LUBBOCK HIGH BATTLES GAMELY BUT AMARILLO WINS, 13 TO 0

SLASHING OFFENSE FATAL TO WESTERNERS; LUBBOCK YOUTHS REFUSE TO BE OUT-BATTLED

BY JAMES R. DOW
(Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor)

TEXAN PARK, Amarillo, Oct. 15.—Hugh Butler's slashing, offensive, eleven cylinder machine continued on with its undefeated record by defeating the Lubbock High School Westerners here this afternoon by a count of 13 to 0. One of the greatest assemblies ever to witness a high school gridiron classic in the Panhandle city filled through the turnstiles to witness the clash of the old rivals. It was estimated that something like 3,500 attended the game at the Texan Park, the Western League baseball park.

Although the Westerners retarded the flashy offense of the Sandies, which is built around the Pop Warner plays, they failed to completely check them and twice the Sandies converted the Westerners' field goal. The first counter came during the latter part of the second quarter. Both touchdowns were made by constant driving plays off tackle and around end. The reverse, the in-and-out, and out had in drive of the Sandy backs over the Westerners' defense was the means by which the Amarillo club scored.

ELECTRA BEATS QUANAH ELEVEN BY 64-6 TALLY

TEAM WHICH COMES TO LUBBOCK NEXT WEEK LOOKS STRONG

Special To The Avalanche-Journal

ELECTRA, Oct. 15.—Unleashing a powerful and unexpected running and plunging attack, the Electra high school eleven crashed through the plucky, but outclassed Quanah Indians here this afternoon to earn a 64-6 victory, and therefore make of themselves at least an even choice to win over the Lubbock Westerners when they journey to the South Plains city next Friday.

Quanah fought valiantly, especially in the first half, when for a moment a sudden overhead onslaught sent fear into the Electra supporters. The locals' defense proved too strong, however, and what had appeared as a new sport of life proved merely the swan-song of the Indians.

Improvement is shown. The Electra eleven showed vast improvement over the form displayed last week when they faced the Grandfield team here. Led by Captain Sylvan Clinger, they riddled through Quanah, wearing down their Indian defense until near the end of the game many of the Quanah regulars, exhausted and injured, were forced to retire from the game.

The Electra scores came mainly from straight football. White, L. Smith and Culpepper alternating with Clinger, ran the eyes into scoring positions. Now and then, to keep the Quanah secondary in its proper place, the Electra backs would toss a pass.

Fumble Aids Quanah. Quanah's lone score came as the result of a fumble Bill Cross, Electra fullback, let the ball slip away from him. However, the line Crawford recovered, dashing into a clear field for a 40-yard sprint and a touchdown.

Although the game started sluggishly, the Tigers' scoring machine soon swung into action, and a margin of 29 points was rolled up in the first quarter.

Electra plays in Lubbock next Saturday, while Amarillo comes to Quanah for a game.

PITTSBURGH MAY TRADE HAZEN CUYLER TO CINCINNATI FOR TWO STARS

DREYFUSS REALIZES HE MUST BOLSTER RIGHT SIDE OF PIRATE INFIELD FOR COMING SEASON

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15.—It won't be long now before the fall gossip about big league trades gets into full swing. That is an annual custom as soon as the world series is over.

This fall the player most talked about as trading material is "Kiki" Cuyler, the star in-hand outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The drastic action of Manager Bush and Owner Dreyfuss in keeping Cuyler on the bench, while waging one of the toughest battles in the history of the National League to win a pennant and all during the past world series, makes it seem a certainty that Cuyler is doomed to go elsewhere for 1928.

Unless both Manager Bush and Player Cuyler are willing to let bygones be bygones, unless Cuyler is willing to admit publicly that he was in error, thereby offering a reason for his continued benching, it hardly seems possible that he will fit into the pirate line-up for next year.

Cuyler is a great ball player with him in the outfield behind the Wauer boys, Pittsburgh would have one of the greatest trio of gardeners in baseball, perhaps the best since the days of Lewis, Speaker and Hooper of the Boston Red Sox. In addition, as valuable a fielder as Barnhart would be on the bench ready for any emergency.

"Kiki" is excellent trading material. Any club in the National League would be delighted to make a deal for him. However, Pittsburgh will insist on something worthwhile in return and only a few clubs can offer such a package.

It is known that a deal with the Cincinnati Reds is on the fire and Cuyler will go to that club if Manager Bush can get the players he desires in the deal.

Realizing that the first and second base side of his infield is rather weak, Bush is angling with several clubs that have such trading material. Haghey Critz is the player most desired by Bush. It is understood Pittsburgh has offered Cuyler to the Cincinnati club for First Baseman, Walter Pipp, and Second Baseman, Hushby Critz.

Last spring, Critz held out for more money. The trouble wasn't adjusted until after the opening of the season and, when Critz reported, he was far from playing condition.

Critz, Cuyler and Pipp. He early suffered a "charley horse" as well as other injuries.

Kangaroos Make Horned Frogs Hustle For 20 To 13 Victory Before Ft. Worth Fans

Christians Pile Up Early Margin To Assure Game

(By Associated Press)

PORT WORTH, Oct. 15.—After waiting over Austin college in the first half of Saturday's game here Texas Christian university was badly outplayed in the second half and just pulled out a 20 to 13 victory over the battling Kangaroos from Sherman. The Purple Frogs scored all their points in the first and second quarters, and in the last 20 minutes of play they were not only minus the punch to add points but were unable to halt a brilliant passing attack of the Texas conference opponent.

Spectators Thrilled. The sudden and complete change of form on the part of the two teams gave the 2,000 spectators a big thrill in the second half as Crismon Cavthon athletes desperately waged their fight to overcome the Purple's three touchdowns lead. Time and again it looked as if the Frogs had the offense stopped only to have "Jew" Keeling fling a pass to Charlie Lingo or some other Austin back or end.

Improvement is shown. The Electra eleven showed vast improvement over the form displayed last week when they faced the Grandfield team here. Led by Captain Sylvan Clinger, they riddled through Quanah, wearing down their Indian defense until near the end of the game many of the Quanah regulars, exhausted and injured, were forced to retire from the game.

INTERSTATE LAWS FOR BUSES NEXT

REGULATION OF BUS AND MOTOR LINES NOW CALLS FOR NATIONAL RULE

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, Oct. 15.—Bus line and motor freight line regulation has expanded to such an extent in the United States that state supervision will soon be supplemented by congressional regulations.

Mr. Webster is chairman of the legislative committee of the association. He declared the subject of federal regulation of interstate bus and freight lines would be continued as a legislative prospect at the next session of Congress.

Mr. Webster said, has about 100,000 automobiles more than any other state west of the Mississippi river, excepting only California and Texas. There are 50,000 trucks operating in the state.

Mr. Webster expressed the opinion that the states of the nation should maintain a full-time representative in Washington to look after legislation with a view of curbing encroachment of federal authority over the state in certain state rights.

Special To The Avantage-Journal. CANYON, Oct. 15.—The West Texas State Teachers college is taking its advantage to the people of Texas through correspondence work and other phases of extension work.

These students are located in 21 different towns, ranging in size from a village of 150 people to the city of Houston. All the state from Perryton on the north boundary to El Paso in the southwest is represented and there are students in Kansas and New Mexico.

Accountants, teachers, ministers, lawyers, business men and city women are the students. Some are high school graduates, working to secure money to go on to college. Many of them are middle aged people, whose educational opportunities have been circumscribed during youth.

The number who enroll for courses in history, English and Education indicates that many people are interested in cultural study and in the forces that control human action, while a demand for courses in marketing and other phases of agriculture and the horticultural fields are seeking help.

All correspondence courses given by the West Texas State Teachers college are taught by regular members of the faculty and the closest possible relation is maintained between instructor and student.

The term "hair's breadth" now used to denote an almost infinitesimal space, was at one time an actual measure. It was the width of sixteen hairs laid side by side.

The Afternoon Frock Newest Of Paris Style Creations Robe D'apres-midi, As French Say, Draws The Limelight

Jean Patou is the creator of this colorful afternoon frock. Black wool and white marocain Lavin ensemble, the black coat lined with squared fur.

BY ROSETTE NEA Fashion Expert PARIS, Oct. 15.—The great new feature this season in the realm of fashion is the re-appearing of the afternoon frock. While last year a sports ensemble could be worn and was often worn by many a well-dressed woman right up to the dinner hour, this year it is relegated to its proper place and from the early afternoon on she will now slip into a real "robe d'apres-midi."

Another novelty is the "tailor dress" which forms the top part of the dress and the bottom part of the coat's lining. Another handsome afternoon frock is the "robe d'apres-midi" which is carried out in black museline, de sole and steel paillettes. The skirt is composed of two or three widths of draped mousseline, and the whole of the top is of steel paillettes on tulle, which makes it as supple as satin.

Black velvet is always been and always will be a favored color combination, but whereas years ago black was worn by only the most mature women, now young people show a marked preference for it. It is a far cry from the sombre, unrelieved monotony of the black dress of fifty years ago, of course, and today even the very young girl has at least one black frock in her wardrobe. An ensemble when she puts on amongst all others is another creation of Jeanne Lanvin's. It might be said in passing that the more feminine line now adopted is eminently suited to her style.

American University Women Plan To Meet In Austin This Month; Miss M. Weeks And Mrs. Doak Are Delegates

Word has been received by Mrs. A. H. Laidlaw, president of the Lubbock Branch of the American Association of University Women, that plans are almost completed for the annual meeting of the association.

The meeting is to be held in Austin on October 23 and 24 and will be preceded by a meeting of the state executive board on the evening of October 22. Mrs. H. C. Burke, jr., of Fort Worth, state president, will preside over the board meeting and the convention sessions.

Lubbock will be represented at the meeting by Mrs. Mary W. Doak, dean of women at the Tech, and by Miss Margaret Weeks, dean of the school of home economics at the college. The two delegates will be accompanied by Mrs. Laidlaw, the president here, the wife of Dean Laidlaw of the Tech school of agriculture.

The state organization is only one year old. It was organized in Lubbock in 1926 by a group of Texas members of the national association in attendance on the convention of the Southwest Central Section of the association then in session. The first state conference was held in Dallas in October, 1926, when a permanent state organization was formed and a state constitution adopted, and officers elected.

Membership Restricted According to Mrs. Laidlaw, membership in the national association is limited to women who are graduates from American colleges, who meet the standards of scholarship and opportunity for the women faculty members and students meet the requirements of the association. In addition to its work toward raising and maintaining scholastic standards and living conditions for college admittance women as students the association provides and administers for other donors scholarships for undergraduate students, and fellowships for graduate students in both American and foreign universities. The organization publishes a magazine, conducts educational research, suggests study programs for groups interested in the study of educational problems, and international relations.

Misses Mary Walker and Inez Edwards, former Simmons university students and now teachers in the Lubbock schools, attended the Tech-Simmons football game here yesterday.

Mrs. J. F. Bacon and daughter, Miss Virginia Bacon, attended the Lubbock-Amarillo football game yesterday in Amarillo.

Mrs. L. S. Mast and sons, Roland and Francis, Mrs. Hattie O'Hair and son, Rob, and Mrs. James R. Robinson are spending today in Lubbock visiting friends.

Mrs. and Mrs. R. H. Marshall of Harne, are visiting their daughter, Miss Eugenia Marshall of the Tech faculty.

THE COUNTRY WILL RESPOND

The statement of President Coolidge that the United States would forever end the flood menace from the waters of the Mississippi no doubt chimes in with the will of the people of the United States. Protection of the lands and farms and cities and homesteads of the great Mississippi Valley is a necessity and only the Government can do this.

There are, however, two sides to the question: one is what will be the system of protection, and the other, how the work shall be financed. Neither of these two problems is easy to solve. The first problem, the plan adopted, must be correct or the vast sums that will be spent will be wasted.

The scheme is so vast that it will probably take years to complete it, while floods do not wait on man's convenience. Much damage may yet be done before the old stream is tamed.

The work, however, will not be done under the Coolidge Administration; it will hardly be possible to devise a plan and begin work on it during his term. Future administrations must carry on the work.

That this will be a national project because the Mississippi belongs to no one State, but serves, when on its good behavior, many States. It is an integral part of the country; a navigable stream, a great artery of transportation that is probably destined in the future far to exceed its former usefulness in this line. It is a highway that both separates the country into two parts, about the middle of the vast stretch east of the Rocky mountains, and cuts off a third or three nearly equal portions. And yet, because it is navigable, it also unites the country and can be made to serve it.

What ever the plan adopted it must embrace the entire river, because the river serves, as it leaves, the shores of many States. In counting the mileage of the Mississippi the long, tumultuous Missouri must also be included as one of its upper branches, for the flood waters of the great Missouri also affect the stream-flow of the lower river.

In this connection, then, we look upon the Mississippi as a stream having two forks toward its source, besides its numerous tributaries, all of which will be included in one way or another in any adequate system of flood-control.

This is probably the greatest problem that has ever taxed the engineering genius of the country, while an adequate system of control of that great river would possibly be the highest mark of the constructive mind and energy of the Nation.

CHRISTIANITY

Bishop Mouzon, in an article recently contributed to the Nashville Advocate says that in speaking in the most general terms, if we dare to be Christians we must undertake to apply the principles of Jesus to the betterment of the world we live in. We must understand that the world itself is the subject of redemption.

Pure individualism has failed, and hopelessly failed, to save the world. At the rate we are going we are making one-sided Christians, self-satisfied Church members, dwarfed and stunted human lives, and damaged and damned souls faster than there is any possibility of saving them one by one. And not only so, influences from the un-Christian world have come up into our homes and our Christian Churches. We cannot hermetically seal our homes against the godless and Christless spirit of the world without. Thus it has come about that not only are we unable to save society by our present method of pure individualism, we are not even able to save our Churches and our own children. For if life be, as we have been told, the adjustment of internal relations to external relations; and if religion has to do with the total life of a man, then there cannot possibly be any such thing as a perfect life in an imperfect environment. Just so long as social and economic conditions are un-Christian, just so long will even the best Christians feel their baneful consequences. I am well aware that to a large degree the Christian creates his own immediate environment, and I am not overlooking the vast significance of St. Paul's profound insight when he writes, "Our citizenship is in heaven."

But I am affirming a self-evident, if long-forgotten, fact that even our best is lower than Christ's best so long as we live and move and have our being in a world gone wrong. To use St. Paul's figure, "We are members of one of another." If one member suffers, all suffer; if one member rejoices, all rejoice. The truth of social solidarity is not only a truth of science; it is a doctrine of Christianity. If, then, we are to have clean and healthy children of our own, we must labor to make all children clean and healthy. If we are to keep our own families free from disease and sin, we must strive to keep the community in which we live free from disease and sin. In order to do this we must ask, Whence come sin and disease? We must do more than endeavor to cure individuals of sickness and save individuals from sin. We must seek out the causes of the evils that are in the world. We must heal the open sores of human society and destroy the secret breeding places of vice and crime.

OUR NEW AMBASSADOR TO MEXICO

When the Honorable Dwight Morrow arrives in Mexico as our new ambassador the chief matters which will occupy his interest will be the Mexican oil land laws; the payment of interest on Mexican bonds held in this country and abroad; the Mexican presidential election. All these problems are more or less tied up with each other and are of considerable interest to the people of the United States.

The petroleum law question, which caused a nasty exchange of notes and considerable talk of intervention less than a year ago, has subsided to a diplomatic deadlock between the two governments which is still shot with possibilities. If the Mexican supreme court decides the laws are not constitutional, the issue will be dead. But if it decides the other way and the Calles government seizes American property, it is still likely that the arms embargo will be lifted and that Mexico will, by design be plunged into chaos. The embargo remains this country's big club over Mexico.

The situation has been saved to date by President Calles' various concessions and his failure to confiscate any oil lands. Unless he commits some unexpected overt act it may be that, with Morrow in Mexico City, the situation eventually will be solved by arbitration is recommended so overwhelmingly by the United States Senate. Incidentally, the big reason that this government feels it can't allow Mexico to enforce her oil land laws is that a precedent would be established for northern countries of South America where we have huge oil stakes. By providing for the 50-year concessions, the Calles government has demonstrated that it doesn't intend to prevent our companies from getting all the oil out.

The reader may recall one or two reports within the last year concerning the doubtful ability of Mexico to make her annual bond interest payment, amounting to nearly $15,000,000. These reports were not exaggerated. Her internal religious troubles and her row with foreign oil interests have not left Mexico in excellent financial condition. The oil companies have drastically curtailed Mexican production, putting a crimp in tax collections. This curtailment was due either to a desire to retaliate against Mexico or to the overproduction in this country—or both. Mexico came through last year with her first payment since the fall of Porfirio Diaz. She has continued just about to make the grade. The Pani-Lamont agreement calls for monthly $500,000 payments, the balance to be made up at the end of the year. President Calles, incidentally, allowed only 8 per cent for oil axes in his 1927 budget and on his budget for next year has failed to enter any credit for oil taxes whatever!

Morrow's presence in Mexico City will be so much added insurance for continued payments. If Mexico falls down on her, her credit is virtually ruined throughout the world. Morrow undoubtedly will be interested in keeping Mexico in a position where she can pay and his financial mind will also consider the possibilities for eventually repayment of the bonds' $500,000,000 principal. The Morrow appointment also seems to improve Alvaro Obregon's chances for the presidency. In the first place Obregon would surely maintain a stronger government than any other candidate now in the field. Secondly, Obregon was the Mexican sponsor of the Payne-Warren and Pani-Lamont agreements. The first accord has been waved by this government in the oil laws dispute, to be met by the Calles government's assertion that subsequent Mexican laws did not violate it and that even if they did it was only an agreement with the Obregon government, which did not bind Obregon's successors. It was only on the signing of these agreements that this government recognized Obregon and invoked the arms embargo in such a way that he was able to continue to hold power. With Obregon president again, it is believed that this government could hold him to his own agreements.

The Lamesa Chamber of Commerce and citizenship have launched a move for a permanent fair in Dawson county. We understand that a fair association is to be organized and the enterprise launched on sound business principles. The fair there

SO THINK WE

We think that the city of Lubbock will do a good turn for the people of this section of the country if they will push the matter of a municipal auditorium. It is needed now, they say, and will continue to be needed worse each year till we get it.

We think that Lubbock has a group of the highest class of ministers of any city in the south, and the people of the community are very appreciative of the fact whether they have ever said so publicly or not.

We think that Lubbock health conditions are something to be proud of, and there is no reason why they can't continue ideal. This is naturally a very healthy country, and unless from unnecessary causes epidemics start there is no need for worry about the health of this community.

We think that the Fair association should lose no time in bargaining for additional land for the fair. It is badly needed, and then after that is done there should be some means worked out whereby new buildings can be put up.

We think that after a man gets married he soon begins to realize that he is not the whole show, but at least fifty per cent.

We think that there is no danger of a shortage in the sucker crop in the United States, when we read about the thousands of folks who coughed up $10 to see the Dempsey-Tunney prize fight.

We think that even good peace officers can be fooled sometimes, when we read of the slick trick played on some of them recently when they took a fellow out of jail to catch another crook, and lost the one they had.

We think that some people will promise most anything sometimes to get rid of some very annoying persons, and they can hardly be blamed either.

We think it a very fine movement on the part of the churches of this city to put on a city-wide children's week campaign. This campaign is for the purpose of getting in touch with all of the people of the city in an effort to interest the children and the youths of the community in attending Sunday school and church. The week's citation will be completed by a suggestion on next Sunday night.

We think now since fire prevention week has passed that we should continue it and make it prevention year.

We think that if the ladies could pass the drug store they might manage to keep that school girl complexion that they had some forty years ago.

We think that it is not at all necessary to be a big gun to be tried. We have known several very small ones to be knocked over.

We think that this sunny weather is making a bale of cotton a minute in this country, anyway. It is bringing out many smiles in his section.

We think that Lubbock should have many more shade and ornamental trees planted this year. It will mean a more beautiful Lubbock.

We think that every recreational park either under individual management or municipally owned will add that much more to the pleasure of living in Lubbock. Let the good work go on.

We think that a book when fifty selected is a life-long friend and a blessed companion.

We think that if a bride is not homesick for her family six weeks after marriage it is an indication that she got the right man.

We think that every successful person has the road of hard knocks to traverse.

We think that a demand will be made for tickets to the banner football game of the season when the Texas Aggie meet with the Texas Tech team here on October 28.

We think that there is a much bigger building program going on in Lubbock than most of us seem to realize. Lubbock just keeps going ahead, regardless of the weather, and the price of cotton and oil.

We think the Tech college has a fine bunch of students. They seem to be far above the average, and their general behavior this year seems to be much improved over last year and the year before.

We think that Ruth Elder will agree that she was lucky even though she was not successful in making the entire trip in the air. Some other fliers were not even able to make the balance of the trip on a tanker.

We think the vegetarian must certainly be up against it when the cafe serves animal crackers with the vegetable meal.

We think there is one thing that does not become smaller when it is contracted and that is a debt.

We think some men marry a girl for her money, especially after she has spent all he has on trying to get her.

Work done by any machine now can be registered by the electrograph, a new device which shows on a ribbon exactly what work the machine does and when it stops.

The white population of the world is estimated to increase at the rate of about 5,000,000 every year.

"The Line Is Busy"

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that Old Man Weather is very kind and considerate in keeping his son Cold Weather from visiting with the South Plains.

It is reported that the South Plains will make a big bid for new home-seekers this spring as the prospects are very promising for a bumper cotton production.

It is reported that the new railroad will make its debut in Lubbock in early spring. With the new road, natural gas, and with good roads—this section will be ready to greet the world.

It is reported that the hot-sove league discussions will be long and arduous this winter since it has been predicted that there will be a very severe winter.

WHERE ARE THE REAPERS?

Dr. U. B. Short

"Lift up your eyes and look upon the fields, for they are white already to harvest." (John 4:35). Jesus had spoken wonderful words to the woman of Samaria, so that she was convinced that He was the true Messiah. She left her pitcher by the well, ran to the nearby town and got the men so interested in her story that they came in a body to see this great prophet.

Jesus saw them coming through the corn fields, and said to His disciples, "Lift up your eyes and look upon the fields, for they are white already to harvest." The literal harvest was four months distant, but the spiritual harvest was ready for the reapers.

Lift up your eyes and look upon the fields—the higher plane, the spiritual plane, and while you are reaping, don't forget your own responsibility.

To encourage the reapers our Lord said, "Other men have labored and ye are entering into their labors." How fortunate we are to be living in these modern times when we are reaping a wonderful harvest from thoughts planted by laborers who have long since gone to their reward!

How liberally Mother Earth pays the farmer for his labor! If man kind were only as liberal as Mother Earth, what a happy man the farmer would be! You plant a seed in the ground, and it multiplies thirty, sixty, and in some cases a hundred fold.

About sixty years ago a thought was planted in the fruitful mind of General William Booth. Now behold the harvest. It is plentiful, but, alas! the laborers are not so plentiful.

In these times all workers in the Lord's harvest are reaping the labors of millions of earnest souls who sowed good seed in good ground, for the Scriptures declare that God's word shall not return unto Him void. Thousands of bushels of good seed are sown every Sabbath day. What shall the harvest be?

That largely depends on the reapers. The knowledge of salvation covers the earth as the waters cover the mighty deep; the business of the reaper is to bring people to a decision.

There are the big revival reaping machines, making a terrible racket and doing a large amount of work. There's the preacher with his scythe, and the layman with his sickle, and there are others, like

Big Profits From Stock Farming

(Sudan News) W. F. Lynch, our good friend and neighbor living two miles north of town, came in Saturday and took the editor over a strip of about ten miles of the country, lying just north of Sudan, and we can truly say that we were surprised to see such wonderful crops as have grown in that section this season.

First we visited Mr. Lynch's farm of two labors and on which he has 500 acres of fine crops. He has maize and higeria growing on land that was planted after harvesting from 12 to 15 bushels of wheat to the acre, that will make a ton to the acre. His corn will make an average of 30 bushels and other feed promises to make a large yield. He has the only farm equipped with a water system, without pipes, that has ever been our pleasure to see.

The water is pumped out of the well onto the ground, and a ditch carries the water into a storage tank, and on the opposite side there are ditches carrying the water to the hog pasture, as well as for irrigation purposes. Mr. Lynch has 11 head of fine brood sows and about thirty head of shoats. He has a nice home, and owns three labors of land. His son, L. L., farms one labor and is in the hog business too. Last fall L. L. bought a gilt from Kent and Paul for $25, and now has 23 hogs, all from this one gilt. He has about eighty head of hogs on the place and his crops are also good.

Just across the road lives Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey, who are selling cream and poultry, and have a nice flock of turkeys. Mr. Harvey has ten acres of certified higeria that is as pretty as a picture, and from indication, it should make a ton and a half of grain to the acre. Other crops on the Harvey farm are good.

Mr. Gilbert's farm came next, and from the road, his crops, consisting of maize, corn, higeria, etc., were promising.

Virgil Dogan also has a splendid crop of cotton, maize and higeria. One of the best crops seen en route was that of Ralph Noel on the P. E. Boesen farm.

E. H. Melton, recently purchased two labors this side of the sand hills, and has a fine sand crop. He farms a part of Mr. Boesen's land on which there is cotton growing that will yield 2-3 of a bale to the acre. Messrs. Boesen and Melton have been dealing in cattle, having sold 220 head recently and will probably sell 70 head later. They are also feeding 150 head of hogs.

Mr. Arnold, living on the Grissom farm, should feel good over his prospects for a beautiful harvest. His crop of corn, cotton, maize and higeria is good.

Suede, satin or fancy patent leather shoes and high or shaped heels are neither suitable nor practical. Chiffon stockings are not permitted, but wool, cotton, lisle and heavy silk are approved.

The girls are advised to omit rouge, lip stick, eye brow and lash blackeners, and to use perfume and powder only in moderation. Simple and inconspicuous jewelry is permitted, but not necessarily recommended.

A sane point of view should be kept in mind in such matters. It is important not only for the child's physical condition, but also for her mental state that she be not made conspicuous by unusual or eccentric clothing or by clothing of too lavish display.

WHAT MAY I DO AS A CHRISTIAN?

When you think, when you speak when you read, when you write. When you sing, when you walk, when you seek for delight.

To be kept from all wrong, when at home or abroad. Live always as under the eye of the Lord.

Whatever you think, never think what you feel. You would blush in the presence of God to reveal.

Whatever you say, in whisper or clear. Say nothing you would not like Jesus to hear.

Whatever you read, though the page may allure. That His smile is upon you be perfectly sure.

LAUGHS

"I hear your son's at college." "Yep." "How's he doing?" "Pretty good. I guess. He's in three courses. I've just paid $10 for Latin, $10 for Greek, $100 for Scotch."

Tar Soap The young miss sent in colored maid, newly hired, for bill of toilet articles. "Mandy," said the mistress a few days later, "where is that tar soap you got for me the other day?" "Lawless, miss," exclaimed Mandy, "what all's a blonde lady like you do with tar soap? A thought you ordered it for mah own personal use."

Golfer (who has just tipped his caddy)—"That's for a drink, Mac, but I hope it will be a testota one. Mac (with dignity)—"Mr. Br-own, a caddy I may be, but ah'm not a tea-caddy."

Mother learned that the hymn selected had been "Weak and Sinful Thro'gh We Be."

YOUR HEALTH

CLUB TELLS WHAT GIRL PUPIL SHOULD WEAR

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Myopia, the Health Magazine

At this season when the schools begin to attract again the millions of children sent to them for mental education and hygienic training, mothers are more and more concerned with the matter of what the child shall wear.

The University of Chicago school of education solves the question of securing hygienic and suitable dress for girls by arranging through a girls' club for co-operation between mothers, daughters and teachers.

A girls' club board administers the conditions apparently with considerable satisfaction. A recent bulletin demands that the girls of high school each wear a simple and modest length and fullness, bloomers that meet the tops of the stockings and sleeves to the elbow or slightly above.

Velvets and silks are considered inappropriate for high school wear. Shoes are to be low heeled, street or sport oxfords or strapped slip-pers in keeping with the rest of the costume.

Suede, satin or fancy patent leather shoes and high or shaped heels are neither suitable nor practical. Chiffon stockings are not permitted, but wool, cotton, lisle and heavy silk are approved.

The girls are advised to omit rouge, lip stick, eye brow and lash blackeners, and to use perfume and powder only in moderation. Simple and inconspicuous jewelry is permitted, but not necessarily recommended.

A sane point of view should be kept in mind in such matters. It is important not only for the child's physical condition, but also for her mental state that she be not made conspicuous by unusual or eccentric clothing or by clothing of too lavish display.

School Teachers Are Guests At Merry Event Friday

Forgetting the dignity usually maintained by teachers, the public school faculty members romped through an old-time candy pulled and tacky party Friday evening at the home of Superintendent and Mrs. M. H. Duncan, 702 Avenue B. This is an annual courtesy extended the teachers by this host and hostess.

As a feature of the entertainment for the evening, long-haired women in the faculty were pupils in a school conducted by G. N. Atkinson. District schools of long-ages were initiated with an "exhibition" in which the children participated with music and recitations. Mrs. Maudie L. Neal played the processional as the students entered and accompanied the singing of "America." The program followed as follows, each one taking the part of a child: Recitation, Miss Madeline Larmer; recitation and song, Mrs. J. R. B. Cooper and Mrs. James K. West; recitation, Leona Bowling; violin solo, Miss Ruth Dunn, accompanied by Miss Mary Dunn; dialogue, Mrs. May Humphries; Miss Katie Bell Crump, Miss Stella Thurman and Mrs. D. J. Wilhelm; song, Miss Louise Ocker; recitation, Miss Cora Johnson; song, Miss Nell Parnly; recitation, Miss Nina Trigg and a debate participated in by Carroll Thompson, Mrs. Wanda Banker, M. E. Witt and La-Thanger Green. Assisted in Receiving. Miss Corinne Nash assisted Mr. and Mrs. Duncan in receiving the guests at the door and Mrs. Josephine Bullen, Mrs. Guy L. Trow, Miss Willie Mae Hawthorne and Miss Gladys Franklin were in charge of the candy making.

Mrs. J. Garrison, of the Junior high school, received an award having been judged the most appropriately dressed for the occasion. Mrs. W. A. Bowen directed outdoor stunts during the evening, a part of this feature being fortune telling which revealed something of the past lives of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lowery and Mr. and Mrs. Humphries.

Pop corn, home made candy and ginger bread cookies, feed and hot tea were passed during the evening to about one hundred and fifty guests.

Games of Forty-Two Enjoyed Friday Evening

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Kuykendall entertained a group of friends Friday evening at their home, 1614 Avenue Q, with games of forty-two. Halloween decorations were used in the home and each guest found a fortune on his refreshment plate.

The hostess offered frozen fruit salad, stuffed celery hearts, olives and coffee as refreshments. Guests were Messrs. and Mesdames J. B. Maxey, F. A. Norman, Charles E. O'Neal, E. F. Shepherd, L. E. Grimes, Tom Garrard, R. W. Crowder, Jr., Herbert Carlock, Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Porter, Mrs. Etta Robertson, Mrs. Hattie O'Hair.

AGITATION FOR MEMORIAL HALL AND MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM GAINS WITH LITTLE TAX INCREASE ANTICIPATED

The long-cherished municipal auditorium and community center for Lubbock is beginning to take form in the minds of a few of the city's most interested citizens—but apparently this sentiment is being crystallized into what will eventually be a demand for a bond election by which the project may be financed.

The opening gun was fired in the campaign by the local Post of the American Legion recently when a committee from this organization met with the city committee in an informal discussion of possibilities, and was assured by the city official family that such a building would be dual purpose, not only in need, but in easily within the financial reach of the city without an appreciable rise in taxes.

Bond Issue Necessary.

The proposal offered by the legion is that it will devote funds derived from the Will Hoge lectures designed to lay the foundation for a memorial hall and clubhouse, but to make the building possible would require a city bond issue, the amount of which has not yet even been discussed.

The auditorium would serve both as a memorial to war veterans dead and living, and for a general purpose city assembly hall, where various conventions, revival meetings and other similar undertakings might be handled. In a small portion of the building the legion would have quarters and a gymnasium exclusively for its members.

Necessity of the hall is undisputed, and city officials are beginning to see the wisdom of the project.

of on covering, evidently stimulated by strength in the New Orleans market, and active buying believed to be for New Orleans accounts, which advanced to $1.55 for March, about 14 points above yesterday's closing quotations. Offerings were to increase somewhat as prices approached the 21 cent level for December contracts, and closing prices showed reactions of some 10 to 15 points, from the best.

Private cables said that hedging and Bombay selling had been absorbed by trade calling and London buying on the decline in the Liverpool market, but that the cotton sold there in Manchester was depressed and more losses were being stopped in the Blackburn and Burnley districts. Traders evidently found little change in reports from the domestic consumption figures for September, which possibly may have contributed to the rally from the early low level.

HE SMOKES ECRAISITE CIGARS

Smoking long cigars with an ecraisite cartridge in each one is the feat of a young initiate at Bann, Austria. When he believes that the explosion is about to take place he holds the stump between his teeth and lets the "big bang" proceed. The youth has schooled himself to keep his head perfectly still and avoid a recoil by stiffening the muscles of his neck. He says that an ordinary man smoked an ecraisite cigar, the recoil would almost knock his head off, but he has so trained his muscles that he will permit anyone to hold a—strongly stated instrument close to the tip of his neck when the explosion takes place.

NEW YORK COTTON
NEW YORK, Oct. 15. "If at first you don't succeed try, try again."
And that is just what most of us are doing. We are trying to do something a little better or a little different, and we are finding all our opposition in the world. For the thing that is worthwhile requires effort. If we are weak hearted we are sure to lose, but if we worth bullock tenacity the helps us win. It is strange nobody cares to help a loser who needs help, but we always ready to push a winner a little higher up. The appearance of success, even if it is but a false one, is what we are after. We are trying to do things we have never done before, and we are trying to do things we have never done before. We are trying to do things we have never done before.

Most of us just "talk" We talk of the benefits of collective bargaining, but we are unwilling to work with the union. We are the most liberal of people under the canopy of heaven, but we do not appreciate a fact as we should. We have a reformer—they are nice to talk to, but if we would all work in the same direction we could accomplish the things we want and talk of. We would have no taxes if we could get on our feet, but as long as every one has a special plan the public will suffer. California's outrageous and unworkable proposition for the people of the state is a case in point. They promised their support to vote this way and then they were sure to make the promise good.

Then the War is On But when they get to Washington they learn that congressmen in Texas and Michigan have made the promise—hey, they have promised to help the union if the other side will be able to pay. So the war is on. For six months these men will debate, they spend money and then do nothing without giving better. All we have made good their word is to support the thing they have promised to do. But they have failed to do their duty—the duty they promised to do. So when they get to the end of the road they are in a partner reformer or a reformer—not congressmen.

George Washington made a mistake as a general and a president. If he had attempted to sell himself he might have been able to take bankruptcy. Kaiser would have well as an executive if he decided to do a little more work and then he failed. No

HOME DEN. CLUB WOMEN GET SELECTION POINTERS IN VISIT TO STATION

Possibilities of yard improvement on farms were shown to an interested group of home demonstration club women yesterday morning when under the direction of Superintendent Don L. Jones they were taken for a tour of the experimental station here.

The party was arranged by Miss Louise Inara, county home demonstration agent, as a follow-up for the study of home improvement recently held by the clubs of the county.

Selection of Trees. Helpful information on the selection and transplanting of trees was given by Mr. Jones. He recommended the Chinese elm for its hardy nature and rapid growth; and showed the protection afforded young trees by the thick wall of evergreens. He pointed out that shrubs were to be preferred to annual flowers, since they softened the lines of the house, the corners of the yard, provided a screen for unsightly outbuildings, and continued to grow and bloom through dry years when flowers could not survive.

Vines Recommended. Among the vines, honeysuckle and kutzu offer the best results, Mr. Jones said. He gave as his opinion that honeysuckle and clematis made the prettiest lawns, but that Bermuda grass required less care. He predicted that in the next few years more planting would be done and that surroundings of the farm houses would be greatly improved. He also suggested that the women persuade their husbands to spend more time in the yard between seasons.

negotiate for the purchase of one acre, he doesn't let it pass. One reason for the unusual number this fall is that a good sprinkling of families who moved to Lubbock because of educational facilities of Tech college, have decided to buy homes and live here. Mr. O'Neal declared.

In addition, he adds, there are a great number of people who have lived in Lubbock for several years and who are now buying homes rather than pay rent.

Big Business Expected. If the cotton crop and other crops come in as well as expected, Lubbock real estate men may expect a wonderful business throughout the rest of the year in Mr. O'Neal's opinion.

Open Houses. Open houses attributed the movement to the fact that people are optimistic in the belief that favorable weather will produce a good crop this year. He declares that there have been more people inquiring about homes in the last two weeks than in the remainder of the past three months combined.

The movement is especially favorable because of the fact that the home-seekers are looking to the well-constructed house, and not for one of inferior material. He believes that this indicates that the day of the fly-by-nighter promoter of cheap homes, at its height a few years ago, is now past.

Other than the movement toward home ownership, there is but little activity in the real estate market, according to Mr. Hess. This activity, however, is of a solid nature, with practically no speculation in houses. The most desirable of rent houses over the town are occupied. There is no big shortage, but there are enough available to accommodate the percentage of mobile population, he says.

The tendency is to vacate the less desirable rent houses, and buy the well-constructed home.

SLATON FARMERS NEEDING PICKERS

WARM WEATHER CAUSES COTTON TO OPEN RAPIDLY; 2000 PICKERS ASKED

SLATON, Oct. 15.—Farmers are beseeching the chamber of commerce here with appeals for assistance in securing cotton pickers. It is estimated that 2000 pickers are needed immediately in the Slaton tract territory. Warm weather during the past two weeks has caused cotton to open rapidly and the harvest is now ready to begin moving in full force. Only a small number of pickers are yet available, farmers report.

The per-acre yield of cotton through this section will average from one-fourth to one-half bale. It is estimated, which means that about 18,000 bales should be ginned in Slaton this fall.

Prices for picking are starting at $1.25 per hundred pounds. On most farms, houses to accommodate pickers are found. Conditions now are good and it is considered important that an adequate labor supply be had at once to meet the demand.

HARDWARE MEN MEET

BIG SPRING, Oct. 15.—Big Spring is to be host to the West Texas Hardware Dealers Association on Tuesday, October 18, according to Joyce Fisher, district chairman, between 150 to 200 delegates will attend this meeting. The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce will assist the host hardware firms in entertaining these guests.

Legionnaires and their ladies are looking forward enthusiastically to the joint meeting of the Legion and Auxiliary here Monday night when the former will entertain the Auxiliary in a banquet and festive program. The Halloween motif in all decoration and program will prevail.

Laundry Employes Hold Banquet Here

At a meeting of 21 male employes of the Lubbock Laundry company in a banquet at the Lubbock Hotel this week, a lively discussion was held on a $50,000 prize contest sponsored by the National Laundry Owners Association.

The dinner was a very enjoyable part of the program for the evening, after which Miss Etelle McLeod, daughter of O. W. McLeod, manager of the host company, delighted attendants with a reading. All of the 21 present agreed to take the sales course offered by The National Laundry Owners Association, according to Mr. McLeod.

GAS PROBLEMS

ready has a path several inches deep worn out to the meter box in the alley. She watches every movement of the hands and hears every click-click he says.

Calls The Gas Stove Man. "Hello, is this the gas stove man, will I wish you would come up to my house right away, there's something wrong."

And the stove expert arrives to find a worried housewife brooding over her new stove which is "using entirely too much gas, 55 cents worth today."

"Why I have only burned my stove about thirty minutes this morning and that hand on the meter has already gone around seven times," one lady reports.

"There must be a leak in my line somewhere," another lady contends, "for that quarter foot hand just keeps running all the time and I have the blaze on my heater almost out."

Practically every business in the city which has information about gas, gas stoves and their use are besieged with questions at all hours of the day. One thing is certain they say, the housewives of Lubbock are going to learn all about gas and it won't take long for them to do it.

In the meantime, the little grey metal box in the alley will be the center of attraction, at least until the meter reader makes his first round.

Slaton Has First Fire In 75 Days

SLATON, Oct. 15.—Slaton's first fire in seventy-five days occurred at 2 a. m. yesterday when J. L. Massingill's residence and its furnishings on South Sixth street were destroyed. The fire's origin is undetermined. No estimate is given on the property loss, but about $2,000 insurance was carried.

Mr. Massingill was barely able to escape from the burning structure with a few pieces of his clothing. Other members of the family were away from home.

ROXANA HAS NEW LEASES IN HOWARD

BIG SPRING, Oct. 15.—The Roxana Petroleum Company has been quite active in securing leases in the Northwest part of Howard county during the past few days. The following leases were put under contract. The northwest quarter of section 26, southeast quarter of section 21, west 38 of the southwest quarter of section 25, all in block 33, Top 1 north. It is understood that acreage is changing hands from $5.00 to $10.00 per acre in this part of the country. There has been quite a number of independent operators in and out of Big Spring during the last week, trying to secure proven and semi-proven acreage in the Howard county proven fields.

MANILA WANTS TO ENLARGE

Public spirited citizens of Manila have started a Greater Manila movement, and want several towns of the province of Iloilo annexed to the city. The plan has been recommended in the annual message of Governor Gilmore of the Philippines, and a bill authorizing the change is now before the Philippine legislature. The plan also includes the beautifications of the city. As there is strong opposition to the idea, many declaring that the towns should be left to rule themselves, a spirited battle is expected when the measure is brought before the lawmakers for discussion in the near future.

ROPEVILLE CROP OUTLOOK BETTER

WHAT APPEARED ONE OF THE WORST SEASONS NOW MAY BE BEST

(Special to The Avalanche-Journal) ROPEVILLE, Oct. 15.—The crop outlook for this section of the South Plains has improved more than 50 per cent in the last 20 days. Cotton and feedstuff have shown a marked improvement, and fields that were looked upon as too poor to harvest are now yielding splendid crops. And now what every one thought would be the poorest crop in years has turned out to be one of the best. The Plains has demonstrated again its ability to come back and make good after other sections of the country were nearly through harvesting.

The saying that the Plains is a country where the impossible is made possible is a true one. It is a great country that carries the farmer through the "valley of the shadows" and makes him economize in order for a miraculous crop to be worthwhile to him.

As a result of economy and careful spending, and the fact that most of the farmers made their living at home and are now out of debt, it is evident that they will have more ready money this fall than at any time in the last three years. Cows, chickens, gardens have been the steps by which most farmers in this section have sidestepped getting in debt. Not all the farmers will forget these steps for some of these steps have become a road to wealth and financial independence.

CZAR'S DIAMOND PLACED ON SALE

SOVIET WANTS $25,000,000 FOR GEM BUT THEY MAY ALLOW

(By Associated Press) MOSCOW, Oct. 15.—Does anybody want to buy a 194-karat diamond?

The Soviet government has one on its hands, the famous Orlov gem, and doesn't know what to do with it.

The superb stone, probably the finest specimen of a diamond, experts say, in the whole world, now sits on the end of the Russian czar's imperial scepter of power; but as Russia is now a republic, the scepter and scepter, the bolsheviks have no use for scepters or diamonds, and they want to convert the gem into coin. It has been placed formally on sale at the state treasury. It is guarded by twenty armed soldiers.

Will Consider Terms. The price asked for the Orlov which the Hindus call Doryal-Noor ("Sea of Light"), is $25,000,000, but the Soviets will be glad to talk terms with any American who really wants to acquire the massive stone either as an ornament or as a commercial investment.

It is as big as a bisected egg, so that it is hardly suitable for a tiepin, ring or pendant. It might be cut up into small stones, but this, experts say, would destroy its value, which lies in its unprecedented size.

The Orlov is 34 carats heavier than the renowned "Koh-i-Noor" diamond, which forms a part of King George's crown of England. The bolsheviks say it is much superior to the "Koh-i-Noor" being the largest and finest Indian diamond in the world. It is pure blue-white and of Hindu cut. If an American millionaire cannot wear a crown, say the bolsheviks, he may at least acquire the largest diamond in existence.

Has Romantic History. The Orlov gem has a highly romantic history behind it. It is said by the Russians to have been stolen shortly after the conquest of Delhi in 1757 by a French renegade soldier in India where it formed an eye in a statue of Buddha. Escaping to Malabar with his prize, the soldier sold the precious "eye" to a ship captain for $10,000, from whom a Jewish money-lender acquired it for $60,000. An Armenian merchant named Lazarev bought it from the Jew and sold it to the Russian Count Orlov, one of the many admirers of Catherine the Great, for $200,000 and a "patent of nobility."

Count Orlov, in turn, presented the treasure to Catherine the Great on her birthday, the presentation being accompanied by a lavish feast at the Russian summer palace at Tsarskoe-Selo. Count Orlov received in return, Russian history says, not only the favor and affection of the famous Empress, but an annuity for life and a title of nobility.

125 Attend Farm Bureau Meeting At Acuff Friday

About 125 people were present at the meeting held Friday night at Acuff under the auspices of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, according to word from the local office of the association.

The first part of the program was given to students in the school who put on a program of their own. Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent, made a talk on the significance of girls' club work, and Miss May Murphree discussed cooperation in California. Another meeting held at the same time under the auspices of the association took place at Caldwell school. Features of this meeting were talks by Don L. Jones, superintendent of the experiment station here, who spoke on cotton varieties on the South Plains, and Mrs. C. Z. Fine, who told how cooperation is effected in California.

EXPERIMENT STATION RECORDS ARE REASSURING

FIGURES WHICH COVER MANY YEARS PROVE ACTUAL CROP CONDITIONS OF LUBBOCK COUNTY AND THIS SECTION

Stories of winds, which swooping low sweep great clouds of dust into an irritating canopy of torments and mists, of snows and summers, of rains and springings, of frosts and mists—all these, and more...

breeces by summer, Mr. Jones declares that the record wind movement was made in January, 1918, on the day of the great blizzard...

The scare recently felt hereabouts when a blue northern came sailing out of the Rockies and setled onto the Plains during the first part of this month, and when many shuddered over the possibility of a killing frost, was absolutely unnecessary, according to precedents established in the records.

Getting down to that rainfall question—the one most argued by the street corner promulgators, one has to go back to 1909 for the wettest year on the combined records of the experiment station and the weather forecaster at Hale Center...

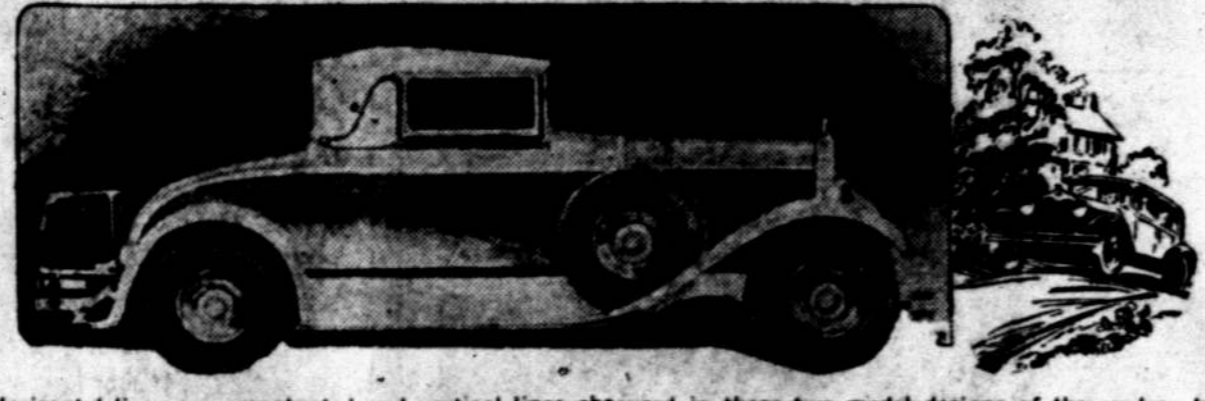

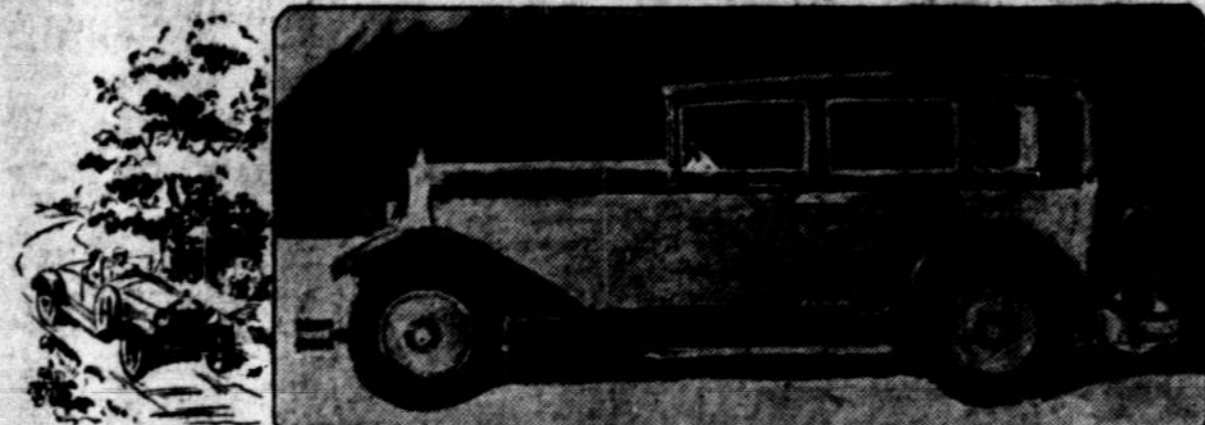

On the other hand, the region usually becomes free of frost about April 5 in the spring. Once frost has experienced as late as May 8 and again, once the last killing frost came as early as March 11 at these very extremes.

February and December are the driest months with a yearly average of .82 and .83 inches, respectively.

On the other hand, that "coldest day" when everything about here freezes, and your fingers stick to the tin kettles, as you touched them, and which marks the most serious advent of winter, was January 12, 1918, when the mercury smugged down to the bottom part of the thermometer and finally touched at ten below.

These tastes, the manufacturer has discovered, have turned their attention not only toward the appearance of the car, but to its arrangements for the comfort of the passenger. Too often the job is started in the reverse order by making an attractive design and then squeezing the passenger into it.

We Do Like To Be Cheated—Auto Designers Proving It Those Long, Sleek Lines Make Attractive Automobiles

Horizontal lines are accentuated and vertical lines obscured in these two model designs of the modern type car. Note the long windows, the wide molding, the sweeping fenders and other lines which cause the eye to travel from front to rear.

By ISRAEL KLEIN The automobile body these days is getting as much attention, if not more, as the power plant itself. For while the engine has reached the point of efficiency where it is practically taken for granted, the entire car itself still has to meet the appraising eye and exacting tastes of the buyer.

shorter bodies, and therefore the necessity of shorter chassis. Here, forced to adapt in an attractive yet comfortable body to a short chassis, the designer has revealed his genius. This is apparent by the use of cheat lines. Cheat lines do just what the word implies—they make people believe they are getting something they aren't actually getting.

But now comes the demand for comfortably, while doors are widened to let the occupants go in or out with ease. Bathing eggs in oil is the latest method of keeping them fresh.

INCREASED ATTENTION TO MOTOR CAR COMFORT OPENS NEW VISTAS OF ENJOYMENT TO OUTDOOR LOVER

By C. W. CHURCHILL The increased attention given to the subject of comfort, in current motor car models, opens new vistas of enjoyment to the motorist who loves the outdoors. Particularly is this true in the autumn, when colorful nature co-operates with the evidence of harvest on every hand, to produce an effect of universal splendor and general well-being.

Attractive Farm Houses Attractive farm houses, set in spacious lawns, abound; yet now and then we come upon a deserted homestead whose mouldering decay is a vivid reminder of the other days. Such contrasts bring home forcibly the change a generation has wrought in rural life, and pursuing the thought we realize that the motor car, which penetrates these hidden places so easily today, has contributed enormously to their emancipation.

The Woman Driver The joy I get out of motor-ing is in having a peppy, responsive engine. My husband tells me that one reason why my car operates so well is because it's equipped with Champion Spark Plugs.

OBsolete MAPS STILL BIG BANE TO MOTORDOM, A. A. A. SAYS IN FREE DISCUSSION OF TRAFFIC CHANGES

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)
 AMSTERDAM, Oct. 15.—Motor-club officials here today pointed out that the greatest bane of motor travel in history was not entirely overcome by the American Automobile Association, in which an analysis of 1927 touring is made.

Broadly, the situation is traceable to the fact that many obstacles remain to be removed. The most important of these are the lack of adequate road building, the lack of adequate automobile service establishments, and the lack of adequate information.

Many Changes Seen

"Before we have changes in the highway system, we have to have changes in the motorist's mind," said the speaker. "The motorist must be educated to the fact that the road is not a highway, but a highway in the making. The motorist must be educated to the fact that the road is not a highway, but a highway in the making. The motorist must be educated to the fact that the road is not a highway, but a highway in the making."

out the scenic and historical attractions, to be able to list the good hotels en route, to know the detours, to telegraph ahead for reservations, to give camping directions and to give the degree of confidence that induces a journey free from mental worry.

"But, unless one is certain concerning the way of one's route, the services obviously are impossible," it concludes.

DODGE CONQUERS AUSTRALIAN WILD THOUSANDS OF MILES OF TRACKLESS WASTES FOUND BY RESO EXPOSITION

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 15.—After traveling over thousands of miles of the trackless wastes of Central Australia through a region seldom visited by white men, the Reso exposition that started out early this summer has returned to civilization with thrilling accounts of a great country almost as new to the world as the icy wastes of the Antarctic continent or the jungles of the Amazon region.

The Reso expedition was the largest party to ever undertake to penetrate far into the interior of the continent and has been the subject of keen interest for months. It was composed of prominent scientists, doctors, business men, lawyers, newspaper men and sheep ranchers. The trip was made to stimulate interest in the development of the hundreds of thousands of square miles in the interior and was sponsored by the Victorian Railways.

The expedition was unique in that it was the first attempt by such a large party to explore a wild and unmarked country with automobiles and trucks. The other notable instances of extensive exploration with motor cars are the trips of Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews of the American Museum of Natural History into the interior of the Mongolian wilds, on each of which he used Dodge Brothers cars.

The Victorian Railways Commission adopted Dr. Andrews' method of travel and selected Dodge Brothers cars and Graham Brothers trucks.

W. Klapp, chairman of the Railways Commission, stated to newspaper men before starting that extensive inquiries had been made from experts on transport in the interior to ascertain the most suitable car to use. He said:

DISTANCE SPEED RECORD SMASHED

CHRYSLER AVERAGES 66.985 MILES PER HOUR FOR 24 HOURS IN AUSTRALIA

Word has just been received by Joe Hilton Company, local Chrysler distributor that William Attwood and A. H. Collins recently smashed every Australian 48 and 5000 record above 100 miles when they drove a Chrysler '26 roadster 1667.5 miles in 24 hours over the dry bed of Lake Portkathil. The previous 24-hour average was 61.622 miles an hour, made on the Maroubra Speedway. Their new one is 66.985 miles an hour. They broke the old 24-hour record of 52.84 miles in slightly more than 22 hours.

The run was started at 5 p. m. and finished at the same time the day following. It was timed, checked by representatives of the Royal Automobile club of Australia, which have certified all records made as new official Australian marks.

Australian newspapers, which commented at length on the feat, pointed out that checkings reveal the remarkable steadiness under which the car traveled. The first hour was reeled off at 65.58 miles an hour; the first 100 miles at 65.64 miles an hour; 500 miles at 65.54 miles an hour; 1,000 miles at 65.54 miles an hour. The time for 1,000 miles was 515 minutes and for 500 miles 435 minutes and 35 seconds.

Checkings and certifications made by the R. A. C. men also gave the car's steady performance a further guarantee. The car never stopped throughout the run's duration. Only one complete stoppage of the wheels was made—to replace a punctured tire during the last half of the run. No water was that in view of the great responsibility of taking so large a party into an area where there are known to be many hazards in operating cars, the commissioners felt it incumbent upon them to utilize not only a car generally regarded as suited to such transport, but also one that had been successfully in the interior. These considerations, he said, inspired the commissioners to use Dodge Brothers cars and Graham Brothers trucks.

of greatest significance of course is the fact that road building has become so general in all parts of the country that the map which was correct last year or even last month in some cases is obsolete today. Maps of this character exist in great number and are placed in the hands of motor travelers constantly. The result is a general confusion that is unfortunate, in that it robs touring of its greatest pleasure.

Defeating Own Purpose

Thus, the statement points out, the very agencies that would encourage the growth of motor travel are defeating their own purpose in many cases.

The manner in which the A. A. A. prepares and keeps up-to-date its maps which include virtually every road in the country, is one of the most important operations in which the organization is engaged, the statement declares, pointing out that the officials of the 336 A. A. A. local clubs constitute a significant field force concerned with advising the national headquarters in every vital road change in their territory.

"Covering every section of the country, the local club officials are peculiarly well situated to gather every item of road news," the statement says. "This information is telegraphed to the national office in order that maps may be made to conform to the change. Only through the establishment of a highly efficient method of map printing and distribution is it possible to keep up with the constantly shifting picture presented by the nation's roads."

Maps that are outdated are immediately replaced, so no motorist who uses A. A. A. service will be confused or misdirected.

Way Not All Needed

Its long experience in the field of touring service has taught the A. A. A. that the map is not all the information that the tourist needs, however, the statement says, adding:

"Real touring information consists in being able to lay out a trip, to describe its advantages, to indicate the proper day's run, to point

PROSPECTS FOR BANNER YEAR SEEN BY CROSBYTON SCHOOL PATRONS AS TERM ENTHUSIASTICALLY STARTED

CROSBYTON, Oct. 15.—The Crosbyton schools have started off with a full enrollment and an exceptionally strong faculty. C. R. Owens, superintendent, has taken great pains in selecting his faculty this year with the result that the schools have grown in both size and efficiency. Last year Crosbyton high school received 284 units of affiliation which made it 100 per cent affiliated. The high school has a successful department in domestic science and a department of business has been added this year. Mr. Owens stated that 75 per cent of the teachers in the high school have bachelor degrees and all have had successful experience as high school teachers.

New Department
Miss House, head of the English department, has organized a department of local publicity and much is expected to be done to better acquaint the patrons with the activities of the school. The Crosbyton schools have been the center of community activities and much more is expected to be done in that line since the addition of the new department.

Aside from the strong class room work which the schools maintain there is a great interest being manifested in athletics and other outside activities. The schools have instructors who have specialized in athletics to direct the athletic activities.

The girls are practicing basketball and the boys football and from all indications they will give some strong teams real competition when the time comes for them to demonstrate their ability.

High School Band
The high school also has a 28 piece band under the direction of a regular band instructor of the school. The band is expected to render band concerts for the public in the near future. John Allen, a graduate of S. M. U., is band leader and has made a good showing with the band.

Miss Baker of the University of Texas is directing a glee club of 55 members. Many of the glee club members are showing up well and will soon be ready to appear in public. It has been the practice to have monthly musical programs and they are expected to be much better this year with the greater interest being manifested in both band and glee club.

The Crosbyton people are one and all for the school as was shown recently when every business man in Crosbyton closed his doors for an hour and a half and went out to see the football game. With a good man at the head of the schools, a strong faculty, and the citizens backing the schools Crosbyton is

OAKLAND-PONTIAC MOTIF IN DISPLAY

COLONIAL FURNISHINGS ARE APPROPRIATE BACKGROUND FOR DISPLAY

A beautiful blending of Colonial furnishings and colorful wall murals depicting scenes when Michigan was the hunting ground of the Indians, instead of the home of the automobile, make the recently completed New York salon of the Oakland Motor Car Company a show place even among Ford's multiple attractions.

The salon's permanent exhibit of Oakland and Pontiac sixes is located in the new General Motors building on Broadway between 57th and 58th streets.

A. R. Glancy, president of the Oakland Motor Car company and Mrs. Glancy, who have as their hobby the collection of early American furniture, assisted the Bodine-Stonier-Jones company in planning the murals, decorative scheme and furniture.

The arrangement of the salon is such as to afford a highly appropriate American background both for the display of the new Oakland All-American Six, designed and manufactured to meet the requirements of American auto-enthusiasts, and for the Pontiac Six named after the famous Indian looking forward to a great school year.

chief who once ruled the district where the two cars are built. Both furniture and murals reflect the transition period from aboriginal to Colonial supremacy in Chief Pontiac's former domain.

The salon furnishings are Colonial even to specially woven "Sack-rags," arrowheads, curtain poles and built-in mirrors converting into indirect lights which follow faithfully the designs of furnishings in the home of George Washington at Mt. Vernon. All of the furniture is copied from museum pieces, the desk being an exact duplicate of that used by Washington. The paneling, coloring and wall treatments, excepting of course the murals, are from a home at Woodbury, L. I., built in the middle of the Eighteenth Century.

The murals are from the brush of Paul Huetre, one of America's foremost mural artists. They show with historical accuracy many events of the days when the white man was extending the western frontier into Michigan.

One mural depicts Chief Pontiac and his brave band of warriors in the midst of the battle of the Red Bank in 1763. Another shows the signing of the treaty of 1795 by which General Anthony Wayne of Revolutionary war fame obtained from the Indians the district which now includes the City of Pontiac and Oakland county. Other murals picture various events which culminated in the establishment of a flour mill at Pontiac in 1813 on a site not far from the present plant of the Oakland Motor Company.

CHEVROLET PLANS GIANT NEW PLANT

ASSEMBLY UNIT AT ATLANTA INDICATES OPTIMISM ON PART OF OFFICIAL

DETROIT, Oct. 15.—An indication that the automobile industry is looking forward toward increasing prosperity was noted here today with the announcement by the Chevrolet Motor Company that construction will start immediately on a new Chevrolet assembly plant in Atlanta.

The Atlanta plant has been made necessary to adequately meet the requirements of the rapidly growing demand for Chevrolet cars in the South and at the same time to relieve the Cincinnati plant, which has been operating on an overtime basis to care for southeastern business as well as that from more immediate territory. The Atlanta plant will serve particularly Georgia, Florida and parts of Alabama and South Carolina.

When completed early next spring the plant will represent an investment of more than $2,250,000, covering acreage, buildings and equipment. Thirty-one acres of ground have been taken over for the Atlanta layout. Building plans call for 410,000 square feet of floor space, including plants, office and driveway shed.

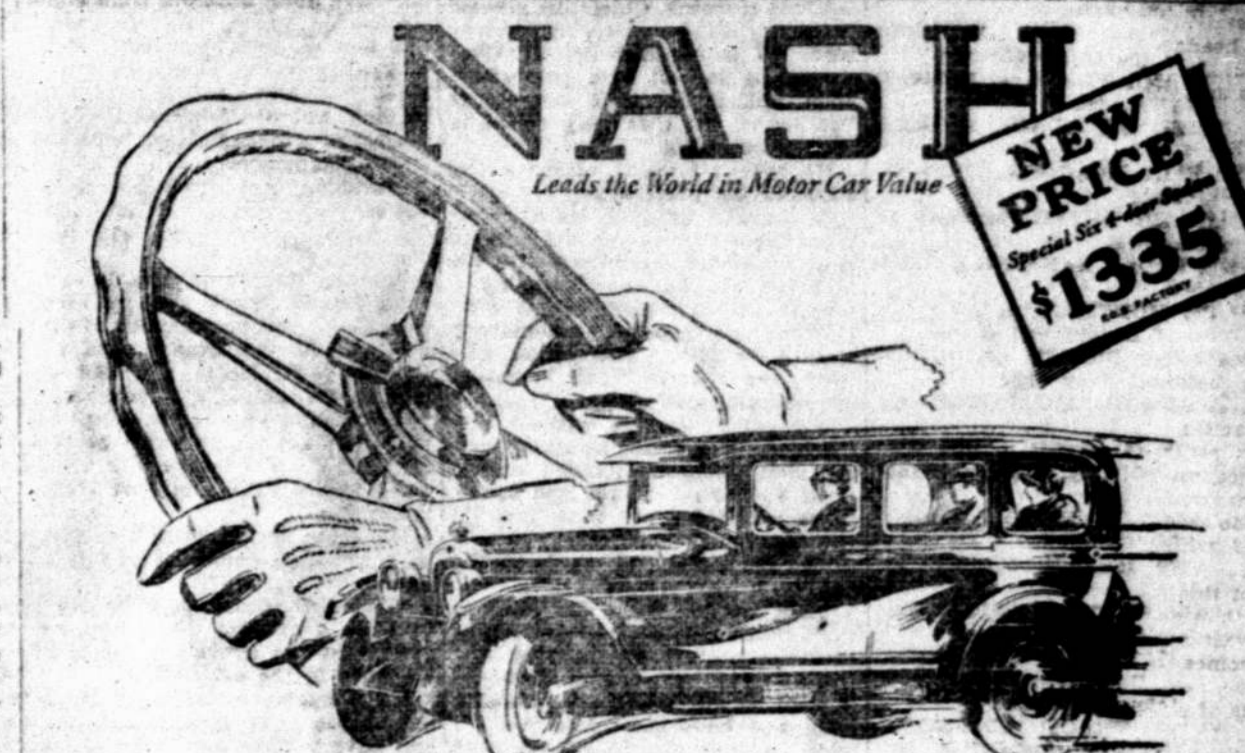

The plant will be one of the largest and finest of its kind in the south with a capacity of 250 cars a day. Work will be provided for 1,500 people and the payroll will exceed $8,000 daily. The assembly plant proper will be a one-story unit, 800x325 feet of face brick construction with a monitor steel roof. There will be a Fisher Body division of similar construction, 180 by 630 feet, and a parts supply depot 120 by 204 feet. Plans also call for a two story office building, 40 by 204 feet.

Completion of the Atlanta project will provide the Chevrolet Motor Company with eight assembly plants throughout the country. In addition Chevrolet has manufacturing plants in Bay City, Saginaw, Flint and Toledo.

Norwood, Ohio, Oakland and Buffalo New York. In addition Chevrolet has manufacturing plants in Bay City, Saginaw, Flint and Toledo.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
 A woman's gloves and handbag are found at the scene of Benson's murder and a large gray automobile is reported to have been standing outside at midnight. Markham tells Vance he has traced the handbag to Miss St. Clair and Vance insists she is innocent. Markham agrees to let him be present in his office when he interviews the girl.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII

(Saturday, June 15; 3 p. m.)
 We entered the ancient building, with its discolored marble pillars and its intricate scroll-work, by the Franklin street door and went directly to the district attorney's office on the fourth floor.
 The ancient seat of justice breathed an air of former days. Its high ceilings, its massive golden-oak woodwork, its elaborate low-hung chandelier of bronze and china, its dingy bay walls of painted plaster, and its four high narrow windows to the south—all bespoke a department era in architecture and decoration.
 On the floor was a large velvet carpet-rug of dingy brown; and the windows were hung with velvet draperies of the same color. Several large comfortable chairs stood about the walls and before the long oak table in front of the district attorney's desk. This desk, directly under the windows and facing the room, was broad and flat, with carved uprights and two rows of drawers extending to the floor.
 To the right of the high-backed swivel desk-chair, was another table of carved oak. There were also several filing cabinets in the room and a large safe. In the center of the desk will a leather-covered door decorated with large brass nail-heads led into a long narrow room between the office and the waiting room where the district attorney's secretary and several clerks had their desks. Opposite to this door was another one opening into the district attorney's inner sanctum, and still another door, facing the windows, gave on the main corridor.
 Vance glanced over the room casually.
 "This is the lair of municipal justice—eh, what?"
 He walked to one of the windows and looked out upon the gray circular tower of the tomb opposite.
 "And there, I take it, are the usual scenes where the victims of our law are sacrificed so as to reduce the competition of criminal activity among the remaining citizenry. A most distressing sight, Markham."
 The district attorney had sat down at his desk and was glancing at several notations on his blotter.
 "There are a couple of men waiting to see me," he remarked without looking up; "so, if you'll be good enough to take a chair over here, I'll proceed with my humble efforts to undermine society still further."
 He pressed a button under the edge of his desk, and an alert young man with thick-lensed glasses appeared at the door.
 "Swacker, tell Phelps to come in," Markham ordered. "And also tell Springer, if he's back from lunch that I want to see him in a few minutes."
 The secretary disappeared, and a moment later a tall, hawk-faced man with stoop-shoulders and an awkward, angular gait, entered.
 "What news?" asked Markham.
 "Well, Chief, the detective reported in a low grating voice, "I just found out something I thought you would use right away. After I reported this noon, I ambled around to the Captain Leacock's house, thinking I might learn something from the house boys, and ran into the captain coming out. I trailed along, and he went straight up to the lady's house on the drive, and stayed there over an hour. Then he went back home, looking worried."
 Markham considered a moment.
 "That may mean nothing at all, but I've had to know it anyway. St. Clair is here in a few minutes, and I'll find out what she has to say. There's nothing else for today. Tell Swacker to read playing the 'angel' for her, but Rinaldo either didn't know or pretended he didn't."

 "Tracy closed his notebook and looked up. "That any good to you, Chief?"
 "First-rate," Markham told him. "Keep at work along that line, and let me hear from you again about this time Monday."
 "Tracy bowed, and as he went out the secretary again appeared at the door.
 "Springer's here now, sir," he said. "Shall I send him in?"
 Springer proved to be a type of detective quite different from either Phelps or Tracy. He was older, and had the gloomy capable air of a hard working bookkeeper in a bank. There was no initiative in his bearing, but one felt that he could discharge a delicate task with extreme competency.
 Markham took from his pocket the envelope on which he had noted the name given him by Major Benson.
 "Springer, there's a man down on Long Island that I want to interview as soon as possible. It's in connection with the Benson case, and I wish you'd locate him and get him up here as soon as possible. If you can find him in the telephone book you needn't go down personally. His name is Leander Pfyfe, and he lives, I think, at Port Washington."
 Markham jotted down the name on a card and handed it to the detective.
 "Last winter, when she sang at the Criterion in a small part, Rinaldo was back stage coaching, and Benson sent her enough hot-house flowers to fill the star's dressing-room and have some left over. I tried to find out if Benson was ment Miss St. Clair arrived she was to be shown in.

 "Sergeant Heath is here," Swacker informed him, "and wants to see you if you're not too busy."
 Markham glanced at the clock over the door.
 "I guess I'll have time. Send him in."
 Heath was surprised to see Vance and me in the district attorney's office, but after greeting Markham with the customary handshake he turned to Vance with a good natured smile.
 "Still acquiring knowledge, Mr. Vance?"
 "Can't say that I am, Sergeant," returned Vance lightly. "But I'm learning a number of most interesting errors. How goes the sleuthing?"
 Heath's face became suddenly serious.
 "That's what I'm here to tell the chief about." He addressed himself to Markham. "This case is a law-breaker, sir. My men and myself have talked to a dozen of Benson's cronies, and we can't worm a single fact of any value out of 'em. They either don't know anything, or they're giving a swell imitation of a lot of clams."
 "They all appear to be greatly shocked—bowed over, floored, flabbergasted—by the news of the shooting. And have they got any idea as to why or how it happened?" They'll tell the world they haven't."
 "You know the line of talk: Who'd want to shoot good old Al? Nobody could've done it but burglars who didn't know good old Al. If he'd known a good old Al even the burglar wouldn't have done it. Hell! I felt like killing off a few

SEE SOLUTION TO CATHOLIC PUZZLE
 REESTABLISHMENT TEMPORAL POWER OR CONTINUED HOSTILITY, SEEN
 ROME, Oct. 15.—The "Osservatore Romano," maintains in today's editorial "that from the point of view of the Holy See there are only two solutions to the 'Roman question.' These are given as re-establishment of the temporal power of the church, even represented only by the smallest state, or a continuation of the condition of hostility with the nation in whose territory the Papacy resides.
 Either of these solutions is indispensable in order to convince Catholics throughout the world that the Holy See is not under control of any power, the paper says. No foreign intervention under the form of foreign government or international courts is necessary. "Osservatore" asserts for solution of the "Roman question," the only supreme arbiter being the Pope, who is inspired solely by the God of the church.
 Church in No Hurry.
 The church is in no hurry, continues the editorial. When over-powerful paganism threw all its strength against Christianity, the church remained unshakable against the storm and only multiplied its prayers, trusting in the final outcome. Thus the church waited for three centuries until Constantine came, the first Roman emperor to convert himself to catholicism. Naturally, "Osservatore" itself says, the condition of the church under a United Italy cannot be compared to the atrocious persecution under paganism.

 Demonstrating the impossibility of accepting the present situation, "Osservatore" says that if Catholics in other countries believed the Pope in accord with Italy they would look at him with diffidence and suspicion.
 Shun National Churches
 This would make Catholic interpret any papal act in a political sense, leading to painful defections to loss of souls and, God may forbid, to formation of national churches.
 "Osservatore" recalls the words of Premier Mussolini before beginning premier "in a memorable speech" in the chamber in 1921 in which he said:
 "I affirm that the Latin imperial tradition of Rome is today represented by Catholicism. I believe that the only universal idea today existing in Rome is that shining from the Vatican. I am very uneasy when national churches are formed because I think they represent millions and millions of men who no longer look toward Italy and Rome."
 Therefore, "Osservatore," remarks, the solution of the question Roman question must be such that independence of the Pope "should appear evident to the faithful throughout the world." The newspaper recalls what United Italy did before the advent of fascism. "Ma-their mud soon to return that they might add color to the big celebration, but they want these two to view the change which a short decade has brought. Where once the mud scrow ferried thousands across the wet, slippy roads, there now is a brick pavement and concrete walk. The winding road which gave "Mud Hole Johnny" his chance, has given way to splendid straight highways constructed of brick and asphalt.

 Ranger has improved in all lines, and the difference between the streets and roads of 10 years ago is but fairly expressive of the changes which have come over the city of Ranger and all Eastland county.

Picturesque 'Mud Men Of Ranger Oil Boom Are Sought

RANGER, Oct. 14.—The visitor to Ranger during the hectic days of the mighty oil rush will never forget two of the most unique characters of the oil boom days, the men who drove a lop eared mud hatched to a broad sled, who for 25 cents ferried passengers across the quagmire who leased road rights through fields near by a mud hole on the main highway and collected a toll of 25 cents a person to drive over the makeshift road to avoid getting stuck in the mud.
 These two men were discussed by members of the oil fraternity from one end of the state to the other. Time has changed, now these two men are being sought by the committee in charge of the great Oil Jubilee to be held here October 21 and 22, and if they can be brought back to their former haunts for the day, they will be honored and feted by those whom they formerly served.
 Citizens of Ranger not only want "Osservatore" as "Osservatore" calls it, "despoiled the pontiff and the church of everything, proclaiming war against God, putting him out of schools and trying all means to dechristianize the nation. They failed only because the nation was too profoundly Christian.

"THE HUM OF AN ELECTRIC MOTOR IS THE NOISE OF PROGRESS"

The Same Servant of In- dustry also Serves the People

Industry has harnessed the power, light and heat of electricity! Production has doubled and trebled in the wake of its development.

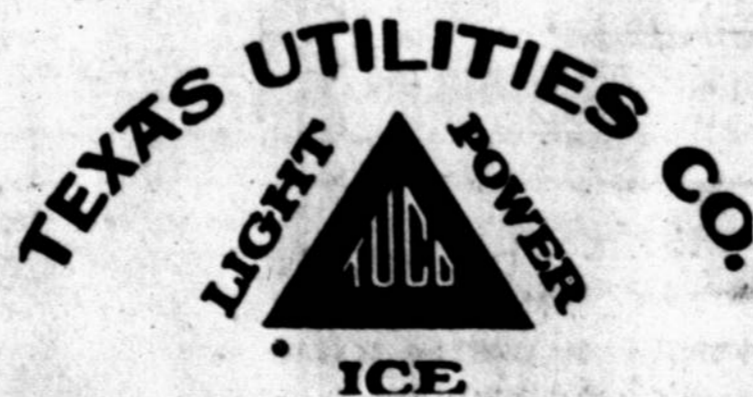

For utmost dependability under all circumstances industry has found nothing that compares with this mighty force of nature!

No longer will you find factories working men without generous light. The hum of the electric motor is the "noise of progress" wherever it is used.

For Cooking--For Lighting--Nothing Can Compare With Electricity

On your electric range in your home will be found the greatest step of cooking development. It is the one range that cooks quickly, positively, without heating your kitchen. No fumes come from the intense heat given by your cooking plates. It is always uniform in strength, under perfect control.

It excels for cooking just as it does for lighting—for running your washing machine, your sewing machine, your vacuum sweeper, for heating your irons!

ABSOLVE DRIVERS IN AUTO CRASHES

INCREASING ACCIDENTS FAIL TO SHOW MOTORISTS AT FAULT, SURVEY SHOWS

(By NSA Service)
 CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Traffic accidents have increased at a high rate in the last few years, yet only five per cent of the motorists are held responsible for them.

Such is the surprising revelation made to members of the National Safety Council at its sixteenth annual safety congress here.

Charles E. Hill, vice-president of the organization, brought out the point that there was an increase of 250 per cent in deaths from auto accidents in the ten years from 1917 to 1926. The fatalities in 1927 were 6,600. Last year he says, there were 23,000.

"In other words," he points out, "during 1926 there were more people killed through automobile accidents than were killed at grade crossings during the entire ten-year period."

Yet blame for most of these accidents may be placed on the shoulders of only five per cent of the motoring public, he adds.

"About 25 per cent of the motorists of this country are reasonable safe," Hill believes. "The remaining five per cent, however, represents a large army of more than a million reckless and ignorant drivers who are fitting about the country without any regard for the safety of themselves or their fellowmen."

"They include drivers who are deaf, blind, of immature age, in a feeble condition due to old age, those who are intoxicated and those whose who are analogous to the farmer's mule."

Hill contrasts the qualifications required of a motorist and those of a locomotive engineer, to show how dangerous motoring is today in the hands of unpracticed drivers.

"The immediate remedy," he thinks, "lies in a constructive campaign of education."

New Roads Through Swamps Are Next Floridans To Ride Over Everglades

This bleak, trackless waste in the Florida Everglades will be converted into fine road crossing the state by next spring.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 15.—Two years ago a party of motorists attempted to cross the southern everglades of Florida between the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic coast. They found themselves in a pathless wilderness and were rescued by airplanes.

By next spring, this same wilderness will be traversed by a fine macadam road which will cut the trip across the everglades to two hours.

This is the new Tamiami trail named because of its connection between Tampa on the gulf side and Miami on the east. Its total length will be 281 miles and its completion will have cost the state of Florida almost $14,000,000.

By means of this road, touring through Florida will be one continuous circle of sights. Visitors now will enjoy a new and enticing side of this sunny state.

This wild country is full of wild game. Seminole Indians occasionally penetrated this region, but it was not until the highway engineers came along that so many white persons presented themselves here at one time.

Cutting this road, especially er in each of us, and to that something the unknown roads beckon irresistibly. Glimpses of yellow pumpkins among the shocked corn, of trumpet vines, fennel, an abandoned farm house, or ripe fruit littering the road side under loaded trees, are only a few of the rewards awaiting the explorer in Autumn. Winding little dirt roads are almost everywhere, and given a car he can trust to lead him to the same smooth or rough, level or hilly, with the same eagerness and the same ease, the motorist who seeks them out will be more than amply repaid.

There is something of the explorer's joy in their enjoyment. They disregard completely the man who like his grades medium or rare. They plunge abruptly up and down; they waste an amazing amount of space doubling back upon themselves, and wide bridges, banked turns and warning signs are practically unknown.

Now is this the whole case against the back roads, from the viewpoint of the man in a hurry. They are frequently so narrow that passing becomes difficult. This characteristic presents no objections to the driver who follows them from choice. Rather it suggests their charm, making for interchange of courtesies reminiscent of horse and buggy days. One driver must pull aside to let the other pass. On country roads, even today, this acknowledgment which, falling on unaccustomed city ears, is often slow enough to make the trip worth while.

FIRE HORN SETS TRAFFIC LIGHTS

AUTOMATIC SYSTEM USED FOR BENEFIT OF FIREMEN IN CLEVELAND, OHIO

(By NSA Service)
 CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 15.—A device which automatically gives bellies and fire apparatus the right of way through congested city streets has been tried out here.

T. E. Whelan, the inventor, makes use of the vibration from the warning horn or siren of fire apparatus to switch the traffic light at the street intersection on green in the direction toward the apparatus.

A sound receiver is placed at the side of the street a distance from the traffic light. When the apparatus approaches the receiver and sounds its siren the instrument connected with the traffic light automatically switches the green light in the direction of the fire apparatus.

The horn or siren, set at a definite pitch, gives a determined magnetic vibration. The receiver is sensitive only to these vibrations, will not act when a noise of any other vibration is sounded.

Four receivers are used on principal intersections so that efficient four-way systems in any direction may have the advantage of an open road. In some two cars are traveling in different directions the one which sounds its horn first gets the advantage of the green light while the other is forced to obey the red stop light, eliminating the danger of a collision.

The sound receivers are placed through the wire and marshy everglades, has been a particularly big job and troublesome engineering job. Roadbeds had to steady themselves over soft swampy soil. Great drills had to hammer deep into the hard bed rock. And great cranes had to be used to cut their way through four miles of cypress forest.

Many streams had to be bridged and bridges built on foundations found deep below the marshy top soil to make this road complete.

It is 96 miles from Miami to the gulf coast, straight westward. Yet this stretch cost almost half of the entire cost of the 285 miles of road to Tampa. This, more than anything else, tells what it meant to cut across this trackless waste.

All supplies and heavy machinery had to be hauled at immense cost. Huge drag line dredges had to be mounted on great caterpillar tractors to get them over the soft soil. The workers camped alone in the wilderness, entertained by the cries of wild turkeys and mallard ducks, the hoops of the owls and the screams of the eagles.

Travelers going through here next summer will enjoy similar diversions by day and night.

ANNUAL SLATON BANQUET IS SET

MEMBERSHIP MEETING FOR COMMERCE CHAMBER TO BE HELD IN JANUARY

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)
 SLATON, Oct. 15.—The annual membership banquet of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce will be held Tuesday evening, January 18, according to J. W. Hood, president, who states that the board of directors set that date at a meeting this week. In recent years, November has been the usual month for the annual meet of the body, but the directors believe January is a better time for it, Hood says.

Preparations will be made to accommodate the largest number of members and to have the best program at the banquet session that has ever been known here. Besides laying plans for 1928, a review of accomplishments of 1927 will be made, and other business attended to. Eight directors will be elected to fill terms of those whose places on the directorate expire soon.

SPINAL APPROACH
 A tall building with double spiral ramps from ground up has been suggested as a new kind of bridge over the Mississippi at New Orleans. It would save space and reduce cost of the bridge, say its advocates.

EXPORTS INCREASE
 United States automobile exports to Australia have increased 110 per cent in the past five years, according to the National Chamber of Commerce.

NORFLEET

The Manhunter's Own True Story
Gordon Hines

WHAT HAS BEEN TOLD

Frank Norfleet, a Texas ranchman, is quizzed out of $45,000 by a group of stock exchange swindlers in Dallas. He resolves to follow the crooks and break up their organization. Lacking a better clue he recalls a little red memo book belonging to one of the con men that had a list of names in it. He concludes that this is the sucker list of a man he knows, named Cathey, of Corpus Christi, heads the list. Norfleet goes to Corpus Christi, stopping at San Antonio on the way. Here he learns that the leader of the gang had registered at the St. Anthony as J. Harrison. He learns by a peculiar fluke, that Harrison has probably bought a stolen fur from a little shopkeeper. He sets that shopkeeper for the time and goes to Corpus Christi, where he learns that Cathey has gone to California. Following a strange hunch his wife has Norfleet goes to California, dropping off at San Bernardino. Here he finds two of his men in jail. He learns that the gang was headed by Cathey, who is a newspaper story of his own swindling arouses Cathey's suspicions. He notifies the officers but all but two of the crooks escape. Norfleet starts back to Fort Worth to get grand jury indictments, so Ward and Gerber can be brought back to Texas.

CHAPTER SEVEN

I had never seen him before. I was sure of that. Still those features—they were not unfamiliar. I puzzled over it, delving deep into my memory.

Then I saw it.

He might have been Ward, grown older. Head, hair, the set of the eyes and the contour of the face all resembled Ward; unnoticed while his face was set with speech and expression, the likeness was pronounced in immobility.

"Petty Garst?" I murmured. "Well—perhaps—but not likely."

It had not occurred to me that some one might be trailing me.

When he awoke from his nap, I engaged him in conversation again, this time regarding "More or less," I quizzed, "like locking the barn door after the horse is stolen."

He was not loath to talk. His mind dwelt on the higher planes. Education and scholastic problems seemed to be his pet subjects.

As the noon hour drew near, he casually remarked that he believed he would not go in to dinner, that a friend of his had prepared a light luncheon for him before he left. He offered his suit case and spread out a very appetizing meal on the seat opposite him. He begged me to share it with him, indeed, he would have me enjoy it all as his stomach was slightly upset and he did not feel like eating. I declined the food, thanking him graciously.

The sandwiches were daintily made of evenly trimmed, light white bread, with curly green lettuce peeping out the sides. They made my mouth water. There were stuffed olives—stuffed with what the Lord only knows. There was delicious looking cake with a thick cream filling, some fruit and two boiled eggs.

After urging me to eat, Mr. Garst broke the eggs and piddled with them, finally eating them.

"Do you find boiled eggs a fairly safe diet?" I asked innocently.

"Fairly so, but I have to be very careful of my stomach."

"So do I," I declared. "I was poisoned once in Old Mexico and I've stuck pretty close to boiled eggs myself since."

It may appear that my time was entirely taken up with Garst. It was not wholly so. I made the acquaintance of an elderly couple and chatted with them considerably. The woman said she had been a detective before her marriage. They were returning to their home in Georgia.

I decided to confide in the woman and gave her the description of the three men still at large. (Furness, Dallas Stetson—Spencer and Hamilton.)

She promised to keep a weather eye, but for them Georgia was a state where many of them wintered and she might happen to see one or more of them, she said. I gave her my address and she agreed to drop me a line if she ever found out anything.

When I got off the train in Fort Worth I watched my friend Garst. He went at once to a telephone booth and held a spirited conversation with some one, judging by the way his head bobbed.

I had an immediate bearing before the grand jury and when I emerged from the chambers the first person I laid eyes on was old man Garst. He jumped up and rushed to me, gripping my arm in no feeble grasp.

"What did they do? What did they do? Did they bill those men?" he demanded excitedly.

I disengaged my arm and shrugged that I did not know.

"Then go back! Go back! You have a perfect right to know what action they intend to take," he cried.

"I have nothing further to do with practice and I was curious to see what his game was.

Retracing my steps, I quickened my gait and was soon close behind him. He knew the town better than I did. Without the slightest hesitation he struck off east from Houston street. The path led him directly into the negro section of the city. Rather an unusual haunt for one so immaculate and of such lofty mental plane, I thought, as I gazed at his back. After a few turns and twisting in short crooked alleys, he stopped in front of a shabby, unkempt, tumble-down house, glanced up and down the street and entered.

I took careful note of the ramshackle abode and hastened back to the courthouse where I got hold of Frank Evans, a newspaper reporter. I wanted Evans to go with me to the place with me and try for an interview with Garst. We planned to have Evans openly accuse Garst of his relationship with Ward and see what kind of a fit he would throw. Evans' nose for news went up to the wind and he joined me readily.

I must say that Garst found his way more easily than I, for, although I had been familiar with Fort Worth for years, I had much more trouble retracing my steps than Garst had had in finding the place at first. Evans began to kid me, saying that it was a fine detective who couldn't find a place he had left but ten minutes before. I was getting discouraged myself when we turned a corner and there in the midst of a row of smoke dumps was the shack we sought. We packed our way through the trashy street to its front gate and Evans remained outside while I went to the door.

To my surprise, a white landlady opened the door. I inquired if Mr.

Garst was in. She said he had gone out. I asked if she had reserved a bed in the house for me.

She said that the old gentleman had called that morning and engaged a room with two beds, but she could not say whether or not the extra accommodation was for me. At this, she pushed open a door on her right and said:

"This is the room. You can look at it."

I stepped inside and went into the room. It was very plainly furnished but neat as a pin. The small oak dresser was cornerwise in the angle of the wall. There were two chairs and a small table between the beds; on the table was an old-fashioned coal oil lamp with a croqueted mat under it.

I inquired which way Mr. Garst had come. The landlady, the Mistress of the Manse indicated with a throw of her head and a gesture of a gnarled forefinger. We searched the district but to no avail. I never again saw my over-riding friend. He said he was from Sunnyside, Maryland. Sometime later, when I was in that town, I made inquiries for him, but found no one who had ever heard of him and our paths never crossed again.

The grand jury indicted both Ward and Gerber. I was elated. The documents were prepared and forwarded to Sheriff Clark, who was still in California. As soon as he received them, he left with his two prisoners for Fort Worth.

When the trio arrived the papers made a big splash about their arrest and hinted at sensational things through this publicity. Peter J. Nee, a man of wealth from Washington, D. C., discovered they were the same pair who had swindled him out of a fortune some time before. He came to Fort Worth immediately.

I shall never forget the meeting between Charles Gerber, E. J. Ward and Mr. Nee. It had all the elements of melodrama so much that it bordered on broad farce. Nee and I went into the sheriff's office together. Sheriff Clark, Milton Williams, one or two other officers and the two prisoners were already there. Mr. Nee, without hesitating, walked over to Ward. He looked into the crook's face and said:

"You are my man. I positively identify you as the one who brought this weight of trouble upon me and mine. You are the man!"

He kept his eyes riveted on Ward's as if to force him to recognize him. Ward stared at him and never batted an eye; his stare was blank, as if he was sure he had never seen this man before. It was well feigned. Nee's hand shot out toward him accusingly.

"Ward! John! You know me, you recognize me! Why, in God's name, don't you say so?"

Ward's expression changed slightly to one of bored unconcern. Then he spoke, metallically:

"Remember you?" he snapped, coldly. "Remember you? You must be out of your head! I never saw you before in my life!"

Nee slipped his fingers into his vest pocket and fumbled an instant. Ward's eyes followed his trembling fingers and he flinched slightly as Nee drew forth his hand, concealed in a small object.

"You are the man who betrayed my trust, my friendship and my confidence; who fed your greed upon my bounty. You broke bread with me in my home—worshiped with me in my church!"

He opened his hand, palm up, turned under the cold stare of Ward.

"Look!" he cried, his voice trembling with emotion. "Look at this token of faith you gave to me. Look at this crucifix! Now deny me!"

Ward lowered his eyes to the little emblem of life's sorrows which fattened no work, but closed his eyes and dropped his head.

Gerber coughed nervously and broke in, with forced nonchalance:

"Sob stuff, sob stuff!—gets you every time. Why, Ward wouldn't know a crucifix if he was nailed to one."

How's She Linsens Care

When the balloon tire first came into use, motorists were presented with a new difficulty—the shimmy. Of course, the shimmy was known in the earlier days, but not under the circumstances in which the larger tires introduced it.

A car might have been perfect in every respect, and yet it shimmyed.

At that time, the fault was laid expressly on the balloons themselves, and to some extent it may still be there. But by this time engineers have improved the balloons to the extent of almost entirely eliminating it as the cause of shimmy.

Yet the shimmy persists. If it does, there's something wrong with the car itself, most likely.

The wheels may not be aligned. The tires may be unequally inflated. Or they may have been attached recklessly and unevenly. The steering gears may be loose. Or the wheel bearings may not be snug. The front wheels may be in too much or too little. Or they may be unequally balanced. And even the springs themselves may cause the wheels to shimmy. If their spring clips or shackles bolts are loose.

So it is that all these factors must be checked up to find the cause of that wobbling motion of the front wheels that is transmitted to the driver through the steering system.

First, attention must be paid to the steering wheel and gears. Play should be about one to one-and-a-half inches at the circumference of the wheel. If it's more, the gears should be taken up.

Secondly, the wheels must be tight, the bearings properly adjusted so that there should be no more than about a sixteenth of an inch of play at the rim of each wheel; and the front system must toe-in and align properly.

To check toe-in, jack up each wheel and spin it while holding a piece of chalk at the center of the tread. The chalk should be held perfectly steady, so that it may mark a line down the tread showing the amount the wheel toes in.

This may be about a sixteenth of an inch in most cases, although some wheels toe in an eighth of an inch or even more.

Of course, this test presupposes that there is no play at the hubs. If there is, this should be tightened up first.

Practice should be made of inflating the tires to their proper pressure once a week. The manufacturer's advice should be followed. Equal inflation of the front tires eliminates this as a possible factor in wheel shimmy.

Lastly come the spring shackles.

WINTER FEED IS NEED OF CHICKS

LAYING HENS NEED GREEN FEED TO STAY HEALTHY AND VIGOROUS, HELD.

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 15.—Texas politicians will do well to provide an ample supply of winter green feeds for the laying hen, D. H. Reid, head of the poultry husbandry department, A. and M. college, advises. Green feed keeps hens healthy and vigorous, acting as a laxative and bulky feed as well as a very cheap and efficient source of vitamins.

"The sources of green feeds are sprouted oats, green growing grain, collards, rape, chard, green turnips, good alfalfa hay, peanut hay, lawn clippings and cabbage and lettuce," Prof. Reid said.

Sprouted Oats Good

"Sprouted oats are the most expensive of the green feeds but are often used to good advantage. Probably the cheapest and most satisfactory form of green food that we can raise in Texas is some kind of growing grain. In the North, where the weather is more severe, rye is used extensively for this purpose. Barley comes next in hardness while oats are probably the most tender of the three grains. The hens like oats better than either of the other two grains, and will do exceedingly well on them. The best substitute for green feeds are alfalfa hay and cod liver oil."

bolts and clips. Their effect is felt especially when the car is moving at a high speed.

They should be tightened.
