New Contacts Being Sought By Lindbergh

Story Of Dealings With Gang Is Told After Famous Flier Double-Crossed; At Least 7 Notes Received

Officials Tracing Bills Paid As Ransom for Child; Death Reported Threatened In Note Left At Home

(By The Associated Press)

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 11 — An "inside story" of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's unsuccessful ransom negotiations for the return of his son came to light as the famous flier waited tonight for a renewal of his contacts with the kidnapers.

The colonel held a definite means of identifying the men to whom he turned over $50,000 in $5, $10 and $20 bills, should they wish to communicate secretly with him once more, but from the Lindbergh home came word "No further contacts" had been established.

Received Seven Notes

While the colonel waited for some message explaining the failure of the abductors to live up to their promise and return the baby, it was learned from an authoritative source he had received seven notes from them, in addition to the original ransom demand left in the nursery 41 days ago.

Branding the failure of the kidnapers to return the aviator's namesake a "tragic trick," the Washington Evening Star published what it called an amazing story of events leading up to the payment of the $50,000.

The paper said Dr. John F. Condon, a retired New York educator, made the ransom negotiations possible through a series of 13 newspaper advertisements signed "Jafsie."

Details Described

At Dr. Condon's New York home late in the day the person who answered the telephone refused to say whether he was there or to discuss any phase of the story printed in Washington.

Details of the various contacts were described by the paper as follows:

On March 16 in an obscure spot on the shore of Long Island sound negotiations for the kidnapers held their first meeting with representatives of the Lindberghs. Dr. Condon and Henry Breckinridge, the flier's attorney, were present at the meeting.

Lindbergh had obtained a complete set of his son's fingerprints from toys and furniture in the nursery. He demanded a set from the kidnapers. They refused.

"C. O. D." Transaction Asked

Instead they asked the $50,000 they demanded be left in a certain place, and promised, after they had had several days to escape, that the baby would be returned.

This Colonel Lindbergh refused to agree to. As stated in a Jafsie advertisement, he wanted it to be a "C. O. D." transaction.

Another meeting took place on March 24, near a ghostly cemetery and the next day a Jafsie advertisement mentioned receipt of a package "accepted as the real article," apparently some article designed to prove the negotiators actually were acting for the real kidnapers.

Late on the night of April 1, Lindbergh, Col. Breckinridge and a third man believed to have been John Fogarty, private detective called in by Breckinridge, left the Lindbergh's car carrying two black suitcases and heavy wraps. The

Woman Flees As $20 Bill Is Identified In Bakery

First Of Lindbergh Ransom Notes Is Found Monday

(By The Associated Press)

GREENWICH, Conn., April 11 — A middle-aged woman fled from a bakery here tonight after a $20 note which she had offered was identified positively by the proprietress as one of the Lindbergh ransom notes.

Police said the note bore the number KB 03387539A.

Runs From Shop

The woman, who had come to the store in a green sedan driven by a chauffeur, grabbed the note and ran when the proprietress, described by police as a Mrs. Decornille, exclaimed:

"Why, that's one of the Lindbergh bills."

The bill number originally was announced at police headquarters as KB 3387529A, a number which did not appear on the official list of ransom notes. Officials announced, later, however, that a recheck had shown the next to the last digit was "3" instead of a "2."

Has Newspaper List

Mrs. Decornille, who has resided in Greenwich less than two weeks, had a newspaper list of the ransom bills posted beside the counter. She told police the woman, well dressed and attractive, entered the shop at 5 p. m., and tendered the note after ordering a strawberry pie and a loaf of bread.

The bakery is on the Boston post road in the center of Greenwich.

Greenwich police broadcast description of the automobile and the woman on the automatic typewriter system.

HILTON HEADQUARTERS

Convention headquarters are at the Hilton hotel, where registrations are being made. The local committee has a member of the club on duty all the time. A branch registration booth was opened at the M. E. church and one also at the Hotel Lubbock.

AMARILLO DETERMINED

Amarillo is determined to get the 1933 district convention. Headed by W. L. "Bill" Day, assistant secretary of the chamber of commerce and Dr. R. L. Rogers, president of the club, a delegation is here to look after the 1933 race. A ton, more or less, of literature, was sent down by the advance guard, consisting of a rotogravure magazine about the Panhandle-Plains and a booklet on Amarillo. Banners were put out also at the hotels and the convention hall.

RIX MUSIC DIRECTOR

W. W. "Wally" Rix, was chosen by the local club to look after musical feature numbers for the convention from Lubbock. His selection of a mixed quartet for the opening program brought uniform praise from the delegates, as did the other numbers he furnished. Mr. Rix is a pianist of note and plays the accompaniment for his numbers.

DON'T FORGET YOUR BOOK

Some of the early delegates who registered at headquarters forgot to take along their book of passes good for the free attractions of the convention. The book idea is a chamber of commerce stunt and in the book are tickets good at the two luncheons of the convention, the governor's dinner, the local theatres and the golf courses at the Lubbock Country club. Just a part of that "latchstring" idea the city likes to give its visitors, according to President E. L. Pitts.

TAKEN FOR RIDE

The visitors at the con[illegible] were taken for a ride out to Technological college where they were shown over the institution. Local club members and business men furnished the automobiles for the trip. Tech professors, members of the club, were guides for the journey through the school.

Hoover May Ask Party Leaders And Business Men To Aid In Bettering Nation's Economic Situation

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Hoover undertook today to prepare for an important conference with congressional and business leaders on ways of bettering the economic condition of the country.

The aid was understood in informed quarters to evolve a program of national unity in attacking unfavorable factors.

Early meetings are understood to be planned by the president The government has noted the persistent drop in security prices with some concern, although not alarmed.

It seems certain Mr. Hoover will consult shortly with Democratic and Republican leaders.

The congressional pilots are also watching the economic situation closely and some are inclined to believe the bankers might take greater advantage of the liberalized credit provisions offered through the Glass-Stegal legislation.

Accusing Brown Fingers Are Levelled At Society Woman And Others; Defense Holds Plans As Secret

BY WILLIAM H. EWING
Associated Press Staff Correspondent

HONOLULU, April 11—Brown fingers pointing from the witness chair were levelled at Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three accused navy men today as the prosecution began presenting evidence by which it hopes to imprison the quartet for the lynching of Joseph Kahahawai.

Two witnesses, Edward Ulii, cousin of the lynching victim, and George Von Arnswald, a policeman, quickly identified the four in connection with the abduction last January 8 of the young Hawaiian and in the subsequent futile dash of an automobile toward the sea with his sheet shrouded body.

Woman Under Strain

The New York and Washington society woman sat stiffly upright and obviously under strain to retain her composure as Ulii told in broken English and native patois how Kahahawai had been lured into an automobile and whisked away.

Only once did a smile flit over her patrician features. That was when Clarence Darrow, generalissimo of the defense, turned and grinned at her as she entered the courtroom. Her answering smile appeared forced.

Senator Sheppard Takes Up Fight Against Dry Law Poll

WASHINGTON April 11 (AP)—Senator Sheppard today took issue in the senate with the Literary Digest's prohibition polls after they had been inserted in the record by Senator Bingham with the assertion that more than 70 per cent of the replies were for repeal.

The Texas Democrat, co-author of the 18th amendment, said while the magazine's 1930 poll showed a majority against prohibition, the congressional elections of that year resulted in a congress "with a decided majority for prohibition."

It met maximum advances of 15 cents per barrel effective today.

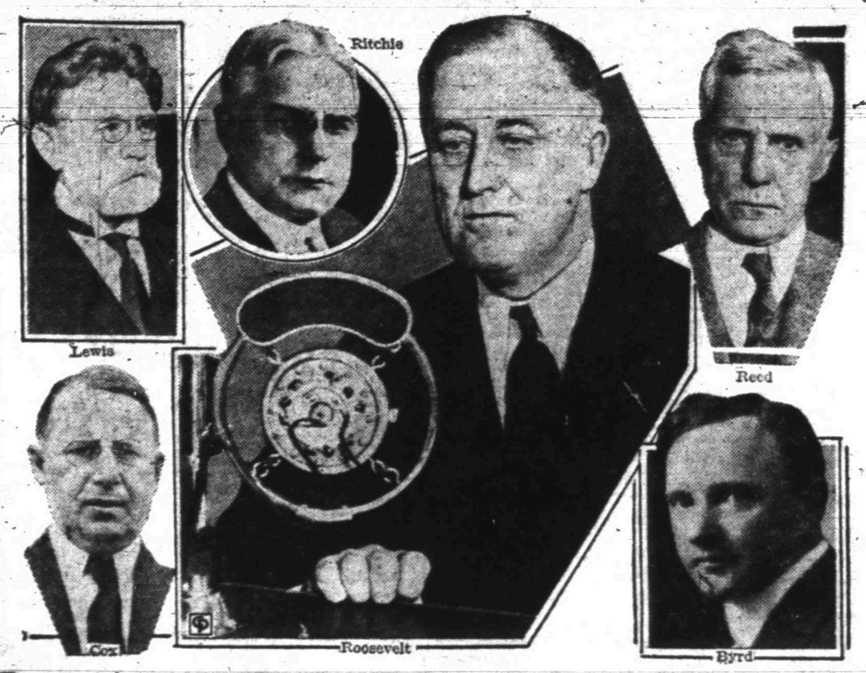

Humble, however, announced a continuation of its policy of declining to post prices in East Texas, a letter from Vice President R. L. Blaffer, sent to royalty owners and others, saying the company would continue to pay what it interpreted as the "going price."

Cities Are Panic-Stricken By Rumbling Volcanoes

Fire And Ashes Are Spreading Terror Over Continent

(By The Associated Press)

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 11—The Central Cordillera of the Andes snapped into terrifying activity today, and set her several volcanoes to belching fire and ashes in a darkening mantle over panic-stricken cities.

The drift of the fine gray powder even enveloped Buenos Aires, 500 miles eastward, and ashes were falling in Montevideo, Uraguay, 100 miles further east.

Centers At Big Volcano

The activity apparently centered around the giant Chilean volcano Tinguiririca, which sends her cone 14,000 feet into the sky in Colchagua province, Chile.

Authorities had reports of activities of three smaller ones to the south,—Quisapu, Descabezado and Mauliho, in Talco province, and said others among the score of active cones in the Central Cordillera probably were spitting out their quota of ashes and flashes of fire.

Long Strip Affected

A strip of Chile 400 miles long, from Conception on the south, to Aconcagua province on the north was affected in various degrees, as was a corresponding strip across the entire continent. The prevailing west wind picked up the fine ash rain and whirled it eastward.

Several earthquakes were recorded throughout the southern tip of the continent, although none of destroying intensity had occurred.

The greatest panic probably was felt in the province of Talca, Chile, where Quisapu rained her ashes in

Improved Dairy Herds Are Exhibited At Annual Plainview Show; Lubbock Four-H Team Places Second In Event

(By The Associated Press)

PLAINVIEW, April 11.—A showing of new blood among the foundation dairy herds of Texas, and the interest of vocational agriculture students, stood out today as features of the opening of the fifth annual Texas Panhandle Plains Dairy show.

Herds of almost every exhibitor included animals that were being shown here for the first time. Most of these were outstanding in their classes.

Boys Are Working

Sixty boys, members of vocational agriculture and 4-H club stock judging teams, worked at a fast pace all day to complete their work.

Improvement in the quality of animals drew the attention of breeders and visitors alike.

Enlarged departments, new exhibitors, higher quality, a good attendance and ideal weather combined to make the opening a big success.

300 Arrive On Time

Of the 314 entries, approximately 300 arrived in time to go on exhibition. The dairy products department was more than twice as large as last year and had to be removed to new quarters.

The program tomorrow will provide several social events, which will reach a climax at night. The coronation of the Queen of Dairyland and a dance honoring the queen and her court were featured events. Sixteen princesses representing as many towns, as well as maids of honor, will participate in the coronation.

Public Blamed In Price Drop

Richard Whitney Appears At Senate Hearing On Decline Of Stock Market; Scoffs At Bear Raids

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Blame for violation fluctuations in security prices was attributed to the public today by Richard Whitney, president of the New York stock exchange, who scoffed at claims that bear raids contributed to the recent market decline.

Testifying at the outset of the Senate banking committee's investigation of the exchange, Whitney said the public placed unwarranted values on stocks in the inflationary period prior to 1929 and now was "trying to give the United States away" by excessive liquidations.

An all day cross examination failed to shake his defense of short selling.

AUSTIN, April 11. (AP)—R. D. Parker, chief supervisor of the oil and gas division of the Texas railroad commission said tonight the per well allowable in the East Texas oil field would be cut to 67 barrels daily effective Wednesday.

Houston Milk Dealers Bring Products To City Under A Heavy Guard; Is Thought Home Fired By Faction

(By The Associated Press)

HOUSTON, April 11.—Milk was brought to Houston today by truck drivers armed with shotguns while sheriff's deputies patrolled the county roads to prevent violence.

There had been no repetition of yesterday's incidents, where two trucks inbound with milk for distributors involved in a milk price war with organized producers were halted by armed, masked men who dumped the milk they carried into the roadside.

The home of B. E. Stallones, manager of the South Texas Producers association, was destroyed by fire this morning. Stallones said he believed the fire was incendiary.

The association posted a $250 reward for the arrest and conviction of the men who halted the milk trucks, and a similar reward for the arrest and conviction of persons Stallones said he believed fired his house.

Grandmothers Dying By Thousands!

Slaying Of More Than 100,000 Aged Relatives Well Underway Monday Night; Final Slaughter Is Expected Early Today

BY WILLIAM BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 11.—The slaying of more than 100,000 grandmothers was well under way tonight, and it was expected that toward mid-afternoon Tuesday there wouldn't be an old lady left in eight of this country's larger cities.

The movement, launched by office boys at Washington, D. C., today, where, incidentally, a ball game was scheduled between the Boston Red Sox and the Senators, is part of an annual program.

THOUSANDS of tired business men also were reported out for the day, many having been called away suddenly on urgent transactions. This sudden rush of out-of-town conferences, important deals and other happenings that unexpectedly summoned executives from their desks was somewhat surprising.

For, prior to today, business affairs in the cities of Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, New York, Cincinnati, Brooklyn and St. Louis, had been so slow that the office help had been more or less marking time, and indulging in occasional arguments on this and that, including baseball, which officially opens Tuesday.

Of course, the absences had nothing to do with the fact that the boss had picked the Yankees to win, declaring Al Simmons' ankles wouldn't hold up another year and that without Simmons, the A's couldn't win the American League flag.

The hegira also probably had nothing to do with the fact that scores of the Chicago office boys whose grandmothers quietly expired tonight, had been heard to declare that the White Sox, under their new manager, Lew Fonseca, were going to go places and do things.

THIS unprecedented demise of grandmothers could have no bearing, of course, on the fact that several thousand office boys in St. Louis had openly voiced the opinion that the Cardinals would have a tough time winning without Grimes, and a tougher time than that beating him in a Cub uniform.

The unlooked for rush of business-outside-the-office which called thousands of "big shots" in Brooklyn away from their desks could have had nothing to do with the argument that has been raging over the merits of Brooklyn's new manager, Max Carey, as compared to Wilbert Robinson.

Police in the eight cities, most of whom will be found on duty in the vicinity of the ball parks, were asked for some solution of the mysterious volume of business and funerals. The bluecoats were reported to have given virtually the same reply, "Well, what are you going to do about it?"

Three Cities In Battle For Convention Of 1933 While Supporters Of Candidates Work Feverishly

Alignment Looms

High Point Of Opening Day Is Reached Monday Night With Hyer's Address; More Than 300 Expected Today

THE 200 or more Lions of District 2-T who spent Monday in work and play as Lubbock's guests at the annual convention today will center their interest on the closing session when a new district governor is named and a 1933 host city is selected.

Principals in the finish fight last night mapped campaign plans, and Tuesday expect to swell the attendance total by bringing more of their home club members here. Pampa and Amarillo were believed aligned last night to place C. Herbert (Hub) Walker of the former city in the governor's chair, and to send the next meeting to Amarillo. D. W. (Del) Harrington wears El Paso's colors in the governor's race. Big Spring and Colorado also are booming for the assembly next year.

High Point Is Reached

The high point of the opening day of the convention came Monday night when Julien C. Hyer, international president, spoke at the First Methodist church. The meeting was attended by a large number of Lubbock residents not club members. Immediately preceding it was an organ recital by Prof. W. R. Waghorne, of Texas Technological college.

A testimonial to the district governor, Sam M. Braswell of Clarendon, was given in a dinner at Hotel Lubbock at 6 o'clock. President E. L. Pitts of the local club presided. After the serving, two duets, by Miss Nell Parmlee and Mr. H .W. Hunter, with Miss Blanche Fann and Mr. Jack Stahl violinists, were given. They were: "Song of Songs" from Blossomtime and "Just We Two," from the Student Prince. W. W. Rix was the accompanist.

Tribute Is Given

Rev. W. H. Wallace, Lamesa Methodist minister, paid a glowing tribute to the governor and his leadership of the district activities the past year. "Civilization and progress move forward on the heels of leadership," he stated. He spoke of the "oil of appreciation, which costs so little and means so much."

"With such leadership we must go forward," he said. He also stressed the enthusiasm of the district governor in his work and of his firm convictions.

At the close C. Herbert Walker, on behalf of the Pampa club, presented Mr. Braswell with a desk set. Mrs. Braswell was presented with a basket of carnations by the club.

Tells Of Visits

Following the organ recital, H. W. Hunter led in a short sing-song, after which the district governor took charge of the meeting.

International President Hyer told of some of his visits to district meetings over the nation and of what he had seen and heard of the progress of the organization. "I do not know of any district where Lionism is any healthier," he said in speaking of the West Texas group. "I do not know of any district governor who is leading his men any better than District Governor Sam."

Gains in membership, making the international group the largest in number of clubs in North America, were recorded. An average of a new

GOOD FOR US

HERE is something for Lubbock newspapers to aim at. The Gal- veston News, which is Texas' old- est newspaper, will be 90 years old Monday.

When this paper was started, there was nothing to mark the present site of Lubbock except the Yellowhouse canyon cutting a diag- onal gash across the plateau prai- rie-land. Some Indians were oc- casionally crushing the fall grass that waved over the South Plains as they moved from breaks to val- leys. A pioneer prospector or two had probably crept through the then waterless wastes. But fifty years were yet to pass before Lub- bock became a town and almost that many years were to pass be- fore the first trading post was located up there on the rim of the Yellowhouse.

Lubbock Child Bids Fair To Set A Record

There is hardly a town between Yuma, Ariz., and the east line of the Texas Panhandle and between Colorado and the border that little Margaret Norling, 6, does not know.

Margaret, daughter of Inspector and Mrs. O. S. Norling of Lubbock, already has traveled more than 70,000 miles without traveling in a train, a bus or on a ship. She has taken one airplane flight, but the rest of her traveling has been by automobile. Mr. Norling is with the United States Immigration service.

The daughter is in line to break the record of an 11-year-old girl, mentioned recently by Ripley's Believe-It-Or-Not, who had traveled more than 100,000 miles without having been aboard a train.

"In another two years, I believe Margaret will have traveled that far and she'll be only 8 years old," said the inspector.

Margaret, who has dark, bright eyes and dark hair, takes a great interest in motor trips with "my daddy." She and her mother have made frequent and long trips since the daughter was an infant.

"B. C." Relieves Headaches and Quiets Nerves

Realizing that no one drug can relieve all headaches, as they come from so many causes, a North Carolina pharmacist has developed a combination of several ingredients, so blended and proportioned as to relieve almost any headache in a few minutes. You can get this formula wherever drugs are sold under the name "B.C." 10c and 25c packages, and when you have one of those violent, nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, "B.C." will give you soothing relief in three minutes. "B.C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia, reducing fever, and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. South Plains C Of C Officials Lay Claim To Being Busy Men Nowadays

South Plains Chambers of Commerce secretaries must have plenty of opportunities for work. Two of them already have contested the purported record of a Geneseo, Ill., man who claimed 15 jobs.

A. J. Payne, Slaton CC secretary, is the second to make the bid. He lists 26 posts, not including active membership in 14 charmber committees. Previously J. E. Shelton of Brownfield offered 22 posts—28 if some of their sub-divisions were counted separately.

The Slaton man's list follows:

Secretary of the board of city development, treasurer of the board of city development, secretary of the chamber of commerce, treasurer of the chamber of commerce, secretary of the Rotary club; treasurer of the Rotary club, editor of the Rotary weekly issues, a member of three Rotary committees, secretary of a regional poultry show, treasurer of the show, manager of the show, vice president of the Panhandle-South Plains fair, president of United Charities, superintendent of a Methodist Sunday school, correspondent for four daily papers, columnist for The Slatonite, manager of United Charities food supply, director of the Rotary club, president of the Methodist choir president of the board of education, president of a council.

Payne wrote:

"I hate to better my brother secretary, Shelton, as we work together on some of the committees, but I just want to show this man back north with 15 jobs, that we have men down here in West Texas that do work, and I, like brother Shelton, get but one salary, and that has been cut on account of the repression."

BY FREDERICK G. VOSBURGH

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Baseball put on one of its finest shows—an extra-inning pitcher's battle—to usher in the 1932 major league season today before the nation's chief executive and first lady.

For the first time in the four years Herbert Hoover as president has been tossing out a new white ball for the inaugural game, the Washington team won its opening start, overcoming the Boston Red Sox 1-0, in the tenth on a walk followed by a rousing double from the big bat of Heinie Manush.

ST. LOUIS, April 11. (AP)—Charles (Chick) Hafey, 1931 batting champion of the National league and regular left fielder for the St. Louis Cardinals in their four-championship years, was traded today to the Cincinnati Reds for Benny Frey, a right handed pitcher and Harvey Hendrick, utility player.

In making the announcement, Vice President Branch Rickey of the Cardinals said "you may draw your own conclusions as to whether there are other considerations in the transaction." From this it was inferred the Cards would receive cash along with Frey and Hendrick.

Hafey, the Cards' most stubborn holdout this season, said at his Berkeley, Calif., home he was "satisfied" with the deal and would leave tomorrow for Cincinnati. With Hafey's transfer, Manager Dan Howley of the Reds will be

Golf STARS as the play it

by ART KRENZ

Editor's note: This is the first of a series of golf articles prepared for the Morning Avalanche and NEA service by Art Krenz, premier NEA golf writer, calculated to aid local golfers in improving their games.

If you've played this spring and your tee shots haven't been straight it probably can be blamed on the long winter layoff. After some corrective practice, you ought to straighten out easily.

The reason is that the left hand, missing the exercise it gets in the golf swing, has lost some of its strength. This leaves the right hand in command for the first few times. The overpowering right turns the club face out of position, cutting across the line of flight from the outside.

To correct this, grip the club lightly with the right hand and take a firmer grip with the left. Let the left dominate both the backswing and the downswing.

President Scott appointed official scorers, including Shep Sheppard, Port Arthur News.

Stone's Bears In 24 To 21 Cage Win

Robert Stone's "California Bears" defeated Possum Blackwell's "Notre Dame Ramblers" in the first Morning Glory League basketball game of the week yesterday morning, 24 to 21. At one time the Bears were 13 points behind the Ramblers, only to stage an offensive that carried them into a tie and then to victory.

The victory gave the Bears a tie in the league standing with the Ramblers, each team having won one and lost one game. The "Tech Matadors", managed by Shorty Kerr are at the top with 1 victory and no defeats. Robert Hale's "Mustangs", trail with one defeat. The games are played at the Lubbock High school gymnasium each morning before school time.

Bumpass was high point man for the losers and for the game yesterday with 13 points. Curley Wilkinson, center for the Bears, was second with 9 points.

Bumpass and De Lashaw, forwards; Jaines, center; Shook and Blackwell, guards, composed the Ramblers' lineup. The Bear team consisted of Bain and Akers, forwards; Wilkinson, center; Stone and Speer, guards.

The Mustangs and Matadors are slated to play this morning, the game beginning at 7.30 o'clock.

Texas League Season Gets Off To Start In Four Cities Wednesday

Houston And Dallas Pre-Favorites In Pennant Chase

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It is the consensus of Texas League sport writers that Houston or Dallas will win this year's Texas League race, which gets under way Wednesday. It also is their consensus that Fort Worth will finish third with a possibility of finishing higher should the Buffaloes or Steers stumble.

Last year Houston was the pennant pet of the writers and the Buffaloes won both halves of the race. Fort Worth finished third and Dallas fifth in the first half. In the final half, Dallas finished third and Fort Worth fourth.

J. Alvin Gardner, league president, in his survey sees a free-for-all race with the second division teams of 1931 probable first division clubs of 1932.

One thing is definite. The writers are wrong in limiting their pennant selections to three teams or else President Gardner's pennant glasses are too strong and take in too much territory.

Cats At Dallas

The unraveling of the pennant mystery will start Wednesday, April 13, opening day games at Dallas, Houston, Beaumont and Shreveport. Fort Worth will be at Dallas, Galveston at Houston, San Antonio at Beaumont and Wichita Falls at Shreveport.

Three New Managers

There will be three new managers on opening day: Dick McCabe, right hand pitcher is making his bow at Fort Worth succeeding Art Phelan; George Sisler, former major league first baseman, once voted the most valuable man in the American League, replacing Jake Atz at Shreveport; Henry Severeid, former major league catcher and later with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League in 1931, replacing Carl Williams as manager of the Wichita Falls Spudders.

The 1931 skippers who are back include Happ Morse, Dallas; Joe Schultz, Houston; Del Baker, Beaumont Exporters; Del Pratt, Galveston, and Claude Robertson, San Antonio.

All are available as playing managers if needed. McCabe, Sisler and Severeid expect to be regular playing managers.

On the opening days last year, 56,506 baseball fans clicked the turnstiles in the eight Texas League cities with Houston's 10,504 paid admissions as the top.

Country Club Golfers Victorious In Short Tourney With Meadowbrook

The attempt Sunday by Lubbock Country club and Meadowbrook club golfers to get the 1932 season started resulted in the dispersing of nearly all the principals at the Lubbock Country club course Sunday morning when the sandstorm gathered force and claimed the day's honors.

Only a few rounds were completed. In the first place, only a few representatives of each club showed up for the matches. The Country club players won seven of the ten matches and Ross McWhorter of the Country club bunch was medalist of the day with a 78.

Forty-four golfers reported for the opening matches, but a majority of them headed for home when the gale became too much.

Jess Lockhart of the Meadowbrook defeated L. A. Bacon of the Country club, 3 up. B. R. Bryant, playing under Meadowbrook colors, downed W. D. Girand, 3 up. Lane Denson of the Meadowbrook won over Jim Kuykendall of the Country club, 1 up on the 20th hole, the toughest match of the day. Those three victories were the only ones registered by Meadowbrook golfers.

Other results were as follows:

John Edmisson, Country club, defeated Lyle Holmes, Tech and Meadowbrook, 2 up; Ross McWhorter defeated Johnson of Meadowbrook, 3 up; V. O. Jennings downed Leland Mast, 9 up; Cliff Dean, Country club, won over Dutch Wigington, 5 up; Tom Duggan, Country club, beat Howard Hunt, 5 up; Carl Patton won over Paul Campbell, 5 up; Alvin Hendricks defeated A. C. Webb, 6 up. Most of the matches extended over 9 holes only.

The Lubbock Country club has invited golfing officials from surrounding South Plains towns to meet here next Sunday and talk over plans for instituting a league, the various clubs to play for the championship throughout the season.

Welcome, Lions Clubmen!

LUBBOCK is host today to a fine body of West Texas business men—members of Lions clubs of the Second District of Texas. As we welcomed district conferences of Rotary, Kiwanis and American Business clubs, The Morning Avalanche takes pleasure in likewise welcoming the Lions to our midst and believes it is voicing unanimous opinion locally in so doing.

We hope Second District Lions will enjoy their stay here so much that they'll want to come back. That they'll want to work tooth and toe-nail for Lubbock in its quest for the State Lions convention which comes to West Texas in 1933.

Don't forget, visiting Lions that Lubbock was approved for the West Texas State convention last year at Port Arthur. Don't forget that we really want you—and can take care of you when you get here.

But whether Lubbock receives the honor of being West Texas' host city next year or not, we are glad to have District 2-T this year—and any and every other year you decide to meet with us.

A SENSIBLE ACTION HERE

In postponing local action on the much debated party pledge, Democratic leaders of Lubbock county Saturday used their heads. Since the question is to be decided soon in courts of the state there was no use of crossing a bridge before coming to it, when to do so only meant bitterness.

The Morning Avalanche is interested in seeing Texas Democrats get together again after the split of 1928. We see no reason why Lubbock county Democrats shouldn't work just as hard to iron out past difficulties as party members in Houston, Dallas or Nacogdoches.

There will be plenty of time left to wrangle over the pledge after the courts rule it legal—if they so rule. And if the pledge is to be ruled illegal, why fuss about it now?

THE BUSINESS OF EATING

In view of the recent local controversy over "corn-bread and buttermilk and good, old turnip greens"—together with "ham hock, jowl, bacon and sowbelly," is not amiss to query the supposed supremacy of France in the gastromic line.

Eating as a fine art is supposed to have reached its supremacy in France, though there are many tourist Americans who will dispute it in favor of such home-grown delicacies as they are used to. But the French cherish the tradition of their gastronic artistry and have recently enshrined it in an academy with a limited membership and the responsibility of publishing a dictionary and grammar devoted to the language of food and cooking.

It is not recorded, however, that the Academi des Gastronomes has as yet published a cookbook or that contemplates doing so. To do so would, in fact destroy the legend of the French mastery over salad and sauce, garnish and gravy spice and savor. It would mean that cooking and menu-making are matters of formula, whereas the French insist that they are art.

In general the American housewife would agree with this theory. She usually owns a cookbook but permits her individuality to triumph over its advice. If she is a very good cook, she has her secrets and her occasions of culinary inspiration. These are the elements of art; and though there is no academy to glorify the American kitchen, it is probable that it deserves one as much as do the kitchens of Paris.

At any rate, we prefer our turnip greens to the snails of La Belle France?

Practical Health Problems

TRAINING THE BABY

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles on "Training the Baby," by Dr Fishbein. The second will be printed tomorrow.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

IF THERE is one point more than any other which gives the new mother concern, it is the training of the child in proper habits so far as concerns the excretions of the human body. One of the supervisors for the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago has recently developed a series of directions for this purpose which are practical and sound.

Most babies can learn such control within the first two years of life. Many will learn within six months. If the baby fails to learn by the end of the third year or, if the baby once trained, relapses to infantile habits, it requires special medical study and perhaps psychologic examination to find out just what is wrong.

The directions for the control of the bowels follow:

Observe the time at which the baby usually soils his diaper. At that hour the next day place a small vessel in the lap and hold the baby on this, letting him lie against the left arm.

Repeat this regularly each day at the same time. The first week it may be necessary to use a glycerin suppository to start the movement and to direct the baby's attention to the reason for being placed on the vessel.

By the second week, the bowel movement should be started by the feeling of the vessel alone. Hold the baby on the vessel five or 10 minutes before using a suppository.

Never continue using a suppository regularly for more than two weeks as the baby may learn to depend upon it.

When the baby is old enough to sit alone, place him on a nursery chair. It may be necessary to use the suppository again for a few days until he is used to the changed position.

TOMORROW: Developing control.

What Other People Think

I can't believe that people realize how strongly entrenched the criminal element is. And the pity of it is that some of the finest citizens are blind. They're down in the trenches with the bootleggers.—Mrs. Agnes Scarritt, grand aunt of the Lindbergh baby.

The only danger of civil war in China is based upon the impossible assumption that the present government will surrender rights and impair our sovereignty.—Dr. H. H. Kung, ex-minister of industries of China.

We can never win until we do as the drys do, and disregard every other issue. As between any two wets, I shall vote for the wetter.—Mrs. Emily Price Post, member of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform.

Third Party Is Looming

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

Capitol

WASHINGTON, April 11.—From the economic standpoint, this year's third party prospects have been fully canvassed.

Politicians are agreed that there will be no separate progressive ticket if the Democrats name as liberal a presidential candidate as Franklin D. Roosevelt. Insurgent Republicans for whom Mr. Hoover is too conservative will make the best of the New Yorker. Even he is not advanced enough for some of them, but he will do, except for a group of insufficient proportions to wage an organized fight of their own.

Now, however, the possibility of an independent dry campaign begins to loom on the horizon.

DRYS of 100 per cent rating have come quite definitely to the conclusion that Aunty Democracy finally has gone unmistakably wet — or wettish.

Not all drys are 100 percenters.

Dry Democrats who are more Democratic than they are dry have been prepared for some time to accept at least as wet a standard bearer as Governor Roosevelt on an adequately damp platform.

Those who are dryer than they are Democratic have been equally prepared to be Hoovercrats again, as in 1928.

Of course all this has been highly satisfactory to dry Republicans.

BUT SUPPOSE the wet Republican element should triumph at the G. O. P. convention in June!

Only recently has it become apparent how strong and determined this element is. Its strength has been developed very rapidly, in fact, by the pending tax discussion in congress. Suggestions concerning the ease with which the whole problem could be solved by an impost on beer—were beer permissible—evidently have not been lost on the voters. Every lawmaker on Capitol Hill has been hearing from them by the mailsackful. There have been dry warnings, too, but wet demands have swamped them half a dozen to one—and in growing volume, as the budget debate has progressed.

With Aunty Democracy already turning wet, the horror of G. O. P. wets at the thought of finding themselves "at the end of a limb" at such a psychological moment, may be imagined.

Continued silence probably will be recognized as the wisest policy for Mr. Hoover personally, but a battle for a wet Republican plank is foreseen, for which the boldest drys admit it would be rash to try to predict the outcome.

IN THE FACE of wet declarations by both major parties, should such a situation confront them, the drys will be left without an option but to go it alone, or confess themselves utterly extinguished.

Until the adoption of the eighteenth amendment to be sure, there was an independent prohibition party, but its strength was negligible.

For example, in 1916, when it was on the eve of its final success in writing its doctrine into the federal constitution, it cast only 227,506 votes, to the Democrats' 9,129,606 and the Republicans' 8,533,221. Subsequently to 1900 it was regularly outvoted even by the Socialists.

LAUNCHING out independently again, would it revert to its old status?

Dry leaders sense the danger that it would do so. Their strategy, if they are compelled to return to a third party basis, undoubtedly will be to attempt a coalition of their forces with those of the progressives.

Illustratively, Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska has been mentioned as a suitable dry-progressive leader.

True, Senator Norris has expressed himself in favor of Governor Roosevelt. It can safely be accepted as a foregone conclusion that he would not oppose him. In the event of the nomination of a more conservative Democrat there is no telling.

Assuming Mr. Hoover as the Republican and Governor Roosevelt as the Democratic candidates, both on wet platforms, the likeliest independent dry-progressive guess perhaps would be Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania—bone dry, economically ultra-advanced and politically venturesome as he is.

LATIN-AMERICAN BONDS

The Committee on Inter-American Relations recently passed out some good advice to American holders of bonds issued by the Latin-American countries. It finds that faith in these bonds has been severely shaken not only by political and financial troubles within those countries but by the Senate investigation of the manner in which some of the bonds were marketed. But it points out that "efforts of salesmen to persuade holders of Latin-American bonds to switch their securities to something of highly speculative and uncertain character in some cases" should be carefully watched.

The Latin-American countries have been hit hard by the industrial depression. Most of them are heavy sellers of raw materials and agricultural products for which demand has receded. Taxes are difficult to collect, and some countries are finding it difficult, and even impossible, to meet interest charges and sinking fund installments. Therefore, their securities have slumped, some of them heavily. This is one case in which distance does not lend enchantment to the view: the foreign bondholders are too far away to get an accurate picture of what is going on, and rumors combine, with a general feeling of insecurity, further to depress prices in the New York bond market.

There are plenty of indications, however, that the Latin-American republics are facing the situation in its realities, and that they have no intention of sacrificing their credit if it can possibly be sustained. The very fact that concerns exist which are willing to make seemingly attractive offers to exchange other securities for the bonds of these countries is proof that someone expects to make a handsome profit on them when times improve. "The thing chiefly needed today is patience" says the committee. That is true. It would not take much of an improvement in Latin-American conditions to send these securities soaring. Those with patience to wait stand a chance of recouping.

Al Capone is weary of prison life already, a news item says. Maybe he's just learning that the hardest thing to kill is time.

THE MOST DEADLY AMERICAN PISTOLEER

"Wild Bill" Hickok whose real name was James Butler Hickok, had the repudiation of being a most deadly shot with pistol and rifle. His famous fight with the McCanles gang took place on July 12, 1861, at Rock Creek, Nebraska. In this affray "Wild Bill" is said to have killed 5 men, unassisted.

Some versions state the number of victims to have been as high as ten, but after a review of the evidence I am inclined to favor a more conservative account of the result.

A CITY AND ITS CITY HALL IN DIFFERENT STATES

For reasons of topography the site of the present city of Yuma, Arizona, was picked as the only possible ferry crossing of the Colorado River of the southern route, during the California Gold Rush, in 1848. Then the south bank of the Colorado River became the nucleus of the present city of Yuma, Arizona, although it lay beyond the Arizona-California boundary line, as fixed on the Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo between the United States and Mexico in 1848 (by which Mexico ceded California to the United States). This line received further official recognition when the United States Congress passed the Enabling Act of 1850, making California a member state of the Union.

The present City Hall of Yuma is situated on that strip of territory assigned to California in both mentioned Acts.

It is a fact that comparatively recently, the Collector of Taxes for San Diego County (predecessors of Imperial County), California, made a determined attempt to collect taxes on this portion of Yuma occupancy. He was jailed and the attempt was never renewed.

Ellen knows such a marriage will provide for her mother, MOLLY ROSSITER, and make it possible for her sister, MYRA, to marry BERT ARMSTEAD.

Barclay has been married and divorced. Scandal accompanied his divorce from LEDA GRAYSON, dancer, and, fearing this talk may be revived, he and Ellen agree to keep their marriage secret until they sail for Europe. Barclay wants to settle a fortune on Ellen but she persuades him to wait until after the ceremony. Barclay's lawyer, SYMES, regards Ellen as a gold-digger.

In a double marriage in a small Connecticut town Barclay and Ellen and Myra and Armstead are married. They depart and almost immediately Symes arrives, demanding to see Barclay. No one knows where the couple have gone.

Ellen and Barclay drive to his Long Island home. The girl is terrified, knows her marriage has been a mistake. She reads in a newspaper that Larry's engagement to Elizabeth Bowes is broken. Barclay comes to Ellen's bedroom. The girl faints from terror, recovers consciousness to find that her husband has suffered a heart attack. She calls for help and doctors and nurses arrive. Symes arrives. Ellen believes her husband is dying and is overwhelmed with grief.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII

It was in the morning when Ellen entered Steven's bedroom and looked dazedly about the circle of white exhausted faces, hoping for reassurance. She found none. Then she sat down beside Steven, her small hands clasped, waiting for the opening of his eyes. He must know that if he would only live she would love him with all her heart.

"You might speak to him," someone suggested.

Ellen was on her knees beside the bed. She was holding the cold slender hands and begging Steven to speak to her.

"Steven! Steven, can't you hear me? It's Ellen!"

She looked up at Symes.

"I think he stirred."

In a passion of grief and fear Ellen watched Steven's gray, lined face. The heavy eyes opened. They were vacant as empty windows.

"It's—it's Ellen!" she whispered.

This time she saw the shadow of a smile on the stricken man's face. The colorless lips were forming words:

"My—beloved—wife."

Ellen bowed her head, sent up a silent and grateful prayer. She felt confident and strong, believing that she could snatch him back from death. Steven's heavy hand was on her hair; rested against her cheek. She knew he was struggling to speak and shook her head. She whispered that he must be quiet. The man's eyes turned to Symes and seemed to call the lawyer to the bedside. Symes drew closer.

Ellen did not see the faces of the watching physicians. She did not know that no matter how passionate Steven's desire to live might be he had no chance. His overtaxed heart was beating more and more slowly.

"Let him talk, Mrs. Barclay," said one of the watchers. "It can do no harm now."

At that Ellen knew. She knelt on the floor, stroking Steven's hand as the slow, bitter, tears she restrained seemed to drop one by one on her heart.

"Symes," Steven's voice barely stirred the stillness.

"Here I am, old man," Symes said heavily. "It's all right," he told the dying man. "Don't worry about the settlements. I'll take care of—Mrs. Barclay. Everything shall be as you wished."

The lawyer stepped back from the pool of light circling the bed. Ellen was to have those last few minutes alone with Steven. She clung to his hand more tightly. No one thought he would speak again.

Letters To The Editor

Christian Virtues Of James E. Ferguson Are Extolled

Editor of the Avalanche: If to love the boys and girls of Texas more than self is goodness, Jim Ferguson is good. If to be in advance of your time—to be a pioneer in the direction of right, is greatness Old Jim Ferguson is great. If to avow principles and discharge your duty in the presence of defeat is heroic—then Jim Ferguson is a hero.

In addition to the Free Text Book Law—The Compulsory Attendance Law—the amending of the constitution authorizing the levying of additional taxes for the support of the public schools—the building and equipment of facilities for the care and keping of the lunatics—the construction of a school for the blind—a new land office building and numerous colleges for the training of teachers, Governor Ferguson also had amended and re-enacted the present Compensation Law.

At one time Ferguson was a railway bridge carpenter and during all of his life he has been a friend of organized labor. He announced that fact when he opened his campaign for governor and demonstrated it while in the governor's office. More good labor laws were passed or amended while he was governor than under any of his predecessors, with the exception of Governor Campbell. His friendly attitude with and his defense of organized labor has placed them under lasting obligation to him. It may be said, however, that organized labor has backed and sustained him in his fight for the public schools. Labor never had a better friend in the governor's office than James E. Ferguson.

Prior to the election of Ferguson the penitentiary system had been a conceded liability to the State of Texas under and to every preceding administration. It had been subjected to charges of corruption, extravagance, waste, indifference and brutal inhumanity. Under one administration a number of negroes had been smothered to death in close confinement by way of punishment, that suggested the story of the "Glacier Tower" or the "Black Hole" of Calcutta. No administration had ever operated, so far as I now recall, the penitentiary system of this state as a going concern, paying its way. When Ferguson took charge in 1915 this institution owed $400,000, it did not have a dollar in the treasury and no provision with which to make a crop. He went to Houston, borrowed for the state some $400,000, endorsed the paper himself, and with a commission which he appointed, took charge and began the operation of the penitentiary system. They operated that institution in such a way that when he went out of office in the fall of 1917 there had been no sustained charges of inhumanity at the institution. The system was out of debt, had not marketed the current crop and had to its credit in Houston's banks more than sixteen hundred thousand dollars.

Ferguson has been criticized for his liberal pardoning policy, has been accused of accepting bribes, these accusations, of course, come from those who can not predicate a higher standard of morality and patriotism for the other fellow than they claim for themselves. With Jim Ferguson there are no outcasts, they are victims. He knows that the inhabitants of palaces and penitentiaries might change places without adding to the injustice of the state. He knows that circumstances and conditions determine character, that the lowest and worst of our race were children once whose cheeks dimpled with smiles beneath the heaven of a mother's eyes. He knows the road they have traveled, of the thorns that have pierced their feet, of the deserts they have crossed, and so, instead of words of scorn he extends the hand of help. This is real Christianity, this is the interpretation Ferguson gives to the Bible, it is his answer and explanation for the pardoning policy he pursues.

The dime-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CLAYTON

lowly he was sinking into the darkess. Just before the end his lips oved again. The words were bare- above a whisper.

"Smile—my darling — smile for e."

Ellen smiled.

The rest was nightmare. The girl membered being taken away from edroom. She remembered crying because Steven was dead and cryg for her mother and that prently someone told her her mothwould come. She remembered inking something hot and refusing food brought to her on a ay.

The nurse came and went from e room where Ellen lay huddled the golden divan on which Stevhad sat the night before. Outde the sky was of brass and not a reath of wind stirred. Ellen cried ptly, steadily, endlessly, with a rrible conviction that her tears ould never stop. Why was Molly so ng in coming? Ellen needed her esperately.

After a while Fergus appeared d said that Symes would like to see r. Ellen arose and went into the reen and gold bath and dashed old water on her face. She managd to stop crying.

Fergus was still waiting when she turned.

"Did you telephone my mother?" e asked.

The butler only looked at her a tle strangely from his sunken es and hurried out the door. She lt dull surprise at his manner t that was all. When Symes strode to the room her face was pale, waged with fatigue and tears, but t it wore a valiant smile.

"Sit down, my dear," the lawyer id her. "I know you've had a terble ordeal."

The note of sympathy in his voice, e first she had heard that morn- almost blasted Ellen's self-ntrol. She wondered why she had ought once that she disliked mes.

"That's good of you," she said riomly. "I've been crying and cryg—oh, if only there were someng I could do for him!"

"There is," Symes told her. "You n be brave."

"I know," she said, raising helpss, childish eyes to him. "I'm— trying but if only my mother uld get here—!"

The man hesitated, cleared his roat, looked with infinite pity at little figure before him. He drew unresisting, to the sofa beside cleared his throat and again silent. At last he spoke.

"Your mother isn't coming."

"She's not coming?" Ellen repeatand felt a cold hand on her art.

"What is it?" she cried in a loud, ange voice. "Is it my brother- Is worse? Is that what you're keepfrom me?"

er hands trembled and her eyes e pits of horror as though she d not bear this second calam-

"No, it's not that," Symes was k to reassure here. "I asked Fers not to carry out your request use I think it would be better took you to your mother."

Ellen shook her head as though could not understand what he saying.

"My place is here with my husd," she insisted, clasping and lasping her cold hands.

"My dear child," Symes said pain-y, "you're making this uncomnly difficult for me, but I must you."

gain Ellen felt herself in the of rising horror. Symes' eyes htened her.

"Go on," she whispered.

er bravery wrung the man's rt. He had not known it could so hard.

"There's a technicality about the rriage," he muttered in an unain note in his voice. "I think would be best for you to avoid orters for a few days."

"If it's about the money," Ellen slowly, her pale cheeks flush- "I told Steven and I told you too that I don't care about it. He did so much for me before. I don't want any more. I just want to be with him till the—the end—"

"It isn't about the money," Symes said, avoiding her eyes. His glance was on the tips of his trim, immaculate boots. "It's about the marriage."

Ellen's bewildered eyes were watching him.

"I don't know what you mean," she said in a nervous effort, "but if it's something about the license, we didn't get one. The minister was going to mail it later—"

Symes resisted with difficulty the pleading, frightened glance. He felt the girl's cold, desperate fingers tugging at his wrist.

"I tried to reach Steven yesterday," he explained fumblingly, cursing himself for his lack of ease. "I tried all last evening but he wouldn't answer the telephone. He didn't know what I wanted. Yesterday Leda Grayson had Steven's divorce from her set aside. Ten days ago she slipped down to the Mexican court that granted it, bribed someone and, well—that's all. I only heard the news yesterday afternoon but the papers last night and this morning were full of it."

"That means—?" Ellen whispered, whitening. "Oh, no—it can't mean that!" she cried out desperately. "Why we were married in a church, he and I, by a minister. Mother was there and Myra—so it can't mean that. It can't!"

"I'm afraid it does," Symes told her wearily. "There's liable to be an ugly scandal and I can do nothing for you. You'll have to keep a stiff upper lip. We'll do all we can of course."

"But I don't understand at all!" Ellen said brokenly.

"Steven secured a Mexican divorce," Symes explained patiently. "It was against my advice, against the advice of all his friends and advisers. He wanted to protect that woman he married. He could have divorced her in this state easily but he chose Mexico. Mexican divorces are recognized in New York only if both parties consent to them."

"But she must have consented," Ellen said, "Steven wouldn't have."

"She did consent," the lawyer responded. "She signed the papers releasing all claim on him forever."

"Then why—?"

"Those papers have disappeared from Steven's safe. In some way—don't know how—anyway she got hold of them. She went to Mexico, had the court records lifted and swore she'd never had service. There's no legal proof she did because she's done away with it."

"But I—I don't understand at all!" Ellen said painfully, feeling this burning humiliation, this final indignity would kill her.

"You must understand and be brave. If Steven were living the whole thing could be fought out in court with him to stand back of you. As it is, you stand alone. Unless the papers are found, and I doubt that they can be, Lada Grayson has the prior claim. I'm afraid the courts will side with her. New York courts always frown on divorces obtained outside their jurisdiction."

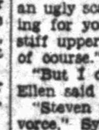

"You mean everyone will think Steven knew or I knew all the time he wasn't free?" Ellen heard herself saying.

Symes hesitated, was silent. Ellen knew the lawyer believed that they would would never accept her story of the night in Steven's home.

Stocks Swing Back Into Decline On Monday As Senate Probe Is Started

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP) — Stocks swung back into the decline today as investigation of market affairs by the senate banking committee began at Washington.

Volume, at 1,684,944 shares, was somewhat smaller than in some of last week's declines, and the session ended with 90 stocks averaging at a new low, fractionally under last Friday's minimum. Declines of 1-7 points in active issues more than cancelled gains made Saturday.

The senatorial inquiry apparently had little, if any, effect on the day's trading. Brokers said short selling, in the face of the senatorial inquiry, was a negligible factor and that the market's chief trouble was the same liquidation which Richard Whitney, president of the New York stock exchange stressed as the source of recent selling in principal issues. Wheat's strength encouraged a mild rally around mid-afternoon, but late weakness in rails robbed the recovery of any momentum and final prices were close to the bottom.

HARRIS VERY ILL

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — Physicians attending Senator Harris of Georgia said tonight he was "critically ill" and his condition is less favorable than it has been at any time since he was operated upon several weeks ago.

increasing thickness.

Schools Are Closed

The seven eruptions darkened Curaco to pitch blackness. Passers-by needed umbrellas to protect their eyes. Schools were closed to stem the panic and avert disaster in case of severe temblors. The town of Molina was in a panic on account of the terrific but non-destructive land shocks that accompanied the ashes.

Santiago proper felt the rumblings and watched a heavy pall of ashes approach, but was not seriously affected. Suburbs of Nunoa Los Leones and Recoleta reported earth shocks.

The observatory at El Salto reported the rumblings started Saturday afternoon, and the first severe shock was recorded at 10:30 p. m. that night.

SEE EARLY E[illegible]MENT

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — Senate Democrats tonight unanimously agreed to seek early enactment of the revenue bill.

Lion Session

club a day is expected to be set before the next international meeting.

Two Special Talks

Place of the lion, the king of beasts, in the animal kingdom and also his record in history, art and folk lore, was extolled. Also the nation's first president, George Washington and his ideals of citizenship that the clubs seek to follow, were extolled.

A men's chorus, under the direction of W. W. Rix, closed the program.

Two special talks, one by Mr. Hyer, and the other by D. E. Colp, chairman of the Texas state Park board, featured the afternoon program at the First M. E. church.

The two talks shortened the reports of club presidents on their various activities, but it was the concensus at the close that the time was well spent. During the address of the head of the international organization S. S. McKay, Lubbock, group chairman, presided.

Work Is Explained

Prefacing his remarks by a request through the district governor, Sam Braswell, that the delegates occupy the front seats, Mr. Hyer explained "I don't want to make an address—I just want to talk to you." His talk was along the lines of club building and throughout he punctuated the remarks with visions of the work of the international organization.

After visiting 40 districts throughout the North American continent Mr. Hyer has come back to Texas to talk to his home groups. "The members of this organization are a working and a fighting organization, ready at any time," he said. "During the first eight months of this year, ending February 29, our receipts were $1,142 in excess of our expenses."

"The president of any club is ninety per cent of the club, the secretary five per cent and the rest of the members five per cent," he said. Mr. Hyer told how he, as a club president, would break in a new member, by finding his hobby and by putting him at work on something he was interested in.

Suggestions Received

During the past two years the international orgahization has given over 6,800 keys to members for their work in securing new ones. More members were received for the first seven months of the current fiscal year than for the same time last year.

Suggestions for making programs interesting were given. They included: a radio program with a local or neighboring station cooperating; out of the club speakers from five nearby clubs; a controversial program with speakers discussing live civic, state or national issues.

Comparative figures with the Rotary and Kiwanis International organizations were given, showing the expenses of the three groups. At the close of his talk a rising vote of appreciation was given.

Parks Are Described

Mr. Colp, one of the members of the Austin club, the second or third in the state, spoke about the park board and its work. He named the several parks of the state and their acreages: Palo Duro, 40,000 acres; Guadalupe Mountains, 39,000; Davis mountains, 20,400; Caddo Lake, half of the 70,000 acre lake and the park along the Brazos river near Mineral Wells, comprising 25,000 acres.

Besides these there are 53 smaller parks over the state, 11 of which have reverted to donors because of reversion clauses that became effective because the state could not start work on the park before a specified date.

Pictures were shown later at the Hilton and Lubbock hotels of some park work.

A feature of the program was the violin quartet from the Rotan club. The young women comprising the group, which played three numbers, were: June Allen, Sally Kennedy, Empress Shelton and Louise Moon, with Ouida Shelton pianist and Miss Treva Miller as chaperone.

"Puny" Moore led the group singing at the opening of the program. Mrs. Moore presided at the piano.

reports of club presidents and the reports of club presiednts and the state convention announcement would be made at the Tuesday morning session.

Routine Business On Court Program

Routine business—payment of bills, approval of reports and one purchase—comprised the meeting of the county commissioner's court Monday afternoon. Claude A. Burrus presided in the absence of Judge E. L. Pitts, Lions club president, who was aiding in the district Lions convention.

Paul Crouch, an employe in the tax collector's office, was authorized to make a report from the office completing the affairs of Collector A. J. Clark, who died last Tuesday. Bid of R. B. George for $203.15 was accepted on a small highway grader. Reports of Sheriff Wade Hardy, Justices W. S. Clark and J. K. Porter and District Clerk Charles B. Metcalfe were accepted.

The court voted to pay Henry Mahoney $200 for right-of-way and damages on a road, which passes through two miles of the Mahoney land, south of the Myrick farm, in precinct four. Attending were Commissioners Burrus, J. T. Pinkston, L. C. (Claude) Denton and W. L. Brashear.

Honor Slayers

abduction and slaying in his opening statement but Darrow, keeping the prosecution in the dark as much as possible regarding his plans, reserved his statement to the mixed jury.

The veteran Chicago lawyer questioned prosecution witnesses closely as to whether Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie, co-defendant, made any remark when the car containing Kahahawai's body was stopped while it was dashing toward the wild waters about Koko head, near the outskirts of the city.

Jones Pointed Out

Ulii testified he had gone to the judiciary building with Kahahawai January 8, the day of the tragedy, when the latter made his daily report pending retrial on charges of participating with four other men in an attack on Mrs. Massie, wife of the lieutenant and daughter of Mrs. Fortescue.

The witness pointed out Albert O. Jones, one of the two accused enlisted men, as the person who handed Kahahawai a spurious warrant. Jones arose and gazed unflinchingly at Ulii. The latter previously had named Mrs. Fortescue, Massie and Edward J. Lord, the fourth defendant, as the abductors. He said Massie wore a false moustache.

As Ulii pointed to Mrs. Fortescue as the woman in the abduction car she did not look up.

NEWS BRIEFS

James E. Watson, Jr., of Lubbock has been accepted by the Tennessee university school of medicine as a transfer-student from the University of Missouri. A recent decision to discontinue third and fourth-year instruction in the Missouri medical school necessitated transfers of sophomores so they could continue studies in clinical subjects.

Two automobile casings were reported stolen during the week-end, police said: One casing was stolen on Seventeenth street between G and F Avenues. Collier Parris reported theft of a wheel, spare tire and tire cover from an automobile in the 1000-block of Main street either late Sunday or early Monday.

Fayden for Boston and Alvis Crowder for the Senators—battled on even terms.

Boston Comes Close

An exciting moment came in the fifth, when Pickering, the Boston third sacker, doubled and Van Camp, first baseman, sacrificed. Fast fielding of Oliver's grounder by Bluege and a quick throw cut off Pickering at the plate. It was the nearest Boston came to a score.

The Red Sox combined two singles in the tenth but Crowder ended the rally by fanning MacFayden on three straight pitches.

MacFayden appeared to be weakening as the Senators came up and Myer drew a walk. Then big Manush put his shoulder into a terrific two base drive to right, Myer scampered around from first and crossed the plate with the run that put Walter Johnson's club off to a flying start.

Score by innings:

Boston	000 000 000 0—0
Washington	000 000 000 1—1

Runs batted in, Manush. Two base hits, Berry, Pickering, Manush. Sacrifices, Van Camp. Double player, Myer to Keer to Judge. Left on bases, Boston 6; Washington 9. Bases on balls off MacFayden 33, Struck out by MacFayden 1, Crowder 7. Umpires Dinnen, Hildebrand and Mariarity. Time of game 2.08.

money presumably was in the bags.

Where they went is not known, but the money is believed to have been turned over to a representative of the abductors on the following morning.

Directions Given

That day a Jafsie advertisement said:

"Yes, everything O. K." It was interpreted as a notification to the kidnapers the money had been paid.

The promised answer containing directions for finding the baby followed. It said the child was on a boat off Cape Cod.

On April 3 and 4 Lindbergh, Breckinridge and at least one other man were seen in a plane in the vicinity of Martha's Vineyard. They were looking for a yacht named Sally or Nellie. They did not not find it.

No Explanation

Tuesday passed without an explanation of why the agreement had not been carried out. On Wednesday a Jafsie advertisement read:

"What is wrong? Have you crossed me. Please better directions."

In addition to that story, the Star said the original ransom note threatened death to the baby if police were called in, and the paper also stated the abductors at one time expressed dissatisfaction with the publicity regarding the case and demanded $70,000 but that the amount was cut down to the original $50,000 by efforts of Dr. Condon.

Five Persons Go To Deaths

Three Others Attempt To End Lives In Series Of Suicide Pacts In Cleveland; Probes Made By Police

CLEVELAND, April 11 (AP)—Five persons committed suicide in Cleveland yesterday and today and three others attempted to end their lives.

Those who died were identified by police as: W. A. Turner, 66, Mrs. W. A. Turner, 60, Mrs. Elsie Bernasek, 30, Michael Kapcsos, 43, and Frank Hoffman, 46.

A suicide pact brought death today to Mr. and Mrs. Turner. Police said Turner shot his wife with a revolver, then slashed his throat with a razor. Their bodies were found in their home.

A note left by the couple said they had agreed upon this form of death.

Mrs. Bernasek, mother of five small children, died in a hospital last night, a few minutes after she and her husband, Frank, 30, swallowed poison from the same glass, the police reported. Doctors said Bernasek will recover.

Bernasek told officers he and his wife had quarreled because he was earning so little money. She drank the poison before he could stop her, and impulsively, he finished the glass.

Kapcsos and Hoffman were despondent over financial troubles. The former drank poison, the latter inhaled gas.

It Has Been Long Road—Fred Stone's Years On Stage, But He Will Be Seen In His Best Show Here Friday Night

The appearance of the one and only Fred Stone in a new show is invariably the gala event of any theatrical season. So there is particular zest in the sponsorship by the Avalanche-Journal of the Broadway star's new show, "Smiling Faces," in the Lubbock high school auditorium, Friday night, April 15. Chief in the support of the star in the most glamorous musical comedy success of his career is his own delightful and talented daughter, Paula Stone.

It has been a long road that Mr. Stone has traveled since the days, when as a boy, he joined up with a circus. Life under the big-top taught the youth much, and it was there that he laid the foundation for the marvelous pantomimic gift and the rare bundle of ever new tricks upon which his fame has been built. As agile as ever, and equipped with the most amusing stunts of his career, Fred Stone, in "Smiling Faces" has absolutely the best role of his notable career. He is a motion-picture director, a detective, an aviator, constantly natural and constantly hilariously amusing.

Host Of Stars In Cast

In "Smiling Faces" Mr. Stone is provided with one of the greatest aggregations of musical comedy favorites ever assembled. Not only does the roster of "Smiling Faces" include Paula Stone, but also Roy Royston, Lotti Loder, Billy Taylor, Doris Patston, Hope Emerson, Isabel O'Madigan, Adora Andrews, Eddie Garvie and Boyd Davis. Then there are the famous Albertina Rasch Dancers, together with an ensemble of 75, including a bevy of Broadway's loveliest show-girls and nimblest dancers.

Tickets for the show may be obtained at Bowen's Drug store, corner of Broadway and Avenue J, or by enclosing remittance with applications by mail to Parker Prouty care of the Avalanche-Journal. Ticket prices range from $1 to $3.

Above is shown Fred and Paula Stone as they appear in "Smiling Faces," the new musical comedy of the Broadway comedian's which will be staged in the Lubbock high school auditorium Friday night, April 15.

Fieser Offers High Tributes

Vice Chairman Of The American Red Cross Speaks At First Session Of Annual Convention On Monday

WASHINGTON, April 11. (AP)—How the Red Cross responded to the needs of drouth, storm, tornado and unemployment emergencies the last year was told today by James L. Fieser, vice chairman.

Addressing the opening session of the annual convention of the national Red Cross, Fieser sketched a word picture of the organization's far-flung activities and paid high tribute to its chairman, John Barton Payne, for his "unselfish and courageous service."

The Red Cross has been designated by congress to distribute to the needy flour made from 40,000,000 bushels of government wheat. Fieser said more than one-third of this amount is now in the process of being distributed.

Rabbi William F. Rosenblum of Temple Israel, New York, warned that congress must forget "sectional pride, petty partisan politics and personal ambition" and enact measures "striking at the fundamental causes of economic unrest and material instability."

"Otherwise," he said, "the masses here will rise in their might and demand a hunger loan more gigantic in scope than any of the victory loans which were oversubscribed so generously during the war." The convention, attended by about 1,000 delegates, will continue through Thursday.

Open Forum Described As "Poor Man's College" By Speaker Here On Sunday

A recently organized open forum here was described as "a poor man's college" by the Rev. Bradner J. Moore at a meeting of the unit Sunday afternoon in the district courtroom. The purpose, he said, was to discuss anything of interest.

The scheduled speaker did not appear, and the Rev. Mr. Moore and several other members spoke on the objects of the group. The minister said religion, politics, constitutional government, international relations, the public educational system, labor unions, and countless sociological and cultural subjects should be discussed.

J. J. Smelser, temporary chairman, appointed Rev. Mr. Moore as chairman, and Ed Wilson, Bob McCall, J. H. Halcomb, and Henry Ducrell as other members of a committee to study Rev. Mr. Moore's proposal that a recreational house for unemployed be established here.
