

Leadfoots Still Break The Law

Two months after the 55 miles per hour speed limit went into effect on a nationwide basis, an Associated Press survey shows Americans have slowed down a little but are still driving faster than the law allows.

The AP sent reporters in the 48 contiguous states to drive on the highways on May 1, keeping at the legal limit of 55 m.p.h. to see what other motorists were doing. The AP also checked on the number of speeding tickets issued before and after the limit was lowered and on traffic accidents.

WHIZZING BY

Among the conclusions: —Americans in all but a handful of states, including Wyoming, Wisconsin, Idaho, Delaware and Oklahoma, are ignoring the 55 m.p.h. limit, whizzing by a driver who travels at the legal speed.

—The average speed on most highways is 65 to 70 m.p.h., below the speeds people used to travel when the legal limit was 70 or 75 m.p.h.

—Police are giving out more tickets. Only one AP reporter — in Indiana — saw a patrol car actually pull over a speeding vehicle. But authorities cite statistics to show that they are enforcing the law stringently. The Kansas Highway Patrol said 6,091 arrests for speeding were made during the week ended April 15, up from 2,352 arrests in the same week of 1973.

—The highways are safer. The National Safety Council says traffic deaths in March were down 25 per cent from a year earlier. Ohio officials say 107 persons died in traffic accidents on March and April weekends this year, compared to 193 persons last year. North Dakota authorities said there have been only 31 fatalities so far this year, compared to 52 last year.

CREEPING UP

—Speeds are creeping up as gasoline availability increases. Gov. John D. Vanderhoof of Colorado said he sees "more people exceeding the speed limits than there were a couple of months ago. All they have to do is increase gas consumption by 4 or 5 per cent and we're right back in the same jam."

—Drivers think the lower speed limit can be enjoyable, but agree that it gets boring over long distances in monotonous country. They also said there was a tendency to let the speedometer creep up to match the flow of traffic.

Congress passed legislation late last year giving states until March 4 to lower the speed limit to 55 m.p.h. as a conservation measure or face the loss of federal funds. All 50 states complied.

Bad Weather Leaves State

By The Associated Press

Stormy weather which pounded much of Texas with high winds, hail, heavy rains and threatening funnel clouds, had all but moved out of the state by dawn today.

A few showers continued to dampen the already soggy southeast sectors.

During the night, reports of a tornado came from an area about 40 miles northeast of Houston as golf ball sized hail slammed down in the area.

At dawn a weak cold front responsible for the rains stretched along the coast in southeast Texas to just south of San Antonio to near Del Rio.

Low clouds drooped along and about 100 miles north of the front east of San Antonio while the rest of the state reported generally clear to partly cloudy skies.

Forecasts called for a buildup of clouds across the south part of the state today with a few scattered showers south of a line from Lufkin to Austin, Junction and Wink.

No major temperature changes were anticipated, weathermen said.

Temperatures at daybreak ranged from the 40s in the Upper Panhandle to the low 70s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Ahead and along the front, temperatures were in the 60s while clear zones behind the front reported readings in the 50s.

SOME RISK

Warm with an outside chance, 20 per cent, of rain tonight. High today and Tuesday in the 80s. Low tonight, mid 50s. Winds of 10-20 m.p.h. falling to 5-10 m.p.h. tonight.

RECOVERED — Sgt. Pat O'Leary (left) and Detective Jerry O'Sullivan, who were involved Saturday in the recovery of the 19 art treasures stolen from the home of millionaire Sir Alfred Beit, are pictured with one of the paintings — "The Lute Player" by Frans Hals — at Cork Police Station Sunday. The paintings, worth more than eight million pounds sterling, were found in a rented house at Glandore, Eire.

Rich Man's Kin Tied To Theft

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Bridget Rose Dugdale, English debutante turned revolutionary, was formally charged here today on five counts in the theft of 19 masterpieces worth $20.4 million — the biggest art robbery in history.

Miss Dugdale, 33, was also charged on five other counts involving possession of explosives and firearms in County Donegal, a trouble spot on the Irish republic's frontier with violence-torn Northern Ireland.

She was charged in Dublin's Special Court after traveling under heavy army and police guard from County Cork where she was arrested Saturday at a remote cottage with the 19 oil paintings stolen 10 days ago.

Most of the cases heard at the Special Court involve members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, a predominantly Roman Catholic guerrilla movement battling to oust the British from Northern Ireland and unite it with the republic.

Police earlier named the woman arrested in Saturday's raid as Dr. Bridget Rose Dugdale, but noted that she refused to confirm her identity.

Daughter of an English insurance magnate and a doctor of philosophy, she has been sought by British security forces since February in connection with arms smuggling into Northern Ireland.

Police in the British province also want to question her about a bombing raid on a border police base from a hijacked helicopter earlier this year.

The police said that in the cottage they found 16 of the 19 paintings stolen April 26 by a woman and four men from the country home near Dublin of Sir Alfred Beit, and the other three paintings were in the trunk of the car. They included masterpieces by Vermeer, Hals, Rubens, Goya and Velasquez and were valued at more than $20 million.

The gang had sent the police a note saying it would destroy the paintings unless $1.2 million in ransom was paid by May 14 and unless the sisters Dolours and Marion Price were transferred to a prison in Northern Ireland. The sisters are serving life sentences in a London jail for bombings in the British capital.

Man Held For Alleged Kidnap

George Eugene Easley, 26, was in city jail this morning in lieu of a $5,000 bond, charged with aggravated kidnapping. He was also fined $100 for drunk in auto.

The arrest was made in connection with the alleged kidnapping of a nine-year-old Big Spring girl Sunday. The girl's stepfather called the police and Easley was picked up a short time after the call. City Judge John R. Coffee set bond.

$243,000 Allocated To Expand VA Unit

Senator John Tower's office today reported that $243,000 has been allocated to modernize and expand the VA Hospital's Nursing Home Care Unit. The VA plans to add 10 beds to the unit's present capacity, to total 40 beds. Working plans should be completed this summer and contracts awarded this fall.

July 15 Trial Date Is Set For Reinecke

WASHINGTON (AP) — A July 15 trial date was set today for California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke on perjury charges stemming from the ITT case.

The action by U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker indicated the court will turn down pending motions by Reinecke to dismiss the indictment or, failing that, to move the trial to California.

Reinecke, a leading contender for California's Republican gubernatorial nomination, was indicted by a Watergate grand jury April 3 on three counts of lying before a Senate committee.

Trial had been set for May 13, but Reinecke's lawyers asked for the delay while the change of venue motions and other matters were handled.

Reinecke originally had pressed for a speedy trial to have the matter settled before the California primary elections June 4.

Reinecke was one of the principal forces behind a decision to hold the 1972 Republican National Convention in San Diego. The convention later was shifted to Miami Beach, Fla.

The indictment charged Reinecke with giving false statements to the Senate Judiciary Committee about when he first told former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who was Nixon's 1972 campaign manager, about a $400,000 offer from the Sheraton Corp. to underwrite the San Diego convention.

Reinecke was accused of lying when he said he did not tell Mitchell about the offer until after favorable settlement of an antitrust action against the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., parent company of Sheraton.

The grand jury also accused Reinecke of lying when he said his first discussions of holding the convention in San Diego came in a social gathering of San Diego citizens in Washington in April 1971.

In other court papers, the special prosecutor's office has said the first such talk was between Reinecke and then White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman. The date of the alleged discussion with Haldeman has not been disclosed by the special prosecutor's office.

Reinecke's testimony before the Judiciary Committee in April 1972 came during hearings over the nomination of Richard G. Kleindienst for attorney general. Kleindienst was confirmed but later resigned.

Court Inspects County Jail

A newly-painted and cleaned county jail was inspected by County Commissioners Court today.

The court authorized Marvin Hanson, road administrator, to hire nine students to help work while the road department paves this summer. Enough gravel to pave 21 miles has been ordered.

Commissioner Bill Crocker reflected the attitude of several on the court when he said "it'd be a miracle if 21 miles is paved this summer."

Of the nine youth employees, eight will be those who worked for the road department last summer. They will be making $2.40 per hour.

The county has loaned a bulldozer temporarily to Webb Air Force Base, Hanson said.

Mrs. Pauline Petty, county clerk, was authorized to hire a temporary employee for working while staff members take vacations this summer.

Pilots Bail Out Of Ailing Craft

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two Air Force pilots bailed out of their disabled jet trainer early today while on a training flight over northeast Bexar County.

The officers, not named at once, were not injured. They were assigned to Randolph AFB near here.

Witnesses said the T28 trainer crashed and burned in a field near the Schertz community.

Cause of the emergency was not learned at once.

Israeli Stubborn In Peace Talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government showed no signs of yielding to Syrian demands today as it went into another round of troop disengagement talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

A government spokesman said a cabinet session Sunday produced no decisions on the next move.

"We are still at the beginning of this whole negotiation," said one Israeli official. "It is all fluid and nothing has crystallized."

Health Minister Victor Shemtov told newsmen the cabinet would meet again today after its leaders talk further with Kissinger.

Perhaps the toughest decision facing the Israelis was whether to modify their initial refusal to give up some of the territory they seized from Syria in the 1967 war.

Israel has already signalled willingness to give up the territory it captured from Syria last October. But the Syrians are demanding that the Israelis retreat behind that line to give up the devastated town of Ku-neitra and strategic mountain areas dotted by Israeli settlements established since 1967.

Premier Golda Meir warned in a speech Sunday night that Israel would depend less on Kissinger's diplomacy than on its own "fight for survival."

"If the Arabs, and our friends, think we want peace so much that we don't have the confidence to fight," she said, "there will be no limit to their demands."

After meeting with Syrian leaders Saturday, Kissinger talked for three hours with Israeli leaders Sunday, then flew to Amman, Jordan, for a three-hour meeting with King Hussein. They reportedly discussed Jordanian hopes for an Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank of the Jordan River, increased U.S. economic and military aid, the Geneva peace talks and the Palestinian issue in general.

After his return to Israel today, Kissinger was to shuttle back to Damascus tonight or Tuesday. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko arrived in the Syrian capital on Sunday, but it was not known if he planned to meet with Kissinger there.

Although U.S. officials reported over the weekend that they had persuaded Syria to decrease the level of fighting on the Golan Heights, the Israeli military command reported the artillery exchanges Sunday were "as heavy as any other day" in the past week. It said eight Israeli soldiers were wounded.

200,000 THAI YOUTHS USE DRUGS, MINISTER SAYS

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Ministry of Public Health says about 200,000 Thai youths are addicted to drugs, and government agencies treated more than 100,000 cases last year.

About 70 per cent of the addicts are high school and university students, a spokesman for the ministry said. The ministry, in cooperation with Bangkok hospitals and the university bureau, began a campaign against drug addiction this week. The hospitals are offering free treatment and counseling to addicts during May.

Tarzan Community Tabbing Damage Following Storm

TARZAN — This central Martin County town was a small community with a mighty big storm Saturday evening.

Tornado winds, hail and rain battered the area with most extensive damage reported to pumps and irrigation systems near the farm community.

No injuries were reported with one trailer home and one barn destroyed. One farm family headed for a storm cellar and watched the cellar door peel off and blow away just as members took cover.

The area just a few weeks ago was a blowing sandy desert with oldtimers talking about the drought of the early 50s.

Last week's rain settled the drifting sands and Saturday night's deluge made a lake out of the area. Water was across the Big Spring-Andrews highway in five places early Sunday morning with one spot where water flowed across for a quarter-mile stretch.

This morning the roads are clear, but there is still water standing in the ditches and in the low spots on the farms. A mosquito problem is anticipated in the near future.

Some alfalfa fields suffered damage, but very little of the area was in cultivation at this time of year. There was some hail damage reported to roofs and automobiles in the vicinity.

Windows and windshields were wiped out, and hail piled up inside houses when virtually all window panes were shattered. Even the dense-foliaged Arizona cypress evergreens were practically denuded, and weeping willows looked like picked chickens.

Cap Rock Electric Cooperative sustained some of the worst damage. Between 15-20 poles went down, including a half-mile stretch of double-circuit line. This occurred on a dirt lateral road flooded by the rains, but Cap Rock had repairs made to the extent that single phase service was back to all patrons by 3 a.m. The tow and three phase lines were back up and energized by 2 p.m. Sunday.

Cox Will Seek Recount Of Votes

M. Fern Cox, the incumbent district clerk who apparently lost the Democratic nomination by one vote Saturday according to unofficial returns, said today he will ask for a recount.

Peggy Crittenden received 2,420 votes to 2,419 for Cox, the unofficial tally showed.

The Howard County Democratic Executive Committee will start canvassing election returns at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the courtroom. Lee Porter, county chairman of the party, said today.

PATRIARCH READY TO ROLL
Earl Gregg, 87, with 2 cycles

Greybeard Resumes Cycle Riding After 46 Years

WEST JEFFERSON, Ohio (AP) — Earl Gregg's wife made him give up motorcycles almost half a century ago.

"Emma said I was too old to ride a motorcycle," Gregg said. Now a widower, the 87-year-old Gregg has a big motorcycle he rides on a dirt track behind his home. And further, he's about to become a lifetime member of the West Jefferson Dirt Riders Club.

"The only way to keep your health is to get good exercise," Gregg said. "And riding" cycles gives you plenty."

Gregg, who owns a 27-acre farm near this central Ohio village, said he bought his first cycle in 1910. He married in 1911, and in 1928, his wife told him it was time to hang up his helmet.

After his wife died in 1971, the roar of the engines beckoned. The result: a four-horsepower French motorcycle for driving around on roads and a powerful 1973 American model for fun.

He calls the latter his "super cycle," and that's the one he rides on the dirt track.

He's also got an ordinary bicycle, just for limbering up.

One of Gregg's dreams will come true tonight when the West Jefferson Dirt Riders Club accepts him as a lifetime member and gives him an emblazoned motorcycle jacket.

Gregg, a former justice of the peace, said he's always wanted a motorcycle jacket and he's going to wear it to the annual "80-Year Tea Party," an affair for Ohioans who have reached that age.

Gregg said he's the only one in the group who still drives to the party.

It Is A Good Year To Be A Conservative Democrat

By The Associated Press

This year's lopsided primary elections have shown that it's a good year to be a conservative Democrat in Texas, perhaps far better than anyone had dreamed.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe convincingly squashed his liberal opponent, Frances "Sissy" Farenthold, Saturday, picking up about 76 per cent of a light turnout vote in which about 1.5 million ballots were cast. There are 5.3 million registered voters in Texas.

In addition, Briscoe's backers, acknowledged as the party's conservatives, gained clear control of state party machinery by a dominant showing at election-day precinct conventions.

Liberals Democrats, such as Billie Carr of Houston, warned before the election that Briscoe forces would sew up the conventions. And they did just that, smoothing the way for a Briscoe-dominated state convention in September. The governor would like that, since it would spare the party infighting of 1972.

It was also a very good year for incumbents. All were re-nominated in statewide or congressional races.

In two important congressional battles, Democrats Bob Kreuger and State Sen. Nelson Wolff apparently face a runoff for the West Central Texas Dist. 21 seat vacated by retiring Rep. O.C. Fisher. And in Dallas, former state senator Mike McKool defeated former Dallas County Democratic chairman Earl Luna and newcomer John Sartin.

One of Briscoe's main campaign themes was party unity. That, a "no new taxes" pledge, solid organization, and lots of money, mostly his own, helped spell victory.

Mrs. Farenthold, a 47-year-old Houston lawyer who forced Briscoe into a runoff in 1972—but lost—Seemingly never had a real chance. After indecision, she entered the campaign late, saying someone needed to challenge Briscoe.

Plagued by lack of money, a haphazard organization, and perhaps a sense of fatalism, her campaign was dull as Gulf coast mud compared to the 1972 runoff struggle, when the split was 55-45 for Briscoe, and not 70-25. She even lost in Houston, El Paso and Galveston, which she carried in the previous contest.

But she was not disheartened. "I believe that our governor has learned more about the needs of Texans through this campaign," she told liberal supporters who may have felt like more lemmings heading for a cliff than serious political contenders.

"Some of you may feel that we have been defeated. We have not. We have merely been delayed."

Briscoe, the wealthy rancher-banker, viewed the results as "a solemn pledge . . . to continue the task of restoring public confidence in our state government," Texans again showed they don't want pari-mutuel betting.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

AK102 ♠98 ♦A7632 ♣J107

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

1 ♥ Dble. ?

What action do you take?

A. — Bid one no trump. Take this opportunity to describe a balanced hand with moderate values. This might enable partner to continue the fight should the opposition show a desire to compete.

Q. 2 — Neither vulnerable, East-West have 40, as South you hold:

AK6 ♠A107 ♦AQ872 ♣A52

Your right-hand opponent opens with one spade. What action do you take?

A. — Double. We would not normally endorse a takeout double of one spade on such meager values, since you are forcing partner to show a suit at the two-level. However, considerations of score dictate a strategic bid at this point. If you pass and West raises to two spades, you could then be faced with the decision of forcing partner to bid at the three-level, and if he is broke, that might prove expensive.

Q. 3 — North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:

AJ10654 ♠Q10932 ♦2 AK5

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

3 ♦ 3 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A. — Pass. Don't be a nursemaid. Partner's overall puts him strictly on his own. Had he been interested in the major suits, he could have doubled for takeout.

Q. 4 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

AK95 ♦AJ1092 ♣A8765

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass

2 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. — Three no trump. You have an awkward bid to make because of your void in partner's suit, and your spade holding is by no means ideal for a no trump contract. Partner's bid is, of course, forcing, and we hesitate to suggest an 11-trick contract because of the minimum nature of the opening bid. The scientist's bid of three spades is also acceptable.

Q. 5 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

AK5 ♠A8762 ♦AJ743 ♣4

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. — Three spades. You have good distribution and three aces. Since partner has bid his suit twice in the face of a possible misfit, your doubtless ace is good support and you should give him one more chance.

Q. 6 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

AK1092 ♠QJ8 ♦Q98 ♣A54

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass Pass 1 ♥ Pass

1 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass

2 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. — Five clubs. Thus far, you have done little to reveal the strength of your hand. Your response of a new suit and simple preference to partner's first bid suit, could have been made with 6-7 points. It is time you came out of the bushes and showed your values, for your hand could easily produce a slam.

Q. 7 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

AKQ5 ♠10654 ♦1043 ♣KJ10

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass Pass Pass 1 ♥

Pass 1 NT Pass Pass

What do you bid now?

A. — Double. You are maximum for your no trump response and have reasonable prospects of winning four tricks on defense. A penalty of at least 200 is in view, and it could be substantially greater if the cards lie well for your side.

Q. 8 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

AK3 ♠AS ♦AJ10982 ♣KQ6

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♥ Dble.

What do you bid now?

A. — While you certainly have the values for a free rebid, we suggest you refrain from any action and give partner the courtesy of the road. His double of the opponents at the one-level suggests shortness in your suit, and he might be able to handle the rescue bid as well.

Black Enlistments May Soar To 25 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army officials predict that black enlistment in the ranks may rise to 25 per cent over the long term.

This would be about 5 per cent higher than the current level and roughly double the percentage of young blacks in the general U.S. population.

April recruitment figures have not yet been published, but black enlistments in the Army reportedly rose last month after leveling off in January through March.

Army manpower officials said they were unable to explain the increase, but it appeared the unsettled economic situation might be a factor.

While insisting they never will impose any racial quotas, officials are concerned about achieving what they call a "representative Army."

Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway said recently that "if it were perceived by the American public that the Army was a place only where blacks really belong and we got into this kind of position, I think it would not be a representative army."

"There is always the question . . . that it would not be fair in times of combat for blacks to give more than their share of . . . the danger and the suffering," Callaway said.

This suggests the Army still is sensitive because of allegations, denied at the time, that blacks took disproportionate casualties in the Vietnam war.

At the same time, Army officials indicate they are pleased with the quality of blacks in their units. One general noted that the Army's crack 82nd Airborne Division is 26 per cent black.

It's Not Getting Easier To Get A Series On Air

NEW YORK (AP) — A total of 31 new series will be on the networks next fall. That's the highest number in recent history, but not get the idea it's suddenly become easy to get a new series on TV.

It's still the same old story: Many are culled but few are chosen.

That's the dismaying — for writers — word from Larry White, the man in charge of programming for the NBC television network.

He estimates he gets between 500 and 600 proposals for new series each year "and I think you'll find the figures are approximately the same at every network."

Out of this proposal pile, White says, NBC culls about 120 prospects that the network considers interesting enough to warrant a financial investment.

The majority of these, he says, only get as far as the outline or script stage. About 35 actually are filmed as "pilot" shows for new series, but the attrition doesn't stop there.

White, who couldn't recall a case in which a network made a series submitted by an amateur writer, was asked what factors determine whether a new series gets on the air.

He said network executives look for such things as: "Are the characters the kinds of characters who will have a lot of available stories? Is the concept the kind that will have staying power with varying stories?"

Statewide Democratic battles saw Jesse James renominated as treasurer, John White as agriculture commissioner, and Mack Wallace as a railroad commissioner. Bob Bullock won a fight to replace Robert Calvert as comptroller.

Team Tennis Action Kicks Off Tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — World Team Tennis, the latest product of the modern sports explosion, debuts tonight with the Philadelphia Freedoms — led by Billie Jean King — exchanging strokes with the Pittsburgh Triangles, directed by Ken Rosewall.

The WTT is a product of Ms. King's husband, Larry, and Dennis Murphy, who helped start the American Basketball Association and the World Hockey Association. It is a controversial concept that has not been accepted by Rod Laver, Stan Smith and Arthur Ashe — three of the game's leading stars.

Philadelphia and Pittsburgh will play six matches — a pair each of women's singles, men's singles and mixed doubles. Add up the cumulative score of games won and the team with the highest total wins.

Each game is settled by the first player to reach four points. The first player to win six games wins a set. You have to win by two games (i.e., 7-5). If a match is tied at six, a nine-point tie breaker settles the issue.

Coaches such as Ms. King and Rosewall determine the lineup, and changes can be made in the middle of a match if the coach feels the player isn't performing well.

There are 16 teams in the WTT, eight in an East Division: Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Boston, Baltimore, New York, Cleveland, Toronto and Detroit; and eight in the West: Hawaii, Los Angeles, Florida, Chicago, Minnesota, Golden Gate (San Francisco), Denver and Houston.

The teams will play 44 games, 22 at home and the same number away. Championship playoffs wind up the season in August. There is a two-week break for Wimbledon.

Ailing Stars Hope To Begin Rally In ABA's Game No. 3

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Stars, with as many as four players listed as questionable, limp home tonight, hoping to regroup in Game 3 of their American Basketball Association championship series with the New York Nets.

The Stars are hoping that a possible return by 6-foot-10 center Zelmo Beaty can get them back on the winning track after losing the first two games of the championship series.

Utah spokesman Harvey Kirkpatrick said Beaty's doctor would make a final decision on whether Beaty can play. Beaty, who once scored 63 points in a game, has been sidelined with a severe groin infection since the Stars played the Indiana Pacers in the fourth game of the ABA semifinals.

Ron Boone has played 574 consecutive games since becoming a pro in 1968. His presence became doubtful when he injured his hand after slugging Brian Taylor in Saturday's game.

"He apparently got some kind of infection. He had it lanced and drained and has it heavily bandaged," Kirkpatrick said. Gerald Govan, hobbled by knee and ankle injuries, and Rick Mount, slowed by a leg injury, are also considered doubtful for tonight's game.

Against the exuberant Nets, the youngest team in the league, the Stars' shooting, rebounding and defense all have suffered noticeably — mainly due to the absence of Beaty, a five-time member of the West Division All-Star team.

Neither Govan, moved forward to center, nor rookie Bruce Seals, inserted into the starting lineup at forward, has been effective. Govan struggled for 33 minutes on an injured left knee and ankle while the Nets coasted to a 118-94 victory in the second game.

Race Honors To Pearson

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — "It's really not my favorite race track, but I'll take a victory anywhere I can get them at my age."

That was David Pearson talking Sunday after winning the Winston 500 Grand National Stock Car race at Alabama International Speedway — a 2.66 mile oval he drives as easily as he does his lawn mower back home.

Pearson, a greying 39-year-old three-time stock car racing champ, beat off a succession of challengers enroute to his third straight Winston 500 triumph and a check for $25,845.

"It was work, hard work, every minute," he said of the 3 hours, 20 minutes and 9 seconds it required to drive the 169 laps or 450 miles, "I feel like I've been through a wringer."

The race was stopped twice by rain, for a total of an hour and 53 minutes. These stoppages, plus six yellow light periods, cut 61 laps out of the racing time. But Pearson still averaged 130.220 miles per hour, his apple red and white Mercury frequently turning laps at 188 mph.

Most of his challengers either dropped out with blown engines or other mechanical problems, leaving only Benny Parsons' Chevrolet to challenge the final 50 miles. Pearsons, the 1973 Grand National champion, made a spine-tingling bid for the victory but fell about two car lengths short at the end.

Gary Bettenhausen, one of Pearson's more serious threats, was put out by a freak pit road accident that injured three of his crewmen, one seriously. Bettenhausen, a star on the Indianapolis-based D.S. Auto Club circuit, was leading the race when he made a routine pit stop during one of the yellow light slowdowns for gas and tires.

Arencibia Wins Handball Trophy

SAN ANGELO — Bill Arenchiba defeated Allen Chepreget 21-12, 21-9 in the all-Big Spring finals to claim C Division honors in the West Texas Invitational Handball Tournament Sunday in San Angelo.

A. J. Pirkle won the A Division consolation prize by topping Snake McGill of Lubbock 21-18, 18-21, 21-20, and another Big Springer, Mark Peters, won the B Division consolation affair over Larry Jordan of Odessa 21-12, 21-18.

BUCKS EVEN SERIES AT 2-2

NBA Finalists Switch Roles

BOSTON (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks, noted for their mighty offense, talked of defense and the defensive-minded Boston Celtics spoke of offense as the two teams headed for Tuesday night's game.

Milwaukee and the fifth game of their showdown for the National Basketball Association championship. "Our defense was a lot better, but I expected it to be as we went along," Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello said Sunday after the Bucks evened the best-of-seven series 2-2 with a 97-89 victory.

"We broke down offensively," Boston captain John Havlicek said. "We didn't have real good rhythm. Maybe we were cutting the wrong way. They played real good defense, but we were standing around and being hesitant."

Costello, looking ahead to Tuesday night's game, turned to an old cliché in saying: "Now it's a three-game series."

The victory regained the home court advantage for the Bucks, but neither Havlicek nor Milwaukee veteran Oscar Robertson placed much emphasis on that.

Costello pulled a surprise in the fourth game in a move designed to break through Boston's full-court press. He started 6-foot-7 Mickey Davis, normally a forward, in the backcourt with Robertson.

"The change helped us a lot," Costello said. "We had a taller team and we also had more player power. We figured that at the very least would create problems for them. Then, of course, we had Jon McGlocklin back. Now we're able to rest people. McGlocklin is still hurting, but he's able to play."

Davis played 28 minutes and contributed 15 points, eight in the first period. McGlocklin, playing with his injured leg heavily taped, saw 22 minutes of action, scoring 10 points.

As usual, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led the Bucks with 31 points. Bob Dandridge hit for 24 and Robertson 10. Havlicek and Dave Cowens topped Boston with 33 and 24, respectively.

The Bucks jumped to a 14-6 lead, but the Celtics came back and the advantage seasawed. Then, with defensive ace Don Chaney on the bench with three fouls, the Bucks out-scored Boston 15-2 in a second quarter burst for a 49-39 halftime lead.

The Celtics, who hit on only 36 of 88 floor shots compared to Milwaukee's 38 of 76, closed to within two points five times in the third period before Abdul-Jabbar cashed a three-point play just before the buzzer.

Parent Saves; Flyers Nab 4-3 Clincher Over Rangers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There is an automobile bumper sticker that reads: "Only the Lord saves more than Bernie Parent."

The New York Rangers will buy that.

Parent and veteran Gary Dornhoefer keyed a 4-3 victory for the Philadelphia Flyers over the Rangers Sunday to advance to the finals of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs against the Boston Bruins.

"Parent is a great goalie," said Rangers coach Emile

Francis. "He was the difference in the Flyers' season."

New York's Pete Stelmowski offered this tribute to the Philadelphia goalie: "Parent robbed us. He robbed Park, myself, (Walt) Tkaczuk, (Rod) Gilbert and probably a couple I didn't notice that well."

The 29-year-old Parent made at least six spectacular saves for the Flyers in Sunday's seventh and deciding game of the bitterly contested semifinal series against the Rangers.

Parent sat in front of his locker after the Flyers' fourth victory of the series — all on home ice — and admitted he was dog tired.

"I thought this series would never end," said the Philadelphia netminder. "But we got a shot at the (Stanley) Cup now, and that's all that counts."

Parent looked ahead to the seven-game final series starting Tuesday night in Boston against the Bruins.

"The thing that will give us confidence is the game we beat them at the end of the year to clinch first place in our division. That's the one we still remember."

The Flyers would rather forget that victory was the first in five years over the Bruins. Philadelphia has won only once in Boston since entering the league in 1967, and the overall series stands 4-3-4 in favor of the Bruins.

Spuzich Gets First Win In Lady Tara Golf Play

ATLANTA (AP) — "I still don't know what I'm doing sitting here," said Sandra Spuzich. "I still can't believe it."

Miss Spuzich, a 13-year-veteran from Indianapolis, had just won her first Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament in five years, and she did it the hard way.

She made a couple of miracle shots on the 18th green to earn a spot in a three-way sudden-death playoff, and won it on the fifth extra hole as darkness set in and threatened to delay further action until today.

Her six-foot putt for a par earned her the $5,000 first prize in the $35,000 Lady Tara tournament over the difficult Indian Hills Country Club course, a hilly layout with tight fairways that became even tighter on the final playoff hole when the contenders at that point couldn't follow the flight of the ball off the tee.

Donna Caponi Young, who blew a four-shot lead with three holes to play, had her par putt of eight feet rim the cup on the fifth playoff hole, leaving her with a $3,300 share of the purse along with all-time LPGA money king Kathy Whitworth, who bowed out of the playoff with a bogey 4 on the third extra hole.

The trio had completed 54 holes deadlocked at even par 219, forcing the playoff in rain-chilled weather. The final in the $35,000 Lady Tara tournament was suspended for one hour because of rain and continued for another hour in the rain.

Lasso can iron out many of the weed problems in Texas* cotton.

Including pigweed. Lasso controls pigweed like nobody's business, along with many other annual grasses and broadleaf weeds. You get good control that gives your Texas* cotton a better chance of becoming the kind of crop you're hoping to pick.

And Lasso is convenient to use. You don't have to incorporate. Put it on in a band, right behind your planter. Carryover? With Lasso, that's one thing you'll never have to worry about, because Lasso has no carryover. And if your cotton happens to be hailed out, you can still make a good crop of corn or soybeans, because Lasso is cleared for both of those crops.

Talk to your neighbors who've used Lasso. See if their experience doesn't confirm what we're saying. Then plan to use Lasso to iron out some of the weed problems in your cotton.

Boston Rook Turns 'Hero'

BOSTON (AP) — What a difference a day made in the life of rookie shortstop Rick Burleson of the Boston Red Sox. He went from a goat to a hero.

Burleson, who played in his first major league game Saturday and committed three errors to tie an American League record, smacked a three-run homer to give Boston a 10-8 victory over the Texas Rangers Sunday in the nightcap of a doubleheader at Fenway Park.

Texas won the first game 5-3. Burleson's bit of heroics came in the bottom of the seventh with two Red Sox runners on and no outs. He had squared around to bunt and the Texas infield began to move toward the plate.

"The manager (Darrell Johnson) told me if I saw the third baseman charging to try to chop a grounder," Burleson said. "Well, it was a fastball up..."

The pitch thrown by reliever Lloyd Allen of Texas ended up in the net above the high left-field wall.

"I didn't figure he was going to hit it that far," Johnson said. "He really hit it too hard. He said he just put the bat out there and hit it—too far."

The homer, Burleson's second major league hit since coming from the Red Sox farm team at Pawtucket, R.I., offset a two-run homer by Dave Nelson of Texas in the eighth.

Veteran Juan Marichal got the victory for Boston, his first American League victory since coming from the San Francisco Giants of the National League.

OUT AT THE PLATE — Boston's Bernis Carbo knocks Texas Rangers' catcher Jim Sunberg over after being tagged out at the plate in the sixth inning of their opening game Sunday at Fenway Park. It all started when Rico Petrocelli of the Red Sox flied to Ranger center fielder Cesar Tovar, and the throw to the plate was in time. Texas won the first game 5-3, but Boston came back to take the nightcap 10-8.

Odessa Twosome Captures Muny Partnership Honors

Odessans Scott Stegner and Ed Brooks, runners-up a year ago, fashioned a second round 66 Sunday and raced to a two-stroke victory in the Big Spring Municipal Partnership Golf Tournament.

The winners came back from a two-shot deficit for a 133 total and the scratch division's $320 first-place prize as most of Saturday's first day leaders faded in the final 18 holes.

Steve Talbot and Jeff Richardson of Snyder had a 68-67 — 135 and won a playoff for second place with first day leaders R. J. Chatfield and Jim Halvorson of Webb AFB, who shot a 65-70 — 135.

Fourth place went to another scratch 132. Scott Stegner-Ed Brooks. Steve Talbot-Jeff Richardson, R. J. Chatfield-Jim Halvorson (Talbot-Richardson won playoff for second).

Gibson Handles Astros By 3-1

HOUSTON (AP) — Veteran pitcher Bob Gibson doesn't throw as hard as he used to but apparently it is not necessary when he faces the Houston Astros.

Gibson, 38, limited the Astros to five hits in eight innings Sunday as the St. Louis Cardinals stopped Houston, 3-1.

It snapped a five game Houston winning streak and it boosted Gibson's lifetime record against the Astros to 29-13. That's the best record any pitcher in the National League has against Houston.

Reggie Smith contributed a two-run homer for the Cardinals—his sixth of the season.

Gibson didn't pitch the ninth. His bad knee which he had surgery on during the off-season, began acting up and Mike Garman finished up without allowing a base runner.

St. Louis manager Red Schoendienst said Gibson's knee started bothering him in the seventh when he had some control problems.

"He said it was all right in the eighth but you could see he wasn't driving off the mound like he can."

However, Astros manager Preston Gomez was impressed with Gibson.

"He doesn't throw as hard anymore but he's still a helluva pitcher," Gomez said. "He got tired, that's all. You could see he was running out of gas."

Gomez also was impressed with Larry Dierker, his starting pitcher, who gave up seven hits and the three Cardinal runs.

"Dierker pitched good enough to win, too," Gomez said. "It's just we're not getting him any runs. We haven't got him enough runs any game this year."

Gibson seemed to think the pitcher's mound was too flat and this caused him to have control problems at times.

"My slider was breaking in front of the plate," he said. St. Louis scored one run in the second on Mike McBride's double and Mike Tyson's single.

Cardinals Rip Odessans, 9-2

ODESSA — The Big Spring Cardinals picked up their first victory in four outings this year Sunday as they smacked the Odessa Orioles 9-2 in a semipro baseball game.

Orlando Olague went the distance for the Cards and scattered five hits. The Big Springers ripped nine hits, with two safeties by Oscar Cervantes leading the way.

Next action for the Cards is Sunday, when they host the Odessa Dorados in a 1:30 p.m. Mother's Day game.

LITTLE LEAGUE Dodgers Shock Tigers, Take Over First In TL

The Dodgers nudged the Tigers 6-5 Saturday to stay unbeaten in the Texas Little League chase with a 4-0 mark.

James Magers also posted his fourth victory for the winners, and his double helped spark the Dodger plate attack. James Hayes and Dickie Wrightsil also shined for the Dodgers.

The loss dropped the Tigers, defending TL and district champions, into second with a 3-1 mark. Brocky Jones suffered the loss as his defense committed six errors behind him.

There were also several minor and pee wee games on Saturday.

Johnny Hatch stroked a pair of hits and got credit for the win as the Trunkers rolled to a 17-5 American Minor League win over the Pals. Jimmy Thompson, George Salis, Ted Bartley, Mike Hodnett, Dale McMurrey and Robbie Parks also had two safeties in the rout for the Trunkers, now 1-0. Ken Cantrell was the Pals' losing pitcher.

The Eagles used the pitching of Darrell White and two doubles off the bat of Greg Rees for a 10-5 National Minor League win over the Wreckers. Casey Clark was the loser. The Wreckers now stand 3-1 and the Eagles are 2-2.

Ray Kemper had a home run and Jackie Thomason was the winning pitcher for the Angels in a 13-8 National Pee Wee league triumph over the Sparks. Brad Jenkins, Jack Wiesner, Coleman Thompson, Todd Strong, Michael Pekowski and Mark Corwin also hit for the winners. For the Sparks, Kim Haynes, Andy Guzman, Mark Johnson, Dennis Gray and Mike Brown led the way. Brown had a home run.

Profits Of Penn Central Officials Were Enormous

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal criminal investigation has developed evidence that some high officials of the Penn Central railroad made millions of dollars in personal profit before the nation's sixth largest corporation went bankrupt in June 1970, sources familiar with the case say.

A federal grand jury that met secretly in Philadelphia for 18 months went out of business late last year without being asked to indict anyone, the sources say.

SUIT FILED

The grand jury investigation, run by the Justice Department, was separate from an investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission, which last week filed suit charging the railroad and certain individuals with massive fraud to conceal losses and deceive stockholders.

The SEC suit is a civil action which, although it seeks to recover personal gain by some former railroad officials and others, also seeks to enjoin defendants from continuing actions which presumably they couldn't take anyway after the railroad went bankrupt.

C. Oliver Burt III, an assistant in the U.S. attorney's office here, said the investigation still is active but declined further comment. Burt was assisted by a Justice Department lawyer from Washington who also said he could not comment.

Sources say the grand jury had difficulty obtaining all the records it needed.

These sources say prosecutors still hope to obtain the records and present their case again to a new grand jury in time to beat the five-year statute of limitations of federal conspiracy charges.

The grand jury investigation, according to sources, focused on five key figures "and a few aides."

"This involves millions of dollars in personal profit," said a source.

UNCLEAR

The statute of limitations on conspiracy, which sources indicated was the central charge under consideration, runs from five years after the last overt act of conspiracy, but it is not clear when exactly the statute runs out in this case.

Although the public was unaware of it, the Penn Central was in trouble almost from the day it was formed in 1968 by merger of the New York Central and the Pennsylvania railroads.

It was forced to file for reorganization after failing to obtain $200 million in emergency federal loan guarantees.

The Nixon administration, which initially had been prepared to approve a bailout, backed off at the last moment when Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking and Currency Committee, objected.

About 60 Solons Ready To Disclose Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 60 of the 535 members of Congress have voluntarily made public disclosure of their tax returns or net financial worth.

Another 25 contacted in an Associated Press survey say they are preparing to make a public accounting of their finances or are considering that step.

Full public disclosure by members of Congress is not required by law.

House members must file with an ethics committee a form listing business interests, but the worth of those interests is kept confidential by the panel.

Senators must file with the comptroller general a copy of their federal income tax return and a list of finances not covered in the return. The information also is confidential.

The Senate twice has passed legislation requiring fuller disclosure. The House, however, has acted on neither bill.

Most members who have moved on their own to disclose their finances say they did so in an attempt to restore the credibility of government, especially in light of Watergate.

"Those of us who have been elected to the legislative branch can help restore credibility in government by being frank and open in all respects," says Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah. "One way to be candid is to make full disclosure of personal finances."

Moss gives an accounting every two years. His most recent statement listed $118,636 in assets, against $126,917 in liabilities.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, disclosed his net financial worth immediately upon being appointed to serve out the remainder of Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe's term. He said disclosure was important because "public confidence in the integrity of government has fallen to its lowest point."

Metzenbaum, with a reported net worth of $3.6 million, is among the wealthiest members of Congress. But some of the richest men in Congress have not disclosed. They include Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; Sen. James Buckley, Con.-R.-N.Y.; and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

*Hemphill-WellsConstitution Work Resumed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — After a month's recess for political campaigning, legislator-delegates to the Texas Constitutional Convention returned to work today for debate on their own powers and duties as lawmakers.

The convention was halfway through the legislative articles—the hardest half—when it voted to recess April 5.

Convention President Price Daniel Jr. said he believed debate on the legislative article and the problem-free, one-paragraph separation of powers article would be concluded by the end of this week.

That would then open up two of the convention's biggest cans of worms: the judiciary and general provisions articles.

Judiciary includes the question of whether the voters or the governor should choose appellate judges. It also contains numerous other technical and structural provisions that will be examined in detail by the convention's lawyer majority.

One lawyer-legislator said there would be trouble over the "unified judiciary" proposal, which would increase the use of out of town judges when a court's docket gets too crowded. Cases also could be transferred to speed up trial.

"Lawyers don't want to work to elect a judge and put him on the back and then try their cases before strangers," the lawmaker said.

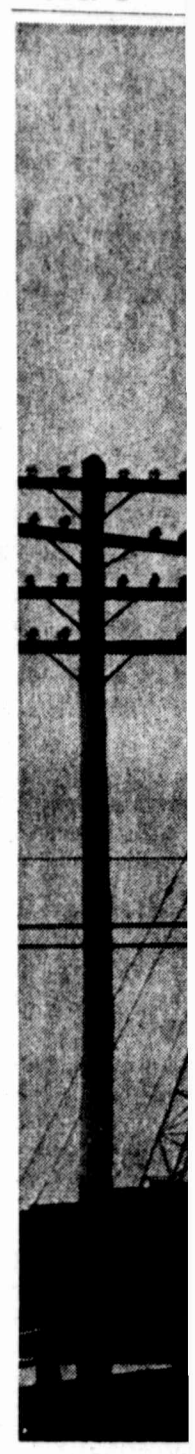

What many believe to be the convention's biggest problem of all is in the general provisions article. Labor leaders say they will oppose the entire constitution if the so-called "right to work" issue is submitted to the voters, either as part of the basic document or as a separate item.

Summer Musicals Offer Some Well-Known Stars

Big names and top shows mark the 1974 season of the Dallas Summer Musicals. Among the TV, stage and film personalities to be seen at the Music Hall in Fair Park in Dallas from June to late August will be Carol Burnett, Rock Hudson, Gene Kelly, Angela Lansbury, Hershel Bernardi, Ginger Rogers, and Paul Lynde!

And the roster of shows to be presented is equally impressive: "I Do I Do," "Take Me Along," "Gypsy," "Man of La Mancha," "No, No, Nanette," "Gigi" and a new play, "Stop, Thief, Stop."

To match them up, Carol Burnett and Rock Hudson star in the delightful tour de force comedy for two, portraying a man and wife from marriage to old age, "I Do I Do." This marks Rock Hudson's first appearance at the Dallas Summer Musicals. Carol Burnett, on the other hand, holds the all-time record for attendance, not only once but thrice, with her "Carol Burnett in Person" 1962, in first place;

Angela Lansbury is touring the United States in "Gypsy," before she opens with it on Broadway in September, 1974. Last year she played the same role, that of Mama Rose, at the Piccadilly Theatre in London's West End, where she received rave reviews. Her Dallas engagement is for one week only, July 1 to 6.

Season subscriptions — will include the five, two-week shows, and are priced at $45 and $30 for the lower floor, and $35, $20 and $10 in the balcony. They are currently on sale by mail from the State Fair Box Office at Titcher's, P. O. Box 895, Dallas, Texas, 75221. Orders may also be sent for the two one-week specials "Gypsy" and "Stop, Thief, Stop" for which the prices, individually, are $9 and $6 on the lower floor, and $7, $4 and $2 in the balcony.

'Politically, SLA Makes No Sense'

Paranoia. Suspicion. Contempt. Hatred. Apathy. There are a lot of words used by American radicals in reaction to the Symbionese Liberation Army, which says it kidnapped Patricia Hearst and assassinated Oakland Superintendent of Schools Marcus Foster. Few are favorable.

Here are two: "The Nixon Administration would like nothing better than for us to believe these are the kinds of things revolutionaries and community activists do," — Janet Cooper, a West Coast radical activist.

"There is no doubt that the SLA is a CIA front," — The National Caucus of Labor Committees.

Left-wing antipathy for the SLA comes from just about every group of note except the almost nonexistent Weatherpeople. One of their leaders, Bernardine Dohrn, said from hiding that the group's actions were revolutionary and thus could "teach and strengthen."

COVER SPECTRUM The disdain covers a spectrum from activists in Berkeley who have elected four radicals to the city council; to traditional Communists like Angela Davis; to old new leftists like Jerry Rubin; through talking to the SLA, which it said had created "sympathy for the ruling class, credibility for the police and paranoia for the radical movement."

Black Panthers, who say chairmen Huey P. Newton is on the SLA "hit list" for denouncing the Hearst kidnapping and the Foster shooting.

My overwhelming response is that I'm sick of the whole thing," says an unsuccessful candidate for the Berkeley City Council last year on a radical coalition slate. "Politically, they make no sense at all. None of these people were political here. And it's been a very destructive thing. They're stopping people on the street and interrogating them. It's just very bad."

The paranoia seems to run deepest in Berkeley, where Miss Hearst was abducted last Feb. 4.

Soon after the kidnapping, police raided a Black Panther headquarters in nearby Oakland, arresting 15 people but filing no charge. It made many radicals believe that the Hearst and Foster cases have given authorities an excuse to go after the newer community organizations.

'NOT GOOD' "It's not good having 150 FBI men in Berkeley," says a woman active in consumer and women's groups. "While they're here, they might just decide to branch out into other things."

Ramparts Magazine, one of the best-selling leftist publications, devoted eight pages in its May issue to a denunciation of the SLA, which it said had created "sympathy for the ruling class, credibility for the police and paranoia for the radical movement."

Nearly everyone involved with the left mentions reports that Donald DeFreeze, who has been identified as General Field Marshal Cinque of the SLA, served as a police agent. Authorities deny that.

Activists say the people who have been linked by authorities to the SLA had little to do with the radical community there.

One woman noted that she had been in a woman's group with Michelle "Mizmoon" Solitsky, who has been identified by the FBI as one of the participants in the SLA bank robbery in San Francisco in which Miss Hearst took part.

DIDN'T AGREE "I liked her really, although I didn't agree with her all the time," says the woman, who asked that her name not be used. "But she wasn't really political in the sense of looking at the whole society. She was into the woman's movement and community things like food co-ops. It's all quite strange."

The dislike for the SLA's methods runs deep. H. Bruce Franklin, a former English professor at Stanford University, was one of the founders of the Venceremos Brigade, a now-defunct Maoist group. He says the group's violence can only hurt the left.

"When a few imposters like the SLA come along — revolutionaries who conduct themselves in an inhumane manner — all they do is turn people away from looking to a revolutionary alternative for the solution to problems."

And Janet Cooper, a former Stanford activist who declined to talk to a grand jury questioning her about alleged contacts with SLA members, said the group's "idea of revolutionary activity seems to be kidnapping young women and shooting people down at random on the sidewalk."

One Bay Area radical, an economics instructor at San Francisco State, puts it in a way that sums up the feeling:

"I've had a few people in class who justify it by saying that society drives people to desperate actions. But Charles Manson took desperate action against upper-class people. Does that justify him?"

Arms And The Peace

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat is making no secret of his disillusionment with and estrangement from Russia—and his new affection for the United States. But apparently the terms for cementing friendship with Sadat will present this country with a moral dilemma. For that reason, caution is advisable.

In a recent statement, Sadat said Egypt is considering purchases of arms from sources other than Russia. That means the United States and its allies in the West.

Certainly selling arms to Egypt, and supplying the training in the use of them, would sever that country's ties with Russia more completely than anything else. And it would make Egypt more dependent upon, and therefore friendlier to, this country.

But is peace in the Middle East to be bought by spreading arms?

Here the pragmatic and the idealistic collide. The arms trade worldwide is and has been odious. Munitions manufactured in this country or purchased with funds supplied by us have killed thousands; they help sustain in office a number of repressive military regimes around the globe today. But arms sales do have diplomatic value. Can we afford to suspend arms sales unilaterally—and leave the field open to the Soviet Union, or China or anyone else, and forfeit the diplomatic leverage, they bring?

Perhaps in the case of Egypt, it would undeniably be better to cut off Soviet arms shipments and replace them with our own, if possible, but the Soviet experience indicates there would be limited control. But such a policy, if adopted, should be restricted to defensive arms only. And it should be accompanied by the most intense diplomatic efforts possible to end all arms sales to Middle East nations as quickly as possible.

Riddle Of Israeli Rule

The selection of a successor to Israeli Premier Golda Meir does not remove the danger that peace efforts in the Middle East may collapse. It may, instead, increase them.

The Labor party has selected Yitzhak Rabin as Mrs. Meir's successor; he will attempt to form a government which can stand firm and follow through on Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's peace initiatives. But the telling is easier than the deed.

Rabin is regarded as a leader of the Labor party's more dovish wing, that segment more agreeable to settling the Arab-Israeli dispute by granting concessions of territory previously won.

Therefore, Rabin can expect greater opposition, rather than cooperation, from the Likud party, the right-wing group which is unbending in its stance toward the Arabs.

The recent elections in Israel, from which the present turmoil stems, showed a great gain for Likud. Recent revelations of Israeli unpreparedness for the Yom Kippur war have fed this spirit of opposition to the Labor government. All these factors make Rabin's chances of forming a stable and long-lasting government not very bright.

Egyptian Premier Anwar Sadat has referred to Kissinger as a "miracle man," but one of the miracles needs a strong, stable Israeli government.

Disillusioned

Around The Rim

Tommy Hart

The American dream has ended for Erich Fromm, the social philosopher and psychoanalyst, who 40 years ago vacated Germany to escape the tyranny of the Nazis.

FOUR DECADES past, Fromm looked to America as the hope of mankind. To him, it was a vibrant democratic nation.

Much has happened to America and to Fromm's outlook since that time, and little of it good. He says our society has developed a necrophilous character and is preoccupied with a passion for destructiveness and he places the onus on unrestricted industrialism, moral torpor and the absence of a shared ethical vision.

"The United States is not yet in Hell," Fromm told his interviewers, as if holding out some shred of hope. "There is a small chance of avoiding it, but I am not an optimist."

FROMM REASONS that our rampant industrialism has created a super-abundance of creature comforts but the machine process has also tended to "minify man and make his life seem unimportant to him."

All this has come about since World War II, the struggle which was very real for some of us but as remote as the War Between the States to most of our people. In the nearly three decades that have elapsed since then, the country's industrial machine began pouring forth a seemingly endless flow of motor cars, refrigerators, air-conditioners, boats, electric blankets, barbecue pits, stoves and heated swimming pools.

"AN EXCESS of material things way beyond the necessities of life has numbed most Americans where they are indifferent to violence," Fromm was quoted as saying. "There has been a material expansion; we have grown soft from it at a sacrifice of, what shall I call it, the soul."

"And Americans on the whole have accepted the logic of machinery, which is to demonstrate how machinery works. The ultimate purpose of making a gun is to fire it."

THE RESULT is that America has become the world's most destructive society, Fromm commented. "The United States bombed Vietnam if not back to the Stone Age, at least to the Bronze, slaughtering hundreds of thousands of hapless peasants in the Indochina War."

"Our society is also internally destructive," he remarked. "In the last decade or so, a million people have been killed in highway accidents. We produce cars with built-in obsolescence. Knowing the possible danger, we continue to pollute the environment. And we subsidize violence on the screen—movies in which human life is depicted as brutish and cheap."

FROMM STILL looks to youth with hope, pointing out that the younger generation needs to seek a more positive society and fashion moral goals for the United States.

"We have become destructive out of boredom," Fromm says. "We are a people without vigor and without vital impulse, and we need to regain a sense of national excitement."

POINTING TO the need for society to change its values, Fromm proposed:

"Not more consumption, not more luxuries, but production limited to the necessities of life for all. There is still a moral residue in America composed of our religious and humane tradition in which the proper goal of society is to serve its members. It is a good society, a democratic society, which offers a religious or ethical vision of itself and sees itself as a power for good in the world."

"As things are," Fromm contends, "America lives in a state of idolatry. But what is urgent now if we are not to continue on the path of destructiveness and national suicide is a renewal of a sense of general religious values."

BILLY GRAHAM

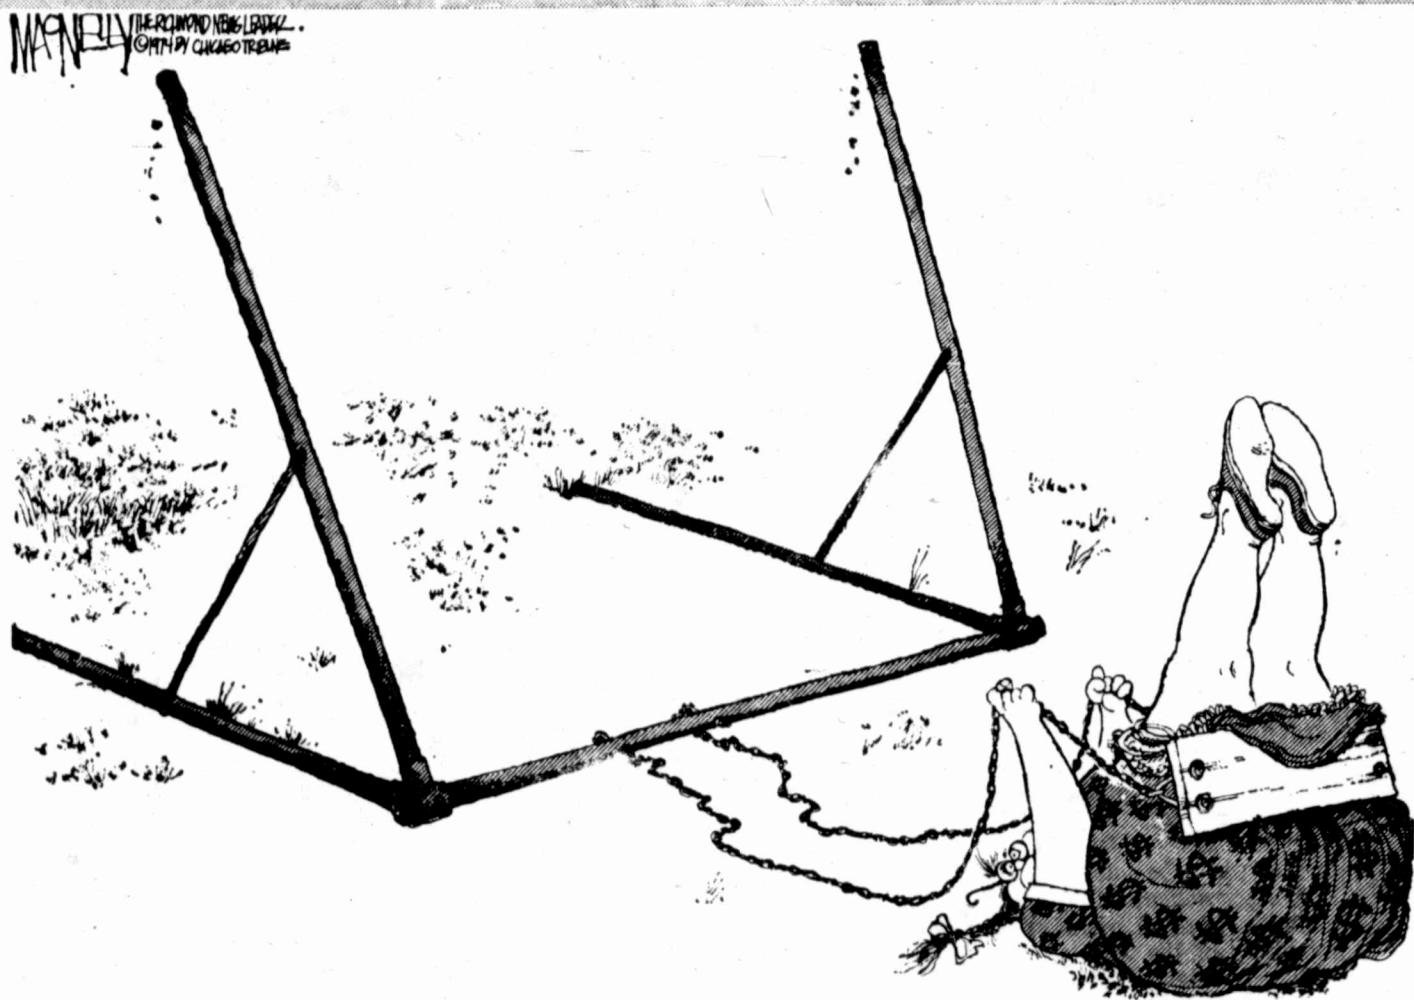

I read your column daily and enjoy it. I am a Christian, and want to live a life pleasing to God, but I'm confused about many things. One is the matter of entertainment. What is right for the Christian? I love music and dancing.

H.K.
On some matters of conduct, the Bible is not explicit. This is to be expected since the Scriptures deal in the more important area of principles.

Obviously, what was fun and games for the 1st century Palestinian may not be for the 20th century Philadelphian. Sports and entertainment have evolved through the years, as have other customs.

But now there are some criteria we can establish for the Christian to help him select suitable entertainment. First would be to do those things which are compatible with being a follower of Christ. Said Paul in Colossians 3:10: "You are living a brand new kind of life that is continually learning more and more of what is right, and trying constantly to be more and more like Christ."

Secondly, engage in activity which in no way harms you either physically, psychologically or spiritually. Thirdly, (and this is the corollary of the second) do those things which truly relax, refresh and recreate. Fourthly, engage in no entertainment which puts you in

ECONOMY ON THE UPSWING.

Nothing Ties Neatly

John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — After a long, hard, puzzling week, several prominent New York business economists, some of whom are inclined to depart early on Fridays, gathered instead for dinner and discussion.

As one of them said, "We'd been comparing notes all week long and we didn't seem to agree on much. I'd been on the road a good deal and I just didn't understand other viewpoints and I think I should."

To the distress of this economist and scores of others, nothing in the economy seems to tie together neatly. Frayed, loose strings are hanging everywhere and it's almost impossible to trace them to their source.

For example: Joblessness in April dropped to 5 per cent of the labor force — from 5.1 per cent in March and 5.2 per cent in both January and February — when almost all forecasts were for an increase.

If this was a recession, in other words, it certainly wasn't showing up in the unemployment figures. The nation's industrial output may have shrunk, but for debatable reasons: the number of jobless dropped by 95,000.

The various economic pieces are numerous as those in a jigsaw puzzle, but they don't seem to fit at all. Inflation rages, for instance, but labor so far this year seems less insistent than last year on big pay increases.

And if there is a downturn in the economy, you certainly can't tell it by corporate profits. They're way up. And you'd hardly know interest rates are at historic highs, because capital spending plans are higher too.

In fact, the latest survey by McGraw Hill indicates that business intends to spend 19 per cent more on improvements to plant and equipment than it did last year. That would mean a total of $119.1 billion, or $19.4 billion more.

It is spending intentions such as this that have the Federal Reserve Board as anxious as it ever has been in years. The Fed feels it must cut those spending plans if inflationary chaos isn't to ensue.

But the Fed's case isn't that clear cut at all. Thousands of businessmen and investors maintain that with the country's output shrinking, and productivity declining, the Fed should be encouraging activity.

In other words, they disagree 100 per cent with the Fed, both in its outlook and approach. If high interest rates were the way to price stability, they ask, wouldn't results have shown up by now?

Some congressmen feel pretty much the same as do the Fed's critics, and are advocating a tax cut. They feel that individuals need some relief from rising costs and that the economy as a whole needs a spur.

If, therefore, you are confused about where the economy is and where it is heading, you have plenty of company, such as Congress, the Federal Reserve Board, elements of labor, economists, bankers, industrial-

Ash Wields Axe

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — A backstage assault by the White House and the powerful auto industry against the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has been masterminded by federal budget chief Roy Ash without once talking to EPA director Russell Train.

THE FIGHT is over whether EPA should be stripped of power to test new automobiles for "fuel economy"—that is, how many miles per gallon they can get. Long despised by the auto industry as being run by sophomore fanatics, EPA has been measuring miles-per-gallon efficiency of new cars for the past year as an offshoot of its legal mandate to control auto pollution.

"If you took a poll in Detroit, no agency in Washington would be more unpopular than EPA," a top level Ash aide told us. The auto moguls claim EPA findings are unfair and amateurish. Ash's Office of Management and Budget (OMB) has been plotting a switch of the fuel-economy role from EPA to either the Commerce Department or Transportation Department — both safely industry-oriented.

BUT BEHIND the White House effort to strip testing from the consumer-oriented EPA is a more dangerous game which looks suspiciously like a clandestine administration effort to gut its own auto-pollution controls program. The target was spelled out by an EPA emission controls expert in the terse language of this confidential memorandum to Train April 26:

"WHAT WE see as really involved in the proposed move of fuel-economy testing out of EPA is an effort to emasculate EPA in any future fight over the auto emission standards. . . . All real influence depends on the ability to obtain, assimilate and use information."

That memo, signed by deputy assistant administrator Eric Stork, said that what saved the Clean Air Standards Act during last winter's critical gasoline shortage was EPA's control of engineering and technological data on which emission standards are based.

IN SHORT, once it loses power to tell consumers how many miles-per-gallon a new car will make, EPA is convinced it will next be plundered of its whole emission controls authority. The likely beneficiary: the Commerce Department, never famed for protecting consumers.

Throughout this backdoor attack on EPA, Ash himself has never once discussed the problem with Train (although for the first time this week lower-level OMB officials began talks with EPA). In contrast, Ash has had lengthy chats about EPA with Detroit moguls, such as Ford's president Lee Iacocca, who came to see Ash in his office the first week in March. Ash told us he also has discussed the rape of EPA with Secretary of Transportation Claude Brinegar, who might win the mileage-testing program, and with top Commerce Department officials.

ASH, whose immense power in the Nixon White House is still growing, told us that "satisfying the consumer" is the main reason for the projected shakeup. During the peak of the energy shortage, Ash was Mr. Nixon's chief spokesman in warning EPA that its standards were wasting vast amounts of fuel. He succeeded in getting EPA relaxation.

Those Enzyme Tests

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a heart attack (myocardial infarct) nine months ago. The amount of damage was determined by the enzyme count in his blood.

We would like to know more about the enzyme aspect.

Also, we have been told that in many cases after a heart attack new blood vessels form to replace the blocked ones. Do we have our hopes up there? My husband is 59. — Mrs. D.C.T.

When there is damage to a muscle, there is a release of certain enzymes from the damaged cells. The enzymes eventually find themselves in the blood stream and can be measured there.

In the case of a myocardial infarction, there are three enzymes commonly involved. They have tongue-twisting names but can be abbreviated as CPK, LDH and SGOT.

The levels of these rise suddenly, then drop relatively soon after the injury — the CPK and LDH second and the SGOT last.

These levels are important in examinations soon after the attack, because they help determine the extent of damage. Their presence is significant early in the repair process.

But once the levels return to normal, which they will do, they are not significant from the standpoint of long-range prognosis.

I think you are putting too much emphasis on those tests at this stage of the game, nine months after the attack, and I don't think you should raise any hopes based just on the tests.

There are other, more important indicators of progress — the cardiograms, the return of his physical strength and how he feels in general. Yes, new vessels tend to form in most cases, so you can assume that this is happening with him.

Any distress he has after meals or exercise should be reported. He may be eating too much or too rapidly and he may be trying to do too much too soon.

Many of these symptoms should subside with time, and nine months is probably too soon in his case to expect complete recovery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am about to go wild with my husband. He will not go to a doctor and he is in terrible shape. He has a hernia and it is as big as his head and he has a big head. Please print one more time how dangerous it is. I don't want him to die and I know it will eventually kill him. — W.O.J.

Here goes. Dear W.O.J.'s husband: Your wife's dimensions sound a bit exaggerated, but if it is indeed a hernia it is evidently large and must be uncomfortable at times. It may not kill you (unless it strangulates and you can't get to the hospital in time) but if it ever does strangulate you'll be begging for relief. And the deal then will cost you a whole lot more than the few days in the hospital now.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald, requesting a copy of the booklet, "How To Control Emphysema," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Exclusive Property

Irene was so captivated by her new puppy that she took him to a neighborhood photographer for a sitting. The pictures were knock-outs. In fact, the photographer decided to sell copies to an advertising agency.

LEARNING OF his intentions, Irene hastened into court for a stop order. The judge said that when a customer hires a photographer to take pictures, the pictures become the exclusive property of the customer.

This is the usual rule. While the photographer may retain possession of the negatives, he ordinarily has no right to sell copies without the customer's consent.

IT IS A different story, however, if the photographer, instead of being hired for the job, takes the pictures on his own initiative. Consider this case:

A free lance photographer, putting together an exhibit of his work, took pictures of a prominent businessman. The pictures were his own idea, and he charged nothing for taking them.

UNDER THESE circumstances, a court held that the businessman — even though he bought several prints for himself — had no right to pass them along for use in a magazine.

And a free lance photograph of a street scene would not give ownership rights to people who happened to appear in the picture.

A BORDERLINE case arose when a photographer was asked to take pictures of a high school graduating class. Was he entitled to the copyright?

Admittedly, the initiative for the pictures had come from the students. Still, they had not promised him any payment at all. He could cash in only if the students should decide, afterward, to order prints.

A COURT ruled that in all fairness, the copyright did belong to the photographer. Since he was taking that much risk, reasoned the court, he was entitled to that much reward.

O. J. Number 1 On Screen?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Can the National Football League's Most Valuable Player become one on the movie screen?

O. J. Simpson believes so, and he is training for an acting career with the zeal and strategy he has applied to his performances for the University of Southern California—Heisman Trophy winner—and the Buffalo Bills—2,003 yards rushing last season.

"I'VE BEEN offered leading roles for a lot more money than I've been getting," says the handsome running back, 26. "But I think it's much better for me to sit back and work with actors like Lee Marvin and Richard Burton, Paul Newman and Steve McQueen."

He recently completed a featured role in "The Klansman" with Marvin and Burton and will squeeze in the all-star "The Towering Inferno" before reporting for football practice June 17.

He had misgivings about "The Klansman" after reading the script, a ripe blend of lust, rape, murder and racial conflict in an Alabama backwater.

"The script was filled with lines like 'Kill, baby, kill' and 'Burn, baby, burn!'," he remarked. "I couldn't see myself saying things like that, but I was assured that I could use my own verbiage, and it worked out all right."

SIMPSON's role in the film has been described as a black militant. Not true, says he.

"He's simply a guy who reacts when he is provoked — you know, sort of like Clint Eastwood when the heavies push him too far and he goes 'pow!' This guy I play is like that. I'll tell you this: When I kill somebody in the picture, there's going to be applause in the theaters. That's because those guys are so bad."

O. J. remarked that he had learned much from Lee Marvin, whose instructions about acting were simplicity itself: Hit the mark, convey the meaning of the words and give your fellow actor the right cue. Simpson's experience with Richard Burton was less instructive.

It is no secret that Burton was on the booze during the filming in Oroville, Calif., and O. J. admitted that he had a minor run-in with the Welsh star.

"He got onto a thing about 'brains vs. brawn,'" the athlete-actor said. "He kept going on, and I didn't care much for it. He's a brainy man, I guess, but I'm not all that brainy." He added that he found Burton's wife, Elizabeth Taylor, to be very pleasant and friendly.

THERE WERE sexy scenes in "The Klansman" but not for O. J. "That's one thing my wife won't allow," he said with a grin. "She doesn't want me doing any picture where I jump in bed naked."

In "The Towering Inferno," Simpson will play a security officer in a fire-swept skyscraper, appearing in a cast that includes Newman, McQueen, William Holden, Fred Astaire and Richard Chamberlain.

A Devotion For Today ..

DIVORCE, AMERICAN STYLE — Banners proclaiming "VOTE NO" and "VOTE YES" hang across a downtown Rome street Sunday as part of a massive, American-style publicity campaign for a May 12 referendum on the existing Italian divorce laws. The political parties and the Italian government will have spent some 100 million dollars in the campaign by the time votes are cast next week.

Shortage Of Steel Hurts Oil Industry

DENVER (AP) — As domestic oil production slowly drops, independent oilmen say they cannot get enough steel to drill wells that could turn the decline around.

Shortages of steel products in drilling were the main topic of conversation at the Independent Petroleum Association of America went into the second session of its semi-annual meeting today.

Caton Halts Oil Drilling

District Judge Ralph W. Caton enjoined an oil and gas producing partnership Friday from further drilling at a Glasscock County site.

And Judge Caton ordered the hole be plugged back to 7,800 feet.

Defendants included Frank W. Cass and Marine Gen. (retired) Walter H. Stephens doing business as Cass and Stephens, a Dallas-based firm. Maichen Contracting Inc., another defendant, had drilled to 7,995 feet for the partnership.

But Cass and Stephens only had mineral rights to 7,800 feet. And Westland Oil Development Corp., Houston, petitioned 118th District Court for the injunction.

Although the hearing was held in Big Spring, the civil case was on the Glasscock County docket.

More Showers Help Prospect

Saturday evening showers further brightened agricultural prospects in this area.

Reports locally ranged from .35 to .70 of an inch but there were areas with somewhat more.

Colorado City reported .80 of an inch, according to Texas Electric Service, but the 1,000,000 River Municipal Water District diversion works northwest of town had 1.2 inches and the Barod community and north Mitchell showed up to 2 inches.

CRWD reported .8 at its pumping station north of town, TESCO .70 at its nearby switching station.

In central Martin county near the devastating storm at Tarzan CRWD had .4 at its pumping station. They reported .50 at Moss Creek Lake and 1 of an inch at Lake Spence. Both the big spring and the Snyder in takes at Lake Thomas measured .40 of an inch.

In north central Howard, so far the most blessed by rains, another .80 of an inch fell, said Mrs. O. R. Crow of Luther.

Another area favored in recent showers, Knott, got .70 of an inch and at Ackerly this dropped off to .40 of an inch.

WW1 Vets, Auxiliary Hear Meeting Report

Report from the recent convention of the World War I Veterans held in Lubbock was made for the joint meetings of local Barracks 1474 and the Ladies Auxiliary by Marion Ireland, Saturday at Kentwood Center.

At the Lubbock meeting, Leighton Mundt of the local barracks introduced the guest speaker, Charles G. Walker, Arlington, department commander of WWI veterans. Mr. Walker's topic was on pending legislation concerning veterans and widow pensions. He urged those WWI veterans who have not done so to join a group of organized veterans for pension benefits.

Mrs. Elsie Keeting, Dallas, department auxiliary president brought greetings and spoke on widows' pensions. She urged attendance at the meeting scheduled in July to be held at Irving.

The memorial service was conducted by Mrs. Lucille Jacobs of Big Spring, department chaplain, to honor those who have answered the last roll call.

Mrs. Alan Hull presided for the Saturday meeting here when Mrs. Marshall Brown was elected president of the auxiliary for the 1974-1975 term. Other elective officers were named and the president will select the appointive officers all of whom will be installed at the June meeting.

Spring flowers were used to decorate the registry table and also the luncheon tables where 65 members were served.

The next meeting will be June 1 at the Kentwood Center, 2805 Lynn.

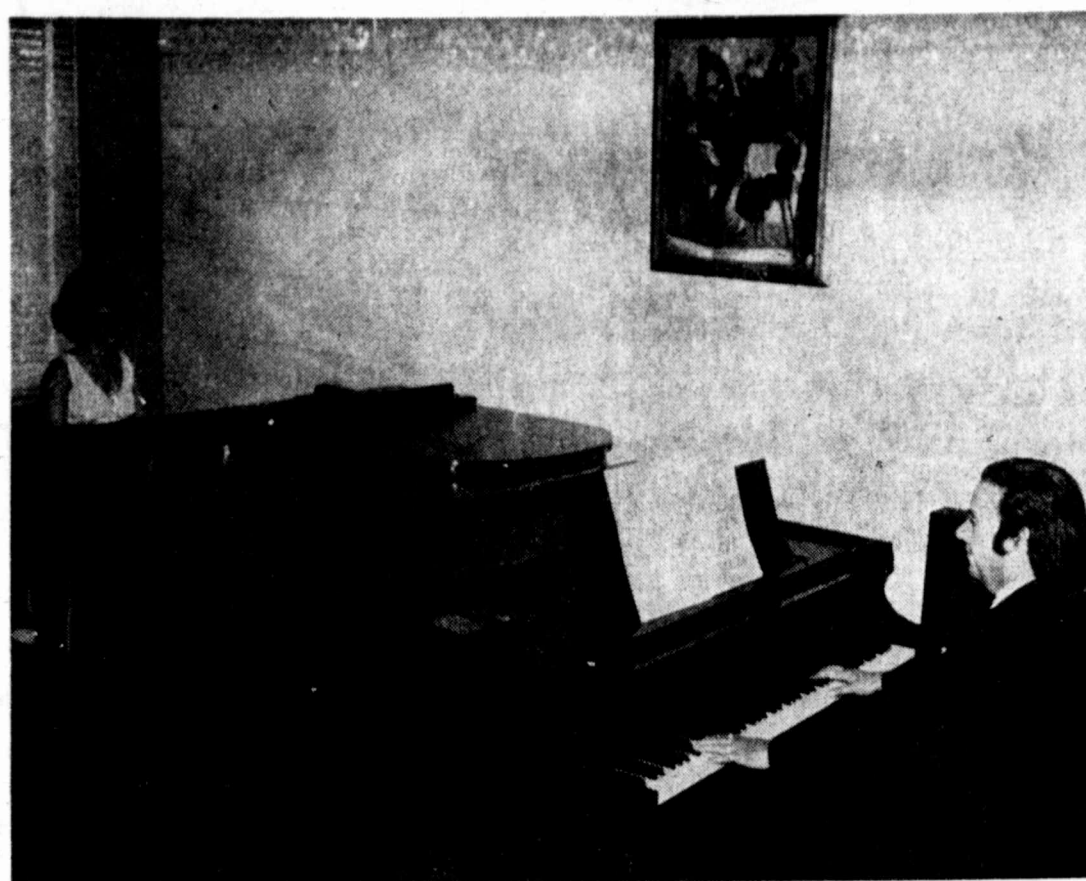

Party For Graduate

Miss Mickie Fletcher, senior at Big Spring High School, was honored with a graduation party Friday evening in the home of Mrs. Ed Shive, 604 Bucknell.

Name cards were fashioned as black and gold mortar boards and were presented to the honoree and her friends.

The refreshment table was laid with a white linen cloth and capped with a circle of gold linen. The centerpiece was a gold mesquite, adorned with miniature black and white caps, gowns and scrolls. White candles held in tall brass candlesticks completed the decor.

Mrs. E. W. Fletcher, mother of the honoree, joined her daughter and the seven guests at the buffet affair.

Youth Programs Aid Job Choice

The 4-H and youth program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is aimed at helping young people develop their capabilities to the fullest. And 4-H projects can play an important part in this effort, says an Extension 4-H and youth specialist. 4-Hers can choose from more than 40 project areas, depending on the individual's interests, needs and family situation. Each member decides what he wants to do and how he wants to do it. Thus members acquire important skills and information that is invaluable in later life.

Squaring

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is to inform your correspondent, Barbara G. in Wilkesbarre, Pa., that she is not losing her mind — she did read that it is possible to square a circle.

The mathematician who worked it out was Edward V. Graef, and a technical paper explaining the method was authored by him and V. C. Harris of San Diego State College.

If one changes the rules slightly, he can trisect angles and square circles. Using the kind of curve they do, they are able to solve three ancient problems — (1) trisecting the angle, (2) squaring the circle, and (3) duplicating the cube — with just one method.

I hope this helps your correspondent. I enclose a copy of the article, which was published five years ago in the Pittsburgh Press.

HENRY G. GOULD, PROF. OF MATHEMATICS W. VA. U., MORGANTOWN, W. VA.

DEAR PROFESSOR: Barbara will bless you tonight in her prayers. Now, if anyone out there has a mathematical problem, those with license numbers ending in an ODD number please write to Professor Gould on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. And those with EVEN numbers write on the remaining days. Thanks, Henry, I needed you.

DEAR ABBY: Knowing that our cross isn't the heaviest is small consolation. There are many of us, but those who aren't in our positions rarely give us a second thought. We are single fathers caring for small children.

The cost of day-care and maintenance of the households we have put together in better days causes us to lead semi-cloistered lives. If we should meet some attractive lady, we can't ask to take her out to dinner and a movie because the budget doesn't allow for that plus a sitter to stay with the youngsters. An invitation to spend an evening at my home is given awkwardly, and is sure to be misunderstood. Nobody is going to call me, and nobody is going to visit me, so after the kiddies are in bed, I sit here wishing away the best years of my life.

Can you put in a good word for us, Abby? I have a nice little home, two pretty little kids, over 200 bottles of homemade wine in the basement, and time on my hands.

DEAR BILL: Haven't you ever heard of Parents Without Partners? They are looking for men like you, so start looking for them!

DEAR ABBY: There is a teacher at school who makes some of us girls sick. He pulls the hair out of his sideburns and eats it! We would like to know why he does this, and what we can do to make him stop.

DEAR NAUSEATED: I don't know about humans, but monkeys have been known to pull the hair out of their heads and eat it when they are despondent and frustrated. I think your teacher needs help.

Miss Hulme Honoree

Miss Sharon Hulme of Dallas, bride-elect of Mike Stephens, was complimented with a gift shower Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. C. M. Humphrey.

Miss Hulme and Stephens will be married in Dallas on May 17.

Other hostesses were Mrs. D. W. Pierce, Mrs. Tommy Vick, Mrs. Charles Shanks, Mrs. Cecil Peurifoy, Mrs. David Elrod, Mrs. Walter Stroup and Mrs. James Hughes.

Corsages of miniature yellow chrysanthemums tied with orange ribbons were presented to the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Harold Hulme, Dallas, and to the mother of the prospective bridegroom, Mrs. Kenneth Stephens.

Using the bride's chosen colors of yellow and orange, the permanent arrangement of yellow and orange flowers centered the refreshment table that was covered with a white cloth banded with lace.

Trees Bargain For Homeowners

Trees are tremendous bargains for improving the environment, and they offer homeowners many benefits, says a landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Trees furnish protection from extreme heat, cold, wind, drought and floods. They also reduce air and noise pollution while providing food and shelter for birds, animals and man. Trees also increase property value and indicate community pride. Now is a good time to plant trees adapted to your areas that meet your specific needs.

Birth Announced

Friends have received announcement of the birth of a boy, Joshua Charles, to Capt. and Mrs. Jerry L. Maddox who were stationed at Webb AFB. The baby was born on May 3 at 8:08 a.m., at Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss. The Maddoxes have a daughter, Emily, who is 2½ years of age.

Mrs. Alfred Franks Is Lakeview HD Head

Mrs. Alfred Franks was elected president of the Lakeview Home Demonstration Club when the group met Thursday at the home of Mrs. E. P. Madison with Mrs. W. J. Harlow assisting as hostess.

Other officers are Mrs. Gary Taggart Jr., vice president; Mrs. Harlow, secretary; Mrs. J. W. Holt, treasurer; Mrs. Madison and Mrs. Holt, delegates.

Suggestions were made for the new yearbooks. Mrs. Holt was elected as a nominee to the HD Council for the state convention to be held in Amarillo in September.

May 31 has been set for the picnic day and the group will meet at the Lewis Carille cabin at Lake Colorado City.

Kathryn Luckenback, county agent, brought the program on making window shades.

Anyone wishing to join the club may contact any of the members.

To provide a successful learning experience, an allowance must be regular and in line with a child's activities and ability to handle money, according to Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.
