Tucumcari to San Antonio

Proposed Line Would Give Transportation Facilities to Territory as Large as State of Illinois

According to the San Antonio Express the greatest area of country in the United States without railroad facilities is about to be penetrated by a big transcontinental system.
Contracts were made recently between the citizens of Midland and representatives of the Texas Gulf and Northern Railway Company for the construction of a standard gauge railroad from Tucumcari, N. M. to San Antonio crossing the Texas and Pacific at Midland.

This line, starting in Northern New Mexico, will cross four large trunk lines, the Rock Island, Santa Fe, Texas and Pacific and the Orient. At San Antonio it will have its choice of three lines over which to transfer its freight for the Gulf of Mexico and the Panama Canal.

A Midland dispatch to the Express says: "Not including contemplated extensions beyond Tucumcari, this line will be 680 miles long. Southeast of where it crosses the Texas and Pacific Railroad at Midland it traverses a vast territory larger than the State of Illinois, at present absolutely without any railroad.
This tremendous country is at present supplied by wagon freighters from towns on the Texas and Pacific and Southern Pacific.

"San Antonio probably will be the greatest beneficiary of this new line, as it will open up for the Alamo City an entirely new trade territory to the west and northwest. The town of Midland at which the shops and main offices of the company will be placed, is also situated so fortunately as a junction point that it will of necessity become an important wholesale distributing point for an immense section of rapidly developing country."

When School Begins

Alice M. Ashton

So many of our country mothers are bemoaning the fact that their children lack the educational advantages of their town cousins, without looking for a remedy.

There is little, indeed, in the drowsy, small school room to arouse enthusiasm in either pupils or teacher. Usually the new teacher is young and inexperienced, her greatest asset being her desire to make a success of her new work. She finds a box of a school house scorched by the rays of a summer sun, or penetrated by draughts of winter cold. Not infrequently she must build her own fires in the crummy old sheet iron stove, and sweep the dusty school room. To a girl accustomed to modern school buildings and janitors, this condition of affairs is astounding, and has a dampening effect upon her ardor. She finds it difficult, too, to arouse the children to their best endeavor when competition is almost impossible. And when weeks pass without a word or sign of interest or encouragement from the parents, is it any wonder that the little teacher grows listless and drooping and anxious for school to close?

But surely the country mother, with her multitudinous duties, cannot be held responsible for this? I only wish mothers realized more fully their wonderful influence and responsibility!

Dear sisters, whose hearts are yearning over the welfare of your children, I have been first a country teacher, and then a country woman, and I know whereof I speak. You cannot build an imposing school house, you cannot afford to hire a janitor, but you can make your school as much a success as the average town school.

When the new teacher comes into your midst—or perchance it will be the old one—call upon her at once; do not let work, or pleasure, or indifference keep you away. Then invite her to your home by a genuine specified invitation—no matter if your home is but simple and poor. Occasionally you will find a girl who will emphasize her supposed superiority over you, but the average country teacher is very human, and not infrequently very lonely and homesick. Once the ice is broken, understanding the teacher will cease to be a dread, and you will derive genuine pleasure in occasionally inviting her to your home or including her in some of your pleasures.

When the school is thoroughly organized, visit it from time to time and walk home with the children. Watch how the teacher conducts her classes—this knowledge will help you vastly when the children ask you questions regarding their lessons. Examine the children's work and let them see you are interested. Observe the room critically and talk with the teacher about the improvements she is so much desiring. See if the new blackboard has been asked for is not really a necessity.

after all. Surely a couple of hours spent each month in this way is a small matter compared to our children's education, yet four such visits each term from every mother in the district would revolutionize the school.

How can this be? The pupils are no longer mere automatons to this new teacher, but real children whose parents are vitally interested in their welfare. The parents are real friends to whom she may go with her difficulties and her aspirations. School suddenly becomes an important thing to the children because mother is interested and is liable to come at any time to witness the progress.

And mark you, this costs nothing but a very little time and interest. It costs nothing to help the little teacher plant trees and shrubs on the unattractive grounds. It costs nothing to make the children believe they have a good school and a good teacher—even though you may not wholly believe this yourself—for many minds of this opinion will usually bring it to pass. Teach the children that it is a privilege to help keep the schoolhouse and grounds in order, that the absence of a janitor may not be felt. You will find this benefits yourself, also. Some of the wheels of your mental mechanism not in frequent use will begin to turn again; you will be interested in new books and methods, in educational journals, and mother's magazines. Many dissatisfactions arising from misunderstandings regarding the school management will be removed, and the ordinary farmer would be willing to do excellent grade work in the little schools of the country.

MEN BECOME CANNIBALS

Famishing Chinese Believed to Have Killed and Eaten Soldiers Guarding Rice.

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 8.—Fifty Chinese soldiers who set out with a wagon train of rice from Ning Po to relieve some of the hundreds of thousands of starving persons in the district recently swept by a typhoon, have disappeared, and it is believed they were killed and eaten. A missionary returning from the Ngon river valley reports that famishing men and women have been turned to cannibals by starvation. Floods which followed the typhoon washed away crops and destroyed rice stocks.

I want you to know that good food is not a luxury. I had suffered with hunger for many days, and when I was traveling through Texas a man told me that you had a cure. I got a 50c box and it cured me.

LEAVES MAN HALF SHAVED

Tosses Razor Out of Window and Hurries Away When Told of $50,000 Inheritance.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 8.—Only one man had reason to regret that Joseph Nymalis, a Haverhill barber, inherited $50,000. Nymalis was shaving Jerry Waite when a postman brought him a special delivery letter telling of his good fortune.

Nymalis tossed his razor out of the window, threw his barber's coat into a waste basket and left his customer half shaved. He didn't even say "good-bye." The money was left him by an uncle. Nymalis immediately packed his valise and left for Indiana, where he hopes to enter the State University. And Jerry Waite had to go to another shop to have the other side of his face shaved.

AGED COUPLE FOUND IN CAR

Former Missionaries Share Privations and Hardships.

Jamestown, N. D., Oct. 8.—Sharing privations and hardships with her husband, Mrs. K. W. Shepp was found in a box car in the Northern Pacific Railroad yards here. She and her husband were traveling from South Dakota to Idaho, and had intended going the entire distance in the car in which they had loaded their few belongings. Cold weather, however, made the trip hard, and they were suffering greatly because of their scant protection from the elements.

Both are more than 60 years old. They were former missionaries.

SENIORITAS FIGHT A DUEL

With Stiletos, Senioritas Battle to the Finish for Love of a Bull Fighter; Loser Limp to Hospital.

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Oct. 8.—In the city hospital under guard lies La Carolina Arellano, the victim of a duel with stiletos fought on a lonely road near here, and in a cell in jail is Maria Gonzales, her adversary. Their duel was the outgrowth of a romance in theatrical and bull fight circles, each of the fair senioritas having striven to win the affections of Carlos Garcia, a gold-spangled knight of the cape. In desperation when she thought she was losing the love of the bull fighter, Maria proposed the duel, to which La Carolina assented. In the early morning hours they journeyed to the "Calzada de Tlalpam," the scene of a recent mysterious murder. Here they fought until Carolina fell to the ground, slashed in a dozen places, and weak from the loss of blood. The victorious Maria, according to the police, proceeded to relieve the defeated rival of mantilla and other portions of her clothing which looked good. The police learned of the duel when La Carolina, blood-soaked and scantily clad limped into the city. It is believed she will recover.

FARM NOTES

From Farm and Ranch

SAVING THE LIQUID MANURE.

(Lester C. Davis.)

Very few farmers have any idea of the value of liquid manure, or the amount they are losing annually by neglecting to make proper use of it. One of our experiment stations once stated that the plant food value of manure, including the solid and liquid, on a farm stocked with 20 cows, four horses, 50 sheep and 10 hogs would approximate $600 per year, and that approximately one-half of this would be for the liquid manure; in other words, the value of the liquid manure would be about $300.

As to the relative value of the solid and liquid excreta this varies with the different animals, but the average value of liquid manure is $7 to $8 per ton. This is the value in plant food found by chemical analysis, but there are other values, such as the action of liquid manure on soil which makes the value infinitely more than $7 per ton.

The question now is how to preserve it. Probably in 95 barns out of every 100 that have wood floors there has been at some time or other holes bored in the floors under the animals to let the liquid manure drain off. There is no question but that this is the easiest way to get rid of it. But do a little calculating: if you have holes bored in your barn floor to let the liquid manure out, figure up and see how many tons you have lost in the last few years, placing the value at $3 per ton, and we are sure you will find the loss from this source astonishing.

It is not possible to lay down a hard and fast rule as to how the liquid manure can be saved. Many farmers have arranged drains under the stalls of their horses and cattle and they drain the liquid out into cisterns or other receptacles. This is perhaps more of an expense than the ordinary farmer would be willing to assume, although he can easily afford this expense. If you deem this method a greater expense than you wish to take, a more simple method is the use of absorbents.

The character and the amount of the litter used in the bedding is an important factor. Not only does good bedding liberally used promote the comfort of the animals, but it adds to the quantity of the manure and better its quality because of its power to absorb and retain liquids. The materials that may be used as absorbents are many, the more common ones being straw, refuse hay, corn stover, sawdust probably possesses greater absorbing qualities than the others, and on the whole it is preferred where it can be had. Sawdust is held by some farmers to have a harmful effect upon the soil, but there is really little reason to believe this to be true.

THE VARIETY ORCHARD.

If you are making your order for fruit trees for a home orchard, it would be well to select varieties of each kind, so that fruit may be had as long as possible during the season. It is possible, for instance, to have peaches in a favorable season almost continuously from June till October with early, medium and late varieties. This makes it possible to enjoy fresh fruits during the entire summer.

There are many varieties of apples adapted to lengthen the apple season where care is used to select early, medium and late varieties. Berries, plums and cherries do not offer such possibilities for variety orchards, but there is considerable choice of varieties in these fruits.

It is always well to consider the desirability of fruit trees in planting an orchard, because there will usually be a surplus, and this surplus fruit brings in ready cash. First supply your own home and then sell to your neighbors who have no orchards.

Remember that these green feeds mentioned do not afford enough protein to increase the milk production very materially. Give some cotton seed meal every day or wheat shorts and a little grain if convenient.

IF plenty of green forage is available the hay may be saved until winter, when this green food is not available.

FALL VEGETABLES.

Where there is a season sufficient to germinate seeds such vegetables as beans, radishes, turnips, onions, may be planted early in September. These plants grow very rapidly under favorable conditions, and there is only a few weeks between the time of planting and the season of fresh fall vegetables. Should you fail you will lose little because the land will be in a better condition for spring planting, but if you produce fresh vegetables for the family it will save more than the little time you spent in the effort. Take the chances and sow liberally.

FEEDING THE SWINE.

Swine to be slaughtered this winter should be gradually placed upon heavy feed. Such succulent feeds as sorghum, watermelons, cantaloupes, beans, etc., are good to give bulk and prepare the animals for the grain feeds. At first only a little corn per day should be given until the animals become accustomed to the change from the light feeds. They should have some protein feed in connection with the grain and should have a shady pasture where there is water.

BRIDE OF JAP SUICIDES

HER SUICIDE NOT FIRST OF KIND IN DENVER.

In the Block in Colorado City Where Her Home Was There are Said to Be One Hundred White Women Who Have Taken Orientals as Husbands—Restaurants Meeting Place.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 8.—Pearl Nakayama, wife of a Japanese, who ended her life at her home here, would be dismissed with the announcement that she took poison, rather than to allude to the sordid story of her life, were it not for the fact that she is one of a steadily growing company of white women who are wedding the brown and yellow men of the Orient. Pearl Nakayama entered a Japanese restaurant here and there met the man whose wife she became. A kiss gave her to the Jap. They were married and he took her to live in a block near Nineteenth and Larimer streets, where there are a hundred Japanese men living with white wives. According to the records of the detective department, there are 300 white women in the homes of as many Japanese men in the city of Denver. Her suicide is not the first of its kind. Investigators say that hundreds of white women are living as virtual slaves to the Jap men.

CRIPPLED BOY'S SKIN GRAFTED ON BURNED GIRL

Skin-Grafting Operation Is Successful and Both Will Live, Surgeons Say.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 8.—That a girl whom he had never seen until she was placed at his side on a hospital operating table might live, William Rugh, Jr., a Gary newsboy, last Sunday allowed his crippled leg to be amputated and the skin grafted to the limbs of Miss Ethel Smith, known as "the prettiest girl in Gary."

The operation is without precedent for unselfish heroism, and intertwined in it is the romance of the surgeon who performed it. Both Rugh and the girl will live.

Less than five weeks ago, Miss Smith, who is 16 years old, was severely burned while riding with Ray Roberts, her sweetheart, on his motorcycle. Fifty per cent of the skin was burned from her limbs. Sixty per cent would have caused her instant death.

Though pitifully frail and emaciated by intense suffering, the plucky girl refused to accept Rugh's offer until last Friday. Her condition was becoming rapidly worse and Dr. J. A. Craig, who performed the operation, was hastily summoned from Lebanon, Pa., Saturday.

Sunday Dr. Craig was to have been married to Miss Mary Arnold, formerly a nurse at the Gary General Hospital, at Lebanon. His wedding was postponed that he might return to Gary.

The meeting between the crippled newsboy and Miss Smith on the operating table at the Gary General Hospital was dramatic. Miss Smith was in tears.

"Too Much to Ask," She Sobbed. "Oh, I just can't let you do this for me," she sobbed. "Why, you have never even seen me. It is too much to ask such a sacrifice."

Both were visibly embarrassed, but Rugh was much the calmer of the two.

"My leg," he declared, "has never been anything but a burden to me. I am only too happy to know that it will be of some service to you."

Miss Smith smiled. That smile, Rugh declared after coming of the anesthetic, is his reward.

Rugh was the first one to enter the operating room. Alone in the world, he bade no friends or relatives good-by at the door. He was placed on the operating table.

A few minutes later Miss Smith was wheeled in. She was accompanied to the door of the room by her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith; her brother, Fern Smith, and her fiancé, Ray Robert.

Transfers 150 square inches. Long strips of flesh, each an inch wide, were taken from the crippled leg of the newsboy, dipped into a saline solution and bound to the limbs of Miss Smith. A total of 150 square inches of skin was transferred.

In addition to the four surgeons, six nurses were in the operating room.

Miss Smith was the first to be removed from the operating table. Rugh's crippled leg was then amputated.

"The operation," said Dr. Craig, "was a remarkable success, though we could not obtain quite enough skin to cover Miss Smith's limbs. Both of the patients will live."

Rugh is expected to be confined to the hospital for a period of five weeks. Plans have already been made by prominent women in Gary to supply him with an artificial leg when he is released from the hospital.

NOW HE CAN'T SMOKE AT ALL

This Man Has a Back Draught Through His Ear.

South Norwalk, Conn., Oct. 8.—Ernest Kern, an inveterate smoker, has had to give up all varieties of smoking because he has a "back draught" through his right ear. He had one of his back teeth pulled out, and the root was so deep that it opened an aperture into a canal leading to Kern's ear, which absolutely precludes his drawing on a cigar or pipe.

THE HARVEST JUBILEE

San Antonio's Premier Celebration to Begin Promptly Oct. 10th, When the Governor Will Personally Open the Festivities.

Never in the history of San Antonio has there been such unanimity of purpose and efforts among the people as in the preparations for the Harvest Jubilee, to be held October 19-28. Every citizen feels a personal interest in the celebration, evidenced by the fact that already about thirty thousand tickets of admission have been disposed of and money is in hand now only for all preliminary expenses but for every expense attending the event that has been contracted. By the organization of church committees, it is expected to gather and display the finest exhibition of agricultural, horticultural and farm products ever seen in Texas, and amusements features have been provided that will please every one attending.

The Harvest Jubilee directors have adopted the following tentative program for the ten days of the celebration:

Saturday, October 19: Texas German day. At 11 o'clock a. m. there will be a parade of United States troops escorting Governor O. B. Colquitt through the streets of the city, and to the Jubilee grounds, where the opening exercises will be held at 1:30 o'clock; 2:30 o'clock, chariot races by artillery horses and harness races; 4 o'clock, concert by Ellery's band; 8 o'clock, 10 o'clock, singing by German chorale societies and concert by Ellery's band.

Monday, October 21: School children's day 3 to 4 o'clock; patriotic songs by chorus of 5000 school children; 4 to 6 o'clock, concert by Ellery's band; 8 o'clock, athletic contests, track meet and football game; 8 to 10 o'clock, concert by Ellery's band and panorama "Siege and Fall of the Alamo."

Tuesday, October 22: 2:30 o'clock chariot races and concert by Smith's band; 4 o'clock, concert by Ellery's band; 8 to 10 o'clock, panorama "Siege and Fall of the Alamo."

Wednesday, October 23: Army day, 4 to 6 o'clock, concert by Ellery's band; 5 o'clock, army gymnastics and concert by Smith's band; 8 to 10 o'clock, panorama "Siege and Fall of the Alamo."

Thursday, October 24: San Antonio Day. Automobile races in the afternoon and concert by Smith's band; 4 to 6 o'clock, concert by Ellery's band; 8 to 10 o'clock, panorama "Siege and Fall of the Alamo" and concert by Ellery's band.

Friday, October 25: Good roads day. 1 to 2 o'clock, free barbecue and good roads demonstrations; 2 to 6 o'clock, firemen's contests and concert by Smith's band; 8 to 10 o'clock, "Siege and Fall of the Alamo."

Saturday, October 26: Traveling Men's day. 3 to 6 o'clock, automobile races and concerts by Smith's and Ellery's bands; 8 to 10 o'clock, panorama, "Siege and Fall of the Alamo."

Sunday, October 27: 3 to 6 o'clock, automobile races and concerts by Smith's and Ellery's bands; 8 to 10 o'clock, panorama, "Siege and Fall of the Alamo."

Each afternoon of the festival, from 1:30 to 4 o'clock, a reception to the visiting women will be held in the Woman's building. At these receptions the twenty-four leading women of San Antonio will, three at a time, act as hostesses, assisted by the wives, daughters and sisters of the chairman of county committees of county committees, every county in Southwest Texas being represented. Addresses will be made on various subjects of especial interest to the women.

A German village, a Mexican village and an open air free act will be other attractions besides the exhibits of various kinds. The Women's building will be one of the features of the Jubilee, especially for the women. This building will be divided into several rooms which will be furnished to represent various periods in American history. Articles of all kinds, including furniture, tapestries, paintings, decorations and jewelry will be loaned to the San Antonio women and will in themselves prove very interesting. Several famous paintings descriptive of events in Texas history are to be placed on exhibition.

The electricians of San Antonio have arranged for a special electrical exhibit which will show not only the latest electrical devices, but will display the multitudinous uses to which electricity may be put. The manufacturers and wholesale and retail merchants will have exhibits of "made in San Antonio" goods, and the manufacturers of automobiles, farm machinery and implements and vehicles will not overlook the opportunity to make extensive displays.

PRIEST INVENTS FAST RIFLE

Leaves Convent When Ordered to Destroy Model.

ROME, Italy, Oct. 8.—Father Bontempi, a monk who has been teaching physics at the convent of St. Anthony, has invented an automatic rifle capable of firing 250 shots per minute. Bontempi wished to patent the weapon, but the superiors ordered him to destroy the model. Discarding his priestly garb he entered into negotiations with the minister of war which are now about to be closed.

MISS WITNESSES IN CASE

ADMIT SEVERAL OF THEM HAVE DISAPPEARED.

Fifty Will Testify Against New York Police Lieutenant Who Is Charged With Murder—District Attorney Is Keeping Close Watch on the Other Witnesses Until the Trial Opens.

New York, Oct. 8.—That several witnesses relied upon for the prosecution of Lieutenant Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal have disappeared is admitted by District Attorney Whitman. He says, however, that the case against the indicted policeman will not be affected.

One of the missing is an army officer who was an eye witness of the killing of Rosenthal; another is a girl, a former sweetheart of "Dago Frank." Because of "Dago Frank's" attentions to another young woman, she volunteered to the district attorney a story which had a bearing on the murder. The young woman has since repented and has left the city, concealing her whereabouts.

In the meantime, Mr. Whitman is keeping close tabs on the other witnesses, two of whom recently attempted to sail for Europe, but were intercepted a few hours before the departure of the steamship on which they were booked for passage.

Mr. Whitman says that he has fully fifty witnesses to call. Their testimony is so interwoven with fact and incident as to make a complete and convincing case, said Mr. Whitman. He anticipates no delay in beginning the trial next Monday.

INFIDEL TRACTS AT REVIVAL

Religion Is Assailed from Mysterious Source.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 8.—With a great religious revival under way, with from 1500 to 2000 persons attending the services in a big tent, Athens has been assailed by infidel literature, which has been sent from an unknown source. A copy of a publication proclaims that "God is an imaginary character, a myth, a creation of the imagination; that the universe contains no real good; that the soul is purely a fabrication; that the imagination of the superstitious, and that man has no soul; that dead persons never come to life again; and that there is no hereafter," and a good deal more of the same tenor.

$232,000.00 Cash

A quarterly dividend just paid. That's some cash, isn't it? This amount was paid August 15, 1912, to the stockholders of a home building company in Los Angeles, California, which buys close-in city property; sub-divide into lots and sell, and build and sell homes.

Not only that, but the investors who secured stock at the beginning at $1 per share, can now sell their stock for $4.00. Think of it! $3.00 profit on every share.

Did you know that there is a company in successful operation in San Antonio, working along identically the same lines, whose success for the last two years of operation have been equal to that of the Los Angeles company? Will be perhaps greater, as it is the first in the field in San Antonio.

Don't you want to be one of the early stockholders—now while the company is young? It's a great chance for you. We'd like you to have our interesting literature. May we mail it to you? It's free.

Clean up your old back yard!

Cities have gained world wide fame in one day through publicity. Junction needs publicity.

A prevailing spirit of friendliness will create an impression on the stranger and your city will not be forgotten. Give Junction more of this spirit.

If you want to buy, sell or trade anything in real estate see M. S. Nichols at Citizen Office. He may have just what you want.

If you have friends or relatives coming in or going away we will thank you to call, phone or write The Citizen office. You like to read about others; others like to read about you. Every news item one gives us makes this paper just that much more interesting for the other steady hundred readers. And such favors are not forgotten by the editor.

Literature is now being widely distributed concerning the great State Fair of Texas. "The Fair Without An Equal." The dates are October 12-27, and indications are that this year's fair will be the "best yet." The amount of stakes and purses offered in the ten days race meet is $85,000,—and other departments in proportion. In the mammoth coliseum, which has a seating capacity of 7,500, will be presented the greatest stellar attractions to be had either in Europe or the United States. It will be an interesting and educational treat to attend this fair. We would go ourselves but—but—!!

The Commissioner of Agriculture of Tennessee in a recent report said that it cost the farmers of that state $8,000,000 to haul to market their products, amounting to $100,000,000, the hauling thus costing over one-tenth of the value. "Had we an improved system of highways this cost would have been reduced at least 50 per cent, and the farmers would have saved $4,000,000, or enough money to have built 1,000 miles of first class macadam road."

The Memphis Commercial Appeal cites as an example of the class of the Tennessee farmers voting against good roads, one who remarked: "I'd ha' voted agin them road bonds, but the blamed roads was so bad I could not get to town in time for the meetin'."

Let us hope that Texas has no such unprogressive farmers, and that they will profit by the example of loss from bad roads in Tennessee, and get busy for a statewide cooperative movement for good roads in Texas. If they think macadam too expensive for any but main line roads, then the use of gravel and binder clay will produce a system of no mean highways at moderate expense, if properly constructed and crowned, and whole townships, districts or counties should unite their machinery, and men and do the work at the same time, thus completing the construction much quicker and easier.

Kimble has plenty of the necessary material which is easily obtained to build the best of roads, and at a minimum expense. Then why don't we have them? When the people learn to properly value good roads we will have them.

LET ME SHOW YOU HOW TO DO AWAY WITH THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

Will you trade a few minutes of your time for some good hard American dollars?

If you will, we'll tell you how. Some of your neighbors are supplying their table from my store.

Look at my goods, compare prices, and you will find that you not only get the best, but save money at my store.

Largely due to waste is the high cost of living. My policy is large volume, small profits and elimination of waste.

How can you complain of hard times and high costs and never look around and make comparisons?

Are you willing to compare prices and quality in buying your supplies? If so we can trade some.

Nothing worries you more than the high cost of living. I can help you reduce it. See me about it.

Keep your eye on this space for bargains for cash. If you want to reduce expenses, give me your orders.

I make a large difference in prices on cash orders. On prices I drop with the market—not a month later.

Nowhere else will be found more of real value for every dollar expended than at my store. QUALITY TELLS.

So if you want to reduce the high cost of living, come around and let me talk the matter over with you.

Tuesday evening, Oct. 9th, was the commemoration of the birthday of Hon. J. H. Reagan; it was also the birthday of Mrs. Dona Boone, president J. B. Robertson Chapter U. D. C. In honor of the event there was a call meeting of that organization at Mrs. Boone's hospitable home Tuesday evening, when a very pleasant social time was enjoyed. The hostess related events of the Reunion at San Angelo and these were very interesting and enjoyed by all. Quite a crowd enjoyed a picnic at the dam on Paint Sunday. There were about 30 present. After a fine dinner Walter Patton rode a pitching mule. Then we all had pictures made in front of the dam. We all then visited the cave and on coming out of the cave saw the largest rattlesnake I ever saw in my life. We went to Mrs. Hamm's then and then had more broncho busting.

Letter to W. E. Wilson
Junction, Texas

Dear Sir: The real test of a paint is how many square feet will a gallon of it cover? And all the paints swear they cover 800 square feet two coats. Mildly, they pretentious.

L. H. Ferchard, builder, 1108
Dupre St., New Orleans, covered 1900 square feet with three gallons Devco last year; and paints all his jobs Devco. That's how the tale gets to us.

He doesn't say whether one or two coats; if one, there's nothing wonderful in it; if two, they must have very small feet in New Orleans.

Devco doesn't stop at 200 feet, but over 600! Most paints, we suppose can be stretched to 600 feet, but they're mighty thin;
they cover well 150 to 200.

When N. R. Watkins, Law-
Texas painted his house before, it took 13 gallons; Devco 7 gallons. That shows the strength of the paints.

W. B. McCluney painted a house in Crystal Springs, Miss.
to test two pure paints: one coat
6 gallons Devco; the other coat
10 gallons of a New Orleans paint.
That shows the strength of paints.

Surfaces differ; one takes a more another takes less. Devco covers more than any other paint; two to one in the case of half the paints. But how many it covers we don't know till we see the surface.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVCO & CO.

Alex J. Hamer Co. sells our paint.

At Sandy Devil Island

By Chas. Warren

The room was very still. In one corner where the president sat, working at a table, a ship's binnacle light suspended over his head threw a glare on the heaps of papers in front of him. There was no other light in the room except the brilliant orange flame of the great fire of Southern pine logs.

Leland was seated astride a bench, scrupulously cleaning a gun and peering through the barrel at the fire, as if this, and not the law, was his real occupation in life. A gun rack was on the wall behind him, a stack of neatly cased fishing rods leaning up against it. A huge rough-hewn stone fireplace spread nearly the whole width of the room and along its face a splendid tarpon glittered. Over the door streamed a yacht's pennant and a private signal. Looking chairs, small tables, and skins were everywhere about the room, as if tossed carelessly into it. Archie Morgan, the Major, was untangling a mess of fishing lines. Tronche, the Great Actor, was stretched out magnificently on a long, low canvas-bottomed chair, while at his side accessible to the least possible effort, stood a small table bearing several siphons, a bottle of Scotch whiskey, a glass jar of clams, and a large oyster shell heaped up with ashes and butts.

For ten minutes no remark had disturbed the silence except a rambling exclamation from the actor. "You don't know what solid comfort this is, Breighton, after six days on that crummy, wobbly yacht of Leland's."

The statement had received no answer from Breighton, the owner of this hunting-box on Sandy Devil Island, was out of the room at the time. The other members of the Waifu Club felt too lazy to indulge in the effort of speech.

The fire snapped and sizzled; a bottle clinked on the edge of a glass. Leland laid down his gun, and taking a cob pipe up off the floor, leaned his back against a corner of the fireplace in placid contemplation. Outside the sea washed soothingly up the sandy shore and back. Ten more minutes went by. Then the president crashed his hand down on the pile of papers and rose.

"Finished," he said. "Give me a cigar, Hugh." The actor, without raising himself in his chair, extended a box.

"What is it now, the same old foreign difficulty?" drawled Leland, with his pipe in his mouth. The president was about to reply when Breighton entered the room, a rush of cool air and a pungent smell of seaweed following him.

"As I've only got one day here, Breighton, I'll make the most of it," the president greeted him. "How early can I get at the birds?"

"Well, there's a little tide about four o'clock in the morning. If you leave about three-quarters of an hour before then, you can reach the duck blinds on the mainland in time to set your decoys and bag your birds conveniently on the ebb when the tide turns."

"All right. We'll make it an all-day trip and I'll try the afternoon tide, too. Have you a good man to go with me?"

"First-class," Jake Murfree—lazy devil as ever lived, and good for nothing else; but the keenest sportsman you ever saw. I picked him up at Bolitown, over on the mainland just across from here. Just year. He'd just arrived, drifted in from out in Kentucky. How he makes a living, I don't know. I never heard of his doing a stroke of work. But down here on this Southern coast a man can exist without making more effort than is required to get out of bed and eat. Jake knows, however, all there is to know about the birds, and he'll smell them if they're anywhere within ten miles. He'll tramp or row any distance, and he never misses except through some accident."

"That's a very promising description," said the president. "Kentucky men are generally good shots, especially if they're from the mountains. By the way, is there much shooting down here occasionally. You ought to know him. Perhaps you appointed him. He's a crack shot. He spent a week with me last season, and he knows him, said the president."

"You and he will just miss each other. He's coming over to this shooting box of mine next week. Then also occasionally I can get him to come down, or a few other selected Waifu like the specimens on hand here. But for the most part the shooting is done by the natives and me; and, as I said before, Jake Murfree, who's only a recent 'native,' is the best of them all."

"Is it known here that I'm with you?" asked the president.

"No," said Breighton. "You dropped in on us unexpectedly on Leland's yacht that day, but he hasn't given advance news. You ought to have an interesting day, and the chances are you won't even be recognized."

"They'll know me from your picture," said Leland.

The major looked up with a twinkle in his eye. "When the president puts on that disreputable canvas suit, that tattered flannel shirt, and that villainous slouch hat, it would be a clever man who would recognize him," he remarked.

Long, steady breathing from the various rooms and the creaking of the stairs were the only sounds in the house when the president left the next morning.

There was a wan, yellow light around the eastern horizon, and the dull black sea was slowly changing and showing pale gleams here and there. A cool breeze with a slight nip in it was blowing from the south-east, and the sail of the small boat at the pier was flapping briskly.

The man who had sailed it out from Bolitown stood on the pier, a lanky, scrawny, stalwart personage. He scrutinized the president in his hat, interested way, and with no sign of recognition.

"Good day for birds?" asked the president.

Murfree jerked his head up and down and paused for a considerable time before drawing out, "I've seen worse. Might be some up Lone Pine Creek way. Ain't the other fellows coming?"

"No; they are too fond of their sleep to start off at this hour." The president stepped down into the boat, looking curiously at the decoys which covered the bottom. Jake handed down the guns, after examining them with a somewhat languid interest. Then with great deliberation he crawled down the piles, fell off into the cock pit, lighted his pipe, crossed his leg over the tiller and slowly ascended to the seat.

"I told 'em up yonder," he said, pointing to the hunting box, "I'd take yer north over Rice Beach way, but I'd reckon ez the birds'll be up thar this morning; so we'll beat down over toward the Crik. We'll knock down more'n a dozen thar."

The president nodded and looked satisfied at the tone of confidence. The man evidently knew what he was about.

The pale yellow spread around the rim of the sea, and a deep purple splashed with golden shafts surrounded it. The water began to sparkle and grow bluer and bluer. The wind sent the waves tumbling and foaming higher along the sand. The white sail, grey smaller and smaller, as the boat zigzagged across the channel between Sandy Devil Island and the coast of the mainland, and finally dropped out of the sight behind a tree-covered point.

At 8 o'clock that morning the major drifted downstairs and with absolute recklessness of time slowly ate his breakfast. An hour later Leland and Breighton appeared on the scene, and Tronche strolled carelessly into the room just as the ship's proprietor on the wall was striking four bells.

During the morning the major and Leland, taking the steam launch belonging to the yacht, the "Condor," dropped out in a cove off the side of the island and pretended to fish en masse. The actor said he "cussed" he'd fish in a tall glass and catch as much; and at once ordered his chair and a table to be brought out upon the piazza in the sun and a siphon to be placed within easy reach.

After lunch, as the afternoon passed away, the wind began to freshen and blow from the east. The sea outside and even the channel between the mainland and the island lost its gleam and grew dark and sullen, spotted with myriad whitecaps.

"The president'll get well shaken up coming across this afternoon in a sailboat," said the major. "See the 'Condor' pitch," he pointed to the yacht which was lying off the island. "We'll have a nice rough trip, all right, up the coast tonight," Leland declared. The actor, however, the "Condor's" bow gave a particularly violent plunge.

The actor groaned. "What amazing idiotic imbecility," he thought, "to go down to the sea in boats," he murmured.

At about half-past five o'clock the clouds had come thick and black and the sun had entirely disappeared. Breighton was pacing up and down the piazza with his watch in his hand, looking the channel to the north. He felt a little puzzled to know why no sail appeared, coming from the direction of Rice Beach. The "Condor" was nowhere to be seen.

An hour later it had grown almost totally dark. Breighton scanned the waters with a field glass as best he could. The major joined him.

"Where the devil is the president?" he asked.

Brighton shook his head. "If he hasn't come back by now, soon," he replied. "I think we'd better take the launch and look him up."

The major whistled as he noted the help of the waves.

At seven o'clock the president had not appeared. All four men were by this time extremely nervous. Breighton racked his brain to frame possible reasons for the president's disappearance. Most unpleasant explanations kept forcing themselves upon him.

At eight o'clock he could stand the uncertainty no longer.

"Roser," he said to Leland. "I think the 'major' and I will drop over to the island in the launch and see if anything has happened."

LIVES WITH RAG IN SIDE

Discovering It, Woman Sues Noted Surgeon for Carelessness.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 8.—Mrs. Charles Glanier has not only lived for two years with a twelve inch napkin implanted in her side, but she is well enough to sue for $10,000 damages. She has brought suit against Dr. Charles L. Ill, a famous surgeon, charging that after performing an operation upon her he failed to remove the surgical dressings. Mrs. Glanier recently saw a bit of linen protruding from the end of the old incision. She was hurried to the hospital where the napkin was removed.

Pineaters.

Mistress—"Really, cook, what have you been doing? Seven o'clock—and the rabbit not put on yet!" Cook—"Can't 'elp it, ma'am; I never knew anything like so long to pluck in my life."—Sketch.

People who live in clean houses shouldn't throw mud.

A man seldom generates any steam with the money he burns.

A wise man listens when his wife talks—at least, he listens for the last word.

No ducks or birds with him. He had packed up a few of his belongings in a bundle, had said his good-byes and ridden off inland, saying he might not be back for a few days. He had seemed "in a right smart hurry."

At the time he left, he was very grave indeed. Evidently something had happened, but what? They were afraid to guess. They hastened back to the launch, and he had himself from the store with armfuls of pine torches. No one of them dared to put into words what he feared.

"Set her course to Rice Beach, and hit her up at top speed," was Breighton's order to the engineer. The big launch, in ever this hour, and soaked their clothes, the cold wind and rain drove in horizontal blasts, but they sat with their eyes fixed on the launch, and they waited.

After a while they headed for the shore.

SOME TESTIMONIALS.

Last summer my wife had a general breaking down, she was very weak, had a bad cough and her appetite was very poor. I sent her to Fredericksburg to take a rest, and while there, she consulted a physician, who told her that she had but a couple of months to live, as she had rapid consumption. She came back to San Antonio, and I took her to a local sanatorium, where she stayed for two months without improving, but on the contrary, was getting worse. She then consulted Dr. White of the French Laboratory of this city, under whose treatment she soon began to improve. Her cough has ceased, her appetite returned and she is today enjoying good health.

I want to say to every man and woman that suffers with consumption, that I was so sick that four leading physicians of Austin, Texas, said to me: "You cannot be cured. There is not a remedy on earth that can cure you." The doctors of San Antonio told me the same thing. I was very distressed to think I had to die and leave my children. I was directed by a friend to go and see Dr. White at the French Laboratory. When he examined me, he told me that I had several large cavities in my lungs, and that he didn't know whether he could cure me or not. He gave me a home treating outfit, and I was assured I would be cured. And today I am a well man, and I am well and doing very well.

Dr. G. W. White, City. I want to thank you for the treatment that you furnished for my trouble, which is consumption. I have this to say, to whom it may concern, that on the 27th of November, 1900, I had a hemorrhage and loss of blood. The doctor, Dr. White, and trained nurses for two weeks. The doctor finally told me that I could not get well, that I had galled consumption and had only a short time to live. So I sent for one of the French Laboratory Inhalers; the third day I was able to get up, and in fourteen days I gained eleven pounds, making me 150 pounds heavier than I had been in ten years. I am still improving, and will be glad to tell anyone of your cure, that is, suffering from consumption. J. W. McKNALLY, Corpus Christi, Tex.

I have been working out of this city, for the I. & G. N. railroad for years, had as bad a case of Catarrh as any man could have and live, was treated for two years by some of the best specialists of the city, paying out large sums of money and getting no relief. About the first of September, 1900, I called at the French Laboratory, and bought one of their inhalers, and used them for the complete outfit, and I wish to say it was the best money I ever let go. Today I am a well man. I will say to anyone that it will cure any case of Catarrh, Asthma or Hay Fever, if the patient will use as per directions. If I could not get another, $100.00 could not buy the outfit I have.

To Whom It May Concern: I came to San Antonio last July with consumption, was having one or two hemorrhages a day. After being in the city a week I heard of the French Laboratory treatment. I went to see Dr. White and bought an outfit from him for home treatment. I began the treatment on the 1st day of July. After taking three treatments I had no more hemorrhages, and began to improve at once. I am a well man today. I am doing my housework and cooking. MRS. ELLA FORD, Pecos City, Texas.

I learned of the French Laboratory treatment, and I ordered one of their Home Treating outfits immediately and commenced treating myself according to directions received with outfit, and got results from the very beginning and I stopped spitting blood with three or four days. I am today enjoying good health and will be glad to answer any inquiry about this wonderful treatment and what it has done for me. J. R. BLOODWORTH, Box 602, San Antonio, Texas.

Hon. R. N. Lansing, of Rensselaer, N. Y., Six Times a Member of the Assembly, Tells of Narrow Escape.

"About fifteen years ago I was taken with rheumatism, which affected my heart producing what was called valvular trouble. Three doctors told me I would never do another day's work. While I had many remedies recommended to me I got a bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and it helped me inside of 48 hours. I called on my doctor and asked him to examine me. He said I was better than he ever expected to see me and asked if I was taking his medicine. When I told him I was not, but was taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, he said, 'Thank the Lord for Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy.' I continued to take it, and while I realized my heart was damaged so I could not expect a permanent cure, for fifteen years I worked every day, notwithstanding I had been told I would never work again. In July, 1911, I was taken with rheumatism again, and it went to my heart as before. I got so bad that one of the Albany papers wrote up my life and said I could not live but a few hours. I again took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy with very satisfactory results, and have not missed a day at business or in the legislature since January. I feel that Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has saved my life and cannot recommend it too highly."

I ride horseback as good as ever. I am in fine health at 52 years."

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holsclaw, Clarendon, Texas, was effected years ago in his brother. Plaintiffs allege that in addition to their claim of ownership of said land by reason of the Statutes of Limitation as pleaded they claim to own and hold the title to said land by virtue of the following deed recorded in the office of the County Clerk of Kimble County, Texas in the book and page hereinafter set forth:

1. Will Spencer, tax collector of Kimble County, Texas, to G. W. Hodges, dated April 5, 1899, recorded in book 3, pp. 23-25. 2. Miller, dated September 6, 1907, recorded in book 11, pp. 555-559. Plaintiffs allege that notwithstanding they have a good title to said premises said defendants are claiming some interest therein by reason of the fact that on the 5th day of September, 1911, a patent was issued to them for said premises by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, that nevertheless plaintiffs have acquired a good and valid title to said land. Plaintiffs further allege that by reason of the pretended claim of defendants they are prevented from selling and disposing of said property readily and that it is and casts a cloud upon their title which cloud plaintiffs are entitled to have cancelled and removed. Plaintiffs pray that they have judgment for the said land, for their writ of possession and that the cloud upon their title be cancelled and removed, [Hearken] FAIL NOT, but have you then and there before said Court this writ, with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same. Given under my hand and seal of office in Junction, this 15th day of August, 1912. (S. R. A.)
