Midland, Odessa media coalition pushes for unity

In order to encourage greater cooperation between residents and leaders of Midland and Odessa, the newly formed Permian Basin Media Coalition will donate $1 million in free advertising space, time and production in a 1984 campaign to be initiated in early February.

The announcement was made today by Bob Russell, general manager of KOZA Radio and chairman of the coalition's marketing committee.

Comprising the coalition are each newspaper, magazine, television station, radio station and outdoor advertising company in Midland-Odessa. It was established in response to concerns expressed informally by Texas Instruments plant manager Jim Watson to a group of media executives. Several newspaper and broadcast executives met in early October to address the issue of dealing with perceived problems and finding solutions. The donation climaxed subsequent research into the matter.

"I am confident that this media effort will be the catalyst bringing our communities together for the betterment of the entire region," said George B. Irish, president and publisher of the Midland Reporter-Telegram. "As a newspaper, we have been committed editorially and financially to the unity of our communities and we are pleased to join with the media of Midland and Odessa in this effort."

In noting that the campaign represents an "amazing feat of cooperation" among competitive media, Russell said "we want to compliment our colleagues in the print and broadcast media and our advertising agency friends for responding so vigorously."

The coalition's marketing committee had invited several local advertising agencey executives to address the assignment of creating a campaign. As a result, an ad hoc group of advertising professionals from several agencies have formed The Bridge Company, an agency donating services to the project.

The research was conducted voluntarily by Marketing Research Consultants of Odessa. MRS president Peggy Petton designed the survey and her firm conducted 207 interviews at shopping malls and among business leaders at service club meetings. "Most people were very cooperative," she said. "The general comment was 'Good for you — I hope this will help.'"

Survey results revealed a positive attitude. When asked to respond to the statement "Midland and Odessa can work together to become a united community for industrial growth and prosperity," 67.7 percent said they "definitely" agreed and another 21.2 percent said "I think I agree." Less than eight percent disagreed and 3.9l percent had no opinion.

Respondants were asked to state what they considered to be the greatest single problem existing between Midland and Odessa, and what single area provides the greatest opportunity for bridging these problems. In addition to un-aided open-ended questions, those interviewed also were asked to check one of seven terms they felt might describe each city.

A ranking of problem areas showed the top three issues to be "image of blue versus white collar towns," "image of affluent versus non-affluent towns," and "old-timers continue to feud." Some issues receiving much news media coverage ranked much lower than anticipated by Coalition members. The Ridgewood School controversy between the Midland Independent School District and Ector County ranked eighth, renaming Air Terminal some years ago ranked ninth, and the junior college tax issue, 10th.

In ranking bridge areas to build cooperation, respondants ranked "the need for industrial diversification" as number one. "Future water needs" and "energy" ranked second and third. The media itself was seen as a bridge, and ranked fifth, after "education system."

"We see the general public as more hopeful and of a more cooperative spirit than perhaps we would have guessed," noted Russell. "We have an oportunity to build on this spirit, and hopefully, our community leaders will join us in building bridges."

Look! It snowed

The two inches of white, fluffy wrapping delivered by Mother Nature to the Tall City overnight was successfully met by waiting city officials, despite the cries of surprise and delight uttered by many unsuspecting Midlanders who faced an early White Christmas.

The snow present may be the last for at least the next five days, said Bob Cooper, weather service specialist at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

"We're looking at just one day right now, but we may have a little more before Christmas," Cooper said.

You never can tell what snowy surprises Santa Claus may send.

Whatever they are, Midland city, school and airport officials will be prepared as they were this morning.

MISD trustees vote to purchase land for future schools

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

Midland school trustees voted unanimously this morning to purchase 30 acres of land west of Midland as future sites for an elementary and junior high school.

The district will pay $525,000, or $17,500 per acre, for the land located west of Loop 250, north of Andrews Highway and south of Wadley Avenue. The site was purchased from Scharbauer Brothers & Co., who will also act as developer of the area.

The area is about to be annexed into the City of Midland, according to Superintendent Dr. Joe Baressi. The district agreed to pay an additional $207,000 or half the cost of street, water and sewer installation, whichever is less.

Plans call for the second of two elementary schools approved in the 1982 bond election to be constructed on 10 acres and a fourth junior high school to be built on the remaining 20. The campuses will be separated by a five-acre plot where the city may construct a park, Baressi said.

The motion called for putting down a $60,000 deposit toward the purchase. Funding will come from the 1982 bond election, which also authorized the purchase of future school sites.

Board president Bill Jackson said negtiations for the purchase have been going on for six months to a year. About two years ago the board was negotiating for a site near the Greentree area northwest of town. The owner offered to sell at $15,000 an acre, but the board didn't feel it was worth that price. Baressi said although this land is more expensive, it is in a better location and much better suited for the purpose.

Plans and specifications for the elementary school should be submitted to bidders in April, a bid is expected to be awarded in May, and construction should begin in June, Baressi explained. The school, which will hold 600 to 650 students, is expected to open in the fall of 1985. It will be the last of four elementary schools approved in the 1981 and 1982 bond elections. DeZavala, Parker and Santa Rita are already completed and in use.

Another junior high school, although not yet approved by voters, will probably have to be built in six to eight years, trustees predict. Baressi said it is not uncommon to purchase sites before the school has been approved.

"The district bought the sites for Santa Rita and Parker 20 to 30 years ago," he said. "The hope is, by working with the city, we can project the areas of growth and buy sites ahead of time so we don't have to pay a real high land cost."

The district owns four other parcels of land that may be used to build schools in the future.

'Ask the FDIC' begins Sunday

Midland and area residents who have questions or complaints concernng First National Bank liquidation procedures and the role of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) will have their own format in the Reporter-Telegram beginning Sunday.

With the cooperation of Thomas R. Procopio, FDIC liquidator in charge in Midland, "Ask the FDIC" will be published each Sunday in the Business-Energy Section.

Questions concerning the FDIC's policies and procedures should be mailed to: Ask the FDIC, Business-Energy Department, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, Texas 79702. It is not necessary for them to be signed.

Troops recapture Salvadoran base

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Government troops retook a strategic army base on an eastern volcano, but fighting persisted in the area as army units pursued rebels with artillery, warplanes and helicopters, military sources said.

The sources, who requested anonymity for security reasons, said Thursday they had no further details on the battle at Cacahuatique Volcano, a 5,000-foot peak 100 miles northwest of San Salvador.

The volcano has served as a launching base for rebel attacks on the Morazan province capital of San Francisco Gotera, 10 miles to the east. The area north of the city is a stronghold for the leftist rebels waging a four-year war to topple the U.S.-backed rightist government.

About 1,000 rebels seized the peak Wednesday and the army launched a heavy counterattack early Thursday. The guerrillas said they killed 60 government troops, wounded 75 and captured nine. Fourteen rebels were reported killed.

The Defense Ministry only confirmed that 44 soldiers were missing.

In the capital, the Constituent Assembly approved a new constitution Thursday night, ending a 20-month job of writing the new document which will be formally presented Tuesday to interim President Alvaro Magana.

The new document — El Salvador's 36th since 1824 — closely resembles the 1962 constitution, although it strengthens slightly the legislative and judicial branches at the expense of the executive. The 1962 constitution was suspended following the 1979 military coup that deposed Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero.

It also includes safeguards for a controversial U.S.-financed agrarian reform program started in March 1980, although it sharply reduces the amount of land available for future distribution among poor peasants.

The 60-member assembly will continue as the country's provisional legislature until national elections are held, probably in March 1985.

Meanwhile, sources in Washington said Thursday a secret report concluded Defense Minister Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova probably helped cover up the 1980 murders of four American churchwomen until U.S. pressure forced authorities to arrest five national guardsmen.

The four churchwomen — Sisters Ita Ford, Maura Clarke, Dorothy Kazel and Catholic layworker Jean Donovan — were killed on Dec. 2, 1980. Vides Casanova, who headed the national guard until he became defense minister in April, had no immediate comment on the report.

The report prepared for the State Department concludes there is strong evidence the five guardsmen, now awaiting trial, are guilty of the murder, according to the sources. It found no significant evidence that higher-ups ordered the murders.

One source said the report found it "quite probable that Vides Casanova knew what happened and was part and parcel of the cover-up."

The Reagan administration is pressuring the government to crack down on the rightist death squads, blamed for about 39,000 civilian deaths during the civil war. In an apparent response, Vides Casanova earlier this month urged Salvadorans to "pursue and denounce" the squads, widely believed to include members of the Salvadoran security forces and the national guard.

In a letter to Magana, President Reagan warned further U.S. military aid will be cut off if action is not taken against the death squads. Knowledgeable sources, who spoke on condition they were not named, said Vice President George Bush delivered the letter Sunday.

Midland area surprised by season's first snowfall

Beginning at 3:45 a.m., airport personnel were called in to begin clearing the runways of the two inches of flakes which fell continuously from about 11 p.m. Thursday through 5 a.m. today.

"Surprisingly, we're doing rather well," director of aviation Victor White said. "As you know, we don't have any official snow-removal equipment here."

Instead, personnel relied on driving maintenance, police department, airline and airport vehicles up and down the runway to melt the snow.

"The main north-south runway had less than a half inch within two hours," White said. The first scheduled departure left at 6:15 a.m., reporting fair runway conditions.

But by 7:15 a.m., the first arrival, Frontier's flight from Abilene, landed in what it called poor conditions. An official inspection followed and reports of an eighth of an inch of solid ice covering the strip were issued.

"It's very slick," White said, adding that airlines continued to fly. However, at about 9 a.m., he received word that Muse airlines was cancelling flights into Midland.

By the next snowfall, White said he and all eight airlines that serve the area hope to have some sort of defense in keeping the runways clear. He plans to submit a proposal on financing snow-clearing equipment through federal funds and user fees to the city council at their next meeting.

Meanwhile, city employees were out spreading brine water on major thoroughfares, intersections and railroad crossings beginning at 2 a.m.

"We had to get it before the traffic hits us around 7 a.m.," Apolinar Lara, street superintendent, said.

And Wes Washman, director of transportation for the Midland Independent School District, reported the "best team effort that we've ever had."

Roads were checked at 4:30 a.m. and the buses were warmed up, cleaned off and ready for the drivers, who were also called in early. Slower driving was recommended as a safety precaution and only two buses were stranded with drained batteries, due to the excessive use of defrosters.

"Overall, it went pretty smooth," Washam said.

The two inches aren't unusual for Midland this time of the year, according to Cooper. Average snowfalls show a trace of snow in October, 7.2 inches in November, 4.8 in December and 7.7 inches in January as normal.

Record amounts of snow recorded in a 24-hour period were 6.8 inches in January 1949, 5.7 inches in November 1980, and 5 inches in March 1970.

Tonight should be clear and cold with Saturday bringing partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures. The overnight low should drop into the middle 20s with a high on Saturday reaching into the middle 50s. Light and variable winds tonight will shift southerly at 10-15 mph Saturday.

Thursday's high of 66 was 10 degrees below the record high of 76, set in 1977. The overnight low of 24 missed the record low of 15, set in 1972, by 9 degrees.

Partly cloudy Saturday with a slight chance of showers. Lows tonight 30s north to 40s south. Highs Saturday mostly in 50s except mid-40s north.

Pathologist declines comment

From Staff Reports

The Midland pilot who died in a Nov. 26 plane crash with seven other area people apparently suffered a form of heart attack some time before the accident, according to a Dallas forensic pathologist. But without seeing the full report Dr. P.E. Besant-Matthews said he could not determine whether he died from the heart problem or the impact of the crash.

The autopsy of Keith Elkin was received by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine today and released to the public.

Dr. David Shneidman, the pathologist performing the autopsy, refused to comment on the matter, his receptionist said after the autopsy was released. Neither would any of the four Midland pathologists, who share offices with Shneidman. Pine said he didn't have the medical knowledge to interpret its findings.

The final diagnosis indicated Elkin suffered a form of heart attack, injury from the impact and extensive third-degrees burns after death. Shneidman would not comment if Elkin died before the impact.

Besant-Matthews of the Institute of Forensic Sciences in Dallas said, however, the findings indicated Elkin's body was responding to a previously-suffered heart trauma. The type of heart failure Elkin suffered was the result of a physical defect and could not be caused by the realization the plane was about to crash, a Midland cardiologist said.

Also killed in the crash were six employees of KOSA-TV in Odessa and one of the men's relatives.

Police say Lucas role not likely

From Staff Reports

Midland police doubt that admitted murderer Henry Lee Lucas was involved in the disappearance of Kristy Booth or the murder of a westside man who was found stabbed to death in his apartment a year ago this month.

"At the present time we do not feel he will be helpful in either one of those cases," Det. Capt. Billy Ray said this morning.

Lucas was flown to the Permian Basin from Georgetown about 8:30 a.m. Thursday. He was questioned by local law enforcement authorities and was also taken on a helicopter tour to see if he could help unravel "one set of leads," said Captain Maurice Cook of the Texas Rangers.

"Leads are being checked to see if we can come up with a solution to some of these cases," Cook added.

A spokesman for the Odessa Police Department said he did not think Lucas would be involved in any cases there either.

Ms. Booth was 19 years old when she disappeared from a local nightspot Feb. 2, 1980, leaving her coat and shoes behind.

The murder victim, Donald Allen, in his 50s, was found in his apartment in the 4300 block of Andrews Highway in December 1980.

Lucas was returned to Georgetown about 10 p.m. Thursday.

Arriving in Lansing, Mich., Thursday after 3½ years spent canoeing the rivers of the United States are Verlen Kruger, foreground, and Steven Landick.

Men finish 3½-year canoe tour of nation

By JEFF MAYERS
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. — Jenny Kruger remembers when her husband Verlen first mentioned the idea of seeing the North American continent via canoe.

"I said 'You've got to be kidding,'" Mrs. Kruger said Thursday, shortly before her 61-year-old husband and 31-year-old Steven Landick completed their 28,043-mile, 3½-year canoe odyssey at the state capital.

"I'm very happy that now he'll be home," she said. "I have a large phone bill."

But it wasn't easy. Kruger twice lost and recovered his canoe — once when it capsized and another time when it was stolen. Landick was off the water for nearly three months because of illness and dangerous weather and money problems caused delays.

"There were some bad times and some good times too," said the white-haired Kruger, a stocky, bearded man who once made his living as a plumbing and heating contractor. "The greatest motivation was to explore a continent."

Landick is a plumber and four-year Navy veteran. Both Lansing men say they plan to write books, lecture and continue canoeing. Their canoes were made from Kevlar, a synthetic fiber.

At midday Thursday, Kruger and Landick paddled up the Grand River in sub-freezing weather accompanied by seven other canoes that had traveled downstream to meet them. As they reached Lansing's Riverfront Park, a crowd of about 300 people cheered.

The two then were greeted by Lansing Mayor Terry McKane, who proclaimed Thursday "Ultimate Canoe Challenge Day" and gave them a key to the city. The mayor referred to them as "real modern-day heroes." Gov. James Blanchard, in a proclamation, called them "iron men."

But the two canoeists spoke softly of their accomplishment.

"This is probably the hardest part of the trip," Kruger joked when he was asked to speak to the crowd. The attention "really amazes me."

Landick used the platform to appeal for world peace.

"I had a lot of time to think about that," he said. "The American people have a unique opportunity — we're the only people who can make a difference. I think the U.S. has to set a precedent for peace ... lay down the sword."

The trip began April 29, 1980, when Kruger and Landick put in their canoe at the source of the Missouri River in Red Rock, Mont.

From there, they paddled past St. Louis and Chicago, through four of the Great Lakes, and east through New York; Canada and Maine to the Bay of Fundy. After that, it was south along the Atlantic Coast to the Florida Keys and the Gulf Coast and up the Mississippi River.

They continued north into Canada, eventually to the Arctic Ocean. They paddled south to Alaska and down the Pacific Coast, around the Baja Peninsula and upstream on the Colorado River through the Grand Canyon. They followed rivers through the Plains states and Canada, and traveled over Lake Superior and Lake Michigan before the final push to Lansing along the Grand.

Mother discovers bomb not 'toy'

OXFORD, Ala. (AP) — Dressed in his military fatigues, 8-year-old Earl Underwood watched with fascination as a U.S. Army bomb squad invaded his yard and confiscated a live bomb he had been playing with for four years.

Earl's mother, Barbara Underwood, said she discovered that her son's "toy" was real when she saw a newspaper photograph of a similar object.

Her son had been dragging his bomb out of the family garage for the past four years, she said.

"I was always afraid of it anyway," said Mrs. Underwood, as the bomb was hauled away.

The 25-pound blue object, on which the word "BOMB" was written, was identified Wednesday night as a BDU-33 practice bomb by a squad from nearby Fort McClellan Army Base.

Mrs. Underwood said Earl was fascinated by the device, which was found in a storage area at their house when they moved in four years ago.

Recently, the Army decided to fence Fort McClellan's firing range to keep out children who wander into the area, picking up practice bombs for souvenirs.

After seeing the photograph, Mrs. Underwood called police, who contacted the Army. Within the hour, an Explosive Ordnance Disposal team from Fort McClellan's 142nd Ordnance Detachment arrived.

Mrs. Underwood said her son couldn't leave the bomb alone.

"He would drag it out; I would drag it back in," she said. "It's so heavy, you wouldn't have to drop it very far to crush your toes."

Bomb squad Lt. Horst McLain said the practice bomb could do even more damage. "Depending on the condition of the item itself, any movement could cause the spotting charge to go off," he said.

Mrs. Underwood said Earl watched the investigation and confiscation of his bomb, which was payment enough for giving it up.

"That was a real thrill for him," Mrs. Underwood said, "seeing the Army come out and get his bomb."

Federal entities take precautions

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

Concrete barriers at a Navy weapons base in California, armored patrol vehicles at a nuclear lab in Tennessee, a red alert in New York — America's federal establishment is taking visible steps to defend itself against the threat of radical suicide bombers.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan predicts that foreign anti-American forces, like the ones responsible for deadly bombings at U.S. facilities in Beirut and Kuwait, may "bring the war to our shores" in 1984.

"We should assume it and not be surprised by it," the New York Democrat told a conference on terrorism earlier this week.

Because of the "suicide-mission concept," FBI Director William H. Webster says, such an attack "presumably could just as easily take place in the United States and calls for reasonably prudent measures."

Since the Oct. 23 attack that killed 241 servicemen at the U.S. Marine headquarters in Lebanon and Monday's bombing in Kuwait that killed seven at the U.S. Embassy, physical precautions have been taken from coast to coast to prevent the same thing from happening on U.S. soil.

Gray alerts, requiring increased identification checks and searches of suspicious parcels, are in place at the nation's 7,500 federal buildings.

Top-level red alerts, in which extra guards are added and physical security beefed up, have been declared for federal facilities in five cities in upstate New York — Syracuse, Buffalo, Utica, Watertown and Binghamton. Officials said some red-alert procedures were being employed in Albany, Manhattan and Brooklyn as well.

Three-foot concrete barriers were installed this week in front of the U.S. Mission to the United Nations in New York and the federal courthouse in Brooklyn, and behind gates at six entrances to the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station in California.

At the 14-story New York City police headquarters in Manhattan, round-the-clock foot patrols have been installed. Parking on adjacent streets has been banned, even by police vehicles. Security also is being improved at every station house in the city.

At the federal courthouse in Manhattan, guards have been posted.

In Washington, where steps to improve security on federal property first surfaced at the White House during the Thanksgiving weekend, security is tight — and getting tighter.

A Pentagon spokesman announced Thursday that security officers will soon take "clearly visible" measures to boost protection. Starting Tuesday, Pentagon police will shut tunnels that normally carry commuter buses, military vehicles and taxis underneath the huge Defense Department headquarters.

Sand-filled dump trucks blocking gates at the White House and State Department have been replaced with 3-foot-high concrete barriers. Visitors are now checked before being allowed on the grounds.

The U.S. Capitol is another Washington facility where security has been increased considerably, changes instituted primarily in the wake of a Nov. 7 bomb explosion in a Senate corridor.

Tourists can enter the building through only four entrances, instead of eight. Hallways adjacent to the Senate chamber are closed off.

In Oak Ridge, Tenn., the Department of Energy has purchased armored patrol vehicles with turrets and guns for use at its nuclear weapons parts plant and nuclear research lab. More guards have been hired, and they're receiving anti-terrorist training.

New guard towers are being erected, a road running past the weapons plant has been barricaded, and Congress is considering restricting the area's air space.

Mobil parties 'in same ballpark'

HOUSTON (AP) — Although negotiations in a $1.7 billion suit against Mobil Oil Corp. bogged down on the language of a possible settlement, Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says all parties have been "in the same ballpark" on the financial arrangements.

Mauro left the downtown offices of Mobil's attorneys Thursday night after talks broke off, saying he was "hopeful there could be an agreement within the next 48 hours."

Negotiations were to resume today.

"This is about a five-stage proocess. We've completed two steps and we're about to go to stage three," said Mauro, declining to discuss the dollar amount of the proposed settlement.

He said both sides were "all taking in the same ballpark," but were still divided on the technical language of the agreement.

South Texas rancher Clinton Manges brought the suit against Mobil, contending the oil company had violated its mineral leases on his Duval County land by allowing drilling to lapse for more than 90 days several times during the more than half-century the company and its predecessors held the leases.

The state joined Manges in the suit, contending it lost royalties on the oil leases, and together Manges and the state sought more than $1.7 billion from Mobil.

"I'm not unhappy," said Manges when he left the meeting Thursday night. He said the two sides were "obviously" closer to an agreement.

Attorney General Jim Mattox was not as optimistic as Mauro when he left the meeting.

"I'd very much like to reach an agreement by the first of the year, but the overall disposition of the case may take us on into January if it is resolved at all," Mattox said Thursday night.

In children's books, good is good

By PETER COY

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Once upon a time there was a fairy tale filled with nasty ogres and goblins and witches and trolls, and all the children who heard it snuggled happily in their parents' laps.

Then along came a big, bad sociologist.

The big, bad sociologist said the monsters were only victims of society, and the white knight was having a midlife crisis. The children didn't know what to think anymore. They whined and squirmed.

Just then, an army of authors came to the rescue and slew the sociologist. They proclaimed that good was good and evil was evil, and all good children should know the difference.

The children felt snug and safe again. They turned off the television and lived happily ever after.

Which brings us to the moral of our story: When choosing a Christmas gift book for your child, don't mess with a good fairy tale.

"The young child does not have the experience or the perspective to deal with the ambiguities of life," says Joy Moss, who teaches language at a private school in Rochester.

A child "needs to have the sense that there is some kind of order in the world that will take care of him," even if that involves dumping witches in vats of burning oil, she said.

Publishing houses seem to agree. In recent years they have released lavishly illustrated new editions of such classics as "Sleeping Beauty," "Pinocchio," "The Tale of Peter Rabbit," "The Wizard of Oz" and "The Wind in the Willows."

"There certainly is a renewed interest in fantasy and fairy tales," Mrs. Moss said. "For maybe 20 years there was hardly anything."

Folk tales recently translated from African languages, Italian, Russian, Hindi, Swedish, Polish and Yiddish can give young children some understanding of other cultures, Mrs. Moss said.

Mrs. Moss, 46, is a language arts specialist at the Harley School in Rochester and a part-time assistant professor at the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Education and Human Development.

Parents should consider carefully before buying a book that promotes a social cause or exposes young readers to issues like drug abuse, divorce or premarital pregnancy, Mrs. Moss said.

"You should determine whether or not the issue really overpowers the story or not," she said. "You can tell pretty quickly which stories are really preaching or didactic, for some particular ends."

As children get older, she said, they will be ready — and eager — to read or listen to stories with a bigger dose of social realism and moral uncertainty. Parents should use the opportunity to talk over the issues, she said.

Interest groups wage war over scenic gorge

STEVENSON, Wash. (AP) — From the courthouse in sparsely populated Skamania County to the corridors of the nation's Capitol, battle lines are being drawn over one of the Northwest's most scenic areas: the Columbia Gorge.

The fight will decide who will control the land where the mighty Columbia River rolls through the Cascade Mountains. On one side are environmentalists who want strong federal restrictions on housing, dams and mining. On the other are local residents who acknowledge the gorge's splendor, but assert their rights to control their own destiny — and property.

In between are the governors of Oregon and Washington, the two states sharing the 85-mile-long gorge. The governors are promoting a compromise aimed at retaining local land-use control while encouraging preservation largely at Uncle Sam's expense.

To environmentalists, the need for preservation is urgent.

"The Columbia Gorge is a national treasure," said Bowen Blair, executive director of the 3-year-old Friends of the Columbia Gorge. "It doesn't belong just to people in the gorge."

From Sandy River, Ore., to Maryhill, Wash., the Columbia wiggles through mountains up to 5,000 feet. The hills' vegetation changes gradually from fir rain forests in the west to arid sagebrush and sand dunes in the east. Steep waterfalls and spectacular cliffs highlight the scenery.

THE RIVER cut the gorge by pounding its way through successive volcanic flows and Cascade Range uplifts. Lewis and Clark first explored the region in the early 1800s. Thousands of Indians at the time called the gorge home, prospering with hefty catches of Columbia salmon.

Tourists today enjoy the gorge by driving a winding, two-lane highway completed in 1915 on the Oregon side, stopping at numerous waterfalls and vistas along the way.

Separate bills incorporating federal control and the governors' compromise have been introduced in Congress. Supporters of preservation predict that both the Senate and House will pass some form of legislation next year.

One bill, introduced by Sens. Bob Packwood and Mark Hatfield, both Oregon Republicans, would set up a bi-state commission accountable to the U.S. Forest Service to manage land use in the gorge. It would designate the gorge as a National Scenic Area.

The rival measure, endorsed by most of Oregon's and Washington's congressional delegation, would also set up a land-use commission, but it would consist mostly of gorge residents and would not be accountable to either state or federal authorities.

The governors' compromise was introduced last spring by Oregon Gov. Vic Atiyeh and Washington Gov. John Spellman, both Republicans, as a result of strident objections to the Packwood bill by some gorge residents.

NATIVES SUCH as Bob Leick, the Skamania County prosecutor who heads the Gorge Defense League, claim the Packwood bill would deny them their right to self-government. They disparage protectionists from the urban Portland, Ore., and Vancouver, Wash., areas, who provide much of the advocacy and money for both bills.

"We see the Hatfield-Packwood bill and the governors' bill as nothing more than urban snobbery," said Leick. "The bills say, 'You don't have the expertise or the intelligence to govern yourselves.'"

Leick argues that stringent controls aren't needed because the Gorge's steep cliffs and mountainsides hinder industrial and residential development.

He defends Skamania County's lack of zoning and argues that new housing in the gorge wouldn't necessarily detract from its scenic value. "We're not going to knuckle under just because somebody doesn't want to look at one of our homes," he said.

One fight over housing ended in October after the county commission approved developer George Rizor's proposal to build on 21 lots in a 60-acre tract across the river from Multnomah Falls, one of the gorge's prime tourist attractions.

The San Francisco-based Trust for Public Land stepped in and bought Rizor's lots for a price exceeding $350,000. Environmentalists expressed relief, but said the purchase was only a stopgap measure.

BLAIR WARNS of plans by another developer to build 78 houses on 70 acres east of the Rizor site.

"Until we see an overall management plan for th Gorge, it's just going to be nibbled away," Blair said.

Parts of the Gorge have already been eaten. Power lines emanating from the Columbia's mighty hydroelectric dams stretch across the landscape. So do railroad tracks on each side of the river. To tourists seeking escape from city life, Interstate 84 and its traffic are constant reminders of civilization.

"This whole area should have been a national park," Williams said, "but we're three dams, two railroads and a couple of freeways too late."

Environmentalists fear that the opening earlier this year of Interstate 205 bridge linking the Vancouver and Portland areas over the Columbia will result in stepped-up development pressure. They also point to the expected growth of high-technology companies in the Camas-Washougal areas of Washington as threats to undeveloped areas.

"It seems that at least once a week there's a new project or subdivision," Blair said. "We're trying to slow down things until some sort of plan is put in."

Walesa urges union approval in unuttered speech

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa, warning of more conflict and upheaval, urged the government to make Solidarity legal again in a speech Communist authorities barred him from delivering today to commemorate workers' deaths in food price riots.

"We cannot give up the Solidarity of all people, all the downtrodden, all who are fighting for freedom and human rights, all working people," the leader of the outlawed trades union said in a text of the speech made available Thursday.

The government barred him from speaking at the steel monument outside the Lenin Shipyards in Gdansk where Solidarity was born three years ago.

Walesa, on sick leave with the flu from his electrician's job at the shipyards, said today he also may decline to place flowers at the monument — something authorities had said he could do — and send his wife instead.

On Thursday he promised to make the gestdre "even if I have to crawl."

But his wife Danuta quoted her husband as saying, "I'm still weighing my decision whether to show up there, after all. The shipyard management might view this as ... a breach of sick-leave rules and fire me from work.

"So in all likelihood, my wife will lay the flowers. And she won't speak," he was quoted as saying.

Walesa on Wednesday refused to obey a summons to report for interrogtion by Gdansk police, saying he had a fever.

About 50 helmeted riot troopers were posted around the monument today. Six carloads of uniformed and plainclothes police were stationed near the Walesa apartment, in a housing complex in the suburb of Zaspa.

Today marks the anniversary of 1970 food price riots in which scores of workers were killed.

In his speech, the 40-year-old Walesa, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, did not endorse a call by the Solidarity underground for nationwide protests to mark the anniversary o the riots.

But he said, "The experience of Solidarity shows that sharp and stormy conflicts cannot be avoided in post-war Poland ..."

Walesa said the union "handed the working people a powerful weapon" that, for the first time in Communist Poland, established counterbalances "for the previously uncontrolled state and party apparatus."

"Solidarity offers an opportunity for the rebirth of our country," Walesa said. Solidarity was suspended with the declaration of martial law two years ago and later outlawed.

He proposed a series of reforms without which "our country's political and economic life will go from one upheaval to the next."

The proposals included:

—Separating the state economic system from the political administration.

—Forming string and independent organizations and unions to serve as a "counterweight" to the government and Communist Party.

—Creating more private enterprises to compete with socialized industry.

—The imposition of greater social control over the police and court systems which, he said, the authorities now "treat as tools in their monopoly of power ... aimed against the public good."

Walesa accused authorities of breaking the August 1980 agreements which legitimized Solidarity and of using force to "smash the free trade union movement" and "restore their monopoly of power."

"Political life has been reduced to caricature-like forms, and organizations with social authority have been replaced by organizations of obedient people," Walesa's statement said.

"The Solidarity movement was always a movement for peaceful struggle for human rights in our country," he said. "We still remain faithful to the program of dialogue and agreement.

"Without Solidarity we will have long years of political and economic stagnation and even something worse — financial poverty and the lack of hope for a better tomorrow," he said.

Lebanese factions reinforce cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A agreement to stabilize the latest civil war cease-fire was announced today by Lebanon's warring factions as guns around Beirut were stilled and the international airport reopened after a 17-day shutdown.

Fifty miles to the north in Tripoli, however, Israel staged its fourth naval assault in a week against PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's loyalists, who are waiting for ships to evacuate them from the northern port city.

In Damascus, the anti-government National Salvation Front announced the three-point agreement to stabilize the cease-fire, which was proclaimed Thursday night after representatives of the Lebanese army, Islamic Druse and Shiite anti-government militias met with Foreign Minister Abdul-Halim Khaddam of Syria.

Public Works Minister Pierre Khoury said orders were issued to all airport employees to report for work immediately so normal air traffic could resume. The first commercial jetliner was to land at the airport at sundown, he said.

In addition to neutralizing the airport, where 1,350 U.S. Marines are based on peacekeeping duty, the agreement provides for no more shelling of populated areas and public utilities and "complete respect of the cease-fire by all parties concerned."

The front, which groups seven Syrian-backed opposition factions, said the agreement was to go into effect at midday (5 a.m. EST) and sources close to the Lebanese government said it would set the stage for resuming reconciliation talks among Lebanon's warring factions.

Lebanon state radio said there were sniping and shelling attacks involving army and Druse militia positions around the central mountain town of Souk El-Gharb as the truce announcement was made.

"This is a minor setback," the state radio said. "It does not mean that the new agreement has been violated. Not all combatants have been informed of the new agreement and ordered to observe the cease-fire when the fighting was reported in the mountains."

The Israeli naval shelling came as arrangements entered their final phase to evacuate Arafat and his 4,600 loyalists from the port city of half a million inhabitants on Greek ships flying the United Nations flag.

The five ships, which were to leave Greece to take Arafat and his fighters from their last Middle East redoubt Monday, are to be escorted by U.S. and French warships, the Greek government said.

In Rome, Premier Bettino Craxi of Italy decided Thursday night against providing an armed Italian naval escort for the PLO evacuation ships. The Italian Foreign Ministry previously had confirmed an Italian passenger ferry, The Appia, was sent to Tripoli to evacuate 97 wounded loyalist guerrillas.

Although Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's Israeli government said it would not attack the evacuation vessels, the new shelling showed Israel was determined to keep hitting at Arafat and his Palestine Liberation Organization loyalists until they leave the besieged city.

State and privately owned radio stations in Beirut said the 1½-hour Israeli assault began at 11:30 p.m. (4:30 p.m. EST) Thursday.

The radios said the entire harbor area where the departing guerrillas would mass for evacuation was shelled by gunboats.

Arafat's men lowered their anti-aircraft guns and returned fire at the gunboats, which had slipped with lights out into firing positions near Tripoli's Rabbit Island, about one-half mile from the harbor, according to the radios. They said two guerrilla posts sustained damage.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli military command said its gunboats shelled guerrilla positions and roadblocks and scored accurate hits. Palestinian fire caused no casualties among Israeli crews, the communique said.

The cease-fire in Beirut followed an upsurge of violence Thursday that involved the U.S., British and French contingents serving with the multinational peacekeeping force along with Lebanese troops, Christian, Druse and Shiite Moslem militiamen plus the USS New Jersey, the world's only battleship.

The battleship's barrage of about 40 rounds of five-inch shells shortly after nightfall silenced Druse gunners who shelled the vulnerable U.S. Marine base at Beirut's airport for about two hours.

Trudeau presents peace plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, after discussing his global peace inititive with President Reagan, says he sees welcome signs that "politicians are taking hold of the peace process."

After listening to Trudeau's ideas in an hour-long meeting at the White House on Thursday, Reagan sent the Canadian leader off with a "a God speed" for "your efforts to build a durable peace."

Canadian Foreign Minister Allan MacEachen interpreted that remark as an endorsement of the "general thrust" of the ideas Trudeau has been pressing on world leaders for the last several months.

But Reagan did not embrace any of the specific proposals Trudeau has been offering.

Party may retain majority

TOKYO (AP) —Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's party is likely to retain a stable Parliamentary majority in elections Sunday despite the bribery conviction of former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, a poll by a leading newspaper said today.

The mass-circulation daily Asahi Shimbun said a random poll of 13,200 eligible voters across the country indicated the Liberal Democratic Party will win about 278 seats in the 511-member lower house.

With more than 270 seats in the chamber, the party would be able to hold chairmanships and majorities in 18 standing committee of the lower house of the Diet, Japan's Parliament.

Soviets turn over KAL items

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union will turn over to Japan next week additional items recovered from a South Korean airliner shot down by a Soviet fighter plane on Sept. 1, the Foreign Ministry said today.

The transfer, the second since the disaster, will take place Tuesday at Port Nevelisk on the Soviet island of Sakhalin, near where the Korean Air Lines jumbo jet went down in the sea of Japan.

The Boeing 747 was on a flight from New York to Seoul with 269 people aboard when it was shot down over Sakhalin. There were no survivors.

Seaga's party sweeps ballots

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Seaga's conservative Labor Party — challenged in just six of the country's 60 constituencies — has swept national elections boycotted by the opposition.

The complete but unofficial results from Thursday's balloting gave Seaga an unprecedented one-party Parliament.

Security effort not approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Approval for stronger security at the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait, requested Sept. 16, had yet to be sent to diplomats there when an explosion devastated part of the complex and killed six people, U.S. officials say.

One official said that notification was ready to be sent on Monday, the same day a truck crashed through an embassy gate and exploded. The measures were intended to prevent that very kind of attack, another official said.

Officials also disclosed that the Kuwaiti government had refused an American request to close the street that leads past the embassy.

Nun's letter details 'misery'

BOSTON (AP) — An American nun killed by Peruvian police as they fired on the escaping prisoners holding her hostage wrote friends recently that she "never saw so much misery...in one small area" as in the jail where she died.

Joan Sawyer

The letter was to Sisters Eileen Crowley and Kay Sheppard of Milton, who knew Sister Joan Sawyer when she lived in Boston before moving to Lima, Peru, four years ago.

Other friends remembered Sister Sawyer on Thursday as a gentle woman who spent her life helping the underprivileged.

Sister Sawyer, a Columban sister working at Lurigancho Prison, was one of six women seized at knifepoint by 10 prisoners during the annual Christmas presentation, according to the Episcopal Commission of Social Action in Lima.

The barrage of police bullets that killed Sister Sawyer also killed eight of the prisoners and wounded a Peruvian church worker and another American nun. The other three women, including two more American nuns, were uninjured, the commission reported.

Sister Sawyer, 51, was a native of Belfast, Northern Ireland, and had lived in Boston and Chicago for nine years before going to Peru, according to Sister Mary O'Dey of the Missionary Saints of St. Columban in Boston.

"As a woman she was physically tiny and very gentle. The violence that came out of this is an antithesis of what Joan stood for," Sister O'Dey said.

"I spent a few months with her in Peru three years ago. She served as a social minister in the poorer areas of Lima, basically providing whatever services were required," Sister O'Dey said.

In her letter to Milton, Sister Sawyer wrote:

"Since coming back to Lima in March, I have been working in the prison where there are about 6,000 men. I work in two pavilions where there are about 800. Also, I visit in the clinic where a prisoner may go, but only if he is very ill. There is so much TB due to the poor food, no medicine, lack of hygiene, etc. It is a problem in the whole country. But in the prison, I never saw so much misery concentrated in one small area.

"There is a bright side, too, and I have seen the most amazing loyalty and sharing of the little they have. We have been able to help a few ex-prisoners find a better future with a little capital to start something for themselves. But the help they need most is a moral and spiritual one. So do please keep them in your prayers. Unemployment here is over 60 percent and worse in poor areas, so a man with a prison record has not a chance of getting work."

Three killed, two hurt in furnace explosion

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia (AP) — A series of powerful explosions ripped through an outdoor blast furnace at the Sydney Steel Corp., killing three men and injuring two, company officials said.

Water and coke spewed from the giant furnace as it exploded Thursday night in a series of loud bursts, knocking men to the ground and sending them into the air.

"There were three or four explosions. I was fired 20 to 30 feet," worker Lloyd George said afterwards. "I didn't stick around. I just took off. I shook my head a little bit when I got off the ground and I just kept moving."

Company spokesman Harvey McLeod said "it was very fortunate" anyone managed to escape death.

Officials said they had not yet determined what caused the accident at blast furnace No. 1, the only operating furnace at the plant.

The blasts were heard throughout Sydney, a city of 30,000 on the northeast tip of Nova Scotia at Cape Breton.

Tighter security sought for Peruvian prison

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The government has ordered tighter security at a prison where police killed eight escaping convicts and one of their hostages — an American nun helping present the annual Christmas program at the facility.

The escape attempt and deaths heightened public criticism of security at Peruvian prisons from which national prison director Miguel Gonzalez said Thursday, more than 1,800 convicts have escaped in the past four years.

The Episcopal Commission of Social Action in Lima said the nun, Joan Sawyer, 51, of the Missionary Saints of St. Columban, was hit by four bullets when police fired on a prison ambulance fleeing with her and five other women hostages Wednesday.

The mission's headquarters in Chicago said Sister Sawyer, a U.S. citizen, was originally from Belfast, Northern Ireland, and had lived in Boston and Chicago for nine years before going to Peru.

The convicts, armed with knives, seized the women during the Christmas program presentation. Prison authorities made the ambulance available to 10 convicts holding the hostages when the prisoners threatened to kill them.

One of the convicts involved, Miguel Marcel Olivera, told police the attempted escape was not planned and "was a thing of the moment."

A commission spokesman in Lima said another American nun, Teresa Pasterczyk, of Dracut, Mass., suffered a minor bullet wound and Peruvian church worker Lucia Valdez was seriously wounded.

Two other American nuns, Helen Conway, of Needham, Mass., and Ana Marzolo, of Pittsford, Mich., escaped unhurt as did Inga de la Torre, an American-born performer on Peruvian television known as Gringa Inga.

Tainted products to be removed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Grits, cornmeal and hush puppy mixes found to contain the toxic pesticide EDB will be removed from the market place, and the three manufacturers will be blocked from further sales of the products, state officials say.

Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner on Thursday released a list of 27 tainted grain products made by Olde Tyme Foods of Dallas, R.H. Hammond of Hialeah, Fla., and Martha White Foods Inc. of Nashville, Tenn. Last month, the state found EDB in several other brands of grain products such as grits.

EDB, which has caused cancer in animals, is used as a fumigant for stored grain, and state officials plan to check all flour products for contamination.

Molester's sentence suspended

HOUSTON (AP) — A Cuban child molester convicted of trying to hijack an airliner and assaulting a flight attendant was sent to prison for 12 years for the assault, but the judge suspended the mandatory 20-year sentence for attempted air piracy.

U.S. District Judge Norman Black sentenced 29-year-old Alfredo Ayala on Thursday after a defense attorney argued his client needs psychiatric help, noting that Ayala tried to hijack the Pan American jet without a weapon.

Ayala, who was on probation for child molesting in California when the Aug. 2 hijacking attempt occurred, was foiled when a laid-off Pan Am employee tackled him. The worker was subsequently re-hired.

Parolee charged with murder

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — A man paroled just four months ago after serving 11 years in prison for a Florida killing has been ordered held on $750,000 bail in the murder of a high school cheerleader — the second New Jersey murder charge against him.

James J. Koedatich, 35, of Morristown, was indicted Thursday in the death of 18-year-old Amie Hoffman, a Parsippany Hills High School student whose body was discovered on Thanksgiving Day 1982.

He pleaded innocent to seven charges, including murder, kidnapping and sexual assault.

Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr. said the $750,000 was in addition to the $250,000 bail ordered in the stabbing death of Deirdre O'Brien of Mendham, who authorities said was also abducted and sexually assaulted.

Environmental paper prepared

WASHINGTON (AP) — An environmental impact statement on the use of the herbicide paraquat to kill marijuana plants on public lands is being prepared by the Drug Enforcement Administration.

In a notice published Thursday in the Federal Register, DEA chief Francis M. Mullen Jr. said the impact of a variety of marijuana eradication methods will be studied, including such herbicides as paraquat, 2,4-D and glyphosate.

Last summer, DEA began spraying paraquat on public lands in the Chattahoochie National Forest in Georgia and the Daniel Boone National Forest in Kentucky. Opponents contend paraquat can harm the lungs of marijuana smokers, an argument disputed by the Reagan administration.

Reagan: No woman superior

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a magazine article entitled "In Praise of Women," President Reagan says women should be able to have careers or be homemakers because "no role is superior to another."

In the January 1984 issue of Ladies' Home Journal, Reagan wrote about his mother, Nelle, who died in 1962, his wife, Nancy, and his two daughters, Maureen and Patti.

"My mother was basically a homemaker. Nancy filled the role of homemaker plus that of actress and public figure. My daughters are pursuing demanding careers. This to me is the story of women over the last century," Reagan wrote. "No role is superior to another. The point is, a woman must have the right to choose the one role she wishes or to perhaps fill them all."

Pentagon tunnels to be closed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tunnels that carry commuter buses, military vehicles and taxis beneath the Pentagon will be closed as a precaution against possible terrorist attacks.

Defense Department spokesman Michael Burch said Thursday that security officers have been concerned that terrorists could drive a vehicle loaded with explosives into one of the tunnels. An explosion underneath the Pentagon could cause a large section of the building to collapse, Burch said.

He declined to detail what other security measures were being taken for the mammoth building where 22,000 people work.

Soviets may be pressuring U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says the Soviet Union may be trying pressure the United States and its allies for concessions by not setting a date to resume talks aimed at reducing troops in Europe.

John Hughes, the State Department's chief spokesman, said Thursday that the United States regretted the Soviet decision not to set a date to resume the 10-year-old Mutual and Balanced Forces Reduction Talks in Vienna.

The Soviets have already broken off talks in Geneva to reduce intermediate range nuclear weapons and declined to set a date to resume the talks on strategic nuclear weapons, which have also been held in Geneva.

The Soviet Union may be engaged in "an attempt to pressure the United States and its allies" into granting concessions by declining to set a new date for the troop talks, Hughes said.

Speakes against Shultz remark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes says Secretary of State George Shultz wasn't speaking for the White House when he said "reporters are always against us."

Shultz made the comment Wednesday to editors of Gannett newspapers while defending the decision to prevent reporters from covering the first two days of the U.S. invasion of Grenada. During World War II reporters "were on our side," Shultz said, but nowadays "they're always seeking to report something that's going to screw things up."

Speakes said Thursday he had not talked to President Reagan about Shultz' remark but said "I do not think that reflects the attitude of the president or the senior staff of the White House."

Kissinger: Commission not split

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says the presidential commission on Central America he heads does not have any serious splits despite some differences of opinion among its members.

George and Birdie Lackey sit and look at their packed belongings Tuesday before their court-ordered move from the white portion of a small public housing project to a black section in the Northeast Texas community of Clarksville. About 25 white residents in the project are to trade apartments with 25 black residents.

Blacks, whites trading places at apartments

CLARKSVILLE, Texas (AP) — George Lackey put on his brown suspenders, dropped some tobacco juice into a spittoon and prepared to be pushed around for the first time in his 87 years.

Lackey and a few of his neighbors are moving under federal court order from the white portion of a small public housing project in northeastern Texas to the black portion a few blocks away.

In real terms, the order by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice is intended to integrate 25 of the publicly subsidized apartments in Clarksville.

But in human terms, Lackey said, forcing 25 elderly white residents to trade apartments with 25 elderly blacks two weeks before Christmas is criminal.

THE JUDGE SAYS I got to move, so I'll move. I don't understand why," Lackey said, boxes of his and his wife's belongings stacked in the living room for the move. "But they ain't going to run me out of Clarksville. I've been here 77 years.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development in Washington said the Clarksville order will become a test case for 40,000 public housing units in the United States.

Clarksville Housing Authority director Rosemary Caviness said only five white families chose to move to the black sector. The 20 others opted for more expensive private housing or moved to relatives' homes, nursing homes or public housing projects in other towns.

All of the blacks chose to move to the white section by the Dec. 15 deadline, she said.

The complex is composed of one-story builings containing four to six apartments. The buildings, of the same design, are not on a single piece of property, but are scattered throughout the same neighborhood.

I HAVEN'T STARTED to fill the vacancies [illegible] judge's order. I'm going to have [illegible] suite families for those vacan[illegible]," she said.

[illegible] whites to move in remains [illegible] preference for housing [illegible] keep my [illegible]

Two black families filed a civil rights suit against the housing authority in 1980 claiming they had been denied housing in the white section even though apartments were available.

Justice, who previously sparked controversy with an order requiring public education for the children of illegal aliens, issued the order without a trial, Beadle said.

THE JUDGE'S ORDER, however, has been upheld by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Beadle said the case probably is headed for the Supreme Court.

Implementation of Justice's order, apparently the first of its kind for public housing projects, is being watched around the country and especially in northeastern Texas, where housing associations are part of a class action suit.

Lackey said he and his wife, Birdie, chose to move because he had no where else to go.

"This is the first time in my life that I've been pushed around," he said. "I've cried and I've prayed, but it don't look like there's any other way out.

"We was living happy, but it tore down pretty quick," Lackey said. "I was just raised to stay away from black people, he said.

In October, Justice ordered the housing authority to impose a quota system so no project was less than 45 percent black. Last month, names were drawn from a hat to determine which tenants would move.

MS. CAVINESS SAID several white residents had reservations about the safety of the black section, but she said neither side had reported any break-ins or assaults in the last 2½ years.

Women from the Church of Christ helped Doris Holder move into the black section Dec. 5. She found she knew a couple across the street who had taught her children in school.

"It's been better than I expected. Everyone's pretty friendly," she said.

Carrin Middleton, 78, wrapped herself in a quilt and huddled in a closet to stay warm. She moved into the white section Tuesday, but her gas heater wasn't turned on yet.

"If I had my choice, I'd have stayed there," she said of her old apartment. "It's quite natural for all of us to want to stay if you can stay."

Since most of the apartments in the white section are designed for the elderly — the average age is 77 — nearly all of the transfers involve senior citizens, Ms. Caviness said.

"It's cold this time of year and we've had rain," she said. "It's been very trying for all of them."

Sweden leads the world in the use of industrial robots, followed by Japan and West Germany, a survey by the Norwegian Institute of Productivity shows. It found that Sweden has 30 robots per 10,000 industrial workers, Japan 23, and West Germany and Norway 5 each.

Unwanted babies killed, abandoned in Zimbabwe

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — When Cecilia Chikomerwi became pregnant at 18, she had no job and no money. The father, her boyfriend, left her after he found out. She feared the wrath of her parents and friends, and the bleak prospect of becoming a social outcast.

So, she made an agonizing decision: she killed the baby by throttling it, soon after birth.

She was arrested, convicted of homicide and sent to prison for three years.

"Society expects people like you who dump or kill their babies to be punished severely," Judge Enock Dumbutshena said at her trial.

Scores of teen-age girls and women, some married, have been imprisoned recently as Zimbabwe experiences an unprecedented wave of infanticide and abandonment of newborn babies.

Sociologists ascribe the phenomenon to the troubles of a newly independent nation after a war and to disruptions they say are caused by Western influences in an African society.

Police believe hundreds of other cases have gone undetected.

"The problem is bad enough on the basis of the arrests we make," an officer said. "But we believe there are many more cases we don't find out about."

Almost daily, Zimbabwe's newspapers carry reports of waifs being abandoned on church steps, or in office doorways and vacant lots. Babies' bodies are reported found in garbage cans, unmarked graves, rivers, sewer pipes and ant hills.

"Nobody knows how many other babies have been abandoned to die without their remains ever being found," the Harare Herald, controlled by the state-owned Mass Media Trust, said in an editorial.

In an address to a youth festival in August, Prime Minister Robert Mugabe lamented: "Police are picking up babies every week all over the country. It's immoral, evil and embarrassing."

The trend is considered surprising in a society where mothers are fiercely protective toward their children. It raises vexing questions about African men's dominance over women, the erosion of traditional values that discourage sexual promiscuity, and the opposition of some politicians to birth control.

Women complain that men refuse to share responsibility for illegitimate children, and that unwed mothers are doomed to a life of shame.

"It's vital that we look at the causes — the attitudes of society toward illegitimate children and unwanted pregnancies, the financial status of an unmarried mother and the selfish attitudes of the natural fathers," said Judith Nthombeni, a government social services worker.

Family planning experts and doctors say the number of baby killings increased sharply after the government two years ago banned the use of Depo-Provera.

Beirut paper represents 'leap of faith'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The staff, library and most of the equipment were assembled from scratch. The telephones don't work very well, and periodic closings of the Beirut airport delay some feature and photo material.

But there is no lack of news for the English-language Daily Star, which has returned to newsstands in Beirut after an eight-year absence.

"Putting out a new newspaper is a hassle under the best of circumstances," says Nizar Jwaideh, the editor-in-chief. "Here, it's a leap of faith."

The Daily Star, the capital's only English-language paper, is "new" in that Jwaideh, a former diplomatic editor for U.S. News and World Report in Washington, and publisher Jamil K. Mrowa had to rebuild the paper.

The debut edition Dec. 6 made it clear that the paper plans to take up where it left off on Dec. 6, 1975, when the nation's 1975-76 civil war forced it to shut down.

"Today we begin again," said the headline on the front-page editorial marking the paper's return. It bore the number 8620, resuming the numbering sequence interrupted eight years before.

"We believe Lebanon will make it," Mrowa said in his opening message to readers, but the paper's headlines continued to reflect the seemingly endless strife of the nation.

The paper's final 1975 edition reported on kidnappings and on Moslem demands for more say in the Christian-dominated government. The first editions last week had stories on car bombs, artillery duels and efforts toward Christian-Moslem reconciliation.

Jwaideh said plans to resume publication began taking shape when "Beirut began to return to life" after the 1982 Israeli invasion.

MROWA, 33, and his family began securing the bank financing needed to get the paper going again. Mrowa's father, Kamel, had founded the Daily Star in 1952 as a sister publication to his Arabic paper, Al-Hayat. He was assassinated in his newspaper office in 1966 by Pan-Arab leftists.

Hopes for a start-up in September 1983 faded when Druse fighters sided with Shiite Moslem militias in an all-out war with the Lebanese army and Christian militias.

On the early September day Jwaideh's first two American-hired reporters arrived — Tod Robberson, a former Washington Post copy editor, and Michael Hall, an Oakland Tribune editor — ships of the U.S. Navy's 6th fleet began firing over Beirut at the mountain strongholds of the Druse.

"I tried to tell them, 'It's OK, the fleet is celebrating your arrival,'" said Jwaideh. "But I could tell they were having some trouble with it. It's one thing to know there's a war on and another to hear it."

Hall, 28, said he came for the opportunity "to report real news." And, he says, "It's a lot more fun than city councils and zoning boards and the cornucopia of typical city news coverage."

At his six-sided desk in a white-washed office in the heart of West Beirut, the 51-year-old Jwaideh chronicled the paper's logistical problems.

The Daily Star couldn't get its news agency machines hooked up because the only clerk in the government-run telecommunications company designated to accept deposits had taken refuge in a distant mountain village.

Telephones, key reporting tools, often don't yield dial tones for several minutes, if at all.

Intermittent closings of the Beirut airport because of shelling or threats of shelling kept the paper from receiving mailed feature and photo material and forced the editors to delay plans for a Middle Eastern edition.

MOST OF THE nation's best-trained technicians have fled to the oil-rich Gulf states for better pay and less danger.

And worst of all, the pool of journalists skilled in English turned out to be too small to build into an adequate staff for putting out six papers a week. Jwaideh solved the problem with an emergency trip to England to recruit editors and writers.

The paper, which is selling for the equivalent of 40 cents, joins a host of dailies in Beirut: the independent An-Nahar and seven other Arabic-language papers as well as L'Orient-Le Jour and Le Reveil, both in French.

The early press runs have produced 5,000 copies a day, though early circulation figures aren't available. Jwaideh admits that "eight years of war have had the effect of reducing our potential readership" by driving many educated Lebanese out of their homeland.

Chinese begin to show respect for minorities

KASHGAR, China (AP) — The Chinese government's new policy of showing respect for the nation's minorities is clearly evident in this Moslem city in westernmost Sinkiang province 70 miles from the Soviet border.

A giant statue of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung reminds visitors that they are still in China, but not much else does.

The emphasis here is on the importance of good relations between China's dominant Han people and the minority nationalities who account for 6.7 percent of China's 1 billion people.

"Here, we are the minority nationality," said Zhou Shunying, 40, a Han woman who works as an interpreter in the prefectural grain bureau in Kashgar, where more than 90 percent of the people are Uighurs, a Turkic people.

What that means, she told visiting reporters recently, is that when she has her Moslem Uighur neighbors over for dinner, she is careful which pot she cooks in, and she doesn't throw her wash water out on to the street.

Borrowing a pot from the neighbors is the surest way of reassuring Moslem guests, who don't eat pork, that they are not eating from a pot that ever held pork.

Her husband once violated Moslem customs by throwing dirty water on the road, considered a sign of disrespect, but the problem was solved by swiftly cleaning it up, she added.

In the 1966-76 "Cultural Revolution" that brought chaos throughout China, leftist radicals tried to force the minorities to abandon their customs, destroyed many Moslem mosques and seized religious workers on charges of sowing discord or promoting the "Four Olds" — old ideas, culture, customs and habits.

Bahar, an Uzbek who is an official in the Sinkiang province Nationalities Department in Urumqi, told the reporters that during that time of upheaval he was sent for three years of forced labor in the countryside.

Now newcomers to this remote province are given such instructions as not passing in front of Moslems as they kneel to pray and not showing the soles of their feet as they sit on a rug in a Kazak yurt.

One reason for the new policy toward minorities is that China's leaders want stability, unity and enthusiasm for the nation's modernization drive. Another reason is that most minorities live in strategic border areas and in areas rich in natural resources.

In Sinkiang, minorities account for 60 percent of the 13 million people living in a province that takes up one-sixth of China's land area and has borders with the Soviet Union, Mongolia, Afghanistan and India.

Besides Uighurs, there are Hui, Mongolian, Kergez, Xibo, Tajik, Uzbek, Daur, Tartar, Kazak, Manchu and Russian people.

Botswana facing serious drought

MOGOBANE, Botswana (AP) — Moleofi Modisane and his children had desperately torn thatching from the roof of their home in an effort to feed the cow and keep her alive. Nineteen of their herd of 22 of cattle had already died.

The effort failed, the cow died, as the others had, from the drought that has seared southern Africa.

Now Modisane and his children were skinning and butchering the cow. The family would have food for themselves at least.

Gesturing toward the nearby Mogobane Dam, which dried up in April for the first time since it was built in the early 1960s, Modisane said, "We depended on that dam for water. Even though we had no grazing, we at least had water. Now we have no water and no grazing."

The fallen cow had been destined for sale in late November to Botswana's "One Hundred Pula" program, in which the government buys cattle for 100 pula ($110) a head and slaughters them for school lunches. Now it would provide only a few meals for the family's 12 children.

Modisane said he earned some money by thatching roofs before the drought, but now little thatching material is available. He also had worked on a government vegetable experiment. With the dam dry, he feared that project was also doomed.

Pula is the Botswana currency. It also is the national slogan and greeting among tribesmen. It means "rain."

The nation is one of 22 in Africa identified by the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) in Rome as facing a serious danger of famine if Western donors don't increase drought relief aid.

THE DROUGHT is particularly painful in Botswana because it has stalled a success story.

Per-capita income has risen from the pula equivalent of $69 at independence from Britain in 1966 to more than $1,000. The economy is managed prudently and democracy is well entrenched, factors that encouraged the opening of three diamond mines in the past decade.

Cattle, the traditional symbol of African wealth, have become a major source of wealth for Botswana. Even top civil servants in Gaborone, the capital, keep herds in their home villages.

Bolstered by an import duty exemption from the European Common Market, beef production earned Botswana $118 million last year from the national herd of 3.1 million cattle. The country accounted for 45 percent of African beef exports.

David Finlay, permanent secretary of agriculture, said: "I reckon we've dropped 300,000 head this year. We could drop half a million head if it goes wrong. If it rains, we could stagger through."

The stench from carcasses of animals that have collapsed and died overwhelms a visitor at regular intervals while driving through the bare thorntree bush of major grazing areas in eastern Botswana.

Crop-farming losses also underline the severity of the drought. Even in the best years, Botswana produces only about 50,000 tons of grain, less than half the 130,000 tons needed. The past harvest was 17,000 tons, about 10 percent of the country's needs.

Weakened cattle aggravate the crop problem. Draft animals, forced to walk miles from the remaining water points to find grazing, are unable to pull plows for the annual planting.

BOTSWANA'S CAREFUL use of foreign aid has encouraged the U.S. Agency for International Development and other agencies to set up elaborate programs geared toward long-term health and development. Now donors are being asked to dig deeper for emergency drought relief.

In the third year of drought, the nation has devised a 10-point emergency program, including the cattle-buying plan and projects to clear fields of tree stumps. Women are grinding more sorghum grain by hand in their villages, instead of sending it off to large milling plants.

More than 500,000 people, over half the population, receive some sort of assistance, up from 430,000 in April. About 212,000 children get a square meal each day at school. Pregnant mothers, pre-school children, the destitute and the elderly also get rations, many through food-for-work projects.

At a primary school in Mogoditshane, west of Gaborone, village women pound sorghum into meal for 80 thebe (about 80 cents) a large bucket. Each bucket provides lunch for 55 students.

The government also has longer-range plans to speed up well drilling, place 50,000 to 75,000 acres under irrigation for farming in the north and to decrease cattle stocks in overgrazed areas.

"There are areas that would have to be destocked for 10 years to recover," said Finlay. "The only long-term answer is to grow more crops in this country and to produce more revenue-earning cattle, rather than having cattle die in the fields."

A villager, Keakofile Nthokgo, said while skinning one of his cows that had died in a dry riverbed, "This is the ninth I have lost. I had 38 head."

He tossed scraps to his dogs and added, "If there is rain, I am not afraid of the future. But if there is not..."

Town's election results finally announced

URUAPAN, Mexico (AP) — The opposition National Action Party won mayoral elections in this large town in western Mexico, the state elections commission has announced.

The commission announced the victory by the conservative party, which held a large rally in the center of town to celebrate, El Universal newspaper reported. The voting was held Dec. 4 but there was no explanation for the delay in announcing the results.

Commission official Luis Ruben Puebla Calderon handed over the certificate of victory to the National Action candidate, Federico Ruiz Lopez, in a ceremony at the municipal palace, El Universal said.

The ruling Revolutionary Institutional Party has held most public positions in the country in the last 54 years, but in the last year lost several important towns to the opposition because of public discontent over economic austerity measures.

Not babysitters

Occasionally the Reporter-Telegram receives a letter we would really like to publish, but don't.

Such is the case of a letter we received recently. It wasn't published because the author didn't sign it. We have established a policy to not publish unsigned letters on the basis that they can be unfair and damaging.

In this particular instance, though, the unsigned letter made an important point on a vital topic — the education of our children. The writer indicated he had received a telephone call from one of his eighth grade son's teachers informing him that the writer's son and others had been talking and disturbing class and that the teacher was required to contact each child's parents before any disciplinary action could be taken.

"I couldn't believe what I was hearing!" the writer stated. "What have we as parents done to our school system? These people are trying to help our children achieve one of the most important things in life and we have tied their hands.

"Our children do not even have to take the responsibility for their actions," the letter continued. "Will we still be taking that responsibility when they are adults? Are our teachers just babysitters? No, we give our babysitters more authority than we do our teachers."

Then the writer offered a suggestion. "Maybe we should volunteer to teach school for a week. If we did, I believe the teachers would not have to 'bother' us again any time they had to discipline our children."

This obviously upset parent focused on one of the most important aspects of educational dilemma facing Americans today. Sure it's important to have competent teachers in the classroom. But the first step is maintaining discipline in that classroom, because without discipline all attempts at imparting knowledge are in vain regardless of the teacher's ability.

It's true that school discipline policies begin with school boards and fall to individual teachers to be implemented, but has our society become so "suit-happy" that we have created in our schools a fear of disciplining students?

This letter-writer is absolutely correct. School teachers are not glorified babysitters and we, as a society, are negligent if we ask them to operate as educational babysitters without our permission to give fair but adequate discipline to our unruly siblings when needed.

All eyes on Poland

One of the hope-for dividends of the awarding of the Nobel Peace Prize was to focus anew the world's attention on the Polish people's struggle for freedom against the Communists. That dividend was paid in full.

Although Mr. Walesa decided not to go to Oslo for the ceremonies, his wife did and she thrilled her audience as she read a speech prepared by her husband.

"With deep sorrow," she read, "I think of those who paid with their lives for their loyalty to Solidarity, of those who are behind prison bars and who are victims of repressions.

"We crave justice, and that is why we are so persistent in the struggle for our rights."

Egil Aarvik, chairman of the Norwegian Nobel Committee, was no less articulate as he spoke of the Polish leader.

Although Mr. Walesa is not yet a victor in his struggle for the labor union Solidarity, Mr. Aarvik said, " ... he is a victor in the eyes of the ordinary worker or farm laborer. He is a victor in the eyes of the people and their church. And he is one of the great spokesmen in the world today for the longing for freedom that can never be silenced.

These were stirring words, and thanks to the ingenious technology of modern communications systems, they rang throughout the world.

History will record that Lech Walesa was a truly deserving recipient.

Electronic mail fizzles

The optimism and high hopes expressed not too long ago by the U.S. Postal Service in regard to electronic mail have failed to materialize.

Instead of being a highly profitable operation, the agency has expended $40 million thus far on the money-losing service.

It's not easy as postal bigwigs made it out to be. The system is losing money hand over fist. From one-half to three-quarters of the volume generated monthly comes from a single firm in suburban Detroit.

The Postal Service is giving the firm a good deal, indeed. The price charged the No. 1 customer is 26 cents per page transmitted. The problem stems from the fact that it costs the Postal Service $1.50 per page — which adds up to $1.24 loss per page. At that pace, it's not surprising that postal authorities can't seem to make ends meet.

The new program, known as E-Com, was launched in January 1982. But the high-speed telecommunications system never got off the ground. The Postal Service initially had projected E-Com would handle 50 million letters for fiscal 1983. However, it ended the fiscal year with a mere 15.3 million electronic letters.

Americans should not complain. Instead, they should be thankful that not many firms are breaking down the agency's door with tons of electronic mail business. If the '83 projection had been reached, the total loss easily could have exceeded more than $100 million.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Army buddies helping Meese

WASHINGTON — Napoleon boasted that every French soldier carried a marshal's baton in his knapsack. The question now is: Does every White House counselor carry a pair of colonel's eagles in his briefcase?

Jack Anderson

I've already reported the peculiar circumstances that surrounded the promotion of President Reagan's right-hand man, Edwin Meese III, to full colonel in the Army Reserve. With the help of high-ranking friends in the Pentagon, Meese was quietly given a reserve assignment created specially for him, and a supposedly ironclad training requirement was bent to make his promotion possible.

As it happens, Meese isn't the first White House counselor to covet a colonelcy. Nearly 10 years ago, Gerald Ford's counselor, John Marsh, wanted to be promoted to colonel after 20 years in the Virginia National Guard. But he told friends he didn't have time to complete the rigorous studies required for promotion while serving as President Ford's counselor. So he gave up the quest.

Meese was not obliged to make such a choice. The Army promotion board, after lobbying from his high-ranking buddies in the reserve, decided to waive the stiff training requirement in Meese's case. By an ironic twist of fate, the secretary of the Army under whom Meese was promoted is the same John Marsh who sacrificed his hope for a colonel's eagles a decade ago.

The Army's rule-bending was understandable politically: an attempt to win an influential friend in the White House. But what is truly bizarre (even something of an insult to Meese) is the White House action that permitted him to win his ardently sought promotion. Here's what my associates Dale Van Atta and John Dillon discovered in their investigation of the Meese affair:

Under a fairly recent annual screening process conducted by the Defense Department, no federal employee can remain in the active reserve if he is considered indispensible to the government in his civilian capacity during an emergency. The reason for this is obvious: The Ready Reserve must have a trained corps of professionals who can be called up immediately in time of war. The military doesn't want to waste its reserves budget on people who won't be available when needed.

There is, in fact, an Army regulation that makes anyone who is "a key federal employee" normally ineligible to serve in the active reserve.

According to a Pentagon source who handled the Meese appointment, letters are sent out each year to every government agency — executive, legislative and judicial — requesting a list of every employee who is considered "critical to the operation of this agency."

In Meese's case, the Pentagon letter went to the White House. As one source explained, the White House didn't come right out and declare that Meese is "not in a critical position and could be a mobilization asset."

"The White House sent over a list of jobs that were critical," the source said. "The counselor to the president was not on it." So Meese can be put in uniform in case of a military emergency.

Since the reserve job — as liaison officer between the Selective Service System and Defense Department headquarters — was created specially for Meese, it is possible he could hold both his Army and White House jobs in wartime.

I've obtained the official job description for Meese's Army position. It lists eight separate duties, but when they're distilled from bureaucratic jargon to plain English, they amount to keeping up his interest in the draft and providing "technical advice" to the Selective Service director, Thomas K. Turnage.

The rewards for Meese aren't great. As a reserve colonel, he makes $2,028.36 a year and will receive an 18 percent boost in retirement pay. But if Meese is ever called up, one thing seems certain: He'll be the most powerful bird colonel in the Pentagon.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: The Environmental Protection Agency's flacks miss the flak they were getting from the press a few months ago. "We would each log in at least 50 calls a day from reporters, each one of them beginning with, 'I have a document that states ...'" one information officer reminisced the other day. Lately, the press officer noted a bit ruefully, "I'm lucky if I get half a dozen calls."

INSIDE REPORT:

Jackson cloud shading Mondale

MOBILE, Ala. — In grinding down the Rev. Jesse Jackson's irregulars here last weekend, the inexorable Mondale political machine exposed the disorganization of the famed civil rights leader's presidential campaign but by no means eliminated its threat.

Rowland Evans

Robert-Novak

Jackson was stunned at the ease by which Walter F. Mondale won endorsement of the all-black Alabama Democratic Conference (ADC). But the reaction of the losers must distress Mondale's managers. "We have just shot another bullet into Martin Luther King," the Rev. John Nettles, Alabama state president of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) declared after the vote — rhetorical excess which Jackson refused to repudiate.

Such post-mortem caterwauling showed why Jackson's candidacy is a storm cloud for the Mondale campaign and the Democratic establishment at large. Jackson threatens the solid black support Mondale needs to overcome Sen. John Glenn's presumed white Democratic majority in Southern states. But whatever happens to Glenn, Jackson also threatens cozy arrangements between black politicians and state Democratic Parties throughout the post-segregation South.

Nowhere is that linkup tighter than in Alabama, where the party is dominated by a coalition headed by the ADC and the teachers union, the Alabama Education Association (AEA), with the AFL-CIO a junior partner. Joe Reed, who heads the ADC and is a high-ranking AEA staffer, long ago committed himself to Mondale. But Jackson's late entry into the race questioned that commitment's credibility.

The suggestion of the Rev. Joseph Lowery, national SCLC president, that ADC give Mondale and Jackson a dual endorsement met neither Mondale's campaign requirements nor Reed's needs to maintain organizational control. Thus, when the ADC convened here last Saturday morning, Reed had in his hand a hard vote count showing a 3-to-1 edge for Mondale. "Do you really think Jesse Jackson can take my own people away from me?" Reed asked a friend.

It was no contest organizationally. Jackson's amateurish advance men collected few more than 800 people for a Friday night rally intended to whip up enthusiasm. Jackson could not get his hands on the ADC delegate list, from which Mondale's experienced operatives had been working for weeks. No ADC delegate heard from Jackson until Friday. He had counted on support from Birmingham's Mayor Richard Arrington, who ended up proposing the "compromise" of Mondale-for-president, Jackson-for-vice-president.

Still, Mondale's campaign was sufficiently worried to send its deputy national campaign chairman, Paul Tully, to Mobile Friday night to work over ADC delegates individually in the privacy of his hotel room. The reason: fear of Jackson's golden oratory.

Indeed, Mondale — unaccountably reading from a standard text that was numbingly familiar — was no match for the flamboyant preacher. Jackson's nerve-throbbing oration ("I never refused you when you called me; now my time has come") had listeners emotionally involved and answering back.

That's why Reed gave Mondale the final speaking position and took care that he was out of the room during Jackson's speech so that he could not be intimidated by it. But actual ADC delegates were silent and unmoved. They liked neither Jackson's assault on the AEA and organized labor nor making his support of the party's eventual nominee conditional on endorsement of his demands for changed delegate-selection rules.

Mondale's votes held. To Jackson's horrified amazement, an early supporter — Mayor Johnny Ford of Tuskegee — spoke for the Mondale-Jackson "compromise" ticket (though Ford later affirmed support for Jackson in the primary). Hearing of Jackson's low-keyed composure behind closed doors of the ADC executive committee, Paul Tully was reassured and left on the 6:35 p.m. flight, Saturday's last plane to Washington.

He may have left too soon. The open ADC session confirming the endorsement (by a vote of 116 to 38) disintegrated into a shouting match with Jackson's backers heaping abuse on Reed. "Cut out the nigger stuff!" yelled Reed's lieutenant, State Rep. Alvin Holmes. When somebody flung an overcoat at Holmes, fisticuffs were only narrowly averted.

That ugly incident, followed by anguished complaints that Reed had rigged the vote; realized fears of ADC old-timers that Jackson would split their organization. What remains to-be seen is whether it can deliver the primary to Mondale, no minor task considering the widespread view here that Jackson will pick up 60 percent of Alabama's black vote despite ADC opposition.

"I welcome going head-to-head with Joe Reed," Arnold Pinckney, the veteran Ohio politician who is Jackson's national campaign manager, told us. He and Jackson will seek to put Mondale in an unaccustomed anti-black posture, repeatedly recalling his opposition last winter to Harold Washington as mayor of Chicago. Although Jackson showed here his weakness with the black establishment, his quest for rank-and-file blacks may be high-riding Fritz Mondale's biggest single worry.

CHARLEY REESE

Trusting Communists killed Bishop

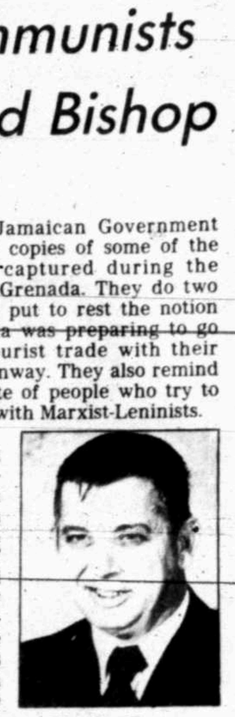
The Jamaican Government has released copies of some of the documents captured during the invasion of Grenada. They do two things: They put to rest the notion that Grenada was preparing to go after the tourist trade with their 9,000 foot runway. They also remind us of the fate of people who try to be partners with Marxist-Leninists.



Charley Reese

The Soviet Union had established an embassy in Grenada with a staff of 32 and headed by an ambassador since identified as a general in the KGB, the Soveit's secret police. Grenada is so small most countries do not have embassies there.

The captured arms included: 5.5 million rounds of rifle ammunition, 234,486 rounds of heavy weapons ammunition, 2,174 grenades, 9,756 rifles, 359 machine guns, and 200 heavy weapons. The Grenadan Army consisted of one battalion.

Among the captured documents were an agreement with the Soviet Union for an additional $25.6 million worth of arms, one with North Korea for $12 million worth of arms, and one with Cuba for the permanent stationing of Cuban military specialists on Grenada.

It is interesting that all three agreements contained a secrecy clause. In the Soviet agreement it read, "The Government of the Union of SSR and the Government of Grenada shall take all the necessary measures to ensure keeping in secret the terms and conditions of the deliveries, all the correspondence and information connected with the implementation of the present agreement."

The other two clauses are worded similarly in the agreements with Cuba and North Korea.

Communists are by nature secretive and conspiratorial as well as totalitarian and brutal. Among the released documents were notes on a series of meetings of the Central Committee of the New Jewel Movement Party which Maurice Bishop founded and led. You can track his tragic fate from the meetings.

Bishop was a socialist, perhaps even a Marxist, but apparently a charismatic idealist who had originally believed socialism would benefit the people. In the early meeting it is clear that socialism is a failure and there is much discussion of how the people are rejecting the Revolution and turning away from it.

The Marxist-Leninists on the committee turn on Bishop. Notes from one meeting conclude: "Comrade Bishop lacks the precise qualities and strengths that are particularly required to carry the process forward in these most difficult times today and to transform the Party into a Lenninist one, namely: (1) a Leninist level of organization and discipline; (2) great depth in ideological clarity; (3) brilliance in strategy and tactics; and (4) the capacity to exercise Leninist supervision, control and guidance of all areas of work of the Party."

You can translate this chilling Communist bureaucratese to mean that Bishop was unwilling to impose on his people the ruthless totalitarian control that is characteristic of a Leninist party.

Bishop was soon accused of being a democratic socialist and disarmed and confine "for his own safety." After he had been freed by his supporters and then he and they were shot down by the communists, this was hailed as "... a victory for progress and socialism."

Bishop discovered too late that even a socialist cannot form a partnership with Leninists for there is no room for democracy in their socialist vision. Without exception, every coalition government which included Communists has been overthrown by the Communists.

Communists are only interested in sharing power temporarily until they can arrange the execution of the "useful fools" who made the mistake of trusting them.

BEN WICKS

"Imagine the Polish workers sending me a present."

The Rev. Jesse Jackson signs in as an official presidential candidate in the New Hampshire secretary of state's office on Thursday. Looking on are Portsmouth businessman Edward Theobald, center, Jackson's New Hampshire campaign manager; Theobald's daughter; and Mel King, right, the unsuccessful mayoral candidate from Boston, who will help coordinate Jackson's Massachusetts campaign.

Meese: Scrooge actually generous

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a tongue-in-cheek defense of his comments about hunger in America, presidential counselor Edwin Meese III suggests that Scrooge wasn't such a skinflint after all and may have overpaid his hapless clerk Bob Cratchit

The way Meese sees it, old Ebenezer "had his faults, but he wasn't unfair to anybody."

Offering a revisionist interpretation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," Meese told the National Press Club on Thursday that Scrooge "had bad press in his time."

Meese was likened to Scrooge by a radio commentator last week after the presidential adviser told reporters some people "go to soup kitchens because the food is free, and that's easier than paying for it."

Meese made the remark during an interview with The Associated Press and other news services in which he also said there was no authoritative evidence that children go hungry in America.

He expressed hope that the report by a White House task force on hunger, due out in January, would "get to the bottom of some of these allegations that have been unsubstantiated."

Meese's comments prompted widespread criticism from Democrats and social welfare activitists who said they reflect the Reagan administration's insensitivity to the poor.

On Wednesday, President Reagan said Meese's statements were taken "totally out of context," and added "if there is one person in this country hungry, that is one too many."

During his luncheon speech Thursday, Meese said the administration shows compassion for the poor and is dedicated to spreading economic independence to low-income people.

Meese ended his remarks with a reference to the classic Dickens Christmas tale, suggesting that Scrooge's long-suffering clerk wasn't truly needy.

"As a matter of fact, Bob Cratchit was paid 10 shillings a week, which was a very good wage for that time," Meese said. "Furthermore, the free market wouldn't allow Scrooge to exploit poor old Bob."

Cratchit lived in a home not a tenement, his wife didn't have to work and at a time when England did not have public schools, Cratchit could read, Meese said. Furthermore, "he was able to afford the traditional Christmas dinner and plum pudding."

"I just hope everyone understood I was kidding," Meese said later.

But Meese's earlier comments about hunger continued to draw criticism, including an invitation from the president of the National Urban Coalition to take a cross-country tour to see hungry people.

"They're out there," said M. Carl Holman, head of the private, non-profit research organization. "And if Mr. Meese would like to take a tour with us, we would take him on a tour of some of these cities, let him talk not only to city officials but to some of the federal officials who themselves know what's happening."

During his luncheon appearance, Meese was asked if he would accept an invitation to eat turkey neck soup on Christmas Day at a soup kitchen in Oakland, Calif.

"I don't think I'm going to be in Oakland on that particular day," he responded.

The White House and Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, meanwhile, sparred over the speaker's charge that the Reagan administration is holding up $44 million approved by Congress to help state and local agencies distribute surplus food to the needy.

Load of baled marijuana blocks traffic in desert

INDEPENDENCE, Calif. (AP) — A 775-pound load of baled marijuana was discovered blocking a road in the middle of Death Valley National Monument, and deputies say they have no idea how it got there.

The dope mound was discovered on Badwater Road in Death Valley about noon Wednesday by motorists, Inyo County sheriff's Deputy Bob Stirling said.

Lt. Bill Lutze said some of the packages contained Spanish writing, but otherwise, "We have no leads on who dropped it or where it came from."

Mondale ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale holds a wide lead over his seven rivals for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination, according to a Washington Post-ABC News poll of registered Democrats.

The poll, published in today's editions of the newspaper, showed Mondale with the support of 49 percent of the 404 registered Democrats surveyed between Dec. 9-13.

Ohio Sen. John Glenn was second with 23 percent, followed by Rev. Jesse Jackson, 10 percent; former South Dakota Sen. George McGovern, 8 percent; California Sen. Alan Cranston, 5 percent; Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, 2 percent; former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, 1 percent; and less than 1 percent for South Carolina Sen. Ernest Hollings. Two percent supported other candidates or had no preference.

Artist plans light show

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Taking the sky for his canvas and colored gases for his brush, an artist plans to paint the heavens next spring in a three-minute high-altitude light show — with a little help from the space shuttle.

The work is the product of six years of effort by Joseph Davis, a fellow at the Center for Advanced Visual Studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Davis' plan involves creating artificial versions of the Northern Lights with the use of a number of components including an electron gun, gas and a radio frequency shield.

Davis, 33, has paid the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $10,000 to carry a 200-pound, five-cubic-foot capsule that will open at the right moment and begin discharging into the ionosphere.

"I began in about 1977 to negotiate with the NASA Space Transportation Systems headquarters in Washington," Davis said.

Woman goes underground for pollution

EDITOR'S NOTE — There is something rotten in the groundwaters of America, those deep springs, lakes and rivers that are the hidden reservoir of the nation. Now a 75-year-old pioneer in checking pollution in surface waters is delving deeper to save a basic resource.

By MICHAEL RODDY

LAFAYETTE HILL, Pa. (AP) — Forty years ago, scientist Ruth Patrick developed a way to diagnose a river's health by examining the organisms living in it. Now she is trying to alert the nation to troubles in the invisible underground water supply.

Ms. Patrick, who made her reputation by wading into, by her own account, at least 800 or 900 rivers on every continent except Africa to analyze pollution's effects, has turned her attention to the springs, underground lakes and rivers that most people walk over but never see.

Speaking to senators, representatives and their staffs in Washington recently, she said that groundwater provides 96 percent of the nation's drinking water, at least 1 percent of the underground supply is contaminated, the extent of contamination is growing, and nobody knows what to do about it.

In the East, she said, the problem was caused by septic contamination, illustrated by the seepage that has ruined many wells on New York's Long Island. In the Midwest and other farming areas, the culprit is fertilizer and its high concentration of nitrates.

"The contamination is widespread all over the United States," she said. "That doesn't mean every well in every (congressional) district, but in every congressional district we have found contamination."

"We have no national policy, no national monitoring system," she warned. "We don't know how extensive the problem is and it is bound to get worse."

Ms. Patrick, the first woman to serve as a director of the Dupont Co., is a science adviser to President Reagan, the chairman of the environmental research department at the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia, and a pioneer among America's women scientists.

In 1948, she assembled a team that conducted the first comprehensive survey of the effects of pollution on a watershed by studying plant and animal life in the Conestoga Creek which drains into the Susquehanna River near Lancaster.

"I created the methodology to go into a river, look at all the organisms and come up with a pattern of a healthy, natural stream and then show how pollution affects it," she says.

Forty years later, at age 75, she's still at it. In August, she braved 102-degree temperatures in the Southeast to cull field samples from the Flint River in Georgia, where a citizens group and a company have agreed to abide by her findings of ways to abate pollution from the company's plant.

To Ms. Patrick, it's another opportunity to put into practice one of her favorite maxims:

"You can have use without abuse if you are careful about what you put into a stream," she says. "Every stream has an ability to absorb and break down a significant number of complex compounds."

She does not subscribe to the theory that the best way to protect the environment is to return to almost primitive conditions.

"You can't have society without industry," she says. "We wouldn't have the things we need, food, shelter, our homes. But on the other hand, industry has to realize that it is a responsible group."

Ms. Patrick says industry has cleaned up a lot in the past 40 years, since the days when a ship that spent a night or two in the Delaware River would have emerged with its hull blackened by chemicals.

The once-polluted Delaware now has shad runs in the spring. Salmon have returned to the Connecticut and there is more recreational use of the Snake River in Washington and Oregon, she says.

On a recent field trip to the Wissahickon River, which she described as one of the nation's first industrial streams, Ms. Patrick found the water teeming with "thousands and thousands of fish" as she snapped up samples of algae with a teaspoon, and water pennies, may fly, cadice fly and damsel fly larvae with a forceps.

When she first examined the Wissahickon in the 1940s she said she found very few species of aquatic life. Now she finds many and is pleased.

Ms. Patrick became interested in science while growing up in eastern Missouri, where her father took her on fishing expeditions and field trips.

Her father had studied botany and kindled his daughter's interest in tiny water organisms called diatoms, single-celled algae. Ms. Patrick, whose life's work has been the study of diatoms, says they fix more of the sun's energy than all the trees, shrubs and grasses on land combined.

Families may give up phones

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poor families are less likely than previously thought to give up their telephones because of rate hikes, according to a study commissioned by Bell System companies.

The study, conducted by National Economic Research Associates Inc. of White Plains, N.Y., is expected to be made public within the next two weeks.

The Federal Communications Commission plans to introduce a $2 monthly "access fee" for residential customers next April, with proceeds replacing revenues now received by local phone companies from long-distance callers. Critics say the access fee would force the poor and elderly to give up local phone service.

The study said a $10 increase in local rates was likely to reduce phone service to poor families to 71.4 percent, from the current 80.5 percent of families below poverty level who have phones.

FTC asks for views on dealers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now is your chance to tell the government whether used car dealers should be required to tell customers of any defects in second-hand cars on their lots.

The Federal Trade Commission asked earlier this week for public comment on the proposal, which has been delayed by a lawsuit filed by a used car dealer. The FTC sought public comment under an order from the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York in September as part of an agreement reached in the case.

The FTC wants written comments from the public by Jan. 16 on whether the disclosure rule is necessary to protect consumers, how such a rule might affect car prices and trade-in allowances, and how the rule could be enforced.

Nance dances; Suns blitz LA

By the Associated Press

The Los Angeles Lakers have lost that magic — Earvin "Magic" Johnson, to be more exact.

"They're a lot different team without Magic Johnson, and I think that shows," Phoenix forward Larry Nance said after the Suns handed the Lakers their lastest National Basketball Association loss. "They still run the ball a lot, but they don't run it quite as fast as with Magic."

With Nance scoring 33 points, Phoenix eclipsed the Magic-less Lakers 114-104 Thursday night.

In other NBA games, it was Chicago 113, New York 107; Utah 138, Houston 111; Golden State 119, Kansas City 116, and Portland 118, New Jersey 105.

Johnson, the Lakers' all-star guard, dislocated his right index finger on Dec. 2 and will sidelined until mid-January. Los Angeles has struggled to a 2-2 record since then.

"It's exasperating knowing we're a good team and we can't play effectively," said Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. "We don't want to turn into a bad team."

Nance's layin with 2:39 to go and Walter Davis' jumper 1:01 later made it 112-100 before Nance slammed home his final points with 38 seconds left to seal the victory.

Nance's 33-point effort was just two shy of his career and season high.

Jazz 138, Rockets 111

Andrian Dantley scored 32 points and Darrell Griffith 29 as Utah defeated Houston. Lewis Lloyd topped the losers with 20 points, while rookie Ralph Sampson had 18.

Dantley scored 19 of his points in the second quarter after Griffith had tallied 17 points in the first period as the Jazz took control early and won the game going away.

Bulls 113, Knicks 107

Guards Mitchell Wiggins and Quintin Dailey combined for 27 points in the fourth quarter to lead Chicago past New York.

"We were just running and gunning," said Wiggins, who finished with 25 points, 23 in the second half and 15 in the final period.

Dailey scored 27 points to lead Chicago, while New York's Bernard King topped all scorers with a season-high 36.

Warriors 119, Kings 116

Lester Conner scored four points in the final 27 seconds to lift Golden State over Kansas City.

The Warriors, trailing by 15 late in the third period, rallied behind Mickey Johnson and several steals by Conner. With 27 seconds left, Connor followed up a missed shot by Johnson to give Golden State a 117-116 lead.

Conner then made two free throws with two seconds left.

Blazers 118, Nets 105

Calvin Natt and Jim Paxson fueled a third-quarter Portland outburst as the Trail Blazers defeated New Jersey to move into first place in the Pacific Division.

The Blazers scored 10 straight points during the spurt and outscored the Nets 21-8 over a stretch of nearly seven minutes.

Natt finished with 20 points, while Paxon added 18. Otis Birdsong led New Jersey with 16 points.

The Biggest One: Lee vs. Judson

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

IRVING — Forget the moon. This is no small step for man. This is the state football championship. One giant leap for glory. Midland Lee vs. San Antonio Converse Judson. One owns the Lone Star. Which one?

The answer comes here Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in Texas Stadium. It is for the state football title, but it is also a sideshow of secondary plots that will weave and twist its story for the first time over state-wide live TV coverage.

It has every thing a football fan could want. Neither school has ever won a state championship. Neither school has even played in a state championship game. A new tradition will be born.

YOU WANT talent? This one has talent. Judson's high-powered Rockets have fullback Chris Pryor, who just happens to be Texas' all-time leading rusher in Class 5A with 2,600 yards.

You want the sideshow? Lee fullback Isaac Garnett needs 69 yards to break the 2,000-yard barrier and 106 to move ahead of Tyler's Earl Campbell single season mark of 2,036. Lee's junior halfback Walter Jones needs 19 yards to surpass the 1,000-yard barrier to become only Lee's second back in history to obtain that figure in a single season. Garnett was the first some eight games ago.

The championship will mark the end of an NFL-type 16-game schedule for both teams. There is no where else to play. The marble bag is packed and to the winner will go the spoils. A year's reign at the Top of Texas is the marble in the middle.

It could be a contest that could keep one-inch goose bumps in place for 2½ hours. Both have high-powered offensive machines, well oiled and in gear.

Well, in short, it's a big game. They don't come any bigger on the high school level. Just ask Lee head football coach Spike Dykes.

"It's a big game, isn't it Spike?"

"Wellllll, it's a big game, but..." says Dykes. "It's really another one just like the last five we've played. Your first goal is to be a district contender and then if you're lucky enough to get in the playoffs, you play on a week-to-week basis. We've just run out of weeks.

"IT'S STILL your basic 48-minute game. I don't think they are changing any of the rules. I remember when I was coaching at Coahoma. We got in the playoffs and we had two sports writers there for the game. It was big time. Later, we even got to play in a stadium that had restrooms and a concession stand. It's all relative.

"I'm so proud of what our kids have done this year because I honestly feel that they haven't taken themselves seriously. They work so hard and this is a nice reward for their efforts. But I don't think they realize that this game is any bigger than any of the others we have played. We're just going out there and fire our best shot."

This is the second appearance in a state championship for Dykes. He coached the Ballinger Bearkats to the Class 2A finals in 1953. "We didn't do too well in that one. We lost to the Huntsville Hornets, but I'm not telling the score."

It was 40-6 coach, but no one expects this one to be that kind of game, unless it's 40-36.

Statistics say it should be an offensive game. And if there is a big edge anywhere, it goes to the Lee defense. The question is can they turn in another golden moment against another great offensive team?

"Judson has great backs and Pryor is something special. They have nine starters back from a team that went to the semifinals last year. That should tell you something about Judson. They can score from anywhere on the field, on any play," said Dykes.

"Defensively, Judson is quick and aggressive. They gamble a lot and are always trying to force something to happen so they can get the ball back to Pryor."

BUT IF Judson looks good on paper to the Lee coaches, Rocket coach Frank Arnold knows the feeling when he looks at Lee.

"I expect a great football game, but our defense is going to be severely tested. Lee's offensive line is awesome — big, fast youngsters are up there," said Arnold. "Obviously, we are going to have to hang onto the football and score when we get the opportunity. You don't want Lee in a position where they can give and give to Garnett, Jones and (Tyrone) Thurman. We have Pryor, and he's a great back — the best I've ever been around — but Lee is awesome when you put all three of its backs on the field."

Pryor would be enough for most teams to be concerned with, but the Rockets have other talents. Tailback Chip Lambert, a speed merchant, has 772 yards rushing this year and 11 touchdowns.

Three games ago Judson lost its starting quarterback when Cap Waters injured a rib against Alice. The Rockets never skipped a beat.

"It's a long story, but Allen Dear, who will be starting Saturday for us, was our quarterback all last year for 15 games. Dear hurt his arm before this season started and Waters did so well that Allen never got his job back. He's done well for us and he is our best passer," said Arnold.

It's unusual that a team could be so strong at quarterback, but Arnold is solid at that position. Dear has completed 28 of 50 passes for 375 yards in his limited role. Waters is the only starter who will be missing against Lee.

Judson flanker Alton Mitchell has caught 26 passes this year, more than the combined total of receptions of the entire Rebel squad.

But with Garnett standing at 1,931 yards rushing, Jones at 981 and Tyrone Thurman at 608, the Rebels have not suffered from a lack of offensive punch.

THE REBELS still have safety Andre Mayfield on the shelf with a knee injury, but the Plano victory has tested Lee's secondary this week as injuries cropped up.

Defensive backs Sergio Ochoa and Michael Wallace both have sprained ankles. They were improving daily, but have not been at full speed this week. Defensive backs Earl Davis and Steve Woodlee have had shoulder problems. The Lee secondary looks like the walking wounded at Gettysburg.

"We hope they will all be ready to play, but we just don't know right now," said Lee assistant coach Jack Tayrien.

Defensively, Judson has three players who are considered outstanding. End Melvin Echard and tackle David Trees each have 11 quarterback sacks this year. Safety Mike Calabro has eight interceptions to his credit.

But Lee is a team that takes a back seat to no one on defense. The front wall of Nicky Tomlin, Eddie Kittle, Pat Stevens and Carlos Ortega have been rock sblid. The linebacking corps of Reggie Ellis, Michael Johnson and Billy Cornelius may be the best linebacking unit on one team in the state of Texas. It will be here that Pryor will get a firm test. If Pryor can get past those seven, it could be a long day for the Rebels.

BUT LEE has faced some great backs this year. Odessa High's Charles Hunter, a blue chipper who had over 1,400 yards in regular season play, gained less than 40 yards rushing against Lee. Permian's Britt Hager was held to less than 70 in two games against Lee. Piano's Scott Huckabay managed only 60 yards rushing against the Lee defense. Pryor could be in for the long day.

If it is a Lee day, the University Interscholastic League may be the overall winner. This is the second year that the UIL has allowed two teams from each district to enter the playoffs. Last year Beaumont West Brook, a second place district team, won the state title with a victory over L.D. Bell. If Lee wins Saturday, it will mark the second year in a row that a second place team has emerged as the state champion.

It all goes to show that a lot of good teams have been left out of the playoffs over the years.

Leonard's un-retirement doesn't figure

"In order to destroy a man, it is only necessarily to give his work the character of uselessness." – Schopenhauer.

All my life, I'd looked forward to retirement, beginning with when I first went to work. It was to be a reward for a lifetime of deadlines met, planes caught, cars rented, Holiday Inns slept in, insults taken, home life missed, dues paid, Joneses kept up with, outside opportunities squandered. You can't stop to smell the roses if there are quotas to be filled, bills paid, mouths fed – and miles to go before you sleep, as the poet said.

So, whenever anyone warned that day was coming and I should dread it, a little secret smile would play about my lips. I remember one day when a newly retired colleague was barred by a new security guard from a locker-room door and a friend exclaimed to me: "See! The minute you retire you can't get in a locker room any more!" I thought to myself "Buddy-boy, the minute I retire, wild horses couldn't drag me into another locker room!"

That's what I thought.

Today, I am a badly shaken man. My values are beginning to sag. And all because of Sugar Ray Leonard.

SUGAR RAY Leonard is a superbly gifted young pugilist who won a gold medal, several million dollars and instant adulatory recognition wherever he went in the world as a result of a career in the prize ring. He also won a detached retina. The retina is the negative which lets the brain read what the eye's lens sees.

Sugar Ray retired from his cruel sport at the height of his powers. Most people dream all their lives of being able to retire and take a cruise around the world with their loved ones. They dream of azure seas, moonlight sails, tropical lagoons, South Sea paradises. Trouble is, when they get to them, their bones ache, their feet hurt, their arthritis acts up, they can't see at night, champagne makes them ill, the orchestra makes too much noise and, all in all, they'd rather be back in Peoria trimming roses or emptying the trash.

But Sugar Ray is only 27. So, I thought he had the best of two worlds: retirement and the means to enjoy it at an age when his glands and senses would let him.

Well, as you may have noticed over the weekend, Sugar Ray wasn't having any. He chucked it all. At the risk of losing an eye, maybe both of them, he's going back in the rat race. He couldn't stand retirement. He couldn't take the carpet slippers, the garden in the back. He couldn't stand not getting hit for a living. He couldn't stand being a nobody.

You can see what that does to the notion of retirement as a reward, retirement as the culmination of a dream. Here is a man who would risk mutilation to get out of what most of use strive a lifetime to get into. He doesn't need the money, he doesn't need the fame. He just can't abide being an "ex." What does that say for the joys of not having to show up for work every day?

The world of sport, in general, is a poor advertisement for Leisure World. John Henry, at a horse age the equivalent of a sexagenarian, is winning horse races. That must kill his feet. Sam Snead is still teeing it up in golf tournaments at 71. Imagine how his back aches? Pete Rose is still sliding headfirst into home plate at an age when he should have trouble climbing stairs. Dempsey came back. Jim Brown will if somebody hands him a football. Satchel Paige wouldn't quit.

HOW CAN you miss nosebleeds, split lips, cut eyes, subdural hemorrhages, toothaches, headaches, roadwork at 5 in the morning in the snow, busted knuckles, swollen spleens? Why would you want to buck for another retinal detachment instead of a slow boat to China or a winter in the Alps? Is life really that boring when the cheering stops? Is it that hard to see other people playing around with your title?

It must be. Only the other night we were treated to the spectacle of Uncle Walter himself, the heavyweight champ of all network anchormen, complaining petulantly about the quality of the newscasters succeeding him, obviously regretting he didn't stay around to slug it out with them, teach them a thing or two.

Aren't having your own sailboat and sleeping till noon or golfing whenever you want to and throwing away your clocks enough?

It's depressing. Does this mean someday I myself will regret not being able to go down in a dressing room and asking a guy who just threw the interception that lost the Super Bowl, "How come you didn't notice you could run it in?" or asking the pitcher who just threw the home run that lost the World Series, "Ever occur to you to walk him in that situation?"

Is heaven, after all, a place where you work 9 to 5 with two weeks vacation a year? Maybe hell is where you got nothing to do and Schopenhauer was right. He also said that "the two foes of human happiness are pain and boredom." Sugar Ray obviously feels the former is the lesser of two evils.

Above is the architect's drawing of a proposed racetrack in Thackerville, Ok., that developers hope will attract fans from Oklahoma City and the Dallas area.

Plans for Oklahoma Downs on Texas border announced

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — John Wolcott, a Shreveport, La., oilman, today announced his plans to build a $40 million horse racing track in Thackerville, which could draw thoroughbred-race fans from Texas and Oklahoma.

Wolcott, who originated and built the Louisiana Downs track in the Shreveport area of Louisiana, said his planned new track, to be called "Oklahoma Downs," will be able to accomodate up to 29,000 race fans.

"The facility would be totally enclosed, heated and air conditioned with full restaurant capabilities, a one-mile oval with an inner turf course," Wolcott said.

Wolcott said Love County on the Texas line in southern Oklahoma is "the ideal place" for a race track.

"The proposed track sits in the middle of a 100-mile radius encompassing four and a-half million people," Wolcott said. "It is easily accessible to those from Oklahoma City and the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex on the south."

The proposed site is less than two hours drive from Oklahoma City and less than an hour's drive from Dallas and Fort Worth, Wolcott said.

The Oklahoma Downs Inc. application on file with the state Horse Racing Commission requested 93 days of thoroughbred racing beginning late April and running through Labor Day, with racing five days a week and holidays.

Stall space for 1,350 horses is included in the initial construction plan now before the racing commission.

Wolcott said he is working with Jon Ross of Ada to plan a race meet for quarter horses, appaloosas and paints, in addition to the thoroughbred meet.

The Wolcott pari-mutuel horse racing application was the second filed in the state after Oklahoma voters approved pari-mutuel betting last year. Blue Ribbon Downs in Sallisaw filed the first application, and Tulsa developer William Crews will file papers Friday for a pari-mutuel horse racing track south of Tulsa, said his son, Gary.

Dan Fick, executive director of the racing commission, said once all three applications are completed, the commissioners must "see how each one (project) stands on its own merits, then see how each fits the total picture."

The commission "is trying to adopt a master plan — if we grant a license here, how will it affect an application there?" Fick said.

Commission review of the projects will "take time. It's not a rubber-stamp type of thing," Fick said.

For example, an open meeting was held in Sallisaw to hear the community's reaction to the Blue Ribbon Downs proposal. "We may have a meeting in Thackerville," 75 miles north of Dallas, he said. The Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation also conducts its own probe, he added.

Blue Ribbon Downs, which would race quarter horses, appaloosas and paints, would be spending $2 million to upgrade its facilities for pari-mutuel racing, Fick said. Capacity would be 5,000 spectators.

Crews' project, Winchester Park, will be a multipurpose facility south of Tulsa on U.S. 75. Plans call for a 1,200-acre complex to include a hotel, a golf course, a sports stadium, condominiums, a rodeo and soccer arena and an equine therapy center.

The project would be funded through $100 million in public stock.

The younger Crews, who is secretary of his father's racing organization, said a ruling on the Winchester Park application is expected within 60 days.

Fick, though, said 60 days would be a "reasonable amount of time if the application is letter-perfect," and added that 90 days might be a better estimate.

Coach tries 'stall' offense

RENSSELAER, Ind. (AP) — David Smith has finally come up with the ultimate locker room joke.

The laugh was on Smith when the St. Joseph's College assistant basketball coach was locked inside the restroom of a locker room before last Saturday's home game.

But Smith, 36, is having fun this week trying to explain how he missed the first half of the Pumas' contest against visiting Wisconsin-Parkside. He also is taking credit for "loosening up" the team so it could rally for a 73-70 victory.

"When the team went out a few minutes before the game, I ducked into the restroom," Smith said in a telephone interview. "The team manager was doing his job when he saw the open door and closed it. But the door only locks from the outside.

"I pounded on the door and yelled through a vent, but no one came. The shower area has good acoustics, though, so I could hear the announcer. Another assistant, Kevin Sims, jiggled the door, but by the time I ran over to it, he was gone."

Smith's job during a game is to chart fouls, keep track of timeouts and advise head coach George Waggoner about the opponent's personnel.

"It was frustrating. I was beginning to wonder if anybody missed me," he said, laughing. "I never realized how long a half of a basketball game can last. But I made the best of it by keeping track of timeouts and fouls. I couldn't tell who made free throws, though."

Trailing 37-34 at halftime, the team returned to the locker room. The players went to one area, while the coaches huddled in the room where Smith was biding his time.

"George looked at me, and said 'Where have you been?' We all had a laugh, including the players. I think it loosened up the team. They were spitting nails when they came in at halftime.

"It was funny when I came onto the court. My wife and dad were in the stands. Everybody had been running around looking for me. It was like 'twenty questions' when I came to the bench.

"There was a wave of laughter through the crowd as people found out what happened," he said.

Smith even put the incident into a philosophical formula.

"I just told George to keep it close and I'd come in for the second half. I'm glad it worked out," he said.

Kuhn sits Aikens, Howe, Wilson, Martin for year

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn sounded a stern warning as he imposed the stiffest drug penalties in baseball's history.

"We take the drug problem and our role as models for young people seriously," Kuhn said. "We will do what is reasonably necessary to protect the game."

On Thursday, the commissioner's office revealed that it had imposed one-year suspensions without pay on Steve Howe of Los Angeles, Willie Wilson and Willie Aikens of Kansas City and former Royals player Jerry Martin.

In Howe's case, the suspension could last even longer than one year. Howe's suspension cannot be reviewed until Dec. 15, 1984, at which time it could be extended if he has not conquered his cocaine dependency.

Kuhn left open the possibility of ending the other three players' suspensions as early as May 15, when their cases will be reviewed. Kuhn cited their three-month prison sentences for attempted possession of cocaine and public apologies as mitigating circumstances. At the same time, Kuhn said each of the three had admitted during his investigation that they had occasionally used cocaine.

"The two situations are very different," Kuhn said in differentiating between the suspensions given Howe and the three others. "In Howe's case, it clearly will be a year and could be longer."

Also facing possible sanction was Vida Blue, a former MVP and Cy Young award-winning pitcher who was cut by the Royals last August. Blue was to be sentenced on a misdemeanor charge of possessing three grams of cocaine on Monday.

Kuhn, who will end nearly 15 years as commissioner on March 1, said the players may work out with their teams during the suspension but they will not be paid.

"A message?" the commissioner asked rhetorically. "Yes, I think it is a message."

While this message came through loud and clear to baseball's front offices, Wilson said he wasn't sure he agreed fully with it.

Interviewed from prison, Wilson told ABC-TV's Nightline news show that he understood Kuhn's warning, "but if he wants to make me a role model, that's fine on the field. Baseball is my job. But off the field, I'm a role model to my own kids. That's all I have to do."

Wilson said he had stopped using cocaine long before he was arrested and that he got involved with the police only because he made a phone call to a drug dealer for a friend.

Was there a lesson to be learned in all this?

"Don't make phone calls for other people," Wilson said.

At a news conference in Los Angeles, Dodgers President Peter O'Malley said, "We respect the commissioner's decision. We will certainly abide by it, and, quite frankly, I agree with it. Baseball and illegal drugs are incompatible and we will not tolerate the use of these drugs by any of our employees.

"However, Steve Howe has the complete support of the Dodger organization in his rehabilitation program. We will do everything possible to hasten the day when Steve can join his teammates. I am optimistic that Steve will be pitching again in 1985 but he is responsible for his actions and it will be up to him to prove that he is capable of returning."

However, Roy Bell, Howe's attorney, said he was disappointed by the decision "for a lot of reasons, not the least of which is that in 1983 that's turn of the century knee-jerk reaction.

"I don't think you should punish someone who has a disease," Bell added. "I think the statement that Howe returned positive tests for cocaine use last month) is accurate. The guy (Howe) is ill.

"The interesting thing is that he's aware he is not well. He is improving. He is now seeing the Dodgers' doctor, which was my suggestion and he agreed to do it. He's trying. I think it's a shame that they (the Commissioner's office) are spending their energies on punishment rather than helping these people."

Howe's bullpen mate and close friend, Tom Niedenfuer, said, "Everyone's got to be feeling bad for Steve, with Steve, for everything he's got to go through next year. He's been through a lot in the past year. I think the commissioner reached the point where he believed something had to be done. It's just a tragic day for baseball."

In Kansas City, Willie Wilson's agent said Kuhn's decision to suspend the all-star outfielder and two other members of the 1983 Kansas City Royals for drug involvement "is an additional blow to the players and their families who have already suffered."

Representatives for Wilson, outfielder Jerry Martin and first baseman Willie Aikens all expressed disappointment when Kuhn issued his ruling in New York.

A representative for Martin, who has been released by the Royals, said the decision "seriously jeopardizes Jerry's baseball career."Ron Shapiro, Aikens' agent, vowed that the power-hitting first baseman "will play again."

"I am very disappointed," Jack Sands, Wilson's agent, told The Associated Press from Boston. "that Willie is away from his family over Christmas and being made to suffer the additional blow of knowing that once he is released, he will not be able to get back immediately and show the fans of Kansas City what he can do to help his team win a championship."

William Simpson, Martin's attorney, said from Columbia, S.C., that Martin may never be able to play again because of the decision.

"This appoach to the problem does not help anyone," Simpson said. "It doesn't help baseball. It doesn't help the commissioner's office. And it certainly does not help Jerry Martin."

"I also think it failed to take into account the players are paying a heavy price already in repaying their debt to society through the criminal justice system," Shapiro told the AP from Baltimore.

"I don't think you should punish someone who has a disease," Bell said. "The guy is ill."

Although Howe will not be paid, Kuhn said that "with the advance approval of the commissioner's office, the Dodgers may, if they desire, advance funds for family necessities ..."

Wilson and Martin, both outfielders, began serving their three-month sentences at a minimum security federal prison in Fort Worth, Texas on Dec. 5. Aikens, who is completing a drug-rehabilitation program, is scheduled to enter the same facility on Jan. 3.

Wilson, whose .332 average earned him the American League batting title in 1982, was the only player who figured in Kansas City's plans for next season. Aikens, a first baseman, presumably will be traded, and Martin was set free at the season's conclusion.

"Having been handed this decision, we can now look forward to the 1984 season with clarity and plan accordingly," Royals General Manager John Schuerholz said. "The message is clear — he (Kuhn) cares about the integrity of the sport."

Wilson's agent, Jack Sands, said he felt his client had been through enough.

"I am very disappointed that Willie is away from his family over Christmas and being made to suffer the additional blow of knowing that once he is released, he will not be able to get back immediately and show the fans of Kansas City what he can do to help his team win a championship," Sands said.

The Major League Players Association was expected to file a grievance of Kuhn's sanctions.

"There will be a more formal, more complete reaction tomorrow," acting union head Don Fehr said. "I have just received the text of the letters the commissioner has written. While I have had a chance to glance through them, I have not had an opportunity to study them."

The suspensions were the longest given to active players since the 1945 Mexican League raid on wartime major leaguers. About 20 players, including Mickey Owen of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Danny Gardella of the New York Giants, were suspended for five years for going to play in Mexico. Commissioner A.B. "Happy" Chandler later rescinded most of the suspensions.

In his 15 years as commissioner, Kuhn's longest previous suspension was the half season he gave Denny McLain of Detroit in 1970 on firearms and gambling charges. The longest previous drug-related suspension was the one month given to Alan Wiggins of San Diego in 1982. Kuhn also suspended Ferguson Jenkins, then with Texas, for two weeks on a drug charge in 1980.

"As a sport, we have been very fortunate the problems with illegal drugs have not been epidemic," Kuhn said. "Nonetheless, we recognize that our players are models for young people and must behave accordingly ... we have continually warned everyone in baseball that we cannot and will not tolerate illegal drug use."

Baseball community divided on suspensions

The president of the Los Angeles Dodgers voiced support Thursday of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's decision to suspend drug-troubled pitcher Steve Howe for one year. But Howe's attorney and representatives of two present and one former player from the Kansas City Royals who received the same penalty were deeply disappointed with the commissioner's decision.

Peter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, said in a statement issued by the team, "We respect the Commissioner's decision, we will certainly abide by it, and, quite frankly, I agree with it. Baseball and illegal drugs are incompatible and we will not tolerate the use of these drugs by any of our employees.

"However, Steve Howe has the complete support of the Dodger organization in his rehabilitation program. We will do everything possible to hasten the day when Steve can join his teammates. # Trump tempts Theismann with multi-dollar offer

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Joe Theismann, the quarterback of the Washington Redskins, is considering a multiyear, multimillion dollar offer to join the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League, the Richmond Times-Dispatch reported Friday.

The newspaper said it learned from an unnamed USFL source that Theismann and Donald Trump, the 37-year-old New York real estate millionaire who recently bought the Generals, have talked by telephone several times and met face-to-face Nov. 29 in New York to discuss the possibility of Theismann joining the team.

"Trump has made no formal offer," said the source, who insisted on anonymity. "But he and Joe have talked about a three-year deal that would make Joe the highest paid professional team sport athlete in history."

Reaches at his northern Virginia home Thursday night, Theismann said, "I have no comment on any of that. I'm just not discussing my contract situation with anybody."

Asked if it were true that he had met with Trump and had received an offer, Theismann said, "I will not confirm that and I will not deny that. The less said about this, the better. You understand, don't you?"

Trump could not be reached for comment.

Theismann, the No. 1-rated passer in the National Football League who has thrown for 3,541 yards and 27 touchdowns this season, is in the second year of a four-year contract signed prior to the 1982 season, the season when Theismann led the Redskins to victory in the Super Bowl. This year, the Redskins are 13-2 and, with a victory over the New York Giants at home Saturday, can clinch the NFC East title.

Terms of Theismann's contract with the Redskins call for him to receive approximately $315,000 this season. At that salary, he is among the lowest paid quarterbacks in the NFL, according to figures compiled by the NFL Players Association.

Cooke and Theismann met as recently as Dec. 8 and were described by the source as "far apart, as far apart as they've ever been. Joe is really frustrated by the situation."

The source said Theismann and Trump discussed two possibilities.

"One, Joe joins the Generals right away and takes his chances on a lawsuit filed by the Redskins and the National Football League," he said. "Two, Joe plays out the last two years of his contract with Washington, then joins the Generals for the 1986, 1987 and 1988 seasons."

If Theismann plays the next two seasons with the Redskins before he goes to New Jersey, his home state, he would be 36-years-old when he joins the Generals.

"That doesn't matter to Don Trump," said the source. "He wants the best, and Theismann is the best. Trump is willing to wait if he has to, and he's willing to pay a great deal of money to get the best."

Bucs, Oilers need a reprieve

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"They're only 1½ games apart with 14 games to go," snickered one wag at National Football League headquarters.

He wasn't looking at the top of the standings. He was looking at the bottom of the barrel, at the Houston Oilers and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who will wind up 1-2 ... or, more accurately, 27-28 ... in the standings.

At stake is the No. 1 pick in next year's college draft — at stake for the Oilers, that is. If they win it, it's theirs to do with as they wish. If the Bucs get it, there'll be dancing in the hallways in Cincinnati. The Bengals own Tampa Bay's No. 1.

Which brings us to Sunday's games — Houston at Baltimore and Tampa Bay at Detroit. If the Oilers and Bucs both win or both lose, they'll finish tied for the NFL's worst record. That'll get into play one of those charming tie-breakers, in this case "strength of schedule."

The league will look over the composite records of the two teams' opponents, determine which was weaker and bestow upon the greater weakling the earlier selection. As of now, Tampa Bay's foes have a combined 123-116-1 record. Houston's opponents are 125-115.

So with 14 games yet to be played, the Bucs have a 1¼-game lead.

Somehow, it just doesn't have that pennant-race ring to it.

The Bucs and Oilers would seem to be among the few teams not finishing within a game or two of .500. There are more, of course — Washington, Dallas and a few others. But as 1984 approaches, Commissioner Pete Rozelle's Orwellian dream is becoming reality. Perhaps next season all teams will be equal but some will be more equal than others.

Analysis

This season has been one of highs (scoring) and lows (the New York Giants). The Giants may singlehandedly be responsible for the NFL's plunge in the TV ratings. With three Monday night appearances, not to mention Saturday's game at Washington, the Big Apple hasn't had this much attention in years.

New York City, incidentally, now is officially without a pro football team. New York's Mayor, Edward Koch, and his hirelings, have made snide remarks about how the Jets never will attract the same kind of following across the Hudson River in New Jersey.

The following they attracted last Saturday in their finale at Shea was hundreds of drunken fans swarming onto the field, tearing up whatever parts of the ballpark they could get their hands on and engaging in random violence and vandalism in the stadium and the parking lot.

The move won't change a thing — except that the fans they do attract will have a cleaner, bigger stadium.

USA ties USSR with late goal

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ed Olczyk's goal with 15:26 to play lifted Team USA into a 4-4 tie with the Soviet Selects in an exhibition hockey game Thursday night.

The tie preserved the American's 2-1-1 lead in the six-game series against the Soviets.

The Soviets took advantage of several defensive lapses by the Americans to score three consecutive goals and grab a 4-3 first-period lead.

After a scoreless second period, Olczyk took a pass at the left of the Soviet goal, leaned around goalie Aleksandr Tyzhnykh and pushed it in for the tie.

The game was played at Riverfron Coliseum, before 14,153 fans — the largest crowd ever to see a hockey game in Cincinnati. About 200 demonstrators gathered peacefully outside the coliseum before the game to protest the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union.

The Soviets scored four times on their first five shots on goal — two of them while shorthanded — to take a 4-3 lead after the first period.

David A. Jensen got Team USA on the scoreboard eight seconds into the game. Tyzhnykh could not get control of the carom off the boards and Jensen knocked it in at close range.

USA-USSR hockey series proves little

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

It was just prior to the opener of the six-game series between Team USA and the Soviet Selects. An American journalist was complaining that the "Russians have sent the second string. They're not taking this thing seriously."

He couldn't have been more wrong.

The Soviet sports authorities are taking the Selects' tour in the United States very seriously. They're using it as a testing ground for several potential Olympians and for Selects Coach Anatoli Bogdanov. And they're getting an early line on just how good the United States team will be at Sarajevo in February.

"All the players here, without exception, have a chance to be included on our Olympic team," said the affable, informal Bogdanov, a sharp contrast to the stiff, brusk Viktor Tikhonov, who coaches the Soviet national team. "After the tour, we will report about our matches here to the coaches' board, then the board will determine the final composition of our Olympic team at the beginning of February."

Analysis

That team will be favored to recapture the gold medal the Americans won in 1980. Most of the players on the Soviet squad will come from the team now preparing for the Izvestia Cup tournament at Moscow, where the national clubs from Canada, Sweden, Finland and Czechoslovakia also will compete.

But Selects goalie Aleksandr Tyzhnykh, the No. 2 netminder in the USSR behind standout Vladislav Tretiak, is almost certain to be an Olympian. And seven other selects are candidates for the Games, led by 1980 Olympian Vladimir Golikev.

"The players back home must show they belong on the 'A' team," said Bogdanov. "No one is assured of being in the Olympics at this time."

The Selects were put together on the basis of "links."

"We took players from the club teams and put together four links (lines) and three defensive groups," said Bogdanov. "We had only four practices at home before we came here."

The main reason the Soviets can afford to choose the final composition of the Olympic team so late is that every coach uses the same system and every player is taught the same style of play. Then, like a puzzle, the pieces are placed together.

"All the coaches in the Soviet Union work according to one program," Bogdanov explained. "Tikhonov watches the work of the coaches as well as the players. Everyone is under consideration and we are all aimed to one purpose."

That purpose is to win the world championship, which the Soviets did this year, and the Olympics.

"We know how seriously the United States is preparing for the Olympics," said Bogdanov. "Judging by that and the games we have played, this U.S. team will show better skill than four years ago.

"They surprised us in 1980 with their great stamina and high spirit — in the Games.

"But who can say whose chances are higher or best in these Olympics?"

Isles clip fading Red Wings

By The Associated Press

After what happened last year, the New York Islanders were ready for the Detroit Red Wings. The Red Wings, though, apparently weren't ready for anybody.

"If we can ever find a way to check and score goals in the same game, we'll win some hockey games," said Detroit coach Nick Polano after his National Hockey League club lost a 4-2 decision to the Islanders Thursday night.

It was the eighth straight loss for the skidding Red Wings. By contrast, it improved the Islanders' record in their last 12 games to 9-1-2 and made amends for some bad play last year against Detroit.

"Every time Detroit beat us (last year) they acted like they had won the Stanley Cup," said the Islanders' Butch Goring, referring to two losses and a tie in the three games with the Red Wings in the 1982-83 season. "It entered our minds that we hadn't beaten this club last year."

In other NHL games Thursday night, it was Boston 4, Hartford 2; Montreal 3, Pittsburgh 1, and Philadelphia 9, Washington 4.

Goring's 350th career goal and his fifth in the last two games keyed the Islanders' victory. Goring's goal at 1:09 of the second period gave the Islanders a 2-0 lead they never lost. John Tonelli's 15-footer at 14:44 of the final period gave the Islanders a 3-1 lead and their eventual winning goal.

NHL

"It was right where I wanted," said Goring of his big goal. "Bob (Nystrom) passed it to me and I put it up and in. This is the hottest I've been in more recent years. It really makes playing fun."

Islander Coach Al Arbour said, "Detroit skated and checked like heck. They played a real good game. Last year, he (Red Wing goalie Corrado Micalef) shut us out and he played a real good game tonight. But Kelly (Hrudey, the Islanders' goalie) played real well, too.

Bruins 4, Whalers 2

In Boston, Keith Crowder scored two goals and set up another in rallying the Bruins over Hartford. Crowder tied the score at 2-2 on a Boston power play at 9:08 of the second period and followed with the game-winner at 15:37 as the Bruins posted its fifth victory in six games.

Hartford, winless in its last five games, and 1-8-2 in Boston as a member of the NHL, led 2-1 before the Bruins rallied behind Crowder to go in front for good in the middle period.

Nevin Markwart added an insurance goal, his eighth, midway through th final period.

Canadiens 3, Penguins 1

In Montreal, Guy Lafleur scored th 498th and 499th goals of his career i the first period to pace Montreal ove Pittsburgh.

That left Lafleur within one goal o becoming the 10th player in NHL hi tory to score 500 or more goals. With hi next goal he will join former Canadien Maurice Richard (544) and Jean Bel veau (507) at that plateau.

"Five hundred isn't even a record o this team, so it's really not that impor tant," Lafleur said. "But I'd like to get i next game to get rid of it."

It was a tough night for the Pengui goalies Denis Herron and Michel Dior who started the game and stopped slap shot with his right shoulder at 5:1 of the third period and was forced t leave. A few minutes later, Herro skated to the Pittsburgh bench with hand injury, but he remained in th game. The pair handled 30 shots.

Flyers 9, Capitals 4

In Philadelphia, the Flyers score four times in a 1:59 span of a six-go second period to defeat the Capital The Flyers were led by Tim Kerr an Ilkka Sinisalo, each with two goals an an assist.

Brian Propp contributed a goal an two assists while Miroslav Dvora scored one goal and had an assist.

Brooklyn College scares MSU

By The Associated Press

The Michigan State Spartans aren't having much trouble this year — except when they play the supposedly weak teams on their schedule.

Earlier this year, Jud Heathcote's Big Ten basketball power was upset by little St. Peter's of New Jersey. And Thursday night, the 17th-ranked Spartans struggled before beating unheralded Brooklyn College 85-72 in the only game involving a Top Twenty team.

"We came out and played in the first half, but in the second half, we didn't open up like we should have," said Spartans guard Sam Vincent, who led all scorers with 22 points. "We had a million opportunities to go up by 30 or 40, and instead of doing that, we always made the bad play.

"You know, we win by 15 and you think maybe we played pretty good, but in all honesty, we didn't play very well. When you play a team of this caliber, you should easily win by 40. It's a win, but we're really not satisfied."

Brooklyn, playing its fourth game in six days and losing two of them by an average margin of 25 points, was led by Rich Micallef's 18 points.

"I'm proud of my team," Brooklyn Coach Mark Reiner said. "We're just a couple of players away from being a very good team. Michigan State has a lot of class and Jud will get them up for the big games later in the season. It's hard to get up for Brooklyn."

Kevin Willis, Michigan State's 7-foot center, scored a season-high 17 points and grabbed seven rebounds, while Scott Skiles had 15 points and Patrick Ford added 13 for the Spartans.

Unranked Teams

In other action, Ron Anderson scored 18 points to lead Fresno State over Sacramento State 73-46, Ed Porter had 23 points and 12 rebounds to pace Nevada-Reno to a 94-82 victory over Southern Oregon State, despite a 30-point, 16-rebound performance for the Raiders' Mycahl Hitchcock, and Robert Brown scored 22 points in the second half to lead Long Island University to an 86-49 victory over CCNY.

Also, Donald Russell hit a layup as time expired to propel Massachusetts to a 67-65 overtime win over Connecticut, a steal and stuff by Morehead State's 5-foot-9 guard Arthur Sullivan sealed an 81-78 victory over Marshall, John Sherman Williams scored 21 points as Indiana State defeated Cincinnati 84-63 and Marvin Ray Johnson and Steve Mitchell scored 10 points apiece as Alabama-Birmingham whipped U.S. International 71-56.

MHS, Lee split at Optimist

Midland High's Boys basketball team upped their record to 12-1, while Midland Lee's Boys fell victim to a second half collapse in opening round play at the Optimist Classic in San Antonio.

MHS edged San Antonio Holmes, 78-71, with senior forward Chris Rooker pumping in a game high 30 points. Fred Franklin added 14 and Kenneth Johnson had 10 points in the effort. MHS built a 47-36 edge at the half, and withstood a Holmes rally for the win.

The Bulldogs take on Houston Westchester today.

For Lee, 6-3, a close first half did little towards determining the outcome, as the Rebels scored only 19 points in the second half en route to a 54-39 setback at the hands of San Antonio Central Catholic.

The Rebs could not overcome the Catholic assault, led by Pat Sheridan, who scored 31 points for the victors. Lee was paced by Anthony Dickens' 11 and Alvin Henry's 10 points.

Lee trailed at halftime, 25-20.

The Rebels enter the losers bracket with a test today against Copperas Cove.

'Bama rips Tech at Suntory

OSAKA, Japan (AP) - Alabama outmuscled Texas Tech 76-56 in the second round of the Suntory Ball college baskertball tournament Friday before 15,500 Japanese basketball fans at Osaka Castle Hall.

Alabama scored 12 points on offensive rebound shots in the first half, opening up a 21-11 lead after the first 10 minutes of play.

Texas Tech's 5-foot-10 guard Bubba Jennings kept the Raiders in the game early on with crowd-pleasing jumpshots from outside. Jennings, from Clovis, N.M., went 6-for-7 from the field in the first half and finished with 18 points, high for the Raiders.

Greenwood fives win in openers

Greenwood's Rangers defeated Midland Christian, 73-52, in the opening round of the Greenwood basketball tournament as Morgan scored 20 for the winners and Gould had 14 for the Mustangs.

In other boys bracket games, Colorado City (Rivera 14, Randle 14) defeated Greenwood JV (Pearce 14), 62-32; Slaton (Gramble 14) defeated Permian Basin Christian (Roberts 9), 64-17; and Coahoma (Sanders 18), downed Reagan County (Evans 12), 59-45.

Belinda Duke led the Greenwood girls to a 68-24 win over Denver City while Crane (L.Mitchell 12) downed Lubbock Cooper, 42-40; Colorado City defeated the Greenwood JV, 56-39; and Coahoma took Reagan County, 54-52.

NFL Playoffs

NFL Playoff Possibilities
By The Associated Press

AFC EAST: MIAMI has clinched the division title with the best overall record. BUFFALO can get a wild card berth with only a victory over Atlanta, coupled with a loss by Cleveland and a tie between Seattle and New England because that's the only way it would have the best record among those teams. NEW ENGLAND will gain a wild card berth with a victory over Seattle and a loss by Cleveland because the Patriots accept Buffalo in games head-to-head. Even if both Cleveland and Buffalo win, New England can get in with a victory if it has the best average of net points in conference games. New England has a net of plus 13. Cleveland minus-4 and Buffalo minus-20.

AFC CENTRAL: PITTSBURGH has clinched the division title with the best overall record. CLEVELAND can clinch a wild card berth with a victory over Pittsburgh and losses by Seattle and Buffalo because the Browns beat New England. If Cleveland, New England and Buffalo win, the above best net points tiebreaker applies.

AFC WEST: The LOS ANGELES RAIDERS have clinched the division with the best overall record. DENVER has clinched a wild card berth with the best record against conference opponents. SEATTLE can clinch a wild card berth by beating New England because of a better conference record.

NFC CENTRAL: DETROIT can win the division title if it beats Tampa Bay because the best Green Bay can do is tie for the best overall record and the Lions have the best record within the division. The Lions and Bays have swept their head-to-head series with Green Bay. The Lions cannot be a wild-card team because either New Orleans or Los Angeles, who play each other next week, would have a better record than the 8-8 mark a Lions defeat would create. GREEN BAY can win the division if they win their remaining games and Detroit loses to Tampa Bay. If they don't win the division title, the Packers can be a wild-card team by completing a win in their game with the Chicago Bears. Tampa Bay, Green Bay, Detroit and Chicago all have 6-7 records. Green Bay has better overall record than Tampa Bay, Detroit and Chicago, but not against conference opponents.

NFC WEST: SAN FRANCISCO has clinched the division title with the best record. The 49ers would win the division next week if they beat Atlanta and Los Angeles lost to Seattle. The Rams could win the division next week if they beat Seattle and Los Angeles lost to New Orleans. The Rams could get in with a victory and a Cowboys loss. But NEW ORLEANS can clinch a wild card berth with a victory over the Saints next week or a Rams loss. Minnesota can get in with a victory and losses by Los Angeles and Tampa Bay. The Vikings would win the division if they beat Cincinnati and the Rams lose to New Orleans

An Air Illinois flight-crew member cleans ice and snow from the windshield of one of two BAC 111 jets grounded by the Federal Aviation Administration as they prepare to fly to their maintence facility in Evansville, Ind. on Thursday at Springfield Ill.'s Capitol Airport.

Air Illinois chief says planes safe, will return to skies next month

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — The beleaguered president of Air Illinois, which grounded its entire fleet after federal officials questioned the carrier's "air-worthiness," denied his planes are unsafe and vowed to return to the skies next month.

The airline on Thursday grounded all 13 of its planes, halting 120 daily flights, saying it was overwhelmed by federal requests for improvements in its training manuals and procedures.

The grounding came 65 days after an Air Illinois commuter plane crashed near Pinckneyville in southern Illinois, killing all seven passengers and three crew members.

After announcing the action, Air Illinois president Roger Street called a news conference to defend his 14-year-old airline. He said he believes "there's no question" that the Federal Aviation Administration is making an example of his company to the industry.

"We were not running an unsafe airline and we will never run an unsafe airline," he said. "We'll start flying as soon as we have everything in place and it satisfies the FAA."

Street said that he hopes the company's jets can resume service in early January and that the other planes can be back in service two weeks later.

The shutdown, which affects 12,000 to 15,000 travelers this month, will mean layoffs for 200 of Air Illinois' 227 employees. The airline probably will incur a $600,000 loss the rest of this year, Street said. Air Illinois had about $17 million in revenue in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30.

Air Illinois serves 15 airports in six states: Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri.

Federal hearings on the Oct. 11 crash disclosed that pilots often failed to record malfunctions in airplane flight logs. The testimony prompted the FAA to put an inspector on every Air Illinois flight, beginning Dec. 3.

FAA sources who requested anonymity said Thursday that the agency would have withdrawn the airline's operating certificate if it had not grounded itself. "We're looking at the whole operation," one source said. "There are just all sorts of discrepancies there."

Street said the airline "certainly" felt FAA pressure to ground its fleet, which consists of two jets and 11 turboprops and propeller planes. But he denied that the agency threatened to pull the airline's operating license.

Street said the airline, which had about 257,000 passengers last year, voluntarily grounded the planes because it was overwhelmed by "very stringent" FAA requests for improvements, including revisions in training manuals and procedures that "will require a great deal of time and manpower."

The grounding, said U.S. Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, was "a direct result of serious questions over the air-worthiness of the airline's operations." In Washington, she said "any violation of established safety standards cannot be condoned and will not be permitted."

She said FAA inspectors had found record-keeping problems that kept them from determining if Air Illinois met federal safety standards.

The flight cancellations came the same day that Air Illinois had planned to add flights to Chicago from Waterloo and Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The company had planned to begin flying to Bloomington, Ind., next month.

Street said adverse publicity over the crash and the investigation had reduced the airline's passenger load by about 20 percent.

Thursday's grounding sent many travelers, including college students headed home for the holidays, scrambling for other means of transportation since Air Illinois is the only commercial airline serving Carbondale, the site of Southern Illinois University.

November's wholesale inflation rate down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by November's 0.2 percent drop, the first in eight months, inflation at the wholesale level is running at just 0.3 percent for the year, the government said today. Food pries last month plummeted 1 percent, their steepest fall since July 1982.

The new report virtually ensures that, for all of 1983, wholesale price inflation will be less than 1 percent, which would mark the economy's best performance in nearly two decades.

Even in advance of today's annualized 11-month calculation, showing an even smaller inflationary gain than had been expected, eonomists were cheering the year's anticipated results.

"Fantastic," exclaimed Edward Yardeni, chief economist for Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. And Michael Evans, an economic consultant here, said, "It's amazing considering where we were three years ago" when wholesale prices had surged 11.8 percent.

Prices rose 7.1 percent in 1981 and 3.7 percent last year. Not since 1964, when the gain was 0.5 percent, have wholesale prices risen at a rate below 1 percent.

The Labor Department said energy prices, as expected, also fell in the latest monthly calculation — down 1 percent. Those prices had been off in the previous month after six months of increases.

Detailing the good news for food prices in November, the department said vegetable prices were down 16.5 percent. Fresh fruit prices fell 9.5 percent.

Department economists attributed those sharp declines to improved supplies of bananas, citrus fruits, corn, lettuce, tomatoes and beans.

Beef and veal prices fell 1.6 percent. Pork prices were off 2.9 percent.

Meat prices have been down through the fall as producers sent their livestock to slaughter rather than pay feedgrain prices driven higher by the summer's drought.

Food prices overall had risen a sharp 1.1 percent in October and 0.7 percent in September.

As for energy, gasoline prices fell 1.1 percent last month while natural gas prices were up 0.4 percent. Home heating oil prices fell a sharp 1.8 percent.

Over the last 12 months, the department said its Producer Price Index for finished goods rose only 0.7 percent, the smallest 12-month rise since the 0.6 percent pace set from September 1964 to September 1965.

Prices had risen 0.2 percent in September and 0.3 percent in October of this year.

Price changes that show up in the wholesale measure are a good barometer of how food, energy and other commodity prices will move at the retail level. The Consumer Price Index, though, checks for a broader range of items, including housing and medical care, than does the wholesale inflation index.

Retail prices rose at an annual rate of 3.9 percent for the first 10 months of the year, the same as for all of 1982. The November consumer price report is due out next Wednesday.

Analysts generally attribute the bright inflation picture to the lengthy recession and the falling energy prices of earlier in the year.

They also point to the abundant harvests of last year, which helped moderate food prices hikes — and even send some tumbling — through much of 1983.

As for other food price changes last month, the department said the wholesale poultry costs rose 6.5 percent while coffee prices gained 1 percent. Prices for shortening and cooking oils tumbled 2.5 percent.

Detailing other aspects of last month's price activity, the Labor Department said that new car prices rose 0.4 percent and prices for light trucks tumbled 0.1 percent.

Capital equipment costs were unchanged. Those costs are for the machinery and transportation equipment used by business.

All the changes are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

If last month's 0.2 percent decline held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly drop would be 2.1 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly price changes than the figure made public.

In all, the Producer Price Index for finished goods stood at 286.8 in November, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $28.68 last month.

Commerce Secretary warns exporters

By The Associated Press

With the U.S. trade deficit looming near the $40 billion mark this year, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige is warning exporters their goods will be harder to sell abroad unless the government trims its budget deficit and lets interest rates fall.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that industrial output rose 0.8 percent in November, matching October's gain, the smallest of the 12 straight monthly increases.

The Fed said the November gain in output by the nation's factories, mines and utilities brought production to 15.9 percent above a year ago, when the recession was at its low point.

The Commerce Department said the nation's balance of payments deficit — the broadest measure of foreign trade — widened to a record $12 billion last summer from $9.7 billion in the second quarter, surpassing the $11.2 billion total for all of last year.

A strong dollar, which hit record heights earlier this week, has made U.S. goods more costly in foreign markets and has resulted in prices of imports being more attractive in the United States.

Baldridge said exports will continue to suffer unless the government pares the budget deficit, allowing interest rates — and the strength of the dollar — to fall.

The commerce report includes trade in services and the balance of payments on a variety of other financial transactions as well as trade in oil, manufactured goods, farm produce and other merchandise.

It brought the year's deficit so far to $25.3 billion, more than twice the $11.2 billion of 1982.

The Labor Department reported that Americans' first-time claims for unemployment benefits bounced back up the first week of this month after falling in the holiday-shortened previous week. In all, 405,000 jobless people filed initial claims in the week ending Dec. 3, an increase of 17,000 over the week ending Nov. 26.

New claims had dropped by 47,000 in the last full November week, but a big part of that decline had been credited to the fact that most claims offices were open only four days because of Thanksgiving. Claims have typically risen again in weeks following holidays.

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 249 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT of Holliston, MA 01746 decreased $87.2 million to $162.0 billion for the week ended December 14, 1983. The taxable funds' 7-day average yield increased to 8.61% from 8.55%. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield increased to 8.54% from 8.53%. The taxable funds' average maturity decreased to 38 days after three weeks at 39 days. William E. Donoghue says, "Increases in taxable money fund yields over the past two weeks reflect a five-week upswing in credit market rates. Savers should note that as money funds have reflected this upward trend, rates on bank and thrift MMDAs have remained unchanged."

Yields represent annualized total return to shareholders for past seven- and thirty-day period. Past returns are not necessarily indicative of future yields. Investment quality and maturity may vary among funds. x - average term to next rate adjustment date, g - one time sales charge, r - restricted availability. ## Dollar climbs higher

LONDON (AP) — The dollar climbed to record highs against the French franc and Italian lira early today on the strength of firm interest rates. Gold dropped roughly $7 an ounce.

In quiet pre-holiday trading, the dollar hit an all-time high of 8.4750 French francs at mid-morning, up from Thursday's record close of 8.4490. It reached 1,678.75 Italian lire, up from 1,675.75, also a record close.

Dealers pointed to new evidence that U.S. interest rates will remain high, maintaining the value of dollar-denominated investments.

They noted that on Thursday the U.S. government reported slightly higher third-quarter manufacturing profits, which indicate the American recovery is continuing.

They also cited predictions of a more than $5 billion rise in the U.S. Federal Reserve's M1 money supply index, due out later in the day. A jump in M1 is seen as foreshadowing tighter credit.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar rose marginally to close at 235.10 yen from 235.05 on Thursday. Later, in Europe, the dollar was quoted at 235.45 yen.

Choosing Christmas

Jaycees play Santa for children

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

His eyes grew big when the Midland Jaycee told him he still had $3 left to spend on another gift.

As one of 170 underprivileged children chosen by their school principals to participate in the Midland Jaycees' 10th Annual Christmas Shopping Tour Thursday, Chester already had picked through the selection of toys. But only one of the three he'd chosen was for himself.

The other two were for his brothers.

With a Jaycee at his side for consultation, Chester wandered into the cosmetic department to find his mother's favorite shade of lipstick.

He carefully inventoried his paper bag. Inside were a plastic horse and cowboy for his 8-year-old brother and a Star Wars toy for little brother, age 5. He had selected a paddle ball for himself and the lipstick for Mom. Now it was time for Dad.

A little confused, he ambled by the frozen meats. "We're not gonna get your dad a hamburger, are we, Chester?" the Jaycee joked. Chester paused, solemnly shook his head and decided, "cologne."

It was now done — $15 worth of Christmas cheer for his family, courtesy of the Midland Jaycees. Chester, who said it was his first time to go shopping with the Jaycees, looked up at his older friend and with a smile, declared this Christmas was going to be the best — even better than last year's.

There were a lot of smiles Thursday — from the Gibson's employees who continued to patiently point out sale items to the children, to the Jaycees, many of whom said it was one of the highlights of their year.

And the children were smiling — with big eyes and fast hands — as they hurriedly snatched toys off the shelves, examined and replaced them.

Constantly peeking into their friends' bags, suggestions were given and decisions were made. Items were swapped and sent back, traded and turned down.

Five-year-old Jimmy from Bunche Early Childhood Center got Smurf roller-skates that he said he plans to share with his brother. Nine-year-old Sandy from Milam Elementary, couldn't decide between the western-dressed Barbie doll (on sale), or the Barbie clad in a pink satin ball gown. If she chose the less expensive one, she'd have enough money for the Operation game. She studied the dolls in her hand and, with a sigh, replaced one and headed back toward the row of games.

Jimmy, Jerry's friend at Bunche, was a decisive shopper. He made up his mind about the plastic airplane and proceeded to crawl around on the floor of the aisle, spinning its propellers as he zoomed his aircraft in between the tiny feet that casually stepped over him.

And when the $15 raised by the Jaycees for each child was spent, the fun still wasn't over.

"They're ours until 6," Greg Curry, chairman of the Christmas Shopping Tour, said with a grin. "We're taking them to a party at the Boy's Club next."

MidTran to apply for state grant

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The director of Midland's public transportation system is writing a grant application to fund construction of an office and a maintenance facility for MidTran.

Doris Velasquez said she is going to apply for a capital grant from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation once she completes the study on costs and obtains the Midland City Council's approval. She hopes to have her study completed in January.

Through the Public Transportation Fund, the State Highway Department disseminates funding for various public transportation programs throughout the state. The Texas Legislature, prompted by massive future population projections for Texas in the latter part of this decade, set aside $28 million for the current biennium to be used in initiating and updating public transportion programs.

Ms. Velasquez said this would be the first time that MidTran has applied for a capital grant for a facility. Currently, MidTran operates out of two mobile homes set up on the city garage property. The bus system has two maintenance persons and a stall at the garage is allotted to MidTran. "But our people have to work out in the weather because the stall usually is not available," she said.

Seven diesel mini-buses that were ordered two years ago from a firm that is now closed finally arrived. These, combined with some used buses purchased from Kerrville, give the city replacements for all buses that originally started MidTran rolling in February 1980. Two of the older buses are being retained for backup, she said. The others may be auctioned next year. All have logged at least 180,000 miles each, she noted.

Jury returns indictments in Odessa cocaine case

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Indictments were returned by the Ector County grand jury Thursday on the two Odessa defendants surviving a Dec. 9 shoot-out with police in which two officers were wounded and one suspect killed.

The officers participating in the arrests and the shooting of Michael Grant Matheny, 33, were commended by the grand jury.

Gerald Leon Hardin, 31, and Janna Denise Matheny, 22, were both indicted for delivery of cocaine and attempted capital murder by the grand jury for their parts in the incident. It began in a room at the La Quinta Motor Inn at 5001 E. Highway 80 in Odessa, then moved to a local intersection where Hardin was apprehended after escaping the crime scene.

Two officers were wounded in the exchange of fire. Phil Harrold, 25, of the Odessa Police Department and Gerald "Jim" Dickson, 23, of the Ector County Sheriff's Department, suffered abdominal wounds, but were treated and released from Medical Center Hospital.

According to reports, Hardin — also known as Kelly Grandstaff — exchanged fire with a Department of Public Safety officer before driving off. Matheny was killed at the scene by Odessa officer Steve Frederick, who was in the hotel room with the Mathenys when the gunfire began.

Several ounces of cocaine were recovered from the room. The indictments resulted from a lengthy investigation by the police, sheriff's office and DPS.

Frederick had been working undercover for the police and was allegedly in the process of completing a drug transaction with the Mathenys when the shooting began, according to police reports.

Both suspects are being held on $100,000 bond for the cocaine charges. All three listed the same Odessa address.

New DWI law tough on repeat offenders

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — Under provisions of a new state law that goes into effect Jan. 1, a minimum jail term is mandatory for anyone convicted two or more times of driving while intoxicated.

Department of Public Safety Director Col. Jim Adams, who chaired the governor's task force that recommended tougher DWI legislation, noted that the new law should close the back door on repeat offenders in the state's criminal justice system.

"Deferred adjudication, which allowed repeat offenders to wipe the slate clean after each DWI arrest, will be eliminated under the new statute," said Adams.

"Even if probation is granted, a conviction record will be established and this record can be used in the subsequent prosecution of any additional drunk driving charges. Jail time is mandatory as a condition of probation, beginning with the second DWI conviction."

Senatorial candidate focuses on laser beam weapons

Harley Schlanger

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

This is not an ordinary year for politics, according to Harley Schlanger, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate seat vacated by John Tower. If it were, he probably wouldn't run.

The Houstonian, in town Thursday during a tour of West Texas, said the year is different because of "military, political and economic crises."

Since the Soviet Union rejected President Reagan's offer to jointly develop and deploy defensive laser beam weapons — which can disarm a nuclear weapon — events have escalated to a "situation at least as dangerous as the 1962 Cuban missile crisis. Global terrorism is a deployment which is backed in at least some level by the Soviet Union," he said.

Although he supports Reagan's proposed defense budget of $27 billion, he feels it is useless without the defensive beam program.

In 1962, textbooks furnished to Soviet military academies contained chapters on defensive beam programs, he said. In 1967, "during the SALT talks," they were left out of new editions. And because of Henry Kissinger's "stop anti-ballistic missile systems" recommendations, America did — but the Soviets did not, Schlanger said.

"They are lying," he stated. "They may be as little as two years away from (deploying) them."

Stating the Soviets have deployed submarines with nuclear-tipped missiles off the coasts of the United States within five minutes of their targets, Schlanger called for stopping the Soviets in their drive toward war.

He proposes a crash course which would result in at least a "crude" defensive beam program in the United States, possibly within three years. Although the cost would be $100 billion over five years, "we need the systems. At whatever the cost, the real security of the country is not for bargaining."

He also said the expense would be paid back — much like NASA's development of computers for space programs — through uses in the medical and industrial fields and through the creation of more jobs.

"And, as an additional bonus, the country would no longer have to lie awake at night worrying about security."

His campaign, he said, is based on reality. If he can make the American public realize the dangers facing the country, his political race will have a satisfactory finish.

"I may not win the election this time, but I sure will be heard in Washington," the 34-year-old said.

"The citizens have taken the attitude that one person can't do anything. They say, 'I'm the little guy and I can't fight city hall.' We've become very cynical."

His goal as a candidate is to increase awareness of a Soviet nuclear attack threat and to get individuals interested in taking responsibility and running for office themselves.

"I'm going to continue to do what I'm doing: taking information out and mobilizing the people."

Schlanger, southern regional director of Fusion Energy Foundation, an educational, non-profit foundation committed to the advance and development of high technology, said he feels citizens will rally together despite their cynicism.

Citing the public response to the shooting down of the Korean airliner and the Grenada invasion, he said, "The one thing that pulls us together as Americans is the threat on the security of our nation.

"I think the people just need someone to go out, show them where to kick and what to do," he said.

Recently endorsed by the leader of the Texas Farm Union, Schlanger said he is depending on farmers and labor groups for support.

"I think what we're doing to the American farmer is disgraceful. We've got a $250 billion farm debt — we could sell every piece of farmland in the country and still not cover that debt."

A temporary freeze on the farm debt should be put into effect to allow farmers to catch up. Then, a parity price system should be reinstalled.

In West Texas, a long range plan for fending off the water shortage, such as the proposed National American Water and Power Alliance, which he supported, is needed.

Grand jury takes no action against Odessa officials

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — No action was taken Thursday by the Ector County grand jury after it reviewed complaints filed against two city officials by a municipal court administrator in a dispute over control of the warrants division. The court administrator has since been fired.

City Manager John Harrison and Fiscal Service Director Frank Muser were not found to have committed any criminal act in the transfer of supervision of the warrants division from administrator John B. Minor to the police department.

Minor was fired Nov. 8 by the city council on Harrison's recommendation after Minor had filed the complaints against the two officials. The complaints led to their arrests in late August. The municipal judge that issued the warrants for their arrests, Larry McMillion, has also been fired and the two warrant officers involved in the arrests and filing of the complaints have been suspended from the police department.

The FBI has taken over the investigation. Agent Tom Farris said earlier this week that the investigation is centered on former City Marshal Pat Trout who was fired in late August. Trout is being investigated for his ownership of two stolen cars.

"We do not have at this time a wholesale case open on the warrants division," said Farris.

The grand jury found that there was no evidence of official misconduct by Harrison and official oppression by Muser as was alleged in the complaints filed by Minor. A press release from Ector County District Attorney Mike Holmes said that results of the FBI investigation of the division would be taken before a federal grand jury in early 1984.

Minor has filed a civil suit against the city of Odessa, claiming his firing was a retaliatory action by the city over the warrants division. He is asking for reinstatement and claiming harassment and loss of income because of his firing.

The suit calls for damages and recovery of lost wages and benefits. Filed under a new statute effective since September 1983, "The Whistleblower's Act" is virtually untested in state courts.

Trout was fired Aug. 25 by the city — against the wishes of Minor, his supervisor. The city attempted to move supervision of the warrants division from the municipal court to the police, prompting the complaints by Minor and the officials' arrests.

Officers Troy W. Davis and Roy Gladden have been suspended from the department, reportedly due to their involvement in the investigations. Davis delivered the complaints to the county attorney and Gladden arrested Harrison. City officials have denied that the officers were fired for their part in the incident.

During the period between the attempted switch and action by the city council, both the police department and Minor had appointed interim replacements for Trout. Davis was elevated to the position by Minor and Det. Lt. Marvin Crumrine was appointed by Police Chief Allan Stewart.

"I felt John was trying to presume the role of the judges," said Muser, Minor's supervisor. Minor insists that the warrants division served as a check and balance when it was under the court's supervision and that its transfer to the police department ends monitoring of the jail intake and release procedures.

While Minor refers to the warrants division officers as city marshals, Muser indicated the city was considering them as warrant officers, a distinction that determines which ordinance should be followed and who has supervision.

Wanda L. Theis

Services for Wanda L. Theis, 80, of Midland were to be at 3:30 p.m. today in First Baptist Church with Dr. Daniel Vestal, pastor, oficiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park under direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Thursday morning in a Midland hospital.

She was born April 23, 1903, in Verona and spent her early life in Menard, where her father was a pioneer physician. She attended Howard Payne College in Brownwood, where she met Antoh Theis. They were married in 1922 and moved to Big Lake, where they lived the next 10 years. After living a short time in Haskell and Menard, they moved to Midland in 1939. She was a member of First Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband; three daughters, Marthaun Nobles and Vangie Lindsey, both of Midland, and Jacquiline Pierce of Dallas; two brothers, Dr. Waldo Leggett of Burnett and Raymond Leggett of Midland; seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were to be Philip Nobles, Jack Nobles, Julian Pierce, Ed Lindsey, Anton Pierce, B.C. Girdley, Brady Seeker, Dr. Gregory Bartha and Stephen Lindsey.

Alta Williams

FREDERICKSBURG — Services for Mrs. Grover Cleveland (Alta Courtney) Williams, 87, of Fredericksburg and formerly of Midland, were Monday morning in the Schaetter Funeral Home chapel in Fredericksburg. Graveside services were Monday afternoon at Laureland Cemetery in Fort Worth.

Mrs. Williams died Friday in a Fredericksburg nursing home.

She was born April 15, 1896, in Harrison County, W.Va.

Survivors include two daughters, France Wilson of Fredericksburg, and Jane D'Amico of West Seneca, N.Y.; a son, Grover C. Williams of Calgary, Canada; two sisters, Paris Cookman of Florida, and Willa Maxwell of West Virginia; 10 grandchildren, 14 great-grandchildren and a great-great-grandchild.

Tom Watlington

Services for Tom J. Watlington, 69, of 1507 W. Washington were to be today at 1:30 p.m. in Ellis Chapel with David Wallace, minister at Tennesse and North A Church of Christ, officiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park under direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He died at his home late Wednesday evening.

He was born Oct. 1, 1914 in Colorado City and spent his early life in Mitchell and Andrews counties. He moved to Midland in 1929 and attended Midland High, where he played football. In the late 1930s he established Tom's Welding Shop, and, with his brother, established Midland Iron Works in 1943. He operated the establishment several years before selling his part to his brother. He later established Mid-Western Company. He retired in Jan. 1981 and sold the business to his son. He was a member of Tennessee and North A Church of Christ.

Survivors include two sons, Mike Watlington and Steve Watlington, both of Midland; one brother, Dub Watlington of Midland; one sister, Florence Tawresey of Portland, Maine; five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were to be David Watlington, Bob Watlington, Raymond Watlington, Charles Walker, Barry Merritt and Roy Bradley.

B. Kuykendall Jr.

Services for Bobby Gene Kuykendall Jr., 20, of Midland will be Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at South Memorial Baptist Church with the Rev. Jimmy Stovall of South Memorial officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park, under direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Wednesday in Denver City when an antenna he was installing came in contact with a utility line.

He was born Oct. 14, 1963 in Midland, where he attended school and lived most of his life. As a student he had been employed by City of Midland.

Survivors include a sister, Kaye Kuykendall of Midland; father, Bobby Gene Kuykendall of Midland; mother, Mary Grubin of Denver City; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Hall and Mrs. Zola Kuykendall, all of Midland; two stepbrothers, Wayne Braden of Midland and Chuck Grubin of Denver City; and a stepsister, Debra Kennedy of Midland.

Old Glory reaches end of its rope

BRONTE (AP) — Old Glory slipped her mooring outside the U.S. Post Office here recently, with some help from a stiff breeze. But the postmaster knew just what to do.

Soon Bronte Water Superintendent Don Adams and a lineman from West Texas Utilities showed up and in just a few minutes, the fugitive flagpole rope was secured and tethered tightly.

"Yeah. The wind just jiggled her loose and she flew way out yonder and got all tangled in them power lines," Bronte Postmaster Noah Pruitt said.

"I'm always having trouble with that flagpole or the rope or something. If it's not the wind it's the kids," Pruitt said, recalling other times he'd had to get help with a similar problem.

"They've cut that rope before and we had to get one of those bucket trucks out here to get up there to replace the rope," the postmaster said. "Then another time a kid climbed over halfway up that pole and wrapped tape around both sides of the rope. We couldn't move it either way, up or down."

But all the while Pruitt related deeds of midnight handiwork a hint of a smile never left his face. He seemed not surprised at such foolishness.

"Oh, yeah. When I was a kid me and a bunch of my buddies used to get into our share of mischief," Pruitt said. He pointed to the alley behind a row of buildings that face Main Street in downtown Bronte — just across the street from the post office.

"We'd run down that alley after dark. They didn't have inside plumbing in those days, you know. We'd push over the outhouses that were set up behind those stores," Pruitt said. "And all the time we'd have to be watching out for Mr. Sims. He was the night watchman back then — F.F. Sims."

Pruitt was born in Coke County, north of San Angelo, in 1923.

"I've lived here in Bronte all my life," he said. He has been with the post office for 30 years.

"I'm going to retire here pretty soon," he explained. "It's about time I started doing some of the stuff I want to do."

But for now Pruitt says despite occasional deviations in his daily post office routine to get the flagpole rope righted, he doesn't think playing a now-and-again prank makes a bad kid.

"But the wind keeps me busy enough with that flagpole."

Cherie Shelburne

Fund set up for child stricken by liver ailment

A trust fund has been set up at a Midland savings and loan company for Cherie Shelburne, 3 year-old daughter of Richard and Judy Shelburne of 2900 Mariana.

Cherie, who suffers from biliary atresia, a destructive disease of the bile duct system, is expected to travel to Pittsburgh, Pa., in February for an evaluation to determine if she is a liver transplant candidate.

Biliary atresia, a congenital liver disease where the bile duct is missing, obstructed or damaged, usually leads to death before the age of four.

The cause of the disease, which occurs about once in every 10,000 births, is unknown.

Persons wishing to help the Shelburne family cover costly expenses may send contributions to the Cherie Shelburne Trust Fund, in care of Jana Porterfield, Petroplex Savings, P.O. Box 3266, Midland, Texas 79702.

Accident victim unidentified

ODESSA — Authorities are trying to identify a driver who was burned beyond recognition when his car burst into flames after leaving the road and striking a large rock near here late Thursday night.

According to the Department of Public Safety, the man was eastbound on 57th Street in a 1978 Subaru about 11:25 p.m. when he failed to negotiate a curve near Sierra Street and hit the rock.

He was pronounced dead at the scene by Ector County Justice of the Peace R.G. Hungerford. The accident occurred about six miles west of Odessa.

MidTran to apply for state grant

In filing the application, Mrs. Velasquez said she is looking for property near the city garage on East Orchard Lane that could be purchased and a new office and maintenance buildings constructed. She is also looking at the possibility the city may have an existing building to donate.

In announcing the money for grants, the State Highway Department said the funds should enable major cities to work toward solutions to current and projected traffic and transportation problems.

"There will be, conservatively, 21 million Texans by the year 2000, compared with 14.2 million in 1980," said Engineer-Director Mark Goode.

"You can imagine the impact this will have on transportation and transportation facilities."

District Engineer W.A. Lancaster, whose responsibility includes the 12-county Odessa District, stated that "efficient and cost-effective public tranportation services in this and other districts across the state is what the department is addressing."

To accomplish this goal, the department continuously compiles and maintains a comprehensive plan for public and mass transportation in the state. The plan is reviewed biennially to evaluate the validity of projections and recommended transit improvements. Midland is the only city in the Odessa District to express an interest in applying for a grant, according to a Highway Department release.

DWI law tough on repeat offenders

The new law also hikes fines and increases jail or prison time. In addition, minimum terms of confinement are increased by 60 days and fine limits are raised by $500 if the DWI offense results in serious bodily injury to another person.

And if a drunk driver is found to be responsible for a traffic death, the law prescribes a mandatory jail or prison term for the violator.

Adams said the revised DWI law will aid in the prosecution of drunk drivers.

"Under present law, a person is only presumed to be intoxicated if tests reveal a blood alcohol concentration of .10 percent or more. The new law establishes that a driver is definitely too drunk to drive at the .10 percent level."

The revised statute also contains provisions for an automatic 90-day suspension of driving privileges for refusal to submit to an alcohol chemical test. The refusal also will be admissible evidence at the driver's trial. A fourth conviction can result in the confiscation and sale of the driver's vehicle.

Adams predicted the statute will help deter DWI violations and provide the means to identify repeat offenders.

"Despite increased DWI arrests and enhanced public awareness, far too many people still believe there are no unfavorable consequences to drunk driving," he said. "Texas law enforcement agencies do not have enough resources to adequately police all streets and highways.

"However, when these changes in the DWI law take effect, drunk drivers can count on being punished in a meaningful fashion. This should help discourage drunk driving."

Candidate focuses on laser beams

Under the $120 billion project, which would have spanned 15 to 20 years, runoff water from the Rockies would have been channeled into West Texas. The plan was defeated because of other issues pending at that time, such as the Vietnam War, he said.

A native of Ohio, Schlanger received his bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Wisconsin in Madison in 1971. His master's degree was earned in European economic history from Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N.J., in 1972.

Couple died from overdose

A Club Drive couple found dead in their home earlier this week died of a drug overdose, according to preliminary autopsy results received by police Thursday.

Det. Capt. Billy Ray said this morning that he was withholding information on the type of drug until he receives the official written report. Ray noted that the information received Thursday came over the phone.

The couple, 34-year-old David L. Rankin and his 30-year-old wife Lurie, were found dead in their home at 205 Club Drive late Tuesday morning. Police were asked to check on the couple when a friend became concerned about their welfare.

Ray said the case is still under investigation.

District formed

By act of Congress on Feb. 21, 1871, the District of Columbia came under a territorial government.

Midland Democrats meet, discuss 1984 elections

Some Midland Democrats met last week to begin discussing candidate preferences in the 1984 presidential election and to begin organizing, according to Freddie Nelms.

An organizer of last Saturday's meeting, Nelms said the primary purpose was to start bringing the Democrats together. Another meeting will be held in January.

At the session in Kerr Community Center, Nelms admonished the Democrats "to stand up and be counted," which was the meeting's theme. This idea will be used throughout the 1984 election year, he said.

"Today, the Democratic Party as well as the community is faced with the greatest crisis since Reconstruction — the survival of our community and nation is at stake. If we are to survive and profit we must have a plan of action that we can carry in our hearts and memories," said Nelms, former chairman of Precinct 5.

This plan of action must include education. "We must act in unison to ensure that whoever is put in office is to see to it that quality education is available to every child. Education is the only edge the minority has against oppression."

Nelms also noted the plan of action must include leaders, "not just leaders for their own benefit, nor for a select few, but for all the people, no matter what race or creed."

Too often people talk about how good the past was and fail to do anything about today. They talk about the great leaders of the past while waiting for someone like Dr. Martin Luther King to come along, Nelms charged.

"While we wait for a mystical angel to come along, we lose more and more each day," he said. "We must do like God told Abraham to do...Now the Lord said unto Abraham to get out of thy country and from they kindred and from they father's house unto a land that I will show thee."

In reciting the verse, Nelms called on all men to get up and go forward.

"We fail to use the talents that God has given us, to secure tight that are guaranteed us by the United States Constitution. We expect someone else to do everything for us.

"We should demand to be respected; our plans must include participation in the political process," he said. "We make the difference if we use the power of the vote. We can change many of the deplorable conditions that exist in the U.S. today."

People who don't vote will have to put up with the conditions, he said. If these people believe their votes won't count, then why are politicians making a special effort to court the minorities' votes this year, he said.

Lucas leads officers to site of killing

BASTROP (AP) — Bastrop County Sheriff Tommy Moseley said self-described mass killer Henry Lee Lucas led officers this week to the site where the body of an unidentified woman was found in June 1979.

"We did not tell him anything," Moseley said Thursday. "He just showed us right about where it was."

Moseley said more investigation would be done before any Bastrop County charges are filed. He said he would interview Lucas again.

Moseley, who was a trooper for the Texas Department of Safety in 1979, originally found the woman's body in weeds off U.S. 290, about 6.5 miles east of Elgin.

Moseley said he got his first hint that Lucas might be involved in the death when he attended a seminar for law enforcement officials earlier this month in Austin concerning the Lucas cases.

Lucas has told authorities he killed as many as 165 people during years of vagabond travels across the country. If his claims prove to be true, he would be the most prolific killer in recent history.

Lucas was convicted in Denton of murdering his 15-year-old common-law wife, Freida "Becky" Powell, and was sentenced to life in prison.

Hundreds line all floors of the state Capitol rotunda in Austin Thursday for the annual Christmas program. The program, which includes caroling, is for state employees and their families.

Land board sets 9.97 percent rate on loans

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Veterans Land Board on Thursday set a 9.97 percent interest rate on housing loans to be issued under a new state program.

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said the interest rate was set for the first $85 million in bonds sold to fund the Texas Veterans Housing Assistance Program. The new program will offer loans of up to $20,000 to Texas' 1.8 million veterans.

The Lomas and Nettleton Co., a Dallas firm, was selected as administrator of the program. The company said over 270 lending institutions have asked for information concerning the loans.

The loans will be available when lenders are screened and qualified for the program, Mauro said.

El Paso sheriff's captain faces trial for evidence tampering

EL PASO (AP) — An El Paso sheriff's captain has lost his bid to have an indictment against him quashed and will stand trial on charges of tampering with evidence for allegedly ordering that a white powdery substance found in a county judge's car be destroyed.

State District Judge Sam Callan on Thursday denied a request to have the charges against Capt. Willie Hill dismissed, despite arguments from Hill's attorney that the indictment was vague.

Hill, an 11½-year sheriff's department veteran, was indicted in October on misdemeanor charges of official misconduct and tampering with evidence for allegedly ordering the destruction of the white powdery substance two deputies say they found in El Paso County Judge Pat O'Rourke's car.

Deputies Jim Boykin and Dwight Jefferson have said they found a substance, which they believed to be cocaine or heroin, inside a condom while they were installing a two-way radio in O'Rourke's car last February.

The two men say that when they told Hill of the discovery he ordered it be destroyed.

Hill, who has been suspended pending the outcome of the case against him, will go to trial Monday.

Hill's attorney, Robert Earp, argued before Callan Thursday that Hill should not have to face a trial because the substance never was analyzed and therefore could not be used as evidence.

"It is our contention that a substance, which on the very face of the indictment is an unknown substance, could not be evidence," Earp said.

Earp also contested Hill's indictment because it did not specify how the destruction of the substance would benefit Hill or how it would harm someone else.

But an attorney for the state, Thomas Roepke, told Callan the question of whether Hill's actions benefited anyone or harmed anyone was not relevant.

He likened Hill's alleged act to that of someone passing bad checks.

"One commits the act of forgery with the intent to defraud, you don't have to specify the object of that fraud," Roepke said.

Roepke also argued that Hill did not need to know how the substance was going to be used as evidence to know that destroying it was a criminal act.

"Obviously, people flush things down the toilet every day," Roepke said. "But not with regard to an investigation."

Earp said, however, that because the indictment did not spell out the nature of any investigation his client could not have known the substance was to be evidence.

In his unsuccessful motion to quash the indictment, he said the substance could have been "baking soda or powdered sugar or some other equally innocent substance."

Gov. Mark White, center, meets briefly with a special committee studying farmworkers insurance coverage Thursday. The committee, chaired by Tony Korioth, seated to the right of the governor, backed away from a final vote on the so-called compromise measure.

Committee calls off final vote on farmworkers insurance bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Some top officials of the Texas Farm Bureau who oppose a so-called compromise farmworkers insurance bill can expect to get telephone calls from Gov. Mark White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The Joint Committee on Farmworkers Insurance called off a scheduled final vote Thursday on the proposed legislation after S.M. True Jr., president of the Texas Farm Bureau, informed Chairman Tony Korioth of Austin that the statewide farmers organization would not support the plan. He said the bureau considered the proposal to be a "mandatory" workers compensation law for agricultural employers and preferred giving growers an option of self insurance.

Korioth said another meeting of the Joint Committee on Farmworkers Insurance would be called after White and Hobby had a chance to talk with Farm Bureau representatives and other members of the special committee.

Former House Speaker Bill Clayton, a committee member, was unsuccessful in calling for a vote, even a straw poll, Thursday to gauge the consensus of the group.

The next meeting also will consider amendments suggested by members Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, and Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, to protect small farmers.

Sarpalius said he would sign the bill if it included an exemption for "casual" employees "such as high school students who pitch hay for a farmer for a few days."

Whaley wants the bill to exempt small farmers who do not pay out more than $25,000 a year for hired help.

The compromise bill, which some committee members said was almost unanimously approved at a recent meeting in Wimberly, would cover all migrant and seasonal farm workers whose employers pay more than $100,000 a year in wages.

Geter wants to advise other prison inmates

DALLAS (AP) — Lenell Geter, cleared by a state judge to fly home today to his South Carolina family for Christmas, says he wants to become an advisor to prison inmates after his case is resolved.

The 26-year-old engineer, who was employed at E-Systems Inc. in Greenville before his arrest on armed robbery charges, said Thursday that during his 16 months behind bars he found some prison inmates who probably had not received fair trials.

"There's a very small minority (of inmates) that got a raw deal," he told The Associated Press. "I'm very burdened by that. I've seen men cry. I've heard stories of men who were separated from their families and their wives having to go on welfare for no reason."

Geter was released on $10,000 bond Wednesday after an appeals court granted a request from both prosecutors and defense attorneys for a new trial.

State District Judge John Ovard Thursday waived all travel restrictions on Geter's bond and scheduled a pre-trial hearing for Jan. 30. Geter planned to return home to South Carolina today.

Texas Gov. Mark White, who had urged a speedy study of Geter's appeal, said Thursday at his weekly news conference in Austin he believes the courts "are in the right position now."

"I think the district attorney in Dallas has taken the right steps to ensure there is justice done in the case," White said. "They have an opportunity to review the facts. If there has been a mistake made, I think it's appropriate we correct the mistake."

Geter claims he became a suspect in a string of Dallas-area robberies only because he is black and looked suspicious to an elderly white woman.

Five eyewitnesses testified that Geter was the man who robbed a fast-food restaurant in the Dallas suburb of Balch Springs, but nine co-workers said he was at work on the day of the robbery. Two of the nine — the two who could place Geter at his desk at the hour of the hold-up — did not testify but gave depositions after his conviction and life sentence.

The unusual legal maneuvering that led to his release began Monday when Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade said public pressure prompted him to agree to a new trial for Geter. Wade also said that if Geter passed a lie detector test, all charges against him would be dropped, completely clearing him.

Geter said he would be willing to take the test if his attorneys approved, but court-appointed defense lawyer Edwin Sigel said he and his collegues still had reservations about the test.

A polygraph administered last spring produced inconclusive results because of Geter's nervousness, officials said, but he did pass a sodium pentothal "truth serum" test.

Sigel said a decision will be made in January on whether to go ahead with the polygraph.

"We won't do it until he gets out of that incarceration mentality. He was in prison for more than a year and that makes you very nervous," he said.

Geter was released after several of his co-workers from the aerospace firm drove to Dallas to deliver the bond they raised through personal loans from the E-Systems credit union.

Geter was one of six black engineers from South Carolina whose pictures were circulated to Dallas-area police officials after a Greenville robbery. Geter became a suspect, Greenville authorities said, only after an elderly white woman thought Geter looked suspicious because he frequented a city park after work.

Wade, Sigel and Ovard, whose court has jurisdiction, all asked the 5th District Texas Court of Appeals to remand the case back to Ovard's court for a new trial. A three-judge panel of the court agreed to the request Wednesday.

While in prison, Geter helped teach inmates to read and write and conducted Bible study classes and chess tournaments.

Geter said he would probably return to work, possibly at E-Systems, and would be eager to help some of his friends in prison.

state in brief

Texas phone firms ask PUC to let them make up lost revenue

AUSTIN (AP) — Most of Texas' 95 telephone companies on Thursday asked the Public Utility Commission to let them recover millions of dollars in long distance business they say they'll lose on Jan. 1.

The court-ordered divestiture of American Telephone & Telegraph, effective New Year's Day, will take most of the profitable long distance market away from the local companies. AT&T, MCI, Sprint and other companies will provide that service.

The requests filed Thursday by the telephone companies include projections of the amount of lost long distance business. The companies want AT&T and the other long distance companies to make up most of the lost revenue.

For example, Southwestern Bell says it needs $533 million from AT&T and $94.3 million from the other long distance companies.

The requests were filed by Southwestern Bell, General Telephone, United Telephone, Central Telephone, Continental Telephone, Palo Pinto Telephone and two organizations representing almost every other phone company in the state.

White names new assistant

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White announced Thursday that Rep. Gerald Hill, D-Austin, will become executive assistant to the governor, effective Jan. 2.

Hill succeeds Pike Powers, who is resigning to return to his private legal practice in Austin. Before joining White's staff after the 1982 election, Powers was in charge of the Austin office of Fulbright & Jaworski.

Hill, 36, has served in the Texas House since 1976.

He is chairman of the House Committee on Local and Consent Calendars.

Aide tends to run aground

AUSTIN (AP) — With the resignation of aide Pike Powers, Gov. Mark White is losing a trusted assistant and an apparently not-so-trusted sailing mate.

Powers, White and Austin beer distributor Lowell Lebermann are joint owners of the yacht "No Chance."

Asked Thursday if new aide Gerald Hill would have to assume Powers' yacht duties, White said anyone would be better than Powers at the helm.

"He has been aground more times than I have been aground, and I was in the Army. Lowell Lebermann hasn't been aground yet, and that's disturbing to both of us."

Lebermann is blind.

Brownsville man wins award

AUSTIN (AP) — Stephen Bosio, longtime director of the Brownsville Chamber of Commerce, was named Thursday as the first winner of the Texas Good Neighbor Commission Annual Award.

The commission established the award to recognize individuals who promote the "ideals of the good neighbor in Texas" and work with inter-American groups.

Austin selects city attorney

N (AP) — Paul Isham, a former city attorney for Denton and Fort Worth, was selected Thursday as Austin's city attorney.

Isham, 42, will take over the $70,000 post on Feb. 1. He is now a partner in a Fort Worth law firm.

Cuban ex-convict found guilty in hijacking attempt

HOUSTON (AP) — An ex-convict from Cuba has been found guilty of trying to hijack a Pan Am jetliner to Havana and assaulting a flight attendant.

Jurors deliberated five hours Thursday before finding Alfredo Ayala, 29, guilty of attempted air piracy and interfering with the duties of a flight attendant.

U.S. District Judge Norman Black suspended a mandatory 20-year sentence on the air piracy charge, but sentenced Ayala to 12 years in prison on the assault charge.

The Aug. 2 hijacking attempt of the Pan American jetliner was foiled by a laid-off Pan Am employee, Spicer Lung, and his teen-age son, Spicer Lung Jr. The elder Lung was rehired by the airline after he grappled with the unarmed Ayala and helped flight attendant Fernando Villalobos handcuff him.

Ayala's attorney, Tom Berg, called his client "a wretched creature" who could not be held responsible for his actions. He said it was ridiculous to try to hijack a plane without a weapon.

"There is doubt as to whether he formulated the wrongful intent to commit the very serious crime of air piracy," Berg said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Brown said Ayala needed to be "warehoused" as a deterrent to other would-be hijackers.

Ayala told court officials after he was arrested he was imprisoned for child molesting in Cuba. Federal officials in California said he was convicted on a similar charge July 28, 1982, in San Francisco. Ayala was on probation in that case when the hijacking attempt occurred.

Testimony during the two-day trial indicated Ayala was targeted as a "possible hijacker" when he bought his one-way ticket from Miami to Houston.

Edward O'Meara, a Pan Am financial controller, testified that Ayala's boarding pass bore the letter "P" — meaning he fit the FAA profile of a hijacker.

The profile, O'Meara said, includes passengers who buy one-way tickets without reservations and males aged 18-28. He said those passengers are pat-searched and prohibited from taking luggage aboard the plane.

O'Meara said the passengers also are supposed to be watched closely by flight crews. But Jeanne Richey, a purser, said she was unaware Ayala was a "high-profile" passenger.

White considers Glenn, Mondale 'good friends'

AUSTIN (AP) — Ohio Sen. John Glenn is a "good friend" who is doing a "good job" and would run well in Texas against President Reagan, says Gov. Mark White.

But don't use that as an indicator of White's leanings in the Democratic presidential scramble. He says the same things about Walter Mondale.

"I've got friends on both sides," White said at a Thursday news conference.

Glenn was vote-hunting in Texas on Wednesday, and White hosted a Governor's Mansion reception for the former astronaut. Mondale will get the same hospitality, says the governor.

"I'll be delighted to show both of them around to some of our friends in Texas. I've offered the same opportunity to the other candidates," he said. "They're both friends of mine and I think they both have extraordinary talents to offer to the leadership of this country.

"They're both going to do a good job, I think," White said of Mondale and Glenn. "I think they both would do well in Texas."

Asked which candidate would run best in Texas against Reagan, White again walked the political tightrope.

"I think it's pretty close, either one would do well," he said.

And, giving a stock answer to what has become a stock question, White said he has no interest in the vice presidency.

"I have a good job now and I'm not looking for another one," he told reporters.

White was not shy in attacking Reagan. After prefacing his remarks by saying he supports "a lot of things he does," the governor listed Reagan promises he said have died with no action.

"They told us they were going to bring relief programs to South Texas that would be new and innovative. They didn't. They told us a lot of things were going to happen that didn't," said White.

He added he would be satisfied if South Texas would "just get as much as Grenada does."

West Texas Utilities users to get $6.9 million in refunds

AUSTIN (AP) — West Texas Utilities customers will get $6.9 million in refunds although the Public Utility Commission has given the company a rate increase of almost $12 million.

The refunds, with interest, are required because the company began charging higher, bonded rates on Oct. 2. Those temporary rates were based on an increase of $18.8 million, according to PUC spokeswoman Ronna Martin.

Utilities with pending rate hikes are allowed by state law to set their own rates until the commission rules on the requested increase. West Texas Utilities had asked for a $26.5 million, or 11.4 percent, hike.

The refunds, to be made within six months, must include 12.83 percent interest and will be made in credits on bills.

CRMWD deliveries drop below billion-gallon level in November

BIG SPRING — For the first time in a year, municipal deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District dropped below the billion-gallon level.

Total municipal demands for November were 945,932,000 gallons, down 124,225,000 gallons from a year ago, or 11.61 percent. Mining and industrial deliveries of 113,263,000 were off nearly 43 million gallons, or 27.54 percent. Total deliveries were 1,059,195,160 gallons, which was 167,000,000 gallons less than November 1982, down 13.63 percent.

Most of the decline occurred in deliveries to Odessa and Midland. Odessa's total of 388,897,000 gallons was down 78,500,000 gallons or 15.98 percent from a year ago. Midland's draw of 279,240,000 gallons was down 53 million gallons or 15.98 percent. Other deliveries included Big Spring 210,422,000 gallons, up .54 percent; Robert Lee, 10,054,000 gallons, up 3.78 percent; Snyder, 67,218,000 gallons, down 1.03 percent; San Angelo, 4,701,000 gallons, down 2.14 percent; Stanton, 6,645,000 gallons, down 34.59 percent.

On the west end, the city of Pyote and the West Texas Children's Home took 3,153,700 gallons, well above the 2,167,700 gallons in November 1982.

No one knew dark side of 'the winner'

Hearst Feature Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Pat Hastings was a straight-A student throughout high school and college, a member of the honor society and a cheerleader. She was the daughter of a wealthy magazine publisher, and an idealist, postponing graduate school to join Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA).

Everyone knew she was a winner. Nobody knew she was an alcoholic.

When Hastings announced she was leaving her part-time job in a law firm to work for an alcoholism recovery center, one of the partners asked, "How could you stand to work with those people?"

Hastings replied, "I am one of those people."

HASTINGS IS ONE of a growing group of alcoholics — young, female and well-educated. Many, like Hastings, are lucky. They recognized the signs early and are getting help.

According to the National Council on Alcoholism, half of all alcoholics are women, and two-thirds of women now receiving treatment for alcoholism are between the ages of 25 and 35.

As women have moved toward equality with men, it has become increasingly socially acceptable for women to drink. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services reports that 60 percent of adult women drink, and nearly 90 percent of college-educated women do.

WITH MORE WOMEN drinking, experts suspect that the number of female alcoholics is rising. During the late '60s, only one-fifth of those joining Alcoholics Anonymous were women. Today, one-third are women.

"It's very sophisticated for women to drink," Hastings said, "and with many women facing more pressures — as, for example, single mothers — it's more likely that they would develop a problem." Hastings, a social worker and community relations person for the Women's Alcoholism Center in San Francisco, said a dependency on alcohol can develop so gradually that the drinker doesn't realize it's happening. If a woman regularly has a drink to relax, she may discover she can't break the habit, and must continue to drink to relax.

HASTINGS WAS A graduate student when she discovered her drinking problem. She said it was the fear of success that ultimately triggered the problem.

"To me, getting into graduate school meant real achievement, and I think that's what freaked me out." Her first week at grad school was a succession of wine and cheese tasting parties, and Hastings noticed she was getting quite drunk at these get-togethers. It frightened her.

Even before she had started graduate school, she had realized she was almost constantly thinking about alcohol, though she never shared her fears with anyone. She noticed that when she made a date for dinner with a friend, she would look forward more to the wine than to the friend.

CONCERNED, HASTINGS quit drinking completely for six weeks. She found that soon her resolve melted. "I went to a party and got completely wasted. After the party was over, I arranged for everyone to go to a bar."

Completely drunk, Hastings returned home and was violently ill. The next day she was so hungover she couldn't drive a friend to the hospital. "I felt so ashamed," she said. "Here she was really sick, and I had just self-induced my illness."

Though Hastings had never lost a job because of drinking, never been cited for drunken driving, had never even been criticized by friends or family for drinking too much, she decided she needed help and went to an anonymous self-help group. Like many seeking help these days for alcoholism, Hastings didn't wait until she became a skid row bum.

"ROCK BOTTOM IS DIFFERENT for different people," she said. "There was one woman who drank only in the evenings and who decided she didn't have a problem as long as she could get up, get undressed and go to bed. One night she passed out in her clothes. Another woman recognized her situation was serious when she discovered a note written by her child, 'God, please make my mommy stop drinking.' "

Recent studies have shown that women tend to develop a drinking problem for very different reasons than men, and that women alcoholics are very different than male alcoholics.

"MOST OFTEN A WOMAN will tell you that she began drinking around a crisis," said Bette Hollis, clinical outpatient coordinator for Marin Services for Women. "It might be a divorce, illness or a death. I don't think that's a rationalization. It's just that women can usually pinpont when they started drinking heavily."

Because women tend to be smaller, the physical effects of alcoholism occur sooner and are more severe. Women don't have to drink as much as men to develop cirrhosis of the liver. Women alcoholics live an average 48 years. Men alcoholics average 56 years, according to the National Council on Alcoholism.

"THE PHYSICAL ILL-effects of alcohol are telescoped in women," said Hollis. "We are finding a number of very young women with very severe medical problems. We've had women in their early 20s who have been told by their doctors that if they didn't stop drinking they were going to die at a very young age. We see liver damage, brain damage, ulcers and a high incidence of gynecological problems."

Although 50 percent of all alcoholics are women, very little research has been done on female alcoholism. Between 1928 and 1970, there were ony 28 studies of women alcoholics published in the English language. During the same period, there were 300 studies about male alcoholics, according to the Women's Alcoholism Center.

THE VAST MAJORITY of women alcholics — 89 percent — have had at least one alcoholic parent. "Research is showing that there are patterns in all alcoholic families," Hastings said. "Usually, the oldest child is very responsible and takes the role of surrogate parent. Then there's the child who 'acts out.' He's the one who ends up in juvenile hall. There's also what is called 'the mascot.' He's the one who tells the jokes and relieves the tension in the family." Part of recovery for the female alcoholic involves helping her own children out of these roles.

Despite the indication that women alcholics may get the most benefit from all-women's groups, only 14 out of 574 alcoholism treatment programs funded by the federal government in 1980 were specifically for women.

"THE DROPOUT RATE of women in coed groups is very high," Hollis said. "We did research and found that men did 90 percent of the talking in coed groups, and men's problems were given higher priority." Also, women in coed groups tend to defer to men, adopting a nurturing role instead of working on their own problems.

Many therapists who work with alcoholics find that women have needs which are much different from men.

"A MAN WHO FALLS down drunk is a man," Hastings said. "A woman who falls down drunk is a tramp. Because of the stigma and guilt, women need a place to work through the guilt.

Friends, relatives can help child

Hearst Feature Service

Even if the parent doesn't stop drinking, there is a lot that teachers, friends and relatives can do to help the child of the alcoholic. The Women's Alcoholism Center in San Francisco offers these suggestions:

1. Talk with the children about alcoholism. It's important that you speak openly and honestly about a parent's drinking. You can give crucial information, and you'll be making a start in breaking through the child's own denial.

2. Let them know it's not their fault. Alcoholism is a disease. Nothing they did or didn't do makes their parent drink. They didn't cause the problem.

3. Let them know they're not alone. Lots of kids have alcoholic parents. They're not the only one.

4. Help them identify and express their feelings. Because of the chaos in their daily lives, children of alcoholics often shut down their emotions, learning not to feel or care about anything. Help these children to know themselves and express their feelings. Label their emotions: "I bet that makes you feel angry." "If that happened to me, I'd probably feel sad."

5. Be consistent and caring. It's no small thing that the child of an alcoholic has one very dependable and concerned adult in his life. Be on time for your appointments with them. Follow though on promises. Let the children know you care about them.

6. Give them choices. Decision-making can be hard for the children of alcoholics. They want to please, or they don't know what they want. Give them chances to practice making simple decisions and expressing their own opinions. A question such as, "What do you want to do this afternoon?" may be overwhelming. Ask things such as, "Do you want to go to a movie or go to the park?"

7. Don't judge the drinking parent. Let the child know that you don't think badly of the parent. "I bet your mother is probably a really nice person when she doesn't drink."

8. Let them know their parent loves them. The parent feels the love even though he or she may not be able to express it.

New style may perk season spirit

Copley News Service

A new hair regimen by getting dry or damaged hair in healthy shape or even a new hairdo for the holidays may perk seasonal spirits.

If a haircut is not in the immediate plans, make sure to trim it slightly to get rid of split ends.

Style experts at Goody, a manufacturer of hair accessories, observe a traditional favorite, the ponytail, is more popular than ever and perfect for school, office or sports. A barrette or ponytail holder can be used to fasten the "tail" high up on the crown. Or for a more tailored look, bar barrette can be used to fasten hair at the nape of the neck. For seasonal galas, the ponytail can be pulled through a flexible chignon foundation and spread evenly,

Short hair is easy to care for and looks neat for day or evening. A special look can also be created for special occasions. A colorful headband works well with short hair when it is placed just forward of center, and the crown of the hair is back combed with a styling brush. It can be brushed gently backward for a smooth full look. For evening, hair can be brushed up from the nape and fastened with bobby pins, being careful to keep them concealed.

DEAR ABBY

Judge: Teens — go home, grow up!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am now the father of two small children. When I was a teen-ager, our minister read something from your column that contained a powerful message. It went something like this: "Kids, don't sit around asking where you can go and what you can do for entertainment, go home and do something constructive. Grow up!"

Does this ring a bell? If so, can you locate it and publish it again? — ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS FAN, DENVER

DEAR FAN: The item to which you refer was written by Philip B. Gilliam, a juvenile court judge from Denver. It was titled, "An Open Letter to a Teen-Ager." It appeared in my column nearly 20 years ago. And here it is:

"Always we hear the plaintive cry of the teen-ager: What can we do? ... Where can we go? The answer is GO HOME!

"Hang the storm windows, paint the woodwork. Rake the leaves, mow the lawn, shovel the walk. Wash the car, learn to cook, scrub some floors. Repair the sink, build a boat, get a job.

"Help the minister, priest or rabbi, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army. Visit the sick, assist the poor, study your lessons. And then when you are through — and not too tired — read a book.

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your city or village does not owe you recreational facilities. The world does not owe you a living. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and energy and your talents so that no one will be at war or in poverty or sick or lonely again.

"In plain, simple words, GROW UP; quit being a crybaby. Get out of your dream world and develop a backbone, not a wishbone, and start acting like an adult.

"You're supposed to be mature enough to accept some of the responsibility your parents have carried for years. They have nursed, protected, helped, appealed, begged, excused, tolerated and denied themselves needed comforts so that you could have every benefit. This they have done gladly, for you are their dearest treasure. But now, you have no right to expect them to bow to every whim and fancy just because selfish ego, instead of common sense, dominates your personality, thinking and requests.

"In heaven's name, GROW UP and GO HOME!"

DEAR ABBY: What should we do when guests drop in uninvited at the precise moment when our favorite television program comes on?

My husband and I never go out on that night because we want to stay home and watch this particular program. — BUGGED IN BOZEMAN, MONT.

DEAR BUGGED: You can either bite your tongue, turn the TV set off and lie through your teeth about how "happy" you are to see the drop-ins, or you can greet them with, "Hello! We were just about to watch our favorite TV program. We hope you like it, too, because we wouldn't miss it for the world."

The choice is yours.

Computer may be efficient aid in psychiatric treatment

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The computer is taking its place beside the psychiatrist's traditional couch at the University of Wisconsin, where a researcher has developed a program that helps patients pin down their problems.

Robert Ellison, the researcher, said the computer has proven to be a valuable aid because it can remember a patient's responses, remain emotionally uninvolved and define the source of a patient's stress.

And it's cheap — about $2 for an initial diagnostic session in which the computer asks 80 questions, then produces a written profile to which the patient writes his reactions, Ellison said in a recent interview.

Currently, the program is being tested at the university's counseling center on students who, after an initial person-to-person interview, are determined not to be facing an immediate crisis but to be having trouble with the stress of becoming adults, Ellison said.

For such students, said Ellison, the computer program can do much of the work that usually consumes most of a patient's first therapy session.

The program asks a sequence of questions — about beliefs, stress situations, moodiness and pleasurable pursuits — to highlight such common problems as academic achievement, career goals and roommates.

In a debate-type manner, the questions "move from vague symptoms to specific behavioral problems," Ellison said.

The patient's written reactions to the computer's report is the basis for the first therapy session with the psychiatrist.

Most students have been surprised at their own ease in working with the computer, and come to their first counseling session with two or three pages of written reaction, Ellison said.

"The counselor also has a copy of the profile," he said. "It makes the session more efficient and maybe more effective."

Ellison said the computer is not just a machine asking questions because it took a person to write the program.

Gifting without guilt possible at Christmas

Hearst Feature Service
(Special to the Reporter-Telegram)

Most of us, at Christmas time, find ourselves spending more for gifts than we had planned or would have liked to spend. But there are ways to avoid extravagance without guilt and still show that we care.

"Whether we know it or not," Redbook magazine notes in an article in the December issue entitled 'How To Be A Gifted Giver,' "most of us abide by certain unspoken rules that influence not only to whom we give gifts but also what kind of gifts we give."

"Gift-giving rules were made to be broken," Redbook says emphatically. "This year, when you begin to draw up your list, ask yourself these questions:

1. Is there anyone on my list who might think it a relief not to exchange gifts? If so, perhaps you can make a no-present pact.
2. How can I show my love in more direct ways than with gifts? Is there something other than a conventional present that would express my feelings?
3. Is there anyone I can add to my list who would especially appreciate a gift from me?
4. How will I handle receiving an unexpected gift? (Try rehearsing these lines: 'Thank you. What a nice surprise. You are so thoughtful.')

Little runner is big winner in race meets

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Out of all the trophies Mary Klas has won for excellence in long-distance running, one that she really didn't deserve stands out most in her mind.

"I didn't realize I had the wrong trophy until I got home," said Ms. Klas, a Random Lake, Wis., native and a freshman on the cross-country team at United States International University in San Diego.

"It was at a race in Jefferson (Wis.) and when I registered, I entered in the girls' 14-18 age group, but they issued me the wrong color tag, and I ended up with the first-place trophy for the 13-and-under age group."

It wasn't the first time that Ms. Klas has been mistaken for someone much younger. At 18, she is 4 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 78 pounds. Looking at her, an observer might guess that she is a preteen, possibly 13 or 14 at most.

"I'm more or less used to it," said Ms. Klas, who has been told by doctors that her bone growth is about four years behind that of most 18-year-olds.

"For a while, I had a case of anorexia (the inability to eat because of a loss of appetite), and between my freshman and sophomore years in high school, I was hospitalized for two months. It wasn't until I went into the hospital and they took tests that they realized I was behind schedule."

Until that time, Ms. Klas' development had been normal, like that of her two brothers (6-foot-3 and 6 feet) and three sisters (all about 5-foot-4). But the physical education major hasn't let her size stand in the way of her performance in a race.

In the five races she has started for the U.S. International women's cross-country team this fall, she has been the first USIU finisher in three meets and was second in two others.

She first started running in sixth grade, "but I've been running seriously only since my freshman year in high school," adds Ms. Klas, who was an A-minus student in high school.

"I didn't get directive coaching, really," she said. "In high school, they told me what to do, but not the correct way to run."

"She didn't get much information and never ran well in high school, at least as well as I know she can do," said USIU track and cross-country coach Elliot Kramsky. "With the natural talent she had, she should have been state champion."

Ms. Klas did finish ninth overall in the Wisconsin State Class B meet her junior year in high school in 1981.

"Because of her size, she had a difficult time doing long, hard training," said Kramsky. "She ran no more than five miles a day through high school. We fit her with some heel supporters, and that, combined with smart running, has allowed her to run 70 or 80 miles a week injury-free."

Kramsky, formerly the women's cross-country coach at Marquette University, first spotted Ms. Klas at a road race the summer between her sophomore and junior years in high school.

"I was there to watch a girl on my Marquette team," he said. "Mary annihilated her. She was the first woman to finish in that race. The next year I coached at a cross-country camp she attended. That's where I really got to know her."

Bad synthetic heroin may cause Parkinson's disease symptoms

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — More than 120 people in the San Francisco Bay area who used bad synthetic heroin have developed symptoms of Parkinson's disease, with one victim so paralyzed he could move only his eyeballs, doctors say.

"It's something that is reaching large proportions," Dr. J. William Langston, chief of neurology at Santa Clara Valley Medical Center, said recently.

At least 100 other cases are suspected, and doctors are certain that a batch of the toxic drug remains in circulation. They have found that symptoms can develop weeks, months or even more than a year after an injection.

"We have seen a number of patients who were exposed last year who are now developing symptoms," Langston said. "We are very concerned that people who used this last year, who think they got off, may still be at risk."

The toxic chemical, concocted in illicit laboratories and sold as inexpensive heroin, can be manufactured so it looks just like the real thing. But unlike heroin, it gives a burning sensation when injected.

The symptoms are almost indistinguishable from those of Parkinson's disease, a malady that afflicts more than 500,000 Americans with muscle stiffness, memory loss, vision or speech problems and a general slowing of body movements. The disease usually strikes people over age 60.

Many of the drug victims so far identified are being treated with the same medication used by Parkinson's disease patients.

At least seven people suffered serious paralysis after injecting the chemical. Half must take medication every three to four hours for the rest of their lives to keep their bodies from stiffening, Langston said.

Another tried under hospital supervision to go a week without using the drug administered to control his symptoms, but he "froze up" within three days "to the point where the only thing he could move were his eyeballs," Langston said. Doctors then cut short the "drug holiday."

Still another could move only his fingertips without drugs.

Reports of other cases have come to Langston from Sacramento, San Francisco, Oakland, Hawyard and Vancouver, British Columbia.

Decorating T-shirt can be fun

Hearst Feature Service

What a great gift. You give a kid a red or blue T-shirt and three vials of textile paints and you tell the kid to get busy. The kid says, "You mean it?" and you say, "Yep. You can decorate that shirt any way you want. It's your shirt." Then the kid decorates the living room sofa. Well, it's the thought that counts. From Boston Proper, of all places. Squirt-a-Shirt comes in kids' small (6 to 8), medium (10 to 12) and large (14 to 16) sizes. $11.50 gets you one T-shirt and three colors of paint. (800-243-4300)

Public Notice

In order to comply with the Federal Communication Commission's (FCC) Computer Inquiry II (CI-II) order and subsequent FCC Orders or rulings, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (SWB) has filed with the Public Utility Commission (PUC) an Application for transfer of certain assets to American Telephone and Telegraph Company (AT&T), and or its subsidiaries.

This Application affects the provision of customer premise equipment (CPE) throughout SWB's service area in the state of Texas. Effective with the implementation of this transfer of facilities, which is expected to be on January 1, 1984, CPE equipment previously provided by SWB, under tariff, will be detariffed and as of that date will be offered to customers by AT&T and or its subsidiaries in accordance with the order in FCC Docket No. 81-893.

The FCC's order also provides that this embedded CPE shall be offered to in-place customers on a sale or lease basis for 24 month transition period. The order furthermore outlines the rates and conditions under which these sale or lease plans may be carried out.

For the purposes of this Application, SWB has filed proposed tariffs with the PUC, anticipated to be effective January 1, 1984, withdrawing its offerings of such customer premise equipment.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Aviso al Publico

A fin de cumplir con el decreto Computer Inquiry II (Investigación de Computadoras II : CI-II) de la Federal Communications Commission (Comisión Federal de Comunicaciones : FCC) y otros decretos o decisiones posteriores de la FCC, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (SWB) ha presentado ante la Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos : PUC) una Solicitud para la transferencia de ciertos bienes a American Telephone and Telegraph Company (AT&T) y o compañías filiales.

Esta Solicitud afecta la suministracion del equipo ubicado en instalaciones del cliente, en toda el area de servicio de SWB en el estado de Texas. Con vigencia desde el cumplimiento de esta transferencia de instalaciones, presuntamente el 1° de Enero de 1984, los equipos ubicados en instalaciones del cliente que anteriormente proveia SWB bajo una determinada tarifa, se proporcionaran por AT&T y o compañias filiales a partir de esa fecha, siendo eliminadas las tarifas, de acuerdo con el decreto en la Orden del Dia numero 81-893 de la FCC.

El decreto de la FCC también dispone que este equipo fijo ubicado en instalaciones del cliente se ofrecera a los clientes en venta o alquiler por un periodo de transición de 24 meses. Asimismo, el decreto indica en lineas generales las tarifas y condiciones segun las cuales deberán llevarse à cabo los planes de venta o alquiler.

Para el proposito de esta Solicitud, SWB ha registrado las tarifas propuestas ante la PUC, presuntamente con vigencia a partir del 1° de Enero de 1984, suspendiendo la suministración de dicho equipo.

Toda persona que desee intervenir o participar en el proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Para obtener mayor información debe llamar a Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division, (512) 458-0223, al (512) 458-0227 o al (512) 458-0221 si requiere teletipo para sordos.

Don't fall for vitamin 'hype'

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Copley News Service

Dear Shirley: I have been reading several ads lately that are selling a new vitamin called PABA that is short for some long scientific name. It is supposed to be important in keeping one's health and nutrition.

Do you know anything about it? Are you recommending that everyone use it? Should I spend the money to buy it or?

I am worried about improving my health, but I sure don't have any extra money to throw away so I hope you will tell me what I should do about it. If you think it will make me any healthier I will sacrifice something else to buy it. — E.G.K.

Dear E.G.K.: For heaven's sake don't fall for every so-called new magic vitamin "guaranteed" to improve your health. The sooner you learn to recognize the phony "hype" ads of the vitamin hucksters, the more money you will save and the better off you will be.

You do not need to buy PABA to "improve health." PABA is short for paraaminobenzoic acid and is not in itself a vitamin, nor is it even an essential nutrient for humans. It actually is a structural part of the vitamin folic acid, and is an essential nutrient for bacteria, by itself.

Folic acid is part of the B-Complex vitamin group and it is found in many foods such as liver, yeast, mushrooms, asparagus, steak and beans.

Use your money to buy good food from the four food groups of meats, fish, fowl, fruits and vegetables, milk and dairy products and whole grains. Broccoli, spinach, bananas, cantaloupe, carrots and potatoes are also good food sources of folacin (folic acid).

You only need 0.4 mg. per day but if you are worried about not getting enough, you can take one multivitamin supplement that contains that amount on the label.

When taking vitamins, more is not better, sometimes it's worse.

Dear Shirley: Can you tell me how I can increase my estrogen with a high-estrogen diet? I have heard that some things have anti-estrogen effects, like caffeine and alcohol, is that true?

If there is a diet to increase estrogen in women, how come doctors don't use that instead of giving pills? If I eat a high-estrogen diet should I stop taking it in pill form?

Please tell me what foods are high in it and do you recommend taking them? — Mrs. A.V.

Dear Mrs. A.V.: Please do not stop taking your estrogen pills. There is no diet that will increase your estrogen levels because the plants that produce substances with only very weak estrogenic activity and in minute amounts certainly will have no effect in increasing estrogen in the body. They are insignificant in both strength and quantity to be of any health significance. Soybeans, clover, alfalfa and bluegrass are some of the plants with tiny amounts of such substances, but they are ineffective for this purpose.

Dear Shirley: What has the most sodium per glass (about 8 oz.) beer, light beer or wine?

I am on a low-sodium diet and I also am watching my calories so what kinds of drinks should I order when I go out to eat?

I enjoy a little alcohol and I guess it won't hurt me will it? I am going to be 75 years old soon, and I think I should be able to have something I enjoy, don't you? — J.H.

Dear J.H.: Yes, I think you should enjoy everything you can, but you didn't tell me why you were put on a low-sodium diet, so you had better check with your doctor about alcohol.

A glass (8 oz.) of regular beer has about 12 mg. of sodium and around 100 calories. The same amount of light beer has about 10 mg. of sodium and between 46 to 90 calories. White wine (two 4 oz. glasses) has about 4 mg. of sodium and about 198 calories.

Former labor leader not 'into' retirement

POTTSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Earl F. Yeargan has been a working stiff and an industrial plant boss, a union organizer and a consultant to management. He is an unrepentant liberal and a respected political strategist who finished dead last the only time he ran for office. He is Pottsville's only private eye.

Yeargan is 61 now, and a veteran of two heart attacks. But a visitor to his modest rural home finds little difference between today's Yeargan and the one who made headlines almost every day in the 1960s as a firebrand labor leader and political gadfly.

His one concession to the rural life is in his mode of dress. The rumpled suits and porkpie hats have given way to jeans and open-collar sport shirts. His face still resembles 40 miles of unimproved Searcy County road; his voice still rumbles like a dozen baseballs rolling around in the bottom of a 55-gallon oil drum.

Yeargan moved to Pottsville in 1978, ostensibly to retire after his second heart attack, but it didn't work out that way. He saw some things that made him mad, so he got a license as a private investigator and went to work. "I handle civil rights cases and labor cases," he said.

"There are things that go on out here in the country that wouldn't last 15 minutes in the city. Down at Little Rock, they've got all the watchdog agencies right there and the workers know their rights," he said.

"Out here in the country, you got poor whites who are grateful to have any kind of a job; you got a lot of poor women who have to work to keep the family afloat," he said.

The native of Texas said he had never given much thought to the plight of the working man until World War II, when he was serving with the Army in Europe.

"Old John L. Lewis and the coal miners were raising hell back home, and I was like most soldiers overseas — I thought they were a bunch of slackers," Yeargan said.

"Everybody's in the same old creaky boat. I love this country too much to say that one side is all wrong and the other side is all right," he said.

Artificial sweetener causes FDA battle

Hearst Feature Service

Almost 20 years ago, a chemist at G.D. Searle and Co. of Skokie, Ill., accidently mixed two amino acids together and in the process created a multimillion-dollar industry. The mixture also set off one of the longest battles in U.S. Food and Drug Administration history and raised questions that still trouble some scientists today.

The amino acids, aspartic acid and phenylalanine, are two of the building blocks of protein. When combined, they formed a compound called aspartame that tasted unexpectedly sweet — 186 times sweeter than sugar, to be exact.

"Some of it got on my finger and I noticed there was something sweet, so I traced it back," Jack Schlatter, the Searle scientist who discovered aspartame in 1965, recalled. "No artificial sweetner was ever discovered by intention."

Intentionally or not, Schlatter's compound has become the hottest artificial sweetener on the market. Since 1981, it's been sold as a table-top sweetener called Equal, as well as in dry mixes for iced tea, milk shakes, hot chocolate and low-calorie fruit drinks such as Kool-Aid and Crystal Light.

The big breakthrough for Searle came in July, when the FDA, following a review of more than 150 clinical studies, approved aspartame's use in carbonated soft drinks under the trade name NutraSweet. Federal officials called it "the most thoroughly tested product in FDA history."

In the first nine months of 1983, sales of aspartame totaled $205 million in the United States alone — aspartame is currently sold in 30 countries — and that's before-sales of NutraSweet took off in the last quarter, said company spokeswoman Denise Ertell.

NutraSweet is now being used in almost all of the top-selling diet drinks, including Diet Coke, Diet Pepsi and sugar-free 7-Up. Most soft drink companies sweeten their diet drinks with a blend of saccharin and NutraSweet, though at least one drink, Squirt, uses the new sweetener exclusively.

As an artificial sweetener, NutraSweet has two major drawbacks: It can't be used in hot food or allowed to stand in acidic solutions such as cola for long periods of time. Both cause the product to break down into its two amino acids and lose its sweetness.

Dr. Arno Spatola, a professor of chemistry at the University of Louisville who's done extensive research on aspartame, said that while the sweetener could flavor hot drinks such as tea or coffee, it could not be used for baking or for foods that required longer cooking times. In diet colas, aspartame will lose its sweetness in six to nine months if not refrigerated, according to Spatola.

"Upon heating or presumably by standing in solution for a long period of time, aspartame gives a molecule that is not sweet," he explained. Neither Spatola nor the FDA review board believes this chemical property of aspartame presents any health problems. But a few scientists, led by Dr. Richard Wurtman, a professor of neuroendocrinology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, warn that aspartame could pose health risks because of one of its amino acids: phenylalanine.

In animal studies presented before the FDA, Wurtman argued that phenylalanine changes levels of chemicals in the brain, causing behavioral problems such as loss of appetite, irritability and insomnia.

House framework determines finished space

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

No matter which materials you plan to use for the walls, ceilings and floors in your attic, the nature of the finished space will be determined by the basic framework.

While a certain amount of care and patience must be exercised in laying out and installing this framework, it is the kind of project which can be handled by somebody who can learn as he goes along. This is possible because most of the chores are repetitive. Putting up the first stud, for example, may give you a little trouble if you are a novice, but it much easier to erect the dozens of others that are necessary.

If you live in an area where local codes dictate the kinds of materials that can be used, check also for the required spacing between studs for the type of material you have chosen as well as for the necessary thickness of the studs.

There was a time when the codes and common sense called for 2 by 4 studs spaced 16 inches on center; that is, 16 inches between the center of one stud to the center of the next, which is not the same as 16 inches of space between them.

These days, lots of walls are put up with 2 by 3 studs spaced 24 inches kind of material permits this, you will save both time and money. A 2 by 4, as you may know, is actually 1½ by 3½ inches, while a 2 by 3 is 1½ by 2½, since the measurements describe the sizes before the wood is planed and made ready for the market.

Which materials you choose after shopping around may be a compromise between your wishes and your budget. The big seller among dry wall products is gypsum board. It is a kind of gypsum plaster between tough paper and usually is the least expensive of what is available.

Like plywood, which is layers of real wood glued together under pressure, it comes mostly in 4 by 8 sheets, an ideal size for the so-called knee walls of the usual attic. Among the other choices are hardboard, which is made from regular logs converted to chips, then wood fibers, and permanently bonded under heat and pressure; solid board paneling that comes in 16-inch and random widths; and particle boards

Special detoxification program begun by doctor

Copley News Service

In one room are rows of gleaming exercise equipment; another houses saunas and showers. The place looks more like a gym than a doctor's office.

That's because there is a new brand of medicine being practiced here by Dr. Zane Gard. He is trying to pioneer a detoxification process whereby victims of environmental illness and others can rid their bodies of toxins.

Gard, originally trained as a family practitioner but now focusing on chemical sensitivities and allergies, said research has shown that industrial toxins from air and water, agricultural pesticides, food additives and preservatives, plus medical and street drugs can remain stored in the body's fatty tissue for years — the amount increasing with each exposure.

"Many human disorders have been linked to such toxic accumulations, including cancer, allergies, birth defects, learning disabilities and many emotional and mental problems," he said.

Gard, who immersed himself in allergy research after discovering that he and his son shared certain food allergies, said several studies done on detoxification — including before and after tissue-biopsy reports showing significant reduction in toxin levels — convinced him there was something to it.

THE PHYSICIAN went through a three-week Beverly Hills detoxification program to see what it felt like. Convinced of the health benefits, Gard built a detox center into his office at the Alvarado Medical Center in San Diego. He opened it recently and has five patients in the program so far.

Tailored to each individual, the program lasts an average of 18 to 22 days (although some patients in test programs have undergone treatment for nearly three months). The regimen is simple. It includes:

— Daily doses of niacin, which are increased as the program progresses.

— Daily aerobic exercise.

— Daily "sweat-out" in the sauna for a total of two and one-half to five hours at 150 degrees.

— Daily nutritional supplementation, including vitamins, minerals, trace elements, oil and amino acids.

— Testing of IQ and reaction time and a personality analysis before and after the program.

"Niacin is used to release stored toxins from body fat, and as the dosage of niacin is increased, there is a progressive elimination of stored pollutants," said Gard. "Exercise is used to increase blood flow through (fatty) tissue, moving the newly released toxins into general circulation.

"The circulating toxins are then eliminated from the body by sweating in the sauna and through the intestinal tract by daily doses of oil which the body exchanges for contaminated fat."

A STUDY BY the Los Angeles-based Foundation for Advancements in Science and Education of a similar detoxification program found that as the toxins were liberated and moved back into the subjects' circulatory systems, the patients recently experienced anew the chemicals' effects.

If they were victims of environmental illness, past symptomatic reactions such as hyperactivity, headaches and confusion would occur; if they had formally abused recreational drugs, they would experience hallucinations or other highs.

These symptoms would diminish as the toxins passed out of their systems, the study found.

Many physicians are skeptical about the benefits of such a detoxification program, primarily because research regarding it is limited. The common method for treating environmental-illness victims has been to isolate them in "chemically-clean" environments for months (sometimes years), until their immune systems have a chance to right themselves.

Two clinical ecologists contacted declined to comment on detoxification because they haven't yet researched the program. But both were pleased to learn of it and hoped research into this and other methods of desensitizing the environmentally ill would be encouraged.

"I believe in this therapy," said Gard. "Financially, it is not the best thing for me because treatment is very demanding and very time consuming. There are so many problems in getting something like this started that sometimes I think I'd be better off laying concrete or something."

HELPING GARD to administer the detox program and monitor results is Jim Howard, who has a master's degree in clinical psychology and has been a marriage and family counselor for the past eight years.

"The previous studies done on this kind of detoxification have shown that not only has the amount of toxins been reduced as evidenced by before and after fat biopsies, but also there have been significant increases in IQ in many individuals," said Howard.

"And there were intangible benefits, like being able to think more clearly, feeling more aware, improved smell or taste and a more energetic feeling. These benefits would be especially important to the environmentally ill."

Anorexia nervosa compulsive disease

NEW YORK (AP) — It often begins in secret. A teen-age daughter or a young mother skips meals or eats strange foods. A tablespoon of mustard on a lettuce leaf. Dill pickles and hot cocoa.

She loses weight and, at first, is complimented on her appearance. Weeks or months later, however, her friends or family realize how strikingly different she is. Her hollow eyes, sunken cheeks and emotional withdrawal are clear signs of anorexia nervosa.

Can dieting lead to anorexia?

"Nobody who went on a diet 'caught' anorexia nervosa," says Dr. Joseph Silverman, who specializes in treating this extreme personality disorder. "It doesn't happen that way."

On the other hand, he says, "a lot of people on the fringes" of being anorexic can be pushed in that direction by "the American mania that thinness is associated with sexiness."

Anorexia nervosa was identified and named almost 300 years ago. But the term anorexia — meaning loss of appetite — is a misnomer, says Silverman, a pediatrician at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York, who has studied the ailment for more than a decade.

Patients with anorexia have not lost their appetites. On the contrary, says Silverman, "they are obsessed with thoughts of food," but have "wills of steel" and are determined to keep losing weight no matter how thin they become.

The typical victim is a female between the ages of 12 and 24 who begins to deny herself food and "notices she has a tremendous sense of ego fulfillment."

Ultimately, however, the weight loss will take its toll. The skin darkens and becomes rough. Menstruation stops. "Any woman who loses weight and loses periods is suspect," says Silverman.

Body temperature falls, the heart beat slows, blood pressure drops below normal. If these symptoms are not treated, anorexia can be fatal. However, if the illness is arrested in time, everything — including fertility — will return to normal.

Anorexia is most likely to appear in middle-class and upper-class families, where busy schedules can make it easy for a young woman to conceal bizarre eating habits and compulsive exercise, says Silverman.

The young women frequently come from families in which there are severe psychiatric problems. Silverman's treatment is directed at those underlying problems. The victim and her family are all seen by a psychiatrist.

Anorexia is extremely rare among males. But men may suffer from a similar personality disorder that expresses itself in compulsive long-distance running, say psychiatrists at the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center in Tucson.

The compulsion to exercise seems most common in older men who fear the decline of their physical prowess. Like anorexia, it is marked by concern for physical appearance and the need to prove themselves and to control their environment.

Not all researchers agree that anorexia is strictly an emotional problem. Scientists at the National Institutes of Health recently reported that victims of anorexia have abnormal secretions of vasopressin, a brain hormone. Other studies have likewise suggested it is marked by chemical abnormalities in the body.

At the moment, however, not enough research has been done to know for certain whether the ailment has a physical basis.

Anorexia is related to a less severe illness known as bulimia, marked by overeating and purge vomiting. "For every patient with anorexia there are hundreds with bulimia," says Silverman.

ABA president returns to Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Morris Harrell flew 300,000 miles and talked law with lords and fence-building with President Reagan.

He walked away from a small-plane crash — and immediately began looking for another plane to continue the journey.

Now, after a year of hopping from town to town and village to village around the world as president of the American Bar Association, he's back in Dallas.

And he is once again frequenting Dallas' judicial arenas, armed with weapons he has known well for more than three decades — briefs and petitions.

"I don't intend to retire," Harrell, 63, said. "I enjoy the practice of law, and I enjoy the trial of lawsuits. And I am glad to be back home and able to get back into it."

A one-year term as president of the American Bar Association took him away from the practice of law but sent him all over the world. He discussed law with the elite of the judiciary in London and Paris, in Ottawa and Sydney.

It was in New Zealand — on an ABA trip — where Harrell and his wife, Rhoda, had a flight end a bit sooner than anticipated.

"We were taking a private plane out to visit some people on a ranch..." Harrell said. "We lost an engine on takeoff, bounced off the runway and broke the landing gear."

The plane continued skidding away from the runway and came to rest in a pig's delight — lots of mud and water.

Harrell was undaunted. "Fortunately, we were not hurt. As a matter of fact, I tried to get another plane that day to go on to our event, but I couldn't make the arrangements."

HIS COMBINED flying distance while president of the ABA: 300,000 miles, by a conservative estimate. Dallas was home, but just barely.

As ABA president, one of Harrell's greatest coups was getting President Reagan to speak at the group's annual convention held at Atlanta in August.

Harrell spoke with the president briefly before the opening session of the convention, where Reagan made a speech.

"We talked about the presidency, about the demands on his time, and my observations as to how things were going — and ended up talking about building fences at ranches," Harrell recalled. "He was telling me about a fence he was designing and building out at his ranch in California and I was telling him about a ranch that we have.

"I think he was building a better fence than what we're used to."

Harrell's ranch, located near Cotulla between San Antonio and Laredo, is his wife's pet project. Harrell, born in Grandview, in Johnson County about 50 miles southwest of Dallas, indulges his urges to return to the soil with a farm in Johnson County.

"Fortunately, our two interests are wide apart geographically," Harrell explained. "I don't try to cultivate her ranch, and she doesn't try to graze my farm."

For years, Harrell has been outspoken about problems confronting the nation's judicial system. He continued that work as ABA president.

He supported an amendment to the Bar's Model Rules and Professional Conduct that defined the limits of the lawyer-client relationship. The amendment prevents lawyers from revealing information about a client without the client's consent except in two cases — to prevent a client from committing a criminal act that could result in death or bodily harm to someone or to establish a claim or defense for lawyers if faced with criminal charges because of a dispute with the client.

AN EDUCATION program aimed at teaching both youths and adults more about the courts was a favorite project during his tenure.

Harrell was the driving force behind the ABA's first national symposium on public education, which was held in Houston in November.

"I think we're making great headway in a program that will take several years to get under control...I think most people are tremendously interested in the law," he said.

Harrell perceives court delays and the cost of trials as serious problems that defy simple solution.

"Of course, there is plenty of room for improvement in most everything, and certainly in our judicial system," he said, pensively. "I'm not condemning the system. I think it's the greatest system there is. One of the problems we have with our system is our recognition of so many rights of the people. You wouldn't need but a handful of lawyers and two or three judges if nobody had any rights."

Harrell sees the rights as a blessing. But as a practitioner, he knows the cause-and-effect relationship as well.

"When you take all those rights and put them into a system of justice, we're going to have some delays. Our task is to try to keep the system up and make the changes that need to be made in order to accommodate that situation."

"Alternate means of dispute resolution," Harrell said, may be part of the answer — using mediation, arbitration and conciliation to take some disputes out of the courts and resolve them with less time and money spent.

AT THE SAME time, Harrell said, it is important to preserve the integrity of the system and its accessibility, "because part of our American way of life is the right...to seek redress through the court system."

Harrell's career in law began in 1946. His entry into the profession after passing the Bar exam in 1942 was postponed by World War II.

An uncle, Dallas lawyer W.B. Harrell, helped him set up his practice after the war. Harrell had his own practice, although at first his uncle threw enough cases his way for him to make a living.

Suitors gave lovers silver brooches

In Norway a suitor used to have to give his loved one silver brooches, a silver necklace, head linen and handkerchiefs. If she didn't care for him she returned the gifts at once. If she did, she kept them six months, then returned them formally on a Sunday, to give the lad a chance to back out. If he still wanted to marry, he returned the presents.

AL PACINO SCARFACE

In the spring of 1980 the port at Mariel Harbor was opened, and thousands set sail for the United States. They came in search of the American Dream.

One of them found it on the sun-washed avenues of Miami... wealth, power and passion beyond his wildest dreams.

He was Tony Montana. The world will remember him by another name... SCARFACE.

CAUTION - "Scarface" is an intense film both in the use of language and depiction of violence. We suggest mature audiences.

He loved the American Dream. With a vengeance.

Mexican officials hope 1984 year of economic recovery

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican officials are looking forward to 1984 as the year President Miguel de la Madrid's anti-corruption and economic austerity programs bring recovery from massive unemployment and inflation.

But the president says that sacrifices must continue, and some critics believe the future still looks grim.

De la Madrid was inaugurated Dec. 1, 1982, promising to clean up corruption and lead Mexico out of a devastating economic crisis that he had inherited from his predecessor, Jose Lopez Portillo.

Although some aspects of his campaign for a "moral renewal" of Mexican society appear to have fizzled, he has regained international confidence in the economy and solidified Mexico's image as a peacemaker in international affairs.

The first year of de la Madrid's presidency has been one of conservative economic, social and foreign policies.

The economic crisis has hit Mexicans' pocketbooks like no crunch in the last 50 years. Three days after taking office, de la Madrid increased gasoline prices by 100 percent. Since then gasoline has doubled again, and prices of other basic consumer goods spiraled as well.

Inflation, more than 100 percent in 1982, is officially estimated at 85 percent in 1983, but many independent economists say it is higher. The government predicts that the rate will slow down next year, with a 40 percent rate the goal.

De la Madrid's austerity programs included cuts in social spending that heightened unemployment. Conservative estimates are that a million Mexicans lost their jobs as the country's industrial plant stalled.

In a Nov. 16 speech, de la Madrid said his government in 1984 will slash inflation, spur industrial development and create 400,000 new jobs. But he cautioned, as he has throughout the year, that the crisis is not over and sacrifices must continue.

De la Madrid was budget and planning secretary under Lopez Portillo.

His austerity programs as president have gained praise from international bankers who cite them as responsible for averting national bankruptcy. Unchecked government spending under Lopez Portillo's administration had propelled the country's foreign debt past $80 billion and scarce dollar supplies made it questionable whether payments could be met.

The foreign debt now stands at $85 billion, the second-largest in the developing world after Brazil's, but international bankers speak positively of Mexican management of its crisis in comparison with Brazil's mounting difficulties.

New Zealand traffic officials lead dog's life

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Most dogs can't drive. In fact, most canines can't even reach the gas pedal and see over the dashboard. But a lot of dogs own cars here — at least officially — and that's made a dog's life for traffic officials.

The practice has become so widespead that the government introduced a bill recently to prohibit motorists from registering their cars in their dogs' names.

When such a car gets a parking ticket authorities find themselves unable to collect from the registered owner, officials say.

The proposed law would impose fines of up to $650 for supplying false or misleading information in such cases — payable by humans.

Buildings under gray alert

WASHINGTON (AP) — Security officers at federal buildings across the nation are on "gray alert" status, which requires them to increase identification checks and search suspicious parcels.

The heightened security follows the Oct. 23 bombing of the U.S. Marine headquarters in Beirut, Quinton Y. Lawson, deputy assistant commissioner of the Office of Federal Protection and Safety, said.

The office is in charge of 2,100 Federal Protective Service uniformed officers who patrol 7,500 federally owned and leased buildings across the country.

Lawmakers ask for release

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress are asking Syrian President Hafed el-Assad to release Navy Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr. as a "gesture of humanitarian goodwill."

The bipartisan group of 13 senators and representatives also asked the public to send Christmas cards and letters to Goodman, who was taken prisoner by Syrian forces last week after his fighter-bomber was shot down over central Lebanon.

The group said mail for Goodman should be addressed to: Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr., care of United States Congress, Washington, D.C., 20515. Arrangements will be made to deliver the mail to Goodman.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, December 17, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The Pittsburgh Pirates' sensational new centerfielder, Marvell Wynne, celebrates a birthday today. Also born on this date: South American liberator Simon Bolivar, author John Greenleaf Whittier and Boston "Pops" conductor Arthur Fiedler. The employment picture looks much brighter in 1984. Family members rally to your support. You will have to make an important career decision in March. Trust your intuition. Small businesses and family concerns enjoy wonderful luck. Romance seeks you out on a vacation. Do not let the glamorous setting blind you to a newcomer's shortcomings. Those in sales will get a special break next month.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A surprise makes this a special weekend. You need to be more discreet about your personal relationships. Work with a teen-ager on his or her own terms. A good day for shopping.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Secret deals cause trouble. Bring things out in the open. Romance flourishes. Try to maintain a low profile at a social event. A family member proves to be a valuable ally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Rely on your own devices and you will have a happy weekend. A personal objective receives a boost. Put your energies to good use; help mate get ready for the holidays.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A period of meditation brings you fresh inspiration. Get involved in a community project. Romance simmers beneath the surface of a friendship. Family members recognize what is happening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your manipulations could come back to haunt you later on, but today they bring happiness to an older family member. Soft-pedal a dispute. A solution will soon be found.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Romance deserves top priority this weekend. Resist the urge to buy things you cannot afford. The social demands grow as Christmas approaches. You may not be able to accept invitation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A change that affects family life works to your advantage. Put on your thinking cap and find new ways to make money. Travel gives you an opportunity to solve several problems.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Temptation can be a dangerous thing! Review your finances before going on a shopping binge. One thing leads to another at a social event. Romance looks quite exciting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A new cookbook could lure you into the kitchen today. Making holiday goodies is something the whole family can enjoy. Ask mate's assistance. Be on time to all appointments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your magnetic personality helps you stay out in front of the crowd. Family relationships are more rewarding than in the past. A sense of humor makes you a popular host or hostess.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An unexpected reunion with an old school chum boosts your spirits. A change of scenery will help you get out of a rut. A wonderful evening for getting together with close friends.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Check your budget before ordering theater or airline tickets. Households with children begin to bubble with holiday excitement. Pay attention to a romantic rival's tactics. You learn a valuable lesson.

WEFT offers variety

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — WEFT is everything your favorite radio station isn't.

Programming ranges from bluegrass music to poetry, and from right-wing commentary to astronomy. There are no commercials — listeners pay the bills. The announcers work for free.

"Commercial radio has become formalized in a way that excludes a lot of good programming and keeps a lot of people from taking part in the medium," said the station's coordinator, Bill Thomas.

Not WEFT. Consider this sampling of shows on the FM station:

—Jeanie Cheeseman plays "Lulu Had A Baby," and partner Keith Garbutt follows with a reading from J.R.R. Tolkein's classic, "The Hobbit." Their Sunday afternoon show features folk music from the British Isles and stories for children and adults.

—Eddie Etayem adds a south-of-the-border flavor to Saturday night with a variety of Latin music and a discussion of its history and styles in English and Spanish.

—Tim Barwald dips into a stack of 45s from his personal collection and comes up with "Lonnie on the Move" by Lonnie Mack, "Hide and Seek" by The Sheep and some other obscure oldies for a Tuesday night.

Most of the 50 volunteers — housewives, students, working people — have no previous radio experience, but they are given nearly total freedom on the air.

"The biggest no-no is doing something that sounds imitative of one of the commercial stations in town ... or aimless talking," said Thomas.

The announcers have particular views and interests and want to share them with the audience.

"Rasta" James Wilson spins reggae records, plays the commentary of a black philosopher from Jamaica and delivers a message of peace and love.

"I try to get people to learn about people who are different from them," said Wilson, who wears camouflaged fatigues and feeds his voice through a reverberator. "We've got to communicate because we're all the same whether we're black or white, red or yellow."

Mrs. Cheeseman fell in love with the local music while living in Scotland.

"I was desperate for other people to hear the music," said Mrs. Cheeseman, who discovered she could play it on WEFT. "There is an excitement and a freshness in what we are doing that can't be matched in commercial radio."

Thomas helped put WEFT on the air — at frequency 90.1 — two years ago with cash donations, enthusiastic free labor and hand-me-downs.

A TALE OF TWO DEUCES

Neither vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Pass | 4 ♠ | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

Opening lead: Queen of ♡.

Here's another hand from Eddie Kantar's excellent book, "Kantar for the Defense." Cover the South and East hands and see how you, West, would defend against South's four spade contract.

There is nothing unusual about the auction. Since most opening bids of one spade are made with a five-card suit. North's raise is text-book.

You lead the queen of hearts. Dummy's king wins and partner follows with the two. Declarer now leads the jack of diamonds from the table. Partner contributes another deuce and declarer produces the queen. Your first problem is: Do you win the ace?

Definitely, unless you want declarer to sluff one of dummy's losing clubs on his ace of hearts. You need to take your tricks quickly. What do you lead now?

There is a temptation to shift to clubs in the hope that you can cash two tricks in that suit. But two club tricks won't be enough to defeat the contract — you are going to need a trump trick as well. Besides, why didn't declarer cross to his hand with the ace of spades and assure his contract by discarding a club loser on his high heart?

Obviously, because he doesn't have the ace of trumps! So the winning defense is clear. You shift to a trump, and partner wins the ace. Now partner switches to a club, and you cash two club tricks for a one-trick set.

Bridge is really an easy game, isn't it. All you have to do is believe partner and the opponents.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Kelly gets more fan mail than ever

Gene Kelly

NEW YORK (AP) — Dancer Gene Kelly says he gets more fan mail than ever these days, since the younger generation has seen him dance in "That's Entertainment II," a collection of clips from old Hollywood movies.

"A lot of the younger people had never seen me dance until that picture was released. But after they saw it, they said, 'Hey, he's pretty good. What else has the guy done?'" the 71-year-old dancer said.

Kelly said his work is now being studied on college campuses and he is often asked to narrate dance documentaries.

He feels that the popularity of such movies as "Flashdance," "Saturday Night Fever" and "Staying Alive" has little to do with graceful moves as he practiced them, and a lot to do with sex.

"The dances in today's movies feature lots of nearly nude, sexy bodies, male and female. These films reek of raw sex and youthful energy," says the entertainer in an interview in Sunday's issue of Parade magazine.

"The John Travolta pictures sell sweaty masculine muscle, and he moves like a leopard. Today's audiences like to see sexy bodies. Fred Astaire, on the other hand, could dance with an overcoat on, and you'd still watch him."

"You couldn't produce films today with the kind of music, for instance, that was in 'An American in Paris.' As a result, a lot of lovely art forms have practically disappeared." he said.

"Look at Broadway today, and what do you see? Mostly revivals."

• • •

NEW YORK (AP) — The newest member of rage rock group Menudo — Robby Rosa — is a 13-year-old New York native who was an enthusiastic fan of the young Puerto Rican performers long before he ever thought he would join them.

Robby was picked to join Menudo this week and will make his debut with the popular Latin group on Valentine's Day at Radio City Music Hall.

In the meantime, he'll help the group record its first English-language album for RCA records over the Christmas holidays.

Robby is replacing Johnny Lozada, who must retire at 16 because his voice is changing.

Robby said he used to watch Menudo when he was a child in Westbury, Long Island.

"I was like a real fan," he said, in a telephone interview from his home in Ponce, Puerto Rico, where his family now lives. "It looked like fun. So I thought I'd see if they'd take me.'

• • •

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Sherman Hemsley, better known as television's irascible George Jefferson, is easy — as well as fun — to watch, judging by the eighth annual survey from Man Watchers Inc.

Hemsley, along with ABC-TV anchorman Peter Jennings and eight others, was on the group's list of the 10 "Most Watchable Men in the World."

Others selected as easy on the eyeball in 1983 were film star Richard Gere, baseball player Steve Garvey, actors Christopher Atkins, David Hasselhoff, Jon-Erik Hexum and Stacy Keach; "Hour Magazine" host Gary Collins and race car driver Danny Sullivan.

Shirley Temple

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, the former child movie star and U.S. Ambassador to Ghana from 1974-76, has been elected president of the Commonwealth Club of California, a public forum group.

Mrs. Black, 55, a club member for 12 years, will serve a one-year term as president in 1984. She was vice president this year.

The 14,000-member club bills itself as the nation's largest public forum. It's known for its weekly luncheons featuring prominent public figures as speakers.

Movie studio rejects South Carolina's bid

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Dino De Laurentiis' decision to locate a proposed $1 million moviemaking complex in North Carolina "delighted" officials there, but south of the border, the director of South Carolina's film office was hopping mad.

"I do not understand why they didn't come down here," said Debra Rosen, who had helped mastermind the grab for the De Laurentiis project.

"I felt like they got a better deal down here. I'm getting all these illogical statements. All I know is we were willing to do whatever it took to get them here," she said.

Ms. Rosen's two-week battle ended Thursday with the announcement that the moviemaking complex will be built on property near Wilmington, N.C., rather than near Charleston, S.C.

Turkey experiments may help blood pressure

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Turkeys are being turned into guinea pigs at the University of Florida, in experiments aimed at helping the 37 million Americans with high blood pressure.

Researchers found that administering the drug propranolol when hypertension first develops causes a decline in the birds' blood pressure that lasts for a time after treatment stops.

"There is an increasing recognition that high blood pressure, usually associated with older people, begins early in life," said heart specialist Jape Taylor.

"Our study points out the need to diagnose and treat the condition while the victim is young, before mild symptoms develop into life-threatening ones," Taylor said in a news release Thursday.

High blood presssure is an underlying cause of cardiovascular disease, the nation's No. 1 killer. It speeds the development of atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, and increases the risk of heart attacks and strokes.

Taylor, professor of medical cardiology, and Dr. Charles Simpson, professor of preventive veterinary medicine, studied the effects of propranolol on three groups of 12 newborn male turkeys. Propranolol is one of a class of heart drugs known as beta blockers, which act on the nervous system to reduce the heart muscle's workload and lower blood pressure.

A dozen of the turkeys were given small amounts of propranolol mixed with their feed daily for 16 weeks. Another group received the drug daily for 10 weeks and then went "cold turkey" for the next six weeks, resuming their normal feeding routine. Twelve control birds abstained totally from the drug-with-dinner diet.

After 16 weeks, birds given propranolol daily had the lowest blood pressure, while turkeys on a normal diet had the highest. Daily doses of the drug also improved other risk factors of heart disease — reducing heart rate and strengthening the walls of the aorta, the artery supplying blood from the heart to the rest of the body.

"It's striking that the beneficial effects of propranolol persisted for at least six weeks after medication was discontinued," said Taylor, whose study was subsidized by the Florida affiliate of the American Heart Association. He and Simpson published their results earlier this year in the medical journal "Hypertension."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Hormones beneficial for untreatable acne

Solomon

Dear Dr. Solomon: One of the girls I live with says that since she started on the pill, her acne seems to have cleared up a great deal. Could one have anything to do with the other? — Frances, Youngstown, Ohio

Dear Frances: It may be more than a coincidence. Treatment with sex hormones has been reported to be beneficial for previously untreatable acne. Researchers from Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas say that six months of treatment with birth control pills helped improve severe acne conditions in most patients. Hormone-containing steroids are said to have the same effect.

This does not mean that women with acne should start taking oral contraceptives for this purpose without first discussing the advisability of doing so with their physician.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father is a very independent person and insists on living by himself even though any of his children would be happy to have him with them. I would like to see him stay independent, but I just don't know if he can take care of himself. Is there any way to determine this? His doctor says that he is in pretty good shape for a man his age, but I don't know what that means. — Ken, NYC

Dear Ken: Dr. Mark Williams, of the University of Rochester in New York, reports that he has developed a simple test that can show the extent to which an elderly person can take care of his or her own needs. The test measures the individual's dexterity in performing a number of manual tasks, and takes about 20 minutes. If the results of the test indicate a decreased degree of alertness, an evaluation by a physician may then be advisable.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I believe in taking life easy. My philosophy is that it's better to sit than to stand, and it's better to lie down than to sit. If a guy wants to run, that's his problem, but I've seen people running when the radio has been reporting that the quality of the air was poor. Do runners really think that they are doing themselves any good by breathing polluted air? — Jim, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dear Jim: I don't know that I agree with your philosophy. If everyone followed your advice, there would be very little accomplished.

As for your other point, the results of a study on rats appear to support you. Researchers at the University of California at Irvine found that rats suffered more lung damage when they ran in air polluted with ozone than when they remained quiet in the polluted air. The results of animal studies are not necessarily applicable to humans, but apparently the rats would have been better off if they had adopted your philosophy.

For Andrea, Spokane, Wash.: Surgery was the first method used for the treatment of cancer. Doctors began using radiotherapy when it was found that tissues are susceptible to various sources of radiation. Chemotherapy followed.

The most recent treatment modality is immunotherapy.

PUBLIC NOTICE

On October 26, 1983 (as released on November 14, 1983), the Federal Communications Commission designated the FM construction permit applications of the following applicants for a comparative broadcasting hearing:

Gonzales/Torres Broadcasting Company; R.L. Moore and L.L. Moore; DePatto communications, Inc.; Willis Jay Harpole; Horizon Communications, Inc.; Responsive Chord Communications Ltd.; Lee Optical Pension Fund Trust; Jerry Wayne Black; Hugh M. McBeath; and A.S.& G. Communications. These applications seek the FM Channel 294C (106.7 MegaHertz) allocation at Midland, Texas. The issues in the hearing are as follows:

1. To determine with respect to the following applicant whether the applicant is financially qualified: Gonzales/Torres Broadcasting Company.

2. To determine whether a comparative preference should accrue to any of the applicants based on areas and populations which would receive service from the proposals.

3. To determine with respect to the following applicant whether the tower height and proposed location would constitute a hazard to air navigation: R.L. Moore & L.L. Moore, DePatto Communications, Inc., and Willis Jay Harpole.

4. To determine which of the proposals would, on a comparative basis, best serve the public interest.

5. To determine, in the light of the evidence adduced pursuant to the foregoing issues, which of the applicants should be granted, if any.

Hearing is tentatively scheduled to commence at the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C. on February 27, 1984.

New Homes In Midland's Westcliff Addition From The $50's A Great Westside Location

8.8%*

Nothing can make a home more beautiful than an attractive financing plan. So feast your eyes on this. S&W Homes, Inc. of Midland's new adjustable rate mortgage. Now you can qualify for the home of your choice at a remarkably low first year interest rate of 8.8% 12.9% annual percentage rate).

Then after your interest rate gradually increases during the second and third year, you have the option of getting the rate fixed for the life of your loan.

And of course S&W still offers 15 year and 30 year fixed rate mortgages. So don't wait any longer. Visit our sale office at 4726 Country Club or call 689-9871 or 689-8031. A sales representative will be on hand to answer any question you may have.
