Pioneer Natural Gas Company Makes Considerable Changes

Pioneer Natural Gas Company customers paid their bills in March in attractive new quarters around the corner from the building that was the company's first "official" office in Olton.

During the early years when Pioneer served Olton and the surrounding area, only a part time collector represented the company locally. For a time Parsons Furniture and Jones Furniture were collection sites.

Pioneer opened its own location on Main Street in 1961 and remained there until their move into the building formerly occupied by Sherman Insurance Agency.

The move benefits include more than an attractive setting. More parking facilities are available at the new location and more storage space for equipment that might be needed to meet the needs of Pioneer's customers.

"Not only is it an improvement in working conditions," says Wilton McDonald, Manager, "we feel the move is also better for our customers."

James Gallagher, general plant operator, has been in Olton 21 of his 26 years with Pioneer.

Irma Cooper, senior distribution office clerk, began working with the company right after graduation from Springlake High School. At first, she worked two weeks in the Earth office and two weeks in the local office. She was "on duty" the entire month except for billing time beginning in 1963 and has been full time since August 1970.

Natural gas was first turned on into Olton back in June of 1949 when West Texas Gas Company added the Olton area to territory they served.

West Texas Gas Company, a parent company of Pioneer, began construction on June 22, 1927 of the original natural gas pipeline from the Panhandle Field to the North and South Plains and the Permian Basin.

Jan. 1, 1954 saw the consolidation of West Texas Gas Company, Dalhart Gas Company, Clayton Gas Company and Amarillo Gas Company into one natural gas utility under the name Natural Gas Company.

Since that 1949 day when Oltonites first "turned on the gas" natural gas customers have grown to 875 accounts within the city limits. As of Oct. 1, 1973, 745 irrigation wells were transferred for service through the local office.

Pioneer Natural Gas Company today supplies energy for almost a quarter million customers for residential, commercial, industrial and other uses. It serves a West Texas area covering 40,000 square miles reaching from Dalhart to the north and Odessa, Midland and Ozona to the south. Westward it reaches the New Mexico border and eastward to Big Spring.

The 1973 annual report, just issued, cites about 34,000 irrigation wells operating on natural gas supplied by Pioneer for the ten million acres of cultivated land within Pioneer's service area of which about three-fifths is under irrigation.

Shares of Pioneer stock, according to the report, are widely distributed throughout the United States and several foreign countries.

Subsidiaries of the company include Amarillo Oil Company and Pioneer Production Corporation whose working interest in 24 wells completed in 1973 resulted in three oil wells and nine gas wells. Drilling operations were in progress at the year end on 10 additional wells.

Pioneer's subsidiary companies operated seven natural gasoline extraction plants at the end of 1973 - five in Texas and two in Oklahoma - as well as owning working interests in six additional gasoline extraction plants - two in Texas, three in Oklahoma and one in New Mexico.

Plains Machinery Company, also a subsidiary of Pioneer, covers all counties in the state of Texas except for six in the immediate area of El Paso.

In April of 1973, Pioneer Nuclear, Inc. and Texas Eastern Nuclear, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation, announced a joint exploration effort aimed at the discovery of uranium ore. This joint venture arrangement permitted Pioneer Nuclear to more than triple the company's exploration efforts in Utah, Wyoming and California and added a major exploration effort in New Mexico.

Pioneer Nuclear's joint-venture Conquista Uranium Mill in Karnes County completed its first full year of production in 1973. Start-up problems have been

Athletic Banquet Set

Tickets On Sale Now

The annual All-Sports Banquet for Olton High School has been scheduled for April 27, according to Coach Edd Miller.

Guest speaker for the event will be Dale Evans, Defensive Secondary Coach at Texas Tech University.

Students of the athletic program, boys and girls, will be offering tickets for sale for the event which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Athletes and coaches will be recognized an awards presented to Best Student Athlete, Best All Around Football Player, Best Boy Basketball Player, Best Girl Basketball Player, Most Valuable Golfer and Most Valuable Track Boy and Girl.

The Fighting Mustang Award, a selection made by secret ballot of the athletes themselves, will also be presented.

Storm Warning Signals Explained For Residents

Olton's storm warning system is inadequate at the present time according to Civil Defense co-ordinator

Tom Smith. Because of the inadequacy, Smith says that fire department vehicles will be used to sound warning alarms in the event Oltonites should seek protection from a confirmed tornado.

TAKE-COVER signals from the siren at the fire station, which will also be sounded, feature a high and low sound coming from high to low, pitch with a near pause.

TORNADO ALERT signal, sounded as a warning of a possible tornado, is a warbling sound, Smith said.

Smith urged residents to watch for the new weather coverage offered by Lubbock's three television channels.

It is suggested that this be clipped and placed in a conspicuous place.

CLEANING UP FOR THE DOCTOR - Miss Ann Warren and Mrs. Z.D. Miller along with five other women formed a clean-up brigade Thursday to help ready Community Clinic facilities for the arrival of Dr. and Mrs. James Kirkpatrick and baby.

Local Garden Club To Sell Plants Wednesday

Civic-minded citizens who wish to contribute to the beautification of the city, and to their own yards in particular, will find locally grown plants, bulbs and shrubs on sale Wednesday, April 10.

Mrs. George Bohner, acting chairman of Olton

Garden Club's annual plant sale promises a good supply of plant-life will be available at Don's Super Market on that date.

The sale begins at 9:30 a.m. and will be closed at 3 p.m. according to Mrs. John Lambright, president of the club.

Funeral Services Conducted For Early Pioneer Woman

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon in First United Methodist Church for Mrs. G.T. Gallaway, 84, longtime resident.

Officiating were the Rev. Al E. Jennings, pastor, and the Rev. Elmer Crabtree, retired Methodist minister. Interment was in Olton Cemetery under the direction of Parsons Funeral Home.

Mrs. Gallaway was dead on arrival about 5 p.m. Monday at Central Plains Hospital in Plainview.

The former Cloa Erb, was born June 1, 1889 in Marion County, Iowa and came to Olton in 1906. She was married to George T. Gallaway Dec. 25, 1909 in Olton. He preceded her in death in July, 1963.

MRS. G.T. GALLAWAY

A Methodist since early childhood, she was a member of the Campbell Sunday School Class. She was an active member of the Senior Citizens Club.

Survivors include three sons, Cecil of Houston, Charles and Wilbur; a daughter, Mrs. Gladys Womack of Midland; a brother, Artie Erb of Little River; 11 grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; one aunt; a niece, Mrs. Neva Hartick and one other niece. She also is survived by five grand nieces and nephews.

Pallbearers were Jimmy Gallaway, Kenny Gallaway, Jerry Mulky, Ralph Langley, Robert Moore and Frank Daugherty.

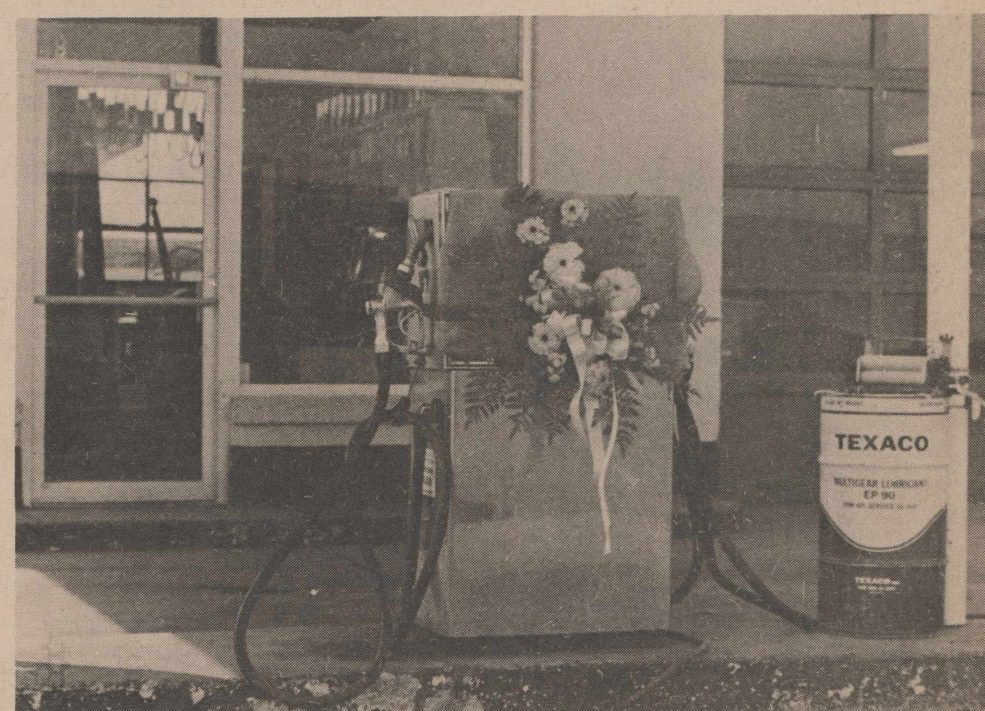

Honorary pallbearers were Tom McGill, Duane Eby, Art Nafzger, Ira McLain, Clayton Graef, Henry Miller, Glen Combett, Frank Crandall, I.B. Holt and Henry Cowart.

PIONEER'S NEW MOBILE NATURAL GAS EQUIVALENT PLANT mixes liquid petroleum gas (LPG) and air to form a combustible mixture similar in qualities to pipeline natural gas. It is used to maintain gas service during routine repairs or testing of pipelines and in emergency situations where additional gas is required for an isolated area on the system. The mobile unit has a capacity to produce 50,000 cubic feet of natural gas equivalent in an hour from 600 gallons of LPG - enough fuel to provide peak requirements of a number of towns on Pioneer's system such as Olton, Lockney, Seagraves or Tahoka. (Photo Courtesy, Pioneer Natural Gas.)

NO LIFE LEFT - the serious plight of a town without gas was emphasized with a bit of "it's better to laugh than cry" philosophy Saturday when K.Y. Givens, local Texaco dealer, placed this wreath on his empty pump about noon.

Lasso® can iron out many of the weed problems in Texas* cotton.

Including pigweed. Lasso controls pigweed like nobody's business, along with many other annual grasses and broadleaf weeds. You get good control that gives your Texas* cotton a better chance of becoming the kind of crop you're hoping to pick.

And Lasso is convenient to use. You don't have to incorporate. Put it on in a band, right behind your planter. Carryover? With Lasso, that's one thing you'll never have to worry about, because Lasso has no carryover. And if your cotton happens to be hailed out, you can still make a good crop of corn or soybeans, because Lasso is cleared for both of those crops.

Talk to your neighbors who've used Lasso. See if their experience doesn't confirm what we're saying. Then plan to use Lasso to iron out some of the weed problems in your cotton.

Lasso®
HERBICIDE BY Monsanto

As with all agricultural products, read the Lasso label carefully before using.

*Lasso is recommended for cotton in only certain Texas counties. Check the label or ask your farm dealer for information about the specific list of counties.

How early can you get a herbicide on sorghum?

You can get Milogard® herbicide on about as early as you can put a tractor in the field.

Preplant Milogard with or without your liquid fertilizer or put it on any time thereafter until just before the sorghum and weeds come up . . .

. . . which means the weeds die early, before they start taking soil moisture and nutrients that should go to the growing sorghum.

We recommend it. The earlier the better — as early as two to four weeks before planting. Or later. Milogard kills weeds any time in the preemergence period. Fit it to your schedule. But call in your order now.

Homemakers Discuss Basic Child Development

Fifteen Young Homemakers were present Monday night in high school Home Economics Cottage to hear Mrs. Jeanette Jenkins, of Texas Tech University's school of home economics.

Mrs. Jenkins delivered "an outstanding lecture on basic child development" according to one of the Young Homemakers. "She pointed out that physical, emotional, social and intellectual growth are all necessary for the total well-being of the child. Too much emphasis on anyone of these, however, can cause a child to be out of step with his society."

The speaker cited television as a present day "pied piper" because it freezes thought and action. She emphasized that parents need to participate with children and let them think and play creatively.

Mrs. Wynn Robinson opened the program with an invocation. Carl McClure and Melvin Rape closed the evening study by describing the proposed new City Hall and Community Center. After explaining the general floor plan and estimated cost of the project, McClure and Rape outlined benefits that the new complex would provide for the city of Olton.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Larry Nafzger and Mrs. Don Nafzger to the speakers, sponsors Mrs. H.B. Maxey Jr., and Mrs. Jodie Seaborn and members of the organization.

Mrs. Ogletree Presents Review For Club Meeting

Mrs. Mardema Ogletree was guest reviewer Monday, April 1, when Olton Study Club observed annual friendship night.

Held in Woman's Club House spring blossoms were used to decorate the entertaining area. Hostesses for the event were Mmes. Bailey Hair, D.M. Granbery and J.E. Fuller.

Mrs. Ogletree presented "Tamzen" a novel written by Jane Gilmore Rushing, a Lubbock Author who was reared in southeast Scurry County and admits to an interest in the history of that area.

"Tamzen" is a sweeping, romantic novel set in the Snyder area in the 1890's, when farmers and their wives came to disputed Block 97 to live in dug-outs and lean-tos until the State could arbitrate among the railroad, cattle barons and homesteaders as to who would have the land. Until that time guerilla warfare existed between wealthy ranchers and stubborn farmers.

Mrs. Ogletree pointed out that the story is an authentic novel portraying a vital part of American past that is now vanished.

The refreshment table, laid with a hand crocheted cloth over pale green, was centered with an arrangement of spring flowers. Using crystal and silver service, sausage appetizers and white cake squares topped with Easter designs, were served along with coffee and fruit punch.

Special guests for the evening were the speaker, D.M. Granbery, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hicks, and Mmes. W.B. Smith Jr., I.B. Holt, W.B. Dickenson Jr., George Richards, Jack Snider, Jack Alleorn, R.G. DeBerry, Eleanor Sudduth, Curtis Scruggs, Elmer McGill, Elmer Moore, Glenn Singleterry, Bob Daugherty, Linnie Campbell, Bob Duncan, George Redinger, and Misses Betty Ann Bass and Helen Locke.

I'm Fine

I'M FINE. HOW ARE YOU?
There's nothing whatsoever the matter with me—I'm just as healthy as I can be.

I have arthritis in both my knees,
And when I talk, I speak with a wheeze.
My pulse is weak and my blood is thin.
But I'm awfully well for the shape I'm in!

I think my liver is out of whack,
And I have a terrible pain in my back;
My hearing is poor and my eyes are dim,
Most everything seems to be out of trim.

The way I stagger sure is a crime;
I'm likely to fall at any time.
But all things considered,
I'm feeling fine.

Arch supports for both my feet,
Or I would not be able to walk down the street;
My fingers are ugly, stiff in the joints,
My nails are impossible to keep in points.

My complexion is bad, due to dry skin;
But I'm awfully well for the shape that I'm in!

My dentures are out, I'm restless at night;
In the morning I'm a frightful sight.

My memory's failing head's in a spin;
I'm practically living on aspirin,
But I'm awfully well for the shape I'm in.

Now the moral is, as this tale I unfold,
That for you and me who are growing old,
It's better to say "I'm fine" with a grin,
Than to tell everyone of the shape we're in!

"So much land -- and it going to waste!" was the impression Kazue Nakajima got of Texas when she arrived March 18 for a visit in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. E.A. Rawlings.

That belief is not surprising when one learns that pretty Mrs. Nakajima is a native of Tokyo, Japan, city of almost 14 million people.

Kazue (pronounced Kah-zue) came to Texas as a guest of the Rawlings' daughter, Ruth, who teaches in Nazarene Junior College in Chiba City. Kazue and her husband moved to Chiba City about 12 years ago where they have three coffee shops, one of which is combined with a German bakery.

Mother of two little girls, nine and five years old, Kazue left Saturday for her home while Ruth will remain in the states for more studies at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Asked if she planned to return to Japan, Ruth promptly answers, "definitely yes." She expects to be in the states about a year.

Ruth's first arrival on Oriental soil was April 1, 1965. She returned to the states in 1970 and completed classwork for her doctorate in English as a foreign language from Michigan U. in the spring of 1972.

Ruth found lots of change when she arrived back in Japan in 1972. Soon after her return, the school's president came home on furlough and an additional load of responsibilities came her way.

"Not the actual work of the president," she says quickly. Much of the additional responsibility, she explains, was in public relations work.

Very soon after that, the government requested the school's aid in teaching government employees English for a "short time." That work continues still with Ruth as the director. Ruth also teaches English to a professor of medicine at the University.

Across the bay from Tokyo, Chiba City was known as the "breadbasket of Tokyo," Ruth said in 1972. It still carries that title but has also become known as the "bed town of Tokyo" with many persons who work in Tokyo making their homes in Chiba City.

Price of land is extremely high with a lot of people investing in land. Ruth said one pastor expressed the opinion that land values had increased 10 percent per year while another claimed that estimate was "quite conservative."

"They serve the most delicious pastry and the coffee shops are very popular," Ruth says of her guest and friends. Although tea is still a traditional beverage at home, the Japanese people have come to enjoy coffee and many of the young people drink both instant and brewed coffee.

Interpreting for Kazue who neither speaks nor understands English, Ruth says the shops also sell coffee beans, grinding them to the customer's preference. Numerous coffees are sold including Brazilian, Colombian, Mocha, Kilimanjaro and a number of others.

"You don't buy brand name coffee but place name," Ruth says.

Flour and milk have doubled in cost and fresh sweet cream which the Nakajimas need in quantity has more than doubled. The coffee shops cannot raise their prices accordingly, however, the young owners believe.

In addition to increased costs, flour has also been difficult to get and was not available for a time. Japan does grow wheat but most is imported. Rice flour is used in making crackers but is not suitable for bakery products.

Higher prices of fuel at home does not seem quite so bad to Ruth who is used to paying a dollar a gallon for gas in Japan.

Fuels for home use have "skyrocketed" says Ruth. Propane has more than doubled. Kerosene which cost her 3,000 yen per barrel in 1972 is now 4,800 yen.

Visiting Olton Feedyards Monday, Kazue was thrilled to see the cowboys she had expected all Texans to be. Smiling and softly speaking her musical sounding tongue, "I like them," Ruth interprets.

Kazue confides she would like to live in Olton because it is so "peaceful and quiet," Ruth says.

"She looks out the windows and is overwhelmed not to see masses of people hurrying about. It's difficult for her to believe when she looks out and sees empty streets."

"She's a good 'PR Man' for her husband," Ruth says of Kazue clad in a beautiful Japanese kimono. Although she likes Western clothes and is taking home a pretty dress bought in a stop-over in Oklahoma City, Kazue wears the traditional garment much of the time and for all special occasions.

Write In The Groove

BRYAN ALLCORN AND FREDDY STOCKDALE

Looking through Time Magazine, we found a few jokes and quotes about the new college fad, streaking. Said Mr. A. Dale Smith of Indiana to the publishers of the magazine, "These poor dears simply want to show off their brains. They have got the notion from this generation of adults (including many parents and educators, movie and TV producers, editors and publishers) that the brain is not in the head at all - it is really down there below the belt."

Now it's question and answer time:

Q. What did Nixon say when he caught Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean streaking through the Watergate complex?

A. Cover Up!

Q. What do you call Congressman Carl Albert if he runs naked through the House of Representatives?

A. Streaker of the House.

Q. What's naked and runs across the desert?

A. The Streak of Araby.

If streaking is done by Mr. Onassis it is a Greek streak; by any Welshman, a leak streak; in the Middle East Henry Kissinger has doubtless seen a shiek streak; if the act is performed in Bergdorf's, it is no doubt a chic streak; while those running fully clothed in a nudist colony do a freak streak; in any high fashion store it is a boutique streak; the solo act, a unique streak; a group performs a clique streak; the chosen footwear suggests the sneaker streaker. The possibilities appear limitless. Even though these few naked lines have been about streaking, please bare with us.

We would like to congratulate the band as they traveled to Dimmitt for contest. They received two 1's in concert and sightreading. They travel to Six Flags in May.

DR. VAN BRIMHALL (DOC), veterinarian at Olton Feedyards, recently featured in "Beef", a publication dealing with feedlots and cattle related business, is shown here discussing plans with Charles Koontz, feedlot manager. (Photo by Fleming)

FROM NEW MEXICO
Mrs. E.L. Landtroop of Floyd, N.M., visited last weekend with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Graham, Rita, Debra, Jimmie, Diane and Steve.

TO AUSTIN
Mrs. Owen Norfleet came home Monday from Austin where she visited her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. David Brooks and Ian.

'Doc' Featured In Publication

An Olton man, because of his talent and complete dedication to the task he has chosen, has brought national professional recognition to himself and to the Company with which he labors.

V.E. Brimhall, doctor of veterinary medicine, associated with Olton Feedyard since its inception, was recently interviewed by the managing editor of a national magazine, termed 'The Business Paper of the Cattle Industry.'

His story is told in the pages of the March issue of BEEF, a controlled circulation magazine published in St. Paul, Minn.

Under the simple title "DOC", the managing editor, William D. Fleming tells the unusual story of Brimhall, assistant manager at Olton Feedyard, and Doctor V.E. Brimhall, veterinarian. The writer offers proof of the action involved in this dual role with five pages of on-the-scene pictures.

The report points up the fact that this man, familiar to local cattlemen as dashing up and down feedlot alleys in his brown pick-up, checking density at the mill, or examining an animal at the chute, is unique in his field.

Fleming presents "Doc" as one of only a handful of men in the entire industry "who have successfully combined two careers -- member of the feedlot management team and a trained veterinarian."

The article quotes Brimhall as admitting that it is hard to justify a veterinarian for more than 'half-time' in a 30,000-head operation such as Olton's. For this reason many vets split their time among as many as four or five yards. He adds, "The average feedyard today needs more veterinary supervision than it's getting."

Although he does not contend that the vet must be there every day, he feels that he ought to be there two to three times per week, and not for a fast 20-minute-visit, but for a full day's work.

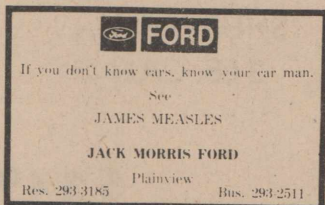

He made it clear that he feels a veterinarian should walk through the cattle, see them and then come back in 36 to 48 hours look at the same cattle and remember them. He needs to see cattle come off the truck and to autopsy them. Only this way can he get involved in the problems of the feedyard.

"Doc" is quoted as saying, "A lot of veterinarian's problems are management problems. Wet feed in the bunk. A mistake at the mill. These are things that may show up in the hospital. And the veterinarian-manager may be better able to spot that type of problem."

Five minutes after leaving the hospital Doc may be back behind his big walnut desk issuing orders to his cowboy foreman, based on scribbled notes he's been collecting.

This 'wearing of two hats' makes for very full days, but to justify a full time job in this size feedyard he feels that he has to know the total feedyard business to earn his way.

"Doc" sums up his philosophy in this statement, "There's a man in the office named Charlie Koontz, and the sign on his desk says Manager. And when he asks a question, I figure it's my job to know the answer, without running to a half-dozen workers to find out."

This stalk of GREGG 35W was grown in 1973

Left in the field as a test of its stormproofness -- after standing many sandstorms, 2 of hurricane proportions, it was finally plucked from the field on March 6, for this photo.

We never know when a windstorm will strike the Plains -- November 15, December 20, or February 20. Therefore, let us be prepared for the worst.

Gregg 35W is a fast maturing cotton; therefore the opportunities are good for a better mike on the bad years.

Staple-Lengths Of Gregg 35W

In a recent bulletin publishing the results of the Lubbock Classing Office for the season (1973-74) it showed the staple lengths 31/32 or shorter to be 69% while the Gregg 35W from our farm was only 1%. All grades with staples 1-1/32 or longer for the area was 14%; while that of our Gregg 35W was 77%. All of our Gregg 35W was classed at the Lubbock Office.

There has always been a higher price for the longer staples, and even more so today.
