Ask Us

Q—Does any tax money go into the Hermleigh Water Works?

A—No, according to Precinct 4 Commissioner Jerry Gannaway. The county is responsible only for the administration and the system is self-supporting from the sale of water.

In Brief

Floods update

by The Associated Press

Children fished from the back porch in a south St. Louis neighborhood today after floodwaters broke through a levee, swamping homes and buckling streets. In Des Moines, a quarter-million people had to make do without tap water for an 11th day.

Residents hoping to start turning on faucets and flushing toilets in parts of Des Moines this morning got bad news, and the blame, from Mayor John Dorrian, who said people were failing to heed warnings to "leave their taps off."

Cogdell board approves 1994 budget

Includes hike in room rates, $20,000 increase in tax subsidy

Capital equipment needs and increased indigent care and bad debt will necessitate a $20,000 increase in tax subsidy for Cogdell Memorial Hospital in 1994, according to Tim Lancaster, CEO.

The budget was unanimously approved during a meeting of the hospital's board of managers this morning.

The budget includes a $10 hike in acute care room rates and critical care rates and an eight percent increase in ancillary rates. These become effective Jan. 1, 1994.

Lancaster said the increase in tax subsidy — from $375,000 to $395,000 — can be justified by on-going capital equipment needs, anticipated growth from new physicians, continued 24-hour physician coverage in the emergency room and a slight jump in indigent care and bad debt.

Lancaster projected figures which assume a net income loss of $60,868 for 1993 in contrast to a profit of $853,530 in 1992. The CEO was quick to note, however, that the hospital received $711,985 in disproportionate share monies from the government in 1992.

"At this time, it is still uncertain which hospitals will be receiving those (disproportionate share) funds for 1994," said Lancaster. "If we qualify, we expect the amount to be substantially reduced over the 1992 funds."

Lancaster said 1993 started out as a strong year financially, but the past two months have "really hurt us."

Cogdell had averaged a daily census of 13.3 for the year, but only 8.5 in June and 10.8 in July. Admissions were down from 85 in June of 1992 to 69 in June of 1993.

"We're still optimistic for the remaining months," the CEO said.

The projected net income for 1994 is $504,730. Lancaster said the 1994 budget assumes retention of existing physicians and an additional full-time orthopedic and general surgeon, favorable renewal of the health-care contract with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, and the increase in room and ancillary rates.

"I expect 1994 to be a pivotal year for us," said Lancaster. "This year should be the culmination of many years of hard work of building and maintaining a strong, primary care base of family practice physicians. By expanding the depth of services we provide with the addition of two full-time surgeons, we should be in strong position for fulfilling the potential of this hospital."

Cogdell has signed contracts with a general surgeon, Dr. Mark Weaver, and his wife, Dr. Kathleen Weaver, an orthopedic surgeon. The are to join the hospital in mid-August and mid-September, respectively.

Lancaster said the hospital pledges to continue its growth in outpatient services, home health, cardiac rehabilitation, specialty clinics and long term care, as well

Trustees ready to study budget

Snyder public schools trustees open the first of two scheduled budget workshops at 8 o'clock this evening in the business administration board room.

Both tonight's meeting and Friday's noon meeting will include action items. This evening, the board will discuss carpet for halls and the office at Stanfield Elementary.

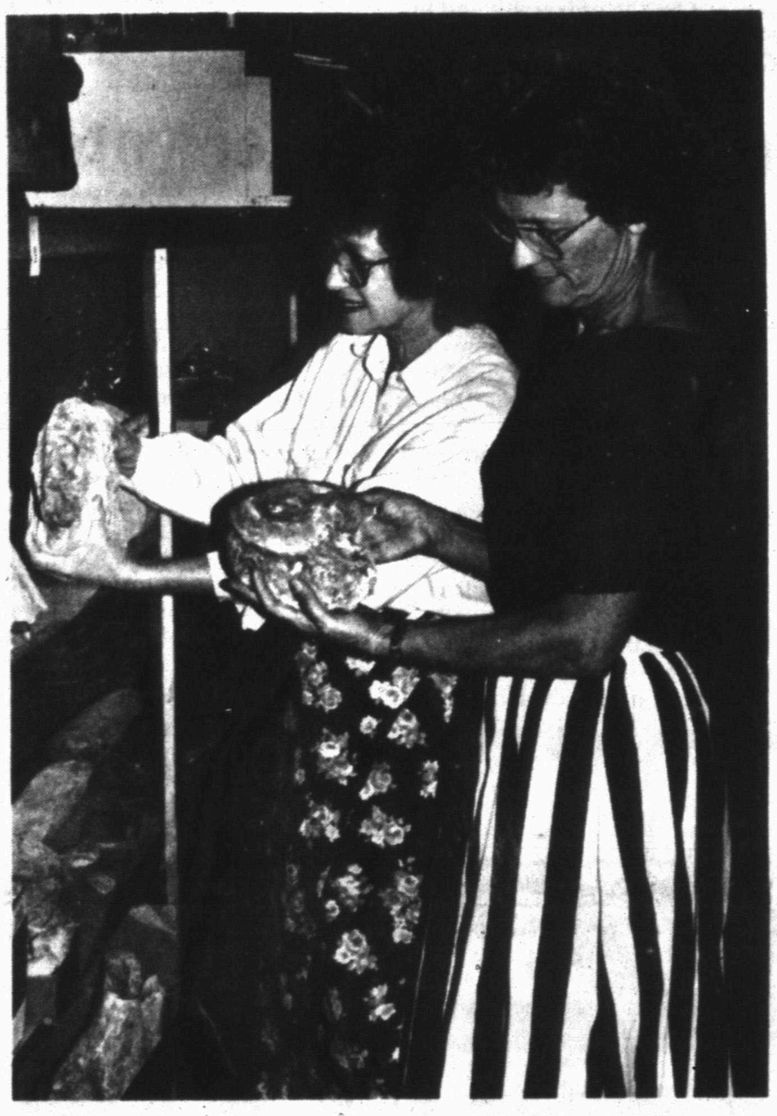

The central focus of the meetings, however, is the 1993-94 budget. According to Lee McNair, Snyder ISD business manager, the district is anticipating revenues of between $14.3 million and $14.4 million, based on last year's tax rate of $1.36 per $100 valuation.

Estimated expenditures for 1993-94 are between $14.5 million and $14.7 million, leaving Snyder ISD some $200,000 to $300,000 short of funds.

To meet those funds, the board will apparently have to cut the budget, raise the tax rate above $1.36, or a combination of the two. McNair said each 1-cent increase will raise $55,000 to $60,000, depending on the final appraisal of property values.

Friday's meeting will open with action items concerning personnel. The board will hear requests involving two resignations, two reassignments and the hiring of two other employees before going into a budget workshop.

Cogdell approves pact with Howard

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of managers approved an agreement with Howard College, the June financial report and a charity care policy during its July meeting this morning.

The board also set its next meeting for Aug. 26.

Board members unanimously approved renewal of the hospital's Associate Degree of Nursing contract with Howard College in Big Spring. Under the contract, Cogdell will provide clinical experience, classrooms and office space. Howard College will employ instructional staff.

Howard will receive funding from the state for students enrolled, and agrees to use 75 percent of those funds, plus student tuition, for support of the program. Cogdell will cover any additional costs.

Cogdell CEO Tim Lancaster and Director of Nursing Kevin Herm both praised the program. They said it has enabled Cogdell to recruit and retain well-trained nurses.

In other business, the board learned that Cogdell had experienced a loss in net income of $144,964 in June. On a year-to-date basis, the hospital has a net loss of $192,174.

The monthly operating report indicated an average daily census of 8.5, a long term census of 37.7, 69 admissions, 1,165 home health visits, 39 surgeries, 17 newborns and 631 emergency room visits.

The board also approved a charity care policy, a condition of participation in the Medicaid Disproportionate Share Program. The policy states that the hospital will provide care to persons unable to pay. Eligibility requirements are listed on the policy, which will be posted in the emergency room in English and Spanish.

The board was unable to take action on approval of a physician contract. Lancaster said he had anticipated receiving a contract from an internal medicine physician early this week, but had not received it. He said he expects to receive the contract soon.

The board also approved previous minutes and accounts payable, and reviewed a specialty clinic calendar for August.

Report says...

Hutchison's staff altered records

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison's state Treasury staff submitted altered phone records in May 1992 to the Travis County district attorney, a newspaper reported today.

The Houston Chronicle reported in a copyright story that Mrs. Hutchison's office last year gave the district attorney's office documents that hid "the existence of a state telephone line used for political purposes."

The altered document was included in a report released by Mrs. Hutchison's aides Tuesday after state Attorney General Dan Morales ruled that it was subject to the Texas Open Records Act.

The document, part of a state Treasury telephone log that has been blanked out, was submitted last year to the district attorney, who was looking into the alleged political use of a state computer by then-Treasury aide David Criss, the Chronicle reported.

Mrs. Hutchison's spokesman, David Beckwith, said today that records submitted to the district attorney were for those of Criss' telephone line. Those that were deleted were from other lines, he said,

"He (Criss) reimbursed the state $5 for political calls from his office line. We were documenting that reimbursement by sending along to the district attorney all records of his particular phone line so the district attorney could see every call that was made from his phone, and see the ones that were identified as political," Beckwith said.

"Included in some of those pages were records of other phones that had nothing to do with the probe," Beckwith said.

The Chronicle reported that former Treasury lawyer Alicia Fechtel wrote a report to the district attorney last year after Criss, the Treasury planning director, was caught writing fund-raising memos and letters on a state computer.

In her report, Ms. Fechtel included a statement from Mrs. Hutchison saying she had no knowledge of Criss' political activities in the Treasury offices and that his actions were contrary to department policy.

Ms. Fechtel included in the report eight pages of Treasury long-distance logs for Criss' telephone line.

After reports of Criss' use of a computer for non-state business surfaced, Criss apologized and reimbursed the state. He later resigned.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican who was elected to the Senate last month, has denied any knowledge that Criss had used the computer for non-state business.

Furr's sale said nearing completion

Kent Newsom, co-owner of Newsom Food Centers, announced today that the sale of the Snyder Furr's to the Newsom family enterprise is nearing completion.

The final papers should be signed in early August, with possession and name change occurring immediately thereafter, said Newsom.

The family is also in the process of buying the College Park Furr's store in Big Spring. Upon completion of the transactions, the Newsom chain will include three stores in Big Spring and one in Snyder.

Newsom said he wanted to emphasize that little change in personnel is expected, with the majority of the present Furr's employees being retained. He said customers will find the same price structure as they have been accustomed to under Furr's, but can expect increased savings and selection in fresh produce.

Don Newsom, senior owner of Newsom Food Centers, said, "we are very pleased with the pending purchase of both stores because of their location and customer base. This purchase won't affect either of our two existing stores in Big

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A small town is a place where there's no place to go where you shouldn't."

Humor is a rare commodity in a pediatric emergency room. There are, however, occasional moments that give welcome relief from the tensions of life and death situations.

A recent medical journal article was based on the notes and anecdotes compiled over a 20-year period at a children's hospital in Philadelphia. Dr. Douglas Nelson, author of the article, said his purpose was to present the lighter side of a profession often preoccupied with tragedy.

It all goes to show that laughter can still be the best medicine.

One less-than-serious crisis faced was a case involving a mother who brought her little girl to the emergency room because the child had kissed a dead chicken. The daughter would be okay, but the staff had some doubts about mom.

Another ER situation involved a child with a baby tooth in his right ear. It became accidently lodged before the Tooth Fairy arrived.

There were other complaints or questions presented to ER staffs by anxious parents:

--Needs circumcision because his tonsils and adenoids are so big.

--Can't find baby's birthmark.

--Baby is afraid of his hands.

--Sprayed hair spray all over the bathroom and threw up from the smell.

--Baby can't breathe. What time can I bring her in?

--Is is okay for a two-month-old to fly if he's constipated?

--I think he has convulsions. He vomits then runs around the house chasing the cat.

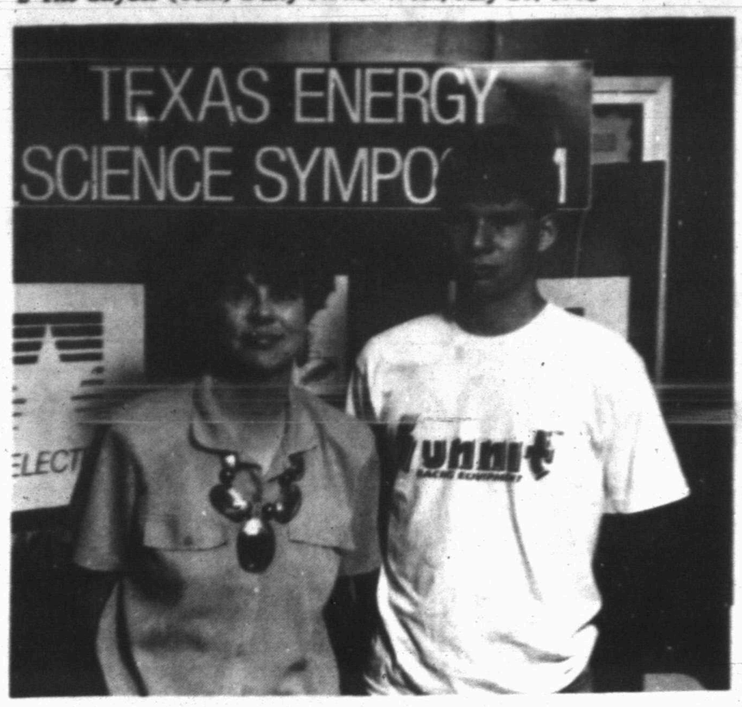

The article also included some inadvertent humor from nurses' notes.

--Fell out of infancy, as opposed to infant's seat.

--Romantic fever instead of rheumatic fever.

--Cereal palsy rather than cerebral palsy.

--Sick as hell anemia for sickle cell anemia.

House group cites examples of state 'wasteful' spending

AUSTIN (AP) — State agencies are defending consulting contracts called "questionable" by some House Republicans — including one that's meant to ensure state services meet the needs of ailing children.

"We feel it is reasonable," said Duane Thomas of the Texas Department of Health about the one-year, $31,750 contract to a San Angelo woman who has been an advocate for parents with special health care needs.

He said she helps the government in its effort to be consumer-friendly and ensure services meet Texans' requirements.

The House Group for Good Government said government agencies spent at least $70 million on consulting contracts from January 1991 through March.

In taking aim at such spending, the GOP group criticized Democratic Gov. Ann Richards, saying state government bureaucracy has increased under her administration.

"The goal of the Richards administration seems to be finding the most creative way to spend taxpayers' money," said Rep. Mary Denny James, R-Aubrey.

Richards spokesman Chuck McDonald rebutted that "all these state agencies are funded by the Legislature. If spending practices are taking place that these lawmakers believe are improper, then they need to bring this to those agencies' attention in the legislative process."

McDonald said he couldn't comment on specifics without seeing the report, but that Richards would be interested in it since she "has worked to eliminate waste in government."

Besides Ms. James, the House group includes Reps. Jerry Madden of Richardson, Frank Corte of San Antonio, John Culberson of Houston, Will Harnett of Dallas, Mike Krusee of Williamson County and Robert Talton of Pasadena.

Group spokesman William Scott said Madden is interested in seeing whether a formal process can be set up to monitor such consulting contract awards.

Scott said they weren't saying every contract is bad, but he especially questioned the need for consultants since he said the number of state employees has grown. The group also questioned awards to out-of-state consultants.

Among the contracts cited by the group, besides the Health Department project, are:

— $6,000 given by the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife for a consultant to study the impact of "human disturbances" on some whooping cranes.

Larry McKinney of the agency said it got a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency grant of at least $40,000 to prepare an oil spill response plan. But federal law required the department to first make sure the placement of oil spill equipment didn't disturb the endangered birds, requiring the study.

— $35,000 awarded by the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse for a New York consulting firm to review and recommend improvements in the Department of Criminal Justice's chemical dependency treatment program.

Commission spokeswoman Olivia Solis said, "This is a really massive (treatment) program that we're implementing ... We just didn't want to go into it with our eyes closed."

— $35,000 awarded by the Teacher Retirement System of Texas to a Dallas consultant to conduct a search for an executive secretary, and another $46,650 to a Houston firm to conduct a similar search for a chief investment officer.

TRS Board Chairman C.A. Roberson said the panel wanted to assure recruitment of the most competent professionals available. He said, "We found two top-flight administrative officials through the consulting search firms for fees which are not excessive or unusual for administrative leadership for a $36 billion fund."

— Four study contracts at the Texas Education Agency for amounts ranging from $19,950 to $77,841. Agency spokeswoman Della May Moore said three of the studies were required by the Legislature, and either the Legislative Budget Board or Legislative Education Board made the decision to hire a consultant in each case. She was checking on the fourth study.

Lobbyists prepare for collider votes

DALLAS (AP) — The fate of the super collider and its thousands of workers may come down to 100 men and women — the lobbyists fighting for the billion-dollar project.

Though an equal number of lobbyists applied pressure to the 435-member House before it voted last month to kill the project, collider contractors say there will be a positive payoff in the Senate.

"This is winnable in the Senate," said Gerald Staub, director of the National Association for the SSC, which represents more than 60 businesses and universities that have won or hope to win contracts with the $10 billion collider. "We have our work cut out, but it's winnable."

In a recent weekly report to members, the association urged members to gather "intelligence" on lawmakers' prospective votes, make regular visits to their offices and "intensify the pressure on the White House."

"It (the Senate) is a more sympathetic audience," Staub told The Dallas Morning News. "In the Senate they have the luxury of being able to look into the future, because they only go up for election every six years.

"That's the beauty of the Constitution: If you want quick change, you go to the House; for a long-range view, you go to the Senate. It's one of the reasons we do so much better over there."

Last year the Senate came through for the giant atom smasher being built in Waxahachie. After the House voted to junk the project, lobbying stops were pulled way out. In the Senate, the collider was revived, by a vote of 62-32. That vote was even better than in the previous year, when it was 62-34.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced in 1967 in the House of Commons that Britain would apply for membership to the Common Market.

Lamesa police chief to head Corsicana cops

LUBBOCK (AP) — Lamesa Police Chief G.M. Cox will take over as head of the Corsicana Police Department in early August.

Cox, Lamesa chief since 1989, was unanimously confirmed Tuesday night by the Corsicana City Commission, the Lubbock Avalanche Journal reported.

He will replace Corsicana's interim police chief Lewis Palos, who withdrew his name from consideration for the job.

Corsicana, a town of 23,000 residents located 50 miles south of Dallas, was thrust into the national spotlight last month when a black man died while in police custody. Two autopsies showed that excessive force as well as high amounts of drugs and alcohol contributed to his death. As a result two police officers were fired.

Ned Polk, Corsicana city commissioner, said tensions since have eased in the city. He said he believes Cox will work to keep peace in the city and department.

"He is 100 percent in favor of more minority hiring on the police force, and he will work hard to see that it happens," Polk said.

Back pain is most likely sciatica

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In September 1991, I had an operation to remove colon polyps. After surgery, I began having pains in my left lower back and legs. How long might this discomfort continue?

DEAR READER: I do not believe that your back and leg pain resulted from the surgery. More likely, you have sciatica, irritation of the nerves to your legs where the nerves exit from the spinal cord.

This could be caused by age-related arthritis of the spine or by a slipped disc. Based on an examination and X-rays of your lower back, your family physician should be able to diagnose your problem.

Although nerve-pinching may require surgery (by a neurosurgeon), many cases of sciatica respond to pain medication, heat, special exercises and physical therapy. Ask your doctor about this.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Understanding Osteoarthritis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband suffers from vascular disease. What can you tell me about his condition?

DEAR READER: The term "vascular disease" encompasses many entities and disorders, ranging from inflammation to arteriosclerosis. In most instances, age-related blockages in arteries cause symptoms when the tissues supplied by the diseased arteries are deprived of oxygen and nutrients.

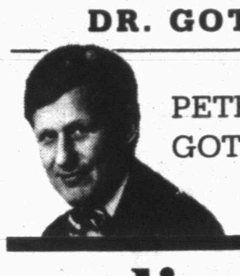

Vascular symptoms include muscular cramps, cold sensations, weakness and skin ulcerations. Vascular blockage is worsened by smoking and obesity; it is accentuated by diabetes. The affliction is evident on the physical examination and is confirmed by arteriography, a special X-ray test of the arterial circulation.

Treatment is aimed at increasing blood flow. Therefore, patients are urged to quit smoking, increase their exercise and take pills (such as beta-blockers) to relieve arterial spasm. Although arteriosclerotic vascular disease is incurable, the symptoms it causes can be helped by medical treatment.

If such treatment is ineffective, surgery (to break up the obstruction or by-pass the affected artery) may be necessary. A family physician can diagnose and treat most forms of vascular disease, calling on specialists (such as vascular surgeons) when appropriate.

Anti-discrimination policy adopted by insurance board

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials next month will take a final vote on an anti-discrimination rule governing insurance companies.

The State Board of Insurance voted 2-0 for the anti-discrimination measure after hearing a report that showed low-income and minority consumers pay higher rates for insurance even if they are a lower risk.

A final vote is scheduled for Aug. 30 on the matter.

Under the rule, insurers would be prohibited from discrimination based on race, color, religion, national origin, geographic location, sex or disability. The rule would apply to an insurer's decision of whether to insure or continue to insure an applicant and at what rate.

"I believe Texans are entitled to fair treatment in insurance matters," Insurance Board member Allene Evans said.

Jerry Johns, an insurance industry spokesman, said the rule is unnecessary because it, in part, duplicates federal law. He also disputed the report's findings of inequities in insurance premiums between wealthy and minority and low-income customers.

According to preliminary findings of the report, low-income and minority policyholders pay higher rates for property and automobile insurance.

The study shows that policyholders with homes worth $50,000 or less pay on the average up to 10 percent more than the benchmark rate for property insurance. The Insurance Board sets the benchmark and the range that companies can charge above or below it.

Policyholders with homes worth between $50,000 to $150,000 usually pay below the benchmark, while those with homes worth $150,000 or more pay 15 percent below the benchmark, the study said.

"There is some evidence there of inequities," said Mark Crawshaw, a consultant hired by the Texas Department of Insurance.

In medium and high minority zip codes, homeowners' rates were also higher for comparably valued homes in zip codes where few minorities lived, the report said.

The report also showed that a greater percentage of minorities are unable to get auto insurance on the open market and must buy more expensive coverage from the high risk insurance pool.

Amy Johnson, the state's insurance consumer advocate, said the higher premiums charged low-income and minority customers are unrelated to their risks.

She and several consumer groups urged passage of the anti-discrimination rule.

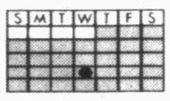

But Johns, of the Southwestern Insurance Information Service, said residents of low income areas often are higher risks, and that is why they are charged more for insurance.

"It has nothing to do with minorities. What it has to do with is if a policyholder lives in an area with a high crime rate. Unfortunately rates there are going to be higher," he said.

First woman elected to World Scout Committee

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — For the first time in its 86-year-history, the world scouting movement elected a woman to its top decision-making body today.

Jocelyne Gendrin of France was among seven people elected to the 14-member Worlde from Hong Kong, the United States, the United Kingdom, the Philippines, Senegal and Mexico.

Worldwide, more than 24 million boys and girls are members of the movement that aims to prepare them for the moral and civic responsibilities of adulthood.

More than 1,140 adult scout leaders from 105 countries are attending the five-day meeting, which ends Friday. It is the largest general meeting in the movement's history.

Mrs. Gendrin, from Paris, was the first woman to run for election to the committee. Members serve six-year terms.

She joined the scout movement at 12, and currently is international commissioner, or top officer, of the national scout association of France. Trained as a social worker, she has been an educational advisor for young people, including those from immigrant families.

In 1951, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said farewell to Congress after being relieved of his command in Korea by President Truman. Said MacArthur: "Old soldiers never die; they just fade away."

Name change studied

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Regents may have to vote again on changing the names of Texas A&I University and Corpus Christi State University because of possible Opens Meetings violations, the chairman said.

The Texas A&M University System Board of Regents voted March 5 for the name changes, effective Sept. 1.

Board of Regents chairman Ross Margraves said the system's general counsel informed him Tuesday that the secretary of state's office may have violated the Texas Open Meetings Act.

"It appears the secretary of state may have improperly posted the meeting," Margraves said. "If that was the case, I'm going to ask the board to revisit the issue."

Texas A&I would become Texas A&M University-Kingsville, Corpus Christi State would be Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi and Laredo State would change to Texas A&M International University.

Seeing double is twice as good

In "The Faerie Queene," Edmund Spenser wrote, "So double was his pains, so double be his praise."

This is only fair, and it can apply in a bridge deal — like today's. How should South plan the play in three no-trump, West leading the heart queen?

South had a tough decision after his partner's takeout double. He was a little strong for one no-trump and a little weak for two no-trump. He compromised by jumping to two spades, showing 9-11 points and at least four spades. North's cue-bid of three hearts was game-forcing and expressing doubt about direction. The bid is usually made with three spades. With four spades, normally North would raise. South showed his heart stopper; North was happy to pass.

South had six top tricks: one spade, two hearts, one diamond and two clubs. From the bidding, it was likely that West held the K-Q of spades and the club queen. But were the spades or the clubs breaking 3-3? Declarer found a line that allowed him to test both suits.

After winning the first trick in hand with the heart king, South led a spade: queen, ace. Dummy's spade jack was won with West's king; back came a low heart to dummy's ace.

Dummy's spade 10 was cashed but West discarded a heart. Now declarer played a club to his ace and led the club jack: queen, king. When declarer played a club to his 10, both opponents followed. So a diamond to dummy's ace allowed South to cash dummy's club six for his ninth trick.

The more chances you have to make your contract, the better.

Wayland inks Ira baseball standout

PLAINVIEW — Ira High School standout Wyatt Webster has signed to play baseball for Wayland Baptist University's Pioneers.

Webster, Ira's No. 1 pitcher, led the Bulldogs to their second consecutive trip to the Class A playoffs in 1993.

"I think it's a good college," Webster said. "I really like the campus there. I think I made a good decision by deciding to go there."

As a starter, Webster was 3-2 in District 4-A games in '93. He struck out 31 and allowed just 23 hits for an earned run average of 3.3.

Webster was the winner in Ira's 8-7 defeat of Paducah in the first round of the playoffs this season. He racked up eight Ks and limited PHS to only two hits.

He also pitched a two-hitter in the area-round against Fort Elliot, striking out four, but was tagged with the loss.

Offensively, Webster was a load for opposing pitchers, hitting .333 on the season with a .517 on-base percentage.

Webster who also played first base for the 'Dogs, slammed three homers during the '93 season, including two grand slams. He ripped three triples and five doubles, while driving in 23 runs.

The new WBU signee was voted All-District 4-A as a senior, finishing second in the loop in voting for Most Valuable Player.

"I like the way he handles himself on the field," Wayland coach Jeff Livin said.

Livin and the WBU staff are excited about Webster's abilities, both from the mound and with a bat.

"I'm a little more enthused about his pitching for us right now," Livin said. "I think he has a good chance to be throwing the ball over the plate for us when the season starts.

"But, I also like what he can do with a bat. We plan to work him hard in both areas all fall and, unless he proves he just can't handle it, we plan on him doing both for us."

"I'd rather play first base so I could play every day," Webster said. "But I'll do whatever I can to help the team."

Webster will join former Snyder High School standout David Patrick on the Pioneers' pitching staff.

"David's a real pleasure to be around," Livin reported. "If Wyatt is anything like that, and I believe he is, we should have a real good addition to our team."

Webster plans on majoring in physical education. He plans to become a coach.

Landry accepts spot in Ring

IRVING (AP) — There they were, seated side-by-side with the domed stadium both have dominated shining in the background.

Tom Landry and Jerry Jones. Jerry Jones and Tom Landry.

Either way, they're an odd couple.

But, as both stressed Tuesday, they are not estranged.

So what if in 1989, just hours after buying the Dallas Cowboys, Jones fired Landry, the only coach in the team's history at the time? So what if Landry had not returned to Texas Stadium before Tuesday?

None of it mattered.

All that counted was the smiles on both men's faces Tuesday as Landry accepted Jones' longstanding invitation to join the team's Ring of Honor.

"You know, there's a lot of controversy that's come across my desk over the Ring of Honor. I just want you to know that ... it was never a problem with any feeling that I had towards the new management and the football team," Landry said, the quiver in his voice beginning to subside but the sweat on his upper lip still glistening.

"Those people who know me best, you know that when I turn a corner, I don't think about yesterday. When I stepped down from the Cowboys, I moved right on to something else."

For Landry, it wasn't just something. It was everything from corporate boards to a private business with his son. There also was the Dallas Sports Commission, a busy public speaking agenda, television commercials and plenty of charity work especially with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Landry said it was that busy schedule and not any harsh feelings toward Jones that kept him out of the ring and away from Texas Stadium until Tuesday.

Part of the reason Landry has avoided Cowboys games, he said, was the fear of being mobbed by fans. Plus, he joked, he would've had to buy a ticket. "I didn't deserve any more than that," he said.

Tuesday's unlikely reunion came about because of another unlikely gathering in May. A golf tournament brought together Jones, Landry and Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson and the Ring of Honor question came up again.

This time, Landry was ready to consider the invitation. He thought about what it would mean to his family, his former players and the fans. Finally, it all made sense.

Yes, he'd do it. He'd let them put his name where it belonged, along the stadium's walls between the upper and lower decks next to seven of the greats that he coached: Bob Lilly, Don Meredith, Don Perkins, Chuck Howley, Mel Renfro, Roger Staubach and Lee Roy Jordan.

"I should go in because the fans are what made us what we are and the players up there in the Ring of Honor are the ones that put me there," Landry said. "I think it would be foolish for me to say I'm not going to go into that Ring of Honor."

Several other Cowboys greats also were glad to see Landry accept the honor.

"Him being in the Ring of Honor, once again, is another special moment in the history of the Dallas Cowboys," said former running back Tony Dorsett.

Landry, who began his career as a player and later a coach for the New York Giants, will be honored Nov. 7 when his two former teams meet at Texas Stadium.

Big Spring trips Snyder in title game

SAN ANGELO — Snyder fell just a little short, falling to Big Spring, 11-6, in Tuesday's Division I championship game at the United Girls Softball Association National All-Stars Tournament here.

Snyder's Division I All-Stars posted the second-best record in Friday-through-Monday round-robin play with a 3-1 mark.

Big Spring, which notched its second national title in three seasons, finished with a 4-0 record to get into Tuesday's title matchup.

In other championship results Tuesday, Big Spring also claimed the Division II crown in Class AA, made up of teams from larger towns, beating San Angelo Red, 9-8; Andrews kept Big Spring from the Division III trophy with a 13-7 championship victory; and host San Angelo handed Pampa a 12-3 loss in the Division IV final.

In Class A title games, Coahoma snagged two titles, beating Hawley, 3-0, in 10 innings in Division III, and drilling Lovington, N.M. 8-2 in Division I.

Lovington also claimed a pair of championship wins Tuesday, including the Division IV crown by hammering Mitchell County, 14-3, and the Division II title by handing Coahoma a 14-9 defeat.

NATIONAL RUNNERS-UP — Snyder's Division I All-Stars wound up second in the United Girls' Softball Association National Tournament in San Angelo, which concluded Tuesday. Snyder went 3-1 in round-robin play, earning a spot in the championship game against Big Spring. Big Spring took the division crown with an 11-6 win over the locals. The Snyder squad included, back row from left, manager Carla Alexander, coach Dalvin Alexander and coach Laura Fisk. Middle row from left, Sara Potts, Sabrina Terry, Vanessa Freeman, Katie Voss, Patricia Hernandez and Chasity Perales, Front row from left, Amber Alexander, Katie Kerley, Kasey Collier, Shelley Fisk and Leticia Martinez. Gonzalez powers Texas to 5-1 win

ARLINGTON (AP) — Juan Gonzalez's temper is almost as hot as his bat.

Upset after Milwaukee's Cal Eldred backed him off the plate with two consecutive pitches, Gonzalez hit the next pitch 434 feet into the stands in left-center in Texas' four-run fifth inning in Tuesday night's 5-1 victory.

The three-run homer tied Gonzalez, who glared at Eldred (10-10) as he rounded the bases, with San Francisco's Barry Bonds for the major-league lead with 26.

"That's how to respond to a knockdown," Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy said. "Take them deep. We're not going to put up with that anymore. That's the end."

Gonzalez was unavailable for comment after the game.

Rangers third baseman Dean Palmer was hit on the right forearm by Detroit's David Wells last Thursday, forcing Palmer to miss two games. Other Rangers have complained recently when they've been brushed back by inside pitches.

Kevin Brown (7-6) pitched a complete-game five-hitter, his major league-leading eighth complete game of the year. Brown had won only one of his last seven starts, including three losses and three no-decisions.

Brown, who struck out a career-high 10 with no walks, has been recently bothered by a back ailment.

Kennedy was pleased to get a well-pitched game out of the staff ace on the heels of Monday night's performance by Nolan Ryan, who allowed three hits over 5 2-3 innings in a 5-3 victory.

"Starting pitching's going to be our key," Kennedy said. "Kevin worked some things out. That's the type of performance we need from our ace. He's been searching and obviously he responded tonight."

Texas has won eight of its last 10 to move within two games of first-place Chicago in the AL West. Milwaukee fell 18 games under .500 for the first time since the end of the 1985 season.

"I don't know what the numbers are but they can't be very good," Milwaukee manager Phil Garner said. "Our offense hasn't produced anything since the All-Star break. In a game like this you need something to break it open. They got it and we didn't."

Doug Strange led off the fifth with a walk, advanced to second on a sacrifice and scored on Julio Franco's two-out single. Rafael Palmeiro followed with a walk before Gonzalez homered.

Milwaukee cut the deficit to 4-1 in the sixth when Pat Listach singled and scored from first on Darryl Hamilton's double. Texas added a run in the eighth when Gonzalez, who went 3-for-4, singled, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Gary Redus' single.

Aikman rehab running well ahead of schedule

AUSTIN (AP) — The ball was wobbly and overthrown so the receiver had to make a lunging one-handed catch.

No this wasn't All-Pro Michael Irvin with the acrobatic, fingertip grab. It was injured Troy Aikman, who doesn't act like he had back surgery on June 19.

Aikman is so far ahead of his expected rehabilitation pace that he has coach Jimmy Johnson shaking his head and doctors worried the Cowboys Super Bowl MVP is going too far too fast.

"He's amazed me," Johnson said. "He's looking really good."

The antsy Aikman already has set a tentative date for his playing comeback. It's Aug. 21 against the Houston Oilers in the Alamodome.

He's working like everyone forgot he threw four touchdown passes in the Super Bowl and got $50,000 instant cash for saying "I'm going to Disneyland."

Early in the morning he's up, practicing his backpedal in a harness and tossing a medicine ball. The harness helps Aikman rebuild his back muscles.

Then he's out on the field making longer passes each day.

HHS gridders may pick up forms

Any athlete planning on playing football in Hermleigh this fall should stop by the school to pick up physical forms.

Junior high and high school gridders need to complete the forms and those requring a physical, must have an exam before starting workouts.

Two-a-day practices begin Aug. 4.

010 LEGAL NOTICES

PUBLIC NOTICE

In compliance with section 763.93(E)(10) of the AHERA Regulations the Snyder Independent School District will be conducting scheduled surveillance of all campuses containing asbestos material during the month of July, 1993.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR FLUID INJECTION WELL PERMIT

Pennzoil Petroleum Company, Route 1, Box 98, Snyder, Texas 79549, has applied to the Railroad Commission of Texas for a permit to inject fluid into a formation which is productive of oil or gas. The applicant proposes to inject fluid into the Canyon Reef Formation, Sacroc Unit Lease, Wells No. 11-02, 28-01, 36C03, 37-03, 49-05. The proposed injection wells are located from 10 miles north to 7 miles northwest from Snyder, Texas, in the Kelly-Snyder Field in Scurry County. Fluid will be injected into strata in the subsurface depth interval from 6288' to 7090'.

LEGAL AUTHORITY: Chapter 27 of the Texas Water Code, as amended, Title 3 of the Natural Resources Code, as amended, and the Statewide Rules of the Oil and Gas Division of the Railroad Commission of Texas.

Requests for a public hearing from persons who can show they are adversely affected, or requests for further information concerning any aspect of the application should be submitted in writing, within fifteen days of publication, to the Underground Injection Control Section, Oil and Gas Division, Railroad Commission of Texas, Drawer 12967, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 (Telephone 512-445-1373).

Rostenkowski's role in budget talks secure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Dan Rostenkowski sits at the pinnacle of power in critical deficit-reduction talks, and the 18-term Illinois Democrat will keep his position unless he's indicted in the House Post Office scandal.

Rostenkowski assumed his usual command role in House-Senate negotiations Tuesday over a White House proposal aimed at cutting the deficit by $500 billion over five years — the cornerstone of President Clinton's domestic policy.

Clinton and several lawmakers said Rostenkowski, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, will remain the key House architect in crafting a plan acceptable to both houses.

For his part, Rostenkowski acted like anything other than a hobbled negotiator a day after court papers pointed to him as a possible recipient of embezzled funds from the House Post Office.

He lunched privately with Clinton and the chief Senate negotiator, Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., at the White House. And he sat in the front row as Clinton addressed Democratic tax and budget negotiators.

A factor that could change Rostenkowski's role would be a felony indictment in the post office scandal because House Democratic Caucus rules require committee chairmen to step aside in such a circumstance.

Asked if the allegations alone would affect Rostenkowski's negotiating role, Clinton said, "No. We've got a lot of work to do. Chairman Rostenkowski's done a great job with this budget so far, and we've worked very closely together. I don't know anything about the rest of it."

Moynihan, responding to a similar question, said, "Not the least bit. His status hasn't changed."

Clinton is seeking passage of the deficit-reduction measure before Congress goes into summer recess in August.

Rostenkowski, a member of Congress since 1959, has been under a cloud since last year in the post office investigation, which the Illinois Democrat has called a political "witch hunt."

Prosecutors not only have looked into his stamp purchases at the House Post Office, but several aspects of his financial and campaign affairs.

However, prosecutors upped the ante Monday when they secured the guilty plea of former House Postmaster Robert V. Rota on conspiracy and embezzlement charges.

Court papers filed in the case said Rota provided embezzled funds to lawmakers listed as "Congressman A" and "Congressman B." When specific post office transactions listed in the court papers were matched with public records, it was apparent that Rostenkowski was "Congressman A" and former Rep. Joseph Kolter, D-Pa., was "Congressman B."

Former U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens, who headed the Justice Department's probe of the post office until earlier this year, Tuesday night reiterated his assertion that the Clinton administration delayed the case for 90 days to ensure that Rostenkowski would remain in control of the Ways and Means Committee.

"He was performing a critical function for the administration with regard to the budget and tax bills," Stephens said on ABC-TV's "Nightline" program. By delaying the case, Stephens said, the administration "was able to protect his position ... and the question remains whether they will continue to be able to protect his position into the future."

The New York Times reported today that prosecutors are trying to broaden the case against Rostenkowski by bringing charges against him under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act.

According to the Times, an investigation under way in Chicago is seeking to determine whether Rostenkowski converted campaign and taxpayer money for his own use and whether the RICO law would apply in such a case.

Battle rages outside Sarajevo...

'Humanitarian crisis' reported by U.N.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — U.N. officials reported a "humanitarian crisis" across Bosnia today as battles, blockades and bureaucratic obstructions disrupted aid for desperate civilians.

The most significant battle continued for a fifth day on Mount Igman, overlooking Sarajevo's airport, where government troops reportedly were holding out against the largest Serb offensive in the area during the 16-month-old war.

Bosnian radio said a counter-offensive was pushing Serbs back, but there were few details.

Even if the Serbs were repelled, Sarajevo faced increasingly grim conditions because of a four-week water and power outage and disruption of food convoys.

"Many people can't prepare the food they get without fuel to heat rice, boil macaroni, bake bread," said Peter Kessler, a U.N. relief spokesman. "The utility situation is still very grave."

Kessler said two more children had died at a mental institute near the central town of Fojnica, where 230 children and adolescents had been abandoned for three days until a U.N.-led rescue team reached them Monday.

Kessler said the two died of a virus. Two other children had been found dead from lack of care when the U.N. patrol first reached the hospital, caught in a no-man's-land between Croat and government forces.

Kessler said the aid cutoff was aggravating the plight of the other patients, many of whom suffer from dehydration and malnutrition.

Bosnian Croat militia leaders, demanding intricate details about convoy destinations, have not allowed any to travel from southern Croatia to central Bosnia since Friday, severing aid to about 1 million people, Kessler said.

"They should be held responsible," he said. "They're creating a humanitarian crisis."

He accused Bosnian Serbs of orchestrating daily protest blockades by women, who have prevented convoys from reaching the besieged Muslim enclave of Gorazde for two weeks.

"These women are being brought there. They are being rotated," he said. Serb troops, meanwhile, continued to assault the enclave.

Gorazde and Sarajevo are among six U.N. "safe areas" designated special protection.

But Serbs were refusing to allow peacekeepers to deploy in Gorazde, and they have continued attacks in the Sarajevo region.

Ritz gala to feature entertainment, booths

A vintage car display, clogging lessons, games and booths are some of the attractions planned this Saturday for the second annual "Lighting up the Ritz" on the courthouse square.

Activities will begin at 4 p.m. when booths will open on the north and east sides of the square. Entertainment in the gazebo will begin at 6 p.m. Some special awards will be presented at the gazebo before the marquee lights at the Ritz are turned on about 9 p.m.

Entertainment activities already on the list are clogging lessons, games for younger children, face painting and perhaps a dunking booth. Snyder Wheels will display vintage cars in front of the Ritz and a fire truck, an ambulance and a police car will be on view along the east side of the square.

Cold drinks, sandwiches, snow cones and popcorn will be available at the food booths.

Organizations interested in having booths are invited to contact John Fenton or Eleanor Dryden. Groups already signed up include Beta Sigma Phi, the Deep Creek Cloggers, the Community Baptist Church, the Single Again Class of the First Baptist Church, the Fireman's Auxiliary, the Lighthouse Assembly of God, the Noah Project, the Police Explorer Club and the DARE program.

The Ritz Community Theatre will also be kicking off its season ticket sale Saturday. A table for the purchase of tickets will be set up near the gazebo.

Season tickets are $30 for six tickets, $60 for 12 tickets, and $100 for 24 tickets.

The 1993-94 season will open Oct. 7 with the Neil Simon comedy "Barefoot in the Park." The Christmas production will be "Amahl and the Night Visitors," opening Dec. 2. The final show will be "Nice People Dancing to Good Country Music," a contemporary comedy, in February of 1994.

"I feel like this is a conservative budget," said Lancaster. "I am excited about '94 and our potential. I am really looking forward to it."

The budget includes $459,141 in capital equipment.

The budget will now be submitted to Scurry County Commissioners Court for approval.

Present for the meeting were board members Sue Mize, Ted Crenwelge, Jim Palmer, Bill Wilson III and G.A. Parks Jr. Doug Foster was absent. Also present were Bob Doolittle, county judge; Ralph Trevey, Roy Idom and Jerry Gannaway, commissioners; Eddie McHaney, county auditor; and Charlie Bell, county treasurer.

Arson ruled in house fire

An Independence Day fire which destroyed a portion of a home on East 23rd Street has been ruled an arson by investigators.

"There is evidence the fire was not started accidentally," said Sheriff's Deputy Kerry Fritz, who, along with local fire officials, is investigating the case.

The home is owned by Marvin and Sharon Applin.

The fire apparently started in the bathroom, said Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell. The blaze gutted the bathroom, a hall and caused minor fire damage to the kitchen and three bedrooms. The rest of the house sustained heavy smoke and heat damage.

Snyder Fire Department was called to the fire at 12:05 p.m. on Sunday, July 4.

Investigators said the fire was started between 10:15 a.m., when the Applins left for church, and the time that the fire department received the call.

"It was apparently started in the bathroom, set by person or persons unknown," said Deputy Fritz. "Our investigation is ongoing."

McDowell said that it was a "fairly small fire" when it was set. "There are signs of where some accelerant was used," he noted.

Three National Guard soldiers killed during training maneuvers

AUSTIN (AP) — Three Texas National Guard soldiers died early today from injuries sustained during a training exercise at Fort Hood that involved the firing of live ammunition from an armored vehicle, officials said.

Ed Komandosky, a public information officer for the Texas National Guard, said the men, whose names were being withheld until family members could be reached, were pronounced dead at Darnall Army Community Hospital in Killeen.

Komandosky said the men suffered fatal injuries at about 1:30 a.m. while firing machine guns from a Bradley armored vehicle at targets on a range at Fort Hood in Killeen. He said he could not give details about the injuries.

The men, who were all members of the 3rd Battalion, 141st Infantry of the Texas National Guard, had experience in the training exercise and "had been in the Guard for some time," Komandosky said.

"As far as I can tell, they were all on the same vehicle," Komandosky said. "They were not taking fire."

Spring."

Because the College Park store already has a large bakery and floral department, these will supply the other two Big Spring stores with fresh bakery goods daily and fresh flowers and garden gifts, according to Don Newsom.

"With four stores to buy for, we can have a greater economy of scale. We pledge to continue to work for the most competitive prices for our customers," said Kent Newsom.

There have been one or more Newsom-owned grocery stores in Big Spring continuously since October 1933. "Our hallmark is that we have always been able to change with the times and needs of our customers," said Don. "We're noted for customer service."

Credited with many firsts in the grocery business in the area, they opened the first full-fledged catering service, installed the first produce misting racks, the first electronic cash registers, and the first fresh-squeezed orange juice and coffee grinding machines.

Furr's announced last week it would be selling the stores in Snyder and Big Spring because they no longer fit the company's geographic market. Furr's has been in Snyder for 43 years.

Obituaries

Don Adams

1919-1993

Services are set for 10 a.m. Thursday in Colonial Hill Baptist Church for Don Adams, 73, of Snyder. The Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor, will officiate. Burial will follow in Hillside Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Adams died at 9:17 p.m. Monday in Shannon Hospital in San Angelo after a long illness.

Born Sept. 3, 1919 in Mansfield, Mr. Adams graduated from Snyder High School in 1937. He joined the National Guard in 1940, and the unit was later mobilized into the regular army, Company G, 36th Division. It was the first group to land at Salerno, making its way through Italy and France. When discharged in 1945, Mr. Adams had received the Purple Heart, Bronze Star and Silver Star.

Mr. Adams served as Scurry County Tax Collector-Assessor from January, 1965 through December, 1976. After leaving office, he owned and operated Don Adams Maytag Laundry for several years and later operated Don's Used Cars.

Prior to being elected county tax collector, he worked as a postal employee, in the oilfield, built fences and operated Lake Thomas Marine Supply.

Mr. Adams was a former member of the Snyder Kiwanis Club, serving as president in 1967. He was a member of the Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

He married Rae Burt on June 3, 1978 in Waco.

Preceding him in death were his mother and father, J.B. and Gertrude Adams, and two brothers, J.B. and Watson Adams.

Survivors include his wife, Rae Adams of the home; one son, Joe Mark Adams of Big Spring; one stepdaughter, Beth Kasner of Waco; two brothers, Nolan Adams of Laredo and O.R. Adams of Rankin; two sisters, Kitty Boles of Lamesa and Helen Crafton of Comanche; and three grandchildren.

Rodney Hays

1955-1993

LUBBOCK — Services are set for 2 p.m. Thursday in Wilsons' Funeral Directors Chapel for Rodney E. Hays, 38, who died July 13 in Meridian Neuro Care Center in Santa Anna, Calif. Entombment will follow in Restland Wilsons' Mausoleum in Wolfforth.

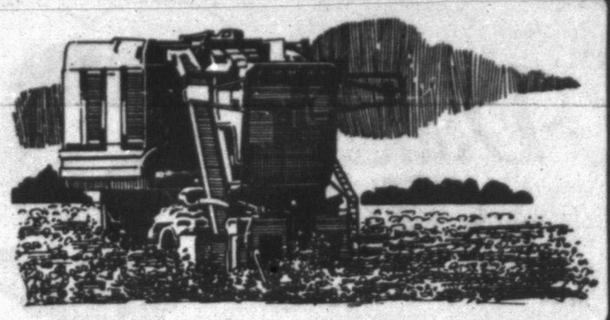

He was the half-brother of Joni Wenetschlaeger and Anita Nett, both of Snyder.

Born in Lubbock, Mr. Hays graduated from Lubbock High School and moved to California in 1976. He married Sandra Schossow on July 20, 1985 in Norwalk. He attended Santa Anna College and was a licensed vocational nurse and a Baptist.

Other survivors include a daughter, Rachel Renee of Norwalk; his mother, Mae Ivey Hays of Lubbock; his father, Gene Hays of Post; and three half-brothers, Steve, Randall and Jim Hays, all of Lubbock.

Farmers, ranchers, and commercial pesticide users will have the opportunity to dispose of unusable and unwanted agricultural pesticide containers, and do so safely, legally and without penalty. Empty pesticide container collection programs will be held at six locations across the South Plains. The collection program is being conducted by the Texas Water Commission, the Texas Department of Agriculture and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Collection sites include Lamesa — Farmer's Co-op Association on July 26; Seagraves — Five Points Gin on July 27; Brownfield — Terry Co-op Gin on July 28; Amherst — Crossroads Gin on July 29; Idalou — Idalou Go-op Gin on July 30 and Plainview — Ollie Liner Center on Aug. 2. Collections will be from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. each day.

Any size plastic or metal container will be acceptable, but paint, household or glass containers will not. Containers must be rinsed three times or cleaned with a high pressure rinse and they should be crushed or punctured.

According to Dick Easley, director of the Empty Pesticide Container Collection Program, new laws and regulations sharply limit the options many producers have for disposing of unwanted pesticide containers.

Quail census will be taken

Jim Lionberger
Texas Parks & Wildlife
Wildlife Biologist

Wildlife biologists with the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department will be conducting a roadside quail census during early August.

The purpose of the census is to obtain information pertaining to population trends and reproductive success. Quail census lines are 20 miles in length and are usually conducted on county roads or ranch roads throughout the state. The same line is driven each year in order to insure a true picture of quail population trends.

Quail nesting begins in mid-May and eggs hatch after an incubation period of 23 days. Preferred nesting sites consist of mid-to-tall perennial grasses.

Nest losses can be attributed to drought and predators such as coyotes, skunks, snakes and feral hogs. If a clutch is lost, quail are capable of renesting; however this renesting can be delayed, resulting in some smaller birds being harvested during the hunting season.

Young quail grow rapidly and are capable of short flights in approximately two weeks. Adult plumage is dominate in juvenile quail by approximately 12 weeks of age.

Technical assistance is provided to landowners by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department. For wildlife management assistance in the South Plains, contact Jim Lionberger at Rt. 2 Box 486, Snyder, TX 79549 or call (915) 573-9864. Panhandle residents should contact Danny Swepston, district wildlife biologist, 3409 South Georgia, Suite 25, Amarillo, TX 79109, or call (806) 353-0486.

FALL WEBWORMS

Fall webworms are the laraval stage of moths and cause unsightly webs in branches of almost all shade, fruit, nut and ornamental trees and shrubs, except conifers. Their feeding preferences vary widely but they seem to prefer mulberry, poplar and willow trees in our area. They occasionally infest pecan trees.

The fall webworm moth is mostly white with dark spots on the wings. The larvae are about 1 inch when full grown and pale yellow or green. There is a broad, dusky stripe running down the back, bordered on each side by a yellow stripe. These caterpillars are covered with tufts of long whitish hairs.

Fall webworms overwinter as pupae in silken cocoons under ground trash or on rough tree bark. Moths emerge to disperse and deposit eggs in hair covered masses on the underside of leaves. The newly hatched larvae begin feeding and spin a web over the foliage in which they feed. Sometimes whole branches are covered with these webs. Larvae eat the tender parts of the leaf, leaving the larger veins and mid-rib. The last generation, which occurs in the fall is usually the most damaging and gives this insect its name.

Fall webworms may be controlled without using insecticides by thoroughly inspecting trees that have a history of webworm infestations. In small trees where the upper parts are easily reached, egg masses on leaves may be located and destroyed. In larger trees, webs can be pruned out and destroyed.

If webs are too numerous or out of reach for pruning, insecticides may be needed to prevent damage. A high pressure sprayer may be needed to each the top of tall trees and to penetrate dense webs. The best means of controlling webworms is to apply insecticides after eggs hatch and before larvae develop dense webs. There are several good insecticides available for the control of fall webworms. Since complete coverage is needed for good control a commercial sprayer may be needed.

Hog prices peaked in late June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hog prices probably peaked for the year in late June and early July at nearly $50 per hundred pounds, the Agriculture Department says.

"Prices are expected to fall into the low $40s per hundredweight by late summer and early fall as production rises seasonally," the department's Economic Research Service said in a recent report.

A record 17.3 billion pounds of commercial pork is expected to be produced this year, it said.

"As hog prices slide into the low $40s, returns will be near the break-even point," the report said. "The excessive rains in the Midwest have increased the uncertainty about feed costs. If feed costs change significantly from present levels, producers will likely reevaluate production plans for 1994."

Turning to cattle, the report said supplies are increasing and fed-cattle prices went from the low $80s in February through May to the low $70s in July.

"Excellent forage conditions and tight feeder cattle supplies have resulted in prices for yearling feeder cattle remaining in the mid $90s, in spite of declining fed-cattle prices and rising feed costs," it said.

Broiler production is expected to expand around 5 percent in 1993 to 22.1 billion pounds, the report said, with exports likely to hit a record high.

Wholesale broiler prices are forecast to average 52 cents to 56 cents per pound, compared with 52.6 cents a year ago.

"Net returns to the broiler industry have been much improved from last year, and will continue positive, but lower for the remainder of 1993," the report said.

Turkey production is expected to increase 1 percent to 2 percent this year, compared with 3.8 percent last year. Wholesale hen prices in the Eastern region are expected to average 58-62 cents per pound, compared with 60.2 cents last year.

Sorting out the basics of children's nutrition can be confusing to parents as well as professionals due to so many conflicting reports on foods, health and nutrition.

Some good advice for getting children started on a lifetime of healthy eating habits can be taken from Ronald Kleinman, M.D., chief of the Pediatric Gastrointestinal and Nutrition Unit at Massachusetts General Hospital and chairman of the American Academy of Pediatric's Committee on Nutrition.

An important factor is whether dietary recommendations to reduce disease risk in adults should also be applied to children, Kleinman said.

"The ultimate goal of any nutrition recommendation for children is to promote optimal growth and development," Kleinman said at the American Medical Association (AMA)/International Food Information Council (IFIC) media briefing in New York. "If we concurrently improve the long-term health of children, that would be ideal. But there is no proof that a change in children's eating patterns will reduce the risk of certain illnesses as adults."

Health and nutrition experts recommend that 30 percent of calories in the diet, averaged over a period several days, should come from fat for children ages 2 and older. About 10 percent of total fat should be saturated, 10 percent monounsaturated and 10 pecent polyunsaturated.

Children should be able to eat with the rest of the famly and have ample nutrients to support normal growth. They should eat a varied diet with lots of fruits and vegetables, lean meats, grains, low-fat dairy products and fish.

Some nutrition recommendations for children may not be based on sound evidence, according to Kleinman. For example, removing salt from your children's diet does not mean that they will not get hypertension, nor does reducing sugar prevent diabetes.

"Any parent who tries to micromanage a child's diet by counting the grams of fat in each food or counting the grams of fat on a day-by-day basis is headed for disaster, he said. "It's obsessive-compulsive behavior that yields no rewards whatsoever, and it just creates more tension."

Instead of labeling foods as "good" or "bad" try to influence your child's food choices. Also, provide a variety of food, including alternatives for specific foods.

Cotton report

WASHINGTON (AP) — As of June 11, 78 percent of the U.S. cotton crop had reached the "squaring" stage just prior to forming bolls, compared with 66 percent in 1992 and a five-year average of 72 percent, the Agriculture Department says.

"While most states showed similar improvements, cotton squaring in Mississippi and Alabama were lagging due to their late planting completion," said a report this week by USDA's Economic Research Service.

Although squaring was above normal, it said, the percentage setting bolls was only average. As of July 11, 22 percent of the crop was setting bolls, compared with 23 percent for both last year and the five-year average.

"U.S. crop conditions remain above the previous two seasons," the report said. "As of July 11, 62 percent of the crop was rated good or excellent, compared with 47 percent last year.

Dear Abby

Short Answer to Simple Query: Abstinence Is the Safest Sex

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I just read the confidential you wrote to "Needs to Know the Truth in Cleveland." You said, "The only safe sex is no sex. Trust me."

Well, that is the best, and most accurate advice I have ever heard on that subject. Thank you for telling it like it is.

I am relieved to know that there are still people out there who speak the truth without rationalizing, or trying to justify sinful behavior all in the name of "safe sex."

I hope your statement will send a message to people who engage in sinful behavior, and worse yet, take chances. When are people going to wake up and realize that there is no "safe sex"?

The only answer is no sex. Say it again, Abby, and say it often.

ANOTHER ABIGAIL,
ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR ABIGAIL: The statement was made in a literal context, not in a religious or philosophical sense. The woman's question: "If condoms aren't 100 percent safe — what is 100 percent safe?" My answer: Abstinence.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: You said, "When an engagement has been broken, the lady should return the ring, or she's no lady."

Sorry, Abby, you are way off base on that one. My engagement was broken two months before my wedding date when I learned that my philandering fiance got himself into the embarrassing position of becoming a father. I was shocked and totally devastated. Can you imagine how hurt I was when he actually married this bimbo a week after terminating our engagement!

The ring he had given me on the eve of our engagement was a beautiful three-carat solitaire. The louse had the nerve to ask me to return it, which of course I refused to do ... on the advice of my lawyer. I promptly sold the ring and used the money to reimburse my bridesmaids for their dresses. I also repaid my parents the money they had deposited for the wedding that never came off.

Then I took a vacation and began a new life of my own. Abby, if by your definition I am no "lady" — so be it. But he was certainly no gentleman!

BETTER OFF

DEAR BETTER OFF: Considering the circumstances, you'll get no argument from me. Pass the crow, please.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am 25 and I am just about to get married to a man I love very much. I am still a virgin. I am afraid that after he sees my body, he is going to want to get a divorce! I have these ugly stretch marks on my hips and backside.

Do you know of any creams that would work? Is there a plastic surgeon who could fix this? Will it hurt? And how much will it cost?

Please answer quickly, Abby. My wedding is on Aug. 5.

DESPERATE BRIDE-TO-BE IN PORT ARTHUR, TEXAS

DEAR DESPERATE: Calm your fears. If the man proposed without encountering your stretch marks, then you can be certain they will not be of utmost importance to him after he discovers them. I know of no solution to the stretch mark problem. But the magician who finds one is certain to make a fortune.

Corpus Christi woman gets $4.5 million

The 40-year-old Corpus Christi woman says she plans to use her earnings from a $4.5 million lottery jackpot to open a second bakery.

Ms. Flores became the fourth winner from Corpus Christi this month on Tuesday when she accepted her first of 20 installments.

Ms. Flores, who matched all six numbers in Saturday's Lotto Texas drawing, said although she now has millions, she will continue to work.

She said she hopes to buy a new truck to transport merchandise to the bakery she manages.

"I hope this will better our business," she said.

State Comptroller John Sharp presented Ms. Flores with a check for about $200,000.

"Something must be in the water in Corpus Christi," Sharp said. "In the last two weeks about $27 million have been won (there)."

Other winners from Corpus Christi in July were: Janie Elizalde, who shared a $50 million jackpot with two others; Gloria Soto, who won $1 million in the lottery's monthly grand prize drawing; and an unidentified winner who will share $10 million from the July 14 lotto drawing.

Ms. Flores said she allowed the lottery's "quick pick" computer to select her numbers. They were: 5, 9, 13, 32, 42, 45.

She said she used to spend $20 per drawing, or $40 each week, on lotto tickets.

"I've been doing it all along and I thought that I would win it one day because I had already won four numbers twice," Ms. Flores said.

Ms. Flores said she did not know she had won until the following day when she saw the numbers in the newspaper.

She will receive annual payments of $227,000 for the next 19 years.

The store where she bought the ticket, Big Diamond, 3401 Leopard Street, will receive one percent of the amount Ms. Flores won.

Clinton criticizes Gramm and Hutchison over super collider

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton says Texas' two senators aren't helping the super collider's chances in the Senate with their oft-repeated insistence that Congress needs to cut more spending.

"I'll keep doing what I can to save it, but it would certainly help if the people who are going to benefit immediately from it would stop saying things which drive the rest of the Congress up the wall because they're not true," the president said in interviews Tuesday with Louisiana reporters.

Clinton reiterated his "strong" support for the $10 billion giant atom smasher being built south of Dallas, but suggested that Republicans Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison will be to blame if Congress pulls the plug on the collider.

The House last month voted for the second year in a row to terminate the collider, leaving its future once again in the hands of the Senate. Action by the Senate isn't expected before September.

Gramm responded angrily to the president's comments, saying that Clinton is trying to assign blame for the House's anti-collider sentiment.

"If the president would do as much in supporting the SSC as Sen. Hutchison and I have already done, it would win by acclamation," said Gramm, who is a likely presidential candidate in 1996.

"I see no evidence that the president is making a strong effort on behalf of the super collider," Gramm said. "Maybe we should stop making excuses and go to work. That's what I've done. That's what Sen. Hutchison has done. That's what I urge the president to do."

Clinton was critical of the two Texans' decision to appear with former presidential candidate Ross Perot to push their message of spending cuts before tax increases just hours before the House's collider vote.

"When the House of Representatives was voting just a couple of weeks ago on the superconducting super collider — which benefits overwhelmingly the state of Texas — the two United States senators from Texas were outside on the steps with Ross Perot telling the House they ought to cut spending and attacking them for not doing it," the president said.

"In fact, it wasn't true, we cut spending $250 billion below the last Bush budget," Clinton said, adding that people were "sick and tired" of the rhetoric.

Gramm defended his appearance with the Dallas billionaire. "Perot was out there to present two and a half million petitions — more from Texas than any other state in the union — to Congress to control spending," he said. "When two and a half million people petition their government ... I'm going to go out and receive their petitions."

Being an advocate of reduced spending doesn't mean being an opponent of all spending, Gramm said. "What people like Clinton want to do is to say 'If you want to control spending, you've got to be against everything,'" he said. "That's just absurd."

Asked if his support for high-dollar projects in his state such as the super collider and space station doesn't make his position more difficult to defend, Gramm replied: "I don't understand that comment. Are you saying to me that because I would like to see us cut $25 billion more (from the budget) that in the remaining $1.5 trillion I can't support something in Texas? ... It's a nonsense statement."

A spokesman for Ms. Hutchison, Ray Sullivan, defended her position. "In Kay's case, she talked all throughout the campaign of prioritizing spending — and the super collider is a high-priority research project that's important for technological development and the future," Sullivan said.

Gramm's stance is drawing Democratic criticism elsewhere. Last week, former Democratic presidential candidate Paul Tsongas took the Texan on in a Washington speech.

French author Albert Camus died in an automobile accident in 1960 at the age of 46.

Man tells police he is guilty

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who says he beat his roommate to death, buried him, and then dodged police for two years has turned himself in.

Claiming his conscience got the best of him, Peter Howard Floyd walked into a Harris County Sheriff's Department substation Tuesday and confessed to killing Stephen D. Barnes in 1991.

Floyd, 30, then accompanied detectives to a remote area off the Eastex Freeway near the San Jacinto River, where his roommate's body was removed from a grave on the banks of a small stream.

Barnes was reported missing July 15, 1991, by relatives who had been unable to reach him for a few days. The detective assigned to the case then suspected foul play and began looking for Floyd, who had been Barnes' roommate, Sgt. Danny Billingsley told the Houston Chronicle.

Within days, Barnes' vehicle was found at the Tulsa International Airport, but police could never catch up with Floyd, Billingsley said.

Tuesday, Floyd told authorities he killed Barnes during an argument over Floyd moving out of the apartment they shared. Floyd said he hit Barnes in the back of the head with a table leg.

"He said he sat there in the apartment with the body for about 24 hours, just drinking and wondering what to do," Billingsley said. Finally, he said, Floyd loaded the body into the dead man's car and drove north.

Floyd apparently made at least two stops on his way out of town — one to buy a shovel, and another to bury his roommate. He then drove to Tulsa, Okla., where he left Barnes' vehicle.

Floyd told detectives that for the past two years he has "drifted around the country," usually drunk and staying mainly on the streets, Billingsley said.

Floyd told authorities the killing haunted him and that he finally decided to tell some friends about the incident.

"They told him he'd better go talk to the police, and he did," Billingsley said.

Floyd was charged with murder and was being held on $10,000 bond.

Breast cancer strikes 1,000 men every year

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Walter, a 64-year-old, considered himself to be in great physical condition. He regularly worked out at the gym. He ate all the right foods.

When he felt a lump in his chest last November, he asked his doctor about it.

"He stuck a needle in me, took some cells out and put them under the microscope," Walter said in a telephone interview from his home in the Milwaukee area. "My life came crashing down right about that moment."

Not only did Walter have cancer, he had breast cancer — a so-called woman's disease.

"I was in total disbelief," he said. "No one ever brings up the subject of it happening to men."

Walter, not his real name, isn't alone.

Every year, about 1,000 men are stricken with the disease, about 0.5 percent to 1 percent of the total number of breast cancer cases, according to Dr. Harry D. Bear of the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

Bear, a surgical oncologist at MCV's Massey Cancer Center, specializes in breast cancer.

The problem is much more common among women because they have more breast tissue and because of the hormonal influence of estrogen, which Bear said affects breast cancer although doctors aren't sure how.

It once was believed that men who have gynecomastia — excessive development of breast tissue — were more at risk, but that condition no longer is considered a factor. Age, however, is a major factor. The disease usually strikes middle-aged or elderly men.

The symptoms are the same for both sexes: a hard lump, changes in the nipple, or changes in the skin. In men, the lump usually develops immediately behind the nipple. The most common location in women is the upper outer quadrant toward the underarm.

Bear said treatment varies according to how advanced the cancer is. Treatment includes chemotherapy, radiation, antihormonal therapy, lumpectomy and mastectomy.

"It's a serious disease, just as serious in men as it is in women," said Dr. William L. Donegan, a professor of surgery at the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee. "But the incidence is too low to justify screening mammograms for men on a routine basis."

Donegan estimates that he has seen 20 to 30 cases of male breast cancer.

About 200,000 new cases of breast cancer will be diagnosed this year, said Stacy Charney of the American Cancer Society in New York. The disease will kill 46,000 women and 300 men.

Bear said men who seek treatment usually have a more advanced stage of the disease. He has treated about a half-dozen male breast cancer patients in his 15-year medical career. He said the patients didn't seem to be embarrassed because they had the disease.

"They end up with a scar and they're minus a nipple, but they don't usually get cosmetic surgery," Bear said.

Walter underwent hormone therapy and a mastectomy, the most common treatment for breast cancer in men. His prognosis "has been very good," he said.

However, only his family knows about his disease.

"I can't share it with friends," Walter said. "In my profession, if anyone knew I had cancer and there is a risk in the future, it would be the end of my career." He declined to disclose his occupation.

He said he always has a towel draped over his right shoulder at the gym now, but he won't consider cosmetic surgery. He said he isn't embarrassed by what happened to him.
