MEXICAN GUARDS KILL AMERICAN

Rise In River Threatens 100

WALL OF WATER NEARLY CATCHES CAMPING GROUP

Picnickers Lose All Equipment As Flood Wipes Out Playground.

CARRIED AWAY

Truck Is Carried Away By Torrent's Rush Near San Antonio.

SAN ANTONIO, May 30.—(AP)—Rising 10 feet and six inches in less than an hour shortly after daybreak this morning the Guadalupe river imperiled the lives of more than 100 campers in the vicinity of Comfort and Center Point, a number of whom lost all their equipment including two automobiles. A milk truck was later recovered.

The first rise came in a five-foot wall of water that passed Center Point shortly after 7 o'clock, followed by steady increases until the peak of 10 feet and six inches was reached in less than an hou raccording to the water gauge on a mill.

Raymond C. Mann, driver of a truck plying between San Antonio and Center Point, narrowly escaped death when the first wall of water struck his truck which he had stopped at the river crossing to make some repairs. A Mexican helper caught in the first water avalanche was carried down stream several hundred yards and escaped on the opposite bank.

A bend in the river at this point prevented Mann from seing the onrushing waters until they were only a few yards away. Mann escaped by the bank, but the truck and the helper were both carried away. Othe trucks sent from San Antonio took Mann's truck from the river tonight about one-half a mile from the crossing where it was first struck.

Warm Landlords Of Padlock Statute

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—(AP)—Padlocks were rattled in the faces of San Francisco landlords by Colonel Ned M. Green, federal prohibition administrator, yesterday, in issuing an order to 625 landlords of hotels, apartment and rooming houses, to "kick out bootleggers or see their property locked up." Letters were sent out to the landlords involved.

"If this move doesn't dry up San Francisco we will all miss our guess," Colonel Green commented on the order.

Dry agents have purchased liquor in each of the 625 places, Colonel Green said.

Memorial Service Held For "Healer"

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 30.—(AP)—While an airplane strewed white and crimson roses over the gentle swells of Santa Monica Bay, where Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, and self-proclaimed healer disappeared, while bathing May 18, thousands of her followers crowded today into Angelus Temple, the scene of her religious labors here, to conduct a memorial service for the beautiful and magnetic woman whom they firmly believe is "with her God," after death in the Pacific surf.

Fails to Gain By Marrying Scribe

BERLIN, May 30.—To marry the head of the government's press section does not mean getting close to the news, says Frau Kiep, wife of Dr. Otto C. Kiep, chief of the official press bureau.

Frau Kiep has confided to American friends her disappointments in this line began soon after her wedding when her husband went to Geneva with the German delegation. "On his return I plied him with questions," she said, "for of course I assumed he could tell me what had happened. But my tired husband threw up his hands in despair:

"'What, you too! Isn't it enough to have newspaper men pester me day and night?'

He is right, but it seems the irony of fate to be married to the press department, as it were, and yet not have access to the news."

Joyce Hawley Not to Appear In Cal's Home

President's Native City Bars 'Bath Tub Girl' And Revue.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 30.—(AP)—Joyce Hawley, the "bathtub girl" who figured in the trial of Earl Carroll, New York theatrical producer, will not appear in President Coolidge's home town next week. A local dance hall had the show girl booked for an exhibition act June 2 and 3, but Mayor William M. Welch declined to issue a permit for the appearance.

In explanation of his action, Mayor Welch said:

"Any young woman who will jump into a bath tub nude, before a crowd of men, as Miss Hawley is reported to have done at Mr. Carroll's party, is not the kind of attraction we want in Northampton. She certainly will not come here if I can prevent it."

ATCHISON, Kan., May 30.—(AP) Using tea spoons to dig their way through an 18-inch wall, four prisoners escaped from the Atchison county jail here today.

The spoons were used to scrape the mortar joints and loosen the large stones in the foundation of the building, after the quartet had removed a steel floor drain to reach the foundation.

AMERICAN SCOUTS BID FOR ENGLISH GRID PRO STARS

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—Scouts of American football clubs have become active here, and there are several reports of migrations of English and Scottish professionals to America after the season closes in England.

It is stated that wages ranging from 14 to 20 pounds a week are being offered coveted players by American clubs, but it is mainly among the Scottish players where the Americans most readily find recruits. Wages for English players last season was about six pounds a week.

Both English and Scottish strongly oppose migration of the players, who have year-round engagements. They consider summer play detrimental to the winter form of the men.

GOULD INVESTING HEAVILY

American Financier Heavinly Interested in French Real Estate

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—A syndicate headed by Frank J. Gould has paid 9 million francs for a block of property, fronting the promenade des Anglias at Nice and plan to build upon it the largest American hotel in France. The original plan called for the construuction of an international sporting club to cost 250 million francs, but negotiations with the Nice municipal council regarding the license proved unsatisfactory and the idea was given up.

A year ago Mr. Gould headed a syndicate which bought the Chateau of Mont Boron, on the outskirts of the city and it is now reported that this property will be remodeled to house a luxurious club which has been under consideration for some time.

HOUSES ARE BORROWED

Popular Britishers Get the Loan Of Homes for Social Functions.

LONDON, May 30.—It is quite the fad for popular couples living in little houses or spartty apartments to borrow a large house from their friends when they want to give a real party. The practice among society folk for an entertainment of some kind for charity also is quite the vogue.

The house of Sir Alfred and Lady Mond, centrally located, has been in such demand that Sir Alfred, who is in politics, has taken a house next door to his residence so as to have more space for musicales, dances, teas and afternoon political meetings that Lady Mond likes now and then.

SOUTHPAW ROYALTY

New Daughter of British Nobility "Takes After" Her Illustrious Dad.

LONDON, May 30.—The Duke and Duchess of York's baby daughter "takes after" her father rather than the Bowes-Lyons of her mother's side.

The new princess is blue eyed, and fair haired and very much resembles the children of the king and queen in their early infancy. Owing to this fact Mayfair has been speculating whether, like her father, the baby will be left handed.

Queen Mary herself, like the little princess, is recorded in the royal family letters as having been an especially pretty and good tempered baby, who never cried at night.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICE HELD AT BELLEVUE

Reverend Leslie Miller Delivers Address At Ceremonial.

GOOD CROWD THERE

Uniformed Veterans Attend City's Decoration Day Sermon.

"A true patriot sometimes is tested more severely in times of peace than in times of war. It is a fine and a noble thing for a man to go out to face the enemy and give his life in defense of his country, but there are frequently trials to be met and sacrifices to be made in days of prosperity that try the mettle of man fully as much as does the battle field.

"And in order that we not break faith with those who died, we must be true to the ideals for which they fought and sacrificed: there are battles to be waged against deciet, against un-Godliness, against corruption in high places; against disease and against other evils. So we who remain must serve and sacrifice in order that their faith and their ideals may not perish."

Such was the though of Rev. Leslie Miller, pastor of the Grace Methodist church, who spoke Sunday afternoon at Memorial Day exercises participated in by a large number of Wichitans at Bellevue park. His address was the principal number of the program that included special music, a salute to the flag and other features. A good-sized crowd was on hand, included in which were numerous uniformed veterans of the Civil, Spanish-American and World wars.

Go to Cemetery.

Following the park services, the patriotic organizations went in a body to Riverside cemetery where the graves of soldier dead were decorated with appropriate ceremony.

Rev. Mr. Miller took his text from John 17:19 "And for their Sakes I Sanctify Myself."

In opening, he pointed out that this country has never gone to war save in matters of righteousness, justice and freedom. It has, he declared, been characteristic of the nation's armies that they have been called out only in defense of a weaker people, and never for personal aggrandizement or territorial profit. He stressed the fact that the leaders of the American military forces have ever been God-fearing men, and in this connection cited the prayers of Washington at Valley Fodge; of Lincoln in the White House during the dark days of the war of the states; of Jefferson who frequently asked divine guidance in his administration of the nation's problems.

"So the heritage that has come to us through the years; the heritage bequeathed through the sacrifice of our soldiers, calls us in this time of peace and prosperity to reciprocate on our part," the speaker asserted. "It demands that we live right for our country and be true to ourselves, our nation and our God."

Need of Service.

Here Rev. Mr. Miller made his reference to the need of service and sacrifice that the ideal of the soldier-dead might endure; and in closing he told the story of a drummer boy in the Civil war who, on seeing the color bearer of his regiment shot down, seized the flag and in the teeth of a withering fire from enemy lines, bore it far ahead of his supporting forces.

"The general," the speaker went on, noticed the flag far ahead of the men and sent courier to the little drummer, telling him to retreat with his flag and come back to the army.

"The drummer, being unversed in the rules of the military, answered "tell the general to bring the army up to me."

"And that," he concluded, "is the spirit in which we should live and work. We should have men able and fearless in the work of Christ and Christianity, men who will carry their colors forward and who constantly keep in mind the thought of service and sanctification for the sake of those who have made the supreme sacrifice."

Quartet Sings.

A mixed quartet composed of Mrs. H. L. Land, Miss Evelyn Cushman, Dr. L. D. Parnell and R. D. Ford sang "Tenting Tonight on the Old Camp Ground," and community singing was lead by Alva Willgus. Frank Creighton, scout executive, and a group of Boy Scouts lead a salute to the flag.

Major Joe Hatchitt was in charge of the program and Rev. L. S. White of the Church of Christ pronounced the benediction.

Memorial Day sermons were delivered by a number of pastors in the various churches of the city Sunday.

Monday will be a legal holiday here, although the banks are the only business instiutions that will be closed.

He was placed under the care of Colonel Huot, in command of the Taza region and will remain in Taza until the French and Spanish governments decide where he must take up his residence.

Krim was accompanied by his uncle, Bogibar and other members of his suite. They arrived in automobiles with a convoy.

LYNCH BACK IN HOUSTON AGAIN

Candidate for Governor At Home; Leaves for East Texas Today.

HOUSTON, Texas, May 30.—(AP) Lynch Davidson popped back into Houston Sunday morning after a whirl throughout the Rio Grande valley and having made four speeches yesterday and ridden all last night on the railroad he was down at his office soon after arrival doing a week's work at his personal business before hitting the trail again Monday, this time for East Texas.

Through a cyclone of newspaper clippings and letters and a traffic maze of stenographers, secretaries and others who urged him to come home and eat something, the candidate buzzsawed his way, and between jumps issued an announcement for the papers that "Jim is done for in the valley and Dan is slipping fast." Moody said the statement is suffering from an attempt to ride all the horses in the race, referring to the contention that the attorney general is backed by men affiliated with Standard oil interests and by those of wet leanings.

Hits Post, Chronicle

He made a special appeal to the voters of Harris county, saying that "when they know the real facts behind this fight on my candidacy in my own home town, they will, like me, be proud that these powerful dailies are opposing me tooth and toe-nail." The papers "hopped on him" as soon as the words were out of his mouth that he opposed the senate b ill180, said Davidson, because he was "fighting the Standard Oil company's attempt to 'gobble up' this state's oil and mineral resources." He said that R. L. Sterling, former president of the Humble Oil and Refining company, controls the policy of the Houston Post Dispatch, and that Jesse Jones closely affiliated with large financial interests of the east controls the Chronicle, and "thereby" snapped the candidate, "hangs the tale."

His newspaper opponents, said Davidson, "have been driven from their first trench, that senate bill is 'superfluous,' and have been forced into practical admission that the bill is the center of the Standard's plans to monopolize the oils of Texas." He called attention to the lengthy statement of W. S. Farish, president of the Humble Oil and Refining company in last week's Houston papers, and repeated his query, "when before has the president of a great standard owned company found time to enter into a political campaign?"

Huge Lobby

He asserted that he had "made out the case against the standard and disclosed that it put the biggest lobby in Texas' history at Austin last year and flooded the Ferguson Forum with advertising while senate bill 180 was being pushed through. I have disclosed that Attorney General Dan Moody went to Greenville a little later and by agreement made with the Magnolia company broke the legal fetters that General Looney placed upon the Magnolia in 1913 when he obtained a $500,000 judgment against the company and placed their stock in trusteeship, where it remained to prevent violation of the anti-trust laws, until Dan Moody joined in the agreement last fall and ended the trusteeship."

He announced his intention of bringall the capital possible into Texas. "I'll bring it in by the trainload and ride the train myself from Texarkana to the Valley, if it can be done," he said. "I am for big business so big that it threatens, medium sized business. But I am against any business so big that it threatens to stifle all competition. If we are going to give the standard everything under the ground, let's give them what's on top too, and go to work for them."

MOODY SPEAKS AT MEMORIAL DAY SERVICE

Attorney General Addresses Dallas Gathering Sunday.

OWSLEY TALKS TOO

Decoration Day Is Observed Throughout State Of Texas.

DALLAS, May 30.—(AP)—Soldier dead from Lexington to St. Mihiel were extolled with oratory and flowers in memorial day observances throughout Texas today.

A former national commander of the American legion, Col. Alvin Owsley, paid tribute to his dead comrades of the World war and to other defenders of the nation in a memorial address at Cliff Temple Baptist church here. Colonel Owsley stressed the country's debt of gratitude to the dead, which he said could be best exemplified by its treatment of the living who still bear the marks of war.

At another meeting in the afternoon at Fair Park, Attorney General Dan Moody delivered the principal address.

Upon the sacrifices of the noble dead rests the power and the glory of America, the speakers said. Attorney General Moody recounted the history of the American soldier from Valley Forge to the World war. The revolutionary soldiers, he said, had enabled the birth of a nation, cemented and knit into an undivided country by subsequent struggles regarding the Civil war. He said those who died at the Alamo and at Gallad had given their lives for the republic no less than those of the other wars.

Members of the United Spanish war veterans, veterans of foreign wars, disabled veterans of the World war, and the American legion decorated graves in cemeteries throughout the city.

Have Visions Of Right Kind, Judge Kay Urges Class In Talk On Jacob

Visions of the right kind—that create ideals to be striven for and which include high and holy purposes have an important place in man's life, Judge John C. Kay told his Bible class Sunday morning at the Strand theatre. He used the story of Jacob as the basis of his talk, which was heard by 307 persons and which was as follows:

There was a family row in the home of Isaac. Does a firecracker ever go off in your house so that you can smell it for a week? Rebecca went around dropping the dishes, and breaking them, and says: 'I don't know what is the matter with me. I am so nervous.' Abraham probably discharged a great many of his cow-hands without just cause. The boys were in a row.

Jacob had secured that priceless thing in any family, the leadership. You know, once in a while you hear it said that a man's wife is the boss at his house. That's all right. That's inevitable. Somebody has to be the boss and, if the old man hasn't got it in him, the wife has to be. And, some of us know just how it is.

Why We're Here.

So Abraham said to Jacoby "I expect you had better get out now and go on off." That's a good thing for a boy to do, sometimes, if he is not doing well, is to put him right out into the blue, away from the pantry. That is the reason a good many of you fellows are in Texas. "You go down yonder, now, in Coryell county where your grandfather lives, and stay down there awhile and go to work." And, he starts from there and on the road he goes to sleep, with a limestone rock for a pillow, and has this great vision that the reason about, and saw the angels coming up and down the ladder. Now, it may be that some of you haven't noticed that we have a great hymn based upon that story, "Nearer My God to Thee." "Though like a wanderer, the daylight all gone, Darkness be over me; my rest a stone." There let the way appear, steps unto heaven,

All that Thou sendest me, in mercy given."

So, the angels came down in this vision that Jacob had there on that lonely night in the wilderness, and it was said to him that, "You shall become a great people."

Ah, if our people had more vision. What the American people need, and what the people of Wichita Falls need, is a vision of finer things.

When you recited the Lord's prayer this morning you asked for something—some of you—that wouldn't have filled one per cent of your requirement. What did you say to God, this morning, here? "Give us this day our daily bread." Ah, what man, or what woman in Wichita Falls would be satisfied with that?

So, he had this vision and he goes off down there. Now, he was going down there to marry; going down there to work 14 years for a girl. That's the kind of weddings that stick and last until the floodgates of life are shut in eternal rest. Every once in a while we read about some fool young couple going up in an aeroplane to be married and I was going down the road here the other day, and I saw a crowd of folks by the side of the road, and I found out there was a couple getting married there in the woods and it looked like a justice of the peace was marrying them. People who take marrying as lightly as that, are going to keep on taking it lightly. Now, if you don't like that, you can do whatever you think is the best thing to be done about what I have said.

Not a Good Man.

Now, according to our standard, Jacob wasn't a good man; and according to our standards David wasn't a good man; and according to our standards, a goodly number of the great men of the Bible were not good. What are you going to do about that? They were just human. They would have felt perfectly at home in Wichita Falls, but they did have the courage to repent. I think that most of us can't be perfect. Jutting by myself, I know that we keep falling down on our good resolutions, and on our religion, and on the law, but God pity that man or that woman who has no sense of shame and who finds no altar at which to repent.

You know, I think that the Protestant church is laying too little stress today on the great doctrine of repentance. That was the doctrine that made the Protestant church, and we can well take a lesson from our friends, the Catholics, because they have everywhere, uncompromisingly, made repentance their great doctrine.

Jacob knew how to repent, and David knew how to repent and, the next time you go to thinking about how bad they were, remember they built these altars and repented in the sight of God and in the sight of men.

Now, in this vision, getting back to that, what is the vision in Wichita Falls? If you were to go out here and have a vision what would it be? I have watched that when some of these fakers come along to the theatre and say that they are going to answer 10 of the questions that people in the audience will send in. They would have the fellow up here, and folks would send in a note and he would answer their questions. It is highly big doings.—I never did understand it. The fact is, I never did get beyond the questions. Once, one fellow says: "When is my salary going to be raised!" In answer to that ought to be, "When you raise it." A man that would ask that question of a theatrical person naturally ought to be thinking about when it is going to be lowered. And, another fellow will say: "Will my wife come back to me?" And, the answer ought to be: "Not until you straighten up. Old Horse." And, I have actually heard them right here in Wichita Falls, say: "Am I going to make any money out of this oil lease I bought last week?" No vision except the most sought things. No thought, except self. What are you going to do about that? Do you do much high thinking? You know, I am not any sweeter nor any more righteous, than the rest of you, but I don't want the biggest house in town, or the fastest automobile. I would like to win out something, and, I would like to see you win out something in Wichita Falls that would last longer than an automobile or a house.

Talked About Children.

These angels talked to Jacob about his children. And, the vision that Jacob saw there in his children, as he slept on that mountain hillside alone, was that great poet Naomi, saying: "I will not leave thee. Thy people shall be my people and thy God my God." He could see in that vision, one of his children, David, singing: "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures. He leadeth me beside the still waters."

And more and most of all, Jacob could see in that vision, one of his descendants going up to Bethlehem and Jerusalem to pay the taxes, and one of his descendants sleeping in a manger, with a bright star burning and the wise men coming from the east to worship Him.

These are some of the dreams that Jacob had, and some of the things that he oresaw, that he was to become the father o fthe 12 tribes. How do I know that he could see all that? Because, when he was old and drew his knees up in the bed to die, as the Bible puts it, and he was telling his boys what was going to happen to them, and when he came to Judah, he said: "The scepter shall not depart from Judah nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be."

In your vision, don't leave out the life of the Master. Let me beg of you that you leave not out of your vision all the fine and holy things of life. Let me beg of you, today, that you say to yourself, as I try to say to myself, that I will stand up in Wichita Falls for all that is clean, and fine, and that my vision shall be the vision of one who unable to come fully to the truth yet, ever seeks for it.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

John Parrish, poor young man, is married to Audrey, rich, young woman, and manages her property for her. Marcie Allen, dark, beautiful and gay, a friend of Audrey's has just been turned out of her own home because of her very free ideas of what a young woman's rights are nowadays. The Parrishs invite her to stay with them. When she arrives at their home, she remembers that all her clothing, except what she has on, is locked in her late father's house—and nobody will be at the house until her mother returns two months hence.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

(Characters and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER V

Parrish gave an ejaculation of sympathy. Marcie left her chair, and danced down the room singing.

"I haven't any shimmy shirt, I haven't and petty skirt. And my, but I'll be cold," she caroled.

Stopping before Audrey, she added: "And your clothes won't fit me. Maybe—" she twinkled at Parrish—"I can wear a suit of John's pajamas. You don't care if I call him John, do you?"

"Call him anything you like," said Audrey, "But I'll lend you a nightgown, and some underthing, until we can get yours."

"How'll we get them?" objected Marcie. "The house is locked; I haven't a key, and I'll bet daddy wouldn't go back there to accommodate me, the way he feels."

Parrish, who had colored when Marcie suggested her use of his pajamas, and retired to the window, now turned his head. "I'll get your clothes, some way," he said.

"Sweet things," said Marcie, approvingly. "I'd kiss you if your wife weren't looking."

"Better not," advised Audrey. "I saw him dump a girl on the floor one time. She tried to sit in his lap."

Her tone was untroubled, and Marcie eyed her curiously. Audrey's type was strange to one of Marcie's bubbling temperament. The two girls had spent a term at boarding school together, years before, and had met again only six months ago. Audrey had been always with her handsome, far father. Marcie had roved from school to school, and finally to college. Their reunion had come at one of Audrey's first big parties after her marriage.

The married girl sat now, blonde and pink and assured, looking with a quiet air of possession at the man standing beside the window. Marcie, vivid, impatient of control, untamed of speech and habit, was not one to comprehend the calm certainty that attended every move that Audrey made.

"Am I a fright?" demanded Marcie, abruptly.

Audrey turned her gaze from her husband to her guest.

"You're the picture of a passion flower," she said. "You're lovely. Why?"

Well, then, I should think you'd be afraid to have me staying here, in the same house with your sweetie."

Audrey raised her eyebrows. "Why?"

"Well, I'm a rampageous female, with no conscience at all. I've told you that plenty of times. Suppose I go after your John, there?"

Parrish, at the window, moved nervously. His wife considered him, in cool appraisal. Then she turned back to her guest.

"I told you about daddy, didn't I?" she said. "Well, one thing I learned from him—no man is ever vamped unless he wants to be. I'm not worried."

She swung sedately to and fro in the rocking chair. Marcie looked at her in admiration.

"If I had a man, I'd scratch any woman's eyes out who came near him," she said.

The victim of this colloquy was fidgeting uneasily at the window. "For heaven's sake!" he grumbled.

"What, dear?" inquired his wife.

"Sometimes I think that women don't talk anything but mush, when they get together," he charged coming forward. "Let's talk about something else."

"Suits me," said Marcie. "You'd be surprised at the things I'm willing to talk about."

Audrey showed amusement, but Parrish, who had started to take a chair, stood up again.

"Think I'll go to bed," he said. "I'm tired."

He stooped and kissed his wife. Marcie came over and took his hand.

"I hope you wont be too bored with me," she said, still holding his hand. "And tomorrow we'll think of lots of things for me to work at, won't we?"

He nodded, and with a quick "good night," turned to the hall, and trudged up the stairs.

* * * *

It was the middle of the following afternoon when Parrish returned to the house with Marcie's clothes. He had equipped himself with two suit cases, before he chugged away in his asthmatic automobile in the morning.

Audrey and Marcie, watching from the porch, saw him coming up the walk, half hidden under a heap of silks and woolens and flimsy undergarments. One of two articles floated to the pavement as he advanced.

"There," he said as he dumped the bundle on the porch. "Couple more loads out in the machine."

Audrey cried out. "You'll get her pretty dresses all dirty, John. Don't throw them there!"

He stooped and gathered them up.

Marcie danced down the room singing. "I haven't any shimmie shirt, I haven't any petty skirt. And, my, but I'll be cold," she caroled.

"Where'll I put 'em?" he asked, meekly.

Marcie ran forward laughing. "Let me take them," she said. "Poor man—he's doing his best."

She held out her hands and Parrish unloaded his burden. The girl went into the house as Parrish moved toward the street. Then she went to the gate.

Parrish was hauling another consignment of garments from the luggage carrier.

"Wait till the maid comes," said Audrey, "You'll just destroy those clothes. Why didn't you bring her trunk and pack the things properly?"

"Couldn't get a trunk there," said Parrish. "All I could do to get these. Had a fierce time."

The maid had arrived and she deftly draped the garments over her arm. Parrish drew his two suit cases from the seat, and carried them after her, as she proceeded toward the house.

"Some stockings and stuff back there in the car," he told Marcie, who had reappeared.

"And combinations and brassieres and things, I suppose," she suggested.

She tripped out to the curb, and Audrey walked with him into the house.

"You should get out of the habit of blushing, John," Audrey said. "It makes you look absurd."

"Well, I can't get used to women talking about their underthings, the way they do," he said. "I never was used to it."

When they had gathered before the house again, he told what had happened. He had found Marcie's father, and disclosed his mission. Mr. Allen told him first, that he'd be condemned if he would turn over any of Marcie's possessions.

"So I told him," Parrish said, "that since he felt that way about it, I'd go down to court, and get a writ, and a constable, and that would make him ridiculous. So at last he went out to the house with me. But he wouldn't help. Just showed me where Miss Allen's room was. I dug out everything I could find and loaded them in the flivver.

"Did you find my shoes?" asked Marcie.

"Raft of 'em—that's what's in the suit cases," he said.

He began preparations to depart. Spinning the crank of the machine until the motor coughed and settled into a steady drumming, he regulated the gas, and started to climb into the driver's seat.

Marcie held up her hand. "Can you wait a minute?" she asked. "If I'm going to get a job, I'd better start now. I'll run and get on my hat."

She sped into the house, and almost immediately reappeared, with a close-fitting straw hugging her curls. She leaped into the seat beside Parrish, and waved to Audrey.

"We'll be back this evening," she called.

Parrish was absorbed in guiding his car through the mid-afternoon traffic. The girl sat quietly beside him, her shoulder touching his. They had reached Lamar street when he turned and asked her where she wanted to go.

"Can I talk to you in your office a minute?" she asked.

He nodded and turned the corner. Leaving the car in a garage, he walked with Marcie to his office. He did not pass through the larger room, where the clerks were working, but admitted her directly into his own room, with a pass-key.

Throwing his hat onto the rack, he motioned her to a chair. She shook her head, and perched near him on the edge of the table opposite his desk.

"Will you sell my stock for me?" she asked. "I brought it along."

He assented, and she passed him the certificate.

"Is there any way I can invest that to get an income?" she went on.

Parrish smiled. "About $61.00 a year," he said.

"Oh, dear!" she pouted a moment. "That's awfully little isn't it?"

"But I've been think," he said. "You really will have to do something. You never studied anything that would earn you a livelihood, did you?"

She shook her head.

"Then I'll tell you—I have a good many acquaintances, business men, and I'll look around and find a place where you can make a little right away, and maybe can get advancement. Is that all right?"

She gave a little gleeful crow, and slipped from the table.

"You, dear!" she cried, and kissed him on the cheek.

Packard Gives Memorial Day Address At Church Sunday.

"What price of glory was rendered in the form of a communion sermon by Rev. Henry Packard at the Highland Heights Christian church at the Sunday morning services.

A point brought out by Rev. Packard was the genius of appreciation of Memorial day that is set aside by the nation to honor the men who died rather than live in a world of autocracy and brutality. Mary's sense of timeliness in the text, Mark 14:9, was told of in connection with the certain deeds to be performed by each individual at a particular time or never to be done. "When the eternal purpose is molten hot on the anvil of God it must be hammered into shape," it was stated. "Why is not the whole world one sad Belgium of ruin or a Russia of anarchy and Bolshevism? Because, an appreciation of time has surged through the thousands of boys broken bodies now sanctified the very dust of the planet."

Rev. Packard spoke o fthe costliness of the sacrifice and, as his concluding point, God's recognition of the offering.

EX-COP PAINTS STATE MURALS

Yankee Artist In Paris Prepares Canvass for Oklahoma

BY JESSIE HENDERSON.
Special Dispatch to The Record News.
Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association.

PARIS, May 29.—There's a big, high studio in the Rue Jadin, not far from where the Parc Monceau is all a-flutter these days with golden pansies, which contains at the moment one of the busiest Americans in Europe and a beginning on one of the biggest mural paintings in the world.

The man is Gilbert White, the American artist, and the gigantic murals are those which two years hence would be put up in the new capitol building at Oklahoma City. America has already shown itself appreciative of White's work, and so has France. The magnificent murals in the New Haven County Court house are his, as are those in the capitol buildings of Utah, Kentucky and Montana and in the federal building at Gadsden, Ala. France has purchased his picture of the Seine at Les Andelys to hang in the Luxemburg and has made him an officer of the French Academy. He also is a chevalier of the French Legion of Honor and a reserve captain of United States infantry.

An Ex-Deputy.

"Yes," White admitted, "and ex-deputy sheriff of Salt Lake City."

He spoke from a corner of his studio where, clad in a vast paint-smattered smock, he was glorifying a bit of canvas with marvelous violets and blues. The deputy-sheriffcy, it appeared, was one phase of White's attempt to get into the war. His first idea of becoming an aviator was promptly squelched by army officers because of his age. He tried equally unsuccessfully to get into the intelligence division.

"So then," White reminisced, "I accepted the post of deputy sheriff and took a lot of rabbit guns away from aliens."

Well, anyway, he finally got into the war to such good purpose, that General Pershing cited him for exceptional and meritorious service. There were five White brothers in the war, among them Stewart Edward White, the big game hunter and author. And knowing the war from the outside in as well as from the inside out, there could hardly be an artist better fitted than Gilbert White to paint the memorial to the war dead which the murals in the Oklahoma capitol will constitute.

"My idea is to make the murals a tribute not only to the men who died," White explained, "but also to the mothers who gave them to their country.

The Mother Noble.

"There are two things which will live always in the heart of any one who really saw the actual war zones. One is the nobility of mothers, the heights of sacrifice to which they attained—beyond words to praise. And the other is the spirit of the men on their way to the battlefields.

"I'm a man of peace. I hate war; who doesn't? But say what you will against war, it has this in common with other frightful calamities; it brings out in the average, every-day man and woman, an unsuspected heroism and nobility before which the world stands in awe. Before which even cynicism is silent."

It is with this reverence of vision that the Oklahoma murals are being painted. In more than mere size they bid fair to be the biggest work Gilbert White has done so far.

When it is done, this biggest mural will be placed at the head of the sweeping staircase which is the pride of the Oklahoma capitol. Its setting will be marble, gold and the soft gray cream stone, an ideal setting both for the dignity of the subject and the glowing color in which it will be conceived.

Forty-five feet by thirty-five feet—it takes the brush of a genius who is also a giant for such a canvas. But that's the kind of a brush he wields.

Flaherty Takes On Two Tough Ones Tonight In American Legion Arena

THE CARD:

Marty Flaherty vs. Harry "Dago" Ryan, 6 rounds, and Duke Trammel, 6 rounds.

Buckshot Peoples vs. Tex Ray, 6 rounds.

Six-Second Smith vs. Wichita Slim, 6 rounds.

Sailor Murphy vs. Ruby Hogue, 4 rounds.

With the possible exception of the double main event, the weekly American Legion fight card stacks up pretty even from all available dope, but the feature contests between Marty Flaherty, and his two oppenents, Dago Ryan and Duke Trammel, have them all guessing as to what will transpire. Ryan and Trammel are well known to local fans, having exhibited their wares here on numerous occasions against the best talent available. Ryan is an aggressive, rugged welterweight who does not know what it means to get hurt. Against Trammel two weeks ago he put up a wonderful exhibition, giving the Cowtown slugger a close, hard battle. He is certain to make it interesting against the New Englander in the first of the two bouts.

Then Takes Trammel.

In the second Flaherty is to take on Duke Trammel, the Texas knockout king, who has knocked out more men in Wichita Falls than all of the other main event boxers put together. Undoubtedly he would make a hard fight against Marty should they both start from scratch, but with the handicap of boxing 6 rounds against a tough battler like Ryan, the Irishman is taking more than his share of trouble, and will have to step on the gas to win.

A draw decision in the second fight providing he defeats Ryan, would be a big send-off for Flaherty, but he cannot see anything less than a knockout.

Ray and Peoples.

Tex Ray, erstwhile instructor of gymnastics at Fort Worth will again tangle with Buckshot Peoples. This bout was originally carded for 8 rounds, but was cut down to 6 in order to permit another bout being added.

Six Second Smith, big colored heavyweight and Wichita Slim are booked for 6 torrid rounds.

Dale Bowlen wanted too much money to meet Trooper Carr, although Carr had agreed to the match and was giving the battling barber a 15 pound handicap. Sailor Murphy and Ruby Hogue will substitute in place of the Bowlen-Carr scrap.

The program will be held at the Eleventh street open air arena.

The Cuban then held the visitors scoreless until the seventh inning, when he was taken out for a pinch hitter. Art Nehf pitched the last two innings and allowed no hits. Score:

Jack Johnson KO'd

EL PASO, May 30.—(AP)—Bob Lawson, negro light heavyweight champion, scored a technical knockout against Jack Johnson, former world's heavyweight champion at the end of the seventh of a 12-round bout in the Juarez, Mexico, coliseum this afternoon.

Johnson apparently had a big edge in weight over the New York boy and held him off the first few rounds. Lawson gradually began to land his punches, however, and just as the bell rang at the end of the seventh round, landed a body punch which floored the big negro. Johnson was unable to rise at the beginning of the eighth and was finally lifted to his chair.

Buffs Stop Shippers

BEAUMONT, May 30.—(AP)—Houston won the second double header of the season in the local park with 4 to 3 and 14 to 5 victories over the Exporters today in one of the best and one of the most rancid games played here in several season. The first game was a splendid pitching duel between Penner and Hovlik. A poorly played ground ball started the rally which gave the Buffs three runs in their big rally. Then in the ninth with the score tied Vigare tripled into the overflow crowd in left field and Mathes singled him home with the winning run.

The second game was full of argument and loose pitching. Drake's start was very good but after the visitors started counting he discontinued his efforts and was finally replaced by Ross. A double play on Boelzle's pop foul in which Galloway was nipped off second base confused the crowd in the fourth inning and the fans thought play was stopped with but two out. In the next inning the Buffs argued long about Connolly's double that disappeared into the crowd just behind third base. The Buffs hit savagly in the twilight game which required longer than did the full route clash in the opener.

LAREDO, May 30.—(AP)—The body of a man believed to be that of Sterling Huntley, oil operator, murdered on the road between Zapata and San Ignacio, Zapata county, four days ago, was taken from the Rio Grande near Zapata last night.

It was reported that Huntley had been on his way to a drilling site in Star county when he was waylaid and killed.

Loose Playing Costs Panthers Second Straight

Cats Unable to See Ball In First and Second Innings Against Steers.

FORT WORTH, May 30.—(AP)—Ten thousand fans crowded into Panther park Sunday afternoon to watch Dallas annex its second straight contest from the Panthers, 8 to 5. A double card on the Memorial day program was frusterated by rain.

Loose playing on the part of the Cats in the first two innings cost them the game. The players seemed unable to see the ball in the two innings. Dallas scored four in the first inning off Walkup, before he could be jerked. Five hits were garnered while only one out was being made.

Three more Steers crossed the plate in the second inning when Miller got his first home hun of the day with two men on. His second homer in the fourth inning accounted for the eighth and final run.

Fort Worth went on a hitting spree in the fifth inning to score four of their runs. Their fifth came in the seventh inning.

Hurls No-Hit Game

SAN ANTONIO, May 30.—(AP)—Playing like champions, the Bears won both games of a double header Sunday when they administered two shutouts to Waco, Frank Watt allowing 4 hits to win the first game 5 to 0 and Mike Collins holding Waco hitless in a seven-inning battle to win also by 5 to 0 before a crowd of about 6,000.

In the second inning after Collins had walked two batters there were cries of "take him out" and Jim Lindsey was sent to the bull pen to warm up, when Collins the next two batters, retiring the side, and the jeers suddenly changed to cheers.

Southpaw Roy Crumpler got a bad start for Waco in the first game and was relieved by Cannon in the third inning after three runs had been scored. In the second game Willie Hudlin, the high school pitcher, stuck to the slab to finish, during which he walked five and hit two batsmen.

Electra Wins In Hot Fight From Burkburnett 3-2

Pitchers Battle Winds Up As Hits Are Bunched In Fourth.

ELECTRA, May 30.—Electra All-Stars emerged victors over the Gulf Production team of Burkburnett in a tight game here today, score 3 to 2. F. Ray and Coop staged a pretty pitchers battle with the latter allowing only 6 hits against 9 for his opponent, but Electra bunched blows in the fourth to chase two runs across. These, with one in the third were enough to win. Both hurlers were invincible in the later innings.

League Leaders Slacken Pace As Season Advances

Philadelphia May Tag Yanks by End Of Next Week.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—Leaders of both major league circuits have been compelled to slacken their pace due to keen competition as the baseball season passes the quarter mark.

Inventory for the week discloses the shadow of Connie Mack's Athletics already clouding the Yankees' peak in the American scramble while the Cubs and Pirates are hard on the heels of the Reds, who hold the crest in the National league.

Judging from the fortunes of the invading clubs in the first clash between the eastern and western contenders the Yankees and Reds will find hard going when they take the road soon.

Philadelphia Leads

The Philadelphia Americans topped their circuit for the week with seven victories out of eight games and led leagues with 84 hits and eight home runs. It was Philadelphia that reined in the Yankees after the latter had won 16 consecutive games, the third longest winning streak in American league history. The Mackmn finished the week in second place, five games from the leaders.

Ty Cobb's Tigers carried off second honors in the week's statistics with five triumphs in seven contests. The Indians continued to be tossed about in the standing and wound up in a fifth-place tie with the White Sox. A week ago, Speaker's tribe was camped in second place.

The Browns' slump ended with Sisler's crew bagging four of six frays. Boston's Red Sox failed to register in the victory column and had six set-backs.

Art Fletcher's Phillis shared the best accounting in the National with the Pirates, each team taking four of six games. Cincinnati jolted the Cardinals by making a clean sweep of a four-game series. The Cards totaled seven home runs, the largest number for their circuit.

Summary

There were 27 home runs in the National and 26 in the American. Pitchers paid considerable respect to Babe Ruth's bat during the week. In one game alone the Bambino was awarded four free passes. The week's major league record of games won and lost, runs, hits, errors on opponent's runs, and including games of Saturday, follows:

Panhandle Beats American in Wild Slugfest 14 to 8

Twilight League Game Is Watched Sunday By Huge Crowd.

In a wild and hectic slugfest that failed to develop the tight battle expected, the Panhandle Refinery team Sunday afternoon ran over the American Refinery outfit 18 to 8 on the Twilight League diamond. A huge crowd watched the game.

The relief pitching of Ray Cannon who went in for Panhandle in the fourth inning saved the game by retiring the side with one down and two on, then allowing only one run the balance of the game.

Four errors by Panhandle and five by American aided materially in opposition scoring.

Crowd of More Than 50,000 On Hand As Pennock Hurls Well.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—The New York Yankees broke their losing streak of three games today by an eight-run rally in the fifth inning, which gave them a 9 to 3 verdict over the Athletics. Pennock turned in his eighth straight victory. Quinn retired in the fifth in favor of Baumgartner. Joe Hauser hit a homer in the sixth with none on and Miller banged for the circuit in the eighth. More than 50,000 fans attended the game.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—A hit batsman with the bases loaded in the 11th inning gave Washington a 4 to 3 victory over Boston here today. With two on and two out, Ruffing purposely walked Joe Judge and then hit Harris, forcing over a run. It made two wins in a row over Boston. Score:

Hey, Texas Leaguers See What Our New Hurler Did To Them Boisterous Sports

Keifer, Rookie So Far As This Loop Goes, Allows Louisians But Four Measley Safeties

BY BLONDY CROSS

SHREVEPORT, La., May 30.—Brainard's followers came in with a sudden outburst of base bumps in the twilight stages of today's bargain bill but the rally came too late to save the encounter. They continued the drive into the nightcap and split the proceeds with Bob Tarleton's Sporters. The Louisianians came away with the better in the opener of a 7-5 tabulation. Boss Brainard's men bludgeoned over a 6-0 victory in the aftermath.

Joe Kiefer, low underslung slabster who came to the Spudders in the trade with the Boston Red Sox, short armed and curve balled the Tarleton protegees unmercifully in the second game, was never in danger of being scored on and gave up a meager four base hits, two of which had the measles. The ump Osborne was liberal enough to the home talent at one point to award Kearns a safety at first when DeFate had beat them with the throw less than six feet.

The Sports sent Freddy Fussell, the slim Spudder southpaw, back to the hole in the third couple of the opening melee, and then uncorked an attack on Tom Estell, the most heavy that consisted of home runs and home runs only, four of 'em.

The Spudders got to Grady Adkins with a machine gun attack of onebasers in the ninth that sent across three runners and knocked a large scare into the enemy grandstand and along the foul lines, for an overflowing multitude was parked in this breezy orchard of the current Sabbath, estimated in the vicinity of 6,500 souls along with one alleged agnostic.

After there was one down in that explosive ninth DeFate, Washburn, Query and Lapan, the latter hitting for Estell, sprayed the outer greensward with baseballs. Lamb followed with a terrific drive to felt that had enough force and if it had been piloted a few feet in any other direction would have resulted in at least a two-cushioner.

But Chink Taylor came up in the pinch with a sensational catch. Turge retired with a bounder to the box.

The Spudders shot Joe Cantrell full of holes in the third sally of the second assault. They charged the former Corsicana hurler's long-gauged heaves with studied and careful air and worried William Whittaker, the erstwhile Buzzer Bill into a frenzy of hate. Lamb shot a four bagger to left after two were on, and narrowly averted blows with the disgruntled Red Wilder. The Sports then let Turgeon drop one to right that Ormand nearly snared. Incidentally, the Sports were tagged with an error by a recalcitrant official scorer. Jenkins rifled a bingle to port and Bodie pulled a pass. Then the skipper set an example for his youngsters by socking a hefty homer. The slam swished straight over the highest point of the triple decked score board which decorates the left center boundary here. The Buzzer was hailed into service by Moore and excited, he promptly walked DeFate. Tony was cut down at second on an attempted pilfering foray.

Wash Takes Spotlight.

Washburn tok the spotlight in the fourth with a long swish over the left field fence but the Spudders thereafter were held scoreless but continued to click Whittaker with regularity and kept him in boiling water all the way, serving merely however, to prolong the contest.

Kiefer was touched for a couple of taps in the first frame after there were two away and gave out a pair of scratches in the second with no casualties registered. The remainder of the route his fast one, alternated with a slow hook proved more difficult for Sports batsmen than a trigonometry problem dished up to a seven-year-old first grader.

The customers got their money's worth. They saw eight home runs driven in the wooded canyons back of left field and one soared over the right field fence. Dutch Hoffman, the aged Sports second sacker, clicked two circuit slams in the first game. Brainard connected for one in the opener and another in the second. Turgeon, Lamb and Washburn connected for the other Wichita Falls four-baggers.

Estell is the hard luck pitcher. He was touched for five base hits in five and two-thirds innings. Four were home runs, the other was a bad hop to infield.

Manager Brainard called for a new deck, shuffled it up and broke out with a rearranged batting order and a slightly different outfield. Bodie was turned to right and Washburn resumed work at first base. The skipper batted fifth, DeFate sixth and Washburn seventh.

Rally Short Lived.

Adkins retired the Spudders on six pitches to start the entertainment with Lambie aviating to right, Turgeon rolling to the box and Jenkins hoisting to ef. center.

Fussell forestalled all ideas of attack before Ormand may have been innoculated with, but Bonowitz golfed Freddy's first pitch high over Jenkins' head to center field. She was terrible and bore all the earmarks of a home run, until he displaced a startling burst of speed dived in behind the scoreboard, retrieved the streaking spheroid and launched a lurid liner to Defate in short left center who hurled a perfect fire ball straight to the platter. Query blocked the runner away and laid the leather on him.

The invading Spudders almost caused heart leakage in the Louisiana grand stand during the second frame when Bodie drew a walk and Hoffman poked a finger into Washburn's turf burner, but with two away Query fell over the hard lucks brink with a stiff stab squarely into Dutch's padded fist.

Hoffman coaxed a base on balls out of Frederick in the Sport's portion of the second. A bingle to first by Kerns, a dastardly double dished over third by Lennox followed by Graham's sacrificial punch to center brought jubilant roars from the grand stand and the numeral 2 in the domestic counting column. Brainard had started the inning by charging back of third to knife Taylor's torrid turfer with the meat and follow through with a swift throw to first, cutting the runner away. Adkins halted the advance with a bounder to Turgeon.

Freddy Takes Air.

Freddy took the air in the third after an error of judgment in the outfield Benton's well placed rocket gave the box score summary a bout. There was one out and runners on second and third when Estell clambered atop the pitching peak. Taylor hit one of his saliva slants to short right and the spittle on the ball hampered Bodie in his trow home, enabling Benton to score after the catch. Hoffman popped to Defate. Bodie got hold of a double for the only bit of excitement in the fourth but the blow came with one out and the next two batsmen couldn't come through with the money. Estell breezed along unmolested, but in the fifth the Spudder's artillery still failed to function whereas none other than Grady Adkins himself stepped into a fast one and sent a non-stopper soaring over the port palisades. The score was 4-0 Shreveport.

After Grady's clout home runs became the vogue. Turgeon slapped a three-two heave over the port palings then Hoffman and Kearns came up with duplications in the Shreveport half stanza. Brainard socked a four-bagger to left field in the seventh, and Hoffman crossed the pop-out in the eighth by getting his second homer of the game, this time over the distant stand inconvenience. Not one of the round trippers found runners on the pads.

END OF A CHAPTER

THE surrender of Abel-el-Krim to the French in Morocco brings to an end the most considerable African revolt against European control since the Fuzzy Wuzzies of the Sudan rose against the British back in the dullest eighties.

It was Abel-el-Krim who drove a wedge of antagonism between France and Spain. It was his success against Spanish arms that was largely responsible for throwing Spain into a dictatorship. He had the Spanish beaten—no question of it—a year ago, and Spain had been forced to yield all territory with exception of two points on the Mediterranean coast.

But when the native chief turned his attention to the French on the south he had sealed his doom. He could not long stand against the finest military establishment in the world. But before he was through he gave even France something to think about, for he enkindled numerous tribes of French Morrocco against the protectorate power, and the blaze threatened to engulf the whole country.

This sealed the Franco-Spanish rift and brought the two nations together as allies in arms. Abel-el-Krim was crushed between the hammer and the anvil. His strength and his leadership were shattered. He surrenders himself, his family and his property into the hands of France—to be filed for reference, presumably to pass out of history.

AN IMPORTANT NEED

WITH the world's eyes on Alaska, the want of good maps of that region has been felt. Three amphibian planes and a force of aviators, photographers and mechanics are leaving San Diego to supply the want during the coming season. They can fly over the mountain wilderness between Point Barrow and Nome, of which no chart worthy of the name exists, since the overland surveyors have scarcely touched the region. Map-makers today have facilities which were not known to cartographers in the gold-rush era. The change from the plane-table to the plane itself means an enormous saving in equipment, through the element of hazard in a region without proper landing-places is a serious consideration, However, in the summertime, when the streams and lakes are no longer ice-packed, the problem is much less difficult. An expert in the Canadian service calls the lake country of Northwest Canada, "a natural airdrome;" and the conditions west of the boundary are not altogether dissimilar to those which prevail in the in the Dominion. The combination of photography with aviation makes possible the speedy preparation of maps possible that would formerly have needed years of time and many surveying parties.

FEDERAL BIG BUILDING PROGRAM

CONGRESS has prepared the way for the erection of government buildings throughout the country during the next five years, and President Coolidge has approved the bill authorizing $165,000,000 construction program.

Not more than $500,000,000 can be expended annually in any one state for sites and buildings and not more than $10,000,000 annually in the District of Columbia.

Washington was especially favored by the measure of the bill as $50,000,000 is to be use din the District of Columbia, and $100,000,000 will be utilized for new postoffices and other federal buildings outside of Washington.

Distribute the pork. Many Texas cities and towns are revenues.

GOLD MINES IN TEXAS

THERE are gold mines in Texas awaiting development. Texas has vast undeveloped pockets of potash. Texas has vast iron ore deposits. Texas has many rivers to harness. Texas could produce two-thirds of the cotton needed by the world. Now why should Texas be hobbled or gagged? It is for the people to make answer at an opportune time.

WHERE THE PRESIDENT STANDS

CRITICS of President Coolidge say that he is opposed to the principle of the Haugen bill and all other government subsidy bills. Why not? They do not do those things in Vermont. They believe in a man hoeing his own row. President Coolidge is a Vermonter.

STAGGERED CENSUS TAKERS

ACCORDING to Washington correspondents, the Texas cities of Wichita Falls and Houston have grown so rapidly and increased in population so swiftly since 1920, that it would be impossible to make estimates in the number of souls that have been added without a careful census taken by expert house to house servants of the people.

Ten Texas cities were listed and the percentage of increase shown in each instance. El Paso is another wonder city. It is given a population of 107,000, but its sprightly newspaper men are confident that a correct estimate would be 125,000. Dallas is given 200,000 and San Antonio 205,000.

This must have been a great shock to the people of Dallas. They should extend their city limits, take in Highland Park with its 10,000 people, its Beverly Hill and other aristocratic suburbs which persist or insist in going it alone regardless of the intreaties of the appeals of the builders of Dallas to become real home folks.

It goes without saying that the federal census schedule for 1930 will place and certain of its cities may go beyond Texas away beyond the 6,000,000 mark, the 250,000 mark.

HOW IT HAPPENED

ACCORDING to high authority, the manufacturing branch of the petroleum industry in Texas is the only industry of any magnitude that really manufactures more of its raw material than is produced in Texas. As a matter of fact, he says, the oil industry manufactures in excess of 100,000 barrels per day more oil than is produced in the entire state.

Texas produces more than 4,000,000 bales of cotton every year. This cotton has a gross value of $750,000,000.

Texas, according to the same authority, ships 90 odd percent of the cotton it produces to the east and to Europe" to be manufactured and shipped back to us in the form of the finished product; with the lumber industry; which has yet manufactured lumber only in its crudest form." It would be well for Texans to know their Texas. It would be well for them to study their Texas in order that they may know it.

NOW THE COMMONPLACE

A NEW Trans-Atlantic cable to be laid smootly and easily along the ocean floor at the rate of seven knots an hour, marks the progress of applied science since the brave and many successful struggles of Cyrus Field, from 1857 to 1866. Today the cable will be put down in spliced lengths of 300 to 400 miles; in the earlier attempts a total of 200 miles was the best achievement after repeated efforts, and when in 1858 communication was first established the line broke after Queen Victoria had sent President Buchanan a congratulatory message. When the Great Eastern, in 1865, renewed the discouraging enterprise, the cable again broke within 600 miles of Newfoundland; and not until 1866 was the big ship successful. Today we accept as almost commonplace what was regarded as an epochal achievement 10 years before the Centennial.

PLENTY OF SPORT AHEAD

THERE are to be two republican parties in Texas—the Wurzbach republican and the Creager republican party. Now where is a Goose-neck Bill McDonnald and his 50,000 Afro-Americans going to land in the campaign. They landed on the nec of Dr. Feorge C. Butte in 1924 when they voted straight democratic ticket.

Gooseneck Bill McDonald is a politician of some weight. He cannot invade a democratic primary, but his followers are able to vote democratic ballots at the general election.

Gooseneck Bill is a banker, he is as black as the ace of spades and when it comes to political craftiness, he always knows where to find his old slouch hat.

IS THIS TRUE?

A TEXAS banker and oil man is responsible for the assertion that the average borrower of money in Texas until recently has paid one and one-half percent more interest for his money than the average borrower in other states. Now what does Texas need the most? This Texan who is a banker and an oil man, makes answer. "What Texas needs now is not so much the lending of money to Texas industries as it is the acquisition of new money in the form of capital invested in the state."

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang

The Apron Of Genius

By Earl Derr Biggers

To those who had found, under the crashing elevated, Paris transplanted in the shape of the Cafe d'Or, the place was more than a fad, it was a religion. Reverently they applied themselves to the Elysian-like dishes borne to them from the land of pleasant odors—the kitchen; softly, in low, serious tones, they conversed with Monsieur Casserole, the proprietor, who hovered over them with his hands clasped and the hope that all was well. Scornfully, rightly indignant that mercenary matters should have their place in a dinner at the Cote d'Or, they laid the amount of their score on the counter in front of Madame Casserole, who sat there in her little cage year after year, smiling benignantly upon all over her encored chin. Ah, what a cafe was that!

What a cafe for those who had youth and hope and imagination! To it came all the clan who, had there been such a land as the magazine „writers' Bohemia, would have dwelt therein. Those who painted, those who wrote, those who were inspired to see the beauty of life and to recognize a master in a cook as well as in a poet—such were they who had found out the Cote d'Or and made it their gastronomical shrine. For the Cote d'Or was not, first of all, a place to eat; it was rather a quiet nook where, over an incidental cordial, one might dream oneself back across the sea and under the sidewalk awnings of the gay city, in the shade of the absinthe frappe.

Into the sacred precincts of the Cote d'Or one night a stranger roamed, and Monsieur Casserole will tell you that he sipped delightedly his wine, and lingered, loath to go, over the delicious omelet souffle. Then with a nod he summoned the proprietor, and spoke most pompously.

"This omelet," said the stranger, indicating an empty dish, "has pleased me more than I can say. I am most anxious to go into your kitchen and in person thank the master of cookery who made it."

Sacre bleu! what a wild indignity to propose. To suggest thus calmly a journey the great of the earth might well have taken with trepidation; to imagine thus cooly the interruption of Adolpho in his own stronghold; to risk thus ruthlessly the destruction of another omelet such as this just eaten. And for what, pray? For the paltry excuse of saying to him whose cookery had brought an emperor's smile: "For your omelet I thank you." Mon Dieu! Monsieur Casserole, usually so polite, stiffened almost rudely as he informed his unknown guest:

"What Monsieur suggests is quite impossible."

And so it was. Had he so willed, the stranger might have waited in the gutter until the lights were out and the simmering bouillabaise was chilled, and seen Adolpho fare grandly forth to his Harlem flat, much as one watches before the hotel for Madame the opera singer to walk to her automobile. But to brazenly demand an audience behind the scenes of the theatre of cookery. And a stranger! Parbleu! what presumption.

There had been those who had been granted such audiences, but it had not been after they stated boldly their desire. One did not become openly a candidate. One only waited in silence, as one might live on awaiting an election to the Academy. If one was worthy eh bien, one were there. If not, so be it.

The number of the worthy was five, and all of these, long before the honor had sought them out, had known the master by his works, had worshipped from afar, and had sent, now and again, by the dignity of Monsieur Casserole, words of adoration and fealty. There was Dupree, who had dreamed of seeing his paintings in the Solon, but who saw them only as stirring scenes for a Third Avenue melodrama; also little Margaret Cates, who wrote for the magazines, only most of them didn't know it yet, and whom Dupree would have married had she not already been married to her Art, as well as unfortunately possessed of a chin that would not allow her to sue for divorce, even in the hunger days when she might easily have obtained it on the ground of non-support. And there was Masters, the lean medical student, who dreamed of feats of surgery, carving cadavers by day and the cotelettes of the Cote d'Ore by night, and Hargrave, hack of hacks, who ground out jokes—clipped them from western newspapers, his enemies said—for comic operas that brought other men fame. And lastly Betty Martin—those who follow the society coumn in one of the big dailies have seen that name, not in the list of those present, but as the signature at the bottom of the story. Such was the roll of the privileged.

Such was the roster of the five who, dining together late one evening in the Cafe Cote d'Or, all unsuspecting of the honor that was about to fall upon them, were approached by Monsieur Casserole, after he had made many trips to the kitchen and had held a whispered conference with Madame, and told to prepare for a meeting with the power behind the omelets, and who had followed, suddenly sobered, and tremulous, as those who wait in the anteroom of a prince, into the realm behind the swinging doors—the kingdom of a prince, in sooth—of Adolpho the great, who towered so far above the glorious profession of cookery's lesser fry.

In the narrow passageway leading to Adolpho's region the little Gates girl giggled nervously, whereupon Dupree put her hand over her mouth, and it was thus, with irreverent mirth effectually strangled, and the proper awe in the ascendency, that the five honored ones came finally into the presence of the cook who had sent them daily for months beautiful evidence of his ability to fulfill the glowing promise of the Cote d'Or's card.

Adolpho stood in the center of his kitchen, massive, bald even below his snowy cap, the red of his face the oasis of color in an otherwise white desert, in one hand a monster fork they would always remember, those five. So he stood, this knight of the pans, his cherubic face undecided between a smile and a frown as the proper badge of greatness, but leaning slightly toward the latter—in the midst of the tools of his trade, in the center of his marvelous kitchen—ah, that kitchen.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

We have precious few Real Fathers and Mothers these days—Too many Parents are quitters, passing their work over to Church and School and Club—But no substitute has yet been found for Personal Love and Guidance in Rearing Children.

It is apparent to every one that parenthood isn't functioning as it should. The younger generation has scrapped the biblical injunction to "Honor thy father and thy mother" along with hoop skirts and stocks and peg-top trousers and other obsolete fashions. If there was an infant left that obeyed its parents, it would be in a glass case in a museum with the relics of prehistoric man, and we would be paying out good money to behold the quaint freak.

It is the children now who rule the home, and of whom the parents stand in awe and fear. It is the children who are in authority, not the parents, and everywhere you go you hear fathers and mothers complaining that some youngster of 9 or 10 has gotten completely beyond their control, and that they can't do a thing with Sally or Bobby.

Now, inasmuch as nature has made no alteration in babies, and still delivers the raw material in plastic shape into the parents' hands, to make of it what they will, it is obvious that the fault lies with the fathers and mothers who have fallen down on their jobs. And so every one is asking:

"What's the matter with parents?"

I think that the first thing that is the matter with parents is that there isn' enough parenthood.

We have plenty of people who beget children and bear them, but we have precious few real fathers and mothers, and nobody yet has invented any satisfactory, aysthetic substitute for real personal love and tenderness in dealing with children.

You can't properly rear your children with your left hand and one lobe of your brain while you are devoting your right hand and all of your real intelligence to paying bridge or golf, or having a career, or making money, and that is what only too many parents are doing today. Why half of the modern children have only the fraction of a mother, and, except for purposes of legitimacy, they might as well have no father at all!

Mother bustles them off to school in the morning, and when they come home she is gadding the streets, or at a party, and so they also take to the streets, where, at the most formative time of their lives, they lear nthe manners and the morals of the street. Father means nothing but a cash register in their young lives. Home is only a place to go to when you can't go anywhere else, and the bedtime talks are done by radio, not by a mother who bends above a pillow, and to whom a little heart opens itself out in the dark, and tells its shy little hopes and dreams and aspirations.

How can the mother who has never made herself necessary to her children, who has never made her arms a refuge for them in times of trouble, or let them weep out their sorrows on her breast; who has let the children next door form their ideas instead of doing it herself, expect to have any held over them when they are grown?

How can a man whose children are not even acquainted with him, who have never had a real familiar talk with him in their lives, expect them to look to him for guidance when they get to the place where they need it most? Why, he is the strangest man in all the world to them—the one with whom they have least in common. And they could sooner tell their troubes to a policeman on the beat than to him.

Is it the children's fault that they feel this way toward their fathers and mothers? Not a bit of it. It is the parents' fault. They had their chance to bind their children to them with hoops of steel when they were little. They had their opportunity to win their children's confidences when they were babies, and they were too busy with their own affairs, too much occupied with their own amusements, too selfish to take the trouble to do so. And they lost out.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. What is a nematode?
2. Is a worm a vertebrate animal?
3. Are caterpillars worms?
4. What is the economic importance of cut-worms?
5. What are maggots?
6. Are worms of any use to man?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

TIDE AND WORMS

A group of microscopic marine worms named Convoluta are pervaded by a green coloring matter very much like that found in the tissue of leaves, so much so that these worms are often referred to as plant-animals. At low tide they disappear below the surface of the waves, and being microscopic are soon invisible, but at high tide they rise to the surface and cover the water near shore in such millions that they become visible as a dense green scum. If a bottleful of the worms are brought into the laboratory they will, at the same moment, that the tide goes out, disappear before your eyes in the bottle; when the tide returns in six hours they suddenly appear on the surface. After a few days they change their habits in the bottle, and rise and sink only once in 24 hours.

Now whatdo you know about that? Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Iodine turns blue in the presence of even a minute trace of starch.

2. If lime is present it can be detected by adding hydrochloric acid, which will effervesce or "fizz" in contact with the lime.

3. Silver tarnishes, due largely to the presence in the air of traces of sulphur, especially around cities but found also in any coal-heated house in winter, which forms a silver-sulphide or tarnish.

4. Iron crust in the soil gives the red color to red clays.

5. An iodine stain on a fabric may be removed by applying photographic "hypo."

6. The presence of carbon dioxide in a well or cave is detected by lowering on a string a lighted candle. If the candle goes out there is carbon dioxide there.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

GEMINI

Today's planetary aspects are adverse until late in the afternoon. They then undergo a rapid change and become quite favorable remaining so far the balance of the day. What are generally known as the working hours will afford much opportunity for new thought or originality of action. It would be advisable in view of the influences that prevail, to turn a deaf ear to all pleas to attempt anything new, and only to attend to those duties that are compulsory and obligatory. In the evening, social and family amenities may be successfully indulged, as the signs unequivocally denote that "peace will abound and joy will prevail."

Children born today will be remarkably exempt from all infantile sickness This, however, does not lessen the need of careful nutrition, as, in, their youth, they will not enjoy the same immunity from illness, and a well-built constitution will successfully ward off the dangers that their ailments will bring in their rain. They promise to have sunny natures, cheerfully dispositions, and reliable characters. They will not, of course, be free from faults, but such as they have will be overshadowed by their many good, strong traits. They will be rather lacking in ambition and be more disposed to think and dream than to act.

If today is your birthday you imagine that you know a great deal more than is justified by the extent of your learning and the length of your experience. You resent all interference and reject all suggestion, and are proudly and foolishly satisfied "to gang your ain gait. A ripe old age writer, on attaining a ripe old age, wrote the folowing lines, and it would be well to learn the moral they convey:

"Let all that I have learned (hugh toyles now past)
"By long experience, and in famous schools,
"Is but to know my ignorance at last,
"Who think themselves most wist are greatest fools."

You possess average ability and have quick vision although, at times, it proves to astigmatic and, figuratively speaking, consultation with opticans would often better your condition, and improve your foresight. In your home life, you are seen at your best, as your nature is a kindly one and you possess a sweet disposition that attracts love and demands affection.

A JUNE "BUG"
By Lee R. Wilkinson.

Oh, lovely month! Oh, sunny June,
Of which the poets sing.
Thank goodness you will be here soon
With all the joys you bring.
The bridal bells will play their tune
That's called "The Wedding Ring."

Your roses, too, supremely fair,
Will in the garden grow.
Your days, described by poets as "rare,"
We'll soon begin to know,
And we will seek your rivers where
Competing oarsmen row.

These things are pleasant every one,
But without hesitation,
I find a greater cause for fun,
More reason for elation
In this: school closes ere June's done,
And then begins VACATION!!!

A9WFUL THOUGHT!
By Cornelius Hulell.

Magnolius Frimpy, colored, had been injured in an automobile accident, but was steadily improving and would soon be on his feet again. The hospital physician was thinking of transferring him to the sun room.

"He seems to be getting along fine," he told a nurse. "I expect he's ready to be moved."

"The only empty bed in the sun room is pretty small," said the nurse, "and the patient is quite tall—will he fit the bed?"

"I don't know," said the doctor. He called an orderly. "Take this tape measure," he instructed, 'and measure the man in ward five."

The orderly departed, and a few minutes later everybody was amazed to see the lanky negro sprinting down the hall in his nightgown with the orderly in hat pursuit.

"You can't fool me—nossah!" he yelled. "I know what you was measurin' foh! I'm gettin' outa here right now!"

DINNER STORIES

An old negro preacher was introducing a white preacher. The white preacher had offered to preach a sermon for the colored brother, and, in introducing the white preacher, the old negro could not find enough adjectives with which to praise the visitor. "Dis noted preacher," said the old negro to his flock, "is one of de greatest preachers of the age. He knows de unknowable, he can do de undoable and he can ondrew de onscruitable!"

In a confidential little talk to a group of medical students an eminent physician took up the extremely important matter of correct diagnosis of the maximum fee.

"The best rewards," he said "come, of course, to the established specialist. For instance I charge $25 a call at the residence, $10 for an office consultation and $5 for a telephone consultation."

There was an appreciative and envious silence, and then a voice from the back of the amphitheatre, slightly thickened, spoke:

"Doc," it asked, "how much do you charge a fellow for passing you on the street?"

Two northern girls in Florida were comparing notes on the journey. "We had a sleeper, of course," said the first. "It's name was the Oskaloosacaloosahatchie."

"Ours was the Kumquatario."

A hobo who had been listening in panhandled: "Ladies, could you spare a dime or two-bits. I came all the way from Ontario in the Boxcarario, and I'm trying to go back to th and I'm trying to go back in the Refrigeratorio."

STOCK-A-DAY

Wilson and company is one of the five largest meat packers in America and is engaged also in wide lines of activity in by-products. It has control of, or interests in, a large number of subsidiaries and operates five main plants in Chicago, Kansas City, New York, Oklahoma City and Los Angeles, with a total floor area of 104 acres. Through subsidiaries it operates additional plants both in this country and in Argentina and Brazil.

The concern had large deficits before allowing for depreciation in 1920 and 1921. Only a slight improvement was made in 1922 and 1923. Shortage of working capital and failure of shareholders to approve plans for raising money caused a receivership in August 1924. A plan of reorganization has been effected providing for the issue of new securities for all the old except the first mortgage 6 per cent bonds. Neither preferred nor common stockholders were called on to pay an assessment.

The receivership was terminated Feb. 27, 1926. As a result of the new plan, funded debt outstanding totals $29,263,784. Capital stock includes $28,641,200 outstanding in 7 per cent preferred stock of $100 par; 358,016 shares of class A $5 convertible shares of no par value, and 535,216 shares fo no par common outstanding. The 7 per cent issue becomes cumulative after two years from incorporation of the new company. The class A stock is non cumulative for five years.

For the year ended Dec. 26, 1925, total sales amounted to $271,000,000 and net profits after depreciation and interest, giving effect to the reorganization plan, were equal to $4.38 per share on the new preferred stock. On that date, total current assets were $41,677,409 and current liabilities $9,293,568.

Mr. Dix is representing a firm engaged in the colonization of Brooks, Jim Wells and Hidalgo counties. Before leaving their Kansas and Oklahoma homes, the Mennonites wanted definite assurance the state would not interefere with the operation of their private schools, Mr. Dix said.

Fewer Home Runs Hit In Past Week

CHICAGO, May 30.—(AP)—Home run clouters of the major leagues who were setting the pace last week did not keep up the stride, despite the fact that there were more than 50 circuit clouts registered under the two big tents.

"Babe" Ruth king of all four-base hitters, smashed only one which ran his season's record to 16. This is one better than the mark he had on May 31, 1921, the year he hung up the major league record at 59.

Lester Bell, the Cardinals' third sacker, bagged a brace of four-ply blows, and tied his teammate, Jimmy Bottomley for the National league leadership with seven all.

Leading home-run hitters:
American: Ruth, New York, 16; Simmons, Philadelphia, 7; Hauser, Philadelphia, 7; Meusel New York, 6; Williams, St. Louis, 6; P. Collins, New York, 5; Combs, New York, 5; Cochrane, Philadelphia, 5.
National: Bottomley, St. Louis, 7; L. Bell, St. Louis, 7; L. Wilson Chicago, 6; Fournier, Brooklyn, 5; Blades, St. Louis, 5.

Dempsey Resting Well After Attack Chills and Fever

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 30—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, who was stricken by an attack of chills and fever here Friday night was reported much improved though considerable weakened today. Dempsey has lost eight pounds as a result of the ordeal.

The champion spent a fairly restful night, and his temperature and pulse are again normal, Dr. M. F. Lauthman, his personal physician announced today.

His left forearm was still swolen from the large carbuncle which Dr. Lautman said caused a general infection resulting in his illness. The carbuncle was lanced yesterday and was re-opened today. Dr. Lautman has placed his patient on a soft diet.

Dempsey is being closely attended by his wife, Estelle Taylor, movie actress, who has been with him constantly during his indisposition.

Munden Cyclers Win Their Third Straight

The Munden Cyclers won their third consecutive victory in the Independent league Sunday afternoon when Geyer let the Battery D club down with three hits and won the game 7 to 3.

Willie Lawson poled out a home run and a single in four trips to the plate. Geyer poled a double and a single in four times up, while Sisk hit two singles in four times up to get two of the three hits off Geyer. Score:

Husky Catcher's Ready to Travel With the Giants

SWEDEN'S STATE LABOR INSURANCE HAS FAILED

STOCKHOLM, May 30.—(AP)—Sweden's state organization for labor insurance has failed. Parliament has decided that the venture is too expensive and the business will be liquidated.

When compulsory insurance of employes was introduced here 22 years ago, a special department, acting as a government insurance company, was formed. Much pressure was exercised upon employers in favor of the national insurance body. Private companies persisted in competition and were able to undersell premiums to such an extent that the bulk of the business went to private companies.

URGES STANDARD FOOTING FOR ALL WEIGHT EVENTS

MADISON Wis., May 30.—(AP) Standardization of footing for competition in the weight events in collegiate track circles is deemed necessary by Tome E. Jones, veteran track coach of the University of Wisconsin, to eliminate "unfair competition."

Mr. Jones, who is president of the newly formed Western Coaches association, will ask the assistance of the National Collegiate Athletic association for corrective measures.

Coach Jones believes the national body should specify a clay surface with cinder base as the footing for competition in the shotput, discus and hammer throw.

Many poor performances in these events at the present time are attributed by Coach Jones to the permission of any type of surface.

Panhandle Takes Wild Game From American Eagles

Game a See-Saw Affair During First Few Innings.

The Panhandle Refinery outscored the American Refinery company Eagles 14 to 8, Sunday afternoon, and in doing so, placed the first half of the Twilight league race well within their grasp. Cannon went to the hill, to relieve Hatton, in the fourth inning with two men on the paths and one down. He set the Eagles down in this inning and after this allowed but one run in five innings.

Jimmie Hinds led the hitting attack with four singles in five times at bat. Maddox and McMahon, American outfielders, were second with three hits each.

Rawls, Graves, Pace, Martindale, Connally each smacked out two raps.

McDuffy started on the hill for the Panhandle crew and had to give way to Hatton in the second inning when he split the thumb nail on his pitching hand. Hatton in turn gave way to Cannon in the fourth after five runs had been chalked up off of him.

Ronnie Glidewell failed to get the balls through the teeth of a gale of wind and hight dust and after his wildness put men in position to score on two errors in one play and allowed three runs to score without permitting a hit. Connally fared little better on the hill, the Panhandle crew hitting everything that he put over the plate.

The Americans started off with a three-run lead in the first two innings, but in the first of the third the Panhandle tied the count up with three runs on a walk, two hit batsmen, and two errors.

Medford's triple with one on in the last of the third put the Americans one ahead again.

The Panhandle scored four runs then with three hits and three hit batsmen.

The Americans flashed back to tie the count again on an error and four solid base hits by Connally, Maddox McMahon and Pace. They scored three runs on this combination.

The Americans then took the lead in the fifth when an error by Hohen let Connally slip over the plate.

A walk, double by Hargrove, a sacrifice fly and an infield out scored two for the Panhandle in the sixth. Another double by Hohen and Graves pop fly to short that Windham dropped scored the third run.

Riley Rawls' home run raised the score to 11 for the Panhandle in the eighth inning.

A single by Graves, a double by Hicks, a single by Hinds and an error by Windham spliced in with a passed ball that rolled into the crowd that crowded the home plate and allowed a man to score gave the Panhandle club three more runs in the ninth.

"Sesqui" Nears Completion as Crowds Gather

Philadelphia's great Sesqui-Centennial Exposition, three-quarters completed on June 1 when the doors first open to the public, will be complete in every detail on July 4 when the greatest celebration is to be held. CATHOLIC HEADS MEET IN CHICAGO

Largest Catholic Congress So Far From Rome, June 2-24.

CHICAGO, May 30.—(AP)—Princes in the Catholic church in greater numbers than have ever congregated before so far from Rome will be here June 2 to 24, for the 28th international Eucharistic congress.

Among them will be a king maker, members of parliament, and chaplain generals of foreign armies. Perhaps the next pope may be among them.

First honor will be paid to Cardinal Donanno, who brings the benediction of Pope Pius. For 11 years he was apostolic delegate from Rome to the United States. He will open the congress with presentation of the papal brief, and close it after the final procession at Mundelein, with the pontificial blessing, for which it is expected more than a million heads will bow before him.

Nearly one-fourth of the college of Cardinals will be here. The total number in the world today is 60, of whom 16 are expected here. There are six vacancies in the college.

John Cardinal Czernoch, archbishop of Strigonia and Primate of Hungary, is the one king maker among the cardinals. On October 30, 1916, he crowned Charles "Iv," king of Hungary, who later was exiled. When Pope Pius was elevated to the purple, Cardinal Czernoch won new distinction in championing the request of American cardinals that voting be delayed until they could arrive to cast their votes, too. Cardinal Charmost of France, is reputed to be the greatest pulpit orator of France.

Cardinal Reig Y Casanova, archbishop of Toledo and primate of Spain, is the chaplain general of the Spanish army, and head of one of the oldest sees in Christendom. His diocese was founded in the first century after Christ.

ELECTRA

The last meeting of the Primo Bridge club until in September was held Thursday afternoon with Mrs. C. H. Sulkey at her home. The games were played in the living room which was lovely with roses in vases. At the conclusion of the games, a salad and an ice course was served to the members. In the games Mrs. Brogue Magee won the club prize which was a box of bath powder, while the guest prize went to Mrs. E. J. Gillum, a bottle of bath salts. Those playing were Mesdames I. K. Williams, J. H. Harris, E. E. Merki, H. A. Heaf, Ed Campbell, Brogue Magee, J. T. McDannald and E. J. Gillum.

LIONS CLUB MEETING

The board of directors of the Lions club held a meeting Thursday evening in the oil and land office of Bart Magee, for the purpose of bringing up several questions of business. A nominating committee composed of Bart Magee, S. B. Marchant, J. M. Hemby, H. A. Decker, and W. A. Asbill was appointed to nominate officers for the election June 15. Various methods and questions of business were brought up, including a trip to the International Lions club convention in San Francisco this summer, and in the discussion a committee composed of J. M. Hemby, Bart Magee and H. A. Decker was appointed to consider whether the club could afford to send the world famous Cowpasture Jazz band to this convention. The meeting adjourned.

MARJORIE BEASLEY HONORED

Little Miss Marjorie Beasley was delightfully honored on her twelfth birthday with a theatre party at a local theatre. The young folks gathered at the Beasley home on west Ida avenue, at 4:30 o'clock, and went to a theatre, afterwards being served ice cream and othe confections at a drug store. Later the young ladies returned to the Beasley home and played games and enjoyed music until time to dress for the "Old Maids Convention."

Those making up the party included Elizabeth and Francis Orr, Margaret Wear, Preston Ashley, Margaret and Doris Owens, Aline Goldsmith, Barbara Hatfield, Veta Kathryn Hopkins, Pauline Miller, Maxine Hughes, Kathryn Campbell and Turner Lee Hendon.

'BLOSSOM' DUE AT CHARLESTON

Texas Child Will See Father for First Time.

SAN ANTONIO, May 30.—(AP)—Somewhere in the Atlantic ocean the three-masted schooner Blossom, carrying the Cleveland Museum of Natural History's expedition to the South Atlantic islands, and in command of a Texan, is returning to the United States after two and a half years.

The Blossom, which sailed from New London, Conn., in November, 1923, is expected to dock at Charleston, S. C., about June 8. When it reaches that port, George F. Simmons of Austin, who is in charge of the expedition, will be greeted by Mrs. Simmons and their 15-months-old son, whom the father has never seen.

Mrs. W. S. Blossom of Cleveland financed the party, which set out to get specimens of new species of birds. Already, because the schooner is too small to carry all the fruits of the cruise, a considerable number of specimens have been shipped from Rio de Janeiro and Africa to Cleveland.

Captain Simmons—the title is merely nominal, as he is not a seaman—cabled his wife April 9 that he expected to make Charleston in about 40 days, avoiding the Barbados. She left San Antonio last Saturday by automobile for South Carolina.

Rio de Janeiro has been the base of the expedition, which has explored the east coast of South America and the west coast of Africa, besides intermediate islands, for rare bird specimens that will be exhibited in the Cleveland mesuem. At Dekkar, Senegambia, Mrs. Simmons in 1924 visited her husband, going by way of London and returning from Africa by cargo boat.

The cruise of the Blossom has been a stormy one all the way, Mrs. Simmons, who has been residing here, told The Associated Press. It took two and a half months to make the voyage from Rio to St. Helena, an island off the African coast. But the expedition obtained complete collections from both coasts and several islands. The members did not confine themselves to birds, but killed a few land animals and gathered botanical, geological and crustacean speciments as well.
