Solons Want More On Woman's Past

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 —UP— Nervous and weeping bitterly, Mrs. Annie Lee Moss, an Army employe, was temporarily excused Wednesday from testifying before Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy who said she was and may still be a Communist.

McCarthy (R-Wis.) told Mrs. Moss' lawyer to bring her back before his Senate investigating subcommittee—or take her to the FBI—when she recovers. She was excused from appearing Wednesday because of her health.

Mrs. Moss, a small 49-year-old Negro who was said to be suffering from laryngitis, was called to the witness stand and was sworn. She was excused, however, without testifying.

Tells of Party Break

Meanwhile, McCarthy said two "top" Communist party officials here have broken with the party and will tell all to the FBI.

McCarthy said the two—husband and wife—had originally been subpenaed as "hostile witnesses." Late Tuesday night, McCarthy said, the couple "decided to break with the party and give all the information they had to the FBI."

McCarthy also said Maj. Irving Peress, former Army dentist whose honorable discharge launched McCarthy in his latest feud with the Army, would be subpenaed to appear Thursday at the senator's showdown with Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens.

Stevens has ordered two Army oficials not to appear before McCarthy's subcommittee. He said he was determined to protect them from "abuse."

There had been speculation the feud might extend to the White House. But White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said neither Stevens nor anyone else here

AF Bumps Batchelor

TOKYO, Feb. 24 —UP— Air Force authorities bumped Cpl. Claude Batchelor, a reformed one-time C mmunist "peace fighter," off a plane loaded with hospital patients Wednesday and sent him home on another flight.

Officials said Batchelor was "bumped" because the medical evacuation flight was to be accompanied by fanfare and ceremonies. Aboard the plane was the 2 millionth air evacuation patient in U. S. aviation history, S.Sgt. William MacDonnell of Thomaston, Conn.

Batchelor left at midnight, still confident he will not be court-martialed for serving as a ringleader of 23 Americans who had refused repatriation last summer in "Operation Big Switch."

"I haven't done anything wrong," Batchelor said at the airport while awaiting departure.

"My record is clean," he said.

Batchelor said he believed Cpl. Edward Dickenson of Crackers Neck, Va., the only other American who changed his mind about staying with the Communists was ordered court-martialed on charges stemming from life in Communist war prisoner camps in North Korea.

Excise Cuts On Docket

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 —UP— House tax writers are expected within the next few days to approve legislation cutting federal excise taxes by as much as $1 billion.

Reductions are scheduled to be made in the excises on furs, jewelry, cosmetics, luggage, women's handbags, admission tickets, light bulbs, telephone bills, travel tickets and a limited number of other items.

Democrats on the tax-writing House Ways and Means committee proposed Tuesday that these cuts be included in the big tax revision measure now being considered by the committee. But Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-N.Y.) ruled the proposal out of order.

Green Light from Reed

Reed himself indicated, however, that reductions will be considered soon.

It is understood that reed and other Republicans on the committee have in mind completing work on the tax revision bill, probably in the next day or two, and then turning their attention within the next few days to the problem of corporation and excise tax rates.

Existing excise rates on liquor, beer, cigarets, gasoline and automobiles will be scaled down automatically April 1 unless Congress acts before then to continue them at present levels.

The committee is expected to accede to President Eisenhower's request for their continuation. But it tentatively plans to approve cuts in other excises by slapping on a 10 per cent ceiling on all such taxes.

Conform With Martin Proposal

This would conform with a proposal previously made by Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr., whose voice carries great authority among House Republicans, and advocated also by Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa.), an influential member of the Ways and Means committee.

The 25 per cent rate on long distance telephone calls would be cut to 10 per cent under this plan. Items in the present 20 per cent category which would be cut to 10 includes furs, jewelry, cosmetics, luggage, women's handbags, admission tickets, light bulbs and tubes, photographic equipment and safe deposit boxes.

Items in the 15 per cent category which would be cut to 10 per cent include rail, bus and plane tickets; lighters; pens and mechanical pencils; and local telephone bills.

Firm Wars With Auto Bootleggers

DETROIT, Feb. 24—UP—At least one big auto manufacturer will launch a bare knuckle fight to stamp out "bootlegging of new cars.

Dealers will be warned of dire consequences if they become a party to bootlegging by selling new cars to used car outlets at cut rates almost as soon as they get them.

Whether the other companies will follow suit is still a question. All say they are "studying" the situation. If they do, big signs on used car lots announcing popular brand new cars at discount prices will come down quickly.

"Bootleg" cars started coming onto the market in big volume late last year when there were more cars than people wanted to buy. The situation still exists.

Some dealers were willing to sell their cars t so-called "boot-leg operators" at a small margin rather than wait until customers trickled in to buy at retail prices.

Warren 'Accuser' Asks Protection

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 —UP— Roderick J. Wilson, one of the "accusers" against Chief Justice Earl Warren, was arrested by metropolitan police Wednesday in the Senate Judiciary committee room after he testified on the former California governor's nomination.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 —UP— Rockerick J. Wilson, one of the "accusers" of Chief Justice Earl Warren, delivered himself to police at the Capitol Wednesday and said he feared for his life.

Wilson said he would testify Wednesday before Chairman William Langer's judiciary committee, which is considering Mr. Warren's nomination to be chief justice.

Deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers has charged that Wilson is a fugitive from justice in California and wanted on a perjury indictment. Wilson denied this.

'Assassination Plan'

"There has been a mistake some place along the line," he said. "This is a calculated assassination plan."

A reporter asked if he meant assassination of character.

"Assassination of person," he snapped. "If some trigger-happy jerk should happen to shoot me, not a district attorney in California would try the case. The machine would not let him."

Despite his professed fears, Wilson said he has not been in hiding since his name first was linked to 10 unverified "charges" against Mr. Warren last weekend.

"I was in California when this thing broke," Wilson said. "Then Saturday I went into conference with some of my political advisers in Los Angeles and Sunday night I flew to Chicago with some friends."

'Submitted to Arrest'

Wilson said, "I submitted to arrest" in Langer's office Wednesday morning. A capitol policeman, standing nearby while Wilson was interviewed in the Senate office building guard room, interjected that Wilson was not under arrest.

The oficer said hanger had checked with authorities and could find no warrant outstanding against Wilson. The police officer said Langer turned Wilson over to capitol police then for 'protective custody.'

Starvation Baby Deaths Investigated

WAURIKA, Okla., Feb. 24 —UP— A transient pecan picker's four surviving children were to be examined Wednesday to determine why they apparently were well fed although their two baby brothers starved to death.

A coroner's jury recessed without a verdict Tuesday into the deaths of 20-month-old Jose S. Garcia and eight-month-old Juan B. Garcia. The jury, however, asked that the other children of Mr. and Mrs. Eliseo B. Garcia of Natalia, Tex., be examined.

County Attorney Dave K. Spradling told the jury Garcia was not destitute and had money for food. He gave the jury autopsy reports on Jose and Juan which showed "extreme malnutrition" as the cause of death.

The Garcias couldn't explain the deaths to Spradling, but told him Juan was fed twice the day he died. The county attorney, however, said there was no food in the baby's stomach or intestines.

French Mop Up Three Red Strongholds

HANOI, Indo-China, Feb. 24—UP —French-led troops, opening a guerrilla activity in the Red River delta, mopped up three secret Red strongholds in fierce hand-to-hand fighting Wednesday.

The bitterest battle took place in the seemingly-innocent village of But Thap, only 11 miles from here. About 200 Communists were chased out of Truong Pen, 17 miles to the northwest, and a Red arms cache was captured some 60 miles south of Hanoi.

French and loyal Indo-Chinese troops who smashed into But Thap late Tuesday found the village's bamboo huts masked a honeycomb of foxholes, underground passages and camouflaged machine-gun nests.

The village appeared secure at nightfall, after relatively light fighting, but at midnight several hundred Reds who had been lurking in underground hideouts launched a savage counterattack with bayonets and knives.

French-led troops who had bedded down among the smashed huts of the village sprang to arms and fought with bayonets and rifle butts until all the Communists had been killed or captured.

Training Plane Victims Found

BIG SPRING, Tex., Feb. 24 —UP— The wreckage of a training plane in which two Air Force flight instructors died was found late Tuesday.

The dead men were 1st Lts. Ray E. Badertscher, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram J. Badertscher, Route 1, Sharonville, Ohio, and Harold E. Rogers, 30, son of Allan K. Rogers, Louisville, Ky. Both were stationad at Webb Air Force Base, Big Spring.

New City Manager Swamped By Congratulatory Messages

City Manager Fred Brook was in his office this morning—at work.

One of his first "official" acts was the receiving of a delegation from the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, members of which were trying to get him off to a good start.

In a surprise move, the Pampa City Commission near noon Tuesday named the former assistant city engineer the new city manager. He was sworn in by City Tax Assessor-Collector Aubrey Jones.

The chamber delegation in a brief ceremony this morning gave Brook a "tree," on the limbs of which hung all manner of useful articles like rubber bands, pen, ruler, paper clips and the like. It seems that Brook, who used to be right across the corridor in the City Hall, was quite a borrower. And the chamber associates thought it might be too long a walk for him now, being at the other end of the corridor.

The only detail yet to be resolved to make Brook's appointment final was the changing of the $10,000 bond in Former City Manager B. H. Cruce's name to his. That was being taken care of this morning.

Also this morning, congratulations were still pouring in to the fledgling city manager.

Brook and Cruce last night spent several hours going over the new city manager's duties. Cruce will be in Pampa till 5:55 a.m. Saturday when he hops a bus for Greeley, Colo., and his new city manager's job there. He goes to work Monday.

Brook's appointment leaves a vacancy in the City Department of Public Works. James Cowan, head of the department, late this morning said that no action had yet been taken on appointing a new assistant city engineer. Brook said it would be left up to Cowan and that probably "no immediate decision" would be made.

While the assistant city engineer is Number Two man in the department, Cowan pointed out that he is also in charge of the engineering division of it. The salary is $390 per month. (Brook's new salary: $550.)

Other divisions of the public works department and their heads are water and sewer (E. S. Lowrey), sanitation (L. B. Haggard), parks and boulevards (Lee Roberts), shops and warehouse (Charles Shelton), inspections (O. E. Payne) and streets (Russell Cartwright).

Mardi Gras Days Gay In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24 —UP— Thousands of free-wheeling tourists kept the French Quarter cash registers jingling Wednesday as this lusty old city's famed Mardi Gras season roared toward its flaming climax with fantastic parades, exclusive balls and restless pageantry.

The million dollar show, tagged the only one of its kind in the nation, ends at midnight next Tuesday as the tolling of bells in historic cathedrals signals the end of fun and frolic and the beginning of the 40-day lenten season.

But the jammed-packed events of Mardi Gras Day, which features the reign of Rex, Lord of Misrule, and the often-intoxicated rambling about the town of the Zulu King, a Negro carnival association, are supposed to make lenten repentence easy.

Between now and the fantasy of Mardi Gras Day during which revelers, masked from sunup to sundown, can get by with almost anything short of murder, there will be some 16 nightly parades and up to 50 glittering balls.

City fathers estimate some 300,000 visitors will have spent more than a million dollars by the time the fabulous holiday draws to a close.

Already night club proprietors in the French Quarter looked at their cash tills with contentment. Tourists, who have jammed all accommodations north to Baton Rouge and nearly to the Mississippi Gulf Coast, were spending freely in between parades and balls.

Ike Flies Home To Problems In Washington

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 —UP— President Eisenhower flew home from a golfing vacation Wednesday to some of the roughest going in his political career.

Butter is the immediate center of controversy. Beyond butter is the whole question of farm subsidies, on which, as of now, it seems likely the administration is in for a bad licking.

Republican in and out of Congress who have dairy state backgrounds are protesting Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson's yank of the rug from under dairy prices. After April 1 the Commodity Credit Corp. will support dairy product prices at only 71 instead of 90 per cent of the parity or fair price level.

Butter Rebellion Develops

The butter rebellion against administration policy within the Republican party is developing rapidly. It is part of the overall farm policy dispute which divides both parties, but which finds the bulk of congressional Democrats favoring high and rigid crop supports.

Help Sought By Duster Victims

LAMAR, Colo., Feb. 24 —UP— Farmers who lost winter wheat, fences and top soil in last Friday's dust storm asked the federal government Tuesday night to declare seven eastern Colorado counties a disaster area and bear a reasonable part of the cost of repairing the damage.

More than 150 persons from the seven counties met with Colorado legislators, county agents, Colorado Agriculture Commissioner Paul Swisher, and representatives of the Agriculture Stabilization Commission, the Soil Conservation Service and the Farm Home Administration here Tuesday night.

In a resolution addressed to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson, Gov. Dan Thornton and the Colorado congressional delegation, the farmers asked that the seven counties be declared a disaster area, and that federal funds be allocated to cover a "reasonable part" of the cost of replacing fences and emergency tillage to stop erosion, and feed to replace what was destroyed.

Close Vigil Over Pope

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 24 —UP— Vatican doctors and medical attendants returned Wednesday to their round-the-clock watch over Pope Pius XII.

Sources at the Vatican said the full-time vigil had been resumed because of the renewed difficulty in feeding the 77-year-old pontiff. Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi Lisi, the pope's physician, spent the night in the papal apartment.

Vatican sources said the round-the-clock watch of doctors, which began Feb. 5 was suspended on Feb. 14, the day four minutes of a message by the pope to the sick of the world was broadcast.

Tuesday night was the first time that Galeazzi-Lisi had spent the night at the Vatican since the period from Feb. 4 to Feb. 13 when the pope's illness was at its peak.

Roosevelt Alimony Set

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 24—UP —Mrs. James Roosevelt was awarded $1,300-a-month temporary alimony and child support Wednesday pending trial of her separate maintenance suit in which she charged the son of the late president with adultery.

Amarillo Firm Low Bidder On Library

The Lovett Memorial Library building will cost $237,900 and is expected to be up by Nov. 1.

Tri-State Construction Company, Amarillo, was the low bidder of 10 when bids were opened Wednesday afternoon in the city commission room by executors of the Fannie Lovett estate.

The actual contract will not be signed, however, until a clear title to the land on which the new Pampa library will stand is obtained, estate executors decided. Estate Attorney William Jarrell Smith said it should be a matter of a few days.

Executors were scheduled to get together at 3 p.m. today in the office of Executor M. K. Brown for a discussion of the bids — somewhat complicated — on the inside furnishings and equipment.

An estimated 75-100 persons, most of them potential contractors and subcontractors, jammed the commission room as Library Architect B. R. Cantrell opened the bids. Seated around the main table were Executors C. P. Buckler, Brown and Dr. W. Purviance, Mayor Tom Rose, City Manager Fred Brook and Pampa Librarian Lilli-Brook and Pampa Librarian Lilli-

Next low bid on the building, to be located on Houston behind the old Pampa hospital, was submitted by Sawyers Construction Company, Amarillo ($241,500). The two Pampa concerns that bid (Wes-Tex Construction Company, L. K. Stout) were the high bidders, though one of them — Wes-Tex — had the earliest completion date, Sept. 1.

Four concerns made bids on all or parts of the inside furnishings and equipment, including furniture, chairs, tables, bookcases, wastebaskets, rugs, drapes and the like. They were Texas Furniture Company and Foster Furniture Company, both of Pampa; Remington Rand Company; and Bickley Brothers, Houston. Those bids will be discussed today.

The decision on the building bids took just 30 minutes. At 3:30 p.m., John F. Moss, Tri-State represen-

Young Democrats Ready For Meet

AUSTIN, Feb. 24 —UP— Final plans were readied Wednesday for a two-day convention of Texas Young Democrats at Mineral Wells, Friday and Saturday, the first big political meeting of the 1954 election year.

Shivers and two other governors, Frank Clement of Tennessee and Johnston Murray of Oklahoma, were scheduled as convention speakers. Former Illinois Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, declined an invitation because of a prior commitment.

Final Arguments In Parr Hearing Scheduled Today

HOUSTON, Feb. 24 —UP— A world-famous lawyer, pleading for protection of political boss George B. Parr's civil rights, charged Wednesday that the Rangers consider themselves "to be above" a mere citizen and will beat up a man if he has "a look on his face they do not like."

"I'm amazed at the meekness of the people on my side," civil rights lawyer Arthur Garfield Hays of New York, who represents Parr, told a three-judge federal district court.

Final arguments on Parr's petition for a federal injunction against the Rangers opened at 10 a.m. Parr charges that two Rangers threatened to kill him if anything happened to any Rangers in Duval county.

Relying heavily on the testimony of Ranger Capt. A. Y. Allee, one of the defendants, Hays tried to picture the Rangers as "men of zeal who think they are doing good."

"I think it is perfectly clear from the evidence that everybody down there (in Duval county) is intimidated by the Rangers," Hays declared.

Hays cited the testimony of Ranger Joe Bridge, a second defendant, who had said Allee slapped and kicked District Attorney Reuben Norris because Norris "sneered" at the Rangers and "insulted the Ranger force."

Chinese-Soviet Relationship Mystifies The Western World

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of the major mysteries of the Communist world is the relationship between Russia and Red China. Are they equal partners; master power and satellite; cold and unfriendly partners in an opportunistic enterprise? United Press staff correspondent Henry Shapiro, in the following dispatch, tells what is known of relations between Peiping, and Moscow and suggests that the forthcoming Geneva conference on the Far East may give the West a chance to look behind the scenes to learn the true nature of their relations.

By HENRY SHAPIRO

BERLIN, Feb. 24 —UP— One of the more interesting by-products of the forthcoming Geneva conference on Korea and Indo-China will be the opportunity given the West to watch the concrete, practical coordination of Soviet-Chinese policy.

The Kremlin and Peiping have had a four-year partnership or working agreement But little is known in the western world of the true relationship between the two largest and most powerful nations of the Communist world.

So western statesmen are anxious to observe, when they sit down at the Geneva conference table at which both Red China and Russia will be present, just how the arrangement works.

Question of Equality

Will Molotov, at that conference, act as the senior statesman of the Communist world; the first of two equals. Or will he yield precedence to Chou En-Lai, premier of the country more immediately concerned in the fate of China's neighbors?

At the Berlin conference, the three western foreign ministers had their first glimpse into the little-known techniques of Soviet-Chinese staff operations. While Molotov acted as complete master of the situation where Germany and Austria were concerned, there was reason to believe he consulted Peiping on every phase of the Korean and Indo-Chinese discussions.

He withheld a final agreement on the western compromise formula for the Geneva conference, apparently until he had a green light from Peiping.

From the beginning of the Communist seizure of power in China there has been evidence that China is a partner and not a mere satellite of the Kremlin.

Special Relationship

The historic peculiarities of Mao Tse-Tung's rise, with little or no Soviet assistance, the size, strength and geographic remoteness of China, as distinguished from Moscow's western neighbors, have combined to make for this special relationship.

In the last few years of Stalin's life, Mao Tse-Tung already was recognized in the Soviet Union as no other foreign Communist chief ever was. He was given his due, not only as a political leader of great power, but as a Marxist theorist whose articles were widely published in the Soviet press.

Although, after Stalin's death, Mao reaffirmed adherence to "the camp headed by comrade Malenkov," he remained Malenkov's equal in the international Communist hierarchy.

When Molotov and Chou En-Lai appear in Geneva they may be expected to show solid united front to the West, even though they may not see eye-to-eye on the future of Indo-China and Korea.

If any divergencies of opinion exist between them, they will not betray them to the West.

JOHNSON ★ IN HOLLYWOOD ★

By ERSKINE JOHNSON NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)— Close-ups and Longshots: The battle of the big screens is really on. Paul Mantz, responsible for so much of the thrilling aerial footage in "This is Cinerama," has been wooed away from Cinerama by 20th Century-Fox. He will repeat his camera wizardry from the air in Cinemascope shorts to be produced by Otto Lang.

Whether Hollywood likes it or not, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences is considering a telefilm category for future Oscar awards.

Lou Costello is well enough to return to the Comedy Hour on TV Feb. 21. Sonja Henie, on skates, will headline the variety show.

Red Skelton's saying he's ready to accept a BBC-TV offer in England if his home-screen clowning winds up minus a sponsor at the end of this season.

Horace MacMahon and Louise Campbell, the ex-Paramount star, expect their second child next month. Then it's a career comeback for pretty Louise. It was Horace who almost fell out of his chair when he saw a British movie on TV the other night: "No one wore a trench-coat and no one drove a Jaguar."

Likes Being A Creep

Peter Lorre shed his Merchant of Menace title to play a role with humor in "Beat the Devil," but he's not beating his chest in rage over night-club comics who still satirize him as a creep.

Let the impersonators slit throats and barbecue babies under purple spotlights, Lorre loves it — leer after leer. He's been a star for 20 leers — I mean years — and he says:

"I give credit to these night-club creeps. They've kept my name alive. They work for me for nothing."

Back in Hollywood for the first time in four years, Lorre will be on the light-comedy side again in Walt Disney's "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea." He's been emoting in England and Germany, where he married a pretty movie press agent. They have a year-and-a-half-old daughter.

"It's fantastic," says Peter, about the child. "She looks like me yet she's pretty."

Linda Christian isn't through with her movie career by a long shot. When Mrs. Ty Power didn't set the world afire in "The Happy Time," it was whispered that she would forget about flicker fame. But she recently tested for the new Martin-Lewis comedy, "The Big Top." . . . The Corinne Calvet-John Bromfield parting — for the second time — comes more under the head of publicity than honest-to-gosh marital woe. . . . There's opposition to a union with Aly Khan on Gene Tierney's side. Her mother and brother are dead set against her marriage to the Moslem prince.

New Role For Burt

Burt Lancaster has taken his first step toward breaking out as a classical stage actor by optioning "Zorba The Greek," a recent best-seller. He plans to tour the country in the role of a Greek philosopher in a production staged along the lines of "John Brown's Body."

Paulette Goddard doesn't know whether to laugh or cry. A crackpot wrote her a threatening letter and ended the hair-raising epistle with: "P.S. — I loved you in 'Sins of Jezebel.'

Alvy Moore, the crew-cropped young comedian who's been on the "My Little Margie" stanzas, gets the big break of his career in RKO's "Susan Slept Here" in the role written for Mickey Rooney.

The Leslie Caron-Geordie Hormel divorce will in no way affect the promise of the Hormel family to send Leslie's young brother, Amory, through California Tech. Amory has been living at the Hormels' fancy Bel Air manse for several years.

"Bwana Devil," that first horror picture in 3-D, earned almost $3,000,000 before the public caught on to it. Not bad for a $300,000 investment.

TO NATO — Adm. Jerauld Wright is the newly appointed top naval officer of NATO replacing Adm. Lynde D. McCormick. In addition the 56-year-old naval officer is in line for promotion as commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet.

It's simple. It's amazing how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy — no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Barcentrate. Mix with grapefruit juice as directed on label. Then take according to directions. Wife Slayer Says Spouse Was Frigid

DENVER, Feb. 24 —UP— A mild-mannered Denver salesman, who told police sex frustration led him to plot the death of his wife, listened intently in district court Wednesday as attorneys pressed to select a jury for his murder-for-hire trial.

The slight blond defendant, Leroy Adolph Leick, 30, admitted in a signed statement last December that he planned to murder his attractive wife, Evelyn, 26, while lying in bed beside her. He named a 20-year-old Georgia farm youth, Gene Dukes, as the man he hired to help dispose of his wife for her insurance money.

"She was cold to the physical side of love," Leick said in his statement.

Leick claimed exceptional virility, and said he planned to use the insurance money to pay off Dukes and then go to Mexico to "see some girls."

Dukes, after his arrest, claimed that Leick strangled his wife, and at first could not understand why he could be guilty of anything more than a fake robbery. But he is also charged with murder and will be tried separately early in March.

When Leick's trial opened Tuesday, District Attorney Bert M. Keating made it clear in questioning veniremen that the state intends to seek the death penalty for Leick.

The defense showed it hopes to prove that Leick was insane and legally incapable of plotting a criminal act.

Leick's wife, a generously-endowed, Titian-haired telephone operator, was found strangled in the rear of the family car on the night of Dec. 1.

Prosecution Not To Seek Todd's Death

CLEBURNE, Tex., Feb. 24 —UP— The murder trial of Jack Todd, 29, of Dallas got underway Wednesday and the prosecution disclosed it would seek only a life sentence if he is convicted.

Todd, who once was associated with the Lois Green and Herbert Noble gangs in Dallas, is charged with killing Chester A. Crampton, 30, outside a Dallas tavern last Sept. 2.

A jury was completed late Tuesday. The trial was moved to Cleburne on a change of venue.

Maury Hughes of Dallas, Todd's attorney, made it plain in his examination of jurors he will try to prove self defense. Todd and Crampton got into an argument in the tavern and went outside where Todd killed him.

Several years ago Todd was pulled off a plane in Dallas with a quantity of jellied nitroglycerine in his pocket.

Stalin's Death, Blood Purges Failed To Deliver Red People

By LEON DENNEN NEA Staff Correspondent

BERLIN — (NEA) — Kurt Schmid is a man returned from living death. He has just returned to Berlin after a nine-year stretch in a Russian slave labor camp. He was one of the Germans released by Moscow to coincide with the Four Power conference.

It was nearly noon but the bed in the dim, unheated room was still unmade.

"Slept a bit late," he said apologetically. "All I seem to do since my return from the Donetz coal mines is sleep."

Grandmother Schmid, a shrunken woman of about 85, muttered something in German and eyed me with undisguised hostility. At first she refused to admit me to the house altogether.

"What do you want?" she asked in alarm when I knocked on the door.

"Herr Schmid."

'Nein, nein,' the old lady began to scream hysterically, "there is no Schmid here. I don't know him."

She was about to slam the door in my face when Kurt appeared.

"Don't be afraid, grossmutter," Kurt said, pushing her gently aside. "This is a friend. He's not going to take me away."

He was a tall, cadaverous man with hardly a tooth in his mouth or a hair on his bullet-shaped head.

On first sight Kurt seemed like an apparition from the other world. Only his brown eyes set deep in their sockets glowed with humanity and, I should say, with a love and humility that comes from profound suffering.

"You want to ask me about Russia," Kurt said after we settled on his unmade cot. "What more is there to say?"

"Has there been any change since the death of Stalin?" I asked.

"Hardly. The big dictator is gone but the little dictators in the Kremlin continue to rule with an iron fist."

After Stalin's death, Kurt told me, ordinary Russians said under their breath: "Thank God he's gone." Their attitude was one of expectancy.

Then came the execution of Lavrenti Beria, former chief of the Soviet secret police. The people rejoiced. "The Lord remembered us," thy said.

Russians began to speak more openly. There was hope. People were even seized by a religious fervor, especially in the forced deaths of Stalin and Beria "the finger of God." Parts of the New Testament, copied by hand, began to circulate in the camps and became the prisoners' most prized possession.

"Unfortunately, by the time I left Russia last January the Russian people no longer hoped," Kurt said. "Stalin's successors became frightened. The blood purges and the terror were beginning to take their toll. One cannot fight armed dictatorship with bare fists and the Bible.

Kurt was 13 when his father, a social democrat, died in a Nazi concentration camp. Four years later he was drafted for service in Hitler's Reichswehr. That was in 1938.

Kurt was to have served only two years but the tyrants who ruled the destinies of little men decreed differently.

When Kurt finally returned "home" to the Western sector of Berlin 15 years later he had spent six years as a German soldier on the Russian front and nine as a "war criminal" in a Soviet slave labor camp.

The house where he had lived was destroyed by Allied bombs. Mother and sisters were dead. Only his grandmother remained alive.

"The trouble with the world today is that human life is no longer an issue," Kurt said as I got up to leave. "No one pretends to care any more — unless they are one's relatives or close friends — whether people are killed or not."

For a moment neither of us spoke. Kurt was obviously in great pain, gasping for breath. Frau Schmid, who continued to hover over us, muttered something under her breath.

"Don't worry, grossmutter," Kurt said, patting the old woman on the head, "you and I shall live again."

For the first time during my visit Frau Schmid smiled.

March Critical Month

Job Picture Better

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 —UP— Government officials said Wednesday there is a "good chance" employment will pick up next month as the administration hopes.

There are signs that unemployment already is levelling off, they said, although at a somewhat higher point than the government reported for January.

The Census Bureau tentatively estimated unemployment at 3,887,000 during the first week in January. Since then, the total is believed to have climbed by several hundred thousand.

Situation Expected to Ease

Officials expect the unemployment situation to ease somewhat in March but they said there probably will not be any sizeable decrease in unemployment until June or July. Nevertheless, any improvement is welcome to the administration.

President Eisenhower said recently that if employment failed to show a definite upturn in March it would be a warning that would call for government measures — including possible tax cuts — to bolster the economy.

Tuesday night in Flint, Mich., Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell predicted that unemployment will level off soon.

No Significant Increase

He said there may be a slight but not significant increase in unemployment during March and April.

"Then for another few months we will rest at that level," he said.

On the basis of an increase in employmen insurance claims, government officials said the February census bureau survey probably will show several hundred thousand more jobless than last month.

The unemployment insurance program covers only 36 million of the, 60 million persons in the nation's labor force. But it is considered an important indicator of the overall employment situation. This is particularly true now since the program covers workers in factories where layoffs have contributed significantly to unemployment.

Red Cross Plans First Aid Course

Pampa's Red Cross chapter will sponsor a first aid instructors' course here Monday through Friday, according to Mrs. F. W. Shotwell, chapter secretary. H. H. Gilliam, first aid and water safety instructor on the national RC staff, will teach the class which will meet each evening at 7 in the commissioners' court room in the City Hall.

Persons wishing to take the 15-hour course must have standard and advanced first aid certificates. Registered nurses, doctors and dentists are exempt from this rule, however. Anyone from the neighboring towns who can qualify may also take the course, Mrs. Shotwell advised.

Mrs. Shotwell stated that there is a definite need here for first aid instructors. She has had several requests for first aid classes which cannot be taught because of the lack of instructors. Also, in conjunction with next year's civil defense program, the chapter here hopes to instruct one person in each block in first aid procedures to prepare them to take care of the block in case of an atomic attack. In order to do this, instructors are needed.

Whilte in Pampa, Gilliam would like to confer with those who are already instructors and with those who wish to be instructors, Mrs. Shotwell added.

Roberts Obtains Election Supplies

Lefors Schools Superintendent Archie Roberts was in the court house late this morning to pick up whatever election supplies he could from the office of County Clerk Charlie Thut.

And he got everything but the ballots themselves.

Roberts needs election supplies for the proposed $300,000 bond issue election on a school building and renovation of existing facilities, scheduled for 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday — a week from today — in the Lefors schools business office, located on the north side of the Corner Drug, Lefors.

Two items will be voted on in the election, he said. One of them will be the upping of the tax rate from $1 to $1.50; the other, authorization of a bond issue "up to $300,000." But, he added, the actual rate hike would be only $1.35 "at present."

Absentee voting would take place he continued today, as soon as the ballots arrived. They are being printed now.

To be eligible, a potential voter must have been a resident of the Lefors school district for six months, must own property that has been duly rendered for taxation and must hold a poll tax receipt.

The new building would house a gymnasium, band hall, cafeteria and vocational shop.

All the students are members of Mrs. Elaine Ledbetter's chemistry classes and were scheduled to gather in the school auditorium at 12:45 p.m. today for a movie, entitled "A Study in Black." Nuckols Sees '54-55 School Roll Decline

A slight decline in Gray County school enrollment for the 1954-55 school year is expected, according to B. R. Nuckols, county school superintendent.

This was revealed in figures tabulated from a recent census of county school-age children. These figures were for county schools only and did not include the census taken in Pampa.

Tabulation of the Pampa census is expected to be completed within the next few days, Nuckols said.

The figures from five school districts of the county showed total of 1,092 children of school age, as compared to 1,111 last year, a decrease of 19.

McLean and Alanreed were the only districts showing a decrease, while Hopkins and Alanreed showed slight increases, but Grandview remained the same as last year, with 52.

Hopkins has 137 school-age children this year, one more than last year's total of 136, while Lefors showed an increase of 11, with 360 this year and 349 last year.

McLean dropped from 482 last year to 467 in the recent census, while Alanreed had 92 in the 1953 census and dropped to 76 this year.

Nuckols said that he had been informed that the number of six-year-olds in Pampa has dropped considerably and he predicted that the final total would be smaller this year due to this factor.

The census is taken annually to determine the number of children who will be six years of age on or before Sept. 1 and who will not have reached their 18th birthday before that date.

Conley Returns From Washington

Don M. Conley, chairman of the Gray County Republican executive committee, was back in Pampa today from Washington, D. C., and a safety-conference called by President Dwight Eisenhower.

Only one Republican, LeRoy (Pete) LaMaster, of Perryton, has entered a race so far from the Top o' Texas area. He is running for Rep. Walter Rogers' seat in the U. S. House of Representatives.

City To Observe Industrial Week

Industrial week will be observed again this year in Pampa April 1-7.

This was decided at a meeting of the Industrial committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Tuesday afternoon in the chamber office.

A special committee to make plans for Pampa's observance of the special week was appointed. This group will work with Chairman Gordon Lyons in working up an activity program for the week. Members of the committee are John Frick, George Newberry and James A. McCune.

Industrial week is observed annually throughout the state under a proclamation by the governor and is proclaimed by the state legislature. Purpose of the week, Lyons said, is to give recognition to Texas industry and to point out the value to the state of these industries.

It's Called 'Snighing'

She Tames Horses With Nose Music

By TOM CULLEN
NEA Special Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — Mrs. Barbara Woodhouse, of Croxley Green, "talks" to horses, and if what she says is true, ranch hands had better start heading for the last roundup.

Bronco-busting is not out of style. Rodeo-riding is a thing of the past. Today's cow-puncher has got to have magnetism and something called "nose power." He's got to be able to breathe sweet nothings down the nostrils of the crittur he aims to tame.

Getting close enough to a mustang to breathe down its nostrils is simple. All a cow-hand has to do is to make short, staccato-like snorts with his own schnozzola, and the mustang will come a-running.

The whole thing is known as "snighing," and the champion "snigher" of them all is Mrs. Woodhouse, who has three children and a farm down in Hartfordshire. Mrs. Woodhouse is probably the only woman on record wo break in wild horses by snighing at them.

She is also the only woman in the United Kingdom who takes seven cows with her when she goes for a summer vacation to the seashore.

Today snighing is giving birdwatching a run for its money as England's most popular outdoor pastime. On by-paths and back lanes the foliage trembles with the "nose music" of those who would soothe savage beasts.

The technique is not new, but was known to American Indians, according to Mrs. Woodhouse.

"When a buffalo herd was pursued," she explains, "it would abandon its calves, who would bury their heads in sage clumps and make like invisible.

"An Indian would sneak up on a calf, clap his hands over its eyes and then breath down its nostrils. After that the calf would be as meek as a lamb."

It was from a Guaranee Indian in Argentina, where she stayed for five years on a lonely cattle ranch, that Mrs. Woodhouse learned the trick. Thereafter she got $1.50 a nose for every horse she broke in by this method.

"I used to reckon to get a horse going quite nicely in two hours."

Snighing overcomes fear in animals, and most wickedness is caused by fear, in Mrs. Woodhouse's opinion.

"I once broke in a horse that had killed three men who had tried to master it," she relates. "I brought it home to England, where it made quite a gentle mount for my children."

She has also tried snighing on cattle.

Mrs. Woodhouse receives from 70 to 80 letters a week from fellow snighers. One of them wants to know whether she has tried her method on a mule. She hasn't.

Manufacturers of recognized brands constantly strive to give you the best — because, after all, that's just good business. Competition with the makers of other brands stimulates them to keep their standards high, to improve their brands, and to offer you better products and more attractive values.

Former Pampan Feted With Shower

A bridal shower for Mrs. James Arthur Gray was given recently at the home of Mrs. Joe E. Wilson, 917 S. Dwight, nee Miss Veda Speight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Speight, of Amarillo. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Gray, longtime residents of Pampa, now of Amarillo.

The newly married couple has just returned from a honeymoon trip to Houston. They are making their home in Amarillo.

The lime green and tangerine color scheme was carried out in the orange sherbet punch and beautifully decorated white bride's cake. A miniature bride and groom at the top of the cake was given to the bride when she was served. There were favors of nuts and candies and place cards inscribed with "Veda and James, Arthur." A larger bride and groom under a bower of flowers and greens was mirrored at the center of the table. Corsages of white carnations were presented the bride and the bridegroom's mother. Prizes for games and favorite recipes were given the bride.

Hostesses were Mmes. Wilson, A. P. Stark, W. D. Powers and Burl Graham.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend;

Sometime ago I read in your column a letter regarding the saving of cigarette package strips for the purpose of obtaining seeing-eye dogs for the blind.

There is a label on a dog's food can which helps the blind own trained guide dogs free for every label that the purchaser of the can sends in.

Thought your readers might be interested in serving this way while buying pet food.

Enjoy your column very much and try never to miss it. Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
B. A.

DIETEERS

Hello, Grace Friend;

Our club, The Dieteers, now has openings for new members. We are a group of women striving to lose weight for our health and happiness.

We would appreciate it if you would give us some help in letting the ladies know there is such a club.

Our new prospective members should be from 25 to 45 years of age, and be married. Their need to lose 20 lbs. or more is required.

We meet every Tuesday evening and enjoy ourselves along with the serious problem of losing weight.

Thanks a lot, Grace Friend, and may the new year see you helping as many, if not more, people through your column as you did last year.

A Dieteer

BACON FAT

Dear Grace Friend;

I enjoy your column so much.

I wonder if any of your readers would like bacon fat. I don't like to throw it away, if anyone could use it.

I used to make soap but do not anymore.

Yours sincerely,
M. M.

Older Beauties Stay Beautiful, Slender By Dieting, Walking

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD — UP — Gloria Swanson is 55, Marlene Dietrich 53, and Joan Crawford, Barbara Stanwyck, Ginger Rogers, Loretta Young and Irene Dunne in their 40's.

Yet, they are the reigning beauties of Hollywood, still with youthful figures and faces.

How do they stay that way?

Diet, they agree, is the most important factor in staying young.

NO RICH FOOD

Grandmother Swanson is a vegetarian and eats only fresh fruits, vegetables, whole wheat breads and the like. She cooks the vegetables herself in a pressure cooker with little water. At dinner parties, she confesses, she just toys with the rich, heavy foods.

Loretta Young confines herself to lean meats, fruits and vegetables.

"I always skip desserts," she says. "No girl can be ugly with a gorgeous figure, and any girl can have a nice shape if she's willing to work at it."

Loretta walks a great deal for exercise. She uses creams, plus soap and water on her face. Her makeup consists of lipstick, a light dusting of powder and rouge, plus mascara.

Barbara Stanwyck never covers her beautiful complexion with powder. She wears a touch of eye-shadow and lipstick at night and usually no make-up at all by day. She uses only soap and water on her face, but believes women with dry skins should try creams.

TIME FOR BEAUTY

This veteran actress has let her hair go frankly gray. She has it washed, cut and set at least twice a week at the hairdresser. To women who wail they never would have the time, she says:

"When I'm not working I organize my entire day with appointments. You can have your hair set in the time you would waste over a second cup of coffee."

Joan Crawford's recipe for glamor and youth is the look on your face. She believes beauty is a state of mind. She says her secret is a look of "giving."

"Charm is an attitude and so are the lines in one's face," she says. "There is hidden charm in all of us if we will tap it by being courageous enough to reach for it."

She also believes in good grooming. Joan is a devotee of white gloves. But she doesn't start the day with just one pair. She tucks an extra pair in her handbag, so that when the originals get soiled she can whip out immaculate ones.

Youth Division Plans Entertainment For Methodist Dinner

The Youth Division of the First Methodist Church will present a varied entertainment program tonight at the family night covered dish supper at 7:00 in the church.

The Senior Department will present a short play entitled "Classroom Daze" with Keith Bonny, John Warner, Bety Jo Tooley and Nancy Coley as the "stars."

A clever 'opera' Othello is planned by the Intermediates for lots of laughs. The leading roles are to be played by Nancy Goodnight, La Gene Caldwell, Carolyn Ford, Eulene Moore, Lynda Bonny and La Vantia Beckerdite.

Jerry Sloan and Jimmy Bond will present musical numbers. John "Scooter" Warner will present a very unusual sportscast as Devotional.

Acting as Master of Ceremonies for the program will be James Vicars.

Altrusa Ends Year's Business At Meet

Mrs. Frank Shotwell conducted an information quiz on Altrusa International at an Altrusa Club meeting Monday night in the Pine Room at the Schneider Hotel. Yearly reports were given by Mrs. Lillian Snow, public relations chairman, and Mrs. Carlton Nance, finance chairman. Mrs. W. M. Weston who gave the treasurer's report for the year gave recommendations for balancing the club budget. Mrs. Otis Nace closed the meeting with a report from the election committee. The group will elect new officers at the next meeting March 8.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Carol F., 11-yeatrs-old, can't admit a mistake.

For example, cleaning the bathroom is her Saturday morning chore. She'll announce that it's finished—when it isn't. Pointing to the unwashed window sill and spattered cabinet mirror, her mother will say, "You haven't cleaned them, Carol."

Then Carol' sface tightens into stubbornness. Insistenly and untruthfully, she says, "I did so clean them."

Mrs. F. has two ways of dealing with this resistance to correction. Sometimes, losing her temper, she stands over Carol threateningly until she completes her work.

Sometimes, in another mood, she'll remember the child-training books' advice to praise children. So she'll say soothingly, "Never mind, dear. You've straightened the towels nicely, anyway" — and wash the sill and mirror herself.

Neither way changes Carol's resistance to correction. The angry first one just makes her angry, too. The second one, since it condones Carol's mistakes, justifies her continuing resentment toward any criticism of them.

Mrs. F. might begin to tell whole truths instead of half ones to Carol. For the whole truth is that she has done both good work and poor work in the bathroom.

To focus our entire attention on the neglected sill and mirror is as unrealistic as it is to concentrate it entirely on the tidy towels. We have a child who, like the rest of us, has done some things well and some things not so well.

So Mrs. F. might try saying: "The washbowl looks fine. And how neatly you've arranged the towels. It is such a shining bathroom that it seems a pity to forget the sill and the mirror . . ."

And let it go at that.

Fear of correction develops from unbalanced praise or unbalanced criticism.

So let's watch unmixed praise and unmixed criticism. We can ignore a child's mistakes and inflate and flatter his successes until he gets to expecting such grand things from himself that any failure is intolerable.

Or we can ignore Carol's good work and concentrate her attention on her failures until she comes to expect too little from herself. Then of course any suggestion that she can do better scares her into anger and resistance.

Nobody rates total praise or total condemnation. Like Carol, all of us need the praise to give balance to the criticism. It's this balance that gives us the realistic self-respect that can admit mistakes.

The American Legion Auxiliary met Thursday night in the City Club Rooms with Mrs. Al Lawson and Mrs. Lyle Stout as hostesses.

Mrs. F. W. Shotwell, president, was in charge of the business meeting which was opened by advancing the colors and the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Invocation was given by the chaplain, Mrs. Diamia Wood, closing with a moment of silent prayer in memory of the war dead.

Luxie's High Brow Juke Box Keeps 'Crummy Ones' Away

By JAMES FLOWERS
NEA Staff Correspondent

CLEVELAND —(NEA)— There's a fabulous place here where all the "longhairs" hang out.

It's a tavern operated by a big, gruff, opera-loving character name of Albert "Luxie 'Luxenburg. His customers come from miles around to play the juke box because all 100 numbers are classical — mostly arias from operas.

The place is thick with atmosphere. An oil painting of Carmen graces one wall, and directly over the bar hangs a huge oil of Prince Igor from Borodin's opera. Fresh flowers are everywhere — just like an opening night.

When "Luxie" opened the spot 18 years ago he wanted a way to keep assorted bums and "crummy ones" out. So, he installed a bouncer he dearly loves — a juke box with high-brow music.

"It's worked beautifully, too," he says. "Occasionally we get an eccentric who wanders over to the box in search of something by that Johnny Ray or those Hilltoppers. Oughta see his jaw drop when he sees the selections. But before he can say anything I tell him if he doesn't like it I feel sorry fo him. Real sorry."

If the guy leaves in a huff the proprietor simply shrugs, returns to the other contented people and says, "good riddance." But if he lingers a while "Luxie" sort of swells with pride as if he has converted a person to some mystic faith.

Luxenburg's favorite on the juke box is "Stars Were Shining Bright" from Puccini's "La Tosca." "My mother took me to hear this opera when I was seven years old," he says. "I've loved it ever since. It's wonderful.'

The customers seem to like this number, too, because in eight years time this record alone made $300 profit for the juke box. It's a good bet, too, that some of the profit was "Luxies" own money.

There's always a congenial group at the place quietly soaking up Beethoven with bourbon or Bach with beer. Most of them drop in often and listen to their favorite music.

"They're music lovers all right," says the cultured barkeep. "If they weren't they wouldn't pay 10 cents a selection. And when they drop in a quarter they get three numbrs. Whatta bargain! Where else could they hear such beautiful music so cheap?"

Crucial Vote Upcoming For Italian Solons

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign Analyst

A day or so from now democracy gets what could be a "yes" or "no" vote in Italy.

The stakes will be high when the 232 Italian senators rise in their somber marble chamber to decide after a week of slanderous name-calling whether they have confidence in the government of premier-designate Mario Scelba.

For Scelba, a balding man noted for his tough anti-communism, represents what may be the last chance for the four center parties in Italian politics to get together to form a government.

If Scelba wins in the Senate and later in the 590-seat chamber of deputies, then Italy will be pledged to a government patterned along the same lines as the former De Gasperi government which led Italy into the NATO western defensive alliance and was a firm advocate of the European defense community.

Needless to say, the United States and its Western partners would like to see Scelba win.

The alternative for Italy, almost certainly would be a swing either to the political right or left with disadvantages in both for the Western Allies.

A move to the left probably would see the inclusion of left-wing Socialists in the government, possibly paving the way for later Communist participation. The left-wing socialists and Communists already have a working arrangement in the Italian parliament.

A move to the right would mean the monarchists would be invited into the government.

Middle of the road leaders such as Alcide De Gasperi and Scelba fear such a drift would set off serious labor trouble, widespread strikes and riots.

The Reds certainly would not cooperate with the United States or NATO. The monarchists never have fully committed themselves.

At the moment, Scelba is confident of victory.

He and his supporters expect him to win by 10 votes in the Senate and by a margin of 16 in the Chamber of Deputies.

But the margin is so small there is considerable doubt about how long he can stay.

Scelba is a 52-year-old Sicilian lawyer who, like De Gasperi, is one of the founders of the Christian Democratic party. As a five-time minister of the interior, he organized the riot police who crushed the threat of a red plot to seize the government in 1948. The Reds hate him, and the feeling is returned with interest.

Society Leader Says Cocktail Party Losing General Appeal

(Editor's Note: The following is another dispatch about how society leaders in various cities entertain.)

By DIANE FOSTER

SAN FRANCISCO — UP— Mrs. Kenneth Monteagle, one of San Francisco's most charming hostesses, believes the cocktail party is on its way out.

At least it is in the bay area, she said, where any large gathering necessarily includes guests who must come from their homes 20 to 50 miles away. Invitations to cocktail parties leave these guests stranded with making their own arrangements for dinner.

Recently, Mrs. Monteagle and other hostesses have been solving this problem by serving cocktails, but having a large buffet of cold ham or turkey, bread and tossed green salad.

Mrs. Monteagle, a slender, handsome woman with an engaging smile, manages a great deal of private entertaining besides figuring prominently in San Francisco's two biggest social events of the year — opening night of the opera and the debutante cotillion.

Informal Dinners

Mrs. Monteagle's favorite way of entertaining even as many as 50 to 60 persons is an informal dinner—with the accent on comfort and plenty of room.

Guests usually are seated at card tables topped by removable round tops, allowing six to eight persons to sit at each table. The first and last course — coffee and dessert— are served to the guests at their places, but for the main course guests serve themselves at a large buffet table.

For a large crowd the card tables are set up in the dining room, glassed-in sun porch and in the garden, with the buffet table on an enclosed terrace. A cocktail bar is set up in a separate room, leaving the living room and entrance way free of tables and dishes so guests may roam unhindered.

Speeds Lagging Guest

In addition, Mrs. Monteagle is active in the Opera Guild and the De Young Museum Society. Both organizations plan large balls and other events to raise money for art and operatic activities.

Mrs. Monteagle also is on the women's board of the St. Luke's hospital, and the Cotillion Club committee which plans the annual "coming out" of the season's debutantes.

The social schedule is vigorous. But Mrs. Monteagle says she makes time for her only hobby — gardening — at her home in San Mateo's fashionable residential section. The brick house centers on more than an acre of wooded land.

One problem some famous hostesses have has never plagued Mrs. Monteagle. That's the problem of lagging guests or gate crashers.

"If I had such a problem," she said, "I'd use firmness."

WACKY TAXI—Latest in Hawaii's transportation is the thatched-roof "shaxi." Mamo Howell, left, of Honolulu, and Carol Haverfield, of the U. S., are pleased passengers as they take a motorized shaxi cruise along the shore of Waikiki Beach.

Harvester-EP Series Is A Complete Sellout

Largest Pre-Game Ticket Sale In PHS Cage History

The biggest pre-season basketball ticket-sale in Pampa High School's history resulted in the ducat sale for the bi-district series between the Harvesters and El Paso, school business manager Roy McMillen reported today.

All tickets are sold out for both Thursday and Friday night's game, McMillen said.

The only chance that there'll be a few more tickets is if the student section doesn't fill up. A section in the downstairs bleachers has been reserved for the students and the kids will have until game-time to pick them up.

But if all of these tickets aren't sold then they'll be placed on sale at the ticket office tomorrow night.

"It's the biggest advance sale we've ever had," McMillen said this morning. "And we'd sold out long before now if our office had two telephones," McMillen said.

The school business office has been taking ticket orders since Monday by both telephone and personal appearance.

First of the bi-district series has been set for 8 p.m. tomorrow with the second game to start at the same time Friday. If a third game is needed, it will be unreeled Saturday, also at 8 p.m. All games will be played in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Coach Clifton McNeely of the Harvesters announced the game officials for the series today. Joe Burns and Pete Creasy, both of Fort Worth, will officiate the series games. These two fellows are being sent here by the Texas Interscholastic League.

El Paso left this morning for Pampa and will arrive here late this afternoon and will work out in Harvester Fieldhouse tonight.

BACK HOME—Blanton Collier, long-time aide to Coach Paul Brown and the Brains behind the Browns, returns to his native Kentucky as head coach successor to Paul (Bear) Bryant. The University granted Collier a three-year contract for his first college coaching endeavor. (NEA)

SUMMIT, N.J., Feb. 24 —UP— Lightweight champion Jimmy Carter, who weighed 136 1-2 pounds Tuesday after boxing four rounds, plans to spar again Wednesday in preparation for his title fight against Paddy DeMarco at Madison Square Garden, March 5.

All-District 1-AAAA Basketball Team To Be Released Next Sunday

THE ALL - DISTRICT 1-AAAA team will be released this coming Sunday. Once again the picking for the all-district five gets pretty rough.

Picking the all-district five are coaches and sports scribes of the meber schools. No coach or scribe was allowed to vote for his own players.

Our first team differs by only one player from the one picked by Harvester coach Clifton McNeely.

McNeely's first five consists of:
Ken Hutto, Amarillo.
Bub Farrell, Amarillo.
Allen Simpson, Borger.
Wade Wolfe, Lubbock.
Tom Dyer, Midland.

Our first team picks are the same except that we put Lubbock's Dale Ball on the first five in place of his teammate, Wolfe.

On McNeely's second team were Roy Davis of Odessa, Twyman Ash of Abilene, Dale Ball of Lubbock, Mike Kelley of Borger and Milton Nickel of San Angelo.

Our second team selections are Jackie Collier of Amarillo, Nickel of San Angelo, Davis of Odessa, Dan Boyd of Abilene and Kelley of Borger.

By including the Harvesters on the all-star voting, here would be our first team:
Jimmy Bond, Pampa.
Allen Simpson, Borger.
Ken Hutto, Amarillo.
Dale Ball, Lubbock.
Gary Griffin, Pampa.
Our second team would be:
Bub Farrell, Amarillo.
E. Jay McIlvain, Pampa.
Wade Wolfe, Lubbock.
Tom Dyer, Midland.
Milton Nickel, San Angelo.

We don't know how close we'll come to picking the all-dsitrict five but we didn't do badly in predicting the outcome of the District 1-AAAA race.

It's not too often we get a chance to boast a little but, in our pre-season prediction, we had Pampa, Amarillo and Borger in 1-2-3 order. All ended that way except that Borger tied for third with Lubbock.

Lubbock, in fact, spoiled our predictions for picking the top 4. We had then in 7th in our predictions. San Angelo was our fourth place pick and she finished fifth.

The all-district teams will be announced in Sunday's edition of the newspapers around the district.

RALPH (BAYLOR) McKINNEY is in the market for a new putter.

It seems that Ralph had a little mishap over the weekend in which he came up with no putter. Ralph, who takes his golf rather seriously, couldn't seem to get his golf ball to drop into the cup once on the carpet during a round Sunday.

His associates report that Ralph's putter was found in two pieces between the 18th green and the clubhouse following the round. Too many 3-putt greens was believed to have had something to do with the fate of the putter.

McLean Loses Bi-District Tilt To Sudan

McLEAN, Feb. 24 —(Special)— The McLean Tigers were back home here Wednesday after dropping a 47-39 "heart-breaker" decision to the Sudan Mustangs for the bi-district championship in West Texas' huge Fieldhouse last night.

The Tigers of Hap Rogers' couldn't find their scoring eye throughout the tilt as they hit only 13 of 55 chances. McLean stayed within striking distance of the Mustangs most of the way but their "cold" shooting couldn't overcome the early lead the Sudan team built up.

Sudan led 11-8 at the first quarter mark, 24-16 at halftime and 33-27 at the third quarter stage.

Pod Hill was the thorn in the McLean's side, the Sudan star taking high point honors with 18 points in addition to getting most of the Mustang rebounds.

Rodney Gunn was the leading McLean scorer last night with 14 points.

Neither team had much luck from the free throw line, McLean making 14 out of 27 while Sudan was making 20 of 39.

McLean thus closed its season with a 26-3 record, one of the best marks ever compiled by a Tiger basketball team. Four of the five starters in last night's game will return next year in what promises to be another good year in the cage sport at McLean High School.

Wayne Moore, the Tiger captain, is the lone senior on the 1953-54 McLean starting five. Returning from the starting lineup next year will be Gunn, Jim Farren, Rickey Mantooth and James Jolly.

Sudan, in winning last night's tilt, gained the right to play in the Regional Tournament at Lubbock this weekend.

A large delegation of McLean fans followed the Tigers to Canyon for last night's bi-district tilt.

Army Gets Lion Football Star

DETROIT, Feb. 24 —UP— Gene Gedman, right halfback for the National Football League champion Detroit Lions, was inducted into the Army Wednesday.

The 22-year-old power runner, Detroit's No. 2 draft choice a year ago, played a key role in the Lions drive to their second straight NFL title the past season.

He was Detroit's fourth leading ground gainer with 255 yards in 53 rushes and scored three touchdowns. In addition, he grabbed 14 passes for 121 yards.

The squat 195-pounder from Indiana opened last season as second string right halfback behind Bob Hoernschemeyer, another Indiana alumnus. However, he held the position all alone in the closing weeks after Hoernschemeyer was switched to fullback.

Coach Buddy Parker termed Gedman's loss "a serious setback to our hopes for a third straight championship."

Reapers Bow In Finale, 50-42

The Pampa Junior High Reapers closed out their 1953-54 season yesterday at Amarillo where they dropped a 50-42 decision to Sam Houston in a Panhandle Conference tilt.

The loss left the Reapers with a record of five wins and nine losses in conference play. For the season, the Reapers won 10 and lost 11.

Larry McWilliams was the top Reaper scorer in yesterday's tilt with 14 points. Dickie Mauldin, the season's leading scorer for the Reapers, was held to nine points.

Jack Taylor with 15 and Spud Cason with 11 led the Sam Houston scorers.

The Reapers matched Sam Houston in field goals, each hitting 15 time from the floor. But Sam Houston fared better at the gift line which proved to be the difference, the Buffs making 20 to the Reapers' 12.

17-Year-Old In Net Lead

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 24 —UP— Mike Green, the 17-year-old National high school champion from Miami Beach, held a 4-3 lead over Swedish star Sven Davidson Wednesday as their first-round match in the Miami Invitation tennis tournament was resumed.

Davidson, fresh from his capture of the U. S. National Indoor championship, had plenty of trouble switching from the indoor game to the grass-court variety in the opening games of the match late Tuesday before darkness intervened.

The fourth-seeded Swede, one of the world's best hard court players but unfamiliar with turf courts, was off on both his baseline and service accuracy as Green scored repeatedly on cross-court forehand drives and passing shots.

Two other seeded stars were unable to complete their matches Tuesday before darkness set in, but they were leading comfortably. Top-seeded Art Larsen, former national champion from San Leandro, Calif., was leading Walter Blauvelt of Boston, 3-2, while Kurt Nielsen of Denmark, who lost to Davidson in the indoor finals, won his opening set from Jack Flood of Coral Gables, Fla., 6-0.

Defending champion Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., easily gained the third round with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Larry Marcus of Los Angeles. His third-round rival has not yet been determined.

Tyler, Lon Morris In Jr. C. Finals

TYLER, Tex., Feb. 24 —UP— Host Tyler Junior College and Lon Morris were set to meet Wednesday night, as forecast, in the finals of the Region 14 junior college basketball tournament.

Tyler rolled over Paris 77 to 62 Tuesday night and Lon Morris rapped Wharton, 89 to 61. Both winners scored 100-point plus victories in the quarter-finals Monday night.

The Lon Morris-Tyler winner will advance to the National Junior College tournament at Hutchinson, Kan., next month.

Bryan Miller scored 21 points in Tyler's victory over the Dragons, while Bob Burrows led Lon Morris with 27.

Yale Favored To Win Track Title

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 —UP— George Eastman, pessimistic coach of Manhattan College's defending champions, Wednesday picked Yale to win the IC4-A indoor track and field championships Saturday at Madison Square Garden.

"As of now I believe we can award the team title to Yale," Eastment said. "I think Yale—on the basis of its performance Monday—can win on a basis of 27 points."

Bob Giegengack's Yale team, dominating the middle distance races and field events, scored 59 3-4 points Monday to defeat Harvard and Princeton in a triangular meet at New Haven, Conn.

"I didn't get to see too much at that meet because they made me a timer as soon as I showed up, but what I did see convinced me Yale will be the team to beat Saturday," Eastman added.

Only 2 Berths Remain Unfilled

Irish, Navy, Rams Get NCAA Invites

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 —UP— NCAA basketball tournament officials, who Tuesday night added Notre Dame, Navy, and Fordham to their post-season carnival, will try Wednesday to pick their last two eastern independents from a field of 15 eligibles.

The five-man selection committee, it was learned, was scheduled Wednesday to make its final picks. It was also learned that the NCAA berth reserved for the New England conference champion will go to the winner of Saturday's game between Holy Cross (20-1) and Connecticut (19-2).

Notre Dame, (17-2), Navy (16-6), and Fordham (17-4) all were selected as eastern "members at large," that is, independent teams from east of the Mississippi.

It was learned that among the 15 teams being considered for the two remaining eastern "at large" berths are: Penn State, Cincinnati, Loyola of the South, Mississippi Southern, St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., Lawrence Tech of Detroit, Syracuse, Temple, Bowling Green, Xavier of Ohio, and De Paul.

Duke Is Champion

Action on the court Tuesday night saw Duke clinch the first regular season championship of the new Atlantic Coast Conference, Rice and Texas both blow a chance to take over sole possession of the Southwest Conference lead, and the fabulous Clarence (Bevo) Francis suffered a foot injury.

Duke wrapped up the ACC title with an easy 89 to 55 victory over South Carolina at Durham, N.C., as Marty Doherty controlled both backboards for the Dukes and also led the scoring with 18 points. An NCAA berth does not go with the regular-season title — that's reserved for the winner of the league's post-season tourney which opens March 4 in Raleigh. Duke will be seeded first in that tournament.

Rice and Texas, tied for the lead in the Southwest loop, both suffered upsets to remain deadlocked, each with two more league games to play. Baylor scored 12 points in an overtime period, eight of them by Murray Bailey, to beat Rice 76 to 73, although Rices' Don Lance led all scorers with 23 points. Southern Methodist handed Texas its worst beating of the year 90 to 63, as five Mustangs hit in double figures with Derrell Murphy tops at 24 points.

A Sprained Muscle

Francis suffered a badly-sprained muscle in his left foot in the final quarter after tallying 54 points to lead Rio Grande to a 121 to 81 victory over Ashland College. It was not known whether the injury would keep Francis from playing in the NAIB tournament next week in Cleveland.

Frank Selvy of Furman scored 58 points in a 117 to 73 win over Wofford and ran his total of free throws this season to 327—five short of the all-time major-college single-season mark of 332 held by Johnny O'Brien of Seattle.

In other leading games George Washington trounced Maryland, 70 to 51, as colonial star Corky Devlin Niagara, bound for the National Invitation Tournament, swept to its eighth straight win, 80 to 45 over Brockport, N. Y., State Teachers; St. Francis (N.Y.), also NIT bound, scored its 13th straight victory 82 to 49, over Brooklyn College; and Washington State beat Idaho 56 to 44, in the Pacific Coast Conference.

The Oklahoma Aggies (21-1 with a 7-0 league record) will try to clinch the Missouri Valley Conference championship and NCAA berth Wednesday night by beating second-place Wichita (23-3 with a 6-2 league mark) at Stillwater, Okla. Wichita already has accepted an NIT bid, with the proviso it will switch to the NCAA if it wins the league title. Holy Cross tries for its 21st win Wednesday night against Dartmouth.

2 Local Teams To Bowl In State Gal Meet

Two teams from Pampa will take part in the annual Texas Women's Bowling Association tournament this weekend at Austin.

Neal Sparks Cleaners and Cabot Carbon are sending teams to the state tourney. Members of the Sparks team are Oak Allee Whittle, Miriam Luedders, Mildred Fulfer, Sally Hegwer and Netta Alexander.

Members of the Cabot Carbon team are Reva Tomblin, Mary Crocker, Fern Black, Pat Howell and Alberta Rader.

Mildred Fulfer and Reva Tomblin will be Pampa's representatives at the annual association meeting Friday night.

The Sparks team will bowl Friday afternoon in the state tourney while Cabot Carbon is slated for action Saturday night. The girls will bowl their doubles and singles on Saturday and Sunday mornings.

In last night's Top o' Texas Bowling League at Pampa Bowl, Sue McFall captured both individual scoring honors. McFall, bowling for Sparks Cleaners, had 199 for high game and 506 for high series.

There were no clean sweeps in team play last night. Three teams won by 3-1 counts. They were Sparks Cleaners over Service Liquor, Smith's Shoes over Behrman's, and Falstaff over Celanese. The other game ended in a 2-2 draw between Jefferies and Poole's Drive-In.

Team scoring honors were divided. Service Cleaners had the high team game with 767 while Sparks Cleaners had the high team series with 2,188.

Gavilan Wins In 'Tuneup' For Title Bout

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24 —UP— Flashy Kid Gavilan, who appeared content to settle for the easy decision he scored in his tune-up bout Tuesday night against Johnny Cunningham, summed it up tersely Wednesday: "I needed the work."

Welterweight champion Gavilan signed for the non-title bout at Miami Beach Auditorium as a workout for his April 2 title shot at middleweight king Bobo Olson.

And he appeared most anxious to get in the maximum 10 rounds of boxing—toying with his Baltimore rival through the opening minutes of each round and landing his heaviest blows only when the sessions were drawing to a close. He didn't have to worry much about losing, for Cunningham was outclassed and was unable to make even a very interesting fight.

At no time did the one-time Baltimore trash collector threaten to spring an upset like he did here last fall when he defeated world lightweight champion Jimmy Carter.

Cunningham explained his poor showing by saying that he had a boil under his right arm, which prevented him from tossing full-power blows with that fist. Johnny said he didn't even tell his managers about the handicap until the sixth round "because I wanted the fight to go on."

Scoring under the national boxing association's new "10 point must" system proved surprisingly close on the official cards. Referee Eddie Coachman favored Gavilan, 99-92, while Judge Gus Jacobson had it, 97-91. Judge Carl Gardner scored it lopsided at 100-81.

The bout drew a Miami Beach record crowd of 4,055, topping the mark of 3,975 set by the Ezzard Charles-Nino Valdes bout last Aug. 11. The gate was $16,532.

BROWNWOOD, Tex., Feb. 24—UP—The Texas Conference basketball title was held Wednesday by Howard Payne College, which cinched the championship Tuesday night with a 75 to 61 win over McMurry.

Howard Payne will wind up its conference schedule Saturday night at Abilene against Abilene Christian College.

Dykes-Jones Bout Set

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 —UP— Middleweights Bobby Dykes of San Antonio and Ralph (Tiger) Jones of Yonkers, N. Y., have been signed for the feature, 10-round bout at Eastern Parkway Arena, March 8.

Arizona State Coach Named

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 24—UP—Howard Brown, former Hoosier guard and line coach at Arizona State in Tempe the last two years, was appointed freshman football coach at his alma mater Tuesday. Brown also will act as student progress counselor.

Texas, Rice 5s Are Upset

By UNITED PRESS

Rice and Texas continued their hot pursuit of the Southwest Conference basketball championship Wednesday after each was upset by a low-rated loop foe in a road game.

Texas, at or near the top all year, lost its third game in 10 starts to Southern Methodist by a 70 to 63 score. It was the worst defeat the Longhorns have suffered this year.

Rice, meanwhile, toppled before Baylor, 76 to 73 in an overtime game. Baylor's Bruins, first quintet to whip Texas in an SWC game this year, tallied 12 points in the extra play while Rice could get only nine.

Leadership Unchanged

The two upsets didn't affect Rice and Texas co-leadership, although it sliced their margin to a game and a half over Arkansas with two to play. But it did result in a big snarl among the runner-ups. Arkansas held third place with a 6-5 record, while Texas Christian, Baylor and Southern Methodist all had 5-5 marks for a fourth-place tie.

Only Texas A&M, seventh with a 1-10 record, mathematically didn't have a chance to share in the league championship if both Rice and Texas lose their remaining two games. A&M went to Houston Wednesday night to meet the University of Houston's Cougars in the only game scheduled.

Texas scored the first field goal in the Longhorns' game with SMU at Dallas, but that was the last time they led. The Mustangs' offense, paced by Derrell Murphy's 24 points, was too widely spread for Texas as four others scored in double figures.

The Texas attack was led by Billy Powell's 20 points, but Fred Saunders, normally a bigger gun, tallied only eight.

A Bad Shot

Rice, which trailed throughout the first three quarters at Waco, came from behind with a 24-point fourth period effort to tie Baylor. The Owls could have won on a layup shot by Charles Christensen with five seconds to play, but the ball rolled off, not through the hoop.

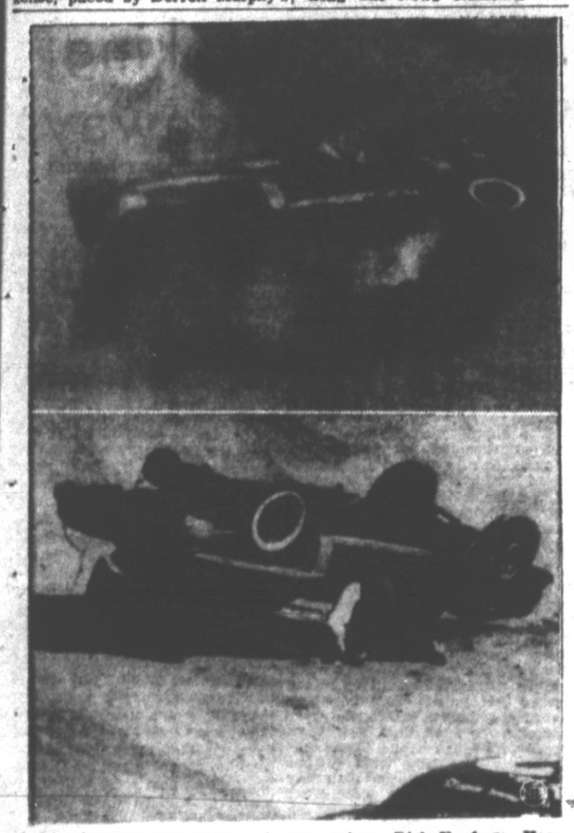

In the extra time, Rice broke on top but the Bears tied it up and won fairly easily with forward Murray Bailey hitting eight of the 12 points they tallied. Don Lance of Rice led the scoring with 23 points and Bailey got 22. Rice's Gene Schwinger ran his season total, already the biggest in the Southwest Conference's history, to 498 points with 17 against Baylor.

Texas goes to Fayetteville for Arkansas' final game Friday night, while Rice will tackle TCU at Fort Worth. Baylor and SMU meet at Dallas to determine which will be in or out of the running.

Stanford Rice Game Set

PALO ALTO, Calif., Feb. 24—UP—Stanford University will meet the Rice Institute in a home-and-home football series beginning in 1957. The first game of the series will be played in Houston Oct. 5, 1957 and the second at Palo Alto on Oct. 27, 1956.

If Yanks Fail To Win, Bosox Will – Casey

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 24—UP—If the Yankees should fail in their quest for a sixth straight American League pennant, Casey Stengel thinks the Red Sox will win it.

Not that he figures his Yankees won't do it, but he said he was impressed with "those youngsters Lou Boudreau has."

"And you can't discount the fact that he'll have Ted Williams all season. If he hits this year like he did when he came back out of service last year, that could be the difference," Stengel reasoned.

Good Deal for Sox

He also feels that the Red Sox pulled a good deal when they obtained Jackie Jensen from the Senators "even though they had to give up a good pitcher in Mickey McDermott and a fine fielding outfielder in Tom Umphlett."

"That Jensen gives them added power and also added speed. And when you put power and speed together you are bound to be tough. Jensen is a fine base runner and I'm afraid he'll be rattling a lot of balls off and over that Fenway Park fence.

"With Williams and Jensen with them this year, I have to like the Red Sox over the White Sox or Indians to take the pennant if we can't make it again."

Trades Discounted

Stengel doesn't think the White Sox have fared as well in the trading marts as the Red Sox, although he admitted outfielder Johnny Groth "will give them more speed."

"And with Groth in there, maybe they can plug that weakness they have at third base by shifting Minnie Minoso there. And I'll have to admit that I like the White Sox pitching."

He rates Virgil Trucks and Billy Pierce as one of the best one-two hurling combinations in the game.

"And there are some hard throwing youngsters back of them," Stengel pointed out.

Sports Briefs

MESA, Ariz., Feb. 24—UP—Manager Phil Cavarretta broke out the bats and balls Wednesday for the first time this spring—just when the Chicago Cubs were beginning to think they were being trained for the Boston marathon instead of the National League pennant race.

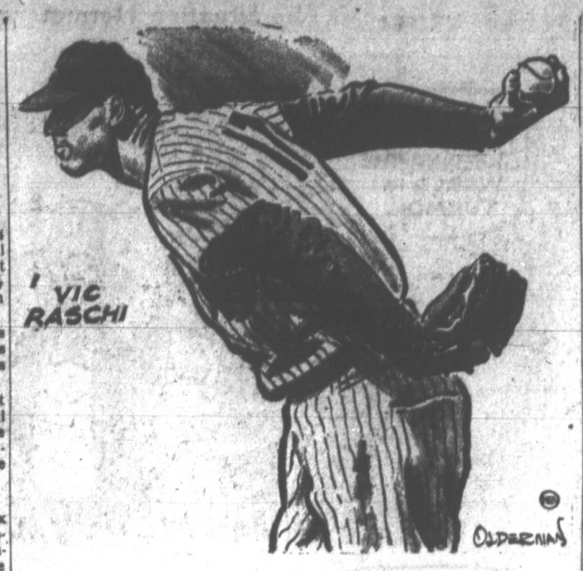

Cavarretta, continuing to set a fast pace, had the Cubs running so much Tuesday that many developed blisters. A half dozen players removed their shoes and trotted around the grass in stocking feet.

YUMA, Ariz., Feb. 24—UP—Manager Jimmy Dykes stepped up the pace of his Baltimore Oriole batterymen Wednesday after two days of lobbing the ball along the sidelines and from the mound.

The group was brought to 13 pitchers and three catchers Tuesday with the arrival of relief pitcher Marlin Stuart, who had an 8-2 record and a 3.95 earned run average in 60 games last season.

VERO BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24—UP—Manager Walter Alston indicated Wednesday that Clem Labine would be relegated to the Brooklyn Dodgers' bullpen this year but that he and Coach Ted Lyons wanted to inspect the other pitchers "before making definite plans."

Alston, assuming field command of the two-time National League champions for the first time this morning, planned light workouts of running, calisthenics and bunting.

Raschi Ups Cards' 1954 Flag Hopes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 24—UP—Manager Eddie Stanky hailed the acquisition of Vic Raschi as filling the St. Louis Cardinals "desperate need for pitching" while owner August Busch said the $100,000 deal gave the Redbirds "more than an outside chance to win the pennant."

"I'll be satisfied if Raschi wins from 12 to 16 games," Stanky chortled. "We were desperate for pitchers with only Gerry Staley and Harvey Haddix. This was a great deal for us."

The 35-year old Raschi was sold to the Cardinals by the world champion New York Yankees in a deal that took the baseball world by complete surprise. Although Raschi compiled a modest 13-6 record last season, he won 120 games and lost only 50 in seven campaigns with the Yankees and was regarded as one of their most dependable money pitchers.

Best Against Toughest

"He's always been at his best against the toughest teams," Stanky said. "Raschi throws bullets and he always could beat the Dodgers."

Stanky said Raschi would join Staley (18-9) and Haddix (20-9) to form the core of the Cardinals' staff and that the remainder of the starters would be chosen from among Stu Miller, Tom Pholsky, Joe Presko, Ellis Deal, Jim Walsh, Royce Lint and Memo Luna.

Busch was just as enthusiastic as Stanky, and said he is withdrawing an offer to trade infielder Solly Hemus to the Philadelphia Phillies for Jim Konstanty because of the acquisition of Raschi. The Cardinals had been dickering with the Phillies since hard-throwing lefty Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell was drafted.

Others Come to Terms

Konstanty (14-10) and Bob Miller (8-9), meanwhile came to terms leaving 23-game winner Robin Roberts the only unsigned Philly veteran pitcher. Roberts is scheduled to have a fourth salary conference with club president Bob Carpenter before the end of the week.

Around the camps: Hal Rice, Paul Smith and rookie catcher Bill Hall signed with the Pittsburgh Pirates—infielder Fred Hatfield came to terms with the Detroit Tigers ...Gus Zernial reported to the Philadelphia athletics only a few pounds over his 216 playing weight...Monte Irvin starred in the New York Giants' batting drill with two 400-foot homers to left field.

Mel Parnell, a 21-game winner last season, said in New Orleans he would leave for the Boston Red Sox' Sarasota training base no later than Thursday and expected to sign as soon as he joined the club. Parnell said he was detained at home because of the illness of his daughter.

Sale Of Raschi Indicates Yanks On Selling Block

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 24—UP—Vic Raschi's sale to the St. Louis Cardinals was viewed Wednesday as further indication that the vast New York Yankee baseball empire is on the block.

An authoritative source told the United Press he now believed that co-owners Dan Topping and Del Webb "were maneuvering into the best possible position to sell out their interests in the club." He said the sale of Raschi for about $100,000 was "another in a series of steps" to get into such a position.

It was pointed out that only two months ago Topping and Webb had dissolved New York Yankees, Inc., and sold the Yankee Stadium and Blues Stadium in Kansas City to Arnold Johnson Associates of Chicago for $6.5 million.

It was learned, meanwhile, that the Yankees had asked for waivers from the seven other American League clubs on the weekend of Jan. 30—three weeks before they could have known that Raschi would refuse to accept a reduction from his $40,000 salary.

General Manager George Weiss gave the impression Tuesday that the Yankees did not think of selling Raschi until he insisted on a $40,000 salary although he was only a 13-game winner last season.

Webb's desire to expand major league baseball to the West Coast was viewed by the source as a motivating factor in the involved financial maneuvering. Webb believes major league expansion to the Pacific Coast is inevitable and it seems certain that he would leave the Yankees to buy into a team in Los Angeles or San Francisco.

Webb and Topping have had the Yankees since 1945, when they acquired the club from the estate of the late Jacob Ruppert.

J. Addison Setting Hot Pace For Ag 5

DALLAS, Feb. 24—UP—Coach John Floyd's Texas A&M basketball team, beset with player revolt and lack of a scoring punch, has won only two games this season, but suddenly has come up with one of the brightest All-Southwest Conference prospects in the circuit.

Unheralded through the first half of the season while Floyd had him operating at forward, gangling James Addison suddenly caught fire and has been pumping up his scoring record at a 26-point per game clip through the last four games from the center-post position.

Addison, a six-foot-six, 200-pound senior from the tiny West Texas hamlet of Lipan, was just another member of an inept Aggie squad as Floyd fought rebellion that saw two players quit and brought on reports that 10 squadmen at one time tried to turn in their uniforms.

Floyd Stays On

Floyd, a solid pupil of the Hank Iba school of close-to-the-chest basketball and reportedly a hard taskmaster, stuck out the unrest and finally saw his perseverence prevail when the arrival of Paul (Bear) Bryant as athletic director and football coach boosted spirit everywhere at Aggieland.

Floyd shook up his lineup, moving Addision to center in a swap that saw six-foot-eight-inch Roy Martin go to forward. Martin's productivity dropped, but Addison more than made up for the lapse with his torried scoring.

He gave a notice of things to come when he got 19 points against Rice in the club's seventh straight conference loss and 15th of the season.

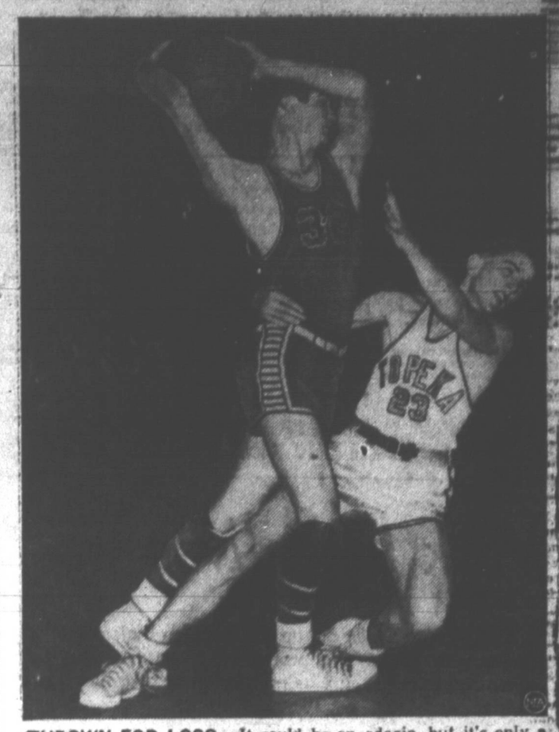

Four nights later, Addision ran a scoring fever as he poured 36 points at title-contending Southern Methodist and led the Aggies to the loop's most shocking upset of the year against an SMU team that had smothered A&M 92 to 48 only a week earlier.

Hot Scoring

Since then, Addision has scored 26, 16 and 26 points in successive games and soared into second place behind Rice's Gene Schwinger in the league scoring race with 182 points.

A better than average post man, Addision disdains the hook shot. He prefers to pull up a little further outside than most and used a jump shot. If he's covered there, he's quick enough despite his size to drive around and work in a layup.

The Texas Aggies are not going anywhere in a conference race that has Rice and Texas battling down to next week's windup neck and neck.

THROWN FOR LOSS—It could be an adagio, but it's only a foul as Topeka High's Don Erwin curls himself around Bob Weaver of Shawnee Mission of Kansas City, Kans., during a game in Topeka. (NEA)

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 24—UP—Twenty-three game winner Robin Roberts remained the Philadelphia Phillies' only unsigned veteran pitcher Wednesday when Jim Konstanty and Bob Miller came to terms.

Roberts failed to reach an agreement after a third conference with club President Bob Carpenter in Philadelphia Tuesday but is scheduled for another talk before the end of the week. He originally resisted a small reduction and twice has turned down offers of a slight raise.

Konstanty, who had a 14-10 record last season, signed for an estimated $15,000 while Miller, who posted an 8-9 mark, was reported to have received $12,500. Miller called his new contract "the best of my career."

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 24—UP—Dick Wakefield, once one of the most dangerous hitters in the game, is taking "one last fling" at big league baseball with the Washington Senators.

The former $52,000 bonus beauty received permission from Manager Bucky Harris to work out at his own expense. Wakefield hopes to win a job with the Senators because they are admittedly weak in the outfield.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24—UP—Manager Eddie Joost of the Philadelphia Athletics erased an important item from his list of worries Wednesday — big Gus Zernial is in shape.

Zernial tipped the scales at close to his playing weight of 216 pounds when he reported Tuesday and told his astonished manager and teammates he had kept in shape during the winter playing handball and golf and working at an auto service station.

Zernial, who hit 42 homers and drove in 108 runs last season, often has trouble working off excess weight during spring training.

Work Incentives

Two primitive men dig up the earth on their adjoining farms with sticks. One works much harder than the other and uses his surplus production to give him some free time.

During his free time he catches and domesticates some wild animals. Then he fashions a plow and quintuples his production.

Having more spare time, he domesticates additional animals and fashions more and better plows.

He supplies a plow and animals to his neighbor with the understanding that he is to receive one-tenth of the increased production. The neighbor will profit nine times as much as he himself by this arrangement. The saving and industry of the first man benefits the second man far more than himself.

The first man becomes a capitalist by supplying animals and tools to the farmers throughout the community. In so doing he becomes rich himself, but the benefit accruing to his neighbors exceeds his own gain by many times.

If his neighbors refuse to pay him, he will stop working, inventing, and creating new improvements for their benefit. He will suffer, to be sure, by reason of their refusal to give him sufficient reward to induce him to continue his improvements, but the community will suffer incomparably more.

Unless adequate reward is offered to the saver, the risk-taker, the innovator, and the enterpriser, the efforts of such men will decline and all will suffer thereby. Under a free enterprise system, seeing benefit accrue to the risk-taker, other men are stimulated to save and invest their savings to the further enrichment of the community.

A bold, hardworking man saves enough to build a factory and employs a number of other men to operate his machines. The employees benefit by less exhausting toil and by much higher incomes than they might enjoy if they worked for themselves and labored with their hands. Some of the men, after working for years, seem to think that they have acquired a vested right to these machines. When men profit by the use of other people's property, does that entitle them to claim the property as their own? If one picks up a man and carries him through the desert, does that give the rider title to the car? Does the man who oils a locomotive and is paid good wages acquire ownership in the engine, thereby displacing those who have sacrificed and saved in order that the locomotive might be built?

If the right to own property and receive reward for its use is denied, people will not work hard, invent or initiate in order to create property. If this right is taken away the results will be unfortunate for property-owning citizens but the results will be infinitely worse for the mass of people whose high standard of living is made possible by capital equipment. This equipment came into being through the efforts of risk-takers aided by savings, inventions and good management.

Canadian Flag

Nationalism, according to some of our more global thinkers, is on the way out, like dialect stories and the ten-cent cup of coffee, but if it is, it's mighty lively on its deathbed. Our northern neighbor, after all these years, is about to adopt a national flag!

Canada has never had an official flag because every proposed design has been considered too British or not British enough. Consequently, Canada has gotten along with a British mercantile marine emblem. Recently, however, government experts have designed a flag which reportedly will secure the approval of all factions and political parties. It features Canada's coat of arms, which includes something to please everybody: England's three lions, Scotland's lion rampant, Ireland's harp and the French fleur de lys with three maple leaves on a silver shield.

The proposed flag has been the subject of hundreds of letters to newspapers in recent months. Some readers contend that the beaver, a Canadian national symbol, should be included in the flag, but there have been violent objections on the grounds that the beaver has protruding teeth, a paddle tail and is a member of the rat family.

We're inclined to agree that the beaver is too humble a symbol for a nation as proud as Canada. But whatever the final design, and at the risk of casting our vote for an anachronistic principle, we're glad she will have a flag of her own at last.

Why Is Eisenhower Against Bricker Amendment?

Now that Eisenhower has dismissed Clarence Manion from the chairmanship of the Inter-Governmental Relations Committee because he advocated the passage of the Bricker amendment, it should be of interest to every citizen who believes that the power of the government should be definitely limited to know why President Eisenhower is so vehemently opposed to the passage of the Bricker amendment. The happiness and well being of our children will be greatly affected by whether or not this amendment is passed.

The first section of the proposed Bricker amendment is meaningless. It reads:

"A provision or a treaty which conflicts with the Constitution shall not be of any force or effect."

But it is hard to conceive how any treaty that is made by the President and sanctioned by the majority of those present in the Senate (not the majority of the members) can violate the Constitution. If it is made by the President and the majority of those present in the Senate it is part of the Constitution. The part of the Constitution that makes it part of the Constitution reads:

"This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme Law of the Land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or Laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding."

So any treaty that is so made cannot be a violation of the Constitution.

The Crux Of The Amendment

But the part that those opposed to the amendment object to is the second section which really puts teeth in the first paragraph. This second section reads:

"A treaty shall become effective as international law in the United States only through legislation which would be valid in the absence of the treaty."

They object to this section because it really takes away from the President and the majority of the Senators present the right to make a treaty which would change the Constitution and take away from the individual his rights guaranteed by the Bills of Rights and the rights guaranteed by the States. Certain treaties or executive agreements, which the Bricker amendment includes, could even take away from te United States Government Section 4 of Article IV which reads:

"The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government. . ."

And a Republican form of government means that there are certain things that the state has a right to regulate and there are certain things that the state has no right whatsoever to interfere with. The world "re" refers to things that are public and of general interest and thus limits the government from interfering with things that are personal and inalienable that belong to the individual and not to the state.

Why?

Now why does Eisenhower so object to this clause? The only rational conclusion is that Eisenhower wants unlimited power that does not restrict him from making a treaty that will take away from individuals their inalienable rights. It looks as if he wants to have a government not with the consent of the governed, but a government with the consent of the President alone. It looks as if he does not want a government of the people, by the people and for the people, but he wants a government of the President, by the President and for the President.

Eisenhower seems to believe that there is no danger of him or any successor ever abusing unlimited power. About the only thing I remember of learning in high school was our principal hammering into the students repeatedly that all history brought out the fact that no individual, ever, under any circumstances, could stand unlimited power. That was around 60 years ago when people had some respect for the Bill of Rights and for the Constitution. They believed that all people — not just some people — had inalienable rights and that all people were equal before the law. More people at that time believed that the government had no right to do things that were immoral for an individual to do. They, at that time, had more respect for the Bill of Rights. At that time they apprehialed the great blessings that flow from people obeying the ideologies set forth in the Declaration of Independence — that "governments derive their just power from the consent of the governed" — and that means from the consent of each individual, because no one can give an individual's consent but the individual himself.

Important

But the fact that the President is so emphatic that this amendment not be passed should arouse every citizen in the United States who wants to retain some semblance of a government with the ideologies of the Declaration of Independence rather than to adopt the Old World beliefs that individuals get their liberty from the state rather than from God.

It is hard to believe that a man could get such extreme confidence in himself as President Eisenhower seems to have that he believes he can be trusted with unlimited power.

Democratic Hold On The South May Have Been Broken By Ike

By RAY TUCKER

NEW ORLEANS — Although the South made its greatest progress during the Roosevelt-Truman era, Dixie still likes Ike Eisenhower. If he were running for re-election today, in the opinion of political experts in this area, he would receive again the largest vote which the South has ever given to a Republican presidential candidate.

Indeed, there is a general belief in informed circles that the Eisenhower victory, unlike Herbert Hoover's 1928 triumph over Alfred E. Smith in four Southern states, may have broken the Democrats' historic hold in this territory. Eisenhower, the man, has given the GOP a better standing in Dixie than it ever had before.

It is no longer dangerous or a matter of shame, economically or socially, for a businessman, a banker or a manufacturer to admit publicly that "I voted for Ike and would do the same again tomorrow." Such an admission in the past might have brought reprisal. In the 1930 primaries, showing that the 1928 Hoover uprising was only a flash in the pan, several states unseated the Heflin-like characters who had openly opposed "Al" Smith.

NO PRESTIGE LOST — But there is no revulsion or reprisal against the individuals or factions which revolted against Harry S Truman's political successor, Adlai E. Stevenson, in 1952. The leading rebels —Byrd of Virginia, Byrnes of South Carolina, Shivers of Texas— have not lost any of their popularity or prestige within the Democratic Party.

This is an important political fact which the so-called "Liberal" faction of the North — the Roosevelt - Lehman - Humphrey - Harriman group — has failed to grasp. The Southerners will not return to the party except on their own terms, meaning that the break may remain permanent. It is extremely doubtful, for instance, if the South's acknowledged political leaders work any harder for Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., assuming that he should be the 1956 presidential nominee, than they did for Stevenson. They would simply take another walk. Having done it once without encountering any loss of public esteem, they will be in a mood to do it again.

WHY THEY STILL LIKE IKE — Several factors account for the South's continued liking for Eisenhower, although they may not endear the President to hard-shelled Republicans in other sections of the country. Th y like Ike because, as he recently said, he was not a fierce or bitter "partisan." He has turned out to be the kind of man they expected him to be — a "human guy," without any personal or sectional pettiness. To the South, Eisenhower does not represent the typ c l, post-Civil War Republican President.

They like his attitude toward labor and business problems. With so many industries shifting to Dixie, the Roosevelt-Truman partiality toward the unions and prejudice against private enterprise and initiative had become a live issue. Ike, in their opinion, will be fair to both sides.

AN IMPORTANT REASON — What they like most, however, in his approach to these questions, is his apparent desire to keep Uncle Sam out of this field. Ever since Jefferson and Calhoun days, and even more so today, the South has been suspicious of "Big Government."

Secondly, the South is enjoying what looks like solid and enduring prosperity, quite unlike the economic conditions which prevailed two years after Hoover's election. A lot has been written about the Texas "billionaires" who back Sen. "Joe" McCarthy — Messrs. Hunt, Cullen, Richardson, etc. — but they have their counterparts throughout Dixie.

To fly only 100 miles below New Orleans, and to see the vast gas, oil, and sulphur operations along and in the Gulf of Mexico itself, is to realize that a "New South," politically and economically, has been created.

APPROVE ADMINISTRATION'S FOREIGN POLICY — The South also likes the Eisenhower foreign policy, as it did the Roosevelt-Truman trend in this field. Even when they were assailing the previous administration's domestic doctrines the Byrds, Russells and Byrneses supported a strong, pro-British and anti-Russian stand.

There was more than sentiment behind this attitude. Several of the South's major crops — cotton, tobacco and peanuts — profited heavily from our foreign-aid policy. Had it not been for profits on the disposal of cotton and tobacco, especially the first product, the Commodity Credit Corporation's losses would have been far bigger than they are now.

Liking Ike, however, is far different from liking and embracing the old-fashioned Republican Party. But the GOP, if it goes along with his middle-of-the-road program and philosophy, has a good chance of making permanent gains in this section.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Readers quite often ask questions like today's first which puzzles patients and doctors as well.

Q— Can you say something about the relationship between fatigue and coronary thrombosis?

Mrs. W.W.F.

A— The basic cause of coronary thrombosis is the formation of a clot inside one of the arteries supplying blood to the heart. The clot forms in a blood vessel which has been thickened by deposits of fatty, or calcium-like substances. It is hard to see how fatigue, at least over a short period, could have anything to do with this process. Coronary thrombosis will appear in those who are perfectly fresh and well as well as in those who are fatigued, but actually no one is yet certain whether or not fatigue may or may not bring on more quickly an attack of coronary thrombosis.

• • •

Q— Will deep bruises lead to cancer?

Mrs. C.D.

A— Ordinarily, not. There are some forms of cancer, particularly sarcoma of the bone, however, which do seem to start quite often after injury.

• • •

Q— What causes a person's joints to crack?

Mrs. A.J.

A— Ordinarily, cracking joints are the result of ligaments slipping across the joint surfaces. They do not carry any significance for disease or health. I assume that this is not the kind of creaking that one gets in degenerative joint disease.

• • •

Q — X-rays have revealed a stomach hernia in a patient. Is there much danger involved in surgery for this condition?

J. M.

A— The answer depends partly on the size and location of the hernia. However, in general, in good hands, the surgery would not carry any risk to life.

Unions Of The Nation Must Be Replaced With Sensible Deal

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Copyright, 1954, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK — You may say "Well, here goes Pegler on unions again," but I am about to introduce a revolutionary idea which should clarify the minds of a great many of us who have come to regard the unions "with all their faults" as an indispensable American institution, I am about to say that the faults of this unionism are so great that it must be brought under control of the public government.

I think it must be wiped out and replaced with something else.

It was said, with some truth, years ago, that Wall Street, a generic name for big business and concentrated wealth, was the master of the government, particularly of Congress and the courts. The same is true today of the unions. They are a vast corruption, administered largely by men who are ignorant not only in the cultural sense but with particular reference to the Constitution and the political principles of our nation.

I have written, and I am confident that the fact could be demonstrated by good witnesses, that one of the two main reasons why the "government" has to pay a portion of the rent for "low-income" and "middle-income" classes, is that unions acting on their own part and unions in collusion with manufacturers and suppliers of building materials, run up the cost of building by about one-third. Knock off that third, and the cost of building a three-room or four-room apartment will come down to a price at which these "classes" can afford to pay their own rent without subsidy.

This extortion by unions and their accomplices of the building materials business is putting the federal and state governments into the land-lord business. Carried to the extreme, this will reproduce here the situation that exists in Russia and other socialist countries where the people exist to serve the state in return for a living. Already we have experimented with free food and clothing as early whimsies of the Roosevelt reign. We may do it again and make it permanent if in coming out of the war business we hit a slump.

The simple idea of wiping out the extortion has not occurred seriously to any advocate of subsidized housing. The further fact that it is senseless to confiscate wages by the income tax to such an extent that the people can't fully pay their own rent is equally remote from the minds of those who clamor for "public housing."

Can your mind grasp a picture of the United States without the AF of L and the CIO and without John L. Lewis? Fundamentally, these powers are no part of our country. They grew because our people deceived themselves into a belief that unions were holy fraternities of human beings who were virtuous because they did rough work with rough hands. These early union members were neither more nor less virtuous than any other element on that account, but that is just a reminder, not an argument to the point.

The disadvantage of the individual worker dealing with a huge corporation was plain and therefore we sympathized with the concept of unionism to equalize the worker with the boss.

The opposition immediately advanced many objections but we thought that because it had selfish interests to serve, its arguments were no good. So we let this country in for the scourge of unionism which has how become a burden and a menace. The opposition said "Well, but under a flat wage scale, the indolent, inefficient worker will get the same as the diligent, competent man."

Well, isn't that true? They said that if you gave one relatively small union the power to close a key plant by a picket-line, to keep it shut, those few workers, however good or bad their cause, could paralyze a whole community and throw almost everyone else out of work. That happened in Flint, Mich., where a union threw the switches in the powerhouse. The elevators in the hospitals used to carry unconscious patients back to bed from the operating rooms, and even the lights in the operating rooms, went dead. And, actually, there was no vote for a strike by the powerhouse workers. They would have worked as usual but the "union" pulled the switches and then the interlopers from out of town who spoke for the union went into hiding so that the city manager could not find them to "negotiate." Nobody dared close the switches because unions were above the law. So town was dead, as far as electric light and power were concerned until the unioneers decided that Flint had been taught a lesson.

This could happen again any day. In fact, similar events are daily routine. Pickets shoot men for driving trucks without union permission. A trucking company is driven out of Alabama to take refuge in Georgia. A hatters' union takes it upon itself, by decision of a few unioneers with offices in New York, to prevent a new hat industry from settling in Tennessee or Kansas which are sovereign American states. The union undertakes to chain certain hat factories to Connecticut because its members there cannot conveniently pack up and follow their jobs to Tennessee or Kansas.

A similar movement of textile factories from Massachusetts to the Southern tier meets similar resistance. The Labor Relations Board, by autocratic order of a petty bureaucrat, tries to prevent this flow of industry and commerce from one state to another by pronouncing a "sentence" which would make the expense of the move greater than the possible profit. Sen. Jack Kennedy, of Massachusets, went into the Southern tier to argue against the economic wisdom of the move and he did have some points which impressed some Southern industrialists.

But the unions and the Labor Relations Board never take chances on arguments. All they know is power. The club. So the new industrial South is coming into another sectional scrap with the old industrial North fomented by unions which never pay any taxes, hold no mandate from any representative element of the people and are both irresponsible and arrogant.

These unions represent only a small proportion of our workers, but they challenge and abuse all of us. They are supposed to represent even those few only as business agents, to agree on wages, hours and working conditions. Actually, their "members" are now subjects and many of them are kept in thrall by the closed shop which is supposed to be illegal. Incidentally, the worst offender in that respect is the Musicians Union and, further dramatizing the flagrancy, Chief Justice Warren recently wrote warm greetings to Jimmy Petrillo and the union, all knowingly.

I do not know what the new form of workers' protective aggregation should be. I do know, however, that the present kind is frightfully wasteful of human life, taking man-hours of energy at work as a measure of human life. It is too big and rich and abusive to be tolerated by a free people and a sovereign government. It must be broken.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

MIDNIGHT MEANDERS: You have had dinner and you have nothing to do until midnight, so you wander up to Jamie Turpin's apartment to listen to some good music and talk about nothing at all except idle conversation which takes nothing out of you . . . It doesn't let you give out anything, either, but you are not renowned as a transfixing conversationalist, so it's fine . . . Jamie plays some Chopin for an hour, then you talk about Texas (There's an easy subject) and presently you wander down Broadway . . . You pass the Coronet Theater where lovely Martha Scott is playing in "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker" and you decide to drop in and see her . . . Martha has a suite, no less, sitting room, dressing room, kitchen and bath, and the sitting room has deeply comfortable chairs . . . You talk, again, about nothing at all, it being that kind of an indolent evening, and after a quarter of an hour you go out into the night, again, and walk toward Columbus Circle . . . Once you have got that far you decide to drop in on Lenore and Ira Cirker, living in an apartment which is a model of modern decor that is comfortable.

There are some kinds of modern furniture which are about as comfortable as sitting on a corrugated tin roof, but the Cirkers have not only designed theirs but they made most of it, including a sofa made from a mahogany plank that is 30 inches wide and 14 feet long and is covered with upholstered sponge rubber, the kind of sofa you go to sea in by sticking a sail on it . . . Ira got it into the apartment by lugging it up the fire stairs of the apartment house . . . It was too long for the elevator . . . He also has a long coffee table made from a single mahogany plank with the bark left on the edges.

You leave there after midnight, after an hour or so of the best discussion concerning television direction you ever have heard. . . Cirker has fresh and provocative ideas concerning direction as applied to television and they make a great deal of sense . . . As a former actor, he is sensitive to the problems of actors in this medium, but he also knows the uses of camera and light . . . Six months from now, when his work seeps through to the panelled offices of Hollywood, they probably will deluge him with gold-tagged offers.

You amble down Broadway toward 50th Street and run into James Kirkwood, the younger, the brightest young comedian coming up . . . He is pointed for the Ruban Bleu in March and, meanwhile, is working daily on television a serial called 'Valiant Lady.' . . . He tells you about a society girl he saw at the opening of "The Confidential Clerk": . . . A girl obviously of society, educated, well-bred, dressed to the teath, but all I could think of was that she would look more natural with a putter in her hands instead of diamonds." . . . He also tells you that he has found out why a Screwdriver cocktail is called a Screwdriver . . . "It loosens up all the bolts in your head."

Buying spring and summer clothes, ladies? . . . The new color, adopted by the best designers as a sort of hued answer to recession talk, is 'sunlight," a warm, golden, encouraging tone . . . Jane Derby, Maria Krum, Countess Alexander, Patric and many others are featuring it in their spring and summer designs . . . Movie Note: Please don't miss "Genevieve," a British Technicolor comedy, when it comes your way . . . This is a smooth, engaging and exceedingly funny job, a relief after the problem pictures, the sob jobs and the fake French melodramas.

Unity In National Committee Seen As Vital Goal For Ike

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The winter meeting of the Republican National Committee in Washington provided opportunity for a new checkup on how many of the GOP hierarchy could be counted as Eisenhower Republicans, and how many still had their alliances with the Old Guard.

There is a lot of political talk among the more ardent Eisenhower supporters that — sooner rather than later — the President is going to have to take over control of the National Committee. Some of the enthusiasts even go so far as to say that the President's task is "to make over the Republican Party in his own image" if it is to continue in power and in office.

It is conceded by the President's backers that both of these projects will take some time and some doing. Neither has been accomplished to date, as was clearly demonstrated at the National Committee meeting in Washington.

The delegates all cheered when National Chairman Len Hall told them that "Dwight D. Eisenhower is the most popular man in the world today."

When, in the next breath, Chairman Hall declared that, "the American people are determined to give him (meaning President Eisenhower) their support in the task he is undertaking" the honorable committeemen and committeewomen sat on their hands.

In short, the National Committee seemed to like the President because he won and because maybe he can lead on to victory again. But the members are not sold on his program the way Hall is.

Can't Afford To Lose

Ohio's national committeeman, Rep. Clarence J. Brown, paid a tribute to Judge Hall for the way he had cooperated with Republican congressmen. Then Representative Brown went on to beg for support of senators and representatives running for re-election this fall. "We can't lose this one," he declared. "If the Democrats win, they'll crucify us."

With their narrow control in Congress, the Republicans are running scared. They are willing to pour nearly $4 million into the November election campaign. This is double what they spent in 1950. It is probably double what the Democrats will be able to spend. But all-out support for the President's program — which is what should win votes more than money — seemed to be lacking enthusiasm in the GOP National Committee. Vice President Nixon repeated the plea to support Ike's program at the luncheon meeting.

This committee is now made up of 142 members, plus one vacancy in New York and one in Tennessee — a total of 144.

How the 142 members would divide as 100 per cent backers of the President or as critics of his program and still more in sympathy with the policies of the Old Guard cannot be determined with absolute accuracy. But several members of the party closely associated with its inner workings and familiar with the personalities involved, sat down with this reporter and checked off the National Committee list, name by name.

Old Guard Pros

The result came up 59 pro-Eisenhower, 67 pro-Old Guard, 16 undeterminable. Give the President all of these 16 and the score would be 75 pro-Eisenhower, 67 Old Guard.

Interestingly enough, this is just about what the count was at the end of Chicago convention, nearly two years ago. It indicates that the President may have made little or no headway in winning over the National Committee to his brand of Republicanism.

Thirty-six members of the previous National Committee retired or failed to win re-election in their states after the Chicago convention in 1952. Their successors gave Eisenhower his beachhead in the National Committee of 75 delegates who had voted for him on the first ballot.

Eight new Republican state chairmen and six new National Committee members were seated at the Washington meeting. But these replacements did not appreciably strengthen the President's National Committee support, since they succeeded like-minded members.

National Chairman Hall has to maintain a neutrality with both camps of the party. Of the four vice chairmen, two are pro-Eisenhower, two Old Guard. On the executive committee of 12, seven are listed as pro-Eisenhower, five Old Guard.

The 67 National Committee members listed as Old Guard are, of course, the elder statesmen. They kept the party going in the 20 Democratic years. They were the party, in fact. It is perhaps only natural that they feel they should be running the party today. Resentful of a lack of patronage thrown their way, they are not yet reconciled to having the man in the White House run the show.

'Siberia' For Those Over 35!

Sweet Young Things Usually Get The Best Jobs In Industry

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series dealing with the problems of age that confront working women.

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 —UP—In a classroom just off lower Fifth Ave., 30 women sit down daily as students, brushing up on their shorthand and typing.

The youngest is 35, and all but a few are from 45 to 60 years old. With luck, they'll be working in offices in a few months.

They need the luck because jobs are hard to get when a woman passes 35, no matter how fresh her typing and shorthand skills. These women are part of a unique experiment to combat those job advertisements that read—"typists and stenographers wanted—18 to 35."

The School of Industry, a privately-endowed welfare agency here, gives classes for older women who had former training in typing and shorthand and want to get jobs now that their children are grown.

How old is too old for a secretary applying for a job?

"A good executive secretary who can grind out the work can get a job in her 50's," said Jane Shipton of the career changing clinic. "But it is likely to be the work-horse kind of job."

Pleasant secretarial jobs where a woman meets her company's clients or her boss's contacts are more likely to go to younger girls.

"At this point it is an individual thing with each company," continued Miss Shipton. "Many flashy offices in advertising agencies or fashion or cosmetic houses insist on young girls. If they keep a woman on past 35 they very nicely transfer her to a job behind scenes —what we call the working girl's Siberia."

Office workers have the most serious problem with age. For them, a giveaway age sign like a sagging chin line is far more dangerous than the boss's receding hairline.

This is the field that employes the most women—more than five million. Past the age of 44, however, the number of women working in offices drops sharply.

"Employers are afraid older women will be rusty, if they haven't been working," said the personnel head of one large advertising agency.

"We had that idea too for a while. Then we started giving older women jobs as receptionists. We found they were better at sizing up the people who came in. They were more likely, for instance, to recognize the shabby young man as the nephew of one of our biggest clients."

The result in that one company is that women in their 40's and 50's have been hired for other jobs.

"They have fewer love problems, they don't stay out as late at night —they're at their desks more often," added the personnel head.

Yet in a survey made by the women's bureau of the United States Department of Labor, each city studied had an age limit applied to women job seekers far more often than to men. One Midwest city reported that women looking for jobs at 35 years old or more met difficulties the men didn't face until 45 or 50.

"If the shortage of good office help continues," said one personnel head, "older women may find more doors open. Every time one company tries older women and finds them successful, it does a tremendous public relations job for their cause."

Dodge City Harks Back To Old Days

DODGE CITY, Kan., Feb. 24—UP—Dodge City was the center of a big cattle movement again Wednesday, just as it was more than 50 years ago when this southwestern Kansas town was the end of the famed Dodge trail.

But Wednesday's cattle weren't moving to market—they were being rounded up for return to their owners after straying during last week's dust storm and blizzard.

State Brands Commissioner Charles R. Lake was in charge of the big roundup, but he couldn't estimate how many head of cattle were loose.

"I know of one or two boys out here that individually had 3,000 to 4,000 head of cattle stray in the storm," Lake said.

Many of the cattle were being brought to the Dodge City Stockyards, where their brands were checked and owners notified. So many were being brought in, stock yard officials were too busy to count them. Smaller lots were held wherever there was a corral.

Lake said he, several other state employes and volunteers rounded up some 2,000 cattle Monday and Tuesday.

"This situation exists clear to the Colorado line," Lake said. He said it would "take a long time...several weeks, maybe longer, before all the cattle were back in their owners' hands.

Meanwhile, at Tribune, Kan., 100 miles northwest, the Greely county board of commissioners declared blowing soil in the western third of the county, bordering Colorado, had created an emergency.

The commissioners said there was ample moisture below the surface, and urged all farmers to plow their ground.

"We have wheat and maize stubble fields blowing when the wind comes up," said Chairman Howard Gibson. Even pastures need immediate action to control the situation.

"Some stubble fields are as bare as pavement," Gibson said.

Monday, she said, a young gunman walked in, scooped up $7 from the cash drawer and forced her into an elevator before he left.

It was the sixth holdup she has experienced under the same circumstances.

Holdenville Oil Boom Takes Spurt

HOLDENVILLE, Okla., Feb. 24 —UP—The Holdenville oil boom has taken a new spurt with t new strike and plans to drill the first well in the city limits.

Just east of the city the Monson and Semrad No. 1 Majors came in Monday and flowed 200 barrels through a two-inch choke in a little more than two hours. It was shut off for lack of storage.

Operators figured the flow at 58 barrels per hour and estimated the well would yield 2,000 barrels daily if left open. No. 1 Majors is located in SE NE NE of 17-7N-9E. The western part of Section 17 is within the Holdenville city limits.

Ross Cummings, news editor of the Holdenville Daily News, said the well was the latest of 45 that have been drilled in a small area east of Holdenville since last October. Cummings said there has been only one dry hole and each of the others was capable of 200 barrels per day or more.

Meanwhile, Guy M. Buchner, who with R. H. Smith, brought in the first paying well in this area, the No. 1 Bettsy Foster, 31 years ago, applied for a drilling permit in the Holdenville city limits.

Production on the No. 1 Majors came from the Booch sand at 2,963-2,983 feet. Gas flow was estimated at 3 million cubic feet per day.

Two more wells are being drilled in Section 17 near the site where the No. 1 Majors came in.

Any Resemblance Hardly Noticeable

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 24 —UP— Corinne Calvet forged ahead today on a campaign to stop looking like her estranged husband. She turned platinum blonde.

Corinne discovered back when she was a brownette that she and her spouse, actor John Bromfield, were beginning to resemble each other. This proved unnerving and is one reason the Bromfields decided to end it all in a divorce court.

Miss Calvet now has rectified matters so she'll no longer look like John Bromfield.

"My Johnny left our house for the last time at 11 o'clock one morning and I was in the beauty shop at noon,' related the vivacious French actress. ....

"We were so close, you see, that we were almost too much alike," she explained with a sigh. "We had the same laugh, the same coloring. And we even had the same eyes. When we went to Europe people thought we were brother and sister."

Corinne and John reconciled after one separation "but it didn't work." Besides their look-alikeness, there were career problems.

"When one member of an acting family becomes more prominent than the other, then you're in trouble," she said.

"Besides, in any family it isn't good for the wife to work. They say show business is to blame for bad Hollywood marriages. But it would happen no matter what jobs they had. It's bad when two people work.

"If I marry again," she added, "I will give up the business and stay home and have children. You have to be a genius to manage both a career and a home.

"When two people have jobs," the French beauty said with a wise nod of her new blonde head, "somebody always has to get up early and go to work."

But now Corinne has turned over a new leaf.

"I've taken up tennis and other things I couldn't do before," she said. "Like the hair. Johnny liked it brown and I didn't want to upset him. I've been wanting to blonde it for three years.

"This makes me feel lifted. I'm moving out of the house into an apartment, too. I want a whole change in life."

Corinne fluffed her blonde tresses and thought a minute.

"Now I got to learn how to be a little dumb," she said. "As a brunette, I was intelligent but as a blonde men expect you to be a little dumb."

Written for NEA Service

South avoided one trap in today's hand when he stayed out of the tempting but fore-doomed contract of three no-trump. West would have opened a heart against three no-trump, and the defenders would have taken the first five tricks.

West opened the six of hearts and East won with the ace. East returned the queen of hearts and West overtook with the king in order to make sure of being able to lead the jack at the next trick. South ruffed the third round of hearts, making a mental note that West obviously had a five-card heart suit.

Declarer next drew three rounds of trump, on which East discarded two low spades. South continued by taking the king and ace of spades, thus obtaining a reasonable count on the West hand. West had started with five hearts, three diamonds, and only five black cards.

Since at least two of West's black cards were spades, it was evident that West could not hold length in clubs and might have extreme shortness.

Acting on this information, declarer laid down the ace of clubs from the dummy and then led the ten of clubs. South hadn't really made up his mind what he was going to do if East happened to play a low club without visible embarrassment. Probably South would have played the king or queen from his own hand in the hope of getting a 3-2 club break.

As it happened, however, East solved declarer's problem by covering dummy's ten of clubs with the jack. This was a rather natural, but an ill-advised play. South won with the queen of clubs and discovered the bad break when West discarded a heart. It was now easy to get to dummy with the ace of diamonds and return another club to take a finesse through East's nine-spot.

Ordinary talc, or soapstone, is largely magnesium silicate.

NAHB Official Says Mortgage Situation Better

FORT WORTH, Feb. 24 —UP— A regional official of the National Association of Home Builders said Tuesday that the home mortgage situation is improving in the Southwest as well as over the country.

Russell C. Showalter, association regional vice president of Oklahoma City, said that in the past down payments on homes have been too high.

"Folks just couldn't raise anything like $2,200 to pay down," he said. "Now those down payments have been reduced to about $1,000 plus loan expense."

Showalter, who was one of the original developers of Midwest City 10 miles from Oklahoma City, said builders throughout the country are finding the public is showing much interest in Sunday "open houses."

Americans used to take great pride in owning late model cars, he said. Now that has changed to home ownership, he said.

Showalter said there has been talk of 40-year loans under the recommendations made recently by President Eisenhower, but explained that they have to do with rehabilitation of slum areas.

"We don't anticipate any 40-year loans on new homes," he said. "I do think they'll go up to 25 or 30 years, though, but that will depend on the loan companies."

The field director for the National Association of Home Builders looks for 1954 to be a record-breaker in the home building industry.

He is Jerry Madigan, who is in Fort Worth from Washington to conduct a regional workshop meeting of presidents and executive officers of Home Building Associations in Texas and Oklahoma.

Madigan predicted that 1.4 million housing units will be started in the United States this year. He said that figure would exceed by 100,000 the previous high mark set in 1951.

He's In Deep

SALEM N.H., Feb. 24 —UP— Artesian well-digger Malcolm T. Young, 27, was campaigning in Salem Wednesday to get as few votes as possible in the election for highway agent Saturday.

Young said a friend put his name on the ballot without his permission and he doesn't want the job.

JayCees Kick Off Membership Drive

Dr. Malcolm Wyatt, president of the 26-county North Plains District of the Texas Heart Association and medical advisor for the Gray County chapter, told Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce members this week that "one out of every two of you" will die of some form of heart disease.

Then he introduced a film at the Tuesday noon get-together, a film designed to show how much exertion the average person in the United States has and how that can skim down his life span.

But the film broke minutes after it had begun. And the program was postponed till a later date.

Tuesday was the kick-off day for annual JayCee membership drive. But scarcely a word was mentioned at the meeting except a short announcement that Bill Martin and Bill Harris were the captains of the two teams which will compete to determine which one can get the most members and, hence, has to buy the other a free dinner.

A report on the JayCee-sponsored memory course, given Monday and Tuesday nights by Amarillo's Leonard Nussbaum, was given to club members by JayCee President J. C. Hopkins. Some 40 were enrolled the first night.

And another course of the same general nature is in the offing, Hopkins announced. George Caddell, another Amarilloan, will preside over a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. Monday for those who are interested in taking a full Dale Carnegie course. This will be a free demonstration. The tariff for the full 16-week course: $110.

Don Cain told the JayCees that Texas Public Schools Week would be held March 1-6 and that the primary function of it was to induce Pampans and those over the state to visit a public school during the week. This year is the centennial, he said.

JayCees Jesse Simmons and Lemond Hall were selected by Hopkins to participate in Radio Station KPDN's safety campaign. Clarence Hollis and Tom Farwell were taken into the club as new members. And there were six guests on hand.

OEDELUM, Germany, Feb. 24— UP—Folks at a costume party burst into laughter at the arrival of what seemed to be two men dressed as a bull.

Then there was a stampede for the exits. The bull was real.

Tripped By His Walk

KINGSPORT, Tenn., Feb. 24—UP —Ralph Gott telephoned police that he had seen a woman who didn't quite look like a woman.

"It's the way she walks," he said. Detectives investigated and unmasked Robert Philpott, who had put on a dress and falsies after robbing a loan office at Bristol, Tenn., a few hours earlier.

Four Indicted For Bank Job

HOUSTON, Feb. 24 —UP— Four persons were indicted Tuesday in connection with the $57,000 New Year's Eve holdup of the Houston National Bank.

Donny Allen, the bank teller who told police he delivered the money to an accomplice in the bank, was indicted along with James Mitchell and Johnny Navarro for embezzlement and conspiracy to embezzle. Nick Mitchell, uncle of James, was indicted only for conspiracy.

Mrs. Mary Lou Mitchell, wife of James, was no-billed although she was charged originally with the four men.

The missing money has not been recovered, although officers did find a "get away" car allegedly purchased with a portion of it.

Arizonans Show Double Champions

AMARILLO, Tex., Feb. 24 —UP —Mr. and Mrs. Foy Herschede of Hereford, Ariz., showed the grand champion bull and heifer Tuesday at the Amarillo Fat Stock Show.

The reserve champion bull award went to J. P. Calliham of Conway, Tex., and the Arrowhead Ranch of Okmulgee, Okla., showed the reserve champion heifer.

Bonus Sentence

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24 —UP— Municipal Judge Mark Brandler Tuesday sentenced laborer Mark O'Neil to five days in jail for drunkenness—plus 122 other days he has owed the city for 27 years.

When police fingerprinted O'Neil after his arrest last Sunday, they discovered he had walked out of the San Predo city jail in 1927 after serving only 28 days of a 150-day term for bootlegging.
