Dispute expected to overshadow OPEC meeting

By JOHN TAGLIABUE
New York Times News Service

BONN — This weekend's emergency session of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Geneva is expected to be dominated by a bitter dispute between Saudi Arabia, the group's most powerful and influential producer, and an alliance of African members supported by Iran.

The 13-member group has been operating since December under the Saudi strategy of unrestrained production to depress prices and win a larger worldwide market share for its oil.

But Algeria and Libya, with the support of tiny Gabon and some non-OPEC nations in Africa, such as Angola, have grown increasingly restive, as dwindling oil prices wipe out badly needed revenues.

This week Nigeria added its voice to the dissidents. Its oil minister, Rilwanu Lukman, said he would join other African states in urging production restraint as a means of working toward average prices of $22 or $23 a barrel. Crude prices have plummeted more than 50 percent since late last year, to below $15 a barrel.

But the most aggressive Saudi opponent is Iran, and the OPEC ministers convene against the backdrop of fresh Iranian attacks in its five-year-old war against Iraq. Iraq enjoys the broad financial and political support of the Saudis and their allies in the Persian Gulf, and some analysts see the latest assaults as part of an Iranian effort to apply military and psychological pressure on the Saudis.

Iran's reasons for joining the discontented coalition lie in its severe cash shortage, as falling oil prices wipe out the revenues it badly needs both to pursue the war with Iraq and to purchase ordinary commodities and foodstuffs. Mehdi Varzi, oil analyst at the London brokerage Grieveson Grant & Co., estimated that Iranian oil income in the current fiscal year might drop below $10 billion, against a government prediction last year of $19.5 billion.

Teheran radio reported fresh Iranian attacks on Iraqi oil platforms in the gulf, and last week quoted Prime Minister Mir Hussein Moussavi as blaming Saudi Arabia and neighboring Kuwait, which broadly backs Saudi policy, for recent sharp drops in oil prices. Moussavi said the two nations, together with four others in the Gulf Cooperation Council, "totally cooperate with the United States" in opposing oil market intervention.

To be sure, there will be efforts at compromise in Geneva. Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, Venezuela's oil minister and the conference president, said before leaving Caracas on Thursday that Venezuela would push for agreement on a production target and renew a proposal it first put forth last October that OPEC's price system be pegged to a basket of crude oil prices, including some non-OPEC varieties.

But Venezuela has managed to bolster its oil sales recently by adopting an aggressive pricing policy. Brigido Natera, president of Petr'oleos de Venezuela, the state oil company, was quoted on Thursday as saying that the country exported 1.8 million barrels of crude a day last week and would reach similar levels this week, compared with between 700,000 barrels and 800,000 barrels in late January.

The need for compromise was also underscored by the Indonesian oil minister, Subroto, who told reporters before leaving Jakarta that he would propose to "stabilize prices at around $20 to $25 a barrel" by agreeing on an overall production ceiling that would support such levels.

But Subroto himself indicated that prospects for compromise appeared dim, given that the North African nations seemed determined to propose a drastic output cut to about 10 million barrels a day, from the current level of 16 million to 18 million barrels.

Such a proposal, experts agreed, was virtually certain to founder on the evident determination of Saudi Arabia and its gulf region allies to depress prices by continued unrestrained production.

"The Saudis are going in with a whip hand," said Steven Turner, an oil analyst at the Edinburgh brokerage of Wood Mackenzie & Co. Last week, Saudi Arabia gathered in Riyadh with its allies in the Gulf Cooperation Council — Kuwait, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates, Oman and Bahrain — and issued a statement deploring oil market deterioration "to an unacceptable level that we hope will convince all of the importance of cooperation."

Gandy: Oil fees would hurt independents

By JULIE HILLRICHS

Gandy

Oil import fees may appear to be the solution to the problems that plague the oil and gas industry, but it ultimately would be damaging to the independent producer, said Republican congressional candidate Henry Gandy during a campaign appearance here Friday.

Gandy told Midland Jaycees during a luncheon at the Midland Hilton that the independent oil and gas producer — responsible for the majority of the industry's exploration and production — would suffer most from an oil import fee.

"On its surface, it looks like it would be (the solution) to our problems when, in reality, it would tax the oil and gas industry even more," he said. "We cannot afford any more taxes right now. We need less taxes."

Gandy served as an aid to U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, before announcing his bid for the GOP nomination. The Kerrville native is among 11 candidates seeking election to the 21st Congressional district and is a former aide to minority whip Trent Lott and assistant to the president on minority affairs.

Gandy said the future of this country's national security depends on whether the oil and gas industry is able to recover from falling oil prices and further taxation.

"It is critical to our national security that we maintain this very important element," he said.

Gandy called on Congress to look for other answers to stabilize the oil and gas industry. Among them are retaining the current tax incentives, repealing the Windfall Profit Tax and Fuel Use Act, and opening outer continental shelf development off the California coast.

He also called for "certainty" in federal tax code.

The tax reform bill, passed by the House of Representatives, "is not in the best interest of the state or the 21st District as it relates to oil and gas taxation," said Gandy.

He added, "Had I been in Congress I would have voted against it and I would have called for a role call vote.

"I've seen four major changes in the federal tax code since I moved to Washington in 1978. What we need now is certainty," he said.

In other remarks, Gandy said he strongly supports federal aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

He noted, "The whole area is looking toward us to see if we will be steadfast in our support of the contras. I think we need to be."

Baylor's Teaff thinks 'power to believe' important

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

For Baylor University football coach Grant Teaff, being successful means more than winning the "big" game, being named Southwest Conference Coach of the Year or finishing the season undefeated.

As Baylor's second-winningest coach (behind Morley Jennings), success for Teaff means making a positive contribution to society in all his endeavors. And he relishes the opportunity to teach young people the same skill.

"Man is more than just physical. He is mental and spiritual," Teaff told honored guests at the fourth annual Midland Christian School Tree of Life dinner here Friday night. "To be competitive, we have to develop young people physically, mentally and spiritually."

The Tree of Life dinner was the highlight of a year-long fundraising campaign to express appreciation to friends who contribute $1,000 or more to the school.

When Teaff took over the Baylor program in 1972, he said he applied the "power of intangibles" he always used.

"I dreamed a dream that Baylor University could stand toe-to-toe with all the big schools in the Southwest Conference. I dreamed that we could compete and win and we did," he said.

"You see, the power to believe is the base for all intangibles," he said. "If you want it bad enough, you can get it. If you want a positive, winning attitude, you can have it."

Teaff, one of America's most respected coaches, twice was named Southwest Conference Coach of the Year, not to mention being named Coach of the Year by the National Collegiate Athletic Association. He also is a member of the NCAA rules committee and chairman of the American Football Coaches Association Ethics Committee.

In addition, Teaff is one of the nation's most sought-after speakers. He is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and has served on the board of directors of the group.

Teaff, entering his 15th season with the Baylor program, told the audience of two personal inspirations.

The first, he said, was a frail child who barely survived pneumonia three consecutive years. Still, he went on to play high school football, college football at Baylor and is currently middle linebacker with the world champion Chicago Bears. His name: Mike Singletary, National Football League Player of the Year.

The second inspiration, said Teaff, was a second-string Baylor Bear who was left paralyzed following a freak injury during football practice.

Through his faith, Keith Woods — despite being confined to a wheelchair — went on to lead his teammates to a 1979 Peach Bowl victory against Clemson University, Teaff said.

"Now, tell me which is the most successful?" he asked the audience.

Then he answered the question, saying "You see, success is the way you walk the path of life everyday. Success is being faithful to your friends and the stranger...Success is having character in everything you do," he said.

Soviets expell U.S. diplomat for alleged spying

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union on Friday ordered a U.S. diplomat out of the country and accused him of spying. The move came a week after Washington ordered cutbacks in personnel at the Soviet U.N. mission in New York.

KGB agents in Moscow on Monday detained U.S. diplomat Michael Sellers "in flagrante delicto as he was having a clandestine meeting with a Soviet citizen recruited by U.S. intelligence," the official news agency Tass said.

In a short report, Tass said an investigation "produced evidence fully implicating the staff member of the U.S. embassy in intelligence-gathering activities incompatible with his official status."

Tass did not say how long Sellers was held or give further details of the incident. It said the report came from the KGB security police.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Jaroslav Verner confirmed Sellers was declared persona non grata Friday but had no further comment. The embassy has a policy of not commenting on Soviet allegations of spying by U.S. diplomats.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said he knew nothing about the expulsion.

Sellers, a second secretary who specialized in Soviet relations with Eastern Europe and previously served in Poland and Ethiopia, could not be reached at home or through the U.S. Embassy.

He and his wife Lucy, who have one daughter, arrived in Moscow in September 1984.

Sellers is the first U.S. diplomat ordered out of the Soviet Union since June, when authorities detained and then expelled diplomat Paul Stombaugh because of what the Soviets said was a major espionage mission.

The expulsion of Sellers comes a week after the United States ordered the Soviets to cut the size of their missions at the United Nations in New York from 279 to 170 by April 1988.

Washington claimed many Soviet diplomats have engaged in spying activities and said the size of the U.N. mission posed a threat to U.S. security.

The U.S. demand led to an official protest from the Soviet Foreign Ministry to U.S. Charge d'affaires Richard Combs on Tuesday. The Soviets said Washington's "illegitimate demand" has put superpower relations and the next U.S.-Soviet summit in jeopardy.

The Soviets have made clear, however, that they cannot retaliate by ordering cuts in the U.S. Embassy staff in Moscow or the number of diplomats at the consulate in Leningrad. The United States has 200 officials in Moscow and 26 in Leningrad.

"We cannot retaliate in a direct sense," Soviet Ambassador Vasily Safronchuk said in New York Thursday, explaining that the U.S. embassy in Moscow has a different status than the Soviet Union's U.N. mission.

The two U.S. missions fall into a different category than the Soviet mission at the United Nations because the U.N. is an international body.

Vasiliy Safranchuk, acting Soviet ambassador at the U.N. mission, said Thursday he will ask the General Assembly's committee for relations with the host country to take "appropriate action" to the U.S. demand, which Moscow considers illegal.

Moscow has expelled other Americans on espionage charges in recent years.

On Sept. 12, 1983, Lon David Augustenborg was ordered to leave after he and his wife Denise were detained outside Leningrad and accused of trying to collect what Soviet newspaper reports later called a "spy container."

On June 12, 1983, Louis Thomas, a civilian working in the embassy security division, was detained during what the Soviets called "a prearranged conspiracy meeting with an agent."

On March 7, 1983, economics attache Richard Osborne was detained in a Moscow park after he was caught "red-handed" trying to make a radio transmission, Tass said.

One-hundred-year-old newspaper columnist has no idea of quitting

Moore

PETTUS, Texas (AP) — Margaret Moore was 9 years old when she began writing about people and events in this South Texas community.

Ninety-one years later, she has no plans to quit.

"I never think of retiring," said the 100-year-old columnist for the Beeville Bee-Picayune. "I don't know any different kind of job. I don't know what people would do if they retire."

Mrs. Moore began writing in 1895 for the then-Beeville Picayune.

The publisher wanted Mrs. Moore's father, Henry Dahl, to write about events in Pettus, a new community 10 miles north of Beeville.

But Dahl, a German immigrant, could not write English very well. So he drafted his daughter.

In the first few years, she wrote about new people coming to the bustling town. She wrote about townspeople having visitors. She wrote about new businesses. She wrote about newborns and deaths.

She would go with her father from home to home in a horse-and-buggy looking for stories. Sometimes the news came to her — people would visit their farmhouse, located a few miles from town.

"I just wrote about anything I wanted to, about people. That was the main thing," said Mrs. Moore, a frail white-haired woman with a spry humor.

"My daddy was a good storyteller. I don't mean he'd lie; he was just good at telling stories," she said. "He was educated in Germany and he talked and read English. He just couldn't write it."

Mrs. Moore said newspaper editors did most of the true writing in her early years. She said she enjoyed it and got better at it.

But at age 14, Mrs. Moore took a 23-year break from the newspaper business.

She went to college for four years, married Begley Moore and began teaching school and raising a family.

In 1923, she returned to Pettus and continued to write about church and school activities and visitors in town.

In 1928, the Picayune merged with the Beeville Bee and Mrs. Moore continued writing, even though some townspeople got mad at some of the things she wrote, including the marital problems of one couple.

"People think newspaper work is easy work," she said. "It's not very easy work. There's always somebody ready to criticize you if it's not like they want it to be."

Mrs. Moore had other jobs, but she loved to write.

She used a car and a telephone to get her information and used thousands of sheets of paper and wore out two typewriters in writing the news. She started a column, "Flowers for the Living," which recognized people for their good deeds. She thought townspeople should have their name in the newspaper at least one other time other than their obituary.

Joyce Latcham, whose grandfather hired Mrs. Moore, said that the elderly woman has a great personality.

"She's a woman who obviously likes people and likes to be with people. She likes to congratulate people," said Mrs. Latcham, whose family owns and operates the newspaper.

"There's still a place for a woman like her — with a variety of interests and a general interest in people," she said.

The newspaper is now published twice a week and Mrs. Moore's column, Pettus Potpourri, is published on Thursdays.

Mrs. Moore still writes about visitors, church and school events, and now, the declining population of Pettus, which today numbers about 400.

"People come and go. They move off...get work somewhere else. I think I'm the only person who has lived here all this time," Mrs. Moore said.

"I just say keep on, keep on going," she said. "I just live a day at a time. I don't feel like I'm a hundred years old."

Death of drug raid's 'innocent victim' ruled homicide

STATE

DALLAS (AP) — A man has died more than five years after he was shot during a botched drug raid in which law officers mistook him for a suspect, and a medical examiner has ruled the case a homicide.

"He was a totally innocent victim," said Windle Turley, the attorney for the family of Doy Vanderburg, who died Feb. 15. "This is the most bizarre set of events that led to his death."

Turley has filed suits in federal and state court over the death.

An autopsy showed Vanderburg died of complications related to a gunshot wound to the abdomen, according to a report of the medical examiner's office. Vanderburg was left deaf and paralyzed by the 1980 shooting at his Dallas home and complications stemming from it. He underwent more than 80 operations, according to the lawsuits, and ran up medical costs of more than $2 million.

"He wanted to live so long and suffered so long," said his father, Donnie Vanderburg. "If he had died in a car accident, it would be sad, but this ..."

The medical examiner's office has ruled the death a homicide, and the district attorney's office reopened an old investigation when it learned that Vanderburg, 27, had died.

The shooting occurred around midnight on Oct. 29, 1980, after Vanderburg answered the door of his home, holding a .357-caliber pistol that his fiancee had recently given to him for his 22nd birthday.

Vanderburg, a maintenance man, later said he was holding the gun because he had seen several casually dressed, armed men, who he thought were burglars, approaching the house.

The men actually were police officers with a warrant containing an outdated address for a man who once lived in the home.

The officers were serving arrest warrants as part of a drug roundup involving the Dallas County Sheriff's Department and DeSoto, Duncanville and Lancaster police. Vanderburg was not wanted by police, authorities said later.

When Vanderburg opened the door, a brief gunbattle erupted. Police shot Vanderburg once. One of the officers was hit by a shot police claimed Vanderburg fired, while a late-arriving Dallas police officer shot a plainclothes county deputy because he didn't recognize the man, police said. Both officers recovered.

Taken to Parkland Hospital, Vanderburg was given no antibotics as part of a since-discontinued experiment called the Trauma Project, relatives claim. They also contend he was not taken to surgery for at least seven hours after he arrived at the hospital and that the police officers were treated first.

The investigation into the shooting was reopened after prosecutors were contacted last month by a Dallas homicide investigator, said Hugh Lucas, an assistant district attorney in charge of the grand jury.

"Right now we're getting the files together and looking to see if it will be presented to the grand jury," Lucas said. "There's been no decision on what to do with it."

A grand jury declined to return any indictments when the case was reviewed in 1980, Lucas said.

Vanderburg and his family filed $10 million lawsuits in federal and state courts because of the shooting, Turley said. The federal suit alleged that three police officers violated Vanderburg's civil rights, while the state suit alleged that the hospital staff failed to properly treat Vanderburg and used him in a medical experiment against his wishes, Turley said.

Revised suits were filed after Vanderburg's death, he said. None of the suits have been set for trial.

Hospital officials have maintained that Vanderburg signed a consent form allowing him to be placed in the study of treatment methods without antibiotics.

Judge grants injunction to halt election called by Baptist church

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge granted an injunction Friday that postpones an election scheduled for today called by Baptist church members trying to oust their Baptist pastor from the pulpit.

State District Judge Thomas R. Phillips granted the injunction and also appointed a special master to make sure the election is carried out according to state law, said Robin Lindley, court coordinator.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Leon Ford, filed suit Thursday seeking to stop the election. Ford, 52, pastor of the church since 1965, claimed the election violated the church's bylaws.

But Phillips ruled Thursday that the bylaws never were adopted and that the church therefore is governed by the Texas non-profit law, which says an election can be called by 10 percent of the members.

Lindley said the special master, a Houston attorney, was appointed to help determine who is eligible to vote in the election. A new date has not been set for the election, he said.

The by-laws ruled invalid said that three-fourths of the congregation's members must vote against the pastor to remove him.

In order to stop the election, Phillips said, Ford must prove that less than 10 percent of the members are asking for an election.

Ford's opponents claim the pastor wants to change the church's name to Wright Grove Full Gospel Church and that he refuses to tell parishioners where church funds are deposited.

Some claim Ford has been conducting services with dancing and healing and has been speaking in unintelligible tongues and pouring blessed oil on members' foreheads.

The pastor said the church is Baptist in style even though the speaking of tongues occurs during services.

On Feb. 17, church deacons voted to remove Ford and to declare the pulpit vacant. The board scheduled today's election to let church members ratify or reject Ford's removal.

Court candidate: Contributions 'exorbitant'

AUSTIN (AP) — Shirley Butts, a candidate for Place One on the Texas Supreme Court, charged Friday that financial contributions to some high court candidates have become "exhorbitant."

Ms. Butts, a San Antonio Court of Appeals judge, said she would make contributions one of the key issues in her campaign.

Among other issues she intends to emphasize are "good old boys, political cronyism and back room politics" and the need for "a qualified woman on the Supreme Court."

Ms. Butts said the issue of large financial contributions to Supreme Court candidates should worry all voters.

"Throughout my campaign, I have warned the people of Texas of the dangers of political influence peddling and favoritism that well might result from the hundreds of thousands of dollars contributed to Supreme Court candidates and judges by special interest lawyers, lobbyists and other special interest groups," she said.

"I also warned that the exhorbitant cost of campaigning for the Supreme Court one day might corrupt our system of justice in Texas," she said.

San Antonio to pay

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The city of San Antonio must pay $395,000 in fines for illegal discharges of raw and partially treated sewage into the San Antonio River, according to a lawsuit settlement.

The agreement calls for the city to pay damages on future illegal discharges.

Upton County sheriff attacks Mattox

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Upton County Sheriff Glenn Willeford lambasted a fellow Democrat, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, accused him of undermining law enforcement in Texas and withdrew his role as Upton County coordinator for Mattox's re-election campaign.

And Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter likewise voiced opposition to Mattox, who is unopposed in the May 3 Democratic Party primary election but will have a Republican opponent in the Nov. 4 general election. Mattox has been attorney general since 1983, when he succeeded another Democrat, Mark White, who is running for re-election as governor of Texas.

Willeford, 39, of Rankin said he is convinced that Mattox wants "unionized police for our state."

"My conscience will not allow me to support such a position," he said in a letter to Don Buford, Mattox's campaign manager.

In a Friday noon news conference in Painter's office, Willeford said his decision to resign was based on statements which Mattox made in a Wednesday news conference "on the steps of the Capitol" in Austin immediately prior to a meeting of the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Standards and Education.

"Attorney General Mattox's positions, as stated, clearly indicate that more centralization of government, and less local control, are his goals for our state."

"Mr. Mattox's close association with the labor-union movement, and, in particular, the combined law-enforcement associations of Texas ... causes me to doubt the attorney general's loyalty to constitutional, locally controlled law enforcement."

In referring to labor union's ability to strike, Willeford said that a unionized police force with the ability to walk off the job would jeopardize public safety.

Painter, a Republican, said, he, too, was against unionized police forces and would not support Mattox. Painter is lending his support to Ed Walsh, former Williamson County District Attorney who prosecuted mass murderer Henry Lee Lucas, who received the death penalty.

"I'm totally opposed to it (unionized police)," Painter said. "The majority of law-enforcement in the state of Texas does not and will not support Jim Mattox."

Willeford also seemed irked by Mattox's criticism of "the excellent law-enforcement effort by local and state agencies in convicting mass murderer, Henry Lee Lucas."

Willeford said Mattox's words and actions were forcing him "to withdraw my support of any re-election effort on behalf of" Mattox.

Willeford said his withdrawal from Mattox's campaign "should not be construed as an endorsement for any other candidate."

Republican Party candidates for attorney general include 144th State District Court Judge Roy Barrera Jr. of San Antonio and Walsh of Georgetown, along with John Roach of Plano.

"I'm whole-heartedly for Ed Walsh and for what he's trying to do for the state of Texas," Painter said.

He said Mattox has done "too many things wrong," though he has "brought about some good programs," including child-support litigation. "He's got some other things going that are nice," Painter said, "but they are politically motivated."

Willeford noted that Mattox fueled an investigation into the Texas Rangers' investigation of Lucus and then ordered Lucas to the Texas Department of Corrections. That action restricted law-enforcement officers' further questioning of Lucas and virtually stymied their investigation of Lucas.

"Jim Mattox started this charade," which suggested "supposed wrongdoings" by Texas Rangers, Painter said.

Willeford also criticized Mattox for referring to the execution of a man convicted of killing a police officer as "undesirable."

Painter and Willeford advocate the death penalty.

"If a man will kill a police officer," said Painter, "he'll kill anybody."

Further, Painter said that rehabilitation of criminals "is not working" and that "the pendulum has swung too far to the right" in regard to rehabilitation of criminals and to prisoners' rights.

Both Willeford and Painter said Mattox was insensitive to law-enforcement in West Texas and in rural areas elsewhere due to their relatively sparse population. Instead, Mattox favors areas such as Dallas and Houston and counts on support from those urban areas for his re-election.

Willeford, who said he will "vote my conscience on election day," said he "very much" regrets that the Democratic Party did not field another candidate for attorney general of Texas.

Shortwave operators to gather in Midland

From Staff Reports

More than 1,500 shortwave radio hobbyists from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado and Louisiana will gather in Midland this weekend for the annual St. Patrick's Day Swapfest sponsored by the Midland Amateur Radio Club. The Ham radio operators will attend the two-day event at the Midland County Exhibit Building on East Highway 80, east of the fairgrounds.

Programs scheduled for the event include service weather spotter training sessions conducted by the National Weather Service, several technical seminars on the latest electronic and communications technology developments and the annual meeting of Military Affiliate Radio Operators. Again scheduled for this year is a Federal Communications Commission approved Amateur Radio License Test Session to be held today at the Holiday Inn Country Villa on West Highway 80 in Midland. More than 40 persons have registered to attempt passing higher classes of FCC licenses during the test session. The tests will measure the person's skill in communicating with Morse Code, plus knowledge of electronics and FCC rules and regulations.

Other events include a flea market of radio equipment and electronic components, exhibits of new communications equipment, Morse Code speed contests, home-built equipment contests and numerous social events tonight. Equipment dealers from Texas, New Mexico and Colorado are scheduled to display equipment for sale at the show.

"The Annual Midland Swapfest is an event looked forward to each year with great anticipation in the ham radio community," said Midland Amateur Radio Club President Don McCarty. "Our Swapfest provides the only opportunity for many hams who are good friends on the air but may actually live four to five hundred miles apart, to actually meet in person. The flea market also affords each of us the opportunity to acquire needed components or equipment to sustain our engineering and building efforts for the coming year."

Swapfest hours are from noon today to 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday. Anyone with an interest in shortwave radio is urged to attend. Admission is free, however to be eligible for door prizes or to participate ian the flea market or contests, a $6 registration fee will be collected at the door.

Central America week slated

From Staff Reports

Sunday marks the first day of Central America Week, a time for people to learn more about the political situation in various parts of Central America, to honor the lives of those who have worked for peace and justice in this area and to remember those who have lost their lives in this troubled part of the world.

On Sunday, "Americas in Transition," an award-winning videotape narrated by Ed Asner will be shown at the Unitarian Universalist Church in Midland, Neely and Midkiff, at 7 p.m. This film looks at relations between the United States and Latin America and examines some of the area's underlying causes of unrest.

Thursday, Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, 1208 Cherry Lane, will air "Dawn of the People," a film about Nicaragua's literacy campaign in 1980, at 7:30 p.m. in the Education Center.

A public interfaith service will be held at the Midland County Courthouse at 7 p.m. Saturday. Clergy and laity from all faiths are invited to gather and pray for peace in Central America. Persons interested in speaking at the service should call 1-367-9253 or 694-4751.

Sunday, March 23, a slide show examining U.S. business interests in Central America, U.S. economic and military aid and the relationships between the ruling elite, the military and corporate interests will be shown at El Calvario Methodist Church, 1209 Garden Lane, after the evening service.

The public is invited to attend all of these events. For more information, call 1-367-9253 or 694-4751.

DEATHS

Georgia Bishop

RANKIN — Georgia Carroll Bishop, 58, owner of the Mule Train, a museum and tavern just west of here, died Friday in an Iraan hospital following a lengthy illness. She had cancer.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Sunday in the First Baptist Church of Rankin. Burial will be in the Rankin Cemetery under direction of James Dennis Funeral Home of McCamey.

Mrs. Bishop was born on Aug. 2, 1927, in Arkansas. She was married to Roy Don Bishop in December 1979.

The rustic Mule Train was launched in 1956 by Jacob Carol "J.C." Carroll, who then was Mrs. Bishop's husband.

The rock Mule Train building soon became a museum, as Carroll both adorned and cluttered the inside and outside of the building with artifacts from the range land and prairie once roamed by buffalo and traveled by Indians and pioneers and with relics from the oil patch. The museum has artifacts from horse shoes to juke boxes.

J.C. Carroll and Georgia started an enduring tradition at Thanksgiving and Christmas times. During those holidays, they provided feasts of wild turkey, deer, other meats and all the trimmings for friends, travelers, strangers and any others who had no place to go during the holidays.

Carroll died at age 55 in June 1978. She and Bishop continued the tradition as well as The Mule Train following his death.

Survivors include her husband; a son, Teddy Johnson of Rankin; three sisters, three brothers, L. Dean Johnson of Fort Stockton, Fred Johnson of Midland and Bill Johnson of Ralls. A brother, Corky Johnson, died in 1985.

Willie Perry

McCAMEY — Mrs. Willie Newton Perry, 97, of McCamey died Friday morning in a McCamey nursing home.

Services will be at 2 p.m. today in the United Methodist Church in Merkel. Burial will be in Glen Hill Cemetery in Merkel under direction of James Dennis Funeral Home of McCamey.

Mrs. Perry was born on Feb. 2, 1889, in Glen Rose and was married to E.P. Perry on April 18, 1907, in Taylor County. Perry died in 1936.

Survivors include a daughter, Cleon Hanks of McCamey; a sister, Effie Pruitt of Abilene; seven grandchildren, 12 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by three sons, W.T. Perry, Orville Perry and Loyd Perry.

Society to mark 144 anniversary

The Relief Society, the organization for women of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, will celebrate its 144th anniversary on Monday. It was organized in 1842 by the prophet Joseph Smith who said, "The church is not completely organized until the women are thus organized."

Since its beginning, the Relief Society has become a worldwide organization with 1.75 million members. Relief Society General President Barbara Winder said, "When it was organized, the women were admonished to do charitable works; we are admonished to do so even today." She said the mission of Relief Society is to help women "One, have faith in God and build individual testimonies of the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ; two, strengthen home and families; and three, render compassionate service."

President Benson, Prophet of the Church, spoke of the great influence of women and the Relief Society can have in the world, "To every woman God has given great capacity to influence others for good. In her own home she can create a world where truth and light prevail. Outside her home she can use her talents to bless the lives of others, in addition to her family. How grateful we ought to be for the influence of any noble woman who has lifted and inspired us."

Women in Midland wards will celebrate the 144th anniversary of the Relief Society at a luncheon today, 11:30 am-1 p.m. at the Midland LDS chapel at 2101 Tarleton.

Plainview minister to address group

Hammond

The Midland chapter of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International will meet this evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Midland Hilton, corner of Wall and Loraine.

Guest speaker will be Frank Hammond, a noted author and minister from Plainview. Hammond is a graduate of Baylor University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He is the author of the best-seller "Pigs in the Parlor" and has written a second book with his wife, Ida Mae, entitled "Kingdom Living for the Family." They also conduct family seminars and have ministered throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, behind the Iron Curtain and in South America.

For those interested, there will be a dinner at 6:30 p.m. before the 7:30 meeting. The public is invited.

Week set aside for United Way

From Staff Reports

Sunday through Saturday has been declared United Way Agency Awareness Week by the city of Midland.

The week will be a coordinated effort by United Way and its member agencies to help the public understand where and how their United Way contribution is working in the community and that their contributions work year round helping Midlanders.

More than $2 million was raised to support United Way agencies in 1986 and to help more than 30,000 Midlanders.

United Way agencies in Midland county include the American Cancer Society, American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boys' Club of Midland, Boy Scouts of America-Buffalo Trail Council, Petro-Plains Camp Fire, Casa de Amigos, Community Services Branch/YMCA, Council on Alcoholism, Family Services, Midland Rape Crisis Center, Palmer Drug Abuse Center, Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children, Permian Basin Girl Scouts, Salvation Army and YMCA.

Ohio savings and loans seem to have gotten over bad times

NATION

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — When Donald Meadows of Toledo closed his account after the crisis among Ohio's privately insured savings and loans, he had a promise for officials who assured him his money was safe.

Now, a year after the collapse of Home State Savings Bank in Cincinnati prompted Gov. Richard Celeste to temporarily close almost 70 other S&Ls insured by the Ohio Deposit Guarantee Fund, Meadows is thinking of going back to Century Savings and Loan.

Many of the other half-million depositors affected by last March's closings apparently already have.

"An awful lot of people took their money out, looked at it, saw it was still green, and put it back in," said Connie J. Harris, who became state savings and loan superintendent last July after most of the thrifts had reopened with federal insurance.

Generally, industry observers say the effects of the crisis on Ohio's thrift industry have been minimal.

"What people don't realize is ODGF and Home State contributed less than 10 percent of the savings and loan business in the state," said Lawrence Muldoon, first vice president for the Federal Home Loan Bank in Cincinnati.

The Ohio Savings and Loan League says assets are $50.5 billion. That is about $600 million less than before March 8, 1985, when Home State, besieged by nervous depositors, closed — a victim of questionable trades with ESM Government Securities of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Two former ESM officials have pleaded guilty to various criminal charges.

The crisis prompted debate about the way Ohio regulates its thrifts. A special legislative committee proposed a Cabinet-level Department of Financial Institutions and broader powers for regulators, including more secret actions to prevent bank runs. The legislature hasn't voted on the proposal.

"The most lasting effect will be felt on the political front," said Henry Peltz, vice president and thrift industry specialist with the New York City securities firm of Keefe, Bruyette and Woods.

Celeste, a Democrat up for re-election this year, has said his action was decisive and necessary.

His Republican opponents charge the crisis never should have happened. They say Celeste's ties to Home State owner Marvin Warner show the thrift received preferential treatment from state regulators. Warner contributed more than $30,000 to Celeste's 1982 gubernatorial campaign and was appointed Director of the Ohio Building Authority by the governor. He has resigned.

Ohio has filed more than $2.2 billion worth of lawsuits against Warner, Home State officials and auditors, ESM auditors and executives, to recover more than $129 million spent selling Home State's assets and ensuring its 55,000 depositors got their money.

Webster: FBI didn't hide information

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director William Webster said Friday the bureau did not hide information from the Justice Department during a now-terminated federal investigation of Teamsters union President Jackie Presser.

"It has never been our intent to keep information from the Department of Justice," Webster told the House Judiciary subcommittee on civil rights. "That department was possessed of the information available to me."

Webster was questioned about the Presser case by Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich. The lawmaker asked whether the FBI authorized Presser to make payments to "ghost" union employees and did not fully inform Justice Department prosecutors then investigating the union official.

The Justice Department has ended an investigation of Presser, and probes have been conducted to determine why.

Webster said a grand jury investigation on the matter is "ongoing," while the FBI and Justice Department previously announced they were conducting internal probes.

Presser has denied any wrongdoing in connection with a nearly 3-year-old investigation by a Cleveland grand jury of allegations that payroll money from Teamsters Local 507 in that city was given to people who performed no work for the union.

Presser serves as secretary-treasurer of his hometown local in Cleveland as well as president of the 1.9 million-member International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Webster told Conyers, "We have always tried to keep the department informed about any criminal activities. Occasionally, for reasons of great sensitivity, the level of reporting is restructured. There's never been any attempt to keep the department in the dark."

Conyers: That's what happened.

Webster: The department was possessed of the information available to me.

Conyers: Why were the federal prosecutors in the Cleveland investigation of ghost employees not told.

Webster: I know the answer, but I can't comment.

Three days after the Justice Department announced the grand jury investigation of circumstances behind the decision not to seek Presser's indictment, Justice Department lawyers said they opposed a new embezzlement trial for Presser's uncle, Allen Friedman, because a trial might force the government to reveal whether Presser was an FBI informant.

The department said then, "Responding in any meaningful way to the defendant's discovery request would require the government to confirm or deny that Jackie Presser is or has ever been an informant for the FBI.

Couch saves pregnant woman

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Police say a pregnant woman knocked over a 20-foot cliff by a speeding car was saved by a "one-in-a-million lucky break" when she landed on a junked couch.

Heidi Geoghegan and Richard Schraeder of nearby Ben Lomond were strolling along the cliff at Lighthouse Point on Thursday when a careening car driven by an allegedly drunk teen-ager went off the road, struck them and plunged over the cliff, said Sgt. Tom Watson.

Ms. Geoghegan's fall was cushioned by an old, broken couch on the rocks below. She was treated briefly for scrapes at a hospital and released. Schraeder, who also fell over the cliff, was unharmed.

The driver, a 17-year-old girl, was arrested on suspicion of felony drunk driving and is being held by juvenile authorities. She and two other teen-age girls were injured, but only one remained hospitalized Friday with a scalp laceration and possible concussion. Names of the teen-agers were not released.

"With the severity of the accident, everyone was pretty fortunate to escape without serious injury," said Watson.

Israel, Arabs wage war for hearts and minds of Africans

By DAVID CRARY

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Using tactics that sometimes mirror each other, Israel and its Arab rivals are waging a bitter duel for diplomatic superiority in sub-Saharan Africa.

Each side boasts of deep bonds with black Africans, each offers the promise of material benefits, each tries to foster mistrust of the other. Israelis play upon African fears of terrorism and Islamic expansionism. Arabs depict Israel as an ally of South Africa and a tool of Western powers.

For now, the Arabs have a substantial edge, since most African countries broke ties with Israel after the 1973 Arab-Israeli War.

But Israel is trying to turn the tide. In February, the Ivory Coast became the third black African nation, after Zaire and Liberia, to resume diplomatic relations with Israel. Three others — Swaziland, Malawi and Lesotho — never broke ties, and there is speculation in Israel that Cameroon, Togo or possibly a group of West African nations might soon restore relations.

In all, Israelis conduct development work, military training or business in 20 African countries, including several with no overt interest in resuming formal ties.

Kenya, which follows a generally pro-Western foreign policy but hews to Organization of African Unity positions supporting Palestinian self-determination, exemplifies this phenomenon. Short of restoring diplomatic relations with Israel, it allows almost every kind of commercial and cultural contact.

Israeli architects and construction firms have produced major buildings in Nairobi, annual two-way trade exceeds $10 million, Israel's El Al airline has weekly flights to and from Nairobi, and an Israeli-interests section operates at the Danish Embassy. Kenyans who studied in Israel have even formed a "Shalom Club."

ELSEWHERE IN Africa, contacts often are minimal and discreet. Some governments bar entry by Israelis.

But one Israeli development expert who has worked extensively in East and West Africa said it was inevitable that many African countries would soon restore relations with Israel.

"It is a process which is in motion," said the Israeli, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "No Arab pressure, no OAU pressure, no Soviet-bloc pressure can stop it."

The Palestine Liberation Organization's envoy to Kenya, Khaireddin Abdul Rahman, disagreed, saying in an interview, "This bright picture that Israel is painting does not exist."

He belittled Israel's gains in Zaire and Liberia, saying those countries were not well respected within Africa. And he contended the Ivory Coast restored ties with Israel because of high-level business connections, not public consensus.

Abdul Rahman said the United States is pressuring African leaders to reconcile with Israel, "but it is not for Washington to decide. African countries have grown up and can decide for themselves."

In most of Africa, the PLO enjoys full diplomatic privileges, with its representatives treated as ambassadors. Most African leaders speak out in support of the PLO. But one Israeli who has dealt with some of them said many distrust Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy and worry that pro-Palestinian terrorism could reach their countries.

To illustrate his contention that the specter of terrorism extends deep into Africa, the Israeli cited a recent Kenyan newspaper report that a caller claiming to represent a "Palestinian liberation movement" made two telephoned bomb threats directed at Nairobi's airport and a hotel.

ABDUL RAHMAN called the threats a ruse, "an Israeli attempt to play a dirty game."

Last year, an Israeli Foreign Ministry official, Avi Primor, claimed one African leader had been threatened with assassination if he restored ties with Israel, and others were warned of Arab economic reprisals.

Israeli officials also say the Arabs failed to provide all the financial aid African countries expected as a result of ostracizing Israel.

The Arab League estimates Arab countries provided $9.4 billion in aid to black Africa from 1973 through 1984. But the aid has not offset African oil-import bills.

Mohamed Sharif Mohamud, Arab League ambassador in Kenya, said Arab countries offer the aid in a spirit of solidarity, not as a reward for political positions. But Arab aid to Zaire and Liberia was suspended after they restored relations with Israel.

Israel, born only a decade before Africa's independence era began, has numerous selling points on the continent. It is admired for its military prowess, anti-terrorism expertise and skill at producing food under conditions as inhospitable as those in Africa's arid, famine-prone countries.

The Israeli development expert said his country's food production has almost mythical stature in Africa.

"Like a witch doctor, they believe we can do it, we can solve the problem," he said.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir last month said Israel's 1985 exports to black Africa totaled $100 million and Israeli companies engaged in projects worth $500 million.

IN mid-February, David Kimche, director-general of Israel's Foreign Ministry, visited Africa to discuss business deals, especially in Nigeria, where Anglican Church leader Bishop J.A. Adetilaye has called for resumed relations with Israel.

Israel also hopes to export goodwill through the thousands of Africans visiting there for training or Christian pilgrimages.

Abdul Rahman, on the other hand, said Africa and the Arab world have special bonds because both were dominated and divided by European powers. He said Israel has interfered politically in several African countries and alleged that the Israeli mission to the Nairobi-based U.N. Environment Program devotes much of its energies to intelligence-gathering.

One Israeli problem was underscored when new Ugandan President Yoweri Museveni said, after taking power in January, that he sought friendship with all countries except South Africa and Israel.

Israel admits that a perception of Israeli-South African cooperation aggravates its estrangement in Africa. Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres pledged last year to intensify pressure on South Africa.

But Israel has African defenders, like M.M. Odongo, an accounts officer in Nairobi who studied in Israel in 1982.

"If you go to Israel," Odongo said, "you find out the bad things you've heard aren't true."

U.S. forces conducting exercices off Libyan coast

WORLD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will stage its third naval exercise of the year off the coast of Libya this weekend, but the exercise will be limited in scope compared with the previous maneuvers, Pentagon sources said Friday.

One source described this weekend's maneuvers, which will revolve around a single aircraft carrier instead of two, as "a small tune-up" for what could be a three-carrier exercise later in the month.

Other sources continued to insist, however, that no final decision had been made on conducting that much larger exercise.

The Defense Department and Navy, following their normal practice, refused to discuss details of this weekend's exercise beyond confirming that a Notice of Intent to conduct flight operations within the so-called Tripoli flight-control region had been filed on Thursday.

Carrier flight operations will be conducted in the Tripoli (region) from Friday until Sunday the notice states.

Despite the specification of Friday morning start, one Pentagon source said flights by Navy fighters near the Libyan coastline would not get underway until late Friday night.

The carrier Coral Sea left port in Naples, Italy, on Friday, but was not off the Libyan coast when the notice period began, the source said.

The sources, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified, declined to offer an explanation as to why an exercise was being staged with just one carrier.

The only other carrier in the region, the Saratoga, was still in port Friday in Palma on the Spanish island of Majorca. It would take at least two days for the Saratoga to steam from Palma to the central Mediterranean.

During the previous exercises, which were conducted in January and February, the Saratoga and Coral Sea operated together. The February exercise attracted significant attention from Libya, which dispatched more than 150 planes over the Mediterranean to keep tabs on the 6th Fleet ships.

Despite that aerial activity, however, there were no confrontations between U.S. and Libyan fighters.

The carrier America, meantime, which departed its home port in Norfolk, Va., last Monday, was steaming across the Atlantic Friday on the way to the Mediterranean. The Pentagon has confirmed the America began its cruise two weeks early and that the Saratoga, which is to be relieved, will remain in the area beyond its normal sailing date.

That means there could be a three- to four-week period, starting in another week or so, when the Navy would have three carriers in the Mediterranean. Sources said last month the Reagan administration was thinking of taking advantage of that massive air power to conduct operations not only within the Tripoli flight-control region but also over the disputed Gulf of Sidra.

The Gulf of Sidra is a large, U-shaped body of water that cuts into the central Libyan coastline. Libya claims the gulf as its own waters — a claim the United States dismisses. The last time Libyan and U.S. jet fighters engaged in combat, in 1981, the dogfight occurred as Navy jets were flying over the gulf.

The United States has been conducting exercises off Libya's coast in a "show of resolve" since President Reagan accused Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy of supporting the Palestinian terrorist group believed responsible for the Dec. 27 attacks on the Rome and Vienna airports.

Khadafy has branded the exercises an "aggressive provocation" and warned that Libya is prepared to defend the Gulf of Sidra as its own.

The Tripoli flight-control region, which includes the gulf, covers a large section of the Mediterranean more than 700 miles in length off the Libyan coast. Commercial airliners flying across the area are guided by flight controllers at the Libyan capitol of Tripoli.

The sources said Friday they had seen no indication the Coral Sea's fighters would be flying over the gulf during this weekend's exercise.

Ecuadoran army, police use tanks to battle rebels, retake air base

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Tanks with cannons blazing led government forces into a Quito air base held by a rebellious general Friday and overwhelmed his men, official communiques reported.

Radio Quito said army and police forces battled the rebels for 90 minutes at midday and retook Marsical Sucre Air Base, which Gen. Frank Vargas had seized Thursday night.

"It's known that at least one soldier died, there were an undetermined number of wounded and the government troops have taken about 400 prisoners," the radio station said.

The station is privately owned, but all transmitters were commandeered by the government Friday morning under a state of emergency and ordered to broadcast only official reports of the conflict.

Radio Quito reported earlier that Vargas, who was air force chief until President Leon Febres Cordero fired him for insubordination a week ago, fled the base just before the attack.

"It's confirmed, General Vargas left for Manta air base" 260 miles to the south in Guayaquil on the Pacific coast, it said. Radio Quito also said Vargas had the support of troops at Manta, where he began his rebellion last week.

Three tanks entered the air base after a 20-minute gun battle with rebel troops, according to journalists on the scene.

They said at least 2,000 soldiers took part in the assault, with armored personnel carriers and at least 20 tanks.

Witnesses said evacuation of area residents began at midnight.

Vargas, 51, rebelled March 7 after Febres dismissed him for demanding the resignation of the defense minister and army commander, whom he had accused of fraud in the use of public funds.

He surrendered Tuesday and was taken from Manta to the base in Quito, but claimed the government broke the surrender agreement. He was freed Thursday by sympathetic officers and took over the base.

Febres, 55, imposed a state of emergency Friday morning, suspending constitutional guarantees and establishing prior censorship on "all communications media that attempt to subvert the order."

Vargas had said the purpose of his revolt was to "restore a true social democracy" in Ecuador, which was ruled by the military for nine years before civilian rule was restored in 1979. The general also was chief of the joint military command before Febres dismissed him.

Febres, an authoritarian figure, carries a pistol that he often calls his "best friend."

He is said to be President Reagan's favorite Latin American leader because of his strong support for free enterprise and foreign investment in Latin countries. He broke relations with Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government last fall.

Political opponents accuse him of manipulating factions in Congress to gain control of the one-house legislature. They also say he has tried to muffle the press in an attempt to stifle political opposition.

U.S. condemns Ecuador uprising

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department condemned on Friday the military uprising in Ecuador, calling it a dangerous situation that could threaten that country's democratically elected government.

Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said the United States is "disturbed" by the insurbordination of rebellious elements of the Ecuadorean Air Force.

"We condemn any challenge to that democratically elected government outside the constitutional order of Ecuador," Kalb said.

"A dangerous situation has developed that could result in violence," he said. "We want to emphasize our complete support for the constitutionally elected government of Ecuador and for the democratic process in Ecuador which was strengthened by the free and fair elections of 1984."

Papers which would clear Waldheim missing

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Documents in Kurt Waldheim's personnel file — papers he had said would disprove charges that he once was a Nazi storm trooper — are missing from Foreign Ministry archives, a spokesman said Friday.

Waldheim served as U.N. secretary-general from 1972 to 1982 and now is running for the Austrian presidency. He said earlier the documents would show that he did not belong to the Sturmabteilung, or SA, in 1938.

Gerold Christian, a Waldheim spokesman, referred to the documents March 6 in a conversation with The Associated Press. He said they showed that Waldheim was investigated by state police in 1946, when he applied for a job in the Foreign Ministry, and was found to have no Nazi connections.

Ministry spokesman Otmar Koler told the AP today, "The fact is that the personnel file has disappeared."

He said documents on Waldheim since August 1970, when Waldheim left his post as foreign minister, were still on file.

"I can't give any explanation for it," Koler said.

Foreign Minister Leopold Gratz, whose Socialist Party backs Waldheim opponent Kurt Steyrer for president, confirmed later at a news conference that Waldheim files before August 1970 could not be found and said there were no notes indicating where the missing entries could be. He declined to say more about the issue.

The World Jewish Congress, The New York Times and the Vienna weekly news magazine Profil this month cited documents they said indicated Waldheim was enrolled in the SA and in a Nazi-affiliated student organization.

The allegations surfaced during Waldheim's campaign for president in an election set for May 4. Waldheim, 67, denied belonging to either organization and said his political opponents timed the accusations to hurt his image.

Letter from man facing forced retirement pushes Pepper to 'do something about it'

Pepper

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I myself am 88 years old and am still working two days at my trade as shoe salesman, which started 55 years ago and still like it. There should be no age limit in this matter," a California resident wrote Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., last year.

The writer added: "Do something about it, Claude!"

Pepper, 85, who has become something of a folk hero to elderly Americans, did something about the complaint from Gustav Hollander of Concord, Calif., about mandatory retirement.

Pepper introduced a bill that would abolish it.

"It is inconceivable to me that a nation which prides itself on equal opportunity for all could allow blatant discrimination to persist against its older workers," Pepper told a House hearing this week. "Agism is as odious as sexism and racism."

Pepper's bill, which has 50 co-sponsors in the House, would outlaw forced retirement at any age for most employees in private business. Similar laws already have been enacted in 13 states.

A federal law enacted in 1978 eliminated any mandatory retirement age for federal employees, but allowed private employers to require their workers to retire at age 70.

Pepper's bill would continue existing exemptions for foreign service officers, CIA employees, law enforcement officers, firefighters, air traffic controllers, high-level executives in private industry and tenured college faculty members.

Hollander's letter was one of nearly 1,000 that Pepper received last year with complaints about forced retirement.

"When a man retires, he expires," another letter said. "Our mind and body work together in miraculous ways," one woman wrote, "and if we cut off the activities of one, we curtail the other."

Pepper himself, who began his congressional career in the Senate nearly a half-century ago, said he might be dead today if he had been forced to retire at 65, just three years after he was first elected to the House in 1962.

As the vigorous, hard-working chairman of the House Rules Committee and the subcommittee on health and long-term care of the House Select Committee on Aging, Pepper says he thrives on the daily challenges facing a member of Congress.

Every American should have the right to "be as old as Methuselah and continue to work, if you can do the job," Pepper told a joint hearing of his subcommittee and the House Education and Labor subcommittee on employment opportunities.

Besides, he said, the bill "makes good economic sense" because it would prompt an estimated 195,000 elderly workers to remain on the job, generating about $3 billion annually for their own support and for tax payments and Social Security contributions.

Theaters have $1 night every night

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — A dollar may not go as far as it used to, but it'll still get you into the movies — if you'll settle for a dollar's worth of luxury.

A thriving example of today's no-frills movie house is Big Town 9 in Mesquite, which compensates for nine small screens, Spartan trappings and older films with one irresistible attraction: All seats go for $1. It is the largest dollar-movie operation in the Dallas-Fort Worth area with seating for more than 1,500.

Ronie James, a 41-year-old Tyler native and assistant manager of the operation owned by Texas Cinema Corp., says the cost of tickets for first-run movies is prohibitive for many customers, especially those who bring the whole family.

The lobby design follows the family theme. No elaborate chandeliers here. Instead, Bugs Bunny, the Pink Panter and several multicolored kites dangle from the ceiling. A few wooden benches are scattered about the utilitarian lobby. In a nearby room, pinball and video machines ping and whir under flashing lights and a parachute canopy.

In the center of the lobby is the key to profits at the dollar movies: the concession stand. "Our goal is to average $1 in concession sales for each customer," James says.

Here a small bag of popcorn costs as much as a ticket. A small drink is 75 cents. A popular special is the $2.50 barrel of popcorn. Eat one and get a free refill. "We sell a lot of popcorn," says James. "We use about 10 50-pound bags of popcorn (kernels) a week."

Families may come here together, but generally they split up after the concession stand. Parents go to one movie; children, another. On a recent Thursday night the fare included one G-rated, four R-rated, four PG movies.

The crowd is diverse, racially mixed, ranging from infants to senior citizens. There are fewer couples, more families than at the standard first-run theater. If there's a common denominator, it's the attire. Not a necktie or three-piece suit in sight. The jeans of the customers are older than the movies on the screens. Sweaters are decorated with holes, not alligators.

The individual theaters are small and plain. The largest (showing "Jagged Edge") seats 228; the smallest ("Teen Wolf"), 125. In the rear of theater No. 4 lies a metal ladder, used for changing letters on the marquee. Beside the ladder is a commodious trash barrel, complete with plastic liner.

Maintaining low overhead forces James to be a jack of all trades. On a typical day, he takes tickets, threads film into projectors, sweeps the floor, makes emergency repairs to the games — and fields complaints about sticky floors.

Most of the employees are students at Skyline High School.

Movie times are staggered so one person can thread all projectors. With so little help, what happens if two films break simultaneously? "I've had four break at one time," says James ruefully. "You've just got to keep your cool and fix 'em one at a time."

The audience may get service, but James says most patrons are dollar-movie veterans who realize they're watching film "that's been through all those other machines."

After all, plush theaters may be a thing of the past, but the romance of the movies lingers. Even in dollar houses.

Gospel singer also performs with her hands

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Mary Ann Kirtley sings with her hands as well as her voice.

"It's prettier for the whole audience and its not distracting to the singer," says the Houston gospel singer who translates some of her repertoire into sign language for her deaf audiences, creating a graceful performance and an unusual way of worship.

Ms. Kirtley says the idea for signing songs came when she saw gospel singer Sandi Patti sign "We Shall Behold Him" for the deaf a few years ago.

Shortly after that, Ms. Kirtley saw a woman translate to her son at a conference for single adults. She talked to a man who worked with the ministry to deaf people at her home congregation of Houston's First Baptist Church. He taught her in an hour how to create a word-for-word translation of the song into the international sign language.

"I didn't care if there was only one (deaf) person in the audience, I would do it," she said, adding that she could worship God better, too.

Ms. Kirtley says smooth hand motions about the strength of God physically express what she sings. She signs only two songs now, but she added that "I have a goal where I'm adept enough to adapt an entire concert to sign language."

Ms. Kirtley has dedicated her talent to the ministry of the church, she said. "I want to know that I'm smack dab in the middle of God's will."

Her work ranges from weddings and funerals to a performance at a Billy Graham crusade in Boston, Mass., in 1982. She's privately produced two albums and has sung in the United Kingdom, Europe and Taiwan.

Ms. Kirtley started singing as a full-time ministry in 1977, the year that she graduated from the University of Houston. She had some rough going at times, though, she said.

Botha caught between blacks' demands, whites' privileges

By MARCUS ELIASON

KRUGERSDORP, South Africa (AP) — The dilemma confronting President P.W. Botha as he tries to put a more human face on apartheid comes into sharp focus among the comfortable cottages of Dan Pienaarville and the squalor of neighboring Munsieville.

The two suburbs, separated by a couple of hundred yards of grassland, are contrasting worlds in a town of profound historical symbolism to Afrikaners.

The whites say they want the blacks moved several miles away to a new township being built for them. The blacks refuse to leave. The whites say they moved into the white suburb an hour's drive west from Johannesburg only after the government promised the blacks would go. The blacks say they were there long before Dan Pienaarville was built.

Now, as part of a promise to relieve the harsher aspects of apartheid, South Africa's system of race separation, Botha's government has pledged no longer to force blacks to move against their will. Munsieville is listed among 13 black townships that will not only stay put, but be developed.

The whites of Krugersdorp are in uproar. In their tightly enclosed world, where apartheid is dyed into their philosophy from birth, they see no injustice in demanding that an entire township go away. Instead they are outraged that their government has failed to honor a promise made 10 years ago to erase Munsieville, home to approximately 2,500 families.

THE AFFAIR, says Johannesburg's Star newspaper, is a microcosm of "the sad state of inter-group relationships...There is a need for greater tolerance on both sides of the fence."

Instead of tolerance there is violence.

On Jan. 30 a gasoline bomb exploded on the Vrey family's veranda in Dan Pienaarville. The attacker was presumed to come from Munsieville. In three subsequent incidents, whites shot randomly at blacks in the Krugersdorp area, wounding seven. In a fourth attack, police say three young whites killed a black man by setting him afire.

The army, meanwhile, has begun patrolling Munsieville and Dan Pienaarville. Troops perched atop a water tower keep watch on the black township. But fear is spreading.

"I'm too scared to go off to the shopping center or the cafe," said housewife Annatjie Van Schoor. "We don't want to go on holiday because we're scared to leave our home and everything in it."

Anne Vrey, whose house was hit by the gasoline bomb, said she had been expecting trouble.

"For some time," she said, "we were hearing natives (blacks) walking past our house saying things like, 'Ons gaan julle huise vat'" — Afrikaans for, "We're going to take your houses."

The Dan Pienaarville residents accuse Munsieville blacks of burglarizing their homes, many of which are fortified with high walls, steel door grills and burglar alarms. Property values have plummeted, and "For Sale" signs are popping up. To a foreigner, the tidy streets, lush gardens and swimming pools look like paradise on a powderkeg.

THE FIREBOMB did little more than scorch the Vreys' living-room curtains, but the message was inescapable: The bonfire of racial turmoil raging through South Africa had touched the heartland of white Afrikanerdom.

The whites have since collected more than 10,000 signatures on a petition demanding Munsieville's removal.

"The residents of Munsieville should be moved to a place where they can be among their own people," said Town Clerk J.J.L. Nieuwoudt in an interview. That place, he said, is Kagiso, a new black township several miles away, where he says residents will enjoy better amenities.

"Munsieville is a cancer and has to be removed. We must protect our own white skins," Chris Viljoen, a right-wing member of the Krugersdorp Town Council, declared in a heated outburst at the town hall debate.

In an interview later, the 57-year-old pharmacist said the council had been told by a government minister that Munsieville was being spared partly because Bishop Desmond Tutu, the civil rights leader and Nobel Peace Prize laureate, once taught at Munsieville's high school, and the township's removal would provoke an American outcry.

"But that kind of talk just aggravates people here," Viljoen said. "They can't be bothered all the time with what America says."

MUNSIEVILLE blacks are adamant, too. They say they originally were uprooted 40 years ago and settled in Munsieville, and they see no reason to move again.

"They (Dan Pienaarville) became our neighbors 40 years after we have settled and got used to the terrible conditions all blacks live under. Now they want us moved again," says Anna Motialentwa, 78, one of Munsieville's oldest residents.

If Munsieville's claim to fame is Tutu, Krugersdorp's pride is that here Paul Kruger, patriarch of Afrikaner nationalism, gathered his comrades in 1877 to stop the encroaching British Empire, an armed struggle the Dutch-descended Boers eventually lost 25 years later.

Krugersdorp, a town of 57,000 whites and 70,000 blacks, has prospered mainly because it sits astride a vein of gold stretching through Transvaal province. Hulking slag heaps from the mines are gradually greening into pleasant flat-topped hills.

While Munsieville's crowded huts and dusty streets reflect decades of segregation and white supremacy, Dan Pienaarville represents the rise of a prosperous middle class among the Boer's Afrikaner descendants. Now, as Botha moves to reform apartheid, conservative communities like Krugersdorp sense their achievements slipping away.

CRITICS ON Botha's left say he has done no more than tinker with apartheid, abolishing its unsightly trappings while leaving intact such basics as segregated schooling and residential areas. On his right, conservatives complain he has already gone too far.

A visitor sitting in Mrs. Vrey's living room asked whether she believed the government should calm the situation by making more concessions or by being tougher on the blacks.

"I don't know," she replied after a long pause. "Tougher on the blacks, I think."

An army jeep chugged by Mrs. Vrey's house, the soldiers peering suspiciously at a stranger's car parked on the street. From a radio, a bittersweet American pop song filled the room.

Does she see a solution to the problem? "I don't know."

Does she know what the future holds for her two teen-age children? "I don't know."

She shook her head and smiled apologetically.

The question is: where will it stop? Many people have no idea. Life can be lived in a flurry of activity — flitting from person, to thing, to dream, and back again. Or it can just settle into a monotonous routine. Either way, meaninglessness has taken hold.

Lack of meaning in life has been called furious activity around an empty center. That's what a whirlpool is. Activities, meetings, schedules, parties, appointments — but no direction. The swirling pace can get to you — especially if there's a hollowness inside.

Jesus talked a lot about meaning in life. But he not only talked about it. He gives it! He came to take us out of the whirlpool and set us on course in the Life Stream.

PRECIPITATION: Rain, Showers, Snow, Flurries

FRONTS: Cold, Warm, Stationary, Occluded

Conditions forecast for 7 P.M. Saturday

In West Texas, partly cloudy today with widely scattered afternoon showers mainly Panhandle. Lows tonight in the low 30s north to around 40 southeast and far west to near 50 along the Rio Grande. Highs today low 50s north to the mid 60s southeast and far west to near 80 along the Rio Grande. High Sunday near 60 north to the low 70s southeast and far west to around 80 along the Rio Grande.

In North Texas, thunderstorms ending by tonight with fair skies on Sunday. Continued mild temperatures with lows generally in the 40s and highs generally in the 60s.

In South Texas, decreasing clouds with thunderstorms ending over southeast sections by afternoon today. Generally fair all sections tonight and Sunday. Lows tonight from the 40s north to the 50s south. 60s along the coast. High today and Sunday from the 70s north to the 80s south.

Skies to clear by Sunday

From Staff and Wire Reports

The clouds will hang around Midland through today with clearer skies forecasted for Sunday, said a spokesman for the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Today will be partly cloudy with high temperatures expected in the mid-60's and westerly winds at 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight and Sunday will be fair with low temperatures in the upper 30's. A high for Sunday in the lower 70's is predicted.

The all-time high record for Friday's date was 86 degrees in 1939. A low of 22 degrees was recorded in 1962.

STATE

High clouds covered most of the state Friday, and widely scattered thunderstorms were reported over parts of West Texas.

High temperatures varied from 52 degrees in Dalhart to 86 at Alice and McAllen, the National Weather Service said.

Most of the state reported light winds, but West Texas reported winds of 5 to 15 mph.

The forecast for North Texas called for lows today in the 40s and highs today and Sunday in the 60s. The eastern part of the region will see scattered thunderstorms today, and skies Sunday should be fair.

West Texas should have highs today in the 50s to near 80. Lows tonight will be in the 30s to the 50s. Highs Sunday should be in the 60s to 80. The Panhandle should see rain, possibly mixed with snow, early Saturday, and widely scattered afternoon rain. The rest of the region will have partly cloudy skies Saturday, the weather service said.

NATION

Severe thunderstorms brought howling winds, driving rains and tornadoes to northern and central Florida on Friday, while dense fog left little or no visibility in parts of northern Ohio and southern Michigan.

An inch of rain drenched parts of Onslow County, N.C., in a 20-minute period, while three inches deluged Wilmington, N.C., during a six-hour period.

Tornadoes were sighted near the Florida cities of Venice, Leesburg, Zellwood, Palm Coast, Astor Park, Ormond Beach, Lakeland and Gainsville, while winds gusted to 63 mph at Daytona Beach and 85 mph in Taylor County, the weather service said.

The twister in Gainesville heavily damaged a shopping plaza, ripping the roof off of a video store and scattering its stock over a parking lot.

Cyclones use OT buzzer shot, 81-79

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — When it came to crunch time, Iowa State went with something that had worked before — Jeff Hornacek from 22 feet.

"We practice that play," Hornacek said Friday after his shot from that distance as the buzzer sounded in overtime lifted the Cyclones to an 81-79 NCAA Midwest Regional first-round victory over Miami of Ohio.

"We mess around with the shot in practice and we make it pretty often," Hornacek, a senior guard, whose 15-foot jumper with 27 seconds left in regulation set up the overtime, said. "I didn't know it was in right away, but when it got near the basket, I thought it had a pretty good chance of going in."

Iowa State Coach Johnny Orr was more confident of the fate of Hornacek's bomb.

"I knew it was good ... when he let the shot go," Orr said. "I think it's the second or third game we've won with that shot."

Miami Coach Jerry Peirson also had sensed the feeling before. His Redskins lost 69-68 in overtime on a last-second shot by Maryland in last year's NCAA opening round.

"About a year ago, I stood up before the press at Dayton and had the same feeling," he said. "I don't like it."

Iowa State, 21-10, will play in a second-round game Sunday against No. 5 Michigan, 28-4. The game will reunite Orr — who coached Michigan to a Final Four appearance in 1976 — with his former assistant and current Wolverines Coach Bill Frieder.

"I'm happy we're going to get a chance to play them," Orr said of his former team. "It looked for a while like we weren't going to get that chance and when I was watching their game it looked they weren't going to get a chance to play us either."

Midwest Regional

With four seconds left in overtime, Ron Hunter tied the game at 79-79 with a layup on a controversial goaltending call against Iowa State's Jeff Grayer.

There were two seconds on the clock when Gary Thompkins inbounded to Hornacek, who took two dribbles and launched his game-winning jumper.

Eric Newsome finished with 16 for Miami, while Hunter added 12.

Miami, 24-7, had used a 10-0 spurt to take a 58-50 lead with 8:13 left in regulation. But Iowa State mounted a 13-5 surge to tie the game 63-63. Ron Virgil scored six of his 14 points during the rally.

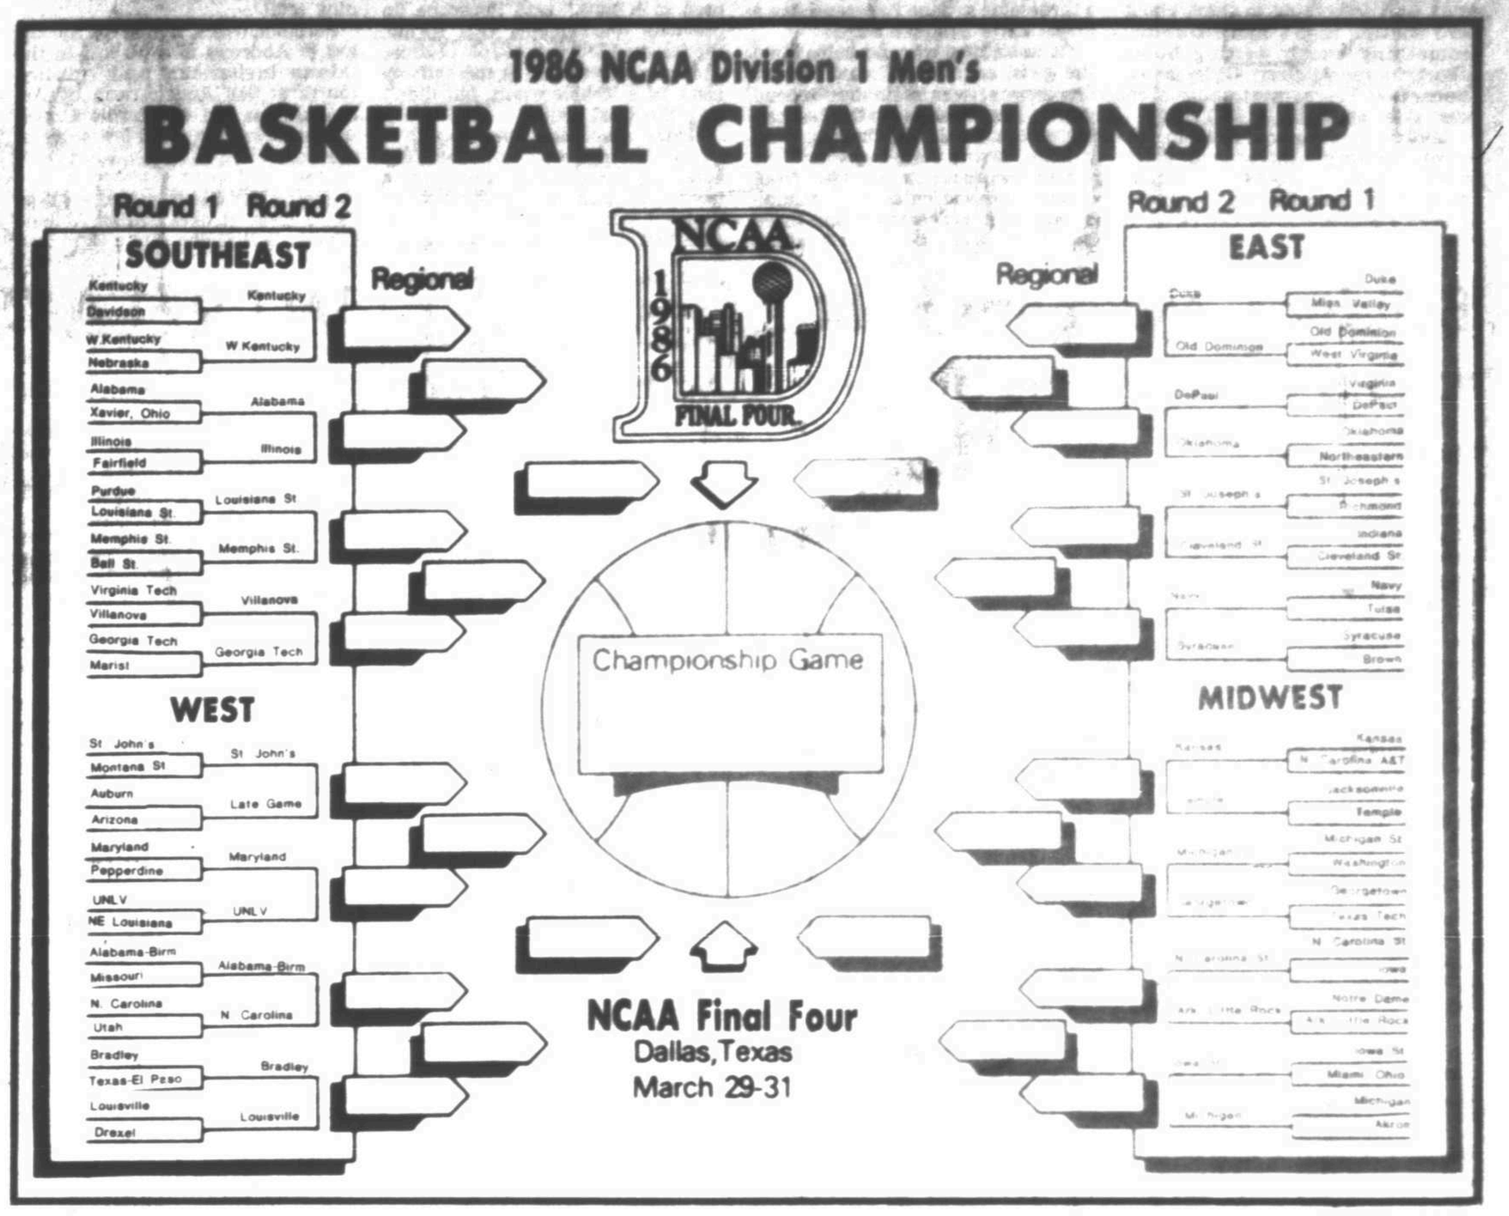

Michigan 70, Akron 64

MINNEAPOLIS — Roy Tarpley, a two-time All-Big Ten center who didn't start for disciplinary reasons, scored 13 points, including a three-point play with 8:03 remaining to open up a close game and lead No. 5 Michigan to a first-round victory over Akron.

Akron, 22-8, led 32-30 at halftime and was still within 49-48 with 8:52 to play before the 6-foot-11 Tarpley, the Big Ten player of the year in 1985, took over.

Vikings press Hoosiers out of tournament, 83-79

Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Cleveland State parlayed a hectic press, hockey-style substitutions and Clinton Ransey's 27 points into an 83-79 upset of No. 16 Indiana in the first round of the NCAA East Regional basketball tournament.

It was 15th-year Coach Bob Knight's first loss in the first round of the NCAA tournament, which his teams won 1976 and 1981.

"I think they just took the game from us right at the beginning, and we couldn't get back into it," Knight said. "It was too tough to come from behind because of the way they play. They have the quickness and the ability to change the tempo when they have to."

Indiana guard Steve Alford scored 24 points, but Vikings Coach Kevin Mackey said he never planned to shut down the All-American.

"I don't feel one guy can beat us, and if Alford gets 24 points, you can beat Indiana," he said.

"It was a great win for the off-Broadway guys against the prime-time guys. They've (his players) been eating their hearts out watching them on the tube," Mackey added.

East Regional

The Vikings, 28-3, were seeded 14th in the regional despite ranking second in the nation in scoring with a 90.2 average and first in victory margin.

They advanced to the second round Sunday against St. Joseph's, 26-5, by eliminating the third seed.

Indiana, a National Invitation Tournament runner-up last year, finished with a 21-8 record.

Eric Mudd scored 16 points for Cleveland State and Clinton Smith 12, while seven other players scored for the Vikings.

Mudd and Indiana's Andre Harris neutralized each other with 10 rebounds apiece as Cleveland State held a 32-30 rebounding edge. Harris scored 16 points, Daryl Thomas 11 and Stew Robinson and Rick Calloway 10 apiece for the Hoosiers.

The confident Vikings, who shot 53 percent in the first half and then hit 15 of 22 field-goal attempts in the second, never led by more than 10 points nor fewer than four in the final period after baskets by Mudd, Smith and Ken McFadden in the first 1:58 put them ahead 51-41.

In a 47-second span midway through the final period, Alford drove the baseline for a layup and hit two free throws to cut the deficit to 67-63. However, Mudd responded with two layups — the second granted after a goaltending call against Harris.

Cleveland State began a slowdown with 4½ minutes to play and maintained a six- to 10-point lead until the last minute on slick ballhandling by guards Ed Bryant and McFadden.

"We knew they were never going to give up. I finally relaxed with about 10 seconds to go," Ransey said.

Navy 87, Tulsa 68

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — David Robinson scored 30 points and Vernon Butler added 24 as No. 17 Navy knocked off Tulsa.

Navy posted its 14th straight triumph while snapping Tulsa's six-game winning streak and dropping the Golden Hurricane to 23-9.

Lee, MHS qualify strong

'Dogs' Edwards breaks 400 record

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

WT Relays

ODESSA — After a five hour, 15 minute marathon, the first day of the 42nd edition of the West Texas Relays came to an end at Ratliff Stadium Friday with little decided except the fact that today's finals will produce a dramatic climax for team titles.

After Friday's preliminaries, no team appears to be a clear cut title holder. Things are so spread out in the large 53-team, four division meet that titles probably won't be declared until teams wrap up the baton after the 1600 meter relay, the last scheduled event.

In the 5A division, it looks like a four-team scramble between Midland Lee, Midland High, Odessa Permian and San Angelo.

On paper — thin paper — Lee and MHS look the strongest as both teams qualified an identical nine individuals and two relays for today's finals. Permian qualified one relay, using a let's run again until we get it right approach, and seven individuals while San Angelo qualified one relay and eight individuals. A dark horse is Odessa High, which has three individuals and two relays to go along with some strength in the today's discus event.

San Angelo owns the early lead with 23 points after three complete events, but it isn't a margin to throw a real scare into the challengers of the Bobcats. Permian, OHS and Amarillo Caprock all scored 10 points while Lee had nine. No wide gap was created, which could work to the advantage of both Lee and MHS. The Bulldogs scored only two points Friday, but did very well in the qualifying runs to remain a contender.

Lee will be facing some stiff pressure today. The Rebels have won three of the last four WT team titles and are the defending team champion, a fact they want to keep in the hip pocket.

The Lee girls scored 23 points in the three field events concluded Friday to take the early lead, but coach Janice Baulch's Rebels got burned the rest of the day, failing to qualify a key sprint relay team and had only four individuals in two events scheduled for today. The Rebs do have some triple jump power in addition.

The MHS girls scored only one point Friday, but did qualify four individuals and two relays for today's finals. One of those individuals was Ethel Edwards with a new record 58.65 in the 400 meter prelims.

If that sounds strange, it should. Edwards is a 200 specialist, but they don't run a 200 in the girls division of the West Texas event.

"They put me in the 400 since there isn't a 200," said Edwards, who was feeling a bit snubbed that anyone would consider eliminating the 200. "I had to run somewhere and I guess I did OK. We didn't run last week, but you don't forget how to do something that is part of your life."

MHS coach Sonja Pittman said, "It's not even Ethel's event and she sets a record. I'm a little surprised at that, but Ethel is the type of athlete who can do just about anything when called on."

Andrews' Bobby Kimbrough was the meet's first two-event winner, winning both the 4A shot put and discus. His discus toss of 168-9 was a new division record. That effort help put Andrews out to the early lead with 35 points.

Kermit's Lang Bolf, jumping in the rain, set a new 3A pole vault record with a 13-7 and Crane's Leslie Harmon tied the 3A high jump record with a 6-4.

The only other record set Friday was the 41.81 turned in by the Permian sprint relay team, but they had to do that twice. The first time, the final leg of the Permian was said to have been interferred with on the final exchange. Instead of a mere disqualification for the other team involved, officials decided the race had to be run again. The record resulted and was a blow to both Lee and MHS. Lee won the first heat against Permian, which didn't finish, but was second. MHS won its heat. That could result in a 24-point swing to Permian against the Midland teams if Permian wins today.

Lee was the top qualifier in the 1600 relay with a 3:23.30 while MHS was second, setting up what could be a final event showdown today. Lee's Brad Cooper was the top 400 qualifier with a 51.03 in the rain and Lee's Quintus Hampton, who also qualified second in the high hurdles, was the top 300 hurdle qualifier with a 38.42.

Other Tall City qualifiers were Jimmy Fennell, Lee, high hurdles; John St. Germain, MHS, high hurdles and 300 hurdles; Tyrone Oliver, MHS, 400; Anthony Adkinson and Terry Robinson, MHS, 100; Mike Garza, Lee, in both the 3200 and 1600; Rodney Clark, Lee, 3200; Sammy Venegas, MHS, 3200; David Almand, Lee, 800; Terry Robinson and Everett Bowers, MHS, 200; Chris Kenney, Lee, 200; and Jose Hernandez, MHS, 1600. None of those, however, had top qualifying times.

Stronger pitching will make Eagles tougher for Bulldogs

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Two weeks ago in the the Pre-District baseball tournament, Midland High pounded out a 18-6 victory over Abilene High. Bulldog head coach Tim Whalen expects the Eagles to remember what happened and figures they'd like to do a little getting even.

"I anticipate they'll come back and play us hard. They've got a lot of pride," said Whalen. "That game in the tournament, I didn't feel, was an indication of what they are really like. They were out of pitching by the time they played us."

Bulldog Ricky Castaneda pitched his way to victory in the first meeting and Whalen is giving him the start Saturday at Angels Stadium at 2 p.m. even though the Eagles have seen his stuff.

"I think he's a better pitcher now than he was then," said Whalen. "It was only his second start of the year and he'd been rocked earlier in the week by Coronado and didn't have much confidence. But, he came back strong and pitched a heck of a game against (Dallas) Thomas Jefferson. I don't think Abilene will see the same Ricky they saw then."

About the Eagles, Whalen has only seen them play the one game and is using it for a guideline.

"They're always going to have good speed and they have players who can hit the ball," said Whalen. "They took one of Ricky's pitches out in the tournament. I don't remember who hit it, but they've got some kids who can hit."

So do the Bulldogs. Going into the game, leadoff hitter Tommy Yorkman and Jaime Salazar have been swinging hot bats. Both went 2-for-4 in the district opener Tuesday against Big Spring and both are hitting better than .400.

Yorkman's .494 average is tops on the team while Salazar is hitting at a .447 click. Three other Bulldogs, Anthony Deanda, David Malone and Matt Sears, are hitting better than .300.

"In spots, I was happy with our hitting though we're not hitting the very well overall. The other guys will come up with clutch hits occasionally but Yorkman and Salazar have carrying the load for us so far this year."

The Bulldogs are 5-8 on the year and 1-0 in 4-5A play while Abilene High is 3-5, 0-1.

Lady Rebs take 18-stroke win; 'Dogs Moore posts ace

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland Lee gave the rest of District 4-5A something to think about and Midland High's Judi Moore did something worth writing home about in the Midland Girls Invitational Golf Tournament under overcast skies at Hogan Park Friday.

Midland Lee scored a smashing 18-stroke victory over second place Odessa Permian, 390-398, in the five-team field and Midland's Moore scored a hole-in-one on the 145-yard sixth hole.

Permian and San Angelo are regarded as two of the teams to beat in the 4-5A race, which doesn't begin until April 4, and Friday Lee made it a threesome as Jane Peperone shot a medal 85 to lead the way.

"It was a nice win and helps build the girls' confidence," said Shirley Stephenson, who is in her second year as Lee coach, a job the Lee basketball coach held once before. "And it helps having Jane move in."

Jane Peperone, a transfer from Houston, played on a state championship team last year and joins three holdovers from last year's Rebel team.

The adjustment to West Texas' high winds and flat, long-roll fairways took a while, but "I'm kind of used to it now," said Peperone. In previous tournaments this spring, she finished fourth a couple of times and once was second at the halfway mark of a 36-hole event, but didn't play the final round.

Friday, Peperone opened with a trouble-boding seven on the first hole, but then settled down for a front nine 41 and a 45 on the back to beat out Cooper's Michelle HaPack, who had a 49-39—88 in the medal scoring.

Jamie Winbourne shot a 95 and Cynthia Porter a 99 while Michelle Lance contributed a 101 to Lee's winning total.

Permian, which won at Big Spring, lost to Andrews in a playoff in the Odessa Invitational and finished fourth at San Angelo (won by Andrews), was led by Barbie Crews, whose 89 was the third low score of the day.

MIDLAND HIGH posted a 423 to finish seven strokes behind Abilene Cooper. Lori Simon shot a 98 to lead the Bulldogs, but Judi Moore's ace was the eye catcher.

Her stroke by stroke replay of the memorable hole, "I used a three-iron and the ball hit about two feet in front of the pin and rolled in," her first ace ever.

"Well, no, it really didn't help my score that much. I shot a 56 for the nine and a 109 for the round, which is about what I've been shooting. But, yes, I thought it had a chance as soon as I hit it."

Coach Mary Baird's Bulldogs do not play again until the district opener April 4 at Hogan while Lee travels to San Antonio next week for a tournament.

McGookey swims NAIA title meet

From Staff Reports

SHERMAN — Doreen McGookey of Midland was one of six Austin College swimmers to attend the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Swimming and Diving championships in Spokane, Wash., March 6-8.

McGookey, a senior, was making her third appearance in the NAIA championships. She swam on the 400 freestyle relay that set a new school record of 4:03.37.

COM's Hasek wins TAGS title in record time

From Staff Reports

DALLAS — Michaela Hasek of the City of Midland Swim Team won the 15-18 girls 100 backstroke here Friday night at the Loos Pool with a time of 59.23 seconds during the annual Texas Age Group Swimming Championships.

The impressive swim was also a West Texas record in a meet that features the best Texas has to offer in age group swimming circles.

Hasek also placed seventh in the 200 individual medley with a 2:13.53.

In addition to Hasek, COM's Matt Houston had a big day in the 11-12 boys competition. Houston placed fourth in the 100 butterfly with a 1:01.87 and a sixth in the 100 individual medley with a 1:04.05.

COM's Sam Perry placed seventh in the 15-18 boys' 100 backstroke with a 56.05.

Action continues today at the Loos Pool as COM swimmers go after some more honors. Already, this is a good showing by the COM team. The competition here is stiff and victories, like the one produced by Hasek, are few and far between. It took a West Texas record to win her event.

WT RELAYS

When MHS' Adkinson was told he had an 11.0 in his 100, he was shocked. "I've never run a 11.0 in a varsity meet. That's baloney. We'll see about that in the finals."

The MHS girls got both the sprint and 1600 relay teams in the finals. Lee got both Tami Woodberry and Piette Mayfield in the 100 hurdles as did MHS' Faye Daugherty. MHS' Amy Hubbard qualified in the 1600 while Lee's Tangi Carter and Carrie Roach gained the 100 finals.

The Lee girls got a second in the high jump finals with a 5-1 by Khristie Davis and a third with 5-0 frim Roz Eaden. Lee's Susie Dunn got a sixth. Eaden also placed second in the long jump with a 16-11 and MHS' Amy Cumings was sixth.

Lee's Anthony Dickens scored 8½ of Lee's nine points Friday with a second place 21-8¾ in the long jump and tied for sixth the high jump with teammate Odell Samuels at 6-0. Dickens also ran for the first time on the 1600 relay team and did very well, holding the lead at the end of his leg.

The meet had sunshine, rain, wind and heavy clouds all wrapped into five-plus hours of activity, leading Lee coach Eddie Wolski to say, "Well, I don't know how we are doing, but you can tell from the weather that we're at the West Texas Relays."

Oilers destroy Wings, 12-3

NHL Roundup

EDMONTON (AP) — Defenseman Paul Coffey scored two goals and set up six others to continue his pursuit of Bobby Orr's NHL records and carry the Edmonton Oilers to a 12-3 whipping of the Detroit Red Wings Friday night.

Coffey's output gave him 43 goals and 126 points. With nine games remaining, he needs four goals and 14 points to break Orr's single-season records for goals and points by a defenseman.

Quebec 6, Calgary 2

QUEBEC (AP) — The Quebec Nordiques wiped out a 2-1 deficit with five straight goals through the second and third periods, including power-play scores by Risto Siltanen and Michel Goulet, and went on to defeat the Calgary Flames 6-2 in the NHL Friday night.

The victory, Quebec's first at home since Feb. 8, moved the Nordiques one point behind the idle Adams Division-leading Montreal Canadiens, 80-79.

The Nordiques were behind 2-1 going into the second period before Siltanen and Goulet connected on power-play goals less than a minute apart to put Quebec ahead to stay.

BOWLING BEAT

Von Rosenberg hits 277 for 733 series

By RANDY ISENBERG

Jeff Von Rosenberg's 277-733 in the Civic Commercial League edged out Ken Robey's 267—732 in the Chicano League for top honors in Midland bowling over the last two weeks at Dellwood.

George Overton had a 246-230-243—719 to lead the bowlers at Fairmont Park in league play while Jim Morris had a 257-236-221—714.

Pennie Poole became the first woman of the year to crack the 700 barrier, rolling a 245-223-233—701 in the Alley Cats Mixed at Dellwood. Pennie has several 600 games for the year. Her husband, Sonny, who was the first bowler to roll 300 at Air Park Lanes, posted a 247—695.

Pennie's sister, Vickie Shaw, had a 238—638, the second highest score at Dellwood by a woman in the last two weeks.

BOWLERS in Midland have really improved over the past year, and this week's efforts recorded in leagues at Fairmont and Dellwood confirm the belief. At Dellwood, David Wright rolled 705 on games of 269-224-212. Dave Antle posted 682; Vern Williams 266—689; Bobby Wellborn 686; Al Benson 279 and Dana Shank had 658.

It was also brought to my attention that Shank also rolled a triplicate 225—675 series in the Southwestern Bell League at Fairmont in 1984-85. Russell Sexton wanted to know the highest triplicate ever recorded in Midland . If there is any information, let us know....

Helen Poindexter, rolling in the Rock n Roll Senior Citizen League at Dellwood scored a 230—564 March 7 on a 155 average. It was a nice birthday present...

Among other noteworthy women's scores recorded at Dellwood were: Donna Archer 223-232—618; Mary Jo White 222-608; Rosie Urias, a consistent 600 resident the last few months, 207-210—599; Mary Stephens 227—583; Monica Elger 586—583.

Cindy Loeffler soared 86 pins over 118 average with 204.

Other top scores among men were: Bob Burns 267—648; most improving bowler Raymond Castillo 276—648; Bill Widener 265; George Riptoe 267—648; Earl Phelps 256; Arthur Williams 2546; Tim Saunders 257 and Leo Rodriquez 254—661.

Behind Overton at Fairmont were: Stacey Birdsell 224-204—588; Jane Hyson 206—572; Janet Sanders 241; Janet Daugherty 224, 98 pins over her average; Roy Sanders, 246, 100 pins over his average. Sanders also had a 657, which is 229 pins over his average, in the City Mixed. Other recent scores: George Spencer 236-221-234—691; Jerel Blair 242-219-216—677; Brian Gillette 257—656; Darrell Boen 256—659; Ed Mantooth 248—652; Rick Bevins 248 and Rick Daughtrey 248...

UPCOMING EVENTS: Dellwood and Fairmont are conducting youth roundups through March 15....Spring session programs begin March 15. Summer session program information is available and registrations are now being accpeted at both centers....Cory Sprague is youth director at Dellwood and Vern Williams is youth director at Fairmont.....Al Benson will conduct a St. Patrick's Day No-tap Mixed Doubles at Dellwood 11 p.m. Friday. Reservations are being accepted...The Midland Bowling Association's 46th city wide tournament continues March 22-23. The women's city tournament begins in April. Entry forms are available at bowling centers or from Paula Bayley, city association secretary....

Nebraska's Iba quits to seek new job

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Nebraska basketball Coach Moe Iba resigned Friday night after the Cornhuskers' 67-59 loss to Western Kentucky in the first round of the NCAA Southeast Regional tournament.

"I have resigned to pursue another head coaching job," Iba said. "I resigned right after the game."

Iba said he planned to quit the job as soon as Nebraska lost in the tournament, and he had no further comment.

The announcement came as a surprise to Nebraska players.

"We didn't know anything about it," guard Brian Carr said. "We don't let the press bother us. We just go out and play."

Western Kentucky Coach Clem Haskins said he was sorry Iba was resigning.

"I think there's too much pressure put on a man to win at all costs," Haskins said.

Chaps still own unbeaten marks in WJCAC play

From Staff Reports

The nationally ranked Midland College tennis teams remained undefeated in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play Thursday with a pair of wins over South Plains College.

The second-ranked MC women blanked the Texans 9-0, while the men, ranked No. 4, triumphed 7-2. The Chaparral men are 3-0, 9-2, and the women are 2-0, 13-0.

Both teams will take a week off before returning with a pair of home matches March 21-22. The Chaps host Schreiner College of Kerrville on Friday, March 21, then host UTEP on Saturday, March 22.

Here's one of the most incredible baseball records of all-time... There was once a player in the big leagues who NEVER batted lower than .368 for 11 straight seasons!...Ty Cobb hit .368 or better EVERY year from 1909 through 1919!

• • • • •

Here's a tough one...In the history of sports, only one man has ever been both a major league baseball manager AND the head coach of a National Football League team. Who holds this unique record?... Answer is Hugo Bezdek, who managed the Pittsburgh Pirates in baseball in 1917, 1918 and 1919, and was head football coach of Cleveland of the National Football League in 1937 and 1938.

• • • • •

Did you know that one of the most fantastic rounds of golf ever played was by an obscure golfer, Dr. Joseph Boydston of Bakersfield, Calif., who in 1962 scored the amazing total of THREE holes-in-one during ONE 9-hole round!...That seems hard to believe, but it's true.

Robinson, a 6-foot-11 junior center, and Butler, a 6-7, 245-pound senior forward, worked inside and from the foul line for a combined 31 points as the Midshipmen took a 41-35 halftime lead.

In the second half, the Middies scored the first seven points to start a 19-6 run that put them on top 60-44 with 11:14 remaining. Robinson and Butler did the bulk of Navy's scoring during the spurt.

Navy boosted its lead to 72-52 with just over seven minutes remaining and coasted the rest of the way.

Kylor Whitaker added 15 points for Navy, while forward Brian Rahilly and guard Tracy Moore, with 16 points apiece, topped the Missouri Valley tourney champions.

The score was tied four times in the first half before the Middies pulled away. Twice they built eight-point leads. David Moss scored six of the Golden Hurricance's last eigh points before intermission.

St. Joseph's 69, Richmond 59

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Maurice Martin scored 21 points, including three free throws in the last 14 seconds, to lead St. Joseph's to a first-round victory over Richmond.

St. Joseph's, 26-5, the Atlantic 10 champions, pulled ahead for the first time in the second half, 52-51, on Wayne Williams' two free throws with three minutes left.

Martin hit the front end of a one-and-one with nine seconds left for a 60-57 lead, and reserve Joe Runk got Richmond's last points on driving goal with two seconds left.

Richmond, 23-7, the Colonial Athletic Association runner-up in the regular season, got 25 points from Johnny Newman, 14 in the first half when the Spiders led 30-28.

St. Joseph's had three other players in double figures — Williams with 14 points, Rodney Blake 13 and Greg Mullee 10.

Rodney Rice added 14 points and Peter Woolfolk 10 for the Spiders.

With both teams playing deliberate style and zone defense, the game was tied six straight times before goals by Newman and Woolfolk put Richmond ahead at intermission.

Newman, a 6-foot-7 senior who is the highest scorer in Richmond history, closed out his career with 2,363 points.

Syracuse 101, Brown 52

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dwayne Washington and Rafael Addison scored 21 and 17 points, respectively, Friday night to propel No. 9 Syracuse to a slaughter of Brown.

Syracuse, 26-5, took the suspense out of the game midway through the first half, outscoring the Ivy League champion 27-2 over a 7:10 span to lead 51-23 at intermission.

Washington had 17 points by then and Addison had 10. Both were benched about five minutes into the second half.

Center Rony Seikaly scored 12 points, and Rodney Walker, his freshman backup, scored 15 for the Orangemen.

The game was one of the most lopsided in the 47-year-old tournament. By coincidence, the Bruins, 16-11, made their first NCAA appearance since the 1939 inaugural year.

MIDWEST

an 11-4 spurt that put Michigan up 60-52 with 4:08 to go. Tarpley also had a rebound-slam dunk and a blocked shot that led to a basket during the spree, after which Akron never pulled closer than six points.

There were eight ties and four lead changes in the first half. The taller Wolverines got inside often on offense, but were outrebounded 17-15.

N. Carolina St. 66, Iowa 64

MINNEAPOLIS — Chris Washburn scored 18 points and ignited a 10-0 spurt midway through the second half that gave North Carolina State the lead for good Friday night and the Wolfpack held on for a 66-64 NCAA Midwest Regional first-round victory over Iowa.

N.C. State began its decisive rally after two long-range jumpers by Andre Banks gave Iowa, 20-12, a 57-51 lead with 9:45 to play.

First, Nate McMillan hit a 15-foot jumper. Then, Washburn scored his first basket of the second half, rebounding his own miss.

After former Midland College star Teviin Binns tied the game at 57-57 with a 10-footer, Ernie Myers gave the Wolfpack their first lead since early in the contest with a short jumper.

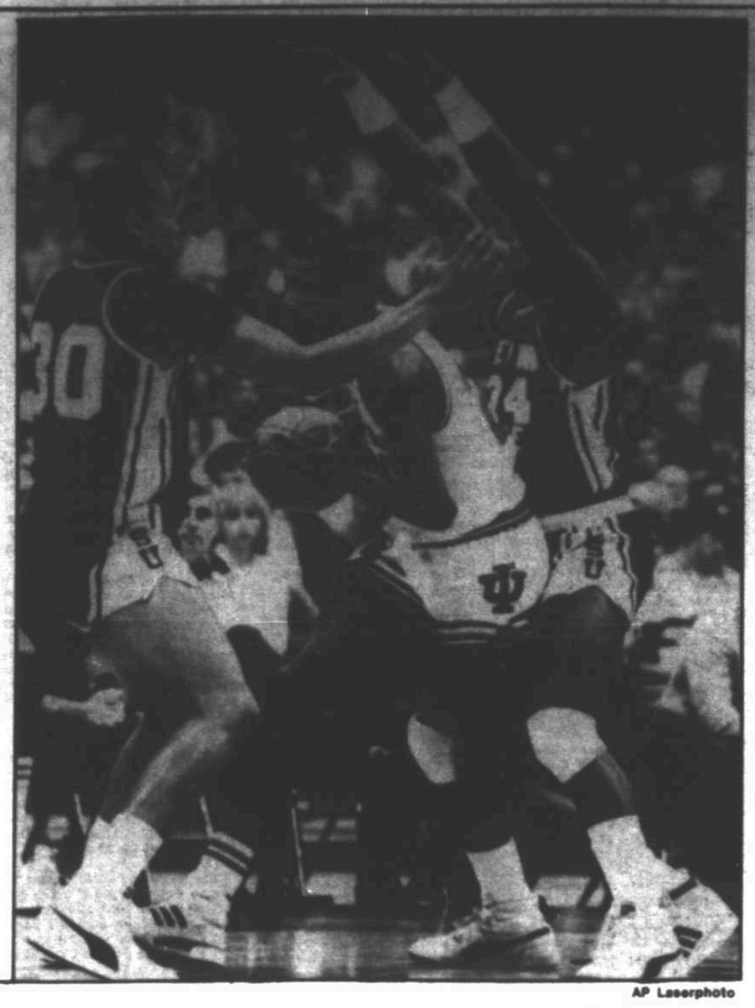

Ark.-Little Rock 90, Notre Dame 83

MINNEAPOLIS — Pete Myers scored 29 points, Michael Clarke 27 and Myron Jackson 22, combining for all but 12 of Arkansas-Little Rock's points, and leading the Trojans to a 90-83 upset over No. 10 Notre Dame on Friday in the first round of the NCAA Midwest Regionals.

UALR, 23-10, will play in Sunday's second-round game against North Carolina State, 19-12, which defeated Iowa 66-64 in a first-round game Friday.

Jackson hit a layup with 3:35 to play to give the Trojans — an unheralded team from the Trans America Conference — the lead for good at 76-75. Myers followed with a three-point play to make it 79-75.

Guard David Rivers, who scored 25 points and almost single-handedly rallied Notre Dame, 23-6, to victory, hit a 15-foot jumper to narrow the deficit to 79-77.

Cleveland State's Paul Stewart (30) and Eric Mudd (34) put the pressure on Indiana's Rick Calloway during Friday's East Regional game in Syracuse. The Vikings went on to post an 83-79 upset win.

OTHER 4-5A games this weekend include a rematch of the Pre-District Tournament championship game between Abilene Cooper and Midland Lee, which also finished 1-2 in the 1985 standings.

Also on the agenda are: Big Spring at Odessa Permian and Odessa High at San Angelo. All games are scheduled for 2 p.m. starts.

Cooper won the Pre-District meeting, 10-5, and is the 4-5A defending champion with a 13-1 record. The Rebels finished a game back at 12-2. If anything, the Cougars are better than they were a year ago.

"I think they're terrific," said Lee head coach Ernie Johnson. "I think they've got the best ball club they've had in the last three years. They don't have the one outstanding pitcher (a reference to the graduated Terry Suggs), thank goodness. But, boy, they can hit that ball. I was really impressed with them when we played in that tournament."

Hitting is what Lee is going to have to counter with because, with No. 1 pitcher George Matta still on the disabled list, Lee doesn't have the mound strength to stop the Cougar attack.

Leading the Rebels at the plate is a strong contingent of .400 hitters led by Joe Eldridge at .444. Henkhaus followed at .429, Jason Logi, .405; Terry Baxter, .400; and Raul Pena, .400.

Tuey Rankin and Danny Jordan follow at .386 and .378 respectively.

"We've got to try and score some runs to stay in the ball game and give us a halfway decent chance because you know they're going to score," said Johnson.

As to who will get the call on the mound, Johnson isn't sure but is leaning toward "Michael Brown. I don't know how long he'll last or how long any of these guys could last against that bunch. But, we'll go down there and see what we can do."

Cooper is bringing a 10-0 overall and 1-0 league record into the game while the Rebels are 7-5, 0-1.

Hilltoppers oust Huskers

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Kannard Johnson and Clarence Martin scored six points each in a 16-4 burst early in the second half that created a 17-point lead and Western Kentucky survived a Nebraska comeback to down the Cornhuskers 67-59 in the first round of the NCAA Southeast Regional tournament Friday night.

Nebraska's Bernard Day had slashed Western's 33-26 halftime lead to five with an 18-footer 14 seconds into the second half and it was two minutes later when Johnson hit two baskets in a row to start the Western surge.

The Hilltoppers then had to survive a torrid Nebraska comeback that saw the lead cut to four twice in the final 93 seconds. But James McNary sank six free throws in the final 31 seconds to clinch the victory.

The Huskers, making their first NCAA appearance, trailed 53-35 when Martin scored inside with 10:34 to go, starting a 9-0 burst that sparked Nebraska's rally.

Day converted a three-point play with 1:33 to go to make it 59-55 before Johnson hit two free throws for Western and Anthony Bailous a basket for Nebraska to make it 61-57 with 40 seconds left.

It was then that McNary hit his six free throws in a row to preseve the victory for Western, 23-7. Nebraska finished 20-10.

Alabama 97, Xavier of Ohio 80

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Jim Farmer scored 24 points and Buck Johnson 22 as Alabama never trailed in downing Xavier of Ohio.

Farmer had 15 points in the first half when Johnson, who had 18 points in the second half, sat out seven minutes because of foul trouble.

The victory sends Alabama into a second-round matchup Sunday against Illinois.

Xavier, the Midwestern Collegiate Conference champions, made one run at Alabama four minutes into the second half, cutting a 10-point lead to 49-45 by using two steals in a 6-0 run that featured two layups by Eddie Johnson and a tipin by Richie Harris.

Johnson, Farmer and Derrick McKey then went to work and sparked a surge that carried Alabama to a 76-61 lead with 7:30 remaining when Farmer converted a three-point play.

Illinois 75, Fairfield 51

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Anthony Welch scored 22 points and 19th-ranked Illinois used intense defensive pressure to break open the game as the Fighting Illini downed Fairfield.

Welch scored the first 10 points for the Illini and had 16 in the first half when the Big Ten Conference team rolled to a 34-22 lead.

After Fairfield cut the lead to 42-36 with 12:28 left, Illinois again applied defensive pressure and used a 15-4 run to take command.

It was the sixth straight victory for Illinois, 22-9, in its first meeting with the Stags, who finished at 24-7 after seeing a seven-game winning streak halted.

Bruce Douglas was the defensive leader for the Illini, holding Tony George to only 10 points, well below his 20.7 average.

George did lift his career scoring total to 2,006 points, most in Fairfield history.

Kentucky 75, Davidson 55

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Kenny Walker scored 20 points as third-ranked Kentucky overcame a sluggish start and went onto defeat Davidson.

The victory set up only the second meeting ever between Kentucky and Western Kentucky in Sunday's second round.

Kentucky's 12th victory in a row was slow to develop as Davidson built a 16-11 lead in the first seven minutes and still led 20-17 with 10 minutes left in the opening half.

Roger Harden then began a 12-0 Kentucky run with a 20-footer and James Blackmon followed with a three-point play off a steal and dunk that gave Kentucky the lead for good at 22-20. Walker ended the spurt with a 6-footer with 4:40 left in the half that put the Southeastern Conference champions ahead 29-20.

Walker, who didn't score in the first eight minutes, got the first eight points for Kentucky in the second half as the Wildcats opened a 46-32 lead. The lead eventually swelled to 20 on Walker's layup with 12:54 left.

Davidson, winners of the Southern Conference tournament, cut the lead to 64-51 with 3:10 to play but Kentucky pulled away again.

Terps nip Pepperdine, 69-64

Associated Press

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — All-America forward Len Bias scored 26 points and Maryland made seven free throws in the final 37 seconds Friday as the Terrapins held off Pepperdine 69-64 in a first-round NCAA West Regional Tournament.

The Terrapins advance to meet 11th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, which is seeded fourth in the West Regional, in a second-round game Sunday.

A three-point play by Bias with 6:25 remaining gave Maryland, seeded fifth in the region, a seemingly safe 55-43 lead, but Pepperdine, the West Coast Athletic Conference champion, battled back.

The Waves, seeded 12th in the West, outscored the Terps 10-3 over the next 3:03 to make it 58-55 with 3:22 left.

Pepperdine got as close as two points twice in the final minute, but two free throws by Bias with 37 seconds remaining, two more by Keith Gatlin with 18 seconds left, another by Derrick Lewis with 11 seconds to go and two more by Bias with three seconds to play kept the Terps on top.

The Waves, who had a nine-game winning streak snapped and finished the season with a 25-5 record, never had possession with a chance to tie or go ahead down the stretch. They had an opportunity to get as close as one point but Grant Gondrezick missed the second free throw after making the first, leaving the score at 62-60 with 39 seconds to go.

UNLV 74, NE Louisiana 51

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Anthony Jones scored 18 points and Armon Gilliam added 16 points and grabbed 13 rebounds as 11th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas overcame a sluggish start to overpower Northeast Louisiana.

Trailing 15-12 12 minutes into the game, UNLV scored 19 of the final 25 points of the first half, including a streak of 11 straight to take a 31-21 lead at intermission. The Runnin' Rebels cruised home in the second half to post their 31st victory in 35 starts this season.

Gilliam, a 6-foot-9, 230-pounder who operated at will inside against the smaller Indians, had five points in the 11-0 stretch. Jones, who got most of his points on jumpers from 18 feet and more, had four.

Meanwhile, the Runnin' Rebels' trapping defense held Northeast Louisiana to just six field goals and a shooting percentage of 25 percent in the first half.

St. John's 83, Montana State 74

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Walter Berry, playing on an injured ankle, scored 31 points and grabbed 11 rebounds as sluggish St. John's overcame scrappy Montana State.

But winning their 31st game in 35 starts wasn't easy for the fourth-ranked Redmen against the only team that entered the tournament with a losing record.

With Tony Hampton dribbling around and through the taller Redmen and Tom Damako and Kral Ferch bombing from outside, the Bobcats led by as many as five points in the first half. Then they put together a streak of nine straight points midway through the second to cut a 14-point St. John's lead to five.

But each time Montana State got close, Berry took over, using his spinning inside moves to get loose for easy pops.

Bradley ends 30 holes of play with stroke lead

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Pat Bradley concluded her "longest day" of golf with a 1-shot lead Friday in the second round of the GNA-Glendale Federal Classic.

Bradley played 30 holes Friday, completing the first round — which was halted by rain Thursday — in the morning, then playing the second round in the afternoon.

She carded par 72s for each round, giving her a 1-stroke edge over Amy Alcott, Juli Inkster, Chris Johnson and Jody Rosenthal after each had played 36 holes of the LPGA event.

Second-round tee times were much later than normal because the schedule was adjusted to allow about half the golfers to finish their rain-delayed opening round.

"It was definitely a challenging day," said Bradley. "It was a survival of the fittest.

"I started at 7:15 in the morning and finished playing at a quarter of six. It's the longest day I've ever spent on a golf course."

On the positive side, Bradley said, she won't have to play any extra holes on Saturday.

Many of the golfers, including first-day co-leaders Shelley Hamlin and Kristi Arrington, were able to complete just five or six holes at Oakmont Country Club before darkness halted play Friday. They'd both come in with 71s before the rain stopped play.

About half the players, approximately 70, will finish the second round Saturday morning.

Tournament officials said that, barring more rain, the event should be back on schedule by late Saturday afternoon.

The Oakmont Country Club course, the toughest on the LPGA tour last year, dried out considerably between Thursday evening and early Friday morning, and skies were sunny for much of the second day of play.

Alcott, who finished the 1985 tournament in a second-place tie with Bradley and Barbara Moxness, had a 1-under-par 71 for the first round and a 74 for the second.

"I felt kind of weird out there, kind of like I was getting sick," said Alcott, who like Bradley played 30 holes. "I think I may be coming down with something, but I hope I'll feel better tomorrow."

Inkster, winner last weekend of the LPGA's tournament in Hawaii, had an opening 73, then shot a second-round 72.

FAA seeking $9.5 million fine against Eastern

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration, after a lengthy inspection that uncovered numerous safety violations, is seeking a record $9.5 million fine against Eastern Airlines, according to government sources.

Although the amount of the proposed civil penalty is still negotiable, one source said Friday the FAA "is hanging tough" on the $9.5 million figure, which would make it by far the largest fine ever levied against a commercial airline.

Another government source, who also asked not to be identified, suggested the FAA is pushing for the large fine because agency officials do not believe Eastern, the country's third largest air carrier, has moved quickly enough to correct maintenance and record-keeping deficiencies.

Last year American Airlines agreed to pay $1.5 million in penalties, the highest amount up to that time, after FAA inspectors found a variety of maintenance and record-keeping violations at that airline including one that led to an engine failing off in flight.

The FAA issued a statement saying Eastern was informed March 7 that it faced a "substantial" civil penalty as a result of a variety of maintenance and record-keeping violations uncovered during an in-depth inspection of the airline between Dec. 2 and Feb. 20.

Although that was made public, the officials who discussed details of the case did so only on condition they not be identified by name.

Eastern officials express anger Friday at disclosure of the FAA enforcement action, maintaining that they had yet to receive specifics about the allegations against them.

"It's awkward, unsettling and unfair. They are not following normal regulatory practices," complained Eastern spokesman Jerry Cosley. He said Eastern officials are trying to gather documents to respond to the FAA's allegations.

"We are groping in the dark as to where they (the FAA officials) are coming from...We're not trying to duck this thing," Cosley continued.

FAA spokesman John Leyden said the violations were outlined to Eastern in a March 7 letter that included "chapter and verse of what we have found and in each case what section of the federal aviation regulation was violated."

Aguirre paces Mavs past Blazers

NBA Roundup

DALLAS — Mark Aguirre scored 35 points and Rolando Blackman added 34 to pace Dallas over Portland, 129-118, Friday night in NBA action.

The Blazers, who lost their 10th straight road game despite a career-high 41 points by guard Clyde Drexler, had cut a 16-point deficit to 112-108 on a Jerome Kersey tip-in with 4:52 to play. But Blackman hit a basket and a free throw and moments later Aguirre hit an eight-footer as the 24-second clock expired to put Dallas ahead 117-109.

A three-point basket and two free throws by Drexler pulled the Blazers to 120-114 with 1:43 left, but a three-point play by Aguirre put it out of reach.

The Mavericks, who won the sixth of their last eight games, got 19 points from Sam Perkins, while Jay Vincent had 15 and Derek Harper 14 before a Reunion Arena sellout of 17,007.

Nuggets 101, Bullets 91

LANDOVER, Md. — NBA scoring leader Alex English scored 33 points to lead the Denver Nuggets.

English, with 29 points, virtually matched his season average of 29.5 by the end of the third period, leading the Nuggets to an 85-74 advantage. English remained on the bench for the first eight minutes of the fourth quarter, returning after Washington had cut the deficit to eight points.

English scored eight of the first 10 points for the Nuggets, carrying them to a 10-4 lead. The Nuggets never trailed again, opening a 31-22 lead after one quarter and, after leading by as many as 15 in the second period, a 59-49 advantage at the half.

The loss snapped Washington's three-game winning streak and a five-game homecourt winning streak and prevented the Bullets from reaching the .500-mark for the first time since January.

76ers 109, Cavaliers 100

PHILADELPHIA — Moses Malone scored 30 points and Julius Erving added 26 as the Philadelphia 76ers fought off a late Cleveland rally.

It was the fourth straight victory for Philadelphia, while Cleveland lost for the seventh time in its last nine games.

A slam dunk off a steal by Erving gave the 76ers the largest lead of the game, 70-43, with 6:46 left in the third quarter.

Philadelphia held a 91-72 advantage with 9:03 to go, but the Cavaliers rallied behind rookie Dirk Minnifield and closed to 98-89 on a layup by Roy Hinson with 4:29 remaining.

The 76ers then scored six of the next eight points — five of them by Malone — and the Cavaliers never again threatened.

Pistons 112, Knicks 89

PONTIAC, Mich. — Kelly Tripucka scored 21 points as the Detroit Pistons handed the New York Knicks their sixth consecutive loss.

Center Bill Laimbeer added 18 points for Detroit, while Isiah Thomas and Tony Campbell had 15 each as the Pistons won for the 24th time in their last 30 starts.

Gerald Wilkins led New York with 20 points as the Knicks lost their 10th in a row on the road.

Detroit led 53-49 at intermission but pulled away in the third quarter. Successive baskets by Tripucka and Johnson gave the Pistons a 70-60 lead 6:58 into the second half.

Celtics 121, Hawks 114

ATLANTA — Larry Bird put Boston ahead to stay with two free throws and then clinched the Celtics' victory over Atlanta with a three-point shot with 1:04 remaining.

The Celtics, who have not lost to the Hawks this year, won their 12th straight on the Hawks' home court, breaking a 13-game Atlanta winning streak at the Omni.

Bird led Boston with 26 points, while Dominique Wilkins paced the Hawks with 42. Kevin McHale had 24 points for the Celtics and led all rebounders with 12, and Robert Parish added 18 points.

Pacers 114, Bucks 104

MILWAUKEE — Clint Richardson scored 10 of his 21 points in the third quarter as the Indiana Pacers outscored the Bucks 31-23 in the period.

Steve Stipanovich scored 22 points for the Pacers, who broke their 14-game losing streak at the Milwaukee Arena. Bill Martin added 20 for Indiana.

Coming into the game, the Pacers had dropped 14 consecutive games to the Bucks at the Milwaukee Arena, dating back to February 1981.

It was the third consecutive loss for Milwaukee, which was led by Sidney Moncrief with 25 points. The Bucks played without two injured starters, Craig Hodges and Paul Pressey.

Jazz 146, Spurs 121

SALT LAKE CITY — Adrian Dantley scored a season-high 47 points for Utah.

The Jazz team total was a season-high for the club, beating their previous high of 139 against Dallas.

Dantley scored 27 points in the first half and added 20 in the second half as the Jazz took an early lead and were never threatened.

Rickey Green and Bobby Hansen added 19 points each for the Jazz, with Hansen collecting four three-point goals. Green also had 14 assists and Mark Eaton blocked eight shots.

The Spurs were led by Mike Mitchell with 34 points, all in the first three quarters. Ray Williams came off the bench to score 22 points for San Antonio, all in the second half.

The Jazz took the lead to stay with a 13-2 run in the first period.

Dantley and Mitchell each scored 18 points in the second quarter as Utah increased its lead to 70-62 at halftime and the Jazz expanded the bulge to 98-79 midway through the third quarter. The Spurs then scored nine straight points to cut the deficit to 98-88, but the Jazz rebuilt the margin to 109-95 going into the final quarter.

Clippers 105, Kings 104

LOS ANGELES — Rookie Benoit Benjamin had 26 points and 14 rebounds and Norm Nixon added 19 points to lead Los Angeles.

Nixon hit a 15-footer to give the Clippers a 105-102 lead with 47 seconds left and, after Cedric Maxwell missed a layup, the Kings could only get a layin by LaSalle Thompson with five seconds to go for the final margin.

Darnell Valentine of the Clippers missed two free throws after being intentionally fouled. After the Kings called a timeout, Reggie Theus missed a 20-footer at the buzzer that hit the rim and bounced away.

After Sacramento trailed the entire fourth quarter, Eddie Johnson, who had 29 points, hit an eight-foot shot and a 12-foot jumper to bring the Kings within 103-102.

San Angelo takes SABC golf title by two shots

From Staff Reports

SAN ANGELO — San Angelo posted a team score of 608 here Thursday and Friday to upset District 4-5A golf power Abilene Cooper in the San Angelo Boys Classic golf tournament.

Cooper finished second with a 610 total, two strokes off the pace. However, Cooper's Gary Gilbreath won medalist honors with rounds of 73 and 69 for a two-day 142.

Andrews was third at 627 while Amarillo High was fourth at 637 and followed by Midland Lee, 651; and Midland High, 652.

Midland Lee's golfers were Bobby Gee, 78-84-169; Larry Bryan, 79-78-157; Mike Abbott, 90-82-172; Donny Feagan, 84-94-178; and Randy Milby, 82-87-169.

Midland High was paced by Wade Sale, 78-79-157; Mike Pettis, 82-80-162; Ted Fergeson, 77-88-165; Mike Johnson, 86-82-168; and Karl Brown, 94-92-186.

The District 4-5A golf tour begins Friday when Green Tree Country Club hosts the first of five rounds. After this meet, Cooper may face a stern test from the Bobcats. Midland teams will want to perform well since the tour doesn't return to a home course after Friday.

UT women stroll to easy playoff win over Missouri

AUSTIN (AP) — No. 1-ranked Texas broke to a 17-1 lead and stretched the margin against a tired Missouri team in the second half for a 108-67 victory in the first round of the NCAA women's basketball playoffs Friday night.

With the victory, Texas, 30-0, advanced to the Midwest Regionals, which will be played here Thursday and Saturday.

The loss eliminated Missouri with a 20-12 season record.

After Texas' fast start, Missouri pulled to within eight points — 28-20 — and trailed at halftime 42-30 as Renee Kelly scored 16 first half points for Missouri. She was high for the game with 28.

Fran Harris had 12 for Texas at halftime and finished with a team-high 24 points as Coach Jody Conradt substituted freely.

Conradt also called off Texas' defensive press in the final eight minutes but the score still mounted.

Buckeyes hold on to beat Bobcats, play Texas next

NIT Tournament

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Dennis Hopson scored 22 points and Brad Sellers added 19 more, including two clinching free throws with 18 seconds remaining, as Ohio State defeated Ohio University 65-62 Friday night in a first-round game in the National Invitation Tournament.

The Buckeyes, now 15-14, will play host to 19-12 Texas Monday night at St. John Arena in the second round.

Ohio State trailed by nine points early in the second half, but ran off seven points in a row over a span of 2:06 midway through the second half to take a 50-47 lead. Hopson had three points and Sellers and Curtis Wilson each hit baskets during the streak.

The Buckeyes mounted a 57-50 advantage, but Ohio U. drew to 61-60 on a short jumper by freshman forward Paul Graham with 47 seconds left.

But Ohio State stalled the ball until Sellers was fouled at the 18-second mark. He then hit both shots for a 63-60 lead.

After David Jamerson hit a layup for the Bobcats, Hopson netted a pair of free throws with no time on the clock to close the scoring.

Wilson had 12 points for Ohio State. Graham led the Bobcats, who closed out the year at 22-8, with 19 points. Robert Tatum had 14 after scoring 12 in the first half, and John Rhodes chipped in with 11.

Pitt's McRae snaps 55-meter mark

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Lee McRae, the precocious University of Pittsburgh sophomore, smashed the world indoor best in the men's 55-meter dash Friday night, clocking 5.99 seconds in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships at The Myriad.

In becoming the first runner to break six seconds in the event, MCRae cracked the previous world indoor best of 6.02, set in 1983 by quadruple Olympic medalist Carl Lewis of the United States.

Another world indoor best fell in the men's 500 meters, as sophomore Roddie Haley of the University of Arkansas was clocked in 1:00.69 in a trial heat leadng up to Saturday's final.

The previous best of 1:00.85 was set by University of Florida assistant coach Clarence Daniel at Gainesville, Fla. on Feb. 2, 1986.

It was the second time this year that Haley had broken the mark. On Jan. 17, he ran 1:01.18. But that mark lasted less than two weeks, before Edwin Modibedi of Villanova University and Bophuhatswana and Thomas Johnson of Florida State each ran 1:01.10.

"This is the third time that I've ever run the 500, and only the second time this year," said Haley, the 1985 NCAA outdoor 400 champion. "The 500 isn't my favorite — it's too long."

In the 55-meter dash, McRae said that he had a feeling he could break the six-second barrier.

"Earlier today, I was joking around with some of the guys and I told them, I was going to break the record," he said.

"I knew that if I got out quick and maintained it all the way through, something good would come out of it."

Three other meet records were broken in heats.

Villanova, with Modibedi and Chip Jenkins — who earlier qualified for the 500 final — broke the NCAA record in the men's 1,600-meter relay, running 3:07.84 in the trials.

Abilene Christian All-LSC list

ABILENE (AP) — Undefeated conference champion Abilene Christian dominated the 1985-86 All-Lone Star Conference men's basketball team as selected by the league's head coaches.

Keith Scales, ACU senior forward from Amarillo, was named Most Valuable Player and was the only unanimous selection on the six-member first team.

Joining Scales on the first team were ACU teammates Ryant Greene, senior guard from Plano, and Brett Enzor, sophomore guard from Oakton, Va.. Mike Martin of Abilene Christian was named Coach of the Year for the second straight time.

Other members of the first team were Howard Payne forward James Quaite, senior from Dallas, Texas A&I forward Randy Smith, junior from New Orleans, and Howard Payne center David Stearns, senior from Grapevine.

The coaches also named Smith as Defensive Player of the Year, and guard Bennett Fields of East Texas State and forward Malcolm Townsend of Abilene Christian tied for Freshman of the Year.

On the second team were: Forwards — Franklin Williams, Texas A&I, and Michael Williams, Abilene Christian; center — R.A. Stephens, Eastern New Mexico; guards — Curtis Harris, Texas A&I; Alton Jackson, Texas A&I (tie); and Anthony Smith, Howard Payne (tie).

'Humbled' Yoko Ono celebrates Lennon's memory

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press

John Lennon

Yoko Ono

Julian Lennon

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of John Lennon's fans don't want to hear her, and his older son is sometimes hostile. Yoko Ono says she understands.

"I was a very proud human being," Lennon's widow says. "Life itself humbled me.

"I think life made me the way I am now. Events — John's death and raising Sean — opened up my defects and sort of turned them into something more powerful and energetic."

Miss Ono's energies recently were turned to capturing a 1972 concert in Madison Square Garden with Lennon, and the results — "John Lennon Live in New York City" — is being broadcast on the Showtime cable television channel.

Showtime is also playing "Stand By Me: a Portrait of Julian Lennon," made during the recent U.S. tour by Lennon's 22-year-old son.

Showtime will play the John Lennon program March 17, 22, 25 and 30 and the Julian Lennon program on March 20, 25 and 31. "John Lennon Live in New York City" is also available as a Capitol record, a Sony videotape or a Pioneer videodisc.

Miss Ono talked about the film and recordings recently in her office at the Dakota apartments, where she lives with her son Sean, 10. Lennon was murdered outside the Dakota by a deranged fan in 1980.

"I kept on the record only John's songs," Miss Ono said. "Some fans have been saying, 'Don't give us John and Yoko; just give us John.' OK, here it is.

"In the film, it was not really in the spirit of the concert to keep me out. It was really a John and Yoko concert. But I cut most of my songs and most of John's songs are in it. 'Born in a Prison' has a nice exchange between John and I. I don't think we have any record of us doing a duet. I thought we'd keep that one in."

In his TV hour, Julian Lennon says some sharp things about his father's second wife but Miss Ono takes it in stride.

"When we're together, there is no problem," she said of Julian. "He is very nice to me, very sweet to me.

"Each time he comes back to his environment, I think there are people who sort of regard it as bad taste for Julian to be close to me."

Julian Lennon invited her to attend a screening of the film.

"When we were watching, when he was going to say something about me, he'd say, 'I'm sorry. It's going to be a bit hard on you.' I said, 'OK. That's how it is.' I understand if he's going to badmouth anybody, probably it is more natural that it is me and not his mother or father."

The New York concert, Miss Ono said, was the last of a series which the couple started in 1968 to raise money for causes they supported.

"We thought this New York one was an incredible concert. The audience went out on the street singing 'Give Peace a Chance.' We thought it was going to be like this so we had seven cameras and filmed it all. We asked Phil Spector to come and record it.

"The reason there was no film and no record is because our immigration problem was getting so hot. We didn't feel we should produce a record and a film at the same time."

She has warm memories of the 1972 concert with Lennon.

"It was really a high moment for John. He was over 30, matured and physically in good condition," she said. "He was singing very well, really giving the message, not just a singer singing. We were both clean of drugs.

"I named it, 'John Lennon Live in New York City,' present tense, sort of letting his spirit live."

When Capitol wanted to produce a record of the concert, and Miss Ono wanted to make sure it was done right.

"It was quite an emotional effort on my part. I went through it all last summer after I made the 'Star Peace' album. I produced the record and produced and supervised the film," she said. "There was no point in not letting the film come out after doing the record."

Miss Ono celebrated her 53rd birthday last month as she set off on a three-month tour across Europe, Japan and the United States.

Oscar nominee Winfrey sheds troubled past

By THOMAS MORGAN
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Oprah Winfrey has been nominated for an Academy Award as best supporting actress for "The Color Purple" and is host of an immensely popular talk show in Chicago, but, she says, when she looks in the mirror, she sometimes sees a poor little girl with ugly, butterfly-rimmed eyeglasses.

"I saw her in the mirror this morning," Miss Winfrey said in a telephone interview from Chicago. "I said, 'Get up, girl, and pull yourself together!' "

The little girl with the butterfly-rimmed glasses who was considered a precocious and uncontrollable delinquent when she was a teen-ager has evolved into a 32-year-old woman whose talk show will be syndicated this fall to 120 stations nationwide, and who said she has learned to accept herself for what she is: a mixture of Southern gentility, good-naturedness, inquisitiveness and determination, who sometimes has bad days.

"I have the ability to be myself in front of the camera, which is a gift," said Winfrey, a television personality since she was 19. "So many other people play television: they sit a certain way, talk a certain way, even if the set falls down. Vulnerability is the key; people appreciate when you can be honest. It lets them feel more comfortable about being themselves."

Television viewers in Baltimore and Chicago have seen her in action. In both cities, she has beaten the nationally syndicated talk-show host Phil Donahue in the ratings in the same time period. From Chicago, where the name of the show was changed last year from "AM Chicago" to "The Oprah Winfrey Show," Winfrey will compete with Donahue in September in many of the 120 cities.

On one recent program, about battered women and incest, when a middle-aged woman said she had been sexually abused, Winfrey began to cry. Winfrey called for a station break and put her arms around the woman. She knew the anguish all too well, she said: not only had she been raped by a cousin when she was 9, she had also been sexually abused by her mother's boyfriend.

"For the longest time, I carried this burden around with me and was afraid to tell anybody because I thought it was my fault," Miss Winfrey said. "We got 878 calls after the show on incest, and callers said, 'It happened to me, what can I do?' "

At 5 feet 7 inches and 190 pounds, Winfrey is not the svelte stereotype of a female television figure. Periodically, like many other people, she promises to start a diet.

"I'm overweight," Winfrey said. "People tell me not to lose weight, I might lose my personality. I tell them, 'Honey, it ain't in my thighs.' "

"I understand my commonality with the human experience," Winfrey said. "We all want to be happy, we have sad times. If you have lived, you have overeaten at one period or another. I'm not afraid to show those feelings. I can say, 'Look, I have been there, I understand how it feels to be in love with somebody and not have him love you back.' People say, 'Dogone that Oprah, isn't she something?' But they don't realize sometimes that I'm just like them."

Winfrey said she had to plumb her feelings during the shooting of "The Color Purple," especially during the scene at the dinner table when Sophia, the character she plays, gives her major speech. "I remember having sat there for three days of shooting, rocking at the table," she said. "Mine was the last angle to be shot. I had been sitting there watching everybody else. I had a lot of time to think about the years Sophia spent in jail, and how thousands of women and men, all the people who marched in Selma, who were thrown in jail and what those years must have been like.

Polka barrels toward American mainstream

By FRED SHUSTER
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — With a-one and a-two, the polka has beer-barreled its way out of the ethnic enclaves in which it spent the last 50 years and is heading for the big time.

Not all the beautiful people are bouncing to the beat that put Poland on the map. But singer David Byrne of the rock group Talking Heads was spotted in the audience at a packed polka show in Hollywood last month and a San Francisco band that was started as a joke is all the rage in the city by the bay.

The energetic ethnic two-step is even drawing the interest of those in the know. On Feb. 25, the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences presented a Grammy award for the first time to the best polka album of the year.

It went to polka veteran Frankie Yankovic for his "70 Years of Hits."

Polka had its origins as a village folk dance in Bohemia, now an area of Czechoslovakia. In the 1800s it suddenly became internationally fashionable.

The dance waltzed its way to America with waves of immigrants from Central Europe and as they melted in the pot, polka evaporated, except for weddings and parties in areas with strong ties to the old country.

"It's happy, gutsy music. Even in the traditional bands, people dress crazy and really let loose."
— Ward Abronski, bandleader of Polkacide

But these days, a band called Polkacide is one of the hottest night club acts in northern California, even though it was started as a joke by a group of San Francisco Art Institute students.

"It's happy, gutsy music. Even in the traditional bands, people dress crazy and really let loose," said Ward Abronski, saxophonist and leader of the year-old Polkacide.

On stage, the lively 15-member group wears lederhosen, Naugahoosen, mismatched plaid suits and hospital gowns.

"We do Czech and Polish rather than German polkas. Standards such as: 'Beer Barrel Polka,' 'Who Stole the Keeshka?' and 'In Heaven There Is No Beer,'" said Abronski, the only Pole in the bunch.

Drummer Hayok Kay is Korean.

Band member Carl Finch said he started playing polka in 1979 as a reaction to the direction pop music had taken.

"At the time the accordion was the second most unpopular instrument in the world, right after the bagpipes," he said.

"Polka isn't simple music. It has a lot of soul."

Oxford dictionary to 'know it all' thorugh computer

WATERLOO, Ontario (AP) — Somewhere out there, somebody wants a list of every English word describing a color, along with the quotation showing the first time each word was used in writing.

Someone else, probably a language scholar, needs to know every word coined by Shakespeare, Milton and Keats. And then there's a guy who simply wants to use his home computer to cheat at Scrabble.

To all these people and more, patience. In just a few years, a trans-Atlantic alliance expects to have ready a computerized edition of that granddaddy of dictionaries, the 21,000-page Oxford English Dictionary, known to its users as the OED.

"This is a treasure chest," says John Stubbs, a history professor who is one of three co-directors of the University of Waterloo Center for the New OED.

Even in the early stages, Stubbs says, it is becoming clear that the existence of the new computer tool will open new vistas in several fields of language, linguistics and literature.

"There are some real signs of original thought of what can be done with the data," he says.

The original Oxford English Dictionary was published in 12 volumes, beginning in 1884 with the book covering A-Ant. Like other dictionaries, the OED gives definitions, pronunciations and etymology. What makes it special is the 2 million quotations showing each word in context, including the earliest known appearance in print.

As fast as the editors at Oxford University Press could work, with the aid of thousands of volunteer researchers reading through English literature and writing quotations on slips of paper, it took 44 years to complete the dictionary. By then, of course, it was out of date.

A supplement was printed in 1933, and is included in the 1971 two-volume "compact edition" — with tiny print and a magnifying glass — that made the dictionary widely popular, especially after it was offered at low cost with a Book-of-the-Month Club membership.

The fourth and final volume of another supplement is due soon, but it became clear to officials at Oxford University Press that a better way was needed to keep the dictionary current.

Gaston Gonnet, a computer science professor and another co-director of the center, says there were "a lot of eyebrows raised" when Waterloo, an upstart university founded in 1957, was chosen by Oxford to design the data base and software for the computerized dictionary.

Waterloo has a reputation for innovative work in computer science, but it is not internationally renowned.

But nearly 30 years ago, Oxford University's official surveyor, Michael Brooks, took a leave of absence to design a campus layout for the brand-new university in Ontario. The surveyor met a young professor, Douglas Wright, and kept in touch after returning home, where he was friendly with people at Oxford University Press.

Wright has since become president at Waterloo. When Brooks learned of the plan to computerize the Oxford English Dictionary, he urged his friends at the press to talk about it with Wright.

"Oxford would never have thought of Waterloo if it hadn't been for this personal contact," Stubbs says.

The center is being supported mostly by a grant from the Canadian government. It is not being paid for its work on the new dictionary, but will own the software it develops, which should find many other uses.

"The first benefit is not economic," Gonnet says. "The university is obtaining research opportunities. The center as a whole is creating knowledge about dictionaries."

Back in England, IBM has donated hardware for the computer and people to help the staff at the press learn to use it.

As a first step, operators at International Computaprint Corp. in Fort Washington, Pa., are busily typing the dictionary's 350 million characters onto computer discs, along with special codes that identify each part of each entry: headword, part of speech, etymology, quotation, author, definition and so forth.

These codes eventually will be crucial for the special uses of the computerized dictionary.

But first, sometime in 1989, Oxford plans to use the text stored on the computer to publish a new edition, this time with the new words, quotations and meanings from the supplements included in the main body of the dictionary, which could run to 20 volumes.

The first letter typed into computer memory was "M," giving researchers at Waterloo something to begin their experiments with.

. . . that is the cry of the multitude. Today we join in happy throngs around the earth as we shout together.

"Hosanna"!

Whatever the morrow may hold of the suffering, today we declare to the world. . . "Christ has come." Because we are in His company, we know that God ultimately will be sovereign over all the world. We are confident that goodness is stronger than evil. We are sure love will triumph over hate.

Whatever a Friday of crucifixion may bring of temporary defeat, we know life will triumph over death, and the Christian way will resolve itself supremely in the final destiny.

Then Palm Sunday is a day to celebrate and we set up our banner of hope. "For right is right as God is and right the day must win." This hope will convert, for us, spiritual defeat into eternal victory.

'Voices of Appalachia' to perform Sunday

Voices of Appalachia

RELIGION

Singing hymns and folksongs of southern Appalachia, the "Voices of Appalachia", a 40-voice choir from Kentucky, will present a program at the Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, 2800 Mogford, Sunday at 7 p.m.

The choir members are students at Alice Lloyd College in Pippa Passes, Ky. The college is located in the heart of southern Appalachia — about 150 miles east of Lexington, Ky. and 120 miles southwest of Huntington, W. Va.

"Its graduates, devoted to leadership, education and service to mankind, are working hard to solve the many problems of the mountains — to improve educational, economic and health opportunities — and at the same time to strengthen the Appalachian values and traditions that enrich the quality of life," said a spokesman for the college. "Their music conveys the deep feelings and rich musical heritage of the mountain people."

Richard Kennedy is the director of the Voices of Appalachia. Born in Atlanta, Ga., he received his bachelor's degree in music from William Carey College, Hattiesburg, Miss. Kennedy earned his master's degree in music at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth and has done additional graduate work at the University of Mississippi and the University of Kentucky. In addition to 14 years of experience as a choral director, he has traveled throughout the south and southwest as a tenor soloist.

The concert is free and the public is invited.

Caroline Sheffield, from left, Melissa Ellis, Dinah Smith, and Donnie Artley, members of the Celebration Singers Youth Choir of First United Methodist Church, display selected items which will be featured for sale in the choir's auction Sunday, from 5:30 to 7 p.m., to raise money for touring. More than one hundred items including trips, jewelry, parties, children's toys, handmade objects, and artworks will be featured. The auction will be in the fellowship hall of the church, Main at Illinois. The public is invited.

Lamesa First Baptist Church holds farm family weekend

LAMESA — In an effort to offer help and hope to farm families in the midst of the national farm crisis, First Baptist Church, Lamesa, is sponsoring a "West Texas Farm Family Week-end," this weekend.

"The agriculture industry is doing all it can to help save the farm. Our goal is to help save the farm family," said C.H. Murphy Jr., pastor at First Baptist Church. At least 800 are expected to attend the interdenominational weekend program, which is open to the public.

The program began Friday at First Baptist Church, S. 1st Street, Lamesa, with a general rally featuring John Johnson, a motivational speaker from Minneapolis, Minn. Another rally is scheduled for 7 p.m. today featuring Stanley White, a Christian humorist from Stephenville.

Beginning at 9 a.m. today and continuing in 50-minute intervals throughout the day, a variety of seminars will be offered on subjects ranging from financial planning to strengthening the family.

Topics and speakers include: "Coping with Change," Bob Pender, professor of home and family development, Texas Tech University, Lubbock; "Bankruptcy and Foreclosure," Byrnie Bass, attorney; "Bankruptcy and Christian Ethics," Clyde Cain, pastor Calvary Baptist Church, Lubbock; "Self-Esteem" and "Money Management and Financial Planning," Lewis and Rose Canley; "Stress and Grief Management," Lane Powell, Crossroads Samaritan Counseling Center, Lubbock; and "Strengthening the Family," Neal Beaumwart, pastoral counselor, Crossroads Samaritan Counseling Center.

Murphy will lead a seminar on "The Bible Basis of Turning Tragedy into Triumph," and he will lead a Bible study for farm families during the Sunday morning service.

"To our knowledge, this is the first response of this type to the farm crisis by any church in Texas," said Ken Coffee, chairman of the Texas Baptist Farm Crisis Task Force, Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Adventists examine marriage

Marriage relationships are being studied this week as a new kind of math at the Seventh-day Adventist Church, 3114 Travis.

"When one plus one equals one," says Donna Barroso, director of the local congregation's study hour, "even our children know there has to be something different."

The difference is the model, according to Ms. Barroso, who suggests that "the words headship and submission need some special scrutiny when it comes to marriage."

"When Paul wrote to the Ephesians that wives should submit to their husbands, he gave some limiting criteria," Barroso says. "Still, some people read only the part where he wrote, 'Wives, submit to your husbands.'"

Class teachers will be directing the 10 a.m. discussions on the kind of love that cements a Christian marriage. "We don't expect them to find male dominance referred to in Ephesians 5," says Barroso. "We believe our classes will find some dynamic norms rather than cultural heritages in the Bible."

Prior to the classes at 10 a.m., there will be a review of the congregation's mission in the Phillipines.

Visitors are welcome to participate in the Bible-based discussions.

Witnesses to gather in Midland

Jehovah's Witnesses from Midland will soon be convening with members of 10 other West Texas congregations at the Ector County Junior High School in Odessa.

Neal Baker, spokesman for the local congregations, explained that more than 1,000 delegates are expected to attend this two-day session of Bible instruction and fellowship.

"Our program theme is 'Love for the Worldwide Brotherhood,' based on the Bible text John 13:34," Baker said. "This scripture encouraged Christians in the first century to have that love for one another and it is just as vital for the 20th century Christians."

The principal address of the assembly will be delivered by a representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society from the worldwide headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses in Brooklyn, N.Y. His subject will be "A Worldwide Brotherhood Saved From Calamity."

TCU professor to speak at church

Flowers

Dr. Ronald B. Flowers, professor of religion-studies at Texas Christian University, will be giving three lectures at Memorial Christian Church today and Sunday as a "Visiting Scholar." The purpose of the program is to provide the local community with an opportunity to have dialogue with a well-known person involved in the scholarly part of the Christian faith.

The presentation will focus on the growth and vitality of conservative Protestantism in America from the late 1960s to the present.

The first lecture, "Conservative Religion is a Growth Industry," will follow a 6 p.m. dinner today.

"Religion on the Tube and at the Ballot Box", the second in the series, will be at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

A snack supper at 5:30 p.m. Sunday will be followed by the last of the lectures, "Why Conservatism at This Time in Our History?"

Dr. Flowers received a bacherlor's degree from TCU, followed by degrees from Vanderbilt, and a Ph.D. degree from Iowa University. He is the author of many articles that have appeared in religious periodicals and scholarly journals. His two most recent books are "Toward Benevolent Neutrality: Church, State, and the Supreme Court" and "Religion in Strange Times: The 1960s and 1970s."

Presbyterian church sponsors special program

Trinity Presbyterian Church, located on the corner of Andrews Hwy. and Louisiana, will be having a special program Wednesday, following the Wednesday night fellowship supper.

The youth group from First Presbyterian Church will be presenting a program, including a slide presentation, on their Puentes de Cristo adventures during their two work trips in 1985.

Puentes de Cristo is a joint mission project between the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and the Presbyterian Church of Mexico. The project consists of several communities along the U.S./Mexico border near McAllen, with its headquarters in McAllen. The youth group has made two work trips to Puentes de Cristo and plans another this spring. The young people spend their time working in construction and renovating churches, painting, visiting the children in the orphanage, and other necessary jobs around the project.

The program will begin at 6:45 p.m. Call 682-2514 for reservations for the fellowship dinner.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Macedonia Baptist hosts gospel music workshop

Pope

The Young Adult Choir of the Macedonia Baptist Church, 201 S. Carver, is hosting a gospel music workshop Thursday and Friday. The workshop will be conducted by the Rev. Alvin Pope of Fort Worth.

Pope began his ministry as an accompanist for Vernard Johnson in 1971. He has conducted several workshops and directed many large choirs, with as many as 700 voices in attendance. Pope has made numerous appearances on the PTL Club and Zig Zigler, to name a few.

He was a minister of music from 1981-84 at Ebenezer Baptist Church in Fort Worth and a former minister of music of Texas Northwestern Jurisdiction of Church of God in Christ.

Presently minister of music at Calvary Church of God in Christ, Pope is also founder of ARK Ministries.

Registration is $10 and will begin Thursday at 6 p.m. The choir will be in concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 22. For more information, call 682-5892.

FPC airing Dobson films

"Turn Your Heart Toward Home," a new film series from Dr. James Dobson, is being shown Wednesday evenings at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., in the church's fellowship hall.

First Presbyterian is among the first churches to show the new series anywhere in the country. Because of Dobson's popularity, the church is inviting all interested Midlanders to the films.

The six-part series began March 5. The next film, "Power in Parenting: The Adolescent," will be shown Wednesday in the First Presbyterian Church fellowship hall. All interested citizens are invited to attend. A nursery will be provided. The series continues each Wednesday evening through April 16, 1986, with the exception of April 2.

FUMC presents concert

Brad Kisner, organist, and Margery Samples, reader, will present a concert of Holy Week music and readings Sunday, March 23, at 7:15 p.m. in the sanctuary of First United Methodist Church, Main at Illinois.

Kisner, director of music ministries at First Methodist, is a graduate of Oklahoma State University with a bachelor's degree in music education and of Southern Methodist University with a master's of sacred music. He is dean of the West Texas chapter of the American Guild of Organists. He and his wife, Jane, direct the music program, which consists of ten singing and handbell choirs at the church.

Mrs. Samples, a longtime Midlander, is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma with degree in drama. She has been an active supporter of the arts in Midland and is involved in several community organizations, including the Chancel Choir of First Methodist.

The public is invited to attend this recital, a part of the church's regular Vesper Concert Series. There is no admission charge and childcare will be provided.

L'Abri holding conference

AUSTIN — The L'Abri Foundation, founded thirty years ago by Francis and Edith Schaeffer in Switzerland and now consisting of Christian study centers in four European countries and the U.S., will hold a national conference in Austin April 10-14 at the Palmer Auditorium.

Mrs. Schaeffer and Os Guinness are two well-known speakers among the eight who will come from several countries to speak on areas such as economics, psychology, modern culture, philosophy and the arts. Discussion groups will also be held in such subject areas as the New Age Movement, Eastern mysticism, homosexuality, women in the church, prayer and Marxism. All subjects will be approached from the viewpoint of historical Christianity and Christianity as truth, a basic tenet of the L'Abri community.

More information is available by calling 512-458-5677 or writing P.O. Box 13371, Austin, 78711.

Class registration ends

Registration deadline is today for the Unitarian-Universalist Women's Federation of Midland's "Essential Connections," a study curriculum created by the Chapin-Crane Women and Religion Team.

"The curriculum explores women's significant relationships," said a spokesman for the federation. "The discussions are based on six works of fiction and encourage participants to ponder women's relationships with other women, women's life transitions, and women's wisdom."

The classes will be held Sunday evenings beginning April 6, at the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Midland, 3301 Neely at Midkiff.

The discussion will be facilitated by Kathy Marchioni. Ms. Marchioni, a doctoral candidate in clinical psychology at Texas Tech, has extensive experience in individual, family and group therapy and she is an experienced group facilitater.

The class is open to non-UUWF members. Registration materials are available through the church.

Authors to address meeting

SAN ANTONIO — J. Sig Paulson, author of "The Power to Be" and "How to Love Your Neighbor," and John Price, author of "Superbeing," are two of the 12 featured speakers at the First South Central Texas District Congress being held by the International New Thought Alliance on Friday and Saturday, April 18-19, at the Holiday Inn Airport, 77 N.E. Loop 410, San Antonio.

The INTA District Congress, titled "Fiesta in Your Heart," will carry the theme "Visualize World Health."

"Let the good things into your life — good health, good fortune, good friends, and good feelings. Through 'New Thought' we learn how to open our minds to the good that exists all around us by opening our hearts to the good within each and every one of us," said a spokesman of the congress.

The cost of the District Congress is $35, which includes lunch on Saturday. For registration information, please contact the host church, San Antonio Church of Today, at 512-349-6622.

'Celebration' concert set

ODESSA — Janny Grein, songwriter and singer, will be in concert at Odessa Christian Faith Center on March 22 at 7 p.m.

"Janny's concerts are called 'A Celebration of Life' as she sings and ministers in a celebration of our life in Christ Jesus," said a spokesman of the church. "Janny has written and recorded many songs. Some of the more well-known are 'Bread Upon the Water,' 'More Than Conquerors,' 'O Magnify The Lord,' and 'Walkin' in the Spirit.' Her newest album, 'Like the Wind', produced by Phil Driscoll, is a refreshing addition to contemporary Christian music."

Grien is the author of a current best-seller, "Called, Appointed, Annointed."

Odessa Christian Faith Center is at 8860 N. Andrews Hwy., Odessa. The pastors, Don and Paulette Caywood, invite the public to attend. A nursery will be provided.

Baptist church airs films

"Turn Your Heart Toward Home," a new film series from Dr. James Dobson, begins at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St.

"Over 50 million parents have been inspired by Dr. James Dobson's 'Focus on the family' film series," said a church spokesman. "Now, building on that nationwide groundswell of interest, Word Publishing and Focus on the Family, Inc., have released 'Turn Your Heart Toward Home.' In this bold new film series, America's most trusted family life expert brings his vast experience to bear on one of society's most pressing challenges, the protecting and strengthening of family relationships."

The first part is "A Father Looks Back." The remaining five films will be shown March 23 through April 20.

The public is invited to attend.

Woman's Day celebrated

The women of New Jerusalem Baptist Church, 1801 N. Carver, will celebrate the 14th annual Woman's Day at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 23.

The theme for the occasion is "The Role of Christian Women in a Modern Society." The guest speaker for the day will be Alma V. Delley of Tyler.

Mrs. Delley is an educator and an experienced public speaker. She holds a degree from Prairie A&M University. She is an active member of True Vine Baptist Church, Tyler and presently serves as the Dean of East Texas Baptist Congress.

This annual day is chaired by W. M. Jackson under the direction of the Rev. J.F. Campbell, pastor.

The public is invited to attend.

Church sponsors speaker

Frank Hammond is the guest speaker at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Church of the Dayspring, 100 W. Oak St.

Hammond is the author of the book "Pigs in the Parlor." He is a graduate of Baylor University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and a former pastoral minister.

He and his wife Ida Mae conduct family seminars and are co-authors of the book "Kingdom Living for the Family." Their ministry is called the Children's Bread, an outreach of New Covenant Church, Plainview.

The public is invited to hear Hammond speak.

Church to hold festival

Asbury United Methodist Church in Midland is sponsoring its 7th Annual Fall Arts and Crafts Festival on Saturday, Nov. 15, in the Midland County Exhibit Building. They are looking for arts and crafts exhibitors with all kinds of handmade crafts to display and sell. For more information, write Nellie Hughes, Booth Chairperson, 2309 W. Storey, Midland, 79701 or Asbury United Fall Festival, c/o Asbury United Methodist Church, Box 1375, Midland, 79702, or call 684-4588 weekdays after 5:30 p.m. or weekends.

Holy Communion set

The Rev. Jean Pierre Meshew, archdeacon of the Diocese of the Southwest of the American Episcopal Church, will celebrate Holy Communion for St. Paul's American Episcopal Church Sunday. The time has been moved from 10 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.

Services are held in the chapel at Ellis Funeral Home. The 1928 Book of Common Prayer is used by the congregation for all services.

Gospel singer in concert

Willie C. French, a gospel singer, will be in concert at the New Jerusalem Baptist Church today at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend. The concert is sponsored by Josey Watson and group, with the Rev. John F. Campbell, pastor.

Soviet journalists claim life in U.S. hampered by suspicion, restrictions

By ANDREW KATELL
Associated Press

NEW YORK — When the phone rings in the Tass office in New York, the Soviet journalists huddled over video display terminals never know whether it's worth answering. It might be just another "telephone blockade."

Such blockades, the Soviet reporters say, consist of phantom phone calls with no one on the other end of the line. Anti-Soviet protesters use the tactic regularly, they claim, to disrupt their work.

The reporters say that when they go for a drive, American agents sometimes follow, snapping pictures. When they try to do interviews, some Americans won't talk to them. The Americans, they say, don't want to be quoted by a Communist news organization.

Soviet reporters in the United States claim they suffer almost constant suspicion and harassment, limiting their ability to report on America and live normal lives.

U.S. government officials acknowledge that the Soviet journalists are closely watched and their activities limited. But they say that's necessary because some Soviet reporters serve as spies.

Another reason for the restrictions, the officials say, is retaliation for limits placed on American reporters in Moscow.

The Soviet Union has 40 journalists in the United States, the same number as American reporters in the Soviet Union. In addition to Tass, the official news agency, the Soviet correspondents — based in New York, Washington and San Francisco — work for such organizations as the Communist Party newspaper Pravda and Soviet radio and television.

THE TASS OFFICE in New York lacks the accessibility of most American newsrooms. A visitor must ring a bell outside a thick, gray metal door. A woman peers through a peephole, deciding who is allowed to enter. Inside, on a recent weekday, a couple of women were sorting through Soviet newspapers, while two men sat at video display terminals, working with stories clipped from American newspapers.

Most of Tass' news items are based on reports from American wire services, newspapers and television networks. But not everything makes it on the Tass wire. What's news to the Soviet journalists is only what's on the Kremlin's agenda.

A recent day's Tass report from New York included stories on "nuclear-free zones" in the United States, the arrest of anti-nuclear protesters in Rhode Island and "Rambomania," the anti-Soviet theme in recent U.S. movies.

The U.S. stories play well back in the Soviet Union.

Tass's New York bureau chief, Nikolai Setunsky, says nearly 100 percent of Tass' U.S. news stories appear in some form in Soviet newspapers and on radio and TV.

Setunsky complains that U.S. government-imposed travel restrictions hamper news gathering. About 20 percent of the United States, mostly where military installations or defense-related and high technology businesses are concentrated, is off-limits to the journalists.

IN ADDITION, THEY must receive the government's approval of their travel routes and its permission two days in advance to travel outside a 25-mile radius of their offices. Tass correspondents make from 18 to 25 trips a year, Setunsky says.

A map on the wall of the Tass office serves as a reminder of the "open" and "closed" areas of the United States. Setunsky says the limits are a "manifestation of the lack of good will."

But a U.S. State Department official responded that the department "applies precisely the same arrangements reciprocally that the Soviets apply to American journalists there."

In addition to reciprocity, the official said the restrictions are necessary because of U.S. intelligence reports that say about a third of all Soviets in the United States, including journalists, are spies. The official, speaking in a telephone interview from Washington and insisting on anonymity, said that lifting the limits "would be dangerous to our national security."

The journalists themselves are more concerned with their own security.

In September, two men assaulted a correspondent for the Soviet Literary Gazette while he was trying to interview striking coal miners near Blackberry Creek, Ky. In New York, the journalists report bomb threats, slashing of their car tires, "telephone blockades" and sit-ins in their offices.

SETUNSKY SAYS THERE have been at least six bomb threats to the Tass office in his 10 years in the United States, all false but forcing the evacuation of his staff and disrupting work.

He says his office receives dozens of phone calls daily in the "telephone blockades," which he describes as a chain of calls by "Zionist people" in which callers don't say anything. The blockade "just paralyzes the work of the office," he says.

Some groups trying to pressure the Soviet government into letting Jews emigrate and allowing free practice of religion have encouraged members to mount such telephone barrages, handing out leaflets containing phone numbers of Soviet offices.

Andrei Tolkunov, Pravda's New York correspondent, says the journalists' families are also harassed. He says it's not uncommon for a crowd to congregate outside the Soviet living compound in the Riverdale section of New York City "shouting dirty words some steps from...our children."

AP Laserphoto

Tass' New York bureau chief, Nikolai Setunsky, surveys an edition in his office in New York's Rockefeller Center. Setunsky and other Soviet reporters claim Americans' suspicion and harrassment hamper their reporting and intrude on their lives.

While the journalists complain about inadequate police protection, they say the FBI has no problem keeping an eye on them.

Setunsky cites the time he was driving with a friend around Riverdale looking for apartments. The area was hilly and the road winding.

"I was followed by a car evidently driven by some official of special services. Because we did not know the route, we drove to and from, getting to dead-end streets and had to return. We lost or way five or six times and each time the car just stopped behind us."

FBI spokesman Joe Valiquette in New York refused comment on "what form our investigations take."

Sen. William Roth, chairman of the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, says there is good reason for the surveillance.

"Here we have a free press. The Soviets have a controlled press. The Soviet Union uses the press for its purpose — both for disinformation and espionage," Roth, R-Del., said in a telephone interview from Washington.

Roth said he'd like to see more restrictions on Soviets in the United States, including journalists.

Prison editors find freedom in press

THOMASTON, Maine (AP) — Freedom of the press, like other kinds of freedom, exists outside the gray walls of the Maine State Prison.

Nonetheless, the editors of the inmate newspaper have given voice to prisoners' frustrations, goaded the warden and even accused the medical staff of contributing to an inmate's death.

The Phoenix, circulation 400, tries to cover all for its readers — overcrowding, frustration with the legal system, complaints about food and medical treatment — while editors Art Wilson and Brad Rowe try to reflect some hope.

The monthly paper, produced in the prison's print shop, has not developed a reputation for restraint even though Warden Martin A. Magnusson could stop the presses at any time if the reportage gets too radical.

The Phoenix described Corrections Commissioner Donald Allen as "wily" and complained that the wives and children of some inmates were being unfairly subjected to strip-searches before being allowed to visit.

A recent issue contained a memo from Magnusson advising prisoners to show up for their disciplinary hearings, warning that proceedings will go on as scheduled whether the inmate is there or not.

The response from The Phoenix, printed beneath the memo: "People learn justice by being dealt with justly, not from some self-serving hypocritical foolishness."

The Phoenix has been known to take "cheap shots," Magnusson says.

A discussion in the paper of possible renovations to the warden's office suggested replacing the carpet with artificial turf. That would "make a great putting green," the paper quipped, "and (Magnusson) wouldn't have to drive way to Rockland to shirk his responsibilities."

The warden said the paper has been flirting with the danger zone in some recent editions. "I've had a good number of staff complaints about it," he noted.

Rowe agreed that some of the paper's recent stories have been "a little too hot for the administration."

"We get heat from both sides," he said — from fellow inmates as well as the prison administration. So, he and Wilson said they are careful about what they print — and careful about what they say to a visitor. Both declined to voice any personal complaints about life in the maximum-security prison.

Still, The Phoenix is not the kind of paper that pulls its punches in the interest of avoiding libel suits. The December issue charged that the death of inmate Clayton LeFay "was partly the result of negligence on the part of certain members of the prison hospital staff." LeFay reportedly died two weeks after complaining of head and neck pains following a workout in the prison gym.

Magnusson said the article contained inaccurate information, but declined to be specific because of the potential for litigation stemming from the death.

Although the warden said the paper is not in imminent danger of being shut down, he reserved the right to ban the paper's production in the prison's facilities. The editors could still print The Phoenix elsewhere, he explained, but the paper would have to be reviewed by officials before being allowed inside.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Flexibility is your strongest asset in achieving success in the year ahead. New technology and more efficient business practices enable you to move ahead quicker and with greater profitability. Be aware of your tendency to get involved in unethical deals, especially where financial matters are concerned. Someone from your past may reappear, bringing romance back into your life. It could be the beginning of a lasting affair. When you need to lift your spirits, travel is the answer.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, former First Lady Patricia Nixon, comedian Jerry Lewis, "CHiPs" star Erik Estrada, former president James Madison.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Keep spending within your budget. Your domestic life takes on new importance and you are willing to make additional sacrifices. If single, romance finds you!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Resist the temptation to invest time and money on a new venture. Direct efforts on your own pet projects. Someone who is not normally your type will be of sudden interest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Family duties require social plans to be delayed. Try not to be upset if a loved one seems disloyal. A social evening will be great fun provided you keep spending in line.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Concentrate on putting your financial affairs in order. Success follows provided you believe in yourself. Children enjoy a special place in your affections today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your imagination could lead to trouble unless you keep reality separated from fantasy. Old friends delight in hearing from you. Look forward to a truly romantic evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The company of a close friend keeps you from feeling lonely. Do not take a friend's comments to heart; listen carefully to what is being said. Your mood may seem a bit reckless.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not get upset if things do not seem to go your way. You have done your very best. Your daydreams may cloud life's realities. Romance is not as fulfilling as usual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A friend's behavior is erratic. You cannot rest until you understand the reason. The answer may be disappointing. Physical exercise allows you to view the world more clearly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Enjoy attending religious services with the family. Look forward to spending the rest of a carefree day with loved ones. Take time out to attend to children's needs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Enlarge your social circle to include some new and interesting acquaintances. This could be a good time for a heart-to-heart talk as rapport with a loved one is at an all-time high.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Solitude may provide valuable insight into the meaning of life. Avoid selfishness when it comes to love or you may be the one short-changed in the end.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Tact and understanding will help you overcome differences with associates. Attempt to reach a better understanding with your parents. Bonds of affection are strengthened.

Governor gets tanning bed back

Gov. Collins

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Martha Layne Collins took a lot of heat when state funds were used to buy a tanning bed for the governor's mansion, but she doesn't have to be red-faced when it's returned to the official residence.

Ms. Collins tried to get rid of the $8,250 Wolff System tanning bed at a state auction Thursday. But a group of legislators paid $8,500 to give it back to the Democratic governor.

Sen. Michael Moloney spearheaded the drive to buy the bed, which was first installed in the mansion in July.

Moloney said Collins did not know about the plan, and he refused to name the other contributors. He said the group decided to bid on the bed because it thought news coverage of the purchase had been "full of cheap shots."

Barbara Hadley Smith, the governor's press secretary, said Thursday that the governor was "a very gracious person, and I'm sure she will be happy to accept this very generous gift from these distinguished legislators."

"Some people had a lot of fun with this issue. I'm glad to put it behind me. The state has recovered its investment, plus a $250 profit," said Collins.

Queen Elizabeth

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip flew into London's Heathrow Airport Friday, smiling after a tumultuous 26-day tour to Nepal, New Zealand and Australia.

After landing, the monarch shook hands with the crew members of the Australian Air Force Boeing 747, which had flown the couple from Adelaide, Australia, by way of Singapore and Bahrain.

During the flight, the plane's internal lights were dimmed in the hope that the couple might see Halley's comet while in the Southern Hemisphere. But a crew member said it was thought the jet's trajectory did not permit a clear view.

Several incidents marred the royal couple's visit Down Under.

In New Zealand, the queen was hit by an egg, and one man bared his buttocks. In Australia, a feminist staged a bare-breasted protest, and two men tried to hose the queen with water.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Luis Valdez, who 20 years ago began a Chicano theater company that performed on a truck for farm workers, is emerging as an innovative playwright for a broad audience.

His best-known work, "Zoot Suit," was a hit in Los Angeles but not in New York. His latest play draws on two strikingly different themes: the quest by minorities for a piece of the American dream and the portrayal of life today as a television situation comedy.

"I Don't Have to Show You No Stinking Badges," which draws its title from a line in the Humphrey Bogart film "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," is a joint production by Valdez's El Teatro Campesino and the new downtown Los Angeles Theater Center.

Combining Chicano themes with a commercially appealing format has not been easy, says Valdez, a warm, energetic man with a ready smile.

"If this were 10 years ago, it would have been very difficult to reconcile. If this were 20 years ago, it would be impossible," he said. "It comes from a desire to reach the widest audience possible."

"Badges" has prompted some Chicanos to say Valdez has sold out.

"I've always been criticized as either being a sell-out or a communist," Valdez said. "As long as I'm getting it from two sides, I feel comfortable."

GREENCASTLE, Ind. (AP) — Soliciting President Reagan's help for the town's campaign for a better-equipped fire department has paid off — to the tune of $100.

Bonnie West, publicity director for the fund-raising campaign, wrote Reagan to tell him the community was seeking donations rather than federal funds.

She received a note this week from the president, along with a $100 check.

"Voluntarism is a precious heritage of this blessed land," Reagan wrote.

The president also noted that his father had been a volunteer firefighter in Dixon, Ill., when the president was a child.

The campaign, which has raised $218,000 of the nearly $400,000 needed to pay for a new aerial fire truck and training program, began after a fatal fire in a downtown furniture in September.

LONDON (AP) — Sir Huw Wheldon, former head of television at the British Broadcasting Corp. and a popular broadcaster who did a series of programs on Britain's royal family, died Friday, his family announced. He was 69.

No cause of death was announced.

The Welsh-born Wheldon joined the BBC press department in 1952 and moved into broadcasting with children's programs. His strong interest in the arts led to his appointment as head of documentaries before he was made controller of BBC-TV programs in 1965 and managing director — the top position — in 1968.

In overall charge, Wheldon turned the whole of the evening programming on the BBC's main channel back to front, putting light comedy early and more serious programs late — an enormously popular change.

He retired as managing director in 1975 but stayed on to host a series of programs on royalty which included appearances by Queen Elizabeth II, her husband Prince Philip and their son Prince Charles. Such royal appearances were unusual then, and Wheldon later explained that he had started to make a series of programs only about the royal family's homes but was able to expand it because the royalty were the only ones who could explain things.

Wheldon was knighted in 1978 for his services to television.

Survivors include his wife, novelist Jacqueline Wheldon, and three children.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Two Canadians have won the first major title at the 1986 spring North American Bridge Championships in Portland.

Drew Cannel and Ganerin Sekhar of Winnipeg, Manitoba, beat Dan Gerstman and Tom Donnelly of Buffalo, N.Y., on Thursday night for the Grand National Pairs VIII title.

The defeat dropped Gerstman and Donnelly to third in the competition behind second-place finishers Craig Cordes and Tom Daniel of Baton Rouge, La.

NEW YORK (AP) — The chairman of Scientific American Inc. said Friday that the general-interest science magazine is not for sale despite rumors that some of its holders want to dispose of it and that Time Inc. is interested in buying it.

"We are not for sale," said Gerard Piel. " ... These rumors have been floating around for years. In the fever of takeover and so forth, there's gossip all over town."

Tower quits because he's homesick for Texas

Tower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Sen. John Tower says he is quitting the Reagan administration's arms control negotiating team because he is homesick for Texas, wants to teach, make some money and get back into politics "at the grass-roots level."

At a news conference at the State Department upon his return from Geneva, the Texas Republican dismissed rumors of "personal reasons" for his resignation, which is effective April 1.

"I really am getting a little homesick and I want to get back to Texas and, too, I am anxious to get back to the classroom. That is my profession and one that I enjoyed and found very rewarding. So those are the reasons why and the only reasons why," Tower said.

A reporter asked Tower at the Thursday news conference if he and his wife were getting a divorce and, if so, if that played a part in his decision to quit the arms team after 13 months.

"I have no such plans in the first place," Tower said. "In the second place there are no personal considerations of that sort involved here."

There were also rumors that Tower wanted to have a hand in the GOP gubernatorial primary. Former Gov. Bill Clements, who was defeated by Democrat Mark White in 1982, former Democratic congressman Kent Hance and Republican Congressman Tom Loeffler are all vying for the chance to run against White this year.

"I learned a long time ago not to get involved in primary battles and I don't expect to get involved in this one," Tower said. "All three of the men that are running for governor (in the primary) in Texas are friends of mine, they're all well qualified."

Tower said, however, he would "probably get active again in Texas politics at the grass-roots level."

He also said he expected to travel the country speaking about arms control and that he is in "strong accord" with the administration's arms control policies.

The reasons Tower gave for leaving the arms talks were similar to the ones he gave when he announced he would not seek re-election to the Senate in 1984. He said he wants to pursue a business career and teach at Southern Methodist University in Dallas.

"I actually am simply doing what I said I was going to do back in August of 1983 when I announced my retirement from the Senate," Tower said. "I'm going to go back to Texas, I'm going to teach at Southern Methodist University and explore some business opportunities, and this is my reason."

As for business opportunities, Tower said there were several possibilities but he could not discuss them while still in public office because of conflict-of-interest restraints.

Tower said he would continue to maintain an office in Washington. He went to Texas Friday, said a secretary, and planned to teach a course on national security policy at SMU for one day on Monday.

Tower was elected to the Senate in 1961 when Lyndon Johnson became vice president. When the Senate changed to Republican control after the 1980 elections, Tower became chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

His announcement that he would not seek re-election surprised many political observers, even though he had only narrowly won re-election in 1978.

He left the Senate amid rumors he would be named secretary of defense, but Caspar Weinberger has never indicated he would leave that job.

Ex-energy banker now pumping iron

ARLINGTON (AP) — The oil industry's woes have produced an epochal change in David Denbina's life.

He's converting from a Dallas energy banker making more than $60,000 a year to a new, financially risky career as a bodybuilding trainer.

Denbina, 34, of Arlington, was among a massive group of employees laid off in November by struggling Dallas-based InterFirst Corp., which was reeling from large losses on energy loans.

He can attest to the fact that Arlington, despite its lack of energy related businesses, does not have an "oil-proof" economy.

It was Denbina's job to track oil prices and scrutinize petrochemical refineries and other energy businesses seeking bank loans. He had the technical background needed for the work — bachelor's and master's degrees in chemical engineering from Rice University and six years of engineering experience with Shell and Exxon.

But the sky fell on Nov. 12, a day Denbina remembers as "Black Tuesday." That's when he learned his job had been eliminated.

"Getting laid off is like being punched in the stomach," Denbina said. "You feel awfully vulnerable."

Despite sending his resume to 120 potential employers, Denbina has been unable to find a new job utilizing his energy economics and chemical engineering background.

"There's very few energy industry jobs at all," he said.

He has been doing part-time bank consulting work that he expects to provide only a temporary income. His wife, Yvonne, teaches part-time at a private school in Arlington.

Their income needs are substantial. They live in an attractive brick home in a high-income section of southwest Arlington. They have three young boys — Devon, 9; Blake, 8; and Adrian, 4.

Denbina wants "recession-proof" work that doesn't hinge on a boom-and-bust cycles of the oil industry. A heavily muscled 5-11 and 185 pounds, he hopes to make his longtime hobby of bodybuilding the basis for a lucrative new career.

He plans to become a personal trainer for men and women wanting to be taught bodybuilding, fitness and muscle toning on an individual basis in their homes. He already has bought new business cards, begun advertising and found two paying clients.

"This is real popular on the West Coast. It's real chic out there to have your own trainer," Denbina said.

He plans to charge $30 to $50 an hour.

"The clientele I'm trying to attract is pretty upscale...people who can afford this thing."

He also may hold group bodybuilding sessions at resort hotels and help people set up bodybuilding centers in their homes.

Denbina said his lifestyle has changed drastically. He now spends much of his time at home, performing domestic duties and taking care of his youngest son while his wife is at work.

Denbina related strongly to the movie "Mr. Mom," in which actor Michael Keaton plays a laid-off worker who turns homemaker while his wife takes a job to support their family.

"I went from a high-powered bank executive to washing laundry," Denbina said. "Mr. Mom really hit home."

For a sympathetic ear, Denbina need look no farther than his next-door neighbors, Jimmie Boozer, 43, and Lee Cooper, 38.

Recently, Boozer lost his job as a consultant in cost accounting for Pengo Industries, a struggling Fort Worth-based oil field services firm that has seen its total unemployment drop from 4,200 to 900 people since 1981. Boozer is now looking for work, but he's leery of taking another job in the oil industry.

People still holding jobs in oil "have got one eye on their desk and the other on the door," Boozer said.

Cooper, Denbina's other next-door neighbor, lost his job in November as a quality assurance engineer for Gearhart Industries, another financially-troubled Fort Worth oil field services company.

A good work record and strong educational credentials are no guarantee of continued employment in the oil industry, said Cooper, who has bachelor's and master's degrees in engineering.

"The way the industry is going, anybody in it is in jeopardy," said Cooper, who was jobless for two months before finding work at Bell Helicopter Textron.

Quake victim ready to go back to work

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Mexican doctor, seriously injured in last year's earthquake in Mexico City, says she is going back to her work after months of treatment and therapy.

Dr. Martha de los Angeles Torres, 26, was trapped more than six days in the rubble of General Hospital. She was in a residency program for anesthesiology at the hospital when the earthquake struck last September.

Rescuers spent 28 hours freeing her from the collapsed building and had to amputate her left leg to remove her.

She was admitted to Santa Rosa Medical Center last Jan. 18 suffering from acute depression and needing surgery to repair extensive damage to her right leg, doctors said.

Doctors with the Bexar County Medical Society who sponsored her treatment say her survival and recovery are nothing short of a miracle.

Since her arrival in San Antonio, she has been fitted with a prosthesis and has received physical therapy.

"When she arrived her she was physically and mentally defeated, totally depressed," said Dr. Jose Benavides, an internist who helped arrange for Ms. Torres to come to San Antonio for treatment.

Benavides is chairman of a campaign by the medical society to provide support to orphans and widows of the 114 physicians who died in the earthquake.

Ms. Torres is the seventh physician to undergo treatment in San Antonio following the quake. Six others were admitted for 20 days to Santa Rosa and Methodist hospitals last October.

At a news conference Thursday, Ms. Torres, speaking in Spanish through an interpretor, said she was unable to eat or sleep well when she came to San Antonio.

"At first, I had fears I was not going to be able to return to my career. But gradually, with the help of many people here, including my family, friends and physicians, I realized I could go back," she said.

Ms. Torres will be released next week to return to Mexico City, where she will resume her residency.

NASA planning flight schedule

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A top NASA official told the space agency's employees in a televised pep talk Friday that officials are planning to resume shuttle flights after a 12-month pause. Other NASA officials have said it may take as long as 18 months to two years before the shuttle flies again.

Dr. Raymond Colladay, chairman of a shuttle replanning task force, said his group was working with other federal agencies on a recommendation to President Reagan on what needs to be done "to restore launch capability."

However, a member of the presidential commission investigating the Jan. 28 explosion that destroyed the Challenger and killed its crew of seven said NASA will have to redesign a space shuttle booster joint, suspected as the cause of accident, before it launches another shuttle.

"There's no doubt whatsoever the design of that joint is hopeless," commission member Richard Feynman told The Huntsville Times on Thursday.

Feynman, a Nobel physicist from the California Institute of Technology, visited the Marshall Space Flight Center with three other commission members.

Stormy seas on Friday interrupted the search for vital Challenger wreckage, including more human remains, but sources reported the recovery of the space shuttle's flight recorders and some of its computers.

The instruments may tell investigators about the moments before and after the explosion that destroyed the spaceship and killed its seven crew members.

Colladay, associate administrator of space technology at NASA headquarters in Washington, said the replanning task force was working with the Department of Transportation, the Department of Defense and other federal agencies.

Once the shuttle starts to fly again, Colladay said, "we adopted a buildup rate of nine flights in the first year, 14 in the second, to a level of 18 flights per year with a three-orbiter fleet."

He emphasized that the 12-month moratorium was for "purposes of budget planning" with a view toward setting shuttle manifest priorities for military, planetary, science and commercial payloads.

In the televised lunchtime talk, clearly aimed at raising morale for NASA employees, Colladay said agency officials intend to conduct a series of similar communications so that employees would not have to rely on the media for news about the agency.

"Yes, the accident did stun us, that's to be expected, but it wasn't a mortal wound," Colladay said.

At the Kennedy Space Center, sources requesting anonymity said some of the crew compartment wreckage recovered over the past few days included pieces of the astronauts' seats, a treadmill used by the crew for exercising in space and two space suits carried along for possible use in space walks.

The items were brought in late Wednesday along with some human remains by the Navy salvage ship Preserver, the sources said.

Weather conditions in the Atlantic Ocean recovery area were so poor on Friday that they "pretty much obliterated any chance" for diving or photography of underwater debris of the crew cabin and rocket boosters, said NASA spokswoman Andrea Shea.

"We're bringing everybody in until the weather clears," she said, referring to the fleet of 12 surface ships and submarines working the 351-square-mile search area.

Winds were reported gusting up to 40 mph, seas were 6 to 8 feet high and there was intermittently heavy rain.

NASA officials refused to comment on the recovery of the astronauts' remains.

Yeager says flights could resume

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Space shuttle flights could safely resume immediately in warm weather, because cold appears to be the chief cause of the Challenger disaster, Air Force Gen. Chuck Yeager declared Friday.

Yeager, the test pilot and author of a best-selling autobiography, told a news conference that "the accident will actually make the shuttle safer than before the accident" because of the problems uncovered by investigators.

Yeager is a member of the presidential commission investigating the Jan. 28 explosion that killed the seven Challenger crew members. However, he said he has had a busy business schedule and has attended only two meetings of the commission, both closed sessions.

The news conference was held following a speech Yeager delivered to the Adcraft Club of Detroit, an advertising trade group.

He said it appeared that sub-freezing temperatures caused the failure of an O-ring seal on the right solid rocket booster, leading to the shuttle explosion, Yeager said.

"They got caught with temperature and with lack of communication" that cold was a problem, Yeager said, and there would be no reason not to "fly again tomorrow" in warm weather.

"I don't see the accident by the space shuttle any differently" than the crash of a military or commercial flight, Yeager said. All are tragic but also bring problems to the surface that otherwise would remain hidden, he said.

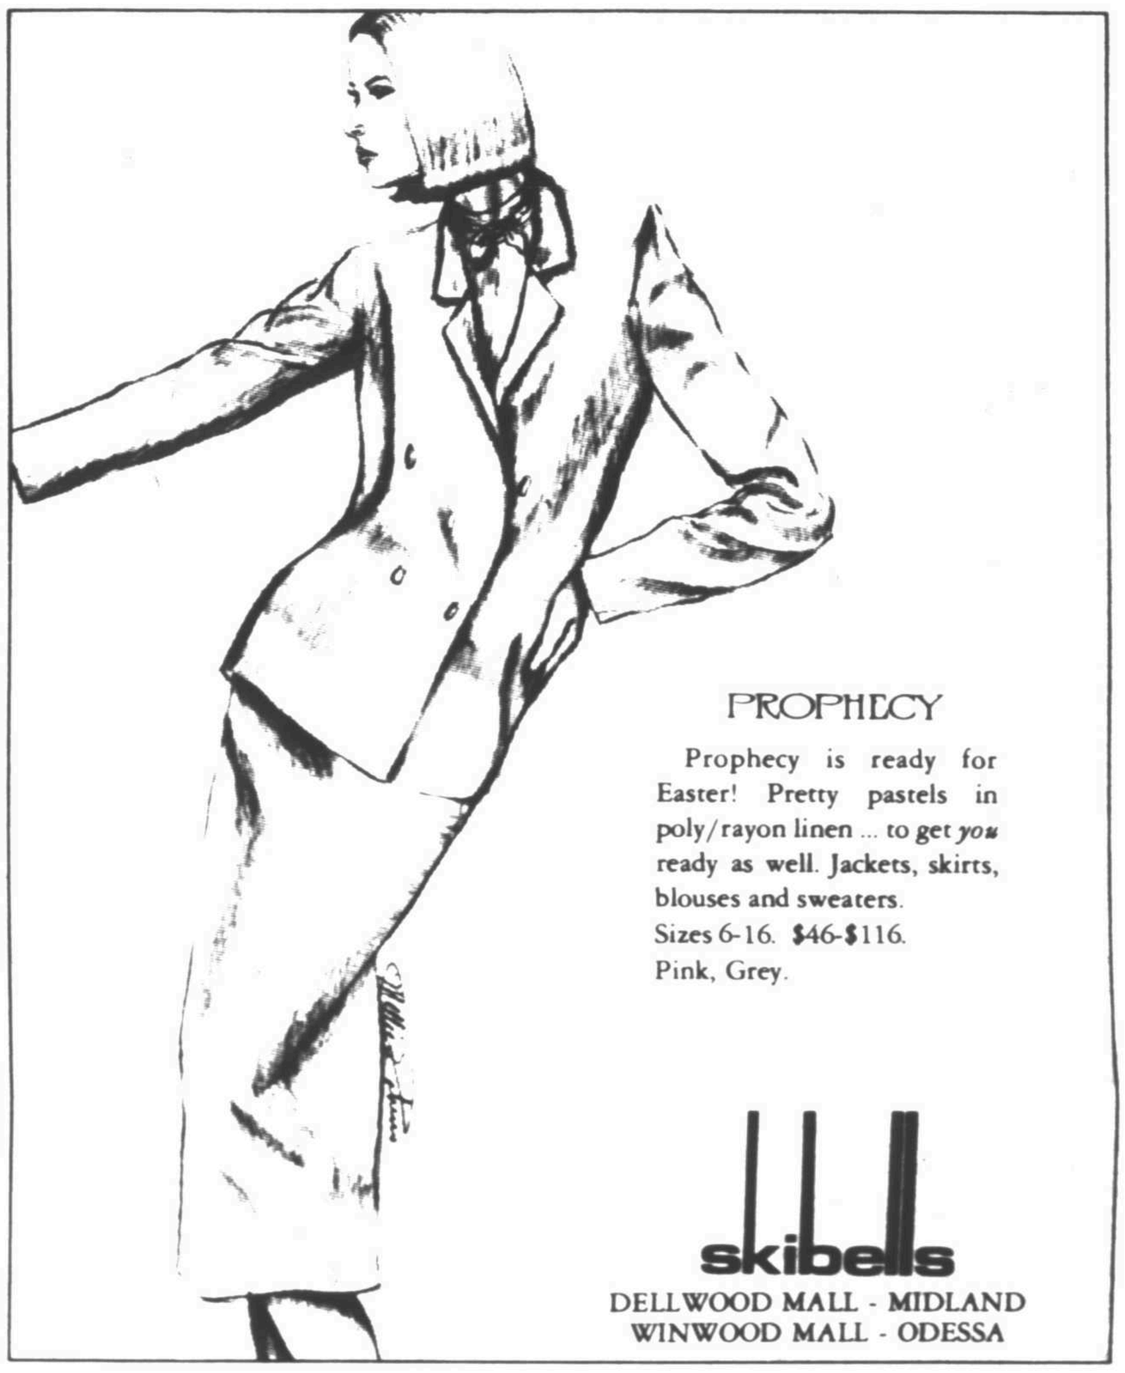

"Like with the shuttle accident, an accident brings people out of the woodwork and they say a lot of words, many of them meaningless," he said, but he added later, "the system will be a lot better off after this investigation is over."

Gunman surrenders after police shoots out jet tire

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A man put a gun to a co-pilot's head aboard an otherwise-empty Delta Air Lines jet Friday and ordered him to take off, but police shot out a tire on the plane and the gunman surrendered, police said.

The suspect gave himself up to the co-pilot aboard the DC-9, said Delta spokesman Jim Ewing in Atlanta.

The man, Martin Earl Mitchell, 30, of Daytona Beach, was armed with a .25-caliber revolver and would be charged with air piracy, said FBI spokesman Dave Stark in Jacksonville.

The man rushed aboard the plane, Flight 655, after all passengers had gotten off when it landed at Daytona Beach Regional Airport from Atlanta, authorities said.

He then ordered all crew members except the co-pilot off the plane during the 30-minute incident, Stark said.

A hostage negotiator from the sheriff's department talked to the gunman from the airport's control tower, authorities added.

The plane had begun taxiing to a runway for takeoff when the rear tire was shot out, sheriff's deputies said.

The man was turned over to the FBI at about 3:30 p.m. EST, said Volusia County Sheriff's Sgt. Linda Hudson.

"He was holding a gun to the pilot's head and was forcing him to take off," she said. She said she didn't know where the man wanted to go.

There were conflicting reports about how the suspect got aboard the plane.

Aquino meets IMF officials to discuss Philippine economy

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino met Friday with International Monetary Fund officials to discuss ways of reviving the Philippine economy, while efforts continued to determine what ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos did with billions of dollars in government funds.

The government said Hubert Neiss, deputy chief of IMF's Asia division, assured Mrs. Aquino of the agency's "continued interest in the economic recovery of the Philippines."

Details of the meeting, also attended by the finance minister and Central Bank governor, were not released.

Mrs. Aquino's administration has said it plans to renegotiate a 1984 IMF financial rescue package. Marcos had failed to meet the IMF's requirement that he cut government spending and break up business monopolies given to his friends in exchange for rescheduling part of the country's $26-million foreign debt.

For the second day, hundreds of Manila's slum dwellers toured the presidential palace to view evidence of their former rulers' high living.

Mrs. Aquino told one group of visitors that after seeing the palace, "I think you will understand why our country went the way it did."

In another part of the palace, security guards tried in vain to maintain order as thousands of people climbed over fences onto the grounds. One stunned volunteer guide said, "Yesterday was bad, but it was nothing like this."

Some people fainted in the crush, and others burst into tears. No serious injuries were reported, however.

"This is why we're scratching for a living," one woman said when she saw several fur coats that belonged to former first lady Imelda Marcos. Racks of designer clothing filled a storeroom in the marble-floored palace basement.

Meanwhile, a government official said the bank accounts of 21 more Marcos associates had been frozen as of Thursday and Friday. The accounts of Marcos, his wife and 31 associates were frozen Wednesday.

Mary Concepcion Bautista, a member of the new Commission on Good Government, said the action was necessary to prevent the flow of more funds overseas before the government can investigate their owners.

The commission is investigating charges that Marcos and his friends illegally diverted up to $10 billion from government and corporate assets to personal investments overseas.

The Philippine News Agency said the national constabulary had recovered $4.2 million in raids during the past two weeks at the homes of unidentified Marcos associates. The Commission on Good Government said earlier it authorized some raids.

The new government's chief auditor, Teofisto Guingona, disclosed Friday that former Manila airport manager Luis Tabuena issued himself checks totaling $2.75 million from airport revenues last January.

Guingona showed reporters memoranda signed by Tabuena saying the money would be used to pay the construction company that built the airport. But Guingona also showed a copy of a letter from the company saying it never received the money.

Guingona would not say how the money was used.

Brazilians trying to beat inflation

By KIM CONROY
Associated Press

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — In supermarkets, boutiques and department stores throughout Brazil, shoppers with pocket calculators and government-issued price lists are forcing store managers to comply with mandatory price controls.

Some store owners who thought the consumer brigades were kidding wound up in jail, after adamant customers — often sporting "I am the president's watchdog" buttons — called police.

President Jose Sarney in February ordered sweeping economic changes in Latin America's largest country, saying Brazil could not tolerate 255 percent inflation, the worst in its history.

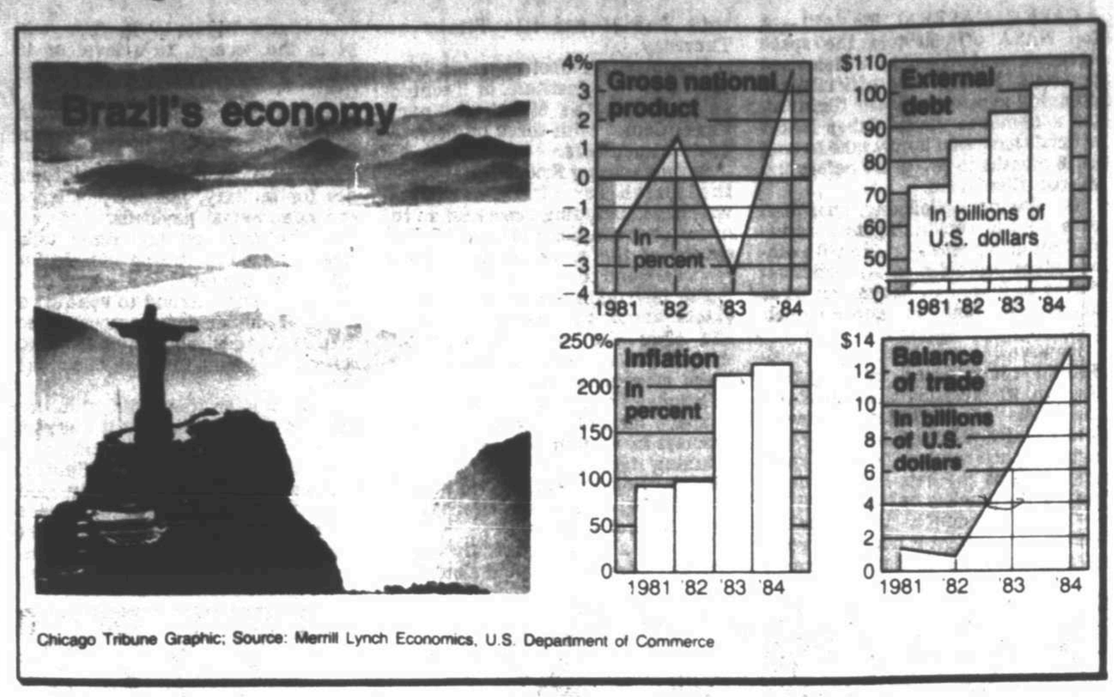

He created a new currency, the cruzado; froze prices and wages; eliminated most cost-of-living adjustments from the economy, and said that henceforth inflation would be "zero."

The chief executive then invited each of Brazil's 138 million inhabitants to be his "fiscal," a Portuguese word meaning a police-type official inspector, or watchdog.

"The popular reaction to the president's address is unlike anything I've ever seen before," said Antonio Carlos Porto Goncalves, an economist at the Getulio Vargas Foundation, a Rio-based think tank. "Overnight, a mass sense of civic duty has blossomed."

After decades of two-digit inflation, and annual rates surpassing 200 percent for the last three years, prices took off again last December, leading many economists here to fear this year's inflation rate might hit 500 percent.

To diminish inflation's devastating impact on Brazilians' standard of living, the government since 1965 had "indexed" the economy, granting automatic increases of prices, wages, rents, mortgages and financial paper according to a cost-of-living index. This complex system, however, was accused of fueling inflation.

Chicago Tribune Graphic; Source: Merrill Lynch Economics, U.S. Department of Commerce

Sarney simply brought the whole unwieldy mechanism to a halt.

The minimum wage was raised slightly and then frozen at 800 cruzados, or about $58 a month. Seventy percent of Brazilian workers make from one to three times the minimum wage.

Rents and mortgages were frozen. Most importantly, for the average citizen, the government froze retail prices for hundreds of household items people had been buying at daily escalating prices.

A pound of black beans, a basic food, now is the equivalent of 26 cents. A pound of chicken is 49 cents. A liter (slightly more than a quart) of milk is 20 cents.

Store owners who disregarded these prices found themselves being denounced to the police by irate shoppers, pushed into squad cars and fingerprinted at the local precinct house.

In some cases, victorious consumers sang the national anthem as they saw the law being upheld, in recognition that Sarney's administration, which took office last year, is Brazil's first civilian government since 1964.

There were cases of violence during the first few days of the new economic system, with angry customers wrecking stores and lunch counters that illegally raised prices. But that soon stopped, and the prices went back to where they were supposed to be.

The government halted daily devaluations of the old currency, the cruzeiro, and said the cruzado, worth 1,000 cruzeiros, would be a "strong" monetary unit. The black-market rate for U.S. dollars shot up the day of Sarney's decrees but later dropped to only slightly above the frozen cruzado rate of 13.84 per dollar.

There were complaints. The automobile, steel and pharmaceutical industries said government approval of inflation-correcting price increases was in the works just before the new economic measures were announced. Now with the freeze, these businesses say they will be hurt unfairly.

Small stores argued they should be treated differently from huge supermarkets and department stores, which can buy in bulk, at lower wholesale prices.

Labor unions, now free of the repression that marked the past military regimes, said workers would lose under an indefinite wage freeze. The government indicated that if minor inflation occurs again, workers probably will get some cost-of-living adjustment.

Foreign bankers negotiating rescheduling of Brazil's $103-billion foreign debt, the Third World's highest, seemed pleased with the new economic measures and conceded a reduction in the interest rate on Brazilian debt payments.

Judge orders tight control over funeral of alleged guerrillas

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A judge ordered tight controls on the funeral today of seven alleged guerrillas killed by police, reflecting the government's fear that it would become a violent anti-apartheid protest.

Magistrate W.P. Theron on Friday banned pamphlets, placards, flags and speeches by anyone other than an ordained minister at the outdoor funeral for the seven blacks in Guguletu township near Cape Town. The men were killed two weeks ago in Guguletu.

Police say they died in a shootout with officers, and headquarters in Pretoria said claims by witnesses that two were shot dead after surrendering were under investigation.

In other developments:

—A West German television correspondent said he was ordered out of the country without explanation.

—Police said they fired on rioters stoning a bus in in the KaNgwane black homeland, killing a black man. Two blacks were killed and 81 wounded earlier this week when police fired on a crowd in a township adjacent to the homeland on the eastern border with Mozambique.

—The government said withdrawal of investment from South Africa could slow racial reform. A leading industrialist said the campaign for disinvestment had become "a serious force."

—A visiting U.S. official said the United States "will not stand idly by as the Soviets strangle Angola."

Albrecht Heise, who works for the West German television network ZDF and arrived here in October, said the government ordered him out within seven days. He said the Home Ministry gave no reason, but he believed his "critical reporting" was to blame.

Heise said his three-month work permit expired in January. He said he had been promised a renewal but later was told it would not be forthcoming and he must leave.

Three CBS journalists were ordered expelled last week on grounds that they filmed and broadcast a funeral in defiance of a ban on cameras, but the decision was reversed.

South Africa's minister of constitutional development, Chris Heunis, said South Africa's plans for reforming its racially segregated economy were costly and that withdrawal of foreign investment would threaten them.

"We need money in order to attain our respective and joint goals. Therefore, we must fight against disinvestment with all our powers," he said in a speech to the parliament of Gazankulu, a black tribal homeland.

He claimed disinvestment could deprive 700,000 South Africans of jobs, adding that most of them would be blacks.

Harry Oppenheimer, former chairman of Anglo-American Corp., South Africa's largest conglomerate in South Africa, said the drive for disinvestment has become "a serious force," increasing global pressure "to a level never before experienced." He spoke to the South African Institute of International Affairs, of which he is chairman.

Heunis listed these reforms to be passed by Parliament before June 16:

—Restoring South African citizenship to blacks who lost it when they were made citizens of nominally independent homelands.

—Extending the powers of the homelands.

—Granting blacks rights of property ownership and easing restrictions on their right to do business in white areas.

—Providing a uniform identity document for all races and abolishing "pass laws" that restrict the movement of blacks in white areas.

Anti-apartheid campaigners say the measures are not enough because they do not give blacks the right to vote or abolish apartheid in key areas such as schools and residential areas.

Violent opposition has raged for 18 months against apartheid, the race laws that preserve supremacy for South Africa's 5 million whites in a nation of 24 million blacks. Almost 1,300 people have been killed, nearly all of them black.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Bomb on bus kills eight people, radio reports

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The Afghan government said Friday that a bomb planted by Islamic guerrillas exploded on a bus in the city of Herat, killing eight people and injuring nine others.

The bombing occurred Wednesday, according to government station Radio Kabul. It said all the casualties were civilians, including women and children.

Afghanistan's communist government is fighting a nationwide insurgency by Islamic guerrillas. The Afghan regime is supported by an estimated 115,000 Soviet soldiers.

Radio Kabul denounced the guerrillas as "counter-revolutionaries" and the "wildest kind of criminals" and charged that the United States and neighboring Pakistan were behind the attack. The United States, Pakistan and other nations support the guerrillas.

Charges made against Iraq

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Iraq has used chemical weapons against Iran, the United Nations chief charged Friday. It was the first time the United Nations has blamed Iraq by name for using poison gas in the six-year-old Persian Gulf war.

Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, in a note to the Security Council, cited a report by four experts in chemical warfare who visited Iran Feb. 26 to March 3. The experts concluded that "on many occasions, Iraqi forces have used chemical weapons against Iranian forces."

Perez de Cuellar said he "strongly condemns the use of chemical weapons wherever and whenever this may occur" and that case is in violation of the Geneva Protocol of 1925 outlawing chemical warfare.

The experts concluded mustard gas was delivered in Iraqi bombing attacks on the Iranian city of Abadan and on Iranian military positions in southern Iraq. They said they found traces of the gas in bomb craters around Abadan.

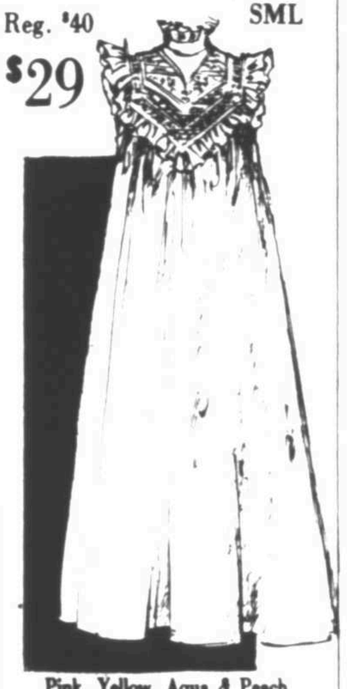

Party congress to start

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist Party central committee said Friday the 10th party congress will begin June 29, the official PAP news agency said.

Jerzy Majka, a party spokesman, told a news conference that the length of the congress had not been decided, but he said in the past they have lasted between six and eight days.

The Sun

The Sun is a rotating nuclear furnace consisting mostly of hydrogen and helium. This star serves as the gravitational center, controlling orbits of Earth, as well as other planets, asteroids and comets such as Halley.

Solar prominence: Associated with sunspots, these huge arching streams of gas affect Earth's magnetic field, atmosphere and possibly its weather.

Radiative zone: Here in the middle third of the Sun, the temperature is about 4,500,000° F and the gases are about as dense as water.

Sunspots: Lasting for weeks at a time, dark spots develop in the Sun's photosphere. These magnetic disturbances, appearing darker because they are cooler, occur in regular 11-year cycles.

Core: At the Sun's center, where nuclear reactions produce its light and heat, temperature rises to 27,000,000° F. Core is 100 times more dense than water but is still gaseous.

Convection zone: The gases undergo violent churning motions called convections and turbulence. Temperature is 2,000,000° F; density a 10th that of water.

Photosphere: This is the Sun's visible surface that is 340 miles thick with a temperature of about 10,000° F. The photosphere is also the innermost region of the Sun's atmosphere.

Chromosphere: Rising to 6,000 miles above the photosphere, constant agitation creates spicules—spikes of high-temperature gases that shoot into the corona up at great speeds.

Corona: The outer region of Sun's atmosphere that is visible from Earth only during a total eclipse.

PUBLIC NOTICE
S. Ellis, Midland, Texas will file application with the Texas Water Commission on or about March 17, 1986 for a permit to authorize the construction and maintenance of a dam and reservoir on an unnamed tributary of Midland Draw, tributary of Midland Draw, tributary of Colorado River, Colorado River Basin in Midland County, Texas. The dam will be located approximately 2 miles northeast of the intersection of Farm Road 1788 and Interstate Highway 20 in Midland County, Texas. The reservoir will have a surface area of 10 acres at normal maximum operating level and will impound approximately 100 acre-feet of water. The purpose of the reservoir is recreation. Any person who may be affected by the granting of the permit may request a hearing. Requests must be in writing and must state the name and address of the person making the request, the location and distance of his property from the reservoir, and specific reasons why the person is affected by the granting of the permit. Requests must be submitted to the Texas Water Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711 within 30 days after the date of this notice. If a hearing is held, it will be held in Austin, Texas. Persons who do not request a hearing may submit written comments on the proposed permit. Comments should be submitted to the Texas Water Commission at the address given above. All comments received before the close of the public comment period will be considered by the Commission at the hearing or in acting on this proposed permit. The purpose of this hearing is to receive comments and answer questions regarding the proposal to list and designate critical habitat for the Concho water snake. Comments and information submitted at this hearing will help determine whether or not the Concho water snake should be listed as threatened and may be considered in the final rule in support that position. Listing decisions are made on strictly biological grounds, as required by the Endangered Species Act. Designation of critical habitat considers economic as well as biological information. Economic information includes the effects of designating the critical habitat on economic activity.
The Concho water snake is found in the Colorado and Concho Rivers in west-central Texas. It is presently found in 299 miles of those rivers with the majority of the snakes concentrated in only 105 miles of that range. Twenty-eight percent of this snake's historic range has already been destroyed by dam and reservoir construction and water diversion. The limited range, low numbers, and narrow habitat requirements of this rifle-dwelling snake make it vulnerable to further habitat loss from proposed water development projects. Critical habitat is proposed for 131 miles of the Colorado and Concho Rivers in Runnels, Coleman, Concho, McCulloch, and Coleman Counties, Texas.
If this proposal is made final, the Concho water snake would receive the full protection of the Endangered Species Act, which prohibits Federal agencies from funding, authorizing, or carrying out actions that would jeopardize the survival of a listed species, or would destroy or adversely modify its critical habitat. Also prohibited would be taking, commerce, import, and export of this snake.
March 15, 1986

Lease this 1986 Audi 5000S for $279.98* a month.

Most astute people would rather put their money in stocks, bonds or municipals funds than in a car. We can appreciate that. That's why we're offering an exceptional alternative to buying. Consider this 1986 Audi 5000S. Consider too, the impressive list of standard features, cruise control, power windows and door locks, and electronic climate control system, plus the lease price includes a AM/FM stereo cassette and automatic transmission. Come in for lease details, and a test drive, you can lease this 1986 Audi 5000S for $330.18 a month. And feel comfortable about being comfortable.

*This offer is available only from a participating Audi Leasing dealer on a 60-month closed-end lease through March 31, 1986. No purchase option. No down payment is required; 1st month $279.98 payment and $350.00 security deposit are required in advance. Monthly payments are based on manufacturer suggested retail price plus applicable taxes extended by VCI Leasing. Total lease payments $16,798.80 plus 10¢ per mile over 75,000. Registration fees, taxes, options additional.

LET'S TALK REAL ESTATE

Thank you, ARCO, Marathon, and other Coporate transferees... for sharing with us many fine compliments on our sales associates. You have described Langston Monarch agents as "professional", "unhurried", "friendly", "helpful" and most of all, "totally committed" to successfully solving your housing needs, whether rental or purchase.
We are well aware that no transfer is accomplished without a great deal of stress. That is why our services are given with much calmness, empathy and understanding. We ourselves cannot tolerate high pressure salesmanship; therefore have never condoned it among Langston Monarch Associates.
Again, thank you for contributing to our city with your presence and business, and for giving Langston Monarch your trust and compliments.
We promise to continue offering the same easy, effective service that you expect and appreciate and that has earned our reputation as Midland's leading, most respected REALTOR.

Joanne Langston
