Much like the closing of the drive-thru window at TU Electric, economics played a factor in the closing of the window at Energas, which was recently closed. Bills can still be dropped off inside the office or in the night deposit slot, located next to the window.

Tourism town hall meeting successful

Enthusiasm permeates meeting as citizens add their input to development of tourism plan

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Local tourism needs a first-class hotel, a cleaner city, more outside advertising and playing up of western and historical motifs, it was decided at a town hall meeting Thursday.

More than that could be done to attract and keep tourists here longer, but those were the ideas topping a list compiled by 47 residents who attended a meeting in the east room of Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"It's a lot of enthusiasm. There's a real sincere interest in the community," said Jeff Morris, who heads a Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce task force created six months ago to create a tourism development plan.

The community workshop was conducted by the chamber to get public input into the plan, expected to be finalized by the end of the year. It will include a feasibility business plan.

"It will be a clear-eyed business plan," Morris assures. For example, it would show number of potential visitors that would use a new hotel and convention facility, the most popular idea emerging Thursday. It would also show possible funding sources, private and public, including government economic development groups.

"It's based upon what other communities have been able to do," Morris said of the hotel idea. "People in the business know what the traffic is up and down highway 87, they know what the traffic is up and down I-20."

The new hotel, which would probably be at Comanche Trail Lake, are among ideas touted by the task force in recent talks to civic clubs and government entities. Morris said he was surprised but pleased to see it coming out on Thursday.

"I wouldn't have guessed it, that there's so much support for a hotel and convention facility," he said.

He said he was also surprised at some other ideas brought, such as providing tax abatement for visitor development, go-cart racing at the airport, involving youth and senior citizens in tourism development and a worst water in the world contest.

Other ideas presented by the task force, kept general so input wouldn't be hampered Thursday, are exploiting recreational facilities in and around the park, working on other areas of town such as a viewing area for sandhill cranes at One-Mile Lake or antiquing in historic downtown, tours of such places as the railroad and local refinery.

Terry Burns, left, jots down ideas for tourism development being called out by members of a tourism task force Thursday. Ideas came from 42 other residents who attended a town-hall meeting on the subject in the east room of Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Citizens leave committee members a wealth of ideas

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Here's the top ideas on generating local tourism, according to 47 people voting with 20 votes apiece at a town-hall meeting Thursday:

- First-class motel with convention facilities at Comanche Trail Lake near Dora Roberts Convention Center. 185 votes.
- Clean up city. 86 votes.
- More billboards, signs. Advertise more. 58 votes.
- More antique shops. A craft mall. 44 votes.
- Two week "western days" event with various activities. 44 votes.
- Pageants at amphitheater and dinner theater activities. 43 votes.

- Develop joint governmental committee to develop, plan and finance tourism. 41 votes.
- Clean up and enhance Moss Creek Lake. 37 votes.
- Cover downtown, mall. 32 votes.
- Working "dude" ranch. 23 votes.
- Change focus of Big Spring Convention and Visitors Bureau to promote outside visitors and conventions instead of entertaining locals. 23 votes.
- Trail ride to Signal Peak. 22 votes.
- Paddle boats, canoes at Comanche Trail Lake. Better utilization. 21 votes.
- Walking, biking and horse trails. 19 votes.
- Demolish or refurbish Hotel Set-

- Improve and advertise golf and make available for tourists. 14 votes.
- Better utilization of museum. 12 votes.
- Allow jet skis at Moss Creek Lake. 11 votes.
- Involve everybody in tourism development, including senior citizens and youth. 11 votes.
- Give tax delinquent houses to pensioned retirees. 10 votes.

These are just 20 of 76 categories consolidated from at least an estimated 120 ideas. Details of original ideas as well prioritized categories will be considered in a long-range tourism development plan the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce is working on.

Calverly contented with working the land

MARTHA E. FLORES
Regional Editor

GARDEN CITY - When Harry Love Calverly, 65, looks back on his life, it is with a sense of fulfillment.

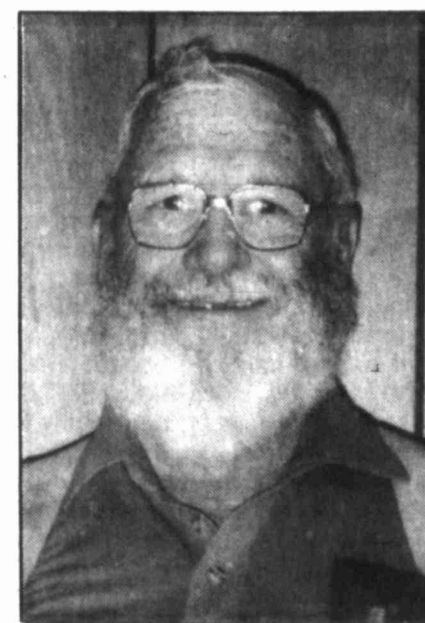

"I tell you it is the best life anybody could have," Calverly says with a smile attesting to his sincerity. "I wouldn't trade it for anything."

Calverly has ranched all his life, like his father and his paternal grandfather. He has never lived anywhere but on the family land in Glasscock County, herding cattle since he was no more than a child.

"It was a hard work, but we had a lot of fun," he said. "I believe I had more fun than kids do nowadays. I am glad not to be raised in the city."

Calverly, son of Stephen and Anna Lee Love Calverly and one of four children, fondly reminisces about the chores done before and after school. "When we were small, we would feed the cattle out of a wagon," he said. "When my father bought his first car, we feed out of the trunk of the car."

"If there was a calf that needed to be taken by to the house we would take out the back seat and put him there. Then before we went to church, we would but the seat back in."

Harry is the one of the last Calverlys left in the county after three generations settled and raised families, beginning in the 1870s. The first generation Stephen Calverly, Harry's great-grandfather, was born in 1850.

Great-grandfather Calverly married Margaret "Maggie" Dixon in Portage City, Wis. in 1870. They had six children - Eva, Joe, Harry, Stephen, Eva, Joe Currie and a daughter dying in infancy.

Harry's grandfather was the Calverlys' third child, Stephen. He married Olive Francis. They had five children - Eva, Joe, Harry, Stephen and Ethel. This generation's Stephen was Harry's father.

Throughout the years and the generations the Calverlys acquired land in Glasscock County, Harry and his brother Denis ranch part of it and the other is owned by their cousins.

"My dad and granddad instilled in all of us a love for the land," Calverly said. "My dad and granddad did nothing but ranch. Granddad first started with sheep, herding them to Fort Stockton and back every year."

Steeped in the county's history, the Calverlys will join the rest of the community in celebrating Glasscock's centennial. Harry is helping coordinate the parade scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday, as well as planning to attend as many activities as possible.

Inclement weather not a deterrent to achieving benefit's goal

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Community members reached a monetary goal Thursday to cover expenses for a financially-strapped mother, grappling with the recent death of her two-year-old son.

Employees of Five Star Counseling spearheaded a day-long benefit barbecue Wednesday in which community leaders, local businesses and a civic organization participated.

"It was a dream seeing all ages, races, classes, coming together in true community," said Louie Scott, director of the counseling service and coordinator of the benefit.

Following her son's death, the local mother asked Scott and Bishop Timothy

"It looked like it was going to be a disaster because of the weather, but it all came together."

Glen McKinney
Volunteer cook

Fitzhugh for strength through prayer as well as guidance on obtaining funds for medical costs and burial expenses, Scott said.

"We told her don't worry about that; we'll raise the money," Scott said. "We managed to organize the benefit in less than a 12-hour period."

The benefit, started at 6 a.m., was plagued by rainy weather, a smattering of hail and high winds. A barbecue grill had to be moved into the counseling office because of the weather, and the food supply became tapped out.

Because of earlier calls to solicit donations, news of the benefit had rippled through the community, Scott said.

Businesses donated food, the counseling office filled to capacity and local leaders rolled up their sleeves to help serve people. About 25 individuals deposited checks in a benefit account.

"It looked like it was going to be a disaster because of the weather, but it all came together," said Glen McKinney, a volunteer cook for the benefit. "It was a blessing."

Bernadette Banks-Valentine said, "You could feel the community coming together. Everyone was on one accord."

"It was a dream seeing all ages, races, classes coming together in true community," Scott said. "Because of that, we reached our goal."

Businesses or organizations who donated items, services or money were:

Al's and Sons Barbecue, Don's IGA, Bargain Mart, Kwikee Drive-In Grocery, State National Bank, KBYG Radio, Furr's Supermarket, Winn-Dixie Supermarket, T & T Hickory, Chapmans Meat Market, Wal-Mart Stores Inc., H-E-B Food Stores, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Wheat's Furniture, Chicano Golf Association and Young People Working Together.

Individual donations:

Corsicana's resentment finds trigger

The Associated Press

CORSICANA — Craig Thomas' life didn't raise many eyebrows. His death, however, is creating a storm of protest by some blacks who say the police department has a long history of insensitivity.

"The opinion of the people on the street (is) it was excessive force, police brutality," protester Ronald Pillot said. "Running from the police is not a capital offense. He shouldn't have been killed for it."

Thomas, 29, is remembered as a fun-loving father dedicated to raising his 5-year-old daughter.

But police patrolling an area of town known for drug trafficking say Thomas ran away from them Saturday after he was stopped for a traffic violation, setting off a chain of events that ended with his death.

The Wortham resident was in Corsicana to visit a girlfriend and was driving around town with a friend. When police officer Todd Morris stopped the vehicle, Thomas ran through several yards until he was caught in a grassy field.

Morris and backup officers bound his hands and feet and took him to the Navarro County Justice Center.

Because he had a cut on his face, a justice center officer refused to admit Thomas to the jail. Emergency medical technicians were en route to the jail when Thomas collapsed. Efforts to revive him using cardiopulmonary resuscitation failed.

Many blacks in this town about 50 miles south of Dallas contend Thomas was beaten to death. And Thomas' mother, Estella Washington, said she could not recognize her son at the hospital because his face was swollen and had been beaten beyond recognition.

She said Thomas' nose was bloody and his face was swollen when she went to see him at the hospital. But she said she knew it was her son when she recognized a scar on his arm from an electrical accident in 1987.

"When I got to the hospital, he was already dead," she said. The police "asked me if my son had heart trouble. I told them no, but when I saw this child, I knew he had been beaten to death."

Interim City Manager Ken Berry said Thursday he believes Thomas' death triggered latent resentment black residents feel for Corsicana's police department, which has 36 white officers and a Hispanic chief.

About 25 percent of the town's 23,000 residents are black.

Committee turns down plan for school bus fare

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — A proposed rule to permit school districts with severe money problems to charge most students to ride the bus to campus has been rejected by a State Board of Education committee.

"You're talking about a lot of families that live on a fixed income. This would be a disaster for those families," said board member Mary Helen Berlanga of Corpus Christi. She is not on the school finance committee but expressed concern about the proposal.

But board member Diane Patrick of Arlington said in pushing the proposed rule that it would "give local school boards and local districts the authority to decide what is appropriate for the boys and girls in their district."

The committee voted 4-1 against the proposed rule Thursday. Ms. Patrick said she still will ask the full board to consider the proposal at a Friday meeting. She also said five Texas teachers responding to a survey released Thursday by the Texas Federation of Teachers reports student misbehavior and disobedience were rampant.

Survey of teachers shows behavior problems rampant

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — An overwhelming majority of Texas teachers responding to a survey released by the Texas Federation of Teachers say student discipline and behavior problems are significant both in and out of the classroom.

"We got back some rather shocking responses," John Cole, president of the 20,000-member Texas Federation of Teachers, said at a Houston news conference Thursday.

"Our problem is that schools, in order to function, must be safe, secure places where people can think, reflect, ponder," Cole said. "You can't have disorder and have creative thinking going on."

Nearly one in five of the teachers reported experiencing a direct threat of personal violence, as student disobedience and misbehavior in public schools have become rampant.

Of the 1,447 teachers surveyed in April and May, more than 83 percent said student discipline and behavior problems are significant in and out of the classroom. More than 35 percent said they had a significant problem within their room.

"The bad news, of course, is not just that you are likely, if you are a classroom teacher in some places, that you run the risk of being assaulted in your classroom," Cole said.

"Probably worse throughout the survey is that we saw a clear, systematic pattern of student disrespect for authority, disorder and failure to respect the rights of others. That is alarming even if you're not talking about assaults."

The survey included public school teachers from all over the state, large districts and small. Teachers in the survey were about equally divided among elementary, middle or junior high schools and high schools.

Of the teachers surveyed:

- 53 percent reported an assault on students.
- 20 percent reported an assault by a student on another student armed with a deadly weapon in the 1992-93 school year.
- 8 percent reported an assault on teachers.

In general, 58.5 percent of the teachers said violence in the just-completed school year has become more of a problem, while 4.5 percent said it was less.

The teachers union is endorsing a campaign for zero tolerance of profanity and violence in the schools and is calling for violators to be barred from classes.

"What we need to do, very early, is show that there are consequences," Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, said.

"This is the only country in the world that is willing to sacrifice the education of 98 or 99 percent of the youngsters because it insists on keeping youngsters who are in some cases criminal and in other cases very disruptive in the classroom."

More than half of the teachers, 56 percent, said school rules need to be toughened, but more than three-fourths, 77 percent, said the existing rules need to be uniformly enforced by administrators.

"We've got good rules," Cole said.

Harlingen police car still held in Mexico

HARLINGEN (AP) — A Harlingen police car is still collecting dust in a Mexican customs parking lot more than two weeks after an officer errantly chased auto thieves across the border.

"The only difference between then and now is the car's got a coat of dust on it," Harlingen Police Chief Jim Scheopner said Thursday.

But the chief was confident that Mexican authorities would eventually return the $20,000 squad car.

"It's in the hands of the state departments of both countries," he said.

Guillermo Gonzalez, administrator of the Mexican customs office in Matamoros, explained that the matter was out of his hands because proper paperwork had to be completed by the federal governments of both nations.

Gonzalez praised Scheopner for understanding the process, but he criticized Brownsville Police Chief Victor Rodriguez for getting involved.

Rodriguez expressed frustration Wednesday after attending a meeting between U.S. and Mexican officials. He said he didn't know who had the car.

According to Harlingen police, officer John Parrish spotted suspects in a stolen Suburban trying to cross the new free-trade bridge at Los Indios without stopping on May 26.

Parrish said he unwittingly crossed about 100 feet into Mexico before he was stopped and detained by Mexican authorities for about 30 minutes.

Scheopner said Parrish was in hot pursuit, and the sign marking the international boundary was not easily seen at night.

Grand jury subpoenas Hutchison employees

AUSTIN — State Treasurer and U.S. Sen.-elect Kay Bailey Hutchison termed an investigation into wrongdoing at the Treasury "outrageous" after several of her employees and an official with her Senate campaign were subpoenaed by the Travis County district attorney's office.

"This is so outrageous. I think it's beneath partisanship," said Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican who won election to the Senate on Saturday by overwhelming Democratic appointee Bob Krueger.

"There are two ways to lose: gracefully and the way the Democrats are doing it. ... I am very surprised and disappointed."

Mrs. Hutchison, who visited Washington on Thursday, is scheduled to be sworn into the Senate on Monday.

District Attorney Ronald Earle said Thursday his office subpoenaed 14 employees of the state Treasury and an official of Hutchison's Senate campaign to testify before a grand jury about several allegations of wrongdoing.

Mrs. Hutchison was not subpoenaed, Earle said, adding that he hoped she would testify before the grand jury voluntarily.

The allegations include tampering with governmental records, tampering with physical evidence, official misconduct and violation of the Open Records Act, Earle said.

"These are allegations of criminal misconduct. They may or not be true," Earle said.

Richards begins search for new state treasurer

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards is moving as quickly as she can in naming a new state treasurer.

Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison's election Saturday to the U.S. Senate means a Richards appointee will fill the post until the 1994 elections.

Richards, who served as treasurer from 1983-1991, hasn't set a timetable to replace Mrs. Hutchison but is moving quickly, her staff said Thursday.

"It's my understanding that Sen.-elect Hutchison is taking the oath of office Monday. So we'll be moving as quickly as possible," said Chuck McDonald, Richards' deputy press secretary.

Comptroller John Sharp earlier this week suggested that the job could be left vacant and the duties turned over to his office. But McDonald said that was unlikely.

Hutchison makes Capitol Hill rounds

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole is giving Kay Bailey Hutchison a jump-start on the rules she must master to make her way through the arcane world of the U.S. Senate.

The Republican leader gave Mrs. Hutchison a copy of the Senate rulebook — and a little advice — when she paid a call to his Capitol office Thursday.

"He told me that rule number one was be seen and not heard," Mrs. Hutchison told reporters Thursday as she met with Dole in his Capitol office. That unwritten edict for newly-elected lawmakers now holds less sway than it once did.

After meeting with Dole, Mrs. Hutchison hobnobbed with GOP bigwigs who give money to Republican campaign organizations that funneled party money to her campaign. She then flew back to Texas.

Mrs. Hutchison, who Monday becomes the first woman senator from Texas, met with Dole behind closed doors to discuss her committee assignments. It was not immediately clear which ones she wanted and which ones Dole would ask her to accept. "I need to discuss my request with Kay," Dole said. "I think I should do that first before I do it with the press."

Sen. Bob Krueger, D-Texas, who was unseated by Mrs. Hutchison in Saturday's election, is a member of the Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee and the Energy and Natural Resources Committee as well as the Select Committee on Aging.

Krueger, who had been named to the Senate seat vacated when Democrat Lloyd Bentsen became secretary of the treasury, remains a senator until his rival's swearing-in. But he and his family were taking off today for a long-planned and "richly deserved" vacation, spokesman Greg Weiner said.

Senator-elect Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, holds up a copy of the Senate Rules presented to her by Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, during a meeting

Dole again sought to portray Mrs. Hutchison's victory as a referendum against President Clinton's tax proposals and called it "a big, big, strong message from Texas."

"There's no question about it," he said. "This is a powerful message and we have a powerful messenger. Sen. Hutchison has a big job ahead of her but she can do it. She stuck with her message and it worked because the people believed in her. They don't believe in all these new taxes."

Meanwhile, Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros said Thursday he had "no ambition or plan to consider a Senate race" in 1994, when Mrs. Hutchison faces re-election.

The former San Antonio mayor, who remains a leading figure in Texas Democratic circles, told reporters that he looked forward to having a "good, bipartisan working relationship" with Mrs. Hutchison.

Cisneros, whose comments came during his visit to a Washington homeless shelter, also said Krueger's dismal showing at the polls resulted partially from a break with Democratic policies.

"Bob Krueger made some tactical decisions in his campaign which included distancing himself from the administration's economic plan from the beginning," Cisneros said.

"I don't think if he'd stood up for the president's program, and defended it and fought for it, that he would have had the same outcome. Now I'm not saying he would have won the election. This is a tough year and it was a tough seat to hold. But I know he would have run a better race than the two-to-one spread."

Lockdown blamed as cause of riot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A deadly riot at a maximum-security prison is being blamed on a lockdown imposed amid racial tensions and overcrowding.

Inmates at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility at Lucasville rioted April 11 and took eight guards hostage, leading to an 11-day stand-off in which one guard and nine inmates died.

A report released Thursday by the state Department of Rehabilitation and Correction put the most blame on the lockdown, intended to prepare for tuberculosis testing. Among other causes of the riot cited in the report:

—75 percent of the prison's most dangerous inmates were sharing cells the day of the riot.

—An unusually high number of violent inmates were transferred to Lucasville from another prison because of problems there.

—Tension between staff and inmates was high because of rivalry among inmate factions, including white supremacists and Black Muslims.

—No internal system existed for investigating gangs and other possible threats to the prison's security.

Department Director Reginald Wilkinson said reducing crowding and increasing prison staff are crucial.

College Bowl champs challenge alma mater

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — They blew away the opposition by reeling off answers about Mugwumps, the Khyber Pass and the chemical name for vinegar, sometimes before "College Bowl" host Allen Ludden could finish the question.

Today, members of the winningest team in "College Bowl" history will get a chance to see if they still have it when they match wits against a team of students from their alma mater, Bates College.

It's been 32 years since the Bates students won a record seven games in 1961, earning the small liberal arts college $1,500 in scholarship money from sponsor General Electric Co. for each win, and a spot in the show's hall of fame.

The contestants, who went on to careers in academia, the law, journalism, the ministry, publishing and public service, can still recite some of the questions — and gloat over knowing the answers.

"I remember one question because my high school history teacher took the credit for my knowing the answer: Mugwumps ... some dissidents in some obscure election in the midst of the 19th century," said Jeffrey Rouault, now a New York City lawyer and a community activist in Harlem.

Rouault was also able to name the mountain pass between Afghanistan and Pakistan: The Khyber Pass.

College Bowl questions tended to be a bit more cerebral than those asked on today's game shows. But not always.

"I remember one question that came up somewhere near the end," said George Drury, a team captain. "They asked if you mixed acetic acid and some sort of oil, what are you making. I immediately said you'd be making salad dressing," said Drury, now a book publisher in Waukesha, Wis. "Even then I could mix up a good vinaigrette."

Although the Bates men whipped through a series of questions on current events, classical music, literature and other heady topics, they insist they weren't the campus nerds.

Paternity case has Rhode Island turning

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Violin music swelled as WHJJ host Steve Kass went on the air with what he dubbed "As Rhode Island Turns." Posing the question "Can a young lady find happiness ...?" he threw open the lines to callers.

What Kass heard Thursday was a mixture of bile, sympathy and curiosity from callers titillated by the news that 73-year-old Gov. Bruce Sundlun has a love child in his past and that she is suing him for support.

Kara Hewes, a 17-year-old from West Bloomfield, Mich., was born of a dalliance Sundlun had before and during the third of his four marriages.

"This has really lit up the switchboards," Kass said.

Eddie Proto, 70, and a half-dozen friends sipped their morning coffee at a Bristol cafe and made light of the soap opera turn of events for Sundlun.

"He likes to say he never takes a weekend off. Well, he must be busier than he used to be," Proto said. "He had time to take a weekend off 17 years ago."

Sundlun disclosed his relationship to Miss Hewes on Tuesday after her lawyer announced plans to sue.

Committee allots $620 million for collider

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With critics of the super collider just weeks away from launching their strike against the embattled project, Texas lawmakers are guardedly enthusiastic about a House panel's action.

A House appropriations subcommittee Thursday earmarked $620 million for the giant atom smasher — just $20 million less than what is being sought by the Clinton administration.

"That's extremely good in the context that the subcommittee didn't get nearly its allocation that the president had requested," said subcommittee member Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs.

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, whose district is home to much of the particle accelerator, said, "I was very pleased with the action by the subcommittee."

Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, whose district also includes part of the collider, injected a note of caution. "We're pleased as a beginning, but it's still a beginning. We've still got a lot of work to do," he said.

Foes of the project, now estimated at $10 billion to complete, contend it's siphoning money from other basic science. They also say the collider is too costly in an era of huge deficits and some claim the project is poorly managed.

Last year's House vote to kill the collider still fresh in their minds, supporters are very cautious when asked to assess the vote expected later this month.

"I think it will be a very tough vote," Chapman said. "I would say right now we might be a touch behind, but we have reconfirmed strong support from the White House. We expect the president to be involved in this effort and we're going to work very hard to convince the freshmen."

Both sides agree the battle will be won or lost with the 110 freshmen, many of whom campaigned on the promise of cutting spending.

If that's the case, it won't be for lack of effort. Proponents and opponents alike have held news conferences, circulated dozens of congressional letters and made countless speeches on the floor.

Choosing the best home security lighting system

Several weeks ago, I made mention of the importance of lighting around your home as a good security device to discourage burglars.

Security lighting should provide enough light to clearly identify persons or objects in all areas around your residence, including driveways, sidewalks, windows, and doorways. This is your most cost effective psychological deterrent to nighttime criminal activity. Remember that a burglar does not want to be seen or heard in their activity.

Good security lighting should furnish high visibility and low glare, also overall evenness of the light is more important than the level. In fact too much light can be hazardous because the glare can make visibility difficult.

There are many factors that go into setting up a good light system, included are: the size of the area, location of the lights, direction of the beam and the amount of light needed. To also be considered is if color rendition is important. Some light sources do not reproduce the color of an object the same as sun-light.

Maintenance of the system is also important. Dirt on the lamp lens can reduce the light output by 50% or more. Also consider using protective wire grids to protect the lamps from vandalism.

There are several types of light sources available. The most familiar is incandescent lighting. These are the common household light bulb. They have a low initial cost for fixtures and give good color rendition. Their operating cost makes them more expensive than some other systems, but if the hours burned are low, they may be economical. Many of the light systems for a residence will be incandescent lighting. Many other light systems are used more in commercial settings. Here is a run-down of some other types of lights.

The Associated Press

Today is Friday, June 11, the 162nd day of 1993. There are 203 days left in the year.

Today's Highlights in History:

On June 11, 1776, the Continental Congress formed a committee to draft a Declaration of Independence from Britain.

On this date:
In 1509, England's King Henry VIII married Catherine of Aragon.

In 1770, Captain James Cook, commander of the British ship Endeavour, discovered the Great Barrier Reef off Australia by running onto it.

In 1919, Sir Barton won the Belmont Stakes, becoming horse racing's first Triple Crown winner.

In 1942, the United States and the Soviet Union signed a lend-lease agreement to aid the Soviet war effort in World War II.

In 1947, sugar rationing ended in the United States.

In 1963, Buddhist monk Quang Duc immolated himself on a Saigon street to protest the government of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem.

In 1970, the United States presence in Libya came to an end as the last detachment left Wheelus Air Base.

In 1977, Seattle Slew won the Belmont Stakes, capturing the Triple

Lewis Grizzard

It's why country touches a lot of us.

"Honey, just forgive me and come on back home so I don't have to toss and turn and stare at this ceiling no more."

A thousand country songs have been written on that one sentence.

But Conway. The very sound of his voice was a cry for relief. It exuded agony. I broke and cracked at just the right time.

Nobody could put forth two simple words — "Hello, Darlin'" — before launching into that plea to return that hits the bottom of the belly of anybody who has ever been in that sorrowful place.

We lost Conway over the weekend. He was 59.

I've already mentioned one reason for his success, that ability of his to find our own pain. But there was something else Conway did late in his career that gave him tremendous appeal to female country music fans, especially those we'll say who were over 30. Those whose husbands were on the couch with a beer wondering why the Braves can't hit.

Conway appealed to their sexuality. He went after their sexual frustrations, forged by the Creator's little joke of making the male's sexual peak at 19 and the female's at 35. (I read that somewhere.)

Do you think I'm kidding?
OK, what about his Conway line: "Even with your hair up in curlers, I'd still love to lay you down?"

He wasn't talking about sprawling on the living room carpet for a rousing game of Monopoly.

How about, "There's a tiger in these tight-fittin' jeans?" and "You can't call him a cowboy until you've seen him ride?"

And didn't Conway record "Slow Hands"? Never was there a more suggestive song on a country label.

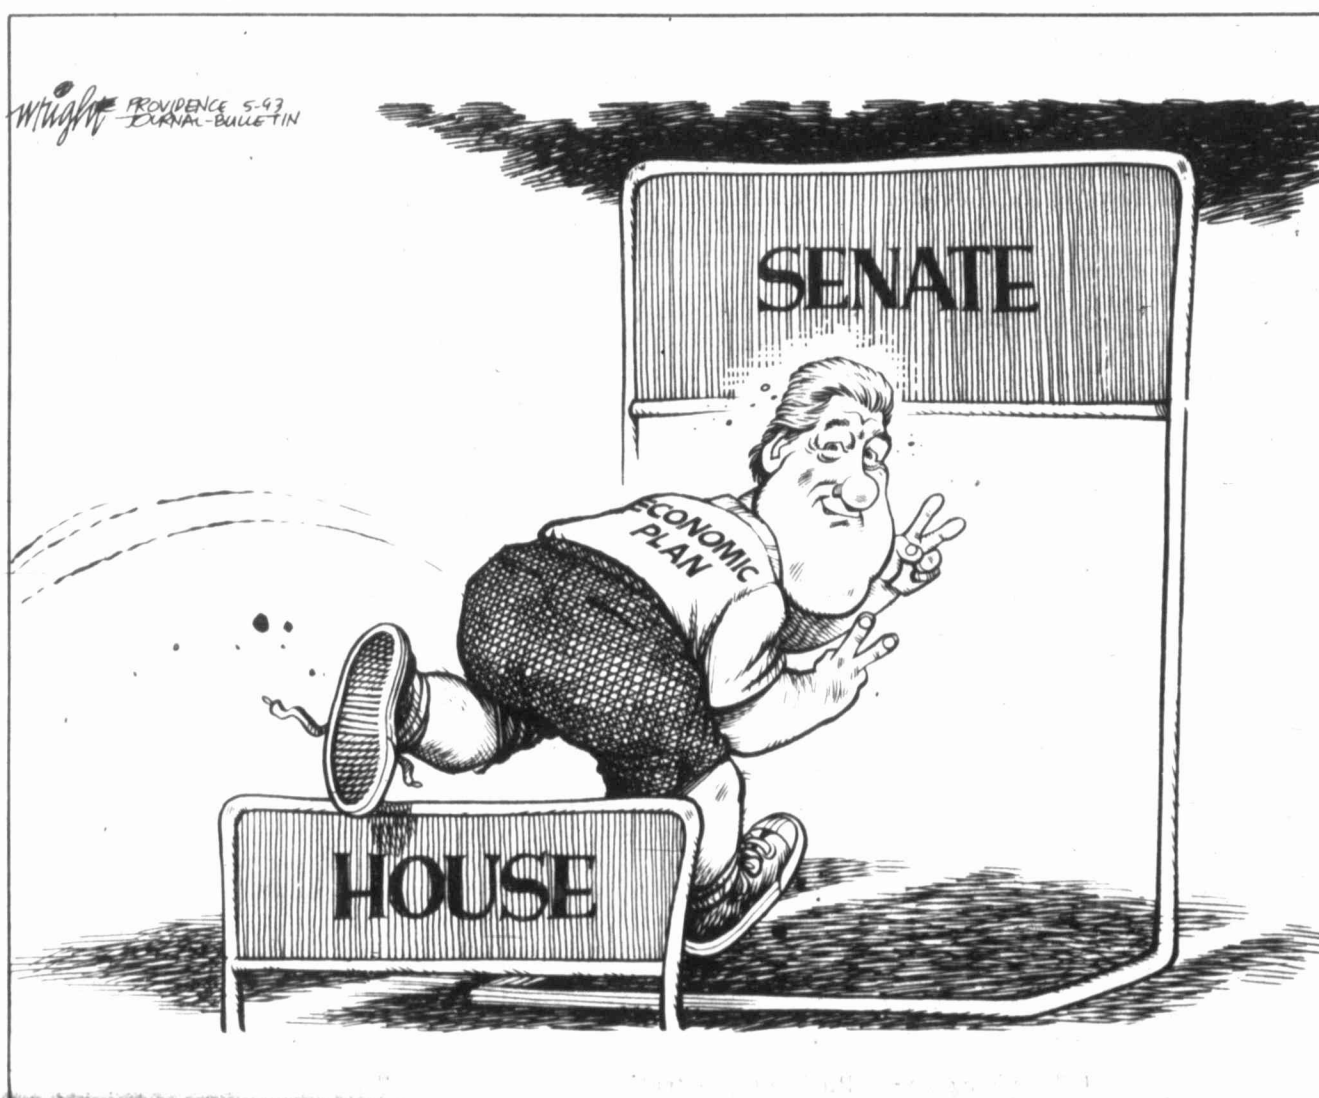

I was at a live Conway concert myself once. The over-30 female set flocked to the stage with flowers for Conway. I saw the over-50 set do the same once at a Frank Sinatra gig in New York in the '70s.

Conway had all that permed hair and that Elvis-like stare and snarl, having sprung from the same era, and he made his female fans feel he would, in fact, swim the Mississippi to satisfy their longings. Billy Ray can't touch that.

Conway Twitty was a sex symbol, perhaps country music's first, and I've got to believe the tears are flowing like — if this were a country song — warm, red wine as the man groans one last time:

Writer's art

Nodding Homers at the Times

James J. Kilpatrick

Ask anyone who keeps up with the media: Which is the greatest newspaper in the nation? The answer, more often than not, is The New York Times.

Sure, the Times' sports section is a joke. The Wall Street Journal does a better job of covering business. The Washington Post has a livelier editorial page. A dozen papers more comprehensively cover the communities in which they publish. Even so, all in all, the Times probably would win a referendum to name "the greatest."

But it was said of Homer, the greatest epic poet of them all, that even Homer nodded. A surprising lot of snoozers occupy desks at the greatest paper in the land.

The Times has problems with elementary grammar:

"The discouraging numbers on food stamp recipients was the latest in a string of so-so economic reports."

"President Clinton's proposal ... would also put ranchers on the same competitive footing as those producing beef on private land, where the costs of leasing land is higher."

"The outline for the new regulations were included in a legal document ..."

A Times staffer should read the stylebook on Latin plurals. "Beyond Beef sued the Agriculture Department in February, demanding that meat and poultry be labeled to warn of the dangers of bacteria that is found in the raw products." One bacterium, ma'am; two bacteria.

A familiar rule of prose composition is the rule that requires parallelism in the elements of a sentence. But the staffer had not mastered the rule:

"Such instructions would include advice to wash hands thoroughly after handling raw meat and poultry; wash utensils and surfaces that have come in contact with raw meat and poultry before they come in contact with other food; cooking to 160 degrees along with other information, like the color of safely cooked meat for people who do not use meat thermometers and constant refrigeration of raw meat and poultry."

So much for style in The New York Times. Writers for the nation's greatest newspaper fall constantly into clichés. Various events, results and consequences "remain to be seen." Gabriela Sabatini won a tennis match "in the wee hours this morning." In New Mexico, "Catron County has been a thorn in the side of environmentalists."

Some writers for the Times have a problem with "only," as in, "The test so far is only applicable to people from large families with a history of colon cancer." This writer meant to say, "applicable only to people from large families with a history of colon cancer."

The rule on "like" and "such as" is a rule that is constantly broken at The New York Times. Thus, "Last night at Christie's sale of contemporary art ... works by artists like Lichtenstein and Warhol, Pollock and Bacon went up for sale." As the story made clear, Christie's wasn't offering works by artists "like" Lichtenstein, et al. It was selling works by Lichtenstein, Warhol, Pollock and Bacon.

Now and then it is hard to make out exactly what is being said in the nation's greatest paper: At Belmont, a horse named Williamstown ran a mile in record time "with Craig Perret riding and, like everybody else in the race, carried 124 pounds."

A syntactical problem showed up on May 6: "Yet year after year, blue-ribbon report after blue-ribbon report, little changes, as the State Legislature, advocates, unions, the Mayor and the Governor divided over the details of how to fix it."

Not content with verbs as they usually are conjugated, the Times ventures out on its own. Its editors some months ago began to sanction "snuck" for "sneaked." On May 14 the Times' correspondent in Austin covered a rape trial: "Following the announcement of the verdict, the victim thrust a clenched fist into the air as she wept." Wept? Is that an improvement over "wept"?

Now and then the Times uses words in the fashion of Humpty Dumpty, so that they mean whatever the Times chooses them to mean. In a full-page article last February on the old Chelsea Hotel, a Times writer identified Susanne Bartsch, who moved to the Chelsea in 1981, as the "penultimate hostess," which is to say, the next to last hostess.

It is a fair guess that the writer meant "ultimate hostess," but sometimes at the Times you never know. You just never know.

Voices raised for radio broadcasts to the Balkans

Scripps Howard News Service

The latest voice to plead for independent news broadcasts to the former Yugoslavia along the lines of Radio Free Europe is that of Branislav Canak. Himself a Serb, a journalist, a democrat, and president of the struggling Nezavisnost confederation of independent trade unions in Serbia, Canak has been telling audiences in Washington, D.C. that information is the antidote to the fanatical nationalism loose in the Balkans.

It is information of a sort — the distortions of Serbian government propaganda — that created an atmosphere in which xenophobic hysteria could take hold and fuel war. For the last four years, Belgrade radio and TV have spouted the line of strongman Slobodan Milosevic: that only he can protect the nation from its external and internal enemies, namely, fascist Croats, Muslim fundamentalists in neighboring Bosnia, shifty democrats and peacekeepers and an outside world conspiring to humiliate the Serbs.

News casts are mendaciously one-sided; the atrocities in the Bosnian war, they report, are all perpetrated by others against Serbs. War films and documentaries show valiant Serbs fighting for survival. Vojislav Seselj, leader of the far-right Radical Party and a stirring orator, whips up paranoid passions that make Milosevic look tame, and no dissenter is heard.

Canak cites the results of the Serbian election last December to prove the media's power: In Belgrade, where beleaguered independent TV and radio stations offer a counterpoint to the propaganda drumbeat, opposition candidates took 65 percent of the vote; in the rest of the country, fed exclusively on rabid jingoism, Milosevic and the Radicals swept the field.

This is a strong argument for extending Radio Free Europe to Serbia, Croatia and Bosnia for the first time. During the cold war, RFE beamed reliable local and regional news and rational commentary into the communist countries of Eastern Europe. But Yugoslavia was excluded, in deference to its keeping the Kremlin at arms length.

The professionals at RFE say they could mount a Serbian and Croatian service probably in weeks — within their present budget. Washington has ruled out most other forms of intervention in the Yugoslav tragedy. Broadcasts — a safe, cost-effective and honorable investment in Balkan sanity — should be uncontroversial.

Fire Safety Tips

Making children safe from fire

An estimated 3,500 people died in 1991 in home fires in this country, and every year a third of those killed are children, according to a National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) February 1993 news release.

Preschool children are especially vulnerable and die in home fires at more than twice the rate of the population as a whole. Unattended children are a significant share of this yearly death toll. Rita Fahy, NFPA analyst, has identified the following common situations in which children, unattended or unsupervised have lost their lives in home fires:

- parents on a quick errand
- parents out socializing
- parents at work
- parents out on an extended errand
- baby-sitter leaves early
- caregiver still asleep in the morning or napping
- caregiver in another part of the house.

Don't let your child be another "Home Alone" statistic.

Clinton reportedly ready to announce new justice

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton is prepared to offer his first Supreme Court nomination to Stephen Breyer, a federal appeals judge known as a consensus-builder and supporter of abortion rights, White House officials say.

Breyer headed to Washington on Thursday night after being released from a Boston hospital where he had been treated for injuries suffered in a bicycle accident last week. He was scheduled to meet with Clinton today at the White House, the officials said.

Three sources familiar with Clinton's three-month search to replace the retiring Justice Byron White said Clinton had settled on Breyer but wanted a face-to-face meeting before announcing the pick.

"It's his to lose," said a senior White House aide. "The president just wants to meet him to make sure."

All of the sources spoke on condition of anonymity. One said Vice President Al Gore called Breyer late Wednesday and told him he was Clinton's likely pick, pending completion of a background investigation and a visit with Clinton.

An announcement could come as early as today or Saturday, Clinton aides said. The president himself kept quiet about his search.

"I don't talk about appointments until I make them," he said Thursday.

This will be the first Supreme Court pick by a Democratic president in a quarter century. White, a Kennedy appointee, is the last sitting justice appointed by a Democrat.

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt had been considered perhaps Clinton's favorite last week. But environmentalists demanded he be kept at Interior. Several members of Clinton's inner circle also advised against putting one of the stars of the Clinton Cabinet on the court, although some aides cautioned Clinton could turn to Babbitt if the meeting with Breyer was sour.

"I am quite content either way — quite content," Babbitt said Thursday. "Obviously if asked, I would accept. There is nothing but an upside for me however this comes out. ... My consolation prize is I get to spend my summers fishing in Alaska and camping in Yellowstone doing a job I really love."

Breyer, 54, is chief judge of the 1st Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston. Appointed to the federal bench by President Carter, Breyer was confirmed after Ronald Reagan became president, a sign of his deep support among Senate Republicans.

That goodwill stems from his days as chief counsel of the Senate Judiciary Committee. Although Breyer was an aide to liberal Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy then, he worked closely with Republicans, particularly in drafting airline deregulation legislation.

"He would be a fantastic choice," Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the ranking Judiciary Committee Republican, said in an interview earlier this week.

That support from Republicans is critical to Clinton, who needs a trouble-free nomination after recent missteps, including the withdrawal of Lani Guinier as his choice to head the Justice Department civil rights division.

On the Boston appeals court, Breyer is known as an assiduously prepared jurist and a sharp, engaging questioner. Significantly, he has a reputation for carefully building consensus with his fellow justices, including two conservative Reagan appointees.

"He hates to dissent," said Daniel Ortiz, a former Breyer clerk who teaches at the University of Virginia Law School. "He will analyze everyone's views and find some course to consensus."

Those skills were high on Clinton's wish list, as he looks to put his stamp on a conservative-to-moderate court that often splits 5-4 on contentious issues, including some abortion rulings.

"He not only has a scholarly legal intellect but he has an uncanny ability and political savvy to forge consensus among different views," said Kenneth Feinberg, a Washington attorney and Breyer associate from their days on Kennedy's staff. "At this stage in the court's history, given its current politics, I can't think of a better nominee."

Clinton had pledged to name an abortion-rights supporter to the court.

Breyer is said by associates to fit that bill. In one 1990 ruling, Breyer sided with the majority in ruling the Bush administration's "gag rule" against abortion counseling at government-funded clinics violated free-speech rights because the right to abortion was guaranteed by the Supreme Court.

Yeltsin asking for unity

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — President Boris Yeltsin said the Russian people support his draft constitution and called for closer ties between former Soviet republics, in an appeal released today for Russian Independence Day.

"Russia, like any other country, has its own national interests. We are striving for calm and staunchly defending them," Yeltsin said in a text of the speech, released on the eve of Saturday's holiday.

"But it will be difficult for us to put our Russian house in order without lasting relations with our neighbor countries — former Soviet republics," the statement said.

Yeltsin's speech, to be delivered Saturday, emphasized unity among people with different viewpoints and backgrounds and highlighted his hopes for a new professional class of lawmakers.

The appeal amounted to a political manifesto for Yeltsin, who has been struggling for power with the parliament and its speaker, Ruslan Khasbulatov, since the collapse of the Communist-ruled Soviet Union.

The speech came amid a week-long convention that Yeltsin called to try to draft a charter to replace Russia's Soviet-era constitution. He wants the constitution to vest supreme power in the president and regional leaders, rather than lawmakers, but participants have failed to reach consensus.

"The issue of the new constitution and the work of the constitutional convention is now the center of Russia's political life. Until recently it had been impossible to convene such a forum," said the text of Yeltsin's speech, released by his office.

"In effect, the whole of Russia is represented at the convention. People with different beliefs and views have gathered together. They have found the strength to work jointly."

Saturday marks the third anniversary of the Russian Federation's declaration of independence from the Soviet Union in 1990. It is the second anniversary of Yeltsin's own election as president in 1991.

Khasbulatov stormed out of the convention on its opening day last Saturday and he declined Yeltsin's invitation to return Thursday, reportedly because of illness.

A Bosnian Muslim is beaten by Bosnian Croats Thursday at a roadblock near Novi Travnik set up to stop the Bosnian Muslim humanitarian convoy dubbed the "Convoy of Joy" which was due to deliver aid to the northern Bosnian city of Tuzia. After the convoy was stopped Bosnian Croat soldiers beat the Bosnian Muslims on the convoy, reportedly killing at least five men.

British peacekeepers kill Croats attacking convoy

The Associated Press

VITEZ, Bosnia-Herzegovina — British U.N. peacekeepers escorting a Muslim convoy through central Bosnia killed two Bosnian Croat soldiers who attacked the trucks today, U.N. officials said.

It was the first time British soldiers have killed anyone in Bosnia, the British Defense Ministry said. There have been no reports of other peacekeepers killing combatants in the 15-month Bosnian war.

In a separate attack on the 521-vehicle convoy, a driver was killed by sniper fire after some of the aid trucks were slowed by screaming Bosnian Croat women and soldiers who separated the trucks from an armored British escort vehicle.

And British soldiers reported that Bosnian Croat troops, apparently incensed over Muslim gains in eastern Bosnia, took about 30 drivers of the convoy hostage. The convoy was headed for a Muslim enclave in the east.

A U.N. spokesman earlier said British peacekeepers killed three Bosnian Croat soldiers today. Later, the spokesman, who requested anonymity, revised both the count to two and the version of events.

He said a British Warrior armored vehicle fired the deadly rounds from its rapid-fire 30-mm cannon after it let loose two warning bursts.

The two Warriors were stationed at the village of Novi Bila, near the British base at Vitez, guarding part of the route for the seven-mile convoy.

"After firing the two warning bursts, one Warrior then replied with about 20 rounds from the chain gun," killing two of the attackers, said the official. "A third man with a rocket-propelled grenade launcher then ran off into the village."

Snipers killed the driver in a separate incident, about one mile outside Vitez. As he slumped over the wheel, his truck smashed into a telegraph pole and rolled into a ditch.

The British were unable to provide full protection to the convoy because it was so large. As a private rather than U.N. initiative, it was not automatically liable for protection.

Many of the trucks were shot at and looted overnight. Some of the drivers were severely beaten.

"They stuck their guns into my face," sobbed Kadro Nukic, 50, one of those beaten. "I was crying because I have three children."

A rough dressing had been put on a gash on his bald scalp, and his face and throat were caked with blood.

As confrontations grew between Bosnian Croat and British troops, Muslim-Croat fighting continued in the region around the central Croatian city of Travnik, with both sides ignoring a truce signed Thursday.

Muslims stepped up attacks on Vitez and other Croat strongholds, possibly in retaliation for an initial assault on the "Convoy of Joy."

Rafsanjani's win foregone result in Iran's election

The Associated Press

TEHRAN, Iran — Iranians voted today in a presidential election apparently engineered to give Hashemi Rafsanjani a landslide re-election victory despite widespread discontent over Iran's economic distress.

There was little excitement among most Iranians about Rafsanjani's race against three relatively unknown opponents handpicked by government leaders. Turnout appeared low.

Rebels urged a boycott of the vote and have waged attacks aimed at disrupting the election.

As polls opened at 7:30 a.m., the rebel group Mujahedeen Khalq claimed its guerrillas stormed the Abadan oil refinery complex in southwestern Iran today and wrecked some of the installation with 16 bombs.

The claim by the Iraq-based group could not be independently verified. The official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted an unidentified official as calling the claim "a sheer lie." The government previously reported a recent escalation in attacks by the rebels.

The Mujahedeen have claimed to have destroyed a score of oil pipelines in and around Abadan in recent weeks in what appeared to be a systematic effort to wreck the country's domestic fuel supply system and worsen economic problems.

The state media have countered rebel demands for a boycott with steady appeals for Iranians to vote.

"Your vote is like a flower sown for friends and like a bullet fired toward the enemies," Tehran Radio said today. "Today is the day of resurgence, the day of re-signing your pledge with the Islamic Republic."

Results were expected Saturday or Sunday. A victory would give Rafsanjani, 59, a second four-year term.

Rafsanjani's greatest challenge during his second term will be to complete the unfinished business of repairing the economy, battered by the 1980-88 war with Iraq.

There is no accurate estimate of the runaway inflation. But an average salary of 150,000 rials per month, the equivalent of $89, won't pay the rent on a one-bedroom apartment. Beef is selling on the black market for $1.60 a pound. When he became president in 1989, Rafsanjani promised to turn around the economy. But his government has been loathe to introduce reforms that, in the short run, would worsen inflation and unemployment and hurt the poor, the Islamic Republic's staunchest supporters.

Internationally, Rafsanjani's greatest challenge will be to ease tense relations with Iran's Arab neighbors and the West.

Despite Rafsanjani's efforts in the past, there is no sign of a thaw in the conflict with Washington. The United States continues to accuse Tehran of supporting international terrorism.

Israeli army begins drafting homosexuals

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli army said today it has formalized a policy of freely drafting homosexuals and would no longer automatically bar them from serving in sensitive posts.

The policy, formalized by a recent order, goes beyond recent changes in the U.S. armed forces, where homosexuals are not obliged to come out of the closet, but can still be dismissed.

Israel, which is still formally in a state of war with Arab countries, has a mandatory draft for 18-year-old men and women. Most men also serve in the reserves at least 40 days a year until age 55.

A military official, speaking on condition of anonymity in keeping with regulations, said the order legalized a longstanding practice of drafting homosexuals.

The army, in keeping with standing policy, would not say how many troops are homosexuals. The official noted that many gays do not declare their sexual preferences when drafted.

Mujahedeen factions fighting in capital

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Sporadic fighting broke out in Kabul as rival mujahedeen guerrilla factions fired mortars and machine guns at each other's positions.

At least three civilians, including an 8-year-old boy, were killed and nine others were injured in the battles Thursday, doctors and guerrillas said.

The fighting appeared to be spontaneous and not a planned military assault by any group. A cease-fire since May 23 has been largely respected by the rivals although occasional breaches have resulted in hundreds of civilian injuries.

Doctors at the Jhamuriat hospital said eight war-wounded people were admitted and two of them died. Salim Khan, a guerrilla commander, said one person was killed and three were injured when mortars landed on a street.

Police charge Iranian in copycat arson case

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Police accused a young Iranian today of setting fire to his family's house and leaving a poster with a swastika to draw suspicion toward right wing extremists.

"I don't know what the motive was," said Jarle Jonassen, acting sheriff in the central town of Oppdal. "He admitted that he caused the fire."

Preservation group says koala numbers down

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — An estimated 4,000 koalas are run down by traffic, killed by dogs or die from disease and lack of food every year, a preservation group said today.

Barbara Tabart, the executive director of the Australian Koala Foundation, said large colonies of the tree-dwelling marsupials have dwindled dramatically because of rapid urban development on the country's east coast.

Koalas almost exclusively eat eucalyptus leaves, and the main problem is that the trees are being destroyed to make way for new construction, Tabart said.

Estimates of the national koala population range from 60,000 to 100,000, she said.

Jacqueline Bigar - Horoscope

FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 12, 1993

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Prepare for the unexpected as you move in a new direction. Develop a better sense of kinship with a friend, possibly by visiting one who has a case of the blues. Even though someone does something surprising, don't lose your focus on a key goal. Tonight: You are a power to be dealt with.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It's a day to spend with the gang. If you do play the social butterfly, be especially open to new friends. But know that your plans could change quickly if a special person needs some private time with you. Tonight: Be secretive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Handle the major responsibilities early in the day - including an important visit - but try to pace yourself, because many friends will be competing for your time. Don't let them stand in the way of your desires and needs. Bring others together for fun and frolic. Tonight: You party animal!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your need for adventure is high, so consider exploring a flea market, a new store or an unfamiliar town today. Be willing to learn about a stranger's customs; the more open you are, the more delighted you will become. Partners surprise you with their willingness. Tonight: Celebrate a special occasion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Start the day on the right foot by making plans with that special person. You need extra time to share and to talk. Whatever you want to do is all right, so don't feel pressured by so-called "musts." Discuss new directions. Tonight: Go for the weird and different.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make a point of accepting a friend's invitation. As your gregarious side emerges, you become aware of many options you haven't yet considered. Be forthright in your choices, and try not to flirt too much. Tonight: Settle in with that special friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): This is a day for catching up on work. Expect anything else and you'll be disappointed. As you work, be open to moving in a new direction. Later, touch base with a loved one and try to carve out some time for R&R. Be more sensible about your eating patterns. Tonight: Out and about.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make the most of an opportunity when it sneaks up on you. Let your childlike side take over and you'll discover how much another's company means to you. Get more in touch with your feelings about a loved one. Share exciting news. Tonight: Slow down some.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): When an unexpected financial situation arises, be willing to do the extra work or put in the necessary time. You can be sure that others are watching, so get your share of the limelight. Be responsive when a friend calls. Tonight: Do what you love.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make an extra effort to contact a loved one. Realize you are adored and another feels you are irreplaceable. Tonight: It could be interesting at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Follow through on a gut feeling about a money matter; first time around you might not have seen the obvious. Allow your creativity to emerge. Drop in on a boss or older family member who needs to see you. Tonight: Go to a favorite night spot.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are surprised by another's choices. Focus on priorities and be willing to do what it takes to reach a goal - which could mean accepting an invitation that involves travel. Tonight: Be a force to be dealt with.

IF JUNE 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You'll get what you want this year both professionally and personally. Be prepared to take on additional responsibilities in your field, because with a little extra oomph you'll reach a key goal. On the relationship front, a friendship will build and surprising possibilities will open up, so be poised to make a well-advised choice. To help broaden your horizons, reserve time for involvement in community affairs. ARIES is your buddy.

Dear Abby - Letters...

Help is available if you didn't file

DEAR ABBY: On May 11, 1992, you responded to an individual who wrote to say that because of a series of extenuating circumstances, she did not file her tax return one year.

As she missed filing once, she was afraid to file again the following year for fear of the consequences, so she had not filed since. You referred her to Enrolled Agents (EAs), who are authorized to represent taxpayers before all administrative levels of the IRS, and can help get people "back on track" with the government.

The response to your column was astounding! Here at the headquarters of the National Association of Enrolled Agents (NAEA), we received more than 10,000 telephone inquiries from people who had failed to file their tax returns - thanks to our 24-hour EA Referral Service hotline (800) 424-4339. We also received approximately 800 letters from taxpayers who had, likewise, disappeared from the tax rolls and decided to come forward.

We responded to each request from these concerned individuals (within 48 hours) with a list of member EAs in their area. Furthermore, for those who called our main business line (because they were wary of divulging their mailing address), we provided the names of EAs on the spot.

The time has finally come for non-filers to stop living in fear and to get on with their lives; it is critical that they be advised of the IRS' assurance that those who come forward voluntarily will not face criminal prosecution!

Moreover, three out of four people who file tax returns receive refunds. Because there is a statute of limitations (generally three years), time is of the essence to file those past-due returns in order to obtain a refund.

NAEA now offers a free informational brochure designed especially for non-filers titled "Enrolled Agents - Taxpayer Representatives on Your Side," which is available by calling the 24-hour hotline, or writing or faxing your request to: NAEA, 6000 Executive Blvd., Suite 205, Rockville, Md. 20852-3813. Fax: (301) 231-8961. We treat all requests confidentially.

If we reach only a portion of the non-filers, this effort will be worthwhile - both for their peace of mind and our government's.

—DEBORAH B. VIEDER, DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS, NAEA

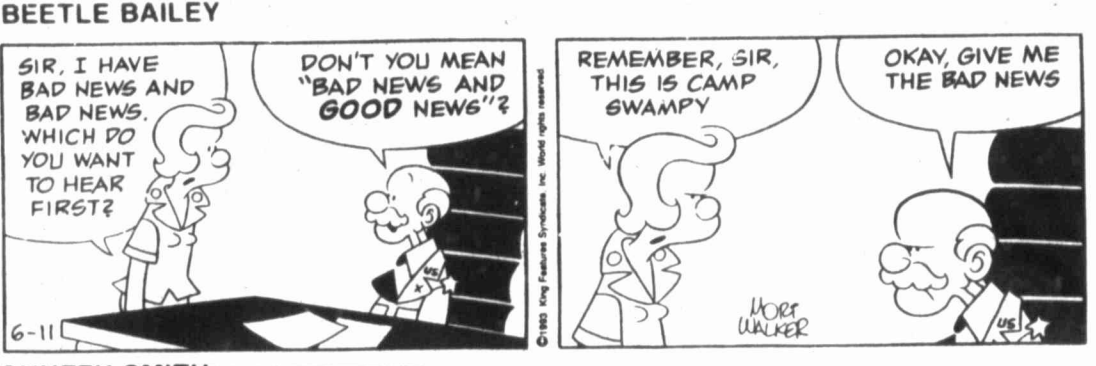

DEAR READERS: Be advised that the fees charged by Enrolled Agents vary according to location and services.

DEAR ABBY: I have been told there is an organization where people can send old, soiled and torn American flags, and they will be disposed of properly.

I wasn't sure of the name of that organization, so I wrote a letter to the Veterans of Foreign Wars -- the chapter nearest me -- and I never received a reply.

Do you know if there is such an organization? --PATRIOTIC IN CAMDEN, MAINE

DEAR PATRIOTIC: Yes, there is such an organization. Contact your local chapter of The American Legion. It will accept soiled and damaged American flags and dispose of them in a dignified, respectful ceremony. And thank you for caring enough about "Old Glory" to make sure she is disposed of properly.

Aide said to have spoken of IRS involvement in travel office case

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A White House lawyer discussed having the Internal Revenue Service probe allegations of wrongdoing in the White House travel office, according to an FBI document cited by The Washington Post.

The document says associate White House counsel William Kennedy spoke of such an IRS investigation in a phone call with an FBI supervisor unless the FBI began a probe of the travel office "immediately." The Post reported in today's editions.

Clinton communications director Mark Gearan today reiterated the White House position that it never contacted the IRS about initiating an investigation. He said it would be inappropriate to comment further until chief of staff Mack McLarty and Budget Director Leon Panetta completed a review of how the situation was handled.

"They're really dedicated to getting to the bottom of the thing," Gearan said.

The FBI summary said the call was May 13, six days before the White House fired seven longtime travel office employees and turned over control to a 25-year-old campaign worker and distant cousin of President Clinton.

The action set off controversy over whether the White House has sought to use the FBI to prove that the firings had been prompted by improperities in the travel office rather than political cronyism.

The Post reported that on May 21, eight days after Kennedy's comment, three IRS auditors appeared in Smyrna, Tenn., to begin an unannounced civil audit of UltraAir, a charter company that had been receiving the bulk of the business from the White House travel office.

White House, Treasury and IRS officials have denied the ongoing UltraAir audit resulted from contacts with the White House, The Post said.

The newspaper quoted former IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander as saying that White House-IRS contacts were banned under post-Watergate rules designed to prevent "political abuse" of the IRS after it was disclosed that the Nixon White House had sought the tax returns of individuals on its "enemies list."

"This one really smacks of politics," Alexander was quoted as saying.

The FBI document was an internal chronology prepared May 24 and distributed to top Justice Department officials, the Post said. It quoted individuals with access to the document as saying that on May 12 Kennedy telephoned James Bourke, an FBI supervisor who heads the unit that conducts background checks of administration appointees.

The call came two days after Hollywood producer Harry Thomason, a presidential friend, and Thomason business partner Darnell Martens sent the White House a memo complaining about the large flow of business to UltraAir and the exclusion of their own company from White House travel business.

The summary said that Kennedy was unclear about what he wanted when he called Bourke on May 12 but was more direct when he called again the next day. It said Kennedy told Bourke that "the matter will be referred to another agency, the IRS."

Local resident arrested after fleeing from task force

By CONNIE SWINNEY

A suspect, charged with possession of a controlled substance, reportedly wrecked a vehicle and fled on foot Wednesday, following pursuit by the Howard County Sheriff's Office and the Permian Basin Task Force.

David Rodriguez, 20, of Big Spring is expected to be charged today with possession of cocaine, fleeing to evade arrest and felon in possession of a firearm, said Tom Finley, commander of the task force.

"The sheriff's office received information that this person was holding some drugs," Finley said. After fleeing, "the suspect left some cocaine as well as a loaded pistol in the seat."

Rodriguez was reportedly released on parole in December. He had been serving a sentence on a theft conviction.

Near 7 p.m. Wednesday, task force and sheriff's officials attempted to stop a Hispanic male, the task force report stated.

After colliding a 1983 Suburban into a utility pole on the 300 block of north Lancaster, the suspect fled on foot.

A two-block foot chase followed, and the suspect was not captured, the report stated.

Officials reported they recovered a .22-caliber revolver and about three grams of cocaine from the vehicle.

"(Sheriff's officials) are in the process of getting a warrant for (the suspect's) arrest," Finley said.

Praise march slated Saturday

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Features Editor

Saturday morning, local Christians will join those all over the world in proclaiming their faith with marching, waving flags, singing and prayer.

"We want to emphasize that this is for everyone," said Stephen Howard, coordinator of Big Spring's March for Jesus.

"It's not too late to join in," he said, adding people of all ages are welcome to march, carry banners and sing along with praise and worship music. Participants will gather at the northwest corner of the Howard County Courthouse Saturday at 9 a.m. to practice an hour before the march begins.

Anyone who wants to volunteer to help with march-day organizing should arrive at 8 a.m.

"There's really no requirement to be a part of this," said Howard, "and we want to get as many people as possible to be a part of it."

Susan Alexander, owner of Son Shine Christian Bookstore, has been fielding questions and comments about the upcoming march for weeks. Her store stocks T-shirts, cassette tapes and printed programs for the event.

"I've heard so many people say they are excited about it," she said. "We've had lots of calls. I think it's going to be a big deal."

Alexander is one of a group of marchers who have learned choreographed flag movements to go with the music. The same taped music is played at March for Jesus events all over the world.

Howard said banners can be made at home and brought to the march Saturday. All the organizers ask is that no specific church be named on the banner.

Service & Worship

Above, Son Shine Christian Bookstore owner Susan Alexander organizes a display of March for Jesus items. The store has been a headquarters for the event. At right, a photo shows marchers at a similar event in Austin last year. Christians all over the world, including Big Spring, will march on Saturday.

"We want the banners to exalt the Lord, not one group," Howard said. "This is not a protest, so we don't want any causes. We don't want anything to draw away from why we're there: To praise the Lord."

Rides on the parade route will be available for the elderly or people with disabilities. Children can be pulled in wagons, but Howard asked that participants not bring cars and other motorized vehicles.

Stepping off at 10 a.m., marchers will move south on Scurry to 8th, west to Gregg, south to 10th, east to Main and follow Main back to the courthouse lawn. Prayers and singing will continue at the courthouse.

Howard invited local church and civic leaders to join in a prayer session beginning at 1 p.m. at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, with entrance through the alley door. Leaders will pray for the city, he said.

Programs, with the words to march songs and prayers, will be available for $1 before the march. Official T-shirts will be on sale as well.

The songs and prayers will be broadcast on AM radio, and the broadcast will be carried by receivers in several vans that will be part of the march.

Other Saturday events include a gathering at Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater at 6 p.m. Participants should bring their own snacks and join in music and fellowship, Howard said.

Christian bands from the area are slated to entertain, but people are welcome to bring instruments and give their own performances.

For more information about Saturday's march or other events, call the March for Jesus hotline, 264-7024 or Son Shine Christian Bookstore, 267-6442.

Old friends

Cannibal Draw reunion Saturday

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

The 16th Annual Meeting of Old Time Eastside Big Spring Residents brings together friends and family members of yesteryear, to rekindle the spirit of a close community experienced decades ago.

The reunion will be at 5:30 p.m. Saturday at the La Posada Restaurant.

More than 100 former and current Big Spring residents are expected to attend to "swap yarns" about families, tell tales of childhood antics and honor loved ones who have passed away, said Mack Underwood, coordinator of the event.

"When we were younger, we'd have parties together; play together; fight together," Underwood said. "Our mothers and fathers were real good friends."

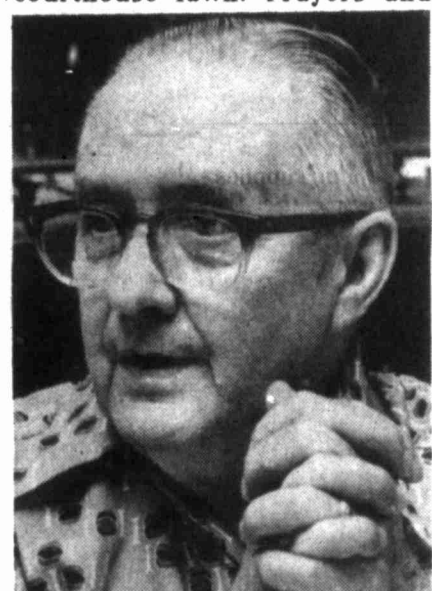

To be an eligible member, a person must have been born, resided in, or "played with the kids" of "old eastside Big Spring" before 1930.

Events conducted at the reunion include roasting a member, awarding the farthest travelers, collecting donations with a "kitty" speech, recounting the life of a selected member and recognizing the oldest in attendance.

The reunion last year attracted 89 guests. Big Spring resident Lillian Patton, 95, won the award for the oldest woman in attendance. Joy Stripling, 91, of Fort Worth was honored for being the oldest man.

"The crowd has gotten bigger over the years," Underwood said. "Interest has gotten acute."

About 30 percent of those in attendance are expected to be from out of Longtime local resident Mack Underwood organized the Cannibal Draw Reunion, a gathering for local residents and former residents who played together as children on Big Spring's old eastside.

Attendees travel to the reunion from places like Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin, Odessa and California.

Underwood added some local residents, much like himself, were natives of Big Spring who moved away and came back upon retirement.

"I found I always like Big Spring the best out of all the towns I saw in the U.S.," he said. "I decided to move back when I approached 65."

A short time later, in 1977, Underwood brainstormed the idea for the one-time male reunion. In 1985, the reunion started inviting women to attend as well.

"Before the Highland addition, it was the largest residential neighborhood in town," he said.

"We did everything together while we were growing up. We're welcoming everyone for the 16th time," Underwood added. "They tell about kids, grandkids, great grandkids, and for some, great great grandkids. They can't wait to get over there (to the reunion)."

Bible warned of world's current state

By ED WALKER
Baptist Temple

The sky is falling! The sky is falling!

Do you remember the story of Chicken Little when you were a child?

Remember how something fell on Chicken Little's head and he assumed that the sky must be falling and in his panic he spread the story to all his friends. Before long the whole barnyard was in total chaos. Animals were running in all directions and hiding under objects in the yard - all to protect them from some terrible event they were sure was going to happen.

No matter how hard anyone tried to convince Chicken Little that the sky really was not going to fall, he would not believe it. He had experienced it and knew it was true.

From the end of February to the middle of April, our country was held in the grasp of an event that was unfolding in Waco. One of the major themes of the Branch Davidians was that the end of time was near. They quoted the scripture and offered explanations and finally the end did come for some of them. But it was not the end of time as promised in the Bible.

Many people found themselves almost mesmerized as they watched day after day. I admit that I spent some time watching and trying to understand what it was really all about.

Then I turned to the source of all understanding, God's word, the Bible. I rediscovered that ever since the days of Christ on earth, there were false teachers and prophets. I read in the 24th chapter of Matthew where Jesus was asked for a "sign of His coming." Jesus responded by saying that there would be many coming and claiming to be the Christ and that they would draw many away. He told the disciples that there would be wars and famines and earthquakes, but that was only the beginning.

We read in chapters 12 and 13 in Revelation about the "red dragon and the beasts" and the destruction they cause. We, too, like Chicken Little, might run with our hands over our heads and cry "the sky is falling!"

In an age when life is valued so little, when children are discarded as trash, there does not seem to be much hope. We see religious leaders falling under the temptations of sin. Every media tries harder than the others to shock our systems. Children are taught that their parents are not capable of properly educating them so the government must do that.

When the family is threatened by the decay of the family unit, who can have hope? Do we dare hold out a light in the darkness of this world? Do we assume that here can be anything better?

My answer to all of this is a resounding "YES!" There is hope. The Bible, God's Holy Word, tells us of times just like these. It warns us that there will be events just like these, but goes one better than "fortune telling."

The Bible holds out a light in the darkness and gives hope to the hopeless. Christ Jesus, the only Son of God, is the answer to all these problems. We can have hope in Him, we can see in the darkness of the world with Him.

The Apostle Paul told the church at Rome, "Therefore having been justified (reconciled to God) by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Believing and trusting brings about a peace in the inner man and hope in his heart. If your life is not going well and you do not know where to turn, I would invite you to contact one of the churches in Big Spring and talk with the pastor. I urge you not to spend another day without this peace and hope in your life.

Inspiration, written by local ministers, appears Fridays.

Survey says believers growing

By The Associated Press

A resurgence in religious beliefs in the former communist bloc and the return to religion of baby boomers in the United States are signs of an international religious revival, a study released recently suggests.

The International Social Survey Program, which polled 19,000 people in more than a dozen countries, found a growing number of young people in Eastern Europe believe in life after death. It also said religious devotion in countries such as the United States, Ireland and Poland may be higher than ever.

"God didn't die, not even under socialism," said the Rev. Andrew Greeley, the study's author.

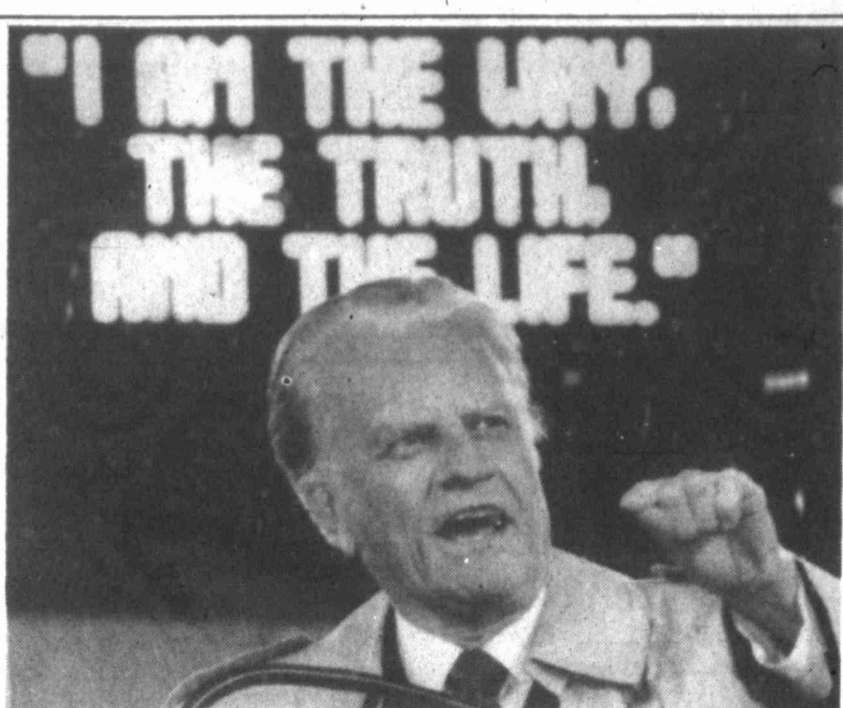

One authority on world religion said the results seemed to show how the unexpected events in Eastern Europe have reversed predictions that there would be an inevitable decline in religious belief in the modern age.

"Everybody thought secularism would keep on undermining religion, and nothing could prevent it," said David Barrett, editor of the World Christian Encyclopedia. "We've all been proved wrong."

The survey program is a consortium of social science research centers in 21 countries. The study on religion involved national samples of at least 1,000 people in 1991 and early 1992 in the United States, Ireland, Northern Ireland, Poland, Italy, Hungary, Holland, New Zealand, western and eastern Germany, Norway, England, Slovenia and Israel.

Tom Smith, director of the General Social Survey, the U.S. participant in the consortium, said the study "has more in-depth information about religious belief ... in a cross-national perspective than has ever been collected."

Survey coordinators said the margin of error would be different for each country, but in general would not exceed plus or minus 4 percentage points.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Presbyterians affirmed their ban on gay clergy for now but approved a three-year study on the matter.

Despite hopes that the 396-155 vote Monday would bring peace to the 2.8-million member Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), about 70 gay-rights activists marched around the assembly hall, shouting, "You want to study us to death!"

In their vote for a study, the delegates asked all churches and regional presbyteries to look at sexuality as it relates to membership and the clergy.

But the resolution also affirmed as "authoritative" the church's current prohibition against homosexual clergy.

Church bodies were encouraged to allow homosexuals who have not made their sexuality public to participate in the study without fear of retribution.

The United Church of Christ is the only major Christian denomination that permits the ordination of homosexual clergy. In recent years, the United Methodist Church and Episcopal Church turned back proposals to allow openly gay clergy.

In the Presbyterian Church, the 1991 General Assembly affirmed past church statements declaring homosexuality "is not God's wish for humanity."

TULSA, Okla. — Oral Roberts says he has no doubts his son Richard was anointed by God to lead the evangelist's university into the 21st century.

Oral Roberts formally handed over the presidency of the university he founded to his son during the commencement. Roberts retired as university president in January, a few days after his 75th birthday. He founded the school in 1965.

NEW YORK — After more than a month of preparation and signing forms, the Bible Society in Jordan was able to send a truckload of 47,000 Scripture calendars into Iraq recently, according to the American Bible Society.

Calendars were sent to 59 churches throughout the country, and officials in Jordan said Iraq had indicated it would soon permit additional biblical literature to be imported.

Women of FCG

The Women of the First Church of God met June 7 in the home of Thelma Carlile for their monthly meeting.

Carlile, Unit President, presided and announced the West Texas District Prayer Retreat to be Aug. 13-14 at the First Church of God, 2009 Main Street.

Virginia Chappell, Mission Program Coordinator, presented the program entitled "Breaking Bread Together". This program was written by Mary Baker, who is Associate Secretary for the Women of the Church of God in Anderson Indiana. Also assisted by Daisy Bell Thomas who is associate Minister at the Cedar Avenue Church of God in Sharon, Pennsylvania.

The objective of the program was to give opportunity for women of difference races and cultures to fellowship together and explore some of the walls that divide them.

The presentation included women of Native American, Caucasian American, African American, Latin American, and Asian-American backgrounds all breaking bread together around the table. She said, "Bread is common to all people and so is the gift of God's Love."

Linda Lindell, Spiritual Life Coordinator, gave the Devotion which included 1 Corinthians 12:12-13, and group singing of "Bind Us Together" chorus.

Special guest was Becky Harkins. The July 3 meeting will be at 1608 Osage.

NL Rangers stay perfect with 3-1 win over Indians

White leads team to Little League tourney win

By MIKE BUTTS
Sports Editor

If only the Texas Rangers could play baseball like their Big Spring Little League namesake.

The National League Rangers beat the International League Indians 3-1 Thursday at the NL park in the winners' bracket of the city Little League championship tournament. Afterwards, Rangers coach Jim Clemens insisted his team's 18-0 season has come from a team effort.

"But if there is one player that stands out on the Rangers' team it's pitcher Daniel White. The 12-year-old won his seventh game of the season Thursday allowing only four hits, striking out 10 and allowing no earned runs.

"Daniel threw the ball real well," Clemens said. "He hasn't had a bad game (this year)."

The only run scored off White came on an error in the fourth which allowed Indians leadoff hitter Chris Rios to score from third. That tied the game at 1-1 and the Rangers came back with runs in the fourth and fifth innings to win. The Rangers will play the Coahoma League Oilers at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Coahoma and the Indians go against the winner of the NL Yankees-NL Ponys elimination game at the IL park Saturday at 8 p.m.

"Usually we can hit a fastball pitcher, we hit fast balls all year," Indians coach Randy Gee said. "Our kids were just tense. I think they were intimidated because their team is undefeated."

White struck out five and did not allow a base runner through the first three innings. He retired the side on 11 pitches in the second inning and 13 in the third.

The Rangers took a 1-0 lead in the American League Braves third baseman Nicci Vizcaino catches the ball as she attempts to put out an American League Colts baserunner who stole third during consolation action at the American League Park Thursday evening. The Colts went on to beat the Braves, 17-5, and kept their season alive.

Phoenix's mission: Win Game 2 or face Chicago sweep

By The Associated Press

PHOENIX — The Phoenix Suns have been here before. They know how to fight from behind in the playoffs.

Their problem is that Chicago has been here, too. The Bulls know how to win championships.

The Bulls took a big step toward that in Wednesday night's opening 100-92 win that put the Suns in a tough spot — win tonight or go to Chicago facing the prospect of being swept in the best-of-7 NBA Finals.

The Bulls avoided such premature thoughts in their successful title runs the past two seasons.

"We'll start letting you guys write that, but we won't think it," Scottie Pippen told reporters Thursday. "There's still a lot of basketball to be played. We feel if we can get this next game, we'll definitely control the series."

While the Suns could become the first NBA finalist to lose the first two games at home, "We don't feel pressure. We haven't felt pressure all year long," Dan Majerle said. "We have to win the game, obviously, but we've been in this situation before."

The Suns dropped the first two games of their opening series at home against the Lakers, then won three straight to eliminate Los Angeles. They were tied 3-3 after losing Game 6 of the Western Conference finals by 16 points, then returned home to beat Seattle.

That victory put the Suns in their first championship series in 17 years, and the lack of experience showed. Their early jitters and lack of aggressiveness helped the Bulls to a 20-point second-quarter lead that Phoenix never could overcome despite improved play the last 2 1/2 quarters.

"Our experience really showed," Michael Jordan said. "When they made a run, we didn't lose our poise."

Chicago, 12-2 in the playoffs, has won its last five games. Phoenix, 11-8, has lost two of its last three.

But Suns coach Paul Westphal said, "Let's not give the Bulls superiority yet just because they won one game."

And Phoenix guard Danny Ainge, a 3-point shooter held to one errant attempt from that distance because of sticky defense, saw one encouraging sign.

"The only positive thing that I can think of is that we set them up," he said. "We've got them right where we want them. They think they've got this thing locked up."

But the Bulls are hardly satisfied with winning just one game in Phoenix and gaining the homecourt advantage.

"We feel we have an opportunity to be aggressive and be greedy," Jordan said. "We're very relaxed, very confident and very focused on what we're trying to achieve. This team seems not to be rattled by anything."

The first-game focus was on the failures of the Suns' two key players. Charles Barkley missed 16 of 25 shots despite getting little double coverage. Kevin Johnson had just two assists and 11 points, but committed five turnovers.

"I think that we'll have better performances from (those) two guys and that will make everybody play better for us," Westphal said.

He said Johnson needs his teammates to move to open spots so he can pass to them when he penetrates and runs into the Bulls' tall frontline.

And Barkley must hit his shots and force Chicago to double team him, leaving other Suns free.

"I don't think it's going to really come down to just me finding a way to penetrate," Johnson said. "As a team, we have to play much better. I think we'd be doing this series a disservice if we thought it was just one guy going to make a difference."

That's a lesson they could learn from the Bulls.

In the opener, Jordan scored 31 points, Pippen had 27, Horace Grant guarded Barkley well, B.J. Armstrong hounded Johnson all over the floor, Bill Cartwright defended inside and Scott Williams led the team with 10 rebounds.

Rookie Richard Dumas, with 20 points and 11 rebounds, was one of the few Suns who played well.

Ainge said the Suns had inconsistent spells during the season.

"We haven't been together a long time and we don't have the same confidence in our identity that Chicago has," he said.

The Bulls expect Phoenix to make some adjustments tonight, but they've shown they can handle such changes. They won the last four games of a physical Eastern Conference final in New York, then handled the more wide-open, offensive style Phoenix favors.

"We've been able to adjust to any type of play that anybody's thrown at us," Pippen said. "That's what made us the champions the past two years."

Shockers live up to name, reach CWS final

By The Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — Wichita State coach Gene Stephenson says he had an answer for anyone who would have told him early in the year that his 1993 Shockers would be playing for the College World Series title.

"You're dreaming," he said.

But Stephenson hopes nobody wakes him up until after Saturday, when his seventh-seeded Shockers (58-16) go for a second NCAA Division I baseball title in six appearances in Omaha.

It will be Wichita State's fourth final in those appearances, a fact not lost on Oklahoma State coach Gary Ward. The Shockers were second in both 1982 and 1991.

Wichita State will play the winner of today's game between fifth-seeded LSU (51-17-1) and fourth-seeded Long Beach State (46-18).

Ward's Cowboys (45-17) were sidelined by the Shockers 10-4 Thursday night when Wichita State freshman Casey Blake drove in five runs.

Oklahoma State once ruled the Midwest neighborhood when it came to college baseball. Ward said it is no longer true.

"The neighborhood is controlled by the guys in the yellow shirts. They took that tradition from us in 1988," Ward said of the Kansas school less than three hours from his Stillwater, Okla., home. "They are better than us."

The Shockers proved it again Thursday night when Blake hit a two-run single in a five-run third, then added a bases-loaded double in the eighth that sealed the Wichita State win.

Wichita State and LSU, the 1991 College World Series champions, have built the best programs in the country, said Ward.

"Wichita State and LSU have done the best job in the past five years," said the Cowboy coach. "I hope Wichita State wins it because they represent us all (in the Midwest)."

A year ago, Wichita State didn't represent itself very well with their two-loss exit from the College World Series, Stephenson said. The Shockers came back to Omaha on a mission in 1993, although their coach admitted it has less talent than he's ever had here.

"Getting to Omaha with this group is maybe the most satisfaction we've ever had," Stephenson said. "Now we have a chance to win it all. That would be the ultimate satisfaction."

The Shockers' semifinal win was the first time in 12 tournament games this year that a team had taken the lead and held it.

"They play a five-inning game," Ward said. He explained that if the Shockers can hold on to a lead early, they bring in relief specialists Darren Dreifort and Jamie Bluma, who salt opponents away.

"You bet we do," Stephenson said. "We lost all of our starters after last year. I took a lot of heat for not starting Dreifort. He and Bluma are far more valuable for us in relief."

The formula held true to form Thursday night when Joey Jackson doubled in two runs and Blake singled in two more off Oklahoma State starter Jake Benz (9-2) in the fifth.

Oklahoma State closed to 6-3 when Dreifort relieved Mike Brandley (10-2) in the sixth and allowed one run before Bluma put the Cowboys down in order in the ninth.

By then, Blake also had cleared the bases with his double in a four-run eighth for the Shockers.

"We got some of the greatest clutch hits," Stephenson said. "We compete at critical times and deliver, and tonight we delivered in a big way."

Frenship, Cooper advance to UIL state baseball finals

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Michael Denson's two-run triple capped a seventh-inning comeback that lifted Wolfforth Frenship to a 6-5 victory over Corpus Christi Calallen Thursday at the University Interscholastic League state baseball tournament in Austin.

The Tigers (25-10) scored all their runs in the final two innings for the victory. They face Mount Pleasant Friday in the 4A championship game.

After spotting Calallen a 5-0 lead through five innings, Frenship scored three runs in the sixth, then won the game on Denson's triple to left-center in the bottom of the seventh.

The Tigers defeated District 3-4A teams Big Spring and Andrews on their way to the state tournament.

Third baseman Chris Dickerson's seventh-inning error allowed Matt Jones to score, giving Abilene Cooper a dramatic 4-3 victory over Alvin in the 5A semi-final. Cooper advances to Friday's championship game against Arlington Martin (33-5).

Justin Batson and Johnny Hunter each drove in three runs with three singles, leading Arlington Martin to an 8-3 rout of Corpus Christi Carroll in a Class 5A semifinal.

Jimmy Holcomb allowed only one hit in pitching China Spring into today's Class 2A championship game.

Holcomb (6-3) struck out six and walked three Thursday in China Spring's 5-0 victory over New Deal. He retired the final 12 batters he faced after Kasey Howell's single that opened the fourth.

The Cougars (17-8), winners of the 2A state title in both 1987 and 1989, advanced to the finals against Boling. Todd Harris and Chris Becerra combined for a five-hitter and Boling capitalized on eight Pattonville Pfairdand eight errors for a 4-1 victory.

After Alvin (27-5) tied the game with two runs in the top of the seventh, Yellowjackets starter Chris Olson retired the first two batters in order. Jimmy Frush then tripled and Hugh followed with a smash down the third base line that bounced past Shane Stewart (2) of Wolfforth Frenship awaits the ball as Ray Castillo of Corpus Christi Calallen slides into third base. Frenship won the Class 4A state semi-final game Thursday in Austin 6-5.

Dickerson, whose double had tied the game minutes before, and allowed Frush to score the game-winner.

J.R. "Tydie" Castillo had three hits, including a two-run homer, as Falfurrias beat Hooks 4-3 in a Class 3A semifinal.

Castillo's homer in the third inning and J.R. Gutierrez' sacrifice fly in the fourth inning boosted the Jerseys, now 29-2, into the championship game against Bellville.

Chris Nolen pitched a two-hitter and struck out eight in leading Bellville to a 7-0 victory over Iowa Park.

Nolen, 12-0, allowed two first-inning singles and then coasted the rest of the way. He also had two hits for the Brahmas (22-6-1).

Jason Miller and Tony Lozipone had Iowa Park's only hits. Ralph Dilard, 8-3, took the loss.

Trent Abbot allowed only one hit in 6 1/3 shutout innings, leading Mount Pleasant to a 4-0 victory over El Campo.

The Tigers will play Wolfforth Frenship in the Class 4A championship game.

The Tigers (29-8) scored one run in the bottom of the first inning to give Abbot all the support he would need against the Ricebirds (26-7). Brian Thomas singled in Rudy Dunavant to score the first-inning run that put Mount Pleasant ahead for good.

Flatoria's Aaron Masek survived a rocky first inning to record a complete game three-hitter in the Bulldogs' 3-2 victory over Baird in a Class A semifinal.

THE HOME FRONT

By Kay Moore

If you use an armoire or cabinet for your home entertainment center - and isn't it a great deal - be sure it has holes for running wires, air circulation space around each element to avoid overheating, and unobstructed locations for the speakers.

To protect your family from lead in drinking water, water run for 30 to 60 seconds to flush out what's been sitting in the pipes. Don't cook with hot tap water, it's more likely to contain lead. Clean out faucet screens every month or two.

Paint chips can be deceiving. Remember that the bigger the wall, the more intense the color looks, and what looks delicate on a tiny paint chip can "scream" on the wall. Best test is to buy a quart and paint a large test swatch.

Equity is the value of a homeowner's unencumbered interest in real estate. That is, the value of the property less the unpaid mortgage balance and any outstanding liens against the property.
