrance of all that Jesus Christ was as a man upon this earth and all that He is now as the exalted Son of God with all authority in heaven and on earth.

The resurrection of Christ was a part of God's great scheme of redemption for mankind. In His resurrection it is made possible our salvation. It is impossible to properly recognize His resurrection without emphasizing His Deity. The resurrection truly is God's manifestation that Jesus Christ is His Son. Then to properly recognize His Sonship is to obey, by faith, His every commandment. It is purely hypocritical for one to pretend pious reverence once a year for Jesus Christ in a special religious observance without any devotion to the keeping of His word.

- *Some school districts in our area will lose as much as 60% of their per pupil revenue.
- *State taxes would have to be increased $27.3 million to make up for lost severance tax revenues.

FERC has delayed its decision pending action by the Texas Railroad Commission. Elected state officials can make decisions which would prevent these dire economic consequences from happening. Producers, royalty owners planning for annual meeting

The Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association will hold its Annual Meeting April 10 and 11 at the Amarillo Hilton Inn. The two day event will cover a number of issues affecting the petroleum industry.

Thursday morning's agenda includes a discussion of the federal tax reform proposals and the provisions within the various proposals that will adversely affect the petroleum industry. Making the presentation will be Jon Rex Jones, President of the Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) and IPAA's General Counsel, H.B. "Bud" Scoggins. Joe Hanna, former Chairman of the Texas House Energy Committee, will update participants on the activities of the 1985 Legislature in relation to the petroleum industry.

The keynote speaker for the annual membership luncheon will be Anthony Makris, assistant deputy secretary for house affairs, Department of Defense. Makris will speak on the Soviet Union's domination of the world affairs and the United States' need for a strong domestic petroleum industry to insure its own security. Makris played a major role in the Congress' recent approval of the MX missile program.

Thursday's afternoon program will focus on gas, oil and the marketplace. A panel including Fred Holliger, Vice President of Gas Acquisitions, Northern Natural Gas Company; William Kleine, President of The Permian Corporation, and Robert E. Scarborough, Chief of Allocation and Rate Design, Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), will discuss future gas and oil prices as well as the use of FERC special marketing programs in the sale of natural gas.

A special appearance will be made by Congressman Beau Boulter, U.S. Representative for the 13th Congressional District. Boulter is expected to update producers and royalty owners on any progress made in the fight to delete provisions of the Treasury tax reform proposal which, if adopted, will devastate the Panhandle petroleum industry. The provisions of most concern include the repeal of percentage depletion and intangible drilling costs and the disallowance of deductions for dry hole costs until a property is abandoned.

Featured speaker at the President's banquet will be Charles B. Gill, Jr., President of Chief Operating Officer of Liberty Northwest Insurance Corporation. Gill is a humorous speaker who will address the merits of a free enterprise system.

Social events dominate Wednesday's schedule. They include a golf tournament at the Tascosa Country Club, a Ladies Luncheon and Program at the First National Bank and a Country Western party and dance that evening at the Hilton Inn. Kenneth Wyatt, a western painter from Tulia, will be the featured speaker for the ladies. He will discuss his art, poetry and philosophy.

Registration materials and information can be obtained from the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association office at 404 Texas Commerce Bank Building, Amarillo, Texas.

Financial Focus

The originators of Social Security conceived the program much like an insurance fund, the benefits of which would be distributed to the aged to make up the difference between their anticipated income and loss of income from retiring.

This "anticipated income," the creators theorized, would come from the aged's savings, investments, pensions, help from children, etc. It was presented as a "trust fund" whereby the employee would make contributions to be matched by the employer constituting additional equity the employee could draw upon in old age.

But, like most government programs, it began to blossom and expand. Soon it included disability and medical aid. And, as the benefits grew, so did the costs. Additional service had to be financed, and this was done in two ways: the percentage of individual contribution and matching contribution from the individual's employer was increased; correspondingly, the maximum income on which the percentage is levied was increased.

In 1970, the percentage both the employee and the employer contributed was 4.8 percent; in 1980, 6.13 percent; and it's scheduled to be 7.15 percent by 1986. Also, in 1970, workers stopped paying when they earned $7,800; in 1980, the stopping point was $25,900; and, in 1986, this ceiling is expected to be $47,700.

Furthermore, there was never a "trust fund" as we think of a trust fund. What we have, in reality, is one group of working individuals putting money in and another group of retired individuals taking money out. This was acceptable in the beginning when the "depositors" outnumbered the "withdrawers" seven to one. However, we are approaching a three to one ratio - three contributing; one taking out.

The implication is as the majority of our society reaches retirement age, there will be fewer and fewer workers to support the system.

Is the Social Security system doomed to collapse? Will the elderly be able to live in some degree of dignity? I wish I could say, "Tune in next week for the dramatic conclusion." But, wiser men and women than I are unable to predict the destiny of the program. I feel a bit more secure, however, when I know I'm preparing for my retirement myself, and, if there's enough Social Security to go around when that day comes, I'll just be that much better off.

Block wants an exemption for blended credit program

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says the administration will push for legislation to exempt a controversial "blended credit" program from a law requiring half of the commodities shipped under government programs to be transported in costlier U.S. flagships.

"We're going to be working shoulder to shoulder in trying to accomplish this for American agriculture," Block told a news conference on Wednesday.
Several bills have been introduced to overturn a Feb. 21 decision by a U.S. District Court judge who held that shipments financed under the Agriculture Department's "blended credit" program are subject to provisions of the 1954 Cargo Preference Act.

As a result of the ruling, the department was forced to suspend $536 million worth of credit that had been designated to help Egypt, Iraq, Morocco and Tunisia buy

U.S. grain and other commodities.
The ruling caused a furor among farm groups and members of Congress from the major grain areas.
However, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said she understood the White House, is not at this time supporting the legislation mentioned by Block.

Asked later about the discrepancy, an aide to Block said the secretary stood by his news conference statements.
Block was asked about opposition from the seafarers' unions and the maritime industry, which had challenged the USDA's claim that the blended credit program was exempt from the 50-50 provisions of the Cargo Preference Act. Commodities shipped under other government programs, including Food for Peace shipments, are subject to the 1954 law.

decision would add $40 million to $50 million to the costs of supplying the $536 million worth of commodities to foreign buyers.
Under the blended credit program, a typical package includes 80 percent loan guarantees at commercial rates of interest and 20 percent direct loan by USDA at no interest. After the direct loans are "blended" with the guarantees, the effective interest rate is lower than it otherwise would be.
The blended credit program represents a small portion of USDA's overall export credit offerings. According to the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, a total of $4.03 billion was programmed for credit guarantees in the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1.

As of March 29, the agency said, $1.24 billion had been approved for 22 countries. That left nearly $2.8 billion in credit guarantees still available for use this fiscal year.
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's investment in surplus farm commodities continues to run below year-earlier levels, according to the latest Agriculture Department report.
As of Jan. 31, the Commodity Credit Corp. had $19 billion invested in commodity loans and actual inventories, the report said Wednesday. A year earlier, the CCC had $23.3 billion tied up in its operations.
Loans outstanding totaled $12.5 billion, down only slightly from $12.8 billion a year ago.

WHEAT YELLOWING
Some of our dryland wheat fields are showing some nitrogen deficiency. Therefore yellow wheat fields may or may not have rust infestations.

Last year John Spearman had a good yield increase on dryland wheat fertilized with 30 pounds of nitrogen. The unfertilized check made 16.6 bushels per acre while the fertilized area made 24.4 bushels per acre - an increase of 7.8 bushels.

Quite a few dryland fields have made fairly good yields in recent years. These have served to deplete our formerly adequate levels of nitrogen for dryland wheat production. If you are seeing a lighter than normal green color then it may be a nitrogen shortage. Where cattle have grazed, and if you see green spots from cattle urine, this is an excellent sign of needing more nitrogen. A soil test is certainly beneficial to indicate just how much fertilizer is needed for next year's crop. An immediate top-dress might still be profitable this year.

For the last two years, we have seen nitrogen shortage signs on some dryland wheat fields. Farmers certainly need to consider getting a soil test run before putting in next year's wheat crop so that fertilization can be accomplished during a cultivation operation next summer. This is what the Spearman's did last year, and their nitrogen only cost $4.12 per acre.

TEXAS BEEF CONFERENCE
The Annual Texas Beef Conference will be held April 18 at the Amarillo Livestock Auction Co., in Amarillo.

Program runs from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and many timely topics of concern to cattlemen will be discussed. The registration fee is $25 which includes B-B-Q lunch. Complete program details and registration forms are available in Gray County Extension office.

SORGHUM AND CORN HERBICIDE SUGGESTIONS

A mimeographed publication entitled "1985 Weed Control in Sorghum and Corn in the Panhandle, South and Rolling Plains" is now available in the Gray County Extension Office. It outlines the rates to use on various soil types and the types of weeds controlled, however, space limitations make it difficult to include all the information provided on the product labels.

CHECK FOR ALFALFA WEEVILS

The month of April is a critical time for alfalfa producers in the Texas Panhandle.

This is the time when producers need to examine their alfalfa for the presence of alfalfa weevil larvae.

With the beginning of warm spring weather, overwintering female weevils begin laying eggs. The young larvae which hatch out are very small, yellow-green in color and feed in the growing tips and developing buds. Older larvae are green with a white stripe down their back.

We expect to have our peak alfalfa weevil activity in April or early May in our area. If larvae numbers are high enough to reach the economic threshold, one properly timed application should give control. Treatments should be applied in alfalfa 2 to 6 inches tall when two or more larvae are found per plant or when 30 to 50 percent of the plant terminals show weevil feeding damage. Taller plants 7 to 14 inches tall should be treated when 25 or more weevil larvae per square foot are present. Several effective insecticides are registered for alfalfa weevil control.

The alfalfa weevil has only one generation per year and is only a pest of first cutting. After the larvae finish feeding, usually by mid-May in our area, the larva spins a net-like cocoon on the plant or in the soil debris. The adult weevil emerges from the cocoon and leaves the field. The weevils stay out of the alfalfa fields all summer and re-enter them in the fall. The adults overwinter in the field and the cycle then repeats itself.

Since the larva is a pest of first cutting, it is sometimes possible to cut a little earlier than usual and avoid chemical treatments. Cutting results in exposure and a lack of food which kills many of the remaining larvae. Winter grazing by livestock helps reduce weevil populations.

ESTABLISHING WARM SEASON GRASSES

Warm season grasses such as sideoats, switchgrass, weeping lovegrass and Plains bluestem should be established in the spring. Fall planting, which works well for cool season grasses, does not provide time for warm season grasses to develop a sufficiently vigorous root system to survive the winter. Warm season grasses can be seeded into current wheat stands or into drop residue where wind or water erosion is a problem. If a prepared seedbed is used, the soil should be firmed with a roller before and after planting. This provides good contact of the seed and soil which speeds the germination. The firm seedbed also helps to regulate seeding depth. Small seeds cannot emerge from a depth greater than one inch even if conditions are otherwise conducive to stand establishment.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said that "agriculture is in a desperate economic condition" and that the higher costs of shipping commodities overseas — as brought about by the court decision — would be another blow to U.S. agricultural exports.

"Our farmers are broke, and yet under this court decision, it would require the farmers of this country to subsidize the crew members in our merchant marine," said Boren, who appeared with Block and several other lawmakers in support of the administration's move.

The maritime industry is essential, he said, but "if that's the case, all of us ought to help pay the cost" instead of putting so much of the burden on farmers.

Block said the cargo preference costs as a result of the court

Sudanese rejoice as military takes control

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — The military said Saturday it had deposed President Gaafar Nimeiri and had declared a state of emergency. It promised to relinquish power to civilians within six months.

Tens of thousands of rejoicing Sudanese took to Khartoum's streets, singing and tearing down Nimeiri's portraits.

Nimeiri, who had weathered more than a dozen previous coup and assassination attempts, was ousted by a longtime top aide, Gen. Abdul-Rahman Mohamed Hassan Swareddahab.

News of the takeover was announced hours before Nimeiri, 55, arrived in Cairo, the capital of Egypt, on his way home from a private visit to the United States.

Swareddahab, appointed defense minister and commander-in-chief of the armed forces before Nimeiri left for his nine-day U.S. visit, declared a state of emergency, but promised to hand over power to civilians within six months.

Nimeiri, who himself came to power in a 1969 coup, met with Egypt's President Hosni Mubarak and then left Cairo Airport by helicopter. Sources said that Nimeiri, who has been one of America's firmest African allies, was quartered in an Egyptian presidential palace.

The coup came after more than a week of demonstrations and strikes against continued rule by Nimeiri. The strikes paralyzed the Sudanese capital for three days and severed air and communications links with the outside world.

The Reagan administration said the military takeover posed no immediate threat to the safety of Americans living in Sudan.

"It was a bloodless takeover and Americans do not appear in danger, and none have been injured," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

President Reagan, vacationing at his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch, was notified of the coup at 10 a.m. EST and asked to be kept informed of developments, said Speakes, who accompanied Reagan to California.

Reagan met Nimeiri in Washington on Monday and released $67 million in U.S. aid that had been frozen until the North African country took steps to curtail economic chaos.

In a communique made public Saturday by Sudan's official news agency SUNA, Swareddahab said the military had to move because of "the worsening situation in the country and the political crisis which grows worse continuously."

The ouster was "to save the country and its independence," the communique said.

News of the army takeover was read over official Omdurman Radio.

After the broadcast, demonstrators sang, danced, and shouted anti-Nimeiri slogans in the streets. They pulled down the red, green, white and black flags that Nimeiri made the national standard after he took power on May 25, 1969.

PRESIDENT NIMEIRI

The coup followed 10 days of demonstrations, riots, a doctors' strike and the general strike, which began on Wednesday with simultaneous marches by 15,000 to 20,000 members of professional unions who demanded Nimeiri's ouster.

Pope prepares for Easter vigil

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II prepared Sunday to hold an Easter vigil at St. Peter's Basilica and lead Roman Catholics in Christianity's most joyous celebration, marking the resurrection of Jesus.

On Sunday, the pope will celebrate an open-air Mass in St. Peter's Square, read his Easter message and give his blessing "Urbi et Orbi" — to the city (of Rome) and to the world.

The pope, wearing a purple cape of mourning, carried a large wooden cross through Rome's pagan ruins in a torchlit Good Friday procession marking the final agonies of Jesus.

The pope bore a two-pound cross to 14 Stations of the Cross — each "station" representing a different stage in the death of Christ — as thousands of people holding flickering candles followed him from the cool, floodlit square outside the Colosseum to the Roman Forum.

Millions more watched the 50-minute ceremony on live television in Italy and 25 other countries.

The evening ceremony capped a day of religious ceremonies for the 65-year-old pope, including hearing 13 confessions and leading a three-hour celebration of the passion of Jesus at St. Peter's Basilica.

In Jerusalem, 5,000 Christian pilgrims shouldering wooden crosses wound their way along the Via Dolorosa, the Street of Sorrows, venerated since the Middle Ages as the route taken by Jesus after he was condemned to die.

The half-mile walk took the pilgrims from St. Anne's Church, near the site where tradition says Jesus was judged, to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the 12th-century sanctuary encompassing both Calvary and the tomb where his body was placed.

Good Friday this year coincided with the beginning of the eight-day Jewish Passover holiday, when Jews celebrate the escape of the Hebrews from Egypt more than 3,000 years ago.

Lebanon leaders try to end strife

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Political and military leaders met under the chairmanship of President Amin Gemayel on Saturday in an effort to halt fighting that has killed 48 people in the southern port city of Sidon.

There was a ninth straight day of fighting between Christian militiamen and Moslem and Palestinian fighters Saturday in Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut. They exchanged sporadic rifle fire and hurled grenades through much of the day.

The fighting stepped up in the afternoon to mortar, tank and artillery exchanges, reporters in the area said.

Sidon is the provincial capital of southern Lebanon.

Hospital sources said four people were injured Saturday, raising the overall casualty toll to 48 killed and at least 198 wounded, most of them civilians.

Earlier, three rocket-propelled grenades were fired into the air over Beirut's mid-city race track five minutes before the start of the weekend's first race.

Jockeys leapt from their mounts and the horses, lined up at the starting gate, bolted toward the stands as the blasts shook the Hippodrome, on the Green Line separating Beirut's Moslem and Christian sectors.

Many of the 4,000 spectators fled in panic toward the exit gates, and two people were hurt, police said.

Security sources at the track, who spoke on condition they were not identified, blamed the attack on local militiamen intent on collecting protection money. The track's supervisory committee later announced it was suspending the weekend races.

Prime Minister Rashid Karami told reporters after the meeting at Gemayel's palace in Baabda, east of Beirut, that steps to strengthen the Lebanese army in and around Sidon would be implemented this week.

Karami gave no specifics, but the Lebanese army has been reported to be preparing an additional 1,200 troops to augment the 2,300 already on the ground in Sidon. They also have been fitting 30 new armored personnel carriers with machine guns for the Sidon units.

The newspaper Al-Amal, official publication of Gemayel's Phalange Party, reported Friday that Syria told Gemayel to calm Sidon "within days" or it might intervene.

Attending the Saturday session with the the Maronite Christian president and Sunni Moslem prime minister were the Shiite Moslem defense minister, Adel Osseiran; the Christian army commander, Gen. Michel Aoun, the Druse army chief of staff.

Lloyd Bentsen Sr. saga: 'I did it all for Dolly'

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
MISSION, Texas (AP) — He grew up thrashing wheat and busting wild horses in the South Dakota Badlands. He raced motorcycles and broke bones and yearned to become a World War I pilot.

He liked drinking and fighting and discovered early on that the two often traveled hand-in-hand along his turbulent walk on the wild side.

His was not a death wish, though it came camouflaged as such. In business, he preferred oranges to oil and cotton to cattle, though in time Lloyd Millard Bentsen Sr. would build a financial dynasty that embraced them all.

His mustangs and motorcycles led him in and out of hospitals while his dream of becoming a pilot took him in 1917 on a wartime assignment to San Antonio and a weekend of revelry in the Texas Rio Grande Valley.

His first trip to Mission was with an Army buddy named Ray Landry, neither knowing they would eventually settle to father sons famous on the football field and in the U.S. Senate.

There would be in the years to come Lloyd Bentsen Jr., who beat an incumbent senator in 1970, never to be seriously challenged afterward, and there would be Tom Landry, who played defensive back for the New York football Giants before molding the Dallas Cowboys into "America's Team."

There would also be wealth, measured in the millions, for the elder Bentsen. There would be a ranching, farming, oil and banking empire personifying the land he chose for home.

First, however, there would be in this drowsy Valley town of 1917 a shy, beautiful young woman with whom he fell instantly and irreversibly in love.

She ignored him, but not for long. In 1920, Bentsen returned from the war and persuaded Edna Ruth Colbath, his Dolly, to marry him. He had $1.50 in his pocket.

With guts and grit and a novel financing scheme, he began acquiring land, influenced by the missed opportunities of his Danish parents. He wrenched prosperity from the raw terrain, faced death at the hands of his laborers and sired, besides his namesake U.S.

senator, two other sons and a daughter.

He abandoned his rakish lifestyle.

But not before the night he quaffed a bunch of booze, slugged a politician and insisted that one of his drunken cronies shoot a whiskey bottle off his head, which he did.

"I quit drinking the next day," he said.

A SLOW, STEADY drizzle and billowing fog caressed the big Buick one recent morning as Lloyd Bentsen Sr. guided a visitor along palm-studded highways and backroads of the semi-tropical Rio Grande Valley.

Tall and courtly with snow white hair and a small, matching mustache, Bentsen, a widower since 1977, is up at daybreak and on the road to his real estate office or one of several farms and ranches in Hidalgo and Starr counties.

At 91, he shows no evidence of his mustang and motorcycle mishaps nor any physical reminders of two more recent episodes in which he was trampled by stampeding cattle.

His mood is jovial. "This kind of weather is the greatest thing in the world for a rancher or farmer," said Bentsen as the car rolled through the misty haze and past the lush orchards and farmlands and the grazing cattle and pumping oil rigs.

The early spring rainfall extended throughout the Valley, across the Rio Grande into Mexico and northeastward to South Padre Island on the sparkling Gulf Coast.

"All this moisture is going into the ground. There's no runoff. ... This is the prettiest spring we've seen in a long time."

The visitor had come to discuss the sweep of social, economic and political changes in this historic, once secluded slice of South Texas. Instead, Bentsen spoke of an abiding love.

"She was so beautiful, I suspect the Lord took her because he didn't want to see her grow old."

How old was she?

"Seventy-eight," he replied.

BENTSEN RECALLED the 1917 trip to Mission with Ray Landry in which he spotted Dolly for the first time. She wore the silver bars and uniform of a Red Cross volunteer.

"She was the prettiest woman I'd ever seen in my life," he said. "I saluted her, but she blushed and ducked her head and went on by."

Smitten, he turned to Landry and inquired, "Who the hell is that girl?"

His friend told him she was the orphaned offspring of an ill-fated marriage but that she lived quite handsomely from a family inheritance.

"How do I meet her?"

"You gotta go to church," Landry chuckled.

"Well, it's been awhile," he said. Bentsen invited a girl he'd met previously to take him to the Baptist church on Sunday night and afterward asked her to introduce him to the pretty blonde singing in the choir.

"You snake," snapped his companion, in mock anger, as Bentsen remembers it. "You didn't want a date with me..."

But the scheme worked. After meeting Dolly, Bentsen told Landry: "I've made up my mind that if there's any way to get this girl, I'm going to get her."

Unknown to Bentsen until years later, Dolly returned home that night and told friends, "Believe it or not, I've met the man I'm going to marry."

The church rendezvous led to a date, an erratic courtship and in time to a storybook marriage spanning six decades. Friends say they were inseparable. The land baron and erstwhile bad boy of the Badlands wrote her poetry.

When he proposed, Dolly's grandmother had just died and a guardian had squandered her inheritance in cotton futures on the Board of Trade.

"I told her she was out of money and out of family and had no choice but to marry me," he laughed.

"Everything I ever did, I did for Dolly. I lived to make her happy. She changed my life completely."

As he spoke, the car passed through a gate of the scenic family estate, "Acres de la Primavera." It means "acres of springtime."

THE RANCHSTYLE home overlooks a small island surrounded by a 26-acre manmade lake. This morning it is overflowing with wild Canadian geese and honkers, Mexican ducks and black and white American swans.

"I feed 'em and they know they're safe here."

Bentsen paid $50 an acre for the 1,400-acre tract on the Mission side of McAllen and carved out his lake and built his home on what once was a swampy dumpground.

When Dolly first got a glimpse of the raw land, she said: "Lloyd, have you lost your mind?"

The home now is filled with photographs and paintings of the Bentsen clan, a smiling Dolly, her four children, Lloyd Jr., the senator; Kenneth, a Houston architect; Don, a McAllen businessman; and Betty, the wife of Valley businessman Dan Winn.

"It's like something out of a movie," suggests nearby Harlingen broadcast executive Mal Kasanoff, who compares the Bentsens of Texas to the Kennedys of Massachusetts.

"Money and style and socialite wives and beautiful kids and the father in the background. The Bentsens are good, good people."

Valley newspaper publisher Jim Mathis, whose Edinburg Review endorsed Sen. Ralph Yarborough over Lloyd Bentsen Jr. in 1970, will call the elder Bentsen a "mean old rascal" but adds:

"I admire the old man. I really do. He's done a lot for the Valley."

THE SENIOR Bentsen was one of six children of Danish parents who settled before the turn of the century on a small farm in South Dakota.

He had little time as a child for school and none at all after age 13, when he followed the grain harvest across Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas.

For fun and profit, he and his pals bought and tamed wild mustangs trapped in the canyons of the Dakotas, paying $3 a head for the animals and selling them for a $9 markup.

The incidental injuries in breaking wild horses were nothing compared to a motorcycle accident in 1915 in which he broke several bones and almost lost his life.

After months of treatment, he fled the hospital and, following several rejections, eventually tricked a drunken recruiting officer into enlisting him into the Army.

He bluffed his way into a 16-week ground training school at Princeton and wound up in the aviation section of the Signal Corps. Fate took him then to Texas and the meeting with Dolly in 1917.

AFTER THE wedding in 1920, Bentsen borrowed $500 and he and his petite young bride moved into a small house on the Edinburg Canal.

Not long after the wedding, Bentsen joined some 2,000 young ex-servicemen in a night-long Armistice Day celebration at a baseball diamond in Mission.

Fortified with whiskey and uninspired by a political speech, Bentsen climbed atop the platform and knocked the politician to the ground.

It was great fun.

Impressed by a colleague's accuracy with a rifle, Bentsen insisted that his buddy shoot a whiskey bottle out of his hand. The marksman missed. Undaunted, Bentsen placed the bottle atop his head and ordered him to try again from about 200 feet.

"I saw the bore of the rifle and it appeared it was aimed at my forehead. At the last moment, he raised the rifle and I heard the shot and shards of glass broke around my head."

At daybreak, friends loaded their hero into a car and hauled him home. Dolly greeted him with a hug and a kiss and said, "I heard you had a good time."

"Yes," he groaned, "too good a time."

Overcome with remorse and certain the hangover would be terminal, Bentsen vowed an end to such shenanigans.

His ban on liquor delighted Dolly and remains in force 65 years later.

A sober Bentsen invested $384 in a new Ford and headed off on a wagon trail to San Antonio for a belated honeymoon and the announced intention of buying Dolly a new dress.

"In those days, you could buy a lovely dress for $4 or $5," he said.

"I told her to buy what she wanted and to pay for it with a check. We didn't have any money in the bank but I'd get back in time to make it good."

Dolly surprised him with a stunning baby blue dress, plus a pair of slippers and a mink-trimmed hat, all of which came to nearly $200.

"Dolly," he said afterward, "I told you I didn't have any money in the bank."

"Lloyd," she said with a smile, "it shows the confidence I have in you, and you want me to have confidence in you, don't you?"

Schroeder leaves hospital

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Artificial heart patient William J. Schroeder moved into an apartment Saturday, 133 days after his natural heart was removed, making him the first person with a manmade heart to be discharged from a hospital.

The 53-year-old federal retiree had been confined to Humana Hospital Audubon since Nov. 11, 14 days before he received the plastic-and-metal heart. His specially renovated apartment is just a quarter-mile away.

The first person to receive a Jarvik-7 heart, Seattle dentist Dr. Barney Clark, died 112 days after receiving his implant in December 1982. Murray Haydon of Louisville is recovering at Audubon from Feb. 17 implant surgery.

About 75 people, including reporters, television crews and hospital personnel, were on hand as Schroeder's wife, Margaret, pushed his wheelchair through the hospital's main lobby door and down a sidewalk to a waiting van. Spectators applauded and Schroeder waved his right hand and clenched his fist for the group.

Mrs. Schroeder told him to hold on as a hydraulic lift raised the wheelchair into the van. His son Mel, 30, drove the van to the apartment, where relatives were waiting, and pushed the wheelchair into the apartment.

"He went out to the front porch and everyone started applauding, then he started applauding," said Bob Irvine, Humana Inc. public relations director. "He was pleased. He was very animated."

Schroeder, who suffered setbacks with a stroke in mid-December and an unexplained fever and flu-like illness in February, viewed the move "as a first step to going home," implant surgeon Dr. William C. DeVries said earlier Saturday at a news conference.

Schroeder's strength, spirits and appetite have improved markedly in recent weeks, DeVries said.

"Sir Isaac Newton once said that we see so far because we stand on the shoulders of giants. And I think it's appropriate that a giant leaves the hospital and enters into a new phase of his life ... today," DeVries said.

Mrs. Schroeder said her husband would take life "one day at a time" after the move.

Dunbar had a dozen hits with Robert Torres leading the way with three singles and an RBI.

Dwayne Roberts led Pampa with two base hits. Wade Howard, Trace Robbin' Brad Cryer, and Juan Soto had one hit each.

Howard was the losing pitcher.

Issel honored by Nuggets

DENVER (AP) — They lavished gifts, proclamations and accolades on Dan Issel, and after some initial nervousness, the 36-year-old center went out and scored 18 points to help the Denver Nuggets beat the San Antonio Spurs 118-109 in National Basketball Association action.

The triumph Friday night raised Denver's record to 50-27 and put the Nuggets 5 1/2 games ahead of Houston in the Midwest Division. It also reduced Denver's magic number for clinching the division title to one; one Denver victory or one Houston loss will give the crown to the Nuggets.

It was only the second time since Denver joined the NBA that the team had reached the 50-victory plateau and the first since 1976-77, the 'Nuggets' first year in the league.

Calvin Natt had 30 points and Alex English 27 to pace the Nuggets.

But the more than 16,000 fans in attendance were there to salute Issel, who was honored before the game with a special tribute in recognition of his impending retirement when the season ends. He received numerous plaques, a proclamation from the governor and a new pickup truck which will come in handy when he begins breeding thoroughbred horses in Kentucky later this year. He also received his locker, suitably bronzed, with an old basketball and his shoes inside. And his jersey, No. 44, was retired.

"I was so tight with my first shot that I really thought it was an air ball," said Issel, "but somehow by a miracle it went through."

Issel insisted his teammates "didn't just win this game for my 'night.' This has been a winning club all year. There's not one bad character on this team. There are 12 great individuals, and that's reflected in the way we're playing now and the fact we've won 50 games."

San Antonio, which fell to 39-39 on the season, trailed only 99-98 with 5:36 to play before the Nuggets ran off nine straight points, including four each by Natt and English. That spurk took the Spurs out of contention.

San Antonio's Mike Mitchell was high scorer for the game with 34 points, but only seven of those came in the second half.

The Spurs played without George Gervin, sidelined by a sprained ankle.

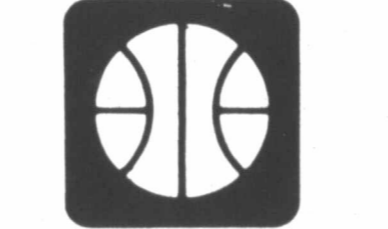

"Our defense pulled it out for us again," said Denver Coach Doug Moe. "We played unbelievable defense in the second half. Winning 50 games is a great feeling, and it gets us a step closer to winning the division. Hopefully we can wrap that up this weekend."

Spurs Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said his team "turned the ball over too many times in the fourth quarter and missed too many free throws. Those things hurt us, of course, but give Denver credit for coming after us."

Tulane supporters want to see basketball program re-instated

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A fundraising group known as The Greenbackers, along with some non-member sympathizers, planned a march to the home of Tulane University's president today in objection to his decision to drop men's basketball because of a point-shaving scandal.

Howie Farrell, a member of the club board, refused to characterize the march as a protest or demonstration.

Farrell said the group would simply gather on the campus quadrangle and walk over to Dr. Eamon Kelly's mansion to "give him a position paper supporting the continuation of basketball at Tulane."

"But demonstration is too strong a word for what we are doing," Farrell said. "It is a cooperative thing we are trying to organize among the local booster clubs."

Kelly's announcement on Thursday came just a few hours before an Orleans Parish grand jury indicted three of Tulane's basketball starters and five other men on charges of sports bribery and conspiracy.

It accused five players of accepting at least $17,000. Two of the five were given immunity from prosecution in return for their testimony.

One of the accused players is John "Hot Rod" Williams, Tulane's All-Metro Conference center and, until the scandal broke, considered an almost certain first-round pick in the upcoming National Basketball Association draft.

Kelly said he was certain Tulane's board of administrators and the university Senate would accept his recommendation to drop basketball, and he expects the termination to be permanent.

The uproar reportedly began as a small cocaine buy.

Investigators said Clyde Eads, a senior forward, went to senior business major Gary Kranz looking for cocaine. They became friends and, within two weeks, the conversations had turned to point-shaving.

Babe Ruth tryouts slated this week

Tryouts for the Babe Ruth baseball league will be held Monday through Wednesday from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Babe Ruth park.

Players need to make two of the three tryouts. Call Harley Knutson at 665-437 if you can't make the playoffs.

Eads, given immunity to prosecution, gave investigators a full account. Jon Johnson, a starting forward, also was given immunity and corroborated Eads' account.

Many local sportswriters and sportscasters agreed with Farrell that Kelly acted too quickly in scuttling Tulane's 73-year-old basketball program.

"We feel that the decision is a hasty overreaction to a very distasteful situation," Farrell said Friday.

"We feel that the violations which they are convinced occurred need to be addressed, but... if you look at it in a medical analogy, if Dr. Kelly were a medical doctor, all of his patients would be dead because they've become diseased. We don't feel that should happen to our particular institution.

"We don't want to see our institution die. We don't want to see the financial contributions to academics be thwarted because of a loss of basketball program. We know that intercollegiate athletics has been a major part in fundraising for academics."

The scandal was causing ripples: — At Fairleigh Dickinson University in Teaneck, N.J., head basketball Coach Tom Green issued a statement saying he was "appalled" by the report that, in 1981 when he was an assistant at Tulane, he paid a high school star $10,000 to attend the school.

Pampa golfers in fourth place

The Harvesters had a first-round score of 327, nine shots off the pace set by Amarillo High.

Clay Jett of Pampa is in a three-way tie for second place in the medalist standings with a 77.

Dyan Crosier followed Jett for the Harvesters with an 81. Next came Johnny Snuggs, 84; Jeff Langen and Jody Chase, 85 each.

Women voted into basketball hall

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Coaches Margaret Wade and Bertha Teague and 19th-century rulemaker Senda Barenson Abbott will become the first women inducted into Basketball Hall of Fame during ceremonies July 1.

"It's only fitting," Hall of Fame spokesman Jerry Healy said Saturday when the results of a secret ballot by a trustees committee were announced. "Basketball is the only sport that is played all over the world, indoors and out, 12 months of the year by men and women of all ages."

Also to be inducted this year are former pro star Nate Thurmond; Harold Anderson, who coached Thurmond at Bowling Green; retired University of Washington Coach Marv Harshman; and Al Cervi, a star guard in the early days of the pro leagues.

The ceremonies also will mark the opening of a new $11.4 million Hall of Fame Building.

"I'm not a very emotional person, but this is a great victory," said Wade, 72, from her home in Cleveland, Miss. "I guess maybe I had hopes, but I didn't really think they would ever put a woman in the Hall of Fame."

The hall, which installed its first black player a decade ago, has come under increasing pressure from women's groups to induct women. Currently, 143 individual players, coaches and contributors, and four teams are enshrined.

"This is worth more than all the money I didn't get," said Teague, 84, the winningest coach in the history of high school basketball, men's or women's.

In 43 years of coaching at Byng High in Ada, Okla., Teague's teams won 1,189 of 1,275 games to give her a lifetime winning record of 93.25 percent.

Teague regrets never playing basketball. Wade played the game. She burned her uniform wne Delta State officials abolished women's basketball in 1933, because they thought it was "too rough" for ladies.

But 40 years later when Delta State decided to try women's basketball again, it called on Wade, then 62, who had left a highly successful high school coaching career 14 years earlier.

In her second season, the Lady Statesmen won the first of three straight national championships.

Abbott, a games mistress at Smith College, wrote the first separate rules for the women's game in 1892 and left an imprint on women's college basketball that lasted until the 1970s.

Thurmond, one of the better defensive players in the NBA, averaged 15 points and rebounds over a 14-year career that ended in 1977.

Anderson, who died in 1967, coached 20 years at Bowling Green and compiled a 362-185 record, taking six teams to the National Invitation Tournament and three to the NCAA playoffs.

Harshman was the second winningest active coach in the game with 642 victories before he retired in March.

Cervi, 68, a feisty guard in the early days of the game, began his pro career at age 20 with the Buffalo Bisons in 1937.

He played on the Rochester Royals championship squads of the old National Basketball League in 1945 and 1946 and was the league's leading scorer in 1946. In 1949 as player-coach of the Syracuse Nationals, he made the first All-NBA team as a player and was named coach of the year. He won another title in 1955 as Syracuse coach.

1985 Baseball Preview

Spotlight opens on Cincinnati as Rose pursues hit record

Pete Rose (left) enters the 1985 season needing only 95 hits to break the all-time hit record of Ty Cobb (right)

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The 1985 major league baseball season begins Monday with the spotlight on Cincinnati, traditional site of the National League opener for the past century. The spotlight surely will return as Pete Rose nears a record that has stood for more than half that time.

Rose, player-manager of the Reds, is poised to break the all-time record of 4,191 hits by Ty Cobb, who ended his career in 1928. With 107 hits last year, Rose now has 4,097, needing 95 to break the record.

Rose, who turns 44 on April 14, has a dual role, however, and he says he aspires first to the same goal as his 25 other managerial counterparts — to win a pennant.

"As far as I'm concerned, the record will fall," he says. "It's just a matter of at-bats. If I hit, I play. I've always been able to put the team ahead of the individual."

The Reds, opening the National League season at home for the 99th time, play the Montreal Expos. Four games — Cleveland at Detroit, New York at Boston, Texas at Baltimore and Toronto at Kansas City — open the American League season Monday. By April 19, all 26 clubs will have opened at home.

Cobb's record is one of several milestones that could fall during the season. Tom Seaver is within 12 victories of the 300 career mark; Rod Carew needs 71 hits to reach 3,000, and Nolan Ryan and Steve Carlton continue their duel for the all-time strikeout lead. Ryan has 3,874 strikeouts, Carlton 3,872, and both pitchers could pass the 4,000 mark this year.

Duels of a less-individual nature are developing in baseball's four divisions, especially in the American League East. The Detroit Tigers won 35 of their first 40 games last season to run away with the division, then captured the World Series in five games over the San Diego Padres, winners from NL West.

Considered the strongest division in baseball, the AL East will be tough to defend. According to different accounts, as many as five teams — Detroit, Toronto, Baltimore, Boston and New York — could compete for the title. In fact, recent precedent indicates the Tigers will fail in their defense, along with the Padres and the other two division winners, Kansas City in the AL West and Chicago in the NL East. In the past three years, no division winner has repeated.

Off the field and in the conference rooms, another battle looms. Baseball's four-year Basic Agreement with the players' union, which was negotiated out of the 1981 strike, expired on Dec. 31, and an owners' contention that the game faces "severe economic problems" has slowed talks.

The players are asking for changes in free agency and the contribution to their benefit plan, while owners would like a new look in salary arbitration.

Other new looks are more apparent in some of the teams and their players.

Reliever Bruce Sutter left St. Louis as a free agent to go to Atlanta; Montreal traded catcher Gary Carter to the New York Mets; Oakland sent outfielder Rickey Henderson to the New York Yankees; San Diego traded with the Chicago White Sox for pitcher LaMarr Hoyt; Toronto got relievers Bill Caudill from Oakland and Gary Lavelle from San Francisco; the Giants sent outfielder Jack Clark to St. Louis, and Kansas City took catcher Jim Sundberg from Milwaukee.

Even the organization-oriented Orioles signed three free agents — Fred Lynn, Lee Lacy and Don Aase. In the previous nine years of the re-entry draft, Baltimore had signed only five free agents, the most prestigious being Steve Stone — a nobody when he came to the Orioles in 1978 from the White Sox, a Cy Young winner in 1980.

Montreal, St. Louis and Pittsburgh in the National League, and Oakland, Texas and Milwaukee in the American League are among one-time contenders who have embarked upon major rebuilding efforts.

Many clubs found answers to poor seasons in the manager's office. Ten clubs have new managers to start the season.

Three new managers — Rose, Jackie Moore at Oakland and Chuck Cottier at Seattle — were named during last season. Two managers — Gene Mauch at California and George Bamberger at Milwaukee — returned after previous terms with their clubs.

John Feiske at Philadelphia, Eddie Haas at Atlanta and Jim Daveport at San Francisco are rookie managers, while John McNamara at Boston and Buck Rodgers at Montreal have managed other teams.

Another office job also has changed as baseball begins its first full season under Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, the man who made $215 million for the Los Angeles Olympics as president of its organizing committee. Now, he'll try to make some money for major league baseball.

Rangers shooting for .500 season

By DENNEH FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers lost the hearts and stomachs of their fans in 1984. They finished dead last in the American League West, 69-92 in a year that management was optimistic of a pennant contender. The miscalculation cost General Manager Joe Klein his job.

And they made their fans mad at the start of the season by not allowing them to take food into the Arlington Stadium.

This unpopular policy by Larry Schmittou, vice president of marketing and administration, was rescinded by no less than the chairman of the board, Eddie Giles.

Fans were being turned off by horror stories of guards confiscating fried chicken at the gates, then having their own picnic.

Now, the 1985 theme is "Catch the Good Times!"

Cynical Ranger fans could be forgiven if they reserve judgment, particularly on the "catch" angle since the Rangers were last in the league in fielding last year.

But there are signs of a new broom at Arlington.

There's a new general manager — Tom Grieve, a former Ranger player who was director of player development. He's a down-to-earth realist.

"Our goal right now is .500," Grieve says.

Gaylord Broadcasting bought a large percentage of the team and pumped in some badly needed cash flow.

The Rangers have been in the red ink throughout the 1980s.

There are new executive suites that will provide more revenue.

There's a new public relations man in John Blake, who replaced the retired Burt Hawkins.

There's a new attitude from Ranger Manager Doug Rader, who stubbed his toe on several trades including the Ned Yost for catcher Jim Sundberg deal.

"I've made some mistakes," Rader admitted shortly before he cut Yost from the team in spring training.

When the Rangers take the field for their home opener Friday night against Milwaukee (plenty of seats are still available), there will be plenty of new faces.

Toby Harrah, the old Ranger who still holds the club's home run leadership, was obtained in a trade for Billy Sample and will be starting at second base.

Cliff Johnson, a slugger deluxe, will be the new designated hitter and classy catcher Don Slaught, obtained from Kansas City, will be behind the plate.

The Ranger lineup averaged almost six runs a game in the spring and could be a potent run producer during the regular season.

New pitchers counted on to help include Dave Rozema and former Los Angeles Dodger Burt Hooten, whose earned run average hovered around 10.00 in the spring.

Dave Stewart is being tried as a reliever but had a tough Grapefruit League.

The Rangers are trying hard to do away with their bad guy image.

Tickets range all the way from $1.25 for a child's general admission (adult $2.00) to $8.50 for a box seat.

There are teen nights, family nights, senior citizen nights and special attractions such as used car night, helmet night, and something called "Christmas in October."

For long-suffering Ranger fans, the latter would be an American League division title.

Miller takes lead in Dinah Shore golf

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Alice Miller, who's been knocking on the victory door all year but hasn't broken into the winner's circle, rolled in a 40-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Saturday to take the lead after three rounds of the LPGA's $400,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore.

Miller, 28, winner of three tournaments over the past two years, shot a 2-under-par 70 for an 8-under-par total of 208 through 54 holes at Mission Hills Country Club.

She'll take a one-stroke lead over Patty Sheehan and Judy Clark into Sunday's nationally televised final round.

Sheehan, who began the day one shot back of the lead shared by Clark and Muffin Spencer-Devlin, carded a third-round 71, while Clark matched par with 72.

Spencer-Devlin struggled to a 77 that left her six strokes off the pace.

Also within striking distance of the lead heading into the final round were Jan Stephenson, Denise Strebeg and Lauri Peterson, all at 212.

Stephenson and Strebeg each had 73s, and Peterson shot a third-round 69.

Miller, a former Arizona State golfing star from Marysville,

Calif., has managed to finish second, third, fourth and fifth in the eight women's tournaments this year, coming closest to victory with a runner-up spot at the LPGA's Costa Mesa, Calif. tournament in early March.

Last year she won the Sarasota Classic and West Virginia Classic, the latter providing her with her first LPGA triumph in 1983.

Miller, who joined the tour in 1978, has won slightly more than $70,000 each of the past three years on the circuit, and would collect $55,000 for a victory in the prestigious Dinah Shore, the richest of four LPGA major tournaments.

Alice Miller takes third-round lead in Dinah Shore LPGA tourney.

Wife of MIA is still fighting the pain

By CATHY FRISINGER
Irving Daily News
IRVING, Texas (AP) — Joella Wester chooses her words very carefully.

For she is a woman of strong faith who is stalwart in her conviction in the ultimate wisdom of the Supreme Being. She believes in accepting and going on.

Yet, at the same time, she wants to be honest. And the truth is there are some small feelings of resentment, of a life gone to waste.

Mrs. Wester is the wife of an MIA. Her husband, Maj. Albert D. Wester, was shot down while conducting a rescue mission in Vietnam in October 1968.

Wester arrived in the war-torn country just a few months before the fatal incident. He was assigned to pilot one of the Jolly Green Giant helicopters. The motto of the pilots was: That others might live. Wester's helicopter was shot down while he was on a mission to rescue Green Berets stranded on a hill on the Laotian border.

Last summer Mrs. Wester was notified by the Air Force that her husband and other MIAs were to be honored. She flew to Washington D.C. in July for ceremonies on the White House grounds, and in February Congressman Martin Frost presented a bronze medal to her son, Jay Wester, in recognition of his father's heroism and sacrifice.

Mrs. Wester is pleased at the recognition for her husband, but receiving the medal has been a bittersweet pleasure, for it has forced her to recall painful times.

Mrs. Wester is a large, commanding woman. Wearing a bright red business suit with her head held high, she looks as if she squared off with the obstacles life presented her and won the fight.

She has worked as a real estate agent for the Red Carpet Nita Miller agency for five years, and taught business courses at area junior colleges before turning to real estate. Church and family are important to her.

Her 20-year-old son, who is a student at Texas Tech, is her pride, her life.

Her co-worker Edith Ryan describes her as "a very congenial person to work with...She's very conscientious on her job."

Mrs. Wester's life has changed a great deal since she learned of her husband's death 17 years ago.

The first months were very hard, Mrs. Wester said. She had moved to Irving shortly before the tragedy.

"I doubted it (her husband's death) at the beginning. You always knew they made a lot of mistakes...So even though they told me, I hoped they were wrong."

Without support from her family, church and friends it would have been even more difficult. Friends organized a flyover, an Air Force tradition honoring those killed in service. They also did something that helped Mrs. Wester rebuild her life: They tracked down the co-pilot who flew with her husband the day of the crash.

She talked to the co-pilot four months after the crash. "He saw...the explosion. He (Wester) was burned in the plane. It kind of finalized it that he was dead."

"After I was talking to Sam about this, I just felt like I had to put the pieces back together." Wester remained on the MIA list because his body was never recovered.

Mrs. Wester said the early years were devoted to her son, Jay, who was 4 at the time of the crash.

"He cried a lot at first. He felt he could go back to Hawaii where he had seen his dad in August and see him again."

She enrolled Jay in a Montessori school right after the accident, and when he was old enough, entered him in a variety of sports activities because of the opportunity it would give him for male role models.

She's proud of her son's accomplishments; he was a National Honor Society student, she says.

Though she was very busy those early years caring for a hurting child, building new financial and personal supports, there were many moments when anger crept in.

"At first I felt that most people didn't care what was going on in Vietnam."

She feels it was a war that the politicians wouldn't let the military win.

"When they stopped the bombing in the North, that's when so many were killed. If they had allowed the bombing, they wouldn't have lost so many."

And she wonders what purpose the deaths served.

"If it would have been that we would not have had any more trouble with the Communists, that would have been one thing..."

Then she worries that her words might carry more resentment than she wishes to express. After all, it's been 16 years. She's built a successful career, and is leading a fruitful life.

"I'm not bitter about it, because I know in my heart my husband was a very fine Christian, and if he was meant to live he would have lived through this."

Her minister, the Rev. Bo Baker, describes her as "attentive to not only being present in church, but also to the message the church serves."

She is, of course, very pleased with the medal her son received on his father's behalf.

Problems foil attempts to light 42-foot statue of Christ

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Keeping the lights on at the top of Mount Cristo Rey has turned out to be next to impossible, officials say.

First, the diesel fuel generator blew a piston three months after it was installed to illuminate the 42-foot statue of Christ atop the mountain. When it was replaced with a smaller battery-operated generator, someone stole the batteries.

The batteries were replaced, but then the four lights used to illuminate the cross were stolen.

Wednesday, the lights were replaced — but the statue remained dark because someone had stolen the generator.

"Someone went through a great deal of trouble and work to steal that generator," said Robert Munoz, vice president and general manager of KCIK-TV, which sponsored a telethon last fall to raise money to refurbish and light the monument.

"Either someone doesn't want the cross lit, or they are just stealing items for their own benefit. We don't know what's going on, but we will find out," Munoz told the El Paso Times.

The lighting of the stone statue atop Mount Cristo Rey was part of a $40,000 project that included restoration of the base of the statue and the ground around it. Money for the project was donated by individuals and groups throughout West Texas and southern New Mexico.

The cross first was illuminated in October after a yearly pilgrimage up the mountain to the popular religious shrine. The lights were on every night until December, when the generator blew the piston.

Munoz said the El Paso Police Department will be notified about the thefts. He said a security guard may be stationed atop the mountain after the $1,000 generator is replaced.

Cotillion sets • 23rd antique show and sale

The money from tickets bought at the first of the 20th Century Cotillion's 22 Antique Show and Sales continues to work through the Opportunity Plan Inc. (OPI).

And members of the organization hope to bring in even more funds for the OPI student loan program through their 23rd annual antique show scheduled April 12, 13 and 14 at M.K. Brown Auditorium. The show is to be open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. on April 12 and 13, and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. on April 14.

The 20th Century Cotillion division of OPI has a capital value of $49,508.04. Eighty-two students have borrowed a total of $259,190.44 from the 20th Century Cotillion division of the program. "If you bought a ticket to the first show, your money is still working," said Betty Blake, publicity chairman.

Chairman of this year's event is Janie VanZandt. Lillith Brainard is co-chairman.

Dealers from Indiana, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arizona, as well as various areas of Texas, bringing with them such collectibles as antique furniture, silver, silverplate, coins, jewelry, stoves, pressed glass, porcelain, bronze, and nautical items.

OPI was formed in 1954 by Milton (Buff) Morris, now semi-retired. His daughter, Cathryn Wright, is executive vice president of OPI, located in Canyon. OPI is governed by a board of directors with an executive committee. Board members come for various areas in the Panhandle. Money used for operations of OPI is raised independently from the funds secured for student loans. There are now 114 OPI divisions with 450 students now participating in the program.

SHERRY RICHARDS
1985 Mrs. America

Former Pampan wins 1985 Mrs. Texas title

Sherry Richards, formerly of Pampa, has won the title of Mrs. Texas in the Mrs. Texas pageant recently in Houston.

Richards is the daughter of Guy Johnson and the late Oneda Johnson, and the niece of J.D. and Delphia Grider of Pampa. Her husband, Lawrence Richards, is also from Pampa.

Nine judges from across the United States selected Richards as Mrs. Texas 1985 on the basis of beauty of face and figure, personality, swimsuit, evening gown and community involvement. This was her third try for the crown. She was named second runner-up in 1983 and first runner-up in 1984. "The only way I could go was up and the third time was the charm," she told a Fort Worth newspaper.

Richards will now compete for national title, Mrs. America, in the annual pageant in Reno, Nev. on July 14-23 at the Reno Hilton. The pageant is to be presented on national television, with the husbands included in the production number of the pageant, as well.

Described in a newspaper article as a "vivacious lady," Richards has brown eyes, long auburn hair, stand 5'8" and weighs 122 pounds. She admits to working hard to maintain her 36-23-36 figure by aerobics, jogging, weight lifting and

"eating lots of lettuce."

The new Mrs. Texas was born in Shawnee, Okla., but was raised in the Texas Panhandle, graduating from Pampa High School in 1972. She says she had entered a couple of pageants while in school, but it wasn't until she saw Mrs. America on the Phil Donohue Show that she seriously considered vying for the Mrs. America crown.

A resident of Bowie, Richards is active in the community. She serves on the boards of directors for the Montague County Heart Association and Montague County Scholarship Pageant. She is a member of the Bowie Chamber of Commerce and the secretary for the Bowie Soccer Association. She is also a Sunday School teacher at the Lighthouse Assembly of God Church, a room mother and member of the Bowie Intermediate and the Bowie Elementary Parent-Teacher Association.

She has been married for 12 years to her high school sweetheart and Pampa High School graduate, Lawrence Richards. They have two sons, Erik, 10, and Aaron, 5.

She attributes much of her success to her sponsors and to her husband and family. "Lawrence has supported and encouraged me so much and I do think he's looking forward to the Mrs. America Pageant as much as I am," she says.

Singers work hard

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Don't ever let anyone tell you that professional singers don't work for a living.

Just ask the classical basso or soprano who routinely drops a couple of pounds in the process of performing an opera.

Singing — particularly opera singing — is an athletic event, say two University of Arizona researchers who have completed a study on how classical singers breathe when they perform.

But using the lungs, rib cage and abdomen correctly can make the job a whole lot easier, they say.

"Trying to sing without using the respiratory system properly is sort of like trying to play an organ that doesn't have a windbox," said Thomas J. Hixon, a professor of speech and hearing sciences. "The excellent singer uses his respiratory system to the fullest."

Because they don't use microphones and they often must sing above the music of an orchestra, classical singers "tax everything" when they perform, said Peter Watson, a UA research assistant who directed the study.

With the aid of modern technology, opera singers can train to make their singing "more efficient" and acquire skills more quickly, the researchers said.

Hixon and Watson, who has a master's degree in vocal performance, put a half dozen local male baritones to the test.

Dorothy Howard, Heritage Art Club's Craftsman of the Year

Howard's work to be featured in show

Dorothy Howard, a Pampa craftsman, is to be featured at the Heritage Art Club Art Show, April 9 and 10, at the Lovett Memorial Library auditorium. The free show is open to the public during regular library hours.

Chosen as the 1985 Heritage Art Club Craftsman of the Year, Howard's specialty is crocheting but she also enjoys many other types of handwork. She works for two reasons, she says, because she enjoys it and because it keeps her from going crazy.

"I've crocheted since we (she and her husband Lonnie) were married. That's been 39 years now," Howard said. She learned the art from her sisters — she has five of them, plus two brothers (one died in the war) and a half brother. She was born and raised in Oklahoma, but she has lived in Pampa for the past 28 years.

"I crochet because I have to have something to do," she explains. When she, her husband, and their three grandsons, Brandon, Brett and Brent Johnson, decided to go to the lake, Howard grabs her needle and yarn and she's ready to go. "They laugh at me and say, 'Mom's got her needle again,' she says, with a smile.

Howard prefers to give away the items she creates to others. This week's art show will be her first time to formally display any of her work.

"I like a challenge — to make things I've never made before and see how it will work out. I won't make but one or two of the same thing," she says. Many of her ideas come from craft books and friends, she adds.

"I like pretty things," she admits. "I like dolls. I guess I'm still a little girl at heart."

The art club and Howard's work with the Ross group of the Christian Women's Fellowship are her favorite activities, she says. "They are two things I can do that I can really call my own."

Some of Howard's creations include feather duster covers that look like little girls, a plant vase with a beguiling worm wrapped around it, pin cushions with a thimble in the middle, chicken potholders, crocheted cookies that have fooled more than one person — her husband says they should have a sign reading "Don't eat this, it's a dud" — crocheted cleanser covers, tissue holders, refrigerator magnets, afghans and much more.

The Heritage Art Club art show will include the paintings and craftsmanship of 23 other artists, 20 art club members and three invited guests — Viola Nickols of Lefors, Christine Fennell and Myrtle Smith, both of Pampa. Heritage Art Club cookbooks will also be available at the show.

Pampa Fine Arts presents artists of the year

Pernie Fallon creates contemporary jewelry

Pernie W. Fallon, a contemporary jewelry designer, began her award-winning career when only a student in junior high.

Her first ring won the top award at the Trifari Jewelry Competition in New York City. Encouraged and excited by her success, she continued studying jewelry making. When she graduated from Pampa High School in 1973, Fallon received the Pampa Fine Arts scholarship, allowing her to attend Arizona State University. She graduated with a bachelor of fine arts degree, specializing in jewelry.

Acknowledging the importance of continuing education in her field, Fallon extended her studies at metal smithing workshops across the country, learning new techniques and old tricks from the top jewelry craftsmen in the U.S., England, Germany and Japan.

Fallon's work has been recognized throughout Texas. She was selected to exhibit her jewelry in the Texas Designer-Craftsmen Exhibition in Austin and again in the Teyas Designer-Craftsmen Exhibition: Selected Works in Houston. She was also chosen to be among the nation's 250 top craftsmen to exhibit at the prestigious Fair at Dallas sponsored by the American Crafts Council. Her selection as Pampa's co-artist of the year confirms that her superior craftsmanship and exceptional designs have won her a reputation as an outstanding artist in her field.

While Fallon's approach to jewelry is contemporary, she uses techniques that have developed during jewelry's 7,000-year history. She combines original design with age-old technique to give her jewelry a timeless elegance.

Fallon and her husband, Jim Davis, live south of Pampa in their home built by Davis. Davis is also a superb artist specializing in antique reproduction furniture. He and Fallon have adjoining studios at their country home set in a grove of spring-blooming black locust trees overlooking the vast prairies of the Texas Panhandle. As any artist would title a painting or a sculpture that he has created with his own hands, the Davis' have named their home Casa de la Arbolada. A sculpture on a grand scale, their home is truly a product of the two artists' creative talents.

Continually inspired by the beauty of her surroundings, Fallon

also draws inspiration from the materials she works with. Often incorporating precious and semi-precious stones to enhance her work, she delights in the beauty of the piece after the final buffing and polishing. Fallon is a member of the Society of North American Goldsmiths, the American Crafts Council, Texas Designer - Craftsmen and the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

Pernie Fallon and Jacqueline Kastor, the Pampa Fine Arts Associations artists of the year for 1985, are to present a showing of their works April 14 and April 15 at Lovett Memorial Library. The gallery show is to be on public display from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., April 14, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., April 15. A reception honoring Fallon and Kastor for members of the Pampa Fine Arts Association and the artist's guests is scheduled from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., April 13.

Kastor's work is impressionistic

"There is so much I want to paint and to share with people through my paintings," says Jacqueline Tidmore Kastor, a versatile painter who has been chosen co-artist of the year for 1985 by the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

Though Kastor's subject matter is quite varied, she shows her love for the unending beauty in life as she draws and paints from personal reflections and experiences.

Kastor's interest in art was inspired by a friend's painting of a North Carolina beach on which she had spent many hours "daydreaming." Ten years later, her dreams have become her own canvases.

Her formerly realistic approach to art has since evolved into a more impressionistic style particularly in her paintings of children, florals and landscapes. After studying with several artists, Kastor realized that an artist must be 90 percent self-taught in order to grow and develop a personal style.

Kastor says she plans to continue taking workshops and studying with other artists, because she believes that one can never learn enough. And she says another artist's inspiration is extremely important to her.

So much can be learned from reading art books and going to galleries to study other's works, Kastor says, but she also thinks that observing people can provide the most important art lessons.

Kastor is particularly interested in the style of the French Impressionists such as Monet and the early Taos artists such as Fechin. She says she hopes to develop her strong sense of color and interest in texture and design.

Through her paintings, Kastor says she gets a strong feeling of energy. She also enjoys working with pencil as a totally different medium with a totally different effect. Her drawings are realistic and pensive in style, giving her a feeling of peacefulness as she draws them, she says.

Kastor has participated in and won several awards in numerous group exhibits. Her works have been displayed in galleries in Amarillo and the surrounding area. She has also been honored with many one-woman shows in the area.

She is a member of the Pampa Fine Arts Association, Amarillo Fine Arts Association, and the Pampa Art Club.

She was born in the small resort town of Spirit Lake, Iowa and has traveled throughout her life. She graduated from Quana High School and Commercial College of Abilene.

Before moving to Pampa in 1983, Kastor lived and taught classes in Amarillo. She was also a commercial artist for the Amarillo Public Library.

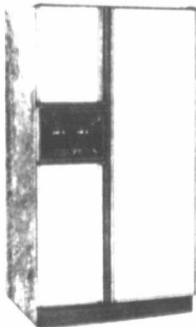

Kastor works from her home studio at 2119 N. Banks in Pampa, sharing her love of art with husband, Gary, and daughters, Kristin and Anna Camille Tidmore.

Dear Abby

Boss trapped in affair gropes for a way out

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a married man, 43 years old. I have a good wife and an 11-year-old son who mean the world to me.

My problem started four years ago when an attractive divorced woman (she's now 36) came to work for me. I own a prosperous business. I'm not without blame, but she did tempt me, and we had an affair. I told her from the beginning that I had no intentions of leaving my wife, but she thought she could win me over. She insists that she loves me, and things are now in a terrible state.

She gets jealous if I smile at another woman, and my customers are starting to notice, as well as the employees. I bought her a car to keep her quiet and I give her money on the side. I finally suggested she find another job. She refuses to leave.

I'm sorry I got involved with her, but it's too late now. I can't fire her or she'll tell my wife everything. I can't go on this way. Am I trapped? I don't want to hurt my family. Please help me.

NO WAY OUT

DEAR NO WAY: Tell your wife that you had an affair with this woman, but it's over. Ask her (beg her, if necessary) to forgive you, and promise to be the world's best husband if she will give you the chance.

Then tell your ladyfriend that you've confessed everything to your wife. This will render her powerless to blackmail you. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I was not a virgin when I married. I fell in love more than once, but I never was promiscuous.

Luckily, I had the advice of a realistic and loving mother, and thus avoided VD and pregnancies. It was simple.

To every boyfriend who wanted to have sex with me I would say, "Either you use protection, or no go!" It's always worked.

The media, and you, too, Abby, preach daily the awful consequences of VD and unplanned pregnancies, but you say very little about prevention. If you print this, I'm sure you will get thousands of indignant letters, but you might save a million girls a lot of grief and shame for life.

SMUG IN VICTORIA, B.C.

DEAR SMUG: I'll risk it. I can preach self-control from now until my typewriter falls apart, but there will always be people who will continue to do what comes naturally and take their chances, so to them I say, "Take precautions. We don't need any more VD or unplanned pregnancies."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old male student nurse. Recently I met representatives from several hospitals and learned that my chances for employment are excellent—but my chances for the jobs of my choice range from poor to non-existent. Why? Because I am a man.

Some hospitals will not hire a male R.N. for general medical-surgical duty because male nurses are not allowed to perform routine care of female patients without a female nurse present. Obviously this is not cost-effective if two nurses must be in the room while only one is necessary.

On an obstetrics-gynecology service, the male R.N. is simply not allowed in most hospitals because "intimate care" is required. At least that's how it was explained to me.

Abby, female nurses take care of male patients (even on urological services), and no chaperones are required.

Is this discrimination practiced all over the country? Or is New England behind the times? I would also be interested in knowing how your female readers feel about having a male R.N. care for them in the hospital.

M.B.E.

DEAR M.B.E.: Discrimination against male nurses is new to me, and I have no way of knowing how widespread it is until I hear from readers.

I personally feel the sex of a nurse is unimportant as long as that nurse is competent. Readers?

Brownies learn of living, giving

Brownie Troop 216 has been busy this year, learning about themselves, the past and about helping others.

The girls recently donated two baby quilts they had made to the Community Day Care Center, following it up with a contribution to the center's storm shelter fund.

Each of the 31 Brownies, all second graders from Austin Elementary School, brought a quilt square from home and decorated it at one of the meetings. At the next meeting, the girls learned how quilts were made and each girl helped tie the quilt. Donna Reynolds, a mother of one of the Brownies, assisted.

The contribution for the storm shelter fund came from the girls' calendar sales profits. Other service projects included making tray favors for Meals on Wheels and helping Clean Pampa Inc. put decals on trash cans.

Emphasis this year was placed on studying things from the past.

Troop members include Jennifer Crossman, Ellen Depee, Tricia Drake, Kendra Earl, Julie French, Lauren Fritz, Lisa Follis, Ashley Gray, Deawn Guess, Suzie Hahn, Michelle Harsock, Amy Hayes, Catherine Henderson, Erica Hensley, Jennifer Holland, Karen McPherson, Natasha Miller, Amy Moen, Andrea Phillips, Jamie Hutcherson, Tabbi Rogers, Denise Reynolds, Shelley Stephenson, Bridget Tarcha, Grace Sutton, Melissa Thompson, Sara Thrope, Crystal Tomas, Amy Watson, Mindy White and Sara Zeagler.

Troop leaders are Judy Sutton and assistant leaders, Tricia Fritz and Jana Hahn.

BROWNIES GIVE QUILTS — These quilts were made by members from Brownie Troop 216 from Austin Elementary School, then presented to the infant room at the Community Day Care Center. The Brownies also presented the day care

Club News

Beta Chi Conclave

Beta Chi Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota met recently in Lefors. Norma Lantz, president, showed a certificate received from the Statue of Liberty Restoration Committee for the contribution sent by the club.

The treasurer's report was given, future meetings discussed and a nomination committee of Paula Whitney, Laurie Daugherty and Pat Pitmon was appointed. The slate of officers is to be voted on at the April meeting.

Halleluia! Christ Arose!

Don't get me wrong. I think taking care of your eyesight is just as important as the next guy. In fact, that's why I went to Dr. Simmons & Simmons in the first place...to see about extended wear contacts.

I know a lot of stores have them. But I figure for something as important as my eyes, I needed an eye-care specialist to make sure I get the best fit possible. And besides, for one fee, I got a thorough examination, the right type of lens for me, a good fit and check-ups to make sure I'm getting the best wear possible.

Now that I've got my extended wear contacts from Dr. Simmons & Simmons, I've got more interesting things to do with my time than worrying about my eyes...see what I mean?

WOMEN'S FASHION . . . MORE THAN TRADITIONAL

Peeking at Pampa

Flowers and trees bloom in profusion to herald the arrival of Spring and Easter. That is, after the late March icicles melted.

Last week flower beds at 301 N. Ward were a riot of color in yellow daffodils and grape hyacinths. Two or so blocks east the lone red bud tree on the west side of PIA made a bold color statement. The young blending flowering trees appeared to be shy while bursting in white blossoms above the green, green grass at National Bank of Commerce.

Literally hundreds of multi-colored hand crocheted butterflies grace refrigerator doors around town, all because Zennie (Mrs. W.F.) Gaines crochets them, then smiles as she offers them to her friends. She and her husband are pleasant retirees who walk about three miles a day on a health maintenance regimen.

How many of you remember the late Grover Seitz, once the baseball king of the Panhandle with a home base in Pampa? His two handsome sons Bobby (or is it Bob now?) and Darrell, looking so much like his dad, spent a few days recently visiting friends around town.

At least one day last week Elmo Wright was an all-day golfer, one who was still not too tired to visit with friends during the dinner hour.

Close at hand were two attention-getting babies. Jay Pond, not quite one-year-old son of Susie and Johnnie, shared his sunshine-spreading personality with everyone who looked his way. Marilyn and Curtis Craddock had fun playing real grandparents to little Courtney of Bridgeport. Courtney sported a long, lone curl across the top of her head.

SPECIAL CONGRATULATIONS to Troy Avendanio, who won second place in the state American history essay contest, sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution, for his essay on the Statue of Liberty. Troy won first place in the local contest. He combines scholastics and athletics with equal ease. The same power of concentration he displays in scholastics is manifested in playing tennis and shooting baskets. His proud and supportive parents are Dr. and Mrs. Prudencio Avendanio.

Did you know Bill Potts is famous for his special brand of mouth-watering homemade ice cream? He's considered a real neat buy by students, parents, friends and neighbors. With him as student council sponsor, PHS seniors are assured a prom to remember. Wait and see!

Cora Mae Hood returned from a 10-day trip to Arkansas.

Oh, to have the calmness of Anne (Mrs. Warren) Fatheree! Anne saw no reason to be upset when in two days three family cars were wrecked. The first call came from her son at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. Next day after he daughter's car was backed in to, Anne loaned her Caddie. Only one block from home the Caddie was whammied. Suddenly Warren's station wagon became the family car. By the way, Warren is the co-owner of Fatheree Insurance Agency.

Norman Goad, student at Texas Tech, presented an organ concert at the First Baptist Church in Tulia last Sunday. Attending from Pampa were his parents Nan and Carroll and his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Evert Goad.

Recovery wishes to Janice (Mrs. Floyd) Sackett and to Ann Henry as she recovers from surgery.

LAWANNA AND JOHNNIE Quarles are enjoying their new-to-them home on Aspen.

Ola Mae and John Nunn visited family in the metroplex area.

Little two-month-old Jeffrey Lemons directs family activities with the greatest of ease. He is definitely a family project with all eyes watching his every move. His proud and attentive parents are Marge and Ken, his big brother Jason and big sister Jessica.

Attention Texas history buffs! Dr. Alwyn Barr of Texas Tech University will lecture on "Reconstruction in Texas," one of a four-part lecture and discussion series on Texas history. Time is 2 p.m. on April 14; place, Carson County Square House Museum in Panhandle. For further information call Kay Brizzolara, curator of education at 537-3118 or write Box 276, Panhandle, 79068.

And don't forget if you haven't turned in your family history for the Gray County Heritage book, that there's still time left. The 700-word stories can be brought to the White Deer Land Museum. Remember that stories of young people, recent residents of the county, and old-timers who have since moved away, are all welcomed to be included in the book. Deadline is April 30.

Speaking of history, a world of history will be set before your eyes at the 20th Century Cotillion's 23rd Annual Antique Show and Sale at M.K. Brown Auditorium April 12, 13, and 14, with dealers coming and bringing antique items from all over. The small cost of the tickets contribute to a worthy cause — the Opportunity Plan Inc. which provides loans for students furthering their college education. This year's co-chairmen are Janie VanZandt and Lillith Brainard, aided by all the Cotillion members who work so hard each year to make this event a success.

celebrated with a big party at the First Christian Church. Relatives and friends came from near and far to join in the celebration. Also honored at the party were her three sisters, Luevilla Gantz, Nell Gantz and Anna Mae Herring, all of Pampa.

This past weekend Gene and Jannie Lewis attended the Luciano Pavarotti concert to benefit St. Anthony's Hospital in Oklahoma City. Pavarotti presented Jannie with his autograph and she gave him a copy of Pampa's Focus magazine which featured a story on Mary Jane Johnson (a former Pampa girl) with whom he had performed in Philadelphia. He was quite pleased, and so was she.

Prune spring flowering trees and shrubs as soon as they have finished blooming. If you didn't apply fertilizer last month, better consider your needs at this time. A soil test is best because we are seeing a lot of yards that have accumulated high levels of phosphorus.

Be wary of bare-root plant sales offered this month. Make sure plants aren't dry and brittle or have excessive top growth. Be selective as many of these so-called bargains are not bargains at any price.

Cut back old mum plantings to encourage new shoot growth. A light application of a nitrogen type fertilizer may be applied to annuals planted last month. Inspect and repair lawn mower. A sharp mower makes cutting grass easier and the lawn looks better.

Begin disease prevention program on roses and be prepared to continue at 7 to 10 day intervals throughout the growing season. Black spot, rust and powdery mildew are the three chief diseases of roses in the Panhandle. As soon as danger of frost is past, average date is April 15, there is a wide variety of colorful annuals to use in the home landscape. Some of the better annuals now available or soon will be available at local garden centers include: Cockscomb, Periwinkle, Petunia, Zinnia, Marigold, Salvia, Morning Glory, Portulaca, Cosmos, Rudbeckia, Dusty Miller, Nicotiana.

Divide and/or establish ground cover areas of Liriope, Mondo Grass, Ajuga Vinca, Sedum, etc. Replenish mulch on roses and other shrubs. Watch any tender new growth for possible insect damage. Tender new shoots are especially liked by aphids. Plant dahlias after danger of frost is past. Be ready to cover or protect tender young plants from a late frost.

APRIL VEGETABLE GARDEN ACTIVITIES

Direct seed cold tolerant early sweet corn after soil temperature rises to 50 degrees F. (10 degrees C.) at the 4-inch depth. Plant Irish potato seed pieces after soil temperature reaches 50 - 55 degrees F. (12 degrees C.) at the 4-inch depth. Apply Vapam to kill nematodes, weed seeds, harmful fungi, and Bermuda grass rhizomes; follow level directions strictly and be sure soil temperature is at least 50 to 55 degrees F. at the 6-inch depth before treating.

Obtain or build hot tents or other protective covers for your frost sensitive plants; build windbreaks. Sow celery seed in ready mixed peat-lite celery must be started in a greenhouse or hotbed where temperature can be closely regulated. Begin to acclimate your early potted tomato, eggplant, and pepper plants by gradually lowering the night temperature to 50 - 55 degrees F. do not withhold water; these vegetables cannot be hardened to frost.

Apply black plastic or paper mulch prior to planting heat-loving vegetables, e.g. tomato, squash, cucumber, melons, okra, peppers, eggplant; wait until soil temperature stays over 75 degrees F. to apply organic mulches for they tend to keep the soil from warming. Average last frost for Pampa area is April 15 - 20. Set out potted plants of early sweet corn when 4 to 6 inches tall and danger of frost is past; do not disturb the root system. Set early plants of tomato, eggplant, and pepper into garden with protective covers over them; be sure to cut a 2-inch square flap in the cover near top on side facing east to let out hot air during day; use collars to protect stems from cutworms; protect garden with windbreaks.

Set sweet potato slips into garden when there is no danger of frost. Be ready to stake or trellis English peas before they fall. Apply insecticide if flea beetles invade cabbage.

QUALITY IMPORTANT WHEN BUYING PLANTS

If you're planning to buy landscape plants, a good rule of thumb is: consider quality rather than price.

Plants, like all goods and services, come in many sizes, shapes and qualities. Because they do, it's just as important to evaluate a plant before purchase as it is to carefully inspect a garment or a home appliance.

"You get what you pay for" is a common expression that can often be applied to buying landscape plants. Unfortunately, many homeowners are unaware of the importance of quality when shopping for plants and continue to look for bargains.

Nursery stock offered at the bargain counter is usually undersized, of poor quality, or has been damaged in some way. Occasionally you may find a good "bargain" plant, but even then you usually get what you pay for.

A cheap plant, in most instances, is exactly what the name implies. You may pay little, but you will probably get little in return.

For years, container-grown plants have traditionally been available in one- and five-gallon containers. However, due to a lack of uniform standards in the nursery industry, all plants offered for sale are not alike. There can be, and often are, vast differences in plant size as well as appearance and quality. So shop around and compare before you buy.

What constitutes a quality plant?

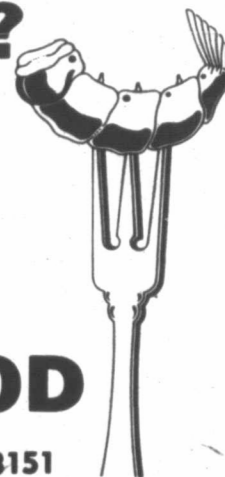

Please see "Horticulture," page 25.

WHY BUY FROZEN WHEN YOU CAN BUY FRESH?

Fact: Most shrimp sold in this area as fresh has been previously frozen and then thawed on ice. It's not bad, but once you've tasted fresh, you'll appreciate the difference.

Cap and gown industry sees growth

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Students in U.S. high schools and colleges continue to show increased interest and participation in graduation ceremonies, according to an executive of a major manufacturer of graduation apparel.

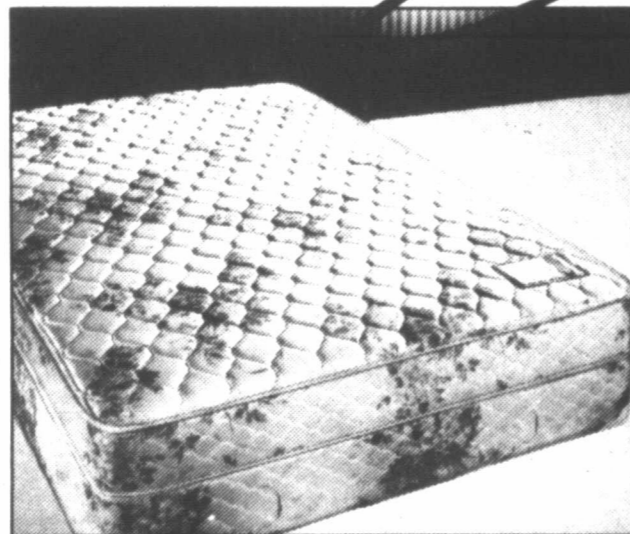

"During the Vietnam years, participation in graduation ceremonies by students and faculty dropped significantly," says Ted Beach, vice president marketing for Collegiate Cap and Gown here.

"But the volume and kind of orders this year indicates students and faculty not only want to participate, they are seeking ways to make the event more memorable — adding more color, more pageantry, and a stronger emphasis on souvenir items like tassels, cords and pendants.

4-H Corner

By JEFF GOODWIN and TANYA MORRIS

DATES

April 8 - 7 p.m., Adult Leaders meeting, Courthouse Annex.

April 9 - 7 p.m., Photography Project meeting, Courthouse Annex.

April 13 - 10:30 a.m., Top O' Texas 4-H Club meeting, Courthouse Annex.

There will be a District Record Book training on Thursday, April 25, at 7 p.m. at the Courthouse Annex. This training will be given by District 1 4-H specialist Robert Devin. He will be covering the new National Senior Report Form and the new Junior Report Form. Our Gray County record books will be due July 12, so everyone needs to attend this meeting to get in on the information needed to complete the record book. Time is important in putting together a good record book.

4-H leaders are a key part of the 4-H program for all youth between the ages of 9 and 19.

4-H leaders:
-Encourage members to try.
-Provide opportunities for 4-H members at club meetings, project meetings, activities, recognition events and individual projects.

-Recruit junior and teen leaders to serve in leadership roles for projects and activities.

-Are parents, grandparents, friends and community leaders.

A 4-H leader is somewhere between the sternness of a parent and the comradeship of a pal.

These leaders come in all shapes and sizes and may be male or female, but they all have one thing in common - a glorious twinkle in their eyes.

4-H leaders are found everywhere - a judging contest, county fairs, square dances and talent shows.

They are tireless consumers of muffins, experts at taking knots out of thread, peerless coaches and expert hoof trimmers.

A 4-H leader is many things - an artist making a float for the 4th of July, a doctor prescribing for an underfed calf, a counselor at camp, a lawyer filling out forms, and a shoulder to cry on when that dress just won't fit.

Nobody else has so much fun with so many boys and girls as does a 4-H leader.

4-H leaders are angels in aprons, saints in striped, three-piece suits. Their only reward is the love of the kids and the respect of the community. But when they look around them at the skills they have taught and the youth they have built there is an inner voice from somewhere that says, "Well done!"

For more information on how to become involved in your community as a 4-H leader, contact the county Extension office.

Good communication skills become vital

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Good communication skills are vital among professionals, family members and friends. By improving communication skills, the quality of relationships with others is improved.

It's hard to admit that one has poor communication skills, but the results can be readily assessed. Poor communication skills result in misunderstandings, anger, frustration, mistakes, rejection, and a host of other negatives that make life difficult.

The initial step is to recognize one's limitations in communication skills. Some questions which may help indicate your limitations include:

1. Do people to whom you give instructions usually complete the task as you expected?
2. Do people understand the words you use?

3. Do you listen to what others are saying or do you tend to think about what you will say while they are still talking?

4. Do you react emotionally or respond thoughtfully to the ideas and words of others?

All communication involves a sender, the person communicating, and a receiver, the person listening. The credibility of the sender in the view of the receiver is one of the most important elements in interpersonal communications. Several factors related to credibility include:

- warmth and friendliness expressed;
- reliability and dependability;
- honest intentions and motives;
- knowledge and understanding;
- acceptance by others.

Highly credible senders may exhibit differing amounts of these traits but are perceived as having dimensions of all.

The desire of communication is that there will be understanding. Understanding occurs when messages are clear and concise and provide needed information. Understanding occurs when there is consistency between verbal and non-verbal messages. Understanding occurs when senders and receivers are aware of their feelings and attitudes as well as those of others.

Improving interpersonal communication requires patience, concern, effort, practice, and sometimes, courage. Here are some tips on improving interpersonal communication skills:

- (1) Respect the personality of each person as an individual.

(2) Answer the simple and direct questions that children ask. Face questions honestly and seriously.

(3) Listen to hear what the other person is saying - both in words and unspoken words. Avoid being preoccupied or absent-minded.

(4) Try to prevent outbursts of anger and thoughtless remarks and follow with a sincere apology if they do occur.

(5) When disagreements come - and they do sooner or later - talk it out before the molehill of bickering becomes a mountain of stony silence or an erupting volcano.

(6) Discipline yourself in the early stages of anger to avoid any ridicule or nagging.

Horticulture

Growing plants, whether container-grown or balled-and-burlapped, should be well shaped and have many vigorous sturdy and well placed branches. Their color, foliage, stem and twig structure should be characteristic of the species and variety.

Examine the individual plant. Often single stem, poorly shaped plants can be made to appear better than they are by crowding them close together in the sales area.

For a container-grown plant, make sure the root system is well established but not root-bound or growing out of the container. Roots should be firmly incorporated throughout the soil but not protruding outside or penetrating into the ground.

Before purchasing any plant, check it carefully for signs of disease or insect damage. Close inspection may keep you from making a bad investment as well as prevent the contamination of your existing landscape plants with unwanted insects of disease organisms.

For assurance of quality plants and satisfaction, patronize your local nurseryman. He's in the nursery business year-round. He must depend on repeat sales and repeat customers to stay in business. Only if he maintains high standards of quality and service can he be assured of keeping his customers.

Voice of America beams a little of Texas to the world

By DENNY ANGELLE
Port Arthur News
PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — One blue and white van is taking Texas into the living rooms of the world, beaming a bit of Lone Star style behind the Iron Curtain.

The van is actually a recording studio on wheels belonging to the Voice of America, an international shortwave radio station operated by the U.S. government. The Voice speaks in 38 languages and broadcasts worldwide, primarily in Communist countries.

It spoke recently from the Port Arthur Civic Center.

Three VOA correspondents and one engineer are currently taking the van through Texas on a trip that will wind up in Fort Worth at the end of April. The present crew will be relieved by another crew, and the van will continue to crisscross the country.

"We're talking to the people, getting to parts of the United States that don't normally get covered," said Robert Sivak, the English language correspondent on the van.

The other two correspondents currently on duty serve the Oriental and Spanish languages.

"The van is constantly on the road, recording interviews and doing all types of stories," said Sivak. "The people we meet are truly the 'voice of America.'"

The traveling van is a relatively new concept for the VOA. Engineer Bob Cole said the van went into operation on Jan. 18 of this year, beginning its never-ending trek in Nashville.

Built in San Antonio, the van carries complete multi-track recording and broadcast equipment. It houses a small studio, where the interviews are made and sent to the VOA's headquarters in Washington, D.C.

"We have bureaus in some of the bigger cities, like Houston and other places," said Sivak. "But the correspondents in those bureaus can't get out too far, so they came up with the van idea. It literally puts all of America within our reach."

Small town tries to cope with strip mining

CLINTWOOD, Va. (AP) — Mayor Bernard Rakes watched his basement fill with mud when a coal company attempted to build a road behind his house last year.

That's one reason he sympathizes with residents' complaints about having strip mines as neighbors.

Like much of Appalachia, Clintwood virtually lives and dies with the coal industry. And like other coal country communities, it has attempted to control strip mining within its boundaries to protect homes, roads and residents' peace of mind.

"There's been mining in and under this town for 50 years," Rakes said. "I guess there's been a lot of damage. Blasting tore people's houses up."

Clintwood, a town of 1,369 near the Kentucky border, last fall passed an ordinance that calls for local inspections of strip mines operating within corporate limits or hauling coal from a mine to a highway on town roads. Clintwood is one mile square, but would double in size if, as planned, it annexes adjoining land.

It has hired an engineer to inspect town mines for compliance with state and federal laws. It levied a fee of 25 cents per ton of coal. The fee pays the inspector's salary, in addition to the cost of mending homes and roads damaged by mining operations. Mines granted permits must post a $500,000 security bond.

In neighboring Norton and Wise, surface mining has been banned unless coal is discovered in the course of property development. Wise is slightly more than three square miles; Norton is seven square miles.

Some Kentucky towns regulate strip mining, state officials say, but a precedent-setting court ruling stopped Pennsylvania communities in their efforts. West Virginia doesn't have any strip mines within town limits, said Pete Pitsenbarger, chief of the reclamation division of the state Department of Natural Resources.

In Clintwood, explosives go off like an alarm clock at about 7 a.m. daily. Residents have complained that blasting has warped floors and made it difficult to shut doors.

Officials with mine regulatory agencies in Appalachian states said living in coal country often entails making some sacrifices. Federal law now requires mine operators to reclaim their surface mines and to pay into a fund to patch up abandoned ones, the officials said, but other problems are difficult to alleviate.

"You can't regulate what another person is going to do with his land — at least not to the 'nth' degree," said Charles Gummo.

Nothing Runs Like a Deere

Legion of doom: a different gang

By CANDICE HUGHES
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Their calling card was a swastika. They favored pipe bombs and once left a disemboweled cat in a student's car.

They called themselves the Legion of Doom. And when they were exposed, it rocked the community.

The small band of self-styled vigilantes turned out to be the teen-age sons of affluent families. Some are athletes, others are on the honor roll. All nine are white.

"It was broken hearts and shock," was how police Detective Ken Henry described the reaction of parents.

In what they claim was an attempt to rid Paschal High School of theft, drugs and "undesirable elements," the Legion may have committed as many as 35 felonies themselves, police say.

Whatever their motive, the Legion's message was harsh.

On sidewalks and parks in the pleasant neighborhood of tree-lined streets and comfortable homes near campus, they scrawled messages such as these:

"Democrats, communists and niggers shall perish under our wrath" and "We are the future Aryan lords."

The bizarre story of the middle-class gang with a name taken from the pages of comic books began to unravel after a weekend of violence in late March.

On Friday, March 27, a student's windshield was shot out. A note left on the car bore a red swastika and the message:

"Paschal is now Nazi territory. You are short-lived if you return. Heed our warning. There will not be another."

The next day, another student's windshield was smashed and a gutted cat was placed on the steering wheel. The entrails were smeared on the upholstery.

And on Sunday, a pipe bomb loaded with nails and screws damaged a student's car, a nearby house and another vehicle parked nearby.

Within days two Paschal students and a recent Paschal graduate had been arrested, questioned and released. Six more Paschal students came in voluntarily for questioning, said Fort Worth police spokesman Doug Clarke.

"Some of the offenses appear to be racially motivated," he said.

According to police, the crimes under investigation range from the attempted fire-bombing of a black student's home, to the manufacture and possession of illegal weapons, including a home-made bazooka, to assorted acts of arson, vandalism, terrorist threats and criminal mischief.

So far, none of the students has been charged, a fact that disturbs some people.

"In the classroom these kids might be all-American. Jack Armstrong types, but in the real world they are no better than the criminal elements they are trying to stamp out," said Tom Hill, the father of a student whose car was damaged by a pipe bomb.

Police have defended their handling of the case. Authorities said that rather than file charges, they would take the cases directly to the Tarrant County grand jury, probably sometime this month.

"It's a complicated mess. We're going to sort it all out and let the grand jury decide the final outcome," said Detective Tim Ellis.

The Legion of Doom was born last fall.

"It started out as a gang of pranksters," said Paschal football coach John Somsy.

A member of the Legion told The Dallas Morning News that the group began by harassing homosexuals in a park near the school, but quickly tired of the pastime.

"It got old real quick," the unidentified member said.

He said the group, frustrated at the failure of authorities to control crime on campus, then launched its campaign to clean up Paschal.

Paschal is not the sort of school usually associated with gang activity, police say. About 45 percent of its nearly 2,100 students go on to universities. About 60 percent of the student body is white, 24 percent is Hispanic and 15 percent is black.

Sgt. M.C. Slayton, head of the Fort Worth police department's gang unit, said the Legion of Doom is the only white gang authorities have identified in this city of 385,000.

School officials said they did not know of the gang until recently, and they added that they have no jurisdiction over off-campus activities.

But Mark Mendoza, a member of a Hispanic gang that was one of the Legion's targets, claims school officials simply ignored the Legion.

"These are rich kids who come from prominent families and they think they can pretty much get away with anything," he said. "What if it were me and my friends?"

School trustee Maudrie M. Walton agreed.
