Victims include 60 members of student choir

Plane crash kills 68

PONTA DELGADA, Azores (AP) — A Venezuelan air force plane crashed in bad weather while trying to land at a U.S. air base in the Azores, killing 60 members of a Caracas university choir and eight crewmen, Portuguese authorities reported Saturday.

Americans stationed at the base near Lajes on Terceira Island were working to recover the bodies, which were strewn over a large area about 200 yards from the end of the runway, but strong winds and rain from Hurricane Emmy were reported hindering their work.

Rescue workers said there were no survivors from the four-engine C130 transport, which had been taking the 27 women and 33 men of the Central University of Venezuela choir to an international song festival in Barcelona, Spain.

In Lisbon, 1,000 miles northeast of these Portuguese islands in the mid-Atlantic, Venezuelan Ambassador Alfredo Baldo said his country was sending a second military plane to fly the bodies home. He said the plane would carry a panel to investigate the cause of the crash, which occurred at 9:45 p.m. Friday — 6:45 p.m. EDT.

Witnesses and Portuguese authorities gave differing accounts of the C130's final minutes. Some witnesses said the aircraft caught fire in the air, attempted an emergency landing, exploded and was destroyed except for the tail section.

The Portuguese military official in charge of a government inquiry, Capt. Ferreira da Silva, said the crash occurred on the pilot's third attempt to land.

A Lisbon newspaper, A Capital, said the pilot, Brig. Gen. Raul Morales, radioed the Lajes base control tower he was about to make a normal landing. Ambassador Baldo said the Hercules transport crashed on its second landing attempt.

All accounts agreed that the plane was affected by the fringe of Hurricane Emmy, centered over Ponta Delgada, 100 miles away on Sao Miguel Island, earlier Friday night.

Emmy forced cancellation of interisland flights Saturday and delayed a ceremony at which Portuguese President Gen. Antonio Ramalho Eanes was to inaugurate a regional assembly ensuring limited autonomy for the archipelago. Eanes flew to Lajes from Lisbon but was unable to proceed immediately to the town of Horta on Faial Island where the opening was scheduled.

Weather officials said a second hurricane — Frances — was expected to hit the Azores Tuesday.

Grand jurors quiz Dole about gifts

WARWICK, R. I. (AP) — Republican vice presidential candidate Bob Dole acknowledged on Saturday that he went before a grand jury last February that was investigating Gulf Oil Corp. illegal contributions to political candidates.

The Kansas senator said the investigation centered on Gulf funds allegedly funneled to Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

Dole denied that he had accepted illegal funds from either Gulf or Scott. But he said he was not certain whether he had been asked to appear before the grand jury "as a witness or being investigated."

Dole spoke to reporters at the Warwick Airport as he arrived in Rhode Island to attend a Republican fund-raising event in Newport. CBS News had reported the grand jury appearance.

Dole said he voluntarily appeared before the grand jury following a "couple visits" from investigators for the Watergate special prosecutor's office.

"They were concerned whether I had accepted money from Sen. Scott. The answer was no. They were also concerned whether I had accepted money from Gulf. The answer was no," Dole said.

He said the investigators were also interested in what he called a 1970 "transfer of funds" in which either his name or a similar name appeared on a $2,000 check stub.

He said it was "a check stub that had the name either Dole or Dale and they asked me about that." Dole did not elaborate, saying that another person was involved.

He identified the person only as a well-known resident of Washington, D.C., but not a member of Congress, and said he did not want to embarrass that individual by publicly discussing the matter.

Many members of Congress have been named as alleged recipients of Gulf contributions.

Dole said that in 1970 he helped raise money for Republican candidates across the country. He said he had no specific recollection of the $2,000 transaction, although he said the sum did not appear to represent an illegal contribution.

"I don't know whether I was called as a witness or being investigated," Dole said. He added that his last contact with the special prosecutor's office was last March 8.

He said he had given the prosecutors some of his records.

Jetliner hijacked, destination mystery

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — A Dutch airliner was hijacked Saturday on a flight from Nice, France, to Amsterdam. The KLM DC9 stopped in Tunis for five hours and then took off for an unknown destination with 82 persons aboard.

Tunisian Interior Minister Tahar Belkhodja spent several hours in the airport control tower, negotiating by radio in Arabic and English with the unknown hijackers.

Belkhodja left the airport immediately after the plane took off but refused to make any statement to newsmen. There was no immediate information on the number, identity or aims of the hijackers.

Five crew members and 77 passengers were aboard when the plane left Tunis. Earlier reports listed eight crew members on the KLM flight and apparently three were removed before the departure from Tunis.

During the Tunis stopover, the plane was given a full load of fuel at the request of the hijackers while technicians repaired some slight damage to the undercarriage caused by a bumpy landing on arrival from Nice. The plane landed after a roundabout flight over the French Alps, Italy and the Central Mediterranean with a fuel reserve for only 20 minutes' flying time.

The plane left Tunis at 3:58 p.m. Sunday (10:58 p.m. Saturday EDT).

The Tunis airport, closed to all traffic when the plane landed, was reopened soon after it took off.

Kelley to make reimbursement for gifts

Ford will not fire FBI boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced Saturday he will not fire FBI Director Clarence Kelley for accepting gifts from subordinates, and the Justice Department indicated it would take no disciplinary action.

"The President is satisfied with the conclusion of the Department of Justice that the gifts received by Mr. Kelley from subordinates were allowable" under existing regulations, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said.

Ford said he is satisfied with Kelley's promise to make reimbursement for the gifts and reaffirmed his support for Kelley in his "efforts to strengthen the FBI."

In a report to Ford, Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi and other department officials said, "It is our view that Mr. Kelley should remain as director of the FBI and that he should reimburse the bureau as he sought to do."

The department apparently rejected recommendations by two Justice Department investigators. One of them, attorney John M. Dowd, had urged that Kelley be fired by the President. Dowd's supervisor, Michael Shaheen, said Kelley should not be fired but recommended that he be reprimanded.

The statement said that in the past three years, Kelley received gifts from the FBI Executive Conference on special occasions. The most expensive item, the report said, was a chair, which was bought for $105 by the 16 members at a cost of $6.56 apiece.

As for services, Kelley has reimbursed the government $355 for drapery valances built in his living room by bureau employes. He has said this work was done without his knowledge.

Federal regulations allow government employes to make voluntary gifts of nominal value to their bosses on special occasions but prohibit virtually all other gift giving.

The bureau explained the gifts and services this way:

—Two plywood valances constructed in Kelley's home were installed for security reasons and had not been requested by Kelley. The department said Kelley offered to pay for them.

—The exhibits section also repaired a hinge on a damaged cabinet Kelley had bought and provided him with a plywood bedboard.

—FBI garage employes did work on Kelley's personal automobile. The department said when Kelley learned of this he stated that thereafter the car would be serviced at a private garage at his own expense. The bureau officials initiated the service in fear of a security breach.

—During the terminal illness of Kelley's wife he asked that the bureau loan him a small cabinet to hold materials he used while working at home. The bureau also loaned Kelley two television sets during this period without his requesting them. Both sets have been returned.

The statement said Levi rejected the reasoning that Kelley should resign or there would be an aura of special treatment because of his high position. It said that Kelley's conduct was different from that of other departmental employes who have been subjected to disciplinay action or criminal prosecution.

"For us to consider all gifts in the same way one considers those which are given for base or illegal purposes and to equate actions done with honest intent with those which are mendacious and mean can only in the end protect the venal by disparaging the decent."

The Justice Department has also concluded that no disciplinary action against Kelley is warranted.

The report submitted to Levi by the Office of Professional Responsibility as also reviewed by Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler Jr., two assistant attorneys general who were not named and the head of a different bureau in the Justice Department.

The three consultants and the deputy attorney general agreed that no disciplinary action should be taken but that Kelley should reimburse the bureau for any items that could raise a question.

Dedicated family

With Tommy Hart

Rosemary Rice Mickler, a dedicated Big Spring High School volleyball player here years ago, was almost born to the saddle. She was riding and competing at the age of six and beating men in reining contests at 11.

She helped — along with Bob Cathey, Martin Fryar, Perry Walker, Lowie Rice, Alvin Walker, Derwood Lewter, Horace Rankin and others — pioneer the rodeo. (In those days the local show was called the Big Spring 4-H Rodeo). Her sister, Iris Doss, now has three kids competing on the junior rodeo tour.

Rose, mother of three children (athletes all), lives with her family on a 29,000-acre spread near Leuders. Her husband Bob is the ranch foreman.

Among other things, the Mickler family often brings special music for church services, although they live 20 miles from the house in which they worship and more than half of the connecting route is unpaved. Their devotion to church work has taken them off the rodeo tour.

"We don't have time to serve two masters," is the way Rose puts it. "Living a spirit-filled life is the most rewarding because that is the way God wants it."

Incidentally, Perry Walker is trainer of the filly, Real Wind, an entry in the million-dollar All-American Quarter Futurity, which will be run Monday at Ruidoso Downs. J. D. and Elsie Kitchens of Fort Sumner, N.M., are owners of the animal, first in all six of her starts to date.

Action/reaction: Are rumors true?

Q. Is it true that five new doctors have arrived at Webb Air Force Hospital? I also heard that several persons from other commands are being sent to Webb on special assignment. Are these rumors true? Do they mean anything?

A. Your first question can be answered by quoting from an article in the Big Spring Herald on Aug. 2 "The recent addition of four medical doctors and the expected arrival of another one in September will come close to bringing Webb AFB Hospital up to strength..." To answer the question of whether it means anything, is means, for the most part that, that physician shortage at Webb AFB is over," according to Capt. Dick Risk of the public information department. As to the other question, Webb occasionally has visitors from other bases, mostly from higher headquarters.

Police beat

Rape, robbery, wrecks reported

A 63-year-old woman accused a 58-year-old man of rape, and the man accused her of stealing his billfold, Sheriff A. N. Standard said.

The rape was alleged to have happened several miles northeast of Big Spring early Saturday morning, Standard said.

The woman said she ran from the man's pickup to a nearby residence and notified law enforcement officers.

She refused to be examined by a physician for verification she had been raped, Standard said.

Standard hopes to better evaluate the case after getting statements from two women with the couple prior to the incident.

The man was said to have been giving the woman a ride home from a trailer house in Sand Springs, where one of the women lived.

A man showed a class of Big Spring High School girls his lack of class at 8:45 a.m. Friday.

"Teed off," the group of girls, who were practicing golf at Birdwell Park, left. They went to the high school gym and reported the indecent exposure to the physical education teacher.

"Put the money in the sack and give me the money order machine," a slender six-foot man told the attendant at the Town & Country Grocery, 3104 Parkway Road, at 10:55 p.m. Friday.

This is the story Jim Carver, store attendant, told police.

The robber was carrying a large caliber revolver, was wearing dark glasses and had an "Afro" haircut.

In addition to $169 in cash, the money order machine and blank money orders, the thief took two cartons of cigarettes.

An enlisted Air Force man and woman injured while riding a motorcycle Friday afternoon were in satisfactory condition at Webb Air Force Base hospital Saturday night.

Maddox was driving the motorcycle which was in a collision with a car driven by Luther Louis Brown, 1105 NW 8th St., police said. The accident happened at Bluebird and West Sixteenth Streets.

A vacant house by Salem Road about two miles east of the Howard County Airport was destroyed by fire early Saturday morning.

Jonesboro volunteer firemen were dispatched to the scene first. Volunteers with the San Springs and Silver Heels departments assisted later.

Mrs. E. D. Myers, 1210 Sycamore St., had egg on her house, police learned Saturday.

Gene Turner, 707 W. 14th St., told police men in a 1971 model car left a service station at 1100 N. Lamesa Drive without paying for $8.75 worth of gasoline.

'Utility stamp' to help poor pay?

DALLAS (AP) — State and local governments eventually will have to help low income residents pay rapidly rising utility bills, says Dallas Public Utilities Director Tom Taylor.

The impact of rising bills will hit the poor hardest, Taylor said this week explaining that a form of "utility stamp" similar to those issued for food may have to be necessary for low income residents to offset skyrocketting utility bills.

"My position is that it ought to be out front if we are going to help low income people," he said in a taped television show to be shown later this month. "I don't think we should do it by exempting them from the rate increases that are approved by the City Council."

He noted that several organizations have urged city officials to work out rate exemptions for senior citizens or poverty level families, but he stated that this system would merely result in higher charges for other users.

"I don't want to see the average resident paying hidden charges of the utilities so we can help the indigent," Taylor said. "We should do it through tax revenues so that everyone will know where the money is going."

He said state welfare payments already are being revised to reflect increases in the cost of living. "Utility bills are having a significant effect on those figures," he said.

On Wednesday, Southwestern Bell went before the Texas Public Utilities Commission to ask for a rate increase that would bring the company $280 million more a year.

Other utility firms are expected to ask for rate increases.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamill, who read here about the Plainview honors bestowed upon one-time Big Spring Police Chief Jay Banks, recalled they were living in the Mansfield area when Jay intervened on behalf of a young Episcopalian vicar who was being taunted by a mob of surly segregationists. The man of the cloth, it seems, had shamed the rabble for lack of "Christian action."

The harrassed minister, the Rev. C. W. Clark, was adamant in his beliefs but was wan and shaken when the crowd began to move in on him.

Banks maneuvered through the crowd to Clark's side and said, "I think we'd better go." The mob, awed by the lawman's presence, parted for the two without contesting Banks' right to intervene.

The "one mob, one ranger" tradition, proved time and again by men who had worked in ranger trappings over the years, still held.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamill clipped a news story of the incident and treasure it to this day.

There's only one thing wrong with good advice: It usually interferes with one's plans.

A UCLA Neuro-psychiatric Institute reports the tenor of television shows a man watches influences his attitudes toward and treatment of his wife and children.

Shows with warm, social interactions help reduce his aggressive moods, but a hard-bitten cops-and-robbers program can contribute to his belligerence, or so the institute insists.

So what'll it be, an evening of "The Waltons" and civility, or a visit with "Kojak" and nothing but acrimony until sleep comes?

A 1974 Baylor University signal caller, Neal Jeffrey, is getting high marks with the San Diego Chargers of the NFL as a "combat quarterback."

That's the kind who comes up the line willing to run or throw. The scouts wouldn't recommend him because of a speech impediment (quarterbacks have enough problems without stammering) but Neal is fitting right into Coach Tommy Prothro's plans.

Jeffrey doesn't look for receivers. He simply throws to places where they're supposed to be.

Some of the political bumper stickers are grabbing for the jugular vein. One reads "Pick Ford — Nixon did."

Incidentally, I wonder how many of those people who booed when Jimmy Carter reaffirmed that he would forgive Vietnam draft evaders rose to their feet in protest when Gerald Ford pardoned Nixon?

It was James Branch Cabell, he of literary bent, who once said: "No lady is ever a gentleman."

And it was Robert Browning who left these words to awe us with their impact:

"What's time? Leave now for dogs and apes; man has forever."

Merry Jo Bright managed to chat a few minutes with actor Walter Matthau on a recent visit to Ruidoso Downs, New Mexico. Matthau, who has admitted weaknesses himself for plunging on the wrong horses, has been in New Mexico filming a story about a man who feels at home with the race track crowd.

Sometimes I think these United States would be better off functioning as four separate nations.

Do any of us ever come so close to perfection as when we're filling out an application for a job?

It's Labor Day and the annual Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Labor Weekend telethon is upon us.

We always think of things of this type as being far, far away.

Four local youths know just how close it can be. They went up to the West Texas Summer Camp at Amarillo this summer to work as counselors with Muscular Dystrophy children.

There they found out what these children are like.

Believe you me, the four are enthused about the Muscular Dystrophy fund drive.

One of them is George Robertson. Those of you who know George know that he has already worked for this drive year after year.

When he was quite small, he would get out and have extra projects to raise money for the fund drive. He, along with Bill Cudd, Sara and Wesley Thixton went to the camp and worked as counselors this summer.

This all reminds me of another project which I consider very special along this line.

Four local children, including King and Charles Butler, who are 7 and 8 years old, along with Debbie Donelson, 9 and Lisa Martin, 10, made an all out effort for this fund drive this year.

In the waning days before school started, they got up a backyard version of "Paint Your Wagon" which they presented and sold tickets.

They made their own props and used the fort in the backyard of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Butler for the stage. They had an even $10 to take to the nearest 7-11 to deposit in a Jerry Lewis fund can.

Then they found out that they could obtain a can to take around their neighborhood. So they each took one through the Kentwood area and filled up four more cans with change for Muscular Dystrophy.

Children this young very rarely care about fund drives. They are usually concerned mostly with their own allowances and extra tests.

We commend you: King, Charles, Debbie and Lisa. In the picture above, you can see some West Texas children that the funds may help.

The high school and college youths who helped with the camp learned a lot about muscular dystrophy children. They found out that they have good moods and bad moods just like the rest of us.

They found out that they have learned to live with severe handicaps. They also learned that these young people, struck down by muscular dystrophy, are really appreciative of love and concern.

The people who are working to try to find a cure for the dread disease, are like all fund drives, appreciative of funds.

And thats what the Jerry Lewis drive is all about. But the real meaning of the drive came through to me hard when I sat looking at this picture of children at camp, realized four local youths gave time to help with the camp.

And most of all when I heard about these four young children in the Kentwood area and their efforts.

That's what real concern is all about. And that's the way I found it, out ridin' backyard fences this week.

Fights for social justice

'Working man's bishop'

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Bishop Sidney M. Metzger, the "working man's bishop" of the Catholic diocese of El Paso, elebrates his 50th anniversary as a priest Thursday, his frail appearance unable to hide the fighting spirit that has made him a sometimes controversial figure.

At 74, the pastor of this West Texas diocese retains his concern for the "working man," his idea of "social justice" and the Church's role in the modern world.

"The Church," he said this week "has an obligation to get involved in situations and questions of social justice."

Bishop Metzger, born in Fredricksburg, Tex., has been involved since he first came to the diocese in the mid-30s and joined other priests and some volunteers in culling overripe watermelons from a packing shed for a local orphanage.

One of his stands brought him national attention when he jumped into the labor dispute several years ago between Farah Manufacturing Co. and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (ACWA).

Calling the strike a matter of "social justice," Bishop Metzger defended the workers' right to organize and urged a nation-wide boycott of Farah products. When Farah and the ACWA finally reached an agreement, Bishop Metzger urged both sides to put away the "bitterness" and work for the prosperity of the company.

His support for the rights of working people earned him the St. Joseph the Worker award presented by he Texas AFL-CIO.

"Matters like collective bargaining or civil rights," he said recently, "ultimately involve basic questions of justice; and when justice is involved the clergy should take a stand."

This is more important, he said, at a time when people are turning to the church again.

"I think the future of the church looks good," he said. "People need faith. The church must now look for opportunities to serve the people, do it accordance with the changing times ..the interest in the social apostolate must continue."

Referring to his own involvement in social causes he referred to a letter of praise he has received from Pope Paul and added: "I think I am on safe ground."

He was named bishop of the El Paso diocese in 1942. Since his arrival the Catholic population has grown from 100,000 to nearly a quarter of a million. The number of priests and parishes has doubled and enrollment in Catholic schools has gone from 3,200 to nearly 6,000.

He is on the Committee for the Spanish-Speaking of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and in 1957 received the Alfonso the Wise order from the Spanish government for his work in preserving Spanish culture in the Southwest.

Archbishop Jean Jádot, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, and bishops from Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Mexico will join in the religious ceremonies marking Bishop Metzger's anniversary. Also present will be New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca, El Paso County Judge T. Udell Moore, Mayor Don Henderson and a representative of Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

The Most Rev. Robert F. Sanchez, archbishop of Santa Fe, New Mexico, will deliver the homily during the special mass Thursday.

Disillusioned with leaders

Majority may not vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — A majority of voting-age Americans are so disillusioned with government leaders that they may not vote in this year's presidential election, possibly producing the lowest percentage turnout in more than 50 years, a new poll concludes.

More than 40 million citizens who voted in previous elections probably won't vote this year, one of two major groups which won't participate in the elections, according to a national survey by pollster Peter Hart.

The other major group of nonvoters found by the poll is under age 35 and has never voted regularly. The poll was conducted for the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, a nonpartisan, research group.

"For the first time in 50 years a majority of eligible Americans may not go to the polls," said Hart in an interview.

"The reason they are not going to vote is that they don't believe in the leaders but they do believe in the system. They are out there groping for someone to believe in."

Hart based his conclusions on interviews of a cross-sample of people who would be eligible to vote. Out of these he picked 1,486 people he identified as nonvoters. These are citizens who are not registered to vote and do not plan to register, who think their chances of voting in November are 50-50 or less or who voted in two or fewer past federal elections.

Hart said the survey results indicate more than 70 million potential voters, out of about 140 million persons of voting age, may not go to the polls. That could mean that presidential election turnout could drop just below 50 per cent for the first time since 1924, when only 43.9 per cent of the voting-age populaton cast their ballots, he said.

About 87 per cent of the nonvoters said they agreed that the country's most pressing need is "a few courageous, tireless, devoted leaders in whom the people can put their faith."

Neither President Ford nor Jimmy Carter attracted the nonvoters' enthusiasm, with no more than a handful citing either one as the political figure they admire most.

But Hart estimated on the basis of the survey that about 10 million nonvoters could be persuaded to vote in November. About 43 per cent of the likely voters said they would vote if they could be persuaded a candidate is worth going to the polls to support. Another 34 per cent of this group said reliable information on the candidates would help.

Because the presidential race is hotly contested and neither Ford nor Carter stirs widespread antipathy, Hart said that theoretically this year should be prime for an increase in voter participation, as happened in 1940, 1952 and 1960.

But he added that three out of five of the nonvoters said they would never cast another vote in a federal election.

Testimony will begin Tuesday in case of El Paso firebombing

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Testimony is to begin Tuesday in the case of "Los Tres" (The Three), charged in the firebombing of a downtown El Paso department store.

The three are Alredo Espinoza, 31, Ramon Arroyos, 25, and Ruben Ogaz, 24.

A jury of seven men and five women, made up of four Mexican-Americans, six Anglos, one black and one Puerto Rican, was selected Friday.

A non-profit group called the "National Jury Project" of Washington, D. C. is contributing the defense of the three men and helped defense attorneys select the jurors.

Pickets calling for the release of the three men surrounded the city-county building during the jury selection.

Air bags idea backed by Christie

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The U. S. Department of Transportation should immediately require all new cars to have air bags as a means of preventing injuries and deaths, State Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie says.

"Further delay is unconscionable as a contribution to fatalities and injuries on our nation's highways," Christie said Thursday in a letter to Secretary of Transportation William Coleman.

Americans are turning more and more, he said, to gasolinesaving small cars as a result of national energy policy. These cars "expose our citizens to greater risk of death and disabling injury," he said.

Ford nominates former POW

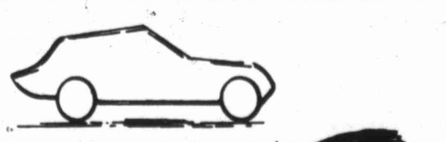

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has nominated Maj. Gen. John P. Flynn, who was the senior U.S. war prisoner in North Vietnam, for promotion to lieutenant general.

The Pentagon said Friday that Ford has sent Flynn's name to the Senate for confirmation. Flynn, 54, is slated to become the Air Force's inspector general. He is now head of the Air Force Military Training Center at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex.

Flynn, a native of Cleveland, was a prisoner for more than 5½ years after his F-105 fighter-bomber was shot down by a missile over Hanoi in October 1967.

Town meetings American tradition

A rather unusual event will take place in Big Spring this Saturday.

Called "Town Meeting '76," it is a one-day, all-day session which aims at gathering several hundred Big Spring citizens together for brainstorming.

THE GOAL, according to a group of Big Spring citizens who are sponsoring it, is "to identify basic challenges facing our community and the practical means by which grassroot citizens can work together to meet those challenges."

What is supposed to happen is this:

The participants, hopefully people of all ages and backgrounds, will assemble at 9 a.m. at Big Spring High School. Scheduled around coffee, doughnuts, visiting, group singing, entertainment and a $1.50 lunch will be two workshop sessions.

The community's issues and challenges will be identified in the morning workshop, while the afternoon workshop will attempt to create and write practical proposals for meeting the challenges. The reports will be typed and printed behind the scenes, and when participants go home at 5 p.m., they are to have in their hands a book containing the work done throughout the day.

Sounds like a busy day, doesn't it?

The event is being paid for by local sponsoring organizations which put up $25 each and also agree to help line up participants.

The Big Spring persons who started the effort were the Rev. and Mrs. Troy Jarvis and Mrs. Charlotte Furqueron. Rev. Jarvis became interested after he was invited to be the coordinator of one of the workshops at the Odessa Town Meeting.

The format, workbooks and guidance are provided at a cost of $600 by a parent organization called the Institute of Cultural Affairs, a not-for-profit tax exempt corporation chartered by the state of Illinois and headquartered in Chicago. The institute says that 5,000 of the local community forum meetings will be held in the U.S. during the nation's celebration of the bicentennial.

TOWN MEETINGS are an American tradition, and lots of good ideas and decisions have come out of them. It is impossible to tell how much might come out of this one, especially since it comes so soon after the Goals for Progress effort.

The aims of this project are very different from those of Goals for Progress, says Rev. Jarvis.

He sees this effort as a way to get about 300 persons from different backgrounds communicating with each other in a "community raising" (much like a barn raising). He hopes that out of this "community happening" will come a group of people with a sense of direction about community challenges and ways to meet them.

The Town Meeting is not magically going to alter Big Spring overnight, he says.

BUT IF people get together and discuss the community and input ideas for its betterment, it cannot help but be good for our town. Providing that the gathering does not become overbilled, the citizen input which might come from a meeting like this could be fascinating.

It will be most interesting to see what comes out of this one.

Silent cove

Art Buchwald

SILENT COVE — One of the reasons people buy summer houses is to invite friends out to see how they have escaped the hustle and bustle of the city.

The Briarpatches have been trying to get us to visit them at their home in Silent Cove for months and we finally went up there last weekend.

CHARLES BRIARPATCH met us at the airport. "You're going to love Silent Cove," he assured us. "It's so beautiful and quiet you can't believe it."

We arrived at the house, a 1754 converted Colonial, overlooking the water.

Our bedroom was next to the bathroom which was very convenient because everyone used it and we got to meet all the friends of the Briarpatch children.

The first morning I woke up to hear someone pounding with a hammer.

My wife said, "What's that?"

I looked out the window and I saw three workmen building a new house.

At breakfast Charles explained that Silent Cove had been discovered a few years ago by a developer and they were building houses all over the place.

"We're going on a picnic today," Nancy Briarpatch said. "They have some lovely woods around here and it makes you wonder why anyone would live in a city."

We drove a few miles and then hiked a few miles and finally found ourselves in a beautiful glen overlooking Silent Cove. We spread out our blankets and started passing around daiquiris.

"Isn't this the life?" Charles said.

Suddenly I heard a buzz saw behind me.

TWO MEN WERE cutting up a tree and the buzz saw was screaming in anger at the reluctant wood.

"What are you doing?" I shouted at one of the men.

"Got to clear out all the trees that fell down in the storm," he shouted back. "It's going to take us two months to do it."

We ate our picnic lunch to the accompaniment of the Buzz Saw Symphony in C Sharp Major.

When we got back to the house Charles suggested a tennis game with his wife and children.

"Why can't you play?" I asked.

"I have to cut the lawn," he said. "You go ahead and have a game without me."

WHILE WE were hitting the ball back and forth, Charles brought out his motorized Toro lawn mower, without a muffler, and started to cut the grass. Most of the lawn was located around the tennis court so we all tried to keep time to Charles' mowing while we concentrated on the game.

In the evening we sat out on the porch to watch the sunset when we heard the sound of an engine being revved up.

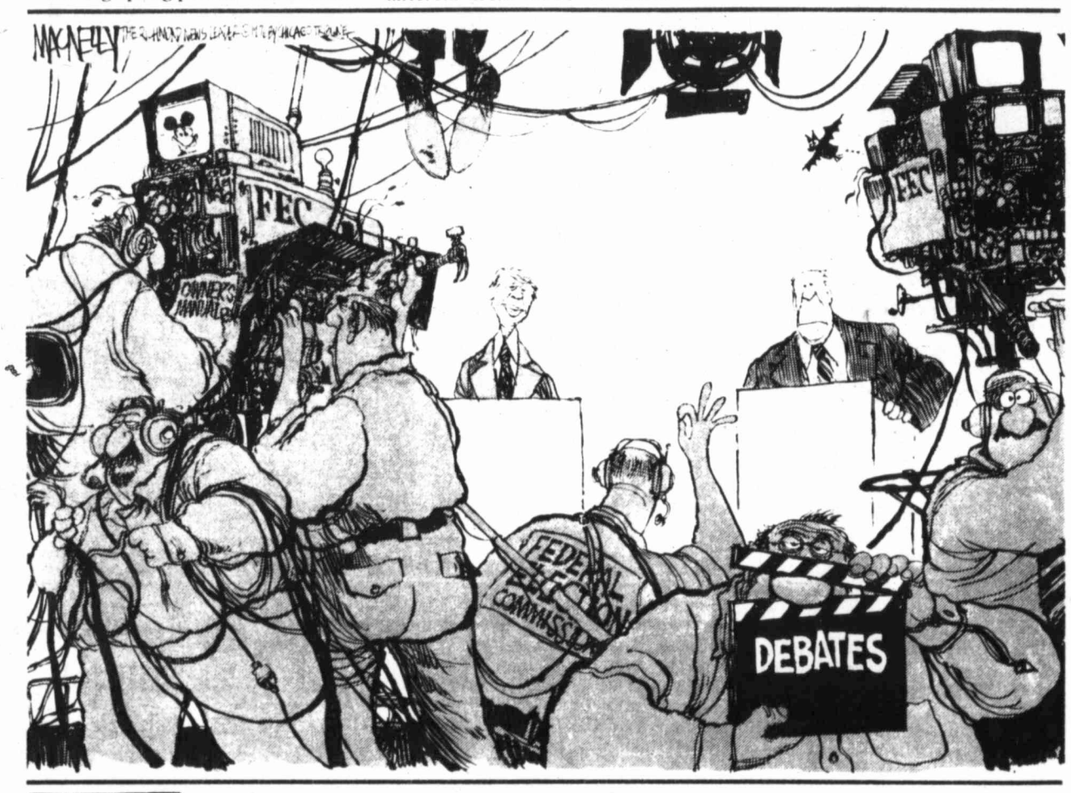

"Someone else cutting his lawn?" I inquired.

"No, that's a 10-year-old kid next door. His parents gave him a motorbike and he loves to use the throttle on it at this time of night," Nancy Briarpatch said. "He sits on it for hours pretending he's a motorcycle policeman."

THE NEXT morning we went sailing out in the cove. Unfortunately, everyone else in the cove was waterskiing and the roar of the motorboats drowned out all conversation.

Except for a seaplane that landed that night, a bulldozer that was clearing a lot next door for a new summer house and a motorcycle gang that camped up the hill, Silent Cove was everything the Briarpatches said it would be.

When we got back to Washington, my wife and I had a difficult job adjusting to the city. The damn birds outside our window started chirping at 8 o'clock in the morning.

Allergy only one cause of skin rashes

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have eczema, but I am not allergic to anything. The foods I've been eating are the same I've been eating all my life. I have had this for three or four years.

I have heard that it can be caused by anxiety and other emotions. It is in my ears and on my nose. Could you please tell me something about this? — S. S.

Eczema (EK-zee-muh) is a pretty loose term applied to many skin disorders. All it really means is a skin rash. Anxiety can cause skin rashes.

It is quite possible that the ear and nose involvement (not an unusual combination, by the way) could be due to a fungus infection transferred there by the hands from other parts of your body. I would suspect this more than emotions (or food) which can admittedly be factors in some rashes.

You should be examined by a skin specialist to find out which organism (if any) is the cause. Then specific treatment can begin. Until a diagnosis is made there is no simple medication one could recommend.

Dear. Dr. Thosteson: My husband has been having dizzy spells that start when he gets up in the morning and last all day. The doctor has prescribed Antivert, but it doesn't help much. His legs are weak, and I imagine his circulation is poor. He is nearly 85 years old.

I would appreciate any comment. — Mrs. E. D. S.

This could well be a matter of faulty circulation to the brain. It can also be associated with ear to eye disorders. If it were a blood pressure problem, the pressure reading would be noticeably lower after he rises from a lying-down position.

This is called "orthostatic hypotension." That means low blood pressure caused by a change in the body's position. He should be careful about leaving the bed in the morning, even in arising from a chair. In bed, he might try doing this in stages. That is, he should sit up in bed first and wait there a few moments. Next he can swing his legs over the side of the bed, leaving them in that position for another few minutes. Then he might raise his arms and scratch his head. A gradual process like this can eliminate some of the immediate problems.

Antivert (trade name for meclizine) is an antihistamine, and is prescribed for vertigo (dizziness). But it can of itself cause dizziness and should be taken with care. Other effective antidizziness medicines are available, which your doctor would prescribe if necessary. My booklet, "Dizzy Spells," may be helpful in an understanding of this. If you'd like a copy, send 25 cents to me in care of the Herald. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does the long, low-temperature cooking of food, such as is done in crock pots, destroy the vitamin and mineral content of food more than regular cooking? — H. M.

The nutrient retention would be about the same in either method. Ideally food should be cooked in a tightly covered pan with the minimum amount of water necessary. That will preserve most of the nutrients.

Many homemakers tend to overcook food and use too much water. This results in nutritionally inferior table servings.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a difference in the structure of men's feet and women's feet? Would it be wrong for a man to buy and wear women's shoes or for girls to wear boys' shoes? — Mrs. C. K.

The human foot structure doesn't vary significantly between male and female except in size. The only real differences arise from characteristics women have acquired because of sometimes peculiar notions about style. But this difference is an individual matter, not one of basic structure.

I wouldn't advise a man to wear women's high-heeled shoes (fact is, I don't advise women to either, but they do). I can't see how a girl would suffer harm from wearing a boy's shoe, if it fit her foot properly.

The usual rule is that a comfortable shoe is a good shoe — for either sex.

There's an old saying — if your feet hurt, you hurt all over. Dr. Thosteson's new booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet," shows you how to avoid and take care of foot problems. To get your copy, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Editor:

I just thought I would like to express my thoughts on the Nov. 2 National Election.

I have always been a Democrat, although I did vote for Nixon in '72, because I just couldn't vote for McGovern and that ultra liberal bunch in Washington. So I was hoping and praying that the Democrats would come up with a middle-of-the-road candidate, a regular person, not too far out either way.

But what do we have? A man that says he is a born-again Christian. That's fine. So am I, but that is no sign that I can run this great country. (It was at the first Jimmy Who? Now it's Jimmy What? What is it? A fish, a snake, a foul, lamb chops? It's the company one keeps that counts with me.)

If I say I am against drinking, and then hob-nob with drunkards, or any other wrong way of life, who would have any confidence in me?

If Carter gets to be president, whose man will he be. His own? Or will he be beholden to the establishment, that has always ruled Washington? I love America. I was in hopes we would have something better to offer the American people this time around, but to me it looks hopeless, so I think I will sit this election out because I can't honestly vote for either candidate of the major parties.

The gentleman who works for Shell Oil Company who took charge of the situation and put out the fire has my special admiration and thanks. I only wish I knew his name. I also thank the management of Furr's Cafeteria, who supplied the fire extinguisher; Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Mason who took care of my daughter during the incident; the members of the fire and police department who were on the scene, and all the strangers who offered to give me a lift home.

The warm, caring, helpful character of Big Spring residents contrasts greatly with the "don't get involved" attitude that seems to prevail in so many areas of this country.

Downgrading writer

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Two days after the Republican national platform extolled Alexander Solzhenitsyn as a "great beacon of human courage and morality," one of Henry Kissinger's top aides used the word "fascist" in describing the anti-Communist Russian novelist.

The comments were made Aug. 19 by the highly respected Winston Lord, State Department policy planning director, in an off-the-record session with the Department's student interns. Some of the interns present quote Lord as saying Solzhenitsyn "is just about a fascist." Lord says he did not call the writer a fascist but does not deny using the word.

BEHIND THIS unfortunate hyperbole is an undeniable truth: hostility toward Solzhenitsyn within the policymaking machinery headed by Secretary of State Kissinger has not subsided since June 1975, when it convinced President Ford he should snub the Nobel laureate. At the State Department, Solzhenitsyn is still viewed as a threat to world peace rather than a symbol of freedom.

Judging from his reluctance to accept the Solzhenitsyn plank at Kansas City, Mr. Ford shares this view as he does Dr. Kissinger's other positions. Nor is he likely to be challenged on this point by Jimmy Carter, whose foreign policy advisers agree with Foggy Bottom in branding Solzhenitsyn as a slightly balmy 19th Century Russian mystic.

Thus, the bipartisan foreign policy establishment has been successful in downgrading Solzhenitsyn since his triumphant arrival here a year ago. He has been a key target of the detentists, both in the Kremlin and on the State Department's seventh floor.

The view from the seventh floor was revealed in Lord's Aug. 19 session with the student interns when he was asked about Solzhenitsyn. He replied that it had been a mistake not to invite the Russian expatriate to the White House — an admission which is now State Department doctrine.

Lord went on to praise Solzhenitsyn's brilliance and courage but added that his views, if carried out, could threaten world peace. Then, as reported immediately thereafter by one intern and later confirmed by others, Lord said in matter-of-fact tones: "Let's face it, he's just about a fascist." He concluded by saying Solzhenitsyn fulfilled a desire by many Westerners to feel moral.

WHEN ASKED to confirm or deny this, Lord told us: "I did not call him a fascist. He's not a fascist." As to whether he used the word "fascist," Lord said he would have to consult the transcript. However, no transcript was kept.

The spirit of what Lord said was faithful to private views held inside the Ford administration. That explains the fierce opposition to any mention of Solzhenitsyn in the Republican platform. When Mr. Ford backed down rather than risk a disastrous floor fight with the Reagan forces, Kissinger was furious. He even threatened to resign the next day if the amendment were accepted (prompting an admonition from one sharp-tongued Ford operative that he ought to quit today, not tomorrow, to generate more delegates for the President).

The Ford-Kissinger attitude is duplicated on the Democratic side. A pro-Solzhenitsyn plank was quitely rejected by the Democratic platform-drafting group and never reappeared in open sessions. Key advisers, contending that Solzhenitsyn has taken on a right-Republican coloration, advise Carter not to raise the matter in speeches or in forthcoming debates with the President.

SINCE SOLZHENITSYN is neither a right-wing Republican nor a fascist and might be considered rather moderate considering his life's experience, the real objection is not to his ideology but to the threat he poses to detente.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am attending a church that has no interest in leading people to salvation, and there is no rejoicing over the salvation of the lost. I want to leave, but my husband wants to remain there. What should I do? — E. L.

DEAR E. L.: You have a responsibility to those with whom you are worshipping, to your husband and to yourself. You need to know God's will in relation to each of these.

With regard to your church, there are some questions that you should apply to yourself. Are you praying in a loving and understanding way for the members of your church? Are there opportunities to remind the church members of their responsibility to take the Gospel to the world? It is important to be able to answer "yes" to both of those questions. If you can, you are in a position to influence people, and God could use you in that way, but it will take much patience and perseverance.

Your responsibility to your husband is to worship with him. There is great value in a husband and wife being at one in their worship, but if there is a difference of opinion, you should pray about it together. Take the subject to the Lord and pray aloud in each other's hearing, seeking God's will as to where you are to worship.

As far as your own Christian life is concerned, you need fellowship with other Christians. If this cannot be found in your church, start inviting Christians to your home for prayer, Bible study and fellowship. This is vital to spiritual growth and must not be denied to yourself.

Each case of this kind has to be judged independently because so much depends upon local circumstances, but these three factors are the deciding ones. Above all, let nothing come between you and your husband or you and the Lord.

Carter confronted with abortion fuss

WASHINGTON (AP) — His rural southern background already considered a drawback among traditionally Democratic ethnic groups in northern cities, Jimmy Carter now is confronted with an abortion controversy that threatens to compound his problems among voters he must have to win the presidency.

President Ford's campaign strategists think the dispute between Carter and Roman Catholic bishops could be a decisive issue in several key states.

But Carter and his staff see the controversy as a symptom of a broader need, that of overcoming whatever discomfort ethnic voters in northern cities have with supporting a Southern Baptist.

And, at this point in the campaign, professional public opinion analysts say there is no way of knowing whether a single issue like abortion will swing a significant number of Catholic votes away from Carter.

The President plans to meet this week with the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, and he is certain to receive a more favorable response than Carter did last week.

The former Georgia governor met for an hour with the church leaders. Afterward, Archbishop Joseph Bernardin of Cincinnati told reporters, "We continue to be disappointed with the governor's position."

The problem was Carter's refusal to endorse a constitutional amendment that would reverse a Supreme Court decision overturning state laws prohibiting abortions early in pregnancies.

Carter said he personally opposes abortion and any use of federal funds to pay for abortions.

"Personal opposition is not enough," said the archbishop.

The bishops wanted a statement in support of a constitutional amendment, and they'll get it from Ford.

"I reiterate what I have said on a number of occasions," the President told a news conference in July. "I think an amendment that permits the voters in a state to decide whether in that state they want or don't want (legalized abortion) is a proper way to give the people of this country or in their respective states the decision-making power."

Ford opposes an amendment that would flatly outlaw abortions.

Hike, bike trails money requested

AUSTIN (AP) — Twenty-two Texas cities have applied for federal grants to construct demonstration hike and bike trails, the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation said Friday.

Only $6 million is available for such projects in the entire country, and the Texas projects total $4,980,502, so there is little likelihood many of the Texas projects will be approved, a department spokesman said.

The Texas cities would add $1,002,002 to the federal grants.

The cities filing applications and the estimated total cost of their projects, are: Odessa $38,795, Tyler $66,178, Port Arthur $104,895, Laredo $69,030, Fort Worth $362,300, Brownsville $100,000, Austin $369,800, Waco $80,000, Dallas $400,000, Houston $727,400, McKinney $182,608, San Antonio $498,000, Sherman $45,296, Bryan-College Station, Texas A&M (two projects) $521,200 and $162,100, Lubbock $250,000, Bellaire $69,601, Round Rock $46,969, Arlington $194,865, Amarillo $171,105, El Paso $132,182, Beaumont $338,178 and Mission $50,000.

'Radiation' is panicky word

Breast cancer scare

NEW YORK (AP) — "There is no reason for women to be frightened about having breast X rays," says the medical director of the American Cancer Society. And he cites reasons why they shouldn't be.

But a scare over the X rays, known as mammography, did follow the recent issuance of official guidelines saying some women aged 35 to 50 shouldn't have routine mammography, meaning once a year, because the radiation might cause as many or more cancers than it detected.

"There has been a near-panic. Women have been staying away in droves from breast cancer detection clinics," says Dr. Arthur Holleb of the ACS.

"Radiologists tell us women are also refusing to have X rays to detect possible diseases of the stomach, intestines or chest."

The things wrong behind the scare, says Dr. Holleb, are:

"Radiation" is a panicky word itself.

Many women misunderstood what was said after a scientific debate on the risk-versus-benefit from mammography. Many missed the point on how low the risk really is.

One of 14 American women develops breast cancer. This means a woman's risk in her lifetime is 0.07 per cent (when 1.0 equals 100).

By one theoretical estimate, an exposure to one rad (a unit of radiation dosage) from a single mammogram would increase this risk by 1 per cent, making her risk 0.0707. It would take 100 mammograms to double the natural risk to 14 per cent, says Holleb.

"Some scientific ignorance is involved. For no one really knows how much of a dose of X-ray radiation it might take to cause a human cancer.

Some specialists think there is no "threshold," no minimum dose that would be totally safe. Others say there's no proof of that assumption, that there might be a safe low dose. A reply to them is that they can't prove their point either.

The debate ended on the side of prudence — not to expose some healthy women to routine mammography, even at risk of missing some silent cancers in their breasts.

Thus came the interim guidelines issued by the National Cancer Institute — NCI — and Cancer Society, interim until other studies are completed:

Women aged 35 to 50 shouldn't have yearly mammograms if they have no symptoms, such as lumps, discharges or other conditions — and no family history of breast cancer. For them there might be more risk than benefit in detecting early cancer.

But women of this same age who have symptoms, or history, or other conditions, should continue yearly mammograms. And so certainly should women over age 50, the guidelines say.

Some 80 per cent of the women under 50 are at higher risk than others because of family history, on mother's or father's side, or in sisters; because they have never been pregnant; because they have children after age 30; have a history of breast cancer themselves; have chronic cystitis with or without pain; have nipple discharge or other abnormalities; have lumps or thickening in the breast, and had begun menstruating early, about age 11, Holleb says.

EVELYN WAUGH

Voice from the grave

LONDON (AP) — Though he's been dead 10 years, satiric novelist Evelyn Waugh has some new unkind words for the British upper classes he ridiculed in his books.

Waugh's diaries were published today, revealing gossip about the high and fashionable that he jotted down from the time he was 7 to his death at 64.

Hearing that Randolph Churchill, son of war-time Prime Minister Winston Churchill, had been operated on to removed a malignant tumor from a lung, Waugh wrote, "it was a typical triumph of modern science to find the only part of Randolph that was not malignant and remove it."

Waugh sneered at a book of poems that made John Betjman, the current poet laureate, the best-loved poet in Britain, writing that "John demonstrates how much more difficult it is to write blank verse than jingles and raises the question: Why did he not go into his father's workshop?"

Elvis gives diamond ring

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A man who waited 20 hours for front-row seats to an Elvis Presley concert said he asked Elvis to give him a diamond ring — and the singer obliged.

Tommy Milham, 33, said Friday he regarded the present "as a reward for my patience." He said a jeweler appraised it at $2,000 but he was not interested in selling it.

A newspaper article had recorded Milham's marathon wait for tickets to the concert last Sunday. Milham said when he saw the singer in a crowd of fans, he asked him to autograph a copy of the story.

Allied troops pretending reds invaded Europe

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — For the next two months, U.S. and allied troops in Europe will be pretending the Soviet Union has invaded Western Europe.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization — NATO — begins its fall maneuvers Monday under the code name "Autumn Forge," which brings together for the first time 27 separate exercises in a single scenario. It will stretch from Norway to Turkey.

Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., NATO commander in Europe and organizer of the exercises, refuses to say what the scenario is. But officials confirmed that it involves a simulated Soviet attack and a Western defense.

"We don't want the Russians to know how we think an attack might come," one official explained, "and certainly not what we're thinking of doing to meet it."

In accordance with last year's Helsinki agreement, the Soviets have been invited to some of the exercises. They declined on the grounds their embassy in Bonn has no military attache who could be sent as an observer.

The Soviet Union and West Germany have been negotiating on exchanging military attaches, normally part of any embassy staff, but allied sources say the deal has been held up by minor disagreements.

195,844 state inmates

Crowded prisons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten states troubled with crowded prisons are borrowing hundreds of house trailers from the federal government to use as cells, halfway houses or prison offices.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administraton announced the plan Saturday and said the 475 trailers are being loaned to Arizona, Arkansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

The LEAA obtained title to the trailers, valued at $2.3 million, after the Department of Housing and Urban Development declared them surplus property. HUD had used the trailers to house victims of the 1972 flood in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The LEAA announcement called the project "part of a growing national experiment ... to alleviate overcrowding at prisons by the use of surplus trailers and vacant buildings."

LEAA Administrator Rich W. Velde said such steps are no solution to the problem of crowded prisons but "even as a stopgap measure, they are serving a creditable purpose."

He noted that the number of federal and state prison inmates jumped 11.3 per cent from Jan. 1, 1973, to Jan. 1, 1975, and the trend is continuing. The 1975 count showed 195,844 state prisoners and 22,316 in federal institutions.

Faced with overcrowded prisons and little if any money to build new ones, states are turning to a variety of cheaper facilities.

Tents and converted airplane hangars have been used to house Florida prisoners, and a Salvation Army hostel was used a temporary jail in Michigan.

The trailers will be used for a variety of purposes, including housing inmates with no place to sleep in conventional prisons. Some will be used as housing for inmates in work-release programs requiring them to return to prison at night from regular daytime jobs. And some will used as halfway houses for inmates scheduled for imminent release.

The LEAA said Virginia, for example, will use its 96 trailers to house inmates being transferred from local jails to state institutions. Fifty-six will house 432 inmates in a center near other prisons in Powhatan County and 40 trailers will go near the Southampton prison.

Arizona is getting 73 trailers, Arkansas, 65, Louisiana 38, Michigan nine, Missouri seven, New Jersey 92, New York two, Oklahoma 50, and Pennsylvania 43.

FBI has 66 informers posing as Socialists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI currently has 66 informers posing as members of the Socialist Workers party or its youth affiliate and has used a total of 1,616 persons to spy on those groups during the past 16 years, according to newly disclosed FBI documents.

The papers show that one individual, who did not join the organizations, ran for Congress at some point during the 12 years he acted as an informer. The files did not indicate whether the campaign was successful.

According to the files, hundreds of the informers fed the FBI thousands of pages of party documents, including confidential membership and financial information covertly taken from party offices.

Those details emerged from documents the FBI was forced to provide party lawyers in response to a court order in the party's $40 million suit against the bureau and other government agencies for illegal harassment of political activities.

The Political Rights Defense Fund, which is financing the lawsuit, made the files public Saturday. The material included some heavily censored documents from FBI files on informers, but the bulk of it was FBI responses to questions posed by the party about the use of informers. A separate set of answers was supplied for each of the 1,616 informers since 1960. The informers were identified only by code numbers.

"Informers are not people who merely furnish information to the FBI, as odious as that in itself is," said Syd Stapleton, the defense fund's national secretary. The 66 current informers are "skulking around, stealing from, spying on, and spreading malicious gossip about citizens engaged in legal political activities," he continued.

Party lawyers have asked the court to force the FBI to identify 19 of the informers and turn over full details of their activities. If the initial request succeeds, the party may seek further information on other informers.

Business English offered

Much is being written today about the need for learning to write correct English. According to Newsweek's article, "Why Johnny Can't Write," "The U.S. educational system is spawning a generation of semi-literates."

While the Business Department at Howard College does not necessarily endorse this statement, a positive effort is made to assure business and other occupational students that their communication skills can be improved.

Business English is offered both mornings and evenings for persons interested in business or other occupational careers. Call 267-6311, extension 70, for further information.

Illegal leftists to try pressure

Spanish summit staged

MADRID (AP) — More than 60 illegal leftist political and labor groups met Saturday at a luxury hotel in Madrid to try to form a national front to pressure the government into wider and faster democratic reform.

Premier Adolfo Suarez was said to be watching the closed summit meeting closely, but he and King Juan Carlos had agreed earlier not to interfere.

The meeting was organized by the Communists and Socialists, who earlier this year formed a "Democratic Coordination" of 16 groups. Sources said a communique might be issued after the meeting, which they said would continue into Saturday night.

But chances for agreement on an overall leftist coalition seemed slight because of wide differences among the parties and the refusal of leading Catalan and Basque alliances to attend the summit.

Those groups said they would rather press their efforts to gain autonomy for their homelands on their own.

"Democratic Coordination is more a name than a reality," said the liberal newspaper El Pais. "The opposition today is divided and deeply embattled."

That was apparently one reason Suarez has allowed the meeting to take place, even though none of the parties or groups at the summit has registered under a new law permitting political activity for the first time in 40 years.

Suarez, who was picked by King Juan Carlos to speed the king's program of democratic reforms, has been trying to get a dialogue started with someone who can speak with authority for the left.

The meeting is the first real attempt at unity on the left since political parties were banned by the late dictator Gen. Franisco Franco at the end of the Spanish civil war in 1939.

Before the summit, organizers said they hoped the parties could at least agree to two key points — formation of a representative government to replace Suarez' team and general elections to pick a constituent parliament.

Suarez has promised free parliamentary elections, the first since 1933, next spring.

Besides the Communists and the Socialists, the summit drew independents, Social Democrats and regional groups from Valencia, Galicia and the Balearic and Canary islands.

Glen Campbell on honeymoon

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — In a star-studded ceremony, singer Glen Campbell has married the ex-wife of entertainer Mac Davis. Singer Roger Miller was the best man and the guests included entertainers John Davidson, Wayne Newton and Kenny Rogers.

About 25 persons attended the brief services Friday at a Stateline wedding chapel.

Campbell said he and his new wife, Sarah Jan, 24, will honeymoon in Hawaii. It was the third marriage for Campbell, 40, and her second.

Shorthand classes available

Shorthand is still a marketable skill, according to recent surveys. Too many students have been discouraged from attempting shorthand because of the emphasis on the use of machine dictation.

Even with machine dictation, secretaries are needed to take telephone messages, impromptu dictation, and minutes of meetings. And many executives still prefer to dictate to a person rather than to a machine.

More requests for secretaries who take dictation are made than can be filled, according to Doris Huibregtse, instructor at Howard College.

Persons interested in developing or improving shorthand skills are invited to register for a class at the college. Beginning classes are offered on Monday-Wednesday-Friday mornings and on Monday-Wednesday evenings. An intermediate class is offered on Monday-Wednesday-Friday mornings.

Call 267-6311, extension 70, for further information.

Alcoholism seminar is scheduled next Friday

The Big Spring State Hospital Alcoholism Program will conduct the seventeenth alcoholism seminar next Friday. It will be held in the auditorium at the local facility.

These monthly seminars are made possible through a grant with the Texas Commission on Alcoholism and are held in conjunction with the Big Spring Veterans' Administration Hospital and Howard College. The theme for this workshop will be "Sensible Living In A Drinking Society." The consultant for this day-long meeting will be John McDonald, Director of State Programs, Texas Commission on Alcoholism, Austin Texas.

Mr. McDonald is an educator-trainer program developer, and is very knowledgeable about the field of Alcohol Treatment and Rehabilitation. This seminar will be of interest to persons working in the field of alcoholism as well as to those who are interested in this major problem.

registration will begin at 8:00 a.m., with the general session starting at 9:00 a.m., and adjournment at 4:00 p.m. A registration fee of $1 will be charged with an additional charge of $1 for those wishing to receive continuing education units from Howard College. (The persons wishing to receive credit for attendance will be expected to remain the entire day.)

Additional information can be secured from Clyde Alsup, training officer, Alcoholism Unit, Big Spring State Hospital.

Demo Executive Committee selects headquarters site

The Howard County Democratic Executive Committee voted to open its headquarters, and condemned to use of the Democratic name by organizations backing nominees of other parties Friday night.

The group voted to rent the old Texas Electric building at Fourth and Runnels Streets and approved the expenditure of funds for telephones, electricity and water. Howard County Young Democrats will also use the building for its headquarters.

The Democrats also passed a resolution condemning the use of the Democratic name in connection with any organizations which back the nominees of another party. Included in the resolution was the reason for it's objection.

The group objected because "everyone who voted in the Democratic Primary signed an oath that they would support the nominees of the party."

County Democratic Chairman Raford Dunagan added that those who voted in other primaries are not Democrats and shouldn't be using the name.

Howard County Judge Bill Tune was appointed as the chairman of the voter registration committee, Mrs. Alton Underwood was appointed as co-manager of the headquarters along with Larry Don Shaw, president of the Young Democrats organization, D. A. Brazel was appointed chairman of the donations committee, and Jim Baum and Walt Finley were appointed co-chairmen of the publicity committee.

The committee also appointed precinct chairmen for those precincts in which the posts were vacant.

Connally hopes Briscoe cools his affection for Carter

Presidential race could turn into duel

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former Gov. John Connally says he prays that Gov. Dolph Briscoe, an old friend and accomplished vote getter, cools in his affection for Jimmy Carter.

If Briscoe remains true to his pledge to campaign hard for Carter, the presidential race in Texas could turn into a duel between two of the state's most popular politicians of recent years — Briscoe and Connally.

Connally and Sen. John Tower announced at a news conference Friday that Connally will manage the Ford re-election campaign in this state, which the President reportedly regards as pivotal.

According to a member of Tower's staff, Connally was recruited when he visited Ford at Vail, Colo., last week. Connally earlier had turned down an offer to be national GOP chairman.

Briscoe, regarded as one of Carter's closest friends among governors, has enthusiastically supported the former Georgia chief executive since he won the Texas Democratic presidential primary in May.

Asked if he thought Briscoe's strong backing for Carter would be a formidable obstacle to Ford's carrying Texas, Connally replied:

"I would hope that Gov. Briscoe would not be all that strong in his support for Gov. Carter. He (Briscoe) certainly has been persistent and consistent in his views against additional taxes. . . He is going to find it difficult to go all out for Carter when Carter would add $100 billion to the federal deficit if his positions are enacted. . . . I think when Gov. Briscoe looks at Carter's positions . . he is going to have his ardor dampened."

Connally added that he has "great respect" for Briscoe, at whose ranch he held a major organizational meeting in 1961 before announcing for governor.

"I just am prayerful he won't do all he possibly can" for Carter," Connally said.

Connally said he has been assured of cooperation from former supporters of Ronald Reagan, who won the Texas GOP primary but lost the nomination at the national convention.

Connally said he expects much help from party chairman Ray Hutchison of Dallas, who is in a tight race for reelection with Ray Barnhart of Pasadena, Reagan's state campaign manager.

When asked whether it would make any difference to the Ford campaign if Hutchison is defeated next Saturday, Connally said, "He is not going to be defeated."

He again denied ever having said he turned down the national party chairmanship because Ford would be defeated and he didn't want the blame.

"I never said the Ford-Dole ticket couldn't win. I will say, we start behind in Texas and in the nation, but that's no sign we can't win," Connally said.

He said he would wage "a hard-hitting campaign" for Ford in Texas.

"How will you attack Carter?" he was asked.

"We don't propose to attack him at all," Connally said. Then he proceeded to add: " We want to point out his record. He chose as his running mate probably the most liberal member of the U. S. Senate."

HOWE STAYS IN — Rep. Allan T. Howe, D-Utah, with his wife Marlene at his side, told newsmen Friday in Salt Lake City that he has decided to remain in the race for re-election. Howe, 48, twice convicted of trying to buy sex from two police decoy prostitutes, went against the advice of party leaders and polls in deciding to continue seeking a second term.

Booger bear causes problems

Steers gain experience, but lose to Mustangs

By DANNY REAGAN
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Steers travelled to Andrews Friday night, followed by about 1,200 cheering Longhorn boosters, and wanted to prove to themselves and the ardent fans that they could play winning football.

They did prove that they could play football, especially during the first half of the game, but they could not stop the efforts of highly-touuted Booger Brooks, the Andrews' quarterback whose dexterity at broken field running spelled doom for an opening season victory for the Steers.

The Steers handled the remainder of the Andrews ball-club with a certain amount of ease, stopping halfback sweeps and throwing up a formidable secondary that Brooks could not afford to pass into . . . so he ran. And that was the margin of victory.

On the first series of downs after the Mustangs received Tony Mann's kick-off, the game appeared as if it would be as close as everyone had predicted. Brooks fumbled twice, made only one first down, and the Mustangs were forced to punt, with the Steers gaining possession at their own 8-yard line for the first time.

Quarterback Bubba Stripling and running back Mike Abreo ran two consecutive sweeps picking up a first down each. Stripling then completed a 20-yard pass to Del Poss, but an ensuing offensive pass interference call on third and 13 from the 50 spelled the end of the Steers' drive.

A roughing-the-punter penalty didn't give the Steers a second chance and the punt by Mike Harris carried to the Andrew's 11-yard line. Ken Coffey, a Steer offensive end, tackled Andrews' Weldon Jones on his own seven-yard line.

Andrews was stopped short by a foot of gaining another first down on that series of downs and the Steers had the ball on the Andrews' 44-yard line after the punt. A delay-of-game penalty ended the Longhorns' chance for a first down, and the first quarter ended with a fourth and sixth for the Steers from the Andrews' 39-yard line.

The next series of downs for the Mustangs accomplished nothing and the Steers had the ball back on the Andrews 44. The Steers made one first down with a 12-yard pass to Ken Coffey from Stripling. But Harris was forced to punt, and booted a picture-book coffin-corner kick to the three-yard line.

Steer guard Dee Nanny stopped Booger Brooks on a keeper for a yard loss, and Andrews quick-kicked on third and eight from their own six-yard line.

The Steers wound up with the ball at the Andrews 47-yard line and it looked as if they had the momentum to go in for a score. Bubba Stripling eluded three tackles and made six yards on the first play. Gregg Adams made the first down on a run to the 33, but a quick pass to Coffey fell off his fingertips incomplete.

A holding penalty forced the Steers back 15 yards, and the following end-around by Harris only netted six yards, and a draw by Abreo on third and 22 gained only four. Harris punted the ball into the end-zone, and Andrews had the ball on their own 20.

On first down, with 4:02 remaining in the first half, Booger Brooks used fleet-feet and head fakes to elude three Steer would-be tacklers and wasn't stopped until he had reached the Steer 13-yard line. After two short runs and a clipping penalty, Brooks dropped back on third and 26 and fired a TD strike to Eldon Jones over the outstretched arms of Steer defender Randle Jones. Andrews' Rick Chesshire kicked the extra point.

There was then 2:27 left in the half. Ken Coffey carried the ensuing kick-off back to his own 37-yard line, and the Longhorns gained another 15 yards on a late hit call. The locals had first and 10 from the Andrews 48.

Two quick passes by Stripling to Ken Coffey of 11 and 13 yards, respectively, put the Steers in business with first and 10 from the Andrews 24.

A rassle-dassle pass from Stripling to Coffey, who in turn lateraled the ball back to Abreo, carried the pigskin down to the enemy five-yard line.

With 51 seconds left in the half, on second and three, Stripling hit Mike Harris in the end-zone for the seeming tying score. But Harris mis-hit the extra point, and it looked as if the two teams would go to the dressing room just one point apart.

But with first down at his own 35-yard line, after the following kick-off, Booger Brooks fired up his legs and ran for 42 yards down to the Steers 28-yard line. After a pass to teammate Joe Gilliland, Brooks ran the ball in himself from the two-yard line with 18 seconds remaining in the half. Chesshire kicked the one-point. After two minutes that saw 20 points scored, the two teams finally left the field for intermission with Andrews on top of a 14-6 score.

The game was fairly even at that point. Andrews had 149 yards rushing at the half, all but 23 of that belonged to Brooks. The Steers had held the rest of the Mustangs to respectable yardage, and it looked as if the Steers would be able to pass at will on the opposition.

The Steers took the second half kick-off at their own 43-yard line but failed to make a first down and Andrews had the ball on their 39 after the punt. Brooks ran down to the Steer 49. His teammate Jesse Madrid then carreid the ball to the Steer 42, and after a tremendous stand by the Steer line, Brooks snuck across to the 38 on fourth and one for the first.

Steer defensive back Billy Hayes rushed in to drop Mustang Mike Mace for a two-yard loss after Andrews had brought the ball down to the Steer 14. On fourth and nine, Andrews tried a field goal, and Tom Churchwell, Steer defensive stalwart, deflected the ball.

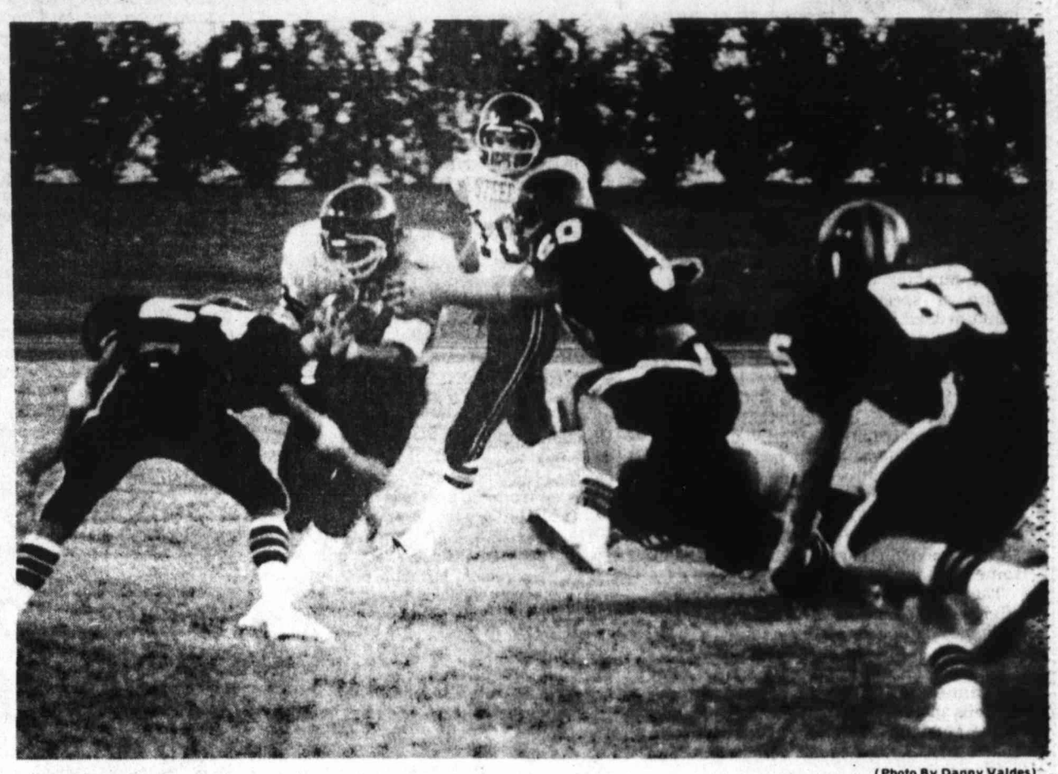

The Steers failed to move the ball on the ensuing possession and Andrews got the ball back on the Steer 41 after a 23-yard punt by Harris.

Defensive back Randle Jones saved a touchdown by fighting off blockers, and tackling Mustang Joe Barnes, but it was all for nought as Brooks, with 19 seconds left in the third quarter, finally ran the ball in for a TD from the Steer 3-yard line on first down. Chesshire again hit the extra point, and the score was 21-6, as it would stand for the remainder of the game.

In the second possesion after the touchdown, the Steers looked as if they would score, as Stripling passed to Coffey who in turned lateraled back to Mitch Harris. The play gained a first down at the Steer 37. But after gains, the Steers fumbled the ball, and Andrews recovered on their own 43.

Andrews could not move the ball and was forced to punt. Steer linebacker Jesse Doss blocked the kick and the Steers were back in business at the Andrews 23. Substitute quarterback Ricky Myers then fired a bullet to Mike Harris and the Steers had a first down on the Andrews 13. But a fourth and nine pass into the end-zone was just out of the reach of Harris, and Andrews regained possession.

Neither side moved the ball from then on, and the team that is rated to finish second in its district left the field victors. The Steers, picked to finish last in their district, left the field to prepare for their game with Hobbs next week, saddened yards on a late-hit call. The they can play football.

SWEEPING RIGHT FOR A GAIN — Steer running back Mike Abreo, (24), makes considerable yardage against the entire left side of the Andrews' defensive line. Abreo and teammate Gregg Adams charged the line time and time again, occasionally bursting through for sizeable gains. Andrews' defenders on this particular play are Weldon Jones (24), Charlie Russell, (60), and Lynn Wagner (65).

STEER TOUCHDOWN — With 51 seconds remaining in the first half, Steers' Mike Harris, (89), catches a touchdown pass from quarterback Bubba Stripling. Harris missed the extra point, and the Steers went to the dressing room only eight points behind at intermission. Andrews' Mike Reid (22) is defending.

But Bobcats lose

5-4A teams fare well

ODESSA — Quarterback Darrell Shepard led the Odessa Broncs to an impressive 10-0 victory over the Amarillo Golden Sandies.

In Odessa's first possession in the opening period, Odessa moved 80 yards for the lone touchdown of the game.

Shepard sought out flanker Tony Jones with a 52-yard pass-and-run play, then teamed up again with Jones on a 27-yard play that produced the touchdown.

Shepard added a field goal to the Odessa aggregate score with a 35-yard field goal in the third period.

Odessa's defense glistened all evening.

BROWNWOOD — The Brownwood Lions gave the Abilene Cooper Cougars all they could handle before losing, 14-13, here Friday night.

Tim Orr took a pass from Mark Beal for Cooper's first touchdown in the initial period, the play covering 35 yards. Richard Williams made good on the extra point try.

In the second round, Orr scored on a one-yard run to widen the gap. Williams again tacked on the extra point and that proved to be the margin.

Brownwood didn't fire up until midway through the fourth quarter. Greg Hobbs ended a long drive by score from the one. Bryan Allen booted the PAT.

With 2:14 left in the contest, Dwayne Hogg bruised in for Brownwood from 23 yards away. Gambling for an outright win, the Lions tried to run the ball in for two extra points but the Cougars dug in to hold.

Brownwood outgained Cooper on the ground, 139-94, but yielded 101 yards through the air while picking up only 50 itself. First downs favored Brownwood, 10-9.

ABILENE — Abilene High had things all its own way in a game with Wichita Falls Rider here Friday night, prevailing, 39-0.

Rider had been ranked ninth in the state among Class AAAA team going into the game but could manage only 55 yards rushing and 97 passing. Abilene picked up 198 yards on the ground and 171 through the air.

Abilene built up a 33-0 lead in the first two quarters and used substitutes much of the second half.

QB Glen Stirman threw three touchdowns passes for Abilene, all to split end K. D. Roberts, who also broke loose on a 61-yard punt return.

Rider was not able to cross the 50 yard line until shortly before the first half ended.

Roberts' scoring plays came on plays of six, 24 and 46 yards. Abilene scored on the third play of the game on Stirman's 46-yard bomb to Roberts. After that, it was simply of question of "how much" rather than "who won."

Joe Jones counted one Abilene TD on a 17-yard run and barreled over from the one for another.

Herman Reece was Abilene's top ground gainer with 74 yards net in six attempts.

AMARILLO — Midland High achieved a signal football victory here Friday night, turning back respected Amarillo Tascosa, 14-7.

Highlight of the game was a 68-yard kickoff return by Phillip Ward of Midland with less than a minute to play in the first half.

Tascosa has scored a short time before when QB Jack Hudgins hit Joe Priest with a 19-yard scoring pass.

In the third period, Alvin Price of Midland ran 65 yards to pay dirt. After that, the Bulldogs stopped Tascosa cold.

Kevin Pearce booted both of Midland's PATs. Rusty Maroney was Midland's big ground gainer, with 115 in 15 lunges.

BRYAN — Bryan's Vikings held on to topple San Angelo Central's Bobcats, 21-14, here Friday night.

Mistakes cost the Bobcats early in the contest and they were unable to recover, although they kept Bryan fans on the edge of their seats late in the contest.

Jimmy Wilson scored the winning touchdown for Bryan on a seven-yard pass from Steve Shillings, after which Cleo Lewis ran across on the conversion try. The play occurred in the fourth period.

Bill Woodard and Darnell White tallied touchdowns for San Angelo, the latter on a pass from Mickey Abbott.

Cleo Harris ran 11 yards for one Bryan tally and Chuch Broach gathered in a pass from Shillings for Bryan's other score, the play covering 46 yards.

Joe Bob West booted two PATs for San Angelo.

Colorado City upset

COLORADO CITY — Highly rated Colorado City crashed to earth here Friday night, losing to Slaton, 21-0.

The Wolves could never gain tractions. Slaton scored in the opening quarter when it drove 43 yards across the the double stripes. Brad Eblen counted the six points for Slaton on a ten yard run up the middle. Mike Bednarz booted the PAT.

With 6:04 to go in the third, Eblen raced 80 yards on a punt return to give the Tigers their second tally. Bednarz again converted to give Slaton a 14-0 advantage.

Rocky Smith provided Slaton with its third score in the fourth quarter with an eight-yard run, climaxing a 47-yard march.

Colorado City's highly touted offense was limited to 140 total yards. Slaton picked up 184 yards on the ground and added 48 through the air.

Eblen proved to be a one-man gang for Slaton. He gained 119 yards on 19 carries.

Greg Basinger kicked one extra point for Slaton.

Mike McKee played an outstanding defensive game for Colorado City. Slaton is a member of District 5-AA. Colorado City plays in 6-AA.

Coahoma, Wall fight to draw

WALL — Charley Lynch's Coahoma Bulldogs scored a moral victory of sorts by playing the powerful Wall Hawks to a 6-6 standout on muddy field here Friday night.

Wall's rugged defense played havoc with Coahoma's running and passing game, limiting the Bulldogs to net gains of 54 yards.

Coahoma likely would have fared better had it been able to hold onto the ball. It yielded seven bobles to the alert Hawks. Wall wasn't much better in that department. It lost possession five times.

One Coahoma fumble gave the Hawks possession on the Bulldog 13 near the end of the first half. Halfback Benny Craft powered his way down to the Coahoma three but the gritty Bulldogs dug in to hold and gained the ball on downs.

Wall broke the scoring ice in the third when QB George Sharkey, working in the option play to perfection, roared 86 yards across the double stripes.

Wall then tried a two-point conversion only to fail.

Thomas Marvin of Coahoma popped on a Wall fumble in the fourth on the Hawks' ten to-get Coahoma back in the game. After four plays, QB Edwin Dickson kept the ball and went in for the tying tally from three yards out.

Coahoma tried only two passes during the game but had one of them picked off by the opposition.

Coahoma's interior line was tremendous on defense, especially tackles Donald Luce and Bobby Fryar. Linebacker Kenny Kelso was outstanding, too.

Coahoma had two golden opportunities to score late in the game but couldn't cash in on them. On one occasion, the Bulldogs maneuvered inside Wall's ten only t yield possession. The Coahomans also attempted to field goal from the 20 but it was short.

Wall had been visited by seven inches of rain during the week and the field been hit by a three-inch downpour an hour before the start of play.

Coahoma pulled off to two goal line stands early in the contest. One one occasion, Wall chugged to the Coahoma four but couldn't go in.

Coahoma came out of the struggle in great physical condition. Lynch played all 22 boys who made the trip. Coahoma will be at home to Post next Friday night.

Roby routs Borden Co. in eleven-man debut

GAIL — Roby routed Borden County, 42-0, in a one-sided football game here Friday night. The Coyotes were making their debut in 11-man ball.

Halfback Rick Morton scored three times for Roby, two on passes of 47 and 42 yards.

Brad Stuart threw both bombs. Morton roared two yards for his other score.

Ricky King counted in the final period for Roby after the Lions had recovered a Borden County fumble on the Coyote one.

Late in the game, Stuart passed to James Putnam for 24 yards and another Roby score.

Extra points were tacked onto Roby's aggregate tally by Morton and King.

Hobbs looks tough

LOVINGTON, N.M. — The Hobbs Eagles, who visit Big Spring for a game next Friday night, buried Lovington under a 46-0 score here Friday night.

Hobbs gained 284 yards in running plays while compiling 20 first plays. Halfback Eric Gage was the bellwether of the Eagle offensive, scoring two touchdowns. In 16 efforts, he gained 106 yards.

Hobbs scored only once in each of the first two periods. In the final 24 minutes, it proved to be a Hobbs runaway. Tony Mitchell tallied the Eagles' first touchdown on an 85-yard run. Larry Munoz converted.

QB Flint Knight passed 10 yards to end Tony Knott for Hobbs' second tally. Halfback Red Harris managed the third on an eight-yard jaunt. Gage followed with a three-yard scoring run.

Early in the fourth, Gage broke loose on a 13-yard run. Halfback John Henry followed with a six-yard touchdown thrust, after which halfback Alton Patterson found his way to the end zone after a two-yard plunge.

THROUGH the fieldglass

This begins a new weekly column, hopefully devoted to a little bit of everything in the world of sports. The change of personnel has agained opened up interesting areas to keep my nose attuned to. (No nose jokes please.)

***

The season opener for the Steers did not turn out as local fans would have wished, but a couple of bright spots did shine out of the bleak Mustang Stadium. Bleak is only a figure of speech, because the physical stadium itself is a work of art.

One news reporter from Midland, sitting next to me in the sweltering press box, remarked that the structure looked like College Stadium. Andrews School District is one of the more well-to-do in these parts and they go all out to impress their visitors.

But the bright spots...ah yes, a number of Big Spring fans attended the game against Andrews, well over double the amount that was expected, and they showed their support at a time when Coach Robbins and his staff were apprehsnsive about a lack of same.

The Steers showed promise on passing offense, and a number of sterling displays of defense accompanied a hard-fought ballgame.

Robbins, his staff and players are taking the games one at a time, as they should, and the fans should not be disheartened by a loss to the Mustangs. After all, Andrews had a quarterback that was definitely "on" Friday night.

There is no reason the crowd for the home-opener against Hobbs next week to be less than standing room only. As Robbins has said time and time again, the community is very important in helping realize a winning ballclub. Go to the game next week. You may be surprised.

***

Up in the presbox for the Andrews' game, "ol' mellow tones", Jim Baum, was resting his feet out one of the windows, trying to stay cool in the sauna bath that was his broadcasting cubicle.

An alley cat attacked his brand new patent-leather black upper with 3½" heels and scratched them up badly. A team of searchers were sent to retrieve the feline.

Later, a small boy carrying a cat came into where Baum was and said, "Pardon me Baum, is that the cat that chewed your shoes."

***

If you haven't noticed yet, (where have you been), Danny Valdes has a forest of new CB and scanner antennaes on his small yellow car.

More than once during our trip to Andrews, some dumbfounded CBer would break in and say, "What in the name of C. W. McCall is that there yellow thing with all them 'antennies'."

Season ticket sales for a three Odessa high schools have amounted to all-time records, director of athletics Jack Brewer said Monday.

The unofficial total for all three schools is 5,863, Brewer said, adding that the total may be increased slightly. Sale of season tickets will be available under the usual school policies.

Permian once again led the parade of ticket buyers as 4,447 season tickets were sold for Mojo's six home games combined. This is up from the previous all-time record of 4,241 established last year.

Of course, Big Spring cannot hope to expect anywhere near that amount of season ticket sales, but with just one more week left to buy those ducats, it doesn't look as if they will even get close to the season ticket number of Andrews, a school that has only 800 students.

Nicklaus leads Golf series

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, making his move while the others fired and fell back, composed a one-under-par 69 and established a two stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the new, enlarged, enriched, $300,000 World Series of Golf.

Nicklaus, who already has collected $389,930 in lifetime winnings from this course alone, put together a 54-hole total of 207, three under par on the sprawling, 7,180-yard South course at the Firestone Country Club.

The big layout, one of the longest and toughest on the pro tour, took its toll on the rest of the elite, international, 20-man field that qualified for this 72-hole chase for a $100,000 first prize.

Only Nicklaus was able to break par 70 on this cloudy, muggy day that produced a heavy rain just as the leaders were finishing. His various challengers fell victim to a variety of woes.

Lee Trevino, for example, was making a move at the leaders, was tied for second and only three shots off the pace before he pumped two in the water on "the monster," the 625-yard 16th hole. He made a nine on the hole, shot 72 for the day and was six back at 213.

His troubles were mild, however, compared with Ben Crenshaw. The season's leading money-winner got three of them in the little pond that guards the green, took a horrendous 11 and shot 74 for the day, 223 for the tournament. That hole alone almost certainly will cost him the top money-winning spot when this rich event ends.

Hubert Green, the leader when the day's play started, and Japanese star Takashi Murakami were tied for second and were the only others under par at 209, two shots back.

Murakami, 32, continued his fantastic scrambling, almost constantly coming out of trouble, and had a hard-won 70. Green, who owned a three-stroke lead early in the round, had his troubles coming home and finished with a 73, three over par.

"I just misclubbed myself and made some stupid shots," said Green, the only three-time winner on the American tour this season. He was only one shot back until he bogeyed the 18th in the rain.

Dave Hill and Masters champion Ray Floyd were next at 210, three back and even par. Floyd had to birdie the last hole from the wrong fairway for a 72. Hill, still having his putting problems and occasionally striking his putts crosshanded, had a 73.

"I hit it outside the (gallery) ropes so many times today I should have bought two tickets—one for myself and one for my caddy," Hill said.

Al Geiberger, Australian David Graham, J.C. Snead and Hale Irwin were next at 212. Snead, Irwin and Graham shots 71s, and Geiberger had 72.

Ira blasts divide

DIVIDE — Ira amassed a total of 193 yards in the first half in pulling out a close-fought football game over Divide 28-24.

Ira made three touchdowns the first half, recovering a fumble of the opening kick-off and senior fullback Royce Corbell running in for the TD on the opening play.

In the second quarter junior halfback B. Kessner had a three-yard TD, and Corbell ran the extra point. With a minute and a half left in the first half, right end J. Miers caught a six-yard pass for the third TD of the night.

And with seconds to go in the first half, Ira scored a safety, making the score 22-0 at the half.

Divide ran the second half kick-off back for a six-pointer, and scored three more TDs, before the game was over.

The difference in the score was the effort by Ira's defense. They blocked all four of Divide's extra point attempts.

Royce Corbell of Ira carried 15 times for 158 yards.

Garden City loses opener

MERTZON — Garden City fell victim to their own mistakes Friday night and came out on the short end of the stick, 16-0, to Divide.

Coach Roy Flournoy pointed to a fumbled punt deep in their own territory that was the turning point of the game. "They just took it into score, and we fumbled again," said Flournoy.

Flournoy praised the defensive efforts of Wayne Heard and Alex Medrano in the losing effort.

"Our offense couldn't move," said Flouroy, "and Mertzon just capitalized on our offensive mistakes."

Garden City's next game will be at home next Friday night against Sands in an area 3-B game that will draw a lot of attention because of the strong rivalry between both clubs.

Goliad and Runnels in scrimmage

The 7th and 8th grade teams from Goliad and Runnels Jr. High scrimmaged Saturday morning, and Goliad coach Wayne Nail said that both teams "looked very promising."

Nail indicated that the outlook for future Steer teams is very bright, and that the grudge attitude between the two junior highs is being replaced by a "unity" attitude that is preparing them better for their football stint in high school.

"Everyone participated in the scrimmage," said Nail, "and the combination of 8th grade teams looked very good."

Bob Zellars is the head coach of the Runnels team.

Happy BD 'Bird'

DETROIT (AP) — Rookie pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers received more than 750 cards for his 22nd birthday on Aug. 14. The Tigers' public relations department, which handled the load, said Friday that each well wisher received a reply.

Cowboys win thriller in sudden death 26-20

DALLAS (AP) — Fullback Scott Laidlaw scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter and romped 10 yards with 6:43 elapsed in sudden death overtime Saturday night to present the Dallas Cowboys with a 26-20 victory over Houston and bragging rights to the "Texas Pro Football Championship."

The Cowboys, who ended the National Football League preseason with a 3-3 mark, appeared almost hopelessly out of the game until they exploded for 17 fourth-quarter points.

The Oilers, who lost all six of their preseason games, won the coin flip in sudden death after Laidlaw's second straight touchdown run of six yards tied the score 20-20 with 3:17 to play.

Skip Butler of Houston missed a 28-yard field goal with two seconds left to play that would have given the Oilers victory in regulation play.

Dallas surged 72 yards for the winning touchdown after the Oilers won the coin toss and failed to move.

Doug Dennison scampered 28 yards and Golden Richards hauled down a 14-yard pass from Staubach in key plays of the drive.

Laidlaw, a second-year fullback from Stanford who is coming off knee surgery, burst through a gaping hole at left tackle and scored the winning touchdown standing up as the crowd of 58,844 went wild in the 92-degree heat of Texas Stadium.

The nationally-televised victory game Dallas an 8-2 record in the preseason series between the two teams.

Houston took a 3-0 first period lead on Butler's 38-yard field goal after linebacker Steve Kiner recovered Ron Johnson's fumble.

Albert Burton blocked Toni Fritsch's 21-yard field goal attempt and Willie Alexander alertly scooped it up and outran Charlie Waters 84 yards to the end zone thanks to a clearing block by C.L. Whittington.

An 18-yard punt by Danny White set up Houston for Butler's 25-yard field goal to give Houston a 13-0 edge. Fritsch kicked a 43-yard field goal with 2:04 remaining as the Oilers went into the dressing room at halftime with a 13-3 lead.

Butler missed three field goals in the second half as Dallas put the clamps on the Oiler offense.

Houston held a 20-3 third period lead after Billy "White Shoes" Johnson scampered 39 yards with a screen pass from Dan Pastorini. Johnson caromed off three Cowboy tacklers and stumbled into the end zone on the spectacular run.

Efren Herrera kicked a 21-yard field goal at the start of the fourth quarter as the Cowboys began their comeback.

Some three minutes later, Laidlaw capped a 39-yard drive with a six-yard scoring run up the middle.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach had an outstanding night, completing 19 of 32 passes for 254 yards.

Pastorini connected on 12 of 16 passes for 162 yards but did not play in the fourth period and the sudden death.

Forsan impresses Bronte

FORSAN — The Buffaloes registered quite an impressive win over Bronte Friday night, walking away with a 36-0 decision.

John Medlin scored on a six-yard run in the first quarter, and again in the second with a 67-yard run. Medlin scored two more times, once in the second with a 21-yard run, and in the third quarter with a 41-yard run.

Rusty Henderson was good for three two-point conversions.

Head Coach George White was "real pleased" with the efforts of his team, and with four minutes to play in the first half, White had played all of the members on his team.

"The first unit played very little," said White.

Gary Martin was noted for his outstanding defensive play, intercepting two passes.

A.J. Stanley did a trojan job as noseguard, according to White. He also pointed to Allen Hollandsworth, linebacker, as one of the sterling players.

"The secondary did a good job," said White. And on the offensive line, Jody Hughes and Gary Tidwell were acclaimed for their efforts.

Only once during the contest did Bronte ever mount a threat. They drove deep into Forsan territory, mainly on penalties, but were forced back by aggressive defensive strength.

Forsan is expected to finish first in their district and are now preparing for the game next week against Borden County.

Stanton fumbles victory away

STANTON — Fumbles proved disastrous to Stanton in its football debut with Tahoka here Friday night.

The Buffaloes, young and ambitious, yielded three bobbles and the Bulldogs took advantage of them to win, 20-13.

Early in the fluid battle, Stanton yielded possession on a bobble at its own 18. A few minutes later, halfback Ronnie Thomspon plunged over from the one.

Stanton got back in the game when speedy Marvin Jones sailed five yards around right ends for a tally. Neither team converted and the score was tied, 6-6.

In the second, Stanton again coughed up the ball on a fumble and Tahoka recovered on the team.

Thompson took charge again, bruising across to send the Bulldogs out front, 12-6.

Again, Stanton fought back, this time on a 57-yard drive. Jones ambled the last two for the score and Stanton took the lead, 13-12.

The Buffaloes might have stayed there but for another costly fumble, this one in the third.

The visitors took over on the Stanton 32, as a result, and marched down field for the winning score. Halfback Ernest Bailey stepped into the end zone for the touchdown, then added two extra points on a run.

Tahoka had 251 total yards gained, compared to Stanton's total output of 161.

Lamesa drops close one

CARLSBAD, N.M. — Tough-luck Lamesa dropped a 7-3 decision to the Carlsbad Cavemen in their football opener here Friday night.

All the scoring occurred in the second period. Michael Bogus put the Golden Tornadoes out front with a 30-yard field goal. The Lamesans capitalized on the break after recoving a Carlsbad fumble on the enemy 17.

Carlsbad came right back to get on the board with its only sustained drive of the evening.

The Cavemen marched 63 yards in nine plays. Key passes from QB Joe Leyva to right end Russell Stroble sparked the drive. Fullback Brian Haukereid, however, got the score on a two-yard run.

Josh Robinson and Bobby Amaro played outstanding defensive ball for the Lamesans.

Snyder Tigers beat Monahans

MONAHANS — Ricky Beard scored from the four with 6:37 remaining in the game to provide the Snyder Tigers with a 14-7 victory over Monahans here Friday night.

Beard, who plays fullback, counted Snyder's first TD in the opening round, climaxing a 36-yard drive with a one-yard run.

Snyder gained 180 yards rushing and 34 passing to 116 rushing and 70 passing for the Lobos. Monahans led in first downs.

Monahans managed its lone tally in the second when Fullback Eric Branham hurried over from the one.

QB Tim Falls and linebacker John Hopkins were outstanding for Snyder, along with Beard. Beard made both extra points for the Tigers.

Smyer clouts Klondike out

SMYER — Smyer outmuscled Klondike, 39-0, in a football game here Friday night.

The Bobcats scored 14 points in the opening period and added 19 in Round Two.

Danny Gholson scored three touchdowns for Smyer and had another nullified by an injury.

Klondike could gain only 12 yards rushing the ball and 41 passing.

Robert Lee humbles Sterling

STERLING — Robert Lee humbled Sterling City, 14-0, in the inaugural football game for both teams here Friday night.

Shell Williams ran 80 yards for one Robert Lee touchdown in the opening quarter. He added the extra point on a kick.

Robert Lee scored again in the final period on a one-yard quarterback sneak by Mickey Baker. Williams again made good on the extra point try.

Shallowater topples Sands

SHALLOWATER — Shallowater exploded for 16 points in the first six minutes of play and went on to topple Sands, 22-0, in the football opener for both teams here Friday night.

The Mustangs, who made an outstanding effort despite their inability to score, go to Garden City for a game Friday. They don't play their home opener until Sept. 17, when they challenge Forsan.

Shallowater took advantage of a Sands bobble in the first few moments of the game, recovering the ball on the visitors' one. Fullback Ruben Gomez plunged over from that point and Shallowater led, 6-0.

Sands punted badly a short time later and Shallowater led, 6-0.

Sands punted badly a short time later and Shallowater took over on the Ponies' 20. Two plays later, Billy Glenn counted for Shallowater on a 20-yard option play. Andy Blackman added two points on a conversion try by passing to Steve Waller. That made it 14-0.

Sands proceeded to fumble the kickoff but kept possession on its own five. However, QB Summer Shaw was tackled on his own end zone and Shallowater had two more points.

In the third, Shallowater tallied again when Jesse Longoria ran 55 yards on a keeper. Tim Reep booted the extra point.

Sands was hammering away at the Shallowater two when time ran out on it at the half.

In the third, Sands managed to get down to Shallowater's 12 only run out of steam.

Fullback-linebacker Gary Webb, a 205-pound senior, played impressively both ways for the Sands team. He gained 63 yards in nine running attempts. He also caught a pass good for 12 yards.

Center Bobby Bayes, 170-pound senior, and tackle Jackie McDonald, 175-pound junior, were impressive on defense for Sands.

Hermleigh buries Grady

GRADY — The Hermleigh Cardinals had a relatively easy time with Grady here Friday night, winning, 58-24.

Halfback Tim Peterson proved particularly effective for Hermleigh while QB Wesley Kruger's passes shattered the Grady defenses.

Grady got on the scoreboard first when Frank Cantu and Jimmy Mitchell teamed up on a 45-yard scoring pass. The try for point failed.

Peterson counted three touchdowns for the visitors. After Peterson counted for the first time, Joe Roemisch kicked the PAT and Hermleigh never relinquished the lead.

Late in the first quarter, Kruger sought out Tim Bacus for a touchdown pass. Grady countered on a three-yard scoring run by Jimmy Mitchell.

Peterson counted again before the period was out on a 12-yard romp.

Stanley Warren gave Hermleigh another tally in the second, going four yards. Kruger and Jimmy Don Williams hooked up on a 22-yard scoring pass.

Peterson got on the scoreboard again on a 32-yard gallop following the interception of a Grady pass.

In the second half, Williamson went 15 yards for another Hermleigh TD. Cantu and Mitchell then combined on a pass play for Grady's only touchdown of the third quarter.

In the fourth, Carroll Don Burrelson scored from ten yards out and Mitchell scored his fourth touchdown for Grady on a 15-yard pass from Alex Perez.

Browns fumble game away

By The Associated Press

There could be no faulting the logic of Cleveland Browns running back Larry Poole. "The number one thing is to hold on to the football," he said. "If you don't do that, you got nothing."

Poole and the Browns had plenty of nothing Friday night, fumbling five times—three times into the hands of Buffalo safety Steve Freeman. Freeman also made seven tackles and deflected two passes in the Bills' 28-10 exhibition triumph.

All three of Freeman's recoveries led to Buffalo scores as the teams played their final National Football League preseason games. "Just a lack of concentration on my part," said Poole, who dropped a 59-yard punt by Marv Bateman and a hand-off from quarterback Mike Phipps.

To his credit, Poole recovered a fumble by teammate Art Moore on the second-half kickoff and set up a touchdown with a 44-yard sprint up the middle in the fourth quarter.

Freeman got the starting nod from Buffalo Coach Lou Saban because veteran Tony Greene is hobbled by injury.

In the other NFL games Friday night, Chicago trimmed Washington 9-7, St. Louis clubbed Kansas City 31-14, and Atlanta bombed Green Bay 26-7.

Action tonight pits Miami, 5-0, at New Orleans, 4-1; San Francisco 4-1, at Los Angeles, 5-0; the New York Jets, 1-4, at Pittsburgh, 3-2; Seattle, 1-4, at Oakland, 4-1; Houston, 0-5, at Dallas, 2-3; the New York Giants, 4-1, at San Diego, 2-3, and Cincinnati, 3-2, at Tampa Bay, 1-4.

Minnesota, 3-2, meets Denver, 4-2, and Philadelphia, 0-5, travels to New England, 2-3, on Sunday.

Exhibition play concludes Sunday with 3-2 Minnesota invading Denver, 4-2, for a nationally televised game (3:30 p.m., EDT).

Sweetwater's 8th graders defeat CJH

COAHOMA — Sweetwater's eighth grade football team defeated Coahoma Junior High, 12-6, here Thursday night.

Andrews brings three teams to town next Thursday, for games at 4:30, 6 and 8 p.m. The JV units of the two schools play the feature contest.

National Conference East Division is going to be 'wild, wild, wild!

By The Associated Press

It's going to be wild, wild, wild in the National Conference East Division this year.

And you can take that as gospel from a man who ought to know, Dallas Coach Tom Landry, active dean of National Football League coaches.

The 16-year coaching veteran says, "I can't think of a team that shouldn't be improved. Again, the race probably won't be decided until the final Sunday and the division should produce a wild card team."

In 1975, St. Louis captured the conference crown for the second consecutive year but Dallas dealt its wild card 10-4 record right into the Super Bowl, bowing 21-17 to Pittsburgh.

For years, the NFC East has been dominated by either Dallas, St. Louis or Washington. But Landry sees a revival at Philadelphia and particularly for the New York Giants — two teams usually out of the race by October.

"The Giants helped themselves tremendously when they got Larry Csonka," says Landry. "He gives them a running threat to go with Craig Morton's passing."

The Giants stunned Pittsburgh 17-0 in preseason without Csonka. New York was 5-9 in 1975 but Philadelphia was even worse, 4-10.

There's a new coach at Philadelphia—Dick Vermeil, who guided UCLA's Rose Bowl upset of Ohio State.

"There's usually a lot more enthusiasm on a team when a coaching change occurs and the Eagles could be up," says Landry.

"Of course, St. Louis has a tremendous offense and the Cardinals have helped themselves defensively in the off-season," continues Landry. "Washington should be better offensively but we'll have to see if their defense holds up."

Landry warns that the Cowboys are still a rebuilding team with less experience defensively than a year ago.

But he figures "we should be right in the middle of the scrap with the rest of them."

St. Louis was 11-3 in the regular season a year ago but suffered a swoon in the first round of the playoffs again.

"Our goal is to make it into the playoffs again but we have to improve our defense," says Cardinal Coach Don Coryell.

The Cardinal offense is set with quarterback Jim Hart, who threw 19 touchdown passes, halfback Terry Metcalf, fullback Jim Otis and exciting wide receiver Mel Gray.

Coryell obtained huge tackle Walt Patulski from Buffalo and tackle Marvin Upshaw and safety Mike Sensibaugh from Kansas City in off-season trades. The Cardinals also are hoping first-round draft pick Mike Dawson of Arizona, a defensive tackle, will make some immediate waves.

St. Louis has a tough late season stretch when the Cardinals face Los Angeles, Washington, Dallas and Baltimore in succession.

Dallas pulled off the NFL shocker of the year in 1975 with a club that included a dozen rookies. The Cowboys will be younger defensively now that 14-year veteran strongside linebacker Dave Edwards has retired.

Middle linebacker Lee Roy Jordan is back for his last hurrah with Randy White and Bob Breunig, both second-year players, filling in where needed.

A preseason injury to free safety Cliff Harris has put second-year man Randy Hughes on the spot.

Offensively, Dallas could be better with the addition of Ron Johnson, formerly of the Giants; Duane Thomas, the once moody prodigal son; and Jim Jensen, a fast, tough rookie fullback from Iowa, to a backfield that includes Preston Pearson and Robert Newhouse.

The Redskins tumbled to an 8-6 record and out of the playoffs last year for the first time in Goerge Allen's five seasons as Washington coach.

Allen, with money as no object, obtained running back John Riggins from the New York Jets, and signed Calvin Hill, who once played for the Dallas Cowboys. Hill is a World Football League refugee.

"We have a chance to have the best balanced squad in the five years I've been here if this new talent comes through," says Allen, who also wooed free agent tight end Jean Fugett from the Cowboys.

Allen, who needs only three victories to join the NFL's 100-victory coach club, says, "I am confident that 1976 will find us back in the playoffs."

The Redskin defense faltered badly in the stretch last year but there is still quality and skill at all positions.

Allen moved to help his defense by acquiring discontented Miami safety Jake Scott and controversial defensive end John Matuszak from Kansas City.

The Giants' defense allowed 306 points in 1975 and face a rugged '76 schedule that includes Pittsburgh, Minnesota, Los Angeles and Detroit out of the division. The Giants have young but improving linebackers in Brad Van Pelt and Pat Hughes flanking Brian Kelley in the middle. Draftee Harry Carson rates high.

But all the talk is about Csonka and what his presence will mean to a hard-pressed offense. Csonka, 29, averaged 4.6 yards per carry through seven NFL seasons at Miami.

THERE HE GOES AGAIN — Big Spring Steers Steve Hughes, 20, and John Birdwell, 56, chase Andrew's fleet-footed quarterback Booger Brooks during his 67-yard run from scrimmage. Longhorn defensive backs were pursuing Brooks much of the night while keeping the rest of the Andrew's running game bottle-necked.

Top seeds advance at Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — That pair of No. 1-seeded and onetime tennis sweethearts, Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert, led a front guard of favorites in the showdown second week of the U.S. Open championships Saturday, but Bjorn Borg almost didn't make it.

The 20-year-old wonder kid from Stockholm, down 2-5 and ace two points from elimination, had to call on all the power of his big looping forehand in fighting off scrappy Jaime Fillol of Chile 4-6, 6-2, 7-6.

"At one time I thought I was finished," the second-seeded Borg said of his close call in the second round. "I am lucky. Jaime suddenly became nervous."

Already a winner of three of the most prestigious titles in the pro game—the WCT, Wimbledon and U.S. Pro championships—the stoical Swede needs only to win the U.S. Open to complete his own version of a Grand Slam.

"I want to win here more than anywhere else," he said. Connors, seeking to regain his stature of 1974 when he won both Wimbledon and the American titles, had to fight off one set point himself and a habit of falling into laziness in subdueing Fred McNair of Chevy Chase Md., 7-5, 6-3. McNair is ranked 36th in the United States.

"Jimmy is tough," McNair said. "He comes at you with raw power."

Chrissie after receiving an opening-round bye, made her center court debute with a quick second-round victory over Greer Stevens of South Africa 6-1, 6-0.

Upsets spread liberally in schoolboy football

By The Associated Press

Baytown Lee and Wichita Falls Rider, expected to be among the powers in Class 4A schoolboy football in Texas this year, have taken knockout blows on the season's first weekend.

Lee and Rider, ranked sixth and ninth, respectively, were beaten handily in their first games Friday night. Lee lost 21-7 to Houston Spring Branch and Rider was crushed 39-0 by Abilene.

In other classes, upsets were spread liberally through highly-rated teams, including one top-ranked squad — 1975 Class B finalist Groom — which lost 13-12 to Claude.

Top-ranked Brazoswood blanked Angleton 35-0 to open its 4A season successfully. No. 2 Sherman kept pace with a 38-12 triumph over Hurst Bell, fourth-rated Houston Kashmere crushed Houston Sterling 57-6 Thursday night, No. 5 whitewashed Dallas Spruce 35-0, No. 7 Longview blasted Dallas Carter 27-0 and No. 10 Port Neches-Groves, the defending-champion, outscored Pasadena Dobie 28-14. No. 3 Odessa Permian played El Paso Coronado Saturday night and No. 8 Galveston Ball was idle.

Beaumont Hebert, No. 1 in Class 3A, mashed crosstown 4A opponent Forest Park 35-7, but No. 2 Brownwood and No. 8 Mount Pleasant had less luck against traditional 3A rivals. Brownwood lost 14-13 to Abilene Cooper and Mount Pleasant lost 11-3 to Marshall. Third-ranked Gainesville ripped Boswell 34-6, No. 5 and defending 3A titlist Ennis blanked Corsicana 14-0, No. 6 New Braunfels scaled San Antonio Alamo Heights 27-0, No. 7 Perryton murdered Amarillo River Road 42-0 and 10th-ranked Cuero whitewashed Port Lavaca Calhoun 20-0. No. 4 Brazosport had an open week and No. 9 Beeville meets Corpus Christi King tonight.

Respectively, Pittsburgh fell 6-2 to Paris North Lamar, La Grange was ousted 24-13 by Bellville, Pearsall lost 29-12 to Uvalde and Refugio was outscored 19-12 by Sinton. Dove hunters prepare Dove hunting season opened in the county Wednesday and Game Warden Curtis Thomason reminds hunters that the legal hunting times are from noon to sunset.

Thomason said the dove season is split and January's season will allow hunting from sunup to sunset, but the Sept. 1 through Oct. 14 season is for the afternoon only.

Thomason also cautioned hunters to check the plug in his shotgun. They are allowed two shells in the magazine and one in the barrel.

Trespassers are also cautioned as well as road-hunters. Citizens who have violators trespassing on their property should call Thomason at 263-4765 or call the sheriff's office.

Missing razorbacks found in California

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles said he received a phone call early Friday from the three football players who have been missing since July 1.

"They called about 2:30 in the morning," Broyles said. "They're working in Burlingame, Calif., which is near San Francisco. I just told them I hoped they'd get back in college somewhere as soon as possible."

Broyles and the university refused to provide any other information about the players, Mark Lewis, Phil Davis and Steve Imhoff. A university spokesman said "Broyles didn't want to press them about what they were doing or why."

The spokesman said it was believed that the three players also phoned their parents Friday morning.

Earlier, it was reported that Lewis had contacted his parents and said the three were all right, without giving other details.

THE 'OGRE OF BUCHAREST' — Ilie Nastase gestures as he points his racket to the spot where he insisted the ball landed during a disputed line call in his second round center court men's singles match against Hans-Jurgen Pohmann Friday. Nastase was in rare form as he demonstrated to spectators attending the U.S. Open Tennis Championships at New York's West Side Tennis Club why he has earned his nickname as the "Ogre of Bucharest." Despite the uproar, Nastase went on to win the match 7-6, 4-6, 7-6.

Thomas wins BS club tourney

Defending champion Jackie Thomas won his first match in the 1976 Big Spring Country Club club championship tournament Saturday, defeating Fred Wilkerson, 2-1.

Several former titlists fell by the wayside, among them Leonard Morgan and Daryle Hohertz.

Thomas' opponent today will be Mike Hall, who turned back R.P. Nicholson in the opening round, 1 up.

Wilkins fanned out Morgan, 1 up, to retain his hopes for a second club title. Bobby Menchaca sidelined Hohertz, 4-3.

Match play continues through today. The four survivors in the championship flight then turn to medal play Monday to determine a winner.

In the Senior Flight, Jasper Atkins is the leader with a first round 67. The winner in that division will be determined by 54 holes of medal play, as will the titlist in the Ladies Division.

Boggs gives Ranger's hopes to achieve respectability

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Texas Rangers can testify that the quickest route to respectability isn't always the best.

Despite much-publicized deals that brought them veteran pitchers Gaylord Perry and Bert Blyleven, the Rangers are a lot closer to the bottom of the American League West than the top.

But Tom Boggs, a homegrown product late of the Pacific Coast League, could be the beginning of a more pleasant trend.

"I tell you, he reminds me of a young Tom Seaver," rhapsodized Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi Friday night after Boggs spellbound the Kansas City Royals, 4-1, on seven hits.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Royals, whose A.L. West lead dwindled to six games over the Oakland A's, 5-0 victors over the California Angels.

"He had good stuff," admitted Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog. "I don't know if he was good or we were bad, the way we're hitting. No, he's a good one. You're going to hear about him."

Less than two months ago, the 20-year-old Boggs was toiling rather unspectacularly for the Sacramento Bees with a 6-11 mark and a 6.30 earned run average.

But he was pitching well, considering Sacramento's cozy 250-foot left field wall, and the Rangers, with injuries to Jim Umbarger and Perry, called him up July 18.

He promptly recorded complete games against the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians but victories still eluded him. He changed all that Friday night.

The young right-hander, 1-4, scattered seven hits and blanked the Royals until Al Cowens hit a run-scoring grounder in the ninth.

Cotton Bowl tickets go on sale Tuesday

DALLAS (AP) — Tickets to the 1977 Cotton Bowl Classic go on sale Tuesday.

For a third straight year the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association is assuring yard-line seats for the football fans who purchase tickets through the 39-day sale that extends through Friday, Oct. 15. The option on yard-line seats will expire on that date.

All tickets for the 1977 spectacle are priced at $10 per ticket and the limit per individual order will be 20 tickets. Individuals may order as many tickets as they choose, but separate checks or money orders should accompany each request.

A $1 mailing and handling charge should be added to the check or money order with each application.

Orders for tickets will be filled on a draw basis, with the drawing to be held within 10 days after the sale closes on October 15. Tickets will not be mailed until all of the 39-day mail orders have been filled. There will be no over-the-counter sale.

Rangers beat Royals

Hegan bats Tigers to rout

By The Associated Press

Mike Hegan is not one of your heavy hitters. In 10 major league seasons, he has a lifetime batting average of .244. He's known for his glove, not his bat.

So it was especially sweet the outfielder-first baseman of the Milwaukee Brewers when he hit for the cycle in Friday night's 11-2 rout of the Detroit Tigers.

Detroit Tigers.

"Somebody asked me if this was the best night I ever had," Hegan said. "I told him if I had just gotten two hits it would have been the best night I ever had.

Hegan belted a two-run double in the first inning, homered in the third, hit a basesloaded triple in the fourth and singled in the sixth.

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-1, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-3, the Texas Rangers trimmed the Kansas City Royals 4-1, the Oakland A's blanked the California Angels 3-0 and the Minnesota Twins routed the Chicago White Sox 11-1.

The chief victim of Hegan's outburst was rookie sensation Mark "the Bird" Fidrych, 15-7, who failed to complete a game at Tiger Stadium for the first time in the majors. Hegan collected his three extra-base hits off Fidrych, finally knocking him out in the fourth.

Yankees 3, Orioles 1

The Yankees took another step towards the AL East title by beating Baltimore behind the combined six-hit pitching of Dock Ellis and Dick Tidrow, who came on to get the final out. The Yanks are now 11½ games ahead of the secondplace Orioles.

Thurman Munson drove in two runs with a single in the third inning and a sacrifice fly in the fifth.

Red Sox 5, Indians 3

Luis Tiant, 17-10, posted his seventh consecutive victory for Boston, scattering 11 hits. He's coming off a month of August in which he went 6-0 and compiled a 1.44 earned run average.

The Red Sox put the game away early, scoring all their runs in the first three innings. Carlton Fisk drove in two runs and scored one.

Rangers 4, Royals 1

Texas rookie Tom Boggs recorded his first major league victory after four losses, scattering seven hits. It was the fifth consecutive loss for the Royals, whose lead over Oakland in the AL West is now down to six games.

A's 3, Angels 0

Mike Torrez pitched a two-hitter singles by Rusty Torres in the third and fifth innings and Claudell Washington drove in all three runs for Oakland. Torrez, 11-10, struck out seven and walked one while Washington singled across two runs in the second inning and added a sacrifice fly in the fourth.

Twins 11, White Sox 1

Roy Smalley collected three hits as Minnesota rapped out 15 safeties against three Chicago pitchers. Pete Redfern survived a shaky first inning to pick up the win, with relief help from Tom Burgmeier.

Three longhorn runners injured

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — All three first-string running backs for the Texas Longhorns are sidelined with injuries, it was reported Saturday.

Left half Johnny "Ham" Jones suffered a pulled groin muscle in Thursday night's scrimmage.

"I pulled it at least the second series last night," Jones said Friday. "I ran again and I could definitely feel it when I broke that (35-yard) run. I was struggling. I tried to run today but I couldn't.

"I made two-a-days and then this happens. I can see it already. If it's anything at all like last spring, there ain't no way I'd be ready by next Saturday."

Texas opens against Boston College in Boston next Saturday.

Jones missed most of spring training because of a groin pull. He missed most of his freshman year with a pulled hamstring but ran tough against Colorado in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl until he was knocked unconcious.

Fullback Earl Campbell suffered either cramps or the tearing of scar tissue from last spring's hamstring pull in Thursday's scrimmage.

"I'll live," Campbell said Friday. "I'll talk about anything but my injury. I know people want to know but people don't do the running and stepping out here."

Right half Jimmy Walker has been out of action a week with a bruised shoulder.

Gralyn Wyatt, who was switched from offensive to defensive halfback, has been moved back to offense.

OUT BACK in West Texas

By TIM LEIFESTE

SAN ANGELO — Slosh! Squish! Splash!

Those were familiar sounds to many hunters on opening day of mourning dove season as scattered rains criss-crossed much of West Texas.

The rains forced many hunters, itchy trigger fingers and all, to delay opening day hunt plans.

There were a good number of hunters, surprisingly enough, who did manage to get the ten-bird limit despite rain-dampened spirits. One particular group who did were hunting within what I term "The Golden Dove Harvest Triangle." I have found when there doesn't seem to be any doves anywhere else, one can usually find them there. As a result, it is probably one of the best dove hunting areas in the state. The triangle is formed by a line from Veribest, to Miles, to Plaint Rock and then back to Veribest and is northeast of San Angelo.

Another good spot on opening day, according to game warden reports, was just north of Big Lake near Stiles and St. Lawrence. Hunters were getting their limit with little effort.

Drier weather, grain harvests and a predicted cold front should improve hunting prospects in the next few days since there are plenty of birds to harvest.

White-winged dove hunters also faced rainy conditions on opening day. One hunter was overheard to comment before leaving for the valley that any birds he might find would probably have "webbed feet."

Applications for hunting on Parks and Wildlife Departmen management areas are now available from local P&WD offices. When completed and returned to Austin, the applications will qualify hunters for a public drawing for a permit to hunt on designated management areas this coming season.

Muzzle loaders should be particularly interested since this year, for the first time, a hunt specifically designed for them has been scheduled at the Chaparral Management Area.

Applications are available for deer, quail, dove and squirrel hunts.

Need to get one more plug for the hunter safety courses scheduled for Sept. 7-9 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at the San Angelo YMCA. If you haven't registered, please give the Y a call.

P&WD Commissioners have approved duck and goose seasons for the coming year.

A split duck season for the eastern two-thirds of the state (east of U.S. Hwy. 81) will run from Nov. 13 to 28 and Dec. 11 to Jan. 23, a total of 60 days, maximum allowed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

In the western portion of Texas, duck season is set for Nov. 2-Jan. 23. Goose season in the west is the same Nov. 2-Jan. 23 period.

Goose season in the east is more complicated, though. It will run from Oct. 30 to Jan. 23, except during the first 14 days (Oct. 20-Nov. 13) no dark geese (classified as Canadas and white-fronted geese) may be taken.

A migratory bird hunting guide will be available soon from your local P&WD office with an explanation of the liberalized bag limits for ducks and the more complicated goose bag limits. A copy is mandatory if you're a novice duck or goose hunter.

Forsan

School construction is still underway

By STEVE COWLEY

The first week at Forsan High School can be summed up in two words — "mass confusion."

Due to wet month of July, construction and rebuilding work on the school was delayed and the larger part of the work on the building is still under way.

Things are picking up again, however, and remodeling should be completed by later January. Adjusting to the construction, the makeshift classrooms and new scheduling caused the first week to creep by. Even so, the normal first week of school activity carried forward unperturbed.

The Forsan football team, its spirits bouyed after it learned it had been picked to win District 3-B, shifted into gear with little difficulty, easily dispatching both Klondike and Mertzon in scrimmages. The Buffaloes' first game with Bronte Friday night. The first home game will be Sept. 10 against Borden County.

Cheerleaders and pep squad members urge all fans to attend both games, cheerleaders this year are Beverly Strickland, head, Nan Wheeless, Carie Poynor, Jill Mitchell and Valerie Adams. The treasurer of the pep squad is Valarie Stevens.

The Buffalo marching band, under the direction of Mike Nell and drum major Ernie Morgan, began practicing for half-time performances. The twirlers this year are head majorette Lisa Day and Majorettes Kimbra Neel and Dionne Fletcher. Band officers were elected Monday. They include Beverly Strickland, president; Steve Cowley, vice president; and Deanna Davis, secretary. The assistant drum major is Ricky Cavis.

Class leaders were also elected this week. The senior class leaders are Carrin Crooks, president; Gary Tidwell, vice president; Beverly Strickland, secretary; Dianna Davis, treasurer; and representatives Nikita McMurray and Billy Osburn.

Sophomore class officers are Keven Low, president; Belinda Bradley, vice president; Beth Boeker, treasurer, and representatives Carie Poynor and Angel Miranda.

Freshman class leaders are Julie Poynor, president; Sam Ward, vice president; Valarie Adams, secretary; Michelle Loles, treasurer; and representatives Valerie and Vance Stevens.

National Honor Society officers are Ralph Miranda, president; Marcia Nichols, vice president; and Ron Boberson, secretary.

Announcements of general interest. All seniors and junior are urged to handle concession stand matters promptly in order to avoid problems. If parents are in doubt about whether to work or not, contact either Emily Elrod or Gloria Dodd.

Practice begins

By DEE DEE ADKINS

"..so as I call your name, come and get your 'riciculous'." That was Mr. George Walker, band director. Band members come in all shapes and sizes. So do uniforms. Unfortunately, they do not correspond, so the band who began practicing a week before school started, may be working down to the last moment on music, marching, and uniforms.

A good percentage of the band was present for early rehearsals. Earlier reseatings were possible. Also, officers elected were Tim Glynn, president; Steve Sargent, vice president; Debbie Webb, secretary-treasurer; DeeDee Atkins, reporter; and Mike Hudson, parliamentarian.

As school got under way, the first activity was to elect officers for each class.

Those named included:

Seniors — Ricky Dill, president; Ricky Lewis, vice president; Jill Hughes, secretary; David Anderson, treasurer; Gary Barnes, Kenny McAlister and Jill Hughes, members of the Student Council.

Sing along with Tony Bennett

'I left my heart in--Reno'

RENO, Nev. (AP) — And now sing along with Tony Bennett: "I left my heart in — Reno."

Reno?

Though Tony Bennett's trademark song is " I Left My Heart In San Francisco," he says his favorite city is actually Reno.

The erstwhile New Yorker, one of the most popular male vocalists around these days, says he'd rather play Harrah's in Reno than any other club.

It's not Carnegie Hall, nor the London Palladium — and he has played both — but Reno's people make it the best for him.

"Reno attracts the biggest stars, even though it's small, because of the way they are treated here," said the singer.

He was 50 on Aug. 3. A lot of other singers don't make that age with all their hair and the same strong voice, but a lot of other singers aren't Tony Bennett.

He makes plenty of money, and isn't a bad-boy of entertainment — just a down-to-earth guy who likes to sing his kind of music and make people dream.

The style which was heard in 580 songs on 78 Columbia albums still comes through as mellow as ever.

During one evening show in Reno after his finale, he agreed to sing one more to quell a loud round of applause.

He didn't walk back to the piano to pick up his microphone, he just stayed in front and sang an unassisted version of "On The Sunny Side Of The Street."

His voice carried easily and clearly to the rear. The only sound was Tony Bennett and the sighs from approving fans.

Why didn't he use a mike?

"At a small club with good acoustics, you can sing a few without a mike, and it's fun once in a while. I have a lot of respect for the old timers who did everything without the mikes and good sound gear," he said. "Besides that, I like to make sure I'm not losing my touch."

Bennett said he plans to continue to sing and continue testing himself — "You've got to keep stretching all the time."

He doesn't sing under the Columbia label anymore, he broke off and formed his own record company.

"Now I can sing what I want to sing, not what someone tells me to sing," he said. "My idea is to give the public what they want.

"I try to sing for everyone, for a general audience, and I try to do that by singing by instinct and singing good music — good music lasts forever."

Bennett has a house in Beverly Hills, Calif. and maintains an apartment in New York City.

During World War II he fought with the infantry in France. He married, became the father of four children and developed his style by watching some of the jazz greats on 52nd street in New York. He hit it big in 1951 with "Because Of You."

Local building permits spiral

Building permits issued in the city totaled 28, 12 over the July period.

Construction costs of the proposed projects for August, $654,450, also far surpassed the $36,999 total for July, and the $288,070 total for August 1975. This boosted the total for the year to $1,105,463, which is $1,327,026 over last year's figure at this time.

Prominent among construction projects ballooning the total is the proposed Big Spring Inn, to be built by Rip Griffin, owner of the Rip Griffin Truck Stop on IS 20 and Highway 87. Construction costs, tallied by Griffin come to $450,000, by far the largest single permit issued.

Also accounting for the increase is one of five proposed commercial additions, the Burger Chef Drive-in to be built by Bill Sears at 2401 Gregg. Construction costs total $56,000.

Other large construction includes two new residential projects, one totaling $50,000, the other $37,000. Also listed are permits for residential additions and carports, three each; residential storage areas, commercial signs and commercial moves, two each; residential remodeling, a residential enclosure, a residential move, a commercial storage area and a commerical warehouse, one each.

TEXAS HONORED — The state of Texas was honored August 24-25 at Mt. Rushmore National Memorial in South Dakota's Black Hills as part of the National Park Service's Bicentennial commemoration. Mark White, Texas Secretary of State, received the state's flag from Rushmore Supt. Harvey Wickware in special ceremonies Aug. 25. The Texas flag will fly in an Avenue of Flags established at the Memorial for the "Days of Honor" celebration, which recognizes each state and territory in the union.

He will finish dismantling job if long-overdue payment made

Jerry Stephens, Big Spring contractor doing business as Bost Construction Co., said a story appearing in Friday's edition of the Herald, about a demolition job he has undertaken on the old Travis Junior High School building in Snyder did not tell the whole story.

Stephens said, contrary to stories origination in Snyder, that the dismantling job was 95 percent finished.

He added he would finish the job only if a long-overdue payment of $12,500 for the undertaking was forwarded to him.

The school board deeded the property to Scurry County last year and the county indicated it planned to build a new jail on the site.

Stephens said that interference by county commissioners caused him to pull his men off the job. Later, Snyder school officials revealed they planned to confer with their attorneys on possible steps to complete the demolition.

Stephens said it has been indicated to him that payment for his services will shortly be made in full, after which he will order his crews back to work.

Experts predict devaluation of peso will spark sales

Echeverria to open Mexfair

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Luis Echeverria of Mexico will open his nation's largest foreign trade exposition here Tuesday and financial experts predict the recent devaluation of the peso will spark record sales.

More than 6,000 importers, wholesalers, retailers and manufacturers are registered to attend the exposition—Mexfair 76—at San Antonio's 210,000-square-foot convention center.

The number of exhibitors has been limited to 800. Mexican steel products will be featured this year with that industry's exhibits consuming 30,000 square feet of space.

The fair is Mexico's major effort to expand sales of its products to the United States and reduce its balance of trade deficit with this nation. Sales at the fair have increased from $17 million in 1973 to $80 million last year.

Local financial officials predict sales also will be spurred by the devaluation of the peso, Mexico's basic unit of currency.

The Mexican government announced last week it would allow the peso to float. For 22 years, the peso had been exchanged at a rate of 12.5 for each U.S. dollar.

Late last week, the Banco de Mexico was reported exchanging pesos at the rate of about 20 per dollar, an effective devaluation of about 60 per cent.

Gary Payne, international finance expert for the greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, said the devaluation means the U.S. dollar will buy more Mexican goods than before. He is among those predicting record sales at Mexfair 76.

Echeverria, who concludes a six-year term as president of Mexico later this year, is scheduled to arrive at Kelly Air Force Base here at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

More than 150 members of the Mexican press will be in San Antonio to report on Echeverria's visit, and protions of the trip will be televised live to Mexico. Tight security is planned by U.S. Secret Service agents.

Echeverria will be met at Kelly AFB by Gov. Dolph Briscoe of Texas, Mayor Lila Cockrell, the local Mexican consul-general and other officials.

After his arrival, the Mexican president will attend a reception before traveling to the downtown Hilton Palacio Del Rio hotel and a luncheon.

He will inaugurate Mexfair 76 at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and tour the exhibits during the afternoon. The fair runs through next Sunday.

After attending an evening reception, Echeverria will host an invitation-only state dinner Tuesday night at the St. Anthony Hotel.

On Wednesday, he will be honored at a breakfast and unveil a painting which he is giving to the City of San Antonio.

The Mexican president met with a group of San Antonio businessmen and discussed the possibility of a trade exhibit. The idea was later pursued with officials of the Mexican Institute for Foreign Trade (IMCE), which now co-sponsors the fair with the city.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meditating and reflecting upon what is most vital to you is wise today, but use good judgment as well as intuition. Show that you are an alert and open minded person.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those persons who can comprehend others and what their needs and wants are. Slant education along service lines, such as personnel, law, philanthropic work and the like. Give an opportunity to have many friends around for best results, but screen them well.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Many minor annoyances are possible today in trying to gain a special objective, but don't be dismayed. Tomorrow you can make greater progress than you thought was possible.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have to doublecheck any information given you today since others are confused and you could easily get into trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Anything of a public nature needs careful handling today or you could lose out where it counts the most. Be alert at all times.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A new venture needs more study before going ahead with it. Be sure to handle a credit matter intelligently. Be logical.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Delve into all that work ahead of you, even though you may not be in the right mood. Take health treatments and build up your energies.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are anxious to enjoy yourself but take care you don't spend too much or you will regret it later. Sidestep a troublemaker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Instead of irritating certain family members, concentrate on how to have more harmony at home. Show that you have common sense.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use extreme care in motion. Any reports or statements must be made out correctly today so be sure to be precise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure you make collections and pay bills promptly right now. Don't take any risks. Consult a business expert for advice you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are not content because you feel you have not accomplished much, but if you think straight you find this is not the case.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show appreciation for the goodwill of others. Take no risks where money is concerned today. Take needed health treatments.

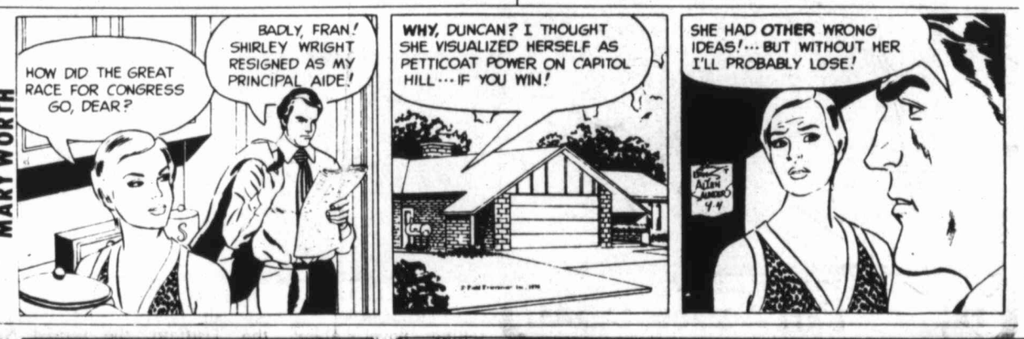

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will have to learn to understand others, and not act too hastily or thoughtlessly if success is to be attained. Give the finest moral teaching you can provide. Spiritual and religious training is most important in the formative years.

'Wild Beasts' cannot keep people away from exhibit

FORT WORTH — The major exhibition, "The 'Wild Beasts': Fauvism and Its Affinities", opens Saturday, at the Kinbell Art Museum in Fort Worth, continuing through Oct. 31.

The show focuses on the group of artists, led by Henri Matisse, who revolutionized the art of painting in their brillantly colored landscapes, portraits and still lifes in the years 1905-7.

This is the first retrospective of the Fauve artists in almost 25 years in this country and the first viewing in the Southwest. Admission is free and open to the public.

Included are more than 100 paintings and a few related drawings and sculptures borrowed from national and international collections.

The first art movement of the twentieth century, Fauvism burst upon a surprised Parisian public at the Autumn Salon of 1905, when the artists were called "les fauves" or "wild beasts".

It was a public not yet adjusted to earlier avant-garde art — the paintings of the Impressionist and Post-Impressionist traditions that greatly influenced the development of Fauvism.

But the short-lived movement irrevocably changed the course of art leading to modern acceptance of arbitrary color, distortion of forms and the spontaneous application of paint to the canvas.

THUMBING WITH 'EARS' — Debra J. Baker, 19, a freshman at Howard College, tries thumbing a ride by CB radio, which are called "ears" in CB slang. Hitchhikers have found "ears" are one good way to get motorists to stop, but Debra has no trouble getting their attention anyway.

Truth scares author

NEW YORK (AP) — A thriller writer's lot is not an easy one.

Trying to come up with a sensational fictional caper that hasn't already been pulled off in real life is tough.

Says John Godey, whose specialty is writing thrillers, "With one wild think after another happening these days, I'm honestly convinced that there's nothing people won't do now, and it's scary. Some guy usually pulls off something sensational before a fiction writer thinks of it."

BUT GODEY manages. not too long ago he came up with "The Taking of Pelham One Two Three," a best-selling novel about the hijacking of a New York City subway train. Now, in "The Talisman," his new novel, a band of radicals steals the remains of the Unknown Soldier of World War II and holds them for ransom.

Godey, a relaxed "just turned 64 and even though I may not look it I feel it," says he got the idea for "Pelham" while trying to think up a story set in New York City. "I was born in New York, I know it, and even though my wife and I now life in West New York, N.J., I'm really a New Yorker.

"Well," he adds with a smile, "I was trying to come up with something sensational, when this idea about hijacking a subway just came to me out of the air. A lot of these ideas are just floating around in the air, you know, and guys like myself just reach up, grab them, and write them.

With "Pelham," which Godey says sold about 50,000 copies in hard covers and had a printing of about 1.5 million in paperback, behind him, Godey wanted to come up with something "equally sensational." The result was "the Talisman." "I wasn't sure of the idea at first," he says, "because I wasn't too sure it would work. It was a judgment I had to make, and I made it. After all, if you're an experienced writer of thrillers, you have to know how to make things work."

'Jaws' director lets Truffaut 'sit down'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The nice thing about acting in a movie is that you get to sit down," said Francois Truffaut, the famed New Wave director now playing a major role in an American science-fiction epic.

"When you are directing your own picture, you are on your feet all day. What a pleasure to be able to relax and watch a picture being made."

Truffaut is playing a French scientist in Columbia Pictures' "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," the first movie since "Jaws" for director Steven Spielberg, who also wrote the script.

"He asked me to appear in the film last March," the Frenchman recalled. "I was touched. He said he had written the part especially for me and had included certain things he had noticed about me in my films. Like wearing an old-fashioned watch and never having a lighter for my cigarette.

"Since I play only myself and do not have to be an actor, I agreed."

Truffaut didn't set out to be an actor. A film fanatic from his World War II childhood, he became a critic on the influential Cahiers du Cinema of Paris, joined his fellow critics (Godard, Malle, Resnais, etc.) in applying their principles to actuality. Truffaut was one of the New Wave leaders of the late 1950s with such films as "The 400 Blows" and "Jules and Jim."

He acted in the autobiographical "The 400 Blows" and again in the Oscar-winning "Day by Night" — "but that was really almost a documentary." He played the harried director of a French movie.

"I never expected to act for another director and certainly not in an English-language film," he said. "But Steve wrote the script so that all my dialogue is in French. A very good actor named Bob Balaban always translated everything I say."

Truffaut said he had been impressed by Spielberg's "Duel," shown on television in this country but released in theaters in France. He hadn't seen Spielberg's first feature, "Sugarland Express" nor "Jaws" — and for a special reason.

"I am a hydrophobe," he announced. "I am absolutely terrified of the water. Even when I take a bath, I put very little water in the tub. I have never learned to swim.

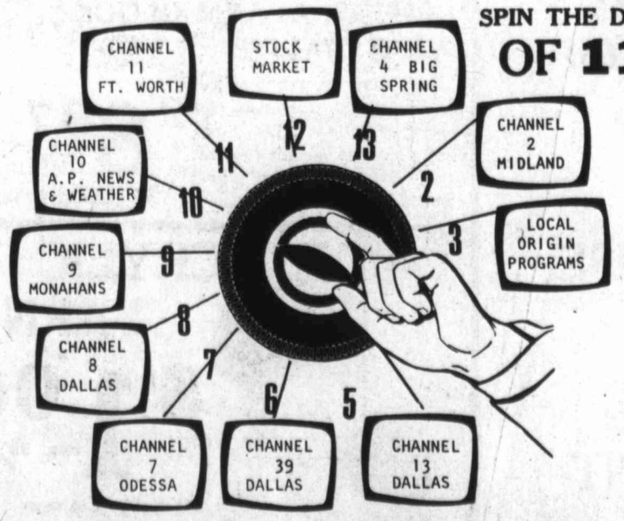

"As you know, I am devoted to Alfred Hitchcock (The booklength interview 'Hitchcock-Truffaut' is a classic). The climax of his 'Foreign Correspondet' shows a plane falling into the ocean and gradually filling up with water. It is a tribute to Hitchcock that I have been able to sit through the picture 12 times.

"So you can see why I cannot watch 'Jaws.' The water itself is bad enough. But water plus a shark? Impossible!"

Bedtime made bearable

Reading to children awakens word magic

By JAN STEPHENSON
CHILDREN'S LIBRARIAN

Children enjoy having someone read aloud to them.

Whether a parent reads to a child or the entire family gathers for reading, it is a time to be shared and a time of closeness.

For little children, bedtime can be made bearable by a story shared. Reading aloud aquaints a child with the sound of language and the pleasure that books can bring. Reading aloud also awakens a child to the magic that exists in written words.

The child beginning to read benefits from having books read aloud. The ability to read does not come easily. So many children become disappointed when they cannot read immediately. By reading to a child, the desire to read is kept alive and is a reminder of the delights which await.

Often children read in a halting manner which can make the best story seem dull. If a simple book that the child would be able to read by himself is read aloud, it offers an example of a smooth reading style and allows the child time to absorb the story. At another time, a more difficult book can be read aloud to keep the child interested in books.

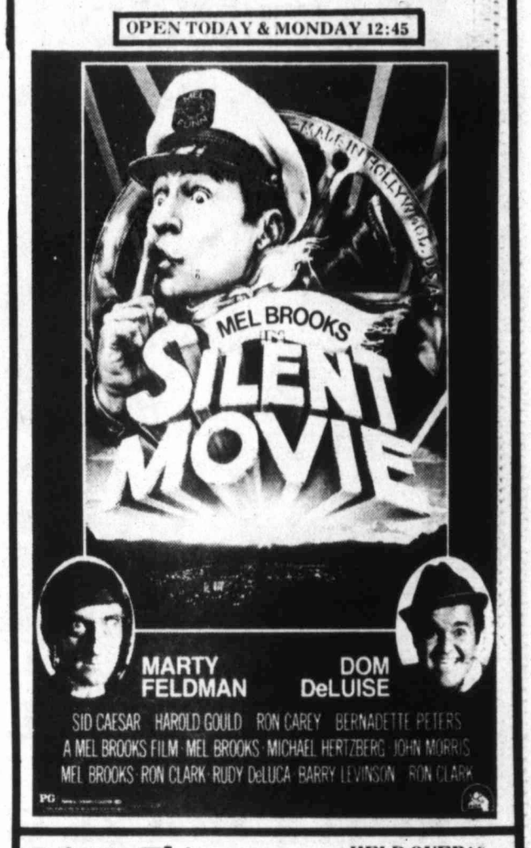

Even middle graders enjoy read-aloud time. There can be considerable difference in what children read and what they can appreciate and enjoy.

Reading aloud can be used as book bait for reluctant readers the same as it is with beginning readers. Also, a child who has heard a book read may feel more capable of tackling it by himself.

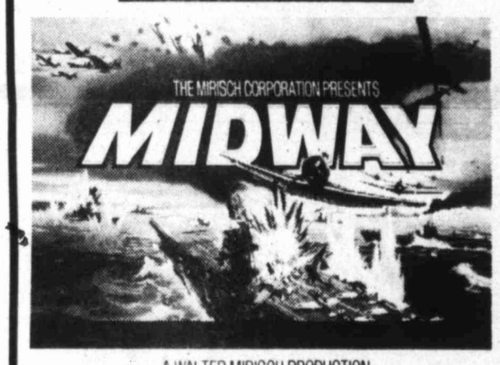

Adults can greatly influence children's reading by taking the time to read aloud to them. New subjects and different types of literature can be introduced. An adult can also interest a child in a book by reading a few chapters aloud and then letting the child finish the book.

A few good read aloud titles are "Story of Ping" — Flack, "Happy Lion" — Fatio, "Caps for Sale" — Slobodkina, "Curious George" — Rey, "Cat in the Hat" — Dr. Seuss, "The Wind in the Willow" — Grahame, "The Borrowers" — Norton, and many many more. For other titles, ask at the Howard County Library.

Scalpers' tickets expensive

60 rolls of film in bank

By CAROL HART

A trip to the Olympics stretched into a three-month stay in the east for George von Hassell III, a Big Spring resident and a student at Howard College.

Von Hassell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George von Hassell, also of Big Spring, had planned the vacation east for about two years. The family lived in Manhattan approximately seven years, and it was with a friend from the New York area that von Hassell made the trip to Montreal.

Von Hassell and his family have lived in Big Spring since 1973. Since coming here, he has corresponded by letters and talked by phone with a friend from the Bronx, Vincent Louie, about the Montreal excursion. Von Hassell left Big Spring May 31 and headed for Long Island. He planned to make Long Island his headquarters during the vacation, as he as several relatives in the area.

After traveling four days, von Hassell arrived in Orient, Long Island, and the home of his aunt, Rita Martinsen. He arrived in time to see his cousin, Jimmy Martinsen, married. While in Long Island, he saw his grandmother, Claire von Hassell, who manages a motel there. He also made frequent trips to New York City, and several visits to Louie's home. They had not seen each other for four or five years, von Hassell estimated.

The two left for Montreal around July 20, said von Hassell. They had obtained tickets through a catalogue distributed by Montgomery Ward, featuring tickets for various events. Tickets could also be obtained at various hotels and through people who found that, at the last minute, they could not attend a certain event.

Von Hassell said that he and Louie avoided scalpers at Montreal, who asked ridiculous prices for tickets. He cited as an example people paying $50 for four-dollar tickets.

The events that von Hassell and Louie viewed were volleyball, track, soccer, canoeing, handball, field hockey, water polo, boxing and part of the pentathalon. Von Hassell listed handball as his favorite event. Both von Hassell and Louie are photographers, and von Hassell estimated taking 60 rolls of black and white film while on the vacation. He also made several color shots.

Von Hassell said that he and Louie picked up quite a bit of French while in Montreal. Many of the people they encountered in the city spoke French, but would quickly change to English when they realized they were talking to Americans.

Lodging in the city didn't pose a problem for von Hassell and Louie. Right after crossing the Canadian border, they stopped at a tourist bureau and reserved rooms in Montreal with no trouble.

Getting around in Montreal did raise several problems, said von Hassell. He and Louie arrived there at what appeared to be rush hour, and traffic congestion was made worse by the number of tourists in the city. Von Hassell handled the driving, while Louie handled the navigating. The two found themselves heading down a one-way street with cars headed for them at one point in Montreal.

While in Montreal, the two often took the Metro, the Canadian subway, to the Olympic grounds.

The Olympics featured "wall to wall people," said von Hassell. "There were people all over the place." The two also saw how tight the security was at the Olympics, as evidenced by the number of police at the site. "We never saw any real trouble," said von Hassell. He added that the Canadian army was also on the site, toting rifles at various posts on the grounds. He said they often saw army personnel board buses with athletes. Von Hassell added that helicopters flew around the site almost continuously.

GEORGE VON HASSELL III

Hosts and hostesses were also posted at many sites on the grounds, guiding people to the various events. The guides could speak both French and English.

Von Hassell said that he and Louie watched several events on television when not at the Olympic site. They watched both ABC and the Canadian networks.

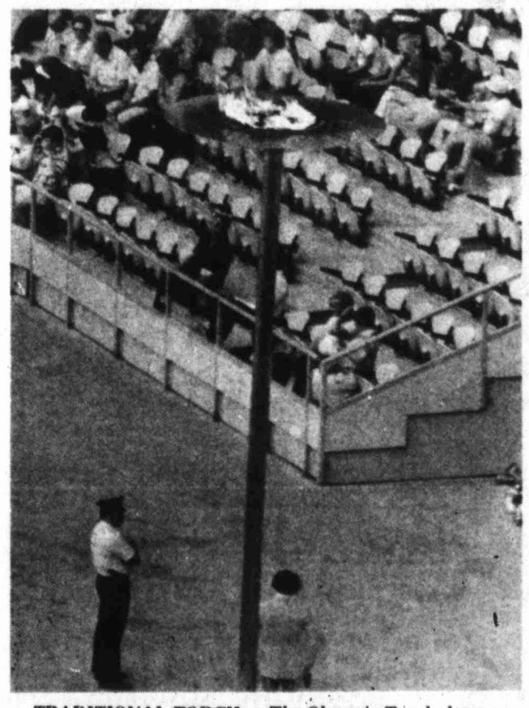

Von Hassell returned to Long Island before returning to Big Spring. He was in the Bronx to see another friend, Doug Hunton, get married when a hurricane hit Long Island. He had planned to return to Long Island after the wedding, but received a call from several of his relatives explaining they were heading inland. He got several photos of the beaches after the hurricane hit.

Although most of the trip went smoothly, von Hassell did get some items stolen from his car. He left the vehicle at the home of a friend in New York, and headed upstate for a day. When he returned, he noticed that the lock on his car had been damaged. He quickly checked to see what was missing, and found that his CB radio, Minolta camera, several camera lenses and 23 dollars of film had been stolen.

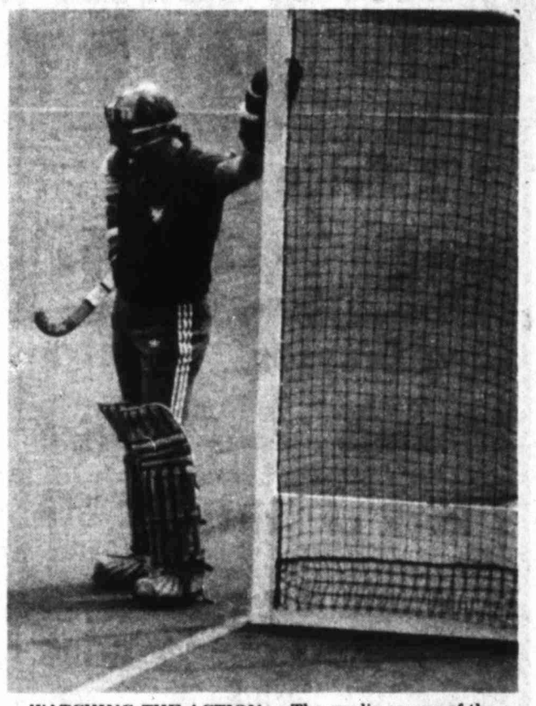

The theft happened shortly before his return to Big Spring. He included Columbia, North Carolina on his trip home, stopping there to visit his newly-married cousin, Jimmy Martinsen and wife Ginger. Martinsen was stationed in the army there.

Von Hassell arrived in Big Spring late on August 15 with 60 rolls of film to be developed, a gas tank registering empty and 56 cents in his pocket.

He plans to display several of the photographs made during his trip at the Howard County Library and the Howard College Library, where he returned as a student for the fall semester recently. Von Hassell is the chief photographer for el nido, campus newspaper, and the Hawk, yearbook.

TRADITIONAL TORCH — The Olympic Torch, long a traditional symbol at the games, burned brightly during most of the Montreal competition. The flame was at one time put out by rains in the city, but was quickly ignited again.

WATCHING THE ACTION — The goalie on one of the Olympic soccer teams appears to be relaxing as he watches action downfield during the games.

EXHIBIT AT EXPO — The Olympic site at Montreal included exhibit buildings from different countries, and an amusement park for those attending the games.

Americans a mobile society semi-annually

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The semiannual migration of Americans from one city to another is in full swing as families try to get settled in new homes before the start of the school year.

The Interstate Commerce Commission says there were more than 1.2 million household moves last year. There are no specifics on how much the relocations cost, but a commission spokesman estimated the total at a little over $1 billion or about $830 for each move.

Ray Atherton, chief of the ICC's Household Goods Branch, said moving is a highly seasonal business, with spring and fall booms timed to the closing and opening of school.

Atherton said the commission receives about 1,000 complaints a month on moving troubles. The most common problem is loss and damage. He said the number of complaints has remained steady over recent years, although the number of shipments has increased.

For the consumer, moving can be an expensive proposition, particularly over long distances.

Interstate movers, licensed by the ICC, base charges on weight and distance. There is usually a given rate per 100 pounds which increases with distance. While local truckers often charge by the hour, time is not a cost factor in most long-distance moves.

A cross-country move from New York to Los Angeles for a three-bedroom house with about 7,500 pounds of furniture will probably cost at least $2,500 to $3,000, Atherton said.

A major decision for most people is whether to pack their household goods themselves or let the movers do it. "You can save considerable money by doing it yourself," said Atherton, adding that having the movers pack can add $500 or more to the cost of an average move.

Cost is not the only thing to take into account, however. Many corporations which pay moving expenses include packing costs. In addition, it often is easier to collect for damaged goods if the mover has done the packing.

If you do your own packing, Atherton explained, it is up to you to prove negligence by the company if something is damaged. If the movers pack, the burden of proof is on the company.

Packing your own possessions takes time. Atherton said that anyone who wants to do his own packing had better set aside every evening for a week or so. Some people, however, actually do a better job of packing than professional movers. "I've moved three times and I always do my own packing," said Atherton. "I've never had a teacup broken."

Interstate movers have a basic liability of 60 cents per pound. That means that you'll get only 60 cents if a one-pound vase is broken — even if the vase is expensive crystal. You can purchase additional coverage, paying $5 for every extra $1,000 worth of liability protection.

Note: this coverage is not insurance; you don't automatically collect if something is lost or damaged. Paying extra simply increases the amount by which the mover is liable if he accepts responsibility for damage. The worth of an item is based on the day the mover took possession — not the day you purchased the product.

There are some things that you should never trust to the movers, Atherton said, citing jewelry, coin or stamp collections and personal papers. As a rule of thumb, he suggested hanging on to "anything that is priceless or irreplaceable."

No matter how you decide to move, you'd better be prepared to spend time in the process. Most companies on long-distance moves specify a spread of dates during which they will pick up and deliver. You or someone in your family will have to be on hand to wait for the movers.

What about tipping? According to Atherton, it is illegal to tip a mover on an interstate trip. Each mover must file rates and charges with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The mover cannot receive more or less than the fee on file.

In accordance with ICC regulations, some 2,500 household moving companies filed reports on their performance in 1975 — including information on everything from the number of shipments handled to the percentage of delayed deliveries.

The ICC requires each moving company that operates on an interstate basis to give a copy of its performance report to prospective customers, giving consumers a chance to compare several firms. Copies of all the performance reports are available for inspection at ICC headquarters in Washington and at regional offices in Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Fort Worth, Tex.

For more information about household moving, contact an ICC regional office or the Household Goods Branch of the commission in Washington, D.C. The telephone number is 202-275-7852. There also is a toll-free hotline for people outside Washington. The number is 800-494-9312.

Carter's kids may have tried marijuana

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Rosalynn Carter says her three sons have told her they have tried marijuana, but she says their behavior does not worry her because they are honest about it.

"The only time I worry about my children doing something like smoking marijuana, is if I thought they were slipping around and doing it and not letting me know about it," the wife of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter said in an interview in Plains.

"That's the kind of relationship I hope I never have with my children, and I don't feel I've ever had that. They've smoked marijuana — they told me they did."

Mrs. Carter's assistant press secretary said the candidate's wife "feels marijuana should be decriminalized, but not legalized."

Carter said in a February 1976 questionnaire printed in the New Hampshire Times, "I favor a modified form of marijuana decriminalization along the lines of the Oregon law which has civil penalties for small amounts of possession. I feel that this legislation should be left up to the individual states themselves."

The three Carter sons are Jack, 29; Chip, 26; and Jeff, 24. All are married. The Carters' daughter, Amy, is 8.

Mrs. Carter said she hopes that "I have as close a relationship with Amy as I have with the boys."

In 1974, Betty Ford, wife of the President who is Carter's chief opponent in the November election, also said her children probably had tried marijuana.

"Children try everything, don't they? But they definitely don't like it and it isn't used, I believe," Mrs. Ford said.

Mrs. Carter plans to be at her husband's side Monday when he officially kicks off his campaign, but after that she'll be on her own, traveling alone in his behalf.

"Of course I miss him, and it would be better if I could be with him," she said Wednesday. "But I feel there's so much I can do if I have my own schedule. When I'm with Jimmy, I just tag along."

Mrs. Carter, also a native of Plains, married Carter when she was 19 and he was a 22-year-old Naval Academy graduate.

Like her husband, the 49-year-old Mrs. Carter plans 14-to 16-hour days during the campaign.

The Carters' relationship has always been a true partnership, she said. "We've always done everything together. We've always discussed issues. We just developed a mutual respect for each other."

A quiet, shy woman, she says she has overcome her hesitancy about campaigning and now "I don't have any problems about meeting people. I really enjoy it. When I first started campaigning, when Jimmy ran for governor, it was really hard for me. Almost every day I would think I just couldn't do it."

But she finally learned, she said, that "I did not have to know everything and I don't have to be perfect. I don't have to look exactly right all the time."

Women's potential untapped says Catalyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Women are an essentially untapped source of highly qualified corporate directors and executives, says the president of a nonprofit national organization whose goal is getting more women into these traditionally male business roles.

Male employers have "deeply ingrained conditioning" that prevents many of them from seeing women outside their traditional role in the home or, at best, the secretarial pool, believes Felice N. Schwartz, president of Catalyst.

"The qualities they've been looking for in men they find unacceptable in women," she said in an interview, adding that most men feel it is "unladylike" to be aggressive.

Catalyst, founded in 1962 by Ms. Schwartz and five college presidents, is devoted to inspiring women to prepare for traditionally male jobs and to re-educating male employers.

"Unless the employer views the woman as a profitable resource, he's not going to move very fast," said Ms. Schwartz.

One of Catalyst's newest programs is "The Interview of Harriet Coombs," aimed at teaching men how to interview women for jobs. "The Interview" consists of an audio-cassette and six printed manuals that combine to make a two-and-a-half hour course in equitable interviewing methods.

Because — according to Ms. Schwartz — "some of the most destructive things that are done are done unconsciously," "The Interview" deals in depth with common misconceptions about female employes, particularly those with young children.

It points out, for example, that women with young children have in most cases, attendance records that are just as good as those of men or women without children. Nor are they unwilling to travel or relocate. In many cases, Ms. Schwartz has found, couples give preference to the wife's job offers because her choices are a good deal more limited than the husband's.

The New York based organization also provides a list of immediately available management-level and professional women, which is circulated monthly to interested employers. So far, The National Roster is a small self-selected group but Ms. Schwartz hopes it will eventually contain thousands of names.

Catalyst is also preparing an inventory of women suitable for positions on corporate boards of directors. It will include every female vice president in the country, women in high-level government jobs and women who chair such departments as economics and business administration in colleges all over America.

But Catalyst does not ignore its roots in academia. There are 13 booklets, sponsored by 13 different corporations, available to the 4.2 million women in 2,000 American colleges.

The first in the series is a workbook designed to broaden a college woman's horizons. The others are intended to make them consider jobs in specific management, technical and professional fields.

The organization has also received a two-year grant from the Fund for the Improvement of Post Secondary Education to train teams of people from five colleges to deal more effectively with young women's problems and career choices.

For the woman returning to work after several years out of the job market, Catalyst has a referral service to 157 local resource centers. These independent centers offer help ranging from placement to counseling.

A little more than a third of Catalyst's funding comes from private foundations; Ms. Schwartz hopes to make their share smaller and thus far is succeeding. Another third comes from a variety of corporations, with 79 companies now contributing, as compared with four in 1972. The rest of the money comes from the sale of Catalyst's publications.

Although Ms. Schwartz has extensive plans for the future — including preparing a manual of tips on how to act during an interview and a program reaching out to women in high school — she hopes Catalyst will eventually become obsolete.

"Any self-respecting social reformer's dream is to put oneself out of business," she said. "But it won't happen overnight. It will probably take a couple of generations."

Poultry sausage

The Agriculture Department, at the request of the poultry industry, is trying to work out standards for cooked sausage — hot dogs, bologna and knockwurst — made out of chicken, turkey or other poultry.

The USDA's proposal would set a maximum amount of fat in the finished product — 25 per cent — and a minimum amount of protein — 12 per cent. It would require manufacturers who use giblets to include this information on the label. A listing of the binders used, such as dried skim milk, soy protein concentrate and vegetable starch, also would be required on the label.

Oct. 25 is the deadline for comments. Write to Hearing Clerk, Agriculture Department, Washington, D.C., 20250.

Flower Show School to be five-part series

The Southern Unit of District I, Council of Nationally Accredited Flower Show Judges, will sponsor Flower Show School 4, the 4th in a series of five, to be held September 14, 15, and 16 at Lancaster Garden Center-Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Indiana, in Midland, Texas. Mrs. L. B. Edwards of Big Spring, Texas is chairman.

Mrs. Garland Barcus, 1420 Preston, Austin, Texas is a nationally known flower show judge and instructor in landscape design, horticulture, flower show practice and conservation. She is a graduate of the University of Texas — Austin, and is a life member of the Violet Crown Garden Club, Austin.

She also is a member of the Central Texas Council of Flower Show judges and is a former national awards chairman for Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. Mrs. Barcus has visited famous gardens around the world: in Calcutta, Lahore, Jerusalem, England, Ireland, Mexico, and the United States. Mrs. Barcus will instruct Horticulture and Flower Show Practice at 9:00 a.m. on September 14, registration begins at 8:30 a.m.

On September 15, at 9:00 a.m., with registration at 8:30 a.m., Mrs. Irene Haddox Waters will instruct in Flower Arrangement. Mrs. Waters of Dallas, Texas, is a National Flower Show judge with Life Certificate and Masters Certificate, is an instructor of National Flower Show Schools and a member of the Council of Nationally Accredited Flower Show Judges, the Home and Garden Department of the Dallas Women's Forum, the Callas Flower Arrangers and Ikebana International. Mrs. Waters teaches Advanced Refresher courses and Symposiums in addition to the five regular courses for Flower Show Judges, and has been the featured speaker at various state and regional garden club conventions. She has taught National Symposium in seventeen states, and Flower Show Schools in twenty-five states.

Crab can be stretched

DEAR CECILY: Years ago I used to make a casserole with crabmeat and hard-cooked eggs. It was easy to put together because mayonnaise and other ingredients were called for and I didn't have to cook the sauce. I thought of it recently because it was a delicious way to stretch crabmeat, but I can't find the recipe. Do you have it? — Penny-Pincher.

DEAR PENNY-PINCHER: I found what is probably the original recipe for the crab and egg casserole in "Better Homes and Gardens Casserole Cook Book," published in 1961. Apparently the dish is popular because versions of it keep cropping up. Here's our adaptation of the "Casserole Cook Book" recipe.

CRAB AND EGG CASSEROLE

7 1-2 oz. can tendon-free king crab or 8-oz. package frozen king crab, thawed
3-4 c. mayonnaise
1-2 c. milk
1-4 c. finely chopped onion
1-4 c. sliced pimento-stuffed green olives
1 c. soft bread crumbs
6 large eggs, hard-cooked and finely chopped
Topping, see below

Drain and slice crab. In a medium mixing bowl stir together the mayonnaise, milk, onion, olives and bread crumbs. Add crab and eggs and mix well.

Turn into a buttered 1-quart souffle dish 6 1-2 by 3 inches or similar utensil or a 1 1-2-quart round glass cake dish 8 1-2 by 1 3-4 inches. Sprinkle with the topping.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until bubbling-hot through and crumb topping is lightly browned — about 20 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Topping: For the souffle dish melt 1 tablespoon of butter or margarine and off heat stir in 1-2 cup soft bread crumbs; for the wider cake dish melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine and off heat stir in 1 cup soft bread crumbs.

MRS. LARRY A. WOOLSEY

The ceremony was performed by Chaplain Jimmie Baggatt, a friend of the groom, by an altar decorated with spring arrangements and a heart with memory candles. Mrs. Rony Wood played the piano and vocalist was Ed Cox.

The bride wore a gown of floral lace accented by a high lace neckline. The A-line skirt ended in a ruffle at the bottom of the princess style gown. She also wore a chapel length veil with a floral headpiece and matching lace.

The bride carried a nosegay of fresh spring flowers and baby's breath centered with miniature roses.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Annette Smith of Coahoma. Matron of honor was Mrs. James Boudreau of Big Spring. Altie Ballard was the bridesmaid.

Robert Underwood of Forsan was the best man. Groomsmen were Courtney Ballard and David Smith, brother of the bride. Ushers were Kenneth West of Coahoma and Paul Ray Evans of Odessa, cousin of the bride.

Flower girl was Janiece Shaughnessy of Big Spring. Ring bearer was John West of Coahoma.

Dates announced for U.S. teacher exams

Students completing teacher preparation programs may take the National Teacher Examinations on any of the three different test dates announced today by Educational Testing Service, a nonprofit, educational organization which prepares and administers this testing program.

Dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: November 13, 1976, February 19, 1977, and July 16, 1977. The tests will be given at nearly 400 locations throughout the United States, ETS said.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general educational background and an Area Examination which measures their mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective candidates should contact the school systems in which they seek employment, or their colleges, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and general information about the examinations, as well as a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

Abby's namesake: Of births and bottoms

DEAR ABBY: In reading about your 40th high school reunion, we were most interested in learning that your nickname is "Popo."

We lived for a while in Micronesia (a Pacific Island) where Truskee is spoken, and "popo" in Truskee means "pregnant."

We have a loyal and sensitive dog, which we appropriately named Popo. Just thought you would like to know about your namesake.

DIANE

DEAR DIANE: Thanks. I have several other namesakes. Popo is short for Popocatapetel, a volcano in Mexico. And it's also the German word for that part of the anatomy on which one usually falls.

DEAR ABBY: My only grandchildren (a boy, 14, and a girl, 15) live in a distant state, and I always remember them handsomely at Christmastime.

Last March I received a letter from their mother (my daughter-in-law) that said, "Barby and Sonny have asked me to thank you for your fabulous Christmas gifts, and they're terribly ashamed that they never got around to thanking you themselves."

I replied to that letter as follows: "As far as I'm concerned, Barby and Sonny have not as yet acknowledged my Christmas gifts properly; furthermore, they are old enough to write their own thank-you notes, and it's high time they learned some manners."

Next thing I knew, I got a snippy letter from my daughter-in-law, saying, "If you're going to make such a big deal out of thank-you notes, please don't send the children any more presents."

Abby, you know perfectly well that I am not going to forget my grandchildren at Christmastime. Was I wrong to complain?

HURT NANA

DEAR HURT: Yes. And your daughter-in-law was also wrong to have written that snippy letter. What motivates your giving? Is it the pleasure of giving? Or the pleasure of being thanked?

There is no excuse for the rudeness your grandchildren showed, but if their lack of appreciation irritates you, you should tell THEM, not their mother.

DEAR ABBY: For several years now we have sent our son-in-law a check for his birthday. We used to buy him gifts, but it is so hard to pick out a gift to please a 28-year-old man, we thought a check made more sense.

We have never received a thank-you, verbal or written. He and our daughter live here in town, and we see them fairly often, so it would be a simple matter for him to say, "Thank you for the check."

The only way we know that he has received these checks is because they come back cancelled with our bank statement.

Our son-in-law is not dumb. He went to college. He has a birthday coming up soon, and I'm considering sending him a card so he won't think we've forgotten him—but no check this time. His money is easier to come by than ours. Or should I just forget his birthday altogether?

Teens want to be thin, survey finds

"There is nothing wrong with your weight. You're just right."

How many times have you had to say these words to assure your anxious youngster?

If you are like most parents, it will come as no surprise to learn there is a wide gap between parents' ratings of their children's weight and the youngsters' own opinions of their appearance, reports the Health Insurance Institute.

According to a Department of Health, Education and Welfare survey of health conditions of youngsters between the ages of 12 and 17, some 80 per cent of parents felt that their child's weight was "just right," while just 66 per cent of the children themselves agreed with the estimates.

However, even though two-thirds of all youths thought they were the "right" weight, only about 48 per cent wanted their weight to remain the same, according to the survey. Most, and this too will come as no news to parents, wanted to be thinner.

Is there a link between popularity and appearance in teenagers' minds? It depends on whom you ask, it seems. The youngsters' responses to the survey show that more than half the girls who considered themselves "below average" in popularity, would rather be thinner. As for the boys, about half said they would rather be taller, irrespective of popularity.

The "generation gap" between the parents and their children also existed to some extent in the ratings of youngsters' health. Parents seemed to be more satisfied with the general health of their children, than the teenagers did themselves, according to the survey.

NIGHT INTRUDER — Gary Boggan looks over the scene where a bulldozer paid a night time visit with a crash into his Houston home. Boggan's two children were trapped in their bedrooms and were evacuated through windows. The children suffered cuts and were treated at a hospital. Boggan said the dozer came from a construction site about a half mile from his home. Boggan and the sheriff's office believe the incident is the work of youngsters.

Crops need rain in WT

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Harvest operations, making good progress in most sections of the state, are generally on par with last year, Dr. Daniel Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Sorghum harvesting is past the halfway point, about 5 per cent of the cotton crop is in, and rice harvesting is more than 90 per cent complete for the first cutting, he said. The corn harvest is approaching 30 per cent completion.

Corn, sorghum and rice yields have been generally good but the cotton crop is off somewhat in southern counties, he said.

Hay harvesting has slowed across the state because of recent dry conditions, Pfannstiel said.

Livestock conditions have declined and many pastures and ranges are suffering from lack of moisture. Screwworms, ear ticks and other pests continue to plague livestock, Pfannstiel said.

District agricultural agents gave these reports:

Panhandle: Harvesting of corn silage is in full swing. Cotton has fruited well but is shedding much fruit, especially dryland cotton. The dryland sorghum crop is under stress. Harvesting of potatoes and onions is about complete in Deaf Smith County.

South Plains: Irrigated corn, sorghum and cotton are making good progress. Cotton needs hot, dry weather. Peppers, cucumbers, tomatoes and cabbage are being harvested.

Rolling Plains: Sorghum harvesting is active in many counties yields are generally good. Boll weevils and bollworms are causing heavy damage to cotton fields. Cattle shipments have increased.

North Central: Corn and sorghum harvesting is well past the halfway point. Yields range from fair to good. Rain is needed for peanunts and hay crops. Fall vegetables are being planted.

Northeast: Hay harvesting has slowed because of a lack of rain. Soybeans also need rain. Livestock are in good shape.

Far West: Dryland crops need rain as do pastures and ranges. Bell peppers are maturing in Presidio County. A large pecan crop is expected in most counties. Livestock are in good condition.

West Central: A general rain is needed. Cotton is making mostly good progress although boll weevils, bollworms and cotton root rot are causing some damage. Some planting of small grains is under way.

Central: Rain is needed in most areas. Some early peanuts are being harvested. Insects are hurting some pecan orchards. Most pastures and ranges are below average.

East: Corn and sorghum yields are good. Dry conditions have slowed grass growth for hay as well as for grazing. Armyworms remain heavy in pastures.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: Harvesting of corn, sorghum and rice is moving toward completion. The cotton harvest remains in full swing. Yields for most crops have been good. Soybeans need rain. Pecans are shedding nuts because of dry weather.

South Central: Cotton harvesting will start soon but insects are damaging some fields. The pecan crop is poor. Fall vegetable gardens are being planted. Pastures and ranges need rain.

Southwest: Harvesting of corn, sorghum and early peanuts is nearing completion. Fall vegetables look good but the pecan crop is poor. Livestock are mostly in good shape except for ear ticks, screwworms and stomach worms.

Screening snags AF enlistments

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Tough screening programs are blocking enlistment of 80 per cent of those who apply to enter the Air Force, military officials said Thursday.

Officials at the Air Force Recruiting Headquarters at Randolph AFB here paid the mental and physical requirements that applicants must pass are the toughest in the service's history.

From July 1, 1975 through June 30, 1976 approximately 76,000 applicants qualified for enlistment. Of that number, 96 per cent were high school graduates or higher, the Air Force said.

The remaining 80 per cent of the aplicants — about 304,000 persons— were rejected or dropped out at some time during the enlistment procedure.

Air Force officials said they aren't concerned about the high rejection rate. They said they still are meeting 100 per cent of their recruiting goals.

"We're recruiting for specific numbers and types of people," said Lt. Col. Don Burgrabbe, director of advertising for recruiting. "We're shooting for the high quality guy. The emphasis is placed on recruiting for quality."

Burgrabbe added, "We can only enlist people for which the Air Force has a specific requirement, and our policy is paying off."

Lt. Col. Silver Crim, deputy director of recruiting operations, said enlistment guidelines are geared "to telling it like it is" to the applicants.

"We turn some people off," he said. "We tell them, 'if you don't cut it, you're liable to be discharged.'"

Screening checks also have improved recruiting integrity and ability, Crim said.

"If we don't have that, we have nothing," he said.

The tough, six-step screening procedures emphasize service to one's country as a primary motive for enlistment. They also stress acceptance of the Air Force life style and the high standards that will be expected of those who enlist, Crim said.

The steps are initial interviews with recruiters, initial testing, advanced interviews, medical testing, job counseling and a final records check prior to enlistment.

Military figures show about 8 per cent of the applicants were rejected during the initial interviews with recruiters. Reasons listed for rejection included inability to meet age requirements and admitted drug use.

The largest group of rejected applicants, 36 per cent (136,800 persons), failed to score high enough on mental tests.

Advanced interviews with recruiters eliminated about 5 per cent of the applicants. A major item scrutinized at this point was applicants' moral backgrounds, including a check of police records.

Ten per cent flunked medical examinations and physical profile testing.

Another 19 per cent were disqualified after receiving advanced job counseling. Two per cent were cut after Air Force liaison officers found errors in applicants' records.

'Chicken at large' charge filed against rooster owner

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A "chicken at large" charge has been filed against a man whose half grown rooster allegedly has chased a 7-year-old on at least two occasions.

Vincent Sutherland said the rooster chased his daughter around the block, forcing her to duck into the family garage. Another time, he said, the girl jumped a bush to get away from the chicken and threw her shoe at him.

"This one just roams around. It's half grown and when it gets those spurs it will really be dangerous," Sutherland said.

The chicken owner, Patrick Doyle, said, "Kids from all over the neighborhood come to play with the rooster. We keep it penned at night and just let it loose when someone is around to keep an eye on it."

Sutherland said he would drop the charge if Doyle would keep the rooster penned.

FRUIT-VEGETABLE GROUP

While all fruits and vegetables are included in this Group, those valuable as sources of vitamin C and vitamin A are emphasized.

Recommended Amounts: Four or more servings every day, including 1 serving of a good source of vitamin C or 2 servings of a fair source; 1 serving, at least every other day, of a good source of vitamin A. If the food chosen for vitamin C is also a good source of vitamin A, the additional serving of a vitamin A food may be omitted. The remaining 1 to 3 or more servings may be any vegetable or fruit, including those valuable for their vitamin C and vitamin A. Count as 1 serving: ½ cup of vegetable or fruit; or a portion as ordinarily served, such as 1 medium apple, banana, orange, or potato, half a medium grapefruit or cantaloupe.

Good Sources of Vitamin C: Grapefruit or grapefruit juice, orange or orange juice, cantaloupe, guava, mango, papaya, fresh strawberries, broccoli, brussels sprouts, green pepper, sweet red pepper.

Fair Sources of Vitamin C: Honeydew melon, lemon, tangerine or tangerine juice, watermelon, asparagus tips, raw cabbage, cauliflower, collards, garden cress, kale, kohlrabi, mustard greens, potatoes and sweet potatoes cooked in the jacket, rutabagas, spinach, tomatoes or tomato juice, turnip greens.

Sources of Vitamin A: Dark-green and deep-yellow vegetables and a few fruits, namely: apricots, broccoli, cantaloupe, carrots, chard, collards, cress, kale, mango, persimmon, pumpkin, spinach, sweet potatoes, turnip greens and other dark-green leaves, winter squash.

Contribution to Diet: Fruits and vegetables are valuable chiefly for their vitamins and minerals. In this plan, this group is counted on to furnish nearly all the vitamin C needed and over half of the vitamin A. Vitamin C is needed for healthy gums and body tissues, while vitamin A is needed for growth, normal vision and healthy condition of skin and other body surfaces.

THE FAMILY OF ORA MARIE HILL

A little lower Toil well

By WILFRID M. CALNAN
Director Howard County Family Service Center

It was 5:15 p.m. in another city at another time. Impressed with my new importance as a supervisor, I was working overtime reading case records of my workers. I looked up to see stooped old Mr. Williams, our janitor (it was in the day before custodians), leaning on his broom, peering at me over his wire-rimmed glasses. "Another day," he began in his east Texas drawl. "A new case every day. The work never gets done." In a moment he had wiped away my self-importance and brought me back to reality.

Mr. Williams pushed a broom, cleaned the floors and the bathrooms, and washed the windows. Yet to him his job was as important as mine. It really was.

This weekend we honor Labor. We need to remind ourselves that all ligitimate work is noble and important. Misinterpretations of the story of the fall of man have left the impression that toil is a curse. The appearance of a carpenter in this earth 2000 years ago should have dispelled that myth.

Consider major surgery. Who performs it? A well-qualified surgeon, you reply. That is true. But there is more. Who provides the X ray that gives the surgeon his blue-print? Who monitors the flow of oxygen and of the anesthetic? Who monitors the patient's vital signs? Who sees that the operating room is sterile? Who assures that atmospheric conditions are right? Who watches the electrical plant that supplies the power? Who provides recovery services? Who supplies post-operative care? There are visible members of the surgical team in the operating room, unseen and even unknown members of the team.

We can ask similar questions about operations of factories, of airlines, of governments.

The doorman runs the hotel, the die maker determines the success of the assembly line. And how about a good word for the labor of mother? She isn't just "a housekeeper." She makes the home. Husband readers won't appreciate this but the point needs to be made. If you had to pay for all the services wife and mother provides it would cost you $15,000 per year.

The day we recover our sense of the importance of our work production will rise, quality will improve. It could even have a vast effect on our national economic life.

Why don't you rest a bit this week-end and ponder the importance of the job you do? You will be surprised to learn what Mr. Williams knew from the long experience of living — the great importance of his labors — an importance never lost on him nor on the family that loved him.

$500,000 gift to bar

AUSTIN (AP) — The M. D. Anderson Foundation of Houston has made another $500,000 contribution to the Texas Law Center, the State Bar said today.

The foundation made a $500,000 donation to the six-story center northwest of the Capitol in 1973.

The center, scheduled for completion late next month, is the largest law center in the nation, said bar president Gibson Gayle. It is being financed by private donations.

Prospective volunteers to view areas of BSSH

"People who have never visited a mental health facility are welcome to take advantage of this opportunity during our upcoming orientation," said Margaret Baum, coordinator, Volunteer Services, Big Spring State Hospital. "Tours will enable prospective volunteers to view many areas of the hospital, and staff members will answer questions concerning treatment of the mentally ill."

The workshop will be held Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the chapel conference room on the hospital grounds.

There will be no fee for the orientation and informal luncheon but preregistration is urged. Free baby-sitting service will be available at First United Methodist Church, 400 Scurry. (Children are to bring a sack lunch, and the church will provide milk.)

The morning session will begin with a welcome from Dr. Wallace C. Hunter, hospital superintendent, and opening remarks by Mrs. Baum and Don DeLeeuw, chairman, Volunteer Services Council.

An overview of the hospital's treatment programs, past and present, will be presented by Betty Condray, R.N., assistant coordinator of Nursing Services, followed by an explanation of Social Services functions (in-hospital and follow-up) by Jake Glickman, A.C.S.W.

Adolph Supak, assistant superintendent, will speak briefly, emphasizing the hospital's need for volunteers in the overall treatment program. A slide presentation will illustrate activities on the hospital campus and, preceding guided tours, Molly Butler, R.N. will describe advances made in the field of medication for mentally ill patients.

At 1:45 p.m., the workshop will reconvene with Ruth Payne, R.N., explaining procedures of "Reality Orientation." A.L. Gatewood, director of Rehabilitation Services, will stress roles volunteers can play in that department's various programs.

Concluding the orientation will be a 45-minute period during which those attending may direct questions to a panel made up of Mrs. Condray, Glickman, Jack Stovall, Outreach director; Phil Christensen, psychologist; and Jo Bright, assistant coordinator of Volunteer Services.

Accidental poisoning is growing health problem

Accidental poisoning is one of the most frightening things that can happen to a person — especially if the victim is a child. Fortunately, throughout the state of Texas, help is only a phone call away, through a network of Poison Control Centers.

Horace Adrian, coordinator of the Poison Control Center program for the Texas Department of Health Resources, explains that each center is essentially a local operation. Most are located in or adjacent to the emergency rooms of publicly-supported community hospitals.

However, Adrian says that the Department of Health Resources has had an active role in establishing and maintaining the Poison Control Center system. He says, "The Department acts as a focal point for the accumulation and distribution of toxicological information and data on poison case histories." Also, the state public health agency assists local centers in conducting educational programs to prevent poisonings.

According to health authorities, accidental poisoning is a large and growing health problem. Nationally, an estimated one million requests for assistance are received each year by poison control programs. In Texas, more than 6,000 accidental poisonings were reported in 1974, the most recent year for which complete statistics are available.

About half of accidental poison cases involve children under five years old, according to Adrian. However, a good number of cases involve adults, which he attributes primarily to "carelessness."

Each Poison Control Center serves essentially as an information source. Lists of all kinds of potentially toxic substances are kept on file and cross-indexed to the appropriate emergency counter-measures and treatments. The centers serve both the doctors and other medical personnel in the community and the general public.
