Interest Mounts as Candidates File for Local Elected Offices

Interest is picking up in local elections as the 5 p.m. Wednesday, March 22 deadline nears for candidates to file for the City election, the Post ISD board of trustees election and the Southland ISD board of trustees election.

In the race for the office of mayor, incumbent Giles C. McCrary has filed for re-election to a two-year term. His only opponent, as of Tuesday, March 21 at 10:30 a.m., was Jim Jackson, who filed last week.

Incumbent Larry Mills and newcomer Alice Cruse have filed for two at-large positions on the city council.

Incumbent Jan Crawford has not filed for re-election to the city council.

Due to the school's Spring Break, information was not available on three seats open on the Post ISD board of trustees - Don

by Wes Burnett

It's good to see that there is at least one organization in this country which still places value in constitutional rights.

I refer, of course, to the recent decision by the American Civil Liberties Union to file a challenge to the Washington, D.C. curfew on teenagers.

The question in this case is not necessarily the right of government to establish curfews...which from time to time are required to protect citizens, especially during natural disaster emergencies.

The issue is the method of the curfew...singling out a particular segment of citizens to restrict their constitutional rights.

I find this sort of behavior by government to be appalling, but am not a bit surprised that the constitution is trampled on in such a way in the name of fighting drugs.

This is not the first example of government running roughshod over people's constitutional rights in efforts to curb drug abuse.

Horror stories of heavily armed law enforcement agents banging down doors of innocent citizens are frequently aired on television and in newspapers.

"Oh, we got the wrong address," is usually the hair-brained excuse these "gestapo" type Rambo mentality, shoot-first-ask-questions-later lawmen explain.

It does not surprise me that in our nation's capital the constitution again gets no respect, since so many politicians in recent years, including former presidents, have shown such contempt for the document that protects us from tyranny.

The Washington, D.C. city government is trying to keep a group of its citizens off the streets during certain hours...in itself this seems a reasonable approach to a serious problem.

But, the solution presents an even more serious dilemma...if a government is allowed to restrict the right of citizens of one particular age group, then what is to stop the same government from expanding its powers to restrict the movement of other segments of its citizens?

First, the curfew is just for teenagers (and how do you define that group?), and if that doesn't work, which group of citizens would be included in the next curfew restriction?

Since most of the crimes are being committed by people in low income neighborhoods...how about surrounding those neighborhoods and keep all of those people in their places?

The Nazis did a great job of using that kind of reasoning.

My position, and that of the American Civil Liberties Union, is that if one American citizen's constitutional rights are abused, then all of us are apt to be victims of the same abuse.

The simple answer to the curfew issue is to apply the curfew to everyone, that way everyone's constitutional rights are protected...if the problems in D.C. are of such an emergency to declare a curfew...then everyone should abide by it, including the politicians who dream up such laws.

The constitution has its weaknesses, but it has proved for more than 200 years to be one of the best protections any citizens of any nation in the history of the world have ever had.

I urge elected officials take a closer reading of the U.S. Constitution and abide by its precepts.

Payne's two-year unexpired term, Place 2; the Place 4 position now held by Tom Middleton; and Prudencio Basquez' Place 5 position.

At 1 p.m. Friday, March 17, Basquez was the only incumbent who had filed.

For two seats on the Southland ISD board of trustees, incumbents Joe Basinger and Dennis McGehee had filed as of March 17, but information on any further candidates was not available.

March Tax Rebate Check Shows Sales Up Locally

March's sales tax rebate for the city of Post, $9,386.92, showed a 42.30 percent increase over the same period for 1988 when the rebate was $6,596.42. The March check brings Post's total 1989 payments to date to $40,527.07, a 7.39 percent increase over 1988's total of $37,737.61.

Area towns also reported increases in sales tax rebates for March:

Crosbyton, $3,268.93, an increase of 51.51 percent over 1988's $2,157.51. 1989 payments to date total $14,089.41, a 7.47 percent increase over 1988's $13,110.60.

Ralls, $2,962.24, an increase of 3.72 percent over 1988's $2,856.01. 1989 payments to date total $14,799.55, an 11.73 percent increase over 1988's $13,245.77.

Slaton, $11,236.20, an increase of 50.76 percent over 1988's $7,453.00. 1989 payments to date total $48,146.49, an increase of 11.64 percent over 1988's $43,126.43.

Tahoka, $3,749.40, a 90.86 percent increase over 1988's $1,964.44. 1989 payments to date total $16,721.63, a 9.22 percent increase over 1988's $15,310.65.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock mailed out checks totaling $61.7 million to 888 cities that collect local sales tax. That's an impressive gain over last year's March payments to cities, which was $48.6 million statewide.

Judging Team First Overall at WTC Contest

With 210 students taking part in this year's Western Texas College livestock judging contests, the Post High School team composed of Riley Holly, Bobby Blair, Shawn Bevers and Lance Bland ranked first in Overall Team Awards with a total of 1,330 points.

In the Top 10 Overall Individual Awards, Shawn Bevers was second with 453 points and Bobby Blair was fifth with 446 point.

Post's sheep judging team finished first with 425 points and Bevers and Blair finished first and second, respectively, in the sheep judging with 148 points each. The placing was decided on a tie-breaker.

Post's swine judging team was third with a total of 416 points, with Cross Plains winning first with 423 points.

Fifty livestock judging teams entered the competition and an additional 15 teams entered land judging competition.

Perry Smith and Lance Dunn, VoAg teachers accompanied the students to the Snyder contest.

April 28 is the last day for the City Secretary to receive an application to vote by mail. Absentee ballots through the mail will be accepted up to 7 p.m. on election day, Saturday, May 6.

No filings were reported for Garza Memorial Hospital, where the terms of board members Jack Alexander, Zoe Kirkpatrick and David Nichols will expire.

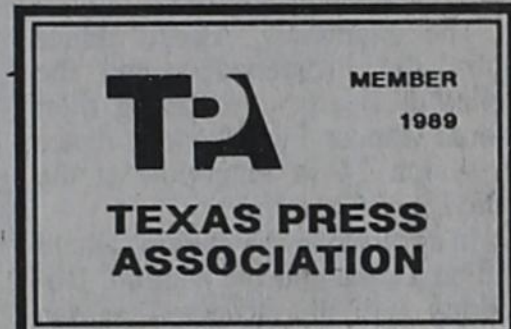

Candidates for the GMH board have a 5 p.m., Monday, April 10 deadline.

Absentee voting by personal appearance will begin on Monday, April 17 and will end on Tuesday, May 2.

Care Center Staff Attends Lubbock Meet

The recent checks, which reflect sales made in January and reported by February 21, were up by an average of 27 percent statewide.

"Although consumers usually slow down their spending in January, this is a good sign that the state's economic engine is running strong and steady," Bullock said.

Each year people who care for children are required to obtain specialized training for this task.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service held their second annual Child Care Providers Training Conference March 11 in Lubbock.

The one-day conference provided professional certified training to all providers who registered and attended. From Garza County, Cathi Hill, director, and Debbie Johnson, assistant director, attended and received training at the conference.

Debbie Johnson presented a mini-workshop on making stained glass for children during the conference lunch hour.

Garza County Extension Agent, Sandy Tomlinson, was Conference Chairman of Exhibits, educational packets and doorprizes provided during the conference.

"My Special Place" won free skating lessons from Skate Ranch in Lubbock for all the center's children.

Hill and Johnson received management credits, training and certificates for completion of the conference.

Project Moves Ahead

The long-range, comprehensive landscaping plan for downtown Post is still a definite aim of the Main Street Project and is due, soon, for a boost that should get the project underway, according to Main Street Director Melissa Cunningham.

The program has been approved and funded and specifications for the project should be approved by the Highway Commissioner's office the latter part of May or the first of June, with a tentative starting date of October 15, 1989.

A mid-October starting date would be to the benefit of the plan, Cunningham said, since a colder-weather month is needed for landscaping operations.

PMA Sponsors Easter Egg Hunt March 25

Post children of all ages will be hunting Easter eggs on the courthouse lawn again this year as the Post Merchants Association sponsors its annual "Easter Egg Hunt."

This year's Easter event will be held Saturday, March 25 beginning at 10 a.m.

As they have in the past, the PMA members will make sure there are enough Easter eggs on the courthouse lawn to make it possible for each child to find some.

Sunday Edition Delivered Apr. 2

The Post Dispatch will publish a special Sunday edition, to be delivered April 2 to homes in Post and mailed to rural Garza County homes.

-Obituary-

Josephine Nell Brant

Funeral services for Josephine Nell (Jo) Brant, 81, were held at 1:30 p.m., Friday, March 17, 1989 in Southland Funeral Home in Grand Prairie, with the Reverend George Poff officiating.

Interment was in Odessa's Sunset Memorial Gardens at 11 a.m., Saturday, March 18, 1989.

She died Wednesday, March 15, 1989 in an Arlington hospital after a short illness.

Born in Post August 29, 1907, she had been an Arlington resident for the past eight years and was former long-time resident of Odessa.

She was a former Worthy Matron of the Post Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, 206. She had been a member of Eastern Star for the past 58 years and, at the time of her death, was a member of the Friendship Chapter, 1008, in Odessa.

She was a member and a long-time Sunday school teacher at the First Baptist Church in Odessa.

She was married to A.G. Brant, who preceded her in death in 1972.

Survivors include a son, Guy Brant of Houston; two daughters, Bobbie O'Neal of Breckenridge and Joyce Babb of Houston; three brothers, Bill Cravy of Seminole, Charlie Cravy of San Angelo and Homer Cravy of Mart; a sister, Anna Waldrop of Carthage; and a number of nieces and nephews.

The family is requesting that any memorials be made to the Memorial Fund at the Eastern Star Home in Arlington.

GARZA THEATRE "night, Mother" cast and crew members were treated to rave audience reviews following performances last weekend. The cast and crew included Ab Gutierrez (left to right), Anne Leake, Christy Morris, Lino DeLeon, Cole LeBlanc and Todd Glidewell.

Cast Delights Audiences with 'night, Mother'

by Lonnie Welborn

The number of cast members was small, but there was nothing small about the talent onstage at the Garza Theatre when Anne Leake and Christy Morris captivated audiences with their performances in the theatre's most recent presentation, Marsha Norman's "night, Mother."

Designed and directed by Will McCrary, the two-character comedy-drama "night, Mother," was the perfect vehicle for two actresses who were appearing for the third time on the Garza stage as mother and daughter.

"night, Mother" is the sometimes sad, sometimes very funny story of an evening spent together by a mother and daughter after the daughter announces that she is going to commit suicide.

What could have been a depressing play was turned into an enjoyable evening at the theatre, thanks to the comedy direction of McCrary and the ability of the two actresses to bring out the humor in the situation.

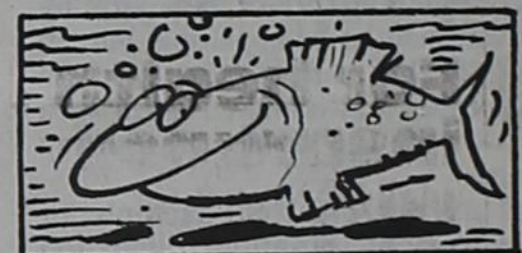

Anne Leake and Christy Morris are both fine actresses and their performances in "night, Mother" were on a par with their Willy award winning roles in last year's "The Glass Menagerie," where they were also cast as mother and daughter.

Throughout their last evening together, before the surprise final scene, Leake and Morris, as Thelma Cates and her daughter Jessie, had the audience alternately laughing and crying as the mother and daughter raced toward the inevitable ending, and took the audience along with them, as they discussed their lives, friends, failures and family.

Saturday night's audience gave the two actresses a standing ovation - and it was well deserved.

The Garza Theatre staff for "night, Mother" included Lino DeLeon, stage manager; Mildred Stewart, production manager; Ab Gutierrez, lighting design and operator; Cole LeBlanc, sound operator; Wesley Burnett, house manager; Nona Lusk and Janet Ratliff, box office; and Todd Glidewell, doorboy.

Coming next to the Garza Theatre is the romantic comedy, "The Sleeping Prince" by Terrence Rattigan, April 27-30.

In the Neighborhood

by Lonnie Welborn

Sunday morning, March 12, was a special day at the Graham Chapel United Methodist Church when approximately 140 visitors from near and far attended services during the church's Reunion-Reunion.

Pastor Wes Brown welcomed the members and guests and also the returning pastors - Newton Stearns, Charles Hastings, Miggie Carey, Gary Cotton and Graham's own Douglas Gossett - who all took part in different aspects of the service.

Judy Bush was song leader for the Sunday service and piano accompaniment was by Jane Terry.

Lucille Bush presented a plaque honoring Willie Mason for her continue dedication and loyalty to the church, and to make the occasion even more special, Willie had five children and their families there to share the honor - Homer Joe (Jody), Lewis, G.T. of Lubbock, Joy Barron of Bossier City, Louisiana and Jackie of Fort Stockton.

As a further honor, daughter Jackie and granddaughter Michelle each sang specials.

Services were turned over to Dr. William Fleming, District Superintendent of the United Methodist Churches. Bill brought back lots of good memories to the congregation - Graham Chapel being his and his wife Lue's first church assignment when they began in the ministry.

A catered lunch was enjoyed by all the members and guests at the Graham Community Center and several who couldn't make it for church joined the group for lunch, visiting and singing later in the afternoon. Church services at 7 p.m. closed out a great day at the Graham United Methodist Church.

Monday and Tuesday nights, 7 p.m. services were attended by good crowds, and several visitors, who enjoyed the singing and messages from Bill Fleming.

Refreshments of tea, coffee, lemonade, cakes and pies were enjoyed after the close of the revival - and everyone present was anxiously planning a 75th Anniversary - only one year away.

And thanks from "In the Neighborhood" to Glenda Stevens for bringing us the information on the Graham Chapel Revival-Reunion.

Cancer Benefit

The Plainview square dance clubs, the Promenaders and the Belles & Beaux, are having their annual Cancer Fund benefit dance on March 24 in Plainview at the Ollie Linder Center.

In addition to the dancing, there will be a cake and pie auction. Donations will be accepted at the door.

Join the fight. All square dancers, pie and cake eaters and anyone interested in helping is welcome. For further information call Jack Burton at 806-296-2710.

Girl Scouts

The Caprock Girl Scouts Council will hold its annual council-wide fair, "Shining Friendships," Saturday, April 1 from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Exhibit Hall.

Girl Scouts, ages 5-17, from the 18 counties in the council will exhibit activities and projects and honor all Girl Scout leaders.

Activities will include a "Science Spectrum"-type exhibit on naturally occurring luminous objects, folk dance lessons, stenciling, leatherwork, skits, crafts, food demonstrations, games and more.

The public is invited and there is no charge for admission.

Opening flag ceremony with a parade of International flags begins at 1 p.m. Closing ceremony with a World Friendship Fund parade and leader recognition is at 4:30 p.m.

According to old-timers, the 14-inch snow which accumulated from Friday night through Sunday afternoon was the deepest in Post's history. The record snowstorm virtually paralyzed Post and the West Texas area.

The snowstorm was responsible for a strange cattle roundup Saturday when Giles Dalby and the Cross H Ranch cowboys unloaded 251 head of cattle from three stalled cattle trucks on the north edge of Post and drove them up U.S. 84 to the rodeo grounds where they were penned, watered and fed.

The first Post Junior Rodeo Association playday of the year will be held at the rodeo arena Sunday.

Glen Ann Barley of the Post Does was named District 4AA's outstanding guard when all-district boys' and girls' basketball teams were selected at a meeting of coaches in Idalou.

Kerr canning award winners in the Garza County Fair were: Shirley Bland, Carolyn Halford, Iris McMahon, Mary Lee Wright, Orabeth White, Cynthia White, Christine Morris and Loucille Morris. Christine Morris, member of the FHA, was also the youth division winner at the Fair with the highest number of points.

Ronald Thuet, a sophomore at Texas Tech has been named to the Dean's Honor List. Ronald is an Agriculture Economics major.

Main Street Projects Revive Texas' Downtown

The heart of Texas is beating strong in Texas' downtowns. Small and medium size Texas cities have succeeded in revitalizing their economies by investing in the repair of aging and abandoned downtown buildings, landscaping, and marketing techniques.

More towns than ever are taking advantage of the Texas Main Street Project's strategies for restoring the confidence in downtowns and reversing their lagging economies.

The latest figures from the Texas Historical Commission's Texas Main Street Project office now show that a total of more than $175 million in public and private funds have been reinvested into more than 30 communities since the program started in 1981, according to Anice Read, director.

Since the program's inception, Texas Main Street cities have seen a total of 2,356 downtown buildings rehabilitated, a net gain of 1,162 new businesses, and 3,536 new jobs created.

A key to the success of the Texas Main Street Project is the combination of historic preservation and economic development, according to Read.

"People enjoy traveling and visiting historic sites," Read said. "Historic Texas downtowns, with their charm and character, have a natural attraction that makes people want to stop and visit."

A recent survey of Texas tourists by the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation shows that historic attractions rank among the top three things travelers enjoy most in Texas. With old train depots, historical museums, magnificent 19th-century county courthouses, and other historic buildings located downtown, the focus on historic structures in revitalizing the economies of downtowns is in step with the state's recent thrust toward developing tourism.

Five cities are selected to participate in the Main Street Project each year; official designation entitles these communities to join a growing network of cities striving to revitalize their downtowns. Under the project, each participating city receives architectural assistance from the THC for three years, as well as guidance on interior design, marketing, and business development. In addition, each city is required to hire a Main Street manager to coordinate the project for a three-year period.

Texas Main Street cities for 1989 are Denison, Fort Stockton, Mineola, Sulphur Springs and Yoakum. Currently, there are 15 active Main Street cities across the state, and 16 former Main Street cities still participate in the program. Nine other communities are conducting self-initiated programs.

COTTON TALKS

Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.
The $470,000 cash transfusion pumped into High Plains cotton breeding efforts from 1983 through 1988 sounds like a lot of money. But it amounts to less than a fourth of the value added to a single average High Plains cotton crop by a price increase of only two-tenths of a cent per pound as a result of improved fiber quality.

That point was made in a recent Plains Cotton Improvement Committee (PCIC) meeting where the committee approved a 1989 breeding research grant of $140,000, bringing the six-year grant total to $510,000. The PCIC is a committee of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. It was established in 1983 at the request of area compress owners to administer an intensive variety improvement program funded by compress collections of 10 cents per bale.

As described by Committee Chairman Wayne Huffaker of Tahoka, the breeding program aims to "put and keep High Plains cotton producers ahead of the competition" in meeting the ever more demanding strength, fineness, maturity and other cotton quality requirements of domestic and foreign spinners.

Heading up the PCIC project is Dr. John Gannaway, highly regarded Experiment Station cotton breeder at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center north of Lubbock. He is assisted by research associates Jane K. Deaver and R. Gary Smith. Germplasm lines are performance tested at the Lubbock center and at A&M's Pecos Research Station, and the effort is accelerated by utilizing an additional growing season at Tecoman in the tropical state Colima, Mexico.

To date a total of 90 germplasm lines have been released to commercial breeders for incorporation into existing materials, and other releases are anticipated this year. Releases, Gannaway says, have been those exhibiting various combinations of excellent quality traits and yield potentials equal to or exceeding the yields of varieties in commercial production.

Field testing of new varieties and strains under High Plains conditions at the Extension Center in 1988 produced the first solid evidence of program benefits to come. A total of 48 new strains and cultivars from commercial breeders were tested, of which five excelled in both quality and yield. Of those top five, Gannaway says, four contained germplasm developed and released by the producer-funded improvement program. All will undergo more extensive trials this year, the breeder continues, and limited quantities of seed from those performing up to expectations should be available to producers in 1990.

The grant request of $140,000 approved by the committee for 1989, up from $100,000 grants in each of the previous four years, includes a one-time expenditure of $15,000 to revamp an existing greenhouse at the station for use in cold tolerance studies, and a recurring expense of $15,400 to staff the facility.

EASTER BONNETS-Post's Main Street doesn't have an Easter parade where women can show off their new hats, but Jan Crawford treated us to a parade of colorful Easter bonnets in a window display of hats and hat boxes, some of them 75 years old, from a private Easter bonnet collection.

The additional funds, Huffaker, told the committee, should significantly expedite the search for early-maturing, high-quality varieties with resistance to the ascochyta blight that often reduces both quality and yields on the Plains.

Card of Thanks

Thank you to all our wonderful friends who have helped us during our tragic loss of Jimmy. The many ways you have let us know you love us and loved Jimmy has been overwhelming. Thanks especially to Neil and Donna Craig and Warren and Billie Lou for going with me to Plainview and to Steve and Mary Goodwin and James Mitchell for being there shortly after we got there. Then to find friends here with Brad when we got home was a great comfort. We truly appreciate all the beautiful flowers, the memorial gifts, phone calls, cards, visits and the food. Most of all we thank you and love you, each

The Extension Way

by Syd Conner
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

This is the time of the year to give lawns a little "tender loving care" so that they will green up fast once spring gets into full swing.

Lawns need to be rejuvenated in late winter to give them a head start in greening up. Scalping, fertilizing and applying a weed killer are important steps in getting a lawn off to a good start.

Scalping is a key first step in revitalizing a lawn and promoting early spring green-up.

Lower your lawnmower blade one-half to one inch below the normal setting.

Then mow your lawn in two directions at right angles to each other.

Remove the clippings after each mowing and use them for a compost or as a mulch for garden and landscape plants.

It's best to keep the lawn mower blade at the lower setting until late spring. Raising the blade at that time will help lawns to better survive hot, dry summer conditions.

After scalping, add a complete fertilizer to promote leaf and root growth. A complete fertilizer is one that contains nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium, as indicated on the label, with nitrogen being the first number.

Apply about one-and-a-half pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn area. That's about 18 pounds of an 8-8-8 fertilizer (18 X 8 percent) or 12 pounds of a 12-12-12 fertilizer (12 X 12 percent). Repeat the application again in the fall.

For a dark green lawn, apply nitrogen every 50 days at about one pound per 1,000 square feet.

Monthly applications of iron chelate or iron sulfate during the spring and summer also contribute to a healthy color in St Augustine grass lawns.

To keep crabgrass and other weeds from becoming a problem in lawns, apply preemergence herbicide (weed killer) in early spring.

Combinations of herbicides and fertilizers are available and convenient to use but, as with all chemicals, they should be used only according to label directions.

Be especially cautious when using herbicides around trees, shrubs and other landscape plants.

Once these early season maintenance practices have been done, watch your lawn develop into a nice green carpet and enjoy it to the fullest.

Brucellosis Testing

PCFIA Added to Test List
The Particle Concentration Fluorescence Immunoassay Test (PCFIA) was added to the list of official brucellosis tests earlier this year.

The PCFIA test will be the screening test for program herds; adjacent, trace-back, quarantined and postquarantined herds.

Veterinarians' or inspectors' market samples disclosed to be positive by the rapid screening test (RST) will undergo PCFIA testing if discrepancies occur.

Inspectors will draw an additional specimen from all card positive market cattle, including those from quarantined herds, to be PCFIA tested.

Private test specimens, for change of ownership, shows and interstate movement will be screened by the RST and will undergo PCFIA testing if discrepancies are disclosed.

Skinner Firm Develops Nuclear Waste System

James A. "Buddy" Skinner of Justiceburg, president of Cumberland & Ohio Company of Texas, announced recently that his company has developed a method and apparatus for accelerating the half-life decay of radioisotopes.

The system will accelerate the normal half-life decay cycle of all nuclear waste materials rendering the hazardous nuclear contaminated material harmless.

Each type of radioactive nuclei has variant half-life decay cycles and this technology can accelerate the various cycles.

A prototype of the system has been constructed and tested with successful results. The system can be installed at facilities which produce nuclear waste materials, eliminating the transportation, storage and rehandling of such materials.

Skinner said, "The nuclear waste generated over the past decades is currently stored at government sites in numerous states. As this material decays in its normal arithmetic cycle, its exposure to humans and the environment can be devastating. Our system will accelerate the normal half-life decay by many times and abate the contaminated materials."

While the system should not be expensive to construct and operate, the savings associated with transporting nuclear contaminated materials should be significant, as well as having an extremely positive impact on health and our environment.

Cumberland & Ohio is currently offering the technology to several of the major waste control management firms in the U.S.
