U.S. arms go to Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Belgian weapons and American medical and military equipment have been speeded to Zaire as it tries to repel what it calls an invasion of "foreign mercenaries" from Angola.

Officials of the central African nation said today that the invaders who crossed into copper-rich Shaba Province last week were 5,000 mercenary troops led by "guerrilla and subversive war specialists from across the Atlantic."

The comment was considered a clear reference to Cuban forces which were instrumental in establishing a Marxist regime in Angola. The bulk of the forces, however, are believed to be exile guerrillas from Zaire itself.

Belgium's weapons shipments were the first ones reported by any country since Zaire announced the invasion last week. The Belgian Foreign Ministry said the two planeloads of light weapons had been ordered earlier and were only being speeded up. Some sources said 5,000 to 7,000 Belgians are still living in the invaded province, which was the Province of Katanga when Zaire was the Belgian Congo.

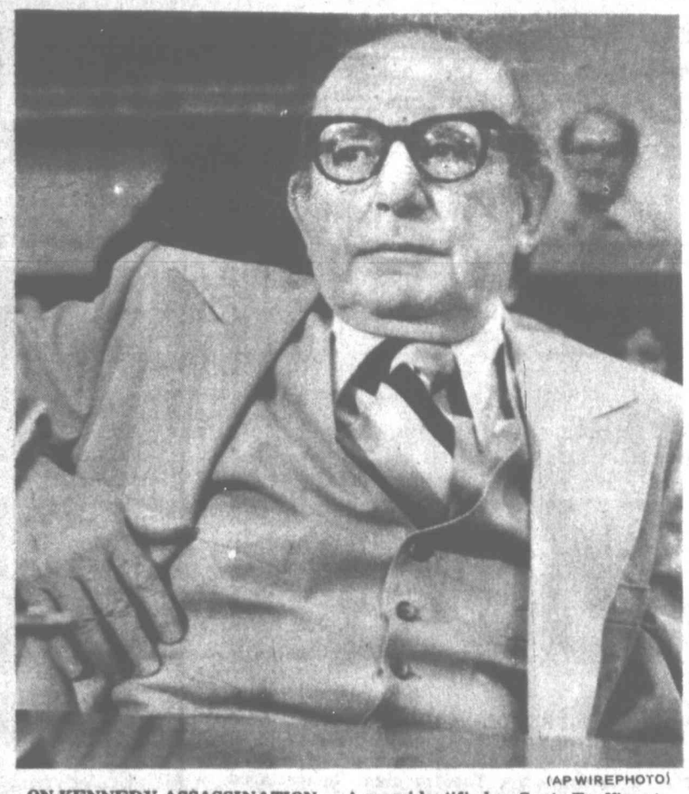

The Carter administration was hurrying $1 million in medical and military equipment to Zaire, including communications equipment, parachutes, packs, rations and fuel tanks.

It was Carter administration's first involvement in foreign warfare and a spokesman said Carter himself had made the decison.

U.S. officials said they had no confirmation that Cubans were involved in whatever fighting was taking place.

Cuban leader Fidel Castro is visiting Africa this week. He was scheduled to arrive in Tanzania today from Ethiopia. However, a Tanzanian Foreign Ministry spokesman said today that Castro will arrive there Thursday and that his visit to the country, which borders Zaire on the east, has been extended from three days to five. The spokesman gave no reason for the change in plans.

The Carter administration has been making overtures to Castro in hopes of improving relations with Cuba. Cuban intervention in Zaire could disrupt that effort.

AF secretary Reed visits Webb AFB

Secretary of the Air Force Thomas Reed made an unannounced visit to Webb Air Force Base shortly after noon today and toured as much of the facilities as he could in an hour.

He resumed his flight shortly before 1:30 p.m. and refused to hold a press conference while on the base.

At his apparent request, the news media was not notified while he was on the base.

Sec. Reed was accompanied here by his wife and some members of his staff.

He toured the base with Wing Commander Harry Spannaus, who said Reed got a thorough briefing on the base facilities and the functions of the personnel.

SEC. THOMAS REED

Spannaus has called a press conference for 3 p.m., this afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce office, during which time he will explain in greater detail the nature of Reed's visit.

Reed has formally resigned from the office but remains on duty until his successor can be named.

Runnels student is top speller

No aspersions were hanging over the two top spellers here Tuesday, but that word did mean the difference between a trip to the regional competition in Lubbock and the runner-up slot.

Julianne Rains, 13, misspelled the word "aspersion", then her only remaining opponent, Leticia Hernandez, 14, spelled it correctly and also spelled "asterisk" to win the Howard County Spelling Bee.

Leticia is the daughter of Mrs. J.B. Hernandez, 303 N. Aylford, and Julianne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Raines, 2610 Rebecca.

Leticia, an eight grader from Runnels Junior High School and Julianne, a seventh grader from Goliad Junior High, were locked in a duel for the championship for 16 rounds after the field of 15 was narrowed down to the final two in the ninth round.

Leticia will represent Howard County and the Big Spring Herald in the Regional Spelling Bee April 16 at 12:30 p.m. at Moody Coliseum on the campus of Lubbock Christian College, Lubbock. The winner of that tournament will advance to the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C. June 6-11. Julianne will compete in the Regional meet, if Leticia is unable to.

Last year, Glenn Margolis, Howard County Champion, advanced to the National Finals.

Mark Yarbrough, Elbow Elementary, was the only speller to miss in the first round, on "container" while those being elminated in the second round included Irene Hernandez, Lakeview Elementary on "graduate"; Diana Martinez, Cedar Crest Elementary on "illustrate"; Rhonda Camp, Coahoma Junior High on "inferior"; and Angie Hepner, Washington Elementary on "insurance."

Scott Sherer, Park Hill Elementary, missed "intellect" in the third round, but the field remained intact through the fourth and fifth rounds.

In the sixth round, Alana Merrick, Airport Elementary missed on "relinquish" while four spellers were eliminated in the seventh round, including Norma Rubio, Bauer Elementary, who missed "scour"; Dawn Ditto, Moss Elementary, missed "scrimmage"; Dean McKenzie, College Heights Elementary, missed "seminar"; and Ron Lewis, Marcy Elementary, missed "shepherd."

Boydstun Elementary's Ester Strain missed "technical" in the eighth round and Kentwood Elementary's Kristy Mathews missed "tenant" in the ninth round, leaving Miss Raines and Miss Hernandez as the only remaining contestants.

No water shortage here

While other parts of the nation are beginning to express fear of a water shortage, Colorado River Municipal Water District continues to provide an adequate supply of water in this part of the state.

"Actually, the water supply in this area is better than it was a year ago," according to CRMWD officials. "Four new wells have just been completed in the Ward County field. This field is back up to one million gallons a day more than the original capacity when the field was opened six years ago," the officials stated.

"The increase in water in this field will handle the summer peak supply which is always a question of concern," the spokesman continued.

"As to the lakes, Lake Thomas is up two feet higher than it was a year ago. Lake Spence is down less than a foot. There are over 67 billion gallons in reserve in these two lakes at this time.

"Of course, we would like to have some rains on the Lake Thomas watershed to bring that lake up where we can mix it in more for improving the quality of the water," the CRMWD office stated.

"Added to these reserves are the reserves in the city well fields at Snyder, Big Spring and Odessa which have not been pumped. Big Spring has wells in the O'Barr Field in Glasscock County. Powell and Moss Creek Lake serve as intermediate storage and any water caught in them from rainfall also goes into the system," the report concluded.

The water district is also looking to the future in other areas of water development for this part of West Texas which will be announced in the next few months.

In assassination probe

Mobster won't testify

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reputed crime figure appeared today before the House committee investigating the assasination of President John F. Kennedy but repeatedly invoked the Fifth Amendment against self incrimination.

Santos Trafficante, once a reputed gambling kingpin in Cuba, is the sole survivor of a gangland trio secretly enlisted by the CIA in 1960 in futile efforts to kill Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

According to published reports, the FBI had information that Trafficante once told people in advance that Kennedy would be assassinated but the FBI dismissed the remark as braggadocio.

The Senate intelligence committee said Trafficante was the underworld figure who helped line up a potential assassin in one of the CIA plots to assassinate Castro.

Trafficante's identity as a witness was not disclosed before the hearing by the House committee on assassinations.

One committee member said the witness should not be identified in advance because "some of those people have been shot for testifying, you know."

The other two underworld figures were Sam Giancana and Johnny Roselli, who were both murdered in the past two years. A Senate intelligence committee heard testimony from Roselli and was seeking Giancana's testimony on the CIA assassination plot.

The intelligence committee, since disbanded, concluded last year that Castro was unlikely to have figured in Kennedy's assassination, despite the plots against his own life.

Meanwhile, James Earl Ray, the convicted killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., says he is willing to testify before the committee if it will not prejudge his contention that he did not kill the civil rights leader in Memphis nine years ago.

In a television interview Tuesday night, Ray denied, as he has before, that he shot King. He said he had been sent to get a tire fixed at the time King was killed and was set up to take the blame.

Ray, who is serving a 99-year sentence, was interviewed in his Tennessee jail by correspondent Dan Rather on CBS' "Who's Who."

Ray said his only contact with the assassination was through a man named Raoul. Ray said he thought he was involved in a gun-running operation under Raoul's direction.

Mahon going along with Carter plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration economic stimulus appropriation may seem like a major step to some congressmen. But not to Rep. George Mahon.

Mahon, 77, has seen a lot of stimulus proposals in his 42 years in Congress. Some of them were more momentous than the one which he, as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, steered to passage Tuesday.

"In 1935, Franklin D. Roosevelt asked for $4 billion dollars for public works. It was an unheard of sum at the time. The entire federal budget in 1934 was only $6 billion."

To measure up to that Rooseveltian proportion, Carter's stimulus package, which totals $30 billion over two years, would have to spend about 10 times as much.

Mahon voted for the Depression measure, along with an overwhelming majority of both the House and Senate. "We had a serious situation then. There were soup lines and millions of people out of work," the Democrat from Lubbock, Tex. recalled. He was formerly district attorney in Big Spring.

The Roosevelt program did not convince Mahon that it was wise for the government to incur a deficit to stimulate the economy. "It worked to some extent, but it wasn't until World War II that the country finally moved ahead at full speed. None of the stimulus bills I've seen have ever been successful in every detail," he said.

Leftist leader killed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Kamal Jumblatt, leader of the leftist alliance in Lebanon's civil war, was killed in a machinegun ambush today, police reported.

The 59-year-old socialist leader, target of several assassination attempts in the past, was killed while riding in his car in the mountain town of Baakline, 21 miles southeast of Beirut, the police said.

Two Jumblatt aides also were killed in the ambush, a police spokesman said. A massive police hunt for the unknown assassins was under way, he added.

Sources from Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist party said at the time of the assassination, he was touring the Chouf region —heartland of the Moslem Druze sect which Jumblatt led.

The ambush site was near the Christian village of Deir El kamar, hometown of Jumblatt's political arch-enemy, the former Christian president of Lebanon, Camille Chamoun.

Jumblatt was a millionaire landlord espousing a leftist reform program, a poet and a mystic with a masterly command of power politics. He won the 1972 Lenin peace prize.

More experienced teachers bill vote due

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A divided House scheduled a final vote today on a West Texan's attempt to make sure freshmen and sophomores in college get the benefit of more experienced teachers.

The House, by a 78-60 vote, tentatively approved a bill Tuesday that would limit state-financed colleges in their use of graduate students as teachers.

The sponsor, Rep. John Hoestenbach, D-Odessa, said "it isn't going to hurt" full-time professors "to teach a little bit. It isn't going to hurt them to get some exposure to these young people. It might even give the professors a new outlook."

Senators dealt Tuesday with retirees; ex-convicts; speed limits near schools; ready-mix concrete trucks and the right of Texans to display an old slot machine, maybe in their dens — without being prosecuted.

On voice vote, the Senate sent to the House a bill to appropriate $19.5 million to increase retirement benefits for state employes who worked at least 30 years and have already retired.

Another bill by Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, would provide $2.2 million for the Texas Department of Corrections to cover utility bills and to pay discharged inmates $200 instead of $100. It was approved 28-0.

Sen. Frank Lombardino's bill allowing the state highway agency and local governing boards to hold one meeting a year to set speed limits near public and private schools was approved 27-0. Citizens could appeal if they thought the maximum speed should be lowered.

Good-natured opposition arose to a bill exempting persons owning gambling devices that are 35 years or older from possible prosecution.

"Does your bill cover 35-year-old bingo cards?" Sen. Don Adams, D-Jasper, asked the sponsor, Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth.

"No-o-o," replied Mrs. Andujar.

Gen. Roberts gets fourth star?

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown notified Gen. John W. Roberts, commander of the Air Training Command at Randolph Air Force Base, San Antonio that he has been nominated by President Jimmy Carter as a four-star general.

Gen. Roberts entered aviation cadets back during the World War II years in 1943. He has been a frequent visitor to Webb AFB as head of the ATC.

Q. Who blew it on getting Texas Instruments to open a new plant in Big Spring. Why did Midland-Odessa get it? Is this what we have to look forward to if the base closes?

A. Texas Instruments did not express an interest in the Big Spring area although the industrial group attempted to interest them in this part of West Texas. The industrial group did nail one of the better industries in Texas for a town this size last year according to the state's industrial report. The group is made of individual citizens giving of their spare time to help Big Spring. Perhaps the questioner would like to join the chamber, apply for membership on the industrial committee and give input into how to better obtain industry for Big Spring.

Offbeat: Lawless town

RUSSELL, Iowa (AP) — Somebody lost the laws of the town of Russell but nobody seems too worried.

"We all trust each other," says 23-year veteran City Clerk Mona Coop, 68. She says no one in the community of 591 persons has objected to the enforcement of laws not available in written form.

"We just think somebody borrowed it and forgot. I don't think anybody stole it," she said.

There is a handwritten book of ordinances from which the missing typed record was made years ago, she said.

Clayton seeks third term

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton said today he is a candidate for a third term as House speaker of the 1979 legislature.

"I am not interested in the Agriculture Commissioner job (to succeed John White) and I am not interested in running against Sen. John Tower," Clayton told a news conference.

"But I do intend to run for speaker again."

Clayton said he already had 90 "firm" pledges of support for the 1979 campaign.

Moonies brainwashed?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A routine court hearing has ballooned into a "trial" of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church and the professional deprogrammers hired to battle his influence on the young people called moonies. At issue are "brainwashing" tactics each side claims the other uses — one to win converts to the church; the other, to wean them away.

Tax, spend 'snowball'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax cut and spending program launched by President Carter to jog the lagging economy is snowballing through Congress and seems certain to emerge bigger than it started. How much bigger it will be than $31.6 billion — the administration's latest two-year estimate — is still a question. The House on Tuesday voted a $23.3 billion appropriation to fund major elements of Carter's program and substantial additions by Congress.

Married couples 'break'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee appears ready to fatten the House-approved permanent tax cut for married couples and take away some benefits now earmarked for single persons. No large sums are involved in either case. But action could mean a tax increase of about $25 for 1.8 million single persons. It's all in the name of reducing the "marriage penalty," often accused of enticing unmarried persons to live together.

$100 million sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will ask Congress to approve a $100 million special allocation to be used in part to support a peaceful transfer of power from Rhodesia's white minority to its black majority. The request, scheduled to be made today, is part of a three-front effort by the Carter administration to bring financial, diplomatic and legal pressures to bear to avert a black-white war in southern Africa.

More power for Indians?

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Indians living on reservations should have the power of self-determination, including authority to levy taxes and try non-Indians in their tribal courts, a report for Congress says. These are among more than 100 recommendations in a report by the American Indian Policy Review Commission, a member of the panel said Tuesday night. The panel includes six congressmen and five Indian representatives.

World's largest election

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The world's largest election began today as India's silent masses began going to the polls to elect a new lower house of Parliament and to decide whether Prime Minister Indira Gandhi will continue in power. The voter turnout was reported heavier than usual, a development that Mrs. Gandhi's opponents had said should prove favorable to them. Voting was scheduled today in 300 of the country's 542 election districts and continues through Sunday. First results were to be announced then, after the final balloting.

Mill town to welcome

CLINTON, Mass. (AP) — This small mill town is prepared with peanut corsages and "Welcome Jimmy" signs for the biggest event in most residents' memories — a visit by the President.

Jimmy Carter comes to Clinton tonight to participate in a special town meeting, the first in his series of "meet-the-people" stops around the country.

"You can feel the excitement," said Earl Wilson, town clerk. "It's in the pulse of the town. There hasn't been anything like this in the 45 years I've lived here."

There was plenty of evidence that the impending visit caught the attention of Clinton's 13,500 residents.

Some people pounded welcome signs into their front lawns.

A grocery store advertisted bags of peanuts certified to have been "processed by President Carter's peanut plant in Plains, Ga."

Skyjacker overpowered by police

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — An Italian hijacker was overpowered by Swiss police and arrested today at the end of an 8,500-mile pirate flight in a Spanish airliner around Europe and West Africa. It was the second longest hijacking in distance on record and the longest by a lone hijacker.

Police said the hijacker, Luciano Porcari, managed to grab his Winchester rifle and fire one shot, slightly wounding one of the three policemen who seized him inside the plane. No one else was hurt, the police said.

(AP WIREPHOTO)

RELEASED HOSTAGES — The last of the hostages seized aboard an Iberia Airlines flight by Italian hijacker Luciano Porcari are seen at Zurich airport, today, after their release. The Spanish domestic flight was hijacked Monday and taken some 88,500 miles in what is believed the longest hijacking on record. Swiss police stormed the plane today disguised as air crewmen.

"Holy Mother of God, it's finished," said Porcari's estranged wife in Turin, Italy, when she heard it was over. The wife, Isabella Zavoli, had refused to surrender the couple's 5-year-old daughter to Porcari, one of his demands during the 44½-hour hijacking.

Police said Porcari, a 36-year-old auto mechanic, was being held in investigative custody pending a decision on whether he should be tried in Switzerland. Spain is expected to seek his extradition.

The three policemen entered the plane posing as members of a fresh flight crew that was to fly the Iberian Airlines Boeing 727 to Moscow. They subdued the hijacker within moments.

The 13 passenger-hostages still aboard the plane and the seven exhausted crew members who had manned the aircraft since early Monday afternoon were released unharmed.

Also aboard was Porcari's 3-year-old daughter by an African mistress. The child was picked up in the Ivory Coast.

"He didn't threat us badly," said Maria Teresa Lloret Castell, one of the freed hostages. "He behaved like a gentleman. He even tried to calm down my children."

Porcari released seven other passengers in Turin, Italy, and nine in Zurich Tuesday.

The hijacker brought the plane to Zurich from Warsaw where he had agreed to free all hostages in exchange for the new crew to fly him to Moscow. After three hours of negotiations, the Spanish ambassador to Poland, Jesus Millarudo, said:

"We can't understand the man's mind. He must be crazy. It has nothing to do with politics. He just thinks he's solving his personal problems."

Porcari's mother, in Turin, blamed the hijacking on the Italian government, whose policies she said had forced her son to go to Africa to find work without assistance.

"He was an honest boy and would have never hurt anyone because he has a good heart," said Margherita Porcari. "He wanted a family of his own like everyone else and he had a right to."

A Turin newspaper, La Stampa, said Porcari viewed the hijacking as "the final chapter" of a book he was writing about his life. Ugo Moretti, a newsman and author, said Porcari had asked him six months ago for assistance in writing about his eventful life, which he said included the blowing up of a bridge linking Rhodesia to Malawi in exchange for $15,000 from black African guerrillas.

Moretti said Porcari called him collect from Barcelona on Monday and told him he would read the final chapter in newspapers the next day.

The longest hijack was an 8,800-mile flight in April 1976 by three Filipino gunmen demanding independence for Moslem areas in the southern Philippines. They hijacked a Philippines Airlines jet to Libya by way of Thailand and Pakistan.

Cancer center plans unfurled

MIDLAND — Dr. P.W. Malone, Big Spring, spoke before an estimated 100 persons concerning his hopes and plans for a cancer therapy center in Big Spring at an American Legion Auxiliary meeting here Tuesday night.

A Malone and Hogan Foundation for the center is being set up. The foundation will oversee plans for the center, which will be located on a 34-acre plot of land near the M-H Hospital and M-H Clinic in West Big Spring.

Dr. Malone initiated the idea with his late partner, Dr. J.E. Hogan. Funds to support the center will be solicited throughout the West Texas, according to Dr. Malone.

Dr. Malone also said early response to the appeal for funds had been encouraging. Some donations are being made in the memory of Dr. Hogan, who died in 1976.

In citing a need for a proposed cancer center, Dr. Malone said the need for cancer patients to travel great distances for treatment of the disease is frequently financially burdensome to the patient and his family.

The foundation, when it has been structured, will be managed by a board of trustees who will serve without pay. All donations received will be spent in the building program and in equipping and operating the cancer therapy center and allied educational programs, according to Dr. Malone.

Cancer treatment often requires the use of cobalt and linear accelerators, which are usually beyond the financial means of most individuals or families, according to the Big Spring physician.

DR. P.W. MALONE

Once the center is built and is functioning, it likely will generate sufficient income to support itself, Malone reasons.

The center will include a radiation and therapy center and will add any facility which might be needed in the future.

Until the center is built, according to Malone, the foundation will do all it can to assist indigent cancer patients in receiving treatment in Big Spring.

Once the center is operative, Malone added, compensation for the therapy will be based on the patient's ability to pay.

Midland job picture bright

MIDLAND — This West Texas city still has the lowest unemployment rate in the state, although its unemployment rose 13 per cent in January — to 2.9 per cent of the civilian labor force.

There were 35,300 persons employed in Midland in January, according to figures released by the Texas Employment Commission.

Three guilty pleas heard

Three guilty pleas were heard Tuesday in 118th District Court by Judge Ralph Caton.

John Leonard Smith Jr. and Kenneth Lee Murphy pleaded guilty to burglary of the Permian Snack Bar Feb. 23, 1977. Both men were sentenced to six years probation and were ordered to make restitution for the loss. A third man, Joe David Barree, was named in the charges filed Tuesday in Justice of the Peace Bob West's office, but he has not made any plea.

Edward Allen Moore pleaded guilty to theft of over $200 for his part in the Jan. 28 theft of a TV from the Big Spring Holiday Inn. Moore was arrested in California and flown back to Big Spring. He received a five-year sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections.

She is currently researching the effect of surgical isolation of arterial segments in rabbits and monkeys, followed by administration of normal and atherogenic diet.

Mrs. Tyler

Mrs. Florence Tyler, 15 January Circle, was approved by the Commissioner's Court Monday afternoon to fill the position of children's librarian at the Howard County Library.

Her duties as children's librarian will be to select children's print and non-print materials, to provide reader guidance, to plan story hours, children's programs, and seasonal projects to stimulate reader interest.

Mrs. Tyler has her bachelor of education degree from the Oregon College of Education, as well as teaching experience in nursery school and second and fifth grades.

She has 18 hours of library science in her undergraduate work.

Her husband, Captain John Tyler, is stationed at Webb AFB, and expects to be transferred in September, so according to County Librarian John Deats, Mrs. Tyler will probably be a temporary appointment.

"We expect o have someone with their master's degree to fill the position when and if Mrs. Tyler is forced leave," said Deats.

Mrs. Tyler is replacing Jan Stepehenson, who children's librarian for ten months through November 1976.

Board members authorized the purchase of a new school bus and selling of a 1969 bus.

The group authorized superintendent Russell McMeans to attend the national school board convention in Houston March 26-29.

The board of equalization was appointed, including Lee Graves, Herbert Schuelke and Juil Reid with Wayne Stround as alternate. They will meet May 16.

The board discussed and approved joining the Title I migrant program for the coming year.

Military

AFSA' unit under way

A movement is underway at Webb AFB to reorganize a local chapter of the Air Force Sergeants Association (AFSA). MSgt. Joe Ouelette, NCOIC of personnel administration, is coordinating the effort.

CMSgt. William N. (Bill) Starnes (retired), AFSA regional director, first contacted CMSgt. Sam R. Earl, senior enlisted advisor. He offered to come to Webb and help get a chapter going.

Chief Starnes is scheduled to be here May 3 to brief all interested enlisted and former enlisted Air Force members. He will explain the legislative and personal programs of AFSA and answer any questions.

Ouelette, a life member of AFSA, says there are many benefits of membership including the lowest cost automobile insurance as well as life, accident and hospital income insurance which supplements CHAMPUS.

The AFSA is one of the military associations which has a registered lobbyist group in Washington. It is credited with getting many benefits which enlisted people have received.

For information about membership, one can contact Sgt. Ouelette, ext. 2249, or Chief Earl, ext. 2873.

Pilots and other participants in a civil aircraft "fly-in" at Webb the day before will be invited to stay in town overnight for the Open House.

Area can produce good table wine

Hints are popping up that someday we may see some rather odd things happen in West Texas agriculture.

This area, which has been considered best suited for cotton and grains, may wind up producing some unlikely items.

NOT TOO long ago, there was an article in the newspapers about a San Angelo area man who was experimenting with raising shrimp in the salt lakes of West Texas.

He seemed optimistic, even though we are more than a sandstorm's reach from the traditional shrimping areas along the Gulf Coast.

Then recently, some talk broke out about the South Plains and far West Texas being a good place for growing grapes for wine.

William Lipe, a Lubbock horticulturalist, said that he believes that far West Texas is a good area for French grapes called vinifera, while the South Plains can grow both vinifera and French-American hybrids.

Texas A&M is apparently conducting research to determine which types of grapes will grow best in each region.

Although about $1,200 to $2,000 per acre is required for the first two nonproducing years of a grape wine's life, Lipe predicts that someday a number of South Plains farms will be growing grapes and making wine, which he says is a very desirable way of life.

He says this area can already match the cheap wines, and the aim is to produce a moderately good table wine, strictly for Texas consumption.

HE DOUBTS that Texas will ever export wine, but interest in wine is growing along with consumption, he claims.

The state already has an estimated 200,000 vines on something like 400 acres.

Who knows?

Maybe somebody there will be a Lamesa Riesling?

Or how about a Stanton Port?

Rules obsolete

Around the rim

Merry Jo Bright

"over the river and through the woods, to grandmother's house we go" . . . so say the words to an old song that seems strangely out of date in what has been called "these far from traditional times".

I was awake at four o'clock this morning, perhaps, because there was a baby in the house; a baby that was "teething" and slept fitfully through the night.

Turning on the bed lamp, I reached for a book — a gift that has turned out to be much more informative and thought-provoking than the title suggests.

THE FLY leaf tells me the book is "To Grandmother Jo — from her first child, Rebecca, and Rebecca's first child, Larissa Eve, with love."

The book, by Ruth Goode, is entitled "A Book for Grandmothers."

It is not exactly a light-hearted look at grandmotherhood. It makes one look at the loosening of family ties, the generation gap, and the jet age that have rendered the old rules of grandmothering obsolete. As it points out, the stereotyped image of Grandmother has vanished along with her rocking chair and her cookie jar.

"In some parts of late-twentieth-century America it is still possible to be a traditional grandmother, says Ruth Goode, "but the kaleidoscopic patterns are swirling all around us, and as grandmothers we may go swirling dizzily along unless we can find a firm place to put our feet."

A how-to book for grandmothers makes sense when one considers that today, it is not the old apron string game at all. The rules have changed, along with so many other things in society:

This is the first generation of grandmothers who have watched their children get married and then divorced in record numbers, making them grandmothers of the children of divorce.

THIS IS THE first generation to grandmother the products of the "sexual revolution," when mom and dad may not have been married.

This is the first generation of grandmothers who have watched their grandchildren being raised in communes, in day care centers, in front of the TV and almost always in some distant city.

"Furthermore, while the kids and grandkids were changing, this generation of grandmas was out looking for jobs rather than sitting at home alone in their rockers."

Mrs. Goode has done a great deal of research about family relationships, adjustments, crises and joys. She views them all with honesty, but without tears for times that may never come again.

Grandfathers? This is really their book, too, although as Ruth Goode says, "Grandfathers are made in heaven, born fully formed with the birth of their first grandchild. They are the perfect babysitters, storytellers, playmates, and putters-to-bed. Their role is pure delight."

It is a GOOD book.

Fireworks in Geneva

William F. Buckley, Jr.

In Geneva every year for about one month, a body called the Commission on Human Rights meets for the purpose — one would assume on surveying its historical record — of reiterating its disapproval of South Africa, Chile, and Israel. To the astonishment of the nations assembled, our representative this year, Mr. Allard Lowenstein, brought up the subject of human rights violated elsewhere, specifically in the Soviet Union and in Uganda.

FOR A COUPLE of convulsive weeks the Commission was agitated by this fracture of complacency. It looked as though it might actually be forced to take a vote on whether it wished to pursue an inquiry into the human rights situation in the Soviet Union, which has been protected from such impertinencies by the perpetual hostility of the vast Soviet enterprise toward any country that tells the truth about it; and Uganda, protected by the fraternal solidarity of the Third World, which suspects that any criticism of any of its members is a criticism of them all.

It is disappointing to record that, in the end, the initiatives were blocked, or more specifically withdrawn, by their sponsors. But several points are worth making.

1. In the opinion of Mr. Lowenstein, huge strides were made. Le Monde appears to be the historian of the Commission on Human Rights, and that newspaper recorded that Mr. Lowenstein's initiative was the first taken at the prospective expense of the Soviet Union in the history of the Commission on Human Rights during the past two decades.

Mr. Lowenstein, who is a folk hero of the liberal-left in America in virtue of his captaincy of the movement to unseat Lyndon Johnson in 1968, has always been a consistent anti-totalitarian. He arrived in Geneva sharing the almost universal despondency over the possibilities of achieving anything through that vermiform appendix, the Commission on Human Rights, whose function has been the ritual denunciation of the conventional enemies of the dominant coalition of forces. That he succeeded in persuading a majority to permit a mere discussion of the possibilities of probing the Soviet Union's war on human rights may not strike us as having accomplished very much. But there is no question that it is a step in the right direction.

2. Mr. Lowenstein pointed out that the Third World is not the only concentration of parliamentary cowardice. When time came to vote the usual condemnation of Israel — as a genocidal, totalitarian, imperialist, colonialist, war-loving power — the United States argued quite correctly against the resolution. But what did our western allies do? They sat on their hands. Why? Because they are afraid of displeasing the Arab world.

Mr. Lowenstein's point: Those of us quick to criticize the pusillanimity of the Third World, which is fearful of antagonizing the Soviet Union and its own confederates within the Third World, should pause over the behavior of west European countries. To be sure, they abstained, declining to vote against Israel. But they did not reject the preposterous arguments leveled against Israel. Have we any right to expect more courageous behavior from Kenya than, say, from West Germany?

3. MR. LOWENSTEIN believes that the experience of the past four weeks entitles us to believe that the machinery of the United Nations might yet be revived to good ends.

Get with your body's 'rhythm'

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It is well known that the closer we regulate the timing of our eating and sleeping habits the better our bodies will be. Please comment as to why. — A.S.

You've posed one of those frustrating questions — too interesting to pass by, yet too complex to answer sufficiently in this space.

You are talking about what is called "biologic rhythm," which is all around us in nature. Insects and animals change color, bears hibernate, trees shed leaves, snakes their skin, and you your hair (daily, whether you notice it or not). Menstruation is a form of biologic rhythm.

With humans, habit rather than instinct usually governs individual rhythms of life. A person long accustomed to day work should allow for body adjustment to new rhythms when being transferred to nights, and vice versa. Certain glands, particularly the adrenals and the thyroid, must get into step with the new living habits.

The jet travel age has fostered research in this area. Jet lag is nothing but the forcible interruption in biological rhythm as one speeds across time zones, dinner times and sleeping hours. Some firms are telling executives to give their bodies a day or two to adjust before engaging in serious business after such trips.

You ask about eating habits specifically. The stomach empties itself on a rhythmic basis. The process is faster during the day when we are active, slower at night when we are at rest. Yet when the stomach is empty at any time hunger occurs. Diabetics or persons with the opposite condition (low blood sugar) must eat at regular intervals to establish the proper rhythm of sugar use by the body. Irregular eating habits can mess up the rhythm of the digestive tract and cause constipation. This is seen often in college students who fail to reestablish eating rhythm after leaving mon's regular three squares back home.

More studies are being conducted into this whole area. Why, for example, is body temperature higher late in the day and lowest early in the morning, and has this anything to do with the fact that some folks are grumpy in the morning?

Obviously, the closer one conforms to his or her own individual biologic rhythm the better it is for general health. This is particularly true of three of the most important body rhythms — eating, sleeping and elimination.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a niece 10 years old who has had strep throat about every six weeks for the past two years or so. She is given an antibiotic and is okay until the next bout. It puzzles me why doctors are so against removing tonsils. Don't you think removal would help cure her? — Mrs. E.K.

If the tonsils are enlarged or diseased, yes. Otherwise, removal would not have any effect. Youngsters sometimes get over this proneness to throat infections with time.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My grandson has an odor from his hair. He perspires a lot about the head and his hair gets soaking wet. His mother shampoos his hair on a Sunday and by Tuesday his hair smells again. What could cause this? — M.P.

The ordor is caused by bacteria acting on the scalp sweat and oils in the hair. If he's old enough have him shampoo himself every day or every other day. This will keep bacteria at a minimum. Try a germicidal shampoo. The same applies to underarm odor, the culprits being hair, moisture and bacteria.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you get tetanus from any wound? I also have heard you should get a shot against tetanus once every eight years. Is this true? — Miss E.H.

You can get tetanus from any wound, but it is more likely to stem from "dirty" wounds as one involving contact with the ground or from a puncture as in stepping on a nail. The tetanus organism needs an absence of oxygen to thrive, such as is provided by the oxygen-free state deep in tissue.

After initial immunization, a booster is recommended every ten years. In our drug-oriented society it is interesting to note that persons dependent on addiction drugs are more prone to tetanus than others.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I still read a lot about vitamin C, and the wonders it can work. I have never read just how much is actually needed to maintain health. Have you changed your opinion about its effects in treating colds? — T.E.

The U.S. "RDA" (recommended daily allowance) for vitamin C varies with the age of the person. Needs, according to the government figures, is 35 milligrams for infants, 40 for children under four, and 60 for adults, children four and over, and pregnant or lactating women.

I have nothing against vitamin C, just a bit of skepticism about some claims with regard to the colds. Studies to date have revealed both possible advantages and disadvantages in heavy doses of C. Until all the evidence is in, I will continue to advise its use only in amounts needed normally — unless an actual deficiency is shown.

Do you have problem hair? Dr. Thosteson's new booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper treatment can result in healthier, more attractive hair. To get a copy, write Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, inclosing a long, self-addressed and stamped envelope and 35 cents.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Where does a baby's soul come from? Does God have souls somewhere waiting to be born? — C.L.

DEAR C.L.: When God created the first man, He gave him a body, a soul and a spirit. Ever since then the body and the soul have been passed on from one generation to the next by the wonderful and natural process of procreation. God does not keep either bodies or souls in store.

It is important to remember that man also has a spirit. This is man's eternal quality that enables him to communicate wtih God, who is Spirit. Sin in man has resulted in the death of the spirit. It is only when a man is born again, experiencing a spiritual birth, that he receives spiritual life and comes into fellowship with God. This explains the teaching of Jesus to Nicodemus: "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3).

Man is a complete being only when he is alive physically, mentally and spiritually. It shoud be his aim to keep a correct balance between these three. The body and soul are truly wonders of creation, and it is incumbent upon everyone to keep fit both physically and mentally. What a tragedy it is when a man neglects the spirit and does not give the same attention to the growth and development of his spiritual life.

Christ said: "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell" (Matthew 10:28). It is the life of the spirit that saves us from the evil one who whoud destroy body and soul if he could. Once we have been born in the spirit we are assured of eternal life in heaven, for the spirit is life. "It is the spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life" (John 6:63).

Bonanza for oil

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — On his final day as Gerald Ford's interior secretary, Thomas Kleppe tried to do a multi-million-dollar favor for his friends at the oil companies.

The likeable, loquacious Kleppe, who enjoyed a cozy relationship with the oil tycoons, wanted to give away the rights to a federal oil and gas bonanza. On January 19, he sent a bill to Congress that would allow the companies to explore and develop the oil and natural gas at Naval Petroleum Reserve Four on Alaska's North Slope.

NO ONE IS SURE just how much oil and gas is hidden under the giant "Pet Four" lands, but it is clearly an energy gold mine. The Navy's conservative estimate is that at least 15 billion barrels of oil and 80 trillion cubic feet of gas will be found there.

Yet Kleppe's bill would have leased Pet Four to the oil giants at bargain rates before its true value was determined, a windfall worth millions of dollars. As the nation's small business chief, Kleppe, on his last day in office, threw a similar bonanza to eight oil refiners.

In a confidential memo, the Navy's Pet Four project manager, Richard Murphy, sounded the alarm. "By turning over this country's largest unexplored on-shore ..... area to the oil and gas industry, the United States will forever surrender its control" over Pet Four, he warned.

The Democratic Congress, of course, buried the Kleppe bill deeper than an oil well. But the Interior Department is still planning to release valuable geological information to the public. This technical data, compiled at enormous cost to the taxpayers, will help the industry pinpoint the most likely oil and gas reserves.

The general public has "absolutely no use" for this information, Murphy's memo charges. "The only possible beneficiary of this multi-million-dollar information 'giveaway' will be the oil industry."

Interior officials argue that the information should be public because the taxpayers paid for it. Meanwhile, in a private letter to Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, Rep. John Moss, D.-Cal., urges that Pet Four not be leased to the oil industry until its real worth is uncovered. Murphy told us the oil, gas and coal reserves "could be worth a trillion dollars."

FOOTNOTE: KLEPPE TOLD our associate Gary Cohn that his actions were "in the public interest." Energy exploration shoud be done by private industry, not the government, he said. Charges that he tried to give Big Oil a windfall " are as fallacious as a $9 bill," he said.

Sale is halted

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Publicly obscured by their clash over the Warnke confirmation, a private dialog on disarmament questions has been developing between President Carter and Sen. Henry M. Jackson that could avoid tragic confrontation in the Senate on SALT II.

The fragile Carter-Jackson bridge was by no means burned when, shortly before the Senate vote, the President lashed out against Senators opposing Paul Warnke as chief disarmament negotiator. Whether or not Mr. Carter was aiming that lash at Jackcon, the fact is that Jackson's advice — in both written and oral form — for a tough bargaining line with the Soviets is getting into the Oval Office.

WHAT REMAINS to be seen is whether the President is merely stroking Jackson or will, at least in part, follow his counsel. If the latter is so, the nation and the world may be spared the trauma of a strategic arms limitation (SALT) agreement that cannot be ratified by the Senate.

The Carter-Jackson dialog is based on Jackson's assumption that the new President has no inflexible views on disarmament. The left-of-center tilt in Mr. Carter's national security appointments is seen by Jackson not as an ideological affirmation but as a political culmination: having wooed the left to win the Democratic presidential nomination, Mr. Carter naturally drew appointments from the left.

Before the election, Jackson cautioned Mr. Carter against packing his national security team exclusively with ardent arms control advocates (duplicating similar advice from Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia). Following the inauguration, Jackson expressed his misgivings to the President about naming Warnke as chief SALT negotiator and disarmanent agency director.

But Jackson did not press the President on appointments, for the simple reason it would do no good. With Mr. Carter and his closest aides, Hamilton Jordan and Jody Powell, unfamiliar with the personalities, why should they accept advice on appointments from Scoop Jackson, a virtual stranger and a former rival?

JACKSON CHOSE to believe that the President picked Warnke not out of affinity for Warnke's public views pooh-poohing Soviet missile prowess and urging unilateral initiatives in disarmanent but out of Mr. Carter's vulnerability as an outsider. Unfamiliar with the nuances, the President was prey to pro-Warnke endorsements from Washington establishmentarians Clark Clifford and Averell Harriman as well as Warnke's own personal dynamism, according to this theory.

So, Jackson adopted the still debatable view that he could argue his case for SALT caution directly with the former career naval officer from south Georgia. The first small vindication of this belief came when the President proposed a quick SALT II agreement by deferring consideration of two new weapons systems causing the present deadlock — the Soviet Backfire bomber and the U.S. cruise missile.

HC contracts renewed

Contracts for 22 staff members and 39 faculty members were renewed at Howard College Tuesday in the regular meeting of the board of trustees.

The board also extended the contract of Dr. Charles Hays, college president, to August, 1980. There were no salary announcements on Tuesday as salaries were set along with the regular budget.

The board held an executive session prior to the renewal of the contracts.

In the open board session, the trustees heard a discussion of the second part of the first phase of landscape improvements. The group decided to include additional parking area west of the coliseum with a screen fence and shrubbery across the front of the college to improve the appearance.

There was a discussion held on improvements across the entranceway where there will be a covered walkway, a new sign and a new parking area, designed for visitors.

Discussion revolved around materials to be used on the covered walkway and possible upkeep in future years.

Bids are to be taken April 15 at the college on the sign, the front fence, canopies. demolition of the front curb and dirt work.

The bids will be studied prior to bringing them to the next regular meeting of the board.

A discussion was held on state tax regulations which are being considered. One request will be a shared appraisal service, which is already being done in Howard County.

Board members also discussed possible rule changes for athletics in their conference. One of the new rules will allow ten full shcolarships or the equivalent thereof for men and women's basketball.

The possibility of a state conference was expected to be voted down. Dr. Hays questioned the board as to their feeling on some of the possible rule changes to obtain an opinion when he has to vote for the college.

Resignations were accepted from Sam Scott, police-science instructor who is planning to enter a seminary; Mrs. Dorothy Woodard, RN, who is leaving because her husband is leaving the area; Mrs. Nancy Fuqua, nursing instructor, who quit for personal reasons and Norman Banks, division head of industrial education, who is retiring.

The board also granted permission for Harold Wilder, athletic director, to join with Dr. Emmett McKenzie in a request for a gift to update athletic facilities at the track and football stadium.

Dr. Charles Warren presided with board members present including, Harold Davis, Jimmy Taylor and Dr. P.W. Malone.

FREEDOM PROGRAM — Elementary school children enjoy a "Hope for Freedom" presentation designed especially for them. Junior high and high school students get a different program entirely, from Hope Harrington.

'Hope for Freedom' scheduled Thursday

Coming to schools in the local area this week is "Hope for Freedom," a uniquely patriotic presentation geared to appeal to the children and young people of our area and nation.

The program's creator and presenter is Hope Harrington. Miss Harrington — speaker, writer, vocalist — has traveled cross-country in an attempt to make young and old alike more aware of the unique freedom which America has provided them for the worship of God and the fulfillment of their personal dreams ... and more aware of the distinct possibility of losing those freedoms.

Her most recent efforts are the latest of a long list of endeavors aimed at preserving freedom and revealing to American young people the true nature and threat of Communism. The program is a thought-provoking, sometimes startling presentation of facts about communism — where it's coming from and what it's doing, interlaced with meaningful and entertaining vocal numbers.

The program has been received by young children and high school students alike with overwhelming enthusiasm, due mainly to Miss Harrington's ability to communicate the heart of the program to both young and no-so-young and entertain at the same time.

She will be appearing in schools throughout West Texas this spring. The first presentation of "Hope for Freedom" in Big Spring is scheduled for Thursday at Goliad Junior High School.

HC trustees 'first' to meet in new room

The first board meeting of Howard College trustees to be held in the new club room and dining room was held Tuesday and the Downtown Lions meeting was the first civic meeting to be held in the recently completed facility today.

The room has been added to the rear of the cafeteria and also one from the outside which will be across the parking lot from the new coliseum.

The facility is decorated in shades of brown with new brown drapes covering the windows to the student dining hall and a selection of mirrors on the west wall. The north wall will hold portraits under archways.

The portraits will be selected after the room is named. The former board room has had two inner walls removed and a smaller dining room is being consturcted there. A gift to the college will pay for the improvements in this room, according to Dr. Charles Hays.

The two dining rooms, which will be available for meetings and parties, if used in conjunction with the college food service, will have coordinated names to be announced in the near future.

Mrs. Jackie Hays, wife of the college president, made the color and decorative selections for the dining room at no charge. The entire facility, using college labor on parts of it, cost $30,051.78 for 3,200 square feet.

MELODIE HEATH RAY

Deb presentation slated at Austin

Miss Melodie Heath Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey G. Ray of Big Spring, will be presented in Austin as a debutante this evening by the Junior Helping Hand. She will be escorted by James Frederick Duke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Duke of Austin.

A graduate of Big Spring High, Miss Ray has attended Sweet Briar College in Virginia and is now a sophomore at the University of Texas. She is the fourth member of her family to be presented as an Austin debutante. Her mother, Mrs. Cynthia Ray, was presented by the Junior Helping Hand in 1954.

The Junior Helping Hand is a charitable organization with its origin going back to 1893. Its purpose is to maintain a home for needy children in Austin so that when they leave the Junior Helping Hand Home for Children, "They will go out with the opportunity to live healthier and happier lives."

The annual style show, at which Austin's debutantes are presented, has proved through the years to be one of the most productive sources of the income necessary to maintain the home and meet the needs of the children.

Several parties have been held honoring the debutantes. Miss Ray's brother-in-law and sister and Dr. and Mrs. Phil Overton of Austin, are entertaining before the Junior Helping Hand benefit. Among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Guthrie and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Worthy, all of Big Spring.

Following the presentation in an elaborate "Wizard of Oz" setting, there will be a ball honoring 13 debutantes. Miss Ray's maternal grandparents, Gen. and Mrs. D. Harold Byrd of Dallas; her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J.K. Ray of Corpus Christi; and her sisters, Mavis and Julie, will attend all the festivities, along with Big Spring guests.

Alpha Kappa Omicron holds model meeting

A model meeting for prospective members of Alpha Kappa Omicron, Beta Sigma Phi, was conducted last week in the home of Mrs. Douglas Allen, 3606 Parkway.

Mrs. Kenneth Adams and Mrs. Donald Cox were guests.

Each officer gave a resume of her duties, and committee chairmen discussed their functions.

A report of the BSP City Council meeting was given by Mrs. John Stancil, who said the Founder's Day banquet will be in the Officer's Club, Webb AFB, at 7 p.m. April 28. Alpha Kappa Omicron will be in charge of providing entertainment.

Mrs. George Archer introduced Mrs. Johnnie Lou Avery, guest speaker, who discussed philosophy.

Election of officers confirmed Mrs. John Stancil as president, with Mrs. Don Larson as vice president. Others elected were Mrs. Jim Shoup, recording secretary; Mrs. Johnny Bedell, treasurer; and Mrs. Douglas Allen, corresponding secretary.

A couple's party was held Saturday evening in the home of Mrs. Allen. An Italian dinner was served, followed by 'Crazy Bridge.'

The next meeting is slated for 7:30 p.m. March 29 in the home of Mrs. Keith Hamilton, 1303 Lamar.

Joe Pickle speaks to PSA Assembly

Joe Pickle, who retired as editor of the Big Spring Herald in 1975, after devoting all his adult life to the newspaper profession was the banquet speaker Friday evening at Holiday Inn for the Permian Basin Area Assembly of Phi Sigma Alpha.

Pickle, who has devoted all his adult life to the newspaper profession, regards it as a "labor of love."

"We should never stop developing new talents or expanding our minds," said Pickle. "We should always recognize social instincts, as people cannot exist alone. We should advance our horizons by studying and gaining knowledge for the best is still out there somewhere."

Pickle encouraged the sorority members to read, noting that "a good book is like a garden carried in the pocket." He concluded his talk with the observation, "We have to risk something to gain something."

The local chapter, Delta Delta, was the hostess group for the semi-annual gathering. Other chapters in the Texas affiliation who were represented are Delta Phi, San Angelo; Zeta Delta, Gamma Sigma and Zeta Mu, all of Midland; and Epsilon Eta, Lamesa.

Mrs. Jean House, assembly president, introduced Mrs. Betty Warden, Delta Delta president, who welcomed members and guests. The invocation was given by Mrs. Gladys Womack of Gamma Sigma.

Mrs. House, assisted by Mrs. Lorraine Miles and Mrs. Lulu Wilson, installed Permian Basin Area Assembly officers for 1977-78, and the past president's gavel guard was presented to Mrs. House by Mrs. M.W. Waddell.

Mrs. Callie Jo Mason read a poem in memory of Mrs. Eula Kate Moren, and prayers were led by Mrs. Gladys Womack and Mrs. Gladys Tartar, both of Midland. It was announced that the fall meeting will be hosted by Zeta Delta Chapter of Midland.

Guests for the banquet, other than Pickle, were W.E. Moren, and Mrs. Moren's sister, Mrs. Ellen Crosland, and granddaughter, Kathryn Hart, Fort Worth.

Ceremony conducted in Abilene

St. James Methodist Church in Abilene was the setting March 4 for the wedding of Mrs. Margaret Hamby and Ted Hull, both of Big Spring.

After a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M. and El Paso, the couple is residing at 2311 Allendale.

The candlelight ceremony was performed by the bride's son, the Rev. Ron Hamby, and she was given in marriage by another son, Kenneth Hamby of Big Spring.

Mrs. Dan Riemondi of Arlington, served as her mother's matron of honor, and attendants for Hull were his sons, Dicky Hull and Danny Hull, both of Big Spring.

For the wedding, the bride chose a full-length, peach-colored gown in shirtwaist styling with long, cuffed sleeves and pleated skirt. Her bouquet was of mixed spring flowers dominated by apricot sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Riemondi was attired in a long, two-piece dress of turquoise fashioned with cowl collar.

Hull owns the Giant Food Store in Big Spring, and Mrs. Hull is owner and operator of The Casual Shop, also in Big Spring.

Nature is generous

"Nature has been generous in Texas by giving us a bit of the sea, mountains and plains," said Mrs. H.C. Stipp during a Texas Heritage program she presented Friday for the Modern Woman's Forum.

"With such varied terrain, it is no wonder that we have such a great number of birds, over 540 species, more than any other one state," she continued. "The Golden Cheek Warbler is found only in Texas. Howard County is an interesting area for birds because of its location on the edge of two distinct land forms — to the south and east, the Edwards Plateau, and to the west and north the Llano Estacado. Over 250 species have been observed in Howard County."

Mrs. Stipp concluded by saying, "Besides appreciating birds for their matchless music, their incomparable colors, their grace and their easy flight, we have found them to be brothers-in-arms in the fight to maintain the balance of nature in this world. Without birds, many areas on the earth might be treeless and insects, long ago, would have ravaged man's food supply."

At the end of the program, Mrs. Stipp showed a film on the migration of birds.

Mrs. Fred Whitaker was hostess for the meeting and during a brief business session, Mrs. Cass Hill presided. Each member contributed $1 to help with re-roofing of the headquarters building, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, Austin. Cup towels will be sent to Girlstown U.S.A. at Whiteface. The next meeting will be March 25, with Mrs. C.R. Moad as hostess.

NEW UNIFORM — Senior Airman Denise Wimberly pauses to adjust her hat in the gusting spring wind. The 20-year-old native of Malinta, Ohio, is wearing the new pantsuit uniform recently authorized for Air Force women. She works in supply at Webb AFB as does her husband, Staff Sgt. Larry Wimberly.

Genealogists give books to library

"American Marriage Records Before 1699," by William Montgomery Clements and "Marriage Records of Washington County, Tenn. 1787 to 1840," by Norma Rutledge Grammer and Marion Day Mullins, were donated to the genealogical section of the Howard County Library during Thursday's meeting of the Genealogical Society of the Big Spring.

The group met in the conference room of the library.

It was announced that the society has subscribed to the "Genealogical Helper" for the genealogical section of the library. This periodical is published by Everton Publishers, Logan, Utah.

A genealogical meeting will be held at the Roadway Inn in Midland from 8:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. April 2. Mrs. Neal Sparkman, a certified genealogist, freelance researcher, writer and lecturer, will show slides on New England research and migration as well as aspects of Texas research. She will also discuss the National Archives.

Mrs. Albert B. Watkins and Al Scott were guests at the meezing.

The next meeting will be at 7:15 p.m. April 14 in the library conference room.

Anniversary of Beauceants

The 17th anniversary of the Social Order of the Beauceant, Big Spring Assembly 211, will be observed March 28. A banquet is slated for 6:30 p.m. in the banquet room of the Masonic Temple with the business meeting to follow. Those members not contacted are asked to bring a salad or vegetable to the event.

The assembly met Monday evening in the Masonic Hall. Mrs. Wayne Parish, worthy president, presided and the initiation ceremony was exemplified in practice.

It was reported that 68 articles of clothing and about 30 pieces of furniture were donated to welfare organizations.

Mrs. Mattie Wren, auxiliary secretary, read a message from the Texas Department auxiliary president, Mrs. Charlotte Helfenstine, in which she gave information regarding the convention.

It was reported that Mrs. Maye Franklin, Mrs. Mary Waddell and Mrs. Bernice Micallef served refreshments to patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital Feb. 11. Members also brought eleven pair of bed socks to give to patients.

TNA hears views on Nurse Practice Act

Current aspects of the Nurse Practice Act and how it might affect members of the Texas Nurses Association were discussed by Dr. Elizabeth Pounds of Lubbock when she spoke last week to Affiliate 24.

The revision of the Nurse Practice Act is before the 65th Legislature listed as House Bill 594 and Senate Bill 392. It is currently in Senate sub-committee with Mrs. Betty Andujar, Ron Clower and Gene Jones.

Dr. Pounds called attention to three points of the proposed revision including "a more precise definition of professional nursing, the injunctive powers to be given to the Board of Nurse Examiners, and continuing education."

"In each situation, the professional registered nurse, the nurse-employer and, most important, the patient, benefit from the proposed changes," said Dr. Pounds. "The present Nurse Practice Act has been written and amended over the years since 1909. Most certainly, the health care field has advanced with increasing rapidity in recent years. The laws which govern professional registered nurses need to be revised into an orderly enforceable statute."

Several times during her talk, Dr. Pounds stated that whether in favor or opposed to the revision, "Each one of us present, as well as every registered nurse, has the constitutional right to state her views without fear or reprisal."

To the licensed vocational nurses who were guests at the meeting Dr. Pounds said, "The Nurse Practice Act Revision does not, in any way, threaten your status. Your organization has constitutional recognition by your licensing law."

Local registered nurses may obtain a copy of the proposed revision from Mrs. Molly Butler, 263-2625.

TO MARRY — Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hoelscher, St. Lawrence Rt., Garden City, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Kay, to James E. Ripple, son of Mrs. William E. Ripple of Wall and the late Mr. Ripple. The wedding will be performed April 23 in Sacred Heart Cathedral, San Angelo.

Rites held in Austin

Dr. and Mrs. James A. Kendall are residing in Austin following their wedding March 12 at the First Methodist Church in that city. The Rev. Jack Heacock officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception.

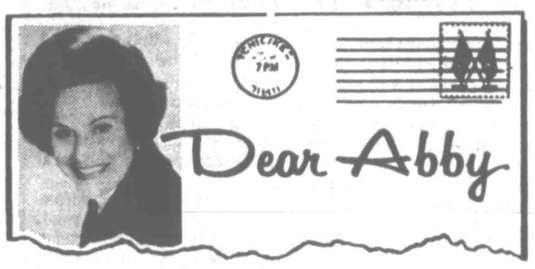

The bride is the former Judy Reagan Furqueron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace B. Reagan, Big Spring, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kendall of Corpus Christi.

Dr. Kendall is in private practice in Austin, and Mrs. Kendall teaches English at Westlake High School.

Attending the ceremony from Big Spring were Mr. and Mrs. Reagan and Mrs. and Mrs. Walter Wheat.

Pill does not determine sex

Solving one "battle of the sexes" is a new study from Boston's Harvard School of Public Health, which reveals that contrary to popular conception, the use of oral contraceptives does not influence whether a newborn baby will be a girl or a boy. Investigating 6,109 births occuring after Pill use, according to an article in the current issue of Family Circle, the researchers discovered there were 3,064 male and 3,045 female children — much the same as the usual male-to-female birth ratio.

Send Gift to Abnormal Baby

DEAR ABBY: A friend of ours recently gave birth to an abnormal child (a Mongoloid). We, her friends, are terribly upset about it, and the poor woman and her husband are in a deep depression.

What should friends do under the circumstances? We certainly can't "congratulate" the parents.

Should we acknowledge the birth of this unfortunate child? Should we send a gift? (What does one send a Mongoloid child?) Or would it be kinder to ignore the tragedy?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Perhaps "congratulations" are not in order, but to ignore the birth of a child when you would normally express interest is, I think, cruel. So send a little gift (the same as you would to any other child), and show a continuing interest (not curiosity).

DEAR ABBY: During our two-year marriage, my husband and I have had some very difficult times including separation, a filing for and finally a cancellation of divorce proceedings.

The big problem is this: He thinks I should always be willing to have sex whenever HE feels like it.

Whenever we have an argument, which is often, my husband says some very cruel and cutting things to me, then he says, "I didn't mean what I said. Now can we have sex?"

I think it's nice that he says he's sorry, but I'm in no mood to have sex with him two minutes after he has ripped me up one side and down the other, and hurt my feelings by talking mean and ugly to me.

I need a little time to cool off after an argument, and having sex isn't my idea of cooling off. In an effort to save my marriage, I need your opinion.

NEEDING TIME OUT

DEAR NEEDING: I think you should take all the time out you need. And if your husband expects sex on demand because HE'S in the mood without considering YOUR mood, you may be trying to save a marriage that's not worth saving.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who deeply regrets not letting her husband go to "the other woman" 10 years ago.

He left me for her once, but I fought him so hard over the divorce settlement that he came back to me but continued to see her.

I knew in my heart that they really loved each other, but I couldn't think of her as anything but a tramp who had stolen my husband.

If I had let him go, I probably could have made a new life for myself, but I hung onto him for security.

As my husband lay dying in the hospital, her name—not mine—was on his lips. If I had let him go when he wanted to, maybe he'd be alive and happy today, for heartaches, pressure and frustration can undermine a man's health. I saw it happen. I won the battle but lost the war.

10 YEARS TOO LATE

DEAR 10: Your 20-20 hindsight makes a touching story. And an appropriate time to point out that no one "steals" another person. People are drawn together by a mutual need.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "STILL SEARCHING" IN BALTIMORE: Consider Dr. Donald W. Hastings' philosophy:

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Texas teachers seeking pay raises

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A fourth grade teacher from Mount Pleasant has told a House committee he is being forced out of the profession by the simple need to feed, house and cloth his wife and two children.

"My income will not adequately support my family," said Dwain Fortenberry, a teacher for the past nine years.

Recent high school graduates often receive salaries higher than the experienced teachers they had during their school days, he said.

Fortenberry urged the House Public Education Committee to approve the 25 per cent across the board pay raise sought by the Texas State Teachers Association.

That would mean an immediate $2,000 increase for beginning teachers, who now make $8,000 annually plus local supplementation in some districts.

The TSTA bill would cost $880 million over the next two years — an amount that can't be funded under the governor's no-new-taxes policy along with taxpayer relief, new highway construction and general state expenditures.

Jo Karr, a master's degree teacher at Del Valle Middle School near Austin, said, "I can barely put food on the table!"

Mrs. Karr said she supports herself and her daughter with $700 a month in take-home pay, plus another $80 for driving a school bus.

"After I've paid the bills each month, I have $125 for groceries, child care and miscellaneous expenses," she said.

The committee heard and sent to subcommittee the TSTA proposal and four other teacher pay bills, with instructions to merge them into a single measure for consideration by the full committee.

The bills include the Texas School Administrators Council's proposal to provide larger increases for experienced teachers than for those early in their careers. It would raise beginning teachers to $8,500 this year, $9,000 in 1978-79 and $10,000 in 1980-81.

A teacher in his or her 10th year would receive half again as much as the beginning teacher, or $1,500 for every $1,000.

Committee chairman Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, offered a bill providing a 6 per cent raise for teachers who have taught three years or more.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Dallas, proposed putting teacher pay in the general appropriation bill, just as state employes, rather than requiring a separate bill each session of the legislature.

Rep. Bill Blanton, D-Carrollton, recommended 5 per cent annual increases.

The TSTA presented statistics showing the buying power of a beginning teacher's salary has dropped from $4,614 in 1967 to $4,611 today, measured in 1967 dollars.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has recommended that the legislature not raise the minimum salaries guaranteed teachers by the state but let local districts raise them if funds are available. His school finance plan would reduce demands on local taxes for the Foundation School Program.

TSTA President Grace Grimes of Marshall said, however, that neither teachers nor districts wanted to be forced into such pay raise negotiations.

HC Co-op classes available

The Howard College Adult Basic Education Co-op has now served over 450 adults during this program year.

Of the total number served, 34 have received their high school diplomas by passing the General Educational Test, and nine other students have successfully completed portions of the test. Three of the adults receiving their diplomas were enrolled in the classes at Coahoma, 12 at the Big Spring State Hospital, and 19 were enrolled at Howard College. The co-op includes Coahoma, Forsan, Stanton, Grady, Big Lake, Garden City and Big Spring.

Goal and purpose of the Adult Basic Education Program in the state of Texas is to provide education for adults who function below the 9th grade level in reading, writing, the speaking of English, general mathmematics, and other generally required school subjects. The General Education Development Classes provide education for adults for competitive and successful results in the million Texans age 25 or over lack a high school diploma.

Within the Howard College Co-op area, there are 6,973 adults 25 years of age or older with no more than eight years of education, and the number of adults in this age group who have an education level of at least nine years, but less than 12 years is 5,627, according to the Regional Population Analysis which was taken in part from the 1970 Census Bureau statistics.

Enrolling in the classes is easy. Adults interested in learning to speak English, GED tests series for certification of high school equivalency. Although Texas has become a leader among other states in the field of adult education, according to the 1970 census data, of a total population of 11,196,730, considering those adults 25 years of age or older, 1,758,413 completed less than nine (0) years of school. The overall estimated population in Texas age 16 or older with less than a high school diploma, according to the Bureau of the Census, is 3,975,740. And over 3½ becoming more proficient in math, English, or reading skills, or preparing themselves for the GED tests should contact the local school district in the town in which they live. In Big Spring interested persons should contact Rosemary Flores or Herb Johnson at Howard College, phone 267-6311 ext. 66 for more information about the classes or how to register.

During the 1975-76 program year approximately 359 adults participated in the program, and 63 adults completed the GED. Currently, out of the total number of adults participating in the program, 81 are learning to speak English, 285 are enrolled in the ABE classes, and there are 114 in the GED classes.

Court panel dodges issue

HOUSTON (AP) — A three-judge federal court panel says it will abstain from ruling in the U. S. Justice Department's voting rights suit against Waller County and state officials.

The panel announced Tuesday it would abstain until state law issues affecting the case are resolved in state court.

The panel dismised the suit but left open the option for the federal government to refile the case which alleges students at Prairie View A&M College are discriminated against by the use of questionnaires by the county tax-assessor collector to determine if they are residents of the county.

The judges' opinion said it is up to state courts to determine if Secretary of State Mark White has the power to regulate county voter registration prcedures and if he can prohibit Waller County from using the questionnaires.

Death ruled accidental

HOUSTON (AP) — The body of Paul Charles Goundry Jr., 20, of Richardson, a Rice Unviversity sophomore, was found Tuesday hanging from the stadium support beam of the Rice University athletic stadium.

Police said a rope was tied around the student's neck. A medical examiner said the death was ruled accidental.

Resuci-Ann joins Scout Exposition

Viewers of the Scout Exposition Saturday afternoon in Highland Mall will be taken along on a medical exploration by Post 236.

Working with Advisor Jim Roberts, some 15 members of the medical post sponsored by the VA Hospital, will give demonstrations on how to deal with cardio-pulmonary arrests. They will have a manndquin (Resuci-Ann) which will be used to show resuscitation techniques in restoring arrested breathing. There also will be a slide show on cardio-pulmonary rescue, along with a film on the same subject.

If plans work out, this will be backed up by a video presentation via a tape casette to project a National Geographic show on the "Magnificient Machine," the story of the human body.

Still another feature will be blood pressure checks for all who want them. Literature from the American Heart Association and from the American Cancer Association will be available for distribution.

The post, open to teenagers who are interested in exploring the health and medical fields, meets the first and third Monday evenings at Room 216 in the VA Hospital, and on the fifth Monday when it occurs. The presentation Saturday is only one of more than a dozen on various scouting skills and cubbing interests.

Law firm adds Augustine

John C. Augustine, son of Mrs. Joyce E. McBride, 2611 Cindy Lane, has recently joined the law firm of Minton, Burton and Fitzgerald in Austin.

Augustine received his bachelor's degree at Abilene Christian University in psychology and graduated from the University of Texas Law School. He is a graduate of Sterling City High School.

He and his wife, Marian, and their two children, Carol and John Michael reside in Austin. He served formerly as first assistant county attorney of Travis County. His brother, Scott Augustine, resides in Big Spring.

Dylan divorce records sealed

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Attorneys for singer-songwriter Bob Dylan and his wife, Sarah, have met in court to settle preliminary matters dealing with the couple's divorce, court officials say.

However, the records of the proceedings before Superior Court Commissioner John Alexander were sealed by court order last week, said Mrs. Dylan's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, after Tuesday's proceedings.

Mrs. Dylan's petition for divorce cited irreconcilable differences, which is all California law requires.

On March 1, she was granted temporary custody of the couple's five children and exclusive use of the rambling, dome-topped house the two built in the coastal Malibu colony.

Junior colleges are seeing red

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Junior colleges across the state badly need additional state appropriations to meet demands caused by ever-increasing enrollments, a House sub-committee has been told.

Robert Jackson of Brazosport, president of the Texas Association of Junior Colleges, told a sub-committee of the House Higher Education Committee that junior colleges went "$20 million in the hole" during the last biennium.

Available state money simply wasn't sufficient to keep up with a 40 per cent increase in enrollment the last two years, Jackson said.

Junior college officials support continuation of a "reasonable contingency fund" based on projected enrollment increase, Jackson said. A $20 million contingency fund was authorized for the 1976-77 biennium, and a bill currently before the Legislature would set aside another $11 million for 1978-79.

That amount would provide some relief in vocational-technical courses, Jackson said, but additional funds are needed for academic programs.

Junior colleges now teach 63 per cent of freshmen and sophomores in Texas colleges and 47 per cent of all college students, Jackson said, but get less than 20 per cent of state money going into higher education.

"We're providing a better education for more people for less money," Jackson said.

Several state representatives voiced their support for more junior college money.

"The state has refused to meet its responsibilities," said Rep. Frank Gason of Dallas. "We are guilty of neglecting the junior college districts of the state."

Texas has "not provided adequate contingency funding to provide for the junior colleges' continued growth," Gaston said.

Rep. Forrest Green of Corsicana agreed that the junior colleges were doing an efficient job on limited funds.

"If we're going to penalize these institutions by making them continue in debt, we cannot very long continue this efficiency," he said.

Most junior colleges, including Howard College, Midland College and Odessa College did not present individual budget requests to the sub-committee.

The Legislative Budget Board is recommending a total of $222.6 million for fiscal 1978 for the state's 47 junior colleges and $235.6 million for 1979. That amounts to about 82 per cent of what the junior colleges requested and is a 39.6 per cent increase over appropriat'ons to junior colleges in 1977.

Booze price fixing five sentenced

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — A federal judge has levied $27,500 in fines against five of eight defendants who pleaded no contest to charges that they fixed prices on liquor sold in some wet areas of Lubbock County.

One defendant also received a one-year probated sentence Monday from U.S. District Court Judge Halbert O. Woodward.

Prosecutors said two more one-year probated sentences, two 30-day jail terms and another $2,000 in fines have been offered in plea bargaining arrangements for the other three defendants.

Prosecutors added that they believe it would be the first time in Texas that jail sentences have been handed out in an antitrust case.

Defendants pleading nolo contendre were:

The Lubbock County Beverage Association; Cecil's Inc. of Lubbock; Crossed Keys Package Store of Lubbock; Pinkie's Inc. of Odessa; the All Star Company, Inc. of Lubbock; Bob J. Grimes, Lubbock manager of Pinkie's Inc.; Hubert Odom, president and general manager of Cecil's, Inc.; and Kenneth Odom, secretary-treasurer and manager in charge of operations at Cecil's.

Trustees disappointed by bids on new house

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado School board of trustees toured the field house prior to its regular meeting Monday and discussed possible needed changes and improvements.

The high school has recently greatly expanded its athletic program with an increase in participation and trustees were discussing keeping the facilities up with the demand of the program.

T.L. Rees presided over the regular meeting. The board was disappointed not to have any bids on the home constructed by the building trades students. It set April 18 for a rebid and lowered the escrow needed from ten percent of the total price to $1,000. It retained the right to reject all bids.

It also awarded the school insurance to participating local agents on a three-year policy at a 20 per cent deviated rate.

It approved the textbook committee recommendations and set July 14 as the date for the Board of Equalization to meet.

It also studied job description policies in conformance with state requirements.

It revised a city bus route to allow two runs since there were too many students for one load.

Supt. Lloyd McKee led the tour of the athletic facilities. Board members present, in addition to Rees, were Mac Morris, Drew Ballard, Ed Roach, Truman Bodine and Gene Blassingame.

County to help pay city landfill fee

COLORADO CITY — The Mitchell County Commissioners agreed to pay the one-third share of the Mitchell County ambulance fee and a monthly fee to participate in the city landfill when it met in regular session Monday.

The county pays $4,500 of the ambulance fee with the hospital district and the city paying the other two-thirds.

The county also agreed to pay $100 a month on the city landfill operation and it will be used countywide. The commissioners decided to enter into an agreement with the council of governments in Abilene to obtain a separate teletype for the sheriff's office rather than using that of the city police.

The board of equalization meeting was scheduled for June 21. A group of Loraine senior citizens were granted the right to add a room to the Loraine ag barn to be used for a senior citizen center. Judge Bill Carter presided at the meeting.

Ridin' fence

Little bit western

with Marj Carpenter

When the Century Club and Webb Air Force Base combined over the weekend to entertain a squadron of cadets from the Air Force Academy, they did it up brown.

Even to brown air, since there was a gigantic dust storm when they arrived.

Col. Harry Spannaus, wing commander and Col. Jerry Grimes, base commander, got into the act by wearing their western clothes to the mini-rodeo.

These commanding officers are really good sports and really enter into the spirit of the occasion — whatever it might be.

Harry and Mary Spannaus have a sense of humor that won't quit. Col. Spannaus is very military and conducts everything at the base with an efficiency befitting his rank. But he and Mary both have a twinkle in their eye that can laugh off the ridiculous or enthusiastically enter into that which can be fun for all.

Certainly, Jerry and Katie Grimes can. We all know that Katie is a local girl to start with and Jerry's been back and forth around here often enough that we'll claim him as well.

Toots Mansfield, one of the most famous ropers in the country, wasn't around for this particular event but often helps with them. As a matter of fact, he spent his 62nd birthday last year roping at one of the mini rodeos. (I got it right this time, Toots).

The group that helped this year included E.P. and Skipper Driver, Kenny Thompson, Dr. Hank Thompson, Tom and Bill Thompson, Martin Fryar and Billy Fred Walker. I hope that's right. Keeping up with ropers can be a mind boggling operation.

Roping is both a skill and an art. It takes hours of practice. I know. My husband used to rope a little bit and he was not very good at it. But he practiced a lot to be not very good. We had a lot of fun going to ropings when we were young.

I had a neighbor two houses down in Andrews known by many West Texas ropers named Junior Fisher. I wasn't around Andrews when Junior learned to rope. But he was good at it.

I was around Andrews when his son, Dan, was learning to rope and he also was good at it. He had a wood "horse" out front of their in-town home with horns tied on the front. Every time he went in and out the door, he swung the rope at that playlike calf.

After you can catch a stick calf on the ground, you've still got to catch a live one from horseback. But apparently all practice helps.

I think most of the cadets realized the skill involved in roping when they watched the mini-roping.

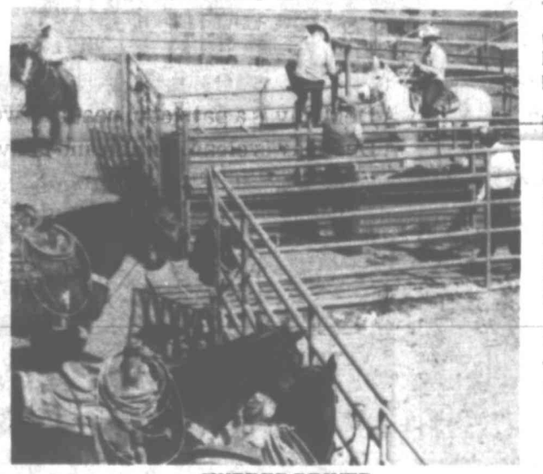

And whether they realized that or not, they did realize they had really been hosted in a grand style while in Big Spring.

Big Spring people are good hosts — whether it be Webb or the in-towners — Big Spring knows how to host a visitor and show him a good time.

And around town — different groups act as hosts quite often and do it rather well. I've noticed this when out and around ridin' fence.

Heart swap odds improved

EDITOR'S NOTE — It's still a chancy, last-resort operation, and there are fewer heart transplants now than during their heyday in the late 1960s. But one medical center has greatly improved the survival rate, and there are signs of new interest in this surgery. Second of a series.

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Willem Van Buuren has had his second heart for more than seven years now and says, at the age of 47, "I expect to go on for another 20 or 25 years."

At a time when most cardiac surgeons still feel the results of heart transplants don't justify the costs, Van Buuren has this message for those whose hearts are damaged beyond repair: "Take it any time you can; it's your last hope."

The wave of enthusiasm for heart replacements that followed the first successful transplant in 1967 faded.

But there are signs that the operation may soon make a comeback at certain medical centers in this country, where interest reportedly is stirring anew because of the rising success rate of Stanford University surgeons. The steadily improving survival rates are largely the result of a determined campaign by Stanford doctors against the body's rejection of a transplanted heart and against infections that kill many transplant patients.

Nearly four out of five patients are surviving the first year after the operation at Stanford — the only institution in the country regularly performing transplants. Nine years ago, when the program began, only 22 per cent, or slightly more than one in five, of the patients survived for a year or more.

Of 117 patients receiving new hearts at Stanford, 45 patients — including Van Buuren, a building estimator from Mill Valley, Calif. — still are alive; four have survived five years or more.

Worldwide, 70 patients are living, of 328 transplants performed.

"I think the improving results are encouraging surgeons at other institutions to try transplants again," said Dr. Jack Copeland, chief resident in general surgery at Stanford.

In fact, a few days after Copeland made the statement in an interview, doctors at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York placed a donor's heart in the chest of OPEN HEART SURGERY — Dr. Norman E. Shumway, left, professor of surgery and head of cardiovascular surgery at Stanford University Medical Center, near Los Angeles, and Dr. Edward B. Stinson, assistant professor of cardiovascular surgery at Stanford perform an operation at Stanford recently. Heart transplants are still a last resort, but Stanford University surgeons have been making a campaign against rejection of transplants and infections that kill many patients who undergo the operation.

The Stanford surgeons, headed by Dr. Norman Shumway, believe that their operations are justified by the extra years they can offer patients who almost certainly would be dead within a few months.

Van Buuren, who was told in 1970 that he had three months to live, says he had no trouble making the decision. He says he now lives a "more or less normal" life, while patients he knew who decided against the transplant are dead.

There was a flurry of transplants for two or three years after Dr. Christiaan Barnard performed the first human heart replacement in Cape Town, South Africa, in December 1967.

But most surgeons soon gave up, unable to maintain a dying patient. It was the first heart transplant in the city since 1969.

Copeland, who is moving to the University of Arizona medical school, said transplant programs may begin by 1979 at Arizona and within one to three years at Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, N.Y. Surgeons from Harvard Medical School, which has a well-funded research program in animal transplants, are very seriously considering human transplants, he said.

Rejection and infection still cause nearly all the deaths from heart transplants, but at Stanford some advances have been made on both fronts.

Recently, an antiserum from the blood of rabbits has had striking success in preventing rejection. The antiserum suppresses the body's attempts to destroy the foreign heart. In more than 35 patients treated with the antiserum, called Rabbit ATG (antithymocyte globulin), survival for nearly three years has been about 70 per cent, compared with 33 per cent three-year survival for all patients during the nine years of the program.

With Rabbit ATG "there is a smaller number of rejection episodes and a greater interval between the transplant and the first rejection," said Copeland. This means the patient can be given a lower dose of other immunosuppressive drugs, thereby decreasing the chance of infection.

Another weapon against rejection is a biopsy device that is threaded through a neck vein and deep into the heart's pumping chamber to snip a bit of tissue. Studied under the microscope, the tissue gives early warning when rejection is beginning so that steps to suppress it can begin quickly.

There have been six cases lately in which a failing transplanted heart was removed by Stanford surgeons and replaced with another — giving the patient his third heart of his life. Three of these retransplant patients survived, two of them for more than one year.

If a transplant renaissance is under way, it has not yet been felt by the prestigious American Heart Association.

"I do not detect any resurgence of interest," said Dr. Russell M. Nelson, chairman of the AHA's Council on Cardiovascular Surgery, a group that helps recommend where research money should be spent. Speaking in a telephone interview from a meeting of thoracic (chest) surgeons in San Francisco, Nelson said, "The real interest is in repairing hearts."

He said that recent "brilliant work in saving hearts has taken the heat off of transplants." He referred specifically to the recently developed coronary bypass operation which an estimated 65,000 patients will undergo this year to reroute blood flow through blocked coronary arteries.

Nevertheless, Copeland told an AHA science writers forum in San Antonio, Tex., recently that there are more patients awaiting new hearts than there are donors. The patients selected by Stanford are those whose hearts are so severely damaged that they will die in a few months, but who are not so near death that they have little chance of surviving the operation.

West Texas air traffic growth anticipated

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Just 10 years ago Davis Airlines flew passengers between College Station and Dallas Love Field and was 'Texas' only intrastate air carrier.

Today, a special report from the Texas Aeronautics Commission said, more than two million passengers a year are flying on intrastate airlines certified by the TAC between 27 cities of the state.

"The reasons for growth are numerous, but among the most important are lower fares, higher frequencies and service to small communities," said the report issued Tuesday.

The TAC said that intrastate carrier are now providing air service to nine Texas communities that have been abandoned by the interstate carriers certified by the Civil Aeronautics Board. These include Big Spring, Brownwood, Bryan-College Station, Del Rio, Galveston, Lufkin, Nacogdoches, Temple and Victoria.

Another three communities, Clear Lake City, Killeen and Lake Jackson, which never had secheduled air service, are now being served by TAC carriers.

"Commission projections indicate a healthy and steady increase in intrastate passenger traffic during the next decade. The anticipated addition of El Paso, Lubbock, Midland-Odessa, and Austin by Southwest Airlines, with its larger equipment, may result in growth rates comparable to the previous decade," the report said.

Expanded communication

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — In an effort to expand its television communications capability in time for the 1968 World Cup Soccer Championship, Argentina signed an agreement with neighboring Paraguay to extend the communications network linking the two countries.

When fully operational by mid-1978, the two-country connection of the Inter-American Telecommunications System will have a capacity of 960 phone channels and color TV transmissions, several of which will be linked to earth satellites.

'Friendly rapist' indicted

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas man identified by police as the "friendly rapist" has been indicted on three counts of burglary.

The indictments returned here accuse Guy William Marble Jr., 29, of burglarizing three different apartments in Dallas in 1975 and 1976.

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade said that the burglary indictments were sought instead of rape indictments because burglary would be easier to prove in court than aggravated rape. Wade pointed out that rape carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison while burglary of a dwelling carries a maximum sentence of life in prison.

"You have to carve one offense out of one transaction," Wade said in explaining that the same complaining witness cannot be used to gain two separate convictions.

Wade also said that prosecutors will have to prove that Marble burglarized a residence with the intention of committing a felony or theft. He said the evidence against Marble in the burglary charges would include testimony from the alleged victims that they were sexually assaulted and that money or other personal belongings were taken.

Marble, an advertising executive, was arrested Feb. 14 outside an apartment in the north section of Dallas by officers who were staking out the area in an attempt to find the man who was reportedly responsible for more than 40 rapes in the area. He had been called the "friendly rapist" by police because of his attitude towards his victims.

Robber on camera bilks buyers

DALLAS (AP) — Customers who have patronized a convenience store the other night presumably were unaware that an enterprising robber was posing as the clerk and pocketing their money.

And the robber evidently was not aware that a hidden camera was recording his every move.

Officers who viewed the film estimated 30 to 35 customers — including a Dallas tactical policeman — made purchases Monday night during the hour the robber spent behind the store counter.

The real clerk, Ramona Beal, 20, told police she was ordered to stand in a corner in a back store room.

The last two customers waited on by the impostor asked for change for $2. The bogus clerk took the money and told the pair he was crossing the street to get change. He never returned.

MISSED — Billie Jean King, USA, misses stroke at ball (left) on her return to competitive play in doubles action in the Virginia Slims second day of preliminary rounds of women's pro tennis tourney in Philadelphia Tuesday night. It was the first match for Billie Jean since last October and knee surgery in December.

76ers back on track

By the Associated Press

The Philadelphia 76ers may be back on the track.

Having aired their gripes and spoken their pieces, the 76ers settled down to what they do best Tuesday night and routed the Cleveland Cavaliers 133-102.

"I think the stories cleared the air," suggested 76ers forward George McGinnis, referring to reports of discord on the team which had surfaced earlier this week. "Everybody came into the lockerroom tonight with a different attitude.

"If this can be a turning point for us, it couldn't come at a better time."

Indeed, if the 76ers are to go far in the National Basketball Association playoffs — which are only a month away — they will have to play better than they did for the past month, when they had difficulty breaking even.

The way they played against Cleveland would be just fine, however.

In other NBA games, the Denver Nuggets beat the Los Angeles Lakers 107-95, the Portland Trail Blazers defeated the New Orleans Jazz 131-104, the Kansas City Kings edged the Washington Bullets 101-99, the Chicago Bulls beat the Boston Celtics 107-96 and the San Antonio Spurs stopped the New York Nets 118-108.

Julius Erving scored 29 points for Philadelphia and McGinnis had 23, including 13 in the decisive third period. The 76ers led 57-46 at intermission, started the second half with a 10-2 burst and outscored Cleveland 43-25 in the third quarter, putting the game away.

Nuggets 107, Lakers 95

Baskets by Dan Issel, Jim Price and David Thompson within a span of 16 seconds midway through the third quarter helped Denver beat Los Angeles in a matchup of the two teams with the best records in the NBA. That flurry stretched the Nuggets' lead to 17 points and the Lakers did not threaten after that.

Thompson led the Nuggets with 26 points while Bobby Jones had 15 points and 12 rebounds.

Blazers 131, Jazz 104

Portland snapped a threegame losing streak behind Lionel Hollins and Maurice Lucas, who scored 22 and 20 points, respectively, and handed New Orleans its eighth straight loss.

Kings 101, Bullets 99

Kansas City won its sixth in a row and dealt Washington its fourth straight defeat as Sam Lacey scored two baskets and a pair of free throws in the final minute, climaxing a Kings' rally that erased a 10-point fourth-quarter deficit.

Bulls 107, Celtics 96

Chicago posted its 10th victory in the last 11 games and moved within two games of the .500 mark as Artis Gilmore scored six of his 28 points in the final three minutes against Boston and Norm Van Lier and Wilbur Holland chipped in with five points apiece.

Spurs 118, Nets 108

Mark Olberding scored 22 points and tied his career high with 13 rebounds for San Antonio, which led by as many as 23 points in the third period and eased to victory.

Ratliff dies at age 73

DALLAS (AP) — Harold Ratliff, a cigar-chomping, rapidfire interviewer who loved Texas schoolboy sports and its Friday night heroes, is dead at the age of 73.

Ratliff died in a Dallas hospital Tuesday. Funeral services will be held Thursday at the Restland Funeral Home in Dallas with burial to follow.

Ratliff, who served as Texas sports editor for the Association Press for 32 years, retired in 1966. He died one week after suffering a stroke.

He was known to most sports writers and newsmen in the state for his ever-present cigar and his aggressive but appealing style at interviews.

The colorful Ratliff was the man initially responsible for the in-depth coverage now given Texas high school's 1,000 plus football teams.

He almost died seven years ago with a stroke but battled back. One magazine mistakenly carried Ratliff's name on he obit page.

The thing that insulted him was "they only gave me three paragraphs."

Ratliff, the author of five books, was considered Texas' leading sports authority. He joined The AP at Dallas after working from 1924 until 1927 at the Hillsboro Mirror and from 1927 to 1936 at the Cleburne Times-Review.

His favorite book "Autumn's Mightiest Legions" was a chronicle of Texas high school football—his first love. It is regarded as the best printed history of the schoolboy gridiron wars.

Ratliff, who wrote something like 4.5 million words on sports in Texas, said his greatest football thrill was the Southern Methodist-Texas Christian game for the national championship in 1935.

Randy Matson, Texas A&M's world record holder in the shot put, was his favorite athlete.

Tors blow Steers

LAMESA — The Big Spring Steer diamond men suffered their second loss in seven starts this season, as they fell to an inspired Lamesa Golden Tornado nine 11-7 Tuesday afternoon.

The three Steer pitchers walked a total of 13 batters. "When you get that many base on balls, you don't win too many games," said Coach Tom Collins.

Arthur Olague and Frankie Rubio hit back to back home runs in the fifth to highlight the local's offense. Ricky Myers and Mike Harris also garnered two of the seven total hits.

Mike Harris, 1-1, was credited with the loss, and Tony Mann, who went two for three at the plate, saw action as the catcher.

"We played defense pretty well," said Collins, "and I'm disappointed that we lost, but not that concerned. We have three tough games coming up this weekend, and we should be ready for Abilene next Tuesday."

Baptist track for Saturday

The Big Spring Baptist Association Annual Track Meet for boys and girls will be held this Saturday in Memorial Stadium.

Competitors will be vying for medals and ribbons in both track and field events. Field events will get underway at Memorial Stadium beginning at 10 a.m., while track events will start one hour later.

For further information, contact Byron Smith, 3-6472.

Shorthorns stop Snyder

SNYDER — The Big Spring Steer junior varsity baseball team improved its record to 2-1 Tuesday by virtue of a 9-5 clipping of the Snyder Tiger varsity.

Larry Smith was the winning hurler for the subs, and teammate Mike Gomez went three for three at the plate. Smith also had a triple.

Other locals who had a good day with the stick included Gilbert Rubio and David Manley, and Greg Henry with a double. The subs were behind 4-0 in the second inning when Rubio's hit started the onslaught. By the end of the third frame, the Shorthorns had all nine runs.

"We did a lot better than last week," said coach Mike Scarbrough.

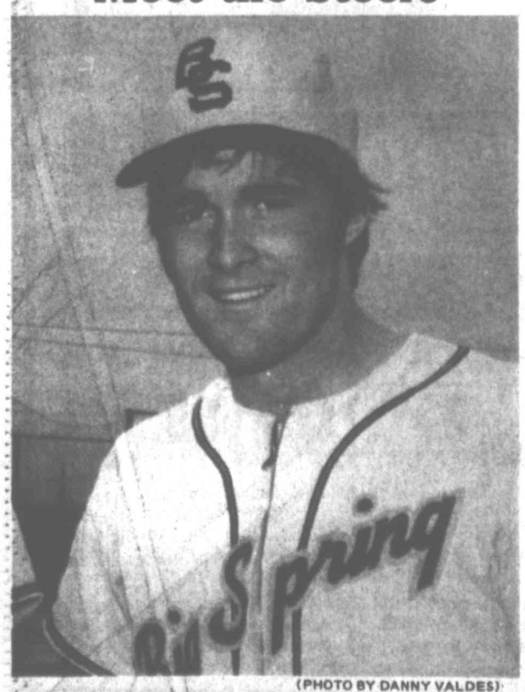

The JV's will be in Odessa next Monday against Permian at 4 p.m., and then will be in Steer Park the next day at 1:30 in a preliminary game with the Abilene subs. The varsity game begins at 4 p.m.

MSA's Cutler holds meeting

DeForest Cutler, national director of Miss Softball America, will conduct a meeting Saturday at 9 a.m. in the Snyder Savings and Loan Building 2601 College, in Snyder. Cutler will discuss the MSA program including rules and will field questions from the floor. The meeting is open to the public, and all interested from Big Spring are urged to attend.

For more information, call Charles Braddock, local director, at 267-7923.

Charlie's baseball goals this season include posting an ERA of 1.50 and going to state. He wants to "be a good player and keep hustling, even when we're behind." In his spare time, he enjoys swimming and hunting, and after college he wants to become a coach and "have a swimming team everywhere I go." Charlie has one sister, Debbie.

Western Texas upset

Juco tournament

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Ellsworth of Iowa and Sheridan, Wyo., met today in the only championship bracket game of the National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

Top-seeded, undefeated Southern Idaho, the tournament's defending champion, overcame stubborn Lincoln Trail of Illinois 76-66 Tuesday.

Other games in the double-elimination tourney saw Ellsworth nip fourth-seeded Western Texas 65-62, Vincennes of Indiana trounce Potomac of West Virginia 80-61, North Greenville of South Carolina shade Rhode Island 80-79, Farmingdale of New York upset Mercer County, N.J., 66-61, and San Jacinto, Tex. whip Shelby State of Tennessee 79-77.

Southern Idaho, which has not lost since early last season, got a scare. Although leading most of the way, the Golden Eagles were unable to pull free of Lincoln Trail until taking a 68-57 lead with four minutes remaining on a streak of three free throws and a field goal.

Kim Goetz led Southern Idaho with 23 points while Richard Johnson hit 22 for Lincoln Trail.

Richard Hall's layup with one minute remaining snapped a 61-61 deadlock and sparked Farmingdale past Mercer County. The Aggies then put in three consecutive free throws, icing the victory over Mercer County, the runner-up in last year's tournament.

San Jacinto used a pair of free throws from Ollie Mack with four seconds left to defeat Shelby State. The Tennessee team had tied the game 77-77 on a Mike Torrance jumper with two minutes remaining. Mack led the Texans with 29 points and Pee Wee Jackson had 23 for Shelby State.

Ellsworth rallied to overcome a 51-41 Western Texas lead with 11 minutes remaining on the long-range shooting of Dennis Van Mathis, who led all scorers with 24 points.

Texas sports briefs——

UT wins 23rd in a row

The Texas Longhorns tied a school record for consecutive baseball victories with 23 Tuesday night as they beat Wisconsin-Stevens Point in a doubleheader.

In the 7-4 first game triumph, Keith Ferguson paced the Longhorns with a three-run double and in the nightcap Bobby Kearney picked up two hits and two RBIs as Texas won 7-1.

Other results involving Southwest Conference teams saw Baylor sweep Hardin-Simmons 5-2 and 7-4, Houston trip Sam Houston 2-0 and 10-3, Southern Methodist lose to the University of Dallas 3-2 and then roll 17-3, Texas A&M beat Kansas 3-1 and Mankato State 7-1 in the Alamo Tournament at San Antonio, Central Michigan sweep Texas Christian 4-2 and 10-0 and Arkansas take Tulsa 6-2 and 4-1.

Astros fall to Braves

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Atlanta Braves downed Houston 6-1 in exhibition baseball here Tuesday as Phil Niekro allowed only one hit in four innings and Buzz Capra gave up just two in three frames for the Braves.

Niekro got credit for the victory and Willie Montanez, Gary Matthews and former Texas Ranger Jeff Burroughs accounted for five hits in nine trips and three runs batted in. The loss went to Houston starter J.R. Richard.

Rangers upended by birds

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Texas Rangers had their troubles Tuesday against the Baltimore Orioles.

Baltimore breezed past the Rangers 7-3 as Doug DeCinces snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth with a two-run homer. De-Cinces' blast came off Jim Umbarger, who had allowed the tying run to score moments earlier.

It was the Rangers' fourth straight spring loss since they opened exhibition play with two victories last Friday.

New SID for WTSU

AMARILLO (AP) — West Texas State University has named Dick Dietl, sports information director at Drake the past seven years, as its new athletic director.

Dietl replaces Gene Mayfield, whose Jan. 8 resignation becomes effective April 1.

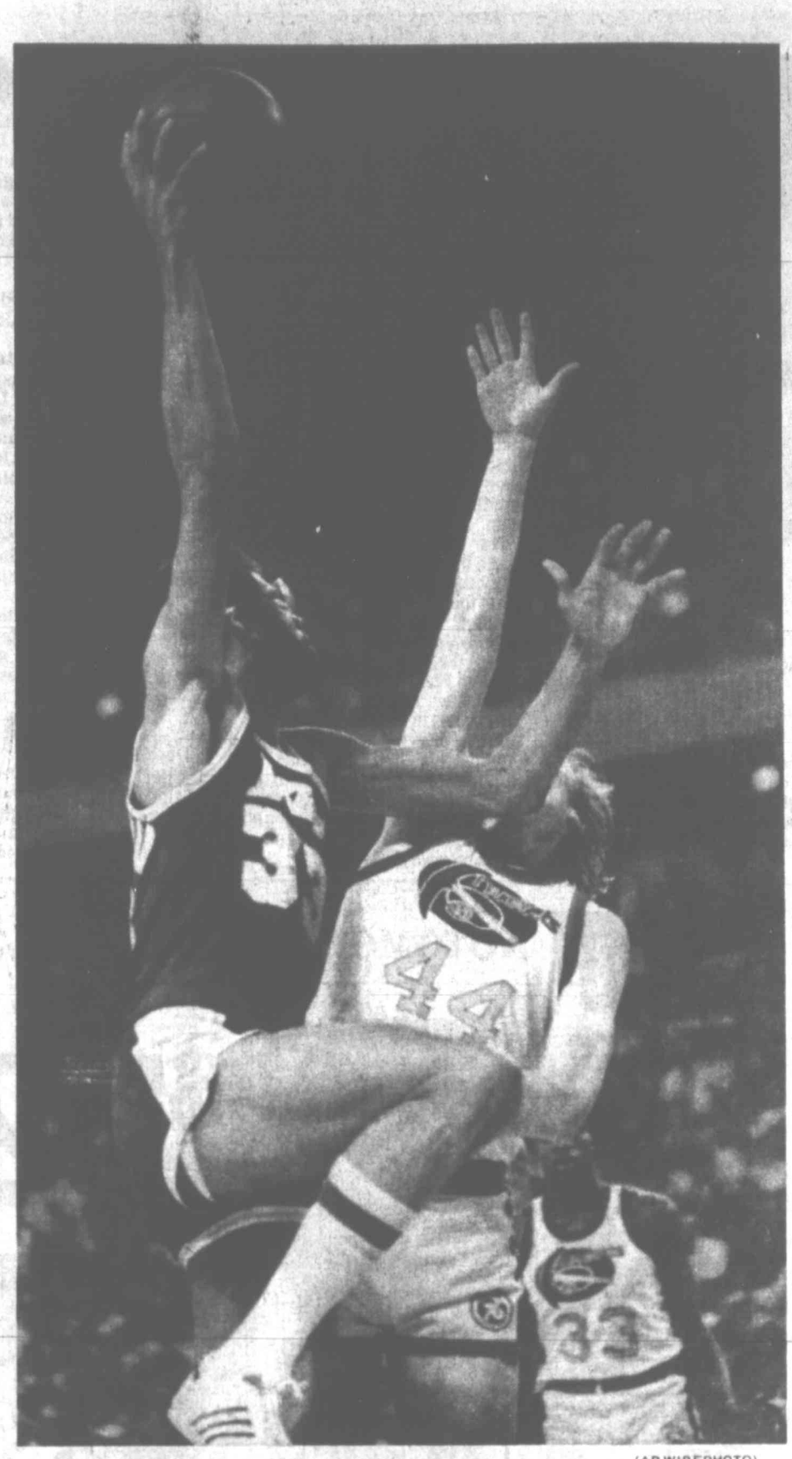

Defections in Frog ranks

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Arnold McDowell, a freshman basketball player at Texas Christian from San Angelo, says he won't be at TCU next year and he believes several other players have decided not to return.

McDowell, in San Angelo for the TCU spring break, said he will return to Fort Worth to finish this semester but will be looking at several junior colleges to transfer to.

Coach Johnny Swaim's Horned Frogs suffered through their worst season in years in 1976-77, losing 17 conference games in a row and winning just three of 26 games for the season.

"I just didn't like the coach and his style of play," said McDowell. "He wasn't doing a good job of coaching. I don't think he knew what he was doing.

A FACE-FULL OF ELBOW — Los Angeles Lakers' center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar appears to give Denver's Dan Issel a shove with his elbow as he attempts to make a hook shot in Tuesday night's National Basketball Association game which was won by Denver, 107-95.

YOUNG IDEAS

NEWS ITEM: GIANTS TRADE CRAIG MORTON

So ends the most frustrating three years in the annals of the once lofty Giants.

Was it Craig Morton's fault?

Certainly not all of it. Some was.

"Maybe we expected him to do more than we could do," said Andy Robustelli. He said "we could do," not "he could do," indicating that if Craig Morton didn't help the Giants, maybe the Giants didn't help Craig Morton much, either.

The trouble with Craig Morton was that the Giants didn't get a quarterback, they got an automaton, and the tapes remained back in Dallas, inside the head of Tom Landry. Craig Morton was computerized to coach Landry. When they were separated, when Morton no longer had Landry to send in the plays, to guide his actions, the quarterback reverted to his original tendencies. He had to learn all over again. The process was slow, unimaginative, methodical.

It was a washout, and expensive. For Morton, Robustelli gave up the Giants' No. 1 draft of '75, and No. 2 draft of '76. In the recording of New York deals of our time, it ranks right up there with Nolan Ryan for Jim Fregosi.

This time, the Giants get QB Steve Ramsey for Morton. It is noteworthy that neither the Giants nor the Denver Broncos entertain any great expectations for their incoming quarterback.

Ramsey, at Denver, flopped with a vigor equal to Morton in New York. Presumably, each will be revitalized by the change of environment. Each will hear new accents in the boos of the fans, and that will be refreshing.

NEWS ITEM: JOCKEY TURCOTTE FINED $50

It was for filing a frivolous claim of foul, but that's not important. Neither was the foul, if any. It is what Ron Turcotte had to say afterward that is important.

"The stewards went by what they saw on film," he said. "The tape can't pick out the spaces between horses. It doesn't show anything you need see. I know I was pushed behind a horse."

Keep that quote in mind the next time some defeated team or some simplistic expert screams for instant replay as the cure for bad decisions by umps and referees.

NEWS ITEM: OWNERS RECEIVE AGENT CATALOG

There are 85 agents, count them, handling big league ballplayers. Their names, with their clients, have been assembled on a list circulated among the Lords of Baseball by their player-relations committee. They range from several one-shots like Carl Rosen (for Bobby Murcer) to Jerry Kapstein, the champ, who has 48 big leaguers listed, which is more than you can say for any ballclub.

The list does not contain the name of any Mets ballplayer, for the simple reason that no Met has a visible agent. Some may have hidden advisors, but none has come forward to bargain for a Met player. This remarkable fact indicates that the Mets must be well paid, indeed overpaid in some instances. It also gives some idea of what M. Donald Grant means when he talks about "the Mets family."

That phrase usually is applied to describe the veteran Mets players. Since the death of Joan Payson, it can more accurately be used for The Payson Family, among whom her stock has been distributed. Most people seem to think that Joan's daughter, Mrs. Lorinda deRoulet, inherited her 78 per cent, and with it absolute control. That is far from accurate.

Midway wins YMCA honors

Midway Baptist defeated 1st Baptist 58-48 to take Championship Honors in the YMCA post Season Basketball Tourney this past weekend. On their way to the championship, Midway rode the hot hands of Gary Roberts and Keith Stone and strong rebounding from Felix Robles. Randy Marshall, Doyle Smith, and Billy King turned in fine efforts for 1st Baptist.

Other action saw 1st Christian defeat Crestview Baptist 60-51 to take 3rd place honors. Delnor Poss tossed in 33 points for 1st Christian to lead all scorers.

College Baptist turned back the YMCA 62-60 as Noel Hull had the hottest hand of the day in scoring 37 points. Porras, Arencibia, and Grant played an outstanding game for the YMCA.

Forsan's Marci in finals

Marci Nichols, Forsan High School, defeated both the second and third-seeded players in the Brownfield Invitational Tennis Tournament March 12 and 14. This enabled her to reach the finals of the tough 64 draw girls singles division.

Opposing her in the finals was first-seeded Teresa Cargill of Brownfield. The final match left Marci runner-up by a 6-3, 6-1 loss to Cargill.

Marci's advancement to the finals included four previous matches in the first of which she defeated Theresa Schraeder of Garden City 6-3, 6-0. In the second round she defeated Karen Dodds of Brownfield 7-6, 6-0. In the quarterfinals, third-seeded Rusti Coleman of Morton was downed 6-1, 6-1 and in the semifinal play second-seeded Barbara Grantham of Lubbock Dunbar fell to Marci 6-4, 6-3.

Blue jeans 'dangerous'

TORONTO (AP) — Pierre Cardin, the French designer who brought high fashion into ready-to-wear clothes 17 years ago, says the popularity of blue jeans has been dangerous to the fashion industry.

"And jeans aren't fashion," he said in an interview Tuesday. "Designers can do nothing about this revolution. I can do nothing about jeans."

Cardin has 346 factories in 46 countries producing his clothing and accessories. He employs 70,000 people.

'Magnet' pupil wants to flunk

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas public school desegregation plan apparently is so successful that at least one bright student has threatened to flunk the eighth grade in order to continue her present course of study at a specialized junior high.

Cathy Thompson, an eighthgrader at Oliver Wendell Holmes Academy, shocked a panel of parents, students and teachers at the Dallas magnet school (7th and 8th grades) by saying she may purposely flunk in order to continue receiving a broad education in classics.

If she passes and goes to the ninth grade, she said she has no place to get a similar education.

Her statement brought home the message that she and other students feel that the school, one of 12 set up under a Dallas public school desegregation plan, is a success.

Magnet schools, many of them intermediate level, were set up last year to emphasize different subjects and are attended by students on a voluntary basis under established racial quotas.

Another student, Doug Tramel, told the panel he is also uncertain about the possibility of getting the same kind of education in another school that he is getting at the magnet school. He is studying languages and computers.

The academy is really a school within a school. Its 166 students, out of a total enrollment of 1,800, are given a classical curriculum with emphasis on history, languages and music. Teachers choose qualified students and encourage them to join the academy.

"We concentrate on creative thought and research," principal T. R. Lee Jr., said. "We encourage research, they go into the sociological aspects of history, of man, into the 'why' 'when' and 'where'." The students find it fascinating and watching them become involved and do their research is a rewarding thing.,"

The language courses include Latin, Greek, French, Spanish and German.

Lee said that students like Cathy and Doug will need to attend a specialized magnet high school or honors courses in their regular high schools when they leave Holmes.

While Cathy and Doug were worrying about where to go next year, school officials were appointing a task force to study reports of resentment and lack of cooperation by some principals and faculties whose top teachers and students are being recruited for the magnet schools.

Farm
'Leave dehorner in the barn'

This is the year that could sound the death knell for the screwworm fly in Texas and the rest of the United States.

The scientists and Old Man Winter have done their part, and other than checking for and reporting infestations, ranchers are being asked to do less than usual. That's a switch, huh? Actually, the less than usual applies to minor livestock surgery such as dehorning and castration. Any wounds, generally, that could be avoided or at least restricted to cool weather.

During a special screwworm meeting in Austin last month, ranchers were told to "Leave the knife in your pocket and the dehorner in the barn." It was ranchers and Texas Animal Health ommission member T.A. Kincaid who urged this currently commendable laxity on fellow stockmen. Kincaid added that the feedlot people could handle such chores just as easily, in addition to the ability to watch their charges more carefully for infestation.

The Austin meeting, with its various football-half-time-type pep talks, was the kick off point for a public relations drive to insure ranchers cooperation during this turning point year in the screwworm eradication. The unusually cold and drawn out winter has kept fly breeding depressed, in addition to pusing over-wintering zones furhter south. Meanwhile, the next Mexican fly plant has hit peak production, matching the 200 million sterile flies per week output of the original Mission plant.

With vigilance and surgical restraint on the part of ranchers, the screwworm menace could be pushed right out of Texas. A little luck and screwworms will be banished to the lower regions of the Yucatan Penninsula, a narrow band of land surrounded by salt water. This is the objective, since such a limited front line wuld be a relative snap to defend.

It's always easier to push on when you can see the end ahead. and this year in particular such encouragement is clearly visible. It's also easier to go forward when someone is jabbing your behind, and we have that, too.

The federal government has provided much of the funding for the screwworm fight and there are those in Congress and elsewhere who currently oppose the program. They may misunderstand the meaning of meddling in the screwworm's sex life or have projects of their own demanding money.

Whatever the reason, Governor Dolph Briscoe told his listeners in Austin that success was vital. "If we fail to make it work this year," he said, "we would lose the program." In all, it's a dandy situation — possible success on one hand, possible failure on the other. That's the kind of challenge that doesn't leave much room for complacency.

Dr. Abernathy to speak

The Four County Young Farmers will be privileged to have Dr. John Abernathy, Texas Weeds Researcher of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (T.A.E.S.), Lubbock, speak at their Thursday meeting at 8 p.m.

Abernathy has possibly carried on as much weed research using a variety of herbicides on numerous crops as any agricultural scientist in the state. Abernathy is 32 years of age, the father of two and is assistant professor of weed research for the TAES, and is project leader for weed research at Lubbock and Halfway, in the Texas Panhandle South Plains.

Abernathy received his bachelor and master of science degrees in agronomy at Oklahoma State University and his Ph.D. in 1972 from the University of Illinois. Abernathy was reared on an irrigated farm near Altus, Okla and began driving a tractor at age nine.

Abernathy is active in numerous professional organizations three of which are the Weed Science Society of American, the Southern Weed Science Society, and the West Texas Ag Chemical Institute. He joined the TAES at Lubbock in May, 1973.

Abernathy receives numerous phone calls from High Plains farmers seeking answers to their weed problems.

Abernathy sums up his feeling of his work by stating, "Of course, I believe it is important, but more than that, it is an area of research that provides definite solutions farmers can apply in order to make a higher yeild or a profit at the end of the growing season."
