Sheriff J. S. Scarborough, of Kleberg County, brought a warrant here for the arrest of Jose Maria De Leon who recently was indicted by the Kleberg County grand jury as a habitual criminal.

The Coastal Bend Water Activities Association assumes no responsibility for accidents incurred by persons other than registered participants and club members.

Nine Property Owners Asks For Rezoning

Nine property owners have requested rezoning for some of their properties and a tenth asked for a special permit to build a private pier. The rezoning requests ask that changes be made in the new city zoning ordinance, adopted July 11.

These facts were brought out Monday night at a joint public hearing of the City Council and City Planning and Zoning Commission in the district courtroom in the Aransas County Courthouse.

Property owners seeking rezoning with respect to their properties were:

Emory M. Spencer, who asked that nine pieces of property be rezoned from residential to business and a tenth from residential to industrial.

Harold Wise requested that two lots be rezoned from residential to business.

Weldon Cabaniss wants six lots changed from duplex and apartment classification to business.

J. S. Farrow seeks a change from residential to business for four lots and a portion of a fifth.

T. J. Tobin and J. J. McCabe ask that four lots be changed from business to residential.

Justice of the Peace H. W. Hampton this week announced the exact cause of the death of Carleton Harrell, 19, Corpus Christi, who lost his life Sept. 17 in an explosion on an oil header in Copano Bay.

"An autopsy revealed," Judge Hampton said, "that Harrell's death was due to suffocation due to aspiration of gastric contents and drowning." He also had a brain concussion, the judge said.

Invitational Golf Tournament Eyed By Country Club Directors

Live Oak Country Club will inaugurate an annual invitational golf tournament if present plans materialize.

To set the stage for the annual tournament, directors at a recent meeting scheduled a flag tournament which is intended to raise funds to help financ hete event. To boost the proposed invitational tournament, club directors and the golf pro are personally making available prizes for the flag tournament of pro shop merchandise valued at $100.

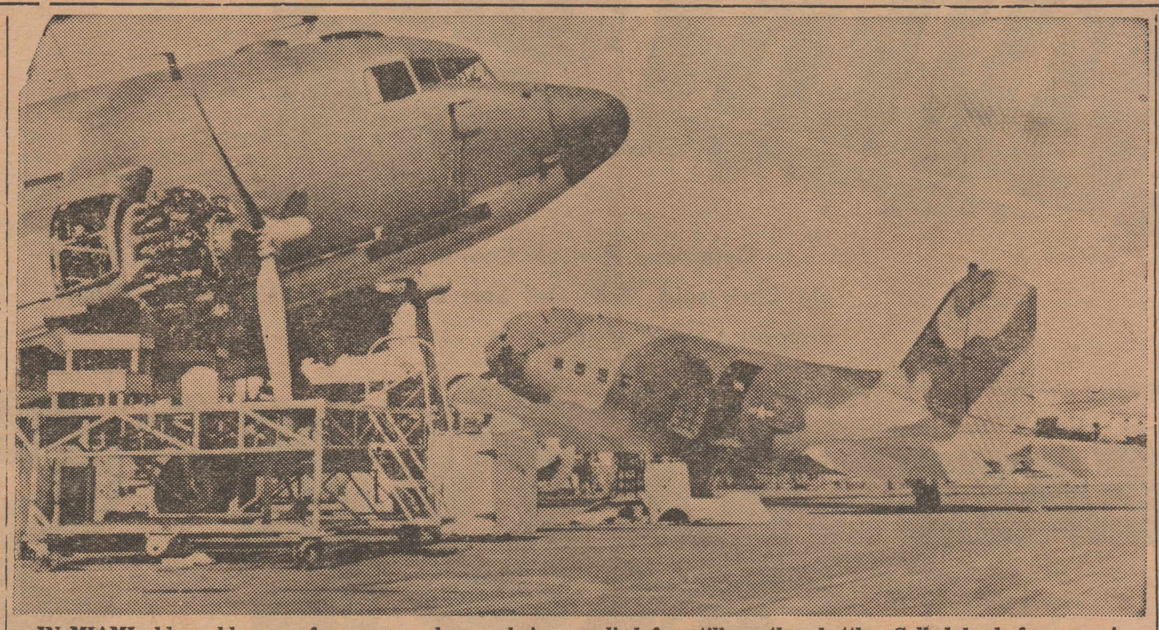

The flag tournament will be a handicap affair open to both women and men. It will be for 18 holes and participants may choose their own foursomes and play either Saturday or Sunday, Oct. 8 or 9. A $5.00 entry fee will be charged.

Players planning to compete in the flag tourney should establish a handicap before Oct. 8. Those who fail to establish a new handicap will use the same handicap used in the Stellman Classic earlier this year.

Live Oak Country Club has never held an invitational tournament, an event that has proved very successful at most area clubs.

"It will take the support of each club member to make this tournament possible," said Live Oak pro Speck Howery. "Now that our course is in such good condition we should have a successful tournament each year," he said.

"An invitational tournament will attract golfers from throughout South Texas and will help both the club and the community financially," he concluded.

IN MIAMI old workhorses of wars gone by are being readied for still another battle. Called back from semi-retirement, these C-47 cargo planes (known commercially as the DC-3) will be outfitted with Gatling guns in Viet Nam and then will be on the prowl for Viet Cong.

Gray commended the six drivers and said, "Our bus drivers have made an outstanding record over the years. Safety of children has always been the prime factor in our transportation program.

"We have never had a serious accident or injury in the tens of thousands of miles of pupil travel."

The awards were signed by Superintendent Gray, S. Ross Carr, president of the Texas Safety Association, and J. O. Musick, general manager.

Sheriff Joe Earl Hunt announced today that the sheriff's department beginning this week has extended its hours and is now open from 8 a.m. to midnight, Monday through Friday, and 8 a.m. Saturday to 1 a.m. Sunday.

"This expansion of service has been made possible," Hunt said, "as the result of additional funds allotted by the Commissioners Court which resulted in the addition to the sheriff's staff of Tommy Smith as jailer-dispatcher."

Smith has had law enforcement experience and more recently has been living in Rockport while serving as the local ambulance driver for Cage-Marshall Funeral Home.

Smith is married and has one son. His wife has been employed as the Aransas County Jail cook.

Despite the high winds and rainy weather, Simmons played fine defensive football. In addition to making several tackles behind the line of scrimmage, Simmons saved a long touchdown run.

This was the first game in which Simmons played tackle on defense. He usually plays safety man on defense.

A junior, Simmons also participates in basketball and baseball. He has received one letter in football and is a member of the Lettermen's Association.

Simmons is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Everlee Simmons of Rockport.

Three Juveniles Confess 4 Burglaries

Three boys, 9, 12 and 13 years old, have confessed three recent burglaries here, Chief of Police Bob Hewes disclosed today.

They admitted breaking into the Church of Christ and stealing extension cords and light bulbs worth $15; burglarizing the Rockport Elementary School and taking supplies and money totaling $40; and breaking into the Mobil Oil warehouse and taking beach balls, and tire tube repair kits valued at $20.

The also admitted the burglary of Mrs. Sam T. Prophet's home where they stole a radio and two butcher knives valued at $50.

Hewes, Patrolman Joe Dominguez, Principal Albert Griffith of Rockport Elementary School and Principal Joe Randow of Aransas County Junior High School worked together to solve the burglaries.

The 13-year-old boy will appear before Judge John D. Wendell in juvenile court later this month; the boy, 12, who was on probation had his probation revoked. A local minister is trying to place the boy in a church-operated school.

The nine-year-old youngster has been released to the custody of his parents.

Chamber of Commerce Moves Huge Crab Sign

The huge crab which for years towered above the now-closed Del Mar Cafe has been moved by the Chamber of Commerce to Navigation Park to be a tourist attraction.

The Chamber purchased the crab sign, which formerly advertised Dorothy's Crab Cakes, for $200. It measures 14 feet in width and will provide a good background for photographs taken by tourists visiting the Rockport area.

The crab, which will be repainted, is now situated on a nine-foot-high platform directly south of the Rockport Lions Club barbecue pit in Navigation Park.

A number of Rockport firms volunteered their services to build the stand, move the crab and place it in its new location. Among them were Caspary & Wendell Work Boats which supplied a 35-ton motor crane with a 65-foot boom to lift the crab into a flatbed truck furnished by Laguna Construction Co.

Picton Lumber Co., Central Power and Light Co., Aransas Natural Gas Co., and First National Bank also supplied either men or equipment required for the job- Chief of Police Bob Hewes directed traffic during the moving.

County, School Dist. Divide Refuge Money

Aransas County has received $17,940.62 for the past fiscal year from Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, according to announcement by County Judge John D. Wendell.

Half the money, or $8,970.31, goes to the Aransas County Independent School District, Judge Wendell said.

The announcement was made at a meeting of Commissioners Court attended by Commissioners W. B. Allen, Albert Wofford and Raymond Owens, County Clerk W. E. Beasley, County Auditor R. D. Mosier, Jr., Sheriff Joe Earl Hunt and the judge.

The commissioners voted to apply the county's $8,970.31 share of the Wildlife Refuge payment on the purchase of a four-wheel drive pneumatic loader for road work.

Announcement of the Wildlife Refuge payment, considerably larger than in past years due to adjusted cost of acquired land, was made in a letter from John C. Gatlin, regional director of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Albuquerque, N.M., addressed to County Treasurer Ettoil Eller.

It stated that beginning with fiscal year 1965 (the period July 1, 1965 to June 30, 1966), distribution of revenue from refuge receipts is to be made to counties under provisions of Public Law 88-523.

"For fiscal year 1966," the letter stated, "your share of this revenue from the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge has been computed as follows:

Acquired acreage, 45,229.7; adjusted cost of acquired land, $2,213,491.25; ¾ of 1% of adjusted cost, $16,601.18; 25% of admission fees, $1,339.44; total payment to Aransas County, $17,940.62.

C of C Endorses School Bond Issue

The Chamber of Commerce has gone on record in favor of passage of the $800,000 school bond election which will be held Oct. 22.

The action was taken Tuesday noon at the monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber in the Key Allegro Islander Club following a talk by School Board member Tom Rogers.

Rogers described the crowded conditions in local schools and explained that successful passage of the bond issue election would enable the school system to provide adequate classroom space and facilities for at least five years.

He said plans call for the expenditure of $370,000 for a new elementary school west of Rockport at Dupnik corner, and $430,000 for additions to Fulton Elementary and the Junior and Senior High Schools.

Assuming that the bond issue passes, Rogers said construction work is expected to get underway by next spring and it is hoped that the new elementary school will be ready for occupancy by fall of 1967.

Community Chorus Practice on Sunday

The first practice of Rockport's Community Chorus for Christmas will be held Sunday, Oct. 9 at 3 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church.

The tour began at Temple on Oct. 1 and will end at Mineral Wells on Oct. 8. They will be flying here from Mercedes where they stayed overnight, and will go from here to Victoria.

Virtually all age ranges are represented in the club, with from 30 to 35 per cent of the members being from other states. The planes range in value up to $40,000.

Although the group will be here only an hour or so, they will be welcomed by a delegation from the Chamber of Commerce, with members furnishing cars to take the guests to the Sandoller Motel Studio Club for a coffee and visit.

Three persons were injured in a car crash on Highway 35, three miles north of here at 1 a.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Grace Smith, 61, of Corpus Christi, suffered several fractured ribs and was taken to Lyman-Roberts Hospital in Aransas Pass.

Also hospitalized with minor injuries were Russell Smith, 12 and Vickie Ann Smith, 8, both of Lafayette, La.

Mrs. Smith's car collided with an auto driven by Charles H. Mills, Jr., of Rockport, who escaped injury.

School District Tax Situation In Good Shape

People living in Aransas County pay only $44 in school taxes on property evaluation of $10,000, far lower than most counties in this area, as shown in the statistics below.

This is one more reason why it it is advisable to vote in favor of the $800,000 school bond election on Oct. 22.

Post Office Offers Zip-a-List Service

Residents in the Rockport area will be offered an opportunity to Zip Code their mailing lists during October, Postmaster Rowan announced today.

Letter carriers will deliver "no postage needed" cards to each of the city's 1300 delivery stops beginning Oct. 10. The cards will have blanks for addresses used most often, but for which individuals do not know the proper zip codes.

The project will be a feature of "Zip Code Week," to be celebrated the week of Oct. 10. Throughout the nation, 95,000,000 of the cards will be delivered.

This is a good time to get the zip codes missing from your lists. This Christmas, zip code will be as important as shopping and mailing early for the efficient and on-time delivery of the record-breaking avalanche of mail expected in the pre-holiday weeks.

After filling in the street number, city and state, the cards are to be mailed back to the postmaster. Post Office personnel will add the proper zip codes and return the cards to the sender.

President Johnson has proclaimed Oct. 10-15 as "Zip Code Week" to promote greater usage of zip code.

WIGS FOR GENTLEMEN

This is something we've got to scratch our heads and thing about. We've got to ponder a report that men are turning to wigs. Yes, that's wigs; not toupees.

The gentlemen, according to one wig maker, are buying them even though they are not bald and have a full head of hear.

Do tell!

Some of the men who are turning gray are buying them in several colors, blonde, dark red, for instance.

Do tell!

Well, it could bring a revival of that old story about the man who was asked who was that lady he was seen with the night before and his reply was that was not lady, that was his wife. The modern version might be to ask a wife who that blonde gentleman was that she was out with last night.

Okeh, you know the reply. That was no gentleman; that was my husband.

Economically, there might be some advantages for a husband to have several different versions of wigs. He could walk down the side of the street where there is a merchant to whom he owes a big bill and not be recognized. Or he might go to a night club and not be recognized. And he could put the wrong information on his driver's license.

With women going in for a variety of false toppers, it's difficult to tell whether the lady one meets on the street is Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Jones. Now it's going to be equally difficult to tell whether the man who looks like Smith is Jones or Hickenlooper.

We'll just have to scratch our hair and think this one out some more before going to see our wig maker.

DESECRATING AMERICAN FLAG MUST CEASE

A bill, making it illegal to desecrate the American flag is apparently bogged down in Congress with no indication it will be put to a vote any time soon.

The bill was introduced after some civil rights workers hauled down a flag at Cordele, Ga., months ago and tearing it asunder. A wave of indignation swept the country and rightfully so. It was an unpatriotic act.

It happened again during the Mississippi march, and even Dr. Martin Luther King criticized the action.

Marchers yelled "these flags don't represent you." And they took the banners and tossed them in the dirt and dust beside the highway. An aide of Dr. King retrieved them.

It was bad enough for the marchers to chant "black power" slogans but showing a lack of respect for the flag was too much. It was a slap of the most disgraceful at the country where even today, with the disadvantages, the negro has advantages he has in not other country in the world.

Dr. King said also there is a decreasing sentiment for civil rights movements. Trampling on the flag is just another reason for this disinterest. The civil rights movement needs a housecleaning to remove some of the radical elements. The sooner it comes the better.

Meanwhile, Congress should see that the bill making it a crime to desecrate the flag is passed. Then these punks who pull down Old Glory disrespectfully can be put where they belong—in a jail cell.

THE HIGH COST OF RED TAPE

The United States' space program is costing billions. And no small item contributing to the total is the cost of red tape. At a meeting in California recently Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Robert H. Charles disclosed that one Air Force request for a proposal from the industry ran to more than 1,500 pages.

Obviously it took a lot of people a long time to compile a 1,500-page request. And it took a lot of people in the five companies to whom the request was addressed to read and digest it. Nor was that the end of it. Having learned exactly what it was that the Air Force wanted, each of the five had to frame a suitable reply. Their answers, says Charles totaled 240,000 pages—all of which, of course, had to be read in the Defense Department.

Actually each company had to submit 30 copies, the total weight of which was 35 tons. It took 400 Air Force people five months to read and evaluate all this stuff—by the end of which time some of it may very well have become obsolete. But that point aside, the amount of time involved was awesome. We figure that of the Air Force people who had to read the answers were paid only $2 an hour the job cost the government around $675,000. And that says nothing about getting out the original request or the time the five companies spent on putting their material together.

If all the information requested were necessary, the expense might be warranted. But Charles, who is in a position to know, hints strongly that not all of it was required, since he had advised Air Force personnel to "ask for and receive only such data as are necessary to make a fair and impartial selection." Adopting that policy easily could slice several million dollars from the space program's budget. — Grand Rapids Press.

NOW A NOISELESS PILE-DRIVER

The British have another first. A new pile-driver is being manufactured that makes less noise than a car engine that is just ticking over. At a distance of 25 yards there is no recordable noise, and the pile-driver has already been tried out in 20 building sites at night without any complaints being received. Marketing agreements for the product have been made in 30 different countires.

In a modern world noise is a major problem. So this invention has particular merit. Where an addition to a hospital has to be made, the noiseless pile-driver will be a Godsend. — Fort Williams (Ont.) Times Journal.

A WAY OUT?

The other day in a New York high school the teacher in charge of a home-room observed a girl standing mute while the class sang "America," long a requirement in that school. The girl explained that she wasn't singing because the fourth stanza of the song actually was a prayer and thus counter to the ruling on prayer.

The stanza reads:

"Our father's God to Thee, author of liberty, to Thee we sing: long may our land be bright with freedom's holy light; protect us by Thy might; great God our king."

The teacher told the girl she would have to participate in the required singing, or, according to school rules, she could no longer attend assemblies and would be barred from graduation ceremonies.

School authorities acted sensibly rather than allow a federal case to grow out of the incident. At the same time they preserved the right of other students to participate in singing "America." They declared that any student who didn't want to sing the song or the fourth stanza could simply keep silent. Thus they prevented one student from denying classmates a privilege.

We hope that this incident means a pattern has been set to get around some tortured legal reasoning. However, we wouldn't bet on it. The courts have shown again and again which side is going to be the winner whenever a dispute developes about a prayer in the school.—Dothan (Ala.) Eagle.

TURN ON LIGHTS

Elderly people complain that restaurants are too dimly lit. Martin Loeb, director of the University of Wisconsin school of social work, told a group of lodging and restaurant executives the other day. This indeed may be the case, but why limit the plaint to the elderly?

Some restaurants, particularly those in which the candlepower falls as the prices rise, are so dim that the diner virtually needs a guide dog to conduct him to his table. Alert young whippersnappers with 20-20 vision and the required intake of carotene for night vision sometimes find themselves groping in the murk, showering pepper on the toast and catsup in the coffee.

Such establishments could equip all customers with miners' headlamps, although this might not charm the lady fresh from an extravagant bout at the hairdresser's. Miniature flashlights could be provided at each place along with the oyster forks. Or somebody could even turn up the lights.—Winnipeg Tribune.

Highway Dept. Installing Red Traffic Buttons

"Red means WRONG" and, if you drive the wrong way on a Texas freeway you will soon see lots of red, thanks to the Texas Highway Department's latest move to prevent accidents caused by wrong-way freeway traffic.

The Department announced today it will begin installing red traffic reflective pavement markers on Interstate and other controlled access highways in Texas.

"The thing for drivers to remember," a Department said, "is that red means WRONG."

"If you see a red arrow pointing at you from the pavement as you start to enter a freeway ramp, you are entering the wrong way," he said.

"If you see a straight, red line pointing against you on the lane lines of a freeway, you are going in the wrong direction. Get off the freeway or get turned around fast."

Installation of the markers is the Highway Department's second major innovation this year to minimize wrong-way movements on freeways.

Earlier the Department began supplementing its "Do Not Enter" signs along freeways with "Do Not Enter Ramp" signs and "One Way" signs in the freeway median.

In an effort to cut wrong-way accidents even more, the Department then begun experimenting with the reflective, red ramp arrows and freeway lane lines.

Both the arrows and the lane lines are made up of plastic markers which are highly reflective. They show white to traffic going the right way and bright red to traffic going the wrong way.

The lane lines in most cases will be limited to metropolitan areas where there is a high volume of traffic. The reflective markers for the lane lines will be placed on 80-foot centers unless the grade is greater than two percent. Then 40-foot spacing may be used.

The arrows will be placed on all exit ramps to two-way frontage roads, on all exit ramps that have had any history of wrong-way entry and on all exit ramps where the design of the connection with the cross street or highway is such that traffic may have an easy access to the exit ramp for wrong-way movement.

"The Texas Highway Department has been concerned for some time with the problem of wrong-way accidents on our freeways," State Highway Engineer D. C. Greer said.

"We hope these new markers will help solve the problem by warning motorists that 'red means WRONG'."

HUNT GUIDE IS READIED FOR TEXANS

Austin. — It's in color but you will be expected to enthusiastically provide your own sound, please.

It's the new annual Texas Parks and Wildlife Department hunting guide. It's the ready-reference combination to the various hunting seasons. Codes and all, this master key unlocks the door to what is expected to be a good all-around fall shoot.

As the well-read sportsmen know the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has provided many different harvest arrangements to facilitate the annual wildlife harvest.

Dates, bag limits, shooting hours and such ala crazy quilt according to location. And they also vary depending on whether the regulations were established by State Law or under regulatory authority given the Commission by the Texas Legislature.

The new guide is folded into a pocket-sized pamphlet for the convenience of the sportsmen afield. Counties are shaded and labeled according to the alphabetical key placed alongside the different species to be harvested.

It is designed as the complete intelligence sheet about when, what, where, and how to shoot wild game. But the sportsmen needing further information is advised to consult the local game warden.

Special supplements on the fall archery season and on the migratory game bird seasons are being readied.

The master guide, covering most harvest phases, is now being prepared for statewide distribution and will be available soon at places handling hunting and fishing licenses and from game wardens and some other Department personnel.

Appetite With Wings

By L. D. Nuckles
Information and Education Officer,
Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept.

Causal observers know him by many names. To some of us he is a sailor. He must be —his rolling walk with a touch of a swagger in it, his blantant voice which defies the wind and surf, and his affinity to all things concerning the ocean brand him an "old salt."

To others, he is poetry in motion. His long graceful wings and circling, drifting flight patterns are a call to far romantic places. "Come," he seems to say, "follow me. There are white beaches under a silvery moon shining through waving palms. There is gentle rain, and booming surf, and ships sailing into setting suns waiting, just waiting for us. Come—follow me."

He is known to us all, and at some time or another most of us have fallen under the spell he weaves. He is the sea gull, the tireless flyer who for thousands of years, has met the homecoming ship with the good news that land is not far away. Actually, he is not altogether what he seems. Even his common name, sea gull, is misleading.

Most gulls are found around salt water, but many inhabit inland lakes and rivers, and they're sometimes found miles from water of any kind. The clasic example of inland gulls is the dramatic visitation in 1848 of thousands of gulls to the wheat fields of the Mormons of Utah.

Without the wheat the new Mormon colony could not survive the coming winter. Just as the grain started to ripen, uncountable hordes of crickets descended on the fields. The farmers fought the crickets with brushy limbs, fire, and even the coats off their backs —but still they came. At last the Mormons asked for Divine help. The help came. Thousands of sea gulls darkened the sky, dropped in the fields, and began to devour the crickets. Where the gulls came from, in this semi-desert country 600 miles from the sea, nobody knows—but the colony was saved. Today, there is a sizable monument to the sea gull on the streets of Salt Lake City to commemorate this event.

Gulls are migratory? Gulls are not migratory? How do you know? If they're migratory, where do they go? They're always here, aren't they? Thus the discussions go when gulls are mentioned. C. C. Ludwig and his sons, of East Lansing, Mich., have found some of the answers. They have banded 40,000 gulls in the past 25 years on island nesting grounds in Lake Erie and Lake Huron. From band recoveries, they found that practically all the adult birds stay within 300 miles of the banding site, as do 60 percent of the banded young.

The other 40 percent of the young birds, however develop a king-sized wanderlust. They fly south, at the end of their first summer, to Texas, Mexico, the West Indies, and Central America. As spring's balmy breezes return, their wanderlust fades and they think of home. They fly along waterways, not necessarily sea coasts, to their Great Lakes home and seem content to remain there. Very few, if any, of them ever return to the tropical wintering grounds. The Ludwigs believe that these young birds on their once-in-a-lifetime trip account for the gulls seen resting on lakes and streams in the interior, many miles from salt water.

Experts who trained many kinds of birds for the Alfred Hitchcock movie, "The Birds," claimed that the gulls were the most uncooperative and the most difficult to train of all the birds. (Crows and ravens, they said were the easiest.) Gulls may be too stupid to make good actors, but they are certainly expert at taking care of themselves. Any fisherman will tell you that within minutes after a school if fish starts feeding on the surface, the gulls are there to pick up the leavings. They'll come screaming and gurgling from the four points of the compass to join the feast.

As for being uncooperative, anyone who tried to assist an injured gull can testify that a pitched battle must be fought before aid can be rendered. My one experience with a gull came when one sailed into a monofilament line being trolled for sailfish. The line formeda half-hitch around one wing, and there was nothing to do except reel him in and untangle him. He came in screaming defiance, with his head drawn back ready to strike. Strike he did, repeatedly, and without the help of my fishing partner I firmly believe I would have been eaten alive.

The digestive system of the gull is a marvelous thing, approached but not equaled by the modern garbage disposal unit. Feed somthing into the garbage disposal which it can't handle and it will stop, hopelessly jammed and needing some external assistance. A gull, on the other hand, will swallow anything it can get down, digest what it can, then throw the rest back in the sea. One gull was seen swallowing a 12-inch bluefish. A short time later, he threw up the neatly cleaned skeleton and flew merrily away looking for more food. As a scavenger who will eat anything left unattended, he does a good job of cleaning up our beaches and inshore waters. Because of this he is completely protected by federal and state laws.

His insatiable desire for food drives the gull to do strange things. He will pick up any hard object of the right size and, soaring high above the ground, drop the rock or crusted piece of metal, expecting it to crack open and furnish him a delicious tidbit as do clams and other shellfish. He can't seem to understand that a rock is solid and will not break, because he will drop one time after time. Each attempt is made from a little higher altitude, and each time the gull will swoop down to claim the meal that he is sure is waiting for him.

Several years ago, the owner of a small factory in England where nuts and bolts were produced decided to install skylights in the factory. His workers were pleased with the more efficient lighting, and things went well until the foreman decided the nearby sanddunes would make an excellent place to dump rejects. Gulls, finding the hard solid objects, picked them up, carried them aloft, and dropped them on the factory below. Amid shattered glass and a rain of rejected nuts and bolts, the employees rushed out and burried the rest of the potential missiles.

The social life of the gull is cut to a rigid pattern. Laws are strict and inflexible. An infraction produces swift and sometimes harsh punishment.

In courtship, the male will stand aloof and dignified while he is is approached by a young female who has been captivated by his masculine beauty. He ignores her completely and gazes out to sea. She will circle around him with outthrust head, murmering a soft love call, "Klioo." This flattery is more than he can stand; so, though he still gazes out to sea, he stands as tall as he can and puffs out his feathers.

She becomes more insistene, and her whispering becomes more plaintive. "Klioo, Klioo," she calls as she finally brushes against him. This drives him into a vertible fit of passion, and he rushes around the gullery challenging everyone in sight. The other gulls seem to consider him harmless and ignore him; so he rushes back to his lady love, and their courtship is consumated. They are now paired for life and immediately start building a nest.

The nest is a sturdy structure of grass, seaweed, sticks, weeds, or even rocks. It is built on the gull "homestead," usually six or seven square feet of land. Here they must live, build their nest, and raise their young. This is their land and they will defend it with their lives against any and all intruders, including man.

There are several islands on the Texas coast where gulls nest in company with terns, reddish egrets, several kinds of shore birds, and other gulls. Many of these islands are leased by the Audubon Society, and trespassing is not allowed. Even if an intruder is not prosecuted by man, he might find the experience a rather unpleasant one. He would need to wear a raincoat and some form of big hat, because the circling, gulls have an unpleasant way of spattering the trespasser with thoroughly objectionable material. This is in addition to the possibility that he might be attacked physically. The public should make every effort to avoid these islands during the nesting season. Many of the birds lay camouflaged eggs, and a nosy person could easily step on them before he saw them.

A small island may be literally alive with nesting gulls, presumably for the protection afforded by numbers. Here, as in any close-knit society, the laws must be enforced. The first of these laws seems to be that any trespasser must fight. Even one webbed foot placed on the land of another is enough to start the full-scale eremony of battle. The ritual comes to an end as suddenly as it starts. Once the trespasser is hit, he steps back on his own land. This indicates that he has lost the fight and that nothing else is to be said about it. The landowner, it seems, is always supposed to win.

The gull fledgling must learn, as a matter of self-preservation, to play in his own back yard. Although his parents will defend him with their lives around his own home, if he wanders onto a neighbor's land, he will be killed on the spot without a word of protest from his family. The trespassing baby usually will be killed by the male, and then presented with somewhat of a florish to the female as food. She accepts with pleasure and gulps down the tempting morsel.

Life of the young gull is not an easy one. He will spend as much as 24 hours squirming and struggling to break free of the egg shell and the membrane that surrounds him. Finally, wet, hungry, and exhausted he crawls under one of his parents to rest and dry off. Then there is the matter of food. If he is to live, he must tap a red spot under the beak of one of his parents. This causes the parent to discorge some of its last meal.

Sight of the chick and the food seem to awaken parental love and stimulate the adult to feed the chick. Failure to peck the red button may result in death by starvation. This seems to work in reverse too. A baby gull, being hand raised, refused all attempts to feed it until the owner placed a small spot of lipstick on her thumb and let the little gull peck it. At once, he opened his mouth and allowed himself to be fed.

Next step in a chick's education is to learn to keep his head down. A raised head and a stretched neck seem to be a status symbol among gulls, and the sight of a presumptious youngster with a raised head infuriates an adult. If a juvenile dares to stretch his neck, he will be knocked spinning by the nearest adult. While he is down, his playmates will start pecking him and will kill him if he doesn't manage to get up and pull some grass with his beak. This illustrates his murderous intentions, and the attackers will flee in panic. Adults have been known to avoid a fight by assuming the crouching posture of a juvenile, with the head pulled in and held low.

Preening his feathers is an important part of the gull's daily routine. This is not an idle pastime, and vanity is not involved. Unpreened wings are imperfect airfoils and cause difficulty in soaring, gliding and even in landing. On the water, his feathers must be carefully preened and dressed or he can't float. His feathers are not oily, and all the little barbs on each filament of the feather must lockinto and trap the air that floats him.

Unfortunately, jet runways sem to make fine resting and preening areas. This presents a dangerous situation to both the gulls and the air-planes recorded the "ha-ha-ha" distress call of the gull and, when a jet was ready to use the runway, beamed the amplified recording out toward the gulls. Hearing the distress call, the gulls flew several miles before they even looked back to see the reason for the warning. Meanwhile, the jet would take off and quiet again would reign over the gulls' favorite spot.

The baby gull who was saved by the spot of lipstick grew up and acquired the name of Sol. All went well until Sol was grown, then he became sickly and would eat very little. He would sit still by the hour, refusing all attemps to help him. The young lady who owned him even drove several miles every day in order to bring him fresh fish from the market, but he just wasn't interested in food. The girl sought help from one of her professors who was a recognized authority on animal behavior.

"Sol is not a sea gull," she was told. "A sea gull lives in a society of other gulls. Your Sol is a specimen and will remain so as long as he lives alone."

The girl had grown very fond of Sol, but decided that he deserved his freedom. She took him to a nearby beach and placed him on the sand where he sat contemplating his feet. The booming New Jersey surf drowned out all other noises for her, but Sol heard something. He cocked his head this way, then that, then in one effortless movement he was airborne. He flew out toward the breakers making little mewing sounds of happiness. The girl ran up the dunes to watch as he circled then settled down among a flock of gulls floating on the water.

The girl returned to the car with tears in her eyes, she thought, "Well—Old Sol is a sea gull, at last."

A Little Voice Goes a Long Way

There was a time, long ago, when it took real lung-power to make yourself heard on the telephone. And you had to listen closely to make out what the other party said. The problem was transmission—getting your voice from here to there. Today, it's easy to hear and be heard. In fact, tots and telephones get along fine, whether it's a Long Distance call from grandmother across the country or just a chat with a youngster down the street. That's because a little voice goes a long way—clearly and distinctly. Continual improvement in the transmission of your voice is one way Southwestern Bell makes your telephone service—already the world's best—even better.

Health Insurance For People Age 65

"Show your card to your doctor." This advice is given by H. M. Cleveland, Corpus Christi district manager of the Social Security Administation to medicare beneficiaries who need medical attention.

He says that almost everyone over age 65 is eligible for the protection of social security health insurance. Insured persons receive an identification card with red, white and blue stripes across the top. The card has the name and claim number, and it shows the date the person to whom it was issued became entitled to hospital or medical insurance or both.

"Doctors have a supply of the forms which are used to claim medicare benefits," Cleveland says. The patient arranges for the payment of the first $50 of doctor bills in a year. The insurance pays 80 per cent of the reasonable charges of the rest of the medical services.

"Payment for the services is handled in either of two ways. The method is determined by agreement between the patient and his physician. Payment may be made either: (1) Direct to the doctor who is willing to claim it; or (2) to the patient who pays the doctor and gets an itemized receipt to claim repayment himself.

"If hospitalization is necessary, the physician arranges for the admission of his patient. The insured accepts responsibility for payment of the remainder of the hospitalization for each spell of illness," according to Cleveland.

He said that people in the health field are rapidly becoming familiar with medicare insurance. Anyone can get additional information about the health insurance from his social security office. For this area, the address is, Social Security Administration, 1802 South Staples Street, Corpus Christi, Texas.

BOLT KILLS BIRDS

Jacksboro.—A local school teacher reported to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department a bolt of lightning struck a back yard tree and killed 127 birds. The victims were mostly English sparrows. There were also a few blackbirds.

President Johnson dominated the news recently when he said that United States air strikes on military targets in North Viet Nam will continue to impose a growing burden and a high price on those who wage war on the freedom of others." Mr. Johnson has made it clear that he is unswayed by criticism of the raids on Hanoi and Haiphong in Congress and abroad and that there is no wavering in his decision to step up the tempo of the war to convince the enemy that they cannot win and should seek to negotiate a settlement.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Repairman's Blunder

When Ed's car was repaired at the corner garage, the mechanic made one small mistake: He left out part of the steering apparatus. Driving home, Ed lost control of the car and crashed into a fire hydrant.

Was the garage legally liable for his accident? The proprietor said no, insisting that once a car left the premises his responsibility came to an end.

But Ed collected. The court said liability for negligence extends as far as the "natural and probable consequences" of error.

To be sure, the connection between the repair work and the accident was crystal clear in Ed's case. That is not always so. And, if you cannot establish such a connection, you cannot hold the garage liable. Thus:

A nut fell into the gears of a recently repaired car, causing considerable damage. But evidence was strong that the repairman had not touched that particular nut at all.

The court, finding no probable connection between the repair work and the damage, held the garage not liable.

Furthermore, the law demands reasonable care not only from the garage but also from you as the car owner. For example, if you know that a repair job is inadequate, you may be held to have "assumed the risk" of driving the car in that condition.

On the other hand, you will not be blamed if your conduct —while not perfect—was at least up to the standard of the average driver.

Take the case of a motorist whose brakes, improperly repaired, failed at the crest of a hill. When he sued later for damages the garage owner argued:

"Even if our repair job was bad, he made matters worse by his own negligence. Instead of rolling wildly down hill, he should have halted the car by jamming against the abutment at the side of the road."

But the court placed responsibility on the garage alone. Refusing to find the motorist negligent, the court said:

"An ordinary prudent man is not prone to remain calm, cool, and collected in an emergency, and one so imperiled is not required to make the decision which seems soundest in light of subsequent circumstances."

Openings In State Uniformed Patrol Services

The Texas Department of Public Safety announced today it has 231 vacancies in its uniformed patrol services and reminded interested men between the ages of 21 and 35 that the next deadline for applications is Oct. 17.

Examinations will be held on Oct. 22 for the next cadet training school scheduled to begin Jan. 3.

Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., DPS director, said vacancies exist in all four of the uniformed services—Highway Patrol, License and Weight, Driver License, and Motor Vehicle Inspection. Most of the openings are in the Highway Patrol Service.

Effective Sept. 1, higher salaries and the five-day week went into effect for all DPS uniformed personnel. Cadets at the DPS Law Enforcement Academy in Austin will receive $400 per month while in training, and will be off Saturdays and Sundays. The training period will last approximately 18 weeks, including 13 weeks of basic training. The remainder of the period will be devoted to specialized training in the service to which the cadet is to be assigned.

The cadet's choice for a particular service will be granted consistent with the vacancies existing at the time, and the Department will make every effort to station a man within 150 miles of his desired location.

Upon graduation, cadets will be commissioned and assigned to the field, with salaries ranging from $468 to $484, depending on service assignment.

This and That *

JOHN KINSEY

As the father of a soon-to-be-married daughter. I am learning a lot of things about wedding planning.

For example:

—My wife came home with not only invitations but also announcements.

"Why do you need both?" I asked, fingering my well worn checkbook.

"The announcements are to send to relatives and friends in Illinois, Wisconsin and California," she replied. "If there's anything I hate, it's to receive an invitation to a wedding 2,000 miles from here. It always makes me feel like somebody is putting his hand out for a present."

"What's wrong with putting your hand out?" I asked.

The look she gave me was answer enough.

—When it came to selecting a veil to go with the wedding gown, a whole new world opened up to me. I had thought that for a couple of bucks you could get a fluffy white veil. After all, it will only be used once. But I learned that some veils come attached to little "hats" that look like pill boxes, and the cost!! Whew! Guess I'll forget about a set of imitation wire wheel discs for my car.

—For a while I wondered how much I should pay the minister for performing the wedding ceremony. When I was married, five bucks was the going price, as I recall. I'm sure the fee has gone up. However, somebody said the groom takes care of this little item; so maybe I can get my car washed.

—Then there are such things as the reception, the wedding gown, the going away suit, etc.

When the subject of a wedding gown first came up, I said to my wife:

"You know, honey, there are places in Corpus Christi where men can rent tuxedos and full dress suits. I wonder if they rent wedding gowns."

"You've to be kidding," she said, looking at me as though I had just struck our daughter with a wet wash rag.

"Why naturally I was kidding," I answered weakly, numb from the figures she had mentioned in connection with buying a wedding gown or having one made.

—Don't get me wrong. I love our daughter and I want her to have a beautiful wedding, but I do hope that for the next couple of years my friends—especially the "stylish stouts" who wear size 42 pants and size 44 suits—will keep me in mind before they contribute old clothes to rummage sales.

Pirates Fall To Badgers

By Robert Oliver

The Fighting Pirates of Aransas County High School fell to the Bishop Badgers by a score of 13-0 in a hard-hitting, action-packed football game played last Friday night in Rockport.

The Pirates and the Badgers battled to a scoreless first quarter of play. However, the Badgers did threaten the Pirate goal line on several occasions but the Pirates defense managed to hold them back.

The Badgers then found luck in the second quarter of play. They recovered a Pirate fumble and got a drive going which took them to the Pirates six-yard line. Then it happened! Badger halfback Scott Binnion scampered the necessary six yards to give Bishop 6 points. Quarterback Haley Winters, kicked the extra point and the first half of play ended with a score of Bishop 7 and Rockport 0.

The whistle blew, the ball was kicked, and the third quarter of play was underway. Bishop had the ball, then Rockport had the ball, then Bishop had the ball, and this is the way the third quarter went. Except for the cool winds and light rain of the norther that blew in, the third quarter had no special highlights.

As the weather changed, the fourth quarter of play also changed. Both teams began to be plagued with fumbles, short punts, and intercepted passes caused by the high winds and wet grounds.

The Badgers once again came up on the lucky side as they recovered a Pirate fumble deep in Pirate territory.

They drove the ball to the Pirates four-yard line and once again sent halfback Scott Binnion into the end zone for 6 more points. Winters' try for the extra point was blocked and the score became 13-0 where it stayed throughout the remainder of the game.

The final score of 13-0, is evidence enough to show the ability of the Pirates' strong defense. They were playing the fifth ranked team in the state and they had their job cut out for them. The Pirates showed a display of some of the finest defense seen around here in a long time. The defense, as a whole, was outstanding. Outstanding defensive men for the Pirates were Bart Rozzell, Charles Simmons, Tommy Johnson, Thomas Lewis, and Eric Henderson.

The Badger's captains for this game were Glenn Picquet, Keith Brown and T. L. Schubert. The Pirates' captains were Bart Rozzell, Eric Henderson, and Charlie Roe.

The Pirates now have a season record of 1 win, 2 losses, and 1 tie.

Publishers' Note: Robert Oliver, who has lived in the Rockport area three years and is now a student at Del Mar College, has agreed to write up the Pirate football games. This is his second article. We hope you like it and the stories to come.

ADULT AID NEEDED IN GUN USAGE

Austin.—Gun safety training for young hunters was urged by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department after noting the first wild game harvest fatality, actually occurring before the regular season opened, involved youngsters.

A 16-year-old Hill Country boy was shot by another lad while rabbit hunting. He walked in front of a .22 rifle as a boy tried to dislodge a spent hull. The weapon was discharged, striking the victim in the back.

The Department observed that the tragedy pointed up need for adult guidance when youngsters go afield with guns. Responsibility in such instances rests strictly with the older persons, it added.

Hopeful of impressing Texans of the need to help people enjoy the out of doors, the Department reported the sordid details of last fall's causalties when ten of 21 hunters killed were 17 or under and that only one fatal wound was self inflicted.

Here is how tragedy struck then:

11-year old shot in head with .410 shotgun at close range by a young bird hunting companion;

15-year old shot in head with .12 gauge single barrel, with "tricky trigger" by 17 year old companion;

15-year old boy shot self when he stepped into a hole and his shotgun discharged;

14-year old killed with shotgun held by a 12 year old companion.

17-year old killed when young hunting companion dropped a loaded shotgun causing it to fire;

16-year old killed when companion's shotgun jammed, then fired unexpectedly;

16-year old killed by own pistol-grip rifle while rabbit hunting;

13-year old killed when hunting companion discharged a rifle while unloading it.
