Bush, Dukakis differing on U.S. economy

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Democrat Michael Dukakis and Republican George Bush are offering starkly different views of the nation's economy as they head into the decisive two months of the 1988 presidential campaign.

Dukakis said at a Labor Day rally in Detroit that under the Republicans "the rich have gotten richer, the poor have gotten poorer."

He said millions of high-paying jobs have been replaced by low-wage positions, and asked, "Can we afford four more years of that?"

Republican rival Bush touted economic gains under the Reagan administration, saying the administration has created 17 1/2 million jobs, more disposable income for the American people, lower taxes. "And all my opponent can do is tell the American people how bad things are."

The vice president said the campaign is "about protecting the gains we've made in jobs and peace and it's about how to make new breakthroughs in both areas."

After full schedules on Labor Day, the symbolic opening of the fall campaign, the Republican and Democratic candidates — with the exception of GOP vice presidential nominee Dan Quayle — remained on the road.

Bush was on the West Coast for appearances in Oregon and Washington, while Dukakis had events scheduled in Illinois and Ohio.

Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, joined Dukakis at a Labor Day picnic in St. Louis and then headed back to the South.

Quayle was back in Washington after Labor Day appearances at the Statue of Liberty and at an ethnic parade in Detroit.

About 125 anti-abortion activists, by police estimates, were at a Dukakis appearance in Philadelphia. They waved signs and chanted, "Life yes, abortion no. Duke of death must go."

People carrying Dukakis-Bentsen signs stood at the back of the crowd at a Bush appearance in San Diego and shouted, "Where was George?"

About 30 members of a group called the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power heckled Quayle and said they were protesting his vote against a $30 million appropriation to provide the drug AZT to AIDS victims.

In San Diego, a man with a stun gun on his belt was taken into custody at the Bush campaign rally, but he was later released.

The person did nothing to present a harm to either the vice president or anyone else there," said Steve Serzgek, Secret Service special agent in charge of the San Diego field office.

GEORGE BUSH
... Touts gains

The Secret Service said another man, who was carrying what police believed was a bomb, was arrested in Hamtramck, Mich., shortly before Quayle's arrival there. The device turned out to be a fake.

The 38-year-old Hamtramck man was arrested on charges of interfering with a Secret Service agent, said Jim Huse of the Secret Service's Detroit office.

Dukakis and Bentsen pressed their claim that jobs created under the Republican administration pay less.

"High paying jobs being replaced by low paying jobs, average weekly wages down over the past eight years, benefits down over the past eight years," Dukakis told the Detroit rally. "My friends, I ask you, can we afford four more years of that?"

Appearing together later in St. Louis, the Democrats ridiculed Bush's sudden professions of concern for the environment after seven years of battles between the administration and environmental groups. Dukakis said Democrats would "clean up the environment, and we're not going to listen to any election-year conversions on the subject. ... No born-again environmentalists — we don't need that."

Bush said Dukakis was following "the standard litany of the liberal left" with his opposition to the MX and Midgetman missile systems, the Star Wars missile defense program, and two new carrier task forces.

"I wouldn't be surprised if he thinks that a naval exercise is something you find in Jane Fonda's workout book," he said in reference to the actress who was an active opponent of the Vietnam War.

Group cracking down on gold sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of jittery investors are jumping from the frying pan of a volatile stock market into the fire of gold swindle pushed by high-pressure telephone sales operations, state regulators said today.

The North American Securities Administrators Association, together with the Council of Better Business Bureaus, issued an "investor alert" warning of a rash of high-pressure, boiler-room telephone scams promoting various schemes to buy gold at below-market prices.

"We hope to alert the public to what is clearly the fraud du jour — one that has earned the title: the fool's gold rush of 1988," said James C. Meyer, president of the regulators' group and director of the Tennessee Division of Securities.

Project Goldbrick, a New Mexico-based task force established by the regulators, began tracking eight scams in the spring of 1987. Since then, Meyer said, the number of known operations has mushroomed to 52.

He estimated "tens of thousands of Americans in all 50 states will lose $250 million" this year.

"It seems clear that the success of the new breed of gold swindle is attributable in large part to the decline in investor confidence since the Black Monday stock market crash of October 1987," Meyer said in a statement.

"Thousands of individuals fled the markets," he said. "The result: a huge pool of potential, cash-rich victims ripe for exploitation."

The typical scheme, known as a "dirt pile," works like this: A caller working from a boiler room telephone operation in another state offers to sell, for instance, 100 tons of dirt for $5,000. The con artist guarantees the "aggregate ore" will yield at least 20 ounces of gold, an effective price of $250 an ounce vs. current spot market prices of about $430 an ounce.

"The problem is the gold doesn't exist beyond microscopic, economically unrecoverable levels," Meyer said. "The mine probably is nothing more than a godforsaken patch of desert scrubland."

The regulators' organization tested the ore in one New Mexico mine, billed by salesmen as the richest mineral deposit on Earth. It turned out to have no more gold than is found in sea water, Meyer said.

In another case cited by the group, a Wyoming inmate already jailed on a fraud charge used prison telephones to bilk investors in Minnesota and Wyoming into paying $6,250 each for worthless dirt from an inactive Utah mine. When he was caught the second time, prison authorities moved him to solitary confinement.

James H. McIlbenny, president of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, said virtually all of the swindlers operate by telephone.

"It's easy to start, just rent a cheap office, install banks of phones, hire salespeople and start calling from sucker lists. ... If things get too hot, they simply close up shop, move to another town ... and start running a new scam," he said.

The two groups offered tips for avoiding a gold swindle:

—Hang up on high-pressure telephone sales tactics.

—Beware of vague promises about delayed delivery of gold.

—Remember that there is no such thing as a "guaranteed" investment in gold.

Winds to spread more fire in Yellowstone

COOKE CITY, Mont. (AP) — Firefighters, worried it would start "raining fire" today, hosed down houses and bolstered lines against blazes that have blackened nearly 1 million acres in and around Yellowstone National Park.

Southwesterly winds 20 to 30 mph were expected today after the relatively light winds Monday.

The changing winds could send embers and flames into this community and nearby Silver Gate from the advancing 61,300-acre Storm Creek blaze and backfires set to deprive the fire of fuel.

"With these winds, it will be heroic, a real success to save some of these buildings," said fire information officer Pat Kaunert.

Elsewhere in Yellowstone, the 142,000-acre North Fork fire burned to within 2½ miles of the Old Faithful geyser Monday, but authorities were optimistic the fire would not reach the tourist attraction.

Thirteen fires in and around Yellowstone have scorched 900,000 acres, and should top 1 million acres today after aerial surveys are completed, Gary Cargill, head of the U.S. Forest Service in Denver, said at a news conference in Bozeman. About 300,000 acres could burn this week alone, he said.

In Washington, Gov. Booth Gardner on Monday called in the National Guard to provide support for firefighters battling blazes throughout the state. The Guardsmen will help crews working the state's largest fire, the 12,500-acre White Mountain Complex blaze.

In Idaho, 13 forest fires raged out of control. A new fire broke out Monday seven miles north of Island Park, on the western edge of the massive North Fork fire that burned out of Yellowstone during the weekend, forcing an estimated 150-200 summer cabin owners to evacuate.

In Silver Gate and Cooke City near Yellowstone's northeastern entrance, all but 30 of the approximately 150 residents had evacuated.

"Some of them are staying around because they want to see what the fire does," said Bob Fry, an emergency services official. "They're mostly packed up, though, and we're trying to push them out."

Mild winds blew ash and smoke toward the towns Monday afternoon.

"First it starts snowing ash. Then it starts raining fire," said Kaunert.

Even without the winds, fires jumped lines in many areas.

Lines were completed Monday around Silver Gate, and nearly completed around Cooke City, said fire information officer Sue Conso.

About 75 trucks were called in from as far away as Nevada to protect buildings in the communities.

Firefighters also doused homes with water. Hopes of burning out fuels from a two-mile swath in the fire's path were dashed when backfires failed to burn as expected, leaving towns with less protection than officials had wanted.

Forest Service officials in northwest Montana also prepared an evacuation plan for homes in a residential area south of the tiny town of Fortine.

"Right now, we've got our fingers crossed that this wind isn't going to be that harsh," said spokesman Dick Guth, stressing that residents would be asked to leave only if winds materialize. The blaze jumped over some lines and grew to an estimated 12,300 acres. While the forecast for brisk winds worried officials at most fires in the region, it was welcomed at the 54,270-acre Hellroaring Creek fire burning in Montana's Absaroka-Beartooth Wilderness and south into Yellowstone.

Spokesman Stephanie Gibert said the expected southwest winds would allow firefighters to set backfires that would burn into the main blaze.

Elsewhere, calmer wind and slightly lower temperatures helped firefighters grapple with blazes that charred nearly 21,000 acres of southern California brush.

Bakker falls short in money in buying PTL

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — With the deadline today, PTL founder Jim Bakker was $1 million short in his bid to buy back the ministry he left in a sex-and-money scandal, but vowed to leave no stone unturned in coming up with the money.

Bakker and his attorney, Jim Toms, said Monday they're certain supporters will donate the money needed to satisfy PTL bankruptcy trustee M.C. "Red" Benton, who wanted $3 million toward Bakker's $165 million bid by the end of the day.

"To come up with $3 million in a holiday weekend I had to pray and say, 'God help me,'" Bakker said.

He said friends and acquaintances contacted by word-of-mouth had contributed close to $2 million in cash and letters of credit toward the $3 million.

"We are sort of running our own Labor Day telethon without a television station," he said. "I'm not going to leave any stone unturned. I'm not going to stumble now."

Bakker said a group of people was working on raising the remaining $1 million in thousand-dollar pledges and he has set up a trust account at a Hendersonville, N.C., bank to accept donations. Those donations would be used only if he and his wife, Tammy Faye, succeeded in purchasing the ministry, he said.

Benton asked for the money as a sign of Bakker's ability to follow through on his offer for the Heritage USA Christian theme park, a satellite TV network and undeveloped property near the Fort Mill ministry.

Bakker leads the bidding for the assets of the ministry that went into bankruptcy protection soon after he left in March 1987. Bakker stepped down after admitting to a sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn and after the ministry paid her hush money.

Benton said Friday he was "very, very skeptical" Bakker could come up with the $3 million by the deadline. Calls to his Winston-Salem, N.C., home Monday went unanswered.

After today, Benton said he would consider other offers to purchase the ministry's assets, including Canadian real estate executive Peter Thomas' standing offer of $113 million.

Benton must recommend a buyer by Saturday to U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds.

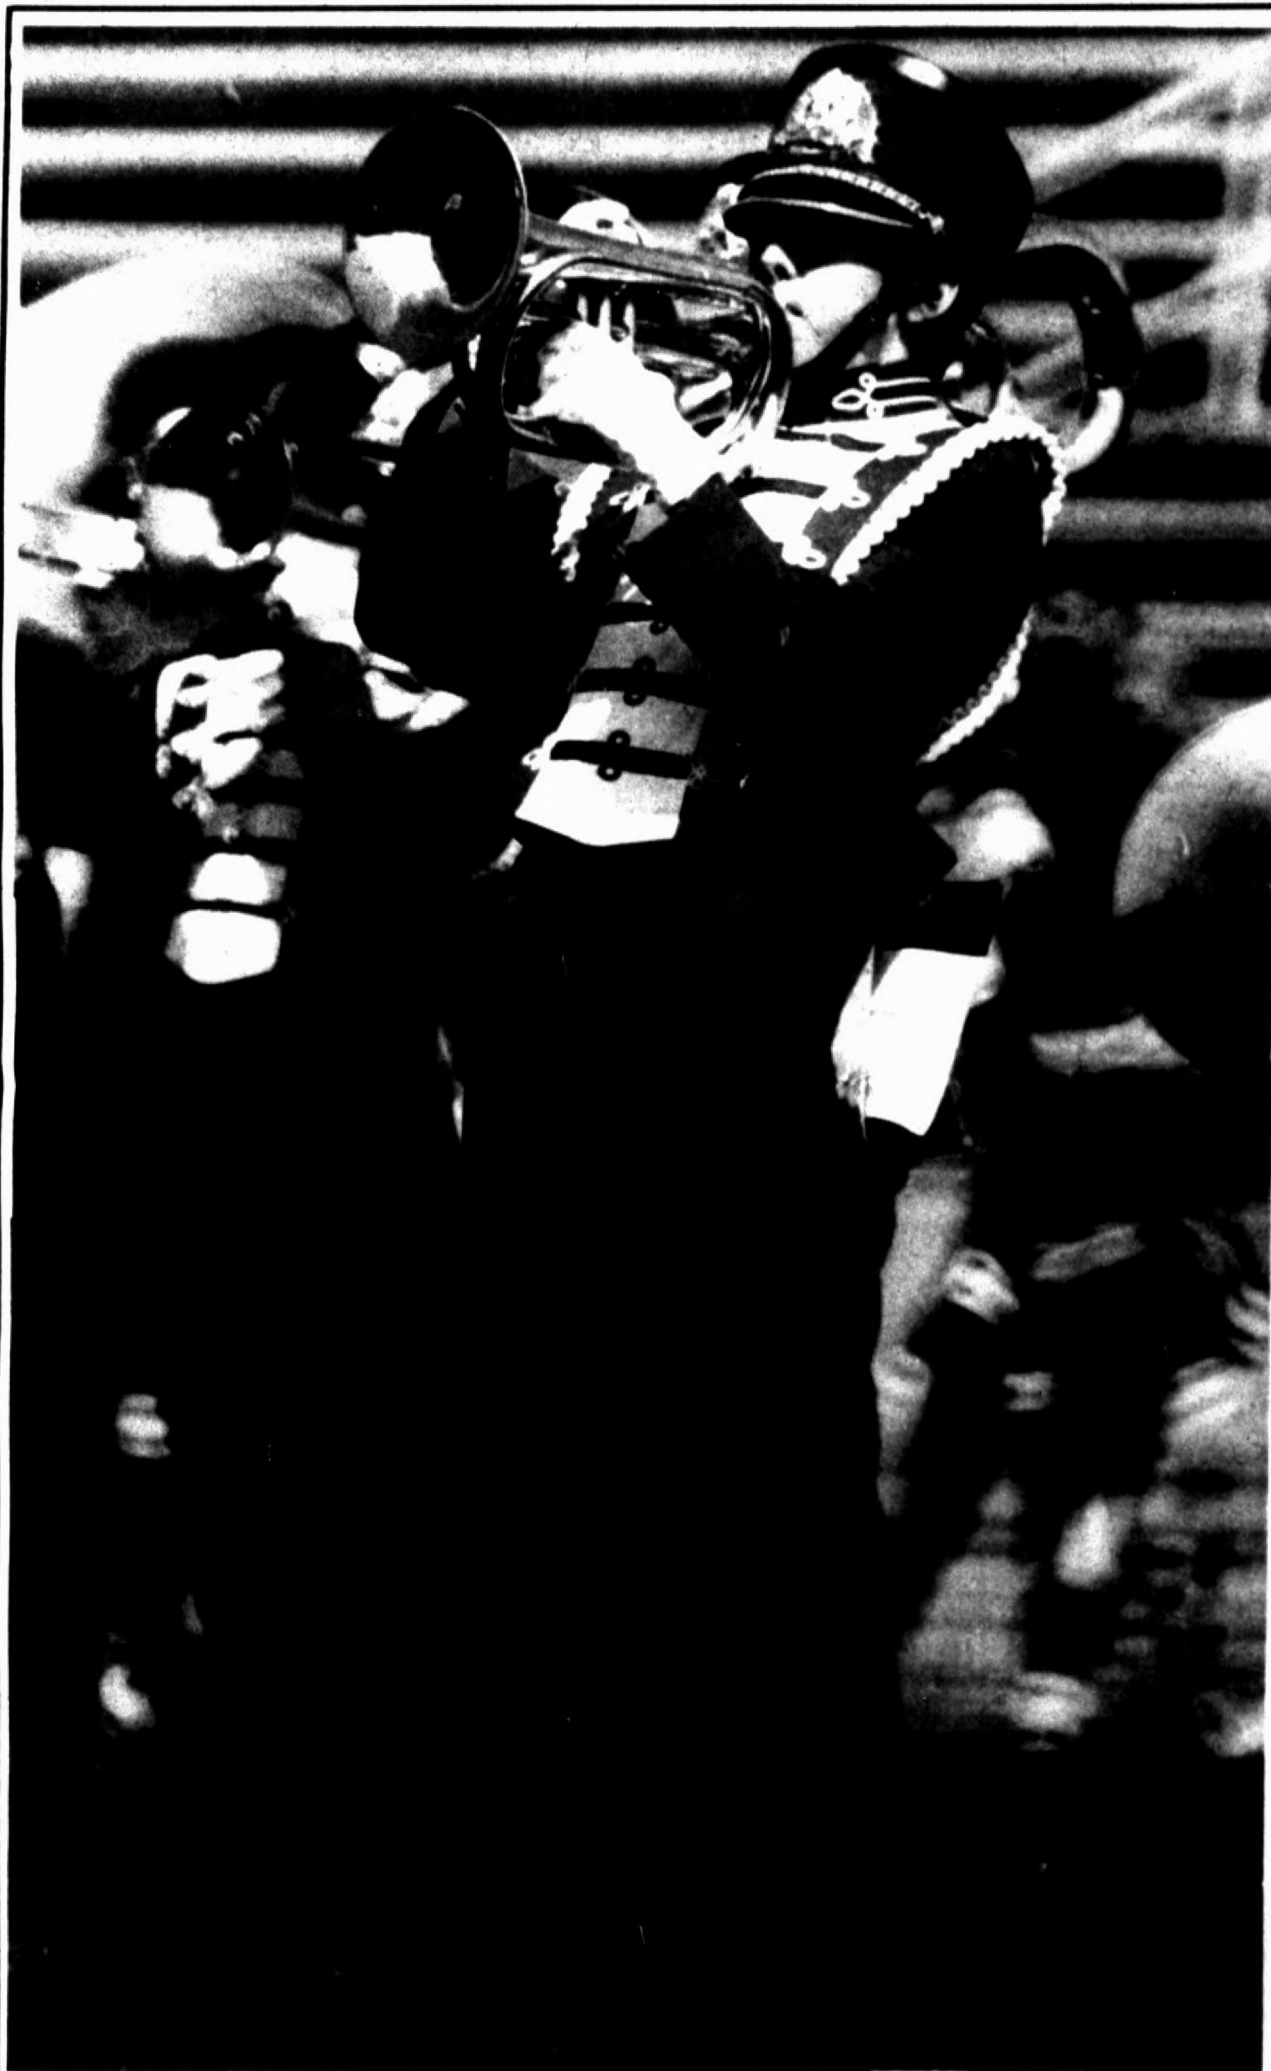

Toms said although Bakker expected to have the $3 million backing, he planned to ask Benton to accept $1 million in cash and a $500,000 letter of credit.

Bakker hopes to sign a contract within the next two days and take over the ministry and be back on the air within a week.

Bakker said a Midwest bank has agreed to handle the funds from unidentified Greek investors who are backing his offer to buy PTL, and he has several other banks that are willing.

He declined to identify the banks. "We're almost there," Bakker said, characterizing the past few days as "quite a weekend of emotion."

"The banks will be handling the major loan, this $3 million is more like a performance bond to guarantee the trustee we will pay the lease," he said.

US schools lacking computers

WASHINGTON (AP) — American schools have only one computer for every 30 students and even those pupils with access to computers get to use them an average of just one hour a week, a report to Congress said today.

The report by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment said "today's classrooms typically resemble their ancestors of 50 years ago more closely than operating rooms or business offices resemble their 1938 versions."

The agency estimated that schools have spent $2 billion on computer hardware over the past decade. There are now 1.2 million to 1.7 million computers in public schools, and fewer than 5 percent have no computers.

But the agency said it would cost $4 billion to buy enough equipment to reduce the student-computer ratio from 30-1 to 3-1.

The 246-page report, based on two years' research, said that between 1981 and 1987 the percentage of schools equipped with computers for instructional use grew from 18 percent to 95 percent.

But "the vast majority of schools still do not have enough of them to make the computer a central element of instruction," it said.

Computers are not the only new machines in American classrooms.

"The 1980s witnessed a tremendous expansion in school use of advanced technology of all types," the report said.

"In 1980 very few schools had videocassette recorders. Today roughly 90 percent do," it said, adding that the availability of cable and satellite transmission has made the television a more potent teaching tool — especially for schools in remote areas.

"In practice there is wide disparity — one computer in a classroom, clusters of computers in the library or classrooms, full computer laboratories and classrooms with no computers," it said. "Not all students use computers and ... those who do spend on average a little more than one hour per week on the computer."

The report said that "although new interactive technologies cannot alone solve the problems of American education, they have already contributed to important improvements in learning. These tools can plan an even greater role ... both by helping children acquire basic skills and by endowing them with more sophisticated skills so they can acquire and apply knowledge over their lifetimes."

To tap the potential of technology, the report said, "a greater investment will be necessary," including a more active federal role in spurring research and helping spread the new teaching tools.

The report warned that "the vast majority of those now teaching or planning to teach have had little or no computer education or training."

Create taste-winning kabobs

Buld a better kabob and hungry barbecue fans will beat a path to your backyard. Here are some guidelines to make your kabob champ of the neighborhood.

-Allow 4 servings per pound of boneless meat or fish; 3 servings per pound of shrimp with shell or chicken with the bone. Plan on 1 cup of fruit or vegetables per person.

-Cut meat for kabobs in even-sized pieces. Our test kitchen found that 1-inch cubes are the best; meat and vegetables get done at the same time.

-Kabobs cook more evenly if there's breathing space between pieces.

-Short of time? Look in the fresh meat case of your supermarket for ready-to-cook kabobs.

-Add flavor with a marinade: Place the meat or seafood cubes in a plastic bag in a shallow dish. Add your favorite marinade and close the bag. Chill 2 to 4 hours for fish, seafood or chicken; 6 hours or overnight for beef, pork or lamb. Reserve the marinade to brush over the kabobs as they cook.

-There's no need to precook these fruits and vegetables: apple wedges, 1-inch papaya pieces, orange slices, 1-inch fresh pineapple pieces, 1-inch green or red pepper pieces, pea pods, frozen artichoke hearts and 1-inch jicama pieces

-Precook for 1 to 2 minutes: 1/2-inch slices of summer squash, broccoli or cauliflower flowerets, and baby scallopini squash; 4 to 5 minutes; baby carrots, 1-inch pieces of green onion or leek; 6 to 8 minutes; 1-inch pieces of fresh corn on the cob; 12 to 15 minutes: halved tiny new potatoes.

-Cherry tomatoes cook fast. Put them on the shewer for the last 2 minutes of cooking.

-Grill kabobs on an uncovered grill over hot coals for 8 to 12 minutes. Turn often.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why are young men and women who go into the military considered second-rate? Our son had no clear idea of what he wanted to do with his life when he graduated from high school and decided to join the Marines. He felt it would be a real challenge and we did not discourage him.

It seems, however, that every time we mention the fact that our son is in the service my wife and I are put on the defensive by family and friends. Here are some of the replies:

1. None of our children would be allowed to be in the military. We want them to associate with top-notch people and the military attracts the dregs. (My boss said this.)

2. What's the matter? Weren't his grades good enough to get him into a decent college?

3. Did he have trouble with the police?

4. What a shame. The military will make a killer out of him.

Will you please inform your readers that most young men and women enter the military after considering all their options? College is fine if you want to go. I have a B.S. degree, but there is nothing magical about it.

I hope you will print my letter. I have never seen this topic discussed in your column.—V.L.S. in Swedesboro, N.J.

DEAR V.L.S.: Your relatives, friends and that boss of yours sound like idiots, as they are needle artists, to boot.

The military offers some splendid advantages, not the least of which is discipline, something a great many young people need today. I salute your son's decision to sign up. He sounds like a lad you can be proud of.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Just a few comments on your recent letter concerning the woman and her difficulty with her son about attending a funeral.

The scene is 1942. Jersey City, N.J. A hot Sunday afternoon. I am 4 years old. My brother is 2. My father's doctor had died. It was an open coffin.

I will spare you the details of what I think about that ignorant S.O.B. who just happened to be my father, but the fear that he instilled in me has persisted to this day. My dad picked me up and pretended to put me in the coffin. I was terrified, thinking that I was going to be buried alive with the dead person. I became hysterical and was taken out to an overheated 1934 Ford, where attempts were made to calm me down by offering me dimes.

I realize that to attend or not attend a funeral should be a personal decision, but I come down on the side of not forcing anyone, especially young children.—F.J., Mount Holly, N.J.

DEAR F.J. in N.J.: I agree with your assessment, but there's another issue at hand. Your father sounds like a sick man. I'm sure you were traumatized by being lowered into that casket, but to call him "an ignorant S.O.B." 46 years later after an incident that occurred when you were 4 suggests that there is still a lot of anger boiling under the surface. Counseling might help. I recommend it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How odd that men marry women hoping they won't change and women marry men with the idea that they can change them. Why is this?—Dayton

DEAR DAYTON: Beats me, but they both are almost always disappointed.

OH, SAY CAN YOU SEE

NEW YORK (AP) — People who wear glasses often may think wistfully of those lucky ones who have 20-20 vision and can see perfectly.

But, if you have 20-20 vision do you see perfectly? Not necessarily, says Health magazine.

According to behavioral optometrists associated with vision therapy, 20-20 vision is just one of many criteria that determine how well you see. Others include concentration, hand-eye coordination, depth perception, visual memory and eye movement control.

Woman's Health

HAVING A CHILD AFTER 35

Many women who are working full-time and have their own careers make the decision to postpone having children. But many of these women ask how long can a woman safely wait to have children.

Biologically a woman is in her peak reproductive years in her mid-twenties. After 30 her fertility decreases; by age 40 she has about half the chance of conceiving as a woman of 35. Past age 50 conception is possible for some women but no likely.

An important consideration in deciding to have a child later in life is the health of the woman during her late child-bearing years. If she feels healthy, and her physical examination does not show any potential problems, she can make her decision with a free mind. High blood pressure, for example, is one condition that can develop after young adulthood that could pose problems in pregnancy.

Although years ago, it was more dangerous for a woman to give birth after the age of 35, the advances in obstetrics such as fetal monitoring and early prenatal care help reduce potential problems.

Today, the main hazard to a late pregnancy is the risk of genetic disorders in the child. Down syndrome occurs once among 2,500 births for a mother under 20. Between ages 30 and 34, the rate is one in 850. For women aged 35 to 39 the rate is one in 280.

Down syndrome can be detected in the fetus through a test known as amniocentesis, performed on women over 35 at the 16th week of pregnancy.

A newer test called chorionic villus sampling performed earlier in pregnancy can also detect this condition. Even though the risk of Down syndrome is higher in the older mother, genetic tests show a normal fetus developing in the vast majority of instances.

If the tests do show any abnormality, the parents can decide if they want to continue the pregnancy. If they do, counseling and support may be started early to avoid undue stress on the family.

Early and good medical care, important in all pregnancies, is even more important with the prospective mother over the age of 35.

Remember, self-assurance and good physical health can be the first benefits of maturity that an older mother brings to her new child.

Herd hangs on to down Tascosa, 12-7

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

By the time the first quarter of the Hereford-Tascosa game was over Saturday, the south end of Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo was plumb tuckered out.

With a 40-mph north wind hitting the Whitefaces in their faces and blowing at the backs of the Rebels, the ball never went outside the 50.

Hereford coach Don Cumpton paid the wind little attention. He went into the game intending to establish the throwing game, and it paid later dividends as split end Pat Mercer caught a second quarter touchdown pass from quarterback Jason Scott, and wingback Clint Cotton caught the winning touchdown pass in the fourth quarter as Hereford defeated Tascosa 12-7.

"The wind changed the type of passes we were going to throw, the kind of routes we were going to run," Cumpton said. Hereford came out throwing short routes "because we wanted to try to loosen up their defense a little. They were so big we had to do something."

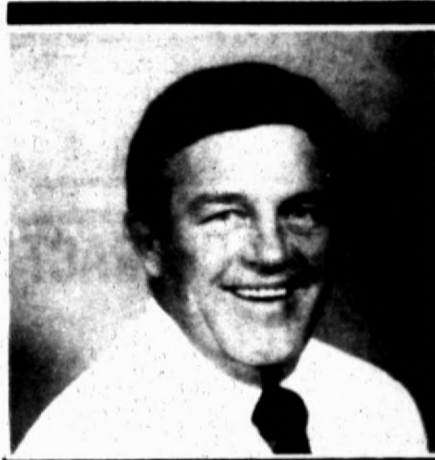

The short routes paid deeper, and bigger, dividends later in the game, but weren't successful early as Hereford could muster just one first down in the first quarter.

The Herd's defense was just as stiff. It had to be stiff: Tascosa started at midfield and at Hereford's 38 and 36, but Tascosa also had only one first-quarter first down, and just seven more the rest of the game.

"The defenses of both teams were the stars today," Cumpton said. "Both played exceptionally well. We did a great job: We only broke down on one play all afternoon.

"It was very important that we got out of the first quarter without giving up any points. I'm proud of our defense for not giving up any points in the first quarter than anything else we did."

Tascosa, on its last play of the first quarter, broke a fourth-and-one play at Hereford's 27 to the 17. On the next play, cornerback Clint Cotton intercepted a Tim Johnson pass in the end zone to give Hereford the ball at the 20.

Hereford moved to the 38 before bogging down and punter Brian Fowler, the wind at his back for the first time, kicked a 62-yarder into the end zone.

"That punt was long, but Brian did a great job kicking into the wind," Cumpton said. "I was real proud of him."

Two plays later, defensive tackle Billy Burnam recovered a Tascosa fumble at the Rebel 20 with 6:05 to go in the first half to set up Hereford's first score.

On the next play, Mercer out-leaped Tascosa's Keith Tippett for a

"I was open over the middle, but Jason was looking into the flat," Mercer said. "Coach Cumpton said to always come back to the ball, so I did. Jason did a good job of getting it there, looking to find someone else. He did his job. I just caught it."

Hereford had two more chances to score before halftime, but squandered both. Tascosa punter Oscar Shorten's on Tascosa's next possession was knocked down by the wind five yards upfield at the Rebel 31. On the next play, Scott was intercepted by Tim Johnson at the Rebel three. Johnson returned the ball to the 23.

Two plays later, defensive end Brad Smith and linebacker Darren Nikkel forced a fumble that was recovered by defensive end McCracken. Two sacks of Scott moved Hereford out of range despite a 16 yard pass from Scott to Mercer. The Herd gave the ball up on downs with 36 seconds left at the Rebel 21.

"They were huge," Scott said. "One of the fun things was watching Roger (235 pounds) going up against their big guy (Cory Mooneyham, 255 pounds) all day. They were cracking heads, going head-to-head all day both ways."

"Every down they were doing some kind of stunt on defense. Their linebackers were moving, the noseguard was x-ing with someone. They wanted to mix up our line, but our line did a good job. Tascosa just kept mixing it up."

Then Tascosa finally sprung quarterback Johnson loose. Cumpton had warned his players of Johnson's danger if the Hereford defense lost containment, and the warning became reality as Johnson kept the ball on the option down the left side of the line, turned upfield and outraced everyone to the end zone for a 50-yard touchdown run. Shorten's Medrano (56) and Darren Nikkel (53), and waiting to help out are Pat Mercer (8) Kirby Kaul (57) and Roger McCracken (99). Hereford won the game, 12-7.

PAT kick gave Tascosa a 7-6 lead with 6:42 left in the third quarter.

Tascosa threatened again later in the quarter before linebacker Moses Casas came up with the first of two big plays.

The Rebels started at the Hereford 36 with 5:06 left in the third quarter, the last 5:06 of the game the Rebels would have the convenience of the wind at their backs.

Johnson hit tight end Shorten over the middle with a 19-yard pass to the Hereford 16, then moved the ball to the seven. On fourth-and-one, Casas dashed into the Rebel backfield and dropped fullback Patrick Bailey at the Hereford 12.

Hereford didn't score on the next drive, but the field position the Herd gained set up the winning score.

Tailback Glenn Parker scooted for eight yards to give the Whitefaces some room. Then, on third-and-7 after a delay-of-game call, Mercer broke behind the Tascosa secondary and caught an into-the-wind wobbler from Scott for a 27-yard reception at the Hereford 42 at the end of the third quarter.

"If it hadn't been for the wind it would have gone all the way," Mercer said. "As hard as the wind was blowing, Jason did a great job just getting the ball there."

Hereford's drive stalled three plays later, and Fowler nailed a punt at the Hereford 7. Tascosa gained just three yards, and Shorten's 12-yard punt gave the Herd the ball at the Tascosa 22 with nine minutes to play.

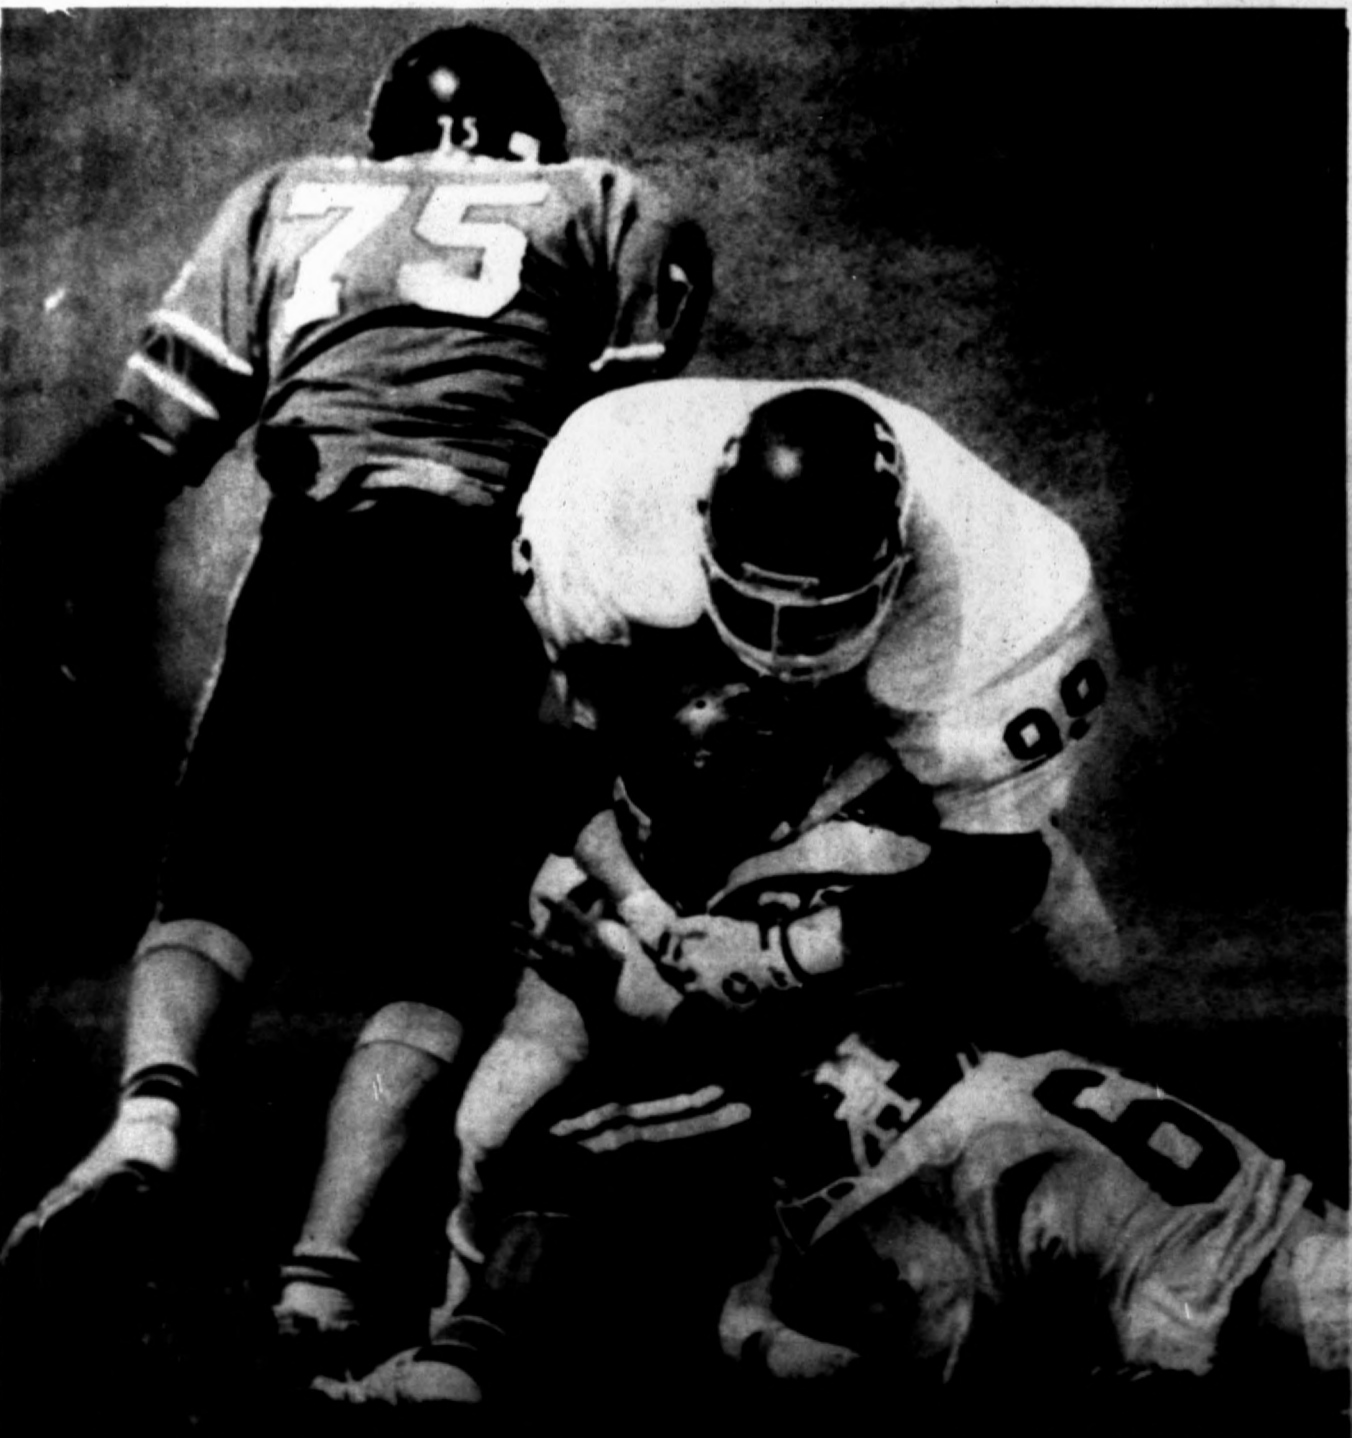

On the next play, Scott hit a wide-open Cotton in the flat. Cotton, behind two blocks, ran into the end zone untouched for the go-ahead touchdown.

"I had burned that guy (Tascosa's defender) once before, so we knew it would be there," Cotton said. "they were in a man-to-man, and I know there was no way he could cover that pattern unless he stayed with me. Pat ran an 'in' pattern, and I just knew I would be open. I didn't have to dodge too many people to score."

A two-point conversion run failed. Cornerback Keith Brown led Hereford's defense on the next two series, coming up to stop Bailey for no gain on a third-and-one play, then recovering a Rebel fumble with 2:48 left at the Tascosa 48.

Tascosa's last possession began with 1:43 to play at the Rebel 20. Johnson led Tascosa down the field with a four-yard run and passes to Bailey and end Mark Logsdon to move the Rebels to the Herd 39 with

Weishaar-Metchley win third Member-Guest

Ron Weishaar and his guest, Ken Metchley of Topeka, Kan., captured the championship of the 11th annual Hereford Country Club Member-Guest Tournament here Monday, closing with a 64 scramble and winning by three strokes.

EARL STAGNER ...hits an ace

It was the third title for the pair who also won in 1985-86. The runner-up team was Ken Hagar and Tom Simons, while third place went to Lewis McDaniel and Bobby McGill of Quitman. Weishaar-Metchley shot a 67 low ball on Saturday, then closed with scramble scores of 65 and 64 for a 19 6 total.

The annual tourney drew 30 teams with guests coming from five other states, including Hawaii. A highlight of the tourney Monday came when Earl Stagner scored a hole-in-one on No. 3 at Pitman Municipal Golf Course. Stagner hit a 7-iron for the third ace of his career.

Another highlight of the tourney saw Marvin Coffey and Bobby McGill team up to win the "Freeze-Out Derby" on Sunday afternoon. This annual event pairs the top 10 players on opening day scores with the bottom 10 players. The 10 teams start on No. 1 and players hit alternate shots, and teams are eliminated on each hole until the winning team is determined. Coffey and McGill won on hole No. 7. Steve Nieman and Scott Downing were runner-ups, and Jim Lyles and Max Moss finished third.

The tourney had four flights, with Rick Rhoden and Jon Mack Rhoden of Friona capturing the first flight. Shorty Roark and David Waller of Shawnee, Ok., took the second flight, and Marvin and Lonnie Coffey won the third flight. Jerry Richburg and Tom Hurley of Lubbock tied in the last flight but finished second on a playoff.

Players also competed for a number of prizes each day for events such as closest to the pin, longest drive, longest putt and shortest drive. Earl Stagner won a watch from Cowan Jewelers with his hole-in-one. Local merchants and institutions contributed various prizes for the events. Several social events were held at Hereford Country Club.

57 seconds left. After Tascosa used its last time out, Casas floated over from his linebacker post to intercept Johnson's pass in the flat with 48 seconds left. "I didn't see the back come out, so I knew it had to be something short," Casas said. "They hadn't thrown to the curl all day, so I figured they must be trying that. I got over there and just caught the ball." Hereford was able to twice fall on the ball to ice the win. "This was a great win for us," Cumpton said. "They're picked second in this district, and I know they're going to be a great team. This was a big morale booster for us. "We had so many people that I'm really proud of. Pat had a great game. Jason had a great game. Jason was under a lot of pressure: They had a lot of stunts we hadn't seen before and a lot of other stuff that always happens in the first game of the year. "The whole team did great. We had 50 boys over here, and it was the first varsity competition for 36 of them. We played with a lot of poise and never panicked. "Even the ones that didn't play contributed. They were active over on the sidelines, helping out, encouraging everybody."

Miami ranked No. 1

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

The Miami Hurricanes aren't nearly as excited about being No. 1 in this week's Associated Press college football poll as they were when they won the 1987 national championship. "We set our goals toward team success and working at getting better each week," quarterback Steve Walsh said Monday after the Hurricanes leaped from sixth place to the top of the poll following Saturday night's 31-0 pasting of Florida State, which had been No. 1. "We got off to a good start, but we didn't play anywhere near as good as we can offensively (Florida State "held" Miami to 450 yards). We want to continue to improve each week and get better," Walsh said. "If that happens, then all the rankings and all that other recognition will take care of itself." Nebraska remained No. 2 while Florida State skidded to 10th and Texas A&M and Tennessee dropped out of the Top Twenty.

Miami received 38 of 60 first-place votes and 1,149 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Nebraska, No. 2 in each of this season's three polls, received 14 first-place votes and 1,113 points following a 63-13 rout of Utah State. Miami's players apparently have taken their low-key cue from coach Jimmy Johnson. "It's really too early in the season for a coach to be concerned about the rankings," Johnson said. "I wouldn't even address it one way or another. "We have a very young team and a lot of difficult games to play. Our only concern right now is going up and playing Michigan (on Sept. 17) in a place that's very difficult to play in. All we've done is win one game." Defensive end Bill Hawkins said the Hurricanes "really don't get all that excited about the polls that take place during the season. The only poll that counts is the one on January 2nd and that's a long way off. We're 1-0 and we have a tough road ahead."

Names In The News

NEW YORK (AP) — Mamas, don't let your babies grow up to be restless, says Willie Nelson, who blames his wanderlust nature for ruining three marriages.

The country music singer says in his autobiography, "Willie," due out next month from Simon and Schuster, that he prefers the road to matrimony.

Nelson met his third wife, Connie, in 1969. They married, had two children and lived in Westlake Hills on the shores of Lake Austin, Texas. But they spent much of their time arguing.

"For me the choice came down to staying ... with Connie all the time when I came off the road — which meant giving up all my pals who I hung around with on the golf course or in my recording studio — or never going back to the ... house again," Nelson said in his book.

He chose to leave and the couple divorced.

"It's not easy to be married to somebody like me and be a wife and stay home and take care of the family when I'm out here acting like a big star," Nelson said. "I mean, it rubs."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pop balladeer Barry Manilow says he doesn't hunger for applause like many of his fellow entertainers.

"But don't get me wrong. This is a great job that I've got. I enjoy it and I know there's a part of me that needs that love-me-love-me-love-me stuff," he said in a recent interview.

Manilow concedes that his own time in the spotlight has been sporadic, by choice.

"I've done it this way throughout my career," the Tony, Emmy and Grammy winner said.

Manilow, known for the hits "Mandy" and "I Made It Through the Rain," is getting favorable reviews with the "Big Fun" tour, a lavishly produced stage show playing around the world until New Year's Eve 1990.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time has run out on a congressional bid to grant tennis star Ivan Lendl immediate citizenship so he could play on the U.S. Olympic team, lawmakers said.

Lendl has lived in Greenwich, Conn., since 1981 and wanted to represent his adopted homeland in Seoul this month.

Enlisting the help of Connecticut lawmakers, Lendl won House Judiciary Committee approval in April of a special immigration bill.

Rep. F. James Sensenbrenner Jr., R-Wis., blocked the measure on the House floor, saying he would drop his opposition only if the Czech government provided a waiver for Lendl to be a member of the U.S. team.

Olympic rules required a waiver because Lendl had represented Czechoslovakia in international competition at the Davis Cup.

The Czechoslovak Association of Physical Culture rejected the waiver.

"We pressed the issue," Rep. Bruce A. Morrison, D-Conn., said last week. "Maybe we could have (succeeded) with more time, but ... time has basically run out."

Lendl, 28, received his permanent residence status last year.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Phantom of the Opera" star Michael Crawford is giving up the ghost, and the lead role in the hit Broadway show will be taken over next month by opera singer Timothy Nolen.

Crawford, who hangs up his mask and cape Oct. 8, won the Tony Award for his portrayal of the deformed composer in Andrew Lloyd Webber's lavish musical.

He played the Phantom in London and New York, and may star in the Los Angeles production opening next spring.

Nolen, who becomes the Phantom on Oct. 10, played the title role in the Houston Grand Opera's premiere of "Willie Stark," later televised on PBS. He starred in "Sweeney Todd" for the Houston company as well as for the New York City Opera.

Nolen appeared on Broadway in 1985 in "Grind," a short-lived musical set in a Chicago burlesque house.

Church to host meeting

First United Methodist Church of Hereford will host a sub-district meeting of leaders from 10 churches in the Anarillo District beginning today at 7 p.m. in Ward Parlor of the church.

Dr. Clifford Trotter, district superintendent, is expected to participate.

In addition to pastors and other staff members, several officials from each church are to meet for reports and discussions. Local participants will include Charlie Bell, administrative board chairman; Zula Arney, chairman of the Council on Ministries; Jean and Labry Ballard, lay members of the Annual Conference; Johnny Trotter, finance chairman and Shirley Garrison, chairman of the Pastor-Staff Relations committee, as well as Rev. Steve McElroy, pastor.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Talk show host Regis Philbin took seven years to make a coast-to-coast round trip from here to New York and back to introduce a new, nationally syndicated show.

Philbin left Los Angeles and his KABC-TV "A.M. Los Angeles" mor-

ARE YOU PUTTING ME ON?

A MESSAGE FROM THIS NEWSPAPER AND THE DPS TROOPERS

ASK DR. LAMB

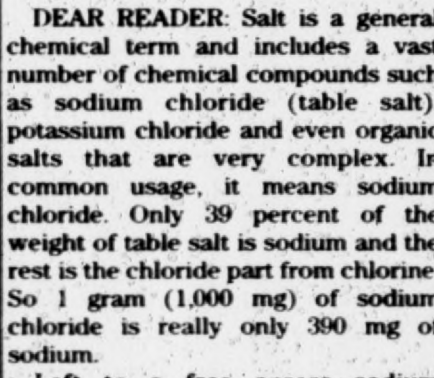

How Much Salt Do We Need? BY LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am very concerned about salt in my diet. Labels on cans and jars list the sodium and salt content. Can you tell me the difference between the sodium content and the salt content? How much salt should one use a day?

DEAR DR. LAMB: The news about the dangers of cigarette smoking seems to be about lung cancer. My husband smokes, and strokes run in his family. I would like for you to answer in your column whether smoking increases his risk of having a stroke or not. I have told him it will, but he doesn't believe me.

DEAR READER: It will. A good study of the Framingham, Mass., population reported in the February 19, 1988, issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association that the risk of a stroke increased the more a person smoked. Those who smoked over 40 cigarettes a day were twice as likely to have a stroke as those who smoked 10 or less. Another study of women reported in the New England Journal of Medicine, April 14, 1988, found that women who smoked one to 24 cigarettes a day were twice as likely to have a stroke as women who did not smoke and women who smoked more than 25 cigarettes a day were 3.7 times as likely to have a stroke.

The good news for your husband is that the risk decreases as soon as you quit, and by five years after quitting smoking, the risk is no greater than if a person had never smoked at all.

On a free choice diet, adult Americans consume 1.5 to 6.5 teaspoons of salt a day in - and added to - their food.

© 1988 North America Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR READER: Salt is a general chemical term and includes a vast number of chemical compounds such as sodium chloride (table salt), potassium chloride and even organic salts that are very complex. In common usage, it means sodium chloride. Only 39 percent of the weight of table salt is sodium and the rest is the chloride part from chlorine. So 1 gram (1,000 mg) of sodium chloride is really only 390 mg of sodium.

Left to a free access sodium chloride intake, the adult American uses between 2,300 and 6,900 mg of sodium a day. That is equivalent to 5.9 to 17.7 grams of sodium chloride or between 1.5 and 6.5 teaspoons of salt daily. That is much more than you need. One reader wrote some time ago and was quite indignant about such ridiculous figures. Ridiculous or not, these are the facts based on solid studies and included in the National Academy of Sciences reports on nutrition. Some of the confusion comes from not realizing that sodium chloride is abundant in the foods we consume, for example, cheese, milk, fish, poultry and eggs. Then sodium is often added in commercial preparation of foods, such as frozen foods and canned foods. So these figures do not mean just what you add from the saltshaker, but also include what is already in your food.

I have discussed how food processing adds sodium and eliminates potassium in my new Special Report 82, About Your Sodium and Potassium Balance, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/82, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Most adults need less than 60 mg of sodium a day or about 150 mg of sodium chloride. Loss of sodium from sweating will increase the requirements. Most healthy

DEAR READER: I have a beautiful vase that had a slow leak and I wasn't able to use it for flowers. I couldn't find where it was cracked so I held it upside down over a light. The light shined through the crack and made it easy to locate. I patched it by dripping epoxy glue on it and letting it harden. It worked because the crack was small. For a larger crack just put a plastic bag in as a liner and fill it with water. The contents will keep the bag in place. — Mary Garcia, Portland, Ore.

OIL-FREE HAIR
Dear Heloise: My sister gave me the greatest recipe for a homemade hair rinse. It will make your hair bouncy and oil-free. Put a handful of water-cress in the blender with a cup of water. Remove and put in a pot and boil for 10 minutes. Strain out the water and let it cool. After you wash your hair, apply this mixture for 20 minutes, then rinse out. — Joyce Saunders, Biloxi, Miss.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, Texas 78279. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Capitalize on ample harvest of late summer

Just before the breezes of autumn turn chill, the harvest is at its most abundant.

The fruits of summer - tomatoes by the bushel, foot-long zucchini, glossy purple eggplant, and peppers in a rainbow of hues - tantalize with their flavor and fragrance, brightening both garden and table in a final burst of color before the leaves turn and fall off the trees, and the first hint of snow nips the air.

This is the time to take advantage of summer's last generous bounty, to prepare an array of dishes which capture the season's fruitfulness as winter's barrenness stares us in the face.

It's also a perfect opportunity to make use of the barbecue before it's put away for the winter, the savory, charred flavor of the food leaving a lingering taste of summer in the mouth.

Many of the summertime vegetables are Mediterranean in origin; these, at their sweetest and most colorful as the season draws near its end, harmonize with each other in a myriad of dishes, as well as standing favorably on their own, or enhanced by such herb as basil and rosemary, sage and thyme.

Eggplant is a vegetable which, staple to the Mediterranean region, yet has had only limited acceptance in North America. Yet its versatility, no less than its sweet, slightly smoky flavor, makes it a particularly appealing summer vegetable.

And, because it is substantial, in certain recipes it makes a perfectly acceptable alternative to meat.

The recipes below, for Roasted Pepper and Eggplant Dip and Grilled Eggplant with Capers and Anchovy Sauce, demonstrate different aspects of this culinary chameleon. Both are reproduced from The Joy of Grilling (Barron's), by Joe Famularo.

ROASTED PEPPER AND EGGPLANT DIP (Serves 4 to 6 as dip, 1 to 2 as vegetable)

1 large eggplant
1 to 2 garlic cloves, halved lengthwise
2 red or green bell peppers
½ teaspoon coriander seeds
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup extra-virgin olive oil
1 to 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1. Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Make knife slits in the eggplant and tuck in the garlic deeply. Grease a baking sheet and place the eggplant on it. Bake for 20 to 30 minutes until the eggplant is soft.

2. Place the peppers directly on the grill or over a gas flame and turn until skins are blackened all over and the peppers are soft and cooked. Wash the charred skins off under running water. Halve the peppers, removing the seeds and core. While the peppers are cooking, roast the coriander seeds in a heavy dry skillet over medium heat until fragrant, then grind them. Peel the baked eggplant, removing all the skin.

3. Place the prepared eggplant and peppers in a food processor and puree. Add the salt and coriander. With the machine running, trickle in the oil, which will be absorbed as in a mayonnaise. Adjust the seasoning, add lemon juice to taste and turn puree into a bowl. Serve warm or cold.

GRILLED EGGPLANT WITH CAPER AND ANCHOVY SAUCE Serves 6

2 small eggplants (about 12 ounces each)
Salt
½ cup olive oil

Sauce

½ cup olive oil
¼ cup red wine vinegar
1 anchovy
2 garlic cloves, minced
¼ cup chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped shallot
2 tablespoons drained capers
Freshly ground pepper

1. Cut the ends off the eggplants but leave them unpeeled. Stand each on end and cut lengthwise into ¼-inch slices. Salt lightly, lay in colander and allow to drain for about 30 minutes. Dry each slice. Brush oil on both sides and grill slices over a medium-hot fire until tender, turning once; do not char. Remove slices as they are cooked and roll up each one. Set on a platter.

2. For the sauce, combine oil and vinegar, then mash in the anchovy. Add garlic, parsley, shallot, capers and pepper. Pour over eggplant rolls and let marinate at least 30 minutes. Serve at room temperature.

Tomatoes are the quintessential summer vegetable, and one of the best ways to use up quantities of them is in a fresh tomato soup. Fragrant with fresh herbs, the following recipe for Provencal Tomato Soup, is reproduced from Fresh from France: Vegetable Creations (E.P. Dutton), by Faye Levy.

PROVENCAL TOMATO SOUP

Makes 4 servings

2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 large onion, thinly sliced
3 small garlic cloves, minced
4 pounds very ripe soft tomatoes, cored and cut in eighths
Salt
½ to ¾ teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped fresh basil
¾ teaspoon minced fresh thyme, or ¼ teaspoon dried thyme
Freshly ground pepper
1 clove
1 bay leaf

Herb Oil

1 large garlic clove
½ cup loosely packed fresh parsley
½ cup loosely packed fresh basil
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 tablespoon thin strips of fresh basil, or a few small whole basil leaves, for garnish (optional)

In a large heavy saucepan, heat oil over low heat, add onion, and cook, stirring often, about 20 minutes, or until soft and just beginning to brown. Add garlic and cook, stirring, 1 minute.

Add tomatoes, sprinkle them with salt, and stir. Add ½ teaspoon sugar, basil, thyme, and a pinch of pepper. Tie clove and bay leaf in cheesecloth, add to saucepan, and push into tomatoes. Bring to a boil, cover, and simmer over medium heat, stirring often, for 20 minutes, or until very soft. Discard cheesecloth bag.

Puree tomato mixture in a food mill, using fine disk. Push as much as possible through until pulp remaining in food mill is dry. Scrape off any mixture remaining on underside of disk. Rinse saucepan. Return puree to pan and bring to a boil, reduce heat to low, and simmer, uncovered, stirring often, about 15 minutes, or until soup is of desired thickness. (Soup can be kept, covered, 1 day in refrigerator.)

Herb Oil

In a food processor, chop garlic clove, add basil and parsley, and process until finely minced. Add oil and puree until blended. The mixture will not be smooth and emulsified. Transfer to a bowl and stir briefly to blend in oil.

Just before serving, reheat soup if necessary. Remove from heat and stir in herb oil. Taste and adjust seasoning, adding remaining sugar if desired. Serve garnished with basil.

End-of-summer zucchini tend to be large - good for stuffing with a savory meat mixture - but lacking in the flavor that the tender, young zucchini boast.

On the other hand, if you're culling zucchini from your own garden, and you remember to keep picking them, even at summer's end you should have an ample supply of small zucchini, which are perfectly suited to the following recipe, Zucchini Puree and Basil, which also is reproduced from Fresh from France: Vegetable Creations.

ZUCCHINI PUREE WITH BASIL

1½ pounds small zucchini
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
2 medium-size garlic cloves, minced
½ cup fresh basil leaves
Salt and freshly ground pepper
Pinch of cayenne pepper

In a large saucepan of boiling salted water to generously cover, cook whole zucchini about 20 minutes, or until tender enough to be easily pureed. Cut in 1-inch pieces, crush very lightly with spoon, and drain very thoroughly in colander about 15 minutes.

In a medium-size skillet, heat 2 tablespoons olive oil over low heat, add garlic, and saute for 30 seconds. Add zucchini and cook over medium heat, stirring, about 5 minutes.

Puree mixture in food processor together with basil. With motor running, add remaining olive oil (Puree can be kept, covered, 1 day in refrigerator.)

Reheat puree gently in saucepan. If mixture is too thin, cook over medium heat, stirring, until thickened. Add salt, pepper, and cayenne pepper to taste. Serve hot.

A classic zucchini preparation, the tian, hails from Provence. First boiled, then baked in the oven in an earthenware casserole (also called a tian), zucchini prepared this way are tender and tasty. The recipe below for Tian de Courgettes ("courgette" is the French word for zucchini) is extracted from Mediterranean Cookery. (Alfred A. Knopf), by Claudia Roden.

TIAN DE COURGETTES

Baked Courgettes

Serves 8

(3 lb.) courgettes
Salt
8-10 chard leaves or (4 oz.) spinach, shredded
2 large onions, chopped
1 garlic clove, finely chopped
3 tablespoons olive oil
8 oz. short-grain rice
3 eggs
Small bunch of basil, finely chopped
Large bunch of parsley, finely chopped
3 rashers lean bacon, finely chopped
2 oz. grated Parmesan
Pepper

Trim the courgettes but leave them whole and unpeeled. Boil in salted water for about 20 minutes, or steam until tender. Mash with a potato masher in a colander and let the juices drain away. Fry the onions and garlic in 2 tablespoons of the olive oil till golden. Cook the rice in boiling salted water for 10 minutes or until it is still not quite done, then drain.

Pre-heat the oven to 200 degrees (400 degrees F, gas mark 6). Beat the eggs lightly in a bowl. Add the basil and parsley, the bacon, parmesan and pepper, then add the mashed courgettes, the fried onion and garlic and the rice. Mix well and taste before adding any salt because the Parmesan is salty.

Oil a large earthenware dish with the remaining tablespoon of oil and pour the mixture in. Bake for about 40 minutes or until it is firm and browned on top. Serve hot.
