Haywood says he'll run again

By Wade Warren
Staff Writer

Sen. Tom Haywood told a crowd of some three dozen supporters at Winston Field Tuesday he believes many things were accomplished in his four years in the Texas Legislature, including working with local officials to recruit new businesses.

"Of course, I don't need to remind anyone here of how important that is," said Haywood, who was in Snyder to announce his re-election bid as Senator for District 30.

Haywood has been a leader in obtaining grants for the construction of SnTx I, Snyder's industrial park, and for workforce training through Western Texas College.

The senator said he has set four main goals in the coming four years, including offering a tax cut to businesses which set up on-site day care facilities for children of employees.

"With both parents working and as many single parent families we have now, this is the number one priority," said Haywood.

Haywood also said he is in favor of returning five percent of Texas lottery proceeds to local governments.

"The lottery is prospering," said Haywood. "But is it doing what it needs to be doing for individual communities?"

Haywood said he is against unfunded mandates and the proliferation of laws passed by the legislature.

"I want to make sure unnecessary laws don't pass and to make our lives simple once again."

The 67-year-old Haywood, who has Parkinson's Disease, dismissed rumors about not running again in a news release.

"Some wishful thinking Democrats are the only ones I can think of that might be spreading rumors like that."

On Monday, the Free Market Committee and the Free Enterprise political action committee named Haywood to the list of the top 20 percent most conservative state legislators.

Also, he was given the "Champion of Free Enterprise Award" by the same groups for "His fight in protecting our free enterprise system, private property rights and for limited taxation."

Lorber to get DCOS attention

Board will hear architectural presentation Thursday

Items related to Lorber Industries and Big Country Incinerators dominate a meeting of the Development Corporation of Snyder board, set for 4 p.m. Thursday.

Emerson Tucker, consulting textile engineer from Lubbock, will make a presentation in regards to architectural plans for the Lorber facility here.

Lorber anticipates beginning construction of a spinning mill in October with equipment move-in planned for December and January and production to begin in March. The plant will be designed to expand in the future, adding weaving, knitting and finishing processes.

DCOS members will also consider reimbursing Lorber Industries for a feasibility study.

In other action, the board is expected to release Big Country Incinerators (BCI) from its contractual agreement and sell the company the old gin at Hermleigh.

BCI and the DCOS entered an agreement 18 months ago which conveyed the property to BCI, provided the company met certain criteria related to growth. However, BCI has not met that criteria and therefore has defaulted on the agreement. The parties have reached a new agreement which would release BCI from the old agreement and allow the company to purchase the property outright.

Bills and previous minutes are the only other action items on the agenda.

Board members will hear status reports on construction jobs related to the city industrial park; discuss grant reimbursements; review contractual arrangements between the city and utility contractors relating to water and sewer lines; and hear the executive director's monthly report.

HISD tax rate to go up 8 cents

Hermleigh ISD trustees have approved an eight-cent hike in the tax rate this year — prompted, according to Superintendent Jerry Church, by the increased homestead exemption.

Trustees approved a tax rate of $1.43 per $100 valuation, up from $1.35 a year ago.

Church said the $10,000 added homestead exemption took a major toll in Hermleigh, where the average home is valued at less than $15,000.

"What it did was take the average house off the tax roll," said Church, who estimates the exemption cost the district $1.8 million in valuations.

"Assuming a 100 percent collection rate, we would collect more at $1.35 a year ago than we will collect at $1.43 this year," said Church, who added, "Of course, you never collect 100 percent."

The state legislature has said it will make up the difference in funds.

"They say they are going to reimburse us penny for penny, but I haven't seen that yet," the superintendent said.

"Understand, I was in favor of the added exemption. I think it was needed. The teachers deserve a pay raise, and I think that the homestead exemption should follow a person if they move. It's a good thing. It's just that it has grabbed us pretty hard."

Hermleigh ISD's budget is set at $1,250,000, up slightly from a year ago due to the state-mandated teacher pay raises.

Assisted living project stalled by survey delay

Developers of a proposed assisted living facility in Snyder are "as enthusiastic as ever about the project," but are awaiting survey results before closing the deal for the land.

Evan R. Evans, president of Tejas Living Corporation, said this morning that he expected the survey results in his Fort Worth office this week, or at the latest, next week.

"There were some problems with the starting point of the survey," said Evans. "But I believe they have been worked out."

Evans met with members of the community in May of this year and discussed plans for an assisted living complex to be built on six acres just north of Trinity Methodist Church.

The 42-unit complex is to be comprised of 29 one-bedroom units and 13 studio units. The 13 units can be converted to two-bedroom units if the need arose, Evans said.

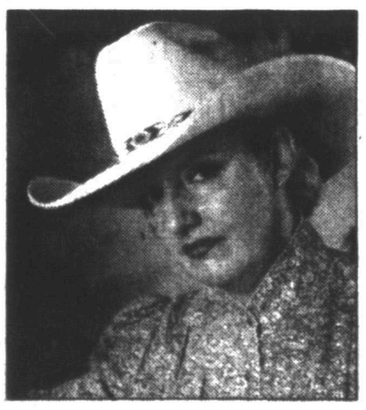
Prescott will entertain during Buffalo Festival

Jean Prescott, winner of the Will Rogers Memorial Female Vocalist of the Year Award for 1966, will be among the entertainers performing for a White Buffalo Festival audience here Oct. 4.

Entertainment on the square will begin about 10:45 a.m., right after the downtown parade. Prescott will follow the popular South Plains College Blue Grass Band, appearing for the first time at the festival.

Prescott said she grew up listening to Gene Autry, Marty Robbins, Loretta Lynn and Roy Rogers.

"I was obsessed with everything cowboy when I was growing up," she said. "All I ever did when I was a kid was play and ride horses until I was 14. Then my mom bought me a guitar. We didn't have TV until I was a teenager and when it broke, Daddy must have waited two or three years to get it fixed. So whenever the neighbors were over, Daddy would say, 'Jean, get your guitar and sing for the folks.'"



Jean Prescott

She became a full-time entertainer in 1993 after moving to Abilene, and has performed for cowboy and western music fans across the United States and in Europe.

She met her husband, Gary, at the Texas Cowboy Gathering in Alpine in 1993 and they now make their home near Ovalo.

Information about the White Buffalo Festival can be obtained by contacting the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

ASK US

Q—Has any student been placed in the STAR Program so far this year?

A—A court-ordered juvenile will begin the program on Sept. 29, while the school district is expected to place some students in it on Oct. 1.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

It is well for people who think to change their minds occasionally in order to keep them clean. For those who do not think, it is best to at least rearrange their prejudices once in a while.

Celebrating our heritage...

In every generation, providing for families always a challenge

Editor's Note: The following article is one of a series leading up to White Buffalo Days about life years ago in Scurry County and West Texas.

By Mary Westmoreland

In every generation, providing for families is a challenge.

Many things change with each succeding generation, usually making it easier to at least provide basic necessities, and seeing progress in a great many areas. But hardships and much bone-tiring work faced early settlers, and in parts of West Texas the rural way of life didn't change a lot until after World War II.

The great depression of the 1930s was especially devastating — a time when many, many people had little food and no money. The ones who had enough food usually had to grow it themselves. Wartime in the 1940s brought rationing and additional hardships, and saw people all over America, even in cities, raising "victory gardens."

From early days on through the 50s, there were a lot of family farms with room for orchards and gardens, and for raising chickens, pigs and cows. Some of the farmers who had more land also grew cotton, feed or corn to help with the family's income. And there was always a need to preserve much of the food that wasn't consumed fresh.

Gathering fruits and vegetables, canning and preserving by whatever method was available, took up a large part of the summer for farm families. (All this with no air conditioning, of course.) Some fruit was dried, oftentimes out on the cellar door in the sun. Cellars played an important part in rural life, giving a place to store the canned goods, along with potatoes, yams, turnips, apples, onions and other foods that would keep well. Of course the cellars also offered protection from storms.

Before refrigerators were available, milk and anything that needed to be kept cool was put in a homemade cooler. While there were many variations of coolers, they basically consisted of a big galvanized steel pan of water that the food was set in, and wet cloths or dish towels either hanging above and around the food, or covering it.

The coolers were placed on a porch, in a window, out by a windmill, or some other shady spot where a breeze could help keep it all cool. Some people even put milk in a bucket and lowered it into a cistern to keep it cool.

In those days, ice was a rare commodity. While it was delivered in some places, in others it meant a trip to the ice house in town to get it. (Snyder's ice house was once located on 26th Street by the RS&P Railroad track.)

Then a 50 or 75 pound chunk of ice would be wrapped in a quilt or two to help keep it from melting, and placed in a wagon or tied onto a Model T or Model A Ford for the trip home. Often a big chunk of ice meant homemade ice cream, iced tea or lemonade for supper.

Garden produce wasn't the only thing people canned during the first half of this century, for some even canned butter, and when hog-killing time came around in cold weather, the meat had to be preserved by whatever method was available. It wasn't unusual for bacon, ham, sausage, pigs feet and other parts of the pork to be canned. Hog-killing was often a cooperative effort among neighbors and kinfolks. Several men would bring their hogs to one farm where the all-day butchering job would take place.

The fat was rendered out to make lard (Crisco and canola oil hadn't been invented yet), and the lard was used for cooking and for making homemade lye soap. This lye soap was often the farm wife's only beauty bar, shampoo, laundry detergent and dishwashing soap, and the farmer's "Lava."

Folks back then had to know how to do hundreds of different jobs to provide for their families, and life definitely wasn't easy for most. Our lives are so much easier today, and while our bacon and sausage may not taste as good as their's did, it certainly is a lot easier to come by. But do you sometimes wish you had a bar of that good old lye soap to get stains out of clothes? I do.

DOMINO WINNERS — Sheriff Darren Jackson, head of the domino tournament at the Scurry County Fair, presented winners W.L. Wemken and R.B. Duke with prizes. They received a free night at the Wagon Wheel Bed and Breakfast, and second prize winners, Bill Turney and Anson Martin won a steak supper at the Rusty Spur. Both prizes were given by Billy Ray Browning. Third prize winners, Ernest Sears and Carl Foree, each received $50. (Staff Photo by Jo Ann Nunley)

Window display contest slated

Merchants who plan to enter the window display competition planned as part of the White Buffalo Festival are reminded that the displays are to be in place by Monday.

The competition is sponsored by Historic Scurry County, Inc., the Scurry County Museum and Scurry County Historical Commission to call attention to Scurry County heritage.

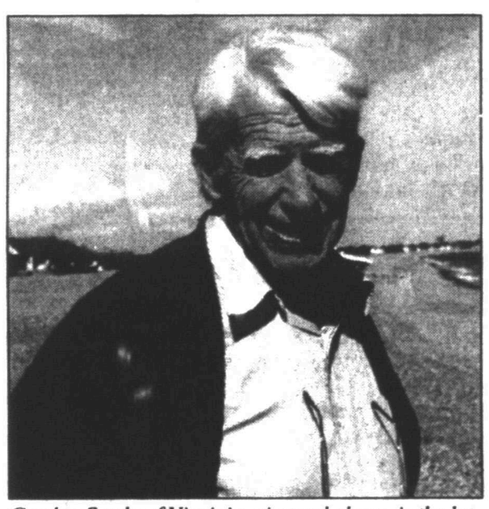
First prize will be $100, second prize, $75; and third prize, $25. Any business which has not been contacted and would like to enter the competition may call Jean Everett at 573-2763.

New to the festival this year is a costume contest, open to contestants of all ages. Judging will take place on the south side of the courthouse at about 10:45 a.m. on Oct. 4.

Cash prizes will go to the first and second place winners and six honorable winners will receive T-shirts.

New Poetry Contest $48,000.00 in Prizes

The National Library of Poetry to award 250 total prizes to amateur poets in coming months



Gordon Steele of Virginia, pictured above, is the latest Grand Prize Winner in The National Library of Poetry's North American Open Amateur Poetry Contest. As the big winner, he was awarded $1,000.00 in cash.

Owings Mills, Maryland – The National Library of Poetry has just announced that $48,000.00 in prizes will be awarded over the next 12 months in the brand new North American Open Amateur Poetry Contest. The deadline for entry into the contest is October 15, 1997. Another contest begins October 16, 1997. The contest is open to everyone and entry is free.

"We're especially looking for poems from new or unpublished poets," indicated Howard Ely, spokesperson for The National Library of Poetry. "We have a ten year history of awarding large prizes to talented poets who have never before won any type of writing competition."

How To Enter

Anyone may enter the competition simply by sending in ONLY ONE original poem, any subject, any style, to:

The National Library of Poetry
Suite A1001
1 Poetry Plaza
Owings Mills, MD 21117-6282

Or enter online at www.poetry.com

The poem should be no more than 20 lines, and the poet's name and address must appear on the top of the page. Entries must be postmarked by October 15, 1997. "All poets who enter will receive a response concerning their artistry, usually within seven weeks," indicated Mr. Ely.

Possible Publication

Many submitted poems will also be considered for inclusion in one of The National Library of Poetry's forthcoming hardbound anthologies. Previous anthologies published by the organization have included On the Threshold of a Dream, Days of Future's Past, Of Diamonds and Rust, and Moments More to Go, among others.

"Our anthologies routinely sell out because they are truly enjoyable reading, and they are also a sought-after sourcebook for poetic talent," added Mr. Ely.

World's Largest Poetry Organization

Having awarded over $150,000.00 in prizes to poets worldwide in recent years, The National Library of Poetry, founded in 1982 to promote the artistic accomplishments of contemporary poets, is the largest organization of its kind in the world. Anthologies published by the organization have featured poems by more than 100,000 poets.

"We're always looking for new poetic talent," said Mr. Ely. "I hope you urge your readers to enter the contest. There is absolutely no obligation whatsoever, and they could be our next big winner."

Two officers shot to death, teen-age brothers charged

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two teen-age brothers were held without bail today, accused of killing two lawmen along a busy freeway hours after holding up a loan company in South Carolina and fleeing in a stolen car.

The brothers were captured after a 20-mile chase Tuesday ended in a gunfight.

Kevin Golphin, 17, and Tillman Golphin, 19, had their first court appearance today on charges of first-degree murder. They could face the death penalty if convicted.

State Trooper Ed Lowry, 47, and sheriff's Deputy David Hathcock, 57, were shot several times at close range by an assault rifle, Cumberland County Sheriff Earl Butler said.

"It's a sad day that we're living in a society that's so violent that an officer can just do a routine job, a routine stop that he shouldn't feel threatened doing and then winds up killed," he said.

An AK-47 assault-style rifle believed to be used in the shootings was found at the scene, as were weapons believed to have belonged to the lawmen.

The suspects' car, a 1998 Toyota Camry, was stolen earlier Tuesday after an armed robbery at a small loan company in Kingstree, S.C., about 110 miles southwest of Fayetteville.

At midday, Lowry stopped the car on Interstate 95 for an undetermined cause. A license check showed the Camry was stolen, so he called for assistance and Hathcock responded.

SJHS plans hamburger supper

Snyder Junior High School's choir is planning a hamburger supper Friday, before homecoming, from 5-7 p.m. at the high school cafeteria.

Advance tickets are being sold for $5 each.

The Show Choir will perform throughout the supper. Marcie Dennis, director, said they fed over 1,000 people last year and hope to top that Friday night.

Cancer Survivor Urges Women To Perform Monthly Self-Exam

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1997 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter in your column from Sens. Barbara Mikulski and K.B. Hutchison. As a 40-year-old woman whose 2.7-centimeter tumor was not detected by a mammogram, I wholeheartedly agree with the Mammography Quality Standards Act. However, when I read about mammography being our most powerful weapon in the war against breast cancer, I get angry.

The senators incorrectly stated that early detection is the key to prevention — and I worry that some women may rely too heavily on this weapon. Mammography does not prevent breast cancer, and only increases a woman's survival rate if the cancer is detected early. I support legislation that ensures quality standards for the only tool we have available, but hope in the future more emphasis will be placed on prevention, and finding a diagnostic tool that really does detect breast cancer early in younger women.

While the various agencies decide who should and should not get mammograms and at what age, I urge all women to do a BSE (breast self-exam) each month. Get to know your breasts, and if you feel something unusual, have it biopsied — do not depend on mammograms alone.

A SURVIVOR IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR SURVIVOR: Excellent advice that I hope all women will take to heart. Survival is literally in our own hands.

DEAR ABBY: I've had it with early birds who imply there's something wrong with people who don't bound out of bed at the crack of dawn.

I am a night owl and my body clock refuses to allow me to go to bed early. If I try, I lie awake for hours. I naturally fall asleep between 4 and 5 a.m. I was once fired from a job on suspicion of alcoholism because every morning I staggered in late and bleary-eyed. Since my brain didn't start to function until noon, they were sure I had a hangover.

I worked as many hours as everyone else at another job, but I was denied a promotion because, "although your work is excellent, you don't have the drive to get to the office by 7 a.m." Maybe not. But my boss didn't have "the drive" to stay at work until 10 p.m., as I frequently did. If you aren't an early bird just like everyone else, you'll never make big money. If you aren't at the office early, you're "not motivated."

I am motivated to work hard, but I work better after noon. I'd be a lot more productive if I were allowed to work with my natural body rhythms rather than against them.

I'm sure I'm not the only night owl who fights a daily battle against the early birds who run the business world. At this point, I'm looking forward to retirement when I can sleep without being ridiculed because I go to sleep late and wake up naturally in mid-morning. I can't wait to get on my own schedule and enjoy life instead of blundering through in a sleepy stupor.

SLEEPLESS, BUT NOT IN SEATTLE

DEAR SLEEPLESS: According to Dr. Quentin Regestein, director of psychiatry at the Sleep Clinic at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, your atypical sleep pattern is "delayed sleep phase syndrome." Contrary to what some people might think, it is not insomnia. The timing of your sleep is the problem, and it's possible that your condition can be relieved, even without drugs.

The business world has become slightly more flexible regarding work hours, but companies cannot accommodate each employee individually. Some workers with atypical sleep patterns find jobs that allow them to work at home or at night. Since you are experiencing difficulty in the work place because you are out of sync with everyone else, you would be wise to seek treatment. Look in the yellow pages or call a local hospital to find a sleep disorder clinic in your area.

Keeping control

By Phillip Alder

William James, an American psychologist and philosopher, pointed out: "It is nice to make heroic decisions and to be prevented by 'circumstances beyond your control' from ever trying to execute them."

At the bridge table, though, circumstances are often under your control. How would you play in four hearts after West has led the spade queen? What do you think of South's opening bid?

This deal was given by Danny Roth in the July issue of Bridge Plus, a British magazine.

Opening four hearts works best unless your side can make a slam, which won't be often. As you have scant defense against an opponent's contract, I agree with Roth that four hearts is the bid of choice.

South could see 10 tricks: one spade, seven hearts and two diamonds. Unfortunately, though, the opening lead had dislodged dummy's entry to the diamond king. South's first thought was to win trick one and return the spade four. Yet even the sleepiest of opponents would switch to a trump, which would kill the contract.

Then South saw how to maintain control. He played low from the dummy at trick one. Now West (or East, if he overtook with the king) had no riposte. If he played another spade to dummy's ace, declarer would lead a diamond to his ace, ruff a spade in the dummy, discard a club on the diamond king, and claim an overtrick. (Yes, the opponents can save the overtrick by taking their club tricks before playing the second spade.)

Alternatively, if the opponents switch to a trump to stop the spade ruff, the spade ace is still in the dummy, resuscitating the diamond king.

Most of armored car loot said recovered

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Imagine a business happy to learn that it's missing $186,000.

When Loomis, Fargo & Co. officials learned Tuesday that's all that's missing from the $18.8 million stolen from its office here March 29, they heaved a sigh of relief, according to a company spokesman.

"Certainly we're ecstatic," Pat Flaherty told the Florida Times-Union in Jacksonville for today's editions. "We were expecting to recover a good chunk of it, but this was bigger and sooner than we expected."

FBI agents discovered bags of the money last week in a mini-storage shed in Mountain Home, N.C. They say the shed was rented in 1993 by former Loomis courier Philip Johnson using the alias Michael Gray.

Police found the money after investigators linked Johnson to the facility through an alias on a money order found in a Mexico City boarding home where Johnson lived for three months after the robbery.

Johnson remains in a Texas jail awaiting extradition to Jacksonville to face charges of robbery by force, kidnapping and money laundering. U.S. marshals said he may be brought back this week.

The money was brought back from North Carolina to be counted at the Jacksonville branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta. Bank employees spent two days counting the money before finishing yesterday, said Bob Slack, branch manager.

Johnson was arrested in Brownsville, Texas, on Aug. 30 after crossing the U.S.-Mexico border.

Princess Diana Honored on Postage Stamps Just Days Before Her Tragic Death

Limited Edition is lasting tribute to the "Queen of People's Hearts"

Limited Edition honors "the most beloved lady of our time."

Owings Mills, MD — Just days before Princess Diana's impossibly tragic death, a set of nine Limited Edition postage stamps was issued to commemorate her charitable acts and contributions to humanity. Just a fraction of the issue remains unsold.

"Our phones have been ringing off the hook," stated John Van Emden of the International Collectors Society, the exclusive worldwide distributor of the stamps. "Princess Diana touched the hearts of all of us with a warmth and closeness to the people that is not usually associated with Royalty. It's clear from all the calls we're handling that the entire world is overwhelmed with grief at this horrific loss."

Experts are already predicting that this Princess Diana issue will be the most sought after collectible stamp of all time. The nine stamps in the set picture The Princess in the famous gowns she recently donated to a charitable auction held at Christie's in New York City, U.S.A.

"Princess Diana was without a doubt the most famous and most photographed woman in the world," added Van Emden. "Three quarters of a billion people in 74 countries watched the Royal Wedding. When you realize that these stamps are a Limited Edition of just thousands worldwide, you can see the irresistible appeal that they have to collectors. In fact, we're nearly sold out."

Each of the nine colorful stamps in the set is four times the size of a regular U.S. stamp. They're legal for postage in the Togolaise Republic and are recognized by every postal authority around the world.

If you want to order the collection, you must act quickly. The stamps are available for a short time while supplies last at their original issue price of $9.95 (plus $3 p&h) for the complete set of nine different stamps. You'll also receive a Certificate of Authenticity. The most you can buy is six sets. Send your check or money order to ICS, 3600 Crondall Lane, Suite 100SADN, Owings Mills, MD 21117. Credit card holders may call toll free 1-800-497-5023 or 1-800-506-0070 or 1-800-648-2488.

Princess Diana's Lasting Legacy

Against all odds, Princess Diana embraced the plight of society's so-called "untouchables" such as:

- sick and handicapped children
- the homeless
- battered women
- victims of terminal disease
- victims of anti-personnel landmines

She will forever be remembered for:

- her charitable efforts
- her promotion of equality
- her devotion to her sons, Prince William and Prince Harry

Snyder JV downs Tors

LAMESA — Snyder's junior varsity volleyball team tallied 13 kills and two blocks in only two games Tuesday night, as the Lady Tigers downed Lamesa 15-9, 15-13.

Snyder's Christina Holder served four consecutive points in game one, giving Snyder a 5-3 lead which it would never relinquish.

Game two was somewhat of a different story.

Lamesa's service game was working almost to perfection, as the Tors jumped to a 7-5 lead in the early going.

Snyder coach Carmen Bohannon called a timeout, but Lamesa's serve stayed hot and the Lady Tigers found themselves trailing 12-5.

But Bohannon signaled another timeout and this time Snyder responded.

The Lady Tigers came back on the court and outscored Lamesa 10-1, taking the game and the match.

Holder finished the night with a team-high seven service points and four kills.

Snyder will be on the court again Saturday against Levelland in the SHS gym.

Snyder def. Lamesa 15-9, 15-13
Snyder service points: Christina Holder, 7; Cara Best and Tessa Hildebrand, 6; Leslie Rollins, 5; Courtney Rinehart, 4; Callie Bane, 2. Kills: Holder, 4; Best, 3; Hildebrand and Kristin Martinez, 2; Kameron Kallemeyn, 1. Blocks: Rinehart, 2.

Snyder 9th wins again

LAMESA — Snyder's freshman volleyball team marched into the Lamesa gym Tuesday night like they knew exactly what they were doing.

And it turns out, they did.

The young Lady Tigers had to go three games, but they topped the Golden Tornadoes 15-9, 6-15, 15-11, improving their season record to 11-3.

Cary Brown led Snyder with 10 service points, including two aces.

Brooke Williams also had a good match from the line, as she totaled eight points with one ace.

Snyder will be in action Saturday at home against Levelland.

WTC linksters nab second tourney title

RUIDOSO, N.M. — The Western Texas College golf team rode the play of Andreas Ljunggren and Michael Stenger to a 1-under par victory in the High Country Shoot-Out.

Ljunggren and Stenger, who was competing in his first collegiate tournament, finished the two rounds tied for the medalist lead at 2-under 142.

But Stenger grabbed top honors when he birdied the second hole of a sudden-death playoff.

"This was Michael's first tournament," Westerner golf coach Milton Ham said. "He played extremely well and that is just an example of how good all our kids are."

WTC, leading by only a single stroke over Midland JC after the first round, fired a 291 to take the title by six shots.

Midland finished second at 581 and the third slot went to Utah Valley State with a 585.

"After the first round I told the kids to just keep their feet on the ground and their heads out of the clouds," Ham remarked. "I told them people were going to be shooting for us, but that we could handle it if we just played our game."

Fredrik Widmark led the Westerners' final-round scoring with a 72, giving him an even par total for the tourney.

Jonas Wahlstedt finished at 77, while Ole Fogisang came in at 154 and Jake McCullough at 156.

"We have some really good players this year," Ham Said. "And they're only getting better.

"Our next tournament should be great one. It will really test our abilities and we'll get to see how the kids react to being one of the favorites with everybody trying to knock us off the top spot."

The Westerners are preparing for their next competition Oct. 5-7 at Mission Dorado in Odessa.

Houston moves one game closer to division crown

HOUSTON (AP) — Finally, Houston is beginning to play like a first-place team — just in time to move to the verge of its first division title in 11 years.

The Astros lowered their magic number for clinching the NL Central to two by beating the Chicago Cubs 5-3 Tuesday night. Second-place Pittsburgh remained 3½ games back with a 5-4 victory at New York.

"The Pirates can't catch us if we don't lose," left fielder Luis Gonzalez shouted above the din in the Astros clubhouse.

Craig Biggio and Jeff Bagwell homered as Houston overcame one-run deficits three times and stretched a winning streak to four for the first time since Aug. 9-12.

"I guess it's just going to take winning," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "The Pirates keep winning so we're just going to have to do it ourselves."

Biggio tied the score 3-all with a sixth-inning homer, and Tony Eusebio singled in the go-ahead run in the sixth off Steve Trachsel (8-12). Bagwell hit his 43rd homer in the fourth before a small crowd of 19,380.

"I'm happy for the people who have come out," Bagwell said. "I did think it would be better tonight. I don't see how much more excitement you can get. But maybe more will come out toward the end of the week."

Darryl Kile (19-7), trying to become Houston's first 20-game winner since Mike Scott in 1989, allowed six hits in 8 1-3 innings, struck out six and walked two. Billy Wagner finished for his 22nd save.

Lady Tigers drop 2-4A opener to Golden Tors

LAMESA — The Lady Tigers can chalk one up to experience.

Snyder dropped its opening match of district play to Lamesa, 15-8, 13-15, 15-9, Tuesday night. It was the first 2-4A varsity competition for most of the Lady Tigers.

"Most of these girls have never played in a district match before," Snyder coach Patty Grimmett said. "So, they were a little nervous. But now they have one match under their belt and they'll know what to expect next time."

Snyder jumped out to an early lead in game one, behind the serving of Lila King and Michelle Lewallen, and the net play of Keila Helms and Halea Huestis.

With the Lady Tigers leading 7-2, Lamesa's Jill Smith stepped to the service line.

By the time Smith was finished, Lamesa had a commanding 14-7 lead.

"We had a hard time with our serve receive all night," Grimmett remarked. "We talked about it during timeouts, but we just couldn't adjust to their serves."

In game two, Lamesa surged ahead early.

But trailing 6-1, back came the Lady Tigers.

Huestis' strong play upfront continued and the Lady Tigers grabbed their first lead at 13-12.

Amanda Huff served up the final point for the Lady Tigers, as they knotted the match at one game apiece.

Once again in the decisive game three, it was the serving of Lamesa which made the difference.

The two teams traded the lead three times, before Lamesa's Brenda Smith rotated to the service line.

Trailing 8-7, Smith rallied her team to a 14-8 lead before Snyder could force a sideout.

King managed to serve one more point before the Golden Tornadoes finished the match.

"Our girls played really well except for our serve receive," Grimmett said. "I thought our defense played really well, and our offense was executing also.

"Now we come back home for Levelland and these girls play better at home even though we haven't had that many home matches yet. I think they'll work hard in practice and be ready on Saturday."

The Lady Tigers play their second district match Saturday afternoon at 1 in the SHS gym.

Switzer vows Dallas will be ready

IRVING (AP) — Remember those Hawaii Five-0 episodes where Jack Lord used to close a case by saying "Book 'em Dano?"

That's what Barry Switzer says the Dallas Cowboys are going to do to the 14-point underdog Chicago Bears on Sunday. Switzer says the Cowboys won't fall into any bear trap.

"Book it, we're not going to be flat," the Dallas coach said on Tuesday. "We'll be ready to play."

The Cowboys (2-1) normally have trouble in games where they are big favorites. In their last game, they were nine-point picks over Philadelphia and won only because of a botched field goal attempt.

Dallas needed a 60-yard touchdown pass from Troy Aikman to Kelvin Martin in the final minute to beat Atlanta 32-28 last year when the Cowboys were two-touchdown favorites.

"At this level, if you don't play good, you can get beat," Switzer said.

The Cowboys used their off week to work on numerous team malfunctions, including blocking the blitz. They also feel former Dallas coach Dave Wannstedt will unload his bag of exotic tricks trying to get his Bears a win.

"We expect the unexpected," Switzer said. "We'll be looking for fake field goals, onsides kicks, desperate things by a desperate team. We have to be prepared mentally for the unexpected. This ballgame could make their season. It's a wounded, desperate Chicago Bears team that will play us. This game will be tougher than our fans want."

Chicago beat Dallas 22-6 in the opening game of the season last year at Soldier Field.

Switzer all but conceded that defensive tackle Chad Hennings won't be available Sunday at Texas Stadium because of a groin injury suffered in the first quarter of the 21-20 win over the Eagles.

"I'm concerned about Chad," Switzer said. "If he is not 100 per cent, we won't suit him up. We'd probably bring on Darren Benson. We can't just suit up three tackles, go into the ballgame and lose him (Hennings) on the first series."

Switzer said he expected guard Larry Allen to shake off his hamstring injury and hopes Fred Strickland can return to middle linebacker after missing a game with a sprained right knee.

"It's a big key for us to get our defense back into a solid unit," Switzer said. "The bye week helped our injury situation and it looks like we'll have Allen because of it. As far as Chad is concerned, a groin can become a chronic injury and it's hard to heal."

Rangers rout Athletics

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Lee Stevens hit two home runs and Juan Gonzalez and Alex Diaz added three-run shots as the Texas Rangers routed the Oakland Athletics 14-6 on Tuesday to end a four-game losing streak.

Oakland's Jason Giambi hit a three-run home run off John Burkett (8-12) in the fifth inning to cut Texas' lead to 6-4, but Diaz answered in the sixth with his first home run of the season, off reliever Tim Kubinski.

Gonzalez added his 40th, another three-run shot, in the eighth for the Rangers, who matched a season high with 20 hits.

Burkett, who recorded his 100th career victory, spent much of August on the disabled list because of soreness in his shoulder. The right-hander allowed four runs and nine hits in eight innings for his first victory since July 12 at Seattle. He had seven strikeouts and walked three.

Scurry County Country

Special week designated as reminder of the importance of safety in farming

This week is Farm Safety and Health Week as proclaimed by the National Safety Council, and Governor George W. Bush of Texas. The theme for 1997 is "Safety and Health — The First Step Toward Sustainable Agriculture."

Kathryn Roberts, county Extension agent, Scurry County, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, said that agriculture consistently has a death rate that places it among the top three most dangerous industries along with construction and mining.

According to National Safety Council Statistics, the agriculture industry had the second highest death rate (24 deaths per 100,000 workers) in 1995, compared with a rate of 4 per 100,000 for all industries combined.

Nationally there were approximately 140,000 agricultural work injuries and 800 agricultural work-related deaths in 1995, according to National Safety Council statistics. Tractors continue to cause more fatal injuries than any other source in the agricultural industry. Youth and elderly are traditionally at higher risk of fatal or disabling injury.

Approximately one-half of the tractor related deaths are due to tractor rollovers. Almost all of these occur on tractors without roll over protective structures (ROPS). ROPS provides a safe zone for the operator in the event of an overturn. If seat belts are not used on a tractor with ROPS, the operator may be thrown out of the safe zone. With only a few exceptions, new tractors are required to have ROPS installed before being sold. However, most tractors in operation today are older tractors that do not have ROPS. Retrofit ROPS are available for many tractor models. Local dealers or county Extension agents can assist with determining if a retrofit is available.

Farm equipment is often moved from field to field on public roads. Farmers should ensure that a clearly visible slow-moving vehicle (SMV) emblem is installed on equipment that operates below 25 miles per hour. Farmers should also use flashing hazard lights to warn other vehicles about wide loads and frequent turns. With the recent change in speed limits (to 70 mph) on many rural roads, motor vehicles will have significantly less time to react to slow moving farm vehicles. the public can also help out by being extra cautious on country roads. Especially during planting and harvest seasons, drivers should watch for farm equipment on the roadway to avoid a potential accident.

It is vitally important that farmers take a few minutes each morning to consider the potential hazards of the day's activities and steps you can take to avoid an accident. If you have children that help with farm work, instill safe work habits in them by involving them in your daily safety assessment. Check for things like missing guards and shields on equipment, worn belts and bearings, and leaking hydraulic hoses and connections along with normal routine maintenance.

Remember, a few minutes taken to ensure safety is a small price to avoid a tragic accident.

Farm Shop Safety

Service and maintenance tasks can often lead to serious injury. The farm shop and the field are the primary locations where repair operations are completed. Make sure your farm shop is part of a farm safety solution, not a problem.

•Organize workshop so everything has a designated place. Make sure items are secure so they will not fall on someone.

•Clean walkways so that the path is clear so someone will not trip and fall.

•When working on agricultural equipment, make sure that the equipment is turned off, all rotating parts have stopped moving and safety locks are put in place.

•Keep all guards and shields on power equipment in place.

•Use hand tools for their intended purpose and use them properly.

•Equip shop with Ground Fault Circuit Interrupters (CFCI) to help prevent electrical shock.

•Make sure shop is well lighted. If shop is heated, make sure it is vented properly and flammable liquids are kept out of shop area.

•Wear personal protective equipment (PPE) when performing repair jobs. Standard PPE for a farm shop should be leather gloves, chemical-resistant gloves, safety glasses, face shields, ear plugs or muffs, steel-toed shoes, respirators, hard hat, protective apron and welding shields.

Farmer-Stockman Show set

The fifth annual Farmer-Stockman Show is scheduled for Oct. 7-9 in Lubbock. The largest outdoor working farm and ranch show in the Southwestern United States, boasts 800 acres of show site with 54 acres of stationary exhibits and 600 acres of crops for field demonstrations. Crops to be harvested during the show are corn, cotton, grain sorghum and alfalfa.

In addition to the many field demonstrations, the exhibit field will be covered with the latest in agricultural technology. Companies will exhibit tractors, combines, cotton strippers, tillage equipment, spraying equipment, irrigation equipment, seed, chemicals, fertilizers, livestock equipment, trucks trailers and many more services and products.

It's no wonder the most commonly heard comment from first time visitors is, "I can't believe how big this show is! I need more than one day to see it all!"

The busy three-day schedule will include a variety of activities for the entire family. For producers, field demonstrations exhibit modern machinery in harvesting, tillage and hay handling. Livestock demonstrations have been expanded this year with live cattle handling demonstrations, horse training sessions, cutting horse demonstrations, and a live milking exhibit.

A new section of the show will address wildlife issues with relation to agriculture, and a variety of new exhibitors will display their wares. The popular Family Living area has expanded programs of healthy lifestyles, farm safety, grain sorghum food products, square dancing, quilting and fashion shows. Texas Blood Institute will also feature a blood drive throughout the three days of the show. Crafters and antique exhibits are unique shopping opportunities.

A trip down memory lane will also be at the show with the antique tractor and equipment exhibits. Over 60 individual exhibits will participate in this event, and many of the tractors can be seen running in the parade scheduled for 11:20 a.m. daily.

Continuing education courses are also offered during the show. Two programs will allow producers to receive CEU credits for attending. The first course, Cotton Plant Mapping, is scheduled at 12 noon-1 p.m., and the afternoon course is from 3-4 on Boll Weevil Basics.

The Farmer-Stockman Show is 1.5 miles east of Loop 289 on East 50th Street (FM835). Show hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. daily, Oct. 8, 9 and 10. Admission is $5 per person, 18 and under free.

Long-term health care policies noted

WICHITA FALLS — With more and more Americans living longer, insurance to provide long-term health care provides an option more families are considering.

Suggestions for deciding whether to buy such a policy and for evaluating provisions of such policies were presented by Kay Wachs of the Texas Department of Insurance during the annual convention of the Texas Association of Family and Community Education (FCE) clubs.

Originally known as Extension Homemaker Clubs, the organization began around 1912 when the Texas Agricultural Extension Service appointed its first women agents. The Extension Service, an off-campus arm of the Texas A&M University, works with the clubs to help women improve their homemaking and parenting skills, develop leadership abilities and promote community service.

"A lot of older people are taking better care of themselves and are not going to end up in a nursing home," Wachs said. Medicaid pays for nearly half of all nursing home care, but to receive this assistance you must meet federal poverty guidelines for income and assets, she noted.

"If you have a lot of assets to protect and a lot of risk factors, you probably should consider long-term care insurance," Wachs said.

The first step, she said, is to look at available resources and get a basic understanding of the terms used by insurance companies and agents. One such resource, she said, is a free publication," A Shopper's Guide to Long-Term Care Insurance."

It can be obtained by writing the Texas Department of Insurance, Distribution/MC 9999, P.O. Box 149104, Austin, Texas, 78714-9104.

Policies provide many levels of care and places such care can be received, Wachs explained. These include skilled nursing care, interned nursing care, home health care, adult day care, assisted living and respite care. In addition to cost, pay attention to what is provided in the policy, she advised.

"Two places you really need to look are what are the benefits and what are the limits," Wachs said.

Daily or monthly benefits set the specific dollar or the percent of cost the policy covers. Because of increasing medical costs, some policies may have an optional "inflation rider" to help compensate. Most plans have a total maximum benefit they will pay out over the duration of the policy.

Another thing to consider in the benefits is the "elimination period," sometimes called a deductible or a waiting period, she said. That means that benefits begin 20, 30, 60, 90 or 100 days after you enter a nursing home. Lower elimination periods usually increase the policy cost.

Another point to consider when comparing policies is the limitation on pre-existing conditions. In Texas, this can't be longer than six months, she said. And in Texas a policy has to be guaranteed renewable as long as you pay your premiums according to the terms of the contract. This doesn't guarantee that the premiums will remain the same when the policy is renewed, however.

Fund-raising...

Probe: Three may be granted immunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel was poised today to give the sister of Yah Lin "Charlie" Trie and two others immunity from prosecution to get their testimony about Democratic Party fund-raising abuses.

Democrats said they would support the immunity grants to allow the House Government Reform and Oversight Committee to conduct its first public hearings of its nine-month investigation.

Nine Democratic votes were needed to provide a two-thirds vote for immunity. Democrats predicted that most of their members would join Republicans in supporting the plan. The committee was scheduled to vote following a debate on the request by Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., the panel's chairman.

Democrats' support was begrudging. Rep. Henry Waxman of California, the ranking Democrat on the committee, said he was supporting immunity only to protect the rights of the three witnesses, which he contended were abused by Republican staff investigators.

Waxman argued that the three were "at best minor figures in the campaign-finance investigation" whose testimony would add "little that seems relevant."

Waxman said Trie's sister, Manlin Foung, her friend Joseph Landon and David Wang were "put in possible legal jeopardy" because investigators "questioned them in secret without attorneys present."

The three hired lawyers and demanded immunity from prosecution after Burton announced they were scheduled as the committee's first public witnesses. Burton was forced to cancel the opening of hearings last week while the immunity issue was resolved.

Burton said the three witnesses were used as conduits to make donations on behalf of others — which violates campaign-finance laws. The Justice Department notified the committee last week it did not intend to bring criminal charges against the three and would therefore not oppose the immunity grants.

The three, Burton said, are "willing to explain .... what they know of the patterns and practices" of Trie and John Huang, two Democratic National Committee fund-raisers at the center of the campaign fund-raising investigation.

Both Trie and Huang have refused to cooperate with the investigation. Senate hearings chaired by Sen. Fred Thompson, R-Tenn., produced evidence that both Trie and Huang made substantial donations.

Hermleigh ready for big homecoming this weekend

A host of activities are planned for Hermleigh's biennial homecoming Saturday.

Special displays are planned since this is Hermleigh School's 90th year.

A highlight of the evening will be the Cardinals' matchup with Trent at 7 o'clock. Crowning of the homecoming queen and football hero will take place during halftime.

Queen candidates are Melissa Brasuel, Ester Martinez, Randi Kay Herrington and Miranda Terry.

Hero candidates are Larry Lambaren, Ricky Luna, Billy Joe Digby and Jason Hernandez.

Homecoming events begin much earlier in the day, however. Registration will begin at 9 that morning in the high school. From 10 until 4 p.m., exes and visitors can view the main school buildings which have been renovated. The high school renovation was completed in 1996 and the elementary school this past summer.

A business meeting will begin at 2 p.m. At least one class — 1954 — is planning a reunion.

The junior and senior classes will serve a barbecue brisket dinner from 11:30 to 1:30 in the cafeteria. Tickets are $6 for adults and $3 for children under 12.

A dance in the gym will follow the game.

A bonfire is planned Friday night behind the gym. It will begin just after dusk.

NASA to decide if Wolf will get to live on Russian station

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — For now, astronaut David Wolf doesn't know whether he will spend the rest of the year on Earth or on Russia's decrepit space station, Mir.

NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin is expected to decide by Thursday morning whether Wolf will spend the next four months on the aging station. Either way, the space shuttle Atlantis likely will leave for Mir as planned Thursday night.

This morning, a shuttle manager said launch team members, like everyone else, are caught up in the suspense. "It's holding our interest (but) it's not really distracting us from the work at hand," said test director John Guidi.

The agency is under increasing political and public pressure not to put another American aboard Mir. Even some of NASA's own people have questioned Mir's merit in recent weeks, making it one of the most agonizing debates in the history of the space program.

"The whole country was behind us in Apollo," said Christopher Kraft, retired director of the Johnson Space Center and a key figure in the development of the Apollo and shuttle programs. "Today we live in this world of 'what have you done for me lately' business. That makes it very tough, particularly for NASA."

NASA insiders were divided right before the 1986 Challenger accident on whether to launch that morning, but that debate didn't become public until after the ugly fact. One of the biggest previous disputes came before the triumphant Apollo 8 flight to the moon during Christmas 1968, when some argued that the Saturn 5 rocket needed more testing.

There have been other debates along the way — whether to replace John Glenn on NASA's first orbital flight in 1962 because of the perceived psychological toll of his numerous launch delays.

Assisted living project

In May, Evans estimated that the facility could be completed in eight months after the real estate transaction.

Evans also said in May that the company proposed building similar facilities in other West Texas communities, including Seymour.

Seymour's city manager John Caussey said this morning that the company still planned to build a facility there, but actual construction has not started.

"Their engineers have taken core samples and such, but a project like this takes time to get the government paper work done," said Caussey.

The infrastructure to the Seymour facility will be paid for by a loan from the Texas Capital Fund in an amount ranging from $300,000 to $500,000, said Caussey.

Officers work variety of calls

In local law enforcement activity Tuesday, Brenda Boley requested to speak to a deputy at the sheriff's office at 10:29 a.m. in reference to a forged check at Lawrence IGA #400. An offense report for forgery was submitted.

At 1:11 p.m., an attempt to locate on a 1990 Dodge van which had been reported as stolen was cancelled. A vehicle repossession company had repossessed the wrong vehicle.

A report of a person receiving harassing telephone calls was reported to the police department at 1:25 p.m.

The fire department responded to a report of smoke in a residence at 1:37 p.m. at 1401 Ave. K. The home is owned and occupied by Olivia Oliveras and food burning on the stove caused the smoke.

A person requested to speak to an officer at 8:34 p.m. in the 1900 block of 17th Street in reference to possibly hearing gunshots in the area. Responding officers did not locate anyone in the area with a gun.

Brian Scott requested to speak to an officer at 9:05 p.m. from the 4100 block of Denison in reference to a back glass on his vehicle being broken. An offense report for Class B criminal mischief was submitted.

An officer was requested in the 800 block of 26th Street at 10:13 p.m. in reference to window peepers.

Former mistress indicted

LUBBOCK (AP) — A federal grand jury Tuesday added two more counts to the indictments related to the purchase of a home for Linda D. Jones, the former mistress of ex-U.S. Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros.

Ms. Jones, formerly known as Linda Medlar, her sister and brother-in-law already had been named in a 26-count indictment Sept. 12 alleging that they illegally took out a loan for a Lubbock house in which she lived.

Their initial appearance before U.S. Magistrate Judge J.Q. Warnick is scheduled for Friday morning. Ms. Jones' lawyer, David Guinn Jr. of Lubbock; said his client would plead innocent.

The charges came out of a 2½-year investigation of payments Cisneros made to Ms. Jones after their affair ended in the late 1980s. Attorney General Janet Reno ordered a special counsel probe into the matter, but the only charges have been related to Ms. Jones' home.

Cisneros has not been charged.

One of the new counts is a money laundering charge against Ms. Jones related to a $900 check Patsy J. Wooten, Ms. Jones' sister, wrote to help her obtain a house here, Guinn said.

The other charge accuses Ms. Jones of hiding evidence, Guinn said. Both new charges are similar to the other 26 charges the grand jury agreed upon earlier in the month.

Guinn characterized the addition of the two counts as excessive.

"If the first indictment was what we call in football 'piling on,' then today is just unnecessary roughness," he said Tuesday evening.

Chuck Lanehart, Ms. Wooten's attorney, said his client will plead not guilty.

Dr. Gott

By Peter Gott, M.D.

Instant replay in doctor's office

DEAR DR. GOTT: You have repeatedly written about doctors who don't explain diagnoses and treatments to their patients in understandable English. I've solved the problem. Whenever I am scheduled to meet with a doctor, I ask him if I can tape-record our conversation. This technique not only allows me to play back portions of the interaction, but it also enables me to devise sensible questions to ask at our next visit.

DEAR READER: Bravo! This is a great idea. Although most physicians might be intimidated by this strategy, I endorse it. For one thing, you have a record of exactly what was said; for another, you can easily "fill in the gaps" later at another consultation.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a woman in my 70s. Four years ago, I had a total right-knee replacement for the unrelenting pain of osteoarthritis.

Following this procedure, I continued to have pain. A year later, I required surgery to have the prosthesis re-aligned. The pain continued, so I saw another orthopedic specialist, who obtained a bone scan that showed infection. The prosthesis was removed, and I spent six weeks on intravenous antibiotics in a nursing home.

Two years ago, I had another prosthesis implanted. I still have pain and my whole lower leg is tender and swollen. I'm at a loss as to how to proceed: four operations in four years and I'm no better off than I was at the beginning.

DEAR READER: You've described the ultimate nightmare of total knee replacement. Fortunately, your experience is not common — but neither is it unusual.

The first prosthesis slipped and the surgeon attempted to correct it, leading to infection. At that point, the artificial knee had to be removed. Once the infection had been eradicated, a new prosthesis was implanted, to no avail.

Now there are several options available to you, including yet another operation to fuse the knee joint. As you can imagine, this situation requires the services of a super-specialized surgeon. I don't know what would be best for you, but he would. In my opinion, you need a referral to a major teaching hospital, where skilled surgeons specialize in solving difficult cases like yours. I believe that you can be helped, but it will take a "doctor's doctor" to do so.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Understanding Osteoarthritis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

Strasny presents workshop

Northeast learns to solve problems

Grace Strasny of Stamford presented a program, "A Logical Approach to Problem Solving," at Northeast last week.

Working with two classes at a time, she conducted sessions throughout Thursday. Following that, she worked with teachers.

Strasny's approach to solving math story problems is a concept she developed.

Last week's session was a followup to the one day inservice session Strasny presented during the 1996-1997 school year.

Lee Presswood, principal, considers Strasny's sessions beneficial, noting that they may have helped students during TASS Testing.

The day-long session cost $1,300 and last year's inservice, was $1,500.

Strasny's first five lessons were written to be straight forward, one-step story problems to get familiar with using the chart and the process of eliminating the operations that are not possible with the given information. The last five lessons contain extraneous information.

U2 in Sarajevo: reconcilation for warring factors temporary

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Fulfilling a promise made at the end of Bosnia's 3½-year war, the rock band U2 went to Sarajevo to unite Muslims, Croats and Serbs in song.

For two hours, 45,000 people from all over bitterly divided Bosnia, the former Yugoslavia, and troops serving in the NATO peace force joined for a rock concert Tuesday that drowned out any talk of war.

At one point, when the band sang its hit "In the Name of Love," the audience joined in so forcefully that it overpowered even the loudspeakers.

"Sing in Sarajevo," lead singer Bono told the crowd in Serbo-Croatian. "It's a present from you to us."

Weeks after the war ended in 1995, Bono visited Sarajevo and pledged to give a concert. All revenues from Tuesday's show — with tickets costing an average of $18 — were to benefit Sarajevo hospitals.

From a bullet-pocked stadium built for Sarajevo's last magical moment — the 1984 Winter Olympics — the sound of rock music echoed through a valley that had known only the terrifying explosions of shells and the snarl of snipers' bullets during war.

On tour in 1993-94, Bono established a direct video link with Sarajevo, broadcasting one of the group's concerts and bringing it a glimpse of the outside world amid its time of greatest isolation — a gesture Bosnians never forgot.

"I felt excluded from the world for so long," said Azra Smailkadic, 18, a student who came from Travnik in central Bosnia. "It's not only about U2. It's the feeling of being part of the world."

At least 500 of the fans braved the trip in buses from the Bosnian Serb republic to the Muslim-Croat Federation, where the concert was held.

That federation has been dysfunctional since it was formed under U.S. auspices in 1994, but not so Tuesday. Foreign donors repaired the war-shattered railway network within the Federation last year. Since then, trains have not moved — because Muslims and Croats couldn't agree on who was going to run the network.

Under their thumbs — audience treated to vintage Rolling Stones

CHICAGO (AP) — Mick Jagger danced and pranced, strutted and mugged. He crooned and screamed and howled, displaying all of the energy — if not quite all of the vocal range — he had three decades ago.

Seemingly indefatigable even though he's a 54-year-old grandfather with a history of hard living, Jagger dominated Soldier Field for nearly 2½ hours Tuesday night as the Rolling Stones kicked off their first tour in three years.

Spielberg slightly hurt in car mishap

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steven Spielberg missed the premiere of his new studio's first feature film when he was slightly injured in an auto accident on the way to the theater, police said today.

The limousine carrying the director collided with a car as Spielberg headed to the premiere of "The Peacemaker."
