GOP Solons Disagree On Ike Candidacy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Republican senators today sharply disputed a statement by Rep. Cole (R-N.Y.) that "it is not for the best interest of the country" that President Eisenhower attempt a second term.

Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said that "if the President decides to run it will be with the knowledge that he can do the job that he is undertaking."

Sen. Thye (R-Minn.) said in a separate interview that Eisenhower "with half a heart would be better than some people with a full heart."

In the meantime four other Republican senators said Eisenhower's recent statements and his decision to resume news conferences have convinced them he intends to run again.

But Republican Sen. Young of North Dakota said he still doesn't expect the President to seek a second term.

Cole, one of the original Eisenhower-for-president supporters in 1952, said he does not believe it is fair to appeal to Eisenhower's sense of duty in efforts to get him to run again.

"It is very well to speak of the return to a normal life of those other persons who have suffered heart attacks, but there is nothing normal about the presidency," Cole declared. "There is nothing normal about the presidency and there is nothing normal about the times."

"I say that if Dwight Eisenhower again becomes a candidate for President he will be elected and if he were in full and sound health, I would urge him to run. But I believe that Dwight Eisenhower should not, and will not again become a candidate for public office."

Before leaving Key West, Fla., for Washington Sunday, Eisenhower told a news conference his mind is not yet so fixed on the second term question that it can't be changed. He did not indicate whether he is inclined to run again.

Sen. Mundt of South Dakota, former chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, said recent events — including Eisenhower's remarks at Key West — have made a second-term believer of him.

"I have not thought the President would run again but now I have changed my mind," Mundt said. "The mere fact that he had a news conference in Key West and plans more of them here indicates to me that he will run again. He is certainly not acting like a man who is not going to be a candidate."

Sen. Bender (R-Ohio) said he read into Eisenhower's remarks about duty and the "inspirations" he found in the presidency a sense of responsibility and reward that Bender said indicate the President isn't going to quit unless his doctors tell him he can't stand the physical strain.

Sen. Duff (R-Pa.) one of the original group who helped get Eisenhower into the race in 1952, said he thinks the President wants to run again and he expects him to do so.

Sen. Cotton (R-NH) said he had similar thoughts on the question.

Vice President Nixon, who got plaudits from leading Republicans at a 43rd birthday party last night, was represented in some quarters as putting off feelers to determine what support he might assemble if Eisenhower doesn't run.

Nixon has been reported in conversations on this score with some governors, including Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois.

Eisenhower was unable to make Nixon's birthday party, but he sent a message saying he wished to "salute Dick on this happy occasion and to wish him all the best in the years to come."

Vegetable Men In Florida Hit Hard By Frost

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Southeast Florida vegetable growers counted their losses in the millions of dollars today and feared damage would mount with freezing temperatures extending through tomorrow.

Northwest winds that drove the temperature down to 42 degrees in downtown Miami and 29 in the suburbs cleared beaches along the normally balmy lower east coast and sent sun-seekers in search of overcoats.

Heavy damage was reported to tomatoes, beans, watermelons, peppers, eggplant and sweet corn from the Lake Okechobee region south to the Florida Keys.

John Campbell, Dade (Miami) County farm agent, estimated damage at 10 million dollars.

"I would estimate that 30 to 40 per cent of the tender crops were destroyed," he said.

Seventy-miles up the coast, at West Palm Beach, County Agent M. U. Mounds said the situation was "as bad or worse than anything I have known in the 30 years I have been in this office."

He summed up the situation in three words: "We've had it."

Mounds said green beans, squash, cucumbers, tomatoes, eggplant and peppers were damaged in every section of Palm Beach County.

Citrus, now in the midst of harvesting, apparently escaped serious damage but growers were warned to protect against continued cold.

Cheap Labor For Counterfeiting

TOKYO (AP)—Police weren't too surprised when they discovered a number of counterfeit 1,000-yen bills worth $2.77.

But they were amazed to find nine counterfeit 50-yen coins this week in Kyushu. The coin is worth 34 cents.

"This coin is well made," a police spokesman said. "I hadn't realized labor is so cheap in Japan."

Some Midwest Republicans Disapprove Soil Bank Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some Midwestern Republicans expressed dissatisfaction with President Eisenhower's farm program today while Democrats generally said they retain political initiative on the issue.

Some parts of Eisenhower's package drew praise from legislators in both parties. One such portion was the soil bank plan designed to reduce plantings and cut down on surpluses of some commodities. Democrats contended this plan was lifted from their own proposals of recent years.

But several Midwestern Republicans said they were disappointed because they doubt that the Eisenhower program can have any positive effect on farm prices before the November election.

Several Democrats argued, as they have in the past, that a return to rigid price supports at 90 per cent of parity, abandoned by the administration in the 1954 law, is the only effective way to give farmers a needed boost in income.

One of them, Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota, predicted the Senate will write such supports into its package farm bill, scheduled for early consideration in that body.

The Agriculture Committee has before it a bill passed by the House last year to re-establish 90 per cent floors for basic crops. Parity is a legal price level designed to really effective means' of controlling land diverted from growing of surplus crops.

President James G. Patton of the National Farmers Union, which has opposed much of the administration's farm program, said the message did "not propose a single thing to raise farmers' income above the present depression level."

In the House, Chairman Cooley (D-N.C.) said the Agriculture Committee will consider "every part and parcel" of Eisenhower's program.

House Republicans from farm areas were less restrained about their unhappiness over the recommendations than those in the Senate.

Rep. Hope of Kansas, senior Republican on the Agriculture Committee, said, "I am sorry that there is nothing in the message which holds out any hope of increased farm income for 1956 when farmers need it so badly."

Rep. Gross (R-Iowa) said, "I am astonished that the message gives almost no recognition to the emergency situation that exists in the Midwest."

However, Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa.), chairman of the House GOP Campaign Committee, called it "a forward-looking, dy-

Just Her Piece Of Cake

Just a short while back there wasn't a dry eye in the empire over Princess Margaret's broken romance—now look at her. The radiant princess cuts into a huge cake baked in the shape of the traditional yule log at colorful "Twelfth Night Revels" of the Sadler's Wells ballet company in London. Another reason for the princess' happy appearance may be the fact that she has had a constant male companion at recent social events. He's Lord Plunket, an eligible aristocrat.

ON BABIES, TOO Scholastic Census Begins Tomorrow

Annual census of scholastics for the Big Spring Independent School District will get under way here Wednesday, with teachers visiting homes during the balance of the school week.

Supt. W. C. Blankenship, census officer for the district, appealed to all patrons to be at home after 3:15 p.m. on those days until their children are enumerated.

"We hope to complete the bulk of the task in these three days — all but the call backs," he said. "If parents will give us their cooperation again we can do it."

Census information is to be gathered on all children who will be six years of age and under 18 years of age on Sept. 1, 1956. In other words, all children born AFTER Sept. 1, 1938, and ON or BEFORE Sept. 1, 1950, are to be enumerated.

In addition to the regular census, teachers will be making a tabulation on all children through five years of age. They will make this tabulation, numerically only, on youngsters less than one year old on Sept. 1, 1956, as well as those age two, three, four and five. This information will be used as a guide by the school board in trying to provide for classroom space, instruction, etc., Blankenship explained.

A faculty meeting was called at 3:15 Tuesday to explain all the details of the census. All teachers, except those whose duties might take them out of town, will take part. School will be held until 3 p.m. daily to satisfy the Gilmer-Aiken requirements and teachers will start their canvassing at 3:15 p.m. daily. In districts where PTAs are meeting, that day may be skipped.

Blankenship expected a slight increase in census. After transfers in and out, there were 5,321 white scholastics and 271 colored ones last year. The census before transfers was about 100 less than that.

All census enumeration must be done this month, said Supt. Blankenship. Each child enumerated will mean a $72 state per capita payment to the district.

Graham Is Ruled Sane

DENVER (AP)—John Gilbert Graham, accused of murder in the time bombing of a commercial airliner, is sane, two psychiatrists advised the District Court yesterday.

Dr. Leo V. Tepley's report said Graham, 23, had "full possession of his mental faculties" Nov. 1, the date of the United Air Lines crash 32 miles north of here in which 44 persons died, and on Nov. 14, when Graham signed a statement.

"He is above normal intelligence... and his mental processes do not betray any illness or disease," a report advised.

The report by Dr. R. Robert Cohen declared Graham is "sane and mentally competent both at this time and on Nov. 1, the day of the alleged crime."

Both doctors observed Graham at a hospital for one month. They read the findings in the court of Dist. Judge Edward J. Keating. The reports had been mailed to the judge last week.

Graham is accused of causing the death of his mother Mrs. Daisie E. King, 54, of Denver, one of the passengers aboard the airliner. He has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity, and contends he signed an alleged confession under duress.

Virginians Pushing Segregation Fight

Head Of Defunct Insurance Firm Clings To Life

WACO (AP)—The president of the defunct U.S. Trust and Guaranty Co., who shot himself in the head at his palatial estate here Saturday night, clung to life today.

Doctors for A. B. Shoemaker, 59, said they held no hope for his recovery and death was a matter of hours or days.

"It's a steady downhill proposition," one doctor said. "We don't expect him ever to regain consciousness. He feels no pain."

The steel-jacketed bullet Shoemaker fired into his right temple came out of his left temple but it did not affect the sight or motor nerves. Physicians said the wound showed signs of infection and that swelling was causing further damage to the brain.

The head of U.S. Trust, placed in receivership Dec. 22 after loss to creditors was estimated up to seven million dollars, also turned up the gas in two stoves. He left suicide notes denying he had done any wrong and said he had no money with which to defend himself.

A spokesman for the Occidental Life Insurance Co. in Los Angeles, a company which had insured Shoemaker's life for one million dollars, said that because of a standard clause limiting liability to the amount of premiums paid in event of a suicide during the term of the policy, only $29,094 would be paid. That is the sum of the premiums paid by U.S. Trust, the beneficiary, on Shoemaker's life.

Mrs. Shoemaker, staying near the bedside of her husband since Saturday night, left the hospital Saturday last night but returned within 30 minutes. She has a room near his and has been eating her meals in the hospital.

Old-time residents of San Saba in Central Texas, where Shoemaker is present, recalled him as a generous young man. After attending Cherokee Junior College he was in the Navy in World War I and afterwards tried to form an oil stock company for South America.

Shoemaker eloped with Miss Louise Moore, daughter of W. J. Moore, the late president of the San Saba National Bank.

His mother, Mrs. Guy Shoemaker, who is past 80, lives here. She was present at the wedding of her daughter and her son-in-law. She said she had heard Shoemaker had shot himself.

Giles Faces New Trial In Land Scandal

AUSTIN (AP)—Bascom Giles, former land commissioner and first head of the veterans' land program, faces another trial on criminal charges today in 98th District Court.

Nine more charges were called up at 2 p.m. by mutual agreement of attorneys.

Giles is under conviction on criminal charges in Travis, Bear and Zavala counties in connection with administration of the 100 million dollars aid plan. Giles is free on appeal bond.

In the cases today, Giles is charged with felony theft and conspiracy to commit theft of $58,875 in the sale of the 10,000-acre Kinney County Rosewood Ranch under the veterans land program.

Long-Range Missile Planned

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said today the Army is going all out to develop a 1,500-mile range missile. The service will spend more and more of its money to expand the whole system of unmanned weapons, he said.

The Army chief of staff, at a Pentagon news conference, said the Army needs "a wide span of guided missiles to extend its fire power horizontally and vertically."

Work is under way toward increasing distance and height ranges of such weapons this year, he added.

Taylor said work on the 1,500-mile missile is being carried on at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala., in partnership with the Navy, but that it is too early to say which service will control the new missile.

He said the Army will continue to improve its "Redstone" short range bombardment missile—with a reported striking distance of between 200 and 300 miles.

Taylor said that in the field of strategic mobility — the Army remains "the hitchhikers of our friends of the Air Force."

Taylor voiced the hope that Army-Air Force cooperation can extend the capability of Army troops to "intervene rapidly to resist aggression anywhere about the world." But he denied any intent to take over the strategic airlift from the Air Force.

He said the big maneuvers held in Louisiana last fall have led to experimental reorganizations in division structure.

DA Thinks Firm's Chief Responsible In Insurance Mess

HOUSTON (AP)—District Atty. Tom Moore of Waco told the Chronicle today he believed A. B. Shoemaker, who shot himself, is self-inflicted bullet wound, is the only man who can be held responsible for operations of U. S. Trust & Guaranty Co. and its affiliates.

"It is my opinion now," Moore said, "that the whole thing was a one-man operation."

"Something may still be uncovered which will make me change my mind," he said.

Moore said he believes employees and other officers "had no real responsibility" in the management of U. S. Trust, of which Shoemaker was president.

The district attorney said the possibility exists that the 7 million dollar loss suffered by creditors of U. S. Trust may have been lost over a period of years in the normal operations of the company.

Moore said Atty. Gen. Sheppard has notified him to get information for possible prosecution from the receiver.

Voters Okay Funds To Private Schools

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Gov. Thomas B. Stanley prepared today to translate the results of a smashing election victory into a request for further action by the Virginia Legislature on the administration plan to continue segregated schools.

He will go before the opening session of the General Assembly for his State of the Commonwealth address tomorrow armed with a better than 2-1 endorsement of the first leg of his school program.

This endorsement was given yesterday when voters approved a call for a constitutional convention that would open the legal door for using state money for private nonsectarian school tuition grants.

The grants would be available to pupils whose parents declined to send them to integrated schools.

Voting approached the 450,000 mark in spite of sleet and snow in many sections of the state, a turnout second only to the 620,000 in the Eisenhower landslide of 1952.

Returns from 1,747 of the state's 1,860 precincts showed 299,735 for the constitutional convention call and 143,098 against it.

The constitutional change will give the state administration a jumping-off point for the rest of an anti-integration program recommended by the Gray study commission of 32 legislators. But Stanley would not disclose whether he will ask the Assembly for a speedy convention call or wait timetable he has in mind for other parts of the Gray commission recommendations, including a plan for assigning pupils for reasons other than race.

Stanley called the victory for the tuition grant plan something "of tremendous assistance" to the Legislature in dealing with school problems in light of the U.S. Supreme Court's order to Virginia and other Southern states to desegregate "with all deliberate speed."

"The results will be most helpful to all those who are concerned with safeguarding our public schools and at the same time protecting our children against forced mixing of the races in the classrooms," the governor said.

Stanley and Sen. Garland Gray, commission chairman, plus the scores of spokesmen they marshaled in the campaign for the convention, argued the tuition grant plan would serve to preserve education for both races in the state. Against them were arrayed a group of ministers and ministerial organizations, women's groups and some labor spokesmen who said diversion of state money would seriously threaten public education.

After the voting, State Sen.-elect Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria, leader of the opposition, said, "It is the duty of us all to honor and respect the wishes of the great majority."

The anti-amendment forces carried one congressional district—the northern Virginia 10th — Boothe's home district—out of the 10 in the state.

More Troops Due In Cyprus To Protect British Citizens

LONDON (AP)—Britain today ordered more troops sent to her Mediterranean base of Cyprus to protect British subjects in the Middle East if necessary, the War Office announced.

The announcement said: "In view of the disturbed position in the Middle East, her Majesty's government have thought it desirable as a precautionary measure to increase the number of troops at the disposal of the commander in chief for the protection of British subjects in the area, should the need arise."

The new force will include airborne units, the statement said.

It added the contingent will be flown to Cyprus where Britain's air and land forces in the Middle East are based.

Britain's action came after a wave of anti-Western rioting swept the Arab state of Jordan in December and last weekend. The Foreign Office yesterday blamed local Communists and other elements—presumably Egyptians and Saudi Arabians—for the demonstrations in which American and British properties were damaged.

The Eden government at the same time is sending a ranking Middle Eastern expert, C. A. Evelyn Shuckburgh, flying to Washington tonight for a swift rundown of the over-all Middle Eastern situation with American State Department high-ups. Shuckburgh, who will be accompanied by two aides, has been engaged in preparing the ground for a general discussion of the Middle Eastern situation between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Eden who are to meet in Washington Jan. 30.

The British are worried by resistance in some Arab states to the Western-sponsored Baghdad Alliance of countries along Russia's southern borders. They also are deeply concerned at the dangerous quarrel between Israel and her long-feuding Arab neighbors.

Bus Skids, Catches Fire; 18 Are Hurt

CHICAGO (AP)—A Chicago Transit Authority bus (filled with work-bound passengers) skidded on an icy street and burst into flames at a Northwest Side intersection today.

At least 18 persons suffered minor injuries and burns. The accident occurred at the triple intersection of Damen, Diversey and Clybourn Aves.

The bus was destroyed.

Korean Jet Ace Is Killed In Air Crash

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—Maj. Lonnie Moore, one of the leading jet aces of the Korean War, was killed today in the crash of the Air Force's newest super-sonic fighter, the F101 Voodoo jet fighter.

The plane crashed and exploded just after it was airborne in the center of the main flying field at Eglin Air Force Base.

The 36-year-old Moore was a double ace in Korea with 10 enemy MiG 15s destroyed and one probably destroyed.

Elks Due Visit By President

E. C. Bunch, Odessa, president of the Texas Elks Association, is to make his official visit to the Big Spring lodge at 8 p.m. today.

Visiting Elks are expected from Sweetwater, San Angelo, Midland and Odessa, and there will be candidates from each of these points to be inducted into Elksdom as part of the program.

A special guest of honor will be Sandra Martin, who was sent by the Big Spring lodge to the state Elks hospital for crippled children at Ottumwa. She will tell something of the work being done at the hospital.

After the ceremonies and a brief talk by Bunch, members will be served barbecued steak in the lodge quarters at the Crawford Hotel, said Oliver Cofer, exalted ruler.

Finger Puts His Foot In It

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—This is how Stanley Morton Finger put his foot in it:

The 17-year-old Long Beach State College student wanted a date with Ann Jerry, a clerk at the Long Beach Federal Savings & Loan Assn. He went to her cage yesterday and presented this note: "This is a holdup. Drop your head if you will go to the show with me tonight."

But Miss Jerry stepped away and another clerk, Mrs. Wanda A. Wiley, saw the words. "This is a holdup," she telephoned police.

Sgt. William Penhollow arrived post-haste and handcuffed the youth. Then 20 police and FBI agents swarmed around him and he was taken to the FBI office and questioned.

Miss Jerry said she thought the youth but never had dated him. Finally, he was released. He'd still like the date, but—no more notes.

Leukemia Victim

Five-year-old Helen Wilson, a leukemia patient, is shown with some of the hundreds of cards and letters she received throughout the country. Her father's fellow policemen recently asked that letters be written to her to brighten her probably brief span of life. Members of the Buffalo, N. Y., police department notified Helen that she has been made an honorary lieutenant. She now "outranks" her father, Kenneth, who is just a plain policeman in their hometown of Chicago.

State Police Chief Urges Stricter Juvenile Treatment

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Drinking, automobiles, discordance at home, and coddling of juvenile offenders were blamed yesterday for the increase in juvenile delinquency.

The Texas Police Assn.'s regional conference on juvenile delinquency heard Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Department of Public Safety, urge stricter treatment for youngsters. Warning against coddling of delinquents, Garrison emphasized that human understanding should be applied to individual cases.

Discipline in the home often causes children to adopt an antisocial attitude, Scott Werner of the FBI said.

"Autos are the base of much of today's juvenile delinquency," San Antonio Police Chief George Bischoff told the 150 officers at the conference. "Youngsters can get away from their own neighborhood more easily to places where they can get into trouble."

Bexar County Sheriff Owen Kilway expressed concern over the increase in drinking.

"Drinking by children is getting to be a grave situation," he said. "Having policemen on the beat is the best answer, but no city has that many men."

'No Miracles' For 1956 Seen By Henry Ford

NEW YORK (AP)—Henry Ford II says 1956 probably won't be as good a year for the Ford Motor Co. as record-breaking 1955, and buyers of Ford stock should not expect "miracles."

"I think some people are indulging in wishful thinking about their chances for fast and fabulous financial gains," the Ford Motor Co. president told 1,000 investment bankers who will handle the sale of 10,200,000 shares of Ford stock Jan. 18.

"After considering the mail I have received, reading press accounts and listening to the opinions of informed persons, I am concerned about the evidence in some areas of a naive belief in industrial miracles," he continued.

"We at Ford Motor Co. are businessmen and not miracle men. Our business is subject to the same risks and hazards as others who have stakes in the automotive industry. We are operating an automobile company against the stiffest kind of competition."

Ford said he is "reasonably sure" that 1956 will not be as good a year for the company as 1955, when production and sales of Ford cars smashed all records.

"It is my personal belief," he said, "that we will have a good year in '56—but I don't know for sure and I don't think any of my colleagues do either."

Lull Settles Over Battle For Custody Of Burglary Suspect

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP)—A lull settled today over the custody battle for City Commissioner Joe Taylor, accused of burglary in two states. Attorneys were working behind the scenes for a hearing Friday.

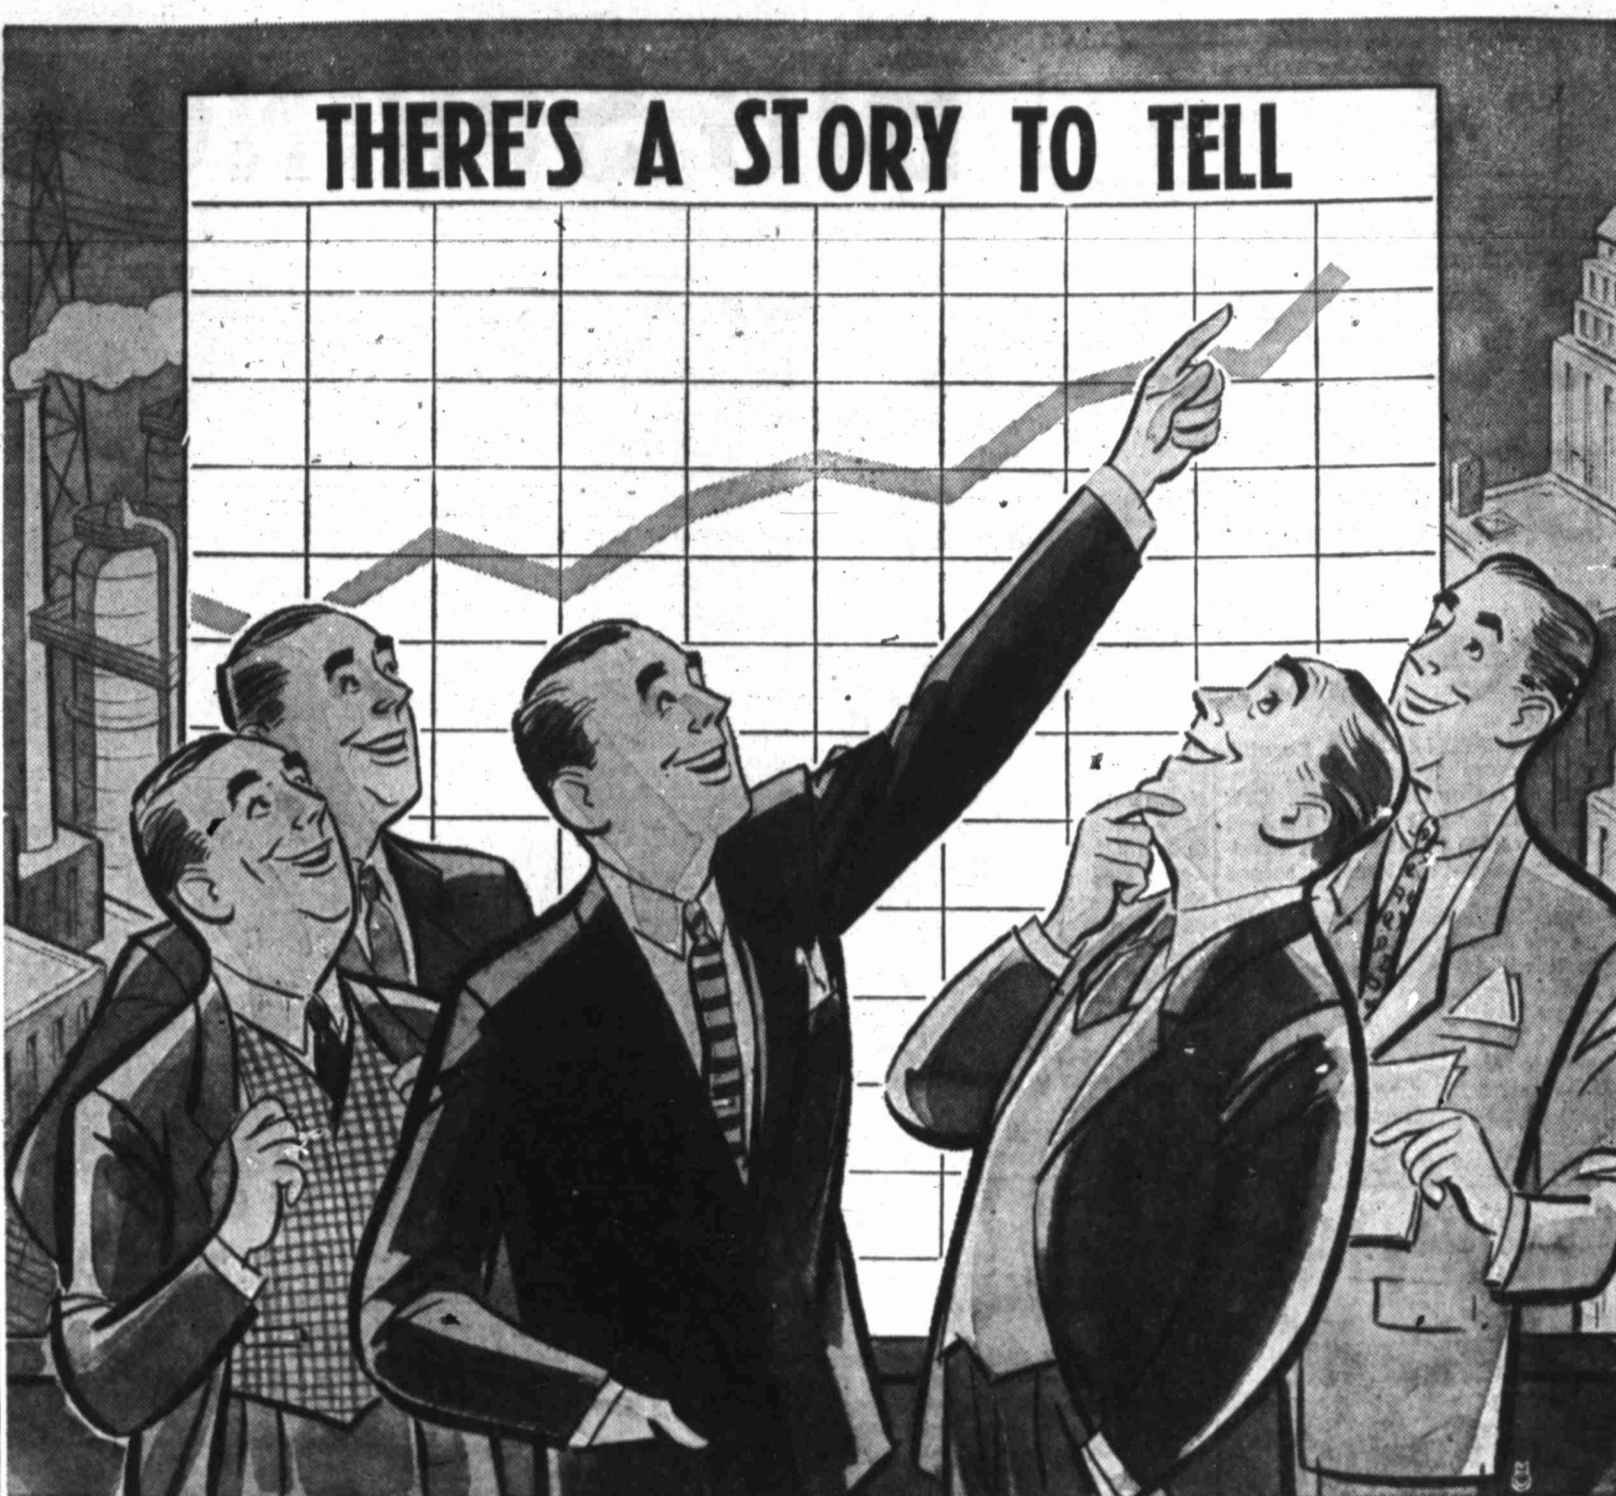

Taylor is to appear here Friday with two state Bureau of Investigation agents who ushered him hurriedly from District Court Saturday.

The commissioner, 51, is accused of masterminding burglaries in Oklahoma and North Texas. He is being held in jail at Pauls Valley under $20,000 bond.

Judge John Caldwell, from whose courtroom Taylor was taken, said yesterday he allowed the agents to take the city official "to prevent possible bloodshed."

"I sacrificed the accused city official when I saw the possibility of a riot," Caldwell said. "There were citizens in the courtroom to prevent the officers from arresting Taylor. I knew if he had any legal rights I could get him back later."

Caldwell denied reports he had issued contempt citations against the two state agents, Golden Kennedy and Hubert Bartlett.

Another Push Against Polio

George Zachariah, left, and Rad Ware, right, co-chairmen of the Howard-Glasscock Polio chapter, receive another helping hand in the annual March of Dimes campaign. This time it is from Ira Sims, manager on behalf of all the employees at the Veterans Administration Hospital. So far contributions have pushed past the $2,500 mark, said Ware. He appealed for contributions to be mailed in or left in coin containers placed at most business establishments.

ONLY 5 CASES

Howard-Glasscock Polio Unit Closes Doors On A Light Year

With a spirit of humility and thankfulness, the Howard-Glasscock counties chapter of the National Polio Foundation has closed its books on 1955 with one of the lightest case loads ever recorded. Only five cases developed during the past year and of that number only one was paralytic.

On the heels of such a fortunate record, it may seem strange that $2,000 has been designated as the goal in the March of Dimes which campaigns here and throughout the nation during the month of January, said Rad Ware, chapter chairman. But the untold story is an expensive one according to Ware.

"When you stop to consider that had our local chapter backed the bill, we would have paid something like $11,768 for Salk vaccine alone when 2,942 shots were administered here on April 19 and July 21 to first and second grade school children," Ware points out. Through a state-wide program, the vaccine was provided by the National Foundation.

Taking great prominence in the local fight against infantile paralysis are 25 patients, who, according to Jewel Barton, Howard County health nurse, receive continued care year after year in their constant struggle against the effects of the disease. Oldest case on record is that of one patient who has received assistance from the foundation through the local chapter for the past 15 years. In this case, braces alone run something like $150 per year.

According to Miss Barton, the average child who is a brace patient (from this area) must have changes of special shoes that cost around $60 each year. One change of his braces amounts to $150 and his physiotherapy $200.

What does polio cost? According to the county health nurse hospitalization in acute stages runs $25 per day for bedside nursing and hot packs (applied every four hours to affected muscles during the day and as often as necessary to relieve pain at night). This figure also covers ordinary drugs.

Local physicians donate their services to patients receiving assistance and the chapter is never billed for their normal fee.

In addition to regular hospitalization, many other services are frequently required. During the first seven-day period of contagion, doctors often deem it necessary to call in special nurses. Paid by the foundation at the rate of $1.87 and one-half per hour and one dollar extra for night duty, the expense for this special care alone averages $46 per day.

According to Miss Barton, patients with paralysis are sent immediately to orthopedists at recognized polio centers following their dismissal from local hospitals. If a patient is treated as an out-patient, expenses run approximately $8 per visit with trips to specialists scheduled daily and sometimes weekly.

Midland Memorial Hospital is a recognized polio center with full-time physiotherapists, and the majority of patients from this vicinity are treated there. Those who are able are treated as out-patients which helps in cutting down expenses.

Ware explained that chapter responsibility is also extended to other members of the family where polio has struck. Each is inoculated with gamma globulin as are all contacts of the family under 21 years of age and all prospective mothers. Vaccine is provided through the city health unit from the polio foundation.

Fifty per cent of the local $12,000 quota will go to national headquarters for an accelerated program in research, Ware continued.

Several years back when "Big Spring was hard hit with a large number of polio cases, the area was granted $7,000 from the foundation to handle the crisis. Although the obligation ends there, the local chapter has been able to repay $15,000 of this amount for use in other desperate areas.

Insurance Trial Speed Promised

AUSTIN (AP)—A trial "as soon as possible" will be sought for one or more of four persons charged with criminal perjury in Texas insurance operations, Dist. Atty. Les Procter said yesterday.

Indictments have been on the book here since May 27, 1954 against Leslie Lowry, Paul Lowry and D. H. O'Fiel, all of Beaumont and Ennis, and Spencer Treharne of El Paso.

Speculation was that Procter might call up first the cases of the two Lowry brothers. The Lowrys organized the Texas Mutual Insurance Co. of Beaumont, the company whose receivership case focused first strong attention on weaknesses in Texas insurance rules.

Indictments were returned against the men 15 days after associate Justice Robert Hughes of the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals handed down a scathing opinion May 12, 1954, in a civil suit growing out of the Texas Mutual receivership.

Hughes said the Texas Mutual Casualty case was "replete with evidence of fraudulent and corrupt abuse of our insurance laws and gross if not criminal laxness in their enforcement."

Perjury charges face both Lowrys in the operation of the Texas Fire Insurance Co. of Ennis, a subsidiary of Texas Mutual, also in receivership.

Paul Lowry faces a charge of submitting a false statement to the insurance commission.

O'Fiel, attorney for Texas Mutual, is charged with perjury.

Treharne's indictment was on two counts of perjury in statements to the insurance Commission about the organization and operations of United Lloyds of El Paso, now defunct.

All the companies involved in the indictments were put out of business by the state on grounds they had been fraudulently organized and operated.

Procter said none of the cases have been brought to trial sooner because he and his staff have been "trying to go back to old cases as rapidly as we can get to them, but we have concentrated first on the docket that faced us when I was elected."

Details of how Texas Mutual Casualty was organized and operated prompted a strong denunciation by Hughes in his May, 1954, opinion. He dealt with the trial record citing a greatly inflated value Texas Mutual placed on its Beaumont office building.

"Just how this property which mushroomed in value so fast was valued and how approval of such value by the insurance board was obtained with such ease and dispatch brings into focus the part played by state Sen. and attorney William T. Moore of Bryan," Hughes wrote.

Moore, shown in the record as receiving more than $13,000 from Texas Mutual for legal services between December, 1949, and February, 1953, said of Hughes' opinion that he had no apology. He said he had followed the law as he saw it in securing the building appraisal.

The only other person against whom an indictment has been returned in Texas insurance failures is Ralph Hammond of Houston, charged with perjury in operations of Lloyds of North America, placed in receivership amid charges of "politics" in the summer of 1954.

Hammonds was once associated with one of two San Antonio insurance companies which ran into financial trouble and were combined to help form the now defunct General American Casualty.

Zachariah Heads Child Aid Group

George Zachariah was named president of the Big Spring Chapter of the Texas Society for Crippled Children at a meeting Monday afternoon in the conference room of the Chamber of Commerce.

Named to the office of vice president was R. R. McEwen Jr., secretary-treasurer will be Jewel Barton.

Reports from voters were heard. The group voted to send $500 to the Cerebral Palsy Center in Midland to help with the expenses of treatments given the children from Howard County who are taken to the Center regularly.

Date of the drive for funds was set for March 1, and methods of addressing the envelopes for seals were discussed. Home service cases were discussed. Suggestions were made for improvement in the care of the patients.

The next meeting date will be announced later.

Jaycees Seek Members For Livestock Group

Jaycees Tuesday were launching a membership campaign for the Big Spring Junior Livestock Association, an organization set up to underwrite club boy semi-annual shows here.

John Taylor, president of the Jaycees, said members hoped in this manner to raise a budget of $2,000 which would about take care of expenses connected with the spring calf, lamb and capon show and the autumn pig show. The memberships, for individuals and firms, are $5 each. Any residue in the fund would be used for 4-H and FFA activities. This year, the Jaycees said they hoped to be able to have a buyers' barbecue in advance of the sale. Membership would not affect the program of securing buyers.

Heading the project are Ralph McLaughlin, Bill Gray, Jimmie Taylor, and Rusty Hightower. The association will be directed by the Jaycee officers and board, together with the county agents and vocational agricultural teachers in Howard County.

Bosses' Night was set for Jan. 30 with State Jaycee President Ed Stumpf, Houston, as speaker. The dinner affair will be in the Settles Hotel.

Taylor announced the club-sponsored Pay-Your-Poll-Tax campaign had been started. Picnards will be distributed and advertisements will be inserted in the various media.

Introduced as a new member was Robert R. Grew, legal officer at Webb AFB. Directors of the Jaycees will meet Wednesday, Taylor said.

Fairris Clemency Plea Considered

McALESTER, Okla. (AP)—The Pardons Board considered today the plea for clemency by Hurbie Fairris Jr., 21, a convicted Texas killer.

Fairris is due to be executed Jan. 18 for the slaying of Oklahoma City detective Bennie Cravatt. The board called for testimony from Fairris and Raymond Price, 25, who, Fairris' lawyers claim, has given a statement clearing Fairris. Price is serving life for his part in the attempted supermarket robbery here in which the detective was slain.

Private Colleges Go After U. S. Business Funds

ST. LOUIS (AP)—After a year of tooling up, America's private colleges are putting into motion a money-raising machine geared to the principle that private enterprise has a responsibility to keep them alive.

The Association of American Colleges, opening its annual convention today, tested nationwide soliciting techniques last year. Now it is setting up a permanent fund-raising headquarters in Indianapolis. Directing it will be Frank H. Sparks, who has resigned as president of Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind.

The AAC is committed to the theory that American education is strong because it is diversified among tax-supported and private institutions. Its members include 714 independent and church-affiliated schools.

Five years ago, in the face of talk that private colleges needed federal aid, Sparks led a campaign within the AAC that resulted in the establishment of state associations of colleges which solicited funds on behalf of all their members.

The state associations, of which there are now 34, were so successful that AAC members called for a national program.

Committee Secretary E. B. Hastings Jr. explained in an interview today that a central feature will be a "national depository" in which donors may place contributions to be disbursed by the committee according to their specifications.

"In our preliminary calls last year," Hastings said, "we frequently ran into people who said, 'I'll write you a check right now.' Then it dawned on us there was no one for them to write a check to. This will take care of that."

Corporations can still give to individual colleges, and member colleges are still free to solicit on their own.

The committee's technique is to send teams of three college presidents to call on top executives of corporations and make a pitch on behalf of all colleges. Last year 27 teams solicited 117 corporations in eight cities.

As a result, $142,200 was earmarked by six corporations for the national depository, and Hastings said other donations were made directly to colleges and to state associations.

An additional 140 corporations are on the list for calls this year.

Segregation Dispute Rocks Large Catholic High School

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A racial dispute rocked Louisiana's largest Catholic high school today after a group of parents walked out on the priest-principal rather than with draw a pro-segregation resolution.

Touching off the row at a Jesuit high school parent's club meeting was a resolution asking indefinite postponement of any plans to integrate classes.

The Rev. C. J. Stallworth, a Jesuit priest and principal of the school, threatened to dissolve the club if his request was refused.

He branded the resolution "un-Christian, un-Catholic, undemocratic, un-American and ungentlemanly."

Father Stallworth asked the archbishop to begin desegregation at the high school level first.

Catholic schools in Louisiana are not affected by the state's segregation laws.

Some Jesuit educators have been leaders in the antisegregation movement in the South.

Massachusetts Resumes Polio Vaccinations

BOSTON (AP)—After months of delay Massachusetts—center of a summer polio epidemic—has decided to resume a mass program of Salk vaccine inoculations.

The Massachusetts Polio Advisory Committee recommended last night that the more recently produced vaccine is sufficiently safe to be given on a mass scale to schoolchildren.

The decision leaves Idaho as the only state which has not given a green light to the Salk vaccine.

In its report, the 19-member committee of prominent Bay State physicians said, "The protection to be expected (from the vaccine) is now greater than the potential risk to the vaccinated individual and to those with whom he comes in contact."

The committee noted however that "total freedom from live virus cannot be assured in this vaccine and that the vaccine may possibly, or rare instances, induce the disease in those vaccinated and their contacts."

"Furthermore," the report continued, "it recognizes that a suitable substitute for the virulent Mahoney strain."

Physicians were advised to administer vaccine made according to new methods of production and additional safety tests.

The committee said there is no evidence that the recent Massachusetts polio epidemic which hit 3,881 persons and took 163 lives was caused by the vaccine.

Small Terrier Buried For 4 Days, Survives Ordeal

SEATTLE (AP)—Nobody had really expected to find Bonnie alive. The little 2-year-old wire-haired terrier had been buried for 4 1/2 days when she bounded into the arms of her master Jim Sneddon yesterday.

The story of a man and his love for a dog started grimly last Thursday. A great mound of rain-loosened dirt smashed into Sneddon's home.

Sneddon and his wife considered themselves lucky to escape with their lives.

But they mourned too for Bonnie, trapped in the basement when the slide roared into the house.

Sneddon, 36, taken to the hospital with minor injuries, told his wife that some way, somehow, he would dig out his dog.

Immediately on his release from the hospital the following day, he went to the house.

"I called to Bonnie and she didn't answer. I saw how the entire floor had caved in and how impossible it seemed to find her alive."

Then, yesterday, Sneddon received a telephone call from an unidentified woman who said she had heard a dog barking under the ruins of his home.

Sneddon raced to the demolished home. He grabbed a shovel and he started digging.

Three hours later, one of the men reached into an air pocket between two timbers and pulled forth a gaunt but otherwise uninjured Bonnie.

But they mourned too for Bonnie, trapped in the basement when the slide roared into the house.

Editorial

Least Dangerous, Best Enforced

If some good Samaritans were patrolling the figurative road from Jerusalem to Jericho these days and stopped to render assistance to some wayfarer, he might be arrested for practicing compassion with a license.

We came to this conclusion upon reading a dispatch from Ann Arbor, Mich., relating the experience of a University of Michigan student who showed compassion to an unknown motorist.

Frank G. McLenon, 20, of Gibraltar, Mich., was strolling along when he noticed the time had expired on a parking meter. He felt compassion for the unknown motorist and dropped a penny in the slot.

Police arrested him for violating an ordinance which prohibits anyone but the agent or associate of a car owner or driver to extend the time on a parking meter. Young McLenon pleaded guilty in municipal court and was fined $11.85 for exercising a generous impulse. His only defense: he didn't like to think that the car owner, whom he didn't know from Adam's off, would be given a ticket.

We suppose this crime comes under the general heading of interference with the due process of the law.

Which leads us to the observation that if the police in most of our cities and towns were half as diligent in enforcing moving traffic violations as they are prompt and relentless in enforcing overtime parking rules, there would be fewer smash-ups and injuries to report.

You may run a red light and escape scot-free. You may drive 50 m.p.h. in a 30-mile zone, and never be called to account. But if you let a meter run down on you, your goose is cooked.

This, of course, is due to the telltale meter. There is no escaping its accusing time-expired indicator.

Nobody ever got hurt by a car immobile on a dead meter. Granting that a time limit is necessary and that it should be enforced, the fact remains that the most rigidly enforced and inescapable of all traffic violations is the most harmless. You may get away with almost anything in moving traffic, but you'd better not let a meter run down on you.

Thumbs Down On The Heart Poll

The Journal of the American Medical Association has put a heavy editorial foot down on the effort of a pollster to find out what the nation's heart specialists think about President Eisenhower's physical ability to serve a second term.

The specialists have been asked by the Journal to disregard the questionnaire on the ground it could produce "hysteria." An even more compelling reason might be the questionable ethics of having a doctor render an opinion without a personal examination of the subject.

In the end, of course, only the President's decision will count. He has had a great deal to say, at various times, to the effect that no man is indispensable, and this has often been interpreted as indicating he did not wish a second term, even before his heart attack.

But under the circumstances Mr. Eisenhower comes as near being indispensable to the Republican Party as any President has ever been to any party, and in the end the pleas of party leaders may overcome whatever reluctance he may have to accept a second nomination.

That, of course, remains to be seen. Most White House correspondents do not think the President is disposed to run.

It is conceivable that the opinion of the heart specialists could play an important part in bolstering the party leaders' effort to persuade him to run. The director of the polling agency said the survey was being made on behalf of a client whom he declined to name.

If carried through and the results announced, the consensus of medical opinion could become a potent political gimmick, either pro or con, depending upon which way the opinion went—for or against.

The AMA has always been pretty fussy about meddling openly in politics, and this may be the real reason behind the Journal's thumbs down attitude. Whichever way the weight of opinion goes, one party or the other would be either pleased or disappointed—or, as the case may be, embarrassed—and that might not be healthy for the AMA.

Television And Radio

Here We Go Again!

NEW YORK (AP)—If the many million members of the Chowder and Marching Club Dedicated to Preserving Interest in the Late Unpleasantness Between the States will gather round, we'll report interesting news.

Television finally has recognized that we all are the heirs of a great and fascinating story called the Civil War. Specifically, an erudite and articulate member of the club named Ed Byron has recognized it. He interested another member of the club named Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver, chairman of the board of NBC.

Now, he is filming 36 half-hour dramas on the Civil War; he also proposes to film at least four 14-hour spectacles based on the conflict. The series entitled "The Eagle and the Rose" probably won't appear on NBC-TV stations until next fall. But if this is premature news, it's fun, like Nathan Bedford Forrest, to be there first with the mostest.

Byron was brought to bay in the bloody angle of a restaurant with his sole defense a bloody Mary. He had just weathered an outrageous quip: "Hey, Ed, which side ya gonna lit wit?"

Gazing moodily at the now assaulting party, he quickly established his firing power superiority with Civil War lore. No wonder. His father's folks were Confederate Democrats out of Georgia; his mother's clan Irish Republicans. Hatch these forces in his native Kentucky and you'll see why both sides won the war.

"People were people in 1862," said Byron. "It's a kind of a thing to bring your great-grandfather into focus so you can understand him as a human being. If your family was here in the Civil War, you are part of it. If your family wasn't here, you're smart enough to know it was a mighty important thing that brought us to maturity."

And that, in its fashion, is perhaps the most apt description yet on why there is such a tremendous revival of interest these days in the Civil War.

Hollywood Review

Jimmie Stewart Is Top Draw

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The new top man at the movie box offices is lanky James Stewart, and Hollywood is agreed that it couldn't have happened to a nicer guy.

The solid citizen from Indiana, Pa., was named the leading moneymaker in the Motion Picture Herald's annual assessment of film stars. It's nice to know that being a sane, hard-working actor can pay off in terms of popularity. Stewart, who served his country notably in World War II, has never had a breath of scandal connected with his name.

How does he feel about being No. 1? "I'm very, very happy about it," he said.

"It was a surprise, but I did think if I was ever going to make it, this year would be the time. I had some pretty good moneymakers out."

"The Glenn Miller Story" was released partly in 1955. Then I had a couple back-to-back—"Rear Window" and "Strategic Air Command." And "The Man From Laramie" was being released toward the end of the year."

But he said the No. 1 spot wouldn't change his thinking about movies. He remarked:

"I'm not going to say, 'Where do I go from here?' It seems to me that is an occupational disease in this town. Some actors think they're ruined if a new picture doesn't win five Oscars. You can't worry about topping yourself all the time."

"You just have to keep hunting for the right kind of picture to do. And the search gets harder all the time. I read mountains of scripts to find just one."

"I don't think you can have a successful movie unless you really care about the people in it. You've got to have a rooting interest in the characters. And you've got to get an emotional experience from what happens on the screen."

Korean Crown Found

SEOUL (AP)—A gold crown adorned with thousands of gems and other articles from a monarchy which began before the dawn of the Christian era have been unearthed near the southeast port of Pusan.

Officials of the National Museum said the articles came from the ancient Silla dynasty, which lasted for 1,000 years. They were found near Kyongju, capital of the Silla dynasty.

Road builders came across them in a burial mound. They also found two pairs of gold ear rings, a gold bracelet, a gold necklace, a silver bracelet, an iron pot, bronze ware, an iron sword and several pieces of earthenware.

We Don't Like To Be Discouraging, But— James Marlow Something For Ex-Presidents

WASHINGTON (AP)—For years some arguments against the idea of making ex-presidents senators-at-large.

It would be unconstitutional because the Constitution clearly says each state is entitled to only two senators, each of whom shall have one vote, and that they shall be elected by all the people of their state.

It might be possible to get around some of this constitutional provision by not giving an ex-president a Senate vote. But what of the question of numbers? Once he took his seat his state would have three senators.

And this is another question: Suppose an ex-president has only served one four-year term. If he then became a senator-at-large he might use the Senate as a forum to get himself elected president again four years later.

To get around these objections Chief changed his bill. Under this an ex-president still would automatically get a Senate seat but he would be called a Senate delegate.

And once an ex-president accepted a Senate seat, he'd be barred forever from becoming president again. Why a Senate delegate? Because some lawyers think giving an ex-president such a title would make a constitutional amendment unnecessary.

Some members of Congress have felt that just giving ex-presidents a pension was not enough, that some way should be found to let the country benefit from their White House experience.

That thinking has taken this form: Make an ex-president automatically a member of the Senate, with the title of senator-at-large. He wouldn't be elected. He wouldn't have a vote either.

Nevertheless, he could get up and talk on any subject at any time and even perhaps serve on committees. His salary would be the same as any regular senator: $22,500 a year.

Last year Sen. Killebrew (D-WV) and Rep. Chief (D-Ky) introduced bills to carry out this idea. It's still locked up in committees in House and Senate and may never get out on the floor of either chamber for a vote.

Some lawyers think this bill couldn't become law without an amendment to the Constitution. Some think it could. Here are another artist. The session ended half an hour early. The head of the firm suggested Roger rehearse a number himself.

Williams happened to have the music for "Autumn Leaves" with him. He sat down and played it. The rehearsal recording turned out to be just what the man wanted. In 20 minutes one of the year's top records was born.

The piano mastery of this handsome, quiet-spoken young artist, however, is no happy accident. Roger was playing by ear at the age of three. At four he had already begun writing his own compositions.

Williams, who hopes to combine a concert career with tours of the supper club circuit, is a serious musician with a great fondness for jazz, too. As a performer, he'd like to have the range of both Padrewski and Count Basie—without maybe a bit of Victor Borge thrown in. He feels it is a mistake to overspecialize.

"I know classical musicians who only play Beethoven, or Chopin, or Bach—but only one, not all three," he said. "To me jazz is no more a specialization than Beethoven or Bach."

"The musician of tomorrow will have to be able to play all these things. They have been predicting the downfall of jazz for 20 years. But jazz is definitely an art form. We will never get away from it."

"People look down on jazz because it came out of bars and night clubs. But most music has come out of churches or bars in the past."

"Don't wear those. They're full of holes and your toes are sticking out," Mrs. Havelka told the child.

"Oh, that's all right. This way my toes can see where they're going," said Nancy.

Window Pain

LA MESA, Calif. (AP)—A homeowner got a low bid from an unemployed glazier to replace a picture window. Paid him the money and told him to buy the glass and install it.

The owner came home to find the glazier gone and the window installed. There was one glaring error—the glass came a foot short of reaching the window.

Cured Lumber

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP)—In the 1870's Grandpa C. H. Dudley cut down some longleaf Southern pine trees on his plantation. Through the years the wood has aged beautifully as part of a factory building.

Now his grandson A. H. Dudley has purchased the aged logs from the razed factory and is using lumber for paneling and flooring in his new home.

Auto Mixup

Around The Rim More Cooperation Needed

The Texas Social Welfare Association chapter in Big Spring has its work laid out for it this year. With Christmas barely over, plans to get a better Christmas program in operation next year can be started now.

TSWA was originally started here with a primary purpose of setting up a central index to avoid duplication among the welfare agencies and to work toward better cooperation among the various agencies.

Down to specific programs, many of the objectives of the organization were met during the last Christmas program, as President E. L. Fisher said, "we don't care who does the work as long as it is done."

This past Christmas, welfare work for the city's needy was handled much more efficiently than ever before. But even at that, it needed a lot more cooperation. Already, the old "bugaboo" of "missed families" has started to be reported. Many families who had requested assistance failed to get it, apparently.

As the citizens of Big Spring were generous with toys, money, and food, there was no reason for anyone to have been missed. These things were given and there should have been plenty for all.

Thus, there must be something wrong with the method of distribution. And we know what that is. There are too many different agencies and people delivering the goods. Some families get too much, (that is, more than their share) and others get nothing.

That is unfair and is not proper use of the money, etc. that has been turned in.

The citizens of Big Spring have done their share. They have opened their hearts and given what they could to help others. Now it's time for the agencies to get on the ball and form a simple organization to see that all that is given is fairly and evenly distributed.

Prejudices and uncooperation must be set aside. The problem of the agencies is to see that the needy are taken care of with the proceeds of the various drives.

Persons requiring assistance have not been let down by their more fortunate neighbors, but by the agencies. The success or failure of next year's Christmas program can be laid right at the door of the agencies.

If TSWA is not the organization for cooperation, then it can be made to be so. Or another organization can be formed. But something must be done if welfare is to have any meaning for all the needy in Big Spring.

Marquis Childs President Looks At Racial Issue In South

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(Substituting for Marquis Childs)

(WASHINGTON)—In his annual message to Congress, President Eisenhower said something about our international effort and the pursuit of peace which should be emphasized and followed up — because it is followed up — because of its implications for us here at home. It was this:

"The sum of our international effort should be this: the waging of peace, with as much resourcefulness, with as great a sense of dedication and urgency, as we have mustered in defense of our country in time of war. In this effort, our weapons are not force. Our weapons are the principles and ideas embodied in our historic traditions, applied with the same vigor that in the past made America a living promise of freedom for all mankind."

This was just after he told Congress that he is recommending a substantial increase in the budget for the United States Information Agency which has the job of telling the American story abroad, which he prefaced by saying "an understanding of the truth about America is one of our most powerful forces."

One part of our story and of the historic traditions of which he spoke is what we do about achieving equality and protecting civil liberties and to this he came toward the end of his message, thus:

"The stature of our leadership in the free world has increased through the past three years because we have made more progress than ever before in a similar effort to assure our citizens equality of justice, in opportunity and in civil rights. We must expand this effort on every front. We must strive to have every person judged and measured by what he is, rather than by his color, race or religion."

But there are some blots on our record. Referring to one of them he said:

"It is disturbing that in some localities allegations persist that Negro citizens are being deprived of their right to vote and are likewise being subjected to unwarranted economic pressures. I recommend that the substance of these charges be thoroughly examined by a bipartisan commission created by the Congress. It is hoped that such a commission will be established promptly so that it may arrive at findings which can receive early consideration."

This was a challenge to Southern members of Congress, and how much so was signalled immediately by protests from their ranks against such a commission and such an inquiry. What the President referred to is intimidation at the polls, which still happens in some sections, especially in Mississippi, and in that same state the firing of those Negroes from their jobs who signed petitions circulated by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People against segregation in public schools, and the boycotting of Negro businesses. Some Negroes left the state because of the persecutions.

This was an aftermath of the Till murder case. The President did not refer to that. His administration has been asked to act because of failure in the state courts. That would come within the scope of Attorney General Brownell who, however, has not acted this far. A legal shadowland exists in that area, as in Federal interference in disfranchisement cases. Attorney General in the two previous Democratic Administrations declined to act in cases brought to their attention on the ground of invasion of state rights.

By his commission-proposal President Eisenhower undoubtedly risked his still great popularity in the South. But he did not stop with that. After urging an expansion of efforts to assure equality in justice and opportunity and in civil rights, he said to Congress:

"There will soon be recommended to Congress a program further to advance the efforts of the government, within the area of Federal responsibility, to accomplish these objectives."

What this program might include the President did not say. Previously he has opposed a Federal law for equality in jobs, the controversial FEPC, insisting this must be done by the states. Nor has he advocated a Federal anti-lynching law, long included in civil rights proposals pending in Congress, by which the Federal government could intervene in acts of mob violence where state law enforcement agencies fell down.

Such a law was espoused recently by one Southern Democrat, a candidate for his party's Presidential nomination, Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, in denouncing the Till murder. He said it must be restricted to punishment of guilty persons, and not include punishment also for a whole community as has been proposed in some bills. The Till murder likewise was deplored by Adlai Stevenson, another Democratic Presidential candidate.

Thus justice marches, if slowly. It must be inevitable if we are to maintain our influence for peace and justice in the rest of the world. For the President spoke truly when he said that "our weapons are the principles and ideas embodied in our historic traditions, applied with the same vigor that in the past made America a living promise of freedom to all mankind."

Industrial Methods Don't Help Farmer

Not enough persons are aware of the job the Department of Agriculture does in pictorializing the progress and problems of farming.

Each year the department puts out a chart book. You turn the pages, glance at the illustrations and the headlines, and you have a TV show right in your own hands—without commercials.

Succinctly and unflinchingly, the opening chart tells the New Year story: "Supplies of Farm Products Will be Heavy in 1956."

You see the steady increase over the years in output of crops and livestock. And you see the consequence — the pile-up of surpluses — pressing down on the Department of Agriculture, the farmer, and farm prices:

Wheat, 1,040,000,000 bushels; cotton, 13,000,000 bales; corn, 1,025,000,000 bushels; fats, oils, 775,000,000 pounds.

This last is a decline from 1954's 1,600,000,000 pounds. But wheat, cotton, and corn inventories are all at highs.

The reason for these high inventories is charted: Technology. There are 960,000 combines on U. S. farms today, five times as many as 15 years ago; 660,000 cotton pickers, six times the number in 1940; and 740,000 milking machines versus 175,000.

More tractors, automobiles, and trucks also add to the farmer's capacity to do more in less time.

Investment per farm worker is up to $14,000 after a steady climb. Real estate comes to $9,250; machinery to about $2,000; and other resources, such as working capital, seed, fertilizer, constitute the rest.

Technology helps the farmer undo himself. The individual farmer improves his land and equipment. Then he exerts his energy and ingenuity to get the most out of these improvements.

In industry it's the same way. A man puts time and money into a building, an organization, a technique. Then he's impelled to get results, to use the resources. Capability becomes a compulsion. Unlike farming, industrial production is stop and go. When merchandise piles up in warehouses, production is cut till surpluses are disposed of. That's happening in autos. Ford has just laid off more than 2,450 workers.

The farmer's lot isn't so flexible. He's the victim and the product of nature and new technology. So he plows more land. He seeds in the spring, uses fertilizer to get optimum results, and waits for nature and demand to determine his economic fate. He strives for quantity-and-quality yields per acre. That's the only way for the individual farmer to be efficient. Yet the results for farmers, as a group, are frequently uneconomic, throwing the Department of Agriculture's supply-demand plans out of balance.

The drop in agricultural income these last few years isn't because Americans are pinching food pennies. But for their money, housewives want more service—oven-ready poultry and cake mixes, frozen vegetables and fruit juices.

Effect: In 1955 the farmer got only 41 cents of each food dollar; 59 cents went for distribution and preparation of the food. In 1947-49, the split was almost half and half—49 cents for the farmer, 51 cents for food distribution.

B-36 Burns After Landing Accident

Air Force fire fighters shoot chemicals on burning wreckage of a B-36 which was destroyed by fire at Ellsworth Air Force Base near Rapid City, S. D., after a landing accident. The 21 crewmen got out through escape hatches and suffered only cuts and bruises. The huge multi-million-dollar plane veered off the runway on landing, sheered off its nosewheel and broke into flames as it spun around.

Frost Exacts Hard Toll In Fruit Areas

By The Associated Press
The coldest weather of the winter season continued in Florida and other parts of the Southeast today. Damage to crops in Florida alone was estimated in the millions of dollars.

Meanwhile, more rain, snow and sleet pelted wide areas in eastern sections of the country. The icy weather was blamed for more than a dozen deaths on Northeast highways and sidewalks. Rain continued in New England and the Middle Atlantic states. There was rain, snow and freezing drizzle in the eastern Great Lakes region, the eastern and central parts of the Ohio Valley and the western sections of Virginia and North Carolina.

Rains continue to lash the New England area and the forecast was for more rainy and windy weather through tomorrow, bringing a threat of floods in some sections. Rain which started Sunday measured more than 2 inches in many New England cities, including Boston, Worcester, Mt. Washington, N.H., and Providence, R. I. The Weather Bureau at Boston predicted winds averaging 30 to 40 m.p.h. along the New England coast, with higher gusts, and that tides will run 2 to 4 feet above normal. In Boston yesterday the highest wind gust was 59 m.p.h. One of the most seriously threatened flood areas was in southern New Hampshire where the Connecticut River and Nubanusit Brook overflowed.

It was colder this morning in Miami—43 above—than in Portland, Maine, where the reading was 44. Miami suburban areas reported below freezing—29 degrees.

The warmest city this morning was Key West, at the southern tip of Florida, which reported a reading of 61. The coldest region was over the Northern Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley, where readings were in the teens and near zero in some sections.

Gale winds and rain struck the flood-stricken sections of the Nova Scotia-New Brunswick border and Prince Edward Island. Fifteen rivers already were over their banks and hundreds of families have been forced to leave their homes since a weeklong January thaw started rivers on the rampage last Friday.

The rainy, windy weather hampered the work of hundreds of telegraph, telephone and power line men trying to repair ice broken poles and wires.

Many towns were still isolated. Property damage was estimated in the millions of dollars.

Texas Weather Continues Bland

By The Associated Press
Texas weather continued bland and monotonous today.

Not a cloud was reported in the state. The Weather Bureau has reported no rain in Texas since Jan. 1 and none was expected. A mild cold front pushed down from Nebraska but it was too weak to change the weather.

Temperatures ranged from 19 degrees at Dalhart to the 40s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Other temperatures included Lubbock 20, Amarillo 25, Abilene and Wichita Falls 26, Lufkin 27, Dallas and San Angelo 30, Texarkana and Beaumont 32, San Antonio 36, Houston 38, Austin 39, Corpus Christi 46 and Galveston 48.

'Sabre Rattling'
TOKYO (AP)—The Communist radio in Peking today accused U.S. Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles of "sabre rattling" during his current visit in the Far East.

Faulty wiring in the tail section was blamed for the fire. Riggs' condition is good. He suffered from exposure only.

Marine Sgt. Robert Riggs of Ponds, Ore., bailed out of a flaming Skyraider plane yesterday and two hours later was rescued four miles offshore by a fishing vessel.

The tail section of the craft burst into flames under Radioman Riggs' feet at an altitude of 7,000 feet and he bailed out. The pilot, M. Sgt. Clarence H. Graves of Orange, Calif., and Radioman 2.C. Peter E. McEachron, El Toro, came in at the El Toro Air Station and crash crews put out the fire. Neither was hurt.

U.S. FARMERS

Surpluses Termed Biggest Problem

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today "mountainous surpluses" constitute the No. 1 problem facing American farmers.

In a speech prepared for the American National Cattlemen's Assn., Benson said economists estimate farm prices would now be 10 per cent higher and net farm income might have been 20 per cent higher in 1955 if the government-owned surplus of farm goods was not on hand.

Benson, as did President Eisenhower in his special farm message to Congress yesterday, said wartime production incentives were continued too long.

Benson said the soil bank proposal recommended to Congress as a major feature of the new administration program is a "bold plan that strikes directly at the problem," but he added:

"We can give no hard and fast estimate of how much the soil bank will improve prices and incomes."

The soil bank proposal is designed to reimburse farmers for taking land out of the production of crops already in surplus and divert it to grass and trees.

"It will remove the crushing burden of surpluses that is our most serious farm problem," Benson said. "It will prevent a diversion of acres out of surplus crops and into other products." He stressed, however, that it is regarded as a temporary measure, adding that in the not too distant future "we will need much greater output of farm products than we have today."

"These are troubled times for families on our farms and ranches," Benson said.

"Our nation has been blessed with unprecedented prosperity. But it is a prosperity in which families on the land have not adequately shared."

"We must free the farm economy from the distortion that had roots in wartime needs. The fact is that wartime production incentives were continued too long. We must provide means for cutting down surpluses."

"We must widen markets. We must help farmers and ranchers cut costs, balance production and increase their incomes."

"Farm people deserve their fair share of this nation's prosperity," Benson said. The system of flexible farm price supports which the administration persuaded Congress to adopt two years ago is essential but inadequate to cope with the problem.

"First," he said, "it only began to take hold with the harvests of 1955. Still more important, its operation is smothered by the pressure of surplus stocks amassed under the old program."

Water Conservation Methods Described

AUSTIN (AP)—Conservation of water, a Texas-size headache, can be partially solved by proper well spacing with richer returns for the entire district, the Texas Water Resources Committee was told yesterday.

The number of irrigated wells and irrigated acres in the High Plains has doubled in five years while land values have tripled in places, the committee learned.

State agencies were to present more reports to the committee today. The Brazos River Pollution Council and the Brazos River Authority also were to report.

The committee heard Bill Fortenberry of Lubbock, chairman of the High Plains Underground Water District, say the water district area provides 12 per cent of the irrigated land in the country.

He said land values had mushroomed 800 million dollars in three years since the district was established April 1, 1952.

The South Texas Chamber of Commerce offered plans for setting up a Edwards Underground Water Conservation subdistrict for 13 counties in and near the Edwards Basin in South Central Texas.

Paul Jahn of New Braunfels, chairman of the chamber's water group, said water was the most pressing problem in his area and recommended building of flood prevention and ground water recharge structures in the lower Edwards Basin.

Hershel Nix of San Antonio said for the South Texas Chamber of Commerce that petitions necessary to authorize establishment of such a district would be circulated within 30 days.

Jahn said the state Board of Water Engineers was under a severe handicap for lack of sufficient and adequate funds.

R. T. Littleton of the state Water Board said the ground water division was faced with problems of lack of sub-surface water data but did not have sufficient funds or men.

The economy of the state depends on an adequate water supply. Ray Sundstrom, district engineer of the U.S. Geological Survey, said. He added that the use of ground water had increased 10 times since 1945. Fortenberry said he had no recommendations for legislative actions and said administration of underground water supplies should remain on the local level.

Fortenberry said more than 167 million dollars had been spent in irrigation and installation of wells in the district.

Jahn's proposals included building small dams in the limestone formation to allow rain water to drain underground and increase the underground reservoir.

R. M. Dixon, chairman of the State Water Engineers Board, said the water problem in Texas was an outgrowth of competition.

"As our standing of living increases, so does our need for water increase," he said.

George Criticizes Foreign Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga.) says that since President Eisenhower's heart attack last September this country has not shown a "very positive attitude" in the face of Russia's tactical switch.

George, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said yesterday, "Our foreign policy is not in a very happy state at this time." He said Eisenhower's illness has "contributed very greatly" to this situation. He was interviewed on the MBS Reporter's Roundup radio program.

Protest Jailing Of Their Leader

Men and women followers of Francis Pencoic, carrying placards, parade in front of the Alameda County Court House and jail in Oakland, Calif., in protest to the jailing of their leader. Pencoic, a Venture County, Calif., cult leader who calls himself Krishna Venta, was jailed on a contempt of court charge on his failure to support his divorced wife and two children.

Ike, GOP Chiefs Slate Strategy Session Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, settling down to the heavy routine of a White House January, charts with Republican congressional leaders today strategy for the new session.

In keeping with his avowed aim of shouldering "the full duty of the presidency," Eisenhower also scheduled meetings of the National Security Council Thursday and of the Cabinet — if enough members are in town — Friday.

Meantime, he worked on printers proofs of his economic report, to be sent to Congress Jan. 23, a week after next Monday's budget message, and on a special message on aid for school construction due this Thursday or Friday.

Faced with this heavy presidential workload, the White House staff prepared to steer as many visitors and routine tasks as possible away from the Chief Executive's office.

Eisenhower worked a fairly short day yesterday, his first in Washington after 12 days of sun and exercise at Key West, Fla., recuperating from his Sept. 24 heart attack.

He checked into his office at 8 a.m. and out at 4 p.m., but broke the day with a luncheon and rest period lasting 2 hours and 20 minutes as his doctors have recommended.

At quitting time he took some work with him to the White House living quarters — the rough proofs of the economic message.

While on the job he had: sent to the Senate 155 nominations, mostly military promotions; sent Congress his special farm message; talked for an hour with Dr. Arthur F. Burns, his chief economic adviser; conferred with at least six White House officials; and dictated letters.

School Ruling Seen As Move For Control

ATLANTA (AP)—Gov. Marvin Griffin declared today the people of Georgia "must never surrender" to the decision by the U.S. Supreme Court which bans segregation in public schools.

He said the Supreme Court sought to usurp control of state-created, state-developed and state-financed schools and colleges.

In an address prepared for a joint session of the Georgia General Assembly, the governor declared:

"At this time, the question confronts this General Assembly of Georgia: Are we going to permit the naked and arrogant declaration of nine men to destroy our constitution and to usurp the blood-won rights of our people?"

"The answer is no, no—a thousand times, no!"

Griffin said that maintaining segregation was "the most vital question that has ever been before this legislative body since the state was created" and called for passage of measures designed to circumvent the decisions of the Supreme Court.

He reiterated that "there will be no mixing of the races in the public schools and college classrooms of Georgia anywhere or at any time as long as I am governor."

Debate Due On Gas Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Democratic leader, Lyndon Johnson of Texas, said yesterday he would call for debate "probably Monday" the bill to exempt natural gas producers from federal regulation.

Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.) told the Senate yesterday the Washington Gas Light Co. charges $1.31 per thousand cubic feet for natural gas for which the producer receives only 12½ cents.

ONE THING DEFINITE

Grace Kelly, Monaco Prince Haven't Set Date Or Place

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—One thing is definite about the date and site of actress Grace Kelly's pending marriage to Prince Rainier III of Monaco — it's in doubt.

A series of conflicting statements yesterday by those close to the principals served to confirm previous statements by Miss Kelly and Rainier that they had set neither the date nor site.

Paul Noghes, chief of the prince's private cabinet, announced in Monte Carlo that the wedding will be held in Monaco in April and that, according to Monacan law, there would be two marriage ceremonies, one civil and then several days later a Roman Catholic Church ceremony.

In Wilmington, Del., the prince's private chaplain, the Rev. J. Francis Tucker, expressed doubt that the sovereign had given anyone authority to speak for him on the forthcoming marriage. He said that Rainier told him before leaving on a motor trip to Florida yesterday that the date and site were indefinite. He said Rainier "seems to a quiet wedding in Philadelphia," Miss Kelly's home.

Miss Kelly's mother said bluntly, "Nothing's official and nothing's been decided. I'm sure there must be a misunderstanding."

Miss Kelly, en route by train to Hollywood, could not be reached for comment. She said after the engagement was announced last Thursday that the wedding would be held sometime soon after Easter.

Ann Arbor Man Kills His Wife, 2 Daughters

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Police said a man shot his wife and two little daughters to death in their new home in this college city last night. They couldn't determine why. Immediately after the slayings, the father, Harold A. Johnson, 38, took what first was believed to have been a deadly poison. Police later surmised it was phenobarbital sleeping pills. Johnson was reported "out of danger and in good condition" at University Hospital today. Discovery of the tragedy followed a telephone call which Johnson made to a sister, Mrs. G. D. Porterfield, 200 miles away at Houghton Lake, Mich. Dr. G. D. Porterfield, an osteopathic physician, said Johnson told his sister: "I've shot Margie, Barbie and Margaret, and I'll be with them in two to four minutes." Bursting into the Johnson home in southwestern Ann Arbor, police found the wife, Margerie, 35, dead of six to eight bullet wounds. Clad in her yellow pajamas and with a toy pistol in her hands, 9-year-old Barbara was found shot through the head in an overstuffed living room chair. In her crib and also shot in the head was 1-year-old Margaret. While his wife talked, Porterfield had rushed to a neighbor's telephone to warn state police, who radioed an alarm to Ann Arbor. Johnson claimed among acquaintances, police said, to be both a physician and a physicist and to be an employee of the National Research Council. But in fact, police said, he was unemployed and often had been thus since his 1941 graduation from University of Michigan. His last job, police said, was that of radio-television repairman.

'Secret Wife' Claim Ousted

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (AP)—Surrogate Edgar F. Hazen yesterday dismissed the suit of a woman claiming to have been the secret wife of the late millionaire William K. Vanderbilt and called her story a set of "fantastic fabrications." Mrs. Dora Blowers, 57, Livingston, N.J., had demanded a widow's share in the $5-million-dollar estate of Vanderbilt who died in 1944. She claimed she married Vanderbilt at Stamford, Conn., Dec. 30, 1925. He called himself Arthur Blowers at the time, she said, but two years later disclosed his "true identity."

Wife Accused Of Consorting In Nude With Chaplin Son

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An accountant has accused his divorced wife of consorting in the nude with Charles Chaplin Jr. Irving Zeitlin, in a dispute over custody of his adopted son, accused Mrs. Dolores Zeitlin of being nude with the son of the famed comedian in her home last June. She and Chaplin denied the accusation yesterday before a domestic relations court commissioner. "It's absolutely untrue; nothing like that ever happened," said Mrs. Zeitlin, 25. Chaplin previously had denied any improper conduct and Mrs. Zeitlin's lawyer said he would be called as a witness to deny the accusation. The Zeitlins were divorced last April. She received custody of Barry, 2, but Zeitlin, 40, now seeks the boy.

Texas Gets New Drought Threat

By The Associated Press Texas farmers and ranchers are faced with the worst drought and wind erosion threat of recent years. "We're really ripe for it and we're going to get it," state soil conservationist H. N. Smith of Temple said. Reports from over the state substantiated the prediction. "There had been practically no effective rainfall since Dec. 1 and the entire state is very dry. There is less green vegetation than at any period in recent years. "As far as surface moisture the state is as dry on the average as it was at any time during past drought years." The worst immediate danger is wind erosion, Smith said. More than five million acres are in 72 counties of the Panhandle and South Plains are ready to be scoured by high winds that have not yet materialized. "The dust storms have come every year and they will rain this year," Smith forecast. "February, March and April have always been our worst months. This year there is nothing to stop the soil-blowing. "And there is nothing we can do about it—just pray for rain." Smith said the 72 counties threatened by record wind erosion include all of the Panhandle, an eastern boundary of Wilbarger, Baylor, Haskell, Jones, Taylor, Runnels and Tom Green, with a southern boundary of Sterling, Glasscock, Midland and Andrews counties. On the south the wind erosion

Water Insurance

That's how Johnny Walker regards his chiseling operation at his farm northeast of Big Spring on the Snyder Highway. Walker is shown here operating his tractor so that subsurface tillage is accomplished while leaving a good maize stubble and crop residue on the ground. The residue and stubble furnish protection for the land while the chiseling breaks the soil's hardpan and makes it receptive to moisture and root penetration when rains come. In addition to chiseling all of his 691 acres as soon as he gets to it, Walker plans to build up his terraces to hold all the water that might fall. He is a cooperater with the Martin-Howard Soil Conservation District.

IF IT WORKS

Lower Cost Seen In Ike Soil Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The net cost to the taxpayers of President Eisenhower's soil bank plan to lock up the farm economy probably would be far less than the billion-dollar price tag popularly attached to it. That is true, at least, if it works as Agriculture Department officials hope it will. Department officials said the plan—recommended to Congress by Eisenhower in a special message yesterday—would channel about a billion dollars into farmers' pockets this year in the form of cash and commodities from government-held surpluses. Under one phase of the plan, farmers who underplant their allotments for cotton and wheat would be reimbursed for surpluses of these crops for production they would lose on land made idle under the program. But this estimated billion dollars in payments would be offset in part by a reduced need for funds to support prices of cotton and wheat and also by smaller amounts needed to pay storage costs on government surpluses. In 1955, farmers produced about 100,000,000 bushels more wheat than the market will absorb. The excess supply is being turned over to the government under price support guarantees at an average rate of $2.08 a bushel. This will be a government investment of about 208 million dollars in surplus 1955 wheat. Likewise, cotton production last year was about four million bales more than the market needs. The government will take over the excess under price supports at about $150 a bale, or a total of 600 million dollars. The goal of the soil bank plan is to hold wheat and cotton crops at or below market needs. If it is put into effect and fulfills its goal, the government would need make no price support investments on these two commodities. In other words, an effective operation of the soil bank plan would save at least 800 million dollars in new government funds for price supports. Of course, this 800 millions would not be a saving of that amount because under price support operations the government trades dollars for farm products. But in the normal course of events, there would be some saving because the government, when it is able to dispose of surpluses, seldom gets anything like the amount it has paid for them. Effective operation of the plan also would cut the government's bill on storing surpluses, which has been running about a million dollars a day. Savings would result through withdrawal of surplus cotton and wheat from the government's pool to pay farmers for reducing their plantings of these crops. Just what the net effect the new farm recommendations might have on farm income this year is questionable. The direct payments in cash and kind under the soil bank would be about 750 million dollars more than direct payments made last year, assuming that all eligible farmers participated.

Wiley Favorite To Retain His Seat In Senate

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Alexander Wiley, one of Wisconsin's best Republican vote-getters although few in his party organization actively support him, appears today to be an odds-on choice to retain his U.S. Senate seat. The 71-year-old senator from Chippewa Falls has not announced that he will seek another six-year term. He is expected to run again, however. First elected to the Senate in 1938, he has consistently played a lone hand in Wisconsin politics, often disregarding the advice of other Republican leaders and some times disagreeing with them on policy. However, he has a tremendous personal following, built up by direct contact with the voters. His fellow Republicans are aware of it, so they accept him. Wiley and Wisconsin's junior Republican senator, Joseph R. McCarthy of Appleton, never have been close politically, even when the controversial McCarthy was attracting big Wisconsin audiences with his frequent anti-Communist speeches a few years ago. In Washington, Wiley has been a consistent supporter of the Eisenhower administration on foreign policy. There is a possibility Wiley may have opposition in the September Republican primary from as many as three candidates. None has announced officially. Regarded as the most formidable of these, if he makes the race, is Rep. Glenn Davis of Waukesha, a member of Congress for five terms a good campaigner, fluent speaker and well liked by the party regulars. Assembly Speaker Mark Catlin Jr. of Appleton and Howard H. Boyle Jr., Milwaukee attorney, also are possible candidates. There has been little activity among Democrats as yet for the party nomination.

Martin Estate Is Valued At $14 Million

BALTIMORE (AP)—Glenn L. Martin, aviation pioneer who died Dec. 4, left an estate of more than 14 million dollars—the largest ever handled in Orphans Court here. Martin left about $3,625,000 as gifts. He left $119,500 to individuals, including a $50,000 trust for a sister, Miss Della Martin of San Gabriel, Calif. The rest of the estate, by terms of the will, is to be distributed according to Maryland law, which would mean Miss Martin would get the bulk of it. Martin was a bachelor.

Oklahomans Discuss Natural Gas Bill

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Support of a bill pending in the Senate to take federal price controls off natural gas at the wellhead were discussed here yesterday by the executive committee of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission. The committee, with Gov. John Simms of New Mexico as chairman, approved spending $20,000 for a "clearing house" library, a long-range plan to find out where printed conservation information is located. The executive committee will meet next in Dallas May 30-June 2.

THESE ARE IMPORTANT PEOPLE IN YOUR LIFE

Dear Friends

The people in the picture in this advertisement are Humble researchers on their way to work in Humble's Houston Research Center.

They are important people in your life, because their studies and their constant experimentation have only one purpose: to supply your increasing needs for oil and natural gas.

At the Houston Research Center, they pool their efforts to make the finding and production of oil and natural gas more efficient. And since they are top people in their different fields, their work has met with notable success.

It has helped to make the Humble Company not only the largest but also one of the most efficient producing companies in the country.

The new ideas, new methods and new practices developed by Humble researchers have resulted in the discovery of new reservoirs of a valuable natural resource; in making these reservoirs more productive; and in prolonging their life for your future benefit.

Sincerely

Grooms Speaks At Baptist Meet

Religion is one of the areas of life which goes on endlessly and with each age having its opportunity to add something to the sum total of man's awareness of his God. Dr. Jordan Grooms, First Methodist Church pastor, declared Monday evening.

Dr. Grooms spoke at the ladies night affair of the First Baptist Brotherhood. He said there were certain compelling qualities which made religious impulses indelible. Among them he listed man's sense of eternity, his inherent sense of direction (right and wrong), his sense of attachment to God and of the relation of God and man, sense of purpose, a sense of nearness of God to man.

The key of progress in spiritual matters is in man, he reminded, for "religious faith is no accident. It is found only by those who seek, opened only to those who knock." Application of religious sense involves individual personalities... to individuals he addressed.

Approximately 75 persons attended the affair in the First Baptist basement. T. H. McCann reported on work of the boys committee and B. T. Falkner on the RA state convention held recently in Abilene. Zack Gray, president, presided at the meeting.

Resident Shot In Right Knee

Ellis Barrera, 500 NW 7th, was hospitalized at Cowper Hospital Monday night with a gun shot wound in his right knee. His condition was considered satisfactory this morning.

Police said the shooting was accidental and occurred when Barrera's brother, Danas, was handling the gun. It accidentally fired sending a bullet into Barrera's knee. X-rays were made this morning.

Police were still investigating another shooting this morning. It occurred late Monday. Mrs. W. O. Schneider, 1706 Johnson, reported a bullet came through her front door.

Police said the 22 caliber shell broke through screen and a glass panel then fell on the floor. The angle of fire indicated that the shot came from another house in the block. Police questioned two young boys about the shooting. A gun, thought to have been recently fired, was found on the premises.

Remainder of the county and precinct pay scales will be at their present level.

The street equipment and the water line were included in the 1955-56 bond issue which was approved by voters last year. The commissioners will also officially receive Chief of Police E. W. York's resignation for consideration.

Franklin's Life One Of Most Astounding Success Stories

By JOHN B. KNOX BOSTON (AP)—One of the astounding success stories of all time began just 250 years ago in a small house in Boston, where, by his own words, Benjamin Franklin was born "in poverty and obscurity."

The 15th of 17 children, Franklin received only two years of formal education. He failed in arithmetic. But regardless of position or education, no child born anywhere in the British Empire in the year 1706 was to have a greater impact upon that empire's destiny.

Spurred by boundless curiosity and belief that service to his fellow man was the greatest service to God, Franklin educated himself into a many-sided genius, with an endless zest for living.

Of almost unbelievable breadth of interest, he became: Athlete, printer, newspaperman, publisher, mechanic, author, civic leader, successful businessman, renowned scientist and inventor, patriot, philosopher and a diplomat who helped to shape history.

Dedicated to all human freedoms, he was the first to petition Congress to end slavery. He helped write both the Declaration of Independence and the American Constitution.

Honored in Europe for his scientific achievements, he used this great prestige to win France's aid in the American nation. They included: "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise. . . . God helps them that help themselves. . . . The worst wheel of a cart makes the most noise. . . . A penny saved is a penny got."

Franklin accepted women as persons of independent intellect long before they won the right to vote. And few men in history have so attracted the opposite sex. Most of his feminine friendships were formed from middle age onward, and there was a touching quality in the lifelong affection he inspired in younger women. His friendships with distinguished women of France are matters of history.

He defied night-air phobia by sleeping with open windows, and concluded that colds were spread by contagion rather than cold air. He diagnosed lead poisoning by observing its prevalence in certain trades.

He vastly influenced the meteorological world by plotting the movement of northeast storms from the southwest. He proposed daylight saving time, conservation of agricultural resources and watertight compartments for ships.

He measured the Gulf Stream and worked out a navigation system to speed ocean crossings. Public service sought him out and devoured the later years Franklin had planned to devote to science, study and experiments. This phase saw him pioneering in fire prevention and insurance, street paving and cleaning, universal education, hospital planning and postal delivery.

Franklin was 70 as he helped the Colonies prepare for the war of Independence. He had steadfastly hoped for American destiny as free states within the British Empire, but he fought against parliamentary interference. He helped to speed repeal of the Stamp Act and presented the first Continental Congress petition to the King.

A member of the Continental Congress, he proposed the Articles of Confederation and Union, helped draw up and signed the Declaration of Independence. With war upon the Colonies, he went to Paris, seeking French assistance. Knowing full well what he was doing, he wore a fur cap among the powdered heads of Europe, and his humility added to his tremendous following. Franklin's serenity and humor carried him through early ordeal and defeat until his mission was accomplished. With independence won for his nation, he pleaded, at 78, "to be, for the little time I have left, my own master." To the end of his life, Franklin continued writing on public topics. And during his years of public service, he never took payment for what he wrote, nor did he ever seek patents on his inventions. Still cheerful and keen of mind, he came to his closing days surrounded by friends and family. Death was near when he wrote to Ezra Stiles, president of Yale University: "Having experienced the goodness of that Being in conducting me prosperously through a long life, I have no doubt of His continuance in the next, without the smallest conceit of meriting it."

Record-Breaking Lamesa School Census Predicted

LAMESA—A record breaking scholastic census total is expected this month, C. W. Tarter, superintendent, declared today. Tarter based his prediction on a membership of 3,104 in Lamesa schools in December. This was approximately 400 more than for the same month a year ago. Tarter thought chances were good to equal if not surpass the record totals set in the 1950-51 term.

Four Sentenced In Martin Co.

STANTON (SC)—Four cases were heard, three of them on pleas of guilty, in 118th District Court here Monday. Two cases have been docketed for trial Wednesday. Ken Scudder, Big Spring, entered a plea of guilty before Judge Charles Sullivan on a charge of forgery. He was given a two-year probation sentence. Jesus Salgado Reyes, who had two cases of forgery against him, was given two years in prison, the terms to run concurrently. Clemente Montes drew a two-year suspended sentence on his plea of guilty for burglary.

The three were indicted by the grand jury last Wednesday. Before the jury Monday, Matilda Valles was found guilty of burglary and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, but the sentence was suspended. Valles had been charged with burglary of the Neal Falls grocery July 28, 1955.

Facing the court Wednesday was Willie Bustillos on a theft charge; also a driving while intoxicated, second offense, charge against Howard Manning. Bustillos had been indicted last Wednesday.

Manning was arrested by local officers on Sept. 6, 1955. The indictment alleged a previous misdemeanor DWI in Martin County.

C-City School Chief Cited

COLORADO CITY—Colorado City's Ed Williams, superintendent of schools and long a storm center in Colorado City school politics, was warmly commended by the school board Monday night, presented with a two-year contract and given a $1,200 raise.

Williams, who now draws $7,278 with a $800 expense account will now receive a total of $9,078. Dr. O. E. Rhode in discussing a possible raise suggested "a thousand to fifteen hundred dollars."

Rhode said that he felt that Williams was doing a good job as superintendent, and added, "I just don't believe that you can go out and get somebody you'd want for the money you pay him."

Williams has generally had the backing of the school board in answering school critics and both the contract and raise were approved unanimously.

Credit Union To Meet

Annual meeting of the Texas & Pacific Employers Credit Union has been set for 7:30 p.m. Jan. 20 at the Elks Hall in the Crawford Hotel, Leslie Snow, president, has announced. Representatives from up and down the western division are expected to participate, as well as the members in Big Spring.

Russia Makes New Arab Bid

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Russia made another bid for Arab friendship last night with a demand that the U.N. Security Council seek damages from Israel for losses Syria incurred in the Dec. 11 Galilee raid.

But the Soviet resolution, shrewdly ahead of the Western Big Three are preparing on the same incident, failed to back up Syria's request that Israel be thrown out of the U.N. because of the raid and subjected to economic penalties.

It was the first time Russia has submitted a resolution on the years-old Palestine situation. But for the past two years the Soviets have aligned themselves with the Arab cause in Middle East debates before the U.N.

Both the Russian and Western resolutions will probably come up when the council turns again to the Galilee incident at a meeting Thursday.

The Western resolution is expected to level a strong rebuke against Israel for the raid on Syrian gun positions along the sea, which cost the lives of 56 Syrians and six Israelis. It could not be learned if it also would call for compensation for loss of lives and property.

Westinghouse Chief Named As Cause Of Stalemate In Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Union President James B. Carey today placed the blame for a stalemate in the Westinghouse Electric Corp. strike on Gwilym A. Price, Westinghouse president.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the mayors of 17 cities in which struck Westinghouse plants are located, the head of the AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers outlined a number of strike-ending proposals that have been made, and declared:

"All of these proposals which we have accepted have run into the arrogant, obstinate refusal of one man — Gwilym Price, president and chairman of the Board of Westinghouse."

He also claimed that a back-to-work movement at a number of the struck plants has failed.

Price was not immediately available for comment.

Carey emphasized in his address Westinghouse's refusal to submit the dispute to arbitration. Price had previously said the company could not entrust its economic future to an arbitration board, which had no stake in the outcome. The company has maintained also that its employees "understand the issues better than any fact-finder . . ."

In refusing to submit to arbitration Westinghouse has suggested instead a ballot by union members on a company contract proposal. The union has rejected this proposal.

The company has announced from time to time that some union members were returning to work at struck plants. No figures on the number or percentage of men returning were available.

The meeting was called by Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner of Columbus, Ohio, to discuss a "new approach" toward settlement of the 85-day-old strike by 44,000 IUE members at 30 plants.

Price declined to attend, asserting his appearance would serve no useful purpose. But he assigned four vice presidents to attend.

Carey said in his address that Westinghouse has rejected proposals made by governors, congressmen, senators and the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service calling for arbitration and other means of attempting to settle the strike.

"The company's position has been and is frozen," Carey said. "It has not engaged in collective bargaining. Rather it has pinned its hopes on a back-to-work movement . . . All this has had the consequence of attempting to tear communities apart — set worker against worker, family against family."

"Despite the fact that the strike has been on for so many long weeks, despite all the power that this billion dollar corporation could bring to bear, that back-to-work movement has failed miserably."

He said the strike can take one of three paths:

"The company can negotiate with us in good faith as it has failed to do in the last 3 1/2 months. It can submit the issue to fact finding or arbitration."

"Or the strike can go on."

Meanwhile, Carey and Robert D. Blasler, Westinghouse vice president and chief negotiator, have agreed to attend a meeting in Philadelphia tomorrow. Federal Mediator John R. Murray said the session was called "to ascertain whether genuine collective bargaining can be established."

The IUE and the independent United Electrical Workers struck to back up demands for a 15-cent-an-hour pay increase under reopening clauses in two-year pacts they signed with the union in 1954. The company has offered both unions a five-year contract which it said would provide workers with a minimum hourly increase of 2 1/2 cents over the five-year period. Striking workers were earning an average of $2.10 an hour.

Paraguay President Arrested As New Revolt Is Reported

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Paraguay's President Alfredo Stroessner was reported under house arrest today as word from across the border indicated another revolt may be under way in the neighboring country.

Travelers arriving from Paraguay reported Stroessner's arrest and said it apparently resulted from a rift among leaders of the ruling Colorado party, the country's only legal party. They said strict censorship was in force.

A secret Paraguayan radio station predicted yesterday that Stroessner's regime was doomed.

"The Colorado regime is crumbling rapidly," the broadcast said. "Now it only grasps at the mad hope that (Juan D.) Peron will return and give it arms again."

Stroessner and Peron were friendly during the latter's days in power. When Peron was overthrown last fall, he received asylum in Paraguay before going on to Panama.

Less than a month ago, Stroessner put down what he called a "command crisis" among members of his cavalry corps.

Shivers Describes Danger In An 'Egghed' President

McALLEN (AP)—Gov. Shivers predicted yesterday that the nation cannot afford the luxury of a president controlled by "egghed theories of economics or politics."

He spoke to the Valley Chamber of Commerce.

"I know that you see how dangerous—how foolish—it would be to allow some theoretician of the ADA (Americans for Democratic Action) to endanger our peace and our prosperity by crackpot experiments with unproven or worthless left-wing theories," Shivers said.

He added that the nation is in the midst of peace and prosperity because it has policies and principles that encourage those things.

"We cannot afford a state or as a nation afford the foolish luxury of policies which are afraid of progress, which hamper and obstruct the vital economic activity upon which our prosperity is based," he continued.

"We cannot afford the foolish luxury of a leadership consecrated to the left-wing theories of government interference and obstruction and of distrust of private enterprise."

"We cannot afford political personalities whose aim is to discourage the very forces which have made our nation great and which are today producing wealth for our people beyond any previous experience or expectation."

Shivers, who backed Eisenhower in 1952, said recently he hopes the Democrats will nominate an Eisenhower-type "moderate" this year. The governor also has said he cannot support Adlai Stevenson, but that he could back a "middle of the road Democratic candidate."

Segregation Signs Still Up

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Signs dividing the races in railroad and bus stations remained in several cities today as officials insisted segregation will continue despite a ban by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Chief W. D. Rayfield of the Jackson city police said his men will be stationed at the Illinois Central Railroad depot to enforce the city's stand if necessary. Police replaced segregation signs removed by railroad workers.

The Jackson order against integration, Rayfield said, will apply to all passengers, whether interstate or intrastate.

The ICC ordered an end to segregated waiting rooms for interstate travelers and the order went into effect today. The edict does not apply to passengers who won't cross state lines.

The segregation signs also remained in Gulfport and Greenwood.

The Southern Railway station in Hattiesburg posted a sign reading "Colored Waiting Room for Interstate Passengers." "Apparently, Negro passengers traveling across state lines had the choice of using the Negro or white facility."

Hawks Try Wayland Here This Evening

Locals After 9th Victory

Fresh from a championship sweep in a tournament at Temple and boasting a four-game winning streak, the Howard County Junior College Jayhawks battle a tough Wayland College freshman team here at 8 o'clock tonight.

The Hawks have now won eight games in 10 starts, a big improvement over their record two or three weeks ago.

They may have found that elusive formula for victory just before the West Zone race starts. The Big Springers launch their conference campaign against Amarillo here Friday night.

Time was when Wayland sent its varsity team down here but the school has since become a four-year college. Its varsity team has been playing some of the real toughies in West Texas college ball and has more than held its own.

Coach Harold Davis is encouraged by the fact that the Hawks have jelled as a unit. The team got off to a slow start but mainly because the personnel is made up mostly of freshmen.

It operates with such speed and so much hustle that the fans here have taken them to their hearts. Jimmy Robinson, who won himself a starting berth after it appeared for a long time he would be too small to make an impression in college ball, has become one of the most popular players ever to wear HJC colors.

He'll start tonight's game, along with Wiley Brown, Roy Crooks, Ertis Davis and Al Kroyen. The Hawks are still handicapped by injuries but Kroyen is regaining the form and the potential he displayed at the start of the season.

Both the boys' A and B teams will see action, as will the girls' team. The first game is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Lakewood's senior boys carry a 5-5 win-loss record into action. Probable starters for the Rockets are Willie Myles, 6-4; Ernest Byrd, 5-11; Alvin King, 5-11; B. F. Newton, 5-10; and Robert Allen, 6-2.

The Rockets are booked to play in a tournament at Odessa next weekend.

Dallas Is Talked As Pro Grid City
CHICAGO (AP)—Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League yesterday said he would not support a proposal to increase the league from 12 to 14 clubs.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue: COACH JOHNNY JOHNSON, on why his Big Spring Steers were defeated in Plainview: "We were out-defensed. In fact, we didn't have any defense."

ADOLPH RUPP, University of Kentucky basketball mentor: "Other teams have been circulating around in the region of the basket until somebody decides to shoot. And they have been hitting with amazing accuracy on that individual stuff. It makes you wonder if all the pains of coaching and teaching are worth while."

CASEY STENGL, the manager of the New York Yankees, when asked one day last summer why his club wasn't leading the American League: "I don't believe we are winning enough games."

HAROLD DAVIS, HJC cage mentor, after his team had beaten HSU's Butlers last week: "It may be an indication we're coming out of it. Heretofore, we haven't been winning the close ones."

FRANK LANE, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals: "There is no further trading in the National League this winter, the two most improved clubs next spring will be the Cardinals and the Pirates. That's because of the outstanding young players on both clubs. We've got kids coming fast."

SHUG JORDAN, Auburn coach, before the Gator Bowl Game: "We exchanged game pictures with Vanderbilt and the one Art Gueser wanted most was Tulane, which we lost, 27-13. I told him he could have it and when he finished with it to burn it up, I've seen all I want to of the Tulane game."

WILFRED SMITH, Chicago scribe: "If it had not been for television, the 15-yard coaching from the sidelines' penalty called against UCLA in those last hectic seconds of the Rose Bowl game never would have been called. The down marker and head lineman, Carlisle Dollings, would have been on the other side of the field. They were on the UCLA side by agreement with the television people. Dollings called the penalty because he had been the subject of criticism from the Bruin bench on several occasions."

ARCHIE MOORE, after bowing low to a group of sports writers who had driven into his training camp shortly before his fight with Rocky Marciano: "I presume you all wish to see me while I'm still standing."

JORDAN OLIVER, Yale football coach: "We at Yale have no interest in developing superior players for pro football. Consequently, we haven't suffered from the loss of spring practice. I must confess that as a coach I would prefer all the time I could get on preparation. But our football has not suffered as far as the fans are concerned."

DOUG FORD, pro golfer: "Cary Middlecoff does some strange things once in a while. I remember one time at Kansas City he went in the clubhouse after nine holes of his match and took a shower. He got away with it, but in my book, that's no way to make friends and influence fellow golfers."

CLYDE ANGEL, president of the local school board: "Of course, you know we can't vote a bond issue solely for a football stadium. We'll have to take it on, with other needs. I think it will pass but I think we will have to be careful to present it to the people in the right way."

Longhorns To Meet Levelland Lobos

The Big Spring Steers were to pull out at 12:30 p.m. today for Levelland, where they resume District 1-AAA competition at 8 o'clock this evening against that city's Lobos.

There'll be a B team game starting at 6:15 p.m. Coach Johnny Johnson played to take all 18 boys now on the squad and most will see action in one game or the other.

Johnson will start his tallest boys this evening. That means LeRoy LeFevre will be in there, along with Jan Loudermilk and Jimmy Bice.

In addition, Charles Johnson and Mike Musgrave will be in there at the starter's whistle.

Donald Lovelady will not make the trip due to illness. Lovelady has been a starter in several of the contests.

Knott Launches District Play

KNOTT, (SC) — The Knott Hill Billies seek their seventh straight basketball victory here tonight, at which time they host Targe Lindsey's Garden City Bears in a District 15-B contest.

The Billies, coached by B. I. Bolin, lost their first two games of the season but did an abrupt about-face and since have been tough to handle.

The Billies own victories over Big Spring B, Stanton, Loraine, Ackery and two at the expense of Coahoma. They have lost to Ackery and Dawson.

Frosh Comer

A freshman who is piling up an increasing amount of playing time with the HJC Jayhawks is Jim Blasingame (above), 6-foot-4, from Mineola. Blasingame spells Wiley Brown in the lineup.

Insurors Shade TES, 43 To 13

Tate, Bristow and Parks' Insurors continued unchecked in YMCA Industrial Basketball League competition Monday night, defeating TESCO Electric, 43-13.

Horace Rankin, Bill Estes and Louis Stallings paced the victory, scoring 14, 13 and 12 points, respectively.

In other contests, The Daily Herald lost to Mort Denton's Pharmacy, 47-18; and Garden City turned Phillips 66 by a score of 21-18.

Table with 4 columns: Team, Points, Rebounds, Assists. Includes games between Insurors and TESCO, and Garden City and Phillips 66.

Larry Moore Leads Team To Victory

Larry Moore led the scorers with seven points in the Seventh Grade Hi-Y Club basketball game Monday afternoon. The A team outpointed the B team 22-7.

The other members of the A team and their scores were Gilbert Barrera, 6; Larry Viera, 4; Tommy Ross, 4; and Joe Ewing, 2.

The B team scorers were Tommy Reed, 3; Charles Driver, 2; and Ismael Valdez, 1. Jesse Hitt and Roy Burklow were the other members of the team.

Hugh DeVore Takes Philly Eagle Coaching Position

By GILL ALEXANDER PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles end their search for a top-caliber head coach today with the signing of Hugh DeVore of Dayton University.

DeVore, a 46-year-old veteran college coach and Notre Dame star of the Knute Rockne era, told The Associated Press last night Bell convinced him to accept the pro offer.

DeVore said he was not inclined at first to take the assignment, left vacant by the dismissal of Jim Trimble.

Lloyd Mangrum Fattens Bank Account At LA

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum, his bank account fattened by $6,000 off his fourth victory in a Los Angeles Open, has served a warning to his brother professional golfers that he is back in sound physical shape and aiming at further conquests.

Mangrum made it a start-to-finish triumph in winning the Los Angeles fixture, beginning with two straight 66s, then a 68 and a one-over-par 72 that was good enough to stand up at the windup of the 36th annual event yesterday.

The one-time National Open champion, who matched the late, great MacDonald Smith in winning this one four times, plans to play in Bing Crosby's big clambake at Pebble Beach this weekend.

Then he'll play Phoenix, Tucson and the Texas and Houston Opens. If he stands up, he'll rest a bit for the Masters at Augusta, Ga., April 5-8.

"That's one tournament I'd like to win," Mangrum confided. Lloyd's 72 gave him a 72-hole total of 272, breaking by one stroke the tournament record here set in 1938 by Jimmy Thompson at a comparable Griffith Park municipal course.

This one was unfolded at the Rancho Municipal course, a par 36-35-71, just over 7,048 yards that was tough for some and ever dangerous for most.

Mangrum admitted he played the last nine holes a little conservatively. He held a five-stroke lead over Tommy Bolt and Jerry Barber, beginning the round, and five over Bolt and six over Barber after the first nine.

"You can afford to play a little on the conservative side with a four or five-stroke lead," he explained. "You can't take many chances on getting a seven or an eight on a hole. . . . Bolt might get the hole with his 63, or Barber move in."

Barber wound up with a 70 for 275 and Bolt, with two steady but fruitless straight par-71 rounds, at 276. The one-stroke difference was worth $1,000. Barber collected $3,200 second prize, Tommy $2,200.

This was Mangrum's first major full tournament since he suffered a painful rib separation in the Masters last April. Does he feel all right now?

"I hope I feel every week as good as I did this week," he said after the victory.

The rundown behind the top three: Cary Middlecoff, a 70 for 277 and $1,800; Dutch Harrison and John Barnum, 73s for 281 and $1,400 apiece, and Gardner Dickinson, 71 and Jim Ferrier, 70, for 282 and $1,050 each.

Dayton Second To Dons In AP Casaba Poll

By BEN OLAN The Associated Press The San Francisco Dons, who will be seeking their 38th consecutive victory tonight against Santa Clara, still are the nation's best college basketball team. But Dayton isn't far behind.

That's the opinion of the sports writers and broadcasters who participated in this week's Associated Press poll.

Among 118 ballots, the Dons picked up 94 first-place votes and 16 seconds. Dayton drew 12 firsts and 76 seconds.

On the basis of 10 points for first place, 9 for second, etc., San Francisco piled up 1,145 points and Dayton 1,026. Each team is unbeaten in 11 games.

North Carolina State, upended by Duke Saturday night, dropped down a notch to third place with one first and 692 points. Duke's surprise triumph moved it from 11th to 6th.

Vanderbilt clung to 4th place, followed by Kentucky. Ohio State climbed from 10th to 7th. Then come Illinois, North Carolina and Temple.

North Carolina, beaten by Wake Forest, fell from 5th place. George Washington, formerly 7th, was beaten by Maryland and Richmond and wound up in 14th place. Iowa State, No. 8 a week ago, lost to Kansas State and fell to 15th.

The leaders, with first-place votes in parentheses: 1. San Francisco (94) ..... 1,145

Silence Is Golden

Over the country there is the general assumption that it is the female of the human species who cannot resist a juicy tid-bit of gossip, while her male counterpart is essentially the strong, silent type. This may be the overall conclusion after every hamlet, village, and city has been averaged, but the point is, regardless of the over-all picture, there are many whole towns where it is primarily the boys who "kiss and tell."

Uncle Ray: Priests Of Rome Studied Chickens

By RAMON COFFMAN
One leader of ancient Rome was known as "Cato the Censor." He held high office 21 and a half centuries ago. An old record tells us that Cato asked:
"Is there any fortune-teller who can meet another one on the street without laughing?"
That question suggests that Cato felt that the priests of the Roman Republic were frauds. They carried out special tests to foretell the future, but they made mistakes at times. Despite that, there was a deep-rooted belief in the magic of the priests of ancient Rome. These men would sacrifice animals on altars, and then would study "the signs." Sometimes they obtained signs from living animals, especially from birds in flight, or from a flock of chickens kept at Rome. The chickens were supposed to be holy. When a Roman army was about to set out on a campaign, the general might ask the priests to study the signs. Then the chickens were watched, to see how they held their heads while drinking water or eating food. Most persons might suppose that chickens always behave the same way, but there are differences. Sometimes chickens are more hungry or thirsty than usual. Roman priests also read a meaning in flashes of lightning at certain times. They listened to accounts of dreams, and told (or tried to tell) what each dream meant.
It is a question whether the priests laughed when they met one another. The majority probably believed in their own magic. When a mistake was made, they could say that one of their number had read the signs in the wrong way. Julius Caesar seems to have had little faith in the power of Roman priests to tell the future. Time and again he refused to follow their advice.
FOR GENERAL INTEREST section of your scrapbook.
PRESBYTERIAN ANIMALS is the name of a new leaflet by Uncle Ray which tells fascinating facts about Dinosaurs and contains 12 illustrations of these great animals. To get a copy send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Uncle Ray in care of this newspaper.

Afghanistan Ousts Pakistan's Envoy

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Afghanistan's government has declared the Pakistani military attaché in Kabul persona non grata and asked his withdrawal.
The Afghan action, announced by Kabul radio, was believed in retaliation for the "Pakistan" government's expulsion last week of the Afghan consul at Qandahar.
The two countries have been disputing bitterly for months over the demands of Pathan tribesmen in Pakistan's Northwest Frontier area for independence.
