

FIRE CHIEF CARL DORTON

911 board to have first meet Monday

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The Howard County 911 emergency telephone system governing board, to which three of six members have been appointed, is to have its first meeting Monday.

Members are to meet at 2 p.m. in the county commissioners' courtroom.

The cities of Big Spring and Forsan jointly have appointed Bonnie Miller, safety coordinator and training director at Western Container, and Jane Gilmore, patient coordinator at Malone and Hogan Clinic. Gilmore also is a Coahoma City Council member.

Coahoma's council is to meet at 2 p.m. Saturday at City Hall, First and Culp streets, to confirm appointment of the two.

The county's volunteer fire departments appointed Don Wilson, biomedical engineering technician at the Veterans Administration Medical Center, Big Spring Fire Chief Carl Dorton said.

County commissioners are expected to appoint County Attorney Tim Yeats and Dwayne "Butch" Fraser, said County Judge Milton Kirby.

Dorton said he believes Fraser, an agent at Patterson Insurance, was chosen for his business expertise. He also is a Big Spring Independent School District board member.

The largest phone service provider — Southwestern Bell in Howard County — is to appoint a non-voting member to the board, Dorton said.

The length of terms will be staggered, to avoid the need to replace all at the same time, the fire chief added.

The board's agenda includes scheduling a county-wide 911 system election, which must be completed within 90 days of the board's appointment, he said. The election probably will be Nov. 3, Dorton said.

Howard County voters will decide the issue of a 911 system, he said.

Regardless of whether local voters approve implementation of the county 911 system, state law requires its financing, Dorton said.

The funds will come from garnishing as much as 6 percent of the basic local telephone charge per line for individuals and businesses — not including long distance charges, he said.

That will mean about an extra 50 cents per month per telephone line for the average citizen, Dorton said.

If the majority of voters decide against the system, local 911 funds will go to a state planning commission, which will govern the funds' distribution, Dorton said.

If county voters favor the system, the local board will administer the funds for its installation, operation and maintenance, he said.

The board would operate under the same rules as the City Council or the Colorado River Municipal Water District, Dorton said. It would have the power to establish a budget, to collect and administer the funds, to issue bonds and to hire employees, he said.

It also would be subject to the open meetings laws, he said.

SATURDAY

• Big Spring Humane Society will have a tick dip at First National Bank, 400 Main St., from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Zoning hearing 6:30 tonight

Citizens have their chance to address public officials on the proposed zoning ordinance at a 6:30 p.m. hearing today at Dora Roberts Community Center.

The hearing is a joint meeting of the City Council and the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Zoning for mini-storage warehouses, flea and outdoor markets, and handicapped parking spaces are areas of proposed change in the ordinance.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said zoning for mini-storage warehouses would be less restrictive than the current ordinance.

Mini-storage warehouses currently are zoned as large, industrial-type warehouses, he said, adding that the new ordinance lists them as a separate entity.

Zoning for flea and farmers markets and outdoor arts and crafts sales will be primarily along Third and Fourth Streets, FM 700, Highway 87 and Interstate 20, he said.

Oil prices slipping to $19.30

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices slipped lower today as traders took profits in the wake of Wednesday's sharp gains.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, October contracts for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, were trading at midday at $19.30 per 42-gallon barrel, down 16 cents from Wednesday.

The near-month contract, which leaped 82 cents to $19.46 per barrel Wednesday, had not closed above $19 since last Thursday, when it finished at $19.42. Wednesday's jump in the benchmark price was also the biggest one-day spike since a 83-cent leap July 28, when the contract settled at $21.32.

Prices for refined products were also lower today.

September contracts for wholesale unleaded gasoline stood at 50.35 cents per gallon, down 0.55 cent from Wednesday, when it picked up 1.60 cents. Wholesale heating oil contracts for September stood at 50.80 cents per gallon, down 0.38 cent after having gained 2.13 cents per gallon Wednesday.

Analysts said that the market had been technically overdue for a correction after its recent long string of losses.

That upward bounce came Wednesday, when prices rallied strongly on reports that pricing and quotas committees of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would meet soon. Technical factors also played an important role in the upsurge, they said.

Today, they said trading was light as traders took profits from Wednesday's runups.

Though prices have fallen from what they were several weeks ago, consumers are unlikely to see

Texans' prison attitudes changing

From staff and wire reports
HUNTSVILLE — The times are changing.

For years, residents of Texas towns have fought the idea of having prisons built near them, but now prison officials say requests for such planned facilities are frequent.

As of Tuesday, the Texas Department of Corrections had received at least 40 inquiries from towns offering to be the home of a proposed maximum-security prison to house some of the state's most dangerous inmates.

"It sure is a turnaround from just a couple years ago," prison spokesman David Nunnelee said. "Now, we are getting several calls a week from towns that want us to locate prisons near them."

The change in attitude is reflected among Big Spring residents who are attempting to attract a prison to house illegal aliens.

Construction of the privately-operated prison in Big Spring could begin in early 1988.

One 2,250-convict high-security prison and two 1,250-prisoner pre-release centers have been proposed by the state of Texas, and proposals must be submitted by towns by Sept. 21, said Allen D. Sapp Jr., prison management services officer, said.

A $275 million construction bond issue is scheduled to go before voters this November to pay for the new facilities. The maximum-security prison is expected to cost $60 million, while the two pre-release centers are expected to cost another $60 million.

To qualify for the pre-release centers, towns must be within 100 miles of Houston or Dallas. The special facilities are intended to help convicts as they near release to re-establish family contacts and look for work, Sapp said.

"Given the economics of the state right now, it's really not surprising that they would want a prison," Sapp said.

A new prison would bring about 760 jobs and an estimated $1 million monthly payroll to the area where it is built, he said.

The prison system listed in the Texas Register a formal invitation for donations of land from towns and communities who might host three planned prisons.

Muscles event 'success,' but it loses money

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Big muscles displayed at the Spring City Body Building Championships failed to translate into big bucks for a local facility that was to receive proceeds from the event.

The Rape Crisis/Victim Services center in Big Spring lost about $1,300 from the event, Executive Director Cecelia McKenzie said Wednesday.

"We feel like, even though we lost money, it was a success," she said, adding that organizers knew the event might not make money during its first year.

United Way Executive Director Sherrie Bordofsky agreed and described the body builders as "very professional in what they were doing."

"It went very well for the first venture — I think the contest was conducted in top manner."

Bordofsky said United Way will receive canned goods that spectators donated at Saturday's finals.

The Rape Crisis center incurred $6,784.64 in expenses and earned $5,435.48, McKenzie said. Not all bills have been received, she added.

Despite the loss, McKenzie said she's enthusiastic about making the body building championships an annual event in Big Spring and already has plans for changes in next year's competition.

Promoters Doug and Vicky Beams have agreed to help with another competition.

"We expect 100 percent sponsorship next year," Vicky Beams said.

The event may be scheduled in March or April while school is in session and fewer people are on vacation. Sponsors also didn't realize this year's event coincided with the Dallas Cowboys' second preseason game, McKenzie said.

And next year's event may be expanded to include level three — the novice or beginning posers. This past weekend's event was limited to level two competition. Body Builders must win a level one state event to compete on the national level.

McKenzie said she hopes guest poser Russ Testo of Troy, N.Y. — billed as the Physique Artist Extraordinaire and considered the best poser in the world — will return next year.

The event marked the first time the Rape Crisis center had solicited donations, she said.

"It was a great morale boost for the office — knowing people want to support us," she said.

McKenzie estimated that about 450 people attended Saturday's competition at the Big Spring High School auditorium.

"I talked to some of the people who attended, including some of the people involved, and they said it was much better attended here than (competitions) in Lubbock and Houston," Bordofsky said.

"If we continue, it could grow into a very nice event."

Some donors already have agreed to give more money next year because they thought the event was a success, McKenzie said.

Major donations were $500 from Golden Corral Steakhouse, $350 from Highland Lanes, five free hotel rooms from Great Western Motel, free meals for guest posers from Denny's Restaurant, and two watches for the arm wrestler winners from Blum's Jewelers Inc.

The Rape Crisis center also received donations from about 20 Big Spring residents and businesses, McKenzie said.

Vietnam Wall fund grows as visit nears

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

A record number of people attended Wednesday's meeting of the Wall committee, which is nearing its goal of $3,200 for the Sept. 30 to Oct. 6 visit of the Moving Wall.

Committee Treasurer Teri Quinones said 36 people attended, including representatives from local law enforcement agencies, the ambulance service and fire department.

Quinones said police, fire, sheriff and ambulance personnel will combine forces to provide traffic control, emergency routes, security and parking control during the week-long event.

Local law enforcement agencies also are expected to recruit civilians to work with the departments, Quinones said.

The committee has raised $2,281.28 for the display of the half-scale replica of the Washington, D.C. Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

About one month remains to raise the additional $918.72. Quinones said 80,000 people visited the half-size replica when it was displayed for seven days in Wichita, Kan. The Kansas promoters advertised in a 25-mile radius, but local promoters are advertising state-wide, she said.

About 200 volunteers will be needed to assist with various aspects of the visit including assembly and removal of the Wall, security, emotional support for visitors, and locating veterans' names.

Volunteers also will be needed to provide escorts to the Wall for the elderly and handicapped, and to assist in parking control and trash removal.

Anyone interested in assisting should attend a 7 p.m. volunteer group meeting Sept. 11 at the National Guard Armory, 1901 West 16th St.

"Most civic groups want to donate or participate," Quinones said. "The most important thing is to show up at the volunteer meeting."

Several committee members will visit the location today to devise a floor plan for the precise location of the Wall, tents and tables, Quinones said. The Wall is to be situated at the foot of Scenic Mountain on the campus of Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

Beginning next week, the Wall committee will begin meeting every Wednesday at the Chamber of Commerce. It had been meeting monthly since late last year.

Other events planned in anticipation of the Wall's visit include participation in the Diez y Seis parade Sept. 12 and a bowling tournament Sept. 19-20.

Hill resigns

Chief justice to fight partisan elections

AUSTIN (AP) — Chief Justice John Hill says his decision to leave the Texas Supreme Court will make him a more effective leader in his bid to convince Texans to do away with partisan judicial elections.

"Private citizens can affect the body politic more than judges. And that's as it should be," Hill said. "We are going to have judicial reform. The question is not if, but when."

Hill announced Wednesday that he will step down Jan. 1, return to private law practice, probably in Houston, and not seek public office in the future. He said he will continue to lobby for replacing the system of electing judges with one under which they would be appointed on merit.

"As long as I have breath, I will work for a better system than we presently use," he said.

The former attorney general and unsuccessful 1978 Democratic gubernatorial nominee also said he wants Gov. Bill Clements to use a merit-selection process to choose a replacement.

Hill urged Clements to issue an executive order to create a 15-member nominating commission to offer names for consideration as his successor. The governor then would choose one of those recommendations.

"Certainly there is no more important judicial office than chief justice. This would be an excellent opportunity to test at the highest level a (selection) procedure that works so well in other states," Hill said.

"You have to take this step and at least show that the appointment process can be based on merit."

Hill said there was "a lot of pain in my heart" over the decision to resign from an office he enjoyed holding for three years. However, he said he believes strongly that the way Texas judges are chosen must be changed.

Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice John Hill gestures during his press conference Wednesday when he announced his resignation. Hill said he won't seek public office in the future, but will continue to lobby for replacing the system of electing judges with an appointment process.

"I didn't run for this office for tenure. I made it clear in my campaign that I was interested in trying to change the Texas judiciary," Hill said. "I think it will happen. And it needs to happen. It's the No. 1 public policy issue that the people of this state face today."

Hill, 63, was elected to a six-year term in 1984. Clements' appointee will hold the court's top job until the 1988 general election, and the winner of that race will serve out the remainder of the term which expires in 1990.

The surprise announcement came just two days after Clements appointed Republican Kent Hance of Lubbock to replace Railroad Commission chairman Mack Wallace, a Democrat who is resigning to join a law firm.

Clements' staff said the governor was surprised by Hill's decision. They also said Clements won't necessarily follow the nomination process Hill recommended.

"This came unexpectedly. The governor will make an appointment, as he always does, based on merit, based on ability," said Reggie Bashur, Clements' press secretary. "The chief justice's specific (nominating) proposal, the governor will review closely."

Hill said he had considered his decision for about two weeks. The court began its summer recess several weeks ago. Hill said he will continue to work actively as chief justice until Jan. 1.

"I will leave the court with real mixed emotions, especially because I served only half the term to which the voters elected me," he said.

Hill cited "some" family considerations, but he said he has no health problems. He also said the recent disciplining by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct of two other Supreme Court Justices — C.L. Ray and William Kilgallon — had no effect on his decision.

Hill was sworn in as chief justice on Jan. 5, 1985, after winning the job in 1984. He was a Houston trial lawyer from 1947 to 1966. From 1966 through 1968, he served as Texas secretary of state. In 1972, he was elected attorney general and held that post until his 1978 gubernatorial race.

Although Hill said he hoped his resignation would illustrate his strong belief in non-partisan judicial selection, the chairman of the Texas Democratic Party, Bob Slagle, wasn't so sure.

"Obviously, it gives Clements an appointment I'd just as soon he not have. I'm startled that John Hill would do this," Slagle said.

to unseat Democratic Attorney General Jim Mattox.

"I have no comment to make about that position and will not make any statement until I've had a chance to reflect further," Barrera said.

Democrats said Barrera's legal expertise is in criminal law, not civil law that the high court reviews. Republicans countered that Barrera might have the best chance of retaining the chief justice spot in the November 1988 general election.

Democrats also broke out a list of possible candidates for the chief justice slot that included several state senators: Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls, John Montford of Lubbock, Kent Caperton of Bryan and Bob Glasgow of Stephenville.

tion and Garwood was defeated. Garwood is now a federal appeals court judge and Sondock is a district judge in Houston.

Republicans, touting GOP gains of recent years, are hopeful that whomever Clements appoints will be able to win the seat outright next year. The appointee will have to win the party's nomination in the March 1988 primary and then campaign against an expected Democratic opponent in the November general election.

Hill expressed hope Clements would not be partisan in naming a new chief justice, but the governor's executive assistant said party affiliation would rank high on a list of qualifications.

"Frankly, I think in all likelihood it will be a Republican," said

George Bayoud.

State Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle said Hill "was expressing a forlorn hope."

"I don't think there's any good reason for John Hill to believe that Bill Clements is going to pay a bit of attention to what Hill thinks about anything," Slagle said.

Another Democrat dismayed with Hill's announcement said the chief justice may have set the stage for Republicans to break into the ranks of the Supreme Court.

"Why is he giving Bill Clements this appointment? Why?" the Democrat asked.

One of the first names mentioned among Republicans was San Antonio attorney and former judge Roy Barrera Jr., who made a strong showing last year in his bid much difference at the retail level soon. The main reason is that it takes weeks for the raw crude to be shipped, refined and distributed to the final point of sale.

On Tuesday, OPEC President Rikman Lukman told a news conference in Lagos, Nigeria, that he would meet in Vienna on Friday with representatives from Indonesia and Venezuela to find ways to make members honor their quotas.

Another five-member team would meet to review and monitor oil prices, he said.

The 13-nation cartel's self-imposed production quota is 16.6 million barrels a day. In recent weeks, however, several members have been exceeding their limits, causing supplies to outstrip world demand and leading to fears of another price war that could bring on a second market crash in two years.

Some industry-watchers have pegged the cartel's overall surplus at as much as 3 million a day, but Lukman denied that Tuesday. He said the level of over-production is between 1.1 million and 1.2 million barrels a day.

The idea that those production levels would be curtailed sent short sellers scurrying for cover Wednesday, analysts said. Traders "feel uncomfortable being short and going into an OPEC meeting," said Mike Himmel, an analyst at the Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. securities firm.

In a short sale, a trader borrows a contract and sells it, hoping to replace it later with another contract bought at a lower price.

If the price rises, however — as has happened after some previous OPEC gatherings — the trader loses money from having to replace it with a contract bought at a higher price.

"There were plenty of shorts going into (Wednesday's) market," Himmel said, adding that their buying fueled the rally.

Suspect killed by inmate

Herald staff report

A man who was stabbed to death Tuesday night at the Darrington Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections had been sentenced in Howard County for the aggravated robbery of Roy Lee Powell.

Court records do not indicate if Powell resides in Howard County.

Manuel Arriaga, serving eight years for aggravated robbery out of Howard County, was stabbed nine times about 8 p.m. as he was being escorted by a guard to a shower in an administrative segregation cellblock, said David Nunnelee of the TDC.

Arriaga was sentenced Oct. 31, 1983 for the robbery in which he used a knife to rob Powell of jewelry, pocket knives and watches, 118th District Court records state.

Inmate Wallace Joslin Jr., 24, serving a life sentence for murder in Dallas County, was placed in prehearing detention pending an investigation by the Brazoria County Sheriff's Department, Nunnelee said.

Odessan injured in accident

Herald staff report

An Odessa man suffered minor injuries after he lost control of his car during rains at 1:40 p.m. Wednesday, on FM 700 at Mesa Street, police reports said.

Raul Gonzales, 27, was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said. Police reports said he was taken there by ambulance.

Gonzales was driving a white Ford pickup west on FM 700 when the wet road and his high speed caused him to lose control of the vehicle, police reports said. The truck slid backward more than 600 feet and crashed into a billboard by the roadside.

Gonzales, who was wearing both seatbelt and shoulder strap, was charged with driving at an unsafe speed, reports said.

Pit bull was known to bite before

RICHARDSON — A pit bullterrier that attacked a jogger and her leashed dog Monday was evicted from Arlington just two weeks earlier for biting a meter reader in the stomach.

The dog is owned by Michael James Perl, 24, of Arlington, who apparently was keeping the animal at his parents' Richardson home in the 2200 block of Flat Creek Drive, officials said.

City officials delivered four citations Tuesday night to the residence of Perl's father, Michael A. Perl, who could face up to $800 in fines for allegedly allowing a dog to run loose, harboring a vicious animal, not having a dog license and providing no proof of rabies vaccination.

"I'm really upset about it," said Carolyn Channell, who suffered numerous bites to the head, arms, legs and hands — including 32 puncture wounds to her right hand — as she tried to protect her boxer from a pit bull.

Committee, Mattox near agreement

AUSTIN — An agreement to allow Attorney General Jim Mattox to begin inspecting files from a Methodist bishop committee's probe into the Southern Methodist University football scandal is near, a Mattox aide said.

The attorney general said last week the bishops had agreed to allow his staff to review files of a special committee of the United Methodist Church bishops to determine whether any civil or criminal laws were violated in the university's athletic pay-for-play scheme.

Mattox spokesman Ron Dusek said Wednesday the agreement would be filed in state district court when finalized, probably today.

Negotiations between Mattox's staff and the bishops' lawyers had hit a snag, and Mattox press secretary Elna Christopher said Tuesday the attorneys were "adding things that are unreasonable."

Defector's family arrive in Austin

AUSTIN — A crowd of about 200 waved U.S. flags and roses as the wife and daughter of a Romanian defector arrived here after being allowed to leave Romania.

Ioana Firica, 46, and her daughter Violeta Firica, 18, arrived on Pan American airlines Wednesday night amid waving U.S. flags, red and yellow roses and about 200 members of the Central Assembly of God, which will co-sponsor the women emigrants. The church, and members Nancy and Al Dolan co-sponsor Paul Firica.

Paul, who has lived in Austin since his defection in November 1985, abandoned his Romanian ship in a Houston port. He had not seen his family in nearly two years.

Firica said he got only two hours' sleep Tuesday night in anticipation of his family's arrival.

"I was very, very anxious. But I am very, very happy. It's my life," Paul Firica said. "It is a beautiful night for me and my family. I see this day for many months in my dreams. It is a big victory."

Floods threaten chili pepper crops

EL PASO — Floods caused by heavy rains could destroy as much as 30 percent of the chili crop in the nation's largest pepper-producing county, officials said.

No injuries were reported as floodwaters damaged at least 20 homes in the El Paso area.

The rain totalled about 1.5 inches at El Paso International Airport and 3 to 7 inches in the flooded area. The normal annual precipitation in El Paso is 7.77 inches, according to the Texas Almanac.

Green chilis, varying from mild Bell peppers to spicy jalapenos, are susceptible to a fungus called chili wilt that attacks the plant's roots in hot, wet conditions, Vargas said.

Pilgrims face insurance problems

FORT WORTH — State officials say they will turn back at the border any Mexican bus bound for the papal mass in San Antonio that does not carry sufficient liability insurance, despite the difficulty of obtaining such coverage.

A federal law in effect since late 1983 requires foreign passenger buses entering the United States to carry $5 million in American liability insurance.

Few companies offer the federal-ly required insurance, and those which do charge premiums as high as $9,500 for a three-day trip, said Porfirio Casas, a Rio Grande Valley insurance agent who has insured Mexican buses in the past.

U.S. Customs Service agents routinely check Mexican passenger buses for proof of the required insurance coverage, said Jerry Smith, Texas director of motor carrier safety for the Department of Transportation.

Buses without the required insurance coverage are turned back, he said.

Smith said the policy will still be in effect at U.S.-Mexican border crossings in the days before Pope John Paul II's Sept. 13 visit, despite the numbers of visitors expected.

Blind prodigy still plays following plastic surgery

BALTIMORE (AP) — Blind musical prodigy Jermaine Gardner will grow up with one less physical stumbling block, thanks to a Texas foundation that paid for his facial reconstructive surgery in Dallas.

"Like my nose?" the 4-year-old boy asks when visitors come to hear him perform works of Beethoven, Bach, Mozart, Chopin and Liszt memorized from tape recordings.

Last month he successfully underwent surgery to correct facial deformities he was born with: an abnormally bulged forehead, eyes spaced far apart, and a nose lacking a bridge.

Doctors at a Dallas hospital reshaped Jermaine's face and sculpted a new nose, allowing him to wear dark glasses for the first time. The surgery was paid for by the Texas-based Foundation for Craniofacial Deformities, which donates operations for up to four children annually through funds provided by the General Electric Foundation.

Although Jermaine can't see the difference, he can feel it.

"He feels the change. He loves what's happened. All of it," said his mother, Jacqueline Kess-Gardner, 34.

The July 27 procedures at Humana Advanced Surgical Institute at Medical City Dallas were the first phase of surgery. Jermaine still faces further reconstructive work in January 1988. The total cost of the procedures is about $200,000.

The surgery should spare him some of the psychological trauma of growing up disfigured, his mother said. "Other kids can be cruel about looks, more so than the blindness. We want him to have as many advantages as possible."

Jermaine's musical ability was apparent when as an infant he climbed up to a piano and played a song he had just heard. At 13 months, he could play the melody of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata."

His talent has drawn attention from national magazines and television, and landed him special performances. Publicity from one of those events changed his life.

In May, Ms. Kess-Gardner and her autoworker husband, James Gardner, 36, accepted an invitation for their son to perform in Los Angeles at a surprise birthday party for Stevie Wonder, who shares Jermaine's blindness.

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:

Says peace plan best alternative

Oscar Arias Sanchez, president of Costa Rica and key drafter of the peace plan agreed upon by five Central American presidents, wisely cautions the world that "there are still a thousand obstacles before us."

His admonition should prevent unrealistic expectations of the peace plan, which is more of a list of goals than a blueprint for enforceable terms to end fighting between the Nicaraguan Sandinistas and the Contras.

But the plan is at present the best alternative to continued fighting despite criticism from anti-communist hard-liners in the Reagan administration and opposition in some Sandinista quarters against any internal changes in Nicaragua.

As the Central American nations move toward setting up procedures to fulfill the plan's goals, a world watches warily to see whether Nicaragua can indeed move toward "full democratic rights," or whether — as hard-liners fear — the result ends up granting legitimacy to a Marxist-leaning dictatorship.

Chicago Sun-Times

U.S. has responsibility to Contras

It is still too soon to judge prospects for peace talks in Central America. But it is not too soon to stress the point that, no matter what happens, the United States has some kind of continuing responsibility for the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Agree with the action or not, this country by act of Congress armed and encouraged the anti-communist rebels against the Marxist Sandinista government.

Any Nicaraguan amnesty program is going to be difficult, and, perhaps, even bloody at times.

But the United States has an interest in helping ensure there is such an amnesty, or in otherwise providing something called home for the Contras we backed.

Lauds efforts to force child support

Federal efforts to force absent parents to meet their responsibilities for supporting their children are paying off.

The secretary of Health and Human Services, Otis R. Bowen, reports that more than $19 billion has been collected since the child support enforcement program was established in 1975.

For too many years, runaway fathers and mothers left it to someone else — usually the government — to take care of their children's needs.

Collecting the support absent parents owe their children saves millions of tax dollars each year and also provides a better quality of life for the children themselves.

The Oklahoman, Oklahoma City

Recommends caution in gulf war

The petroleum energy which powers the industrialized West comes from the Middle East. But the (Iran-Iraq) war between the Moslems is, among other things, a war over how to deal with modern Western materialism.

American spiritual freedom and capitalism are not at war within our society. They stimulate each other. But materialism and spiritualism are at war in Middle Eastern societies. The shah of Iran represented the victory of materialism. The ayatollah represents the victory of theocracy.

America has a national interest in protecting freedom of navigation in the Persian Gulf. But in trying to make the gulf safe for tankers, the United States is sailing through the crossfire of a Moslem religious conflict. Iran may retaliate with terrorism, not only against our warships, but against civilians.

The modern, industrialized West needs the petroleum energy of the Middle East, and if we must be bold we must also be cautious. Circumspection may help us find a course that won't result in importing Middle Eastern terrorism along with the crude.

Hemet (Calif.) News

Calls U.N. boycott a bad decision

There is a conspicuous, empty chair at a United Nations conference ... to explore the idea of spending less on military arms and more on economic development, particularly to aid Third World countries.

The 128 nations gathered to talk about this critical global issue include all members of the Warsaw Pact and all of the NATO allies, save one. The empty chair belongs to the United States.

Reagan administration officials made a bad decision to boycott the meeting because they think — probably correctly — that the Soviet Union and its satellites will use the U.N. forum to bash U.S. policies.

The theory is that blaming poverty, famine and all sorts of other afflictions suffered by poor nations on U.S. military spending would increase pressure on the United States to accept Soviet disarmament proposals.

Actually, this country spends far more on economic assistance to poor nations and far less of its gross national product on arms than the Soviet Union does.

The United States can be proud of its efforts to help those in need around the world. It should be at the U.N. meeting to stand up before other nations and say so.

Drug usage 'isn't worth dying for'

Federal drug enforcement officials report that the price of cocaine has dropped steeply since 1985 — by as much as one-third. Pessimists say this means that supply is up; optimists, that demand is down. Apparently both are right.

Even the intensified anti-drug campaign of recent years has failed to keep cocaine from entering the country in larger quantities. But on the other hand, the number of people using the drug has passed its peak.

The cocaine-related deaths of athletes Len Bias and Don Rogers and the efforts of government and the media are scaring people away.

"A lot of people who used to snort at a party now shy away," says a Miami drug lawyer. "It's sort of like casual sex — it isn't worth dying for."

Amen.

Falwell may have influenced high-level decision change

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Praise the Lord and change the disposition! After a telephone plea and letter from Rev. Jerry Falwell, then-Navy Secretary John Lehman overturned the decision of a high-level review board and approved a request to extend the active duty of a Navy chaplain affiliated with Falwell's Liberty Baptist Fellowship.

The subject of Falwell's concern was Lt. Gary L. Maxwell, 34. The urgency of Falwell's midnight phone call last Feb. 11 was dictated by the chaplain's scheduled separation from active duty on Feb. 20 — a disposition decided on by the Chaplain Corps 1987 Extension Board of five senior Navy chaplains.

The review panel denied Maxwell's request to extend his active-duty status beyond the three years he had already served. Extensions are highly valued by Navy chaplains, and most requests are granted. But the board informed Maxwell that he was "non-competitive," a judgment call that was not elaborated upon.

Maxwell appealed — to Falwell. "I sent Dr. (Dennis) Fields (Falwell's executive secretary) a copy of the letter the extension board sent me, and I checked on an appeals process, but I was told there was none," Maxwell told our reporter Mike Rosenfelt.

Maxwell's decision to seek Falwell's help was a wise one. Fields told us that he initially tried to solve the lieutenant's problem by going through Chaplain Corps channels. But these attempts were unsuccessful. And Maxwell's release date was drawing near.

So on the night of Feb. 10-11, the big gun himself was brought in.

Jack Anderson

Falwell, whose powers of persuasion are legendary, got on the horn to Lehman and also talked with Lehman's executive assistant, Capt. Joseph Prueher.

No one knows better than a television evangelist the importance of a follow-up letter. Falwell wrote to Prueher that very day, exuding reasonableness and humility.

"Thank you," he wrote, "for allowing our telephone conversation tonight. I apologize for calling you and the Secretary at the midnight hour. However, all other avenues have now been explored.

"I am humbly requesting your intervention on (Maxwell's) behalf, because we believe he was unfairly evaluated by his commanding chaplain. His commanding chaplain was openly critical of Maxwell's denomination and our evangelical doctrine.

"All of his commanders and many of his co-workers have written me stating Chaplain Maxwell's excellent abilities and performance. I am enclosing some of these letters. They all support my conclusion that Lt. Maxwell has been wrongly evaluated and should be given an indefinite extension on active duty.

"Lt. Maxwell is the only chaplain Liberty Baptist Fellowship presently has in the Navy. ... As you well know, I have never asked this office for any favor. However, I sincerely feel that Chaplain Maxwell is being wrongly treated and deserves your intervention."

It's not possible to say with any certainty that Falwell's earnest plea did the trick. Lehman did not return repeated calls for comment, and Prueher is apparently now on sea duty and unavailable.

However, on Feb. 19 — just 24 hours before he was to be released from active duty — Maxwell was informed that Secretary Lehman had overruled the Extension Board's decision and would allow the chaplain to remain on active duty as Maxwell (and Falwell) had requested.

MINI-EDITORIAL — "Day's night today and black's white today," wrote Cole Porter more than 50 years ago. Little could that elegantly witty man have foreseen that his sardonic commentary would one day be the marching song of the pro-Iranian fanatics who have been kidnapping, murdering, bombing and terrorizing generally the length and breadth of Lebanon.

Demonstrators the other day were exhorted by Hezbollah — a gang of cutthroats claiming divine inspiration — to "fight darkness with more terrorism." In a society where civilized behavior is called darkness, and can be dispelled by terrorist outrages, then truly, "Anything Goes."

Every news outfit is taking polls concerning current events. In a matter of hours you can now find out where America stands on any subject. I've decided to go into the same business. Here are the results of my latest nationwide poll.

1. Do you agree that Ollie North should have permitted someone else to install a security system around his house?

Agree — 14 percent.
Disagree — 14 percent.
Should have bought a pit bulldog instead — 72 percent.

2. When Bud McFarlane and North went to Iran they took with them a Bible and a chocolate cake. In exchange the Iranians mined the Strait of Hormuz. Who got the best deal?

The U.S. — 48 percent.
The Ayatollah's Bible class — 42 percent.

The CIA baker who made the cake to launch the first Iranian-American Friendship Cookbook — 10 percent.

3. Does President Reagan know any more now than he did before he had lunch with Admiral Poindexter?

Knows more — 10 percent.

Art Buchwald

Knows less — 15 percent.
Can't remember who Admiral Poindexter is — 75 percent.

4. After hearing the President talk about his role in the supplying of the Contras in Central America, do you believe the President has:

A longer nose — 35 percent.
A shorter nose — 50 percent.
About the same — 15 percent.

5. If anyone from the White House is indicted for crimes concerning Iran/gate he should be given:

An immediate pardon — 33 percent.

An immediate pardon and a lecture tour — 45 percent.

An immediate pardon, a lecture tour, a million-dollar book contract, a Bible and a chocolate layer cake — 22 percent.

6. If you have your choice of picking a fall guy for the Contra hearings, who would you choose?

Elliott Abrams — 21 percent.
Bill Casey — 20 percent.

Judge Robert Bork — 59 percent.

7. Who should be in charge of Kuwaiti-American tankers in the Persian Gulf?

Sly Stallone — 76 percent.
James Bond — 14 percent.

Arnold Schwarzenegger, if all else fails — 10 percent.

8. Who would you most like to see stand by the President in a crisis?

Around the rim

Pigskin smell is in the air

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

During the past few weeks, I've noticed a definite quickening of my pulse. My appetite's been improving, the sky seems bluer and a smile keeps creeping onto my face.

It must be football season. Yes, faithful readers, this is the time of the year when your's truly comes alive. I shed the lethargy of another mind-numbing summer, get the coat out of mothballs, and prepare to spend the next five months screaming my lungs out.

Friday nights with the Steers, Saturdays with the collegians and Sundays with the Cowboys; what could be better? I swear, football season almost beats true love.

And it's a lot cheaper.

Sept. 18 already is reserved on my calendar. That's when the defending district champion Big Spring Steers have their home opener against the San Angelo Lakeview Chiefs.

Defending district champs.

Let's savor those three words for a moment. How many years did native Big Springers wait to say those words? How many years did we watch our brave, tireless heroes get ground under by the likes of Permian, Lee and San Angelo?

Not any more, sports fans.

The University Interscholastic League, the governing body of Texas high school sports, decided last year to drop Big Spring's classification from 5A to 4A. With this rare display of wisdom, the UIL changed the Steers from a 98-pound weakling to the bully on the block.

That, and about 45 kamikazes disguised as football players.

For the next few years, at least, fall Fridays will be fun again in the Spring City. I think it's a fairly safe bet that we won't have to wait 33 years for the next district football crown to come our way.

Following in a family tradition, I cheer for the Texas Tech Red Raiders on Saturdays. Although I never attended the college, I still urge them to victory out of fear that my brother Danny would disown me otherwise.

Alumni can be sooooo touchy.

The only reason I decline to describe my brother as a rabid Tech fan is that he doesn't foam at the mouth when they play (just sometimes when they lose). Other than that, he displays most of the disease's symptoms.

Seriously, I follow the Red Raiders for the same reason many people root for the Chicago Cubs. I figure Tech's going to play in the Cotton Bowl someday, and I hope to witness the event.

Which brings me to Sundays and the team you love or loathe — the Dallas Cowboys.

I love the Cowboys. My friend Don, however, hates them with a ferocity usually reserved for dictators and IRS auditors. But what do you expect from someone whose favorite team is the Houston Oilers? After all, they've been to the Super Bowl as often as the Red Raiders have been SWC champs.

Although we're close friends, come football Sunday, we're barely on speaking terms. Until last year, I got the most of our mini-rivalry, as America's Team amassed victory upon victory. Don warned this tradition would eventually come tumbling down.

I should've listened.

Last year, the Cowpokes coughed and sputtered to an unAmerican 7-9 record. My good friend, drinking buddy and confidant — kind soul that he is — let me have it with both barrels.

Every time I visited, he greeted me at the door with a rousing "How about them Cowpokes?" Then I was abused with the most nauseating laugh ever heard.

Nine times last year I heard that laugh. Nine times I considered poisoning his can of Busch.

I have had several months to resolve these homicidal tendencies. But if the Cowpokes stink again this year, I may have to hide all the sharp objects when Don visits.

I feel confident, however, that the Cowpokes will not falter as they did last year. Tom Landry and his gang will once again rule the roost of the NFL. This will be my year to gloat once again.

If not — hey, there's always the Oilers.

Paul Laxalt withdraws

WASHINGTON — Former Sen. Paul Laxalt announced Wednesday he is withdrawing from the race for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination after "a careful and realistic assessment of our financial situation."

PAUL LAXALT

Laxalt, who has raised more than $1 million, made the announcement in a statement issued about 7 p.m. EDT Wednesday by his campaign committee.

In the statement, Laxalt, a former Republican senator from Nevada, said his committee has "thoroughly tested the political and financial waters for the past four months."

Anchors to cover Pope

MIAMI — Pope John Paul II's arrival on U.S. shores will be heralded by four of America's best known personalities. President Reagan already has announced plans to attend, and the three major networks announced they are sending their anchors to cover the event.

Peter Jennings, Dan Rather and Tom Brokaw will cover the first stop of the pope's 10-day U.S. tour with his arrival at Miami International Airport Sept. 10, said officials at ABC, CBS and NBC.

Coverage begins at 2 p.m. EDT and will last at least an hour.

Oil plan challenged

WASHINGTON — A coalition of environmental groups is challenging the offshore oil and gas leasing plan adopted last month by Interior Secretary Donald P. Hodel for the nation's outer continental shelf.

"Hodel's plan is an attack on our nation's natural heritage — its magnificent coastline and marine resources," said Sarah Chasis, an attorney with the Natural Resources Defense Council.

Koop stresses education

WASHINGTON — Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, upset by the "raw deal" afforded three brothers at a Florida school, says the episode underscores the need for parent education to head off unwarranted fears about AIDS in schools.

Koop commented in a telephone interview Wednesday after a bomb threat forced evacuation of an elementary school in Arcadia, Fla., for the second straight day.

Journalists from four newspapers, two radio stations and a magazine in Panama carry a banner protesting restrictions placed by the government. The banner reads, "Without a free press, there is no democracy." Hundreds marched Wednesday, including journalists from pro-government radio and television stations.

Journalists protest restrictions

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Police used tear gas to break up a student demonstration at the national university, and 1,000 journalists and supporters marched to protest the government's closing of opposition media.

Riot police watched as the journalists began a four-mile march along the city's main commercial street Wednesday, but made no effort to block the demonstration.

Protesters carried signs demanding the reopening of three opposition newspapers, two radio stations and a weekly magazine closed indefinitely July 26 for allegedly spreading information disruptive to the public peace.

The journalists distributed leaflets along the march route that said, "The journalist who sells his pen is just as wretched as the bureaucrat or businessman who buys it."

The three newspapers — La Prensa, El Siglo and Extra — as well as radio stations KW Continente and Radio Mundial and the magazine Quiubo had demanded investigations of Panama's military strongman, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Noriega's former second-in-command alleged in early June that the Defense Forces chief was linked to political killings, election fraud and drug trafficking. Noriega, considered the power behind the civilian government, denied the charges.

The accusations sparked weeks of demonstrations.

Also Wednesday, riot police were called to the downtown campus of the University of Panama after about 100 students stoned government cars that passed outside the school grounds.

About 20 police vans drove up and surrounded the campus, and some officers fired tear gas and bird shot at the protesters.

The students were inside the school grounds, which police are barred by law from entering, but witnesses saw one student arrested.

University buses were called into service to take any students who wished to leave from the campus.

Classes continued Wednesday as they have throughout the recent protests.

The student protesters on Monday and Tuesday seized passing government cars and burned them, creating barricades across entrances to the university. Police responded with tear gas.

On Wednesday, the students did not venture off the grounds.

Company fires 10,000

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — South Africa's largest mining company fired 10,000 black strikers who refused to return to work today after their union rejected a new offer to end a nationwide strike.

Anglo American Corp.'s decision to resume mass firings came one day after members of the National Union of Mineworkers voted overwhelmingly to reject a mining company contract proposal that offered slight improvements in benefits but no additional pay.

In another development, the country's main black labor federation, the Congress of South African Trade Unions said today it is preparing for a national strike in support of the mineworkers.

Police arrest strikers

MANILA, Philippines — Police arrested 66 people today and surrounded the headquarters of a militant union in a crackdown following the largest strike of President Corazon Aquino's administration.

Brig. Gen. Alfredo Lim, Manila's police chief, said Medardo Roda, chairman of United Association of Transport Workers Nationwide, was arrested today for "inciting to sedition."

Roda heads a union of passenger jeep drivers affiliated with the militant May 1st Movement, which spearheaded Wednesday's strike demanding a rollback of fuel prices that the government increased Aug. 14.

Inmates take hostages

ROME — A group of rebel inmates doused some of their 21 hostages with gasoline and threatened to kill them unless they were allowed to escape in a helicopter. Negotiators refused to make a deal until the only female hostage was freed.

Authorities reported little progress Wednesday in talks with the six inmates, who took over the prison administration building and infirmary a day earlier.

There were no reports of injury to the hostages.

Report says Waite alive

LONDON — A British Broadcasting Corp. reporter in Tehran said today he has received authoritative assurances that Church of England envoy Terry Waite, who disappeared in Lebanon in January, is alive and well.

Waite, who had gone to Lebanon to negotiate for the release of Westerners held hostage there, is still in Lebanon and "both his captors and the Iranians are anxious to ensure that nothing happens to him," said John Simpson in a television broadcast from Iran where he is on assignment.

Boy resents grandpa's breakfast companion

DEAR ABBY: My son, "Charles," who is almost 14, has always had a wonderful relationship with my father — his grandfather — until a few months ago. For about a year and a half, Charles would stop at his grandpa's on the way to school, and they would have breakfast together. Charles even had a key to Dad's house, and would start preparing breakfast while Dad was shaving.

This, of course, was on school days. However, one Saturday morning, Charles had to be at school to practice a play. He went to his grandpa's as he usually did on school days, let himself in with his own key and found Grandpa having breakfast with an attractive lady — both in their pajamas!

Charles never did go to school for play practice. Instead, he stormed home and locked himself in his room. Now he will talk to no one, and rushes out of the room when his once-beloved grandpa visits us. We are all terribly upset by his attitude. Dad is heartbroken because he can't seem to get through to his only grandson. Dad has been a widower for more than eight years. The lady is well-known to my wife and me. She is a lovely person and a widow.

How can we get through to Charles and persuade him that Dad has not committed a terrible crime? Don't suggest our minister, Abby. He is rather conservative and does not approve of "living in sin."

CANADIAN DAD

DEAR DAD: You are assuming that Charles is angry with Grandpa for "living in sin." I think he's angry for another reason — he's jealous of the intimate relationship Grandpa has with the attractive lady. Charles needs to talk about his feelings honestly — if not with you and Grandpa, then with a counselor. When he admits to himself why he overreacted, he will be able to handle it in a more mature manner.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the lady who asked if she should marry a widower who had been married for 40 years and had revolting table manners. (She thought maybe she could "teach" him.) She should run from him! His manners were learned at his mother's knee, and he will not improve. I know.

I've been fighting this for 44 years. I fell in love with a man who was very crude when it came to manners and behavior, but I thought I could change him. Of course, I couldn't. I didn't meet his family until after we were married, and when I did, I nearly dropped dead. His mother was a short, heavyset woman with atrocious manners. If you were in her way, she'd give you a shove! She never closed a door or a drawer — she either kicked or slammed it shut. She interrupted people and shouted them down, and was never wrong about anything.

My husband turned out to be just like her, but when you're in love you either don't notice, or they're on their best behavior. My husband's table manners are gross. He curls his left arm around his plate as if someone were going to steal it. He stabs at his food with his fork and chews with his mouth open. Yes, I've tried to correct him, but he's too lazy and stubborn to learn. Also, he's nearly illiterate and has never read a book. How this man held a job all these years, I'll never know. (This may account for his early retirement.) It's amazing how clever a person can be when he needs to bluff his way through.

He's a good man in other ways, but I never would have married him if I had known then what I learned later.

Many attend post office barbecue

The annual post office employee social and recreational barbecue was Aug. 22 at the Belaski Pavillion in Comanche Trail Park. About 100 gathered to enjoy the catered meal by Freddie's of Big Spring. Several gallons of homemade ice cream were provided by the postal employees.

Winners of the double elimination egg toss contest were Charles McEntire and David Fent. The three-legged race was won by Wendell Payte and Sandra Qualls.

Winners of the horse show pitching teams were Charles McEntire and Leland Calvert. All winners received a gift certificate.

Howard College to sponsor Howard County pageant

Howard College will sponsor the fourth annual Miss Howard County Pageant Oct. 20 at 7 p.m. at the Howard College auditorium, says Linda Conway, pageant director.

"We are again serving as sponsors of the pageant this year because we believe it provides a valuable contribution to the community and to the young ladies who will enter the competition."

She added that the pageant "serves the community well because it focuses attention on the high calibre of young ladies who are residents of our area."

"We believe it serves youth well because it provides the opportunity for the young ladies who compete to gain added poise through public appearances and to gain added maturity through participation in a community program such as the Miss Howard County Pageant.

"Most important, it will provide the opportunity for the girl who is the winner to continue to seek scholarship awards at the Miss Texas Pageant, which will aid her in obtaining an education at the college of her choice," Conway explained.

Winner of the county pageant will enter the Miss Texas Pageant, which is conducted to select the state queen. The winner of the state title will compete for the crown of Miss America at the national competition at Atlantic City, N.J. in Sept. 1988.

She also announced that committees to plan the program are being formed and that organizations in the area will be requested to sponsor contestants for the pageant.

Director at West Side Center to retire

Madeline Boadle announced Tuesday at the Big Spring Lions Club meeting that she will retire as executive director of the West Side Community Center, 1311 W. 4th St. at the end of the year.

When Boadle retires, the new director will be Jacque Mauch of Sand Springs.

Jacque attended Sol Ross and then became an air force wife and mother during the past 17 years. She has been active in the PTA, scouting, 4-H and Sunday school teaching, Boadle said.

Her husband, Tim, is retired from the United States Air Force and is a senior student at U.T.P.B., studying to be a history teacher.

Boadle told the club that the Westside Community Center has grown since a group of women began the family outreach program 45 years ago.

The center is supported by the United Way Fund and Community support to help children improve their images through learning skills and receive medical attention when needed, she explained.

The center has two vans to transport children to and from the center and to medical facilities in the Permian Basin.

Last year, 7,300 children visited and attended programs which was far too many for the limited facilities of the center. The summer program of the year was to host 2,800 children between the ages of six and 13, Boadle said.

The West Side Center also conducts seminars for adults, financial management of the home, sewing, cooking and parenting.

New members join local women's club

Five new members were introduced at the Aug. 18 meeting of the Business & Professional Women's Club.

Doris Meyer, president, introduced five new members: Penny Clarkson, Viola Barraza, Carol Durkee, Mollie Rush and Jan Howard.

District Eight Director Carol Buchannon and husband, Cliff, of Odessa were introduced and gave highlights about the training for leadership and also planning for the fall conference scheduled Sept.

19 and 20 at the Hilton. Meyer announced that the Individual Development Program (IDP) will begin Oct. 1.

The anniversary of Texas women obtaining the right to vote is being observed today at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in room 212 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Doris Meyer presented a summation of the Business and Professional Women's Club from its beginning in 1919 in St. Louis, Mo. to the present. She introduced the Focus Issues for 1987-'88. They are pay equity, supporting women in the workplace, the changing family and involving women in the political process.

She said that working women are players in the game — not spectators. "We are team players, we want to win for ourselves, our families and other workers on our team."

Next meeting will be at Herman's Restaurant on Sept. 15 at 6:30 p.m.

Two tie for Rook Club high score

Fannie Kent and Marie Affleck tied for high score of four Friday at the Rook Club.

The group met at the home of Mrs. Affleck.

Refreshments of punch and cake were served after the game.

Next meeting will be at the home of Gene Duncan on Sept. 18 at 2 p.m.

But not if you follow these tips for working around electricity while working around the house or on the job.

- Keep ladders and trimming tools away from overhead wires.
- Call an expert if your electric meter or fuse box needs to be moved.
- Don't dig if you suspect there are underground wires—call us first.
- Make sure you're clear of all wires when installing an antenna; think about where it might land if it falls during installation.
- Make sure all tools that run on electricity are properly grounded and treat them with respect.

We don't mean to alarm you. But too many people become accident statistics simply because they forget to be cautious around electricity. And that's the shocking truth.

Matlin's Oscar has opened doors for the deaf

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — The drama school for the deaf where Oscar-winner Marlee Matlin got her start is preparing for a boom season as more hearing-impaired people seek careers in theater, the school's president says.

"I think our stock went way up, so to speak," with Ms. Matlin's Academy Award for best actress in the 1986 film, "Children of a Lesser God," said Patricia Scherer of the Center on Deafness in this Chicago suburb.

"I also have parents calling me saying they want their child to be in the Marlee Matlin school," she said. "They are seeing us as a successful theater program."

Ms. Scherer said she expects 30 to 40 people to try out in September for about 20 parts in "Fiddler on the Roof." Last year, she said, 15 to 20 people tried out for a similar number of parts in another musical production.

Ms. Scherer, who formerly headed the deafness program at Northwestern University, said a successful theater program was one of her dreams when she founded the center in 1973.

Deaf people "have such an innate ability to act out their feelings and their ideas. I thought it would be a very positive experience for them to do this and get a reward for doing it," she said Tuesday.

The center, in a residential neighborhood, also has a school for emotionally disturbed deaf children and offers training in creative writing, art and photography. It holds an annual arts festival for the hearing impaired.

At least three of the center's students have landed parts in local or regional television commercials since Ms. Matlin won her Oscar and several have won roles in local theater productions, Ms. Scherer said.

"It's about time," said Liz Tannebaum, who studied at the center with Ms. Matlin and is an assistant director at the school and a part-time actress.

"The people just don't know how much expression and intensity of feelings we have inside," Ms. Tannebaum, 23, said Wednesday through a sign-language interpreter.

Ms. Tannebaum, who like Ms. Matlin is profoundly deaf, said they have been best friends since they started performing in plays at the center during elementary school.

Ms. Matlin began acting in center productions in 1973 at age 7, then quit after seven years "because there was no place for her to go" with her talent, Ms. Scherer said.

She said Ms. Matlin finished high school and enrolled in a local junior college, then got her first big acting break in 1985 when she landed a supporting role in a Chicago production of "Children of a Lesser God."

Ms. Tannebaum recently starred in a Kansas City production of "Doing the Reality Rag," a collection of skits that uses humor to examine the challenges of living with a handicap.

Movie called 'Hitchcockian'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

The Secretary of Defense becomes involved in a killing and approves a coverup to shift the guilt. He assigns a deputy to track down the alleged murderer, and the deputy, who knows the real identity of the killer, realizes that the mounting evidence will point to himself.

Can such a plot make a convincing movie? In view of recent happenings in Washington, why not?

In fact, "No Way Out," which opens Friday at The College Park Cinema, turns out to be a marvelous thriller that warrants the ultimate praise: Hitchcockian. This is due to Robert Garland's tightly woven script, Robert Donaldson's swift direction and a letter-perfect cast.

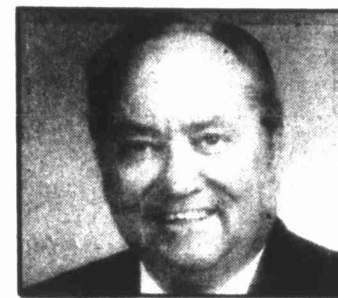

The film is centered in the Pentagon. Kevin Costner is a Navy hero assigned to the staff of the secretary of defense, Gene Hackman, who is in need of improved public relations. Something of a swinger, Costner encounters a stunning beauty, Sean Young, at a dull Washington inaugural ball. Immediately enamored, they launch a steamy affair with grapples in limos and trysts at weekend hideaways. There's a major complication, though: Young is Hackman's mistress.

That's just the beginning of the labyrinthian journey into suspense and intrigue. The plot proceeds plausibly until the very end, when the filmmakers pull a surprise that leaves the audience puzzled and perhaps a little angry.

Following "The Untouchables," Kevin Costner is on a roll. He has the looks, dynamism and credibility of which long-lasting careers are made.

After a number of films unworthy of his talent, Hackman contributes a deft portrayal of a principled man destroyed by events out of his control. Sean Young as the mistress is merely terrific; she evokes haunting memories of Marilyn Monroe in "The Asphalt Jungle."

SHOP-O'-THE-WEEK

PICK AND CHOOSE — Carpet Center has the widest selection of carpet and vinyl in this area, according to Roy Honea.
Visit their showroom at 3808 W. Hwy. 80, 9 to 5 weekdays or 10 to 2 Saturdays.

CARPET CENTER

Here's a quick lesson in carpet-buying from Roy E. Honea of Carpet Center.

First, know something about the dealer you are buying from.
How long has he been in business? What do his customers think about his product and service?

Second, know something about the mill that made the carpet. Quality mills such as Mohawk and Armstrong are found only at better dealers.

When shopping for carpet, here are the points to look for:
yarn system (Dupont and Monsanto are among the best man-made fibers); density (yarn count); and finish (there's a lot of difference in the shearing).

Ask to compare the quality of various pads available. And finally, ask about the credentials of the men who will install your carpet.

No reputable carpet dealer will be put off by any of these questions, says Honea. You can even ask to see the mill brand on the carpet roll when it's delivered to make certain it's the same carpet you chose in the showroom.

The Carpet Center showroom features more than 1500
samples of carpet for residential and commercial installation plus vinyl floor covering. The warehouse has 80-100 rolls in stock at all times. Carpet Center buys direct from the mills and passes along these savings to the customer. Prices range from $8.95 to $125 per sq. yd., pad and installation included.

A chance to see some fine cars

Here's a reminder to all you antique car lovers out there. The Big Spring Early Car Club will be hosting the 16th Annual West Texas Rod Run Sept. 5-6 at the Old Settlers Pavilion at Comanche Trail Park.

According to organizer Walter Brumley, it's the oldest rod run in Texas and cars from all over the state will be at the event — which features fun and games, and gives the public a chance to see some antique cars.

The activities get started at 2 p.m. Saturday. A 'Show and Shine' presentation will be from 10 a.m. until noon Sunday.

Last weekend the Big Spring Country Club Ladies Golf Association and Men's Golf Association joined forces in a scramble tournament to raise money for country club pool repairs.

First place in the men's division went to the team of J.D. Nelson, Scott Nelson, Tom South and Harrol Jones.

There was a second place tie between the team of Bob Parks, Richard Palmer, Baxter Moore and Woody Fletcher, and the team of Johnny Freeman, Morris Rhodes, James Welch and Mike Scarbrough.

Winning the women's division was the team of Mary Ruth Robertson, Jane Jones, Carolyn Freeman and Sandra Rhodes.

Second place went to Glenodene Williams, P.D. Heith, Eileen Clanton and Byron Hicks.

The Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association had its nine-hole scramble play Monday and two teams tied for first place.

Annie Ward and Ramona Harris won out over Tammy Newsom and Mary Malone by a playoff on the scorecards.

In Thursday couples nine-hole blind partner play, two teams tied for first place, shooting three-under-par 41. Nile Cole and Jane Farmer tied with Rocky Hale and Ina Stewart.

The Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association hosted a playday for the Big Spring Country Club Women's Golf Association Aug. 15.

Winning first place in the 18-hole scramble play was the team of Mary Ruth Robertson, Annie Ward, Patti Woodall and Judy Roberts. They shot a four-under-par 71. Finishing second, one stroke back, was the threesome of Hazel Stringer, Betty Ray Coffee and Mary Malone.

The 1987 Run and Bike For Your Health, co-sponsored by Midland Memorial Hospital and Permian Basin Road Runners Club, Inc., will take place Sept. 19 at Green Tree Country Club in Midland.

The event features a children's one-mile fun-run starting at 7:30 a.m. and a biathlon, consisting of a 5K run and a 20K bike ride, starting at 8 a.m.

Individual and team entries received before Sept. 11 will be seeded for bike placement.

Awards will be given to the top three finishers in each division and to the overall male and female individuals.

Registration fee is $8 per participant prior to Sept. 11, and $12 after that.

For more information, call 685-1541.

The Odessa Jaycees will host a 5K run for the Muscular Dystrophy Association this Saturday at Mission Country Club Clubhouse.

Entry fee is $10 per entrant. All entrants will receive T-shirts. A pair of running shoes will be awarded to the top male and female finishers.

For more information, call Randy Pack at 337-7311 or 332-4193.

The White's Lincoln Mighty Merkur Tennis Tournament will be Sept. 12-13 at the University Gardens Racquet Club in Odessa.

Entry fee is $7 per person per event and events range from ages 12 to over 35.

For more information, call Rosie Garza at 367-7381.

The Big Spring Sports Booster Club will meet Monday at 7 p.m. at the Big Spring High School cafeteria.

The Big Spring High School community pep rally will be Sept. 1 at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Sunday is the deadline for fans to register for a chartered bus to the Big Spring-El Paso Riverside game Sept. 4. Cost is $35 per person. The bus will leave Big Spring at 1 p.m. Friday and return after the game.

For more information, call Judy Everett at 263-7824.

The First Annual Signal Mountain Men's Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament will be Aug. 28-29 at Comanche Trail Park.

Entry fee is $100 per team and the first five teams will receive team trophies and the first four teams will receive individual trophies.

There will be awards for all-tourney and MVP.

For more information call Dick or Dennis at 267-1649 (before 6 p.m.) or Bobby Barber at 267-6872 (after 6 p.m.).

The Rosa's Cantina First Annual 3-2 Softball Tournament will be this weekend in Coahoma.

Entry fee is $80, and there will be an MVP award for each game. The top five teams will get team trophies, and players on the first three teams will also get individual trophies. There will be an all-tournament team.

For more information, call Tiny at 267-4978; or Rocky at 267-7773.

There will be a men's slow-pitch softball tournament Aug. 28-29 at Hertenberger Field in Colorado City. Entry

'The Streak' ends at 39

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Think Paul Molitor had an emotional evening? How about Rick Manning.

Here was Manning, a reserve outfielder in his 14th major-league season, celebrating a rare game-winning hit, and yet the fans were booing.

They had wanted Manning to fail, because in doing so Molitor, the next batter, would have one more chance to succeed.

But Manning didn't fail, singling to center to drive in the only run as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Cleveland Indians 1-0 Wednesday night. More importantly, at least to the fans, was that Molitor's 39-game hitting streak had ended.

And so they booed. "The irony is the distortion of priorities. You have the home team win in extra innings and the crowd goes silent," said Molitor, who was hitless in four at-bats against Cleveland rookie John Farrell.

"It was meant to be 39 and not 40," Molitor said.

"I went up to Rick and he said, 'Sorry,'" Molitor recalled. "And I said 'Sorry? You won the game.'"

Molitor struck out in the first inning, grounded into a double play in the third and grounded out in the sixth.

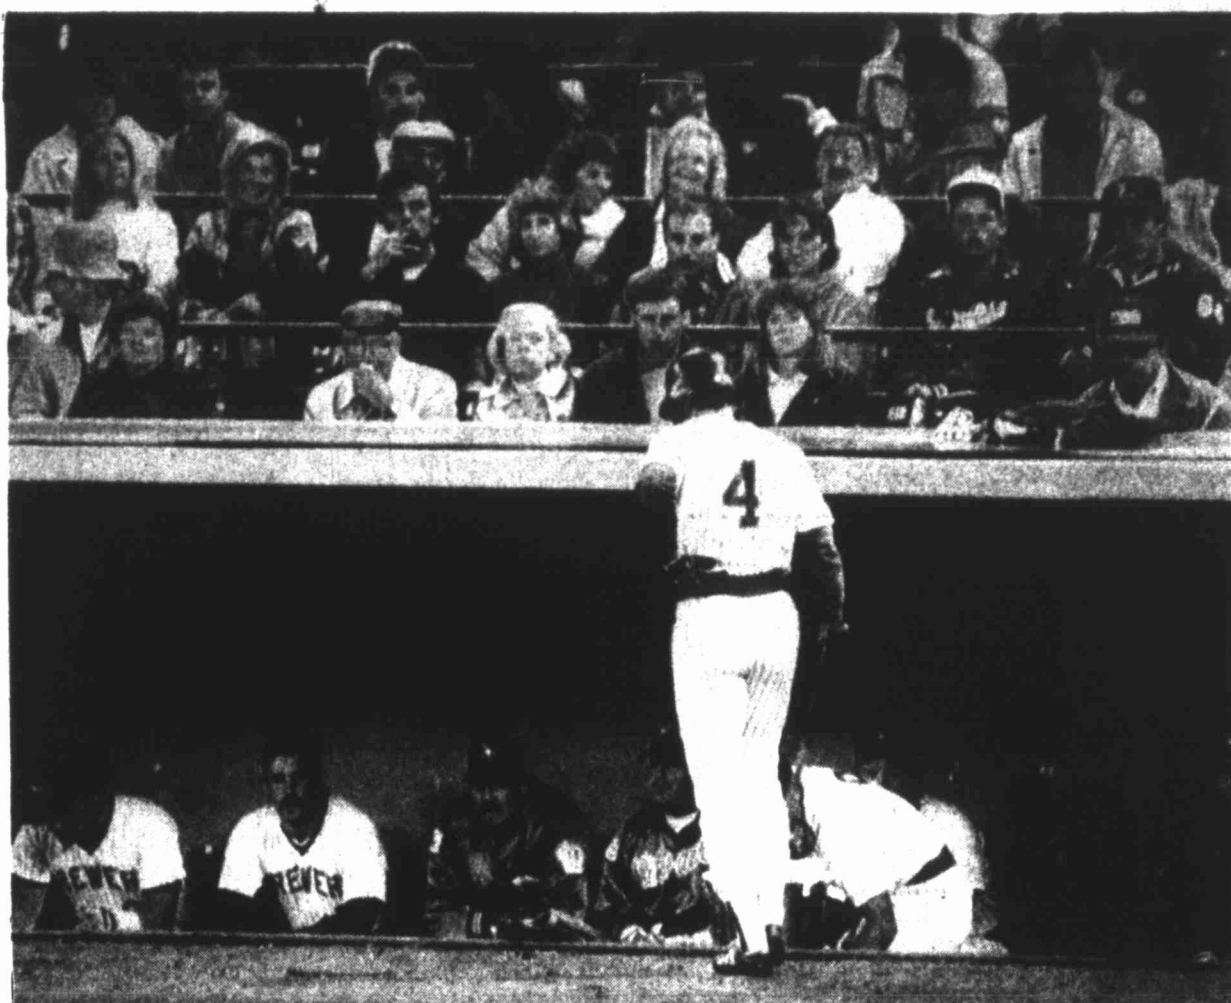

In the eighth, in what turned out to be his final plate appearance, Molitor came up with a runner at second and two out. The situation called for Molitor, a .365 hitter, to be walked intentionally to set up a force play.

But Cleveland Manager Doc Edwards and Farrell decided to give Molitor one more chance.

"After 39 games, we felt the percentages were against him," Edwards said. "If it was ever going to stop, this would be the night."

"I looked at John and said, 'What do you want to do?' He said, 'Let's go for it.'"

Molitor tapped a weak grounder to third and the throw from Brook

Milwaukee's Paul Molitor walks back to the dugout after striking out against Cleveland's John Farrell. Molitor went zero-for-four and ended his 39-game hitting streak.

Jacoby beat him. But Molitor was awarded first base when Pat Tabler juggled the throw for an error.

"He had four chances," Manning said. "I understand the feeling of the fans. They wanted him to keep going but no more than I did."

There was no way to get that message across to the 11,246 fans who braved rainy and cool weather to see if Molitor could continue his march toward Joe DiMaggio's record 56-game hitting streak.

"Paulie was saying, 'Come on, guys, let's get a run and end this thing. Come on, Arch, get a hit,'" Manning said. "I was going to say, 'I'll try to get infield hit.'"

Manning took the first pitch from Indians reliever Doug Jones for a strike. The crowd cheered.

"I felt a little weird after the first pitch and I heard everyone cheer when it was a strike," Manning said. "I had to step out and take a breath and say, 'I don't know what's going on here. I think they want me to strike out.'"

"For a minute, I thought I got traded back to Cleveland in the middle of an at-bat."

He lined the next pitch to center. "Normally I would hit into a double play in that situation," he said. "I don't know what happened."

It took Molitor, the man of the month and the moment, to get

These guys will be making the headlines

DALLAS (AP) — Michael McKnight, a small-town running back who rushed for 2,588 yards and scored 40 touchdowns last season, returns for his final high school football season this fall.

But the 5-11, 190-pound halfback from Chillicothe, near the Red River in North Texas, will have plenty of competition for headlines this football season, even though he will be shooting for four touchdowns a game in his quest to break the national high school scoring mark.

Among other returning Texas schoolboy football stars are McAllen running back Mark Morgan, Class 5A's top rusher last year as a junior, with 1,702 yards; La Marque quarterback Michael Little, who passed for 2,793 yards in 1986; Mission quarterback Lupe Rodriguez, who will again have available two of the receivers who helped him rack up 2,738 yards in passing last season; Caddo Mills defensive back Glen Swafford, who intercepted 16 passes in 1986; and Wheeler linebacker Richard Smith, who had 215 tackles last season.

Chillicothe, a Class 1A school, has a new coach and a Wishbone offense for the first time, but the focus is definitely on McKnight, who scored seven touchdowns in one game last season.

"He looks great. He's worked hard all summer. He was in the weight room every day," said Coach Mack Lowe, who was at Ropesville, near Lubbock, last season.

"His breaking national records is not our goal for the season, but if he can get it, I'd be tickled to death," Lowe said.

McKnight, who says he hopes to go on to college and pro football, said he's looking forward to this season, since almost his entire offensive line is back from last year, "and they should be awesome."

Little led La Marque to the Class 5A state championship game last year before the Cougars bowed to Plano.

"I'm planning on being a lot better. I read (defenses) a lot better, and my arm's a lot stronger than it was. We did good last year, but I'd like to go for even more yardage than last year, and I'd like for us to score more points," Little said.

La Marque Coach Larry Nowotny, who took over after former Coach Hugh Massey was killed in a car accident two days before La Marque's quarterfinals victory, said Little "can throw long and he can throw short. Our team has a lot of confidence in Mike. He is just a natural leader."

At Mission, Coach Rusty Dowling not only has quarterback Lupe Rodriguez back for his senior season, but has two of the state's top receivers back in senior Frank Hernandez, who caught 51 passes for 685 yards last season, and junior Nati Valdez, who caught 68 passes for 992 yards. Both Hernandez and Valdez missed three games.

"Out of 10 plays, we probably are going to run the ball twice. We are going to throw the ball a bunch. That's what we do," Dowling said.

"Lupe has good quick feet, a very good knowledge of our passing game, and he is good at handling blitzes and reading coverages. Plus, the fact that we do have some very good receivers makes him look good on occasions."

At Cameron Yoe, a Class 3A school, is another quarterback considered one of the top in the state. Paul Johnson threw for 1,600 yards last year in leading his team to the quarterfinals.

"He has a really quick release and a strong arm, but his strong suit is his judgment," Cameron Coach Toby York said. "Going into the third round of the playoffs last year, he threw for 17 touchdowns with only one interception, so we thought that was a real important statistic."

Yoe will return a team with 19 seniors. The entire backfield, including Mike Bradley, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards last year, is back in 1987.

At Wheeler, a Class 1A school in the Texas Panhandle, Coach Preston Smith said his 4-3 pro-type defense is designed for his son, 6-0, 195-pound Richard, to make a lot of tackles. "He should be making a lot of tackles again for us this year," Smith said. "He has a nose for the football." He and his brother, Bubba, are both two-way starters for the team.

Pilot Point, a Class 2A power in North Texas, has two top performers returning in running back Andrew Mack, who recovered from an early season injury to rush for 1,500 yards last year, and linebacker Rocky Jones, who missed four games with a separated shoulder but still led the team in tackles.

Swafford, of Class 2A Caddo Mills, had 16 interceptions last year, four more than any other returning Texas schoolboy, despite splitting his time as a receiver on offense. He'll be the team's quarterback this year, as well as a defensive back.

A hurdler and high jumper during track season, Swafford's leaping ability "and his knack for always being where the ball is" helped make the Caddo Mills pass defense almost impenetrable last year, said Coach Randy Hittman.

Bremond, another Class 1A powerhouse, has two returning running backs who between them accounted for more than 4,000 yards on the ground last season. Tim Scott rushed for 2,574 yards and Charles Bailey for 1,650.

One big truck

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Texas is known for being big, and for priding itself in having the biggest and best of everything.

Big Spring's Bruce Meyer says he's got the biggest "monster truck" in this biggest of the 48 connected states.

He's probably right. His truck, "Texas Tumbleweed," is huge.

The roof of the shiny red truck stands 14 feet tall, and it's 13.6 feet from the outside of one monster wheel to another.

The tires themselves are 80 inches tall — that's six feet, eight inches, about "Magic" Johnson's

Registration continuing for Little Football League

Registration is still going on for the Little Football League. The league, for boys in third to sixth grades, is having sign-ups at Big Spring Athletics from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Registration fee is $10.50 per player, and the player must be accompanied by a parent.

Players must also have birth certificates.

This Saturday at 4 p.m., a clean-up day and players draft will be at the football field across from the American League baseball field.

Coleman does Astros in

By The Associated Press
Watch out Andre Dawson, Eric Davis and Dale Murphy. Vince Coleman is flexing his muscles.

Coleman homered, singled, doubled, and scored the winning run on Tommy Herr's grounder in the seventh inning, lifting St. Louis over Houston 5-4 Wednesday for the Cardinals' fifth victory in six games.

Coleman's second major-league homer in 1,914 plate appearances gave St. Louis a 4-2 lead through five innings. Billy Hatcher's two-out, two-run double off reliever Ken Dayley, 8-4, in the top of the seventh had tied the score 4-4.

Elsewhere in the National League, New York edged Los Angeles 3-2, San Francisco blanked Philadelphia 2-0, Pittsburgh tripped Cincinnati 6-5 and Montreal beat San Diego 6-5 in 12 innings. The doubleheader between Atlanta and Chicago at Wrigley Field was rained out.

Coleman's only previous home run was inside the park off Len Barker of Atlanta on May 21, 1985, his rookie year.

"It's a lot of fun to do it," he said of his opposite-field homer over the gate in right field, 386 feet away. "I had confidence in my ability that I'd hit at least one. I feel awfully proud."

As it turned out, however, it was Coleman's speed rather than his power that won the game for St. Louis. He scored three runs and stole his 83rd and 84th bases.

Glenn Davis hit a two-run homer for Houston, his 21st, in the first. Jack Clark matched that with his 34th for St. Louis, and the Cardinals went ahead 3-2 on Ozzie Smith's sacrifice fly after Coleman singled and stole bases on consecutive pitches.

St. Louis Cardinals Vince Coleman crosses the plate to score after hitting a solo homer during the seventh inning of the St. Louis-Houston game Wednesday afternoon in St. Louis.

Giants 2, Phillies 0
Bob Brenly's two-run homer with two outs in the ninth inning lifted

San Francisco over host Philadelphia, the Giants' fourth straight victory.

The win gave the Giants a 2½-game lead over Houston in the NL West.
Phillies starter Shane Rawley, who had held the Giants to two hits and struck out a career-high 10, gave up a bad-hop single to Chris Speier with two outs in the ninth. Brenly then hit a 1-9 pitch over the left-field fence for his 15th home run. "I hit an off-speed pitch that he got up, Brenly said of his game-winning homer."

Don Robinson, 9-6, pitched 1 1/3 innings to earn the victory. Robinson took over for starter Dave Dravecky with two outs in the eighth. Dravecky allowed five hits.

Mets 3, Dodgers 2
Keith Hernandez hit a home run in the sixth inning to extend his hitting streak to a career-high 16 games and Ron Darling pitched six-hit ball for 7 1/3 innings as New York beat Los Angeles at Shea Stadium.

Pirates 6, Reds 5
Al Pedrique's run-scoring bloop single with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning extended Cincinnati's season-high losing streak to six games.

The defeat dropped the third-place Reds five games behind San Francisco in the NL West.

Expos 6, Padres 5
Tim Wallach hit an infield single with the bases loaded and two outs in the 12th inning as Montreal beat host San Diego.

Herm Winningham doubled with one out off Lance McCullers, 7-7, and after Tim Lincecum was intentionally walked, Mitch Webster singled to fill the bases.

McCullers struck out Tom Foley but Wallach hit a grounder off shortstop Garry Templeton's glove to give the Expos a 9-1 record in extra innings.

Pitcher pleases dad with no-hit victory

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Many proud fathers sit in the stands at the Little League World Series, but Irvine, Calif., Manager Bob Garcia said he's got them all beat.

Bob Garcia was in the dugout on Wednesday as his son, Aron, pitched a no-hitter and had four hits, including a two-run homer, to lead Irvine past Dover, N.H., 13-0 in the World Series quarterfinals.

"I'm the proudest guy that ever lived," said Garcia, whose team is the U.S. West's representative in the eight-team tournament.

In the other quarterfinal game Wednesday, Wilkie Pichardo hit a two-run homer and drove in three runs and Juan Delos Santos added a solo homer to lead Moca, Dominican Republic, to a 6-4 win over Glace Bay, Nova Scotia.

Irvine advanced to a game today against Chesterfield, Ind., the U.S. Central champion, while the Dominican Republic, the Latin American champion, plays Hua Lian, Taiwan, the Far East representative.

"I'm real happy," the younger Garcia said.

He said he at first hoped to throw a no-hitter. "Then I kind of realized that these are the best teams in the world."

Garcia, who swaps positions with the shortstop when he's not pitching, said he used a fastball, curve and drop against Dover.

Offensively, Garcia had four hits in five at-bats with three runs batted in. Ryan Jones had a two-run homer and three RBI for Irvine.

Loc Tran added two walks, a single and three runs to Irvine's 13-hit attack.

Garcia and Jones homered in the first inning to put Irvine in front 4-0 and Irvine added three more runs in the second off Dover starter Brian Stewart, who went the distance.

Irvine scored single runs in the third and fourth, and four runs in the fifth.

In the Canada-Latin America game, Glace Bay led 4-3 in the fourth inning when Pichardo hit a two-run homer and Delos Santos followed with another homer.

Glace Bay Manager Henry Boutilier said pitcher Kyle Currie was hurt by a lack of control in the decisive inning.

Moca Manager Rolando Paulino said his team's offensive blitz was uncharacteristic.

Canada loaded the bases with none out in the fifth, but Richard Burdick got out of the jam with two bouncers back to the mound, the first starting a double play from home to first.

Canada took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first when Jody Routledge and Earl Corbett led off with singles. After a walk loaded the bases, two runs scored when Delos Santos dropped a fly ball to center.

The Dominican Republic answered with three runs in the bottom of the second.

Carlos Paulino squibbed a bases-loaded single to right to score Andres Acevedo, who had doubled. A walk to Pichardo and a wild pitch brought home the other two runs.

In the third inning, Dana Estwick's bases-loaded double gave Canada a 4-3 lead.

Tigers stay atop AL East

By The Associated Press
Detroit Pinch-hitter Matt Nokes lined a two-run single with two outs in the ninth inning that put Detroit ahead and Chet Lemon followed with a three-run homer as the Tigers defeated Minnesota 10-8.

The Tigers lead the AL by one-half game over idle Toronto. The Jeff Reardon, 6-7, relieved to start the ninth for Minnesota with a 6-5 lead. Darrell Evans drew a leadoff walk, Bill Madlock walked with one out and Alan Trammell's two-out single loaded the bases. Nokes then singled on an 0-2 pitch and Lemon followed with his second home run of the game.

Dan Petry, 8-6, got the victory and Willie Hernandez got the final out for his seventh save. The Twins scored twice in the ninth against Mike Henneman on Kent Hrbek's RBI double and Trammell's error at shortstop.

Greg Gagne homered and drove in three runs for Minnesota and Tom Brunansky also homered for the Twins. Jim Morrison hit a three-run homer for the Tigers.

White Sox 5, Red Sox 3
Carlton Fisk again socked Boston, hitting two home runs as Chicago won at Fenway Park.

Fisk, who left the Red Sox in 1981 and signed with the White Sox as a free agent, has hit 24 homers and driven in 54 runs in 70 games against Boston. He hit a solo homer in the second inning off Roger Clemens and a two-run shot in the fourth, giving him 17 home runs this season and 298 in his career.

Bill Long, 8-6, gave up three runs on seven hits in 7 1/3 innings and Scott Nielsen got his second save. Clemens, 13-8, had won five straight decisions. He allowed five runs on five hits in seven innings.

Royals 3, Rangers 0
Danny Jackson pitched a four-hitter and struck out seven as Kansas City beat visiting Texas.

Jackson, 7-15, pitched his ninth complete game and helped the Royals stop a three-game losing streak. He walked the bases loaded in the fifth but retired Bob Brower on a grounder to end the inning.

Charlie Hough, 14-9, shut out Kansas City on three hits until giving up four straight hits with two outs in the seventh. Ross Jones and Willie Wilson singled, Kevin Seitzer hit a two-run double and George Brett followed with an RBI single.

Twins lost for the eighth time in nine games and had their AL West lead cut to one-half game over Oakland.

Watch out when golfing on this course

AUSTIN (AP) — People are losing more than golf balls, their temper and golf matches at Morris Williams Golf Course, prompting police to caution golfers to be alert for suspicious persons on the course.

The warning came Wednesday following three recent armed robberies on the course.

Police said a robber, believed to be the same man, held up a total of six golfers at the eighth and 13th holes with a small-caliber revolver.

No one was injured in the robberies at the course where four golfers were robbed in July 1985 and two were attacked in November 1984. One of the two, a Korean graduate student at the University of Texas, died four days after the attack.

Parks and Recreation Director Charles Jordan, voicing concern about the number of robberies, said a sign is posted at the clubhouse urging players to notify authorities if they see any suspicious person.

"These are not common occurrences," Jordan said.

In the most recent robbery, a man came out of a wooded area beside the eighth hole on Friday and robbed two men.

Another robbery was reported at the 13th hole last Thursday when two men were robbed.

The other robbery was Aug. 17 at the 13th hole.

In all cases, the man told the golfers to throw down their wallets and go back to their game.

Police described the robber as black, thin, in his late 20s or early 30s, possibly wearing a thin mustache and a short Afro haircut.

Jordan said heavy security at the golf course would be ineffective and expensive.

"We can't afford to do it," he said of security patrols. "How many officers would it take? How do you patrol acres?"

The golf course is fenced and signs warn against trespassing, "but in any golf course in the country you can get in," Jordan said.

Streak

Manning off the hook as the bad guy.

"I was pulling for Archie (Manning) to get a hit to win the game," he said. "You concentrate on winning games, despite personally what you might have at stake."

Molitor had known the night would finally come when there would be no hits left in his bat. But after 39 games and six weeks, it was difficult to see it end.

Ty Cobb (40 games), George Sisler (41), Pete Rose (44) and DiMaggio are the only players in this century with longer hitting streaks.

Prior to 1900, Baltimore's Willie Keeler hit in 44 straight in 1897 and Chicago's Bill Dahlen hit in 42 straight in 1894. At that time, several rules were different, including foul balls not counting as strikes.

"In a lot of ways it's a disappointment," Molitor admitted. "I've always felt a lot of confidence day in and day out and even tonight."

"On the other hand there is a sense of relief that we can now get back to a sense of normalcy and get the focus back on the club."

"The fact that it's in the top five or six hitting streaks in the history of the game makes you realize you are fortunate to have this. I enjoyed it and I enjoyed having the chance to step up front and center for awhile and at the same time contribute to our ball club."

"Someday when I'm through playing I will look back at it and it will be one of my greatest personal satisfactions."

During the 39-game streak that began July 16, Molitor had 68 hits in 164 at-bats with 43 runs scored and 33 RBI, all as a designated hitter.

AT&T ANNOUNCES UPCOMING PRICE CHANGES FOR SOME TEXAS INTRASTATE SERVICES

AT&T announces the following price changes for some of its Texas intrastate services. These changes, which more closely reflect the actual costs incurred by AT&T in providing these services, will become effective on October 1, 1987.

• SDN (Software Defined Network) Schedule B prices will be reduced an overall 7.1%. Schedule C prices will be reduced 4.4% for the initial 30-second rate period of each call.

• WATS 80 service prices for both the initial period 80-hour usage and additional period usage will increase 5%.

• The monthly prices for AT&T's Private Line Service will increase up to $25 per channel termination for Analog services and 10% for Digital Data Services.

• A $25 monthly surcharge will also apply to any private lines which may be used to access the local exchange network, unless certified as exempt by the customer. The $25 surcharge, which was previously authorized by the Public Utility Commission of Texas, is a flow through of charges assessed by the Local Exchange Companies to AT&T for those Private Line services.

The combined effect of these price changes is expected to produce approximately $4.99 million annual revenue, which is approximately .5% of AT&T's annual revenues for all Texas intrastate services.

If you have questions regarding the changes for Private Line service, please call AT&T toll-free at 1-800-345-5092. If you have questions regarding the WATS or SDN price changes, please call our business consultants toll-free at 1-800-222-0400. AT&T's tariffs reflecting these changes will be filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on August 31, 1987, with an effective date of October 1, 1987.

Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may also contact the Public Utility Commission of Texas in writing, at 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or by calling the Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223, or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 for teletypewriter for the deal.

'Out of Control'

Thomas Henderson tells all in autobiography

DALLAS (AP) — Former linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson says in his autobiography, "Out of Control," that he used drugs while playing for four different NFL teams and secretly sniffed a cocaine-laced inhaler during Super Bowl XIII as a Dallas Cowboy.

Henderson, a former first-round draft pick of the Cowboys, traced his drug use from his days with Dallas to San Francisco, Houston and Miami to a stint in a California prison. "I began the book four years ago. It started out as an angry project. I wanted to expose the NFL, the Dallas Cowboys, and all the superstars who did drugs. I didn't get a deal on that type of program," Henderson said Wednesday in a telephone interview from Los Angeles.

"Now I've changed my life. This is now the real story about Thomas Henderson. My book is brutal to Thomas Henderson. It's not a self-serving yearbook like some you read. I hope it does a service to the public."

Henderson, who gets a check for $700 a month from the NFL for a neck injury, said he hopes what happened to him helps someone else. "I know there are skeptics out there. But I've been chemically free for three years and 10 months. I don't even drink a beer when I play golf."

Although he visited recently with Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, Henderson said none of his former teammates will talk to him about his book.

"They didn't call me in prison so why should they call me now?" said Henderson, who served time after pleading no contest to sexual battery and bribery in California. He was released last Oct. 15 and now gives lectures on the evils of drug abuse.

In his book with co-author Peter Knobler, Henderson says that at the Super Bowl game against Pittsburgh in 1978, he put 1½ grams of cocaine powder into an inhaler and mixed it with water.

"My baggage to the bowl was my coke," he said. "I was going to get banged around out there and my nose was going to hurt ... So besides having an addiction and a real habit, I needed cocaine as medication. I had to anesthetize my face."

Sometime during the second half, Henderson said, "I pulled out my Vicks Inhaler. The Orange Bowl holds about 80,000 screaming fans, plus there were about 200 million watching worldwide on TV, and there I was on the sideline taking a couple of major snorts in front of them all. We lost that day. I lost that day. I was out of control."

He said he was wired on cocaine his last day as a Dallas Cowboy after "the terrible towel" incident in 1979.

In a losing cause to the Washington Redskins, Henderson mugged for the national television cameras on the sidelines, waving the towel in front of the lens. Linebacker Coach Jerry Tubbs caught Henderson's act and told Coach Tom Landry.

On the flight back to Dallas, Henderson said he drank gin "and snorted a noseful of coke in the lavatory." Then he shouted he wanted to be traded and cursed some coaches.

The next day Landry ordered Henderson to his office.

Preparing for his meeting with Landry, Henderson said, "I laid out a line of coke about a half a gram long and snorted it all."

He said Landry, wiping away tears, told him, "You can play football for somebody else. I just can't handle you anymore. I'm putting you on waivers."

Henderson announced his retirement the next day at a news conference.

"Cocaine was my agent, cocaine was my attorney, cocaine made most of my major decisions," Henderson wrote in his book. "It was a big mistake. By retiring, I gave myself to the Cowboys forever; they would have to be compensated before another team could sign me."

Henderson said Landry "had all the qualities of a great coach, but if Tom Landry would ever once hug a player, or walk on the field when a man is down hurt, that player would probably jump up and run off the field."

"It'd be like Jesus walking through and healing the sick. Landry acted like he didn't care but I think deep down he really did; he just worked at being hard."

Landry said he had just skimmed the book but found the parts he read "very vulgar."

He said he talked with Henderson recently when the former linebacker visited the Cowboys training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif. "I hope he's cleaning up his act. He seemed to while he was out here," Landry said.

He said he knew something was wrong with Henderson during his career with the Cowboys, but "there was no way to prove he was into cocaine. I mentioned he needed to look out for it several times. It was hard to convince him. Drugs take a powerful hold on your life."

Henderson detailed how he played under the influence of cocaine for Bill Walsh at San Francisco, Bum Phillips at Houston and Don Shula at Miami.

Along the way he went to a drug rehabilitation center, suffered a neck injury and got into freebasing.

Playing for the Oilers, Henderson said in his book: "I was completely gone. ... I was lucky I didn't kill somebody. I was lucky I didn't kill myself."

Henderson said he became so paranoid that on a flight back from a game he almost stabbed lineman Mike Stensrud, who was trying to apologize to him for a long-running feud.

Said Landry: "It's a sad story. I just hope he's OK now. I hope he's cured."

Truck

height — and weigh 1,200 pounds apiece.

Meyer got all his parts, except the axles, in Big Spring. Building the truck was simply a matter of money and know-how.

"I've been a mechanic and built stuff ever since I was 14, when I built my first dune buggy."

"I've always wanted to work on a monster truck and I just started rounding up parts, and before I knew it I had one," the 23-year-old mechanic said.

Meyer owns and works at West Texas Off Road and Specialty Shop, but hopes that he can one day devote all his time to showing off

"Texas Tumbleweed." "I put this business in so I could build the truck, and I hope the truck will take over as full-time. I want to tour out of state and compete with 'Big Foot,'" Meyer says, laughing.

He adds, however, that his vehicle wasn't really built for competition, but for show.

He hopes to go to car shows, car lots, and any place that needs an attraction of that sort.

"It's a big crowd draw," says his wife Cindy. "It'll bring people to a car lot when otherwise they might not come."

Meyer has an 18-wheel truck to get him to and from shows. That's just another expense. The tires, for instance, cost $1,800 each; the wheels were $1,200 apiece.

All told, Meyer estimates he spent over $100,000 on the truck and the 18-wheeler.

For motoring enthusiasts, the truck was built with an 8-V-71 Detroit engine — "the same engine running in a Greyhound bus" — and the truck body is from a '70 Chevy.

"Texas Tumbleweed" can do more than just look good. Meyer has several pictures of junk cars that have been victimized by the 17,000 pound truck, with him in the driver's seat.

"The tricky part's getting in and out of it," he says with a chuckle. "You just drive over the cars. It's so big it kind of does it's own thing."

When he smashes cars he drives over them, backs over them and makes sure they'll never again go anywhere by rolling over them one more time. He also does mud bogs.

"Texas Tumbleweed" will be on display at the MDA Telethon Sept. 6-7 at Big Spring Mall, though there won't be any cars crushed.

Meyer says he welcomes people to see the big truck at his shop on 1105 E. Second St. — where it is always on display.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 28, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Now is the time to add some new dimensions to your vocational interests and activities. Relying on your intuition would be highly beneficial, as it's not likely to be wrong.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show a partner that you are willing to make changes on an agreement, but be subtle, and take a subordinate position.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) There are many modern innovations which can eliminate some old-fashioned routines you've been distressed with.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be more enthusiastic about entertainments which your mate enjoys. Drive very carefully today and tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) This is a good day to make any needed improvements to your property, or at least plan to have them done.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A bit of praise for one associate and a friendly attitude toward another can bring fine results for the days ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You like neatness and order around you, but try to loosen up and add some charm and creativity to your surroundings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) If you are not invited elsewhere, give a little party yourself and repay some social obligations this way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The information you've been seeking can be gathered easily today. Show your mate how devoted you are. Drive carefully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you are very cooperative and accommodating, you can achieve your goals easily. Keep conversations private.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A prominent person who in the past has been unapproachable can do you a favor. Show gratitude for this.

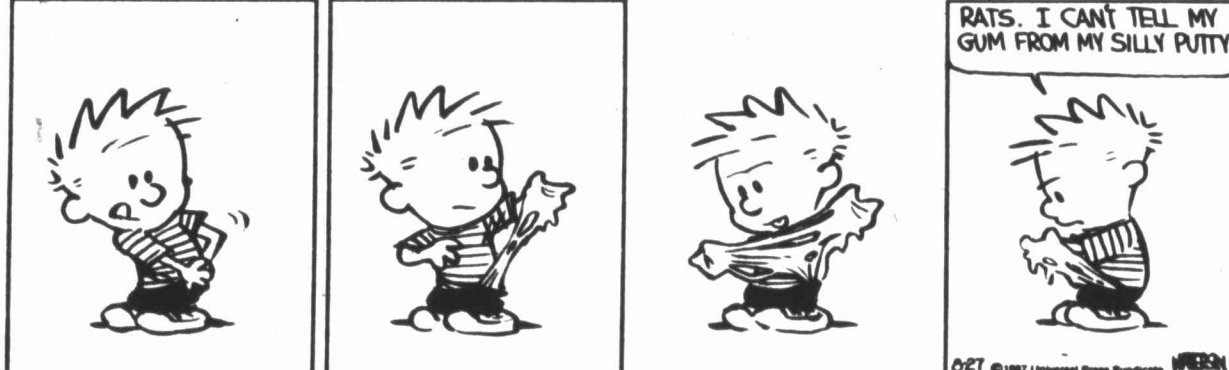

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more willing to listen to ideas from associates, and you can pick up some really fine ideas which will help you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Rely on your intuition when dealing with difficult persons. You can be highly romantic with your loved one this evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be constantly looking to the future while studying current conditions, and, as a result, will have great success due to readiness for any eventuality. Teach your progeny to reach decisions more quickly and not to take too long deliberating.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
